THE TYPOS AND CHRISTOPHERS

gent organization of which he is president boast of such an institution? Just let him give us a little information on this phase of his union's endeavors to better the conditions of their terribly down-trodden membership. If Mr. Christophers would like figures I can gladly furnish him with a complete statement of the monies our organization has expended in the features above mentioned. Of course I must warn him that since 1896 the amount paid out by the I. T. U. in strike benefits has been remarkably small, and when compared with the sums paid by his own organization, or rather what should have been paid, certainly make us look like the humble mosquito.

Now ,in view of the benefits accruing to western Canadian printers who stay with their International body, would this near-Solomon of the labor movement kindly tell me what the One Big Union has to offer the printers? He is a believer in collective bargaining, I presume. Now the Calgary printers as a body are prepared to join any organization that is going to improve their condition, but they are like the man from Missouri, they have got to be shown. Can the One Big Union guarantee them an old age pension scheme similar to the one they now enjoy? Will they be able to put in force a system of mortuary benefits the equal of those of the I. T. U.? Can they guarantee that a home will be established at least almost efficient and as well conducted as our splendid one? Can he also assure us that our union cards will be worth as much as those we now possess? If he can there is a possibility that western Canadian printers might talk business with him. But the rub is, he has nothing but a beautiful phantom-like proposition to submit for our approval, nicely camouflaged by excerpts from the doctrines of some German or Austrian laborite. The printers of Calgary have too much to lose to try any such experiment. It may be all right for some irresponsible organization that has never made a success of any venture to grasp at something new ,even if it is a gamble, whether or not it is a good thing. But to an institution that has everything to lose and nothing to gain it is a different proposition. The splendid position of the I. T. U. today has been secured by the concerted action of the membership, without assistance from any other organization. We are strong enough to stand on our own feet. No aggregation of professional labor agitators are going to stampede us. We will be doing business at the same old stand when they and their "One Big Lemon" have been consigned to the labor boneyard, leading a bunch of sadder but wiser experimentalists.

There are many other points I could touch on, Mr. Editor, but lack of space forbids. I might remark, however, that Calgary Typographical Union is 100 per cent British and that English is the mother tongue of every one of our members. This again may account for our terrible lack of ordinary intelligence but we are proud of it just the same. I could also fill much space narrating our splendid war record. But what is the use. It would only show that we were the willing tools of scheming capitalists and again demonstrate just how ignorant and simple we are —maybe.

I think the jewel of the whole tirade of Chritophers' is the statement that "these jokers go ahead printing all sorts of rubbish hitting unionism and have not the courage of a goose to say they won't do it." Good Knight! Another example of the free speech idea of the sponsors of the O. B. U. Applaud any one who believes as you do, but howl down the unfortunate individual who is opposed to you. This was amply demonstrated at the now famous meeting in Paget hall. I presume that the union engineer on the C.PP. R. who drives a train on which some noted opponent of union labor is riding instead of refusing to go on the job, is also one of those unfortunate individuals who hasn't the courage of a goose. If this is the only argument that this Moses of the labor movement can bring against the Calgary printers, why he is awful short of ammunition and is condemned by the exuberance of his own verbosity.

In conclusion I would remark that there is an institution at Ponoka which is filled with people who demonstrated the same sort of intelligence as those who are now "flaying" the printers because the latter refused to be led by the nose by an aggregation of professional agitators, whose outstanding characteristics are incompetency and consummate gall. So Mr. Christophers had better beware!

Yours truly,

Andy Davison,

Calgary, April 29, 1919.

Mike Shevezuk alias "Gasoline Mike," appeared before Magistrate Whimster this week on the adjourned preliminary hearing on the charge of manslaughter lodged by the city police in connection with the fatal automobile accident on the 12th of April, when seven year old Tony Pavluk sustained injuries resulting in almost instant death. The evidence adduced at the hearing had all been reviewed by the magistrate and he found that same did not warrant committing ccused for tril before the Supreme Court nd accordingly Mike was dismissed. However, in dismissing the charge the magistrate took occasion to warn accused in view of his having been convicted in this city and in Michel of infractions of the speed regulations on former occasions, that unless in future he exrcised extreme care he might meet with dire consequences. Shevezuk in reply stated that he did not ever intend to drive a car again and that he had already disposed of his car.

SOME CRITIC

The fact that the Calgary Typographical Union on Saturday night voted unanimously against the One Big Union has, to use a street phrase, severely "got the goat" of P. M. Christophers, the president of district 18 of the United Mine Workers of America.

When he was asked Monday morning in a joking manner by a representative of the Calgary Herald if he did not think the action of this union, which was looked upon as being the most intelligent in the whole of the trades federations, would have a very far reaching effect upon the forthcoming referendum vote the president grew extremely angry, and the newspaper man was about to make a bolt for the door of his office.

With the supremest scorn he remarked that the Calgary typos, when it came to talk unionism had, as a body, as much intelligence as "could be screwed into the leg of a mosquito," and he belabored the union unmercifully in turning down flatly what to his mind was the "greatest proposition ever presented to the workers."

Mr. Christophers ridiculed the idea that such a class of men could ever be helpful to the true interests of unionism. "Why," he said, "these jokers go ahead printing all sorts of rubbish hitting unionism and have not the courage of a goose to say they won't do it."

As by an inspiration the face of the president lighted up when his eye caught a glance of the District Ledger that was lying on his desk. "Look here," he said, "here's Bellevue local voting for the O.B.U. by 276 votes as against 14, and this is the union that is represented by Bob Livett. That will show you what the miners think of the O.B.U.—that is what I call intelligence."

COAL CREEK NOTES

The mines were idle here from Friday midnight until Sunday midnight. The usual exodus of Creekites to Fernie took place.

A large and representative gathering of residents assembled in Victoria Park on Sunday to boost for the local boys in their encounter with the F.A.A.C. A creditable display was given by the local team, who ran out victors to the tune of 4—0.

The Coal Co. have again fixexd up the merry-go-round and swings for the children and the children's park on the banks of the creek is a scene of animation and pleasure in consequence.

Coal Creek members of the Loyal Order of Moose are requested to attend the meeting on Monday evening as matters in the interest of the Coal Creek members particularly will be discussed.

Rev. W. R. Lee, of Cranbrook, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church here last Sunday.

A beautiful tall flagpole is being put up at the Club in readiness for the receipt of news of the signing of peace. Festivities befitting the occasion are being arranged.

The interior of the Club has been undergoing renovtion under the capable hands of Mr. Weeks of Fernie.

The first of May being a schedule holiday as per agreement the mines were idle. The rainy weather prevented our local "worm ticklers" from indulging in the pursuit of their hobby.

Arbor day was recognized by the Coal Co., the yards being cleaned up well—of cars.

Our local "Paderewski," N. Patterson, has secured the position as pianist at the Orpheum theatre.

The large number of returned men who have started work up here recently gives the lie direct to the misleading statement that the returned men do not get a show. All men have been placed up to date.

We are pleased to see our two old stalwarts of years past, Johnstone and Oakley, on the football team chosen to play against the Fernie Teamsters in the first league game.

TAKES OFF DANDRUFF, HAIR STOPS FALLING

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store. You surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine. Save your hair! Try it!

WIILIAM A. BLEASDELL

Many friends in and around Winnipeg will mourn the loss of William A. Bleasdell, who met with a sudden end caused, it is thought, through gas poisoning while on active service. He was connected with the 13th Batt., Montreal.

Mr. Bleasdell enlisted with the 148th battalion in 1915, and was transferred to the 13th Highlanders, and with that regiment proceeded to France, returning to this country in January of this year.

At the time of his death he was a representative for Frank W. Horner, Ltd., of Montreal and would undoubtedly have been one of their most successful salesmen.

Mr. Bleasdell was buried with military honors, the funeral being attended by numerous friends.

A. W. Bleasdell, his father, who is a well known druggist of Fernie, B.C., is in Winnipeg. He came to Winnipeg on being notified of his son's death and made all the funeral arrangements.

B.C. COAL RESOURCES

The Crow's Nest coal field is the most importane body of coal that is being mined in British Columbia. It includes an area of 230 square miles. The coal is a high grade bituminous, occasionally running into anthracite, averaging about 64 per cent fixed carbon. Much the greater portion of the coal is converted into coke, the remainder being sold as steam coal. There are 22 workable seams with a total thickness of 216 feet, 100 feet of which is estimated as workable.

In addition to the Crow's Nest field referred to above, areas of coal-bearing rocks are found at several points in southern British Columbia. The Princeton field includes an area of about 50 square miles. At Princeton, there is an 18½ foot seam of lignite carrying 42 per cent fixed carbon, 38 per cent volatile matter and 16 per cent moisture. At Nicola, seams 6 feet, 10 feet, 5 feet and 12 feet thick, respectively, have been mined. The Nicola coal is a sub-bituminous and analyzes about 47 per cent fixed carbon, 39 per cent volatile and 4 per cent moisture.

Coal has also been found at Tulameen, Kamloops, Hat creek and the North Thompson river.

The total area in Vancouver island underlain by coal seams is about 600 square miles. These coal fields contain some of the best steam coals on the Pacific coast.

The coal of the Comox field is coking bituminous and contains 57.2 per cent of fixed carbon, the highest carbon content of all the Vancouver Island coals. Three seams have been mined in this field.

The Nanaimo field has a productive area of 65 square miles, though the area underlain by coal seams is somewhat larger. The seams vary in thickness. Occasionally a seam containing from 2 to 3 feet of dirty coal carries 30 feet of clean coal at a point only 100 feet distant. Run of mine coals from this field run as high as 56 per cent fixed carbon and 43 per cent volatile combustible; commercial samples, 12,470 to 13,160 British thermal units.

The coal fields of the Queen Charlotte Islands are of Cretaceous and Tertiary age. The Cretaceous coals range from semi-anthracite to low carbon bituminous. The Tertiary coals are lignites. In 1871, mines were opened in the semi-anthracite at Cowgitz but the coal was so badly crushed that the enterprise was abandoned. This coal analyzed 83 per cent fixed carbon and 5 per cent volatile combustion; fuel ratio, 16.5.

Lignite is found at Alexandria, Quesnel, and Prince George on the Fraser, on the Nazco river, Nechako river, Dean river and Lightning creek. Three seams of bituminous coal, possibly a coking coal, aggregating 20 feet in thickness, have been reported on a tributary of Morice river, and three seams on Goat river, a tributary of the Telkwa, aggregate 56 feet in thickness.

The most important coal fields thus far discovered in the northern portion of British Columbia are the semi-anthracites of the Groundhog Mountain area. An area of 170 square miles is assumed to be coal-bearing, and contains 8 seams with an aggregate thickness of 30 feet.

The "actual" and "probable" reserves in British Columbia are: Semi-anthracite 1.9 per cent; bituminous, 85.4 per cent; low-carbon bituminous, 3.3 per cent; cannel 2.4 per cent; lignitic, 7.0 per cent.

Lignites have been discovered on Kispiox river, Sustut river, Peace river and Laird river. Bituminous coal has been found near Peace River canyon, and on the Taku river.

EGYPT AND INDIA

The insurrections in Egypt and India will help to make the ordinary Westerner realize how little he knows of the quality and direction of thought among the peoples of the near and the far East.

The salient fact about India especially is that it typifies a civilization different in type and ideal from our own. Indian nationalism is something which embodies the philosophy and mentality of the Hindu peoples, and has characteristics which vary widely from those of the West.

Both India and Egypt have traditions which extend back to the very dawn of human records, they have cradled great civilizations and in each of them profound and original religions have originated. In India the memory of the past has not been obliterated from the life of the modern Hindus, and the nationalist movement draws support from historical traditions which show India to have been great and magnificent, with temples and cities, with sciences, manufactures, and a broad culture, when the barbarian tribes of Central and Western Europe wore skin garments and painted themselves with woad in their mud and wattle encampments and villages.

Egypt is the meeting-ground of the East and the West. Its strategical value to the Europeans generally is enormous, as it is the gateway to the Orient, and at the same time a rampart to the West. What the hopes of the Egyptian nationalists may be and how far they would affect the Western tenure of Egypt can only be conjectured at, but the feeling that Egypt is an integral part in the structure of European society is one that will gain in srengh in Europe as the Eastern situation comes more and more to be understood.

East of Suez a social order and usage begins with whose practices we in the West are simply not acquainted. Asia is the home of teeming millions of human beings. It houses a multitude of races, religions, nationalities, and temperaments, which in numerous cases have made practically no contact with Europe or with European ideas and customs. The handful of Europeans who have plunged into the ocean of Asian life have never been more than strangers in a strange land; conquerors holding down subject races; sympathetic, maybe, but aliens always to the peoples whom they ruled.

Under the unrest in India there is this feeling that the British rule, despite the open enmity with which it is regarded by the nationalists, is, essentially, just, and is necessary for the existence of order and coherence throughout the country. The most violent nationalists themselves admit that the middle-class and aristocratic Hindus are cogenitally incompetent to control India's destinies. "The aristocracy and educated classes of India and Egypt are perhaps among the most contemptible specimens of humanity extant," says Har Dayal, a vehement Indian nationalist, in a recent issue of The New Statesman, "they cannot administer, or fight, or take the initiative in progressive movements, or discharge any of the duties that devolve on the aristocracy of all civilized countries." India and Egypt depend for their existence as orderly communities on the leadership of Europeans. Under unrest, and revolt even, this appears to be the key fact in the situation, and is the one which will finally determine it.—Manitoba Free Press.

A BLAST FROM HELL

Bolshevism has not only wrecked Russia industrially, it has also done its best to destroy morality and religion. Allowing for all exaggerations there can be no question that the aim of Bolshevism is the destruction of family life and the abrogation of accepted moral standards. It has been stated by some that women have been nationalized, while other travelers in Russia declare they had seen nothing of the sort. The truth seems to be that it was not attempted in the earlier part of the Bolshevist regime, and that there may not yet have been issued a decree from the Central Soviet to this effect.

On the testimony of Ambassador Francis and others, however, various provincial soviets have issued such decrees, and this is unquestionably the purpose of Bolshevism as soon as it is sure of its power to make the decree effective. Bolshevism recognizes no God, no moral code, none of the moral standards of civilized peoples. Most of the Russian people are represented as hating and fearing it. but with the Reds in possession of the food, the money and the guns, there is little they can do to oppose it. This is the detestable thing that threatens the life of civilization. Any step toward recognition of the abhorrent Bolshevist element as a national entity, or any move to compromise with it, would be condemned by the moral sentiment of all really civilized mankind.—Leslie's Weekly.

LAWS CANNOT EQUALIZE

(Jay House in Topeka Capital)

I am a workingman. Except for the fact that I have, two or three times, engaged in business in a small way on my own account, I have always been a workingman. Doubtless I shall always be one. I have been successively farm hand, railroad laborer, printer and reporter. When the boss along in the early '90s, quit his job as a reporter on the Capital and bought the North Topeka Mail, I was the editor and owner of a weekly newspaper printed in a small Kansas town. It was not a highly successful business, but I earned a good living from it and probably could have cashed in at that time for as much money as the boss. I had about as good prospects. Since that time he has created a very large business and has achieved great success, both commercially and politically. I am still a reporter and have worked for him as such for the past 17 years. Now, as a matter of fact, I can write rings around the boss. I can make as good a speech. In most respects I am as smart as he is. But he has achieved great success because he has something I haven't got. No form of government, no sort of administration, no law which could have been placed on the statute books, would have so equalized things that I could have achieved a success equal to his. He has it; I havn't got it. But in achieving his success he has done me no injury, subjected me to no injustice. On the other hand, he has treated me with great consideration and fairness. I make this point for the benefit of the man who believes success can be achieved through the channels of class or friendly legislation. I have learned, at least two things in life. One is a little sense and the other is that a "front" is a valuable asset. The missus has said that I can come nearer looking and acting like a millionaire on a hundred dollars than any other man she ever knew, and I take her observations as a compliment. I have learned sense enough to know that no sort of government legislations can help the man who can't or won't help himself. If I have anything I must work for it. So must every other man.

Help the Y.M.C.A. Finish its Work For Soldiers

Help the "Y" Construct the Manhood that will Re-construct Canada

The Y.M.C.A. will keep its chain of Service unbroken till the end.

ALL the world now knows that the Red Triangle of the Y.M.C.A. was the "Sign of Friendship" to thousands of your brothers, sons, nephews, cousins and neighbours' boys in the last four and a half years. Wherever the Canadian Soldiers went, the "Good old 'Y'" went too. And now it is coming back home with them!

For the support which has made possible the war work of the Y.M.C.A. we thank you. Your money has been well expended. We have rendered full account.

We ask now your continued sympathy and support for Red Triangle Service for our Soldiers during demobilization, and for Y.M.C.A. work for Canada generally during the Reconstruction period. The Annual Red Triangle campaign will be held throughout Canada May 5th to 9th, 1919. The objective is $1,100,000.

For Our Men Returning

For the soldiers and their dependents, returning from Overseas, we have provided as follows:—

1. A Red Triangle man on board every ship when it leaves Great Britain, with a full equipment of games, gramophones and records, magic lantern, literature and writing materials. Where possible, also a piano or an organ. Lectures, concerts, sing songs, instruction re Government repatriation plans, and Sunday Services.

2. Red Triangle comforts and facilities for the men on arrival at Halifax, St. John, Quebec and Montreal, including coffee stalls, with free drinks, free eatables, cigarettes, candies, etc.

3. Red Triangle men on every troop train to provide regularly free drinks, eatables and cigarettes, organize games and sing songs, and furnish information.

4. Red Triangle free canteen service, information bureau, etc., at each of the 22 Dispersal centres in Canada.

5. Red Triangle Clubs in the principal cities of Canada in the shape of large Y.M.C.A. hostels to furnish bed and board at low rates and to be a rendezvous for soldiers.

6. Seventy-five Secretaries to superintend Red Triangle service in Military Hospitals, Camps and Barracks throughout Canada.

7. Tickets entitling soldiers to full Y.M.C.A. privileges for six months at any local Y.M.C.A. furnished.

In addition to our work for the returning soldiers, we have to maintain the Red Triangle service to the full for the soldiers in Siberia, as well as the work of special secretaries in Northern Russia, Palestine and Poland.

Canadian Y.M.C.A. Red Triangle Campaign $1,100,000 May 5th to 9th Canada-Wide Appeal

For Canada's Manhood

The Reconstruction program of the Y. M. C. A. includes the following vitally important developments:—

1. An increased service to 300,000 teen-age boys in the Dominion—the development of Canadian Standard Efficiency training; Bible Study groups; summer camps; conferences; service for High School boys, for working boys, in the towns and cities; for boys on the farm and for boys everywhere, who have lacked opportunity for mental, moral, physical or social development.

2. Inauguration of Y.M.C.A. work in the country, and the smaller towns and villages lacking Association buildings and equipment, on a plan of county organizations. This will include the establishment of Red Triangle centres for social, recreational and educational work among boys and men, in co-operation with the churches.

3. The promotion of Y.M.C.A. work among Canada's army of workers in industrial plants, both in Y.M.C.A. buildings and in the factory buildings, organizing the social spirit among the industrial workers of our cities by meetings, entertainments, games and sports.

4. The establishment of the Red Triangle in isolated districts where lumbermen, miners and other workers hold the front trenches of industry.

5. Besides these main fields of increased activity for 1919, we have to provide for enlarged work among railway men, college students and for our campaign to encourage physical and sex education. Under all our work we place the fundamental foundation of manly Christianity.

Y.W.C.A.

For the wives and children Overseas, dependent upon Canadian soldiers, and for Y.W.C.A. work in Canada generally, a sum of $175,000 from the Red Triangle Fund will be set aside for the Dominion Council of the Y.W.C.A., which is caring for the soldiers' women folk, and their little ones on the long journey, from Liverpool to Canada, and is also extending its work for Canadian girls.

For their sake also be generous when you make your contribution.

FOR the sake of our victorious soldiers and their dependents, and the happiness of their home-coming; for the sake of our future citizens, our teen-age boys; for the sake of rural life in Canada; for the sake of the social betterment of the toilers in factory and workshop; for the sake of lonely men and boys in our mines and forests; for the sake of Christian Society and Canadian manhood—we appeal to you. Give us your contribution, little or big. Be as generous as you can.

Hand your contribution to the canvasser when he calls, or if you live where it is difficult for him to call, send it by check, money order or registered letter to the National Treasurer, Red Triangle Campaign, 120 Bay Street, Toronto.

Please Note:

We are not asking for money to carry on our work Overseas, with the Army in Great Britain, France or Belgium. That work will continue at its maximum for some months, financially provided for by the liquidation of our assets Overseas, and will not terminate till the last man has sailed for home.

National Council, Young Men's Christian Associations of Canada

The Red Triangle Campaign is being conducted under the distinguished patronage of His Excellency, the Duke of Devonshire, K.G., G.C.M.G., G.C.V.O., P.C.

FRAUDULENT WAR CHARITIES

Assistant District Attorney Kilroe of New York, at the instigation of the New York World, has f[illegible] the past fifteen months been in[illegible] ing certain war charities. A[illegible] 384 committees of a total [illegible] vestigated have been driven out of business. And Mr. Kilroe says that upward of $50,000,000 has been fraudulently misappropriated or diverted from the funds sent to Europe. But the most important part of Mr. Kilroe's work consists of a program of legislation planned to prevent such fraud in the future. The laws Mr. Kilroe proposes are as follows:

1. A federal law placing patrotic societies and war-relief organizations under the supervision and control of a special bureau of the Department of the Interior.

2. A State law placing the same class of organizations under the control of a special bureau in the office of the Secretary of State, from which bureau every war-relief committee or similar organization would have to obtain a license.

3. A city ordinance prohibiting the soliciting of funds, the sale of buttons, tags, and merchandise on the streets or in other public places for charity, exceptions to be made in the case of strictly religious bodies.

These laws, or something like them, should be passed immediately. The men who collect money for their own [illegible] under the guise of charity are a [illegible]rly despicable lot. They not only, of course, destroy faith in their own organizations, but they tend to destroy it in all charitable works, no matter how worthy of the public support.

IN THE AUTO WORLD

A practicable snow automobile has at last made its bow to the public and is being manufactured in Seattle. A production of 1000 will be the plan for the first year and development will probably reach as high as 40,000 later on.

One of the finest exhibitions of racing speed will be given at Tacoma from June 30 to July 6. Speed kings such as Dario Resta, Ralph DePalama, Cliff Durant and Louis Chevrolet will be among the contestants.

Every motorist has experienced trouble in mounting rims. The rim seems suddenly to have shrunk so that the joint persists in striking the wheel felloe. A small jack screw placed in position on the hub can be used to spring the jojint of the rim outward far enough to permit the rim to be slipped into place.

High speed shortens the life of a motor car. When you double the speed of your car you far more than double the force of the shocks to which it is subjected.

When grease leakage from the hubs and brakes of the rear axle becomes a chronic failing it may be obviated by drilling quarter inch holes in the under side of the housing near the outer ends. The holes permit the excess grease to leak out on the road.

10 CENT "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER AND BOWELS

Cure Sick Headache, Constipation, Billiousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath—Candy Cathartic.

No odds how bad your liver, stomach or bowels; how much your head aches, how miserable you are from constipation, indigestion, biliousness and sluggish bowels—you always get relief with Cascarets. They immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. A 10-cent box from your druggist will keep your liver and bowels clean; stomach sweet and head clear for months. They work while you sleep.

THE NEED OF PROTECTION

It is impossible to argue on the economic future with the old-time phrase of Free Trade vs. Protection, for the Great War has altered the problem. Those in this country who are so assidiously urging the lowering of the tariff barriers have a very poor conception of the necessity for production and more production, in the Dominion, when they advocate Canada should become the dumping ground for America's surplus products. The United States because her industries are organized on a greater scale than those of this country, can produce cheaper. Given the opportunity she could sell cheaper in Canada, but the result would be unemployment in those local industries that would be affected by a reduction in the present tariff. The Prairie farmers' desire for freer trade with America is dictated by selfish reasons. The desire of certain politicians to reduce or abolish the tariff is mainly a proposal to catch the prairie farmers' vote, for it certainly cannot be with any wish to promote the country's prosperity. If Canada could produce cheaper than the United States or than any other country, and could produce equally good commodities then no doubt Free Trade could do no harm. But, under the present dispensation, it would work incalculable evil and no one knows this better than those who through the years are urging Canadians to buy Canadian-made goods. There is nothing so essential in this period of reconstruction as to give ample protection against unfair competition to all industries developed in our midst.

The British government is now earnestly considering a policy for the protection of her industries and to prevent dumping. When that policy matures it will be found that the stress of circumstances have forced the Motherland to depart from the policy of free trade. In Britain cotton hosiery—the product of Japanese mills—is being sold at a lower price than the British manufacturers have to pay for the cotton alone. This hosiery is produced by operatives working twelve hours a day for 37½ cents, and the Japanese millowner runs his mill for 144 hours a week. British mills are worked only forty-four hours per week and the operatives are paid on an average of $15 per week. Anti-dumping legislation is now being prepared in Britain. This is being done at a time when certain interests in this country are urging tariff reductions which would inevitably lead to dumping on a large scale. Mr. Bonar Law says that among the working classes of Great Britain the feeling will grow more and more that if the present level of wages is to be maintained, and perhaps increased, there must be more security than there has been in the past for the home market.

One effect of tariff reduction would be to prevent the establishment of new industries. Another would be to decrease home production in existing industries. There is no desire among the people of this country to become a commercial adjunct of the United States. Under existing arrangements we are on the most friendly terms with the people of the great republic to the south, but in any tariff reductions affecting American goods it is we who would be the economic losers. It is absolutely important at this time, when industries are changing from the conditions of war to the conditions of peace, that we should not permit the dumping of goods from countries which have not had our sufferings in the war. The people of Canada are being urged to increase their productive power. They will only do this so long as the market remains for the sale of their products. What is necessary to insure our economic and financial future is that we should become more self-supporting. If we allow a surplus of goods, produced cheaper than we can produce them, to be dumped in our midst this process will mean we will become more and more dependent on outsiders. Those who are advocating freer trade with foreign countries at this time are enemies of repatriation, for they would adopt measures that would increase unemployment in many, if not all, of our manufacturing industries.—Colonist.

ADAM AND EVE PARADE

A number of valuators were sent to Grand Forks, on behalf of the government, to make appraisal of the Doukhobor holdings in that magnificent valley, being headed by Lieut. W. S. Latta, D.S.O. While they were making their trip of inspection with some business men, the Douks made one of their demonstrations, namely, appeared in an Adam and Eve parade, both men and women, according to report from Grand Forks. The nude company marched close to the visitors. This method of protest was employed by this Russian sect on the prairies before coming to British Columbia, and on a small scale has been done in this provincce before.

In Trail the situation is also of interest from the fact that the Douks have either secured or are about to secure contracts for the erection of several new houses here. Invariably their figures are far below those of any ordinary contractor, no matter who he may be—as they might be expected to be from community living people who only pay a wage of overals and a diet of vegetables to their numerous workmen. In addition, they own their own sawmill, planing mill and brickyards where the same conditions prevail so that competition with them by anyone who believes in paying a living wage is out of the question. On the other hand, the man who is building does not exactly relish paying from $500 to $1000 more for his house than the Douks would charge. This does not take into consideration the quality of the work done by the Douks, the hours they labor, or the long drawn out time required to complete a job—as proved in the past in Trail.—Trail News.

"WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD" HE SAYS

Howard Gains 14 Pounds By Taking Tanlac—Lays Walking Cane Aside

"Well, I have actually gained fourteen pounds in the past six weeks by taking Tanlac and now I'm going back home a well man and go to work just like I used to before I got sick." This interesting and remarkable statement was made by Henry S. Howard, a well-known farmer and stock raiser of King Hill, Idaho, while purchasing more of the medicine in Salt Lake recently.

"I have suffered from rheumatism and indigestion for twelve years," continued Mr. Howard. "I had gotten to where I could hardly eat a thing, because everything went against me and besides I had no appetite. Every joint in me was swollen with rheumatism, and hurt so I could hardly bear to be touched. I was in such a bad fix I couldn't work, so I decided to come down here and go to the hospital for treatment.

"When I got here six weeks ago, I was so crippled up I had to use a walking stick in order to get along at all. My daughter, who lives here, got to begging me to try Tanlac, but I had tried so many things that did me no good, that I had no faith in Tanlac either. But she insisted, until just to please her, I decided to try it. The first bottle made a great change in my feelings. My rheumatism soon left me, so I threw my stick aside and now can walk as good as anybody.

"And eat, why I just can't get enough. I believe I feel all of twenty years younger, and it's the first time in that long time that I have felt like myself, and I feel like I could do as much work as ever I could. Well, the hospital has had one less to treat, but I have saved a good many dollars and have gotten rid of my troubles, besides, and when I get home the folks who knew what a bad fix I was in are going to be surprised to see the difference. Tanlac is worth its weight in gold, and it has convinced me that there's at least one medicine that will do what they say it will and I want to do my part in letting everyobdy know about it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

HOW'S YOUR GARDEN ?

Food is food these days, and the price of wheat ought to suggest left over from last year. There is not much time remaining now to plan something to everyone who has a hoe community, club, or other cooperative gardens, but you can mobilize yourself into agricultural activity and take all the objectives planned for the coming season. The essential thing is to have a plan in mind. After all the recent governmental and voluntary pamphleteering on the subject the only advice we can add is: Do it! Take it as esthetic pleasure, as healthful exercise, as prideful competition with your friends and neighbors, as doing something to feed the world, as saving kitchen expenses, or as a solemn duty to your country, but do it. There are many pretexts for gardening, but only one test of accomplishment therein, and that is results. Your life will be healthier, happier, and longer—in short, more real, because of the hours spent in growing things, and wisdom may come also. Busied in turning however tiny a patch of earth into the line of its utmost vital usefulness, you will have a standard by which to judge these new-old radicalisms of wrath and destrhction, these schemes of Tartar politics which set man murderously against man and class against class. Our modern world may have imperiled itself by an excess of scheming science and irritating machinery; it will surely help save itself by the quiet patience of gardening well done. Kipling was right: "The corn shall cover our evil dreams, and the young corn our hate."—Colliers.

ODDS ON THE WELSHMAN

While matters at the peace congress at Paris grow pretty tense at times and threaten serious trouble for the peace of the peacemakers, that plucky little Welshman, David Lloyd George, premier of Great Britain, has lately taken on one of the greatest antagonists possible in Lord Northcliffe, owner of the London Times and Daily Mail and a galaxy of other publications. It is evidently open war on his part, with the printing press as his heaviest artillery—which makes him no small champion.

But Premier George is a man who has secured the confidencec of all classes in the British Isles and in fact all over the world. It is probable that more to him than to any other one man is due the tremendous efforts successfully made by Britain in the prosecution of the war. This gives him a hold on the rank and file, a confidence in his integrity, that it will be hard for Northcliffe to sake or break.

Perhaps there will be some defections from the ranks of the little Welshman but that he looms large in the hearts of the average old countryman it is not hard to discern. It will of course be a battle royal between the two forceful men — one that will be watched with the greatest and most consuming interest wherever the English language is spoken, and further. Northcliffe has the reputation of having made many a government. It now remains to be seen whether his power is sufficient to unmake a man who is sincere, able, experienced, capable and a fighter of no mean ability himself.

If we were to make a wager on the affair it would be with odds on the doughty premier — for the people know that he certainly has the best interests of the empire deep down in his heart and has no axes to grind. —Trail News.

INDUSTRIAL JAPAN

"From iron plates to toy motors, from cotton goods to fancy leather articles, Japan is capturing the markets of the world." This is the statement of a writer who recently made a tour of Britain's industrial towns, as a result of which he points out that the iron workers, the hardware manufacturers, the leather merchants and smaller dealers in sundry products are displaying deep anxiety over Japanese encroachments on the markets of the world. No nation, so much as Japan, seized upon the opportunities presented by Germany's loss of trade. The blockade meant an industrial awakening in the Orient, and goods from the East are now flooding every market in the world.

How many people noticed that last Xmas the majority of the toys sold were of Japanese make? In the past it was the custom to stock households with cheap articles made in Germany. The articles being bought today are being made in Japan; even bootlaces are being manufactured there and are sold all over the world at prices cheaper than they can be produced anywhere else. "The wise men of the East," says the writer we have quoted above, "have been learning in the best European schools for more than 20 years, and they are now garnering the harvest of their foresight and enterprise." Japanese emissaries spent years in Germany and Austria learning how to make the German toys without which a Christmas of the pre-war days seemed incomplete. Now Japan has learned the secret and she is profiting by it in a way which must cause every nation of the world to look to its laurels in Christmas trade. It is said that Japanese iron goods are being sold in Canada at prices at which they cannot be manufactured on this continent, and yet there are still those among us who would pull down the tariff barriers which afford a safeguard to industry in this country.

The problem is, what can be done so that the products of Britain and her Overseas Dominions can compete on equal terms with those of Japan both in the homelands and in foreign markets? That is a question that is agitating industrial interests in the Empire. The solution is very difficult. Japan is untroubled economically and industrially, whereas there is trouble nearly everywhere else. Japan is benefitting by the world unrest that exists and the consequent difficulty of setting prices for manufactured commodities in the countries of her competitors. One of the most serious phases in the outlook in Canada is the decline in the export trade. Measures should have been adopted during the war whereby the energies devoted to the production of munitions could have been turned into other channels with the coming of peace, and to an extent that would have maintained the value of the export trade. Efforts are being made in this direction, but it is questionable if they are sufficiently well organized. —Colonist.

IMMIGRATION AMENDMENTS

The proposed amendments to the Immigration Act which are contained in the New Immigration Bill, introduced by the Hon. J. A. Calder, will not probably strike the average Canadian citizen as being particularly oppressive in their nature. If the government has not hitherto had powers to exclude from Canada "Persons who believe in or advocate the overthrow by force or violence of the government of Canada, or of constituted law and authority, or who disbelieve in or are opposed to organized government, or who advocate assassination of public officials, or who advocate or teach the unlawful destruction of property"—the ordinary law-abiding and progressive Canadian will think that it is time the government did have such powers.

The whole question of immigration has been focused to a definite issue in the trouble which has arisen over the admission of the Hutterites, and there is little doubt that the feeling of the country will support immigration laws which debar immigrants from entering the Dominion under special privileges, The granting of special privileges, such as freedom from military obligation, reacts unfavorably on the commonwealth by tending to segregate the favored immigrants into colonies whose permanence is assured chiefly by the protective privilege which puts them in a class apart and distinct from their fellow citizens. Whatever considerations were behind the granting of special treatment in the past, the considerations of the present justify the decision that peculiar people who wish to propagate their peculiarity on Canadian soil under the shelter of the Dominion Immigration Act are not now suitable for admission to the country.

The new Bill will give the government the fullest control of the whole question of immigration, although in looking over the provisions which have been published it might well seem that the new legislation is simply an enforcement of provisions already in existence. The prohibited classes which are specified — enemy aliens, criminals, illiterates, degenerates, and sufferers from malignant diseases—are already checked by the barrier of immigration laws and the amendments will merely stiffen or heighten the barrier. There is no inclination shown to hold back satisfactory immigrants; the point of the measure is that the Dominion government assumes by right of its existence the prerogative of setting up its own immigration standards and defining what it considers a satisfactory immigrant to be.

A successful immigration policy is one that looks to the production of good Canadian citizens, and we are now at the stage of national development when this must be generally recognized. There may be criticism of individual clauses of the new Immigration Bill, but the purpose behind the Bill is sound and will commend itself to the country, namely, that Canada must use her rights and powers, and herself decide on the physical, moral, mental, and social fitness of those who seek a habitation on her soil. — Manitoba Free Press.

THE LAST WORD IN MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

The Orpheum theatre has just received the first of a battery of two of the very latest model Simplex machines ordered some time ago. These machines are the very latest model and the best projecting machine on the market today.

This machine is now on exhibition in the window of Mr. Kossoff's new store and Manager Johnston states that when these machines have been installed that the Orpheum projection will be second to none in Canada.

The Orpheum machines will be installed in the Isis theatre, as with the many big features that Manager Johnston has coming during the next twelve months it will be necessary to run many of them in the Isis in order not to interfere with the regular schedule at the Orpheum.

THE MARSHALL ISLANDS

President Wilson quite fails, and has throughout the war quite failed to rightly appraise the Japanese. In a recent utterance he said he "could not see what the Japanese could do with the Marshall Islands, as they were neither commercially nor strategically important." It is quite possible he does not know and has no means of knowing, what the Japanese are doing in the Marshalls, the things they have accomplished in the short space of four years, and the splendid foundation they have laid for the other things they mean to accomplish. The Japanese are no laggards, no dreamers, no wasters or time or opportunity. They are thoroughly Spartan-like in their ideas of colonization, and these qualities are producing the most startling results in commercial activity, to say nothing of strategical advantages. — Sydney Bulletin.

CAMPAIGNING IN AFRICA

At Dikawa the bluebottle flies had become even a greater menace than disease from decomposing animal matter. Millions of them had been breeding in the carcasses—the whole country, for a distance, looked like a field of blue. Here also a species of red ant was observed, so fierce that they would take possession of a road and woebetide man or beast attempting to disturb their migration. The slave ants in these colonies would form an arbor with their own bodies across the road for the important personages and royalty to pass under. Sometimes an occupied native banda would lie across their path, and the unhappy occupant would have to move in daytime or night. — Johannesburg Times.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

The tourist travel has started and Elko is fast filling up with visitors, and there is a big demand for cottages.

Mrs. J. Todhunter and two sons have returned from Seattle, where they had been for the winter, and have taken up their residence at the Cumberland Mansions, Riverside Park.

Mrs. Jack Ingham and daughter Jean of Cranbrook were down for Easter the guests of Miss E. May Roo; also Miss E. B. Patterson of the Kootenay Orchards.

Miss Walker, of Nelson, was the guest of Miss E. May Roo en route for the Roosville Valley.

Bob Long, of Creston, is visiting Fred Roo.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Booth of Fernie looking up a summer home; Greenwood from the same coal town. Mr. and Mrs. J. R. McDonald and family of Newgate. Charles Adams from the Clear Springs Ranch, Roosville. J. M. Watson passed through on his way to the Peace River country. Mr. and Mrs. J. Thomson, of Cranbrook. Mr. and Mrs. G. Schupe and family just returned from Vancouver for the summer. J. G. Cummings, govt. engineer, and Bridge Inspector Sgt. Jas. Osborne. Mr. and Mrs. L. Butts and family, Kitchener, en route to Gateway. About 17 well filled automobiles from Fernie, Cranbrook, Wardner and Flagstone, visiting the Falls, enjoying the beautiful drives and inhaling the pure air of heaven.

One of the most delightful social events of the past week was the meeting of the school board.

Neither in the Victoria or Vancouver papers nor in the Encyclopaedia Britannica is there any reference to what "Honest John Oliver" is going to do with the big water power at Elko.

Miss Stella Big Moon, champion buckskin worker on Tobacco Plains, decked out in her trading post regalia, with fancy buckskin novelties. She sparkles but wont spark. She was accompanied by Miss Sally Two Kettles, doughnut queen of the Roosville valley.

Travelers and train Jumpers — Come when you like and stay as long as you like. Blue Ribbon Bill selling green tea and soluble coffee. W. A. Weston, editor of the Snagtown Clipper, Washington, U.S.A. McNeill, Toronto, with stock food and emergency rations for coaxing hens to lay double yolked eggs, and his looks would convince you that he would take medicine from a doctor without complaining. A Winnipeg traveller selling hair restorer and Mrs. Wm. Potts automatic self sliding flat irons, flying around like a swamp nigger chasing a coon. He tried to sell Jim Thistlebeak some hair restorer and the language Jim used on that poor unfortunate traveler reminded me of a Ministers Poll Parrot. Jimmy Black, one of the whitest travelers on the road, dropped down like a feather from a flying goose and opened up his samples like a rosebud in the sun. Gibbons (no relations to Mike of that name in St. Paul) with English marmalade made in California and other kind of sunkist goods put up in tins. Jim McCarty, of Bull River, one of the chosen few who have solved the riddle of the joy of life and got married, quit the road and will live happy ever after. Several flour and feed travelers from Calgary who met by arrangement several floor oil and fluid beef travelers from Nelson. If you want to meet them come to Elko. It's the best town in the Crow's Nest Pass, and the way it is spreading out it will soon be the biggest. They still take the Roosville valley route; it's the safest as everybody is too busy down in that country to stick their nose into other people's business.

FRONTIERS OF LITTLE AVAIL

(From the London Natin)

France has suffered so much in the war that it is inevitable she should snatch at anything which promises her security for the future; and there is undoubtedly considerable point in the complaint of those Frenchmen who remind us that it is they who will have to stand behind whatever frontier is decided upon and not any other of the Allies. But this need not prevent us pointing out that looking to any sort of military position as a sufficient security is an illusion which at the critical moment will surely betray those who have put their trust in them. Marshal Foch, who, at least in theory, is a pure realist, warned his students against putting their trust in any position. They will all "fall in the end"; and, indeed, such a conclusion has become a truism of the war, in which indefensible positions like the Ypres salient have been crossed and recrossed many times.

MOVED TO EDMONTON

F. H. Reid, in charge of the Home Bank at Winnipeg as local manager and western superintendent has been offered and accepted the position as manager for the Bank of Toronto in Edmonton, and will take charge about May 15.

Wm. Johnston of the Orpheum has purchased a new Chevrolet. He sold his old one to Oscar Erickson.

CITY COUNCIL HOLD MEETING

The council met last night with all members present.

After the formality of adopting the minutes of the previous meeting His Worship called upon those present to announce if they had anything to bring before the council, to which Wm. Minton replied. He had some complaints, grievances, suggestions and requests to advance relative to his property in the Annex. The matters were deferred until later in the meeting, when the council decided to let His Worship take up the matters with Mr. Minton seriatim with the object of adjusting same satisfactorily.

The Fernie Motor Co. made application for hig-powered outside lights on the flat rate system. This was referred to the committee in charge of this department, who will endeavor to convince that company that by careful use of these lights on the meter rate it will be equally as economical as if same were installed on the flat rate.

Relative to the recently enacted Water Rates By-law and with particular reference to the charge for water against automobile owners, the city solicitors advised the council that in their opinion it would not be advisable to enforce this charge. This advice will be accepted as final.

The city clerk reported that a further account of expenditure by the government for river bank protection work amounting to $300 had been received. This was for poles supplied regarding which the city had no knowledge nor had such item been included in the estimates. The matter was tabled until the next meeting and in the interim it is proposed to consult with J. G. Cummings relative to same.

The question as to what properties on which there are arrears in taxes for varying periods will be permitted to go into the list of consolidated tax arrears and thereby be given the opportunity of reducing these liabilities over a term of years was left over until further information concerning the same was available. The preliminary list prepared by the collector shows ten properties upon which more than two years' taxes are due, while there are about 150 names on the list upon which 1917 taxxes are due and owing.

Debentures under bylaw No. 75 which fell due on May 1, amounting to $5000, were redeemed and the cancelled certificates presented for inspection. There were also $20,000 worth of debentures, issued under by-law No. 22, which were redeemed before expiration on authority of motion passed at the previous meeting. In accordance with statutory procedure these documents, which during their term of validity represented $25,000, were consigned to destruction by fire. The cremation ceremonial was to have taken place within the confines of the city gaol at the conclusion of the meeting in the presence of the finance committee and city treasurer but by that time the custodian of the key to the incinerator chamber was absent and the ceremony had to be deferred until an unannounced hour today.

A. Rizzuto will be requested to wait upon the council at the next regular meeting with regard to residential property occupied by him and some conclusive arrangement arrived at.

A grant of $25 was made to the Crow's Nest Pass International Highway Association.

The finance committee was authorized to advance the contractor on river bank protection such necessary amounts as applied for upon same being approved by the District Engineer.

Bylaw No. 192, the Traffic bylaw, received its final sanction. It was announced that this bylaw would be rigidly enforced and all are warned to observe the rules of the road and keep to the left when travelling along thoroughfares; turning around only at street intersections; if requiring to stop in front of any building the vehicle must face the direction in which it would be proceeding if travelling; also observe the speed limit of 15 miles an hour and slowing up at crossings. Bicycles must be equipped with bells or horns and lights at night. In addition to the foregoing the bylaw covers numerous other regulations, a full text of which may be obtained from the city clerk for the sum of $2.

The Mayor and Aldermen's salary bylaw was also passed. Ald. Gates recorded his vote in the negative on the aldermen's salary.

Council adjourned at 9.50.

COMPETITION FOR JUNIOR MEMBERS NAVY LEAGUE

When Mr. Helmsing, Lieut. in R.N.V.R., gave his lecture, accompanied by slides, on the Blocking of the Zeebrugge Harbor, to the children, on April 30, he asked the boys and girls here to enter into an essay competition against Cranbrook. The essay is to be written only on the material as outlined in his lecture. Only Junior members of the Navy League are eligible to enter the competition. Pupils in Entrance, High and Low Fourth Readers and High Third Reader only are to enter this competition. Each contestant must write the following on his or her paper: Name in full and age, name of school, class in school.

There are two prizes (splendid books on naval subjects) 1st and 2nd, for the Fernie-Cranbrook competition.

There are 16 schools throughout the province in the different competitions and the writer of the very best essay written on the lecture will be awarded an $8 book written by Admiral Jellicoe. Mr. Helmsing will examine the essays himself and will therefore look only for such material as he gave in his lecture. All essays are to be handed in to Mrs. R. W. Wood, Educational Secretary of Fernie Branch, not later than May 23.

WILL FERNIE GET HEADQUARTERS

Recently, according to reports published from Nelson, it appears there is a strong agitation among the residents of that city to usurp title to the 54th Battalion C. E. F., which they desire to perpetuate with headquarters in that city. This attitude with regard to the perpetuation of the 54th Batt. as a permanent militia unit is a very commendable one, and one which the residents of East Kootenay will heartily endorse, but

BOOSTS FERNIE DISTRICT

The Editor, Fernie Free Press,
Fernie, B. C.

Dear Sir:—My recent trip of well over 12,000 miles through the state of Idaho, Washington, Oregon and California as far south as Mexico, and my previous trip of 23,000 miles in which I covered the whole of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, have convinced me more firmly than ever of the correctness of my oft made assertion that in this district and within a radius of 50 miles from Fernie, we have absolutely the finest scenery there is in the whole of the North American continent; there is nothing in any of the States or Provinces mentioned which can compare with what we have here, and I might add also that our roads are better than any existing excepting those in California, which are mostly all paved.

During the 17 years I have been here, our Board of Trade (whenever it has been active) has made abortive efforts to induce industries to start up here and in that time have only succeeded in getting one which the city council killed, and no effort of any kind has been made in the direction of drawing tourists, yet we have the natural advantages here to make it one of the most popular tourist resorts in North America.

I met all the Automobile Associations whilst on my trip and they all told me that they had tried to get reliable information regarding Western Canadian roads and had written hundreds of letters to the various clubs over here, most of which failed to elicit replies at all, and the replies which they did get were so unsatisfactory they were not able to use them and had given up the attempt. I told them all I knew, which they took down in writing. On my return at Los Angeles six weeks later, the Auto Club of Southern California, told me that they had been able to hand my information out to hundreds of enquirers and at Frisco, at the offices of the California State Auto Association two months later they told me the same thing, which if true, means that from California alone this summer there will be over a thousand cars come up into Western Canada, a large proportion of which, by

TALKS ON LAND SETTLEMENT

A special meeting of the Reconstruction Committee was held on Wednesday evening in the Council Chamber, the occasion being to hear Mr. Nelens, chairman of the provincial Land Settlement Board, and Mr. Ward, a member of the board, who are touring this portion of the province. Only a small number of the members of the comiittee were present, which was somewhat disappointing, but nevertheless those who were present heard a very clear and concise review of the activities of the Land Settlement Board in various portions of the province and the policy to be pursued was impressively outlined.

Mr. Nellens as speaker of the evening in opening his address referred to the Returned Soldiers' Land Settlement problem as being the most urgent at the present moment. The Board during the past year had been recipients of innumerable applications for land from returned men, at which time the federal government had not provided any machinery to cope with this phase of the situation and the powers of the provincial board were limited to such an extent that they had not been able to fully meet with the requirements for the returned men. This condition had resulted in more or less confusion and arising out of experience gained, by

BASEBALL NEXT WEDNESDAY

Baseball in Fernie has been very quiet for the past year or two but this year promises to be a humdinger in this sport. With four teams entered in the City League the baseball fans can look forward to some real games. The first of these will take place on Wednesday evening, May 14, which is the opening of the season in Fernie. This game is between the F.A.A.C. and the Old Timers. The F.A.A.C. has a strong line-up and all the players are young and spry, but the Old Timers also have some good material and expect to give the younger club a good run for their money. Come out and boost for your favorite team.

Milt Starts Something

Two games will be played each week and due notice will be given each week, so watch for the announcements.

The grounds, which are at the south end of the town, are in great shape, as the boys have spent a great deal of effort on them, working every night to get them in shape. This work has been encouraged by W. R. Wilson, who donated the use of teams and men to level the grounds and roll them.

The Way Carmich Used to Get Them

FOOTBALL NEWS

The football league games are now in full swing, some splendid games being pulled off this week. The G.W.V.A. beat the Teamsters by a very narrow margin. The G.W.V.A. have, however, some old Crow's Nest Pass League players, which strengthens their team considerably. Michel travelled to Fernie on Wednesday to play the F.A.A.C. and the F.A.A.C. went down to defeat 6—0. The game itself was very interesting and the F.A.A.C. will still be heard from. Benny Smith played a star game, also Teddy Williams. If the boys get down to more accurate passing they should make themseves felt before the season is over.

The best game so far was played last night between the C.S.E.T. club and Coal Creek, the score being 0—0. There was a big crowd present and the spectators enjoyed every minute of the game. If the C.S.E.T. forwards will get down to practice shooting in goal they will not be far from the top of the league when the season is over.

HAD CROWD SIZED UP

The Blairmore Enterprise in reporting a police court case recently sized up the audience as follows:

This case seemed to have aroused considerable interest. All thru the case the specious (?) municipal office was packed to the doors. In looking around the corridor and walls we espied Mike Rosse, the honorable chairman of the Blairmore police commission; Mayor J. G. Ewan; Sig. Cattano Bazoli, of San Frencisco, Cal.; George G. McCollom, of Carlton, New Brunswick; Frank Wright from Manchester, England; Lloyd Evans, from Mowddwy, Wales; Bill McVey and Shorty Glasco from the North of Ireland; sixteen Italians, a Norwegian, three Swedes, eleven returned veterans, two Finlanders, six Bohemians, two lawyers, four commercial travellers, a preacher, thirteen Nova Scotians and about twenty white men.

PRESS COMMENT

From the Army to the Farm

It does not follow, as the pessimists seem to believe, that because our soldiers have become accustomed to having much company, have grown to think in terms of squads, platoons, and companies, and have been working under orders, they will necessarily make discontented farmers after they return to civil life. There may be ground for the supposition that they will not return to the old way of living without having thoughts of their own upon the subject, but there are plenty of precedents for reform of an institution from the outside.—Portland Oregonian.

Britain's "Coming Man"

Who is the coming man in British politics? Mr. H. N. Casson, a perceptive if not invariably trustworthy watcher of political trends in Great Britain, thinks that it is John R. Clynes. This man is rated as the ablest among British leaders of labor. He is a member of Parliament, and was re-elected without opposition, no man caring to stand against him. He is controller of food and for two years a member of the coalition administration. He is called Champion Clark Gompers and Hoover combined. In some ways he is the pivotal man in British public life and on critical occasions he may hold the balance of power in the commons. He was born in 1869, the son of a laborer, and went to work at ten. His assets consisted solely of himself. Like Lincoln and Collyer he had the passion for books and begged, borrowed or bought as many as he could. Carlyle, Mill, Shakespeare and the Bible were his favorites. At 22 he became a leader of labor and an orator, building a small union to a membership of 40,000 and an annual income of $100,000. He is free from class hatred, holding that laborers and capitalists are natural friends and that both grow less unreasonable. He favors more machinery and production. He says that "anything machinery can do to save hands and speed production should be done." He has no more use for the proletarian dictatorship and anarchy than for autocratic despotism. He is loved and trusted as not even the Premier is. If communism and anarchy should attempt to storm Great Britain, they would find him a Gibraltar of opposition.—Spokesman Review.

Now Is Time To Build

Waiting for something better to turn up has ruined many men who have failed to see the opportunities right at their doors. We have been hearing of building prospects all over the country ready to go ahead with as soon as the cost of building goes down. But they are not going down in any degree that will make any appreciable difference in the cost of construction. Possibly prices may be readjusted slowly to a point that will make up the difference in added high cost of labor. If this becomes a fact there will be no real and sufficient reasons for any further delay in building. The idea that we are going back to pre-war prices is only a dream that will not be realized for many years, if ever in the present generation. Taxes must be paid, Liberty Loans paid, and Europe reconstructed. The greater cost of building is but a part of the higher cost of everything. We must train ourselves to forget old ways, old ideas of economy, fixed plans of cost based on the past.—Architecture.

Human Lloyd George

One may or may not agree in all things with Lloyd George, but at least he talks like a human being. He makes no cuttlefish exudation when asked to give reasons. He retreats into no fog of generality. He does not irritate his hearers by claiming he is open when he deems it wise to be secret.

The peace conference has seemed to many an assemblage of wranglers. Since the signing of the armistice 158 day have elapsed and those on the outside have seen new trouble centrs develop. The cost of delay has been so great that it is doubted whether the gains of liesurely consideration offset them.

But in one thing Great Britain is fortunate. She has as her spokesman, a man capable of dismounting from moral stilts.—New York Tribune

A Spot of Light

The war has taught thousands of men to "keep smiling." There was never a time when the lesson of cheerfulness was more needed than to-day. On all hands the horizon meteorological, political, hygienic, wears a black and threatening aspect. The man—and the woman—who keeps a cheerful face and spreads cheerfulness around is worth a roomful of legislators in times like this. Newspapers do but reflect the general gloom. They cannot, in fact, do much else if they are true to their purpose and depict the affairs of the world correctly as each day flits its picture by. What a joy it is, then, to come upon paragraphs which show that even now Englishmen are enjoying themselves somewhere! It does not detract from the joy that the place should be Germany. "Cologne Steeplechases" at the head of a telegram from Germany is a most cheering sight. It is well to remember in these troublous times that our countrymen are able to indulge their healthy love of sport even though they are temporarily, in the land of a recent enemy. "Cologne Steeplechases" should be a parable of good import.—London Daily Express.

"WIVES AND OTHER WIVES"

"Wives and Other Wives," is one of the best pictures released with Miss Minter starring. It contains many entertaining qualities. The action of the plot is cyclonic and you can hardly ever guess what is going to happen next, your attention is held on the screen all the time.

The story is of the comedy-drama sort, the comedy end of it leaning towards farce. The fundamental idea of the plot is the desire of the wife to make her husband jealous, so that he will show more attention to her instead of the newspapers. This, of course, is the cause of many complications.

The mix-ups caused by the miscarriage of the heroine's plot in a country house, to which all the offending parties have been invited and placed in adjoining rooms, are very laughable.

There are some thrills also caused when the jewels of a married couple are stolen by their chauffeur and maid. The latter had overheard the Mr. and Mrs. planning a fake jewel robbery to collect insurance, so they beat them to it.

It is a clean and wholesome entertainment. The new faces in the cast create a most favorable impression. At the Orpheum, Friday and Saturday, May 9th and 10th.

Rheumatism Every Winter

To be crippled by Rheumatism is to have life become an intolerable burden, especially in the winter, when the persistent cold and damp aggravate this complaint till it is almost unbearable.

Can you picture the dread that any man would hold winter in when all it meant to him was a yearly return of his Rheumatism and the agonizing pains that it brings?

Such was the case of Mr. A. Beaudry of Bedford, Que. Each winter he was forced to undergo the torture of Rheumatic pains, until he discovered Gin Pills. Read what he says about these little doctors:

"Every winter I suffered from Rheumatism, and this is the first season I have been able to go through without a return of my old trouble—thanks to Gin Pills. The pills are all you claim for them, and more."

Testimony such as this should convince even the most skeptical that Gin Pills do remedy Kidney troubles.

If you have friends or relatives who suffer from this dread affliction, tell them to try Gin Pills. So many people have written us stating in glowing terms how Gin Pills have relieved them of Kidney troubles, that we are convinced that all any person needs to do in order to obtain relief is—try them.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed land only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to the proper kind of publicity from us, could be induced to come through here. The State of California is very largely supported by the tourist travel to there, yet what they have as an inducement to draw it there is not one-two-three with what we have.

Since my return I have spoken along these lines with several of the business men of this town, and believe that I have stirred up a little enthusiasm. I was told three weeks ago that a special meeting of the Auto Club and Board of Trade was to be called right away to go into the matter; yet so far as I know, nothing so far has materialized ' and three valuable weeks have been lost. If we are going to do anything this year, for it to bring results, it must be done at once. The travel from the Pacific Coast States will commence as soon as the Snoqualmie Pass and the Siskiyou Mountain roads are open, and this will be towards the latter end of this month.

I was in Cranbrook last week and called on the secretary of the Auto Club there. He showed me a rather attractive little booklet they have got out, and which he was at that time mailing all over the country as far east as Boston and New York. On looking through this booklet, I noticed that they have pictures of Elko and Bull River which they call their district. Are we going to sit on our haunches and allow them to steal our thunder like that? They have nothing around Cranbrook at all sufficiently interesting to attract much tourist travel so they have to steal from us. Get the tourist there, and then if he kicks, make what excuses they can, but they will get the tourist unless we do something right away, as they are all strangers and don't know much about the place until they arrive and see for themselves.

There is no drive anywhere which can compare with the one from here to Elko, and now I understand that a movement is on foot to have that hill the other side of Morrissey cut out and a road constructed along the water level. That hill road in my opinion should be the one; the hill is not dangerous if ordinary care in driving is taken, and by cutting off some of that bend and making a wore gradual turn there, what danger there is would be removed. The views in both directions along this road are finer than anything to be found anywhere else in North America, not excepting the much talked of Yosemite in California, and I, for one, would very much regret seeing that road altered excepting at the bend.

My long experience in photography has taught me to look for beauty spots. The tourist guides I have compiled have compelled me to look for them and to visit all the much advertised resorts in Oregon and California, and when I reiterate the statement that our scenery here is superior in every respect, I do it without fear of contradiction. Fernie is the logical centre for tourists visiting the East Kootenays; we can give them everything they are looking for, fishing, hunting, climbing, golf, hotel accomodations, garage service, movies and churches, even hard stuff too, if they want it. Can Cranbrook offer any of these inducements, excepting the three latter? No!

Everywhere I have been I have boosted all I knew how for Fernie and district, but an individual cannot do it all, it needs concentrated effort and it is nearly time the people of Fernie woke up to what we have here, and get busy and let it be known outside. It should not be very difficult to collect sufficient funds to enable this publicity to be undertaken, and one season's returns would amply justify any cost.

Yours truly,
Fred Spalding.

GRANDEST ON EARTH SAYS THOMAS

Gains Seventeen Pounds By Taking Tanlac—Wife Also Benefited.

"I have gained seventeen pounds and the only reason I can give for my wonderful improvement is that Tanlac is an extraordinary medicine," said A. H. Thomas, a well known employee of the Wright Ship Building Company, and living at 802½ South 9th Street, Tacoma, Wash.

"The cause of my trouble," he continued, "started about six years ago, when I accidentally struck the back of my head a very hard blow. I paid little attention to it at first, but in a short while I commenced to have headaches, which kept getting worse until I could hardly stand them These awful headaches with the worry about my condition seemed to undermine my whole system and my general health got to be bad. My appetite left me, my stomach got in terrible condition and I was down in bed for several weeks. What little I managed to eat seemed to do me harm instead of good, and it would ferment, causing gas and intense pain. I was very restless at night; would doze off for a while and then wake up and roll and toss for hours. I was tired and sluggish all the time, and never felt equal to my work.

"I tried different medicines hoping to find something that would help my stomach and build me up in a general way, but I failed to find the right thing until I got Tanlac. This medicine has proven to be exactly what I needed. It has gotten my stomach in splendid condition, my appetite is fine and I can eat just anything I want and enjoy it. I don't suffer a particle with gas and indigestion, and I sleep so well that I hate to get up in the mornings, and I seldom have a headache. I am feeling fine in every way now and my wife, who has only been taking Tanlac a short time, has been benefited a great deal already. Its the grandest medicine on earth, there's no doubt about that."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

FORTUNE IS STILL SAFE

President Ebert's Government at Berlin has promised to protect the private property of the ex-Kaiser, of the members of his family and of his principal adherents. Emperor William knew Ebert quite well. In the earlier stages of the war and even previous thereto he had on a number of occasions called the ex-saddler and Socialist member of the Reichstag to his palace at Berlin and also at Potsdam to talk over various matters. Indeed, Ebert used in those days to go by the name of the Kaiser's pet Socialist (Raus-Socialist).

William signed the act of abdication at Amerongen, and shortly afterward received from Berlin, through the agency of Ebert, a sum of money amounting to a quarter of a million of dollars, though whether derived from his private property or from the Crown lands of Prussia it is impossible to state.

"Ci-devant" Emperor William—to give him the designation by which he is described in the pages of the 1919 issue of the Aimonac de Gotha—has his private property invested in all sorts of enterprises. Everybody knows of his estate at Kadinen, deeded to him by an admirer, and on which he established kilns for the production of pottery, retailed at big prices, at shops which he still maintains for the purpose at Berlin, at Frankfort and in other big cities. He was also one of the large stockholders of the Hamburg-American Line, and one o fthe naval members of his household represented his interests on the board of directors. He likewise held and probably still holds a large number of shares in the Krupps works at Essen and elsewhere in Germany, whence he derived enormous profits.

Another undertaking in which he was extensively interested was the Allgemeine Electricitat Gesellschaft (the General Electric Trust), organized by Emil Rathenau, perhaps the greatest captain of industry in Germany. At one time the ex-Kaiser had large investments in the so-called Princes' Trust, organized by his former crony, Prince Max of Fuerstenberg, and by Prince Christian Kraft von Hohenlohe. But wisely advised by the late Albert Ballin, he pulled his pin out of the game before it was overtaken by disaster.

Then there were the Kaiser's immense holding of land in Central and western Canada, extending over millions of acres, and carried in the name of the otherwise penniless Count Alvo von Alvensleben, and a few other young Prussian nobles of the same kind now interned by the the war broke out, in 1914, these lands were in danger of confiscation by the Canadian government, which was aware of their real ownership. But before the Dominion authorities could determine upon any action in the matter, the ownership of the lands was transferred in a very clever fashion to an influential American syndicate, through the agency of Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, who visited the United States for the purpose, in the guise of a commissioner of the German Red Cross. The Ottawa Government considered, it is said, the question of invalidating the transfers through the courts on both sides of the Dominion border, but was led by political considerations to abstain from any such move.

When it became apparent, that the United States would declare war on Germany, the Kaiser's property in the United States was hastily transferred to Argentina. It included large holdings in the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads and in the Steel Trust. Had it not been for these precautions they would have been sequestrated, along with other alien enemy property, by A. Mitchll Palmer, now Attorney-General of the United States.

Much of the ex-Kaiser's money is now held in Dutch banks. But his principal banking account is, curiously enough, with the Couttses in London, where his father, Emperor Frederick, and his mother, the late and English-born Empress, kept their private accounts before him—those Couttses who have handled the private accounts of every British sovereign since the days of George II.

Emperor William throughout his long reign of thirty years has occasionally been hard pushed for ready money. It is known that he has amassed a colossal fortune during and through that war, Much of these gains are beyond the reach of confiscation by any government that may be set up at Berlin.

With regard to the Hapsburgs headed by Emperor Charles, their private property was very large indeed, comprising mines, factories, distilleries and all sorts of industrial and commercial undertakings. But they were abominably mismanaged throughout the greater part of the reign of Emperor Francis Joseph by his cousin the late Archduke Joseph, who died a bankrupt, leaving the private estates and investments of the reigning house of Austria Hungary in terrible confusion.

In Russia every vestige of the crown possessions and private property of the imperial house of Romanoff has been seized by the revolutionists of one brand or another, and those of the members of the dynasty who have survived torture and massacre are dependent upon assistance from foreign relatives, a case in point being that of Archduke Michael Mochaelaiovitch, who formerly deriving very large revenues from his immense estates in Russia, has now nothing left beyond the salary of $6,000 a year paid to him as expert assistant for Russian affairs at the British War Department in Whitehall.

Making Germany Pay

Extremists in France and England and in the United States will insist that Germany is let off easily. The sum required of her will not cover all of the damage actually done on land and sea. It represents a part only of the enormous bills incurred by the nations compelled to defend themselves against German attack. But the people who think that Germany should be held responsible to the last dollar of damage and expense do not realize that their demands would produce a total so vast that no single nation in the world, not even the United States, could undertake to meet it with any hope of success. The indemnity bill has been framed with a disposition to let Germany re-establish her industrial and commercial life, so that she may begin at once to make restitution within the measure of her resources. It has not been so framed as to paralyze German enterprise. Those who would have it made larger would defeat their own purpose by driving Germany into a state of bankruptcy and dissolution with inevitably disastrous reactions upon the rest of the Old World and upon the United States as well.—Brooklyn Eagle.

GIVE "SYRUP OF FIGS" TO CONSTIPATED CHILD

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" can't harm tender little Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing at once. When peevish, cross, listless, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has sore throat, diarrhœa, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

Now She is Strong and Wel

Berkeley, Cal.—"I was nervous, irritable, no appetite, could not sleep, and was always tired, so my housework was a great effort. After many other medicines had failed Vinol built me up and made me strong. I have a good appetite and sleep well. Every nervous, weak, ailing woman should try it."—Mrs. N. Edmunds, 2107 Dwight Way, Berkeley, Cal.

We ask every nervous, weak, rundown, ailing woman in this town to try this cod liver and iron tonic on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to help them.

Gold Soap makes laundry work easy because it is the best laundry soap you can buy. Gold Soap is economical to use because it is better soap and because there is more of it. Each cake of Gold Soap contains a fifth more soap than the next largest cake at the same price. You will notice the size when you buy it. You will notice the quality when you try it.

Gold Soap is made in the Procter & Gamble Factories at Hamilton, Canada

GOOD SHOWING IN BUSH MINE

(Spokesman Review)

"The Bush mine, owned by R. K. Neill of Spokane and Canadian associates, is a wonderful property," said Patrick Daly of Stewart, B. C., at the Davenport yesterday. The Canadian associates of Mr. Neill are A. B. Trites, R. W. Wood and W. R. Wilson of Fernie B. C. The mine is above Stewart, at the head of the Portland canal.

Mr. Daly is credited with the development of the mine from the grass roots and with having made all of the discoveries upon it. He has had charge of operations since 1910 and will return to the district soon to superintend the development of another property upon which he has given a bond to Mr. Wilson, Mr. Wood and Mr. Trites.

"Ore has been followed for more than 600 feet on the first level, exposing values that average $100 in gold and silver to the ton throughout that distance and $300 to $400 in sections 100 feet long. Four crosscuts run into the ore from this level have an average length of more than 50 feet and have not reached the wall. The depth at the face of the level is 380 feet and the average depth is 250 feet. The possibilities of this vein are indicated by its width at the surface, which is 350 feet.

"Several shipments were made during the winter. I don't know the total receipts, but can state that the smallest lot, 200 tons, had a net value in excess of $60,000. The total value of the ore shipped during the winter was probably $200,000. The road to tidewater is being prepared for the use of electric automobile trucks next winter. This will make possible a large increase in production.

"Another level has been started at a point 300 feet below that upon which the development has been performed. The distance from the portal to the vein is about 200 feet and half of it has been covered."

The Bush mine lies but a short distance from the international line. A strip of ground lying between the Bush and the line is occupied by the International group, located and owned by Mr. Daly.

"Charles F. Caldwell of Kaslo, B. C., has acquired the 49 and Yellowstone groups, which almost adjoin, and the Eleven-mile, some distance removed and so-called because of its situation at a point 11 miles from tidewater," said Mr. Daly. "The surface showings on the first two are identical with those on the Bush and a cut 17 feet long disclosed ore containing $67 to the ton. Sir Donald Mann has acquired the Big Missouri property in this district.

"The district is almost circular in form. The ore is a porphyratic gangue and is very free. A third of the values are in gold and the remainder in silver. The vein has a good contact wall and indications favor a conclusion that it may be followed to a great depth."

recent amendments to the Provincial Land Act and the inauguration of a definite policy in this respect by the Dominion government, it had now developed that the situation could be met with fairly well.

The Provincial and Federal authorities are now co-operating in the administration of the problem, while the Board have established land settlement areas, one of which is adjacent to this city. In the case of a returned soldier he has the right to choose and make application for a tract of land where he believes it would be most suitable to him. He must, of course, show that in taking up land it is with the purpose of being a bona fide agriculturist. As soon as the application is received together with the price at which the land is held at and his acceptance of that price, a government appraiser will come and inspect the land, fixing the price if it is deemed a feasible proposition, and then the government will advance up to the alloted sum for purchase price and also for stock and implements. The policy, however, will be to concentrate the tracts rather than permit indiscriminate choosing of locations, as it has been found in the past from homesteaders picking tracts at random it eventually means the government is required to make large expenditures in constructing roads and the lack of transportation facilities is detrimental to the success of the land holders.

During a recent tour of inspection in the northern part of the province Mr. Nellens stated they had found in the Nechako Valley there were some 42,000 acres of arable land held by land speculators. Of this quantity less than 6000 acres were held by local parties and less than 1200 acres under cultivation, the remaining 36,000 acres being owned by parties scattered in practically all parts of the globe. It is the intention to remedy this unsatisfactory condition and place this land under the control of the board and make it productive.

The program of the Board for the current year will be to establish two more settlement areas, one in the north and one on Vancouver Island. All tracts in these are to contain 80 to 100 acres where practicable. The policy will also be to clear portions on each tract, erect a small dwelling, pay for the labor in making these improvements, all of which will be made as charges against the property but a long term at a low rate of interest is given the holder to redeem same in his own title. The reclamation project at Sumas Prairie, the speaker announced, would probably be completed within 90 days, whereby 30,000 acres of land will be reclaimed.

Dealing with East Kootenay, Mr. Nellens intimated that whatever initial undertakings were entered into, these would only be the commencement of an extensive land settlement scheme that will be carried on throughout the various parts of the province. It is the desire to start where they can meet with the greatest degree of success and same will be gradually broadened out and extended. After the problem of returned soldiers being placed on the land has been definitely put under way, the work of the board will continue along the lines of ordinary colonization. The local settlement area as established by the Board was chosen last fall but although negotiations with the present owners and the board have continued they have been unable to conclude the sale as the owners will not agree to release the same to the board at the appraised value. The matter as it now stands is at a deadlock, but Mr. Nellens emphatically stated that unless within sixty days the present owners had either sold said property to parties who could satisfy the board that they would cultivate and improve the said property along agricultural ines, or agreed to accept the board's offer, the board would institute proceedings under the Land Act to acquire the land, and then immediate steps would be taken to improve same for cultivation. He discouraged the suggestion with regard to five acre tracts in this section and advocated 40 or 50 acre tracts as it was suitable for hay raising, grazing and mixed farming. The lowest price obtained by the board for clearing the land adjacent to this city was $75 per acre, consequently the purchase price of the land must be quite reasonable, otherwise the cost would make it almost prohibitive for a profitable investment.

Mr. Ward, of Cranbrook, is the director for the board in East and West Kootenay and Mr. Nellens, as chairman, stated he would at all times accept Mr. Ward's recommendation with respect to lands in these districts. Steps are being taken by the board to acquire some 2000 acres of land about five miles from Golden which is not subject to overflow. The major portion of this will be at a price of $10 per acre and it will cost $25 per acre to clear it.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Jos. Austin, C.P.R. agent, is in St. Paul on union business.

W. R. Wilson is spending a few days on business at the coast.

Mrs. H. A. Wilkes returned the other day from a six weeks' visit in Medicine Hat.

Mr. Keir, holder of ticket 600, won the cushion given by Mrs. Duthie and Mrs. Harvie for the benefit of the Odd Fellow Home Fund.

The final whist drive and dance to be given by the Rebekahs for the benefit of the Odd Fellows Home Fund, will be held in Ingram's hall on Friday evening next, May 16, to commence at 9 p.m. Admission: Gentlemen 50c; ladies 25c.

Last Tuesday evening the official opening of the new club rooms of the local branch of the G. W. V. A. took place. The occasion was a formal At Home to which over 300 responded to the invitations sent out. The programme of the evening was a whist drive, followed by dancing, and everyone reports having spent a most enjoyable evening. Prizes were awarded in connection with the whist drive, the winners being Mrs. Hilton and H. Hill; Mrs. Asselstine and Guy Johnston. Immediately prior to the opening the 107th E. K. R. Bugle Band made its first appearance in public, parading through the principal streets.

Owing to other important meetings being held on Monday evening, the regular monthly meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction has been postponed until Thursday, May 13, at 8 p.m. in the council chamber. Several important matters will come up for consideration at this meeting, among them being a report of the Memorial committee, which is about to commence the campaign for providing a suitable memorial here to those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War. It is therefore urgently requested that a full attendance of the members of the Reconstruction Committee be on hand Tuesday evening in response to the regular call.

TRANSPORTING SOLDIERS HOME

A returning soldier on a transport in a Canadian harbor is not expected to philosophically await facilities of transport. A cheering crowd in an inland town, waiting for troop trains to arrive, isn't likely to be perfectly patient either. But a fairly large proportion of the workers of Canada—those engaged in railway service—are putting in long strenuous days, these times of demobilization, to get the fighting men back to their homes with the least delay possible.

Just how stupendous that work of rail transport is, may be surmised from the fact that from March 17 to April 23, both dates inclusive, this year, from the port of Halifax there have been handled over the rails of Canadian National Railways to interior points, 49,009 military passengers. This colossal movement required the utilization of 107 special trains as enumerated in this newspaper from time to time, and it speaks volumes for the self-sacrificing zeal of the rank and file of the roads that this total of almost fifty thousand men have been moved as swiftly and silently as if the total had been but a tenth of those actually transported.

Probably never again will Haligonians see such a procession of great ships loaded with soldiers in that magnificent harbor. The list, day by day, is imposing.

On March 17, the Carmania docked at 9:15 a.m., with 2769 soldiers and 275 civilians. The ticketing was rushed through and nine special trains were despatched in 6 hours. Two days later the Celtic warped in to her berth at 7:40 in the evening. She carried 2810 troops of all ranks. In less than 4 hours the soldiers had been forwarded, the actual time for despatihing being placed at two hours and a half. The day following, March 20th, the Baltic docked. She carried 3200 returning men, to handle whom five specials were sent out in three hours and 35 minutes. There was an interval of four days before the Cedric docked at 8:05 a.m. with 1802 soldiers passengers. Again four specials were moved out in two hours and 45 minutes. Next day, March 25, the Royal George, with 1388 troops aboard docked at 11:45 a.m. Three specials were despatched in one hour and three-quarters.

Then came the giant Olympic with 4846 aboard. High winds prevented her immediate docking, and the troops or most of them, had to be brought off by tenders. This proved a laborious job for all concerned, but by dint of hard work, special after special was sent forward until the great liner was cleared. This consumed a great deal of time, and, before there was much time to think about it, the Cedric with3520 men, and the Minnekhada with 2451 reached dock, both on March 27th. Eight special trains were utilized to handle the complement from the Cedric, while 6 were necessary to take care of the forwarding of those from aboard the Minnekhada.

On March 30th, at 5:30 p.m., the Regina docked with 1981 officers and men from practically every province in Canada. Within three hours and 20 minutes, 5 special trains had been despatched and the local units had been ticketed for the regular trains. On April 1st, the Canada docked at 9 o'clock. She carried 1351 soldiers. Three special trains had been despatched within 3 hours and 35 minutes after disembarkation; the actual time between departure of the first and that of the last, being three-quarters of an hour.

On April 6 the Northland docked at 4:40 p.m. She carried 1227 soldier passengers. Two hours later her complement had been forwarded, only 13 minutes passing between the departure of the trains. It is at this point in the records that the first prominent mention of is made of the large amount of military baggage to be handled. On the same date the Caronia docked at 8:10 p.m. She carried 3364 passengers and 8 special trains were despatched in 4 hours. On April 9 the Megantic arrived in the harbor with 1179 soldier passengers and 200 civilians, a total of 1379. The Megantic did not dock at once and the disembarkation of troops was carried on by tender, necesserily a slow, laborious process, but three soldier and one civilian special had been despatched in two hours and three-quarters. On the day following, the Lapland docked at 5:30 in the evening with 1974 passengers, and in a little more than three hours later, 4 specials were despatched. Eight days later, April 18, the Carmania docked at 7:25 p.m., with 2600 troops. Six specials were despatched in a little more than 6 hours. There is also a note in the records in the case of this ship about the quantity of baggage to be handled. Two days later, April 20, the Adriatic arrived at g:25 p.m., with 1841 passengers. Four hours later four special trains had been despatched.

Then on April 21 the Olympic was back again. She docked at 11:30 a.m. and carried 5572 military passengers and 300 civilians, a total of 5872. Eleven special trains were despatched within seven hours and a half, and a civilian special was also sent forward carrying about 200 passengers. There was an unusually large amount of baggage to be handled, but this is regarded as one of the best troop movements since the first of the year.

On April 23, the Belgic, with 3320 officers and troops aboard, came in a day ahead of schedule. Six hundred of these passengers were dispersed from Halifax, but the remainder were moved out over C.N.R., rails in seven special trains.

The handling of these 49,009 troops and civilians by special train movement is regarded in Canadian railway circles generally as a highly satisfactory performance, but it reflects especial credit upon the staffs of the old Government lines which are now the Maritime Provinces portion of Canadian National Railways. The railway service is keenly responsive to the great obligation of handling such large bodies of troops over long distances by rail. There is also a desire on the part of the trainmen to facilitate the movement of the trains with all possible speed, and the men in the operating departments especially as carrying, and will continue to carry, heavy responsibilities until the last troop ship and the last body of Canadian troops have been cleared from the ocean ports.

THINKS UNREST WILL DIE DOWN

"Canda has done, and is doing more for the returned soldier than any other country on earth," was the opinion of Sir James Lougheed, as expressed in an interview just given to the Calgary papers.

"All this agitation and unrest will gradually die down," said Sir James, "as the soldiers become aware of what their country intends and is doing for them. So far, the reconstruction plans of all other nations are largely on paper. Canada's plans are being put rapidly into effect. At a reconstruction conference of all the Alied nations, held a month ago in New York, it was admitted that Canada was far ahead of the other nations in providing for her returned fighting men."

The senator, who is a prominent Alberta barrister and K. C. is well qualified by long experience to form a fair and unprejudiced opinion in public matters. In referring to Alberta provincial matters, he strongly deprecated the recent attempts to play politics with the returned men, He is of the opinion that if they are let alone they are quite capable of dealing with all questions affecting them on their own say so, without gratuitous advice from designing persons.

Referring to the tariff question, as regards the Western view, he stated that its members are not seeking or making trouble, but are a unit in complete harmony; he expects a compromise, which will largely meet their views. Both on this and the returned soldier question, we must act as reasonable men and there must be give and take on both sides, but as to just what will be done, neither I nor anyone else can say at this time. Of course," smiled the senator. "there are some men like Dr. Michael Clark who think that the doing away with the tariff is the entrance into the kingdom of heaven, but I think the whole question will be settled amicably."

Senator Lougheed fully recognizes the spirit of unrest that is abroad everywhere, but looks on it as no more than the natural accompaniment of the tremendous European upheaval and believes that as the Canadian soldiers continue to come home a just settlement of all the apparent difficulties will gradually be achieved. Indeed, in the senator's opinion, the settlement is well on the way now.

"FIGHTING OPINIONS"

The London Press is beginning to take a sterner tone and talk of bombing operations against German cities and Budapest. Austria is to be starved unless she pledges herself to resist Magyar advances. It is proposed in Paris to send the allied armies right across Germany in a triumphal march which will end in erecting a serried line of allied bayonets on the eastern borders of Poland and Roumania against bolshevism.

This is all very simple and easy; but have these apostles of "thorough" thought of the message that Lloyd George read from a British general on the Rhine which declared that his soldiers would revolt if they were compelled to stand by and watch German women and children straving any longer; have they thought of the new American problem produced by the friendless of our boys for the Germans who "propaganda" them with Christmas trees, "kinder" and kindness; have they thought of Winston Churchill's significant remark that the French expedition into the Ukraine aroused the opposition of "the people" whom it was supposed to succor; have they thought of the risk of sending a discontented conscript, largely working class army into the midst of a working-class republic which will not fight but will talk and visibly suffer and play the effective role of the French dames des halles toward the king's guards?

HOME AGAIN

(By E. H. Shillito)

The same dull town, the same dark street,
The market square where women meet.
The same old church, where people pray
And worship in the same old way.
The same—O God!—it cannot be
The same again to men like me!
Through mists of blood I've seen the skies,
While anguish gleamed from human eyes—
And scorched within the fires of hell,
Have gazed on deeds no tongue can tell.
Heaven's highest peaks, too, have I trod,
And seen, in man, the face of God—
And all the time, walk in the street
The ghosts of those I used to greet—
The same! Ah, no! 'Twill never be
The same again to men like me.

London Graphic.

An American was twitting an Englishman upon the English manner of pronouncing names. He started with Cholmondeley, and demanded to know how it could by any process of reasoning be made into "Chumley," and coming on down to Wemyss begged to be told how anybody could get "Weems" out of it. "Well," said the Englishman, "your American secretary of state spels his name L-a-n-s-i-n-g and you pronounce it 'House.'"—New York Evening Post.

"CASCARETS" WORK WHILE YOU SLEEP

For Sick Headache, Sour Stomach, Sluggish Liver and Bowels—Take Cascarets tonight.

Furred Tongue, Bad Taste, Indigestion, Sallow Skin and Miserable Headaches come from a torpid liver and clogged bowels, which cause your stomach to become filled with undigested food, which sours and ferments like garbage in a swill barrel. That's the first step to untold misery—indigestion, foul gases, bad breath, yellow skin, mental fears, everything that is horrible and nauseating. A Cascaret to-night will give your constipated bowels a thorough cleansing and straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist will keep you feeling good for months.

HAD NOT THE SPIRIT OF SEA

The German commander of the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, who is reported to have said, after he had handed her over at Spithead, "I am leaving my ship like a dirty bootblack," did an injustice to men who follow a useful and honest business, says the New York Herald. There was little real polish and less honesty about German maritime methods, at any rate during the war. Indeed, it is doubtful if officers and men of the German mercantile marine, as well as of the navy, had ever caught the true spirit of the sea and of those who go down to it in ships.

Those who before the war travelled by the colossal and palatial vessels which made the journey between Hamburg and New York may have been impressed by the smart and heavily gold braided uniforms of the officers. They could not have failed to observe the punctilious attention paid to the salute and gradations of rank. They may have noted that the vessels were kept clean enough, though there were others cleaner; and their handling was fairly efficient. But somehow the seamanlike touch was wanting. There was, too, an absence of that frank, breezy bearing which belongs usually to seafaring men. On a German liner bluffness was replaced by stiffness, breeziness by arrogance and attempts at heartiness usually lalked sinserity. Nor is it unjust to say that the moral as well as the social atmosphere of these vessels was generally displeasing and that breaches of the Ten Commandments and the social code were more easily regarded than violations of the ship's rules.

As for the German navy, those who knew it in the days before the war haughty and supercilious attitude of the officers, and there was no naval service which was in less repute with the fleets of other nations than that of the once All Highest. There was the best feeling possible among the navies of those countries now included in the Entente, but it was almost impossible to get on with that of Germany, and wherever a German ship of war was in port there was generally trouble. It is not to be denied that on occasion German squadrons fought bravely enough. But that neither officers nor men possessed the instinct and pride of the true sailor was shown by the ignominious surrender of theGerman fleet in the early days of the armistice. It is impossible to believe that any other navy would have yeilded up its ships and have handed them over en masse without firing a shot; and it is a fact that American and British officers and men felt almost personally humiliated by the pusillanimous action of the German navy. Had they blown up their ships rather than surrender the world would have applauded. As it was they added contempt to the hatred which had been justifiably aroused by the foul deeds of their submarine commanders.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says the reason Cranbrook women have such big feet is because they are always putting their foot down with such terrifying emphasis, but they are good sports just the same.

Just come down to Elko and hear the meadow larks singing the glories of the dawn ond see the robins turning somersets in Riverside Park. A. Birnie's spring intoxicated calves do the do-si-do on College Avenue, and the business men so optimistic they are cleaning their windows; all but Fred Roo, he's too busy. It sure pays to advertise if you know how.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox, with their daughters, Irene and Mabel, of Macleod, Alberta, motored to Elko and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lou Foisy.

George and Bob Parnell, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wiliam Parnell of the Compton Ranch, Roosville Valley, who went overseas with the 54th, returned home last week, and are being given a royal welcome by the ranchers in the Valley at headquarters camp, Red Canyon Creek Copper Mine, to a big supper and dance on Friday night, May 9th. The ranchers are giving another supper and dance to Sergt. I. M. Watson, just returned, who went overseas with the 225th, in the Roosville School House, engineered by the popular teacher, Miss Jennie Nichols, of Creston.

Mrs. Saunders, of Travers, Alta., and son Earl Holbrook, came back to Elko for the summer and have taken up their residence in the Post Office block. Mrs. Saunders was the pioneer merchant in Elko and Earl was the first white child born in Elko, and is some boy on a trap line or a bear track.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Brooks returned to Baynes Lake last week. Mr. Brooks went overseas with the 225th and was in charge of the Adolph Trading Company's store when he enlisted; a man you don't meet every day.

Dawson, who went overseas with the 54th returned this week. Everybody knows him. Sold Robin Hood Flour and sings like a lark and recites the "Riders of the Plains" so that you would swear that you could hear the horses tramping on the prairie. He was reported dead two times, killed once, and lost an eye, well known in Nelson. Though badly crippled, we are pleased to say that he is still in the ring and going strong, with a smile that is worth framing.

Bev. King, for years with the Waldo Mercantile Company's store, who went overseas with the 225th, passed through Elko for his old stamping grounds. Bev. tells some good stories of the front, but said that he was just tickled to death to hear the blooded water canaries singing down at Baynes once more.

No Mabel, there is no hospital at Elko, yet it is a delightful place in which to recuperate and convalesce. It is a place where you can be happy and healthy and get rid of that grouchy feeling and resign from the crepe hangers' union. Come and look the place over, good hotels and auto liveries and beautiful drives. It it the gateway to the famous Tobocco Plains.

A lady from Fernie told Jim Thistlebeak that the miners are like charwomen; the better you treat them the worse they are. Jim says the next time his charwoman comes along he is going to give her a big drink of good scotch and watch how it works.

A lady in Nelson says she pastes all the Elko Notes into a scrap book and when she has a fit of the blues she just goes and sees what happened to Jones and why Smith left home. (Just cut yourself some cake lady.)

The American soldiers returning from overseas are wearing buttons with (We Did It) on. For pure unadulterated gall the American sure takes the sourdough bannock. It took them three years to wake up, still if they had got in any sooner they might have got hurt. A powerful British Empire is the best security for the world's peace. With the Monroe Doctrine thrown in, the British Navy has protected it right up to the present.

The arrival and departure of the travellers and train jumpers are held over for next week on account of the storm in Sunny Alberta.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Wilmot of the East Kootenay Lumber Co., Jaffray, with a party of friends motored to Elko this week.

Jim Thistlebeak says that if there is ever a prize for the biggest infernal liar in B. C. one of the employees at the Great Northern depot in Fernie will get it, and his front name is Harry.

Jim Thistlebeak says that the man that never made a mistake, never made anything. Take the mistake the mistake the American foundryman made when he cast the silver dollars with the motto on the coins, "In God We Trust" instead of "In this GOD We Trust."

There is great competition with the meat travelers now that butter fat is so high.

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try it! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a small bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

HORRORS OF WIRELESS PHONE

"There ought to be a limit set to the diabolism of inventors," complained the head of a city business. "This wireless telephony is going to wreck the peace of the one day a fortnight when I slip off from overwork for golf.

"The wireless telephone, of course, will have portable pocket apparatus. As a business man I shall always have to carry my apparatus as a habit in case I leave it at home on business days I shall keep foursomes waiting behind men on the course while I answer calls I shall be put off my play in competitions by an infernal bell ringing in my pocket just as I am driving off. As if golf itself is not enough of a nerve tension without——"

"You've only touched the fringe of the troubles that wireless telephony will bring on us," interposed the business man's friend. "It is going to cause a crop of slander actions that will choke the law courts. Don't forget that, if your pocket receiver is tuned to other instruments, you will be rung up at all times to hear communications not meant for you. You will leave a friend's home, for instance, and your bell will tinkle on your way home. You will hurriedly jerk your receiver out of your pocket and hear this sort of thing.

"'Is that you, dear? Sorry I couldn't ring you up sooner. That awful man So-and-So (you has only just gone. I wish Jack wouldn't ask him here. He says he has to keep in with him because he's useful to him in business. But he's a dreadful person to present to other guests. They say that his poor wife——"

"Oh, you'll have trouble too," said the other man in a nettled voice. "What about when your pocket bell rings and your wife asks: 'Where are you?' and you answer: 'At Uncle John's, dear, and I may be late,' and at once another voice chips in, 'Why I haven't seen him for weeks!' What will your wife say to you then on your pocket telephone?"

"I shan't know," replied his friend cheerfully. "Wireless telephony can only carry two hundred words a minute—the wireless would be jammed."

"The wretched things are only going to cost about $50, and that means that nearly everybody will have one," remarked the business man.

"And it also means—if I know anything about human nature, and if it's true that one will be able to hear other people's talk—that many people will keep their receivers constantly strapped to their ears and will wear themselves to fiddlestrings sitting up listening all night in case they miss anything. And yet some people hail wireless telephony as a boon to civilization.—London Daily Mail.

MYSTERY MAY BE CLEARED UP

Count Czernin's secret correspondence, soon to be published in England by the Committee on Public Information, will probably throw some light on the mystery of the Serajevo assassination. An Austrian priest wrote a pamphlet the other day charging that the murder of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand and and his Czech wife was the result of a plot hatched by representatives of the war party in Austria and Hungary. It is announced that the Czernin documents furnish no positive proof of the existence of such a conspiracy. But they are said to be full of details indicating a bitter hostility to the Archduke on the part of the Hungarian and German Governments and the pro-German military clique in Vienna.

There was reason for this enmity. Francis Ferdinand had become in a sense a partisan of the Czechs and the South Slavs. He had in mind the creation of a triple Hapsburg monarchy. A Slav State was to be erected and admitted on an equality with Austria and Hungary. This project earned the heir apparent the hatred of the Hungarian oligarchy. It was obvious that Hungary's power would be destroyed by such a recasting of the empire. The Slavs loathed the Hungarians even more than they loathed the Austrians, and the creation of a Slav State would strip Hungary of Croatia and Slavonia and her access to the Adriatic. The Magyars would become a weak minority in the new triple combination.

Hungary had therefore turned to Germany for protection. It was an open secret before the war that the Magyar oligarchy was intriguing with Berlin and holding out promises of the election of one of William II's sons as king of Hungary. Francis Ferdinand knew of these negotiations. He distrusted William II. and was openly at odds with him, just as he was at odds with the Vienna clique which controlled the senile Francis Joseph. He was consequently a most dangerous obstacle in the path of German policy in Southern Europe, a policy eagerly supported by Austro-Hungarian military men and statesmen.

It has been reported that in the spring of 1914, when Germany was already planning to precipitate a European war, William II. sought a personal conference with Francis Ferdinand and tried to win him over to a program of aggression in the Balkans. The Austrian heir apparent stood firm. Did he thereby sign his own death warrant?

Following this conference he was persistently urged to visit Serajevo. While there he received practically no protection from the police. Two attempts on his life were made on the same day—the second being successful. The assassin turned out to be a Bosnian Slav, and on evidence which could easily have been fabricated the Vienna Government charged that he was influenced to commit the crime by anti-Austrian propagandist organizations in Serbia. The secrecy surrounding his trial and the leniency of his sentence excited grave suspicions. The murder was joyously seized upon as a pretext for humbling and penalizing Serbia.

The Serajevo assassination has many of the earmarks of a Machiavellian conspiracy. It subtly served the purposes of those who wanted to start a world war. Were they responsible for it?

No detective story ever contained elements more dramatic in complication. And no other murder ever had such world-wide and incalculably tragic consequences.

A Great Hunter's Death

It was an unlucky spent machine-gun bullet which hit Captain Selous. Little hope was entertained of saving him owing to the nature of the wound. Selous died as he wished in a game country where few if any white men had ever before penetrated. Near a giant baobab tree, where nothing but the song of birds disturbs his sleep in the day and the roar of the lion at night, he rests, beloved by all who had the pleasure of meeting him, a gallant soldier and a world-famous hunter,—Buluwayo Chronicle.

FOURTEEN MISTAKES OF LIFE

1. To set up your own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly.
2. To measure the enjoyment of others by our own.
3. To expect uniformity of opinion in this world.
4. To look for judgment and experience in youth.
5. To endeavor to mold all dispositions alike.
6. To look for perfection in our own actions.
7. To worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied.
8. To refuse to yield in immaterial matters.
9. To refuse to alleviate, so far as lies in our power, all that needs alleviation.
10. To refuse to make an allowance for the infirmities of others.
11. To concider everything impossible that we cannot perform.
12. To believe only what our finite minds can grasp.
13. To expect to be able to understand everything.
14. To live for time alone, when any moment may launch us into eternity.

The Friend of the Poor

Our right to consideration as to a footing at the proposed League of Nations is not unfounded. Let us hope that Great Britain, whose preponderating effort and sacrifice in espousing the cause of the weak, contributed largely to the success of the war, will prevail on the other Great Powers to treat so-called subject races more humanely and equitably than hitherto, so that the millennium which Heaven has vouchsafed to mankind through their efforts may continue and thrive.—Gold Coast News.

World's Need of Quiet

There are so many wonderful things that might be done in this world of ours if the globe could be given an efficient entipyretic to quiet the all-prevailing fever. It must be apparent to all that the great stirring given to society and politics, trade and commerce, by the struggle, has brought much distress to the surface, and if we could only skim the kettle we would see a beautifully purified condition in the residuum. However, while the flames of hatred and self-seeking persist, and the mass still bubbles, there is nothing for the hopeful among us but to wait, and while waiting, do our part toward calming the patient's pulse.—New Orleans Times.

WILL FERNIE GET THE HEARQUARTERS?

the claim of the citizens of Nelson to have this established in their city is viewed with much dismay by the resident officers of that battalion in East Kootenay, in view of the fact that three companies of that battalion were recruited from this section while only one company was allotted to West Kootenay.

The history of the origin of the 54th Batt. is probably more clearly set forth in a communication just received from Col. Hungerford Pollen to Lt. W. J. Claridge of this city, which reads as follows:

Cranbrook, May 4, 1919.

Dear Mr. Claridge—As it would not seem practicable for more than one militia unit to be supported in the Kootenays at the same time, should the 54th Batt. be perpetuated, it would presumably replace the 107th.

The 54th being practically the overseas contingent and the direct outgrowth of the 107th, the suggestion to perpetuate it will, I am sure, have the full sympathy of all members of the 107th; and also of the members of the 225th Batt., and 41 Co. C.F.C., of which units the 107th was also the parent organization.

It was in fact the expressed desire of the original commanders of the 107th, 54th and 41 Co. C. F. C. that these units should be united after the war into one common 107th Kootenay regiment, which would hold their trophies, records, etc. in trust and be the military home of their members.

These matters are to be laid before a meeting of representative officers as soon as such can be got together.

Whichever unit should be perpetuated, there is no just or military reason for the removal of the headquarters or of interfering with the authorized rotation by which it passes to different centres.

Such action would certainly be as keenly felt in other parts of East Kootenay as it can possibly be felt in Fernie. Yours sincerely,

C. Hungerford Pollen.

Col. Hungerford Pollen is senior officer of the 107th and will shortly assume command. Major G. G. Moffatt, of this city, is second in command, with Capt. Mallandaine, of Creston, the next. Major Moffatt, held a commission and served with the original 54th Batt.

CHIEF WELSBY HAS RESIGNED

Geo. H. Welsby, chief of the city police, tendered his resignation this week to the police commissioners to take effect the early part of June. Mr. Welsby has received an offer to enter the mercantile field in New Jersey, where a younger brother has control of an enterprise and the inducement was sufficient to warrant him deciding to discontinue the police work and enter the new field. This decision of Chief Welsby is very much regretted by personal friends and the citizens in general, as in the performance of his official duties he has commanded unqualified respect of all, and his absolutely just and fair treatment of those who came within the administration of his duties have never borne any feeling of resentment, but rather it awoke a feeling akin to love, which is the only correct term which can be applied to the esteem in which he is held.

Nine years ago Mr. Welsby came to Canada and became attached to the provincial police force with which he served very capably for seven years, while from 1913 to 1918 he was chief of that force for the district of South East Kootenay. One year ago he accepted the appointment as chief of the city force and equally as proficiently fulfilled the duties of that office. Before coming to Canada he served five years on the Metropol litan Police Force of London, Eng, the city of his birth.

COAL CREEK NOTES

A portion of the $30,000 set apart for good roads will be spent on the road between Coal Creek and Fernie. A deputation consisting of B. Caufield, R. Johnstone and Dr. Workman waited upon A. I. Fisher, M.P. P., with satisfactory results.

The bird of the elongated legs paid another visit to this camp, depositing the "wee McGregor" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dougal McGregor.

Wm. Thornton and family desire to thank the Coal Co. for the convenience of a special train; also the residents for their sympathy and assistance in their sad bereavement.

The ladies who participated in the festivities connected with the official opening of the G.W.V.A. headquarters desire to thank W. R. Wilson for the late coach supplied for their convenience.

Fishing is fine in the Elk river. Guy Johnston landed a fine 5 lb. beauty on Sunday morning last.

No water goes stagnant for want of a British ship to stir it up; no air pockets are going unpenetrated if British air service can help it. We probably shal urge in vain for some salvaging of our deplorable aircraft programme and some hopeful energy in its maintenance; but we cannot refrain from a note of admiration mixed with envy when we observe the rugged initiative of the British, who, despite war losses, proceed vigorously to keep their house in good order.—Chicago Tribune.

VOTE ON STRIKE TODAY

The miners are voting on the strike question today. The point at issue is whether the companies will pay 11 or 12 hours' pay for eight hours' work. The entire matter should have been settled by the provincial government when they passed the eight hour law for outside men.

Controller Armstrong has ruled that nine hours' pay for eight hours' work is a fair thing as he sees it, but the district executive have asked for a referendum on the question of whether they will strike or not.

The ladies of the Catholic church are holding a Whist Drive and Dance on Tuesday, May 20th, at St. Mary's Hall. Prizes will be given and refreshments served. Admission: Gentlemen 50c; ladies 25c.

Next Wednesday and Thursday the great Nazimova will be seen at the Orpheum in "Toys of Fate." This picture is said to surpass her previous triumph "Revelation," shown at this popular theatre some time ago.

A MORALITY MEETING

The public meeting of parents called by the School Board for Monday evening in the Isis theatre was largely attended by both mothers and fathers, and the intense interest shown by those present in the topics discussed will no doubt have a deep effect on the future of the the youth of this city.

Sherwood Herchmer occupied the chair and spoke at considerable length on the moral conditions that seem to prevail here. He advocated providing healthful amusements of all kinds for the children and a more strict discipline on behalf of the parents in regard to their children. He then introduced Dr. Garner, who gave a long and instructive address on venereal diseases.

After the medical health officer's address there were a large number of pertinent questions asked by those present and it was decided by a standing vote to call another meeting for Sunday night and ask the police commissioners to be present.

Judging from the questions asked there will no doubt be a lively time in store for the commissioners.

MISQUOTED THE DOCTOR

The Ledger, with its accustomed inaccuracy, in its report of the public meeting on Monday evening, quotes Dr. Garner as stating that syphlis had been discovered among the school children. This is absolutely wrong. The Doctor stated that a few cases of gonorrhea were under observation in the schools. There is as much difference between syphlis and gonorrhea as between tuberculosis and a bad cold.

"FACING THE MUSIC"

Fernie had reason to be proud of her Amateur Dramatic Society when "Facing the Music" was presented at the Grand on Wednesday night to an audience which packed the house.

The plot centres round the misunderstandings which follow when the wife of the Rev. John mith, Curate of St. Andrews, returning to the flat her husband has rented in her absence, mistakenly assumes it to be on the lower instead of the upper floor of Mona Mansions. The lowest floor is also rented by a Mr. John Smith, hence her mistake. That gentleman is out when the lady arrives, and does not return until the following morning. He has been dining not wisely but too well, and arrives home somewhat the worse for wear, with a tale of assistance to a damsel in distress, a robbery, and a consequent loss of his watch, chain and pocketbook. In the meantime, Miss Fotheringay, of the Bijou Theatre, calls at the flat, expresses to the curate's wife her appreciation of the kindness of Mr. John Smith, the night before, and returns the pocketbook, which she had found. Smith, on his return, is horrified to ascertain from his guest, Dick Desmond, that his wife has returned and is equally horrified a little later to find that the lady "on the premises" is not his wife. However, she has his pocketbook, and her determination to give it to "her husband" convinces him that she is the unknown he assisted in the fog the previous night, and that he is the subject of a conspiracy to blackmail. Then the real wife returns and the fun is on. The Reverend John Smith, of the flat above, makes several sincere attempts to return a letter which he has opened by mistake, addressed to Mr. John Smith, to the rightful owner, with no other success than to become the object of a host of unworthy suspicions, including that of being a crook known as "Saintly Sam," and incidentally meriting the contempt of Colonel Duncan Smith, for any man whose chief drink is "sherbet and water." The Colonel, uncle of Mr. John Smith, has a vague impression that Mabel should be Nora, but does not allow it to interfere with his appreciation of the fact that she is a very pretty girl. Sergeant Duffell, a detective, called in to help straighten out the tangle, complicates it still further by his "idea" that Mrs. Smith is really Matilda Scraggs, a rather notorious character who usually masquerades as the Duchess of Piccadilly. Finally, of course, everything is straightened out, and satisfactory explanations close the play.

