SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

AMERICA'S ALTERNATIVES

The league of nations or "incomparably the greatest navy in the world" —those are the alternatives presented to Congress by Secretary Daniels of the United States Navy Department. President Wilson is in Europe to press the one upon the peace conference. Secretary Daniels is left at home to prove the reality of the other by presenting estimates of the year's expenditure on the United States navy of over $900,000,000 to be expanded to over $2,000,000,000 if the peace conference should fail to create a league of nations.

In times less replete with astounding events, and to minds less accustomed to read stupendous figures, almost meaningless in their immensity, this drastic announcement would have all the importance of a coup d' etat in world politics. International safeguards against aggression, or invincible preparedness for war; that is the program of President Wilson's administration — for the two voices are in reality one.

Forced into the consciousness of nations hardly yet able to take stock of their costs and losses in the greatest of wars, the two courses which lie before them are revealed in illuminating contrast by Secretary Daniel's statements. Through one doorway marked in clearest symbols, "Rule by Right," may be glimpsed the council-hall of humanity; the chamber in which international discussion may develop into international laws and from which the moral and material forces of the nations, acting with united will, may be made to enforce the regulations promulgated by the international council, to restrain the would-be transgressor and to punish the lawbreaker. Before the bar of international justice may come national plaintiff and national defendant, compelled to state their cases, to vent-ilate the facts, to turn the white light of publicity into their quarrel, ere invoking the irrational arbitrament of war. Here also the trustee nations must give accounts of their stewardship; communities grown into maturity and self-government may be received into full membership of the council.

In broadening experience and maturing wisdom the league of nations may pass in slow progress through all the stages of development into the fullness of existence as "the parliament of man, the federation of the world."

Over the other door is engraved the legend, "Rule by Might." Within may be seen with the certainty born of past experience, a vast panorama of forges, furnaces and feverish workers; airplanes, cannon, battleships, submarines, every engine of warlike destruction; serried armies and magnificent fleets, ever vanishing in rapid decay yet ever growing in size and strength. In the background, mighty nations toiling and moiling yet never satisfying the hunger of the militarists; always producing yet never enjoying the full rewards of labor; groaning under taxation and bending beneath an ever-increasing burden of armaments. Over all looms the certainty that one day—at any moment, in fact—the great clash may come. The competing nations will hurl their piled-up terrors at one another. Death and destruction will fill the world. Civilization itself, weakened in body and impoverished in soul by the long strain of international rivalry in "defence," will well-nigh perish in the cataclysm. All that dire struggle is pictured in that phrase "incomparably the greatest navy in the world" flung out by the government of the youngest, strongest and most ambitious—potentially, at least—of the great nations of the earth, standing at the threshold of a mighty, but unrevealed future.

The United States has stepped, for good or ill, but irretraceably, out of the new world into the wide arena of the Earth. Grown to manhood, it has crossed the Rubicon; retreat from world politics is impossible. And at this crisis in its career it presents to the older nations—grown gray, many of them in their progress from barbarity into civilization, and with many relics of the past still clinging to their habilaments, yet still in the full vigor of nationhood —this fateful alternative, rule by law or rule by might; the league of nations or "incomparably the greatest navy in the world."

This in indeed the alternative. No matter if the statement be a threat or merely a warning. The nations which, having perilled their very existence to crush the dread menace of militarism, fail to learn the lesson taught by its growth under conditions which fostered it and blinded them to its coming, can now have no excuse for that failure. They were blind but now they see. Right or Might — between them they must choose.—Manitoba Free Press.

THE GAS ARGUMENT

The working of a world-wide state or league of nations will depend on what work is given it to do, but, with many men, the moving argument for such a change will be the evils from which it will save us. Those who like horrific prophecy will find food for thought in the poison-gas possibilities of future warfare. The Hague conventions forbade the use of this infernal means of fighting, but Germany did use it, though not thoroughly or carefully enough to gain any decisive advantage by her deviltry. When the armistice was signed our own country, having reluctatntly decided to go into the business, had invested some $72,000,000 in a "model" poisonous-gas plant down on Chesapeake Bay which, alone, turned out more of the deadly stuff per day than France, Great Britain and Germany put together. The materials are salt, sulphur and alcohol, and over 2500 tons of the finished product was on the wharf ready for shipping when Potsdam quit. The latest methods of use looked to dropping one-ton packages of these chemicals on fortified towns from heavy-powered airplanes operating at a great height. A time fuse would explode the parcel and release the poison gas from a height of about four hundred feet. When the fumes settled not one single thing would be left alive in the area thus covered. In the coming age of denser air traffic the aggressor in war can begin and end the struggle by thus wiping out the main cities of his opponent and then over-running the land in detail. And the whole proceeding would be comparatively cheap and very expeditious. To leave such means of secretly prepared and suddenly released conquest at the disposal of whatever national or racial jealousies may arise in the future would not be safe or statemanlike or sane. Civilizations have committed suicide before this, but ours had better be improved and established, and a league of nations would seem to be a feasible means.—Collier's.

COMPENSATION TO DISABLED MEN

At present about 50,000 pensions are administered by the board of pension commissioners in Canada. The number will be considerably increased when all the men in military hospitals are brought home. According to the estimate of the minister of finance, $30,000,000 is a minimum sum to allow for yearly expenditure in the form of pensions to disabled Canadian men and the dependents of Canadians.

The committee of repatriation and employment, in a very clear bulletin issued to explain the relationship of the several departments and boards to the national task of restoring Canada back from war to productive industry, gives the board of pension commissioners' understanding of what a pension is, in part, as follows:

"The idea is that the pension is not a gift from Canada as a reward for good services done. It is a compensation paid as a right by Canadians, through their government, to those of their fellow citizens who have been incapacitated while performing public service. Its object is to enable its recipients to live, on equal terms and unhandicapped by their disability, in competition with their fellows who have not been incapacitated. It does not remove from the pensioner the obligation to be self-supporting and to provide for his dependents."

Compensation by the state to men disabled in the war is provided in several ways in addition to the awarding of pensions. Commendable work is being done by the vocational training branch of the department of civil re-establishment. Patients are helped while they are in the miltary hospitals, by instructors who act in co-operation with the medical doctors. They are taught useful occupations, such as weaving and basket making, but this kind of instruction is more fos the purpose of helping to restore them to health. When patients are able to move about, however, they are induced to take part in practical class work, having a choice of woodworking, poultry culture, motor mechanics, gardening, bookkeeping, typewriting and general education classes. Canada is credited with being in the forefront of the Allied nations in the employment of this form of healing, called occupational therapy.

When the invalided men reach Canada, and while they are still under military hospital control, they are interviewed as soon as possible by representatives of the vocational training branch, who are themselves returned men. The interviewers get the necessary information with regard to the physical condition and the industrial experience of every invalided man, with a view to offering each man such assistance as he individually may require. Upon the advice of the disabled soldiers' training board, the returned men may then select a course of industrial re-education. The man's own previous experience is taken into account so that, if possible his early training may be of some service to him in the occupation he has decided to take up. It is stated that the industrial retraining courses are giving every satisfaction; 71 per cent of those who have taken the courses have been located by follow-up officers as succcessfully engaged in the occupations for which they were trained. The actual number of failures has not reached five per cent.

Vocational training is made possible for disabled men by the liberal policy of the department of civil re-establishment, in supporting each man with pay and allowances, adequate for himself and dependents, while he is takng the retraining course. While he is thus paid, he does not draw any pension allowance, but the degree of proficiency or industrial independence obtained through re-education is not allowed to influence, to the disadvantage of the man, whatever pension may have been awarded to him. The purpose of the state is to help the disabled man earn a livelihood in addition to his pension.

Some of the courses of vocational training are given in established technical schools and university engineering and agricultural departments. New schools are also being equipped. Private companies, including railway shops, motor car factories, sugar, steel and other industrial enterprises are co-operating with the department of civil re-establishment to give the disabled men the practical training they require. In some districts it is possible to combine the work in the schools with practical experience in the manufacturing industries. School training is given in the use of certain tools, in the operation of machines, and general education to enable the man more readily to take his place in the factory.

Up to the first of December, 1918, a total of 1984 returned men had graduated from retraining courses and had been placed in civil employment. On same date 7176 men had been officially approved for such courses. The civil re-establishment department has also taken over a large number of institutions in the country for the care of men who do not seem to be ready for industrial re-education. There are at present 3490 patients under treatment in over 150 institutions. These men are cared for by the medical services branch of the department. Occupational therapy, it is stated, is playing a big part in helping to restore the incapacitated men to health, and the vast majority of cases recover. Until it is decided that they are fit to take industrial re-education and become self-supporting, such cases are cared for in special hospitals . Dishcarged men who suffer from recurrence of disability are entitled to free medical care and hospital treatment as long as they live.

While the state cannot pretend fully to compensate the disabled Canadian men for the great sacrifices they have made in defence of Canada, and in the cause of justice, it is some satisfaction to know that everything possible is being done, so far as the state can help. There will never be a word of complaint from loyal Canadian people because of any expenditure the government may sanction to help the disabled men on their way back to health and economic independence.—Ottawa Citizen.

Now that there is a recurrence of "internationalist" propaganda Colonel Roosevelt's dictum on that issue will be recalled. "A man who says he loves all other countries as much as his own," he said, "is adopting about the same position as the man who says he loves all women equally with his wife."—Nelson News.

The biggest thing in the way of laundry soap is Gold Soap. It is as good as laundry soap can be. It is bigger, weighs more, and lasts longer than any other cake at the price. When you buy it compare the size. When you use it compare the quality.

Gold Soap The Big, Good Laundry

Are you missing any of the new uses for Gold Dust?

Fresh, sweet dish towels

After one or two dishwashing sessions your towels refuse to respond—no matter how careful you are of them, no matter how clean you wash your dishes. What is the matter? Grease. You can't feel it or see it, but it is there in the towel. A gentle effective grease dissolvent like Gold Dust takes hold of this trouble. A tablespoonful to a dishpan of water, a moment's swishing up and down, and out come your towels spotless and greaseless.

Save your rugs and carpets

You will find that the brush in your carpet sweeper picks up more than threads and dust. If you run your hand over it, it feels actually greasy. Gold Dust will quickly free it from dust and grease. Dissolve a tablespoonful of Gold Dust in half a pail of hot water. Whisk the brush in the water, rinse in clear water and dry quickly. Your rugs and carpets will then keep their fresh, new look.

A modern idea in dishwashing

If you want to get rid of drying your dishes with a towel, try this: Use a tablespoonful of Gold Dust to a dishpan of water, wash all dishes of one kind together, scald with boiling water in a wire dish drainer. It is because Gold Dust so thoroughly dissolves the grease that the dishes come out so clean and sparkling.

How to clean your meat chopper

If you've had trouble cleaning this useful kitchen helper, try a tablespoonful of Gold Dust in a dishpan of hot water. See how quickly and thoroughly Gold Dust dissolves the grease —how fresh and sweet it leaves your chopper. On baking day, too, Gold Dust makes a quick "clean-up" of bread mixer, pans, rolling pin, spoons and all cooking utensils.

Loan committee, will act as the Red Cross drive secretary.

The committee fully intend to immediately get down to business and perfect its organization so that everybody will be canvassed and the required sum raised. The allotment is based at $3300 but it was the feeling of those present that at least $4000 should be raised. A meeting will be held in the council chamber this (Friday) evening when in addition to the general committee it is hoped everyone who is willing to assist in this final drive for the Red Cross will come forward and volunteer their services.

The following letter has been received by E. K. Stewart:

Vancouver, Dec. 31, 1918.

E. K. Stewart, Fernie, B.C.:

Dear Sir—Mr. Kearns, our campaign manager, has advised me of his action in already asking your support and co-operation in the Red Cross drive. Because the activities of the Canadian Red Cross have been largely confined to our Patriotic Ladies throughout British Columbia, it is now the duty of the men to jump in and help make the Drive for funds a big success; for that reason I am taking the liberty of asking you to act special capacity for the Executive during the campaign, the object being to see that a good local organization is completed. The Campaign starts January 12 and ends January 19.

We want you to be a sort of organizer, should there be a necessity for such office in your district. We have already sent notices to the addresses attached hereto asking them to get an organization under way, and also to enlist the services of the men. We expect every community will follow the lead, and there may be no occasion for the services I am asking you to be ready to extend.

Posters and advertising material are being prepared now, and we hope same will be forwarded to the provincial points this week. We have also a good quantity of Red Cross Buttons on order, which will be sent out in ample time for the campaign. Receipt books are also being prepared for all units. The amount set for British Columbia is $250,000 and the quota fixed by us for each is arrived at from a basis of four-fifths of one per cent of the Victory Loan subscriptions; this equalizes the allottments in all parts. The money is to meet the needs of Red Cross for overseas services to wounded and maimed men, which must be furnished for a considerable time yet. There are 43,000 wounded and sick Canadian soldiers in England and France alone.

The requirements are as vital now as during war times, even though conditions are different. Please consider yourself as our special assistant in your district, and for the sake of the Red Cross and all the good it stands for, do your best to make the Drive a success.

Yours sincerely,
S. S. Taylor,
Chairman Red Cross Campaign.

GOT HIS BOOZE BACK AGAIN

made by the Customs Officer while the liquor was in custody of the Court was ineffective and virtually amounted to contempt. The defence did not introduce any additional evidence and the conviction was sustained, the court holding that the interpretation of the order-in-council, according to his view, that although an accused had not delivered or caused to be delivered into a prohibited area intoxicating liquor, if he had knowledge that same had been improperly delivered in or caused to be delivered in, he was guilty of an infraction thereof.

In pursuance of carrying out the order of the court to restore the liquor, some excitement prevailed at the Court House. Within 15 minutes of the finding being made accused had motor conveyance present and the liquor in charge of a constable was on its journey back to the dairy. Something approaching a mad scramble developed as the customs officials were hot on the trail. Roux (the accused) led the parade in his auto, then followed the loaded car, and following these was another empty messenger car; the rear was brought up by a car in which counsel for accused rode, and thus the booze vanished.

Con. Johns did some good detective work on Thursday night, Dec. 26. He noticed the peculiar actions of a crowd of Chinese in the lane between Hanson and Armstrong avenues and finally he rounded up a cache of booze containing 42 quart bottles of rye whiskey. Wing Doo was accused as the owner, pled guilty before Magistrate Leask and was fined $50. The booze was confiscated, which leads us to remark that there is a cellar full of confiscated booze to be shipped from here to the coast as soon as it is known to whose warehouse in Vancouver it is to be shipped—to McGinness' or Findlay's. — Cranbrook Herald.

M. Kokovsoff, formerly premier of Russia, says that "A military dictatorship must be established. However repugnant such a solution may appear to French minds, a military dictatorship alone can put an end to the present anarchic regime and permit the establishment of a new, healthy and honest government. Should the Allies not intervene, it would permit the Germans to strengthen and extend their grip on Russia and finally bring about close political relations between the two countries." But it begins to look as though the German boot was now on the Russian foot. Bolshevism threatens to do for Germany what Germany has done for Russia.

Referring to the report that the last shot in the war was fired by an Australian, says "Clubman" in the Pall Mall Gazette, Sir Joseph Cook recently made the interesting statement that probably the first shot in the war was also fired by an Australian. "An hour after the declaration of war," said he, "the first shot was fired in Australia across the bows of a scouting German steamer, Pfalz. The ship was captured and has since carried many thousands of Australian soldiers to the front."

In Britain the suggestion has been made that the government pay the householder the difference between what his house will cost to construct immediately after peace is declared and its estimated value five years hence. That would, at least, recognize frankly the fact that high costs for materials and labor make it impossible for houses to be built as an investment. Whoever builds them while these abnormal conditions prevail somebody must lose money over it.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie Free Press:

Dear Mr. Editor—Allow me space in your valuable paper concerning our city. I think our friend was perfectly right in his idea of economy as expressed in last week's issue. It is a disgarce to the aldermen the extravagant way the departments of this city have been handled. In the past year the raising of wages of the employees was fair, with the increased cost of living, but they increased the staff in almost every department when they should have been studying economy. Take for instance our police department — four policemen, when before prohibition we had only three. The magistrate is overpaid for the amount of work he does, as our friend states. Take the light department, two men are now doing the work one used to do. The fire department could be run on a cheaper scale. On Victoria Avenue and West Fernie bridge twice as much time was spent as was necessary. This city is no gold mint and the citizens and ratepayers should protest against it. It is hoped the alderman who had the gall to give this city such service will know enough to step aside. We thought when we put in our commissioners and aldermen we had the most moral reform council and commissioners in Canada. It is worse now than before prohibition. Why? Because booze is sold in about a hundred places in Fernie and there is more strong liquor drank now and rotten stuff at that. Is the moral condition as good and what about the gambling that is done? Even prohibitionists and moral reformers are willing to take a chance on selling the darned booze for the big profits—the almighty dollar. However, Mr. Editor, we did expect our commissioners and council to enforce the laws and economy as they promised. We need an economical council for 1919 or this town will go bust and also men that are going to take an interest in it. We need big men that can handle their own business successfully. I paid close to $200 taxes. As the city has no revenue from the hotels since prohibition and they were a big asset to the treasury, our taxes must rise considerably and will be a long way higher than they are now. However, I voted for prohibition and must abide by my decision.

But, Mr. Editor, if we get men to run for the council with brains they will study economy and condense departments. They could keep our taxes from creeping too high as they must do or the taxes will not be met by the ratepayers and the city will become owner of all property. If men with brains will come out and run for 1919 our city might be put in good standing again.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

Yours,
A Ratepayer.

COMMUNICATION

Cranbrook, B.C., Jan. 7, 1919.

To the Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—I wish to draw you attention to the unsanitary conditions of the lumber camps. I am informed that most of the cases of influenza that are existing today are those who are brought in from the lumber camps. These camps are a serious menace to the public health of British Columbia and should be investigated without delay and things pushed until they are cleaned up and kept clean. As it is men are compelled to herd together in absolute filth and unsanitariness which should not be permitted, and under conditions which town dwelling people would not put up with for five minutes. We are forced to sleep in places which are unfit for pigs to be in. Men who are in good health are forced to lie in bunks in which sick men have been in and sent to hospital from with the hay unchanged and in the stench of numerous pairs of dirty socks hung up to dry in a vitiated atmosphere without sufficient ventilation, if any at all, and when one wakes up in the morning one will have a dirty brown taste in ones mouth from breathing the foul air of maybe two or three score dirty bodies, as no accommodation is provided for men to have a bath and one will be compelled to stay unbathed for months on end. Floors are left unwashed and even unswept in many cases where there is no man to do that work. I have seen kitchen refuse dumped out and left to rot within 20 feet of waterholes that one has to drink out of, and old clothes thrown under bunks and left there for months on end to create disease. I have followed camp life for the last eight years and have never seen one really sanitary camp yet. I have seen them where stables have been built within a few feet of sleeping quarters and open privies in which were in the summer time literally millions of flies left unscreened close to the cook house. Every year the hospitals have many cases of grippe, flu and typhoid which are directly attributable to nothing else than the filthy conditions allowed to exist in the camps in which many valuable lives are risked that wealthy people may be made wealthier. It is time to wake up and insist on proper precautions being taken to safeguard the health of the community at large and the lumberjack and railroad constructor in particular. If the proper authorities are not roused soon we are liable to have an epidemic of a more serious nature than Spanish influenza this coming summer. I remain,

Yours respectfully,
E. R. Fay.

ROOSVELT

A great and righteous man "lies dead in Israel." The gift of prophecy is not needed to forecast the exalted place which history and the country's verdict will accord Theodore Roosevelt in the national Pantheon. His services have been so monumental, his patriotic Americanism so rugged and unfaltering, his counsel in war and in peace so commanding and molding, that even the harsh voice of partizan criticism will be awed to silence now that death has taken this heroic character.

Excepting Lincoln, no man has faced and weathered more vehement and bitter antagonism, or antagonisms that were longer lived. For 35 years he drove his shining lance against the organized forces of bad government and false doctrine. When but a stripling youth he sprang into national observation as a leader of the reform forces combatting bad government and fighting for civil service reform in the New York legislature. That drew the fire of the political spoilsmen. As police commissioner of New York city, as assistant secretary of the navy, as New York's reform governor, he was always a shining target. As president he incurred the bitter hostility of the nation-wide apredatory interests. As leader of the progressive forces in 1912, he became the object of violent political hatred.

When Germany hurled its prepared legions upon helpless Belgium and inoffensive France, Roosvelt stood practically alone in solitary grandeur, the one American of international stature who saw the enormity of the outrage, who visioned the tremendous principles that were involved, and who had the courage to thunder forth his convictions. For that high service he paid the penalty of suffering new and renewed antagonisms. Pacifists, opponents of preparedness, pro-German plotters and sympathizers, socialistic dreamers and radical bolsheviki enemies of the American government—all took up the hue and cry against him.

And through it all he never faltered. He stood his ground with a dauntless moral courage that was akin to the lofty moral and physical courage of the soldiers in the heroic armies of France, Belgium, Great Britain, Italy and our own blessed land.

It is cause for the deepest national rejoicing that his life was spared through the fateful years of 1914 to 1919, epoch of the most appalling warfare that ever drench the earth with patriot blood — to blow to a white heat the patriotic fires of a nation threatened by engrossing materialism and an unworthy longing for peace at a sacrifice of liberty and safety, of national honor and international respect.

That his life was not spared for continued vision and counsel in these trying hours, when problems of peace no less difficult than the old problems of war are arising and multiplying to baffle the blended statesmanship of our country and its allies across the sea, is more than a national bereavement. It is an international misfortune.—Spokesman.

"FLU" MASK TRAPS GERM

A large-meshed fish net bears about the same sizal relation to a swarm of flies as the common gauze mask bears to influenza germs it is supposed to stop; and for this reason doctors, and other persons who know something about germs, have been moved to comment either pityingly or sarcastically on the common public assumption that such masks afford protection. The openings in an influenza mask, as seen under a microscope, are enormous, while the influenza germ, even under high magnifying power, remains almost invisible.

Nevertheless, public opinion is right, and a part, at least, of scientific opinion is wrong, for the influenza mask really does protect, and certain experts offer explanations as to how it does it. A writer in Engineering and Contracting (Chicago) deals entertaingly with the beginning, progress and present state of the controversy. The commonest argument against the "flu" masks, the writer notes, is that the openings in the mask bear the same relation in size to a microbe as a barn door to a mouse.

For example, a doctor recently wrote to a daily paper protesting against the use of these masks, saying:

"If the gauze worn over the face is expected to prevent the entrance of microorganisms to the respiratory tract it seems that the absurdity would be apparent to those who know that Pfeiffer's bacillus, pneumococci, or streptococci, must be magnified many hundreds of times to be visible at all and that if the ordinary gauze mask be magnified to the same extent it would show the meshes to be so large as to apparently offer no obstruction to the housefly. Such an attempt to mechancially prevent germ invasion might be compared to fencing against fleas in Florida with barbed wire."

This, comments the writer of the article, sounds very plausible, but is fallicious reasoning. The very same sort of argument was used nearly half a century ago against filtering water to remove typhoid germs:

"The argument then took this form: 'The interestices between the grains of sand in a filter are as large compared with the typhoid bacillus as a house door is to a mouse. If all the doors of the house were open a mouse could pass from garret to cellar without being stopped. How absurd, then, is the belief that a typhoid germ can be caught while wandering through a layer of sand a foot or two thick.'

"It seems very 'absurd,' doesn't it? Yet when an actual count of the germs in a drop of raw water was made, and a similar count was made of the germs in the same water after filteration through a thin bed of sand it was found that only one germ in a hundred had passed through! 'Incredible,' but true. Of one hundred 'mice' that started in at the garret to go downstairs only one reached the cellar, although every door was open. Now this was no speculation or guess. The microscope, after Dr. Robert Koch's discoveries 40 years ago, could be used to count the microbes in a measured volume of water even as one might count mice in a trap. And the microscope made it certain that, somehow or other, porous filter sand does stop most of the microbes in water.

"It is 80 years ago this very year since a British civil engineer, James Simpson, finished at Chelsea, London, the first sand filter plant for a city. It was intended primarily to remove the visible imprities of the Thames water. Little did he or any one else dream that the real danger in using that water was the invisible living things that inhabited it; for Pasteur had not yet shown that many diseases are caused by microbes, and Poch had not perfected the microscope detection of germs. Yet it began at once to be noticed that typhoid fever was less prevalent than it had ever been.

"Not until about 40 years ago was it fully demonstrated that filtration can be so scientifically conducted, by the aid of microscopic counts of bacteria, as to remove almost all danger of contracting typhoid from drinking water.

"Then came another great discovery, namely, that a minute quantity of chlorin is deadly to typhoid germs. One drop of liquid chlorin in two barrels of water is the average dose, but it usually suffices to kill nearly every typhoid germ. When the discovery of chlorination of water was announced it also was 'argued off the floor.'  'Consider,' they say, 'the abusdity of trying to kill the millions of microbes in a barrel of water by merely adding half a drop of liquid chlorin.' Yes, it was perfectly absurd, but the microbes all died; perhaps by laughing themselves to death over the absurdity of if.

"In drawing an analogy between a flea and a microbe several elements of difference are usually overlooked. A flea not only is capable of locomotion but can direct his motions by the sense of smell. A microbe, on the other hand, is helplessly and aimlessly carried along by currents of air or water. In the case of microbes that are inhaled it seems likely that most of them are either attached to particles of dust or to small globules of moisture. In either case, if the mask stops the grain of dust or globule of water the germ itself is caught also."

OFFICIAL AID TO RETURNED MEN

The men from overseas are to be discharged from the army on the day they arrive at the dispersal station of their home district. The last official act of the department of militia, before the men disperse to their homes, released by their discharge certificates from any further military service, will be to hand each man a substantial cheque. Deferred pay is due to the single men, post discharge pay to all men with one year's service or more, and civilian clothing allowances to every man. The cheques issued to the men by the paymaster at the dispersal station, are hardly likely in any instance to be less than $100 and in many instances they may exceed $1000.

Every man will naturally want to spend a few days lookng around, enjoying the novelty of being in civilian clothes again, with feelings of relief on being restored to civil home life in Canada. The careful man will let very little time elapse, however, before getting out to fnd employment for himself. He will have been told about the department of civil re-establishment, a federal government department created especially to be of service to him during the time when he is getting back to steady employment in private enterprise or evil industry. A provincial government organization, called the Returned Soliders' Commission, will also possibly have a representative in every city and town. It has been decided between the federal and provincial authorties that the returned men should first call for a talk over general plans, and to get in touch with the federal employment service and other helpful opportunities, through the provincial Returned Soldiers' Commission.

The duties of the provncial commission's representative would seem to be merely to introduce the repatriated citizen—he should no longer be called a "returned soldier"— to the civil re-establishment office. Provided the provincial official does not humbug the applicant for information, with forms to be filled in, and too many official questions to be answered, the part of welcoming him on behalf of the province, the Returned Solders' Commission can be of real help. But there should be no fifth wheel to the coach. The representative of the provincial commission should be, whenever possible, in the same office building as the civil re-establishment representative and the employment service bureau.

The representative of the department of civil re-establishment in the employment office, or labor bureau, has an important function to perform. There will be employment offices probably in every city of 10,000 or more population, and in smaller towns if the need warrants it. The employment offices are to be state-controlled, organized by the province, but the federal government will exercise the right to supervise the administration of the employment offices by virtue of contributing half the cost of their establishment and upkeep from the federal treasury.

The employment offices are being organized to serve unemployed workpeople of every class in the community; but, as everyone will approve, first attention will be given to the applicant who has served during the war with the Canadian expedtionary force. It is for this special purpose that an office in every labor bureau will be maintained by the department of civil re-establishment. Wherever possible the agent in charge will be himself a returned man.

When a man with an honorable discharge from active service comes to the employment office to find out what opportunities there are in the locality, or elsewhere, for suitable work, he will be conducted to the representatve of the department of civil re-establishment, whose duty it is to see that first preference in every instance is given to the applications of returned men, other things being equal, with the earliest choice of jobs to the earliest applicants. This special preference to returned men can be assured only by maintaining a civil re-establishment representative in the same office building as the office staff of the local employment bureau. Without this close co-operation, the labor bureau officials would possibly be sending men, discharged munition workers and others, to apply for work at a certain place of employment at the same time as a returned man applicant had been sent from the civil re-establishment office.

Federal government aid to returned men, to help them to get steady employment, and to find worthy places for themselves again in the social life of the community, is not by any means exhausted by the necessary service to them through the state-organized employment offices. The department of civil re-establishment, under Sir James Lougheed, is responsible for the care of invalided and disabled men. A vocational training branch is maintained, with schools throughout the several provinces, to help disabled men who had no skilled trade before the war, to learn a trade or profession now, so that their disability, acquired while in the service of Canada, need be no handicap to them when they have to earn their living again in civil life. The industrial retraining branch is engaged in similar work for returned men who have been prevented by disabilty from engaging in their former occupations. Many are being retrained to get back with satisfaction to themselves the skill and craftsmanship they had before enlisting. The medical service branch, and the branch where men who have lost limbs are fitted with orthopedic and surgical appliances, also form part of the department of civil re-establishment. Special consideration must be given to the constructive work of the various branches for the care of disabled men, also to the policy and administration of the board of pension commissioners.—Ottawa Citizen.

FIVE YEARS ON POLAR DIET

All Arctic explorers before Stefansson always governed their operations by the amount of food taken with them, the general rule to go no further north than half their food supplies would serve for. Stefansson adopted a new plan, that of depending on the natural food supply of the Far North. Because of the loss of the ship Karluk, with all its stores, Stefansson and his men were forced to put the food theory to a more rigid test than they had intended. Indeed, for the greater part of five years they subsisted almost entirely on animals and fish. On their bill of fare were polar bears, seals, reindeer, must ox, and wolves. Only one of the party objected to wolf meat, and that on the ground that it was against the dietary laws in the Book of Deuteronomy; the others declared that the wolf meat was the best food they had. They laughed to scorn the idea that the Arctic regions are barren, and declared that, in a sense, it is easier to make a living up in the Arctic region than in a place like New York City.

LAND RECLAMATION POLICY PLANNED

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—The department of the interior is preparing to undertake an aggressive reclamation policy in western Canada. There are large areas of land in the three western provinces which can be successfully reclaimed and which will be suitable for agricultural purposes. With the idea of taking up this problem a reorganization is to take place within the department. An order-in-council has been passed changing the name of the irrigation branch to "The Reclamation Service." A director and assistant director will be named to undertake the administration of the work. The branch will continue the supervision of the irrigation work. The irrigation branch was established in 1913 and the superintendent of the branch had jurisdiction over the conducting of all business relating to irrigation, stream measurement and drainage in the southern portions of Saskatchewan and Alberta.

AN ORGANIZED MORAL FORCE

President Wilson: My conception of a League of Nations is just this: that it shall operate as an organized moral force of men throughout the world, and that, whenever of wherever wrong and aggression are planned or contemplated, this searching light of conscience will be turned upon them, and men everywhere will ask what are the purposes that you hold in your heart against the fortunes of the world? Just a little exposure will settle most questions. If the Central Powers had dared to discuss the purposes of this war for a single fortnight, it never would have happened and if, as should be, they were forced to discuss it for a year, war would have been inconceivable.

JANUARY AND FEBRUARY DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

A news item in the Calgary Herald last week said that the Kaiser's hair is quite white. Jim Thistlebeak says if it is, it is the only thing white about him unless it be his liver.

The past week was the gayest in Elko for some time. Mrs. Jack Graham, Riverside Park, entertained a number of her friends at her house on New Year's eve. The rooms were prettily decorated with flags of the Allies. Dancing and cards were indulged in. At midnight refreshments were served; delicious tea and coffee went round with jovial chat, and sweet cake with rich and buttery dressing that would make a man love his mother-in-law, and there was a number of surprises which had been planned by the popular hostess and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Geo. H. Scott and two children, of Nelson, passed through Elko New Year's to Roosville, where Mr. Scott owns and works a 600 acre ranch.

Mrs. Fred Roo gave a charming dance at Roosville on New Year's complimentary to Miss E. B. Paterson, of the Kootenay Orchards, Cranbrook, who was spending the holidays with the family. Visitors from Ottawa, Toronto, Regina, Rat Portage, Victoria, and Okotoks, who were visiting friends in the valley, were among the invited guests. The Roosville string band, under the direction of Prof. Ferguson, supplied the music, and a jolly time was spent.

Mr. Fred Roo spent New Year's week at Roosville and Flagstone.

The Elko old timers celebrated New Year's night in good old Elko style. It was an impromptu affair that proved to be one of the most sociable events ever held in the Old Historic Burg. Jim Thistlebeak was conspicuous by his absence. The assembly rooms were hired for the occasion and the ladies got together and with flags and bunting decorated the hall while others were looking up refresments, and by all reports it sure was some kind of a night. The hall was packed, everybody was there to celebrate and the opening chorus was entitled, "Put all your troubles in your old kit bag and smile, smile, smile." And everybody smiled. Ray G. Hirtz, alted as M.C. and kept everything going at the rate of 19 weddings. One of the features of the evenng was a song by Morgan Edmunds entitled "God Bless the Prince of Wales" in the Welsh tongue and for an encore danced the Druid's cake walk. Alex. Birnie, the well known livery and auto man, sang a classic of old Aberdeen to the tune of the Riot Act, in Gaelic. This was a scream and had to be repeated. If Alex would only quit the livery business and go on the vaudeville stage he would have green money sticking to him like flies to a honey covered dog. Gorman (the human ferret) sang "On the bridge till midnight till I got the flu," and for encore "Just tell them you saw me in a box car going west." Miss Irene McKee, the Elko Nightingale, sang several selectons, which were well received. There was dancing and prancing and the merry crowd hesitated, tangoed and lame duced and jolly companionship, good cheer and happiness were done up in large packages. It was a big family gathering, as Jim Thistlebeak would say; one of those social gatherings that soothes and cleanses the pores, removes bad feeling and petty jealousy, leaving the mind clear and fresh. The whole company formed themselves into a committee and will have these gatherings every two weeks.

Miss Gilmore, of Toronto, is visiting the Roosville valley, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Broley, Sunkist Orchards.

Consderable high class furs are coming into Elko this winter.

The Flagstone Sunshine Society held several dances Christmas and New Year's week.

SHE THOUGHT BETTER OF IT

"My dear," said Mrs. Jones, to her considerably lesser half, "I want you to do a little shopping for me this afternoon." Mr. Jones blinked pathetically. He had arranged to spend a quiet afternoon at the baseball game. "I——I was thinking of going to the game, my dove—" he began feebly. "Indeed!" observed his wife, stonily, "Well, I've got a better job for you than that. I want you to match this piece of material at Masons—" "At the counter where that little fair girl serves?" interrupted Mr. Jones suddenly. "That nice little thing, you know, with the frizzy curls and bright eyes, and a jolly, roguish smile—eh?" "Perhaps, after all," replied Mrs. Jones, with a below zero glare, "I'd better do my own shopping."

$27,000,000 CORRUPTION FUND

German propagandists in the United States raised $27,850,000 for carrying on their work here. A. Bruce Bielaski told the senate investigating committee last week. Bielaski said $12,500,000 of this was raised through loans from New York banks and $8,300,000 from the German Reichsbank and other German banks.

Of this sum, Bielaski said, $1,800,000 was spent in the Bolo Pasha affair; $1,700,000 in purchasing the New York Mail, $400,000 or $500,000 on propaganda among Jews, and hundreds of thousands among the Irish.

A man ran into a physician's office in Winnipeg the other day and said that a hardware man close by had swallowed a two-foot rule and was dying by inches. The doctor said that was nothing as he had a patient a druggist who swallowed a thermometer and died by degrees. Two patients chipped in, one saying it reminded him of a fellow in Saskatoon, who had swallowed a revolver and went off easy while the other said he had a friend in Calgary who drank spirits. Another went around the house and died by the yard.

B. C. Veteran Weekly, of Vancouver, has the following about co-operation and the loyalty of returned soldiers:

The loyalty of returned men can be decided upon with the same certainty at home as at the front, if only the government will change its attitude, accept their assistance and recognize them as factors of importance in peace as well as war. They fought for the country and will work for it, but they will resent injustice and throw in their lot whenever they think it will be welcome if the government says them nay. Co-operation should stand out in letters of fire; it means everything to Canada and unless the government keeps it before its vision continually it will be replaced with "Mene, Mene, Tekel, Upharsin."

BOLSHEVIKI WANT TO KILL ALL USERS OF TOOTH BRUSH

Warsaw, Jan. 2.—Commenting on the alleged slowness of the allies to help the Poles stem the tide of the Bolsheviki, Ignace Jan Paderewski, who is suggested as the first president of the republic of Poland, denounced the Bolsheviki movement here early today. As he spoke crowds outside of the hotel windows were still cheering, singing the national anthem and calling for him, although it was 3 o'clock in the morning and Madame Paderewski was plaintively insisting that her husband take some rest, saying that he had been speaking continuously for 20 hours.

"The Bolsheviki idea is to kill all users of the toothbrush," he said. "If this war is to help mankind Bolshevism must be downed. Otherwise it was a war of hypocrisy.

"The inevitable result of Bolshevism will be a return to barbaric Russia. If Poland is not helped to create a barrier against it, then liberty and justice do not exist. Unhappily, the allies are disgusted with the idea of more war, even though it be in their own defense, in their own interest for the preservation of civilization. It would be possible now for the allies to loan us a hundred staff officers for training purposes and sell us military supplies, clothing and shoes to help outfit our army. For instance, there is a munition factory with 1,500,000 rounds of ammunition at Danzig which could be turned over to us. There is no doubt that we must have intervention to cope with Bolshevism."

DECISION RESERVED IN B. C. LIQUOR PROBE

Vancouver, B.C., Jan. 7.—Chief Justice Hunter today reserved judgment after hearing final arguments by opposing counsels as to the legality of the government inquiry into the illicit trafficking in liquor.

At this morning's session C. W. Craig, government counsel, made more headway in favor of his contention that the inquiry was legal. At the noon adjournment the outlook for a decision did not appear much in favor of a decision against the legality of the commission as it did last night.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach-headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.

LETTER FROM DICK HAMMOND

Liege, Belgium, Dec. 4, 1918.

Dear Jack—No doubt you will be surprised to hear from me. I often think of old Fernie so thought I would drop you a line. I am O.K. and in the best of health, which is not bad for an old codger like me after putting in twenty-four months straight in the front area without going on a sick parade. I came here with the 4th Army troops and remained with them until last June, when I was transferred to the anti-aircraft searchlight company as a staff sergeant on front area defence. I have seen some interesting times out here and covered some country, having been at the taking of Vimy Ridge, Ypres, the Amiens counter offensive, through to Boulon Wood with the Canadians; then with the Austrilians; from there back with the Canadians on the Arras front to here. I was at Lens front for ten months. Well, she has not been a bad old war after all, Jack, so I am not sorry for coming. I have met several Fernie boys, two of whom were sons of Mr. Dudley. The last I met in Mons. He knew me but I would not have known him as he was quite a kid when I left Fernie. Give my kind regards to Mrs. Wallace and old acquaintances. I intend dropping off at Fernie on my way home so will see you.

Wishing all the compliments of the season and hoping you are well.

Your old friend,
R. B. C. Hammond.

P.S.—I omitted to state that I will be on the Rhine Monday, so I will see it to a finish.

UNFORSEEN HARMONY

It will probably be found when the delegates from Allied nations meet at Paris that half the preliminary difficulties which have been haunting the correspondents have disappeared. The four nations which at the end of the war were bearing the burden of the conflict will have a controlling influence in the conference. They will also have a controlling influence in the early stages of any league or society that may be formed for the maintenance of peace and justice in the world. Their interests do not appear to be in conflict and they should be able by their influence to reconcile or arbitrate the troublesome questions that may arise among the new states. Many difficulties must be overcome later in working out details, but in the establishment of general principles the congress is likely to disappoint anxious people by unexpected agreements —Province.

CITY ELECTION IS VERY TAME AFFAIR

The following are the results of the civic nominations and elections held here yesterday:

Thos. Beck	106
J. L. Gates	105
S. Graham	102
E. Rutledge	102
Wm. Hunter	89
Wm. Robichaud	88
Also ran, A. Lees 86	M. Turnbull 76

Police Commissioner (term 2 years) Major Gerald G. Moffatt, acclamation.

School Trustees, A. Hancock, S. Herchmer and Wm. Lancaster, acclamation.

Unlike our usual civic contests the one this year was exceedingly tame and it may be said the lack of openly displayed interest was amazing. However the voters who numbered 180 appear to have chosen as strong a council as was possible from the candidates in the field. Everyone elected has had terms of service on the council varying from one year to several years and the ratepayers should profit by that experience during 1919.

THE RED CROSS CAMPAIGN

The Red Cross Drive has been proceeding all week with much vim and vigor on the part of the canvassers and despite difficulties which had to be contended with, very satisfactory progress has been made. The following are the names of the citizens who have contributed up to Thursday as reported to the secretary. ENGLAND VS. IRELAND

A large crowd gathered at the Curling rink on Tuesday evening to witness a game for a supper between rinks skipped by Teddy Mills and Jimmy Corbett. The rinks lined up as follows:

Teddy Mills, a lead man playing skip; Bob Sherwood another lead man; Benny Smith, a second man, and Jack McLaren, a skip.

Jimmy Corbett, a third man; Geo. Winters, a skip; John Carmichael, a skip for years, and Jimmy Marshall, at one time also a skip.

This line up looked like taking candy from a kid, but it turned out not to be so easy.

The game started sharp on time and was completed almost in record time. Teddy scored the first two ends which netted him two points. Corbett came back with 1 in the 3rd end. Then Teddy grabbed the next three ends, scoring a point on each end, and leaving the score when six ends had been played, 5—1 in favor of Teddy.

Then the boys began to yell:

Ireland was Ireland when England was a pup,
But England is a great big bull dog
when Teddy rolls them up.

Then Corbett grabbed 1 in the 7th end, and then something happened. Teddy's star Scotchman fell down the next two ends and Ireland got a four and a five end. Three ends to play and Teddy needed six to tie. He got one on the 10th, and one on the 11th and was 4 down coming home. Teddy's star player made a bonspiel shot and Teddy supplemented this with two draws almost to the button, and was lying four when Corbett went to throw the last rock. The rooters rooted and yelled in an endeavor to make Jimmy throw wild but did not succeed and the game ended with a score of 9-11 in his favor. Teddy got eight ends out of the 12 and Corbett four.

The two rinks then adjourned to the Northern for the supper, and all were loud in their praise of the excellent repast placed before them by this excellent establishment.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Mr. Editor—What do you think of Fernie? That makes a good start to ask you some more questions. But I will not be greedy and ask them all at once, so we will ask you more later on. But to stick to the question, What do I think of Fernie? Well, I think that it is as nice a place as any that I ever saw in all of this great Canada IF we could persuade the merchants to wake up and do a little more than they have done in the past to Boost and work hand in hand and forget their differences. Other little burgs have some sort of mercantile organizations who certainly are not hiding their light under a bushel. Why cannot we as merchants come together and do something? Did I hear some one tell me that we have a board of trade? Well, where is it and what have they done and what are they doing?

Now, Mr. Editor, will you print an invitation for the merchants to come together and have a little talk about forming a guild of some sort? We don't need to conflict with the board of trade. There are so many things that must be righter soon that can only be done by concerted action.

Will you, Mr. Merchant, start right now and forget what has been and come together and have a little talk? It will not hurt you and I am sure it will be of great benefit to you and Fernie as well.

My only excuse for taking this up is that I want to see this place put on the map and it is up to us to do it.

Are you game?

Justone O'Them.

HAS FIGURED IT OUT, THIS OSGOODE WIZARD

The following article taken from the Toronto Daily Star, refers to the father of A. C. Murray, coroner and rancher, at Natal, B.C.:

When Benjamin W. Murray, who has retired as accountant, but becomes consulting accountant of the Supreme Court of Ontario in his 85th year and is the oldest official of that venerable pile, Osgoode Hall, was cutting his teeth in auld Aberdeen, ye ken, his Scotch nurse, the seventh daughter of a seventh daughter, looked into the future and spake: "The bonny bairn will cut a figure in the big warld."

And so it was to be. He was to launch upon the world such fascinating figures, canny calculations, that an indolent universe, for easy reference, would keep his nifty numerals in a book: "Murray's Interest Tables."

It may not be true that Mr. Murray's treasured toy of infancy was a volume of the higher mathematics, but he entered the North of Scotland Bank when he was 15 and filled many positions in that institution. Then while still a mere lad he was sent to the Isle of Skye where he was accountant at $300 a year. However Mr. Murray notified the bank that he wanted an increase and not being satisfied with the increase granted he came to Canada in 1857 and was employed in the Central Bank at Hamilton, and only escaped the office of inspector because he could not come to terms. He was employed in Toronto and Stratford and came to Osgoode Hall in 1874, lang syne 44 years. He became accountant officially.

The K.C.'s and the judges were giants but good ones. Among the hostile giants was the interest ogre. Mr. Murray slew him. The task of this second Jack-the-giant-killer kept him busy for ten years but the job was a masterpiece when finished. His weapon, made by himself, was a book of 368 pages, each page bristling with 7,000 figures. With this ready-reckoner even a dub at figures can compute the interest on any sum for any period. Magic? Well, it's Murray's.

Mr. Murray has had a long life and robust health. What is the secret? When he was a child he trotted at his father's side in frequent strolls. Up in Skye he learned to smoke. He has walked, worked, smoked, fished ,read and reflected. He has helped others. He has laughed. He has seen the sun of life rise to its zenith. The sunset finds him the same calm, cheerful, philosophical professor of Dundreary whiskers, Scotch sense and a wee bit joke, not to mention his interest tables of might and mystery and a ten-year labor that rivals the labors of one Hercules.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Coroner Thomson journeyed to Elko on Monday in an automobile. We believe this is the longest season in history that this piece of road has remained open for motor traffic.

The Past Noble Grands of the Esther Rebekah Lodge will hold a nomination and election of officers at the Ingram Hall on next Thursday evening at 8 p.m. A full attendance is requested.

At the annual meeting of the curlers of the district, held at the Cranbrook Hotel on Wednesday night, A. C. Liphardt was elected president and Sherwood Herchmer was elected secretary for the coming year.

Coroner Thomson was called to Elko on Monday in connection with the sudden demise of Mrs. Harold Blakley. After holding an inquiry from which it developed that deceased had been stricken down by heart failure induced by acute influenza, the coroner decided an inquest was not necessary. The case was extremely pathetic as the husband is left with eight children ranging from three to seventeen years of age, three of whom were down with the flu and the oldest boy just recovering from a severe attack. Mrs. Blakley, according to medical evidence, and also that of the children had not complained of being ill until Sunday when she said she felt poorly. On Monday morning she got up as usual about seven o'clock, but laid down an hour later and death came without the children, who were all present, noticing it until eleven o'clock. Mr. Blakley was absent from Elko, he being employed at one of the Yahk camps. He was promptly notified and returned to Elko Monday evening. The family have only resided in Elko since early in November, coming from Macleod, Alta.

THE MENACE IN EUROPE

Among recent reports is one that the Allies have decided against any further intervention in Russia. Another has it that the Allied troops at present there are to be withdrawn. It is quite possible such decisions may have been reached and if they have it is certain the prospects of a League of Nations really enforcing peace will go a-glimmering. Russia is at war with Poland, with Esthonia and with the Ukraine. It is true all these territories belonged to the od Russian Empire but if the Allies withdraw their troops from Russian soil it will be an admission that the Polish question, and all those affecting self-determination in Finland, Esthonia, Livonia, Courland and the Ukraine, will remain unsolved. The Bolsheviki have only to send their troops into those territories and bring them under the aegis of the government at Moscow.

If the Bolsheviki government is allowed to follow its own devices and pursue its campaign of terrorism and murder it will speedily be in a position to come to the aid of the Spartacus followers in Germany, who, at the present moment, are fighting for authority in Berlin. The German capital is an armed camp with rival factions in conflict. Any success on the part of the Spartacans, who are the Bolsheviki of Germany would encourage the government at Moscow to lend them aid to maintain a terrorist dictatorship in power. The political decision in Germany is a matter of supreme interest to the Allied Powers, for upon it hinges whether or not it will be possible to extract any indemnities from Germany for the nations she has despoiled. If Germany repeats the history of industrial stagnation and social disruption that is being enacted in Russia the allies can only get reparation for Belgium and France by occupying her territory; in fact they would have to go to Berlin. That is what will happen if a self-constituted dictatorship is set up at the German capital composed of "anarchistic-communalistic visionaries" as Maxim Gorky has described the Bolsheviki.

It is impossible to believe the Allies are going to desert Russia in her present plight. The effects of such a desertion would be felt for decades to come. Poland will continue to fight. The Czecho-Slavoks will not lightly lay down their arms. The government of Siberia will remain in constant conflict with the Red Guard hordes. Finland and the Baltic provinces are not going to yield up their new found freedom without a struggle. The Ukraine—the granary of Europe—will fall into the hands of those whose purpose is to destroy instead of create. If the Allies decide to leave Russia to her fate—and leaving Russia eventually means leaving Germany, too—then they are condoning the growth in Europe of a horror greater even than that of military autocracy. Europe will have been relieved of the menace of militarism to become the prey of the chaaotic, topsy-turvy activities of the soviets. No League of Nations will be possible while intercine strife is in progress over the greater part of Europe. No peace can be signed with nations whose governments do not represent popular opinion, for one of the peace principles is to be self-determination. An independent Poland, another of the peace principles, will be impossible unless the Allies set that country free.

A League of Nations, the ideal that is set before the Peace Conference, and the theme it is desirable should dominate the entire sessions, may be created, but its power will be extremely doubtful unless it is built up on the foundation of a Europe at peace. Until Russia's industrial organization is restored; until her people have food, until the menace of wholesale famine is abolished from the land there will be Bolshevism. If Germany is threatened with starvation, Bolshevism will gain ground there. It may sweep through all Central Europe and necessitate a standing army on the Rhine for years to come. Nations who refuse to help themselves and imperil all humanity by embarking on campaigns of blood lust, must be helped. Bolshevism is the worst menace the world has ever faced. It is not Socialism in any sense of the word. Maxim Gorky, one of Russia's ablest writers and now a henchman of the Lenine government, in writing recently of Lenine, Trotzky and their followers said: "No! I do not recognize the unmistakable signs of the social revolution in this association of zoological instincts. It is a combination of the feelings of our lower selves, without Socialism, without the spirit of Socialism, without the psychology of Socialism."

The German doctine of militarism was never in any great danger of spreading further than to members of the German race. Bolshevism has emissaries everywhere seeking to undermine society and nowhere does it work with greater zeal than among the free democracies of the world. Those in Great Britain who were staunchest in their advocacy of entering into negotiations with the crime-stained government of Moscow sustained a crushing defeat in the recent election. It would be the same everywhere among the British peoples but even that fact does not obliterate the menace of the propaganda which has been launched all round the world. Soviet rule in Russia is undermining and destroying the working class of Russia, as Maxim Gorky, an eyewitness of the process, says: "They are setting up formidable towers of fearful and senseless complications that will stand in the path of the working class," he writes. It is true Maxim Gorky is now an employee of the Bolsheviki. He has become so for the purpose of self-protection. Had he continued his opposition to the Leninite government he would have shared the fate of tens of thousands of others who have braved the authority of the machine gun and bayonet. The conditions, not only in Russia, but throughout Central Europe, are such that it would be the part of wisdom to make progress slowly in the Peace Conference, for there is all too great danger that when the time comes there will be no responsible governments with whom to sign peace, and no means of enforcing its decrees save by military occupation.—Colonist.

MARRYING THE PRINCE OF WALES

Having disposed of the elections and in the interval before light and leading will be required for the Peace Conference, a section of the London Press is devoting itself to the matrimonial interests of the Prince of Wales. This it is understood is a free service and it is to be hoped the young Prince accepts it in the gracious way that it is tendered. That is, perhaps, too much to expect in view of the unaccountable prejudice which young persons among English speaking peoples have to taking advice upon this matter.

Yolande of Italy, it appears, has been tried and found wanting, since she belongs to the Roman Catholic communion. A vast tragedy has wiped out the Russian royal family, and Princess Helena of Greece is not looked on favorably owing to some activities of her Mamma, which is not the first time a young lady has had her prospects blighted by a strenuous parent. The Press, noting at this point the dearth of Royal eligibles, got anxious quite after the manner of a family council; then the Princess Elizabeth of Roumania was remembered.

Democracy being in the air, however, it was noted that the idea of the royal caste marrying within itself is no part of English law and forms no written part of any continental constitution. And some members of our neighboring nation have, with their customary modesty, suggested that if the Prince is really anxious to get the real article in the wife line he can "have one of their fine daughters."

There is of course Great Britain and the Britain beyond the seas, and surely it is not necessary for Canadians to have to point out what ought to be obvious. There remains the extreme suggestion that democracy might allow itself so to expand as to confer its privileges upon royalty and in doing so allow the Prince of Wales to choose his own life partner, subject only to the consent of the party of the second part. It is often remarked, albeit superficially, that people marry each other and not their respective families. So with heirs to thrones, they and their brides should marry each other and not each other's nations. Therefore it will be expected that the Prince of Wales will be as careful and as happy in his choice as have his forbears in choosing wives, to whom "Saxon or Norman or Dane" could and did extend enthusiastic welcome.

The young gentleman in question has shown himself so far equal to the many difficult situations which make tact more essential to a monarch than his crown. This will stand him in good stead now in warding off the excellent advice which his millions of well wishers have ready to confer on him, the visible supply not having been reduced by using it on themselves. — Manitoba Free Press.

How to Remove Pains Caused by Kidney Trouble

It may be news to you, but it is history to thousands of persons, who have suffered from Backache, Painful Urination, Swollen Joints, Constant Headaches, etc., that Gin Pills remedy Kidney and Bladder troubles by first removing the cause.

The cause of all Kidney diseases such as Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, etc., is congested Kidneys. Kidneys that fail to perform their function of filtering the poisons and impurities from the blood. These poisons remaining in the system are the direct cause of a chain of dreaded diseases.

If you've never heard of Gin Pills before ask any of your friends about them. Gin Pills have been on the market for years; they are the old reliable remedy for Backache, etc. If you suffer from any Kidney or Bladder afflictions try Gin Pills.

Should you not care to buy them as an experiment, a sample box will be sent to you on request.

Gin Pills contain the beneficial ingredient of Gin without the slightest trace of alcohol. For many years bottled Gin was considered the ready remedy for Kidney or Bladder troubles. Scientific research proved, however, that the reason for this was due purely to the extract of Juniper it contained and nothing else. From hundreds of letters received by us we are convinced that all any sufferer of Kidney or Bladder trouble needs to do is try Gin Pills—and they will find relief at once.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

"THE WEST AND FREE TRADE"

A strong appeal for the maintenance of national unity in Canada is made, under the caption quoted, by the Ottawa Citizen. It says, a little inaccurately perhaps that "the West desires free trade and desires it at once." It apparently approves the demand in principle on the ground that "free trade and it concomitant, taxation of land values, is the only fiscal policy which can equalize opportunity as between individuals, and develop the true industrial character and the genuine national aspirations of the Dominion." It then urges the necessity for avoiding a political struggle on the fiscal question and says:

"A little over a year ago the portion of the Dominion now most insistent for a change of far-reaching importance in our fiscal system, and one which would necessitate a complete readjustment of many industrial and other enterprises, voluntarily put aside its just claims for legislative reforms for the sake of national unity. It put aside these claims so emphatically as to give rise to the hope that so long as the war endured sectional aspiration would be held in abeyance. We are confident that the western advocates of free trade, as well as the Ontario farmers who have adopted an aggressive attitude in the same relation, will agree, on reflection, that awe are not yet out of the war woods. The cessation of actual hostilities has been followed by a period of the greatest gravity as regards the industrial, economic and national future of most of the belligerent peoples, and the close inter-relation of the Allied nations has made the problems of one the problems of all, in more or less degree. Now more than ever before do we require the co-operation and mutual forbearance of all sections of the country. Just as our immediate task a year ago was to win the war, our job now is to save what the war has won."

With this plea sensible people in East and West alike will have much sympathy. But is the matter quite as the Citizen imagines it to be? Is it merely a question of the West holding back demands? Is it not rather an essential of reconstruction itself that some of the demands of the West—and no one is demanding out and out Free Trade "at once"—should be satisfied?

The basis of Union was provided, or made attainable, by the fact that war conditions had resulted in the establishment of a large measure of reciprocity with the United States. The opposition to the perpetuation possible will not arise in the West; of the conditions which made Union but pressure on the government to abrogate some of these "war measures" is already being exerted by Eastern interests.

Two other main factors enter into the consideration. The first is that, while war measures are clearly temporary, measures of reconstruction must have a close relationship to the permanent bases of industry and commerce. The other is the immediate necessity for largely increased national revenues; and this involves the whole question of direct and indirect taxation. If the incidence of taxation has been, by comparison, a negligible consideration in Canada in the past it cannot be so in the future. We have numbers of soldiers' widows and dependents and of soldier-pensioners whose interests preclude the maintenance of heavy taxes on consumption.

Reluctantly it must be concluded that national unity cannot be attained merely by the west foregoing an almost mythical demand for immediate free trade. Coalition ought to be maintained during the period of reconstruction. National unity ought to be possible in the formulation of measures placing the manufactures, the agriculture, the transportation and the development of the country on a foundation which will ensure their prosperity. Agreement ought to be possible on a system of taxation which will inflict the minimum of hardship and inequality while securing a revenue adequate to the heavy demands which will immediately begin to be made upon it.

Coalition can be continued in the spirit of co-operative effort and self-sacrificing forbearance in the discovery and application of the principles which will ensure fair treatment of all the interests involved. Some of these are assumed to be in conflict; frank discussion and genuine disinterestedness will enable them to be recognized as complementary, as they really are, instead of as antagonistic. The regulations and control set up to meet actual war conditions are entirely unsuited to the period of "reconstruction" and to the permanent activities of peace. As these are removed the real test of our national unity will come; the ability of the Canadian people to reach those practical compromises by which alone progress can be rapid and frictionless, will be guaged. The failure to coalesce in the reconstruction of our national life will result from the selfish pursuit of sectional interests and the deliberate refusal to look at both sides of the questions arising.

National agreement upon the conditions under which industry and commerce must be resumed in peace and in regard to finance and taxation is highly desirable. Unity is attainable only by a genuine coalition which takes account of facts and does not, ostrich-like, imagine them non-existent because it has blinded itself to them.—Manitoba Free Press.

IMPATIENT SOLDIERS

British soldiers who wish to get out of uniform and back to their civil activities are giving the government some trouble. Much allowance will be made for their impatience. They did not refuse duty so long as their place was in the midst of hardship and danger. While they knew there was fighting to do and death to face they did not demand release. The war is supposed to be over and those who are themselves safe in England demand quick discharge. They do not seem to appreciate the difficulty of demobilizing several million men all at once or take seriously the possibility that the armistice may not end the war.

PLACING THE RETURNED MEN

In the intention to demobilize the Canadian armies so as best to fulfil the reconstruction ideas of the repatriation organizations, it would seem that the government will make most headway through the department of civil re-establishment, and the department of labor. Efforts are also being made by the department of labor to secure co-operation with the provincial governments in the organization of a chain of employment offices across the country.

The minister of the interior is in charge of the soldiers' settlement board which is created to assist in the establishing of returned men on the land under fair living conditions. The government will lend $2500 to any qualified returned man for the purpose of acquiring land, discharging encumbrances, erecting buildings and securing the necessary live stosk, machinery and equipment.

There are several branches of work which were under the scope of the Lands Settlement Board, such as branches for agricultural training, for the granting of loans, for the supply of equipment, and there is a lands branch which is working out the best ways for the prospective settlers to purchase the land they deserve—good agricultural land near the railways. The lands branch will also cover such undertakings as the erection of buildings and the securing of equipment and livestock out of the $2500 loan at 5 per cent by the government.

The sentiment which is inspiring the repatriation committee is admirably expressed in the following words by the director, Mr. H. J. Daly. In a New Year's message he says:

"The fight is over,—yes, but not the war. The war will be over when those who went in Canada's name to fight the battles of democracy, are so re-established in the land of their birth, or of adoption, as to be able to enjoy the fruits of democracy, and when the damage wrought to humanity by the war has been repaired to the utmost of human capacity."

It is in this spirit that the repatriation committee are to help the reurned man, and they appeal for a continuance of the assistance of the "religious, social, fraternal, business, educational and all other classes of organizations." That such help will be forthcoming to supplement the government activities there is little reason to doubt, the task of securing employment for our returned men under worthy working conditions being one that will commend itself to every loyal Canadian .— Manitoba Free Press.

THE DISTRICT BONSPIEL

The District Bonspiel which was held at Cranbrook this year, opened on Monday morning with 22 rinks present. Eight of these came from Fernie, eight from Cranbrook, two from Lethbridge, two from Carmangay, one from Macleod and one from Claresholm. The ice was rather soft owing to the mild weather, but even this drawback did not prevent the Fernie rinks from making a splendid showing in the bonspiel, as two of the five cups will come here, the Walker and the Magrath. The finals in these two competitions will be played off in Fernie as soon as the weather permits as the continued bad weather has made it impossible to play them off at Cranbrook.

DANGER LURKS IN EVERY ONE OF US

We Are As Full of Deadly Poisons As A Germ Laboratory.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

THE STEEL INDUSTRY

The report of Dr. Alfred Stansfield on the feasibility of the electric smelting of iron ores in the Province, which has been submitted to William Sloan, the Minister of Mines, is an exhaustive document which we believe will remain the authority on the subject for many years to come. Dr. Stansfield, as a result of his findings, advocates the development of one or more of the best iron ore deposits and complete tests of the ore. He urges the reserve of a suitable water power for future development; the establishment of a plant for the economic production of charcoal from mill waste, and an investigation of the new process for the production of electric pig iron. If the latter is found satisfactory he considers British Columbia should begin immediately to produce pig iron, and purchase water power for this purpose.

The report holds out good prospects for the establishment of the industry and the next thing to be considered is what steps can be taken. In many respects Dr. Stansfield's report is a confirmation of what was known, but, nevertheless, it will serve to put the hall mark of approval on the feasibility of starting up the industry in British Columbia. Both the Federal and Provincial governments are willing to assist in the venture, but it does not appear they have gone far enough to lead to the investment of the necessary capital. Of course where private capital is concerned the commercial side of the industry will carry all the weight, and, as Dr. Stansfield states, it is difficult to reach conclusions regarding this in view of the abnormal prices of products and supplies and the cost and uncertainty of labor. To this extent we are no further advanced, unless the provincial government, acting on the report, is able to offer additional inducements to those already available. What Mr. Sloan may have to say on the subject during the coming session of the legislature will be awaited with interest. He made a wise move in selecting Dr. Stansfield, who deserves the thanks of the province for the valuable report he has submitted. It is sincerely to be hoped the government will not let the question rest where it is, but will be prepared to use all its influence to bring about the investment of the capital necessary to start such a basic industry.—Colonist.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

The Returned Soldiers dance on Wednesday evening was a decided success in every way except financially, the attendance being somewhat slim. The Club is in need of funds and it was too bad that the public did not patronize the dance more liberally, as this is about the only means they have of raising funds.

About thirty of Fernie's young people held a sleigh drive Tuesday evening, leaving early and proceeding to Morrissey, where the hotel was taken by storm. The natural result was a light lunch and a dance afterwards, which was enjoyed by all present. Outside of one or two little incidents which occurred on the road down the drive as a whole was a most enjoyable event.

Mrs. Wm. Potter, wife of Wm. Potter, the well known aggressive member of Gladstone Local Union, was suddenly called by the grim reaper shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon. The sudden and unexpected visitation as well as the circumstances surrounding Mrs. Potter's untimely demise necessitated Coroner Thomson being called. He investigated the case and ordered a postmortem examination. This was performed by Dr. Garner when the cause of death was found to be a hemorrage of the lungs hastened through a weakened condition on account of long standing ailment. The funeral will be held from the family residence, West Fernie, on Sunday, at 2:30 p.m., proceeding to the Church of England, where services will commence at 3 p.m.

It is reported that two casks of Scottish liquor were purloined from a cache in the Annex this week, much to the chagrin of the parties to whom it belonged.

J. W. Quinney, for many years a resident of this city, spent several days in the city this week in the capacity of official auditor for District 18, U. M. W. of A. and The District Ledger, the official organ of the miner's organization.

The partnership registration at Vancouver, of the firm of Peter Lund & Co., show the following names: Peter Lund, Harold Darling, Charles Henderson Skinner. Mr. Skinner was manager of the Western Canada Wholesale here for some years.

Mike Zarka last Friday appeared in the police court on a charge of assault for which he drew a fine of $25 and $1 costs, $10 for damage to the clothing of the victim of his wrath and in order that he may have ample time to cool off, he was sentenced to 20 day's in jail.

Mr. Brisno, of C. A. Dunham & Co., was in the city last week inspecting the Fernie Hotel heating plant which was installed by A. E. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson has since received a letter of congratulation from the firm for the thorough and workmanlike manner in which the plant was installed.

Owing to the ice being in soft condition the hockey game between Fernie and Coleman, scheduled for the 15th, had to be postponed. The game, which will be played at a later date, should be very interesting as our boys were defeated at Coleman on New Year's day and this is the return match.

Died—on Sunday, January 12th at the family residence, West Fernie, Edwin Griffiths, aged 29 years and 7 months, son of William Griffiths. Deceased has been suffering from ill health for some time. The funeral was held this afternoon from Thomson's Undertaking Parlors to Christ Church.

C. L. Allan, of the Calgary branch of the Imperial Bank of Canada, arrived in the city on Wednesday to take the position of accountant in the local branch. Mr. Allan is a veteran of the great war, having enlisted in Calgary in 1915, and being invalided home in 1917.

GERMAN PROPAGANDA IS VERY SUBTLE

Is Germany, by flattering Uncle Sam, endeavoring to save itself from the righteous wrath of the other allied nations for the crimes of 1915? There have been indications of such an attempt ever since the armistice was signed. This attitude of the Huns seems to be borne out by facts revealed in a dispatch from Coblenz by Edwin L. James, an American correspondent with the American army of occupation. He says:

"America is subject to the most earnest and determined propaganda ever undertaken by Germany. America is being used as an alibi by the German army and upon what America will and will not do, the present-hour politicians of Germany are making their strongest bet. The effect of this propaganda has been the reception of Americans along the Rhine not as conquering enemies, but as friends. Not only that, but the Americans are told that they won the war and are being told on all sides that America is a merciful nation, which does not believe in indemnities or annexations or in crushing Germany. And there you have the situation in a nutshell. German politicians are playing America as a great friend at the peace conference, betting on President Wilson to save them from the righteous wrath of England and France.

At the first blush one might easily say that the cordial treatment of Americans in Coblenz was due to the fact that the American army is moderate in its regulations and restrictions upon the population, while the French and British and Belgian armies are imposing a somewhat more rigorous treatment. But I take no stock in that believing that no matter what restrictions the Americans imposed the German attitude would be none the less fawning.

As an American correspondent, I have been treated with so much solicitation by the residents that it now comes to the point where one feels it being rubbed in. It sickens one. Here this gay and festive and sleek and prosperous city parades its glory and beauty and arrogance. There is no regret at starting the war, there is only regret at losing it.

Back in Treves they told us the Americans won the war. But Treves somehow or other was sullen. Now Coblenz is different, and here to be praised as the greatest people in the world, to be fawned upon, makes the Americans feel that they are being classed with the category well described by that expressive Yankee word "suckers."

LATEST STORY OF CZAR'S ASSASSINATION

Is the ex-Czar living or dead? Some months ago there was published the account of a priest who claimed to have attended him in his last hours and to have witnessed his murder. Later on the news columns bore tidings that somebody else had reported Nicholas to be alive and well. Now comes a story from Carl W. Ackerman to the New York Times from Ekaterinburg, where the execution is supposed to have taken place, to the effect that the ex-Czar was certainly killed. His authority is the diary of Parfen Alexievitch Dominin, who is said to have served Nicholas as major domo for many years. Parfen accompanied his master into exile, and while he does not profess to have been an eye-witness to the execution he offers proof enough of it if his statement is to be accepted. This column is neutral with regard to the fate of the ex-Czar, and merely hopes that he may be alive, but while not accepting implicitly any particular report of his death, the probabilities point to him having been assassinated. How could he have survived the storms that have swept Russia in the past year or more? His murder was to have been expected. His survival would be a wonder.

The diary of Parfen records that in July last airplanes began to fly over Ekaterinburg dropping bombs. They were supposed to have been despatched by the Czecho-Slovaks, who were reconnoitering the city with a view of attacking it. One day the Czar returned from the short walk that his jailers permitted him, threw himself on the bed and seemed about to go to sleep without undressing. His servant asked to be permitted to take off his clothes, but the Czar said: "Don't trouble, old man; I feel it in my heart that I shall live only a short time." He said that he had news to the effect that a special council of the Ural District Soviet of Workingmen, Cossacks and Red Guards Army Deputies was even then in session and considering his fate. Nicholas had little doubt that the verdict would be "thumbs down." On July 15 there appeared suddenly a soldier who announced that "Citizen Nicholas Roman off" was to accompany him immediately to learn his fate.

The Czar asked, "Are you leading me to be shot?" to which the conductor replied that nothing would happen Nicholas until his death, which may or may not have raised a weight from his mind. An escort of soldiers, Letts, formed round him and he was marched away. He did not return for some time, says Parfen, and then he seemed exhausted. He begged for a drink of water and said: "They have informed me that I am to be shot in three hours." It appears that what Nicholas had attended was not a trial, but a sentence, the trial having been held some time before. At this trial, where of course no word on behalf of the deposed monarch was heard, it was decided that if Nicholas was, if not the centre, at least the object of a counter revolutionary plot which aimed to restore him to the throne. His Bolshevik judges had discovered or pretended to have discovered that an effort was being made to join all non-Soviet elements of the community for the purpose, first, of rescuing the czar, and putting down Belshevism, and then forming a new front to resume the war against Germany. At the head of this plot stood the Czar's old personal friend General Dogert, and it was said that there had been communication between the two men, the General telling his former master to be of good cheer as his day of liberation was at hand.

Shortly after the Czar had returned for the last time to his quarters he was permitted to see his wife and his son. The former was prostrated. She fainted and a doctor was summoned but the brutish guards would not permit him to attend her, saying that he would have plenty of time later. She recovered, however, and threw herself on her knees before the soldiers praying that they would have mercy on Nicholas, to which they replied that mercy was beyond their power. Her pleadings greatly unnerved Nicholas who said to her more than once, "Be quiet, for Christ's sake, Alice," making the sign of the cross over her. He then bade her farewell and kissed his son, and finally the author of the diary, whom he implored not to desert his family. Later on it appears that Nicholas had been permitted to say good-bye only to the three alone, though it is inferred that his daughters were nearby.

Parfen says that Nicholas was taken away alone, and died without benefit of clergy before the rifles of twenty Red Guards. The former Czarina and her son were hurried off by motor car, nobody knows where. The old servant himself was given a few hours' notice to disappear from the neighborhood of Ekaterinburg. He reports that the guards were very strict with Nicholas during his imprisonment. He was not permitted to see newspapers, and only at intervals could he talk with his wife. The servants were searched when they entered or left his quarters in that no communications with the outside world might be held, and the letters he wrote were censored. He was permitted, however, to arrange his affairs and prepare his papers and documents but what became of them is not known. As a footnote to his narrative Parfen says that according to a newspaper with an unpronounceable name, a tumulus was found near Ekaterinburg which contained metal articles identified as belonging to the various members of the Czar's family. He draws the conclusion that not only the Czar but his wife, his son and his daughters, were all murdered.

A LITTLE LATE

(From the New York Times)

The report that one of the objects of the visit which Count Romanones, the Spanish premier, is now making to Paris is the recovery of Gibraltar from England most probably represents hope rather than expectation; for no man should know the difficulties in the way better than Romanones. He has sympathized with the Allies during the war, as have perhaps the majority of the Spanish people; but the pro-German elements were so strong that the nation never departed from a neutrality which veered a little from one side to the other according to the fortunes of battle.

Romanones knows that it was the German Empire, not the British Empire, which forced the world to take up arms against its aggression; he knows it was the German Empire which was beaten, and that the Peace Conference is not going into the business of breaking up the British Empire as if it were a trust whose mere size had brought it into disfavor. Moreover, he knows that the Spanish government, during the long period when things were going more or less prosperously for Germany, tolerated German activities of a rather dubious character; that Spain never did anything for the Allies which calls upon them to weaken one of their own number for her benefit. This thing of flying to the rescue of the winners has been rather overdone of late.

Romanones no doubt has meant well all along, and so has King Alfonso. When the King lately wrote to President Poncaire that he wished he could have done more "to relieve during the war the pain so heroically suffered by the noble French nation," he was no doubt speaking the simple truth, so far as he himself is concerned. But he chose a painfully inappropriate time to say it. There were times during the war when Alfonso's people could have done a great deal to relieve the pain of France, by going into the war to back her up; but the pro-German element kept them out. Among nations no less than among individuals the principal division today is between those who fought and those who did not, and, rightly or wrongly, mitigating circumstances count for little in either case.

SERIOUS SHORTAGE OF COAL ORDERS

"Winnipeg is full up with hard coal from the States. There's as much there as ever."

It doesn't look as if Winnipeg were going to suffer a coal famine this winter or stand in much need of more Alberta coal in the face of the above statement of a local coal operator to the Lethbridge Herald. The result is that Alberta coal will have a hard fight for it in the Winnipeg market, while in the Saskatchewan market hard coal is once more encroaching on the market which, during the past 18 months, has been pretty well controlled by Alberta coal.

"This strawberry weather isn't making the coal business any better either," continued the operator, as he hinted at slack times.

One of the interesting questions in connection with the coal business just now is what would happen the cost of living bonus of the miners if shortage of orders caused the mines to shut down for half time or more. At the present time the miners are drawing 94 cents a day as cost of living bonus, which in a month of 26 working days amounts to $24.44. Half time work in the mines would mean a loss of $12 a month each to the miners of the district. That is why the scale committee at the coming miners' convention will bring in a recommendation that the new schedule be signed only if it makes the wages under the new agreement equal to the present wages plus the bonus of 94 cents per day.—Lethbridge Herald

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

BELGIUM MAYOR ADDRESSES 54th BATTALION

The following was the address delivered by the Mayor of La Bouverie, Belgium, at a public reception in the Town Hall of that city in honor of the 54th, (Kootenay) Canadian Battalion, November 18th, 1918.

To Col. A. B. Carey, D. S. O., Officers and Soldiers of Canada, Ladies and Gentlemen:—

Detained by military duties, the commanding officer of the 54th Battalion, to his great regret was unable to take part in the impromptu demonstrations planned by our people yesterday and in which his gallant regiment took part, in honor of the brave Canadian troops quartered in our district for a few days.

Today the colonel is not only able, but glad to be present at this function, which will serve to establish in a tangible way in our community the bonds of common sympathy, nay, more, of a mutual friendship which cannot fail to grow from more to more between the Belgian and Canadian peoples.

May I be permitted to say once more how great is our admiration for and how deep our gratitude to those who saved our dear country.

For four years and three months we endured the brutality and injustice of a militarism, which knew no restraint. We experienced every kind of extortion, every evil of rule of force cruelly and shamelessly administered. But at last, on the 9th of November, it was possible once more to breathe the pure air of liberty. The Canadian army coming to our district for the first time brought us the deliverance so long and so eagerly expected.

We have long been downcast and depressed, but now our hearts are full of joy and gladness.

Col. Carey, the inhabitants of La Bouverie have welcomed with great joy the Canadian troops. It is our aim to make their stay in our town as pleasant as possible.

We hope that your soldiers may find in our country and by our firesides a little of the joys they have given up in their land and in their homes over yonder for the sacred task of defending right and justice.

Honor to the brave Canadian troops. Honor to the officers who have led them to victory. All honor to the heroes who have saved our nation and and have restored to us independence. —Trail News.

EMPRESS OF ASIA MAKING GOOD TIME

Vancouver, Jan. 20.—The divisional naval transport service offices here believe that the Empress of Asia will arrive sooner than expected.

The ship is due here on Friday, but is apparently making such good time that she will be ahead of that schedule.

The Asia was spoken off San Pedro, Cal., at 6 o'clock this morning and should be here on Thursday under ordinary conditions.

TO LOOK AFTER RETURNED MEN

In the cosy rooms of the Returned Soldiers' Club last evening one of the most successful gatherings of prominent representative citizens was held. The occasion was the organization of the local group whose duty it will be to formulate ways and means of assisting in the problem of returned soldiers civil re-establishment as this problem affects this immediate district, and to effectively carry out such matured plans.

A. B. Trites acted as temporary chairman and F. Warwick, secretary. The local body was formally organized under the name of the "Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction" with the following officers in charge:

President—A. G. Bonnallie.
1st Vice-President—Ronald Hewat.
2nd Vice-President — Charles Edwards.
Secretary—A. Watson.
Executive Committee—Dr. Bonnell, A. I. Fisher, R. M. Young, E. K. Stewart, Mr. Allen, Thos. Prentice, G. G. Moffatt, Harry Martin, Thos. Uphill, A. B. Trites, E. Heaphy, Alan Graham, Jas. McLean, F. Warwick, F. G. Perry, with two members each to be appointed on said committee by the I.O.D.E. and Navy League respectively.

The minutes of the former meeting were adopted as read and correspondence received was regularly filed.

Chairman Trites then called upon W. J. Claridge, who is federal demobilization representative of Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment for East Kootenay. Mr. Claridge outlined the nature of his duties, which at present are confined to making an industrial survey of his territory from Creston on the west to Crow's Nest on the east. Every employer of labor is required to unreservedly furnish the department with accurate information concerning the employment and distribution of labor under his jurisdiction. Upon returned men arriving back home there will be two distinct classes to be dealt with; those who are invalided and those physically fit. Accurate information as to former occupation and physial fitness will be compiled by the authoritis from which it is expected to ascertain what each man will be comptent to do upon resuming civil life. Ample provision for those partially or totally disabled has been made by the authorities and for those desirous of entering certain occupations. In order to properly fit them for such the government will give them vocational training, and while undergoing this training they will receive vocational pay, and in the case of the married man, separation allowance in addition. By this means it is hoped to absorb each man back into civil life upon the basis that he becomes an economic factor to the country. Employment bureaus are being established countrywide for the purpose of collecting data and from these may be ascertained just what employment is available in all cases of which returned men will be given preference.

A. I. Fisher during a lengthy address dealt particularly with the economic phase of the problem, emphasizing that in order to stabilize the problem of unemployed that the controlling factor was the generous enlistment of capital to develop industries. Capital was required to develop the resources of this province and in this there was a wide field. He cited the proposed steel industry at the coast, the coke oven bi-product project here, and a branch of the fisheries industry, all of which were dormant for want of capital. The same applied in connection with the Land Settlement scheme; even when the government was desirous of utilizing lands in this vicinity they were faced with the financial problem — they must have money to acquire these lands.

Messrs. Bonallie and Watson were in turn called upon by the chair, following Mr. Fisher's remarks as to the probability of obtaining capital for the development of industry. The former was of the opinion that a large number of pre-war industries had remained inactive during the period of the war and these undoubtedly would now be revived. Mr. Watson stated he thought the apprehension expressed as to anticipated conditions was more imagined than real. He pointed out that during the period of the war wealth both in Great Britain and the United States had increased enormously, as illustrated by large increase in volume of savings bank deposits, and that eventually there must be an outlet for this wealth. This he contended would be through the development of legitimate industries, for which he was firmly convinced there would be ample capital available for the promotion of same.

W. R. Wilson intimated that the operators in the coal mining industry was now subject to the supervision of the Director of Coal Operations, but in so far as he was able he would fulfil his promise made to the boys who had departed to the war that upon their return their jobs were open to them.

Dr. Bonnell dealt with the relative activities on the part of the Dominion government with the returned soldier problem. The federal government was co-operating with the provincial administrations in this connection and employment bureaus were being established with the idea that every returned man will have a place of suitable employment. The environment of the soldier while on active service had so transformed him that his re-establishment in civil life must be gradual and not sudden or abrupt. With this in view the system of post-discharge pay would, according to the length of service, give the returned man from three to six months full pay and allowances, during which period he could either work or not according to his personal inclination, and at the expiration of that period it was presumed he would be re-educated to the form of civil life and quite happy to adopt it. Dr. Bonnell, however, issued a warning to the employer that he must be lenient with these men and endeavor to assist them in their re-transformation to align themselves with their former mode of life. The Doctor was of the opinion that public works, federal and provincial, which had been suspended, would now be undertaken and thus large numbers would be employed. He stated that he would be only too willing on behalf of the committee to present any proposals along this line to members of the cabinet, but such proposals he insisted must be concrete in form and substantially practicable, otherwise it was very difficult to interest any government in the promotion of same.

Harry Martin, Secretary of the Miners Union, asked if he had anything to suggest, stated he was present only in the capacity of a representative of the miners to report to them what the committee intended to do. Dealing wih the economic problem suggested by Mr. Fisher, he contended if all natural resources of all the provinces were devloped at the same time, he felt, through over-production the matter would revert to identically the same condition which Mr. Fisher desired to avoid, namely that of unemployment. The only means, therefore, that he could see by which this could be averted would be the nationalization of all industries and shorter working hours.

At the conclusion of the election of officers the question of providing a suitable memorial for those from this district who made the supreme sacrifice, was left in the hands of the executive committee, who will report later. However, during this discussion W. R. Wilson expressed himself as thoroughly in accord with the undertaking and stated his company would provide the land necessary and in addition he personally would assume responsibility for contributing $1,000. towards the same.

The meeting adjourned at 11.30.

DELIBERATE FALSIFICATION

In this week's edition of the District Ledger the editor in a very misleading article on the exportation of coal to the United States endeavors to show the vast increase in the price the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. is receiving for its coal over the price of 1917. He says that coal in 1917 brought less than $2.25 per ton and in 1918 some $3.80, and deduces from this that the men of Fernie and Michel should look forward to a substantial increase in wages in the new agreement. Whether the men are entitled to an increase or not is a question which will no doubt be arranged by the government, but the deliberate attempt of the editor of the Ledger to create a false impression in the minds of the miners and thus start a feeling of unrest again cannot be overlooked. At no time during 1917 did the Great Northern receive a pound of coal for $2.25 per ton from the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., and the average paid by that concern during that year was $3.50. These figures are authentic and can be verified by anyone interested enough to inquire at the American Consular Office. That $2.25 coal came from the Corbin Collieries, where it is mined with a steam shovel and can be produced at a very low figure, and is not purchased by the G. N. Railway, but the Ledger deliberately tries to convince the miner that the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. sold their product to the Great Northern concern for $2.25 in 1917 and $3.80 in 1918, and that on this ground the men must be entitled to a further increase.

The actual figures of exportation from this district for 1917 were 341,518 tons, the average value of which was $3.50 per ton; and for 1918, 507,229 tons, average value $3.80 per ton.

Anything to start trouble.

Notwithstanding publicity given in the press to circular letters and instructions from Canadian Red Cross headquarters, there seems still a doubt in the mind of the public as to the present requirements. An urgent cabled request from Col. Blaylock, chief commissioner overseas of the Canadian Red Cross earnestly soliciting the co-operation of the I. O. D. E. with the Red Cross in supplying the immediate need of garments for the repatriated refugees, has been sent to all Chapters doing Red Cross work; also patterns and samples of this necessary work. Mt. Fernie Chapter has taken up the work and the garments are cut and ready for distribution to those who wish to help in this work either in their own homes or at the Red Cross rooms.

JIM NORGROVE'S SUSPENSION CAUSES TROUBLE

Chief Norgrove, of Grand Forks, formerly of Michel and well known here, who was recently suspended from the force, has been the subject of quite a lot of discussion in that town. The following regarding his suspension appears in the Sun:

From talk on the street I have gathered that there has been considerable friction between Dr. Acres and Mr. Liddicoat on the police commissioners' board over the suspension of the chief of police. It is a question of Mayor Acres having exceeded his authority when he made the suspension. To a fair-minded citizen who has the dignity of the law and the city at heart, it is immaterial who suspended him. That he should have been suspended there is no question of doubt; and whether it was done by the mayor or the police commissioners, the result is the same. The situation was this: The man we are paying to act as guardian of the law, broke the law. No matter what the provocation was, he broke the law. Had he found an ordinary citizen doing what he did he would have promptly arrested him for brawling and creating a public disturbance. That would have been his duty, and for what he is receiving his salary. Had he not been suspended we, the citizens of Grand Forks, would have been placed in the undignified position of having as guardian of the law and to enforce the observance of the same, a man recently guilty of breaking the law. This fact would be bound to become known, and unfavorably commented upon, in which case we would have been indignant, and the very first thing we would have done would have been to censure the mayor for allowing us to be placed in such a position.

The chief was very fortunate in the verdict he received. I am not criticizing the verdict in any way, but the fact is he was fortunate, because many a man has to pay a fine or go to jail for the very same offense; and when it comes down to placing the blame for this present undignified situation on the police board, it primarily rests on his shoulders. If he had simply done his duty, which the citizens are paying him to do, the cause of all the trouble would never have arisen.

NEW COUNCIL HOLD MEETINGS

On Monday evening the regular statutory meeting of the 1919 council elect was held. The only business transacted was the appointment of standing committees and authorization as to the proper officers for distributing city finances.

The following are the committees appointed by Mayor Uphill:

Finance—Gates and Graham.
Public Works—Beck and Robichaud
Fire, Water and Light—Rutledge and Hunter.
Park—Robichaud and Rutledge.
Assessment—Graham and Gates.
Health and Relief — Hunter and Beck.

The regular meetings will be held as during last year, namely, second and fourth Thursdays.

The first regular business meeting of the council was held Thursday evening with all members in attendance.

Delegations present: Hy. Martin, relative to destitutes arising out of influenza epidemic; W. B. Phillips, re Leonard Woodhouse, Peace Day accident case; G. G. Henderson on general financial condition in the city.

Ald. Beck was appointed to consult with the local Reconstruction Committee as to city purchasing Honor Certificates for local returned veterans.

Wm. Minton wrote offering $300 in liquidation of an account of $312.85. Bill is suffering from a dislocated shoulder on account of the hasty manner in which his offer was accepted.

Govt. Agent Hewat advised the council that $1632 of the provincial appropriation for Elk River bank protection, amounting to $3300 had been expended. In this connection the city clerk was instructed to write to A. Cummings objecting to charge of $354.50 for survey and plans as this appeared to be exorbitant for services rendered.

Herchmer & Martin rendered an account of $75 for rental of Central hotel furniture used at emergency hospital. The Mayor and Ald. Hunter will endeavor to adjust the claim.

The following reports were received:

Fire Chief recommending appointment of Jack Stewart as driver for fire department at $89.25 for 60 days' trial period.—Authorized.

City Electrician on Rates.

Power House Engineer, new equipment.

City Engineer, inventory of emergency hospital equipment amounting to $1855.

The annual convention of the Northwest Mining Association, comprising mining operators of northwestern states and British Columbia, will be held in Spokane March 10 to 16, it is announced by Frank C. Bailey, the sceretary. Originally set for next month the convention was postponed on account of the influenza epidemic.

WEIRD GERMAN IDEA CONCERNING SCOTS

The following article has been forwarded for publication by a British officer with the troops in Rhineland. It is the translation of a descriptive account written by one of the correspondents of the "Pflazischer Post," of Baden, relative to the British advance, and the officer who sends it suggests that "its unconscious humor will render it more interesting to the Scottish reader than to the German."

Malmedy, Sunday.

All day long I have been standing amidst the hard-bitten citizens of Malmedy watching the passage of English troops on their way to Rhineland. With stern sorrow in their hearts, but with head erect and eyes flashing with determination to endure all for the sake of their beloved Fatherland, the burghers of Malmedy have stood hat in hand saluting the colors of an alien foe!

What is more natural than that we Germans, who are the most patient and scientific investigators should despite the hard and bitter occasion, find a spectacle even as humiliating as the occupation of our beloved land a matter for detached interest? And perhaps, some few facts concerning the Scottish regiments of English infantry may be of interest to our sorely-tried but undaunted people.

Scotland has always been a wild mystery-land to the people of our country, and htere are many curious misapprehensions concerning the "Scotch Highlanders" which I may perhaps dissipate. I have made many visits to Scotland, so perhaps I was not so much startled when the "squirl" of the bagpipes echoed through the streets, and these fierce, untamed soldiers came marching proudly past. I have seen these men of kilts before, and was not, like many of our good ladies of Malmedy, shocked by the bareness of legs, which is so surprising a spectacle.

By now a very large number of our good German people know that the English battalions are not all Scottish, but there are a great many facts which they do not know about Scotland and her war-like people which I am perhaps the first to put on record.

The Highland people are a Celtic race distinct from the English. Their language is different, their manners and customs are altogether at variance with those of the languid southerners. In physiognomy they differ very materially from their southern neighbor. The Scotch have red hair and their features are harder. They are a simple, frugal people, the majority of whom are engaged in hunting the deer which abounds in many parts of Scotland, and in fishing the rivers for salmon, trout, and, on some parts of the coast, herring.

They are intensely religious, their form of worship being Lutheran, and the holiness of a Scottish Sunday is proverbial. On the day no trains run all the work ceases, and the sound of the "kirk" bells (it will be observed that the Scottish language is akin to German, and that what is "kirk" in Scottish is "kirche" in German) rings throughout the land, and everywhere may be seen the pious people wending toward their meeting houses.

The Scotchman is trained from his youth in warlike exercise. Every year there are what is known as "Highland Gatherings." These are barbaric festivals, attended by the most astoundingly primitive exercises. For example, one of the favorite competitions is to dance on red-hot swords, and he who dances longest receives a prize, varying in value according to the wealth of the district. Though the young men are stoical in their endurance of suffering, it sometimes happens that in spite of their efforts wild cries escape them as this exercise is carried out, and in order to drown the cries it is the custom to play the bag-pipe vigorously, the player walking up and down to hide from the spectators his own agitation.

Another test which shows beyond doubt that the Scottish were prepared for this war for many years is known as "putting the shot." In other words, bomb throwing, the shot being almost as heavy as a shell from a minnewerfer. During this war the practice enabled the Scottish regiments to dispense with trench mortars. Another exercise is "tossing the caber." A large log of wood is placed in the man's hand, and it is his object to throw it as far as possible. By this system of training the Scottish regiments were able to bridge the St. Quentin canal from a distance. Other methods of preparation which could be seen at all these Highland gatherings need not be enumerated. They all go to prove that Scotland, by its provocative militarism, played no small part in bringing about the conflict which is now so happily ended.

Much has been written and spoken about the so-called bagpipe of Scotland, and it will be difficult to describe to a music loving nation exactly what a bagpipe is. It consists of several pipes attached to a bladder, which is filled with wind by the player, and the so-called music emerges from a number of small, periscopical tubes which hang down the player's back.

The sound thus emitted is even more difficult to describe. If my good German reader can imagine a subdued shriek superimposed upon a sustained moan, accompanying a bad tenor who is singing through his nose, he will get some idea of the terrible sound. Bagpipe bands have usually a large number of drummers to regulate the noise, but, even with these, the bagpipers, owing to their lusty lungs, are able to make themselves heard.

Another instrument which the truly Scottish admire, but which I have not yet seen, is the pibroch, which in many respects resembles the bagpipes notably in the volume of sound produced and in the wild emotions it arouses.

The pibroch may be described as a super-bagpipe. It is decorated with tartanic ribbons, and is played by the head pipemaster. I have often been asked after my sojourns in Edinburgh, Glasgow, and other Scottish places, why the Scotch wear petticoats instead of trousers, and indeed, so many questions have been put to me regarding the national dress of Scotchmen that I feel it will not be amiss to initiate our inquiring people into certain Scottish mysteries.

Even as I stood in the streets at Malmedy I heard many questions asked by the populace, such as—"What do they wear underneath?" and "What is that curious thing that hangs before their petticoats?" and "Why do they not wear knee pads?"

But, ah, my good German friends, what would you say if you saw a Highlander in his gala dress as I have seen him, with a wild black feather bag on his head, which is called a bonnet, with his scarlet coat, with white-edged salients flapping over his hips, with his spats and his ribbons hanging out of his stockings, and his green shawl suspended from his shoulder blades? Then, indeed, would you be overawed and mystified! Then indeed, you would run to your houses and shut yourselves up before these fierce and barbaric warriors, who carry their shaving brushes in their hats and basket-hilted swords.

The origin of the kilt is obscure, but it probably owes its origin to the hatred of England and English customs. It may also be due to the fact that Scotland was so constantly at war, and battles were so frequent in the olden days, the Scotsmen had no chance of taking off their clothes, and so a compromise was effected, whereby they were always half dressed and half undressed. The kilt is made in various patterns, in order to distinguish one regiment from another.

The curious thing which hangs in front of the petticoat is called a "sporran." It is in reality a little skin bag, in which the Scotchman keeps his money. The Scottish are a very thrifty and careful people, and like to have their money where they can see it. Moreover, it is difficult to pick a "sporran" as theives pick pockets without atracting the attention and exciting the annoyance of the warrior.

Scottish soldiers are recruited at Highland gatherings, such as I have already described, and are then sent to Edinburgh Castle, where the oath is administered under the Scottish flag, and a national dish, called "haggis" is eaten to the solemn piping of the bags.

I will not attempt in the space of this article to do more than touch upon Scottish customs, many of which bear a curious resemblance to those which are celebrated in German folk songs. Many sore hearts in Germany will be the sorer to know that the Scottish are not a truly Christian nation like ourselves. They do not celebrate Christmas as do other Christians, but reserve their festivities for a feast called "Hogmanay," which usually falls on New Year's day. "Hogmanay," is one of the heathen deities whom the Scotchlanders still worship and resembles Thor and Woden in his convivial character.

On the whole the Scotch are an admirable people, although steeped in foolish superstitions, and still awaiting that uplift which only the German spirit could have given to the dark and benighted people of the world. That, alas, is now denied them and I can only hope that our friends on the Rhine who will be brought into contact with them for the next few years will, by example and precept, contribute to the education of this picturesque race.

From where I write I can see through my window another Scottish regiment approaching. They are marching in regular step, and are singing that famous Scotch air, "Keep the Hame Fires Burning" ("hame" is Scottish for "home").

It is the day, oh Scotchmen! Germania lies prostrate at the kilted foot of her enemy! Looking up she sees nothing but hate and envy in the hard features of these dour northern men! Can she see anything else, any promise of happy days to come? Who knows? Perhaps this Highland Scotchman will some day be worthy of the fortune which brought him to our cultural land. and when our streets no longer echo to his "shosen" and "brogues," and the "squirl" of his bagpipe no longer startles the little children in their beds, we shall think of him more kindly than we do today.

MINERAL PRODUCTION IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Estimated mineral production in British Columbia during the year 1918 is placed at $41,083,093, according to a preliminary review and estimates prepared at Victoria.

The total estimated value of production for last year is, therefore, $4,072,701 greater than that of 1917, or equivalent to an increase of approximately 11 per cent. Only once in the history of the province's mineral statistics has this output been exceeded, and that was in 1916, when the year's mineral output amounted to $42,290,462, only 2 per cent. greater than 1918.

The recovery of placer gold for 1918 is estimated at $308,000, of which practically all is obtained in the Cariboo and Casiar districts, only about one-tenth of the total coming from the other sections. In 1917 the total value of placer gold amounted to $496,000. During the last four years the production of placer gold in the province has steadily decreased. Economic conditions or high prices of labor and supplies are cited as the principal reasons for the falling off.

Estimated production of lode gold during 1918 is placed at $3,250,895, as compared with $2,367,190 for 1917, showing an increase of $883,705, or 37 per cent.

Silver produced during the year 1918 is estimated to have been about 2,886,861 ounces, valued at $2,601,120, a decrease when compared with the production of 1917 of 423,535 ounces. The higher market value of silver, however, is responsible for the increased value of the output, which amounts to $336,371.

In the case of lead estimated 1918 returns shows a production of 43,949,661 pounds valued at $2,944,627. This represents, as compared with the previous year, an increase in quantity of 6,642,196 pounds, but owing to the low market price of lead the value of the total output showed a decrease of $6,393.

In explanation of this it may be mentioned that the market price of lead rose and fell during the year. The average for January was 6,782 cents a pound; in July a fixed price of 8.05 cents was established, that figure holding until the armistice was signed. Fort Steele contributed practically half of the total production of lead, leading the list with an estimated out put for the year of 19,340,800 pounds. Slocan came next with 11,665,700 pounds; Ainsworth, Windermere, Golden, Nelson and numerous small mines making up the balance.

Copper estimated to have been produced in 1918, as compared with the previous year, an increase in quantity. Owing to the lower market selling price, however, there is a natural decrease in value. Production in 1918 is estimated at 63,387,010 pounds which is 4,379,445 pounds greater than the 1917 output. The value for 1918 is estimated to be $15,681,946, and when compared with $16,038,256 made in 1917, shows a decrease of $356,310. On the other hand, it is pointed out that there is an encouraging factor in the comparison because, notwithstanding lowered market prices, the provincial production of copper shows an increase in quantity of metal produced of about 7.4 per cent. more than the previous year.

Estimated copper production, according to districts is as follows:

Skeena division, 30,925,928 pounds; southern coast division, 19,470,760 pounds; Boundary-Yale district, 10,324,992 pounds; Trail Creek division, 2,043,560 pounds; Omineca division, 562,000 pounds. All others, 59,770 pounds. Grand total 63,387,010 pounds.

Last year's estimated production of zinc is given in the preliminary report at 36,149,894 pounds. In 1917 the total amount produced stands at 41,848,513 pounds, showing a decrease for 1918 amounting to 5,698,619 pounds. Qualification of last year's zinc output is made on account of the fact that it has been difficult to get information regarding shipments to the United States. It is therefore suggested that the estimated figure may be low. To the total zinc output Fort Steele contributed 22,000,000 pounds; Slocan, 13,601,954 pounds; while Omineca and Ainsworth produced the balance.

As completing the summary of the year's mineral production for the province it may be recorded agaic, however, that the estimated gross production of coal during 1918 amounted to 2,572,811 long tons, of which 28,742 tons were made into coke, leaving the net production at 2,292,068 tons. These figures show an increase compared with 1917 of 174,096 tons gross, and an increase of 142,093 tons net. The quantity of coke made was about 190,656 tons, or an increase of about 30,751 tons as compared with 1917.

SYNOPSIS OF
LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

OF THE HUMAN UNDERSTANDING

When one gets down right to the bottom of a man, even the most imposing man—he who stands without any hesitation in the dead centre of the world's stage what time admiring populations pelt his ears with loud bravas—when one gets right down to his basis what does one discover? Sir, one discovers, simply, a pair of boots. Boots are the human understanding, and the most notable thing about boots is this—they wear out. So do men: some of them very fast according to the toughness of their grain, the skill of their making, the manner of their usage. Some of them wear well (we speak alike of boots and men); in some the heels become oblique, in others their soles wear into perforations and in others the uppers take on a plebian seediness, and in all of them, as time goes past they wear away and are tossed aside, both men and boots, and bright new boots and other men appear and pay no heed to the deep moralities discovered in their discarded predecessors.

Our boots are with us all the waking hours. While we are not born with our boots on, it is considered in some cases no dishonorable thing to die with them on. Plenty of men are married in boots, and a man has Sermons are preached on a basis of leather or neolin. Lawyers plead in boots, policemen walk about quite conspicuously in boots, and children, as every family man knows only too well, are death on boots. The actor acts in boots. The villain's boots slink meanly across the boards after the tottering Dorothy Dodds of the persecuted heroine. Caruso sings in boots, and Charlie Chaplin's boots are worth gigantic sums of money to the motion picture business. The soldier's boots tread the pits of inferno, and the sailor's boots go out into the mystery and terror of the deep waters. How we tremble at the tread of the doctor's boots, and how the quick soft patter of a young lady's boots sets one aflutter when one is young. So it is on boots we approach alike the doorways of romance and death.

Old boots, like old men, have special purposes assigned to them by providence. We bounce an old boot off the bridegroom's dazed but happy head; or tie an ancient shoe to the departing wedding chariot. Properly handled, an old shoe is an efficient weapon of war. Mice and swallaws and beetles have made their homes in derelict boots; money has been hid in the toe of a common blucher, and many a person has cultivated a crop of corns in shoes that were too tight. Slippers make a common substitute for Solomon's pickled rod, and a celebrated King used to reward the servants who pulled off his great jack-boots with sundry kicks from the royal foot, which kicks afforded them the deepest imaginable gratification.

Of boots, a wise old sage remarked that they covered the earth with a carpet of leather. But that was long ago. The carpet is still with us, but whether of leather or something else one must serve a lifetime at a complex industry before one has knowledge enough to decide. It is openly stated that boots are made of leather substitutes, compositions, and rubber, and other productions of the witches' kettle of modern science. Boots are also, sometimes, made with paper soles, and by a strange paradox, these are the boots meant for the hardest and most desperate service. Yet the good, true, boot is still of leather; leather is to a boot what manhood is to man. The foundation of character. It tells in the long run. At the end. It holds out against the shocks and jars of roads and sidewalks with undaunted spirit, and if finally the world wears it old and thin, and its shape goes, and its joints spring and loosen, your leather boot has done all that boot can do; and does not man, too, wear old and creaky-jointed, does not he, too, lose his shape and have his countenance corrugated by wrinkles. And so downwards to the day when he takes his old boots off and never walks abroad again.

Victor Berger and Washington's Farewell Address

Pleading for leniency for Victor Berger and other convicted disloyalists, a writer in the Forum column asks the public to read Washington's farewell address. Very well, this is what Washington said in that address about just such men as Victor Berger:

"All obstructions to the execution of the laws, all combinations and associations, under whatever plausible character, with the real design to direct, control, counteract or awe the regular deliberations and action of the constituted authorities, are destructive of this fundamental principle. They serve to organize faction, to give it an artificial and extraordinary force; to put in the place of the delegated will of the nation the will of a party, often a small but artful and enterprising minority of the community. ... However, combinations or associations of the above description may now and then answer popular ends, they are likely in the course of time and things to become potent engines by which cunning, ambitious and unprincipled men will be enabled to subvert the power of the people and to usurp for themselves the reins of government, destroying afterwards the very engines which have lifted them to unjust dominion."

In this same memorable address Washington adjured his countrymen to be faithful to their government and the principles upon which it is founded. He declared that "respect for its authority, compliance with its laws, acquiescence in its measures, are duties enjoined by the fundamental maxims of true liberty."

How much respect has Victor Berger shown for the authority of this government in its ordeal of war? When and where did he and others of his way of thinking appeal to their hearers to comply with its laws and to acquiesce in its measures?

The only men and women who are being put in prison in this country for "political offenses" are men and women who have been convicted by juries of showing seditious contempt for this government, open resistance to its laws, defiance toward its authority and conspiring resistance to its measures.—Spokesman Review.

Bolsheviki Are Like Kipling's Monkey People

A memorandum to the allied powers from authoritative Russian sources says the bolshevists are weakening daily and the people of Russia are awakening to the fact that bolshevism is simply the old czarism turned upside down.

Another indication that the Lenine and Trotsky regime is slipping and knows it is the report that Maxim Litvinoff, the former bolshevik "ambassador" at London, has sent a note to President Wilson declaring that the bolshevik government of Russia is willing to cease its world propaganda if the allies will enter into peace negotiations with it.

That means that Lenine and Trotzky find themselves desperately in need of help to save the Russian people from the bolshevik abyss of misery and ruin, and are opening negotiations with a view to asking the allies for relief.

The Russian bolsheviki have about reached the end of the road. Having consumed or mussed up everything in sight, they will have to quit. They are strikingly like the bandar log, the monkey people of India, as Rudyard Kipling describes the disgusting antics of a simian colony in the jungle. Producing nothing, they fall upon stores of food, eating a little and befouling the rest, meanwhile keeping up an incessant chatter night and day. When all is destroyed or befouled, the monkeys scamper away to new regions.

Bolshevism is more than "the old czarism turned upside down." It is also Prussian junkerdom turned upside down—a meddlesome, criminal effort to force the bolshevik doctrines on an unwilling world, as the junkers tried to force German "kultur" on an undesiring world. The propaganda methods were alike, as we have reason to know in the United States. Both gangs sought to achieve their meddling ends by fomenting industrial strikes in this country, by inciting the criminal elements and by all manner of shady intrigues. We have cleared out the kaiser's emissaries. Our next step will be the clearing out of the bolshevik emissaries sent to this country by Trotzky and Lenine.—Spokesman Review.

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.

HAVE YOU STARTED?

Have you started to use War Savings and Thrift Stampe? If not you should do so at once. All should save something, it matters not what their earning power may be. To argue this point is hardly necessary.

If Canadians do not save from now on it will not be through lack of a system makes saving easy. Nothing could be better than the War Savings Stamp plan. Four dollars buys a War Savings Stamp, for which the Government will pay $5.00 in 1924. Twenty-five cents buys a Thrift Stamp, 16 of which may be exchanged for a War Savings Stamp. Could anything be easier? This form of saving is also profitable, paying 4½ per cent. compounded half-yearly.

REFUSE TO ADMIT MINERS TO UNION AND HAVE TO PAY

A dispatch from Calgary says: Dividing equally on the issue, the appellate division of the Alberta Supreme court on Friday handed down judgment against Local Union 1562 of the United Mine Workers of America for $1,721.24 and costs for refusing two miners admittance to the union and threatening to go on strike if the men were allowed to work.

Prussia stands a good chance of being left out in the cold if it does not pretty quickly settle the noisy and violent elements there who have come to be known as the Spartacans. The West and South German states are talking of a new confederation.

A wave of pity will doubtless run through the world when it learns that the ex-Kaiser, who is being deserted by his personal servants owing to his irritability, "never could do anysimple thing for himself in the way of dressing," and will now be cast on his own resources.

It is the intention of the government of Alberta to arrange financial assistance for towns throughout the province which are unable to handle their affairs over the trying period of reconstruction, and a special commission is proposed to manage the business.

BANK OF COMMERCE SHAREHOLDERS MEET

Particular interest attaches at this important juncture in Canada's trade and commerce to the proceedings at the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The president, Sir Edmund Walker, remarked at the outset that "One turn of the kaleidescope has changed the aspect of almost everything in our daily lives and in our mental horizon. Only yesterday we were lending every faculty as a nation and as individuals to the thousand different kinds of efforts necessary to win the war."

Everyone engaged in industry and trade will be glad to have for their careful consideration, if not for their guidance, the conclusions which the facts and figures assembled and presented at this meeting would appear to point to. One of the outstanding results acheived since August, 1914, and due to the war is the expansion in Canada's foreign trade. Our exports have been phenomenal and imports far above normal. To the latter Sir Edmund devotes particular attention, regarding as of first importance some way of effecting a material reduction in them. Further it would appear that in his opinion the utilization of the industrial plants developed to produce munitions of war is relatively as important in the peace era just upon us as it was in war time. We need not repeat here the very interesting summary of foreign trade which he gives, but would draw attention to the list of substantial imports, the place of which might be taken by home produce. It is hoped "eventually to produce the whole of our requirements, in all of them. If we could do so now, we could face the future with complete assurance as to our financial position as a nation, and with the best possible market for our farm products---that at home."

While accentuating the importance of home market, Sir Edmund sees openings for the products of Canada in foreign fields that will be available to those who can compete for it but it will not be obtained without a struggle which leaves no room for lack of skill in manufacturing, of the knowledge of costs, of the power of finance and of the facilities for transportation.

His discussion of this aspect of the future of trade and commerce is informative as well as assuring, and furnishes abundant evidence of unbounded confidence in Canada, her resources and industrial capacity. In no less a degree, pride is shown in the wonderful acheivement of Great Britain, whose part during the war is very graphically and appreciatively reviewed.

The part taken by The Canadian Bank of Commerce itself, of which it has every reason to be proud, was alluded to by the General Manager, Sir John Aird, who confessed to a feeling of pride in the ability shown to maintain the premier place among Canadian banks in the matter of earnings. Although the actual amount shown was large, it must not be forgotten, he pointed out, that the rate of earnings of the Bank, as of all Canadian banks, is steadily decreasing when measured by the services rendered and the extent of the effort put forth. It will be recalled by those present at the annual meeting in 1915 that reference was made to a possible loss by depreciation in security values, and the hope then expressed that this loss would be saved. At that time, $1,000,000 was set aside. As was hoped would be the case when the appropriation was made, the bank was able to add the entire amount to its 1918 profits.

Another matter which is of considerable interest to the shareholders, and has an interest of a national character, is the extent to which the bank and its customers contributed to the success of the Victory Loan. Sir John says that 150,773 individual subscriptions, aggregating $104,543,000 of which $100,000,000 was new money, or 15 per cent. of the total, represent the efforts of the bank and its customers. This will be particularly pleasing to the bank's shareholders when it is considered that the number of subscriptions to the war loan in March, 1917, was 41,000 that is, for the whole of Canada. The bank's contribution exceeded the proportion which might have reasonably been expected from it, as Sir John pointed out, and he added that it was not accomplished without strenuous efforts on the part of the bank's staff and the expenditure of a large amount of money by the bank. At the same time the bank assumed its full share of the requirements of the Dominion Government and the Imperial Munitions Board.

Sir John discussed at some length the conditions incidental to financing the requirements of Great Britain and also issued a timely warning relative to the future financing of the undertakings proposed as part of the reconstruction plans of the Government. He expressed the opinion that good preparatory work has been done and that we may look forward to the future with quiet confidence, but urged that it would be well for us to bear in mind that the money will have to be provided to carry out the plans for reconstruction which have been discussed. "Let a wise and statesmanlike view of the matter prevail" he added, "and all proposed works be undertaken which are in the best interests of the community having regard to all aspects of the question." No doubt in making this statement he had in mind the view of the president, Sir Edmund Walker, to the effect that such expenditure would not be of assistance or presumably in the best interests of the country unless it added to productive capacity. Sir John mentions that a number of our municipalities are already hampered by heavy debts incurred in former periods of prosperity and no one will favor any considerable increase at this time in the national debt of the Dominion. The findings of the Cunliffe report that all money expended on reconstruction work should come out of savings and not be obtained by the creation of new credit are endorsed by him. The burden of high interest rates and of taxes, the extent of which it may be added, is not yet determined, is such as to make clear, as Sir John points out, the importance of saving and economy in personal expenditure as a public duty. This injunction as to economy was much urged during the war, and is as necessary if not more so now to provide for the carrying out of the plans designed to avoid dislocation of business in the transition from war to peace times.

Under the heading "W. R. Wilson Likely to Leave Town," the Ledger publishes a rumor stating that General Manager Wilson would shortly resign his position with the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. Mr. Wilson wishes us to state that this rumor is absolutely without foundation. GREATEST OUTPUT OF COAL DURING YEAR OF 1918

The Department of Mines estimates the production of coal in Canada during 1918 upon the basis of monthly reports as approximately 15,180,000 short tons, which was not only greater than the production in 1917 by 1,133,000 tons, but was the largest production that has been obtained in Canada in any one year. The increased output of coal, however, has been derived almost entirely from the increased production in the Western provinces, particularly Alberta. In Eastern Canada the production in the province of Nova Scotia in 1918 was less than that of the previous year by about 337,000 tons, and was the smallest production obtained in this province since 1909. New Brunswick reached a higher production than in any previous year with an increase of 76,000 tons over a production in 1917. In Western Canada the province of Saskatchewan appears to have produced about 30,000 tons less than in 1917 while the increased production in Alberta was about 1,263,000 tons, and in British Columbia 166,000 tons.

The production in 1917 and the estimated production in 1918, representing the actual amount of coal marketed or used, and not including waste slack, or unmarketable coal, are shown by provinces herewith:

Nova Scotia	6,327,091	5,990,000
N. Brunswick	189,095	265,000

RESOLUTION IS PASSED

At a regular meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction held in the club rooms of the Great War Veterans Association of Canada at Fernie, on the 23rd of January, 1919, the following resolution was unanimously passed:

Whereas it is understood that in connection with the Returned Soldiers Civil Re-establishment, that the Provincial government intends to locate a bureau to carry on this work in this district;

Whereas in the proposed district the largest number of men enlisted for overseas service from the City of Fernie and immediate vicinity;

Whereas Fernie is by its central location the most desirable place to establish the proposed bureau;

And whereas employment of Labor at Fernie far exceeds any other point in the proposed district, and the Labor Gazette representative is located here;

That for above and other obvious reasons the desirability of establishing the headquarters of he proposed bureau at Fernie be strongly represented to the Provincial government and that every effort be used to prevail upon them to comply with the prayer of this resolution;

Further that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Premier and the Hon. Minister of Labor for the Province.

NEW CONSUL HAS ARRIVED

A change was made this week in the personnel of the American Consulate here, when Norton F. Brand assumed the duties of the American Consul in place of E. A. Wakefield, who has been transferred to Prince Rupert, B.C. Mr. Brand's arrival has been anticipated for some months but his duties prevented him from taking charge of the local office until the present week. He like many former consuls stationed here comes from a tropical clime, although a northerner by birth, his native state being that of Minnesota. His last post was Salina Cruz, Tehauntepec, Mexico, but he was formerly officially assigned on behalf of the United States government in the Phillipines.

The retiring consul, E. A. Wakefield, during his sojourn here of almost a year, has made a wide circle of close friends who exceedingly regret his departure, but like real friends are willing to forego their personal desires when it is a case of advancement and the opportunity of achieving greater success. Mr. Wakefield's new post will devolve greater responsibilities than he was called upon to assume here, but there is not the slightest doubt but that he will fill these most capably and efficiently as has been his record here.

THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

Address of the General Manager at the Annual Meeting of the Bank

The address of Sir John Aird, General Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, at the annual meeting of the shareholders of that Bank held on the 14th instant, will be interesting to our readers. Not only does it deal at length with the business of the Bank during the past year, which has been a most successful one for the institution, but it indicates the view taken of Canada's prospects by one of her leading bankers. Sir John said:

For the first time since January, 1914, we meet without the sinister shadow of the great war upon us. Difficult as is the outlook before many of the warring nations and perplexing as are the problems for which a solution has to be found before a satisfactory peace can be concluded, hostilities have ceased and cannot be renewed on the same colossal scale. We rejoice that the sacrifice of life has come to an end and that those members of our staff at the front who have survived the conflict, and others who are near and dear to many of us, can now look forward with assurance to the welcome that awaits them at their home-coming. The past year has been pleasurably marked by the jubilees of both our President and Vice-President in their respective callings. We have, therefore, many reasons for a feeling of jubilation on this occasion, and this is added to by the excellence of the statement which we have pleasure in presenting to you.

An Excellent Statement

The earnings of the Bank have been good, and the profits have again reached a new high level, amounting to $2,850,000, or $212,000 more than a year ago. We confess to a feeling of pride that we have been able to maintain the premier place among Canadian banks in this, to you, important item. Notwithstanding the apparent size of the figures, however, it must not be forgotten that the rate of earnings of this Bank, as of Canadian banks in general, is steadily decreasing, when measured by the services rendered and the extent of the effort put forth by our staff. On the average of our total assets during the year we have earned only 7-10ths of one per cent., as compared with 1.27 per cent in 1913, the last year prior to the war, and 1.37 per cent ten years ago.

Increased Service

The main causes of this, as I have pointed out in previous years, are, on the one hand, the enormous increase in the volume of those banking services which are performed for the public without remuneration, and the fact that banking is one of the few businesses in which charges are sometimes lowered but seldom increased, in spite of the general increase in the cost of everything else; and on the other the increases in salaries and wages which are inevitable to enable our men to meet the great increase in the cost of living. It must not be forgotten that salaries and wages constitute the most formidable item of expense in the budget of a bank, and it will readily be understood that the responsibilities and the difficulties of dealing fairly with the members of our staff, in view of the high level of the cost of living, are not small.

Depreciation Unnecessary

An unusual item in our Profit and Loss account this year, which affords us much gratification is the recovery of the appropriation of $1,000,000 set aside in the year 1915 to provide for the depreciation of securities. We then expressed the hope of saving this, or at least a part of it, at the end of the war, and it is a source of satisfaction to find our prediction fulfilled.

On the other side of the account, our disbursements in the way of dividends and bonuses to shareholders, and the amounts required to pay the special war tax on bank note circulation and for the Officers' Pension Fund, are the same as a year ago. Subscriptions to various funds of a patriotic nature, almost all of them the direct outcome of the war, have called for $102,550.

A War Memorial

We have set aside $100,000 to defray the cost of a memorial we propose to raise in honor of the officers of the Bank who served in the great war, and for the cost of the history of the Bank to which I referred a year ago. The form of the memorial is not yet decided but it will probably take shape when we come to erect a new building on our site here, an undertaking which cannot long be delayed if the natural development of the business of the Bank is not to be hindered by cramped and unsuitable quarters. After doing all this we have been able to transfer $1,500,000 to Rest account, which thus becomes equal to the paid up capital, a goal which we have aimed to reach for many a day, but which has called for long years of tireless striving, before we could consider it as fairly won. We might perhaps have made a better showing on the surface and have seemed to reach our goal in a shorter period of time, but our wish has been to build surely and carefully upon a firm foundation, and in the meantime to provide beyond peradventure for every weak spot in our loans and securities. We carry forward into the new financial year an undivided balance of profits amounting to $1,444,842, or $112,000 more than a year ago.

Note Circulation

Turning now to the General Statement, the first item of our liabilities is notes in circulation. These amount to the very large sum of $31,583,000, or $7,588,000 more than a year ago. This increase is not far from double the large increase reported last year, but we think that the reasons advanced for it then still hold good, although it is possible that in addition there may be a certain amount of hoarding by a class of munition-workers who adhere to old habits, and hide their savings rather than entrust them to the care of a bank. If so, this cause should soon cease to operate, and we shall watch with much interest the course of the note circulation during the next few months, in which the greatest amount of contraction always takes place each year.

Increased Deposits

The increase in our total deposits is $76,733,000 or 27.7 per cent, and the greater part of this is under the heading of deposits not bearing interest, which account for $64,552,000. Deposits bearing interest show an increase of $12,181,000, an amount which would have been much greater had it not been for the Victory Loan of 1918. If we turn to the monthly statements to the government we shall find that deposits payable after notice dropped $18,853,000 during November, which is solely due to the Victory Loan. On the other hand, it must be remembered that under the arrangement made by the Government for the deposit of the proceeds of the Victory Loan with the banks from which the money was withdrawn, a large part of this money is still at the credit of the Dominion, subject to its requirements.

How To Save

Once again the Minister of Finance and the organization which controlled the Victory Loan campaigns have won an outstanding success. The Victory Loan of 1918 was over-subscribed many times, and without the use of any compulsion save the mere breath of public opinion, the government has been provided with more than the sum which it required. Yet, as I pointed out last year, the lesson in how to save, so strongly impressed upon the community by these campaigns, is their great result from the national point of view. Who may venture to predict what the knowledge thus acquired of how to invest savings wisely may mean to Canada in the years to come? Except for the increase in the productive capacity of the country, this is perhaps the greatest material benefit derived from the war. Alongside it the loss of a few millions of deposits to individual banks is a very small matter, which, if the lesson is thoroughly learnt, will require only a short period of time to remedy itself.

Bank Helped Loan

Our effort to assist the Minister of Finance in obtaining subscriptions to the Loan have resulted in our securing through this bank the large sum of $104,543,000 represented by 150,773 individual subscriptions. This amount included $100,000,000 of new money and represents 15 per cent of the total. It is gratifying to know that we have far exceeded the proportion which might be reasonably expected from us. The result has not been obtained without very strenuous efforts on the part of our staff and also the expenditure of a large amount of money by the Bank. Unfortunately the heavy task came upon our staff just at the moment when their ranks were depleted by the ravages of influenza. In connection with this ,as well as previous loans we shall also be required to perform for the government special services, such as the payment of coupons and interest during the term of the loans, the last of which does not mature until the year 1937. The Canadian banks were also called upon during the year to assist in the Dominion government financing to a large amount and we assumed our full share of these advances. In addition, we participated in a loan of $100,000,000 to the Imperial government against Treasury Bills and renewed the advances made against similar security to the Imperial Munitions Board.

