A Curiosity in the Plough-Line

The following somewhat sensational item of agricultural intelligence is communicated to the Iowa Homestead by a correspondent: "I have thought it would be interesting to your numerous readers, and especially the farming community, to learn of a late invention of L. B. Hoit, of Cedar Falls, Iowa, which consists of a glass mould board for a plough. Among the numerous inventions for the benefit of the farmer, and labour saving machines, this plough promises to be the greatest blessing. This plough was patented Jan., 9th, 1856, and promises to effect a great reform in tilling the soil, as the experiment on its trial last fall is proven by many witnesses, and in soils of various conditions it exceeded the most sanguine expectations of its friends, and it is thought will supplant all other ploughs now in use, especially in the Western and Southern country. The inventor claims among other things for this plough that it will scour under all circumstances and in all soils—it will run on one third money, never rust by the rain or dew, or other exposure, hence is adapted to all soil where metal boards will not scour or clean.

The Fenian Situation.

DECLINING FERVOR.

From the Chicago Tribune.

One of the orators addressing a little Fenian meeting, a few evenings since, quoted Shakspeare thus, "There's divinity that shapes our ends rough, hew them as we will." For once the eloquent Hibernian was right. The present prospects of Fenianism are decidedly "rough," and the leaders are beginning to be conscious of a popular impression that such is the case and that they—the leaders a foresaid—are held responsible therefor. It's not a pleasant thing to be conscious of, as they can only expect certain and severe retribution for their shortcomings and deceptions. The feeling that the "F. B." is, and has been all through, a gigantic "sell," is probably more likely to prove dangerous in Chicago than in any other part of the country. The Irishmen and Irish-Americans in this section imbued with the active, go-ahead spirit of the West, have been eager to see some aggressive movement inaugurated immediately. O'Mahoney's avowed plans were too slow for them, and they accepted with enthusiasism, those of Sweeny and Roberts mainlay because through them some show of doing something was promised at an early day. The great strength of this faction of the Brotherhood was in Chicago, and their devotion to their chosen leaders was unbounded. But the chosen leaders made one grand mistake—they should have dealt in glittering generalities, and, beyond all things, avoided the use of dates. They should have had the same abhorrence of dates that some old maids are reported to have. But they had not, and the consequence has been that the date they set for "the risin" has been an apple of decord. Sweeny and Roberts begin to be look ed on as a pair of gay deceivers, and ere long their followers will not care a fig for them, unless they discover some new and "illigant raisins" for their eccentric conduct. That 17th of March, of which they talked so much, has been almost as fatal a date to them as the datestone, thrown by the merchant, was to the son of the genie, as recorded in those veritable and authentic chronicles of Fenia, the Arabian Nights. They blabbed so continually of what they would do on St. Patrick's day that the masses of the Fenians were actually persuaded that even if the gruel were thin there was a little meal in it, and thousands of them believed that Ireland would by one stroke, on St. Patrick's day, be made a free and independent nation, with the power of the "bloodthirsty Sassenach" forever broken. They had no very clear idea how this was to be accomplished, whether the sacking and burning of some Canadian villages,—a proclamation from Roberts, or a miraculous interposition of St. Patrick, resurrection for the purpose, was to be the chosen means,—but of the end they felt certain. Consequently, they could scarcely believe their senses when the ardently expected day came and went without any sign of action or cefidate intention on the part of the grand choctaws of the F. B. They are cast down disconsolate,—they metaphorically rend their garments and sit in sackcloth and ashes while they chant the melancholy lay of the Widow Bedott "can't never calkilate what's goin' to be our fate." They have affinities with those in grief, and a bond of sympathy unites them to the afflicted. The lamentations of Jeremiah are but "a circumstance" beside theirs, and their motto is no longer "Erin go bragh" but "lchabod," for that the glory of Fenia is departed. A night or two ago, an inebriated Celt attired in dilapidated apparel was immured in a gloomy cell within the Armory, and to wile away the tedious hours, he sang aloud a song. A policeman with a sympathetic mind sat near the grating of the dungeon wherein warbled the warm hearted but low-spirited son of Erin, and noted down the burthen of his lay—"twas thus:

"Me money's gone for Fanian bon's,
Mahoney's Robert's got the spon's
Me heart is sad fur I've lost me fun's
Oh! fwhy wuz I iver a Fanian.
(Chorus.)
Shule, shule, shule agra
Time can niver hale me wound,
Oh, bathershin caboclish shan a nag a dhu.
Oh! fwhr wuz I iver a Fanian.

They sed that sure on Patrick's day,
We'd go'n take ould Canada,
'N establish there our Fani a—
But fwhy wuz I iver a Fanian?
(Chorus.)
Ther talkin' now is mity laky,
They's preackin' up about Ja ma ky;
But musha Fania's gitten' shaky—
Oh! fwhy wuz I iver a Fanian!"
(Chorus.)

At this point the feelings of the policeman overcame him.—he had himself subscribed to Fenian purposes,—and the melody of the minstrel touched a tender point. He therefore ordered him to "shut up," but at the earnest solicitations of the caged Fenian, the guardian of the night permitted him to warble, to the air of "Croskeen Lawn," the following two verses, which he called "The Song of the Head Centre:"

"Let the banker praise his stocks,
And the miner puff his rocks,
As our Sweeny does his Irish name;
But we, more sharp than they,
Cut a splurge and live away,
With our pretty little Fenian game, game, game,
With our pretty little Fenian game.
Then fill your glasses high,
Let's not part with lips adry,
What the deuce care we for cries of "shame;"
We'll shortly "change our base,"
But still we'll "run our race"
In this pretty little Fenian game, game, game,
In this pretty little Fenian game.

The scandalized policeman would neither hear nor record aught more.

MOLLOY CIRCLE—LAST EVENING.

Molloy Circle is the most active and enthusiastic organization of Fenians in this city, and desperately do they struggle to keep their watch fires blazing. Last night they had a meeting over at North Market Hall, for the purpose of applying another squeeze to the pockets of the true believers. Probably a hundred and fifty persons were present, including a lot of little "mud-larks" and "gutter-snipes," who were rushing about, raising strange echoes in the dim emptuness of the farther portion of the hall, and still stranger echoes when they neared the little crowd of auditors and by their antics provoked volleys of barbarous Celtic oaths. Capt. Maguire presided over the meeting. Capt. J. F. Barrett, of McGregor, Iowa, was the first speaker. He, of course, used a fair share of the Fenian oratorical stock in trade—"British tyranny" and "oppressed and beggared Ireland"—and he nobly scorned entering into details on these topics even. He said the time was passed for any other argument than arms, and proclaimed that the F. B., will "go forth the harp of Erin floating in unison with the eagle of America, in the light of the effulgent radiance of the corruscating rays of the Irish sun-burst, with the musket in one hand and the sword in the other, and say to proud, perfidious Albion, 'take your choice.' He had not any idea when this move would be made by the F. B., but cherished a vague and pleasing impression that it would be at no very distant day. Then this ardent Fenian descended from his enthusiasm and plunged into the chilly waves of the practical. What the F. B. now wanted, he said, was money—for his dependence is not placed on the rich—the preference is given to the people at large. This is the last opportunity which will be given for Irish patriots to show their faith by their works, and if they do not want their names in the black book, they will "come down" promptly. He closed his address with a promise that some day the Fenian Brotherhood will suddenly vanish, and the next heard of it will be the echoes of its cannon, sounding the death knell of perfidious Albion, and in his peroration he managed to work into one sentence in a most Hiberman and eccentric manner, the name of almost everybody ever connected with an Irish rebellion, the American revolution, the war of 1812, the Mexican war and the late civil war.

Daniel Scully, who wasn't a Fenian, but sympathized with the movement, and Capt. Barrett, of Laporte, Ind., also addressed the meeting. A few dollars were raised by subscription, and at an early hour the assemblage dispersed.

Love, Seduction, and Elopement.