It is customary to speak well of local talent, but Wednesday night's offering needs no praise of obligation. In a play bubbling over with humor, the infectious quality with which the players invested their parts showed not only careful preparation, but considerable dramatic capacity.

Mr. Harvie's acting in the leading role of John Smith was no surprise to Fernie people, and his capably sustained performance was emphasized by a well earned round of applause following a particularly good bit in the last act. So similarly Miss Marion Corsan as Mrs. Ponting showed that she had no intention of resting on her laurels gained as Aurora the maid in "Oh, Susanah." The Rev. Yolland, as Dick Desmond, good fellow, good friend, but a little sceptical of explanations of noctural occurrences, especially when the consequences interfered with his breakfast, made a capital foil to John Smith. Alan Graham, as the Rev. John Smith, whose attempts to make "an abject apology" to his non-clerical namesake were constantly being frustrated, played the sanctimonious parson as one would expect him to and showed how completely one may sink one's own identity into that of the part one plays. Miss Flo Hammill and Miss Mabel Nelson, as "the wife" and "the other wife," made a charming pair, Miss Hammill playing her part with the dash and vivacity necessary to distinguish the character from that of the curate's wife, in the portrayal of which Miss Nelson's emphasis on the innocent and the demure were rightly placed and excellently done. Miss White, in the part of Miss Fotheringay "of the Bijou" is to be congratulated. In manner, tone and carriage, her interpretation was a distinct success. Mr. Crookston as the detective, and Mr. Beck as Colonel Duncan Smith, the former with his mind on the "idea" which some day is to win him promotion, and the latter with his eye for a pretty girl and his liking for whisky and soda, completed a cast whose performance as a whole left little to be desired.

The feeling with which one left the theatre was that here was something to be encouraged. The hard work put in by the players, and the genuinely good results obtained, for which the stage management and supervision of Tom Prentice were in no small sense responsible, were obviously appreciated by the audience and it is to be hoped that before very long another production will be forthcoming.

FALSELY ACCUSED

The following wires and correspondence in connection with the recent charges an investigation into the conduct of Wm. Gates and F. Warwick, while completely exonerating the gentlemen in question show a very mischievous and careless disposition on the part of the accusers, to make a lot of trouble and expense for the government and the accused without the slightest evidence to corroborate their charge. The accusation fails also to mention the fact that Mr. Warwick, against whom the charge was principally directed, is a returned man and one of the most prominent men in the G.W.V.A.

Sec. Martin, whose fine Italian hand appears in the correspondence, and who always objects very strenuously to anyone criticizing his actions, appears altogether in a new light, viz., that of champion of the cause of the returned men.

Minister of Customs, Ottawa.

Your official while in uniform and from window of Customs House shouted insulting remarks to two returned soldiers who had volunteered in February, 1916, and saw continuous service. Details go forward by mail. What action can we take.

Fernie, B.C., April 22, 1919.
Statement of Andrew Castelan making charge that he and Philip Jarutz were insulted by a Customs Officer at Fernie, B.C.

I, Andrew Castelan, declare as follows:

On or about April 9, 1919, I was in company with Philip Jarutz and about a dozen other men were all walking along the street of Fernie just outside the north side of the Customs Office and while so doing the window of the office being open, and standing inside of same was Collector of Customs Gates and Preventive Officer Warwick, the latter in Customs uniform, one of these two men called out and said:

"Look at the bunch of I.W.W.'s,

RENO WAS NOT GUILTY

Two days were occupied this week in the County Judge's criminal court hearing the trial of Roy J. Reno, who, it was alleged, retained in his possession eleven head of cattle and one saddle horse knowing the same to have been stolen. Seven witnesses were produced by the crown, while the accused was the only one to enter the witness box for the defence. The stock in question were conclusively proved to have been the property of H. H. Jenkins, of Twin Butte, Alta., and Robt. Cooper, Supt. of Waterton Lakes Park, Alta., and had been missing since last summer. Others in that neighborhood had similarly lost stock about the same time but only one or two head of same were located in the herd in which the accused was in charge. This stolen stock was listed as belonging to the estate of Harry O'Keefe, who was killed early this year in a railway accident at Wardner, B.C., and who is an older brother of the accused. The evidence for the crown was very strong against O'Keefe, deceased, having knowledge with regard to the manner in which the cattle were obtained, as he was temporarily residin in the locality wherein the cattle were ranging and a witness for the crown testified as to meeting him in the unpopulated Flathead country with a herd of cattle and accepted employment with another to assist in driving the herd out to Whitefish, Montana, where they were shipped to Rexford, Montana, just a few miles south of the International boundary from Newgate, B.C., near where a portion were now located.

Accused, Reno, at the behest of his brother came west from the State of Michigan last November. Upon arriving at Rexford he met his brother, which was the first time he had seen him or that the family had heard of him for over ten years. He informed accused that he was in the cattle business and it subsequently followed that accused started working for him. Shortly after his arrival about half of the herd, which at that time numbered 38 head, were sold by the brother and shipped to the abbatoir at Troy, Montana; the remainder were driven from Rexford up across the Canadian border via an unfrequented route without being reported to the Customs officials at the line and taken to the range on Gold Creek, where they remained.

The fact that they had been brought across the line soon became known to the Canadian customs officials and they at once took up the matter, first with O'Keefe, endeavoring to have him prove same to have been Canadian cattle, and thereby not subjejct to duty, and following O'Keefe's death continued the investigation with Reno, the accused, who finally supplied the officials with a list of the brands he believed were correct, but of which, three—capital "J" on left ribs, were accurate, and by these the origin of the animals were traced as belonging to Mr. Jenkins, a pioneer rancher of Twin Butte.

The accused in evidence gave a straightforward story with regard to his connection with the matter from the time of his arrival in the west and staunchly maintained that at no time had his brother informed him as to how he had acquired the cattle, only stating that he had been in the Flathead country, and being

OLD TIMERS DEFEATED

The new baseball park was formally opened on Wednesday last with a game between the young men of the Fernie Athletic Association and a bunch of Old Timers.

The ball players, headed by Jimmy Johnston and the local bugle band, and followed by a large crowd, started a procession from the King Edward Hotel and marched down Victoria avenue to the park, which had been put in splendid shape for the occasion.

The first ball was pitched by Dr. Garner, with Mayor Uphill at bat, Jas. Johnston catching and A. I. Fisher as umpire. Needless to say they all fell down. The ball bounced on the home plate, the Mayor made a wild swipe at it, Jimmy Johnston missed it by three feet and the umpire threw a fit. After this touching scene the professionals took possession of the grounds and considering the lack of practice gave a very good exhibition of the American national game.

Jimmy Johnston Catches First Ball

The Old Timers went to bat first with Kennedy in the pitching box and Billy Gates behind the bat. About the third innings Kennedy weakened and Scott took his place and played the balance of the game.

The young bucks started the game with Dufour in the box and Colton holding the big mit, but about the middle of the game Dufour was replaced by Sofko and he proved a little too fast for the old stiffs.

There were quite a lot of errors in the game, in fact most of the runs were scored on errors, but there was also a lot of good ball played and with a few games we may expect to see some really fine sport.

The final score gave the young fellows a lead of four, which was a just indication of the play.

FOOTBALL NEWS

Fernlea and G.W.V.A. locked horns on Tuesday, the latter winning by 4 goals to 1. The Fernlea club was considerably weakened owing to several of their regular players being on the sick list, but the game was clean all through.

Fernlea and Michel play here on the 24th May, and this game will be a humdinger, as several new fast men are on the line-up of the Fernlea club.

The F.A.A.C. and Coal Creek game was postponed and will be played at Coal Creek later on.

The Teamsters travelled to Michel last night (Thursday) and lost 4-0. Michel hasn't lost a game yet and will be hard to beat.

CANNOT TRACE 58,000 MEN

Amazing and staggering as the statement sounds, it is nevertheless a fact that up till February ,1919, some 58,000 of the several hundred thousand British soldiers who were prisoners in Germany itself were still unaccounted for. This fact was vouchsafed to a Canadian officer, who had reason to make searching enquiries. And his information was obtained direct from the various heads of the British Red Cross Prisoners of War Department.

The British government, either through returns of British priosners furnished by the German government during the war, by letters received, or from other information obtained, have definite knowledge that these 58,000 missing men passed into the German lines, and that a great proportion of them were actually in Germany. Up till February last, at least, the German government had not furnished any information as to what had become of them, although directly after the armistice the German authorities were ordered by the British government to account for every British prisoner.

The British government concludes that the vast majority of these soldiers are dead beyond a question, but there are no German records in evidence to show it. Many thousands were gassed or wounded, and must have succumbed quickly. A multitude certainly fell victims to the "flu" which raged over Germany. A host of others doubtless died of various illnesses. And a considerable number, it is known, perished of exhaustion or hunger, when, after the armistice they were inhumanely turned loose by the Germans to find their way back to the allied lines as best they could. But the British government is firmly resolved to get an accounting of this host of heroes who have vanished so tragically.

Since the armistice there has been a complete re-organization of the British Red Cross Prisoners of War Department. Lord Newton, the late head, has been succeeded by Mr. Grinell, who is directing operations with great vigor. The British government has demanded that the Germans forthwith, make diligent search, and use every endeavor to trace the missing 58,000. The government has also got a subsidiary list, containing a proportion of the original 58,000. Of the men whose names appear on this smaller list the British authorities have more details—information obtained from letters or from comrades who were with them in Germany, and the special co-operation of the Germans has been asked in trying to trace the fate or possible whereabouts of these missing men.

In addition to searching Germany for living prisoners and for the last resting places of those who have died, the British Graves Commission has arranged to make the most minute investigation of the old battlefields. In fact this investigation has been proceeding for some time, and a returned Torontonian, who visited Ypres not long ago, stated that he saw the men of the Graves Commission at work, and that when he was there they had discovered several identifications, though not those of Canadians. Not only is the surface of the ground being closely examined for identifications, but mounds, and what are apparently unmarked graves, are being scrutinized and if deemed advisable, opened. Gruesome as it sounds, many a mystery will be cleared up in this manner to the great relief of the fallen soldiers' friends.

For the present, the British government will not permit British relatives to advertise in German newspapers and offer rewards for information regarding missing relatives. Such action, it is considered, would tend to defeat the general plan now being followed. Private advertisers might induce the Germans to either withhold their information in the hope of getting higher rewards, to practice fraud; or, on the other hand, if they had been criminally liable for the death of the missing men, to withhold the information for fear of punnishment. The German government would be much more competent to deal with the matter, and, until it has had a try, individual effort will be discouraged.

The British Red Cross authorities discredit many of the stories regarding prisoners. The report that a lot of British prisoners had been spirited away to some island by the Germans has been disproved. The popular idea that many prisoners had been afflicted with a loss of memory which caused them to forget their names, etc., for years has been dissipated. It is said that out of 300,000 British prisoners of war there has not been one proven case where a man completely lost his identity for more than a fortnight. Stories which have gone about that the Germans are hiding and keeping back a number of British prisoners in deep salt mines and other secret places are regarded very doubtfully by the British authorities.

Germans doing so would run great risks of betrayal by enemies among their own countrymen in Germany's present state of internal strife. The British government considers that the Germans are evidently anxious to help them. The allies have not yet released the hosts of German prisoners of war, arrangements for whose repatriation are to be included in the peace treaty. In the possible event of a discovery that the Germans were holding any prisoners back the allies have plenty of hostages and will continue to have for some time, as it is stated that until Germany has complied with a number of requirements a proportion of the German prisoners will be held by the allies.

LUCERNE HAS THRIFT HABIT

N. S. Fraser, C.N.R. agent of the town of Lucerne, has written to the National War Savings Committee at Vancouver a very interesting letter on the subject of thrift viewed from the standpoint of the inhabitants of Lucerne, which is a railway divisional point with a population of 300. Mr. Fraser goes on to state "that the time has come when employers must take more interest in their employees, and now is a good time to begin. Get a committee of workmen at each of the plants and factories interested in the work, get their hearts into it and they will soon find out among themselves how much each can save."

Through the energy and enterprise of Mr. Fraser the citizens of Lucerne have adopted the above system, with the result that instead of seeking purchasers for Thrift Stamps, they find that they have created a demand for them, and each payday the employees come in for their stamps. Mr. Fraser adds, that as a matter of fact, Thrift Stamps have pratctically gone out of fashion in Lucerne, as the cry is for War Stamps; and the favorite purchase a book of ten War Stamps.

On May 3rd the town of Lucerne had run out of Thrift Stamps and had to wire for a supply, with customers in sight for over $700 worth. Two men in Lucerne have set a figure of $800 each, which will give them $1000 in five years; others take all they can spare in actual cash, and their purchases are increasing per individual per month. Up to April 25th, $2000 worth of Thrift and War Savings Stamps had been sold in Lucerne, and it is anticipated that the total for April will far exceed that of March, which was in the neighborhood of $2688.00.

A NEW NATIONAL MOVEMENT

Have you heard of the new national movement? It's the "get-a-stake-in-Canada" movement, launched a few months ago, and which is spreading quickly from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is both a national and a natural effort the wonder being that it was not started long ago.

The "get-a-stake-in-Canada movement is really another name for the War Savings campaign, the purpose of which is to induce people to purchase Dominion "Baby Bonds", which cost $4 and a few cents. These, which are just as secure as Victory bonds, are the "stake," which constitute part ownership in Canada.

Before the outbreak of war there were probably not more than 30,000 such Canadian stakeholders, now there are considerably over 1,000,000 and the number is growing rapidly.

"FLU" CAUSED 3835 DEATHS IN PROVINCE

Victoria, May 13.—According to the official statistics in the hands of Hon. J. D. MacLean, minister of education and provincial secretary, the number of deaths in British Columbia owing to the Spanish influenza during the period between Oct. 8 and March 31 totalled 3835. Of this number 2685 are represented by white people and 1150 by Indians. The total number of deaths accounts for about 1 per cent of the population based upon the 1918 reports of the department of vital statistics, which gives British Columbia's total population as 382,698.

Why Do We Advertise?

YOU may think that because we are big manufacturers, and you are only one consumer out of several million, we have no special interest in you, and you have no real interest in us. Nothing could be farther from the truth that that.

Our future as manufacturers depends in the end, upon just one thing: the satisfaction which our product gives to you, the consumer. And your satisfaction depends to a large extent upon the attention which you yourself give to the buying of shoes.

For, bear in mind this fact; no matter with what care we select the materials which go into a shoe—no matter how perfect the workmanship may be—it will not give you the full measure of satisfaction unless it is correctly fitted to your foot. And that is something which we cannot control.

We do insist that the materials which go into our shoes shall be the best quality possible at the price: we do make sure that the workmanship is as nearly perfect as our human organization can make it—but we must stop there. We cannot insure ourselves that you will buy the type of shoe which will give you the best service, or the size and width which alone can give you comfort and satisfactory wear.

And so we speak to you through this advertising—the only method by which we can hope to reach you all. Our object is not merely to sell more of our shoes. We seldom ask you to buy A. H. M. shoes. Our purpose is rather to tell you how you may obtain better comfort and better service from the shoes you buy.

Of course we hope that you will buy A. H. M. shoes, and we are confident that sooner or later you will do so. But we want to make sure that when you do buy them you will get all the comfort and satisfaction which we try to build into them.

Our booklet, "How to Buy Shoes" goes into the subject more fully than is possible in newspaper space. It is sent on request to any address in Canada. May we send you a copy with our compliments?

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

B.C. FISHERIES NEED SUPPORT

The value of the fisheries produced in British Columbia in 1916 was over fourteen million five hundred thousand dollares, and fish is one of the principal economic resources of British Columbia. There is, however, a serious depletion in the supply of both salmon and halibut, and very drastic methods must be adopted immediately or the industry will have received permanent injury. The halibut fisheries of the coast of the United States have practically disappeared and the U. S. fishermen have gone to Alaskan waters.

A few years ago the waters adjoining the northern coast and islands of British Columbia were teeming with quantities of great halibut. The fishermen have now to go seven hundred miles off the coast, and the halibut are very much smaller than formerly. There has been no sustained scientific exploration of the fishing grounds of the North Pacific; the information available comes largely from the exploration made by the U. S. ship "Albatross." Prof. Wm. F. Thomson of Leland Stanford University states as the result of an investigation which he made of the returns of more than 800 fishing trips in fishing vessels during two seasons "the fact of the impoverishment of the banks is evident in every phase of the above summary, the shifting location of the most intense fishing, the increased time and effort required to obtain a yield, the lowering of the average size of the fish on the banks and the direct comparison of the productivity of depleted and undepleted banks. The rate at which this has taken place is definitely ascertained and a careful examination of the possible ways of calculating it shows the correctness of that obtained through the yield per skate while at the same time the evidence from every source is shown to concur in the result. It is therefore believed that the banks have depreciated in yield by weight between seventy and eighty per cent each decade since their active use was begun."

The same is true of the salmon fisheries, particularly that of the Sockeye, which has been the mainstay of the British Columbia fisherman for the last twenty or thirty years. The habits of the salmon are altogether different from those of the halibut. They come into the rivers in the summer season to spawn. The age of the fish averages about four years. After a salmon spawns its life work appears to be accomplished—it then dies. Salmon are caught in the estuaries by nets on their trip up the river to spawn. They are in prime condition before taking the long trip up the shallow rivers. The production of sockeye salmon has decreased from one million eight thousand six hundred and seventy-three cases in 1905 to three hundred and thirty-nine thousand cases in 1917. In 1916 there were only two hundred and fourteen thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine cases. This deplorable condition of affairs regarding the sockeye salmon industry has been brought about by the indiscriminate catching of the salmon at the mouths of the rivers before they had a chance to ascend for spawning. There are other varieties of salmon, however, which formerly were not thought worth fishing for or canning —cohoes, pinks and chums. There were four hundred and ninety-six thousand cases of pinks canned last year and four hundred and seventy-five thousand cases of chums, which in the aggregate brings the salmon yield up to what it was in the banner year of 1905. If, however, some radical change is not made the same condition of affairs will exist regarding the poor varieties of salmon as has been brought about in connection with the sockeyes. There are many problems to be met in connection with the whole question.

One hears lots of criticism of the Ottawa authorities and great indignation expressed by the people of the north against the owners of the large canneries. Many people are employed in the industry and a large amount of capital in the way of buildings, machinery, boats, nets, tugs, etc., has been employed, and if a close season was established for four years, which seems to be the only remedy, it would occasion a great deal of temporary hardship, but it seems as though the matter must be met sooner or later. Experts say that the fisheries of British Columbia are only in their infancy and can be increased to at least double what they are at the present time, but there must be a change of methods and careful exploration of the breeding grounds both on the banks and in the rivers. There should be joint action on the part of the Canadian and U.S. governments for the preservation of the fisheries and of the exploration of the sea, the location of fishing banks, etc., as there is in Europe.

The herring fisheries are capable of great development and should be as productive as the North Atlantic herring fisheries, which are among the most important met with in Scotland and Norway, and are increasing in importance in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland. Flat fish of different species are in abundance in the North Pacific and will unquestionably take the place of halibut.

There are about twenty other varieties of commercial fish recovered in British Columbia waters, which go to make up the annual production.

SEATTLE MAN HAS GAINED 25 POUNDS

"I Never Felt Better in My Life," Says Bland After Taking Tanlac

"Tanlac has not only made a wonderful change in my wife, but I have been greatly benefitted by it myself. It has put her in shape to where she has gained twelve pounds in thirty days and now she feels fine all the time. And as for myself, I have picked up twenty-five pounds, and never felt better in my life."

This interesting and remarkable statement was made by P. O. Bland of 2724 Fourth Ave., North, Seattle, Washington, recently.

Continuing Mr. Bland said: "My wife has had one of the worst cases of stomach trouble, it seemes to me, a person could have, and everything she would eat disagreed with her in a way that caused her the greatest of suffering. During the past five years we tried everything we heard of in our efforts to help her and build her up, but nothing seemed to do her any good. Her appetite left her entirely, her complexion was sallow, and her health was all gone to pieces. She used to weigh one hundred and seventy pounds, but fell off to one hundred and thirty-three and was so weak she could hardly raise her arms. For one solid month before she began taking Tanlac, she was down in bed, hardly able to move.

"About the last of April she started on Tanlac, and the results have been wonderful. She has no trouble whatever with her stomach now. She eats anyhting she wants without suffering a particle from it, and has a splendid appetite. She was so nervous and miserable before she began taking Tanlac she hardly knew what a good night's sleep was, but now she sleeps the whole night through just like a child. Her color is clearing up and she is able to do all her housework without any trouble.

"When I noticed the wonderful benefits she was getting from Tanlac, I started taking the medicine myself, as had been suffering for some time with indigestion and constipation and was badly run-down. I had fallen off to one hundred and forty-two pounds and was still losing. I don't suffer a particle with indigestion now no matter what I eat, and I am always ready with a big appetite when meal time comes. I now weigh one hundred and sixty-seven pounds, making a gain of twenty-five pounds, and my wife and I are both glad to recommend Tanlac, as it has done far more than we ever expected of it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

VETERANS WANT BOLSHEVIK LITERATURE SUPPRESSED

....Winnipeg, May 13.—Keenly resenting what were described as the pro-Bolsheviki and pro-Spartacan resolutions passed at the Trades and Labor council at Calgary, the Army and Navy Veterans' Association tonight unanimously went on record as being absolutely against Bolshevism in all its phases, declared that the Trades and Labor Council in Winnipeg did not represent the true democracy and urged that all publications which advocated Bolshevism be suppressed immediately, that the printers and publishers be deported and that it be made a criminal offence to be in possession of such literature.

The position of many returned men who were unable to re-establish themselves in business because of financial embarrassments, which had developed while they were fighting for their country, was discussed and a resolution was unanimously passed demanding that the federal government grant the money that would enable them to re-engage in business.

One speaker stated that 10,000 copies of the Socialist Bulletin containing a letter from Lenine, the Russian Bolshevist leader, had been published today by the Allied Trades and Labor Council of Winnipeg.

Replying to a comrade, the speaker said trade unionism was all right provided it was run by sane men. If the alien enemies and pedagogues were cleared out labor could have all the trade unionism it wanted.

"We want the enemy alien cleared out, but the labor council says it wants to protect it. We are out for a show down. If the Trades and Labor Council back up the alien enemy, we won't back up the Trades and Labor Council."

SAFETY RULES

It isn't because there are so many different ways to get hurt that there are so many accidents, but it's because there are so many different ways of being careless that men get hurt.

Some men spend years in devising and perfecting a burglar-proof safe and some dark night along comes a "Yegg" with a little bottle of "soup" and blows that burlar-proof proposition to smithereens.

Common sense and experience work along together for years devising and perfecting fool proof machines, reasonable rules, safety devices and safety habits, and then along comes a boob with a head full of soup and messes the whole thing up. Still, at that, the finish of both yegg and boob is the same—disaster.

Sounded Promising

"Has that young man who is calling on you given you any encouragement, Emily?" asked the father.

"Oh, yes, father. Last night he asked me if you and mother were pleasant to live with," replied the daughter.

So Quiet

"Your new maid seems a nice, quiet girl."

"Yes, she's so quiet that she doesn't disturb the dust when she's doing the rooms."

unfamiliar with the geography of the country did not know whether it was in Canada or the United States or in both countries. Examined by counsel for the crown as to having his suspicions aroused upon his arrival finding his brother travelling under an assumed name, he replied that he could satisfactorily explain this if necessary, but it was purely due to family complications and the court did not insist upon the explanation being given. Other actions on the part of the brother which would tend to arouse the suspicions of an innocent party were alluded to by the crown counsel, among which was the fact that O'Keefe had registered under the name of Joe Martin when visiting Wardner in company with the accused just prior to his demise, but accused positively denied knowledge of this until after his brother's death when he admitted he had often wondered why his brother had done so.

It was shown that immediately upon assuming control after his brother's death accused had attempted to adjust the difficulty with the customs officials and had assisted in every way possible to this end. He stated his brother had promised him a half interest in the business if he remained and worked with him and while he had nothing to show that this actually was the arrangement he did believe morally he was entitled to same ,in view of having worked for several months with his brother for which he received no remuneration.

In summing up the case, the Court held there was absolutely no evidence to indicate accused knew the cattle in question to have been stolen, and that the only possible connection with regard to anything of a criminal nature of which accused might have had some knowledge was the fact of his having assisted the brother in smuggling, as it were, the cattle across the Canadian border, but he was not charged with this offence. Moreover, it was now proven that same were Canadian cattle and not subject to duty. He earnestly cautioned accused, who gave his age as twenty years, with regard to illegal practices and advised him while he was young and just entering his career in the world to strictly adhere to the rule, "honesty is the best policy." Accused was thereupon honorably discharged.

This remark constituted a serious reflection upon all the men and especially upon myself and Jarutz as both of us are returned soldiers having gone over in 1916 and only recently returned, and we are not I.W.Ws. nor are we in sympathy with this order, and to the best of my knowledge and belief were any of the other men in the party mentioned.

It is not our desire that either of the Customs Officers mentioned be further punished than to be reprimanded and disciplined, for this offence and steps be taken to prevent its being repeated.

Port of Fernie, B.C., April 22, 1919.

John McDougald, C.M.G.,
Commissioner of Customs, Ottawa.

Sir—I have the honor to acknowledge receipt of copy of your letter of the 16th inst., File No. 95948 addressed to Mr. H. Martin, Sec. of Gladstone Local Union, Fernie, B.C.

The foot note to this letter directs me to investigate the charge that a Customs Officer at the Port of Fernie had made insulting remarks regarding two returned soldiers.

I beg to report that I have gone very carefully into this matter, and secured first a signed charge, copy of which is attached, also copy of my letter to Collector Gates, copy of his and Officer Warwick's denial letter, copy of letter of R. H. Brown, Deputy Collector of Inland Revenue, testifying to the fact that neither Mr. Gates nor Mr. Warwick made use of the words; also that Mr. Gates was not in the office at the time and finally letter of the two returned soldiers to the effect that they were mistaken in the person who made use of the words, all of which completely clears our Customs Officers in the matter.

(Signed) H. C. Graham,
Inspector of Customs.

Fernie, B.C., April 22, 1919.

H.C. Graham,
Inspector of Customs.

Dear Sir—This letter to be considered subsequent to our statement made same date at an earlier hour to the effect that insulting words had been used regarding ourselves from the Customs office here on or about the 9th of April inst.

We have listened to and taken part in the investigation and the result of same is such as to convince us that the words complained of were not made by either Collector Gates or Preventive Officer Warwick but made from the office window by another party who was present.

Yours truly,

INCREASED PAY FOR THE N. W. M. P.

Ottawa, May 14.—Hon. N. W. Rowell, president of the privy council, has given notice of a resolution increasing the rates of pay of the North West Mounted Police. In future they will be as follows:

Eight staff sergeants, each $3 day.

Other staff sergeants $2.50.

Other non-commissioned officers $2.25.

Constables $1.75.

Trumpeters and buglers, under 18 years of age $1.25.

Working pay to artisans and others specially employed 75 cents.

Life pensions are also provided in the resolution as follows:

(A): Ten, but less than 21 years service, one-fiftieth of annual pay and allowances for every year of service.

(B): Twenty-one, but less than 25 years service, an annual sum equal to twenty-fiftieths of annual pay and allowances with an addition of two-fiftieths of such pay and allowance for every completed year of service above 25 years, provided that the pension shall not exceed two-thirds of his annual pay at his retirement.

The commissioner is also authorized to organize a Royal North West Mounted Police reserve to consist of officers and men who have served in the force.

Recruiting for the force is now in progress throughout Canada.

"EASY TO GRASP" TRADE FACTS

Our net debt in the Dominion before the war was $336,000,000. Now it is up beyond $1,500,000,000, over four and a half times as much as in 1914.

Interest charges on the borrowings of the country before the war were $12,000,000 annually; today they are seven times as heavy. There were practically no pensions to pay four years ago; today they total over $15,000,000.

These are only parts of what we have been called upon to advance for the security of living our own lives free alike from Prussianism and Bolshevism. The Dominion will pay these charges gladly, though naturally it cannot be done by reverting to what was "normal" prior to the war, the impelling cause of it all. "Normal" then, translated into terms of today, would be bankruptcy. These are the things the Canadian Trade Commission at Ottawa are earnestly trying to bring home to every man and woman, even the children, in the Dominion. They touch the very heart of our home and private well-being.

During the last twenty years we have advertised the glorious possibilities of Canada wherever men can read. We wanted immigrants. Yet it was exactly in the four-year war period that we were taught that our development does not need to wait entirely for immigration. It is well known that the productive capacity of the average man and woman in the Dominion was almost doubled. We learned the strenuous "art of doing more." We created more wealth per head of the population by higher standards of efficiency. The speculator, the land "booster" and the gambler in all forms of wealth were eliminated.

We learned to be self-reliant in the Dominion. It was the greatest lesson, perhaps the greatest benefit, which the war brought us. This is the quality which we must still further cultivate, self-reliance in business, in agriculture, in all that which goes to make trade and to hold it. It can be done permanently in peace times as it was done for victory. It will be compulsory, because no one else will pay our debts.

The waggoner in Aesop who prayed to Hercules had his own strength revealed to him when he was made to put his shoulder to the wheel. We are past the praying time in Canada.

There is no need for discouragement. The transition from war to peace is more complex than was thought. Yet the wealth of Canada remains today what we have always said it was—tremendous in its possibilities. In fact, the total developed value is probably about $20,000,000,000. The thing to do is to develop it still more. With an annual income which in 1918 was estimated at $2,500,000,000, there should be plenty of margin in our receipts for re-investing in national business for its expansion.

It is essential that the people should know that future prosperity hangs on the widening and broadening of trade; trade in all lines, agriculture, mining, fishery, lumbering and manufacturing. We could make or produce within our own frontier many things we import and so keep here the money we have. We could export many more things if we organized our medium-sized and smaller trades into groups, and so we could help pay our debts with money brought in from outside.

PROSPERITY OR BOLSHEVISM

Declaring that Canadian workers are now standing at the crossroads, P. M. Draper, secretary of the Dominion trades and labor congress, interviewed at Toronto, said that the workingmen of the Dominion "must decide whether they will take the road that leads to reconstruction, high wages, shorter working day, improved working conditions, better homes, shares in the direction of industry, participation in the profits of industry, and cooperation and representation on government commissions and committees as advocated by the Dominion trades and labor congress and the American federation of labor, or the road that leads to strife, riot, revolution, starvation and national bankruptcy, as they now have it in Russia."

CHANGE IN UNITED STATES CUSTOMS REGULATIONS

The American Consul here has just received a communication from his government which will be of considerable interest to parties shipping goods to the United States.

The Treasury Department of the United States is of the opinion that the quadruplicate copy of consular invoices may be waived where goods are to be entered for immediate transportation to an interior port, inasmuch as the interests of the government are thoroughly protected by having the Collector's copy of the invoice filed with the collector at the port of destination of the goods. The Consul has been notified that it will be unnecessary for shippers in future to forward to the port of arrival a quadruplicate copy of invoice covering goods shipped under bond for immediate transportation to another port. This, however, does not affect the privilege of the shipper, at his option, to have certified at one time, either three or four copis of the invoice for the single fee of $2.50.

WHERE WILL DOUKS GO?

The question now is where next the Doukhobors go. Having agreed to sell their lands in the three western provinces for soldier settlement, and assuming that the Soldiers' Land Settlement Board will be able to make terms with them at a reasonable price per acre, they will presently be faced with the necessity of finding a new location for themselves. That means either another move to some more distant part of Canada or an exodus to some other country across the seas.

Peter Veregin, the Doukhobor leader, said during an interview with the soldiers committee that he and his people wanted to live and die in Canada, but the pressure of public opinion has convinced him and them that it will be better to sell and move. The chances are that considerable hard thinking is being done these days and nights in the Doukhobor villages of Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

The Doukhobors have done quite a bit of moving since the first of them came to Canada in 1898, and several times they have talked of moving when for one reason or another they did not really go. Only a little more than a year ago, Veregin said their thoughts were turning back to Russia and intimated that, since the government in that country was then more "in line with Doukhobor ideals," they might consider a return. No one believed that they would actually go back to dear old Russia, and now Veregin says they couldn't think of it, for under present conditions they would be killed over there. Even stranger than a longing to return to Russia was the the appeal they made in 1902 to the Sultan of Turkey, whom they asked for shelter because things in Canada were then not to their liking.

Perhaps the most remarkable move these people made was in the fall of the same year they wrote to the Sultan. Failing to get a reply from him, they set out on a pilgrimage across the plains of Saskatchewan, just as a means of expressing their dissatisfaction with things Canadian. A thousand men and women, under the leadership of a group of zealots, turned their horses and cattle loose on the prairie, and with no more provisions than they could carry on their backs started on a foot pilgrimage to Winnipeg. Winter had already begun, and the erratic crusaders, who had an idea of converting the world before they were through found it a way of suffering. The Mounted Police finally intervened and sent them back to their homes in railway cars.

That was before Peter Veregin came out from Russia, on Tolstoy's advice, to be their leader and manager. Since his arrival they have been more rationally inclined, and have gone in for real colonizing, farming and merchandising.

The shift further west began in 1910, when 6000 of the colonists moved from Saskatchewan to British Columbia. They were discontented with the school and homestead laws in the prairie province, and were willing to pay good money for farm and timber lands on the Columbia river. It is these lands that have now been signed over, subject to the payment of a price, for soldier settlement, and with them will go all their other holdings in the west for the Doukhobors have not only retained some of their Saskatchewan lands, but have latterly been buying extensively in southern Alberta. Their properties in the three provinces total to nearly 60,000 acres, which Veregin estimates at a value of $2,000,000.

The settlements on the Columbia and Kettle rivers have become centres of a great gardening industry, It was virgin country when the Doukhobors went there, and they had first to clear the land and hew farms out of the woods and along the river benches. They have succeeded surprisingly well. Roads, bridges, houses and barns have been built; orchards and vineyards have been planted; brickyards, sawmills and jam factories have been opened up. The settlement at Grand Forks alone yielded a surplus of over 100 carloads of food products for the use mainly of the prairie colonies, which in turn produced grain by way of a fair exchange.

The only part of Canada now open to the Doukhobors is the way-back country, which nobody else is likely to want. But people who have prospered and bought themselves tractors and automobiles, will not take kindly to the far limits of the Dominion, unless the possibility of turning the barren lands, for instance, into farms or to some other industrial purpose should happen to appeal to their erratic fancy. What is more likely is that they will migrate across the seas, and Veregin has spoken of either Australia or South Africa as a possible location. In any case, we shall probably see another exodus one of these days.

His Business

"Then you insist that the officer arrested you while you were quietly attending to your business?" inquired the jujdge.

"Yes, your honor. He caught me by the collar and threatened me with horrible things unless I accompanied him immediately to the police station."

"Hum!" remarked the judge. "And you say you were quietly attending to your business at the time, making no noise or commotion of any kind?"

"Certainly, your honor."

Again the judge looked doubtful.

"And what is your profession?"

"I'm an appropriator, your honor."

"An appropriator? Of what?"

"Of other people's possessions, your honor. The newspapers, perhaps, would describe me as a burglar."

BRITAIN'S BIG EFFORT

General Pershing, Commander of the United States army in France, cabled this tribute to Britain: "Stedfast in adversity, wounded with a thousand wounds, Great Britain's hammer blows have never weakened nor faltered. But for the tenacity of her people the war would have been lost. To those of us who have been associated with them and fought with their gallant troops, words of praise seem inadequate to express our admiration. These things our kinsmen have done have brought inseparable union between them and ourselves. We offer our right hand of friendship that our two nations may be more firmly linked together to insure the future of the world."

Now that "Civilization" has triumphed over "Kultur," it might do Canadians good, as part of our Great British Empire, to realize why — to appreciate the wonderful effort brought into play by the Empire—particularly by Good Old England—that modest old backbone of ours—the poorest advertiser the world has ever known but the greatest of them all—industrially, financially, as an educator, as a colonizer, and as a benefactor.

When the war commenced the Empire had 70,000 troops of all sorts, many of them only partly trained. By May, 1916, she had recruited for the army and navy over 5,000,000 men (rich men, poor men, etc.) voluntarily.

Up to the time of the signing of the armistice he had raised 7,00,000 men, and her army in France was the finest equipped and trained army the world has ever seen. 4,500,000 of these were Englishmen, recruited in England; 1,000,000 others of them were Englishmen recruited elsewhere.

Britain's total losses have been 3,250,000 of whom 1,000,000 have been killed. Her armies (three-quarters of them Englishmen) have fought in East Africa, in Italy, in Egypt, in the Balkans, have crushed the Turks in Mesopotamia and Palestine, and latterly have held the greater part of the line on the Western front.

The navy, which the Hun would never meet, commenced the war with 145,000 men and 2,500,000 tons, with 12 patrol boats. She ended it with 406,000 men, 6,500,000 tons and 3300 mine-sweepers and patrol boats.

The navy has convoyed, the British Mercantile Marine has transported 22,000,000 men (and of these lost only 4391 by German action), and among other things, 2,000,000 horses and mules, 25,000,000 tons of explosives and supplies, 51,000,000 tons of oil and fuel, 130,000,000 tons of food and other supplies.

She bottled up the German navy at the commencement of the war and has kept it bottled up ever since.

The British army and naval air forces in 1914 consisted of 130 machines and 900 men. When the armistice was signed there were many thousands of machines and tens of thousands of men — they absolutely dominated the air.

England, despite her call on man power, by a supreme effort agriculturally and industrially, has almost fed herself. She has added over 2,000,000 acres to her cultivated area, 850,000 tons of cereals and 5;000,000 tons of potatoes, reduced imports of lumber by 3,000,000 tons, replacing shortage by 1,800,000 tons of timber cut in England and forestry work in France for the balance.

Her plants have clothed the British, French, Italian, Grecian, Serbian and other armies, and have largely equipped them with guns, rifles, shells and aeroplanes — even our American friends have been uniformed from her mills.

In addition to 9 arsenals, Great Britain now has over 5000 government controlled factories, all working day and night on munitions and supplies. She has increased her steel output from 7,000,000 tons in 1914 to 12,000,000 tons in 1918. 1,000,000 of her men produced 256,348,000 tons of coal, a great deal of which went to her allies.

British women — God bless them—5,000,000 of them, many of whom had never worked in their lives before, are working for their country in her need—270,000 are on farms.

Britain has spent $38,000,000,000 on this war, of which $7,325,000,000 has been loaned to her allies.

The Englishman has lived on 1¼ lbs. of beef (or chicken) per week, ¼ lb. of butter per week, ½ lb. of sugar per week, and has faced other food restrictions we can hardly imagine. Food costs have increased 110 per cent.

Colossal sums and at incalculable sacrifices, have been raised for the care of the sick and wounded, for the food and comfort of prisoners and for the benefit and recreation of troops at home and abroad.

And the British birth rate is now greater than the total losses of our men during the whole war. The population has increased during the war years,

Just as England's armies in history put Napoleon Bonaparte in his place, just as her navy in Elizabethan days broke the power of all-conquering Spain, so does she now with her children—the Scotch, the Irish, the Canadians, the Australians, the New Zealanders, the South Africans, and the Indians—and are we not intensely proud to be one of them — with wonderful France, with ravished Belgium, with Italy, and latterly with still another of her offspring, the United States—from the moment she came in,a guarantee of victory —so does she now help save this world from a greater calamity than any of them—the Kultur of the unspeakable Hun.

SHOULD FEED CANADA FIRST

A witness before the Industrial Relations Commission has told how meat produced in Edmonton can be purchased cheaper in Europe than in the Alberta city. At centre after centre, wherever the commission goes, it learns that much of the prevalent unrest is due to the high cost of living. Nowhere, however, as far as we have noted, has it exercised its authority to summon before it as witnesses those who would be able to give particulars affecting the prices charged for food commodities in this country. If the Commission pursues its investigation without exercising its power to subpoena witnesses it will secure a mass of evidence, no doubt, but it will be mainly from individuals not necessarily representing any section of thought, but who have economic theories to air or grievances to ventilate, and it is not at all certain it will get to the bedrock of the causes which make for industrial unrest. For instance it is no use the Commission finding that the cost of living is contributory to the trouble. That is axiomatic. What the Commission should do is to plumb to the depths the reasons for the high cost and be prepared to recommend to the government a course of action.

The people of this country are paying high prices for practically all the necessities of life. We produce enough meat in the Dominion to supply the needs of the people, but while our large coal storage companies ship quantities abroad, they, at the same time import other quantities from the United States and the Antipodes to supply the home market. The ruling prices are those which the people of Europe are willing to pay and in some cases they are higher to the home consumer. Recently there has been an increase in the price of beef. At the present time large quantities of beef are being shipped into Germany and Austria. The need for it in those countries is so great that the people there are willing to pay a high price, so that the result of this new exxport trade is to raise the charge for beef to the consumers in Canada and the United States. It is the same with other meatstuffs. Imports from New Zealand and Australia to this country could be sold much cheaper than they are, but if they were it would mean they would become more in demand than the home produce, so that the policy followed is to make the prices closely approximate to those paid for similar products raised on this continent.

Canada is shipping large quantities of butter and eggs to Europe and at the same time she is importing them from the outside for home consumption. They are sent outside because good prices can be obtained for them but unfortunately the prices Europe is willing to pay appear to become the standard for this country. The government is strangely lax in handling the economic situation. No products of the Dominion should be permitted to go outside under existing conditions until the needs of Canada are supplied. If, for instance, the government were to step in and say no exports would be allowed of a certain commodity until the demand in the Dominion had been fully supplied at a price which permitted a fair profit and no more to the cold storage plants, steps would speedily be taken to reduce prices here and thus bring about a resumption of the export trade. It is the bounden duty of the authorities to insure that Canada's needs are first supplied and that the home consumers are not made to pay the exorbitant prices that the people of Central Europe are willing to pay because their need is great. The war was not fought in order that the Central Empires should be fed at the expense of the Canadian consumer.

The Industrial Relations Commission will fail in its objects unless, among other recommendations, it proposes to the government that control should be exercised over the cost of living. On this continent ample is produced for the needs of the inhabitants yet the prices we are forced to pay to satisfy those needs is gauged by what starving Germany is willing to give the Allies so that she may secure the necessaries of life. Canada is advancing a loan to Roumania. The money is to be spent in this country but the prices Roumania will be willing to pay will be those forced on the consumers here. Roumania wants certain commodities and wants them badly and therefore is willing to pay a larger price. In Canada we have those commodities, and to spare and yet our people are heavily taxed before they can secure them. We say, and believe that in saying so the unanimous voice of the people is behind us, that our government should force all those who handle products to feed Canada first and to charge such prices for food commodities as are warranted by the law of supply and demand as operating in this country.. A short time ago our cold storage warehouses were filled to overflowing. Now bacon and meatstuffs and eggs and butter and a number of other commodities are commencing to move overseas, since the blockade against the Central Powers has been lifted. Long ago prices in this country should have been reduced because of the large stocks in hand. Instead, the experience is that in most cases there have been advances made by certain interests because they wish to establish an equilibrium between the prices starving Europe is willing to pay and those prevailing in this country. If the government has no duty in a matter of this kind, then we fail to understand the meaning of the verb to govern.—Colonist.

"TOYS OF FATE !"

"Toys of Fate!" What are any of us, except toys of fate? That's what a man says when he is "blue"—when things will not go right,—when destiny itself seems to balk him in every effort. But, as Browning says,

"Sometimes the worst turns the best to the brave—
The black moment's at end."

Well, that is the way it is with Azah, the fascinating gypsy princess in "Toys of Fate," in which the great Russian artiste, Nazimova, stars. When there seems to be no way out, —when misery has taken possession of her soul—then comfort with its healing power revives and refreshes, and love gladdens her.

"Toys of Fate" is vivid, vital, dramatic. It is the story of a child of nature brought into contact with the ways of civilization. Azah suffers, rejoices and in the end finds happiness and heart's desire. The great star is at her best in "Toys of Fate," a brilliant companion-piece to "Revelation."

EAST KOOTENAY I.O.D.E.

(Crowded Out Last Week)

The monthly meeting of the East Kootenay Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in Ross' hall, Waldo, May 1.

The Treasurer reported that the Royal Naval and Sailors Institute at Esquimalt had received the amount of $12.20 for tobacco and cigarettes. Soldiers' comforts for Canadians in England, $50. This was in response to a special appeal by Capt. Plummer. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, $40. Eleven spindles of wool, amounting to $57, were sent to the repatriated refugees.

In answer to an urgent appeal in aid of the Roumanians, a whist drive was given in Ross' hall, Waldo, on March 28, which cleared $32.55; in addition the Easter offering in the Anglican church, Rev. W. Madden officiating, realized $11.70; a collection by the members of the Chapter amounted to $135.55; making the total sum $179.80.

A dance given for the benefit of the Chapter on April 4, realized $36.60.

A donation of two dozen tooth brushes and two dozen tooth paste was sent to the Balfour Sanitarium.

The sum of $1 was remitted to the National Chapter for a jewel badge to be presented to Mrs. Gooderham, the President of the National Chapter on her retiring from office, leaving the Chapter with the sum of $200 on hand.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Truth is mighty — that is, it's mighty scarce.

FIRST LESSON IN GOLFING

(Toronto Saturday Night)

It may seem to the non-golfing reader—"non-golfing" is good, it sounds so scientific—it may see, we repeat, that golf lessons are unnecessary and a joke. No doubt, the non-golfer above mentioned has seen fat gentlemen in mussy flannels herding docile little white balls about with an assortment of deadly-looking weapons, and has wondered why anyone with the mentality of a Brazilian parrot should waste time over an operation so obviously easy and futile. And as for taking lessons in the matter—well, the non-golfer would about as soon take lessons in making mud-pies or rolling peanuts or drinking water, though this last is something that quite a number of gentlemen are finding it pretty hard to learn. The ability to drink water, however, is not a question of technique, and they are certainly not taking any lessons in it—none that they can avoid.

All we can say to the non-golfer who talks this way is that he has the surprise of his life coming to him, once he is driven into golf by the doctor's orders or the desire to get away from his business or his wife. Then he will find out—but perhaps it would be best simply to tell him what happened to ourself. It is not a thing we are proud of. But if the recital of what occurred just outside the city limits the other afternoon should prove a useful warning to any other sojourner in this vale of tears—well, what are our personal feelings that they should be permitted to stand in the way?

Having reached that time of life when a man takes up golf seriously—just as he takes up health-belts, nerve foods, and mineral waters in the morning—we decided to go at the game in a properly scientific spirit. In our previous experiences of golf we had just strolled out casually with a friend, and in a playful mood had beaten the balls around with the first club that came handy. If we didn't have a club within reach we used the crook in the top of our walking stick.

Naturally we accomplished some very extraordinary results—and quite a few that were not nearly so extraordinary. But one thing we did notice about such shots as we made, and that was the beautiful curve we got on them—an in-shoot that would have made Christy Matthewson go back to marbles. Every time we hit a ball that rose high enough off the ground to make it safe for a grasshopper to sit up in bed, that ball would start bending away to the right in a very beautiful but somewhat erratic manner. Several times we had an uneasy suspicion that it was trying to sneak around back of us and kick us in the stance for what we had been doing to it.

At first we thought that curve rather a notable achievement in its way. In fact our friends remarked on it. One of them asked us if we were sure we had never played golf before. Blushingly we said we had not.

"Well, then, all I can say, old man, is that in five minutes you have developed the most marvellous slice I have ever seen; and for twenty years or more I have watched the finest slicers in the world at work."

Naturally we were gratified—anyone would be until they discovered that a "slice" is about as desirable as a chronic leak in the gas-pipes, or Wilhelm as a given name, or a pet skunk. But we didn't know this at the time. We felt that we had a natural genius for golf, and that when we finally turned our talents seriously to the game, they could call in all old records for the various courses and tear them up. These would be even less useful than a 1913 map of Europe, exxcept for purposes of comparison, of course.

So confident were we of the sureness of our stance and the correctness of our grip and the smoothness of our follow-thrugh—we had been glancing hurriedly throuh fifty or sixty of the new spring books on golf—that we had no idea of seeking professional coaching whatever. In fact, we were afraid it might cramp our style. Our golfing friends, however, to whom we casually mentioned our intention were horrified.

"But if you don't take lessons you will develop all sorts of bad habits," they warned us.

We didn't know just what bad habits we could possibly develop. It is true we might lose our temper and admonish a caddy with a cleek, or we might yell "Fore!" at the president of the club, or we might bounce a particularly long drive off some poor fellow holing out on the green; but we would soon get over these little faults once our attention was called to the matter—consideration, that's us all over, Mabel!

However, if it was customary to take the Pro out and astonish him before getting right into the game—well, darn the expense.. Besides, we felt it would be nice to have a little expert praise. There might be some slight detail where he could help us—some little finishing touch, as it were. But as for the foundation of our game, we didn't intend to have that affected. We wished to preserve our individual style.

As we intimated above, it was a bright and bouncing afternoon of spring—one of those days when you feel that if you were to hit a ball as hard as you could, it would sail off and kill a cow in the next county. So we hustled up to our new golf club, and blew breezily in, and picked out a nice shiny locker for ourself, and proceeded to climb into our brand new golf outfit. Oh, no, not kinckers!—we prefer trousers that we can get into and out of without calling in all the servants to help. But a nice pair of dove-grey pants with a crease so sharp you could hardly see our legs at all unless you caught them sideways. A pale blue shirt went with this and a slightly darker blue tie, and—well, if anyone noticed a high-light on the landscape that afternoon the high-light was us, indutiably.

Not that our costume was universally admired—candor compels us to admit that it was not. Two elderly gentlemen, who came in from the course looking as if they had been out in their old pyjajmas digging a drain, glanced at us in cold disapproval. Then they went off to one side and held a fairly audible conversation about "all sorts of people" who were "breakin into" golf-clubs nowadays, and one of them asked the other whatin the world the board of directors could be thinking about. Later we saw them drive away in a big limousine, so it can't be poverty that makes them dress that way on the links. We begin to suspect that it may be the fashion.

We hurried out to the caddy-house—(no, Gertrude, they keep the tees on the grounds)—and there we found the Pro (short for Professor) waiting for us with four golfing weapons under his arm and a somewhat rebellious-looking little boy. He handed the little boy two of the things for us.

"Are these all the golf sticks you are bringing?" we asked in consternation, for naturally we had expected to employ all the resources of golfing artillery.

The Pro winced a little at the word "sticks," as if an old wound had just then given him a twinge; but he answered in a mild and even pensive tone.

"Probably you will find, sir, that these two clubs will be enough for today," he said, with just a slight pause on the word "clubs" to let it filter throughour intelligence.

We got it all right, and we blushed for we suddenly recalled a friend of ours once telling us that a man who would talk of a golf-club as a "stick" in Scotland could be sentenced to solitary confinement in the dungeons of Edinburgh Castle. It was a worse misdemeanor, he said, than trying to borrow tobacco.

The Pro led us down a winding mountain trail to a secluded spot in the valley. We would have preferred to give our exhibition right in front of the club-house; but it occurred to us that perhaps he did not want our skill to be too great a discouragement to any other new members that might be about. We went willingly enough, but we did not altogether like the idea of having to climb up again in a few minutes to begin our triumphant round of the course.

There was a tree on the far side of a steep hill, where none but the ear of the Recording Angel could hear the remarks one might make in one's anguish of mind. It was a very badly battered tee with the ground torn and gouged in all directions, as though the Germans had been removing a village church. Evidently there had been aterrible struggle there at one time.

The Pro said it was the practice groun,d and then he handed us one of the sticks—no, no, clubs— and made us grip it near the end with our left hand and then with our right in the stiffest and most awkward fashion ever known to man. Next he made us swing it up over our shoulder keeping both arms almost straight. It sounds easy, but try it, dear reader, try it—that's all we have to say. If it doesn't make you feel and look like one of those dwarf pines the Japanese torture into strange shapes, we will eat a couple of golf balls.

"That's fine," said the Pro in his most soothing tone, "but you must not be so rigid. You must relax while you are doing it."

Relax!—Good Lord, that was the crowning insult. Relax while your left shoulder is gouging your Adam's apple, while your left knee is dislocated, and you can feel both your kidneys working loose from their moorings! We smiled a wintry smile and promised to wag an ear from time to time—it was the only part of us that didn't feel paralyzed.

"Now bring the club down with a full swing," said the Pro, "and hit the ground a sharp slap."

The thing seemed almost childish, but we decided to humor him. So we swung. It was so good to get some action that we swung ourself right off our feet. But we didn't hit the ground—it must have dodged when it saw the club coming. We tried again, and still it eluded us.

"Club seems a little short, doesn't it?" we asked.

He said it was probably short for us, and we would do much better when we had our own clubs — nice fellows, Pro's!—but would we please try again? We did, and at about the sixth try we really connected. We connected with a vengeance. Burying the head of the club in the ground, we nearly jarred the whole tee loose—also our teeth. If there had been a golf ball there it would have come out on the fairway of one of the golf courses near Melbourne, Australia.

"Very good, very good, indeed," said the Professor, "and now I'll give you a tee to hit."

He stuck up a little triangular gob of wet sand, and the second stage of our humiliation began. We dug up the ground all round the thing. We dug out a complete system of approach and firing trenches. We filled the air with turf and clay. And through it all that infernal tee stood serene and unshaken. Heaven only knows how far the work of excavation would have gone—we were to the knees when the Pro stopped us.

"Perhaps we had better try a ball" he said gently, putting one on the tee.

Our self-confidence returned to us. We heaved a sigh of relief. At last we were to be given a chance. Taking a new grip of the club, we glanced over to see if the little boy was standing far enough away — it occurred to us that it might have been well to equip him with binoculars. Slowly and resolutely we raised the lethal weapon, and—but perhaps we had better tell about that some other day when we feel stronger.

BOMB MAKERS HARD TO FIND

It was due to a clerk in the New York postoffice that the widespread plot against a score of prominent American citizens miscarried. This clerk, whose name is Kaplan, was on his way home early in the morning when he read in the paper a dispatch that described the outrage upon ex-Senator Hardwick, and remembered that he had seen in the postoffice a number of packages corresponding to the description of the containing the bomb that exploded in the ex-Senator's home. Rushing back to the office he gave the alarm and the rest of the bombs were taken in charge by the police. Mere chance saved several people from death or injury, and this prompts the New York Times to the reflection that of all desperate criminals the man who makes and mails bombs is least likely to be detected. He works in comparative safety, his only danger being that some day when he is making a bomb it will explode and Nemesis thus overtake him. The point is well illustrated in the career of Henry Klotz, one of the most infamous of modern murderers.

Klotz was the sort of man, in the opinion of the Times, who would have delighted Edgar Allen Poe. He also would have delighted Hangman Ellis. He was employed in the Bureau of Highways, in Brooklyn, and was one of the quitest and most polite of men. He was rather a retiring chap, and when not at work he was at home. About the only fault that could be found with him apart from his instinct for indiscriminate murder, was his retiring nature. He seemed to take too little interest in the things around him. When it was discovered that he was a frequent bomb-sender, the astonishment of his friends was tremendous. It was as though the prohibition leader had been found operating a still. Murder was his amusement. He murdered or tried to murder a number of people. Some of them he had never seen. Some were people of prominence, who had taken a course that seemed to Henry Klotz to call for rebuke in the form of an infernal machine. Others were casual acquaintances. It was not necessary for one to have offended Henry Klotz to be favored by a parcel from him. That the man was insane on this point there is little doubt. He killed for the sake of the excitement in reading the horrible details in the next day's newspapers.

In 1906 a fellow employee of Klotz's received a bomb that blew off one of his fingers. Perhaps the bomb was a crude affair and the sender resolved to kill no more until he had perfected his weapon. At any rate he is supposed to have sent no more bombs until 1912. In that year he sent a bomb to a woman named Grace Walker and she was blown to pieces the police having not the slightest clue to the cause of the murder. Then he sent a bomb to Judge Otto Rosalsky, whose name he had seen in the paper when the judge sentenced Foulke Brandt, the blackmailer. The bomb partly wrecked the judge's house and blew off several fingers of Inspector Owen Eagan of the Bureau of Combustibles. The police were at their wits' end, for it was obvious that the three bombs had been made and sent by the same hand, but they had not a clue. Inspecor Egan said then that it was extremely unlikely that the bomber would ever be discovered unless it happened that he was himself injured when making a bomb.

Before this happy day could arrive, Klotz sent another bomb to an apartment house two blocks away from his own home, and it killed Mrs. Madeline Herrera, the janitor's wife, and injured two other people. This was in February, 1913. On March 22 Klotz tried to make another bomb, and blew himself up. He lived long enough for the police to make sure that it was he who had sent all the bombs, for the man had been witless enough to keep a diary in which he set down his experiments in bomb-making and murder. On July 4, two anarchists, named Arthur Caron and Karl Hensen, were killed when a bomb made by Carson exploded in their hands. Three women and four men were also seriously injured. This bomb was intended no doubt for John D. Rockefeller, for a short time before the anarchists had been chased out of Tarrytown where they were making speeches against Rockefeller, by the police. But the most famous bomb-throwing history of this continent was that in Chicago in May, 1886, and known to fame as the Haymarket bomb outrage.

When the police were attempting to disperse a crowd of anarchists a man named Rudolph Schenault threw a bomb into their ranks and seven policemen were killed. Many arrests were made, but the bomb-thrower was not caught. Eventually the police got hold of Louis Lingg, the man who made the bomb, and he was tried and sentenced to death. He evaded the court's decree by blowing his head off with a home-made bomb. Such instances do not give the Times any reason to believe that city police are likely to apprehend the men who failed in the wholesale murder plot last week, although arrests have already been made. In New York, at any rate, the habit is to call off detectives from special cases when public excitement is abated, for new crimes are constantly demanding their attention. It is different, however, with the special forces of detectives employed by the Secret Service and the Post Office department. Cases are on record where these sleuths have remained on a single case as long as seven years, and have at last made an arrest when the memory of the crime had completely faded from the public mind.

NEGRO SOLDIES CAUSE LAUGHS

A collection of stories is published in the New York Times Magazine of some of the things that happened to the negro soldiers of the 369th infantry, a New York regiment under the command of Col. Wm. Hayward in France. Here are a few of the best anecdotes:

"Would you like to be in the afrplane service?" an officer asked one of the negroes while he was watching a French machine sailing overhead.

"No, suh, not fo' mine," was the rejoinder.

"Why?" the officer asked.

"Well, you see, ef I was up in dat dah machine an' de officer got kilt I'd have to git out and crank up de engine, wouldn't I? I wouldn't have nothin' to stan' on."

In one of the first trenches were 5000 negro troops supported at some distance in the rear by a force of whites 10,000 strong. A newly arrived negro trooper, who was visibly nervous, was being "kidded" mercilessly by his companions.

"What's you do, Hennery," one of the tormentors asked, "ef ten million o' dem bush Germans wuz to pop up outen de groun' right 'buot as close to you as nineteen is to twenty?"

"I ain't a-tellin' what I'd do," Hennery answered, "but I know what de res' o' you niggahs would do, an' I know whut the papers back home would be sayin' the nex' mornin'. Dey'd have big headlines: "Ten thousand white folks trampled to death."

One force of negroes was quartered next to a division of Moroccans, who had a perpetual feud with a regiment of Singhalese near by. The Moroccans are mulatto in color, while the Singhalese are as black as most of the members of Col. Hayward's old regiment. This fact was really at the bottom of the feud. On one occasion Col. Hayward wanted to send a messenger to the Moroccan commander and chose three of his own men to deliver it.

As the messengers approached the Moroccan camp the latter mistook them for the despised Singhalese. They rushed from their dugouts brandishing guns, knives and pistols, and with wild shouts warned the strangers not to come near. The New Yorkers beat a hasty retreat, and when Col. Hayward demanded of one what the trouble was he replied:

The Moroccan division occupied the same position for months, and during that time managed to collect a large number of German marks, each coin being worth about sixteen cents. The New York troops spent their energies in collecting French francs. Whenever they were able to do so they exchanged their francs for the German coin. Col. Hayward asked one of his men why he did this.

"Why, we's gwine to spen' it in Germany of cose," the doughboy replied. "Ain't dat whah we's a-wine?"

A group of colored Harlemites was standing in the mess line when several German planes suddenly appeared overhead. In half a minute the line had melted to one man, the Top Sergeant.

"Is you jjes' plumb crazy or don't you know nothin'?" the sergeant remonstrated when the men returned.

"Well, boss," replied the courageous Sam, "Heaven is a long ways from France, an' I ain't no hand to go travelin' on an empty stummick."

A lieutenant inquired of a homesick youth why he was so anxious to get aback home. "Aren't you being used all right? Did you ever see such pretty girls in your life?"

"I's beiin' used all right and de French ladies is sho easy to look at," was the reply, "but my heart's jes natchally yeahini' fo' de little O.D. gal I lef' in Alabam.'"

George Washington Johnson was rather an obstreperous patient in an English hospital.

"I don't know why it is," complained the exasperated nurse, "but you colored men give us more trouble than all the rest put together."

A negro doughboy was clad in white pyjamas one night when the camp was surprised by German bombers. Everybody headed for his own dugout and Sam had some distance to travel.

"What did you do?" he was asked the next morning.

"Easy," he replied. "De Good Lawd has gimme de bes' cammyfladge in the world. I dropt dem pajamies right whar I stood an' made de res' o' de trip in my birfday clo'es."

MAY AND JUNE DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

COAL CREEK NOTES

(Crowded Out Last Week)

The thanks of the returned men residing in this camp are tendered to General Manager Wilson for his generous offer re rents, as given out by the President of the G.W.V.A.

Mrs. James Corrigan was the guest of her mother, Mrs. Nee, on Thursday.

Sgt. J. Mitchell, D.C.M., returned from overseas and was visiting relatives and renewing old acquaintances.

Thursday was pay day and the mines were idle from Wednesday midnight until Thursday midnight.

Mrs. Jos. Gillies was visiting in this camp on Tuesday, being the guest of her sister, Mrs. R. Johnstone.

Ed. Shimmans returned from the coast on Tuesday, where he has been undergoing treatment at Shaughnessy military hospital since his return from overseas.

The intricacies of a pipe line compelled our old friend Joe to utilize a raft for convenience. Some place to shoot the rapids.

Coal Creek must be on the map as evidenced by the number of automobilists who were here this week.

The Club up here is running again on pre-war rules.

The death took place on Tuesday afternoon of Mrs. Wm. Thornton, of Fernie, at the home of her son William, of Riverside avenue. The deceased lady had been suffering for a long time. The funeral took place today(Friday), a special train leaving Coal Creek at 2.40 p.m., to convey the cortege to St. Margaret's cemetery. The sympathies of the residents are extended to the bereaved husband and family. One son, David, is in the hospital at Vancouver.

FLU IN THE BOUNDARY

Travelers this week from the Boundary state that the flu epidemic has broken out again, Phoenix having 36 cases and one death. There being no doctor there, Dr. Truax, of Grand Forks, is in attendance. Around Rock Creek there are 60 cases reported, and a number in Greenwood and Grand Forks.

Everything possible is being done to combat the new outbreak of the malady.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Now that the peace terms have been handed to Germany the papers are all wondering if Germany will sign. But what is bothering the people in B.C. most is "Will the Oliver government re-sign?"

Corpl. Johnson and Const. Jackson, of the R.N.W.M.P., were in Elko last week and also visited Kootenay river points, going south to Gateway. At Gateway they met several distinguished Americans, also the Bureau de Information. Both gentlemen and scholars they gave certain information that might be very valuable to Washington, D.C., in case the United States should get into trouble with Mexico.

Miss M. Anderson, of Edmonton, arrived in Elko on Sunday, and has taken charge of Elko's rural temple of learning.

A. F. Krapfel, of Medicine Hat, is one of the best trout fishers that ever cast a fly. He loves Elko like a Kentucy colonel loves corn juice.

Messrs. J. R. Nolan, W. Wilmot and Jack Schagel were up from the Roosville valley Saturday night.

Dr. and Mrs. Barber were down to Elko on Sunday. Fred Spalding, the globe trotter and moving picture artist, was down to the big canyon with his machine.

Sergt. I. M. Watson, of Roosville, passed through Elko for the coast on Sunday via Nelson.

Billy Evans, who went overseas with the 225th, was in Elko several days last week, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gorman, Court street, and left for Creston.

Several travellers visited the Old Historic Burg this last week. Headliner J. C. Shierlock, the oldest timer in the Pass, coming over the trail before the construction of the Crow line, a live wire and a pleasant fellow to meet any old place, trained like a federal office holder. Booth, of Edmonton, with a nice line of bologne done up in European style, and home fed bacon with the buttons on. A travelling tailor from Calgary stated that clothes should match the hair. If that's a fact we can see where Jim Thistlebeak can get off easy. He looked mean enough to take dead flies from a blind spider. Atkinson of Winnipeg with 2 in 1; 4 in 2; and 7 come 11, looking over the country for future business. But he is not the only pie in the oven. There are all kinds of them looking to the west for future business, and if the B.C. government would only wake up and develop this great water power here we would get considerable business right here. You are all right, Mr. Atkinson; come again when you can stay longer. Charlie Weber, of Vancouver, successor to the well known and popular Senator Grey, who could smoke rings round any tobacco traveler on the road. Little of Vancouver with pickled red cabbage and other bellyaching condiments put up in bottles, had to say his little say very slow, so he wouldn't spill it. J. W. Clark of Victoria with a brand of coffee that would bring a shower of cash into your register making it rattle like rain on a tin roof. Four years overseas and got his job back, and going strong. More travelers expected on the next two boats.

Charlie Ferguson, in charge of the government road engineers, moved to Bull River this week. They have made a great improvement on the road between Elko and the Big Elk River grade on the Roosville road. Road Supt. McDonald is giving splendid results for the time he has had the position and seems to be the right man for the work.

No, Mabel, the funny name of that new disease which people get from dancing the Shimmy Shake is not dipsomania.

Harry Douglas, of Fernie, takes exception to an item which appeared in our items of last week which read as follows: "Jim Thistlebeak says that if there is ever a prize for the biggest liar in B.C. one of the employees at the Great Northern depot in Fernie will get it, and his first name is Harry." The writer wishes to apologize and withdraw this item as it was only intended as a joke. Harry is one of the best fellows in the world and everybody knows it.

SOME CURES

"Walking on a balance rail," asserts Miss Doris Franklin, Kansas City teacher of corrective gymnastics, "cures nervousness, drives away the blues, develops poise and forces the proper use of both feet." Yet mothers will scold little boys for walking on the fence.

While we're curing things, try this:

A cure for hiccoughs has been found by an accident in the case of Henry Gerns, of Palco, Kan., who suffered for several weeks from the malady. He went to the home of his daughter in Hays for treatment and the first night there fell down a long stairway, sustaining many severe bruises, but the hiccoughs were cured. Up to the time of his accident his hiccoughs were getting worse.

Of course tumbling down the stairs may break one's neck, but that shouldn't deter any hiccoughs, for—

William E. Seward, Marshfield, O., broke his neck a year ago in Washington. When they finally let him out of the hospital he had to wear a plaster cast around his neck as the vertebrae would not hold his head up. After wearing the cast for nine months the neck became stronger and the support was discarded. He now works every day on a drainage canal in the Sutro, California.

While having a bone in one's neck is one thing, having a bone in the throat is something entirely different, as per—

A. W. Williams, Ijamsville, Md., swallowed a beef bone three-quarters of an inch long, one-quarter inch wide and one-eighth inch thick, a year ago. It lodged in his throat and doctors couldn't get it out. After swallowing the bone he lost steadily falling from 180 pounds to 140.

The other day Mr. Williams coughed up the bone.

Recently a party who has been carrying on the booze business, wholesale and retail throughout the Pass was fined $100 and costs. Another was fined $175 and costs because two men were caught in the act of consuming the contents of a beer bottle on his premises, and now another has been fined because he was caught in possession of two bottles of good hard whiskey. Now the public are asking why this discrimination?—Blairmore Enterprise.

What She Wanted

Mrs. Newrich (in store)—I want a piece of music for my little girl who is learning to play the piano.

Clerk—Yes, madam. Here is "Twilight," for twenty-five cents. How would that suit?

PARCOVICH GOES FREE

In the Supreme Court at Vancouver on Thursday, May 15, the writ of Habeas Corpus issued in behalf of Nick Parcovich by his counsel, A. Macneil, of this city, was successful. Parcovich some time ago was arrested by Detective G. C. Evans, of the R. N. W. M. P. as an I.W.W contrary to Order-in-Council No. 2384. He was tried before Police Magistrate Whimster of this city and upon conviction was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in Nelson gaol. The magistrate further recommended deportation upon expiration of sentence. An appeal from this conviction was first entered but subsequently abandoned in favor of writ of habeas corpus on account of the fact that as laid down by the order-in-council the trial should have been before the County Judge unless by consent accused desired to be tried by a magistrate. Accused never consented, consequently the magistrate had no jurisdiction, with the result that the proceedings at Vancouver were successful and Parcovich will be released from custody upon arrival of the proper documents from the coast.

COMMISSIONER ARMSTRONG MAKES STATEMENT

On the 28th of February a conference was held between reprensentatives of the Western Coal Operators' Association and District Eighteen United Mine Workers of America, to consider a renewal of the agreement which expired on the first of April, 1919. The meeting was presided over by W. H. Armstrong, Director of Coal Operations. There were present on behalf of the operators, Messers. W. R. Wilson, L. Stockett, J. Shanks, M. Morrow, W. Henderson, G. Kellock and H. Lovett. The men were represented by President Biggs, Vice President Christopher, Secretary E. Brown, and Messers. Irvine, Livett and Rees, representing the International. A letter was submitted by the President and Secretary of District Eighteen requesting the extension of the present agreement until the signing of peace. After a long discussion, it was mutually agreed that the agreement would be extended upon the lines outlined in the communication from the officers of the Union and during negotiations for a new agreement which would be commenced as soon as possible after the convention to be held in Indianapolis on the 19th of March.

As a result of this meeting the Director of Coal Operations issued Order One Hundred and Sixteen, which reads as follows:

The Tentative Agreement expires on March 31st, 1919, but owing to the fact that representatives of District Eighteen, United Miner Wokers of America are unable to meet the Western Coal Operators' Association, thirty days prior to its expiration as provided, the following was mutually agreed upon:

1 That there will be no change of working conditions or orders as laid down by myself in the Tentative Agreement and subsequent orders except there will be no sittings of the Cost of Living Commission.

2 That there will be no suspension of work during negotiations for the next agreement.

3 That for the purpose of making a new agreement officers of District Eighteen and the Operators will meet as soon as possible after the return of the men's representatives from the special convention at Indianapolis on the 18th of March.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by order of the committee of Privy Council, passed under the provisions of the War Measures Act of Canada, 1914, I hereby direct that the foregoing rates and conditions shall be in force and effect until further notice.

Upon the return of the miners' delegates from Indianapolis the following letter was sent by Secretary Brown under date of April 2nd, to W. F. McNeill, Commissioner of the Western Coal Operators' Association:

"The Policy Committee of District 18, U.M.W. of A. desire to meet the representatives of the Western Coal Operators' Association on Wednesday, April 9th, 1919, for the purpose of asking for an extension of the agreement as outlined by the International Policy.

A conference was arranged between representatives of the men and the Coal Operators on the 9th of April which was presided over by Mr. W. R. Wilson, President of the Coal Operators' Association. The letter from the Secretary of District 18 was read, after which Pres. Christophers explained that the district officers were there for the purpose of asking for an extension of the present agreement owing to the fact that the conference of International Officers had not reached any definite policy. He remarked that before discussing the extension of the agreement he would like to get a definite understanding with regard to wages paid to outside men in the locals in British Columbia which were affected by the coming into force of the British Columbia Eight Hour Law. He pointed out that the 2nd of April the Director of Coal Operations issued order One Hundred and Twenty-three making the wages payable on a pro rata basis and remarked that the men considered that this was reducing their earning power and against the policy of their organization. The meeting then decided to refer the matter to Mr. Armstrong for his decision upon the matter.

Several conferences were held at the offices of the Department of Labour, Calgary, and ample opportunity was given for both parties to discuss the question. The men requested that the wages paid for employees in British Columia formerly working 9, 10 and 11 hours should be made to apply to those working 8 hours. No demand was made regarding outside employees working at the mines in Alberta. After due consideration the Director of Coal Operations decided to grant the same wages for an eight hour day for the outside employees in Alberta as well as for British Columbia and as a consequence issued Order One Hundred and Twenty-Four which reads as follows:

"Application has been recieved for further consideration of Order One Hundred and Twenty-Three

After full consideration of the matter, I am of the opinion that the rates of wages for outside work in District Eighteen shall be adjusted upon the following basis:

1 That the present rates as outlined in the tentative agreement for an eight hour work day shall remain as at present.

2 That the present rates covering a nine hour work day shall be made to apply to an eight hour work day.

3 That the present rates covering ten and eleven hour work days shall be adjusted on the basis of nine hours pay for eight hour's work.

Order No. One Hundred and Twenty-Three is hereby cancelled and Order Number One Hundred and Sixteen is hereby amended to the foregoing effect.

This order shall not establish a precedent.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by order of the committee of the Privy Council, passed under the provisions of the War Measures Act of Canada, 1914, I hereby direct that the foregoing rates and conditions shall be in force and effect from the 1st day of April 1919, where mines in Eastern British Columbia are under my jurisdiction, and from the 16th day of April for all mines in the

MEMORIAL COMMITTEE

The general committee of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction held a special meeting on Wednesday to receive the report of the Memorial Committee relative to the establishment of a permanent memorial here, as well as the form of campaign to be pursued in order to obtain the necessary funds for the successful conclusion of this commendable object. The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That this committee report back to the general committee that the G.W.V.A. have expressed to this committee their desire to secure the Napanee hotel as a memorial in view of the fact that the building is now available. This committee endorses the request of the G. W. V. A., although not as a permanent memorial and recommend that the committee now take steps to secure the Napanee hotel, preferably on a rental or temporary arrangement basis, and that the committee further set the sum of $50,000 as a figure to be secured by canvass throughout the district for the erection of a permanent memorial, and the program to be determined by its success in securing or approximating this sum."

It was further unanimously approved that the entire committee go on record as giving unanimous support to Mr. Trites, chairman of the memorial committee, and pledge themselves to carry out to the best of their ability any request that he may make of them. An active campaign to speedily get the memorial fund under way will be inaugurated at once.

CITY FATHERS HOLD MEETING

The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read.

J. F. Spalding appeared before the council asking that they authorize an advertisement in the revised Automobile Guide he is about to publish, and in which he proposes to boost this city by placing an attractive ad in one of the most prominent places in the book on the basis of half rate. Aldermen Gates and Robichaud were mildly skeptical, the former particularly on account of this new publication following so closely upon the former edition published by Mr. Spalding. Final decision in the matter was that the ad be placed for the sum of $75.

Sherwood Herchmer addressed the council as representative of the school board to bring their attention to the question of providing adequate health inspection in the schools. The discussion covered this vital question in its various phases. All present expressed their earnest desire to alleviate local conditions and elevate the health and living standard. What appeared to be the most favored scheme by all was the establishment here of adequate amusement and recreation for the children. Nothing definte could be immediately decided but it was assured that at a very early date a joint meeting of the

THE PUBLIC MEETING

Last Sunday evening fully three hundred of the 384 seats in the Isis theatre were filled by interested parents and others regarding the condition of health of some of the children in the city, and for the consideration of which a previous meeting had decided upon calling this second one, when the police commissioners and the school board were to be in attendance. The meeting commenced shortly after nine o'clock and did not adjourn until 11.30 p.m., during which time climaxes of varying degrees of intensity rose only to again subside to a somewhat aimless discussion. His Worship Mayor Uphill opened the meeting and left it to effect its own organization but immediately found himself forced into the position of chairman and likewise the target for miscellaneous interrogations and requests for explanations. Several attempts were made to inject into the meeting the administration of the city with regard to

MAY PURCHASE TIMBER LIMITS

Colonel Arthur G. Peuchen, of Toronto, spent a couple of days in this city last week looking over the plant and timber limits of the Fernie Lumber Co., which are for sale. Colonel Peuchen owns the controlling interest in the McLaren Lumber Co., at Blairmore, having purchased the interests of Senator McLaren some years ago. He also represents other large financial interests and particularly in eastern Canada, "Peuchen's Paints" are exceptionally well known as he has operated that concern for years.

Colonel Peuchen also has had a notable military career in the Great War and previous to that held a commission in the Queen's Own of Toronto. He gained considerable notoriety for himself upon the occasion of the sinking of the Titanic, upon which ill-fated vessel he was a passenger. On account of his ability as a yatchman he was requested to take charge of one of the lifeboats and commanded the last lifeboat to be launched from the Titanic before she went down. He successfully piloted same until assistance arrived and the party was rescued. Upon his arrival at New York his interviews with representatives of the press caused quite sensational stories to be published regarding conditions as to the sobriety and otherwise which prevailed on board prior to the disaster.

The Fernie Lumber Co. has not been in operation for some years past on account of the company having to go into liquidation during an acute period of financial stress, and although it comprises exceptionally valuable timber holdings and plant it requires a large amount of capital to take same over and operate, which has not been available since the beginning of the war. The revival of this industry in this locality would be a most acceptable adjunct towards increasing the industrial activities which are at all times graciously welcomed. It is hoped, therefore, that this property can be acquired by parties of the calibre of Colonel Peuchen and his associates, whose business ability and financial responsibility would absolutely assure the success of this concern.

Colonel Peuchen with Judge Thomson, who is a boyhood friend, and a party, left Friday by motor for Cranbrook and from there will journey to Premier Lake, the anglers' paradise of East Kootenay, where the party will spend a few days in quest of the famous land-locked salmon of which this beautiful pool abounds.

WILL STRIKE TOMORROW

Information was received here on Thursday morning from the headquarters of District 18 relative to the strike vote recently taken with regard to Order No. 124 of the Director of Coal Operations, W. H. Armstrong. The telegram issuing instructions to the miners as posted on the notice boards reads as follows:

"H. Martin, Secretary, Fernie, B.C. —Referendum Order No. 124. Have rejected order by large majority. Acting under instructions of policy committee all men working in and around mines will cease work on the 24th May, Saturday, at the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon. This will include engineers, firemen and pumpmen. Signed, P. M. Christophers, President; Ed. Browne, Secretary.

Information also available here is to the effect that at Canmore, Alta., the firebosses have signified their intention of joining forces with the miners in the walk-out, and efforts are being made here and at other Crow points to have the respective Firebosses Associations act likewise.

A special meeting of the executive of the Alberta Federation of Labor, it is reported, has been called to convene at Calgary on May 23, to consider the advisability of calling a general strike of the various craft organizations connected with that body in sympathy with District 18.

NEW CHIEF APPOINTED

The police commissioners held two meetings this week relative to filling the vacancy created by the resignation of Chief Welsby. There were some fourteen applications submitted for their consideration, but it was a noticeable feature among the applicants that very few had much experience in a similar position. After much deliberation it was decided to accept the application of Joseph Boardman, provincial constable at Coal Creek for the past nine years, provided the provincial government would give assurance that in making the appointment for the provincial constable at Coal Creek a returned soldier would secure same. Negotiations were accordingly taken up and the required assurance forthcoming, and then a second meeting of the commissioners confirmed the appointment. In making this choice it is believed by all that the commissioners have made a very wise choice. Mr. Boardman, during his nine years of residence at Coal Creek as peace officer, has been highly respected and has always proved himself an efficient operative. Further, his long residence in this locality makes him entirely familiar with local conditions and he will not require breaking-in as would have been the case with a stranger.

BASEBALL

Friday last saw the first of the scheduled league games played between the F.A.A.C. and Hula Hulas. From the start the Hula Hulas had the best of it but in the 5th innings Ricketts muffed a throw on third and let in three runs. This seemed to let the Hulas' balloon loose and it didn't come down until the last innings, but by this time the F.A.A.C. had overcome the lead. The Hulas played the best game and only lost through a little hard luck. Bonehead plays were pulled on both sides, but with a little more practice this should be overcome.

Ricketts muffed one on 3rd and let in three runs.

Score 9—6. Game called in seventh innings on account of rain.

On Wednesday the second game for the City League championship was played between the Hula Hulas and the Old Timers. This appeared to be a walk away for the Hula Hulas as the score was 7—0 in the first innings. In the third innings, however, the Old Timers began to hit their stride and evened up the score. From then on it was a tie at the end of each innings until the eighth, when the Old Timers were two in the lead. When the Hulas went to bat in the ninth two men were put out in quick order, but a muff by Scott and a few other bad plays gave the Hulas a chance to tie the score. The game was then called on account of darkness.

Score: 15—15.

Winters got all that came his way.

The girls have organized two baseball teams and were out for practice on Tuesday. They drew quite a crowd of boosters and got a lot of free advice. In time, with a little practice they should develop at least one good team to enter against any city league team.

PRESS COMMENT

But the material advantages and changes will be as nothing to the mental and moral uplift of the new era of air travel. Thinking in terms of Australia will become possible. The larger outlook will be the rule; idealism will win its final victory over sordid earthiness. The daily and hourly flight will get a sense of speed into the blood. Thought will be swifter as well as more logical and better sustained. Crime will diminish; disease will change its forms prepatory to getting out of business. The eyes of a new generation will grow brighter; the lungs will expand; the very features will be refined. Breathing so much upper air, the people will speak in more musical tones, break more frequently into song, and move when on the solid earth itself with more rythmic movements. Living more rapidly they will live longer too the mental activities of the individual will be infinitely prolonged. Pride will grow-- a pride of race and place such as the world has not yet known; and out of it will spring new sciences, new schemes, new sentiments, new dreamings. The possiblities are almost boundless once the idea of aerial flight grips us and the people of Australia take to the element that must hereafter be essentially their own.—Sydney Bulletin.

Candid Americans will not deny, says the Toronto Globe, that since the armistice there has been a revival in some degree of the anti-British sentiment which during the war was dormant in the United States. Among the causes are the Sinn Fein agitaion, the desire of many American soldiers to magnify their roll in the war by disparaging that of Great Britain, and the willingness of a political group to make use of the anglophobes in frustrating Wilson by attacking the League of Nations Covenant on the ground that it is a British instrument. But these are only proximate and temporary factors in producing ill-will.

The widespread prejudice against England goes back of course to the beginning of national life. Why has the revolutionary tradition persisted so that to millions of Americans England still means George the Third while France means Lafayette? An American woman, Catherine Fullerton Gerould, attempts togive the answer in a sympathic article in the current Atlantic Monthly. That school books, she says, have made the American schoolboy detest England and adore France. Lafayette is a name to conjure with, yet Lafayette never at any time represented France. His friends strongly advised against his going to America, and the French King positively forbade it. He sailed as a stowaway at the age of nineteen. He was not a great fighter, and his military career in America, though respectable, was not distinguished. "How much good Lafayette in 1777 is problematical," says the Atlantic Monthly writer; "the good he did in 1917 is, frrankly, incalculable. We really needed no French propaganda; you said 'Lafay ette and you had all the young throats cheering. . . . . In 1917 you never would have got the doughboy to fight as gladly—though that he would have fought as loyally no one may doubt—on British soil as on the soil of France. Probably he did not know half so much about France as he did about England, but—France why sure, Lafayette was a Frenchman."

The writer contends that broadly speaking, there have not been half so so many things in the last hundred years for England to explain away as for France to explain away. Young America has known little of England since the war of 1812, and has been equally ignorant of ninteenth-centuary France. School children have even been permitted to make any entangling foreign alliances of the mind. "Pathetically and truly Englishmen remind us that the greatest statesmen in England were openly opposed to the oppressive policy of George III., a German King, they say with German mercenaries to fight for him. But 'Paul Revere's Ride' has not been, for years, the favorite 'piece' in seventh-grade 'declamations' for nothing." The article concludes with an expression of the writer's satisfaction in hearing "God Save the King" sung by American school children in public places, a thing which they would not have done in her childhood. She looks for an antidote to Anglophobism in the impressions which will be brought home by American Jackies in Admiral Rodman's fleet, and by American soldiers who fought in the Canadian armies and fraternized with the Australians and New Zealanders. A surer hope lies in the fact that the great majority of educated Americans, the leaders of opinion in nearly every sphere, have outlived the old prejudices, and are eager to strenghten the ties between the two countries. Their influence is greater than their numbers, and in the long run their views will prevail. School books cannot win in the end against the truths of history. In Canada, too, there has been a good deal of so-called historical writing in which unneighborly animus has been too apparent.

Freed from Chronic Pains

To those who are afflicted with the agonies of a chronic aching back, loss of strength, weight and vigor, the case of Mr. P. Herbert of Plesseville will appeal with special significance.

Mr. Herbert had suffered with Kidney trouble for years and failed to find a prescription that would give him any relief. Finally he tried Gin Pills because he was impressed by the fact that Gin Pills contained the beneficial ingredient of Juniper without any Alcohol being added.

Note these extracts from his letter:

"I suffered from Kidney trouble for several years, and tried numerous remedies without finding any permanent relief. My case appeared chronic.

I knew that Juniper without alcohol was excellent for the Kidneys, so decided to try Gin Pills. One single pill gave me great relief, and since taking four boxes, I find myself completely cured. I am no longer bad-tempered, have increased in weight, and am strong and vigorous again."

"My husband was taken with severe kidney trouble last winter, and could not work for some time. He heard of Gin Pills, and after taking one box was able to resume his work. Two boxes relieved the pain in his back, and to-day he is well and strong again."

Gin Pills help others—surely they will do the same for you. Try them. 50c a box everywhere.

LAND REGISTRY ACT.

TAKE NOTICE that the above application has been made to register Thomas Roeser as owner in fee of the above lands, and for the issue to the said Thomas Roeser of a Certificate of Indefeasible Title therto, and that in support of such application there has been produced a Conveyance dated 17th March, 1915, from Michael Roeser in favour of the said Thomas Roeser, which Conveyance is made subject to a certain Agreement made between the said Michael Roeser of the one part and Sidney Hummell and Frederick W. Mitchell of the other part, dated on or about the year 1907, and which said Agreement is unregistered in the Land Registry Office at Nelson, B.C.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that registration will be effected in pursuance of the above application and a Certificate of Indefeasible Title to the said lands issued to the said Thomas Roeser free of the aforesaid Agreement and from all claims thereunder, after the lapse of 31 days from the first publication hereof, being the service upon you of this notice (which service I direct may be effected by publication hereof once a week for two weeks in a newspaper circulating nearest the lands), unless you shall take and prosecute the proper proceedings to establish your claim, if any, to the said lands, or to prevent such proposed action on my part.

E. S. Stokes,
District Registrar of Titles.

To the above named
Sidney Hummell.

Makes Easy Work of Silver-cleaning

Yes, for silverware, too! You need only follow the directions on the Gold Dust package.

Gold Dust does away with gloves, powders and various polishing cloths. It saves muss, energy, time and patience.

Just a minute or two is long enough for ordinary cleaning. If the silver is badly stained or tarnished allow about five minutes. The tarnish is then softened and can be removed easily by gentle rubbing.

SYNOPSIS OF
LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

For information apply to any Provincial Government Agent or to

Used openly, state subsidies are often useful, and it is perfectly legitimate, and even laudable for the state to encourage the dissemination of news---most of which comes from London, the clearing house of the news of the world--has both a direct and an indirect effect in developing the common purpose and commercial prosperity of all parts of the Empire. After all our Empire is held together by public opinion. We shall be glad of the opportunity to give our readers extracts from the London newspapers issued three or four days perviously when the aerial mail comes to Hongkong, but we see no prospect of far eastern newspapers being able to develop their cable service unless there is a substantial reduction in the cost of transit.---Hongkong Press.

Appended below will be found a schedule of the wages as adjusted under this order. Those employees who formerly worked ten and eleven hours will recieve an extra hour's pay if they work the same period under the new schedule. In British Columbia, owing to the compulsory eight hour law a few employees while receiving a slight reduction in their daily wages are receiving an increase in their hourly rate. This is only a temporary arangement until the new agreement is adjusted. In Alberta no employee will receive a reduction in wages provided he works the same hours as heretofore, but will recieve an increase provided he works the same number of hours as in the past Besides which, men formerly working nine hours will receive nine hours' pay for eight hours' work. The order issued by the Director of Coal Operations does not establish a precedent and is only intended to be in effect pending the negotiating of a new agreement.

The Director of Coal Operations has never declined to hear evidence regarding a dispute and in reply to a request for an investigation with respect to this dispute, the following telegram was sent:

"I have given full consideration to any request from men and have never assumed an arbitrary attitude regarding any dispute. Will be quite willing to consider the request when I return to Calgary."

Following the despatch of the foregoing telegram, a letter was forwarded to President Christophers which read as follows:

"With reference to your communication of the 7th inst., Mr. Armstrong requests that you will be good enough to supply him with the additional evidence which you state that you have regarding certain rates of wages. On receipt of this evidence he will take the matter into consideration."

"All fires will be pulled after 3 o'clock on Saturday," was the way that Ed. Browne, the secretary of District 18 United Mine Workers of America, put it to a representative of the Calgary Herald on Wednesday morning in discussing the miners' situation. He asserted that as no settlement had been reached in connection with the surface men's dispute that a strike order had been sent out by the executive. This called for the miners to quit work on Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

From what Mr. Browne stated to the newspaperman efforts up to noon Wednesday had been unavailing in bringing about an adjustment of matters. He stated that Commissioner Armstrong had not made any alteration in the scale of the surface men's wages but had suggested that his assistant proceed to British Columbia to inquire into conditions. This had been refused as the executive contend that such an investigation would be futile. The executive still contend that what should take place should be a thorough investigation into the whole mining situation by a committee of six, but this suggestion as already intimated had been turned down by the minister of labor.

When asked if the miners intended to allow matters to drift until the time limit for striking had been reached, Mr. Browne stated that there was nothing further that the executive could do. They were not seeing Mr. Armstrong again, but if the commissioner wished to effectively stop the strike all he had to do was to see that the surface men were fairly treated. The number of these men, according to Commissioner Armstrong, is somewhere about 25, while President Christophers states the number is about 200.

President Christophers when seen Wednesday morning by the Calgary Herald, intimated that there would be no doubt but that the strike order would be carried out if the dispute in connection with the surface men was not satisfactorily settled.

city council and school board should be arranged, together with such others as could assist in the promotion of any such scheme which in the opinion of these bodies may expedite the desire of all the citizens of Fernie.

Neil McCallum, city engineer, announced to the council that in view of the rapidly approaching high water it had been deemed advisable for the present to suspend the operations of the contractor on some of the river bank protection work. J. G. Cummings, district engineer for the provincial government, who was present, addressed the council in this connection and stated that his idea in concluding that a temporary halt be called in some of the work was not altogether for the reason outlined by Mr. McCallum but particularly referred to some cement and mattress work which now would not be necessary. He presented for the information of the council an estimate of the amount of unfinished work on the contract for which, according to him, was the basis upon which settlement should be made when any deductions were made. Mr. Cody appeared on his own behalf and very strongly objected to what he termed the obstruction to his operations and demanded that if he was stopped settlement would only be acceptable on the basis of the volume of work actually done. The council were entertained to a rather heated dialogue between Mr. Cummings and Mr. Cody for a matter of quarter of an hour, when some of the aldermen endeavored to obtain a grasp of the situation. After it had been ascertained that Mr. Cody was willing to proceed with a certain portion of the work agreeable to the district engineer, it was decided that adjustment of the payment basis be left with the finance committee. However, after adjournment a further heated overtime session was held in which the interested parties participated.

A communication from Inspector of Municipalities Baird, relative to special bylaw covering tax sale was read, but even this attempt to secure something definite as to setting prices was not entirely successful, and further advice, this time from the Land Registry Office, will have to be obtained.

Mr. Foreman, of the Public Works Department, advised the city that with reference to the matter of what appeared to the council to have been an excessive charge for engineering relative to surveys on river bank that an allowance of $527 for this would be made. He further advised that in order to make the matter final as regards extras in connection with river bank protection that the Minister of Public Works had authorized that the government assume responsibilty up to an additional $1000. This means that the city will have a further appropriation of $1527 to offset any over expenditure made up to date.

Dr. Bonnell wrote to the council suggesting that they immediately make application to the War Trophies Board, forwarding copy of such application to himself, in order that in the disposition of trophies this city may receive its share. The suggestion will be carried out.

The finance committee reported a further payment on river bank protection contract of $784, making an aggregate advanced on this work to date of $1784.

The electric light committee reported that arrangements had been made with the Fernie Motor Car Co. for the installation of an electric sign on the meter basis.

The sidewalk question bobbed up as usual and a committee consisting of His Worship and the works and property committee will again urge upon the merchants in the business section that they put in permanent cement sidewalks at personal expense.

Bylaw No. 195, being Tax Consolidation Bylaw, was passed through its preliminary readings. This bylaw is of considerable importance to returned soldiers and others whose taxes are in arrears for a longer period than two years, as it provides a means whereby they can pay one-tenth of the total amount due, including interest on the last day of December, 1918, during each of the years 1919-1928 inclusive, provided that the current year's taxes are paid at the same time. The payment necessary as above to keep the property from being sold for taxes must be made not later than Sept. 15 in each of the years stated, and full information will be mailed by registered letter to each of the parties particularly concerned. If any person fails to receive such information direct from the city clerk, he should call or write the city clerk with regard to the matter.

Adjournment was taken at 11.05, probably hastened to some extent by Ald. Gates' suggestion that if they didn't hurry the lights would be off.

the enforcement of the Prohibition Act, but Mayor Uphill emphatically took the stand that he was not obliged to and would not discuss this matter on this occasion. This attitude was resented by many, while there appeared to be equally as many who did not hold the police commissioners responsible for the disease which has recently come to notice on account of any laxity in the enforcement of law and order.

A motion was finally introduced by R. S. Phillips to the effect that an appeal be made to the government to immediately enact regulations whereby there would be a penalty inflicted for any one infected with a disease of this nature concealing the fact. By reporting same promptly to a medical practitioner it was believed it would be a step in the right direction towards the suppression of same and infected ones would be under supervision until cured. This motion was approved by the meeting in amended form to the extent that such disease be made quarantinable.

Mayor Uphill suggested early in the meeting that a representative committee would be his idea, as a smaller body could accomplish more effective measures in a given period than a large, unwieldy body. The purpose of this, while not definitely outlined, was inferred to be for the purpose of making a rigid investigation of all moral conditions within the city and subsequently make a report to a mass meeting of the citizens in general. The action taken was the appointment of a committee of seven comprised of Mesdames Cummings, Marshall (Wm.) and Duthie, and Messrs. E. Hesketh, G. G. Henderson, R. S. Phillips and Dr. Garner. This committee has full power to add to its numbers up to anything within the limits of the population of the city.

"FOOLING THEIR CUSTOMERS"

Ottawa, May 21.—Manufacturers of glutten flours have been fooling their customers, according to evidence given in the senate yesterday by Senator DeVeber. He secured authority to have the health committee of the senate investigate such flours with a view of enacting legislation to punish misrepresentations. By the same resolution on the suggestion of Senator Choquette, there will be an inquiry into the character of soothing syrups, that are said to be doing a good deal of damage in the province of Quebec and elsewhere.

Senator DeVeber said it was the misfortune of some men, especially after the age of 40, to suffer from diabetes. They had to abstain from starchy foods. Manufacturers catered to their needs by preparing special flour for them. The United States standard required 20 per cent protein and allowed only 40 per cent starch in gluten flours. A collection of alleged gluten flours made in Canada showed percentages of starch running as high as 60 per cent.

Senator Murphy said that a man suffering from diabetes could expect to achieve a ripe old age on proper diet. Such persons would not thrive on such gluten flours.

The investigation was ordered.

FRIENDS THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C. B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight—going from 185 pounds to 146 pounds—that I became alarmed and saw several doctors who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

In a week, there was improvement. The constipation was corrected; and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

FLORENCE REED

in a picturization of the Sensational Stage Success

"TODAY"

By George Broadhouse and Abraham Schomer

"Why," asks every scene, its every foot of film, "why should not the claws of the moral leper be exposed that others might see and avoid the deadly scratch and profit thereby. Why should we be kept in ignorance of the blackness of this 'Stygian' cave when so many are entering its blackest compartments, never to return to the light of domestic morality?" Such are the questions asked by this wonderful photoplay, and all who have seen it have been loud in their praise of the lesson it teaches and have been the better for seeing it.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

Edith Roberts in "A Taste of Life" and 4th chapter of "The Woman in the Web" next Monday only at the Orpheum.

The engagement of Mr. Fred Clarkston and Miss Betty Grundy has been announced. The wedding will take place early in June.

The fine weather has greatly added to the enthusiasm of local golfers and every afternoon and evening the links are crowded with new players.

Owing to the length of the program the Orpheum first show will start at 7 o'clock, Friday and Saturday, May 23 and 24; second show at 9.15.

It is rumored that the government will shortly build a new bridge across the river to West Fernie as the old one is getting pretty dilapidated.

A strike of the coal miners at this stage will be an interesting affair. The government is still in control of the mines. What will it do?—Calgary Herald.

Do not refuse to answer any question your girl may ask. See Dorothy Phillips in "The Talk of the Town" at the Orpheum next ednesday and Thursday.

Tommy Fitzgerald brought his McLaughlin six up from Calgary this week. He has opened an auto livery with headquarters at the Club Cigar Store. Give him a trial.

Some irate citizens smashed up the alleged sidewalk in front of Dominic Citra's place of business on Wednesday night. Dad Harrison has been busy ever since trying to locate enough pieces to put it back in shape.

A special train will leave Fernie tomorrow morning at 7.15, arriving at Cranbrook at 9.35, for the accommodation of those who wish to take in the big celebration at Cranbrook. Returning, the train will leave Cranbrook at 1 a.m., arriving at Fernie at 3.25 a.m. The return fare is $4.65.

The fire brigade was called out twice on Wednesday. At nine in the morning they were called to the North End of the town to put out a small fire in some outbuildings belonging to Mike Kasmar, and about 5 p.m. they were called to the Annex by what proved to be a false alarm.

The river has been rising steadily since last Sunday. On Tuesday the false work on the Fairy Creek bridge construction was washed out. The first span of the bridge is in place and safe from the highest water. The balance of the work on the structure will have to stand until the water goes down.

Wm. Hines is in the hospital and his wife is carrying a black eye as the result of an automobile accident near Cokato on Sunday last. He was driving a Ford when the machine struck a dog and the car turned turtle, throwing the entire family into the ditch. The children escaped injury but the parents were badly shaken up.

Every arrangement has been made at Cranbrook to entertain a big crowd at the celebration tomorrow. A special train will leave Fernie at 7.15 in the morning and returning will leave Cranbrook at 1 a.m., thus giving those who attend every opportunity to take in all the sports in the evening. A large crowd will likely go from Fernie.

Lance Corpl. Robt. Snowden, of the first Fernie contingent, who went over to France with the 13th Highlanders, is home again. He was taken prisoner early in the war and was a prisoner one year and five months when he ws transferred to an iternment camp in Switzerland, where he remained until the end of the war. Sergt. Snowden looks fine after his long imprisonment.

Thos. Roe returned to the city this morning from a three weeks' trip to the Peace River country. Tommy says that prospects look bright for the future of that district.

Mrs. Allen Smith returned to her home at Surf Inlet this morning. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. R. Pearson, who will spend some time at the coast.

Albert Mutz, of Blairmore, is in the city today. He says that his coal mining property at Blairmore is now in shape to ship coal and that there will be no strike at his mine.

The officers and soldiers of the local corps of the Salvation Army wish to thank the people of Fernie for the liberal way in which they donated to the Self-Denial effort. The target was reached and a goodly sum over.

President Beatty of the C. P. R., with a number of other high officials, will visit Fernie this afternoon about 4 o'clock. They are on a special train to Nelson, where they will attend the Board of Trade banquet in that city.

For Sale—One Duroc-Jersey Reg. Sow, weight about 400 lbs., two years old. Price $100. Worth more in meat than the price. Has had three litters of 13, 14 and 12 pigs. Must be sold by the 31st.—F. R. Heric, Wardner, B.C. M16-2

The time for receiving essays in the competition between Cranbrook and Fernie Junior Members of the Navy League on the lecture given by Lieut Helmsing, has been extended from May 24 to May 31. and accordingly essays will be received by Mrs. R. W. Wood, Educational Secretary, up to and including May 31.

Sergt. John Mackie, of the Pioneers, arrived home from France this week. Sergt. Mackie, who is an old veteran of South Africa, India and Egypt, had some wonderful experiences. He was one of the men employed on the work of blowing up Hill 50. He served over two years and the only time he was hit was with a spent bullet which just lodged inside his shirt and burned the flesh a little.

Dr. Brett, Lieut. Governor of the Province of Albert, stopped over here the other day en route from Gateway to Edmonton, and his informal visit was made as pleasant as possible for him, as it is only upon very rare occasions that this city or other interior cities have such privilege. Lieut.Governor Brett was very favorably impressed with our city and stated that he had made it a practice for some years to visit every town or city of any prominence within the home province at least once annually, and in view of the close proximity of the city of Fernie to the Crow's Nest towns in Alberta it was quite probable that he would henceforth include a stopover here in his itinerary.