Finance Food Supplies

Acceptance under Letters of Credit, offset in our balance sheet by the corresponding liability of our customers which appears among the assets, show a large increase, represented by advances in Canada and the United States, secured in nearly every case by food supplies purchased for account of the Allies. Cash on hand, consisting of gold, silver and coin and Dominion notes amounts to $61,971,000, as compared with $54,652,000 a year ago, an increase of $7,319,000. Of this, we had $17,500,000 in the Central Gold Reserves, to provide cover for our excess note circulation. Our total holding of gold and silver coin—principally gold, but including the necessary silver for the tills of the branches—are slightly lower than a year ago. We hold, however, a much larger amount in Canada, in the carrying out of the views expressed last year in referring to this subject.

Maintain Gold Standard

This was not accomplished without difficulty owing to the embargo placed on exports of gold by the United States government and to the demands of that government; and the effort to increase our holdings has been further hampered by the decline in the output of the Canadian mines caused by the present high cost of production. It is gratifying to find a substantial agreement with our view on this subject in the report of the Imperial "Committee on Currency and Foreign Exchange after the War," of which Lord Cunliffe, Governor of the Bank of England, was Chairman. In its first interim report this committee has emphasized the imperative need that the gold standard should be effectively maintained in Great Britain and that the necessary measures to this end should be taken without delay. Similar measures are being urged in the United States by a not uninfluential section of the press, and it is disquieting to hear a discordant note sounded in certain influential financial circles in this country. We think that the government could well afford to pay a small royalty to encourage an increase in the production of the gold mines of Canada. The conditions of the last two years have very adversely affected the mining of gold, especially as compared with silver, and in the interests of the country we believe that the government should seriously consider some plan for placing this industry on a profitable footing.

Large Volume of Transaction

The next item of the assets, consisting of notes and cheques and balances due other banks, shows an increase of $3,830,000, almost all of which is made up of larger holdings of cheques on other banks, which constitute the daily exchanges. This increase is due solely to an increased volume of current bank transactions. Securities of various kinds have increased $16,183,000, represented principally by larger holdings of British and Canadian government securities. On the other hand, railway and miscellaneous securities have decreased slightly. Call and short loans show an increase of $8,324,000, of which the greater part is in loans outside Canada, and immediately assets are $35,682,000 greater, standing at about 50 per cent of our liabilities to the public. Commercial loans show an increase of $52,621,000, nearly all of which is lent in Canada. While there is no doubt a good deal of activity in such manufacturing as can be carried on under the circumstances of the past few months, a large part of this increase is due to high prices and to delay in realizing on our wheat and other produce, which has been reserved by the government. The delay in this connection, while no doubt largely inevitable under existing conditions, has a prejudicial effect on those immediately concerned. With the passing of the era of high prices especially those of farm produce, and a return of wages to a more normal level than that of munition-making, we must expect to see decreases in the volume of both our loans and deposits. Indeed, it will not be surprising if the figures of the present balance sheet are not exceeded for several years to come.

Total assets have increased $95,935,000, and now amount to the very large sum of $440,310,000. This increase is 27.8 per cent over the figures of last year, a remarkable showing when it is recalled that we have been marking time in the opening of new branches, and that we have not taken over the business of any other bank.

Reinstate Returned Men

With regard to the staff, it is our desire to reinstate all officers who wish to come back to our service from military duty, and at the same time to avoid any hardship which might be created by dispensing with the services of the members of the temporary staff, who have filled the breach so acceptably during the past four years.

With sorrow we record the death in action of eighty-five additional members of our staff during the past year, making a total of 226 who have been killed in action, or have died of wounds, since the outbreak of the war. The number of wounded men reported to us has now reached 294; 7 are still recorded as missing and 23 as in the prison camps. Under the terms of the armistice we trust that these prisoners have now been successful in reaching allied or neutral couneries.

Increase Export Trade

A year ago I urged the importance to Canada of stimulating the production and export of food, the need of organization for the purpose, and the attractiveness of the outlook for this branch of commerce. The ending of the war has in no wise dimmed the prospect. The last number of the Agricultural Gazette, the official publication of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, contains an appeal from the Dominion Government along similar lines, and particularly emphasizes the bright prospects of the meat export trade. Speaking of the outlook before this country now that the war has ended, the Minister of Finance, Sir Thomas White, writes: "There would seem no reason to apprehend any failure of markets for all the food that Canada can produce. Our grain, live stock, and their products, with those of our fisheries, should all be in keen demand at high prices..... Increase in our agricultural production will not only help to furnish food for a hungry Europe, but will be a chief factor in maintaining our favourable international trade balance as well." All countries are seeking to increase their export trade; all are hoping to be sellers and to limit their purchases. Under such conditions, the successful ones will be those which have special advantages for a certain line of production and which can find a market for the same line of goods. Is there any country better fitted than Canada for the production of food, or any branch of commerce in which an ample market is more assured?

Sane Spending

Any number of plans are afloat for the carrying on of large public works after the war. These are advocated on all sides in the hope that the era of free spending may tide over that of falling prices. Few of the promoters, however, appear to have considered where the money is to come from. By all means let a wise and statesmanlike view of the matter prevail, and all public works be undertaken which are in the best interests of the community, having regard to all aspects of the question. But let it not be forgotten that such works have to be paid for sooner or later out of the taxes, and the hope of every citizen at the present moment, I may safely say is to see his tax bills reduced rather than largely increased. Even public borrowing cannot indefinitely postpone the evil day of payment.

Reconstruct With Savings

Some of our municipalities are already hampered by the load of debt incurred in former eras of prosperity, and no one would advocate any considerable increase at this time in the national debt of the Dominion. The safe course is wisely set out in the Cunliffe report, to which I have already referred. After speaking of the pressure that is sure to be brought to bear upon the state for capital expenditure in many forms for reconstruction purposes, it points out that all money expended on reconstruction work should come out of savings and not be obtained by the creation of new credit. The burden of prevailing high interest rates in the case of such works has also to be considered, and although the outlook as to the value of money after the war is uncertain, it seems probable that current rates in England are held below the natural level at present by war-time regulations, and that when these restrictions are removed, rates may tend upward rather than downward. It is clear that the importance of saving and economy in personal expenditures as a public duty will not be lessened by the ending of the war, but, if possible, increased.

It is interesting to note that the London Statist is of the opinion that after the war Canada will prove more attractive to emigrants than the United States, and that thus the drain upon the manpower of this country made by the war will be more than remedied.

The Future

As to the future, we feel that we can look forward with quiet confidence. The multifarious restrictions which have necessarily been placed on business during the war will doubtless disappear before long, and they should be removed by the government as speedily as possible. This will aid in lessening unemployment at home, and enable our exporters to resume their operations in other countries before the field is occupied. Attention should also be given to the prompt settlement of all outstanding contracts and obligations of the Government, and to the claims arising out of the cancellation of contracts. These are sometimes allowed to drag, causing great injustice to individuals and corporations, and preventing them from resuming their accustomed place in the peace activities of the nation. By prompt attention to such matters the Government can assist materially in the restoration of a normal state of affairs in the business world. We have been fortunate in this country in that our participation in the war has not involved material damage at home. Our efforts have entailed no exhaustion on our part, and while the problems before us are many and difficult, we believe that a satisfactory solution will be found for all of them."

Homicide Record for 1917.

Memphis, Tenn., continues to have the highest homicide rate of all American cities, possessing thereby an unenviable destinction which denotes a slow awakening to the fact that homicide is to a considerable extent a social problem, to be solved, if at all, by preventive measures. Yet Memphis shows an improvement in 1917, figures for which have been collected by Frederick L. Hoffman, and published in the Spectator, a weekly insurance journal. Uncertain population figures toward the end of the 10-year census period make any homicide record somewhat unreliable, but Mr. Hoffman finds that the rate in 1917 increased in 17 cities and decreased in 14. One fact which he properly stresses is the very low rate of New York city. While the Memphis rate was 52.7 per 100,000 of population, and the average of 31 cities was 9 per 100,000, New York's homicides numbered only 4.4 per 100,000. In 1917 there was a decline in New York of 1 per 100,000, or 18.5 per cent.

While congratulating New York, one must note that Chicago's rate increased by just the amount of New York's decline. Southern cities show a commendable reduction of 3.09 in the rate, but eight central cities show an increase of 2.9. Unfortunately the slow publication of mortality statistics—due, it is said, to congestion in the government printing office—prevents an analysis of the situation in 1917 throughout the country. —Springfield Republican.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

J. E. Lewis, of Columbia Falls, Mont., one of the Great Northern guides for the Glacier National Park, was in Elko this last week buying up furs, cowhides and elephant tusks.

It isn't your town; it's you.

Call on the editor of this great family paper that is boosting your town and your property if you want prompt and efficient printing service. Its you.

While some of the papers are assassinating the crazy kaiser, others are bringing the Czar of all the Russias back to life again.

A Winnipeg paper boasts of a young lady in Fort Rouge, who is so fashionable that she wears one of them elastic corsets that go on over the head. Ever hear of them?

Elko has a few knockers that she can dispose of to good advantage. Any town needing a few high grade knockers can obtain them by addressing this town.

Since the New Year holidays the travellers, train jumpers and peddlers are coming in like Methodists to a pink tea. Last week many old faces and several new ones arrived in the old historic burg. Wee John McDougall, with the most complete line of cotton laces, leather shoe strings, button hooks and rawhide novelties ever seen in the rocky mountains, made and mined right in Calgary, the hub of Alberta. A Spokane traveller with a sure cure for rheumatism, and delicatessen goods, such as Washington's Pies, Woodrow Macaroons, creamed Wilson Sweetbreads, also cream of Pershing Soup in tins. A delegation from the Alberta trust. Booth, who had just returned from Chicago, with fried tripe and minced green peppers. James C. Sherlock, who helped Jim Thistlebeak blaze the trail through the Pass, with stuffed liver and lamb tongues, and the imitable Joe from Moose Jaw, with dripping pan gravy and kidneys; some trio. A Gas City traveller with the greatest bunch of publicity stuff ever printed on crockery. He told tales of old Medicine Hat that had the Arabian Nights looking like a dime novel, and almost as funny as a young widow inquiring her way to a Fernie lawyer's office. The great Cassidy and several other rubber travellers whose lines of patter would make the cold chills run up the hump of a camel. Several travellers came in one day on the late train, passing through the town to go south to the mill towns along the Kootenay. One evidently had not patronized the C.P.R. diner, as he called at the Rapid Fire Restaurant and purchased a pie and took a bite that would have done credit to a steam shovel. O. C. Thompson, the Calgary booster, mining man, financier and all round good fellow, was in town this week making arrangements to start operations at the Burton mine.

About 25 men arrived on Sunday morning's special, for the logging camps south of town and were taken there in autos.

It is quite possible the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company will start on the water power on account of the low water and the mild weather.

Mrs. Fred Roo, of Roosville, is visiting Elko and Fernie this week. While in Fernie she was the guest of Mrs. Jos. Austin.

THE DEATH OF KARL LIEBKNECHT

To the observer of the movement and surge of history the death of Karl Liebknecht has a gognant interest; is not, also, without its suggestions of melancholy. Liebknecht's name is one of the half-dozen that stands as the centre points of the revolutions which are shaking Europe at this present moment; it expresses the aspirations of a political group and gives its label to the vast shapeless mass of emotion and passion which is breaking forth in wild excesses in Germany. Liebknecht's name focusses all this to the point of intelligible expression, and it will be his fate to stand as one of history's lurid figures representing the whirlwinds of German revolution, as Danton is associated with the September massacres, and Robespierre is associated with the Terror, of the French Revolution.

Karl Liebknecht was born and cradled in the Social Democracy. His father was William Liebknecht, Marx's friend and disciple in Germany while Marx himself was in exile in England. His mother became acquainted twih his father while she was studying philosophy and the English language. It was in the Liebknecht household that the social democratic movement centered, and found its inspiration and its driving power, and next to his father the most outstanding personality and genius in the new movement was August Bebel, who was a family friend and intimate of the Liebknechts. That young Liebknecht should grow up a socialist was as natural as that rain should fall or fire burn.

Such words as "the social revolution" are, surely, peepholes into vistas of human belief and human action. The struggles of years were behind the final incident in Karl Liebknecht's stormy life; they led up inevitably, as guided by fate itself, to the gunshot that made him no more than a name and a revolutionary symbol. Violence was in this man's blood. He turned to it naturally and long ago, in 1906, with heat, with the violence of words only, he attacked the commonsense and moderation of Bebel. He was defeated then as he has been defeated now.

Liebknecht was consistent in his opposition to the Kaiser's war from its beginning. His sufferings, tribulations, and imprisonments are known to the world and have received their measure of sympathy and appreciation, and his solitary name was for some time the sole keeper of the honor of German socialism. In 1917 he was imprisoned by the Imperial German government for treason, and was only liberated in October of last year.

He has survived his liberation about four months. Four of the wildest, most tragic, most historic months in human annals, and now he is no more than a name in the German revolution. Whether he was great, was of the stuff of heroes, or was merely an illusionist, a man deceived and mistaken in his insight into the life of men on this earth, it will be history's task to determine. — Manitoba Free Press.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM AT LETHBRIDGE

(Lethbridge Herald)

For the first time since the winter of 1914-15, Lethbridge has an unemployment problem. Yesterday, according to Tom Longworth, manager of the government employment bureau in the Hull block, there were about 40 men called at his office looking for work. "Most of them were miners drifting in from the mines which have closed down," said Mr. Longworth, "and most of them are continuing their journeys in search of something to do till spring opens up."

The peculiar situation is brought about by the remarkably mild winter which has resulted in glutting the prairie market with coal and also because of the slim crop last year which resulted in slack time on the railways. Last winter at this time the mines in Lethbridge could have used 500 more men but couldn't get them. This winter they could get the 500 men but can't use them because of slackness in the demand for coal.

Another reason for the unemployment is the high prices prevailing for building materials. Much building would be undertaken if those with capital to build could see their way clear to pay the price. The lumber dealers however say they cannot help it. They point to the fact that in the lumber camps drivers are getting $85 a month and board while more skilled men are getting higher wages. It costs between $40 and $50 a month to board a man in the woods at prevailing prices for foodstuffs so that the lumber concerns are paying $125 a month and up for their men. Before the war good men could be secured for the winter for $40 to $45 a month and board and the latter item didn't cost over $15 a month. Considering these figures and the higher freights on lumber to prairie points the lumber men say they cannot be blamed for the situation. They could sell a great deal more lumber if it could be secured at anything like pre-war prices.

The result of the whole combination of circumstances is that there will be an overage of labor for some time, probably until seeding operations commence.

SAY CONDITIONS IN HOTELS INTOLERABLE

Public accomadation in the smaller towns and villages of the province of Saskatchewan was described as most inadequate and conditions in some of the hotels disgusting, by a delegation of the United Commercial travellers which waited upon Premier Martin this morning. The premier declared that he had personal knowledge of conditions prevailing, in some of the hotels, and cordially agreed with the travellers' description of them. He promised to give the matter every consideration with a view to relief.

The delegation specifically asked that the government take power to inspect all places of public accommodation in the province, and for medical examination of all persons engaged in the preparation and serving of meals.

Rather than have present conditions continue, the delegation informed the premier they would vote for a return to the license system, not that they wanted to see liquor sold, they said, but simply because present conditions were intolerable, whereas under the old system there was reasonably good accommodation. They declared their belief that the liquor interests were doing everything within their power to make accommodation as poor as possible with a view to getting old conditions returned.

The Regent and members beg to acknowledge with many thanks the generous donation of $40 for Red Cross work from Mesrs. J. Worthington and J. Hales of Coal Creek, being their commission from sale of Victory bonds.

From many unexpected sources, come appeals for immediate monetary assistance and the Chapter has had to dig very deep into its treasury to meet the demand, consequently substantial sums like the above are greatly appreciated. To quote Col. Blaylock, Chief Commissioner overseas: "There is no armistice for the Red Cross. The guns may be silenced, peace terms may be signed, but still the fight against pain and disease goes on. Till the last Canadian soldier who offered himself as a barrier between us and destruction is discharged from hospital, we must march steadily forward under the banner of the Red Cross."

Following on the heels of the retreating Germans the Red Cross lorries loaded with supplies (especial attention being paid to suitable food for children) were rushed forward to the French and Belgian towns that for four years had been under the cruel hand of the enemy. The Canadian Field Ambulance took over the care of the sick and with the help of the nourishing soups, jellies, etc., supplied by the Canadian Red Cross reviving many in a dying condition. To again quote Col. Blaylock: "The cessation of hostilities will bring no relief for months to the Red Cross. Coming as it has done at the end of a terrible summer's fighting, our hospitals, both in France and England are crowded with sick and wounded. Added to this the terrible epidemic of influenza has caused much suffering. At no time in the history of the Canadian Red Cross have we been called upon to give so much assistance. I do not see that there will be much relaxation of Red Cross activities for six or nine months more."

Added to this letters from the National Chapter say "the time has come when immediate aid in the form of money and clothing must be sent to the repatriated people in the devastated areas."

Also Lt. Joan Arnolde writes that "an urgent cable has been received from the Field Comforts Association making a final appeal for money to supply the requests that are pouring in from the Canadian men on service in the occupied areas of Germany, for books, magazines, cigarettes and games, etc. The men are very restless, which can easily be understood when one realizes that the strain and excitement of the figthing is over and everything must be done to keep the men who are longing to get home contented and happy. Much of the credit for the splendid morale of our Canadian troops is due to the women of Canada who have kept the men well supplied with comforts and now we must complete the work and not let them feel that we have ceased to care for their well being. Please ask your Chapter to make a special effort in this cause and please do not delay action as the need is very urgent."

Coming, as they have, in the wake of the Provincial Red Cross Drive the Mt. Fernie Chapter publish these letters and appeals feeling that the public who generously responded will be interested in knowing how their monies will be applied and why this Chapter felt it incumbent to subscribe largely to the fund.

As to practical local work, official instructions from the last Red Cross Bulletin received are as follows:

(a) For England and France. Hospital supplies at present sufficient.

(b) For Siberia. Hospital supplies needed as long as Canadian troops are stationed there and the Canadian Red Cross has undertaken to assist the British Red Cross units working among the Czecho-Slovaks. Alberta and British Columbia have been asked to make regular shipments of hospital garments.

VICTORY LOAN SETTLE UP

On Monday evening in the offices of Messrs. Herchmer & Graham the winding-up meeting of the Fernie District Victory Loan Committee was held. There was a good attendance of the canvassers who had participated in the drive, and arising out of the matter of distribution of a certain portion of the funds some discussion arose, but in the final allocation all were cordially unanimous.

E. K. Stewart, permanent chairman, presided, and A. Klauer, presented the financial statement on behalf of the secretary-treasurer. The total amount of canvassers' commissions for this city amounted to $1028.75. The gross expedítures by the local committee in connection with the entire campaign, including oragnization of the whole of the Fernie District amounted to $614.26, of which amount $386 was borne by the Provincial headquarters, leaving the amount of expenses to be absorbed by the local committee $227.26. By deducting this from the total commissions the sum of $801.49 remained for distribution. After a somewhat lengthy discussion on regular motion by Messrs Lawe and McLean the statement was adopted as presented.

It was then moved by R. M. Young, seconded by Jas. McLean, That this committee do subscribe the total amount of canvassers' commissions to war charities and reconstruction work in the amounts to be now determined. The amount donated to each to be published in the local press and the names of all the committee participating in the total donations. This was carried.

In accordance with this decision, after earnest consideration, the distribution of the proceeds of the drive derived from canvassers' commissions was as follows:

Returned Soldiers' Club, balance account billiard table $105.00; cash donation $196.49—$301.49.

Canadian Red Cross Cacpaign — $300.00.

Fernie Branch Navy League of Canada—$100.00.

Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction—$100.00.

Total—$801.49.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., Jan. 25, 1919.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—I was very much surprised to read in your paper of Jan. 24, in a report of the council meeting, an item relating to amount spent on river protection work to date that "in this connection the city clerk was instructed to write to A. Cummings objecting to charge of $354.50 for survey and plans as this appeared to be exorbitant for services rendered." This statement is a gross lie, and has been made with an irresponsible carelessness that too often is characteristic of your reporting. It is only justice that you print the real facts. The extent of my personal services to the city for 1918 amounted to $30. I have never otherwise been employed by them in any way, shape or form. I was employed in August and September by the Chief Engineer of the Provincial Public Works Department, Victoria, to investigate and make plans and profiles of a two mile length of the Elk River adjacent to Fernie. The rate of pay was set by the Works Department and was the same as paid by them to engineers doing occasional work throughout the province. The work was carried out by myself and assistants. The total cost above stated included help employed and expenses. On receipt of my returns the Department expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the work done and payed the bill early in October. Through an accumulation of data got in my work here over a number of years I was able to give the Department necessary information that would have cost them double the above bill to obtain otherwise, so that the information sent the Department cost them on the whole a very low figure.

The council never instructed the city clerk to write me regarding this matter or any other matter. The point at issue with the council regarding the matter of this bill is that the Provincial Public Work Department should not charge it in the joint account of fifty-fifty agreement of city river protection, or if a charge for engineering costs were made it should be only a portion of this bill, as the city river work is only a portion of the actual engineering work covered by the bill. The city clerk was authorized to take this matter up with the Provincial District Engineer.

I am, Yours truly,
Alfred Cummings.

(Ed.—The error in last week's report was purely typographical, as it should have read "J." Cummings, instead of "A." Cummings.)

WILL COMMIT FINDLAY

Vancouver, Jan. 30.—W. C. Findley, former provincial prohibition commissioner, will be committed for trial by Police Magistrate Shaw, according to the statement made by the Magistrate at the conclusion this afternoon of the second preliminary hearing of the charge gainst the former official of stealing 74 cases of government-owned whiskey.

Sandy Macneil has moved his office upstairs in the Liphardt building.

Bob Jones, of West Fernie, is back from Vancouver, where he attended the Provincial Poultry Show. J. Cunliffe, of this district, carried off quite a bunch of prizes.

The Ledger takes the C. N. P. Coal Co. to task for offering to donate sufficient land for a Soldiers' Memorial. They didn't say anything about the $1000 which Mr. Wilson said would go with the land. It ill becomes this contemptible Bolsheviki agitator to question the patriotism of any individual or concern. The Ledger has opposed every patriotic movement since the war began and when the government campaign for Victory Loan was in progress, when every newspaper in the country was boosting for the loan, that rag was conspicuous by its silence.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

A second meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction was held in the council chamber last Sunday afternoon and if the satisfactory attendance can be taken as a criterion, a real live organization has been established, of which undoubtedly at a later date we will learn of the very efficient service they will have accomplished. G. A. Bonnallie, president, has thrown his energy into the project and supported by a strong executive committee already has grasped the problem in a businesslike manner, with the sole object of treating the numerous complicated problems which are anticipated to arise during the reconstruction period to the entire satisfaction of those vitally interested.

At this meeting, while there were several new speakers, much the same ground was covered during the discussion as upon the initial meeting. The introduction of new industries in this district were all reviewed and included the coke oven bi-products, extension or expansion of the lumbering industry, hydro-electric power, agriculture, poultry raising and truck farming, etc. However, it remained for E. Heaphy, manager of the Elk Lumber Co., to get the meeting down to really concrete facts as to its prospective duties, which he enumerated under three captions: First, the problem of employment; second, the housing problem; and third, to see that each and every returned soldier got a square deal. Upon this basis the following resolution was moved by R. M. Young and seconded by E. K. Stewart:

That this committee go on record as primarily being formed to find employment for returned men and generally to look after their interests in all ways in which may be of benefit; and that the chair do appoint subcommittees to look after the different branches of this work; and further, that this committee go on record as believing in the possibility of establishing other industries and this belief be thoroughly investigated and if such establishment is found to be possible this committee make vigorous representations in the proper quarters to secure commencement of work.

NATIONAL WEDDING GIFT PRINCESS PATRICIA

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—Lady Barnard will be greatly obliged if you will kindly publish this letter together with the enclosed copy of a letter from Lady Borden upon the subject of a national wedding gift to Her Royal Highness the Princess Patricia of Connaught from the people of Canada.

Lady Barnard has communicated with the Women's Institutes, the Women's Canadian Clubs, the Women's Councils and the Chapters of the Daughters of the Empire throughout the province, asking them to remit to her any sums of money they may receive for this purpose and would suggest that anyone wishing to contribute should get in touch with one of those organizations. Yours truly,

H. J. Muskett, Private Secretary

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 6, 1919.

Dear Lady Barnard—The announcement of the engagement of Her Royal Highness the Princess Patricia of Connaught has been received with much pleasure and satisfaction throughout the Dominion. During the period of her residence in Canada Her Royal Highness, by her charm of manner and her kindly and unaffected interest in their welfare, became greatly endeared to our people, and it would seem most fitting that they should, upon the occasion of her marriage, be afforded the opportunity of offering a national wedding gift as a testimonial of their appreciation and regard.

It would seem to me that this might take the form of a "Silver Shower" made up of contributions from all who may wish to take part, in sums from the smallest up, so that the participation may be as widespread as possible and from all classes of the community. Donations would, of course, be entirely voluntary and spontaneous.

The arrangements for the "Shower" would, I think, be most appropriately made through the wives of the the Lieut.-Governors of the several Provinces, who would exercise their own judgment and discretion as to the best mode of drawing the matter to the attention of he public within heir respective provinces.

I suggest that the lists might be left open for a period not longer than one month from a date to be fixed later, after definite information is at hand as to the date of the wedding.

I shall be most grateful if you will kindly write me expressing your views as to the proposal which I have outlined, also any suggestions which you may be good enough to make as to the form the gift should take. It should, I think, be distinctively Canadian, and furs have been suggested as appropriate.

Believe me, Yours most sincerely,
Laura Borden.

MRS. ROSS PASSES AWAY

Fernie citizens will learn with deep regret of the death of Mrs. Willis Ross, nee Miss Edythe Rankin, of Oak Bay, B.C., which sad events took place on Thursday of last week. Mrs. Ross, who came here as Miss Rankin in 1909 from Napanee, Ont., was a general favorite with all who knew her. She was married in 1913 to Willis Ross, our late city clerk, and the following year they moved to Vancouver, where they have resided ever since. About a year ago Mrs. Ross underwent an operation for throat trouble from which she never fully recovered. She went east in May and underwent treatment at Kingston and Toronto, returning in October apparently much improved in health but was shortly afterward taken seriously ill again and never recovered. She leaves a husband and a little daughter two and a half years old, her mother, Mrs. Hugh Rankin, of Napanee, and two sisters, Mrs. A. T. McComb, of Calgary and Miss Minnie Rankin, of Napanee. The funeral took place on Saturday last to Oak Bay cemetery. Service was conducted in the B.C. Funeral Chapel at 3.45 p.m., the Rev. Dr. W. L. Clay officiating. There was a large attendance and a beautiful floral offering covered the casket. The following acted as pallbearers: S. W. Barclay, Capt. Jas. Mavor, John Gorle, L. W. Slade, A. Multhaupt and T. H. LEADERS ARE WEAK

London, Jan. 29.—Weakness and subordination of convictions to personal interests is charged against many of the trades union leaders by Food Controller George H. Roberts, in an interview printed in the Mail today. He says that this is one of the chief causes of the "present anarchy" in the industrial circles of Great Britain.

Mr. Roberts, who is a veteran labor leader, and who was recently minister of labor, said:

"It is time that union leaders make a definite and determined stand. If subordinates refuse to honor their leaders' agreements the leaders must resign. Unfortunately too many leaders are not free men. The modern idea is that a trade union official exists only to carry out the behests of any temporarily dominant section. That is one of the chief causes of the present anarchy and often prevents officials from following the dictates of their convictions.

"I know many union leaders who are very seriously alarmed by the probable effect of demands now being made regardless of the corresponding need for an improved organization and a higher efficiency among workers but their position of dependence prevents them from taking a lead which they know to be vital to the national interests. They know that anything detrimental to national interests must untimately mean disaster to the whole working class but they do not dare to speak their minds. . . There must be a fight between revolution and reconstruction. If young bloods are allowed to smash the trades union organizations we will have to face a long period of industrial chaos and a long process of disillusionment. The end of this will find the workers infinitely worse off than they are today. Labor's demands can never be completely realized without efficiency of production. I greatly deplore the weakness of those leaders who fail to recognize their responsibility."

TOMORROW'S AIR-TRAVEL

The "Most Beautiful, inspirational, and serviceable of man's inventions" will shortly be wholly at man's service carrying mails, freight, and passengers for long distances at incredible speed, exploring wildernesses, surveying and mapping continents and oceans—doing a score of things that no vehicle hitherto at our disposal has been able to effect. Already we are carrying our mails by airplane and doing some other kinds of transportation. In Europe at least one aerial ambulance is at work, and in places the airplane is maintaining a fire-patrol in, or rather above, forest areas. Plans are on foot for extensive development of aerial transportation in several parts of the world, we are told by Robert Everett, who writes for "The Nation's Business" (Washington,) an article entitled "New York to Bagdad via the Air Line." He says:

"The record of what the airplane does today is startling, or would be if the world had not been calloused to remarkable achievements since the war began. It is not improbable, however, that it will seem unremarkable a few years from now..... Avoiding an effort at prophecy, it is undeniable that the present employment and powers of airplanes point the way to their manifold further use in both peace and war, and that well-founded plans for aerial passenger services, mail services, commercial air routes, and aerial patrols are in formulation.

"Among these plans is that for an aerial mail and fast passenger service between Paris and London, to be extended to other European cities, and perhaps eventually to other continents. English business men of importance have discussed this plan, and cost and rate-tables have been published which establish an operating cost of scarcely more than a dollar a mile for an airplane appointed to convey from a dozen to twenty-five persons across the Channel, from the one capital to the other in three and one-half hours. It is quite likely that this service will be established once peace returns.

"As an earnest of the immediate future of airplanes, every great government is endeavoring to insure for itself the completest advantages that can come from the number of serviceable planes, and the great facilities for their further production, that will obtain when peace limits their employment for military uses. A committee of the United States Government has recommendations in hand based on investigations into possible profitable commercial employment of all classes of planes, and a British Civil Aerial Transport Committee antedated it by several months.

"The important members of these committees foresee the principal immediate post-bellum uses of the airplane as carrying mail, transporting passengers and valuable light freight, maintaining coastal patrols, and carrying out scientific surveys and explorations. The Congress of the United States, as a matter of fact, already has provided an initial appropriation for the establishment of aerial postal routes and the creation of a personnel. . . . . .

"While, therefore, the carrying of passengers by air already is not uncommon, usually these passengers are on special missions of some description. Commercial passenger-transport by air is known to some extent, especially in Germany, before the war, with dirigibles. That heavier-than-air machines are flying today, however, capable of carrying twenty-five persons, is promise enough, of course, that such transport will be developed. Its development will come with a better knowledge of wind currents and with the establishment of landing grounds at frequent intervals along regular routs. It is interesting, however, to know that the members of government committees, who are preparing for the airplane's commercial future, reckon that by air route New York will be just two days from London or three and one-half days from Bagdad; that Marseilles will be only eight hours. Constantinople and Petrograd will be only twenty hours from London; Ceylon will be two and three-quarter days, Tokio four and one-half days, Sydney five days, Cape Town three and one-half days, Vancouver three days."

No one concerned with aviation, says Mr. Everett, doubts that airplanes will be crossing the Atlantic within a very few years. Only the entry of the United States into the war prevented a trial flight in 1917. The route was to have been from Newfoundland to the Irish coast. There are unquestionably large planes in existence today which can carry enough fuel to drive them across the Atlantic if winds are not strongly adverse. The writer goes on:

"The carrying of freights by air is little done today, except such freight as bombs and propaganda leaflets. Freight-carrying by airplane is certain to no less a degree, however than the transport of passengers. Some warrant of this is apparent in plans drawn up for aerial harbors and freight-terminals. Extensive blue-print plans for one such enterprise are prepared, the site being a certain beach beyond the immediate congested centre of New York. A very comprehensive air-freight and air-passenger receiving station also is designed for the port of Rome. Air-carried freight will be of two sorts. It is believed, first, light, valuable freight or freight of quick perishability, which may be carried above established land or water routes; and, secondly, freights of varying classes to be transported from remote points not now easily accessible by other means of transportation. The carrying of securities, and even of bullion, from one hemisphere to the other or from country to country, is a suggested example of the first one that might have important effects in the adjustment of international balances. Many classes of express freight carried before the war by swift ocean liners may also come into this classification, and innumerable domestic deliveries of valuable or perishable goods are contemplated as soon as planes can be obtained. Of the second class of freight-transport by air the carrying of tropical products from regions remote by a hundred miles or less from established railroads has been suggested and its early feasibility considered in England. In South America, before war claimed all the airplane-production efforts of the world, a project for the transport of ore from Andean mountains extremely difficult of access also had been conceived.

"The exploration value of the airplane has not been tested in any rewarding way, but its proved powers make it capable of employment in exploring expiditions. At least two such expiditions, one in Dutch Guiana, were projected before the war attained its fullest scope. The merit of the airplane in such work is the absence, to it, of barriers of ice or swamp or forest that are impassable, although the difficulties of forced and unprepared landings remain.

"Beyond these uses of the airplane are the private and sporting uses; and the administrative uses, which today are in a sense chiefly military. The private uses of the airplane, were it not for the war, but with the number and perfection of planes developed by the war, might be as numerous as those of the automobile. There is a limit to such employment only with the limit of the powers of aircraft as existent and developable. It is of interest that the post-bellum production of certain American airplane factories is designed to be of small planes moderately priced, for family use, and of planes for comparatively inexpensive sporting use. The administrative uses of the airplane have been created solely by the war, in such emergencies as frontier unrest or the urgent reforming of disordered troops their interest in the future is in the possibility of territorial governors and frontier administrators (as now is advocated for Imperial Britain) employing them henceforth.

"This future of the airplane, a future presaged by the motive power and achievements already demonstrated, will have inevitably, of course, an effect on industry and society in general that is incalculable at present. Perhaps not the most, but the best, that can be done today is the establishment of educational sources wherefrom a knowledge of an important factor of our progress can be had as easily as it can be had of the automobile.—Literary Digest.

THE ONE WE LOVE BEST

January 25 is the one hundred and sixtieth birthday of Robert Burns. Robbie is one of the fellows we have sadly missed during the past four years. Think what he could have done in the way of answering Lissauer's "Hymn of Hate," or revising his "Address to the Deil" to make it fit the Kaiser, whom he certainly would not have called "Holy Willie." It is generally said that the Scottish dialect is the supreme lingo for the celebration of two things—love and whisky; but there is another emotion that Scots are good at expressing, and that is blazing, contemptuous hate of cruelty and cowardice.

Burns came very near being an American poet. In 1786, after a disappointment in love—a matter in which he was not generally disappointed—he engaged passage on a vessel for the West Indies. Then he changed his mind and decided to stay in Kilmarnock and console himself by printing his poems. If he had got as far as the West Indies, he would certainly have come on to the States and probably would have gone to Ben Franklin in Philadelphia to get his book published. What jovial cracks he and Ben would have had.

Burns's fame is secure, for he is almost the only poet who has ever had a cigar named after him. Also, he is probably the only poet who has lured the staid "Encyclopedia Britannica" into a joke. That work says that "his thirst for stimulants passed all bars." —Collier's

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

CLASS WARFARE

No more determined attempt to incite the world to class warfare, has ever been made than is indicated by the propaganda now being carried on by the Bolsheviki. They are pouring out Russian gold to prostitute the people in every land. Whenever they locate those who have imbibed the teachings of Karl Marx and Karl Kautsky to the exclusion of all other knowledge, they find ready disciples who are willing to accept their money and to preach their gospel not caring whither it may tend. The Bolsheviki have started something they cannot finish, and they go from one flight of madness to another. It would seem as if murder was the chief weapon in their arsenal. Everywhere they want to see a regime established under the dictatorship of the few and they want to see it maintained in power by a policy of blood and iron. In Russia they have refused to place their fortunes in the hands of the people because they know they would be hurled from power. They recognize no law save that of the machine gun and bayonet and they are willing to use these ruthlessly to repel their campaign of destruction.

Bolshevism has let loose a wild beast in Europe more terrible than Prussian militarism. It is more terrible because it is the negation of every peace principle enunciated by President Wilson. It is more deadly because it has no national boundaries and is restricted to no tongue. There are those in our own midst who, if given the opportunity, would emulate the deeds of the followers of Lenine and Trotzky, and there are such to be found in every land. The most blatant agents of Bolshevism are the paid agitators. They batten on every complaint that arises against the existing order of things. They preach a gospel of unrest ceaselessly, not because they believe everything they say, or are governed by principle, but in order to promote dissension. They would destroy civilization as the world knows it, on the assumption that if it is only possible to make Russian chaos world wide they will share largely in the fruits of industry that is none of their own. No one who has followed afairs in Russia, who realizes what is happening there every day, who knows what is the settled policy of the Bolsheviki, can understand whither it is tending. Certainly Bolshevism does not aim at a brotherhood of mankind. The road to the socialization of humanity lies along the path of education and not through seas of blood.

Bolshevist adherents in this country endeavor to spread their creed by telling the people that all is well in Russia, that Lenine and Trotzky are not responsible for the crimes with which they are charged, that they have brought into existence a perfect government and that they are the most maligned people on earth. A cult which maintains power by terrorism and murder will suffer nothing in reputation by a propaganda built on lies. Thousands of eyewitnesses have described the record of Bolshevism and that record cannot be disproved. We know the Bolsheiki by what they have accomplished. It is by their achievements that their followers in every clime must be judged. A typical instance of their methods has recently come to light. Soon after the warring powers signed the armistice, Bolsheviki troops landed on the Esthonian coast from ships flying the British flag. They were joined by native Bolsheviki, and together they crossed the Narva and spread over the countryside, pillaging and murdering the farmers and peasantry. In their wake went crowds of Chinese, partly armed with knives and axes. These Chinese went to Russia in 1916 and now followed the Bolshevist armies as mauraudes, plundering the little that is left behind.

Esthonia had declared for self-determination, but the Bolsheviki decreed a dictatorship should be established there. Poland wishes to be free to govern herself, but Lenine's troops are crossing her frontiers bent on decimating all opposed to their views and pillaging the countryside. The Bolsheviki seek to occupy Poland so as to place themselves in a better position to propagate their aims in Germany. If their progress is not stayed, the Rhine, held by Allied troops, may yet have to be made the rampart against the spread of rapine and ruin farther westwards. It is vital the Peace conference should come to an early decision about what attitude is to be adopted towards the forces of anarchy. Upon that attitude depends the peace of the world and the future of any League of Nations that it is possible to bring into existence. Bolshevist delegates cannot sit at the Peace Conference because Bolshevism has been guilty of terrible crimes against civilization, and these have so far been unpunished. The situation throughout Eastern and Middle Europe is precarious in the extreme. For the moment the more moderate elements have triumphed in Berlin, but Bolshevism is not dead in Germany. It flourishes in a country where through stress of circumstances moral rectitude is thrown to the winds. It battens upon the most evil passions of mankind. It appeals to the animal instincts and is another phase of the idea of a military dictatorship and the theory of the doctrine of force as the soverign remedy for human ills—not all human ills but only those of one class. There is no more pernicious gospel being preached today than that of Bolshevism. It is the most corroding influence with which civilization has to cope, and what will be done to make democracy safe for the world is facile princeps among the problems to come before the Peace Conference.—Colonist.

DAZZLED SHIPS

(From the London Times)

There is a department of Burlington House, now closing, which is called the Dazzle section. A stranger who should come there by chance might suppose that the New Art, Futurism and Cubisb and what not had penetrated the Royal Acaremy. But the hundreds of little model ships which line the walls in a strange decoration of straight and waving lines, stars, and streaks indicate that this is the home of marine camouflage.

On marine camouflage a widespread error exists. Most people suppose that its object is the concealment of ships, and wonder how it affects that purpose. Of course, it is nothing of the sort, but an attempt to break up the form of a ship in such a way as to make it difficult for an attacking U-boat to estimate the course. Though it is impossible to say how many ships have escaped destruction by means of "Dazzle," strong evidence has been forthcoming of its value, together with grateful tributes from merchant captains.

The originator of "Dazzle" is Lt.-Commander Norman Wilkinson, the well-known painter of ships and the sea. In May, 1917, he submitted his scheme to the admiralty. At that time most transports were painted black, than which no color could be more favorable for a submarine on the lookout for prey. Commander Wilkinson's argument was that if a ship could be broken up into strongly contrasted design her course could not be observed without longer periscope observation and even then not exactly. This delay and uncertainty might prevent the submarine getting into firing position until the ship had obtained a chance of escape.

The admiralty storeship Industry was the first to be painted. and served well as an experiment. "Dazzle" was next tried on 50 transports, from which encouraging reports were received. Afterwards the scheme was extended to the whole of the mercantile marine under the Defence of the Realm act which meant that it became compulsory on shipowners to have their ships painted. A staff, mostly of artists and architects, was collected and trained at the Royal Academy; this being the start of the Dazzle section. This company sent out its members to the various ports, each officer being supplied with a complete set of the plans and designs then in hand. From time to time new patterns were evolved, which were sent to the scattered staff. As soon as a merchantman reached port she was painted under the directions of the "Dazzle" officer in conjunction with the director of shipyard repairs.

When the scheme was extended to all the mercantile marine, models could not be made of every ship. Type ships were therefore adopted. and for each type, according to demand, a number of designs were prepared. Thus, on a ship's arrival in a port where there was a "Dazzle" officer, her type was first settled and one of the requisite designs applied to her. The task called for considerable skill sometimes, as, for example, when a design intended for a ship 200 ft. long had to be accommodated to one of 230 feet.

"Dazzle" did not make its way into the respect of the mercantile marine without a little struggle. In his room at Burlington House Commander Wilkinson has a demonstration theatre which has brought conviction to some very great naval authorities; or, if they did not need convincing, has proved to them what odd tricks "Dazzle" can play even with experienced eyes. A model of a camouflaged ship is placed on board behind a screen. In the screen is a periscope to which the experimenting look-out man applies his eye. He is asked to indicate the course of the ship he sees on a compass-dial by his side. This indication is then compared with the direction in which the ship's bows are actually pointing; and the discrepancy between the two is found to be wide—as a rule, ludicrously wide. Similar demonstration theatres were set up at the ports for the persuasion of sceptical mariners, whose discomfiture was exceeding when they discovered how the dazzle had led astray their wildest perception.

From the Academy school practically every martitime Allied nation has been trained. All the American destroyers and patrol boats have been painted from designs supplied by Commander Wilkinson and his assistants. France sent over four officers for lessons, and then started a dazzle section of her own in Paris. Italy was supplied with the British plans and designs. At the request of the United States Navy department and the shipping corporation, Commander Wilkinson went to America to advise, with the result that his scheme was adopted. So almost every merchantman at sea in the last 18 months has been "dazzled" on British lines.

THE SPIRITS IN THE EAST

The solid and serious city of Toronto is in the grip of a mild epidemic of spiritualism, and the virus has spread to Ottawa where the people are being regaled by their newspapers to special descriptive articles on the activities and peculiarities of the spirits who are operating in Toronto. The west is just making a recovery from an epidemic of Spanish influenza, which was a gift to it from the east, and western people, probably, have no great ambition to participate in any fresh distempers which may have germinated in the moister eastern climate. They may even hope that if the prairie cold was not successful in annihilating the flu germ it will have a deterrent effect on the travelling activities of the spiritualistic personalities who are, meantime, domiciled in Toronto.

After having the public mind so well prepared for spiritualistic phenomena by the quite large contributions to occult literature recently made by well known thinkers — Sir Oliver Lodge in particular—it is not surprising that these phenomena should now begin to appear. Man—and woman, too — has an incurable desire to see "beyond the veil." He has been cozened by witches and oracles and thaumaturgi for housands of years and he has not seen beyond the veil. Ghost-doctors, miracle men, have shown him nothing, given him no "reality," only filled him with "illusion," yet he has not learned his lesson, he still wants to see into the "beyond" and he still finds media prepared to pamper him to the top of his bent.

Out of all these messages, materialisations, omens and portents, what shred of tangible, rational fact emerges that is of help? So far, none at all. And what justification exists for supposing anything more than a physical, "material" cause to underlie the manifestations of even the most "spiritualistic" theory? These questions might be suggested to the infected easterners. Besides, it is not a little inconsiderate of the mighty dead to flock to Toronto and add a further not of confusion to times that are already sufficiently confused and difficult? — Manitoba Free Press.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glisens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and s fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

℞ Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health.

Belgum, Dec. 18, 1918.

To the Secretary Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E.:

Dear Madam—Kindly convey my sincere thanks to the members of your order for Xmas stocking received yesterday, for which I am very grateful. It is very gratifying to know that we are not forgotten by the people at home. The sacrifice and devotion on the part of the ladies re our welfare will never be forgotten by those who are fortunate enough to survive this terrible conflict. The invaluable service you have rendered merits the highest meed of praise. I fully realize the many difficulties you have had to surmount to perform your task and admire the undaunted spirit with which you have overcome them. I was sorry to hear of so many of the citizens being victims of the dreadful flu and hope ere now that the city is clear of it.

Pleased to state that I am well as are also the rest of the Coal Creek and Fernie boys who are left with this unit, which I regret to say are now very few. With good wishes to all and again thanking you for the many kindnesses received. Believe me

Yours truly,
D. F. Markland, C.M.R.

France, Dec. 26, 1918.

To I.O.D.E.—

Dear Friends—It is with great pleasure I write to thank you in return for your great kindness to me. I must thank you all for the parcel I received on Xmas day. You seem to know just what a soldier wants. It makes him think of the place he loves so well although it is far away. Thanking you all once more, I remain

Yours sincerely,
Wm. Monks.

Dec. 17, 1918.

Dear Sisters — Thank you very much for the parcel which you so kindly sent. It is certainly very good of you people to remember us fellows this way at Christmas.

You will notice I am now in Germany and have washed the mud off my boots in the "sacred" Rhine waters.

Yours sincerely,

To Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E.:

Many thanks for the parcel and greeting which was very much appreciated It will be pleasant memories after the come back to think of the work the ladies have done for us during the war. We are still hoping for a speedy return but we single men will have to wait our turn for they will send the married men first which is only right.

Wishing you a happy and prosperous New Year. Yours sincerely,

Geo. Parnell.

Euskerchen, Germany, Dec. 14.

Mt. Fernie Chapter, I.O.D.E.

Dear Friends—Have just received your welcome parcel today and believe me it just came at the right time as you can see by my address that most of us Canadians are in Fritzland now and you cannot buy cigarettes for they have got nothing to sell us. Of course some of the people treat us pretty good and most of us have fine billets with good beds. The weather is good but it is getting pretty cold at night. This city is very pretty and you would never think there had been a war on. As far as the population is concerned they seem to be quite happy and most of them will do anything to help us soldiers out.

Hope to get home soon. It is four years come April since I joined up.

Pte. Geo. Linn,
3rd Canadian Inf.

Beech Hill Hospital, England.

To the President I.O.D.E.:

I have to acknowledge receipt of your very fine parcel that arrived on the 7th in good order. I further wish to state that the contents were very much appreciated, thanks to the thoughtfulness of the Daughters of the Empire. I might say the boys from Fernie owe a great debt to the Order of which you have the proud distinction of being at the head, and I hope before many months I will have the pleasure of expressing to you personally how much I appreciate the kindness shown to me since my departure from the shores of Canada.

Wishing you all success throughout the New Year. Yours sincerely,

Pte. Ed. Burt,

STANLEY-REES PASSES OUT

The funeral of the late George Stanley-Rees took place Thursday afternoon Mr. Stanley-Rees was an old time resident of Calgary, having come here in the fall of 1907 from London, England. He was the son of the well known late George Augustus Stanley-Rees, physician, of Finsbury Pavement, London, England.

Mr. Stanley-Rees resided in Fernie the year following the big fire here. He was an architect by profession.

A NEW MOTOR FUEL

So many "false alarms" have raised vain hopes of new motor-fuels that it is refreshing to hear that official tests vouch for a substitute for gasoline which has been named "Liberty fuel," described in "The American Machinist" (New York, December 5). Although its exact composition and the method of production are not given, we are told that it is derived from a kerosene base by distillation, and that chemical details may be obtained from the United States Bureau of Standards, under whose auspices tests have been made at the United States Naval Academy. According to these tests the new fluid is superior to gasoline in many respects, being non-corrosive, starting easily, leaving no residue, giving greater mileage, and requiring less air for combustion. The cost of production is said to be less than that of gasoline and the quality may be varied in manufacture to suit the requirements of different industries. It is to be hoped that the test of actual daily use on the road, which will not come until the fuel is put upon the market, will bear out these somewhat roseate statements. We read in "The Machinist":

"Unlike the stories that we have had of new fuels made by dropping some sort of mysterious pill into water or some other equally inexpensive liquid, this fuel is made from kerosene as a base as is the case with the gasoline now produced. Nor is it one of those accidents that sometimes occur, but a carefully studied method, the result of seven years' work by Edwin C. Weisgerber, Captain of Engineers in the Division of Research and Development. Captain Weisgerber was fortunately placed under the command of Maj. O. B. Zimmerman, who, with his long experience in internal-combustion motors, not only encouraged him in the face of opposition, but aided him materially by practical suggestions from the motor end.

"The possibility of some such accomplishment has been pointed out by Bacon and Hamor under the heading of 'Peroxided Kerosene,' but it remained for the Engineering Division of the Army, in the person of Captain Weisgerber, to make the matter a reality. The great difference between this process and others is that this is a chemical method while the others now employed are mechanical and the possibilities of a greatly increased supply of motor-fuel at a greatly decreased price make the name Liberty particularly appropriate.

"Over seven years ago Captain Weisgerber started work on the problem of finding a gasoline substitute, and his experience took him to various parts of the globe. He had practically perfected the fuel before entering the army, the additional research and tests giving it the finishing touches. The result is Liberty fuel, which, according to reports of the Division of Research Development, has the following characteristics:

"The fuel is practically scentless and tasteless and the products of combustion are cooler than with gasoline, which reduces the amount of lubricant necessary as well as the problem of cooling. It is also non-corrosive and has a less deleterious effect on motors than gasoline.

"It starts more easily than gasoline and will explode at a temperature below zero, this point being readily controlled in manufacture. It leaves no residue. The effect of the explosion is 30 per cent. greater than gasoline, but this, as well as the quality and specific gravity, can be controlled at will. It will not explode prematurely, and only ignites from spark or flame.

"It has been shown to give greater mileage in airplanes, automobiles, motor-cycles, motor-trucks, and tractors. It requires less air for combustion, can be made at much less cost than gasoline, and uses as a base a product (kerosene) which can readily be obtained in any desired quantity. It can be substituted for gasoline for any purpose. It needs no special apparatus and no special engine or carburetor.

"During the tests at the Naval Air Station at Anacostia, Liberty fuel was found much superior to the best gasoline, and with the motor running 1,600 revolutions per minute the water in the radiator never exceeded 160 degrees F., and the oil in the crankcase did not go above 130 degrees. This quality of maintaining low temperature may help to solve some of the radiation problems of aviation engineers.

"Those interested in the chemical details relating to the temperature of distillation can obtain them from the report of the Bureau of Standards, these tests having been made under the supervision of Dr. Dickinson, who has been in charge of the motor-development tests during the war. The fuel is obtained by distillation and the quality can be varied to suit the requirements of different industries.

"There have been so many false alarms regarding the problem of fuel for internal-combustion motors that one hesitates to become enthusiastic over a question of this kind, but it seems that Major Zimmerman and Captain Weisgerber have succeeded in producing a new Liberty fuel. The need for such a fuel is beyond question, and it is stated that arrangements have been completed for making it available in the near future.—Literary Digest.

LOCATING GUNS BY SOUND

Hundreds of German guns were precisely located by sound during the latter part of the war. In fact, this method of placing them became finally so accurate that actual sight of the gun could not add to its precision. Camouflage was evidently powerless against such a method as this. Frank Parker Stockbridge, who describes it in "The Popular Science Monthly" tells us that the hiding places of no less than sixty-three German guns were detected in this way in a single day. Says this writer, in an article entitled "How Far Off Is That German Gun?":—

"By the use of 'receiving stations' behind the lines, British and French military observers have been able to locate hundreds of German guns through the application of the science of acoustics. These stations are placed behind the Allied lines at points accurately determined, with the distance from each station to all the others carefully recorded.

"A receiving station may be nothing more than a microphone-receiver concealed under a rock. The receiver is connected by wire to a central station with which the other stations are also connected. A simple clockwork device in the central station records the exact instant at which every sound is received at each receiving station.

"The first sound is that of the shell passing overhead, since the projectile fired by a high-power rifled cannon travels faster than the speed of sound, which is normally 1123 feet a second, varying, however, with wind velocity and direction and the temperature and density of the air. The next sound recorded is the 'boom' of the gun, and then comes the sound of the exploding shell.

"Careful corrections are worked out to allow for variation in the speed of the sound waves due to atmospheric conditions. Then the difference in time at which the same sound was recorded from the different receiving stations is compared with the known distance from station to station.

"If, for example, the time when the sound made by a passing shell reaches Station 4 is 9:12:26, and the same sound is recorded from Station 5 at 9:12:27 and at Station 6 at 9:12:27½ it is a simple matter to determine that the point of origin of the sound is 1,086 feet farther from Station 5 than from Station 4, and 543 feet farther from Station 6 than from Station 5. With the known distances between the station as base lines, triangulation on a large-scale map, involving intricate calculations, provides valuable information as to distance, as indicated by the different times at which the same sound reached the different receiving stations. The time records of the sound of the gun itself and of the exploding shell are also subjected to the same analasys; and, since it is obvious that the points from which the three different sounds originate must be in the same vertical plane, a straight line on the map connecting all three proves the accuracy of the computations.

"So accurate has this method proved that in almost every instance, when the work of the observers at the central station (which may be miles away from the receiving stations) is compared with photographs made in airplanes, showing the position of the same guns, there is not room for separate pinpricks to indicate the results of the two sets of observations.

"In one day, recently, sixty-three German guns were located by this means, and destroyed by airplane bombs, although many of them had been so successfully camouflaged that probably they never would have been discovered by any other means.—Literary Digest.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-tives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism".

The liquor in question was contained in a 20 gallon cask, which Constable Hughes located alongside the G. N. right of way near Natal, and adjacent thereto was a locomotive of which accused was in charge. The ensuing conversation between the constable and the accused upon the latter making the discovery, caused the magistrate to convict Garrison of "having" booze where it is illegal and the penalty was accordingly inflicted. The Customs officials have placed a seizure upon the liquor, it being alleged to be of American manufacture and improperly brought into Canada.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR SAM STEELE IS DEAD

London, Jan. 30.—Gen. Sam Steele died at Putney, London, today. He had been ill about two months but the end came rather suddenly.

Major-General Sir Sam B. Steele, K.C.M.G., Canada's famous "Rider of the Plains," was one of the outstanding figures of western police and military circles for many years. He had many friends in Southern Alberta, having at one time been stationed at Macleod with the Mounted Police.

He was born at Purbrook, Simcoe county, on January 5, 1849, so that he was just 70 years old. He was educated at Orillia, Ontario, and at the British America Commercial College, Toronto. He married in January 1900 Marie Elizabeth, eldest daughter of the late Robt. W. Harwood, seigneur of Vaudreuil, P.Q.; he was appointed ensign in the 35th Regiment in 1866; qualified at the Royal Artillery school, Toronto, with H. M.'s 17th regiment; he served during the Fenian raids, 1866, and with Col. (now F. M. Viscount) Wolsely, on the Red River Expedition, 1870; he joined 'A' Battery R. C. A. (with first-class certificate) in 1871 and later Sept. 1873, on the organization of the Royal North West Mounted Police, joining that body as troop sergeant-major, and accompanied the corps on its march to the Rock mountains, 1874 (mentioned in general orders); he was made inspector in 1878 and superintendent in 1885; commander of the police on the construction of the C. P. R. through the Rocky mountains except the interval of the North West campaign; he commanded the cavalry and scouts of Gen. Strange's column in Northwest Canada in 1885, and was present at the actions of Frenchman's Butte; commanded the mounted force in the pursuit of Big Bear's band and the Wood Crees; he fought them at Loon Lake, the enemy outnumbering them five to one, resulting in the defeat of the Indians, breaking up of the band and the virtual end of the war (despatches, medal with clasp); commanded "D" Division of the Royal North West Mounted Police in an expedition into Kootenay, B.C., to restore order where the Indians had broken open the jails, released the prisoners, drove the government officers out of the country and forced the inhabitants to concentrate at Galbraith's Ferry (thanked in general orders); he commanded R. N. W. M. Motion Pictures in the 21st Century

If the surviving motion picture films are taken seriously 100 years hence as representing the manner of our present existence, the 21st century will have some queer impressions as to how people in the 20th century behaved themselves. In some cases the films will be accurate and reliable; posterity will see us as we were because the camera found us as we were. In other cases the films will be widely misleading and posterity will behold scenes and behaviour planned and reharsed for no other purpose than to entertain thoughtless audiences. Practically the entire output of photoplays is well calculated to make the 21st century congratulate itself on not having been the 20th; yet along with these "thrillers," the screen also presents trustworthy adaptations of famous books. Is it too much to ask that films shall be unostentatiously marked for the benefit of posterity with some token of their real value as evidence. — Christian Science Monitor.

A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general.

While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The more powerful convulsive cough of a big man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a big man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the delicate tissues of the throat, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza and whooping cough.

Yours for Health.—Granny Chamberlain

TROTZKY'S EVIL REGIME BRINGS MORAL RUIN

The first English paper I have seen far a long time drifted into my hands the other day, writes a special correspondent of The London Times at Warsaw. Judging by paragraphs in it, some people in England desire the withdrawal of the Allied troops from the Murman coast.

No doubt behind this desire there is a laudable wish not to interfere in Russia and to let the Russian people settle Russian affairs in their own way. At the same time, one feels that it is well that those at home should know exactly what that "own way" is.

Here at Warsaw we are at the very gate of Russia and there arrive continually fugitives from out of all the vast territory from the Baltic right down to the Ukraine fleeing from the process of Russian consolidation. From a good many talks and interviews with them I have pieced together a general story of the position along all this line and here it is.

That artisan of the new Russia, Trotzky has his headquarters at Moscow but the area of the locust forces may be said to lie generally in a sort of circle from Petrograd southwest to Dvinsk, Minsk, and Homel, thence south to Kursk, Vobenya, Saratoff, Samara and so by Perm and Vologda back to Petrograd.

Turning to that part which must directly concerns Western Europe, that is the part bordering on ex-Russian and ex-Austrian Poland, Trotzky and Lenin held sway till recently about as far as the Ukraine borders. The Germans were in numbers in the Ukraine and in Kieff Skoropadski was the authority, and a leader of armed bands called Petlyura had a vague chieftainship, the Germans generally on one side or the other as local necessities demanded, or else having, especially of late, enough to do to maintain themselves at all. Their retirement has been going on now for some time.

Skoropadski collected a certain force, mainly ex-Russian officers, at Kieff. Upon them his shaky supremacy has been based. But last Sunday —one of the Radziwill family who escaped from there gives me the news —a great part of the city seems to have voluntarily declared for Petlyura and the latter, whose past appears to include stages as dancer, schoolmaster and bath attendant, entered Kieff on Friday, December20, Skoropadski left in disguise in two hours.

His fall was hastened by a grandiloquent proclamation of his issued some two or three months ago, the gist of which was that the Ukraine was destined to absorb Russia. This pronouncement when it came to the knowledge of the Lords Lenin and Trotzky, sealed Skoropadski's fate. Their intention is quite the contrary —that of absorbing the Ukraine and by their usual subterranean methods and by pouring armed bands and agitators into the Ukraine, where the weakening and often accomplice Germans raised no obstacles, they set a surrent in favor of Petlyura.

In Petrograd it appears there is to the outward eye more order than has reigned for long months. It is, however much the same order as obtains in Pompeii. The city is in moral ruin and on the way to being a physical one. The Nevski Prospekt and all the principal streets are filthy and uncared for. Many building have been boarded up. In the streets no one is to be seen but children and men in dirty, unkempt clothing with the sole exception of those wealthy Germanic Russians who are in collusion with Trotzky.

These latter, to whose class, as is known, Trotzky himself belongs, are the only ones to have obtained general immunity from the massacres and exactions of the Bolshevists. Some few were arrested at the beginning of the "Terror" but were afterwards released. Their money is more powerful today than it was even under the Tsar's regime, and they go clothed as they please and live as they please.

While Trotzky officially placards his hatred of capitalism, capital turns all the wheels in Petrograd and anything can be done or obtained, almost, for money provided that a certain amount of murder and pillage is permitted to the Red Guards. It now costs $200 to have a letter delivered to anyone at a prison, and this is a fair example of the universal scale of bribery.

Nearly everybody in Petrograd has got a false passport proclaiming him as a manual worker of some type or other. This is the only safeguard against arrest, which means the disbursing of huge sums of money to be freed, and may mean death. A sort of census was recently made dividing the population into four classes—viz., heavy workers, brain workers in the Soviet and kindred offices, the lesser bourgeois, and the "arch-bourgeois."

Of the last only about 3000 are classified, as the designation is so dangerous and their numbers will steadily decrease as they receive false papers from one or other of the recognized purveyors who are leagued with the Soviet delegates.

No one knows how many are in the prisons, and executions take place methodically among those who cannot buy themselves out. The chief victims are Army officers.

There is a sort of Jacobin Court, which meets in a street now infamous in Russian ears—the Gorokhovaia, or "Street of Peas." The chief judge is an obese Jewess, with oiled locks, who lolls on the seat, while all around her press a crew of Soviet delegates, and especially of more or less self-designated members of the "Extraordinary Committee for Fighting the Counter-Revolution, Speculation and Sabotage."

This woman nominally condemns five or six officers per day, but how many deaths occur in the prisons really no one knows. Among those imprisoned are the Grand Duks Sergius, Constantine, Paul, Alexander and the literary Grand Duke Nicholas. Arrests are made at the sweet will of any Soviet delegates or group of soldiers.

All the spies of the old Imperial regime are now in Trotzky's service, along with a new and diabolically efficient group who always can obtain access to him. Denunciations by telephone are very common. An anonymous person rings up the Gorokhovaia and declares that a given individual is an enemy of the Soviet and the name is entered in a book for arrest immediately. The families of those arrested, unless they can bribe, remain in ignorance of the whereabouts of those carried off.

Some unfortunate women whose husbands have been arrested have later received a letter which on being opened contained the phrase "You may consider yourself a widow now." All food is practically reserved for the soldiers of Trotzky's army. There have been established by him eating-houses in different districts of Petrograd but none dare enter there without running the risk of arrest if his appearance displeases those in charge

Peasants smuggle pieces of bread and some potatoes to the cowed population that stays hermetically at home. But even there there is no safety, as the soldiers may enter any house and do there as they please. Furniture has been nationalized (sic) by a decree of Trotzky and may be seized by them at will. No piece of furniture may be moved from a house or flat without the permission of the usual Soviet delegates.

As might be expected open war has been declared upon all forms of religion. Trotzky has given great attention to the schools, wither carts of his army rations are sent regularly so that the starving population will be sure to send the children there where food awaits them. In all the schools have been organized compulsory lessons, beginning with the youngest children, to train them in the non-existence of a Divine being. The courses are pompuously termed "Atheism courses."

A tax has been established upon icons, the sacred images of the Russian church. Divorce and marriage have been made a matter of 10 minutes before some vague official in the Soviet offices designated for the purpose. Incompatibility of temper secures divorce.

While torture is consolidating his regime, Trotzky, who is much more the dominating factor than Lenin, is living in luxury, guarded by Chinese and Lettish troops at Moscow, in the Kremlin. He frequently takes journeys, however, on his special train, which an officer who recently saw it described to me as being composed of 15 carriages. As he may in the course of a journey have to live in a train, one carriage is piled with flour bags, another with all manner of other provisions. In the centre is a saloon-car —where he receives visitors— and also his sleeping car. Both are the ex-Tsar's cars, and are maintained in the utmost magnificence. Trucks are run at each end, and sometimes in the centre of the train, on which are mounted light artillery and machine guns manned by Chinese and Letts.

There are two engines each carrying a guard with a machine gun. The remaining carriages hold Trotzky's suite and more Chinese Praetorians. The train also is used by Lenin and Zinovieff, Trotzky's Viceroy at Petrograd. These precautions indicate a certain distrust on his part.

In Moscow and Petrograd it is universally believed and by Trotzky feared, that the Allies are on the point of organizing an expedition against him. There have been numerous reports of landings at Reval and of action from the Murman coast, which have disquieted him. He and the two other two of the triumvirate, Lenin and Zinovieff, have all got false passports in case of disaster. Then nothing develops, and they breathe again, saying, as either he or Zinovieff did the other day, half bitterly, half sardonically, "We are dead but no one dare come to bury us."

He is organizing his troops as steadily as he can. Apparently he has between 100,000 and 200,000 fairly reliable men, besides his bodyguard of 5000 Chinese and 6000 or 7000 Letts.

General Barsky, an ex-general of the Imperial army has been made the commander of the Bolsheviki forces at the huge salary of $500 or more a day. The munition factories have been set to work again and Trotzky is thinking of an army in millions for the Spring. There is no escaping, at least in the cities and the towns. The alternative before men is join or starve.

In his way his rule is more iron-fisted than the old Imperial regime. He has declared among his intimates that if the Allies made an attack on Petrograd this Winter he would be obliged to evacuate it and defend Moscow, but if they left it till the Spring he would defend Petrograd. At the same time he is undoubtedly of opinion that the best defence is attack, and he is today projecting what he regards as the first Bolshevist offensive outside his own territory in the shape of the seizure of half the Polish towns and the countryside of Lithuania. The Poles here, on their part, will most probably go to Vilna's relief if they can muster enough material of war. This must depend largely, however, on the date of the arrival of General Haller and his men from France.

All fugitives agree that there is an extraordinary faith in the Allies in Russia in all classes. Soldiers and peasants who hope for a return to civilized life—and there are thousands—say, "We trusted in God and the Emperor and the Allies. God punishes us. The Emperor has left us. Only the Allies are left. If they don't come the Anti-Christ will."

The great evils I have described pale before some of the atrocities that are being regularly committed in and out of the gaols in the towns and in the country in pursuance of Trotzky's policy to terrorize. In England you have been reading merely of thousands being shot, and, dreadful as that sounds, it was lost in the general slaughter of the war.

But there is much worse than mere shooting in Russia. Torture is what has been going on. In Petrograd tales of what happens in prisons such as those of Peter and Paul are shocking but exact evidence of happenings outside prisons is bad enough for anybody.

The nephew of an ex-Russian ambassador to Great Britain told me that he escaped only three weeks ago from near Petrograd and that during his dangerous journey he met brother officers shaken men without any nerves, who told him that comrades of theirs had been stripped, hung head downwards from trees and that Trotzky's fiends had then begun to flay them alive. This occurred near the town of Pskoff.

In Volhynia ex-officers who were trying to reach Poland were taken and stripped, their limbs broken one after another with blows from hammers or rifles, their teeth beaten in, their tongues pulled out and their palpitating bodies thrown on the snow. A man of distinguished family and education who had seen this terrible sight, gave me these details.

Let those who talk of Russia being left to settle her own affairs realize what it means to remove even the distant restraint of the Allied forces from Murman.

WILLARD WILL GET $100,000 WIN, LOSE OR DRAW

Chicago, Jan. 27. — A purse of $100,000 drew Jess Willard, heavyweight, out of retirement.

Tex Rickard promoter of the Gans-Battling Nelson fight, and the heavyweight champion contest between Jeffries and Johnson after two days of conference, obtained Willard's signature to a set of articles to fight an opponent selected by him. He agreed to box any number of rounds up to forty.

The match will be decided next July, probably the fourth.

Willard will receive $100,000, win, lose or draw.

Rickard said that either Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight, or Jack Dempsey, who has been clamoring for a match with the champion would be Willard's opponent. Rickard reserved the right to wait until March 25 before making the selection. The place for holding the fight will be named 60 days before the contest.

The contest will be the first that Willard has fought since he met Frank Moran of Pittsburg, in March 1916. Rickard was the promoter of that fight.

Under the terms of the agreement, the champion agreed to deposit $10,000 with a Chicago bank at once, this sum to be forfeited to Rickard if Willard failed to carry out his promise.

Rickard agreed to deposit $10,000 in Chicago, $15,000 sixty days before the date of the contest and $75,000 48 hours before the battle.

Provided Rickard fails to make the second deposit of $15,000, he agreed to forfeit the first $10,000 to Willard and if he fails to post the $75,000, Willard will receive $25,000.

The Kansas Cowboy agreed not to make any other engagements or to appear to any exhibition contest, and also agreed to be at the place scheduled for the battle 60 days in advance to finish his training.

It was decided that Rickard should name the referee and that his selection would be final.

"I haven't any idea where the contest will be decided," said Rickard. "The laws of the state in which the battle will be staged will, of course, govern the contest in a state allowing bouts of 20 or 30 rounds.

"Wherever the battle is fought, it will not be a baseball park. I plan to build an arena with a aseating capacity of fifty thousand. This will cost $30,000. The prices of admission probably will be from $10 to $50 although these details have not been worked out."

Sam Nemore, of Elsberry, Missouri, who abide in Mosmer, B.C.

January 31st in 1919.

When I wrote my first epistle in the year 1914 the Editor of the Fernie Free Press when he had read my epistle then headed my epistle Sam Nemore, Prophet, and we see that all of God's people are prophets who testifieth these things. See Revelations Chapter 22, verse 20.

About in the year of 1865 when my father bought a new wagon of Joe the Ethiopian blacksmith of New Hope, Missouri, and payed at the rate of $100.25 and sold his wheat for more than $3 a bushel, and we can obtain a new wagon in the U.S.A. for 80 and $90, we can obtain wheat in the U.S. for $2.25. Both of those sales were recently after U.S. war. We note what strict gage the government have that the price of products may not be either too high or too low in recent days and God is also strict that mankind should not be too high minded or too low minded to believe that Jesus is the Son of God. It was August the 29th in the year 1918 that it were thought that I had moved property without leave though I found proof by a prompt government man in the same hour that I had leave to move the property worth ten cents.

And some cripple and even criminals and skeptics appeal to extirpate this Christian function, though yet the Bible is the oldest book in existence. It has outlived the storms of thirty centuries. Men have endeavored by every means possible to banish it from the face of the earth. They have hidden it, burned it, made it a crime punishable with death to have it is possession and the most bitter and relentless persecutions have been waged against those who had faith in it, but still the book lives today, while many of its foes slumber in death and hundreds of volumes written to discredit it and to overthrow its influence are long since forgotten. The Bible has found its way into every nation and language of earth, over two hundred translations of it having been made. The fact that this book has survived so many centuries notwithstanding such unparalleled efforts to banish and destroy it is at least strong circumstantial evidence that the great being whom it claims as its author has also been its preserver. It is also true that the moral influence of the Bible is uniformly good. Those who become careful students of its pages are invariably elevated to a purer life. Other writings upon religion and the various sciences have done good and have ennobled and blessed mankind to some extent but all other books combined have failed to bring the joy, peace and blessing to the groaning creation that the Bible has brought to both rich and poor, to the learned and the unlearned. The Bible is not a book to be read merely. It is a book to be studied with care and thought for God's thoughts are higher than our thoughts and his ways than our ways and if we would comprehend the plan and thoughts of the infinite God we must bend all our energies to that important work. The richest treasures of truth do not lie on the surface. This book throughout constantly points and refers to one prominent character, Jesus of Nazareth, who it claims was the Son of God from the beginning to end. His name and office and work are made prominent that a man named Jesus lived and was somewhat noted about the time indicated by the writers of the Bible is a fact of history outside of the Bible and it is variously and fully corroborated that this Jesus was crucified because he had rendered himself offensive to the Jews and their priesthood is a further fact established by history outside the evidence furnished by the New Testament writers. The writers of the New Testament except Paul and Luke were the personal acquaintances and disciples of Jesus of Nazareth whose doctrines their writing set forth. This is the same Jesus who gives everlasting life four thousand years before he was born. He was with Moses when Moses was leading the three million of Pharoah's slaves through the wilderness. Jesus stated whosoever drank of this spiritual rock shall have everlasting life and they did all drink of it.—See I Corinth. Chap. 10, verse 4. This is the same Jesus who was born to us four thousand years prior to that time, who should be born a child to us to have the government upon his shoulders. See Isiah, Chapter 9, verse 6. It is the same Jesus who with his right hand and his holy arm has gotten us the victory and all the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God, who renders atrocity to be the footstool of autocracy.

RICKENBACHER LOSES SMILE

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 27.—Courting death in dashes with boche planes in the clouds or toying with fate in fantastic aerial acrobatics has driven the once constant smile from the lips of Captain Eddie Rickenbacher, ace of American airmen in France.

This is disclosed in a photograph of the airman with his machine just received by a friend of Rickenbacher's auto racing days when he resided in Des Moines. His face now seems grim and set.

"The smile of days gone by has faded considerably as you will notice." He confesses in an accompanying note. "This is my 220-h.p. Spad, which I have had 18 victories with. Am feeling bully and hope to be back in God's country again soon. Expect to arrive on the Rhine in another week."

This message was dated Dec. 12.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

When you're on a good thing, hold tight. It pays to advertise if you know how, says Jim Thistlebeak. The less a man is abused the more he doesn't amount to.

On account of the incessant wet weather never heard of before at this time of the year, and lest we forget, anyone that's been saving up for a rainy day can get a nice rain coat or rubbers or a never lose umbrella at Roo's store.

A Calgary paper says that girls attain their full growth at 18. The same can be said about elephants, says Jim Thistlebeak, but an elephant is content to travel with only one trunk.

The Rock Creek Lumber Co., Flagstone, B.C., have bought out several timber limits in the Roosville valley and will put in a mill at the Billy Morrison limits just south of the Square Deal ranch. The Downs and Reinecke Lumber Co. sold their holdings also to the Rock Creek Co.

Jim Thistlebeak says there is nothing sensational in the case of the Montreal city woman detective who got the wrong man last week. Women are continually doing that.

The Flagstone Sunshine Society held one of their social dances last Saturday night. The West Family Orchestra furnished the music. There seems to be a race on between the Roosville valley and Flagstone as to which can hold the most dances and eat the most sandwiches. Please pass the apple sauce.

Jim Thistlebeak says take anything that is given you except advice. If it wasn't for woman's curiosity men wouldn't be such gosh darned liars.

Several well known salesmen visited Elko last week. J. C. Shierlock of Cranbrook; Jack Ingram of Fernie; Jack Tabor (the man who put the candy in the Hat) Medicine Hat; C. Brawn (good old English Brawn) of Nelson; a Winnipeg traveller dispensing wisdom and carbolic acid. He looked like a fellow that loved once and lost. A man may dress in such a manner as to look like a cross between a Patagonian spearman and a forked carrot. Women will gaze on him but not to admire his physical charms. The Cow Brand soda man was in and had a side line of Fruit Salts, the two might be a good buy. Several lumber men were in buying lumber, mine props and railway ties. Mr. Juneberg of the G.N. purchasing department, Whitefish, was in town inspecting ties along the right of way.

Jim Thistlebeak says there ought to be a chance for every man to accomplish something these days when a fairly industrious hen can earn six cents a day.

Sergt.-Major Brewer after four years overseas returned to Elko last week and was tendered a great reception by the townspeople. While in Germany the Major got a glance at the whelp Butcher Bill Hohenzollern was saving to be emperor of British Columbia and Tobacco Plains.

LENINE AND TROTZKY CONFESS FAILURE

Lenine and Trotzky, according to the correspondent of the London Daily Mail, confessed recently before the Moscow soivet that the bolshevist regime is bankrupt especially regarding industrial production, finance and food.

Thus ends the mad effort to apply the Marxian theory of proletariat control of government and operation of the national industries.

Marx developed a theory that the capitalistic system filches a major part of the earnings of labor. His illustrations indicated his belief that in the aggregate capital was not conceding the wage earners more than 50 per cent of their earnings. To his way of thinking a wage earner working 10 hours a day for a given wage earned that wage in five hours of labor and for the other five hours daily toiled for the sole benefit and enrichment of his employer.

Clear thinkers long have known that the Marxian theory was built upon a stupendous fallacy — the erroneous assumption that labor was the sole producing factor and that knowledge and skill of managerial direction counted for nothing.

Proofs of the fallacious reasoning of Marxian socialism were abundant long before the Russian experiment. They abound in every community and only the blind can not see them. Take for illustration, the industrial and business history of Spokane for the last quarter of a century. Over and over again we have seen men lose their capital in the effort to build up an industry or a business.

Three men, we shall say, engage in the same line of business in the same town or city on the same street and under the same conditions in every essential particular. They pay their helpers the same wages for the same hours of employment. One of the three will fail in business. Another will struggle along, unable to increase his business. The third will build up a large enterprise.

As matter of records the proportion of business failures is much greater than appears in this illustration. In a majority of undertakings the proprietors find that under their management labor not only extracts all that the business produces but takes as well the original capital which they had put into the undertaking.

Exceptional business ability is a prerequisite to success under our industrial system. Where it is lacking an enterprise goes down under the weight of labor charges.

The Russian bolsheviki have now demonstrated on a gigantic scale the fallacy of the Marxian theory. Notwithstanding their seizure of constructed factories, mines, railroads and other agencies of production and having therefore no "overhead" charges for rent, interest or investment, etc., they are unable to produce enough to pay the workers. After a sorry fashion they kept things going for a while by printing great volumes of paper money and confiscating the accumulated wealth of the middle classes.

The Russian bear has been hibernating under Lenine and Trotzky, living on the fat of past accumulation, but constantly getting poorer and weaker. The disillusion seems to be working, for it appears that Lenine and Trotzky are now telling the soviets that experts from the middle classes must be invited to cooperate with them and that the aid is even needed of the hated and persecuted "intellectuals."

As long as the Marx doctrine were only a glittering theory radical socialists could swim about in the clouds and imagine themselves the discoverers of a new dispensation. Now that they find themselves knocked about by actualities and dazed by realities, the awakening is as from an opium pipe dream or an orgy of vodka intoxication.—Spokesman Review.

MR. DUNCAN'S ELECTION

Mr. Kenneth Duncan has been elected as member for Cowichan in a close contest. It was realized throughout the campaign that the result was uncertain as there were several factors in the situation that it was difficult to estimate. Mr. Duncan was widely known throughout the riding, whereas his opponent was an outsider. Both are soldiers and both ran as independents. The absence of Mr. Duncan during the campaign may, not inconceivably, have resulted in his securing a considerable sympathetic vote, although we incline to think that the real reason for his success lay in the fact that he was known intimately and favorably to so many in the Cowichan district. We hope he will carry the independence of his candidacy into the legislature.

Major F. B. Edwards fought a courageous campaign under many difficulties the greatest of which was that he had to introduce himself to those whose support he sought. We always considered he would have been an acquisition to the legislature and hope that at some future time he will have better luck. He deserves congratulations on the vote he polled when all the features of the campaign were taken into consideration. He will be among the first to wish his successful opponent good luck on the latter's return to take his seat in the legislature.—Colonist.

MINERS' UNION TO FIGHT THE COURT DECISION

Calgary, Jan. 27.—Application for a stay of execution of the judgment for $1070 against local union No. 1562 of the United Mine Workers of America and six individual defendants pending an appeal to the supreme court of Canada was made in chambers and the stay granted by Mr. Justice Scott conditional upon the filing of a bond for the amount of the judgment, or payment into court of money to cover the same.

The judgment was given in favor of two miners Williams and Rees who sued the local union and individual defendants for damages for refusing to admit them as members and also threatening to strike if they were permitted to work in the mines at Wayne.

The application for the stay of execution was made by H. Ostlund of Lethbridge on behalf of the union and the six individual defendants. E. V. Robertson opposed the application except on terms which would secure the plaintiffs in their judgment in the event of their succeeding on appeal. In his argument, Mr. Robertson pointed out that the case was being fought by the union as a test case.

Mr. Robertson called to the attention of the court an interview in a local newspaper credited to Ed. Browne secretary of the United Mine Workers of America for District 18, in which Mr. Browne was reported to have said that the miners meant to fight the judgment, either in another court or by "other methods." He pointed out that this might be construed that an effort would be made to prevent plaintiffs from obtaining their judgment in some manner other than through the courts and for this reason demanded that adequate security be provided pending a stay of execution for appeal.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

I.O.D.E.

The following letters have been received from the Frank and Balfour Sanitoriums:

Frank Sanitorium, Feb. 3.

To Mrs. A. B. Trites, Secretary, Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E.

Dear Madam—In answer to your letter of Jan. 31 re supplies you have to share from Red Cross work, we should be very thankful to have them —all you mention. Indeed, I had a list ready to ask the O.C. where I could get pyjamas, etc. We were getting so short and we would be most thankful for 2 dozen stretcher caps. They will be most useful for the men sleeping on the porches.

Thanking you very much for your kindness and most grateful thanks to all your workers.

Yours faithfully,
Marion Wales, Matron.

Balfour, Feb. 3, 1919.

Mrs. A. B. Trites, Sec. I.O.D,E,

Dear Madam—I have to advise you that we have received samples of stretcher caps and personal property bags Both these articles will be very useful to us here. With the exception of the triangular bandages we would be very grateful if you would send us the whole of the articles enumerated in your letter.

With renewed thanks for your kindly interest. Yours truly,

Geo. E. Shaw,
Med. Supt. Balfour San.

It would seem from these letters that our neighboring military hospitals could keep us busy, but added to this is the general appeal from the coast calling attention to the fact that "the military authorities show that 5000 men will be treated in B.C. hospitals during the next two or three years, and a conservative estimate of what will be required as soon as possible is 15,000 suits of pyjamas, 3000 sleeveless sweaters, 3000 day shirts and 5000 property bags, and urging all Red Cross workers to meet together and begin the task of making these supplies."

Mt. Fernie Chapter can certainly help out in the matter of property bags. There are numbers cut out and all that is needed is the workers to make them. This, with the refugee work already on hand is urgent as after the transportation companies will no longer carry supplies free.

The following work has been made from I.O.D.E. materials and turned in by:

Mrs. Hartley, 3 refugee garments.
Mrs. Reed, 3 refugee garments.
Mrs. Arrowsmith, 3 refugee garments.
Mrs. Birkett, 3 refugee garments.
Mrs. Townsend, 1 refugee garment.
Mrs Stirritt, 1 pair socks.
Mrs. Moses, 1 pair socks.

Donations—

Balance of donation from Morrissey canteen handed in by Major Moffatt, $50.00.

Shipment from Jaffray:
6 day shirts.
36 trench caps.
9 pair socks.
82 many-tailed bandages.
15 suits pyjamas.

Shipment from Waldo I.O.D.E.:
6 pair socks.
6 knitted chin bandages.
4 face cloths.
2 knitted ties.
9 towels.
3 suits pyjamas.
5 refugee garments.

Shipments sent out:

Two cases socks (252 pair) to Siberia.

One case pyjamas (36 suits) to Balfour Sanitorium.

Two cases pyjamas (72 suits), one case towels (150), 1 case pillow slips (336), 1 case many-tailed bandages (108) to Vancouver Red Cross headquarters for military hospitals.

DR. BONNELL'S ADDRESS

The local labor political organization was favored by an address from Dr. Bonnell, M.P., on Sunday evening on "Reconstruction." There were quite a number present and the Doctor received a splendid hearing. He spoke as follows:

I have been invited here this evening to address you on "Reconstruction." When asked by Mr. Phillips and Mr. Robson to speak here this evening on this subject, I told them I knew nothing about "Reconstruction," but would be very glad to listen to any views which would be put forward by them. It seems to me that reconstruction is an indefinite term very similar to the one used by Mr. Wilson in his 14 points of peace, namely: "Freedom of the Seas." I am free to admit I know no more about reconstruction than the average man knows what is meant by "Freedom of the Seas." However, where there is a lot of smoke, there is usually some fire and while we hear the word reconstruction used so often there must be some good reason for it. There is one and that is the fact that we have to face a most unusual condition during this year. We have to provide for about 400,000 men returning from military service and place them once more in suitable and congenial occupations in civil life, so instead of using the word "Reconstruction," I am going to use the term "Reestablishment," and will be very glad to talk to you for a little while this evening on this subject, and to give to you a very faint outline of the manner in which the Dominion Government hopes to successfully reestablish in civil life these everything which we hold dear.

History shows us that the task of demobilizing a large army and having that army re-absorbed into the industrial life of the nation is a very difficult matter of accomplishment. It is well know to men in this audience that large numbers of the heroes of the Crimean War spent the last years of their lives in the various workhouses in England. It is even stated that 75 per cent. of the Crimean veterans ended their lives in the poorhouse. Even in the U. S. after the Civil War, evidence of the failure of the ex-soldier to become absorbed in the industrial life of the nation is not by any means lacking. We might ask the question if there is anything in military training which unfits a man for civilian life and we believe there is. Let us compare military life with the civilian life which he left. In civilian life a man has the responsibility thrust upon him of providing for himself and those dependent upon him; in military life the government provides everything; the food, the clothing and medical services, so that during his military life the man does not have to think about these things; but when he returns to civil life he finds that these become of paramount importance, so when we endeavour to demobilize 400,000 soldiers we find we have something to do in addition to making the necessary industrial adjustment.

We must endeavour to obtain a clear idea of the troubles which the soldier is up against during his first few months after his return to civil life. These men have all looked into the jaws of death and many of them are returning home physically and mentally different to what they were when they left our Canadian shores, and here I want to sound a note of warning and that is that employers of labor must be sympathetic and patient with these men. At first they will be restless and possibly discontented and may wish very early in the game to throw up their jobs and try something else. In many cases, at the start they will not be able to do as much work in a given time as the one who worked in their job before them, but the employer must remember and we must all remember, that everything, every advantage we possess today, we owe to those soldiers and the employer will soon find that in a reasonable time the soldier will find himself and gradually become a normal unit in the civil and industrial life of the country once more.

In previous wars we used to take for granted that the disabled soldier should be thrown back upon the State and become a burden to himself and the country, but we are slowly becoming more enlightened and are endeavouring to deal more justly with the heroes who have made such tremedous sacrifices for the cause of liberty and democracy.

Early in the war the Dominion Government began to attack the problem of the disabled man boldly and during the past three years achieved such success that Australia and the United States have modelled their work along the lines developed in Canada. I now come to the Department of Soldiers Civil Reestablishment.

The Government has made arrangements with the different universities from the Atlantic to the Pacific, to teach the disabled soldier vocational training. If the soldier is disabled from following his usual avocation, the vocational officer will visit him and discuss with him various trades and callngs for which he might be adapted and make arrangements for the disabled man to take up a course of study which will fit him for a new calling and turn him from a liability to an asset.

We had in the month of November, something over 600,000 men engaged in attending classes throughout Canada, taking courses in upward of one hundred different branches. During the time the soldier is taking his course and up to the time of his getting his certificate in competency for graduating, he is under the usual pay and allowances. Our statistics show that about one-tenth of all men passing through the Military Hospitals Commission require to be trained by some means for earning their living. Canada can not afford the loss from her industrial life of the disabled soldier and some of the best brains in the country are being brought to bear on the working out of a solution to the problem for restoring her disabled soldier to a useful and profitable life.

The Soldiers' Settlement Act was passed in 1917 and put into operation by the appointment of the Soldiers' Settlement Board in February. 1918. This is an act to assist returned soldiers in settling on the land and to increase agricultural production. Its purpose is to aid in the re-instalment of the discharged soldier in civil life, in so far as land settlement is a part of reconstructive measures to that end. The main feature of the act is a credit provision to aid the returned soldier, who takes up farming as his occupation, by making him a long term loan at a cheap rate of interest. All loans bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payment of

THE MICHEL G. W. V. A.

A delegation of the Michel Branch of the Great War Veterans Association visited the city yesterday and waited upon General Manager Wilson of the Coal Co., with regard to obtaining suitable quarters for the club rooms of the Association at Michel. Mr. Wilson received the boys cordially and upon hearing their request readily agreed to supply one of the Company's houses completely furnished gratis for the Association for so long as they might require same, and also supply water and light for same free of charge. The delegation were also the recipients of donations from the Crow's Nest Trading Co., the Trites-Wood Co., F. C. Lawe and G. G. Moffatt. T. H. Cox is president and J. Travers, secretary, of the Michel G.W.V.A. and the strength of the membership is 25 at the present time with prospects of a much greater number when the boys from that camp get back from overseas.

AIMING TO CONTROL VENEREAL DISEASES

Ottawa, Feb. 3. — The first steps toward the organization of the social hygiene program for Canada were taken today when representatives of a number of provinces met here at the call of the acting-premier, Sir Thomas White, to discuss legislation for the control of venereal diseases. The conference was brought together at the suggestion of the military authorities, and each province was invited to send its chief health officer.

While some of these were unable to be in attendance, those provinces which could not send representatives sent telegrams expressing their cordial sympthy with the objects of the conference.

During the afternoon session, an important discussion took place and a number of resolutions were passed, in one of which the conference placed itself on record as being in favor of the immediate establishment of a federal board of health.

Another resolution passed states that subject to the consideration of the governments of the respective provinces, the following general principles are necessary in any legislation looking to the prevention and control of veneral diseases: Compulsory notification; compulsory treatment; standardized treatment; authority to examine persons suspected of being affected with venereal disease; prevention of quack treatment, quack remedies, and the advertising of such treatment and remedies; right of entry of public health authorities; prevention of infection, etc.

A resolution advocating the amendment of the criminal code of Canada so that a person who is suffering from a venereal disease is a communicable form who knowingly or by culpable negligence communicates such disease to another person, shall be guilty of a criminal offence, was also passed.

Another one passed advocates that the Dominion government render financial assistance to the provinces in fighting these diseases and another advises the examination of all seamen coming within the purview of the Immigration act, before they are allowed ashore at Canadan ports.

One of the most mportant resolutions passed by the conference draws attention to the fact that the cost of salvarsan and other remedies for the cure of venereal diseases is excessive and that the production of this remedy in Canada is monopolized by two persons or firms, which have been licensed to carry on such production.

It recommends that the government give the right of producing of remedies of this nature to any person or firm satisfying the head of the health department of any province, or the head of the federal health department if such is established, of his, or their ability to produce a satisfactory product.

The British Government apparently contemplates turning natural fuels into electrical power at the pit's mouth and transmitting the energy thence to power consumers. The waste of labor, equipment, and mechanical energy involved in loading coal-trucks, drawing them over rails to their destinations and unloading them into carts for distribution of the coal to consumers has impressed itself forcibly upon those who study practical economics.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to She's gone!

If war work has summoned daughter from the home, or the maid to the munition factory, there are busier times than ever ahead—for women who stay at home.

You need all the time-saving helps you can get hold of. See how Gold Dust helps out day by day:

Monday

Besides being laundry day, means 'picking up' and freshening the house after Sunday. Gold Dust takes care of the 'wiping up' of kitchen and bathroom, removes finger prints from woodwork and windows because it quickly and gently dissolves all oil and grease. A tablespoonful to a half a pail of water.

Tuesday

After the ironing is out of the way there is time for such little odd jobs as cleaning cut glass and bric-a-brac, mirrors, windows, glass globes, lamp shades. They all sparkle like diamonds after an easy application of Gold Dust and hot water.

Wednesday

After baking there must always be a general clean-up of utensils. Gold Dust dissolves the grease quicker than soap—important to remember after shortening has been used. No soapy taste left behind.

Thursday

—is Gold Dust day for bathrooms. Gold Dust smoothly—without scratching, gently dissolves all oil and grease and quickly removes dark circles and stained rims from bath-tubs and bowls. Remember, too, to flush out the pipes with hot water in which you have dissolved a tablespoonful of Gold Dust.

Friday

On sweeping day a cloth dipped in Gold Dust water freshens and purifies door sills and window sills, dark nooks and crannies, and corners of rooms and other places hard to reach where 'oily dust' sticks. A tablespoonful of Gold Dust to half a pail of hot water performs sanitary wonders, for dirt simply can't stick after Gold Dust gets rid of every particle of oil or grease.

Saturday

means extra cooking for over Sunday and the final clean-up of kitchen and kitchen utensils as well. Gold Dust freshens the ice box to receive Sunday's supplies with no danger of soap left behind. A tablespoonful to a dishpan or half a pail of water accomplishes a wonderful amount of sweet cleansing.

BRUSSELS UNDER THE HUN

During the occupation of Brussels by the Huns old corks sold for 3d. and 4d. each, empty tins for 1d. and 2½d. each, old linen, leather trunks, old clothes, books and furniture brought cost price and as much as possible was sold by the Belgians because they never knew what would be seized by their tormentors. Those same tormentors paid £80 for an oriental carpet four feet square that cost £40 in 1880 and had been in constant use. They also paid 1,800 francs for a piano which cost 1,400 francs eleven years before. Other similar purchases were made with the intention of selling the articles later on—doubtless bearing the magic words "made in Germany." Wonderful dyes were to be obtained easily in Brussels and during the past summer Belgian ladies dyed their sheets according to fancy and wore them. Last winter their spare blankets were transformed into coats. For a while the Belgians were hoaxed into wearing their own patriotic emblems which had been manufactured by the Hun and put on sale in Brussels. But as soon as the hoax was discovered Belgians refused to avail themselves of the privilege of buying German-made goods. A flint and steel for lighting the gas, although clever, was unsaleable, the reason being that it was made by the Huns. Brass water taps were taken by the enemy and for these they paid two francs fifty, charging six francs for taps to replace the requisitioned ones. The new ones were, of course, "made in Germany." Door handles and bell pulls were seized in the same manner but were not replaced by houseowners. It became "all the style" to hang a piece of fire-wood to the well wire.

Houses were constantly searched for everything that could be used in manufacturing ammunition, choice furniture was seized as well as elegant or luxurious clothing—all sent to Germany as loot. During this time there was no communication with the outside world—only such letters and news as the Hun chose to allow. It is scarcely conceivable that France and Belgium are even now filled with war's victims who are hearing for the first time of what has been happening outside their own little environment during the awful five years just closed.

LABOR NOT IN POLITICS

The launching of a new political labor party will not have the support of the American Federation of Labor if Mr. Gompers is to continue to be the Federation's leader. Mr. Gompers himself attempted to form a political party of labor in 1885, supporting the Henry George movement. Convinced that labor suffered thereby, he abandoned the project.

Study of labor conditions in other countries which have political labor parties has confirmed Mr. Gompers's personal experience that it is a mistake for labor to subordinate its economic mission to a political movement. Under the present system he considers labor a stronger force in the United States than it is in England, France or Germany, under the political method. "American labor during this war," says Mr. Gompers. "has accomplished three times what England has accomplished without a political party of its own. If labor goes into politics it will have to get votes, and labor will decline from a powerful economic unit to a vote-catching machine."

Mr. Gompers was doubtless confirmed in his opposition to a separate political labor party by the attempt to use labor for German propaganda purposes in the first part of the war. Thousands of dollars of German money, it is disclosed, were spent in promoting labor meetings to serve the German cause. Representative Buchanan, a so-called labor Congressman who was active in spreading German propaganda, is still in the service of the Government in connection with the settlement of labor difficulties.

President Gompers, Secretary Morrison and other leaders of the American Federation are convinced that the future of labor in this country lies in keeping it a purely economic force instead of attempting to mix the economic and political elements. Leslie's has always contended that there is no labor vote in this country that can be delivered to any one candidate or party. The workingman reserves the right to discriminate among parties and candidates, and votes as an individual, not as a member of a class.

No voter is more independent than the American workingman, and it is passing strange that politicians permit themselves to be misled by political labor leaders who claim to carry the worker's votes in their pocket.—Leslie's.

CHINESE ALLOWED TO RETURN TO CANADA

Chinese residents in Canada who have been detained in China through war conditions and who are legally entitled to return to the Dominion are dealt with by an order passed on January 14, as follows:—

Whereas changes in the trans-Pacific service to Canada have so materially reduced the boat accomodation that there are now in China many Chinese legally entitled to return to Canada who are unable to secure transportation;

And whereas this situation has been brought about by war conditions.

Therefore His Excellency the Governor General in Council, on the recommendation of the Minister of Immigration and Colonization and under and in virtue of the provisions of the War Measures Act, 1914, is pleased to make and doth hereby make and enact the following regulation:—

All Chinese who have registered out between November 15, 1917, and November 15, 1918, may prolong their return to Canada without in any way affecting their right to free re-entry until six months after a proclamation has been published in the Canada Gazette declaring that a state of war no longer exists.

The ex-Crown Prince of Germany has been suggested as king of Sinn Feiners, which is about the limit of punishment suggested for any of the Hohenzollerns.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

VINOL MAKES WEAK WOMEN STRONG

Positive—Convincing Proof

We publish the formula of Vinol to prove convincingly that it has the power to create strength.

Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any woman who buys a bottle of Vinol for a weak, run-down, nervous condition and finds after giving it a fair trial it did not help her, will have her money returned.

You see, there is no guess work about Vinol. Its formula proves there is nothing like it for all weak, run-down, overworked, nervous men and women and for feeble old people and delicate children. Try it once and be convinced.

I.O.D.E.

ada and hope soon to be on our way. We shall never forget the good work done for us by you ladies and do not know how we should have fared if it had not been for your assistance.

Again thanking you. Yours truly,
J. R. Furneaux, 2nd C.M.R.
Belgium, Dec. 20.

Mount Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E.:

Ladies—I received in good condition the splendid parcel which you so kindly sent me. It certainly was a good parcel and socks were most acceptable and the soap was a blessing for we were about out of this commodity and it has been next to impossible to buy any. I certainly appreciate the kindly remembrance of the ladies of the I.O.D.E. and thank you all most heartily. Our division (the 4th) was at Valenciennes when the armistice was signed. After Valenciennes was taken the 1st and 3rd divisions took the initiative and reached Mons, when the fighting ceased. We then followed up and are now near Namur. The French and Belgian people have been very kind to us. As we advanced at night they offered us beds and in the morning hot coffee and nothing seemed too much trouble to them. We passed through the mining districts of Belgium and are now in the farming district. The people here are poor and Fritz has robbed them of the greatest part of their live stock and whatever else he wanted. The rich people fared better for as long as they were able to supply "good eats" to the officers they were not molested, but he took whatever he wanted from the rest at the point of the pistol.. When thinking of the people of France and Belgium one must not remember the unsanitary conditions or out of date customs, but at something more—above all that one sees a good hearted, intensely loyal and somewhat religious people. In a French town not long after the Hun was driven out it was a most pathetic sight to see the Mayor surrounded by the people, their hats off and tears streaming down their faces listening to the band of the 38th Batt. playing their beloved National Anthem. The people everywhere have the same tales to tell of the German cruelties, some of them so vile and brutal as to seem impossible, and the French and Belgians will never forget or forgive. We are all very much pleased with the prospect of getting home to Canada but we also will never forget our experiences here or our comrades that we leave behind sleeping in the land they have made sacred by giving all a man can give, their graves marked by the small white symbol so appropriate to the sacrifice they have made. Yours respectfully,

Aubray Fisher, 10th C.E.F.
Janche, Belgium.

To Secretary I.O.D.E.:

I beg you to convey my most hearty thanks to the ladies of your Chapter for the two lovely pairs of hand knit socks and all the other good thinge enclosed in Xmas parcel. I appreciate them greatly and hardly know how to thank you all for your good work for the boys "out here." No doubt you are all happy to have some of the heavy burden lifted with more peaceful times in sight. I have not any idea when we boys will be coming back but we are all looking forward to the great home coming. It is going to be rather hard, however, for the dear ones at home whose sons and relatives have "paid." The few of us coming back should be very thankful.

The above village is where my battalion is located at present on our great and glorious march to the Rhine. Probably you may see it on the map, still judging by actual size I have "me doubts." It is a pretty little place, ideal for "peace time soldiers." Our billets are hard to heat and I have the finest bed outside my own home. How I long for old Fernie. Am afraid we will find many changes since 1915. Oh, well, cheer up, will soon be back. As ever,

Yours sincerely,
Corpl. W. E. Duthie,
54th Can. Batt.
Dottingnes, Belgium, Jan. 13.

To the Regent I.O.D.E.:

Dear Mrs. Moffatt—On behalf of my friends and myself in the signal section allow me to thank you and the ladies of the I.O.D.E. for your kindness in sending parcels of fsocks which arrived O.K. I am sure you will never realize how much we boys over here have appreciated your efforts on our behalf during the war. Some of the boys, including myself, have not been very prompt in acknowledging the parcels but you may rely on their being appreciated, this last parcel especially as it arrived when very much needed even though active service conditions do not now prevail. We all hope to be back soon and able to thank you personally.

Sincerely yours,
J. Russell Dudley.

The mines were idle several days this week owing to lack of orders. The mild winter has put the coal market in a very poor condition. The prairie camps which produce mostly domestic coal were the first to feel the slump in orders.

Billy Bleasdell, son of A. W. Bleasdell, is back from the war and is spending a week or two with his father. Billy enlisted from Montreal early in the war and saw most of the fighting. He is looking fine and all his old friends are out with the glad hand.

In our last issue we reported that Sergt. Jimmy Osborne arrived home from the U.S., where he had been acting as instructor for American troops for several months. This was incorrect. Sergt. Osborne came over from England on the Empress of Asia. He had been in the United States for a while but was sent with a Canadian delegation to Italy on military duty and from there he returned to England, returning to Canada on the Asia.

Jimmy McCool held a birthday party one day this week.

Jesse Mansfield of Elk Prairie was a visitor to the city on Thursday.

Norman Parker, of the Western Canada Wholesale, was in Blairmore on Thursday.

Thos. Biggs, President of District 18, U. M. W. of A., came in from Calgary yesterday.

The local ladies' hockey team are figuring on a trip to Banff. That is the nearest point where there is another ladies' team.

Lumber operations for the coming season are not looking very bright. High wages prevent local companies from taking a chance.

The fire brigade responded to a call from the Annex on Tuesday evening, when a small dwelling in the outskirts of the city caught fire.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Mike Coma, aged 25 years, was held on Wednesday from the Holy Family church. Deceased is survived by her husband and eight year old son.

Several appeals from convictions under the Prohibition Act which were to have been heard before Judge Thompson at Cranbrook this week have been adjourned until Feb. 17.

Dr. Bonnell left on Tuesday for Vancouver to visit his family, previous to going to Ottawa for the opening of the House. He and R. F. Green will meet a delegation of lumbermen in Cranbrook on the 15th.

Tony Trosh, a Russian, was this week sentenced to six months in the pen for carrying offensive weapons. This is Tony's second offense and his second term in jail. He will begin to think that a butcher knife is a poor tool for an honest man to pack.

Coleman hockey team arrived in the city this morning, supported by a good bunch of rooters and will take the measure of our local team tonight at 7.30. Don't miss this game as both teams are in good shape and it promises to be a real exhibition.

Over one hundred Russians have pulled up stakes here during the past couple of weeks and left for their old homes. They are all plentifully supplied with good Canadian coin which they should be able to exchange for about five times its value in Russian money.

Harry Martin in the course of an address the other day stated that the government should do something towards housing the Russians who reside in the shacks behind the coke ovens. If reports are true those boys could have the finest houses in the city if they wanted to loosen up on their coin.

Frank Brindley, one of the tellers for District 18, returned on Monday from Calgary after completing the count of the ballots cast in the final heat for election of District Officers. The official figures have not been published but it is conceded P. M. Christopher, of Blairmore, is President, and A. McFegan, Vice-President.

Examinations were held at the court house last Saturday for applicants to enter the provincial civil service for the position of officer in charge of the Employment Bureau to be established in this district which will be operated in conjunction with the Department of Soldiers' Civil Reestablishment. Govt. Agent, Ronald Hewat, acted as examiner and five candidates wrote the examination, all of whom were returned soldiers. The location of the employment bureau has not been announced by the government but Cranbrook has been mentioned as being the favored city for the headquarters bureau with possibly a branch bureau in this city.

A pleasant afternoon was spent at the Ferne curling rink on Wednesday of this week when three visiting rinks from Coleman were entertained by the local club. The visiting rinks were skipped by Messrs. Whitesides, Liddle and Woodhull and each team played two games. The Fernie skips were Messrs. Liphardt, Kastner, J. Johnston, R. M. Young and J. S. Irvine The scores were very even and although Fernie had a shade the edge on the visitors neither side had any cinch. This is the first year that Coleman has had a curling club and they have already a membership of 11 rinks, and considering the age of the club the members who visited Fernie show splendid form. Fernie will shortly send a few teams down to return the visit.

Tom Moore, president of the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress, went to Toronto to address a mass meeting of persons opposed to the curtailment of free speech and a free press. Because some of his views did not suit certain elements of the crowd he was howled down. Free speech seems to be popular only when it is in accord with what the other fellow thinks. Hypocracy is one of the marked features of the present day agitator.—Lethbridge Herald

In one of the public schools of this district recently, a teacher had occasion to give one of the pupils "a taste of the bud." As a result of this she had rather a stormy interview with the boy's father. However, the next day she received a note from the boy's mother saying: "Dear teacher, if you think Jack needs a licking, whale him good. Never mind what the father says, I'll attend to him."

INDIANS GAINING IN NUMBERS AND PROSPERITY

That the Indian population of Canada is slowly but steadily increasing, that the income of the Indians and the value of their real and personal property has increased, and that over 3,500 Indians, or about 35 per cent of the Indian male population of military age, enlisted for active service are interesting facts appearing in the annual report of the Department of Indian Affairs for the year ended Mar. 31, 1918, just published.

According to the report, the total number of Indians and Eskimos in Canada is 109,294. Of this total, 105,998 are Indians and 3,296 are Eskimos. The total value of the real and personal property possessed by the people of the native race in 1918 was $65,285,112, against $62,885,915 in the preceeding year and $56,436,089 in 1916. The total income of the Indians from all sources in 1918 was $8,418,307.10, against $7,300,486 in 1917. This is an increase of $1,117,821.10 over the income of the Indians in the preceeding year. The tables given in the report show that there has been an increase of upwards of two and one-half millions of dollars in the income of the Indians during the past four years.

The report emphasizes the loyal and patriotic spirit shown by the Indians during the war and their gallantry on the field of battle. As shown by the report, many of the Indian soldiers have been decorated for bravery. The sum of $24,503.91 had been contributed by the Indians to the Patriotic, Red Cross, and other war funds up to the date of the publication of the report.

Referring to the part taken by the Indians in the war, the report says: "Special mention of Nawash, Cape Croker, Rama, Saugeen, Georgina and Snake Island, the Mississaugas of Ssugog, the Fort William band, and the Moravians of the Thames in Ontario, the Micmacs of Prince Edward Island, the Cote band, in the Pelle Agency, Saskatchewan, and the Head of the Lake band, in the Okanagan Agency, British Columbia, as these bands have been sent to the front practically all their able-bodied male members of military age. Many of the Indians are excellent snipers, and their remarkably fine work in this branch of the service has evoked a great amount of comment and admiration. The Indian women rendered valuable service in Red Cross work, knitting socks, mufflers, and supplying various comforts for the soldiers. On a number of reserves they operated branches of the Red Cross with great successs."

According to the report, education among the Indians is making good progress. There are 339 schools of all classes in operation under the auspices of the Department—264 day schools, 58 boarding and 17 industrial schools. The total enrolment for 1918 was 12,413—6,211 boys and 6,202 girls—an increase of 235 pupils over the preceeding year.

The expenditure on Indian education from parliamentary appropriations during the year amounted to $734,122.33, about the same as that of the previous fiscal year.

In addition to these appropriations, the various bands of Indians whose funds were sufficient contributed the sum of $29,340.70 toward the payment of teachers' salaries and the maintenance of school buildings on their reserves.

The report refers to the Greater Production campaign carried on on the Indian reserves throughout the Dominion. The campaign met with great success, as shown by the report. On the reservations in Ontario practically every acre of land suitable for such purposes was utilized either in the raising of crops or pasturing of cattle.

Indian fall fairs are being organized, it is stated, and the agricultural policy of the Department has resulted in largely increased areas being placed under cultivation. In a number of places short courses in agriculture were given to Indians and other means have been taken to stimulate farming among the Indians, with good results. Several thousand acres of land on various reserves in the Prairie Provinces were divided into Greater Production farms and tractors were purchased by the Department. The results were highly satisfactory, according to the report. There was a large increase in grain production, and also an increase in farm stock, on the reserves, due to the activities of the Department and to the added interest taken by the Indians in farming. In 1917 the number of acres of land under crop on the Indian reserves throughout Canada was 70,688 acres. In 1918 there were 82,421 acres under crop, an increase of 11,733 acres.

The health of the Indians and their observance of the rules of personal cleanliness and sanitation are improving, the report states, and their dwellings are improving. The number of Indians living in good houses is increasing, and there has, on the whole being marked progress and prosperity among the Indians during the past year, according to the report.

MINING CONVENTION TO BE HELD AT VANCOUVER

On March 17th and 19th there will be held in the city of Vancouver the first International Mining Convention ever held on the Pacific coast, so far as Canada is concerned. Some months ago it was considered by men who are identified with the Vancouver Chamber of mines that the holding of a convention would give a filip to the industry and arouse more interest in what is B.C.'s basic industry. The date was fixed for last January but several causes led to its being set back and now those above mentioned have been settled on as the most suitable time when the topnotchers in the mining world will be able to come to the coast and take part in the proceedings.

The object of the convention is to give the citizens of B. C. and those who are not residents of the province an opportunity of seeing what B. C. can do in the way of producing ores of all kinds and the treatment of same. In this way it is hoped to advance the industry in a way that could not otherwise be done. The greatest collection of ores ever seen in Canada will be on exhibition and the mechanical part of this section will not be the least interesting part of the exhibits.

The treatment of the ores will be demonstrated from the moment they leave the mines until they are turned out in the form of gold, silver, copper, and other metals, and special attention is to be given to this department by a committee which has been appointed to look after it. In themselves, these exhibits which will range from a model to the full fledged thing will be educative, as they will illustrate how the various ores are handled.

Invitations are being extended to the greatest mining experts from the Atlantic to the Pacific, both in Canada and the United States, and in addition to these the various district mining engineers in B. C. and the men who have been identified with mining all their lives on this coast are being asked to be present, and a general acceptance is anticipated. Already many inquiries have been received regarding the convention from men connected with the big mining corporations, and the committee are confident that the attendance will be representative of every section of the mining world, from the prospector to the financier.

It is the intention to send a representative of the Chamber of Mines to this district within a short time, due notice of which will be given, to arrange for a delegaton of citizens to go to Vancouver in the third week of March and to have a local formed for that purpose. This idea will, it is believed, have the effect of arousing the keenest interest in this center and by that means, every section of the province will be represented at the convention.

Among the items on the program which is being drawn up, will be a visit to some big mining centre where the various operations will be seen, and a definite statement on this will be made in a week or two. The convention promises to be the most successful meeting of its kind ever held in the Dominion.

WAR SAVING PLAN FILLS LONG FELT WANT

It had long been felt that there was great need in Canada for such a movement as that represented in the National War Savings campaign. Large as was the number of subscribers to the second Victory Loan, it averaged but one for every seven of the population. This leaves quite a field for the War Savings plan. In the United States one in five subscribed the Fourth Liberty Loan and yet the War Savings campaign is being pushed most energetically in that country.

Through the War Savings Plan the person of small means has a chance such as was never offered before to invest in a Canadian Government security. For the person who pays $4 for a War Savings Stamp buys a government security on which 4½ per cent. compounded half-yearly is paid. Even the person with only 25c can through buying a Thrift Stamp, take the first step towards getting one of these small government securities, in the form of a War Savings Stamp.

Two Prince Rupert women, who paid a stranger $1480 in cash for one pint of excellent whiskey, feel that they have a grievance. The women thought they were buying for this money 45 gallons of the forbidden intoxicant, and the test they made convinced them that the quality was good. Later they discovered that a capsule containing about a pint of liquor had been fitted underneath the bung and that the remainder of the barrel was full of water. The man, having disposed of the lonely pint at the rate of $11,830 a gallon, which undoubtedly constitutes a record, left for the south and is believed to be in Vancouver.

The Plain Truth about Shoe Prices

LEATHER is scarce and is growing scarcer. A large part of the available supply must be used for soldiers' boots. Importations have practically ceased and we are forced to depend upon the limited quantity of materials produced in Canada.

The cost of everything which goes into a pair of shoes is high, and is going higher. Workmen by the thousands have joined the colors, and labor is increasingly hard to get. It is not merely a matter of high prices, but of producing enough good quality shoes to go around.

These conditions are beyond the control of any man, or any group of men. They fall on all alike. No one is exempt—neither the manufacturer, the dealer, nor the consumer.

You must pay more today for shoes of the same quality than you did a year ago. Next Spring, prices will be higher still.

These are hard facts. They will not yield to argument. They cannot be glossed over. We cannot change them, much as we would wish to do so.

But you, as a wearer of shoes, can help to relieve them if you will exercise prudence and good judgment in purchasing. See that you get real value for your money. Spend enough to get it, but spend nothing for "frills."

See that the manufacturer's trade-mark is stamped upon the shoes you buy. High prices are a temptation to reduce the quality in order to make the price seem low. But no manufacturer will stamp his trade-mark upon a product which he is ashamed to acknowledge. Remember this, and look for the trade-mark. It is your best assurance of real value for your money.

Sam Nemore, of Elsberry, Missouri, who abide in Hosmer, B.C.

February the 7th in 1919.

I will now write you a paragraph—October the 24th in 1918 I obtained a vision and when the view that I had in the vision be interpreted apparently there will be at least six different nations or languages who in recent years will be edifyed in progress—a change by a bright light of God's symbolical.

Is restitution practicable? Some have supposed that if the billions of the dead were resurrected there would not be room for them on the earth and that if there should be room for them the earth would not be capable of sustaining so large a population. It is even claimed by some that the earth is one vast graveyard and that if all the dead were awakened they would trample one upon another for want of room. This is an important point. How strange it would be if we should find that while the Bible declares a resurrection for all men yet by actual measureoment they could not find a footing on the earth. Now let us see. Figure it uot and you will find this an unfounded fear. You will find that there is an abundance of room for the restitution of all, as God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets. Let us assume that it is 6000 years since the creation of man and that there are fourteen hundred millions of people now living on the earth. Our race began with one pair but let us make a very liberal estimate. Suppose that there were as many at the beginning as there are now and further that there never were fewer than that number at any time, though actually the flood reduced the population to eight persons. Again let us be liberal and estimate three generations to a century or 13 years to a generation, though according to Genesis 5 there were but 11 generations from Adam to the flood, a period of 1656 years or about 150 years to each generation. Now let us see, 6000 years are 60 centuries. Three generations to each century would give us 180 generations since Adam and fourteen hundred millions to a generation would give two hundred and fifty two billions (252,000,000,0z0) as the total number of our race from creation to the present time according to this liberal estimate, which is probably more than twice the actual number. Where shall we find room enough for this great multitude? Let us measure the land and see. The State of Texas, U.S., contains 237,000 square miles. There are 27,878,400 square feet in a mile and therefore six trillion six hundred and seven billion one hundred and eight million eight hundred thousand (6,607,180,800,000) square feet in Texas. Allowing ten square feet as the surface covered by each dead body we find that Texas as a cemetery would at this rate hold 660,718,080,000 bodies or nearly three times as many as our exaggerated estimate of the numbers of our race who have lived on the earth. A person standing occupies about one and two-third square feet of space. At this rate the presentpopulation of the earth, one billion four hundred million persons, could stand on an area of 86 square miles, an area much less than that of the city of London or of Philadelphia or the Island of Ireland. An area of 32,000 square miles would furnish standing room for more than twice the number of people who have ever lived oh the earth even at our exaggerated estimate. There is not much difficulty then in settling this objection and when we call to mind the prophecy of Isiah, chapter 35, verses 1—6, that the earth shall yield her increase, that the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose, that in the wilderness shall waters break out and streams in the desert. We see that God indicates that he has foreseen all the necessities of his plan and will make ample provision for the needs of his creatures in what will seem a very natural way in theology.

principle and interest to be made in equal annual instalments extending over a period of 20 years. If it can be shown that it would be detrimental to the soldier's interest to make payment during the first 2 years, the Board may defer the payment of the first 2 instalments to a later date.

The Railway Companies of Canada have been approached by representatives of the government and an arrangement was made to allow the disabled soldiers the low rate of one cent per mile. This rate will apply to the soldier's first trip with a farmer, to attend an agricultural school or to look for land. It will also apply in case the soldier wishes to return to his home destination for the purpose of transporting his goods or family to his farm, the same rate being allowed to the adult members of his family who travel with him.

As there are only 4 provinces in Canada where there are Dominion Crown lands, it has been decided upon by the Government, at the coming session of the Dominion Parliament, to enact legislation giving the Soldier's Settlement Board power for the acquirement of privately owned lands by expropriation or otherwise for the purpose of soldier's settlement. As the Board has been collecting data upon available land the information which they have collected will be placed at the disposal of the soldier when selecting his land.

Courses of training have been instituted at the Agricultural Training Schools and experimental farms in every province of the Dominion. The soldier will be instructed how to handle feed and take care of horses. He will also be instructed in all kinds of farm machinery, such as plows, grain drills, cultivators, mowers and binders. A course of general building, construction, carpentery, blacksmithing, will also be at his disposal. He can also receive instruction in livestock and the finer points of feeding them.

In addition to the settlement of our soldiers on the land, the Dominion Government will encourage the development and construction of new railway lines wherever it is deemed advisable. It seems to me that private individuals who have held railway charters for a number of years should either now begin the immediate construction of these lines or else have their charter cancelled. Already on the prairie, provision has been made for the construction of a government-owned branch of the C. N. R. through a profitable farming country. As very little work has been done on the road-beds of the different railways throughout Canada for the past 4 years, it will be necessary and in the interests of the travelling public, to immediately begin the necessary and required repairs to the different road-beds. Owing to our energies being concentrated on war materials and owing to the scarcity of labor, the ties have not been renewed as they should have been and many of them are at present in a state of rot. It is estimated that during the next 18 months, practically every tie which is now in a road-bed shall have to be taken up and replaced by a new one. Grades will also have to be built up and track ballasted. This will give employment to a large number of unskilled laborers.

As we have been so busy raising money for the purposes of carrying on the war our public works have also been neglected during the past four years. This applies to public works which are owned and controlled by the Dominion Government, by the various provincial governments, and also by all the cities and municipalities in the Dominion. All these organizations have a responsibility to the returned man which must not be shirked and it is their duty, and, I believe the intention, of these various organizations to begin the construction of necessary public works at the earliest possible date.

A year ago it was recognized that in the readjustment period it would be necessary to create machinery which would facilitate the re-absorbtion of our soldiers into normal civilian life and during the last session of Parliament, an act called the "Employment Offices Coordination Act" was placed on the statute books. This Act states that the Minister of Labor is authorized to aid and encourage the organization and co-ordination of employment offices. This subject was thoroughly discussed last November between the Provincial members and the Dominion Government. It is proposed to set up employment offices in all cities with a population of ten thousand or more and in such smaller places as the need warrants. Each local office will be in charge of a superintendent, with the necessary staff of clerks. The local offices within any one province are linked together by a provincial clearing house in the capital city where daily reports will be received, by wire if necessary, from each local superintendent as to the scarcity or shortage of labor.

In addition thereto the Department of Labor will establish three Dominion clearing houses; 1 at Winnipeg, 1 at Ottawa, and 1at Halifax. It is to be hoped, by gathering all the information possible, that where there are numbers of unemployed men they shall be readily transferred to a place where they can secure employment and where there is a shortage of labor.

Before closing, let me read a quotation from a speech of Lloyd-George, delivered at Guild Hall in London.

"That task is not at an end when the treaty of peace is signed. It will only be beginning. Victory has its share and its burdens as well as defeat. The pride of victory may be as destructive a dissolvent as the bitterness of disappointment. The next few years are charged with the fate of Britain and of her Empire, and I appeal solemnly in this great hour. Let us banish faction until the Empire has been thoroughly welded. We have done so well without it. Any faction fights would mean the paralysis of an energy which is essential to clearing the debris of war, and to building up a great and prosperous country for a happy and contented people to live in and enjoy the fruits of their triumph. Let us suppress sectional prejudice. It is just as essential in these coming years of peace as it was in war, and in the decisive years to come let us resolve that we shall place loyalty to the land we love first and last, the land whose efforts at sea, in the air and on the land, have done so much to redeem the world from the scourge that was menacing its liberties. I appeal to you that, as we were united in war and achieved victory, we shall unite in peace and lift up this country by our own efforts to a position such as it has never held in its great history.