The police force of the city made two arrests at the Everett House this morning or a runaway couple from Pennsylvania, in whose history is exhibited all the worst qualities of the animal designated by scientists as man—betrayal of confidence, deceiving, falseness to marriage vows forgetfulness of virtue, betrayal of women, and entire and utter sacrifice of manly honor. The facts in the case as related by the unfortunate victim of man's lust, and confirmed by the testimony of her father's friend are as follows:

The victim and one of the arrested parties Elizabeth Gurninger, is the youngest daughter of a hotel-keeper at Danville, Pa., and has been for years the pet of her family, and the cynosure of village eyes—all her whims were respected, all her desires gratified, and surrounded with comfort and even elegance this girl, who is only fifteen, found life so happy that she dreamed not of sorrow thought not of danger. Yet even in her infancy, as it were, evil eyes shone upon her, and the seducer was cooly and cunningly weaving his snares about her. This individual, whom we will now introduce, was Adam Hock, a miller in the neighborhood, bearing a fair reputation among his neighbors, and blessed with a wife and seven children. Hock had been for years on intimate terms with the parental Gurninger, eat at his board, shared his love, sat by him in the Lodge, and received and divided purses with him. Thrown into daily contact, this head of a virtuous family cast his baleful eyes upon the daughter of his friend, and wormed his way into her breast by the stealthy approaches of a practised libertine. Pretending to see in Elizabeth the germs of a musical taste, Adam excited her desire to become proficient, so that she induced her father to procure her a piano, and solicit his friend, who appears to be favored with some musical genius, to give his daughter lessons. Now came the opportunity for the seducer, The music lessons afforded cause for tete-a-tetes, and through music he taught her love. It matters not now to follow this villains thought the various intricacies of his bad, bold, and, alas, too successful plot against the girl's honor. He wooed with music—he cajoled and flattered—he promised and pleaded—he excited her sympathy by tales of domestic strife and bitterness—he invoked her pity—he pictured how happy he might be in a far-off clime with one so loving, so amiable as her to sooth his woes, to share his joys. She listened—she wept over his sorrows—she pitied his heart, made desolate by anger and hatred at home—she loved and she fell. Having accomplished the seduction of his victim, and not yet tired of satiety, Hock deliberately planned an elopement, to which he obtained a reluctant consent from the girl, who had at last awakened to the sad fact that her honor and her future were in his hands. The seducer, before leaving, visited his friends and promising that he was about entering into a new speculation, obtained their indorsement to his notes to the amount of something over eight thousand dollars, which he had cashed at a county bank. Thus provided with funds last Saturday morning Hock took his paramour secretly from her father's house and commenced his journey to the West, arriving here yesterday, stopping at the Everett House. Last night, the twain rested in fancied security, never dreaming that the avenger was close and hard upon their track, and this morning a friend of the girl's father deposited at the central police station the photographs of the pair. These pictures taken as a memento of love and kindness turned to avenging Nemesis, were placed in the hands of Officer Stone who proceeded up Fourth street, and met the girl coming out of the Everett House. She was immediately escorted to the station, where she said that her paramour had gone to Jacard's store to obtain some jewelry for her. Another trip was made by Officer Stone, who met his man on the sidewalk, and, recognizing him from the photograph, requested his attention, which was unwillingly given, and he was escorted to the station to face his victim, and her father's friend, Mr. Reihl, who had traced the twain from Danville. What criminations and recriminations there ensued we shall not attempt to tell. Suffice it that the girl finding that her friends would not desert her, decided to return to her home with Mr. R. on the train to-night and that Adam Hock, the seducer, will remain in custody untill a requisition from the Governor of Pennsylvania can be forwarded here.—St Louis Dispatch.

Mormon Marriages.

In the London Divorce Court, on the 20th ult., judgment was given in the case of "Hyde vs. Hyde and Woodmansee." In 1845 the petitioner, a youth of some 15 or 16 years of age, adopted the tenets of Mormonism, and afterwards was ordained a priest of that peculiar sect. In 1851 he was sent on a mission to France, and subsequently to the Salt Lake City, but previously to this he had become engaged to Miss Lavinia Hawkins, who, with her mother, had preceded him to Utah. In 1853 he was married to her by Brigham Young, by whom he was despatched on a mission to the Sandwich Islands. Here the young Mormon priest was re-converted to the Christain faith, and wrote to his wife requesting her to leave the Salt Lake territory, and come to him, but she refused to do so. Petitioner was publicly excommunicated from the Mormon body. In 1858 he returned to England, and having learned that the respondent had married Woodmansee, he filed a petition for a divorce. He was now the editor of a country paper, and minister of a dissenting congregation. Sir J. P. Wilde, when the case was tried on the 20th of January, expressed a doubt as to this being such a marriage as could be recognised in Christendom, and he now, after further consideration, was satisfied that it was not. The learned judge entered elaborately into the grounds on which he had come to this conclusion, and contended that a Christian marriage conferred a status, and laid the contracting parties under certain obligations, which was not the case as regarded marriages among Turks, Parsees, or Mormons. The court was not justified in departing from the contract agreed to by the parties themselves. He therefore dismissed the petition. This, however, only applied to the question of divorce, and had no reference to the rights of succession or any other claims. The petition was accordingly dismissed.

European News.

NEW YORK, April 11.

The steamer Pereire, from Havre on the 20th, via Brest on the 31st March, arrived this morning, bringing Paris papers of the evening of the 30th, from which we extract the following late news:

The provincial correspondence of Berlin, of the 28th, says that in view of the danger to Prussia by the concentration of Austrian troops, it is supposed that orders have been given which will enable Prussia to successfully resist any attack.

A despatch from Vienna of the 28th, protests against the statements of the Prussian journals, and says there had been no rendezvous of a corps de armee, no purchase of horses, and no levy of troops on the part of Austria. The Imperial Government has omitted to take measures which are justified by the language of Prussian sheets. It would not needlessly increase the burden of the finances.

Arrival of the Asia.

Affairs in Germany still more Warlike.

Halifax, April 11—The royal mail steam ship Asia from Liverpool on Saturday March 31st via Queenstown on April 1st, arrived at this port this afternoon.

All the markets were closed and there is no later commercial news than that taken out by the steamers which left on the 29th and 30th.

The German difficulties are still increasing, but no actual hostilities have occurred.—Military preparations were actively progressing. Gen. Benedek has been appointed the Austrian commander-in-chief.

Liverpool, March the 31, Evening.—The German advices continue warlike. Count Von Bismarck had a long conference on the 29th with Count Karolsi, the Austrian ambassador to Berlin. Orders had been issued to place three divisions of Prussian infantry, the whole 6 army corps, and seven other regiments upon a war footing. It was also stated that orders has been given that the Prussian war vessels at Kiel be prepared for active service.

The Vienna Abend Post asserts that five Prussian army corps have received orders to hold themselves ready for active service.

The Vienna Debatte asserts that the western powers intend to present identical notes at Berlin deprecatory of war.

It is stated not only that a convention but a formal treaty of alliance has been concluded between Italy and Prussia.

Von Bismarck is said to have addressed a circular despatch to the Prussian ambassadors at the courts of the great powers directing them to protest against the extraordinary armaments of Austria.

A Florance telegram says considerable armaments are stated to be in course of preparation in Italy.

The editor of the Paris Opinion Nationale states in that journal that he had received a visit from Stephens, the Irish Head Centre, who announced his approaching departure for America.

London Markets.—Baring & Brothers report breadstuffs quiet and quotations barely maintained.

Advices from Plymouth say that orders have been received there to expedite the preparations for sea of half-a-dozen war vessels. The conclusion is drawn that they are intended for the Gulf and river St Lawrence.

AUSTRIA AND PRUSSIA.

The London Times of the 30th ult. remarked editorially that there was too much reason to fear that the peace of Europe was about to be broken by a most unnecessary war, but on the following day the Times remarked, "We cannot persuade ourselves that Austria and Prussia, however fiercely that may wrangle, will actually fight. They have been on the verge of hostilities before without coming to blows. We can hardly avoid thinking, therefore, that they will find some way out of the present quarrel desperate as it appears to be."

It is asserted that Count Mensdorff, the Austrian premier, has made a positive statement to the Prussian Ambassador at Vienna respecting the movement of Austrian troops, not concealing that Austria must be prepared for any extreme resolutions that might eventually be taken by Prussia.

Vienna papers declare that Austria will not take the aggressive.

DISTRESSING ACCIDENT.—Another of those heart-rending accidents by which a young man scarcely in the prime of life is in all probability hurried into eternity, occurred on Monday in this city. It appears that a house on St. Monique street, occupied by Mr. E. Muir was undergoing repairs, during which a youth named Robert Kneeshaw, grandson of Mr. Muir, took charge of the premises. At dinner hour yesterday he, with one of the workmen, remaining at the building, and ascended to one of the attic windows to take as he remarked at the time, "a look round." He had hardly done so, when a sound of sliding gave warning to his companion that all was not right, but before he could reach the window Mr. Kneeshaw had fallen to the ground; his head coming in contact with the pavement. He was immediately conveyed home in a senseless condition and Drs. Wanless and G. W. Campbell, F. W. Campbell, and Higginson summoned. The former arrived immediately and found that the skull was so dreadfully fractured as to preclude all hopes of recovery; the injury has been pronounced fatal. Mr. Kneeshaw is son of Mr. Richard Kneeshaw, is highly respected, and a young man of great promise:—Montreal Gazette.

THE STATUE OF THE FIRST PRINTER.—David, the French sculptor, was an artist of rare genius, and his work often illustrated the most beautiful ideas. For instance, his statue of John Guttenburg shows the inventor of the art of printing press, and he is in the act of looking over the first proof-sheet, on which appear the words of Genesis, "And there was light." On the pedestal are crowded, in beautiful groups, the illustrious men of all ages and all nations, celebrating, as it were, the first printer, as the most useful among them.