A drowning accident occurred on Monday, when John O'Dair, aged 39, lumberjack, employed by the Macdonald Lumber Co., operating on Sand Creek in the Elko district, fell from a boom when same broke and was swept over the Sand Creek Falls and never seen again. Together with the river foreman and his half brother, W. H. Bearson, O'Dair was working endeavoring to remove a log jamb, when unexpectedly the jamb broke away and the fatal accident followed. Deceased was a native of Queen County, Ireland, but had worked in various parts of this district for some years. He is said to have had the sum of $500 on his person when the accident occurred. The remains have not been recovered and it is very doubtful if same will be until the high water for this season subsides.

RE AMERICAN INCOME TAX

The American Consul at Fernie has been informed that certain American citizens resident within the consular district have neglected to make the Income Tax Return required of them by the United States Revenue Act of 1918. American citizens residing in Canada are entitled to deduct from income taxes due to the United States the amount of Canadian income taxes due Dominion and Province. After this deduction has been made, they are liable to the American income tax upon their net income, regardless of the fact that part or all of it may have been derived from sources in Canada; and severe penalties are incurred by default.

A supply of the necessary forms to make income tax return have been forwarded by the consul to the following correspondents, from whom they may be secured by local parties:

CAUSE OF GREAT UNREST

Here in Holland they say that it is government control and nothing else worth speaking of that is driving the world into revolutionary socialism. Holland is qualified to testify as an expert both on government controls and Bolshevism. They know all about both of them here. And the man who probably knows most about the workings of the controls, even if he does not claim to know the most about Bolshevism, is C. J. K. Van Aalst, the president of the Netherlands Overseas Trust Company, which is not a trust company at all or any kind of a private institution, but happens to be the agent that saved Holland from starvation.

When Holland in 1915 was feeling the effects of the English blockade, it was laid down that food should not be allowed to go into Dutch ports because Holland was regarded merely as one of the gateways into Germany. The little country exists largely because of its shipping, and with that cut off, food began to run very low and to add to the trouble, thousands of families who depended upon the sea for their livelihood were left without income.

There happened to be only one man whom the Allies thought they could trust and that was Mr. Van Aalst. He organized a public company to guarantee that any shipment permitted to come into Holland would not find its way into Germany. He and his company became the guarantors of Holland's import trade. Thus he came intimately to know the ins and outs of every governmental control anywhere, because before an import could be made, he had to arrange with some ministry or perhaps half a dozen ministries of the Allies first to buy and then to ship the cargo. And being in a neutral position he could gaze on these controls from the outside and observe more than was possible to the people of any one nation. Hence probably no man in the world is entitled to speak with quite so much authority on this phase of the war measures of all the belligerents.

And one has to be in The Hague but a very few days to discover that Bolshevism is not an acaremic thing with the Dutch. It is right at their doors in Germany. Since the country has always been and still is a refuge for political exiles, nearly all the Bolshevists who hope later to get into action somewhere are planning and plotting and being followed by the secret services of the powers about these purlieus of the Temple of Peace. In order to give the Dutch a better view of the new philosophy at work, its proponents advertised an exhibition for last November. They promised then to seize the government and start trouble all about. The citizens got ahead of them, but the scare has lasted.

Every bank in Holland today is a small arsenal—being stocked with rifles and machine guns. The people of the cities say that the army will fail them in need and hence those who have property to lose are organized into a Citizens' Guard which drills regularly. When the alarm is sounded, every one of these guards has an exact station to take and he will be armed within a very few minutes of that alarm, for rifles and machine guns are stored in various quarters. The owner of one of the largest newspapers showed me how the corner window of his office could sweep the street in front of the Queen's Palace and he said:

"It is my duty to see that two machine guns are set up here when the signal is given."

Every bank and most of the more important offices have wireless equipments and operators in their service, so that communications cannot be cut off during an insurrection. In fact peaceful Holland is all ready for trouble and is taking no chances. And I did not find anyone to suggest that the fears were groundless; the Dutch are not an easily agitated nation—they have been through quite too much for that.

And therefore Holland's citizens may claim to qualify, if not as experts, at least as knowing something about social disorder at first hand.

Bolshevism is not a subject for academic discussion in the Netherlands. Its persons and methods are too well known. The country has always been democratic in the extreme and is a Mecca for political refugees of all shades of opinion. A Dutchman will not tolerate putting a man in jail for merely saying—he must both say and do before he comes into the view of the law. Lenine and Trotzky laid their plans in Holland; so did the Spartacist group.

Holland has had the best chance to study revolutionary socialism at first hand and they say here that, given a certain amount of discontent to start with, 100 determined men can overturn any government on earth simply by seizing the strategic offices of the government and then cutting off the means of communication. If the people in general are fairly satisfied with conditions, the revolution is bound to fizzle, but if they are not satisfied—and no one is in these days—then the revolutionists can get a great popular following by a distribution of money and promises of more. That is the way the Russian revolution was managed, that is the procedure which was tried in Berlin, and that is why a very small band of extremists can so easily stage a coup.

It does not take a person of extraordinary imagination to picture what an upheaval would occur in the United States if armed bands seized the principal offices at Washington of a night and at the same time their confederates blew up the main telegraph and telephone centres and proclaimed all over the big cities that the social revolution had taken place. Would not the rabble start trouble everywhere, would not work cease if only out of curiosity and would not the resulting great street crowds, as on Armistice Day, control the cities? Even that might happen in a country so inherently orderly as the United States and if it did, it would be days and weeks before order could again be restored. That is what the Dutch see. They narrowly averted one crisis—and they do not want to test their luck again.

Mr. Van Aalst is no shadow fighter; he is an extremely able, well-balanced Netherlander of the type that has enabled his little country to hold so large a place in the trade of the world. Going out into the trading posts of the Dutch East Indies as little more than a boy, he worked his way up to the presidency of the Netherlands Trading Company, through which the life-giving trade of the East Indies flows into Holland. As the foremost foreign trader of the nation it was but natural that he should take charge of the trade of the whole country by organizing the Overseas Trust to ensure Holland the right to exist within the theatre of war.

"The great trouble with this world today," said Mr. Van Aalst — we were in the big drawing room that serves as a directors' room in the handsome residence facing the Royal Palace at the Hague which has been taken over for the Overseas Trust—"is that the people of the world do not want to work and nearly all governments are convincing them that work is unnecessary by paying unemployment allowances instead of providing work.

"The big thing that has to be settled in every country is Bolshevism. Bolshevism springs up from a desire to get something for nothing. The Russians never did like work and hence they are natural Bolshevists. I have never heard of an extreme socialist that ever in his life did anything approaching useful labor unless to save himself from starvation. The natural Bolshevist is a lazy man; the converted Bolshevist is a hungry man. I should therefore meet the very forceful arguments of the revolutionists by providing work for hungry men. Giving food or money is not the same as giving work. Here in Holland we have had to support great numbers of dock employees who were thrown out of work by the curtailment of shipping; those men today would rather draw their allowance from the government than work for by putting in six days of hard labor they can earn only a little more than by doing nothing and living on the public treasury. They are becoming convinced that work is not a necessity in this life and that governments can somehow support them.

"Let us get away from this idea that treasuries can support people and the only way that his can be done is by withdrawing allowances at once and restoring the old rule that one must work or starve. That is a natural law and I think it is time that natural laws were again permitted to go into effect. Until they are, it is not possible to have a natural world.

"The world has been unnatural; that is a truism. But why should we try to keep it in such a state? It has been necessary for governments to buy up large stocks of the things upon which ordinary commerce lives and to control the movements of others. Because there was not enough shipping in the world to transport both soldiers and peace goods (even if the means of production of peace goods had everywhere been present) it was necessary to control shipping, and further on the part of the Allies to control that even of neutral countries in order that Germany could not get help from the outside. All of this was just as unnatural as it was for men to be killing each other. One was a part of the other.

"But men have stopped killing each other for the time being and I think that the controls should likewise cease and all of the stocks held by governments for war purposes disposed of immediately, no matter what the effect is on the markets. For until the world markets have the shock which is inevitable, manufacture and shipping cannot start up again and hence work cannot be provided.

"Every government stock held in excess of present requirements, every artificial price maintained—whether that price be high or low—is a menace to trade. Restrictions on the export of gold are making commerce impossible and so are the censorships and delays in the mails and cables.

"Take these points separately. No merchant or manufacturer will attempt to buy in the open market while the government holds controlling stocks. A government stock is a Sword of Damocles hanging over the head of a trader; he never knows when it will drop. A ministry may announce that it intends to feed out the stock slowly in order not to break the market. It will then sell out slowly and at very high prices in order not to show too great a loss on the purchases which were probably made at excessive prices—since government officers never know how to buy. But it so happens that the officials of the ministries are transient. The largest stocks of supplies are held by England; today the policy is to sell them slowly. Tomorrow Mr. Lloyd George may be out of power and a new ministry may decide to sell everything at once. How can a factory owner buy raw materials under these circumstances? He is faced with buying at a price that may be halved tomorrow. The ordinary risks of trade are great enough, but a good merchant will take chances on his own judgment. However, he is not justified in betting against what a government will do and that is all that trading in these days amounts to.

"Prices will not adjust themselves until the stocks are disposed of. Therefore wages cannot be adjusted or employment given.

"This is particularly the case with Germany; it is to a large degree the case with England, France and the Netherlands. Germany cannot get raw materials because her case is not yet settled. She needs raw materials and food and without them Bolshevism will continue to gain ground. We are interested in Germany's case for the reason that the Germans who can not find work are trying to leave their country and come into ours and we have no work for them. The German likes to work and in that differs from the Russian. It is of vital importance to the whole world, and not merely to Holland, that these 70,000,000 people should be turned into producers and consumers. It is extremely hard for a neutral to speak on this point, because at once he will be accused of being pro-German, but I think my war record and the confidence placed in me by the Allied Powers precludes the thought that I am pro-German or anything but pro-Dutch.

"The restoration of free gold markets is a step preliminary to trade. Gold was taken over by all governments during the war so that it would not get into the hands of the Central Powers. That danger has passed; the Central Powers will have to export gold if they are allowed to buy raw materials and foodstuffs, for they have nothing else with which to pay. The artifcial holding of exchanges at a fixed point by means of borrowing is unthinkable except as a war measure, for the ratios can only be maintained by the complement of controlled prices. The law of supply and demand must be permitted to go into effect. That law is still fundamental."

"Do you think that the governmental controls have served to steady prices and have actually helped the consumer?" I asked.

"They were probably necessary to some degree and prevented panics. But also they sometimes sent prices up by excessive precautions. The mind of a governmental official is very different from that of a merchant. And then, too, the Allied Powers were always obessed with the fear that the United States might stop sending supplies. Thus they tended to provide too far ahead and in effect 'cornered' markets. If a department saw that the supply in sight would last for only three months, they would take steps at once to cut down the rations so that the apparent three months' supply could be stretched out into a year's. The governments never want to leave anything to chance. They were continually buying at the wrong place and at the wrong time to safeguard against something that probably would not happen.

"Prices are bound to drop; I think they will drop below normal just as soon as the controls are taken off, but they will later recover. They say that removing the controls at once would smash the markets of the world and bring on an international panic. I think otherwise; very few merchants in the world have large stocks at high prices. The big loss would come to the governments themselves and this would really not be a loss, for if the prices are held up, it is the people who have to pay in the end, and they might as well pay at once and have it over with. It is easier to plunge into a cold bath than to lower in an inch at a time—which seems to be the present plan.

"I should let everyhting go all at once. We can all quickly recover from the crash, and then business judgment can get to work again and the affairs of the world start back to normal. The business men of the world are much more capable of adjusting conditions than are the politicians and diplomats. To continue as at present is only to kill the energy of the world and replace it with the lazy doctrine of Bolshevism."

Mrs. Hall's Health Failed Completely —Tanlac Restores Her

"I regret now that I did not take Tanlac sooner as I would not have had to sell out my business," said Mrs. Minnie Hall, proprietor of the lunch stand known as "Mother's Lunch" in the Farmers Market at Seattle, Washington, recently. Mrs. Hall has lived in Seattle for eighteen years and resides at 330 39th Ave., North West. Continuing her statement Mrs. Hall said:

"I had suffered from stomach trouble and nervousness for years. My system got in a terribly run-down condition and kept getting worse until it resulted in nervous prostration. I sold out my business because I just could not hold out any longer. I was then taken to the hospital, where I lay for nearly two weeks and when they carried me home I was no better off than before. My head ached so badly I felt like my eyes were weighted down with lead, and my back hurt so it felt like it would break, my stomach got in such a bad condition I could hardly eat anything, and what little I did manage to force down would ferment, and the pain caused by it would almost draw me double. Gas would form and bloat me up so I could not wear my corsets, and I was so nervous and miserable that I never knew what a good night's sleep was. I lost weight all the time, and had gotten in such a bad fix that I really thought my time had about come.

"Then as a last resort I began taking Tanlac, as I had read and heard so much about it, and the first bottle made a big change in my feelings. I have taken four bottles now, and it has made such a wonderful improvement in my condition, that I have bought back my business, and am working every day without the least bit of trouble. I have already gotten back fifteen pounds of my lost weight, and am not bothered any more with headaches or backache. My appetite is fine, and my stomach is in such a good condition that I can eat just anything I want and never feel a sign of indigestion. I think so much of Tanlac that whenever anyone comes to my stand and talks of having indigestion and stomach trouble, I always tell them to take Tanlac, and I know several people who are taking it because they know what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

HOW CANADIANS DID THEMSELVES A GOOD TURN

When the people of Canada last year subscribed $659,000,000 to the second Victory Loan they did a great thing for themselves and the Dominion. They enabled Canada to make a splendid finish in the war, they kept busy the wheels of the country's industry and made a first class personal investment.

On May 1 these Victory Bondholders will draw their first interest return on these bonds in the form of $18,000,000. Every province will share in this, from Prince Edward Island with $85,000, up to Ontario with $8,600,000. And this is only one-half of what these 1918 bonds will pay this year.

The 1,100,000 people who bought the bonds did not inflict on themselves any hardship in doing so. They did themselves a good turn, for the bonds are quoted three or four points above par. The money is absolutely safe, and it is enabling the bondholders to collect $36,000,000 this year.

Will this amount be permanently saved? It will, if those who draw it put it into War Savings and Thrift Stamps. A War Savings Stamp is a Victory Bond in miniature.

THE Dominion of Canada offers you every safeguard for your investment in Thrift and War Savings Stamps.

¶ Your postmaster will register every War Savings Stamp for you, and if they are lost by theft, fire or other cause, you can still obtain your money, with the accumulated interest, at the office where the stamps were registered.

Sixteen 25-cent Thrift Stamps will buy a $4.00 War Savings Stamp worth $5.00 in 1924.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

There is no law in British Columbia that compels you to read these notes, but if you can start reading them and quit before you get through is absolute proof there is nothing wrong with your will power.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Fisher, of Baynes, spent part of their honeymoon in Elko this week before leaving for their future home. Joe is an old timer at Baynes and a well known trapper, and we wish him every success for the future. Report says that Joe trapped more eight-toed wild cats than any three trappers in B.C.

Men are great only as they are kind, so don't keep the alabaster boxes of your love and tenderness sealed up until your friends are dead. It takes a brainy man to change his mind; a damn fool never does.

Among the visitors to Elko last Sunday we noticed: Mrs. Allen Smith of Surf Inlet. Mrs. O'Leary, Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Tom Prentice and Young Bill, Fernie. Mrs. W. Todhunter and children. Miss Mary Dragon, Bank of Commerce staff. Mr. and Mrs. J. McLean. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Johnson. Inspector Bridges Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. J. Puckey, Chief of Provincial Police and wife; all of Fernie. Miss Killjoy of Calgary, looking as sour as an open faced lemon pie. Will Dunn, returned vet.; Jim Thompson, Cranbrook (he can't stay away). Several well filled automobiles from Eureka, Montana. Mr. Thompson of the Dominion Express was in Elko last week fraternizing with several well known riders of the plains and grizzly bear hunters. Dryden, the Hawkshaw of Waldo, was in town visiting M. Gorman, the human ferret, and this pair will get you if you don't watch out. C. F. Williamson of Penticton, weights and measures, weighed up Elko and found it the best town in the Crow's Nest Pass. Mr. J. Austin and family, old Elko residents, from Fernie. Several other Fernieites passed through the old historic burg like a jack rabbit with a fresh bullet hole in his left ear.

Fred Roo is trying to make arrangements for the Hon. W. J. Bowser and party to stop off at Elko for the benefit of the people of Jaffray, Caithness, Waldo, Baynes, Flagstone, Newgate and the Roosville valley.

The Nelson News says that British Columbia has a quarter of a billion cords of pulpwood. They surely can't have counted in the Elk Valley with this small estimate.

Here are some of the travellers, pencil pushers and mining engineers visiting Elko: H. L. Arnold of the Continental Oil Co., Lethbridge; J. H. Tabor of Medicine Hat; Perry of Vancouver; J. P. Morgan, Calgary, no relation of Pierpont. Bob Grey, sure as cucumbers at pickling time, with boneless oranges and garlic, knows Bobbie Burns by heart and can recite the latest version of Mary had a little lamb without spilling a drop. Glennie, the tobacco man. Melson with paints and powders, talcum and other kinds of soothing syrups. Black of Blue Ribbon fame. Walter Harwood whose bottled up beverages are as sweet as the ladies in Laura Jean Libby's novels, and he landed a bunch of orders that the much advertised cow that jumped over the moon would have preferred walking around. Brown from Edmonton, humped up like a badger and looking just about as sociable, with sheepskin lined sourdough coats buttoned up close to the chin, though he seemed to be getting along like weeds in a flower garden. Ed Richards, mining engineer. Bill (Wild Bill) Gorrie Range Rider for the Clydebank Stock Ranch, Roosville Valley.

Frank Downs, of Claresholm, passed through Elko to his sawmill plant in the Roosville Valley and will then go on to Danville, Illinois, where Mrs. Downs and the children are visiting Mrs. Downs' parents.

COAL CREEK NOTES

Balloting on the recent award given by Commissioner Armstrong took place up here on Friday.

The mines were idle on Saturday last. The usual exodus of pleasure-seekers took place.

The camp is taking on a picturesque appearance in consequence of the burst of summer weather. The mountain foliage and wild flowers, coupled with the work of our local horticulturists are making the camp "The Garden City of the Pass."

All Moose are requested to attend the meeting on Monday evening at 8 o'clock sharp, as there is a class of candidates for initiation into the mystic rites. A large attendance is desired.

Billy Hines, one of our firebosses, had a misfortune while out motoring last week end which necessitates Billy being under repairs.

Lance-Corp. R. Snowden returned to camp on Tuesday, being a repatriated prisoner of war. Bob should be able to tell something of the horrors of the German prison camps.

Our road superintendent, Alf. Hopkins, says he intends to put Coal Creek on the map. Good roads for motorists is his slogan.

The football club entertained the F.A.A.C. at Victoria park on Sunday last. Joe Mitchell of Fernie acted as knight of the whistle and handled the game in a creditable manner. The local lads put it over their visitors 7 goals to 2.

The local club is scheduled to meet the G.W.V.A. at Fernie on Saturday. As this will be a Derby Day a good following of boosters is desired. Apropos of the game we learn that some form of social evening is being arranged.

Large photographic copies of the Honor Roll of the Club members who did their bit, can be had from R. Johnstone, the price being $1.25.

Coal Creek still carries attractions for our neighbors of Michel, as evidenced by the party arriving by automobile visiting relatives on Coyote street.

Mrs. J. Gillies was a visitor to Mrs. Worthington, of Coyote St., on Tuesday.

A meeting of the married men was held in the Club hall to arrange about a football game with the singles.

There must be an expected boom as we notice the carpenters fixing up the company's property these days.

To Whom It May Concern: Be it known that in future the G. W. V. A. meetings will be held on Thursdays at 7 p.m., commencing Thursday, May 29, by order of motion passed at general meeting.

A letter of reminiscences and inquiries concerning the camp has been received by the writer from George Finlayson, an oldtimer of this camp, who at present is in West Africa. While a resident here he gained fame as the camp elocutionist. Many residents will remember his successful rendition of "The Bells" and "How Bill Adams Won the Battle of Waterloo."

"THE TALK OF THE TOWN"

Dorothy Phillips is coming to the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday in the big special attraction "The Talk of the Town."

Genevre French grows up under the personal supervision of her father, a retired major of the army, who conducts his home along lines of strict military discipline. Until she is a woman grown her daily life is regulated by iron-clad rules. She is allowed no freedom, and grows up in sweet ignorance of the mysteries of life. Practicing the art of "Attracting the Opposie Sex," which she learns from a forbidden book, Genevra finds that she has won the love of her first subject, Lawrence Tabor, one of her father's few friends and a man of wealth. She does not love him, but marries him to escape the prison of her father's home.

Once married, she finds that she can do as she pleases and in her unrestrained pursuit of liberty becomes involved with a man of doubtful character, who is known to have preyed upon the affections of other men's wives.

To cure her of her indiscretion Tabor hires the man to attack his wife. At the crucial moment he discovers him, stages a terrific battle and sends his wife home sorrowing.

She realizes the folly of shadowy romance and returns to her senses as a wife and mother.

DRUMHELLER MINE WORKING

Although the strike of the coal miners is general in the valley, the Rosedale mine, which is operated by Frank Moodie, resumed work with a full equipment of men yesterday.

It is understood that while the foreign-born element among the miners is fairly well supplied with money to continue a strike, the English-speaking section, which spends more money on living, is not so well supplied, and will have difficulty in existing unless helped from the outside or given credit by the merchants.

The striking miners are still trying to persuade the engineers to join them so that certain mines may be flooded and made inoperative for three or four months, perhaps forever. So far these pleas have met with vigorous rebuffs from the engineers, who have announced that they intend to perform their duty and to prevent any damage to property if they can.

COAL COMPANY MAKES STATEMENT

Coal Creek, May 29, 1919.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—We beg to enclose a copy of a circular letter sent to the officials of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. who are still working, also the reply to the same. We would be glad if you would kindly publish these letters. A copy has been sent to the District Ledger; also to the Secretary of the Gladstone Local Union. Yours truly,

Coal Creek Mine Officials,
per H. E. Miard.

This is a copy of circular letter issued by Gladstone Local to all pit bosses and officials working at Coal Creek:

Fellow Workers—We wish to draw your attention to the fact that we are at this time engaged in a struggle to maintain the just rights of a certain portion of our membership. We think that it is hardly necessary to point out to you the fairness of our demands, as you must readily realize that, with the Cost of Living forced up to the limit whereby it is impossible for the worker to support himself and family, it is absolutely essential that there be no reduction in wages at this time, but rather a general increase all around is needed to offset the ever increasing cost of the necessities of life.

It has come to our notice that the Coal Company intend to use your services to replace those of some of our members who are out to secure a living wage.

Fellow Workers, we appeal to you not to permit yourselves to be used for such a despicable purpose. We would ask you to fall in line with the Firebosses, who, to a man, refused to fill any job of a man who is out on strike. We realize the position they have placed themselves in by such action, and we certainly admire their courage. The members of Gladstone Local have already pledged themselves not to resume work until all Firebosses are reinstated without prejudice or discrimination on the part of the management, and are ready to take the same stand with regard to yourselves. We ask you to think the matter over carefully. "Is it worth while to earn for yourself the animosity and ill-feeling of all right thinking men, to pander to the wishes of those who, however much they pretend to have your interest at heart, would, if it suited their purpose, take the same stand in regard to yourselves that they are taking with the ten and eleven hour men at the present time."

Gladstone Local Union.

Coal Creek, May 29, 1919

Secretary Gladstone Local Union.

Sir—In reply to the printed circular letter addressed to the mine officials still employed at Coal Creek by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., asking them to cease work and practically go out on a sympathetic strike, we wish to state that such a course of action cannot be considered for the following reasons:

Most mine officials are holding their positions not only through the company's choice but also by the government's, and in the ordinary course of affairs are responsible to both parties for the safe and efficient management of their respective departments. At the present time owing to the conditions created by the general suspension of work, they are simply trying to limit the unavoidable damaging of the property upon whose welfare the city of Fernie depneds for its very existence.

Should we imitate the example of the Firebosses formerly employed at Coal Creek, who, taking a different view of the obligations inherent to their position, ceased work as soon as the general strike order went into effect, we would render ourselves guilty of a very grave breach of trust, an action that all right thinking men could not fail to consider as highly reprehensible.

We might further state that at no time has the management required its officials to do any kind of work other than that strictly covered by the strike clause included in the agreement still in force.

We remain, Sir,

Yours respectfully,

The Coal Creek Mine Officials.

The following statement has been forwarded by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. for publication, in connection with the present strike in District No. 18:

A Circular has been issued by Gladstone Local Union to officials of the Crows' Nest Pass Coal Co. urging them to stop work and assist them in getting "justice" for certain of their fellow employees.

The agreement effective in the mines of District 18 when the strike was declared, entered into between the United Mine Workers and the operators of the District, and in force under the jurisdiction and direction of the Federal government through its Commissioner, Mr. Armstrong, contains clauses with respect to the Management of the Mines, the employment of Officials, and the care of the Mines during strikes. These clauses read as follows:

(a) Management of Mines

The right to hire and discharge the management of the Mines and the direction of the working forces are vested exclusively in the Company, and the United Mine Workers shall not abridge this right, however, the Company agrees not to discharge employees or refuse work to applicants on account of or because of their affiliation with the United Mine Workers of America.

(b) Employees Not Under Jurisdiction

All employees connected with the management of the mine are not to be under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers of America, or be members thereof, and shall include the following: Mine Manager or Superintendent, Overman or Assistant Overman, Pit Bosses, Fire Bosses, Stable Boss, Master Mechanic, Electricians, Weighman, Head Carpenter, Head Blacksmith, Tipple or Breaker Foreman, Loader Boss, Night Watchman, Coke Oven Foremen, Outside Foreman and all other Foremen, Time Keepers, Inspectors and Head Lampmen.

(c) Employees to Care For Mines

In case of either local or general suspension of mining, either at the expiration of this agreement, or otherwise, the Engineers, Firemen and Pumpmen shall not suspend work, but shall, when mining is suspended, fully protect all the Company's property under their care, and operate Fans and Pumps, and lower and hoist such men and supplies as may be required to keep up steam at the Company's Plant, but it is understood and agreed that the Campany shall not ask them to hoist any coal for sale on the market.

These clauses have appeared in every agreement between the United Mine Workers and the Operators of District 18 since the first agreement negotiated between them, and represent the opinion of both parties that the preservation of the mines in working condition, ready for resumption of work was simply economic horse-sense and desirable as much from the point of view of the one side as the other, no matter what the dispute at the moment might be. Hitherto, these clauses have been loyally lived up to and the settlement of grievances has been followed by practically immediate re-employment of all workmen.

The above circular, however, indicates a new policy on the part of those at present in control of Gladstone Local Union. In fairness to itself the Company wishes to give publicity to the fact that, in expecting its officials to remain at work for the protection of the mines, it is doing what it has always done, and what the United Mine Workers of America has agreed with it, it has a right to do; that those officials who have remained at work have similarly done as they have always done, and as the United Mine Workers of America have undertaken they shall have perfect freedom and right to do; and that, in taking their present attitude, Gladstone Local of the United Mine Workers of America deliberately and knowingly violates its own signed undertaking in the expectation that the additional pressure resulting from a knowledge on the part of the Company that its mines are suffering damage will force settlement of their demands.

"We, the Strike Committee, pledge ourselves to do all in our power to preserve law and order and are willing to co-operaee with the city council and police commissioners to ensure that a minimum of inconvenience and hardship be endured by the inhabitants of this community."

And the first thing they did was to close down the city light plant. Wouldn't it jar you.

W. J. Bowser, leader of the Opposition in the Victoria house, will be in Fernie this evening.

GENERAL STRIKE OF DISTRICT 18

The general strike for District 18 U.M.W. of A., while efficiently going into effect Saturday afternoon, as far as the production of coal is concerned went into effect at 11 p.m. Friday last, when the mines closed for the holidays. However, Monday was the first idle day on account of the strike. The tie-up is practically complete in every particular, because never before in the history of these mines have the firebosses ceased at the commencement of such cessation. All the regular engineers, firemen, fanmen and pumpmen are out while heretofore these classes were allowed to remain on duty during stoppages of work in order to prevent natural elements causing serious conditions arising in the mines which would require considerable work of restoration following adjustment and resumption of work.

The difficulty in connection with the firebosses, it is learned, upon a strike vote being taken by these officials, was that they decided to remain on duty as in the past to carry out inspection duties and guard against the dangers arising within the mines, but they were requested to continue and perform such other work as might be necessary to further care for the mines and insure measures of safety during idleness, which in time would necessitate carrying out of duties of some of those now on strike and which was the customary practice in the past. This they refused to do and their resignations were forthwith demanded by the management.

With two reported exceptions not a wheel is being turned at Coal Creek; the exceptions are the pumps in "B" North mine, which mine would become inundated within a period of 48 hours if these were suspended; and the fans in "B" North and No. 3 mines, the gaseous nature of these two making it imperative to continue to operate the ventilation systems continuously, or upon failure the very probable result would be the permanently rendering useless of these mines. Caring and feeding of the mine horses and other absolutely necessary work is being carried on by the pitbosses, clerical and official help still on duty. Everything in connection with the present situation is indicative that the struggle will be determinedly contested by the respective parties, but so far the situation is entirely of the most orderly nature and absolutely free from any untoward incidents usually prevalent upon similar occasions.

As near as can be estimated in this camp there are beteween seven and eight hundred mine employees directly affected by the present stoppage, while in Michel the total out is over 500 and in Corbin less than one hundred.

A further development in the present widespread labor unrest which directly affects this community arose on Wednesday when the power house staff operating the civic electric light and power plant went on strike at 5 o'clock.

HOTEL KEEPERS ARE ARRESTED

In connection with the arrest here on Thursday morning of nine prominent hotelmen for contraventions of Section Ten of the Prohibition Act, simultaneously with the service of the warrants by squads of provincial police, raids were made and every hotel premises throughout the city was thoroughly searched with the result that not in one single instance was any intoxicating liquor found. These entire proceedings were handled under the direction of Inspector Owen of the provincial police. Several constables from outside points were called here for the occasion. The warrants issued against the nine hotelmen were at the instances of Provincial Constables Pearman and Chadwick from Nakusp and Kaslo respectively, who have been operating in the city secretly for some days. Chadwick is a veteran of the 54th battalion. C. Lassalle, proprietor of a general store in the Fernie Annex was arrested on a similar charge. Acording to report given out here operatives had also been assigned to similar duty at Cranbrook and Revelstoke but no charges have been laid at Cranbrook, and Revelstoke activities have not been reported. Bail was fixed at $2000 for all offenders and the trials will come up on June 4th.

City officials openly resent being so obviously ignored but provincial authorities state they acted specifically in accordance with instructions from the Prohibition Commissioner.

(First Report)

On indisputable authority it is reported that two unknown special agents representing the authorities for the administration of the Prohibition Act have been operating in the city for the past week and equally true is the fact that much consternation prevails among the hotelmen. The mode of procedure adopted was to obtain if possible a sealed bottle from each hotel purporting to contain intoxicating liquor and the report credits the fact that these operatives were more or less successful in eight out of ten cases. Activities were not alone confined to hotels, but in cases of business but the absolutely true state of affairs in this connection can not be definitely stated until formal informations are laid.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

On Saturday evening while returning from a holiday picnic the automobile of H. J. Johnson, postmaster, driven by his young son, and containing a party of six young boys and girls, met with an accident about four miles west of the city, and very fortunately without sustaining any serious injuries to the occupants. The car was travelling towards the city and in some manner without warning got beyond control and pitched over a twelve foot embankment at the side of the road, overturning completely. One of the party was thrown clear but all the others were caught beneath it from which position they were able to extricate themselves. The miraculous escape from very serious injury is undoubtedly due to the fact that the back of the front seat of the car was sufficiently strong to carry the weight of the overturned car and balance it upon a large stump upon which it rested.

REORGANIZE BOARD OF TRADE

The council chamber was reasonably well filled on Monday evening upon the occasion of a reorganization of the Fernie Board of Trade. A. B. Trites, president, presided, and in his opening remarks earnestly appealed to the business men and progressive citizens to lend their sincere support towards re-establishing a real active Board of Trade in this city. At one time this city had such an organization but for many years the apathy displayed by those vitally affected had resulted in its becoming absolutely dormant and its very name had become synonymous of neglect. The cause for this disgraceful condition was attributed solely and entirely to the former members and citizens in general laying down on the job, and with a view to rectifying this deplorable state of affairs, Mr. Trites stated he had called the meeting in order to elect a new administration and endeavor to rehabilitate it on an effective working basis.

Nominations for the presidency were opened, some ten names being mentioned, all of whom advanced certain reasons for declining. Considerable discussion was indulged in with slight progress towards securing a suitable executive head. The difficulty was overcome through the nomination of a complete slate of officers, who were duly elected:

A. Corrie—President.
Thos. Prentice—Vice-President.
Fred G. Perry—Secretary.
G. G. Henderson—Asst. Secretary.

An Executive Committee of six was decided upon, for which sixteen nominees contested and upon ballot being taken the following were duly elected: S. Herchmer, A. B. Trites, R. M. Young, E. K. Stewart, A. Klauer and Dr. Garner.

With this preliminary work accomplished the meeting at once settled down to the consideration of matters of importance to the community. The first was that of expanding the board of trade organization throughout the district of East Kootenay and beyond for the purpose of greater efficiency. A meeting

TREASURES OF RUSSIA LOST

Stockholm—Seven hundred and fifty million dollars worth of Russian art treasures are in danger, and if the Allies or Providence do not intervene they will sooner or later be lost. The estimate of their value comes from Prince D. Golitzyne, an expert, who counts merely the contents of the Petrograd Hermitage and Museum of Alexander III, and of the Moscow Tretiakoff Gallery and the Historical and Rumantsieff Museums. Golitzyne takes no account of the uncounted millions worth of pictures, statutes and books in the palaces of the grand dukes, and the great private families the Yousoupoffs, Scheremetieffs and Stroganoffs.

The danger comes partly from the hungry mobs and the disorderly Red Guards, but most of all from the growing faction of anarchists, who have written on their banner that art is a luxury of capitalists and that the best way to prevent capitalism reappearing is to destroy all the pictures, statues and imposing buildings and to burn all the libraries to the ground.

Bolshevik Russia professes an enlightened policy towards art. The policy is embodied in Commissary of Education Lunatcharsky, who calls himself "Protector of Pictures by Will of the People," and has at his side Maxim Gorky, the painter, Benois, the critic, Gorbunoff, and some other competent men. Lunatcharsky's present plan is a great art robbery museum which he will call the "proletarian gallery." He is uniting two houses in the once artistocratic Sergeyevsky street, in Petrograd, and these he will stock exclusively with pictures and statues taken by force from the "bourgeoisie."

"My aim," said Lunatcharsky, "is to save art for the people." Last autumn he discovered that when taking possession of "bourgeois" citizens' furniture the urban communes of the poor did not appreciate good art, and often destroyed it, and after a Venetian glass set worth $5000, belonging to Count A. Tolstoy, was found in fragments in the street, the art loving Lunatcharsky got into a rage and declared that the "bourgeois" must be more systematically robbed. A house to house raid was arranged. The "bourgeois" protested as their treasures were carried off, but in vain.

"If not taken by us the works will be stolen by others," said Lunatcharsky.

When two unlicensed private robbers were caught making off with tapestry from the Stogranoff palace, in the Nevsky Prospect, they were handed over to the blood-thirsty Lett Peters, who shot them both. The tapestries were saved for Comrade Lunatcharsky's art robbery museum.

Bolshevism spends money without stint on art. Out of Lunatcharsky's budget for education 107,000,000 roubles go on free instruction in the arts, stipends, competitions and so on. On New Year's day, 1918, ten scholarships were founded for young men belonging to Red Guard families, who prove that they can paint in the most talented revolutionary and proletarian way. But they must be themselves proletarians. In the palace in Vozdvizhenka street, in Moscow, which once belonged to the cotton king, Morosoff, and is now a workman's club, Lunatcharsy thus defined the Bolshevik doctrine.

"With sanguinary and predatory 'bourgeois' are we have nothing to do. Capitalistic pictures are painted with proletarian blood and capitalistic statues are carved out of the bones of the poor. The capitalist who built this house cemented the bricks with blood. Now the proletarian is getting his art back. Seize everything. But destroy nothing." He advised the club members to form a committee for more systematic raiding after art in Moscow's rich houses.

Commissary of Education Lunatcharsky declares that he is going to open to the public the great Hermitage Gallery which has been closed for over a year and a half. The Hermitage Gallery was first built and stocked by Empress Catherine the Great; it was rebuilt by Tzar Nicholas I; and experts agree that it is the best collection of pictures of its size in the world; and the best collection of Dutch and Flemish pictures anywhere. In the summer of 1917, when things began to look black owing to Bolshevik threats, and to the risk of a German march upon Pettrograd, Alexander Kerensky, then chief of the government, resolved to remove all the pictures to Moscow. This had to be done in secrecy. The gallery it was announced, was closed for the usual summer cleaning; and on the quiet, every single picture was packed in a separate case. On Oct. 1, without the public suspecting, the first four carloads of pictures left Petrograd for Moscow. But the plan broke down.

Bolshevism began to raise its head so threateningly that Kerensky would not face the risk of carting the rest of the pictures to the railroad station. Then came the Bolshevik rebellion and triumph. Once after that the Hermitage collection was in danger. This was on the night of Jan. 10, when shots were fired at Red Guards in the Millionaya street, where the gallery stands.

Heavy losses are being caused by burglary, and by the dishonesty of the Bolsheviks' officials. The Hermitage has been badly plundered, not of pictures, but of metal works of art. The first robbery took place last June in the famous Kertsch room, where is the world most famous collection of Greek remains — mostly from the Crimea, including gold diadems, necklets, etc.

FELT LIKE MUSCLES WERE TIED IN KNOT

That Is Exactly The Way Tindall Says His Rheumatism Acted

"I had never taken a dose of Tanlac in my life till some six weeks ago, but I have received more benefit from the three bottles I have just finished than from all the other medicines I have taken put together," said George R. Tindall, of 6002-18th Ave., South, Seattle, the other day. Mr. Tindall is employed at the Skinner & Eddy Ship Yards.

"For several years," he continued, "I suffered terribly from muscular rheumatism and kidney trouble. The muscles of my right arm would draw up at the elbow, and feel like they were tied in a knot. I had no appetite and the little I forced down did not do me much, if any, good. My kidneys worried me night and day, I had an awful misery up and down my spine, and my back right over my kidneys would hurt so bad that if I stooped over it would almost kill me to straighten up again. I couldn't rest well at night, and many a time I would wake up at midnight, and never sleep another wink the balance of the night, then my back would start hurting so bad that I could hardly get up out of bed.

"I guess I have taken most every kind of medicine sold without getting a bit of relief, and I was in mighty bad shape when I decided to see if Tanlac would help me. Well, I can honestly say that I haven't had an ache or a pain since shortly after I started on Tanlac, I sleep like a log at night, and my wife tells me that I'm liable to eat us both out of house and home if I keep on with the appetite Tanlac has given me. I feel so well and hearty in every way that I have told the boys at the ship yard how much good Tanlac has done for me, for I hope that my experience will be the means of helping others who may have troubles like I had."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

THE CLOCK OF TRADE

The clock of trade is fast running down. Yet we have henceforth to meet interest charges of $100,000,000 a year on war debts before we can even get back to the attitude of "as-you-were" before the war. Not merely the high cost of living but each man's plain bread and butter hang on our doing more nationally than we did in 1914. All can help by passing the word along.

Today, when the wide world "thinks in millions," Canada must not be behindhand. The war-brought problems we now face, will demand the best and soberest thoughts of all the people for perhaps years to come.

No magic or luck will avail the Dominion in face of the keener, sterner war for the "survival of the fittest" which is already being waged through international trade.

Nothing but a fearless, unrelenting grasp of facts, however hard and cold, can aid us now. It is only by a study of trade figures and a clear interpretation of their message that we can foretell the trend of things and dispose our national forces to prevent disaster.

The tendency in Canadian trade, with its big, unexpected swing in our favor during the four years of war, (so liable to misunderstanding) can be easily comprehended in a perusal and a few minutes' comparison of the tables below.

It will be seen that our imports between 1914 and 1918 increased by over one-third, but that our exports were multiplied almost four times. Still more remarkable is the "balance of trade" as the difference between imports and exports of a country is technically termed. In 1914 our balance was adverse (i.e. we bought more than we sold) by 314 million dollars. But in 1918, owing to the war orders received, we had a favorable balance (i.e. we sold more than we bought) of some 577 million dollars.

The figures for 1919 show how the trend is sheer against us, plainly reminding us that the sands of our wartime prosperity are rapidly running out. It is already almost at the point where the balance of trade ceases to be favorable.

Not only are trade returns declining; the increase in our national debt from $330,00,000 in 1914 to over $1,500,000,000 in 1919 has enormously increased the annual interest charges we must pay. We must find $100,000,000 every year to pay the interest on the capital which the Dominion, considered as a unit, has been obliged to borrow.

The English of it all is that we must now do at the least $100,000,000 worth more trade than in 1913 before we can consider ourselves in as good financial standing as we were then. That is the shadow in the path of our national progress.

It is the desire of the Canadian Trade Commission that the lesson of these trade tables should be widely known. The knowledge when attained will form the first step in rectifying the tendency of our trade and to place the Dominion again right in the altered conditions which since war ended govern the world.

A general understanding of our foreign trade for the last few years will be obtained from the following figures (to the nearest million dollars):

Year End. March	Imports Million $	Exports Million $	Trade Bal. Million $
1913.....	670	356	Ad. 314
1914	618	432	Ad. 186
1916	508	741	Fa. 233
1919	916	1207	Fa. 291

In one year the total Canadian trade has dropped from $2,548 millions to $2,176 millions, or $372 millions. If the drop continues with the same characteristics as in 1919 the Dominion, even at the close of the next half year, may be faced with an adverse balance of trade.

BELGIUM'S SERVICE

But let it be remembered now and always that if Belgium had not sacrificed itself the continent of Europe and virtually the world, would have been under the German flag before Christmas, 1914. If Belgium's hopeless resistance had not delayed Germany three weeks, those dinner appointments made by Germans for Paris, August 12, would have been kept, and Russia would then have been overrun before it could mobilize its armies—though it was more exepeditious about this than Germany expected — England could not have got its "contemptible little army" to France in time to be of any use, and the dream of William II. would have come true.—Philidelphia Record.

GERMANY AT VERSAILLES

One great event of the week is the return of the Germans to Versailles. Nearly half a century ago they were there before as conquerors dictating to a beaten country, helpless under their heel. Bismarck and von Moltke were there and when the French representatieves were staggred at the terms demanded, in French, as the language of diplomacy, Bismarck brutally told them to hurry up or, said he "I shall begin to talk in German." It was at Versailles, too, that they crowned William of Prussia as the first German Emperor. There began that career of Germany as "the road hog of Europe" which finally brought her back again to Versailles, without an army, without a fleet, without an emperor, and without a friend — beaten, baffled, disintegrated, and in despair. The return of Germany to Versailles is the greatest and most richly deserved humiliation in all history.—Liverpool Post.

SAYS LEMON JUICE WILL REMOVE FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

SYNOPSIS OF

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

WILL MAINTAIN LAW AND ORDER

Vancouver, May 23.—The Great War Veterans' Association of Vancouver at its meeting last night solidly pledged itself on the side of law and order with respect to the present industrial unrest throughout the Dominion and passed a resolution stating that the members opposed any insurrectionary or riotous attempts that might imperil the safety and security of fellow citizens. The resolution was carried practically unanimously there being less than half a dozen who voted against it.

The resolution was as follows:

"Whereas the labor situation throughout the Dominion is at present occupying the anxious attention of all serious-minded citizens, and whereas the unemployment problem is particularly serious in the City of Vancouver, resolved that we reaffirm our determination, by united representation and united action to use all possible endeavors to the end that the causes of the present unrest be eliminated and a greater spirit of harmony and concord may prevail in the community; that we reiterate our belief that in our opinion the present unrest is largely due to the following causes: The abnormal psychological conditions resulting from the aftermath of the war, profiteering, the prevailing unemployment and the failure of the Federal government and the Provincial government jointly and severally to effect an adequate remedy; the unduly excessive prices of all the necessities of life; the largely intensified attitude of mutual suspicion and distrust which has been developed as between employer and employee and the failure of the controlling governmental authorities to introduce and establish a practical basis of co-operation; that while assuring our sympathy towards any measure and our support towards any action constitutionally conceived and constitutionally forwarded that may have the effect of alleviating the present cases of unrest and of improving the conditions now hampering the worker in his life and in his work, we do most emphatically pledge ourselves on all occasions to maintain law and order and respect for the flag and to oppose any insurrectionary or riotous attempts that may imperil the safety and security of our fellow citizens or any attempt to subvert the ordered institutions of British law."

THE QUESTION OF CONTROL

Events are multiplying to show that the Dominion government is about to take some steps to control the cost of living. The action will be very much belated, but none the less welcome, provided what is done is sufficient. It was plain to anyone who took the trouble to invvestigate the matter as long ago as 1916 and 1917 that the volume of demand for action must eventually reach the crescendo pitch, and the marvel is that the government should not have stepped in long ago. If it had there would have been little or no labor unrest, whereas the result of inaction has been more strikes within the past few years than in any other period of the Dominion's history. The result of these strikes has generally meant increased wages and a corresponding increase in the price of living, so that with every strike that ensued the seeds for future labor unrest were sown. We have been moving in what in economic phrase is known as a vicious circle, and our government, up to date, has done absolutely nothing to bring about stable conditions in the industrial world.

The Vancouver city council is requesting the Dominion government to pass an order-in-council permitting municipalities to hold inquiries into the reasons for the high cost of various necessities. Those who have been responsible for such costs appear to be utterly devoid of vision. It cannot be in their interests to see the growth of unrest, for that means less production and reduced profits, creates a harder task for the country in paying off the national debt. Less production means greater taxation, which will bear heavily on all classes. We should have thought the interests responsible for the distribution of the necessities if life would have been alive to the feeling of the consumer and would not have insisted on such profits as were bound eventually to lead to price control.

A few days ago the Minister of Labor intimated the government might have to take a hand in reducing the cost of living. The present experience in Winnipeg, the threatened general strike in Toronto, other labor troubles in half a dozen places are episodes which will hasten governmental action. At the same time there is a growing demand in many communities for power to exercise local control, but local control will fail. The task is one for the Federal government to undertake. There is no fear whatever that action will tend to decrease production, as is hinted in some quarters. That is merely an insidious threat. Canadian manufacturers and the packing interests can find all the markets wanted overseas and as long as that condition prevails there is no fear of decreased production. What the government's duty is to see that the people of Canada are not forced to pay the price that the starving nations of Europe are willing to pay for Canadian products because the latter need them so badly. Our own needs should be filled first at a price which will allow a legitimate profit only for those responsible for distribution. Afterwards the surplus can be sent overseas. This is an elementary economic fact, which, by this time, should have been learned by all. The government is now subjected to pressure from all quarters regarding the problem of prices and common sense demands it should not delay much longer in taking action. How much better for the country it would have been if steps in this direction had been taken two years ago. —Colonist.

GERMAN CHIVALRY

When anything savoring of humanity or common decency, to say nothing of chivalry, has been shown by German soldiers the Evening Telegram has given credit for it.

Such instances are few and far between. In one or two cases German aviators dropped flowers on fallen opponents, we recall.

Now comes an American command the 38th United States infantry, of the A.E.F., in soldierly fashion giving credit for a decent act.

Credit belongs where due, and soldiers of the First battalion do not hesitate to pay a thankful tribute to that particular German organization which faced them on the Vesle. Germans have bombed hospitals, everybody knows; they have shelled field dressing stations; they have fired at allied ambulances and disregarded generally the conventions of the Geneva conference. But on that afternoon they allowed two litter bearers, wearing the Red Cross brassards, to cross the Vesle in plain view and to come within a few yards of their machine gun positions in order to pick up and carry back Lieut. McCall. Not a shot was fired until the stretcher men were well back on their way to a dressing station. Then the usual fire was resumed. It was a gracious act of courtesy in battle.

It would be hard to think that in all the German army there were no white men.

Small as the courtesy would seem to soldiers of civilized countries, not swayed by unreasoning hate, instances of the kind are so rare from a German source that the world marvels at and makes much of them.

The incident is commended to the attention of the Women's International Conference on Permanent Peace, now so busy with the old bunch of pacifists and propagandists trying to hunt up evidence to show what good, kindly Christian souls the Huns are and why the peace terms should be modified.—New York Telegram.

THE HOME TOWN SHEET

Found something good about country papers the other day. It was from a pamphlet entitled, "Human Interest Stories," issued by the Equitable Life Insurance Co. Our old friend Walt Mason, editor of the Emporia Gazette, penned the paragraphs, and here they are:

"Our little country papers seem drab and miserably provincial to strangers yet we who read them, read in their lines the sweet intimate story of life. When the girl at the glove counter marries the boy in the wholesale the news of their wedding is good for a forty line wedding notice and the forty lines in the country paper gives them self respect. When in due course we know that their baby is a twelve pounder named Grover or Theodore or Woodrow we have that neighborly feeling that breeds the real democracy. When we read of death in that home, we can mourn with those that mourn. When we see them moving upward in the world, on to a farm and out toward the country club neighborhood, we can rejoice with those that rejoice.

Therefore, men and brethren, when you are riding through this vale of tears on the California Limited, and by choice pick up the little country newspaper with its meagre telegraph service; when you see its array of countryside news, its interminable local stories; its tiresome editorials on the waterworks, the schools, the street railroad, the crops and the city printing, don't throw down that contemptible rag with the verdict that there is nothing in it. But know this, and know it well: If you could only take the clay from your eyes and read the little paper as it is written, you would find all of God's beautiful sorrowing, struggling aspiring world in it, and what you saw would make you touch the little paper with reverent hands."

EDITORIAL NOTES

We are much indebted to the Cranbrook Herald for the use of their plant for the publication of this week's Free Press.

Fernie with its natural resources and steady pay roll should be the best town in Canada, but agitators and labor troubles have made it unpleasantly notorious throughout the whole of Canada.

Once more we have what would appear to be a live board of trade. The next thing we want is a citizen's committee who will take charge of our local affairs and put the city lighting plant beyond the control of sympathetic strikes. The G. W. V .A. at Lethbridge compelled the miners to allow the city of Lethbridge mines to be operated so that their water and light plants would not be put out of business, and the same forces could easily be used in Fernie to keep our public utilities going.

The Great War Veterans at this stage of the game should in the name of law and order compel the city to operate its lighting plant.

This town has been cursed by strikes till its citizens are almost eager to see this strike fought out to a finish.

The absolute silliness of the local city engineers going out in sympathy with the miners and thus leaving the city in darkness is hard to understand. The wildest stretch of imagination cannot conceive of any possible good that this tie-up can do the striking miners.

Fernie city is once again tied up by industrial strife which may continue for several months. The struggle this time is between the Dominion government and the miners and it looks like a fight to a finish. The socialist element have always been clamoring for government ownership of the mines, but now that they have government control they find that there is a limit to the concessions that even a government can grant.

The strike leaders in Winnipeg forced all newspapers except their own organ to close down. That is their idea of freedom of speech. Lenine and Trotzky adopted exactly the same course in Russia, where only the soviet paperss were allowed to exist. —Nelson News.

"Socialization of all property, including women" is the cardinal tenet of Bolshevism as it has been put into effect in Russia. A rottener, more immoral doctrine was never openly advocated. Yet under various guises paid agents both in Canada and the United States are attempting to establish "soviet" governments in these countries. The Bolshevist is an enemy of society and should be treated as such, no matter what name he uses as a cover for his designs.—Nelson News.

WHAT IT MEANS

There has dawned upon the consciousness of members of the Union government the fact that western labor troubles of the moment have a deeper and more sinister significance than appeared when they first started in Winnipeg. After some days in the Manitoba capitol, in close touch with the situation there, the minister of labor, who is a labor unionist himself, has discovered conditions which he did not understand previously. A Calgary trades unionist just returned from Winnipeg, tells the Herald he made the same discovery. The fact is that the strikers there are not letting the whole truth be known.

In all the publicity thus far sent out they claim they are fighting for the principle of collective bargaining and that this is being denied by Winnipeg concerns. Collective bargaining, as it is generally understood means recognition of the union by employers and dealing with a union committee in case of differences between employed and employers. It is a principle which is generally endorsed, and the fact that it was being denied by Winipeg employers made trades unionists all over the country sympathetic with the strike movement there.

But the collective bargaining the Winnipeg strikers are contending for is something different. They claim that where differences arise between employers and employed in any trade the bargaining shall be through the medium of a central committee representing all trades. In other words, there would be no more individual trade agreements or settlements, but we would have the One Big Union idea carried into effect. That is a species of collective bargaining not generally understood by trades unionists of the old school and not in accord with their long-established trades union principles.

The Herald does not believe this element of the trouble has been well understood by Calgary unionists. Neither does it believe they would willingly support such a move. In the judgment of members of the government now in Winnipeg it indicates a movement for the destruction of trades unionism as it has been and the substitution of a dangerous labor condition—quite as dangerous to trades unionism as to the country. It may not be Bolshevism pure and simple as they have it in Russia, but it is as close an approach to it as can be figured out for use in this country.

This paper is absolutely loyal to the cause of trades unionism as we have it in Canada and the United States in the past and as the sane and solid element among the workers understand it today. It recognizes the fact that there has been cause for trouble in Winnipeg, but denies that the cause there has been of such nature as warrants the extreme action being taken by labor. Organized labor is being stampeded and its interests bedeviled by forces within its own ranks that are destructive in their tendency. In every legitimate move made for its betterment the Herald sympathizes with organized labor; we are convinced the present movement is not for betterment.

There is no justification for a sympathetic strike in Calgary today. The rights of thousands of citizens who are perforce more or less dependent upon organized labor, though they are not of that class themselves, are of greater community consequence than the demonstration of a so-called collective bargaining principle that has never been endorsed by old-established trades unions and which would be unacceptable to them.

If this sort of thing is to be forced upon us we might as well fight it now as at any other time, and in the fight the Herald feels that the people have a right to look for support from those trades unionists who recognize their liabilities to their employers, as they demand the liabilities of the employers to them shall be recognized and met.

The Calgary sympathetic strike may be brief or long drawn out, but its results will be certain from its outset if the people carry on as they may and should. Insidious propaganda has worked the evil now facing us; its effect will be nil if while the disturbance is with us we take as little notice of it as possible and conduct ourselves and our business as if nothing were happening. Many Calgary workmen are being misled; they will see their error before long and will join with their suffering fellow citizens in stamping out the evil which for the moment is threatening their whole organization. The fight is not against unionism; it is against Bolshevism.—Calgary Herald

SECOND O.B.U. MEETING HELD

(Trail News)

Another meeting was held Thursday evening over the Trail Mercantile company store by William Potter, member of District No. 18 United Mine Workers of America. Mr. Potter spoke at the same place last week to a large audience, expounding his theory of the One Big Union movement and endeavoring to secure converts to the scheme.

P. J. Bolam, formerly secretary of the Trail Union No. 105, International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, again occupied the chair Wednesday evening while Mr. Potter did most of the speaking. An audience of perhaps a hundred was present, but was not particularly enthusiastic, the light applause coming from boys for the most part.

Apparently the majority of the workers of Trail do not take any too kindly to the idea of overriding all constitutional government to gain their ends—or as Potter put it, going over the heads of the government to secure their object, a dollar an hour for common labor. No public statement has been given out as to the result of the propaganda for One Big Union in Trail, for while many feel that conditions should be improved, they are not prepared to go to the extremes suggested for that purpose.

The Trail News, speaking editorially under the heading "Time For Level Heads," says:

All through the world, including Canada, there is an unrest that is one of the serious outcomes of the great war. It is made more acute by the fact that the cost of living continues on a wartime basis while wages are lower. The manufacturer receives lower figures for his product, but the workman cannot cut down his cost of living materially, no matter how hard he tries.

At such times the malcontent, the I. W. W. and the Bolsheviki come right to the front — they capitalize every possible unrest, real or fancied. Unfortunately they find many converts, men who ordinary would never think of taking up such standards. They believe in using force and preach six hour days at a dollar per hour for common labor—in short a sort of utopia. They would go over the head of the government, which means anarchy.

It is a time for the display of level headedness, not only on the part of the employe, but on that of the employer. He who believes in unconstitutional methods to secure his ends is classing himself with the Huns, no matter whom he affiliates with.

In Winnipeg, Toronto, Calgary and other larger centres concrete evidence of the prevailing unrest is coming to the surface and it must be dealt with It is a condition that confronts us, not a theory. The government should control foodstuff prices, allowing the producers a fair profit and no more. Then let the people have the food at reasonable figures. Canada produces enough for its own needs; she can sell the balance to the world, and put the profit in the public purse, but home people should not be made to pay old world prices.

Keep an even keel, do not be misled by agitators, do not waste, economize, These be parlous times, and the well balanced man can be of inestimable value to himself and to the community in which he lives. Things will work out eventually and each of us should help and not hinder in that working out. Think it over.

GENERAL NOTES

Keenly resenting what were described as the pro-Bolsheviki and pro-Spartacan resolutions passed at the Trades and Labor Council at Calgary, the Army and Navy Veterans' Association of Winnipeg unanimously went on record as being absolutely against Bolshevism in all its phases, declared that the Trades and Labor Council in Winnipeg did not represent true democracy and urged that all publications which advocated Bolshevism be suppressed immediately, that the printers and publishers be deported and that it be made a criminal offence to be in possession of such literature.

A large delegation of veterans waited on Premier Norris and the cabinet at Winnipeg to urge further action in interning and contributing to the deportation of all alien enemies. The ultimatum presented was that the government failing in this, should resign and permit the electors to decide. The subject was generally discussed frankly, but the only assurance that could be given was that the government would intern all alien enemies proven to be dangerous or disloyal, as deportation was a subject for the Dominion only.

Bringing an assurance from Ottawa that the Federal government will provide $100,000 this year for an experimental plant for the treatment of complex ores, Hon. Wm. Sloan, Mines of Mines for B.C., returned from the East. Hon. Mr. Sloan announced that the plant would be constructed within the next few months. He had sought a Dominion grant of $200,000 and while failing to obtain the complete sum this year is satisfied with the reception which his request received from Hon. Martin Burrell, Federal Minister of Mines.

According to the Canadian government's official weekly bulletin the British government has arranged for the shipment of 624,000 cases of apples from Australiasia, five-sixths of which will be moved from Tasmania. The freight rate per case to the United States is to be $1.48 per case. The maximum retail price in the English market has been fixed at $4.68 per case of 37 pounds and $5.07 per case of 40 pounds.

If the sympathetic strike in Winnipeg is misunderstood by the people of the rest of the country the strikers there have only themselves to blame. They denied the papers the right to print the news in the regular way.—Calgary Herald.

NANAIMO SAMPLES LENINE PROPAGANDA

Nanaimo, May 23.—Circulars are being furtively circulated by revolutionary propagandist agents in Nanimo, reproducing Lenine's appeal to the Allied Soldiers in Russia. The British and American soldiers are represented as fighting for capitalistic class. The state, the government, the courts and the press are held up as all persecuting the "working class." According to his declaration there are only two classes, the employers and the working class. It concludes by urging the soldiers to "turn your guns on your real enemies, the sweaters and the capitalists and come with us into the far nobler struggle, to establish the triumph of labor the world over."

The appeal is signed by N. Lenine, President of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies, and by G. Tchicherin, People's Comissary for Foreign Affairs.

The Russian propaganda is thus brought home here and should remove any remaining doubts as to the real objects and aims of the present movement.

MAN HAS HIS TROUBLES

Man comes into this world without his consent, and leaves against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contrariees and misunderstandings by fellow beings. In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small check he's a thief and the law raises hell with him; if he is a poor man he is a poor manager and has no sense; if he is rich he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics you can't place him as he is an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a sinner and damned; if he donates to foreign missions he does it for show; if he doesn't he is stingy and a tightwad. When he first comes into the world everybody wants to kiss him; before he goes out they all want to kick him. If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is in the way and living to save funeral expenses. It is a funny old world, but we all like to live in it just the same, so in these reconstruction days just be cheerful and keep going.

Re-organization of Fernie Board of Trade

For the purpose of furthering the interests of the City of Fernie and District, the citizens met and reorganized the Board of Trade, and a Board of enthusiastic officers has been elected.

Different committees have been formed and will immediately deal with the following subjects :

(a) Publicity and general advertising;

(b) Development of our natural scenery, hunting and fishing.

(c) The bringing in of tourists to this District and making this their headquarters;

(d) The improvement of streets, SIDEWALKS and roads;

(e) Healthy recreation for children and adults;

(f) Public health;

(g) Industrial expansion;

(h) The betterment of train service, and particularly the re-establishment of the old local; and

(i) The beautifying of all parts of our City.

A fund to carry out this work is necessary, and a membership committee will circulate a list for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions and members.

The time is ripe to boost this District—indications are that tourist trade will be heavy this year.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Burdell and William Clowers returned from the front this week. Both are looking in splendid condition.

Home Bank Inspector Womack, of Winnipeg, was in the city several days this week inspecting the local branch.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin Leitch, of Cranbrook, entertained a number of the Fernie visitors who took in the sports on May 24th.

The ladies of the Catholic church are giving another of their famous evenings on Tuesday, June 3rd, at the Parish hall. Everyone is invited to come early and a good time is promised.

Notwithstanding the efforts of the Loggers' Union and other friends of the One Big Union to boycott the Cranbrook celebration, it was the biggest day ever pulled off in the history of that town.

Joseph Austin, C. P. R. station agent, returned on Saturday from St. Louis, Mo., where he attended the international convention of the telegraphers. During his trip east Mr. Austin visited Ottawa, Toronto and other Ontario cities.

Lieut. Arthur Woodhouse, of the Royal Flying Corps, arrived home a few days ago from France and Germany, where he has been on active service. He says that Lieut. Harold Minton has enlisted for another four years with the British flying corps.

The six year old daughter of A. C. Murray, coroner, of Natal, died suddenly on Monday. The immediate cause of death was a hemmorhage of the lungs which weakened condition of the child was the result of an attack of influenza last fall.

Rev. Joseph Philip has resigned his position of Associate Pastor of Centenary church, Hamilton, and he and Mrs. Philip are with Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Adolph at Baynes Lake. An extended visit will, it is hoped, assist in restoring Mrs. Philip to her former health. Mr. Philip supplied Coal Creek five or six years ago.

The final touches on the deal between the land setlement board and the Canyon City Lumber Co., Ltd., for 8000 acres of the latter's land were put through on Tuesday of last week. The matter is now up to the government at Victoria and a decision one way or the other may be looked for within the next ten days. Right now prospects are that the buy will be made.—Creston Review.

Thos. J. Barnes was released from custody here yesterday, in view of an application for writ of habeas corpus being successful at the coast. Accused was tried by His Honor Judge Thompson on a charge of seduction, and the case dismissed on a point of law upon the Crown's failure to incorporate in the accusation count, which the evidence tended to prove while that incorporated was not proven. Immediately upon dismissal counsel for the Crown gave notice in court for a new information to be laid with the result that Barnes was forthwith taken into custody and has remained in custody until Tuesday.

L. P. Sullivan, for a long time machine operator on the Cranbrook Herald and for one year editor of that paper but more recently in charge of the mechanical department of the Fernie Ledger, has returned to Cranbrook and established the Cranbrook Courier having purchased the Prospector plant. Mr. Sullivan is originally from Halifax, but can take his shirt off without assistance, and is able to instill in the columns of the paper enough western pep to make it interesting. It is said that he purchased the Prospector plant from A. E. Watts, president of the Cranbrook Herald Company. Evidently Mr. Watts believes in the theory that competition is the basis of success in the newspaper business, as well as in other lines.—Kamloops Sentinel.

The evening service at Christ church next Sunday and until further notice will be at 6.30 p.m. instead of 7.30 p.m.

John Wallwork, a returned soldier, was united in marriage last evening to Miss Edna Gash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Gash. The ceremony took place in the Church of England and was performed by the Rev. Yolland.

The high water is again a menace to some of the outlying sections of the city and the trunk road is cut off about a mile east of the city, while the road is covered with some feet of water on the west at the foot of the Morrissey Hill. Thus for the time being through traffic via road is suspended. The river advanced again very rapidly on Wednesday, after it had subsided several inches following a couple of cool days the end of last week. However, heavy rains followed by warm strong winds brought the streams up again with the result that on Tuesday night the Elk river here stood 8 ft. 7 in. above low water mark, or within less than one foot of the height it reached during the flood of 1916. None of the bridges over the Elk are as yet reported in danger, with the possible exception of the G. N. bridge near Hosmer, where one of the piers has been considerably weakened by jamb of driftwood.

C.P.R. PRESIDENT VISITS FERNIE

President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific Railway and his party, comprising D. C. Coleman, 2nd vice-president, Winnipeg; F. W. Peters, 3rd vice-president, Vancouver; H. McKenzie, chief engineer for the company; and the secretary to the persident, C. S. McHarg, while en route by special train through the Crow's Nest Pass to Nelson on an inspection tour, availed themselves of the opportunity of certain Fernie citizens to detrain here and make the 25 mile journey from Fernie to Elko via automobile, which is one of the most picturesque trips through the mountains.

The invitation was extended by wire on behalf of the local business men by A. B. Trites and they were highly gratified at receiving prompt acceptance. Several cars were available for the party which conveyed them on this trip, those of A. B. Trites, S. Herchmer, A. Klauer, E. K. Stewart and others. The visitors were very much elated on account of being given the opportunity to break the monotonous rail journey and expressed profound amazement at the scenic splendor encountered passing through this section, which they stated was equal to any and surpassed by none of the other highly advertised mountain road routes in this province or those of this continent.

STRIKERS HAVE LITTLE FUNDS

Lethbridge, Alta., — It is stated here that the striking mine workers are as a body without any funds to speak of. Before the strike there was about $10,000 in the treasury of District 18. As there are about 4,000 men out, this represents about $2.50 a striker. Those who have savings will be able to get by for a time but the majority will suffer severely if the strike is prolonged.

The city's mine is working here since the G.W.V.A. insisted that the public utilities be operated so that there might be no unnecessary suffering. This mine supplies the coal that furnishes the city power house with fuel.

There are also some non-union mine workers in various mines. The furnace fires are still burning in many mines as if the operators expected an early resumption of activities.

In some of the Crow's Nest Pass towns the lighting systems are not operating owing to lack of fuel.

BOLSHEVIKI BEATEN

Omsk, May 23.—(Russian Telegraphic Agency)—Reports received by the general staff of the Siberian army indicate disintegration of the Bolsheviki. Mobilized workingmen and peasants are deserting at the first opportunity and even the Bolsheviki commissaries are declared to be disheartened. Siberian newspapers print resolutions adopted at recent meetings of peasants in the district of Samara, who decided to expel all those of Bolshevist sympathies and to arm all men between 18 and 50. The Bolsheviki organ, Nash Put, acknowledges that it is impossible to stop the Siberian offensive, saying:

"The army against us is more powerful than the army we had to face last year. In spite of all our efforts the army moves swiftly toward the heart of our positions."

The Siberian troops as they move toward the front are greeted enthusiastically by the population. The railroad cars bear this inscription:

"We are going to Moscow."

The Moscow Narcony bank, financial centre of the Russian co-operative organizations, has issued new stock to the amount of 25,000,000 roubles. The bank, which now has its main office in Siberia, has opened a series of branches between the Urals and Vladivostock. More than 50 per cent of the new stock already has been taken.

OBJECT OF THE STRIKES

It is becoming more and more evident that the labor difficulty in which the west finds itself just now is a concerted effort on the part of One Big Union advocates to force that organization into active being in this country in spite of all opposition. The collective bargaining principle for which the strikers are contending is purely a One Big Union idea and not collective bargaining as understood by International Trades Unionism. Once let such a principle be admitted and sympathetic strikes would become as common as the ordinary variety and the whole machinery of industrial government would be handed over to the O.B.U. heads. This would mean class control quite as obnoxious as anything we have experienced from the so-called plutocratic class. — Calgary Herald.

LABOR BUREAUS PLACED 4496 MEN IN WEEK

Ottawa, May 21.—A new record has been established by the Dominion employment service for the week ending May 3, when 76 offices reported 4496 applicants placed in regular jobs. This is an increase of 500 over the preceding week. In addition, applicants were placed in 546 "casual" jobs, an increase of 99.

Of regular placements 332 were reported in Manitoba, a decrease of 113; 509 in Saskatchewan, a decrease of 22; 753 in Alberta, an increase of 157, and 674 in British Columbia, an increase of 86.

During the week 6871 applicants were registered. The corresponding figures for the previous week were 6380.

At the end of the week 8768 applicants were reported unplaced and 7004 vacancies remained unfilled. Of the unfilled vacancies 3602 were for farm laborers and 1391 for women workers, these two classes together accounting for 71 per cent of the total. On the other hand, only 17 per cent of the placements were farm laborers and 6.4 per cent women workers.

IRRIGATION CONVENTION AT MEDICINE HAT

The Western Canada Irrigation Association will hold its convention this year at Medicine Hat during the first three days of the week beginning August 4th, and will be attended by large numbers of irrigationists not only from Alberta but from all parts of Western Canada and from the United States. Many interesting papers will be read dealing with the practical side of irrigation covering such topics as Commercial Seed Growing, Profitable Crops with Irrigation in Southern Alberta, Live Stock on the Irrigated Farm, the Economic Phase of Irrigation, and many other matters of interest to irrigation farmers.

The choice of Medicine Hat as the convention city is a happy one. With Lethbridge and Calgary it forms one of the triangle of cities within the large irrigated area in Southern Alberta. It is also within easy reach of the Cypress Hills irrigation district in Saskatchewan. The increasingly important place which irrigation occupies in agriculture in Western Canada is reflected in the work of the Western Canada Irrigation Association, and this year's convention is expected to surpass in usefulness all previous conventions, valuable as these have been to practical irrigationists throughout the country.

FREEDOM OF THE SEAS

It has been the necessary, but painful duty of the Board of Admiralty to abandon a large number of incomplete vessels which are now being cut up into convenient pieces for melting down. That has been one of the minor, but costly tragedies of the coming peace. But we are left with a fleet so prodigious in size that, in the absence of serious rivalry in European waters, we cannot face the expense of keeping more than about half of it in full commission. As a result of the well-directed efforts of the Admiralty, supported with fine loyalty by the masters and men of the shipbuilding and engineering industries, our seamen have emerged from the war with newly-won laurels, and as a naval power we are the possessors of a fleet admirably fitted to maintain the prestige of a world-wide Commonwealth, which must hold the seas in security, or, impotent, to avert disaster, dissolve miserably into its component parts. — London Daily Telegraph.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

We suspect that in another year if one were to ask an old-time Populist if he still wanted government ownership, the O.P. would land at least one good punch before the bystanders could stop him.—Houston Post.

Why Do We Advertise?

YOU may think that because we are big manufacturers, and you are only one consumer out of several million, we have no special interest in you, and you have no real interest in us. Nothing could be farther from the truth that that.

Our future as manufacturers depends in the end, upon just one thing: the satisfaction which our product gives to you, the consumer. And your satisfaction depends to a large extent upon the attention which you yourself give to the buying of shoes.

For, bear in mind this fact: no matter with what care we select the materials which go into a shoe—no matter how perfect the workmanship may be—it will not give you the full measure of satisfaction unless it is correctly fitted to your foot. And that is something which we cannot control.

We do insist that the materials which go into our shoes shall be the best quality possible at the price: we do make sure that the workmanship is as nearly perfect as our human organization can make it—but we must stop there. We cannot insure ourselves that you will buy the type of shoe which will give you the best service, or the size and width which alone can give you comfort and satisfactory wear.

And so we speak to you through this advertising—the only method by which we can hope to reach you all. Our object is not merely to sell more of our shoes. We seldom ask you to buy A. H. M. shoes. Our purpose is rather to tell you how you may obtain better comfort and better service from the shoes you buy.

Of course we hope that you will buy A. H. M. shoes, and we are confident that sooner or later you will do so. But we want to make sure that when you do buy them you will get all the comfort and satisfaction which we try to build into them.

Our booklet, "How to Buy Shoes" goes into the subject more fully than is possible in newspaper space. It is sent on request to any address in Canada. May we send you a copy with our compliments?

CRANBROOK HAD BIG CELEBRATION

(Cranbrook Herald)

The various committees who had the G. W. V. A. celebration for the 24th in hand wore a broad smile on the morning of the holiday when they saw the sun rise upon a bright and happy day. The city was decorated with flags and bunting and presented a cheerful holiday appearance. Autos bicycles and other vehicles carried suitable decorations. The city was overcrowded the night before and the crowd began to stir early.

The members of the local branch of the G. W. V. A., under Lt.-Col. C. H. Pollen assembled at the Veterans' rooms and marched to the station to meet the special trains that arrived from Fernie and Creston about 9.45 a. m., bringing large crowds

The local Veterans, joined by their visiting comrades, led by the Fernie bugle band, marched to the city hall where a wreath was placed by Col. Pollen on the memorial erected to "The Heroic Dead."

The Veterans then started for the government buiding and were met at the corner of Baker and Norbury by the City Brass Band, who then took the lead.

The parade was then formed under the direction of Chief Adams, marshal of the day. The City band headed the parade the pupils and teachers of the Cranbrook schools, to the number of about 600, the junior classes being accommodated in autos provided by members of the auto association, Fernie Bugle Band, Great War Veterans in Uniform, school floats, decorated automobiles and bicycles.

After marching through the business section of the city the parade returned to the starting point, where short addresses were delivered by Mayor Cameron and Rev. H. M. Lyon. The children sang a number of patriotic songs and the morning program was concluded by singing the National Anthem.

At 1.30 in the afternoon the crowd began to stream up into the agricultural grounds where a lengthy program consisting of horse races, athletic events and baseball games was run off.

Three teams entered the baseball tournament, Wycliffe beating Wardner in the first game and in the final Wycliffe beat Fernie. Both were good games.

The Ball Games

What proved to be one of the most attractive features of Victoria Day sports was the baseball. That the citizens of Cranbrok enjoy good clean sport was shown by the large number of spectators at the two games that were played. The one big disappointment was the failure of a local team to appear in the field. There is some good material here and we hope the boys will get together and organize a team.

In the two games that were played Wycliffe proved the winners. In the afternoon they triumphed over Wardner 6-4, while in the twilight game they defeated Fernie 6-3. Frank McMahon, catcher for Wycliffe, had a finger nail torn off early in the first game, but he pluckily stayed with his job throughout both games.

The afternoon game was hard fought from beginning to end. The Wardner boys full of confidence, because of their unbroken string of victories, Wycliffe determined to avenge their defeat of the previous week. Wardner got away to a god start,scoring twice in the first ining off Musser. Thompson for Wardner started off in good style, but in the fifth inning he was driven to cover, Chase replacing him and finishing the game. In the second inning Wycliffe produced a dark horse in the person of H. L. Derr, who went on the mound. This boy has a great assortment of curves and speed to burn, and he had his opponents swinging at the air most of the time. Wycliffe took the lead in the fifth and were never headed, winning out 6-4. Following is the score:

Wardner	4	7	4

The second game was by far the best. Derr on the slab for Wycliffe fanned the first eight men that faced him. The Fernie boys were unable to touch him until the last inning, when they started a rally, which was too late. Wycliffe crossed the pan twice in the second, when A. Crowe connected with one of Quillman's fast ones for a triple, with two on bases. Another was added in the fourth,when A. Crowe singled, stole second and came home on L. Crowe's clean hit. The last three came in the sixth,when the first three men to face Quilman hit safely and the Fernie boys started booting the ball all over the lot. The score was as follows:

Fernie	3	4	6

The only accident of the day was in the open horse race when C. S. Johnson, riding Pattinson's horse,was thrown and knocked unconscious, but was not seriously hurt as he was able to ride in another race later in the day.

The dance at the Auditorium at night drew a big crowd, over 250 couples being on the floor. Mrs. Edmonson's orchestra furnished excellent music and everybody enjoyed themselves up to the bewitching hour of midnight, when a great big day's sport was brought to an end.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Elko is not only a health hunter's but a bear hunter's paradise. On the arrival of the C.P.R. passenger from Fernie on May 24 a large black bear with two cubs gave a horizontal bar performance opposite the C. P. R. depot. Gibson Todhunter caught one of the cubs and gave it to Chief Gorman who placed it in No. 1 cell in the Hotel-de-City-Bastile, the only vacant house in town.

A big crowd of Elkoites visited Cranbrook on the 24th but a ten times bigger crowd visited Elko. Five big cars conveyed about 40 people from the Lincoln County Montana High School, Eureka. The girl graduates represented the grace and beauty of the county, while the boys looked on as lonesome as a sheepherder in a cow camp. Several family picnics came in from Fernie and Michel. They took in the big canyon which is now in flood and a sight worth seeing. Several Alberta cars came in for the first time and visited the falls and went away delighted with their visit. Visitors from Blairmore, Coleman and Cowley. Two cars from Whitefish, Montana. Dr. and Mrs. Pickering, who recently moved from Vancouver to Fernie, came down for the first visit. The doctor was more than cheerful considering that he makes his living looking down in the mouth. W. H. Bernard, the popular G. N. conductor, motored down to the Falls. Bill is one of the most successful big game hunters north of the Mexican border. He can take the bill off a humming bird on the fly and knock the third hump off a camel at a thousand yards. Mrs. Todd, milliner, Fernie, and Tom. R. J. Hutchings, vice-president of the greatest saddlery in the British empire, with G. A. Bonnallie, a fine pair to meet. Mesrs. Ramsay and Jones, Sprague, Washington. Although the weather was everything we could desire we had W. M. Frost from Spokane. Albert Mutz, mine magnate of Blairmore, a mere shadow of his former self. Quit worrying, Albert; it's lost energy. Smile, damn you, smile. There's no strike on at your mine and everything going good. The rest of the 300 visitors we failed to meet.

If Kaiser Bill is anxious to leave Holland to get to a warmer climate by all means send him to Hades, where he should have been sent long ago.

Doc. Louis Foisy of the Elko Tire hospital, with his able assistants, made over 30 operations on cars from three provinces and five States on Victoria day. He is some fixer.

We have nothing against the United States. It is Wilson's "I did it" we object to. Even the Americans themselves object to the "I" in his ideals. He may be all right but Hades is full of them kind of men.

Jim Thistlebeak says no matter whether you run a bank or a butcher shop you have to advertise these times and the local paper is the place to do your shopping.

C. E. Davis, well known in the Pass and an old Elkoite, was renewing old time acquaintances this week in Elko, Cranbrook and Fernie. Mr. Davis is one of Lincoln county's big real estate men now and was recently appointed justice of the peace at Eureka. A young Russian couple were anxious to get married. The young man handed him the marriage license and the pair stood up before him. "Join hands," says Davis. They did so. Then Davis looked at the document which authorized him to unite in matrimony. Zacharewicz Perzynski and Leowards Jeulinski. "Ahem" says Davis. "Zacha-h'm-ski, do you take this woman, etc. Yes, sir. Leo-h'm-hum-ski, do you take this man to be, etc. Yes, sir. "Then I pronounce you man and wife," says Davis, glad to find something he could pronounce, "and I heartily congratulate you both on having made such a reduction, and now I will show you a nice corner lot where you can build a happy home in my new addition east of the town.

for this purpose will convene in Cranbrook next Monday and while the instructions for the delegates representing this city upon that occasion were referred to the executive it was later decided to send two and possibly three from here to Cranbrook to impress upon the respective representatives attending the necessity of first establishing an East Kootenay Associated Board of Trade in order to function properly the requirements for this district and subsequently to seek reciprocal affiliation with those of West Kootenay to the mutual benefit of both the Kootenays.

Returning to local matters, various topics were considered, among them being the necessity for improving our city streets, sidewalks and similar other conditions with a view to enhancing the beauty of our city and making same more attractive and useful. Our natural scenic beauty in this district is abundant and a very valuable asset. There are numerous immediately adjacent natural pleasure spots whereby ample means are practically available to be cultivated for the inducement of tourists, but require an active publicity campaign to have these natural resources made more generally known.

Various other important features were mentioned and it was plainly shown what great advantages were at hand but which in the past had been carelessly ignored. If this inactivity or lack of progressive spirit continued to prevail we could not expect our city to keep apace with the times or even the smaller centres in our district; but by vigorously putting our shoulder to the wheel with the set aim to make Fernie a real live centre industrially, commercially and from a pleasure seeker's viewpoint, and corresponding interests towards the advancement of all points within the district, this alone could be accomplished.

This does not mean simply a tolerable indulgent initial program but every member of the Board of Trade must assume personal responsibility for the inauguration of an active organization, and their efforts must persistently continue indefinitely. This is a man-size problem and will only succeed through untiring devotion of all for the attainment of the desired object.

The first step is to become a member of the Board of Trade. In doing this your moral and financial support combined is required—nominal members must be an unknown term, everyone must work. And there is much to be done which ultimately will benefit all—everyone must become a member. The principle of unity in command has amply demonstrated what can be accomplished by such means; let the newly organized Board of Trade comprise in its organization representation from every organized body within the limits of this city and district, as well as energetic individuals. This should be, because without doubt every inhabitant can not gainsay the motto by making Fernie District a point of interest to the outside world, eventually you will reap gratifying results.

The following sub-committees have been established:

Railway and Transportation—E. K. Stewart, Chairman.

Publicity and Tourists—S. Herchmer, Chairman.

Fish and Game — T. Prentice, Chairman.

Industrial and Good Roads—G. G. Henderson, Chairman.

Public Health and Recreation — Dr. Garner.

Membership—A. B. Trites.

Much more will be heard as to the activities of the Board as soon as the preliminary organization can be effected and definite plans devised. The membership committee will immediately commence a canvass for members and for this season the membership fee will be in the form of a subscription. Funds are required for the work to be undertaken and based upon the amount subscribed will largely depend the effective carrying out of the plans devised or at present in the making.

FOOTBALL NEWS

City League football games are proceeding on schedule time. Saturday, May 24, seen two games decided. Michel defeated Fernlea, and Coal Creek defeated the G.W.V.A. The day was ideal and large crowds witnessed both games. The game between Fernlea and Michel was strongly contested but experience told against the young players.

The game between the G. W. V. A. and Coal Creek was a good exhibition of football and the Vets are the best bet yet. They have a centre half in Riley that would find a place on any team.

The Teamsters defeated the F. A. A. C. on May 20. The Teamsters also have to play off Coal Creek again at Coal Creek. The last game was protested on account of darkness.

Michel	4	4	0	0	8
Coal Creek	4	3	1	0	1
G. W. V. A.	4	3	0	1	6
Teamsters	4	1	0	3	2
Fernlea	4	0	1	3	1

MGR. WILSON REPLIES

Mr. Wilson was interviewed today with respect to the article in the extra issued by the District Ledger this week. He said:

I have no particular comment to make. The subject matter seems to be addressed partly to my associates on the Western Coal Operators Association, and partly to the citizens of Fernie, and I am sure they are both quite competent to form their own conclusions without comment from me.

We may open at Sparwood some day. It is within the bounds of possibility. We have made no secret of our survey work there during the past five years, nor of similar work at Morrissey. But the suggestion that opening at one or both of these points would mean closing Coal Creek is simply pure invention and conjecture. The life of any mine, however, depends on the production of coal from it at less cost than you can get for it. Everything that reduces the margin between cost and price hastens the economic end of the operation, and whether the responsible act be through ignorance or deliberation the result is the same. An instance of this is the present attitude of the Union officials in refusing permission to men to remain at work to do the necessary upkeep and repair work during the shutdown, although this is part of the present agreement, and has always been done in the past. We cannot make them do the work, but we must make it plain that we do not accept the blame for the consequences.

I do not suggest that the impression conveyed that I was Manager at the time of the explosion in 1902 was deliberately intended to mislead, but the fact that I left Fernie some nine months before that occurrence would have been very easy to verify before publication.

W. J. BOWSER VISITS FERNIE

W. J. Bowser, leader of thte Opposition in the provincial house, visited Fernie on Friday evening last. It had been the intention of local Conservatives to hold a public meeting, but owing to the labor troubles here it was thought that the time was inopportune. Mr. Bowser, however, met the local executive and gave them about an hour's heart to heart talk on the conditions obtaining throughout British Columbia and the legislation enacted at the last session of the house.

Mr. Bowser was accompanied by Mr. Gordon, of Vancouver. They have visited every constituency in B.C.

BASEBALL

On Tuesday night a good game was staged betwteen the F.A.A.C. and the Hula Hulas, the latter winning by a score of 8-7. This is the first defeat for the F.A.A.C. this year and puts a little more pep in the other teams, as it looked rather one-sided after the first few games.

On Sunday last Fernie visited Wardner and lost to that team by a score of 8-6. A little hard luck at the last of the game caused the defeat. Dunlap, on 1st, threw wild to home and two runs were scored on the throw. Wardner will play a return game here in a short time, which should prove to be interesting. Both these teams played at Cranbrook on May 24 and the next game should decide which is the better of the two.

On Wednesday the Old Timers had their first win this year when they trimmed the Hula Hulas to the tune of 15 to 8. Everyone thought the Old Timers were out of the race but surprises will happen. With Quillman handed over by the F.A.A.C. and Bishop Wilson added to the pitching staff the Old Timers will not have to take a back seat from any League team. Surprises were sprung all through the game. McLaren played a top notch game and Joe Austin showed that he could handle the bat as good as he ever could. In the 5th innings the score was 4-0 in favor of the Hulas but in that innings the Old Timers sent 11 men to bat and scored 8 runs. This gave them the lead which was kept for the balance of the game.

Tonight the Old Timers meet the F.A.A.C. in what promises to be a real fast game. Come out and boost.

NEW C.P. LIMITED KEEPS SCHEDULE

Winnipeg, June 3.—The new Canadian Pacific transcontinental train, the Trans-Canada Limited, passed through Winnipeg at nine o'clock this morning enroute to Vancouver. The new service, including a daily train each way, will cut 24 hours off the regular running time from Montreal to Vancouver.

The train which arrived in Winnipeg this morning left Montreal at three o'clock Sunday afternoon and clipped a full half day from the regular run.

The new trains are made up of nine coaches. The train today carried 100 passengers to Winnipeg. Thirty-five passengers got on the train at Winnipeg en route to points west. The train is due in Vancouver Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. The cutting off of 24 hours from the trip from Montreal to Vancouver is accomplished through making fewer stops and running at faster speed.

Nearly six million dollars worth of equipment is being used in the new service; added to this is the wages for the train crews and the army of men connected with operating the trans used in the new service on the three thousand mile run.

The new service requires 12 train crews. In the service is included 59 sleeping cars valued at $2,478,000. Fifteen fully equipped dining cars are required. They are valued at $750,000. The 12 observation cars are valued at $480,000. In addition there are five compartment cars, 12 baggage cars and 24 locomotives.

While the new train service will be largely used by tourist traffic it will be of especial value to business men to make trips between Montreal and Vancouver. It will be particularly valuable to Winnipeg business men, who will save a full day in making trips to either Vancouver or Montreal. The Vancouver train, which left Vancouver at the same time the westbound train left Montreal, arrived in Winnipeg this afternoon; it will reach Montreal at noon Thursday, the connections at Sudbury for Toronto are perfect and a half day is saved in reaching the Queen City.

NOT MUCH HEART IN VANCOUVER STRIKE

Vancouver, June 3.—Daily newspapers will not be affected by the general strike called here, as far as the typographical union is concerned, that body having voted tonight not to obey the edict of the general strike committee. Stereotypers are not affiliated with the central labor council and it is understood that the pressmen will take no part in tying up the newspapers.

The general strike committee announced yesterday that they would issue statements through the daily press, but the first day and night of the strike has passed without any manifesto, the strike committee contenting itself with having posted pla cards on available telephone and telegraph poles adjuring members to refrain from congregating and to keep the peace.

Figures obtained late tonight regarding the strike vote shows that out of 12,000 workers in organized labor of this city affiliated with the trades and labor council, less than one-half, or 5,500 voted, the vote standing 2150 for a strike as opposed to 2350 against.

The men on strike are receiving no strike pay, it is stated.

THE STRIKE SITUATION

The strike situation as developed during the past week saw the power again being turned on from 5 p.m., commencing Friday, May 30, the power house operating the night shift through until 7 a.m. This arrangement is still in force. The Strike Committee issued a bulletin to the effect that upon the assurance of the Mayor and Police Commissioners that the sale of all intoxicating liquors would be prohibited within the city this metod would continue, and they also agreed to resume continuous service upon every power user consenting to take out and exhibit a permit card issued by the Strike Committee that such power was being used solely upon the permission of said Strike Committee. They, however, failed to obtain unanimous consent of all power users to apply or have permit cards thrust upon them and as a result only the night service continues.

The council held a special session last Sunday afternoon and it is reported considered the strike from various angles. They were all anxious to have the light and power service resume but were unable to devise any satisfactory means to accomplish this desire. It has also been reported during the week that a petition was circulated among the miners with a view to calling a mass meeting of Gladstone Local Union with a view to ascertaining the actual feeling of a majority of the members of the local union with regard to the attitude of the Strike Committee respecting the power house strike. Many miners have openly expressed themselves that the power house strike is in no manner assisting the cause of the miners and in any event they do not favor that interference by the committee. However, up to the time of going to press no mass meeting of the local has been held so until it is there is no means of definitely ascertaiing the true sentiment of the miners as a whole. It has also been mooted that even in the event of a mass meeting of the miners endorsing the action of the strike committee, then a public mass meeting of the citizens would be called but so far there has been nothing doing.

As regards the conditions in and about the mines, there has been no change and everything is pretty much tied up. However, it is quite significant that some, at least, of the striking miners do not intend to remain idle and are already seeking other means of employment. Only today some twenty odd from this camp obtained employment at one of the lumber mills west of here.

NEW CHIEF APPOINTED

Joseph Boardman, ex-provincial constable at Coal Creek, commenced his duties as Chief of Police on June 1st, succeeding George Welsby, who resigned one month ago. The new chief is well known here, he having served the provincial government in the capacity of constable at Coal Creek for the past nine years, and has established a record as being a very capable officer. Constable Dooley, who for the past six years, has been a member of the city force, tendered his resignation on June 1 to take effect immediately. Constable Dooley has for some time suffered from ill health and only a few days ago returned from Rochester where he underwent an operation at Mayo Brothers' institution, and while the treatment has so far proved very successful he finds it impossible to resume his former duties on the police force.

Strikers Will Not Have Jobs Back

Ottawa, June 4.—That the government is determined not to reinstate postoffice employees who went out on a sympathetic strike in the west and declined to return to duty when requested to do so, seemed clear in two telegrams sent by Sir Robert Borden, one to R. Sincks, secretary of the central strike committee, Calgary, and the other to V. Hollingsworth, secretary of the Alberta Methodist conference.

Calgary Printers Will Not Strike

Calgary, June 4. — Announcement was made this afternoon that the Calgary Typographical Union, embracing all the newspaper and printing shops of this city, had cast its vote against striking in sympathy with Winnipeg.

UNKNOWN GROUP PLACED THE BOMBS

Washington, June 3.—Investigation of the bomb explosions at eight cities, which were intended to kill public men has convinced secret service chiefs here that the outrages had a common source and that they probably can be classed as unsuccessful attempts on the part of a still unknown anarchist group to resume a campaign of a reign of terrorism which began with the May day attempt to deliver a series of infernal machines through the mails at New York.

Washington police today devoted their efforts to reassembling fragments of the man who was killed last night at the door of Attorney General Palmer's house while attempting to plant his cargo of explosives. Mr. Palmer himself dismissed the incident today as utter failure to terrorize the country and stay the hand of the government, which purposes he ascribed to the authors of the outrages.

Government experts on explosives after surveying the site of the explosion here and the partially demolished dwelling, came to the conclusion that two separate bombs exploded, probably when the man carrying them tripped over a stone step in the entrance. In both houses of congress members began the preparation of measures providing new and severe penalties for convicted perpetrators of such crimes.

GRAND JURORS

Dr. J. Barber, Blake Barnstead, A. Doyle, R. Hirtz, Thos. Letcher, G. Leask, P. Lundie, C. McNabb, Jas. McCool, Robt. Young, F. W. Burgess, C. O. Staples, Chas. B. Messiter.

MAKING NEW FRIENDS

The Standard Sentinel: Mr. W. J. Bowser has always made many friends when he visited Kamloops, but it seems as if his visit during the greater part of last week has made him more friends than ever before. Many people have called at the Leland hotel to meet him, who have never before met him, while his host of old-time friends were there in force every day. Plain in his manner, democratic at all times, the leader of the opposition has become more acquainted with the people since he has had time to meet them and they have become better acquainted with him.

ARE SENT UP FOR TRIAL

Herbert Housen and Earl Bonnell, aged 19 and 21 respectively, had their preliminary hearing on Wednesday before Magistrate Hewat on three charges of breaking into and stealing from dwellings and were committed for trial. According to the evidence adduced accused have apparently been engaged in housebreaking on a wholesale scale, because commencing at Kitchener, where they broke into the section men's house, in succession the section houses at Mayook, Wardner and Colvalli and a rancher's dwelling at Elko were burglarized. The exhibits produced by the crown witnesses included suits of clothes, underwear, knives, watches, pipes, shoes, handkerchiefs, a revolver, cartridges and numerous miscellaneous articles, all of which were identified as being the property of various parties.

Accused were apprehended near Elko along the C.P.R. right of way last Saturday shortly after the robbery of Mr. Dubbin's residence had been reported to Constable Gorman. He arrested the men on suspicion and a large quantity of the articles were found on their persons. At a later time a suit case full of stolen goods was located hidden in a vacant building and traced to have been formerly in the possession of the accused men. In addition to the large number of articles so far identified as being the property of other parties there are several articles of varying value in the assortment as yet unidentified.

Howsen and Bonnell appeared before His Honor Judge Thompson on Thursday and elected for speedy trial, which will come on for hearing on June 10. At present the accused stand charged on indictable offences for which the maximum penaltty is 14 years, while two charges under summary convictions have also been preferred against them.

DISGRACING IRELAND

Toronto News: Sinn Fein Ireland demands that Ireland be freed from "English rule" and set up as a "free Independent, Irish Republic." As well might Quebec ask to be cut from the heart of Canada and established as a French republic, hostile to the remaining provinces of the Dominion. As well might New York State insist upon separation from the United States and upon the right to create a government of its own, antagonistic to the great American republic.

HOMES FOR THE AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS

An interesting kind of repatriation work is being done in New South Wales by the Volunteer Workers' Association. On Saturday afternoons, Sundays and holidays its members go by boat, motor, bicycle or on foot to some piece of land obtained from the government or from some private donor for a soldier, and go to work at building a house. The volunteers include professional men, mechanics, schoolboys and women. The scene is like that at a barn raising or a "bee" in the rural districts of Ontario.

Skilled workers, such as carpenters, plumbers and bricklayers, at first gave their services, but it was soon found that amateurs quickly developed a cunning of hand which they did not realize that they possessed. In one case a farm was cleared and cottages built by Sydney school boys under manual instructors:

"Perhaps the most striking feature of the movement has been the splendid spirit of camaraderie among the workers. Well-to-do men have come in their motor cars and have arranged to bring out carpenters and bricklayers with them; others have sent the motor lorries used in their businesses to carry twenty to thirty workers, and have labored alongside of them. Parties of professional boxers, of amateur cricketers and cyclists, and men in government offices and employees of many of the largest Sydney business establishments all have taken part in the work."

The Town Planning Association of New South Wales has designed a garden village, to contain about 170 homes, with churches, public buildings, parks and playgrounds. All the landscaping work has been done by voluntary labor of girls and women, including girl undergraduates from the University of Sydney. In this village it was decided that the homes should not become the property ofthe soldiers who are to occupy them, but be left in the hands of trustees, to prevent them passing into the hands of outsiders. The farms are granted to soldiers on perpetual lease.

It would be useless to enter into all the economic and other details, some of which would not be applicable in Canada. What is striking and cheering is the spirit of the Australian people. They are doing the work, not in a grudging or patronizing way, but in a helpful and brotherly way, as the pioneers of Canada used to work together.

How to Remove Pains Caused by Kidney Trouble

It may be news to you, but it is history to thousands of persons, who have suffered from Backache, Painful Urination, Swollen Joints, Constant Headaches, etc., that Gin Pills remedy Kidney and Bladder troubles by first removing the cause.

The cause of all Kidney diseases such as Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, etc., is congested Kidneys. Kidneys that fail to perform their function of filtering the poisons and impurities from the blood. These poisons remaining in the system are the direct cause of a chain of dreaded diseases.

If you've never heard of Gin Pills before ask any of your friends about them. Gin Pills have been on the market for years; they are the old reliable remedy for Backache, etc. If you suffer from any Kidney or Bladder afflictions try Gin Pills.

Should you not care to buy them as an experiment, a sample box will be sent to you on request.

Gin Pills contain the beneficial ingredient of Gin without the slightest trace of alcohol. For many years bottled Gin was considered the ready remedy for Kidney or Bladder troubles. Scientific research proved, however, that the reason for this was due purely to the extract of Juniper it contained and nothing else. From hundreds of letters received by us we are convinced that all any sufferer of Kidney or Bladder trouble needs to do is try Gin Pills—and they will find relief at once.

LITTLE GIRL NOW PICTURE OF HEALTH

"My little daughter Jean has gained ten pounds on Tanlac and now she's the very picture of health," said Jim Snell, well known poultry and truck farmer of Raleigh, Tenn.

"When Jean was only seven years old," continued Mr. Snell, "she was taken with something like nervous stomach trouble, and there wasn't a day or night she didn't suffer, until we got Tanlac for her, and she's now fifteen years old. Her stomach was in such a bad condition she had to live on toast and eggs and milk, and she couldn't eat any kind of meats or vegetables. She complained of pains in her stomach all the time and would spit up half digested food. She was nervous and would toss and roll all night, for she couldn't sleep well at all. She was bilious and her complexion was bad, and she looked pale and sickly all the time. We gave her most every kind of medicine we could think of, but nothing helped her.

"After hearing of some of the good work Tanlac was doing, we got some for Jean, and it has done wonders for her. She actually looks and acts like a different child, and she's taken only two bottles of the medicine. She commenced picking up as soon as she started Tanlac, and she has gained ten pounds. She never has indigestion now, and eats just anything she wants—even such things as beans and other vegetables, and meats of all kinds. Why, she ate corn for dinner yesterday, and it was the first time in eight years she dared taste corn, and she eats boiled bacon that's cooked with vegetables. She's not nervous nor bilious now, and sleeps like a baby, and we never hear anything of her from the time she goes to bed until she gets up in the mornings. Her skin has cleared up and her cheeks look fresh and rosy. You can just look at her and tell she's enjoying good health."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

TWO ESSENTIALS

A few centuries ago men were killed, imprisoned, or tortured because they refused to subscribe to a religious creed, or held firmly to a creed of their own. What was called Christendom was broken up largely because of this kind of intolerance, and because of lack of kindness and common-sense. The breaking up of Christendom was followed by an increase or stimulation of the spirit of nationality. National spirit was a good thing, but just as capable of being abused and misrepresented as religion. Religious intolerance was followed by national intolerance—racial hatred, jingoism, State worship degenerating into devil worship. All because, in the intense zeal for certain national conceptions, the commonplace virtues of kindness and common-sense were neglected.

Now we have come to a third stage, in which the first place is given to economic theory. Men fight as fiercely over economic questions as they did over religious creeds, or later over nationality. Economic creeds have their fanatics. The Round Table compares the Bolshevists with the Mohammedans. Again, in their fierce adherence to a creed or their hatred of a creed, men are in danger of losing sight of the commonplace virtues of kindness and common-sense. These are the essential things. A nation may go wrong in regard to a creed or a theory, and yet come out all right if its head is level and its heart is in the right place.

Hitherto Canadians have come through their troubles pretty well by the saving grace of common-sense. Their rebellions have been small affairs. They obtained self-government after a flurry of rebellion, by quiet, constitutional methods. They brought about Confederation through parliamentary debates and political methods. Their leading statesmen, like Macdonald and Laurier, were inclined to compromise and conciliation — which are just ways of using kindness and common-sense. Let us hope that they will settle economic difficulties in the same way.

"COLLECTIVE BARGAINING" NOT THE ISSUE

"Collective bargaining" which means the right of men and women to make agreements with regard to wages and working conditions through their union, is a principle which has the approval of the majority of the people of this country. To refuse to recognize it would be to refuse to recognize the right to organize and every sensible man knows that organization of the workers is necessary and desirable. It has resulted in much good.

But that is not the issue in Winnipeg. The public of Winnipeg, the minister of labor, the provincial government, the Dominion government and the people of Canada generally are opposing the strike in Winnipeg because if it succeeded it would throw complete control of industry into the hands of a small group of O.B.U. Bolshevist agitators who are fighting to establish what would ultimately amount to the soviet system in Canada.

This group has used the words "collective bargaining" as a red herring to draw across the trail. The right of the unions to make bargains on behalf of their members has not been challenged. It is the right of this small group of Bolshevists to dominate all industry that has been challenged If the Winnipeg Bolshevist element won the strike by means of camouflage talk of "collective bargaining" it would enable the strike leaders to dominate all industries completely. Seizure of all industry and property yould take place just as quickly as control was gained. They would possess a rule as arbitrary and autocratic as is the rule of the Bolshevists in Russia.