"THREE ACRES AND LIBERTY"

Among the myriad schemes for rendering disabled soldiers self-supporting and at the same time happy is the Vanguard Farm at Sutton Valence, Kent. Splendid acreage has been secured and the farm is worked co-operatively. Severely ijured sailor and soldiers with their families can settle on the land, each family being given a cottage, stock, seeds, etc. The community does the farming, each member contributing according to his physical ability. Any surplus products and stock are sold through the co-operative centre. There is an arrangement whereby members of the colony may purchase their cottages, land and stock by easy instalments. The work on the farm is already under way and there is a long list of applicants.

Since there will, in all probability, be similar attempts in Canada to provide Garden Cities or co-operative farms the question of up-to-date housing that is also economical and low in its first cost is one that will receive investigation. Probably one of the best of these is what is called the "pour house." In the "Self Masters" Colony of Union, New Jersey, fourteen of these houses have been erected. A set of wooden moulds is built at the cost of a few thousand dollars and concrete is poured into them. These moulds are rented to the house builders and within a week the house is finished, a six-room, thousand-dollar house, proof against fire, vermin and earthquakes, forever free from repairs, insurance and a non-conductor of heat or cold. When the concrete is set the moulds are removed and rented to the next homesteader.

DOMINION EXPRESS CO. AND RETURNED SOLDIERS

The following communication from the General Superintendent:

At the outbreak of war it was announced that the Company would reserve their positions for any member of the permanent staff who joined the forces of Great Britain or Canada for active military service.

The Company will in accordance with its undertaking provide employment for all those returning soldiers who at the time of their enlistment were filling permanent positions or had been in the Company's service for a period of over six months, and who apply for re-employment within three months of the date they are discharged from military service.

It is possible that a number of men returning may be incapacitated for service in the occupation in which they were previously engaged, but in such cases we must make every endeavor to furnish work which their condition will enable them to perform.

No distinction will be made as between men who enlisted voluntarily or were drafted.

FATHERS HOLD LONG SESSION

The city fathers gathered en blanc last evening upon the occasion of the regular meeting.

After the opening ceremonies and the adoption of the minutes, D. Nicolletti, lessee of the Roma Hotel, applied to the council for a reduction in water rates in view of the fact that since prohibition came into effect no meals had been served at this hotel and the use of the kitchen abandoned and the water turned off. The matter will be investigated.

A letter of great length was received from G. G. McGreer, M.P.P. for Richmond, outlining a method for forming what might be termed a Provincial Municipal Police department. The method suggested is to follow the lines of the Royal North West Mounted Police. The matter was tabled until next meeting.

Wm. Robson appeared on behalf of a committee on river bank protection and stated that the work as proposed was absolutely inadequate and requested the council to withhold any expenditure until the matter was investigated. Ald. Beck and Ald. Robichaud, the works and property committee were in favor of suspending the work temporarily at least.. A special meeting of the council is being held this afternoon at 2.30 this afternoon, when Mr. Cummings, District Engineer, will be present. Following this decision it was moved by Beck-Gates: "That the city council is in favor of suspending work on river bank protection for the present." — Carried.

A communication from the City Clerk Vancouver, enclosing a resolution adopted by that council, petitioning the federal government regarding the "expulsion from Canada of all undesirable aliens," and seeking endorsement by the local council. His Worship was of the opinion that this country was capable of having a population of millions and consequently he favored expanding the population instead of reducing it. The resolution, without objection, was tabled for call by the Mayor.

It transpired, that the government has made no provision in the plans for the new Fairy Creek bridge for the carrying the city water main. This would cost the city $1500 and is thought to be unnecessary.

Mr. Forman replied to the city re the city's protest concerning the amount of $354.50 for survey and plans for river protection and insisted that same was quite properly charged in this account. Innocently the report of the proceedings in connection with this account when it was considered at a former meeting of council, caused A. Cummings, who performed the survey work, to fall into a paroxysm of aggrieved rage through the inadvertent substitution of an "A" for a "J." However, while we regret having caused Mr. Alfred Cummings any unpleasantness, his letter of correction is a very valuable document for the council to refer to inasmuch as it contains an admission which will possibly show the Prov. Public Works Dept. that the council's original contention was a justifiable one. In part Mr. Cummings says: "The point at issue with the council regarding the matter of this bill is that the Provincial Public Works Dept. should not charge it in the joint account of fifty-fifty agreement of city river protection or if a charge for engineering costs were made it should only be a portion of this bill, as the city river work is only a portion of the actual engineering work covered by the bill." In view of Mr.. Forman's attitude that the whole bill was for river bank protection work it will be up to somebody to explain to the satisfaction of the council before it will be approved, just what is meant by including "only a portion of the actual engineering work covered by the bill." Thus it would appear that in this particular case that a wrong (typographical error) will contrary

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE I.O.D.E.

The Annual Meeting of the Daughters of the Empire was held on Feb. 8 and the following officers were elected for the present year:

Regent—Mrs. A. I. Fisher.

1st Vice-Regent—Mrs. E. K. Stewart.

2nd Vice-Regent—Mrs. J. S. Irvine.

Secretary—Mrs. N. E. Suddaby.

Echoes—Mrs. M. A. Kastner.

Educational Secretary—Mrs. R. W. Wood.

Treasurer—Mrs. S. Graham.

Standard Bearer—Miss Crocker.

Councillors — Mesdames Duthie, Beck, Birkett, Barber, Carmichael, Asselstine, Corbett, Hogan, Walker and Greenwood.

The reports of the Secretary and Treasurer were read, showing the work done by the Chapter during the past year. The following are copies:

In presenting this, the seventh Annual Report of the Mount Fernie Chapter, we feel that it has been a banner year and the splendid results attained show that the citizens of Fernie and the surrounding towns have given their unstinted support and sympathy to every appeal, and with such a spirit prevailing it is not surprising that we have been able to accomplish so much.

The receipts for the year totalled $8317.44, of which amount $3927.02 was received from the Amalgamated Patriotic Fund. As they have an agreement with the citizens whereby a specified amount is collected monthly, they do not wish us to hold tag days, so they contributed a certain amount each month for Red Cross work. Monetary assistance has been received from Michel, Natal, Flagstone, Newgate, Roosville and Bull River. Cut out garments have been sent to the Red Cross Society at Bull River and these supplies have been made and returned to our Chapter. The East Kootenay Chapter at Waldo, the Red Cross Society at Jaffray and the Ladies Working Party at Flagstone have sent their supplies to Fernie, and the Packing Committee has packed these in regulation Red Cross boxes and has forwarded them to Red Cross headquarters. The Guards at Morrissey, the Canteen at Morrissey, the Rebekah Lodge and other local organizations have made generous donations. A part of the School Collection has also been forwarded to Mrs. Sillitoe for the Prisoners of War Fund, and many other voluntary contributions have been received.

The Fernie Free Press has published free of charge all Red Cross items and appeals, and this has done much to stimulate Red Cross work and has added considerably to the funds.

Nine monthly, one special and six executive meetings have been held during the year. Twenty-five new members have been elected, eight names have been taken from the roll and the Chapter has suffered a serious loss in the death of Mrs. Garner, who gave her life to save others during the influenza epidemic. Another member, Miss Fisher, has gone into training that she may assist in the work of saving disabled soldiers.

Early in the year we were granted free use of the Napanee hotel office, writing and telephone rooms for Red Cross headquarters. These rooms are much brighter and more central than the former workrooms in the basement of Knox church. The change has brought Red Cross work much more prominently to the notice of the public and has effected a saving of about $13.00 per month. We have to thank the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. for free coal for heating the rooms and the city for electricity. The rooms have been kept open for work every Tuesday and Thursday, and even during the summer months work was not suspended.

The Chapter has been exceedingly fortunate in having Mrs. G. G. Moffatt as Regent for the last four years. She has given her entire attention to the work and has proven herself an energetic and resourceful leader at all times. In appreciation of her services she has been presented with a Life Membership in the National Chapter.

Thirteen War Clasps have been given our members who are wives and mothers of men on service overseas, and Mrs. Wilson for her untiring work as convenor of the Wool Committee was presented with a Life Membership in the Red Cross Society. Although the Membership was purchased as a gift it was only another way of making a donation to the Red Cross.

The Packing Committee under the able direction of Mrs. Irvine and Mrs. Lawe reports that 73 regulation Red Cross cases, containing the following articles, have been shipped:

Besides sewing and knitting for the Red Cross many other activities have been undertaken. Last February the Chapter had the privilege of giving a dance for the Great War Veterans as they wished to raise funds for a Returned Soldiers Club, and a sum of $294.60 was made and turned over to the Soldiers Club Committee. Four members from the I.O.D.E. are on the Committee and Mrs. Wallace, our 2nd Vice-Regent was appointed as Secretary-Treasurer as well as buyer, and has done excellent work. The Club now has four large well furnished rooms, one of which is used as a billiard room.

During the year one Tag Day has been held, and on Labor Day refreshments amounting to $872.45 were sold. The funds have increased through the sale of books, raffling two paintings and by collections at teas and concerts.

During the Registration, Mrs. Moffatt was appointed Deputy Registrar with nine assistant deputies and all the members took an active part.

The Victory Loan Committee have had the use of the work rooms for two Victory Loan Campaigns, and although they did not sell bonds the members helped to distribut literature, and $300 worth of last bonds were bought by the Chapter.

Assistance was also given to the Navy League on their Tag Day in September and the Chapter has always given support to every patriotic undertaking. When the influenza broke out a Citizens' Committee took charge of the work and although the Chapter did not have the opportunity to work as a unit, the members served as nurses, made pneumonia jackets and sheets, and supplied the Emergency Hospitals with 6 dressing gowns, 27 suits of pyjamas, 36 towels and 18 hot water bottle covers.

The Sock Shower met with a ready response and after sending 200 Christmas parcels valued at $1000 to our men who were overseas, quite a large balance remained, and it was decided to ask for further assistance so that Christmas presents could be given to the soldiers' dependents. $587.14 was expended in buying presents and the entertainment proved a very successful affair.

A donation has been given to the Overseas Tobacco Fund, a monthly subscription of $5.00 to the Y.M.C.A. Overseas Fund, $62.00 was subscribed to the Residential Club of Canadian Nurses in London, $10 given for Christmas comforts at the Balfour Sanitorium, $25.00 for Belgian Soldiers' Relief, $69.60 has been sent to Italian Prisoners of War Fund, and $1188.70 sent to Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley, Mrs. Sillitoe and Miss Pelly for spe-

PETER WRIGHT TO SPEAK HERE

Fernie is indeed lucky in being placed on the initinery of Mr. Peter Wright's tour of Canada. Mr. Wright is the Chairman of the British Seamen and Firemen's Union, the greatest labor organization in the world. On Monday night next at the Grand Theatre at 8 p.m. Mr. Wright will address a public meeting under the auspices of the Local Branch of the Navy League. A short program will precede the address. No admission fee.

Mr. Wright's life has been devoted to the merchant marine. He has spent a fortune of his own that he made by his athletic prowess as a boxer and wrestler, in establishing a Home in England for Seamen and Firemen, and he is today left practically without means at all, and is not getting a cent for the work which he is now doing on behalf of the Empire which he loves so well, and of his sailor brothers and fellow workers whom he loves no less.

When the schooner Sympathy sailed out of Grangemouth in the Firth of Forth one day in 1873 she had some one on board who nobody knew about. While she was nosing the tossing waters of the North sea he made his appearance—a wee, would-be mariner of nine summers, who had "stowed away" in order to see the world. His name was Peter Wright.

There was more sympathy on the schooner's nameboard than there was inside of her. No salt tears furrowed the weather-beaten cheeks of those who discovered this morsel of humanity "alone on a wide, wide sea." Baby that he was he was put to work and rope's end, not rose-wreaths, were his incentives towards achievements.

The Sympathy was a remarkable vessel. She was not very large, but she carried a perfect cloud of canvas. Her foremast was a regular stair of ascending sails. There were, of course, the usual gaff foresail, and above it a lower topsail, then an upper topsail, then a topgallantsail. Above that was the royal, and, climbing still nearer heaven, the skysail. Her mainstay matched this spread with a gafftopsail that fairly tickled the stars, its head towering above the topmast by menas of a jackyard. It was something like the clubtopsail used on racing yatchs.

With so much weight aloft the Sympathy rolled like a barrel in the calms and buried her lee deck when it breezed up. Often, when sail had to be made or shortened, her whole crew of seven men was required and the "watch below" had to be routed out.

There was never any second call. Poor little Peter soon learned that. Curled up in the bunk he had been accorded in the forecastle he didn't hear the demand to "Show a leg!" which brought the watch on deck. He slept on, as kiddies will. A bucket of cold salt water was his prompt punishment. Soused and shivering he scrambled out and lent his nine-year-old might to tallying on at the tackle-fall, or whatever it was that had to be done. When it was time to "turn in" again he crawled into an empty box and pulled the lid over him. The box was hard but not so uncomfortable as his wet bunk — and the lid would shed the next bucket of water!

This was the school where little Peter began his lessons.

There is a man in the British Empire today who has at his beck and call a quarter of a million of the bravest men in the world. One hundred and fifty-seven thousand of these heroes are active members of the Seamen and Firemen's Uuion. Another fifty thousand are members of the union, for the time being in the navy. The balance is made up of the fishermen and crews of the hundreds of minesweepers that are still busy on the British coasts.

This man meets them as man to man. He has frozen with them in the same Cape Horn gales, fried with them in the same furnace rooms, gone broke with them on the same waterfronts, shared with them "shandygaffs" of minced junk, biscuit crumbs and molasses, in the same forecastles. He is scarred with the marks that many of them also bear, from bursting steampipe and searing firebed.

He is chairman of that union, a cambatant member of that most efficient "standing army" the world has ever seen. Unless it had taken and kept the field in the great war, all our other armies would have perished. But it took the field—and its field was the Seven Seas — and it

REV. BATZOLD WILL BE UNITED CHURCH PASTOR

At a largely attended congregational meeting held in the basement of the United Church here on Monday night, Rev. C. E. Batzold, late of the 72nd Highlanders, in which unit he won a commission and the Military Cross for bravery on the battlefield, was made the unanimous choice of the congregation as permanent pastor.

Refreshments were served by the ladies of the church and what seemed a difficult task to perform turned out to be one of the most pleasing events in the history of the new church.

Rev. Batzold had supplied as pastor temporarily for three weeks and the congregation was well acquainted with him. This returned soldier comes to a field in which great opportunities await him, and the congregation have full confidence in his ability to make a record here which will not sully his shining record at the front.

Thus, one more United church takes its place in the growing ranks of Unionism under the most favorable conditions, and with high hopes of a successful career.

JUNIOR I.O.D.E. DANCE

The most successful event of the season was the dance given by the Junior I.O.D.E. on Friday, Feb. 7.

The Napanee Hotel dining room was requisitioned for the night and was most tastefully decorated by the committee.

The Junior I.O.D.E. wish to thank all who so kindly helped with the preparations.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU HERE

A. Watson, Secretary of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction, has received from Victoria advice that an order-in-council has recently been passed with the object in view of establishing a government employment bureau in this city. This bureau will be operated in co-operation with the Dominion Department of Soldiers Civil Re-establishment, of which W. J. Claridge is representative for East Kootenay. The Deputy Minister of Labor has advised the local reconstruction committee that within the next week or ten days a representative of that department will visit this city and locate and equip the local bureau and at the same time make the necessary appointments to the staff.

FIRST AID IN FERNIE

Fernie, B.C., Feb. 13, 1919.

Dear Sir—As we are about to start classes in First Aid in Fernie, I would like to insert this letter in your paper. These classes will be free to any person, either lady or gentleman, over the age of 16 years, as we have permission from the Secretary of the B.C. Council to hold a mixed class.

There will be a meeting held some night next week to arrange for the best nights to suit the majority of persons who wish to attend the lectures, due notice of which will be placed on the boards.

As the subject of First Aid is vitally important in such a community as ours, we should be pleased to see more persons taking interest in it.

In the case of the recent epidemic of influenza the way used of handling and carrying patients left much to be desired and had typhoid or fracture cases been handled in the same way more harm would have been done to the patients, not through carelessness or unwillingness but simply lack of knowledge.

Hoping to interest some of your readers in this subject, I remain,

Yours truly,
William Whalley,
Secretary Fernie First Aid.

The Union Church pulpit on Sunday next will be occupied by the Rev. J. B. Westman, of Calgary, a very noted divine.

PETER WRIGHT TO SPEAK HERE

kept it, unshaken by terrors such as man never faced before — the terror of drowning, of scalding, of explosion, of freezing to death in open boats, of starving on rafts, of being shot when captured. It faced a foe that claimed the immunity of all the laws and usages of civilized warfare, and observed none of them. Fifteen thousand of the members of this army went to inevitable death bravely; and not one of all the others hesitated when called to face the same fate.

It was he and his men who saved British labor from being hoodwinked into the Stockholm conference, which was meant to rob and despoil Britain as Russia, Rumania, Finland and the Ukraine were robbed and despoiled, in the name of peace.

And this man was the little boy who stowed away in the Sympathy forty-five years ago — Councillor Peter Wright of Newport, Monmouthshire, the sturdiest foe the Bolshevists, the pacifists, the defeatists, ever had; the best friend the British workingman—and the Canadian workingman—and the British patriot—and the Canadian patriot—ever will have.

He was seventeen before he learned to read and write. In the damp and reeking forecastle, by the light of the slup-lamp, he learned his A B C's and how to make P-e-t-e-r W-r-i-g-h-t on his shipping papers instead of signing a cross; and in that same forecastle he had mastered, by the time he was 25, five books of Euclid and fitted himself to talk with presidents "in their own language."

He is able to do that same for the Bolshevik; Russian is one of his many linguistic accomplishments, and he studied the heresies of Karl Marx and the fantasies of Tolstoi as he went along. All wash fish to the net of Peter Wright's wide-sweeping mind; but, like the man in the Bible, he sorted his catch when he drew it to the shore.

No man knows better than Peter Wright the handicaps, the hardships, the hazards of the man whose capital is his two fists. He himself has ground in the mill of labor from the age of nine. But he recognizes in made-in-Germany Socialism a disease not a cure, for the toiler's troubles. Bolshevism is that disease running its course.

It was at the risk of his life that Peter Wright helped steer British labor from the thick-sown minefield of the Stockholm conference. It was at the risk of his life that he tried to rescue the new-born Russian revolution from peril as deadly.

How the Huns hate him. He was hounded by Hun agents every step he took. There was always a pair of them—but not always the same pair. One German secret agent he left in the best hotel in Stockholm stiff and contorted in his death agony by the simple expedient of tricking the Hun into swallowing the coffee the said Hun had prepared for him. Another pair of them he left permanently at the bottom of a ravine, where the viaduct over which his train had to pass had been blown up.

For the two months he was in Russia he dared eat no cooked food unless he was able to watch the cooking. Fruit or raw eggs kept him alive. And the raw eggs cost $2.25 apiece in that land of Bolshevik plenty.

After the padding of his bullet-proof vest had accumulated thirty bullets—Hun or Bolsheviki—he reached Archangel. "They were got on the platform with Kerensky at Cronstadt and Moscow and other places where I tried to show them the right road," is Mr. Wright's own comment on the bullets. At Archangel he got his first square meal in months. It made him very ill. He was on the verge of a physical and mental breakdown. But a British destroyer was ready for him, and across the sea he sped as fast as steam could carry him to a "Scottish port." Here a special train awaited him. He was rushed to London, met by a motor, and whirled to a great hall where six thousand delegates and union men were waiting to be told the truth.

Peter Wright had seen three hundred locomotives in Russia deliberately wrecked by Hun-bought or Hun-duped patriots while the people starved through lack of transportation. He had seen the Russian munition output cut in two and the guns at the front captured for lack of shells, while the munition workers wages rose from $12.50 a week to $125 a week by the miracle of applied Bolshevism. He had seen the corpses of Russian officers in stacks 30 feet high; the corpses, not of men killed in battle but of soldiers murdered by their fellow countrymen in the name of Bolshevik equality while foreign invaders held the whole eastern frontier. He had found his own hotel—and the rest of Petrograd—looted even to the electric chandeliers by the Bolshevik policemen, after thirty thousand constables and secret service men of the old regime had been murdered in cold blood.

For an hour and a half Peter Wright talked to that assembly that wanted the truth about the Bolshevik and the Hun. Then he pitched forward and fell in a faint and was carried off the platform. He was three days unconscious. But British labor had the truth—and the truth, as the Scriptures promise, made British labor free.

BRITISH COLUMBIA WENT WET—NOT DRY

(Toronto Saturday Night)

From revelations which have been published in connection with the dismissal, conviction and flight from justice of Prohibition Commissioner Findlay of British Columbia, it would appear that when that province was supposed to have "gone dry" it really "went wet"—wetter than ever before. At anyrate, the maps, on which prohibition organizations indicate the alcoholic humidity of certain geographical areas by white or black patches, should at best signify British Columbia by some dashes of heliotrope. It would not be fair to say that everyone there was buying liquor illictly; but certainly a good many respectable citizens were. Who can blame them when the Moses who tapped the hard restrictive rock and brought forth fountains of ardent spirits was the Chief Prohibition Commissioner himself—the man whose eloquence had largely contributed to the abolition of the license system? What wonder if certain persons without strong convictions on the use of liquor said to themselves: "If this is prohibition, let's go to it." The whole episode goes to show that no community will ever be taught to demand a legal certificate with its liquor or to regard the laws against the drinking of it in the same light as those against murder, theft or wife beating.

Commissioner Findlay seems to have been an ingenious character. One would say also that, on the whole he was rather narrow-minded. He was less tolerant of blind-pigging in others than in himself. He seems to have been extremely zealous in pursuing whiskey-peddelers of all stripes who had not the stamp of his official patronage. The liquor they smuggled across the Washington State line he seized; but he did not allow it to go to waste. He sold it for the benefit of himself and his friends. Thus he was false to both his professions. He was recreant to the prohibition party of which he had been the eloquent and favored son; and he turned his hand against the other followers of his new trade of blind-pigging and tried to make it a close corporation. He was not ungenerous to associates, however, for it is said that a lady who acted as an agent in irrigating British Columbia under the new prohibition method, earned enough profits in a few months to purchase a $25,000 bungalow in Seattle. His ingenuity seems to have been touched with a sense of humor; for he seized the occasion of a visit to Ottawa to consult with the authorities of the other prohibition provinces on the best means of fighting "the traffic" to put through an extensive deal whereby several carloads of the precious liquid were shipped from the East to be sold in his province.

It is said that so many prominent citizens of British Columbia were accessories before and after taking, that the chances of the whole truth coming out are slight. One Vancouver newspaper estimates the number of professional and business men in that city who broke the Prohibition Act during 1918 at ninety per cent of the whole. The question arises, should this 90 per cent be sent to jail for indulging in a habit that the other ten per cent considered criminal and by some political hocus pocus had succeeded in making indictable by statute?

SAILED THROUGH SEA OF BOILING WATER

That a large area of the sea lying north of the South American coast and southeast of the West Indies is now a seething mass of boiling water from which clouds of vapor rise and which hinder navigation, and the temperature o fwhich is hot enough to cook eggs and spoil cargoes of fish is the remarkable story brought to Freeport, Texas, by Captain Isaac Gorman of the fishing smack Isabel last week.

Captain Gorman declares that he sailed for six hours through the boiling seas and that during that time his cargo of several thousand pounds of fish spoiled and had to be dumped overboard. He also says sailors on the Isabel cooked eggs in the sea as his vessel passed through the boiling water and that life on the ship became almost unbearable because of the extreme heat and the nauseating stench which filled the air.

"We struck the boiling waters when some 600 miles from our port," said Captain Gorman. "We had captured a large amount of fish and since our ice was limited were making all speed for home. Early one morning I noticed clouds of vapor rising straight ahead. The heat became more apparent. We thought the vapor was but a fog which we frequently find in that part of the sea—and sailed into it.

"As we struck the area overhung by vapor we learned our mistake. Instead of being an ordinary fog and an ordinary sea we found we were sailing through boiling water. Thinking that a small area had become affected by volcanic action, we steered ahead and continued to so steer, believing every moment that we were about to clear the seething seas, until we covered almost 100 miles.

"During our passage through this boiling area the entire cargo of the Isabel was ruined. The waters so heated the sides and bottom of the vessel that the fish rotted and the stench, added to the odor from the sea, made many of the sailors sick. We were compelled to dump the cargo overboard and return home empty.

"During our run through these boiling waters—about six hours—several of the men on board dipped small sacks of eggs into the sea. These were cooked in short time. Sailors drew water up in buckets and found it to be heated to a high degree."

Captain Gorman declares he has sailed the gulf for thirty years and never saw anything like the discovery he has just made, nor experienced anything like what he had just gone through.

TUBERCULOSIS MAY FOLLOW INFLUENZA

New York, Feb. 8.—A warning that tuberculosis is an after-menace of Spanish influenza was issued here today by the state charities aid association, which urges "every person who has been ill with influenza and who has failed to make a reasonable prompt and complete recovery" to take the precaution of being examined by medical authorities. The charities organization has prepared leaflets for free distribution and tuberculosis committees throughout the state are asked to bring these to the public's attention.

The Causes of Backache Can Be Remedied

Many people are apt to disregard backache as being of slight importance. This is wrong. A backache should be accepted as a very grave warning that the kidneys are not performing their proper function, and need immediate attention and assistance.

One ingredient of gin is a most beneficial agent in the toning up of the kidneys and restoring these vital organs to their normal duty of eliminating the poisons from the blood.

Gin Pills contain this ingredient, together with other tested diuretics and antiseptics, without a suggestion of alcohol.

Gin Pills are made from a formula produced from the results of scientific research, and contain only ingredients of tested and proven value.

When you feel backache coming on, be warned and take Gin Pills at once. It may save you a great deal of suffering. Should you neglect the backache or pains in the side, you stand in danger of more serious ailments, such as Sciatica, Lumbago, and Swollen Ankles and Joints, with their excruciating pains and prolonged dreaded suffering.

Gin Pills can be obtained from almost any dealer, and the price is only 50 cents a box. You buy them on a guarantee of satisfaction or your money refunded.

The makers of Gin Pills will be pleased to send you a free sample if you address your request to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. U.S. residents should address Na-Dru-Co., Inc., 202 Main St., Buffalo, N.Y. 193

"It's dood for me"

Looking over the famous Utopias of literature—Sir Thomas More's, Sir Francis Bacon's, Plato's—all of which toyed more or less with the idea of communism—I find that only Plato had the courage to carry his convictions to the logical conclusion — a community of wives and children as well as of goods. There is something to be said for the theory that the Republic was a satire, and that Plato, who was a thorough-going aristocrat, was playing an elaborate joke on the Bolshevists of his day. Plato's community of wives has been tried out by free lovers in various parts of the world, but in every case the state has had to step in and end the scandal. There is small reason to doubt that community of goods would be as subversive to industry as free love is subversive of morals.—Toronto Saturday Night.

SEATTLE'S CASE

Press reports indicate that the Seattle strike is gradually breaking up because of lack of union in the forces of the strikers. Gradually the different unions which at the outset voted for a walkout are breaking away, their members returning to work. There are some lessons here for union men and others.

Seattle has been virtually a tied up city for some days now owing to a decision on the part of union labor to quit work as a means of showing sympathy for some striking shipyard employees. Schools, restaurants, public buildings, stores — all have been closed and the transportation facilities of the city paralyzed. To all intents and purposes Seattle has been wiped off the map and shipping interests on the Pacific coast have decided to eliminate it as a port of call. There have been no disorders, probably because of the presence of Uncle Sam's regulars in the vicinity.

And now, after some days of idleness and business stagnation the labor men are having a second thought. So far the strike has accomplished nothing of value to the cause of unionism. There has been no settlement of the shipyards trouble and it does not seem likely that there will be on the terms proposed by the strikers. On the other hand unionism does not stand as high as it did with the general public, which has been inconvenienced and suffered much financial loss.

In addition the workers who have been out of work for some days are finding that it costs money to live. Also those of them who are citizens of Seattle are waking to the fact that they have a citizenship duty which in the final analysis is of greater importance than their duty to any one class in the community. Through the sympathetic strike they have been giving their city a bad black eye. Its commerce has been paralyzed, its people are suffering and throughout the country it is getting some very undesirable publicity.

So with their sober second thought the sympathetic strikers are breaking away and returning to work. It was to be expected. The sympathetic strike is not a fair weapon and in the final analysis, even though it succeeds it must fail, as all movements of might over right must fail. —Calgary Herald.

TIME HAS NOT ARRIVED FOR COMMUNISM

The time has not come yet for civilized society to change its basis from property to communism. Human nature must be educated to greater perfection before it can stand the strain of a share-all and share-alike world. That the whole world would have to accept the new gospel goes without saying, because otherwise the states founded on pure brotherhood would become the prey of their less enlightened but selfish neighbors.

Men are not equal in birth, in education, or most important of all—in natural ability. It is this inequality of natural ability which makes great men, great careers, and in many cases great fortunes. If the wealth of the world were redistributed right now, everybody getting an equal portion, it is safe to say that in fifty years 75 per cent of it would be in the hands of 25 per cent of the population—as a matter of fact, the disproportion would be greater.

All that democracy can do towards levelling up the masses with the classes is to create, so far as possible by good laws, an equality of opportunity, and along this line its future efforts must be directed. The creed of individualism, which democracy encourages, has been grossly abused by super-acquisitive persons of high brain power, but there is not a single abuse which has grown up under the present system that cannot be cured by a sincere application of the good old remedy—a fair field and no favors. There will, of course, be inequalities of fortune, but not the horrible disparity between riches and poverty which exists today.

It will be many years yet before self-interest ceases to be the mainspring of human action. The measure of effort will be the measure of reward, as it has been since history began, but care will be taken that the reward does not exceed the effort, as it frequently does today. What democracy will do to reorganized society is to remove the thorns in the flesh and give the body politic a chance to function under healthy conditions.

The world is not prepared yet to share and share alike, but it is prepared—that is the great moral of the war—to give everybody a fair chance. Even the Bolshevists are not prepared to share alike. Their idea is to substitute the rule of the All Lowest for the rule of the Comparatively Few Highest, to delegate government to the workers-with-their-hands, to exclude the workers-with-their-heads, to make slaves of the middle class and to take from the Haves and give it to the Have Nots. They do not share—they confiscate. Their rule is not of Knowledge and Love, but of Ignorance and Hate. And what's more, they don't want any damned work in it. All pay and no hours—that is their motto.

Broadly speaking, the Bolshevists in all countries are those who do not fit in with the age-old formula—that man lives by the sweat of his brow. They want to reap where they have not sown. They are inept, the idle, the vicious—the semi-loafers who are half in and half out of a job, or who prefer no job at all. They have not the get-up to climb the tree and pick the fruit, so they want to shake the tree and bruise everything. The working men who hold good jobs by reason of their skill and industry—likewise those who are willing to give a fair day's work for a fair day's pay—are never Bolshevists. They are in the same danger of being looted of their little nest eggs as those with larger possessions.

NEW REMEDY FOR ECZEMA WORTHY OF MENTION

(Copied from The Canadian Pharmaceutical Journal of September, 1918.)

SWAIZEMA

Of the numerous afflictions to which humans are subject, Eczema is one of the most persistent and annoying, in many cases painful. Remedies and cures are as numerous as the disease is persistent and up to the present a contest between the disease and cure almost invariably results in the disease winning out.

Every pharmacist is fully cognizant of the prevalence of this ailment in various degrees of affliction, from mildly irritating to painfully incapacitating, and they know also of the persistency with which a remedy is sought by the afflicted, and also the optimism with which every remedy is accepted and used.

These conditions indicate the eagerness with which a true remedy will be accepted, and how fully a "cure" will be appreciated, and now that cure appears to have arrived in an article perfected by an Ontario Pharmacist and being offered to the public with certificates of genuineness which carries conviction to even the skeptical. This remedy is prepared from the formula worked out by Mr. C. E. Swasiland, of Kitchener, Ont., and manufactured in Toronto.

The Journal is not given to boosting nostrums or proprietories without character, but is prepared to speak frankly of the merits of this preparation from the evidence of permanent results submitted by Mr. Swasiland, and by independent pharmacists who have recommended the cure and witnessed the favorable results achieved in its use. From this evidence we are prepared to commend this "Swaizema" to the craft with confidence that it will make good all the contentions of the originator.

SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

"Pape's Diapepsin" neutralizes excessive acid in stomach, relieving dyspepsia, heartburn and distress at once.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress, due to acidity, will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach sweetener in the whole world, and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach distress at once by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by fermentation due to excessive acids in stomach.

to all custom, make a right.

Herchmer & Graham submitted a bill for $346.05 in the Gates and Huntington assessment appeal case, and a further bill for $28.30 since judgment was given.

A communication from the Canadian Reconstruction Association of Toronto was referred to G. A. Bonnallie, president of the local committee for National Reconstruction.

Fire Chief McDougall submitted his annual report for 1918. The past year has been a record for minimum losses.

The collection of dog taxes will commence forthwith by the police and a rebate of 50c will be allowed to all who pay before May 6.

Several accounts in connection with the emergency hospitals were turned over to the health and relief committee. A grant of $100 was given to the Ladies Benevolent Society.

The matter of a grant for Leonard Whitehouse, the boy who lost his right hand during the Peace Day celebration came up. After along discussion and some bickering between the committee who appeared for the lad and the council the following motion was passed: "That the sum of $200 be set aside this year on the city books as initial fund for the Whitehouse boy who lost his hand on Nov. 11, 1918. This amount to bear interest at 4 per cent. We also recommend future councils setting aside an equal grant for the same purpose, without prejudice."

A sale of emergency hospital equipment, which has been thoroughly disinfected, will be held on Feb. 22.

SOLDIERS' VIEWPOINT

The least the people of Canada and the Province can do is to see to it that the gallant men who preserved them, their liberties and homes, should be provided for. If that involves borrowing money then it should be borrowed.—Major J. W. McIntosh (Vancouver).

Step out and let us have a great big pragramme of public works for one year at least. If you do, you will find all problems of the returned soldiers met. — Major R. J. Burde (Alberni).

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life and if not overcome it produces a fever ishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

The annual convention of District 18 U.M.W. of A. will open in Calgary on Monday next, Feb. 17. This will probably be a very important convention for the miners, coming as it does upon the conclusion of the war and also just prior to the termination of the present agreement, which expires on March 31. The Fernie local union will be represented by Wm. Potter and Wm. Dickenson as delegates, and Wm. Hunter and Pres. Biggs will also be two members of Fernie local in attendance.

His Honor heard evidence from Annie Mansfield, Frank Zwick, Ernest Buxton, Caroline Dewsbury and the allegation of Deputy Inspector of Provincial Police Owen, and upon the evidence adduced found that by reason of neglect and vicious living of their alleged guardian and step-father, Frank Zwick, that they were being allowed to grow up without salutary parental control or education and in circumstances exposing them to idle and dissolute lives.

THE WINNIPEG BONSPIEL

Winnipeg, Feb. 11.—Winnipeg's 31st annual bonspiel got away to a good start at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with 39 sheets of ice in use. Though the temperature has been on the rise since Sunday and there has been very little frost for the past 48 hours, a large number of close contests were witnessed in the five draws today.

Numerous 13 end games were played, one of the most noteworthy being that between the veteran Winnipeg curler, Mac Rochon, who, after chalking up five points on the first end, was forced to an extra end by Hehchmer, of Fernie, B.C., Rochon finally winning out 12 to 11.

Miller, of Calgary, disposed of two opponents in the McLaren, his first victory being over Dowd of the Strathconas, 14 to 4, and the second over Alexander, Granites, 14 to 8.

SOLDIERS GO TO THE COAST

Nelson News: Two returned soldiers arrived in the city last night on the Crow boat from overseas. They were Sapper S. Atkinson and Sergt. F. E. Passmore.

Sapper Atkinson is from Fernie and is a member of the 3rd Canadian tunneling company. He enlisted in Fernie with the 30th Batt. in October, 1914, and went overseas the following April. He was wounded slightly in action in November of the same year at the battle of Ploogsteert. After recovering from his wounds in the hospital in England he was sent back to the firing line. He was wounded a second time in March, 1918, at the battle of Messines and was sent over to England, until leaving for Canada on Jan. 14. He sailed from the old country on the Empress of Britain, arriving in Canada on January 22.

Sapper Atkinson is on his way to New Westminster where he expects to get his discharge from the army. He will then return to Nelson. His brothers and sisters are living in Fernie.

Sergt. Passmore is a Cranbrook man and is en route to Vancouver. He was wounded at the battle of the Somme and has seen 29 months of service in France.

This is the reply:

Dear Sir—I beg to offer myself as an applicant for the position advertised for this morning. I am a young man 37 years of age, have had 23 years' business experience, being connected with the U.S. embassy at Madagascar, and feel confident if you will give me a trial I can prove my worth to you. I am not only an expert bookkeeper, proficient stenographer and typewriter, but have several accomplishments which may make me desirable. I am an experienced snowshoveller, a first class peanut roaster, have some knowledge of removing spots from hogs and superfluous hairs, and can clip puppy dogs' ears and have a medal for reciting "Curfew shall not ring tonight." Am a skilful chiropodist and a practical farmer, can cook, take care of horses, crease trousers, open oysters and repair umbrellas, and am also the champion plug tobacco chewer of Montana—my spitting record being 38 feet. Being possessed of great physical beauty I would not only be useful but ornamental as well, lending to the sacred precincts of your offices that delightful charm that a Satsuma vase or a stuffed billy goat would. My whiskers being quite extensive and luxuriant, my face could be used for a penwiper and feather duster. I can furnish high recommendations from Chauncey Depew, Butcher Bill der Grosse, Four Sky Thunder, Prime Minister of Tobacco Plains, and others, if required. As to salary, I would feel that I was robbing the widow and swiping the sponge cake from the orphaned if I were to take advantage of your munificence by accepting the fabulous sum of $3.00 per week, and would be entirely willing to give my services for less and by accepting the sum of $1.30 per week would give you the opportunity of increasing your donation to the church, paying the grocer and keeping your life insured; but also to found a home for indigent fly-paper salesmen and endow a free bed in a cat's home. Really, old man, your bounty must appear like reckless extravagance. Can call any night after nine o'clock or can be seen Sunday in the loft of the church, Broad and Duck streets, where I am employed as first assistant organ blower and understudy to the janitor.

The Old Timers' dance last Friday night in the Assembly Rooms was another social success.

Mayor Klingensmith of the Mining Exchange Block, was a Cranbrook visitor last week and says that Spokane has nothing on Cranbrook for first class dental work.

The other night at the meeting of the Elko Sunshine Club, Miss Mary Jane Slackhammer said: It would be a pretty good idea to bury old troubles and worries like a dog buries a bone and then growl if anyone tries to dig them up.—Carried.

Jim Thistlebeak says that the land of the free and cast iron dollar seems to be wiggling along while Woodrow, if the cartoons are any criterion to go by, from across the herring pond, looks like as if an elephant had been sitting on his lap, while holding a hippopotamus with his trunk, while the cartoons make Mrs. Wilson look as nice a little broiler as you'd see any place.

Elko's social swirl will give a hard times dance on Feb. 14 at the Assembly rooms. The reception committee will meet two hours after sunset and 30 minutes later the fun will commence. It will cost you nothing to make merry with the social set but you will have such a good time you will give a dollar towards the masquerade ball to be given on the 17th of March.

Jim Thistlebeak says that if ever a man was in a tight place it was Jonah. He was down in the mouth and all in. But he came out all right. The mobilizing their troops but they are Canadians may be a little slow at denot as slow as the C.P.R. in moving freight.

Employment must be provided for the returning men, and this can best be done by the provision of public works. — Mr. Frank Giolma (Victoria).

Hacking Coughs

"Granny" Chamberlain

For hacking coughs—the kind that make your throat sore and your head ache, that rob you of your sleep until you are so run down that you are in danger of pneumonia or consumption—take

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

It soothes and heals the inflamed air passages, stops the tickling in the throat, and by its tonic effects helps you to throw off the disease.

Chamberlain's is quite different from the ordinary cough medicine, for it not only soothes but also heals, restores the affected parts to a healthy condition. I believe it is the best and most reliable preparation ever produced for coughs and colds.

Yours for Health,

—Granny Chamberlain

DOES TWO YEARS' HARD LABOR IN GERMAN PRISON

Miss Agnes Short, a Liverpool woman, has reached home from a penal prison in Germany, which she left dressed only in a nightdress, skirt and wooden clogs. When she reached the British lines in Belgium she was given a soldier's blanket, and this she fashioned into substitute for a coat.

A governess and teacher of English in Brussels when the war broke out, she joined the Belgian Red Cross and being able to pass as a Belgian, escaped internment.

"On the second anniversary of the war," she told a press representative, "I was seized by two German secret police on the street. They snatched my brooch off in the most brutal manner. Later I was summoned before Ober Lieutenant Kaulfers, who told me I was fined 10 marks or two days' imprisonment for having worn a brooch bearing the Belgian colors. I replied, 'I will do the two days.' My brooch was there in front of him, and I put out my hand to get it but he said in the most brutal manner, 'What has been taken by our police becomes the property of the Kaiser.' I answered, 'Oh! it is a theft then.' He asked me, 'Do you accuse me of being a thief?' And my answer was, 'I don't know whether it was you or the Kaiser, but whoever is keeping my brooch is a thief.'

"Kaulfers took the telephone and called in the guard with fixed bayonets, and I was sent upstairs to a prison room where there were nine 'licensed' women. I complained to the woman jailer, who snarled back at me that the women were better than any Englishwoman and that nothing is too bad for an Englishwoman.

I had to wait until the Saturday following, enduring insults, humiliations and indecencies, before I was brought down to the court-martial for having 'insulted the Ober-Lieutenant.' I was condemned to 15 days' imprisonment. I served my time. Then I went back home. On October 6 two German policemen came and demanded the 10 marks fine, and because I would not pay up they came into my bedroom, took a sealskin coat, put a seal on it and said that if on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock the 10 marks were not paid the coat would be taken away. Accordingly they fetched the coat on Wednesday when I was out.

On December 5th I was arrested and taken to Liege to be confronted by two boys to whom I had given false papers to enable them to cross the frontier. We got to Liege at 3 o'clock in the morning and were informed that the boys had been sent back to Brussels. I refused to return to Brussels at once. So we went to the Hotel Chemin de Fer, where Herr Kessler (in whose custody she was) had the cheek to ask for one bedroom. I told the attendant I was a prisoner and I got locked in a room alone. I badly wanted that as I had had some papers secreted on me that I must destroy.

"Back in Brussels I was placed in a cell and kept for 10 weeks awaiting trial. Then I was taken before a court-martial and remanded for eight days. Later I was condemned, and on March 31 I was taken off to Germany. They did tell me I was given two years' hard labor for procuring false papers for the boys and a month for having told Major von Beyer that he was very impolite—on an occasion when he told me to shut up, only in much worse language."

With two other women, Miss Short was taken to the prison at Siegsburg, near Cologne. "We were put into a cell where they had been cleaning vegetables. Potato peeling and vegetable waste were all over the place. You would not have put a dog into such a filthy hole. There was nothing to sit on. They brought us two sacks with straw inside but they were in such a filthy condition it was not possible to lie on them. One of my companions was over 60 and the other was waiting for a child. I had a trunk, and we spent the night sitting on that.

No matter what our condition we were obliged to submit every week to being hose-piped—which they called taking a bath—in the presence of a number of others. I was put into solitary confinement, and everything they could do to make things worse for me, because I was English, was done.

"They put into my cell a machine about the size of a mangle for making buttons. When I examined it I found the buttons would be stamped 'Made in England.' I was ordered to make 1000 buttons a week, but I told them to take it out as quickly as they could as I did not intend to make buttons in a German prison which would go out 'Made in England.' The wardress screamed from the door, 'If you have not made the buttons by Monday you go to the punishment cell.'

"Later the prison governor came and asked me what was the matter with the machine. I told him I would not make the buttons to be stamped 'Made in England' and he said it was an old mark, that it had no value, that the buttons were not going into commercial life but were for the soldiers. I said, 'I am not going to make buttons to keep up German soldiers' pants.' In the end I got the machine taken away and had to knit socks.

"For saying to a woman visitor who had come to see if she could give me any spiritual help, 'Don't you think it would be better if you filled our stomachs?' I had to go to the punishment cell for three days. Sometimes I was able to get food from French and Belgian prisoners, who, unlike Englishwomen, were allowed to receive food from outside; otherwise I should have certainly starved to death.

"The combings of our hair had to be saved and put into bags and every Monday the matron came round with one of the prisoners and we had to hand over the hair. If there was not any to be handed over she helped herself forcibly by dragging it out of our heads. The hair was wanted for making ropes and things.

"I had dysentery very badly and was sent to the infirmary, where I was when the revolution broke out on November 8. I was turned out with influenza and a 102 temperature on me just in a nightdress and a black skirt. We got to Cologne by train, but the Royalists were there and we were brought back to Siegburg and left in the train all night. Next day we went to Cologne on motor lorries." Miss Short was in Namur on the night of the 10th, when British airmen shelled the place. "We lay in a cattle truck in the station, without food or water. It was a terrifying experience. How we escaped was a miracle. There were 300 dead Germans in the morning. Even the station commander came to our truck and wanted us to lie on top of him for his protection.

"It makes me boil with indignation to read of 'consideration' for German women. What consideration did they give us? I will name Fraulein Rudolph and Fraulein Gruneau of the Siegsburg prison as brutal specimens of brutal German womanhood, and as for the director hanging would be too good for him. The women took a delight in watching us strave and they used to say, 'Why don't you ask England? It's all England's fault. I was shown in the prison the stories of Donington Hall. Imagine how I felt!"

PANAMA STAR AND HERALD GREETS CANADIANS

When Sergt. Jimmy Osborne on his return from serving the Empire in France came through the Panama canal on the Empress of Asia, he secured a copy of the Panama Star and Herald. The daily is in its 68th year and is somewhat of a curiosity in its way. It is printed in Spanish and English, has 14 pages and covers the important news of the world as far as possible.

Here is an editorial of greeting to the Canadian soldiers then in the canal, printed in the tropical Star and Herald of January 15:

The heroic men whose fame has been ringing around the world for nearly five years are passing our doors. We hail them. Tey are America's very own. They saved the day for liberty. They were as Napoleon said of Ney, "The bravest of the brave." They illustrated with their brethren from the South Seas not only the indomitable loyalty of the British Colonials but the invincible spirit of Canadian freemen. They are going a long circuit home, but it is one continuous triumphal procession. They are greeted with acclaim on both oceans. They are the men whom God delights to honor and whom men will remember while time endures. Hail.

The paper prints the following account of the Canadians on their arrival at Colon, on the east coast:

We have seen the Anzac warrior from the land of the Southern Cross pass through the Isthmus, the brawny Australian and his equally hard set brother from the islands of New Zealand; we have shaken hands with the Maori and admired the physique of the aborigine from the hinterland of Australia; we have witnessed many thousand West Indian negroes leave these shores and we have wondered and wondered again at the greatness of that little island hardly bigger than a New England state but which is the motherland of some 500,000,000 men and women, every one of whom is proud to live and if need be die under the Union Jack.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

And now we have seen a sample of the Canadian, the boys who come from that great commonwealth to the north of the continent, a dominion which is larger in size than the United States, and a country which has the proud distinction of being the only one that has in this great war, or in fact in any great war from the earliest times, sent into the battlefield actually more than the nation's manhood strength. For the Canadian armies were augmented by thousands of Englishmen from Latin-America and the States and also in the early part of the war by many battallions of Americans who could not wait but who wished to take their part in the great struggle between Anglo-Saxon democracy and German autocracy.

They are a splendid looking body of men. There are 1400 in all and include with them many famous Canadian Scottish, who in their kilts added a touch of color that was pleasing to see. These fine looking men belonged to the 15th and 72nd battalions of the Canadian Scottish and to the equally famous 48th Highlanders of Toronto; and when they return home and hang up their regimental colors they will be emblazoned with Ypres, Marne and battle names that will live as long as the world lasts. Lt.-Gen. Currie, who commands the Canadian troops, was an officer in the 48th before he was raised to the command of five splendid Canadian divisions and he is now in London.

THE SOLUTION OF THE ALIEN PROBLEM

The official pronouncement on the alien question emanating from Ottawa on Tuesday is somewhat belated. It serves, however, to elucidate some of the difficulties in the way of immediate action and points to a solution of the problem which may prove to be more than partial.

The number of enemy aliens actually interned in Canada is not large. Their deportation has been ordered and is proceeding subject only to the "limitations necessarily imposed by the shortage of shipping and restrictions by enemy countries upon repatriation." Obviously these alien enemies will remain interned until repatriation is possible.

But the real problem is presented by those aliens of enemy origin whom it has not been found necessary to intern. These are apparently anxious to escape from uncomfortable, not to say hostile, surroundings as quickly as may be. They wish to return to their home countries, and that not in a few cases but to the number, according to the official statement, of "many thousands."

If it be difficult to find shipping facilities for 2200 interned enemies the task of transporting many thousands of those not interned must inevitably be still greater. Time will be required to achieve it; patience must be exercised and restraint observed until it can be carried out.

Meanwhile, in this Province, at least, the "inventory" of enemy aliens will go forward. The sheep can thus be distinguished from the goats and injustice to worthy and loyal naturalized citizens of Canada prevented. In this connection it ought to be pointed out that aliens who possess naturalization papers are Canadian citizens. If it be necessary, owing to unfriendly actions or enemy sympathy, to deal with them the matter is one for the Dominion parliament. Arbitrary action in such cases must discredit the institutions which permitted aliens from countries later to become our enemies to be naturalized. Wherever seditious acts or expressions are alleged against naturalized citizens there should be a regular process of law. Legal provision for denaturalization of persons who have abused the privilege of admission to Canadian citizenship can and should be made, if it does not exist already.

The official statement is, upon the whole, satisfactory. But it is evident that either the Dominion or the provincial authorities must take charge, until shipping is available, of aliens who wish to leave the country.—Manitoba Free Press.

Clemenceau's Resourcefulness

We do not think of M. Clemenceau as the sort of man on whom practical jokes could be played, yet he was the victim of an elaborate jest some while ago—in pre-war times, needless to say—and he accepted the position with commendable grace.

A number of Parisians received bogus invitations to dine at the Premier's house. Some were total strangers, and their grateful acceptance mystified M. Clemenceau until he realized the hoax.

He did not put them off. He ordered the dinner, and gave his guests a pleasant evening. Not until the evening was drawing to a close did he inform them that their invitations had been sent out by someone of whose identity he had not the remotest knowledge.

FRED ROO AGAIN

Winnipeg and Western Grocer, Jan. 15: Fred Roo, of Elko, B.C., is a self-styled booster for the "Winnipeg and Western Grocer." He became infected with our spirit—or did we become infected with his?—about a year ago. At all events, we are constantly hearing of one or other of our friends who having visited Fred have left with the asurance that, in addition to being boosted for the West, we are also producers for the same wonderful land. Where is Fred these days? He would appear to us to resemble a will-o'-the-wisp, inasmuch as every here and there we are confronted with the knowledge that he is very much alive. But it must be nearly a month since we heard direct. When in Vancouver, Fred, look us up. There's always a cigar and a drop of raspberry vinegar for our friends.

A very important point—What say the Scriptures about hell? An examination of every text of Scripture in which the word hell is found a correct understanding of the subject of this booklet is almost a necessity to Christian steadfastness. For centuries it has been the teaching of oxthodoxy of all shades that God before creating man had created a great abyss of fire and terrors capable of containing all the billions of the human family which he purposed to bring into being, that this abyss he had named hell, and that all of the promises and threatenings of the Bible were designed to deter as many as possible, a little flock, from such wrong doing as would make this awful place their perpetual home. While glad to see superstitions foll and true ideas of the great and wise and just and loving Creator prevail we are alarmed to notice that the tendency with all who abandon this long revered doctrine is toward doubt, skepticism and infidelity. Why should this be the case when the mind is merely being delivered from an error? Do you ask because Christian people have so long been taught that the foundation for this awful blasphemy against God's character and government is deep laid and firmly fixed in the word of God, the Bible, and consequently to whatever degree their belief in hell is shaken to that extent their faith in the Bible, as the revelation of the true God, is shaken also, so that those who have dropped their belief in a hell of some kind of endless torment are often open infidels and scoffers at God's Word. Guided by the Lord's providence to a realization that the Bible has been slandered as well as its Divine Author and that rightly understood it teaches nothing on this subject derogatory of God's character nor to an intelligent reason, we have attempted in this booklet to lay bare the Scripture teaching on this subject that thereby faith in God and his word may be reestablished on a better, a reasonable foundation. Indeed, it is our opinion that whoever shall hereby find that his false view rested upon human misconceptions and misinterpretations will at the same time learn to trust hereafter less to his own and other men's imaginings and by faith to grasp more firmly the word of God which is able to make wise unto salvation, and on this mission under God's providence, it is sentforth.

A place as my vision hath been shall this be the place that the Lord of life will take up his lodgings and keep his court in. Will he indeed come with all he hath said it and I do and I will believe it, yet all this is but the earnest of His train of graces and live and walk in me? How can these things be? But what is to come. O how great is thy goodness laid up for them that fear thee. Yet a little and my warfare shall be accomplished and the heavens must receive me till the time of the restitution of all things. It is but for a short term that I shall dwell in this flesh in an earthen tabernacle. My Lord hath showed me that where he is there shall his servant be. Now the living is tied to the dead and my soul is a stage of strife and a field of war, but it is but a little moment and that which is perfect shall come—perfect holiness and perfect peace, eternal serenity. My soul there is but a short life betwixt thee and glory, where holy angels and glorified saints shall be my associates and love and praise my only employment. Methinks I hear already how the morning stars sing together and all the sons of God shout for joy. See Job, 38 chapter and verse 7. O that I could come in for one, but it was said unto me I should rest yet for a little season but I shall stand in the lot at the end of the days. See Daniel, chapter 12, verse 13. It is well, Lord. Thy word is enough. Thy bond is as good as ready payment. Jesus wept that tear of sorrow is a legacy of love. As sweet flowers strewed over a dead corpse so are natural beauties over a spiritually dead soul. If you have not springs enough in your head to send the water down your cheeks for sorrow then you are not a soldier of the cross. O my sins I am going where you cannot come. The Holy Ghost tells me that life and glory abide in me, that the day I loose from this body the same day I shall be landed in paradise. Amen. See Luke, chapter 23, verse 43.

cial adoptions and for Prisoners of War Fund. $528.35 was donated to the Red Cross drive and the members took an active part in canvassing for the Drive.

The Travelling Gallery of Historical Pictures has been subscribed to, and three Historical Pictures have been purchased to present to the school, and a Sinking Fund for a Soldiers' Memorial has been established.

The moment war was declared our Chapter responded to the call which we knew would be our part to play, and it has never slackened its efforts in Red Cross work, and should carry on as long as those who stood between us and destruction need our support and sympathy. Colonel Blaylock says: "There is no Armistice for the Red Cross—the guns may be silenced but still the fight against pain and disease goes on. Till the last Canadian soldier who offered himself as a barrier between us and destruction is discharged from hospital, we must march forward steadily under the banner of the Red Cross."

Selecting extracts from the message sent to all Chapters of the Order by the National Executive, to commemorate the signing of the armistice we find that "We cannot at this vital moment give ourselves over to exultation. We cannot permit ourselves to relax." "We must never forget the sacrifices of the past four years and the willingness of the citizens of our Empire to serve and suffer." "The Daughters of the Empire labored with devotion and zeal to help save the world from destruction. We cannot be less devoted and zealous in the great period of reconstruction." Let us not imagine because the terrible conflict is over that there is nothing left for us to do, for now is the time for the members of the Chapter to prove that they are worthy of the price that has been paid to save British ideals.

A WORTHY SUCCESSOR

An announcement has just been made of the appointment of George H. Hutton, B.S.A., of Lacombe, as successor to Dr. J. G. Rutherford, C. M.G., as Supt. of Agriculture and Animal Industry for the Canadian Pacific Railway, with headquarters at Calgary.

Mr. Hutton, who for 12 years has been Supt. of the Dominion Experimental Station at Lacombe, is well and favorably known among the live stock and agricultural interests of Western Canada. His work at Lacombe has always been characterized by its practicability and thoroughness and he has succeeded in bringing that farm to front rank.

The Canadian Pacific Company has indeed been fortunate in its choice of a successor to Dr. Rutherford, who has been so signally successful in directing the huge agriculaural enterprise of the corporation. Mr. Hutton is splendidly qualified by training and experience, for the work and should do well in the new position to which he certainly takes the best wishes of the agriculturists of the West. His many friends will be pleased to know that Western Canada is still to have the benefit of his valuable services.

HERCHMER IN THE JEWELRY

A wire from Winnipeg states that the Herchmer rink are playing in the semi-finals of the Birks competition. This competition is known as the All Comers. On Saturday last the country defeated the City of Winnipeg by 14 points. The event then became a knock out competition for all the visitors. In the Saturday match Herchmer won by five points from his opponent.

According to Tuesday's Winnipeg papers our local rink had been knocked out of everything but the Birks and International.

Three Russians were gathered in on Thursday by the local police for creating a disturbance. They were each fined $25 and costs.

Calgary boosters are moving heaven and earth to have the proposed transcontinental highway built thru Calgary and on through Banff and down the Windermere valley. Now it is up to the people of Fernie and in fact every person residing in the Crow's Nest Pass to get busy with the authorities at Ottawa and see that they are not sidetracked by a bunch of hot air artists from the north. The Crow's Nest route has the advantage by several hundred miles so far as distance is concerned and it also passes through a country second to none for grandeur and picturesqueness

MINERS FAVOR DAY WAGE

An important matter affecting the new wage contract between miners and operators occupied the whole of the morning sesson at the miner's convention. This was the question as to whether contract work should be abolished. There was a very considerable divergence of opinion among the delegates on the point, but the general opinion was that the present time was not opportune for pressing the matter. Ed. Browne, the secretary of District 18, perhaps pretty well represented the views of those present when he remarked after a long discussion that "in face of six months' coal on the market, with 3000 miners in the district out of employment, and no support from the international organization," that the resolution was a matter which required the most careful thought. This speaker stated that someone had said that Napoleon had led his followers to victory. He, the speaker, had read history, and found that Napoleon had led his people to defeat. They might talk about certain socialistic theories, he said, but "they were no use in discussing an agreement with the other fellow."

Defenders of the day wage system however were equally keen in advocating that this be adopted and some of the speakers supported this with the experience gained, Delegate McRoberts, of Taber, stating that the average earnings under the contract system in Alberta was only $4.2 per day, and that at certain times the men worked only two days a week.

In the general discussion, T. Hagewell, Corbin, stated that the day wage would be the means of the work being more evenly distributed. Much of the unrest at the present time, he said, was caused by the contract system. He admitted that some men might be making good with it, but what they wanted to do was to look for the good of the whole of the miners.

Frank Wheatley asked what would be considered a fair day's wage, to which another delegate promptly replied $8. The former delegate stated that efforts had been made to establish a minimum wage. That had been a matter that he had personally talked in and out of season. Cost prices were the great objection to this by operators. The minimum wage under the contract system was $5 a day.

Delegate Ed. Eastham, of Humberstone, was emphatically in favor of the day wage, as he contended it would remove dissension within their own ranks. Under the present changed conditions, he said, when there was going to be a greater supply of labor, it was time that the competitive system among them was abolished.

In reply to a question of Secretary Ed. Browne who wanted to know the stand of the International on the point, International Representative Livett stated that he was informed that each district had local autonomy in making contracts, but the constitution reserved the right of lending their moral or financial aid in calling a strike to enforce the demands. Personally he did not know any district in America where the day wage system was in operation.

Dave Irvine, International organizer in adddressing the convention, not as a representative of the International but on his own responsibility related an extended personal experience on the other side of the line and referred to the ill effects of the day wage system that some time ago started at the Stirling Coal Co. mines in Pennsylvania. On that occasion the operators took some of their largest mines and had them run to full capacity; they selected men on their efficiency, and those of 35 years of age could not find employment. There was no compensation for working in wet or dangerous places or for taking extreme risk, and things at the mine in question went to such an extent that the manager of that mine was driven out of the district at the point of the gun.

They had had the same proposition from time to time, he said, from all over the country, and added: "If it goes forth from this convention that the miners of this district have abolished the contract system, there will be nothing but disruption."

Delegate Cacchioni, of Wayne, said that the only thing in his opinion to do was to nationalize all mines. He did not uphold either the contract or the day wage system. Certainly under the former a miner entered upon a slow process of suicide. They wanted to eliminate the parasite.

Board Member Alex. Susnar stated that the autonomy mentioned by Mr. Livett was a joke. "We don't expect any financial support from the International," he said. Speaking of the evils of the contract system he said that he knew mines "where it would be dangerous to run even a mad dog into." What the question really amounted to was were they willing to break away from their old systems. He went on to state that the rank and file of the miners were getting disgusted. They had taken the advice of their recognized leaders "and where are we today?" he asked. They had followed the men of the Gompers' type too long, he said.

D. Rees spoke at some length on the subject and urged that at the present time it was not expedient to urge that a change should be made in the system. "You can call me a Sam Gompers if you like," he said, "but you will be wise if you will not act on the proposed resolution."

The following amendment was then introduced: That the convention was in support of the principle of abolishing the contract system, but that the present time was not opportune for its inroduction.

After an all day session the above was adopted. This was a compromise between the demand of Corbin local that the convention insist that contract labor be abolished.

After luncheon the following resolution was introduced and passed after much discussion:

"Whereas the present standard of beer known as two per cent is not a palatable or nutritious beverage and that the workers feel that a more substantial beverage is healthful and not injudicious, therefore be it resolved that we prevail upon the Dominion government to allow the manufacture of beer containing alcohol to the amount of two and a half per cent alcohol by weight."

The possible breaking away of the Mine Workers of District 18 from the International was incidentally touched upon when a resolution was introduced reading as follows:

"Resolved that District 18 get in closer touch with the miners of Nova Scotia and also British Columbia and Vancouver Island, and the dock hands and employees of the Great Lakes for the interest of organization; further that a call go out from this convention to the the aforementioned mine employees with a view to holding a conference with the end in view to frame a policy to govern all the mine workers of Canada."

The following resolution was introduced and passed:

"Whereas, recognizing that Sam Gompers does not represent the wish of the modern working class, be it resolved that this convention goes on record for the dismissal of the said fakir, Sam Gompers."

The nationalization of all drug stores, hospitals and doctors met with the unanimous approval of the convention.

Councillor Peter Wright of the British Seamen's and Firemen's Union, will address the convention on Saturday morning.

PUBLIC SCHOOL GETS PICTURES

On Tuesday afternoon Fernie Public school was the scene of quite a little gathering. Geo. Thomson, chairman of the Navy League, opened the proceedings. On the platform were Mrs. R. W. Wood and Miss Lizzie Banks, educational committee of the Navy League; Mrs. Moffatt, representing the Women's Auxilary; and Mrs. Fisher the I.O.D.E.

Peter Wright addressed the children in a happy and suitable manner and gave a little sketch of his life at sea, to their great delight. Mr. Wright requested the children to sing and they responded by singing The Maple Leaf. The children were then asked if they would like to write to his children and if so they could get the address at the close of the meeting. There was a great response.

Mr. Wright then made the presentation on behalf of the Fernie Navy League to the school, of eleven pictures for educational purposes, a series of ten pictures starting from the Phoenecians trading with the early Britons, to date and showing the modern fleet. The 11th picture was one of His Majesty King George V.

These pictures were handsomely framed by the Navy League.

Mr. Irvine responded to the presentation on behalf of the citizens of Fernie and Mr. Daniels for the school staff. The pleasant ceremony was then closed by the singing of the National Anthem, "God Save the King."

BIG AUDIENCE HEARS WRIGHT

Peter Wright, Chairman of the Executive of the British Seamen's Union, was greeted with a bumper house on Monday night when he visited Fernie.

The speaker possesses a quiet voice full of eloquence and force and no orator who has ever appeared in Fernie received a better hearing. He is a man who has seen a great deal of the hard side of life and his experiences and travel have given him a grasp of human nature and human problems that was at once evident to the large audience.

He was introduced by ex-Mayor Thomson, chairman of the Local Branch of the Navy League, and Mayor Uphill, who also spoke briefly.

Mr. Wright said that he had come to Canada to repeat the story of the achievements of the British navy, so that the people would not be forgetful of them now that the work was over. That is a national trait, that Britons forget too soon, he said.

"First I want to thank the Navy League for all they have done for me while I have been on this continent, and for the trouble they have taken in arranging the meetings at which I have spoken and I want to thank the people of Canada for doing their duty towards the men of the navy." In Victoria, $200,000 had been voted for work in connection with the old age home for seamen.

"Great Britain for the last four years had regarded its navy as the greatest factor for civilization there was, said the speaker. If it had not been for the navy in the last four years those present would not have been sitting and standing in the hall in comfort. He said that Admiral Tirpitz had stated in April, 1918, that when the Germans had beaten Britain to its knees with the submarines they would take their own navy and the British navy and come to this continent and get what they wanted.

"Do you realize what this ruling power meant by that," Mr. Wright asked. "You may thank God for the naval men who have stood and fought so bravely," he declared.

The Navy League had fought for its existence for a number of years. There were men in Great Britain who thought there would be no more wars. Mr. Wright said that he had traveled through Germany and that the Hun had always been out for murder, blood and the supremacy of the seas.

Mr. Wright said that the Germans had been trying day and night to become successful in their plans.

The Navy league had fought in 1910 for more ships and it was through their agitation that Lord Roberts and Sir Charles Beresford consented to the commencement of building. "If it had not been for that I don't know where we would have been in connection with this war," he said.

In labor circles some men had said, "Let the Germans win." "They are damned fools," emphasized the speaker, "and I am not talking through my hat."

I believe there is no nation under the sun in which the possibilities are greater than in the present commonwealth. We have the power, but we are too stupid to use it, we allow other people to think for us. We have a franchise that is not equalled in any other nations under the sun, including the United States," he said.

War was an awful thing, he said, and anyone who was in favor of war was a lunatic. If they had ever seen the results of war they would never be in support of it. Mr. Wright said that he had been in France and had seen some fighting. He was deadly opposed to war. In the future, he said, disputes should be settled by the means of community spirit, good will and good fellowship. At the beginning of the war there was no hatred to the Germans.

When hostilities had broken out Mr. Wright had taken the responsibility for the good behavior of Germans on British ships who were to be interned. Good quarters had been secured for them, they had been well fed and well looked after. The league had done its duty.

On the other hand in Germany 4000 men had been interned the first week and half of their heads had been shaved of hair, whiskers and moustache. They had been exhibited at the market places, where the people spat at them. They had been allowed only one meal a day, with no bed nor shelter. Eight or ten months later they had been taken and interned in a camp in Galicia, where there were Russians with tuberculosis. Later half of them died of the disease.

FIRE LOSS IN FERNIE WAS VERY LOW

The following is the annual report of Fire Chief McDougall:

To His Worship the Mayor and City Council:

Gentlemen—I beg to submit for your information my annual report ending Dec. 31st, 1918.

The fire losses during the year were $6,126.00. The insurance carried on buildings and contents was $12,950 leaving insurance above losses $6,824. Several fires were responded to outside the city limits which caused a loss of $2350. Deducting this amount from the actual loss leaves only a loss of $3776 within the city for the year 1918, this being the smallest loss for the city for the past eight years.

The number of fires responded to during the year 1918 was 11. Three of these were outside the city limits, where the department rendered valuabl service by preventing the fires from spreading to other buildings.

The Gamewell fire alarm system which has been in operation for the past nine years is giving every satisfaction.

All the apparatus under my control is in good order and in condition to respond to alarms at all times.

I wish to thank the Mayor and Council, also the police department and my department for valuable services rendered at fires during the year.

I respectfully recommend that provision be made in your estimates this year for the purchase of a team of horses and the painting of the combination chemical and hose wagon. These two items are urgently needed, as the horses have reached their limit of usefulness, having been in service for the past ten years. The combination chemical and hose wagon has been in service since 1910 and is urgently in need of a coat of paint.

"ABSOLUTELY IMMORAL"

Victoria, Feb. 19.—The legislature almost reached a vote on the Hanes P.G.E. probe resolution yesterday, a decision benig staved off only when George Bell, of Victoria, moved the adjournment of the debate. There was much plain speaking by members on campaign funds, and the tide of house opinion threatened to set towards the Hanes motion until the adjournment of the debate saved the day.

Liberal members declared that they would favor of the motion and one of them, M. B. Jackson, of The Islands, taunted the Conservatives with being under criticism of having participated in the P.G.E. funds.

"The Conservatives had their trial and had been convicted. Now it is for us to be heard," was the way Mr. Whiteside of New Westminster put it. "Are we to sit here silent, we who went about the country with our lily-white hands in the air protesting against what we called a gigantic fraud. Were we competent judges to sit on investigation of the P. G. E. when we had P.G.E. money in our pockets? For my part I propose to support the resolution."

Mr. Fisher of Fernie started the argument and he brought a hornet's nest about his ears for what Mr. Cowper of Vancouver described as his absolutely immoral attitude with regard to campaign funds.

"Assuming, as seems admitted," said Mr. Fisher, "that contributions were received by the Liberal party, then I submit that the whole Liberal party should take the responsibility and not seek to unload it on certain individuals. D'Arcy Tate's evidence before the P.G.E. enquiry committee in 1917 was that he gave to the Conservatve party. To the credit of that party it has made no effort to unload responsibility onto certain individual members. The whole party has taken the responsibility. The trouble with us in this country is that we are too fond of personalities and of pillorying people in the limelight. A policy of this sort would mean throwing some of the party men overboard while the rest remain as they are, although their election might have been secured by the same funds. The source of the campaign funds, the motive in giving and taking constitute the wrong-doing. You may scandalize a few individuals by such an investigation, but the rest still continue getting funds. In the United States the situation has been met by the publication of all campaign fund receipts.

"Some members seem to think that contributions from corporations dealing with the government should be

WARNS UNIONS THEY MAY GO TOO FAR

London, Feb. 11.—If industrial unrest continues the consequences will be grave to trade and industry, Premier Lloyd George declared in the House of Commons today. The government he said would agree to any kind of an investigation into the causes of the unrest.

Special war conditions, the Premier thought, had contributed to the unrest. Among these conditions were the strain of four years of war and the fear of unemployment.

The Premier said that bills would be introduced next week dealing with housing, health, the revival of rural life, land settlement for soldiers, land reclamation and afforestation.

Mr. Lloyd George said there would be plenty of opportunities of employment if confidence was given those responsible for starting industries and unless the cost of production went so high that it reduced the purchasing power of the community or put them out of the world markets.

Discussing housing conditions, the Premier referred to overcrowding in many districts which had been aggravated during the war by congregating in already crowded areas. The government would do its best to alleviate such conditions. Hours of labor, he said, already have been fixed in industries involving 3,000,000 persons.

Before the war, the Premier said, Great Britain exported more than 1,000,000,000 tons of goods and it was computed that half the cost of the goods was wages. The difference of a few shillings on a ton of a commodity like coal, he added, might deprive the country of hundreds of millions of pounds and might throw hundreds of thousands out of work.

Before the war the railways were making profits of fifty millions, according to the Premier, but their expenses were now increased by ninety millions, largely in wages. To reduce the hours of labor while paying the same wages, he contended, would be to increase unemployment.

Referring to "demands put forward not to obtain fair conditions but to overthrow the existing order, to destroy the government," the Premier declared:

"I say in all solemnity on behalf of the government that we are determined to fight Prussianism in the industrial world exactly as we fought it on the Continent of Europe."

"If all classes of the community are prepared to make the necessary sacrifices for the stability, security and freedom of industry, I am prepared to say, with full knowledge of the consequences, that no section of the community, however powerful, shall be allowed to hold up the whole nation."

The Premier concluded with an appeal that the victory won by battles should not be wantonly dissipated in a few weeks' frenzied strife.

William Adamson, leader of the Labor party in speaking on the industrial situation said that it was almost as menacing and dangerous as war itself. He said that the principal Labor amendment to the reply to the address from the Throne would relate to the causes of industrial unrest.

"I hope," he continued, "that no attempts will be made to disappoint the legitimate expectations of the working people. All sections of the people should understand that we have reached the stage when we have laid the cards on the table and when the working classes will refuse longer to be treated as cogs in a machine for mere profit-making purposes.

Mr. Adamson said he regretted that no mention had been made in the King's speech concerning pensions or of the disposal of government shipyards, factories and other properties on which millions had been spent, or of Russia.

Mr. Adamson said he spoke for the security of the Constitutional Laborites. In referring to a suggestion that the present unrest had been caused by a revolutionary group he said his group never would encourage revolution or unconstitutional action.

The revolutionary elements, the Labor leader said, would exercise little influence unless there was genuine grievances which they could exploit. Unfortunately, he said, there were many grievances concerning wages and hours of employment and fear of more unemployment as well as fear that the government was encouraging monopolies which would make the cost of living impossible.

THE WAR MINISTER DIVULGES SECRET

Viscount Haldane, who presided at a lecture on "America and the War," delivered at the Bedford College for Women recently, by Major R. M. Johnstone, professor of history at Havard University, stated with some particularity the circumstances that led up to the reorganization of the British army between 1906 and 1914 in response to the representations of the French government for military assistance in the event of an attack by Germany and combated the popular idea that England was totally unprepared for war.

After dealing with the difference in the military conceptions of the German and French schools respectively, as exemplified by the great Moltke and by Marshal Foch, he expressed the opinion that in England, and he supposed in America too, they were until a few years ago remarkably innocent of that kind of science and sided neither with the German nor the French school because he supposed they had not been distinctly conscious of what either had to say. But that had to be put right. Lord Haldance continued:

British effort, unlike that of America, which was fashioned quickly and decisively for its present purpose, because you can do things in war you cannot do in peace, began in peace time and it was made under the influence of very fine military brains. I speak with knowledge because it fell to me as war minister to assemble the young generals with whose assistance the expeditionary force and the territorials were fashioned. In the great speech which Sir Edward Grey made in the house of commons on Aug. 3, 1914, which practically announced the determination to go to war, the then foreign minister told us how he had been approached by the French government in January, 1906, and how it was conveyed to him that there was some apprehension of an attack from Germany which might menace British interests. What the French government said in effect was: "We do not ask you to bind yourselves; you must be free. We don't ask anything unreasonable, but if you consider there is a possibility of your being called on in your own interest to come to our assistance and prevent the invasion of the northern part of France by Germany, then it is wise for your military authorities and ours to have conversations, without binding yourselves in any way, with a view to seeing what sort of military assistance you can give."

The upshot was the putting to the French authorities—I remember it because it fell to my lot to formulate it—and it was this: "For what exact purpose will the military assistance be invoked?" That is a very important question and one which is generally answered in a slovenly way. But the object was to see what the problem was and to see whether it was capable of solution. Britain already possessed a great navy, and our people were supposed to be indifferent to the possibility of war. It was supposed that no preparations had been made. I do not think they understood. You do not talk about those things. The policy was to say nothing that could possibly provoke this appalling conflict. Every kindly word, every good thing that could be truthfully said of Germany, was said by some. But at the same time we did not spare ourselves against the failure of those efforts. The policy of counter-strategy to German strategy was thought out, and under McKenna and Churchill the estimates were raised from 35,000,000 pounds sterling in 1906 to 51,000,000 pounds sterling in 1914. At the outbreak of war, the British fleet was in a state of efficiency such as it was never in before, and was not only more efficient, but was equal to two to one against the whole German fleet. In the second place, the French pointed out: "You have a great fleet and we have a great army; our fleet is small, yours is large; our army is large, yours is small." They knew we could not have a large army—because we could not raise a great army in peace time unless you had about thirty years to do it in. To have attempted to change the system, to swap horses when crossing the stream, would have been foolish. But we set to work to do what had to be done. It was not for home defence. We were perfectly defended at home by the fleet and the territorial forces.

But here came the answer to which I have referred as having been addressed to the French. The answer was that the purpose of any British army that could be put into the field must be to supplement the great French army with a force strong enough to hold the Germans if they tried to break through Belgium. The French thought at that time that if we could contribue 100,000 men within fifteen days from the outbreak of war that would be enough to enable them, with their great fortifications and with our reorganized army on the left, to hold the position. But when we came to look into things we found that all we could concentrate was 80,000 men, and then not under two months and a half. The French said: "We should be dead before that." Britain, therefore, set itself out to effect a revolution. That revolution was made under Sir Douglas Haig and a number of other officers who have since distinguished themselves in the war, and some others who have passed away, all of whom worked night and day for the purpose of putting our army for the first time in its history on a war footing in peace time, so that it might be mobilized with the utmost rapidity.

In the end Britain was able to increase the French estimate by giving them, not 100,000 men, but 160,000, not in fifteen days, but in 12 days. I do not think the public knew when Britain mobilized our army, but I will tell you now: It was mobilized at 11 o'clock on the morning of Monday, Aug. 3, 36 hours before war was declared. Mobilization is not a declaration of war. If desired, you can mobilize in time of peace in order to be prepared for war. Within a few hours after the declaration of war the expeditionary force, with the aid of the navy, was across the channel before anybody knew it. Indeed, the first detachment was over within nine days instead of twelve. That was one of the results of putting a definite question as to what purpose the British army was needed for, and working out the answer.

BLUE SKY LAWS

In eastern Canada it is noted that in some quarters that there is strong demand for what is known as "Blue Sky" legislation—meaning laws to protect the unwary and unsophisticated investor from contributing to the exchequers of various and sundry get-rich-quick artists. One of the prolific lines along which such gentry work is that of oil stocks, and even mining has known a few of them to use that industry for their nefarious purposes—to separate the ignorant from their money.

With the close of the war all sorts of concerns and schemes—good, bad and indifferent—are being prepared to unload on the public and secure some of the easy money which war conditions has brought to hundreds of thousands all over Canada and the United States. Five years ago what was known as the Calgary oil boom took place and scores of thousands sank their money in the hundreds of wild cat companies that were formed almost over night to supply the demand. People almost went crazy in the boom and 99 per cent of them lost just the same.

It is now proposed to enact legislation to make it increasingly difficult for such things to occur in the Dominion. Manitoba has such a blue sky law and in oil booms it has saved its residents from squandering millions of dollars in worthless enterprises. Not all concerns are fakes, of course—but the majority that do the flamboyant advertising of huge profits from small investment have no financial or business standing. It is to prevent the promoters of such concerns from fleecing the public that the proposed legislation is intended. By and large, it will be a good move.—Toronto News.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

SEATTLE ROW BAD FOR BOLSHEVISM

Washington, D.C., Feb. 11.—As a result of the Seattle strike bolshevism in this country is under more severe attack than ever. The Seattle disturbance is taken as indicative of what may take place in other cities and because of this in the eastern press and in government circles here one finds intense indignation against radicalism as manifested in organized labor in particular.

In consequence, not only bolshevism, but some of the methods used closed shop idea in industrial establishments during the war period are by organized labor in enforcing the to be put on the defensive.

Observe the wording of this resolution which Senator Poindexter offered in the senate today and which was adopted without opposition and without debate:

"Resolved, That the United States shipping board be requested to inform the senate whether or not workmen who are willing to work in the shipyards at Seattle having government contracts are allowed to do so or given the opportunity to do so, labor union or not; and if those who belong to a labor union or those who do not belong to a labor union are willing to work at wages established by the so-called Marcy award and are not allowed to work in said yard upon said government contracts, the shipping board is requested to inform the senate why and upon what grounds they are not allowed so to work and by whom they are prevented from so doing.'

When the shipping board answer comes along doubtless the whole labor situation at Seattle will be aired in the senate.

Representative Albert Johnson's demand in the house a few days ago that the government proceed under the law to deport alien revolutionists and bolshevists like those who have been so largely responsible for the trouble at Seattle apparently has stirred the government into a show of activity in that direction. At least government officers are slipping out information to newspapers which has warranted the correspondents in writing articles to the effect that the United States is to be swept clean of its alien anarchists and troublemakers.

In the senate today there was another manifestation of the growing unpopularity of aliens who decline to be assimilated. It started when Senator Jones presented a petition signed by 1800 four-minute men of the state of Washington praying the enactment of the senator's bill for the deportation of those aliens who forfeited their first naturalization papers in order to avoid the draft. The senator told the senate that of 205 men who had placed themselves thus in the slacker class an examination showed that 54 had I.W.W. cards.

THE MINING CONVENTION AT VANCOUVER

There is now no question of the success of the first International Mining Convention to be held in Vancouver on March 17, 18 and 19 next. From points as far away as Los Angeles and San Francisco as well as Denver and other big mining centres comes the intimation that the most prominent figures in the minng world are coming to Vancouver next month. Dean Probert, of the University of California may be one of the speakers if he can get back from the mining districts of France and Belgium in time. Mr. Burr Evans of the Golden State, known as one of the foremost mining engineers of the U. S., has stated specifically that he is coming northward next month, while Mr. D. M. Riordan of San Francisco has replied to the invitation to the effect that "it is going to be a big thing that will prevent me visiting B.C. in March to take part in the convention." And these are only samples of the letters that are being received daily.

The arrangements are now complete for the canvassing of the different sections of the province by members of the advisory council to enlist sympathy and support of places like Kaslo, Kamloops, Princeton, Cranbrook, Fernie, Rossland, Nelson, Phoenix, Prince Rupert and every other centre of importance in B. C. H. P. McCraney, who is one of the members of the council has started on his tour of the interior and there is not a place which will be overlooked in his itinerary. The dates of his arrival in the places mentioned cannot be definitely fixed but within the next few days all the interior towns will be visited by him and committees will be formed to take charge of the appointment of a large and representative delegation who will take part in the convention proceedings. This is the first step towards the inclusion of every mining area within the scope of the operations of the B. C. Chamber of Mines, and with a view to extending the scope of the membership as well as securing the unqualified cooperation of those localities in the work of the Chamber.

There will be approximately six thousand feet of floor space for the exhibits in the basement of the Vancouver block, where the ores and mining machinery will be on view. This building is just across the way from the Vancouver hotel where the convention headquarters will be. The basement will be brilliantly illuminated and every facility will be given for the display of the exhibits. The convenience is one thing that the convention committee are looking to and that is one of the principal reasons why the exhibition and the convention are taking place in buildings that are in close proximity.

BRITISH GIRLS ENTICED AWAY TO POLYGAMY

London—Over fifteen hundred British girls are being lured to a life of married slavery—to a life of polygamy. Over fifteen hundred British girls have been persuaded by lying agents to embrace Mormonism. They have had drawn for them rosy pictures of a life of ease and luxury in Utah; of congenial work and plenty of money; of prosperous and happy marriages; of work for the church which will bring them all peace and content.

The Mormon agents and elders — unprincipled, polygamous seducers— are rubbing their hands with glee. Not for a long time have they had such a harvest, and now they only await the withdrawal of the emigration restrictions to ship these "converts" to the Utah harems.

That is what it really means. Never have unsuspecting women and girls stood in greater peril. Never was it more necessary to warn them against the machinations of — not men—but unscrupulous scoundrels, who, under the guise of religion seek to ruin their lives and reputations.

The power of Mormonism is stupendous. It has a fighting fund of $400,000,000. It employs over 400 women missionaries in this country. It has distributed nearly a million and a half pamphlets and books during the last year. At the head of this wealthy and powerful organization was Joseph Fielding Smith, the supreme ruler, who died a short time ago leaving five wives and forty-six children. He was said to have an income of $1,000,000 a year. It was he who started the latest Mormon propaganda "stunt" — a demand for polygamy so that young women may not be deprived of husbands owing to the great loss of man-power caused by the war.

Mormon agents are as wily as the Hun. Their favorite dodge is to start new sects, under all sorts of innocent-sounding names. They secure a building in a populous neighborhood and start a movement or society of a semi-religious and social character. Young girls and lonely women are attracted and so insidious are the Mormon and holds that they have no idea that they are being lured into the Mormon fold.

The war has provided the agents with great opportunity. They have sought out the women and girls sorrowing for the death of husbands and sweethearts. It was easy enough to watch the casualty lists, track the mourning relatives and if the soldier killed had left a young widow, or may be an attractive daughter, to worm their way into their confidence by hypocritical sympathy, and point the way to what they described as "a happier life."

I will cite you a sample which is typical of scores of others. Some months ago the widow of a soldier who had been killed was living in a small Midland town, and was approached by a man who posed as a friend of her late husband. The widow was young, pretty, with one child and quite naturally she turned in her sorrow to this supposed friend of her husband, who was so kind and sympathetic. In a cunning, subtle way he worked on her feelings until he persuaded her that she would only find happiness by leaving her friends and her native town and starting afresh on the other side of the Atlantic. The widow, without any warning to her friends, disappeared with this supposed friend of her husband, who was in reality a Morman agent. What has become of her no one knows.

CANADIAN MILK PRICES ARE LOWEST

A comparative table of prices of milk in Canadian and American cities shows that this most important article of food retails in Canada at roundly 25 per cent less than in the U.S.A. The prices given below have been reduced to the equivalent per imperial quart, so as to make comparison easier. They are retail prices to consumer. The lowest American quotation is 16 1-4c and the highest 26 1-4c (in El Paso, Texas); the lowest Canadian quotation is 12c and the highest 17-18c (at Moose Jaw, Sask.). The Canadian average content of butter-fat in the milk is also higher in the returns, which were secured by the Canada Food Board in as many representative centres in each country as possible, but these figures are not included because they are too technical to guide the general housekeeper.

DIAMOND PRICES RISEN ONE-THIRD

The average retail price of diamonds advanced during the war about 33 1-3 per cent, according to the head of one of Chicago's largest diamond importing houses. According to his figures the present prices of diamonds vary with the size of the stones in this way: One-eighth carat from $12.50 to $20; one-fourth carat from $37.50 to $62.50; one-half carat from $100 to $200; three-fourth carat from $187.50 to $337.50; one carat from $300 to $500. Large diamonds of fine quality sell from $1000 to $2500 a carat and higher. The jeweler showed a four and one-half carat unset diamond, a blue-white from the Jaegersfontein mine in South Africa, which he valued at $1100. This was an exceptionally flawless stone.

"The cause of the rise in price of diamonds," said the jeweler, has not been wholly due to war conditions. The South African diamond mines were closed down for fifteen months during the war and insurance rates on diamonds were so high that South African dealers could make little profit by sending the stones to European and American markets. The advance in insurance rates was due to the danger of German submarines.

"But the mines are now in normal operation and insurance rates have been reduced since the elimination of the submarine menace but prices continue high." Old mines of South India have been abandoned and the output of the Brazilian fields cuts an insignificant figure in the trade. The quantity of diamonds in each load of dirt or kimberlite taken from the South African mines has been decreasing for years as the shafts were sunk deeper into the earth. The cost of mining increases as the tunnels go deeper and the quantity of diamonds decreases.

GREAT WAR EXHIBIT

To those who have seen the Great War Exhibit now being shown at Vancouver under the auspices of the Dominion government, such expressions of returned men as minenwerfer, "rum jars," "sausages" and "whiz bangs" and other odd phrases now mean something. In the life of everyone of the present generation these and other words, descriptive of the murderous implements of war of the Huns, will always be used, and if the exhibition has done nothing else, it has filled a long felt want in ilustrating in a practictl way the meaning of strange words from the parlance of the soldier.

As for the hundreds of photographs shown of battlefield scenes they form an excellent supplement to all one has ever read or been told about the fighting in France, especially of the Battle of Vimy Ridge, where the Canadian troops gained such a glorious victory at such a terrific sacrifice.

The exhibition closes on March 1.

bared but a greater wrong can come from the funds from individuals or corporations dealing with the masses of the people and handing natural resources. So long as there is profiteering and unemployment, so long will there be abuses of campaign funds. When the government shows the big interests that it intends to legislate for the masses then it will no longer receive campaign funds.

"The member for North Vancouver appears to be making an issue of the integrity of the Premier and I do not intend to support the motion. It is time to close up the Liberal ranks and say we have confidence in our Premier."

Mr. Whiteside characterized Mr. Fisher's remarks as "sidestepping."

J. S. Cowper called his attitude an "absolutely immoral" one.

"It has been said that I was elected in my own constituency with the assistance of $2500 from an electric railway company," he mentioned, as he went on to explain that Mr. Hanes' theory appeared to be that as all the Liberals got campaign funds the matter might well be dropped.

"If a corporation as an individual, gave a reasonable amount for the election of candidates whom it favored that would not be so bad and quite within its rights," considered the Vancouver member. "But in the case of the P.G.E. half a million dollars of public money was apparently used for Conservative campaign purposes, or for the procuring of a charter. Mr. Tate virtually got this money from the public treasury and could properly be called before the bar to explain the situation to us. This is a very different category from an ordinary campaign contribution for legitimate election expenses. In my estimation if any members delude themselves into swallowing the doctrine of the member for Fernie they are far wrong. There is no difference in the case of the postoffice clerk who abused his position of trust and filched $20 from a letter and the situation where half a million of public money was diverted to party uses."

Major McIntosh was another supporter of the Hanes motion to call Tate before the bar of the House.

"It was our duty when elected to be true to the people who sent us here," he said. "The last thing before I went overseas the attorney-general solemnly promised to have a full investigation."

The Major said it seemed strange to him that so many men could fancy ostrich-like that they could hide from the issue and still be safe. He went on to add that there was no man he would sooner serve under than the Premier, but he could not see why the Premier should refuse an inquiry on the ground that he was not a scavenger. It was his duty to probe the misuse of public money. Major McIntosh confessed that the attitude of the member for Fernie simply astonished him. It was strange also, he said, that the attitude of the Liberal majority had changed on enquiry matters the moment Mr. Bowser told them: "You can't come after me; we have the goods on you."

Mr. Jackson of the Islands said he would support the Hanes motion. He aroused the ire of the North Vancouver member by adroitly suggesting that he had "bats in the attic" on the subject and an enquiry would therefore remove his obession. Mr. Jackson wanted to know why the house had not heard from the Conservative party about the "damnable corruption" which had existed. Why had the Conservatives not said something about the incredible campaign fund which had been used to prostitute the people of the province? The Conservatives were now and forever convicted of the most atrocious conduct in corrupting the public, he declared. Apparently they dared not rise in their seats and repudiate the suggestion that they had shared in graft and corruption.

It was then that Mr. Whiteside remarked to the effect that the Conservatives had already been tried and convicted and the time had come for the Liberals to make a decision as to their own status.

Some individuals seem to have an idea that the chief functions of newspapers are to throw either brickbats or bouquets. And it is just that kind that would make the biggest sort of a fizzle of it if they were put in charge of the pen pushing end of almost any kind of publication. Any man of experience knows that, while the editor's views may be of some interest, what the people want is news and in a local paper the accent should be on local news—first, last and all the time.

JUNIOR NAVY LEAGUE TEA PARTY

Last Saturday the Junior members of the Navy League were treated to a well arranged musical programme and tea party in the basement of the United Church. The large room had been artistically arranged and many Allied Flags were conspicuous in the decoration. Mrs. Asselstine was general convenor. The program, which had been arranged by Miss Mary Liphardt, consisted of musical selections with the following young ladies taking part: Misses Bell, Hart, Liphardt, Owen and Garner. Mrs. R. W. Wood acted as chairlady and explained that the idea of giving this party was really to start the ball a rolling for the Reading Circles. The books to be used are all attractively written, stories of the splendid work of the Navy and many exploits at sea. It is through these Reading Circles we hope to bring the children into clearer understanding of the Navy and the British Empire. Some of the books are splendidly illustrated.

Mrs. Wood outlined the circle as follows:

Mrs. Hewat and Mrs. W. R. Wilson in charge of readings for League members in the High School.

Mrs. Herchmer and Mrs. Trites in charge of readings for members from Entrance and Junior Fourth Reader.

Mrs. E. K. Stewart and Mrs. Wood in charge of readings for members from the Senior and Junior Third Readers.

Mrs. Moffatt and Miss Banks in charge of readings for members from High and Low Second Readers.

Mrs. Asselstine and Mrs. Fisher in charge of readings for all members lower than Second Reader.

After the short program the Junior members had refreshments. It was a real party as a large basket of lovely candies was passed about, each child helping himself.

The Senior members wish to thank the friends of the Navy League who so generously contributed towards the treat, especially Mrs. H. Biggs, who supplied 250 delicious currant buns.

Other conveners were Mrs. Hewat, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Moffatt, Mrs. Stewart and Miss Banks.

The ladies in charge of the different circles will notify the members of the readings at a later date.

About 150 members enjoyed the party. An enjoyable afternoon was brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King.

WAR SAVING STAMPS

The returns for the first month of the National War Savings Committee, British Columbia Division, were about $25,000 with no returns from 271 units out of 587. The quota which has been set for British Columbia is $5,000,000 for the year 1919. This means that the returns will have to run to at least $450,000 a month for the rest of the year in order to reach the quota. The committee, however, point out that most of the month was occupied by organization work; that very few comittees had been formed; that most of the divisional organizers were waiting for the conference which took place on Feb. 4 and 5; that practically no advertising was done in the newspapers and that therefore under the circumstances the returns are nothing to despair of.

The schools have only just started their educational campaign but they are showing great interest and the teachers are enthusiastic regarding the prospect.

Mr. Campbell Sweeney, the Executive head of the British Columbia Division of the National War Savings, points out that the campaign is essentially one in which foundations must be properly laid and not one which can be carried on spasmodically. The British people subscribed $15,000,000 weekly by means of 12c stamps for their National War Savings.

Another matter which has naturally handicapped the committee at the start of the campaign has been the fact that all the stores throughout the country have been engaged in stocktaking or with their January sales, which of course has prevented them from taking much interest in the National War Savings movement. The commtitee expect that the return for February will be considerably better and show that interest is being aroused and that the people are determined to get behind the country in this movement of national importance.

The contrast in the way the British had treated the Germans proved the fact that there had been no hatred on the Empire's part in 1914.

No reliance could be placed on the Hun. An agreement made at the second conference of The Hague had stipulated that in the event of war no ships should be sunk without warning and without allowing those on board sufficient time to reach safety. It had also been agreed that no loose mines would be used on the sea's highways. But, within 24 hours after the war had started the Germans had placed many loose mines in the English channel, the Bay of Biscay, the North sea and, in fact, everywhere. Hundreds of British ships had been lost.

Then came the first experience of a submarine. Three second class battleships had been sunk and 1500 seamen lost. This had been quite justified under the regulations, as the ships were battleships and the boys had not minded as they could not have a scrap without taking the consequences. Then two trawlers had been sunk off Lowestoft.

When the sailors had got off safely in a dinghy the submarine had come close and shot every man. The bodies filled with shrapnel, were washed ashore.

The next violation of the agreement came when a ship carrying 2500 women and children refugees from Calais to Bordeaux, was torpedoed, with the apparent intention of killing all on board. However, a British torpedo boat destroyer picked up all but 30 within 20 minutes.

The German seamen had proved themselves traitors and brutes and were not fit to be entitled to the name of seamen. The seamen's code of honor had never been smeared until the Hun with his superhuman idea besmirched it with his bestial conduct.

Another instance of how the Germans had done this was that of the torpedoing of a steamer about 500 miles from land. The vessel was struck amidships, the boilers exploding and the men in the engine room were boiled, blown to atoms and drowned. The remaining men got off in lifeboats and then the submarine commander ordered the sailors on to the deck of the submarine. The Germans then destroyed the British lifeboats with hatchets and after making the British seamen take off their lifebelts submerged leaving their victims struggling in the sea. Only three men were saved, and they were brought ashore by a passing steamer.

The spirit of the British navy men was shown when these three men wihtin a week had gone to sea again.

Another time a ship of 8000 tons had been torpedoed by the Huns and as there was a nasty sea running, two lifeboats were washed away. The ship listed to port with the result that the men were not able to launch the remaining lifeboats and in two minutes the vessel sank. While the seamen were struggling in the water, the U-boat steamed up around them, the crew jeering and telling them that there was "plenty of room at the bottom and plenty of time to get there." In the end the men were devoured by sharks. Only two men off the ship were rescued after 24 hours in the water and were landed at a British seaport. Despite this terrible experience the two men joined the navy at the first opportunity.

The labor men had said that the German people were only carrying out what they were told to do by the army leaders, the Junkers and the capitalists. To prove the contrary Mr. Wright cited an incident connected with the sinking of the Lusitania.

On the evening of the day when the ship was torpedoed without warning by the Germans, Mr. Wright was expected to address the interned German seamen in the camp in England. In company with Havelock Wilson he went to the camp and Mr. Wilson told the men that Mr. Wright could not speak to them that evening as 500 of his comrades had been drowend by the sinking of the Lusitania. He thought that at least some of the seamen would get up and apologize, but not one among the men did so and after the two British seamen left the Germans could be heard singing "The Watch on the Rhine" and "Deutschland Uber Alies."

"Here is my reply to those people," said Mr. Wright. "By God, we, as seamen, as long as we live, will not shake hands with the Hun. We are satisfied from what we know that all those men were acting as spies on our ships. Once a Hun always a Hun, no matter how long he is in England or elsewhere. If anyone had ordered our seamen to jeer at those sailors they would not have done so. They would have politely told their officers to go to hell. They would have been shot first."

In another case the men from a torpedoed ship were struggling in the sea and when the U-boat came up the sailors tried to hang on to the sub. The crew of the submarine took hatchets and chopped off the hands of every man who was holding on to the boat.

When another ship went down and the seamen had got off into the lifeboats the German commander ordered the three life boats tied together with a steel hawser and then attached to the submarine. The German vessel steamed along for about a mile and then submerged. The British sailors tried in vain to cut the hawser but the men, 60 in all, were drowned.

The Germans were heroes as long as they could shoot a Captain Fryatt or a Nurse Cavell, and women and children but when it came to a stand up fight they had a yellow streak from the top of their head to the soles of their feet.

Speaking of the response of the British seamen, Mr. Wright said he had only known one man to have refused to go to sea and in that case the man had been compelled to remain ashore because the crew he joined up with said he would hoodoo their ship, as he had been on torpedoed ships six times previously. When war broke out, old sea captains, retired, 60 and 70 years of age, had signified their readiness to go to sea at any moment in the service of their country.

Another incident which the speaker referred to was that of British sailors off a torpedoed vessel being branded on both cheeks with the number of the U-boat which destroyed their ship

"I could tell you for hours of the crimes of the Huns" said Mr. Wright. "Their policy has been a consistent and universal one."

In 1914 Mr. Wright went to the British war office with a request from the sailors that a 4.5 gun be installed on the ships. The reply from the war office was that it was an impossibility as the men in Flanders were short of guns. He was told to go to France and see for himself. Mr. Wright went across and said he was satisifed. He bore testimony to the gallant Canadian boys and he said that the people did not realize what the men had suffered for them. "When the men come back, do whatever you can for them, you cannot do too much," he said. "But whatever you can do it will never repay them for all they have done for you and I."

Mr. Wright said that what he saw in France will always be like a nightmare to him. He told of seeing in the trenches after the Huns had evacuated them young Frenchwomen after being made use of by the Germans, lying disemboweled and with their heads cut off.

The Germans had killed men in cold blood, they had taken slightly wounded men prisoners and left them without attention until peritonitis had set in and limbs had to be amputated.

At Dover he had met a major who had been wounded and the wound left without attention although the man was in a hospital. At last, when maggots were present in the wound the Germans operated on the victim without an anaesthetic.

"We have made up our minds," said the speaker, "we are determined that we will never again sail with another German on our ships."

While all the brutal treatment was going on Mr. Wright was asked to write to the German labor leaders, asking them if they could use their influence with the military and naval authorities to get them to stop murdering British sailors in lifeboats and asking them to play the game.

After a conference of the German labor men a reply was sent to Mr. Wilson to the effect that they could on no account interfere with the military or naval policy, and that the U-boat commanders were justified for every crime committed. This was evidence that the labor leaders were in the game as well as Hindenburg and Falkenheim, said the speaker.

Speaking of Trotzky and the Russian system of government, Mr. Wright said there were men who wanted to bring that method of government to this country.

"I ask every sensible working man, for the sake of himself, to keep these lunatics under subjection," he said. "We have been fighting for four and a half years to destroy autocracy. Be on your guard! There is no good in destroying what you have if you cannot replace it with something better. That would only offer chaos and anarchy. I ask you men who have defeated autocracy not to replace it by another, by men who do not know what democracy means. We cannot go back to pre-war conditions. We are at the opening of a new epoch and I want you to realize that the earth was created for all and not for a few.

"The most important thing is to unite. Then you can elect men in your house of commons whom the lust of office cannot kill, whom the gains of office cannot spoil. Then you will bring about the result for which our noble men have been fighting. I ask you to make up your minds never to purchase any commodity manufactured by Germany. Lloyd George has said that every enemy alien should be deported back to where he came from. There have been many of these men in our country who have tried to injure the nation. They have proved themselves unworthy and they are at present interned. I want you to see that they are sent back to their own countries."

Not until the Hun was clean, Mr. Wright said, should any dealings be had with them. Fritz would come back now with lots of soft soap and would blame it all on the kaiser or someone else. "But, be on your guard," the speaker repeated. "Not until he is repentant and regenerated into a different animal than what he is will we have anything to do with him."

B. C. GOVERNMENT IS LOSING SUPPORT

Victoria, Feb. 20.—Marked evidence of the growing spirit of discontent among followers of the government was had during the past week in the legislature, a spirit manifested in no uncertain manner by that hitherto solid member of the party, David Whiteside, New Westminster, who, in his speech on the debate on the Address on Monday did not hesitate to tell the government that its prestige in the country has been shattered. He based his claim upon, to him, the undoubted feeling of the people that the administration has not measured up to its opportunities. The "miserable policy" of the public works department in respect to road work; the rumors abroad that "political refugees" will be harbored by the government in important public offices such as the proposed Public Utilities Commission, and the supineness of the government in its constant naming of party heelers to public office despite the oft repeated denunciations of the evils of patronage and the claims of the efficiency of the Civil Service Act, were enough, Mr. Whiteside thought, to make a party supporter rub his eyes and ask: Where are we at? He saw in the furore members of the government are making over the disallowance by the federal government of the Settlers' Rights Act Amended Act, passed at the 1918 session, a mere effort on the part of some to spring into the limelight as champions of civil rights and property, while the real reason, as he saw it, was a desire to draw a red herring across the trail and by securing the assent of the house to the re-enactment of the measure, a step promised by the government, to permit certain parties, friends of the administration, to benefit at the expense of others.

The further the session proceeds the more apparent it becomes that "passing the buck" is a favorite pastime of the members on the government side. The chief question at this time concerns the returned soldier and his rehabilitation into civil life. When the opposition criticizes the administration for its failure to have anything like a comprehensive policy capable of producing results for the men who are daily returning in increasing numbers, the retort is to cast the blame upon the Union government at Ottawa, which Premier Oliver declared on the floor of the house to be the same old Borden government which had wrapped itself in the Union Jack, adopted a slogan of patriotism and appealed to the country, but which remains the same old gang. The recent visit to Victoria of prominent eastern Liberal party managers and the almost unanimous and undoubted concerted manner in which each party supporter 'slams' Ottawa indicated to the political wiseacres that the call has gone forth and the Liberal party throughout Canada is girding up its loins for the forthcoming federal contest.

The "big guns' were heard in action on the debate on the Address. Mr. Bowser vigorously criticized the government for its lack of policies to meet the needs of reconstruction period, especially in respect of the returned soldiers. He manifestly "got under the hide" of the members of the administration. "Paper legislation, paper policies and a paper administration" was the summing up of the opposition leader.

Premier Oliver, in his reply, spent most of his time, not in answering the criticisms of his administration, but in a personal attack upon the opposition leader, suggesting the latter is insane and throwing the blame for existing conditions in the province upon the shoulders of the late administration. He definitely stated the government would refuse to grant to the municipalities new sources of revenue from out of those now enjoyed by the government, pleading that the government needed every cent it can get from its greatly increased tax levies. But he promised there would be legislation brought down permitting the municipalities to tax themselves still more heavily if they so desire. Mr. Bowser had made a strong plea for the grant to the municipalities of some part, at least, of such provincial taxes as the amusement tax, motor licenses and others.

The defection from straight party ranks of C. Hanes, North Vancouver, and Capt. McIntosh, Vancouver, the latter now leader of the soldier party, is apparently worrying the government. The Premier in his speech likened them to two unruly children of a large family and opined they are deserving of a "spanking." So far the chastisement inflicted by the government leader has got no further than a mild rebuke. The attitude of the two members would indicate that they have reached the incorrigible stage and are past redemption, judging from the standpoint of the Premier and party politics. Incidentally the efforts of Hanes, backed by McIntosh, to force an investigation into P.G.E. contributions to party campaign funds, is not being relished by the government side. Each day when Hanes' resolution calling for an inquiry is reached some party member promptly adjourns the debate, thus stalling off a vote upon the motion.

BOLSHEVISM NOT LIKELY TO GRIP AMERICA

Talk of Bolshevism seems to fill the air, even as it fills the newspapers. Apparently a nervousness has spread across the sea from seething and disordered Russia sufficiently acute, at least, to make pens scribble, tongues wag and many brains work apprehensively.

However, Judge Elbert H. Gary, one of the largest employers in the world, as chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, is not one of those who believes that the American workman ever will be swept by any dangerously Socialistic impulse, even remotely approaching tendencies toward anarchy, in other words by any manifestation simulating what mysteriously is known in Russia by the indefinite term "Bolshevism."

"Do you think Bolshevism so called will spread to the United States — that is, do you believe that Bolshevistic theories will be approved and endorsed in America to any noteworthy extent?" I asked the famous industrialist.

"Frankly," he said, "I do not. There are many reasons for my firm conviction. My principal cause for optimism is my faith in the good sense of the people of this country. The greater portion of the inhabitants of the United States are sufficiently intelligent to know that Bolshevism, if carried to its natural and logical conclusion is opposed to the best interests of every human being in the land, from the least important workman to the most important employer.

"Bolshevism, as I understand the word, for which many definitions have been given, means a rule of force, rather than of justice. It stands for an utter disregard of law. To admit that or a theory could gain important support in the United States would be to admit that all the money and the effort which we have expended upon public education have brought us no result.

"As I understand it the theory of Bolshevism advocates the destruction or the appropriation, without compensation, by an indefinite force vaguely called 'the people,' of all property, whoever may be the present owner. Public confiscation of all property would include that of the small holders as well as that of large ones, and by far the greater proportion of the property of the United States is in the hands of small holders. Thus Bolshevism would begin with the oppression, nay, the robbery, of the majority, although I understand the meaning of the word to be exactly that—'the majority.'

"Such an appropriation of property by any force, definite or indefinite, would result in the reduction to sheer slavery of more than one-half of the population. Every one who has been industrious, thrifty, intelligent, right minded, law-abiding, would be penalized. Inasmuch as 'the majority' consists of just such people it is hardly probable that anything of the sort will happen here. The destruction of property rights would lead to the destruction of life by wholesale.

"No class of people in America would be willing to take even one step in that direction. The advocates of Bolshevism may have loud voices but must be few in number. It would be impossible to convince a man who has lived in the United States as many years as it has been my privilege to live among my countrymen that the time has come, or ever will when the majority of our people will deliberately set forth to destroy the happiness of others, or to confiscate their property. I know the workmen of America. They are intelligent beyond any others in the world. A Bolshevist must certainly be one with everything to gain and nothing to lose. The American workman has more which might be lost, in the grand aggregate than any other workman in the world, or for that matter, than anybody else in the United States.

"The workmen of today are the employers of tomorrow. Practically all the successful men in the industry with which I am associated, that of the manufacture of iron and steel, began life without pecuniary advantage or any influence, save that which they themselves created through faithful and honest performance of their duty as it came to hand. The fact is undeniable."

Judge Gary was himself born and raised upon a middle western farm.

ELKO NOTES

Without wishing to start anything unpleasant, what is the Union government going to do for the returned soldier?

E. F. Gogot, Secretary of the Nelson Board of Trade, in last week's Nelson News, comes out with facts and figures to show why the Dominion government should build the Transcontinental Highway through the Crow's Nest Pass. He says: The scenery may not be so grand, as through the all red route. So we would just like to ask Mr. Gogot if he ever saw Elko in daylight. If there is anything on the C.P.R. main line that beats Elko for scenery the C.P.R. has not discovered it yet. If the Great Northern held the land around Elko the C.P.R. does, Elko would be the north gateway to the Glacier National Park. Does Mr. Gogot know that several Europeans who travelled over the C.P.R. main line several times went mad when they saw the scenery surrounding the old historic burg of Elko, and are now in New Westminister raving about it. There are 99 points in favor of the Crow's Nest Pass over the C.P.R. main line route for this highway. They have nothing in the whole route from Calgary to the coast to compare with the road between Fernie and Elko and at Elko the scenery spreads out like the influenza. You are all right, Mr. Gogot in your facts and figures and we admire you for the steps you are taking to ensure the tourist the most interesting route in the whole Dominion, and at the same time the government the cheapest route to build, but your knowledge of the magnificent scenery along this route is painful.

We have it on the very best authority that Princess Patricia and Commander Ramsay will not spend their honeymoon in Elko as stated in some of the leading journals—absolutely no truth in the reports. The last time the popular Princess was in Elko she was presented with a basket of big red apples by Jim Thistlebeak, who believes in advertising.

Two new hotels to open up in Elko in the near future. (Praise God from whom all blessings flow.) It's been hell to put up at either of the hotels that have been running there for some time.

Jim Thistlebeak says: We have the returned soldiers to settle and there is no country in the world can settle this problem as easily as Canada can if handled by men instead of brass buttoned snobs and grafters.

J. M. Watson, who went overseas with the 225th, returned to Elko on Sunday night from Vancouver and was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roo, and left Monday for Roosville, where he enlisted from.

The Old Timers Dance in the Hirtz hall last Friday night was well patronized by the residents of the Queen City of the the Pass and many outsiders who came to partake of the conviviality that abounds and the food the ladies supply free at these dances that will put flesh on a mine prop. A. Birnie, the champion Highland fling dancer of Elko and Tobacco Plains, and auto engineer, was floor manager. Mesdames Carter, Graham, Birnie and Hirtz were the reception committee, who gave everyone a very hearty welcome to the hard times dance as it was called, and the rags that dangled, the sackcloth and the gunnysacks that were worn sure gave it every appearance of hard times, and had any masquerade backed off the floor. As one little boy remarked, his movver always took him where there was anything funny. Miss Perry of Wycliffe, who is the guest of Mrs. Ray Hirtz, took first prize for the best lady dancer, and Archie Abbey of Flagstone took first prize for gentlemen. It was both a social and financial success, and the same committee will give another social swirl on Feb. 28, and the next will be the big doings at the 17th of Ireland—a masquerade.

When did old Kaiser Bill, the Berlin butcher, know it was time to leave Berlin? When the Canadians wound up the watch on the Rhine.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shane, Mr. Fred Butler, of Ottawa, and Miss Gilmore, of Toronto, who have been visiting friends in the Roosville valley for the past few months, left for the east on Saturday, stopping over in Fernie on Sunday.

Francis Downs was in Elko last week coming in from Spokane and left for the Roosville valley to his mill plant, which he intends to move further down the valley.

War to Peace

Make The Returning Soldier Welcome

THIS is an important hour for Canada. The nation is entering on a new era. It is passing from war to peace. Let us start this new era right. There are thousands of soldiers returning from overseas. The Government is doing all in its power to get these men back to civil life.

It is giving a War Service Gratuity—more than any other nation—to keep the soldier going till he gets a job.

It gives him a pension—where his usefulness is impaired by his service.

It teaches a man a new trade when his service unfits him for his former trade.

It gives him free medical treatment when illness recurs, and supplies free artificial limbs and surgical appliances.

It is bringing back to Canada at the public expense the soldiers' dependents now overseas.

But the Government, however willing, cannot provide the personal touch needed in this work of repatriation. That must be given by the people themselves.

The men who went from these parts to fight in Flanders deserve a real welcome home—the best we can give.

In most towns committees of citizens have already been organized to meet the soldiers and their dependents at the station, to provide hot meals, supply automobiles, afford temporary accommodation when necessary.

In addition, many other towns are organizing social gatherings to give public welcome to returned men after they have been home a few days.

After he has rested, the soldier must be provided with an opportunity for employment. In towns of 10,000 population, Public Employment Offices have been established to help soldiers, as well as war-workers, secure good jobs quickly. Where these exist, citizens should co-operate. Where they do not exist, the citizens themselves should help put the soldier in touch with employment.

The fighting job is done. It has cost many a heart-burning. But it has been well done. The least we can do is to show our appreciation in no uncertain manner.

Don't let the welcome die away with the cheers.

The Plain Truth about Shoe Prices

LEATHER is scarce and is growing scarcer. A large part of the available supply must be used for soldiers' boots. Importations have practically ceased and we are forced to depend upon the limited quantity of materials produced in Canada.

The cost of everything which goes into a pair of shoes is high, and is going higher. Workmen by the thousands have joined the colors, and labor is increasingly hard to get. It is not merely a matter of high prices, but of producing enough good quality shoes to go around.

These conditions are beyond the control of any man, or any group of men. They fall on all alike. No one is exempt—neither the manufacturer, the dealer, nor the consumer.

You must pay more today for shoes of the same quality than you did a year ago. Next Spring, prices will be higher still.

These are hard facts. They will not yield to argument. They cannot be glossed over. We cannot change them, much as we would wish to do so.

But you, as a wearer of shoes, can help to relieve them if you will exercise prudence and good judgment in purchasing. See that you get real value for your money. Spend enough to get it, but spend nothing for "frills."

See that the manufacturer's trade-mark is stamped upon the shoes you buy. High prices are a temptation to reduce the quality in order to make the price seem low. But no manufacturer will stamp his trade-mark upon a product which he is ashamed to acknowledge. Remember this, and look for the trade-mark. It is your best assurance of real value for your money.

LABOR SOUND IN HEART AND HEAD

The Toronto News speaks of Labor in that city being sound in heart and head. It says:

"The overwhelming triumph of sane trade unionism over extreme Bolshevism and anarchy are in a hopeless minority amongst the workers of Toronto. The "Reds" have been put to flight. It has been proved beyond peradventure that the vociferous minority have made a great deal more noise than is warranted by their pronounced numerical inferiority. The working men of this city are committed to evolution and they are absolutely opposed to revolution. They mean to attain a greater share in the good things of life, but they will pursue this legitimate object by constitutional means." It will be fortunate if in all Canadian cities it can be said that such sanity of Labor is as prominent.

FEDERAL HOUSE IS OPENED

Ottawa, Feb. 20.—Parliament opened today. The note of mourning in hanging crepe and half-masted flags was everywhere. There was none of the usual social display. No invitations were issued to the ceremony—usually the social event of the year—there was none present but the governor-general and his staff, members of parliament assembled to hear the speech from the throne, judges of the supreme court and a few of the men of prominence gathered to pay their last respects.

In the speech from the throne, a franchise bill is promised. The bill will, among other things, effectually enable women to vote and confer upon them the privilege of sitting in parliament. There will also be bills to provide for aid in highway construction; to assist returned soldiers in settling upon the land and to promote desirable immigration and farm settlement; bills to promote vocational education, to create a department of public health; for the promotion of better housing conditions and for the validation of the prohibition orders in council.

The speech refers to the close of hostilities on terms of "practically unconditional surrender."

"Through the long conflict with its dire vissicitudes and varying fortunes," the speech continues, "our people never allowed themselves to doubt that victory would finally crown our cause which was that of truth and justice. The deeply loyal and earnest co-operation of the overseas Dominions and dependencies with the mother country must more firmly cement for all those ties which bind the empire in indissoluble union," and the spirit born of common sacrifice would also, it was confidently hoped permanently unite the Allies by the bond of a great memory and tradition and effectually promote the formation of a league of nations which would ensure for all time the peace of the world.

Following the speech from the throne, members of the commons headed by the speaker, returned to the house but the proceedings here were brief. Dormal motions incidental to the opening of the session were reported by Sir Thomas White. There was a motion that the remains of Sir Wilfrid Laurier be given a public funeral.

Then, out of respect, the house adjourned till Tuesday when full tribute will be paid by leaders of both sides to Sir Wilfrid's memory.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

OH, SUCH A HEADACHE!

Every now and again don't you get one of those fearful headaches that drive you to do anything to get relief? Remember, though, its a mistake to just "smother" the pain without removing the cause. Nearly all headaches have their beginning in the stomach, liver or bowels, and the best remedy is Chamberlain's Tablets, which tone the liver, sweetens the stomach and cleanse the bowels. This not only cures the headache but prevents its return.

To Secretary I.O.D.E.:

I beg you to convey my most hearty thanks to the ladies of your Chapter for the splendid Xmas parcel which I received in Rhyl, North Wales, the day before I sailed for home. I appreciate your work and kindness very greatly and am sure all the other boys do who have received parcels from your Chapter. Your parcels were a great help to our boys when so far away from home doing our bit for freedom's sake. It is very hard, however, for the dear ones at home whose sons have paid the price. The few of us who have landed back home should be very thoughtful. Yours sincerely,

Sapper R. Hartley,

THAT ALIEN RESOLUTION

Council met in regular session last evening with Mayor Uphill in the chair and Aldermen Beck, Graham, Robichaud, Rutledge and Gates present.

The audience was the largest that has appeared at a council meeting for years, deputations being present from the G.W.V.A., the Ladies' Auxiliary and Gladstone local union.

Minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The Mayor then read a resolution regarding the expulsion of alien enemies, which he wished to take the place of the Vancouver resolution on the same subject which he had tabled at the last meeting of the council. Having thus forestalled the protest of the G.W.V.A. and Ladies Auxiliary, who were known to be coming in a body to the council to protest against the tabling of the Vancouver motion, His Worship invited the deputations to speak.

The Vancouver resolution calls for the expulsion of all alien enemies interned or not. The "doctored" resolution called for the expulsion of all enemy aliens who by actions or speech have proved themselves undesirable..

Lieut. Mitchell then briefly addressed the council, contending that the resolution passed by the Vancouver city council should also be passed by the Fernie council without amendment.

Mrs. Duthie then read a resolution passed by the Ladies Auxiliary, condemning the Mayor and council for having tabled the resolution at the last meeting. The resolution was a straight from the shoulder punch, from the viewpoint of the ladies. The Mayor accepted full responsibility for the tabling of the Vancouver resolution.

Harry Martin, who said he represented Gladstone Local Union, then entered a protest against the Vancouver resolution, declaring that "we will not stand for it." Upon being asked who "we" were, he said Gladston local. Mrs. Moffatt replied that she was not aware that Gladstone Local was running this city. As a matter of fact there were present nine members of Gladstone Local, returned men, who were there to support the Vancouver resolution.

The Mayor then announced that it was his turn. He spoke for 17 minutes about the South African war and patriotism, but more largely on injustice to alien enemies, and took a shy at the Free Press for not reporting more fully his remarks at the last meeting on the Vancouver resolution. When he had finished, Mrs. Moffatt pointedly informed him that while the great burden of his speech had been on injustice to alien enemies he had failed to say one word about justice to our own British people.

Mr. Reid, a miner, declared that he would not work in the mine beside an Austrian or German. Either he or the alien enemy would have to get out.

Bob Duthie then told of an incident which happened here during the war, showing the attitude of a German who was still walking the streets of Fernie.

Lieut. Mitchell then pointed out that Great Britain was expelling all enemy aliens, which was exactly what the Vancouver resolution called for.

On suggestion of the Mayor the matter was passed up until later on in the meeting and the delegation withdrew.

The King's hotel will receive $100 and nine pair of blankets in full settlement of claim against the city re the use of the hotel as an emergency hospital.

The Govt. Agent wrote stating that the government had expended up to date $2652.84 on the river bank protection scheme.