As the late beautiful Duchess of Devonshire was one day stepping out of her carriage, a dustman, who was about to regale himself with his accustomed whiff of tobacco, caught a glance of her countenance, and instantly exclaimed, "Love and bless you, my lady—let me light my pipe in your beautiful eyes!" It is said that the Duchess was so delighted with this compliment, that she frequently afterwards checked the strains of adulation which were so constantly offered to her charms, by saying, "Oh! after the dustman's compliment, all others are quite insipid."

LATEST FROM OTTAWA.

OTTAWA, April 11.

The Hon. Mr. Howland did not leave town this morning as he had intended.

Cabinet Councils were held yesterday and to-day.

Some sensation was created this morning by a statement in the Times to the effect that thirty-two cases of rifles had come to town and been delivered to a somewhat suspicious address, without any steps being taked in the matter by the police authorities. It seems, however, from what the Post says this evening, that the rifles were the property of a respectable and loyal citizen who had bought them upon speculation and had them duly examined and passed at the custom house at Montreal. They were in fact seized by the authorities here and released upon proper explanation being made.

Raid expected over the Frontier.

EASTPORT, Me., April 11.

FIRST DESPATCH.

The Fenians have hired the Town hall for three days in which to hold meetings. There is an open session to night.

There is another large British steamer off Campo Bello, with a large force of men ashore at work.

A number of Fenians left on a sailing vessel last night secretly:

A steamer with the American flag and private signal has just gone up the river towards St. Andrews.

SECOND DESPATCH.

The excitement continues. The Fenian public convention is in session.

British war steamers are continually arriving and patrolling the river. Fifty Fenians have left in a schooner, destination unknown.

A suspicious steamer showing the American colors has just passed into St. Croix river.

There are Fenian arrivals continually.

THIRD DESPATCH.

Two large English war ships are here now with steam constantly kept up, port holes open and everything ready. The Americans are wild and consider it a challenge.

American veterans are joining the circles of Fenians. The Fenians are in convention.

Both English vessels are on the wrong track.

Deserters from the British vessels are joining the Fenians.

NEW YORK, April 11.

A RAID ANTICIPATED AT WASHINGTON.

The Commercial's Washington special says:—Sir Frederick Bruce professes to have received information that leaves no doubt of the intention of the Fenians to attack some point in the British provinces. It appears certain that large numbers of men are gathering on the frontier, and it is alleged that their object is to concentrate and capture some place which will be hastily entrenched and defended. In that case it is expected that reinforcements and aid from the United States and British provinces will flow in to enable them to accomplish their ulterior objects. The situation is deemed sufficiently alarming to call forth a proclamation from the President against any invasion of the neutrality laws and it will shortly appear. Serious remonstrances have been received from the Canadian authorities. It is understood that the United States marshals on the border towns have received orders to prevent any invasion."

ACCIDENT AT CALEDONIA.—Whilst a man of the name of George Clarge was in the act of grooming a horse on Friday morning, he was suddenly kicked in the breast, and for some minutes remained unconscious from the effects of the injury on the stable floor. Luckily two other persons were in the stable at the time, who at once carried him into an adjoining hotel, were he was speedily attended to by Dr. Palmer. We are happy to state that we received word last night that the injuries received were not likely to prove of a fatal character.

☞ The attention of shippers and merchants is directed to the important advertisement of the American Consul at Goderich.

☞ See the advertisement of J. C. Detlor Co. The old Emporium, so well and favourably known in theis county, is being filled with one of the finest stocks ever opened out in Goderich. The old firm held, for years, a first place in the estimation of the public, and it is the intention of the members of the new one, to keep up the reputation of the establishment. We wish them abundant success.

FENIAN MOVEMENTS.

The movements of that very ubiquitous body, the Fenian Brotherhood, seem to be confined, at present, to the Maine frontier. Drilling has ceased in Buffalo, Detroit, &c., the F. B's have disappeared, and the conclusion is that they are wending their way Eastward towards the proposed scene of action. There was a rumor that a collision had actually taken place, but like most of the stores emenating from the sensational press of New York, it was unfounded. The Portland correspondent of a Montreal paper says:

"Fenianism is looking up in this quarter. During the past week the steamers from New York have brought a large number of boxes of arms; and on Saturday night the trains from Boston and the boat arriving here on Sunday morning brough. 200 men, many of them wearing the uniform of the late United States volunteer regiments. On Monday night ninety four more of these adventurers arrived here. On Monday afternoon the boat from here which runs to St. John was crowded with passengers, and a large number of the men who had arrived here from Boston embarked. The British consul, the city marshal, and a large posse of policemen were in attendance, and the arms which were on the wharf were not shipped, as the boat was said to be full; but it is believed the officials of the United States government who had telegraphed to Washington in the morning, had received instructions to stop the shipment of the arms. During the last week the steamers which run from Boston to Bangor, in Maine have been conveying men down East, whose destination, by the enquiries they make, is Eastport, one of the furthermost points in Maine. Arms have been shipped in large quantities there, and some 20 boxes, we understand, were sent by sailing vessels, and put in the depot mysteriously, to the uninitiated, we should say, disappearing during the night. The Fenians have during the last few days been announcing that they are going to give over talking, and that the period for action has arrived, and it is expected that they intend to make a dash for some place in New Brunswick. Success or defeat to such an enterprise, we conceive, will bring them a much more fruitful harvest of greenbacks in exchange for Fenian bonds than inaction; for if defeated, they will have the plea that they require a larger organization and more means to secure success. The various governments have been notified and will no doubt be prepared. The men have put up in the different hotels, and exhibited a reticence which shows that they must be picked men, and the papers here speak of their 'gentlemanly' behaviour during their sojourn."

While this is going on, our government is doing all in its power to keep the Volunteer force up to a high standard of efficiency. The authorities have issued orders for the whole force, whether upon active service or not, to drill two days in each week.

THE CAPTURE of MURPHY.

The capture of Murphy and his corporals guard at Cornwall, on Monday night, has, of course, created considerable excitement. That the party were bound for Portland to join their misguided fellow-F. B's, there is no doubt whatever, but it will be very difficult to prove the high treason with which they are charged.—However, we trust the scamps will get their just deserts. It is a noteworthy fact that Mr. J. S. McDonald- a former adviser of the Crown—is retained to defend the prisoners. It is thought by many that a gentleman occupying Mr. McDonald's position should scorn to take upon himself the defence of a set of traitors. The prisoners are strongly guarded, and every precaution will be taken to prevent their rescue from the other side.—They were examined before the local magistrates on the 11th, but as the reporters and public were rigorously excluded, we can obtain no particulars.

RETURN OF THE ARTILLERY CO.

The Goderich Artillery Co. was welcomed home at 5 p. m., on Wednesday, 11th inst., by a large concourse of citizens. As the train approached the station, and busbys were seen protruding from the windows, a cheer was raised.—Each man as he stepped upon the platform was treated to a course of handshaking such as we have seldom witnessed. The soldiers appeared glad to see home once more, and certainly they could not complain of any want of heartiness in the manner of their reception. The company, as soon as possible, was drawn up by Major Ross, who had accompanied it home, when the members of the Corporation advanced, and Mayor Detlor read the following address:—

To the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the Goderich Garrison Artillery:

GENTLEMEN,—We, the corporation of Goderich, in the name of the inhabitants of the town, beg to welcome you home, after your period of service at the frontier. When, a few weeks ago, you parted from us at this spot, it was with a feeling on your part that you might be called to meet the foemen of our country upon the field of battle, and on our part that, possibly, we had gazed on some well-know face for the last time. And now, when the excitement has subsided, it is a source of proud satisfaction to know that the Goderich Artillery Co. sprang to arms with the alacrity that marked the conduct of every volunteer corps in Canada, at the first call of the Government, although many of its members left important business, and most those tender domestic ties which are sources of the greatest solicitude to the soldier in time of trouble and danger.

Although the calling out of such a large body of volunteers will entail a heavy expenditure of money upon the Government and local municipalities, we believe the effects of the movement will be permanently beneficial. It disabuses the minds of would-be plunderers of the idea that we are helpless, in a military point of view, and the unanimous sentiment of loyalty expressed through the press and by the people at large must convince our neighbors, once for all, that while we desire peace, we are firmly united in our determination to stand by the glorious flag of Great Britain at all hazards. The great value of Canadians irrespective of creed or party, must ins ire respect on this Continent, secure increased confidence from the Home Government, and at the same time tend directly to foster a feeling of true nationality which will, we trust, eventuate in a closer union of the British American Provinces and an increased development of our vast internal resources.