The public realizes this, and does not intend to submit to it.—Nelson News.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENT

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions, with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained on these claims in less than 5 years, with improvements of $10 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes, areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

TOWNSITE PROPERTY ALLOTMENT ACT.

Provision is made for the grant to persons holding uncompleted Agreements to Purchase from the Crown of such proportion of the land, if divisible, as the payments already made will cover in proportion to the sale price of the whole parcel. Two or more persons holding such Agreements may group their interests and apply for a proportionate allotment jointly. If it is not considered advisable to divide the land covered by an application for a proportionate allotment, an allotment of land of equal value selected from available Crown lands in the locality may be made. These allotments are conditional upon payment of all taxes due the Crown or to any municipality. The rights of persons to whom the purchaser from the Crown has agreed to sell are also protected. The decision of the Minister of Lands in respect to the adjustment of a proportionate allotment is final. The time for making application for these allotments is limited to the 1st day of May, 1919. Any application made after this date will not be considered. These allotments apply to town lots and lands of the Crown sold at public auction.

TRADE UNIONIST ON SOVIET RULE

The London Westminster Gazette recently printed a page interview entitled, "The Truth About Russia," which gives a graphic account of the life the Russian people are leading under the rule of the Bolsheviki. The informant of the Gazette is H. V. Keeling, an English Trades Unionist, who went to Russia before the war broke out to install certain new processes in connection with the printing and lithographing trades. Mr. Keeling was admitted a member of the Russian trades union, and passing all his time among the working classes, he had admirable opportunity of seeing the whole course of events since the downfall of the czar, from the ranks of the workers. He spent 1918 in traveling about Russia in the interests of the Bolsheviki, who regarded him as an expert and a valuable man, and it was only after dangerous adventures and narrow escapes that he managed to escape from the country. He was in Russia for the whole period of the revolution until the 9th of January of this year.

In the interview with the Westminster Gazette he makes the following statements:

"One has cards and coupons," says Mr. Keeling, "but all private trading is forbidden and nearly all the shops in Petrograd are shut. There are a few hundred municipal shops, and you are supposed to receive half pound of bread a day. Potatoes, butter, meat and sugar are fixed at reasonable prices but as a matter of fact, for a long time past nothing has been sold but bread, and even that failed for several days in December. I have been six days without bread, three days without anything to eat except the so-called public dinner, which consisted of watery soup, a small piece of salt fish and one-eighth of a pound of bread. Sometimes they offered me oats as if I were a horse, when there was no bread.

"It makes it worse that you have quantities of money in your pocket but can buy nothing. I have had roubles worth $3000 in my pocket and have not been able to buy a piece of bread. You pay $1.25 a lump for sugar if you can get it. A workman's wages are $500 a month at the old values, but though he can still buy a watch for $25 he cannot buy a roll of bread for $250.

People who have food will not sell it for roubles, because they are worth nothing and there is nothing to buy with them, so the Bolsheviki cannot get food, though they are trying to, and having fights with the peasants in consequence. I believe, myself, there is enough food in Russia to keep everyone alive, for the last harvest was good, but it cannot be got, and it is all being hoarded and concealed.

"Nine-tenths of the people who keep in with the Bolsheviki have to pretend to like them and would do anything to get rid of them if they knew how; but you have to remember the Bolsheviki are clever, and are feeding the people who are likely to fight. Every man who joins the Red army is sure of his own food, and also gets food for his wife and children. The army is fed before anyone else and out of all proportion to the other classes. Even the workmen get nothing until the army has had enough, so large numbers of men join the army for the sake of getting food, and then they have to keep at it for fear of losing their food. Besides, if they try any tricks they are not only punished and shot themselves, but their wives, families and parents are starved. A man will stand almost anything rather than see his wife, children and parents starved to death and the use they make of this kind of coercion is devilish.

"Soldiers have to be careful, for there are lots of spies among them. Then besides the regular Red army there is a special picked army which gets everything it wants, food or anything else, and all these men know if they don't fight they will starve, so they fight to save their own food, and to prevent their wives and children from starving. That is their way of keeping alive."

"How can men at the top, Lenine, Trotsky and the rest—Lenine, at all events is supposed to have some intelligence and humanity—sit there and let this go on; are they devils or maniacs?" Keeling was asked.

"I suppose you would say they are quite sane according to our notions, but as things are they cannot help themselves and could not stop it if they chose.

"Bolshevism, in fact, as I summed it up, has become a vested interest for its privileged class, and Lenine and Totsky are obliged to go on feeding a few, starving the many and shooting objectors."

THE DEATH PENALTY

Toronto News: Mr. H. M. Mowat, M.P., is sponsor of a bill to change the metod of execution in Canada from hanging to electrocution; and to transfer the place of execution from county jails to penitentiaries. There is reason in the suggestion, if the people of Canada are determined to continue the death-penalty in action. We are sure of one thing, that hanging is a relic of barbarism. Too often also by bungling or by nervousness on the part of the official in charge, the victim has been tortured by a lingering death. The electric chair would put an end to that refinement of cruelty.

ARMED SOLDIERS WILL POLICE BIG FIGHT

Eight hundred former soldiers will be deputized as special police and serve as ushers for the heavyweight championship contest between Jess Willard and Jack Dempsey in the Bayview Park Arena at Toledo July 4th. Tex Rickard, promoter of the contest, annouced today. These men have all seen service overseas. They will be armed and will be under the direct supervision of Mayor Schreiber and C. F. Wall, director of public safety.

Rickard was advised today that Willard will come direct to Toledo instead of stopping off for a day's visit at his home in Lawrence, Kansas The champion is due here June 4 to begin training. A. Q. Thatcher, matchmaker of the Toledo Athletic Club, has practically decided upon leasing a $30,000 cottage on the shore of Maumee Bay for Willard's training camp. The proposed camp is located about two miles west of Dempsey's quarters.

MANY CARS IN U. S. STOLEN

Detroit,—The automobile theiving profession is a great deal more lucrative and not nearly so daring as the old-time stage coach and express train hold-ups, judging from the statistics just released.

These statistics reveal that more than 100,000 motor cars are stolen annually. This number is far greater than the combined output of five big plants, and the production managers executives and sales force of these plants, would feel a great relaxation if they had for their production the number of motor cars stolen in the United States each year.

This increasingly sinister practice has so overtaxed the patience and resources of the insurance companies, that they threaten to decrease the amount paid on stolen cars at least 15 per cent and continue to increase the premium rates, which they have been doing for the past few years. Still this loss can be saved if the owner thinks enough about his motor car to put on a locking device that will protect it; but it is vitally important that the locking device selected be among those approved by the insurance companies, for a mistake here may cost the motorist a nice little sum.

The acuteness of the problem is indicated in the fact that the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, insurance authorities, the Society of Automotive Engineers, police departments, manufacturers and dealers are uniting with an aim to curb the stealing of motor cars. They place the automobile theif in two distinct classes. One is the amateur, or so-called joy rider, the youth or man who craves for pleasure and seizes a car for a ride or to give his girl a touch of high life. The other is the professional man who makes a living from stealing motor cars and selling them.

After an exhaustive study and careful investigation of locking devices to protect motor cars from being stolen, those agencies have decided that the transmission type of lock will foil the joy rider and prove a stumbling block to the professional thief, for he will have to cart around a tool kit or or more tools than his pockets can carry without bursting out, which would attract unusual attention, and even this would not avail him much.

This lock is the integral type and is a built-in part of the transmission cover, from which it is impossible to separate. The action of the device is to lock securely the gear-shift lever solidly in a neutral position, making it impossible to engage the transmission gears but permits the car to comply with all the police department traffic requirements.

The lock consists of a massive steel tube, case hardened to resist any tampering with saws, files or other devices, and it is controlled by a Yale thief-proof locking arrangement The steel tube slides in with the gear shift lever inside of the transmission case. This lock is on a level with the floor boards, so it will not obstruct foot movement in the front compartment, and a slight push of your toe locks it securely.

Motorists now using this type of lock and insurance companies say it is very successful. The only method of foiling it is to unbolt the transmission cover and attach a new cover, which must be taken from another car of the same model and few thieves can lay their itchy fingers on a new cover, let alone carry one with them and attempt to make a get-away with a car without placing themselves liable to arrest.

is this device coming from the brains of its engineers that is preventing the thieving profession from thriving on Paige cars.

A HUN RAIDER SPOILED A STRAIGHT FLUSH

We had just come up the line and we "Sigs" had grabbed the best dugouts much to the disgust of the less fortunate. I was on headquarters on this particular trip and we used to divide up the watch on the phones getting relieved every two hours. As the rest didn't have anything to do, a suggestion of poker by our sergeant an Irishman, inordinately fond of "Vin blanc," was welcomed by the boys.

Luck was against me from the first and I watched my pile of franc notes steadily decrease. Just when luck was at its worst Cpl. "Sandy" dealt me a king high straigh flush. I began to see visions of the different piles of franc notes neatly piled in front of me.

Just at that moment Fritz chose to send over a raiding party and a "potato masher" came down our dugout entrance.

We all made a dash for the corner, I arriving there first and the others piling on top of me, thus affording me good protection.

I didn't get a scratch. One "Sig" was killed and the corporal wounded. But a perfectly good straight flush was spoiled. Hence my deep and fervent hatred of anything German.

IN ANOTHER SET

"Have you heard, dear," said the girl in the plum-colored velour, "that the Bizzlewicks are giving a grand coming out party for their daughter, Gertie, next Monday?"

She in the yellow trench coat looked her amazement.

"But, surely, darling," she exclaimed, "Gertie came out four years ago, or was it five?"

"Yes; but the old man made a lot of money lately and now they're in another set."

EDITORIAL NOTES

If the Mayor of this town had the backbone of a jellyfish he would have told the strike committee, who are apparently attempting to run the city, where they got off at. We don't blame the strike committee for grasping all the power it can, but the poor miserable pikers who sit back and allow them to do so will be held up to ridicule for all time to come.

When the Manager of the Orpheum asked Mayor Uphill for power to run his matinee on Saturday afternoon the Mayor said: You will have to see the strike committee. Ye gods and little fishes, wouldn't it make every citizen in the city hide his face with shame?

Every power user in Fernie is supposed to put up a card stating that such business is run by permission of the strike committee. In Winnipeg where they attempted to pull off that stunt the city council told them that any business concern who put up such card would lose its license. They have some men in that council.

It is to the credit of the business people of this town that not more than half a dozen applied for the cards. When a man condescends to sink his independence to such an extent as to beg permission to exist from anybody it is time to quit.

The District Ledger came out this week with a special edition containing a wild alarmist, two page article, in an endeavor to stampede the citizens of Fernie into making a demonstration against the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. The article, which bears all the earmarks of Billy Robson, sounds a good deal like the dope he pulled off when the C.P.R. shut down at Hosmer.

During the life of the Coal Co. in Fernie they have opened up many prospects, including Michel and Morrissey, but no one had ever considered for a moment that there was any intention of abandoning the mines at Coal Creek. It remained for the Ledger man to discover the awful fact that during the past five years the company has done some prospecting at Sparwood and that some day they may open a mine there. The citizens of this town are not caught so easily with such chaff. They know that the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. is a business concern. If they cannot operate successfully in one place, they will try another and there is no law or reason to prevent them.

Considering the way the strike committee are doing everything in their power to ruin the mines at Coal Creek by withdrawing the men in charge of their safety, it sounds like a joke for them to be howling their heads off about the company opening a prospect at Sparwood.

The Ledger never made a more bonehead play in its existence than when it got out that wild propaganda sheet this week to scare the business men of this town. The only man it succeeded in scaring was the poor miner who has bought his property here and paid for his home. When a business man goes into a mining town, he takes the same chance that the company operating the mine takes. If the operations are successful they both win: if unsuccessful, they both lose. If he cannot make it stick here he will try some other place. But just to reassure that poor miner who at the present moment is worrying his head off, we will state that unless the mines at Coal Creek are utterly ruined by a long idleness they need have little fear of Fernie becoming a second Hosmer.

The Ledger shouts about coal costing $2.75 to produce at Coal Creek and yet it thinks the citizens of this town should get it for $2 a ton.

We are surprised to hear our esteemed contemporary admit that the cause of the strike is so trivial. It shows that the alleged reason for striking was pure camouflage. The real reason for going out was to pull off a big advt. for the One Big Union and that is the one big reason for all these strikes throughout Western Canada.

EXHIBITION AT CALGARY

The programme arranged for the Calgary exhibition which takes place June 28th to July 5th, is without a doubt the best ever presented, while the facilities for taking care of the visitors as well as the exhibits, will be greatly enhanced by the new concrete grand stand and cattle pavillion now in the course of construction. The new grand stand will seat 6,000 people and the cattle building will provide a judging and sale arena as well as stabling accommodations.

In addition to the new buildings the work of rearranging the various buildings for exhibition purposes, after having been used for the past four years by the militia, is now progressing. There is an enormous amount of changing, painting and cleaning up to be done in order to be ready for the exhibition the last of June.

With such features as these, the 1919 Calgary Exhibition will, without a doubt, be the most interesting ever held. It is expected that the competition for the live stock prizes will be the keenest in the history of the exhibition, while a new feature this year will be the special Travellers' Day, which will be Saturday, July 5. The travellers are going to make this a day of relaxation for themselves and their friends and those attending the Fair on Travellers' Day will have some surprises.

On Monday, June 30, veterans, war widows and soldiers at the Ogden Home will be the guests of the exhibition, when special arrangements are being made for their entertainment.

The Exhibition days this year will be named as follows: Saturday, June 28th, Getting Ready Day; Monday, June 30th, Veterans' Day; Tuesday, July1st, Dominion Day; Wednesday, July 2nd, Citizens' Day; Thursday, July 3rd, Farmers' and Ranchers' Day Friday, July 4th, American Day; Saturday, July 5th, Travellers' Day.

Reduced passenger rates will be given from all points in Alberta and Saskatchewan, also all British Columbia points as far west as Golden on the main line, Nelson on the Crow's Nest, and on the Kootenay Central Railway.

The prize list is now ready for distribution and copy of same may be had upon application to the manager, E. L. Richardson, Victoria Park, Calgary. Entries close June 13th.

CRANBROOK AUTO ASSOCIATION HOLDS ITS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Cranbrook Auto Association was held in the City Hall on Monday evening. It was not a very representative meeting. Instead of having fifty or more auto enthusiasts there on time, there were not more than fifteen or twenty and most of them were an hour or more late.

The auto association is one of the organizations upon which this city depends for its bread and butter and the sooner the public wakes to this fact the better, for, take it from the Herald, Cranbrook's prosperity is bound up in the tourist traffic and the greatest factor in inducing tourists to spend a few days here every year is the Auto Association. Every tourist depends a good deal upon the information obtained from the local auto association and for that reason Cranbrook autoists should be thoroughly alive. There are thousands of autoists in Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba; other thousands in Montana, Idaho, Washington, Oregon California and other states to the south who are planning a tour that includes British Columbia, and who would be very grateful for reliable information concerning the route to take, information that can only be obtained through a live organization. Who will hold up Cranbrook as a light to these thousands if the Auto Association falls down on the job?

The following officers were elected for 1919: Dr. Green, hon. president; W. A. Nisbet, president; W.H. Wilson, sec.-treas.; executive committee (enlarged to ten)—F. M. MacPherson, A. C. Bowness, W. F. Cameron, G. Hogarth, R. McCreery, E. H. McPhee, Lester Clapp, A. C. Blaine, Chester Staples, and Col. Pollen.

The question of holding a returned soldiers' picnic was referred to the executive committee with power to add to their number.

The membership committee was authorized to send out circular letters showing the work that has been done during the past year and asking all auto owners to become members of the association. A great deal of work has been accomplished during the past year. 2500 copies of road guides and maps have been issued and these contain a lot of useful information; a write up has been obtained in the Automobile Blue Book published in Chicago; the government has been induced to mark the All Canadian Highway from Crow's Nest to Creston and Kingsgate; booklets have been sent to the following: Automobile Blue Book Publishing Co., Chicago; Canadian Trail Association, Moose-Jaw; Manitoba Motor League, Winnipeg; Spokane Auto Club; Pacific Northwest Tourist Association, Vancouver Auto Club; Fernie Auto Club; Calgary Auto Club; and in conjunction with the Board of Trade a large number of booklets have been sent to names picked from lists sent out by the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association.—Cranbrook Herald.

ALIEN ENEMIES

One section of the community pleads for the protection of enemy aliens on the ground the Dominion permitted them to enter the country and that, ipso facto, they have rights here. Another section asks for their deportation because many of our enemy aliens were pro-German during the war, or else they claimed then and still claim they are internationalists and owe obligation to no country. It is the latter who are our worst citizens. They are those who are attempting to relax the discipline of authority and to dishonor the national flag; in fact, they belong to a band of agitators who are pro-revolutionary and very little else. The question is will the nation confess it has made a mistake in admitting such men as immigrants. They are enemy aliens in more senses than one, for they belong to the nationalities whom the free nations of the world have been fighting, and, in addition, they have now, as citizens of Canada, secretly or even openly, set themselves up against the constituted authorities here. It is true there may have been few overt acts, but to preach treason by secret propaganda is an offence against the established power.

The Government has yet to take action to deport enemy aliens who have been interned during the war. Presure has been brought to bear by the different returned soldiers' organizations to have employers dispense with the services of enemy aliens. You cannot tell the returned soldier that there is either logic or reason, or patriotism in the fact that enemy aliens should be employed when he is seeking work. These foreigners are still in our midst. For all we know they may be in the pay of Germany and be commissioned to bring about such conditions as will rob the Allies of the fruits of victory. There is no certainty of this being the case, but there are suspicious indications of treasonable practices being attempted. The Canadian front must be consolidated against the enemies in our midst. The returned soldiers have asked that enemy aliens be deported. That they deserve this fate is the unanimous opinion of everyone who has the future of the country at heart. We invited these foreigners to come to our land in the past, but we would point out that governments before now have made mistakes and there is no mistake that cannot be rectified.

The country in the future must exercise its inherent power to choose the type of citizens it wants and to exclude all others. That is a precaution that will make for safety. Difficulties may arise about deporting alien enmies once the Peace treaties are signed. Britain is deporting such individuals without delay. The question cannot be disposed of save in one way. The festering parts of our national life demand an immediate operation.—Colonist.

DANGER LURKS IN EVERY ONE OF US

We Are As Full of Deadly Poisons As A Germ Laboratory.

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Absolutely Prevents This Dangerous Condition.

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

FRENCH AND AMERICAN LOSS

The French Government has issued a statement showing "the losses of France in lives and wealth during the war and what corresponding losses would have meant for the United States," that is in proportion to population and wealth. From August, 1, 1914, to November 11, 1918, France mobilized between 8,000,000 and 8,500,000 men, and in proportion to population this would have meant 22,500,000 men for the United States. The loss of life in the French army during the above period was 1,385,000 men. Comparatively this would be more than 4,000,000 for the United States, but up to April 19, 1919, the losses for the American army, including killed, died of wounds, accidents or diseasees, and also the missing, were 77,824. On November 1, 1918, the number of French disabled entitled to a pension was 674,000, which on the basis of population, would mean more than 2,000,000 for the United States. The loss sustained by the national wealth of France is estimated at $15,000,000,000, or about 26 per cent. of the total. Taking the wealth of the United States in 1914 at $200,000,000,000, this would be equivalent to a loss of $50,000,000,000. The exclusively military expenses of France were about $35,000,000,000, or 60 per cent. of its wealth. On a similar basis the United States would have spent $120,000,000,000, but as a matter of fact their expenses to the end of 1918 were only $15,000,000,000.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Fred Ritchie, of Nelson, was in the city yesterday.

H. R. Huntington has purchased a new Chevrolet car.

Principal Jenkins of the High School has resigned.

Mrs. A. W. Greenwood and children are spending a few weeks in Elko.

Mrs. Brown, of New York, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Gates.

Pte. Jack McGladrey returned home from overseas on Saturday last.

Jas. Lancaster has given up business at Corbin. He will go ranching at Flagstone.

Lt. Arthur Woodhouse has accepted a position with the Trites-Wood Co. at Michel.

The Elk Lumber Co. say they are having no trouble in getting men since the strike started.

W. F. Muirhead, of Kelowna, spent several days in the city this week. He was on his way down east for a holiday.

Pte. Harry Cartmell arrived home from overseas on Wednesday. His sister, Miss Katie, came in from Calgary with him.

Twenty men from the mines are now working in the lumber industry at Jaffray. Everybody seems to try to scab on the poor lumberjack.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Kastner on Saturday, June 7th, at 3.30 p.m.

The regular monthly tea of the Ladies Guild of Christ church will be held at the home of Mrs. H. F. McLean, on Wednesday, June 11th, from 3.30 to 6 p.m.

The nine cases for infractions of the Prohibition Act preferred against the various hotelmen of this city were remanded for eight days by Magistrate Whimster on Wednesday.

Pte. Rod McLeod arrived home from overseas yesterday morning. He landed about two months ago at Halifax and has been visiting relatives in Nova Scotia since his discharge.

There will be a special meeting of the Fernie District Branch of the Navy League of Canada in the council chamber on Tuesday next, June 10th, at 8 p.m. All members are urgently requested to be in attendance.

His Honor Judge Thompson spent Thursday in town, this being a special session to hear several chambers applications preparatory to the assizes next week, and to take the election of Howsen and Bonnell on the charges of house-breaking.

Sheriff Doyle, of Nelson, spent Monday in the city making arrangements for the forthcoming Supreme Court Asizes and also drawing the Grand and Petit Jury panels for this year, which include those who will act at both the spring and fall assizes.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction which ordinarily would be held on Monday, June 8, has been postponed by President Bonnallie until Monday, June 15th, or one week later than the regular date for the meeting.

The summer Great Northern passenger time card goes into effect on June 15 and will change the service here to practically the schedule that was in vogue over a year ago, namely that the passenger will arrive here during the morning and after a short stop-over return about mid-day to the south instead of arriving here in the evening, remaining here over night and going south early in the morning.

Constable Gorman of Elko brought two prisoners in to the city gaol on Saturday, who gave their names as Herb Housen and Earl Bonnell. The charge preferred against these parties is robbery and carrying offensive weapons. Several cases of petit larceny have been reported recently from the siuth country and it was on this account that the above parties were taken into custody and the authorities state they have considerable evidence against them.

Lawrence Herchmer, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood Herchmer, while cycling about a mile west of town on Wednesday afternoon and travelling down a steep incline on the road, lost control of his bicycle and was hurled from it, sustaining severe and painful injuries about the face, head and right arm and was rendered unconscious. He was hurriedly conveyed to his home where medical attention was given. It was found upon examination that while there were eight severe contusions about the head and face the little lad had sustained no fractures and that his injuries were not exceedingly critical although it will be some time before he is around again.

H. P. Gregson, of Dorr, was in the city yesterday.

A reception for the Rev. and Mrs. Batzold will be given in the United Church basement next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. All members and friends are invited to attend.

Our neighbors at Coal Creek are entertaining Michel football club at Victoria Park on Sunday. As both teams are in the running for the high honors the game should prove interesting.

Billy McKay, of Waldo, was in the city on Wednesday. Billy says that he will again enter his prize Airedale at all the dog shows in the west this summer. He was a sure enough prize winner last year.

A false fire alarm was turned in from the box near the Annex school at noon on Wednesday. This is the second false alarm turned in from this same box in broad daylight during the past few days.

Members of the Fernie Branch of the Loyal Order of Moose are contemplating a visit to Michel on Friday, the 13th inst. An energetic committee is around rustling conveyances for the occasion.

The city league football match played on Thursday evening was won by the Veterans organization. One serious accident marred the game when Billy Tompson sustained a broken wrist. The score was 2 to 0.

Major G. G. Moffatt this week was reappointed as official administrator for this district, which position Major Moffatt held prior to his enlisting for overseas service. During his absence the appointment of official administrator was held by Ronald Hewat, government agent.

The Fernie G.W.V.A. musical aggregation assisted Sergt. Atherton of Calgary in his speaking picture "Shell Shocked," produced at the Grand theatre during last week end. Arrangements were made for the local boys to give the entire program at the Grand theatre in Calgary on Sunday evening, but owing to unforseen circumstances the project had to be abandoned.

A gathering of representative citizens met in the council chamber on Monday evening, the occasion being the presentation of a testimonial and token of esteem in which retiring Chief of Police George Welsby is held by the citizens in general. Mr. Welsby and infant son left for Newark, N.J., on Tuesday morning, where Mr. Welsby will enter the mercantile field in a busines controlled by his brother.

The executive of the board of trade held a meeting in the council chamber last evening and made further progress in connection with the program to be launched in the near future in order to advance local conditions and make Fernie a better place in which to live. At an early date full details of the plans devolved will be submitted to all who are interested in assisting the Board in carrying out a successful progressive campaign.

The Supreme Court Assizes will open here on Friday, June 13, Justice Macdonald presiding. On this occasion there is but one criminal jury trial, namely Rex vs. Arden. On the civil list there are five actions set down for trial, four of which will be before jury and judge. These actions are: Brown vs. Great Northern Railway; Gates vs. Roux; Wallace vs. P. F. Lawson; Wallace vs. District 18; the Elk Valley Brewing Co. vs. Zoratti; and Christophers vs. Wallace.

The conditions with regard to high water, which were rapidly causing much apprehension on account of approaching the level reached during the serious flood conditions of 1916, have been considerably allayed by a sudden change in climatic conditions, and the Elk river has lowered approximately two feet. While there are still large quantities of snow in the higher levels of the mountains the cold spell augurs well for the crisis to have passed for this season, as it has given the excess quantity of water a chance to get away, and even with hot weather coming on it is not probable that it will again reach the high level of the end of last week. This city is again open to all outside points by trunk road as the inundated points both east and west are now clear and the roads repaired. These were on the east about two miles out and on the west at the foot of Morrissey hill some nine miles distant, where the overflow has backed in over the road making it impassable. This condition is now entirely removed and the roads fully repaired for traffic.

AIR TRANSPORT IN CANADA

Canada has never lagged in initial enterprise in respect to the inauguration of methods of transportation by means of generated power.

Away back in 1809 or 27 years before the first vessel crossed the Atlantic under their own steam power, a steamer service was inaugurated on the St. Lawrence between Montreal and Quebec, and when the shades of evening fell she was anchored for safety. But she was the forerunner of the palatial steamers that now travel the route she first covered. Even the first steamer that was used as a gunboat in actual naal combat was constructed on the St. Lawrence near Quebec.

Within two or three years after George Stephenson had made his first successful steam railway venture in England an agitation was under way in New Brunswick for the construction of a railway to Quebec. It did not succeed in its immediate object, but ten years later, or just about the time the upper and lower Canada rebellions were on, Canada had its first steam railway passenger line running between St. John's on the Richelieu and Laprairie on the St. Lawrence.

And now, because of the fact that airplane services are to be inaugurated for commercial purposos in Canada, the Dominion government is creating an air board to establish regulations, issue licenses and control traffic much after the manner in which the railway board governs the railway systems of the country, whether under government or private auspices. At present it is not within the right of any individual to use airplanes or hydroplanes. Neither is there any statutory authority, as Hon. A. K. Maclean pointed out in parliament the other day, which can issue licenses to permit its being done.

That Canada will be well to the front in respect to aerial navigation for commercial purposes there can be no doubt. During the war it was demonstrated that as a class Canadian aviators led those of all the other belligerents. It is, therefore, only natural that the country should take a prominent position in peace-time aerial service, such as is likely to be in vogue in the not distant future.

During the period of the war 13,000 Canadians went overseas as members of the Royal Air Force. Canada, therefore, already has a large number of experienced aviators available for commercial flying. Furthermore, dunring the last two years of the war Canadians showed their ability to construct both airplanes and hydroplanes. Two thousand five hundred of the former, and a number of the latter having been built at the Toronto plant, during that period. All the hydro, or bombing planes were built for the United States government. Several hundred of the airplanes were also shipped to the neighborhood republic.

What Canadians did on war account it naturally follows they can do when commercial aviation is regularly established. The office of the proposed air board is to pave the way.

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

A very live question in Great Britain at the present time is that of insurance against unemployment which has so far proved a complicated state problem. When the proposal has been advanced that it should be compulsory and contributory, it has failed to arouse any enthusiasm in Labor circles. The national scheme of health insurance did not meet with favor among the workingmen when it was established, and for some reason it does not yet, although in other quarters Mr. Lloyd George's experiment has been regarded as most beneficial. There are some who may deny that Labor is opposed to health insurance but the fact remains that the Munition Workers' Insurance Act, which extended the original scheme to war workers, could only be applied when trade after trade had been excluded and more than 200,000 workers out of a total of 1,400,000 stood out from the plan.

The reason for the discussion on unemployment insurance is due to a realization that unemployment must be met by some other means than government doles. A committee of the National Industrial Conference has been considering the question and has put forward two proposals. By one scheme there is a compulsory levy from the employer, the employee and the state through which the benefit proposed would allow for an unemployment wage for a period of fifteen weeks. The fund would be liable to administration expenses up to 10 per cent, any excess to be borne by the State. The second scheme is based on the contention that the State should bear a larger share of the cost of the system devised to meet unemployment due to after-the-war conditions than it could be expected to do to meet normal contingencies. This would mean only a low uniform rate of contribution from the employee, the employer and the State, with the latter being required to make up any deficit. The benefit proposed in this case is lower than in the first instance. In any proposal the suggestion is advanced that administration should be in the hands of local committees of employers and workmen, who would constitute the insurance authorities for their district. After the first few years the funds would be examined and the future contributions of the various trades assessed with a view to the equitable proportion of the risks according to the actual volume of unemployment.

Our own Legislature has approved the principle of state health insurance, and while unemployment insurance is a step beyond this, it is one that might well be examined at the time attention is paid to the former. The proposal here is to have the Workmen's Compensation Board make a thorough investigation aided by representatives of the medical profession. Such an investigation might well be under way now and it might be extended to permit the Board to hear evidence and subsequently put forward recommendations affecting unemployment insurance. Regarding the latter, the members of the Workmen's Compensation Board must have much valuable information in their possession and since the subject is becoming a live issue in Great Britain we may assume the possibilities are it is worth investigation here. What is the attitude of local labor on the subject is unknown, but a considerable proportion of the present Labor unrest can be traced to an uncertainty tha t exists about the permanency of employment.—Colonist.

PRICE CONTROL

The Vancouver Grand Jury is the latest authority to issue a warning to the Government on the necessity of controlling the cost of living. In its recommendations it pertinently deplores any attempts to sidetrack the matter by the appointment of commissions of inquiry. The facts are patent enough so that all can note them. Exorbitant charges are being made for meatstuffs. The price of flour is out of all proportion to what it should be, and at what it can be sold in other countries. Similarly, practically every commodity which enters into a household is costing more than it ought. One of the most relevant suggestions advanced during the controversy on the subject is that which urges the Government to take over all the cold storage facilities in the country and sell foodstuffs at a stated profit. The suggestion made was that the profit should 10 per cent, but where the Government would be handling the business that is too much.

One of the first steps in control would have to be the taking over of the cold storage facilities. Those now operating them could work under Government supervision. It is true the experiment might not succeed, but steps can and should be taken to cope with the situation. Also, despite whatever outcry might be raised, there should be a price set on wheat, not the $2.24½ that the Saskatchewan grain growers are asking, but what will permit a fair prafit and no more. Bread should be brought within reasonable price limits. First in importance, however, are such commodities as meats, fish, butter and eggs. In addition, whatever the authorities do should extend to all of what are known as the necessaries of life. The agitation for intervention is growing. It will grow still farther until the time comes when the Government must take action. It would be the height of wisdom to delay no longer, for people are becoming exasperated.—Colonist.

WHAT MOVIES COST AND EARN

Before the war the motion picture industry was an important factor in the United States, England, France, Italy, Norway and Germany. During the four years of war practically all production in these countries had to be, by force of circumstances, abandoned with the exception of the United States, but the countries mentioned did not lose sight of the importance of its re-establishment. England has shown a wonderful determination to re-enter the film markets. It has had the matter in hand even in parliament where it was decided to subsidize the English producers to faicilitate their work. Italy and France have likewise turned their attention to the importance of at once regaining lost ground; while in Germany even while yet at war, confiscated all studios, combined them as one company and financed this company with $160,000,000. This all means that the importance of this great industry is known to all.

What has Canada done to participate? Quite a lot, to be sure. The Dominion government has interested itself to an extent while large numbers of governmental and business men have expressed a keen desire to see Canada represented in the film world.

Fifteen years ago there was no such thing as a recognized moving picture industry, only a few scattered llitte store shows called nickleodians showing so-called scenic pictures. Today financial reports and government statistics prove that moving pictures constitute the Third Greatest Industry in the World.

Everyone must acknowledge that the past four years have been a very hard period for the picture business, hard compared to the former, the present and future periods and four years out of the short past life of pictures is quite some time but even with these conditions prevailing just review the accomplishments of producing companies. Take any of them: Famous Players, Laskey, Metro, Goldwyn, Pathe, World, Universal or Vitagraph. Not one but what today is worth millions upon millions and not one of them started with more than a comparatively few thousands. Exhibitors have also made enormous profits but to no such degree as the producers. The great success of individual pictures may prove more interesting a few of which were: "The Spoilers," "Romona," "Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," "Ne-er Do Well," "The Crisis," "Civilization," "His Official Wife," "Hearts of the World," and countless others. When Selig made "The Spoilers," which was the first real feautre picture, most people figured that he had gone beyond the bounds of reason. The production cost him practically $100,000 but it earned in the first two years over $2,000,000, and is even yet being profitably exhibited. Clune made "Ramona" at a cost of $140,000 and received in return in 18 months over $3,000,000. That great master production of D. W. Griffiths' "The Birth of a Nation" cost $198,000 to produce and in 1917 it had earned a net profit of $13,000,000. No figures of its earnings since 1917 are available but they must be large. The box office receipts of one theatre alone, "The Auditorium Beautiful," of Los Angeles, seating 4600 people, amounted to more than the production cost of "Intolerance," which was the most expensive picture ever made, costing practically $2,000,000. What the actual profits of the picture were have never been made public, but they were many, many millions. Because of excess profits, income taxes, etc., it has not been considered advantageous to make public the profits of pictures of recent years, but one does not have to draw hard on the imagination to reach some conclusion with past successes in mind as a comparison.

It is readily recognized that the rental of a picture will vary according to its importance, its age, the size of the community and seating capacity of the house in which it is shown.

In the largest theatres such as the Rialto, Rivoli or Stand in New York a weekly rental of $300 or $500 per day, is often paid for what is called pre-release or advance showing of a production. Many theatres such as the Stanley in Philadelphia; the New California in San Francisco; Grauman's in Los Angeles, pay practically as much for their service. In cities with a population of from 50,000 up the first run of a picture in a first-class house will bring from $75 to $200 per day. This, of course, varies with circumstances. In very small communities and for pictures that are quite old, a rental of $5 to $7.50 per day is sometimes all that can be had, but this is the minimum. It is estimated that the average rental of a picture, the average between its high rental and its low rental, is $27.50 per day.

In the United States there are now something over 15,000 theatres while in Canada there are about 1250 or a total of 16,250 in the two countries. The proven average of rentals is that a picture will play or be shown in one out of every five theatres (five out of 16,250 equals 3,250) and that the verage run is two days. This results in the following figures:

Average rental of pictures, $27.50 per day.

The above is the earning power of a picture in the United States and Canada. The foreign market is also an enormous one, but is generally sold outright or for a given sum which varies according to the adaptability of the subject to foreign requirements. It is safe to figure however that the smallest return from the foreign market to the producer is equal to one and one half times the production cost.

The foregoing is not, of course, applicable to all pictures, but is the average return of good "program productions," five reels in length. If a picture is good enough for showing at all it should realize close to the above figures. If it is a "Special" of very unusual merit or if it is a picture in which one of the great stars is featured it will get far greater returns.

ROBERTSON GIVES INTERVIEW

Winnipeg, (Via Thief River Falls, Minn.,)—Before leaving for the east this morning the minister of labor, Senator Gideon Robertson, who has been here for ten days taking an active part in the general strike, gave out an interview to the press, in which he very definitely stated the position of the government.

"The promoters of the general strike in Winnipeg now sit in the ashes of their folly. In responding to the call to strike a majority violated and repudiated their obligations to their own trades unions and to their employers. Individually and collectively they willfully discarded their agreements, indicating that the possession of what they are contending for is of little value. Labor leaders who advocate that might is right, who hold that law, justice and honor should be discarded at will, merit and receive the condemnation of good citizens. In a general sympathetic strike the force is directed against the whole community, who are innocent of any responsibility for the offense. Public indignation is immediately aroused because of the inconvenience, loss and suffering imposed upon innocent people. Therefore, sympathetic strikes must fail. Socialism has long recognized that trades unionism is an impossible bar to its revolutionary progress, and seeks through the One Big Union movement to undermine and destroy the labor organizations whose policies are to regard its obligation as sacred and inviolation.

"Employers must not mistake the defeat of the general sympathetic strike as a defeat for organized labor. On the contrary, labor willemerge from the conflict strengthened from the wisdom gained from its experience. Numerous strong labor organizations have by their votes and actions largely contributed to the outcome because they believe the general sympathetic strike is wrong., vicious and demoralizing. Employers should seek to deal justly and at this time liberally with their workmen and thus assist the bona fide labor unions in their legitamate efforts to obtain a reasonable competence for all who are willing to labor."

Senator Robertson's attention has been drawn to the fact that efforts are now being made by the strike leaders to spread the idea that this is not a mere strike, but a revolution, Mr. Robertson said he had no doubt they were beginning to climb down. He had nothing more to say, however, with reference to the cause of the trouble than he had stated in his mesage to the mayor of Calgary, which set forth that:

"Events have proved conclusively that the motive behind the strike was for the purpose of assuming control and direction of industrial affairs, also municipal, provincial and federal activities so far as they were carried on in the city, and with the avowed intention of extending it to a wider field."

THRIFT EDUCATION

Professor Alexander of the University of Alberta, writes:

"The cultivation of habits of thrift cannot be said to have been a prominent virtue in Western Canada in the past years. However, this portion of the country, along with the rest of Canada, has been learning during these trying times of war that a cash reserve is a good asset for every citizen and for the community in which he lives. Various forms of savings have been begun, but one of the most attractive of these, for the small investor particularly, is the Thrift Stamp and War Savvings Stamp idea. It is a mttter strictly educational in its character, and hence appeals strongly to anyone who has to do with the work of education. Education for character has been emphasized in education more of late than ever, and, in the formation of character, habits of Thrift must always take a high place, both from the standpoint of the individual and the nation.

"It is not an easy matter altogether to get a new idea before the public, but I am convinced that the Thrift campaign is taking deeper hold every day. It is a question of having people understand that they are being offered a plan for the ready and profitable accumulation of small savings which is advantageous for themselves and highly beneficial for Canada. No one who really knows educational work ever anticipates immediate results of great magnitude and in our Thrift campaign, as in other phases of education, we must realize that we are working on a proposition which from small beginnings is bound to grow into a business of great proportions.

"We are striving to have the people of Alberta understand that this is almost entirely a volunteer campaign in which leading men and women are giving their time and energy because they believe that they are doing a patriotic work. Into this volunteer army, now comparatively small, we are seeking to enlist every loyal Canadian as an active worker, proclaiming by words and actions the value of Thrift. It is our conviction that a nation which did such remarkable work in the stress of war will show equal spirit in meeting war's permanent obligations."

At the time we felt it was wrong for Mr. Wilson to go for triumphal tours through Europe and keep the Peace Conference waiting, but we realize now that, if he was going, it was better to go while the going was good.—Philadelphia North American.

The undertaker who displayed a "Sure, we'll finish the job," loan poster in his window had an eye to business.—Manchester Union.

MAY AND JUNE DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

We wish to extend our deepest sympathies to the people who have to run their businesses by the kind permission of the strike committee. Skies are not always fair and blue.

The sun not always shining in Fernie;
But may the strike now on, to you
Aye turn a silver lining.

Jim Thistlebeak.

It sure must be Hell living in Fernie, and Heaven so near. You can come down on the Great Northern or the C. P. R. for six-bits. Elko is the place where you inhale the pure air of Heaven.

Steve Wallace, head wrangler for the Quarter Circle Six Ranch, brought down 87 head of mine horses from the Coal Creek mines to graze in the tall alfalfa west of the old historic burg.

Many visitors arriving in Elko last week from different points. Mrs. Greenwood and family, Fernie, have taken rooms at the Cumberland Mansions, Riverside Drive; Reggie C. Everett, Toronto, out here for his health Mrs. R. Hirtz and Miss Peggy Graham, Spokane, visiting the canyon and falls; James Findley, Shawnigan Lake, enroute to Flagstone; Jack Guest, Ocean Grove, ex-light weight boxer and champion left handed tie maker in the Pass; R. Tyrell of Vancouver with a line of Long Bob's goods; E. H. McPhee, R. C. Eakin, and Cpl. S. L. Coop of Cranbrook; Mr. Wattsburg, the Hon. W. J. Bowser, M. Gordon, M.P.P. fraternizing with that old fried egg, Jim Thistlebeak, and now Jim is saying things and left for the south country to say some more; C. A. Farrell, Vancouver with a full line of cowhide footwear, river-driver boots with a kangaroo kick, sold merchandise in Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and some in Elko. "There's a charm of dear old Ireland in your eyes," and if our pedigree pig takes first prize at the county fair, Farrell, we'll sure give you some of the lard; J. T. Berrington of Victoria, with green peas and sliced peaches in packages; Ed Clay, fully recovered from the "flu" and looking like seven million dollars; Joe McMullen, the greatest soap seller on the road looking like a wax flower sprinkled with diamond dust. If you never met Joe you've missed something. He's a fellow you can look at and interview without permission of the strike committee. Charlie Brawn and Arnold Booth, the two Bs, busy as a bull pup with a feather duster, selling tobacco and smoked bacon; Geo. Schupe, Asst. Fire Ranger, was in town a few hours this week visiting his little girls; if work will get a man anything, George should be Chief Ranger by next fall; he's a whale for work. J. A. MacDonald of the Lazy G Ranch; Macleod looking for a windless homestead with good trout fishing; several fly paper salesmen from Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Saurbrier, of Eureka, Mont., with a party of Lincoln County School Instructors, any one of them would have made Lillian Russell look like a swede cook; J. W. Clark, with the grouch of a friendly grizzley, and acrrying a grip full of bargains, and a line of talk that would queer the league of nations delegates; Jack Caverall and several others.

Fred Roo was down to Roosville visiting his family, returning Monday. We are wondering if the government is going to spend a little money and do a little fixing to the roads, so the visitors from the United States can get into this country.

COAL CREEK NOTES

This camp has the appearance of a "deserted village" these days. No noise from the tipple and everything being dormant and the stoppage of the evening train adds to our discomfiture.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the R. C. church here on Sunday, the contracting parties being one of our mine officials and a lady hailing from Lancaster, England. We offer congratulations and wishes for a happy and prosperous future.

The bird of the elongated legs deposited his bundle at the home of Mrs. W. Hughes. Mother and daughter doing well.

Although it is claimed that water rots your boots yet we of this burg are compelled to use the said liquid as our only beverage, our supply of 2 per cent having run out and no immediate prospects of replenishment. Some good thirsts are for sale.

The long talked of Married vs. Single football game was played on Sunday. J. Caufield handled tthe game in a creditable manner. The old "stiffs" proved too much for the "youngsters" and ran out winners 3 goals to 1.

Congratulations to one of our returned Vets on his appointment as constable of this burg. Best of luck Billy.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Almond of Michel, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Worthington.

Our genial local road superintendent is proud of his labors, saying that he has one of the best bicycle roads in the province. Good boy, Taffy.

We hear of one workman up here who arrived on his job miuus his shovel and had to walk back three-quarters of a mile. You must sure be in love, old man.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday saw the return from overseas of the following respectively, G. Davidson, Harry Cartmell, J. Braccen.

All roads lead to Victoria Park, where our local lads will entertain Michel in the Fernie District League. As the forthcoming game is of great importance we hope the weather will be favorable on Sunday. We anticipated a crowd from Fernie and outlying points.

We are pleased to report that our champion of the roped square is progressing favorably and will soon be ready to take on the challenges issued.

One of our residents returned from a trip with a goodly sample of "Fontenallis scentinollis" as a result of his prowess with rod and line. Nuff said.

Whilst the "round up" of the horses prior to removal to pastures new was in progress we learn of some acrobatic stunts pulled off by one of the mine officials up here. Some herder.

The sporting event of the year was staged in the Club Hall, when our local "Jess Willard," known as Kid Barker, had Kid Lewis as oppenent in the noble art of self-defence. Signor Hubberstey was the referee. Seconds for Kid Barker being Professors Reid and Morgan, while Lewis was championed by Monsieurs Oliverio and Bradshaw. The contest was of six rounds duration. As we are not thoroughly versed in parlance of the roped game we could not attempt to report in detail the feints, short jabs, etc. Suffice it to say Kid Barker drew first blood in the 2nd round. During the 3rd round Kid Lewis did some smart infighting but nothing daunted our local hero stayed with him. The 4th and 5th rounds were evenly contested and in the 6th round our local got in one with his dangerous left which placed Lewis on the mat for the count. The stentorious tones of the referee died away with Lewis still down. Barker was declared the winner amidst loud applause and in a neat speech redolent of true sportsmanship Barker thanked the boys and called for three cheers for the vanquished opponent. Telegrams of congratulation have been received from various parts and we learn of a challenge being sent from the coast. Unfortunately our champion is placed hors-de-combat at present with a bum shoulder, Dr. Ainsworth of Corbin having ordered complete rest. A subscription list towards purchasing a belt has been opened and we hope in the near future to have the pleasure of publishing photo of Barker and honors.

GIRL WISHES FLIGHT ACROSS ATLANTIC

St. John's, Nfld., June 2. — While the Vimy-Vickers, Handley Page and Martinsyde entries in the London Daily Mail's $50,000 Trans-Atlantic filght contest labored to get their machines in shape for a "hop-off," the aviators were startled by receipt of a request from a 19 year old American girl that she be carried overseas as a passenger in the Vimy-Vickers bomber to be piloted by Captain Jack Alcock.

The girl is Miss May Kirtson, of Erdenheim, Pa. With her application she volunteered the information that she had three brothers in the American army, and that although she had been rejected by the American Air service because of her sex she wished to prove that an American girl is not afraid to brave the dangers of a trans-Atlantic flight.

Frederick P. Raynham, pilot of the Martinsyde plane, is making progress in repairing his plane damaged when he crashed to earth in attempting to "hop off" with Hawker's Sopwith.

Japan's demand for an Asiatic "Monroe Doctrine" is a bit offset by our knowledge of what she wants it for.—Venango Herald.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

ILLICIT STILLS AT MICHEL

Investigation under direction of Provincial Constable A. McNeill and Inland Revenue Officer H. Brown at Michel last night brought to light two illicit stills at that place. The premises raided were those of Pete Zoratti and Frank Farano. In the former the seizure was 20 gallons alcohol, 40 gallons raisin whisky and six ten gallon mashes and fifty cases raisins with two worms. At the latter one complete 20 gallon per day still fully equipped and just drawn as it was warm from recent operation. There also was found in this place 100 gallons raisin alcohol, six ten-gallon mash, 40 gallons redistilled whisky and 40 cases raisins. Much additional ingredients and equipment were also seized, in all aggregating five truck loads. Prosecution is under Sec. 81-e, Inland Revenue Act.

CITY FATHERS HOLD SESSION

The first regular meeting of the city council for the current month was held last evening with a full attendance excluding His Worship, who was ably represented by Acting Mayor Beck.

Under communications the Secretary of the Nelson Mining Commission extended an invitation to the city fathers to be represented upon this occasion officially. The entry for this event is still open for entries.

W. L. Alexander, sponsor for "620" of the Int. Union Steam & Operating Engineers wrote, wherein the notification embodied a suggestion of compliance under threat of "General Strike" that "union" amended scale of wages effective July 1st should be adhered to. The new scale is on the basis of $1.10 per hour for 1st class engineers, 90c for 2nd, 70c for 3rd and 50c per hour for firemen. Eight hours per day is the limit and time and a half for all overtime. The communication was laid over for the next meeting of council, but incidentally comment was made that 'Friend' Smith of the power house staff was the only one who would benefit by the new schedule. By some honorable alderman: "$1.10 for engineers first class and only 50c for the fireman. They appear to have considerable gall to make that request."

Chas. Walde made personal application for reduction in water rates. Referred to the water and light committee.

On application the sale of Lot 3, Block 41 was referred to the works and property committee, as was also Lot 2, Block 41.

The Northern Financial Corporation wired that they had for sale subject to prior sale, $2500 City of Fernie 5's maturing in May, 1920, at 99 1-2. This was filed as the suggested inducement was not sufficiently lucrative.

The strike committee advised that through the effective support of A. Macneil, as counsel for the Orpheum theatre, they had consented to permit the use of power on Saturday afternoons from 2 p.m.

Act. Mayor—We don't appear to have much voice.

Ald. Gates—It don't appear so.

Rutledge—I think we should reply on account of the recreation for the children.

Gates—I feel that we should not reply at all.

(Filed, then resurrected to be acted upon when the Mayor comes home.)

The Home Bank advised the council that the customary line of credit would be advanced under certain conditions and stipulations, all of which were inaudibly accepted.

A communication from the Workmen's Compensation Board re first aid kits was read. Also one from Mario Oliva re purchase of a lot. These were respectively assigned to the proper departments.

The report of the city engineer re leaks and repairs, river bank protection, etc., was accepted and filed.

The Medical Health Officers report as follows was duly approved:

Fernie, B.C., June 10, 1919.

To the Mayor and Council of the City of Fernie:

Gentlemen — I have the honor to report as follows:

I returned to the city on the morning of May 15 after being demobilized from the C.E.F., and at once took up my duties as Medical Health Officer of the city. Since then I have inspected the cells of the city jail. Everything here is very clean but the ventilation during the day is extremely bad on account of the lack of electric current to operate the fan. Instructions were also given for the cleaning up and removing of ashes and rubbish from the yard behind the City Jail.

In company with Chief of Police Welsby I visited the premises of the following vendors of milk: Jules Anderson, John Kosta, George Bella, B. Butcher, Mike Kasimir, B. Pearson, E. Martenson, H. Follett and J. Smolak. Thomas Jones was given permission to sell milk on completion of certain alterations in his stabling. Joe Qualteri was notified to discontinue selling milk owing to the unsanitary state of his cow shed. The following stated that they now only keep cows for their own use and do not sell milk: D. Tulip, J. Skrypek; J. Pisoni, U. Gales and J. Bella. Owing to the state of high water it was impossible at this time to visit the dairies of Roux Bros. and C. Lukas to the north of the city. There seems to be a disposition on the part of vendors of milk to conform with the instructions given them as to the care of their cattle and premises.

All the Chinese laudries in the city were inspected; one of these situated on Mason Ave. (Annex) was ordered to be closed owing to unsanitary conditions. All the others are in very good condition as the result of measures taken in the summer of 1918. The police have been instructed to take stringent measures with persons using the lanes as a dumping place for ashes and garbage.

The Central and High School buildings have been inspected. Reports in reference to this will be presented to the school board.

I would again very earnestly recommend to the council the necessity of oiling that part of Victoria avenue which has been paved. The dust on this street is very marked and it is a serious menace to the health of those living on and using this thoroughfare.

During the month one death occurred in the city and two births were registered for the month.

D. Corsan,
Medical Health Officer.

After a short discussion re streets, rents due on certain city property and the final sanction of by-law 195 the august body adjourned at 9.30.

THRIFT IN THE SCHOOLS

In the schools of Canada alone the War Savings campaign is fraught with great possibilities and alredy the returns show that splendid progress is being made. What has been done in the schools of the United States is a fair indication of what may be done in the schools of Canada.

In the schools of New York there is said to be a little over 750,000 children. During the period, December, 1917 to January 31, 1919, no less than $5,446,000 worth of Savings and Thrift Stamps were sold in these schools, which means slightly more than $7 for each child.

The Thrift campaign in the schools of the Dominion will produce 100 fold in results. Every child should be enrolled in the War Savings army. Parents should see to this. It will discipline the child in thrift, provide it with a good investment and benefit the country.

TO CELEBRATE JULY 1ST

Fernie will celebrate Dominion Day. This decision has been reached by a committee of citizens whose middle name is optimism. It is their intention to make this occasion the most enjoyable and gradnest festival that has been pulled off here since the time when "Heck" was a pup. The variety of events to be pulled off are such as to please those who desire to participate or be spectators thereto. They will consist of a number of open flat events, jumping, horse racing, baseball, football, cycle racing, etc. There will be a grand parade in which decorated automobiles, bicycles, floats, school children, fraternal organizations and others will take part. Brass and bugle bands will be in attendance and in the evening a big dance will be held. The committee have made arrangements to give many prizes of an enticing nature for each and every event. For full particulars of this monster celebration kindly direct inquiries to C. Spence, Secretary of the Fernie Sports Committee or to W. J. Claridge, Advertising Manager.

The Fernie-Fort Steele Brewing Co. resumed operations on Saturday, the engineer who was out on strike returning to work.

The police are vigorously investigating every slight clue in connection with the finding of the body of a female infant last Sunday. Coroner Thomson empanelled a jury, who after viewing the locality where the body was found, adjourned same until Friday. The remains, which were wrapped in a silken skirt and almost totally buried in a heap of ashes when found, were in an advanced state of decomposition. They were removed to the morgue and a post mortem examination held. The authorities are reticient with regard to the progress of their investigations other than to state that there will be quite a number of witnesses subpoened to testify at the inquest, and also that every shred of evidence with a view to solving the present mystery will be presented. The coroner's jury are as follows: Thomas Beck, foreman; Eder Harper, Thos. Muirhead, Walter Clarkstone, John Glover and W. T. Milley.

NO NEW DEVELOPMENTS

There have been no new developments in the strike situation. Two bulletins were issued by Frank Brindley warning the miners to pay no attention to reports of men returning to work at Coal Creek, and also that reports of the Winnipeg strike as published in Calgary papers were absolutely false.

Some of the engineers at Coal Creek have returned to work. As for Winnipeg reports the chances are that the Calgary newspapers have just as good information on the subject as Mr. Brindley.

A wire from Winnipeg last night stated that Senator Robertson, Minister of Labor, had arrived in that city with full authority to take charge of any situation that may arise there. Everything was reported quiet.

BASEBALL

Last Friday saw a good game staged at the ball grounds between the F.A.A.C. and the Old Timers. This was the best game that has been played this season as the score was four all in the 8th innings. Then the F.A.A.C. took the lead and held it. The Old Timers made a good effort to overcome the handicap but had to give in at the end of the 9th with the score standing 8-6.

Bishop Wilson held down the slab for the Old Timers in great style, while the F.A.A.C. had to replace Sofko with C. Colton, who showed that he could also handle the pill in a case of emergency.

Kastner as umpire at times gave decisions for both sides that looked rather raw but all around he treated both teams about even.

Wednesday's game between the Hula Hulas and the F.A.A.C. turned out to be a merry go round, as the final score showed. When the game was called the Hulas were without a pitcher but rather than delay the game they started out with Ricketts, who was batted all over the field. He was replaced by A. Dunlap who tried to bring the team out of a bad hole and almost succeeded but owing to a few errors on the part of his support could not make it stick. Dufour pitched the whole game for the F.A.A.C. and he seemed to have an off night too as the final score was 15 to 14.

On Sunday the Fernie ball team went to Waldo and took them into camp by a score of 19 to 8. After the first few innings the Fernie boys saw they had a cinch and began running the bases wild, which got the goat of the Waldo boys and a base runner could get from 1st to 3rd without a stop. Waldo has a good bunch of boosters, who showed their loyalty by the way they rooted all through the game.

On Sunday next our boys expect to have Wardner up to play the return game that was postponed from last Sunday. Come and boost for the home team.

SCOTLAND VS. ENGLAND

An international soccer game between Scotland and England will be played at the North End Park on Friday night, June 13. Kick off at 6.30 p.m. Teams will be picked from the best players in the city and Coal Creek. This will be a game worth seeing. This match is being played for the benefit of a returned Vet, R. Reed. Everybody turn out. Players look out for official bulletin on the bulletin boards. The following is the probable line-up of players:

Scotland—Goal, Ogg; full backs, J. Corrigan, J. Riley; half backs, J. Joinson, W. Riley, J. Mitchell; forwards, H. Brown, W. Thornton, Mulligan, D. Thornton, G. Davidson.

FOOTBALL NEWS

City League games are drawing near the end, with Michel at the top of the league. The War Vets have still a chance of winning the penant and so has Coal Creek. Fernlea defeated the F.A.A.C. last week 2 to 1. The G.W.V.A. defeated the Teamsters 2 to 0. The Teamsters beat Fernlea 1 to 0. Michel beat Coal Creek 2 to 1 at Coal Creek. Everyone expected this last game would be the best game this year but both sides made a very poor showing. The game between Fernlea and the Teamsters was full of pep and lots of comedy. The Teamsters stole a night march on two of the Fernlea players while Fernlea had Sawyer of the Vets in goal, who played a star game. These two teams play another game next Tuesday night, June 17. Kick-off at 6.30. Look out for further particulars as this will be a game for blood. Coal Creek travels to Michel this week end and this should be a game worth seeing. The boys are also getting ready for the cup tie games which will be pulled off after the league games are finished.

Total—$10,127.36.

FINDLAY GIVEN TWO YEARS IN PENITENTIARY

Vancouver, B.C.,—Found guilty at the spring assizes here on the charge of stealing 75 cases of whiskey while employed by the British Columbia government as prohibition commissioner for the province, until dismissed from office a few months ago, W. J. Findlay was sentenced by the court to two years in the penitentiary.

Findlay's conviction followed the third attempt of the crown to prove him guilty of a breach of trust while a public servant.

BLAIRMORE HAS $40,000 FIRE

Blairmore, June 9.—Fire which broke out in the rear of either the P. Burns meat market or Howe's cigar store wiped out five buildings in the centre of the town, did damage estimated at $40,000 and threatened at one time to reduce Blairmore's whole business section to ashes. The buildings destroyed were:

F. M. Thompson & Co.'s general store.

J. Faden's candy store.

P. Burns' meat market.

Chin Hing's restaurant.

Walter Howe's cigar store. This building is owned by two Pincher Creek Chinamen. The I.O.O.F. hall over the cigar store was destroyed.

The damage is estimated at $15,000 in the case of stocks and $25,000 in buildings. The Thopmson Co. was able to save about half its stock. The amount of insurance is not known at present.

The local firemen made a splendid fight. Water pressure was good and additional hose was secured from Coleman.

54TH TO ARRIVE AT REVELSTOKE THIS FRIDAY

The 54th Kootenay Battalion will reach Revelstoke on Friday (today) according to a wire received by F. A. Starkey, of Nelson, from A. McRae, president of the Revelstoke board of trade.

Immediately the battalion arrives the dispersal wheels will be set in motion, and after the celebration Revelstoke is preparing as a welcome, the men will be speeded on their journey to their home towns.

"The citizens of Revelstoke will go the limit in the matter of giving the boys a welcome," declares Mr. McRae in his wire.

A cordial invitation has been extended to the citizens of Nelson and all other cities and towns of the Kootenay and Boundary to join in welcoming the returning soldiers of Kootenay's "Own Battalion."

Justice F. A. Macdonald, of Vancouver, arrived in the city last evening and will sit at the Assize Court which opens tomorrow. All the jurors from the west end of the district also came in on the evening train.

The G.W.V.A. held a get-togeher smoker in the club rooms on Thursday evening. President Moffatt occupied the chair. The entire program, consisting of solos, part songs, trios, quartettes, also clog dancing and acrobatic stunts, was given by the G.W.V.A. concert party.

WARNS AGAINST THE O. B. U.

To the Editor of the Daily News.

Sir—Regarding the activities of the One Big Union among our working men here I should like to say a word. Some few weeks ago there came into our city a Mr. Naylor, well known for his association with the late draft-evader Goodwin, for the purpose of organizing a One Big Union. Our war veterans, after a private interview with him, warned him against having a meeting and advised him to get out of town, which he promptly did. Shortly afterwards there breezes in a certain Mr. Potter, who puts up a slicker kind of talk, with the revolutionary purpose of the O.B.U. hidden carefully out of sight, and with the bait of the "dollar an hour for a six-hour day" dangling well in front.

Last week there drops in upon us a Mr. Elbo or Albo, hailing from Lethbridge, who held a public meeting last Sunday night for the elucidation of the Italians, haranguing them in their own language and for the same purpose that animated Mr. Naylor and Mr. Potter, i.e., the organization of the O.B.U. Various conjectures are being made as to their success amongst our men. Some say that they have secured 500 names; others say 800—myself, I do not know.

Now, Mr. Editor, it does not need much guessing to foresee what is going to happen next—at least, some time if not soon. The men tempted to join the O.B.U. through the promises of the officials to make a stand for the "dollar an hour for a six-hour day," are by and by going to call upon the officials to deliver the goods. Then there will be a strike, and this strike will be accompanied by sympathetic strikes in whatever other centres the O.B.U. is entrenched, with all the attendant social privations and calamities entailed. I do not mean to say that such a strike is likely to happen here soon. Indeed, the omens look rather the other way. The men for one thing do not seem to have much confidence in the officials of their late union, and many of them have very unpleasant memories of the unfair strike of a year and a half ago. But one can never tell. I notice that one of the officials of the O.B.U. boasted that they could pull off a strike with only 30 per cent of their union membership. I have good grounds for believing that they could pull off a strike here with even less.

There is one consideration that the smelter worker should bear in mind at this stage especially if he has a wife and family to provide for and protect. It might be that the prime organizers of this One Big Union — the men you and I don't know—who stand behind the scenes and pull the wires that make the puppets work; it might be, I say, that these men are far more interested in wrecking the industries of the country than in building them up; more interested in fanning the flames of social unrest than of mitigating them; more concerned with pulling off a strike than in making good to you their lure of big wages and easy hours. Those self-styled social philanthropists are for the most part highly paid agitators, and the only work they do is with their mouths.

There comes grave evidence from Seattle and more recently from Winnipeg that the One Big Union is essentially an organization of revolution, whose aim is the destruction of our democratic institutions and the substitution of a working class dictatorship. It is Bolshevism pure and simple. We have read with horror of its ghastly workings in Russia, where men have had their throats cut because they shaved their beards, and defenceless women and innocent children clubbed to death because they wore pretty clothes. We do not anticipate such atrocities here, of course, but the anarchical spirit of the movement is essentially the same. At the back of Bolshevism in Russia are the two sinister figures of Lenine and Trotzky—the two Judases of modern times, who betrayed their country for German gold. At the back of Bolshevism in Canada are these two same diabolical scoundrels who, if eastern newspaper report is true, are supplying their emissaries here with large sums of money. Who are the Iscariots in this country who are handling the price of innocent blood?

The present policy of laissey faire on the part of our provincial and municipal authorities is not owrking well and cannot work well. It does not give a square deal to the working man. He is not being sufficiently warned that he is playing with strange fire. These are hard times for most of us and it is difficult to make both ends meet. One can have nothing but the deepest sympathy for the worker who seeks to affiliate with any decent labor organization that shall enable him to state and to enforce his rights. These men are joining the One Big Union in ignorance of its sinister ulterior revolutionary purposes and for no other reason than that they believe it is the big brotherhood who has the power and the good will to act on their behalf. Why are these law-abiding and loyal fellow laborers not warned and safeguarded against this infamous trap? Why is this revolutionary organization not publicly branded as such? Are our authorities too busy watching which way the cat is going to jump to do their obvious duties? Are they afraid to call a spade a spade because they imagine that the majority of the people want to call it something else? Things have surely come to a pretty pass when any considerable number of men in Vancouver have the insolence to try to shut the mouths of the loyal and patriotic school teachers of that city as they tell the children of the evils and horrors of Bolshevism. Three cheers for the school ma'ams, say I.

A prairie fire in the fall of the year is an easy thing to put out at first! Simply a burning match and a wisp of straw. A lad could put it out with his foot. All that needs to be done to produce a real big blaze that shall burn down the whole country side is to leave it alone.

It should not be forgotten that Bolshevism was "made in Germany"; that up till now it has served the German interest by reducing Russia into a state of pitiable ruin. Germany may well pluck up courage to refuse to sign the peace if Seattle and Winnipeg go on repeating themselves indefinitely throughout the Empire.

BOLSHEVISM EXPOUNDED BY BOLSHEVIKI

In the first issue of struggling Russia, a new weekly magazine devoted to Russian problems, published by the Russian Information Bureau in New York City, there appeared on March 22, 1919, and in subsequent issues, translations of certain documents that throw light on the Bolshevist theory and on the method by which that theory is put into practice.

The first document embodies portions of Zinoviev's speech before the Petrograd Soviet on Jan. 27, 1919, as reported in the Krasnaya Gazeta, a Bolshevist daily. This speech is of interest because of Zinoviev's prominence as a Bolshevist leader, and because it characterizes the Bolshevist attitude toward the Allies, not only in respect to their proposal of the Prinkipo conference, but also generally and fundamentally.

The speech began with a violent attack upon the Peace Conference at Paris. The conference, said the speaker, was made up, not of representatives of the people, but of the bankers, the bourgeoisie,and the "robber governments." These "five great robber powers" were dictating to the world to the detriment of the masses. Only a revolution from one end of Europe to the other could prevent their solution of the problems of future society. Resolved that the disorder in Russia must be brought to an end, they had at first sought by armed force to acomplish their purposes, but, realizing the danger and uncertainty of this method, they had changed their tactics, deeming it expedient "to display the tail of the cunning fox instead of the teeth of the fierce wolf." The declaration which the sent out said that they regarded the Russian people as their friends; they had had effrontery to declare that they recognized the right of the Russian people to manage their own affairs without foreign intervention, and that they also recognized the Russian revolution, and disavowed every attempt at counter-revolution. "When one reads these liens of the allied declaration," continued Zinoiviev, "one cannot help asking: 'Are you not ashamed to be so brazenly lying at every step and turn?'" Their desire to bring the Soviet delegates together with the other Governments of Russia in an attempt at reconciliation was senseless, yet this purpose, senseless and transparent as it was, had "a big political significance, and the Petrograd Soviet should know it."

The real situation, according to Zinoviev, was as follows:

The Soviet troops were advancing successfully, taking city after city, and destroying all nests of the counter-revolution; meanwhile the revolution in Europe was advancing so fast that the English and the French were afraid to send their armies to Russia, even though they were compelled to support Denikine, Kolchak, and Dutov; understanding at last that they could not overcome the Soviet by force, they were attempting to take it by cunning. They knew that the Russian people were exhausted, that further struggle was difficult, and that this war demanded countless sacrifices; they knew, furthermore, that the peasants were loath to continue fighting. But the Soviet would never trust the people who for two years had supported the Russian counter-revolution; if it sent delegates, this would be only "to tear the masks off these allied gentlemen." But let them not think that the Soviet would "cease, even for a minute, to organize the Red Army and to advance victoriously on all fronts." Zinoviev's speech concluded as follows:

"It is true that we have no diplomatists in the game of treachery and falsehood, but we have men who will be in a position to tear the masks from the Japanese and American bandits. We do not trust their smiles; we have no confidence in their Judas Iscariot kisses! The Soviet rule will not lay down its arms. We say to all: These are the first fruits of our labors. The day is near when the very devil will have no terrors for us!

From Izvestia (News) and the Northern Commune, both official Bolshevist publications, the following statistics are taken:

The Northern Commune on Sept. 9, 1918, said that the Extraordinary Commission had arrested and sent to concentration camps over 130 hostages from among the bourgeoisie, including members of the Cadet Party, Social Revolutionists of the Right, former officers, and well known members of the propertied class and policemen. The same paper stated on Sept. 10 that in the Yaroslav government manifestly anti-Soviet elements were being shot, suspected persons interned in concentration camps and non-working sections of the population subjected to compulsory labor. On Sept. 11 it was announced that martial law had been proclaimed in Atkarsk, and that eight counter-revolutionists had been shot. In Astrakhan, this paper said on Sept. 18, the Extraordinary Committee had shot ten Social Revolutionists of the Right, involved in a plot against the Soviet power. A priest and a Deacon in Karamyshev had been shot for agitation against the Soviet decree separating Church from State. In Perm, in retaliation for the assassination of Uritzky, (in the Fall of 1918) and for the attempt on Lenine's life, fifty hostages from among the bourgeoisie class and the White Guards were shot.

In the evening issue of Sept. 18, the Northern Commune reported a meeting of the Soviet of the First District of Petrograd. After a memorandum which emphasized the necessity of suppressing the bourgeois press, the following resolution was passed:

"The meeting welcomes the fact that mass terror is being used against the White Guards and the higher bourgeois classes, and declares that every attempt on the life of any of our leaders will be answered by the proletariat by the shooting down not only of hundreds, as the case is now, but of thousands of White Guards, bankers, manufacturers, Cadets (Constitutional Democrats) and Social-Revolutionists of the Right."

In the issue of Sept. 19 the same paper published a speech made by Zinoviev containing the following passage:

"To overcome our enemies we must have our own Social militarism. We must win over to our side 90,000,000 out of the 100,000,000 of population of Russia under the Soviets. As for the rest, we have nothing to say to them; they must be annihilated."

The Northern Commune on Sept. 19, 1918, published the following decision of the Council of People's Commissaries:

"The Council of the People's Commissaries, having considered the report of the Chairman of the Extraordinary Commission, finds that under existing conditions it is most necessary to secure the safety of the rear by means of terror. All persons belonging to the White Guard organizations or involved in conspiracies and rebellions are to be shot. Their names and the particulars of their cases are to be published."

In a report of the meeting of the Executive committee of the Moscow Soviet, Oct. 16, printed on the following day by the Izvestia, occurs the following:

"The report of the work of the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission was read at a secret session of the Executive Committee. But the report and the discussion of it were held behind closed doors and will not be published. (The All-Russian Extraordinary Commission has its seat in Moscow.)

The Izvestia of Oct. 19, 1918, under the heading of "The Conference of the Extraordinary Commission," stated that the total number of people arrested by the commission amounted to 6220. Eight hundred were shot. The same paper announced on Oct. 5 that six ringleaders in a riot in the Kirsanov district, directed against the Soviet government, had been shot.

In an article by Eugene Trupp, a prominent Social Revolutionist and a member of the All-Russian Constituent Assembly, published in Zemlia i Volia (Land and Freedom) on Oct. 3, 1918, the following statistics were given:

"After the murder of Uritzky in Perm 1500 people were arrested in Petrograd; 512, including 10 Social Revolutionists, were shot. At the same time 800 people were arrested in Moscow; the number of these shot was unknown. In Nizhni Novgorod, 41 were shot; in Yaroslav, 13; in Astrakhan, 12 Social Revolutionists; in Penza, about 40 officers; in Kuznetzk people were being shot daily in masses. These statistics, the writer stated, fell far short of the actual facts.

Other details given by M. Trupp may be summed up as follows:

Dora aplan, who attempted the life of Lenine, was tortured and finally shot. Maria Spiridonova, who had become an adherent of the Soviet program, had been imprisoned for three months in the Kremlin; she had written from there of the horrors of Soviet imprisonment; all the horrors of her life during eleven years of hard labor in Siberia appeared colorless compared to her experiences as a prisoner of the Soviet. On Sept. 6 demonstration of Red Guards took place in Moscow, in which were demanded "deeds for words" and "relentless red terror in the fight against the bourgeoisie." This metod was to be applied also against the counter-revolutionists, the White Guards, the right wing of the Social Revolutionists, the Mensheviki, and against all who opposed the Soviet power. The last days of his stay in Moscow and Soviet Russia M. Trupp described as a period of horror; all people were terrorized; spies were everywhere; reports of people being arrested and shot were circulating; all were filled with fear and trembling.

N. Bukharin, a Bolshevist leader, in a pamphlet entitled "The Program of the Communist Party, or Bolsheviki," expounded the stand of the Bolsheviki on civil liberties. This pamphlet stated that as it is the aim of the workmen and peasants to wipe out the bourgeoisie, this class must be denied all "great liberties," including the right of suffrage. In response to the charges of suppression of the press, of arrests and prohibition of meeting, of despotic methods, of violence and assassination, the author of the pamphlet draws a distinction between the press of the bourgeoisie and that of the laborers, between gatherings of counter-revolutionists and those of workmen, between strikes of laborers against capitalists and strikes of bourgeoisie intellectuals against the proletariat. The press, assemblies, and unions, he explains, are instruments of class struggle; weapons of civil war, like cannon, powder, or machine guns. The only question is, What class is using them, and against what class are they directed?

The Northern Commune recently published a report in which the Bolshevist prisons are described by the Bolsheviki themselves. This report states that the presiding officers of the Soviet of the Viborg district decided to send a delegation to the prisons of that district when they heard that terrible conditions prevailed there. They found that the prisoners were starving; many of them had been in prison eight months without trial, because the commission charged with the investigation of their cases had not been in session. The report declared the conditions in the prison to be indescribable. The cells were repulsively dirty; there was neither clean linen nor pillows; punishments occurred for the least offence. The prisoners were living ghosts, starving, too weak to talk. Corpses remained for hours among the living. The fare consisted of warm water supposed to be soup; no meat or bread was ever given.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

WORLD RECORD IS BROKEN BY TANLAC

Four years ago very few people had ever heard of Tanlac. Today it unquestionably has the largest sale of any medicine in the world. In the brief period of only four years time this now famous remedy has leaped from obscurity to the very pinnacle of success. Its fame in fact has long since spread beyond the limits of the continent and numerous inquiries regarding it are now being received from many foreign countries.

Very few people, however, fully realize what a really wonderful record Tanlac has made. Indeed, if it were not for the unquestionable figures given out by the largest and best known drug firms of the country the story of its success would be hard to believe.

Up to January first, the total sales of Tanlac amounted to approximately twelve million bottles. The demand, however, is increasing, for during the first ten weeks of this year over one million bottles were sold and distributed in the United States and Canada, the exact figure being 1,306,186 in three months.

At this rate, therefore, the sales for the present year will amount to more than five million botles. This will mean hat 17,000 bottles of Tanlac will be sold during every day of the year, or 100 bottles for every hour of the average working day.

These figures are too stupendous for the average mind to grasp, but one may visualize what twelve million bottles mean by imagining them Thus laid they would mean a track of Tanlac from New York through Chicago, and on to Denver, Colorado; laid out in a single file end to end. or they would form a double track of Tanlac from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. Piled end on end they would tower 135 times as high as Pikes Peak, or rise 13,333 times higher than the Woolworth Building in New York, the tallest building in the world.

The demand for Tanlac has become so great that its sale instead of being measured by the gross as other preparations have been, is now reckoned by the carload, and even by the train load. In proof of this it is a noteworthy fact that the leading druggist jobbers everywhere now buy Tanlac almost exclusively in carload lots. To supply the Pacific coast trade alone requires from forty to fifty car loads per year. Jobbers of the Middle West are selling from seventy to eighty cars per year.

The well known drug firm of Hessig-Ellis Drug Company of Memphis, Tennessee, has sold over forty car loads since the introduction of Tanlac in that state four years ago.

Within the past ninety days, ten car loads of Tanlac have gone to supply the demand of British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Manitoba, Canada.

The Owl Drug Company of San Francisco, the largest retail druggists on the Pacific coast, state that they have sold more than 180,000 bottles at retail, which surpasses the remarkable record of the Jacobs Pharmacy Company of Atlanta, who have sold approximately 80,000 bottles at retail.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science. The formula complies with all national and state pure food and health laws of both the United States and Canada; and absolute merit and merit alone is responsible for its phenomenal and unprecedented success.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

"WHAT HAS ENGLAND DONE?"

Strange, that in this great hour, when Righteousness
Has won her war upon Hypocrisy,
Some still there be who, lost in littleness,
And mindful of an ancient grudge, can ask:
"Now, what has England done to win this war?"
We think we see her smile that English smile,
And shrug a lazy shoulder and —just smile,
It were so little worth her while to pause
In her stupendous task to make reply.

What has she done? When with her great grey ships,
Lithe, lean destroyers, grim, invincible,
She swept the prowling Prussians from the seas;
And heedless of the slinking submarine,
The hidden mine the Hun-made treacheries,
Her transports plied the waters ceaselessly!
That 'neath the burning sun of Palestine
She fought and bled, nor wearied of the fight
Till from the land where walked the Nazarene
She drove the foul and pestilential Turk?
What has England done? No need to to ask!
Upon the fields of Flanders and of France
A million crosses mark a million graves;

Upon each cross a well-loved English name,
And, ah, her women! On that peaceful isle
Where in the hawthorn hedges thrushes sang,
And meadow larks made gay the scented air,
Now blackened chimneys rear their grimy heads,
Smoke-belching, and the frightened birds have fled
Before the thunder of the whirring wheels,
Behind unlovely walls, amid the din,
Seven times a million noble women toil—
With tender, unaccustomed fingers toil,
Nor dream that they have played a hero's part.
Great-hearted England, we have fought the fight
Together, and our mingled blood has flowed.
Full well we know that underneath that mask
Of cool indifference there beats a heart
Grim as your own gaunt ships when duty calls,
Yet warm and gentle as your summer skies;
A Nation's heart that beats throughout a land
Where kings may be beloved and Monarchy
Can teach Republic how they must be free.
Ah! What has England done? When came the call,
She counted not the cost, but gave her all!

WIT AND WISDOM

An exchange tells us that beads are coming into fashion again. We are also informed that in some of the islands of the South Pacific the natives consider them about all that is necessary in the way of apparel. By this it will be noted that the South Sea islanders are apparently more civilized than the Douks of Grand Forks who do not consider it necessary to even wear beads when they go on a parade.—Merritt Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A newspaper which without the slightest excuse or foundation will publish an article like that which appeared in last week's edition of the District Ledger, under the caption "Is It Fernie's Finish?" is a dangerous weapon to any community. About five months ago an article appeared in the same paper stating that they had inside information that the C.P.R. would shortly sidetrack the town of Cranbrook and leave it a deserted village. This yarn was absolutely made up of whole cloth, without the slightest evidence to back it up.

A few months ago they published another story to the effect that they had positive information that the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. would at once commence the erection of a big by-product plant at Fernie. Another pipe dream.

Putting these different yarns together the public should be able to judge how little real truth there is behind the story that Fernie will shortly be sidetracked at the expense of Sparwood. The editor of the Ledge fervidly swallows as gospel every story that anyone peddles to him. A correct estimate of the value placed by Premier Oliver on their Sparwood article is contained in the following dispatch from Victoria to the Nelson News:

Victoria, June 6.—In a wire to Premier Oliver this morning, S. Whitehouse, president of the local miners' union at Fernie, states that a newspaper article published in a Fernie journal intimated that the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. intended to close its mine on account of the strike. As such a course would mean the enforced idleness of many men in the neighborhood, Premier Oliver is asked by Mr. Whitehouse whether the government would take action to avert such a contingency. Mr. Oliver has discovered, however, that the paper making the announcement complained of is controlled entirely by union officials of district 18, upon whose instructions the present strike of coal miners has been called. Further, Mr. Oliver is informed that the company is taking such measures as it deems necessary under the circumstances for the proper protection of its property.

BOLSHEVIKI & THE O. B. U.

Dominion authorities are swiftly gathering evidence connecting up the One Big Union movement with the Russian Soviet propaganda in this country. Definite evidence that the O.B.U. is a Soviet movement is, of course, prima facie evidence that the principles of the O.B.U. are the overturning of constituted government in Canada by force. Such proof would bring the O.B.U. promoters within the scope of the new act recently passed by parliament providing a penitentiary term for persons advocating the overthrow of constituted government in Canada by force. Hence, it would not be surprising if widespread arrests of the protagonists of Red revolution in Canada do not follow shortly.

The federal authorities in Calgary have gathered a great mass of literature, some of which has been prohibited for many months, including one of Nicholai Lenine's pamphlets, all of which has been distributed in this city by persons now under the surveillance of federal officers. A local news stand has been a centre for the distribution of this class of literature, though no specific instance of an actually prohibited document being put out by the owners is on record. Such publications as J. Rhys Williams' documents advocating the Soviet form of government; a book lauding the Bolsheviki by John Reed, the writer who was under arrest in New York city for a long period by the American authoritoies; soviet pamphlets and other publications by lesser fry, allof the Red-Revolution stamp, make up part of the record.

Incidentally a copy of the Western Labor News under date of April 25, last, is being held as part of the positive evidence that the One Big Union propaganda is purely Bolshevism, intending the overthrow of democratic government in Canada. This publication put out in Winnipeg is the chief One Big Union advocate in the west. On April 25 last, The Western Labor News printed what purports to be a reproduction of a blue print plan on which the soviet government in Russia was founded. This blue print is in the form of a big circle around a small one at the centre, denoting various administrative departments. Radiating from the centre are lines dividing the activities of the country into agriculture, mining, printing, distribution, etc., all the activities of modern life administered from a common centre.

On the left hand side of the circle is printed the following legend:

"Workers, awake! Cut out and hold this plan for the One Big Union. Think about it. Talk about it. Vote for it. Work for it, and don't forget to boost the paper that boosts the O. B. U. — The Western Labor News."

On the right hand side of the circle is the following label:

"The Russian Soviet system was worked out from the blue print from which this reproduction was made. The Western Labor News has, it is believed the only copy on the American continent. It will pay you to vote for the O.B.U. and to boost the Western Labor News."

Local legal authorities hold that this would be proof positive in any court that the One Big Union promoters are Bolshevik soviet promoters. The phrase "vote for it" is regarded as camouflage, inasmuch as all the Red propaganda literature in the hands of the federal authorities clearly discloses that force is advocated in the turning out of the present government elected by democratic methods.

But this is not all. Calgary representatives of the federal government are hunting down some definite clews that money has been used from certain outside sources for the promotion of the Red-Revolution movement in the west. Information obtained on this point up to date cannot be disclosed for obvious reasons. There are some facts however that can be dealt with, inasmuch as they have recently had publicity in the New York newspapers.

About six months ago, a person giving his name as C. E. Martens, appeared in New York city and endeavored to open communications with the United States department of state at Washington, D.C. This man forwarded to the department of state copies of what purported to be signed authority from Nikolai Lenine stating that Martens was the authorized agent of the Russian Soviet government in the United States. The department of state acknowledged the receipt of the letter, but declined to have any conversations with the man. Martens, however, proceeded to open up a big suite of magnificently furnished offices in a New York skyscraper, and gave out interviews to New York papers stating that the primary object of his arrival was to reopen commercial intercourse between the United States and Russia. He stated that he had a credit of $20,000,000 from the Soviet government with which to enter into contracts with United States manufacurers and exporters. He further mailed a notice to Boris Bahkmeteff, the Russian ambassador at Washington, who has continued to occupy the Russian embassy buildings in that city ever since the overthrow of the czaristic regime, through the Kerensky period and down to the present time, calling on Bahkmeteff to vacate the embassy. Of course the Russian ambassador took no notice of this.

Martens, however, has remained continuously in New York city, and has employed a considerable staff of stenographers and clerks. Whether his boast that he had a credit of $20,000,000 or not is true the fact remains that his Bolsheviki emissary was well supplied with funds, and has, undoubtedly been carrying on an active propaganda.

Under these circumstances, to say that the Canadian authorities have a lively suspicion that some of this money has been coming to into Canada is putting it mildly, to say the least. Moreover, only last week the secret service department of the United States government announced that a wallet had been found on the street belonging to a man well known to the federal authorities in that country as a conscientious objector, agitators and a red propagandist. The wallet contained a document bearing the signature of Nicolai Lenine, and appointing this man as an agent on a "secret mission" which was not stated.

In view of such happenings the federal authorities consider that it would be the utmost folly to fail to connect up this inflow of Bolshevik funds into the republic to the south with the red propaganda under way throughout western Canada. However, they are not disclosing all the facts at hand, but the man-hunt which is beginning is well justified. It is expected that when arrests are made, facts will be disclosed which will startle the people of Canada.

Among other documents which the federal authorities have in their records is a complete report of all the proceedings of the One Big Union convention in this city. When some of the promoters of this propaganda who displayed more zeal than discretion in their utterances at this gathering are called on to explain them they may not be quite so enthusiastic.

Some of the methods by which the One Big Union promoters have been working are of especial interest. For instance, last Friday night there was held in Paget hall what purported to be a meeting of the Great War Veterans, addressed by sympathizers of the sympathetic strike. As a matter of fact out of the thousands of returned soldiers in Calgary there were some 150 men at this meeting. Among the speakers who addressed them was one W. Lovett, appearing as a simple bricklayer from Winnipeg. Now, the central strike committee in Calgary has always warmly disavowed that the sympathetic strike is not in the least connected with the One Big Union movement, in fact, that the One Big Union promoters really were opposed to it because it was a trades union movement.

Yet the records of the federal authorities disclose that this man Lovatt is a One Big Union delegate from Winnipeg and one of the most active members in the One Big Union conference recently brought to a close in Calgary. Lovatt, at this meeting in Paget hall ,gave his own version of what brought about the strike in Winnipeg but very cleverly kept quiet about his own connection with the One Big Union propaganda. Also, at the meeting in St. George's Island last Sunday for sympathetic strikers one of the chief speakers was W. A. Pritchard, chairman of the One Big Union conference in Calgary. Another one was Joe Knight, One Big Union promoter, from Edmonton.

The Soviet principles adopted by the One Big Union promoters are well illustrated by the methods employed at the conference in this city. Ostensibly, the conference was a democratic gathering, open to all, including the press. Actually, the real business of the session was transacted by the so-called executive and so far from the press being admitted, not even delegates other than those on the executive were permitted inside the star chamber sessions.

Although there were to be twenty-five members of the executive from the various provinces, and five from the central organization, thirty in all, as a matter of fact, records of the federal authorities show there were exactly nineteen men who attended these secret sessions and really ran the show. This is quite in accordance with the Soviet doctrines employed in Petrograd and Moscow, where the Central Committee runs the works.

For instance, in the report of the meeting of the executive committee of the Moscow Soviet, Oct. 18, 1918, printed on the following day in the Izvestia, occurs the following:

"The report of the work of the All-Russian Extraordinary Commission was read at a secret session of the executive committee. But the report and the discussion of it were held behind closed doors and will not be published."

This "extraordinary commission" was the one which arrested 6220 persons and shot 800 of them in a few months.

PRESS CENSORSHIP

The action of the Vancouver typographical workers in censoring news was bound to meet with speedy defeat. Had the question been submitted to the International Typographical Union that body would at once have put the quietus on such a movement. Seemingly there is but a poor conception of the law of the land relating to the freedom of the press. Boiled down to plain English this law is that the nation is acknowledged as the supreme judge and is permitted to listen to what councillors it pleases, although to safeguard law and authority treason cannot be preached through the press. The censorship of newspapers, except as a war measure, has been abolished in British lands since 1695.

What happened in Vancouver is, however, of interest because it serves to emphasize what we said before, in that in this strike which is upon the Canadian West the principle of liberty is at stake. There have been numerous illustrations of this. The Winnipeg strike leaders have attempted to dictate what the people shall eat and drink, and how much. This step arouses public opinion. It is most regrettable that Vancouver should be trying to follow suit in any particular. Happily the labor leaders have retreated from their position in attempting to censor the press. The public are very jealous of certain liberties which have been won through the centuries and one of these is the right to be their own judge of what they read.—Colonist.

THE CHEERFUL MOTORIST

I crawl beneath my balky car with fifty kinds of wrenches and tinker where its vitals are 'mid gas and grease and stenches. When done I am a sight to see, a sight for sore-eyed dragons, and passing horses shy at me, run off and bust their wagons. I skid into a muddy ditch, and hail some passing granger, to bring his mules along and hitch, and haul me out of danger. I wallow round in squashy mire, cold rain upon me drizzling, removing from the wheel a tire, and use language sizzling. Sometimes the lamps won't shed a ghost of their accustomed splendor, and then I run into a post and break a costly fender. A farmer stops me now and then and asks me in his dander, to pay for running down his hen, his sheep dog or his gander. O'er arid hills I jaunt along, through meadows cool and ferny, and something's always going wrong, whenever I may journey. But when I motor home again, from my adventures shocking, and mingle with familiar men, you ought to hear me talking! "I had the finest time," I yip, while truth grows vague and hazy; "no accident on all the trip—my car is sure a daisy."—Walt Mason.

A very enjoyable gathering took place in the club rooms at the miners hall on Saturday evenинng last, when the firebosses annd friends of Tom Tully assembled to present a token of esteem to him on his departure for the Old Country. Dick Phillips as chairman and Secretary Matt Turnbull conducted the gatherning. Frank Brindley as sec. pro tem of Gladstone local, spoke of the strike situation and the at-one-ment of the firebosses and Gladstone local and on behalf of the members of Gladstone local wished the parting brother bon voyage. The fanmen were creditably represented by Brothers Riley and Savidge, who spoke feelingly and expressed the good wishes of the fanmen towards Brother Tully. Chairman Phillips spoke on the Federation of Labor. Brother Rutledge spoke of the good feeling between the firebosses and dealt with the present labor unrest. The Fernie G.W.V.A. was ably represented and we learned that the local G. W. V. A. were in full accord with the legitimate aims of properly constituted labor organizations. The Poultry association was ably represennted by one of their number. Liquid refreshments were dispensed at intervals by willing hands. The G.W.V.A. concert party with songs and part pieces liberally contributed towards a good amusement.

AMBITION

Can anybody tell us the source of this utterly human document?

"I was figuring on starting some kind of a business, but most every business is already engaged in more than's necessary; and then I ain't got no business ability. What I want is something that don't call for no kind of ability whatsoever and no kind of exertion to speak of, and ain't out of town, and pays good, and has a future."

We print it here as a contribution to the study of certain aspects of Bolshevism which are quite ignored by our more intensely serious contemporaries. Whoever wrote it could give amateur sociologists inside information on human nature, which is very much needed just now. — Collier's.

LONDON RAGES OVER LOW CUT EVENING DRESS

People are making a great outcry in London concerning the sleeveless backless, and almost frontless condition that prevails in the matter of evening gowns this season. Of course it is really quite shocking when one sees the almost startling nudity at theatres, dinners, operas and balls. As a matter of fact, however, it is also a little difficult to understand why English people above all others should specially protest in this matter, for the matter of the obligatory decollete is one that is laid down among the "laws" governing presentation at court.

In the Victorian days, ladies from Queen Victoria downwards wore the most frankly bared necks, shoulders and arms. It was considered de rigueur. Queen Alexandra, with her beautiful slim figure and slender arms could always appear absolutely correct in gowns that on more expansively constructed female figures were just a little trying. Oddly enough the present Queen, although extremely averse from anything in the way of short or tight skirts, has no hesitation in displaying her splendid shoulders and bust after the extensive fashion considered proper according to court regulations. No lady, unless she had some special dispensation owing to ill health or some extreme physical cause, has ever been allowed to be presented at the court of St. James with arms or neck covered or even veiled. Under these circumstances one wonders why there should be so much violent outcry against the prevailing mode of decollete gowns. It is a nice point that gives some slight indication of the changes that are taking place.

NO ROOM FOR DOUBT

If anyone doubts the need of Canadians continuing to save as they did while the Huns were hammering at the gates of Amiens, let him look at the estimates recently submitted to parliament.

They provided for an estimated expenditure of $800,000,000 during 1919-20. Of this $437,000,000 is on civil and $350,000,000 on war acacount. At best not more than $350,000,000 of this could be raised by taxation.

The rest must come chiefly through borrowing from the people of Canada. This explains why War Savings and Thrift Stamps have been introduced, and, incidentally, they enable every person earning money to invest it in a government security that pays well.

THE LENINE GOVERNMENT

David R. Francis, American Ambassador to Russia, was one of the chief witnesses before the United States Senate committee that investigated Bolshevism in February and March, 1919. The passages here presented are from the official proofsheets of his exhaustive study of the subject. Mr. Francis' personal estimate of Lenine and Trotzky, as stated in the Senate inquiry, is as follows:

I think that Lenine was a German agent from the beginning. They would never have permitted him to come through Germany if they had not thought or known they could use him. He disbursed money very liberally. Lenine, however, was not so opposed to Germany as he was in favor of promoting a world-wide social revolution. I wired the department that I thought that was his object in the beginning. He would have taken British money, American money, and French money and used it to promote this objective of his. He told a man who asked what he was doing in Russia that he was trying an experiment in government on the Russian people. He is a sincere man, with sincere convictions, I think. I do not think he is right by a good deal, because later, when his power was tottering and could not be maintained in any other way, he encouraged or permitted the reign of terror that is now prevaling in Russia.

Lenine is the brains of this whole movement. He has a great intellect. He is a fanatic and Ithink has sincere convictions.

I could not say the same about Trotzky. I think Trotzky is an adventurer. He has great ability. He has more executive ability than Lenine, but when they have differed Lenine has always been able to dominate Trotzky.

There is as much difference between the Bolshevist revolution and the provisional government as there was between the provisional government and the Imperial government. * * * They suppress all newspapers that oppose their views. * * * I know that any newspaper that had a criticism of the Bolshevist government, or the Soviet government,, was suppressed immediately after its publication of the criticism. * * * They are there as usurpers. I do not think they represent more than 10 per cent of the Russians of the whole 180,000,000.

They always hoped to have the recognition of our government, and I thought that our government could not recognize them, and so stated to our government. I have been consistent in that all along, and persistent. I thought that they were against our government as well as against all organized governments; that their decrees concerning women, marriage, and divorce, and their land decrees, confiscating all lands and all industries whatever, meant the breaking up of the family and a return to barbarism, and Ithink so now. They do not merit recognition. They do not even merit business relations, because of their prejudices. They have instituted a reign of terror. They are killing everybody who wears a white collar or who is educated and who is not a Bolshevik.

Referring to one execution of which he had knowledge, the Ambassador said:

There was no trial whatever, and no charges preferred. * * * That was the case in Petrograd. They called No. 2 Garoki, via the morgue. When a man was sent there he bade farewell to hope. A man who had recently been in Moscow stated that he saw human blood flowing out under the gate of the inclosure there, where they had been shooting men charged with counter-revolutionary sentiments. They did not hesitate about shooting people. When the cholera was prevalent in Petrograd, as it was last August and September, Zenoviev, who was then Chief Commissary of the Soivet, made a speech in which he charged the bourgeoisie with being responsible for the cholera, and he said: "If any Red Guard thinks that a physician is not doing his duty, he will shoot him on the spot." That was giving license to the Red Guards to shoot down physicians whenever they saw fit. Oh, it is a disgrace to civilization—not only irreparable injury to Russia, but a disgrace to civilization! * * * It is worse than an anarchist government, because anarchists believe only in destroying property, as I understand it, while these people believe in destroying human life as well as property. Lenine, and Trotzky, and Radik, and Tchitcherin, and Zenoviev realize that they have to kill people in order to maintain themselves. The bourgeoisie of that country and the intelligentsia are all cowed. They have no arms. * * * They (the Bolsheviki) went through the houses and took the arms and everything of value, and I have heard of their breaking mirrors and sticking bayonets through works of art.

Regarding German influence in Russia, Mr. Francis said:

I think Germany has had more control of the industries of Russia since the beginning of the war than she had before, although they have nominally arrested a great many of the officials and interned them. That was done under the Imperial government, and it was pursued under the Provisional government; but the German influence is now in every line of human endeavor. They not only own two or three banks in Petrograd, and as many in Moscow, but, as I stated this morning, they control the manufacture of glass, the manufacture of chemicals, and the sugar interest, and various other industries.

The Germans were buying up the stocks of the banks and I understood from what I considered reliabale authority that the Germans had petitioned the Soviet Government to postpone the denationalizing of the banks in order to enable them to buy up more shares of stock.

Germany has been exploiting Russia for thirty or forty years, and if this Bolshevist Government is left in control, if disorder prevails in Russia, peace will be impossible in Europe. I think Germany will exploit Russia if the disorder is allowed to continue there; so that Germany, instead of having been defeated in this war, will have gained a victory, and will be stronger ten years from now than she was at the beginning of the war.

Asked if the Lenine-Trotzky Government ever stated to him that they wanted to get into the war to aid the United States and her allies against the Central Powers, the Ambassador replied:

They never stated it to me. I extended every encouragement I could to them to present an organized front in order to prevent the German divisions that had been on the eastern front from being sent over to the western front, and I told Robins to say to them that I would recommend a modus vivendi if they would organize an opposition. They put to him a number of questions, which he transmitted through the War Department code, asking what America and the Allies would do; but they invariably accompanied that by a statement that the great social revolution should not be interfered with.

Colonel Robins stated it to me in this way, that he thought if we recognized them they would present an organized opposition to Germany. I said, "If you will have them make that promise to me, I do not know that I will recommend recognition, but I will recommend the establishment of business relations or a modus vivendi with them." But I always believed that Lenine and Trotzky were German agents, and consequently I would not have trusted them at any time. I would not have believed them. (Their failure to oppose Germany, said the Ambassador subsequently, confirmed his suspicions.)

They declared an armistice, without consulting any of the Allies. I think that if Russia had stood up to her obligations the war would have been ended a year before it was ended, and millions of lives could have been saved. Russia lost more men in the war than any other country, although she quit the war a year before it ended. I think she lost at least 2,000,000 men, and there were thousands of Russians imprisoned in German and Austrian prison camps when I arrived at Petrograd in April of 1916.

They treated us (the Americans) better than they treated the British or the French, because they were always hoping for and expecting recognition by our government; but they declared themselves against all organized governments, and they called our government a capitalistic government, and said that it was oppressing the working classes.

I regard it (the Bolshevist government) as a menace to the peace of Europe and a menace to the peace of the world. That is my judgment, derived from two years and 8 months' residence in Russia.

Sir George Buchanan, who was Ambassador at Petrograd during the war, delivered in London on March 25, 1919, an address entitled "Russia and Great Britain, Their Relations Under the Empire, the Provisional Government and the Bolsheviki." The portion dealing with the Soviet Government may be summarized as follows:

Lenine, Sir George said, was a fanatic who had treated Russia as a pawn in his game and had used her as a stepping stone to the realization of his dream of a socialistic millenium and of a universal communistic state. He had been the directing brain of the movement, while Trotzky and the other Commissaries were but its executive officers. Lenine had taken money from Germany and accepted the assistance of German agents to organize his forces, but he had done that for a set purpose, and was not, like many of his followers, a paid German agent.

Sir George spoke of the murder of members of the imperial family, a crime which he could neither palliate nor condone. The Emperor was far from being a bloodthirsty tyrant, as his executioners represented him, and under his rule Russia was a happier and more prosperous country than it would ever be under the merciless tyranny of the present de facto government. Nor did he or the Empress ever contemplate the betrayal of their country or of the allied cause, and their murders could not be justified on that account. Had such crimes as those of which the Bolsheviki had been guilty been committed under the empire a storm of indignation would have swept through Great Britain; but now, even when innocent children like the little Grand Duchesses had been murdered in cold blood, hardly a voice was raised in condemnation of the crime, while in certain qu rters one found a latent sympathy with their murderers.

Russia had for the time being ceased to exist as a political entity. Her voice no longer carried weight in the council chambers of Europe. She was indeed a tr gic and pathetiic figure. During the first two years of the war she spent herself in an effort that exhausted her, and she had not the strength to endure to the end. Had she not made that stand Fr nce would have been crushed before we could have come to her assistance. Germany might have won the war. We should, therefore, remember that, though Russia did not share in our triumph, though the Russian flag with its blood-stained laurels no longer floated side by side with the standards of her allies, Russia had none the less contributed her share to our final victory.

Was it not then our duty to acquit the debt of honor which we owed her? Was it not right that we should try to save her suffering people from the remorseless tyranny under which they were groaning? If we were to be consistent, if we were not to draw a fine distinction between German autocratic militarism and Bolshevist autocratic terrorism, we could not leave Russia to her fate. Lenine, like the German Emperor, aimed at world domination, and openly reigned supreme. Before the conclusion of the armistice Lenine predicted that the Allies would impose such humiliating terms on Germany that the latter would turn Bolshevist, and he expressed the confident hope that the combined forces of Russia and Germany would then be able to continue the struggle against the Allies long enough to provoke revolutionary risings in their countries. He realized that Bolshevism, if confined to Russia, was doomed. He was, therefore, making tremendous efforts to turn Central Europe into one great Bolshevist camp, and he had, it would appear, already succeeded in winning over Hungary to his side.

To prevent the spread of the Bolshevist poison, Sir George Buchanan said it had been proposed to draw a sanitary cordon round Russia and to isolate her completely. He personally believed that such a policy would in the end cost us more, and be less effective, than were we to strike boldly at the heart of the disease and eradicate the cancer that was sapping Russia's vital energies. Though we could not employ conscripted troops for that purpose, volunteers for service in Russia might be forthcoming when the men who had been demobilized had had a few months' rest at home. One could never, as had been suggested, hope to save Russia by economic relief alone. Military assistance and eceonomic relief must go hand in hand if we were to help the Russians to free themselves from Bolshevist tyranny. The task was not gigantic as was generally supposed, for the capture of Moscow and Petrograd would suffice to sound the death knell of Bolshevism as a political force. The other alternative open to us, that of withdrawing our troops and leaving Russia to work out her own salvation, would leave an indelible stain on the British name, for it would be tantamount to delivering over to certain death those who, in answer to our summons, had rallied round our flag, while it would inevitably throw Russia sooner or later into the arms of Germany.

There would be no permanent peace in the world if we ever allowed Germany to control Russia's vast man power and untold natural wealth. Lenine was not only inciting fellow-subjects in India to revolt, but was turning his attention to China, in the hope of drawing recruits to maintain himself in power. To leave him time to do so would be a suicidal policy.