A. I. Fisher wrote enclosing a copy of a River Bank Protection bill now before the legislature, in which it is proposed to make those benefiting from such work liable to a certain proportion of the cost.

A resolution from Calgary city council asking the Dominion government to be responsible for the upkeep of all returned soldiers until they had secured employment, was endorsed without discussion, and a copy ordered to be sent to the Prime Minister.

A letter from Mr. Cummings, of Cranbrook, re river bank protection work, was held over until next meeting.

The council went on record as not being in favor of a new system of policing the cities of the province by having the entire police force controlled by a central commission.

The school board presented the estimates for 1919, which amounted to $27,151.00, being an increase of approximately $1700 more than last year, the main portion of the increase being for repair of the roof and cornice of the Central school, which is reported to be in an almost dangerous condition.

The esitmates of the police commission were also presented, the same showing an increase of $200 over last year.

The annual report of the city engineer was read and accepted, and he was instructed to send in a monthly report hereafter.

A number of cases concerning rebate on water on account of frozen pipes and vacant buildings, were disposed of.

The council decided that it could make no reduction in the Roma hotel water rate as the amount charged was according to the bylaw.

A committee of the council who has been looking into the Municipal Act recommended that a number of changes be asked for, one of them being that the qualification for police commissioner be made the same as that of aldermen.

The sale of the funishings of the emergency hospitals proved more or less of a fizzle. The Fernie hospital has offered to buy the sheets and nightshirts at a price and their offer will be accepted.

The total cost of the assessment appeal re King Edward and Napanee hotels will be a little over $600.

The matter of the alien enemy resolution was then taken up again, and after a long drawn out and tedious discussion the "doctored" resolution was passed at the hour of midnight.

PICCARELLO PICKED

The famous stool pigeons, who were practically driven out of the Stavely district a few weeks ago, got in some of their work in The Pass last week.

They presented an innocent Italian citizen with sufficient cash to provide a decent jag, and after getting the fellow to hunt up the joy-stuff, raided several suspected joints for bootlegging.

E. Pick, of the Alberta Hotel, was a delighted victim for the individuals who received their authority and instructions from Edmonton. Several bottles of "hard" were confiscated and both the proprietor and his bartender were brought before the J. P. at the A. P. P. barracks, where they permitted somewhere in the neighborhood of $290 to be extracted from their jeans. Other places in town were found to be as dry as the attorney general's department would have them.

Two Chinese restaurants at Bellevue were raided next day and seven barrels of beer were taken for safe keeping. These were taken to Blairmore, where, after a long search, a "dry" cellar was found, in which to store the stuff. Although the stuff had not been analyzed or proven to contain more than two per cent. of alcohol, the Chinamen were asked to plead guilty, which they did, and were mulcted to the tune of $100 and costs each.

Judging from reports coming from the case, it seems that the Chinamen have not yet been proven guilty of an infraction of the Act, although in their ignorance they so pleaded. This can be said in connection with the work of the pigeons, that they confiscated the beer from the Chinamen, but failed to take the same stuff from other joints raided, and the public are wanting to know why this discrimination.—Blairmore Enterprise.

CONVENTION AT CALGARY

Whatever reforms the United Mine Workers are seeking to bring about, are not, in any sense, of a Bolshevist nature. This was clearly stated this morning at the sixth day of the District 18 convention in the report of the international board member, Robert Livett, which came up for discussion. Although some of the delegates hold certain Socialist views, and from time to time interject them into the various debates, the general policy of the greater number was clearly outlined by the international representative in a statement in his report which read:- "The first step on the part of the workers towards reconstructing society must be political. By this means we will be able to settle industrial conditions on a basis which will bring a fuller and better life. Reconstruction cannot be achieved by more trade, or by a six-hour day, but must be gained by the control of political power; that power in their hands, the workers can stop robbery and institute the production for use; reconstruction will then be complete."

Mr. Livett was asked by Board Member Alex. Susnar what he meant by political action, and what party he would recommend for the miners of District 18.

"Sam Gompers," ejaculated A. Cacchiono (Wayne), which brought forth a stern rebuke from Chairman Dave Irvine.

In reply Mr. Livett stated that each man would have to consider his position in society and know whom to support.

Alex. Susnar stated that the working man would never be able to secure a fair deal until the capitalist class had been overthrown, the same as it had been in Russia and Austria-Hungary.

This brought forth a somewhat heated reply from Mr. Livett. "We all have our ideas," he remarked, "and I have expressed how, in my opinion, reconstruction can be brought about. Delegate Susnar has his views, and has cited Russia and what has been accomplished there. But what have they accomplished?" he asked. "If the revolution in that country proves a success it will be the first one in history. I want to say this," he continued, "that no revolution can become a success unless the people realize their position at the time of the revolution, and that they can administer affairs after they have got control.

"That position," he said, "is a long way from us, and there is a lot of education to be done. You may say that we are getting to a position of revolt but if that revolt takes place we will be in exactly the same position as now."

Alex. Susnar contented that as the soldiers of the Allies had now been withdrawn from Russia it was proof that the country was in a position to manage its own affairs.

The matter will be dicussed further this afternoon.

Much of the time at the session this morning was taken up in explaining the meaning of the Western Conference, which is to take place in Calgary on March 13, and arose out of a discussion on the question of a six-hour day mentioned in the secretary's report. Some of the delegates wanted to know exactly what was to take place at the conference. Delegate Susnar asking if it was to be merely a political football.

International Representative D. Rees gave all the information he had on the subject, but remarked that "there is no man in Canada who can tell you what will take place there." He stated that for many years in the past nearly all the trades and labor congresses had been held in the east, and that the western invitations had always been voted down. He went on to relate that at the Quebec convention the western men had put forward recommendations such as industrial unionism. It was always the same, however, they were voted down by the eastern men. A meeting was, therefore, held during the session of that convention of the western representatives, with the result that it was the unanimous opinion that this western conference should be held, which was confirmed at a second caucus meeting, and the only one who opposed the convention was Alex. Ross, M. L. A., and he did it on the ground of expense.

The speaker entered fully into the negotiations with the British Columbia Federation of Labor, and also that of Alberta, and it was ultimately arranged that this convention should be held in Calgary immediately after the conference of the B.C. Federation of Labor, which meets here March 10, and which would not be in session for more than three days.

Mr. Rees stated that, as the B.C. men would be here, that there would be a strong delegation at the western conference and also from Alberta and probably from Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

What matters would be brought up at that conference, however, was not at present known, but there would, undoubtedly, be many questions of prime importance to the working classes in general.

Ed. Bedford (Rock Springs) wanted to know if the press would be admitted to the convention, to which Mr. Ross replied emphatically in the affirmative, adding, amid laughter, that he would like to see a representative of the New York Times there.

A. Susnar: "Will you be in favor of bringing about a general strike throughout Canada if the orders-in-council regarding free speech, free literature, and the release of political prisoners are not repealed?"

Mr. Rees: "Absolutely, if anything is to be gained by accomplishing a strike, but I have in mind Delegate McRoberts' argument that it is useless calling a strike if everyone is idle."

When the District No. 18 miners resumed their session on the morning of the 24, they again took up what is proving to be the liveliest debate of thesession. "Industrial unionism and the endorsement of the general strike if necessary" are the topics under discussion.

Before the house is a section of the report of the delegates to the recent convention of the Alberta Federation of Labor at Mdicine Hat endorsing the federation of industrial unionism and the general strike. The miners' committee has concurred in the endorsation and moved its adoption.

The report was later adopted.

International Board Member Levitt was the first to rise in opposition. He pointed out that the convention was evidently prepared to take up a discussion of wage contracts with the operators, and had signified that it was prepared to await action of the international.

"Despite all the talk we hear in this convention," said Mr. Levitt, "I know the membership want a contract. We cannot get along at this time without a time agreement, and we should enter into it in good spirit to keep it inviolate."

GET TOGETHER BONSPIEL

The Ladies Curling Club held a get together bonspiel this week in which over 200 people took part. The competition, which consisted of fifty-one rinks, has been played down to the eights. The skips which have reached that stage are Messrs. Henderson, Lancaster, McLaren, Harvey, Lawe, Cummings, Douglas and Corbett.

The following is a list of those who entered rinks in the get-together bonspiel this week under the auspices of the Ladies Curling Club:

Hamilton, Glover, Greenwood, Robertson, Quail, Lawe, Stewart, Cummings, Trites, Douglas, Baldrey, Carmichael, Guy Johnston, Gates, Spence, Kossoff, Bean, Brown, Graham, H. J. Johnson, Rhodes, Prentice, Corbett, Kastner, Liphardt, Macleod, Smith, Uphill, McDougall, Suddaby, Henderson, Corrie, Thomson, Winters, G. F. Johnson, Kinnear, Watt, Harvie, Kirkpatrick, Owen, Wallace, Irvine, Yolland, Graves, J. Johnston, W. Lancaster, P. Lancaster, McIntyre, McEwan.

Mrs. F. C. Lawe, who has been managing the spiel says that the club will clear about $75, which they will spend in fixing up the waiting rooms at the rink.

An effort should be made by the curlers to hold more of these events as there is no game where all classes and cliques can get together like a big joyous bonspiel.

A musical and dramatic entertainment will be given in Christ church basement on Tuesday evening, March 4. The program will open with an amusing little sketch called "Releasing a Man." It pictures the efforts of a titled lady to take the place of a window clearner and so release a man for the front. Then will fellow songs by Mesdames Suddaby, Asselstine and Prentice and Messrs. Alexander and Nelson. Mr. T. Beck will give one of his enjoyable recitations. The program will conclude with a laughable farce entitled "My Turn Next." Commence at 8.30. Admission 25c.

BRITAIN DOMINANT THROUGHOUT PERSIA

Great Britain, through the collapse of orderly government in Russia, has become the sole paramount power in Persia, whence Morgan Shuster, the American treasurer-general of the kingdom, was expelled at the instance of Russia some eight or nine years ago because he had insisted on appointing three very capable English officials of the Persian government to administrative posts in the northern portion of the dominions of the Shah, that is to say, in the Muscovite sphere of influence of the kingdom. By the Anglo-Russian treaty of Reval, Persia had been divided into two spheres of influence, Russia undertaking to restrict herself to the north and Great Britain to the south. Now Russia, which used her sphere merely for purposes of spoliation and oppression, has disappeared, and the entire country, the northern as well as the southern portion of the kingdom, is comprised in the British sphere.

That is to say, it is under the political and economic mentorship and military protection of King George to whose sovereignty more than half the Mohammedans of the entire world are subject. In fact, he has more Mohammedans living contented under his sway than all other monarchs and foreign states put together.

Under the circumstances it is fortunate that Great Britain should have been so very careful to protect and shield the sacred city of Kerbela (in the province of Bagdad, and about 60 miles to the southwest of the latter) from all harm. Everybody on this side of the Atlantic has heard of Mecca and Medina. How many are there who have ever heard of Kerbela? Yet it is the holiest city in the world, in the eyes of the Shiite dnomination of the Moslems, to whom all the people of Persia and many millions of Mohammedans in British India belong.

The Moslems are divided into two great factions, namely, the Sunnites and the Shiites. The Sunnites accept the first four successors of Mahomet as rightful Caliphs. The Shiites claim that these first four Caliphs were usurpers and insist that the first real Caliph after Mahomet was Ali, the son-in-law of the Prophet and the husband of his daughter Fatima. Their great hero and saint is Hosian, favorite grandson of the founder of the faith. He had declined to take the oath of allegiance to Moawifa, the new Sunnite Caliph. Hosian met Moawifa in battle at a spot just outside the city of Kerbela, and was signally defeated, his followers being massacred to the last man, after he had been killed by an arrow. The spot where he fell became holy ground. magnificent mosque was built upon it and the site is more sacred to the Persian and Indian Moslems than Mecca itself. In fact, every Moslem of the Shiite sect either makes a pilgrimage to Kerbela in life or else makes provision for being buried there after death.

Whereas the Young Turks' Ottoman army have during the present war been guilty in the eyes of all the followers of the Prophet of bombarding Mecca, and of actually shelling the sacred Kaaba and the tomb of the Prophet, Great Britain has treated Kerbela, like Bagdad, with the utmost reverence and consideration, just, in fact, as she did Jerusalem, preferring to have recourse to much more arduous and difficult military methods of advance and capture rather than injure any sacred shrine by means of gunfire.

It is this consideration for the religious feelings of the Moslems, so opposite in every respect to the brutal disdain and vandalism of the Germans in such matters, that has won for the British the goodwill of the followers of the Prophet throughout the world, and especially of those adherents of the Shiite denomination of Islam who people Persia and who form the bulk of the Moslem population of India.

This will tend to greatly facilitate the very necessary work of administrative, political and, above all, economic reform that is needed in order to render Persia an orderly, law-abiding and prosperous nation instead of a bankrupt state; a continual trouble of the foreign powers by reason of eternal anarchy and civil war.

DEATH KNELL SOUNDED FOR HORSE—1918

The year 1918 probably saw the climax—the turning point—in the great battle between animal power and gasoline in the United States. Analysis seems to indicate that the horse is at last on the run and that the motor truck has put him to flight.

The annual report of the bureau of crop estimates of the department of agriculture is hardly the place to which the truck manufacturer turns for information concerning his business. Yet the report issued on Jan. 21 by this bureau is of the utmost importance to motor truck manufacturers.

For many years automobiles have increased in number and horses have ceased to be a factor of any consequence for pleasure driving or transportation of passengers. Nevertheless they have increased in number each year up to 1918. There were a million and three-quarters more horses in the United States in 1917 than there were in 1909. The tide did not turn until last year, when the number of horses decreased by 21,000.

Of course, a large proportion of this decrease may be attributed to the use of horses in war. But against this must be set the fact that during the same year hogs increased in number 5,000,000, sheep 1,000,000, and cattle several hundred thousand. The drain on these latter animals for war purposes was undoubtedly much heavier than on horses.

It is also significant that horses showed a sharp decrease in value per head, in spite of war demands and decreased numbers. For the first time in a decade they are rated below $100 a head, average value, making a decrease in value of horses for the one year of $126,261, while all other classes of animals showed large increases.

That motor trucks rather than passenger cars have at last swung the scales against horse transportation is indicated by the fact that during 1918 passenger car production was almost 700,000 cars short of 1917, while truck production showed an increase of over 90,000, or 70 per cent.

WHAT "REPATRIATION" MEANS

The bitterness underlying the demand of the French and Belgians for restitution and reparation by Germany is scarcely comprehensible to people who have not seen for themselves the devastated areas of northern France and Belgium. Comprehension in full measure in impossible without actual vision. But the effort to reconstruct the conditions in imagination must be made if justice is to be done to the people who are the victims of German vandalism and if the attitude of their governments is to be understood.

Words are totally inadequate. But something may be gathered by those who are denied other means of appreciation from the accounts published by visitors trained to observe. Mr. Frank H. Simonds is the author of the following description of the desert which the Germans have created:

The German has gone. He has vanished out of the trenches, out of the ruins of the regions he has wasted. His conquerors have gone after him, but the real inhabitants have not yet begun to return. As a consequence, from Ypres to the border of the Oise above Noyon, more than a hundred miles in longitude and from a dozen to 50 miles in latitude, there exists the most appaling desert of which the mind can conceive: a few German prisoners cleaning debris from the more important highways, a few British soldiers standing guard over material, and for the rest, in a land where three millions of French and Belgians lived five years ago—just nothing. Villages, forests, the fruit trees, and the garden shrubs, like the buildings, all gone. How then are the peacemakers at Paris to set in motion the machinery itself, all to be made, which will bring the old inhabitants back to the German desert which, like the great American desert of the last century, separates two smiling regions? How are the millions of little people with their flocks and their farm implements to be returned? How are the Germans who did this thing to undo it? In Paris one talks of the League of Nations and the right of self-determination, but on the Hindenburg line one thinks of something more specific, more tangible. . . . . .

And all this was not the wreck of battles. It was nothing of the sort. In January, 1917, Hindenburg had said:—"We shall retreat 20 miles, wasting the country to create a desert in front of us. Thus we shall escape an Allied attack while we settle with Russia." And with German thoroughness the thing was done. The people were marched off to Belgium to be fed by American relief missions or to die. The villages were destroyed, the roads mined, every living thing was cut down, every inanimate thing was blown up. So the German desert was created, and so it remains, sown now with millions of unexploded shells, the debris of late battles, with helmets and hand grenades, a region where every heap of ruins is a deadly peril, where the plough must reopen furrows among live shells.

Into this "desert," sown with destruction and sudden death, the courageous population is waiting to return. "We must get to work on the fields again . . . . We must do it for the young. Is it not so?" said one French woman to Mr. Simonds, who adds:

Somehow these thousands and hundreds of thousands of women and men who have courage must be brought back to these fields. Somehow the German who created the desert deliberately, wantonly, viciously, must be made to abolish it, to excavate the shells, to supply the labor and the material, to furnish the new homes with what they stole from the old before they wrecked them, to return the machinery which they carted to Germany to supply a beginning—for they took everything movable and destroyed everything that was immovable. There is still another problem. You will find it at Lens if you follow in the footsteps of the Canadians over Vimy Ridge to the fair lands below. Here were the coal mines of France, surrounded by a score of little cities, model cities with their well-ordered brick houses, cities of which Lens was but the most considerable. Quite 100,000 people lived in these cities—lived in a degree of comfort which was unmistakable, and year by year brought up from the ground some 15 million tons of coal, the greater share of the French supply and the very foundation of French industry.

Truly there is a period of awakening ahead for the German people—for the millions of Germans who are still ignorant of the calculated devilry of their Hindenburgs, their Ludendorffs and the rest.

The problem of reparation and restitution is one of the most difficult which the Peace Conference is called upon to solve. But justice must be done. France and Belgium must be rehabilitated. The labor and cost of that work ought to be imposed on those who planned and carried out this stupendous crime.

But the rehabilitation of the devastated countryside and the reestablishment in home and industry of its civilian population is scarcely more essential than is the demonstration to the whole German nation of this shameful thing for which it shares the responsibility. Among the duties imposed on the German leaders should be included that of exposing by picture, lecture and pamphlet the infamous treatment accorded to these regions. If ever the blush of shame could be summoned to a German cheek it would surely be called up by the revelation thus made of what Kaiserism has meant to the simple peasantry of Belgium and the thrifty artisans and miners of French Flanders.—Manitoba Free Press.

A Kansas editor has noticed that when a man finds fault with his local paper the chances are ten to one that he hasn't an advertisement in it; five to one he never gave it a job of work; three to one that he is delinquent in his subscription; even money that he never did anything to assist the publisher to make it a good paper, and forty to one that he is most eager to see it when it comes out.

The Province of Quebec so abounds with large families that the population doubles about every 20 years. Among the French-Canadians 14 to 18 children to a family is not uncommon. In 1890 the government of the Province of Quebec passed a law granting a piece of land to every head of a family that could boast of 12 or more children. This grant was later changed to cash premium, and over 5,000 families have already received the premium.

The Dominion Government has consented, subject to Parliament's approval, to an expenditure of about $60,000,000 for improvements and new construction to be done during the coming year on the Canadian National Railways, it is learned. Of the amount to be expended, $20,000,000 will be required for rolling stock already ordered, and expenditure under this head may be increased to $30,000,000. Betterments, extension of lines and improvements, will probably require about $20,000,000. It is also understodd that some partially constructed lines in the West are to be completed and in addition there may be some new lines built both in the East and West.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

Within the time prescribed by law I intend to apply to the Minister of Lands for the right to prospect for coal and petroleum on the mentioned lands:

Take Notice that thirty days after date I intend to apply to the Commissioner of Lands at Victoria, B.C., for permission to prospect for coal and petroleum on the following described lands:

The History of Gin as a Curative Agent

Before Gin Pills were available, gin seemed to be the popular remedy for backache, pains in the groins, swelling of the joints and ankles, lumbago, sciatica and other troubles arising from deranged kidney action; but when Gin Pills were placed on the market containing the curative agent of gin—without the alcohol, people realized that the benefits of the old remedy were purely temporary and that permanent relief would be found only by using the new.

The success of Gin Pills is the best testimonial to the value of this medicine, but for those who prefer more direct testimony we have hundreds of letters on file from people who owe their return to health entirely to taking Gin Pills.

The function of the kidneys is to remove the impurities and poisons gathered by the blood. When the kidneys fail to act, these poisons remain in the blood stream, and are circulated through the system until they settle in muscles and joints and there set up infection. You can readily understand, then, the danger of allowing the kidneys to become deranged, and how important it is to keep them in good shape always.

Do not let your kidneys go from bad to worse. At the first sign of trouble, go to your nearest dealer and buy Gin Pills—50c a box.

Or if you prefer, a free sample of Gin Pills will be mailed upon request to the National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited, Toronto. U. S. residents should write Na-Dru-Co., Inc., 202 Main St., Buffalo. 194

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

WORLD SHORTAGE OF MANY METALS IS NOW EVIDENT

With the final reports for the past year made up it is estimated that total American silver exports will exceed $210,000,000, says the Western Miner. The entire production of silver in 1917 was only 71,000,000 ounces and the world output scarcely more than twice that amount, or 159,000,000 ounces.

In other words, the United States last year exported more silver than the entire world's annual production, by considerably more than fifty million ounces.

As stated before, much of this silver for export came from melting down the silver dollars constituting the treasury reserve. About $25,000,000 additional was secured through the melting down of old Mexican silver pesos.

To prevent the absolute draining of this country's silver, the most stringent embargo provisions against silver exports have been put in force, and it is rumored that it is being smuggled across the Canadian border to fill Oriental demands at a price around $1.16 per ounce.

The demand of the foreign nations for silver during 1919 are likely to be even greater than during the year that is past, and it is indeed a serious question where this silver is to be obtained. Net payments are said to be still huge, and the United States treasury reserve has been drained.

There is a somewhat parallel situation in respect to gold. Production has fallen off tremendously during the past year. Gold for currency circulation has almost entirely disappeared. It is said that no European nations have used gold for minting since 1915, and the United States has not minted any gold since January a year ago.

There is a world shortage of the money metals, and it is perfectly evident that supreme efforts must be made to meet this shortage.

Where is the additional supply of gold and silver to be obtained?

There can be only one answer.

From the mines, of course.

Consequently stimulus must be given to mining operations and to the development of new producers from present prospects. The first great encouragement to the precious metals producers was the advance in the price of silver to a price above $1 per ounce, as compared with a former price as low as 52 cents. Experts have predicted, and it certainly looks as if their predictions would prove true, that within a short time government price regulation would be removed or modified, and that the natural law of supply and demand would bring the silver metal quotation up to the old parity of $1.29 per ounce.

But the second sign of a new era of prosperity for precious metal mining companies is the fact that the new revenue bill in the hands of the senate finance committee exempts from tax that portion of the net income of companies which comes from the production of gold. To the producing company this means a larger accumulation for dividends, and to the developing company it means a greater incentive to speed up work in order to take advantage of the increased profits of operations.

These two factors, important as they are, are not the only "signs of the times" at the beginning of this new year.

The mining companies have had a mighty hard row to hoe during the year 1918, probably the greatest difficulty of all being the scarcity of labor, due to the successive war drafts, and then brought from bad to worse by the flu epidemic in the fall months. The same story has come from the mining camps everywhere throughout the west.

Still another thing, the price of supplies and essentials in mining shows signs of decrease. There has already been a slight reduction in the cost of powder and in cyanide, the latter being used in ore reduction. Drill steel and ventilating pipe and nails and other necessities should soon be easier to obtain and at less cost.

An order-in-council providing for the payment of the war gratuity to members of the Canadian Expiditionary Force who are eligible for it but who join the Canadian permanent force after discharge from the C.E.F. has been passed. A previous order-in-council disentitled such men from receipt of the gratuity on discharge because they had been taken into service of a Canadian land force and were in receipt of military pay.

France's civil population in four years has decreased by considerably over three-quarters of a million without including the deaths in occupied Northern France and the losses due directly to the war. Official statistics show that in 1913 the births outnumbered the deaths by 17,000. But this slight excess disappeared in the following year, since which time the deaths have outnumbered the births—in 1914 by more than 50,000, and in 1915, 1916 and in 1917 by nearly 300,000 in each year. The total excess of deaths over births for these four years is given as 883,160.

THE LESSON OF ELIJAH

Some explanation of the present unrest may be found in the suggestion advanced that a wave of religious doubt is sweeping over the world, and that, to some extent, it has been induced by the brute facts of the war. There is truth in the belief that in practically every movement at present directed towards sectional material betterment a lack of soul is displayed. Dr. David G. Cairns, a famous Aberdeen professor, suggests the great tempest of war has shaken the pillars of the house of faith and has caused many to be shaken to the heart by the ancient problem of evil—the riddle of the world. It is the most tragic aspect of the times, if true, that in a period when the desire is to promote the brotherhood of mankind there is any widespread hesitation in justifying the ways of God. Dr. Cairns sees one advantage, however, in that this doubt has raised the fundamental questions and if the Christian church knows how to deal with them, the Divine Word of Revelation has some chance of coming to its own again.

The Scottish professor questions if, before the war, outside certain limited circles, there was any real and deep knowledge of the sacred writings among the vast majority of his countrymen. Inquiries among the youth of the nation who served in the army showed what he describes as a "startling ignorance" as to religious truth. He wonders if preaching was doing anything in an adequate way towards supplying the defects of education and suggests it was not fulfilling its mission in making intelligent human beings aware of the "richness and grandeur of the sacred writings and their relevance to the fundamental problems of every human life." He argues from this that, before the war, much of the apparent activity and movement of organized Christianity was an expiring momentum. If his reasoning is correct the war has caused the riddle of the world to break in upon many lives, and upon minds which never in the past gave the subject a thought. For the moment there is widespread doubt and irresolution because in the crisis there is no organized and inspired effort to make known the Christian solution of that riddle.

In the camps and on the battlefields it was found that all or nearly all the men in some dim way believed in God. Some were earnest Christians, but the mass of those who fought could hardly come under this category, and it is within this great mass and amid another great mass of intelligent beings who stayed at home that there is unrest. It translates itself in an effort to bring about greater equality in conditions, but that equality is sought only for the better distribution of material comforts. It lacks the directing force of faith in the ultimate destiny of the human race, a destiny which can only be achievved under the aegis of true religion. This aspect of the present unrest is admirably summed up by Dr. Cairns when he says: "We have in the Christian view of the world the only interpretation which is really in the field for anyone who believes in the supreme worth of personality?

It is questionable if a League of nations can ever bear fruit in a world of doubt and irresolution, in a world whose faith is submerged in the struggle for material gain for one section at the expense of another, and in a world that has yet to find its soul. There was a courage almost superhuman displayed during the war, and now victory has been achieved we find in many directions that faith is vanishing just at a moment when the work of rebuilding a shattered world lies ahead. It would seem sometimes that there is a feeling abroad that the journey is too great for mankind to travel. Some are asking if the victory was worth the sacrifice. It is not if, in any of its tendencies, it is to destroy human belief in God. The faith that achieved that victory must be carried on, there must be nobler heights of living, peoples must become morally strong, they must be cheered by the path of duty, there must be greater discipline in our lives, and, above all, fath in the Christian religion must be restored, or new-found throughout humanity. The war gave to many a vision of the great things that might be achieved when victory was secured and the curse of militarism was wiped off the slate. The great principle vindicated on the battlefields still remains — immutable and immortal.

This is not the time for irreligion and doubt when tyranny has been overthrown and wrong defeated. It is the time for greater courage than ever before to make the new world a better world in which to live. Victory must be made worth while, and, in the era of reconstruction no human force has a greater or a worthier task to achieve than the Christian church. It has got to restore faith to mankind, put an end for ever to the irresolution and the doubt that exists about the riddle of the world. Elijah, after the victory on Carmel, is a type and a warning to all time of the faintness of spirit which follows the exaltation of great deeds, says the London Spectator. "'What doest thou here, Elijah?' is the question which his conscience will ask of everyone who gives way to the reaction consequent on the strain of war, whether that reaction takes the form of sheer idle frivolity, unfaith or discontent, or some more active and aggressive form of selfishness. We have dreamed greatly, and we can make our dreams come true. But if we are content to dwell in our dream-city we shall destroy ourselves."—Colonist.

DOING VERY WELL

The casual reader of the reports of the convention of the miners of District 18 might be inclined to form an exaggerated idea of the rebellious spirit of that organization. It is true that there are delegates who use the word Bolshevism quite freely, and declare their hope lies in the formation of a Soviet government in Canada. Such are in the minority so far as numbers are concerned and their influence is quite overshadowed by the saner heads of the organization, the men who represent the international body.

International Organizer Dave Rees, who is also president of the Federated Labor Party of British Columbia and vice-presidnt of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, has for a number of years been connected with District 18 and has seen days of brightness as well as of gloom in that organization. His presence at the convention is a curb on the less experienced delegates who have been carried off their balance by the fiery literature which is now flooding the mining camps and who are prepared to endorse almost anything introduced under the head of "revolutionary." Such safe and sane leadership is necessary.

The convention thus far has shown that there is a high degree of intelligence among the miners of this district. Attention has been force fully directed to a number of evils which need correction and which must be corrected; not the least of which is the abominable living conditions at some of the camps.

The action thus far taken regarding the returned soldier problem and the proposed solution of shortening the number of working hours so that the number of jobs might be increased is evidence that the convention will achieve practical results, and flights of fancy which lead to extreme language on occasions may safely be overlooked.—Calgary Herald

DOMINION GOVERNMENT WILL SPEND BIG SUM

Ottawa, Feb. 26.—A special committee consisting of Messrs. Pardee, Nickle, Lemieux and Purdy, was appointed by the house this morning to consider systematizing the votes and proceedings and journals of the house with a view to economy. Hon. Dr. Reid presented a bill to extend to the end of the present year the time for completion of the St. John and Quebec railway between Gagetown and Westfield. The bill was read a first time.

Sir Sam Hughes presented a petition from the municipal council of Victoria county against the daylight saving bill.

Hon. F. B. Carvell was the first speaker this afternoon, when the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne was resumed. He emphasized the seriousness of the problems which Canada has to face in getting back from a war to a peace basis. However, he gave as his opinion that no warring nation was in a better condition at the cessation of hostilities than Canada. He paid some attention to the remarks of Mr. McMaster of Brome yesterday and said, "I want to say to him that he and I are not very far apart on many of the matters mentioned by him."

Mr. Carvell disagreed with Mr. McMaster concerning the Bolsheviki. The conditions in Russia as depicted to the government, was that Russia was the place to keep the Bolshevists for some years to come and one problem they had in Canada was how soon they could get some of their ilk back to the fatherland.

They had played the traitor to the allies who had helped them and if these are the men Canada must be friendly with, then, said Mr. Carvell, "he and I must part company."

Mr. Carvell said the government was spending a large amount of money on its shipbuilding program. About $20,000,000 or $25,000,000 this year, and about $30,000,000 during the coming fiscal year.

He assumed there would be criticism of the expenditure and he admitted that if the government had gone into the open market after the declaration of peace the ships might have been secured at a lower price.

Referring to the government's proposal to expend $20,000,000 on highway improvements, Mr. Carvell remarked that the vote was to be expended over a period of five years from April 1, 1919.

Mr. Carvell praised the work done in highway construction by the provincial government of Quebec. "If," he said, "we could only extend highways through every province of Canada, we should accomplish wonders."

Mr. Carvell said that when the public works estimates were brought down there might be some disappointment amongst the members of the house and a still greater disappointment in the minds of municipal bodies. "But," said he ,"we are adhering to the principle that we are not constructing public works because they will be of some good to the community, but because they will provide employment."

He announced it was the intention of the government to start public buildings in Toronto, Montreal, Calgary and probably Hamilton within 10 or 15 days. It was his intention to start work before it passed in the house, believing that his action would be endorsed.

In reply to Mr. MacKenzie he stated that the work should be done by contract in Montreal. There would be an extension of the customs house; the Toronto building program would include a custom house, but it would be a general federal building; Hamilton and Calgary would be the same; and those works were justifiable because they were necessary.

Mr. Carvell said there would be $20,000,000 for roads and $20,000,000 for a housing program. There was also the educational scheme which has been mentioned. The railroad program would cost $70,000,000 or $80,000,000.

Mr. Ethier of Two Mountains asked if the government intended to start on the Georgian Bay canal, and Mr. Carvell replied "No."

Mr. Sinclair inquired if it was the intention to build branch lines in Nova Scotia. "I think not," said Mr. Carvell, and went on to explain that the government was providing for branch lines in the west.

About $10,000,000 will be spent on this work and the general policy was to be improvement of construction and the finishing of lines which had been partially constructed, partly graded and the steel provided.

The requests for expenditure on public works which he had received within a comparatively short period would, said Mr. Carvell, mount up to between $50,000,000 and $75,000,000.

An expenditure of this size was, of course impossible unless the government wanted to go out into the money markets and borrow money right and left. Every man entitled to a pension he said must receive it and the amount required for pensions would probably total $50,000,000 a year.

The expenditure of the department of soldiers' re-establishment would probably amount to $25,000,000 per annum. This expenditure he thought would be a decreasing one as the men were established in civil occupations.

Mr. Carvell estimated that the additional expenditures which Canada would have to face each year as a result of the war at $175,000,000. To offset this there would be the following revenue:

Customs $40,000,000; excise $25,000,000; business profits and income tax $30,000,000.

Mr. Carvell could see no way of increasing these items to any great extent.

"No doubt," he said, "the income tax can be increased and will be increased."

Mr. Carvell, expressing a personal view, would like to see the income tax extended upward and downward. He would like to see every man with an income of $1000 paying some income tax.

These three principal items of revenue brought in $195,000,000 or little more than sufficient to meet the extra annual expenditure which would have been incurred as a result of the war.

UNITED STATES SENATOR AND EVERLASTING LIES

They tell them in the United States just as they do here in Canada. The pity is we haven't a Senator Williams to properly stigmatize them.

Read the following from a Western U. S. publication describing a scene in the Senate at Washington:

Although the charges of disloyalty against LaFollette, the unspeakable, have been dismissed in the Senate it is good to know that one senator had the courage and manliness to express his opinion concerning the speech made by this apologist for Germany at St. Paul on Sept. 20, 1917.

Senator Williams, of Mississippi, standing directly across the aisle from LaFollette, brought a flush of shame to the face of one of those who condoned the treasonable utterances of the man who discredits Wisconsin, by saying a few plain words that badly needed saying.

These sentences should be remembered:

"I find in that spech the charge that the United States went to war to protect Morgan interests. I find in that speech the charge that the United States went to war and sacrificed our children in order that rich Americans might ride on munition boats.

"It is an everlasting lie that the people of the United States went to war to protect Morgan interests or capitalistic interests.

"It is an everlasting lie that the people ever sent their boys to be cannon fodder in Europe so that Americans might ride on munition boats.

"It is an everlasting lie that the Lusitania was armed or carried any dangerous explosives, or that any law was violated by the Americans taking passage.

"It is an everlasting lie that the Americans who went down to their graves on that memorable day of German barbarity went there to uphold the doctrine of capitalism or to protect munitions."

When the soldiers from Wisconsin who went forth in the service of their country return to take up again the duties of civilian life, which include the duty of voting, they will not forget these "everlasting lies." LaFollette is not the only United States senator now shaking in his boots in fear and trembling because of the fearful handwriting on the wall. When Johnny comes marching home again there will be something doing among the political has-beens who endeavored to discredit him and bring shame upon his country's cause. It will be interesting and instructive to note the results.

FERNIE OPTICAL PARLORS

The Plain Truth about Shoe Prices

LEATHER is scarce and is growing scarcer. A large part of the available supply must be used for soldiers' boots. Importations have practically ceased and we are forced to depend upon the limited quantity of materials produced in Canada.

The cost of everything which goes into a pair of shoes is high, and is going higher. Workmen by the thousands have joined the colors, and labor is increasingly hard to get. It is not merely a matter of high prices, but of producing enough good quality shoes to go around.

These conditions are beyond the control of any man, or any group of men. They fall on all alike. No one is exempt—neither the manufacturer, the dealer, nor the consumer.

You must pay more today for shoes of the same quality than you did a year ago. Next Spring, prices will be higher still.

These are hard facts. They will not yield to argument. They cannot be glossed over. We cannot change them, much as we would wish to do so.

But you, as a wearer of shoes, can help to relieve them if you will exercise prudence and good judgment in purchasing. See that you get real value for your money. Spend enough to get it, but spend nothing for "frills."

See that the manufacturer's trade-mark is stamped upon the shoes you buy. High prices are a temptation to reduce the quality in order to make the price seem low. But no manufacturer will stamp his trade-mark upon a product which he is ashamed to acknowledge. Remember this, and look for the trade-mark. It is your best assurance of real value for your money.

VETERANS WARNED TO KEEP AWAY FROM B.C.

Vancouver, Feb. 25.—A warning has been issued by officials of the G.W.V.A. to veterans of the late war who did not enlist in British Columbia not to seek the Pacific coast unless they come well prepared financially. E. A. Paige, editor of the British Columbia Veterans' Weekly, and L. C. Mabbott, president of the Army and Navy Veterans' Association, both concurred in a statement made public here today in which they say:

"From the present outlook it will be some considerable time before all the men who left from this province will be re-established in civil life again and it is not right to hold out hopes of employment to veterans from other parts of the Dominion, when our own men are still unprovided for.

"There is no doubt that large numbers of veterans from other parts are flocking to the coast, and unless these men are given to understand the situation fully before coming out here a serious situation may arise for a time at least."

LOOKS LIKE HAND OF HUN AGITATORS

Are German agitators and I. W. W.'s endeavoring to stir up trouble among the rank and file of the members of District No. 18, U. M. W. of A. This question is being asked these days by members of the police forces and also by the Great War Veterans, who have been following the proceedings of the miners' convention in Calgary. The man Burick, of Taber, over whom telegrams were dispatched to Ottawa demanding the dismissal of Supt. Pennefather and Detective Lobb of the Mounted Police, is a German prisoner of war on parole. Shannon, of Diamond City, secretary of the miners' local there, is an I. W. W., who will shortly be deported to Montana for that reason. The whole proceedings with regard to these men at the miners' convention are causing police officials to believe that there is an organized German attempt to stir up trouble in the camps. — Lethbridge Herald.

PAULENKO WILL HANG FOR MURDER CRIME

Lethbridge, Feb. 27.—After an absence of thre hours the jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the case of Paulenko, and one of manslaughter against Dohie, who have been before the court for the last three days to answer the charge of being instrumental in the death of John Onofrychuk.

Paulenko was sentenced to be hanged on May 14 and sentence will be passed on Dohie on Friday. Mr. Justice Walsh's summing up to the jury occupied three-quarters of an hour. Dohie, on the stand, denied all connection with the murder, stating that the only part he took in the affray was that of endeavoring to part Paulenko and the deceased while engaged in fighting outside the shack.

Hon. T. D. Patullo, minister of lands, said the present bill would give right of entry to the public, though the actual ground was covered by the works of the company would not be open any more than it would be in any other community.

GOVERNMENT AND SOLDIERS

The soldiers in the Legislature have steadfastly refused to align themselves either for or against the government, but events of the week just over seem to indicate that they will be driven into the arms of His Majesty's Loyal Opposition. Three resolutions put forward by soldier members and designed to work to the benefit of returning war veterans have been frowned down on by the government and as a result the khaki members are hostile, to say the least.

One of these motions brought forward a day or two ago was to the effect that the Legislature go on record as being in favor of all public positions now vacant in the service of the Dominion, Provinces, cities and municipalities being offered to returned men. Opposition Leader Bowser fell in line with the proposal and suggested indeed that it be made wide enough to include private employers as well. But Premier Oliver offered an amendment confining the resolution to the provincial service only, and expressing the view that returned men get preference for those vacant positions which they were competent to fill. The soldier members felt that this left the way open to quibbling about positions, and with the opposition voted solidly against the amendment. It was carried however on a 27 to 14 division.

But the real rock on which the soldiers split with the government came up later. Pte. Giolma, of Victoria, proposed a motion that the government go on record as guaranteeing to all civil servants who went to war their old positions in the service or else other positions at as good or better pay. Speaking on this motion the military members claimed that the least the government could do for its own employees who volunteered for war service was to promise them their former positions. The opposition leader pointed out that the old government had given such a guarantee in orders-in-council passed in February 1915 and October 1915. He said he did not think the present government could very well go back on the sacred obligation entered into by the old administration. Premier Oliver offered an amendment that returning civil servants are entitled to priority of employment insofar as the efficiency of the department will permit. This phrase "efficiency of the department will permit" was like a red rag to a bull. With unanimous voice the soldiers and the opposition condemned it as being merely a way out for each case where the government might not want to provide a returning civil servant with his position having in the meantime filled it with a supporter. The House had not reached a vote on the amendment by the end of the week and in the meantime the government has of its own volition brought in a second amendment which is characterized by soldiers as a partial, but not satisfactory surrender. It recites in brief that the Legislature approve of the policy as outlined in the orders-in-cuncil of the old and new governments dealing with the question of civil servants volunteering.

A good deal of stir has been created in the House by the resolution offered by the leader of the opposition asking for a committee to enquire into the administration of the prohibition department when it was in charge of former commissioner Findlay. The general view is that the government will vote down the motion and will refuse an enquiry, probably on the ground that Findlay is still before the courts. While this attitude, if taken, would hardly satisfy those who want to see the whole ugly mess cleaned up at the same time it will probably have to suffice for the present unless public opinion backs up the opposition demand for an enquiry.

Good Roads people of the province were here in force last week with a programme of road expenditure which they felt the government should adopt in order to get away on a live rehabilitation and reconstruction programme for the year. The Good Roads people proposed that the trans-provincial highway be chosen and started this year, that the Vancouver Island highway be improved, the road south from Vancouver to the boundary be paved and that several essential but missing road links in the upper country be constructed. When the deputation met the premier, he told them that he could not meet their requests even although they outlined a plan for obtaining money from the Dominion Government and raising the automobile licenses in order to help out the financing. The premier said that money was too scarce and every time the government tried to raise the taxes, some section of the public wanted another section to bear all the load. "You will have to educate the people to pay for taxation," he told the delegation.

The public accounts committee is beginning to show some activity this session and already has started investigation work, prompted, no doubt, by opposition leader Bowser and Mr. Jones of South Okanagan who are the opposition members on the committee. One item now under investigation is the payment to F. C. Wade, present agent general, of $1,000, for drawing up three small bills, two of which never went through the House. On his own initiative Mr. Wade also prepared some jail regulations, but seeing that the jails for which he was regulating had been closed up, his rules went into the waste basket. The vouchers for his services indicate that Mr. Wade is a believer in "a bird in the hand etc.," because he collected $650 of his fee in advance from the government before he did any work on his bills. Long ago this administration had promised that all law work would be done in the department, hence the surprise at the calling in of Mr. Wade. Another law firm which drew up 14 bills, some of them quite lengthy, received only $500. Sir Chas Hibbert Tupper obtained $500 for an opinion on the validity of the prohibition act, but where his opinion has gone to, no one knows. He has the $500 but who has his opinion?

The public accounts committee is also turning an enquiry upon the activities of one W. T. McArthur of Vancouver, a former and present police commissioner. Although the government has its own purchasing department, it seems that Mr. McArthur in addition to his duties on the police board, buys most of the supplies which the government offices in Vancouver use, such as soap, nails, hardware, cloth, glass, etc.,. An investigation will be made to ascertain just where Mr. McArthur's particular interest in the matter comes in.

This committee has had several somewhat interesting cases before it. They would be amusing but for the sad commentary they furnish. First there is the instance of the forest ranger on Vancouver Island who has been watching for forest fires by working on the public roads under the works department. Two salaries and two jobs at one and the same time are more than most people can accomplish. Then there is the man in the Creston district who had charge of road work there and rented a widow's horse and democrat. He paid her by means of a wage cheque for "teaming". He got another horse in the same way. Now he has the two of them with the democrat. He has them, not the government, and he charges the government regularly day by day with "teaming" for himself. The committee thinks that, seeing government cheques paid for the animals, the government should own them.

There has been some discussion during the past week in the House over what the opposition calls the government's misplaced parsimony in connection with the distribution of the votes and proceedings of the House. The government has decided that the opposition members will not be allowed to send any of these out except to the ridings they represent. In other words, Conservatives in ridings represented by Liberals cannot get the votes and proceedings. The opposition members take the view that any citizen showing enough interest to ask for the votes and proceedings should receive them. However, up to date this concession has been declined.

The usual squabble over legislation by orders-in-council has come up again When the Tory government was in power the Liberals accused it of governing by order-in-council. Now that the Grits are in, the opposition declares that they are doing identically the same thing, that they are vesting entirely too much authority with the Lieut. Governor in council or the various ministers.

With the estrangement arising between the soldiers and the government, and the prospect of one or two of the Liberals splitting off on various issues, the government majority is now making strong attempts to solidify the party in the House and present a united front to the foe. J. S. Cowper, one of the Liberal members for Vancouver who fell afoul of his fellows when he pressed home the campaign fund charges against M. A. Macdonald, has been invited to enter the caucus and has consented. Hanes, of North Vancouver, is virtually out of the caucus and Weart, of South Vancouver, almost broke away the other night, but was pursuaded to stay. McGeer of Richmond has been talking loudly about the government particularly in regard to the good roads issue. He said if this government would not build roads, he, for one, would favor getting a government which would. Howevver these incipient insurrections do not mean anything very serious except to show that democratic Liberalism always has its internal troubles. But the country need not count on a new election before 1920 at the earliest.

RENOWNED MAN MAY VISIT THIS SECTION

L. T. Cooper, Noted Philanthropist, Gives Large Part of Income to Charity

Not in recent years, perhaps, has the coming of any public character aroused such widespread interest as has the proposed visit to Victoria and other western cities, of L. T. Cooper, the millionaire philanthropist.

Mr. Cooper is described as one of America's foremost leaders of advanced thought, and sprang into fame and fortune through his new health theories based on what is known as the Tanlac treatment. He never ceases to surprise you with the infinite variety of his knowledge, and its absolute correctness and thoroughness. In several of the larger cities, he has done a great deal of relief work among the poor.

Mr. Cooper is a firm believer in practical philanthropy and his relief work is familiar to charity workers over the entire country. His southern representative while in Houston, Texas, recently distributed, under the personal direction of leading charity workers, one thousand dresses of excellent quality to poor women and children. In San Antonio, the following week he donated another thousand dresses to the poor of that city, and a few days later four hundred of the garments were provided by him for the poor women and children of Galveston. Ladies prominent in social life and many prominent citizens of these places assisted and cooperated with Mr. Cooper's representative in this worthy cause.

Gives 50,000 Loaves of Bread

Similar service was also performed by Mr. Cooper in Memphis, Birmingham, Atlanta, Little Rock, Shreveport Vicksburg, Jackson, Nashville, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Macon, Savanah, Montgomery, Mobile and Augusta, and his establishment of the famous free bread line at Louisville, where he distributed 50,000 loaves of bread absolutely free and without question to those in want, proved a revelation to charity workers there. In fact, in practically every city Mr. Cooper has visited he has always shown his great sympathy for the poor and unfortunate by performing some unique act of charity.

Mr. Cooper contends that nine-tenths of the diseases and ill health of the present day American is due to faulty digestion and improper assimilation of the food, which finally produces a stuffed up condition of the vital organs.

It has been said that Tanlac, his celebrated medicine, which is now accomplishing such remarkable results throughout the country, not only quickly overcomes all catarrhal inflamations of the mucus membrane, but acts directly in the correction of stomach, liver, kidney and intestinal disorders.

Tanlac as has been so convincingly proven by the thousands upon thousands who have endorsed it, is also a reconstructive tonic of great power, and has been known to entirely relieve the most obstinate cases of rheumatism and blood disorders in a very short time.

Tanlac Sales Phenomenal

It is indeed doubtful if anything ever placed on the market in the way of a medicine has sprung into such popular favor in so short a time. People everywhere have been quick to recognize its wonderful merit. The demand for it has been nothing short of phenomenal.

In Seattle, Washington, over 50,000 bottles were sold and distributed by jobber and retailer in eight week's time, which established a new record there, and is unprecedented in the history of the drug business. In Denver over 65,000 bottles were sold in six months, in Ft. Worth, Texas, 122,-204 bottles were sold in twelve months time, in Dallas, Texas, 120,000 bottles were sold in twelve months' time, in Knoxville, Tenn., the Kunlman-Chambliss Co. sold and distributed 48,326 bottles in nine months' time, in Louisville, Ky., the Taylor-Isaacs Co., who operate eight retail stores in that city sold 32,000 bottles in less than ninety days. In fact everywhere Tanlac has been introduced its sale has likewise been phenomenal and the demand for it is continually increasing. A total of more than two and a half million bottles of the medicine has been sold through the Atlanta office alone during the past eighteen months, and it is without doubt the most widely talked of medicine today.

When asked to explain this record breaking demand, Mr. G. F. Willis, International Distributor of Tanlac said: "There can be only one possible explanation, and it can be told in one word—'merit'. That tells the whole story. No preparation, no matter how extensively advertised, can possibly meet with such phenomenal success unless it possesses extraordinary curative power."

Thousands upon thousands are testifying daily that they have been relieved of disease after years of suffering by its use.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. S. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey, and in Rossland by W. H. Wanman.

THE FATEFUL QUESTION

The Governments of Siberia, Archangel and Southern Russia have formally rejected the proposal for a conference at Prinkipo, and their rejection places the Associated Powers in the position where they will have to consider other means of reaching a decision on the Eastern situation. The Bolsheviki, as could readily have been anticipated, were prepared to send their delegates to the conference, but they were not prepared to withhold the activities of their Red Guard for the simple reason that in many instances it has got beyond the control of Lenine and Trotsky and is a law unto itself. The Bolshevist Government realized that by acquiescing in the proposed conference it would to all intents and purposes obtain the recognition of the Associated Powers if the conference became an accomplished fact, and this would have been an immense factor in strengthening its hands in Russia. From the first the proposal was unworkable and the suggested conference has been aptly described as an "ignoble tragedy." Those Russians who believe in law and order will not confer with the Bolsheviki, and it is the former the Allies have been assisting with armed force. If, at this time, the Associated Powers were to withdraw their recognition of the Governments of Siberia and Archangel, they would be guilty of an act of treachery.

Mr. Winston Churchill says there is no contemplation of sending large forces to fight in Russia. The problem there, in his opinion, is one for Russia herself. For the moment it may appear so, but if there is to be a League of Nations, with international powers to preserve the peace of the world, it will have to deal with national brigands in every clime. Ultimately Russia will, as Mr. Churchill says, be saved by the Russian people themselves, but it can never be contended that an outraged civilization has no concern in the fate of that great people. The truth of the matter is that the Associated Powers are in a quandary over the Eastern Problem. They recognize that every decision they reach at the Peace Conference,and every principle the forthcoming League of Nations purposes to put in practice, can only be enforced by military power so long as the present dispensation prevails. They know the peace of Europe is insecure, and can never tend towards security while Bolshevism, with its twin sister terrorism, are enthroned at Moscow. In the last analysis they will have to choose between a peace that will be final and one imperilled by a menace far more dire than the militarism which the free peoples of the world set out to conquer in August, 1914. It is the attitude of civilization towards Bolshevism that is the most pregnant question before the Peace Conference, and upon the answer to that will rest the permanence of what is being done in Paris in these fateful days.—Colonist.

Delegate Rees warned the convention against acting hastily. He pointed out that in the United States there were forty-five million workers, and only five million were organized. "You are facing glutted coal markets. It is February and the mines have no orders. What is more ridiculous than talking of a general strike when there is no work." Mr. Rees said that the returned soldiers were being taken in a special police force in all the large centres. They were being given good wages and were organized to cow the workers.

"I ask you," pleaded the international official, "to measure the foe before you act and to remember that the men who went overseas in 1914 are not ready to lay down their rifles; they are not in that frame of mind. If you count on support, you will have to wait until they all get back, until the men return who had to go."

He further stated: "I would be a moral coward if I did not get up on this floor and charge you to weigh heavily what I am saying. We are up against a peaceful or a bloody revolution, and only education can prevent a bloody revolution."

Delegate Susnar attacked the International Mine Workers of America as a body "which allows one district of the organization to scab in the other districts when a strike is on, instead of acting industrially and altogether. A strike is not good unless we can deliver an effective blow."

Half a dozen members were on their feet to continue the debate when the gavel fell for adjournment on Saturday afternoon.

Delegate Eastham said he was of the moderate type until the British election, when he saw the futility of the ballot. He was in favor of one big organization, which could accomplish their results without bloodshed. In that case there would be no need for a strike, as a threat would be sufficient. He was not in favor of breaking away from the international. Such a step would only weaken them. Delegate McRoberts expressed the same view as Eastham, "While industrially we have the power," he said, "politically we have no power."

The motions dealing with the lifting of the ban of free speech, amendments to the coal mine act, amendments to the compensation act and reconstruction were all adopted, and the report of delegate McRoberts of the federated labor convention at Medicine Hat adopted en bloc.

Secretary Browne then read a wire from G. D. Robertson, minister of labor, regarding the wire sent by the convention asking for the dismissal of Pennefather and Lobb, saying that he was drawing the matter to the attention of the Minister of Justice, and to the minister in charge of the R. N. W. M. P. Editor Lawson, of the Fernie Ledger, gave a report on the financial condition of the paper, which showed that there was an uphill road to travel before conditions were at all favorable for its continuance, as it was more of a liability than an asset.

At this point Peter Wright representing the Seaman's union of Great Britain was introduced and addressed the delegation. He went thoroughly into the conditions that prevailed today in England, and that labor there was hand in hand fighting for what they were determined to have, and that was, they were not going back to pre-war conditions. He frankly explained the position of the seamen as regards Germany, because of 17,000 of their men that had been brutally done to death by the U-boat commanders. He contrasted the treatment of two nations toward their prisoners. The seamen's union had taken care of the German seamen that had been interned, and had sent nearly ninety thousand dollars in providing a home for them in England, where they had the best of treatment. Then he told of many incidents, some coming in his own personal experience, of horrible treatment given to seamen when their ships had been sunk. "We will not sail again with any German seamen," he declared.

He held no brief for capitalism, but he believed that there was a different spirit prevailing amongst that class as compared with in 1914. He believed that these men were willing to work hand in hand with the workers. The speaker declared that force could not bring about what the workers wanted, but reason and common sense will. He pointed out the fact that in England they had 65 members in the house of commons, while in Canada the workers had no one to represent them. With those members over there, they would accomplish more good than by twenty years of strikes. Some said to hell with legislation, but they did not know what they were talking about.

At the conclusion of Peter Wright's speech, he was at once assailed with questions, Susnar being the first on his feet. Susnar asked several questions regarding Trotzky, who paid Wright's expenses to Russia, and if it was true that he was given the cold shoulder in Vancouver, or did he avoid the labor people there? Regarding the journey to Russia, Mr. Wright said his expenses had been all paid by his union and not by any government. As to Vancouver, he had gone straight to the socialist party and the labor party and though he had shown his card they would not take any notice of him. He did not believe in Trotsky. He had been turned out of Russia, Germany, Austria, and the United States. "I've been through the hoop," said Mr. Wright, and when I first met Trotsky, I did not like the cut of his jib. He has too much of a criminal look to please me. When I last saw him in Russia, his fingers were covered with diamonds, and he had plenty of money. That is not the sort of man to be a leader of labor." In answer to a question about the character of Liebknecht, he claimed that he was the only German that he could trust. The ohers were twisters. Liebnecht's policy in Germany could not be adopted in Britain or the colonies because conditions were different. Liebnecht, himsellf, woulld not try to adopt such a policy over here.

Answering a question as to whether it was not capitalism that brought about the war, he declared that Britain, the great capitalist country, was not in any way prepared for war. On the advice of Haldane, Asquith and Lloyd George, Britain had been steadily reducing the naval estimates, and Sir Edward Grey had done his best to settle all differences at the round table, but the Kaiser had declared for war.

Asked why he persisted in showing up the dark side of Russia and Germany, he replied that there was no other side to show. As to the former, he believed she would yet emerge from the ordeal through which she was passing as her soul was still intact. He knew Germany from end to end, and there was no brightness there for the working classes, and he told of conditions under which he delivered speeches there.

A number of others were ready with questions, but Chairman Irvine stood by the rules of the convention to adjourn at noon, and the gavel fell on time. As the spirit of the convention did not have time to reveal itself regarding its attitude, there may be a motion passed this afternoon in regard to Peter Wright's speech. A few were heard to say that they thought he was doing harm to labor.

Compulsory arbitration was a subject which was discussed at the miners' convention yesterday afternoon. It arose in connection with a further debate on the high cost of living commission and incidentally the viewpoint of the International Miners' Union was given on the subject. Eventually the question of continuing the commission was referred to the scale committee to be dealt with.

While Wm. Potter, Fernie, rather advocated that they should revert to the old system, the executive board member, Frank Wheatley, contended that the commission was the right foundation for the basing of wages.

Ed. Berford, Rock Springs, supported the recommendation for its continuance. It was practically similar to the reconciliation board in Great Britain, he said,. In his opinion it was the only system upon which they could agree.

International Representative Dave Irvine said he had at all times objected to any phase of compulsory arbitration. "I have good reasons for these objections," he said, "and I expect that this convention will take these reasons into consideration. not because I am an employee of the International, but simply on the merits of the question.

"The statement has been made," he said, "that if a certain minimum was established and fluctuations above that minimum regulated according to the market prices of commodities that we consume in order to live, that that would be an ideal condition. A minimum wage based on the cost of living would be an actual amount of money coming to you each and every day regardless of the question of whether you worked or not and would be where you could cover a fixed standard of living.

"This proposition," said Mr. Irvine, "does not establish any such minimum, and consequently if we have no work it does not matter anything to us how the cost of living rises or falls above a minimum wage we do not get. Ten per cent. on nothing would be nothing," he said.

The speaker went on to state that the International had been against compulsory arbitration and the labor movement of the world had been against it. The principle had been incorporated in an order-in-council that later might be established in law, and included in which was a penalty clause of three month's imprisonment in the case of a strike.

Sixty or seventy years ago the question of compulsory arbitration had been taken into consideration in the old country, and when a committee of miners in Scotland went to the then premier, Mr. Gladstone, he said they would in adopting such a scheme destroy their revolutionary power to improve their own conditions; they would fix their standard of living such as it was then and could not hope to share further in the progress of civilization. "If I am an employe of the International, my interests are identical to yours," said the speaker, "and I am bitterly opposed to the proposition. We would be trusting our fate in the government by adopting that principle and saying to the public 'we are satisfied with the standard we now have, and although we are not sure of that we are willing to take our chances just as it is.' There is no minimum in this except when working; we go below the standard when not employed.

"If you want to destroy our revolutionary power to improve our own conditions and of all hope of benefitting in the progress of civilization, then tell the world we are satisfied and the government that they have done the right thing by us. We talk of Bolshevism," said Mr. Irvine. "We would have a fine bunch of Bolshevists after that."

After further discussion the convention referred this matter to the scale committee.

During the course of the session Alex. Susnar claimed he had been misreported in connection with a remark he had made on Saturday regarding Russia. In reply to a question as to whether the Russian revolution or Soviet government was a success he stated that what he had said was: "It is a success when we see the capitalist class have their own troops fighting the Soviet government." He referred to a dispatch from Archangel, published yesterday, in support of his position.

Mrs. Jean McWilliams addressed the convention briefly on the subject of mothers' pensions, and the delegates unanimously agreed to bring this matter up for discussion at a later period.

The miners this morning entered into an executive session on the scale rate.

A special resolution was submitted by Humberstone Local Union 4070, dealing with the chiropractic profession. It was concurred in by the committee and passed by the convention. The resolution is addressed to the Alberta legislature and is as follows:

Whereas, your honorable body in its wisdom passed an act called the "Medical Profession Act" for the ostensible purpose of protecting the medical profession and such as are mentioned as incorporated within Section 66 of the said act, and

Whereas, your petitioners have for the past four years closely watched the operation of the said act and are of the opinion that the said act is inimical to the interests of the working class and the great majority of the people of Alberta, and

Whereas, a large number of our organizations have received care and attention and relief from the practice of chiropractors and are firmly of the opinion that chiropractic as a philosophy and cure is absolutely and essentially necessary to the welfare of our families and friends, and the continuance of the persecution of chiropractors by the medical profession is a grave injustice to us;

Therefore be it resolved that this meeting of the sixteenth annual convention of District 18, United Mine Workers of America, puts itself on record as recommending to your honorable body that a bill be passed conferring on and in the province of Alberta, under sanction of the law, and that the said chiropractors be permitted to make such rules, regulations and bylaws as may be consistent with the laws of the land and such as are usually conferred on organized professions.

During an interval in the discussion of the executive session at the miners' conference this morning, a motion to suspend the rules of business was agreed upon in order to discuss the question of mothers' pensions, which was brought before the convention by Mrs. Jean McWilliams yesterday afternoon.

After considerable discussion, the following resolution was almost unanimously adopted:—

"Whereas, the time has arrived when the women of Canada must be recognized as a valuable asset of the Dominion, and no provision is made for them by the Dominion;

"Therefore, be it resolved that this convention of District 18, U.M.W. of A. go on record demanding of the Dominion of Canada that all married women and children should be paid a monthly salary by the Dominion of Canada;

"And, be it further resolved, that all children shall have a monthly allowance paid to the mother for the keep of the child until said child is 16 years of age if a boy, and 17 years of age if a girl;

"And, be it further resolved, that the amount to be paid shall be $50 for a woman, $10 for a child up to 10 years and 12.50 per month up to 16 or 17 years.

"And, be it further resolved, that this demand be forwarded to the premier of Canada, the minister of labor and the president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada."

The convention then took up the question of the salaries of officers. The recommendation before the delegates was that the president should receive $200 per month, the secretary and vice-president $175 each, and organizers $150. Delegate Potter moved an amendment which made the pay of the organizers the same as the secretary, but no decision had been arrived at upon the matter when the convention adjourned for luncheon.

It was finally agreed that the salaries should be, president $200 a month, vice-president, secretary-treasurer and organizers $150 each with legitimate expenses paid.

The miners' convention is now rapidly drawing to a close and there is every likelihood that the final stages will be reached this afternoon. The greater part of yesterday was taken up in executive session in further discussing the new rate scale, and a committee will be appointed today to carry on negotiations with the operators.

The articles of constitution were gone over yesterday and adopted with few alterations. Chief among these was the decision to hold the convention for the future every alternate year and not annually. The officers will, however, be elected yearly as in the past.

A suggestion by Delegate Cacchioni (Wayne) that their paper, the Fernie Ledger, be printed in three languages, English, Italian and Slav, did not meet with favor. The principal objector to this was executive board member Alex. Susnar. He made a really fine address on this point, in which he urged that all foreigners coming to the Dominion in the interests of trades unionism should learn to read English. He looked forward to the day when workers the world over would speak one language so that their aims and objects might be fully understood. This, he said, was quite possible with Esperanto.

During an interval yesterday afternoon O. G. Stevenson of the Cooks' and Waiters' Union addressed the convention briefly asking the miners' support in their efforts to secure one day's rest in seven. They were not particular which day. Mr. Stevenson stated that the matter had been brought before the recent Trades and Labor meeting at Medicine Hat. There was, he said, a six-day law, but there was a nigger in this apparently, as he understood that employees in hotels and restaurants who did not work over eight hour shifts were not entitled to a day's rest a week.

The speaker also referred to Chinese competition and urged that union men should only patronize restaurants run by white help who received trade union wages.

A splendid tribute to the efficient manner in which Fred G. Perry, of Fernie, the stenographer and secretary, had systematized the work of the convention, was paid to this official at the close of the session yesterday. His business and practical methods has saved the convention very considerable time.

To Solve Canada's Employment Problem

EVERYONE in Canada should understand just what the Government is doing to solve the unemployment problems that may arise through the demobilization of our fighting forces.

(1) Employment Offices.

So that everyone—male or female, soldier or civilian—can get quickly such jobs as are available the Government is co-operating with the Provinces in establishing a chain of Public Employment Offices. Employers are being urged to make use of these offices to secure any help they need. Farmers, for example, who need hired men should apply to the nearest office. There will be a Public Employment Office in every town of 10,000 people—and wherever the need for one exists. There will be 60 different offices in all—one-half are already in operation.

(2) Employment Opportunities.

The war held up much work that will now be carried on at once. Public works, shipbuilding, roadbuilding, railway work—construction of bridges, improvement of road-bed, making of new equipment—these will provide new opportunities for employment. In addition, the Government has sent a Trade Mission overseas to secure for Canada a share in the business of providing materials and products required for reconstruction work in Europe. It has also set aside the large sum of $25,000,000 to be loaned through the Provinces to encourage the building of workmen's houses. This will mean much new work in the spring.

(3) Land and Loans for Soldiers

To help soldiers become farmers the Government has developed a programme that includes the providing of land, the granting of loans, and the training and supervision of those inexperienced in farming. At present, the soldier is granted, free, in addition to his ordinary homestead right, one quarter-section of Dominion lands. He also receives a loan up to the maximum of $2,500.

These original plans are now being broadened. If Parliament passes the new proposals during this session, the Soldier Settlement Board will be able to buy suitable land and re-sell it to the soldier at cost.

Land up to the value of $5,000 may be bought by this plan—the money to be repaid in 20 years. The low interest rate of 5 per cent. will be charged. These new proposals will also permit the Soldier Settlement Board to loan the soldier-farmer up to $2,500 for purchasing equipment, etc., in addition to $5,000 loan on his farm.

WHAT HE LEARNED

"I learned this over there," said a soldier lad to me,
"That the general and the private are
as like as they can be;
And though one is giving orders and the other one obeys,
There'd be no such thing as freedom
if they pulled in separate ways.
The thing that counts in battle is a centralized control
With everybody in it set to reach a common goal.

"The general wasn't fighting just because he loved to fight;
He'd the everlasting notion that his country's cause was right.
The flag that waved above us meant as much to him as me
And the thing that he was after wasn't fame, but victory,
And I came to understand it, that beneath the shoulder straps
And the markings on the tunic, we were ordinary chaps.

"He was thinking of his children in the way I thought of mine,
He was wondering where men went to when death took them from the line.
Oh, I don't know how to tell it, but down underneath the skin
We were all alike in Flanders, with a common goal to win.
And we just forget our notions and our separate ranks and creeds
And worked and pulled together, and that's all a nation needs.

"I learned this over there," said a soldier lad to me,
"That the general and the private are
as like as they can be,
And when people come to know it—
when they learn that every man Wants to win his way to heaven and to do the best he can—
They'll just work and pull together for the glory of the soul,
And be one united army marching toward a common goal."

OFFICIAL CANADA PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO SIR WILFRED

Official Canada gathered at the memorial museum, which is the temporary headquarters of the Canadian parliament, but even that spacious building was unable to accommodate all the representatives who had congregated to do honor to the late Liberal leader. Recognizing this, the Great War Veterans' Association and the purely unofficial societies remained outside. The scene inside the building was remarkable for the orderliness which prevailed. Perfect arrangements had been made for the reception of the delegates and members of parliament, special rooms had been assigned to each special body. Amongst the rank and file of members of the commons were a number of ex-ministers and ex-members, including Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hon. W. L. MacKenzie-King, Hon. George P. Graham, Premier Martin, of Saskatchewan; Hon. Charles Murphy, Hon. W. S. Fielding, Hon. Dr. Beland, Hon. Frank Oliver and others. There were over three hundred senators, members of parliament and ex-members in the procession.

Outside the building the arrangements were also perfectly carried out. Half an hour before the official representatives left the building the wreaths of flowers which had surrounded the catafalque in the commons chamber were removed and placed on ten large sleighs drawn by magnificent horses which had been provided by the public works department.

Following the blood relatives of the deceased came General Gwatkin, representing the Duke of Connaught and lieutenant-governors of the provinces, including Sir John Hendrie, of Ontario, and Hon. William Pugsley, of New Brunswick.

Representatives of religious denominations in the procession between the parliament buildings and the basilica were confined to non-Roman Catholic clergy, the others being assembled at the church.

When the members of parliament had assembled in the hall Speaker Rhodes, preceded by Major Bowie, the seargent-at-arms, carrying the mace, led the way, and the long line of mourners commenced to move up Metcalf street in the direction of the basilica.

Senator Bostock represented Premier Oliver, of British Columbia.

Then came the mayors of Canadian cities and towns and their representatives.

Prominent in the cortege were Henri Bourassa and Col. Armand Lavergne.

WAR SAVINGS SOCIETIES

A War Savings Society is a group of persons organized to promote systematic saving among its members and to emphasize, in every way possible, the need and desirability of thrift. Ten or more persons may thus organize themselves and, having done so, secure official recognition through the issue of a charter from the National War Savings Committee.

Organized in schools, factories, large business houses, and in the midst of already existing bodies, these War Savings Societies are capable of assisting greatly in the War Savings and Thrift Stamps campaign. Organizations such at the I. O. D. E., the Red Cross, the Home Makers, the Women's Grain Growers and others that could be mentioned can render valuable service by forming War Savings Societies and Thrift Clubs among their members.

War Savings Societies should be formed by the thousands throughout Canada.

Jack Caffery, famous long-distance runner, died of pneumonia at his home in Hamilton last week. When at his best Caffery had no superiors in the Marathon game. He first attracted notice in 1898, when he made a record of 1:54:05 for the Herald road race, a distance of 10 miles 168 yards. In 1900 Caffery came back and led Billy Sherman home, making another new mark of 1:51:52. This stood until 1914, when Mellor completed the course in 1:48:43. Caffery also won the Boston Marathon twice, and for a long time held the record for the 25-mile distance.

WARNING TO VICTORY LOAN BOND HODLERS

The Minister of Finance has requested all the banks to advise their managers throughout Canada to caution, on his behalf, the holders of Victory Loan bonds against the depredations of unscrupulous promoters and other persons, who may attempt to take advantage of the inexperience in financial matters of many of the holders of bonds by inducing them to sell the bonds below their proper value in order to place the money in some questionable undertaking under promise of a phenomenal return to the investors. The managers are authorized to say that the Minister's object is to protect honest holders from the deceits of unprincipled promoters and salesmen of bogus securities. The Minister of Finance desires that the bank manager should not wait for the arrival of a promoter in his vicinity before cautioning the holders and he asks that action be taken at once in the matter. Any holders of Victory Loan bonds desiring to dispose of them should do so through any responsible broker, which will ensure their obtaining the full market value.

CALGARY HERALD ENTERTAINS THE BOYS

Under the auspices of the Calgary Herald and the direct supervision of A. J. Hilliker, circulation manager, a unique banquet was staged on Friday evening last at the Palliser hotel. Completely filling the large grill room of the hotel were between two and three hundred of the brightest faced boys Alberta province can produce. They were the route boys who handle the Herald in Calgary city and the towns of Southern Alberta, and it was their pleasure to be for the occasion the guests of the Herald management, the company paying all their travelling, hotel and other expenses.

With an orchestra making melody, the boys did full justice to the dinner which was served in real Palliser style, and following the dinner there was an evening of entertainment, provided by the boys and outside artists of well known reputation. Mr. Hilliker in a short speech explained how the boys had helped to boost the circulation of the Herald in city and country until today it stands without a superior in that respect anywhere in Canada.

J. H. Woods, managing director of the company, gave the boys a talk on co-operation and showed them how they were a very important factor in the machinery of a big business.

The out of town boys were entertained at the Allan and Regent picture theatres during their stay in the city as the guests of the managements of those houses and spent an educative and interesting hour going through the Herald mechanical plant, seeing for the first time how a great newspaper is made.

The representatives in the party from Fernie were Fred Beale and George Wasnock.

"ENEMY WITHIN OUR GATES"

Capt. Crow-Swords, a veteran of the South African and the World War will speak at the Isis theatre on Monday, March 10, at 8 p.m., on the alien question, the atrocities of the Huns, and on the re-establishment of the soldier into civil life.

The speaker is undoubedly the best authority on the alien enemy question as it stands in the province today, he having been closely connected with the Department of Justice in an official capacity, and in this way he has been able to gather a large number of facts which have not been available to the general public. Those who are interested in this very vital question would do well to go and hear the speaker on Monday night.

In speaking on the Hun atrocities the lecturer bases his facts on the official reports of the Canadian, British, French and Belgian governments, and on his own experiences in France and Belgium.

Slides depicting the activities of the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment Commission will be shown and explained. This will give an idea of the work being done in training the disabled soldiers to once more become an economic in our national activities.

The lecture throughout the greater part will be illustrated with slides, many of them being official pictures of the front, and cartoons by famous cartoonists.

A collection will be taken at the door and this will go to an emergency fund for the assistance of widows and orphans of soldiers who have been killed or died of sickness.

If Gladstone Local remembers the strenuous effort made by the citizens of this town some 15 years ago to interest the Great Northern railway people in Crow's Nest coal and how they realized that it meant the life of our city if they failed.

If it wouldn't be a good thing to leave this alien enemy deportation propaganda up to the British government. They will no doubt go into the question thoroughly and make a declaration on it before long It is not hard to appreciate the attitude of the returned men toward these people but there is also a question of justice, which it is safe to leave to the big men of Canada and Great Britain.

If the provincial government would not be wise to consider where the country is going to get off at if they further increase the taxes on the coal mining industry. This industry is taxed almost to the limit now.

If the women's minimum wage bill will not throw a large number out of employment. Those who show ambition and can deliver the goods will be kept on, the others will be dispensed with or boys hired in their places.

If the oil brokers who have been trying to unload stock around the city for the past week caught many victims. Fernie is famous for its suckers but one would think that even they would get wise after a while.

Why Findlay, of Prohibition and whiskey fame, did not start manufacturing booze instead of importing it. It is much safer.

If the report is correct that the bootleggers are all making moonshine whiskey now instead of trying to get it across the line. The report says that it is much easier and more lucrative. As yet no illicit stills have been gathered in. Our mountains may yet become as famous as those of Old Kentucky for the production of red eye.

What has happened to Charlie O'Brien and the Muscat, who were so busy in this district with socialistic propaganda before the war. Red Knight, of Edmonton, is a rotten substitute for those champions of the proletariat and D. V. Mott is not in their class for a minute.

LLOYD GEORGE ADDRESSES INDUSTRIAL JOINT COMMISSION

London, March 4.—Addressing the first session of the industrial joint commission of employers and employees, which was instituted at the industrial conference Feb. 27, and which was held privately this morning at the central hall, Westminster, Premier Lloyd George said he was returning to Paris to the peace conference, but thought it important to come there to say a few words to them who were also sitting at a peace conference which was more important for the future than perhaps they realized.

Russia had gone to pieces and he was sorry to say that the symptoms were that Germany was also going to pieces. There was in Germany a lack of cohesion of ideas regarding the way the country was going to march. He would not be surprised if Great Britain had again to save civilization in more ways than one.

The committee's task was to settle peace for the country, but they were doing more, they were setting up a model of civilization for the rest of the world. Let them approach their labors in that spirit. Civilization might be shattered to atoms; it could only be saved by the triumph of justice and fair play to all classes. The premier urged them not to try to get advantages over each other. They were not advocates but judges for the whole nation which looked to them to save the state .He advised employees not to seek temporary advantages which might finally ruin them, but to take a long view and see that the foundations which in some places were rotten, were underpinned and made safe.

He pointed out to the workers that what was happening in Russia and might happen in Germany would show they were a class which anarchy suited least and that when they seemed to be triumphing most were really with the exception perhaps of a favored few, suffering the most dreadful horrors.

They must see that the stream of prosperity irrigated the whole land. It was a mistake to keep men working longer than absolutely necessary, but at the same time two things must be borne in mind, namely, foreign competition and the need of productivity for a community of 45,000,000.

Therfore it was necessary to find a legitimate boundary, just as the peace conference was trying to fix European boundaries. They must use common sense and get a line that would meet the justice of the case.

FOREMAN MUST EXPLAIN

The question of the payment of $30 per month during the winter months to the road foreman at Rock Creek for "auto hire" and "gasoline" as entered by the foreman was before the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature. Mr. Bowser declared the transaction a method whereby the foreman simply got something for nothing at the expense of the public and that while the car was laid up for the winter months and there was no call for its use the bills were being sent in to the government and being paid. It is likely the road foreman will be requested to explain.

DELAY IN NEW MINERS' AGREEMENT

Indications are that there will be considerable delay in signing up the new agreement between the operators and miners of District No. 18. The new agreement ordinarly would be signed by April 1, when the old agreement expires but it is the intention of both parties to await the outcome of the U. M. W. of A. international convention which will be held in Indianapolis commencing about March 18. At that time the policy of the union with regard to wages will be settled, and what is done across the line will have a direct bearing here.

Meanwhile the mines are working practically every day in the Lethbridge field, the cold snap having brought a rush of orders from all parts of the prairie provinces. Considerable coal is going to Calgary to relieve the shortage there, while some is being shipped to Spokane. The shipments to Spokane during the past month have averaged about four cars daily.—Lethbridge Herald.

PUBLIC SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

A comparison of the attendance at the Fernie Public Schools for the first two months of 1919, with the corresponding months of other years is gratifying. During the months of January and February just passed the enrolment has been the heaviest on record in Fernie and the actual attendance for the two-month's period was 94.5 per cent. of the possible.

For February, Division 3 leads with 98.16 per cent. of possible attendance, while fifteen divisions show more than 94 per cent.

BRITISH SPIES WERE VERY BUSY IN TURKEY

There are some quiet men in inconspicuous R.N.V.R. uniforms to be me in the Eastern Mediterranean just now who have odd tales to tell. They are members of the "S.S." or British Secret Service, which ran our spy organization in Turkey.

Wih'n a few miles of the coast lie a series of Greek Islands — Imbros, Tenedoes, Mitylene and Chios—which provided useful bases for our spy organization.

In each of these islands lived one of the British intelligence officers, usually in the R.N.V.R. or on the general list. It was his duty to enrol suitable agents. He found them ch'efly among the Greek islanders, cunning and bold men who were full of hatred for the Turk and eagerly ready to work against him.

Night after night the British intelligence officer would set out in his motor boat to put a party of his spies ashore in some deserted spot on the Turkish coast.

Perhaps the most romantic scheme hatched by the fertile brains of "S.S." was that of kidnapping Enver Pasha when he was on his way to take a course of hot baths at Cheshme, on the Asia Minor coast.

News of this intention of the Turkish Commander in Ch'ef was brought back by a Greek agent, and a party of picked men under British officers was formed to land in Turkey, make its way to a point on the lonely road along which Enver's motor car must pass and there hold h'm up and carry him off in most approved brigand style.

The whole band was put into strict training at Mitylene in view of the 20-mile march to the coast wh'ch they would have to perform with their valuable captive.

When at last they set out they were about 20 strong all well armed and equipped with a Lewis gun. The spot they had chosen for their coup was on a lonely stretch of the road where it passed through a narrow valley whose sides were strewn with boulders.

The kidnappers followed the model of a police trap for motorists in their dispositions. One party was to be posted down the road at the entrance to the valley and the rest farther up. It was known that the Turkish Commander in Chief would have at least two cars and that he would probably himself be in the second one.

As soon as the cars were both in the gorge accordingly the party farthest from the entrance were suddenly to roll down rocks from their hiding place in front of the leading car. The driver would naturally pull up, and the car would then receive a drum of bullets from the Lewis gun. Meanwhile the party lower down the gorge would rush out and drag Enver from the second car, avoiding the use of their arms if possible, though Enver was known always to be ready to shoot and is a man of most desperate courage.

But after all these careful plans had been laid and the abduction party well drilled the Turkish War Lord at the last moment changed his plans and gave up his proposed cure at the Cheshme hot baths.

Enver Pasha will probably never know unless he reads these lines how near he was in the spring of 1918 to finishing the war in a British internment camp.

PRETTY GOOD PAY

The salary voted the provisional president of the new German republic, as stated at 1,000,000 marks a year, is certainly a substantial payment. The German mark is just now at a very considerable discount, but if Herr Ebert is paid in coin rather than in the depreciated paper promises of the government he will net as his annual income the equivalent of about $250,000 in United States money.

It may be indeed that his financial condition will be at least comparable with that of the ex-kaiser, to whose seat he succeeds. Wilhelm's financial resources do not seem to be impaired to an extent that compels domestic economy in his exile, but no one can tell what may happen to his property investments in Germany. Outside he may live long in the enjoyment of luxury.

As a matter of national finance, however, it may be doubted that such a very liberal allowance for the head of the German republic is commendable as foresighted. The day of international settlement is not far distant and the debit to Germany's account is p'ling up with the delay. Until the treaty of peace is signed and the payments on the part of the Hun are adjusted they should go slow in creating millionaires of their officials.—Boston Post.

"Copper mining is now firmly established as the most important form of mining in the province," says W. F. Robertson, provincial mineralogist. "In 1918 the value of copper mined in the province exceeded by over $4,000,000 the combined values of all metals mined, and it formed 38 per cent of the total mineral production for the year."

COOPER TO PROVE FAMOUS THEORIES

His Remarkable Medicine Accomplishing Wonderful Results in Leading Cities

Referring to the visit to Victoria and other Western cities of Mr. L. T. Cooper, the milionaire philanthropist and lecturer, who has commanded such widespead interest in the East with his health theories and celebrated medicine, Tanlac, E. C. Harris, his representative recently said in Victoria:

"Thousands of the most prominent people in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Denver, San Francisco, Portland, Salt Lake City, Detroit, Louisville, Dallas, Atlanta, Memphis and other cities, where his celebrated medicine has been accomplishing such remarkable results, are even more enthusiastic over Tanlac than Mr. Cooper himself.

"As previously stated Mr. Cooper contends that nine-tenths of the disease and ill-health of the average person is due to a catarrhal condition which produces faulty digestion and improper assimilation of the food."

"In a recent interview Mr. Cooper was asked if Tanlac would relieve kidney trouble, liver complaint, rheumatism and a dozen other ailments, and in this connection said:

"As I have repeatedly said, my medicine acts directly on the mucous membrane, stomach and blood, expelling from them the impurities and toxic poisons, and rendering to them a strong, healthy condition. I am convinced that the stomach regulates the condition of the blood and is the fountain head of health or disease, as the case may be. My medicine is intended primarily for the regulation of the stomach and correction of catarrhal inflammation, but it is no uncommon thing for persons who have used it to come to me and explain that it has relieved them of rheumatism and many other ailments, not generally recognized as having their origin in stomach trouble.

"The ingredients or medicinal elements which make Tanlac, come from many remote sections of the earth—the Alps, the Pyrenees, Russian Asia, West Indies, mountain states near the Rocky Mountains, Mexico and Peru are among the points from which the principal parts of the preparations are obtained. In the principal laboratory of the Tanlac Company under the efficient direction of a chemist of note those medicinal herbs, roots and barks are assembled in the rough and painstakingly developed so as to attain that high standard of efficiency shown by the uniform preparation — Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman.

AMERICAN WRITER BOASTS FOR GREAT BRITAIN

We must not let our delight in the astonishing achievements of our boys bearing themselves like veterans on the bloodiest battlefields in history and against the most intensely trained troops ever sent into action, blind us to the other 'big things' that have been and are being done in this tremendous tournament of the nations. Even in our appraisement of the great deeds of our allies, we have naturally dwelt chiefly upon the unexpected and the glorious bizarre—the slaying of the Goliaths by the daring Davids. We have not stopped to comment on the solidity of Mont Blanc.

But it is after all on the solidity of the Mont Blancs that we build. We all knew the stuff of which old England was made. What she has done in this war—quietly, unboastingly as is her wont—has surprised no one who knew English character, English stamnia and English history. Imaginative writers have mentioned various moments at which the blundering bully of Berlin lost the war and his chance to conquer and enslave the world; but those who take long views of things and recognize the primal forces which have shaped the destiny of nations since the disintegration of the Roman empire will agree that the doom of Germany's despotic ambition was sealed on the day that Britain's councillors wheeled that nation into line with the forces of freedom.

So they entered upon the task of bringing down—to paraphrase Kipling—the Beast that walked like a Man. They were under obligations to send some eighty thousand soldiers to help the French. The kaiser, measuring their honor by his own, thought they would perfunctorily and literally redeem this pledge, and let it go at that. Hence his remark about their 'contemptible little army." The fact is that Great Britain alone has sent on land and sea a total of six and a quarter millions. Her empire has added two and a quarter millions more to this. Over eight millions instead of eighty thousand—a hundred in place of one. That is the British way. When we send fifteen million we will have done as well—but not till then.

England was no more a military nation than America when the war began. She learned to fight by fighting—and dying. We are profiting today by her tragic experiences. Thousands of American lads will come home to us alive and whole because thousands of our blood-brothers from the British Isles have been killed and mutilated—and have taught us how to escape. Britain made her armies while France and her own navy held the gap, and then she poured them into France and Flanders by the millions to fight back the eruption of cave men that threatened to submerge civilization.

What the English have done in this war is too recent to need recapitulation. They gradually took over greater and greater sections of the front. They first fought defensive actions with all the dogged courage for which the British are famous—then they created that early turn in the tide which released the series of allied offensives that finally sent the Germans back to the Hindenburg line—and beyond. They rose to the rank of a full military partner of France—and there is no higher rank.

For all this they paid. There is hardly a home in Great Britain which does not have its unvisited grave in France or Belgium—not a street on which the permanently maimed do not limp to unaccustomed tasks. And the figures show that the percentage of casualties from the Mother country exceeds the percentage from the overseas dominions, thus disposing of one of the vilest, meanest, most dastardly lies of the whole Satanic German propaganda which charged that the English were putting their colonials and their allies in the forefront of the battle. Lord Northcliffe estimates their killed alone at 900,000.

England's contributions outside the western front have been worthy of a great nation, even if they stood alone. Her navy has kept the seas free for the commerce and the troop transports of the allied world. It has bottled up the German navy from the first. Her ships have coaled, fed and munitioned the French— brought legions and food supplies from the Seven Seas. We are proud of our own swift shipment of troops in the firing line during the days of the soul-shaking danger this last summer; but well over half of them went in British bottoms convoyed by British warships.

Then where have not the British fought? The Suez was in danger. It was the British that protected it. There were German naval stations in the Pacific. The British mopped them up. Russia asked help by way of the Dardanelles. The British tried to give it. Intervention was needed on the Tigris. The British supplied it. The British were at Saloniki. British ships were in the Adriatic. The British colonial troops freed Africa from the Germans. British diplomacy steadied the Moslem world when the Turkish sultan and his Sheik-ul-Islam proclaimed a holy war. The British today are moving south from Archangel and are at Vladivistok.

Britain financed the allied nations till we came in to share the titanic task. Her industries have clothed, munitioned and supplied them in various vital ways. The Germans say that she has 'prolonged the war.' By that they mean that she has kept up the fighting spirit of the allies and supported their morale. The Briton is a dour fighter and knows no end to a struggle save victory or death. He never fights a limited liability war—he goes in with his whole soul. The day that British khaki appeared upon the battlefields of France it was decreed that there could be but one of two ends to this conflict— the collapse of the British empire or the final failure of Germany's dream of world conquest.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

SWAIZEMA CURES ECZEMA

Read this testimonial.

Just a line to advise you the results received after taking fourteen bottles of your SWAIZEMA medicine. I had been troubled with Eczema for two years, and so much so, that I was at times laid up and unable to work.

I tried everything I knew of and was unable to get any permanent relief. I also tried six different doctors, and had the same results from them getting relief for a short time only. I then tried your Medicine, which has given me not only relief, but as far as I know, cured me entirely; and will be glad to have you refer any one to me at any time.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

DOINGS IN THE PROVINCIAL LEGISLATURE

Victoria, Feb. 28.—Just what degree of preference should be shown to returned soldiers was a subject which engaged the attention of the legislature for several seessions this week. When the members finally emerged from their debates it was found that the government majority had declined to accept the principle of a guarantee of their old jobs to returning civil servants but was willing to promise preference in the service insofar as the efficiency of the department would permit." There were several acriminious discussions on the resolution of Pte. Giolma of Victoria asking that returning civil servants be given a guarantee that their old positions or others as good would be here for them. The Opposition and the soldier party stood together against the government but on the final division the government forces carried the day on a vote of 30 to 13. The Oppesition and soldiers charged that the government should be under a sacred agreement to keep every man's position for him. Premier Oliver replied that the administration was always ready to show preference to returned soldiers but had to consider the efficiency of the service as well. He contended that the old government had not done right when it promised to make up the difference in pay for all men in the civil service who went to war. This rule should apply to every volunteer if applied to any, he considered and he pointed out that it looked like an attempt to bribe the civil servants into volunteering. Opposition Leader Bowser retorted that the payment by the government of differences in pay had been merely to set a good example to other employers of labor. The crown had naturally felt, he said, that its own employees should be cared for, particularly as most civil servants were underpaid. With the defeat of the soldier resolution in favor of an amendment by Hon. D. McLean that the existing orders in council on the subject be followed there also fell by the wayside an amendment by the Premier himself containing the qualification about "insofar as efficiency will permit." The Premier withdrew this in favvor of the amendment of the Minister of Education which was introduced, according to its opponents, to make the most of the bad hole into which the premier's amendment had apparently dropped the government. Later in the week the Premier gave notice of a lengthy resolution providing in general terms that the house express the opinion that all returned soldiers are entitled to every preference not only in the public service but with private employers. This hardly meets the view of the soldier party, however, as it demands that the government give an absolute guarantee insofar as returning civil servants and the civil positions are concerned.

The House arguments on this subject have from the standpoint of strategy at all events driven the government into rather a bad corner. It is not doubted that the government members of course have the interests of the returned soldiers at heart but the Premier has in the minds of many of the members assumed too dogmatic an attitude and instead of gracefully accepting such resolutions of this character as are brought up by the soldiers has repeatedly refused them and replaced them by motions of his own. The consequence has been that the soldier party is becoming more and more estranged from the administration. It is a common thing now to find the soldier member and the Opposition lining up together as one man.

Opposition Leader Bowser's attempt to have a committee of the house formed to investigate the prohibition administration in the province was ruled out of order by the Speaker and the appeal to the house against the ruling was lost by a vote of 27 to 11, the soldiers supporting the Opposition. The Speaker's ruling was that the Findlay matter was before the courts and in any event such a resolution meant the expenditure of public moneys therefore it could only come from the government. Mr. Bowser argued in reply that there was plenty of precedent for such a resolution, such as in the P.G.E. enquiry, the plugging probe and other house investigations, going as far back as twenty years ago and many of them initiated from Opposition resolutions. Insofar as the court phase of the matter was concerned he pointed out that the Legislature was above the courts and should not be restricted in any way in whatever enquiries it might wish to undertake into the administration of one of the government departments. However, despite the arguments of the Opposition the resolution died a natural death when the house majority upheld the Speaker's ruling.

Lt. Hanes of North Vancouver came forward again during the week with two more P.G.E. resolutions. One of them asked for a commission to enquire into P.G.E. campaign contributions but was ruled out of order on the ground that its substance had been contained in a motion defeated a few days before. The other, asking for the production of copies of records in connection with the deal between the government and the railway company by which the line became provincially owned, was defeated by 22 to 16. This is the closest vote which the house has yet seen since the new government came into power. The Opposition and soldiers voted together and Mrs. Ralph Smith with two or three other government members came to their assistance. The point of the motion is that there should be an enquiry into the allegations that the govvernment had allowed the P.G.E. interests to get away wih about three-quarters of a million of equipment which under the terms of the agreement was to pass into the hands of the administration.

Information with respect to the cost of the special assessors appointed last summer has been tabled in the house. It shows that the cost of the special assessments has been almost $51,000 as compared with the estimate made in the appropriations last session of $30,000.

The new initiative and referendum bill has come down. It follows up the Liberal platform promise of direct legislation but it is so framed that it is doubtful if the measure can be utilized except by some highly organized interest. For instance, to get a vote on any bill suggested from a section of the public a petition of 25 per cent of the electors of the province is required. This must have not less than 10 per cent of the electors in any one riding out of at least three-fourths of the constituencies of the province. When the referendum is taken it must obtain three-fourths of the votes polled until it is held at the time of a general election when a straight majority will be sufficient. The Legislature will have power to submit bills to the people of its own volitation without any petition and these bills will automatically become law unless within 90 days after the session a petition of 15 per cent of the electors asks for a vote on them. The new bill will provide a vehicle for a vote on the prohibition question, probably following a petition from the moderation interests. If the moderationists can get up a sufficiently strong petition and can get the vote taken at the next provincial election a bare majority will be sufficient to retain the present system or to defeat it.

The Opposition continues to flood the order paper with questions about dismissals, appointments, purchases of government stores through private individuals and all other conceivable questions wehre it believes that it can score the administration for partizanship or negligence.

The Opposition is also now on the trail of what it believes to be a spruce scandal in the North in which it is claimed that a firm close to government members there was permitted to take advantage of an order in council and usurp the spruce holdings of a private individual without any payment to him. A select committee is now being asked.

Little progress is yet made in legislation. The budget will not be in for another week. The house should run till the end of March.

END STOMACH TROUBLE, GASES OR DYSPEPSIA

"Pape's Diapepsin" makes sick, sour, gassy stomachs surely feel fine in five minutes.

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach-headache, you can get relief in five minutes by neutralizing acidity. Put an end to such stomach distress now by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder caused by food fermentation due to excessive acid in stomach.

THE MINING CONVENTION AT VANCOUVER

When the programme of the International Mining Convention which is to be held in Vancouver on March 17, 18 and 19, is published, it will be seen that the men who have been, so to speak, born in the mining game have agreed to deliver addresses at the different sessions. Chief among these is T. A. Rickard, editor of the Mining and Scientific Press, San Francisco. Mr. Rickard is one of the highest authorities on mining in the world. He is perhaps the most widely travelled mining engineer on this continent. He was born in Italy of English parents and after arriving in the United States he took an active part in the mining operations in Colorado from 1885 to 1887. He is a member of practically every mining organization in the United States and knows British Columbia like a book. Not only is he a great traveller but he is also a well known and distinguished author, and his works are recognized as standards. Among them are "Across the San Juan Mountains" and "Through the Yukon and Alaska.' He is scheduled to speak on "Mining as an Investment" at the public meeting to be held at the convention headquarters on the night of March 17, and as it is admitted there is no one better qualified to speak under this head his address should be and no doubt will be full of enlightenment and interest.

Mont B. Morrow of the Canmore Coal Co., Alta., has written to say that "he would not miss the convention for the world" and a large number of others have expressed themselves similarly. In addition to the delegates from the Northeast Kootenay country who will go to Vancouver for the big gathering, a splendid display of ores will be sent from that district to add to the collection at the exhibition.

Two important addresses will be delivered, one by T. W. Bingay of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company and the other by Valentine Quinn of the Granby Company on the all-absorbing topic of the taxation of mining properties.

Among other mining experts who will take an active part will be the following, and these are only a few of the names: W. H. C. Graves of Seattle, John Hunt of the Western Fuel Co., W. C. Miller of the Sound City, A. C. Mason and J. V. Pohlman, both of whom have heavy mining interests on the Grand Trunk line, and P. D. Ricketts, head of the largest mining, chemical and metallurgical associations in New York.

The entire staff of the Oregon Bureau of Mines is coming under H. N. Laerie, who will likely speak on gold mining, and Senator Turner will also be on the list.

The detailed program will be announced next week. Splendid reports have been received from the interior points, all indicating that the attendance will be a record-breaker from those districts.

PROVIDES FOR ACCESS TO "COMPANY TOWNS"

Several important amendments to the Forest Act are contained in a bill introduced in the Legislature by the Hon. T. D. Pattullo, minister of lands.

Where a timber license covers timber that is considered more valuable for pulp purposes than for lumber this license may be converted into a pulp license, provided the holder complies with the statutory requirements of erecting a pulp plant at a value of $300,000.

Provision is made for the valuing of timber on any site wanted for industrial purposes, where that site is on land covered by an existing timber license.

Where a license had expired owing to nonpayment of current fees, the government is taking power to grant a further renewal for a period of one year, with an extra penalty attached.

In order to insure a proper disposal of slash and thus to reduce the fire risk provision is being made that the cost of destroying the slash shall be borne one-half by the forest protector.

The Act to make provision for access by the public to company towns affects those centres controlled by large industrial concerns, to throw open which the present government promised two years ago when appealing to the country, to take action. The bill does not go the whole way and makes such centres absolutely open to public access. It provides that where 100 or more persons employed in or about any industrial business are living upon company lands the Lieutenant Governor in Council my by order published once in the Gazette declare such lands an area to be described as a "company town." Any streets declared bythe Lieutenant Governor in Council as open to public traffic. In case the usual means of transportation consist wholly or partly of transportation by water, the company shall maintain a safe and convenient public wharf, subject to such wharfage and other rates as are approved by the government. A penalty not exceeding $500 is provided for any infraction by the company of any provision of the act.

Both of the above bills were given their first reading.

BRITISH LABOR DRAFT LIBERAL

London, March 4.—The main proposals of the Brit'sh draft, adopted with minor alterations by the international legislation commiss'on at Paris as the new international charter of labor, are given in a spec'al dispatch from the labor correspondent of the Daily Telegraph.

The provisions of the draft preclude the employment of children under 15 years of age in industrial occupations and of children between 15 and 18 for more than six hours daily. At least two hours each day must be devoted by these young workers to technical or regular educational classes, and they will not be permitted to work at night or on Sundays or holidays.

A Saturday half-holiday will be introduced into all countries, and workers shall be allowed a continuous weekly rest of at least 36 hours while the hours of work shall not exceed eight daily, or 48 weekly and even less than this in dangerous trades.

TRANSATLANTIC AIR LINER IS PROPOSED

Details of a transatlantic passenger carrying airplane —"ocean-liner" of the air—are minutely described in the Electric Experimenter and are, to say the least, gigantic in their proportions and fantastic in their conception, although announced as a "logical forecast of what may soon be an established fact." As a matter of record, several air-liners of 10,000 horse power and upwards are today according to the electric journal, in course of construction; one of them in the United States and two, including a giant Caproni, abroad. The construction of the ship described in the Electric Experimenter is based upon specifications that have been passed upon by competent authorities, Aero Club of America officials and others, and comprehends the following features:

"It will have a wing span of four hundred and twenty feet, a fuselage length of 210 feet, and a height of 90 feet from the upper to the lower planes. The planes, three in number, will extend horizontally from the hull of the ship to a width of 210 feet on either side. The hull, containing the passenger compartments is built on a steam-line basis, resembling that of a sulphur-bottomed whale, and is arranged to accommodate 85 people besides a crew of 15 men, a total of 15,000 pounds, allowing 7,000 pounds for supplies and fuel for 18 hours' run; 1700 pounds of this reserve capacity would be available for baggage.

The motive power is derived from six high-powered gasoline motors.The three motors situated on the upper tier and the two on the lower tier of the planes are 1600 horsepower each. The central motor built on the forward section of the hull is of 2000 horsepower; in all the stupendous total of 10,000 horse power, weighing in the neighborhood of 20,000 pounds. The horizontal and vertical stabilizers are of dimensions in proportion to the rest of the machine, as are the rudder and elevator. The upper side of the wings will be designed to take advantage of the upward suction. It might be well to state that 66 per cen of the lifting power is due to the suction on the upper surface of the wing-panel, while only 33 per cent can be credited to an actual pressure of air on the under surface.

"The lifting capacity of these three planes will be 45 per cent for the upper, 20 per cent for the middle and 35 pr cent for the lower plane. Figuring their angles to be four degrees, the propellors will be of four blades to each motor, or a total of 24 blades to the machine. The exhaust from the engines will be used for heating 'muffler' stoves, upon which all of the food can be cooked, water will be heated, and a general warmth provided in cold weather and while flying at unusual heights. Quite an appreciable amount of reserve lifting power is utilized for the comfort of the passengers in the way of cushions, hammocks, fans and periodicals. The ship is equipped with a wireless outfit having a range of 2000 miles, and each passenger is taken care of in the event of accident by an individual combination parachute and life-belt. These parachutes are situated in a small compartment over the door of each state-room, all of the state-rooms facing the exterior of the ship."

For an initial trip a course is laid down from New York city to Newfoundland, where a landing would be made to take on supplies, then a straightaway for Ireland, where the final landing would be made at Queenstown. Following is the proposed time-table: Leave Battery Park, New York city, 7 a.m., arrive at Newfoundland 5.20 p.m., leave Newfoundland at 5.40 p.m., arrive at Queenstown at 11.40 a. m., leave Queenstown 12 noon, arrive at London 3 p.m.; mileage 3,456 miles; time of trip 31 hours.

BRITAIN'S GREAT LOSS IN MESCHANT MARINE TONNAGE

In urging that immediate steps be taken to rebuild the British merchant marine, Archibald S. Hurd, the naval writer in an article in the Daily Telegraph says that although the United Kingdom was not invaded, Great Britain has paid for victory in the loss of more than 9,000,000 tons of shipping, ten times as much as that lost by either France or Italy. The British losses were 17 times as much as those of the United States.

"Owing to little having been said of the injuries inflicted on this country in the war," Mr. Hurd says, "there is an impression in allied and neutral countries that we paid a relatively small price for victory. It is true that we were not invaded, but that was due, not to good fortune, for the sea is the easiest and quickest medium for an invader, but to good policy. It is also true that we were not starved, but that was the result of judgment and organizaion. It is necessary that due importance should be attached to the injury inflicted upon us as a people who follow the sea, because there is a temptation to exaggerate the damage sustained by the allies on the land and to ignore the results of enemy action by sea.

"The following figures show the total losses in gross tonnage of merchant steamers sustained by this and other countries during the war:

"The United Kingdom and Dominions, 9,055,668; the United States 501,038; Belgium 105,081; Brazil, 31,279; Denmark 245,302; Holland 229,041; France 807,077; Greece 414,675; Italy 861,435; Japan 270,033; Norway 1,117,760; Spain 237,862; Sweden 264,001.

"The British tonnage sunk, therefore, was more than ten times as much as that lost by either France or Italy and 17 times as much as that lost by America."

NEW TELESCOPE AT VICTORIA SEES NEW STARS

In the course of the regular program of work with the 72-inch reflecting telescope of the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, B.C., which has been in active operation only since May last, 30 spectroscopic binaries have already been discovered.

These stars, which usually appear as single even when viewed with the most powerful telescope, can only reveal the fact that they in reality consist of two stars revolving around one another by measurements of their radial velocity towards or from the earth by means of the spectroscope. If the star is always moving with the same speed towards or from the sun then it is single; but if this speed changes or if at one time it is moving towards us and at another time away from us, then it is a double system, a spectroscopic binary as distinguished from a visual binary, which appears double when looked at in the telescope.

Nearly 1300 spectra have already been obtained with this telescope of stars mostly fainter than the sixth magnitude from a list of 800 stars to be observed at Victoria this list being arranged in co-operation with Mt. Wilson. About half of these spectra have been measured, with the result that 30 of the 125 stars whose velocity has thereby been obtained are shown to be binary. This gratifying record, one never before approached in such a short time after the completion of the telescope, gives promise that Canada will soon become an even more important factor than at present in the advancement of astronomical research.

WHEN SHALL THEIR GLORY FADE!

The indomitable sailors of Britain! When shall their glory fade! Through the greatest war in history they carried on, "per mare, per terram," modest, unflinching and ever ready to face the German devil and all his works; their motto: "Do it, and don't talk about it."

The Seagirt Isle has reason to be proud of her heroes of the Great War but the "Mariners of England" in years to come will ever loom on the world's horizon as a watch tower set on a hill, as composed of men who could not be intimidated by devilish arts or beaten in fair fight.

The New York Herald thus pays a glowing tribute to the dauntless prowess of the fighting men of Britain:

"Throwing a new high light on British sea history and tradition, the Royal George, of the Cunard Line, made port here yesterday with a full crew of British soldiers and seamen. They were men from Flanders fields, from Arras, from Chateau-Thierry and from many naval engagements.

"One man, Matthew Green, chief steward, wore the Distinguished Service Medal. Other decorations were worn by this remarkable crew.

"Perhaps never before did a great passenger steamship have such a working force. And in its constitution was striking evidence of the completeness with which Britain's man power was mobilized in the great war, for these fighters were all in sea service when William Hohenzollern embarked on his world venture in murder and rapine.

Aboard a vessel thus manned those who go down to the sea in ships cannot but feel a thrill of pride."

PROHIBITION DISCUSSED BY CAUCUS

Ottawa, Feb. 27.—It is understood that when the question of prohibition was under consideration in the government caucus today it was suggested by many members that when a plebiscite is taken, subsequent to the return of Canada's fighting men to their homes, several questions should be submitted to the people. It was argued that they should be asked whether they desire bone-dry prohibition or the sale of light wines and beers.

The last game of the District bonspiel, the final for the Liphardt Cup, was played at the rink on Wednesday, when Herchmer's famous Winnipeg rink went down to defeat against Frank Lawe. The score was nearly two to one.

Fernie has a "Peeping Tom" who goes around gazing into people's houses about bed time. He had a close call the other night when M. A Kastner endeavored to take a pot shot at him but he made his get-away safely. From vavrious descriptions he wears a peak cap and a mackintosh.

The famous legal squabble between Frank Murphy, of Flagstone, and the Adolph Lumber Co., of Baynes Lake, came up before the appeal court at Ottawa the other day, the decision of the Appeal Court of B.C. being reversed in favor of the Adolph Lumber Co. The case will now be appealed to the Privy Council. It looks as though, where there is so much room for argument that one court after another will reverse the decision, that these people would have been much better to have settled this case out of court.

There has been little rest for the Fleishman Cup during the past week. On Friday evening W. Baldrey and Jas. Johnston succeeded in wresting the cup from A. C. Liphardt and Frank Lawe by a small margin. On Monday night L. E. McDonald and Tom Beck defeated the new cup holders, only to lose to Hogarth and Bowness of Cranbrook. These two Fernie skips were not satisfied and visited Cranbrook on Wednesday, but could not recover the last trophy. Tom Beck held his opponent to a draw but McDonald's rink fell down hard.

J. K. Batchelder, superintendent of refineries for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company in Trail, died last Saturday afternoon at the Trail hospital at 4 o'clock, from influenza followed by pneumonia. He had been ill about three weeks, and at first was taken to the home of Dr. John Nay, city health officer. His condition becoming worse, he was removed to the hospital and nothing was left undone to save his life, he having the best of attention. The death of Mr. Batchelder, the first that has occurred from flu in the office staff at the smelter and refineries in Trail, sent a shock through the community. While he was a quiet, unassuming young man of 29, he had a host of friends in Trail, both on the staff and in the city where he was held in high esteem.—Trail News.

The regular monthly tea of the Ladies Guild of Christ Church will be held at the home of Mrs. G. G. Moffatt on Wednesday, March 12, at 3.30 p.m.

M. A. Kastner defeated Jack McIntyre at the curling rink last evening in the finals of the New Year's Day bonspiel, which was held over since the first of the year.

Donald McNabb, of Lethbridge, cleaned up nearly everything in the local bonspiel competition in that city. He had the same rink that he played in the District Bonspiel in Cranbrook.

At the Salvation Army hall on Sunday next, March 9, at 3.30, A. G. Norman, who has spent a good many years in India as a missionary, will give a very interesting address. The public are invited.

The prospect for the automobile trade in Fernie this season looks very bright, provided there is no serious stoppage of work at the mines. Quite a number of Coal Creek people are talking about buying.

Two victims of the Prohibition Act were relieved of 72 bones each by Magistrate Whimster the other day. They had liquor in their possession. One man hailed from Cranbrook and the other from Coal Creek.

Col. Cy. Peck, M.P. for Prince Rupert, is attending the session at Ottawa. Col. Peck will receive some reception when he returns home and we will bet that Fred Stork. his political opponent, will lead the procession

Magistrate Whimster touched an alien enemy the other day for $75 for failing to report. We always thought he was rather severe but Magistrate Hewat still has him beaten several city blocks when you consider that $300 affair.

The G.W.V.A. wish to give public notice that the masquerade dance announced for March 12 is not their dance. It had been the intention of the G.W.V.A. to hold a dance on that date, but it was decided to postpone it till some later date.

There will be a joint meeting of the City Council, the Veterans' Association and the Re-Construction Committee on Sunday next to discuss that famous resolution which caused such a disturbance at the meeting of the city council last week.

The annual meeting of the Roarin' Game Ltd. will be held at the rink tonight at 8.30. Owing to so many members of the company being in Cranbrook today the meeting may be adjourned but if you are interested be sure and turn out anyway.

The provincial police gathered in an Austrian this week who was making his boast that he had never registered and never reported during the war and he didn't intend to do so. Magistrate Hewat levied a fine of $300 or six months in the pen.

The regular weekly meeting of the G.W.V.A. will be held in the Returned Soldiers Club on Sunday next at 8 p.m. instead of at 3 p.m. All returned soldiers of the C.E.F., Imperial or Allied Armies or Navies are requested to attend Comrade Crow-Swords of Vancouver will be in attendance.

Returned soldiers wishing to register with the Department of Soldiers Civil Re-establishment or to obtain information on the various activities of the department can do so by seeing W. J. Claridge, District Representative, at the Returned Soldiers Club. forenoons 11 to 12; afternoons 2 to 3.

Sherwood Herchmer and M. A. Kastner took two rinks to Cranbrook this morning to have another try for the Fleishman Cup. They feel pretty confident of bringing home the trophy as it has been arranged that if they do not win in the games one of the bunch will remain over and try to steal it.

Joe Knight, the Red from Edmonton, entertained quite an audience at the Grand theatre on Sunday evening last. About half the crowd were returned men, who were there in a body to see that Joe confined his remarks strictly to socialism. Down at Blairmore he was approached by a committee of returned soldiers who told him that he had to eliminate all disloyal stuff from his speech and Joe took the hint. He was a good dog and confined his remarks to a general explanation of the theories of Karl Marx and his particular brand of socialism. Joe objected seriously to the Free Press calling him a Red. A year or two ago before the boys began coming back from the front he would have taken that red stuff as a compliment but now he hasn't even got the sand to back up the propaganda talk he was putting over at that time.

PROGRAMME FOR MINING CONVENTION

The committee in charge of the International Mining Convention to be held in Vancouver on March 17, 18 and 19 are now in a position to make announcement of program and the speakers who will take part in the proceedings. The registration of delegates will take place from 10 till 11 on the first morning and at 11 o'clock Mayor Gale will give an address of welcome. He will be followed by A. M. Whiteside, President of the Chamber of Mines.

Hon. Wm. Sloan, Minister of Mines, will follow the President and speak on mineral resources of British Columbia. At 12.30 the delegates will be entertained to luncheon. District Engineers of the province will speak under the chairmanship of Dean Landis of the University of Washington. The topic on which they will speak will be "Attractive prospecting areas and ore deposits of promise in my district."

On the second day H. N. Lawrie, head of the Oregon Bureau of Mining, will speak on the gold question. Frederick Bradshaw will follow him on "What might be done to stimulate gold mining in B.C."

The advisability of establishing a copper smelter on the Southern Coast of British Columbia will be the topic that will likely engage considerable attention. On the afternoon of the same day F. G. Glover of Princeton, and Thomas Graham, of Cumberland, will open the discussion on "The better utilization of B.C. Coal." J. D. McConnell will handle the question of what the prospector is and how he can best be encouraged. The taxation of mining properties is another subject to lead to important discussion. Valentine Quinn, of the Granby Co., and T. W. Bingay of the Consolidated Co., will lead off.

NATIONALIZATION OR DEMOCRATIC CONTROL?

Anoticeable feature of the British miners' agitation is the demand for the nationalization of the mines. But there have been unmistakable indications that one of the causes of industrial unrest in Britain has been an excess of government control. The growth of an industrial bureaucracy is conducive neither to the best conditions of work nor to industrial efficiency. And one of the questions to be answered in the immediate future is whether the democratic control of industry, which Labor has placed in the forefront of its political programme, can be attained by nationalization.

Some industries, which have attained the status of universal services, are admittedly "ripe" for national ownership. But even at that the kind of directorate by which they shall be managed and operated is by no means finally determined. It seems tolerably clear that the "official" mind is not suited to conduct vast business enterprises. Expert management is essential if wasteful administration, ending in bankruptcy, is to be avoided. But the real experts cannot be hampered by bureaucratic or political control. Neither will control of industry be democratic if it be exercised by any one class to the exclusion of all others, even though that class be the one which furnishes the labor which is essential to all forms of industrial activity.

Alongside the demand for nationalization stands the demand for reversion to the old individualistic conditions of industry and trade. This demand is clearly and moderately expressed by Lord Brassey, in a recent letter to the press. He says:

"Increased production and increased exports are essential if the country is to recover her position in commerce and shipping and to meet her liabilities. A further increase in the cost of coal (the cost of production in South Wales has risen from 15s to 35s per ton during the war) means diminished exports of coal, increased cost of production in every factory. increased cost of transportation on sea and land, and in consequence diminished opportunities for recovering the trade which has been lost and on the recovery of which the employment of the demobilized soldier and war worker so largely depends.

Considerations such as these will fall on deaf ears so long as mines or any other industry are controlled by the government. To the miner, as well as to many other people, the pocket of the government appears absolutely bottomless, and the government have given him substantial grounds for holding that opinion. The worker will only be brought to appreciate the consequences of his action by meeting his employer face to face round a table, as so strenuously advocated by the National Alliance of Employers and Employed. The worker will be far more reasonable in pressing his demands when he knows from the statistics to which Sir Eric Geddes justly attaches so much importance the consequences to his employer's business of an increase in wages than he is in dealing with the government.

"The first step therefore to the solution of our labor troubles is the removal of government control from mines and every other industry. The disastrous effects of government control were exemplified in the shipping industry in 1917. The immense advantage of the rapid removal of government control of shipping, for which the shipping controller deserves the thanks of the community, is becoming more apparent every day. No one is more anxious to see the position of the worker improved, and to see him receiving a larger share of the fruits of his labor; but in order to realize these ends the business in which he is employed must pay."

Between these two demands there is probably to be found a middle path along which industry may pursue its rational evolution. Various expedients for the removal of friction between the employers and the workers have been instituted during the war. All of them which have attained any degree of success have been of the kind which bring workers and managers and capitalists together for discussion and examination of claims and grievances. The suggestion resulting is that the real solution of the industrial problem is likely to be found in genuine democratic control. Bureaucratic administration, on the one hand, and capitalistic control, on the other, lead to conflict. But the representation of all the classes involved in industry in the controlling body, and the placing of representatives of labor, as well as on those of administration and capital, of responsibilities for the prosperity and efficiency of industrial concerns and for a just division of its earnings, will lead to a better understanding between all the classes concerned.

The demand for nationalization may have arisen from the inability of the wage-earners to grasp the viewpoint of the employers and the owners of capital; the demand for unfettered individualistic control may result from blindness to the justice of the workers' case. If so, the application of the democratic principle of representative and responsible government to the industrial world may yet provide the way out of the impasse which threatens. — Manitoba Free Press.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

A Spring Message To The Canadian Public

THE Signing of the Armistice relieved some of the most pressing demands for shoes. But it did not, and it could not, increase the supply of leather. It released thousands of men from military duty, but only gradually will they find their way back into their old occupations. So, until an actual shortage of leather is turned into a surplus and the supply of labor becomes somewhere near normal, we cannot expect any marked change in conditions, and the price level must continue high.

Leather is not a product of manufacture, but of natural growth. It takes time to produce a skin, and no process of "speeding up" will hasten it. The demands of the war, and the destruction of war, so depleted the world's stock of leather that, as we told you last fall, it was a big problem to produce enough good quality shoes to go around. Now we must simply wait for a new supply of leather to grow.

Labor is another problem which will take time to solve. Many men, fresh from life spent largely out-of-doors, will not go back to factory work again. Many others bear honorable wounds which unfit them for it. Here again, we expect no immediate return to normal conditions. So in this, our Spring message to the Canadian public, we say:—

"Prudence in buying is still necessary. You can help to bring about more normal conditions if you will continue to exercise it. Buy for service and see that you get real value for your money.

"And now especially you should see that the manufacturer's trade-mark is stamped upon the shoes you buy. Unbranded shoes may be reduced in quality to make the price seem low—with the end of the war as a plausible excuse. But no manufacturer will jeopardize his reputation by stamping his trade-mark upon a product which he is ashamed to acknowledge. Remember this, and look for the trade mark. It is the best assurance you can have of real value."

A NEW PARTY

The passing of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Liberal chieftain, and the consequent disarrangement of opposition plans, has caused rumors of the formation of a permanent new party to recur. It is said a movement is under way to unite permanently the Liberals and Conservatives who came together to form Union government during the war, with Sir Robert Borden as leader.

Chances for such a move are brighter now than ever before. Liberals who joined the Unionist cause at the last general election did so from conviction, but although they deserted Laurier then they still held the aged leader in greatest affection and esteem. Had he lived and continued in his post as Liberal chief, no doubt many Liberal Unionists would ultimately have drifted back to the party fold. They would have done this for the old leader's sake. Now Laurier is gone, there is nothing to draw them back, nor is there any reason why they should go back if in the Unionist party they are able to find sufficient recognition of good Liberal principles to satisfy them.

Without doubt there is a grand opportunity lying just ahead for a Unionist party. While in both Conservative and Liberal parties there are some fine old traditions, there is also record of much that is objectionable to the people as they view public affairs and political parties today. A new party would have no sins of the past to answer for, nor would it be hampered by old party alignments and entanglements. It would have a chance to blaze trails along new and popular ways of national endeavor and lead in movements which are today of first importance in the minds of the people.

Such a new party would attract support and arouse enthusiasm. It would be assured of time in power long enough to demonstrate its ability to perform as well as to promise, and doing this it would have no cause to fear its critics. The people, who care less today for party than at any previous time in history, would be with it. It may never happen, but The Herald confesses it would be glad to welcome such a move. After all, principles are of greater value than parties, and no party can lay claim to a monopoly of principles. If the leaders in the Unionist government should take it into their heads to permanently unite forces it would mean a party embodying the best of both old parties in the way of principles; generally speaking, a most interesting experiment.—Calgary Herald.

REPATRIATING THE SOLDIER

Australia has created a department of repatriation for her returning soldiers. At its head is a member of the cabinet. Soldiers who need pensions are pensioned. The department provides artificial limbs, employment and allotment of land. All of the interests of the returned soldier are handled through this one authoritative and responsible agency.

Canada and New Zealand have adopted a similar scheme of repatriation. One agency alone cares for the returned soldier.

But our American soldier has no such experience. The president was confident of the sufficiency of the bureaus and departments already organized. His confidence was bad judgment. The American soldier needs a guide book to find out what his privileges are and a map to find out where to apply for them. After application he must be possessed of interminable patience and a crowbar if he expects action.

There are, for example, seven different bureaus and departments to which a wounded American soldier may have to apply. They are not coordinated, although some of the bureaus have made attempts at cooperation. No one is responsible. No one head can be praised or blamed for good or bad results. The soldier looking for his rights will lose himself in the bureaucratic corridors where half of the employees are busy unwinding red tape from the others, and finally go out with a half bushel of indeterminate letters and a grudge against the government.

The government is trying to do many services for the returned soldier. It is trying after a fashion to make its efforts known. A much less pretentious effort rightly organized will benefit the soldier more than the greatest public generosity surrounded as it is with the thick fog of bureaucratic uncertainty and delay.—Chicago Tribune.

MARCH AND APRIL DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

It sure pays to advertise even if the snow does pile up in front of your store. People will climb over the snow drifts if you have the goods. On Feb. 22, known across the line as George's Birthday, from 17 o'clock to 19 o'clock people could be seen hurrying to the stores and back home again. Then the old historic burg looked like a deserted village in the grip of a howling blizzard, and for the last seven days it has blown and snowed and howled as it never done before in the history of the oldest old timer. It blew the false roof off the Elk hotel, the storm doors and some of the windows, almost tore the whole front out of the Elk Meat Market and did blow the tenderloin steaks, rib-roasts and mutton chops into the Aberdeen Tea Gardens. It filled the Rapid Fire Restaurant with the beautiful and One Lung Sam burned both his hands firing up the stove to keep from freezing the cream puffs ordered for the Sunshine Society's fortnightly dance, which had to be postponed on account of the storm. It blew harder every day than it did the day before to try and break the record. Friday, Feb. 28, was the worst and the wind doubled the big false front of the Elk hotel over like a pine-cat rolling over a log. On Saturday, March 1, at about 10 o'clock it calmed down and life was once more worth living, and Jim Thistlebeak says the commercial traveller that passed through here on Friday afternoon when the storm was at its worst and told Jack Gates of the King Edward Hotel, Fernie, that he saw a robin on Fred Roo's verandah, is a dam liar.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thompson, of Cranbrook, were in Elko several days during the storm, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Birnie.