We have heard with pleasure of your increasing proficiency and of the good condart you have exhibited at all times whilst on duty at Sarnia, and we can assure you that the inhabitants of the town, and we believe of the County generally feel that they have every reason to be proud of their Volunteers.

The sacrifice you have made are of no ordinary character, but, now that a kind Providence has brought you back in perfect safety, you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you have done your duty to Queen and country. Again, Gentlemen, we extend to you a most cordial welcome home, and we trust that it may be long before you will be again called away upon such an errand.

J. V. DETLOR, Mayor.

Major Ross then thanked His Worship for the address just read. The men had indeed sprâng to arms with alacrity, regardless of sacrifices to be made, and had shown themselves worthy of the name of British soldiers. The last words the Col. had addressed to him were, "Tell your men, when they arrive home, that the Goderich Artillery Co. is the best volunteer corps I have ever seen in any part of the world!" He, the Major, would also, on behalf of his company, thank the corporation of Goderich for the noble and timely provision for the families of married volunteers. This had been a great source of comfort to the men and would be long and gratefully remembered.—(Cheers.)

Cheers were then given for the Artillery Co. and for the Queen, and by the soldiers for Home and Mayor Detlor, after which the Co. marched off towards the square, singing their marching songs. They marched around the square in splendid style and were then escorted to the Huron Hotel, by the Mayor and Warden, to partake of some slight refreshment after their day's journey, immediately after which they dispersed in the direction of their respective homes. We are happy to say that the men appeared to have improved as much physically as in their regular drill. They are to drill a part of two days a week, for which they will be paid.

ARRIVAL OF VOLUNTEERS.

On Saturday afternoon last Mayor Detler received a telegram from Col. Taylor requesting him to prepare for two companies of Volunteers on Monday.—The Council was called together immediately, and a committee appointed to attend to billiting, &c. We subsequently learned that the companies to arrive were the Huron Rifles and New Hamburg Infantry, being a detachment from the Sarnia batallion under command of Major Ross. At the hour for the arrival of the regular express, the Goderich Artillery Co. marched to the station and took up position to receive their comrades. The crowd of civilians was very large, numbering about one thousand,—many of those present being ladies. The Riflemen were received most cordially, friends and acquaintances nearly shaking their arms off. When the first warmth of the reception had subsided, the whole force was drawn up and marched to the centre of the town, where the companies were formed into three sides of a square. The officers and members of the Corporation having entered the open space, His Worship the Mayor read the following address:—

To the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the Huron Rifles:

GENTLEMEN,—On behalf of the Corporation and inhabitants of the town, I have great pleasure in tendering you a heartfelt welcome on your return from active service. I can assure you that this independent community appreciates the great sacrifices you have made in responding to the call of the Government, when danger threatened, in leaving your homes and business to render any required service to our common country; so that our free and liberal institutions may remain intact, and that no marauder might polute the soil of a free people, by obtaining a place to erect the standard of invasion. The history of nations exhibits the fact, that a period in their progress arises, when, for the maintenance of their nationality, it is necessary that they assume the energies of maturity, and further, to attain a proper status among other nations, a self reliant dicipline is assential to the exercise of a wholesome influence among the governments of the earth. Such is the ordeal through which we are now passing that our martial spirit will be elicited, and we trust it will result in cementing us in the bonds of united action, giving stability to our unequaled institutions.—Permit me, from information received, to congratulate you on your proficiency in military drill and on the sustenance of an untarnished character while removed from us, in readiness to supports the glorious old flag under which we unitedly rally.

To the officers, non-commissioned officers and privates of the New Hamburg Co.

GENTLEMEN.—We also welcome you to our town. On receipt of a requisition from Col. Taylor, stating that certain accommodations were required for Volunteers, we took immediate action, and we can assure you that no pains will be spared by the citizens of the town to render your stay amongst us as comfortable as possible. The object you have in view is dear to us, as British subjects, and you will have the satisfaction of knowing that your sojourn will be amongst a truly loyal population. It may mentioned to all the volunteers present, that it is our intention during this week to offer something a little more tangible than mere addresses for their consideration, of which due notice will be given.

Signed, on behalf of the Corporation,

J. V. DETLOR, Mayor.

Capt. Hays, on behalf of the Rifles thanked the Mayor for the kindly sentiments expressed in the Address, but explained that it was a mistake to suppose his company had been withdrawn from active service. He bore testimony to the efficiency and good conduct exhibited by both companies while at Sarnia, and now that they were home, he had no doubt they would, should occasion require, fight more desperately than they could be expected to do in defence of comparative strangers.

Major Ross, in a few remarks, corroborated the observations of Capt. Hays.

Capt. Goodwin, of the Infantry Co. then made a short speech. He said his company had been here before, that they liked the place, and were determined to do all in their power to deserve the esteem of the citizens.

Cheers were then given for the Rifles, the Artillery, the Infantry, Corporation, &c., after which the men were invited to the Huron Hotel to partake of a lunch. This part of the proceedings seemed to give them much satisfaction.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in arranging billets, establishing regular guards, and in fact, setting the whole machinery of military operations in motion.

We were glad to see that the Rifle boys, although a little jaded and very dusty, came back looking like real soldiers, ready and willing to do all in their power to quell invasion. They begin to like soldiering, and many of them would have stopped in Sarnia a few months longer just as soon as not, judging from the bits of ribbon and other ladies' favors pinned to the breasts of most of their coats when they arrived here.

The New Hamburg Co., 55 strong, is composed of fine, healthy-looking young men, evidently drawn from a respectable class, and their Captain is a gentleman who stands very high in the estimation of those who are acquainted with him. The officers are Capt. Kenneth Goodwin, Lieut. Robt. Campbell and Ensign Wm. Smith. The headquarters for the force now in town has been established at the Huron Hotel.

The sprinkling of uniforms on our streets enlivens the town considerably.

THE FRONT.

PRIVATE BILLETS.

SARNIA, 11th April, 1866,

From our Special correspondent.

MY DEAR "SIGNAL,"—Perhaps about as pretty a sight as one could witness at the front is the volunteers at church; the gay uniform of the artillery, the familiar red coat of infantry and neat tunic of the rifles, combine to make a most pleasing impression on the spectator. Their strict attention, too, to the service, has elicited warm praise from the citizens.

On Monday last we turned out for the first day of the season for early morning drill. Of all the movements and contortions that the human frame is capable of undergoing, we had to learn and go through—stretching our arms out at their full length in front of our bodies, raising them up above our heads, stooping down to our toes without bending the body—then imitating the rapid movements of the sails of a windmill, formed a part of these extraordinary movements. We shall either return most pliable fellows or perish in the attempt to learn them.

Yesterday we had a grand field-day.—On falling in, each man was served with ten rounds of blank cartridge, and was ordered to appear at afternoon parade with arms and accoutrements in first rate order. At the appointed time every available man of the seven companies forming the battallion was present. The usual preliminaries being over, the Col. ready mounted for the field arrived and took command. A march of a mile brought us to the ground selected for our evolutions. The two companies of infantry from the Point were already there and received us with "present arms." The day being exceedingly fine, quite a number of the fair sex were present to welcome us with their smiles. As soon as the battalion was formed, a number of movements were gone through in capital style. On the whole nine companies being formed into line, the word was given:—"by companies fire a volley,"—the leading company—the Goderich artillery — commenced and set a most worthy example by their steady fire; after firing from right to left, the right wing was ordered to advance, and in quick time load,—after delivering their fire, the left wing were ordered to advance, load and fire in a similar manner; on this movement being completed the line was again formed, and on the word right about turn, forward, being given the whole line advanced in splendid style, it was in fact remarked by all present that the marching was most excellent. After the word halt had been given, in quick time load, sounded along the ranks, which was immediately followed by "right and left commence file firing: the front rank came down on their knees, and soon the whole line was in a perfect blaze. To a young soldier this was most exciting, the continual discharge of the rifles, the rapid loading and commands of the officers, all tended to keep the men perfectly delighted with the novelty of a field-day To add to the amusement of the scene innumerable small boys insisted on imitating the Finnegans at every discharge by falling over backwards and forwards, throwing their legs and arms up into the air, and pretending to be either killed or mortally wounded. The volley firing of the Goderich companies was remarkably good, each piece being, with one solitary exception of a member of the Rifles, simultaneous. Even in this instance, the party, who by the by is not accustomed to the use of fire arms, declares that his rifle went off twice. What with the heat and dust, which by the way, is almost intolerable, we looked on being dismissed as if we had been in some very heavy action; however, all enjoyed very much their first field-day at the front.