The Russian problem was the dominating factor in the European situation, and our interest and our honor both demanded that we should face it with courage and determination. To shrink from doing so was a confession of impotence that would render vain all our sacrifices in the war. God grant that at some no distant time a new, free and united Russia might once more stretch out the hand of friendship to us and march by our side along the road of peace, progress and enlightenment.

FROM WAR TO WORK

The greatest deed of kindness ever done to Germany was the stroke of the Allied pen which reduced her army from a potential military force of 10,000,000 to a permanent police force of 100,000.

For thereby have the German people been turned from war to work. They cannot any longer war; but they can work—they must work — and they will. Patriotism and commonsense point that way. Your German is nothing if not practical; and whatever may be wrong with his pyschology, he can never shut his eyes to the fact that, at the present moment, the obvious thing for him to do is to go to work; set the wheels of his wonderfully efficient industrial machine in motion; and apply himself with dogged determination to the task of getting his country back upon its feet.

Nor is the task so hopeless as Scheidemann and his coadjutors would have us believe.

In the first place, the terms imposed on Germany are far less onerous than a Germany triumphant would have laid upon the Allies; and no one knows this so well as the Germans themselves. For despite their railing against President Wilson, they are well aware that his influence has won for them an easier expiation than they would have been called upon to work out, if the fourteen points had never been set forth.

Moreover, Germany will go to work rid of the crushing weight of her naval and military burdens. Pre-war statistics show that in money alone this represented the huge sum of $400,000,000 annually — which was exceeded, no doubt, in the loss of revenue, due to the diversion of many millions of her people from industry and commerce.

The return of these hosts of German workmen to the factory and the farm, and to transportation on land and sea will represent a great addition to the wealth of the country; and the resulting revenues, when added to the clear gain of $400,000,000 due to military retrenchment, should easily represent an annual addition of a billion dollars to the assets of the nation. A further increment of wealth will be due to the reconstruction of her vast armament works for the production of articles of trade and commerce.

Germany will go to work, not merely in the material but, also in the moral ethical world, where, if anything, she has even more serious leeway to make up. She must win her way back to the confidence of the world that she has so greatly betrayed—for it is inconceivable that she will be content to remain forever a Pariah among the peoples of the earth. And there is no surer road by which to return than that broad international highway which is builded of honor, consideration and mutual good faith.

Some few men of note there are in Germany who clearly realize these truths in all their naked simplicity; and to their honor be it said that, in the midst of all the present rhodomontade over the so-called brutality and betrayal of the peace treaties, they have not hesitated to say to the German people "Be quiet, and go to work."—Scientific American.

GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says: Be it ever so homely there is no face like your own. It's what you put behind it, not on it, that will make it beautiful. The charm of your smile will swell your bank account of happiness. Wit is the sunshine of common sense. Wit magnetizes, just the same as good advertising. You know that it pays to advertise if you know how. Cultivate your wit but don't stop advertising.

Attention Great War Veterans — The Alien Labor Menace. An Englishman some years ago bought a fruit tract on the South Fork of the Elk river four miles from Elko, came here with several thousand dollars, and worked hard to support his family of nine children. For several years they have been trying to get a school, and failing to get one he moved his family into Elkó so his children could go to school and he has five attending school. He accepted a job on the Great Northern section and worked under an Americanized Italian foreman, with four chinks and Bohunks, not a taxpayer in the bunch. The Fernie strike came along and the union miners came like a flock of sheep to grab anything they could get from the lumberjack or railroader, and the taxpaying Englishman was fired to make room for a striking miner, and they call this a White B.C. How long are the British going to stand for this kind of work?

Jim Thistlebeak says that he has always approved that the high cost of living was well worth the price. But what's bothering him most is the high cost of the Oliver taxation.

Among the visitors to Elko this week we noticed Capt. D. C. Robertson of Calgary, bubbling over with the milk of human kindness and selling household urgents. A big delegation of Fernie's merchant princes and financiers, who said that although the miners were all out on strike that the copper kettle trade was particularly good but if it kept on raining that umbrellas would still go up. J. P. Lowe, the greatest booster for the Dominion Express Co. in B. C. His friends call him Jack and he will make you believe it's cheaper to ship by express than freight and get away with it. Next to the sunlight of heaven is a cheerful face; it's a great winner. A. Shellard, G. W. Vet from Blairmore Sanitarium, the guest of Will Duncan of the Elk hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Everett of Spokane have moved to Elko this week. Mayor W. R. Fulton and wife of Drumheller, accompanied by D. A. Macaulay, Supt. of Newcastle and A.B.C. mines, the guests of the Jewell Lumber Co., with their big touring car and on Sunday visited the Elko canyon, Roosville Falls and Eureka, returning through Flagstone, Waldo and Baynes. Mrs. Fulton, who is a much traveled lady, say they have nothing within 100 miles of Banff to compare with the beauties of the Old Historic Burg of Elko. D. Telfer of Vancouver with a brand of cigars equal to those grown on Tobacco Plains. A gum traveller from Aberdeen. Jim Thistlebeak offered to bet him five dollars he couldn't look a Jew in the face without taking out his watch; had a tale of woe that would melt the heart of a coke oven, looked about 30 years old and not much of anyhting else, and as a salesman as weak as an oyster stew at a church fair. A manufacturer's agent who said he carried everything from a 12 inch rule to a pearl necklace, courtplaster and sausage with garlic flavoring, a regular Wiseheimer, whose patter would drive a respectable Billy Goat into nervous prostration. Still we don't blame him any more than a monkey for stealing peanuts. Jim Bates, shoe traveller of Vancouver, well and favorably known along the Crow.

It's so dry in Elko that Constable Gorman won't let the carpenters use a spirit level. Yet he's guaranteed tourists visiting Elko a healthy body, peace of mind, and restful sleep, which will no doubt help those suffering with the pip.

And now the papers are full of Peace, Perfect Peace. The Prince of Peace. "Note the Word." The celebration of Peace, and we have strikes all over Canada, unrest all over Europe. Grave disorders in Italy, Spain, Austria and Germany, and lest we forget, Mexico. Forty-four citizens of the United States killed last week and still Wilson of the Woodrow lingers in Paris, where his room would be mighty good company. Bolshevism getting it where the hen and the little brown rooster got the hatchet. Looks like peace, doesn't it. Like Hades.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The usual strike conditions still exist around this burg. The opening of the brewery, however, has taken off a little agony.

One was reminded of the old time sport days here on Sunday, automobiles and every mode of conveyance being used to carry the people from Michel and Fernie, who assembled at Victoria Park to boost for their favorite team. While we have no desire discredit any one individual a little judicious thinking would have placed a better team on the field. However, in spite of unforeseen circumstances our lads gave a good exhibition but the visitors were the better team and ran out winners by 2 goals to 1.

We learn of some traitor being around trying to bribe some of our players to sell the game. Our deepest condemnation is hereby given.

Frank Nee annd Jimmy Hall arrived back on Tuesday evening. It is over four years since these boys went away and our hearty welcome is assured them.

Our residents who journeyed to town, in spite of having to walk back, gave excellent reports of "The Better Hole" picture shown at the Grand.

Some evil disposed person stole the championship medal won by our local Jess Willard. The challenge now issued is that if the person who appropriated the honor will meet the champion in a six round contest he can keep the trophy.

Some of our old timers got a surprise on revisiting the camp when they had to pay on the train.

The loss of the evening train is being keenly felt by the residents.

Quite a number have signified their intention of going to Michel with the football team on Sunday next.

Mrs. Boardman and family leave here for their residence in Fernie on Saturday.

The names of Sgt. Tom Birkett and Pte. Joe Graham are posted as having left Halifax on June 6. Latest details say that they are expected to arrive in Fernie from Revelstoke on Monday evening.

Owing to a burst in the water system here the residents of Riverside Avenue were up against it on Wednesday.

Spies are everywhere. We warn our residents to look out for one who on behalf of the strike committee is worming himself into various gatherings and repeating information gathered. Returned men especially beware. Such despicable methods savor fully of Bolshevism.

While we hear so much of the returned soldiers seeking work on the government road on their return, owing to not being able to get work through the strike, what is said of the man who came out on strike, taking the places of sectionmen, lumber camp and saw mill workers, etc., at less wage than they were getting at the mines?

SOMETHING BETTER

Advocates of the sympathetic strikes justify themselves by the claim that the issues involved are vital and can be decided in no other way. They do not deny that as a weapon the sympathetic strike is cruel and that in operation it brings suffering to those who are innocent of any connection with the trouble. In fact, it may be suspected that sympathetic strike advocates depend largely for success upon this tendency of their weapon. Direct suffering induces closer attention to its cause and alignment with the forces working for correction of the conditions responsible for it.

But the sympathetic strike is a two-edged weapon. When the suffering public pays attention it is quite likely to turn on those who thus endeavor to force consideration of their issue as it is to side with them. Should this be the result, which it frequently is, the object of the sympathetic strike is defeated and its advocates find themselves in worse position than before, having alienated public sympathy from their cause.

Is there no other way by means of which legitimate grievances and admitted wrongs of the workers may be relieved? The sympathetic strike is so crude a weapon, so undemocratic in principle and so unsatisfactory in its results that the wonder is either labor or the suffering public ever tolerate even a suggestion of it. The Herald believes there is a better way. It is a way that would be easy and pleasant under favorable conditions. Whether it is possible to create the favorable conditions is another matter.

Whether it likes it or not the general public is bound to be interested in the well or ill-being of the various so-called classes that make up the general public body. What affects one class in the community favorably or otherwise is bound to have a reflex action on all other classes. It follows, then, that the whole public body should be intelligently interested in the well being of every unit within it. Were it possible to create and maintain such an intelligent interest there would be no excuse for the sympathetic strike. Whenever a wrong appeared and whatever class it affected, it would be regarded as a danger to the whole public body and united action against it along legitimate lines would quickly work the remedy. That is community consciousness in operation and is something by no means impossible with us, far as we may have travelled along the wrong road.

Let the Citizens' Committee, recently formed to protect the public from suffering due to the sympathetic strike, be continued in office. It was organized for a community service of special nature, It should be maintained for an even better regular service to the community body. If labor or any other class in the community has a trouble or grievance which calls for action on the part of the whole community, let it be considered by the Citizens' Committee, and the whole community thus be brought into intelligent apreciation of the affair and active co-operation in enforcing the remedy.

Such a program would surely be more satisfactory than the sympathetic strike. It needs but careful consideration to commend it to thinking minds. It would be absolutely within the law and its decisions, being the clear majority voice of the community, would carry a weight that no sympathetic strike could ever hope to bring upon both individuals and governments.—Calgary Herald.

BASEBALL

Wednesday afternoon before a fair sized crowd Fernie defeated Michel in the return game between these two teams. The weather was all that could be desired. Fernie took the lead in the last half of the first and steadily increased it up to the first of the eighth, when the score stood Fernie 9, Michel 2. The eighth began by Dunlap striking out the first two men up, then walked a couple, allowed a couple of hits and coupled with a number of bad errors before the dust cleared away five Michel players had crossed the plate. Michel's big chance came in this innings as the bases were full with two down but the best the batter could do was to pop a little fly which was easily grabbed. Fernie got one more in the last of the eighth and Michel was held scoreless in the first of the ninth.

SUPREME COURT SITTINGS

LAWSON MUST APOLOGIZE, PAY $250 DAMAGES AND ALL COSTS. CHRISTOPHERS ALSO LOSES CASE

The regular sittings of the Supreme Court opened in Fernie on Friday last with His Lordship Mr. Justice Macdonald on the bench.

The Grand Jury, which consisted of the following gentlemen, R. M. Young, Francis White. C. Staples, Col. Messiter, C. McNabb, J. McCool, R. Hirtz, J. Leask, A. Doyle, Fred Burgess and T. Beck, brought in a true bill in the Rex vs. Arden case and the case went to trial. The trial lasted until Monday evening, when the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty, acquitting Dominion Constable Arden of the charge of receiving money from war prisoners while in the discharge of his duties.

The court sittings were resumed on Tuesday morning, the first case on the civil docket being that of P. Christophers vs. J. R. Wallace. This was an action for $5000 damages for alleged slander arising out of a conversation which the defendant had with W. Robson and O. Erickson. W. Robson on being sworn stated that Wallace in a conversation with him stated that "Christophers was a crook and that at one time he had taken money from J. H. Tonkin in settlement of a dispute between the miners and the company in 1903. Cross-examined by Mr. Herchmer he admitted that he had belonged to the Conservative party in Hosmer before coming to Fernie, in the last election he had boosted for Fisher and was now out for the Labor party. He denied that he had tried to get a job as company representative with the Union. He made a poor appearance on the stand and was called down by the judge for trying to lie down on the box. Oscar Erickson stated that he had been present when the conversation between Robson and Wallace took place, and he practically substantiated Robson's evidence. J. R. Wallace for the defence stated that the statements as contained in the writ were untrue. He admitted having a conversation with Robson relative to Christophers. It was after the District election in February. He was in Harper's getting the election returns and expressed his surprise that Christophers could have been elected by such a large majority in view of the fact that he was in bad with the miners here over the 1903 strike settlement. Questioned as to what he meant by that, he stated that the plaintiff was president of this district in 1903 when a strike took place. The men had been out seven weeks and had gone back for less than they came out. He produced a copy of an article published in the Nelson News of April 7, 1903, which bore out his statement. Following is the clipping:

Editor the Daily News: You are no doubt aware and also your readers, that the strike of the C. N. P. C. Company's employees is at an end; but we wish to state that it was not settled in accordance with the wishes of the men. The assent of the Fernie miners was not and never will be given. We were led into the trap so far that it was impossible to get out. Why should the ballot on the first offer of the management be re-considered again and again unless it was for the purpose of forcing the men back to work. Why should George Dougherty, the representative of the W.F.M. in Fernie, allow the minority of the district union to rule the majority and then take upon himself the authority to call off the strike? Although the total vote of the three camps makes a majority of 56 in favor of accepting the terms of the management still, paradoxical tho it may appear, it does not represent the feeling of the men, for not half of them were present at the meetings when the ballot was taken. Most of the men now recognize that the pill has been pushed so far down their throats that there is nothing to do but swallow it. They are dissatisfied with the W. F. M. and believe it to exist only for quartz miners and not for coal diggers. It is quite true that our delegates to the district union were instructed to sign up the agreement because the strike was already called off and the schedule would have been in force whether we signed it or not. Before we had been on strike seven weeks, before we had even been deprived of one meal or applied for any outside relief at all, the strike was settled by trickery. We were beaten but not in a fair fight and wish all throughout the west to know of this and also of the damnable conditions existing at Fernie.

Most of the men here talk of affiliating with the United Mine Workers believing no benefits are to be derived from a W.F.M. charter. It is no use trying to deceive ourselves at all. We have not gained the complete recognition of the union; we have lost 5 cents per ton in No. 1 and No. 2 mines at Fernie, 10c per ton on No. 3, and where all received $2.50 per yard we now get $1. Besides this there are other substantial losses to the men on timber, tracklaying, etc., and all must go back to work with scabs.

It is true that a few Company men have secured a raise in their wages, Michel especially making a substantial gain, but on the whole the raise does not equal the deductions and we go back to work on the same old system, nine hours underground, and worse off in pay because of the strike.

Press Committee,
Gladstone Local Union, No. 76.

Lawson also took the stand to corroborate the evidence of Robson and Christophers. He stated that he had heard Wallace make the statement that Christophers was in a shady transaction at Morrissey some years ago. He had also heard Dave Reese make the same suggestion. Cross-examined he admitted that Reese held a big position in the ranks of organized labor.

Following is the charge of Justice Macdonald to the jury:

Gentlemen of the Jury—The plaintiff seeks to recover damages from the defendant, alleging in his statement of claim that on or about the 26th of February of this year the defendant falsely and maliciously defamed him by making certain statements to one William Robson and at the same time making also certain statements to one Oscar Erickson. It is quite evident there is a mistake in the information which was supplied on which the statement of claim was drawn, as it appears now this conversation, whatever it was, was on the 3rd of March, 1919.

This is commonly called an action of slander. As you are doubtless aware there are two modes upon which a person may have character attacked; that is a written statement, termed libel, and a verbal statement determined slander. I do not propose to discuss the details of the difference between these two positions. Suffice for me to point out that the major one is one accused of libel. You quite readily understand something written is of more moment and has greater effect than words spoken, perhaps without consideration. At any rate with respect to libel there is also this as distinguished from slander, that is a person attributing published ridicule then the party thus acting is liable for damages and criminally but that does not apply in the case of words spoken.

Now in this case it is admitted by counsel for the defence that if the words alleged in the statement of claim were spoken that the defendant would be liable for damages. The point has not been taken that anything that may have been said according to the evidence of Robson and Erickson had relation to a transaction in 1903 and did not relate to the present position held by the plaintiff. In fact, as I understand, at that time the plaintiff was connected with a different union to the one which he now has the honor to represent as president. So now then gentlemen, we have to consider what the words spoken were. . Ithink I can only assist you by pointing out that you have to judge the surrounding circumstances. Apparently as far as the evidence goes there is no antipathy or feeling between the plaintiff and the defendant except such as has arisen through this action. The defendant states except for the fact he knew the plaintiff in his official position as connected with the union that he was not personally acquainted, but apparently there is a war

ROD AND GUN CLUB

A meeting of the Fernie District Rod and Gun Club was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening, when Frank A. Dunne, a member of the Conservation Board for the Province, was present, and discussed the Game Regulations. A number of changes were suggested by the members and Mr. Dunn promised to place the desired alterations before the Game Conservation Board at their meeting in July, when the regulations for the season will be fixed.

A considerable amount of discussion took place regarding the protection of fish and game in the district and both Mr. Dunn and Deputy Inspector Owen of the Provincial Police supplied the members with a lot of useful information.

The meeting decided to forward a resolution to Mr. Dunn for transmission to the Dominion Fishery Inspector regarding the establishment of a fish hatchery in East Kootenay, as the present hatchery at Gerrard is of practically no value to this district owing to its in accessibility.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., June 19, 1919.

Dear Editor—Will you kindly allow me a little space in your valuable paper to say a word in reference to the engineers wage scale, as appeared in your last issue under the heading of the city council meeting. I would like it to be known that Friend Smith came here as a member of the International Steam and Operating Engineers and took this job in the city power house while a local citizen and member of the same organization was turned down because he asked for Union wages, while Smith was $53 cheaper. Since then he has had an advance of $15 a month and is still getting less than the old union rate.

I understand that while any number of boilers are in one battery and while if not all being used, their aggregate horsepower is counted, and the engineer's class must be accordingly governed. The advantage of having the three was, I understand, to facilitate cleaning, as they are never all used together.

Now that the present labor trouble has demonstrated to the committee and public that continuous service is no longer necessary, why not blank off one boiler and make it a third class job and the committee would find lots of third class men (taxpayers) who would be pleased to take the job. The service could be supplied continuously or as desired, or say at the most one day per month dead as every day is now, and notice being previously given no inconvenience need be made. This would by the new schedule referred to make a saving of 20c an hour, for 256 hours, $51.20 per month. If blanking off did not fulfill all requirements, put the boiler on a flat car and invite tenders for its sale; probably the Coal Co. would buy it for Sparwood. Seeing that Friend Smith's name appears on the strike committee of the Gladstone Local, why don't the light committee pay him by the District Agreement rate as appeared in this paper a few weeks ago, the same as the men get who have to pay the taxes from which his wages come. A man sitting on a strike committee and working every day is a thing in my knowledge without precedent.

Trusting I have not trespassed on too much of your valuable space, and thanking you, I remain,

A. Taxpayer.

FOOTBALL NEWS

The International game last week was played under unfavorable circumstances, but nevertheless there was some excellent football. The Englishmen scored two goals in the first half but the mush eaters scored three in the second half. There will be a return game in the very near future and with plenty of good players to pick from a real game should be forthcoming.

In the League games Michel beat Coal Creek 7 to 1; Fernlea beat the Teamsters 4 to 0, and Michel beat the F.A.A.C. This latter game was played under ideal conditions and it was one of the best games of the season. The Vets traveled to Coal Creek on June 19, and Michel comes to Fernie to play the Vets on June 25. This will be a sizzler as the Vets are about the only team that can hold them down.

There will be a football competition on July 1, Dominion Day. Several teams have signified their intention of entering and some splendid games should be played on that date.

League standing to date—

COMMUNICATION

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—Being a newly returned man absent from Fernie and home for the past two years and eleven months, I naturally find things strange and somewhat different from what they used to be before going away. For instance, the sidewalks, prohibition and the coke ovens are some of the changes, and somehow the people seem different or maybe it is myself who sees things in a different light than formerly.

I have met many friends and acquaintances who have extended to me the glad hand saying how pleased they were at my return, and I can truthfully say that I appreciate to the full my return to Home Sweet Home.

Now it will be as well to state that my wife sent me the Fernie Free Press over to France or Belgium when there. Fairly often some of the papers reached me; others failed, and I can assure you they were welcomed as old friends and gave me the news so ardently desired by a man so far from home.

I remember reading an account of the Coal Creek miners kicking against paying to the Patriotic Fund and of course gave reasons for so doing. These are always easily made when a man dislikes to pay out for a cause he has no use for. I often wonder if any of those who extend to me the glad hand are of those who begrudged paying the trifle to help the wives and dependents of those men who were doing their bit for the freedom of the world. I can only say I have no use for either as a friend or an acquaintance to be trusted for any of these trickers. They are contemptible specimens of our common humanity, and mind you, I know and appreciate the generous hearts who have so abundantly given of their substance. These are numerous and reside all over the Fernie district and is strictly true of both men and women alike.

I have a shrewd suspicion that the present strike at Coal Creek has been engineered by those Patriotic Fund kickers. They are always out to find some small grievance and magnify it into something of tremendous importance. Well the strike follows and these shallow pated individuals sign their names as the Strike Committee, hold up the town, drive a large number of men out of town to fill other men's jobs all over the district, and discredit themselves and the union they belong to.

I can only say this state of things is deplorable and it is up to the miners themselves to end it. They are acting the goat and they know it. The longer the strike lasts the more misery and distress it will cause. And is the strike worth the price. Personally, I say No.

My name is with the Editor, so for the present I will sign myself as A Returned Soldier.

OPPOSED TO O.B.U.

That we stand unalterably opposed to the introduction of the doctrines of Bolshevism and anarchy in this country and we are not in accord with the underlying principles of the "One Big Union," which expressed itself as being in full accord with the Russian Bolsheviki, and the German Spartacan and whose principles seek by "massed action" of labor to enforce their power upon the majority of the people and has as one of its possible results the menacing of our institutions of government and the threat of their replacement by Soviet Rule.

2. We desire and will endeavor to ensure that all members of our association will, whenever occasions demand, lend active assistance in upholding constitutional authority, the laws of the country, and good order.

3. We recommend that a round table conference be held comprised of progressive representatives of labor, employers, farmers, returned soldiers, citizens and women, to consider a solution of the present ominous industrial situation.

4. We endorse the nine principles respecting labor as adopted by the Peace Conference.

5. We advocate progressive legislation as an antidote to unrest and suggest to that end that serious consideration be given the enactment of laws respecting the following subjects: (a) A minimum wage; (b) insurance against old age, illness and unemployment; (c) suitable housing for all; (d) reduction of the cost of living by the principle of co-operation limiting the operations of the so-called middlemen, regulations governing the holding of perishable products in cold storage plants and other wise as deemed possible; (e) strengthen restrictions upon immigration and naturalization; (f) suitable and equal opportunities for the children of both rich and poor, permitting them to attain the general and higher forms of education with government financial assistance, and scholarships, such education to include instruction in governmental problems and citizenship, and extended scope to attain greater agricultural and artisanship education and thus raise the dignity of labor to a proper level which would induce more Canadian people to engage in the pursuits of education and artisan labor; (g) to support the general principles of the voice of labor in industrial management as exemplified in the report of Witley Council of Great Britain; (h) proportional representation to more properly reflect the opinion of the country.

6. That we reiterate our plea that generous provision be made for the widows and orphans of those who have fallen in the present war and those totally disabled as result of service.

MOTOR RACES AT CALGARY EXHIBITION

Calgary, June 14.—Sanction for the championship automobile races, which will be held at the Calgary Exhibition, July 4 and 5, has been granted by the International Motor Contest Association, which governs and sanctions practically all of the big dirt track races in Canada and the United States. The I.M.C.A. has for the past three years sanctioned over fifty days of racing in Canada, and its record has never been blotted with a single fatal accident.

Manager E. L. Richardson has been in communication with the famous dirt track and speedway drivers, and from present indications it appears that the entry list for the Calgary races will contain the names of the most noted of the gas-hounds. Four thousand dollars is the amount of prize money for the two days of racing, with one fourth of that sum going to the winner of the long-distance race.

THE SYMPATHETIC STRIKE

Commenting on the decision of the Metal Trades Council in Toronto to advise sympathetic strikers to return to work, the Toronto Globe observes that it was the only judicious thing to do, as any further effort to widen the area of disturbance would be futile and could only react injuriously upon trades unionism.

The Toronto newspaper then adds this thoughtful comment on the sympathetic strike situation:

"A general strike in the real meaning of the term is impossible in a Canadian community. It would involve the suspension of public services which the community in self-defence would find means of keeping in operation. Even in Winnipeg the widespread sympathetic strike cannot attain the proportions of a general strike. Citizens have carried on essential public utilities when the servants of the municipality deserted their duties. In Toronto the device of a sympathetic strike was unwelcome to the great majority of wage-earners, many of whom answered the call against their will. The call was issued because trade unionists opposed to it were less aggressive in labor councils than the extremists.

"A sympathetic strike is indefensible in any circumstances. It is an attack on employers agaist whom workmen have no grievance. In many cases it involves the immorality of broken contracts, causing the strikers to lose self-respect, and employers to cease to have confidence in employees. It disturbs trade and industry and inflicts loss on persons who have had no part in the original dispute. Now that it has been abandoned in Toronto, the Metal Trades Council will be in a stronger position. Whatever the employers may think about the wages demands, they ought to recognize the council as a legitimate agent of the metal trades workers in collective bargaining. It has been so authorized by the executives of the great international trades unions, which are bulwarks against Bolshevism."

CHURCH UNION

Recent evidence of a desire for closer union between the Anglican and Presbyterian churches as voiced at the meeting of the Presbyterian synod in New Westminster last month by Bishop Douall, leads the Toronto Mail and Empire to comment upon this subject in the following terms:

"In 1888 the Lambeth Conference laid down four great principles as the basis for union. In the thirty years that have elapsed the growth of religious opinion has practically obliterated any differences that might have existed about three of the four basic principles of the famous quadrilateral, leaving only the question of the historic ministry or episcopate. The Presbyterian church holds practically the same view of the historic ministry as does the Anglican Church, except that it traces and maintains the link of historic continuity through its presbyters as Anglicans do through the episcopate. In fact, Presbyterians are not one whit behind Anglicans in the tenacity of their hold upon the historic ministry. The gulf between the two has grown so narrow, and the art of bridge-building has been so perfected by the war, that it should not be impossible in the near future to throw across the chasm a structure strong enough and broad enough to enable the Primate of the Anglican Church and the Moderator of the General Assembly to cross it arm in arm.

"Archbishop DuVernet, of Prince Rupert, has rectnly contributed to the Montreal Star an article on Church Union which is of great interest. He proposes a practical solution of the one great difficulty now existing between the Anglican and the Presbyterian systems. 'In the Presbyterian Church it is through the presbyters, while in the Anglican Church it is through the Bishops, that the link of historic continuity is maintained. Surely nothing could be easier than to have these two streams of historic continuity flow together, like the Ottawa and the St. Lawrence Rivers, by a system of joint ordinations.'

"The Archbishop proposes that Anglican bishops invite presbyters of with them 'in the laying on of the Presbyterian Church to unite hands,' in a reciprocal service. He says: 'The long-disputed question as to whether 'episcopos' and 'presbyteros' are terms designating the same office, or two distinct offices, will never be finally settled by an appeal to the history of the first century. The only solution lies in a mutual recognition.'

"The world is crying for the healing of its wounds and the Christian churches should be the first to make response. The spirit underlying the Archbishop's proposals is worthy of all praise and the proposals themselves worthy of serious consideration. A conference at this time would meet with the universal approbation and would be a great object lesson to the hostile factions in our social and political life."

SOUSAS'S BAND AT CALGARY

Probably no composer in the world today has a popularity equal to that of Lieut. John Philip Sousa. This is due to two factors—his marches are the recognized criterion in all parts of the civilized world, and his personality has endeared him to the people at large. He has been rightly called the "pulse of the nation." March tunes, though rated by some as not the highest form of art, have nevertheless a function peculiarly their own. Sousa's marches have founded a school and have revolutionized martial music, for they possess merit of distinct individuality as well as supreme architectural qualities. Moreover, they have additional value inherent in themselves—that of instilling courage into the soldiers and furnishing inspiration that will make them march into battle and face death gladly. Sousa has been able to express in these marches the entire scope of military psychology which no other composer has ever done, consequently every one must instinctively feel only gratitude to and homage for this remarkable man.

In his concerts at the Calgary Exhibition, June 28 to July 5, Sousa will give a program replete with classic and artistic gems, with many of his famous marches interspersed to arouse and enthuse the most undemonstrative dispositions.

Lieut. Sousa has engaged two vocal soloists for the forthcoming transcontinental tour of his world famed band. They are Miss Mary Stone, formerly a soprano with the Boston Opera Company and Miss Mary Baker, a coloratura soprano who has achieved distinction on the concert stage.

A number of important instrumental soloists have also been engaged to add diversity to the band programs. Louis P. Fritze, formerly a flute soloist with the Philadelphia orchestra, will occupy that position under Lieut. Sousa's direction. He has played flute obligatos with great success in concert for Mme. Galli-Curci and other famous operatic stars. Frank Simon, perhaps the foremost cornetist in America, and H. Benne Henton, widely known in musical circles as exceptionally talented saxaphone player, and Joseph Green, who has achieved a great deal of popularity as a xylophone player with one of the prominent phonograph companies, will also travel with the band as soloists.

RUSSIA AND THE FUTURE

It would be a wise prophet who could foretell what will happen in Germany in the course of the next month. By July 1 Germany will have to say yea or nay to the Peace treaty. She will endeavor to prolong the discussions, but events have grown too serious to permit of any further delay, if the evidence of the quickening up process noted at the Peace Conference is any criterion of the mood of the Allies and the United States. The German government has made no secret of the fact it will not permit its plenipotentaries to sign the treaty. That decision may be purely political, designed to convince the German people that its government did everything in its power to ameliorate the terms; but that government knows the only alternative to signing is an advance of the Allies beyond the Rhine, which means a renewal of the war. Faced with this possibility the German people may force the hands of their government, or else turn it out of office. The latter eventuality appears the more likely of the two, for any refusal to sign will not meet with general favor while the Germans are in their present frame of mind. Despite the utterances of their leaders they are thoroughly cowed, but there is vengeance in their hearts. They would prefer, however, to submit to humiliation now rather than face the possibility of a continued Allied occupation of their great producing districts.

Those who are scheming for the Germany of the future are assiduously spreading the doctrine that while the war was lost in the West it was won in the East. The dreams of many Germans, who have the power to become directors of thought in their country, are now turned towards Russia and the Orient. They see a Russia torn asunder by contending factions, yet requiring only the touch of an organizing hand to become disciplined again and make the handmaiden of whoever will give it a new lease of life. The Germans are a restless, proud and ambitious people. They must find a vent for their energies in lands other than their own, and it is to Russia, and beyond that the policies of the future will turn; indeed they are now being moulded by astute minds, who, it is not inconceivable, are already in league with the rulers of Moscow. There are reasons to believe that it was German influence which prevented the Bolsheist regime acceding to the Prinkipo Conference, for it iis in the interests of Germany in her new welt politik to keep Russia out of the League of Nations and to prevent her becoming a partner in the present peace.

Nothing has suited the German mood better in these latter weeks than to know that the Peace Plenipotentiaries have not attempted to deal with Russia in the treaties they have drawn up affecting the enemy Powers. That leaves the question of Russia an open one, with which it does not appear the League of Nations will concern itself. It is true the Peace Conference has recognized the Koltchak government, but Germany knows that the heart of Russia is at Moscow, and until the forces of order reign there, and are consolidated with the approval of the nation, that country will always present the possibility of becoming the prey of her nearest and most powerful neighbor. German armies are still on what was formerly Russian soil. Poland is surrounded on every side by enemies. Germany if she can once make peace can continue at leisure and with redouble d vigor her peaceful penetration of Russia, a penetration which made such immense strides since the downfall of the Czar. In whatever course she may adopt Germany has her eye on the great Slav territories, and, even now, with the enemy's military strength reduced as it is, it is difficult to know how the new boundaries of the states forged out of the ruins of the Dual Monarchy are to be preserved. There is a new and a greater Balkan problem created in the heart of Europe. There is a Russia delivered over to chaos. There is a Germany too, weakened, but with all the elements of potential strength and with militarist ambitions which have not been quencvhed, but only turned into new channels. The Associated Powers have no nation upon whom they can absolutely rely to act as a buffer between Germany and Oriental ambitions nor can they have until Russia emerges regenerated from the welter of civil war into which she has been plunged by Bolshevism.

The success of a League of Nations and the peace of the future depend on Russia. No league will be world-sufficient unless she is a member. We have wandered somewhat far afield from the question of whether or not Germany will sign the Peace Treaty, but all roads regarding peace lead to Russia. The actual signing of the Peace Treaty with Germany or with Austria or with both these countries, will not bring us any nearer world peace than we are today for there is always Russia. In the opening days of the war the ability of the forces on the Western front to stem the onrush of the German legions was due largely to the great sacrifices made by the Russian army. Now it is upon Russia that the kind of peace to be made depends. While Russia is given over to civil war there can be no world stability. All prognostications that the other nations can let the Russians fight it out among themselves, while they pursue the even tenor of their way, fail to visualise the great political issue of the future. The Associated Powers have taken it upon themselves to order the destiny of the world, yet every single problem they attempt to settle will only remain settled if Russia is at peace and if representative government prevails in that great land.—Colonist.

APPRECIATION OF THE NEWSPAPER

An appreciation of the newspaper and of what the editor does for the community is well expressed in an article we have noticed in some of the exchanges credited to ex-Governor Francis, of Missouri. It follows:

"Each year the local paper gives from $500 to $1000 in free lines to the community in which it is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his town than any other ten men and in all fairness he ought to be supported not because you like him or admire his writings, but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make. It may not be brilliantly edited or crowded with thought, but financially it is more benefit to the community than the preacher or teacher. Understand me. I do not mean mentally and yet on moral questions you will find most of the papers on the right side. Today the editors of the local papers do the most for the least money of any people on earth."

CAMP FIRES ARE FOREST DESTROYERS

In almost every part of Canada, the camp fire of picnic and fishing parties continues to destroy more of public-owned timber than could be grown by the planting of scores of millions of trees.

From every direction comes urgent suggestions that governments start to re-plant the waste forest areas. This proceedure may profitably apply to certain sctions of Canada. The main consideration, however, is to stop the destruction of timber requiring a century to grow. Planting is a highly expensive alternative to fire prevention. If camp fires were invariably extinguished, there would be less need of asking the public treasury to assume the cost of rebuilding the forests by the use of millions of seedlings. Camp fires in Canada have stolen more public wealth than would have transported the guilty campers around the world on a luxurious free trip. Veteran woodsmen always build their fires small and build them in a safe spot, such as along a rocky shore or on a gravel or sand base, never among leaves or against a log.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

REVOLUTION STRIKE

The following is taken from The Winnipeg Citizen, of June 9, published in the interests of the citizens of Winnipeg:

For nearly a month, all eyes in Canada have been turned upon Winnipeg. For nearly a month the citizens of Winnipeg have been fighting whole-heartedly and with a very generous measure of success, against a determined attempt to establish Bolshevism and the rule of the Soviet here and then to expand it all over this Dominion.

In the fight, the Citizens of Winnipeg have contended against great odds. When through the machinations of a number of confessed Bolshevists in the Winnipeg Labor Temple, between twenty and thirty thousand were tricked and betrayed into striking, the issue went right to the heart of the great body of middle-class citizens whom the strike leaders sought to deprive of the very necessaries of life, of food and water, and of light, police protection and fire protection.

It aroused them to organization and action, and it sounded a note of warning throughout Canada as to what might be expected all over the Dominion if this effort to fasten Bolshevism upon Winnipeg were not decisively defeated. From the moment that the general tie-up took place over a dispute between some metal workers and their employers, the general strike was recognized as an attempt at revolution—and the citizens proceeded to combat it as such.

The revolution in Winnipeg was the outcome of a Bolshevist movement started at Calgary last March and directed by the I.W.W. organization of the United States. That convention elected a "Red Five" executor Midgley, of Vancouver, a notoritive for Canada. One of these is Vicous agitator whose expulsion from Vancouver was demanded by returned soldiers last August when he and others led a one-day general strike in that city in memoriam to a military slacker and defaulter who was shot while resisting arrest.

The second is W. A. Pritchard, of Vancouver, who participated in the same unpatriotic escapade. The third is Joseph Knight, of Edmonton, one of the most notorious of Western agitators of the mining districts and a man who demands the release from internment of men who were actively working in Canada for the German government during the war.

The fourth is Joseph Mayler, a Bolshevist by his own frank admission, who is out to overturn the present system of government. And the fifth is R. J. Johns, one of the worst Red agitators in Canada, a Winnipeg man who in 1917 at a public meeting of the Trades and Labor Council urged a general strike against conscription and national regictration.

Johns is one of the prime organizers of the Wnnipeg strike and he also went to Toronto and was largely instrumental in bringing about the abortive general strike there. Another local leader is Mrs. Helen Armstrong who, according to her own word, has spent some years in an insane asylum. Her husband, George Armstrong, another notorious "Red," is one of the local leaders, who drew down upon himself the wrath of returned men both over the conscription issue and latterly when returned soldiers went on a rampage against a Bolshevist meeting which sent greetings to the Soviet government of Russia, and the Spartacans in Germany.

F. J. Dixon, a soap box orator who is a member of the Legislature, had to flee for his life and was battered by returned soldiers when he addressed a meeting in the Market Square in 1917, counselling everybody to burn their registration cards and to resist conscription. He is another of the leaders of the local revolt. Still another is John Queen, a Socialist alderman, who participated in the same meetings and was one of the objects of the patriotic soldiers' ire.

Andrew Scoble and R. B. Russell, two more of the prime agitators in this defiance of constituted authority, were active participants in the Red convention at Calgary which passed resolutions for the release of German agents, others for the establishment of Soviet government and proletarian dictatorship, and still further resolutions favoring minority dictatorship of labor by manipulated votes such as that which brought about the general strike here.

A further leader is R. E. Bray, who poses as a returned fighter, but who never saw the firing lines, and who told Premier Norris in cold blood on June 2, that he was a Bolshevist and out for the establishment of Soviet government in Winnipeg.

THE WORST PROFITEERS

The worst profiteers are those who go about organizing associations ostensibly for the "uplift" of the masses, soliciting liberal contributions from a gullible public, and under the guise of philantropy securing fat jobs for themselves. We have called attention to this before. Recently Dr. James Sullivan, State Historian of New York, pointed out to the Woman's Club of Albany that most of the idealistic schemes mask Socialistic aims. "There are very few so-called 'uplift agencies' in New York," said Dr. Sullivan, "that are not run by some Socialictic group under the guise of a welfare organization. It pays to be a professional uplifter. Get behind the scenes and see who is running these affairs. They stage and play the game with the finesse of the artist."

A practical illustration of what Dr. Sullivan meant was found in a meeting of 200 women in Brooklyn to protest against a law passed by the "uplifters" in the last Legislature of New York depriving them and about 1000 other women of their places of employment with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. Without consulting the women who found in these positions congenial and remunerative work, the "uplifters" put through a law placing women in the same class with children as regards railroads and night work, with the result that 1200 women on the transit line are thrown out of their jobs. The women testified they had gained in weight and health, and that they liked the work. One woman declared that a man ought to be ashamed to spend his day in a car "doing nothing but pushing a button." One of the angry women pertinently asked a representative of the Women's Trade Union League who was trying to pacify those who had been put out of work by the new law, "How much money do you get from the Women's Trade Union League?"

We submit it would have been a wise course if the New York Legislature, before passing the bill, had asked the views of the women most concerned rather than those of the professional "uplifters." The latter are equally under condemnation for failing to use the opportunity to produce cooperation between labor and capital. Recently, for example, at a legislative hearing, a representative of the New York Consumers' League denounced and sneered at the welfare work being done by large corporations and advised workers to do the same thing. Such language fans the flame of unrest and revolution and should be disavowed by the supporters of the league.—Leslie's.

on between these two newspapers at the present time and this only becomes intensified by these matters coming before the courts, but we have to deal with it as best we can.

Now you are doubtless aware in your own minds what the plaintiff started out to prove when he launched this action. It is quite evident to you there had been rumors in respect to the strike occurring in 1903 in this district and criticism—to put it mildly—has taken place with respect to the plaintiff. As it is there is nothing to show but that these rumors were vague and he was not in a position that he could dal with them in the sense of nailing a person down to prove it. He has taken this opportunity, however, of endeavoring to vindicate himself with respect to any such rumors, and without necessity on his part as you will recollect, of giving evidence. He took the opportunity and he stated that any such rumors were ill-founded. Now he had that opportunity but it has nothing whatever to do with the real issues between the parties. It was the proper course for him to take because it might be well said whatever the outcome, that he had not cleared himself and these rumors were true and he would be deprived of placing himself in the position that he went into Court and stated before the jury exactly where he stood and I pledged myself as to my position at that time and as a matter of fact at the time my position with the Western Federation of Miners instead of being a detriment, it was a benefit to those at Morrissey.

But to return; that issue is not before you as to whether or not he acted properly or improperly at the time of the strike. The real issue you have to determine is whether or not in view of the admission by the counsel for the defence, that these words, as alleged in the statement of claim, were so spoken by the defendant, he is slandered or not.

You have two witnesses produced; one William Robson, the other Oscar Erickson. I do not feel it incumbent upon me to refer to their evidence any more than to say it is for you to consider. I think objection was taken by counsel for the defence referring to the statement of claim in its allegations differing from the evidence given here by Robson. You will recollect I did not sustain that objection but held counsel had pursued the proper course because when you come to test what people may say upon certain occasions, you have certainly a right to see if they have made a different statement on another occasion. I think you have the right to assume—in fact the evidence is direct on that point—that the information supplied on which the action was launched came from Robson. Now Robson gave an affidavit and the statement he makes today differs and is a matter for your consideration whether that difference is so great as to have any effect upon the weight to be attached to the evidence given in court, which is the evidence upon which you must act.

Then again the evidence given by Erickson, it is stated, differed from that outlined in the statement of claim, because you will understand, although this occurrence took place the same time apparently, and drawing the statement of claim this conversation alleged to have taken place was diverted from one to the other; first Robson, then to Erickson.

In weighing evidence you have to consider the appearance and demeanor of witnesses in the box. The bias that may exist in the witness, if evidenced to you by action or surrounding circumstances in that connection, you have the right to consider this. The two witnesses, Robson and Erickson, except from their friendliness towards labor unions have no direct pecuniary or other interest in this action. On the contrary the defendant is being sued for damages and damages sought to be recovered from him and he is certainly largely interested in the result of this trial.

Then, also, in weighing evidence, particularly as to statements made you have to recollect the danger that attaches to conversations being properly recounted afterwards. That is a matter hardly necessary to be enlarged. You are well aware one person giving an account of a conversation, even the next day, and another man present at the time, will give a different account and when it comes to a question of whether a man slanders another or not it is important to determine as near as possible what has occurred.

My duty in instructing you is while the statement of claim is before the court you have the right to look at it if you so desire, and the statements made by the witnesses for the plaintiff do not agree; that is not of itself a finality so far as the plaintiff is concerned. We have to determine substantially the charge as made by the plaintiff has been proven.

It is only right for me to add that I cannot agree with the statement of the law as presented by counsel for the plaintiff, even assuming all the statements made by the defendant he has been guilty of a slander. My instructions are if you accept the statements of the defendant as opposed to the evidence of the plaintiff, then you find no slander; so I need not dwell further upon the matter. It is a question for you to decide, bearing in mind, however, that the plaintiff should establish his case, but not however bringing into play the representation usually made in a criminal case, giving all reasonable doubts to the prisoner. Simply the weight of evidence must be in favor of the plaintiff. In other words it is only fair the party endeavoring to establish his case should make a stronger case than the defendant. Then I don't think it necessary to submit questions to you but simply that you bring in a verdict one way or the other.

Then having arrived at a conclusion substantially you will have the consideration of damages. There has been no attempt either in the pleadings or in the evidence, which means, as far as the plaintiff is concerned, it is an action for vindication of his character and not for the purpose of obtaining result in the nature of substantial damages from the jury.

You have no control as to costs; a verdict for the plaintiff will under the circumstances, I view, carry with it costs against the defendant.

Jury retired at 4.01 p.m.

Jury returned for further instruction at 4.15 p.m.

Jury retired at 4.21 p.m.

Jury returned at 4.27 p.m. returning verdict for defendant.

The following is a list of the Special Jury at the Assize Court:

Thos. Beck, FredW. Burgess, J. A. Broley, Wm. Carlin, F. C. Douglas, Alfred Doyle, H. J. Gregson, D. G. Harvie, Richard Hirtz, Chas. Klingensmith, George Leask, Thomas H. Letcher, Peter R. Lundie, J. E. McCool, Wm. McKay, Chas. D. McNab, Col. C. B. Messiter, W. J. J. Morrison, E. K. Stewart, Thos. Todd, Francis White.

Christophers vs. Wallace — Jury: Col. C. B. Messiter, Jas. A. Broley, Wm. Carlin, H. J. Gregson, P. R. Lundie, Jas. E. McCool, Wm. McKay, W. J. J. Morrison.

The following morning the case of Wallace vs. Editor Lawson and District 18 came up. A. Macneil on behalf of the defendants asked for an adjournment until the fall assizes, on the ground that one Bill Jackson, from whom Lawson had obtained his information relative to the article published, refused to come to town to give his evidence.

Mr. Herchmer in replying produced an affidavit from Jackson stating he had no conversation whatever with Lawson on the subject until after the publication of the item in question and until after the action by Wallace had been started and therefore could not have been responsible for the publication of the article.

The Judge in refusing the adjournment stated:

This is an application for postponement of the trial set for the 17th June and came up on the day of trial. The basis of the application is the absence of a material witness, one William Jackson. The affidavits in support of the application are indefinite as to the exact information it is claimed to have been afforded by William Jackson, upon which the article complained of was based.

The defendant Lawson says it was only on the information received from the said William Jackson that he published the article which appeared in the District Ledger under date of March 14, intituled "A Genttle Hint" and consequently the said William Jackson is a necessary and material witness. And another defendant, P. M. Christophers, states on a date that is not mentioned, he interviewed Jackson; that Jackson refused to come to Fernie to give evidence, he then living at Blairmore in the Province of Alberta. Christophers says Jackson is a material witness on his behalf and other co-defendants and propose that Jackson be required to give his evidence under commission.

William Robson, who was employed for the purpose apparently, went to Blairmore and interviewed Jackson. He doesn't state when, and he, Jackson, said he would not come but gave no reason for such refusal. It is not shown he was even offered his expenses, at the time, for making his attendance at Fernie. Then Mr. Macneil makes affidavit, and there is a letter produced, dated June 4th, in which Jackson is written in confidential tone and asked whether he can come up to Fernie and give evidence as to his knowledge of Jack Wallace's connection with the machine gun fund.

I take it from the pleadings that the principal point is on the plea of justification to show that there was improper disposition of funds raised early in the war for machine gun purposes in Fernie. The charge of that kind, needless to say, is very serious and when this article was published in the paper it would be reasonable to suppose that the publisher and editor protected himself by having reliable information upon which he based his article.

The action was commenced shortly after publication and it is now apparent there was no statement taken from Jackson, the person who is now alleged to have given the information. The question then arises, first, whether he is a material witness, and, secondly, whether such diligence has been shown to secure his attendance as would warrant my granting the postponement.

In the first place as to being a material witness. In proving the truth of the plea of justification, which would appear to me would be a very difficult task in the face of the affidavit made by the said Wm. Jackson in which he states that he had no conversation with any of these defendants prior to the 14th or 27th of

NANAIMO RETAIL CLERKS REFUSE TO HEAR NAYLOR

Nanaimo, June 17.—The Retail Clerks Association of this city, at a meeting here tonight, repudiated the action of their executive in asking Joseph Naylor, organizer for the One Big Union, to address them on the question of affiliation with the O.B.U. and voted by a large majority not to permit Naylor to address them.

Lee Fong was brought before a magistrate and fined for breaking the law. The magistrate had great difficulty in making the Oriental understand, as he feigned entire ignorance of English. Finally in desperation the magistrate said: "Here, man, do you see? That is one dollar. Pay it—or go to jail." The Chink still appeared to be unenlightened and the magistrate repeated the question. "Allow me to talk to him your Honor," burst in a husky cop who had arrested him. "I'll make him understand." The officer approached the prisoner and shouted in his ear: "Say, you with the teakettle face, can't you hear anything?" You have got to pay a fine of two dollars." "You're a liar!" shouted back the Chink. "It's only one dollar."

The committee having the Dominion Day Sports in hand is very busy and a fine program is being arranged. Don't fail to visit Fernie on that day.

L. P. Sullivan of the District Ledger staff, left for Cranbrook this morning. He is ready to start operation on his paper there, which is called the Cranbrook Courier.

The little daughter of Editor Lawson is seriously ill. Mrs. Lawson is in Spokane, but owing to the telegraph strike they have been unable to get in touch with her.

Tom Cole has been offered a position in the Comptroller General's office at Victoria and will shortly leave for that city. Capt. Andy Black will take over his old job again.

Word was received in town this week of the sudden death of Mrs. J. Traherne in Vancouver. Mr. and Mrs. Traherne left Fernie some weeks ago to take up their residence at the coast.

The Dominion Express office in future will be open for eight hours each day, from 8 a.m. until 12 and from 1 p.m. until 5. All packages for the eastbound train must be in not later than 4 p.m.

The Ledger last week was again pregnant with disastrous forebodings for the future of Fernie. They should worry. That sheet has pulled about everything it was ever capable of in an effort to wreck this town.

The power users in town are becoming indignant at the long delay in turning on the juice in the daytime. The engineers have informed the city they are prepared to work any time the city wishes now.

The adjourned sittings of the coroner's jury in connection with the finding of the body of a dead baby last week, was continued on Friday evening, but no information as to who owned the child could be discovered.

Notwithstanding the fact that Gladstone Local had proclaimed a public holiday in order to allow the miners an opportunity to take in the court sittings in connection with the case of Wallace vs. Lawson, only about 25 attended.

The Biggs Overland car had a narrow escape from destruction on the Morrissey Hill last Sunday. In climbing the first grade it suddenly stalled and backed over the bank going down about fifty feet. Fortunately it remained upright and reached the railroad without serious damage.

A pretty double wedding took place at the Chuurch of England on Thursday evening when John McGladrey and Miss Gertrude Foster, and Alex. Sherwood and Miss Jennie Foster, were united in marriage by the Rev. Yolland. The contracting parties are all well known Fernie people and they have the best wishes of a host of friends.

The Fernie baseball team have a game scheduled with Waldo for Sunday afternoon at Victoria Park, at 2.30 sharp. This promises to be a good game as it is a return match for the one played at Waldo last Sunday, when the Fernie boys were victorious. Waldo claims to have considerably strengthened their team so the Fernie boys will not have as big a walkover as they had at Waldo.

SETTLEMENT IS DESIRED BY STRIKERS

Winnipeg, June 20.—"The strike will be called off tomorrow if not today." This was the definite declaration last night of a man who has been closely in touch with tthe conference that took place yesterday between government and civic officials and the strike committee.

No explanation was volunteered as to why he had come to this conclusion. From the statement given out late yesterday afternoon by Alderman Ernest Robinson, secretary of the trades and labor council, on behalf of the strike committee collective bargaining, as defined by the metal trades employers in their declaration on Monday last, was under consideration, and it is thought probable in usually well informed circles that the committee has agreed to accept this as a basis of settlement of the metal trades dispute, which was the original cause of the general strike which started on its sixth week yesterday.

COAL CREEK NOTES

Every available means of conveyance was utilized to take the boosters and football team down to Michel on Sunday last. Unfortunately the result favored a cricket score. We refrain from comment.

It is quite evident that some of our residents require a course of study in natural history, as the stories circulated anent the "deer" goes. Say, Bob, a bottle of 2 per cent is poor ammunition for "deer" stalking. Nuff said about the doe with the long bushy tail. Oh, you, Lees.

Among the visitors to camp this week we noticed Mrs. Markland as the guest of Mrs. Fawley, Mrs. Drisdale as the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Hubberstey, and one old time "Ledger Man."

We are pleased to welcome back Tom Birkett, Joe Graham and Geo. Cleghorn during the past week. Great excitement prevailed on their sudden appearance on Sunday morning.

This burg took on a festive appearance on Thursday evening when the Fernie Veterans and supporters arrived to fill the scheduled league game of football. Automobiles and auto trucks conveyed the visitors. We refrain from discussing the merits of either team owing to the ball floating in the creek and the other one being busted. The respective committees along with Jack Caufield called the game off with points in favor of the Vets. Immediately the game was called off a good crowd assembled in the Club Hall and partook of what we should describe as one of the old time smokers. An energetic staff of waiters kept the liquid flowing. Crackers and cheese in liberal quantities were dished out. The patrons of my lady nicotine had the choice of cigars or cigarettes. A splendid array of talent entertained the crowd and we wish to hand the palm to the Veterans Concert Party, who by individual and concerted pieces contributed liberally to the program, each effort being received with loud applause. W. Nelson and W. Holman manipulated the music box in creditable manner. During the evening the chairman, C. McNay, called upon Dr. Workman to present a medal and bar to our local "Jess Willard" as a token of appreciation of his prowess in the "roped square." In a neat speech the Doctor touched upon the various fights he had witnessed in his career and handed out the bouquet as a sport to our local hero. In response to the unanimous cry from the audience for speech, our champion, still carrying the honorable scars of his last encounter, arose and came slowly forward and in language which stamped him at once as a finished orator, reviewed his experiences in this country and in England, and we are pleased to learn that in the 27 battles fought he won 20 and drew 7, and carries the title of undefeated champion He dwelt at some length on the sporting qualities of his last opponent and called upon the audience to give three cheers for Kid Lewis, which were lustily given. We very much regret that the precarious condition of his "dangerous left" precluded him from giving a little exhibition. In his speech he referred to the ridiculous statement being circulated around that he was shamming with his arm, but offered to go under the X-rays at any time and we wish to say that the loss of sleep consequent of the pain is having its effect in the general appearance of our hero. Kid Lewis made a few complimentary remarks which were well received.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Fair criticism is essential to good government, and it is the right and duty of all good Canadians to express their opinion as to how our beloved country is to meet the conditions before us, facing them squarely and courageously. It is not well for any country that we should be all incense burners to its administration. Canada for the Canadians, first, last and all the time. It's the man that pays the taxes that keeps the government and the wheels of industry running; protect the taxpayer and doubly so if he is raising young Canadians.

The tourist travel seems to be going at the rate of 18 weddings. Last week was a humdinger. With well filled cars from north, east, south and west. The Gould family from Tisdale, Sask., with 3 cars, 15 people in the party, going to Summerland. Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Munson from Seattle. A party of jolly spinters from Portland, looking as happy as a whitewashed pig. Harry Dimm, Jim Blair and D. C. Cummins of Granum, Alberta, going to the coast, but were so impressed with the scenery around here stopped a full week and expect to return when the leaves begin to fall and will spend a month. Tommy Slater, the inimitable and only Tommy, with the gallant 54th, returned after an absence of four years and tells you stories that would bring a blush to the face of a mahogany table and cool as a slab of salmon in a butcher shop while telling them. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilkes, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Evans and Mrs. F. White. Guests at the Columbia hotel. Encyclopaedia Rafter, funny name all right, but he fell off a laod of hay in Spokane and came up to B. C. to show them how to do things, one of the "we did it" brand of galvanized windbags. Mrs. Boyd Thompson and family, of Kalispell, Montana, going through to Wasa to join her husband, stopped over to visit the Elk canyon, reason the C.P.R. don't boost the the greatest sight in B.C. today. The scenery through the Crow's Nest Pass is because if the tourists knew it their main line passenger traffic would be just local. This might sound Irish but it's a fac. Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Croucher, Libby, Montana. H. D. McKeen, credit manager for one of Moose Jaw's pickled whale factories, ramped on the Wigwam and caught some big ones, cutting down the high cost of living. Kesteven, of Willard Square, Forkdip Ave., Toronto, his first appearance, with a line of chocolates that tickle the taste and add flavor to the feast and can use his tongue machinery better than any chocolate traveller on the road. Chaperoned by the great and only Sherlock; Booth, McEwan and Sargent, three of a kind, what one doesn't know the other does; carry a lunch counter right with them and a full supply of meat, milk and baking powder to raise the dough. Donald Broster, the champion left handed rock driller, Ainsworth, B.C. Cassidy, the gum shoe man, just down from the Pouce Coupe and Grand Prairie country. A. Penn, of Lethbridge, no relation to William, with Beehive and Log Cabin syrups and had green money sticking to him like a honey covered dog with flies, said that Elko had the finest scenery in B.C., a fact everyone knows but the C.P.R. officials. James Augustus Greenleaves, pieplant editor for one of the coast seed houses, with a green gooseberry complexion looking up a site for a nursery. He found several. Much more has been left over for want of space for next week.

Just now the papers are full of "Germans must accept or reject June 21st." How long is this dope going to be doled out. How long would the Germans have given the Allies to accept or reject? It's this dilly-dallying that's the direct cause of the world's unrest today. Did the Central Empires kill all the Allies strong men. We need one in Canada today worse than we ever did before.

A THREATENED INDUSTRY

Japan is building merchant vessels for herself and is having others constructed in Britain in the great effort she is putting forth to make her position unassailable as the dominant trader in the Pacific ocean. Her shipbuilding industry has reached a high pitch of efficiency. It is said that now she can build faster in times of peace than any other nation. She can build cheaper, and when a contract is once let in Japan there is a certainty it will be carried out to the letter. Not only is private enterprise in that country investing large sums of money in the shipbuilding industry, but the government is fostering it by subsidies, which insure the permanency of the mercantile marine.

In British Columbia we seem able to build ships for everybody but ourselves. It was only quite recently that vessels for the Federal mercantile marine have been constructed in this Procince. We have built for the British government, for France and Norway, and vessels have been constructed by private entrprise, only to be sold to outside interests just as soon as they are finished. By following these methods there is no assurance of permanency in the industry. The vast bulk of the vessels now being constructed in this province will leave here when completed and will never return. They offer no permanent reward in trade development as far as British Columbia is concerned, for once they have taken away their cargoes from here they touch our ports no more. To this extent shipbuilding is an ephemeral industry, but there are two ways in which it can be made permanent O.ne is that the government should make its present policy continuous; the other, that conditions should become such on the Coast that a ceaseless flow of foreign orders will be insured.

At the present time the Foundation Company is more than half through its contract of twenty ships for the French government. It has other contracts in sight but to which of its yards they will be assigned depends altogether on the prevalent conditions in the industry in different localities. We mention this fact because it serves to emphasize the unfortunate time that has been chosen to consider a sympathetic strike in the shipyards, especially when it is apparent that the ship workers have no concern in the Winnipeg trouble. We know that the vast majority of the shipyard workers do not wish to give ear to will counsels which will militate against their own interests, but unhappily some of them have been misled. They admit they are working under happy conditions and at good wages. They are as anxious as anyone to make the industry permanent. The only way in which that can be done is to show the shipbuilding world that good vessels can be turned out on time, with the minimum of labor urest. That is the best assurance of all that further orders will be forthcoming and that the industry will be made permanent. — Colonist.

THERE CAN BE NO PEACE

(Manitoba Veteran)

There can be no abiding peace in this community while the Hidden Hand of Anarchy holds secret menace against the Canadian constitution, deludes sincere trades unionists and attempt to betray them into the traps and abominations of Red Socialism, Bolshevism, and Anarchy. Peace can come to this stricken city, to this unhappy country, only when the hidden revolutionists are dragged from their cover and made to answer for their crimes. Only so can the tragic delusion, the pitiful bauble of seeking to usher in the millenium by a general sympathetic strike be dispersed. Then peace will return to this city. Then employer and employee will "get together" in a spirit of conciliation and compromise. Then the workers with hand or brain or soul will see to it that never again shall a general strike be called with its attendant threat of social economic and political suicide.

This community today opposes, not legitimate Trade Unions, but rather the Hidden Hand which has led union men by the seductive logic of such assemblies as the Calgary convention, to the brink of the precipice. There is yet time for Trades Unionists to sweep their organizations clear of this revolutionary element. Let this be done and all decent citizens will rally to their support. But returned soldiers, as possibly the deciding factor in this country will never countenance such things as the Calgary convention with its fraternal greetings to the Soviets of Russia, the Spartacans of Germany, and brotherhood towards undesirable aliens in our midst.

Repudiation for all time of the sympathetic general strike:

Acceptance of the G. W. V. A. definition of an "undesirable" alien when deportation proceedings actually begin.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

MODERATION

The above word is the most important in any dictionary of howsoever many volumes; were it applied inexorably to all the infinite aspects of human existence, the millenium would forthwith be assured, and all life, everybody's life, would from begining to end be just one grand sweet song. Apply, for instance, the idea of moderation to the subject candy.

When the war was on we gladly sent tons of sweets to our boys over there. By this means alone they were provided with uncountable calories, heat units, by which their fighting blood was kept up and their ability to treat 'em rough (which is now the wonder of the world) consistently maintained.

Candy, we are assured, "is as healthful as it is delicious." Nothing more delicious. Healthful, too, but in moderation. But there are probably more people who get too little than too much.

Candy, we are informed, "has more calories per pound than any of what are regarded as the ordinary dishes served at meals in the American household." No doubt of it. But man shall not live by calories alone, any more than he shall live by bread alone. All very well to evaluate foodstuffs in terms of calories; but other needs of the system demand consideration also. We have to provide in our alimentation for tissue building and tissue preservation units as well as for energy units, lest we burn up, sooner or later, like the adorable. She in Rider Haggard's absorbing story. We are not to ignore altogether the toothsome chop, the milk on which we were weaned, the aesthetic bean nor the green vegetable. Sweets are indeed entirely unbalanced foods, supplying only fuel, but no building material. They must therefore supplement, they cannot replace other pabulum."

The writer has no idea of being a killjoy; he only wants to counsel against cloying surfeit.

By all means candy for children of all ages; but not to the exclusion of bread and butter, fruits and vegetables, meats and milk. "Everything in its place." Also "Be temperate (that is, moderate) and you will be healthy." So observed Ben Franklin, the wisest man the world has known, since the peripatetic hobo Socrates bothered the passer-by on the Athnian street corner.

ALIEN DISTURBERS

Industrial unrest in this country does not rest on an American foundation. The foreign-born agitator inspires strikes. Theshevist has brot his own country to the verge of destruction and when he come to America he tries the same revolutionary methods here. German money helped to bring the Russian revolution to a head, is now being used in Paris to create opposition to the League of Nations, and is fostering the Bolshevist and I.W.W. propaganda in this country. One of the first measures introduced in the 66th Congress is a bill to provide for the deportation of undesirable aliens.. At the same time Victor Berger, under conviction for seditious activities during the war and with a 20 year prison sentence hanging over his head, applied vainly for admission to the House of Representatives to which he had been elected from a Wisconsin district.

In opposing the seating of Berger, Representative Dallinger of Massachusetts declared that "Congress must keep itself clean." Berger's war record showed him more of a friend of Germany than of the United States, and it is unthinkable that he should sit in Congress. The war proved that we have not pursued the right course with the millions of immigrants that have come to our shores. "We not only neglected the Americanization of these people but we positively discouraged it," says Senator Harding of Ohio. "We left them to the mercies of the agitator and the scoundrels who thrive on agitation." Coming from the dark and oppressive lands of Europe these ignorant masses took our liberty to mean not a liberty under law and order, but freedom to foment strife and revolution. The industrial troubles of today are the penalty we are paying for past neglect to curb pernicious activities.

Every effort must be made to Americanize the foreigner who comes to our shores, and when he does not respond to the process, he should be sent back to his native land.—Leslie's Weekly.

I. W. W. AND ONE BIG UNION SAME

Toronto, June 17. — Documents which are said to prove conclusively that the I.W.W. and the "One Big Union," which has caused so much of the unrest in Canada and other countries, are the same organization, have been seized by the Ontario police. The document which, more than any other, is regarded as showing the connection between the bodies, is a large chart on the back of a manifesto sent out over the signature of Wm. D. Hayward, general secretary-treasurer, Chicago, who last summer was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment. This chart takes the form of a large circle, above which is printed "One Big Union" and I.W.W." The circle is divided into six sections, and the chart divulges the scheme by which the organizers hope to govern the Dominion and ultimately the whole world, under their proposal.

STRIKERS SIGNED FOR RED MONEY

Winnipeg, June 18.—Records of the strike committee which were seized when the labor temple was raided yesterday morning indicate that a special committee was selected on June 10 to investigate and report on the possibility of cutting off the electric power from the city.

Correspondence also shows that the receipt of Bolshevik money was acknowledged by the strike leaders.

Information to the above effect was given last night by Hon. G. D. Robertson, minister of labor, in the course of an interesting interview explaining why strike leaders had been arrested yesterday and not before that date as being suspected.

NEW RATES OF PAY FOR DOMINION CIVIL SERVANTS

Ottawa, June 17.—Classification of the 60,000 positions in the civil service of Canada, establishing new minimum and maximum rates of pay for each class, is provided for by the classification of the civil service bill laid on the table of the commons this morning.

The work of classification begun last August and now completed, is the largest undertaking of its kind ever contemplated by any body, either public or private. It embraces practically all of the Dominion service in the territory from Halifax to Vancouver, and scattered through many foreign countries. Sixteen hundred kinds of employments are described and standardized.

BRITISH DISCARD COLD BATH

That British feitch, the cold bath, has lost its attractions for many soldiers who have returned from France. The occasional baths they get in rest billets during the war were hot, and they soon acquired the hot bath habit along with a distaste for cold water. One soldier who used to be a cold-bath enthusiast, says:

"My experiments with cold baths since returning from the front have made me wonder whether the cold bath habit is really not a pernicious fad and to conclude that I survived it only because I was broken into it when very young and resilent.

"The first cold bath I had at home gave me the 'blues' all day; the next gave me a stiff neck in addition and the third day I developed rheumatism. They say that the British are a class 3 nation physically. I wonder whether cold baths have anything to do with it."

AMERICAN LABOR OPPOSED TO REDS

Atlantic City, N.J., June 17.—Amid general uproar among delegates attending the American Federation of Labor convention today, they refused to endorse recognition of soviet Russia, although urging recognition by the United States of the "Existing Irish republic," and voted against the general strike proposed for July 4; also against the strike for Tom Mooney, convicted in connection with the preparedness day bomb explosions in San Francisco.

VICTORIA WILL NOT HAVE GENERAL STRIKE

Victoria, June 17.—There will be no strike in Victoria. The strike committee has dissolved. Members of the strike committee tonight voted 8 to 8 on the question of a general strike in sympathy with Winnipeg. The deadlock called for a dissolution of the strike committee.

BOMBER WAS NEARLY READY

Germany was just about ready, at the time the armistice was declared, to launch a tremendous aerial offensive by means of a fleet of new airplanes which had been perfected after months of experiments and tests,, writes an Associated Press correspondent in Berlin.

These machines—which today stand nearly ready for service, in the former Zeppelin works at Staaken, near Berlin — would probably have caused a revolution in flying, for they are constructed from nose to tail and wing to wing tip, almost entirely of aluminum and therefore are immune to the greatest of aerial dangers, burning.

They are two-seated planes of the observation rather than the "chasing" type. The only part of their construction not aluminum is a small bit of wing, the part that tilts and tips to give the machine upward or downward direction. And the armistice came just in time to halt experiments that should have eliminated even this bit of inflammable material, and made the machine every bit aluminum. Its speed is 125 miles an hour.

The aluminum airplanes, however, are but a fraction of the aerial forces which Germany was carefully perfecting and storing up for the time when she should have to try to regain mastery of the air. An exhaustive trip through the former Zeppelin works, such as the Associated Press correspondent has just had an opportunity to make, illustrates what enormous advances Germany had made in aviation.

The most notable airplanes which Germany was accumulating—she had used them a little and even had lost one through defective orientation—is the fixe-motor, 1250 horsepower machine, capable of carrying a score of bombs and a crew of eight, and which, German experts claim, far surpasses in size, strength, flying ability and general effectiveness the largest and best of the new British or Italian airplanes. They are imposing aerial monsters.

Some idea of their size may be gained from the fact that they measure some 140 feet in width from wing tip to wing tip. Each have five huge motors of 250 horse power capacity, two on the left between the wings, two on the right in the same position and one in the rear between the body and the tail.

Though now they are all being rebuilt so as to be available for peacetime transportation purposes, they have, when in shape for their warlike work, a cabin forward and just behind the cooling fan and where a mechanician sits, a cabin for the commanding officer equipped with an amazingly complicated, yet for him, simple signal system by which he can control the actions of his entire crew and they can communicate with him at any moment, and an open floor through which he can sight at intended marks before releasing his bombs.

Before the commander's seat are registers and gagues showing the altitude and speed and an ingenious contrivance for night flying indicating exactly at what angle, to one side or the other, or up or down, the airplane is flying. A register with two rows of little plugs enables him to talk with any of his crew. If, for example, the man in charge of the after machine gun signals that the enemy is directly behind so that the tail prevents hitting him, the commander can, by pressing a switch, give the order to veer the airplane to right or left, up or down.

A delicately constructed compass is one of the complements of the tiny cabin not only showing direction and other details but also the tip or slant of the airplane. There are signals to the man who feeds and tends the gasoline, and, behind the commander, special safety devices for emptying immediately all of the gas tanks to avoid fire or explosion in case of an emergency.

Behind the commander on either lower wing are two machine guns, facing fore and aft, and manned by four men. Farther to the rear is hollow of the body of the huge air bird which can shoot through a hole in the floor at objects under the airplane.

The machine travels at a speed of about 80 miles an hour and can stay in the air ten full hours. The speed and horsepower were bing increased to an eventual limit of 125 miles when the war ended.

To counteract the reduced atmospheric pressure at great heights, which slows the speed, the German engineers devised another airplane with four 250 horsepower motors, alike in size and nearly in speed to the five-motor ship, but equipped with condensed or compressed air producer which automatically supplies air to the motors to enable the airplane to keep up its high speed in rarified atmosphere, and outstrip all other machines not so equipped.

Each of the airplanes which the correspondent saw cost, according to the experts, about 500,000 marks, a great share of which goes to the account of the infinitely complicated mechanism htat is so strikingly a feature of each machine.

The Gotha type of airplane, which sometimes was used in bombarding Paris, though a big, powerful machine, is insignificant in size when seen alongside the new machine.

DO AIRMEN NEED PARACHUTES?

Are parachutes necessary? Would they be used frequently enough to warrant their being fitted to every war aeroplane? Have alternative measures been adopted so that the use of parachutes is not of vital importance?

To answer these questions it is necessary to call to mind the occasions upon which a flying man must use a parachute in order to try to save his life.

From my observation of, and participation in, war flying I come to the conclusion that in nine instances out of ten the use of a parachute would have given the pilot a chance of saving himself. These nine instances have been occasions when the machine has caught fire in the air. The remaining instance is that of the machine being so badly damaged as to be uncontrollable.

Although no provision except a parachute could conceivably give a pilot a chance of life in the latter instance, it has happened on many occasions that although the machine has been completely out of control, yet, by some lucky chance, such as coming down on woods or forests or by the machine righting itself at the last moment, pilots have been saved either unhurt or more or less injured.

As to the other nine instances fire in the air has practically every time been caused by incendiary bullets piercing the petrol tank. But this problem has already been solved, we are given to understand, and the chances of petrol fire in the air have been reduced to a minimum. By an ingenious device the incendiary bullets are trapped by a composition substance of a self-sealing nature which completely covers the petrol tank.

PETER VEREGIN

Peter Veregin, the leader of the Doukhobors in British Columbia, is a man of many parts, of keen business ability, one who is on the whole broad minded, kindly spoken and possessed of a magnetic power over his settlers.

For twenty years the community has been in Canada, and nothwithstanding their peculiar views on religious ethics they are generally recognized as being industrious and law-abiding even though they object to sending their children to school or the registration of births, deaths and marriages. In the last ten years the settlement at Brilliant has been greatly developed, for both men and women are workers on the land, and, according to Peter Veregin, they will within two or three years be shipping annually over 100 carloads of apples, pears, plums and strawberries, besides canning vegetables. The Brilliant jam factory will also ship another hundred cars of home-grown produce. Grain is also sown and shipped eastward in considerable quantities.

There has been much talk regarding the sale of their lands for soldier settlement, but these settlers know the value of the land they hold, and contend that their apples and other fruits are far superior to those of the United States so they do not desire an enforced expropriation while thousands of acres remain at the disposal of agriculturists elsewhere, also in their Kootenay district.

They claim that the agitation against them is not of a general character, but engineered by unscrupulous merchants and others, because they do not purchase locally —as they do not believe in retail speculation—and because they "are trying to create a system by which the consumer and manufacturer would have direct exchange, and all products grown on the land would go direct to employers of factories and workingmen everywhere." — Columbian.

PHOTOGRAPHS OF GRAVES

Photographs of the graves of all Canadian soldiers buried overseas are being taken under direction of Major General Fabien Ware, Director General of Graves Registration and Enquiries. Many thousands of applications for photographs have been received by the directorate, but it will be some time before every request can be dealt with. The delay is due to the small number of photographers available for this work and the difficulties arising from demobilization requirements in providing transport to the various cemeteries, which are scattered over a large territory.

NEW TANLAC PLANT IS NOW COMPLETED

What is said to be one of the largest pharmaceutical laboratories in the United States has been completed at Dayton, Ohio, for the manufacture of Tanlac, the well-known medicine, which according to recent reports is now having the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world.

The erection of the new plant was made necessary by the rapid growth of the business, as the older plant was found to be wholly inadequate to supply the ever-increasing demand which at the present rate of sale will amount to more than five million bottles for the present year alone.

By the erection of this plant the manufacturers of Tanlac are giving to the world just one more evidence of the remarkable growth and expansion of their business, and of their absolute confidence in its future.

This announcement will be read with interest not only by the many thousands of Tanlac agents scattered throughout every state of the Union and throughout Canada, but to the millions who have used it beneficially as well.

The new building occupies 60,000 square feet of floor space. It is six stories in height, practically fireproof throughout, and is of striking architectural design. It also has private railway facilities.

This beautiful new structure now stands in striking contrast beside the older building where Tanlac was first made.

Visitors to the laboratories are strongly impressed with the extremely modern character of the equipment. Everything is provided and splendidly arranged to promote systematic and rapid production. The very latest machinery and devices known to invention and pharmaceutical science are here used.

The interior throughout is finished in spotless white, and all of the large force employed wear white uniforms, which they are required to change daily. The main offices on the first floor are all finished in Carara marble and mahogany.

The entire process of manufacture is conducted under absolutely sanitary conditiosn. Even the bottles made expressly to contain Tanlac are washed and sterilized electrically by the ultra violet ray process. They are then filled by automatic machinery and the finished product is therefore never touched by human hands.

When Tanlac was introduced into Canada history repeated itself, and the demand which had been created in the United States was quickly duplicated in the Dominion Provinces. As a result, it was recently found necessary to establish another Tanlac laboratory at Windson, Canada, which is on a somewhat smaller scale than the plant at Dayton, but is no less modernly equipped.

These new facilities give a daily capacity of 36,000 bottles, but as Tanlac is rapidly being introduced into foreign countries it is probably only a question of a few years before even large facilities will become necessary.

While the manufacturers are necessariliy working for capacity production, it is a fundamental rule of the Tanlac Laboratories that the quality of the medicine shall never be sacrificed to secure quantity output.

Uniform quality is guaranteed by a series of careful inspections by expert chemists, from the time the roots, herbs and barks are received in their rough state from all parts of the globe until their medicinal properties have been extracted by the most approved processes. The finished medicine is then bottled, labelled and shipped out to the tens of thousands of druggists throughout the United States and Canada, to supply a demand never before equalled for this or any other medicine.

The executive sales offices are located in Atlanta, Georgia, and accupy almost an entire floor of the Fourth National Bank Building of that city.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

THE BOLSHEVIST CORDON

Allied troops are doing little or nothing towards the downfall of the Leninite regime at Moscow. It is the Russians themselves who are moving in ever-growing force to put an end to anarchy in their land. Within the last month or so the Bolsheviki have been reduced to the defensive on all their fronts and the cordon is drawing in daily. They have been forced to withdraw on the Murmansk front because of Finnish advances. The Esthonians and the Finns are gradually closing in on Petrograd. The presence of a British fleet in the Baltic renders any action of the Bolshevist warships nugatory. On the Polish front the Poles have started an offensive along the Vilna-Dvinsk railway and are driving the enemy before them. The Siberian army, which is engaged in the major operation of what is a series of campaigns, has had severe and fluctuating fighting, but has been making marked progress. General Gaida has either reached or is on his way to Kazan. General Khangin is on the Volga. In the Orenburg region and on the Samara-Tashkert railway there is heavy fighting, but the Bolsheviki there show continuous signs of weakening.

If there is any point on the far-flung front where the followers of Lenine have made any definite advances during the past four weeks it is in Southwestern Russia. They have failed, however, to take Bessarabia so far as the dispatches show. The Roumanians have joined the Poles and with the Esthonians to the North there is now an unbroken line of opposition to anarchy from the Baltic to the Black Sea. In Southeastern Russia General Denikin's volunteer army is holding its own and it has on its flank the British fleet in the Black Sea and the Sea of Azov. Admiral Koltchak's army of the Urals has established connection with the Allied forces on the Archangel front and has cleared the Bolsheviki from a considerable area. There are possibilities that Moscow may be occupied before the Autumn is past though the struggle may well go on for another year. The fall of Petrograd seems imminent. Reports have stated it is now in possession of Chinese and Lettish troops, who have revolted against Trotzky and are running the city themselves.

Lenine, the dictator of Russia, realizes better even than the dupes who have gathered under his banner that the end of his regime is approaching. The spirit of braggadocio which was the hall mark of all his utterances has disappeared. He fears the worst for himself and those whom he has deluded and his only hope remains in the propaganda army which he has organized in every country on earth. While Russia is living by means of money, manufactured without stint by the Bolshevist mints, the gold of the country is being sent throughout the world to bribe radicals everywhere to foment revolution. Stockholm, it appears, is the distributing centre. It is possible the supply of gold is now becoming exhausted, for Scotland Yard has learned that Russians are attempting to counterfeit Engl sh bank notes and circulate them in the British Isles. The world has been forewarned by Russia's fate and is forearmed against permitting itself to become the prey of agitators. After all, just like the other incidents which have set back the march of civilization, Bolshevism is a fever which must pass away. It will leave the body politic weaker, it is true, but w ll solidify the forces of law and order as they never have been before. In the long run the world must benefit by the Russian upheaval, however disastrous the consequences may appear at this time.—Colonist.

FOOT COMFORT WEEK WITH US AGAIN

Ever notice how people walk? If not, it is a most interesting study. The shape of the shoes often speaks volumes of the uncomfortable feet within them. You will notice the lady with the run-over heels, the elderly woman with her shoes bulged out at the great toe joint and the fair damsel trudging along as though she were walking on eggs. And yet millions of people seem to be perfectly willing to tolerate such conditions throughout their entire existence.

How different it is though when they are under the impression that their teeth are not in just as good condition as they should be or that something is the matter with their eyes, their hearing, their throat or some other part of their anatomy. In such cases neither time nor money will be spared in getting to a specialist who will alleviate their suffering and restore them to normal condition. But the poor old feet seem to be forgotten about entirely and treated as though they did not legitimately belong to the same part of the human body.

Foot Comfort Week primarily is for their benefit. This recognized National Event, celebrated annually throughout the United States is being observed this week by thousands of shoe dealers. It appeals to every foot sufferer to have healthy and sound feet through the available scientific correction of their individual foot trouble. It unfolds the true facts and enlightens everyone as to foot efficiency. It crystallizes serious attention and convinces people that neglect of feet, rather than the shoes they wear, is responsible for many foot afflictions. And when they know these vital facts they will then apply the right corrective method that brings instant relief and comfort to all forms of foot trouble.

Foot Comfort Week vividly points out the fact that neglect or disregard of any foot trouble will be a grave menace in later life. And the Foot Comfort Window Trim, that each participating shoe dealer instals during this drive, is most educational and instructive on correct-fitting shoes that don't mar the shape of the foot or permit it to develop imperfectly. The Dr. School Method of Foot Correction as applied to purchasing foot wear—means buying shoes that leave the foot and toes easy and unconfined, allow proper relaxation of the muscles, proper ventilation, etc.

And the story is fully told by the elaborate preparations at the Muirhead & Co. Shoe Store, which has installed this efficient Foot Comfort Service. There you will find this week a graduate Practipedist—a man who has been specially trained in the Dr. Scholl Method of Foot Correction, who will give intelligent and expert advice, free of charge, to every foot sufferer. He will even make free suggestions and give demontsrations showing proper methods to secure foot correction. No person can afford to overlook the educational benefits from a study of the Foot Comfort Window Display now at W. F. Muirhead & Co.'s Shoe Store.

March, 1919, so that the article that appeared in the newspaper that this statement being correct could not be based on information afforded by Jackson prior to the publication. He adds further by way of emphasizing his statement in this affidavit, he did not have any conversation with any of the said parties, meaning, I presume, the defendants, concerning the plaintiff prior to the said dates just referred to.

In the face of this affidavit and the surrounding circumstances, coupled with his refusal to attend, I can not see how it would be reasonably contended that Jackson is a material witness on behalf of the defendants. It is suggested that even if he could not prove the truth of the plea of justification, that he might be called to admit through a commission that he had made some statements upon which the defendant Lawson might have been warranted in publishing the alleged libel. It seems to me that there would be great difficulty in getting such a witness to go that length in view of his affidavit. At any rate it would not tend in the desired direction as far as proving the truth of the plea.

On the other branch, which has been referred to by counsel for the defendant, in view of some of the jurymen being present, I do not wish to particularly emphasize. I think the benefit to which he refers can be as well obtained through the evidence of other witnesses. I particularly refer to the evidence of the defendant Lawson, should he desire to give evidence.

Then as to the whole application, it is one, while a Court is disinclined to force either plaintiff or defendant and on to trial where there is danger of injustice being done, still that has limitations. We have here an action brought in connection with a publication in a newspaper and it is sought to have the trial adjourned and prevent the plaintiff from meeting these charges for another half year. If there was no plea of justification on the records I might be inclined, even with the indefinite form of the affidavits and the weakness of the application, to grant it subject to reasonable terms as to costs, but while the plea of justification remains on the record, and the onus rests on the defendant to establish that plea, I think they should bring evidence to support the charge made in the newspaper or withdraw that plea.

Then again there is another branch dealing with this position, and that is want of diligence in having either the witness produced at the trial or an application made immediately for a commission to take his evidence in Alberta. I have already referred to the want of particularity in the affidavit as to the time when these interviews took place, and I can assume from what has come to my notice some time previous during the Assize, that the defendant knew Jackson was not going to be a witness available on their behalf. At any rate the burden was cast upon the defendants in support of the application to show due diligence on their part and the failure to obtain what I shall assume for the moment a material witness.

Iam impressed with the remarks of Mr. Justice Frye in the case of Stewart vs. Lloyd 7 L.R. C.D. 397 wherein he states as follows: "Now I have a very strong opinion that when a plaintiff comes to ask that the hearing of his case may be postponed he must himself show due diligence on his own part in making the application. I think it is a great hardship upon the defendants in the present case to have hearing of causes postponed and suspended and so far as I am concerned I have always endeavored to avoid granting the indulgence by postponing a trial unless the plaintiff has used due diligence in applying and has some good and strong reason for seeking a postponement." In applying this opinion of such a learned judge, I only wish to add while his remarks refer to a plaintiff, in this particular instance the defendants are in the same position as the plaintiffs would be in the ordinary course. So under all the circumstances I think I am dealing justly in refusing the application and the trial shall proceed.

I emphasize again I would be indulgent in pressing people on to trial but with the plea of justification on the record in the action for libel and the circumstances, I repeat, I refuse the application.

You still wish to adhere to the plea of justification, Mr. Macneil?

Mr. Macneil: I would ask for a short adjournment, My Lord.

(Granted).

After Recess:

Mr. Herchmer: My Lord, in the case of J. R. Wallace against the District 18, U.M.W. of A., Christophers, McFegan, Browne and others comprising the Executive Board of District 18, on behalf of themselves and all other members of District 18, and W. B. Powell, Clem Stubbs and A. J. Carter, Trustees of District 18, and P. F. Lawson, consolidated action, has been settled out of Court.

The settlement made is that the plaintiff will receive the sum of $250 damages and all the costs in the consolidated action, and in addition to that, My Lord, the defendants undertake to publish in the District Ledger a full withdrawal of the libel and an apology. And in addition shall be entitled to say that they published the article on information received, and if in their opinion necessary they may use the name, and they have since ascertained there is absolutely no foundation whatever and no justification of the publication of what they did.

Another, point, My Lord, that I wish to refer to is the fact that there are present here two witnesses, one Thomas Williams, manager of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., at Michel, and Mr. G. G. Henderson, long time resident of the City of Fernie. The first named was treasurer of the machine gun fund at the time collections were taken up. The other, Mr. Henderson was chairman of the fund. These men handled the funds, collected them from the different collectors. They were brought here by the plaintiff to say that they got the money from him; that they authorized him to collect; they knew he was collecting and that they got the money from him whenever they asked for it and that he assisted in every way in making collections and also was of valuable assistance to the committee. Those men are here and I don't wish to call them to give evidence now but I wish to make that statement so that it may never afterwards be said that the plaintiff has not established that there is absolutely nothing in the story.

Now, of course, in this case, all we ask, now that we have settled, is fairness. We don't want it to be said by the miners or anybody else it was settled on account of the non-appearance of a witness. That would be most unfair. We want to be placed in the position with the miners and everybody else that is has been a complete withdrawal and the defendants in this action pay the damages and costs.

By the Court: What was the basis of costs?

Mr. Herchmer: Solicitors' and clients, My Lord.

Mr. Macneil: My Lord, I agree in the main with what my friend has stated and I wish to state in open Court that Mr. Lawson bona fide in the matter, published the statement, perhaps under stress of attack made upon him in his capacity as editor and personally by the Fernie Free Press and there was a measure of provocation for the statements made. Also that the statement so published by him was published on information received from Wm. Jackson, an alderman of the town at that time, and about three or four weeks after Mr. Lawson came to town a stranger. And those two aldermen came to his office and he was introduced — he knew one and was introduced to Jackson. Jackson expressed himself, as I remarked this morning, in the way derogatory to Wallace and the Fernie Free Press and volunteered privately to Mr. Lawson this information about the machine gun fund and that is the excuse we wish to offer and we regret to say we did publish the statement on such information and we are willing to publish in our paper that we so regret.

On Thursday morning the case of Customs Officer Gates vs. Roux occupied the attention of the court. The following special jury was empaneled:

Gates vs. Roux—Jury: F. W. Burgess, Wm. Carlin, F. D. Douglas, H. J. Gregson, R. Hirtz, Geo. Leask, Col. C. B. Messiter, W. J. J. Morrison.

In this case the plaintiff sued the defendant to recover some $2000, being the value of goods seized by the Customs department. The jury brought in a verdict awarding the plaintiff $400 and costs.

The case of McDonald vs. the G.N. railway has been before the court all day today but up to the time of going to press it has not been concluded.

SMELTERS NOW CLOSED

(Grand Forks Gazette)

Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting and Power Co., Ltd., is discontinuing operations of its Grand Forks smelter and Phoenix mines. An official bulletin states that the closedown is permanent.

The information was given out at the mines at Phoenix last week, active mining ceasing on Saturday. The announcement was bulletined at the smelter on Saturday and the last regular shifts came off duty on Friday, June 20.

The immediate cause of the closedown is lack of coke. It had been the expressed intention of the Granby to continue operating until late in the fall at least, by which time it had been expected that they would have got out all the better quality of ore from Phoenix mines, but with lack of coke resulting from the strike of miners in the Crow's Nest Pass it was recognized by the company that a protracted closedown would result in any event, hence the decision to

COUNCIL HOLD LONG SESSION

The regular meeting of the city council was held in the council chamber last night, with the Mayor and all the aldermen present. The minutes of the last meeting were adopted as read.

The subject of the increase in wages for the driver of the fire team came up and was finally disposed of by a motion by Aldermen Hunter and Rutledge to this effect: "That the fire hall teamster's wages be increased $10.75 from July 1st, 1919, making a total of $100 per month."

Ald. Gates and Ald. Graham then moved that the Great Northern Railway Co. be notified through their agent here that the slough in front of the railway depot is in a very unsanitary condition and dangerous to the health of the people in the vicinity, and the city would recommend that the water be drained off by a closed-in drain.—Carried.

A large number of accounts were gone over and ordered to be paid.

The report of the finance committee was then handed in and after examination was accepted.

The sidewalk subject was again brought up and after a lengthy discussion the following motion was made by Gates, seconded by Robichaud: "That the city of Fernie is prepared to furnish ten yards of gravel to thirty feet frontage to all lot owners who are putting down permanent sidewalks on Victoria avenue between Hanson St. and Gemmil St." —Carried.

By-law No. 196, being the "Levying of Rates Bylaw, 1919," was then introduced for its first reading. The council then went into committee of the whole to discuss the bylaw clause by clause. After discussion the bylaw received its second and third readings and was finally passed.

Bylaw No. 197, being the "Percentage Addition Bylaw, 1919," was next introduced and received its first reading. The council again went into committee of the whole to discuss the bylaw clause by clause. This bylaw also received its second and third readings and was passed on motion of Hunter and Robichaud.

Council adjourned.

THE DOMINION DAY PARADE

(Note—The entire net proceeds of the Dominion Day celebration will be used to provide recreation needs of the children of the city.)

The parade is to assemble at the C.P.R. depot, under the Marshal, Sgt. H. Pass, at 9.15 a.m. At 9.30 it will move off toward the school, picking up the school children on arrival. The parade will then move up Victoria avenue and back to the school, where short addresses will be given to the children by Mayor Uphill and A. I. Fisher, M.P.P.

An appeal is made to all auto owners and bicycle owners to dress their machines and parade. The committee is out for a big day and hope to make this an annual affair (Children's Day).

Matters are well in hand for the Dominion Day celebration. It is anticipated that there will be crowds of people from the adjoining districts in town to take in the big time.

The baseball and football promises to be especially good. Numerous inquiries have been received relative to the open events and horse racing.

The committee are working hard on the day's program. The parade is to assemble in front of the Roma hotel at 9.30, moving off in the direction of the school, where the school children will join. All automobile owners and boys with bicycles are earnestly requested to decorate and join in the parade. Prizes have been offered and we are anxious to make the parade a humdinger. Citizens with autos are urged to assist us in this respect.

The funds raised from this celebration are to be used as a foundation fund to provide recreation needs for the young folks of the city. Everyone should work hard to make a success of such a worthy cause. Mike only knows we need to do something for the recreative pursuits of the children.

ERNEST TUTTLE NOW IN TRACTOR BUSINESS

The Sunday Spokesman-Review has the following reference to Ernest Tuttle, son of W. W. Tuttle, and a Fernie old-timer:

After following some phase of the machinery business for 32 years over a territory ranging from the Cape colonies to Vancouver island, Ernest Tuttle, formerly proprietor of the Power City Machinery Co., has associated himself with Ahrens & Ahrens, auto, truck and tractor dealers here. Mr. Tuttle will have charge of the truck and tractor department and will handle exclusively the output of the Fageol factories.

"I have entered the truck and tractor game after several months deliberation," said Mr. Tuttle, "and it was only after I was thoroughly convinced that the real future of the automotive industry was in that direction. I looked the field over thoroughly and decided that the Fageol line showed better selling points because of its extra transmission, spring oiling and other special features that seemed to make it a winner in this territory. This, added to the fact it is a western product and made for conditions that prevail only in the west, made my final decision easy."

Mr. Tuttle will spend much of his time on the road lining up local agencies in county seat towns and making demonstrations.

MACHINE GUN CO. FOR FERNIE

Information has been received from Ottawa authorizing the formation in British Columbia of the 11th Machine Gun Brigade as an Active Militia Unit with Headquarters in Victoria and the remaining Company in Fernie.

This information will give great satisfaction to all former members of the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, who have felt that the magnificent fighting qualities of this famous unit should be perpetuated in the Candian Militia.

Last winter the matter was fully discussed by officers of the Corps, then in Belquim, Germany, and as a result it has been decided to form a Machine Gun Brigade in each military district.

It is anticipated that an announcement will shortly be made of the officers selected to command the Brigade, and meanwhile the work of organization has been undertaken by Lieut.-Col. W. K .Walker, D. S. O., M.C., who commanded the 1st Canadian Motor Machine Gun Brigade in France. Capt. J. M. Cummings, who commanded a battery in Col. Walker's unit, is assisting with the work of organization.

An announcement will shortly be made of the officers appointed to take command of the companies in New Westminster and Fernie.

SOLDIERS TO ARRIVE SOON

The following soldiers, reported as having returned on the Aquitania, left Halifax on the 20th for their dispersal stations. They should reach Fernie on Saturday evening:

Pte. C. W. McKee, Elko.
Pte. A. W. McRitchie, Fernie.
Pte. W. H. Winnett, Fernie.
Pte. J. L. Donaldson, Fernie.
Pte. W. J. Harris, Fernie.
Pte. W. J. McKelvey, Fernie.
Pte. J. H. McLeod, Fernie.
Pte. G. Tombassa, Michel.
Pte. T. Murray, Michel.
Pte. G. Cardelli, Natal.

Grade 10 Distinction—Class Leader, Mathematics and Classics, Juliette Andre. Science and Literature, George Quail. Deportment, Martha Reid.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

A. Watson and Alan Graham will spend the week end golfing at Cranbrook.

Mrs. Ed. Johnson, of Libby, Mont., is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Mills.

A bevy of soiled doves from across the line struck town early in the week but in a day or so they were herded back by the local police.

Frank Scarpino received a letter from the Alberta government this week stating that he had passed the examination for Second Class Mining Certificate.

Some of the Michel football team complain that they were mobbed by a bunch of Fernie women, who threw rocks at them when they were pulling out in their cars for home.

P. Zoratti and Frank Fernano, of Natal, charged with running an illicit still, were on Thursday fined $300 each and their entire moonshine outfit confiscated. The cases came up before Magistrate Murray. S. Herchmer appeared for the customs department and A. I. Fisher for the prisoners.

Coroner Geo. B. Thomson was called to Jaffray late last night to inquire into the death of a Russian lumberjack at that place. It was decided that the man was killed accidentally by some rolling logs. He was hit on the head and death seemed to have been instantaneous. The body was brought to Fernie.

The city power house staff are now working full time again. The day power was turned on on Tuesday morning. The foolish attitude of the engineers at the power house in going out in sympathy with the miners has finally percolated through the ivory of some of the strike leaders. The power house will continue to run full time as long as the Coal Co. is able to supply it with fuel.

The local strike situation drags on. The officials of the union are moving heaven and earth to get the Provincial government to step in and save their face, but up to the present they seem to be inclined to let those who brought on this strike against the Dominion government's ruling in the case, work out their own salvation. Dominion Coal Commissioner Armstrong has stated his position in the matter and evidently intends to stand pat.

The following members of the Fernie teaching staff will leave tomorrow for their holidays: Miss M. L. Wade to Cloverdale, B.C.; Miss O'Hearn to Chilliwack, B.C.; Miss McEwan to Hatzic, B.C.; Miss McVicar to Victoria; Miss Stirritt to Toronto; Misses Elliott to Horseshoe Bay; Miss Burnham to Enderby; Miss Bell to Vernon; Miss O'Callaghan to Penticton; Misses Hammill to Armstrong and Miss Stott to New Westminster. The first five have resigned from the staff and will not return to Fernie.

Of the nine hotelmen who were up before Magistrate Whimster on Monday charged with selling liquor, eight were found guilty. The exception was Lesilie Mills, the charge against him being withdrawn as there was already one charge against the bartender, the man who sold the liquor. Sentence on the convicted men will be passed on July 2. As there is no fine in connection with this charge it looks like a case of jail for the bunch. The utter silliness of the prohibition law is shown in this case. If the law called for a fine of say $1000 the city treasury would have been $8000 to the good. As it now stands this much taxed town will have to dig up a dollar a day for each prisoner as long as he may be in jail.

DEATH KNELL OF THE O. B. U.

(Calgary Herald)

Winnipeg, June 25.—The strike bulletin, this time called "The Enlightener," was issued by the central press committee at noon, with the front page taken up in poster type officially calling off the general sympathetic strike.

The announcement reads:

"General sympathetic strike called off for Thursday, 11 a.m. Conditions: The provincial government has appointed a commission to make a thorough investigation regrading reinstatement of workers."

The provincial government asserts that the calling off is unconditional, and that Judge Robson will investigate causes and origin of the strike.

The following statement has been issued by Premier T. C. Norris:

"I have just been shown a paper calling itself 'The Enlightener,' in which it is stated that the general sympathetic strike has been called off on condition that the provincial government have appointed a commission to make a thorough investigation regarding the reinstatement of the strikers.

"I hasten to say that there is absolutely no truth in this. The provin-

THE BOY SOLDIERS

(Colonist)

Two months have slipped away since the government passed an order-in-council wherby provision was made for the training of boy soldiers, so that those who left school to enlist in the army or enlisted when finished school at such an early age that they had no time to learn a trade or profession, should be made useful citizens. The public now want to know what is being done. In Victoria as far as we can learn, there is not a single boy soldier being trained, although there are many scores awaiting the opportunity. The Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment throughout the Dominion must have thousands of names on its records of youths who are anxious to learn trades or professions, but we have yet to learn that any of these boys are being given the opportunity. As far as this province is concerned it is not the fault of the local Branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. British Columbia has got to await sanction from Ottawa, and apparently that sanction has not been forthcoming. In fact, the public are entitled to know if the local branch has yet received notification from Ottawa of what is proposed, and, if so, when the order-incouncil becomes effective.

The first proposal for the training of boy soldiers emanated from Victoria. Last year this newspaper took up the subject and directed attention to the desirability of action. Later the matter was enthusiastically endorsed by the local Rotary Club and subsequently received the approval of the Rotary clubs throughout the Dominion. It was made the subject of a petition signed by thousands of Victoria citizens. The churches became interested and did what they could to attract Federal attention. Finally Ottawa was persuaded to see that public sentiment demanded that the boy soldiers should be cared for and the necessary order-in-council was passed two months ago. Since then the subject appears to have remained in abeyance because Ottawa has failed to act. In the meantime the number of boy soldiers in this province alone who are awaiting training has been increased by several hundred, many of whom are exhausting their war gratuities while awaiting the training which they have been promised.

We are informed that the order-in-council passed by the Federal government provides that the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment is to use "discretionary powers to selected such returned soldiers as may appear to be eligible, who enlisted under the military age of 18 years, and who, because of such services, suffered a serious interruption in their training." Then, to such as are selected it is proposed to grant a further period of training in High school, business college or industrial establishment, with the pay and allowances approved by the department. Why discretionary powers should be exercised in connection with the boy soldiers we are at a loss to understand. If these boys were good enough to fight for the country in the time of need, then we say they are entitled, each and every one of them, to the training that will make them useful citizens. That training should be provided in all instances by the State and it should have been in operation months ago.

Valuable time is being lost and dissatisfaction is spreading. The government has passed an order-in-council. The boy soldiers have shown themselves eager to be put in training for their civilian careers, but apparently nothing is being done. No blame attaches to the local branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment. The whole burden rests on Ottawa, which has taken upon itself the right to decide who is and who is not eligible for the training. What can Ottawa know in this respect? Is it going to discriminate about the civilian preparedness of those boy soldiers who fought overseas, and measure the extent of the usefulness of any one, or of any group of them, to society? It is an extraordinary attitude to take and the public will hope it is abandoned herewith. All these boys who elect for training at the government's expense are entitled to be given a fair chance. All should have the privilege of learning how to earn their livings, and that privilege should have been theirs from the moment they commenced to return from overseas. It is estimated there are approximately 30,000 boy soldiers who left Canada Some have died on the field of honor, but many thousands have returned and it is clearly the government's duty to give them the opportunities sought, without discrimination, but solely with the idea of making them fit to take their part in the battle of life. It is time the training was undertaken for we can assure the government the public want to know why the delay has been so prolonged.