Mrs. J. N. Hueston, of Nelson is visiting Mrs. Jim McKee, Kilmarnock Castle, College avenue, Elko, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter F[illegible] of the Sunkist Orchards, Roosville, gave a delightful supper and dance last week in honor of Miss Gilmore, of Toronto, who is visiting friends at Nelson, Fernie, Cranbrook and the Valley, and the beauty and chivalry of the Valley assembled to do honor to what turned out to be one of the most delightful social events of the winter, Miss Gilmore having made fast friends while some people would be getting acquainted, and takes to western life and hospitality like a duck to water. Mr. and Mrs. Foster came to the Valley from Kenora, Ont., known to old timers as Rat Portage, and are great entertainers and can change the bitter cups of tears into the mellow wine of laughter. The house was daintily but effectively decorated to best suit the occasion. Prof. C. Ferguson's stringed orchestra was engaged for the evening and put the Go in the tango music they played. The supper provided was a dream of delight and as delicious as nector and ambrosia, the lemon meringues would melt in your mouth, the layer cakes, five and six storied castles of succulent delight, faraded with rich and buttery dressing, the whipped cream snowy and stiff, and the coffee, boys oh boys! something like your mother often tried to make, but couldn't. It was a pleasure excursion that will be long remembered by all those who were fortunate enough to be there, and we believe that when Miss Gilmore goes back to Toronto, her heart will be in these mountains. Songs were sung and toasts drank, and the dawn was breaking over the Valley before the guests had all departed.

Jim Thistlebeak says some women have no more brains than a baked bean, and never think of listening to their husbands until he begins to talk in his sleep.

If you don't subscribe for this paper borrow it from some one that does. You can't afford to miss reading the Elko notes because after you have read them you won't give a hang if it does snow. Remember you can worry yourself a big lot, but you can't build a happy home on on the lot.. Old man Simpson, of Kamloops, who put Cranbrook on the map, used to say, "Sell your hammer and buy a horn," and Bert Beattie used to say, "Every knock's a boost, keep knocking," while Jim Thistlebeak says, "There is one place we can bear a boil and smile—on the other fellow's neck." Never ask a man who gave him his black eye; nobody gave it to him, he probably had to fight hard to get it. The optimist sees the doughnut; the pessimist sees the hole. Cheer up; there's a good time coming.

Jim Thistlebeak says, if the Fernie Free Press is any criterion to go by, men in Fernie must have swapped their back bone for a hame strap, and the ladies, (God Bless Them) are better able to handle that Alien question than the men, or District 18, whoever in Hades they are. Those men who have been overseas several years, and through hell, absolute undiluted hell, should have some say about the Alien filling his pockets with Canadian gold. These boys that have been through the bloody shambles and been prisoners of war in Germany, should have some say about deporting every Bolshevik and Alien enemy P. D. Q.

SAINT LOUIS FUR EXCHANGE BUYS DIRECT FROM TRAPPER

Due to complaints being brought to the notice of the St. Louis Fur Exchange, 7th & Chestnut Streets, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A., of unsatisfactory grading of furs as made by some of the advertising fur houses of that market, where in January over ten million dollars worth of furs were sold, they are now also receiving shipments of furs from the trapper direct, and are recognized and registered under license P.B.F. 30 with the U. S. War Trade Board and all of the Collectors of Customs, thus insuring free passage of furs when addressed to them with the words "Raw Furs of Canadian Origin" on the package or shipping tag. Their advertisement appears on page four.

A LIQUIDATOR, NOT A LEADER

Comedy laughs and tragedy weeps at the choice of D. D. Mackenzie as temporary successor to the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the leadership of the Opposition at Ottawa.

The idea that D. D. Mackenzie, M.P., should recognize himself as a Liberal is a joke surpassed in rich rollicking humor by the idea that an Opposition of racialists, clericals and corporationists should recognize Mr. Mackenzie as a Liberal leader.

British House of Lords is not, and never was, the abode of a more finished specimen of the typical Tory devotee to the pretentions of a state church and the privileges of the corporations than the new leader of the Liberal party at Ottawa. The professed Toryism of Lord Lansdowne is not more destitute of sympathy with every ideal of a true and genuine Liberal party than is the professed Liberalism of D. D. Mackenzie.

The choice of Mr. Mackenzie is a comedy and also a tragedy. The tragic side of that choice is revealed in the doom of a suffering country. Canada has to pay at the rate of $7,000 per session for the gifts of vanity and verbosity that D. D. Mackenzie can bring to the leadership of the Opposition at Ottawa.

The Mackenzie leadership is the Ottawa Opposition's confession of bankruptcy rather than its declaration of solvency. The choice of Mr. D. D. Mackenzie is proof that What The Opposition Needs Is A Liquidator, Not A Leader. Political parties require their leaders to be either useful or ornamental. The Opposition leadership of D. D. Mackenzie, M.P., will differ from the Parliamentary career of a fine old Cape Breton Bourbon, if the Mackenzie leadership proves to be either useful or ornamental.—Toronto Telegram.

GREAT BRITAIN PROTECTS .... ITS INDUSTRIES

Realizing that every time one of its factories is closed down a number of men are thrown out of employment and that every time an industry prospers sufficiently to take on additional hands, the unemployment problem is proportionately relieved, Great Britain has determined to protect its manufacturing industry against dangerous competition from other countries during the post-war struggle for trade. It has adopted an embargo as a sure means of protection. This embargo became effective Saturday and forbids the import to Great Britain, except under special license, of a long list of manufactures, of which the following are some:

"Machine tools and machinery for working in both metal and wood, stoves, manufactures of aluminum, wearing apparel, baskets and basketware, metal baths, cartridges, cement, fatty acids, fire-extinguishers, guns, carbines, rifles, hats, bonnets, lawnmowers, linen yarns, manufactures thereof, mats, matting, mops, oilcloth, perfumery and toilet preparations, photographic apparatus, pictures, engravings, photographs, plated and gilt ware, revolvers, pistols, salt, sewing machines, skins, furs, soap, spectacles eye-glasses, clocks, watches, or time-recording instruments of all kinds and parts thereof, wringers, mangles, weighing machines, scales, balances of all descriptions, vacuum cleaners.

An additional list of embargoed articles becomes effective July 1.

War conditions taught the people of Great Britain that they could manufacture at home and with British labor millions of pounds worth of goods which were formerly purchased from foreign countries. Now that the war is over they intend to keep these new industries and also to protect their manufacturing industry generally against the possibility of having to curtail output, reduce staffs and thus bring about a general condition of unemployment. — Nelson News.

"Do you enjoy educative films?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the old-fashioned man. "It's a positive relief to me to see pictures of a great industrial plant in operation, assured that no villain is going to appear on the scene and concoct a fiendish plot to get the fair heroine caught in the machinery."

SEES SLUMP IN MINING OF COAL

"This year coal mines of the northwest will not operate 40 per cent of the time, which means a heavy expense for operators," said James S. Ramage, head of the Continental Fuel company and Hawkeye Fuel Co.

"For some time there has been serious overproduction of coal in the Canadian and other districts from which Spokane receives its supply. About 80 per cent of the steam coal used here comes from the mines of Canada, and a serious situation has developed in that country as evidenced by a recent report issued by the workmen's compensation commission in the definite statement that cost of labor in producing coal is $2.60 a ton which is above previous calculations and more than in other fields with which Canada competes.

"A recent editorial in a Calgary paper says: 'It has been estimated from time to time in a general and unscientific manner that the labor cost of producing domestic coal was from $1.60 to $1.80 a ton. The coal industry in this province is not on a very sound footing, and the outlook is far from reassuring. The reason for the high labor cost is that the industry is sessional. The work is carried on not more than six months during the year, and in some parts less. It seems that there are too many mines in operation in the province.

"'There are sufficient mines open in the province and sufficient machinery to produce five times as much coal as will be mined this year. Last year 70 mines closed and 71 new mines opened. The opening of the new mines made the problem more difficult. With one-half of the mines in operation working a greater part of the season the situation would be much improved. It is difficult for the government to prevent the opening of new coal mines but unless something of that nature is done the coal industry will be in serious danger.'"—

ALL ENEMIES MUST GO

Last Sunday afternoon about fifty prominent citizens attended a meeting in the council chamber, called by President A. G. Bonnallie of the Reconstruction Committee, to be in the nature of a joint meeting representing the city council, the local branch of the G.W.V.A. and the Reconstruction Committee. At the outset Mr. Bonnallie stated that as chairman he would confine the discussion to only those respresenting the executives of the foregoing respective bodies, as by permitting indiscriminate debate no progress would be accomplished. The sole purpose of the gathering was with a view to unanimously deciding upon the draft form of a memorial to be forwarded to the Dominion government relative to the deportation of enemy aliens. He urged in the consideration of this important problem that petty personalities be set aside and same considered from a broad national spirit.

This controversy arose out of a resolution from Vancouver city council being forwarded to the council here for endorsement, and upon it being presented it was temporarily tabled. This action brought forth a protest from the G.W.V.A. and a very large delegation waited upon the council at its last regular meeting, requesting that the matter be dealt with expeditiously and that the Vancouver resolution be unqualifiedly endorsed. Upon that occasion Mayor Uphill went into the question very exhaustively and assured the delegation that it had not been the intention of the council to indefinitely delay this matter as had been intimated, but that in view of the grave importance of the matter as it affected this city and district on account of the cosmopolitan complexion of the population residing herein, it had been deferred for earnest consideration.

Subsequently the council had supported the Vancouver resolution in part, that is to say by defining the term "enemy alien" and modifying the text of the original resolution by endorsing the deportation of all undesirable enemy aliens "who by word or action have proved or may be proved to have been detrimental to the interests of Canada."

This did not meet with the approval of the G.W.V.A. or the unanimous sanction of all private citizens, and with the desire to align matters in more uniform manner the meeting was called.

A copy of the memorial to be forwarded from Vancouver to Ottawa was presented and discussion on same followed, in which Mayor Uphill, Major G. G. Moffatt, S. Herchmer, Lieut. D. Mitchell, Lieut. W. J. Claridge, A. B. Trites, F. C. Lawe and several others participated.

Mr. Herchmer introduced a motion to endorse the memorial in its entirety comprising seven clauses with one exception, namely that clause 7 regarding naturalized enemy aliens did not impose sufficient stringent demands upon this classification to entitle them to continue their domiciles within Canada. He pointed out that naturalization of aliens was not always prompted by their desire to become loyal citizens of this the country of their adoption, but more commonly it was for pecuniary and purely personal reasons. Based upon this the amendment to the memorial was: "That all naturalized enemy aliens, and particularly those of German nationality, be deported forthwith unless they could demonstrate to a properly constituted tribunal that during the period of the war they had by act and by deed proved themselves to have been loyal citizens of the Dominion of Canada and to the cause of the Allies."

This feature was debated extensively. Mayor Uphill took the view that by placing such onus upon the naturalized aliens it would invoke injustices on innocent ones. Moreover, by demanding unlimited deportation of unnaturalized aliens of the laboring class who had not been able to avail themselves of the opportunity to become naturalized on account of their limited knowledge of this procedure or their inability to acquire same, and thereby would be forced to leave when he believed from amongst this class there had not been the dangerous element promoting treasonable practices as would more likely be found emanating from those more learned; some of whom no doubt shielded their real purpose under the cloak of naturalization citizenship.

Lieut. Mitchell, one of the delegates from the G.W.V.A., admitted there was no doubt but that in some remote cases there was the possibility of slight injustices occurring, but this was a matter where hair-splitting could not be tolerated. He maintained that the suggested amendment was quite satisfactory to the returned veterans. They were insistent in the enactment of legislation whereby, firstly, All interned enemy aliens must go. Secondly, uninterned enemy aliens were to be divided into two classes, i.e., naturalized and unnaturalized. These latter without question must be deported, while in the case of the naturalized enemy alien, the onus was upon him to prove his loyalty to Canada and the Empire during the period of the war, not making it incumbent upon the state to prove his disloyalty to British interests before he was deported, which would be infinitely more difficult to do.

Lieut. Claridge supplemented this sentiment by stating that the returned soldiers were determined to rid this country of all undesirable enemy aliens, and based upon the Vancouver testimonial they were asking the loyal British subjects of this city to lend their support in the removal of this menace by effecting their expulsion through constitutional means.

J. F. Rudnicki made a forcible address which he preluded by emphasizing that he did not wish to be interpreted as speaking in defence of enemy aliens, for whom he had nothing but contempt, but he desired an expression from the meeting as to the status of the Poles and Czecho-Slovaks. He stated there were thousands of these nationalities distributed in countries outside that of their birth. In the United States there were about four million Poles, while in Canada there were about 75,000, and in each of these countries there were approximately the same number of Czecho-Slovaks. Upon the declaration of war all these were considered subjects of enemy countries, but since 1914 conditions in this regard had materially altered. No one required to be a university scholar to know that the Poles were bitter enemies of the three empires, Germany, Austria and Russia, and owing to the oppression from the domination of these powers the race had migrated world-wide. The speak-

NEWS OF THE LEGISLATURE

Victoria, March 10.—The holding of a provincial prohibition convention at Vancouver has turned general attention to the work of the legislative public accounts committee which at the instance of opposition members has been delving into the question of the audit of the prohibition department accounts. Controller General Mouat was before the committee last week and in reply to questions put to him by Opposition Leader Bowser admitted that, although W. C. Findlay took office in November, 1917, and the fiscal year ended on the following March, there had been no audit of his books, nor any inventory of his stock until December of 1918. As a result of the audit and inventory, belated though they were, the scandal leading to the dismisal of Findlay was discovered. It came about through the finding of a copy of a letter in Findlay's records, said the controller general. Mr. Bowser was about to question the controller general as to how long after the finding of this letter copy, Findlay had been dismissed and also as to some of the circumstances surrounding the letter in order to clear up the suspicion of higher-ups, but the committee majority barred the way to further inquiry, taking the ground that the committee could not conduct a prohibition inquiry in view of the decision of Mr. Speaker Keen when he declined to accept a motion for a select committee for the purpose because it meant the expenditure of public money and only the government could bring in such a motion. It was also contended by the Liberal members of the committee that the probe of the public accounts could only extend to the accounts for the fiscal year 1917-18, and not after that date,

The conservatives promptly proposed to get the scope of the committee widened so that its inquiry could be brought up to date. Controller General Mouat said that, despite his own suggestions, Findlay was permitted to go ahead with a set of books different from those used in other departments. Finally, after the audit and the subsequent scandal, Mouat put in a system of counter check books in the government liquor stores in order that there would be some tab

ELK LUMBER CO. LOSES CASE

His Lordship Mr. Justice Clement this week at Vancouver handed down judgment in the suit of Baskin & Stedman vs. the Elk Lumber Co., which was tried at the special assize court held here last Decmeber.

This case arose from a fire which was set out by the defendant company last April ofeupht prrose lb.... any last April for the purpose of burning up accumulated slashings in the vicinity of their newly constructed camps. This cleaning up process had continued uneventfully until April 24, when the wind started driving the fire towards the camps of the defendant company. Their entire crew of men was then placed at work to prevent the fire from destroying the camps. About noon the wind changed, increasing in velocity, diverting the progress of the fire towards the property of the plaintiffs, who were engaged in manufacturing fence posts and poles on a logged over limit adjoining that of the Elk Lumber Co. near Hosmer. It spread, however, to this property and destroyed a quantity of cut fence posts and also a quantity of fallen timber from which posts and poles could have been manufactured. The defendant company contended they used their entire crew and did everything possible to prevent the fire from spreading, but that with the high wind which prevailed it was impossible to extinguish same before it reached the adjoining property. The plaintiff alleges that the company were negligent and that they should have constructed a fire-guard along their boundary before setting out the original fires.

They claimed damages to the extent of eight cents a post and an amount of $500 for stuff burned on the 87 acres of land which was fire swept. His Lordship found in favor of the plaintiffs but held that their claim as above was somewhat exaggerated. Eight cents per post in the bush was an excessive rate, while the estimate for unmanufactured material destroyed by the fire was far too high. He fixed these items at $300 and $656.25 respectively and ordered judgment entered inclusive of these and other items claims to the amount of $1350.00, which he specified as "good measure," together with costs.

In addition to this judgment by joint application of both parties, His Lordship was asked to render a finding on the question of negligence should same hereafter be held to be material. He held that from the conflicting testimony in this regard, the Elk Lumber Co. did not take all possible precautions to prevent the spreading of the fire in the direction of the plaintiffs' premises, "For the very likely reason," the judgment reads, "which Mr. Heaphy (manager of the defendant company) somewhat frankly stated, namely, that there was in his opinion little or nothing of value to burn in that direction."

In this case there was no question "of an act of God," or damnum fatale (fatal damage, i.e., damage caused by a fortifuous event or inevitable accident in which the defendant company would not have been liable). An appeal may probably be taken on this case in view of its vital importance to the lumbering industry generally in this province, inasmuch as it is very essential that cleaning-up operations by burning the "slashings" be carried on in order to safeguard or not expose valuable merchantable timber to unnecessary danger through accidental fires originating in these accumulations from previous lumbering operations. Whereas if companies are to be held liable for all fires started by them it will tend to minimize protective operations of this description and subsequently create a permanent menace to timbered areas adjoining those on which active operations are being carried on.

WATER & LIGHT RATES TO GO UP

City council met last evening with the Mayor in the chair and a full attendance of aldermen.

Minutes of the meeting of Feb. 27 were adopted as read.

A letter was read from the Canadian Financial Trust Co., of Vancouver offering to handle any bonds which the city might have for sale. The Annex Sewer debentures are the only ones now in possession of the city and it was deemed inadvisable to offer them at the present time.

A letter from A. I. Fisher brought up the question of the north boundary of the city, which it appears is now in some doubt owing to the fact that different engineers have not agreed on the location of the line. The matter was left over until the next meeting.

Several other communications of a minor nature were quickly disposed of.

On regular motion the mortgage on the property of Wm. Minton, Lot 2, Block 70, for $300, was released by the city, Bill having blown through with the coin.

The annual report of the auditors was presented and showed that the city had spent approximately $5800 more in 1918 than the estimated revenue. This deficit was caused by the flu epidemic, and had it not been for that unfortunate occurrence the city expenditure would have been approximately $2000 less than the estimated amount. However, if the provincial government goes fifty-fifty with the city on flu expenses the overdraft for 1918 will be reduced by approximately $3500. For the first time in many years the school estimates for the year were exceeded, but only by $559.00, considerable of which was the result of the defeat of the new high school by-law. The city has incurred an overdraft of approximately $6,500 for the past two years (providing that the provincial government pays half the flu expenses) and the council started in to find ways and means of wiping out this deficit. It did not take them very long to decide that owing to the greatly increased cost in the production of electric light and power that the rates should be raised, and forthwith, starting on April 1, the price of all electric light and power will be increased 1 cent per kilowatt. Then notice of motion was given that at the next meeting a by-law to amend the water schedule would be introduced, and the council resloved itself into a committee of the whole to consider what increases should be made. The council seemed to be of the opinion that an increase of approximately 10 per cent should be made on all water rates and a by-law covering this will be put through at the next meeting.

It took the council only about two minutes to decice that a tax sale be held on October 8th.

The city clerk was authorized to insert an advertisement in both of the local papers, asking the ratepayers to come through with their 1918 taxes, as the city needs the money and only 50 per cent of the 1918 taxes have as yet been paid.

The city council authorized a new plan regarding water and light bills. As soon as possible the old plan will be discontinued, and the meter reader will fill in the bill with the amount due at the time of reading the meter, on which bill the water rate is also recorded, and will leave the bill at the time of reading the meter. This will save the city approximately $250 a year in postage and stationery.

A number of accounts were passed and council adjourned.

The first good news to come out of the Dominion Trust liquidation for three years was contained in an official announcement by the attorney-general of British Columbia. The liquidator has decided to accept depositors' claims on a 50 per cent basis rather than continue the present litigation, which promises to be almost endless.

Capt. F. S. Patty, Ex-Passenger Agent For Northern Pacific, Discusses Former Troubles.

Nearly everybody in Knoxville, Tenn., especially railroad people, know Captain F. S. Patty, for twelve years district passenger agent for the Northern Pacific railroad, with local offices in Chattanooga, and general offices in St. Paul, Minn.

On account of generally failing health, Capt. Patty was forced to discontinue active work and for the past few years has been making his home in Knoxville, where he numbers his friends by his acquaintances. He is a kind, genial gentleman of the old school, and is beloved by all who know him. The following interesting statement was made by him in person to the Tanlac representative.

"I am 69 years old and always enjoyed good health up to about six year ago, when I suffered a nervous breakdown and my general health gradually failed me. My principal trouble was indigestion and catarrh, but my whole system seemed to be out of shape. My condition finally got so bad I couldn't sleep at night and always after eating I would suffer so from indigestion and heart-burn that I felt just like there was a coal of fire in my stomach. My hearing and vision were also affected. I consulted several doctors here in Knoxville and other cities and they helped me considerably and I finally got so I could go around, but somehow I just couldn't feel right and could not sleep at night, which made me awfully nervous and nothing I would eat seemed to agree with me.

"I began reading about this Tanlac when you first came here, but did not decide to try the medicine until I talked with a friend of mine who had actually used it. He said it was the best thing he had ever taken, and that was sufficient proof for me.

"I have just finished the first bottle and came here this morning, not only to buy a second bottle, but to tell you just what it has done for me. I began enjoying my meals from the first few drops. My nervousness is gone and I can sleep like a child and always wake up in the mornings ready for breakfast and feeling refreshed. I am very fond of onions, but was almost afraid to eat them, because they always disagreed with me so; I could taste them for hours afterwards. I ate one for dinner the other day and it agreed with me perfectly and I fe't no bad effects whatsoever. I tell you you I am beginning to feel like a different man and am always going to keep this Tanlac on hand. It has done me more good than anything else in the medicine line I have ever taken. I certainly do recommend it to my friends. It is really remarkable."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman.

HORRORS OF BOLSHEVISM

Dr. E. J. Dillon defines Bolshevism as the coma of the many and the frenzy of the few. Its latest results are described in reports that have reached the British government from British subjects that have returned from Russia. Starvation is killing off the inhabitants by thousands. They declare — as it has been maintained all along by those who had any knowledge of the situation—that the Russian problem has become a question of common humanity. Possibly no country in the history of the world has ever reached such a pitch of degradation and misery as is exemplified in the sorrows of Russia today. No problem arising out of the war is more tragic or pathetic than the hopeless straits into which chaos and anarchy have plunged millions of the people at the behest f fanatics, whose motive is solely class warfare.

With the exception of the paid emissaries of Lenine and Trotzky, sent abroad to foment the campaign of disorganization, not one person who has come out of Russia has been able to tell of anything but ruin and destruction within recent months. Both foreigners and Russians themselves invariably paint a lurid picture of the prevalent conditions. Railway communication in bolshevist Russia, except for military purposes, is almost at a full stop. Where vodka cannot be secured, naptha, benzine and kerosene are durnk by the Bolshevist followers with maddening effects. Travelers from Russia say indescribable hardsips are inflicted on those who will not subscribe to the Lenine doctrines. The press is muzzled and freedom of speech is at an end. What is stirring the Russian people more than anything else is the persecution of the church. In Moscow, churches have been turned into theatres. The Strastnoi Monastery, perhaps the most sacred and famous of any in the land, has been changed into a dancing hall where harlots and profligates hold revel. Propaganda, and even violence, are being used to destroy the influence of the church among the peasants.

The Soviet government through its local councils, has striven to nationalize women, but so far with almost complete failure, because such feeling against the proposal has been aroused. Details regarding the manner in which women are treated will not bear recapitulation in public print, according to the consensus of the opinion of eyewitnesses of some of the shocking scenes that have been enacted. Chinese and Lettish soldiers constitute the executioners appointed by the Bolsheviki and circumstantial stories are told of wholesale massacres of almost daily occurrence. In short, Russia is being "cruelly and wantonly done to death" by the followers of Lenine, and, as the latest arrivals from Russia point out, it is the duty of humanity to come to her rescue.

The facts we have given are collated from a series of dispatches of recent date. They are certainly sufficient to warrant Mr. Bonar Law having told the British House of Commons that there are now very few persons in the United Kingdom who have any illusions with regard to Bolshevism. Mr. Law says something must be done, but he does not say any decision has been reached. Yet the Eastern Problem must be solved if the League of Nations is to succeed. We read in a Berlin dispatch that the German government has made a proposal that the soldiers and workmen's council should be made an organic part of the government system under the new constitution. If this is done it is the prelude to the spread of Bolshevist doctrines in Germany, for any representative government which delegates any of its powers to self-constituted authorities is digging its grave.

This is a time when the Peace Conference is deciding boundary questions and discussing what indemnities Germany must pay. While Bolshevism reigns in Russia no boundary decisions affecting eastern states can be permanent, and with conditions as they are in Germany it will be impossible to make that country pay the indemnities that are to be demanded. Bolshevism is the insurmountable obstacle to a League of Nations and until it is removed there can be no peace in the world. In the meantime from the humanitarian standpoint the pressing question is what can be done to help the starving millions of Russia. The inaction of the Allies is inflicting a terrible scourge on humanity. The whole thoughts and energies of the Peace Conference should be concentrated on the Eastern Problem, for until a permanent solution can be found for this there is no use crying "Peace, Peace, where there is no Peace." — Colonist.

EDUCATION THROUGH MOVIES

Mr. Harvey O'Higgins, formerly of Toronto, who has made a name in the United States as a writer of stories and plays, has an article in the New Republic on the moving picture show. He says that they are educative, because the education of the sympathetic emotions is as valuable as tuition in mathematics, or any acquisition of practical knowledge in the common schools. It is by the quickening of imaginative sympathy that the beast is socialized. "The man who reads anything is by so much superior to the man who reads nothing, isn't he? Let him read only the silliest fiction, he will live more broadly than he who reads none. Let Third avenue go to any impossible melodrama, and it cannot escape the ameliorating touch of imagination. Let America go to the movies, and America will be a better place than when it stays home."

Alowance must be made for exaggeration which lends itself to piquancy. There are novels that are better not read, plays that are better not heard or seen. Yet there is a good deal of truth in what Mr. O'Higgins says. Any decent play or novel does educate the sympathies, and besides, as he says, it is "a door of escape into the dream." We laugh at the craving of the "tired business man" for a play that will make him forget his worries, yet men and women do need some "kind nepenthe" that will dispel care and relieve monotony.

Travel, with change of scenes and people, is sometimes prescribed for mental and physical ills. But travel is expensive, while the novel and the movie are cheap, and perform the same function. The dingy walls of the little hall bedroom fade away as the novel is opened, and up spring palaces, ships.

"Antres vast and deserts idle;
Rough quarries, rocks, and hills whose heads touch heaven."

Instead of loneliness there is the society of heroes, fair ladies, jesters and black-browed ruffians who exist merely for the purpose of being frustrated. The dream life is illuminated by loyal friendship and heroism

The theatres and the moving pictures also afford solace and society, a way of escape from dullness and worry, an education in sympathy. No doubt the plays and novels differ widely in merit, and there is vast room for improvement. The best literature is not always chosen. One part of the education given in our primary schools should be teaching children what to read, giving them the key to the treasure of public libraries. There is a vast field open to the moving picture. The emotional and the humorous need not be neglected, but they could be made more educational without losing their interest.

COLLEGE ENTRANCE BY PSYCHOLOGICAL TEST

The old terrors of entrance examinations and "conditions" will disappear from Columbia University to be replaced by psychological tests. Princeton looks on and in The Alumni Weekly calls the departure "interesting, not to say startling." The new method is announced to be applied at the beginning of the academic year next autumn. In place of written examinations will be the Binet mental tests, "the idea being to measure the candidate's intelligence rather than his knowledge." Prof. Jones, of the Columbia department of admissions, is thus quoted in the newspapers:

"These tests are a development of those formulated a dozen and more years ago in France by Alfred Binet for the discovery of mentally retarded children. Much constructive work has been done in this country, particularly at the Leland Stanford Junior University, Havard and other institutions. It has been found that many preparatory and high-school students can be coached to pass college entrance examinations whose intelligence does not class them as good material for further education.

"In our requirements for admission to Columbia College are included the applicant's health record, his character and promise of development, and his school record, and these will be embraced in the new requirements. The most radical departure will be the entire doing away with the old-style examinations that were given to establish the applicant's knowledge of the subjects required for admission to college. This will be covered by his school record, and the psychological tests will demonstrate whether he is qualified to continue his schooling."

LUKEWARM SUPPORT

The bill to provide for direct legislation is not meeting with any great favor and might readily be among those measures which annually pass into innocuous desuetude at the end of each session. The support of government followers is purely perfunctory and it is hard to see any real enthusiasm for the bill in any quarter. Premier Oliver has not championed the cause and we would like to suggest to him, in view of the apathy of public opinion that it is a subject that might well be left for decision at the next general election in eighteen months or two years' time. If the electors are to be empowered to initiate legislation themselves they should at least have the opportunity of saying if they desire this right, with the consequent expense it adds to the cost of government.

We realize and can appreciate the motive that inspired the Premier in introducing this legislation. He wishes to keep faith with a promise made by the late Premier Brewster, who, during the last general election campaign, made direct legislation one of the planks in his platform. But we maintain, that Premier Oliver will be keeping equal faith if he allows this matter to be the subject of a plebiscite. After all, it is the people who will have to avail themselves of the initiative and referendum, and they should have the right to say if they want such an opportunity. In speaking of direct legislation we would not like to use the language employed by the member for Newcastle which was perhaps hyperbolical, but there are very sound arguments against its introduction in this province. Premier Oliver will offend no one, and at the same time will be able to keep faith with the memory of his predecessor in office, if he decides to submit the whole question to a plebiscite at the next provincial election.—Colonist.

Poor Kidney Action Brings Fatal Results

It is well for everyone to realize that from the moment the kidneys fail to remove the poisons from the blood stream, these poisons accumulate and set up the infections that cause disease.

What are the indications which give warning of this approaching suffering?

Here are a few of the symptoms. That pain in the back, dizziness, swollen joints or ankles, painful urination or brick dust deposits. At the first attack of any of these troubles turn to the old tried and tested kidney remedy —Gin Pills. Take them as directed and you will ward off chronic troubles.

Do not misunderstand the name Gin Pills. How they came to be called Gin Pills is this:

Gin has long been considered a remarkable curative agent for kidney or bladder trouble. This virtue comes from one ingredient alone in Gin and NOT from the alcohol. That is why the beneficial ingredients in gin can be taken in pill form, without alcohol, and that is what you get when you use Gin Pills.

When you decide to try Gin Pills you are protected. Buy a box from any dealer for 50 cents. If you do not get genuine relief after taking them, all you have to do is ask for your money back and it will be returned.

This is certainly a generous offer; but we make it feeling that once you have tried Gin Pills and know the beneficial results they bring, you will continue to use and recommend them.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

"It's dood for me"

My escape has been something to be thankful for. Even today, a man who has been running a moving picture machine came into the hut and, after talking a while, went outside. Close to the hut he picked up a box and opened it out of curiosity. Then his hand was blown off and he was cut about the face and part of the finger of the other hand is missing. It must have been one of those traps left by the Boche. For months I have been living in the world of lives; we lived in the roar of guns and flash of machine-guns; but what we thought of was the saving of each other's lives and the lives and homes of those in America. We were the wall of living bodies between the living danger and the lives of those we loved. And we loved each other and helped each other to live that there might be no breach in that living wall through which the enemy might enter. Once we found a cross by the wayside. The Boche had torn the Christ from off the cross and replaced him by an American soldier. There were bayonet thrusts through his wrists and legs and these with a rope around the middle and another about his neck held him to the cross. He was shot full of holes. It might have been you. It might have been some one else I loved back in America, if the Germans could cross the Atlantic. And we thought of these things and fought on up through the Argonne Forest.—Leslie's.

A NEW WORLD

(Christian Science Monitor)

Why, does any person imagine, for instance, Rome was so determined to maintain her hold on Northern Africa? And why does anybody suppose that Spain declared the Pacific a Spanish lake and forbade men to trade with the Manoas of the West? Few countries have suffered a much harder fate than Belgium suffered in the Great War. But, if the desire to protect the western flank of the Hamburg to Baghdad railway led the Germans through Belgium into northern France, what was it that took the Belgians themselves into the Congo State, and permitted atrocities of the government of King Leopold? Every country in the world has pages in its history it does not particularly want to see illuminated too brightly. And this is because nations, like governments, have passions which they have been content to see those governments satisfy. Only a day or two ago the prime minister of the United Kingdom pointed out to the miners that war could scarcely be said to have ceased if the military struggle in France and Flanders was only to give place to an economic one in Lanark and South Wales. If, therefore, the world is to take that full advantage of the League of Nations which the President of the United States proposes, it must not be content to imagine that harmony is to be reached by the suppression of standing armies or by the scrapping of ironclads. It must come to realize that peace and good will can only be attained as men learn that righteousness is not attained through vain oblations but through the substitution of the Mind of Christ for the carnal mind.

REPATRIATION NEWS

Repatriation has become a household word throughout Canada and every centre of population is localizing its own problem of demobilizing returned men and war workers and readjusting economic conditions.

News from Winnipeg says that the Manitoba Legislature is dealing with seven special bills aiming to protect the rights of war veterans.

Elgin County, Ontario, with the aid of the city of St. Thomas, is planning to erect a memorial for the soldiers who fought and fell. A hospital seems to be the most popular proposal.

The Great War Veterans Association in St. Johns, Newfoundland, aims to raise $10,000 to give to Sergeant Ricketts, V.C.

A committee has been appointed from the patriotic workers of Trail, B.C., to consider the erection of a memorial building for Trail veterans. It is suggested that the memorial take the form of a local club of the Y.M.C.A.

At four different points in the town of Bothwell, Ontario, memorial arches have been erected. These are decorated with evergreens and at night are lighted with electricity to welcome returning soldiers.

Chatham is agitating to have an electric welcome sign put up at the Grand Trunk station and also the building of an arch on Queen Street leading to the station.

The Secretary of the Toronto Branch of the Manufacturers Association says that the number of applications for returned men from manufacturers is in excess of the supply. The Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Great War Veterans' Association are co-operating splendidly.

The town of Burlington and surrounding country will combine to erect a memorial for soldiers.

Five members of the British Columbia legislature have been appointed a committee to receive and consider schemes upon behalf of replacing soldiers in civil life.

The city of Victoria has made a grant of $500 to the Great War Veterans Club.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

FRIGHTFUL..!

Frightful! If anyone is inclined to doubt reports of the lust for cruelty of the Hun, let him read this extract from a letter that one of our readers has sent us. It is a letter from a brave man, Captain Malcolm Fraser, in active service with the Red Cross with the American Expeditionary Force in France. The writer is an artist of rare ability. He tells the truth in all the severity of plainness. His letter to an intimate friend contains the following, incredible as it may appear:

CROWE-SWORDS GIVES LECTURE

Capt. R. Crowe-Swords, recently of the staff of the Chief Public Representative, and seasoned veteran, he having served in the Imperial forces during the South African campaign, and in the early stages of the European conflict with the Northumberlands, and latterly with the 29th Batt. .CE.F., from Vancouver, delivered an illustrated lecture in the Isis theatre here on Monday evening under the auspices of the Provincial Executive of the G.W.V.A. The proceeds of this tour are for the purpose of creating an emergency fund for the widows and orphans of those who served in the Great War.

The lecture is indeed very interesting and educational. Over 125 slides are used and one is carried from the very front line enemy trenches back through the field hospital, clearing stations and base hospitals in "Blighty." Thence the voyage on the hospital ships to Canada and the method of rail transportation form Halifax to the various institutions wherein the disabled men are cared for until physically fit to prepare themselves for re-entry into civil life.

Capt. Crowe-Swords also elaborates his lecture with the humorous episodes, and by dealing with the atrocities committeed by the Germans upon the wounded, the prisoners and the non-combattants, and his description of these inhuman crimes are presented without reserve. Also the alien question is presented as from the standpoint of the returned soldier. These are classified in three groups, first the straight alien which includes all nationalities, ally and enemy. There is the unfriendly alien, and in this classification Mr. Crowe-Swords places the Italians residing in Canada who failed to register or respond when ordered to do so by their country and either return to their native land or enlist in the Canadian army. Then the Russians who have persistently spread propaganda in this country detrimental to the cause of the Allies since the fall of the Russian Empire, and also the Scandinavians, whom, to say the least, alleged the speaker, passively supported the cause of the enemy. In this third classification, the enemy alien within this province, according to official statistics, htere are 8500 undesirable, and in addition there are 22,000 questionable enemy aliens. He contended the returned solder would insist upon the deportation and expulsion from Canada of all the undesirable enemy aliens, the questionable and the unfriendly, and by removing these i would provide a means of absorbing into civil life a proportion of British Columbia's own returned soldiers, of whom there are 40,000 to come back.

The lecture covers the situation in details from all its phases, and the slides, particularly those dealing with vocational training, are exceedingly interesting, showing as they do the almost unlimited branches of training for which the opportunity is available and also the high degree of proficiency which the applicants are required to attain before they are permitted to enter the industrial field. An appeal, however, is made to employers of labor to study carefully the condition of the mind of the returned soldier and endeavor to tender him reasonably lenient concessions so that his shattered mental condition may not be further aggravated, but rather that he will be accorded treatment which will assist him in his complete physical and mental recovery.

Views are also shown of the many institutions throughout the Dominion wherein treatment is given for the numerous maladies with which the disabled soldier is afflicted.

Capt. Crowe-Swords continues his tour of the interior, going from here to Cranbrook and Creston, thence to Nelson, where he spoke on Thursday, March 13.

THINGS WE'D LIKE TO KNOW

If the gink who made that crack about "Man's Inhumanity to Man" did not intend it to apply to some of Fernie's young ladies.

If there is anybody who really likes to do business with an Assyrian.

If anyone ever got off anything nearer the truth than that old saying "The female of the species is more deadly than the male."

If the spotter who has been in town for the past week sizing up the morals of the community, reports to the Attorney General or A. I. Fisher, or does he prosecute on his own account. We may look forward in the near future to a large increase in police court fines.

If the individual who under the name of "Worker" attacked Mrs. G. G. Moffatt in last week's Ledger, really would like to see Gladstone Local run the city affairs. If said individual had thousands of dollars invested in business would he like to see that organization handling his business.

If the local Bolshevists really think they can curry favor with the returned men by following the tactics they are pursuing.

Why Billy Robson thinks he can disguise his literary talent by writing under a woman's name.

Why the druggists don't get busy and slash a few hours off the working timetable. A druggist does not seem to be happy unless he puts in about 18 hours a day.

If Editor Lawson ever gets fed up on that rot that he is peddling. It reminds us of a story that a compositor on the Orange Sentinel once told. He said that any time a typesetter could not make out the copy he just substituted "To Hell with the Pope." On the Ledger it is "To hell with the employer."

Why Sgt. Russell Ferguson and Sgt. Ky. Bryant are about the only two returned men who didn't pick off wives in England.

If it is the truth about that statement that a leading member of the Lord's Day Alliance got off at Vancouver the other day when he said that the city of Fernie is still about the worst town in Canada, in fact almost as bad as Dawson. According to this gentleman wine, women and cards are the main amusement in this burg. Most people here think this is a pretty law-abiding community and have been considering closing up the jail and law courts.

Why the city of Fernie goes to the expense of getting out an elaborate and costly financial statement every year, which not one person in a hundred understands, when a concise and simple statement of receipts and expenditures could be obtained for about one-tenth the price and answer the purpose just as well. The elaborate statement is a fine advt. for the auditors, whose names appear on every page, but it does not get the city anything.

If he really meant it. A resident of the Annex attempted to pull off a suicide stunt with a jack knife the other day owing to his failure to make his wife obey him. He was in the hospital for a few days, but is all right again. He was not nearly as persistent as the fellow who took three smashes at his face with a hatchet the other day at the coast and finally succeeded in bleeding to death.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Lethbridge city council will have to provide for an increase of $50,000 by taxation in 1919.

There seems to be a general rejoicing among the clerks over the shortening of their working hours. It will be somewhat of an inconvenience to the buying public for a little while but they will soon get used to it.

The final examinations for the graduating term at the Royal Naval College of Canada at Esquimalt, B. C., have resulted in a number of cadets qualifying for appointment as midshipmen in the Royal Canadian Navy. The list of successful candidates from the west are: A. C. Lee, Dawson City, Yukon; Harry Kingeley, Vancouver; William B. L. Holm, Victoria, B.C.

Charley Williams of Hosmer was summoned before Stipendiary Magistrate Hewat last week for having part of a bottle of liquor in his possession in a place other than a private dwelling house. Constable Hughes testified that he saw Williams put his bottle—or a similar one—under the sidewalk and some time after he says he found it there. Williams was convicted and fined fifty plunks. An appeal was immediately taken by Mr. Macneil on behalf of Williams on the ground that the bottle was not sufficiently identified according to Chief Justice Hunter's recent decision in the Gartshore case, with the result that the police have been advised by the Attorney General to discontinue the prosecution and to return the fine.

The Lethbridge Herald says: J. O. Jones, assistant to the director of coal operations in the province, is a visitor in the city. Mr. Jones states that quite a few miners are out of work and the prospects are going to be slow in regard to the coal output until towards the end of the summer owing to the markets being supplied. There are, he says, too many coal mines in the province and the solution of how to get steadier work for the mines and also get fuel cheaper for consumers is difficult. The amount of American coal coming into Manitoba makes the problem more difficult. The relations between the coal operators and men, says Mr. Jones, are on the best of footings The relations are far more amicable than he has experienced in the course of his experience in the coal industry in the province and in eastern British Columbia.

FORMER FERNIE GIRL MAKES GOOD IN NEW YORK

Extracts from the remarks of "Musical America," and from letters to Miss Penelope Davies, written after her debut concert at Princess theatre, New York, Feb. 9, 1919.

Miss Davies is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Davies. Mr. Davies was Comptroller of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. some years ago in Fernie.

Musical America—Miss Davies may feel that her performance has given her an auspicious start. Her singing was that of a young artist who has more to offer than voice. There is no disparagement in saying that she is a singer whose interpretative instinct and skill far outshine her vocal resources. Coupled with this ability is the creation of moods and a facile expression in delivering her songs. The Old English "One Morn the Maiden Sought the Mill," was delightfully done—it is a charming bit—and the Sjogren and Peterson-Berger songs likewise. Praiseworthy as her work in general was, her best was done in negro spirituals. For them she had the co-operation at the piano of the composer, H. F. Burleigh. She sang this group glowingly and aroused great applause from her hearers. The great spiritual, "My Lord, What a Mo'nin'" was thrilling as she gave it slowly, tensely, with great devotion, and Mr. Burleigh played the accompaniment only as he can. Miss Davies gave Mr. Burleigh's arrangement of "Didn't It Rain?" a humorous spiritual that was received with an ovation.

A N.Y. Critic says: I heard nothing but the best praise for your work, on all sides. We were impressed with the unusually refreshing program and your rendering of it, also the colorful richness of your voice.

A Friend—It really was an inspiration to be there.

I cannot imagine anyone singing those Norwegian or the Freharn or the Burleigh ones better. The French songs were lovely too. Altogther it was one of the most distinguished little recitals I have ever heard in New York.

..... and find eyes suspiciously moist. What greater tribute can I pay than this confession.

Note—The great publishing house of Recordi, (London, N.Y., Paris, Rome) have taken her up and are advertising her as singing their songs.

WORKING AND SAVING

"Every workingman a capitalist and every capitalist a workingman," as Sir Herbert Ames recently said, is one of the results hoped for from the War Savings Pian. The workingman who saves thereby becomes a capitalist, so it is quite within the reach of all workers to become capitalists. In doing so they become better off and better able to face the future.

Every capitalist should also be a workingman. Canada has no place for idlers. No matter how well off he may be, the man who will not work is a detriment to the community. The more a person becomes an investor the more likely is he to work.

Through buying War Savings Stamps the workingman may easily become a capitalist for he thereby becomes an investor. He buys something that pays well — 4½ per cent compounded half-yearly — and backed by the best security in the world, for there is nothing better than Canada.

FRIENDS THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Conquered Dyspepsia and Restored His Health.

MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C. B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight—going from 185 pounds to 146 pounds—that I became alarmed and saw several doctors who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

In a week, there was improvement. The constipation was corrected; and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Don't forget the masquerade carnival at the rink tonight.

Fred Perry left for Calgary last night to attend the miners convention.

Pte. Louis Beals writes from France that he will shortly take unto himself a wife.

Mrs. H. A. Wilkes leaves tomorrow for Medicine Hat, where she will visit for several weeks.

Carnol is here. Who is Carnol? See Bleasdell's on Saturday and you can sample it out of a nice wineglass. He will explain its special virtues.

Thos. Prentice, manager of the Crow's Nest Trading Co., returned on Wednesday from a business trip to Winnipeg.

Mrs. J. A. Carmichael was taken dangerously ill on Tuesday night, the effects of eating tainted fish. She has nearly recovered.

L. P. Sullivan, of the Ledger staff, returned on Tuesday from spending a week in Cranbrook. Mrs. Sullivan is recovering from a serious illness.

A Calgary concern has been making a lemon extract containing 74 per cent alcohol. Why not have called it an alcohol extract with lemon flavoring?

Pte. E. Sheridan has forwarded to his mother in Fernie a handsome German bugle, as a souvenir of the war, which he picked up on one of the battlefields of France.

Mrs. Corsan, wife of Lieut. Thomas Corsan, arrived from England on Tuesday and is the guest of Mrs. (Dr.) Corsan. Tom is not just sure when he will return but hopes it will not be later than July.

Mrs. F. W. Brown wishes to thank the Ladies Auxiliary for flowers sent to her while in the hospital; also for all kind enquiries. She particularly wishes to thank Dr. Garner and the nurses for the kindness during her seven weeks stay in the hospital.

James Johnston and Frank Greenwood went down to Coleman on Monday night with two Fernie rinks to play some return games with the six rinks of that town. They made a night of it. Jimmy defeated three rinks in succession but Frank lost both his games. The boys say the Coleman players gave them a splendid time.

The Herchmer and Kastner rinks, who went to Cranbrook on Friday last, lifted the Fleishman Cup with a margin of three, Kastner winning by one and Herchmer by two points, but Fernie was not privileged to hold the trophy very long as two days later Cameron and Hoggarth decisively defeated the two local rinks and carried the cup back to Cranbrook, where it will likely remain until next season.

Lieut. L. B. Davies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Davies, formerly Comptroller of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., who has been in France for the past five years, has won the Croix de Guerre, of France, the Medal of Mons and the star and ribbon, British, as well, and is now Canadian Representative on the Geares Commission in France, Sir Geo. Perley, Canadian High Commissioner in Lonodn, having asked him to undertake the position.

A letter received from Sgt. David Gash states that he was married in England on the 27th of February. He says he has just returned from Germany and hopes to leave England for Fernie very shortly. Everybody will remember David, the tall skinny boy who enlisted with the 54th. He now stands 6 ft. 3 in. and weighs 225 lbs. He has had three years service in France, been gassed twice and wounded twice and was recommended for the Military Medal.

A convention of considerable importance opened in Calgary, Thursday, when delegates of all western provincial labor bodies gathered in Paget Hall. Heretofore the Dominion Labor Congress has been dominated by easterners and little attention has been paid to the west. The present convention is for the purpose of solidifying western labor sentiment and placing this part of the Dominion in a position where its demand for hearing in the annual Dominion conference will be respectfully listened to. —Calgary Herald.

Tuesday evening two picked hockey teams played an exhibition game before a large crowd. The Shamrocks captained by Dicken, beating the Argos, captained by Scott, 8-4. The ice was very slow and sticky but at that the game was fast up to the last few minutes of play, when the Shamrocks got three goals in less than three minutes of play. On Monday at 7.30 these two teams will play another game for the cup kindly donated by Dr. Orner. This game promises to be a fast one if the weather stays as it has been the past few days. This will be the last opportunity to witness a hockey game this season, so don't forget the time.

Billy Rizzuto will reopen the Imperial Hotel.

Mrs. Borne is in Rochester, Minn., where she is undergoing an operation for goitre.

The P. Burns staff will mix it with the Ingram staff tonight at the curling rink.

Mrs. D. G. Harvie, of the Ladies Curling Club, won the challenge cup for this season at the rink on Monday last.

A lumberjack was overheard to make the remark the other day that after he had three drinks of Fernie booze he could do anything in the world.

E. Nolan, of Newgate, spent several days in town this week visiting Mrs. Nolan, who is slowly recovering from a serious operation she underwent at the Fernie hospital.

The printing of the city financial statement was awraded to the Ledger last evening at a price $20 cheaper than they paid the first year of the war. The miners will of course have to make good the loss.

Nearly one hundred veterans from overseas have arrived in Fernie up to date. If the 1100 men who enlisted from this city all come back here the local bolsheviki bunch will be a pretty tame aggregation for a while.

The following men from this district returned from overseas during the week: Cpl. Young, Coal Creek; W. Bell, Coal Creek; Artificer Young, Coal Creek, Canadian Navy; H. Hamer, Fernie; H. Davies, Fernie; H. Murray, Fernie; R. Ferguson, Fernie; R. Lowe, Fernie, amputation case, has since gone to Toronto for treatment .

The regular meeting of the G. W. V. A. will be held in the Club rooms at 7.30 p.m. Sunday next, the 16th inst. All members of the G.W.V.A., returned soldiers or members of the Allied Armies or Navies are requested to attend. Applications for membership in the Fernie branch of the G.W.V.A. can be obtained from F. Warwick, Secretary, at the Customs Building, or from G. G. Moffatt, President.

The Department of Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment has opened a temporary office in the rear of G. G. Moffatt's Insurance Office. Any returned men desiring to register for employment or who may desire information on land settlement vocational training and of the various government activities regarding the re-establishment of the returned soldier are requested to call at any time for an interview. The Information and Service Department is at the disposal of all returned men of H. M. forces and we will be glad to see them and take up matters in this regard.

The G.W.V.A. have completed arrangements for a social evening which will be held in the Napanee in honor of the Provincial Organizer, W. Drinnan, and Col. Doherty, B. C. representative to the Dominion Council. The exact date of this social is not known at present but is is expected these representatives will arrive in Fernie within the next few days. Proper notice will be given by notices being placed on notice boards in Fernie and Coal Creek. All members of the G.W.V.A., returned soldiers and all members of the Ladies Auxiliary are particularly requested to attend.

Sergt. Russell Ferguson, one of the Fernie third contingent, returned from overseas on Tuesday Russell is looking well and had some stirring times in his four years of service. About 18 months ago he was severely wounded and has been on duty in England in the training service ever since. He tells of one interesting event when he and five other Fernie boys had gathered to talk of old times when Fritz suddenly came over the top and disturbed the deliberations. Among the five men was Jimmy Osborne and never saw him again until they met in Fernie on Tuesday. Russell was right alongside of Billy Wilson, brother of Harold Wilson, of Fernie, when that young man gave his life for his country.

Fernie citizens will be pleased to learn of the improvement in business conditions in the States across the line, as our local coal industry almost entirely depends upon the Great Northern railway business. W. P. Kenny, federal manager for the G.N., speaking at St. Paul the other day said: "There is a big improvement in the northwest. The far west cities like Tacoma and Spokane, are showing much better and there is a better tone to things generally than there was two months ago. The lumber business is getting better and that is a very good sign. The winter wheat crop in Idaho, Washington and Montana never looked more promising at this season. Everything considered, I look for business activity this spring and I believe the northwest will strike its normal stride by June 1 and will have completely passed through the reconstruction period."

Dr. and Mrs. K. R. Foster, of Newgate, B.C., welcomed a son to their home on Wednesday, Feb. 26.

A special meeting of the I. O. D. E. will be held in the Red Cross rooms on Tuesday, March 18 at 4 p.m.

Report has it that there are two whiskey detectives in town but up to date we have not heard anything drop.

For Sale or Rent—Three roomed cottage; up to date fixtures; close to Central school. Apply Barton's Music and Sewing Machine Store.

John R. Pollock, formerly of this city but recently residing at Calgary, passed through the city on Wednesday enroute to Spokane. Mr. Pollock was accompanied by his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Bacchus.

A sale of work will be held in the Red Cross rooms on Saturday afternoon, March 22, under the auspices of the United Church Ladies Aid — useful and fancy articles, home cooking and candy, fish pond, afternoon tea. Come and spend a pleasant afternoon.

The masquerade dance held in Victoria hall on Wednesday was well attended. The costumes were numerous and the judges had hard work picking the winners of the different prizes, which were distributed as follows: Best dressed lady, Miss Jessie Duncan; best dressed gent, A. Muirhead; best gentleman comic, Oscar Erickson; best comic lady, Miss Dahlia Schagel; best representative character, Mr. Branch, of Coal Creek.

Alex. Ostabachuk, an Austrian, who last week was tried before Magistrate Hewat for failure to report periodically to the police, which fact only became known when he boasted publicly that he had not reported all through the period of the war and did not intend to do so now, has been taken to the Nelson provincial jail to serve the alternative sentence of six months imprisonment with hard labor for failure to pay the fine of $300 imposed for the offense. The magistrate also ordered that Ostabachuk be deported upon the expiration of the sentence.

Revelstoke is being prepared by the military authorities for a dispersal station for the rush of returned men who are steadily flowing back from overseas. There are six different buildings in all being utilized for the purpose, and it is intended that when complete the establismment shall be able to handle up to 500 men at a time, this, it is anticipated, being probably the maximum number that will be dispersed at any one station at a single time. The matter of finding sleeping accommodation for so large a number of men would naturally be one of the most perplexing in a town the size of Revelstoke but two buildings have been arranged which between them will accommodate the maximum, viz., 500.

Upon receipt of instructions from the Deputy Attorney General a transfer was made today from the custody of the provincial police to the Collector of Customs here of the quantity of liquor seized by the police during the past few months from various offenders which was of United States manufacture and indisputably proven to have been smuggled across the line. The consignment delivered at the Customs House amounted to 272 imperial gallons contained in seven casks and one large barrel of flasks, and comprised seizures made from Messrs. G. Scott and A. Sweet near Elko, B.C., four barrels and a barrel of flasks on a wagon being conveyed towards this city; one 20-gal. cask taken from the possession of C. A. Garrison, fireman G. N. Ry. at Natal; and two 42-gallon barrels, M. Vlasak, section foreman G.N. Ry., also of Natal.

NEWS OF LEGISLATURE

kept on the stocks. Assistant Controller General Wright was before the committee, but he refused to answer most of the questions put to him, as a result of which the chairman scored him severely.

The subject of boat purchases has been quite prominent on the legislative order paper during the past week. Some of the purchases of the government have been rather interesting, particularly because of the sudden necessity for repairs in the case of each craft purchased. For instance, there is the old boat, Beaver, which formerly ran between New Westminster and other points on the Fraser. It was owned by the C. P. R. A man named Jackman of Victoria, a former liquor dealer, optioned it from the C. P. R. at $8,000, and offered it to the government at $10,000. Somehow or other the company got wind of the offer and declined to continue the option, eventually selling the boat itself to the government for the $10,000. The Beaver was to be used as a ferry between Ladner's Landing and Woodward's Landing on the Fraser, but has been on the repair ways for over a year. The total cost has run up to $26,000, with another $10,000 to follow and it has not yet made a single run as a ferry.

Then there was the ninecar ferry bought from the Great Northern for P. G. E. service at a price of $18,000. It was altered to an eleven-car barge, an increase of two cars capacity at a cost of $15,565. A steam tug was bought in Seattle for the P. G. E. service for $24,000, plus duty of $7,800. It has been on the repair ways since its purchase and the repair bill has already reached $11,117.

Replies to order paper questions show that the land settlement board in 1918 loaned $165,150 to farmers of the province. The salaries and expenses of the commissioners run up to $30,000 for the same period.

The new grazing commissioner, McKenzie, who came from the United States to take charge of the grazing lands of the province is paid a salary of $300 per month. He is now applying for citizenship papers.

The spruce inquiry proposal of the opposition leader did not get very far in the legislature last week, the government refusing to adopt it by a vote of 29 to 12. Mr. Bowser had desired the appointment of a select committee to investigate a complaint that J. R. Morgan & Co. had been allowed a spruce permit on property which was to be crown granted to James Adam. The Morgan firm had originally negotiated with Adam for the spruce, but later got a permit direct from the government and Adam thus lost about $5,000, that being the proposed purchase price during the negotiations.

Pte. Giolma had the unique distinction this week of being one of the very first men in a British Columbia legislature to have a notice of resolution refused by the speaker, so that it never came before the house at all. His motion was that the house express the opinion that it had been wasting too much time in petty partizanship and political philandering and should at once take up the important problems of the day. Mr. Speaker Keen decided that the motion was a reflection upon the dignity of the house, hence it never appeared upon the legislative order paper.

Lieut. Hanes had no luck at all last week. Day after day he brought up resolutions asking for P. G. E. inquiries of one sort or another, or else dealing with returned soldiers issues, but with almost monotonous regularity they feel by the wayside. Either Mr. Speaker Keen ruled them out of order or else the majority defeated them. The North Vancouver member declares that he intends to persist, however.

The new soldier member, Kenneth Duncan, of Cowichan, has made his appearance in the house. His seat had originally been with the soldier party. Later it was moved over to the government side. When he took his place in the legislature from overseas he promptly had his desk moved back to a position with the other soldiers, declaring that he was elected as an independent soldier candidate, and not as a government supporter. There are now eight Conservatives, five soldiers one Socialist and a couple of Independent Liberals in the legislature, as arrayed against about 30 regular government supporters.

One of the most interesting bills of the session is the new initiative and referendum measure. As a measure it has had a troubled course, meeting many opponents and but few supporters. The opposition leader said that it was cumbersome and ineffective. There were so many trimmings about it that it could not be used and in any event the principle was entirely unBritish because the duty of preparing and passing legislation should lie with the men chosen for the task. They should not "pass the buck" back to the people. It was paper legislation of the worst kind, he contended, and its principle would go a long way towards destroying responsible government, although there was doubt in his mind, he said, if it would ever be used. He went into the bill in detail to show that any referendum initiated under it could not become law before 1922, and possibly 1923. One thing it lacked also, he said, and that was the recall. If only there was some provision for a recall then the people at large could follow out the natural sequence and recall the present administration. Mr. Bowser said he would be quite willing to have a 75 per cent petition made obligatory for this, so sure was he that the recall would be successful. J. H. Hawthornthwaite, Socialist, said that the measure was a fraud in every way. In principle it was bad, in practice it was worse.

Several other members scored the new baby bill. Attorney General Farris and J. S. Cowper have been its defenders so far. The attorney-general, whom the opposition leader had described as the wicked member of the government, took up the question of expense and said that simply because an initiated referendum might cost $150,000 as Bowser had claimed, was no reason why the people of the province should not have the right of direct legislation if they cared to exercise it. If the percentage of petition and vote were too high in the measure they could be changed, he pointed out.

FAILED TO FIX LEGAL RESPONSIBILITY

Paris, March 6.—The report of the peace conference commission to determine the responsibility of the authors of the war, it is understood, will be completed tonight and presented to an early meeting of the supreme council. The work of none of the peace commissioners has been guarded so closely as that of the commission of responsibility. The commission's report, it is understood, while fixing moral responsibility, fails to find legal responsibility because there is no precedent or no law governing the case or no court existing to try the accused if legal guilt were found to be evident.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

er recollected in his native town that there had been 18 boys, of whom he was one, born in 1863. When the time came for their being drafted into the Austrian army only two out of that 18 served in the army, the remaining 16 rather than do so left their native land. Twelve of them again met and held a reunion meeting in Newark, N.J., in 1892, and upon that occasion each and every one of them had sworn a solemn vow of vengeance against their oppressors, Germany, Austria and Russia. Mr. Rudnicki advanced information that his vast experience with regard to collecting funds in this locality during the period of the war had found these nationalities eager and willing to contribute. In the early stages when machine guns were being donated by communities, several hundred dollars for same had been raised by individual usbscriptions as well as from the National Slovak Union and the First Catholic Slovak Union. When the federal government rejected the offer of machine guns these subscribers when asked refused to have their contributions returned but diverted them to the Red Cross and Patriotic Fund. He also cited a case where one brother from this city had enlisted and served with the C.E.F. while the other, residing at Michel, had been placed in the Morrissey internment camp. The latter had been promptly released when the authorities learned he had a brother in forces of the Allies. This brother upon his release immediately endeavored to join the Canadian colors but was rejected on account of being physically deficient. In all 7500 Poles had served in the Canadian forces, for whom a training school for officers and men had been established by the Canadian government at Niagara-on-the-Lake. After giving this recital Mr. Rudnicki urged the meeting to give these nationalities British fair play on their merits and to consider them as allies and not as enemies.

This address was received with considerable applause and one of the returned soldier delegates expressed the belief that the Poles and Czecho-Slovaks were not among those whom they desired deported, but that they were considered by the soldiers as allies, and in verification of this it was pointed out that these nationalities had representatives at present sitting at the Peace Conference.

After over two hours' discussion the point was raised by Aldermen Rutledge and Hunter, who contended they could not vote on the motion as representing the city council without another meeting of that body being held and their former resolution rescinded. Ald. Gates advanced a similar argument believeing that the amended resolution from the council had already been forwarded. Mayor Uphill opposed the motion before the meeting and presented as an amendment "That we are in complete accord with the Vancouver memorial except that in Clause 7 the word 'alien' be delted and the words inserted 'all persons who have been disloyal are to be deported.'" His Worship expressed his complete agreement with the preamble of the memorial and i text except that he desired just treatment meted out to all, and by having the word "alien" removed therefrom and substituting therefor the words "all persons," by this means it would cover a much wider scope and include neutrals or otherwise who had been disloyal.

When questioned, the Mayor stated he introduced this amendment not on behalf of the city council but as a member of the Reconstruction Committee. Consequently, as it became apparent it would be impossible to reach a unanimous decision from the three groups originally intended to constitute the meeting, on a regular motion same resolved itself into a joint body representing the G.W.V.A. and the Reconstruction Committee only, in which the city council was not a contributing factor. This fact was noted by several with expressions of regret.

On a vote the Uphill amendment was lost and thereupon the Vancouver memorial with the more strict requirement embodied in the Herchmer amendment was sanctioned. It was further authorized that copies of this resolution be forwarded forthwith to Ottawa, Vancouver and elsewhere as illustrating the sentiment of the respective representative bodies of the City of Fernie, irrespective of any other resolutions which may have been forwarded to the contrary.

A. B. Trites in discussing the wording of the resolution pointed out that in so far as the form of the local resolution was concerned, it could not be possible that any meeting here could presume the responsibility of drafting the legislation respecting alien enemies. Whatever law was made in this regard would be drawn up by parliament and therefore as far as this resolution was concerned it was merely the expression of opinion of the meeting which might or might not be observed by those drafting any subsequent legislation.

THE TOLL OF WAR AND PESTILENCE

The war has slain its thousands and the "flu" its tens of thousands, as least so far as American lives are concerned; for 50,000 soldiers killed in France, we have hundreds of thousands killed at home by the epidemic. In the world at large the London Times' estimate of 6,000,000 dead from influenza and pneumonia does not fall far short of the estimate, also sent out from London, of 6,396,504 men killed by the war. These figures are, however, admittedly incomplete. The New York Times doubts "whether the whole truth will ever be known about the sacrifice of life, the maiming of men doomed to be remnants of humanity, and the many lost to view and never to be accounted for." For months to come, casualty tables will figure in the newspapers and The Times is not alone in believing that "when all the returns that can be gathered are in, it will be found, doubtless, that 10,000,000 men laid down their livves in the greater war." But even this, we read elsewhere, will probably not be half the total loss of life for which the Prussian authors of the war may be held responsible. As the Atlanta Constitution reminds us, "millions of civilians died in France, Belgium, Russia, Servia, Italy, Roumania, and in the enemy countries from starvation, from overwork while enslaved, from Hun barbarities, from disease brought on by conditions which would not have existed but for the war, from exposure and from broken hearts." It is still too early, the Georgia editor adds, to try to foot up the number of deaths in these classes, because "every day thousands of helpless men women and little children are dying somewhere in Europe and in Asia from sheer starvation as a direct result of the devastations of war, and for years children of today who may survive the existing post-bellum period will be dying one by one as a result of constitutional weaknesses being brought on by malnutrition."

Some call the influenza epidemic a by-product and charge its fatalities to the war. Our own total of battle deaths will probably reach about 50,000 as noted below. The Federal Census Bureau gives 115,258 as the influenza-pneumonia mortality total in 46 cities of the United States up to Jan. 4. These cities contain only one-fifth of our population, the Kansas City Times reminds us, and the Springfield Republican considers the figure absurdly small. The Massachusetts daily notes that from October 1 to Decmebr 24 insurance companies received 120,000 claims due to influenza or pneumonia, and expected 80,000 more for the same period. Using these figures as a basis and checking up by other statistics, the writer in the Republican comes to the startling conclusion that the national loss of life from the epidemic up to the end of last month is between 1,212,000 and 2,262,000. But it does not seem so incredible when attention is called to the ravages of this plague in other lands:

"The loss in India has been estimated as more than 3,000,000. In the South Sea Islands people died in such numbers that the bodies had to be burned in huge piles. In Mexico it is said the plague caused 432,000 deaths. Its ravages in Germany and among German soldiers has been pointed out as not a negligible factor in the disintegration of the Hohenzollern Empire. In France, in England, in Spain, in Italy—in fact, in nearly every land on the globe—it has taken enormous toll. An outstanding feature of the plague is that it has been even more destructive among southern peoples than it has been among peoples dwelling in northern countries."

In an editorial discussion of war and mortality the Republican observes that the total wastage of human life from starvation—even if Russian and other figures may have been exaggerated "must run far into the millions." It continues:

"Closely related to famine is disease, both in the innumerable individual cases in which want has reduced vitality, preparing the way for a fatal malady, and in the terrible epidemics which a great war always brings in its train. These pests are at their worst when as at present Europe and Asia are both involved. Maladies endemic in remote places are spread broadcast by the disturbance of population, and find congenial soil among the wretched crowds of war refugees, cold, hungry and enfeebled, who huddle together wherever any sort of shelter can be found and are forced to live without regard to sanitation or decency. We have felt what one of these plagues of distrest humanity can do even to a prosperous and well ordered land; from the influenza epidemic we may judge what some of the most miserable parts of the Old World have suffered from this and other plagues, including typhus, which is still one of the worst of all whenever modern sanitation breaks down under the stress of a great war. A British authority puts at 1,000,000 the deaths due to lice."

This war, "with its attendant revolutions, famines, and plagues," will have a tremendous effect upon the population of the Old World, the Republican concludes. We can not yet precisely estimate the effect on the birth-rate or death-rate or calculate the population of Europe for 1920. In 1910 it was 450,000,000. If the war had not occurred, there might have been a gain of as much as 40,000,000 by next year, but now "the actual increase is likely to prove small."

The latest German figures are published in the Kolnische Zeitung of Nov. 25, which places the number of German casualties at 6,066,769, including 140,760 officers and 4,750,000 Prussians. The total casualties include 1,611,104 dead, 3,683,143 wounded and 772,522 missing. Of the missing the Cologne paper thinks 180,000 may be considered dead. This does not include losses in the last two weeks' fighting on the Western Front, and final figures will probably show that 2,000,000 German soldiers were killed. The Tacoma News-Tribune confesses to "a certain grim satisfaction in finding that Germany has lost more men than any of the nations she attacked except Russia." And the Grand Rapids News figuring that "at least one out of every three able-bodied men of ripe age in the German Empire suffered death, was wounded or missing in the war," concludes that "that ought to be a cure for the madness of any nation." Our editors wonder if anything ever will be definitely known about Austrian losses. The figures quoted in the London press dispatches set Austria's killed and wounded at 4,000,000, the killed being estimated at 800,000. These estimates may per haps be taken with some skepticism, especially in view of a statement coming from Budapest by way of Italy that Hungary alone lost 839,000 in dead. An Associated Press dispatch from Sofia says that Bulgaria's war losses, without including those suffered in the Macedonian retreat, were: killed and missing, 101,224; wounded 1,152,399; prisoners 10,825. The Washington Post observes that if we add the 90,000 prisoners lost in Macedonia, this would give a total Bulgarian casualty list of 1,354,448, which would outnumber the entire male population of fighting age and be three times as numerous as the whole Bulgarian army. That Turkey lost 250,000 men out of a total casualty list of 750,000 is a mere estimate.

Similarly on the Entente side Russian casualty figures are merely guesswork. The New York Times prints, without vouching for it, an estimate that Russia's grand total of loss was 7,700,000, including 1,700,000 killed, 3,500,000 wounded and 2,500,000 missing or prisoners. The same paper calls attention to a report of total Italian casualties amounting to nearly 2,000,000, including 460,000 dead, 947,000 wounded and 500,000 miss ing or prisoners. A British total casualty list of 3,098,013 is divided among 706,726 killed, 2,032,142 wounded and 359,000 missing or prisoners. Canadian forces, according to an Ottawa dispatch, suffered 220,182 casualties, with 60,383 dead. The French government long kept the story of its army losses secret. But last month the French High Commission in this country gave out official figures showing that total casualties (excluding colonials) were 4,762,000 up to Nov. 1. These included 1,058,000 dead, 299,000 missing and given up for lost, 3,000,000 wounded three-fourths of whom have recovered and 435,000 prisoners. Said the commission: "The total killed died of wounds, missing and unfit for work is between 5 and 6 per cent of the French population, and between 28 and 30 per cent of the men mobilized."

In the Allied armies 7000 were blinded and nearly 40,000 lost one eye.—Literary Digest.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

GETTING THEM HOME

It is cause for a better feeling to know that after much red tape the soldiers are being brought home. We think this homecoming of the men from Europe and the camps in the United States is not so much due to official eagerness as to the insistence of the people at home.

In frequently demanding action of the war department the Tribune believes it has voiced the feelings of the people at home and of the soldiers. The men went forth to war full of good spirit and anxious to do any job assigned them. The conflict at an end there was nothing to lure them into the life of the professional soldier. Their desire was to be at home, back at their jobs, and putting a shoulder to the industrial renovation.

There is no reason why the war department should not continue to send the men home as rapidly as official processes will permit. We particularly hope that it will not be found necessary to land overseas troops in southern camps for the purpose of discharge there. Such a practice may result in some spending of soldiers' money, but will not expedite discharge. It is more important that the northern soldiers be returned to their homes than that they spend their wages in the south. — Chicago Tribune.

A Well Known Trade Mark and What is Back of It.

MOST Canadians will instantly recognize our trade mark as standing for certain standards of quality in shoes. But what is back of it? Why should it be so generally accepted as a sufficient guarantee of good value? Let us see—

In the first place, there is back of it by far the largest shoe manufacturing organization in Canada, with resources far beyond those of any other, and greater buying power in the material markets. But that is not all. Important as those things are, they are not the most important. For back of the trade mark there is something else which we could not escape if we would: an obligation to keep faith with the public.

The manufacturer of unbranded goods assumes no responsibility for them after they leave his factory. The manufacturer of trade marked goods assumes an obligation which lasts clear through to the last day of their use. The trade mark puts him under bonds, as it were, to maintain the quality of his product, or lose his reputation. And the higher his reputation becomes, the heavier his responsibility grows. Noblesse oblige.

That is what is back of the A.H.M. trade mark. That is what we offer to Canadian wearers of shoes. That is why we ask you to look for the manufacturer's trade mark on the shoes you buy.

We have prepared a booklet entitled "How to Buy Shoes." May we send you a copy with our compliments?

THRIFT STAMPS IN KELOWNA PUBLIC SCHOOL

Illustrating what one patriotic and enthusiastic school principal has done to encourage the habit of thrift among his pupils and incidentally showing what others can do to further the success of the War Savings campaign, James Gordon, principal of the Kelowna public school, has organized a scheme for the benefit of his own scholars. Every Thursday the children bring their quarters to the school and purchase Thrift Stamps, Mr. Gordon buying sufficient from the local bank to satisfy requirements. When the pupil has acquired 16 Thrift Stamps, these are exchangable for a War Savings Stamp. The total sales are published in the local newspapers each week, and thus the children and their parents are kept in touch with the progress of the War Savings plan. Mr. Gordon commenced with a very satisfactory week, and confidently predicts increased returns as the interest has grown considerably.

MARCH AND APRIL DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

RIPPLES FROM THE CREEK

Saturday last was pay day up here and owing to the mines being idle a large number of residents took in the sights which Fernie offers.

Our old friend Joe Young is now wearing the smile that won't come off resultant on the return of his eldest son George from overseas. Son Fred is expected home almost any day.

Billy Bell returned to camp after his trying experiences overseas. We wish you, well, Billy, lad.

Joe Worthington and family journeyed to Michel during last week end to participate in the home coming celebration of Percy Almond, Mrs. Worthington's brother. Two per cent was much in evidence by all accounts. of this camp, was a visitor to camp

Benny Drew, an old time resident on Saturday, having returned from overseas on Friday.

Another old time resident has been a frequent visitor here lately, rustling for the forthcoming Moose ball to be held on Ireland's night, March 17

The meetings of the Fernie Branch of the G.W.V.A. will be held on Sunday evenings in future to enable the members of this camp to attend. Commence at 7 p.m. sharp.

T. Wilson, Billy Atherton, Sam Proctor and Pete Dawson attended the G.W.V.A. meeting in Fernie on Sunday.

The mines were idle from 11 p.m. Tuesday until 11 p.m. Wednesday. Shortage of cars was responsible.

We desire to repudiate the malicious and misleading statement being circulated that the Crow's Nest Pass officials at Coal Creek are not giving the returned soldier a square deal. All returned men who are still able to fill their old positions are being placed, while for others who are broken in health, etc., work is being found as necessity arises.

Don't forget the Moose big night at Victoria Hall on Monday, March 17. $1.50 per couple, extra lady 50c. The Ladies Legion will be at the hall during the afternoon to receive the promised donations of eats, etc.

Mrs. Wm. Hughes and family desire us to express their sincere thanks and deep appreciation to all who have assisted them during their recent sad bereavement.

WHIST DRIVE AND SOCIAL AT COAL CREEK

That the spirit of help one another has not died in this camp was evidenced on Monday evening, the occasion being a whist drive and social arranged by our own indefatigable worker Boby Johnstone and his committee of willing helpers. The capacity of the Club Hall was taxed to its utmost and a large gathering of Fernieites braved the inclement weather to be present.

The prizes for the whist drive were donated by the following: T. Prentice, Billy Mills, Mr. Liphardt, Mr. McLean and the booby prizes by Mr. Pearson, manager of the local Trites-Wood branch. The prizes were won as follows: Ladies—1st Mrs. H. Jones, 2nd Mrs. Whitehouse, booby Mrs. Brown. Gents—1st John Parker, 2nd J. Cartmell, booby Mr. Prescott.

An orchestra composed of twelve pieces dispensed music which could not help but gladden the hearts of the most fastidious. While we are not sufficiently initiated in the various names of the instruments used, we desire to publish the names of the players thereof: Messrs. Whitehouse, Patterson, Worthington, Bob Brown, Norman Brown, Fawley, Oliver, Scarpino, Page, Burkman and Commons.

The duties of floor manager were carried out by Dougal McGregor in his own inimitable way. Dancing was interspersed by vocal efforts by our local Carusoes and Melbas, the following contributing: Mrs. Whitehouse, Fernie; Miss Florence Billsborough, Fernie; Mrs. Birkett, Coal Creek; Miss Young, Coal Creek; Geo. Smith, Coal Creek; Jack Hewitt, Coal Creek.

The Ladies Aid of the camp, assisted by friends, provided the necessities for the inner man at midnight, with eats like mother used to make, after which the gay fantastic was resumed until Home Sweet Home waltz brought to a close one of the most enjoyable gatherings ever held in our burg.

The committee in charge desire to thank all who in any way assisted.

B. C. LABORITES DEMAND SIX HOUR DAY

Calgary, March 11. — Although strong opposition was offered by Dave Rees, the vice-president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and others of the delegates attending the British Columbia Federation of Labor going on record as favoring a 6-hour working day, without it was first submitted to the respective international unions and other organized bodies, the convention, by an almost overwhelming majority, decided to deal with the matter right away, and after a long discussion Tuesday morning agreed to the following resolution:

"Whereas the termination of the war in Europe will finally release approximately 50,000,000 men for service in the industrial field, and whereas the workers of the world engaged in productive industries during the period of war have produced sufficient food, clothing and other necessities of life for the people of the world; therefore be it resolved that this convention go on record as demanding a 6-hour work day of five days a week, to come into effect on June 1, and that an intensive educational propaganda be instituted to that end."

A resolution that the delegates recommend to their affiliated membership that they refuse to assist in the forwarding of men, money and materials intended for use against the workers of Russia and that the executive committee carry on a system of propaganda with that object in view, was passed by the convention without practically any discussion; as was also that the convention demand full freedom of speech, press and assembly and that united action be taken for the release of political prisoners.

DAYLIGHT SAVING IS DEAD IN CANADA

Ottawa, March 13.—The Daylight Saving Bill is dead. The members representing rural constituencies expressed such an overwhelming opinion against a renewal of the measure at the government caucus today that it was decided to drop the bill. The caucus also discussed at length the question of the Civil Service Act and its relation to the Civil Service Commission. Strong objection was made by many members to the way the act is working out. The tariff was not discussed today, as it was arranged it was to go over until next week.

BOLSHEVIKI RULE IS A GREAT EVIL

Because of the fact that many misguided and ill-informed people in Canada are being led, through ignorance, to endorse the Bolshevist movement in Russia and because there are evidences in pletnty that the Soviet government of Russia is working in this country among the toilers with its Bolsheviki propaganda, the Herald reproduces today from the London Times some information as to just how the Bolshevik policy of government works out in practice. (This article is also reproduced in this issue of the Free Press).

There can be no question as to the truth of the document reproduced from the Times. That paper vouches for its accuracy and it is not in the habit of making mistakes. After reading this monstrous official announcement from the Bolshevik government of a Russian city it would be well for Canadian labor to hesitate before it gives countenance to a movement which announces such demoralizing doctrine.

Western labor men in convention in Calgary passed a resolution of sympathy for Russian and German Spartacanism. Do these men wish to see their wives and daughters subjected to the ignomy which is being forced upon Russian women under this disgraceful Bolshevik order? None with a spark of chivalry or moral decency left in him could sanction such a preposterous and demoralizing condition of affairs. In ignorance we are certain that resolution of sympathy was passed yesterday. It should be withdrawn and a resolution of condemnation passed in its stead.—Calgary Herald.

INVESTMENT FOR SMALL SUMS

"Thousands of Canadians made their first real move in saving by purchasing small lots of Victory Bonds on the instalment plan. Thousands more can make a start by buying War Savings Stamps, which cost $4.02 during March, on the same basis the instalments being 25c Thrift Stamps and paid at the convenience of the saver," said a member of the local commitee on National War Savings today. "The War Savings stamp is redeemable by the Canadian government on January 1, 1924 for Five Dollars."

"Men, women and children cannot only purchase these Thrift Stamps at the banks or post offices, but they may buy them or take them in change at a large number of stores throughout the country, representing every branch of the retail trade.

"By means of the War Savings plan the people are enabled to furnish the Canadian government with the money to provide the credit necessary to finance sales to other countries.

"Since June, 1918, the Dominion has advanced $240,000,000 to the British government for this purpose as follows: Imperial Munitions Board, $132,000,000; for the purchase of Canadian grain, $55,000,000; for dairy exports, $35,000,000; for the sale of the B.C. salmon pack, $4,000,000; for other exports of food, $10,000,000.

"Whether or not Canada's export trade will be maintained at high levels will depend upon the extent to which Canadians advance the money to finance it. In proportion as they save and place their savings at the disposal of the government will credits be made available."

VICTORY BOND HOLDERS AS W.S. STAMP COLLECTORS

Victory Bondholders should become War Savings Stamp Collectors They should invest the interest, or a portion of what they draw from their bonds in War Savings Stamps. It would pay them to do so. These Stamps are really a government "Baby Bond", every bit as good as Victory Bonds and always worth the money they represent. They also carry a good rate of interest.

If Victory Bondholders can be induced to do this, Canada will have an army of 1,000,000 persons continuously saving for her. And as time rolls on this number will increase rapidly. There is no good reason why within a year there should not be 2,000,000 in the Canadian War Savings Army. With these enrolled and retained in the ranks there is no financial problem that Canada cannot solve.

ODD FELLOWS TO CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

The Centenary of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows will be celebrated this year throughout the continent of America. One hundred year ago on April 26 the first lodge of this order was instituted in North America and since that time the order has grown steadily and now comprises a membership of over two million. Every jurisdiction is contemplating celebrating this event in some worthy manner. The B.C. jurisdiction has undertaken to double the amount already raised for an Odd Fellows' Home. The amount of this fund is now $25,000, which means that a further $25,000 has to be raised, being a pro rata of $5.00 per member. A strong committee of the local body has the matter in hand to raise $850, and the success of the campaign for this amount seems already assured.

RECEIPTS FROM THIS DISTRICT

According to a statement prepared and issued by the National council of the Y. M. C. A. regarding the receipts of the 1918 Red Triangle Fund, the following amounts have been received from the different communities of this district up to January 31, 1919.

Fernie	$500.00
Baynes Lake	450.00
Bull River	321.80
Creston	768.80

The Province was divided into eight districts and the amounts received from these several districts up to January 31, 1919 are given as follows:

Vancouver Island	$19,474.60
Fraser Valley	24,640.22
Thompson River	12,505.08

Northern	8,718.08

Owing to exceptional local circumstances in Vancouver no regular canvass was made for the Red Triangle Fund, but the effort was centered on providing the $450,000 required to complete their badly needed new building. The campaign resulted in $205,839.00 being subscribed for the local work.

An audited statement of the receipts and expenditures in the Red Triangle Fund for the year will be published in newspapers and magazines within a few weeks. This statement will show where all the money contributed by the Canadian people came from and how it was spent.

SERIOUS CHARGE AGAINST FORAN

Ottawa, March 19.—The speaker informed the house today in replying to Mr. Hocken that Dr. J. K. Foran, chairman of the Sinn Fein meeting in Montreal on Feb. 9, was in the employ of the house of commons. Dr. Foran was absent from his duties during the most of the session of 1918, leave of absence having been granted to him on account of the illness of his wife and children and the state of his own health in consequence.

Mr. Hocken: "What is the government going to do in the matter, seeing that the meeting was of a rebellious nature?"

The speaker: "The government has not considered the matter but as soon as I saw the newspaper accounts of the meeting, I expressed very strong disapproval of any officer in the employment of the house taking an active part in any meeting of a political character.

TO EXPERIMENT WITH B. C. IRON ORE

Victoria, March 18.—As another step in the direction of encouraging the development of the magnetic iron deposits of British Columbia, and the establishment of an iron and steel industry—those preceding having been the offer of a bounty on pig-iron produced in the province, and the obtaining of a report from Dr. Alfred Stansfield, professor of metallurgy, McGill University, on the commercial feasibility of treating the iron ores of the province by means of electro-smelting — Hon. Mr. Sloan, minister of mines, yesterday asked the British Columbia Legislature for authority to take from any of the iron properties of the province a quantity of ore, not to exceed 10,000 tons in the aggregate, for experimental purposes. There are at present two small furnaces situated near Vancouver and owned by companies which are prepared to take advantage of the terms of this legislation. The cost to the government will be $50,000, it is stated.

It is not the intention to take the ore without recompensing the owners. The latter, it will be provided, shall be allowed 25c per ton free of taxation on the ore taken.

$4000 FINE IN B.C. BOOZE CASE

POISONED HER GUEST

Seattle, March 20.—Ruth Garrison, aged 18, has confessed to the police that she put poison in the food of her luncheon guest, Mrs. Storres, aged 28, because Mrs. Storres was a rival for the affections of her husband, Douglas Storres, an automobile mechanic. Mrs. Storres died in a departmental store emergency hospital immediately after lunch.

M. A. Kastner is trying to get up a couple of rinks to take in the Vancouver bonspiel.

SOCIALISTS CONDEMN BOLSHEVISM

While the rest of the world complained that trustworthy information about Russia was not obtainable, because everything coming out of that country was distorted one way or the other, Socialists collected a great deal of authentic Russian information for the guidance of their recent international convention at Berne. They went to the Bolsheviki themselves for the information, and having digested it they denounced the Bolshevik rule.

Though suppressing every Russian publication not friendly to them the Bolsheviki are great publicity artists on their own side. They have their official and semi-official newspapers and various government organs covering particular fields. It was from the files of these publications that the Socialists compiled their report, taking nothing from non-Bolshevik sources, and giving authority for their statements in each case.

The Socialists were not interested in what the Bolsheviki did to the bourgeoisie and they paid no attention to that, their general idea being the more anybody does to the bourgeoisie, or property-owning class, the better. They were not interested in reports of Bolshevik terrorism, massacres, and so on, for they allow that much disorder of that sort will usually accompany a revolution. They confined their attention solely to the result of Bolshevism upon the very class in whose exclusive interests it professes to rule—namely, upon the proletariat, or urban wage earners. Socialists condemned Bolshevism because they found, out of its own mouth, that it was destroying the very class it is supposed to benefit at the expense of all the rest of society.

The Bolsheviki's own report showed that the population of Petrograd had declined about two-thirds, only about eight hundred thousand inhabitants being left out of about two million four hundred thousand. Moscow metal workers' unions had lost one hundred and twenty-three thousand members out of a hundred and eighty-three thousand. Chemical workers' unions had lost three-fourths of their members. Other instances are cited from Bolshevik reports.

City wage earners have been disappearing into the highly paid army, drifting out to the villages, turning peddler and petty speculator. Output of a large group of textile factories had declined three-quarters.

Not only has the number of workers greatly decreased but output per man has fallen. The Petrograd Soviet reported that the state had advanced ninety-six million roubles to the famous Putiloff works—formerly one of Russia's leading industrial establishments—of which sixty-six million rubles had been expended in wages, while total output of the works in the same period was valued at only fifteen million rubles. From various reports it seems that the total factory output equalled only about half the sum drawn from the state treasury; hence an official complaint that the government has been obliged to print paper money at the rate of two hundred million rubles a day, and that the value of its rubles in the interior of the country has fallen ninety-five per cent.

Last November the Central Executive Committee declared that the food shortage in Moscow was largely due to loafing and plundering. In December a government organ complained that the mass of new industrial officials appeared only twice a month—to draw their salaries. As to an enormous increase in the number of such officials five districts in one province now show 495 officials where formerly in twelve districts there were only 275.

This report was compiled by non-Bolshevik Socialists who were possibly more or less prejudiced against Bolshevism by what they had learned before. But they give the Bolshevik source of their information in every case, and it harly lies in the mouths of Socialists to question the integrity of Karl Kautsky and Branting, or of Simeon Strunsky, who sends a summary of the report to the Evening Post, of New York. The Bolshevik reports are all several months old by this time, but Bolshevism had been in operation long enough to give an idea of how it operated.

No wonder Kautsky declared: "The great argument for Socialism is that it is more efficient than the capitalist system, but the Bolsheviki are undermining this argument."

Of course they still say that though it worked most disastrously in Russia it would work beautifully some other place—any place where it has never been tried. But there is its own report of itself in the only place where it ever has been tried. For Bolshevism, aside from its Red Terror—that is, on the economic side—is nothing less than orthodox Marxian Socialism put into liberal practice.—Saturday Evening Post.

DOUKHOBORS OFFER LANDS TO SOLDIERS

Montreal, March 20.—Doukhobors in Canada have maintained the reputation of their race for meakness and self-sacrifice by one of the most magnanimous actions ever recorded.

Hearing that the Great War Veterans' Association passed a resolution that Doukhobors' land be given to soldiers because they had fought, the Doukhobor community, while mildly protesting that war is savagery has voluntarily offered all its lands and possessions to the soldiers. The community, in its statement, says:

"The directors of the Christian Society of Universal Brotherhood considered it necessary to call a meeting at Brilliant of our Society to discuss resolutions. At this meeting over two thousand of our society were present and the women were in a majority and it was there resolved to announce that we solemnly offer all lands which are occupied by Doukhobors in Canada to soldiers who have suffered so much from the recent war which lasted over four years."

POLICE AWAY, BOOZE STOLEN.

Sydney, N.S., March 20.—During the absence of the police, who were attending a fire in a distant part of the town, a gang of men, armed with sledge hammers, crowbars and other implements and weapons, yesterday stormed the police station at New Waterford and made off with several wagon loads of liquor before the authorities became aware of what was going on.

The work was still in progress when the officers returned, but the gang made a complete escape with the exception of an Italian who was caught in the act of lowering a keg of beer from a window. There was a carload of liquor at the station, which had been seized in transit recently on the Canadian Northern Railway.

MEETING OF GOLF CLUB TO BE HELD

There will be a meeting in Herchmer & Graham's office on Tuesday, March 25, of all interested in golf. The club was fairly well organized last year and the course was put in good condition and it is the intention of the golfers to start out this year in earnest with a real club. If you are interested in golf or sport of any kind turn out to this meeting and help boost this game. We have two or three golfers in this town who can stand up against anything in Western Canada and a little assistance will put Fernie on the map as a golfing town.

INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION SAFEGUARDS PUBLIC HEALTH

Several years ago the Governments of Canada and the United States requested the International Joint Commission to investigate the causes and extent of pollution throughout the boundary waters between the two countries, and to recommend such remedies as would adequately safeguard the public health of the people on both sides of these waters. This investigation naturally fell into two branches. In the first case the Commission brought together and secured the views of representatives of the Federal, State and Provincial Boards of Health. As a result of this conference the Commission was able to outline in a general way the scope of its investigation. It then engaged a corps of sanitary experts who under the general direction of Dr. Allan J. McLaughlin of the Public Health Service of the United Staes, Dr. J. W. S. McCullough, Chief Officer of Health of Ontario, and Mr. F. A. Dallyn, Provincial Sanitary Engineer of Ontario, carried out what has been described as the most extensive bacteriological examination of waters the world has ever known. It embraced in fact the entire system of international boundary waters between the two countries, extending for a distance of some two thousand miles from the St. John River in the east to the Lake of the Woods in the west. One of the most gratifying results of these bacteriological surveys was the assurance that the great bulk of the Great Lakes water remains practically in its original purity, in spite of the fact that eight or ten million people have contracted the very bad habit of dumping all their sewage into these waters, and that the entire shipping of the Great Lakes, carrying in one season not less than fifteen million passengers, has followed the same evil practice. Serious pollution was found at many points along the boundary waters, and particularly in the Detroit and Niagara Rivers, where the cities of Detroit and Buffalo, with a number of smaller communities on both sides of the boundary, have been doing their best to make the water of these rivers unfit for human consumption. Severe epidemics of typhoid fever have for years past warned the lake cities that, while they were spending hundreds of millions of dollars on their streets and buildings and parks, and in other ways adding to the comfort and convenience of their inhabitants, the most vital consideration of all, that of public health, was being grossly neglected. If the International Joint Commission should achieve nothing more than to awaken the cities of the Great Lakes to the vital importance of protecting their water supplies, it will have more than justified its existence.

Having completed the first branch of its investigation, that is as to the sources and extent of pollution, the Commission took up the very important question of remedies, and as an initial step held a conference in New York with a group of sanitary engineers, including men of international standing such as George W. Fuller, Earle B. Phelps and George C. Whipple of the United States, and W. S. Lea, F. A. Dallyn and T. J. Lafreniere of Canada. As a result of this conference and the subsequent deliberations of the Commission it was decided to adopt, at least tentatively, certain fundamental principles for the preservation of public health upon which the experts were in agreement. The most vital of these principles is that, while in certain cases where the ratio of water to sewage is unusually large the discharge of the latter into boundary waters may be made without danger to the public health, "effective sanitary administration requires the adoption of the general policy that no untreated sewage from cities or towns should be discharged into boundary waters." The other principles adopted relate to methods of sewage purification and water purification.

Field work in connection with the second branch of the investigation was carried out by a corps of sanitary engineers under the direction of E. B. Phelps of the U. S. Public Health Service and F. A. Dallyn of the Ontario Board of Health. The elaborate reports of the bacteriologists and sanitary engineers on the two branches of the investigation have already been published. The Commission has now issued its own Final Report to the two Governments, embodying its conclusions and recommendations. In that report, after setting forth the character and extent of the pollution, and the remedies recommended, it is suggested that the two Governments confer upon the Commission jurisdiction to regulate and where necessary to prohibit the pollution of boundary waters and waters crossing the boundary. While nothing has yet been done in the direction of conferring upon the Commission jurisdiction to carry out its own recommendations, the two Governments have within the past few weeks requested the Commission to draft rules and regulations designed to meet the needs of the situation.

THE LADY AND THE GLEAM

Once upon a time there was a lady. This is a true story and the Lady never originated a thing. She always believed what she was told and was A1 on the Copy. She followed the Gleam, if you want to talk highbrow.

She heard that it was wonderful how many cents you would have if you kept every one that came your way and put it into a jug till there was not even standing room inside. She believed the tale and hunted up a jug. Then she pestered the life out of shopkeepers and curled many grey hairs around her temples in the effort to make all her change come back in pennies. What did you say?

Honest? of course! Everything's honest in love and war.

Well, the jug became full instead of empty. And where did the gleam lead the lady? You'd never guess! Straight across the Continent! She started in Boston and gleamed all the way to California on that jug full of pennies. Honest, she did!

What a lady has done, another can gleam. Just think of the possibilities in Thrift Stamps.

COMMUNITY SETTLEMENT

The Dominion government is to lend sufficient money to the provincial government to enable the latter to supply the required loans to the Empress of Asia Committee to start a community settlement in British Columbia. The original number of those who decided upon this community settlement was 300, but it has now grown to something like 600, so that it will be a miniature city that will be built up wherever these men decide to locate. Mr. Arthur Meighen who received the delegation at Ottawa, is not favorably impressed with the community idea and it is not to be incorporated in the Federal land settlement policy, but in the present instance the Dominion will lend the money to British Columbia, but the Provincial government will have to accept the full responsibility. The money, instead of being loaned to the individual will be lent with proper security to trustees of the community settlement, who will constitute a board of management. The experiment will be watched with interest by returned soldiers all over the Dominion and without a doubt its success will lead to the establishment of other communities.

Lieuts. Kirchner and Walker, who have been the moving spirits in this project, have now arranged that the money necessary will be forthcoming, and we think it is as well that it should be loaned by the provincial government. Under the Land Settlement Board much can be done to extend help to the community, especially in its initial stages. The government, too, by its Aid to Agriculture Bill can assist the soldier settlers to get stock and implements and all the paraphernalia of farming, and can also render the utmost assistance in finding markets for their products. It is at the beginning that help of this character will be needed and the returned soldiers should also avail themselves of the advice of the government's agricultural experts. Now that the main difficulty, namely the provision of the money, has been overcome, there should be no further delay in getting the project under way. In matters of this character delay is dangerous, because soldiers, after obtaining their discharge, will have to find employment, and if the farm land is not ready for occupation under satisfactory conditions they will drift into other occupations and be lost to the agricultural industry.

The Minister of Agriculture should be prepared at an early date to make a full statement regarding how far the government is prepared to go in this community settlement project. He should also take advantage of the Budget debate to clear up some misapprehensions that exist about the general workings of the Land Settlement Board in relation to the policy adopted towards returned soldiers. Under the regulations whereby the latter can acquire. Provincial-owned land there is a provision that an applicant should be discharged This debars those still in the service from an opportunity of making their selection of the lands already available. and we think this handicap is too harsh. Soldiers were to have been given preference in the allotments recently made in the Bulkley and Nechaco Valleys, but the claims of those overseas still do not appear to have been considered. The Minister of Lands should give information about those to whom lands have been allotted; indeed, we think the Legislature is entitled to know all about the allotments made under the Land Settlement Board within the past year, together with full information regarding the loans effected through that organization. Unless its operations are conducted in the full light of day it will be difficult to know if the Provincial land policy, affecting returned soldiers, is a failure or a success.—Colonist.

COAL—BLACK, WHITE, GREEN AND BLUE

Most of us are familiar with the use of the term "white coal" to designate the power derived from streams. In Europe a distinction is made between white and green coal. Only the power derived from melting glaciers and snow caps is known as white coal, while other water powers are termed "green coal." But there is another vast source of power, namely, that which may be derived from the waves and tides of the ocean; and this is now termed "blue coal."

In a recent issue of the Scientific American we discussed the world's visible supply of black coal and showed that at estimated future rates of consumption, it could not last more than 1500 years. "White coal" furnishes a virtually perpetual supply of power, but the quantity is limited. If we used all the available water power of this country, it would yield about sixty million horse-power, according to the estimates of the U.S. Geological Survey. But much of this would not be commercially available as it represents the entire fall of our streams. Forty millions is a more conservative estimate and this is the equivalent of three hundred million tons of coal. Vast as this total may seem, it would not begin to meet even our present needs, for we are consuming today about five hundred million tons of coal. In time we shall be compelled to supplement our hydraulic powers with other stores of energy.

"Blue coal," by far the greatest store of energy on earth, has as yet been practically untouched. There are enormous difficulties in the way of harnessing the ocean. It is so irascible and when angered its fury is so violent that as yet no man-made wave-power plants have been able to stand up against its wild assaults.

But we are growing more powerful every day. Engineering projects are being undertaken which only a few years ago would have been thought impossible. The time may come when even the ocean tempest will obey the will of man and turn its energies to useful work. More immediate, however, are the prospects of using the power of ocean tides. The subject is discussed at length in the current supplement of the Scientific American. So far such little power as has been abstracted from ocean tides has been insignificant. The rise and fall of the tides is not very great, even though it does amount to 70 feet in some few places, and hence, if any considerable power is to be obtained, basins of large area must be used. By damming the bay of Mont St. Michel in France, where the tide rises about 45 feet, it is estimated that enough power may be obtained to operate half of the industries of France. A French engineer with vast powers of imagination has conceived of building dikes across the channel and across the Thames estuary to form two large tidal basins which may be used alternately to furnish a continuous supply of power. An ambitious plan, to say the least, but history teaches us that the visionary scheme of today often turns out to be the practical commercial enterprise of tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the North-West Territories and in a portion of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 per acre. Not more than 2,560 will be leased to one applicant.

Application for a lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent or Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the Agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns should be furnished at least once

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the Secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to any Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion Lands.

W. W. CORY,
Deputy Minister of the Interior.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to

MIND TESTS FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

In connection with military service the United States worked out psychological tests by means of which a man's natural ability or mental strength could be ascertained, and his fitness for special lines of service. Those who prepared and conducted these tests are greatly pleased with them and the results as far as they know them.

Similar tests are to be applied in quite another field. Columbia university will sort out the candidates for different courses by means of a series of psychological tests. The young man who presents himself for a certain course will not only have to pass an examination in the courses which are pre-requisite to one he desires to begin, but he is to be tested as to his natural capacity and fitness for the career he plans. The idea is to get the measure of his mind—the strength, grasp, and agility of it.

One test question used is: "There are three main differences between a President and a King; what are they? Another sample question is :"I amgoing to name two things which are alike in some ways, and I want you to tell me how they are alike. Wood and coal; in what way are they alike? Or the pupil is asked to tell the meaning of an abstract term like pity, revenge, charity, envy or justice. Here is another: "Now, I want to see how many different words you can name in three minut s. When I say ready you must begin and name the words as fast as you can and I will count them. Do you understand? Be sure to do your very best, and remember that just any words will do, like 'clouds,' 'dog,' 'chair,' 'happy'—Ready; go ahead."

There are many other such tests questions, not perhaps new in themselves, but Columbia means to accept or reject men for certain courses on the showing they make under these psychological tests. This is quite new and may prove to be very important in directing men into the professions for which they are best fitted.

But one does not feel at all sure that those who do the examining will be capable of applying fixed tests to youths who may all be of equal ability, but widely different in disposition and character—some confident and aggressive, others proud and shy. For instance, we have heard that Col. Bishop, the greatest of air fighters, was urged by the instructors not to go on with his flying course as they thought him too nervous and impetuous for the service. He went on, with results that the world knows. If Columbia applies these tests and accepts or rejects men for certain courses according to the results secured another university might apply them also—merely for purposes of record, and then observe over a period of time whether those who passed the tests excelled in any marked way those who did not pass them. The value of the tests would in this way be ascertained.

It sometimes happens that the greatest lawyers were not, when at the law school, conspicuous as students, and some of the students for whom great careers were predicted have never amounted to much.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

Make this beauty lotion cheaply for your face, neck, arms and hands.

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

LENINE'S PROGRESS
(Collier's Weekly)

In what mood will the commissioners of the United States find Nicklai Lenine when they go to the hinterland of Nowhere to confer with this great man. His present attitude should be known to this curious embassy consisting of a famous liberal in matters of economics, religion, and love, and a conservative progressive republican with an aggressive belief in monogamy. Will he lean toward Herron or toward Collier's old friend and contributer, William Allen White?

A newspaper correspondent who has just escaped from "free Russia" with his skin predicts that Lenine will set up a "moderate socialistic republic." If he does, he will no more than carry out the intimations in his pamphlet, published about a year ago.

Reviewing this pamphlet, we find that in 1918 he had already given up hope of carrying on the industries of Russia without the help of the hateful "exploiters of the toiling masses."

Apparently he is troubled by the inability of his followers to "keep accurate and strict accounts, conduct business economically, maintain strict discipline at work," and refrain from loafing and stealing. Lenine has never been complimentary to those whom he insists on leading. He speaks of "unconscious anarchism" among them, of "bestiality and barbarism," of "despair and aimless anger."

We must learn to combine the stormy, energetic breaking of all restraint on the part of the toiling masses with iron discipline during work, with absolute submission to the will of one person, the Soviet director, during work, , , , , The introduction of obligatory labor service should be started immediately, but it should be introduced gradually and with great caution, testing every step by practical experience, and, of course, introducing first of all obligatory labor service for the rich.

But even after the rich have been made to work, and the poor have been "cautiously" made to work, and the active monarchists and the active middle class and the active moderate socialists and the active minority Bolshevists have been riddled with bullets, still the great mind is haunted by the question of management, and of that small branch of management called "accounting." He uses the word fifty times in this little pamphlet. Apparently he has millions of followers able to sieze a factory (or burn it), but none who can keep the factory's books. What is his solution?

Let us take up the question from the practical side (he says). Let us assume that the Russian Soviet Republic must have a thousand first-class scientists and specialists in different departments of science, technique, and practical experience to direct the work of the people in order to accomplish more quickly the economic rehabilitation of the country. Let us assume that these greatest "stars" must be paid 25,000 rubles (nominally about $12,500 in peace times) each. Let us assume that this sum must be doubled (supposing premiums to be granted for particularly successful and rapid accomplishment of the most important tasks of reorganization and technique)' or even made four times as large (supposing that we must get better-paid foreign specialists). Well, then, can this expenditure of 50,000,000 rubles a year be considered excessive or unbearable for the Soviet Republic? Of course not.

At this rate he will soon be competing with Standard Oil and the Steel Corporation for experts. Their eagerness to take places under this genial dictator will be somewhat modified perhaps by the knowledge that the Soviet, once instructed or feeling that it has learned everything, is apt to save expenses in the end by shooting them on the morning of pay day.

He attempts to explain this "backward step" of the Commune by resorting to analogy, a poor device for a materialist.

This can be explained by comparing our position with the position of a victorious army which has captured, let us say, half or two-thirds of the enemy's territory and is compelled to halt the offensive in order to recuperate, to increase the supply of ammunition, to repair and to strengthen the communication lines, to build new storehouses, to bring up reserves, etc.

But who ever heard of an army hiring the commanding officers and engineers of the enemy to manage and reconstruct it for the final attack?

What propositions will this new Lenine bring to the conference or accept from it? He has more genuine intellectual contempt for the toiling masses than the weak and superstitious Czar ever had. He speaks of a "dictatorship of the proletariat," but he, Lenine, must dictate to the dictatorship. Is he becoming conservative with power? If he is, will Trotzky take advantage of the situation and go on a "speaking tour" against his confederate? Lenine is a political philosopher with a confirmed taste for homicide. Trotzky has the latter inclination, but, like most orators, is indifferent to economics. He is a rare spellbinder. Dr. Harper says he is the most impressive mob orator he has ever heard. He has already bought an official uniform that would arouse amazement and grief in the audiences that he used to address (as Leon Bronstein) in the Grand Street cafes of New York's East Side. Will the dreamer whose dreams are all nightmares prevail, or the orator who has finished his mission when he has aroused the passion of his audience? Or will both of them go the way they have sent so many thousands?

At any rate, it is interesting to observe the mental processes of the strange bedfellow the journey into international politics has found for the genial philosopher, the defender of home and fireside, the humorist who laughed populism out of Kansas, the embodiment of American common sense and American toleration. A debate between the two ought to be amusing. But we imagine the interpreter will find as much difficulty in translating for White the unphilanthropic views of the grim communist, his talk of "surplus value," constant and variable capital," "highest composition," "historical materialism," and his argument for dictatorship founded on assassination, as he will to make clear to Lenine what is in the mind of the kindly and humorous Kansan. Lenine and Herron may understand each other. But if Lenine and White spoke the same language neither of them would know what the other was talking about.

WINNIPEG LABOR THINKS CALGARY CONVENTION DOMINATED BY "REDS"

Winnipeg, March 17.—A split in the ranks of organized labor in Western Canada is imminent. Leaders interviewed in Winnipeg today asserted that the time was near at hand when the "sane" element would have to cleanse the ranks of union labor of the "reds," or Bolshevists.

Men classed among the "sane" faction asserted the belief that the break would come over the Calgary convention which they declared was dominated by the "reddest of the reds."

The issue on which labor will fight its battle will be an out and out patriotic one. The test of a man's fitness to belong to the organized labor movement will be his Canadianism.

"An attempt will be made to have the Trades and Labor Council indorse the platform of the Calgary convention; that is, to break away from the Dominion labor party and the international unions," said one leader. "On that issue there will be a hot fight, and it is my opinion that the result will be the ousting of the few "reds" and Bolshevists who have managed to worm their way into the ranks of organized labor.

"True labor principles were not represented at the Calgary convention. The Bolsheviki, or I.W.W., or whatever else you want to call them got control of the convention."

EDITORIAL

Some poor simp, who has not enough courage to sign his name to a half column of dope which he pours out in last week's issue of our local Bolsheviki organ, in which he attacks the editor of the Free Press from every point of the compass. First he tells of a brave and heroic incident in which a mob of several hundred persons attacked one individual and he seems to glory in the chivalry of that brave deed. A mob is usually a cowardly thing but it is a safe bet that the creature who signs himself S.W., but who sounds more like T. B., had not even the courage to be in that mob. Individuals of his color usually stand well in the background and urge the other fellow on. Then this S. W. or T. B., or whoever he happens to be, wonders how much pap we get from the Coal Co. We have never yet received a dollar from the Coal Co. or any other institution which we have not earned. This dirty little rag, as he styles us, has always managed to make ends meet by doing a legitimate business. Then he says we have not sense enough to write an editorial. Fancy a scribe who uses such English as "however he eluded his getaway on a rig" kicking about an editor not writing editorials. Why, to waste editorial thought on S. W. or T. B. would be like casting pearls before swine. Finally he warns us to beware of the mob as they are getting "fed up." We would also suggest a warning to the creature who peddled this dope, that his letter comes pretty close to "inciting riot," which is rather a serious crime under the law. The initials S.W. will not hide his identity as the editor of the Ledger would be forced to disclose his name.

Funny thing that certain officials of our local union who are the first to criticize anything and everything which comes up, should consider themselves immune. Hardly a council meeting, a patriotic meeting or reconstruction meeting is called without some delegation being there to express their views and criticize, and everyone is pleased to have them do so. But, lo and behold! if anyone should mote a word about Gladstone Local, he is an undesirable and should be run out of the community. Strange how these men who are such advocates of the abolition of warfare and the inauguration of brotherly love, should at the first hint of opposition threaten with violence and mob law.

HOPE FOR AN EARLY PEACE

Not the least injurious effect of the secretive policy pursued by the peace conferees in Paris has been the growth of the feeling that the road to a final settlement is going to be long and roundabout. The jest that instead of a peace without victory we have now a victory without peace will take on a bitter flavor before long, if indeed it has not already done so. In spite of the first of Mr. Wilson's fourteen points, covenants of peace are not being openly arrived at. All that the world is allowed to know is that meetings are being held.

To the great mass of people, chiefly in Europe, the mere cessation of fighting does not mean an end of distress and anxiety. The whole destiny of more than one nation depends on the terms of peace. All plans for the future must wait on the Paris conference. Armies can not be demobilized, and this includes our own, until something definite is known of what the final settlement will be. Blockades cannot be raised, and so food cannot be sent to districts where people are starving.

The peace that is coming must not be a hastily concocted affair, neither must it be the outcome of protracted bickering. If the people of the world are to put up with secrecy of procedure they ought to have prompt action at least, by way of compensation.

It is encouraging, therefore, to have made public the reassuring statement from London, that, according to Lloyd George and Balfour, the treaty is nearly ready to be signed, and should be approved by the end of this month. News of this kind will do much to settle unrest and to create a hopeful outlook for the immediate future.

SLEEPING FLU NEW MALADY

Vancouver, March 20.—"Sleeping flu" is what the doctors term the illness of a two-year old Vancouver child, who has been asleep since March 11 and who is being kept alive by means of nourishment artificially administered. The child was taken ill on March 6. The case is the first of its kind to be reported here.

SUPPOSE!

Suppose, while we delay in settling the peace terms with Germany, the Bolsheviki get the upper hand in that country as they did in Russia in the face of idleness and starvation.

Suppose that it may become necessary for the Allies to march into Germany to restore peace and to save the country from the mad mob of bloodthirsty anarchists.

Suppose that the worn-out soldiers of the Allies refuse to march and say that the war is over and that they wish to return to their homes and their occupations.

Suppose, under such conditions, with no army to restrain the mad mobs of Europe, the Bolsheviki should get the upper hand not only in Germany and Russia but also in Great Britain, France and Italy.

Suppose the Allies, with their backs "against the wall," should turn once more to the United States for help and ask us to send our soldiers to restore peace in Europe.

Suppose that our people, too, tired of war, should demand to know why peace terms were not settled at the Paris Conference promptly after the armistice, and complications avoided?

Why not settle with the dirty Hun first and then take all the time we need to perfect a League of Nations in which project all of us heartily believe.

Let us have peace! — Collier's Weekly.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

Good for the whole family

A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general.

While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The more powerful convulsive cough of a big man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a big man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the delicate tissues of the throat, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza and whooping cough.

They are trying to form a preachers' union in England, and, considering the low salaries paid so many ministers in Canada, there seems to be need for them to organize for the bettering of their conditions. But, perhaps, it would better serve the purpose if the ministers' wives formed a union and left their unworthy husbands out of it. The wives know all about the inadequate pay of the preachers.

A report from Anyox of March 6 says that 1200 employees of the Granby Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. there have rejected a proposal of the company to reduce wages and revert to the sliding scale in effect prior to the war. Lieut.-Col. Dr. Harold Anderson is dangerously ill in France and little hopes are entertained for his recovery. Dr. Anderson, who enlisted at the outbreak of the war, during his four years' service in France, has covered himself with glory, receiving the Croix de Gurre from the French government and the Distinguished Service Order from the British government. He also rose from the rank of Captain to that of Lieut.-Colonel, and has been mentioned in dispatches several times. The Doctor is suffering from a bad gas attack which he received in the last days of the war.

Pte. Peter Robinson, formerly a member of the Fernie-Fort Steele Brewing Co., and who has been in prison in Germany since almost the first of the war, is back with his people in Ontario again. He says he has seen as many as five sentries lashing a man at one time. On another occasion 2000 prisoners were put to work behind the German lines on the Russian front in the early part of the war and five hundred were killed by Russian bullets.

WHAT BOLSHEVISM MEANS WHERE IT HAS FULL SWAY

The Times published on Tuesday, February 11, the most significant document yet given to the British public as to the true meaning of Bolshevism, and its effect on private and domestic life. This is nothing less than the Bolshevist anti-marriage charter. It is the proclamation issued and posted in Saratoff, Russia, and actually applied there.

It is a decree "proclaimed by the free association of Anarchists."

The Herald reproduces the document from the Times, with the exception of one paragraph, as follows:

This decree is proclaimed by the free association of Anarchists of the town of Saratoff.

In compliance with the decision of the Soviet of Peasants', Soldiers' and Workmen's Deputies of Kronstadt the private possession of women is abolished.

Social inequalities and legitimate marriages having been a condition in the past, which served as an instrument in the hands of the bourgeoise, thanks to which all the best species of all the beautiful have been the property of the bourgeoise, the propcontinuation of the human race has been prevented. Such arguments have induced the organization to edict the present decree.

1—From March 1 the right to possess women of the ages of 17 to 32 is abolished.

2—The age of women shall be determined by birth certificates, or passports, or by testimony of witnesses, and, on failure to produce documents, their age shall be determined by the committee, who shall judge them according to appearances.

3—This decree does not affect women having five children.

4—The former owners may retain the right of using their wives without waiting their turns.

5—In case of resistance of the husband he shall forfeit the right under the former paragraph.

6—All women according to this decree are exempted from private ownership, and are proclaimed to be the property of the whole nation.

7—The distribution and management, of appropriated women, in compliance with the decision of the above said organizations, are transferred to the Saratoff Anarchists' Club. In three days from the date of publication of this decree all women, given by it to the use of the whole nation, are obliged to present themselves to the given address, and to supply the required information.

8—Before the committee is formed for the realization of this decree the citizens themselves will be charged with such control. N.B.—Any citizen noticing a woman not submitting herself to the address under this decree is obliged to let it be known to the Anarchists' Club, giving the address, full name, and father's name of the woman.

9— . . . . .

10—Each man wishing to use a piece of public property should be a bearer of a certificate from the Factories Committee, the Professional Union, or Workmen's, Soldiers' and Peasants' Council certifying that he belongs to the working family class.

11—Every working member is obliged to discount 2 per cent from his earnings to the fund of public general action. N.B.—This committee in charge will put these discounted funds with the specifications of names and lists into the state banks, and other institutions handing down these funds to this popular generation.

12—Male citizens not belonging to the working classes in order to have equal rights with the proletariat are obliged to pay £10 monthly into the public fund.

13—The local branch of the state bank is obliged to begin to reserve payments to the national generation funds.

14—All women proclaimed by this decree to be national property will receive from the funds an allowance of £23 per month.

15—All women who become pregnant are released from their state duties for four months, up to three months before, and one month after, childbirth.

16—The children born are given to an institution for training after they are one month old, where they are to be trained and educated until they are 17 years at the cost of the public funds.

17—In the case of the birth of twins the mother is to receive a prize of £20.

18—All citizens, men and women, are obliged carefully to watch their health.

19—Those who are guilty of spreading venereal disease will be held responsible, and severely punished.

20—Women having lost their health may apply to the Soviet for a pension.

21—The chief of the Anarchists will be in charge of the temporary technical measures relating to the realization of this decree.

22—All refusing to recognize and support this decree will be proclaimed enemies of the people and counter-Anarchists and will be held strictly responsible. (Signed)

Council of the City of Saratoff, Russia.

Concerning this monstrous proposal, London Daily Mirror says:

It is the Bolshevist programme for the public "appropriation" of women.

Let every woman in this country read it.

She will see that Bolshevism here would mean that she would be seized by the state as part of public property.

Let every husband in England read it. He will see that under Bolshevis his wife would be taken from him.

Let every mother in England read it She will see that her infant children would be taken from her to be brought up by the state.

mLet every pure woman read it and see that Bolshevism means compulsory prostitution.

This revelation of the anarchical anti-marriage creed of Bolshevism should surely help to kill the impulse towards anarchy in England.

We love our home life here. The "ideal" of "all things in common, including wives," hardly appeals to the working man.

But unfortunately the working man does not understand what Bolshevism means. He does not realize. He goes blindly on, without seeing the road.

The railroad men do not realize when, from time to time, they threaten to "hold up" the transport of the country; and so to promote anarchy.

The miners do not realize when they threaten to cripple the coal supply; and so to ruin industry. They do not realize it when, as yesterday, the lightly reject a conciliatory government offer " as not being a reply to their demands."

No class realizes, when it threatens mortally to wound the country for the gaining of a local satisfaction.

So, while very few want the effects of Bolshevism, very many adopt its methods.

They think you can have the method without the effect.

You cannot—not for long. The two go together.

Therefore, let every soul who tries to get immediate satisfaction by the methods of anarchy, consider that the results of anarchy are what this document reveals: Misery for all, except those cut-throats who keep all dancing to the crack of their blood-stained whip.

GREAT WAR VETERANS RESENT MOTION AT LABOR CONFERENCE

(Calgary Herald)

While there is a growing spirit of mutual understanding between organized labor and the returned soldier, there is also at the same time a very definite stand being taken by the latter in regard to Bolsheviki tendencies on the part of some sections of the labor element.

It was not to be supposed that some of the resolutions passed at the recent inter-provincial conference in Calgary would go by unnoticed by the veterans. On the contrary, the provincial command of the Great War Veterans' Association take keen exception to the stand taken by many of the delegates and their revolutionary doctrines.

In this connection at a meeting of the provincial command just held, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, it is learned from the reports in the press of the Western Labor Conference at their convention held in Calgary, March 15, that a resolution was passed placing itself on record as being in full accord and sympathy with the Russian Bolsheviki and German Spartacan revolutions; and,

"Whereas, it has sent its felicitations to its comrades in Germany and Bolsheviks elsewhere, and that resolutions were passed at the same convention favoring joint committees being formed between labor and soldiers, associations;

"Be it resolved, that although this provincial command is in thorough sympathy with organized labor, nevertheless we believe that the action of the Western Labor Conference, at the convention in Calgary, in preaching revolution and riot, should be severely condemned and that steps should be taken by the central government to either arrest or deport the leading apostles of anarchy, sedition and disloyalty; and

"Be it further resolved that we resent the association of the name of the returned soldier with any organization that sends its felicitations to its comrades in Germany and Bolsheviks eleswhere."

In discussing the matter with a representative of the Herald, Major C. W. McInnis, the provincial secretary of the G.W.V.A., laid emphasis on the fact that returned veterans were in hearty sympathy with the sane members of the labor movement. Everything, he said, was being done to bring about a stronger feeling of good fellowship, and he instansed the fart that the soldiers were represented at the redent miners' convention.

Much the same opinion was expressed by A. Haseldene, the president of the G.W.V.A. In referring to the Western Labor Conference, he stated he felt assured that the various resolutions did not represent the thought of the average western worker, and that they were but the mere vaporings of the "red" element which was so strongly in evidence at the conference.

The resolution passed by the provincial command is being sent to the Dominion command for further action.

FORMER SHERIFF A. R. ANDERSON NOW ENDORSES TANLAC

Prominent Houston Man Says: "Money Could Not Buy the Good It Has Done Me."

"Money could not buy the good Tanlac has done me, and I gladly recommend it for what it has done in my case," said Hon. Archie R. Anderson, of Houston, Ex-Sheriff of Harris County, Texas, recently.

Mr. Anderson is unquestionably not only one of the best known, but one of the most popular men that ever held public office in "The Lone Star" state. After serving as Deputy Sheriff of Harris County for twelve years, Mr. Anderson was elected Chief of Police of the city of Houston. He had occupied this office only a short time when the Sheriff of Harris County died. Mr. Anderson's friends persuaded him to make the race for the unexpired term of Sheriff to which he was easily elected. He was honored with re-election seven different times and served the people in this important office for 15 consecutive years. Four years ago Mr. Anderson declined re-election and retired to private life. He cast his lot among the people of Houston and is a large property owner and foremost citizen of this interesting and prosperous city.