This morning the artillery co. took their departure for home, headed by the Sarnia infantry and followed by the Huron rifles, they marched from the parade ground to the wharf where the Grand Trunk ferry boat was in readiness to convey them to Point Edward. On the route "Slap Bang," and other popular airs were sung in good style, to drown if possible our feelings at parting with our comrades and friends. On reaching the upper deck of the ferry—Lieuts Kirk and Horton, surrounded by their men, proposed and gave three rousing cheers for Col. Jarvis and his staff—then three more for their comrades, and three more for the ladies of Sarnia, then followed three rousing cheers and a tiger from the Rifles and infantry for their comrades the Goderich artillery, and as the last cheer was subsiding in the distance, the Capt.'s bell was heard to tingle, and our friends were away.—It is but just to say that on every hand, the clean soldierly appearance of the Artillery on their way to the boat, and their uniform good conduct and courtesy while at Sarnia, was the subject of the highest praise, and now that they are gone a blank is made which it will be most difficult to fill up.

Capt. Hays entertained the non-commissioned officers to an oyster supper last night which was well attended. After the cloth had been removed, his health was proposed in a neat speech by Sargt Wright, who bore testimony to Captain Hays' uniform kindness to the men and of his desire to make the Huron Rifles the company of the battalion. Captain Hays on rising to respond, thanked them for the honor they had done him, and assured them that it was indeed an honor of no ordinary kind to command such a body of men, and he felt proud to say that he would always look back with extreme pleasure at the days he spent with them at the front.—The little corporal could not allow the occasion to pass by without proposing the health of the gentlemen who had lately received his commission in the company, namely, Ensign Seymour; it was gratifying to know that we now had an officer who bore the name of the founder of the company, and he was sure by the zeal he had displayed in the discharge of his military duties, that he fully intended to do his part in making the Rifles as efficient as any other company in Her Majesty's volunteer service.

Mr. Seymour, on rising thanked them very heartily for their kind sentiments towards him, and assured them that no far as his humble efforts were concerned he would do his best to please them.

A company of infantry arrived from New Hamburg this afternoon to take the place of the Artillery already relieved.

In general orders at parade to-day it was announced that Col. Jarvis had been called to take command of the battalion at Windsor, and that Major Richardson would succeed him in the Sarnia battalion. Col. Jarvis on leaving begged to thank the officers, non commissioned officers, and men, for their hearty co-operation with him while in command. Three rousing cheers were given for him by the men previous to being dismissed.

The weather is still remarkably fine and gardening operations have commenced in every quarter.

In view of the approaching epidemic the streets and premises of all parties are being cleaned up, and other necessary sanitary means adopted.

PHILO JUNIUS.

OUR LAST LETTER FROM THE FRONT.

From our Special Correspondent.

On board the "W. J. Spicer"
River St. Clair, 16th April, 1866.

My Dear Signal.—Here we are, homeward bound. It was with mingled feelings of pleasure and pain that, this morning, we received orders to return to Goderich—pleasure in anticipation of once again meeting our friends at home, and pain at parting with many warm friends we had met during our stay at Sarnia. We were escorted to the boat by the Sarnia Infantry in command of Lieut. Farrell, who on all occasions took the utmost pleasure in extending every possible courtesy to the Officers of the Rifles.

The Hamburg Infantry under command of Capt. Goodwin are our travelling comrades, and will proceed to Goderich to be in conjunction with us on active service. Judging from what we have already seen, we ask no better fellows. The day is all one could desire; a bright sun and a beautiful breeze seems to exercise a most wholesome effect on all. The smiling faces of the men and their jokes and cold snatches of song makes one really feel delighted. The beautiful river, now entirely free from ice, seems dancing in the sunlight and making gestures of welcome to us on its rippling bosom.

As soon as all were on board Capt. Hays proposed three hearty cheers for Major Graham and his staff—and to show that gentle man our appreciation of his worth, we really made tremendous efforts to expand our lungs, which by his gracious smiles I am satisfied he amply appreciated. Then followed three more for the ladies of Sarnia—after which the little Corporal proposed three rousers for Sergt. Major Hudson and the Non Commisioned Officers of the Sarnia battalion—and three more for the "Glorious Appollo," a snug little retreat where Goderich men were always made at home by a most oblig ing host and hostess. Now, the gangway is thrown off and the boat is in motion, and as we leave our moorings, such a hearty cheer greets us from the shore as would do you good to hear. The flutter of the ladies' handkerchiefs and waving of the hats of the citizens, are seen even yet, as we glide gracefully towards the point.

As this is probably the last time I shall have of using your columns from the front, allow me to say, in conclusion, that it has been my constant aim to avoid saying anything that could possible give offence, and if occasionally a little joke or incident was somewhat far fetched, it was simply to imitate the mutton that is hashed for breakfast, which by a little attention at cooking can sometimes be made more palatable than the original dish.

If my letters have contributed in any way to the information or pleasure of your readers, who were no doubt, always glad to hear something about the acts and doings of their friends while at the front, it is all the reward that your most obedient subscriber asks.

"PHILO JUNIUS."

DISCUSSION.—The Wroxeter and Bluevale Literary Societies met at Bluevale on Wednesday evening, 11th inst., for the purpose of having a second friendly debate. The subject was, "Money or Fame, which is the greatest incentive to action." After some able speaking on both sides, Mr. Jackson, umpire, was unable to decide the question. After a vote of thanks to Mr. Jackson for the attentive and efficient manner in which he had presided, the meeting dispersed; and the debaters adjourned to Mr. Johnston's where they were hospitably entertained by the Bluevale Society. As this debate was a drawn game, the honors still remain, with the Wroxeter Society, as the gainers of the decision, in the first debate.

The "England's" Passengers at Halifax.

THE DISEASE SHIP FEVER, NOT CHOLERA.

Many minds will be relieved by reading the following despatch from Halifax:—"The steamer England's passengers are landed on McNab's Island and here. The sick are on board the Pyramus, moored beside the England. The disease is announced to be ship fever and dysentery, and not Asiatic cholera. There is considered to be no danger, and no alarm is felt in the city."—[Globe.

BRUTAL MURDER.

AN OLD INDIAN MEDICINE MAN KILLED WITH A CLUB.

On Saturday night last an old Indian Doctor named Una quan-bonah came to his death by violent means. The particulars of the terrible affair are briefly as follows: The Doctor, who was about 75 years of age, had camped all winter near Millburn, two miles from this town. Some four weeks ago, a party of three or four Indians, with their squaws and children, encamped opposite Jos. Morris's, quite near. In this party were one Solomon and Wilson Ritchie, both hard cases—the latter especially so. On Saturday, Ritchie and the Doctor were in town together, and the latter furnished his companion with money to purchase a bottle of whiskey. Ritchie found some person mean enough to go buy the liquor for him. They then started for camp, after joining Solomon and the squaws. On the road the bottle was applied to so frequently that the whole party were drunk before they got to their miserable home. On arriving in camp, the usual carouse took place, the yells of the maddened creatures being heard by the white residents of the neighborhood. Ritchie appropriated the bottle and its contents to his own use which caused the old man to call him a mean thief. Upon this the savage struck his aged victim with his fist and seizing a large club belabored him him about the head in a most shocking manner. The Doctor expired early on Sunday morning, and Ritchie seeing what he had done set out at once in the direction of Saugeen. On Monday, a Jury impannelled by Coroner McDougall, investigated the case and returned a verdict of wilful murder against Ritchie, for whose arrest a warrant was issued. Chief-constable Trainer started for Saugeen this (Tuesday) morning, and if the thing is at all possible he will bring the wretched murderer back with him.

American Consulate

Mr. Fitnam, the American Consul at Goderich, has received the following notification, which may be interesting to some of our readers:—

GOVERNOR'S SECY'S OFFICE.
Montreal, April 6. 1866.

SIR.—I am directed by the Governor General to inform you that the Queen's exequatur empowering you to act as United States Consul at Goderich, has received Her Majesty's signature. The notification of Her Majesty's approval of your appointment appeared in the Gazette of the 20th March.

I have the honor to be, sir,
Your most ob't serv't,
DENNIS GODLEY,
Gov's Secy.

THOS. FITNAM Esq., &c., &c.
U. S. Consul, Goderich.

PERSONAL.—Mr. R. Rintoul, who has filled the position of Station Master here very acceptably for the past year, has resigned, to engage in the Produce, Commission and Insurance business in Montreal. His place is taken by Mr. Snyder, late of Mitchell.

Taxes on Raw Produce.

To the Editor of the Huron Signal,

SIR,—The American government having manifested such a Japanese illiberality, in framing their commercial policy in reference to the trade of this country, it becomes imperatively incumbent on our government so to legislate that our people shall suffer the least possible injury or inconvenience, from the derangement of our late mutually beneficial trading relations, and as many advantages seized as can be utilized under the new order of things.

They have done all they could to deprive us of the advantages of trading with them, and have protected their agricultural interests, and admit our products only on such terms as they deem profitable to themselves.

Will our farmers be content if our government do less? They will not, nor is it to be expected they should; therefore our government should immediately consider every measure well calculated under the circumstances to benifit our farmers and decrease the odds against them.