EASY TO CRITICIZE, BUT DIFFICULT TO CONSTRUCT

During these days of labor trouble and unrest, people generally are seeking for someone upon whom they can lay the blame for existing conditions. Some blame the labor men or their leaders, others blame the capitalists, but governments, no matter what party may be in power, receive the greater burden of the blame. This is natural for the reason that if a man is dissatisfied with his condition in the world from a material standpoint, the first thing he does is to take a punch at the government. Governments have been blamed in the past for bad seasons, poor crops and resultant light trade. They have even been blamed for individual failures that were solely and alone the fault of the individual. They are blamed for the high cost of living and would be more severely criticized for an extremely low wage. This has been the case since the day of the luxurious and autocratic Caesar, and will probably continue as long as dynasties or democratic governments exist. To place all the blame upon governments today, whether in England, the United States or Canada, for the unrest of the people, is as foolish as to praise them for all the success that comes to a country under their administration. The government, at any time, is nothing but the concentrated power of the people. This is demonstrated by the fact that governments rise and fall, and, hence, the power of the people is the power of the government. It is true that the proletariat—the term that is used so lovingly by the agitators today—that is to say, the masses, are too often led astray by fads or false gods. The great majority are more inclined to listen to one side of a public question rather than endeavor to secure the vital points on both sides. They are either too indolent or too narrow to educate themselves on the very questions that are of such vital importance to them. As a result, they can be led by the red flag utterances of a leader who is a personal profiteer, using this class of men to advance his own interests. Again, they may be led by those of the other extreme, who would use their votes to promote and protect schemes for monetary acquisition. This leaves the middle man, or if you please to term it so, the middle class, without the protection of organized labor, or the opportunity of capital, to be subjected to the difficulties of meeting a situation where their revenues are not increased and the value of the dollar that they earn is reduced by at least one-half. The whole situation is an economic problem that must be met calmly and without too radical action on either side. We believe that the present extreme agitation in the and will make for a betterment of conditions that directly affect the great masses of the country, for the reason that it is bound to firmly impress upon the employer and the employee the fact that mutual respect and active co-operation is the only policy that will result in the greatest good to the greatest number. Therefore, violent attacks upon governments at this time, can only result in harm to a beneficial readjustment. The problems to be solved are complex and time must be taken to give due consideration so that all sides may be dealt with in an honest and just manner. We believe in our government, in matters of this kind. We do not say they are always right, but when anarchy threatens the country or is a menace to labor, we have faith enough in every government to believe that their final actions will be guided by the principles of right and justice. Therefore, it is well enough for the people to be cautious in criticism, slow in criticism, slow in extreme denunciation, and ever ready to support any movement that will bring the contesting elements together and make for industrial peace. Concessions must be made and will be made, and right must prevail, even if the government of the people should be required to enact laws that will protect the country from the over-avaricious o none side and the red-blood agitator on the other. —Kamloops Sentinel.

Sam Gompers has been unanimously re-elected president of the American Federation of Labor. Mr. Gompers has been a shining mark for all sorts of rough criticism for many months past by the radicals in the ranks of labor and some of his detractors were hoping that he would be passed over in the election just held. But Sam is a fighter and when the votes were counted was an easy winner. The American Federation of Labor made no mistake when it put his man back in office. There is hard work ahead for the Federation fighting the O.B.U. influence and Gompers is the sort of leader needed for such a fight.—Calgary Herald.

PUBLIC NOW TOLD ALL ABOUT TANLAC

Authorities Now Show Just What This Medicine Really Is

In a recent issue of this paper announcement was made that Tanlac now has the largest sale of any medicine of its kind in the world, and that more than twelve million bottles had been sold during the past four years.

These are unusual figures, and the question naturally arises in the mind of the reader why this phenomenal success and why has this preparation so far outstripped all other medicines of its kind. It is only natural therefore to satisfy public interest.

In the first place, Tanlac is manufactured in one of the largest and most modernly equipped laboratories in this country. Its formula is purely ethical and complies with all national and state pure food and drug laws. Altogether there are ten ingredients in Tanlac, each of which is of recognized therapeutic value.

Many of these ingredients have been individually known and used since civilization first began, and some of them have been used and prescribed by leading physicians everywhere, but until they were brought together in proper proportion and association as in the Tanlac formula, humanity had not heretofore realized their full value and effect.

In referring to one of the more important ingredients of Tanlac, the Enccyclopaedia Britanica says: "It has long been the source of the most valuable tonic medicines that have ever been discovered." In referring to others of the general tonic drugs contained in Tanlac the 13th Edition of Potter's Therapeutics, a standard medical text book, states that "they impart general tons and strength to the entire system, including all organs and tissues."

This same well known authority in describing the physiological action of still another of the ingredients of Tanlac which is of value in treating what is commonly known as a "run-down condition" uses the following expression: "It is highly esteemed in loss of appetite during convalescence from acute diseases."

There are certain other elements in Tanlac which because of their influence upon the appetite, digestion, assimilation an delimination improve the nutrition and vital activity of all the tissues and organs of the body, and produce that state of general tonicity which is called health.

In discussing another ingredient the Encyclodaedia Britanica says: "It is one of the most efficient of that class of substances which act upon the stomach so as to invigorate digestion and therby increase the gen- nutrition. It is used in dyspepsia, chlorosis, anemia and various other diseases in which the tone of the stomach and alimentary canal is deficient." Concerning still another ingredient this same standard authority says: "It causes dilation of the gastric blood vessels, increases secretion of the gastric juice, and causes greater activity in the movements of the muscular layers in the walls of the stomach. It also tends to lessen the sensibility of the stomach, and so may relieve gastric pain."

The United States Dispensatory makes the following comment regarding another ingredient: "It may be used in all cases of pure debility of the digestive organs or where a general tonic impression is required. Dyspepsia, atonic gout hysteria, and intermittent fever are among the many affections in which it has proven useful."

There are certain other ingredients described in the Dispensatory and in other standard medical text books as having a beneficial action on the organs of secretion, whose proper functioning results in the purification of the blood streams passing through them. In this manner objectionable and poisonous ingredients of the blood are removed, and the entire system is invigorated and vitalized.

Tanlac was designed primarily for the correction of disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. At the same time, however, it is a powerful reconstructive tonic and body builder, for it naturally follows that any medicine that brings about proper assimilation of the food and the thorough elimination of the waste products must therefore have a far-reaching and most beneficial effect upon the entire system.

Although Tanlac's claims for supremacy are abundantly supported by the world's leading authorities, it is the people themselves who have really made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it, and have told other millions what it has done for them. That is why Tanlac has become the real sensation of the drug trade in this country, and that is also why it is the most widely talked-of medicine in the world today.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

THESE FELLOWS FOR CANADA

One of the most encouraging signs that Prince Rupert is on a progressive path is the result of the vote recently taken in regard to the general sympathetic strike. There were several unions which flatly declined to be dictated to by the leaders of the Trades and Labor Council. The unions that remained at work are composed chiefly of Canadians of a good class, that is, men and women with an education and capable of reasoning for themselves, and above all possessed with an object in life other than getting something for nothing. Prince Rupert has always been overblessed with the I.W.W. or whatever other name them may choose to go by. Strikes have hurt the city more than most people are prepared to admit. As long as the IW.W. element is permitted control in the Trades and Labor Council there will never be any safety either for capital or labor. Thus it is good to see that some of the unions are taking a stand for themselves.—Omineca Herald.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

THE ALIEN MENACE

In the course of two public addresses delivered in Vernon last week strong ground against what was justly termed the "alien menace" was taken by the speakers. Both lieut-Col. McIntosh and Mr. Crowe-Swords undoubtedly voiced the feelings of the returned soldiers when they dwelt in vigorius language upon the necessity of freeing the country from this peril.

In a recent editorial discussing this subject the Victoria Colonist points out that the government has power to revoke certificates of naturalization where it is shown that individuals of foreign birth are plotting against constituted authority. It strongly urges that the country should be relieved of the presence of this dangerous class among the population, and advocates the deportation of such aliens whether they are at present interned or not.

While the situation in British Columbia is serious enough, it is ten times worse in the prairie provinces, and the Colonist draws attention to the fact that these foreigners were admited to the Dominion almost without restriction at a time when the whole outcry was for immigration without regard to the character of the newcomers. Now it is becoming widely known that many, if not the great bulk of these immigrants, have proved undesirable citizens, and it is a questtion for the government to decide how long they are to reamin a disruptive force in the land. Many of them have become naturalized, but that has not prevented them from being mentally responsive to the sociological and political changes in the lands of their origin, so that they are imbued with a desire to become revolutionary factors in the country where they now reside. The war brought into relief the attitude of many aliens and showed Canada where their sympathies lie. Subsequent developments are tending to emphasize the motives which direct their course, while knowledge is also being gained of the co-ordination of their plans for spreading revolutionary ideas.

The propaganda of these aliens is printed in half a dozen languages in as many towns of the Dominion and is issued throughout the length and breadth of the land. The money for this, no doubt, comes from Russia, or from Germany, or from both countries, for each is equally interested in the propagation of the gospel of chaos. The government knows more today regarding this propaganda than it has ever known before, and, presumably, is prepared to rid the country, as far as is possible, of those elements who are seeking to overthrow constituted authority. Public opinion has become aroused, and especially that portion of sentiment represented by those who fought overseas, for they regard the problem in a dual light; firstly, as handicapping progress, and secondly, because these aliens are engaged in occupations which should be thrown open to the returned men. Employers have a grave responsibility in these times, and should exercise every precaution to eliminate alien workers where these can be shown to be plotting against the safety of the country. Those who employ labor con co-operate with the government, and in what they do they will be supported by an overwhelming public opinion. In the meantime the authorities should invoke the power of deportation and arrange for the return of alien agitators to their own lands. The deportation of enemy aliens is only a short step in the right direction, for those who are interned are not involved in the present propaganda. — Vernon News.

KINGS IN EXILE

The proceedings at the Chateau of Saint-German were marred by the agitation of an interpreter who addressed the delegates as representatives of 'the Republic of German Austria' instead of 'the Republic of Austria.' Then the official photographer tumbled into a museum case, smashing the glass. But Dr. Renner went on with his speech in French and asked that the full weight of punishment might not fall on the little republic which was all that was left of the once mighty Austria, but that it beregarded as only one of the eight new republics into which the monarchy had been divided." Thus ingloriously ended the Austrian Empire, and with it the house of Hapsburg. Nothing could better illustrate the profound nature of the change the war has worked on the face of the world than this shabby scene at Versailles. The House of Hapsburg was one of the oldest, if not the oldest, of the ruling houses of Europe. It was the embodiment of kingly vanity, superstition, ambition, and extravagance. It even suffer from more than its share of the insanity that infects royal families. The loyalty of its courtiers was extraordinary. Even up to recent years the feeling that inspired the noblemen when they drew their swords and cried "We will die for our king Marie Theresa" still existed in a measurable degree. It had weathered the political storm of centuries, ruled over millions of alien people, and, long threatened with destruction either by its neighbors or by its subjects, seemed five years ago to be more firmly seated than ever in its history. Now it is dismissed in a few words from the editor of a Paris newspaper, and the meek Dr. Renner accepts its dismissal in behalf of an abject nation while the photographer falls into the museum case.

The great accomplishment of the war is here seen in its most tangible form. Not only are the monarchies of central Europe overturned, but the very idea of monarchial government receives its deathblow. A few years ago the certain consequences of a European war would have been a squabble between the dynasties for the succession. All the royal families would have put forward their claimants. Probably the compromise would have drawn some prince of the house of Denmark — that employment agency for kings—to the throne. But today there are no claims and no claimants. There are no vacant thrones. The whole theory of dynastic rule is rigorously excluded from the discussions at Paris.

The Czar is dead, his family disbanded or murdered. The German Emperor at Amerongen awaits in unconcealed dread the summons to appear before a hostile tribunal. The Emperor of Austria is hiding in Switzerland. One of the grand dukes has taken up the study of law. The King of Bulgaria is "somewhere" in Austria. The pitiful king of Greece is living at the Dolder Hotel in Zurich. And nowhere, even in those English circles where a belief in the divine right of kings still persists is an attenuated form, is a voice raised in behalf of the institution of which these fugitives were the most brilliant and most convincing representatives.

At last the world has seen what it has been the constant purpose of democratic thinkers to prove, that dynastic rule is at the bottom of most of the gravest political dangers of the human race. With the example in sight of what the will of one man can accomplish to the harm of civilization, it is folly to pretend that economic rivalry has been the cause of the innumerable wars that have devastated Europe. The vanity, selfishness, ambition of individual rulers and dynasties have brought ruin enough on mankind. The world is done with them.

The criminality of each province, according to the estimated population for 1917 as stated in the Canadian Criminal statistics for the year ending September 30th, 1917, stands as follows: Yukon, one conviction in every 384 persons; Ontario, one in 396; British Columbia, one in 499; Manitoba, one in 522; Alberta, one in 579; Saskatchewan, one in 633; Quebec, one in 633; Nova Scotia, one in 879; New Brunswick, one in 1097; Prince Edward Island, one in 2840. Canada, one in 537.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

DEATH KNELL OF THE O. B. U.

cial government have not appointed a commission and have not promised to appoint one. The reinstatement of all workers is not a matter for the provincial government, nor for any government commission, and has not been considered.

"While preparing this statement I have by special messenger just received this communication, which is sufficient answer to any such statement:

Winnipeg, Man., June 25, 1919.

"Hon. T. C. Norris, Premier of Manitoba:

"Dear Sir—I am instructed by the central strike committee to notify you that a resolution has been passed officially declaring the sympathetic strike off on Thursday, June 26, at 11 a.m. We now make formal application to your government to appoint a royal commission having the widest powers of enquiry.

Yours very truly,
E. Robinson,
Secretary Strike Committee.

"This communication has not yet been dealt with."

Winnipeg, June 25.—One thousand returned to work today, and the Labor Temple is practically deserted. To all intents and purposes the strike was over yesterday, less than 5000 remaining out, chiefly those who couldn't get their jobs back. About all Judge Robson can do, as commissioner, is to ascertain and pronounce on the causes of the strike and rules by which both sides fought the battle, which is ancient history. The big fact remains that it was revolution, and that citizens, with their backs to the wall fought Soviet and Bolshevism with a very narrow margin at one time in favor of winning.

It is estimated that the strikers lost in salary $150,000 a day, and the strike lasted six weeks. The loss to the business interests directly are incalculable, estimated at $15,000,000, traceable to losses in spoiled eggs, mutton, dairy products and live stock; to say nothing of the direct loss to farmers, who could not get oil and farm equipment to do their work with. The old police force is trying to get back as a body.

Officially, the declaration of the strike being over does not interest Winnipeg. What does interest Winnipeg is the fact that she has fought Canada's big fight against sympathetic strikes and Sovietism, and won, even without the strike being officially declared off. The accused strike leaders must go before a jury and stand trial for seditious conspiracy. The preliminaries were adjourned today, as the grand jury is considering the cases of the alleged Soviet leaders.

(Lethbridge Herald)

Though local union leaders do not care to express themselves on the Winnipeg result it is understood that unions who have taken a firm stand against the O.B.U. are satisfied the new labor body died in the moment of its birth, and that the Winnipeg strike killed it. The big principle behind the One Big Union is industrial unionism as opposed to craft unionism, and the weapon of the O. B. U. is the sympathetic strike of all workers. It is generally admitted that the sympathetic strike as put into force in Winnipeg and Seattle is a dangerous weapon which alienates public sympathy from the strikers and union men who are determined to keep the international affiliation with their craft intact are therefore satisfied that the death knell of the O. B. U., which threatened to disrupt the ranks of the workers, has been rung.

In this case, interest is likely now to centre in the strike of the miners of District No. 18, who by their support of the O. B. U. have cut themselves off from their international organization. Without strike funds the miners are growing restless and the district officials have already made the first move towards settlement of the strike. Secretary Ed. Browne is now in Vancouver for the purpose of interviewing Premier Oliver to ask that a board be appointed to investgate wages and working conditions in the B. C. coal camps, following the putting in force of the B. C. eight-hour law.

The miners strike will therefore occupy the centre of the stage for the next few weeks, and the fact that many miners wish to return to work is speeding up action. The fire bosses at Blairmore went back to work on Monday. It is reported that some of the miners in some of the smaller camps have demanded that the district officers arrange to supply them with groceries while the strike is on. Dissatisfaction with the district officials is also expressed because, while the miners are idle here, American coal is pouring into Manitoba and Saskatchewan — and this after the promise had been made by the miners' officials that, through the O. B. U., they would be able to keep this coal out. It was hinted that the railmaymen and dock handlers would refuse to handle American coal while Alberta miners were on strike, and that the teamsters' unions throughout the west would in any event, refuse to handle the American product. The chances of success for this scheme now look slim, however, and with no strike funds or other international support ,those on the inside believe the miners' strike will not be long in following the Winnipeg strike in coming to an end.

TO INVESTIGATE MERGERS AND MONOPOLIES

Ottawa, June 26.—The immediate creation of a tribunal with power to investigate mergers, trust monopolies and all matters affecting the cost of articles used by the people, is recommended in an interim report presented this morning by G. B. Nicholson, chairman of the special cost of living committee. The committee states that it has not yet had time to reach final conclusions, and another report will be made later on.

The report suggests that legislation bringing this tribunal into existence should be enacted at the present session of parliament.

The committee's report is as follows:

"The special committee appointed for the purpose of inquiring forthwith as to the prices charged throughout Canada for foodstuffs, clothing, fuel and other necessaries of life, and as to the rates of profit made thereon by the dealers and others concerned in their production, distribution and sale, also as to the rentals of dwelling houses in individual centres of Canada and rates of return of capital invested therein, etc., beg leave to present the following:

"Four committee since their appointment of the 3rd of May last have held 36 morning, afternoon and evening sessions, heard and considered evidence given under oath of 66 persons, representing various producers, manufacturers, wholesale, retail and consumers' organizations from various parts of Canada; also have received numerous petitions, resolutions and other communications, all of which have been considered.

"Your committee have been engaged almost continuously from the 5th day of June last to the present date in obtaining all information possible from witnesses and available sources but have not yet reached a point in their investigation that would warrant them in submitting final conclusions.

"There has come to the attention of your committee evidence in regard to the undue profits being made on certain commodities. Your committee in order to provide a means by which a recurrence of such may be prevented, and that the public may be protected against unfair practices in trade, recommend to the government that legislation be enacted at this session of parliament, creating a tribunal with power to investigate mergers, trusts, monopolies or organizations of any kind or nature which tend to limit facilities for transporting ,producing, manufacturing, supplying, storing or preventing limiting or lessening manufacture or production or fixing a common price or a resale price, or a common rental, or a common cost of storage or transportation or enhancing the price, rental or cost of article, rental, storage or transportation or preventing or lessening competition in or substantially controlling within any particular district or generally, production, manufacture, purchase, sale, transportation, insurance or supply, or otherwise restraining or injuring commerce, or unduly enhancing the price of the necessaries of life, also with regulative power in connection with discriminations in price between different purchasers of commodities, exclusive purchase and sale arrangements, inter-corporate shareholding and inter-locking directorates and unfair methods in commerce."

Good for the whole family

While the causes of all coughs are primarily the same, yet the condition of the patient is what makes the difference in the nature of the cough itself. Coughs of healthy persons are easier to cure than the coughs of invalids. The more powerful convulsive cough of a big man is harder to cure than the cough of a baby. If you get a remedy that will cure a big man's cough and yet not be too powerful for the baby, you have a good cough remedy.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is just this kind of remedy. It is good for any member of the family. It relieves coughs of all kinds. It is composed of things which cure easily and soothingly without harming the delicate tissues of the throat, and is the ideal remedy for coughs, colds, croup, influenza and whooping cough.

Yours for Health —Granny Chamberlain.

Bush fires have been very prevalent in the vicinity of Michel and Natal and on Sunday and Monday last became so threatening that the inhabitants of Natal, with the exception of the firefighters, were taken to Michel on a special train. Fire Chief McDougall of Fernie, with a detachment of the city fire brigade, went down and assisted in putting out the numerous blazes that started from time to time from the flying embers from the forest. After a hard fight everything was saved.

Justice W. A. Macdonald wound up the Supreme Court sessions here on Saturday last, reserving his decision in the tie burning case between Brown and the G. N. railway. A. Macneil appeared for a stay in the case of Gates vs. Roux. The application was refused.. S. Herchmer also requested an order from the Judge demanding a complete apology and retraction on the part of the Ledger in the case of Wallace vs. Lawson and District 18. He produced a copy of the Ledger showing the lame retraction which they had made. The order was granted.

Driver Robert W. Minton, third son of Sergt.-Major John Minton, has arrived at Portland, Maine, on the hospital ship "Essequibs," and is expected home Saturday evening, after serving four and a half years overseas. He left when only 17 years of age and has had considerable war service in France, serving in the C.M.R. Field Artillery, Mechanical Transport and Motor Field Ambulance, and was severely wounded on August 17, 1918 by shell fire while driving a motor ambulance. He has been in England ever since and is still suffering from the effects of his wounds.

A very pretty wedding took place at the United Church on Wednesday afternoon, when Miss Sarah Lancaster and Ernest H. Ward, both of Fernie, were united in marriage, the Rev. Batzold performing the ceremony. The bride was assisted by her sister, Miss Alice Lancaster, Sidney Ward acting as best man. The bride was given away by her brother, Wm. Lancaster. A large crowd of friends and relatives were present to witness the ceremony. The wedding supper was given at the home of W. Lancaster, where a large number of friends sat down to a splendid repast. The happy couple received many beautiful and useful wedding presents. They left on Friday morning for the coast to spend their honeymoon and will take up their residence in the Annex on their return.

Calgary Herald: In accordance with the agreement which the federal post office department made recently with a deputation of postal workers representing all offices in Canada, commencing next Saturday a half holiday for all workers possible will be put into effect. In Calgary, this means that the postoffice will close after 1 p.m. on Saturdays the year round except for the registration of mails and parcels, the receiving of outgoing, and the stamp wicket. On Saturdays after 1 p.m., there will be no letter carrier delivery, and the money and postal order wickets will be closed; also, there will be no sorting of mail for boxes, only a skeleton force being kept on to handle the registered mail and sell stamps. The same condition will apply on statutory holidays, also, except that the office will be open from 8 to 10 a.m. to receive registered mail. The stamp wicket and general delivery will be open also on holidays during these two hours.

THE GERMAN REVOLUTION

(By Joseph Danziger)

The revolution in Germany seemed a spontaneous outburst to the world at large. No hint of what was coming was permitted to cross the borders, and once started it spread in a few days from the North Sea to Tyrol; like some mysterious force it leaped from town to town, from province to province, from one grand duchy to the adjoining kingdom, until the entire nation rang with the battlecry: "Let us have peace and the rule of the people!" But this was only as it appeared to the outsider, who was unconscious of what had been going on behind the scenes for nearly three years.

Two other war ocrrespondents and myself determined to remain in Germany after our government had declared war, intent on being witnesses of the great historic events in preparation. My two colleagues were recalled by their papers, and it remained for me to be the only American who witnessed the revolution, and who succeeded in securing the secret history of the events preceding it. Details of the revolution are most difficult to obtain. The men who know them will not, for the most part, speak of them until affairs become more settled, and if they speak at all it is only in the strictest confidence. This is, therefore, so far as I know, the first time the story of the preliminaries to the revolution have ever been printed.

It was Maxx Hafner, boatswain in the imperial navy and former revolutionary commandant of the Schloss, the five century old palace of the Hohenzollerns in Berlin, who gave me the first detailed account of the Committee of Ten and its operations. His story was corroborated in detail, although piecemeal, by Karl Liebnecht and Emil Barth, and another Socialist, who made me promise never to reveal his name. Fate has dealt harshly with the men who made the German revolution possible. Hafner was killed during the attack by the government troops on the Vorwarts Building in Berlin, where he and about thirty of his comrades were buried in the ruins. Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg both died at the hands of assassins during the same disturbances. Ledebour has long been held a prisoner, and Barth was compelled to resign his office as one of the Commissioners of the people under the Provisional government.

Both Bart and Hasse had told me that they intended to remain in office and fight their opponents of the Majority Party from within the administration, notwithstanding the disaffection of their party with the decisions of the Congress of Workers' and Soldiers' Delegates. They made this statement two days before their resignation, and had evidently not counted on Dittmann, the third Independent Socialist on the Board of Commissioners. Dittmann is more tempermental and less calculating than the other two, and during the turbulent December days he forced the party to demand the withdrawal of all their representatives in the government. By this move every one of the men who had been instrumental in inserting the thin edge of the wedge under the throne of the Hohenzollerns was eliminated from further participation in the government they had helped to create.

In the late summer of 1915 it became apparent that the war would continue for an indefinite number of years; in fact, that it would continue until one or all of the contestants were utterly exhausted, unless some powerful climax put an end to the blood-letting. It was then that a small group of German radicals decided to terminate the world's torment by other than military means and as quickly as possible. Barth, Liebknecht, Ledebour, Hafner, and Richard Muller, afterward Chairman of the Executive Council of Berlin, were appointed a committee on organization. Early in 1916 five soldiers were added to the committee, which was henceforth known in revolutionary circles as the Committee of Ten. Barth was elected Chairman, more because of his popularity among the masses than because of any great executive ability. The work was begun by privately circulating a series of letters signed "Spartacus," after the famous Thessalonian gladiator who, with his band of 10,000 insurgents, held the mighty power of Rome at bay for a number of years. Most of the Spartacus letters were written by Ledebour, but the authorities had no definite proof of this, and because he was a member of the Reichstag they feared to arrest him without sufficient evidence.

The Spartacus letters were widely disseminated and awakened a quick response, not only among the working classes, but even among men high in the social scale, who were heartily disgusted with the war and its needless prolongation. I know of at least one big manufacturer whose American plant has recently been sold by the Custodian of Alien Property for $7,000,000 who contributed liberally to the Spartacus fund. The two daughters of a world-famous magneto manufacturer were also reputed followers of the Spartacus group. But, after all, it was from the wage earner that the greater part of the contributions flowed. These men were earning unprecedented wages, and now if ever was their chance to overthrow the junker system with the Kaiser at its head.

The agitation was inaugurated in the army in January, 1916. This was difficult and dangerous work, as owing to the constant supervision which the line officers held over the men's quarters in and behind the trenches, and the frequent inspections by higher officers, it was almost impossible to conceal radical literature, and the militarists soon got wind of the movement and issued an order that any one found with an incriminating leaflet on his person would immediately be executed after a drumhead court martial. Many an innocent man was thus summarily compelled to face a firing squad for no other reason than that the revolutionary literature was found in his bunk, although this may have been put there by a comrade who wished to avoid suspicion. Even men under the lightest suspicion were removed from the front and thrown into dungeons, where many of them languished for years without trial until released during the first weeks of the revolution.

Far from suppressing the agitation this violent method of dealing with the raidicals only added fuel to the flames. The Spartacans gained so large a following in so short a time that the government was forced to recognize the movement as a serious menace to its power. Certain centres became the foci of revolutionary agitation. Some of these, such as Spandau, where the great government munition works were located, or Dusseldorf, in the heart of the coal region, soon became hotbeds of revolt.

But it remained for Kiel, at the outlet of the canal to the North Sea, to distinguish itself as the centre from which the revolution spread throughout the empire. The men at Kiel had plenty of time to think during the intervals of their naval duties. After the battle of Jutland it was apparent even to the dullest stoker that the German fleet was hopelessly inferior to the British. The drill or practice cruises only signified disagreeable routine, which would never again lead to an active engagement. Speaking of the conditions leading up to the Kiel revolt, Captain Persius of the German navy says in his book, "Tirpitz, der Totengraber der deutschen Flotte":

"In the course of the war the situation became ever more acute. The high seas fleet was condemned to inaction. Demoralizing influences were exercised by the everlasting sameness of life aboard ship, the close quarters, the eternal drill, the Prussian milihend the soul of the common sailor, tarism, i.e., the failure to comprefailure to take personalities into consideration, and the unnneccessarily stern punishments for the slightest transgressions; the gradually growing realization that all was in vain, that the fleet could not contend against the overwhelming superiority of the enemy, and especially that the U-boat war was a failure."

The beginning of 1917 found the army as well as the navy saturated with the spirit of revolution. The autocrats of Potsdam took alarm and the Kaiser issued his famous Easter message, which proclaimed the early "reform" of the Prussian three-class ballot law. Liberal thought had even then grown so strong that at Whitsuntide Wilhelm was compelled to amend his vague promise by a more definite statement that at the earliest possible moment the existing law would be superseded by one granting "the secret, direct, and universal ballot to my subjects of Prussia." It was too late for such palliatives, although too early for the revolution. So thought the Committee of Ten, but Liebknecht was of a different opinion. On his own responsibility he ordered a general strike for May Day of that year. A few thousand men and women in Berlin and its suburbs responded. Several thousand attempted to create a diversion by parading in the streets, but were easily dispersed by the police without the aid of the soldiers. While attempting to address a crowd on the Potsdamer Platz, Liebknecht was arrested, tried by court-martial, as he was an enlisted man, and sentenced to a long term in prison.

The attempted strike, which was opnely of a revolutionary nature, created much alarm among the ruling powers. Their attention was soon directed to Kiel. An agent provocateur, an officer disguised as a warrant officer, was assigned to Kiel station and soon wormed his way into the confidence of the men. However, the Committee of Ten was not to be caught napping; it also had its secret agents, and in no less exalted a position than the Admiralty Building on the Augusta Ufer in Berlin. The committee was informed of the counterplot of the government spy and hastened to perfect its plans for a revolt and insurrection at the end of the campaign of 1917. Meantime the alleged warrant officer at Kiel was "accidentally" drowned during a practice cruise off Helgoland. He had, however, secured the names of several members of the Kiel Sailors' Council, and had reported them to Berlin. The conspirators were arrested and summarily shot without trial, and Ledebour's demands for an investigation by the Reichstag were repeatedly suppressed by special command of the "All-Highest."

Of the 62 members of the Sailors' Council 28 met their fate in front of a firing squad. The survivors were not sure how much the government had been able to learn concerning the details of their organization, and on consultation with the Committee of Ten and the various delegates of the Soldiers' Councils scattered throughout the army, it was decided to postpone activities until December, 1918, after the Autumn campaign had simmered down.

In the meantime the committee received active assistance from an unexpected source. The Bolsheviki, on coming to power in Russia, began a world-wide propaganda for a universal revolution, and in Germany they found an organization ready to hand. A Bolshevist agent, in the guise of an ambassador, M. Joffe, took charge of the embassy on Unter den Linden, and truckloads of literature as well as four millions of rubles passed through that palatial structure to the hands which would employ them most effectively.

M. Joffe's activities were finally discovered and he was compelled to abandon the field within 24 hours, but his work was even then finished. It required only the match to set off the powedr-cask. On Oct. 5, 1918, the Chancellor, Prince Max, announced to the Reichstag that an armistice had been requested of the Allies. Eight days afterward the high-sea fleet was ordered to sail from Kiel on a practice cruise. The order was commonplace enough, but the amount of coal taken aboard was sufficient for a voyage of many weeks and aroused the suspicions of the men. Their doubts were confirmed later, when the Captain of the Margraf publicly boasted that the fleet was to attack the British naval forces, if necessary to seek them out in Scapa Flow itself. The report spread like wildfire among the men. They were to be sacrificed in a mad attempt to damage the British fleet to such an extent that England would not be in a position to impose severe terms on the defeated foe.

The third squadron, including the Margraf, had in the meantime passed through the Kaiser Wilhelm Canal on the way to the North Sea. In spite of the well-filled bunkers, the ships were ordered to put in at Wilhelmshaven and take on more coal. Previous to this, deputations of the crews had visited the several commanders and informed them that although they were prepared to lay down their lives in defence of their native shores, under no circumstances would they engage in a mad enterprise involving the certain destruction of the fleet and the probable death of most of the men. They therefore refused to take the ships beyond the German mine fields.

Other preparations as well as the order to take on more coal convinced the men that, notwithstanding their protests, the desperate adventure was to be attempted. A deputation of the stokers on the Margraf sought out the captain of the vessel and the Admiral of the squadron and informed their superiors that they would not load any coal in addition to the 2600 tons already on board.

The commandant placed the refractory men under immediate arrest, but at the same time the squadron was ordered to return to Kiel lest the mutinous spirit infect the other ships lying off Wilhelmshaven. The Margraf and her consorts arrived at Kiel on Oct. 31, and the imprisoned stokers, some thirty in number, were placed in irons and dragged through the streets of Kiel to the guardhouse. This needless humiliation, which made a public spectacle of the transport, instead of cowing the men, as was intended, merely added to their fury.

On Nov. 1 the Sailors' Council met at the Labor Union building in Kiel and resolved to liberate their comrades by force if necessary, and also to compel a cancellation of the orders to fight the British fleet. By this step they anticipated the revolution, which, as has been said, was intended by the Committee of Ten to start after the armistice had been signed, some time in December.

On nearing the guardhouse the mutinous sailors were opposed by a strong detachment of marines, between whom and the bluejackets the traditional ill-feeling existed. Nevertheless, the marines refused to obey orders after some desultory firing, and, abandoning their officers, went over to the mutineers. The combined force then attacked the guardhouse and liberated the men of the Margraf, as well as other prisoners, among them some of the men who had been betrayed in the summer of 1917.

Nov. 2 was characterized by street fighting between monarchist troops and the insurrectionists, and the latter did not assume a revolutionary character until the 3rd; by that time they had greatly increased their number from the other ships in the harbor, and in many cases from detachments of soldiers who had been sent to subdue them. In the afternoon of the same day a powerful force stormed the fortress-like headquarters of the Commandant of the Port, took the Admiral and several members of his staff prisoners, and held them as hostages in the name of the Sailors' Council, which was then proclaimed as the supreme authority in the German navy.

The same evening Gustav Noske hastened to Kiel from Berlin and the next morning was chosen Commissioner of the People and Commandant of the Port. During the street fighting of those two days only seven men were killed, exclusive of officers. No report of the later losses was ever made, but many a private grudge was wiped out in blood, many an insult avenged, beofore Noske came to restore discipline. This man is a born leader, and under his strict but just rule the civilians as well as sailors and marines enjoyed an orderly regimen.

The events of the succeeding days followed each other with lightning-like swiftness. Bremen, Wilhelmshaven and Lubeck followed the example of Kiel on No. 4 and 5. Hamburg was infected with the spirit of revolt, and the Senate was forced to capitulate to the Workers', Soldiers' and Sailors' Council on Nov. 7. Alarmed at the terrifying occurrences, the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg proclaimed a constitution for his autocracy on the 6th, but it was too late. A few days afterward he was a fugitive without a crown, and the flames had spread to Potsdam and Berlin. The Kaiser fled ere yet the red flag had been hoisted in his old capital. Soldiers at the front and at home, men who had longed for peace these many years, hastened to proclaim their allegiance to the republic.

So swiftly had the overturning followed the revolt at Kiel that the Committee of Ten lost its hold on the organization. When the new government was formed on Sunday, Nov. 9, the committee could only secure the three Commissionerships and one of the presidial seats in the Executive Council. Even these posts they were not to hold for long; a strange and malignant fate seemed to pursue them, and today only four of their number are still alive, two of them in prison. Yet when the history of the German revolution is written their names must head the chapter as the men who brought about the overthrow of the last stronghold of autocracy in Europe.

THE FEAR OF LIFE

The real revelation of the war was that the majorty of men are not nnn nn nnn nnnnni afraid to die. In conscript countries and in free, under autocracy or democracy, the poor human stuff went out "with mingled loathing and elation," but without fear.

This courage was more than irrational. It was aganst all tradition. For it is certain that before the war men and women tried intensely to escape from life, and from death as the menest of life's tricks. In the ordinary run of their lives people ask for comfort and happiness. Ecstasy and exaltation are not in the daily prayer. Intensity of joy or of suffering is an accident, and though we do not resent the highest pleasure when it comes, most of us are far from willing to pay for it with a corresponding intensity of pain.

It happens that life is a little more wonderful than most of us imagine. It lies in ambush for us, and death is only one of its surprises. In the incalculable effects of the war this one may be expected: that men will accept more of life, that they will be not satisfied with its pleasant places, that they will be eager to know it when it is "wanton and wondrous and forever well."—Collier's.

THE ANARCHIST

It is easy to exaggerate the extent of the "anarchist plot." No great numbers are required to make guerrilla warfare against society; not much ingenuity is needed to manufacture a bomb or courage to place it against the door of a house where women and children lie in innocent sleep. One man, Louis Lingg, did practically all the destructive work of the "anarchist conspiracy" at Chicago in 1886. Criminologists have marked the anarchist as a lone wolf or, at worst, one who travels with small packs. If the officers of the Department of Justice did their duty under Mr. Gregory, they must have abundant evidence on which to base a search for criminals who committed the outrages of which Mr. Gregory's successor was one of the intended victims. There is always the danger, in overestimating these forces of evil, that public indignation will punish the innocent with the guilty, and a man who has done no more than agitate for a change in the laws will be treated as harshly as the madman who bombs or pistols defenceless officers of the government. But the boudoir Bolshevists, the amateurs in anarchy who think themselves safe in applauding the reign of terror in Russia, encouraging Carranza and denouncing the existing order in this country, will do well to take warning and mend their habits of speech. It is not at all likely that the maniacs who are placing bombs in doorways or sending them through the mails were inflamed by the counsel of these rhetoricians. But when the blood of the public is up it is not apt to draw fine distinctions, and if anything is clear, it is that this country will not tolerate an appeal to violence to correct social wrongs whether they are real or the creation of vain and irregular minds.—Collier's.

COMING TO THE ORPHEUM SOON

GIRLS! LEMON JUICE IS A SKIN WHITENER

How to make a creamy beauty lotion for a few cents.

The juice of two fresh lemons strained into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white makes a whole quarter pint of the most remarkable lemon skin beautifier at about the cost one must pay for a small jar of the ordinary cold creams. Care should be taken to strain the lemon juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands.

Suspension here has come at an opportune time for the Granby's plant at Anyox which has been crippled for some months through lack of labor. The Granby Company is offering all employees here and at Phoenix free transportation to Anyox and positions with the company. It is expected 50 per cent of the employees will take advantage of the opportunity to go to Anyox. Quite a number will take a holiday for a time and await developments. A considerable number of Phoenix miners will move their families to Grand Forks and take up temporary residence here.

There is a persistent optimist among the miners from Phoenix and business men who know something of the property that "Phoenix will rise again from its Granby ashes." It is admitted that Granby has possibly mined its last ton of ore in the Old Ironsides and other properties which have made Phoenix and the Granby alike famous, but they insist "there is corn in Egypt still," that mining in a substantial way will still be carried on in Phoenix when matters right themselves again.

A man who lived in Phoenix for many years got it off his chest in this way:

"Yes, Phoenix is going down; Granby is pulling up stakes, the close-down is genuine enough all right, and in a few weeks the camp will be down to the bare boards. In a month or two there will be no one left but the postmaster and the night watch. But don't fool yourself that mining is through at Phoenix; it will come to life again, there is plenty of ore there and it will not surprise me too see hundreds of men back mining again in the old camp—and during the present day and generation too.

"Granby is closing down but they are not removing the machinery; the shifting of a few ore crushers more or less is incidental in the life of any company, but take it from me the plant as a whole will remain intact. The Great Northern will also pull up their tracks but the C.P.R. will not. When you see the skids put under the compressor plant I'll admit the treats are on me. But no skids are likely being thought of; the plant will be left in readiness for resumption next year or some other year.

"Of course the Consolidated Company of Trail is the natural company to look to when Granby decamps and take it from me they are not asleep. The Trail corporation has become a mighty institution in mine development through this part of the province; they get more than metal out of ore when they smelt it. The by-products are what pay dividends. The Consolidated will be heard from both in Phoenix and Grand Forks unless I miss my guess, and a fellow is surely entitled to one guess."

It is interesting to note in this connection that the Granby report of last June stated that there were 3,274,996 tons of ore remaining in the Phoenix mine. Since that time about 150,000 tons have been mined and smelted, so there is a matter of at least 3,000,000 tons still left.

Most of the miners have already left Phoenix. Those with families are preparing to get out, only a few men being employed on cleanup work. Two ore crushers are being taken out, but these are already isolated from the mine by a cave-in and will have to be removed before the Great Northern remove their tracks, which it is expected they will do soon.

For the past year only two or three of the eight furnaces at the smelter here had been operating and it had been expected that the Granby would discontinue in the boundary and concentrate their energies on their Anyox plant, which includes the making of coke as well as mining and smelting.

During the twenty years which Granby has been operating at Grand Forks and Phoenix a total of 13,000,000 tons of ore have been mined at Phoenix and smelted in the reduction works here. From this ore was produced about 272,000,000 lbs. of copper , which together with the gold and silver content had an approximate value of $56,000,000. During the same period the company have paid out $26,000,000 in wages and $20,000,000 for repairs at the two local plants. Over $10,000,000 have been paid in dividends by the Granby Company to date.

CANADIAN FISH THE BEST

A governmental analysis of the food values of certain Canadian fish has just been completed at Ottawa, and the Canadian Trade Commission believes that if the results were widely known there would be a much greater demand for the products of our waters rather than for foreign brands of fish, which have merely a wider advertisement to recommend them. For instance, in four classes of the much "boosted" Norwegian sprats and bristlings packed as sardines, the calories given are 1314, 1640, 1663 and 1174. Canadian little herrings, our equivalent fish, also packed as sardines, contained 1832, 1720, 1459 and 1795 calories, respectively.

The same revelation is made in the case of herring—the Canadian variety stands out for its better food value. The best known British brand, packed in tomato sauce, contains only 775 calories, as compared with four leading Canadian varieties of 890, 1061, 1081 and 1024 calories.

The "calorie," it may be mentioned is the recognized measurement of nutriment in foods, just as the pound is for weight, and the yard for length. The higher the calorie for the same price, the better the value of the food.

The Trade Commmission is omitting no occasion to point out the advantage of consuming Canadian produced food within the Dominion, both for its excellence and for its undoubted cheapness compared with imported classes.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

"Around the Corner" — Not original.—A little reminder—lest you forget:—

Around the corner I have a friend,
In this great city that has no end;
Yet days go back and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year is gone;
And I never see my old friend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I like him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell,
And he rang mine. We were younger then,
And now we are busy, tired men—
Tired with playing a foolish game;
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I said, "I will call on Jim,
Just to show that I am thinking of him,"
But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes
And the distance between us grows and grows;
Around the Corner—Yet miles away.
"Here's a telegram sir." "Jim died today,"
And that's what we get, and deserve in the end,
Around the corner—a vanished friend.

Notable among the social events of the past week was the delightful tea given at the Boston Mansions by Mrs. A. J. Carter in honor of Mrs. Ray G. Hirtz, who is leaving for Spokane and coast cities. The rooms were daintily but effectively decorated, and the affair was a social success.

A big tourist hotel projected at the Roosville Falls; summer cottages; also fenced off enclosures for campers. For several years past this beauty spot has been the rendezvous for hundreds of Americans to come and visit and to camp. Now visitors from the prairie provinces are coming, so to meet the demands of the tourists and keep them coming accommodation will be guaranteed to all visitors. A big dance will be given in the school house on June 28. Good music and free supper.

Mrs. Geo. H. Scott, of the Port of Roosville, passed through Elko to Nelson, where her children are attending school. Mr. Scott operates the largest farm in the Roosville valley, the home of the big red apples.

Miss M. M. Andersan, who has charge of Elko's rural temple of learning, is putting a colossal carnival show on by the entire school children in the Hirtz opera house, on June 27. Thirty-six children, the pride of the Crow's Nest Pass, will scatter seeds of musical kindness in a glittering whirl of novel military drills, plays, dialogues and songs, tuneful and gay, sparkling with mirth and melody. A stirring scene from Uncle Tom's cabin on Rock Creek, showing with a full cast, with real Elko bloodhounds handled by M. Gorman, the greatest criminal tracker in these hills, known as the human ferret. This is far more exciting than a Dog's Life by Charlie Chaplin.

We have, as everybody knows, the most beautiful scenery around Elko there is in the Sunset Province, but we are awful short on eggs just now.

The old original Elko summer sunshine is shining on the tourists these days. There is no other just as good as Elko.

Miss M———, of Nelson—It is very nice to know that you admire and enjoy the Elko Notes so much, although we could tell by your handwriting that you were no fool. Just cut yourself a piece of cake.

The Lou Foisy Tire Hospital in Elko is doing a whale of a business. The hotels are breaking all records. Big demand for furnished rooms, cottages and camp allotments. You can't come from the west and go into Alberta, nor come from Alberta to B.C. without passing through Elko if you are anxious to see the best part of B.C. It's the place where the trout jump high.

Sergt. I. M. Watson, Vancouver, late of the 225th, and Hilton Scott, of Nelson, passed through Elko for Roosville to attend the big doings June 28, at Roosville Falls.

Jim Thompson of Cranbrook, and late of the Columbia hotel, Elko, is acting as pilot to foreign automobile tourists between Elko and Cranbrook, not for the money there is in it, but to show the tourists the beautiful scenery there is along the Crow's Nest Pass. Just help yourself to the mustard, Jim. You're a man after our own heart.

The salesmen and travellers visiting the Old Historic Burg this past week is unavoidably held over for next week. We have some good specials in this line that will warm the cockles of the most unimpressionable heart. Some real ice box curios. Be sure and get a copy.

DEPORT THE BOLSHEVISTS

(Vernon News)

There is no good reason, says the Toronto Globe, why the Canadian taxpayer should be burdened with the maintenance of Bolshevists or revolutionists from foreign countries or from any part of the British Empire. These gentry should be sent back to the countries whence they came, and in the case of the European breeders of trouble that would be the most severe punishment, for none of them want to go back, especially the Russians. The only kind of Bolshevists that this country should be responsible for feeding and lodging at the public expense is the Canadian variety, which is usually represented by men whose minds have become perverted by false teachings, who conjure up imaginary wrongs and tyrannies from which they never suffered, and work themselves into a state of frenzy bordering on insanity. There are a few Canadian revolutionaries, it must be confessed, who cannot be accued of weak mentality or incipient insanity and who from mere desire for destruction or lust for power preach doctrines that may lead some of their less able fellow citizens to reckless deeds against life and property.

For these preachers of violence as a means to better conditions instead of the slower but more certain constitutional methods, the penitentiary is the best abiding place that the country can offer. Actuated, no doubt, by the belief that the lesson has been learned and that clemency will but emphasize it, the government has opened the doors of the prisons for some of these revolutionists before they have had time realize that they were "sitting in the ashes of thei rfolly." The result has been to spread the impression that no great harm can come to anyone who implants belief in the wisdom of violence in the hearts of unthinking mobs. It is a practice that may yet cause the government to sit in the ashes of penitence, with the sackcloth of regret as their only garment.

AUTO RACING AT THE CALGARY FAIR

Calgary, June 25.—Luminaries of the gasoline world will battle on the track at the Calgary Exhibition on Friday and Saturday, July 4 and 5, for $4000 in cash prizes and also the honor and glory that usually goes to the victor. The entry list contains the names of eight of the most famous pilots on the circular courses, and Manager Richardson of the Exhibition is proudly boasting that he has landed the "cream" of the driving talent.

Such noted Mercurian monarchs as "Wild Bill" Endicott, Jules Ellingboe, Dave Koetzla, R. Burr Lampkin, Irvin Hoffman, Ray Claypool, Joe Fosser, and Joe Cooper will face J. Alex. Sloan, of Chicago, in the first event on Friday. Endicott, Ellingboe and Koetzla have countless admirers among the racing enthusiasts of Calgary and vicinity, as they have displayed their driving ability in previous meets.

The cars that will compete include a Briscoe, Hudson, Rahe Special, Lorraine Special, Case Comet, Italian Buggati, Mooney Special and an "S. X." Special. Seven events are listed on the program daily, and the races will start promptly at 2.30 o'clock. So great were the crowds at the races in 1917 and 1918 that this year the directors of the Exhibition have constructed a new grand stand for the purpose of accommodating the public. This season it will be possible to seat 15,000 and judging from interest already manifested, it is certain that the capacity of both grand stands will be tested.

THE RE-ELECTION OF SAMUEL GOMPERS

The re-election of Samuel Gompers as President of the American Federation of Labor is something more than a renewal of confidence in him. The spirit he showed in steering the ship of Labor during the anxious period of the war won for him an approval which was enhanced by the opposition he met from the reactionary elements in the ranks of Labor. This approval has been endorsed by his re-election. This re-election, therefore, serves to show that the heart of Labor is sound and spells confusion to those who with too much excess of logic run amuck with wild and Utopian ideas.

In the present industrial unrest throughout the world there is abundant need of that wisdom which goes with wise counsellers who are accepted as such amongst the rank and file of Labor. Gompers has enemies but they are amongst those who are the holders of principles which in their trend are revolutionary with nothing practical in them to meet the situation which they are endeavoring to create. The men who revile Gompers, and they have been heard in this as in other cities, emphasize the need of leaders like the present President of the American Federation of Labor to save Labor from being engulfed in the whirlpool to which these fiery spirits are seeking to lead it.

It is not too much to say that the mind of labor is inflamed these days. Labor is smarting under injustices which demand adjusting. If left to unwise leaders the outcome must be chaos. This intelligent Labor appreciates in the action the great Federation of Labor of America has taken in naming its President. Samuel Gompers, at a time of stress and trial, showed himself a master of the situation in a way that appealed to all right thinking men inside and outside the ranks of Labor. Labor needs the sympathy of the public, and with a man of the calibre of the head of the American Federation of Labor, with a belief in constitutional methods, to direct the policy of Labor, this looks assured.—Lethbridge Herald.

CAST OF ONE THOUSAND IN NEW JEWEL

"Sirens of Sea" Elaborate Production

One of the most lavish and beautiful features to come to the Orpheum theatre this season will be shown on Friday and Saturday. It is titled "Sirens of the Sea" and was inspired by Heine's "Legend of the Lorelei." One thousand persons were constantly employed in the cast and the production took six months to complete. Allen Hollubar is the director and Louise Lovely, Carmel Myers and Jack Mulhall are the featured players. Grace Helen Bailley is responsible for the script, scenarioized by Hollubar.

The story concerns a baby girl washed on the shore of a strange island in the Pacific, following a teriffic storm. She is discovered by Haji, an old beach comber, and adopted by Wellington Stanhope and his wife, wealthy Americans residing, for diplomatic reasons, on the island. Grown to beautiful girlhood, she is placed by her foster parents in the fashionable seminary for girls located on the island and attended by students from the States. The girls don seaweed and ukeleles in a particularly festive party on the beach one day ,and they are sighted by Gerald Waldron, wealthy young American, cruising in foreign waters to escape ennui, accompanied by his friend Hartley Royce. Believing the maidens to have escaped from some enchanted land, the young men steer their launch in their midst as they swim out to them.

A strong attachment follows between Sybil, the island girl and Gerald. Royce, too in deeply interested in the young woman, which adds to the discomfiture of Julie, a beautiful and unschrupulous young student from Taxas. She tells Gerald on Sybil's 18th birthday, after she has gone to see the services of Haji, to tell the fortunes of her guests, that a mystery surrounds the birth of Sybil. Sybil has been followed by Hartley and when she repulses his advances, she jumps over a cliff into the ocean.

Gerald, going to look for her, finds her cape, and there follows a long search through an enchanted land and a final terrific struggle between Gerald and Royce, before the young lovers depart for America on the hero's luxurious yacht.

His father was not only a minister, but one who stood high in the councils of the kirk, so it was not seemly that three year old Angus should play on the street on the Sabbath. But not even the threat of pains and penalties could keep the laddie from casting envious looks on the more fortunate boys at their play. At last flesh and blood could keep silence no longer, and turning to his mother he said: "Mother, I hope the lions get those wicked boys who play on the street on the Sabbath." "What lions, laddie?" "The Lord's Day Lions, mother."

FOR DISTRIBUTION

I. O. D. E.

Miss Wales, of the Frank Sanitarium, recently addressed the Daughters of the Empire, giving the society an idea of the needs of the men there, who are all tubercular in various stages of the disease. Some are able to be out and indulge in light recreation, and for these the society sent down a dozen fishing rods. Others are only able to enjoy the fresh air by getting car rides. The citizens of Blairmore have been very good in loaning their cars for occasional trips to Crow's Nest. But as the season that they are allowed to be out is very short, it was suggested that all those who wish to contribut towards giving these unfortunate men a little pleasure should send their donation, no matter how small, to Mrs. S. Graham. Receipt of all money will be acknowledged in the Free Press. We hope there will be a hearty response to this appeal.

The I.O.D.E. have had an urgent appeal from the Provincial Chapter to aid the French Red Cross of France, which, we are told, is in great need of our help. In the devastated regions the people have lost everything, thousands of men, women and children having but the insufficient clothing they stand in. In the manufacturing centres of France occupied and devastated by the Germans, all machinery that could be shipped to Germany was sent there and all other machinery destroyed, so that the industries of France will be seriously crippled for long months. It will be some time before France will be able to help herself. All those who can sew are urgently asked to do so. Garments have been cut out at the Red Cross rooms, on the third floor of the Napanee hotel. We are given one month in which to do this work. All applications for work can be made either at the rooms every Thursday afternoon or at the home of the Regent, Mrs. A. I. Fisher. We urge immediate and hearty co-operation of all women.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS

The City Clerk has sent per registered mail to all persons whose property is liable to be sold for taxes, a notice to that effect and stating the amount required to be paid to save the property from being sold. Recent legislation as regards Tax Sales should be carefully noted by all who are interested, as it is no longer necessary to advertise the list of properties to be sold in the Gazette and in the local press, as was done in former years. The notice above mentioned, which has already been sent per registered mail to all who own property or have a registered interest in property liable to be sold for taxes, is the only notice which is legally necessary and no further notice will be given. The tax sale will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 30 and a tax sale will be held every year in future on or about the same date, as this has now been made compulsory by the legislation recently passed.

In future the only notice of tax sale will be on the annual tax notice and no other notice will be given.

After the tax sale has been held the owner of the property has one year in which to redeem and if he fails to redeem within the year a certificate of indefeasible title will be issued to the purchaser without any further proceedings on his part.

BASEBALL

The Waldo baseball team visited Fernie on Sunday last for the return game with our local swatters. The day was a perfect one for baseball and the boys showed it by the way they started out. This was a real battle all the way until the 7th innings. At the beginning of the 4th the score was 0-0, and it looked as though it would be a very close game. Then Fernie managed to slip over three runs in the next two innings, and when the "lucky seventh" came the boys took a streak and batted all around. This started them and when the game was called the score was 15 to 1 in favor of Fernie, Waldo getting one run on an overthrow to third base. Sofko in the box pitched the game of the season, while Dragon on second should be handed a medal for his playing. Most of the plays for Fernie were on the infield as the Waldo boys could not drive past the base lines. However, Waldo is not downhearted as they have entered a team for the prize money on July 1. Wycliffe and Wardner have also put in teams, so there will be three games of ball that day.

On Tuesday night the Old Timers were again defated by the F.A.A.C. in a good game. Everything went fine until the 7th innings (which seems to be alucky one for the F.A.A.C.), when Dunlap relieved Scott in the box for the Old Timers. It appeared as though another merry go round had started but with good support the O. T. managed to get three men out and ended the torture. From then on the players settled down and the game wound up with a score of 9-4 in favor of the F.A.A.C.

FOOTBALL NEWS

The best soccer game of the season was pulled off on Wednesday evening at the north end grounds between the G.W.V.A. and Michel. This being a return game, and Michel having won on their home field, this one was expected to be a sizzler and it was. Michel won the toss and elected to play with the wind and sun in their backs, which proved a big advantage. The Michel team pressed right from the start and came very close to scoring from a corner kick, Yates just heading over the bar. After that Michel never had much of a chance to score. Yates was completely bottled up with the Vets' defence, which was a treat to watch. Riley at half didn't seem to play his usual stellar game but Geo. Lynn and Wheeler more than made up for it. The first half ended no score. In the second half did mostly all the pressing, but didn't seem to have the team play of Michel in their forward line. The Vets missed several opportunities, one of them being a penalty kick. The kick was entrusted to Dick Thornton but he shot it right into the hands of the goal tender. It was tough luck for the Vets as this goal would have cinched the game for them. The game ended in a draw a few minutes afterwards.

There were about five hundred spectators present and all were on their toes all the time. The Vets have a defence that is practically impossible to pass. Booth and Riley as full backs are like a stone wall. George Lynn should have played centre forward instead of B. Smith, who should have taken Lynn's place. The game was protested by Michel and it is more than likely the game will be replayed.

The Teamsters and Coal Creek played to a draw last night, 2—2. This game was fairly well attended but it didn't have any effect on the league leaders. It was a fairly quiet game throughout and not much pep. Michel plays a return game with the teamsters on July 19. This will also be a game worth going to see. Remember the date.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Official announcement has been made to the effect that James K. Wilson, a former resident of Fernie, is opening a cabaret in the city of Vancouver, B.C.

Mr. Wilson was in business in the East Kootenay district some few years ago and is widely known throughout this part of the Province. He was a member of the Royal Air Forces until recently discharged, and now is one of the Aerial League of Canada.

Mr. Wilson's establishment is one of the largest and possibly the most elaborate cabaret in the city. The mural paintings by R. Bullett, a New York artist of wide renown, are a topic of much discusion and appreciation among those who have had the opportunity of seeing them. The music and entertainment is in charge of H. V. Whalen, who is well known in that line of work in Los Angeles and southern California. The entertainers are now en route from San Francisco and will arrive in time to be well rehearsed for the grand opening on the night of July 1st. The very best of everything is being provided and a good time is assured every one who visits the Regent Cabaret.

The Cabaret is in the Regent Hotel, one of Vancouver's better hotels, located at 162-4-6-8 Hastings St. E.

Mr. Wilson is looking forward to the opportunity of meeting and entertaining all his Fernie friends during their stay in Vancouver.

IN HONOR OF PATCHES

This is a new country and we like new things. We look down on patches. We wear good clothes and good boots if we have not a cent in the bank. We look down on the farmer roughly but open our eyes when he pulls a big roll out of his old pocket. In France, in Scotland, in some parts of England, and generally in all the older countries they often wear patches on their clothes. That is one of the great differences between the people on the two sides of the Atlantic. But they wear patches and lend us money by the millions of pounds. We disdain patches and pay them interest at the rate of millions of dollars yearly. We have learned to wear patches during the war. We wear patches on our hearts for the boys who sleep where poppies grow —in Flanders—the land of patches. Many of our brave boys who have come back are wearing patches. Patches on limb or body, patches on sorely tried nerves. We think better of patches than we did. The nations that wear patches save money, and they put their hard earned savings into safe hands—they lend to their country. The Thrift Stamp Campaign has been started to honor patches. It is to patch up the burdens we have to carry. It is to induce us to save a little. That benefits ourselves. It is to induce us to help save for our country and that is a double and triple saving. A Thrift Stamp costs 25c; for saving 16, the government gives you $5 on January 1, 1924. Wear a patch on your clothes with a light heart if you have started out to put money by, saved for Canada, and helped to patch up the holes the war has torn.

A PEACE CELEBRATION

A special meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction, which was appointed some time ago relative to the big Peace Celebration which will be held here, has been called for this afternoon. Reports in today's press indicate that this celebration will be held throughout Canada on July 19, and in view of this the committee will necessarily have to get arrangements speedily in hand to make preparations in order that the occasion may be a gigantic success. Full particulars of the nature of the celebration will be duly advertised and every effort will be made to make the occasion one of the greatest festive events ever pulled off here.

BANQUET AND PRESENTATION

Last Friday evening a most sumptuous banquet was tendered to Tom Cole, member of the Govt. Agent's staff, upon the occasion of his departure for Victoria, where he has been promoted to the staff of the Comptroller General. The banquet was held under the auspices of the Fernie Curling Club and immediate friends of Mr. Cole, in the Northern Cafe, and approximately 150 were present. M. A. Kastner, President of the Curling Club, presided, while seated on his right was the guest of honor, Mr. Cole, and also seated at this table were the members of the Club executive.

After the guests had partaken of a choice repast, speeches became the order of the evening and many tributes of esteem and appreciation for his efforts since residing in this community, and the popularity he had achieved, were heartily expressed. A handsome cabinet of silver was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Cole as a slight token of the estimation in which they were held by the friends they were leaving behind. The presentation address was made by Sherwood Herchmer to which Mr. Cole replied in his own inimitable, forcible and witty manner. A deligthful musical program was rendered to which among several others the Returned Veterans' Quartette contributed repeatedly.

THE ROD AND GUN CLUB

The Fernie District Rod and Gun Club held a meeting in Ingram's Hall on June 9th, when the following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Dr. Bonnell.
President—N. E. Suddaby.
Vice-President—Mat Tully.
Sec.-Treas.—T. Beck.
Executive — G. R. Johnson, A. Frearson, W. Baldrey, T. Prentice, W. March.

The regular meeting night of the Club was fixed for the 2nd Monday in each month. The membership fee is $1.00. The Club now has a membership of about 75.

Steps have been taken to promote the welfare of fishing in this district and the stocking of streams where the fish are being depleted.

On June 19 the Club met F. A. Dunn, Deputy Game Warden, and went over matters with him, making several recommendations both as to fishing and hunting. Steps are being taken by the different clubs throughout the district for the Provincial government to get control of the inland fisheries.

On Wednesday evening, July 2nd, the Club met R. E. Rose, Provincial Secretary of the Game Conservation Board, when matters of importance were discussed and recommendations made.

There will be a meeting of the Govt. Game Conservation Board at Victoria on July 21, when the different clubs are expected to send delegates to confer with the board. Fernie Club expects to have a representative there.

MRS. BARCLAY CONTESTS WILL

The Vancouver Province of a recent date says:

The question of the interpretation of the will of the late Mr. W. G. Barclay, manager of the A. Macdonald Co., Limited, was laid before Mr. Justice Murphy. Unusual interest attaches to the matter because the interpretation of the clauses may make a difference of $34,000 in the amount of the legacy to be given to Mrs. Barclay.

The will is a very lengthy one, intended to cover all contingencies. In one clause a direction is given to the trustees that all of the monies from the testator's insurance policies are to be invested in a certain way. Another clause provides that a legacy of $30,000 is to go to Mrs. Barclay in the event of the general estate exceeding a certain sum.

It appears that Mr. Barclay before his death had borrowed monies from two of the insurance companies against the security of his policies. After his death the policies were paid less the amount of the loans.

"The question which perplexes the trustees," stated Mr. H. S. Wood, "is whether the loans must be treated as debts and paid out of the general estate and the full amount of the policies be handed over for the special investment, or whether merely the amount paid in by the insurance companies is to be treated as the proceeds of his insurance policies.

It was Mr. Robt. Smith who appeared for Mrs. Barclay, who intimated that the question was not a mere academic one.

"The question so affects the general estate that it will make a difference of $34,000 to my client, according to how the matter is treated," he said. At Mr. Smith's request an adjournment was made to enable him to obtain copies of the insurance policies.

GETTING AFTER THE O.B.U.

A mass of "red flag" and Bolshevist literature, among it a number of prohibited documents, was seized by members of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police in a raid late Monday night and early Tuesday morning on the Calgary Labor Temple and the homes and rooms of various O.B.U. advocates and labor agitators.

The places were searched under the authority of search warrants issued at Winnipeg and endorsed by Police Magistrate Sanders.

The raid on the offices of District 18 United Mine Workers of America, was made about 11 a.m. Tuesday. P. M. Christophers, of the United Mine Workers was aroused at the St. Regis hotel and escorted the police to the offices where they made a thorough search, remaining in charge until noon Tuesday. An old safe which the mine workers officials say had not been opened for two years and which they could not open was opened for them by the searchers, but nothing was found in it.

The Winnipeg search warrants also included one for the residence of Ed Browne of the U. M. W. A., but he could not be located at the time the raid was made.

BROKE A RECORD

Tommy Roe went up to Calgary on Sunday to attend the races. Tommy is deeply interested in some racing stock owned by his brother and he will no doubt be greatly pleased with the result of the first day's races. The Calgary Herald contains the following item about the races:

Stepping the mile in the 2.09 pace or 2.04 trot against a strong field of entries on Dominion Day, Calgary Earl, a native-born horse, owned by Sam Roe, broke the track record established by the late Dick Mayburn when he went the distance in 2.11½. Calgary Earl shattered the mark by three seconds when he took the first heat in 2.08½, and in the second and third heats he also beat the local track record by going the distance in 2.10 for the second and 2.10¼ in the third, winning over such fast steppers as Armadillo, Lady Hal and Hal Victor.

THE O.B.U. MEANING

Ottawa Journal: The One Big Union campaign which the Winnipeg sympathetic strike represents, was born in Canada at the Calgary Western Labor Conference in March last, where, according to the Calgary Herald, a delegate named Nixon made a clear-cut statement of the program of the revolutionists in the following words:

"If we come to facts, hide it as you will, we are going to adopt a policy of force."

This statement brought no dissent in the conference. The Winnipeg strike is avowedly an O.B.U. movement. It is a movement to compel by force of some kind what those who are engaged in it ought to be anxious to compel only by votes. If the O.B.U. advocates are a majority of Canadians they can get all they want by the use of their votes; if they are not a majority, they have no excuse for trying to compel this country to do what they want by plunging every community in which some of them exist into loss and distress.

The regular meeting of the Fernie Branch of the Navy League will be held at the council chamber at 8 p.m. on Tuesday.

WILL HOLD PRIZE DAY

On Friday, July 11th, an interesting ceremony under the auspices of Mount Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E. and the Fernie Branch of the Navy League will be held in the beautiful grounds surrounding the Government Buildings.

Mrs. G. G. Moffatt will present a splendid standard to the Chapter. Prizes will be awarded the students having attained first standing in Canadian History in Divisions I, II and III; also prizes for the Fernie-Cranbrook competition on The Flag.

Medals will be presented to the pack of Cubs having won the pennant the greatest number of times during the year. All Cubs are requested to attend in uniform.

Short speeches will be given by Dr. Bonnell, M.P., A. I. Fisher, M. P.P., the Clergy, School Board and others. The programme will be interspersed by patriotic songs by the school children, who, it is hoped, will be in full attendance.

It is through the public schools of Canada that the Daughters of the Empire hope to contribute their share towards the building of the nation, by supplementing the efforts of the educational authorities, in the encouraging of the teaching and study of British and Canadian History, that all our children, especially the foreign born, may learn more and yet more of those ideals and institutions for which our Empire stands. So it is most earnestly hoped that a large attendance of citizens may be present at this the first prize day of the I.O.D.E. and Navy League.

In the event of the day being rainy the function will be held in Victoria Hall. Don't forget the date—July 11, at 3.30 p.m.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., July 3rd, 1919.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Mr. Editor—It is nearly two months ago since the Board of Trade was resurrected. I understand it was done for the purpose of bringing the citizens of Fernie to a full realization of the wonderful natural beauties of our local scenery, and to institute an active campaign on the outside with the object of making this town and district popular with tourists. At that meeting I urged the necessity of immediate action being taken if any good was to be derived this year, and stated that our local scenery was absolutely the best there is anywhere in North America, and that even without going to any expense for improvements we were in a much better condition to make a start now than many of the leading tourist resorts in Washington, Oregon and California were when they commenced their publicity. This I do know, because I visited them all whilst on my recent trip and got my information direct from the different Chambers of Commerce or Tourist Bureaus.

Well, as is usual here, there is always a lot of froth but very little beer. I have asked several members of the different committees that were formed if anything had been done yet, but have not found out that anything has. One told me that owing to the strike coming on it was not a good time to solicit subscriptions; another told me that he had been too busy lately to do anything and so on. Now, the first reason is perhaps a good one, if we admit that this town is absolutely dependent upon the mines and miners, and if we do admit it now, then the best thing to do is to get Geo. Thomson to plant us up on the hill, because we are all dead ones, and that is the best place for us. The very fact that there is a strike on at present and in consequence business quiet, makes it a good time to try to convince the business men that we have a valuable asset in our good roads and magnificent scenery and that any tourists we can induce to make a short stay means so much money spent in the town. I have heard some of the business men say that the only people who reap any benefit from them are the hotels and garages. That kind of talk is simply ridiculous. I maintain that practically every business, either directly or indirectly, gets its share. I don't care who the tourist may be, or how complete he thought his arrangements before starting, before he has been on the road long he will find that he needs to get something or other, and I feel quite certain that if we tackle this proposition in the right way and start in now, in the course of two or three years we shall all be looking very much more cheerful during strike times, and absolutely radiant when the mines are working.

I have been in this town going on 17 years and to my knowledge the only advertising it has ever had has been done by private effort and calamities, also by the Rev. Dr. Shearer! I have tried to do my share and I do not think a high salaried publicity man sent out by the city could have done more. I came into contact with tourists from all over America and all the Automobile Clubs, Tourist Bureaus and Chambers of Commerce along the line of my trip and boosted Fernie and District incessantly. There is hardly a mail comes in which does not contain a letter asking for particulars of routes, etc., and in every case when I reply, I invariably recommend a stay off here, mentioning our various inducements. Only last week a prominent business man of Calgary was camped on Morrissey Creek and invited me out. He told me that he had not known about our scenery and had made his arrangements to spend his time camping in the vicinity of Spokane at the different place He Had Seen Advertised, but on his way through to there he had taken such a fancy to our scenery that he decided to cut his stay around Spokane short and come back to Morrissey and have a good time, and when I visited his camp there, he sure was having a good time; as he expressed it, "It was the time of his life." He had been there for over a week and said that he was sorry that business called him back, but as soon as he could get away again he was coming back there, and would also have several other car loads

HOME BANK OF CANADA REPORTS RECORD YEAR

Deposits During War Period Have Increased Over 105 p.c., Notwithstanding Large Subscriptions to Victory Loans —Liquid Assets Equivalent to Over 57 p.c. of Total Liabilities to Public—M. J. Haney, President, Strikes Note of Confidence in Outlook in Canada.

Toronto, July 2.—(Special) — The reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Home Bank of Canada indicated that the bank has enjoyed one of the most satisfactory years in its history.

Steady progress has been made during the past few years and advantage has been taken of it to place the bank in a strong financial position and at the same time meet the growing requirements of the customers. The progress made was referred to particularly by General Manager Mason, who pointed out that liquid assets now amounted to over 57 p.c. of the total liabilities to the public, or actual cash assets were the strongest in the history of the bank, representing approximately 22 p.c. of total liabilities to the public. Large gains were also made in deposits, the increase for the past twelve months having amounted to over three and a half millions, notwithstanding the fact that 9,508 of the depositors had subscribed over $4,900,000 to the last Dominion Victory Loan. The increase in deposits during the war period had amounted to over ten million dollars, an increase of over 105 p.c and reflects the increased patronage extended the bank by the public in both savings and general commercial lines. None of these figures include deposits of the Dominion Government.

The general statement of assets and liabilities everywhere reflects the progress made, the total assets of the bank now standing at $28,635,924, as compared with $23,675,773 at the end of the previous year. Total deposits now stand at $18,500,000, as compared with $14,600,000 at the end of the previous year.

With the larger resources at its disposal, the bank has been able to extend its general lines of business and the current loans and discounts in Canada now stand at $12,393,795, as compared with $11,307,680. Call and short loans in Canada have gained to $3,092,826, as compared with $939,909. Dominion and Provincial Government securities $2,757,860 against $1,548,211, which Canadian municipal securities and British foreign and colonial public securities, other than Canadian, amount to $2,416,266, as compared with $2,727,332. $100,000 added to Rest Account.

The Profit and Loss Account is also of special interest to shareholders, as it reflects a gain in profits and has permitted of an appropriation to rest account of $100,000. The net profits for the year amounted to $238,753, equivalent to 10.63 p.c. of the paid up capital and reserve fund. This amount, added to profit and loss, brought the total amount available for distribution up to $289,484. This was applied as follows:—Dividends $97,378; government tax on note circulation, $19,348; written off bank premises, $10,000; donations to war funds, $4,500; transferred to rest account, $100,000; balance carried forward, $158,348, as compared with $150,371 at the end of the previous year.

President's Address

Mr. M. J. Haney, persident of the Home Bank of Canada, at the annual meeting, struck a distinct note of confidence in the outlook in Canada, and took the view that there was very little ground for the apprehension dwelling in the minds of some of the Canadian people. It was plain, said Mr. Haney, in what direction our duty lies. We require to stimulate desirable immigration to cultivate our unoccupied arable lands and produce freight loads for our transportation system. Shipbuilding must be correspondingly increased to carry on the exportation of our produce. A close co-operation between the departments of the government in finance and tariff regulations, labour and capital, agriculture, commerce and transportation will make operative in complete confidence the national programme we have in hand for the development of our wealth and resources.

Continuing Mr. Haney also pointed out that while the work of re-construction had begun in Europe, the task in Canada still remains one of development and initiative and this work will be inconveniently handicapped if any under-current of pessimism should become inspired through a popular misunderstanding of our national finances, or a too narrow reading of the figures of our national bookkeeping. In 1913 statistics were circulated from a foreign source which tended to show that Canada was then financially in a most unenviable position. Within seven months from the date these adverse figures were given currency we had declared for active participation in the European war and disproved all economic deductions. In the year 1918 as many as 103 steel and wooden vessels were built in Canadian shipyards. To the end of December, 1918, Canada had exported $1,002,672,413 worth of munitions. While prosecuting the war we carried on our agricultural and mining operations with increased activity, maintained all public service departments of our government and largely financed the expense of this vast programme from our own wealth.

TWISTING THE LION'S TAIL

Explanation regarding the apparently hostile attitude of many prominent American senators towards Great Britain is given by a Washington correspondent of the New York Herald as qquoted by the Toronto Mail and Empire. The Herald's correspondent has been told by senators that it is inevitable in the debate that there will be considerable criticism of England, and that those who are not prepared for it and do not understand the circumstances may gather the idea that a great many senators, perhaps the majority of them, are anti-British. This, the senators, say, would be a grave error. We have no hesitation in agreeing with the senators. The majority in the Senate is not anti-British. It is simply very pro-American. The trouble with the Senate, or rather with those members of the Senate who are opposed to the adoption of the League of Nations Covenant, is that they will find themselves unable to attack the League without also attacking Great Britain. Our Empire is in the position of an unfortunate bystander, and will receive many a clout aimed ostensibly at the League of Nations, but in reality aimed at President Wilson. We believe this will be generally understood in Canada, if not in Great Britain, and that the debate in the Senate will not disturb the relations between the two countries.

I is significant, says the Mail and Empire, that the United States Senate took the unprecedented course of formally expressing sympathy for the Irish cause, and asking that de Valera and his fellow-disloyalists be heard at the Peace Conference. Of course, there are many senators who would not mind unostentatiously giving a boost to any cause that Irish-Americans support, but for the Senate as a body to go on record as interfering in an affair that is strictly a British question is astonishing. Moreover, we find Senator Harry Cabot Lodge supporting the resolution. Nobody can say that Senator Lodge has been anti-British. He was the first senator, as his son-in-law, the late Col. Gardiner, was the first member of the House of Representatives, to urge that the United States enter the war. Yet now we find Senator Lodge in a tail-twisting attitude, simply because the Monroe Doctine is described as a "regional understanding" and something therefore to be interpreted by the League of Nations. If Great Britain is to have any say in the interpretation of the Monroe Doctrine, then the United States Senate cannot be accused of meddling if it offers advice upon the Irish question. That is Senator Lodge's view. Being warned in advance, it is to be hoped that we shall bear philosophically any verbal assaults that may be made by American senators absorbed in the exciting sport of trying to discredit President Wilson.

FROM POVERTY TO WEALTH

There are many men on the continent of America who once had nothing but a small wage who are today wealthy men. There are corporations which started small and are today wealthy. We are often envious of men who have risen from poverty tot wealth. We relish scandal about how they made it. While it is true that many great fortunes have been amassed by methods not worthy of imitation it is not true that moderate fortunes have been unworthily acquired. It is also certain that the transition from poverty to wealth was never accomplished by purely dishonest method. Let any thousand men in our own community who are poor start out at the age of 18 and use dishonest methods, and those who are not hung will be in jail before many years have passed. Dishonesty will not start one on the path from wealth to poverty. If a man once secures a financial start he may not be contented and may use his money to acquire more and greater wealth than he ought to have.

Self-denial and the savings habit, or what is called thrift, is at the bottom of every foundation on which every great fortune was built. Men got their upward start by having money saved at the moment that opportunity knocked at their door. The Thrift Campaign is to bridge the gap between poverty and wealth. It is to start the smallest wage earner on the path which all wealthy men had to follow who did not inherit their wealth. That path is Thrift — the habit of economizing, and on saving. You can start to become a National Creditor and Bondholder with 25c under this scheme. It is the first rung on the ladder of success.

REVOLT OF THE INEFFICIENT

What is this thing men call bolshevism. I'll tell you in a simple phrase. It is the revolt of the inefficient. Not the revolt of skilled labor, of the brain-worker; but the revolt of the men who can't do things and want to pull down the man who can. Remember that. Keep it always in front of you. The revolt of the inefficient, resenting the prosperity of the efficient. I don't mean Prussian efficiency; I mean human efficiency.

There is a certain class of Americans who have near-brains and nothing to do. They search for something "different." These are the parlor bolshevists. They are harmful only in that they are allowed to talk freely.

What is the preletariat Lenine and Trotsky whine about? He is actually the lowest in the human scale, the illiterate, the superstitious, the ignorant, in a country which has no freedom of opportunity. Agreat many people mistake the word for the laboring man. Never in this world. Lenine and Trotsky—the two greatest criminal demagogues God ever permitted to walk the earth — say that this proletariat shall rule the world. What a tragic joke? Imagine it! All one has to do is to glance at Russia—a part of it, mind you. For two-thirds of Russia are fighting bolshevism.

To make all men equal, says Trotsky. Men are equal only in lawful privileges. Keep that in your mind. They are not born equal; they never will be born equal. They are equal only in the privileges of the law of the land.

To give to the lowest in the human scale the seats of the mighty! A child with a box of matches, alone in the house! The same thing and Trotsky has labored to prove it.

Liberty, says democracy. License, says bolshevism.

Equality, says democracy. Kill those who are above you, says bolshevism.

Fraternity, says democracy. Kill your brother, if he refuses to inhabit your madhouse, says bolshevism!

Demolition, to the tune of the Marsellaise!

One of the greatest things in the world is the sense of possession. We Americans have that sense in the greatest degree. We are the greatest individual proprty owners in the world. That is why we shall never run amuck. But for all that, when we see a rattlesnake, we kill it.

There can be no real patriotism where there is no sense of possession. The bolsheviki in Russia never had anything. But division of property is the cry. The proletariat will divide with the middle class. That is to say, the inefficient will divide among themselves what efficiency has accumulated. Beautiful idea!

The truth is, after great wars the scum always comes to the top. Anarchism, red-socialism, bolshevism.

In all democracies, the rights of man are slowly but surely arriving. You cannot make Utopia tomorrow by writing it down on a sheet of paper. And that is what the bolshevist has done. Little mud-volcanoes.

Murder and loot, in the name of the brotherhood of man! The lion will share his meat with the ass, who will refuse his oats to the lion.

How quiet socialism is these days now that many of its theories have been put into practice and been proven failures! For bolshevism is socialism running amuck.

What is the answer to all this turmoil of war and reconstruction? That democracy alone has survived. Where is autocracy? Vanished. And bolshevism will vanish likewise, as the acrid smoke vanishes after the fire is beaten down.

Democracy alone will survive, for bolshevism is the revolt of the inefficient.

A QUESTION OF REPARATION

The explanation given regarding the terms of surrender of the German fleet exonerates the Admiralty from the bulk of the blame which it might have had to bear because of the sinking of the vessels in Scarpa Flow. Great Britain seems to have urged that the ships should have been surrendered outright, whereas France held this was not necessary for the purposes of the Armistice. The attitude of the French was due to their anxiety no clause should be inserted in the Armistice terms which might delay the signing of that document. Had the ships been surrendered outright, instead of their disposition remaining uncertain, the sinking of the fleet in Scapa Flow would not have happened.

The Allies have been considering what steps to take because of the occurrence. The property loss incurred was in the neighborhood of $350,000,000 and they would be entitled in adding this amount to Germany's reparation bill. France is apparently insisting on this course of action being taken.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

ANDERSON TELLS OF BIG CHANGE

Wife So Nervous Couldn't Hold Cup Coffee Without Spilling It—Praises Tanlac.

"My wife's wonderful improvement is the talk of all our neighbors," said G. Anderson, who lives at 2550 Norton Ave., Kansas City, Missouri, in conversation with a Tanlac representative a few days ago.

"When she began taking Tanlac," he continued, "she only weighed one hundred and ten pounds and hardly ever enjoyed a well day, but now she weighs one hundred and forty-seven and is enjoying better health than she has in ten years. For years her stomach had been in such a bad condition that she couldn't eat without bloating all up with gas and suffering terribly with pain and palpitation of the heart. She was badly constipated and had headaches and pains in her back every day. Her appetite was very poor and what she did eat seemed to do her no good as she was losing weight and strength. She also had an attack of the 'flu' and this left her in a much worse condition than ever.

"She had tried every kind of stomach medicines we heard of, but she kept getting worse until a lady friend or hers, who had gotten well by taking Tanlac, persuaded her to try it. Before she had finished the first bottle she had a good appetite and was able to digest her food better. Now she can eat anything and says she never feels a sign of gas, bloating or pain afterwards. She was so nervous before taking Tanlac that she could not carry a cup of coffee without spilling it and would sometimes drop the cup. But now her nerves are in good shape and she sleeps every night just like a child. Her headaches and backache have left her and her housework seems to be easy for her. If anybody had told me Tanlac could do so much for my wife I wouldn't have believed them. It certainly is the finest medicine made and I am glad of the opportunity to tell the public about it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

A SANE PEOPLE

(Montreal Gazette, June 14)

Quebec is sometimes scornfully referred to as the reactinoary, the unprogressive, the ultra conservative province of Canada, terms, however, that many people do not resent but rejoice in having regard to their source. There is such a thing as movement without progress, and in the stability of the French-Canadian race Quebec possesses an asset of immense value. The stigma of inertia cast upon this province can be borne with patience by a people happy in their homes, reverential in their religion, content with their condition, nor need they shrink from comparison with other provinces in material welfare. It makes money and saves, marketing its products in near by industrial centres at very profitable prices, even though the methods of agriculture be often those of the fathers. The dairy products of the province rank as high as those of any part of the continent. The industrial life of the people is not greatly ruffled by agitators and strikes, when the element racially foreign to the French-Canadian is absent. In Quebec is the most populous city of the Dominion, the foremost in manufactures, in shipping, in finance, in the arts, and in education at least the peer of any. The temperament of the people is conservative by nature and training, thereby ensuring progression upon sound lines; it is unreceptive of old fallacies revived, as of new fads formulated; and moves along the even tenor of its way when other peoples madly chase will-o'-the-wisps, and burn down houses to roast a supper. So Quebec attracts capital to the development of its resources, prominent of which is its immense water powers, and to the establishment of industries in which according to the provincial treasurer, an additional $100,000,000 of foreign money will shortly be invested.

These observations are prompted by the refreshingly novel evidence given before the Industrial Relations Commission at its sittings in Quebec city and Grand mere. In the former place the Trades Unions are supplanted by the National Catholic Union, comprising 18,000 members. Some of the testimony given causes the reader to rub his eyes. Thus Joseph Pelletier, an employee of the Davie Shipbuilding Company, informed the Commission that the relations of the employees with the Company are quite amicable, that any grievances submitted are always redressed, that the question whether their wages are as high as those paid in Ontario shipyards "is not interesting to them as they are satisfied, and with some people the more they get the more they want." Truly a sage philosopher. Mr. Pelletier has no use for international unions which he said "are organized by agitators," while the members of the National Catholic Union "seen to secure their ends by conciliatory methods." Rev. Abbe Fortin, director of the Union, gave this interesting testimony:

"During the past five years in the thirty organizations affiliated with the union and under his charge, there had not been a strike. Wages in the shops in which the union's men were employed had advanced 30 per cent. The union was a workingman's organization in the proper sense. Their difference with the international union was that the latter were governed by the American Federation of Labor, which had sent men to the province. The sooner they were withdrawn the better for the working man, public peace and everybody concerned. They had promulgated revolutionary doctrines, also anti-religious and clerical doctrines. That could not be permitted."

A similar happy industrial condition exists in Grand Mere, where Rev. Father Lafleche is the arbiter of grievances and disputes between employees and employers. The principal industry of the town is the Laurentide Pulp & Paper Company, employing 1700 hands. These men discarded the union ten years ago, and have since had an open shop. One witness testified that "all the employees of the mill are satisfied;" and another that "nobody in the plant would listen to any labor leader who tried to organize a union." Rev. Mr. Lafleche said that every time he had asked for something from the company for the men they got it. He considered their claims very carefully, and he never asked for anything to which he thought the men were not entitled. He thought the men were well paid and stated that any man that could not live on $3.50 a day in Grand Mere must behave badly. Since the international union disappeared from Grand Mere all lived in absolute harmony."

And so it happens that in the sometimes derided province of Quebec are found industrial communities living in harmony and contentment, where "the rich man helps the poor man, and the poor man loves the great." The influence of the Roman Catholic church has produced this happy state, making for permanence of employment, fair wages and a cordial co-operation between capital and labor. It is a fine asset for the province.

TRIBUNAL ON COST OF LIVING

The interim report of the Cost of Living Committee has been submitted to parliament. It contains the recommendation that a tribunal be set up to prevent monopolies, or price fixing, and suggests legislation bringing this body into existence be enacted during the present session of parliament. The objects of this tribunal, as recommended by the committee, are set forth in the report presented to parliament and they are intended to be sweeping. No doubt the tribunal will be created, and then it will be possible to learn if it is to act on its own volition or upon compaint, and if by the latter modus operandi upon whose complaint. To judge from the recommendations made the tribunal will have almost a superhuman task, and while we believe the committee has been actuated by laudable motives, it has suggested what is likely to prove a most cumbersome method of redress.

Combines and monopolies exist on large and small scales, but it would be an exceedingly difficult matter to prove that they are limiting or lessening manufacture or production or fixing common prices. Thousands of people, for instance, know that prices of commodities, whether high or low, are ruled by certain standards. It would be quite another thing to prove that these standards have been set by combines. It would be difficult also to show before any court that the price of any single article is too high, or that there is discrimination shown between different purchasers of commodities. Neither is it clear that all such a tribunal as is proposed could do would have the effect of restricting profits or materially reducing the cost of living. The tribunal, no doubt, might be tried, but it will be a costly and cumbersome undertaking involving the hearing of endless and conflicting evidence, and thereby having the effect of exasperating the public.

The consumers know two things beyond peradventure. One is that high prices are being charged and the other that abnormal profits are being made by the larger firms controlling the sale of life's necessaries. It is patent that by controlling profits prices can be lowered, or vice versa, by contrtolling prices profits will be less. One course or other is open to parliament and it should not attempt to foist the task on a tribunal, which might have to travel from one end of the country to the other and still fail to settle what might be only a local problem, but the ramifications of which would extend thousands of miles.

The government last year fixed a price for wheat. The price was too high and the immediate result was that practically every other commodity was raised in price until the cost of lving became such a problem that it induced widespread labor unrest. Thus the government was responsible, in large measure, for creating conditions which it is now asked to remedy. This year there will be no fixed price for wheat and it must find its level in competition with the world's supply, although, no doubt, every possible effort will be made to charge more to the home consumer thtan is charged for the surplus product shipped overseas. The government has a duty to perform in seeing that there is no discrimination against the Canadian people in this regard. In the matter of other necessaries its duty is, either to control profits or prices. Firm after firm which gave evidence before the Cost of Living Committee told of huge profits, and there is no law in the land to limit these. No one who thinks economically wishes to eliminate competition, which is the life of trade, but the consuming public know they are being imposed upon by profiteers and they demand protection. Sufficient has been learned to warrant such legislation as will have the effect of reducing prices to such an extent that only normal profits can be made in any industry. In addition, the tribunal might be created as a check on the legislation which should be passed to provide an immediate solution for the most pressing problem before this country. — Colonist.

GERMAN DEVOTION TO THE BIBLE

Since the Germans had so evidently reverted to the religion of Thor ,one can hardly credit them with a religious motive in their effort to steal a precious manuscript of the Gospels, the pride of the Archeological Museum at Liege. If it was devotion, they carried it almost to the point of burglary. This product of the 9th century was, according to The Belgian Bulletin (Washington), issued by the Belgian Official Information Service, "Bishop Notger's copy of the Gospels which the Belgian antiquarians jealously guarded as a most precious legacy to the present generation from the wonderful past of the city." The story of its peril and preservation from the hands of the Hun is one of those puzzling side-lights on German psychology that the future may clear up:

"In 1915 German 'scholars' resolved to possess themselves of this copy of the Gospels. They did not dare to boldly requisition the manuscript, deterred perhaps by a trace of decency, but they sent a grave professor, Dr. Milkau, to reconnoitre with a view to acquiring the coveted treasure. But they had reckoned without the vigilance of the guardians who had hidden it away in a particularly safe place.

"The trustees of the museum succeeded in creating the impression in the mind of the Teutonic professor that the manuscript was in safe deposit in England, but the peril was but temporarily averted.

"In August, 1918, at the very moment when the German defeat was beginning, Dr. Jeiger, the Kaiser's appointee as librarian of the University of Liege, made a demand on the communal authorities to deliver the manuscript to another professor, Dr. Julius Baum, of the University of Stuttgart.

"All they wanted it for, it seemed, was to photograph it, German scholars not being thieves even under the rule of Freiherr von Falkenhausen.

"That wish was quite easy to gratify, was the answer, as the University of Liege possessed photographs of the 180 pages of the Gospels which were quite at the disposal of these gentlemen.

"The latter, however, who had asked for the photographs as a pretext for theft, refused the offer, and thenceforth the negotiations took on a character which became more and more bitter. The directors of the Archeological Institute, with the knowledge that what they had hidden was well hidden, resisted all the demands of the Germans, and the learned doctors, who were bent on stealing the manuscript, backed up their demands with threats.

"And one day the German ultimatum was served on Mr. Marcel de Puydt, one of the most active supporters of the Archeological Institute: 'Unless an amicable decision can be arrived at, the German government will be obliged to order the German secret service police to interfere, which will find means to discover the whereabouts of the manuscript, and, once in their hands, it will not be returned.' This was certainly frank. Mr. de Puydt inquired 'in accordance with the provisions of the Hague Peace Conference, no doubt?'

"But fortunately these threats were not carried out. Events moved too quickly. Foch was victoriously pressing his advantage. On the very day on which the learned professors had planned to force the surrender of the treasure—if they could—they were hotfooting it for Prussia.

"The bishop's Gospels, preserved from German scientific greed, will soon be restored to the cases of the Archeological Institute, whose trustees deserve the gratitude of the country for their energy, resourcefulness and devotion."

"For over three years, I was confined to bed with Rheumatism. During that time, I had treatment from a number of doctors, and tried nearly everything I saw advertised to cure Rheumatism, without receiving any benefit.

Finally, I decided to try 'Fruit-a-tives". Before I had used half a box, I noticed an improvement; the pain was not so severe, and the swelling started to go down.

I continued taking this fruit medicine, improving all the time, and now I can walk about two miles and do light chores about the place".

WINNERS OF DOMINION DAY SPORTS

The Dominion Day celebration this year was one of the most successful events of the kind that has been pulled off here for many years. The weather was ideal. The response of residents belonging to outside communities coming here for the occasion was gratifying beyond measure. The events including football, baseball, horse racing, track events and the children's sports, were clean and good, and the financial success of the day was beyond the expectations of the committee in charge of the celebration. The following is a list of the receipts. The expenses have not yet been ascertained, but a full statement will be published next week. The committee expect to clear in the neighborhood of $1200.

Refreshment Booths	$853.00
Gate	646.55
Sale of Programs	14.75
Dance	340.00
Entrance Fees	84.80
Grand Stand	17.65
Subscriptions	523.00
Total	$2479.75

The day was opened by a big parade comprised of floats, decorated automobiles, decorated bicycles, carriages and school children, which was headed by Sgt.-Major Pass, Marshal, and a squad of R.N.W.M.P. and the Fernie Bugle Band. Prizes for the parade were awarded as follows:

Best Decorated Float—Fernie Jr. Branch Navy League.

Best Decorated Automobile — "Woof Club."

Best Decorated Bicycle — Kenny Stewart.

The Judges also thought that the "Old Carriage" was worthy of a prize, but no provision had been made for this class.

Billy Timlick, of the Rainbow Lumber Co., of Newgate, was in town on Wednesday.

The dance on July 1st was a howling success. The receipts ran into nearly $350.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kennedy returned on Sunday from an automobile trip to Edmonton.

Miss Eva Ingram returned on Wednesday morning from Ontario, where she spent a year visiting relatives.

Mrs. G. Thomson and daughter, of Fergus, Ont., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Thomson, of Fernie.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cole and family left on Tuesday morning for Victoria, where they will reside in future.

Mrs. J. R. Wallace and her mother, Mrs. A. Walker, left last evening for Winnipeg, where they will visit for several weeks.

The Northern Hotel, which has recently been overhauled and redecorated throughout, is having a new front put in the cafe.

C. P. Hill, of Montreal, who has been in the city for the past week, left this morning on a fishing trip to Goat River and Moyie Lake.

The regular monthly tea of the Ladies Guild of Christ church will be held at the home of Mrs. Yolland, the Rectory, on Wednesday, July 9, from 3.30 to 6 p.m.

Inspector Owen of the Provincial Police, who has been residing in Fernie for the past year, left today with his family for Vancouver, where they will reside in future.

Quite a number of front street citizens are talking of taking advantage of the city's offer of 10 yards of free gravel for every 30 feet of concrete walk that they will put down.

Miss Ruth Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Wilson, arrived home on Wednesday from Toronto, where she has been attending college. She was accompanied by her cousin, Grant Smith, of Toronto.

In our report of the bush fires west of the city last week we stated that they started from the farmers clearing land. The farmers distinctly deny this. They say the fires started from the G.N. railway burning old ties.

Mrs. Robt. Dudley received a wire on Wednesday stating that her husband, who is visiting in Victoria, was seriously ill. About six months ago Mr. Dudley suffered a slight stroke of paralysis and it is feared that this illness may be a second stroke. Mrs. Dudley left yesterday morning for Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Hartley Wilson and family, who left Fernie about a year ago for Toronto, have decided to return to this city and are expected to arrive here next week. The children have not been well since they moved to the east and they have decided to return to the best climate in the world.

Rev. and Mrs. D. M. Thompson, 93rd street, entertained the choir of McDonald Baptist church to a pleasant social evening on Wednesday, when they met Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kennedy of Fernie, B.C. After an interesting program of songs and readings, refreshments were served and the happy group departed.— Edmonton Bulletin.

The local hotelmen who were convicted last week of selling intoxicating liquor by Magistrate Whimster, came up for sentence on Wednesday afternoon and they were each sentenced to six months' hard labor. Their attorneys immediately gave notice of appeal and the matter will be taken before the appeal court of British Columbia. The men in the meantime are out on bail.

J. A. Broley, of Newgate, is in town today.

All Rebekahs and Odd Fellows are requested to meet at the lodge room at 4 p.m. tomorrow to give a farewell to Mrs. C. O'Brien, who is leaving for the coast shortly .

Jess Willard threw up the sponge at the end of the third round in the fight for the heavyweight championship at Toledo today with Jack Dempsey. Dempsey had the best of the fight from the start and pounded Willard at will all over the ring.

There is very little to report in the local strike situation. The men are daily becoming more clamarous for an early settlement and if there were a few men with determination enough to take a solid stand against the O.B.U. leaders the strike would be over in a few days.

Fly season has just started. Our screen doors and windows stay put. —Kennedy & Mangan.

Major Sims, the newly appointed Territorial Young People's Secretary, will visit Fernie on Wednesday next, July 9th, and will conduct a meeting for children and young people workers, at 2.30 p.m., and also a public meeting at 8 p.m. at the Salvation Army Hall. You are cordially invited.

Fred Wayne, who was recently transferred to the Great Northern station here in the capacity of cashier and operator, left hurriedly one day last week and upon an audit being made it was found that cash to the extent of $244.78 and valuable securities, negotiable Express Money Orders, amounting to $400, were missing. Wayne was traced by the G. N. authorities and apprehended in Montana. He was brought back here this week and two charges laid against him. He will appear before Stipendiary Magistrate Hewat on Monday to answer the foregoing charges.

The regular June sittings of the County Court were postponed on account of the Supreme Court sittings here and were held on Thursday and Friday of this week. On this occasion only two civil cases were on the calendar, viz.: John George vs. Joe Gall, a suit for the recovery of $250 advanced upon promissory note. The action was not concluded and will come on again at a special sittings to be held commencing July 15. The other civil action was that of Philip Musil vs. Canadian Pacific Railway, for damages in consequence of a cow having been killed on the defendant company's right of way near Natal, B.C., in September last. His Honor Judge Thompson at the conclusion of the trial reserved judgment. A. I. Fisher appeared for the plaintiff; Alan Graham for the railway company.

CANADA'S DEBT

In commenting upon the recent budget speech the Toronto Mail and Empire calls attention to the fact that of the total outstanding securities of the Dominion government $1,510,000,000 are held in Canada. Another loan is to be issued by the government to the Canadian people, and the huge net debt will amount tot about $1,950,000,000 by the time the war accounts are closed. These are very formidable figures. As the Finance Minister points out, they would be far more formidable if the borrowed money they stand for had principally been obtained from lenders outside the country. It is a great comfort to feel that the bond issues on which the vast sum of $1,510,000,000 was raised are in the hands of Canadians. The money was raised in this country, and the annual interestt will be distributed throughout this country, and the principal eventually paid to our own people. If our great war debt were owed to people outside of Canada tthe $100,000,000 or so of interest to be paid out every year upon it would be so much money removed from the country instead of being distributed in the country. If, instead of being held by Canadians this $1,510,000,000 of Canadian government securities were held by investors belonging to other nations, the repayment of that debt and the paying of its annual interest charges would be hardly less irksome than the paying of a war indemnity of the same magnitude. Canada has great reason to be thankful that she had the resources within her own bounds to bear the financial strain of the war. Nobody needs to be told, of course, that the basis of the national credit is ample to sustain a total net debt of nearly two billion dollars, such as will have to be borne when tthe financing of the war and demobilization is completed. Canada has a national estate rich enough to carry a debt of many times that magnitude. The gratifying thing which the war has brought out is the financial readiness of the Canadian people themselves to take up government bonds amounting to $1,510,000,000. That is proof not only of Canada's natural riches and wonderful opportunities, but also of the Canadian people's productive industry and thrift. As the Finance Minister shows, the burden this war leaves on the shoulders of the Canadian people will have to be borne for years and for the carrying of it and gradual easing of the strain the same habits of thrift and industry will have to be borne for years. Our people are not daunted by the outlook. They are full of hope and we beleve that this huge war debt will melt away as many a towering difficulty has in the past melted away before the stout spirit and strong self-control of the unworried Canadian people.

IS CANADA TO BECOME A REPUBLIC

The Hamilton Herald and other Canadian newspapers are discussing the possibility of Canada becoming a republic. A great many people are discussing the future status of this Dominion, and in many quarters are heard theories of development that involve all the extremes of destiny it is possible to conceive in visualizing the growth and inevitable expansion of this northern half of a vast continent, says the London Advertiser.

Little more than eight millions of people, we are faced with the problem of the man who is endeavoring to conduct a colossal departmental store or factory with a staff which can handle only a few of the counters or machines with which the place is equipped. We are connected by bonds of blood and tradition with the British Empire, but between us and the headquarters office of this empire is an ocean which renders one inaccessible to the other, and which divides us as though we lived in another world, when we think of the influence of our propinquity to the United States.

Athousand influences come from the big nation to the south. We are swayed more than we can ever know by these influences. One can follow the average Canadian's course thro the day and from the time he puts on his shoes in the morning until he has donned his pyjamas at night, almost every influence with which he comes in contact will be in some degree an Ameriran influence. His morning newspaper will contain news that was specially gathered for the American public except in the case of Canadian local or national news. His place of business will be conducted on American methods and with American devices. His lunchroom is an American institution. The new styles of clothes or hats or shirts he sees in the store window will be American. The magazine he buys will be an American magazine and when he takes his family to a motion picture show in the evening, he will be shown American pictures or pictures made by and for Americans. He will hear of American factories and if he does not look out his boy will be itching to get to Detroit or Chicago. If his plant is suddenly tied up by a strike, he may find that before the concerned could use the strike weapon it was necessary to secure permission from international headquarters.

One might as well endeavor to sweep back the ocean with a broom as suddenly to counteract these influences. They have had a large part in shaping the Canadian outlook, the unconscious outlook, which is more than all the abstract theories or sudden injections of imperialistic doctrine can achieve. When a Canadian audience commences to applaud the American flag, it is not because the members are less British it is because they are more conscious of an American influence than any other influence, and no matter how often they may be told not to do it they continue to do it. They may or may not like British moving pictures, but the fact these pictures are British does not cause the Canadian audience to dislike them. The British picture may not contain the action or the humor or the dramatic appeal they have been trained to accept.

Just now there is a movement towards making Canada more British. There will be more propaganda along this line than ever before. It may or may not come from disinterested sources. But before it gets under way it will be well for its sponsors to realize just what makes the Canadian people what they are. The Canadian who measures up to the best conceptions of Canadianism is a man who believes in his own country. He is born or becomes by choice a Canadian, and he wishes to be worthy of his country. He may be an ardent Britisher or he may believe our future lies along the ways of independence. But in the first place he is a Canadian. He has been influenced more than he knows, and perhaps more than he likes, by the great nation to the south. In some respects there is an appalling dependence of this country upon the United States. We are prone to take our ideas ready-made. But that has been a matter of evolution, and it is very doubtful that revolution of any kind will eradicate the forces that range from blood relationship to a love of baseball, and which make us more American than British in our daily life, if not in our national leanings, or for that matter more American than we are Canadian, because the last status is far from capable or clear definition.