"I was in a run-down condition," continued Mr. Anderson, "and had no appetite at all. I could hardly sleep at night and never felt like getting up in the mornings, I was so tired. I had the worst form of indigestion, suffered all the time from gas on my stomach and was continually belching up undigested food. I had to take my coffee without sugar, as when I drank it with sugar I would just belch for hours. I would bloat and swell up like I was poisoned and suffered with neuralgic pains of the worst sort and nothing seemed to help me only in a temporary way. I just can't tell you how I did suffer for the past four years and up to the time I began taking Tanlac, a few weeks ago.

"When I read the testimonials of some who had been relieved of troubles like mine I just felt that I could not make a mistake by taking Tanlac and it has done even more for me than I had expected. I began to feel better after taking my first bottle and have just now started on my third and I'm a different man already. I sleep like a log now and eat just any and everything I want without the slightest discomfort afterwards. I am glad to endorse Tanlac because it does the work and I'm telling all my friends just what I'm telling you. I never felt better in my life than I do since taking Tanlac. I am willing for you to publish my statement and let every suffering person who may wish, benefit by my experience with this great medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.

THE DECLINING SUPPLY OF MOTOR FUEL

It is almost superfluous to call attention to the ever increasing demand for gasoline; every motorist has it brought vividly before him every time he stops at a service station. It may not be generally realized, however, that the consumption of liquid fuel is now proceeding at such a rate that an estimate can actually be made as to when exhaustion will be attained if there is no improvement in supply or in use. As our knowledge of our underground resources becomes more accurate, it becomes correspondingly possible to reduce the margin of error in what once were mere scientific guesses; so that toady we can afford to scoff at the technical man who tells us that there is in the United States, a mere 6½ billion barrels of petroleum underground. The annual consumption at present exceeds one-third billion barrels; and it requires no extraordinary mathematical ability to divide 6½ by 1-3, and get a quotient of 19½. Less than 20 years supply in sight, if present practice is maintained.

Today we get back about 20 per cent of our crude oil in the form of gasoline. This percentage can of course be increased, but not without increasing the cost. Nor must we forget that the stock remaining in the ground becomes heavier all the time so that the yield of gasoline is bound to decline from this reason, until finally we shall be able to extract but 2½ per cent of gasoline from the crude product of our oil wells. The blending of high volatile gasoline from natural gas with low volatile gasoline from petroleum can be carried out, obviously, only so long as we have the high-volatile material to use in this way. This, with equal obviousness, will not be for long; nor can we, even now, get any great quantity of high grade fuel in this way.

By lowering the volatility of the gasoline, through the use of a larger percentage of the volatile petroleum the supply of engine fuel can be increased, but not indefinitely nor without disadvantage. In particular, when we get fuel standards down to a point at which existing engines balk, what are we to do with the millions of existing engines? Substitute fuels, such as benzol, alcohol, etc., may well be considered; but their price would necessarily be greater than that of gasoline today. Nor would it be possible to manufacture many of them on any scale without a complete overturning of a wide industrial field. The degree of interdependence existing in the very nature of things among the various trades using and manufacturing chemicals has been sufficiently emphasized by our wartime troubles with potash and nitrates and dyes. Finally, as we expect to show in an early issue, the oil shale deposits upon which so much reliance is placed for an extension of the gasoline supply to an indefinite period, are not going to be of such immediate or such wide efect as the public has been allowed to suppose.

The automotive industry can no longer afford to ignore the engine-fuel problem. The supply will positively decline, and the price will positively soar. It must adapt itself to less volatile fuel, and it must be made to burn fuel with less waste. To accomplish these results is the task before the automotive engineers, who must turn their thoughts away from questions of speed and weight per horse-power and comfort and endurance, to avert what in the absence of effective attack will turn out to be a calamity seriously disorganizing an indispensable system of transportation.—Scientific American.

SINS OF THE TONGUE

The sins of the tongue are probably more common and certainly more subtle than are overt acts of evil. The law takes cognizance of evil, and readily punishes theft and murder, but men can steal and murder with the tongue as well as with the hand. The tongue that slanders may do worse than the hand that smites. The hand may kill the body but the tongue may destroy the reputation. The hand may steal a man's goods but the tongue may rob one's good name which is infinitely more valuable than his property. Shakespeare says rightly:

"Who steals my purse steals trash,
But he who filches from me my good name
Robs me of that which not enriches him
And leaves me poor indeed."

Slander is one of the commonest of sins. Someone has said "If all the words of illnatured calumny, of uncharitable construction of their friends, which people speak, could be made audible, what stretches of silence would open out in much talk!"

A false tongue undermines the character of its possessor. It gives expression to the baseness in a man's heart and thus digs a little deeper the groove along which his evil activities run. The oft-repeated falsehood at length becomes a part of one's character. He thinks falsely and "As a man thinketh in his heart so is he." He soon loses the respect of men, for the man who to me slanders my neighbor will in turn slander me to my neighbor.

A lying tongue works irreparable wrong to man's neighbor. It poisons the minds of his friends against him; it discredits him in society; it may cause sorrow and heartbreak and tragedy in his domestic life. One merchant may ruin another by skilful worded depreciation; one man may damage another for years by a single insinuation; one woman's tongue may break up the peace of the home.

One of the worst sins of the tongue is unjust and often ignorant criticism of men in public life. It has crept at times into the ranks of the Christian ministry when preachers have branded their brethren as hertics because they have not agreed with the views of opinion of those who seem to think they have a monopoly on God's truth and who seem to take the attitude that God has singled them out as the special vehicle of His revelation. Ignorance and carelessness may often be responsible for this but the unchristian spirit of those who perpetuate such pious slander is evidence that God has nothing to do with them. Malicious assaults are often made upon men in public life by those who are their opponents and sometimes by newspapers, which in many instances are the commercialized agents of political parties. Confusion, misunderstanding, discontent are the results. Doubtless it is one's right and duty sometimes to criticise. Honest, constructive criticism is good for every man and necessary for men who have the public weal in their hands. But all criticism to be helpful must be sincere and must be characterized by good-will. Razors are for shaving not for throat-cutting. If all criticism were prompted by true patriotism and good-will to all, of how much falsehood would it purge the speech and print that often spreads poisonous calumny through the land. Society, politics and religion demand today strict veracity, honest sincerity and hearty good-will.

This Drawing is from a Photograph

— That's why it means so much

It is from an actual photograph of Anna Case of the Metropolitan Opera singing in direct comparison with her own voice on the New Edison.

"But what's remarkable about this?" you ask. The amazing fact is that no human ear can distinguish the artist from the instrument; so perfect is the Re-Creation. This is what we call the "tone test". And it proves the truth of the Edison Company's claims about

The NEW EDISON

"The Phonograph with a Soul"

It proves that the instrument does re-create, not merely imitate. Hundreds of these tone tests have been conducted. More than 2,000,000 people have attended them. And not one could say when it was the artist he heard and when the instrument. With the lights lowered to hide the singer's lips the audience was completely baffled.

Visit our store for a demonstration of the marvelous New Edison or have one sent to your home. No obligation, of course.

MARCH AND APRIL DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Elko's four hundred turned out en masse to do honor at St. Patrick's dance held in the opera house under the auspices of the Sunshine Society. Grass is green and an emerald is green but their greenness was brown compared to the green displayed in the decorations for this dance, which was a record from every point of view. The Queen Bees left no possible chance for any improvement. The stage depicted a scene on the river Shannon and the music was furnished by Prof. Gran's Jazz Band. from Eureka, Montana, the best town in Lincoln County, and scattered the seeds of musical pep the likes of which has never been heard in the old historic burg before. They were prime favorites from the first selection. The High Admiral in affairs feminine of the town, the Queen Bee of 'the Ladies Aid, the Power Behind the Throne of the W.C.T.U., the Gossip Censor of the Sewing Circle, Court of Last Resort on all matters in Society Circles, and the Majoress Domo of the Women's Relief Corps, were all there dressed to the last hairpin, but friendly as a couple of strange pups, and added a blaze of sunshine to the dance, which ran as smooth as glare ice. A party of maskers from the Roosville valley, headed by Jim Thistlebeak, the original package of genuine joy, added considerable fun to the feast. There were visitors from Baynes, Waldo, Flagstone, Roosville, South Fork Orchards and Jaffray. At midnight supper was served, starting with Bells of Shannon Ice Cream to cool the palate for the good things to follow. Alex. Birnie, chairman of the dance committee, handed round chocolate Blarney Stones, Irish Medley Cakes, Home Rule Sandwiches galore and cakes of all kinds that would have tasted good to the angels above and the saints in glory; cups of Grayne Tea, Coffee, sweet as sugar, black as the devil and hot as hell. While supper was being served Mr. Grant sang by request that pathetic ballad entitled "You never kill the daughter till the lights go out," and for an encore "My Red Irish Rose." After this song, which was well received, the Charming Circle of Hot Potatoes started Fox-Trotting, Ping-Pong Two Stepping, the Gelatine Shake, and other dazzling varieties of dances. Everybody dances now in Elko, and they tangoed, they two-stepped and crow-hopped; they swayed and dipped and slithered and slid. The music got in their blood and the beauteous rays of the morning sun were just tinting with ruddy glow the eastern sky when the tired and happy crowd disintegrated.

Miss Jennie Nichols, of Creston, is the guest of Miss E. May Roo this week end. Mrs. Archie McKee of Vancouver is visiting the Mayor and Mrs. Klingensmith at the Mining Exchange this week; Miss Perry of Wycliffe the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hirtz; Sergt. Major Jimmy Osborne, late with the Italian army, at Kilmarnock Castle, College Avenue; Mr. Sweeting of Winnipeg look for a location for a doll's eye factory; fur buyers thicker than daisies in a summer field from Calgary; several meat salesmen from the same city, dressed up like Christmas beef, registered at the Elk hotel, one ordering a T-bone stake and when he saw it with the trimmins busted into tears, carried his own table napkin around with him with purple edges like those used in Pompeii. It was his first time in the mountains and after dinner looked as cheerful as a lop horned cow. Jim Thistlebeak says it is best always to look before you leap but when you are in Elko to buy your groceries from Fred Roo. O. C. Thompson, the well known Calgary mining man, brought down a staff of men and will start operations on the Burton Copper Mine, with Billy (Beefsteak) Myers as mine foreman. Finley Klingensmith, manager for the McLaren Lumber Co., Blairmore, was down to Elko buying up some sawmill machinery and said besides lumber they had a live paper whose editor spent considerable time putting new skins on old chestnuts. Jim Thistlebeak says that seeing is believing but we can see a lot of people whom we can't believe. Mr. J. Findley of Shawnigan Lake (no relation to Findlay of "Come where the booze is cheaper") was the week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Birnie, Aberdeen House. Earsine of Nelson with Bran, Shorts and Porridge Oats and several other Irishmen.

Good advertising, says Jim Thistlebeak, draws customers like a water melon patch draws coons. But you've got to know how. Some advertising is no more use than a box of Zam-Buk would be to a mermaid. The Editor of this great family paper can give you some good advice on advertising.

A. Watson, manager of the Home Bank, Fernie, was spending a few days last week in the Roosville valley.

Mrs. Geo. Dingsdale of the Port of Roosville, B.C., and Mrs. J. P. Stocks of Clear Springs Farm, Roosville, were Fernie visitors last week.

GRANBY SMELTER NOT CLOSING

The Grand Forks Gazette says:

"Granby smelter at Grand Forks is operating, and will operate for many moons to come—countless dozens of rumors and supposed authentic statements to the contrary notwithstanding.

At least this is the sum and substance of the best information which the Gazette has been able to obtain affecting the industry which has put and helped to keep Grand Forks prominently on the map during the past 20 years.

Although miners were said to be leaving Phoenix like rats from a sinking ship, that the existence of the smelter was said to have been reduced to a matter of but a few days, that the mine had petered out and that costs were too high if there was ore, forty dozen other reasons that had given rise to sensational rumors afloat; notwithstanding this and many other apparent clouds that hung low, the Granby smelter blew in an additional furnace this week—three furnaces now operating—and a notice was bulletined at the reduction works that it was the intention of the Granby management to "continue operations as long as possible." While this statement is undoubtedly indefinite, it may be safely assumed that it is not the intention of the Granby to discontinue operations at Grand Forks or Phoenix for some time to come at least."

THRIFT STAMPS AT THE SCHOOLS

Fernie, B.C., March 20.

The Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sirs—At the Central School, Mr. Daniels has organized a Thrift Stamp Savings system, and from the date of its inception (March 3) stamps to the value of $486.68 have been sold to the children of the schools.

Each thrift card contains space for sixteen 25c stamps, and when a thrift card is filled in it should be taken to the Post Office, where it will be exchanged for a war savings certificate with a war savings stamp attached. This war savings stamp will be worth $5.00 on Jan. 1, 1924. The individual war savings stamp is registered, thus protecting the owner against loss.

The sum collected from the teaching staff for the Patriotic Fund has been slightly over $1050.00, while the pupils have contributed slightly over $850.00 for the benefit of the Prisoners of War Fund. I am,

Yours very truly,
A. J. Moffatt,
Secy. School Board.

CONVENTION HERE IN 1920

Capt. Wellesley Whittaker, President of the British Columbia Command G.W.V.A., spent Sunday in the city conferring with the officers and members of the local branch. He occupied the pulpit in the United Church here on Sunday morning and addressed a mass meeting of the G. W.V.A. in the council chamber in the evening. While here Capt. Whittaker took up the matter of the forthcoming annual provincial convention of the Association which it was decided at the last convention would be held in this city in June of the present year. The provincial executive desired that in view of the Dominion convention coming to Vancouver in June this year that it would be much more satisfactory to have the provincial convention also held at Vancouver just prior to the Dominion conference and thus save a large amount of expense as well as having a greater representation of B.C. delegates at the Dominion convention. This matter was taken up with the boys here and upon receiving an absolute guarantee from the provincial executive that the 1920 annual B.C. convention would be held in Fernie, they consented to reliquish their unquestionable claim to this year's convention and accordingly it will be held in Vancouver.

MEETING OF POLICE COMS.

Last Monday evening a meeting of the police commission was held, Commissioners Dudley and Moffatt attending. Apart from the general routine business the only matter of interest considered was in connection with a report presented by Chief Welsby complaining on behalf of Constable Saunders against G. G. Henderson for having used abusive language to Constable Saunders. Upon hearing the report as submitted by the Chief the following resolution received the unanimous sanction of the commissioners: "That the complaint of Chief Welsby be received re G. G. Henderson using abusive language to Constable Saunders on the 21st inst., in the matter of Constable Saunders having arrested a man on the previous day. And having heard the statement of Constable Saunders this commission is of the opinion that the constable performed his duty in a correct and able manner and deplores the unnecessary interference with the performance of his duties."

1919 ESTIMATES ARE PASSED

The regular meeting of the council was held last evening with Ald. J. L. Gates acting mayor during the absence of Mayor Uphill at the coast.

The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read.

General correspondence was then taken up, the first communication being a letter from the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers' headquarters, pointing out that the corporation was not paying the union schedule of wages to their engineers. A petition also signed by D. Smith, John Brown, and W. Bateman, power house staff, was received requesting that the regular union schedule for this class of work be applied. After a short discussion, wherein Ald. Rutledge advised the council that the committee had investigated this matter and were of the opinion that the power-house staff were entitled to the increase to bring them up to the union scale, namely, $15 to the first named and 3 cents an hour for the other two, it was moved by Rutledge and Hunter: That the salaries of the power house engineers be revised as follows, effective April 1: D. Smith, $165 per month; John Brown 60c per hour; Wm. Bateman 60c per hour.

H. E. Douglas, Agent G. N. railway, wrote advising the city that at a meeting of the committee on safety of the company held at Whitefish recently the matter of children playing in the Fernie G. N. yards was the topic of some discussion. It was decided to again bring this to the attention of the council and urge that some steps be taken to have the police endeavor to prevent this dangerous practice. Mr. Douglas pointed out that their efforts here to exclude children from the railway yards had been unavailing and while the accidents so far had been negligible (only one in the past four years) this was remarkable in view of the dangers to which the children exposed themselves. The City Clerk advised the council that when this matter had come up previously the city had requested the G. N. R. to lay definite charges against specific children when they would be able to prosecute. This has never been done, but the chief of police will be instructed to have the yards in that vincinty frequently patrolled and trespassers summarily dealt with.

Mrs. M. M. Weaver forwarded remittance for net amount of taxes but complained of the interest charge and also a charge for arrears for electric light. The arrears for light were cancelled but the interest charge on taxes must be paid.

A lengthy resolution from the City of Toronto requesting endorsation was presented. This deals with the Railway Consolidation Act at present before parliament and strongly objects to the enactment of the Act as it now reads as it would entirely eliminate municipalities having any control of railway rights as applied to use of public highways, etc., therein. The council unanimously endorsed the resolution.

Wm. Ramsay, District Engineer for the District of Kaslo and formerly engineer here, sent an inquiry with regard to renting the steam roller and rock crusher during the coming summer. The matter was referred to the works and property committee to report back at the next meeting.

With regard to $14,000 worth of 5 1-2 per cent equal annual instalment debentures unsold and held by the city, the Canadian Financial Trust Co. have advised twice during the interim since last meeting as to the present market value of these debentures. The first advice quoted 80 to 82 and the second 84 to 86, which indicates securities of this nature are on the upper trend. The city cannot dispose of these, according to the by-law, for less than 90.

Relative to advising the government with regard to any damage which might occur to the Fairy Creek cable bridge during the construction of the traffic bridge, Mr. Cummings replied stating that the government disclaimed all responsibility in this connection and that the contractor must assume same. The city clerk has already advised Mr. McLean, contractor for the bridge, that he will be held responsible for any damage to the city's property and that before removing or altering any of the guys, etc., or otherwise impairing the pipe line bridge he must first obtain written consent from the proper civic official.

The city clerk was reappointed city assessor for the year 1919 and intimated the rolls would be returned by April 24th and the notices issued.

In accordance with Provincial Electrical Inspector Muirhead's recommendation for the grounding of all transformers and electrical apparatus this was approved at an estimated cost of $250. This work being of a permanent nature will be paid for from the debenture funds in hand and will not interfere with the annual estimates.

The council then resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the estimates seriatim. After considering these items for a couple of hours the committee rose and reported back to the council. On regular motion the council accepted the estimates as reported, these aggregating an expenditure for the year 1919 amounting to $86,086.72, with estimated revenue of $19,525.00, not including the regular civic levy.

Moved by Hunter and Robichaud, that a bylaw be introduced for the payment of $500 salary to the mayor and $5 each regular and special meeting for the aldermen, during 1919.

Ritchie, Patterson & Co., were again appointed auditors at a fee of $600.In considering this reappointment it was pointed out that the service supplied was three men working 21 days during the year, which would be equivalent to the work of one man for 63 days. The auditors also pay all their transportation charges and expenses and in addition they keep fully up to date with regard to municipal matters and laws and can prevent the council and city treasurer from making legal errors with respect to expenditure of public money.

Upon suggestion the city will discontinue to pay for compensation on behalf of the medical health officer and the office staff.

A committee comprising the Mayor and Ald. Rutledge and Ald. Hunter was appointed to confer with the general manager of the Coal Co. with a view to obtaining better terms in connection with the price charged for coal supplied the various departments and also relative to the price for that furnished the powerhouse, which according to the contract "shall be equal to that price charged the company's most favored customer."

Moved by Hunter and Rutledge—That eight hours shall constitute one day's work for all city employees other than fire hall, schools and police, effective April 1. The rate of wages for day labor for civic operations was fixed on the basis of $3.75 per day; foremen $4.00 per day, of eight hours.

Bylaw No. 191, being Water Rates Amenment Bylaw, received its first and second readings and adjournment was taken at midnight.

GOLF CLUB MEETING

At a meeting of the Golf Club held on Tuesday evening the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Hon. Pres., W. R. Wilson.
Hon. Vive-President, R. W. Wood.
President, Alan Graham.
Vice-Pres., R. M. Young.
2nd Vive-Pres., Francis White.
Sec.-Treas., A. Watson.

Executive Committee: E. K. Stewart, S. Herchmer, J. McLean, A. M. Owen, T. Prentice and A. Macneil.

The annual fee was fixed at $10; ladies $5; out of town members $5. As there is a great need for work to be started immediately on the course it is urgent that members send in their fees at once so that everything will be in shape for a good long golfing season.

ON LONG TRIP TO PROTECT GAME

An exploring party in charge of Inspector of Provincial Police Walter Owen, of this city, together with Constables Joseph Boardman, of Coal Creek, and A. Shipman, of Corbin, and five others representing the B.C. and Alberta Game departments, are daily expected to return here from a trip made into the wilds of the Flathead District, the extreme southeastern portion of this province, where they are investigating the matter of wholesale poaching and game hunting by unlicensed trappers.

The journey into this practically inaccessible region at this season of the year is being made after leaving civilization by dog-teams. They left here about two weeks ago, going by rail to Pincher Creek, Alta., and from thence the journey was made to Watertown Lakes near the International boundary. They then would cross the Rocky Mountain range via the Kootenay Pass into the Flathead. In that district it is believed numerous trappers from Alberta and elsewhere are operating with utter disregard to the B.C. game regulations, and with a view to the enforcement thereof the present tour was undertaken.

Among the members of the expedition is a British Columbia Justice of the Peace, who, in the event of guilty parties being found, and who may desire to pay the penalty for having contravened the laws without returning to the outside where they could be tried before regularly appointed courts, will have the option of being tried impromptu and justice meted out to them, thus avoiding a tedious overland trip of considerably over one hundred miles.

When the expedition left it was estimated the return trip would require at least two weeks, but this depended entirely upon the distance to be penetrated into the Flathead territory before rounding up all the trapping parties, the number and exact location of which are but vaguely known.

WRITES ABOUT OUR ROADS

Dear Mr. Editor—It is with pleasure I respond to your request to contribute an article on Roads. As you know I was intimately connected with the early permanent road location in this district, and have since that time taken a special interest in the welfare and development of good roads, and in consideration of the best route for the National Highway through this portion of the Kootenay District.

Roads are great contributors to the comfort, happiness and prosperity of a district. They bring distant places near, especially if they are good roads. This difference in quality makes a tremendous difference in distance. Many of us can remember the time when a trip to Cokato was as difficult as a trip to Elko now is. The true distance between two places is the time it takes to travel from one to the other and the load you can carry on this journey. These prime factors of speed and load are the measure as far as traffic is concerned of the quality of a road, whether it is good, only indifferent or bad. The automobile on account of its untiring speed has so greatly emphasized these characteistics as being necessary in roads that better road building has been the result. In good roads there are two important factors, namely, being well built, and being well maintained. The latter commences immediately the former is done. The fault too often with those in charge is to let a well built road become destroyed by traffic for want of maintenance attention. The amount of money that should be spent on a road, or more correctly the standard of construction and maintenance of a good road should depend on the quantity and class of traffic using it. In some of the provinces of Canada and in many of the States the road departments have classified roads:

1. Trunk roads, being national, interprovincial or from city to city highways.

2. Market and subsidary trunk roads being those serving a district to reach a market town or main trunk road.

3. Local roads being those serving only local needs.

This clasification has been made under their system of county appropriation for roads, so that the province and the cities may assist the first and second class roads in the county, where these roads serve more than local needs, benefitting the city or province generally. The roads benefitted by these grants are always put under the charge of road engineers, for their building and maintenance, as it is recognized universally that cheaper and better roads are obtained.

The federal government at Ottawa has just passed a bill granting twenty million dollars for roads in Canada, to be divided among the provinces over a period of five years. Each province is to receive a stated amount and an additional amount depending on their population. This money is to be spent on roads of the first and second class and is to be spent in conjunction with money contributed by the province in the proportion of 40 per cent granted by the province to a particular road.

Fernie District has this year a provincial grant for road maintenance and local road building, etc., of $30,000. In addition to this, I am given to understand the province has a fund to be expended on the more important roads of the province. They will undoubtedly accept the offer of the Dominion grant to roads, and thus increase the amount of their own fund by two-thirds of its former total. As Fernie District and our neighboring districts in East Kootenay have some very important trunk roads traversing them, we should share substantially in these special grants.

A study of the road system of East Kootenay will convince anyone that there must be at least two great trunk roads of the first class through the district, both of which will have national, and international significance. On account of the mountain topography there is little prospect of the development of any other great roads in the future. A road up the Elk river and over the pass at its head on to the prairies will most likely be built as the coal measures of the upper Elk valley are developed. This though important will not be in the class of the other two. These two great roads are now in existence and with a little amending and a continuous policy of improvement will become the great arteries of traffic in East Kootenay, to which all other roads will be feeders. The most important of these from a national as well as a local viewpoint is the existing interprovincial road crossing the district in an east to west direction, entering the province at Crow's Nest and passing through Fernie, Elko, Wardner, Cranbrook, Moyie and Yahk, and thence branching either to Kingsgate enroute for Spokane or to Creston enroute for Nelson and points west. The other great road runs in a southerly direction from Golden, through the Columbia and Kootenay valleys, via Windermere, Canal Flats and Wasa to Cranbrook, thence along the interprovincial road to near Elko and from thence by Baynes, Waldo and Flagstone to Newgate on the United States boundary. From the northern portion of this road above Windermere a partly constructed branch passes Radium Hot Springs. The Dominion government intend to join this branch with the road through the Banff National Park by building over the Sinclair Pass on to the Kootenay

BIG UNION SMOKER

Joseph Naylor, representing the miners of Cumberland, B.C., and A. McKenzie, Vancouver, B.C. Loggers' Union, visited the city on Saturday and Sunday in connection with the campaign for the "One Big Union," the new policy for organization of labor along industrial lines as opposed to the present principle of craft organization. This is the platform adopted by the Western Canada Labor Conference held in Calgary, Alta., March 13 to 15, and these gentlemen were delegates to that conference. On Saturday evening a smoker, open to everyone, was held in the Grand theatre and was largely attended. The reception tendered Messrs. Naylor and McKenzie as organizers for the One Big Union was very cordial and upon the chairman at the conclusion of their addresses requesting the audience to signify their opinion with regard to supporting this new departure by show of hands, the chair announced the meeting was unanimously in favor of the One Big Union. Messrs. Naylor and McKenzie addressed a mass meeting of Gladstone Local Union at Fernie on Sunday afternoon and also a meeting of the miners at Coal Creek on Sunday evening.

GERMAN FLEET SUPERIOR TO THE BRITISH

The British public are never tired of saying and hearing that their Navy is the vital support on which the defence of their Island and their Empire rests. They have just been through a war in which it has once more enabled them to survive and win. They have now, says the New Statesman, the opportunity of learning from a first-rate witness that their fleet's success, which they had supposed due to superiority in numbers, material and training, was in fact jeapordized by grave insufficiencies in all three respects, and that early in the struggle the Germans had very good chances, had they only used them, of wresting the trident from our grasp.

The New Statesman proceeds as follows: These revelations seem to us the most important part of Lord Jellicoe's new book—at least for his contemporaries and fellow citizens. Historians and naval strategists may be left to debate the more technical questions affecting his conduct of the battle of Jutland and particularly his deployment of the battle fleet on that occasion on the port wing column. The most impressive part of his defence of this manoeuvre is to be found in a diagram at the end of his book, "to illustrate the situation that might have arisen, had the battle fleet deployed on the starboard wing column." The underlying question of principle as to whether he should have run bigger risks at Jutland for a bigger gain seems rather one of those to which the different temperament and psychology of different men will give different answers until the end of time.

When the war began we had not a single submarine-proof base from the Straits of Dover to the Orkneys. The Grand Fleet on which our whole salvation depended, was so defenceless against submarine attack, whether at Rosyth or at Scapa, that in the early months it kept, save for coaling, almost continuously at sea, because it was safer than in harbor. The effect on boilers, condensers and machinery generally was inevitable, and it fast whittled down the margin of superiority with which we started. Thus, after the sinking of the Audacious Admiral Jellicoe's net resources totaled 17 Dreadnought battleships, 5 battle cruisers, and 42 destroyers, against a German force of 15 battleships, 5 (including the Blucher) battle cruisers, and 88 destroyers. Our shortage of destroyers remained a serious embarrassment down to the last phase of the war. Moreover, ship for ship, and gun for gun, the Germans (though perhaps neither they nor we knew it at the time) were superior to ours.

It is true that our vessels carried heavier guns. But this was neutralized (as we found out in the battle of Jutland) by the better German projectile, which pierced armor first and burst behind it afterward, instead of bursting on impact, as ours did. Moreover, the Germans could get better and more quickly on to the target. They had more practice; their ships were allowed much more ammunition for pre-war gunnery than ours. They also had a better mechanism. Only eight of Admiral Jellicoe's battleships had been fitted with a system of director-firing before the war began; and although most (not all) of the rest had been fitted before the Battle of Jutland the experience of the battle showed that the German range-finder was more accurate than ours, and their method of "stradding" by simultaneous instead of successive shots saved a great deal of time.

Their ships were better gun-platforms, because they had a broader beam; the narrower beam of the British vessels was designed to fit the narrow entrances of our older docks, which a false economy had not widened. They were also more effectively armored; our ships were particularly deficient in the deck-armor needed to resist the plunging effect of fire at extreme ranges. Further, they were much better protected against underwater dangers than ours were. Only in a few cases were British warships salved after being mined or torpedoed. German warships commonly were. In the early days our capital ships carried no device to prevent them from striking mines. A good device was gradually evolved during the war; but it was not till 1917, a year after Jutland, that the fitting became at all universal. In many other respects our naval types were ill-adapted for combined work. Our destroyers were more heavily gunned than the German but they carried only four torpedo-tubes as against six, and were therefore less formidable in a fleet action. We had no submarines capable of participating at Jultland; the Germans had many.

Our light cruisers, though the more heavily gunned, were too old and slow to scout well; the Germans not only had better sea-scouts, but they had Zeppelins, to which for the greater part of the war we had no real counterpart. The German ships carried far more powerful searchlights than ours; they also, at Jutland, made a very effective use of star-shells, which apparently we had not thought of for naval purposes. Last of all in this incomplete, though surely amazing, catalogue we may mention the case of mines. The Germans before 1914 had made a thorough study of them, both for offensive and for defensive work; they began the war with an excellent type of mine, which they used in large numbers. Our mines were almost worthless, and we had very few of them. It was not till late in 1916, Lord Jellicoe tells us, that we began to manufacture a satisfactory type of mine, and it was not until the autumn of 1917 "that really effective results against submarines by mining began to be achieved!"

Lord Jellicoe's account of how these drawbacks—or some of them—were gradually and patiently overcome is indeed strange reading. His stories of the successive flutterings of the undefended Scapa dovecote by real or mysthical submarine visits, the Fleet's hurried exits by night, and its final quasi-expulsion to as far south west at Lough Swilly, would be laughable if they were not so serious. It was not till October 23, 1914 that this great collection of ships on which the whole fate of the Empire and its allies was staked, spent its first night at a base secure from submarine attack. Equally striking is the narrative of the long delays and difficulties which beset Lord Jellicoe's attempts to give to his battleships at their northern bases the gunnery practice of which, as we have seen, they had received so much less than their enemies before the war. If ever in its history the British nation was saved by sheer luck, it was, one cannot help feeling, in the naval phase of 1914-15. We do not forget that it was magnificently served by a splendid body of officers and men afloat. Superior personnel and seamanship were the big cards in Lord Jellicoe's hand. But they (and the small margin of numerical superiority in capital ships) were almost the only ones; and no one can plausibly assert that they ought to have been.

Whose fault was it? It seems to us altogether beside the mark to accuse governments or individuals, whether civil or naval; nor is it much more revelant to blame the cheeseparing attitude of the taxpayer. The British taxpayer was in fact paying far more than the German, and getting much less value for his money.

The fault lay with the system. The German navy had a general staff, the British navy had not. There was not in Whitehall any body with sufficient authority and organization to survey and work out the British naval problem as a whole, to distribute its solutions properly, and to secure the minute and all-round correlation of means to ends. Had such a body existed, such a glaring omission as that of a proper mines-service could never have been perpetuated. Equally impossible would it have been for fighting-machines so costly, so complex and in many ways so efficiently designed as our super-Dreadnoughts to have been left so fatally deficient in important respects. A system which is first in the field with 15-inch guns, but stints ammunition for gunnery practice, which builds its fighting-monsters of the largest tonnage but keeps their beams down to save widening a few dock-entrances, is not a system at all.

A proper General Staff at the Admiralty now exists. Lord Jellicoe is not generally rumored to have been friendly to its formation; at any rate it only came into being coincidently with his departure from Whitehall. But his book provides indirectly perhaps the strongest argument for its necessity that has yet been laid before the public.

ARE AFTER BIG MONEY

To raise an estimated $300,000,000 a year for five years, a total of $1,500,000,000, to raise it not in great gifts or large subscriptions from the wealthy but mainly from individual members in tithes, after the manner of the Biblical tenth, also to disburse this immense fund over the globe and in doing it revivify the membership of Protestant churches on this continent and galvanize it into a living vital force in world affairs—such is the program of the Biggest church movement in the past two thousand years.

But for the war, which taught us to think big and pull together, writes J. Olin Howe in the New York Tribune, this change from the static to the dynamic would not have been possible, though there are 25,000,000 communicants of Protestant churches in North America, and 20,000,000 Sunday school pupils in the 200,000 churches.

The Inter-Church World Movement of North America, they call it. Thirty different denominations are in it. Cyrus H. McCormick of Chicago is its leader as chairman of the committee of one hundred, and Dr. S. Earl Taylor, executive secretary of the centenary committee of the Methodist church, is chief executive officer, with the title of general secretary.

The Methodists started it. They set out to raise $85,000,000, a total of $5,000,000 at once for war reconstruction work and the other $80,000,000 in five years. Then the Methodist church South joined in with a $35,000,000 program, making $120,000,000 of Methodist money altogether. This is already partly oversubscribed as to reach a total of $200,000,000.

One hardly thinks of the Methodist as a rich church, continues Mr. Howe, but the Methodist constituency in the United States alone has an estimated wealth of $25,000,000,000 and it is increasing at the rate of a billion dollars a year. The regular benevolence of the church increased by $600,000 last year without any special effort on their behalf.

Since 1914 the church membership has increased by 8 per cent and the benevolence by 30 per cent, merely as a reflex from the generosity shown in patriotic giving in the last five years. Just previous to the war the church board asked for $5,000,000 for retired preachers and to date has received $14,000,000. A recent request of the board of education of the church for $10,000,000 was met with $28,000,000. Perhaps the Methodist total will be more than $200,000,000.

Soon the Presbyterians began to be interested and before the world survey was complete, interest was general amongst the rest of the Protestant denominations. They just had to get into the movement or be left behind. The committee of one hundred is the result. It also takes in Canada.

While a world survey is being made for the interdenominational movement the Methodists will go right along with their program. Dr. Ralph A. Ward, who is their Chinese expert and associate executive secretary, is to spend a year on the grand survey, which is to be the basis of the world-wide welfare work.

Until this world survey is completed the exact program cannot be laid out nor its costs arrived at but $300,000,000 a year would mean only a dollar a month from every church member in the United States, to say nothing of Canada, and is a conservative estimate of what will doubtless be in hand by 1925. Meantime $10,000,000 will be added to the Methodists' $5,000,000 for war reconstruction work.

HOW FALSE FURS ARE MANUFACTURED

A process patented in France consists in an improvement in the manufacture of stuffs or objects which imitate fur, plush or velvet, or for for use as carpets and the like. The process starts with an animal's fur, or an assemblage of animal or vegetable fibres and these are immobilized by freezing them in a block of ice. The ice is then sawed into slabs and a slab is made to undergo a surface melting so as to partially free the hair or fibres on one side; then a suitable glue or cement is applied upon this urface.

A sheet of flexible material acting as the basis of a new make-up is then laid on, so that the hairs adhere to it, and afterward the whole is freed from the ice by melting leaving the mairs attached to the support. Rubber serves as a good basis for the glue or cement.

AS AGE CREEPS ON

As age creeps on, vital force gradually decreases, until, when a man or woman is around 50, the kidneys and bladder need assistance to keep them in perfect working order.

Rheumatism, neuralgia and backache are common complaints of those getting on in years. It seems to be the custom to expect these afflictions—conclude they are simply the inevitable results of old age, and that there is no remedy for them.

There is a remedy—Gin Pills—and there are hundreds of people who can prove that the remedy is good.

Mr. Frank Lalonde, a well-known farmer of St. Raphael, Ont., was enabled to return to work at the age of 61 by the help of Gin Pills. Mr. Lalonde writes that he had suffered for years with pains in his back and sides, until finally he was forced to quit work. Gin Pills relieved him to such an extent that he now states he feels as strong at 61 as he did at 30 years.

Mrs. Hugh McLeod, of Lewis Cove Road, had a similar experience with Gin Pills. In her letter to us she says:

"I am 51 years and the mother of 8 children. Five years ago I was troubled with backache and dull pains across the abdomen. I used a box of Gin Pills, and feel so much better that I will continue to use Gin Pills."

Testimonials such as these cannot be disregarded, for the aged speak the truth.

It is foolish to suffer when you don't have to. Use Gin Pills and enjoy your latter years. 50c a box. Sold by all dealers. Sample free upon request to

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a fever sishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

SYNOPSIS OF

LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

THE FAILURE OF LENINE

It would be absurd to doubt that the Bolshevist regime in Russia is doomed to extinction—as absurd as seemed any doubt, even at the worst stages of the war, of the ultimate defeat of Prussianism. Aside from other inherent defects, both Bolshevism and Prussianism are doomed to failure by their reliance upon force; even the best system could not survive the degradation and discredit which results from the endeavor to compel its acceptance by force of arms. Humanity instinctively values its freedom higher than it values the benefits which might follow from a perfect social system imposed from without instead of evolved from within.

It has been the misfortune of the Russian people, at the moment when they had thrown off the shackles of Tsarism, to fall under the tyranny of the Lenine-Trotsky combination of narrow, bigoted and revengeful doctrinaires. How the political, economic, and military institutions of Russia, honeycombed throughout by agents of, and sympathizers with, the Pan-German rulers of Central Europe fell gradually into complete confusion, once the corrupt and inept bureaucracy had been overthrown, is a matter of common knowledge. It was only when this process of disintegration had reached an advanced stage that Lenine appeared on the scene, when, "as an ambassador," says Henri Croisier, in a recent issue of L Revue Suisse, "of Wilhelm's, he had the honor of a special carriage in which to cross Germany."

Already the internal structure of the Russian state was broken down, continues this author's account of Lenine's activities, and he merely trampled upon it. Then came the application of Lenine's propaganda which turned the disorganized forces of Russia into "a band of pillaging brigands." The famous programme, the result of many international social democratic conferences, was introduced, with the addition of an "extreme element, a class despotism of the most brutal type." M. Croisier proceeds to recapitulate the chief features of the Bolshevist programme and concludes his article with the following resume of it, which exposes the degree in which Lenine (who became the leader of the Bolsheviki, or majority, after the split in the Russian revolutionary party at its second conference in 1903) had inspired it and impressed it with the spirit of revenge and intolerance:

Such is the famous programme. It is not necessary to study it long in order to discover its ommissions. But let us first put them aside and try rather to arrive at a well-knit idea of the ensemble of the Bolshevist programme. Once you have grasped it, you will be struck by its purely Utopian character; note how it reeks of hatred; it is the hatred of Lenine which is at work, not that of the Russian masses whom he has massacred by the thousand just to harden his Red Guards; the programme scarcely hides that spirit of vengeance bred from a sickly sentimentalism and devout commiseration for the martyrdom of a people, a martyrdom far more illusory than real, yet savagely held to by generations of dreamers who invented the "religion of suffering."

Let us now try to get at the heart of the system.

It reveals a new conception of the State which one may call the Bolshevik idea, a narrow, unilateral, inhuman system which may be thus expressed. "If the State has been the means by which the bourgeoise oppresses the proletariat, the proletariat, arrived at political power, will use the State to oppress the bourgeoise."

Intransigent and intolerant in its false simplicity, this conception of the State admits no meditating idea, no notion of equilibrium or compromise. Speak not of democracy or even of classic Socialism—these ideas, no matter how wide or how generous they may be, will mean to Lenine and his friends only enslavement by the bourgeoisie. No; for the bourgeois State, source of all evil, shall be substituted the proletariat State, the source of all that is beautiful and good, and that State shall be given maximum powers.

There is in this notion a filtered cynicism which I do not relish.

I know that Lenine adds that the Socialist State shall have such a role only during the period of transition, that is, during the dictatorship of the proletariat, and that the State will once more become the regulator of the political and economic life of the country once the difference between classes no longer exists. And this to my mind is only another proof of the legislator's naivete; he believes in the possibility of dissolving such a difference. Must we tell him that the bourgeoisie, though financially ruined, will not abdicate its moral and intellectual superiority? I offer as testimony many examples observed in Soviet Russia in which the middle classes, turned into bootblacks, errand runners, porters, and trench diggers, have from the very first overwhelmed their professional rivals, while the proletarians, transmogrified into public officials and factory managers, have pitiably failed, betrayed by their incapacity and the accusation of their conscience.

To imagine the eventual triumph of socialism in the form in which Lenine has endeavoured to enthrone it is to imagine ignorance prevailing over knowledge, might triumphing over right, and destruction culminating in prosperity. When Russia awakes from its nightmare it will be saved by the remnants of the "intellectuals" and "bourgeoisie" who will be able to supplement the cruder abilities of the proletariat by more specialized skill and knowledge, or it will sink into a semi-barbarism out of which it will rise only by creating anew the classes which Lenine has made the objects of an unreasoning vengeance for the crimes of "the old regime."—Manitoba Free Press.

Y.M.C.A. IN SIBERIA

Sgt. A. B. Godfrey, formerly District Manager of the Bell Telephone Co. at Nelson, is the Canadian Y.M.C.A. Secretary with the troops at Omsk, the Siberian capital city, 4100 miles inland from Vladivostock.

He left Vancouver on this long trip on a few hours' notice. Just before Christmas he left Vladivostock for Omsk, with five Russian carloads of supplies(equal to about two Canadian carloads) which he expected would last about three weeks after he arrived. A cablegram received a few days ago announced that all his supplies were gone by the time he reached Omsk, which gives some idea of the service the Y.M.C.A. is giving the boys in Siberia. Other supplies were rushed to him and he is carrying on the Y.M.C.A. work for the boys in the far Siberian interior.

PICTURE PRESENTS FASHION REVIEW

The Sisters Dolly, Roszika and Yancsi, each wear 48 complete changes of costume in the course of the action of Metro's romantic fantasy "The Million Dollar Dollies," which will be the attraction at the Orpheum on Tuesday. Nearly all of the 48 gowns worn by Yancsi are exactly like those worn by Roszika. However, in some scenes their attire is different. Roszika, for example, dresses as a fish in one scene and the gown is a sensation. Women will find this picture a fashion review and the men will also find the many gowns attractive to gaze upon.

DOCTOR SAYS VINOL IS THE BEST TONIC

Honest Opinion Doctor Gave His Patient

Bedford, Ohio.—"I was in a pitiful condition, weak, nervous and run down so I could not do my housework. I had doctored for years and tried everything under the sun. A friend told me about Vinol. I asked my doctor about it, and he replied, 'It certainly is the best medicine that can be had today. I couldn't give you any better.' I took it, and today I am as well and strong as any woman could wish to be, and it was Vinol that saved me."—Mrs. Frank A. Horkey, Ash St., Bedford, Ohio.

VIMY BATTLE SIX MONTHS IN PREPARATION

All sections of the community are relieved at the failure of Sir Sam Hughes' recent bomb (regarding the reckless sacifice of Canadians) to explode.

How careful were Canadian generals of the lives of the men who served under them? How thorough were the preparations they made before the men were sent over the top?

The famous victory of Vimy Ridge is, perhaps, the model battle of Canada's war record. It went off like clockwork. But that battle took months to prepare. It is a splendid instance of the care and precision exercised by the high command to eliminate every possibility of error and mistake, and to create a state of affairs as much as possible in favor of the attacking troops.

When in the summer of 1916, the Somme battle was in full swing, General Headquarters decided that the next point that had to be attacked was that stretch of country from Arras northward including that mighty bastion, the Vimy Ridge. Accordingly after the Canadian had been put through the mill at the Somme and had proven themselves, for the first time, as successful offensive fighters, they, battered and worn, were shifted up to the Vimy front, covering from Ecurie to Souchez.

That was in the fall and early winter of 1916. There, on a fairly quiet although muddy sector, they came to study the ground for an attack that was to take place six months later.

The private soldier and most of the officers, were quite unaware at that time, that an attack was projected. But staffs and higher commanders toiled on maps, defenses, and plans of attack months beforehand.

About Christmas, one by one, the four Canadian divisions were withdrawn out of the line back to distant rest billets. Here, in the winter fields, on ground shaped as much as possible like the ground over which they were to attack, the troops went through the drill of their battle, over and over for a period of three to five weeks. By this time, they not only knew that an attack was pending, but they knew the particular piece of ground they were to attack. Maps were handed out to everyone. Air photographs, great wads of typewritten data of the Hun defences, minute instructions as to the use of every weapon from hand bomb to the great 9.45 inch "flying pig" trench mortar were distributed.

On the fields with the aid of maps the Engineers laid out long white tapes to represent the exact lay of the enemy's trenches and by means of colored flags stuck in the ground, dugouts, machine gun posts, minenwerfer positions, and other interesting points in the Hun lines were shown.

Thus, with a little imagination, the solider could stand in the fields on the tape that represented our front line and "jumping off" place. And he could then walk forward over the fields getting clearly pictured in his mind, from the far-flung tapes and flags, the whole layout of the Hun defences he was soon to be attacking.

Each battalion had its ground laid out for it in this fashion. Day after day, the battalions did their mimic attack over the fields.

Meanwhile, up the line, guns were coming in. Secretly in the night, the field guns, howitzers, all the tremendous armament of modern war, were dragged into their prepared pits and then were covered up.

The roads, gulleys, hedges began to be filled with vast quantities of artillery ammunition. Close to the line, hundreds of "dumps" were organized where small arm ammunition, bombs, flares, were stored. The Ordnance service pushed up as close as it could with vast stores of waterbottles, bayonets, wire cutters, clothing. The Medical Corps opened stations in every ruined cellar or dugout it could claim, and filled them with bandages and stretchers.

Then up came the rested and trained infantry, and they hardly knew their old haunts. Where previously there had been poor, untidy ditches, were numerous, neat trenches and plank roads. Where there was one gun furtively popping away from behind a hedge, there were scores scattered all over the place, and there were also some monstrous, toad-like guns they had never seen before. The whole country seemed overrun with "dumps," bomb stores, the material of war. Artillery ammunition was lying all over the place, and the whole world was seething with a secret, furtive, but furious activity.

Then, for two weeks, the guns opened and never ceased their rumbling and coughing, day or night. The infantrymen peered over the ground he now knew so intimately from his acquaintance with the system of tapes. He could pick out the actual Hun trenches to correspond with the tapes he fought over in sham battles, back by Houdain. But the scene was terribly different. The Hun lines, gray, battered and slush-soaked, were erupting in tall pillars of e arth and smoke. The sky overhead was filled with a giant, ghostly whispering. The distance was shivering with crashes and paralyzing explosions. The nearer Hun lines were crested with little curling, drifting jets of silvery smoke. It was a horrible, twisted, torn, heaving bursting scene of destruction! It was the artillery's preparation of the infantry's path!

This the infantryman can see and hear. But he doesn't see the ever-increasing, overwhelming amount of labor on maps, charts and orders. He does not see the minute chain by which orders are communicated down the line. He does not see how the barrage maps are made so that the guns, from the crashing little 18-pounder field gun just behind him to the great monster guns miles back, can lay down a neat strip of raging hell just sixty yards ahead of the serenely plodding infantryman and keep it just in front of him, destroying like a blast from the infernal regions, but harming no British head.

He does not see the hundreds of pages of closely typewritten orders that come to the colonel, nor the abbreviation of these comprehensive orders that is passed on down through major and captain to the lieutenant. Nor the maps!

The corporal commands ten or twelve men. The lieutenant roughly forty. The colonel roughly a thousand; the brigadier, four thousand; the divisional commander twelve thousand.

That is, infantry.

But the divisional commander has got to know, and does know, where every one of these twelve thousand men is going to go.

And the corps commander, the man who commands not only all the forty-eight thousand infantrymen, but all the hundreds of guns.

"Well, at Vimy, that was done and done magnificently. The casualties were light. In accordance with ideas in those days, it was a great battle; although, if we had to do it over again with Amiens and Arras added to our experience, we would have gone rollicking on right past Lens to Douai. But it was neat. Every branch of the service doffed its hat to every other branch. The poor old gallant infantry hugged the gunners who laid the shells so precisely seventy-five yards from them; and almost spoke with kindness of the A.S.C. and Ordnance and Supply Columns who gave them the bombs and bullets to do the dirty work.

And the big fellows back in the chateau, who co-ordinated the whole works, made the neat maps, got up all those millions of smashing shells, then got some right hearty salutes from the P. B. Infantry!

But when the Hun grew desperate and refused to allow four to six months for the preparation of a battle, as described in the foregoing, one can imagine the tremendous labor of co-ordinating all the forces of even such a little organization as our corps when, as in the latter phase of the war, opportunity rapped on the allies' door. And opportunity is a big boss in war. When opportunity speaks, let no dog bark. Imagine as at Passchendaele, the High Command saying to the Canadians:

"You will move your whole bally organization a hundred miles north to a strange sector of which you know nothing. You will attack in two weeks! We will provide you with plenty of maps, ammunition and so on. Now, hop to it."

Could the Canadians say:

"Hold on! That's going to cost us too much. Give us four months to prepare."

If they had, the name of Canada would have been mud. The countless British divisions that had been far more terribly mauled than the Canadians, had not argued the points of the case. They had done just as the Canadians did. They went, at the double. How they did it at all, considering the enormous organization involved, will ever be a credit to the nation. And there is not a man lying dead in France today who would not have cried shame, had the corps balked at the order that sent it there.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

ACT OF "ONE BIG UNION" IS BAD

Cranbrook, B.C., March 27.—At a joint meeting of railway organizations comprised of members of the B. of L. E., B. of L.F. and E., O.R.C., O. R.T., B. of R.T., I.B.M. of W.E., I.A. M., and B.R.C. of A., held in Cranbrook on the above date, it was resolved:

"That we go on record as deploring and repudiating any connection whatever with the labor movement known as the "One Big Union" labor party recently formed in Calgary.

"That we condemn the actions of radical labor leaders who have advised labor to break away from all international organizations, sowing discord, extreme and vicious methods, urging and adopting by vote the calling of a general strike June 1 next.

"That we resent the sentiment and sympathy passed in the said convention with the Russian Bolsheviki, Soviet governments and Spartacans of Germany, also words and actions of I.W.W. propaganda.

"Further resolved that a copy of this resolution be circulated to the press urging other labor organizations to demand a refutation of the resolutions expressed by said convention toward alien, anarchist and revolutionary governments, failing which the leaders of the 'One Big Union' labor party be deprived of their rights as being unpatriotic citizens."

COAL CREEK NOTES

Saturday last was pay day up here. The mines were idle and consequently a large number of residents traveled Fernieward.

A large consignment of the male element of this camp took in the "One Big Union" smoker at the Miners hall. Our local entertainer, Pete Dawson, was a star turn with his "Two Little Pigs." While the organizers and workers of the smoker did their best there was something lacking to come up to the smokers held in our own little burg. Nuf sed.

Tom Biggs and Secretary Martin accompanied Joe Naylor and Organizer McKenzie of the Loggers Union on their visit here to address the workers on Sunday evening in the Club hall.

Owing to the Club being engaged for the above meeting on Sunday last the fifth lecture on First Aid had to be postponed.

Old Sol is sure making the snow disappear these days, Coyote street being a series of running streams. Soon the local horticulturist will be able to indulge in his favorite pursuit. Look to your laurels, Joe.

Owing to a broken down car on Monday afternoon the Fernie residents had to "take the ties."

Bob Hubberstey and family have taken up their residence amongst us as Bob has secured a position in the electric department after his return from overseas. When is the "at home" or "house warming" Bob?

We advise the "chivaree band" to keep their eyes on a certain house on Riverside avenue. Get your nickles ready, Sammy.

The mines were idle from Tuesday midnight until Wednesday midnight.

Several returned men have been getting signed up prior to starting work on April 1.

FERNIE REPRESENTATIBE

THE CALGARY CONVENTION

Surely the western labor convention at Calgary, which has declared that industrial Soviet control is to be preferred to our present system of government and which sent fraternal greetings to the Russian Bolsheviki and the German Spartacans, does not represent the viewpoint of any large proportion of the workers of Western Canada.

There is little likelihood that it will get very far with its propaganda. This will remain a democratic country instead of coming under the "proletarian dictatorship" of which the convention expressed its approval.

There is no need to fear that we shall have the conditions that exist in Russia reproduced in Canada. But the fact that a body of men claiming to be representative of western labor goes on record as in favor of such a change is bound to have a serious immediate effect. Every time that such resolutions are carried those who contemplate new industrial enterprises are bound to ask again whether they are warranted in undertaking these.

Their nervousness is quite natural. We know what has become of Russian industry under the Soviet system. Let the feeling become general that there is a danger of those conditions arising here and we shall have industrial stagnation and countrywide unemployment.

The difficulties of making the readjustment from war to peace are bound to be great in any case. But they will be made infinitely greater if those who were in control at the Calgary convention have their way. —Echo.

MINING IS A GREAT VENTURE

Mining is a great venture. Several years ago prospectors in the Parcupine district discovered the presence of gold at a certain spot. They set to work developing the property, but they finally threw up the job in disgust. Two or three hundred feet from where they were laboring were veins of gold which subsequently became the site of the now famous Hollinger mine. But it took another man to make this discovery. And now we have the case of Ophir silver mine. The original owners not having money enough to continue development work, gave the Mining Corporation, which is very much on the alert for new properties, an option on the mine. But this they surrendered within a few weeks because of the loss of their chief engineer, who was one of the victims of the marine disaster at the mouth of the Yukon last fall. About six weeks ago the Nipissing Company took up the option for $150,000. And now its workmen have in the course of their development work struck a three-inch vein, which is credited with carrying $2000 worth of silver to the ton of ore. There are hits and misses in mining, but it is the persistent that makes the hit.

TABOO HARD WORK FOR RAPATRIATED

Returning the war veteran to useful civil life is a difficult problem. But its solution is much easier than is asserted by many who desire to excuse their attempting nothing in the matter. For, unfortunately, the majority of the men do not need assistance. They have their old profession, business, or skilled occupation to fall back on—the niche they left remains open for them.

In dealing with the returned man, a sympathetic understanding is called for. For instance, recognizing that prolonged living under the conditions of trench warfare inevitably induces weakness of one kind or another, he should not be offered such arduous and exposed work as street cleaning. Besides, he has earned the right to employment carrying higher prospects for future advancement. Moreover it is unreasonable to expect the old subservient spirit to be displayed by a worker immediately after his return from a thre years' sojourn in hades. At least as much latitude should be allowed him as a parent will concede to an unstrung convalescing child. Further, it is a reflection on one's countrymen at large to show the old snobbish antipathy to invalided soldiers, and the old snobbish antagonism to their residence in the neighborhood. Whatever excuse there may have been in the old days when a soldier was apt to be scorned as an unfit for anything else, such aversion is absolutely unjustifiable now when the army includes all sorts and conditions of men. And in either case, it is an insult to the King. And it is a foolish proceeding also on the part of anyone aspiring to municipal prominence, as the day will come when the veterans and their friends will have the numerical preponderance to elect or reject.

In the absence of a sympathetic understanding on the part of the employer and the general public, the crippled or disabled have no outlook beyond a bare existence on their pension, with too much leisure in which to grow morbid and embittered. But, given the opportunity, a deaf man might become an efficient cinema operator, or the attendant of a machine subject to control by visible signal; a one-legged man might prove a capable motorman, while a one-armed unfortunate might develop ususal salesmanship ability. Men blinded in the war should be carefully examined for any latent talent that might make their training worth while, and fit them for some useful work in the musical world or the lecture room. If afforded the chance, a dozen variously handicapped carpenters — individually almost unemployable—could possibly conduct a little furniture-making establishment to the mutual advantage of themselves and the public.

Altho farm life is the truest independence, it is said that the returned man is unwilling to go on the land. But this is only because of his dread that he will be unable to "make out" on his small capital. And it is a hazardous enterprise for an inexperienced person. Indeed, to set an average townsman down on a prairie quarter-section remote from town or railroad would be to make his failure sure. For he could not keep even a live cat on the place, while he was transporting firewood enough for the winter.

But if it were arranged to settle them, say, in parties of eight, on adjoining quarter sections, covering two square miles, with one in each party an experienced farmer and two others skilled mechanics. If an agreement were drawn up which ensured "pooling" and co-operation in the matters of implements, necessary buildings, irrigation and seasonal work, such as plowing and harvesting but left each and all free to cary on in other respects independently of one another—then the call to the land and the call to the simple life would not be unheeded by the veteran soldier.

However, in a large number of instances the solution of the problem will be sought—is being sought—in a business venture. But like others who make this plunge on slender resources the returned soldier is too apt to make a hasty choice from the class of businesses that figure most prominently in the advertising columns of the newspapers. Small restaurants, groceries, tobacconists, or stationery stores are common baits to catch the unwary and inexperienced possessor of a few hundred dollars who thinks that anybody can manage them. As a matter of fact they are most precarious lines as they operate on a low margin of profit, with insignificent average receipts from each customer, and involve long hours and an amount of work or attention disproportionate to results. Even a "working" business such as cleaner and dyer or shoe repairer is preferable as entailing smaller outlay, shorter hours, less hazard, and a larger percentage of profit. But a modest furniture store, shoe store, men's furnishings, book and music store are examples of the type of business that is most suitable for the returned man with some knowledge of the particular line. For a couple of good customers a day may more than pay expenses, while with nothing doing expense and work are not accumulating — neither is the stock spoiling nor deteriorating. And with prices of all materials soaring, even a second hand business in such lines is paying today as it never paid before. And there are reasons other than patriotic why the incursion of returned men in this field would meet with the approval of the section of the public most concerned. The ownership of a few teams and wagons would put a veteran on "Easy street" for a while. But there is too great a probability that the horses would eat "their own heads" and the summer's profits during the winter time. However, this does not apply in the case of a man who is in a position to follow work in the bush thru the severer season.

FINE RUINS OF NORTH SYRIA

Northern Syria, which came into British occupation with Gen. Allenby's recent victories when Turkey went out of the war, is a country rich in ruins. These are equal to those found in Egypt and elsewhere as they include the remains of the earliest Christian churches. The land is full of romance, charm, and picturesque people.

Harold J. Shepstone, F. R. G. S., writes of Syria that it is certainly a land that is likely to come to the front in the near future. He made an extensive journey thru the more historic and interesting parts of northern Syria just before the war. He writes in part:

"Our jumping off place was Damascus, one of the oldest cities, if not the oldest in the world. It is twice as old as Rome and no historian seems to know exactly when the city was founded. But we know that when Abraham crossed the desert from Haran, 4000 years ago, Damascus was already standing on the banks of the Abana. It would be, perhaps, true to say of it that it is the oldest city with a continuous history.

"We approached it from Beirut and the dusk had fallen when our train laboriously panted into the little station, we knew that we were in no ordinary city. We had crossed a desert to reach it, yet we were now in a fertile region and a busy, prosperous, oriental city. Its situation is unique and herein lies its great charm. Imagine a magnificent plain, well watered and fertile, in the middle of a desert, covering an area of more than 30 miles in circumference surrounded on nearly all sides by high walls—imagine this vast plain in a high state of cultivation, one vast garden of fruit trees of almost every species, fields of grain, nearly every variety of flower, and the ever-present murmur of running streams. Situated about the middle of this plain, and buried in forests of grass and grain and trees and sparkling streams a city of two hundred thousand people, with its hundreds of white minarets, gilded domes and crowded bazaars—that is Damascus, beautiful indeed for situation.

Early one morning we climbed the bare slopes of Jebel Kasiun, to the northwest of the city, when you have a view which has no equal in the world. Damascus lay at our feet, like a silver spoon on a carpet of green. It was from this spot, so tradition says, that Mohammed looked down upon the city, and so charmed was he at the spectacle that he refused to enter it, lest he should be contented there to resign the glories of Paradise. It was from near this spot that the German Emperor looked down upon Damascus when he visited the Holy Land in 1898. A spacious stand was erected here for his especial benefit, and it remains to this day. The ex-kaiser did not attempt to hide his admiration of the spectacle, and it was while he was at Damascus that he declared himself to be "The Protector of Islam."

Damascus undoubtedly owes its beauty, vitality and wealth to the River Abana which rises in Lebanon, some twenty miles away. Before it reaches Damascus it is divided into six artificial channels (the main one about 50 feet wide) running thru the heart of the city. Pipes are led from it to every part so that every mosque and house and court has its fountain, and everywhere you go, amid groves or gardens or public resorts or retired nooks, you may see and hear the murmur of swiftly-flowing and sparkling streams, and this abundance of clear cold water is one of the charms of the city.

Damascus is mentioned many times in the Scriptures more particularly in connection with St. Paul.

Some 60 miles northeast of Damascus lie the ruins of Baalbec, now reached by rail. They are rightly renowned for their massiveness and for the great amount of both bold and delicate carvings with which they are adorned. Here the ancient Assyrians worshipped Baal, the Greeks their sun-god Helios, and the Romans Jupiter. The early Christians, too, worshipped the God Jehovah at ancient Baalbec, turning the great pagan temple into a Christian shrine. They in turn were driven out by the Arabs, who converted these wonderful old temples into fortresses.

Altho inscriptions and tablets make this very clear, we have nevertheless very little knowledge of ancient Baalbec. Its history is lost in the thick obscurity of a very remote past, and even its existence was for centuries utterly unknown. Yet all these ruins only represent the remains of two grand temples and a smaller one—the Great Temple or Temple of Jupiter, the Temple of Bacchus and a small circular temple of Venus. Nevertheless, within the colossal walls of this ancient Syrian Acropolis one could place the ruins of ancient Rome.

The ruins stand on an artificial oblong plateau of masonry, about three hundred and thirty-one yards long by two hundred broad, and varying in height from fifteen to thirty feet.

The Temple of Bacchus is far more complete and is noted for its leaning column. This latter fell some years ago, and although it broke it failed to pierce the thick walls. These are built of carefully dressed stone, the joints so perfect that a knife blade cannot enter between. The enclosing wall of the temple area is built of mammoth stones which have been the marvel of engineers for ages. They are the largest building blocks ever known to have been used by man and a still larger one lies in the ancient quarry near by, never having been detached from the rock beneath. This one is seventy feet long, fourteen feet high and thirteen feet wide. Its estimated weight is fifteen hundred tons and it is calculated that to raise it would require the combined strength of fifty thousand men!

The sun was just setting when we rode into Bsherreh, situated on the edge of a great cliff almost at the head of a deep valley. From here the object of our goal, the historic cedars could be seen far away on the horizon on the bare mountain-side, a little forest of some four hundred trees They lie on a small, fertile plateau, situated at an altitude of six thousand one hundred and twenty-three feet above sea level. These old trees have always occupied a position of honor in the estimation of man because of their connection with the temple built by Solomon and the various allusions to them in the Bible.

They are justly renowned for their age, size, and beauty. Experts who have studied them declare that the patriarchs of the grove are two thousand years old. The girth of their trunks is enormous, the largest being 47 feet in circumference. The beauty of the trees lies in their wide-spreading limbs, which often cover a circle of two or three hundred feet in circumference. Some are tall and symmetrical with beautiful horizontal branches; others are gnarled and knotted, with inviting seats in the great forks and charming beds on the thick foliage of the swinging boughs.

The patriarch of this little forest is called the "Guardian." Its great trunk is twisted and gnarled by struggles against the storms of ages, and the names which famous travelers carved a century ago are not yet covered by its slow-growing bark. A particularly beautiful specimen is that known as the "Symmetrical Cedar." Its branches extend straight out at right angles to the trunk and are covered with exceedingly thick foliage, brown as seen from beneath but when viewed from the hillside resembling a rich dark green, studded with cones standing erect. This particular tree has been adopted as the emblem of the Syrian Protestant College at Beirut, and is pictured on their seal.

So far as Aleppo is concerned it is one of the largest cities in the east, the capital of northern Syria, and a busy place. It is famed for two things —its castle and its boils. This latter is a kind of skin disease which prevails in this region. It takes six months for the eruption to come to a head and another six for it to disappear, leaving a nasty scar behind. The castle, which stands on a hill in the centre of the town, is one of the finest edifices of its kind in the world and has withstood many notable sieges. The tradition is that it is supported upon eight thousand pillars. Being Christians, we were not allowed to enter it.

Engaging the services of an Arab guide we struck north westwards to Antioch passing en route the ruins of Kalat Simon or Church of St. Simon, one of the oldest of the early Christian churches. Here it should be remembered that it was at Antioch that a Christian community was for the first time formed independently of the synagogue and here the members of the new sect were first called Christians.

There are many other ruins of churches in and around Antioch, the finest and most imposing of them all being those of the Kalat Simon. They lie on a plateau about six hundred yards wide. Here, in the fifth century after Christ an imposing church was raised by the Stylites, or "pillar hermits." Simeon, the founder of the order, after whom the church was named, was born in 391 and died in 459. He began at an early age to subject himself to the severest penances and privations.

River, and thence up the Vermillion river and over the Vermillion Pass to the Alberta side near Castle station on the main line of the C.P.R., thence connecting with the Banff-Calgary highway.

These two roads will serve well the district as trunk roads for its local needs. They, however, have a great deal wider importance. With the extension of the road from Creston via Nelson and the Boundary Country to Vancouver, they become portions of the interprovincial road. The through coast traffic may enter the district either via Vermillion Pass near Banff coming to Cranbrook through the Kootenay valley and thence west, or they may enter through the Crow's Nest Pass via Fernie to Cranbrook and thence west on a common road. At present there is no road across the province in the vicinity of the C.P.R., or is there likely to be for many years to come as the country is rugged, the passes high, and these passes are closed with snow for many months in the year, so that this southern route is the only reasonable one. Traffic bound for the United States from the prairies will pass over these trunk roads and be diverted south across the U. S. boundary at Kingsgate to Spokane and western points, or traffic may cross either of these Rocky mountain passes and travel south via Elko to the U. S. boundary at Newgate. Improvements are being made on the road connecting Newgate with Kalispell and from there the Glacier National Park of the United States is accessible. The grades on these trunk roads are very low and judging from favorable comparisons made by tourists with the roads of other districts, we have every reason to be proud of the existing roads in this district. British Columbia is deserving of an ever increasing revenue from tourists. This will rapidly grow in the future. On account of the magnificent scenery in this district which may be viewed from these auto roads, the routes will become very popular with tourists. Indeed this Rocky mountain belt in which we live will become a second Switzerland for the sightseer, on account of its magnificent beauty and easy accessibility by auto.

The road system has numerous possibilities for the automobile tourist. Take for example the "tired business man" of Calgary who wishes to take a week's auto trip. Could he choose a better run than through Banff and over the Vermillion Pass, thence south through the Kootenay Valley, and back via Fernie to Macleod and thence north to his home in Calgary. Or take for instance our American friends, who wish to see as much mountain scenery as possible. Could they beat an auto trip through the United States Glacier National Park and thence north via Gateway, through Fernie and over the Crow's Nest Pass to Macleod, thence north via Calgary to the Canadian Banff National Park, and thence back over the Vermillion Pass and south through the Kootenay Valley to Gateway again? There is a feeling of rivalry to a certain extent in the Crow's Nest Pass towns between the Crow's Nest Pass road route and the Vermillion Pass road route, it being felt that the Vermillion Pass road will not have the merits of the Crow's Nest road for national highway purposes. From a traffic point of view the Crow's Nest Pass road will be the better route. It has no big grades on it. It is in good condition. The highest point of the road at Crow's Nest is 800 feet lower than the highest point on the proposed Vermillion Pass road. As a national through route it is more direct than the other. It is open to auto traffic and free from snow blockade for about two months more each year than the other road will be. The Crow's Nest road serves a number of towns situate at short intervals through the Pass. This will not likely be the case with the Vermillion Pass road. These combined important differences must assure the Crow's Nest Pass road of a national importance, greater than the other road. However, the Vermillion Pass road should not be looked on as a rival. It is primarily a tourist road permitting traffic to leave the Banff National Park by the back door. Tourists crossing it into the Kootenay Valley will most likely return by the Crow's Nest Pass, so that the opening of this road will benefit Fernie and Pass towns.

In the future there will be an interprovincial road built across B.C. further north. At the present time I understand there is an agitation on foot in Edmonton and Northern Alberta, and in parts of Northern B.C., to have the Canadian National Highway pass through Edmonton and over the Yellowhead Pass, and down the North Thompson river to Kamloops and thence to the coast. You will notice this is the route of the Canadian National Railway (C.N.R.) now owned by the Dominion. Rumor says this proposal was looked on with favor by some at Ottawa. As far as British Columbia is concerned, I feel certain that the southern route via Cranbrook and Nelson will be followed on account of it serving by far the greater part of the population of the interior of B.C. The route by the Yellowhead Pass while not the best, is a feasible one. We should welcome therefore any roaad that diverts the traffic of central Alberta southerly on to the southern interprovincial road via Cranbrook and Nelson, always remembering that as traffic increases over a road, government road departments put forth more efforts to improve that highway. As we are on a road of national importance we should look further afield than our own purely local situation. I think if we do so we will realize that the opening of the Vermillion Pass road from the Banff National Park to the Kootenay Valley will be a real benefit to us in the Crow's Nest Pass.

A network of good roads in this mountain district will mean not only pleasure to our personal journeys but a substantial profit to all living in the district. We have the ever growing revenue from auto tourists. This bids fair to reach very large proportions in the future. If we do not realize it, we should realize it, that we have one of the finest tourist resorts in America for the automobile pleasure-seeker. The narrow confines of any national park are too small for him. He needs a big country with good roads and beautiful scenery to ramble through, with fine camping grounds, good fishing and hunting. These we have in abundance. For our future pleasure and prosperity everyone "jump in" and boost for good roads in East Kootenay.

Alfred Cummings,
Civil Engineer.

MRS. C. PENDEN GAINS 27 POUNDS

Twice Examined and Each Time Told Operation Was Only Hope

"I have finished my third bottle of Tanlac and have gained twenty-seven pounds," was the truly remarkable statement made by Mrs. Chas. Penden residing at 550 Mill Street, Huntsville, Ala. Mrs. Penden is one of the best known and highly respected women of that thriving little city, where she has made her home for a number of years.

"When I commenced taking the medicine," she continued, "I only weighed ninety-eight pounds, now I weigh 125 pounds and never felt better in my life. For years I have suffered with a bad form of stomach trouble constipation and pains in my side and back. At times the pain took the form of torture and I was twice examined and each time I was told that I had appendicitis and that an operation would be my only hope. I had fallen off until I only weighed ninety-eight pounds and was so weak I could hardly get around

"I had no appetite at all scarcely, and what little I did eat would cause gas to form in my stomach, which gave me palpitation of the heart. When the spells came on I would get awfully nervous. I worried about myself until I could rest and sleep but little.

"I had fallen off until I was almost skin and bones and my strength and energy were slowly leaving me. I had a dread of the future and could see nothing but the operating table and the knife. I had a perfect horror of an operation but I had made up my mind that it was either life or death and prepared to submit to it. I had made all preparations for the operation and called on my sister to tell her good bye, as I did not know whether I would live to see her again or not. My sister begged and pleaded with me not to allow them to cut on me and told me to wait and try a good tonic for a while. The next day, as I returned from the consultation room I thought of what she said and as I had heard so much about Tanlac I decided to try it as a last resort and stopped at Gilbert's drug store and bought a bottle. Of course I had lost heart and had no faith in the medicine, but to please my sister I made up my mind to take it and oh, what a happy day that was for me!

"I never returned for the operation, but just kept taking the Tanlac. Right from the start I began to feel better. The medicine seemed to take hold right at once. It had a soothing effect and in a few days I had no pain at all. I was so happy over the wonderful improvement in my condition that I sent for my neighbors to tell them how much better I felt. I sent and got another bottle of Tanlac, and and have just fginished taking my third bottle, and feel like I have been made all over again into a new woman.

"As I have said before, I new weigh 125 pounds, and my improvement has been so rapid that none of my clothes are big enough for me. I will have to make them all over again. I now have a ravenous appetite and my husband says I am simply eating him out of house and home. I have even gone back to my coffee which I was told not to touch. Those terrible pains in my back and head have all disappeared and I sleep like a child. I am no longer nervous and when I get up mornings I feel refreshed, cheerful and bright. I am now able to attend to my household duties and I feel as if I had started life all over again. My husband is highly delighted, and my recovery is the talk of the neighborhood. I do nothing but rejoice all day long over the recovery of my health and praise Tanlac to everybody.

"I feel so grateful for my escape from the operating table and the knife that you may publish what I have said; you may, if you will, tell other women suffering as I was, to come and see me and I will be glad to tell them all about my case.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.

CHINESE IMMIGRATION

The new orders to be put into effect by the Dominion government will have a tendency to exert an excelent influence on the labor problem in this province. In the first place there is to be strict enforcement of the prohibition of the entry of skilled and unskilled labor from alien countries. This order has undoubtedly been relaxed from time to time but whatever excuses might have been legitimate in the past no longer can apply. Work in British Columbia is wanted for the people of the province and in this direction every available effort at conservation must be made at this time. The prohibition of skilled and unskilled labor is also to be made to apply to the admission of Chinese who come here disguised as merchants or students.

The new regulations regarding Chinese immigration are particularly important at this time. Shipping companies which have ports of call in Canada are to be instructed not to carry new Chinese immigrants.. This regulation can be applied to Canadian companies and to British companies by arrangement with the British government. It is not stated how it will be made to apply to Japanese companies but doubtless a way can be found. In addition to this prohibition the head tax of 1200 Chinese now in their homeland awaiting passage to Canada is to be refunded and their entry will be refused. Those Chinese who were in this country three months before the signing of the armistice will be given an opportunity to return to China, and if they elect to do so their head tax will be returned. There will be an investigation into those of the so-called student class and if it can be proved that any are not bona fide they will be deported. Finally those Chinamen formerly of this country who are now in China and have the right to return here will not be permitted to exercise that right during the period of reconstruction.

In addition to the foregoing there are to be further regulations. What is being done indicates a rigid determination on the part of the Dominion government to deal with this problem in what appears to be the only possible way. The new regulations must have been the subject of conversations with the Chinese government, so it may be anticipated there will be no opposition from Pekin. In effect the regulations mean that any influx of Chinese immigration has been stopped, while under the provision made whereby the head tax will be refunded, it possible a percentage of those now here will elect to return to their native land. Possibly the fact there is now a disposition among employers of Oriental labor to dispense with Chinese and make way for white men will be a factor in determining many of the former to return to China. In any case the new regulations, if rigidly enforced, will meet with the approval of those most anxious in this era of repatriation. We might say that Dr. S. F. Tolmie and Mr. J. C McIntosh, the Federal members for Victoria and Esquimalt, have been most active in bringing the Chinese immigration problem to the attention of the Dominion government. The regulations decided upon by Mr. J. A. Calder, the minister of immigration and colonization, are undoubtedly due to the active campaign carried on by these members.—Colonist.

Your Safeguard in Buying Shoes

WHEN you buy shoes, you take somebody's word for value. It is CONFIDENCE which leads you, in the end, to lay down your hard-earned dollars for shoes. And you are right in buying where you feel the most confidence.

This confidence on the part of the buying public is the biggest asset which any dealer, or any manufacturer can have. The reputable, established dealer has YOUR interests in mind when he buys his stock; the manufacturer bears them in mind when he makes it.

REGARDING IMMIGRATION

Canada, according to a statement just issued by the government, last year received nem immigrants to the number of 79,074. While this is not a number worth boasting about, yet it is sufficient to impart at least a degree of satisfaction, being as it is the best in two years, only 48,537 entering the country in 1916 and 75,395 the following year.

While we are now only getting immigrants at the rate of a little over 1000 a week, as compared with over 1000 a day in pre-war times, yet somehow we are not worrying about it. The fact of the matter is that while we are anxious to get immigrants we are getting more particular about the kind we admit. In other words the experience of the past has taught us to be cautious. To populate the western lands of the Dominion is important, but we have discovered that it is better to make haste slowly, by encouraging only those who have the potential qualities of good citizenship, than by swinging wide-open the doors and allowing every Tom, Dick and Harry to take up his abode with us without any concern whatsoever as to his anteoedents.

Since the outbreak of the war the immigration department at Ottawa has been practically concentrating its efforts to the securing of immigrants from the United States and the agricultural class at that. The result of this is to be seen in the fact that out of last year's total of 79,074 no less than 71,314 came from the neighboring republic, compared with 61,389 in 1917.

INCOME TAX PERPLEXING

Canadian companies having branches in the United States and vice versa, are doing much coigitating and much figuring regarding the income taxes imposed by both countries. Some of the larger corporations in Canada, and presumably those in the United States as well, have recently taken experts upon their staff whose special duty is to try and unravel the mysteries of the intricate regulations supposed to govern the respective acts of the two government.

"The American regulations are particularly perplexing," remarked the general manager of one Canadian corporation which has one or more branch factories in the United States. "The trouble across the border is that members of congress do not appear to give as much thought and attention to the subject in hand as our members of parliament do. Only the other day a representative of our company asked a member of congress who had been on the income tax committee of the house for an interpretation of certain clauses in the act. "To tell you the truth," he replied, "I don't know anything about the darned thing." Still another of our representatives whom we sent from here to interview the revenue officer in charge at one of the American border cities, failed to return with any information. "I'm not bothering my head about the perplexing thing until I've got to," was all the information our expert could get. In consequence of the difficulty of fathoming the intricate raft of regulations which are being sent out from time to time by the American government, we are being put to our wits' end in preparing our annual report," he concluded.

One thing that has been settled and one which has greatly relieved the minds of the executive of international corporations, is that the governments of the United States and Canada have arrived at an understanding whereby taxation will apply only on incomes earned within their respective borders, instead of each demanding a slice of the whole.

ELKO NOTES

Holders of water rights secured from the province, who have so far failed to initiate any development work in connection with them, must be prepared to utilize their rights or have them taken from them, according to a statement made in the legislature by the Hon. T. D. Pattulo, Minister of Lands. At Elko, the Queen City of the Crow's Nest Pass, we have the greatest natural resources in the province—bar none.

Elko's great and only drawback is its proximity to the one man town of Fernie, whose citizens will do nothing themselves nor let anyone else do anything. They want it all or the machinery don't start. Besides Elko's great waterpower it has the best location for a pulp mill, with material to keep it running for 30 years, and we have other resources of similar magnitude, and if Elko was as near to Cranbrook as it is to Fernie, these natural resources would be operating right today. Fernie is like the old woman's rocking chair—makes a lot of moves but never gets anywhere. It may sound Irish, but it is a fact. The reason Fernie has only a few thousand residents instead of fifteen or twenty thousand, is because they have played the same game as the old maid who could have been married if she had not put up her umbrella every time it began to rain kisses.

Jim Thistlebeak says that men who carry it in a bottle should use a flask. The round quart bulges one's coat out of shape.

The man who fails is the sort of chap
Who is always looking around for a snap,
Who neglects his work to watch the clock;
Who never misses a chance to knock.
He is grouchy and slow when work begins;
When it's time to quit he jokes and grins;
He's always as busy as busy can be
When he thinks the boss is around to see.
He believes that a "pull" is the only way
By which he can ever draw bigger pay,
And he sulks and growls when he sees his plan
Upset by the "push" of another man.
He's on the job when he draws his pay.
That done, he fritters his time away,
While the men who tackle their jobs with vim
Keep pushing and climbing ahead of him.

The man who fails has himself to blame,
If he wastes his chances and misses his aim.
He'd win if he'd used his hands and wits;
The man who fails is the man who quits.

Jim Thistlebeak says: Don't run up a bill at your grocers; nor run down your neighbor; and for heaven's sake don't be forever looking at the hole in the doughnut. How far will a dollar go in Elko, Mabel? That depends who is out with you, but if you are looking for something for nothing, get a bucket of water.

Contractor Alex. Butts returned from Pueblo, Colorado, last week, where he holds big interests in the steel works at that place. He was glad to get back and says Canada for him. He left Monday for Flagstone and the Roosville valley, where he expects to buy up several timber limits and start logging operations.

Jim Thistlebeak says the following is a good recipe for a town: Grit, vim, push, snap, energy, well attended schools, morality, churches, harmony, cordiality, good advertising, talk about it; speak well of it; help to improve it; advertise in tis papers; patronize its merchants; elect good men to office; faith exhibited by good works; make the place healthy; and fire all the croakers, grouchers, loafers and deadbeats; open all the windows of your receptiveness; let your friends come in, new wine blows up old bottles; friendship brings happiness to its flood. Cheer up! the war is over and there's a good time coming if you will only do your share; don't sit down and wait for the other fellow; jump in yourself and get your feet wet, the water's warm.

To prove that it pays to advertise, Fred Roo, General Merchant, Elko, B.C., last week got a letter from Australia, addressed: Fred Roo, Canada. Jim Thistlebeak says they must read the Elko Notes in Australia.

BOLSHEVISM REVEALED

(Boston News Bureau, Feb. 22)

There are too many people who are trying to convince themselves that the Bolshevists are at heart good people who are endeavoring to help humanity and are saying that the violence and bloodshed in Russia is merely an unfortunate incident in the progress of a noble cause to be attributed to the natural reaction of an oppressed and ignorant people after centuries of degradation.

Their number finds recruits from otherwise intelligent people who constitutionally like to sympathize with what they are pleased to consider the under dog, and they are swelling the usual company of "long-haired men and short-haired women" who are flirting with parlor socialism.

Within the week women of the highest social connections have taken their places on a Boston platform before a large gathering where the deportation of alien anarchists was condemned, and every mention of the I. W. W. and the Bolshevists was wildly cheered.

There are some subjects into whose exact details the American press is naturally reluctant to go. Probably for that reason the testimony this week of R. E. Simmons before the Senate committee investigating Bolshevism has not yet become generally known.

Mr. Simmons was formerly a representative of the department of commerce in Russia who left Archangel for this country last November.

These are days when it is necessary to call a spade a spade, and every word of his testimony should be known to every woman as well as every man in this country. Mr. Simmons read to the Senate Committee decrees of various Bolshevist Soviets which we reproduce from the New York Times.

A decree issued by the Soviet of the City of Vladimir follows: Vladimir is the capital of the province of the same name, 75 miles from Moscow.

"Any girl having reached her 18th year and not having married is obliged, subject to the most severe penalties, to register at the Bureau of Free Love of the Commissariat of Surveillance.

"Having registered at the Bureau of Free Love, she has the right to choose from among the men between the ages of 19 and 50 a cohibatant husband.

"Remarks — (1) The consent of the man in the said choice is unnecessary. (2) The man on whom such a choice falls has no right to make any protest whatsoever against the infringement.

"The right to choose from a number of girls who have reached their 18th year is also given to men.

"The opportunity to choose a husband or wife is to be presented once a month.

"The Bureau of Free Love is autonomous.

"Men between the ages of 19 and 50 have the right to choose from among the registered women, even without the consent of the latter, in the interests of the State.

"Children who are the issue of these unions are to become the property of the State."

The decree states further that it has been based on the "excellent example of similar decrees already issude at Luga, Kolpin, etc."

A similar "project of provisional rights in connection with the socialization of women in the city of Hvelinsk and vicinity" has been published in the Local Gazette of the Workers' and Soldiers' Deputies, Mr. Simmons said.

At that the Bolshevists of Vladimir, Luga, Kolpin, Hvelinsk, etc., are conservatives as compared with those of the city of Saratov. Saratov is the tenth largest city in all Russia, with a population of 217,000. The proclamation of the Soviet of Saratov was published in the last issue of the Fernie Free Press.

I.W.W. POLICIES NOT POPULAR

The western conference of labor held at Calgary adopted the I.W.W. principles of warfare to maintain their rights and to advance their prosperity. They declared themselves free from the international union and like the I.W.W. in the States will call the new organization "The One Big Union." They are to have nothing to do with politics, as they scorned the ballot as a means of protection to work out their own future salvation along different lines. In the new union every laborer, skilled or unskilled, will stand on the same basis. The result of the deliberations at this conference does not augur well for labor as a whole, and especially is this the case with those who will be identified with the new combination. Labor has made great strides during the past few years in the way of receiving more adequate pay for services rendered and this has been due to labor unions who have played the game fairly and in demanding increased pay and shorter hours have had the sympathy of the great mass of people not identified with unions. The element that proposes to challenge public opinion by following in any manner whatsoever the policies pursued by the I.W.W. will be forced to go against a losing game. The red flag of anarchy is not a popular emblem among the great masses of the people in the Dominion of Canada or in any of the western provinces.—Kamloops Sentinel.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

GOOD ROADS ASSOCIATION

Delegates from Medicine Hat to Cranbrook gathered at the city of Blairmore on Tuesday of this week and formed themselves into an association known as the Crow's Nest Pass National Highway Good Roads Association.

Among those present were Mayor Cameron and four delegates from Cranbrook; E. K. Stewart, representing the Fernie Board of Trade; F. C. Lawe, the Fernie Automobile Association, the mayors of Coleman, Blairmore and Lethbridge; two delegates from Taber; W. Cousins, representing the Board of Trade of Medicine Hat; also numerous delegates from Pincher Creek, Cowley and Macleod.

It was decided to make the Association a permanent affair and the following were elected:

President: Ex-Mayor Morrison, of Coleman.

Vice-President: F. C. Lawe, of Fernie.

Sec.-Treas.: J. R. Smith, of Lethbridge.

The following resolutions were then passed:

Resolution No. 1:—

Whereas we understand that a Canadian Highway Act is now before the Dominion government, the chief object of which is the construction of an "All Canadian" Highway from Glace Bay, near Sydney, Nova Scotia, to Cape Scott, on Vancouver Island.

And whereas, to serve the best interests of the whole Dominion, taking into consideration due engineering difficulties, this highway should be built by the most direct route.

And whereas, we consider the most direct route westward from Winnipeg is via Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and the Crow's Nest Pass.

And whereas, on account of the low altitude of the route through the Crow's Nest Pass it is open for traffic much longer each year than any other route through the Rocky Mountains.

And whereas, there is at the present time an existing motor road from Winnipeg to Vancouver via the Crow's Nest Pass with the exception of 115 miles to be constructed in British Columbia, west of Sirdar, at an approximate cost of $579,000 as follows: Sirdar to Kuskanook, 6 miles; Nelson to Rossland, 4 miles; Rossland to Paulson, 32 miles; Princeton to Hope, 73 miles.

And whereas, said route would serve the most populous industrial and commercial centres and agricultural communities in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, particularly in British Columbia, where 92 per cent of the population is resident south of the Dominion Railway belt.

And whereas, the route through the Crow's Nest Pass traverses districts where there are many flourishing industries, including extensive mining, lumbering, fuit growing and ranching enterprises.

And whereas, the unsettled portions along the B.C. section of this route are being thrown open for immediate settlement by the B.C. government.

And whereas, there is already a heavy volume of tourist and settler traffic from the States of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana over the Crow's Nest Pass route to the Prairie provinces.

And whereas, this route will promote considerable trade and traffic with the United States which are at present engaged in constructing a network of useful and permanent roads connecting all the principal centres.

And whereas, both the Dominion and Alberta governments are deriving considerable revenue each year from the Alberta Crow's Nest district, the royalties from natural resources, on coal, timber and irrigation, a portion of which the convention contends should be returned to the said

OLD AGREEMENT STILL IN FORCE

The agreement between the Western Coal Operators Association and District 18, United Mine Workers of America, automatically expired on Monday last, but through a temporary arrangement arrived at over a month ago by the consent of both parties, and that of the Director of Coal Mine Operations, to continue operation at the mines under the same conditions as prevailed under the terms of the agreement. No stoppage of work will occur immediately at least.

This is a departure from the old custom whereby upon the conclusion of the agreement if a renewal had not been duly executed on March 31, even though negotiations were in progress, work automatically ceased and the mines remained idle indefinitely or until a new agreement had been consummated.

The present policy, known to the mine workers as the "non-suspension policy," has superceded the old form and undoubtedly is infinitely more satisfactory to all parties affected, either directly or indirectly. Under its application work continues as it normally would if there was a binding agreement in effect during the progress of negotiations and until a mutually accepted agreement is formulated. If, however, at any time after a reasonable attempt to reach such an amicable adjustment, it is alleged and demonstrated by either party that the other party is wilfully impeding progress towards a settlement, then negotiations may be abruptly terminated and a strike or lock-out follows.

Instructions in regard to the continuance of work in the local mines are, in effect, to continue under identically the same conditions and schedules as per old agreement. It is also understood that efforts are under way for the convening at Calgary of a joint committee representing the respective parties to the contract with the Department of the Director of Coal Operations at their disposal in order to assist in a mediatory or supervisory capacity. In this manner it is expected there will be no undue delay in formulating the draft terms of a new contract which will subsequently be submitted to the miners for their ratification or rejection.

DR. BONNELL TALKS IN HOUSE

Mr. Saul Bonnell (East Kootenay): Mr. Speaker, I desire to say a few words this evening, and while I have not trespassed upon the time of the House before, I shall make my remarks very brief, because this debate is drawing to a close, and I am sure the members and the public in general are not anxious to hear a rehash of all the arguments which have been put forward. At the outset, I wish to offer my congratulations to the mover and the seconder of the Address and to add my congratulations and approval to their efforts, which are especially pleasing to me because they are both men who have served their King and country overseas. It is a matter of special gratification to me because the seconder of the Address is a member of my own profession.

We in Canada, I am sure, all rejoice in the grand and glorious termination of the war. We are proud of the part that Canada has taken and played in this titanic struggle. We are also proud of the imperishable fame our Canadian boys have brought to Canada.

We are now face to face with the problem of getting some three or four hundred thousand men re-establbished in civil life. This is not an easy task, and the country has this and many other problems of great importance to deal with. Let me consider, for a moment, what this means. During the past four years, our whole machinery has been utilized towards the developing of a fighting programme. We are now bound to bring ourselves back once more to conditions of peace. The man who has been in the army for one, two, three or four years has had some one to think and provide for him. He did not have to worry where his next meal or his next suit of clothes was coming from. Everything was provided for him, even medical attendance in case of sickness or accident. When he returns, he will be thrown on his own resources and will have to provide all these necessities for himself. In many cases he is not the same man as he was when he left our shores. He has many times gazed into the jaws of death, and it is not to be expected that he should be the same man as when he went away. I want right here to sound a warning to employers of labor on this man's behalf. Since coming back to Canada I have, in connection with medical boards, come in contact with these men appearing for medical examination with regard to pensions. I have, as a medical man, observed that these men are not the same mentally or physically as when they went away. I have watched them come back and get employment in Canada. I have watched them try one job after another, become dissatisfied with one job, throw it up and try something else. Many of them are not able to give one hundred per cent of service. All I ask for them is that the employer shall be a little patient with the returned soldier and in a short time he will be as good as he was when he left.

I am sure the Government is to be congratulated on the energetic manner in which they are dealing with these problems which are new and with which no country has had to deal with before. The huge program of expenditure which the Government have in view will go far towards providing employment for all, and I am glad to hear the Acting Prime Minister state that in a few months there would be no unemployment in Canada. We must all recognize that we have a duty to perform in this mat-

BREAK LAW; HEAVILY FINED

The police party in charge of Inspector Walter Owen of this city returned this week from their expedition into the Flathead in search of those engaged in illegal trapping and brought with them three prisoners, R. Vroom, A. Elliott and Harry Truitt. Against the first named seven charges were preferred, while against the other two six charges were laid. Vroom pleaded guilty to five charges. Elliott and Truitt pleaded guilty to four. They were found guilty in one instance where they pleaded not guilty and one case was dismissed. In all the aggregate of the sentences meted out by the magistrate were: For Vroom fines of $900 or 16 months imprisonment. For the others $800 each or 12 months. Appeals, however, have been entered in their behalf by A. Macneil, barrister, of this city.

The trip into the secluded territory was made on snowshoes with dog teams hauling the supplies, and in all required slightly over two weeks. Shortly after starting out the main expedition was divided into two parties of three each, one entering British Columbia via the Akimina Pass near the International boundary, the other party travelling via the middle Kootenay Pass, penetrating until the Flathead river was reached. It had been arranged for them to continue following down the river to the confluence with Akimina Creek, thence up the creek, effecting a junction with the first party located at a trapper's cabin near the source of Akimina creek. However, through delays from various causes and shortage of supplies the two parties, in charge of Inspector Owen and Constable Boardman respectively, did not reunite until returning to Pincher Creek.

The charges laid against the three accused and the penalties inflicted were as follows: Carrying firearms without license, $100 or two months; killing calf moose, being non-residents of this province, $400 or five months; killing fur-bearing animals (non-residents) $150 or one month; trapping for game, $100 or three months; killing mountain goat, $50 or three months; killing deer charge dismissed; and in addition Vroom was found guilty of having killed two mountain goat in October, 1918, and fined $100 or four months. In none of the cases have the fines been paid, in which case the sentences will run consecutively.

The entire party who effected the capture was composed of Walter Owen, Inspector of Police, Fernie; Constable Jos. Boardman, Coal Creek; Constable A. Shipman, Corbin; H. Reviere and A. Bowers, game wardens, Pincher Creek; and F. E. Maunder, Supt. Watertown Lakes Park. Only a very small quantity of pelts was found in possession of the accused, consisting of weasel, martin and goat skins, but they were very well equipped for carrying on the business, having large quantities of ammunition and trap lines spread all over that section of country.

A SANE VIEW OF LABOR

The sane heads in the Labor World are looking askance on the revolutionary plans of the extreme elements within the ranks of Labor. They foresee a setback for Labor, unless Labor is willing to be reasonable, to give and take, to ask no more than it is willing to give.

The Duluth Labor World has a few words to say on the general labor situation, as follows:

It is a pretty good time for union men to keep their heads and to watch well their step. After all, the hard-beaten roads are the safest to travel. Labor has come up through the centuries by the gradual process. At no time has its position been secure, and it has frequently fallen back with a deadening thud after some fool break as was pulled off in Seattle.

Labor is powerful when it learns its strength, but there is a greater power than organized labor or organized capital, and that power is public opinion, which no force has ever been able to successfully override, and which some folks have learned to their sorrow is not to be trifled with in America. There are a number of big corporations whose directors would give a good deal to get them back into the good graces of the people, where they once proudly and complacently reposed.

The general sympathetic strike is the forerunner of revolution. It is revolution, and none know it so well as do its well-informed advocates. The trade union is not a revolutionary organization. It was never intended as such. Its founders knew better than most men that revolutions never improve the economic conditions of the workers. The trade union is an institution designed to make for the orderly rise of the working people through the educational, evolutionary process. When it is placed to any other use it is a failure, as it should be.

The trade union offers to all workingmen an orderly way to secure economic betterment. It may be a trifle slow to suit the impatient ones, but it is the surest and safest thing we know of. Then our free institution and the law of the land permit the workers and all the people to evolve from one government condition to another, if the present one does not suit them.

There may be reasons for revolutions in countries where men are not politically free, but there is not the slightest excuse for one in America. And if any have any doubt about what will happen in this country if a revolution is started, let them try it out at once. The result would be so disastrous that there would never again be talk of one in free America.

Labor has within its own hands all the weapons it is necessary for man to wield to bring about his own freedom. Our laws and institutions are framed to give men the opportunity to work out their own destiny. We have self-government; we have the ballot. If the workers who are shouting the loudest for revolution devoted half as much energy to constructive effort as they are wasting on impracticable theories, there would be no need, and no room. for talk about "starting the fireworks."

POLICE COMS. HOLD MEETING

The city Police Comiissioners upon the complaint of Constable Saunders at a meeting held last week, passed a resolution censuring G. G. Henderson for using some alleged abusive language to said constable.

The resolution was passed without even giving Mr. Henderson a chance to tell his side of the story, which was a very arbitrary line of action, to say the least. When he saw the resolution published in the press he immediately demanded a meeting of the Commissioners, which was accordingly called on Wednesday of this week.

Mr. Henderson appeared before the Commissioners and asked them to place him under oath, which they declined to do, saying that they were prepared to believe his word in connection with the affair. He said that he had observed Constable Saunders arrest a man on the King Edward corner on the day previous to the one in question. The man, while he was observing him, had not been disorderly but had merely let out a couple of little yells and waved some money in the air, whereupon he was arrested. He had asked Constable Saunders what they had done with him and his reply was that he hadn't enough money to pay his fine and was given thirty days. He had remarked to the constable that it was a dastardly outrage to soak a man that way and that it was such actions that were the cause of so much Bolsheviki feeling. This in substance was the entire conversation with the constable. He emphatically denied that he had referred to the constable's action in any way and was willing to swear that not a word of abusive language toward Constable Saunders passed his lips. Mr. Henderson also wished to ask the board if they thought it was British fair play to condemn a man without a hearing.

Constable Saunders was present and reiterated his statement that Mr. Henderson had called him a low down scoundrel.

The Commissioners listened to both parties but as yet have not given their decision in the matter. As it is a question of one man's word against another about the only thing that would be fair in the matter would be to rescind the resolution and leave the matter up to the public to decide.

SGT. STEWART TELLS STORY

Sergt. Robert E. Stewart, who enlisted with the first contingent from this city, entraining for Valcartier on Aug. 29, 1914, has just returned home and has much to relate concerning German prison camps and the treatment of prisoners as he languished two years and six months in same. Sergt. Stewart was serving with the ill-fated 13th Batt. and with them went into action on April 22, 1915, in the second battle of Ypres. It is now historically recorded under what severe handicap this battalion was subjected through the terrific artillery fire from the Hun batteries and the launching of the first known gas attacks, and they were eventually cut off. Being twice wounded from rifle fire, Sergt. Stewart stated he lay unconscious on Polecapple Road until the early morning of April 23, when partially regaining consciousness he

PUBLIC SCHOOL ATTENDANCE

In spite of cold and unfavorable weather conditions during the early part of March, the same high percentage of attendance at the 22 divisions of the public school has been maintained as for January and February. For the three months, the attendance has been over 94.5 per cent of the possible.

PENELOPE'S WEB

Dr. Schiffer, Minister of Finance in the German Government, says his country will not surrender one inch of territory, either East or West. On top of this statement comes the announcement of Premier Hirsch, of Prussia, that the Government has no thought of abandoning the eastern districts of the state, and that its duty is to ward off attacks, especially those aimed at West Prussia, Posen and upper Silesia. If either of these men speak with authority it would appear that Germany will not submit to the peace terms that are to be imposed. The most serious danger, in the event of such a refusal being forthcoming, and the consequent military action of the Associated Powers, will be of a combination between the extremist forces in Germany and Russia. At present the only rival to the authority of the Peace Conference is the imperialism of the Bolsheviki, and if its tentacles should embrace Germany as it has Hungary it is certain that Poland and Czecho-Slovakia and eventually Jugoslavia, Bohemia and all Austria would fall within its clutches, and thus there would be created conditions that would perpetuate a state of war.

From the beginning the policy of the Allies should have been to guarantee the new-found freedom of Poland, and the only way in which this could be done was by armed force. Whether it is too late to attempt this is not known, but that it should be attempted is apparent by the march of events. The Armistice that put a period to the Great War was only effective on the Western Front, and therein lay its weakness. It exposed Poland to enemies on every frontier, the intensity of whose purpose has been growing as month after month passes away and nothing is done. To prevent the spread of Bolshevism westwards it was essential that Poland should have been created a buffer state, the neutrality of which was guaranteed by all the resources of the Associated Powers. Instead, Poland is today in a precarious and discordant situation, attacked by Russia and Germany, by the Czecho-Slovaks and the Ukrainians. Again and again Poland has asked for Allied aid, but asked in vain, and even still the Peace delegates are discussing what should be done. Without the Rhine bridgeheads the Allies could never have made Germany submit to the Armistice terms. On the Polish frontier the Allies hold no bridgeheads nor is their power evident, and whatever decisions they may reach will be valueless unless backed up by power and force.

It was suggested in influential quarters several weeks ago that the Peace Conference should indicate a line on the East of Poland like that drawn on the west, and announce that any transgression of that line by Bolshevist forces would, like a similar transgression by Germany on the West, be regarded as an act of war. It was held that this ultimatum should be sustained by force. It was pointed out that the support of Poland was not only a military but a naval problem, and that there should be adequate provision made for the freedom of the Baltic. It was also clearly shown that whatever might be ultimately decided about the future sovereignty of Dantzig, its use was absolutely necessary to Poland. In other words, it was held that Poland must be the military garrison of the League of Peace in the East. Apparently no attention was paid to these representations, because at the time the Peace Conference was occupying itself with the League of Nations idea before defining the territorial and financial conditions of peace with Germany and Austria. The whole work of the Conference, it is now beginning to appear was commenced at the wrong end. There was no necessity for a formula for a League of Nations until it could have been stipulated on the basis of a world at peace. As it is, that formula, instead of tending towards peace, has split the Allied nations into controversial camps, and the complete failure to deal effectively with the Eastern Problem has prejudiced the executive power of the Peace Conference.

The war ended, or rather fighting ceased, because the will power of the German people had been broken. The reaction caused by the collapse has, as yet, only reached the half-way house. More and more Germany hopes, because of the chaotic conditions by which she is in contact to the South and East, that a way will be found whereby she will yet win the peace. This hope is finding expression among her leading men and responsible ministers, all of whom might readily be prepared to throw their country into the arms of Bolshevism if they thought by doing so they could save Germany from being degraded into a third-class Power. It would seem now the surest safeguard against this would be for the Allies to assert their authority in the East, and to make it clear to Russia, and to Germany as well, that they intend to guarantee Poland's sovereignty, to establish Czecho-Slovakia and to maintain the Baltic provinces that have broken away from Russia against any aggression on the part of the Bolshevist. If self-determination means anything it implies the determination of those who preach the doctrine to use force so that each state, created under the new dispensation, shall have the power to maintain its frontiers against any enemy. Without a policy on the Eastern front the Allies today, to quote The London Times, "threaten to make a Penelope's web of the peace settlement, undone in the East as fast as it is woven in the West."

A BOLSHEVIST EMISSARY

Col. Raymond Robins, former head of the American Red Cross Mission to Russia, who Ambassador Francis described as being in league with the Bolshevist Government, has now come out in the open and advocates that the United States should recognize the Lenine-Trotzky regime. He says, or intimates, that the present Government at Moscow represents 99 per cent of the Russian mind, which, in view of events of the past year, is a grotesque statement. If what he says were true, there would be no war in Russia today, for long since the Bolsheviki would have dominated the whole country. As it is Siberia has been wrested from them. They have been swept out of the Ukraine twice and for the third time, are meeting with defeat there. The Government of North Russia, assisted by a handful of Allied troops, has kept them at bay for many months. The Esthonians are driving them out of their country neck and crop. The Poles, who under normal conditions would be incapable of offering a resistance to a united Russia, are holding the Bolsheviki on their frontiers. In the Crimea the Caucasus, the Urals, on the Finnish frontiers and at scores of isolated points, Russians are engaged in warfare with the Bolsheviki, which proves, beyond peradventure, that the latter cannot represent anything like 99 per cent of the people of the former Czar's kingdom. What Col. Robin's purpose may be in seeking to delude the American people it is impossible to say, but that it is of sinister intent no one can doubt.

No one will dispute Col. Robins' viewpoint that Russia has the right to have the kind of government the Russian people want. That is a platitude; but it is not the Russian people who have said they want Bolshevism, for they have never been consulted. Messrs. Lenine and Trotzky and their associates are not the elected representatives of the Russian people. They drove the Constituent Assembly of the country out of power at the point of the bayonet, because they knew the campaign of red ruin could never have been conducted under the aegis of the elected representatives of the people. Russia is essentially a peasant country and the peasantry are in revolt against Bolshevism, but they have no common rallying point and are unarmed, so that their campaign makes little headway. They are facts known to everyone who has taken the pains to follow the Russian situation, yet Col. Robins, who was showered with favors by the Bolshevist Government so that he could act as a Bolshevist emissary on his return to the United States, now attempts to delude the American people.

For ourselves we prefer to accept the evidence of such a sturdy Labor leader as Col. John Ward, M.P., who is known to every British workman. Col. Ward is now in command of a Labor Battalion in Siberia, and in writing from Omsk to Mr. W. A. Appleton, secretary of the General Federation of Trades Unions of Britain, he says:

For the love of Allah never more talk of the glories of revolution. I am in it here. Friend strikes down him he thinks his foe and finds the dead man his brother. The Bolshevik thinks nothing of standing 500 Social Revolutionists against the wall and shooting them down before breakfast because of some petty difference of opinion as to whether the railway shall be national or communal.

How ever any of our Labor leaders failed to grasp the Bolshevik creed of blood and presumed to condone the horrors committed by this mob of fanatical maniacs I cannot imagine. The sight of the Cossacks pulling the lumps of wood out of the well near where the Czar was imprisoned, with an occasional Grand Duke mixed up with the timber! Then the end of another poor piece of flesh was recognized as a Grand Duchess, then another as the foreman at the nearby ironworks. These swine whom we call Bolsheviks are mere bloodthirsty cut-throats. War is horrible, but revolution is hellish.

These are the men whom Col. Robins wants America and the Allies to recognize.—Colonist.

THE REAL CANADA

A writer in "The Nation" has just made an endeavor to uncover the features of what he terms "the real England," those essential things, that is to say, which are fundamentally English and determine the run and course of English life.

England having a long tradition, endless chronicles, and the visable remnants of the past to impress the modern observer, the writer in "The Nation" inevitably speaks of the effects on modern England of the various "periods," the Norman, the Stuart the period of Queen Anne—their results on the face of the country, on architecture, fashions, manners, and government. England is an "old" country, and it is when these effects of age upon its life are recalled that the inherent difference between England and what we may term "the real Canada" is discerned.

Canadian life and maners are not to any appreciable extent indebted to the Normans or the Tudors. Our landscapes are destitute of the baronial castles of the feudal age., and our history is consequently destitute of the effects of feudalism. Canada has, indeed, adopted the political theory of England and this is perhaps the only avenue through which the old historical tradition of England can be regarded as influencing Canadian life. Our constitution was hammered out at Runnymede before the American continent had been discovered.

To get at the "real Canada" we have only the Canada of today and of yesterday as our guides. We have scarcely any political evolution, we have still to produce really distinctive schools of Canadian literature and art, and these have not appeared for the reason that materials upon which they could work are only beginning to come into existence. It is always in the early steps of national development that politics is the one engrossing subject of study, and this is why the real Canada, far more than the real England, must be sought for in the records of Canadian political activity. In England politics is shrouded in the cultural atmosphere of literature, art, and philosophy; and for whole decades in the past sank almost into a subordinate and secondary interest. But in Canada, politics stands out as the main line of development and discloses the outstanding national achievement, without the atmosphere of a national literature or art to cover or soften the phases of its youthful growth.

The real Canada is still before us. The short past we possess has done of national consciousness. It did not little more than lay the foundations bring into distinctive prominence the Canadian personality. That has been brought out by the war, and it is curious that it should have been the old world that supplied the motive and the incidents which more than anything else in Canadian history have brought "the real Canada" within the consciousness of Canadians themselves.—Manitoba Free Press.

COMMITTEE'S WORK CUT OUT

Many needed reforms in pensions and pension regulations have been introduced by a special Pension Committee appointed last session by the Dominion Government.

The increased cost of living and various unforseen contingincies rendered it necessary that a review be made from time to time of existing legislation and for this purpose and to satisfy the need for suggestion a bill is prepared annually by the commissioners and submitted for the consideration of the House.

Questions brought up by the Great War Veterans' Association, the Canadian Patriotic Fund, and other organizations, are duly considered and provision made for improvements. The legislation providing for prospective dependents and increased allowances for pensioners' children was brought in on the recommendation of a committee which sat last year and others are expected in the impending report.

The committee, which is composed of the following members, Major G. W. Andrews, Dr. Beland, W. Clarke, McGill Cronyn, E. B. Devlin, R. F. Green, L. Lapointe, F. B. McCurdy, E. W. Nesbitt, F. F. Nickle, L. T. Pacaud, F. F. Pardee, C. G. Power, D. L. Redmand, N. W. Rowell, D. C. Ross and D. Sutherland, usually sits during the whole session, but the length of the sitting, of course, depends upon the amount of work to be disposed of. The members themselves are chosen with a view to their competency, men capable of sizing up conditions and introducing measures being carefully selected.

The result is that pension irregularities are scarcer and the general satisfaction of pensioners is greatly assured.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

THE FREEDOM OF THE AIR

Some interesting matters in connection with the commercial side of aviation have been brought out by the action of the British delegation to the Peace Conference, The British delegation was the only one which took to Paris an "air policy." And the disclosing of the British policy brought to light the nature of the problems which will inevitably arise, and have to be settled, when aviation is a recognized means of international transit, as it already is promising to become.

In air transit, as in water carriage, there will be definite and recognized routes, and there will also be boundary conditions. It is laid down by the British commission that the air should be free for aerial transit for all nations throughout the world, subject to the rights of individual nations to control the air traffic over their own territory.

Thus there would be clearing aerodromes erected on the various frontiers at which foreign airships would be required to call and have their identity, cargo, and business checked. Foreign airplanes passing over the country would have to follow defined air routes, and be within official observation until they passed beyond its territory. They would in many respects be under the same regulations as steamships, and would carry papers which would require to be checked at each of the frontiers which was crossed.

Commercial flying will naturally follow certain trade air routes, and it is interesting to note that the strategic points of the main air routes are held by the British Empire. Two of the great world air routes are from Cairo to the Cape, and from Europe, via India, to Australia. Egypt, it is asserted, will be the hub of aerial transportation, since the main routes between Asia, Europe and Africa meet there.

The commercialization of flying will lead to the erection of clearing and supply and repair stations at the strategic points in the international routes, and one result which is expected immediately is the standardization of airplanes and engines. It is pointed out for the benefit of British airship builders that if British commercial flying is to be developed to the full there must be a standard British engine adopted for the whole Empire. 'If a standard engine is at once adopted," says a London Times correspondent, "and the Imperial air routes stocked and staffed to meet its needs, not only will the Empire profit by better communications, but British industry will receive support of incalculable value, since other European countries will be bound to adopt British engines and British machines if they are to use the British routes."

It is when such practical discussion is brought into the subject that we can begin to see the importance and some of the implications contained in this new means of transit, which is just on the verge of reality. The air will have its routes and its laws, as the sea has, and it is worthy of comment that "freedom of aerial transit for all nations throughout the world," is the basis of the British commission's policy of commercial aviation.—Manitoba Free Press.

THE SPANISH VOLCANO

Spain is in the group of European countries which are reposing uncomfortably above the seething volcanoes of national discontent. The larger and more violent revolutionary activities in Central and Eastern Europe have overshadowed the Spanish situation, but the fact is that Spain today represents perhaps the final results of government incapacity and corruption, and the whole country appears to onlookers to be in a condition of political disintegration. Almost in every part of Spain, it is reported there are continuous strikes, demonstrations, and outbreaks, due to low wages, shortage, dearness, or complete absence of necessary articles of food. These disturbances are suppressed by Government rifle fire, of which public mention is prevented by the press censorship, and when after such disturbances the Prime Minister announces that "complete tranquillity" has been restored, the tranquillity, however complete, is of only temporary duration.

The results of a hopeless political and economic system are luridly displayed by the syndicalist activity which is spreading throughout the industrial areas. At Barcelona the conflict between the workers and their employers has assumed the forms of actual warfare. There is a powerful syndicalist organization with headquarters in Barcelona, which is levying a toll on the wages of every workman with the avowed intention of accumulating a treasury large enough to enable them to finance a successful revolution.

In disputes between individual employers and their workpeople assassination has become so frequent as to be almost a recognized feature of the proceedings." Within twelve months," says one observer, "between 60 and 70 managers and employers have been assassinated, without the murderers, in a single case, being made to pay the penalty." The method is described as "simple." An unreasonable demand is made by the workers and refused by the employer; the employer is invited to meet a deputation of the workers, and, on his appearance is promptly fired on "by as many revolvers as there are members of the deputation." The crowd scatters, and if any arrests are made it is impossible to secure either evidence or identification. If the case ever does get as far as a jury "it is a jury of sympathizers who acquit as a matter of course."

Spain is evidently near the bottom levels of its career as a monarchy. In the last stages of the long downward journey the length of tenure that corruption has had in Spain will make the problems of reconstruction peculiarly difficult for the people. The Spanish nation seems to be reduced to a disintegrated heap of antagonistic units, lacking any political principle or ideal sufficiently powerful to restore coherence and unity.

THE BOGEYSHEVIST

Much of the alarm lest Bolshevism should spread all over Europe is unjustified, and some of it is our old friend German propaganda with another false-face. Bolshevism is a German invention, like poison gas. It was used to make Russia powerless as one of the Allies, and the probability is that if the Central Powers had won the war Germany would have found means to put an end to Bolshevism in Russia before now. She now finds a new use for Bolshevism, the use a murderer finds for a defence of insanity. It is hardly to be doubted that the Spartacus outbursts in Germany, and the Bolshevism in Hungary, if they are not designedly provoked by the German Government or by the dark powers behind the German Government, are at least being manipulated by them for the purpose of influencing the Allies at Paris. We remember that the armistice terms had hardly been signed before there arose a piteous wail from Germany that she should be supplied with food in order that Bolshevism might not spread, and President Wilson is one of those who believe that the only way to deal with Bolshevism is to feed the population among which the disease is spreading. Now the cry is that if the peace terms imposed on Germany are too severe, the country will be plunged into Bolshevism.

Well, let it. If Germany chooses to indulge in a fit we should not worry so long as in her paroxysms she does us no damage. If Bolshevism flourishes in Germany the only effect upon the Allies will be that until it has abated it will be impossible or difficult to collect indemnities. When Germany and Russia regain sanity the bill collectors can pay them a visit. In the meantime they will be cut off from intercourse and business relations with the rest of the world. This will be their loss rather than a loss to the rest of the world. If the Bolshevism is mostly feigned, the recovery will be rapid. If it is real then it will have to run its course like any other malignant epidemic. Our whole interest should be concentrated upon seeing that the disease does not find a foothold among us, and so long as there is a fair division of profits between capital and labor we shall have no Bolshevism. Let us but set our own house in order and Germany if she chooses may amuse herself by breaking her own furniture and throwing it into the street. —Mail and Empire.

RECONSTRUCTION POLICY

Let us emphasize again the desirability of a public definition of policy from the Provincial Government regarding reconstruction. The reconstruction committee of the Legislature has done a great deal of work. It has passed a number of resolutions, some of which have been presented to the Legislature and others that will be brought in before many days have passed. None, so far as we know, has yet been translated into law, nor have the public any conception of the detailed plans of the Government to meet employment needs during the coming fiscal year. There is an undercurrent of belief that there will be no serious unemployment problem in British Columbia until next Autumn, and that for this reason there is no necessity for the Government to be in a hurry about providing work. There is an unemployment problem now, yet we are afraid our local authorities show a disposition to depend on the war gratuity given to returned soldiers tiding the latter over during the coming summer. That is a false doctrine, for this war gratuity should be regarded as a nest egg to be put aside for a rainy day and not to be utilized during a time when it is obviously the duty of Governments to provide work.

It is urgent that within the next few months whatever works the Government has in contemplation should be started. Before the present session is ended there should be a clear-cut definition of what the Government proposes to do, with a detailed explanation of how the money will be spent. Irrigation works are to be carried out in South Okanagan, but the returned soldiers want to know when they are to commence. Money is to be spent on coping with the housing problem, but there is no indication when the work it will provide will be inaugurated. A community land settlement scheme, to embrace 600 returned men, is now before the Government and for the carrying out of it money can be borrowed from the Federal Government. British Columbia's attitude is that it will not undertake the responsibility, although the general belief, and the impression given to the Empress of Asia committee, were that if the money was forthcoming the community settlement could materialize.

There is a curious indecision marking governmental action in these times, and that is why the returned soldiers themselves are asking for some definite statement of policies so that they can frame their plans accordingly. The returned men, before the present session ends, are going to ask the Government for something that might, not inaptly, be termed their "Bill of Rights." They want to know where British Columbia stands on those problems that have developed with the coming of peace. They have a right to know. We sincerely trust that the Government will be prepared to give a complete and decisive answer so that the period of indecision and inaction will end. Some things the soldiers may ask may be strictly matters for the attention of the Federal Government. They are aware of this just as well as the Provincial Ministers. What they want is the Province's backing when they bring their claims to the attention of Ottawa, and, as well, they want the Province's assurance it will be prepared to aid to the uttermost in rehabilitating returned soldiers and making for conditions of happiness throughout British Columbia.

Medicine Hat Trades and Labor Council has repudiated the action of the Interprovincial Congress in passing resolutions of sympathy with the Russian Bolshevists and German Spartacans. Calgary Trades and Labor Council will do something of the same kind one of these days. Thus far the delegates are still thinking about it. Great bodies move slowly.—Calgary Herald.

ter, and we must not throw the burden of responsibility from one to another, or as the common phrase seems to be "pass the buck." The Government of this Dominion have a great duty to perform in providing employment for these men. The governments of the different provinces, the municipal authorities, and so on all down the line, must bear their share of the burden. During the past four years public expenditures have been reduced to a minimum. Public works have gone into disrepair. The time has now come when these public works must be put into a proper state of repair and proposed public buildings which have been left in abeyance must be erected. This will take care of a great deal of the excess of labor.

One thing in the speech from the Throne with which I am very much pleased is the statement that the Government have finally decided to constitute a department of public health. I consider this one of the most important pieces of legislation if not the most important, to be introduced in the House at this session. We take great pride in conserving all our natural resources, but I consider the greatest asset or resource which we possess is our national life. This should be taken care of and fostered, and right at the outset I would say, not that a medical man should be in charge of this department, but that, to get the best results, a medical man must be in charge of this department. The duties of this department would, amongst other things, be to regulate immigration, to protect child labor, to deal with tuberculosis, venereal diseases, contagious and infections diseases, such as typhoid fever, etc. It seems to me—and I am sure it is a fact—that the country and the people in general do not appreciate the seriousness of the ravages of tuberculosis.

The statistics for 1916, which are the latest I have, show that in that year the deaths from tuberculosis were as follows: Ontario 2559, or 92 out of every 100,000 people; Quebec 3327, or 150 out of every 100,000 people; Saskatchewan 323, or 45 out of every 100,000; British Columbia, 413, or 108 out of every 100,000; Nova Scotia, 921, or 181 out of every 100,000; Manitoba, 484, or 96 out of every 100,000. There probably is no disease which can be cured more readily than tuberculosis if treated in the early stages. During the latter stages, of course, the deaths are practically 100 per cent. When the disease is recognized by medical men in the early stages and the patient put under proper treatment, at least 90 per cent of these cases can be restored to health. This is a matter of vital importance to Canada. In 1916, 8027 deaths occurred in this Dominion from tuberculosis, and I am sure if we had proper housing conditions and sanataria conveniently situated throughout all the provinces where people attacked by the disease could receive proper treatment, the great majority of these people would be living today and be an asset to this country. But the trouble now is that we have not sufficient sanitaria to take care of these people, and sometimes the responsibility is shifted from one province to another. A doctor in the East, for instance, will recommend a patient suffering from tuberculosis to go to British Columbia because the climate there may do him good. The patient may arrive in British Columbia in the latter stages of the disease and if the authorities there have no hospital accommodation for that man they must say, "You do not belong to us but to Nova Scotia or New Brunswick; go back there." Now that condition of affairs is not right and I trust that when the Department of Public Health is established it will turn its attention first to this great problem of tuberculosis and inaugurate and encourage the building of sanitaria throughout this Dominion. The sanitaria should be built and supported by the Dominion because the responsibility for the lives of the people of this Dominion rests upon this Government.