We import largely of wheat, corn, and flour, even oats when western markets are low. Shall we do so now when we are cut off from the American markets except at such a great disadvantage? Certainly not. Our government should put a duty on United States cereals and flour, and pass them through in bond to England, perhaps rebate the duty on all flour and high wines exported, the product of western wheat or corn.

On corn the duty should be very high, so that our distilleries would offer a large addition to our market for coarse grains, oats, rye, and barley, which would give us better whiskey to drink. In fact, if high duties on corn and whiskey would result here as in the United States, in an enormous increase in the consumption of beer, we should consume considerable barley, and the morality and physique of our already handsome people who drink, would be greatly improved. Beer being so largely substituted for whiskey in the United States, is rapidly altering the lank and lathy appearance of our neighbors to something like the goodly proportions of Britons.

If many people would drink corn whiskey, let them pay well for it, the country will benefit more by the duties they pay than is to be expected from their industry.

I expect the lower provinces will put a duty on flour from the United States. I believe Prince Edward Island has done so. Why not? We can supply them with better breadstuffs as cheap as Americans. If not, what difference does it make to them whether they derive their revenue from their tables on their wardrobes? If they do put on a reciprocal duty, it follows we must do the same. We could not be mean enough to import western wheat and flour to sell to them at a sure profit, under the protection of a tariff generously framed for our benefit.

Although a free trader I think a little protection to the farmers of Canada just now would be very seasonable, holding ourselves always in readiness to treat with our neighbors for a new treaty, on an equitable basis.

Yours, &c.,
G. LAIDLAW.

MORRIS.

Morris, April 9th, 1866.

Editor of the Signal,

DEAR SIR—I observe a communication in your issue of the 22nd of March, regarding the assessment of Morris, and signed by one styling himself "Fair Play," in which communication, the writer takes for example lots A, B, and C, he says "lot A of 100 acres with 45 acres cleared, and only a log barn is assessed for $38, and that lot B, of 150 acres with 60 acres cleared, and a frame barn, is assessed for $710, and yet he complains that lot A pays more taxes than lot B. He further goes on to state that at the June meeting of the County Council our worthy Reeve moved for $10,000 to be struck of the equalization list of this Township, which is a statement entirely false. I will not, Sir, trespass upon your space, by replying to such statements, further than to say, that they are without foundation, and simply ridiculous. Surely no sane man would ever think of assessing 100 acres of bush land however worthless for $28 much less 100 acres, with 45 acres cleared, I may simply state with regard to the June meeting of the County Council, Mr. Whitehead, moved for $50,000 to be struck off the real, and $10,000 off the personal property of the County equalization. It is evident from the strain of the writer of said article, that he has another object in view than to rectify an error in our assessment even if said error did exist. Certainly every ratepayer in the Township knows that the Court of Revision is held for the purpose of rectifying any error made by the assessor. If "Fair Play" choose to remain at home (to use his own expression) grinning rather than to apply to that Court, was he not to blame in some measure for my reappointment this year. No complaint being made to that assessment was it not proper to suppose that I had given general satisfaction, and, therefore a strong argument in favour of my being reappointed. But Sir as I have said it is evident that the said article was penned for another object than to find fault with our assessment, which I thank will appear evident to the most casual observer, in perusing the comments the writer for instance. Why does he not come out with the proper number of each lot referred to according to survey of the Township, and sign his proper name.—Fair Play says public opinion in his locality has little weight, this I believe to be true, and now I would tell him it is likely to remain so, so long as he is the mouth-piece. He concludes his long article, by speaking of the "spirit of faction," "self glorification," "Roman Emperor playing, his fiddle &c. Now Mr. Editor here is the ground work of the whole matter. The spirit of faction, he speaks of was the spirit of the people in refusing some time since to elect him to a seat in the Municipal Council and the prominent members he is so much annoyed at, are those who occupy the seat he aimed at filling, not only on account of their superior intelligence but also for their direct knowledge of the business of the Township. As for the "Emperor" and his "Fiddle" he seems fully to represent those dignataries being opposed to freedom of speech, and although his music on the equalizations question is not up to time, for the taste of the ratepayers, he seems offended because they refuse to dance to his fiddling. Hoping I have not trespassed on your valuable space.

I am yours truly,
HENRY McMORDIE.

MR. EDITOR — The following obituary notice, from the Inverness Courier, which gives a graphic delineation of the many noble and generous characteristics of Mrs Stewart of Luskintyre a distinguished lady of the olden school, recently deceased. As it might not be generally known to the community around, I beg leave to state, that Mrs. Stewart the subject of the notice in question, is the honored mother of Mrs. Margret Mc Dougall, of McDougalls hills, one of the earliest settlers of the Township of Goderich. By inserting the above, and the obituary accompanying it, in your much esteemed Journal you will duly oblige

Yours,
J. P.

DEATH OF A HIGHLAND LADY OF THE OLDEN SCHOOL.—Mrs. Stewart of Luskintyre died at Leanachen, Lochaber on the 1st instant, in the seventy-eighth year of her age. Mrs. Stewart was a genuine specimen of the Highland gentlewoman of the olden time, stately in personal appearance, kind-hearted, genial, courteous, well-mannered, given to hospitality. Possessed of much solid good sense, she superintended and managed her household affairs discreetly and judiciously, and reared a large family of sons and daughters, whom she lived to see in a good position in life. By her death an eminent type of her class of the old school, whose number is fast diminishing in the Highlands, has passed away. Her mind and memory were richly stored with the legenary and traditionary lore and poetry of the Gael, whose graphic language she spoke with perfection. The deceased lady was a daughter of Macre of Terrloisbich, an old family in Kintail. Her clan were faithful and loyal adherents of Scotland's ancient dynasty, in whose cause they suffered much. At the battle of Sheriffmuir (remarkable for the fact that the right wing of each defeated the left wing of the other, both sides claiming the victory, though Argyll retired to Dunblane and Marr to Arioch) the Macrses, though forming part of the defeated wing of Marr's army, refusing to fly, fought valiantly against great odds, one of their number, from time to time, rushing to the top of an eminence in their rear, and shouting "Cobhair, cobhair, as uchd, Dhia 'us an Righ!" ("Help, help, in the name of God and the King!") At length the few that survived of the devoted band cut their way with their broadswords through the ranks of their foes to carry home the sad tale, sad indeed to Torrloisbich, who had to mourn the death of three gallant sons, Farquhar, Christopher, and Duncan, the last a youth of surpassing prowess. His great heavy broadsword is still preserved in the Tower of London. Mrs. Stewart's remains were carried to the distant island of Harris, for interment in the cemetery of St. Clement, beside those of her husband, Mr. Donald Stewart of Luskintyre, and some of her children, were followed to the place of embarkation, at the pier of Fort-William by a considerable number of carriages, containing many friends and neighbors, thus manifesting their respect for her memory.—[Inverness Courier.

The Fenian Movement on New Brunswick.

NEW YORK, April 14.

The Herald's Eastport Me., telegram says the British man of war Pylades, went to sea very suddenly yesterday afternoon. It is said that fifty of the crew had mutinied and were put in irons, hence the departure.

The men of other vessels have been tampered with, and similar difficulties are expected.

Yesterday a party of English soldiers crossed from St. Stevens to Caloris, where they got into a dispute with some soldiers, when a fight took place resulting in their being driven back over the bridge which runs over the river between the two towns. No lives lost.

NEW YORK, April 14.

At the O'Mahony headquarters in this city everything is quiet, but those who know say that matters are progressing steadily and surely.

The citizens joined with the Fenians in the fight.

The steamer from Boston this morning brought about 200 more Fenians. They were quartered in town.

A large number of Fenians have just arrived in the steamer from New York.

The Herald's Frederickton, N. B., special says, the resignations of the anti Confederate Administration were accepted unconditionally by Governor Gordon yesterday. No new Administration has been formed. The house of assembly has adjourned until Monday, to give the incoming party time to organize.

BELFAST, Me., April 14.

One of the Fenians rendezvouse in Maine is said to be Mont Desert, and a British vessels is said to be cruising near Frenchman's Bay on the look-out.

NEW YORK, April 14—The City of Cork brings Cork papers of the 2nd inst., which contain some little news.

The Paris Constitutional of the 31st says the position of France on the Ferman question is that of neutrality, but whatever may happen France will not be found unprepared.

A Paris telegram says that political telegrams from Berlin and Vienna, it is believed, have been stopped by the governments.

The French envoy is said to have told the King of Prussia that France considered peace a necessity for Europe, and if war should break out France certainly would not be on the side of that power which discarded negotiations.

La France, in an article pointing out the preparations of Austria, says:

"Everything is being organized with a view to the eventualities of war. General Benedek will command the army of the north and General Von Gablenz the advance guard."