All the war's mighty influences of contact and mutual sacrifice have brought us closer to the people of the homeland than to the American people, however. For that period which brought out a great exodus from Canadian shores to the shores of England, a large percentage of Canada's young men were touched by British influences. The treatment of the people "over there" was the finest kind of hospitality. They did a great deal for the Canadian boys and many of their daughters and many of the sons of the Dominion were United in marriage. That influence remains, for a time at any rate, and the urge of patriotic traditions is warm in the hearts of many. But our daily life is not to be carried on in terms of patriotism, but in point of contact and in terms of economics. The earning of a living comes first, after that the seeking of comfort and entertainment. These are the first influences in life deny them as we will. The average man will stand fast by his patriotic impulses when a crisis comes, but while the world wags out of life the best, as he sees it. Baseball is our national summer sport, not cricket. That is because a great many people played baseball in the next field and we read of it every day. It is not necessarily moré patriotic to play cricket. But it shows how strongly our environment affects us.

The daily reading of a nation is perhaps the first great influence. The average Canadian reads twenty columns of news about Americans or news written for Americans for every inch of British news he reads. World news, markets, sports, women's activities, all the thousand chronicles of a nation that is newshungry and never goes unsatisfied come to us for home consumption. One great American magazine has 100,000 circulation in Canada every week. No Canadian or English magazine equals it. The Ford libel trial will cause more interest in Canada than the greatest domestic sensation short of a sensational murder in the British Isles. We do not know England or the English because, as a nation, we have never read anything of what England and the English are. As a nation we shy at flunkeyiesm and the title craze and class distinction, but we are told that England is more democratic than we are. That may be told us repeatedly, but we do not get the material proof in concrete form.

THE WHEAT OCTOPUS

The evidence submitted at Ottawa to the Cost of Living Committee to the effect that no reduction in foodstuffs need be expected until wheat is reduced in price is largely true, as the veriest tyro in political economy knows. The statement could, however be qualified, for there can be appreciable reductions in a number of commodities even with wheat at its present price, while, as well, there is the assurance of Sir James Wilson that there is going to be a substantial fall in the price of wheat this Summer and Autumn. Wheat should be selling in Canada before three months have passed at somewhere in the neighborhood of $1.60 a bushel. It will be possible to buy it at that price in Europe and much cheaper in India and Australia, and since the surplus crop on this continent must find a market or go to waste it will have to be sold in Europe at the prices prevailing there. The fact is there is going to be an over-production of wheat, and there is a possibility it may become a drug in the market. Since the supply will exceed the demand it can readily be conjectured a considerable fall in price is due, or rather we should say it is long overdue.

Mr. Charles Birkett, who gave evidence before the Cost of Living Committee showed how the cost of the main foodstuffs is affected by the price of wheat. He favors the open market as he believes that in it wheat will soon reach what should be its normal price. The countries which import wheat will in future buy in the competittive market, and, except in the United States during the current year, there will no longer be a guaranteed price for wheat. Americans will probably have to subsidize its farmers to the extent of $1,000,000,000 on account of the price that has been guaranteed, and it is fortunate, indeed, for the taxpayers of Canada that the government did not give in to the agitation of the Saskatchewan grain growers and put a fixed price on wheat for the current year.—Colonist.

A DOUBLE CHANCE

The city of Edmonton has been offered two thousand tons of asphalt free if it will pay the haulage charges from the beds north of Ft. McMurray. There are two excellent reasons for hoping that the offer can be accepted. One is that the city needs the material for repairing existing pavement and laying new stretches. The other is that when it is shown by actual experiment that the northern asphalt is suitable paving material a tremendous business will be created there, from which Edmonton and the whole northern country will benefit.—Edmonton Bulletin.

NEW SHIPS OF BRITISH NAVY

Evidently the British admiralty believes that the era of keen competition and secrecy in warship design and construction passed with the passing of the German fleet; for that body has recently made public, through papers read by the chief Constructors before the Institution of Naval Architects, a remarkably complete statement of what was done during the war in the construction of every kind of warship from dreadnought and battle-cruiser down to patrol boat.

When the war opened in 1914 Great Britain was completing the ships of the "Iron Duke" class, which carried ten 13 5-inch guns in five turrets on the centre line. Two of these were ready just before the war and the other two shortly after it began. Due to the lessons learned at Jutland, a considerable amount of additional protection was added over the magazines of this class—a change which was made in practically all of the capital ships at the same time. It is interesting to learn that in only one case, during the engagements, was any portion of a shell found to have penetrated below the protective deck. The "Iron Duke" of this class was the fleet flagship of Admiral Jellicoe.

The next class, named after the "Queen Elizabeth," was the first to mount the 15-inch gun, of which eight were carried. The speed was raised to 25 knots and oil was adopted in place of coal. We are told that in the Battle of Jutland four vessels of this class were heavily engaged for several hours; gave and received heavy punishment; but were not seriously damaged or put out of action. Additional protectiton was given to the magazines as the result of that battle.

The next battleships in order are those of the "Royal Sovereign" class whose designs were based on the "Queen Elizabeth." To make them more homogeneous with the majority of the dreadnought ships, the speed was reduced to 21 knots; but subsequently a change was made from coal to oil and on its trials, with 4000 tons of oil, the "Revenge" attained 22 knots which is equivalent to 32 knots at mean draft. The thick protective deck at the centre of the ship was brought up to the level of the main deck. Particular attention was paid to underwater protection, and, subsequently to their launching, an outside bulge was fitted to all the ships of this class.

It should be mentioned that the paper read before the Society from which these particulars are taken was given by Sir Eustace d'Eyncourt, Vice-President of the Society, who was responsible for the "bulge" method of protection and recommended it for the "Edgar" class of vessels in 1914.

The battle-cruisers "Renown" and "Repulse" of which so much has been written were originally laid down as battleships of the "Royal Sovereign" type; but not much work had been done upon them when the war began. After the Falkland Islands battle the value of the battle-cruiser type became very apparent, and on the initiative of Lord Fisher it was decided to complete the two battleships as battle-cruisers. They were to have a speed of 32 knots and carry the largest number of guns possible. The protection was to be similar to that of the "Invincible" and a modified form of bulge was adopted. As the designs were developed it was found that they could carry six 15-inch guns—four forward and two aft, with a secondary battery of seventeen 4-inch guns. Fifteen of the latter are carried in five 3-gun shield mounts. To save time it was decided to repeat the machinery of the battle-cruiser "Tiger," a 30-knot battle-cruiser of 108,000 horse-power, and with the addition of extra boilers and because of the extra length of the ship it was found possible to obtain a speed of 32 knots. As a matter of fact, the "Repulse" made 31 1-4 knots in the deep condition and the "Renown" made 32.6 knots at mean draft. A remarkable record of 17 months for construction was made in the case of these two vessels. The ships are being well reported upon in their sea service and they are able to maintain their speed.

While the designs of "Renown" and "Repulse" were in progress, the chief constructor received instructions to design some very high speed ships carrying powerful guns, which were to be capable of maintaining their speed in moderate weather, but were to be of lighter draft than any British or enemy ship of the same class, so as to navigate the shallow waters if desired. It was decided to build the "Courageous" and "Glorious" on the lines of very light large cruisers giving them a few guns of the heaviest calibre, so they would be able to overtake and sink any enemy light cruiser or raiders. They were to have light cruiser protection, a speed of not less than 32 knots and a draft of 22 feet, or five feet less than that of any battleship or battle cruiser mounting such heavy guns. Because the 15-inch gun and its mounting was available or could be rapidly built, it was decided to arm these light cruisers with 15-inch guns. They also carry an anti-torpedo armament of eighteen 4-inch guns in six 3-gun mounts, similar to those of the "Renown" and "Repulse." With 90,000 shaft horsepower 32 knots was easily obtained on trial and was exceeded in service.

The destroyers, including flotilla leaders, built during the war vary in length from 273 feet to 332 feet over all, the displacement is from 1025 tons to 1800 tons, and the speed at load draft from 34 to 36 knots. These are contract speeds which in most cases were greatly exceeded. The world's record for destroyer speed has recently been gained by a Yarrow boat, which in a four hour run at Skelmorlie has recently maintained a mean speed of 39.6 knots.

WHY CANADA AND U. S. STOPPED SPRING SHOOTING

So much has been written about bird protection from the extreme point of view of the reformer that many men of moderate views have got the idea that protection spells total prohibition of shooting, instead of what it really means, the prevention of extermination, and the building up of the reserves of wild life to a point where the sportsman may feel that his future as a sportsman is safe under the regulations of the Migratory Birds Convention Act; while the same law acts as a check on the decrease of the non-game bird population of our country as well.

The extermination of wild life is not by any means confined to North America, it has been world wide, but possibly the results have been more clearly foreseen in Canada and the United States, and early enough to give hopes that with unity of legislation the word exterminated need only be written against a few of the birds and animals now in real danger of disappearing. And it is just in this lack of unity of laws (the question of enforcement is another matter) that Canada's efforts to restore the balance of nature by protective legislation is in danger. Animals are not subject to the impulse of migration to anything like the same extent as are birds. Provincial leglslation is usually effective in their case, but local legislation for birds has repeatedly proved in the past to be ineffective as a protective measure. Birds pass from province to province and even from continent to continent in their journeys, and they suffer from local conditions as well as from international.

We in Canada are fortunate in that continental legislation is likely to prove a decisive factor in checking the downward movement of many desirable birds, but we must be unanimous, every province should legislate in conformity with the Migratory Birds Convention Act of the Federal government of Canada if results adequate to the necessity of the case are to be obtained, and the case is urgent. We are not yet on the road to safety for our birds, till every province conforms to the Federal Act. When that does happen we may then look to the United States to act with us, and we may then hope for the continental enforcement of an Act that means results, both to the birds and to the sportsmen, results that are bound to be beneficial to both. The Convention is not the result of hasty legislation, but the carefully thought out effort of men who have seen the disheartening failure of laws that are purely local, and who know that nothing short of joint action by both the United States and Canada can be effective in building up the reserve of our bird life.

Migratory birds such as ducks and geese may appear at times to be abundant in some one place, and the natural inference is that they are not decreasing, but the observer overlooks the fact that the old feeding grounds are not now as extensive, particularly in the west, as they used to be, and the birds are crowded into a smaller area. There have been many reasons given for the decrease of game birds. Spring shooting has harried them on migration and consequently they reach their breeding grounds with less vitality than they ought, and they are apt to select the safest breeding grounds and often not the best. Many birds become barren and never reach the breeding grounds in consequence of the persecution they have experienced on their northern journey, and it is here that the direct benefits of the "Migratory Birds Convention Act" will be quickly felt. The birds will arrive in their full numbers and vigor and will select the most suitable breeding ground and in consequence the breeding range will be more extended and then, if granted sufficient local protection, there is no reason why there should not be a considerable increase in our migratory game within a few years but we must give ample protection during the breeding season and local legislation has not in the past done this. It is only by joint action of the United States and Canada that protection over the whole breeding range of many species can be effective. The decrease of migratory game is so apparent that it is a matter of general knowledge, and fortunately the means to check it has at last come to our hands if we will only sink our local differences and accept the guidance of a central and well informed body whose duty it is to administer the treaty on behalf of Canada.

How to Judge Values

WHEN you select a type of shoe which pleases you, you will probably find that it is made in different grades and different leathers—selling at different prices. But if the shoe is stamped with a maker's name which you know, you may be sure of good value for your money no matter what grade you decide upon.

Go to a dealer in whom you have confidence, and look for the manufacturer's trade mark on the shoes you buy. The dealer's advice and judgment will be of great assistance to you, and he will see that the shoes you select are properly fitted, so that you will get full service value from them. The manufacturer's trade mark is your best assurance of high quality in material and workmanship, for the manufacturer's business reputation is behind it.

Our booklet "How to Buy Shoes" will be sent with our compliments to any address in Canada, upon request to our head office at Montreal.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says the Bolsheviki don't want anything you haven't got. When brickbats take the place of reason and a great big skunk of a lazy good for nothing walking delegate says, "Garry a union card or take out an accident policy," things have gone so far that in self-protection tthe union must be temporarily laid low with an old time coupling pin.

A big crowd attended the garden party given by the Roosville school children for the benefit of the school funds, and a record crowd attended the dance in the evening. Last Saturday, June 28th, engineered by Miss Jennie Nichols of Creston, who is in charge of the school children for initial education. It was a big social and financial success. Miss Nichols left Monday for Elko, where she was the guest of Miss E. May Roo, and left for Creston on Tuesday, where she will spend the holidays.

Among the salesmen, travelers and train jumpers last week we noticed Roy Sharpe of Nelson with pocket grindstones, left-handed monkey wrenches and brass door knobs, said to be a successful salesman, you must buy from a Scotchman and sell to a Jew at a profit. A shoehorn traveler from Winnipeg wearing a hard boiled hat and a necktie we wouldn't be caught wearing in one of the Coal Creek mines during a total eclipse of the moon, got as much business as you could put in your eye and see none the worse. Harkness of Toronto, a real Chesterfield, with drugs, chemicals, soaps, medicines, liquid mulligans, Jamaica ginger, John Bull Bitters, lron water, a new nerve discovery, that would fire a jackrabbit into going right up and slapping a bulldog square in the face; soaps, soothing, healing, comforting and pain killing, salves and plasters, good for aches and pains, bruises, sprains, sore backs and tender feet, 12 horse power magic flakes, good for the hands, face, bath, hair, dandruff and all skin troubles fo rman or beast, horse, dog and cat, struck the town during the great heat wave as cool as the preverbial cucumber, with a jovial personality at all times. Jack McLaggan, of Calgary, making his first appearance and looks like a winner. Stanley Pratt, also of Calgary, a prince of good fellows, Stanley was for several years round-up boss on a kangaroo ranch in Australia but quit it to sell squirrel brand peanutt butter in Alberta. Brown from Edmonton, didn't know no more about the goods he was selling than a smoked sardine does. He seemed to be tickled with the scenery around here, but Jim Thistlebeak said it might be the horse hair undershirt he was wearing. Help yourself to the pickles, Brown, for you are a dill if ever there was one. Bonnie Bert Sang of Cranbrook with a load of goodthings and told the ranchers at Baynes it was quite useless trying to raise calves on soapsuds, whitewash and sawdust but that he had a stock food that would grow hair on a Mexican dog. Bert's smile is as contagious as a sneeze. Tourists arriving this week were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gordon, Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Kipp and family, Lethbridge; Miss L. Kennedy, Calgary; Miss Westby, Fernie; Mr. and Mrs. D. Beddard, of Vancouver, going through to Clear Spring Farm, Roosville for their honeymoon; Mr. and Mrs. Sanders and two daughters, of Travers, Alta., for the summer; G. C. Harrison and wife, druggist, Mrs. George Gates, Mrs. T. W. Harrison, Calgary, said Elko had the best hotel between Calgary and Nelson, so say all the travellers and tourists. Mrs. Geo. H. Scott and family of Nelson going to Roosville. Charlie Chaplin, no address, walking delegate of the O.B.U. no relation to the Chaplin that works for his living and makes everybody smile while he does it. Jones the rubber man from Lethbridge.

SANGER'S CIRCUS COMES TO FERNIE ON JULY 7TH

Sanger's Greater European Shows will exhibit in Fernie, Monday, July 7th. As it is the first big tented organization to visit this section o fhe province since 1914, it is expected that a record-breaking crowd will visit Fernie circus day. Already some of the "older boys" are looking about for their stray nephews and nieces saying they will probably have to go and carry the children to see the animals. But deep down in their hearts they know they would not miss the big show if there was not a small boy within a thousand miles of Fernie circus day.

Many new and novel features are offered this season by the Great Sanger Shows. Prof. Gentry's famous collection of educated Shetland ponies, monkeys and dogs will delight the little folks along with a congress of clowns headed by Fred Egener, the veteran jester. Eddie Lewis, the champion middleweight wrestler of England, will appear twice daily in a catch as catch can wrestling match, meeting all comers.

There will be two complete performances, the doors opening at 1 and 7 p.m., the exhibitions beginning an hour later. A concert of popular and operatic music will be rendered by Prof. Carl Clair and his military band preceding each performance. A series of free exhibitions will take place on the show grounds at 1 and 7 p.m. The great Sanger Show is the same big attraction visiting Calgary, Lethbridge, Edmonton and some of the other larger cities in Western Canada.

A STARTLING STATEMENT

A. R. Balcom, Chief Metallurgical Engineer of the Acme Engineering Company of Toronto, sends the Toronto Globe a copy of the following letter addressed to the Minister of Labor:

"Dear Sir—I observe in today's Globe an article on 'The High Cost of Living,' also mentioning the cost of clothing.

"For some considerable time I have been making tests and analytically examining the samples of goods secured from various so-called reputable business manufacturers of the city of Toronto, and the discovery is simply appalling. As an example, one reputable business house sent me samples ranging from $45 to $75 for an ordinary suit, the higher priced ones being guaranteed to be all wool, and on examining these, in no instance was there ten per cent of wool in any of the cloth. On the contrary, the cloth was spun from woollen rags put together and a small amount of wool, that is what is known as new wool, and the fur clippings from various fur-bearing animals. Once in a while a chicken may contribute part of it. Another reputable business house, with suits up ot $55, claiming them to be sixty per cent wool, did not have a thread of wool in the cloth.

"Now, if you will start an analytical examination you can easily verify my statements.

"I fail to find a yard of cloth anywhere that can possibly cost one dollar at the present price of labor and material, and I am prepared to prove my statement.

"I would like to correspond with you on the subject.

Very truly yours,
"A. R. Balcom.

"Toronto, June 9th."

These statements are made, says the Globe, on the authority of a specialist who is not trying to hide behind anonymity. The Minister of Labor should order an inquiry by his Department or refer the letter to the Parliamentary Committee on the Cost of Living which is now sitting. No doubt Mr. Balcom is prepared to submit his evidence, as he has invited correspondence on the matter. If he has made no mistake his discovery is "simply appalling," as he himself says. The public wants the searchlight turned on high prices to see what profiteering lurks beneath. Mr. Balcom's offer must not be rejected.

with him. He was surprised that nothing was known in Calgary about this place, and asked me if we were all dead here. I wanted to find out for myself whether he, as a tourist, spent much whilst on his trip apart from foodstuffs and garage bills, so asked him point blank and gave him my reasons for doing so. He told me he had not kept track, but he and his wife had driven into Fernie nearly every day for something or other and he was sure that a $50 bill would not cover it, and he had only one meal at a hotel and had not included in that amount a garage bill of over $12.

A long article appeared in a recent issue of the Calgary Herald in the Automobile Section, about the 500 mile circle trip from there. By the way it read I came to the conclusion that it had been written by somebody either in the Windermere District or Cranbrook. It goes strong on the fine roads and beautiful scenery along those roads, but simply mentions Fernie as a Small Town handling coal and coke; not a word about our roads and scenery to say nothing of our fishing and hunting, which is superior in every respect to anything they have anywhere else. For Heaven's sake, citizens of Fernie, wake up and get busy Now!! Don't wait until Cranbrook and other places have got too well advertised. The longer we leave it the harder it will be. There are two sayings I heard everywhere I went in the States; they are: "We Will Try Anything Once," and "Do It Now."

In conclusion I would like to say that those members of the Board of Trade who accepted office and find they are too busy to attend to the work that office calls for, should ask to be relieved of the office, and an endeavor made to get somebody who has the time to attend to it.

Yours truly,
Fred Spalding.

P.S.—A remark that gentleman from Calgary made was: "Mr. Spalding, if we had about five miles of this scenery within 10 or 15 miles of Calgary we'd bring people all the way from Europe to see it."

BAYER

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—only an acid imitation.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in Canada by a Canadian Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sized "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

FERNIE PEACE CELEBRATION

The Peace Day Celebration Committee during this week since the indefinite announcement that the 19th is to be observed throughout the Empire, have displayed remarkable activity in getting together and perfecting an organization to carry out "the" biggest celebration ever pulled off in this city. Two general meetings have been held for this purpose and the response in the way of attendance indicates that everyone is going to do their utmost to make the occasion a huge success.

As will be noted below, eleven subcommittees have been formed to carry out the work in respect to the different branches with a view of raising the maximum amount of funds which are to be used as the nucleus of the Soldiers' Memorial Fund. Every member of the committee have undertaken to give their services absolutely gratis and in addition there will be no passes issued for entrance to the grounds. A general admission fee for everyone fourteen years of age or over has been set at 25c, which should be within the reach of everyone; an additional fee will be charged for the grand stand. Details of the program are now being arranged but cannot as yet be announced as it has not been completed. Arrangements are under way to extend invitations to all points east, west and south, and as far as can be ascertained a large number of visitors will be in attendance. Special effort is being made to bring large numbers from Cranbrook and all intermediate points to the west; Eureka, Montana, on the south, and from Blairmore on the east. If, after making inquiries, there appears to be a sufficient number desirous of visiting here every effort will be made to have special trains run for the day.

The chief attractions will be baseball, football, horse racing and track events, but in addition there will be numerous novelty games and features with a view to furnishing amusement for all. There will also be a full program of children's sports. The refreshment committee have already anounced that they will look after this branch in a most satisfactory manner. So far as the evening program is concerned it has been definitely decided that a grand ball will be held on Saturday evening, but with regard to the details of this and the possibility of other evening attractions definite decision has not been reached.

In making preparations the manner in which the residents of Coal Creek have come forward is gratifying beyond measure. Mr. Caufield is the chairman of the committee handling the games, and if past achievements of the Coal Creek boys is any criterion it is a foregone conclusion that they will certainly deliver the goods. The interest displayed by those from Coal Creek, however, is not any greater than our own citizens both in connection with making preliminary arrangements and taking off their coats and getting down to the real hard work. Upon request for volunteers to endeavor to improve the Park grounds, some 25 will proceed to the Park on Monday and Tuesday with picks, shovels, etc., to assist the grounds committee in this work.

LETTER OF EXPLANATION AND APOLOGY

July 9, 1919.

To the Members of the Executive Committee, Fernie Board of Trade.

Gentlemen—At the time I wrote the letter which appeared in last week's issue of the Free Press, the personal equation had not entered my mind, the only thing which actuated me was the fact that so many of the tourists passing through here had expressed their surprise that our scenery and roads were so little known outside, and the realization that this town was missing so much good money through that; coupled with the thought, that though we had had such an enthusiastic meeting two months ago, nothing had been done in the matter so far, and that two months of the best period of the year for action had been, as I then thot, wasted. I have since heard that your committee had made certain arrangements, and that being so, I wish to express my regrets to them and admit that under the circumstances, my remarks were ill-timed, and to say

TOURIST ASSOCIATION

A meeting of those interested in the formation of a tourist association for Fernie was held in J. F. Spalding's studio on Tuesday evening with the following gentlemen present:

Messrs. Baldrey, Campbell, Dahl, Frearson, Fitzgerald, Gould, Henderson, Kossoff, Large, McEwan, Mott, Orner, Pickering, Suddaby, Spalding and Wilkes.

Harry Gould was elected temporary chair and J. F. Spalding secretary.

The following motions were regularly moved, seconded and carried:

That the name of the Association be the Fernie Tourist Association.

That an executive committee of three, in addition to the chairman and secretary be elected.

That the following constitute the executive committee: Messrs. Suddaby, Kossoff, Baldrey, Gould and Spalding.

That the executive committee immediately prepare a rough draft of the literature to be used, same to be submitted at the next meeting, which is to be called as soon as it is ready.

That the objects of the Association be adopted as read.

That a hearty vote of thanks be tendered J. F. Spalding for his offer to the Association, free of charge and without any reservation, for whatever use they wish, of any of the data he has compiled for his guides, also the use of his studio as the information bureau and his services in running same without remuneration.

Attached are copies of the objects of the Association and copies of correspondence which should prove to the citizens of Fernie the urgent necessity of concerted action in this respect:

Objects for calling this meeting:

To form a Tourist Association to attend to getting publicity for the town.

THE MINERS MASS MEETING

Developments with regard to the local strike situation within the past week have somewhat matured and the outstanding feature as far as can be gleaned, show that the vast majority of the miners here are extremely desirous of resuming work as promptly as possible and to revert once more to a really responsible miners' organization.

Late last week a notice was posted on One Big Union stationery calling a special meeting for the purpose of considering the constitution of this union and also for the purpose of nominating officers and checkweighmen. For some unknown reason this first notice was withdrawn and superceded by a notice announcing the same business for the meeting but on this latter occasion it was on the official leterhead of Gladstone Local Union No. 2413, U.M.W. of A. This meeting so called was held on Thursday last but adjourned until Wednesday of this week. On Monday another notice appeared from the secretary of the local union announcing a special meeting for the purpose of dealing with the matters following postscript was added: "Since the meeting last Thursday a petition has been received in this

TO ELECT VICTORY QUEEN

In connection with the parade and festivities on the 19th, the Parade and Decoration committee have inaugurated a competition for the election of the "Victory Queen." Up to the present the following nominations have been received: Miss D. Henderson, Miss Jessie Richardson, Miss Mabel Nelson, Miss Mildred Schagel, Miss M. Duncan and Miss Nancy Wood. Additional nominations will be received by the chairman of the committee, W. J. Claridge, up to 6.00 p.m. on Monday, July 14.

The committee are anxious for everyone to take a keen interest in this competition as the young lady receiving the highest number of votes will have the distinction of being chosen "Victory Queen" upon one of the most memorable occasions ever held throughout the British Empire.

Qualifications for the contest are: 25c to accompany names of nominees; and tickets are to be placed on sale immediately at 10c each, which will entitle the purchaser to a vote. Tickets may be obtained at all stores, banks, etc., and also from individual members of the committee. Boxes for depositing the ballots will be placed in Trites-Wood, Crow's Nest Trading, N. E. Suddaby, A. Walde, and John J. Wood. Full particulars as to arrangements for the coronation of the "Victory Queen," etc., will be completed and published in both local papers next issue. The contest will positively close at 5.30 p.m. on Thursday, July 17.

DECORATE!—DECORATE!

Business men generally and citizens are requested to co-operate with the Decorations Committee in making our main streets present a gala appearance on Peace Day. Please decorate the fronts of your houses with flags, evergreens, streamers, etc.

The Strike Situation

For some little time signs have not been lacking that local miners have not been satisfied with the manner in which the strike situation has developed. These signs culminated this week in two insurgent meetings, called by union members and held on Tuesday and Wednesday mornings. At the first meeting a general discussion resulted in a decision to adjourn till the following day, when President Christophers was expected to be present. At the latter meeting we are informed that President Christophers made a statement in which he explained some matters, claimed that others had been misconstrued and misunderstood, and admitted that in still other respects mistakes had been made. That his explanations and defence did not make very much impression is evidenced by the decision of the meeting, which we are informed, was to drop the O.B.U. question, re-establish affiliations with the United Mine Workers of America, and approach the operators with a view to negotiating the terms of a new agreement, the men to return to work immediately if the operators anounced their willingness to enter into such negotiations.

That these events indicate a desire to clean house on the part of a great many of the men who apparently have been deceived, fooled and misled by their officers into going on strike, is evident, but that their action now taken stops where it does indicates that they do not yet realize how serious in many ways have been the consequence of their obedience to and tacit approval of their officers' policies, which in many instances have been irregular and unwise, and in some cases close to revolutionary.

Coming out as members of the United Mine Workers, the O. B. U. question speedily became a factor in the fight. The result of the vote in the District for or against the O.B.U. has never been published, but the general impression has been conveyed that the result was strongly in favor. As a matter of fact, it is questionable if one quarter of the unions sent in returns, and of this quarter there is good reason to doubt whether all were in favor. But where the vote was in favor, the local officials were encouraged or permitted to disregard their allegiance to the United Mine Workers and to espouse the cause of the O.B.U. This occurred in the case of Gladstone Local, at first United Mine Workers, later O. B. U., and now again United Mine Workers. In the course of the transition from one state to the other, the actions of the officials have been those of men who owed little or no allegiance to anything except their own dictates. The clauses of the agreement with respect to the upkeep of the mines were first violated. The effect, the men were told, would be to make the strike a short one, as the companies could not stand the resulting loss. Then pressure was brought to bear on the officials of the company regardless of the fact that the agreement provides specifically that they are not under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers, and were understood to remain at work under the jurisdiction of their employers. The pitbosses at the local mines rightly regarded submission to such pressure as a breach of trust and so publicly declared. The firebosses yielded to the pressure, and sympathetic as one may feel towards them under all the attendant circumstances, their position today, with the leaders responsible for that position practically discredited by their own men, is far from enviable. They owed no allegiance to the United Mine Workers. They did owe allegiance to their employers under their agreement and by long custom. Their strike, partly smpathetic, was under duress. Their wisdom is a very open question today.

But most important from the standpoint of all interested in the settlement of disputes, and in the desire to see the industry established on a permanent basis, is the question of the proposed negotiations for a new agreement. With whom do the men suggest the companies should negotiate a new agreement? With the officers who engineered the present strike? And if so, do the men suggest that negotiations so conducted would offer any hope of stabilty? In the past agreements have been made with the United Mine Workers in good faith, and generally speaking have been kept in good faith. But in the present strike, the district officers have introduced policies and methods which could scarcely be regarded as other than those of expediency, and drastic expediency at that. The men who followed their lead, and it is not unfair to say that a great many at heart never did follow them, have borne the brunt, and if they are to come before the public, the government and their employers with a sincere desire for a new deal and a clean sheet, the necessity for doing so through officers of proved repute and established integrity would seem to the man on the street to be the first essential. Strikes are courts of last resort, and they are not always prudent, justifiable or successful. Unions of the highest standing have least strikes, but they are none the less powerful. Peace has brought with it new outlooks and new responsibilities for both capital and labor, and the best men on both sides are facing the problems of the future with co-operation, based on integrity and good faith. What is being done elsewhere can and should be done here, and there is no reason why it should not be done if the men of this District realize that such co-operation is of intrinsic and lasting value to them and to the industry in which they are engaged.

To gather all data possible to obtain about roads, camping places, fishing and hunting, climbing and any other attractions likely to interest tourists.

To work in conjunction with, and not against, other public bodies in the town for the general well-being of the whole.

To prepare maps and logs of the roads in and around and leading from both directions to this town, for free distribution to tourists.

To endeavor to meet all tourists arriving in town and make their visit as pleasant as possible and send them away with the best impressions.

To endeavor to get all the roads properly sign posted and the location of camping places marked.

To obtain road data from Auto Clubs in neighboring provinces and states and keep them informed of road conditions through here.

When it is decided what form our publicity matter is to take, notify in advance every auto club, board of trade, chamber of commerce and tourist association throughout Canada and the States of the fact that such an institution is in existence here, and that as soon as our literature is off the press it will be sent to them, and in the mentime we solicit enquiries from them.

Copies of some letters received by J. F. Spalding:

Inland Automobile Association,
Spokane, May, 19, 1919.

As you are perhaps advised, automobile tourist traffic to and from Calgary and all that district is very heavy and indications for this year point to the heaviest automobile tourist traffic through your section than ever before known. We are already having several cars a day inquiring for road conditions in your locality and wanting maps of the roads, which we are unable to supply them with. I wish it were possible for all the communities through which the main road between Spokane and Calgary passes, could get together and work out a scheme of marking the route in first class shape all the way through and putting out a map of the road so that all this very profitable automobile tourist trade could make the trip easily and without fear of getting lost. The towns along the way must be made to realize the very great financial benefit which will come to their towns by reason of the tourist traffic and the advertising these people will do after having made a trip through that section. I trust I may hear from you saying that maps and data will be forthcoming to our office here that we may be able to give all enquirers complete information concerning the route.

Extract from a letter from the Tri-State Auto Club of Walla Walla:

As secretary of this club I am in very close and intimate touch with the requirements of tourits. Up to the present time there has been a reluctance amongst motorists to undertake trips across the line owing to the want of knowledge about the roads connecting and the inability we have found of getting reliable data. Your new guide will be the means of obtaining this information, and I predict a big sale for it. To my definite knowledge there has never been a guide published which gives the Western Canadian roads in conjunction with ours and that is why I anticipate a big demand for this one.

From Dr. J. F. Macdonald, President of Hoquiam Automobile Club, Washington (a club of between 800 and 900 members):

I was more than pleased to have had the pleasure of meeting you today, as it afforded me the opportunity of expressing my appreciation of the beautiful scenery and splendid roads you have throughout your district, and I am writing this to you to express my very great surprise that these facts are so little known to the residents and motoring fraternity of the North West States. When I was preparing for my trip, I endeavored to secure information and maps of British Columbia and Alberta from the different associations and commercial clubs, but without success, and was told by each of them that after repeated efforts on their part to obtain this information they had given up trying. The Auto Club at Spokane told me that they had been trying for over three years to get maps, etc., but had not been able to, so I have come all the way from Hoquiam in absolute ignorance as to the conditions of the roads, and what I should see.

I trust that I shall be able to get one of your new guides as soon as they are out. The Canadian Guide I got from you today I am sending direct to the Western Washington Auto Association, as I know that it is just the thing they have long looked for.

I am thoroughly convinced that if this scenery, the good roads and your good hotel accommodation were better known, you would see many more motoring parties from the North West. I for one shall return to Hoquiam a very enthusiastic booster of this part of British Columbia, which I consider to be the best scenery I have ever seen.

APPERTAINING TO REV. BLAND

(Toronto Saturday Night)

We should imagine that Methodism will soon be as tired as the rest of the community of the peripatetic quack, Rev. Salem G. Bland, who is going about and telling the working people that they are oppressed, and that capital is their enemy. His latest deliverance was made at an open-air meeting held in Queen's Park, Toronto, on June 21st, to protest against the prosecution of Bolshevist agitators in Canada. The general doctrine expounded by Dr. Bland was that all agitators who profess to speak for labor are above the law; that they have a right to defy government and to frame movements for the oppression of the rest of the community, without interference. Any attempt on the part of the community as represented in the civil authorities, to protect itself in the right to work and eat and enjoy the common decencies of life, is painted as an unfair use of power.

Dr. Bland said that he knew some of the men arrested in Winnipeg (it is an open secret that Rev. William Ivens is a protege of his), and he declared that they had not been treated "as we are accustomed to have Canadians treated." To this the answer is obvious, that this is the first time that we have had to deal with Canadians who openly sought the overthrow of our entire Governmental and economic system; who councelled the repudiation of all agreements between labor and capital; who attempted the suppression of a free press; and did countless things that have been abhorrent to free-spirited and free-born Canadians. As a matter of fact, though some of them were born in this country, these Winnipeg leaders are not Canadians at all; they are neither flesh, fish nor fowl, nor good red herring—internationalists and outlawes who don't know where they're going but are on the way. Consequently, we must devise new ways to deal with such alleged Canadians as this.

Between smirks, Dr. Bland urged the government to seek counsel of "that old Book the Bible." We wonder if he has really read it—the proverbs of Solomon, for instance, which contains most of the worldly wisdom which finds expression in the best of our modern "capitalistic" laws. Perhaps Dr. Bland was thinking of Herod, whose methods were frankly adapted to modern conditions by the Strike Committee of Winnipeg when it sentenced little children to death by cutting off the milk supply. Perhaps he had in mind some of the other worthy captains chronicled in Holy Writ who operated by spreading drought and pestilence. That is what the Winnipeg Strike Committee hoped to compass, when it tried to cut off the water supply and the sanitary conveniences of a population which largely lives in apartment houses For the men who devised measures such as these Dr. Bland is all sympathy; and he paints as tyrannical the authorities which stepped in to stop their mischeivous activities.

Generally speaking, Dr. Bland's methods resemble nothing so much as those of the patent medicine fakers who work by suggesting horrifying "symptoms" to the ignorant. He makes the suggestion that "the people can't get a square deal"—a palpable lie. He says that 90 per cent of the measures passed at Ottawa are "in the interest of capital," but forgets to mention that good measures are in the interest of everyone—capitalists included. Then he hints that the Government is taking counsel of the old absolutist governments of Russia and Germany, ignoring the fact that the action at Winnipeg was taken by one of the recognized heads of organized labor, Senator Robertson.

Now, Rev. Salem G. Bland is probably not an educated man in the true definition of that term; but his cloth gives a certain respectability to his words. Therefore he should try to weigh them, and to open his eyes to the plain fact that in no country in the world is mankind so free as it is in Canada to-day. In no land are wages better and food more plentiful. In no land does opportunity hold the door so wide for the honest and industrious. The friends of Dr. Bland tried to murder freedom from the moment they planned a general strike at Winnipeg; while the authorities showed a fantastic devotion to the theory of liberty in allowing them to remain at large. The doctor in unappreciative of the priviliges he himself enjoys. He is permitted to go about spreading half-truths and falsehoods where they will do the most harm, when he might be conscripted for the performance of some useful menial service.

COURTS TO DECIDE

All comment on the proposed trial of the former German Emperor is based on the belief that Holland will permit his extradition. It is assumed that a demand made by the chief World Powers is likely to be acquiesced in by the Dutch Government. Some authorities, and with every show of reason, claim that it is strictly a matter for the courts of Holland to decide, and that the Government at The Hague must be bound by their judgment. If the courts rule that the offences with which the former German Emperor is charged do not, in view of his position as the head of the state at the time of their commission, permit of his extradition, we know of no power the Allies could legitimately employ which could compel Holland to give him up to judgment. Coercion is not to be thought of under such circumstances, for it would be coercion to overthrow the ruling of a court of justice.

The desirability, from the Allied standpoint, of trying the former Emperor for the crimes for which his army and navy were responsible —possibly at his dictation—does not enter into the consideration of the legal aspect of the case. In the records of the law there does not appear to be any analogy to the present situation. There is no precedent upon which Holland can go, and the law of that country must govern whatever is done. If, however, Holland is willing but her courts rule against extradition, legislation can be passed to provide for the emergency. Should the ex-Emperor eventually come to trial, the worst that can happen to him is to be banished to some island where he will remain under guard until the day of his death. While he stays in Holland there is always the danger that he will be the centre of plots for a counter-revolution in Germany, and the rallying point of international intrigue. Europe would be well rid of his presence, but Europe in this instance must be bound by the finding of the Dutch courts, or, finally, by the decision of the Dutch Government.—Colonist.

SOME DON'TS FOR REALTY BUYERS

1. Don't buy land for speculation, but for use.
2. Don't be mislead by the fallacy that of necessity it is better to be a landlord, with a mortgage hanging over your head, than a tenant.
3. Don't buy a bare lot in instalments or with borrowed money, unless you have reasonable expectations that you will have sufficient capital to erect a home in the near future.
4. Don't expect to get a loan from the Government, or from any other source, to build a house unless you have enough at least to pay for the lot on which to build it.
5. Don't imagine that land always increases in value even in the city, or that, even if it does increase, the tax collector will allow you to get the benefit of it.
6. Don't buy a lot on which to build a house unless you have some security that houses as good as your own will be built upon the adjoining land.
7. Don't be carried away with the idea that land is worth more to you if you have the right to do with it as you like, as this means that your neighbor will have the same liberty to use his lot as he likes. If you do not do something on your lot to injure his property he may do something on his to injure yours.
8. Don't buy land having no local improvements without calculating that it will cost you $10 per foot front, more or less, to make it fit for use for residential purposes. Even if the city does the work and charges for it as an improvement tax, you have to pay.
9. Don't buy water-logged land or land with heavy clay sub-soil or land which is not provided with sewers and watermains, unless you are certain that these can be provided at reasonable cost whenever you want them.
10. Don't think that because land fronts on a car line, it is therefore a "sure" site for a store or is more valuable than land not fronting on a car line. It may be worth less for that very reason.
11. Don't pay more for your lot than one-tenth of what you expect to spend on building your house.
12. Don't pay more for a lot than half the price you think it is worth for a home-site if you will not be ready to build on it in less than six or seven years.—T.A.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

WHO SAVED WINNIPEG?

(Saturday Night)

Here in the East the public has, it is feared, but a small idea of the sacrifices made by the Citizens' Committee of Winnipeg in preserving the population, strikers included, from pestilence and famine, during the recent general strike. Newspapers like the Toronto Star have hastened to reprint every line of villification of them that has appeared in journals like the "Western Labor News." There has been a deliberate attempt to represent these public-spirited men as blood-thirsty reactoinaries. The same publication, and others tarred with the same brush, have published accounts of the personalities of the strike, tender to the verge of sliminess, but has had no good word to say for the men who were willing to forsake their businesses and engage in manual labor while their oppressors loafed, paraded and spouted in the public parks. Next winter, no doubt, the same public-spirited men will be going down in their pockets and devoting their energies to supporting soup kitchens for the families of those who had accepted the motto of the egregious Ivens, "Do Nothing."

Filth is the natural element of the Russian Bolshevik, and apparently the Winnipeg Strike Committee when it undertook the work of destroying industry and capital in the chief city of the West, had become strongly convinced of the salutary qualities of dirt. All street cleaning, all home cleaning by charwomen, all laundry work was strictly forbidden. They even proposed to cut off the water supply in order that all sanitary conveniences might become paralyzed, even though the thirst of the people might be supplied from wells. Decay of food was insured by banning ice deliveries; there was also some reluctance about permitting the burial of the dead. Cleanliness was regarded as reactionary and savoring of capitalism. Good old democratic dirt and pestilence for Rev. William Ivens and his crew. And when the dirt became too much to endure, the remedy would apparently be to let the city burn down, for the firemen were deliberately called out, and never went back to work with the sanction of the Strike Committee.. This all sounds like a bad dream, but it is literal facts.

Who, then, saved Winipeg? The men of the Citizens' Committee who consecrated themselves to effort for the public weal! If the strike leaders are able to boast that the long period of deadlock has not been attended with much else than economic disaster, it is due to the much-maligned Citizens' Committee who stood for two things most hated by the Bolshevists of this continent, under whatever name they choose to disguise themselves—cleanliness and industry. Business men of large incomes, whose brains in normal times provided means of livelihood not only for themselves but for large bodies of employees, got up early to feed and clean the city's horses (for the Strike Committee had no more consideration for dumb beasts than for human beings), took their turns at street cleaning and fire service, daily exhausted themselves to perform the necessary tasks left undone by the vast mob of idlers. In doing so they performed a great service for the whole of Canada. The convincing proof that they gave that no Strike Committee had it within its power to condemn any city to the fate of Sodom and Gomorrah, did much to prove to the elements of unrest in other cities the futility of general strikes. All honor to the men who endured so much and served so well.

It is a wise proverb that knows its own father.

"WHEN A GIRL LOVES"

The role of a minister's daughter who falls in love with an aethist, who really is the leader of a notorious band of outlaws is portrayed by beautiful Mildred Harris—Mrs. Charlie Chaplin—in Lois Weber's latest six-reel Jewel Production, "When a Girl Loves," which comes to the Orpheum theatre on Friday and Saturday.

This is the first appearance of Mrs. Chaplin in a Western drama and it gives her an opportunity for pleasing work in an atmosphere different from that of any of her previous features. Reviewers who have seen advanced showings of the picture are lavish in their praise of her acting, some going so far as to call it the best of her career.

The story deals with the reformation of the atheist through the girl's influence and brings to the screen one of the most appealing offerings of the year.

When "When a Girl Loves" comes to the Orpheum Theatre on Friday and Saturday, Mrs. Chaplin will be supported by an excellent supporting cast, including William Stowel, Wharton Jones, Alfred Pagent and Willis Marks.

WINNIPEG LABOR COUNCIL ON TRIAL

Winnipeg, July 7.—The Winnipeg Evening Tribune today prints the following:

"The trades and labor council, the central representative body of organized labor in Winnipeg, will be called on to show its colors Tuesday night.

"On the hue of its colors will depend the life of the present organization.

"If it proves red the charter of the council will be revoked by the trades and labor congress of Canada and a new council will be formed.

"If they are shown to be those of 'sane' labor, the body will be enlisted in the fight of the Dominion congress and the American Federation of Labor against the one big union and radicalism.

"Such is the statement of the men in charge of the fight of the big labor federations against the One Big Union and the radical element in labor.

"R. A. Rigg, general organizer for the Dominion trades and labor congress in Western Canada will call upon the members of the trades and labor council Tuesday night for a declaration of faith.

"If the radicals attempt to gain control of the meeting and swing the council behind a permanent radical policy a stiff fight is expected to develop and if such a move is successful the permanent outlay of the council from the ranks of organized labor is expected to follow."

STRUCK OIL

Pincher Creek Echo: A 25-barrel flow of crude oil was struck at Oil City, four and a half miles from Waterton Lake, on Thursday last, by an outfit under the charge of W. Patrick, which has been for some time working on what is well-known as the old Lineham well.

The news came out while Mr. Patrick was on his way to report the strike to the head office of the company he is working for at Calgary. Beyond the mention of the striking of oil no particulars as to the depth at which it was found have been given out, but as the old well was about 900 feet deep, it is thought this is the depth of the new well.

Another rig is boring a new hole close to the old Lineham well. Much excitement has been created by the find.

STEWING IN OWN FOLLY

In the mineral industry coal mining has drifted into a disgraceful condition, particularly in the Crow's Nest Pass, where we have a strike on the smallest excuse. The management of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. has done everything in its power to meet in a reasonable way the demands of the miners from time to time. Hon. W. Sloan, Minister of Mines, has sought to pass legislation to reduce the causes of friction. W. H. Armstrong, as Controller of Coal Mines on behalf of the Dominion government during the war, was unsparing in his efforts for harmony and continuity of operations. All these efforts have failed, and today we see one of the world's most valuable coal deposits lying idle; the employees out; the union organ, the Fernie Ledger, crying out because of loss of revenue; the Granby smelter at Grand Forks closed down because of want of coke; the Phoenix mines closed down for good and many hundreds of men thrown out of positions, some of which they have held for 20 years. The Trail Smelter may likewise have to close; and result in some thousands more miners being thrown out of work. This mishcief and devastation of industry is entirely due to the narrow, selfish, ignorant policy of a few agitators, mainly foreigners, in the Crow's Nest Pass. They are stewing in their own folly, as now they are asking the government to force the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. to re-open the mines after they themselves closed them down by going on strike.

With all the uncertainty of service, trouble from agitators, repeated closure from strikes; general disorganization of their industry and markets, no one could blame the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. if they shut down their mines for some time until the hardship and privation experienced by the striking miners as the result of their own acts, shall have brought them to a reasonable frame of mind, and taught them that the capital and property of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Ltd., is as necessary to their comfort and prosperity as is the labor of the miners to the profitable operation of the company. This is the law of sound economies; and no anarchist teaching can make it otherwise. Our civilization and ordered industry is the upbuilding of 2000 years of progress, generally slow and meeting with many set-backs; but it is not lightly to be set aside until something better takes its place, and to that end every intelligent man and woman will continue to strive.

office signed by the legal number of members, asking that the present strike situation shall be discussed. Acting on the petition the executive have decided to grant the request and have sent for President Christophers to attend the meeting." This above outlined but in addition the notice called said meeting for 10.30 Wednesday morning. Late Monday afternoon a notice appeared on the boards signed "Thirty-five Petitioners, fully qualified Members of Gladstone Local Union," from which it was evident that the petition which had been circulated called the special meeting for Tuesday morning for the consideration of the strike in District 11 only, and that the executive committee of Gladstone Local had refused to call it for that date but to be combined with the business of the O.B.U. constitution, officers, etc. In conclusion the announcement of the Petitioners reads, "Same will convene at the Miners' Hall, but in the event of the present officials of Gladstone Local refusing to permit it to be held there, another place of meeting will be secured." From this the only inference to be gained was that there was, to say the least, a breach or division between the executive and a certain body of miners. In response to this meeting called by the petitioners there was a large attendance but being engineered by those accustomed to handle such gatherings to their advantage, a motion to adjourn until the following morning, when the District President would be present, was carried. Accordingly this meeting was held commencing at 10.30 a.m. on Wednesday and concluding shortly before 2 p.m. Upon this occasion there were present over 300 deeply interested members of the miners' union. President Christophers and Wm. Potter were the speakers of the occasion, but there was an abundance of members who took part as well. While the actual proceedings of the meeting are not available for publication by ourselves, we have it that this meeting upon repeated occasions reached the seething stage. This was principally due to personal attacks upon respective parties with a view of modifying or relieving those directly responsible for the unsatisfactory condition in which the rank and file had been placed. Needless to say the situation was hashed and re-hashed from every conceivable phase and it was finally adopted by what may be termed a unanimous voice that "the officers of District 18 be instructed to at once endeavor to negotiate an agreement with the Western Coal Operators Association, as an organization affiliated with the International Union, United Mine Workers of America, and that consideration of the One Big Union be indefinitely postponed." The concensus of opinion of this meeting also showed that they desired immediate resumption of work upon the terms and conditions existing when the present strike occurred. As far as can be learned the District officials present assured the meeting that they would endeavor to comply with their wishes. It has also been learned that Michel miners are contemplating similar action as that carried out here and a meeting will be held there at an early date. Other Crow's Nest Pass camps also are reported contemplating similar steps and within a very short time something concrete may transpire relative to the chaotic condition as regards the mine workers organization which has been prevalent in this locality for some considerable time past.

I. O. D. E.

The French Red Cross recently requested the I.O.D.E. to aid them in the collection of clothing of all descriptions, household linens, blankets, in short any kind of supplies needed by the ordinary family.

The manufacturing centres of France have been occupied and devastated by the Germans, all machinery that could be shipped to Germany was sent there, all other machinery destroyed, so that the industries of France should be seriously crippled for long months. It will be impossible for France to help herself for many months to come.

There are several good reasons why B.C. should particularly interest herself in this work. Forty ships are being built in B.C. for France. The French crews necessary to man these ships, about 1600 men, will of necessity be billeted in B.C. for a few days at least. The French consul, Mons. Chevalier, assures us of free transportation direct to France of all supplies we are able to collect.

The I.O.D.E. will hold a shower in the reading room of the G.W.V.A. on Saturday, July 12, from 3 to 5 p.m., to enable the public to contribute to this worthy cause.

The following supplies are asked for: Men's clothing, women's clothing, children's clothing of all sizes in good condition, household linens and blankets, materials of all kinds by the yard or bolt, wool, sock legs, canned and dried fruits that will carry well. Money contributions will be most welcome and wisely expended.

We are desirous of receiving as large a contribution as possible. Please note the following:

1. France has treated British Columbia splendidly in the matter of shipbuilding and equipment.
2. France stands in such need of supplies as is unbelievable.
3. Free transportation of all goods we are able to collect.

We would urge upon all citizens their obligation in this matter and request their hearty co-operation.

Afternoon tea will be served from 3 to 5 p.m.

Although ridiculed as a craze, it is a scientific fact that our milk conduces to longevity.

H. P. Gregson, of Dorr, was in the city yesterday.

Hosmer will celebrate peace by a big picnic next Sunday.

Geo. Hoggarth, of Cranbrook, was in the city on Wednesday.

Blairmore's Municipal and School Tax Rate for 1919 is 72 mills.

Louis Beal, of the 54th, arrived home from overseas on Tuesday evening.

A. Watson, of the Home Bank, and D. Mitchell, motored to Newgate yesterday.

Mr .and Mrs. Hartley Wilson and children arrived from Toronto on Tuesday.

Mrs. John Ingram and daughter, Miss Grace, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ingram.

Currie Bros. have secured the contract for putting a store front in the Bank of Hamilton building.

Robt. Dudley, who was reported last week as being seriously ill in Victoria, is slowly improving.

Corpl. Joe Chambers is back from the front. He left on Thursday for the coast to get his discharge.

Alfred McRitchie, better known as "Fat," is spending a few days in the city after returning from overseas.

The regular meeting of the Fernie District Rod and Gun Club will be held in the council chamber on Monday, July 14, at 8 p.m.

Mr. Fred Pleticha has purchased the ranch owned by Mr. J. Hope, near Galloway. The deal was put through by the B. Winnett Insurance Agencies.

Now that we have a real live Rod and Gun Club, it is expected that their efforts will prove a big factor in improving both the fishing and hunting.

Stanley Norton, formerly of the Western Canada Wholesale staff, is expected back from the front shortly. He has been offered a good position with the Rainbow Lumber Co.

The regular monthly tea of the Ladies Aid of the United church will be given at the home of Mrs. A. Corrie, 60 McPherson Ave., on Tuesday, July 15, from 3.30 to 6.00 p.m.

Commandant Greenland in charge of the local Salvation Army corps, leaves today for the coast, where she will enjoy a few weeks' rest. She will return in August to take up her duties here.

Capt. Jas. Mavor of the B. C. government staff, who for a number of years was with the C.N.P. Coal Co. staff here, was in town on Tuesday. Capt. Mavor was unfortunate enough to lose his left hand in the great war.

A. B. Trites' Chalmers and a prairie car owned by a man named Harvey, met in a head-on collision on a turn on the road near Elko on Wednesday night. Both cars were put out of commission. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Miss B. Jamieson, formerly of the Trites-Wood staff, but now of Vancouver, leaves that city on the 15th of this month for Australia, where she will be united in marriage to Mr. Thos. Maitland, a returned soldier and wealthy rancher of New South Wales.

Among this week's mail we came across a copy of the "Cranbrook Courier," the new paper started in Cranbrook by L. P. Sullivan and F. M. Satre, formerly of the District Ledger staff. This is their second edition and appears to be a real live newspaper.

Delegates who represent the Vancouver branch of the G.W.V.A. at the big Dominion convention at Vancouver brought before the conference the granting of six months' pay to all returned soldiers who had served overseas during the war, this pay to be computed in all cases at the rate paid to officers holding the rank of captain in the Canadian forces. The above scheme is to take the place of the proposed $2000 gratuity scheme.

Louis Carosella, who has a room connected with his store, was aroused the other evening about midnight by the ringing of the cash register, and when he arrived on the scene he found a fifteen year old lad named Joe Fezon, getting away with the cash. He had obtained entrance through a transom in the basement. When asked his name he said it was Joe Steliga. Mr. Carosella knew he was lying so took him down to the city jail.

Miss K. McLaughlin, of Spokane, is the guest of Miss Mary Kossoff.

Mr. and Mrs. Beecroft, of Edmonton, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. Carmichael.

Rumor has it that Phil Chritophers will resign his position as President of District 18.

The financial statement of the 1st of July committee will not be ready for publication until next week.

All returned men are cordially invited to come to Fernie on July 19 to take part in the big peace day celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Young and children returned on Tuesday from a two weeks visit at Nelson and other West Kootenay points.

Corbett is authority for the statement that the Kaiser will be brought to London for trial and that Sandy will be sent for to defend him.

Harry Martin, Secretary of Gladstone Union, owing to ill health, will resign his position. He has been elected checkweighman for the next six months.

Mrs. W. H. Gates, accompanied by her daughters, Margaret and Kathryn, left early this week on an extended visit to Victoria and other coast cities.

A special meeting of the Women's Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. will be held on Monday night at 8 o'clock, July 14. All members are particularly requested to be present.

Come to Fernie on July 19th. We are going to have a real celebration. The finance committee are hustling for a great big subscription and up to date have been very successful.

Mrs. Lamb returned from a visit to Park River, North Dakota, on Tuesday. Miss Florence Gates, a niece of J. L. Gates, came with her and will spend several weeks' vacation in the city.

On Wednesday evening the Old Timers defated the F. A. A. C. by the score of 7 to 12. This is the second win for the Old Timers this year. Tonight the Old Timers play the Hulas at 6.15 sharp.

In connection with the Victory Queen competition for Peace Day, boxes for the depositing of votes will be placed at Trites-Wood, Crow's Nest Trading Co., N. E. Suddaby's and Waldie's Candy Parlors.

You must not forget the shower to be given in the reading rooms of the G.W.V.A. on Saturday afternoon by the I.O.D.E. for the French Red Cross. Full particulars are given in this issue under the I.O.D.E. heading. Tea will be served from 3 to 5 p.m.

Dave Rees, international organizer for the United Mine Workers, who has been down in Nova Scotia coal fields for some weeks, is expected in the city on Sunday. Dave's position in regard to the O.B.U. has been completely vindicated by the events of the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. McGuire and their little daughter Rosemary were up to Calgary Fair and spent a week. While there Mr. McGuire met his uncle, J. F. McGuire, of Denver, whom he had not seen for 27 years, and whose horse won the pacing race. Colin Sinclair, mother and brother, also motored to the Fair and spent a week.

In the mine rescue competition at Calgary on Tuesday the Blairmore team secured third place, bringing home beautifully engraved gold and silk fobs. It might be noted that the other competing teams were made up almost wholly of practical and experienced miners, while on the Blairmore team only one could be classed as a miner. Dr. Corsan, of Fernie, was one of the judges. — Blairmore Enterprise.

Since the foolish sympathetic strike started every small town in Manitoba had thousands of crates of good eggs that spoiled because they couldn't be sent to cold storage plants in Winnipeg. Here in Alberta there was considerable cream spoiled as well as eggs as a result of the expressmen going on strike. The strike as a means of bringing down the high cost of living is a tragic joke and the strikers, when in want next winter, need not look for much sympathy from the general public.—High River Times.

A meeting of the Chautaqua guarantors was held in Herchmer & Graham's office on Tuesday evening, when Mr. Lineham, advance agent, outlined the nature of the program. This will be better than the one held last year particularly in regard to the musical part which last season was considerably interfered with owing to the war, the various organizations being disrupted. The feature in the lecture series is one by Glen Frank, asociate editor of the Century Magazine. He has earned a great reputation for platform addresses, particularly in the subject on which he will speak here, "The New Order vs. the New Disorder." Other attractions will be Tom Corvine, a wonderful imitator of sounds, the famous White Hussar brass band, the Hawaians. These are but a few in a highly interesting program for the Chautauqua which will be held here in August.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

Can They Be Spared

It has come to the knowledge of the Ahe reporter that several Canadians who served in France have obtained positions in the United States. Every one of these repatriated young men schooled to love Canada and fight for her is worth ten immigrants of alien birth. But the government only has eyes for the newcomer. The native may go his way—across the line, to become an American. No one puts up a hand to hinder his going; neither a government official nor capitalist. Can we spare the blood?—Galt Reporter.

SELF POISONING PREVALENT

Auto-Intoxication, Or Slow Self-Poisoning, Cause of Most Ill Health and Disease

Advanced medical authorities assert that auto-intoxication is the foundation of most of the ills and diseases to which human flesh is heir.

This condition is nothing more nor less than the slow self-poisoning of the vital organs produced by the excessive mental and physical strain which we are forced to endure, which renders the organs lame and inactive, and permits toxins—actual poisons—to be generated within one's own body.

Usually the trouble starts in the intestines; sometimes it starts in the stomach, liver or kidneys, but in any case the blame lies with the faulty method of living, and may be traced to over-eating, excessive nervous strain, lack of exercise, or other causes. At any rate it is the more important organs that suffer the final damage and when they falter or fail in their duties the body fills up with acids and poisons, and the victim often yields to their baneful influences, Bright's disease, heart trouble, high blood pressure, catarrhal affections, and other troubles are frequently the result of self poisoning or auto-intoxication.

A tired, draggy feeling of the body a sluggish mind, and dull memory, intense nervousness, headache, stomach and bowel troubles, poor circulation, imperfect digestion, constipation and despondency are common symptoms of auto-intoxication; and nine out of every ten of the American people are likely to be so affected.

Tanlac, the powerful reconstructive and systemic tonic was designed especially to overcome thes very troubles. There is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful work of this celebrated preparation, which begins its action by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and envigorating the entire system. Composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science it enables the stomach to thoroughly digest the food, thereby permitting the assimilable products to be converted into blood, bone and muscle. It overcomes that great exciting cause of disease, weakness. It renders the body vigorous and elastic, it keeps the mind clear and energetic, and throws off the symptoms of nervousness and indigestion. It builds up the constitution weakened by disease or mental and physical overwork, quickens convalescence of the invalid, and is a sure and unfailing source of comfort to those who are suffering from the effects of nervousness and over-work.

That Tanlac does these very things is proven by the fact that it now has the largest sale of any tonic on the American market. Millions have used it with the most astonishing and gratifying results.

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

HOHENZOLLERN TO THE BAR

Lloyd George's announcement that the tribunal to judge the ex-Kaiser will shortly sit in London is one of the most satisfactory things that has been said since November 11. The Peace Conference in Paris seemed so absorbed in establishing new states and in considering the details of the peace treaty that it was feared William Hohenzollern had been overlooked. There were many who hinted that, after all, the ex-Kaiser was of royal blood and that royalty in Europe would stand by him. It is satisfactory to know that these hints of influence in behalf of the Hohenzollerns were baseless, that the new world which is supposed to have been born as a result of the war will prove no respecter of persons, and that a man who orders a murder will be punished whether he happens to be a former emperor or an obscure employer of gunmen. It is to beinferred from the Prime Minister's statement that there will be no trouble about getting Wilhelm out of Holland, and that the learned nonsense talked about the impossibility of extraditing a man who claims the rank of political refugee has not imposed upon the leaders of the Allied nations.

Unless the Allies have been as grossly misled as have the German people, there can be not the slightest doubt that legally and morally the ex-Emperor of Germany is a murderer, and therefore ought to be imprisoned for life or sentenced to death. But is not because he is one of the greatest criminals of history that there is such a strong demand for his punishment. Nothing that can happen now, nothing that has happened in the past six months, can add to the bitterness of William Hohenzollern's punishment. There has hardly been such a fall since Lucifer fell flaming. Perhaps no man in history has been so loathed and hated by so many people as the former Emperor of Germany. Nor if he had a million lives and each one of them was cut short by an executioner would it be possible to fully satisfy the claims of humanity against him. It is solely on account of the lesson his fate will have for those who come after him that the extreme penalty is demanded for this man. His execution would be a better guarantee of the peace of the world than any treaty made in Paris or a League of Nations. If an autocrat knew that in the event of a war of his planning being a failure his own life would be forfeited he would not lightly go to war. When he has only to risk other people's lives, as in the past, he will not hesitate from taking the risk. Unless this temptation is forever removed the work of the Peace Conference will have been a failure.

NO QUARTER

The astonishing statement is made that "there are between 300,000 and 500,000 men and women in New York citl who advocate the forcible seizure of property and the revolutionary overthrow of the government." This is the statement of Senator Lusk, Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee investigating seditious activities in New York. This committee has had the aid of our active and alert Attorney-General, Charles D. Newton. The result of its investigation will be watched with profound interest. As Senator Lusk says, "The time has come to make it perfectly plain that this is not a political but a patriotic question."

Everybody is asking why there should be unrest in a country so prosperous as ours and that has come out of the war with so little damage. One can understand the unrest of war-ravaged lands, but here there is work for all at the highest wages ever paid. Why then do we have unrest? The answer is alien propaganda. Bolshevism today has 2500 trained and paid agitators and 265 publications, daily, weekly and monthly, in the United States. Bolshevism is Russian in name and philosophy, but it had its first chance upon American soil.

The fault of the United States has been its leniency toward revolutionary elements who have come here from Russia and Central Europe and have abused our freedom. Trotzky and his crowd preached their doctrines in New York to their hearts' content, then went back to Russia, seized the reins of government and began to put their doctrines into effect. But the program they are carrying out is practically the one adopted by the I.W.W. in Chicago in 1904. Alien elements abused our freedom of speech and press. The only right course is to declare war on the whole alien crew and the so-called intellectuals born in this country who by their alliance with the Bolshevists have disgraced the land of their birth. They all advocate overthrow of the Constitution and the Government. They thereby forfeit the right of assemblage or the use of the mails.

No Bolshevist should be permitted to teach in any school, college or university in the United States. Every alien Bolshevist should be deported, and every native-born Bolshevist who attacks his country should be put behind prison bars where Goldman, Berkman and Debs now are. There should be no quarter given to the Bolshvist, the most subtle and dangerous enemy democracy has ever had to face.—Lesile's.

A 300-Mile Bee-Line

"In crossing the Nullarbor Plain, so named because it is treeless, the Trans-Australian railway runs without a curve for 300 miles—probably the world's record for a "straight." In all its length of over 1051 miles, the line does not cross a single stream of permanent water." This statement was made by Mr. T. R. Johnson, late chief commissioner for railways, New South Wales, in the course of a paper read before the members of the Royal Colonial Institute.—Daily Graphic.

BAYER

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Canadians and owned by a Canadian Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross,"—Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Fred Spalding, the auto trail blazer, scores the Fernie Board of Trade for their procrastination in advertising the beautiful scenery surrounding the Old Historic Burg of Elko, the beauty spot of Southern British Columbia, where the trout jump high and everybody wears a smile you can't help taking a second look at. But cheer up, Fred, if they are dead in Fernie and just watiting for George Thomson to bury them, we in Elko are sure advertising. The writer is just in receipt of a letter from Toronto informing him that Miss M. E. Gilmour, of Lakeview avenue, who was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Broley, Sunkist Orchards, and Miss E. May Roo, of Elko, that she had given three lectures to crowded houses showing over fifty views of the hyacinthe tinted and picturesque Roosville valley, the Elk Canyon and the Falls, and automobile drives, which will help some. Having to live by the kind permission of the strike committee is enough to weaken any Board of Trade. If the town of Fernie would just rid itself of the Bolshevik element, prosperity would spread out like measles in a boarding school and tourists would come in like Methodists to a pink tea. So cheer up, Fred, there's a good time coming. Being cheerful is like making love to a widow. You can't over do it.

It is the duty of every Elkoite at this time to make the visitors from other provinces and states welcome to our little city, the Queen of the Crow's Nest, and make them feel that we appreciate their coming. Treat them with the same courtesy and kindness that you would desire if you were a stranger visiting other provinces or states. It's great boosting to make strangers feel they are welcome. Personal chivalry is great stuff to hand out to the stranger, and smile awhile for while you smile another smiles and soon there's miles and miles of smiles and life's worth while because you smile.

Tom Gorrie, manager of the Clydebank Stock Ranch, Roosville Valley, with several horse wranglers, were in Elko this week.

Mrs. Wm. Parnell and daughter left for Canal Flats, where they will visit with Mrs. Parnell sister, Mrs. Fred Archer.

Jim Thistlebeak says there are hundreds of men who were not raised on a farm; learned all about thrashing when they were small boys.

Alex Sinclair of Mountain View Ranch, Roosville Valley, returned this week from Vladivostock, where he was sent from the military camp at Val Cartier, Quebec. Alex enlisted in Fernie and went to Victoria, then crossed the continent for Quebec, then back to Vladivostock and now back home, and says he saw nothing in all his travels that looked as good as the scenery around Elko and his Home Sweet Home.

Business is good. Cheer up.

EXPLANATION AND APOLOGY

that they never would have been made if I had known then what I have since found out. One of your members has said that when I called on him about three weeks ago he told me what you were doing. Thinking that he had told me this, you certainly have grounds for considering my letter a direct personal attack, but there is some misunderstanding regarding this, as I came away from my interview with him with the only knowledge that the present time was not opportune for soliciting funds.

Honestly believing that what I expressed in my letter was the true condition of affairs, I, in conjunction with several others who have this proposition as much at heart as I have, got together and decided to call a meeting to discuss the matter and a notice was posted up to that effect. Our meeting was held last night and at it, it was unmistakably understood that there was no spirit of antagonism to the Board of Trade. So much so, that the decision was arrived at that we first of all concentrate our efforts to clearing up any misunderstanding that might exist as to our reasons, and to get the Board of Trade to work with us, or let us work with them and all get together in a spirit of friendliness and work together for the best interests of our town, and that we would make no definite arrangements until such steps had been taken.

As I believe that my actions have been construed to be purely selfish in this matter by certain members of your committee,, I would like to repeat to you what I told Mr. Stewart three weeks ago, and members of the city council over a month ago, of which evidently you have not been informed, viz.: That I would give the use of my studio for an information bureau and my services in running it without any remuneration whatever. I also told him that I would allow them to make use of the data which has taken me three years of the hardest work to obtain, also without charge. This offer was made solely with the idea of getting this thing started with as little expense as possible ,then later on, if it was found that the work was going to assume greater proportions, different arrangements could be made. I hope that this will dispell the impression of selfishness in respect to my motives, and convince you that my only desire is to see that the city gets the publicity which I am positively sure will bring in very large financial returns. As that offer was not definitely accepted, and owing to the present state of affairs, I withdraw it herewith so far as the Board of Trade is concerned, and I would like it to be distinctly understood that under no circumstances will I allow either the Board of Trade of the Fernie Tourist Association to make any use whatever of my copyright without my written permission.

Considering that any organization appointed to carry this thing through to a successful issue will find it will entail a very great amount of work and sacrifice of time, also that when it is once started it must be carried through in an energetic manner, and that we, and the Board of Trade have both formulated plans, I would urge that we sink all differences of opinion and immediately get together and discuss the matter in an amicable spirit.

Again expressing my regrets for the impression my letter has given rise to, and assuring you that it was not meant in the spirit in which it was taken by you, as I have absolutely no reason for any animosity towards any member of your committee, which I hope to be able to show you, if we can get together.

As my letter appeared in the public press, in all fairness to you, this apology and explanation should receive the same amount of publicity. I am therefore sending a copy of it to the Free Press with the request that they put it in their next issue.

Trusting that this letter will be accepted by you in the same spirit in which it is written. Believe me,

Yours faithfully,
Fred Spalding.

DE VALERA, REBEL LEADER

We have it on the authirty of a leading American newspaper that nobody who has visited the United States since the beginning of the war, not even President Wilson, has received such a tremendous reception as Eamonn De Valera, the so-called president of the so-called Irish Republic. Tremendous crowds gather to hear him, wait for hours to catch a glimpse of him, and the cheers that greet his appearance are almost hysterical in their enthusiasm. It is not the personality of De Valera that commands this tribute, but the fact that he represents an Ireland free from the English yoke, the Ireland of the dreams of the Irish-Americans. Millions of Americans can see no difference in the condition of Ireland today, and the condition of Poland before the present war. With their intelligence we are not now concerned. The fact that is important and is in deed amazing, is that this sentiment exists, and it may not be an exaggeration to say that more Americans are keenly interested in the fate of Ireland than in any other foreign question today, except, of course, the fate of Germany. This explains the delight with which vast American audiences welcome De Valera.

There may be American as well as Irish patriotism involved for the Sinn Fein leader was born in New York city. What his nationality is it would take an international expert to say. His father was a native of some South American country, his mother was Irish. She is living now in Rochester, having married again after De Valera's father died. The boy was at that time two and a half years old and was sent to his mother's family in Limerick. It was there that he imbibed his hatred of England, and dreamed his first dream of an Irish Republic. He was educated at Bluroe, Charleville, and the French College, Black Rock, County Dublin, and later attended lectures at Trinity College, Dublin. As a student he was brilliant, and prize after prize and scholarship after scholarship fell to him in arts, science and pedagogy. In mathematical science he taught the special honors courses in Dublin University, the late Royal University, at Black Rock, St. Stephen's Green, Eccles Street, Loretto, and later was lecturer in these courses at Maynooth College. For ten years he was professor at the Royal Training College for primary teachers and was matehmatical examiner for the intermediate and national universities, and examiner in Irish for the Royal College of Surgeons. It is interesting to note that, like Casement, De Valera has drawn considerable state money in his comparatively brief career.

De Valera first came into prominence in the Easter rebellion of 1916, when the Seinn Feiners made their attempt to seize Dublin. He was in command of one hundred men, and it is said that this little froup put up an unusually stiff fight. When the rebels surrendered, De Valera was among those to be court-martialed. He was sentenced to life imprisonment and was thus luckier than any of his chief associates, for the rest of them suffered the death penalty. He was sent to Dartmoor with sixty-four other Irish prisoners, and for some time endured the rigors of penal servitude. When Professor Eoin McNeil, of the National University of Dublin arrived as a prisoner one day, De Valera called out, "Irish Volunteers! Attention! Eyes left." A few days later he committed another breach of prison rules and was set to pick oakum. He refused to work, and when charged with this additional offence went on a hunger strike until the charge against him was withdrawn. Next he was removed to Maidstone Prison, where he associated with English convicts who had no interest in Ireland. He was not there long before the British government released about 2000 Irish prisoners and modified the conditions for the others, among whom was De Valera.

He was taken to Lewes but had not been there long before he organized a rebellion among the 125 Irishmen who were also prisoners. As spokesman for them De Valera demanded that they be treated as prisoners of war and not as felons, and when this was refused the prisoners returned to their cells, wrecked what furniture there was and smashed the windows. This led to the men being split up again. They were put in the chain gangs and their former concessions were cancelled. But again the British government weakened in response to pressure from some quarter, and the rebels were released. As De Valera left Pentonville he received a telegram urging him to run as Republican candidate for East Clare. He accepted and was elected with a great majority. He then gave his attention to organizing the Sein Fenin party. It appears that among the Sin Feiners were those who, believing in Irish independence, did not recommend rebellion, but adhered rather to peaceful propaganda. The others, the real Fenians, wanted bloody action in large and immediate doses. De Valera was the only man in sight who had the respect of all factions.

His organizing ability was responsible for the results of the last election when his followers elected seventy-three members of the House of Commons, although each Seinn Fein candidate was pledged not to attend the accursed chamber. Then was held that famous Irish Parliament in Dublin, whose proceedings were conducted haltingly in the Erse tongue, and which declared the independence of Ireland, and hailed De Valera as president of the new republic. In May, 1918, the British government arrested and deported from Ireland 100 male Sein Feiners, and three women and until the following March held them as prisoners. Of course De Valera was among them. He was confined in Lincoln prison, which appears to have points of resemblance to the Toronto jail, for Valera escaped therefrom to Ireland. He lay hidden, but whether the British police were really sincere in their efforts to capture him is a question. At any rate he was at large for some months, and then appeared dramatically in the United States to float a loan of $5,000,000 for his republic. It is likely that he will do this if everybody who is willing to give him a cheer is willing to lend him a dollar.

THE DERBY— ITS HISTORY

The Derby was instituted by the 12th Earl of Derby in 1780. A year earlier the same racing peer had started the Oaks, named after his place at Barnstead Downs—the Valley of Lambert's Oaks. Lord Derby won his own race in 1778 with Sir Peter Teazle, named thus in honor of his wife, who was Miss Farren and had been acting as Lady Teazle in The School for Scandal when Lord Derby saw her for the first time.

Little could Lord Derby have imagined that by the time of his grandson—the Prime minister of the early part of Queen Victoria's reign—the Derby would be the occasion of a national festival. Sam Arnull, when he finished first on Sir Charles Bunbury's Sir Diomed, could have had no idea that for at least once a year forever his name would be mentioned as the top name on a list which includes almost all the greatest horses of history, names famous in politics, society and finance and the names of such wonderful horsemen as Fred Arches, the Chifneys, Robinsons, Days, Cannons, Loates, and D. Maher. F. Wootton, as great an artist as any of them, never won the Derby.

How soon Derby Day became a national fete day cannot be said but it was a great holiday in the early part of last century. On May 18, 1847, Lord George Bentick— a real power in political and racing world of those days—moved the adjournment of the House of Commons over Derby Day. This motion was moved each year by a private member, until in 1860 Lord Palmerston moved it as a government measure "as a part of the unwritten law of Parliament." Sir Stafford Northcote abandoned the motion as a government motion in 1879 and on the proposal of Lord Wolmer it was rejected in 1892. The house therefore did not adjourn in that year but it was so empty that it could not transact any important business. It was a pity that such a custom should have been allowed to drop. The adjournment was proposed this year by Mr. Bottomley, but not carried. From 1847-1892 the house adjourned over Derby Day. In 1894 the Prime Minister won the race with Ladas amid scenes of indescribable enthusiam, and the House of Commons was sitting at the time. Never before or since has a Prime Minister won this race.

The Derby was run without a break from 1780 until 1914, and in 1915 the Epsom stands and course were put to other even more important uses. A substitute Derby which cannot count was run at Newmarket in 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918 on a straight galloping course. The Derby Course on Epsom Downs is left-handed and consists of two straights and a turn—the historic Tattenham Corner. It is ofen called an unfair course and a rogue's paradise. It may be the latter, but it refers to man rather than to horses. A horse to win the Derby must be possessed of the ability to start off quickly. He needs pace so as to be well placed at Tattenham Corner, and he must be able to come down hill turning sharply all the time. And then he must possess stamina to finish that long straight. The horse that wins the Derby must possess all these qualities.

As an instance of the importance attached to the Derby, the following extract from the biography of Lord George Bentick by Lord Beaconsfield is not without interest. Lord George had sold his whole stud at the Goodwood meeting of 1846 to Mr. Mostyn for 10,000 pounds. Among the stud was Surplice, winner of the Derby of 1848—

Afew days before—it was the day after the Derby, May 25, 1848—the writer met Lord George Bentinck in the Library of the House of Commons. He was standing before the bookshelves, with a volume in his hand and his countenance was much disturbed. His resolutions in favor of the colonial interests after all his labors, had been negatived by the committee on the 22nd and 24th; his horse Surplice, whom he had parted with among the rest of his stud, solely that he might pursue without distraction, his labors on behalf of the great interests of the country, had won that paramount and Olympic stake, to gain which had been the object of his life. He had nothing to console him and nothing to sustain him, except his pride. Even that deserted him before a heart, which he knew at least could yield his sympathy. He gave a sort of superb groan.

"All my life I have been trying for this, and for what have I sacrificed it," he murmured.

It was in vain to offer solace.

"You do not know what the Derby is," he moaned out.

"Yes I do, it is the Blue Riband of the Turf."

"It is the Blue Riband of the Turf," he slowly repeated to himself, and sitting down at a table he buried himself in a folio of statistics.

There have been foreign attacks on the Derby, and strong forces have been landed on Epsom Downs on many occasions. In 1865 Gladiator came from France and won, from which country Durbar II, the property of an American, also came. Kisber, who won in 1876 was a Hungarian, and Iroquois, who won in 1881, came from America. There is no foreign invasion this year.

In an event of such importance which has existed for so many years there have of course happened some extraordinary things. There was the mystery of the Derby of 1913, when Craganour was first past the post but was disqualified, although the owner of the second never lodged any complaint — an unusual procedure of which no explanation was ever given. Great judges of racing well placed to watch the race have always stated that they thought the chief offender in a bumping and unsatisfactory finish was the horse to whom the race was given—Aboyeur. That was a sensational race, but it was nothing to the historical mystery of the Derby of 1844 when Running Rein, the property of Mr. Wood, and trained by one Levi Goodman, beat General Peel's Orlando and was afterwards deprived of the race as he was a year too old. Such, at any rate, was the allegation of General Peel, and the matter was taken to the courts, whereupon Mr. Wood was ordered to produce his horse. He agreed to do so, but had to report next day that his horse and trainer had vanished. Mr. Wood was found to be innocent of all knowledge of the affair. The horse was disqualified. There are many stories in existence about the later life of Running Rein. According to one version he was taken to Northamptonshire and finally came up to London, where he found work in the shafts of a hansom cab.

According to another version he was sent to Russia, where he raced successfully under the name of Zanoni. Another version is that he was destroyed soon after the race and buried near Chalk Lane, whence his jaw was dug up years later. There was another four-year-old in that Derby of 1844. Leander, the property of a German, Herr Lichtwald, broke his leg in the race and was shot. His upper and lower jaws were examined by two different veterinary surgeons, and each pronounced him to be a year too old.

The story of Hermit, the property of Lord Chaplin, who won in 1867, would be beyond belief if it were not true. In 1864 Mr. Henry Chaplin, as he then was, had been engaged to be married to Lary Florence Paget. She, however, suddenly married that mad plunger, Lord Hastings. Hermit was a Derby favorite all through the Winter of '66-67, but broke a blood vessel in the Spring. He started at 66 to 1 against in the great race and won by a neck. Lord Chaplin is stated to have won a fortune by his victory, his rival, Lord Hastings, ruined. He himself stated just before his death that "Hermit fairly broke my heart, but I did not show it, did I,"

HOW WOULD LABOR FARE WITH A SIX-HOUR DAY?

If the six-hour labor day will benefit the American people, it should be adopted. If detrimental to their prosperity and welfare, it should be rejected by labor, for if it should be detrimental to the public it would inevitably be detrimental to the country's wage-earners. There can by no possibility be such a thing as prosperous wage labor in an unprosperous country.

Prosperity springs from production and can have no other origin. If we curtail production we curtail prosperity, and the result will be the same whether the curtailment of production comes from adverse natural conditions or a letting down of industry by the people.

These truths should be beyond question in intelligent and observing minds after the object lessons of the great war in Europe. The actual battle area covers but a small part of the map of Europe, but hunger from lack of food, misery from lack of clothing, and suffering from lack of fuel are the hard lot of a large majority of the inhabitants of continental Europe.

The war brought on curtailment of production of the necessaries of life, and the wage-earners, not the wealthy people, are the chief sufferers, though all have suffered.

There are two ways by which production of the good things of earth can be cut down.

1. By the withdrawal of great bodies of men from industrial production, as in war or in widespread and protracted labor strikes.

2. By keeping labor employed in its normal numbers, while reducing its productive period daily to a point where the same reduced output would be reached as if a third or a half of the productive workers were held in total idleness.

Either course will bring distress on labor. If the groups of workers, for example, who produce the shoes for the nation, and those who produce the leather for the shoes, cut down their output 25, 40 or 50 per cent, it will be the laboring people, not the shoe manufacturers, who will suffer. The manufacturer can adjust himself to the changed conditions. If his factory, by the cutting down of the labor day, can turn out but half the normal number of shoes, he will double his profit on that half and make as much money as before.

But the wage-earners who make the shoes of the nation would find that not only had they imposed a hardship on their fellow workers in all other lines of industry, but upon themselves as well. For the short day would apply to all industry, and the shoe workers, as well as all others would have to pay higher prices for their food, their clothing, their medical supplies, their books and newspapers, their amusements, their housing, etc.

What else is labor but making use of a country's natural resources? If all labor should be stopped, the natural resources would amount to nothing. They were here, in possession of the Indians, before the white men came to this country, and little the indolent Indians got out of them.

Precisely to the extent that we might approach the siwash standard of industry, the siwash working day, we should be heading toward the siwash measure of prosperity.—The Spokesman Review.

BLAIRMORE G.W.V.A.

Blairmore Enterprise: The local G. W. V. A. has acquired a brick building on the Frank-Blairmore intertown boundary line and are fitting it up as a club rooms and headquarters for the Pass veterans. The grounds are being laid out similar to the Galt Gardens at Lethbridge, over which they have one advantage ,that you can use your fishing rod from the back door or windows, to great advantage in one of the finest fishing streams in the Crow's Nest Pass. In describing the coast line Fitzsimmons says it resembles very much the southeast coast of Newfoundland or the bluff around Turnavik, Labrador, only there are not so many bluffs entertained. The headquarters are to be in charge of a caretaker and the club rooms will extend a welcome to the veteran, whithersoever he comes.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

MAY AND JUNE DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

TAX RATE 39.02 MILLS

The city council held the first regular meeting for the month last night and the sesion was quite brief. His Worship Mayor Uphill and all the aldermen were present. A delegation comprised of Rev. Batzold, Rev. Father Michels and Harold Wilson appeared before the council and made an appeal for the erection, if possible, of a permanent pavilion at the City Park, which could be utilized upon all occasions and particularly for Sunday school picnics. Failing a permanent structure the request was made for something of a temporary nature. These requirements were discussed at some length and while all were agreed as to the necessity of this it was pointed out by members of the council that the city could not at this time assume the financial responsibility of erecting a permanent structure. The committee, however, were assured that some temporary shelters would be available for use by the Sunday school children.

The Nanaimo Automobile Association forwarded a resolution for endorsement by the council. This resolution pointed out that the Provincial government derived from license fees and personal property taxes from auto owners in this province approximately $430,000 and in view of the fact that municipalities were required to maintain all streets within their limits ,and while these were used extensively by motorists the government received all revenue and the municipalities received nothing. This condition in the opinion of those drafting the resolution was not an equitable condition and they desired that a concerted effort be made by all municipalities to have the government refund 50 per cent of the revenue derived from automobiles located within the municipality. The council endorsed the resolution.

A request was received from the Crow's Nest Highway Association for the council to send a representative to a convention to be held in Lethbridge in the near future. This was referred to the Secretary of the Automobile Association.

Accounts in connection with the inquest held upon the unknown infant last month were submitted and referred to the finance committee to report when the regular batch of monthly accounts are presented at the final meeting for the month.

Relative to Lot "A" Block 17, acquired by the city through tax sale, on regular motion the city clerk was instructed to notify Mr. Scott, the former owner, that he could re-purchase same for the sum of $850.

A lengthy discussion took place relative to the matter of co-operating with the school board in the furnishing of playground equipment at the Central school grounds. The council authorized a grant of $250 for this with a further recommendation that this equipment be manufactured locally in so far as it was possible to do.

A brief discussion dealing with sign boards, river bank protection, sidewalks, street improvements, etc., followed. Then the Rates bylaw for the current year was finally passed, and the rate of 39.02 mills was the amount fixed. Another bylaw known as the Percentage Addition Bylaw was finally passed and the meeting adjourned.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Mr. Editor—Let me congratulate Mr. Spalding on his letter in your last issue for the stand he has taken on the matter of putting Fernie on the map. If we had a few more like him, men who are not afraid to let outside people know of the beauties of our surrounding country and other advantages in coming this way, it would be better for all concerned.

Recently when in Spokane I called on the Auto Club for a little information re Fernie district and its roads, and was handed a booklet issued by Cranbrook, with the further information that that was all they could tell me, as it was impossible to find out anything else about this place.

Now the scenery does not affect us because we see it daily but to others it means a lot and in getting them to come this way we are sure to benefit by having them stay a few days, and in order to get the best results we must do all we can.

I am sure with a little effort we could make Fairy Creek an ideal camping ground, besides other places near by. A summer resort could be put up with very little outlay and would be a paying proposition. For side trips Elk Falls cannot be surpassed by anything I have ever seen in the Colorado Rockies. But why go further into detail. Our district has the goods and can bring results, but we must do our share to let others know of them. Advertising pays. Be a Booster. I am

One of Them.

PRIZES PRESENTED

A very interesting gathering took place on the grounds of the the Provincial Court House this afternoon when the local chapter of the I. O. D. E. and the officers of the Navy League presented the prize winners in the different patriotic competitions in the public schools with the different prizes.

Dr. Bonnell, M.P., occupied the chair and gave a brief talk on the Union Jack and the traditions it represented. He then called upon Mrs. R. W. Wood, representing the educational committee of the I.O.D.E.. She told of the work they had carried on in the public schools of the city, of the different competitions that had been held in regard to Canadian History, and presented Misses Raynolds, Wallace and Sherwood with three beautiful books, prizes in connection with the competition. In connection with their educational work the I.O. D.E. had given the school a library of forty books about two months ago, and of these books 93 pupils had read at least ten of them, showing that their efforts along educational lines were being appreciated.

A. I .Fisher, M.P.P., was the next speaker. He talked to the children for about five minutes, congratulating the prize winners, and the I. O. D.E. for the noble work they had carried out since the war began.

R. Hewat, on behalf of the Navy League, presented the prizes for the best essays on Canadian History. This was a competition between the entrance pupils of Cranbrook and Fernie. Miss Anna Reynolds won second prize, the first and third going to pupils from Cranbrook school.

Mrs. A. I. Fisher, President of the I.O.D.E., made a presentation of medals to six members of the Boy Scouts for efficiency during the past year.

Harold Wilson, the scoutmaster, thanked the I.O.D.E. and spoke for a few minutes on the good work that was being accomplished among the younger boys in the public school through the Scout movement.

R. M. Young was the next speaker. He dwelt at some length on the wonderful work of the Navy League. In two or three years it had grown until it had now a membership of 70,000 in Canada and last year had raised $1,700,000 for patriotic work. He spoke of the great educational and practical work that the League had planned and were carrying out every day.

Rev. Batzold, Rev. Father Michels and S. Herchmer also addressed the gathering.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

H. Harvey, of Lethbridge, will bring 20,000 sheep to Elko to feed.

Three boys, T. Bentham, A. Bergman and R. Smalock, are under arrest for dynamiting fish in Hartley Lake.

Marriage licenses were issued this week to Thomas Hughes and Miss Ada Clowers; and also to Harvey Wallace and Miss Josephine C. Fonch.

FOOTBALL NEWS

The F.A.A.C. defeated Coal Creek last night 3—1, but there was only three F.A.A.C. men playing. Both sides had players from most of the teams in the League. Joe Mills plays some game for a man up in years; also T. Oakley. Both these players should make good coaches for the younger generation of footballers. G. Booth played his usual game and is one of the best backs in the League. Benny Smith opened up last night and showed that he could still play football. Dick Thornton is a well known player and does not miss many chances, and is a dangerous player when close in. Jimmy Robson scored the only goal Coal Creek got and it was a beauty. Jimmy is one of the best players in the League.

More than likely a good match will be pulled off on Peace Day, July 19.

LET THE PUBLIC STRIKE

A threat to tie up the entire telephone and telegraph service in the United States is of vital interest to every individual. The average citizen wants to know why any dispute between employer and employee should be permitted to go so far as to cripple the business, social and religious life of all the people.

There are certain things that groups of men have no right to do. Suppose the farmers should threaten not to produce cotton, wheat or corn; that oil producers should threaten to stop their wells; that light and power companies should threaten to shut off gas and power; that physicians should threaten to refuse to attend the sick; that railroads should refuse to run. The public would demand that all these forms of service were so essential to the general welfare that they should be preserved without break, and that all disputes concerning compensation or hours should be adjusted without visiting penalties upon the innocent public.

The public is always the greatest sufferer in a strike, and so appalling would be the hardship of a nation-wide tie-up of telephone and telegraph service that the public has the right to demand that there be neither lockout nor strike. Nor can the public understand why an outsider should be permitted to come into the Western Union organization, secure the support of only 3500 employees, and then attempt to dominate 40,000 of whom 21,000 are already organized and satisfied.

Let employer and employee settle matters in dispute without sacrificing the public, or let the public organize a strike against the strikers. —Leslie's.

"COLD BLANKET ON LABOR MEN"

Toronto, July 9.—Under the heading "Cold Blanket on Labor Men," the Toronto Globe says in its news columns:

"Underneath all the glad hand welcome extended officially by Toronto labor officials there is a feeling among the workers themselves that it would have been just as well if Aldermen Queen and Heaps and Messrs. Dunn and Bray had remained in Winnipeg, the scene of their late strike propogating activities. Nobody will say anything openly for publication, but their visit is so openly discussed in labor halls that the real opinion of Toronto workers is not hard to ascertain.

"They say they want funds with which to defend the men under arrest in Winnipeg, declared one union official last night.

"How much did it cost to send four men down here and to Hamilton and Kitchener and Ottawa and Montreal?

The Globe figures up it will cost $700 or $800 for travelling expenses.

"In justice to the westerners it must be said they freely discussed the purpose of their visit with the newspapermen," continues the article.

"They have no other object, they said Monday, than that of arousing public demand for trial by jury of those aliens whom the Dominion government declares are to be deported. The metal trades listened to speechs from th visitors and passed resolutions of hearty welcome. The teamsters heard them also. But some of the men thought it would be just as well if the press dd not menton that Aldermen Heaps and Queen and Messrs. Bray and Dunn were among those present."

Here is another bona fide statement of a labor man:

"I know what they came to Toronto for. The election of officers for the Trades and Labor Congress will come off in a few days and they are here to help elect the 'Red' element in Toronto."

PEACE AND HONOR

THE TRIUMPH GLORIOUS.

(By Flora Davis)

Though 'twas Victory led us onward
While the guns made loud acclaim,
'Tis the cause of God that triumphs
And not the blood and flame.

Though we've crushed the iron gauntlet,
And we've brought a tyrant shame,
'Tis the power of Hell we've humbled
And not the Kaiser's fame.

In the dawn of Peace gleams Heaven,
Yet the struggle must remain
Till the Christ in Man exalted
Lifts all to bear His name.

HOSMER CELEBRATES

Hosmer celebrated peace last Sunday with a big picnic, sports and a dance in the evening. A beautiful spot on the island just south of the government bridge, was chosen for the occasion, and here by the time lunch was ready about 200 Hosmerites and a few from outside, had gathered. The tables were laden with the very best and finest possible to procure. There was nothing lacking in this regard. Iced drinks from the real old fashioned lemonade up were provided in abundance for all during the entire day. After lunch a program of sports was carried out, including races, jumping, high kicking, tug-of-wars, etc., and in which all took part from the kids of five up to the kids of sixty, or seventy. It was one of those real old time picnics which delighted the hearts of all and come all too seldom nowadays. The dance in the evening was held at the home of Mrs. Frank Labelle, who kindly gave the use of her home for the occasion.

BROWNE TALKS A WHOLE LOT

In the Calgary Herald of yesterday Ed. Browne has a lot to say about the strike situation.

The proposal of the miners to return to work under Order 124 was not unexpected. That the majority throughout the District has never been in sympathy with the present strike is no secret, and the action of the officers, though belated, is simply a recognition of the general feeling among the men. The request by the Government representative, however, for what practically amounts to "guarantees" in the making of a new agreement will not surprise anyone, and the statements of Mr. Browne, the District Secretary, who is now pushed to the front to speak for Mr. Christophers and his friends, serve more to emphasize than otherwise the necessity for such guarantees. No one knows better than Mr. Browne that the present agreement has been broken not once but many times. By his own admission, of 25 per cent of the unions, a majority are O.B.U. The others presumably are United Mine Workers, with whom the present agreement is made. But he will cheerfully undertake to make an agreement for them all. He sees fit to ignore the fact that past agreements have not been made with representatives of the men as individuals, but as accredited officials of responsible labor organizations. In this District, the United Mine Workers have been given the recognition of the operating companies, and it is right and proper that only as an accredited official of that organization can Mr. Browne and his associates negotiate an agreement. Certainly no recognition has been given the O.B.U., and we are confident that none will be given it. In view of the attitude of the District officials in their conduct of the present strike, it is no wonder that they decline to produce evidence that they are properly accredited to the International. They know very well that in view of their actions they have as much chance of securing that standing as the proverbial snowball.

It is worthy of comment that while trying to establish the bona fides of himself and his associates, Mr. Browne threatens that "it would be an easy matter to call the men out in November or December when the fuel situation would be most acute." There is a great deal in that statement for the public and the working man to ponder. If the heads of the Union of which Mr. Browne and his associates say they are loyal members, made an agreement for them, and they didn't like it, it "would be easy to pull the men out." Can anything more justify the stand of the Government in asking for guarantees than this statement by Mr. Browne himself.

(Calgary Herald)

Mine officials representing the strikers of District 18 are now prepared for a resumption of negotiations toward a settlement of the differences which have tied up the district since May 24 last. This statement was given out this morning by Ed. Browne, secretary of the U.M.W.A. in District 18, and he said that the miners are ready to accept order 124 as issued by W. H. Armstrong, director of coal operation in Canada, and it was on this point that the trouble arose almost two months ago when the strike was called.

The main difference, which Mr. Browne contends is now separating the miners and Mr. Armstrong is the stand taken that the government should dictate to the men what organization they should belong to.

"Neither the government nor any other body will ever tell us what organization we should affiliate with," said Mr. Browne this morning. "We are in good standing with the International but the last agreement which was made between District 18 and Coal Commissioner Armstrong was made direct and not through the International."

Mr. Browne says that the coal commissioner wants the International to vouch for the officers of District 18 before any negotiations are taken up for a new agreement, and it is proposed that the International should come in and make out the agreement, under which the miners of this district would operate for the next two years, or whatever term the agreement might specify. This will not be considered by the miners, and so long as the commissioner thinks that the government can dictate to these miners what labor organizations they belong to, there will be no chance of a settlement according to Browne.

"We have always dealt over and above board with the government and the operators," went on Mr. Browne, "and we are prepared to do the same in the future. A referendum vote is always taken among the different locals before any agreement is accepted and the same will have to be done in this case. If we wanted to play an underhand game, we would certainly have an excellent opportunity in this case, for even if the International would come in and draw up any agreement, which might not be satisfactory to us, it would be an easy matter for the miners to be called out in November or December when the fuel situation would be most acute."

"But that is not our attitude. We have always played the game fair, and we are prepared to carry through any agreement now."

Order 124 issued by Commissioner Armstrong, over which the trouble first arose and which the miners are now prepared to accept, reads as follows:

"After full consideration of the matter I am of the opinion that the rates of wages for outside work in District 18 shall be adjusted on the following basis:

"(1). That the present rates, as outlined in the tentative agreement for an 8-hour work day, shall remain as at present.

"(2). That the present rates covering a 9-hour work day shall be made to apply to an 8-hour day.

"(3). That the present rates covering 10 and 11 hour work days shall be adjusted on the basis of nine hours' pay for eight hours' work."

This was issued as an amendment to Order 123, which was passed on April 2, 1919.

The miners absolutely refused to consider the Order 123, which reads as follows:

"In view of the fact that Order No. 116 appears to be in conflict with the law of B.C., whereby there was an act passed amending the Coal Mines Regulation Act with respect to hours of work for outside employees, effective from April 1, 1919; and further that upon advice received from the deputy minister of justice to the effect that such legislation is within the powers of the provincial government, Order No. 116, insofar as it affects the mines in Eastern B. C., coming under my jurisdiction, is hereby amended with respect of hours of work to conform with the statutes of B.C. The rate of wages to be paid where by law the hours of work will differ from that provided in the tentative agreement, shall be in proportion to that enumerated in said agreement. As for example, where the hours of work, specified are nine hours, and by status have been changed to eight hours the rate would be 8-9 of that specified.

"(Signed) W. H. Armstrong."

The working committee at the Park grounds have done some fine work this week and everything is in shape for the big celebration tomorrow.

Notwithstanding the short time at the disposal of the celebration committee not a bet has been overlooked and the day promises to be a real one. Come to Fernie on the 19th.

Walter Winnet and Tom Graves took two auto parties to Eureka last Sunday. They were out to boost for Fernie's Peace Day celebration, and from all reports the town of Eureka will be here en masse.

PEACE DAY CELEBRATION

All preparations have been completed for the Big Peace Day celebration in this city tomorrow. The big event has been advertised far and wide and everybody is looking forward to a monster crowd.

The program committee have been unsparing in their efforts to give such a list of sports as has never been pulled off here before. There will be fine prizes for almost every athletic event in the decalogue and from the entries already received the success of the affair is already guaranteed.

There will be two first class ball games at least and the prize money offered is big enough to create a lot of interest.

The day will open at 10 a.m. with a grand parade, assembling at the Central School grounds, proceeding via Thompson St. eastward to Pellatt Ave., thence southward to Jaffray St., thence Victoria Avenue to Wood St., and Westward to Baker Ave., thence to Prior St., thence to Victoria Ave., and northward to Victory Arch.

Special transportation has been arranged over the G.N. and C.P.R.

Miss Jessie Richarson easily surpassed the other contestants for the position of Victory Queen for Peace Day celebration. The fact that Miss Richardson had lost two brothers in the Great War easily made her the popular selection for the position. She obtained 2520 votes, giving her a margin of nearly 2000 over her nearest opponent.

CONVICTED AT COUNTY COURT

His Honor Judge Thompson held court here this week, upon which occasion there were two criminal matters heard. The first was that of Fred Wayne, recent cashier-operator at the Great Northern railway station, who appropriated $400 in valuable securities and $244 in cash. He pleaded guilty to the charge but the police having forwarded his finger prints to Ottawa received notification that the said Fred Wayne, alias Fred Oran, had formerly served two years for burglary in the State of Oklahoma. Faced with this the prisoner denied he had served two years for burglary, claiming that he had served twelve months for illicit whiskey selling. However, inquiry directed to the warden of the Oklahoma state penitentiary confirmed the fact that he had served two years for burglary, and taking everything into consideration, His Honor meted out three years at New Westminster for the present offence.

The other criminal case was that of Wadsworth Fitzem, a 13-year old lad who last week burglarized the store of P. Carosella and while in the act of taking what cash had been left in the cash register was caught by Louis Carosella. Information presented to the court showed that the lad, to say the least, was wayward, and was continually following bad practices and was well known to the police. He was upon formal conviction committed to the Provincial Reformatory for three years by the court.

MICHEL MAN DROWNED

Michel, July 14.—A distressing accident occurred at Michel on the afternoon of the 12th inst., when an old and respected resident of the town met his death while engaged in fishing in the waters of the north fork of Michel Creek.

The victim, Mr. Jas. Mercer, with a companion, James Davey, planned a fishing excursion for Saturday.

According to arrangement the two set out and in the afternoon about 1 o'clock separated, agreeing to meet on the road later.

Davey kept the appointment, but on reaching the road his companion Mr. Mercer, did not put in an appearance. Mr. Davey, thinking that Mercer had caught a passing car and gone home, went on to Michel.

When Mercer did not come home later in the evening little apprehension was felt by his family as they supposed he had stayed at some camp for the night and would probably fish towards home in the morning.

At 1 p.m. on Sunday two men found the body of the unfortunate Mercer lying face down in the creek, his left arm clamped firmly on a log which he had grasped in an effort to save himself.

Later investigation showed how Mercer had met his death. About 120 yards above the place where the remains were found his fishing rod was discovered on the bank of the stream.

Marks on a shelving rock showed that the unfortunate man had slid down into a deep pool at the foot of a waterfall. There he had been swirled around in the swift waters and probably half unconscious had drifted down the rapids, catching in his descent the log to which the body was found clinging.

The funeral was held at 1.30 p.m. Tuesday, under the auspices of the Knights of Pythias, of which the deceased was a valued member. This accident is very hard on the family, as their son Harold was drowned last November when the ill-fated naval patrol boat Galiano went down off the north shore of Vancouver Island with all hands.

SERIOUS FOREST FIRE

A serious bush fire started on Fairy Creek on Wednesday afternoon burning nearly all the standing timber in that valley and, sweeping around the face of Proctor mountain was carried by the high wind about twenty miles up the Elk Valley, destroying the Dubois mill and limits, the Elk Lumber Co. camps and a portion of their limits, one of McCool's post camps and about one hundred cars of posts, and several other smaller post outfits. For a time it was thought that the town of Hosmer was in danger and several small ranchers were reported to be burned out, but this proved to be untrue.