I have looked into some of the Government's plans for settling our soldiers on the land, and although in a matter of this kind one is bound to proceed rather slowly I am pleased to see that splendid progress is being made. In the Province of British Columbia we have in our valleys land as fertile as can be found in any other place in the world, and thousands of soldiers who enlisted from that province will take up land and go on the farm. Many thousands also will be attracted from the other provinces by our climate. The province of British Columbia probably offers a brighter prospect for the farmer than any other province in Canada, because the farmer there has a market right at his door. In the year 1917, we imported into the province $20,000,000 of farm and dairy products, and it practically took every dollar of gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc which we mined to feed ourselves. So I am glad that the Government are holding out inducements to the men to go on the land, and I am sure those who settle in British Columbia will meet with every success. One difficulty in British Columbia is the cost of clearing the land, and I would suggest that the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment make provision for additional assistance to men taking up land in that province to help defray the cost of clearing.

I am sure we are all glad the war is over. The wives and the sisters and the mothers of our soldiers are thankful to have their men home once more. We are all proud of our soldiers for the immortal fame they have brought to this country. We trust the Peace Conference now sitting in Paris will achieve the object for which the war was fought, which was to make it impossible for another such war as this to occur in the future. In 1860, Tennyson looking into the future spoke of aerial combat and the aeroplanes "raining down their ghastly dew," and went on to say that the battle flag would be furled in the Parliament of Man, the federation of the world. May Tennyson's prophecy come true, and may the Peace Conference be successful in its deliberations and bring about a condition where there shall be a Parliament for the World, to which all disputes can be taken and each case decided upon its merits.

SERGT. STEWART TELLS STORY

endeavored to return to his own lines and thence to a dressing station at St. Julien. He was intercepted, however, by a German patrol and captured.

Although severely wounded he was brutally struck down by a blow from the butt of a rifle in the hands of a German soldier, searched, kicked and spat upon. He was then escorted through the German lines but was refused first aid at four different dressing stations before ultimately being conveyed to a large field dressing station at Staden, where he remained four days and then was removed to the Giessen military hospital.

Sergt. Stewart claims the first six months he remained in this institution were really the worst he experienced during his captivity. The treatment administered to wounded prisoners was such that only those blessed with vigorous constitutions survived. Medical supplies were almost nil; there were no nurses in attendance, and the food of exceptionally poor quality and the supply very limited. The doctors resorted to most brutal practices upon these unfortunates, and administration of anaesthetics for operations was unheard of.

From this hospital, when sufficiently recovered to get around, he was transferred to the prison camp at Giessen. Prisoners were only retained in a camp for a period of about six months and then transferred to another, and in this manner Sergt. Setwart was confined in five of them, and at each transfer, he claims, conditions to which they were subcejted were worse than in the former camp.

The rations were practically unbearable; the staple diet was a nonnourishing soup made from cabbage with a ration of black bread of of about one hundred grammes and very inferior coffee. This was the regular daily course and the only variation was that on rare occasions an issue of horse flesh was given. Had it not been for the parcels from home and through the British Red Cross, Sergt. Stewart claims many of the Canadian boys could not have survived and they would have died by the hundreds as was the case with the Russians, who were not so fortunate and had to depend upon the German prison rations only.

The most rigid discipline was maintained among the prisoners and even for the slightest infraction of the rules most severe punishment was meted out, such as malicious attacks and also the withholding of the fuel rations, which at best was very meagre in the winter season. If a prisoner refused an order to work, he was punished by being suspended from poles by thongs until becoming unconscious, then thrown into the cells to recover and this practice was continued daily until consent was given to do whatever work they were required to do.

In April, 1918, when the joint arrangement was made for the exchange and internment of all N. C. O.'s who had been prisoners for over two years, Sergt. Stewart went to Holland and there much greater liberties were granted. In fact they were practically free although under military discipline and their own officers responsible. Upon the signing of the armistice these internes were repatriated to England in four days.

During his captivity Sergt. Stewart occasionally saw three other Fernie lads, Gilbert Sawyer, Fred Mitchard and Robt. Crichton, who were captured the day previous to his capture. They had seen him lying on the field but their captors, German officers, upon making an examination decided he was too far gone to take as a prisoner and had left him to die. These boys are now enroute to Canada. Sergt. Stewart states that he has practically recovered from his wounds and the treatment received while a prisoner. His sojourn in Holland was the first step and two months in a Montreal hospital effected a restoration to health.

From a letter received in the city this week from France we learn that Geo. Stalker, formerly government agent at Fernie, has received the M. M.,; J. Mann, of Natal and Lt. Seaman, of Cranbrook have also received the same medal. Dr. Weldon, of Michel, has received the M.M. and bar.

Daylight saving time in so far as this city is concerned has not yet been put into effect and it is rather doubtful whether it will be made applicable within the municipality. The railroads, however, operating in this locality, namely the C.P.R. and G.N. R., made daylight saving time effective on Sunday, March 30.

Louis De Gero, a former prominent resident of Penticton, who manifested considerable sympathy for the Germans in the early months of the war, and who showed some antipathy toward his departure for southern points, recently returned to British Columbia. He was met by a deputation of citizens and advised to permanently leave Penticton; as he displayed no haste in taking his departure, the deputation escorted him some distance out and showed him the trail south.

Sergt. Robert Stewart, who went overseas with Capt. Deed in the first contingent, and who was reported dead for a couple of years, arrived home on Tuesday morning, looking fine after spending eight months in England. He was wounded in the first battle at Ypres and left for dead on the field. When he recovered sufficiently to try and crawl back to the lines he was gathered in by a German patrol. For three years he was a prisoner in Germany and he says prison life in Germany hasn't a thing on hell.

district for the construction and maintenance of the said Highway.

Therefore, be it resolved that this convention do strongly recommend and urge upon both Dominion and Provincial Governments the immediate adoption and construction of the said "All Canadian" coast to coast Highway through Medicine Hat, Lethbridge and the Crow's Nest Pass.

Resolution No. 2:—

Moved by D. E. Harris, of Lethbridge, seconded by J. Burnett, of Cowley:

Whereas, Before the war there were three daily passenger trains operating between Medicine Hat, Alta., and Cranbrook, B.C., on the Crow's Nest line.

And Whereas, By reason of the war said service was reduced to one train per day each way.

And Whereas, Business and traffic has now so increased that one train cannot handle same satisfactorily, thereby causing great inconvenience and financial loss to the publbic.

Therefore, be it resolved that this convention strongly urge that the C. P. R. re-establish the Calgary-Spokane service via Lethbridge over the Crow's Nest road on the time formerly used by the old local.

Delegates were appointed to wait on the Alberta government requesting them to map out the proposed National Highway through the Province of Alberta.

The B.C. delegates had the full report of the B.C. government engineers showing that the Crow's Nest route was the only really feasible one for a good road through the province, and it is proposed to put the Alberta government on record in the same way.

The meeting adjourned after arranging for another gathering in August.

The New York Herald Magazine Section, April 13, will contain a sensational article, entitled "The Overshadowing Empire," by Justice Wesley O. Howard. This article discusses the stupendous power that lies within the grasp of the British Empire, which, he declares, is able to become the Colossus of the Earth, because of the developments of the Great War. Justice Howard shows how three times in history a Great Empire has arrived, dominating civilization.

No man can safely judge any other man, for no one can learn fully all hfe tacts which govern the other fellow's acts; man may rightly judge himself but never another.

Good for the whole family

"Granny" Chamberlain

A good cough remedy is one that can be depended upon to cure coughs. Not one that cures some particular cough, but coughs in general.

While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The more powerful convulsive cough of a big man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a big man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the delicate tissues of the throat, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza and whooping cough.

Yours for Health — Granny Chamberlain

The engagement of Miss Alice Wilde of this city, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wilde, formerly of Fernie, but now residing near Calgary, to Alexander Angus McNeill, of Fernie, Chief Provincial Constable for Southeast Kootenay, and son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Angus McNeill, of Victoria, B.C., has been announced. The wedding will be solemnized in Calgary on Monday, April 7, at the residence of Mrs. Geo. Wilde, aunt of the bride. After a brief sojourn visiting friends in Alberta, the young couple will return to this city and take up their residence.

The Nelson News says, Lieut.-Col. A. B. Carey, in command of the 54th Kootenay battalion, has written to Mrs. William Rutherford, president of the Nelson Women's institute, suggesting that the battalion should be made a permanent part of the Canadian militia, with headquarters at Nelson. He asks the support of the people of the city and district. The letter says: "We are all thinking of what is to be the future of our unit. We want to see it perpetrated as a battalion in the Canadian militia and bearing its present name and number. Its headquarters, of course, ought to be in Nelson, where, I am told, there is a very useful drill hall, and it should be formed only of officers and men who have served overseas with the 54th. Similar movements have been instituted at other places by other battalions, as, for instance, the 7th, Gen. Odlum's old battalion, in Vancouver, which it is proposed, will replace either the 6th or the 11th. We need, of course, the support of all and we believe you are in a position to gain an expression of opinion from the women of the city. Would you be good enough to interest yourself in the matter and to work in harmony with the Ottawa member for the district? The principal thing is to get the government at Ottawa, through the minister of militia and defense, to agree to the proposal. Practical details can be worked out when we get back."

FOREIGN METALS IN CANADA

An important resolution that was passed at Monday's meeting of the Trail Reconstruction Board was that regarding the marketing of foreign metals in Canada while our own production cannot be realized on. The resolution, which was wired to Ottawa, follows:

Whereas, the whole interior of British Columbia is largely dependent upon the mining and smelting industries, and these industries are most seriously affected at the present time, owing to the demand for copper and lead being almost negligible; and

Whereas, such markets as may exist are flooded with metals dumped into Canada from other countries; and

Whereas, tremendous stocks of these metals exist in Canada at the present time, and if relief is not quickly forthcoming the entire industry will collapse and throw approximately 15,000 men out of employment; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Trail Reconstruction Board, of Trail, B.C. on this 24th day of March, 1919, that the importation of these metals into Canada be allowed by special permit of the Dominion government until the stocks of metals now on hand are disposed of and the money tied up in these stocks is released to carry on the industry again.

And that copies of this resolution be sent to Canadian Reconstruction Association, Toronto, to the honorable minister of mines, at Ottawa, to the member for Kootenay and to other reconstruction boards in British Columbia, with request to endorse and forward same at once to the proper authorities.

FORMER MAYOR OF BIRMINGHAM, ALA., ENDORSES TANLAC

"YouW ill Hardly Know Me When We Meet Again; For I Am Getting Well," He Writes Friend.

One of the latest additions to the list of leaders of thought and action who have come forward with their unqualified endorsement of Tanlac is the name of Hon. Frank V. Evans, former Mayor of Birmingham, Ala., ex-State Examiner of Public Accounts of Alabama, and at one time editor of the South's greatest newspaper, the Birmingham Age-Herald.

Writing to a personal friend in Atlanta, Mr. Evans says:

".... .... By the way, you will hardly know me when we meet again. As I told you while in Atlanta last month, I have been suffering a long time with gastritis, as the doctors call it—really a disordered stomach with consequent constipation, pains in the shoulders, headache, belching, heartburn, loss of appetite, loss of sleep and fainting spells. For weeks I could not sleep on my back.

"One week ago, upon recommendation of friends who had tried the medicine, I purchased one bottle of Tanlac and began taking it. Since my second dose I have suffered none of these troubles to which I refer and I really believe I am going to get perfectly well and strong again. Won't that be wonderful at my age? Well, certain it is that Tanlac is a wonderful medicine, and you know I am not given to 'puffing' mere experiments and am rather orthodox as to materia medica."

"I shall continue the treatment with perfect confidence in the final results."

Signed, "Frank V. Evans."

Commenting on this splendid endorsement of Tanlac, G. F. Willis, International Distributor of Tanlac, said:

"Although the list of endorsers is a long one I recall a few leading names that lend both dignity and credit to the entire array. Some of them are:

"Hon. C. W. Mangum, of Atlanta, Ga., for three terms Sheriff of Fulton County; Hon. Moses R. Glenn, Superintendent of Printing for the State of Kentucky; Mr. C. C. Cooper, President of the Georgia Cotton Oil Company; Mr. H. W. Hill, Bank President of South Pittsburg, Tenn.; Mr. J. F. Corroll, Cotton Mill Superintendent of Chattahoochee, Ga.; Hon. A. E. Andreson, of Houston, Texas, for seven terms Sheriff of Harris County; Hon. S. S. Shepard, ex-city Councilman of Atlanta, and many others whose names have heretofore been given to the public."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.

WAR SAVINGS AND THRIFT STAMPS BEAT THE MONEY BOX

The children's money box on the mantel shelf has, in the past, done good work, having gathered in tens of thousands of dollars, which, had it not been there, would never have been saved. To many generations it has been one of the best possible object lessons of the value of saving. It has taught the lesson of thrift better than almost any teacher could have done.

But the money box, though it has rendered splendid service, has its limitations. All that it does is to take care of the pennies, the dimes, or the 25 cent pieces, preventing them for a time being squandered. But, in comparison with later saving devices, its chief defect is that while it holds money, it does not enable the money to earn anything.

This is where War Savings Stamps have a decided advantage over the money box. As soon as $4 is put into one of these it begins to earn at the rate of 4½ per cent compounded half yearly. This means that if allowed to remain in Stamps, it would double itself within less than 15 years. Money put into a box and allowed to remain there would not be spent, but it would earn nothing. The moral is—buy War Savings and Thrift Stamps and let your savings work.

THE DANGER IN EUROPE

The Hungarian situation is not viewed in an optimistic light by the Paris correspondents. Even the British statesmen are regarding the position as dangerous. The British Secretary of State for War sounds a note of warning. The London press are reminding the British people that the war may have to be carried on in a new form. Within the Empire also there are disturbing events. The world is not yet safe from the autocratic spirit which is showing itself in new forms, such as the dictatorship of the proletariat.

There are those who declare that the troubles which face not only Europe but the world at the present time are due to the restraint that was placed on General Foch when he was sweeping the Germans before him. Had the allied armies been permitted to march on through Germany and dictate terms in Berlin, there would have been a different tale to tell. Whatever merit there is in this criticism, it is very apparent that Germany does not admit defeat, and the people are subject to many pernicious influences seeking to relieve the defeated from the penalties of their war of aggression. Would there have been a Spartacan uprising of formidable extent, if the Allies had taken possession of Berlin? At least there would have been order and government in Germany, and the economic wheels would be turning in a normal way. But now what is not to be expected with the delay in the signing of peace and the growth of communist doctrine throughout Central Europe?

NATIONAL WAR SAVINGS IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

The British Columbia Division of the National War Savings Committee is covering the province with a net through which it is becoming more and more difficult for even the smallest places to escape. If the money order offices or banks are not available for the purchase of stamps, the local committees in the various districts are now approaching the general stores in outlying places and these are purchasing stamps and reselling them to their customers. These stores are in many cases able to purchase the stamps on credit from the wholesale houses with which they do business, the latter finding it helpful to assist the campaign in this way.

It was found difficult to enable people in some of these small places to purchase stamps owing to the lack of money order offices or banks, and in consequence this method was adopted so as to allow of the purchase of stamps locally instead of people being obliged to go several miles to the nearest money order office. This has been one of the great difficulties which faced the provincial committee and it seems that this difficulty has now been surmounted. The organization of the schools in Vancouver especially has been proceeding apace and the principals and the teachers have responded enthusiastically. It is expected that the returns in consequence will be very much better this month.

There is a much better demand from Victoria and also from parts of the upper country. Influenza is apparently still holding back one or two communities but this is rapidly disappearing and the organization of committees will be continued.

WHISKEY SCANDAL ARTISTS RULE BRITISH COLUMBIA

"Canada is ruled by fifteen men in the east," quoth Mrs. Ralph Smith, M.P.P., in the British Columbia Legislature.

British Columbia is ruled by a government that failed to avert the growth of liquor scandals, and permitted the judicial and other suppression of enquiry into the origin and effects of these scandals.

The still, small voice of Mrs. Ralph Smith, M.P.P., might speak out against whiskey scandal artists who rule British Columbia ere Mrs. Smith becomes so vociferous in denunciation of the Fifteen Men In The East who rule Canada.—Toronto Telegram.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

The Merchant's Bank building at Elko is being fixed up again. Carpenters, painters and plasterers are making repairs, and the building will be ready to open up the first of May.

Several farmers on Tobacco Plains are building silos. If you don't know what a silo is, just keep on reading; Jim Thistlebeak says a barnyard silo is vastly more productive than a parlor solo.

Owing to the activity of the police and spotters, "blind pig" patrons will have to seek elsewhere for an eye-opener.

Reports in the Vancouver papers say that several people were bitten by the squirrels in Stanley Park last week, and Jim Thistlebeak expresses fear that after getting rid of the Flu, and unable to go on with the Findlay booze affair, the whole town may be growing nutty.

Flagstone sunshine society held one of their popular Saturday night dances last week end. The West orchestra supplied the swirls.

Billy McKay, of Waldo, tells a good story of a little boy down in that country who disobeyed his mother, and when she started to correct him for the offense, ran under the house and refused to come out all day. When his father came home in the evening the mother told of the occurrence and he started under the house to bring the boy out. Seeing his paternal ancestor crawling up near to where he was, the little fellow said, "Is she after you too, papa?"

Bob Wilson, the popular Winnipeg editor, did not stop off at Elko on his return from California, as he was billed in the Los Angeles dailies and Sunday magazines.

Some roads in this district are in the worst condition ever known, and unsafe to drive over them with a basket of eggs.

The Blairmore Enterprise has the town of Elko billed for a big dance to take place in that political homestead town. In the old construction days of the Crow, Blairmore was known as 13th Siding, and Archie McLean had a beef camp there. That was before the Shamrock was in flower, or Burns pickled pork.

Jim Thistlebeak says, "If a person don't know enough to go in when it rains, you can't spend your life holding an umbrella over them."

Mr. and Mrs. Rob Hunter and family, of Strawberry Flats, is moving to Flagstone this week.

Mr. A. E. Ingham, of Sheep Mountain, left for Spokane last Sunday to consult an eye specialist.

O. C. Thompson, manager of the Burton Mine, installed a hoisting plant at the mine last week.

Gardening is general this week in Elko and the people in Elko get a lot of real enjoyment out of their gardens says Jim Thistlebeak, consolingly, and they are far happier than the dyspeptic financier who can buy his own vegetables without missing the money, and then gardening is a good way to cultivate an appetite; and then you have both the appetite and the wherewithal to appease it.

According to the Financial News, a bank president in the Middle West States has been found $50.000 short. But what of it, says Jim Thistlebeak, aren't most of us fifty thousand short.

Q. M. Sergt. Hedley Brewer and Staff Sergt. Norman Brewer, G.W.V. left on Monday for Winnipeg where they will take up their old positions that they quit four years ago and went overseas to help whip the Berlin Butcher.

"Business is business," says Jim Thistlebeak, "but when you have business with a skunk, you had better use the telephone." (Sure Mickey.)

MINERS' BOARD MEMBER LASHES OUT AGAINST O.B.U.

Some days ago the Herald published as a fact that the policy committee of District No. 18, U. M. W. of A., District No. 18 was coming back from the Indianapolis convention to fight the O. B. U.

This was denied by a miner delegate at Wednesday's meeting of the Trades and Labor Council.

That the Herald was right in its contention is shown by statements made in Calgary by R. Livett, international board member, in an interview with the Calgary Herald Saturday when he said:

"I am strongly opposed to the methods that were adopted at that conference," he remarked. "Instead of working for amalgamation something was introduced which in my opinion will lead to nothing but disruption. The action taken by the conference is in direct opposition to the intentions of the caucus which was held at Quebec, and the miners' delegate acted contrary to the action of their own convention, which authorized them to get their policy from the international."

In reply to a question, Mr. Livett stated that the action of the western convention was discussed at a sub-committee of the policy committee at Indianapolis. Vice-President Lewis asked P. M. Christophers, the president of district 18, about this "big" union. The latter replied that the resolution had been passed during his absence from Calgary, but that no outside body had the right to ask for a referendum in district 18, the only body that had this right being the executive board by calling a special convention of the membership.

The executive board are not losing any time in dealing with this matter, and met in Calgary Saturday morning to discuss this action taken by the western conference.—Lethbridge Herald.

ADVENTURE, NOT A GAMBLE

"Of well-conducted mining ventures it can safely be said that they meet with a measure of success as large as, if not larger than an ordinary manufacturing enterprise. Yet mining has been, and still is, a glorious adventure for the youth of the world—for those young in spirit as well as in body."

In an address on "Mining as an Investment," which closed the International Mining convention at Vancouver last week, T. A. Rickard, M. E. of San Francisco, before a large and interested audience, thus summed up his address.

The provincial government engineers of the six mining divisions of the province were heard in the afternoon when they outlined the progress and dealt with the possibilities in all sections, each predicting a still greater development than in any year in the mining history of the province.

In his address that night Mr. Rickard, who is a noted mining engineer and editor of the Mining and Scientific Press of San Francisco, declared that while the spirit of adventure was natural and vital to this industry, yet mining properly conducted was not a gamble. Naturally there was some risk. No sane man would expect to escape it. The idea of avoiding risk in mining was a pathetic fallacy, he added, a weak endeavor to escape the inevitable. The attempt to find mines that would involve no risk to the capital sunk in them had tended to cripple the industry, and the refusal of many so-called exploration companies to incur risk had stultified their operations and paralyzed development.

"When the ore reserves of a mine are at a low ebb it may be the most speculative attractive time to buy the property," continued Mr. Rickard. "There are those who say the mining of the future will be the economic harvesting of the known ore deposits of a low grade, the beneficiation of the masses of mineral already discovered, but heretofore regarded as too refractory for successful metallurgic treatment; that is, the utilization of the visible supply of skimmed milk instead of the finding of the metallic cream concentrated by the patient operations of nature. I doubt that. The world is still young and but half explored as is suggested by such discoveries as those of Nome, Cobalt, Porcupine, Tonopah, Goldfield, the United Verde Extension, the Baldwin mines of Burma, and a host of other bonanzas of the past twenty years.

"Before a profitable outcome is assured," he added, "every mining enterprise must pass through several speculative stages as surely as a child must take the chances of bumps and bruises. The history of the great mining deposits of the Rand in South Africa has not escaped the vicissitudes latent in mining which resulted in widespread loss of money. Between 1911 and 1918 the market value of the shares of the three principal companies representing consolidations of groups of mines declined $203,931,610, this loss being due to ignoring the common experience that mines eventually become impoverished in depth just as surely as men grow old."

The biggest fortunes in mines, according to Mr. Rickard, are made during the early stages of development. On the whole there is more money made by selling than by buying mines, because the final so-called investment stage of a first class mine is likely to represent an over-valuation. He ventured to say that more money was lost by over-valuation of rich mines than by worthless prospects. Small men lost their money in big mines, and big men on small mines. The most intelligent policy to follow in investing in mines was to allow a liberal margin both ways, taking a larger risk for the sake of a larger gain.

Mr. Rickard gave various interesting illustrations of misjudgment in operations of mines, miscalculations of ore bodies, losses through the discovery of "faults," and rich developments from poor promises.

"The sampling of mines," he added, "has been allowed to obscure the need for good judgment. It is also another phase of the attempt to make an investment out of a speculation. The ore in reserve in a mine should be regarded chiefly as an indicator of the probability of being able to find and develop more ore of the same grade. The expectation of a profitable venture should be based not upon the extraction of the known ore, but upon the chances of further intelligent search. It is the spirit of adventure that stimulates the best kind of mining.

"The speculative side of mining has an attractiveness that is at the bottom of the energy with which it is followed, and when you bring it to the dead level of a steady investment, you will find that the man of ordinary shrewdness saves time by going straight to his broker and buying bonds or consols. This does not mean that one is justified in playing the fool and expecting miracles to happen. The risk of mining should not needlessly be increased. Mining enterprises come to grief often, not so much on account of the failure to attain an investment basis, but because they are not put on a business basis. Even if the occurence of ore in nature is erratic, and mining as a consequence be hazardous, there is no justification for piling human foolishness on top of nature's vagaries.

"Of well-conducted mining ventures," concluded Mr. Rickard, "it can be safely said that they meet with a measure of success as large as, if not larger than, an ordinary manufacturing enterprise. Yet mining has been, and still is, a glorious adventure for the youth of the world, for those young in spirit as well as in body."

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

DIVORCE IN CANADA

Announcement has been made that the Canadian Divorce laws will be brought up for discussion and for possible legislative action at this session of the federal house. When the board of the Federation of Women's Institutes of Canada was in session here recently, a resolution was passed asking for the simplification and unification of our divorce laws. This is just one body which has this matter under consideration so that perhaps parliamentary action in the matter will not at least have to meet the indictment of being hasty. Manitoba's recent claim of power to grant divorce through her provincial courts has been challenged and the appeal is now before the judicial committee of the Privy council. If judgment is handed down in favor of Manitoba, the other prairie provinces will claim the same powers as they came into the Confederation under similar constitutions. As it is now, the three maritime provinces and British Columbia have provincial divorce courts. Cases from the other provinces have always been referred to the Senate and each case has been dealt with under a separate act. It can thus be seen that only are the provinces not equal in this regard, but the whole system is cumbersome in the exereme. As well as the agitation among the provinces for courts, the matter has still more forcibly been brought to public attention recently by the long list of some seventy-five cases which have been presented to the Senate. A motion has been brought before the federal house asking the appointment of a committee-Canada's first thought when any action is contemplated—to look into the whole matter with a view to reform. It should be getting quite clear to everybody capable of appreciating a condition, that Canada is due for some sort of reform along these lines.

The difficulty seems to be that no sooner is divorce mentioned than certain sections of the community get extremely agitated and proclaim loudly and at length that Canada is going to what Mantelini genteely termed the "Demnition bow-wows." Quebec as a province is said to be against any divorce reform. This is, of course on religious grounds. This phase of the matter, however, need not be entered into. The whole question at issue concerns procedure. The grounds upon which divorce may be granted are not under discussion.As it now is, dwellers in some provinces can apply for divorce to their own provincial courts where we are told such matters are dealt with in a judicial way with little publicity and with an entire absence of public scandal. (We can trust the Maritime provinces for that). The others have to travel to Ottawa, where each case is tried before the Senate and must be dealt with by the enactment of a special law. This act must go through its various readings in the senate, and then pass through similar stages in the House of Commons. Conscientious objectors to divorce thus do not prevent the granting of divorce. Divorce is granted in a round-about, clumsy way, much attended with publicity and incidentally because of the round-about ways, especially if the way is by Ottawa, are expensive, they make divorce the privilege of the well-to-do, not a matter for public justice decided on one basis for all.

I notice the Institute's federation in its resolution added a clause calling for the elimination of any discrimination against women in divorce laws. If there is any such discrimination in the Canadian law it is honored in the breach. Women can apply for and obtain divorces on the same terms as men, that is on the ground of infidelity. According to English law a woman has also to prove cruelty. No doubt the new electorate over there will see to the removing of that injustice. The difficulty in Canada for women, beside the difficulty under which all citizens labor, is that while proceedings are pending, the husband may have sold al that he had and left the country—except for the tiny portion safeguarded by the Dower law. Of course, it may be claimed here, that the matter is up to the lawyer who may register an attaching order against his real estate. The law might beneficially be changed so that the defendant could not dispose of property after action had been started.

These, however, are minor points. The main point in the interests of justice certainly, and perhaps as certainly in the interests of morality, is the institution throughout Canada of one system of granting divorce, assuring as far as humanly possible equal and fair treatment for all, rich and poor, men and women alike.—Manitoba Free Press.

Frank H. Simonds thus defines Bolshevism: Bolshevism is, as much as it is anything, an attack upon the theory and system of private property. It is surely and simply communism. It is class warfare directed against all our political and economical theories in the western world. It seeks to govern the world by masses of the least skilled labor. It is killing all men of capacity and ability in Russia. It wars upon nationalism, upon patriotism, upon all that we have been accustomed to regard as organized civilization. Its only liking for the League of Nations is based upon the conviction that the League of Nations will disarm exactly those forces which might otherwise resist Bolshevism and so far this is an accurate conclusion.

LIVETT QUITS JOB TO FIGHT ONE BIG UNION

The first decisive step to get out and smash the One Big Union was taken in Calgary Tuesday morning when Robert Livett stated to a representative of the Herald in the course of an interview that he was resigning his position as International Board Member of the United Mine Workers of America in order that he could not be charged, in his efforts in fighting the new proposed organization, that he was merely doing so to keep his job.

Mr. Livett's action, it is regarded in various labor circles, will have very considerable effect upon the ever-growing feeling among craft unions and others against the resolution which the Red element carried at the recent inter-provincial conference in Calgary, and its reflex will certainly be found when the Calgary Trades and Labor Council again meet to discuss the matter.

"The interests of the men are more to me than individual self or my position," was the way Mr. Livett put it when declaring his intention to resign as an International board member at the end of the month. It might be stated that he was elected to his position by the members of District 18, of the United Mine Workers of America, and is not a nominee of the International itself, although he is also a member of the policy committee for this district.

In declaring that he is going out to do his utmost to kill the new organization, Mr. Livett stated that whilst they all believed in industrial unionism in order to attain that end, there should be no secessionist movement. "The One Big Union," he said, "openly avowed its intention to withdraw from its international affiliations, therefore, it would defeat the goal for which it was striving. Furthermore, in the counting of votes in the referendum, the object of separating the east from the west was palpable, and would simply mean that in addition to severing the affiliation with the Internationals there would be a breach caused with the east, and this would result in the four western provinces if these votes carried, of having merely a local organization.

"My idea of industrial unionism," said Mr. Livett, "is that each organization retains its identity and have an affiliated understanding with the other workers with the purpose of attaining the one end. There are many things that enter into the reasons for this. After the referendum vote was taken, from what I can judge at the moment, the 'central committee' will automatically cease to exist; therefore, who is going to control this so-called One Big Union? This is a point that is as nebulous as the whole scheme."

Mr. Livett stated that he agreed with the statement of Alex. Ross, M.L.A., at the meeting of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council Friday night, that the One Big Union was an I. W. W. movement. "We fought the I. W. W.'s at our convention at Fernie in 1918 and a number of them are the leading spirits in the present movement. They have been against any form of labor organization for several years past, and have only 'switched over' during the past twelve months or so. They have always contended that the labor movement was never of any advantage to the workers and if disrupted a better form of organization would spring up but they never considered the suffering that might be entailed in the meantime."

Continuing, the International board member said that no good purpose could ever be achieved by disruption. By working on the inside there was always a better chance of getting a closer understanding with their fellow man. By working on the "inside" he meant retaining their affiliations with their craft organizations; meeting in conventions, and if the policies were not suitable, changing them along progressive and sane lines.

"Unless such a course is adopted at the present juncture," said Mr. Livett, "trades unions, as was pointed out by a speaker at the recent Trades and Labor Council at Calgary will be crushed between the upper and nether millstone."

DELEGATE KEPT QUIET

Cranbrook, B. C., — A representative of the "One Big Union" which some are endeavoring to organize in Canada, came to Cranbrook on Saturday and was not permitted to carry his meeting to a completion. The war veterans appeared in force at the meeting and their appearance took all the pep out of the organizer. The gentleman advertised the meeting by posters, "Workers of the World Unite." The organizer (whose name is McKenzie), on being questioned by J. F. Guimont, confessed at the meeting that he was a delegate from the convention in Calgary, and that he supported the resolution endorsing the Soviet government in Russia and the Spartacans in Germany. He was successful in collections, for which he gave receipts. The war veterans took charge of the money, and the names of the subscribers, and the president will refund the payments to subscribers who will surrender their receipts.

When the meeting was opened the Union Jack was conspicuous by its absence. This, however, was early supplied by Sergeant Walsh and J. F. Guimont.

On motion of Mr. Guimont, the meeting endorsed unanimously the following resolution: "Resolved, that this meeting go on record as being utterly opposed to the Russian Bolshevik and the German Spartacans." The meeting was peacefully closed by the lusty singing of the National Anthem.

The delegate was later waited upon at his rooms and requested firmly but gently to leave the city, at once, of which privilege he discreetly took prompt advantage. He was permitted to choose his own means of transportation.

By its action, Cranbrook has demonstrated the fact that she is emphatically opposed to any propaganda which has for its object the defeat of the good work for which so many of her boys laid down their lives.

OUTSIDE MEN GET EIGHT HOURS

In accordance with the Provincial statute governing the hours of labor for those employed in surface operations in and about the coal mining industry, enacted during the 1918 session of the legislature but only becoming effective April 1, 1919, the eight hour shift has therefore become operative.

In the Fernie, Michel and Corbin mines, to which this statute applies in this immediate vicinity, it will affect approximately 500 workers, embracing as it does all surface mine labor, including tipple employees, fan men, outside haulage hands, timber yard employees and outside laborers. In most of these cases the reduction in actual working time will be one hour as under the last working agreement practically all outside mine labor was placed on a nine hour day basis.

PRESENTATION TO MRS. MOFFATT

On Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Trites entertained the Daughters of the Empire and friends, when Mrs. G. G. Moffatt was presented with a life membership in the National Chapter.

Mrs. A. I. Fisher, the Regent, presiding, the National Anthem was sung, after which Rev. Mr. Batzold made a few introductory remarks on reception and spoke of Mrs. Moffatt's unselfish and untiring efforts, and of the great work she had accomplished during her four years as Regent of the Mount Fernie Chapter. As Mr. Batzold had been on the firing line he was able to say how much the boys appreciated what Mrs. Moffatt and the Chapter had done to add to their comfort during the Great War, and had won their heartfelt thanks.

Mrs. Fisher then presented Mrs. Moffatt with the pin of the National Chapter.

Mrs. Moffatt replied in her usual charming manner and thanked the Chapter for the honor they had bestowed upon her.

Mrs. Suddaby, the Secretary, presented Mrs. Trites with a beautiful boquet of roses as a slight appreciation of her past work as Secretary and as the hostess on this occasion.

Mrs. Trites, replying said that it was a pleasure to entertain the Chapter but that her heart was too full to allow her to express her thanks.

Mrs. Whitehouse then followed with a song.

Speech by Mr. Fisher on "King and Empire."

Song, Mrs. Asselstine.

Speech, Mr. Stewart, on "Patriotic Fund."

Song, Mrs. Suddaby.

Speech, Mr. Hewat, on "The Navy League."

Speech, Mr. Bonnallie on "Reconstruction."

Song, Mrs. Watson.

God Save the King.

Mrs. Griffiths represented Baynes and Waldo I.O.D.E.

Corbin Red Cross Society was represented by Mrs. Warburton.

In the dining room the tea table was presided over by Mr. Duthie and Mrs. Stewart and the executive of the Junior I.O.D.E. and others assisted in serving refreshments, Mrs. Herchmer cutting the ices.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Trites for their kindness and all joined in singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

GARNETT DUDLEY MARRIED

J. R. Dudley of Fernie was a visitor in Nelson yesterday. A brother of Mr. Dudley was married April 5, at Victoria and with reference to the ceremony the following appeared in the Victoria Colonist:

"A quiet wedding was solemnized on Saturday evening, April 5, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Davis, 317 Simcoe street, when their daughter, Miss Dorothy Ada Davis became the bride of Garnett R. Dudley, son of Mr. Robert Dudley, of Fernie, B.C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. Theodore Habershon in the presence of the immediate relatives. The happy couple left on the midnight boat for Vancouver, where they will make their home."

54TH WILL SOON BE HOME

Revelstoke, B.C., April 9. — Word has just been received from Major Nicholson, at Greenwood, near Brussels, which says the 54th Battalion (Kootenay) will arrive soon. Five hundred men will be dispersed at Hamilton, Ont., and 500 in Revelstoke, the latter including the Cranbrook, Nelson and Grand Forks companies.

A party of twelve representing a Vancouver picture house, spent the week here and say Fernie is one of the best towns on the map.

REPURCHASE CITY BONDS

The regular meeting of the council was held last night with a full quota in attendance.

The minutes of the former regular meeting were adopted as read.

The first matter under the head of correspondence was in connection with a telegram from the Royal Financial Corporation relative to $40,000 worth of City of Fernie debentures issued in 1915 due in 1935. From the discussion that arose it was apparent that this was undoubtedly a very satisfactory offer by which the city would eventually effect a financial saving of approximately $7700 or as estimated would amount to a reduction of one mill per annum for the next 17 years. This saving is effected by premiums available on certain issues of Victory Bonds which the city will dispose of in exchange for the repurchased debentures, together with interest already accrued on said bonds. The matter was concluded by the passing of the following motion: "That the city clerk be authorized to accept the offer of the Royal Financial Corporation of $40,000 City of Fernie debentures plus $3,543 in cash for $30,000 Dominion War Loan 1915, 5 per cent, and $10,000 Dominion War Loan 1933, 5 1-2 per cent. Accrued interest to be adjusted in all cases."

A lengthy circular was received from the Repatriation Committee at Ottawa with a view to ascertaining the probabilities of employment for returned soldiers, by requesting information respecting proposed public works undertakings this year within the municipality. The information requested will be supplied.

In reply to the city advising the Workmen's Compensation Board that in future they did not propose to pay for the office staff and medical health officer, the board advised they would comply with the request in so far as the office staff was concerned but that the city must continue to pay for the medical health officer.

An offer was received from the Canadian Bank of Commerce to purchase the $14,000 Annex Sewer debentures held by the city, at 90. The amount of money which could be realized for this undertaking at the present cost of material is totally inadequate for the completion of the Annex sewer and in any event the council decided they would not accept the offer by the bank at the present time.

The council then went into committee of the whole to consider the tenders for river bank protection work, and excluded all those who had submitted tenders while same was being discussed. Mr. Cummings, District Engineer for East Kootenay, arrived at this juncture and an informal discussion in this connection was entered into. Tenders were submitted by Wm. Dicken, Robt. A. Kerr and George Cody. After due consideration the tender of George Cody , who agreed to perform the work according to specifications, was accepted. Ald. Gates suggested that it might be advisable for the council to take steps with the provincial government to induce them to contribute a fair proportion of the additional expense incurred in connection with this work. Ald. Beck, as an alternative suggestion, was of the opinion that a concise letter should be submitted to Mr. Cummings for transmission to the proper officer, embodying the various obstacles which had necessitated alterations in the original plans for the river bank work, such as substituting cement work for rock work and improved method of mattress work. These changes could not be contemplated when the original estimates were made, and Mr. Cummings volunteered to state the facts in this connection when forwarding the request of the council to the department.

A draft form of agreement between Thomas Whitehouse and the Corporation of the City of Fernie was submitted, with regard to the deplorable accident to Leonard Whitehouse on Nov. 11, wherein, while the city repudiates all liability, they agree to pay $200 per year into a trust fund for a certain period, at the expiration of which the city council as trustees will designate the manner in which the fund accrued shall be expended. The mayor and city clerk were authorized to sign the agreement on behalf of the city.

Mr. Simms was given the use of the city lot near the G.N. subway for a garden.

Acting Medical Health Officer, Dr. Garner, submitted a report for the quarter ending March 31, 1919. There were 17 births and 9 deaths; seven of the latter were Fernie residents. During the last three weeks in March there have been a large number of cases of bronchitis, tonsilitis, etc., which have resembled a mild form of influenza but by no means the usual type of flu. Apart from this the general health in the city has been excellent since the flu epidemic and the percentage of attendance at the schools has decidedly improved. Three cases of pulmonary tuberculosis are inmates of the hospital; one evidently contracted from being gassed overseas; another in Fernie following influenza; and one a non-resident. A child in West Fernie is afflicted following an attack of the flu. One case of scarlet fever occurred which did not originate in Fernie.

On a report of the fire, water and light committee it was moved by Hunter and Rutledge that the salary of Electrician Wilson Quail be increased to $140 per month. Ald. Rutledge supported this increase because Quail was still receiving $125 per month, the salary granted upon his assuming these duties. Ald. Gates opposed the amount of the increase on general grounds and introduced an amendment that the increase be $5 per month. The vote on the amendment resulted in Gates, Robichaud and Graham favoring it, while Hunter, Beck and Rutledge voted against and this hung up the proceedings as the question arose whether the mayor had the power to record the casting vote or whether on a tie vote the amendment was lost. The Municipal Clauses Act was referred to to remove the difficulty but Section 38 apparently held that a tie vote was a negative. However, while most of the council were endeavoring to find some means to get out of the tangle Aldermen Graham and Beck quietly connived between themselves and sprung an amendment to the amendment authorizing Mr. Quail's salary be increased $10 per month. This was approved by Graham, Beck, Gates and Robichaud voting in favor, Ald. Rutledge voting contrary, while Ald. Hunter did not vote in which case according to regular procedure he would be recorded in the affirmative.

The revised schedule of electric light rates and rules and regulations regarding same, effective April 1st, were finally approved.

Bylaw No. 191, being Waterworks Amendment Bylaw 1919, was finally passed.

Ald. Beck gave notice of the introduction of a Traffic Regulation Bylaw.

Arbor Day was fixed for April 30, and the mayor will accordingly issue the necessary proclamation.

The mayor brought up the matter of daylight saving being made effective within the city. The concensus of opinion was that at the present the old time was quite satisfactory and no change was made.

His Worship brought up the Dominion government housing scheme in accordance with which this city allotment would be $15,000; also the resolution of Gladstone Local Union demanding that the federal government confiscate all profits from the manufacture of munitions, etc.; and endorsing that a gratuity of $2000 be awarded each returned soldier, were all laid over for consideration at the next meeting.

ENTERTAIN ORGANIZER

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the Napanee Hall last Friday upon the occasion of the visit of Walter Drinnan, organizing secretary of the G.W.V.A. There was a large attendance of returned men, their wives, relatives and friends. Mr. Drinnan delivered a very interesting address, outlining the aims and objejcts of the G.W.V.A., and the problems with which they had to contend. He reviewed the activities in this province dealing with the land question, the vocational training, reconstruction, alien enemies and various other problems. In dealing with these he criticized the governments where criticism was due and commended them where they had honestly endeavored to alleviate the existing complex conditions. He sounded a salutary warning to the returned men with regard to their actions and how they should grapple with their difficulties. In connection with the alien enemy situation, Mr. Drinnan did not mince matters in the least and warned his comrades that while alien enemies in many cases were bad there were those of their own nationality whose chief object at

REPORT ON NIGHT SCHOOL

In the annual report on Education in the Province, the Organizer of Night School and Technical Education makes some very pertinent remarks which ought to be of interest to the people of this district.

One of his suggestions is that the School Boards in general and instructors in particular should carry on a propaganda to popularize the evening schools and call the attention of the people to the opportunities which exist for their benefit.

Although we have made a very creditable beginning in night school instruction in Fernie, catering to the residents of this city and Coal Creek, I am sure that the classes would be better patronized if the citizens knew more of the aims and the scope of the work at present being undertaken and of the possibilities of extension of the studies.

Last October the school board offered to provide classes in all subjects of interest to the industrial population of Fernie, if teachers could be found to teach the subjects and students would come forward to fill the classes.

In spite of the inducements to both teachers and students there were difficulties in both directions. Some classes could not get teachers and some teachers could get no scholars or at least too few to make up a class.

For example, a course of English for foreigners was offered, but only one student presented himself on the opening night. This, in spite of the fact that the course cost the student absolutely nothing if he made a moderate percentage of attendance.

There were other difficulties to be met also this year.

Classes were organized in:

1. Practical Mathematics.
2. Applied Mathematics.
3. Machine Drawing and Geometry, for second year students.

And in

1. Workshop Arithmetic.
2. Mechanical Drawing and Geometry for first year students.

Each class had more than twenty on the roll when the epidemic of Spanish influenza closed the schools.

When the classes were begun again many of the first year students had either lost interest or were feeling the effects of their recent sickness and dropped out for this year. But the second year students were still enthusiastic and the class grew and prospered.

Early in February there was a demand for a class in Elementary Science bearing directly on the work of the mining and engineering subjects. V. W. Jenkins, the principal of the high school, took charge of this class and has now a very interested and enthusiastic class every Thursday evening where the natural laws in chemistry and physics are being investigated and proved by experimenting in the well equipped laboratory of the high school.

Another feature of the Provincial Organizer's report is the promised establishment of correspondence classes in mining. It is intended to provide courses (1) for youths who have left school and taken up mining for a livelihood and (2) for minor officials who are anxious to improve their position by gaining the certificates of competency issued by the Department of Mines in B.C.

Later in the report Mr. Kyle says that the successful development of the industries of B.C. will require the establishment of a good technical school of a standing equal to the best in the country. He recommends in every city the formation of technical courses in connection with the high schools or the elementary schools. He recommends the latter as a precentive for the leakage from the senior classes in many cities. Boys or girls who have little desire to enter the high school would be inclined to remain at school if a change of work such as a technical course or domestic science course would provide.

NO BOLSHEVISM FOR CRANBROOK

Cranbrook will not stand for Bolshevism in any shape or form. This district has sent too many men to the front and too much of the rich red blood of its sons has been shed on the fields of Flanders to tolerate any kind of a flirtation with the enemy.

There is no objection to the workmen of Canada uniting to promote their own interests or to improve the conditions under which they live and work, but no propaganda meetings will be permitted to be held in Cranbrook to strengthen the hands of the enemy and enable the unrepentant although cowed enemy of civilization and democracy to get again on its feet and hurl humanity into another hell worse if could be than that from which it is now slowly emerging.

An attempt was made to hold such a meeting here on Saturday night but as soon as its purpose became known it was closed with a bang and the guy who tried to put it over was given his walking ticket.—Cranbrook Herald.

THE CALGARY-FERNIE RY.

Ottawa, April 8.—A bill to extend the time for the construction of the Lachine, Jacques Cartier and Maisonneuve railway was reported by the railway committee of the commons this morning. The committee inserted in the bill the new standard clause providing for commencement of work during the first year and the construction of 25 miles each subsequent year until completed.

The bill to extned the time for the construction of the Central railway company's lines was next considered.

When the bill to extend the time for the construction of the Calgary and Fernie Railway Company was called, Mr. R. L. Richardson said while the bill stands in his name, at the request of a friend, he would not promise that he would not oppose it. The line will run from Calgary through Kananaskis Pass to Fernie and will tap rich coal areas. The new provision in regard to construction was included.

Mr. Cockshutt pointed out that 20 miles out of Fernie the line will parallel the C.P.R. and C.N.R.

Col. Mackie (North Renfrew) said the road must run through the Gek Pass and it was positive that it would be necessary to secure running rights over the C.N.R. or C.P.R. through the pass.

Dr. Reid favored the bill because its purpose is to develop the natural resources of the country.

Mr. Green, counsel for the company, asked that the bill be allowed to stand over until Mr. Tweedie, Calgary; Mr. Shaw of Macleod, and Dr. Bonnell, Kootenay, three western members interested, could be heard. All expressed a desire to discuss the committee's proposals with his principals.

Mr. Boys moved an amendment to the effect that further consideration of the bill be deferred for two weeks. The amendment was adopted.

DISTRICT 18 WILL NOT STRIKE

Lethbridge, April 7.—That there will be no strike in District No. 18 over the sixhour day proposal is indicted in a signed statement by President Christopher, in which he says: "Regarding the six-hour proposition: We are still in favor of this, but how many of us really believe that it is possible to bring this about in this district while the other coal fields competing with this district in the same markets are working from eight to ten hours a day? It is at present a matter of competition in the markets and no one, no matter how desirous of bringing about a six-hour day, can gainsay the fact."

BRITISH BULL NEVER LETS GO

(Louisville Kentucy Herald)

If the kaiser possessed prescience or had read history, he must have shivered—as tradition has it that we do if some one steps on our grave—when he knew for certain that his spies had lied and that the stubborn, stick-to-it, bull-dog British had decided to live or die with the French. The British have had a bad record for an ambitious despot to face. They brought Philip of Spain to his knees—they curbed the power of Louis the Great of France—they grappled with the mighty Napoleon and never let go. That is the gist of the matter. They never let go. Great Britain and her dominions have sent over eight and a half millions of men into the struggle. When we have sent 15,000,000 we will have done as well. And not before, we may add.

Thousands of American lads will come to us alive and while because thousands of our blood-brothers from the British Isles have been killed and mutilated—and have taught us how to escape. Britain made her army while France and her own navy held the gap.

That is a fact, America — broadly speaking—is reluctant to admit. But it is so. What Runnymeade did was done for us.

For all this they paid. There is hardly a home in Great Britain which does not have its unvisited grave in France or Belgium—not a street on which the permanently maimed do not limp to unaccustomed tasks. And the figures show that the percentage of casualties from the mother country exceeds the percentage from the overseas dominions thus disposing of one of the meanest and most dastardly lies of the whole Satanic German propaganda.

Why do we repeat this? Because England's contribution is either denied or derided; because the fact that her ships have coaled, fed, and munitioned Italians and French—to say nothing of Americans—is neglected; because the fact that she rose from nothing at all to be a full military partner of France is mentioned by no one.

British bottoms convoyed by British warships took the Americans overseas. If you think that is an excessive boast we will, by agreement with Secretary Baker, take off 15 per cent. That is our personal-intimate phase. It does not stand alone, however.

Where have the British not fought? The Suez was in danger. It was the British that protected it. There were German naval stations in the Pacific. The British mopped them up. Russia asked help by way of the Dardanelles. The British tried to give it. Intervention was needed on the Tigris. The British supplied it. The British were at Salonika. British ships were in the Adriatic. The British colonial troops freed Africa from the Germans. The British today are moving south from Archangel and are at Vladivistock.

It's a true story. England has prolonged the war, shows no disposition, the slightest to curtail it; could quite easily modify the terms and soften the way. Won't.

It's the British way, the bull-dog British way. Not intelligent, some one suggests, and we are not disposed to defend it as such. Narrow, rather groovy, angular, morose. Well, and good. But where it bites it holds, never fear. That is why Russia, waking up, find the Briton at her elbow. That is why Portugal—recalling that she has leaned on Britain since long before the days of Napoleon—throws in her lot with the British confidently.

War with all the world—
Peace with Britain.

The British are the poorest advertisers in the world. No one will ever know the sum of their performance. But they will deliver the goods. Eighty thousand they sent to France and they have multiplied it a hundredfold. And the British, if we may be permitted to suggest anything as revolutionary, are a great part—possibly a dominant part—of the Americans. They have contributed to our make-up, language and literature; laws and customs; faith and freedom. We are inconceivable, unrealizable, impossible without them. Is not that plain truth?

SALESMANSHIP EXTRAORDINARY

In the United States of recent years salesmanship has been raised to the position of a science. The art and craft of exchanging commodities for currency has been greatly studied not without gratifying results to the practitioners of the part, but it has been left for a young private soldier in Paris to give the most dazzling exhibition of salesmanship on record.

This young man, Victor Bender, who is a private in the 19th United States Engineers, started out "to sell everything in France that was not nailed down." He is tall, slender, and has an attractive smile and with this equipment he entered on his selling career.

To a Frenchman, whose name he did not even know, Pte. Bender sold the Metro Underground railway for the sum of eight thousand dollars. He sold an ammunition train to a party of Frenchmen with whom he became acquainted behind the lines, and as he found the Frenchmen a little difficult over the price, he "threw in" a complete camp kitchen for good measure.

Pte. Bender then "selected" an Englishman and persuaded him to purchase a military hospital on the Somme. For this hospital, which only existed in Pte. Bender's imagination, the Englishman paid a little over eight thousand dollars. It is rumored Pte. Bender was negotiating the sale of the Arc de Triomphe to a fellow countryman, and he might have managed to dispose of the Eiffel Tower, the Champs D'Elysee and the Quai d'Orsai had not the authorities come to the rescue. He was arrested for fraud and lodged in the historic Petite Roquette prison but it is probable that long ere this he has sold the prison to some Russian bargain-hunter.

Private Bender, of the U. S. Engineers certainly seems to be the last word in selling proficiency. Had his career not been interfered with in Paris he might have been able to sell olive branches to the Bolsheviki and humble pie to the National Assembly at Weimar.

What Will Relieve Kidney or Bladder Troubles

This is a question that thousands of people have asked; and a question that has been answered for them by the practical demonstrations of Gin Pills. Read these testimonials and realize the satisfaction that thousands of people have derived and from the relief they have been given by taking the same, and expressing their gratitude for Gin Pills.

Mrs. B. Walters, of Savona, B.C., writes:—

"I advise people who have not used Gin Pills to try them, as Gin Pills are within the means of rich and poor. I have been troubled for years with weak kidneys, and one box of Gin Pills cured me. I recommend them as an absolute and reliable cure."

Mrs. Butler, of Vancouver, sends this message:—

"I think it my duty to write and tell you that I think Gin Pills a sure cure for kidney trouble. I suffered much with my kidneys until I took Gin Pills; now I would not be without them in my home."

Can you have any doubt that Gin Pills have accomplished such wonderful results? If you have—you need not spend a cent on them until you have tried a sample box free. Just write to us and when you receive the box give Gin Pills a trial—and be convinced by results. Sold by dealers everywhere at 50c a box.

"ROBBERS AND THIEVES"

What ever supporters Messrs. Lenine, Trotsky & Co., may have in this country the small boys who play in London streets are not among them. A divisional inspector of police tells me that the boys have substituted for the old game of "robbers and thieves" a new one entitled "mounted police and Bolshevism."

"The game will not have a long run," added my informant, "because very few boys can be found to take the part of Bolsheviks." Another new street game is called "demobilized soldiers."—London Daily Express.

THE SHIPBUILDING RACE

Who's going to lead the world in shipping, Chairman Hurley, of the United States Shipping Board, sees this country as "potentially the greatest marine power of the earth, for the reason that we possess the greatest shipbuilding instrumentalities."

But E. T. Good, writing for the English "Outlook" on the same subject, says:

"We can give the Americans all the praise possible—and they merit it—for their splendid efforts to counteract the German submarine campaign; and we can pay all due respect to their general industrial efficiency and enterprise; but it is only the bare truth and only the barest justice to ourselves to say that we can comfortably beat the Americans in shipping and shipbuilding, as we have beaten them in the steel export trade."

Mr. Good argues that the country that can produce and ship steel the cheapest, the country that has its coal and iron supplies, its steel works and shipyards and ports the most conveniently situated, coupled with the lowest labor cost, will win the shipbuilding race. And that country according to Mr. Good, is Great Britain. He contends that both capital and labor in America will continue to look inward instead of outward, and that "Americans will find themselves handicapped by long inland haulage distances for materials and by scarcity and high cost of the right kind of labor."

Experience in cognate fields suggests that perhaps Mr. Good and Mr. Hurley are both right; that in standardized ships of a common type we shall lead, while Great Britain will lead in special ships built to order. There is a demand for both types, just as there is a demand for custom-made and ready-made clothes, for the Rolls-Royce and the Ford in automobiles.—New York Tribune.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjurtment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

Without Music You Cannot Live a Full Life

Music is now recognized as a necessity in the home. Music feeds the soul, as food feeds the body and literature feeds the brain. Next to religion, it is humanity's greatest comforter.

The New Edison opens the doors to the world of music. It brings the supreme art of the greatest singers, instrumentalists and musical organizations to you with such unerring fidelity that the artists themselves could give you no more.

The NEW EDISON

does not merely imitate; it actually re-creates.

Before audiences totalling more than two millions, thirty great artists have conducted tone tests which proved that no shade of difference could be detected between the artist and the instrument. They have sung in direct comparison with the New Edison, then suddenly ceased, permitting the instrument to continue alone. The only way the listeners could tell when the artist stopped was by watching his lips. And with the lights lowered, they were unable to say when it was the living voice they heard and when the New Edison.

Could a more convincing test than this be devised? Doesn't it prove the truth of our assertion that ownership of this instrument is equivalent to having all the great artists of the world literally at one's command?

Come in and hear the New Edison here, or allow us to send one to your home, where you can hear it at your leisure. 174

THE A. B. C. OF ECONOMICS

The policy of Colonial Preference has long been urged in vain. But it is in strict accord with the Paris Resolutions, which seem to have been forgotten by the government. The main argument urged against Colonial Preference by the labor party was that it would involve a rise in prices without a corresponding rise of wages. But why? And, we would ask, what about present prices and present wages? Both have risen, and the increased wages cannot buy the stuff. Nor if wages were raised 100 or 200 per cent would the workman be able to buy things which do not exist and which only his labors in conjunction with capital, can bring into being. The economic question is simply this: Is it or is it not the best policy to develop our own possessions? If it is, then measures must be taken to that end in whatever those measures may consist.—London Morning Post.

AERIAL POLICY OF BRITAIN

The British Air Force estimates for the fiscal year are $332,500,000, and of this amount $15,000,000 is being set aside for civilian aviation, experiment and research. We notice that a draft aerial convention has been drawn up by the Peace Conference and has been agreed to by the representatives of the Dominions and India, so presumably Canada is a consenting party but up to date Canada has done nothing towards an aerial programme. Britain on her part is planning air routes at home and abroad. She is setting aside a number of aerodromes, is to establish a meteorological station and sound and light signal stations, including a kite balloon at each aerodrome, beacon stations, aerial buoys, a telephone and telegraph apparatus and visual signs, and, at certain stations, directional and ordinary wireless and wireless telephony. The government is to examine and give advice on all schemes for commercial aviation and to keep in touch with progress in the Dominions. These facts were explained by General Seeley in giving a statement of policy of the Air Force estimates and they serve to give an indication of what Britain is preparing to do.

As far as military aviation is concerned the expenditure planned is $317,500,000 or more than the Royal Navy cost in times of peace. Some illuminative figures were given by General Seeley in justifying these estimates. Britain started the war with six squadrons of airplanes and ended it with about 200. At the time of the signing of the Armistice she was building 4000 aeroplanes a month. A statistical record of the work of British pilots of whom Canadians formed a large percentage, shows 8000 enemy machines were shot down and 2800 British machines were lost, or less than the number that was being built monthly when the Armistice was signed. The British Air Force in peace times is to consist of 5300 officers and 54,000 men, with 102 squadrons. The new arm of the service is to be used in the Near and Middle East and in the Homeland. General Seeley told of how it was now possible for airplanes working from Baghdad to make inspections in two days that formerly occupied two months' time. There were good possibilities he said of carrying the mail by air from Cairo to India.

The only criticism of these estimates that is being made in England is that the sum apportioned for developing civilian flying is inadequate. But it seems that the government has, as yet, no decided policy regarding this branch of development. General Sykes is the Controller-General of Civilian flying and he has yet to be heard from fully regarding his plans. There is, however, in England a complete realization that government support is necessary to make commercial aviation a success, and since popular opinion there is unanimous that Britain must not lag behind in this particular the outlook is hopeful. In the meantime the apportionment of $15,000,000 for experimental work is a good augury. It should be an example to Canada. If this Dominion will do nothing, the result will be that hundreds and perhaps thousands who have been furnished by this country to the Royal Air Force will elect to make their future in that branch of the service, and to this extent they and their experience will be lost to Canada. It is now, without delay, that the Dominion should have an aerial policy, both military and civilian. If we are to be abreast of the times, there can be no temporizing with a matter of this kind. The psychological moment is when hundreds of young and enthusiastic airmen are returning from the front anxious and ready to make flying their peace time profession. Their enthusiasm deserves encouragement inasmuch as satisfying it will mean a considerable step forward in the work of repatriation, as well as being a move in the direction of the most up to date commercial development.—Colonist.

SUFFERED FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

Two Bottles of Tanlac Did More Good Than Treatment That Cost Him $300

Remarkable, indeed, was the statement made by Arthur Albro, a well-known carpenter, living at 3903 Mead Street, Seattle, Wash., recently. Mr. Albro declares that he has received more genuine benefit from two bottles of Tanlac than from other treatment and medicines that have cost him nearly three hundred dollars. His complete statement follows:

"I have suffered terribly with my stomach for fifteen years. My food would not digest, and the gas formed by it caused me untold misery. The gas would get all up around my heart and cause it to thump until I felt like a hammer was beating against my side. I had to be very careful about my eating, and got so tired of e ating the few things that half way agreed with me that I would sometimes get reckless and eat meats, pie and such things, but I always paid dearly for it in suffering. Finally I just had to give up eating any supper at all, for when I did eat anything for supper I would suffer all night so I couldn't sleep. I was constipated all the time and also suffered for years with my back. When I stooped over my back would cramp me so bad that I could hardly straighten up. My kidneys were all out of order and disturbed me so often at night that I couldn't get any rest scarcely. I paid out nearly three hundred dollars for treatment and medicines of various kinds, but kept getting worse. I even tried dieting and almost starved myself out, and sometimes felt a little relief, but just as I said, whenever I ventured to eat a fairly good meal it would knock me completely out. I lost two solid months from my work last winter and it had begun to look like my condition was hopeless.

"I had been keeping up with what the papers published about Tanlac, and while I had my doubts about it being as good as some said it was, I was in such bad shape that I was willing to try anything. So I bought a bottle, and soon found that it was just the very thing I needed. I have harly finished my second bottle yet, but I have already been benefitted so much that I will never doubt anything good I read or hear about Tanlac from now on. My appetite is fine and I can eat most anything I want without feeling the least bit uncomfortable afterwards. Why, just last night I ate a hearty supper and topped it off with a big piece of mince pie—something I have not ventured to eat for years—then went to bed and slept all night like a log. I'm not constipated, my kidneys don't bother me like they did, and so I get a good rest every night. I have gained all of five pounds already and feel that I am still gaining, not only in weight, but also in strength and energy. I'm beginning to feel like a new man and consider myself lucky to be able to get such a medicine as Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

CLASSIFYING CRIME

The labors of a British commission appointed to study the psychopathic aspects of crime give promise of bearing important fruit. The potential benefits of such an inquiry will be twofold. The individual, casual offender, now erroneously classified as "criminal," will profit by more sympathetic study of his case, and society will gain from the corollary of this, which is that the defective criminal will receive his deserts quickly. The deliberate offender, the professional desperado, who spends succeeding terms in prison, but emerges each time only to plot new crimes, will be placed where he belongs and kept there. The ex-convict will no longer be a menace to the law-abiding.—Portland Oregonian.

"I am open to conviction," says the President. And then he adds under his breath: "But the man doesn't live who could convince me."—Boston Transcript.

VINOL MAKES GOOD BLOOD

Positive—Convincing Proof

Many so-called remedies for anaemia are only so in name. Their makers are afraid to prove their claims by telling what their medicines contain.

The only way to be honest with the people is to let them know what they are paying for. Here is the Vinol formula. When the doctor knows what a medicine contains, it ceases to be a "patent" medicine.

℞ Cod Liver and Beef Peptones, Iron and Manganese Peptonates, Iron and Ammonium Citrate, Lime and Soda Glycerophosphates, Cascarin.

Any doctor will tell you that the ingredients of Vinol, as named above, will enrich the blood and banish anaemia and create strength. When the blood is pure and rich and red, the body is strong and robust.

You can prove this at our expense because your money will be returned if Vinol does not improve your health.

Gold Soap

Gold Soap

A cake of Gold Soap is not only big but solid. It wears away slowly and evenly without crumbling or softening. It can be used down to the thinnest wafer. For this reason alone, Gold Soap is more economical than ordinary laundry soap,—it goes farther. But a cake of Gold Soap is bigger than any other laundry soap at the same price,—more soap for your money. It also is better soap—made only from the best materials suitable for laundry use.

BOLSHEVISM TURNED DOWN

(Trail News)

For the last few days the air in Trail was more or less surcharged with subdued excitement, owing to the presence here of John Naylor, of Vancouver, vice president of the B. C. Federation of Labor, and member of the central committee of One Big Union—for the avowed purpose of organizing a branch in Trail of what is known as One Big Uuion. Announcement was made on Tuesday, signed by P. J. Bolam, secretary of the local smeltermen's union, that Mr. Naylor would address a mass meeting Thursday evening over the Trail Mercantile store and then proceed to organize.

As soon as the announcement was made the interest grew perceptibly, and returned soldiers were taking a decided interest in the idea of such a meeting. One of the first results was that the place of meeting could not be had after all—nor seemingly could any other hall be secured for the purpose. When the true purpose of the gathering became known halls were as scarce as humming birds in midwinter.

Wednesday evening a special meeting of the G.W.V.A. and Army and Navy veterans was called at their rooms, and the quarters were almost too small for those who wished to get in. From report it was also intensely interesting with some definite conclusions arrived at. Meantime Mr. Naylor had been questioned and acknowledged that he had attended the recent Calgary meeting of labor men which had endorsed Russian Bolshevism and German Spartacanism and in fact had voted for it. That settled the matter as far as Trail was concerned. The fat was in the fire.

Interviews were had with Mr. Naylor and Mr. Bolam and it was decided to call the meeting off, as the hundred odd returned soldiers in Trail, some of whom had left an eye in France or a leg or an arm in Flanders or were incapacitated or disabled for life, had no relish whatever to even permit a man who had voted in Calgary for the things they had fought against, to advocate from a public platform in Trail. They were strong for unionism but not for the Russian or German brand. And so it worked out, and the meeting was cancelled.

the present time was to spread sedition and achieve a condition of turmoil and unrest with the sole object in view of personal aggrandizement regardless of what desolation and terror they left in their wake in order to accomplish their selfish ambitions, and these the G. W. V. A. would combat to the finish.

A delightful program of instrumental music and dancing was carried out during the evening, at the conclusion of which refreshments were served. The local branch of the G.W.V.A. desire to heartily express their gratitude to those who so kindly donated the refreshments and participated in the program in order to make the reception for Comrade Drinnan a success; and also for refresments provided for the smoking concert the following evening.

STRONG HAND IS NEEDED

A campaign to create sympathy for the revolutionaries of Europe, whether they are operating as Bolshevists or Spartacans, is nothing more nor less than strengthening the hands of the enemy with whom we are still at war and should be put down with a firm hand. The organizers of such a campaign should be court martialled and shot.

Bolshevism and Spartacanism are simply attempts to transfer the war from the political to the economic field and to prove if possible that the proposition of Karl Marx that labor and capital are irreconsilable elements that are propelling the world to the vortex of bloody revolution is true. Whereas such a doctrine is as false as hell. The rule of the oppressed can be no more beneficial to the world than the rule of the oppressor. How far did Germany get in her attempt to change the existing order by her bloody and fiendish war? She enrolled the world against her and is now in the throes of a bloody revolution in her own land. The tyranny of the Bolshevik has created a reign of terror in Russia more destructive to human advancement than anything yet recorded in history.

To throw the world into the melting pot can have no other effect than to destroy it. Without organization on a fair and just basis and co-operation of all the industrial forces the innumerable wants of the race can never be filled. Pestilence, famine and barbarism can be the only result of bloody revolution.— Cranbrook Herald.

TO WORK TILL AGREEMENT IS NEGOTIATED

(Calgary Herald)

There was an extraordinarily large gathering of the representatives of western coal operators and miners at the much talked-of conference which opened in Calgary Wednesday morning, and the utmost interest was manifested by either side in the deliberations.

At the outset of the meeting W. R. Wilson, president of the Western Coal Operators' Association, read a letter from Ed. Browne, secretary of District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America, the purport of this being that the present scale should continue uninterruptedly pending the declaration of peace, this being in harmony with the arrangement arrived at at the last meeting between the operators and mine workers, and also with the policy of the international union in their recent policy meeting at Indianapolis.

In reply to a question by P. M. Christopher, president of District 18, regarding the 8-hour day coming into effect on April 1 at the mines in British Columbia, and a question of wages, Mr. Wilson pointed out that inasmuch as Commissioner Armstrong, director of coal operations, had issued an order, he felt that the gathering present were without authority to offset that order in any shape or form.

This order, in brief, called for wages to be paid in proportion to the number of hours worked. This would be a reduction of the standard day wage rates. Mr. Wilson, however, suggested that the Crow's Nest Pass Company should retire from the conference with a view, if possible of arriving at some amicable arrangement between the Operators' Association and the mine workers' organization.

Mr. Christopher then suggested an adjournment in order that the mine workers might consider the proposition. This was agreed to by the meeting, which will reconvene again this afternoon.

As already predicted by the Calgary Herald, the possibilities are that an arrangement will be entered into in the meantime on the foregoing lines, until peace is actually signed.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine. Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

WHY ALLIES FIGHT THE BOLSHEVIKI

London, April 10.—Cecil Harmsworth, under secretary for state and foreign affairs, declared to the United Press that the Allies are fighting in Russia because the Bolsheviki are openly proclaiming their determination to destroy the foundations upon which peace is being determined in Paris.

He denied that the Allies are actuated by a desire to safeguard the British and French financial interests or that the Allies are supporting reactionary elements in Russia.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo

Jim Thistlebeak says: If you are too old to enjoy what you get, say nothing about it but keep smiling, and should your feelings be divided between holy joy and the fear of the future, cling right on to the joy while you have it; you are sure of that; but in any event keep smiling, no matter if you're in a railway wreck or get kicked by a walleyed cayuse, keep smiling and the girls will say you are the real candy (Made in Medicine Hat).

Be careful of your health, man, said a well known Fernie doctor to a dyspepsia patient, and don't eat too much Hungarian goulash or garlic when it is cooked by a bohunk and served by a Prussian.

This advertising is great stuff, if you know how to do it, but you've got to know how. A chorus girl may sue for breach of promise, a man may sue a newspaper, or one political magnate may sue another for libel, and all are of the same mind. They don't need the money—it's the publicity they want.

A. Watson, manager of the Home Bank, Major Moffatt and Dr. Asselstine, all of Fernie, were down in the Roosville valley last week looking over the Rainbow.

Cap Carruthers, one of the oldest timers on the road, is back with his old firm and getting the business. Cap went overseas with the 54th, the gallant 54th, recuited in South East Kootenay.

Mrs. R. Kennedy, of the Poplars, Riverside Drive, is giving a farewell supper and dance to Mr. and Mrs. Leslie McKee and son, who are leaving Elko for Swift Current. Prof. Ferguson's Roosville Jazz Band has been engaged for the occasion. The elite of the old historic burg will be there and a pleasant time is looked for. Mrs. Leslie McKee is an expert violinist and elocutionist and very popular with the young people of the town, having taken a very active part in the social swirls given by the Sunshine Club this last winter, and will be greatly missed by them. We sincerely wish them every kind of success in their new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Butts and son Alex left for Pacific coast points last week.

Mr. Jones, the rubber man from Lethbridge, was in Elko this week and told a story about a young lady in the Burg near the coal dumps, going to one of the leading greenhouses in town and leaving an order with the florist for 25c worth of wedding flowers.

A New York society paper is offering a prize of $20 for the best essay on how to spend a million dollars. Jim Thistlebeak says if the same paper would offer a million dollars for the best essay on how to spend $20 they would be doing a public service.

Food restrictions in Great Britain have been lifted and now they are getting fed up with Wilson. Jim Thistlebeak says that President Wilson seems to have a much clearer notin of what ought to be done than how to do it. If it hadn't been for the British and the British navy he never would have made that speech in Boston. If his mother had called him Procrastination instead of Woodrow it would have been more appropriate.

PERIL OF BRITISH TROOPS

Sir Ernest Shackleton's revelations regarding the seriousness of the position occupied by the British troops in Murmansk and the Archangel district will do more to arouse Britain to the necessity for action than all the deliberations of the Peace Conference. It is not the British way to allow any portion of the army to face disaster without putting forward herculean efforts at relief. The experience of Khartoum and Kut-el-Amara are still fresh in the public mind and there must be no next time synonymous to those happenings. The British press is unanimous in the belief the time has arrived for the Peace Conference to settle upon its attitude towards Russia without any further beating about the bush.

As far as Britain is concerned she has got to determine at once what she will do to relieve her own troops. American and French soldiers are involved, so whatever is done must be shared by those countries. The London Times says the best form of relief might be an offensive against Petrograd or Moscow. It is difficult to see what could be done against Moscow except with a tremendous expenditure of life but a naval and military campaign against Petrograd would be a matter of comparative simplicity under present conditions. The British fleet has the right of way through the Baltic and troops can be landed in Esthonia, which is friendly to the Allies and would give permission with alacrity. At the same time all the reinforcements required should be sent in via Archangel for it is inconceivable that the British force there should be left in jeopardy any longer. If disaster should overcome it there will be a terrible wave of resentment throughout Britain Canda, too has a stake in this danger. Sir Ernest Shackleton is right in saying all the volunteers required can be found for the task. Britain is not yet so war weary that she will permit her honor to be tarnished and the lives of her soldiers wantonly sacrificed because of the Peace Conference delays and divided policies regarding a matter which should have been the first to engage the attention of the Paris conclave.—Colonist.

TO CONSIDER TWO TEMPERANCE BILLS

Toronto, April 8. — Premier Sir William Hearst announced in the legislature today that the government would this week introduce two temperance bills, one to amend the Ontario Temperance Act, and the other to provide a referendum to determine future legislation.

The date for the submission of the referendum was not named, presumably it will be in the fall. The premier stated that four questions would be submitted as follows:

(1)—Are you in favor of the repeal of the Ontario Temperance Act.

(2)—Are you in favor of the sale of light beer, containing not more than 2.51 per cent alcohol weight measure through government agencies and amendments to the Ontario Temperance act to permit such sale.

(3)—Are you in favor of the sale of light beer containing not more than2.51 per cent alcohol, weight measure, in standard hotels in local municipalities that by majority vote favor such sale, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance act to permit such sale.

(4)—Are you in favor of the sale of spirituous and malt liquors through government agencies, and amendments to the Ontario Temperance act to permit such sale.

The premier stated that all four questions must be answered, or a ballot would be rejected. In case the first clause should be answered in the negative, which would involve a continuance of the Ontario Temperance Act, and the other three in the affirmative, the act would be amended to permit of the sale of liquor as provided in those clauses.

It is the intention of the government the premier announced to submit two bills, one amending the Ontario Temperance act, and the other entitled "The Temperance Referendum act, 1919." These have not been finally drafted by the law clerk, but will be brought down in the house this week.

The amendments to the Ontario Temperance act proper are designed to assist the enforcement of the act, the premier explained, and the principal clause will be that doing away with existing vendor licenses and giving the government control of all liquor sold under the act. An announcement of this policy was made some time ago.

With reference to the fixing of the strength of beer at 2.51 per cent alcohol weight measure, the premier said:

"We have fixed this strength because it is what the labor congress and others desire. It is also the same definition of light beer asked in the Quebec act. This legislature has no power to prohibit the manufacture or importation of intoxicants," Sir William reminded the house. "That is a measure resting entirely under the authority of the Dominion government, and for which they must take the responsibility. Any legislation we may enact will of course be subject to such laws as may be passed by the Dominion government. The manufacture of liquor containing more than 2 1-2 per cent proof spirits has been absolutely prohibited in Canada since December 31 last.

DIRECT ACTION

In a resume of Australian labor conditions, Mr. George S. Beeby, Minister of Labor for New South Wales, draws general attention to the spread of syndicalism throughout the industrial world. Syndicalism is a noticeable feature in Australian labor thought and Mr. Beeby points out with much truth that it is gaining converts in the ranks of the workers everywhere — "in Canada, the United States, Australia, and Great Britain."

Syndicalism is to some extent the result of inadequate parliamentary representation of the working classes. It has other and powerful causes, but in Great Britain and Canada the inability of the workers to secure satisfactory representation in the commons has had the effect of diverting their attention to other political expedients. The result is the appearance of syndicalism. The industrial resources and strength of the workers are used for political ends, and reforms are sought, not through constitutional parliamentary procedure, but by the pressure and threat of Direct Action. "The strike is rapidly becoming political instead of industrial . . it is being used, not to settle quarrels between workmen and employers, but to force on the community economic changes, which, in a Democratic State should emanate only from parliament."

These economic changes the Australian minister holds to be inevitable, and the danger to society is that if parliament fail to approach them with sufficient speed the syndicalist method of direct action will be encouraged in its growth. The continued inability of the working classes to elect a body of parliamentary representatives has kept them from fully appreciating the value of representative political institutions and they turn naturally to a method with which they are familiar—the strike—with the feeling that parliaments are outworn and cumbersome, and are alien to the workers' interests.

By securing a moderate representation in the House of Commons some fifteen years ago, the British Parliamentary Labor Party has kept the interest of the working people centered on Westminster as the natural avenue by which to secure economic changes and social reforms. The strengthening of the party in the recent elections has probably supplied the British with one of their best safeguards against the threat of syndicalism, and if direct action is completely halted in favor of the constitutional procedure it will be through still further additions to Labor parliamentary representation. The adoption of proportional representation in the urban constituencies of Canada would provide labor here with the opportunity to take its share in the work and responsibility devolving upon the governing body of the country. — Manitoba Free Press.

LENINE UNLIKELY TO CRY "KAMERAD"

(New York Tribune)

We perceive at last that Trotsky and Lenine will not hold up their heads and cry "Kamerad" to the covenant of the league of nations as announced to their Red Cross. We are beginning to understand that the walls of Prussian Jericho will not fall when the doctrines of league of nations are trumpeted along the frontiers.

We have failed miserably, perhaps finally, in Paris because we began with the assumption that all the people of the so-called civilized world thought alike and that if we created a constitution of the world as on free and just ideals, all the world would subscribe. The truth has always been that Bolshevism had another faith, founded on the idea of destroying our democracy and that the Germans never renounced their gospel, which was alike hostile to Western democracy and Eastern Bolshevism. And now we have come to the supreme crisis. After five months we discover that the world cannot be comprehended in a single faith, that all our premises were mistaken, and that we stand in the shadow either of surrender to an enemy who will never rest until he conquers us — that is Bolshevism—or accommodation with an enemy that is only waiting to resume—that is, Germany. We who set out to make the world safe for democracy are now hesitating as to whether we shall make it sure, either for the Boche or the Bolshevist.

DUNLOP Gibraltar RedSpecial BELTING

"The Original Red Belt"

"The Long-Grain Friction Belt"

¶ Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" is the proven benefactor of many an industry in this country which has felt the need of offsetting rising costs by speeding up production and by the elimination of belt trouble.

¶ "Gibraltar RedSpecial" is a real rubber belt. It may be compared to other brands of belts only as a powerful magnifying glass might be compared with the object whose imperfections it brings into the limelight.

¶ The first belts of this brand sold have been in use for years and have proven that scientific research—combined with approximately one quarter of a century's experience in the rubber goods manufacturing industry—could offer no more in belt merits than those features for which this Dunlop Product is so well and favourably known.

¶ We believe Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" cannot be made better. It is a red, frictioned-surface belt, constructed of the highest grade rubber, and specially-woven duck of tremendous tensile strength. This accounts for its great tenacity, its enduring flexibility and its absolute uniformity throughout.

¶ Provision has been made in "Gibraltar RedSpecial" against drying out and rotting. The richness of the rubber—compounded to retain its pliability indefinitely—waterproofs the duck as well as holds the plies securely together. It also serves to minimize internal chafing due to the constant bending of the belt. All unnecessary stretch is taken out in the manufacturing process.

¶ You will find Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Frictioned-Surface Belting doing daily duty the year round in Pulp and Paper Mills, Iron Foundries, Steel and Rolling Mills, Saw and Lumber Mills, Mines, etc., in a truly efficient manner.

¶ We also specialize on Conveyor and Elevator Belts to meet every need.

EDUCATION HITS YELLOW PRESS

Denouncing the I.W.W. and the Bolsheviki in terms that aroused his hearers to enthusiastic applause, and prasising the Salvation Army as one of the greatest of economic institutions in America, Dr. John Willis Baer addressed the team captains and workers who are conducting the Salvation Army's home campaign at a luncheon at the Alexander Hotel yesterday.

The former president of Occident College read a "hymn of hate" from a radical publication which, he said, had been sent him from Seattle, the scene of the recent strike disturbances. The words parodied "Onward Christian Soldiers," and were unfit to print, but when he had finished he said:

"I say to hell with such stuff. We business and professional men who are gathered here to discuss the cause of the Salvation Army are in duty bound to support the institution that is doing more than any other organization in the country to dispel industrial unrest and to help the down-and-outers and the class from which the radicals are recruited to better their condition and realize they are looking at life and conditions from a distorted viewpoint."

In the same class with the I.W.W. and the Bolsheviki, Dr. Baer placed the yellow journalists, who are trying to stir up discord and enmity between America and Great Britain. He said:

"When I see the uniform of the Maple Leaf of Canada, or the British uniform, I cannot keep my hand from snapping to my forehead in salute and my heart is thrilled with the thought that our brothers in these uniforms should be made to realize that America and the resources of Uncle Sam are behind them in the cause of humanity. The man who endeavors to stir up ill feeling between ourselves and these men, whether he does it with a gun or with the editorial pen, is doing the work of the devil." Dr. Baer did not mention Hearst by name in the connection, but his hearers had no trouble in understanding the allusion.—Los Angeles Times.

EDUCATION AND CRIME

In the early days of enthusiasm for education the hope was expressed that it would greatly diminish crime. Later on, when the results of education did not fulfil the hopes of its friends, a theory was advanced that education did not diminish crime, but only increased the capacity of the criminal for wrong-doing. The theory gained some ground, partly because there is a fascination in the notion of a criminal who is a gentleman and a scholar, who can match his intellect against that of the authorities, and who occasionally treats his victims in an urbane and chivalrous manner. The character is found more often in fiction than in real life.

Dr. Paul E. Bowers, of the Indiana State Prison, examined 2500 prisoners. Of these 432 were illiterate, 680 could barely read and write, 1281 had received more or less education in primary schools, 82 had attended high schools and 25 were college men. It must of course be remembered that the proportion of those attending high school and colleges is small for the whole community. But on the whole the standard of education among criminals is abnormally low.

Perhaps more remarkable than the figures as to general education are those which relate to training for specific employments. Seventy-five per cent of the prison population, says Dr. Bowers, is composed of persons who are without mechanical or trade skill, who earn their means of livelihood in the crudest forms of physical labor, to which they apply themselves regularly and in a half-hearted manner. The average wage income is to be classed at the lowest wage-earning scale.

The conclusion is that the criminal classes are drawn from those who are untrained to brain and as to hand, who have not learned to think clearly or to perform any kind of skilled labor. Education, therefore, does lessen crime. But the question arises, what is society to do with its unskilled laborers? Can it employ them and use the result of their labor without assuming any responsibility for their condition in life, their intellectual development, and their standard of living?—Toronto Star.

WAR SAVINGS AND THRIFT STAMPS BEAT MONEY BOX

The children's money box on the mantel shelf has, in the past done good work, having gathered in tens of thousands of dollars which had it not been there would never have been saved.

To many generations it has been one of the best possible lessons of the value of saving. It has taught the lesson of thrift better than almost any teacher could have done.

But the money box, though it rendered splendid service, has its limitations. All that it does is to take care of the pennies, the dimes or the 25c pieces, preventing them for a time from being squandered. But in comparison with the later saving devices its chief defect is that while it holds money, it does not enable the money to earn anything. This is where war Savings Stamps have a decided advantage over the money box. As soon as $4.00 is put into one of these it begins to earn at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent compounded half-yearly. This means that if allowed to remain in stamps it would double itself in less than 15 years. Money put in a box and allowed to remain there would not be spent but it would earn nothing. The moral is: Buy War Savings and Thrift Stamps and let your savings work.

The formation of War Savings Societies is being very favorably received. Already a large number have been formed, and are in active operation in British Columbia. In Montana the War Savings campaign this year has no quota in dollars and cents, but it has a quota for War Savings Societies which the State is supposed to reach. They are asigned the task of organizing 7742 War Savings Societies; of this number there are to be 2042 in the schools; 2710 in the stores, offices, factories and other commercial stores, and 2092 in clubs, lodges, churches and other associations. The State of Montana has a population of 500,000 people—British Columbia has a population of 400,000. On a similar basis British Columbia should have 6000 War Savings Societies.

THE SOVIET IN SIBERIA

"Under the military dictatorship of the Allies, Siberia with its semi-soviet government in local and domestic affairs is doing well. But this does not establish the success of the soviet in Siberia for if the iron hand of the allied military intervention were withdrawn, bloody chaos would surely ensue."

This is the opinion of the Rev. W. E. Dunham, of Vancouver, who has recently returned from a three month trip to Siberia as a Y.M.C.A. secretary. Mr. Dunham took particular care to study the situation in Siberia and while he was not able to visit the interior, he was at Vladivostock in close touch with the sentiment and opinion of all classes of people from all parts of the vast Siberian domain.

"It is my firm conviction," says Mr. Dunham, "based on the best information I could gather, that it would be a calamity not only to Siberia, but for all parts of the world which have any interest in or connection with that country to withdraw the Allied forces from Siberia. While the country is apparently quiet it is only the superior force of the Allied occupation which is holding the terrorist element in check. And while I believe the great majority of the people are not in sympathy with the terrorists, they would be helpless before them and Siberia would be plunged into the bloody, hopeless, ruthless chaos of Russia. The Allies must stay in Siberia for a while yet if northern and eastern Asia are to be saved from extreme Bolshevism."

"What is the nature of the soviet government?" Mr. Dunham was asked.

"The soviet is generally misunderstood," Mr. Dunham stated. "In effect it is paternalism. The state owns everything. The laborer gets a fair wage. All surplus goes to the state and back to the people. Capital is abolished. There are no profits. There is no competition. The church cannot have schools or own property. The military establishment continues, but it is not embraced in the soviet policy. The school system is vague. The judicial system seems workable and worthy.

"And it would abolish national lines, for the soviet contemplates a soviet world and proposes to repudiate all treaties and debts of the old government, which I think is immoral. Inheritance is abolished. Since there can be no accumulation of wealth there can be no inheritance. Titles are abolished. The machinery of the government does not differ greatly from ours in general design. There are the local soviets, provincial soviets and state soviet. But the direct voice of the people is heard only in the selection of the lowest soviet, which chooses the representatives to the next soviet and so on.

"Bolshev," Mr. Dunham said, means "new" and therefore Siberia is for Bolshevism, but it is not Bolshevik in the sense that it is of the Lenine and Trotsky Bolshevik, the extreme radicals."

He corrected the prevailing impression that the Siberian soviet wants free love, or the socialism of women. This it does not encourage, he said; only the extremists desire a state ownership of this sort.

CIRCUS LOVERS MOURN

Adam Forepaugh, for years one of the greatest leaders in the circus world, is dead. He was a Philadelphian and was the world's greatest elephant trainer and ringmaster. He never had a peer.

Ringmasters have come and gone since the Philadelphia institution known as the Forepaugh circus was sold by old Adam Forepaugh to Sells and later merged with the Barnum & Bailey outfit. But men who have watched them all still hold that Adam, Jr., was not only the first of the tribe in America, but the greatest.

It was while Forepaugh was still a boy that the first elephant was imported to America and landed in Philadelphia by an Englishman named Crownshield. The boy saw it and was thrilled.

For the last 25 years Forepaugh has lived in Philadelphia, shunning publicity in every way. Six years ago he was injured in Atlantic City, when a horse, frightened by an elephant on one of the piers, ran on the board walk, overturning the wheel chair in which Forepaugh was riding.

Mrs. Lily Forepaugh, the widow, had been separated from her husband for 30 years. She was Lily Deacon, famous in London and Paris 30 years ago as a circus rider. She joined the Forepaugh circus in 1882 and a few years later married the son of its owner.

RESCUED MANY IN EASTLAND DISASTER

Seattle, April 9.—Arthur Loeb, hero of the Eastland disaster in Chicago, July 24, 1915, when he rescued 38 persons from drowning in the Chicago river and brought up 67 bodies, champion long distance swimmer in 24 states and "king" of the bell divers, arrived in Seattle last night on his way from Honolulu to New York.

He expects soon to undergo an operation to remove a broken blood vessel in his head, received while diving in the hull of the submerged steamer Eastland, and if successful will engage in diving for steamers that were sunk by U-boats off Brest, France, and the coast of Ireland. Loeb says he is taking the operation absolutely at his own risk and that the Mayo Brothers and other eminent surgeons so far have refused to operate.

"The Eastland disaster occurred at 7.30 o'clock in the morning, July 24, 1915," said Loeb, in his room at the Frye hotel. "The Eastland and four other steamers had been chartered to take an excursion of Western Electric Company employees to Michigan City.

"I was on my vacation from the Jackson Park lifesaving station in Chicago. I had intended to go on the Eastland, but arrived at the bridge just as the Eastland's whistle blew. The steamer was registered only to carry 2200 persons but it is said she had 4000 on board.

"When he had got a short distance from the dock she turned over. I saw two girls swimming in the water and calling for help. I dived and landed between them. As we came up one of the girls grabbed me by the throat, and I was compelled to hit her in the face. I took the two girls ashore."

From that time Loeb says that he was scarcely out of the water for 72 hours, eating his meals and drinking coffee while he was in the river. The 38 persons rescued by Loeb were brought out in the first half hour and after that it was merely a question of bringing up the bodies. Loeb did not use his diving suit, but conducted his operations as a swimmer.

While diving for the body of a woman in the hold of the Eastland his head came in contact with a steel girder and he received a fractured skull and broken blood vessel.

"I was unconscious for 29 hours and 30 minutes," said Loeb, "and was given up as dead by three doctors. I don't look like an invalid now, do I? I am five feet eleven inches tall, weigh 220 pounds and never felt better in my life. I am the only man in the world alive today with a broken blood vessel and a fractured skull."

Loeb says that he has no fear of the examination that he is soon to take in Brest for the removal of the blood vessel.

"Sixty feet is the greatest depth that I can dive at present. If the operation is successful I will be able to dive from 110 to 120 feet.

"Vessels at a greater depth than 120 feet cannot be recovered unless a new system is discivered. Many of the vessels off Brest and the coast of Ireland are in not more than 100 feet of water."

Loeb says he is negotiating with the United States navy for this work and that if the operation is successful, and he is accepted he will have 300 divers under him.

He wears two medals, one given him by the City of Chicago and another by North Shore citizens for heroism in the Eastland disaster.

ENORMOUS COAL PRODUCTION

It is difficult to form an adequate conception of the enormous quantity of coal produced annually by the United States. In endeavoring to convey an idea of this quantity, the fuel administration, in 1918, stated:

"Every year the miners go into the ground and dig out coal, and the railroad ships it for hundreds of miles dragging back the empty cars, until the amount mined is 2 1-4 times the earth and rock removed in digging the Panama Canal. It took sixteen years to dig the Panama canal. The miners will dig 2 -12 Panama Canals this year."

During the battle of Verdun the French fired from their cannons 60,000,000 shells, containing nearly 1,800,000 tons of steel, the production of which consumed nearly 9,000,000 tons of coal—that is, 25 per cent of Canada's annual consumption. Throughout the war the coal situation has been the factor governing the production of manufactured articles. Every large coal-producing country, except the United States, found it impossible to maintain the pre-war production of coal.

It is true that Canada, like the United States, has striven to reduce her fuel consumption, but being still dependent upon her neighbors to the south for 22,50,000 tons — including over 5,000,000 net tons of anthracite —out of a total yearly consumption of 34,800,000 net tons of coal, it is clearly incumbent upon Canada to apply every permanent means within her power to utilize coal in the best and most efficient manner. Where Canada is deriving so large a proportion of her coal from the United States, it certainly will contribute to her good status with that country if Canada takes hold and effects every possible fuel economy. This, besides being an evidence of good commonsense, will also result in the saving of a large amount of money now absolutely lost in coal wastefully used.

The patrons of Isaac Walton had ample opportunity to follow their pusuits last week end as the mines were idle from Thursday midnight until Sunday midnight.

The surface men are now wearing the smile that won't come off in consequence of the eight hour law. Seems like a half day holiday to quit at 3 p.m.

Our old friend Sam Nichols was up visiting the camp. We are glad to see him looking so well after his three years of service overseas. Still "Nevah bettah."

Joe Hamer has resumed his old occupation in the lamp cabin.

Tuesday was pay day here. The extra train carried down its full complement of Creekites to take in the city sights.

Tom Ferneaux, formerly employed at the local branch of the Trites-Wood Co., arrived from overseas on Tuesday evening. Tom left here with the 225th, later being transferred to the 2nd C.M.R., with which unit he returned for demobilization. We are pleased to say that he came out of a number of heavy fights without a scratch.

Owen Corrigan, another old 225th man, returned from overseas this week. Owen saw service with the 47th Batt.

Bob Hubberstey and Billy Atherton represent this camp on the Fernie G.W.V.A. Athletic committee. We understand that Victoria Park will be the mecca of a grand football match in the near future.

The "Honor Roll" depicting the one hundred odd members of the Club who enlisted, has now been received. The board of management are to be complimented on the design. The unveiling ceremony will be announced later.

Spring is here, the government road is suitable for traffic and the hum and whirr of Ford engines wafts over the breeze.

The writer is in receipt of a letter from Dr. Capt. Burnett, who is attached to the 8th Canadian Stationery Hospital at Dunkerque, France. Dr. Burnett will be remembered by the old residents of the camp as acting here during the absence of Dr. Workman.

Jack McAlpine, at one time fireboss at the mines here, paid a visit here on Tuesday, returning back east to procure his discharge. Jack attained the rank of sergeant-major.

All those interested in football are requested to attend a meeting to be held in the Club hall on Sunday evening at 7.30 sharp.

All members of the Loyal Order of Moose, with their wives, mothers, sisters, etc., are requested to attend a special meeting on Monday evening at the lodge room, Miners Hall, Fernie. Business: To inaugurate the Ladies Chapter. Meeting to commence at 7.30 p.m.

EXAMINE ALIENS

Winnipeg, April 9.—That all unnaturalized citizens should be examined before a properly constituted court, which shall determine whether or not they are desirable citizens and get them deported if considered undesirable, was the effect of a resolution passed by the executive of the Army and Navy Veterans' association tonight.

EFFECT OF ARMISTICE ON HOARDED MONEY

There is reason to think that hoarding was practiced a great deal more during the war than is generally believed. With peace assured, the hoarded money is now beginning to appear, and it is to be hoped that quite a lot of it may go to buy war savings stamps.

In the United States it is estimated that $1,500,000,000 was hoarded by foreigners during the war period. Banking authorities say that since the signing of the armistice this hoarded money has come out to a surprising extent and this opinion is confirmed by the savings bank deposits. In New York state this class of deposits increased by $39,400,000 during the period from December 28, 1918, to January 12, 1919.

Undoubtedly the cessation of hostilities has had a similar effect on hoarded money in Canada, for it is well known that hundreds of people of foreign birth drew money out of the bank and either carried it on their person or hid it. The question is—how much of this money will go into war savings stamps? The whole country is vitally interested in seeing that a large portion of it is thus invested, while it is to the interest of the person holding such money to put it to this use.

SETTING THE PACE

Canada, at least, is fully awake to her industrial possibilities. Before the war the great northern empire depended very largely upon her natural resources in agriculture and timber, and on her maritime pursuits, to create the national wealth. But necessity has wrought a transformation. Manufacturing has developed suddenly in variety, and to an unbelievable extent. Scores of articles both large and small are now being made across the border. Ships, automobiles, locomotives, cars, tractors, typewriters, fabrics and so on are being turned out in growing amounts. And Canada with a new sense of her international consequence is turning her eyes aggressively toward foreign markets. Already she is energetically turning attention to the markets of South America. She expects to take a large part in the restocking of the Balkans with all the things which a needy population needs. Canada, which doubled its industrial output in two years' time, will show up in many unexpected marts of trade before she is much older. We shall have to step lively on this side of the line.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

ENGLAND AND IRELAND

In his will the late Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet predicted that England would become an Irish province. He evidently believed that Ireland should stay in the British empire and dominate it. The Tories often called England a Scotch dependency when Liberals from Scottish constituencies, of whom Gladstone was one, happened to be in power. It will be easier for Ireland to guide the destinies of the British Empire than to leave its fold.—New York Commercial.

CONDITION OF THE RAILROADS

A man who says a railroad is in the worst possible condition and therefore should be taken over by the state means, of course, only the worst possible condition thus far. —Boston Herald.

EXPLAINS MANY THINGS

The government figures showing that there are in the United States 8,592,000 illiterates and persons unable to speak English indicate that 1,000,000 of them live in New York. This explains a good many things.—Boston Globe.

DEER HUNTING IN ENGLAND

Deer hunting in England is not so fascinating as the hunt over here. There are no wild deer in the Mother Country. What there are roam over a large estate, half tame and go almost in large flocks. Some places have as many as two hundred and probably divided into two flocks.

To hunt the deer the landlord rides grandly out on a fine horse. He is accompanied by two workmen, who trail along in the rear. The deer are sighted and he rides towards them, and probably right in among them before they begin to take notice and look around. Then they seem stupefied and undecided whether to stand there or run away. One of the workmen then comes forward and rushes at them with his arms flinging wildly above his head crying "Shee, shoo." The deer begin to scatter, running at a dog's trot in various directions. The landlord raises his gun to his shoulder and takes aim at a certain deer, but finding it at too close a range, changes to one farther off. A loud bang is heard and a deer drops, while two others go limping away. The felled one is eagerly pounced upon by the two workmen who commence the work of bleeding it, while the landlord rides contentedly back to the mansion.

MANY TOURISTS WILL COME

The Cranbrook Auto Club are in receipt of several communications from tourists who are planning motor trips across the continent through the Crow's Nest Pass. A list of eighty names of people who are planning such trips has been forwarded by the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association. This list shows addresses all over the United States and Canada, with a few others from England and even Australia.

The Automobile Blue Book Publishing Co., of 900 South Michigan Ave., Chicago, have enquired of the Cranbrook Auto Club regarding the route from Cranbrook to the coast and to the prairies. They state they are anxious for information from any auto clubs along the route. They are planning to send a scout car this way this season to log the route and any advance information would be appreciated and helpful.

The National Automobile Association, the New England department of the National Highways association, 9 Park St., Boston, Mass., have written to the Cranbrook Auto Club asking for maps of auto routes through Western Canada.

NO DECISION IN MINERS' MATTER

Although the coal operators and miners of District 18 were in session all Wednesday morning with Commissioner Armstrong no decision was arrived at regarding the point at issue in connection with the latter's order and the recently enacted British Columbia law regarding surface miners at the B.C. mines. This matter will be further discussed at a later meeting Wednesday afternoon. In certain circles the hope is strengthened that an amicable settlement will be arrived at in the course of the day when other matters arising from the scale committee's convention at Indianapolis will be taken up. It is anticipated that many of these however, will be allowed to remain in abeyance pending the actual signing of peace when the new scale will be gone into in detail.

The provincial government is considering the proposition of cutting a new road around the base of the Morrissey Hill with the idea of making the road safer for travel. This would certainly make the road safer but it would eliminate the most beautiful scenic view in the mountains.

A rather serious automobile accident took place near Waldo on Monday of this week. A car driven by A. W. Cottingham, who was on his way from Michel to Sicamous, ran into a log and upset. The driver escaped with a sprained wrist but Mrs. Cottingham was badly hurt about the head and arms. She was taken to the Waldo hotel, where she received medical attention.

KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

About 6.30 on Saturday evening an automobile accident occurred at the corner of Thompson St. and Lindsay Ave., near Scarpino's grocery, when Vincent Pavluk, aged seven years, sustained injuries from which he expired within half an hour of the accident. The automobile which struck the child was driven by Mike Sasuchuk, a miner from Michel, but who is much better known throughout this locality by the sobriquet "Gasoline Mike." Immediately after the accident the boy was hurried to the hospital but was beyond medical aid and he died shortly after admission. The symptoms, by which death resulted, according to the evidence adduced by Dr. Garner, attending physician, at the coroner's inquest, indicated not only concussion but pressure within the cavity of the skull probably due to a rupture caused by a heavy blow. Sasuchuk meanwhile went to the police station reporting the occurrence and giving himself up. He was accordingly taken into custody pending further investigation.

Coroner Murray, of Natal, in the absence of Coroner Thomson, officiated in this case and empanelled the following jury:: A. Gibson, foreman, J. T. Bell, Wm. Perry, Robt. A. Kerr, E. Harper and Edwin Mills. On Sunday the jury viewed the remains at the morgue and then visited the scene of the accident, when the inquest was adjourned until Wednesday.

On Monday, however, Sauschuk was required to defend himself on a charge of manslaughter, preferred by Chief Welsby, and upon appearing before Magistrate Whimster was remanded for preliminary investigation until Tuesday, April 22. Bail was fixed in the sum of $4000; personal recognizance of $1000 and three sureties of $1000 each.

The coroner's inquest opened yesterday morning at 10.30 a.m. in the council chamber and was not concluded until 5 p.m., when the jury, after about an hour's deliberation, rendered the following verdict:

"We, the jury empanelled to inquire as to the cause of the death of "Tony" (Vincent) Pavluk of the city of Fernie, B.C., who was killed by a a motor car driven by Mike Sauschuk on the corner of Thomson St. and Lindsay Ave., in the city of Fernie, B.C., on April 12th, 1919, find the cause of death was accidental."

During the investigation nine witnesses testified relative to the occurrence. Sherwood Herchmer appeared on behalf of the accused, while A. I. Fisher represented the parents of the deceased lad. Percy Bean testified as to the condition of the car driven by Sauschuk when the accident happened, swearing the same was in perfect working order both before and after the accident. It was a car loaned by Mr. Bean that Sauschuk was using. The evidence of Mrs. Parsons, of the Annex Extension, was in effect that while in conversation with Mrs. Booth, within a short distance of where the accident occurred, she first noticed the car starting around the corner from Lindsay avenue, travelling as she expressed it pretty fast, and simultaneously she saw the boy running from the opposite side of the street towards Scarpino's store, and when near the sidewalk he appeared to her to be right between the wheels of the oncoming car, which then was within a yard of the sidewalk. This was all she noticed because her friend screamed that the car would run over the boy and she turned her head away. Mrs. Booth testified to practically the same state of affairs with the addition that to her the car appeared to strike the boy, and knock him down, he being between the two front wheels, but the rear wheel went over him; she rushed to his assistance, but he was picked up by Frank Scarpino before she reached the spot. She then took the child in her arms and said she knew he was dying and shortly thereafter he was taken in the car to the hospital. Both Mrs. Parsons and Mrs. Booth were subjected to lengthy examinations by Mr. Fisher and Mr. Herchmer as to the manner in which the car acted when making the turn, resulting in the application of the terms "Swerving," "Wiggling," "Twisting," and "Zig-Zagging." In answer to the question "The horn might have sounded?" Mrs. Booth replied, "I didn't hear nothing. I know it was a sharp turn before he come again the window. I thought he was going straight across the street to Scarpino's shop, but he turned, twisted sharp and turned down the sidewalk where the little boy was running. It knocked him.

Catherine Bassetti said she saw the car come up Thomson St. from the direction of the Annex school, turn the corner and stop at Lasalle's, back up and start forward back around the corner travelling over toward the sidewalk beside Scarpino's. The drier did not see the boy, she said, because he was looking down at something in the car. All the witnesses said they firmly believed Sauschuk had not noticed the boy before he struck him.

Louis Kosiec, a lad who was playing with other boys, said that Tony started from that party to cross the street where other children were playing and he, the witness, could see the car coming. Other witnesses called were Theo. Lassalle, Frank Scarpino and Mrs. Shripek, all of whom gave corroborative evidence.

MINING ENGINEER CALLED BY DEATH

John Little, 78, a retired mining engineer, who had lived in Seattle for the last twenty years, died at the family home, 2231 Forty-sixth avenue southwest, Saturday evening, after a long illness. He was a native of England, but came to the United States while still a young man and opened up coal mines in Pennsylvania and later in Canada.

Mr. Little is survived by his wife, Jane E. Little, and four sons and four daughters. The body is at the Home Undertaking Company's establshment pending funeral arrangements.

Mr. Little was born in Blythe. England, January 30, 1841, and came to the United States in 1868. He first lived in this country at Cameron, Pa., where he followed his profession as a mining engineer. Later he went to Winnipeg, Canada, where he opened up more coal mines. When he retired twenty years ago he came to Seattle to be near his sons and daughters.

The daughters are Mrs. Violet Stander Johnson, Mrs. Mayo Wylde and Mrs. Ernest Anderson, all of Seattle and Mrs. John Shearer of Fernie, B.C. The sons are John E., James R., Albert E., and Archie Little, all of Seattle.

Six of Mr. Little's grandsons, sons of Mrs. Shearer, survived several years of the world war in Europe, where they fought with the Canadian forces. They are Cpl. Harry Quigg, Pte. John Quigg, Pte. Thomas Quigg, Pte. Bryan Quigg, Bugler Dewey Quigg, and Bugler Jewel Quigg, all of Fernie.

THE BOLSHEVISTIS SANGUINARIUS

(Suggested by an article appearing in a Fernie newspaper recently of a beautiful plant discovered on the mountainside on the way from Coal Creek).

As the name suggests the color of this weed is a bloody red. It is a native of Hunland. It was early transplanted to Russia and there was treated and sprayed with an extract compounded from the virulent Lenino-Trotskinello weed, and flourished exceedingly.

The B.S. is an extremely poisonous weed. It has been transplanted to Canada but has been cultivated with very little success. It has been experimented with in Canada in small doses on hogs with curious effect. We are told in an erudite article by Prof. Sunny Lal (apparently a Hindoo) that the hogs frothed at the mouth, squealed alarmingly and generally behaved in a violent and ridiculous manner.

The Professor is still experimenting with the B.S. and a further article on his researches will appear in due course. The Professor is known by his worthy colleagues as the "greatest living authority on B. S." Every person with a thirst after learning will hope devoutly that the Professor will not in some absent-minded moment himself partake of the B.S. extract.

COMMITTEE HOLD MEETING

(Owing to lack of space this was crowded out last week.)—Ed.

On Wednesday evening a well attended meeting of the Reconstruction Committee was held in the Council Chamber, President Bonnallie presiding. The first matter considered was a communication from the Civil Service Commissioner advising that the Provincial Labor Bureau would be established here in the near future and that a representative of the government would arrive here shortly for that purpose. There were also communications from the Hon. Minister of Labor and Mr. A. I. Fisher to the same effect. It was pointed out that as far back as two months ago advice had been received that a representative would be here in ten days to establish the bureau. Again about a month ago the same notification was received but up to the present no one had appeared. This delay was giving cause for some dissatisfaction and in accordance with the unanimous desire to get the labor bureau in operation here upon regular motion a telegram was dispatched to Victoria requesting some definite idea as to when the official for the establishment of the bureau would arrive.

The Prime Minister's Office, Ottawa acknowledged receipt of the resolution passed at joint meeting of the G. W. V. A. and Reconstruction Committee relative to the deportation of alien enemies and advice received that this problem was receiving the attention of the Government. Mayor Gale of Vancouver, also replied thanking the committee for their efforts in this connection.

A request was received from the Junior Branch, I. O. D. E. Waldo, that Mrs. Griffiths of that place would represent the Waldo I. O. D. E., and suggested that they be advised when and where the meetings of the local Reconstruction Committee would be held when Mrs. Griffiths would endeavor to attend. The request was unanimously sanctioned.

The case of J. Campbell Lewis, of Elko, B.C., returned soldier and formerly official of the Provincial Game Department in this district was reviewed and the correspondence from Mr. Lewis read to the meeting. Mr. Lewis advised that he had returned from overseas over a year ago and although prior to going overseas he had had eleven years service to his credit with the Game Department, he had so far been unable to be re-appointed to his former position. President Bonnallie reviewed the activities of the committee in connection with this case, stating that while Mr. Fisher and other representatives of the government had repeatedly promised to do something in the matter, up to the present nothing definite had been accomplished. Mayor Uphill expressed the opinion if the government was to be the first to disregard their pledge to give returned men the privilege of their former positions, they could not expect corporations to be bound by their pledges, and consequently he was one who would be willing to notify the government in the event of their failure to fulfil their pledges that the reconstruction committee would withdraw from active co-operation with the government and utilize their efforts in any such direction as would be conducive of obtaining justifiable treatment for the returned men. Other speakers condemned the attitude of the government for not adjusting the Lewis case before now. Mr. E. K. Stewart, however, stated from personal knowledge Mr. Lewis had been offered an appointment by the government which he had refused to accept. Mr. E. Heaphy stated while he had offered Mr. Lewis employment at $5.00 a day last year, which had not been accepted, it never-the-less did not relieve the government from the responsibility of reinstating him in his former position or one equally as suitable to him. In reply to Mr. Stewart it was explained the reason for Mr. Lewis' refusal was that he had been offered only temporary appointment of a few week's work. Secretary Watson advised that quite recently Mr. Lewis has received blank forms from the Civil Service Commissioner to make application for an appointment, which he understood would be quite satisfactory to Mr. Lewis. The matter was temporarily disposed of by a motion being carried that representations be made to Victoria regarding the re-instatement of Mr. Lewis to his former position or some other suitable position, but that the secretary first to communicate with Mr. Lewis and ascertain the exact present status of his case.

Mr. Trites intimated that irrespective of the merits of the Lewis case he felt it was an opportune time to confer with the government with a view to the conservation of game in this district. In the course of his remarks he referred to the indiscriminate slaughter of game and that it was now necessary for some definite steps to be taken to prevent this. Mr. Harry Martin, secretary of Gladstone Local, took issue with Mr. Trites contending that by attempting to enforce more rigorous restrictions concerning game hunting it would be denying those residing in this district of practically the only method of recreation available, and moreover, it would probably have the tendency to promote poaching on a wider scale than at present practiced. Mr. Trites replied that to him the present game regulations were quite adequate to cover his idea but it was the willful slaughter of game out of season that was objectionable and on account of there being no game wardens, those committing this offence were not punished for their undesirable actions. Mr. Herchmer felt that it was not within the province of the reconstruction committee to deal with a matter of this nature. The suggestion seemed to voice the concensus of opinion and no action was taken.

The resolution from Gladstone Local Union which after a lengthy introductory preamble reads: "Therefore be it resolved that we ask the government of the Dominion of Canada to conscript all profits made by such manufacturers, (of munitions etc.) for the benefit of mankind and to insure the widows, children and permanently injured returned soldiers a decent living in the future."

A lengthy discussion followed, Mr. Herchmer intimating that he would gladly support the resolution if it read excess profits, but it was hardly equitable to impose this restriction upon the munition manufacturer alone, when there were many others who had made profits arising out of war conditions. He illustrated by taking a man who had invested $150,000 in plant for manufacture of munitions, while another had invested an equal amount in Victory Bonds; the former would be penalyzed to the extent of all profits while the latter would go unscathed. Mayor Uphill agreed that the resolution should read excess profits and suggested these should mean the legal interest rate of

OIL PROSPECTS AT THE COAST

M. A. Kastner and Thos. Poe, who are heavily interested in Vancouver oil property, left on Wednesday for the coast to visit the properties in which they are interested. The Dominion government has recently published the following report on oil property in the vicinity of Vancouver:

Much local interest has recently been taken in the possible occurrence of oil in the neighborhood of Vancouver and three holes are being drilled to test the ground. The possibility of oil in the sedimentary rocks underlying the lower Fraser River district has excited the interest of local mining men for several years past, owing to the presence of seepages of both oil and gas at a number of points, and a few attempts have been made to raise money for prospecting with a drill.

Such seepages of oil or gas are said to occur at Point Grey, West Vancouver, Pitt lake, and other points farther inland, but the origin of those seepages and whether or not they are connected with pools of commercial importance has not, as yet, been demonstrated.

The lower Fraser river district, from Agassiz to the coast, is in the main low and fairly level, with elevations ranging from sea-level to about 500 feet above it. Here and there isolated hills rise above the general level, reaching altitudes of about 1000 feet above sea level. Sumas and Chilliwack mountains and the hills immediately east of Vancouver are examples of these higher eminences.

The Eocene rocks, which are made up of clongomerates, sandstones and some shale, are the possible oil-bearing strata and the rocks from which the seepages of oil are believed to have arisen. They contain a variety of plant remains and a few small coal seams, and are in certain places intruded by dykes of porphyrite or andesite.

Few natural outcrops of the Eocene rocks are exposed except in the cliffs and railway cuttings along the

COMBATTING TREASON

Australia is a country where it is evident Bolshevist propaganda is to be treated in a virile way. Recent happenings in Sydney and Brisbane, in which returned soldiers have been the prime movers, show sentiment is pronounced against efforts to bring about the Commonwealth's industrial ruin. The government is now moving and in Brisbane is making arrangements to deport ten Bolshevist leaders who have been active in the propaganda work. What it does in one centre will be done throughout the country, and it is certain to be carried out in a thorough way, for Australia is not a country of half measures, and her premier is the uncompromising enemy of autocracy in any form.

There should be a settled and uniform policy throughout the Empire regarding the treatment to be meted out to all who preach treason and anarchy. Those who, in word or deed, attempt to ruin their country, are traitors and should be dealt with accordingly. When the Bolsheviki appointed a representative in London a considerable sum of money was lodged to his credit in a bank to carry on propaganda work. This representative has now been deported to his own country. It is not only in England, but elsewhere throughout the Empire, and especially in Ireland, that Bolshevist money is being spent to uproot the conception of orderly rule. It is true that little headway is being made except among fanatics who have lost all sense of responsibility, but the propaganda continues and by results secured in some quarters Lenine and Trotzky are encouraged to continue attempt to spread their destructive creed. In Finland the Bolsheviki are spending $5,000,000 every month in revolutionary propaganda. The appearance is reported of numerous bogus Finnish bank-notes manufactured at the Bolshevist mint, and a Stockholm dispatch says the Bolsheviki are preparing the fabrication on a large scale of bank-notes of the Entente countries, in view of the difficulties of exporting and exchanging the rouble. If they can go to criminal lengths of this character to forward their doctrine it is easy to conceive the mental depravity of the agents they employ.

Both Britain and Australia are pointing the way to deal with Bolshevism in the Empire. Owing to the character of our population by which we mean the number of foreigners in our midst, ample precautions should be taken and, if necessary, the power to deport should be invoked. It has been exercised in England and is going to be exercised in Australia. With the political leaders of the Overseas Dominions now in Paris it should be possible to reach a common agreement regarding measures to cope with the fomenters of anarchical propaganda throughout the Empire. — Colonist.

DEMOCRATIC JAPAN

In Japan, as in the western world, the efect of the war is being felt in the nation's political and social institutions. There is little difference in kind between the problems of the Japanese and those of the Europeans except perhaps, that in Japan they are of quite recent origin, the history of the country during the past thirty years being a record of the adoption of Western political ideas and industrial methods.

Japan entered the company of democratic states when the Mikado granted the constitution of 1889 and from 1890 to the present time democratic institutions have been making their way against the traditional feudal organization which had for centuries been in control. The adoption of Western political theory was accompanied by an adoption of the Western system of industry, Japan showing an aptitude for manufacture greater even than her ability to assimilate democratic institutions. For the last ten years or so the problems of the Japanese have not been radically different from our own. There have been continuous efforts to extend liberal principles, accompanied by a social reform movement resulting from the conditions produced on the lives of the people by the factory system of production.

In a survey of internal conditions in Japan by Professor Ladd, of Yale University, the importance of the newly-chosen Hara ministry is emphasized as indicating the general determination to widen the popular forms of government. "The Japanese," says Professor Ladd, "are getting thoroughly awake, they do not see the bureaucrats with the same eyes with which the bureaucrats see themselves," and the intention of the new ministry is to open the offices of the government to all persons "except those who come to interfere with business," and to abolish the policy of secrecy and reticence.

The growth of the reform movement in Japan, and its similarity to many of the phases of the European situation seems to show that the Imperialistic idea of the older Japanese statesmen, which they borrowed from Germany when Germany was in its imperialistic zenith, are no longer representative of the spirit of the people.—Manitoba Free Press.

THE WONDERFUL SPIRIT

From the brief account received by cable it would appear that Sir Douglas Haig's final dispatch on the war is easily the most interesting of all. He says that the feature of the war "which to the historian may well appear most noteworthy is the creation of the new British Army which was successfully built up in the very midst of war. It is not his province to show how this was due to the sheltering aegis of the British Navy, although he paid his tribute to that instrument, but history will record this and show how it was naval power which made victory possible. But the record of the army itself is an achievement, perhaps the greatest in military annals. The incomparable fighting resources of the personnel were maintained throughout, from Mons to Mons; for the war on land ended where it began for the British troops.

Sir Douglas Haig's last dispatch will be an historic document. It is apparent from the few figures available by telegraph that it gives full particulars of the character of the weapon which Britain, aided by her Dominions, forged for the purposes of victory. The expansion in personnel, artillery, ammunition, railway construction and establishments of every kind is noted, and the credit for the organization, and all the work it accomplished, is given by Sir Douglas mainly "to the wonderful spirit of the British race in all parts of the world." History is bound to acknowledge that Britain's part in the Great War was an overwhelming one, and history, too, equally with the British Generalissimo, will pay tribute to the indomitable spirit that knew no signs of fleshly weariness and was equal to every emergency. It is to be trusted it will continue to be maintained throughout this period of reconstruction and in all the ages to come, whatever may be the vicissitudes of the future.

WIT AND WISDOM

President Wilson, on viewing the scenes of devastation in France: "No one can put such impressions into words." All right, Mr. President. Put 'em into indemnities. — Louisville Courier Journal.

Mr. Taft wants a League of Nations with "teeth" in it. Well, it seems to us that the American and British fleets constitute a pretty good set of teeth.—Charleston News.

Switzerland's decision to enter the world league on the condition that she is never called on to go to war, and is never to be coerced in any way, seems to contain the germ of a bright idea.—Philadelphia American.

THOSE WHO LIVE IN GLASS HOUSES

Those who find the free love decrees of Russia shocking had better let the shock open their eyes to conditions about them. Spinsterhood, childless wifehood and perfunctory motherhood are the three attendant disgraces of race suicide. By the perversity of our social habit the best women incur the greatest chance of not passing down to posterity the traits that the tedious work of inheritance has amassed in them. The battalions of society are constantly filled up from its physically, mentally and morally worst recruits. No species living in a state of nature, dependent strictly on itself, could survive such disintegration for five generations. As for us we have depended on the technical love of civilization to preserve us. But first the vigorously reproducing German taking the technique without the civilization all but overthrew us with his 70 millions. It was a warning; he having barely failed, the apostle of animalism and compulsory reproduction will make a complete job of it ere long unless we master the problem. — New York Evening Sun.

GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

SWAIZEMA CURES ECZEMA

Read this testimonial—

My daughter was afflicted with eczema for three and a half years. Had her to doctors and also used different kinds of salves, which healed up the sores but they always returned. Was advised to try Swaizema and it has entirely cured her.

I can strongly recommend Swaizema to any mother who has children bothered with Eczema.

Yours truly,
Mrs. O. D. M.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to

DEFAULTERS TO BE PUNISHED

The demand made in the House of Commons on Wednesday for a uniform punishment for defaulters under the Military Service Act is clearly inadmissable. There should be no interference with the discretionary powers of the magistracy in dealing with such cases. Both minimum and maximum amounts have been fixed within which fines may be inflicted upon defaulters; but the ends of justice would be defeated by any measure which operated to prevent the magistrates from giving more severe sentences in aggravated cases of default in the performance of the military duties of Canadian citizens or in mitigating them wherever the facts warrant the taking of a lenient view.

Uniformity of punishment would necessarily result in many cases of deliberate and criminal evasion of military service escaping their due punishment. A uniform sentence must be based upon the assumption that the ends of justice would be served by that punishment which would fit the least serious circumstances under which the crime could be committed. The worst offenders would escape lightly while those who might plead genuinely extenuating circumstances would feel the full weight of the law. There must be a sense of proportion in the administration of justice, even where the offence itself is of so mean a nature.

In one respect, however, uniformity of punishment would be justified. Those who have chosen to ignore or to evade their duties in regard to military service, who have declined to recognize the claim of the community to mobilize them in its defence and who have permitted others to perform their duties in their stead might very justly be debarred from exercising the privileges of citizenship. They should certainly be deprived of the franchise for a term of years; or until prepared to give guarantees of their willingness to serve in the army under conditions analogous to that which necessitated the passage of the Military Service Act.

The possession of the franchise is the symbol of admission to the full status of citizenship. That status carries duties as well as privileges. It ought to be impossible for any citizen who has declined to fulfil his military obligations under conditions which provided generously for every reasonable ground of exemption to enjoy the same power of influencing the policy and controlling the administration of his country as rightly belongs to the citizen who has done his duty, often at the cost of personal suffering and loss.—Manitoba Free Press.

PRESS COMMENT

You Can't Build Overnight

In Russia, Lenine, who leads those who thought they could create a modern paradise on the ruins of the old prison house, is now desperately seeking to rebuild the old conservative machinery which holds society together and is necessary to provide the necessities of modern life. After trying to destroy the bourgeisie and build a Marxian society overnight, he is now apologizing for paying bourgeois experts large salaries and for compromising with bourgeois organizations. He had no respect for orderly evolution and all Russia is paying the price, the working class as well as every other class.—Chicago Tribune.