The Independance Belge has a despatch from Berlin stating that Bavaria, Hesse and Saxony have formed a league in order to bring the Austro-Prussian question before the Diet.

A Breslau telegram says that editors publish no information regarding military movement now taking place.

The Berlin evening papers of the 31st give a list of fortresses ordered to be armed, and state that several artillery regiments have been ordered to be raised to their full strength. The reserve of four new regiments of the guard and infantry regiments of three army corps are to be called out. None of the substitutes or reserves of these corps or three other corps are to be released from military service at present.

An American View of the Late Arrests.

The Detroit Free Press, of the 13th inst, in referring to the recent Fenian arrests at Cornwall, says:—We must candidly confess that the arrest of Mr. Murphy does not take us by surprise. This gentlemen, who is suspected to be the Head Centre of the Canadian Fenians, has long been regarded with suspicious eyes by the government, and the Tory portion of the provincial press have time and again denounced him as a disaffected and dangerous subject. For this charge Mr. Murphy has given but too plausible ground by his past conduct, for he has hardly been so circumspect as one might have expected from a conspirator, 'plotting treason, stratagem, and spoils. Instead of having sported six or seven names, with a different cloak and wig for each, and changed his lodgings thrice a week at the dead of night, as patriots ambitious of seeing their names paragraded on the walls, with descriptions of their person, and offers of reward for their apprehension, are traditionally represented—this rash son of the Green Isle has openly and in broad light of day, both in his speeches and through the columns of the liberal Irish organ in Toronto, advocated views and uttered language that were needlessly calculated to attract attention. Indeed, during the palmy anti-Johnson days, when Mr. Seward's little bell used to tinkle, men were in this glorious, free country, hurried off to Fort Lafayette for having expressed sentiments far less distasteful to the powers that be than the poor President of the Hibernians. The action of the Canadian government seems to us, therefore, quite natural, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, and it is only remarkable that they have forborne so long to arrest one who seemed systematically to court persecution.'

POSTAL IMPROVEMENT.—The St. Louis Republican describes an invention of the Assistant Postmaster of St Louis, M. Smith, which adds greatly to the facilities for transmitting letter mails. The invention consists of a box, instead of a leather pouch, as the receptacle for letters, during their transit from one part of the country to another. The box is made of wood, strongly bound with iron, and secured by the usual post office padlock. The box is about two feet long by ten inches wide, and four or five inches deep. Within, on the sides of the box, are iron-toothed guides with a follower, designed to press the letters into a compact form. The letters are placed in the box upon their edges, with iron labels separating the parcels for different offices, the follower pushed up, the lid closed and locked, and the mail is ready to depart. With this arrangement no wrappers are used for the parcels designed for different offices and the mail can be closed within a few minutes of the time for its departure from the office. The same advantage is obtained in the saving of time in the distribution of a mail upon its arrival. The same mail that used to require an hour in its distribution is now in the post office boxes, or in the hands of the carriers, within fifteen minutes after its arrival. The invention, combined with the disuse of wrappers, has saved to the government the service of eight clerks in the St. Louis Post office besides an incalculable amount in wrapping paper and twine. But the great advantage gained is in the saving of time to a whole community mailing letters, when necessary, within five minutes of the time of departure, and delivering them within a few minutes of the arrival of a large and important mail. The Postmaster-General is authorised to adopt this improvement generally, and, from his progressive antecedents, it is likely that the whole country will enjoy its benefits.

THE PRUSSIAN PEOPLE.—Thirty members of the liberal party in Prussia, mostly deputies, have opened a subscription for the benefit of sufferers in the constitutional struggle between crown and parliament. The proceeds are chiefly intended to support liberals deposed from office, and to assist persecution newspaper editors. The anniversary of the 18th of March, 1848, was this year kept by many who had long wished to bury in oblivion the day when Berlin erected barricades against its king, and for twelve hours fought its own Prussian army. The cemetery in the Fredrichs Hain, where those who fell were interred, was crowded all day.

A Mystery Cleared up.

About the 15th of November last, a woman named Hosiora Doody left her husband's residence on North Park street, not far from the river Don, and did not return. She had a large sum of money on her person at the time; and as she did not reach home that night nor the next day nor ever afterwards, it was feared that she had met foul play at the hands of some parties who knew of the money she had about her. The affair remained a complete mystery until yesterday, when a young lad in the employ of Mr. Archibald Milligan, grocer, saw the remains of a human body floating in the bay near Adamson's wharf. The boy immediately gave information of what he had seen, and a man named George Williams, at considerable personal risk, for which he was complimented, took the body from the water with some slight assistance, and it was found to be that of a woman. The police being made acquainted with the fact took possession of the remains and notified Dr. Buchanan, senior coroner, to hold an inquest. On searching the body, upwards of $560, nearly all in specie, was found in a bag in her bosom, over which the hand of the woman was slightly clasped, as if even in the last agony of death by drowning the safety of the money

AN CONFEDERATE OFFICIAL AT WORK.—J. Reagan, formerly the rebel post master general, is now on his own farm at Fort Houston, near Palestine, Texas. In a private letter of his, which has just found its way into one of the New Orleans papers, occurs the following notable paragraph:—"I have one white man and seven freedmen at work; have planted some fruit trees and strawberry, and most of my vegetable garden and Irish potatoes, and bedded out my sweet potatoes, and planted thirty-five acres of corn, and have as much more ready to plant; have sown twelve or fifteen acres in small grain, and have as much more ready to plant; have sowed twelve or fifteen acres in small grain, and shall plant about thirty-five acres of cotton. I am orchardist and gardener myself, and when not engaged at this, or in the necessary superintendence of the freedmen, I work on the farm constantly with my own hands, and can do as much work with comparatively as little fatigue as any of them. I make fence, grub, and pile and burn brush, plough, &c., and am as thoroughly broiled as other laborers."

Duel for the Honor of Aberdeen Butter.

Sir Walter Scott has alluded to the Laird of Cairnsie, "who fought a duel for the honor of Aberdeen butter." Would thinks he had told the story! It goes that an English gentleman supping in a Glasgow coffee-room ordered the waiter to remove the butter on the table and bring him better. The servant replied that his master had no better, for that was Aberdeen butter; and the Englishman was proceeding to growl in very audible terms at the Scottish butter in general, and particularly Aberdeen butter, when a gruff voice addressed him with. That's nae true; Aberdeen butter is as gude butter as e'er gaed down your ha'se!" The consequence may be imagined—a challenge was promptly given and as promptly accepted, and the parties met. In the combat, which was with the small sword, Cairnsie was worsted; but, after thanking his adversary for his life, he added—"I'll say yet, that better butter than Aberdeen butter ne'er gaed down a Southern's thrapple."

WELL DONE, HALDIMAND.—At a special meeting of the County Council for the County of Haldimand, on Thursday last, a resolution was passed authorizing the Warden to issue his cheque on the County Treasurer for the sum of six dollars per man of the Caledonia, York and Dunnville Rifles, and the Stromness, Naval Brigade, as soon as the respective commanders of the corps mentioned shall present him with a list of the men recently on their active Pay Rolls. The Council also agreed that in the event of the volunteers being called out again to the active service, that the families of the married men shall be provided for at the expense of the County, so long as their natural guardians are required to defend the country.

AN ATTORNEY'S HOUSE.—Anybody who has ever lived in a house in a crescent is aware that no such thing as a right angle is possible, and that all the walls are at cross purposes with one another, and that every chair, table, picture, and pianoforte looks as if it had got into a wrong place. A crescent is, in fact, only a mitigated form of the marvel of mistaken ingenuity near Bath, where the ground plan of the house is of the exact form of the ace of clubs. This house was, it is reported, built by a certain jovial attorney who told his friends that he had adopted this grotesque design in order to keep himself safe from the clutches of the devil, who, according to the proverb, can never get hold of a lawyer unless he gets him into a corner.

☞ The following advertisement appears in a New York paper:—"All Negroes take notice. You can become white. Lever's recent discovery will remove the pigmentary deposits from the skin, changing the darkest complexion to a bright olive in the course of from three to ten weeks. This compound is free from all poisonous and irritating qualities, and although its effects are rapid, yet it is perfectly harmless to the skin."

☞ "How rapidly they build houses," said Cornelius to an old acquaintance, as he pointed to a neat two story house. "They commenced that house only last week, and they are already putting in the lights" "Yes," rejoined his friend; "and next week they will be putting in the livers."

COTTON SUPPLY.—The most engrossing subject that now engages the public attention in England is the question of the supply of Cotton, it certainly is a very serious question, and we hope it will be satisfactorily—at any rate the people of Canada will have no difficulty in procuring a supply of the "Canadian Pain destroyer" at 25 cts per bottle, to cure their rhumatism, neuralgia, burns, sprains, and to move all pain from the system directly it is applied. 25 cents per Bottle. Sold by all Medcine Dealers.