Old Grog

What would Admiral Vernon, the idol of American sailors in colonial days, have thought of prohibition on board the ships under his command? Vernon, commonly known as "Old Grog," from his habit of walking the quarterdeck in a grogam cloak, was the first chief to have rum and water served out regularly to the crews of his squadron, and the tars showed their gratitude by bestowing his nickname on the beverage supplied them. American-born sailors figured largely among those sharing the prize money in 1793 when Vernon captured Porto Bello. So the victory made Vernon as popular in the American colonies as in England, and caused the seat on the Potomac—afterwards the home of George Washington— to be named Mount Vernon in his honor.—London Daily Express.

Standing Firm

The war is not over. In many respects this moment is quite as critical as any we have seen. Confidence, solidarity, purposefulness is the crowning contribution which America can make to this poor, shaken, shell-shocked old world. The big, trying, pinching sacrifices have been made; all that is needed now is a reasonable display of good sense and self-restraint. A little less haste to grab profits for self, a willingness to settle down to orderly business even if margins be small, a desire to help the other fellow to a job even at the cost of some personal sacrifice, and a firm refusal to be stampeded by politics or propaganda.—Detroit News.

The Miner's Bath

Mr. Smillie, who has always been a strong advocate of baths at the pit head, once declared at a miner's conference at Edinburgh that the eight-hours day had not conferred such a blessing on the community as would washing at the collieries. "If," he said, "we had for twelve months a general cleaning of the workmen at the mines, and the men going home in shifting clothes, all the powers on earth would not bring us back to the old position." If Mr. Smillie can make good his promise to Sir Thomas Watson to get the Miners' Federation to make the use of baths compulsory he will have done a good work. The miner is a clean man, but he prefers to have his bath at home, and if he does not make regular use of it it is because he fears to "weaken his back." And the miner needs a strong back.—Westminster Gazette.

Education and Crime

Illiteracy constitutes a temptation to crime, especially such as petty theft, burglary, highway robbery and other offences against property, by depriving its victims of earning power, both as to rate of wages and continuity of employment. To be completely illuminating it would be necessary for the data also to include information as to the reasons why the prisoners failed to obtain the necessary fundamentals of education. It is stated in general terms that "many lacked opportunity." But a great many more were tempted away from opportunity by evil associates or unwise counsellors. Many did not possess mental capacity such as to warrant belief that they would have been benefited by college training, but most of them could have been self-supporting by well-directed vocational instruction. Ignorance, in the commonly accepted sense of the term, seems to be at the bottom of most of the crimes for which penitentiaries have to be maintained. — Portland Oregonian.

Paris of the Balkans

The sufferings of Roumania in the war were great and prolonged. Out of some 8,000,000 people, more than 600,000 were killed in battle or died of disease, and the invaders succeeded in destroying or carrying off much of the moveable wealth of the country and almost all the rolling stock of the railroads which was necessary for food relief. Today 15,000 tons of food are waiting at Constansa because there are no trains to take them inland. But in spite of these troubles the spirit of Bucharest seems to be the same. Some shipments have arrived from France. With clothing costing $250 a suit, eggs a dollar apiece, a cup of coffee a dollar, one would think that the precious space of these trains would have been used for the necessaries of life. And they were, but for the necessaries of life as Bucharest sees them. French perfumes and silk stockings were brought in by the carload, the populace is willing to wait for food. The Paris of the Balkans, if one may still apply that term to the capital of a people which denies that it belongs to the Balkan system, seems to have the same temperament as before the war. —New York Times.

A GILT-EDGED TRADE FOR CANADA IN 1919

Tourist "trade" gives quickest returns for service of any commerce any land can undertake. Payment, cash "on the dot" is for exactly those things which the people produce and originate themselves. In that sense tourist traffic forms a most valuable national asset of "gilt-edged import" of practically nothing but dollars.

It is an aspect of Canadian trade which must not be overlooked in this year of difficult re-adaption to peace conditions.

The Trade Adviser of the Pan American Union, an international organization maintained by the twenty Latin-American republics and the United States for the development among other things of friendly intercourse, writes to the Canadian Trade Commission as follows:

"I am inclined to think that all parts of Canada could receive thousands of tourists from the United States during the coming summer if special efforts were made by the Dominion to let it be known generally in this country that Canada wants tourists to come. Possibly articles in journals and magazines, calling special attention to the delightful climate of Canada, the fishing possibilities, the scenery and other attractions would induce more than usual thought being given to that country.

Our people who may be a bit more settled than during the war years "wish to go somewhere", and as they cannot go to Europe, or Mexico, and as South America is too far away and passports too difficult to obtain, our own western country and Canada then become more or less Mecca."

It is obvious that the President approaches the League of Nations discussion with an open mind. So open that any adverse criticism that may steal in is allowed to find its way out without delay.—Boston Transcript.

The League of Nations will probably run along with a fair degree of smoothness at least until the project of international prohibition comes before it.—Syracuse Herald.

COMMITTEE HOLD MEETING

8 per cent or he even would say all over 5½ per cent, the amount of interest realized from Victory Bonds. Mr. Trites thought all who had made excess profits should come within the scope of the resolution, namely the ordinary manufacturer, the man who raised wheat, the merchant, the laborer or mechanic who made $10.00 per day or more, and everyone including the munitions manufacturer should not have more than a reasonable interest on his investment.

Mr. Martin said he was confident that any working man would accept the $1.10 soldier pay if the government would clothe and feed himself and his family. This brought forth protests from the representatives of the G. W. V. A. that the government did not support the soldier's family, and this feature was argued at some length, and finally it was moved by Mayor Uphill, seconded by Secretary Watson, "that this committee go on record to recommend to the government that they conscript all profits made in Canada during the war by individuals or corporations."

The desire of the Fernie Amateur Athletic Association to have a representative appointed on the committee was accepted. Dr. Orner, representing the F. A. A. C. was present and spoke briefly in connection with that organization. The question of the soldiers' memorial had been discussed at a joint meeting of the G. W. V. A. and the F. A. A. C. when it was decided this would be established in the form of a building. The matter was left over until a canvass of the entire district can be made. Harry Martin made a report relative to the Land Settlement Board and the settlement area established in this district. From the correspondence produced it would appear there was some further explanations forthcoming from the Land Settlement Board regarding applications from Fernie residents for land and pending the arrival of Mr. Ward, member of the board, who is expected here shortly, the matter was left in abeyance.

Secretary Watson tendered his resignation, stating that in view of the increasing duties in connection with the banking business he was unable to continue to act. The resignation was accepted with considerable regret and F. G. Perry was appointed acting secretary until such time as permanent arrangements in this connection can be made.

In connection with the federal appropriation for an armoury here, which has been long standing without any steps being taken to establish this institution, upon regular motion a communication was ordered dispatched to the Minister of Militia, requesting information as to when construction upon this might be expected, together with a request that same be proceeded with expeditiously.

The regular meetings of the committee in future will be held on the second Monday of each month. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered the retiring secretary.

AMERICANS ARE NOT ALLOWED TO LAND

New York.—Uniforms of fifty different British regiments were worn by 2,700 Americans from 32 states, who had returned on the steamer Mauretania. The men had enlisted in the British service early in the war.

There were also a number of colored men from the British West Indies.

A near riot broke out on board the steamer, when the 2,700 men who fought with British war units, found that they could not land because of a misunderstanding of their exact status as passengers.

Passenger manifests, required by immigration authorities were not available and the explanation was offered that British officials had informed the commander of the steamer, that in this "special case" of returning Americans, who had fought in the British forces, "manifests would not be asked for."

United States immigration officials knew nothing of this and demanded the regular papers.

At one time it was feared that the men would rebel in a body and march ashore. However, the situation was said to be in hand once more, pending developments later on.

A returned officer, speaking in Toronto last week, gave an interesting explanation of the Canadian capture of Cambrai just before the armistice. As shock troops, he said, the Canadians had done all the hard fighting up to the gates of the city, and then under the plan arranged by the generals directing the attack the imperial troops were selected to smash into Cambrai. The attack was timed for 5:30 that morning. "But the Canadians," said the colonel, "got up at 1:30 in the morning and, unknown to the imperials, pressed on the Cambrai, encircled it and captured the town from the rear. They found a German ordnance storehouse in which were about 20,000 German spiked helmets, which were to have been used in a certain triumphal procession, and when the Imperial troops entered at 5:30 they found most of the Canadian army doing the goose-step through the streets with brand new Hun helmets on their heads."

Linn, late Chief of the Bakery Section of the Food Board, is now consulting and advisory baking expert at Ottawa, and will deal with any trade difficulties.

south side of Burrard inlet and in the sea cliffs on the shores of English bay. Elsewhere they are covered by a heavy mantle of Glacial and post-Glacial sands, gravel and clay, which varies from a few feet to several hundred feet in thickness and so obscures the beds that their structure is difficult to work out. Dips, however, of 10 to 15 degrees to the southward, may be measured at the natural exposures. The total thickness of these beds in the Fraser river district has been estimated at 3000 feet. Weaver gives them a thickness of 10,000 to 12,000 feet of sediments and intercalcated basalts in the state of Washington, into which they extend and where they have been thrown into a series of of anticlines and synclines with a general north and south trend.

The topographic features of the country about Vancouver and south of the Fraser river are such as to suggest to the layman that the underlying solid rocks have been folded into a series of anticlines and synclines, creating structural conditions favorable for the accumulation of oil. There is, however, little evidence to indicate that the ridges and hills of this district are expressive of the attitude of the underlying bed rock, for they are frequently either accumulations of Glacial or Recent material deposited in the form of hills, or else they represent remnants of a higher land surface that has been completely eroded away. There is, therefore, very little structural evidence, in the district itself, on which to base conclusions as to the presence or absence of commercial bodies of oil in these rocks, though it is only to be expected that the anticlinal structure which obtains in these beds south of the International Boundary line will be found in the beds of the Fraser river district.

As far as the lithology of the beds is concerned there are great thicknesses of porous sandstones capable of acting as reservoirs for oil, but so far as is yet known there are relatively few beds sufficiently thick or impervious to constitute a cover capable of preventing the escape of oil to the surface.

A thin bed of sandy shale outcrops on the south side of Burrard inlet, east of Hastings, and other thin beds have been encountered in the boring near Burnaby lake.

Admitting that two conditions necessary to a commercial oil field have been fulfilled in this district, namely, lithological composition of the beds, and a favorable structure which would allow oil or gas to flow and accumulate in pools, there remains the question of the original source of the oil.

In order that oil or gas may occur in any rocks it is considered necessary that organic material must have been present at the time the rocks were being laid down and that favorable conditions for the embedding of such organic material should have existed. It is generally considered, also, that marine animal life was necessary for the formation of deposits of oil.

The Eocene beds of the lower Fraser River district are mainly sandstones and conglomerates laid down along the shores of an estuary into which streams were discharging their load of sediment. The beds accumulated so rapidly that under ordinary conditions the proportion of sediment to animal material would have been large and marine animal life itself not particularly abundant.

A certain quantity of vegetable material was present, however, as shown by the occurrence of fossil plants and small coal seams, but the information obtained from natural exposures and drill cores does not as yet indicate that the Eocene beds contain sufficient organic material to have produced commercial deposits of oil.

This is the conclusion arrived at by geologists of the state of Washington, where the Eocene beds are better exposed and where they have been more carefully studied than in the province of British Columbia.

The possibility of older petroleum-bearing rocks underlying the Eocene and furnishing a supply of oil to the Eocene must, however, be considered.

At Sumas mountain the Eocene rests on volcanic rocks and on the north side of Fraser river on granitic rocks, neither of which is a possible source of oil. Triassic and older rocks form the mountains east of Chilliwack and may extend under some of the region covered by the Eocene rocks, though no evidence of such extension is available.

The Triassic rocks, which are grouped together by R. A. Daly under the name "Cultus" formation are described by him as being made up dominantly of "dark grey to blackish argillites often bituminous in moderate degree." They are several hundreds and possibly thousands of feet in thickness and contain marine fossils. This formation is a remote but possible source of oil in the Eocene rocks and of the seepages that occur here and there throughout the district.

It is necessary to mention another possible source of the oil seepages, which has been referred to by J. B. Tyrrell. Tyrrell attributes the origin of the oil to distillation from coal seams that have been intruded by dykes of igneous rocks. If this theory of origin is correct the seepages have no particular significance and a commercial oil field is not to be expected.

The evidence bearing on the original source of the oil seepages and whether or not they denote commercial bodies of oil underground is so scanty that definite opinions cannot be expressed regarding the occurrence of an oil field in this district. In locating the sites of drill holes, however, operators should not neglect to use all the geological data available and especially those bearing on the structure of the rocks, for by these methods much territory can be eliminated as not likely to contain oil depsoits and operations may be confined to those areas that are favorable. It is regrettable that these methods have not been used in every case in selecting the sites for the drilling operations that are now in progress, for they are the only methods that have been proved by experience to be effective in the location of commercial fields.

The first drilling operations in the lower Fraser river district were conducted about 30 years ago by the C. P. R. with the hope of finding workable coal seams. Holes were drilled at that time at Kitsilano and at Port Haney, but no logs of these holes are now available. Gas is reported to have been struck in the Port Haney hole at a depth of 600 feet, and as a result of this a Vancouver group of men began drilling in 1914 near the site of the old C.P.R. well with the hope of obtaining gas or oil in commercial quantities. The drill attained a depth of 1250 feet and the hole was then abandoned. J. D. Galloway reports that the drill was in sandstones and shales the whole way.

The Pitt Meadow well, which was begun in December, 1913, by the Pitt Meadow Oil Wells, Ltd., is situated in sec. 13, tp. 40, range 5, W. 7th mer. Broad, flat meadows, almost completely flooded at high tide, extend from Fraser river up the valley of Pitt river to Pitt lake, the upper part of the valley lying between the granitic hills of the Coast mountains, and having "islands" of these rocks rising up through it. The site of the well in these meadows is just inside the outer line of the mountains. The first hole put down at this point reached a depth of about 1200 feet and owing to some difficulties was then abandoned. The present hole was started in December, 1913, and on January 1, 1919, was down 1990 feet, over 1000 feet being in drift before the solid bedrock was reached. A small showing of oil is said to have been obtained at 1964 feet, from a thin bed of sandstone. Owing to the loss of some tools in the hole only about 100 feet in depth have been made in the last three years. The site of the hole was located by a magnetically controlled instrument which is supposed to indicate the presence of oil beneath the surface.

A company known as the Empire Oil and Natural Gas Company is sinking a well in sec. 27, tp. 10, range 4, W. 7th mer., about a mile south of Otter station on the Great Northern railway. Drilling with a Keystone drill has been in progress since April, 1918. The first hole at this site was put down to a depth of 350 feet and then abandoned without reaching bedrock. A second hole put down beside the first reached a depth of 140 feet and was also abandoned. A third hole at the same site had reached the depth of 65 feet on Jan. 6, 1919. All the holes passed through a top stratum of coarse gravel and were continued in soft sands. None of the holes reached solid rock.

A diamond drill hole is being put down by the Spartan Oil Company in the municipality of Burnaby about a mile north of the west end of Burnaby lake, on lot 130. One of the most important seepages of oil occurs at this point alongside the tracks of the Great Northern railway. Drilling was begun on Aug. 15, 1918, and was still in progress on Jan. 15, 1919, when a depth of 1060 feet had been attained. The surface drift at this point was found to be 110 feet in depth and the strata encountered were sandstones, conglomerates and some shale. Small showings of gas and oil have been obtained from sand streaks in the conglomerate at several points below 640 feet. A contract has been let to sink the hole to a depth of 2000 feet.

A WARNING

Many leading Trade Unionists in Britain are expressing fears about the consequences of unauthorized and irresponsible strikes which have been unexpected and mean a serious matter in a commercial way. Mr. W. A. Appleton, who is the general secretary of the Federation of Trade Unionists, in writing in the official organ of the Federation, draws attention to some matters which give cause for alarm. Tin plates, he says, are now on the market at 20s per ton less than British cost prices. Steel is being offered by Britain's competitors at a much lower rate than Britain can produce it, even with the aid of a subsidy. He shows that Lancashire with 75 per cent of her trade overseas, is faced with offers of 30 per cent lower than the present cost prices, while the United States, he says, is prepared to put coal into markets formerly monopolized by the British. After giving these figures Mr. Appleton says: "These are the facts. It is no use appealing to parliament. The industries must themselves find a solution or go out of business."

Since the beginning of time, since the herdmen of Abraham quarrelled with the herdmen of Lot's cattle, there has been a desire on the part of one individual or section of a people to better itself at the expense of some one else. Often, while individuals or sections of a community are quarrelling among themselves an outsider comes along and takes away their substance. In pre-war times Britain had markets for her steel and tin and cotton and coal that could not be touched by any other country, but now it appears the interminable labor disputes, disputes often not recognized by the real leaders of the Labor movement, are having the effect of seriously threatening Britain's trade. The lesson is obvious. The solution cannot be found by a government which ,however it bonuses an industry, does so with the people's money, and the more bonuses are given the heavier the taxation and proportionately the greater the cost of living. The solution lies in the ability of those most nearly concerned to order conditions of production and manufacturing in such a way that the raw or finished products can be marketed in competition with the products of other lands. —Colonist.

SPOKANE WOMAN GAINED 40 POUNDS

After Everything Else Failed To Help Tanlac Restores Her

"There, that is what I have been looking for for the past six months now for my sister," said Mrs. Vi Legault, who resides at 221 1-2 Post Street, Spokane, Wash.

"My sister's health has broken down," Mrs. Legault continued, "and I firmly believe Tanlac will fix her up as it did me three years ago."

"Before I took it I was suffering from a complication of ailments which had resulted in nervous prostration. My troubles all started from a bad stomach and I was in a pitiable condition. Everything I ate would sour causing me such awful pains in the pit of the stomach that I could harly stand it. My nerves were in a bad shape, I was badly constipated and even now I hate to think of the terrible headaches I had. I also suffered from weakness and pains in my right side, which was the worst kind of torture. Electrical treatment and everything else was tried on me, except an operation, which I refused to stand for, but nothing did me any good. I had always weighed around one hundred and forty-eight pounds, but my suffering pulled me down to one hundred and twelve, and I was scarcely more than a frame. I really had no desire to live as my case seemed to be hopeless.

"Well some wonderful things happen in this world, and my recovery is one of them. I picked up a paper one day in Detroit, Michigan, where I was living at the time, and read a Tanlac testimonial given by a lady who lived but a short distance from me, and right then I decided to try Tanlac. The results I obtained are nothing less than remarkable. My appetite soon came back, my stomach got so I could eat and digest my food and every one of my troubles gradually left, and the first thing I knew I was regaining my lost weight and strength. After using five bottles of Tanlac I found that I had gone up to one hundred and fifty-two pounds —actually gaining forty pounds — making several pounds more than I had ever weighed before. And although it has been nearly three years now since Tanlac restored me I have never been bothered with any of my old troubles to this good day, and I have held my weight, always weighing around one hundred and fifty pounds. So you can see why I have been so anxious to find Tanlac for my sister. I am going to let her know right away where she can get it. I am glad to give this statement, for the best way I know to pay the debt of gratitude I owe Tanlac is to tell others how it has made life worth living for me."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

DUNLOP
"Gibraltar RedSpecial"
BELTING

"The Original Red Belt"

"The Long-Grain Friction Belt"

¶ Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" is the proven benefactor of many an industry in this country which has felt the need of offsetting rising costs by speeding up production and by the elimination of belt trouble.

* * *

¶ "Gibraltar RedSpecial" is a real rubber belt. It may be compared to other brands of belts only as a powerful magnifying glass might be compared with the object whose imperfections it brings into the limelight.

* * *

¶ The first belts of this brand sold have been in use for years and have proven that scientific research—combined with approximately one quarter of a century's experience in the rubber goods manufacturing industry—could offer no more in belt merits than those features for which this Dunlop Product is so well and favourably known.

¶ We believe Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" cannot be made better. It is a red, frictioned-surface belt, constructed of the highest grade rubber, and specially-woven duck of tremendous tensile strength. This accounts for its great tenacity, its enduring flexibility and its absolute uniformity throughout.

¶ Provision has been made in "Gibraltar RedSpecial" against drying out and rotting. The richness of the rubber—compounded to retain its pliability indefinitely—waterproofs the duck as well as holds the plies securely together. It also serves to minimize internal chafing due to the constant bending of the belt. All unnecessary stretch is taken out in the manufacturing process.

¶ You will find Dunlop "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Frictioned-Surface Belting doing daily duty the year round in Pulp and Paper Mills, Iron Foundries, Steel and Rolling Mills, Saw and Lumber Mills, Mines, etc., in a truly efficient manner.

¶ We also specialize on Conveyor and Elevator Belts to meet every need.

The Dunlop Unreserved Guarantee

If you have a difficult drive anywhere in your factory drop a line to our Head Office, or to our nearest branch, and we will send a man experienced in belt engineering to consider your requirements. AS MONTANA SEES CANADA

(Lethbridge Herald)

The neighboring state of Montana is agitated lest Canada takes the cream of the United States citizenship. This may be read in an editorial in the Helena Independent which seems much troubled over the impending exodus of all that is brightest and best from the land of the Stars and Stripes.

"Canada Getting Busy" is the theme of the Montana paper, and it refers with a feeling of apprehension to the advertising campaign of the Canadian railways which, it says, is "such as the old Dominion never knew and never dreamed of."

To see ourselves as others see us is not always pleasing to those who are so viewed. But the other viewpoint in the particular way the Helena Independent sees us makes us wonder whether to feel proud or, if we are modest, to feel that we are unduly flattered. Having submitted us to the lens the Independent says, "Since the war closed Canada appears to be about the sanest spot on the continent. People haven't run "hog wild" up there, and it is a fact that Americans are watching the progress of events and keeping an open mind as to whether they should remain where the agitators and wild-eyed "reformers" find the picking good or go where the people are working and giving every man a chance."

"About the sanest spot on the continent." This indeed sounds soothing. The only fly in the ointment is the sound of the O.B.U. man heard occasionally in the land. This accounts for the limitation to our sanity in the use of the word "about" by the Helena paper. This is a saving clause for which the O.B.U. men are responsible and they should note the fact of how they are viewed by those who are taking a distant view of Canada as she is. The O.B.U., happily, is just the bubble, and in the way it is viewed by the majority in the Dominion a germ which will in no way affect our sanity as Montana and the States view it.

The following contrast is worth listening to: "Canada is preparing to do business and reconstruct on lines which count. We seem to be milling around listening to a job-lot of political pin-heads and giving ear, too, to the soapbox and foreign agitator who is arriving here in large numbers where there is money to he had and no physical labor involved." In this there is much truth, with a small reservation as to pinheads, and we should endeavor to keep the picture so rosily painted from being daubed by those of the red brush.

The Independent utters a gentle sarcasm and a note of warning in its concluding paragraph thus: "Perhaps we may settle down after a while and kick out the aliens and crooks from other shores; perhaps we may bar undesirables and suppress domestic nuisances, but we had best set about it before Canada takes the cream of our citizenship."

For the rest we have a good name to live up to nor can we truthfully say, however modestly inclined we may be that the picture of ourselves is overdrawn. It is nice to be set up as a paragon and particularly when we estimate the truth of the distinction. We make our bow to the candid critic.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Save your Hair! Get a small bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says if you think Elko is dull, see a doctor. If the weather is not just what you want, get busy and you'll forget all about it. If you are not having a good time now, think of the good times you have had, but keep smiling.

Big delegations of travellers visited Elko last week from the coast, Nelson, Calgary and Winnipeg, selling everything from stem-winding mouse traps to cyclone stackers and kicking mules. Wee John Macdougall, with halter shanks, cow bells and shoe laces Russ McEwan with milk, cream, and camp coffee. Ireland Drygoods, with short skirts and other eye openers, Jim Sherlock with overland trout and pickled whale; Booth, Edmonton, with rib roasts and two eyed beef steaks; Bert Sang with peach cobblers, tuna soufle, and fruit salad, and the same old smile; Greenwood, with shredded prunes, and boneless rice; the real English Brawn, with abide with me cigars; the great Skelly, with strawberry colored waterplane fizz and pineapple flavored submarine whiffs; George McIntyre, with labor saving self revolving collar buttons; Jack Tabor, made in Medicine Hat; Walter Harwood, with bottled up grape juice and other native brews, showing a brand new corkless bottle, and opened up several bottles with the pomp and glory befitting the occasion, a prince among men, and others worthy of credit. He attended a meeting at the mining exchange and stated to the big audience that women should always be in the lead which fact will be more fully recognized when their ability and genius becomes generally understood and appreciated. Walker of the sleepless mattress factory, somewhere in Manitoba, with a hump on his back like a dog licking a porridge pot, but got some nice business. Let me be your Romeo Brown, with wire clothes lines, ice tongs, and garden tools; Elliott from the coast with seaweed novelties, and corn meal muffins and several samples of candy made from cane sugar, his first appearance and was as busy as a pup with a feather duster, had a line of talk like shooting fish into a bath tub; Jack Caverhill, one of the old timers; Malkins' best, with green peaches, blue plums and painless cucumber in tins. Tom Prentice, of Fernie, and several others who failed to register.

Billy Hall, of Creston, G.W.V. was down visiting friends at Roosville this week.

Alex McMillan returned from France Saturday and expects to start in contracting again in a few days.

Mrs. G. Thompson, Fernie, with Miss M. E. Gilmore, Toronto, were down to Elko last week visiting the falls. While in Elko they were the guests of Miss E. May Roo.

Mr. E. Frank West, manager at Roo's store, Flagstone, was a week-end visitor to Elko last week.

Jim Thistlebeak says that a man who hurls vituperation and invective at a person through the mediumship of an unsigned letter is a yellow cur, a coward of the first water, and don't have enough guts to make a banjo string.

The dance last Friday night at the Roosville school house was well attended considering the bad state of the roads. But it is only rich countries that can afford bad roads.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim Thompson, of Cranbrook, who own the Columbia Mansions at Elko, have a big staff of carpenters, painters and paper hangers busy cleaning the place up for Mr. and Mrs. Duncan, late of Wardner, who will have charge after April 15th.

Mr. J. McCarty, of Bull River, was visiting friends in Elko this week, and he's got lots of them and no enemies around here.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the callusea, without soreness or irritation.

Freezone is the sensational discovery of a Cincinnati genius. It is wonderful.

COUNCIL HOLD LONG SESSION

The city fathers met in regular session last night, all present except Ald. Rutledge.

The minutes of the previous meeting were sanctioned without question.

A delegation comprising F. Warwick and H. A. Bryant, representing the local G.W.V.A., waited upon the council, requesting a grant on behalf of the soldiers' organization. Mr. Warwick, spokesman for the delegation, when asked the purpose for which the contribution was sought, intimated that the real purpose for which the application was made was in order that the veterans might be assured that the water and light consumed at the new club would be liquidated. With but little comment it was regularly approved that the sum of $100 be donated to the Fernie Branch G.W.V.A. This was in lieu of the request for free light and water, which it is the policy of the present council not to authorize for anyone. Mr. Warwick on behalf of the Club expressed appreciation for the consideration given their request by the council.

Pte. Wm. Cowan, agent for the "Gold Stripe," a publication of British Columbia municipal honor rolls, the proceeds derived from which are applied to the Amputation Club of B. C., this being an organization for the benefit of men who have been crippled or maimed in the Great War, appeared before the council. He asked that this publication be authorized to print Fernie's Honor Roll in the second volume of the "Gold Stripe" about to be issued. The cost of the publishing of our honor roll was estimated at $25 and subscriptions for the book are $1.50. The council speedily authorized the expenditure and all present personally subscribed for the publication.

An application was made on behalf of Contractor Cody for an advance on account of contract for river bank protection work completed to date. The estimated amount of work done was based at $596 and the request for $350 advance was approved.

The Union of B.C. Municipalities membership fee of $25 was authorized to be paid.

The City of Hamilton solicited endorsation of resolution and petition to the Dominion government to continue order-in-council No. 3044 in effect, same being that permission for the manufacture and sale of oleamargarine be not withdrawn.

An application by James Bigrig for the use of Lot 6, Block 52 for gardening purposes was granted.

Miss E. Grundy tendered her resignation from the city clerk's staff requesting that the same take effect May 17. The matter of calling for applications to fill the vacancy created was left to the discretion of the City Clerk and Finance Committee.

A communication from the Inspector of Municipalities relative to statutory tax sale was received. This informed the council as to the required procedure according to the amendments enacted at the last session of the legislature, and accordingly a former motion adopted by the council in March authorizing Oct. 8 as the date upon which the annual tax sale would be held, was rescinded and the date Sept. 30th definitely fixed as the date of the sale.

A lengthy circular from the Soldiers' Settlement Board relating to lands desired by the Board for use by returned soldiers was referred to the Reconstruction Committee.

The Good Roads League requesting a subscription, also application from the B. C. Veterans' Weekly for advertising in special convention number, together with sundry other circulars and communications to make a "touch" upon the civic exchequer, were all filed.

The Crow's Nest Highway Association submitted the proceedings of the convention held a short time ago at Blairmore and requested a subscription of $25 for use in financing this organization in its work to secure the Crow's Nest Pass route for the National Highway. This was referred to the works and property committee to make a report at the next regular meeting.

Gladstone Local Union resolution relative to conscription or confiscation of munition profits and the $2000 gratuity to returned veterans was turned over to the finance committee to bring in a suitable recommendation in connection therewith.

The city engineer's report, which showed progress on the river bank protection scheme, was accepted.

The city assessor returned the completed roll for the year 1919. The court of revision will sit in the council chamber commencing Monday, the 9th of June, and this year the court will consist of the Mayor and Aldermen Gates, Graham, Hunter and Rutledge.

A number of accounts were passed.

A special informal meeting of the council will be held next Tuesday to organize the forces for the expeditious carrying out of the work on Arbor Day, April 30. In former years there has been a noticeable lack of interest displayed in the performance of this necessary work but this year it is the intention to see that everybody helps. The police have been instructed to make a tour of inspection of the city relative to private properties and the owners or occupants will be instructed to make their lots tidy by removing refuse and garbage.

The new water rate schedule adopted at the previous meeting wherein it is proposed to make a charge for water against the owner of each automobile within the city was the subject of a lengthy discussion. The final decision was that the matter be left as formerly decided unless more substantial arguments against it are presented.

His Worship reported as chairman of the committee that waited upon the Coal Co. relative to the quality and price of coal supplied the city. With regard to the quality and the amount of ash alleged to accumulate from this coal by the city employees at the power house was refuted by the company as being impossible, and in order to accurately satisfy all parties in this connection tests are to be carried out with a representative of the company in the power house. In the matter of price charged the city of $4.48 per ton in accordance with the terms of the contract between the Company and the City which read, "shall not exceed that charged the Company's most favored customer," from evidence produced to the committee they were quite satisfied that the price charged the city was strictly in observance of the terms of the agreement and that no reduction could be expected.

Bylaws Nos. 192, 193 and 194, being respectively Street and Traffic Regulations Bylaw, Mayor's Salary Bylaw and Aldermen's Salary Bylaw all three received their three readings and were approved.

Adjournment was taken at 1 a.m.

ALBERT BROWN PASSES AWAY

Albert Cecil Brown, resident of this city since 1913 and ex-chief of police, died suddenly at the family residence on Pellatt Ave. shortly after 4 o'clock on Tuesday morning. He was born in England 36 years ago but came to Canada nearly fourteen years ago. Prior to migrating to this country he served in the British navy and was classed as a first rank artificer when placed on the Naval Reserve. In civil life he principaly followed the occupation of police officer, serving for some time on the Metropolitan Police Force of London, England, and also on the police forces of Lethbridge, Alta., and Fernie, B.C. He is survived by his wife and three young sons, residing here. His other relatives all reside in England.

The funeral was held on Thursday and was largely attended by representative business men and citizens. The pallbearers were Mayor Uphill, ex-Mayor J. L. Gates, Chief of Police Welsby, James Falconer, Jas. Mitchell and Harvey Brown, collector of inland revenue. Services were held at Knox church.

FOOTBALL LEAGUE

The Footbal League is off to a good start. Mr. Johnson of Coal Creek was elected President and Mr. Campbell, Secretary. The following teams have entered:

Fernlea (C.S.E.T.)
Teamsters.
G. W. V. A.
F. A. A. C.
Coal Creek.
Michel.

The first league games will be played on May 1 at Michel, Fernie and Coal Creek. Some good material is in each of the teams and some good sport is assured the citizens of Fernie for the coming summer. Come out and boost for the boys.

Barney Caufield, Jimmy Wilson and Rev. Yolland were named as offical referees.

Dr. S. Bonnell, M.P., passed through Fernie last evening on his way to Ottawa from Vancouver, where he spent Easter with his family.

THREE YEARS IN GERMAN PRISON

Sergt. Robt. Crichton, another of Fernie's first contingent boys and late of the 13th Batt., C.E.F., returned home on Monday. Sergt. Crichton spent three years in German prison camps and during his incarceration was able to retain only two articles of his personal effects. One was his watch, which he secreted about his person, the other was the half of a Canadian one dollar bill. An interesting anecdote is attached to this last souvenir. In August, 1914, immediately prior to the departure of the first contingent from this city, David Gash, who operates a transfer business here, in the form of a memento tendered then Pte. Crichton and Pte. Sawyer each the half of a one dollar bill, Serial No. 535445, promising each of them a ten dollar bill in exchange if they came back and returned their respective portions of the bill. Sergt. Crichton claimed his reward this week by returning the memento to Mr. Gash. He managed to keep it all through his period of service and while a prisoner secreted it in the hem of a blue silk handkerchief he was allowed to retain, when every article known to be in his possession was taken from him when captured and never returned.

A BASEBALL LEAGUE

At a meeting of the babseball boys held on Monday night it was decided to organize and the following officers were elected:

Hon. Pres., W. R. Wilson.
Hon. Vice, Rev. Batzold.
President, A. C. Liphardt.
Vice-President, Jas. Johnston.
Sec.-Trea., E. Kirkpatrick.
Executive, R. Colton, L. Bain and C. Spence.

It was decided to form three teams in the city, viz.: "The Old Timers," the Hulla Hullas and the F.A.A.C. The membership fee has been fixed at $2.00.

A committee consisting of C. Spence, L. Bain, J. Austin and A. C. Liphardt were appointed to select grounds to play on.

Kastner and Kosoff were appointed official umpires and Klauer and Kirkpatrick scorers.

The committee on grounds after investigation decided on a piece of land at the top of the brewery hill, which can be put in shape at a very small cost. They interviewed Mr. Wilson on behalf of the club and he offered them the grounds together with the use of hoses they might need to put the grounds in shape.

The city has also offered to donate the use of the grader to the club.

The league season will commence on May 14 and games will be played every Wednesday and Friday evenings, commencing at 6.30.

A. C. Liphardt has kindly donated nine medals for the winners of the league.

All young men who are not otherwise engaged are asked to devote their services on Arbor Day toward getting the grounds in shape.

CHARGED WITH SERIOUS CRIME

In the County Judge's Criminal Court, the case of Thomas J. Barnes, of Michel, charged with seduction of his step-daughter, occupied two days this week. At the conclusion of the case for the Crown, counsel for the accused moved for dismissal on the ground the alleged offence had not been proved and that if any offence had been proved it was one which accused had not been asked to defend himself in the acusation. Counsel for the Crown endeavored to amend the charge but the Court held that according to the authorities he reluctantly over-ruled the application and discharged the prisoner. Counsel for the Crown immediately instructed that a new charge for an equally serious offence under the same section of the Criminal Code be laid and accused was again taken into custody pending preliminary hearing of the new charge.

HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

First Year (Grade 9)—The pupils fall into three classes. First those who study voluntarily an extra subject, thus having ten. 2nd, those who passed on the regular nine subjects. 3rd. Those who failed on this examination. This does not mean a failure on the year's work. To pass on the year's work this short year the pupils are graded by making the necessary average of 50 per cent; no subject below 34 on the three examinations. There is one more exam. to be held in June and in several cases pupils who failed this time by hard work at home and in school could bring their work up to the necessary standard. Will parents carefully study the individual reports which each pupil will receive next week. The standing of the other grades will be published next week. 500 to pass on ten; 450 to pass on nine.

On ten subjects—Dorothy McLean 782, Marguerite Griffiths 699, Kathleen Westby 659.

On nine subjects—Helen Rudnicki 734, Jennie Harper 715, Dorothy Garner 651, Violet Golightly 650, Evelyn Bean 636, Billie Dicken 590, Jessie White 582, Bruce Wallace 579, Grace Hart 559, Walter Owen 558, Radiant Snow 545, Violet Gould 543, Mary Bernot 541, Nellie Mils 530, Cassie Thirsk 523, John Hughes 487, Nellie Murphy 481, Chester Crawford 480, Minnie Wallace 475, Muriel Owen 466.

MOUNTIES ARE NOW HERE

The headquarters of the Royal North West Mounted Police for the sub-district of East Kootenay were established here this week, the Murphy residence on Jaffray street being occupied as the barracks. At this post Inspector Junkett, recently of Blairmore, Alta., is in command, while the corps consists of Sergt. Pass, Corpl. Johnson and Constables Jackson, Mowett and Stiven, six in all, are to be permanently stationed here. Detachments from this station have been established at Corbin and Michel, comprising a corporal and constable with mounts at each of these points. It is also contemplated to establish posts at Cranbrook, Gateway, Kingsgate and Rykerts in the near future, the last three named points being on the international boundary. Other posts will be located throughout the district as the requirements demand. Sergt. Pass, Corporal Johnson and Constables Mowett and Stiven have all served in France during the war and only quite recently returned to Canada. The duties which the force in this district are to carry out are the enforcement of federal statutes and the strict observance of order-in-council.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE

Wm. Kelly pleaded guilty before His Honor Judge Thompson today to attempting to commit suicide on the 11th inst. From the evidence adduced upon the preliminary investigation in conversation with the constables after his arrest Kelly claimed that he was demented from excessive drinking and not responsible for his acts. Under the hallucination of seeing a vision of his mother while on board the eastbaund C.P.R. passenger on the evening in question, and also believing that the passengers were after him he leaped from the moving train near Sparwood believing it would end his life. He escaped and still in his demented condition he jumped into the Elk River near by to elude the imaginary phantoms by drowning but again was unsuccessful. Companions on the train reported the occurrence to the police at Michel and search was immediately instituted and accused finally located in an abandoned dugout the following day near Wardrop, suffering from minor injuries and exposure.

At the trial today Kelly appealed to the court for leniency on the ground that the dangerous quality of the liquor he had imbibed at Cranbrook and Fernie had driven him out of his senses. "What was the cause when you attempted to take your life at Kamloops a couple of years ago?" was the startling reply of the court to this plea by the prisoner. He answered: "It was booze that time. I had an old knife and they told me next morning I had tried to cut my throat but I didn't hurt myself much. I was all right the next day." He further acknowledged he had served 23 days for that offence. The decision of the court for the recent offence was sentencing the accused to three months in Nelson jail.

FOCH'S STATEMENT

For the third time since the signing of the armistice Marshal Foch has made a declaration of the absolute need of the Rhine as the eastern frontier of France. It is impossible to regard the demands of the Marshal as being met by any one of the propositions falling short of outright annexation, such as the dismantling of forts west of the Rhine or even the occupation of the country by French troops for a term of years. The Marshal wants the dream of Louis the Fourteenth made a fact; and the French military and political boundary fixed along the Rhine. The reasons which he advances are entirely military in their character. He accepts a renewal by Germany of her attempt to conquer the world as a certainty; and the Rhine he regards as the only secure defence for both France and Great Britain against a surprise attack which would, he fears, decide the contest. He takes no note of the political considerations which tell against his plan; among them the danger of separating five millions of Germans from their Fatherland and incorporating them with France; and the necessity which it would involve of continuing, upon an ever-increasing scale, programmes of military preparation, with a growing popular reluctance to foot the bill which might have very disastrous consequences. These are things the statesmen have to think about; it is not for them purely or even primarily a military problem.

The re-assertion by Marshal Foch of his views at this critical moment suggests various lines of speculation. His earlier declarations were doubtless intended to strengthen France's case for a strong Eastern frontier; but now that a decision upon this point has been reached—although its details are not known—what is the motive behind this expression of opinion. The Marshal knows what the decision is. Is he disclaiming in advance his disapproval of it; or is he preparing in advance a justification for a settlement which goes beyond what moderate opinion both in France or Germany regards as possible or desirable?

MRS. BRADLEY SAYS IT SAVED HER LIFE

"I Can Hardly Find Words to Express My Gratitude For Tanlac," She Says

"I have not only gotten back all the weight I lost while sick, but I am actually heavier now than I have ever been," said Mrs. Lucy Bradley, residing at 7329 Eli Ave., Seattle, Wash., recently, in one of the most remarkable statements yet published in connection with the Master Medicine.

"I had suffered from stomach trouble," continued Mrs. Bradley, "until I was scarcely more than a frame of skin and bones. One day about three years ago, after eating some strawberries, I was taken with an attack of acute indigestion, and was down in bed for some time unable to move. Beginning from that time my stomach was in such a bad fix that everything I ate would ferment, causing gas, shortness of breath and fearful pain. There was a pain right through my heart that couldn't have hurt much worse if I had been stuck with a knife, and several times I thought I would surely die. I just kept losing weight and got so weak I couldn't walk across the room. I was forbidden to eat anyhting exxcept liquid. I tried drinking sweet milk and even that was like poison to me. I suffered a great deal with pains in my back and hardly knew what sleep was.

"We were living in St. Louis at this time, and a friend of ours had gotten such splendid results from Tanlac that my husband begged me to take it. I refused for a time, as I had no faith in it to help me, but I kept getting worse and my husband insisted. So I consented to try it and when he brought me the first bottle I weighed only one hundred and ten pounds and was almost frantic with suffering. Now I can hardly find words to express my gratitude, for I really don't believe I would be here today if it hadn't been for Tanlac. Soon after I started taking it I began to feel better. It was the very thing for me and it wasn't long until I could eat just any and everything I wanted without hurting me, and my appetite was so big I could hardly eat enough. Well, that has been a good while ago and from that time until now I have never suffered a particle with my stomach, shortness of breath or pain of any kind. I sleep like a child every night and am strong and healthy in every way. I now weigh one hundred and fifty-six pounds— making a gain of over forty-six pounds. I tell everybody that I know that Tanlac is the finest medicine in the world and I certainly have the best of reasons for saying so."

Sample Box Brings Great Results

Chronic Sufferers Find Relief

Chronic sufferers from Backache, Gravel, Stone in the Bladder or any other form of Kidney trouble are generally willing to try any remedy once. The excruciating pain caused by Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Inflammation of the Bladder or some other form of Kidney trouble, is so great, that persons afflicted are often driven to spending large sums of money in an endeavor to find relief at any cost.

This is proven by the testimony of hundreds of people who have written us letters stating "that having failed to find relief after years of trying, they turned to Gin Pills as a last resort—and a sample box of these pills soon convinced them that Gin Pills was the remedy they needed."

That is all we ask you to do. Try a box of Gin Pills at our expense, and if they fail to bring you the relief they have brought to hundreds of others with similar Kidney derangements, it costs you nothing.

Mrs. Dechene writes:

"I received your sample box of Gin Pills, and they have done me a lot of good. I can congratulate myself on having them, and I will never be without them in my home."

This testimony from a woman who was skeptical about buying Gin Pills should convince you that a sample box is well worth writing for. Do it today. Address:

T.N.T. IS GREAT EXPLOSIVE

There was brought to perfection and wide use a new high explosive which is really a wonder of modern science. Trinitrotoluol or T. N. T. is the substance which has wiped cities off the map, shattered submarines, blew whole companies of men to pieces. It is also the force which wiped out great industrial plants in blasts that shook the country.

The performance of T.N.T. are terrific, awe-inspiring. After one of the great munition plant explosions a colored workman with a face the shade of boiled liver appeared at the company office and in a shaking voice demanded his time. Asked why he was quitting when our forces were in special need of T.N.T., he replied:

"Boss, I's just found out that T. N. T. stands for 'Travel, nigger, travel!'

For military purposes a high explosive should meet three main requirements: It must yield the greatest possible explosive force per unit weight of substance. Its manufacture must not involve too much risk. It must be convenient and relatively safe to handle.

Certain explosives such as nitrogen iodides and nitrogen chloride are so sensitive that the touch of a feather will set them off. These compounds are unfit for military use. Others, such as fulminates of mercury and silver and mixtures containing chlorates are less sensitive, yet moderate shocks will explode them. These substances, however, serve a useful purpose in primers, where they are employed in small quantities and so protected that danger of premature explosion is reduced to a minimum. In this way they are used to detonate large charges of less sensitive explosives.

Still other substances such as nitroglycerine, dry guncotton and picric acid are even less likely to be set off if carefully handled. Yet frightful accidents have occurred not only in transportation but when these materials were stored in magazines where there was little chance of their being submitted to even slight jars.

Trinitrotoluol, however, has been described as dangerously safe, for it can be so roughly treated without undergoing any change that munition workers are apt to grow very careless in handling it.

When pure, T. N. T. is a slightly yellow, fine crystalline powder, which is insoluble in and unaffected by water. If heated to about 80 degrees centigrade it melts to a deep yellow liquid resemblbing maple syrup in appearance, which can be poured into moulds and shells with almost perfect safety. It can not be exploded by a flame or by percussion, and unlike picric acid and a number of other high explosives, it forms no highly sensitive compounds with the metals which would render it dangerous to place in metal containers. If a flame is applied to a mass of T. N. T. powder it melts, takes fire and burns quickly, evolving a heavy black smoke. It will stand the most severe shocks without decomposing — in fact a bullet may be fired into it without effect. Yet if it is detonated by the sharp explosion of fulminate of mercury, it explodes with the greatest violence even when immersed in water.

Both the power and safety of T. N. T. were well demonstrated several months ago when a ton or more of this substance exploded at a plant located near one of our large cities. It is never clear what causes such blasts, because those nearby usually perish, but from our knowledge of the properties of this substance it was probably detonated by some other explosive. The explosion killed 60 men and rocked the surrounding country for miles, yet close to the scene of the accident were 30 tons of T.N.T. which, had it exploded, would have destroyed the great manufacturing plant and probably wrecked the nearby city. Thanks to the stability of this compound it withstood the shock.

While T.N.T. can be handled with almost perfect safety as far as its explosive properties are concerned, undue familiarity of the factory workers is not without evil effects.

This compound is quite poisonous even in small quantities, and those engaged in its manufacture are apt to be seriously affected unless they take proper precautions.

When the material is melted a certain amount is volatilized and breathing these fumes is injurious Care must also be taken that in cleaning and packing shells containing T.N.T. the dust from the dried powder is not allowed to get into the lungs as it acts upon the blood and produces "toxic jaundice."

The most recent investigation of the department of labor however has shown that the majority of cases of T. N. T. poisoning have been due to the absorption of the material through the skin of those who, in handling the explosive, have allowed it to come into contact with their flesh unnecessarily.

While a number of cases of T. N. T. poisoning have resulted fatally, a better understanding of the nature of this compound and the strict enforcement of precautionary measures are materially reducing the percentage of poisoned workers. By providing plenty of fresh air in the factories, making the laborers wear gloves and requiring them also to change their clothing, the danger of injury from T. N. T. is not great.

The basis of T. N. T. is toluol, a light oil produced as a byproduct in the destructive distillation of bituminous coal. By treating toluol with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids trinitrotoluol is produced. In the immense coal fields of the United States we possess greater potential sources of this essential high explosive than any other nation yet we recover a relatively small percentage of the toluol evolved in coking this coal, and up to our entrance into the war little attempt was made to separate this important compound from the illuminating gas supplied to our large cities.

THEY HAVE THEIR ADMIRERS

No tragedy in history is more terrible than this starvation of a whole people by an insane regime. The Bolsheviki bear witness against themselves. Zinovieff wrote a month ago, "how well I know those ashen faces, grey, swollen with hunger and the eyes sunken with unheard-of privations." By destroying confidence credit, enterprise, and money they are destroying life itself; in Petrograd the population has fallen from 2,500,000 to 750,000 in little more than a year. All critics and opponents are mercilessly suppressed by torture and murder. Chinese are used to shoot up men of European blood and to drive the wretched conscripts, who are being taken up to the age of 55, into the firing line. The women are "nationalized," a new Bolshevist word for universal compulsory prostitution. The sick are shot because of the trouble they cause. Such are the conditions which some Western "democrats" profess to admire, though we notice that they show no ardent desire to go to Russia and enjoy them.—London Daily Mail.

SYNOPSIS OF
LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

WHEN you select a type of shoe which pleases you, you will probably find that it is made in different grades and different leathers—selling at different prices. But if the shoe is stamped with a maker's name which you know, you may be sure of good value for your money no matter what grade you decide upon.

Go to a dealer in whom you have confidence, and look for the manufacturer's trade mark on the shoes you buy. The dealer's advice and judgment will be of great assistance to you, and he will see that the shoes you select are properly fitted, so that you will get full service value from them. The manufacturer's trade mark is your best assurance of high quality in material and workmanship, for the manufacturer's business reputation is behind it.

THE ALLIES AND RUSSIA

Mr. Lloyd George achieved yet another of his triumphs in the House of Commons yesterday, inasmuch as he was able to tell Britain that all the election promises he had made would be incorporated in the Peace Treaty to be presented to Germany for signature towards the end of the present month. The debate, which promised to be an acrimonious one, petered out after his speech, and while what he said left uncertainty in some minds as to the future there is no denying that his utterances were in the straight flung language for which he has become renowned. One of his pronouncements that will be welcomed everywhere in the allied countries was that wherein he spoke of France's hopes as a result of the peace treaty. It is possible to gather from what he said that these hopes will be fulfilled and that ample guarantees for her security in the future will be forthcoming.

The main question, as far as the future is concerned, is the attitude of the Allies towards the Eastern problem. Bolshevism is not to be fought, but it not to be recognized, while the Allies are to give aid to those countries menaced by Bolshevism but which are seeking to establish their independence. They can do no less than this if they are to adhere to the peace principles laid down by President Wilson. Mr. Lloyd George disabused the public mind of the impression that had been gaining ground that President Wilson was learning towards recognition of the Lenine regime. Evidently this is not the case, for America's chief peace delegate has not displayed any such attitude at the Conference. It must be assumed Britain's Premier spoke for all the Associated Powers in saying there could be no recognition of the Bolsheviki. It seems, too, a decision is about to be reached whereby Russia is to be fed by the Allies, under neutral supervision, but a prerequisite to this will be that the Lenine government puts an end to the wars it has been conducting and promises not to attempt to interfere with any of the boundary decisions reached by the Peace Conference. The probability, or otherwise, of the Bolshevist regime agreeing to this depends upon the straits it has reached in the task of government.

It is an extraordinary commentary on Bolshevism in practice that one of the greatest food producing countries in the world, a country which is an empire of illimitable agricultural riches and thickly populated, should have to look to the outside for food stuffs. If any evidence were needed of the utter failure of Bolshevism it is found in the food situation of Russia today. Lenine and Trotzky have brought the country to industrial ruin and they are now forced to ask the Allies to come to the aid of their starving populace, who they have deluded with communist ideas which proved unworkable among a people whose habits of industry had been temporarily destroyed. If Russia accepts the conditions laid down by the Allied powers it is quite conceivable the peace of Europe may be in prospect, provided Germany accepts the peace terms, but there is as yet no assurance she will. Then, too, there is the possibility Bolshevist promises will not be observed, for one of the doctrines of the creed is repudiation, and the Allies, before they undertake to have food supplies sent into Russia, will have to obtain hard and fast guarantees that all their conditions will be observed.

Mr. Lloyd George is technically right in saying that the peace terms to be imposed on Germany cannot be made public until they are received by that country. It is not so much the actual nature of those terms about which there has been so much uneasiness, but rather about the strength the Allies are prepared to employ to see they are enforced. The public of the Allied countries have discounted the importance of the discussions at Paris because they were in the first place unaware of the details of what was being discussed, but more particularly because they learned of growing chaos in Europe at a time when peace conditions were being prepared. If the proposal to feed Russia leads to a cessation of strife it will have the effect of creating world-wide confidence. But, as well, the Allies must insist in the strongest terms that all Bolshevist propaganda ends throughout the Allied world. Bolshevist gold, which should have been buying foodstuffs for the starving people of Russia, has been scattered liberally in the effort to foment revolution in every country. Bolshevist agents are everywhere, even in our midst in this farthest West of Canada. They are acting at the dictation of the Lenine regime and incidentally forwarding the pro-German propaganda. Before there can be peace this propaganda must cease. —Colonist.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

HUN PRESS WAS MUZZLED

Early in the war the Mail and Empire published a remarkable sentence translated from the Cologne Gazette in which it admitted that in order to cope with the perfidious Allies it was necessary that the German press should lie, but promised that as soon as the war was won it would return to the good old German practice of telling the truth. This must have been before the German censorship was completed, for thereafter while the German press continued to lie unflaggingly, it never confessed that it was lying. No doubt the Gazette was of opinion that it would be necessary to depart from veracity for only a few issues, and lightheartedly offered to make this necessary sacrifice for its country. But when it was obliged to continue for weary months and years, it seems likely that the habit of untruthfulness has become chronic, and that it will have difficulty in convincing its readers that it has at length sworn off. The same will be true in part at least of every other newspaper printed in Germany. Those that did not distort the truth suppressed it. There was no truth-telling in Germany until last November, and we are convinced that even today the truth is scarcer than butter and other fats.

How the German press was muzzled and manipulated by the government is revealed in a pamphlet entitled "How We Were Lied To," the author being Kurt Muesham, who, as an Austro-German war correspondent no doubt bore his share of the Blonde Beast's burden. He says that the pamphlet has been inspired by Dr. Wilhelm Muehlon, former director of Krupps, whose denunciation of Germany as the instigator of the war was made in Switzerland in 1918. The pamphlet explains that the newspaper editors were forbidden under dire penalties to discuss any subject relating to the war without the approval of the censorship staff. There were hundreds of these censors, operating through 21 newspaper bureaus and various branches of the government. Only such news was published as would give the people the impression that the German campaign was a series of uninterrupted successes.

The newspapers were not allowed to intimate to their readers that they were under the control of an iron censorship. Papers did not appear in Berlin as they did frequently in Paris with dispatches blotted out, showing obviously that the censor was at work. They issued ostensibly just as did Canadian papers. The censorship operated before the paper was printed. On one or two occasions Harden and a few other eccentrics were sent to jail or their papers stopped because they disregarded orders, but to do them credit they no more than the Cologne Gazette, hinted that all was not going well with the German armies. Their indiscretions consisted of attacke upon German officials. All along their interests appeared to be rather political than military. When the battle of the Marne was fought and Germany's hope of winning the war was hamstrung, the only reference to a revrse to be found in the German press was this official statement: "In the western theatre of war operations, the details of which cannot yet be published, have led to a new battle which is developing favorably. Reports spread by the enemy unfavorable to us are false."

When the Lusitania was sunk and the negotiations were slowly but surely dragging themselves to the point where the United States declared that a state of war existed with Germany, the German press was permitted only to say that the negotiations were taking a course "very favorable to us." It was announced that a hopeless breach had been created between Secretary Lansing, described as fanatically English, and President Wilson, who was represented at this time as being strongly opposed to war with Germany. Later on when war was declared the press was instructed to represent the President as practically an Englishman and under the control of American financial interests, which were in turn controlled in London. The German newspapers assured their readers that in any event the United States' only contribution to the war could be a financial one, a similar view to that disseminated by the Hearst papers, which insisted that American troops should not be sent abroad.

Not only was the press instructed as to the general course it should pursue, but it was told just what words to use and what expressions to avoid. For instance, it was not permitted to speak of the "ruthless submarine warfare," but only the "unlimited" or "boundless" submarine warfare, employed not for the purpose of starving England, but to bring the war more swiftly to an end. The Germans were told that the German U-boats were four times more numerous than the losses, at a time when they were being sunk faster than they could be built. Being thus instructed through the German press and warned that anything they might read in the press of any other nation was probably enemy propaganda, it is not to be wondered at that the German people were deceived. They have not yet recovered from the effects of their heroin-inspired dreams, and thus they speak of the army as the "vanquished victors," and talk of "going Bolshevik" if the peace terms of the allies appear harsh to them.

WAR MEMORIALS

Suggestions for war memorials, national and local, should be welcomed from all quarters. There will be divergent conceptions of what is fitting for the occasion. Some views will lean to the artistic, other to the utilitarian. Possibly something which combines are and utility will best meet with public approval for national and municipal memorials, leaving to individual effort such endowment of educational or philanthropic institutions as our liberality, and our sense of the importance of the occasion, may prompt. One thing should be common to all memorials. They should have the element of permanence and they should be so devised and named as to convey to succeeding generations a perception of the word-shaking event which their forefathers commemorated. It is not enough that we should find the money for something to satisfy ourselves. We must think of the future and call nothing by the name of "war memorial" which has not in it a message for those who come after us.—Auckland (N.Z.) News.

ATHEISM NOT WANTED

We know, and what is better, we feel inwardly, that religion is the basis of civil society, and the source of all good and of all comfort. In England we are convinced of this, that there is no rust of superstition, with which the accumulated absurdity of the human mind might have cruted it over the course of ages, that 99 in 100 people of England would not prefer impiety. We shall never be such fools as to call in an enemy to the substance of any system to remove its corruptions, to supply its defects, or to perfect its construction. If our religious tenets should ever want a further elucidation, we shall not call on atheism to explain them.—Edmund Burke.

THE NEED FOR STUDY

We refrain altogether from comment upon the party discussions in the United States, but we may observe that nothing could be more dangerous than a great international instrument which should really be open to such a criticism. Such a document ought to be absolutely clear and free from ambiguities, and to ensure clearness and certainty on a subject so novel and of such vast complexity, minute consideration and careful draftsmanship are indispensable. Let the broad outlines of the League of Nations be embodied by all means in the preliminary treaty, but let the detailed provisions of this most momentuous and most comprehensive of all international covenants be reserved for the full consideration so great a work demands. — London Times.

FERNIE DISTRICT

1. The idea is to make Fernie a centre for tourists, whether coming in by car or by train.

In this connection it will be necessary to do several things, and among them the following:

(a) Decide what places there are of attraction within the District which would be likely to appeal to tourists;

(b) Get out an attractive booklet advertising the different attractions and distribute them freely throughout Canada and the United States;

(c) Take the different places of attraction and arrange where possible to immediately improve them.

I have in mind four plaaces at the present time which would appeal very strongly to outsiders and also to the residents of Fernie, at each of which a day could be very profitably spent:

(1) Elko Falls.

(2) Surveyor's Lake near Baynes Lake. This can be made a beautiful place. The Lake has about 30 to 50 acres of beautiful spring water and deep. A good beach can be made at little expense and the water is very pleasant to swim in, and very good boating could be had. It is also planned to stock this lake with black bass and other suitable fish. There will also be a nice golf course at Waldo, some three miles from Baynes Lake.

(3) Island Lake. This is truly a beautiful spot and perhaps for real mountain scenery and forest grove would be hard to equal anywhere in the Province of British Columbia.

There is a lake of quite a few acres situate at the foot of some of the most magnificent mountains in the district. The lake is completely surrounded by spendid trees and the most pleasant place to camp is found here. From the camp there is an easy access to all the nearby mountains, from the tops of which the surrounding country for perhaps fifty miles in each direction can be seen, and for people who enjoy mountain climbing nothing more glorious can be found anywhere.

At the present time the lake is inclined to be stagnant, but I am informed that there is a beautiful mountain stream which can be diverted into the lake at its high side and will naturally flow out at the low side into Lizzard Creek. When this work is done the lake can be stocked with rainbow or eastern brook trout, and fishermen say that the indications are that no finer fishing could be obtained anywhere.

(4) Very much the same remarks apply to Hartley Lake situate on the property of the Fernie Lumber Co., about four miles from Fernie.

These two lakes are in easy distance of Fernie and can be reached by pack horses or perhaps later by cars. There should be steps taken at once to secure from the Seippel Timber Company (the owner of Island Lake) and from the Imperial Bank of Canada (the owners of Hartley Lake) sufficent rights on these two properties to insure the scenic effect for the future.

(5) There is at present a golf course being fixed up near Fernie, which in a year or two will be a splendid one and will no doubt form a great attraction for those following this game. It is predicted by many that the game of golf in a very few years will be played almost universally throuhout Canada and the United States, and the locality offering both a good and a picturesque course will have a wonderful advantage for tourist trade.

There is just one drawback to the golf course at present situated, and that is due to the fact that the Club has not got a lease on the course and will not be able to obtain one. The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. has very kindly allowed the Club to use the premises without rent as long as it does not require it for purposes of its own. To make a permanent course and one which is attractive and a drawing card in every way, quite a sum of money will be required, and it is felt already by a number of golfers that (if possible) it would be much better to endeavor to get some permanent place where a course can be laid out.

The Fernie Park, containing 188 acres, is one of the most beautiful spots in the district and this place can be made the "play ground" of Fernie if the citizens wish to go to a little trouble.

At present there is a race course and football field both of which can be put in first class shape, and there is no question but that a golf course second to none in Canada can be laid laid out.

A good suggestion is that a landscape artist be employed to lay out the park according to improved methods and furnish plans and specifications to the city and that the city do, from year to year, the amount of work it thinks it can afford to do. Beautiful walks, amusement grounds for children, possibly a lake, and many other things can be made with comparatively small expenditure, having in mind the great benefit to be derived by all. The main trunk road should go through this park instead of around by the Brewery, as at present.

There should be a strong rod and gun club formed in the district which would undertake to look after tourists in respect to hunting and fishing, the protection of big game and the stocking of the rivers and lakes with suitable fish.

Cranbrook already has started a small hatchery, and we here should boost for a proper provincially subsidized hatchery at Cranbrook for this district, and in this way all the fish can be hatched which both districts require.

The rod and gun club should also take up with the government the question of tourist licenses for fish and big game. If we undertake to restock the rivers, lakes and streams with fish, then it might be deemed advisable to ask the government to do away with a license for non-residents.

In the matter of big game, it is the opinion of many that non-residents should be charged a nominal license fee and pay a fixed amount for each animal killed. I have heard such men as Hornaday of New York and Phillips of Pittsburg criticize the non-resident fee, and it seems to me a just criticism.

Arrangements should also be made with hotels in this town to cater to tourist trade and offer inducements for tourists to stay for a few days, and of course in this connection it will be necessary for us to see that the necessary facilities are at hand so that such tourists can get around the district from here.

The plans suggested will be a wonderful blessing to every man, woman and child in the district.

The scenery of Switzerland is no grander than our own, and yet there are many places there which actually exist on tourist trade.

Another thing to be considered is that we in this district can afford to co-operate with adjoining districts and help each other instead of bucking one another. What helps one helps all in the matter of tourist trade.

At present the C.P.R. is the backbone of Banff and the main line route and if the C.P.R. will not assist this route perhaps the Great Northern will if properly approached, and in this connection we here can perhaps well afford to make the route a drawing card for Glacier National Park.

The plans outlined would mean a great thing to this district, both from a monetary and other local interests.

Every citizen of Fernie should make it his business to boost.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

The officials of Fernie Miners Union have been advised in connection with the dispute over the rate of pay for outside or surface mine labor has been adjusted by granting this class of labor the same pay for working eight hours as was formerly received for nine hours, but that the question regarding those formerly working 12 hours has not been definitely adjusted. This dispute arose through the provincial statute becoming effective on April 1 enforcing the 8 hour day for all outside or surface mine labor, and Director of Coal Operations W. H. Armstrong issuing an order that the Company would only be required to pay eight-ninths of those formerly working 9 hours and corresponding pro rata pay for those working shifts of other duration. The settlement of the dispute was brought about by the Minister of Labor and the federal cabinet according to advice received by the miners here.

CORBIN POULTRc ASSOCIATION HOLD EGG SHOW

The Corbin Poultry Association held an egg show on Saturday, the 19th, and while the number of exhibits were not as numerous as could have been wished, the affair caused quite a little friendly rivalry among the fanciers. The exhibits made a very fine showing and it is hoped the next show will bring out quite a few more exhibitors. Sid Knight and R. Clarkston supervised the judging, which gave satisfaction to all. Ed. Ainsworth, the secretary, arranged the exhibits and took charge in an able manner. After the judging, the eggs were auctioned off, the proceeds going to the funds of the Association. John Virgo acted as auctioneer and judging by the prices he realized many here think he is following the wrong occupation. The following is a list of the prize winners:

Tinted Eggs—1 John Markovitch, 2 J. T. Jackson.

White Eggs—1 Oscar Greig, 2 J. T. Jackson.

Brown Eggs—1 E. Ainsworth, 2 George Cleough.

Finally, I decided to try 'Fruit-a-tives". Before I had used half a box, I noticed an improvement; the pain was not so severe, and the swelling started to go down.

I continued taking this fruit medicine, improving all the time, and now I can walk about two miles and do light chores about the place".

DER TAG FOR THE DOUKS

(Trail News)

It is quite evident that the about 8000 Doukhobors in this province are beginning to realize that their presence here is anything but welcome to the majority of our people. Starting with the Trail Board of Trade — which established the fact definitely some months ago that they are not living up to our laws, but are a law unto themselves in certain respects not enjoyed by the rest of us, the movement was taken up by the Trail Reconstruction Board, then by the Grand Forks Reconstruction Board—and now it has reached a point where the head of the community states he is willing to sell out their lands for returned soldiers. Meantime protests are pouring in to the authorities at Victoria and Ottawa to take action.

But it must be remembered that Peter Verigin, the head of the sect, and president of their corporation, is one of the shrewdest men in Canada today—and will just as surely put one over now as he did 20 years ago when he made a deal with Sir Clifford Sifton to bring them to Canada from Southern Russia. They came, exempt from military duty—but nothing else. Now they persistently and continuously break our laws, and they should be made to toe the mark or return whence they came.

Forcing them to sell their holdings does not appeal to many but forcing them to register births, marriages and deaths and to send their children to school—as all others must — is merely equity and justice. They must be closely watched that they do not work any of their tricks in any deal that may be made.

Evidently something will come of the agitation and if if is nothing else, and the R. N. W. M. P., for instance, will force them to obey the laws to the letter, and not permit them to dodge poll taxes, etc., the effort will be worth while. In the past, governments have evidently been afraid of the sect, else why were they allowed to snap their fingers in our face, as it were. The day has arrived when something will happen.

PRESS COMMENT

A LONG SUFFERING PEOPLE

The British ought to be a thankful race there are so many people ready to point out how they neglect their own interests and make mistakes, as if we were sparing of self criticism. From across the Atlantic we are reminded of our absence of business capacity. The Dutch tell us we don't know how to run colonies. The Germans used to say that we hadn't the rudiments of knowledge of fighting. And so on to a wearisome point. We might not mind being told that we were unmusical by the Poles but for a Polish professor to tell the London Chamber of Shipping that "owing to the lack of British foresight Danzig had become an effective naval base and the cradle of the German navy," was rubbing it in too much.—Singapore Press.

A SPOON FED PRESS

The Press Bureau is left without any real function. For what purpose then is Mr. Shortt, the present Home Secretary, keeping it alive and how can he possibly justify the wasteful expenditure upon it? There is only one possible explanation of this mystery, that some want the Press Bureau to be maintained, not to prevent the disclosure of military and naval secrets but to put forth "special information." There is an inclination to use it to spoon-feed the press with such matter as the government would like to be printed. That is to say it is to serve as an official "dope" factory for the formation of public opinion. This is something totally alien to British ideas and the British sense of fairness. The country will never tolerate such a scheme, and the Press Bureau ought therefore to be closed at once.—London Daily Mail.

MAPPING THE WORLD

The method of photographically surveying the earth from aeroplanes casually referred to by General Seely in introducing the Air Service Vote will revolutionize map-making. Trigonometrical surveying is such tedious and expensive business that less than one-fourth of the land area of the globe has as yet been accurately surveyed. The maps of the other three-fourths are mere approximations or based on clever guesswork. An international conference which met in London ten years ago decided on the production of a uniform map of the world on a scale of 1 to 1,000,000, but the possibility of finishing the job this century seemed remote at the time. Now that aviators can carry out the survey work while flying over the country to be mapped there is no reason why the international map should not be finished within the next decade. — London Daily News.

OUT OF RUSSIA

All news from Russia is subject to heavy discount, but there is no sound reason to doubt the general testimony that conditions in Bolshevist Russia have gone steadily from bad to worse. Lenine and Trotzky promised peace to the Russians and they have waged continuous war, both civil and foreign. They promised bread to their dupes in the cities, and thousands have died of starvation. They promised land and better conditions to the peasants—who find themselves robbed of their slender food stocks. Confiscation of industries has brought practical stagnation in many lines of industries. The lot of the Russian workmen and peasants — to whom Bolshevism promised the earth and the fulness thereof — thus far has been worse under the despotic Bolshevism regime than it was under the despotic Czarist regime. There is greater reason and better cause for "strikes" and agitation and demonstrations in Russia than in Germany.—New Orleans Times.

BRITISH CONSCRIPTION

Canadians would do well, says the Manitoba Free Press, to reflect upon the fact that, while their army is being demobilized and repatriated with all possible speed, Great Britain is continuing close upon a million men in compulsory military service. This condition is doubtless the outcome of consultation between the Imperial governments. But it means, in practice, that Britain is undertaking to conserve for Canada the fruits of victory which the Canadian forces assisted to win. We, on our part, must show at least equal consideration for Britain's economic interests.

The necessity for the maintenance of an Allied military force sufficient to secure the observance of the peace terms by Germany cannot be doubted. The attitude of the German government and people offers no prospect, much less any security, of their acceptance of economic and financial conditions lacking which justice could not be done to the nations they have wantonly injured. Whatever they do will be done only under the compulsion of defeat. They have developed no sense of shame for their aggression or for the deliberately planned infractions of the laws of warfare by which they calculated to cripple the commercial and economic abilities of those upon whom they made war. At the present time there is a considerable probability that Germany may refuse to sign the preliminary peace treaty in the hope that so they may disrupt the Allies, escape the consequences of their military failure and evade punishment for their established delinquencies. Upon these facts Col. Churchill and the British government rest the case for the continuance of conscription in Britain.

In the further statement of the British War Minister that everything possible must be done to re-create a voluntary army there lies an important modification of policy. Previous indications have been that the abolition of compulsory service in Britain might be made to depend on the abolition of conscription on the continent of Europe. That can scarcely be regarded as a tenable position for a British government to occupy. The British navy was never stronger or better prepared for action. It is the first line of defence for Britain as the armies of continental peoples have been their first lines of defence. Reversion to the voluntary system of recruiting, if a standing army must continue to be maintained, would leave Britain infinitely stronger than before the war. Unless the League of Nations scheme falls through it ought to be possible to reduce military and naval expenditures in future though for the moment it is difficult to see how the objects of the Allies can be secured on any other basis than that proposed by the British authorities.

QUEBEC'S DECISION

The overwhelming majority in favor of the sale of beers and light wines in Quebec must exercise an influence throughout the Dominion inasmuch as it will cause the provincial governments to realize the desirability of again testing public opinion on the subject of prohibition. We do not know if the same sentiments will be shown in all the provinces as in Quebec, but the decision of the French-Canadians is sufficiently pronounced to warrant the belief that governments would show wisdom in taking plebiscites as soon as all the troops have returned from overseas. The Dominion government is to introduce prohibition legislation but this will not interfere with the rights of provinces. It has been admitted that in times of peace it is for each province to say what will be the nature of the control exercised over the sale of drink. Quebec's decision has tended to emphasize the wisdom of this attitude, not because Quebec decided against total prohibition, but because her verdict was so pronounced that it would be dangerous for the Federal government to enforce any restrictions that would have Dominion-wide application.

Wherever prohibition has been enforced the verdict has been loyally accepted by the people, and, if not loyally observed, the reason has been either because the law was not properly enforced or because the legislation was so loosely drawn as to afford many loopholes for infractions of the spirit of the enactment. The fact of the matter appears to be that no prohibitory measure which aims at the total abolition of the use of spirituous liquors, except under what are presumed to be rigid safeguards, can be enforced without a direct attack on the liberty of the subject. It is idle to deny there is a growing public opinion which favors temperance legislation as opposed to prohibitory enactments. Quebec voted for a measure of temperance by a majority of three to one. We do not believe any other province would show the same one-sided sentiment, but Quebec's decision is an indication an early opportunity should be given throughout the country to ascertain what is the attitude of public opinion. Ontario is to hold a plebiscite in June or July. Other provinces are side-tracking the question, although everywhere in Canada there is an understanding that the peace legislation on the subject is to be decided by referendum as soon as all the soldiers have returned from overseas. Since it is a matter of public policy in the Dominion that the people are to determine for themselves in each province it should be the duty of governments to make an early announcement of when plebiscites will be held. —Colonist.

GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF LIQUOR IN ONTARIO

Toronto, April 23. — Government control of the sale of liquor in Ontario will come into effect on June 1 [illegible] Ontario license board is arranging for this. There are seven vendors in the province. Just how many stores there will be under government control may not be decided upon until it is learned what the Dominion government will do in the matter of importation of liquor into Ontario. If the law is changed to permit importation few stores may be required.

Help the Y.M.C.A. Finish its Work For Soldiers

Help the "Y" Construct the Manhood that will Re-construct Canada

The Y.M.C.A. will keep its chain of Service unbroken till the end.

ALL the world now knows that the Red Triangle of the Y.M.C.A. was the "Sign of Friendship" to thousands of your brothers, sons, nephews, cousins and neighbours' boys in the last four and a half years. Wherever the Canadian Soldiers went, the "Good old 'Y'" went too. And now it is coming back home with them!

For the support which has made possible the war work of the Y.M.C.A. we thank you. Your money has been well expended. We have rendered full account.

We ask now your continued sympathy and support for Red Triangle Service for our Soldiers during demobilization, and for Y.M.C.A. work for Canada generally during the Reconstruction period. The Annual Red Triangle campaign will be held throughout Canada May 5th to 9th, 1919. The objective is $1,100,000.

For Our Men Returning

For the soldiers and their dependents, returning from Overseas, we have provided as follows:—

1. A Red Triangle man on board every ship when it leaves Great Britain, with a full equipment of games, gramophones and records, magic lantern, literature and writing materials. Where possible, also a piano or an organ. Lectures, concerts, sing songs, instruction re Government repatriation plans, and Sunday Services.

2. Red Triangle comforts and facilities for the men on arrival at Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal, including coffee stalls, with free drinks, free eatables, cigarettes, candies, etc.

3. Red Triangle men on every troop train to provide regularly free drinks, eatables and cigarettes, organize games and sing songs, and furnish information.

4. Red Triangle free canteen service, information bureau, etc., at each of the 22 Dispersal centres in Canada.

5. Red Triangle Clubs in the principal cities of Canada in the shape of large Y.M.C.A. hostels to furnish bed and board at low rates and to be a rendezvous for soldiers.

6. Seventy-five Secretaries to superintend Red Triangle service in Military Hospitals, Camps and Barracks throughout Canada.

7. Tickets entitling soldiers to full Y.M.C.A. privileges for six months at any local Y.M.C.A. furnished.

In addition to our work for the returning soldiers, we have to maintain the Red Triangle service to the full for the soldiers in Siberia, as well as the work of special secretaries in Northern Russia, Palestine and Poland.

Canadian Y.M.C.A. Red Triangle Campaign $1,100,000 May 5th to 9th Canada-Wide Appeal

For Canada's Manhood

The Reconstruction program of the Y. M. C. A. includes the following vitally important developments:—

1. An increased service to 300,000 teen-age boys in the Dominion—the development of Canadian Standard Efficiency training; Bible Study groups; summer camps; conferences; service for High School boys, for working boys, in the towns and cities; for boys on the farm and for boys everywhere, who have lacked opportunity for mental, moral, physical or social development.

2. Inauguration of Y.M.C.A. work in the country, and the smaller towns and villages lacking Association buildings and equipment, on a plan of county organizations. This will include the establishment of Red Triangle centres for social, recreational and educational work among boys and men, in co-operation with the churches.

3. The promotion of Y.M.C.A. work among Canada's army of workers in industrial plants, both in Y.M.C.A. buildings and in the factory buildings, organizing the social spirit among the industrial workers of our cities by meetings, entertainments, games and sports.

4. The establishment of the Red Triangle in isolated districts where lumbermen, miners and other workers hold the front trenches of industry.

5. Besides these main fields of increased activity for 1919, we have to provide for enlarged work among railway men, college students and for our campaign to encourage physical and sex education. Under all our work we place the fundamental foundation of manly Christianity.

Y.W.C.A.

For the wives and children Overseas, dependent upon Canadian soldiers, and for Y.W.C.A. work in Canada generally, a sum of $175,000 from the Red Triangle Fund will be set aside for the Dominion Council of the Y.W.C.A., which is caring for the soldiers' women folk, and their little ones on the long journey, from Liverpool to Canada, and is also extending its work for Canadian girls.

For their sake also be generous when you make your contribution.

FOR the sake of our victorious soldiers and their dependents, and the happiness of their home-coming; for the sake of our future citizens, our teen-age boys; for the sake of rural life in Canada; for the sake of the social betterment of the toilers in factory and workshop; for the sake of lonely men and boys in our mines and forests; for the sake of Christian Society and Canadian manhood—we appeal to you. Give us your contribution, little or big. Be as generous as you can.

Hand your contribution to the canvasser when he calls, or if you live where it is difficult for him to call, send it by check, money order or registered letter to the National Treasurer, Red Triangle Campaign, 120 Bay Street, Toronto.

Please Note:

We are not asking for money to carry on our work Overseas, with the Army in Great Britain, France or Belgium. That work will continue at its maximum for some months, financially provided for by the liquidation of our assets Overseas, and will not terminate till the last man has sailed for home.

National Council, Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada

CAPITAL-LABOR GREAT QUESTION

"Common Sense" is the title of a weekly publication issued by Mark Harris, a broker with offices in Toronto and Buffalo. A recent issue of this house organ has a signed letter by Mr. Harris, the heading of which is "Capital and Labor." There appears to be a lot of common sense in his ideas. Here they are:

The great question of the day not only in America but also in all parts of the world, is the one between capital and labor, and while I admit that it is a knotty problem still it must be settled before we can have real industrial prosperity.

The Bolshevists are working hard to capitalize the abnormal conditions that must face a country after war has disrupted everything, but if employer and employe get together and settle the labor problem, the Bolshevists will disappear like snow on a warm spring day.

The Bolshevists of today are the same old crowd that we called anarchists when I was a boy and many readers will no doubt remember the radical movement just before the World's Fair which finally culminated in the Haymarket riot where half a dozen policemen were killed when the anarchists threw a bomb.

A few months later nine of the ringleaders were hanged in the county jail at Chicago and for many years we heard little of anarchy or anarchists.

These radicals now see an opportunity to seize power by sowing discontent among workers; therefore, they are working overtime in an effort to deceive labor.

The intelligent labor leaders recognize the danger of giving these radicals a foothold in organized labor but with thousands of thousands of men without work and many more thousands being laid off every week by thoughtless employers, they may not be able to control the situation so the sooner capital and labor have a perfect understanding the better.

Many small manufacturing corporations have solved the labor question by operating on the co-operative plan, where excess profits are divided equally between the stockholders and the employees, and sooner or later I believe this plan will be world-wide.

Personally, I believe that the question between capital and labor is about the same as the one between the man and his wife. There are probably faults on both sides, and matrimony has always been a failure unless it was entered into on a give and take basis.

I believe the labor unions would soon become a genuine power if they had the courage to effect a few reforms in their own ranks.

The present creed of the labor unions that makes all workmen equal is all wrong, and if this one rule were changed it would work wonders.

Under present conditions the contractor is forced to pay bricklayers and carpenters so much per hour; and the bricklayer who can lay 1000 bricks does not receive one penny more than his fellow worker who lays only 400 bricks, while the old experienced carpenter who has spent 15 or 20 years in the trade must be paid the same wage as the youngster who has just joined the union.

The unions argue that the contractor is not barred from paying the experienced workman a higher wage as long as he pays the full union wage to others, but as a rule the contractor makes his contract by figuring the average he must pay and if he paid a bonus to good workmen he would receive few contracts that were profitable.

Everybody with experience knows that there must be an incentive before a man is at his best; therefore if workers were put in class C, they would work hard to climb to class B, and later to class A.

The contractor would benefit because he could employ class C men for rough work and class A men for delicate jobs. q

Not long ago a friend of mine told me about some trouble he had with the musician's union. My friend is manager of a big theatre where they have a union orchestra. One day they were short a man so he called up the union to send down one cornet player.

The man sent was such a poor musician that he spoiled the show, but the manager could not "fire" him without permission.

Now, if the musicians' union had a system whereby they classed men according to ability such incidents could not happen and it is my firm belief that when labor unions recognize this fact it will do away with one of the chief grievances against organized labor.

Labor cannot live without capital any more than capital can survive without labor, so the sooner they "get together" the better.

GOOD FRIDAY

The Latin races had other names for the anniversary of the Crucifixion. The English name, as first used is said to have stood for "God's Friday." In ancient times, the Anglo-Saxons and Danes called it "Long Friday," probably on account of the fast and the long services; and such was its name in certain Ecclesastical Laws before the year 1000. But precisely when this movable feast began to be kept is not known, although it is held as certain that the Jewish Christians were first to commemorate the day, substituting that commemoration for the annual Passover. It is equally held that the first Gentile churches kept no yearly feasts or festivals.

Opinions may differ concerning religious doctrines of the Crucifixion, but the fact itself changed the face of the world. The Cross gave morality a new dynamic. No teacher has taken the place of Jesus, no one has challenged His supremacy as Man; and none but a mad German named Nietzsche has ever challenged His moral teachings as "feeble and worthy of slaves." What is the solving of those great and many human problems pressing for solution today but the application of principles enunciated and demonstrated by Jesus? The War and that multitudinous sacrifice in Europe have turned again the thoughts of men to the high things for which the Cross of Jesus stood. When the mightiest political and military forces in human history wielded so desperate a power against the Christian Ethic, conquest was on the side of "the pale Galilean." In words put into the mouth of dying Julian, the Apostate,

"Thou hast conquered, O Galilean!"

LLOYD GEORGE, SPELLBINDER

No statesman knows better than Mr. Lloyd George how to say the right word in due season. In many speeches he delivered since the beginning of the war he has proved himself a power with the democracy. When the mass needed rousing he has succeeded in rousing it, when it needed to be tranquilized he has tranquilized it. The patience of the British people has had many trials in the last five years and he has often spoken words that braced it up. The latest trial to British patience is the long drawn out work of negotiating peace. As it is impossible to take the public into his confidence at every stage of this business the Prime Minister has had to bear the brunt of much criticism that might perhaps be easily disarmed if he could give out the facts to which it relates. One idea that seems to have become rooted in the British mind is that the strong pledges made by the Prime Minister in the course of the late election campaign are not being lived up to by the British delegation to the Conference. There is a suspicion that Germany will not be required to pay, as the Prime Minister promised, up to the limit of her capacity. There is a notion that Germany is to be dealt with much more tenderly than she deserves. Particularly it seems to be thought that the President of the United States favors a less severe treatment of the enemy than the Entente Powers in Europe think either just or politic, and that he has more influence in the Conference than he is entitled to have. To the spirit of dissatisfaction thus produced in the popular mind is ascribed the government's defeat in two recent bye-elections. The situation was made more serious by the sharp tone of newspapers that were supposed to be friendly to the government. The Prime Minister deemed it advisable to leave Paris long enough to make a reassuring speech in the House. He came, he spoke, and it may be he conquered. He at all events was very positive in his declarations that there will be no weakness in the treaty and that every pre-election pledge will be redeemed. The public will not have long to wait to know the terms of the peace, but he insists that they cannot be published until they are made known to the enemy. His defence of the government's course in regard to Russia seems convincing.——Mail and Empire.

THE CANADIANS AT KINMEL

The Bishop of St. Asaph, "as one who is closely associated with and a near neighbor of Kinmel camp," writes to the "Times" on the recent outbreak there. The inevitable discomforts of a demobilization camp have been patiently borne, says the Bishop, "but 'cancelled sailings' coming week after week to war worn men yearning for home have been a serious matter. A man arrives in Kinmel, having been told that he is to sail in a few days for Canada, and having received his last pay certificate. Weeks pass and he is still there. He may have been in the fighting line, and sees those who have have had little or no fighting allowed to sail before him. Thus the fire began to smoulder. It burst into flame when in illustrated Canadian papers the men saw the acclaimed arrival of conscripts who had done no fighting. One of them said to me, 'It is a bit hard that those fellows should have the home cheers.'

"Whether the fire was fanned into flame by Russians or aliens I know not. . . I have no desire to palliate what happened at Kinmel. But I doubt whether Englishmen would have borne similar conditions without a protest. I am certain Welshmen would not. As to the behavious and character of the men in Kinmel camp I can speak with personal knowledge. Those in charge of the canteens which I know well speak in high praise of the conduct of the men. . . .The ladies resident in the neighborhood opened of their own accord a canteen for Canadians who crowd into our village-city on Sundays. Amid the hundreds that have visited that canteen there has not been one single instance of rudeness or roughness. We in this countryside are indeed proud to have amongst us those men who have fought so gallantly for the Motherland.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

GOVERNMENT TO SETTLE CLAIMS

Following action taken by the legislature at its recent session authorizing payment by the Province of some $56,000, the amount of the claims for damages approved by Mr. Justice Gregory who as commissioner appointed by the former government investigated claims made by those who sustained damage during the 1913 riots in the coal fields of the Island, the government is taking steps to settle the claims according to the findings of the commissioner.

Under the act passed at the session authorizing payment it is provided that those whose claims were approved must establish their identity and status before receiving payment. To this end it is proposed to appoint some official of the attorney-general's department to handle all claims and ascertain that the proper parties are paid the amounts.

Already a number of applications for payment have been received and these will be attended to at once.

RETURNED SOLDIERS FOR FARMS

Many soldiers desiring to farm for themselves find it necessary to work on a farm for a few months to renew experience, to get new experience or to learn a district. They are to be dealt with by the farmer as farm help and paid according to their experience and ability by the farmer. Can you take one or more? If so kindly drop a line to: Lieut. R. L. Ramsay, Soldiers Settlement Board, Birks Building, Vancouver, P.C.

Give full particulars of the class of man you want, married or single, experienced or otherwise, what you can pay, and state the class of farming you are following; also state length of time you can hold position open. You will help the soldiers and the reconstruction problem if you do this.

KEEP ELECTRIC LAMPS CLEAN

Dirty electric lamps are inefficient and wasteful. A recent investigation in a large establishment disclosed interesting figures in the extent of this waste. A group of lamps with a week's accumulation of dirt showed an average absorption of light of 16 per cent, some of them running as high as nearly 20 per cent. Another group which has been used for three weeks had an average absorption of 22 per cent with a maximum of over 26 per cent. Figuring on this basis, 16 per cent more lamps at the end of one week, or 22 per cent at the end of three weeks, would be required to obtain the same illumination that would have been obtained if the lamps were kept clean. This, of course, meant a corresponding increase in the electric light bill.

FOSSILS FROM THE CANADIAN ROCKIES

A later report on the explorations and field work of the Smithsonian Institution in 1917, says the Scientific American, records a remarkable collection of fossils made by Secretary and Mrs. Walcott at the now well-known "Burgess Pass fossil quarry," near Field, British Columbia, discovered in 1910. In the course of fifty days' work the party took out a section of the quarry about 180 feet square, thus practically exhausting a site that has yielded the finest and largest series of Middle Cambrian fossils yet discovered and the finest and largest invertebrate fossils yet found in any formation. More than a ton and a half of specimens were trimmed out at the quarry, wrapped in bundles, carried by pack horses to camp and thence to the railway station at Field whence they were shipped to Washington. Large blocks of hard shale were first blasted loose, then carefully split with chisel and hammer to expose any fossil remains between the laminae. The shale has preserved for some twenty million years, animals that were as soft and non-resistant as jellyfish, worms, crabs, etc., nothwithstanding all the vicissitudes these rocks have since undergone from the time they were simply hardened mud. They have been subjected to much pressure and profound chemical change, but the fossils remain perfect.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says: Think of the people there are in this world who will not injure you if you do not injure them. Think of your wonderful immunity from harm if you mind your own business. Don't require much will power either. And then go on, carry on the thought a little further. Think of the amount of good that people are ready to do you if you meet them half way. Hardly a man or woman in the world but will do you a good turn if you approach them the right way. Wake up, live, be happy. Let us all be happy together. All jjoin hands and circle to the left, and on with the dance. Let joy be unconfined.

Miss E. B. Patterson, of the Kootenay Orchards school, is visiting with Mrs. Fred Roo, at Roosville, this week.

Miss Jennie Nichols of the Roosville school, is visiting her parents at Creston this week.

Tom Duncan, ex-provincial policeman and one of the best known men in the Pass, opened up the Columbia Mansions this week, "The Travelers Rest." It was expected that the C.P.R. would build a large hotel here but with the competition they would have with Mr. Duncan they have decided to wait a while.

All this talk about single blessedness, says Jim Thistlebeak, is like the squawk of a Chinese fiddle that has but one string, simply hideous. It takes a woman to make a man even clever. When you see a man playing a big part on the stage of life you'll find a woman just out of sight in the wings. Eighty-two per cent of the idle people in the world are unmarried. Marriage is the nearest approach to happiness that life offers. Married joy is the one fair flower that survived the frost of Eden. Get married.

Dr. Garner was in Elko this week looking for a suitable site for a convalescent hospital. Elko is a great place for convalescency.

Sunburned to a nice baby pink but smiling his best I'm glad to be back in Elko smile, Jack Graham, the well known rancher and cattle man, arrived from sunny Alberta on Sunday.

One of the most charmingly arranged affairs of last week was the luncheon and whist drive given by Mrs. Morgan Edmunds, Riverside Drive, to the young people of the town. Yellow Bells and Daisies were combined in the table decorations and the place cards were hand painted sketches of deer heads. Mrs. Ray G. Hirtz won the ladies prize, Mrs. W. L. Foisy the booby prize. C. Foisy won the gents prize, and Ray G. Hirtz the booby prize.

The Easter Monday dance held in the Hirtz opera house, Elko, was well attended and a social success. Prof. Ferguson's Roosville Jazz Band supplied the music.

Not wishing to start anything unpleasant, but when is the Honest John Oliver government going to call the turn on the company that hold the Elko canyon water power to start in and do something. What's our representative in parliament doing about it?

AN INSTRUCTIVE AND INTERESTING LECTURE

Under the auspices of the Local Branch of the Navy League, Lieut. H. F. Helmsing, R.N.V.R., delivered a very instructive and interesting lecture in the Isis theatre on Wednesday evening, relative to the marvellous naval feat of successfully blocking Ostend and Zebrugge. A very satisfactory attendance was recorded upon this occasion and all were highly delighted with the lecture, which was made more vivid by illustrative slides. Lieut. Helmsing reviewed this event in detail right from the beginning through to the triumphant return of the heroes after successfully performing a heretofore considered impossible feat. He told of the calling for volunteers for an extremely hazardous task. More than double the number required responded and they underwent training for nearly six months in order to qualify.

After the lecture a social and dance was held in the Club rooms of the G.W.V.A.

Owing to the lack of space we are compelled to hold over until next week the report of attendance at the Fernie Public schools.

ADJUSTMENT OF EIGHT HOUR DAY QUESTION

Director Armstrong Issues Order Putting Alberta and British Columbia Mines on Equal Basis

The negotiations which have recently been under way between the Operators and the representatives of the men in District 18 in connection with the eight-hour law for coal mines which became effective in British Columbia on April 1st, have been concluded by the issue of an Order by Director Armstrong putting all mines in District 18 on the same basis of hours and rates of pay, the former being reduced to eight hours in all classes of employment in and about the mines, and the latter being maintained at the basis contained in the present agreement, with the exception of a few 10 and 11 hour rates which are reduced to a 9-hour equivalent for eight hours work.

Under the agreement covering work in District 18, practically ninety per cent of the rates for outside work are nine-hour rates, the balance being 10 and 11 hour rates, with, in the case of some of the latter, alternative rates for 8 and 9 hours work in the same employment. When the new law came into effect, British Columbia companies found themselves in the difficult position of having their working hours reduced to eight for all employees, while the competitive field of Alberta retained their old rates and working conditions.

Mr. Armstrong met the Operators and the representatives of the men in Calgary recently, where the men advanced the argument that the rates of pay should be maintained as provided in the agreement, notwithstanding the reduction in working hours. After a full discussion with the Western Coal Operators Association, Mr. Armstrong's order, which the Association accepted, followed, and in effect provided that:

1. The eight hour rates in the present agreement shall remain as at present.

2. The present rates covering a nine-hour work-day shall apply to an eight-hour work-day.

3. That the present rates for ten and eleven hours work shall be adjusted so as to allow nine-hours pay for eight hours work.

The effect of this order is best shown by the following representative rates:

	Prior to New Order.				Under New Order
	Hours.	Rate.	War Bonus.	Total.	Hours	Rate	War Bonus	Total
Gen. Outside Labor	9	35.1c	10.2c	45.3c	8	39.5c	11.5c	51.0c
Teamsters	9	40.7c	10.2c	50.9c	8	45.7c	11.5c	57.2c
Machinists (From	9	46.6c	10.2c	56.8c	8	52.4c	11.5c	63.9c
To)	9	52.4c	10.2c	62.6c	8	59.0c	11.5c	70.5c
Carpenters	9	52.4c	10.2c	62.6c	8	59.0c	11.5c	70.5c
Tipple Oilers	10	36.6c	10.2c	46.8c	8	41.1c	11.5c	52.6c
Fanmen	11	33.3c	10.2c	43.5c	8	37.5c	11.5c	49.0c

This order accomplishes several things. It has given the workman an approximate increase of 12½ per cent; it has given him the same conditions in Alberta as in British Columbia, and it has put the mines of the two provinces on the same competitive footing as they were prior to the new eight hour law in British Columbia. This adjustment should be satisfactory to all concerned.

BANQUET WAS A SUCCESS

On Tuesday evening the United Church gave a banquet to the returned men of Fernie and district. Upwards of 200 were present, including the soldiers, soldiers' wives and invited guests. The interest and enthusiasm of the Ladies Aid was manifested both in the efficiency of their catering and the art displayed in decorations. The musical program, contributed by Mrs. Suddaby, Miss Hogan, Miss Bell and Mr. Watson, was much appreciated and the audience only refrained from the privilege of encore at the request of the chairman.

A silent toast to the men who sleep immediately followed the toast to the King. This toast was put in printed form in the program and consisted of Lt. Col. McRae's poem "The Flanders' Fields," with the list of those from this district who have fallen, on the opposite page. On the open page between the two was a hand painted poppy, as though enshrining the association.

The response of W. R. Wilson to "The Empire" was clear cut, terse and very forceful. He recounted the fact that the flag was the combination of the ensign of three saints and the unity the flag symbolized was maintained and must be maintained by the same noble and pure devotion that had been shown at the beginning.

Mr. Bonnallie in the toast to "The Dominion" not only recounted the salient points of our history, but forcefully emphasized the essential unity of the nation.

A fund of wit and humor was displayed by A. I. Fisher as he replied to "The Province." The relationship of our law system to England and a comparison with the American system revealed much of interest, especially on the legal phase of a government's term of office and the rights of woman in divorce.

Mayor Uphill in responding to "Our City" showed both pride in and hope for the future of the city. He also urged the right of the returned man to have an opportunity to settle in or around Fernie.

The toast to "Our Guests" the Army and Navy had several names associated with it. Lt. Helmsing in speaking for the Navy coupled with it the Merchant Marine and emphasized not only the fact that they had played a fine part in carrying provisions and troops and had firmly refused to strike while the war was on but did it in face of the fact of no extra consideration, as their families received neither pension nor allowances in case of loss.

Major Moffatt on behalf of returned men spoke of their varied experiences and their broader interests and purposes.

Mr. Claridge on behalf of the men yet overseas spoke of their determination to be felt in the great national issues.

Mr. Bryant on behalf of other branches mentioned that there were wheels within wheels and the disproportion between the fighting soldier and the mechanic miles behind the line, and like Mr. Claridge emphasized the fact that there would be no toleration of the injustice of Bolshevism.

B. Wilson, as representing the Air Force, told of the development of a unified system, and of the preparations to bomb Berlin when the armistice was signed.

Mr. Miard, who, as a French reservist returned from here and fought at the beginning of the war and was for a long period a prisoner in Germany, replied to "Our Allies." The touch of his native accent only gave color and effectiveness to an eloquent address. The unity of the Allies was not only revealed but realized in the mutual appreciation of the deeds of each.

Mr. Brand, replying on behalf of America, spoke of the harmony of the nations in this hemisphere and attributed it in no small degree to the Monroe Doctrine.

The toast to the Ladies, proposed by A. Muirhed, showed him an appreciative admirer both of their beauty and remarkable achievements during the war. In the absense of P. Lundy the chairman replied.

The toast to "The Church" was proposed by D. McKenzie. He spoke of its origin, its problems through the centuries and its effectiveness in great crises.

The chairman, Rev. Batzold, in the dual capacity of both minister and returned soldier, found some difficulty in replying.

Geo. Thomson returned on Wednesday from Fergus, Ont., where he attended the funeral of his father.

THE TYPOS AND CHRISTOPHERS

The following article, taken from the Calgary Herald, is from Andy Davison, at one time Linotype operator on the Fernie Free Press:

Editor the Herald:

In the news columns of your issue of April 28 there was printed an article headed "Typos Flayed by President of Miners' Union" in which appears certain statements, made by one P. M. Christophers, derogatory to Calgary Typographical Union, which I think requires a reply. It is quite true that 142 members of the printers' organization voted against the One Big Union proposal and in doing so the typos have nothing to be ashamed of. Instead, in my opinion, they have exhibited a brand of intelligence that no one ever accused "Comrade" Christophers of possessing.

For the information of the president of District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America, I herewith submit the following facts regarding the International Typographical Union. Realizing that the job of keeping his polyglot aggregation in hand must take up considerable of his valuable time, I trust that he will find sufficien leisure to at least endeavor to let a small portion of this information soak into his highly developed cranium, even if it comes from a member of an organization the sum total of whose intelligence, he claims "could be screwed into the leg of a mosquito."

In the first place, I must confess that the International Typographical Union cannot boast of the same number of unsuccessfully conducted strikes as the union of which Christophers is one of the leaders. Furthermore, we are a solvent institution. It is our proud claim that we are one of the richest branches of the labor movement. Our funds are handled judiciously and in a businesslike manner. We do not boast of a dozen or so vice-presidents, district representatives and goodness only knows what other kind of representatives, who pull down real money on a featherbed job. No doubt this is an exhibition of crass ignorance on our part when judged by Christophers' standard and places us in a position of being aristocrats because we possess some real coin in our treasury. Our union has an old age pension scheme, whereby those of our members who are no longer able to follow the "art preservative of arts" are not thrown out on the streets but have a weekly income for the rest of their lives, which they built up by paying a nominal sum each month. This, no doubt, is another exhibition of our "mosquito-like" intelligence. And still more. We have a system of mortuary benefits whereby the dependents of those of our members who have finished their labors on this earth are paid a certain sum dependent entirely upon the length of time the deceased printer belonged to the craft. Once again it must be confessed that this is something of which we are proud of and something which has helped more than one sorrowing widow, mother or daughter over the rough spots. And to cap it all, we boast of another feature that the O.B.U. will never likely possess, that is a home for our aged and infirm members, located within the shadows of Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Owing to the nature of our calling many of our members have contracted the terrible white plague. Were we so busy trying to bolster up uncalled for strikes that we hadn't time to look after these members, but instead let them shift for themselves when the hand of this terrible scourge had fallen upon them? Not on your life. We had amongst our number men who might almost line up to that grade of intelligence the president of District 18 kids himself he possesses. They secured a large tract of land at Colorado Springs some years ago. Today we have a home there second to none on the North American continent. Over $1,000,000 has been unselfishly contributed and spent by our membership in making this an institution to be proud of. Tuberculosis is being combatted and in hundreds of cases, cured by experts, whose opinions and discoveries are quoted by the leading medical journals throughout the English-speaking world. Any printer sent to that institution is permitted to remain there until he is completely cured.

And during his stay not one cent of expense is incurred by him. Even his union dues are paid. Can Mr. Christophers, and the super-intelli-

FOOTBALL NEWS

Fernie C.S.E.T. football team travelled to Michel on Thursday night to play their first league game and got beaten 8—0. The score was no criterion of the play as the Fernie boys should have held Michel down to 3—0. Ogg in goal made some splendid saves. Jimmy Robson played a good game but did not get many chances. The boys ought to give a better account of themselves next week.

The Teamsters were also defeated at Coal Creek 2—0, the game being called on account of darkness. The G.W.V.A. vs. F.A.A.C. game was called off on account of rain. Three schedule games will be played next week.

ROUX CASE STILL GOING

Arising out of criminal proceedings under the Prohibition Act and Order-in-council prohibiting the transportation of intoxicating liquor within a prohibited area in the matter of Rex vs. Maurice Roux and the appeal of Maurice Roux vs. Ronald Hewat, stipendiary magistrate, which were before the courts in January last, further proceedings have just been instituted against Roux by W. H. Gates, collector of customs at this port. On Wednesday of this week at the instance of the Collector of Customs the authorities seized an automobile belonging to Roux, which it is alleged was used in transporting liquor last fall, upon which charge Roux was convicted and fined $200. This conviction was sustained upon appeal taken by Roux, who, however, was permitted to obtain re-possession of the liquor which had been obtained by the authorities by means of an invalid search warrant. The authority for seizure of the automobile is Section 196 of the Customs Act, whereby any vehicle, etc., used for the purpose of transporting goods in contravention of the Customs regulations may be seized and confiscated. The car was released to Roux upon payment of $450 but further proceedings have been entered in the Supreme Court by Collector Gates against Roux, when a writ was issued claiming $4500 for penalties and forfeitures under sections 196 and 219 of the Customs Act, together with costs of the action. This case will be heard at the Assizes in June.

SPEEDY TRIAL ON MAY 14

Roy J. Reno elected for speedy trial on Thursday before His Honor Judge Thompson on two charges of retaining in his possession stolen animals knowing the same to have been stolen. These charges were laid at the instance of Herbert Henry Jenkins, of Twin Butte, Alta., who has identified eleven head of cattle as being his property, which were stolen from him last summer, while Robert Cooper, of Pincher Creek, Alta., has positively identified one saddle horse as one which was stolen from his range last fall. The trial has been set for May 14, bail being fixed at $4000. Reno, the accused, from the evidence adduced on preliminary hearing, is a half brother of Harry O'Keefe, who was killed a short time ago in a railway accident at Jaffray, and the animals in question, together with others on the range, are the property of the O'Keefe estate, it is alleged. This entire herd was brought into Canada some time last fall from the vicinity of Rexford, Montana, but never entered or cleared through the Customs, and from the evidence given by sub-collector of Customs J. A. McDonald, of Newgate, B.C., in endeavoring to ascertain the origin by the brands in order to learn whether they were Canadian or American cattle, proper identification became possible.

OUR SUBSIDY TO BOLSHEVISM

(By Frederick F. Moore, late Captain of Intelligence, A.F.E., in Siberia)

In Siberia the people of the United States are helping to make Bolshevism a success.

Over the Trans-Siberian railroad, Red Cross trains carry food to people who will not take their crops out of the fields; carry medicines to people who looted and destroyed drug stores, carry raiment to those who have burned clothing stores and murdered the merchants; carry blankets to the shivering incendaries who put the torch to great warehouses full of wool.

So the people of Siberia find themselves rewarded for their destruction by being presented with things that are better than the things which they destroyed. They no longer have to work; they are freed of all responsibility of providing for themselves. Consequently they feel that they are right; they feel sure that they have proven the theory. Can anyone blame them if they regard Bolshevism as a good thing?

There are people who will tell you that food is a sure cure for Bolshevism. Are not these our political Dr. Munyons, advertising a patent medicine cure for one part of the world which is not effective in another? For if food is a cure for Bolshevism, why are 98 per cent of the people in Siberia Bolshevik? They have plenty of real food, billions of Bolshevik money and nothing to do but frolic, eat and drink. And while they are warmed by our clothing gifts, cured by our medicines and partly fed through our generosity, they ask why the "capitalistic government of the United States does not take its soldiers home and leave Siberia alone.

But are they sincere when they deplore our "interference"?

For example: the workers in a certain sugar factory decided that the capitalists who owned the sugar factory should be shot, because the workers resented having to do a day's work for a day's wages. So they killed the capitalist and burned the factory. Now they did not have to work. But—they also had no sugar.

The people of the United Sates hear of that sugar shortage. So a ship is loaded with American sugar, sent to Vladivostock, and from there a train moves the sugar up to the town where the factory was destroyed, and presents is to a sugar-hungry population. Then while this population loafs, we send an army in to guard it, and we follow the army with publicity men and other agents who start propaganda against burning factories!

In return they begin a propaganda for Bolshevism. They tell our soldiers that the United States is a nation of capitalists (many of them have been to the United States and claim to know what they are talking about) and boast that they have devised the better form of government. Why better? Because the people of the United States have to buy their clothing, food and medicines, they have to work and endure the oppression of the capitalists—while the Siberians have gotten rid of their masters and of work; they have plenty and they are free.

With such a subsidy as the United States is granting Siberia (and Bolshevism!), could not any asinine theory of government marvelously succeed? Is the generous United States going to continue to give aid in this case? And if this aid is cut off, and the Siberians are invited to go to work or starve, what then? Will they not have a grievance against us for allowing them to starve? Generosity has its Nemesis.

The observer in Siberia cannot help but ask himself this question: If Bolshevism is a splendid idea which will work, why not keep aloof and alow it to work? If it is such a wonderful thing, let Siberia have it—in its pure and unadulterated form as it was before the Allies stepped in. Why not let the ideal develop to the full glory of its promised fruition?

At any rate, if Bolshevism is the great ideal which its adherents claim that it is, then surely it does not need the help of the "capitalistic" United States; it ought to be able to stand upon its own feet.

If we check Bolshevism in Siberia before it comes to flower, its followers will always say that it would have succeeded if the Allies had let it alone. And Siberia offers wonderful proving ground for the working model to prove its efficiency. After we see it operate in Asia, and produce the wonderful results promised, then we can bring it home and start the machine here. But for the present let us not put a roof over it, supply fuel to its engine—and find ourselves buried in the wreckage if it blows up.

The theory of Bolshevism, as I saw it working in Siberia, appears to be based upon the idea that all men have brains of the same standard, that all men will do the same standard amount of work, and that each will spend his money for the same useful things that the other man will spend his for. It also presupposes that all men should have the same standards as to food, clothing, shelter, environment and pleasure, and that all should share equally in whatever good fortune comes, no matter who is responsible for that good fortune. With the single exception of manual labor, no bona fide Bolshevist believes one man should profit over any other through that unique brain power we call genius. The true Bolshevist would put an Edison on the same footing as the man with the hoe.

To be specific: You, sir, have no business to have money in your purse while another man has none. You worked while he drank vodka? True enough, comrade, but you had the same right to drink vodka as he — instead of treacherously using your time and wits to gain a financial advantage over an equal.

The Siberian peasant is a literal-minded chap. When the Bolshevist says equality to him, he believes that the former means what he says. You gained your financial advantage; you have persisted in getting ahead of him. Bolshevism bring the two of you back to equality—with a club. The peasant compels you to divide your money; and as a lesson against attempting again to outwit your comrade, he takes both your share and his!

You hold up your hands in horror at this scheme of loot and murder. The Bolshevist holds up his hands in horror at the thought that you have property which you refuse to share with him. To him, robbery is not a crime if it is committed against that great criminal who dares to say that property is something private.

We granted to the people of Russia the right to revolt. In particular we sympathized with the Siberians, because it was in Siberia that the Russian revolutionists suffered for daring to think about government. But we should not confuse Bolshevism with the revolutionary movement. Bolshevism is the ideal of the lawless—the mob, of torch and dagger. (And in Siberia this mob is a big one because it was recruited from the entire criminal class of the whole empire.) We must not overlook the fact that Breshkovsky, a true revolutionist, had, in Siberia, to disguise herself and flee, to save her life, from the Bolsheviki!

Why does the Bolshevist believe that private property is wrong? Because rural Russia is operated on the community idea—the peasants living in little groups and farming the surrounding country. We, in America, are communistic, but only in the matter of political ideas. I found that the Siberian communists think of government as the ownership of material things. Consequently, to take over government means to take over all property. As government was in the hands of the property owning class, to take the government necessitated the desruction of the property- owner. (Naturally, during the upheaval, some property was destroyed; but if all the property belongs to the Bolsheviki, then the Bolsheviki are destroying only what is theirs!)

When the Siberian peasant speaks of "capitalism" he is thinking of something entirely different from what the American associates with the word. There is hardly any capital in Siberia; that is, money invested in public utilities, factories, systems of distribution or machinery. Siberian capital consists of a wilderness of rich plains, and the land-owner is the "capitalist." Therefore to destroy capitalism the Bolsheviki have only to take the land. Having gone so far they know how to proceed, for land is indestructible and its working is simple. But what happens when the property involved is a factory? The answer is non-production, for a factory is a human institution, and its working is not simple. Unlike land, a factory, to be successful, calls for organization and cash.

In the mouths of the Bolsheviki whom I met in Siberia, the one hated word was "capital." They felt their troubles would be over when they destroyed capital. But the fact of the matter is, the one thing they need is capital—more capital than they have ever had. Their mines, fields, forests, rivers and railroads need financing; their future government, whatever it may be, must have gold behind it. And these earnest Bolsheviki are laboring under false reasoning, lack of knowledge, and that inordinate thirst for class revenge. They will suffer through a misuse of terms. For what the people of Siberia are really fighting is not capitalism; it is exploitation.

But the Bolsheviki do not distinguish between capital that helps and the capital that exploits. When you hand a Siberian peasant a new blanket from a "capitalistic" American factory, capital is really helping him. He thinks that he is being patted on the back by capital—being tempted to abandon his scheme by which he has conquered capital. And he takes the gift while he suspects the giver.

The question may be asked, then, shall we desert Russia, our ally? On the other hand, have we not rushed in before we were welcome? Is it not a fact that more lives would be saved if we had allowed them to come to their senses, unaided and unadvised? Because, having now their secret enmity, we also know that they are simply waiting, before they go on with their plans, until the Allies withdraw their troops. And they can afford to be more patient than we. For they are home. So what have we gained by interference? Sooner or later they will carry their program through. They tell us so.

Bolshevism is a disease, and in Siberia it will run its course.

But suppose that, through our army the United States becomes infected? After disaster has visited us, to what rich and powerful nation can we turn for aid? Is the United States ready to dispense with everybody who does not work with his hands? Or do we wish to preserve the type of men and women who have made possible the wonders of our civilization? Take the simple matter of sanitation (what I saw of sanitation in Siberia was most primitive), do we in the United States wish to dispense with that? Where Bolshevism operates without the brake of Allied guns, a clean face, a white collar and soft hands send a man—or woman—to the firing squad. Do we wish a government without soap?

Which brings us back to the question of equality; cleanliness is the badge of the hated upper class. And I repeat that we are making a mistake in regarding Bolshevism as a political ideal. We are showing it a respect that it does not deserve. It is rape, murder, and loot in the mask of a new form of government. In Siberia the bandit has become a politician. Curiously enough, he findsthat he has a standing which is attracting the attention of the whole world. This is because he glorifies his crimes by marrying them to a theory. But that theory is not of government: it makes for the rule of tooth and claw. Take away the imported civilization of the Allies, and Siberia would revert to the Stone Age.

Revenge triumphant! Exiles and the descendants of exiles yearned for it for decades. For her own purposes, Germany capitalized and organized this deep-running desire to get even. With it she hoped to shatter an empire which could not be defeated with gas and shell. In Siberia, her captured soldiers are busily carrying on her propaganda.

And in Siberia she is achieving a wonderful result. In that same land where men and women were flogged, imprisoned and executed for thinking, she has succeeded in inducing the survivors to turn upon other thinkers and kill them. Today it is a greater crime to think in Siberia than ever it was in the time of the Czars. As a matter of fact, you do not have to think; to be in danger, you only have to look as if you might be able to think!

Terrible as Bolshevism is, there is something grotesque and childish about it. In fact, the Bolsheviki are so many bad children, egged on by keen brains who sit in a safe background. Is not that exploitation, in a new way? The childish imagination of these people having been appealed to, that imagination has run amok. The result is a spree of destruction. The people of Russia, like so many wicked children, having been abused, have assassinated their own elders and burned their own homes. And resent the interference of the neighbors.

And these neighbors? They are engaged in an argument—and among them are some who actually believe that these misguided, mutinous children are right!—Leslie's Weekly.

WON'T BE GENERAL ELECTION IN B.C.

Vancouver, April 23.—There will be no immediate general election in British Columbia. Premier Oliver this afternoon announced that he "absolutely declined" to meet the request of the returned soldiers that the government resign and go to the people forthwith. The premier declared that he did not believe that the committee which met the government in connection with a demand for an election represented the rank and file of the returned men.

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE IS A SKIN WHITENER

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.

Sparkling freshness to your bathroom! Bathtub "smooth-polished" with velvety Gold Dust—no scratching or marring. Nickel fittings kept bright with Gold Dust's soapy water. Mirrors always crystal-clear so that you may "look your best."

But for these Gold Dust results be sure it is Gold Dust you get.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to

SERIAL SETS NEW FAST PACE

Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, and Cyrus Townsend Brady, in writing "The Woman in the Web," Vitagraph's new serial, the first episode of which will be seen in the Orpheum Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, May 5th and 6th, strived to get into it all the thrills which made famous "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman," but to make the big picture "different." In this they appear to have been remarkably successful, especially as to location and atmosphere.

The serial is fortunate in its stars, Miss Hedda Nova, a beautiful young Russian actress who won her laurels in "The Bar Sinister" and "The Sign Invisible," and in J. Frank Glendon, with nine years of success on the speaking stage, and who on coming to the screens won instant recognition by his work in O. Henry pictures and in Blue Ribbon Features. Both are stars of action, all-round athletes who do not count personal risk to gain realism in the filming of a scene.

The story is that of a young girl bound by royal blood to marry a noble suitor, but who loves a young American. She undertakes a weighty mission and in carrying it out is fought at every turn by powerful enemies whose influence stretches around the globe and against whom she is protected only by her American sweetheart.

300,000,000 WAR SAVINGS CERTIFICATES SOLD IN BRITAIN

In the United Kingdom the War Savings campaign has been a great success and will be continued on a peace basis. The third anniversary of the inauguration of the movement was on March 1made the occasion for the issuing by the National War Savings Committee of a statement setting forth the work done since the latter end of February, 1916, as well as announcing plans for the future. From the statement the following has been reproduced:

"During almost exactly three years 300,000,000 War Savings Certificates have been sold. During the first two years to March 1, 1918, 158,803,447 certificates were sold, or an average of 79,401,723. During the third year to March 1, 1919, 142,353,201 were sold, being nearly doubble the average for the previous two years. This progress of the sales is the more remarkable when it is realized that no individual may hold more than 500 certificates, and, consequently the number of purchasers is being steadily reduced.

"It is, however, important, that it should be understood that the raising of money for the state was not the main object for which the National War Savings Committee was established. The primary object of the Committee was to secure for the nation all the benefits which would accrue from the successful establishment of a safe, convenient and profitable method of investment for people of small means, rather than the more narrow object of merely raising money to pay for the war. It is in this direction that lies the important social aspect of the movement, a movement which promises to become of permanent benefit to the wage-earner.

"There is no doubt that there may be today some tendency to consider that saving no longer of the same paramount necessity as it was during the war, but this is by no means the universal rule. During the three months succeeding the armistice, subscriptions were actually larger than they were during the three months previous to the armistice. It would certainly appear that the system of savings clubs, started during the war has come to stay, and that it will take its rank with such fundamentally British institutions as the Post Office Savings Bank, the Trustee Savings Bank, the building societies, and the friendly societies. One of the satisfactory features of the position is that there is no conflicting rivalry between these bodies and the War Savings Associations. These older institutions have their representatives on nearly all the local "Savings Committees," and it is fully realized that all thrift agencies stand to benefit by the intensification of the spirit of thrift."

THE ADVENT OF COLLOIDAL FUEL

What are we going to do when our oil wells run dry? And dry they certainly will run in the near future unless our geologists are woefully in error. We have used up 40 per cent of our native supply of petroleum, so says Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior. Between 1859, when petroleum was first discovered in Pennsylvania, and 1917 we drew from our underground reservoirs a total of 42 barrels per capita, based upon a present population of 100,000,000. To-day, there are left in reserve for each of us a mere matter of 70 barrels. The prospect is disquieting, because we are draining Nature's supply with increasing volume each added twelve-month.

For our newly-created merchant marine we shall need about 32,000,000 barrels of fuel in the ensuing year, and our fighting fleet will consume in that time a round 4,000,000 barrels. These are merely straws which shows the trend of the current of consumption. Quite half of all the petroleum mined in this country is used for steam raising, and there are parts of the United States today wholly dependent upon liquid fuel. Crude oil and petroleum derivatives are indispensable to our industrial progress and to our many other manifold activities.

The scientists are no less insistent that anthracite coal is a luxury and that Nature has made it distressingly plain that this fuel will cease to be available here in the next forty or fifty years. Be this as it may, it is indutiably true that there are many millions of tons of anthracite screenings, technically known as culm and "rice," of which we make precious little use; and, similarly, there are enormous quantities of waste from our bituminous coal fields which would render excellent service in steam raising if made fit for firing in the average furnace. Finally, there are by-products of the oil refineries which are susceptible of furnishing motive energy. How, then, can we utilize these various industrial by-products and turn them into commodities of prime importance — thus, possibly, staving off the day of a liquid fuel shortage?

Happily for us, the Submarine Defense Associaion, largely through the investigations of its engineer, Mr. Lindon W. Bates, has answered this momentuous question. Thanks to their combined efforts during the war to produce a smokeless fuel and to safeguard our Allies from a shortage of vitally necessary fuel oil, they have evolved a combination of oil and pulverized coal, etc., which is termed colloidal fuel. This source of energy can be fed to the burners of any existing oil-burning equipment, and does not call for change of installation of any sort. In just that measure in which powdered coal, tar, ground coke, etc., is added to each gallon of liquid fuel a like quantity of oil is dispensed with, and yet the total value in heat units is actually augmented.

To make this practicable many months of laboratory research were required to discover a medium which would neutralize gravitation and keep the introduced heavier particles of carbon from settling and calling for some special apparatus to stir up the mixture just before drawing it from tanks for burning. The new agent is a paste-like greasy substance, called "fixateur." Twenty pounds of this stuff in a ton of liquid fuel keeps the powdered coal and tar suspended in the oil and evenly distributed throughout its volume.

As a result of this seeming annulment of one of Nature's laws, it is possible to combine a stable liquid fuel 45 per cent of oil, 20 per cent of tar, and 35 per cen of pulverized coal thereby replacing over one-half of the oil, securing equal or greater heat values per barrel and saving considerable in cost. In fact, grades of colloidal fuel can be prepared which, upon a given tank capacity, will give warships or merchant vessels a 20 per cent increased steaming radius over that possible with the usual fuel oils. All the fuel pastes are mobile to sustained and easily applied pressure and may be thus pumped, fed and atomized in the combustion chamber.

This achievement makes it practicable to commingle the waste products of the mine, the gas-house, and the oil refinery and thus cut down to a large extent the presen consumption of fuel oil. As one result of our effort to neutralize the grim activities of Teuton U-boats we now have offered us a potential economic boon of enormous value.—Scientific American.

O.B.U. MISSED OPPORTUNITY

Vancouver Trades and Labor Council refuses to send any voluntary witnesses to give evidence before the industrial commission of the Dominion government. The One Big Union advocates of the coast city are missing a glorious opportunity. Just think of all the propaganda they might work in for their cause if they would only take the stand at the commission sessions.—Calgary Herald.

He was married in Huntsville and the first year his wife presented him with a beautiful baby boy. He then moved to Fort William and Port Arthur, the "Twin Cities," and she presented him with twin boys; then he moved to Three Rivers, and there came into their lives triplets, three sweet little girls, but, he says he'll be dog-goned if he'll take a job at the Thousand Islands.