☞ Is health worth having? If it is protect it—it is a jewel as easily lost as virtue, and in many cases as difficult to recover. In this climate, and more particularly at this season of the year, people are very apt to take cold and suffer from sore throat, coughs, spitting of blood and pulmonary complaints generally, which if not checked immediately lead to serious consequence. The question arises—which is the quickest and most effectual remedy? Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers have been before the pub ic for twenty years, and have always given perfect satisfaction, and invariable effect permanent cures when taken in season. Sold by all medicine dealers and country stores generally throughout the Province, at 25cts. per box.

LOSS OF APPETITE IN HORSES.

Horses lose their appetite from various causes, but most frequently by the approach of some disease, this circumstance ought not to be overlooked by those who own horses, but should be immediately attended to as by so doing the disease may be checked, and the life of the horse saved. To do which we are positive there is nothing equal to "Darley's Arabian Peave Remedy and Condition Medicine; it purifies the blood, corrects all derangements of the digestive organs, and as a necessary consequence the appetite is restored, the skin becomes soft, and the coat assumes a soft and shining appearance.

CHARLES F. CLARKE,

☞Jacob Barker many years ago offered his good paper for discount in one of the Wall street banks, and when the board of directors met, they, after mature deliberation, threw the paper out, which displeased friend Jacob, and he consequently sought revenge for what he considered rather ungentlemanly treatment. A few days elapsed when Jacob presented forty thousand dollars of the bills of the bank and demanded specie, which was rolled out to him in kegs of one thousand dollars each—the teller of the bank informing him that they regretted they were obliged to give him small coin, five and ten cent pieces, there was a dilemma; but being equal to the emergency, Jacob requested the porter to unhead the casks, which being done, Jacob took a handful of the coin from each, and requested the teller to place the remainder to his credit. It was said at the time that it required the whole available force of the institution to count the coin.

EDITORIAL ADVICE.—An editor advises his correspondents thus:—Don't write long essays. Give us new ideas; give us short, practical common sense (and brief,) notes upon the vital questions of the hour. Mind the hint to be brief, very brief. Life is short; newspapers are circumscribed; space is valuable; words are many, and writers are over-garrulous. If you are convinced that you can add an idea or an item that will benefit or enlighten your fellow men, say it, but say it in the briefest possible space. Don't "take my pen in hand to inform you that these few lines come hoping that you are well, &c."—Think carefully over what you have to say; reduce your comments to the lowest possible fraction; express that by the most convenient logarithm, and it may be that your little gem will find a place in the omnium gatherum of a great newspaper.

Right this time! To invade Canada with the faintest hope of success, the first contingent must be at least 30,000 men, with field batteries and cavalry. This force must be quickly followed by heavy reserves. Allowing that each soldier would cost $1000 to equip and get ready for marching order, a force of 30,000 Fenians would cost $3,000,000. But this is not all. The cavalry arm and the artillery, with all the horses, harness, waggons, caissons, shot and shell, would be enormously expensive. Next would come the camp equipage, then the commissariat, the most arduous and difficult of all to manage effectively in an enemy's country, and in the midst of a hostile population. We may put down the first cost of all these equipments for 30,000 men, and the other matters mentioned above, at from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000. Where is the money to come from? The more the matter is looked into, the more ridiculous does the Fenians invasion project appear.

THE ALARM.—The kingston News, a ministerial paper, and supposed to be a sort of organ of the Hon. Mr. Campbell, tries to moderate the panicky tone of the Montreal ministerial organ, by showing that while the Canada government did quite right in making the preparations it did, and while these preparations show to Americans and all others the Canada is thoroughly loyal, and able and willing to defend itself, yet the demonstration is very expensive,—not less than ten or twelve thousand dollars a day,— whilst it is the general opinion that there is no danger. The News says it is the conviction of "all sane Americans that the Fenian leaders do not mean to fight, but will content themselves with the money they can wring out of their dupes," especially since it has been demonstrated that there is no disloyalty worth speaking of among the Irish in Canada. It therefore thinks that economy should now be considered as well as defence.

DESERVED RESOURCE.—A blacksmith named Coles, of Ilminster, has performed a feat which rivals that ascribed to William Tell. A child, aged seven years, whilst playing with his brother, aged twelve months, placed over his head an iron bar similar to that used for the nuts of cart-wheels. The child's neck soon began to swell, and when the parents discovered it they were horrified to find that it was impossible to remove the band, and speedy suffocation was imminent. Coles was called in, and suggested the desperate idea of hammering off the iron with a sledge, and he successfully completed the dangerous task. Whilst one person held the legs and another the head of the little one, Coles fearlessly smashed at the ring and severed it. A false blow of half an inch, and instantaneous death must have resulted.

WORDS IN USE.—The peasants of England have not more than 300 words in their vocabulary. The ancients of Egypt so far as we know from their hieroglyphic inscriptions, used but 685 words. A well educated person in England or America seldom uses more than about 300 or 400 words in actual conversation. Accurate thinkers and close reasoners, who avoid vague and general expressions, and wait till they find the word that exactly fits their meaning, employ a large stock; an eloquent speaker, may raise to a command of 10,000. Shakspeare, who dis played a greater variety of expressions then probably any writer in any language, produced all his plays with about 10,000 words. Milton's works are composed of 8,000, and the Old Testament says all that it has to say with 2,624 words.

NICELY SOLD.—One night last week, a couple of men living on the line of the Grand Trunk, a little east of Rockwood, were walking along the track, when they came on a live pig which was squealing with all its might in one of the cattle guards, unable to get out.—Thinking the poker had fallen off a stock train, the two friends came to an early arrangement that they should say nothing about it but take the pig home, kill it, and divide the carcase equally. No sooner was this proposed than it was done, and the unfortunate pig was at once taken off and sacrificed to the cupidity of the two. Next morning, however, one of the men missed his pig, and after looking about for a while he got on its track and traced it to the identical cattle guard from which the pig had been taken on the previous evening—The thought at once flashed on his mind that he had killed his own pig and given half of it away, and so it turned out.—Guelph Mercury.

BRISTOL BILL'S TOOLS.—On Saturday evening, Captain Nicholls left for Berlin, carrying with him the various files, augers, chisels and other burglarious tools, which were discovered concealed under the mattrass of "Bristol Bill's" bed when arrested. The assortment comprises eleven files of first class workmanship, manufactured from the best of steel, nine chisels, three augers, and a large number of gimlets, brad awls, skeleton keys, etc. There was one article in the collection, which in the language of the fraternity is called a "Jimmey" that deserves notice. It is made of warrented steel, about three feet long, and turned off at the end. It is the principal instrument used in prying upon safes, doors, etc. The Assizes commence in Berlin, to-morrow, at 12 o'clock, and it is expected the Galt Robbery Case will be one of the first investigaton by the Grand Jury.—Spectator of Monday.

OUR TRUE POSITION.—The Edinbourgh Scotsman, one of the most influential papers in Britain, says:—It is now becoming apparent to the dimmest apprehension that the interest of British America is not an increased dependence on the States, but in competition with them in all those staples which they produce in common, for which the Provinces have natural facilities, and for the developement of which they have now superior advantages, owing to the light burden of taxation and the healthier condition of the public currency. For the Provinces to continue to hang on the skirts of the Union would be simply to bear its burdens without participating to any extent in its capital and enterprise. So far as the States are concerned it is competition and not union that the British Americans ought to desire, and, on their own sides of the border, a union of the Provinces which would enable them to compete successfully with the States in the markets of the world.

A big Oil well.

OIL SPRINGS, March 27, 1866.

A committee, composed of the members of the Board of Trade of Oil Springs, and others, this day visted the Hendricks Well, for the purpose of giving the same a second test, in consequence of a report having been circulated that that well had become nearly exhausted, and was now pumping an insignificant quantity of oil. The committee beg leave to report that they repaired to the the Hendricks well, and found but one tank available for the test. Two tanks, of 75 barrels each, we were informed by Mr. Hindricks, had already been filled during the forepart of the day. The pipe having been adjusted to the only tank unfilled, the engine was put in motion, at a speed of about thirty strokes per minute of the pump, and in one hour and thirty minutes produced 56 barrels of pure oil, of 40 gallons each. The pumping then ceased, forward of tank room. There had been no diminution in the yield up to the time the pumping ceased. The well stood a test of 40 degrees. Mr. Hendricks informed us that he had put in a seed bag the previous week, and cleaned out the bottom of the well, in consequence of an accumulation of sediment, which had interfered with the proper working of the well for some days past.

LIABILITIES OF ENGLISH RAILWAYS.—A jury in London has given a verdict for $25,000 to Rev. Mr. Eland and wife, who were severely injured in the recent railroad accident at Staplehurst. A few verdicts like this in the United States and Canada would go a great way toward making railroad companies more careful.