The loss in timber is very heavy, Particularly is this the case in regard to the Elk Lumber Co., their entire summer cut being destroyed and two camps.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but is attributed to a bunch of boys who were spending the day up on Fairy Creek. The entire loss may be laid at the door of the B.C. government, who do not employ enough patrol men to take care of the district. A few men could easily have taken care of this fire when it was first noticed, but the fire rangers were miles away and nothing was done until it was too late.

HON. JOHN OLIVER SPEAKS AT MISSION

Mission, B.C., July 16.—Hon. John Oliver, premier of British Columbia, spoke in plain words to his Dewdney constituents in this town tonight.

"We had to raise your taxes and we're going to do it again," he said, after outlining the financial situation of the province.

"It may not make me popular to tell you this, but I don't very much care whether it does. If you don't like the government, or do not trust it, you can put another one in, and I would not mind being relieved of the burden. I can tell you that the pinch is coming and it means sacrifice for all."

"I have no hesitation in saying," declared the premier in his address, "that there is a Bolshevistic element in control of the Social-Democratic party in this province that hoped for, worked for and expected to so work on these returned soldiers that there would be revolution in Canada this summer. There is the strongest evidence to this effect. The soldiers did not fall into the snare, and I say we have as great a debt to them for their stand in the recent troubles in Canada as for their bravery on the battlefields. If it had not been for them conditions might have been very serious in Canada today."

Fernie will send a team to compete in the First Aid contest at Nanaimo. The contest is under the auspices of the Vancouver Mine Rescue Association.

MANY OPPOSE THE O. B. U.

Vancouver, July 12.—With a brand new executive and newly elected secretary-treasurer, the teamsters' and chauffeurs' union, one of the heaviest losers in the recent general strike, announces that it has "cleaned house" and is now endeavoring to regain some of the ground lost in the strike.

Of the former list of officers only F. J. Haslett remains, as business agent.

When the teamsters and chauffeurs went on strike recently the agreement between the union and the Vancouver Cartage Association, generally regarded in organized labor circles as one of the best agreements in existence on the Coast, went out of existence and despite efforts made by the officials of the union since then, the Cartage Association has flatly refused to meet representatives of the union to discuss the drawing up of a new agreement. The Cartage Association takes in the greater part of the employers with whom the union has to deal.

That the breaking of the agreement meant severe loss to the union was the opinion of M. Casey, international vice-president of the union, who discussed the matter during his visit to Vancouver.

The action of the union in removing the old executive is presumably in line with an edict given it by the Cartage Association, that no negotiations would be entered into with the union until it had "cleaned house." It is doubtful, however, if the new slate compiled by the union will meet with favor in the eyes of the Cartage Association, according to statements made today by some of the members of the Association, who regard the result of the union's elections as displaying no very evident desire to meet the wishes of the employers. This fact is borne out, one employer declared today, by the fact that the newly-elected president of the union stated at Thursday's meeting of the Trades and Labor Council that the teamsters' union would probably throw in its lot with the One Big Union.

Another local union gave its support on Thursday evening to the movement aiming to bring into existence in Vancouver a new trades and labor council, when machinists' local No. 182 endorsed the petition circulated by the Vancouver Theatrical Federation. This makes a total of seven unions that have approved of the formation of a new council here.

Considerable interest is now centered upon the larger unions, more especially since the existing trades and labor council gave its approval to the constitution of the One Big Union. It is admitted that, while the trades and labor council has taken no action in regard to severing its affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, the majority of the unions will be compelled in the near future to decide on which side they intend to place their allegiance. It is also stated that it is unlikely any action toward severing affiliation will be taken by the council until it is satisfied that everything is working smoothly in O.B.U .circles.

When the petition requesting the formation of a new council came before the street railwaymen's union, that body refused to commit itself on the proposal, the petition simply being filed.

Another union which will refuse to commit itself, it is stated, will be the butchers' and meat cutters' union, which meets on Tuesday night to take up the O.B.U. question. One proposal on foot in that union is to sever connection with the existing council and every other affiliation and decline to become a part of the O.B.U.

The Sun will say tomorrow:

"That the adoption by the trades and labor council of the constitution of the O. B. U. at Thursday night's meeting would have no particular effect on the Vancouver labor situation was the view expressed by several labor men.

"'All the actions necessary to call for the revocation of the charter of the trades and labor council in the Dominion trades congress and the American federation of labor have been taken,' said one. The council has admitted unions that have joined the O.B.U. and has given financial assistance to the O.B.U., and that is enough. The only effect I can see of adopting the O.B.U. constitution will be to draw attention of some unions to what is going on, and they will have to decide for themselves on which side of the fence they are from now on.'

"It is reported that 11 unions are now ready to join the new central trades body proposed by the theatrical federation to take over the charter of the trades and labor council when the latter becomes definitely a part of the O.B.U. Machinists' local No. 182 is the latest union to line up with the proposal."

North Vancouver, July 12. — The O.B.U. has been eliminated from the Wallace shipyards, according to a statement made by one of the officials today. Numbers of men connected with the O.B.U., he said, had sought readmission into the old internationals.

AMERICAN VIEW IRISH QUESTION

The following editorial from the Daily Statesman of Boise, Idaho, reflects sane American opinion regarding the recent resolutions on Irish affairs passed by the U.S. Senate.

"'We didn't go to war to secure independence for the Irish Sinn Feiners,' said Senator Thomas, during his speech in the Senate on Thursday, in the course of which he condemned the Borah resolution requesting a hearing at the Peace Conference for the representatives of the so-called Irish republic. Senator Thomas then added that 'the element for whose representatives a hearing was asked conspired with Germany and attempted to disrupt the British Empire during the war.'

"Irish unrest is receiving so much interest and attention of late that a brief summary of conditions in Ireland is worth while. Unprejudiced observers who have returned from the Emerald Isle declare that the Irish people today have the freest local self-government, the greatest prosperity and lowest taxation of any European people. Ireland escaped conscription, and her volunteers numbered 10 out of every 270 of her male population. In England and Scotland the figure was 10 out of every 75 adult males. Ireland's soil was not ravaged by the war and the only shots that were fired in Ireland were those discharged to quell Irish rebellions which were being financed by German money during the months when the Allies were fighting with their backs to the wall.

"In the last issue of the Villager, a New York weekly of high standing, the Irish question is discussed as follows:

"'If Sinn Fein had never invited Germany to the shores of Ireland, the American Senate might have asked the Peace Conference to hear Ireland's plea for freedom without the incident becoming extraordinary. It would not have been a 'regular' proceeding; it would have been meddling in a friend's business and in a rather ignorant fashion at that. But meddling is a very old defect, and after all is seldom of life-and-death importance; men and nations may be scolded for it oftener than censured, and the bond which has ever been between Ireland and America might have explained, if it did not excuse, the most unusual indorsement which our Congress has this week sent on to Paris.

"'But in view of the actual events of these past four years, only parochial politics can explain that indorsement, and nothing can excuse it. When Ireland supinely permitted a group of disloyalists to enter negotiations with an enemy who went out to subjugate the entire western world, Ireland not only struck at England — she struck at us, her friend. When she risked the honor and safety of all of us in the hope of satisfying her own grievances, she became a danger to us.

"'That her ambitions were worthy and her grievances justified in no sort entitled her to jeopardize us all in their concern, and for Mr. Lodge to parallel her case with that of Albania and Korea leaves out the grave point of contrast. Ireland was willing to have Germany victorious if she thereby gained her independence and settled her score with England: such a blindness to the common good is of one who is not our kind and certainly not our stature.

"'Ireland's problem must be settled, somehow and soon, for it is a disturbance.' But for us officially to sympathize with Irishism as Irishism has revealed itself in the past four years, is not only to meddle in affairs not our own; it goes far deeper than that; it disregards an injury to the principle on which the whole of our own affairs is founded.'"

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

G. G. MOFFATT

DR. ANNA SHAW HAS PASSED AWAY

Anna Howard Shaw has passed on! No woman leader in America was more greatly beloved or respected than the honorary president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

Well might the history of her life typify woman's struggle in the United States the past half century. Born at Newcastle-on-Tyne in 1847, Anna Howard Shaw came to America with her family four years later. They settled in the wilds of Michigan, but she carried out her ambition to become a minister. Merrily did she portray her struggles in her autobiography, "The Story of a Pioneer." She took her first position in 1862 as school teacher when she was but 15, and the salary of $2 a week was not to be paid until the dog tax was payable in the spring. Later the young girl preached sermons in the woods even before she went to college. Despite the opposition of her family to her choice of profession, she put herself through. At the theological seminary she lived in an attic room on bread and milk, with so little of that she frequently had from weakness to sit down on the stairs in going to the classrooms. Notwithstanding the handicap of being a woman she was said to be the only member of her grduating class who had worked during the entire course.

Her experiences as a minister range from tours through northern lumber camps to a gospel ship in the harbor of Genoa, Italy and her pastorate in Cape Cod.

There is an amusing story of an old sailor in the congregation Dr. Shaw had in her first regular pastorate in this latter place. She had found a breach in the congregation when she came into it, and each of the two factions wished to tell her its story, but she refused to listen. Then they found a way to get ahead of the parson. They came to prayer meeting fully primed. The leading members of each faction started "telling the Lord" the whole story of the trouble, not hesitating to give names with the epithet "liar" attached. After two meetings she knew the whole of the trouble, but by that time she had also decided what to do. She told her congregation that it was making itself the laughing stock of the community and wrecking the discipline of the church, and its members must remain away or cease personalities in prayer.

That was when Capt. Sears rose to say that he would not be ruled by a "gal," and that he would pray when and how he liked. The "gal" was ready for him. Again her knowledge of sailors came into play. She told him that in a mutiny on his ship he would put the mutineer in irons and that she was master of that church ship and intended to command until the board asked her for her resignation. Later the captain was her warm friend.

She took her degree in medicine and theology at Boston University, and has since had the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity conferred on her by the University of Kansas City.

"Women in the church in America have not done much so far," she once said to an interviewer. The church as a whole does not regard the ministry of women with favor; there is a prejudice against them. Women, as a rule, are a cheaper-paid class, and they suffer the disabilities in this profession that they do in all others. But I believe that more and more the ministry will be left to women, for men are not going into the church as they used to, and the men who do go are not always the most able, intellectual and spiritually minded.

"I studied with the intention of doing city missionary work — not with an organization but by myself—only to learn that what the people I was trying to help wanted was not so much spiritual training as food. They were hungry. They wanted clothes. They wanted affection. I soon realized that they could never hear the cry of the soul till the cry of the body was satisfied, and that it was no good to talk virtue to a starving girl."

Because she believed that the care of the body must precede care of the soul Miss Shaw left her missionary work in the slums of New York city and went back to college and took a medical course.

"I thought a doctor, because she was with the people when they were sick, and when all the ordinary barriers were down, might have more access to their sympathies and intimate thought. But when I went back to mission work I found that it was as if I were standing with an ambulance at the foot of a precipice. While I was helping one girl to get up, a hundred came down over the precipice."

Then Miss Shaw decided that the best thing that could be done for women was to secure them financial independence. So long as the government branded women as the only class of citizens incapable of self-government, she argued, society would take the same attitude, and woman's place in the economic world would be an inferior one. "So," she said, "for thirty years I have been working for the suffrage for women.

"It is foolish of a government to waste the energies of women. What might not have been done in the way of social reform in England, for instance, if the energies of the women, spent in fighting for the suffrage, had been used in the exercise of it."

Dr. Shaw was chairman of the United States Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defence, and recently was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal for her work during the war.

She was taken ill in Springfield, Illinois, about a month ago while on a tour with former President Taft and President Lowell, of Harvard University, in the interest of the League of Nations. Pneumonia developed and for two weeks she was confined to her room in a Springfield hospital. She returned to her home about the middle of June and apparently had entirely recovered.

She was taken suddenly ill again with a recurrence of the disease and grew rapidly worse until the end.

THE YEAR'S ABSOLUTE SENSATION

BOLSHEVIK ATROCITIES

Among certain coteries in all our Canadian cities, and especially those of the West, an effort is still being made to show that the Russian Bolshevik government is a really beneficent and much-maligned organization. In Great Britain and the United States, labor bodies have also had the belief impressed upon them that stories of Bolshevik cruelty are lies invented by a capitalistic press. But a press, however capitalistic, could hardly improvise the photographs taken by John A. Embry, U.S. Consul at Omsk, which he has just brought to America. Mr. Embry says that no language could adequately picture the scenes of murder, violation of women, arson and theft which took place at Ufa, and at Osse, during the Bolshevik occupation. Around Ufa he came upon many scores of bodies of men, women and children, which had been disclosed by the melting snows of spring, and he took the precaution to photograph them. These victims had been driven into the woods and slain by orders of the Bolshevik government. The victims included many pupils of the Ufa High School, for the Bolshevik spares not youth nor innocence. More than 2000 of the residents of Osse, a city of 30,000 inhabitants, were slain, and their bodies left unburied in the snow. The remains were photographed this spring by Col. Teusler of the American Red Cross. These revelations were rendered possible by the advance of Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk government, which was so rapid that the fiends could not conceal the evidence of their misdeeds. Mr. Embry's revelations but add a small quota to the immense volume of evidence which is accumulating to show the vileness of the Russian oligarchy which certain Canadians are trying to paint as benefactors of the human race.—Toronto Saturday Night.

MICHEL MINERS WOULD STICK TO INTERNATIONAL

Michel, July 15.—At a mass meeting of the miners held here Saturday it was decided to stick to the international and approach the operators with a view to resuming work at once.

centage the majority are in favor of the O.B.U. constitution, is the report that Mr. Browne gave out today. He says that it does not matter what organization the miners of this district belong to; any working agreement must be made with the officials of the district and not with the International. In 1917 Coal Commissioner Armstrong dealt directly with the district officials, and not with the International. The officials look for the commissioner to do the same thing again.

"We are prepared to order the men to return to work under Order 124," said Mr. Browne, "but it must be understood that the government will not dictate to what organization we belong. The miners of this district are anxious to provide coal for the market, and we realize that we can provide sufficient to supply Manitoba and Saskatchewan, beating out the fuel from the United States. We do not want any of the working people of the prairie provinces to suffer, nor do we want them to pay one cent more for their fuel than is necessary."

Mr. Browne in referring to the vote on the O.B.U. said that there was no statement ever issued saying that the O. B. U. was unconstitutional, and there was no reason why any objection should be taken to unions favoring the constitution.

In conclusion Mr. Browne said that if the government takes the stand to dictate what organization the miners of this district must belong to, there will commence one of the hardest labor fights ever known in Canada. He said that the unions are prepared to call out the miners of Nova Scotia, the metal miners, smelter men and longshoremen of British Columbia. He pointed out that the officials of this district have the confidence of the men who are now on strike. The district is in good standing with the International, and the officers who are now in control were duly elected by the miners themselves, and they are authorized to carry on any dealings which may come before the district in their agreement with the government and the operators.

The excess of males over females in the Dominion is 437,347, which is an excess percentage of 130 males per 1000 females, the male population being 3,821,995 and the female 3,348,648. The number of females per 1000 males is 886, the deficiency of females being greater in Canada than probably in any other country. The disparity is especially strongly marked in the Western provinces. The last census showed that the number of females per 1000 males for each province was: British Columbia, 560; Manitoba, 622; Alberta, 673; Saskatchewan, 688; Ontario 942; New Brunswick 956; Nova Scotia 961; Quebec 980; and Prince Edward Island 991.

FOOTBALL

Michel received their first defeat of the season at the hands of the Fernie Teamsters on Wednesday evening on the Fernie grounds. Score Teamsters 1; Michel 0.

Teamsters—Sawyer; Booth and J. Riley; Brindle, W. Riley and Mills; Wheeler, Dicken, Joinson, Thornton and Robson.

Michel — Guest; Jenkins and Holmes; A. Travers, G. Travers and Weaver; Ball, H. Travers, Yates, Brown and McGovern.

Referee—Sweeney, Fernie.

From the kick-off it was evident the Teamsters were out to win and the Michel defence had a trying time of it for the first fifteen minutes. Shots from all quarters found the Michel goalie equal to the occasion. The Teamsters 'forwards were playing fine football, especially the left wing and centre forward. Yates tried hard to force his way through the Teamsters' defence, but he was always pulled up before he could get within scoring distance. The home half backs were playing a brilliant game, and it took Michel forwards a long time to get going and then they were up against a dour pair of backs who took no chances. After 25 minutes of play the Teamsters scored. Robson carried the ball down the left wing and crossed at the right time to Joinson; the latter player steadied himself and put the ball out of the reach of the Michel goalie. At this period of the game Michel was playing for all they were worth to keep down the score. W. Riley had two great shots at goal and it was lucky for Michel their goalie was on the spot. Sawyer so far had only handled the ball two or three times, so well were the home backs and halfbacks playing. There was no further scoring and half time found the Teamsters leading by one goal to nil.

In the scond half the Teamsters were on the defensive, Michel having the advantage of a stiff breeze which had sprung up, and they certainly tried hard for the equalizer but the home defence were giving nothing away. Sawyer brought off one or two marvellous saves in this half. Michel was relying too much on Yates, and he could do nothing against W. Riley. Booth and J. Riley were playing the game of their lives to keep the Michel boys out and anything that passed them found Sawyer always at hand. Yates had not found things to his liking and at three minutes to go left the field. The Teamsters held on to their lead, and the best game of the season ended in one goal to nil in favor of the home team.

The home team carried no passengers. All played well and it would be unfair to mention any player in particular. Best for Michel: Guest, Jenkins, G. Travers and H. Travers.

A decline in the total trade of Canada amounting to $32,652,629 for the first two months of the fiscal year as compared with the same period in 1918, is shown by the trade statement issued through the customs department. The grand total of Canadian trade for April and May of the present year is $289,359,288, while last year it was $322,011,917. The total of domestic merchandise exported was greater by more than $6,500,000 during the first two months of the present year than it was the same period a year ago. Imports on the other hand show a decline of nearly $43,000,000 as compared with last year. The figures are $168,433,022 for 1918 and $125,620,035 for the present year.

Anyone interested write at once for information.

The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. have put an auto electric car on the branch line for extra trips. It is a fine car and contains accommodation for sixty passengers. It was at first reported to be a special coach to carry Bill Robson back and forth between Sparwood and Fernie, but we understand this is not correct.

Cranbrook will pull off a local celebration on Peace Day. They are advertising $500 in prizes. The Fernie celebration committee tried every effort to get them to come to Fernie on Peace Day, but without avail. On May 24th, over three hundred Fernie citizens visited Cranbrook, but any time this town celebrates if Cranbrook sends a bakers dozen we are lucky.

Cranbrook Herald—Forest Ranger G. B. Watson, with a crew of men partly from Steele, is fighting a big fire near Skookumchuck. No valuable timber has been destroyed so far. The continued dry spell is making this a hard proposition owing to the rough country. A trail eight miles long had to be cut into the country to get at the fire, through heavy windfalls.

In our hurried report of the I.O.D.E. presentation of prizes at the court house on Friday last, we overlooked one of the main features, which was the presentation of a beautiful silk Union Jack by Mrs. G. G. Moffatt to the local Chapter. The Regent, Mrs. Fisher, on behalf of the Order, thanked Mrs. Moffatt for the flag and also for her noble work in connection with the Order during the war.

The death took place in Calgary on Saturday of John Jarvis, one time resident of this city, and brother of Teddy Jarvis, who runs the grocery store on 8th St. S. Deceased used to be night man at the Lethbridge hotel. He suffered from hip trouble and succumbed while under an operation for the same.—Lethbridge Herald. —Mr. Jarvis was at one time a well known merchant of Fernie and later was proprietor of the Royal Hotel at Hosmer. He leaves a wife and a number of small children to mourn his death. All Fernie's old timers extend their sympathy to the bereaved family.

WENT ALMOST AROUND WORLD

Like the man who went to Alaska in search of gold, leaving a lump of the precious metal worth a fortune lying under his doorstep, thousands tour the country annually seeking relief from their many ills. The health resorts are thronged, the hospitals filled, and millions of dollars are spent by those suffering from stomach trouble and many complications resulting from it when, if they could only believe it, relief often lies within reach and at a cost almost too small to mention.

The evidence regarding the value of Tanlac in the treatment of all forms of stomach trouble is too conclusive to even admit of doubt. In every city, town and community throughout the United States and Canada there are many living, enthusiastic witnesses to the merits of the Master Medicine. One of the most interesting of the many statements recently received was made by Mrs. W. A. Southerland, residing at 530 South Second Street, Springfield, Ill. Mrs. Southerland is one of the best known and respected women of Springfield. She said:

"What Tanlac has accomplished in my case has been the most complete surprise of my life. I can hardly find words to express the gratitude I really feel over what it has done for me. I had been suffering from stomach trouble and nervousness for eleven years and have been treated by some of the best specialists, not only in this country, but also in London, England, and Old Mexico. We have travelled almost around the world and spent over five thousand dollars trying to get my health restored but nothing ever helped me, in fact, I kept getting worse until I began taking Tanlac. I suffered almost beyond words to express from cramps and pains in my stomach after every meal, and was so nervous that I just trembled all the time. I could not sleep and was right on the verge of nervous prostration. I could find no comfortable position at night; my head throbbed and seemed to beat against the pillows, and when morning came I felt exhausted.

"Some of the specialists called my trouble nervous indigestion. Anyway, I could not even eat milk toast without suffering, and for a long time I lived almost entirely on milk. When we came back to Springfield I was so discouraged and down-hearted that I told my husband there was no use trying any longer, that there was no help for me. About this time I began reading what others said Tanlac had done for them and decided to try it as a last resort. Well, I soon had a good appetite, got so I could digest my food and my suffering ceased. So I bought more Tanlac and a few bottles have completely restored my health, and not only myself, but my husband and all who knew of my dreadful condition, have been surprised at the results I have gotten from Tanlac. I am never the least bit nervous any more, never know what it is to have a restless night and enjoy three good meals a day and never have a pain or an uncomfortable feeling afterwards. I no longer have that tired , wornout look with that dull swarthy color, but my complexion has cleared up and I look and feel like a different woman altogether. I am making this statement because I want the people who may be suffering as I did to know they can get relief without travelling the world over as I did. I can never praise Tanlac enough."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

"TARZAN OF THE APES"

At the Isis Theatre, Saturday July 19

Darwin was right, all right. But he never graded the degrees of descent. Edgar Rice Burroughs made some attempt at grading in his "Tarzan of the Apes," which is now in motion picture at the Broadway theatre. He runs the gamut this way—drunken sailors, brutal ship officers slave traders and finally aristocrats. The apes rank really highest. Even the boy brought up by the apes ranks head and shoulders above his aristocrat relative. There are no class lines, no mutual exploitation among our ancestors.

"Tarzan of the Apes" is bully adventure. Wild beasts roam through the scenes; a kindly elephant takes the wild man upon his back; in short, mix Stevenson's "Treasure Island" with Captain Baker's African stories and the happy combination is struck. The joy of the film lies in its kindly wild life rather than its civilized brutality. And in putting Burroughs' story into the film the National Film Corporation has shown good sense of showmanship. "Tarzan" is better than most films which have been concocted for the screen, and credit must be given Scott Sidney, who staged it, and Isidor Bernstein, who edited it. Natural beauties, imagination and clean, fee spirit make the film a delight.

The film follows the magazine story with enough faithfulness to satisfy readers of the Burroughs story. To those who missed the serial the film will be refreshing entertainment.

Tarzan, as readers of the story will remember, is the son of Lord Greystoke, who went to Africa on a secret mission for the British government. Africa in 1897 was torn by European ravishers, atrocities in the Belgian Congo, Jameson's raid on the Boers; slave trading, with its concomitant brutalities by the Arabs.

The sailors mutiny, slay their brutal officers in fair fight and then maroon Lord Greystoke and his wife. A boy is born in the jungle; the mother dies and the baby is carried off by a mother ape, who has just losa her young. The film traces the growth of the boy—half ape, half human—till his twentieth year.

A counter melody is being played in England, where Lord Greystone's brother assumes the title after having married a barmaid. Their child is a petted brat. News is brought to them by a sailor, Binns, that the heir to the Greystoke estate is alive in Africa. The barmaid aristocrat has Binns incarcerated as a lunatic for ten years, but a vengeful maid servant finally helps him escape. He tells his story to a scientist, a fingerprint expert, and the Greysone solicitor, with the result that a party is made up to seek out Tarzan in his jungle home.

Some of the finest bits of action ever portrayed on the screen are found in "Tarzan." The fight between sailors and officers aboard the vessel is an exciting bit of action. Tarzan's struggle with a lion, as well as his flight with a native negro are excellent pictures of action.

Although there are hundreds of natives and dozens of apes in the picture, the program only gives the names of a few of the players. Elmo Lincoln is beautiful in his massive strength as the grown Tarzan, but Gordon Griffith who plays Tarzan at the age of ten, is entitled to equal honors. Griffith plays with charming ape-like wistfulness. True Boardman antl Kathleen Kirkman play Tarzan's father and mother; George French is Binns; Thomas Jefferson is the scientist; Enid Markey plays his daughter, the girl with whom the caveman Tarzan falls in love; Bessie Toner is the barmaid aristocrat; Colin Kenny plays both her husband and his own father, and Jack Wilson appears as the brutal sea captain. Unfortunately, the program does not state who the actors are that play the fingerprint expert, the solicitor, the aristocrat brat, the negro warrior or the vengeful serving maid, all good players and deserving of appreciation.

For adventure "Tarzan" hits the bull's-eye.

Louis Grady.

BULLER'S DOG & PONY SHOW

The circus is coming. On July 25, Buller's Dog and Pony Show, a circus attraction which ranks with the best of its kind on the road today, will give performances afternoon and evening, commencing at 2.30 p.m. and 8 p.m. There are over a hundred trained animals in this show and a troupe of circus performers who supply some of the best acts seen in the modern sawdust ring. The show also has its own band, and a troupe of clowns who are whimsical indeed. The programme offered is an excellent one—an entertainment which will amuse young and old.

Some of the acts offered are spectacular indeed, particularly the ensemble numbers in which the largest assemblage of trained ponies performing together today take part. The show opens with a big pedestal act in which groups of ponies represent the various nations which won the great war, and this act never fails to win applause. There is also a military drill in which a big troupe of ponies perform and cavort to the command of Miss Truth Buller. These are two of several big acts. In addition to the ensemble acts there are some notable individual acts which include the wonderful performance of Chester "the talking horse," which is a remarkable exhibition of animal sagacity. There are equestrian feats by dogs and monkeys which ride ponies, a loop-the-loop act, diving and leaping dogs, a pony which leaps over the backs of six of its fellow-troupers. The trained dogs, too, offer some excellent acts, for the animals have been trained with the greatest efficiency by Capt. Marrit Bellow, a noted animal trainer, and his staff.

Among the many circus acts are some of the best wire-walking exhibitions seen, in one of which the lady member of the combination supports her husband on the wire held by her mouth. There are flying trapeze acts of a high order, also balancing acts by a performer who has won fame by balancing himself on the hind legs of a chair at the edge of a lofty building. To enumerate the whole list of acts would require much space. Suffice it to say the show has won great praise wherever it has played.

Bring the children. Mr. Buller offers a special treat to them. They can ride the ponies after the show—this being a feature which has been much appreciated in other cities.

MANITOBA GOVERNMENT PURCHASE ALBERTA CATTLE

Winnipeg, July 16.—As a result of the present crisis in the cattle industry in Alberta, where there has been practically a total failure of hay and other fodder crops, leaving, according to reports, approximately 150,000 head of cattle without food, the Manitoba government has decided to purchase between 25,000 and 30,000 head for the farmers of this province. Action by the government was announced by Hon. Valentine Winkler, minister of agriculture, today.

Arrangements for carrying out the transaction, which will entail an expenditure on the part of the government of over $1,000,000, has not yet been completed. At present there is an appropriation of $250,000 made at the last session of the legislature, available, the minister pointed out and supplementary appropriations will be made when the necessity arises.

"While we will be assisting Alberta we will also be getting cattle for Manitoba farmers at a cheaper price than they could buy in our own stockyards," he stated. "At the same time, we will be giving western farmers a better price for their cattle than they could get if forced to sell at any price, which they would have to do in a very short time.

He said that conditions in Manitoba were never better, the hay and feeding straw crops being excellent.

Asked if the government had decided to purchase sheep, Mr. Winkler said that he thought it probable an agreement would be made on the same basis for sheep as for cattle.

Calgary, July 16.—The cloaking of the actual crop conditions in Southern Alberta this year has been a disaster according to a statement made this morning by H. W. Wood, president of the United Farmers of Alberta. He said that the present situation which had arisen through the severe drought is nothing short of a calamity and the optimistic reports which were sent out from different sections of the province, in an attempt to buoy up the spirits of the people, have brought about a serious condition of affairs, and the remedy must be suggested quickly before matters reach a critical stage.

Though not talking in a pessimistic strain, Mr. Wood said that conditions are indeed serious. The crop of the south is a failure and the farmers are without feed for their stock. He does not consider that there is sufficient feed in the north to supply the stock, and unless some prompt action is taken there will be a heavy loss sustained by the farmers and the stockmen.

C. P. R. OFFICIALS ON A TOUR OF INSPECTION

Geo. A. Walton, of Winnipeg, general passenger agent of the C.P.R., and J. E. Proctor, of Calgary, district passenger agent, were visitors in Cranbrook yesterday. They came in over the Kootenay Central from Golden. They were met at Golden by C. S. McHarg, superintendent of the Cranbrook division. They spent Tuesday evening at Invermere.

This was Mr. Walton's first trip through the Windermere valley and he was highly pleased with its picturesqueness. He declares it to be a very inviting tourist resort country. When the Windermere-Banff road is completed he believes there will be a large tourist trade. No tourist can truly say that he has seen British Columbia until he has toured the Windermere valley.

The officials went east on the Wednesday afternoon train.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

THE LONG EXPECTED

Harvey's Greater Minstrels headed by Ed Tolliver and Clarence Powell, both natural comedians, will be at the Grand Theatre on Tuesday, July 29. They are both natural from the fact that they act natural, just what they are, the regular dyed in the wool negro comedians, and they do their best to create laughter and create a furore of amusement at every performance.

Travelling in their own 80-foot car, this company of colored artists are playing the principal cities and towns and judging from press comments and verbal criticism heard, Harvey's Greater Minstrels is more than making good.

ONE LOCAL VOTES FOR ONE BIG UNION

Victoria, July 15.—Only one local union so far has taken any action to endorse the constitution drawn up by the One Big Union leaders at the recent convention in Calgary. The Shipyard Laborers, Riggers and Fasteners have held a meeting on the subject, and the 75 men who were present voted in favor of endorsing the One Big Union constitution. As there are more than 2000 shipyard laborers, the matter is to be reconsidered.

TENDERS FOR COAL

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Quotation for Coal, Dominion Buildings, British Columbia," will be received until 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, August 5, 1919, for the supply of coal for the public buildings throughout the province of British Columbia.

Combined specifications and form of tender can be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and from the caretakers of the different Dominion Buildings.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with the conditions set forth therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender. War Loan Bonds of the Dominion will also be accepted as security, or War Bonds and cheques if required to make up an odd amount.

By order,

R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

STUDYING ECONOMICS

London, July 13.—Seldom has any people received such a swift and vivid lesson in practical economics as the British government has given the nation by the motion in the house Wednesday that it was raising the price of coal six shillings per ton from next Wednesday.

The response has been immediate and specific, and comes from almost every branch of industry in the kingdom, from shipbuilders, ship owners, railway manufacturers, gas workers and almost all sorts of manufacturers and industries down to laundries and bakeries.

They explain just what the government order will cost their concerns and serve notice, also, that they must pass the cost on to the buyers and the consumers.

Great export industries declare that the increase in the price of coal will handicap them in their competition with other countries and may mean, in some instances, a stoppage of their plants and increase in unemployment. The general public is told how much the higher price of coal will inflate living expenses. The government apparently meant this to be an object lesson to what would result from the prevalent agitation for higher wages and shorter working hours.

It also seems to be trying to throw cold water on the campaign for the nationalization of industries by trying to show that government management does not mean that wages can be increased and prices can be decreased indefinitely. Labor has taken up the gauntlet immediately charging the government with wishing to kill the plan for nationalization and also declaring that the government is favoring capitalists and misrepresenting conditions by bungling bookkeeping. During the last stages of the war the government was running the railroads at a loss, according to a statement made before the house by Sir Eric Geddes, minister of national service and reconstruction.

This loss is estimated at £46,000,000. The subsidy on bread, that is the difference between the cost of wheat and selling prices, amounts to £50,000,000. It is estimated that a nine penny loaf would cost a shilling if sold on an uncontrolled market. Coal is in a different category because the government has fixed prices since it took control of the mines and has fixed them at a rate to permit the weakest mines to make a profit.

The strongest mines made large profits, but 8 per cent of these came back through the excess profit tax.

The government holds that the increase of six shillings was necessiataed by increased wages granted as a result of the report of the commission headed by Sir John Sankey and the falling off of production.

The present condition of the railways and mines is the result of government control with private ownership.

The question agitating the country, particularly politically, is whether the government proposes to adopt the demands of labor unions for nationalization. Col. Winston Spencer Churchill, secretary of war, told his constituency in Dundee during an address in the last election campaign that the government had decided to nationalize the railways. Conservative members of the Lloyd George cabinet opposed this bitterly and appear to have carried the day. Andrew Bonar Law, government leader in the house of commons, said in the house Wednesday:

"It is utterly impossible that an industry like coal should be subsidized."

Sir Eric Geddes, speaking on the transport bill, said:

"The surest way to national bankruptcy is to go on subsidizing service. Each service must stand on its own legs."

He added that the only alternative for nationalization of the railways was to increase freight rates. Higher freight rates would mean the same to industry as dearer coal. Passenger fares were raised 50 per cent by the railroads during the war and the public, it is pointed out, can hardly stand any more.

WORKING FOR WORKINGMAN

The widely circulated falsehood that our entire parliamentary system is conducted solely in the interest of capital is receiving practical refutation at Ottawa. On July 1st, Sir Robert Borden tabled majority and minority reports drawn up by members of the Federal Commission on Industrial Relations, both of which call for sweeping reforms in the interest of the working classes. On the same day the House of Commons passed the "Combines and Fair Prices Act" which provides the most drastic machinery yet devised for putting an end to profiteering. The day previous a Conciliation Board appointed by the Federal government to investigate conditions which led to the strike of the Toronto Street Railway employees made a finding which went considerably beyond the private expectations of the men when they formulated their demands. In the face of these facts, the allegations, by clergymen, and others, that the "bourgeoisie" are engaged in a conspiracy to enslave the workingman is preposterous nonsense. Nor is there any ground for suspicion that these and other evidence of the desire of all classes to give a equare deal to the poor man and the workingman (which under present conditions are by no means synonymous terms) are the result of panic. They are simply an expression of public sentiment which has been steadily maturing and finding an outlet in legislative and private action during the past few years.

In the report of the Commission on Industrial Relations it will be noted that in a very large measure the reforms suggested have already been adopted by some of the largest corporations of the day. The initiative in the matter of shorter hours, better wages, and the granting to labor of a voice as to conditions under which men shall work, has in numerous instances come from capital itself. In reality such organized efforts to better the conditions of labor by employers have met with opposition chiefly from the I.W.W. and other Bolshevistic elements, who regard all efforts to abolish the causes of discontent as dangerous to the cause they have at heart—i.e., the destruction of existing economic and governmental systems throughout the civilized world.

Both majority and minority reports of the Industrial Relations Commission are agreed as to the principle of joint industrial councils of both employers and employees. The majority consisting of Chief Justice Mathers, Chas. H. Harrison, M. P., Carl Riordan, Tom Moore and John W. Bruce (the latter two labor representatives) favor the British system, known as Whitley councils. The minority consisting of Senator Smeaton White and Frank Pauze, favor what is known as the "Colorado" plan, and make a very good point by saying that the Whitley councils, while workable in Great Britain, where practically all members of a given labor group are of one nationality, might not be found so adaptable to conditions on this continent, where a score or more of different nationalities are frequently represented in one industry, as the "Colorado" plan. The great point to consider is that the latter scheme has already been adopted in Canada, and apparently been found to be workable by great corporations like the Imperial Oil Company and the International Harvester Company. The "Colorado" plan has especial importance in the eyes of Canadians inasmuch as its real author is Hon. Wm. Lyon Mackenzie King, formerly Minister of Labor for Canada. The adage "A prophet is not without honor save in his own country" is certainly true of Mr. King, whose great services in the direction of establishing closer relations between capital and labor, and bettering working conditions have been almost ignored in Canada.

The majority report makes a very important suggestion with reference to hours of labor when it points out that shorter hours are more necessary in some industries than others, and should be conditioned by the amount of fatigue involved, and the elements of physical distress like heat and dust with which they are surrounded. The cardinal defect in the proposal for a universal eight-hour day is the fact that in some forms of employment six hours' work is more exhausting than ten hours in others. Contrast, for example, the conditions under which a moulder works with those surrounding the duties of a street car conductor.

Generally speaking the trend of the times and of governmental action is all in favor of a better deal for the workingman, and we believe that all such endeavors have the support of the entire community at large. The real opponents of the plans of betterment suggested will be found to be the Bolsheviks who are, as the name implies in the Russian language "whole hoggers," and are opposed to any measures which leave capital a chance to survive. — Toronto Saturday Night.

WARNING IS ISSUED

Ottawa, July 13.—Sir Robt. Borden has communicated to the press the following with respect to industrial and labor conditions:

"As announced in the governor-general's speech at prorogation, it is the intention of the government to summons, within a few weeks, a representative conference for the purpose of an intimate and friendly discussion of relations between employers and employed, and for consideration of the report of the industrial relations commission. The provincial governments will be invited to attend and the various organizations of employers and employed will be requested to appoint representatives. It is hoped that such a conference will be productive of better understanding and a more thorough co-operation.

"Meantime it is most important that actual working conditions should be fully realized by the Canadian people. For five years the world has been wasting the productive capacity of about 50,000,000 men actually engaged in warlike activities. The remainder of the producing people has been to a considerable extent occupied in making munitions and instruments of destruction. Millions of men must now resume normal activities of peace. The business of the world has been completely disorganized and a long period will probably elapse before it can be completely re-established. After the present period of inflation has passed Canada, in common with other countries, will probably face a period of depression.

"To meet the possible imminence of such conditions, the government has pledged the credit of the country to a very large extent in order to provide employment for the gallant men returning to our shores from war service and for those engaged in war industries which have now ceased. Many employers of labor have undertaken work at little or no profit in order that their lines of industry might afford every possible opportunity for employment. Up to the present such employment has been fairly abundant, but this condition may not continue indefinitely. Efforts to provide employment will obviously be of little avail if the energy of the country is exhausted in lockouts or strikes occasioned by difficulties which ought to be settled by peaceful methods and without constant interruption for the nation's task.

"The industries of this country have a very direct and intimate relation to each other, and serious disturbances or stoppages of work through difficulties between employer and employed makes its effects felt in every allied or related industry. For example, hundreds of establishments in the metal trade have been shut down during the past two months, with the inevitable result that orders for iron and steel have fallen off, and already one large stell industry in Nova Scotia has been compelled to close down, throwing out of employment hundreds of skilled workmen. In British Columbia a large smelting establishment is unable to continue its business for lack of coke, which cannot be supplied owing to strikes in the mining districts.

"No one would claim or even suggest that injustice in respect of hours or wages should not be redressed by reasonable and effective means.

"But lock-outs and strikes are almost as destructive as war itself in the waste and loss which they occasion and in their disturbing influence upon the industrial life of the country. They remove large numbers of men from productive employment through lack of orders they embitter relations between employers and employed, they discourage efforts to continue or extend business and to afford employment; and last, but not least, they curtail production and increase the cost of the necessaries of life.

"This country is second to none in its opportunities to recover speedily from the effects of the war and to attain a prosperity even more marked than that of the past; but Canada cannot expect wholly to escape trying experiences which must certainly result from the waste of the past five years with its inevitable inflation and its widespread disturbances of industrial conditions. A constant recurrence of lock-outs or strikes will make it exceedingly difficult if not impossible to pass successfuly through the perilous period.

"The need of our country makes insistent appeal to the Canadian people in the new and untried era upon which we have now entered. Never was there greater need for steadfast self control, wise forbearance and a just spirit of concentration. Upon these qualities will largely depend our success in solving the problems and surmounting the dangers that lie before us."

EDITING A NEWSPAPER

Editing a newspaper is a pleasant business—if you can stand it.

If it contains any advertisements the subscribers claim they take too much space.

If there is a scarcity of advertisements, it is unpopular, and the people won't have it.

If we accept an invitation to a wedding, they say we are invited to "write it up."

If we are on the streets much, they say we neglect our business.

If we avoid going on the street, they say we don't hustle around after the news.

If we reject a long winded communication its author becomes furiously enraged and discontinues his paper.

If we publish lengthy communicatinos, our subscribers say we lack discretion, and put it in to fill up.

If we omit to decorate our office window on the King's birthday they say we lack enterprise and that there isn't a drop of patriotism in our degenerated carcass.

If we omit jokes, they say we are poor, miserable fossils.

If we are single, they say we are too helpless to get married.

If we are married, they say it's a pity for our wives.

If we publish a man who has brought disgrace upon his family, the friends of the family never forgive us.

If we, out of goodness of our heart, decline to say anything on the subject, the man's enemies are disappointed, and we are branded as white-livered cowards.

We are liable to receive these raps and many more, and we are always ready to receive visitors whether accompanied by a dog or not. Of course we do not claim there is any work in running a newspaper. Everybody knows it's a snap.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Fernie Peace Celebration is to be the biggest affair ever pulled off in the Coal City—horse racing, foot racing, baseball and all kinds of games. Special sports for Indians, Indian pony races, squaw races, tepee building races, picturesque and gorgeous dressed Indians in the parade. Jim Thistlebeak says that when the Tobacco Plains Indians put on their best dresses they make the historic field of the cloth of gold look like a cotton shower. It will repay any tourist travelling through the Crow's Nest Pass to lay over and see this monster parade, dazzling with gorgeousness, stupefying and miraculous in its revelation of beauty. The citizens of Fernie intend to make this Peace Celebration the greatest parade ever held in any country since the proud Cleopatra sailed down the perfumed lotus bearing Nile in her gilded pageant to meet Marc Antony. There will be all kinds of races and ball games. We will meet you at Fernie on July 19—Saturday.

Letter from Trail, B.C.—We read your Elko Notes and more than enjoy them. The society items, especially about the travelling salesmen, are real good.—Blushingly we murmur, The same to you and many of them. Take another helping of the strawberries and thick cream.

The day we celebrate is July 19th at Fernie.

If the Germans had won the war there are a lot of big Canadian magnates who right now would be travelling 3rd class to that southern city so often mentioned in the Bible and the sky pilots like to jam their sermons with to scare women and little children.

Miss Stella Big Moon, Queen of Tobacco Plains Indians, with her retinue, will be in the big celebration at Fernie on July 19.

If there's going to be any trouble about a suitable place to hang the ex-Kaiser, bring him to Elko, where the mud can be washed off his brain and his soul have a chance to get a little fresh air before the climax.

This week the Indians on Tobacco Plains are holding their big pow-wow and annual fish dinner, and will spend July 19 at Fernie.

Now, while you are celebrating the peace, remember that Britain and her navy are still at the head of the procession. The English speaking people are today greater than ever they were before. Canada and her sons who fought, and those who died, in the war are to be our heroes for all time to come, and to the returned Vets, assembled at the Empire Peace Celebrations all over the British Empire, please accept our humble thanks for the trouble you took to fight for us over in France, Belgium and other European points. May Heaven's blessings pour upon you all until your are soaked to the skin. And God bless you, Tommy Atkins. Here's your country's love for you.

The prospects for a big day at Fernie on July 19 were never better.

Miss Sally Two Kettles and Miss Millie Moccasin String, the well known prima donnas, will be in the parade at Fernie on July 19.

Jim Thistlebeak says there is nothing like a good laugh to exercise your liver.

The teepee building contest at the Peace Celebration in Fernie will be something worth while. It will pay George Cody and other contractors to watch the dusky damsels put up a one room bungalow with an open fireplace, while you wait.

Tourists announce good fishing south of the Big Elk Canyon, and the daily number of disciples of Izaak Walton and the Mayor of Elko increases in the many streams surrounding the Old Historic Burg.

Alberta sheepmen are bringing in train loads of sheep to eat up the tall peavine and timothy. This will eliminate the danger of forest fires in the fall.

All that glitters may not be gold, but if Fernie had a few more live wires like Fred Spalding and Harry Gould, Fernie would be a gold camp, and the long green brought in by the tourists would eliminate the losses to the merchants and the whole district caused by a handful of Bolshevicks. No two men coming from Fernie ever got a more hearty reception in the Old Historic Burg than Mr. Gould and Mr. Spalding did this week. They almost convinced the people of Elko that the business men in Fernie had woke up to the possibilities of the magnetism the two towns hold as it were in their back yards, yet unknown to the tourist world, and that the said business men had woke up to the fact that it was time for them to cast their hooks for other business and let the striking miners have a well earned rest. We have the goods and the crowds are coming this way and it's up to the business men of Elko and Fernie to keep them coming.

Our country is the best
That the sun shines on today.
Some folks can't see the sunshine
'Cause the clouds are in the way.
But the clouds will scatter quickly,
And will soon give up their mocking,
If we get in line with progress
And for goodness sake—stop knocking.—Jim Thistlebeak.

Jim Thistlebeak says that work will get you more than whining and that some people have an atmosphere that if you meet them before 9 o'clock in the morning they would spoil your whole day.

A. Barnsley, of Lethbridge, (an old Yorkshire county cricketer) was in Elko this week placing some I. H. C. trucks and fraternizing with the President of the Yorkshire Pudding Club. They were next door neighbors back in the land of Tykes and a good pair to draw to.

COAL CREEK NOTES

A number of prominent Odd Fellows and Rebekahs paid a surprise visit to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Pearson of this burg. The party was all that could be desired in the way of festivities, Jack proving himself a capable host, and always seems ready in case of emergencies. He and his good wife made all feel at home.

Our genial Joe now wears a broad smile, having joined the ranks of motorists of this burg. When he has mastered the intricacies of the engine, pleasure trips are in anticipation.

The stork has been a frequent visitor to this camp lately, depositing a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Billsbourough; a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Johnstone; a son at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fawley, and a daughter at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hayles.

At the request of the G.W.V.A., Fernie Branch, all returned men are requested to appear in uniform if possible to take part in the big parade on Peace Day. Rally round, boys. This is your day.

An energetic committee from here have been working in Fernie in preparation for the sports to be held on Saturday.

We learn that arrangements are under way whereby this burg will be fully represented on the Fernie G. W. V. A. executive.

The news of the result of the balloting for Victory Queen was received with delight by the residents, the winner being a popular favorite up here.

Joe Wilson, an old timer of this camp, who recently returned from overseas, paid a visit to renew old acquaintances during the past week.

Among the visitors to camp this week we noticed Mrs. R. Cooks, Mrs. W. Davidson, Mrs. Billsborough, Mrs. Markland and our old friend Jimmy Lowe.

A NEW AUTOMOBILE ROAD GUIDE

Fred Spalding received the advance copies of his new Automobile Road Guide this morning and we have had an opportunity of looking through it. It more than carries out his description of what it would be, and to us, looks as if it will be in very great demand amongst motorists. It is splendidly gotten up and well illustrated, and is a very convenient size which can be carried in the pocket. This guide gives the connections of the Canadian roads with the American roads, and is the first guide ever to do this. Fred has certainly given this town and district a very glowing description, and one which cannot help but cause the reader to desire to visit here and see for himself the beauties so well portrayed. With this guide in his possession the motorist can travel from Manitoba through to any point in British Columbia and the North Western States without fear of getting off the road, as every turn is specified. There are descriptions of the tourist resorts throughout and information regarding hunting and fishing, which will make the book particularly valuable to those using it. What impresses us is the vast amount of work the compilation of the book has entailed and Fred certainly is to be complimented on the results. The book sells for $2.50 a copy and we hope that the sale will run into thousands.

Influenza as experienced by the Australian Commonwealth, is taking a course somewhat similar in history to the form experienced by other continents. It has been a series of ebbs and flows, suggestions of disappearance followed by dramatic rises in mortality. What seemed to be the high peak came two weeks ago with about 1600 cases in Sydney within a week and 150 deaths. The swing of the epidemic pendulum is coming the other way this week, with a comparatively low death rate. Commerce has suffered badly and society has become stagnant.

VIA THE C.P.R. ROUTE

Nick Slemko, a Russian with romantic ideas, shuffled off this mortal coil some time early Tuesday morning via the C.P.R. It was this way. Nick had been paying a lot of attention to a pretty Slav girl who lives in the Annex. When she suddenly gave him the icy stare, he decided that this vale of tears was no place for him and he placed his neck across one of the C.P.R. rails near the water tank and deliberately waited for a freight to finish the job. What Nick's thoughts were during the long wait it is impossible to say but patience eventually has its reward, as a train finally arrived and his head was severed as neatly as if it had been done by an axe. The body was found at 4.45 on Tuesday morning and the clothes contained a note giving his reasons for the rash act.

Coroner Thomson looked the case over and decided there was no reason why an inquest should be held.

ARMSTRONG IS SILENT

Although Coal Commissioner Armstrong returned to Calgary from the coast Monday evening, when seen on Tuesday morning by a representative of the Calgary Herald he firmly declined to make any statement whatever in conection with the strike in District 18. To all questions that were put to him he refused to make any statement whatever at the moment.

Ed. Browne, the secretary of the district, states it is up to the commissioner to effect a settlement. From what can be gathered from other sources, however, one of the most important questions to be settled is whether the international will recognize the present officials of the miners, who, ever since the One Big Union was suggested, have done their utmost to break away from international affiliation. The commissioner, however, positively refused to discuss this phase of the question.

The main point that will have to be borne in mind, according to one of the operators, is that any new contract that is entered into will have to be lived up to by the miners. "It is useless talking about agreements," said this individual, "if they can be broken at any time at the whim of the officials of the district."

EXTRA TRAIN AFTER STRIKE

A Cranbrook paper reports:

The deputation from the Board of Trade and Cranbrook District Automobile Association which recently waited on Mr. E. Shinick, an inspector of the board of railroad commissioners, and District Superintendent Maharg, has met with encouraging results, the officials promising another train about a month after the settlement of the coal strike. The delegation, comprising about 20 influential business men, pointed out the desirability of another train on the Crow's Nest line, the increasing business necessitating the putting on of another train. They stated that it was a necessity and the business interests of the community were bending their every effort to have another train in operation. The C.P.R. officials concurred with the remarks made by several of the delegation, but pointed out that the general unrset of labor at the present time was such that it did not warrant another train at present. Traffic on the Crow line was none too heavy. They promised, however, that immediately following the settlement of the labor troubles along the Crow, a second train will be inaugurated.

B.C. BRANCH CANADIAN PATRIOTIC FUND

The Executive Committee of the British Columbia Branch of the Canadian Patriotic Fund, in presenting this, the fourth annual statement of receipts and disbursements, is pleased to announce that contributions on behalf of the public are no longer required. It is also with feelings of gratification that we are able to announce that in all probability there will be in the hands of the National Treasurer, after all of our soldiers have returned from overseas and have received their discharge, a substantial balance which will probably be available for assisting the families of discharged overseas soldiers who have met with misfortune or who have been placed in financial straits through illness or other causes over which they have no control.

Notwithstanding the very long and trying period during which the public were called upon to support this and other war funds, the contributions for the fiscal year ending March 31st, while not as large as in former years, were very substantial, being as follows:

Provincial points	$336,783.49
Victoria	133,115.35
Vancouver	209,675.05
Total	$679,573.89

The total contributions since the beginning amounted, in British Columbia, to the splendid sum of $3,353,257.85. Against this we have disbursed for assistance to dependent families and for administration expenses $5,729,188.60, or $2,375,930.75 more than was contributed in the Province, the difference being supplied from the Central Treasury at Ottawa.

The disbursements for the year ending March 31st were $1,787,996.38, being $120,488.58 less than the year previous. This reduction is owing to the large number of soldiers returned from overseas. The discharges being put through at the present time are about 20 per cent per month.

The number of families receiving grants in the Province at the end of our fiscal year was 5295 as against 6761 at the end of March last year.

The average allowance per month per family up to the end of 1918 was about $21. Owing to certain increased grants this advanced during the first part of 1918 to about $22.50, and at November 1st further substantial increases were authorized, bringing the average grant since that date to $25.50. This increase, in conjunction with the special increase in separation allowances granted by the government, was made necessary by the increased cost of living, and, so far as we are able to ascertain, the combined government and patriotic increases fully met the situation and gave general satisfaction to the dependents of our soldiers.

As in the past, the cost of administration has been kept down to a minimum, being 1-2 of 1 per cent per annum after taking into account the interest earned on credit balances, and in this connection we take this opportunity of expressing to all of those in the Province who were directly or indirectly connected with the management of the fund our grateful thanks and appreciation for the services rendered, which alone made it possible to carry through to a successful conclusion this very important and somewhat difficult undertaking.

In September, 1915, British Columbia had 51 branches. At the close of the current year there were 198 organized branches and corresponding committees.

We have been asked by the National Executive to carry on the work of administration as in the past until all of ou rsoldiers have returned and have received their discharge. We, in turn, extend the same request to the representatives of the fund at all points in the Province of British Columbia. The work in connection with the administration will be very much less than formerly, owing to the discontinuance of contributions, and, in addition, the rapid discharge of our soldiers.. For the Executive,

F. Nation, Secretary.

FINED FOR DROPPING LIGHTED CIGARETTE

On June 23rd George Carriage, of Waldo, was arrested for violating section 111 of the Forest Act by starting a bush fire on Plumbob Creek, through carelessly dropping a lighted cigarette.

He was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace J. Radford, of Waldo, on Friday, June 27, and fined $50 and costs or given the option of two months' imprisonment with hard labor. The fine was paid.

In the past there have been too many fires caused by dropping lighted cigarettes and matches and leaving camp fires burning. In 1918, 27 per cent of the total fires in the Cranbrook district were traceable to this cause.

The Forest Branch is making a determined effort to stop this criminal carelessness and wherever sufficient evidence can be got to show that a fire has been caused through neglecting to extinguish camp fires, cigarettes or other burning substances, prosecutions will follow.

In any prosecution for violation of the Forest Laws the burden of proving that the requirements of the Act have been complied with falls upon the defendants.

RESULTS OF HIGH SCHOOL EXAMINATIONS

Victoria, July 1.—The results of the June examinations held in the high schools of the province are announced by the department of education.

Of the 1340 candidates who presented themselves for examination 906 passed in all subjects and 208 were granted university supplemental examinations.

The results for Fernie High School were:

Intermediate Grade — Ernest F. Frey 787; Lillian M. Cameron 655; Frederick G. Beale, 647; Elsie Frey, 575; S. Hunter, 574; F. L. Gannon, 563.

Senior Grade—Edna E. Wallace, 728; Harvey F. Wallace, 628.

Third Class, Non-Professional (Private study)—Alex. M. Greig, 689.

SEDITION TRIAL AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, July 21.—R. B. Russell, William Ivens, W. A. Pritchard, R. J. Johns, Aldermen John Queen and A. A. Heaps, Geo. Armstrong and R. E. Bray appeared before Magistrate Noble at the law courts this afternoon, facing charges of seditious conspiracy. Other informations have been laid, it was anounced, against the other strike leaders who did not appear on this charge.

"The amended information is now a charge of seditious conspiracy, where before it was seditious activities."

Further, according to a statement by A. J. Andrews, K.C., crown counsel, in addressing the court, "as far as these proceedings are concerned the amendment practically amounts to a withdrawal against the other men previously mentioned, but in all probability there will be other information laid."

F. G. Perry, of Fernie, B.C., a court reporter, who had acted as reporter on the western labor convention held in Calgary last March, was the first witness called by the prosecution. He recognized and identified Pritchard, Johns, Rusell and Armstrong as the men he had seen at the Calgary convention. A verbatim report of the whole proceedings taken in shorthand by himself, and the transcript, were put in as Exhibit 1 by Mr. Andrews. Recalled afterwards the witness stated that Joseph Knight, of Edmonton, and Mrs. George Armstrong were also present at the Calgary convention. On request of the magistrate they stood up.

Sergt.-Major Langdale, of the intelligence department, was the next witness for the prosecution. He said he was a member of the law society of Manitoba and had been practicing law prior to enlistment. Acting under instructions from Capt. G. A. Campbell, he had attended the meeting at the Walker theatre in December last. Ald. John Queen, he said, had presided. He recognized George Armstrong, William Ivens and R. B. Russell as among those who had been on the platform at that meeting. He produced a document which he said was a copy of the report of the meeting which he had made and which was transcribed from shorthand notes. Objection was taken by E. J. McMurray, counsel for the defence, to the witness reading notes from the report, and was noted.

"We intend to have the better things of life if we have to fight for them," and "the British constitution has been held up as the recognized rights of the minority. British, American and Canadian governments now have come to the place where they recognize only the rights of the few minority," are statements this witness said George Armstrong had made at this meeting. William Ivens, said this witness, had stated, "They say the alien enemy must be interned. I say it is no longer necessary since

FOOTBALL PROPAGANDA

To Secretaries of Football Clubs in Crow's Nest Pass, Greeting:

At the begining of the present season an attempt was made to rehabilitate the C.N.P. Football League, but owing to the many unfavorable conditions that prevailed in several of the camps which heretofore comprised the League, this attempt did not get the support necessary to practically carry out the purposes of the League. However, since that time it would appear that conditions have somewhat changed. An earnest attempt to revive the old time standard of football in the B.C. section of the Pass has met with complete success, whilst there is, no doubt, in the Alebtra section, a very earnest and enthusiastic effort to line up with their associates of the western part of the district. In view of these facts and at the solicitation of many of those interested, I desire to suggest for your consideration the following program as a wind up for the present season, believing that it will be the means of stimulating and laying the grounds for a real successful league next season:

1. That the clubs of Alberta call a meeting and arrange a series of matches to compete for the Crahan cup, which is now in Frank.

2. That the clubs in B.C. make similar arrangements and compete for the Mutz Cup, which is now held by Coal Creek.

3. That a team be selected respectively from Alberta and B.C. to play in a grand final on Labor Day at some place to be arranged later.

I shall be pleased to hear from the several clubs as to their views on this matter but as the season is fast closing I would urge immediate action on the part of those interested.

Yours sincerely,

A. J. Carter, Hon. Sec.

STALLING ALONG

The strike situation still remains the same. The men are being stalled along from day to day on promises of an early settlement, when there is practically no settlement in sight. Locally the men do not know where they get off. One day Harry Martin will get brave as a lion and stick up an O.B.U. notice and the next morning he will cut it off. In fact the men have to have a look at the notice board every morning to see whether they belong to the One Big Union or the United Mine Workers.

A commission of four representatives from the International, including Dave Rees, are expected to arrive in Calgary today to handle the situation on behalf of that body. If the miners of the district desire them to make an agreement with the operators they will endeavor to do so, while on the other hand if the men wish to stick to the O.B.U. their charters from the United Mine Workers will be cancelled forthwith and the strike will either end in the smashing of the unions or in the triumph of the Bolshevik program of the One Big Union.

TOURIST ASSOCIATION

At the second meeting of the Fernie Tourist Association in Spalding's Studio on Monday evening last a considerable amount of business was transacted. The principal discussion centered around the question as to whether the Association should permanently retain its identity as the Fernie Tourist Association or request the Board of Trade to accept its executive committee as a separate committee of the Board of Trade. Mr. Spalding proposed that this meeting decide on the necessary work to be done and the literature to be prepared, and then before anything was definitely arranged a meeting should be had with the Board of Trade at which these plans should be submitted together with a request for them to state what plans, if any, they had in view so as to avoid a possible clash. He also proposed that the Board of Trade should be requested to appoint the executive committee of this Association as the Board of Trade committee to handle this work, and that it should be called either the "Board of Trade Touring Bureau" or "Publicity Committee," which is the procedure adopted by most of the Chambers of Commerce on the other side. The discussion on this point occupied a considerable amount of time and it was finally decided as this Association was formed solely to promote tourist travel to this town and district it could not, or should not, in any way conflict with the functions of the Board of Trade; rather it would relieve the executive of that body of a very considerable amount of work, and that they should welcome the change, and therefore the Association would retain its identity as the "Fernie Tourist Association" and go ahead with the work it had outlined.

The ways and means for raising the necessary funds was then discussed, as also were the others matters of import. Abstracts of the minutes are given at the end of this article and you will read for yourselves the results.

Looking at this matter from the standpoint of citizenship and in an unbiased spirit, we do think that this the armistice. The Germans are our friends," and here mention was made of German socialists, whom, according to the witness, Ivens had described as "true patriots."

The whole meeting was described by Sergt.-Major Langdale as "very radical and revolutionary in its tone."

Cross-examined as to the result that speeches of this nature would have on the minds of those present, Sgt.-Major Langdale said they would instill revolutionary ideas in the minds of those present. Objection was taken to Mr. Andrews' examination of Sergt.-Major Langdale by Mr. McMurray in that his questions were very leading. The objection was, however, overruled by Magistrate Noble.

On conclusion of the examination of Sergt.-Major Langdale the court adjourned till 2.30 p.m. tomorrow.

Winnipeg, July 22.—Objection after objection for counsel for the defence and prosecution marked the hearing of the evidence in the preliminary hearing of the eight strike leaders, R. B. Russell, William Ivens, W. A. Pritchard, R. J. Johns, Alderman A. A. Heaps, Alderman John Queen, George Armstrong and R. E. Bray, before Provincial Magistrate R. M. Noble, on a charge of seditious conspiracy in the law courts this afternoon.

The amendment of the information yesterday, it was announced today, did not concern or affect the charges against F. J. Dixon, M.L.A., in any way. T. J. Murray, counsel for the defence today stated that Mr. Dixon and J. S. Woodsworth of Vancouver, would be brought up in all probability for their preliminary hearings on sedition charges about Monday or Tuesday of next week.

The first witness called today was Gus Pringle of the Winnipeg Printing company, who tendered formal evidence as to the personnel of the trades and labor council in this city, and as to the prosecution of the Western Labor News and the Strike Bulletin. He stated that William Ivens was the editor of the paper.

Sergeant Albert E. Reames, of the R.N.W.M.P., the next witness, stated that he had been for 10 years connected with the force. He said he was in charge of the secret service department under Colonel Clarke for western Ontario and Manitoba.

Examined by Mr. Andrews as to his investigation, he stated that he had attended the meeting held in the Majestic theatre under the auspices of the Socialist party on January 19, and that he had there heard speeches made by men who had been identified as the accused. All the speeches, he said, had followed the same line of argument "capital vs. labor." They all had pointed out that a revolution was coming and called for the working classes to educate themselves so as to be able to grasp the current events of the day.

"All the speakers," said Sergeant Reames, "denounced the government's policy of reconstruction, and a hope was expressed that the coming revolution would be peaceful, but asserted willingness to shed blood if the capitalistic class kept the working classes from obtaining their rights."

Sergeant Reames stated that at this meeting an intimation was made by the chairman that a memorial service would be held in the near future for Dr. Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg, recently killed in the fighting in Berlin. This intimation, he said, was indirectly the cause of the riots shortly afterwards.

He also gave evidence of attending what he termed "so-called church services" held in various buildings in the city and conducted by William Ivens. At a meeting held on February 2, Ivens had spoken on the "league of nations." In this address, the witness said, Ivens had pointed out the similarity between the present peace conference and that at the time of the downfall of Napoleon.

"I wish everyone to know that I am a pacifist in every sense of the word," is a statement credited to Ivens by this witness, who further had stated that he intended to ignore the censor at any time he felt inclined to do so and would read censored matter whenever he felt it would enlighten his audience.

According to Sergeant Reames, Ivens had defined bolshevism as "Sacredness of human life combined with the right of work by everyone and the product of work for the producers."

"I therefore want you all to understand that I am a bolshevist in every sense of the word," Sergeant Reames quoted Ivens as having said. Ivens had also declared himself in favor of the one big union and had stated that the American Federation of Labor was a tool of American capital and affiliation with them would never get the workingmen anywhere, said the witness. Ivens also declared, said Sergt. Reames, that in the coming revolution he would do his utmost for the working classes as a pacifist by the use of his brain.

The chief objection of the counsel for the defence to the evidence tendered by Sergeant Reames was that his report was not verbatim. Objections on legal points and the examination of witnesses were continually made by defence counsel, but were either overridden or simply noted and the examination proceeded with. During the cross-examination of Sergt. Reames by the defence objection was taken by Mr. Andrews at several questions put by Mr. McMurray in that they were of a privileged nature, and on his advice the witness refused to answer once, when questioned regarding his work.

On conclusion of the cross-examination of Sergt. Reames the court adjourned till 2.30 p.m. tomorrow.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

CANADIAN INDUSTRIAL CONGRESS, AUGUST 13 & 14

Detail of plans, program and attendant features of the Canadian Industrial Congress, to be held at Calgary on August 13 and 14 and to include a tour of the province by special train, has now been completely worked out and congress headquarters, located in the Palliser Hotel, Calgary, announces that reservations are being made for the special train tour, for congress sessions, which are to be held in the Grand Theatre, Calgary, and for hotel accommodation.

The special train, it is announced, will leave Medicine Hat on the morning of August 12, will run then to Lethbridge, from that city to Calgary, will be held here for two days during the congress sessions, then will run to Edmonton and from the capital city will move to Banff, arriving in the Rockies on Sunday morning, August 17.

The theatre sessions will open in the morning at 10 o'clock on Wednesday, August 13, and will continue until6 o'clock that evening, with intermission of 2 and 1-2 hours for luncheon, and on the following day will open at the same hours. There will be no evening sessions at the theatre, that portion of the day being utilized with entertainment and motoring. The program is perhaps the most impressive ever gotten together at one industrial gathering on the continent, including among others, Sir Robert Borden, E. W. Beatty, D. B. Hanna, Henry Ford, A. R. Erskine, Finley P. Mount, and many other industrial leaders of continental and world fame.

Congress headquarters asks that all who desire reservation on either the special train, the congress sessions at Calgary, or for hotel accommodation write or wire John M. McGreevy, Congress Manager, Palliser Hotel, Calgary, Canada, as soon as possible.

OBJECTS AND SCOPE OF THE CHAUTAUQUA

The members of the local committee, who have in hand the holding of the Chautauqua which begins in Fernie on August 11th, are being constantly asked to give the object and scope of the Chautauqua movement. Its prime object is to enlighten the masses on the fundamentals of nationalism, internationalism and economic subjects that confront them in their daily existence. This is accomplished by having well-known authorities, authors, students and lecturers of practical experience deliver addresses on such kindred subjects. Chautauqua is always constructive. In addition to these addresses an educational campaign will be inaugurated for school children and students, classes being formed with competent instructors and instructresses. The meetings will last a week. There are morning sessions for students and school children and evening sessions for adults. Interspersed in the programme will be entertaining features rendered by noted singers, instrumentalists, bands and orchestras. The programme will be completely changed daily. No lecturer or artist will appear at two performances.

Among the well known lecturers and artists will appear Dr. Joseph Clare, pastor of Petrograd, who will talk on "The Riddle of the Russian Revolution." The Doctor was pastor of the British-American Church in Petrograd for many years and has an intimate first-hand knowledge of conditions in Russia. Dr. A. D. Carpenter, the eminent British scientist and astronomer, will talk on "Worlds in the Making." Capt. Rev. J. W. Hindley will discuss conditions in Canada. The Sunday entertainment will be of a sacred nature and the Rev. Dr. Elliott A. Bohl will talk on "The Advantages of a Handicap." At the Sunday concert there will be no admission charges.

Among the entertainers will appear the McDonough Eagleston Co. in their musical fun programme, the Fillion Concert Party, the Lewis Military Quartette, the wonderful impersonator Elsie Mae Gordon, Mary Adel Hays, coloratura soprano, the Czecho-Slovak Band, and the Apollo Concert Co.

One can scarcely conceive of such a strong personality as Frank Keenan being a henpecked husband—even acting it, supreme artist that he is—but that is the very character he most convincingly portrays in "Todd of the Times," an Extra Star Photoplay, released by Pathe and shown at the Orpheum Friday and Saturday.

It is a triumph of the actor's art, this role of Theobald Todd, of the Evening Times, Springfield, the dream of whose plodding life is to be the managing editor. It is so skilfully drawn, so true to the very life of it, that it must take a place in the gallery of Mr. Keenan's notable stage of pictures.

The play, which is by Jack Cunningham and John Lynch is a classic of the small town, with its anti-betting crusade through which Theobald finally came into his own, and the unexpected and triumphant climax in his very home—the home in which he at last took the dominant place, with a wife so "converted" that she was ready to eat out of his hand. The humor of the story is continuous and the excellence of the whole performance is due to the fact that, from the star down to the smallest part, the cast is made up of capable actors specially selected to interpret the various types.

And there is just enough of drama to hold one in eager expectancy when he is not smiling at the keenness, the wit and the adroitness of the lovable Theobald Todd.

THE KAISER AND VICARIOUS SACRIFICE

There is still something curiously mediaeval in the minds of those who formerly constituted the ruling classes of Germany. The number of applications from persons who are willing to be placed on trial as scapegoats for the Kaiser is constantly increasing. First, ex-Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg made an offer, and it has been followed by similar proposals from General von Hindenburg and the five younger sons of the Kaiser. The offer made on behalf of himself and his four brothers by Prince Eitel Frederick, is quite theatric. It is something like "Shylock, here's thrice thy money offered thee!" The reasoning of Prince Eitel seems to be that five young Hohenzollerns would make a very ample substitute for one old one, if the Allies are sincere in their intention to hang a Hohenzollern scalp or two on the standard of the League of Nations. All this savors of the middle ages, when in the ordinary course of justice the authorities were not very particular as to what man was hanged for a certain offence so long as somebody suffered. William S. Gilbert had a good deal of fun with the ancient scheme of substitutes in the very ingenious plot of "The Mikado." Nowadays the public, save in certain of the Southern states where negroes abound, is curiously insistent on hanging the right man. Even in the free and easy days of the French Revolution, tribunals took some pains to find out whose heads graced the basket of Madame Guillotine, and Sidney Carton's sacrifice was a matter of romance, pure and simple. Germany seems to be overrun with Sidney Cartons in jack-boots, but it is tolerably certain that having decided to try the Kaiser, the Allies will hold to their purpose. If the persons offering thmselves as vicarious sacrifices, wish to be tried later on, the Allies will no doubt be willing to accommodate them.—Toronto Saturday Night.

SAYS LEMON JUICE WILL REMOVE FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

THE PEACE DAY SPORTS WINNERS

The celebration on Saturday last in commemoration of the signing of the Peace Treaty was one which for a "gala day" has never been surpassed in this city. The weather for the entire day could not have been more ideal and the crowds of visitors and citizens that turned out for the occasion were all eager to participate in the festivities in a royal manner. The decorations along Victoria avenue extending in both directions from the Victory arch were entirely in keeping with the glorious events for which the Day had been proclaimed, namely one of celebrating a "Glorious Victory and an Honorable Peace." The business houses of the city nobly responded in this as in other requests made of them, and the artistic window displays were numerous. The Victory Arch was indeed a masterpiece, while at night when illuminated the sight was gorgeous.

The celebration was opened by a grand parade which, under the able direction of Sergt. Pass, was conducted without a hitch. Sergt. Pass as Marshal of the day, led, followed immediately by the Fernie Pipers, Mesrs. Graham, Watson and Macneil, and the Fernie Bugle Band. Then came the Veterans of the district in uniform 200 strong, commanded by Major Moffatt, and as these gallant boys marched past, cheer upon cheer soared upward from the throats of the throngs that were packed along the line of march. The Victory Queen and her court came next, esconsed in the fire wagon, which was most tastily decorated and hauled by the three handsome greys, was a most imposing spectacle. The guard of honor for the Victory Queen was an escort of the R.N.W.M.P. Immediately following came the Indians from Tobacco Plains in their gorgeous native attire, some mounted, others on foot. Floats, decorated automobiles and carriages and the school children completed the parade. With respect to the floats they were so numerous and each vying the other in artistic beauty and characteristic design that it was with extreme difficulty that the judges reached their decisions and awarded the prizes. The first prize for float went to "Britannia," second to the Czecho-Slovak float, while that of the Italian Society, a caracature of the "Big Four" in session at the Peace Conference, was accorded honorable mention. For the best decorated automobile H. A. Wilkes won first honors; it represented "The Silent Army." The "Jazzy Girls" float was awarded the comic prize, and Dr. Workman's Shetland pony cart was awarded the bicycle prize as there were no entries for that event..

Special mention should be made of the work of J. F. Rudnicki in preparing the beautiful float on which Miss Kilghren represented Britannia, and also of the Peace Conference float, which was the production of Dominic Nicoletti.

There were many other floats and vehicles in the parade, noticeably among which was "Dobbin and the Shay," designed by our well known versatile Irish comedian, Mr. Corbett. Dispersed throughout were our three local brass bands, viz., the Salvation Army band, the Italian band and the Colliery band, to all of which nothing but the highest expressions of praise can be attributed. These organizations all voluntarily offered their services gratis and in addition to playing throughout the parade they furnished the music at the park during the entire day.

The parade wound up at the Victory Arch, where Miss Jessie Richardson was crowned Victory Queen, and Mayor Uphill, A. I. Fisher and Rev. Batzold addressed the great crowd assembled. The following words of the Rev. Batzold were particularly appropriate for the occasion:

"Beneath this arch of triumph I uncover my head. In the presence of the Victory Queen, whom you have chosen as embodying all this great occasion means, I bow.

On this occasion, when not only we, as a city, or as a province, or as a vast Dominion, but as the Empire and a world, celebrate peace. On this occasion, beneath this glorious arch, inscribed on the one side with "Peace," and upon the other with "Victory," on behalf of the Great War Veterans, I greet you. We who went to France did our part as you did here. We realize that this might have been a day of peace but not of victory; then, we, this day and always, would have hung our heads in shame. But we have assembled to celebrate "Peace and Victory." May these two words be enshrined in our hearts for all time.

May we find that this spirit, that made victory possible, that during the last five years called us, guided us, lifted us, carried us, inspired us, sustained us and led us to this glorious day, and keep us ever. Amen."

At the grounds, in addition to the children's sports ,there were open flat events, horse racing, and the baseball and football games, and the large crowd at the park were kept continually interested in these attractions when not playing the wheels of fortune, ringing the duck, pasting the kaiser, throwing for cocoanuts and various other contraptions for gathering in the coin for the Memorial Fund.

Supt. Osborne and his corps of assistants, worked three shifts on the 6-hour basis dispensing refreshments at the two per cent booth, and the popularity of this establishment can only be measured by stating that there was a cordon of from three to six deep surrounding it from sunrise until long after sunset. For the more substantial refreshments the Rebekahs and the Ladies Auxiliary of the G.W.V.A. catered in a most satisfactory manner to all and singular.

The results of the respective competitions for the day are set out in another column.

In the evening dances were held in two halls and large numbers attended and spent a most enjoyable evening. Other merrymakers preferred to amuse themselves by other methods, and taking everything into consideration, financially and otherwise, the Peace Day Celebration resulted in the success which the committee in charge desired to achieve.

STAMPEDE AT CALGARY

The pioneer days of the "last best west" in every detail will be reproduced in Calgary from August 25th to 30th at the greatest victory celebration which will be held in Canada, The Stampede. As this is to be a jubilation in honor of the home-coming of our victorious heroes, The Stampede will take the form of a great re-union of western pioneers of both the Canadian and American west.

In order to carry out the intention to make this the greatest celebration of its kind ever held on the continent, a committee known as the "Big Four," with Geo. Lane as chairman, and P. Burns, A. E. Cross and the Hon. A. J. McLean, has been formed to take harge of the financial end of the undertaking, while E. L. Richardson is acting as treasurer. The general manager is Guy Weadick, who, it will be remembered, engineered the eminently successful stampede held in Calgary during the boom time of 1912.

No particular has been neglected to ensure the entire success of The Stampede, special arrangements being made for the accommodation of the thousands of visitors who will throng to Calgary for that week. Agreements have been signed by many hotel and restaurant proprietors guaranteeing that there will be no increase in prices to Stampede guests, but that beds and meals will be provided at the regular rates. At the majority of celebrations of this kind out-of-town patrons are charged exorbitant prices for accommodation, but the "Big Four" made this one of the stipulations upon which they would go into the affair, that there would be no "sting" at The Stampede in Calgary. The guarantee was forthcoming, and the Kiwanis Club, an organization of prominent business men, has undertaken to conduct an accommodation bureau during Stampede week and will have some of its own members in attendance during the entire six days to take care of outside visitors.

A prize list as extensive as the one being offered in Calgary has never before been offered as a similar celebration, giving as it does $25,000 in cash prizes alone for the best riders, ropers and so forth.

An important feature of this Stampede is the fact that all profits will go to the Great War Veterans' Association, Y.M.C.A. and the Salvation Army.

From August 25th to 30th Calgary will be the greatest "cow-town" on the continent and will be the meeting place of ranchers and city residents from the Atlantic to the Pacific and north and south of the international boundary.

"Socialist?"

When it is said that British, French and Italian "labor representatives" are going to stage a demonstration against Allied intervention in Russia it should be understood that "labor" as thus used means about what we in America think of as "Socialist." — Buffalo Express.

TRAINMEN SAY STRIKE WRONG

Winnipeg, July 23.—When the Robson commission, inquiring into industrial relations and the causes of the recent Winipeg strike, reopened this morning, the first witness called was E. H. Cooke, general chairman of western lines for the C.P.R., Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Mr. Cooke said that it was impossible to secure the names of the men responsible for the organization of the strike in C.P.R. running trades in the west. Such strike was unconstitutional, and every member of the brotherhood who participated in that sympathetic strike would be expelled from the organization.

Witness said that he felt justified in naming the leaders of the striking trainmen, the three men who had served notice on the C.P.R. of the sympathetic strike. He named H. R. Maybanks, R. A. Goodman and C. Macdonald.

Witness also stated that when the strike vote was taken in the Winnipeg local he had been led to believe that certain members of the organization who were entitled to cast a vote had not received ballots and had not voted. The witness did not get accurate information as to the result of the vote, but the railway company had been informed that 87 per cent had favored the strike.

Mr. Cook said that the committee of five who tried the members participating in the unconstitutional strike had expelled only 51 who refused to return to work when called upon to do so. He thought that a large number of the trainmen stated to have struck were idle during the strike only because they were on the "spare" list at that time and would not have been working in any case.

The next witness, G. H. Lawrence, a member of Lodge 223 of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, stated that he had received a strike ballot for C.P.R. western lines, but that the ballot did not state that the strike was authorized by the federal convention. Witness had had several ballots handed to him on different occasions and once he was asked if he cared to vote on a purely local matter. He had declined. At the end of a regular meeting of the lodge a special strike meeting was held, at which the attendance was about a hundred. A strike vote was taken with a special ballot marked simply "for" or "against."

Witness said that he believed that the strike committee appointed after this balloting was over had done its utmost to get a fully representative vote of the lodge on the strike question. He knew of members, however, who had never heard of the vote. Witness said that he was nominated for the strike committee of the lodge during his absence. He had not refused to act but had taken no part in the committee's activities because he was not in favor of the strike or of the strike meeting.

The latter was not in accordance with the rules of the federation. It was the feeling in the meeting that if the international or their grand lodge officers would not release them from the regulations and if the western lines of the Brotherhood would not support them, the lodge should "cut the strings and get out anyway," concluded the witness.

T. H. Argue, another member of Local 223, who gave evidence at Monday's session concerning the distribution of ballots in the running trades, was recalled for cross-examination by Mr. Murray. He repeated that he had never received a ballot form, though he had heard that the lodge was taking a strike vote.

Asked if he thought that the ballot was purposely withheld from him he replied that he would not say that. It would not have been difficult, however, for the men in charge of the vote to reach him. He knew of two other members who did not get a ballot paper.

NOTICE TO EX-MEMBERS OF THE IMPERIAL FORCES

War Service Badges, Class "A" or "C" issued to members of the C.E.F. are now issued to those members of the Imperial Forces who were domiciled in Canada on August 4th, 1914, and served in the Imperial Forces in the European war, and have since returned to take up their residence in Canada.

Owing to change of policy these badges will now be issued by District Record Officers and not by the Officer Paying Imperial Pensions, Ottawa, as previously stated.

Ex-members of the Imperial Forces eligible for the award of the above mentioned badges will apply for the badge to which they are entitled to the District Record Officer of the Military District in which they reside.

Jimmy McLeod, formerly of the Fernie Cash Meat Market, returned on Tuesday from overseas.

American Consul General Stewart, of Washington, was in town over the week end inspecting the local office.

Billy Wood, of Elko, has purchased a $3700 truck to do the hauling in his post business. It is an International.

From reports received the Prince of Wales will not stop off in Fernie. His train is supposed to pass through this town at 2 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Morrison, of Lancashire, England, arrived in Fernie yesterday morning. They were residents of this city five years ago.

H. P. Gregson, J. A. Broley and Immigration Officer Lynn were in the city from the south country yesterday. They report the bush fires in that neighborhood very bad.

The Fernie Midget baseball team are trying to raise enough money to play home and home games with the Waldo Midgets. Fernie has some promising material in the younger generation.

Some young fellows borrowed Billy McKay's car on Saturday night and went joy riding. When they finished it was badly smashed up. Billy says he is getting tired paying for other people's joy riding.

Fernie has a cricket club. The supplies have been ordered and are expected to arrive in a day or two. There are a lot of old cricketers in the city and they are all anxious to get the game going.

Lieut. Hall, who is making a flight from Vancouver to Calgary, is expected to land at Fernie. The local Tourist Association have extended him a cordial invitation and he will be their guest during his stay here.

The jury which sat on the case of the Russian who died while under an operation in the Fernie hospital last week, brought in a verdict on Friday evening, which stated that the deceased, who was polluted with syphlis, had died of heart failure.

The new inspector appointed for this district to take the place of Inspector Owen, who has been transferred to Vancouver, is Jos. Fernie, for many years chief of police at Kamloops. Mr. Fernie is a nephew of Wm. Fernie, the father of our city.

The Wild Horse Dredging Company, having leases covering the bed of Boulder Creek, near Fort Steele, and from the Kootenay River to a point up stream about five miles, expects to begin operations in the near future. A full crew is working to get the machinery in shape.

A meeting of the front street ratepayers was called for Tuesday evening in the council chamber to discuss the sidewalk question, but only four men turned out, which was very disappointing, considering the importance of the subject. However, it is thought that a car of cement will be secured and the work undertaken at an early date.

The G.W.V.A. baseball team met defeat at the hands of the All Irish Star team on Wednesday night at Victoria Park by the score of 4 to 2. The game started out good but lost all pep after the third innings. Campbell, as umpire, received a lot of criticism from all sides on account of his decisions, but managed to break about even for both sides with raw deals.

Bush fires have been breaking out all over the district and there are grave reasons for believing that a lot of them are of incendiary origin. Some of the fires have started in the middle of the night far from the railway or any other possible source of ignition. If the culprits are caught some of them are liable to get summary punishment without the benefit of courts.

The city council will meet tonight instead of last evening.

Fred Perry returned yesterday from a trip to Winnipeg.

Big Removal Sale at H. F. McLean's. Everything at Cost.

A marriage license was issued this week to Thos. Joinson, of Fernie, and Miss Anna Mansfield of Natal. They will be married in a day or two.

Raspberries are reported to be very plentiful this year and the road between Hosmer and Sparwood is crowded these days with berry pickers.

Pete Mulligan, returned man, was fired from the power house the other day by Manager Smith. The Vets are looking into the cause of his dismissal.

The Waldo junior baseball team will play the Fernie juniors at the park this afternoon. Both teams have some good material and a smart game is anticipated.

H. F. McLean has leased the Bank of Hamilton Building and will move his drug business into it by Sept. 1. He is running a Cost Sale in order to reduce his stock before moving.

Romeo, the well known Russian sport about town, refused to pay his jitney license for Peace Day. Magistrate Whimster assessed him an additional $25, which he contributed with a smile.

Judge Forin, of Nelson, will have charge of the county court at Fernie at its next sittings, during the absence of Judge Thompson in Toronto. Judge Forin is at present holidaying in Portland.

Instead of receiving rebates for the prompt payment of taxes, this year, citizens will be mulcted in penalties if they fail to pay said taxes promptly. This fact does not seem to have sunk into the consciousness of the average citizen.

Joe Colosino, an Italian who got a knife mixed up with a peaceful row, was sent up for trial on Monday. He elected for speedy trial before Judge Thompson. As the judge has a particular aversion to the knife being used in settling disputes, the accused is liable to get his.

A small fire in a residence at Hosmer caused considerable excitement in Fernie as a phone call from that town stated that the town was on fire. Two cars of men were hustled to that burg to find that the blaze had had been extinguished by a couple of young girls, who dragged the hose line about 100 yards and turned on the water, in the absence of the men, who were all away fighting bush fires.

Buller's Dog and Pony Show played here last night to a large audience. The dogs and ponies played their parts to perfection, while the acrobatic stunts and juggling were of the best. These people had to redeem the name of a show, after Sanger's outfit had been through here a few days ago and destroyed all interest in this sort of thing. The band in attendance kept up a good line of music all the way through.

Why pay rent? When you can buy a house of three rooms and pantry, well built, plastered, stone foundation, and Lot 6, Block 64, Annex, for $350.—Wm. Minton, Box 982, City.

Mr. Billings is authority for the statement that we were wrong in saying the fire wardens were several hours in getting to work on the Fairy Creek bush fire. He says they had a bunch of men at work on this fire within an hour of the time it was reported. As Mr. Billings is the representative of the company which owns the timber on Fairy Creek, he is naturally not biased in his report on the fire fighters. He also states that the men did all in their power to fight the conflagration.

For Sale or Rent—Modern four-roomed cottage. Centre of city. Apply Barton's Music & Sewing Machine Store. tf

PRACTICAL BOLSHEVISM

Is your city dwelling charming?
Hand it over!
Have you got a place for farming?
Hand it over!
Is your auto just the cheery
Thing you need to chase the dreary
Thoughts away when you are weary?
Hand it over!

Are there clubs for rest and pleasure?
Hand them over!
Are there banks for people's trasure?
Hand them over!
Are there men throughout the nation
Who deserve our admiration,
Firm in high determination?
Hand them over!

Is our money well invested?
Hand it over!
Is your business tried and tested?
Hand it over!
Are the telephones and traction
Giving perfect satisfaction,
Are the railroads all in action?
Hand them over!

Is your wife a matron stately
Who doth rule your home sedately,
Do you love your daughter greatly?
Hand them over!

JOHNSON SPENT SMALL FORTUNE

"Completely Failed To Get End of My Trouble Until I Found Tanlac," He Says

"I spent a small fortune trying to get rid of my troubles and had completely failed until I found Tanlac," said William Johnson, who lives at 17th avenue and 116th street, Edmonton, in a recent interview. He is known by his friends as "Bill" Johnson, and has made Edmonton his home for the past four years, and prior to that lived at Three Hills, Alberta and was engaged in farming.

"About a year ago," he continued, "my stomach went back on me and after every meal I would suffer from indigestion and other troubles. I finally reached the place where I dreaded to go to the table, for nearly everything I would eat soon soured and caused cutting pains in my stomach. Ihad no appetite to speak of, and the little I did eat just seemed to lie in my stomach in an undigested condition, and the gas that would form from it would get up in my chest and around my heart, almost cutting off my breath, and my heart would flutter and pain me just as if I had heart trouble. I was more afraid of eating something heavy for supper than any other meal, for many a night I would lie on my stomach with pillows under it, to get a little ease from the pains that would almost draw me double. I also suffered with severe headaches and dizzy spells, and when one of these spells would come on me, I would have to grab hold of something to keep from falling. I was extremely nervous and in such bad shape in every way that I couldn't get any sound sleep at all, and when I would get up in the morning, I would not only have a disagreeable taste in my mouth but was so sluggish and exhausted I could hardly drag myself around.

"Soon after I started taking Tanlac I began to feel better and my appetite came back to me. Then I was convinced that Tanlac would build me up, if I stuck to it. I have only taken a few bottles now, and I am not only glad to see meal time come but I can go to the table and eat anything I want without having indigestion or pains in my stomach. I never suffer from shortness of breath or trouble around my heart. I haven't had a headache or a dizzy spell in a long time, and in fact, I feel just like a new man in every way and can work hard all day and when I lie down at night I sleep like I did when I was a boy. Since taking Tanlac I have not only gained several pounds in weight but I feel as if it had added years to my life and I never miss an opportunity to tell my friends about this great medicine."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

Assocation should receive the active support of every public body in town. They are undertaking something which will be of inestimable financial benefit to the town. Its executive is composed of men who are particularly adapted for the work, not only for their knowledge of the requirements but for the fact that every one of them is in business for himself and his time is at his own disposal. They have all pledged themselves to give whatever time is necessary for the great amount of work the Association if carried out right, will entail. Let us consider now the principal subjects on which expert knowledge is essential. They are: Fishing, Hunting, Camping, Climbing and Roads. Now for the men who compose the executive of the Association. They are W. Baldrey, N. E. Suddaby, H. Gould, Dr. J. C. Orner, G. Kossoff, D. V. Mott and J. F. Spalding. Let us now take the subjects in their order, then ask yourselves if there is anybody in this town better able to prepare data and give advice on each than the names following:

Fishing: N. E. Suddaby, H. Gould, W. Baldrey, J. F. Spalding.

Hunting: N. E. Suddaby, H. Gould, W. Baldrey.

Camping: N. E. Suddaby, H. Gould, W. Baldrey.

Climbing: N. E. Suddaby, H. Gould, W. Baldrey, J. F. Spalding.

Roads: J. F. Spalding.

Then the fact that D. V. Mott is a journalist, will ensure this town and district and also this Association a considerable amount of free publicity which they would otherwise have to pay for. In addition to this Mr. Spalding has offered the free use of his road data to this Association, which in itself will materially reduce its expenses.

It is proposed to have the logs of the following roads printed on cards for free distribution to motorists: Crow's Nest to Fernie, Fernie to Cranbrook, Cranbrook to Kingsgate, Fernie to Gateway, Gateway to Fernie, Kingsgate to Cranbrook, Cranbrook to Fernie and Fernie to Crow's Nest. They will be printed at once and sent to points such as Crow's Nest, Blairmore, Elko, Gateway, Cranbrook and Kingsgate for distribution. Other logs will be prepared shortly, and the result of the meeting with the Board of Trade will decide the nature of the map and booklet to be prepared for distribution throughout the States and Canada. We feel sure that this committee are heart and soul in this proposition and heartily recommend the business men and citizens of this town to give it their hearty support. Apparently the business men realize that something at last is to be done, as a list was taken around amongst them recently and signatures obtained. We got a copy of this list and as it will show the feeling, we herewith give it. It was headed "The Fernie Tourist Association."

We, the undersigned, realizing the necessity for an Association of this kind in Fernie, hereby signify our intention of becoming a member of same, and to subscribe whatever fee may be necessary. This to be decided at a meeting of the signatories to be called immediately this list is complete. The 91 names follow:

D. G. Harvie, P. Lundie, H. A. Liphardt, N. E. Suddaby, J. F. Spalding, Muirhead & Co., J. D. Quail, F. S. Jeutch, L. Carosella, J. R. Wallace, R. G. McEwan, W. B. Harwood, H. R. Huntington, H. E. Martin, W. Johnston, J. Podbielancik, F. Denison, D. Citro, A. Walde, G. G. Moffatt, J. Aiello, J. Wood, J. C. Orner, A. W. Bleasdell J. L. Gates, S. Graham, W. Barton, E. Large, G. B. Thomson, P. Bean, L. T. Smith, M. A. Berigan, J. Wilson, J. Letcher, M. Souchuck, W. A. Ross, F. Dunlap, J. L. McIntyre, S. Bonnell, J. Haddad, L. A. Mills, M. A. Kastner, A. Watson, W. Biggs, C. Junget, F. Greenwood, T. Barton, H. Gould, W. A. Ingram, P. Guzzi H. P. Wilson, F. C. Kennedy, F. Labelle, W. H. Pickering, G. A. Bonnallie, T. Uphill, J. Barber, W. Robichaud, A. M. Owen, M. Belecky, P. Marchinek, J. H. Marshall, A. Klauer, D. V. Mott, W. Wyatt, H. A. Wilkes, W. Claridge, A. T .Hamilton, H. J. Johnson, K. Johnson, G. E. Winters, W. H. Baldrey, T. Biggs, T. Fitzgerald, J. Falconer, B. Asselstine, C. O. Dahl, Jas. McLean, C. W. Barrett, W. Winnett, W. Mills, John Biggs, M. Sorkie, G. Kossoff, Norton Brand, Chas. Spence, the District Ledger, A. Campbell, McGladrey Bros., C. Batzold.

In addition to this list, we are informed that there are other business men who, for certain reasons, refused to sign, but pledged themselves to give their financial support also.

The foregoing goes to show that this Association is composed of a bunch of hustlers who give every indication of earnestness and it is our advice that they should be given every encouragement in their efforts as we feel convinced that they will bring results.

Abstracts of the minutes of the last meeting follow:

Moved by Biggs, seconded by Wood —That the recommendation of the committee in respect to the printing of the road logs be adopted.—Carried

Moved by Mott, seconded by Watson—That the recommendation in respect to the preparation of map and booklet be laid over until after the meeting with the Board of Trade.

Moved by Biggs, seconded by Smith —That the membership fee of the Association be $2.50 per annum.—Carried.

Moved by Spalding, seconded by A. Watson—That a subscription sufficient to meet the expenses of the Association be taken up from amongst the business men.—Carried.

Moved by Mott, seconded by A. Watson—That action under the above resolution be deferred until the executive meets the Board of Trade, provided that they meet at an early date, and that they request the Board of Trade to call an early meeting.—Carried.

Moved by Mott, seconded by Large —That the secretary be authorized to proceed along the same lines as adopted by him in securing advertising from the hotels and garages outside of town, for the logs.—Carried.

MINORITY FOR ONE BIG UNION

Winnipeg, July 22.—"It is now becoming apparent that, while a number of local unions are voting in favor of the One Big Union, these decisions are being secured with minority votes when the total membership of the respective bodies is considered," says the Manitoba Free Press in its news columns this morning. "Serious ruptures between the factions favoring international affiliation and the One Big Union are anticipated in labor circles generally, The One Big Union supporters have been most diligent, while the international organization supporters have shown less concern to this vital question to the worker. In the case of the vote of the Trades and Labor Council in this connection, for instance, only 110 delegates were present at the meeting at which the decision in favor of the One Big Union was reached. Many of these did not vote because of the fact that their unions had taken no definite stand and they did not care to express their personal views on the matter. The total vote reported in favor of the One Big Union was 65.

"When it is remembered that the Trades and Labor Council has a membership of approximately 300, and that no more than 65 votes were cast in the decision favoring the One Big Union, the true nature of the 'unanimous' vote claimed by the radical body will be laid bare. Several of the unions which have been committed by the vote of their delegates are already re-organizing to hold their international affiliation. Included among these are the blacksmiths, the machinists, the Brotherhood of Carmen, the steamfitters, the sheetmetal workers and the teamsters. There is apparently no doubt as to the success of the re-organization of the Trades and Labor Council."

The Dangers of Syndicalism

Syndicalism as an industrial system is impracticable because every group of workers would always be fighting for its own hand against the rest of the community. If the railroad workers owned and operated the lines there would be no limit to the wages they would demand the rest of the people to pay them. Freight and passenger rates would become more and more burdensome. The same with every other industrial group. The existing industrial order has its defects and weaknesses, but we are convinced that syndicalism would introduce more and worse evils than those we are familiar with. —Buffalo News.

Great Is the Novelist.

The novelist is exposed to contempt by the ease of his art, if he be content to take it at its lowest, but he also suffers by a difficulty inherent in it, at least for those who take their imagination at all seriously. The historian, the biographer, the writer of memoirs, the critic, has so much given to him. The novelist has nothing. When he begins to talk of Becky or Bathsheba we care nothing for either. We do not believe in them unless he can make us believe; we do not mind whether they are happy or miserable, live or die, unless he can compel us to do so. That is why indifferent novels are to some of us exactly the most tedious reading in the world.—Times Literary Supplement.

HOW YOU CAN TELL GENUINE ASPIRIN

BAYER

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

There is only one Aspirin, that marked with the "Bayer Cross"—all other tablets are only acid imitations.

Look for the "Bayer Cross"! Then it is real Aspirin, for which there is no substitute.

Aspirin is not German but is made in Canada by Canadians, and is owned by a Canadian Company, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" have been proved safe by millions for Pain, Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages, can be had at any drug store.

WHY BRITAIN RULES WAVES

(By Mrs. A. E. Gooderham, President Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.)

On August 4th, 1914, as the Grand Fleet was slipping into its place in the first line of defence, George V. the Sailor King, sent this message to Admiral Jellicoe, then in High Command: "At this grave moment in our national history, I send to you, and through you, to the officers and men of the Fleets of which you have assumed command, the assurance of my confidence that, under your direction, they will revive and renew the old glories of the Royal Navy, and prove once again the sure shield of Britain and the Empire in the hour of trial." From that moment until the day of the surrender of the German Fleet, silently and overwhelmingly, the Royal Navy did prove, that it was the sure shield of Great Britain and the Empire, in the hours of trial.

What has made Great Britain so supreme as a maritime power?

1. Her geographical position—

Surrounded by the sea, and hemmed in on a narrow strip of land, the people of Great Britain have found their outlet on the sea:

"Others may use the oceans as their road.
Only the English have made it their abode."

And the Ocean has well repaid this island race, for the confidence they have reposed in it, by developing generations of men who have yielded to no one in daring or boldness, in hardihood or in broad and honest vision. The men, who, year in, year out, have sailed the Seven Seas, whose depths held no terror for them, whose ever receding horizon did not dismay them, succeeded in founding an Empire covering more than one-quarter of the land surface of the globe.

2. Self Preservation—

Experience taught the English, very early in the Christian era, that existence as a separate nation could be made possible, only by the creation of a navy, sufficiently strong to repel invading forces from the continent of Europe. Roman, Teuton, Dane, and Norman in rapid succession, came, conquered and absorbed each preceding race. 800 years ago Alfred the Great created the first English Navy. He assumed the title of Admiral, beingf, it is supposed, the first English sovereign to command the fleet in person. Only as the instinct for the sea grew and developed a hardy race of seamen, could the peoples of Europe be held back within the confines of their own shores. Since the time of the Norman invasion, no foreign army has ever been landed on English soil. Three times, since then, has the conquest of Britain been attempted and three times has the "sure shield of Britain" thwarted the attempt.

The great galleons of the Spanish Armada were beaten off by the little fleet of merchant ships under Drake, Raleigh and Lord Howard of Effingham. Napoleon, in 1805, massed an army across the Channel from Dover and for months waited the opportunity to cross, which, thanks to Nelson's unceasing vigilance, never came. And, in the present Great War, the road to Calais was stubbornly fought for, but the German Emperor's fondest dream was never realized for Jellicoe and Beatty did not for one moment yield possesson of the sea and the British Navy revived its ancient glories and surpassed them, in being not only the "sure shield of Britain and the Empire," but of the civilization of the world.

3. Her Commerce—

Britain has been called the goods-carrier of the world. In times of peace, to feed and clothe the fifty millions of people, inhabiting the British Isles, the looms of industry must never cease, her merchant ships must plough the High Seas to carry her products to the four quarters of the globe, and to bring back raw materials and food supplies. To build and equip the great Navy necessary for her own protection and for the freedom of the world, her commerce must be developed to the maximum of industry, and she must be in a position to compete with all other powers in the markets of the world. In times of war, the existence of her people, seagirt in their island home, depends upon her ability to swiftly take possession of the sea and to keep the highways of the world, which lead to her ports, open at all costs.

4. Her Scattered Empire—

The fleet is the life-line of the far-flung British Empire. The sure defence of the Empire is not a standing army of enormous size, such as the hopes of Germany, prior to 1918, were built upon, but a navy of sufficient size, and well equipped with the best guns and the bravest crews.

Great Britain has never used her Navy for purposes of aggression. In times of peace she has held the supremacy of the seas in the nature of a trust, to be used for the promotion of the best interests of all nations. Admiral Manhan the great naval authority has admirably put this position: "Why do English innate political conceptions of popular representative government, of the balance of law and liberty, prevail in North America, from the Arctic Circle to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific? Because the command of the sea at the decisive era belonged to Great Britain."

Her ports throughout the world are open to all nations on equal terms with her own subjects. Germany in trying to defend her animosity against England, said that England was preparing to annihilate German ocean commerce. Nothing could be further from the truth. While Britain undoubtedly recognized in Germany a very powerful rival commercially yet every British port was open to German trade on the same footing as to British firms. The freedom of the world and the freedom of the seas are synonymous terms in the British mind. Queen Elizabeth rebuked the Spaniard when a protest was lodged against Drake for sailing in the waters of the Pacific and laid down the rule that the "Sea is as free as the air."

For the very reasons that have made the British race a sea-faring race must this supremacy be maintained throughout the future. The Heart of the Empire — the British Isles—must be kept free from the fear of European aggression. The great ocean highways that link together the Overseas Dominions must not be menaced by any insufficient protection. The Commerce of the Empire must be safeguarded both in peace and war. The British race must not be weakened by lack of that training which only life on the sea can give. The proud and unique position the British people have been privileged to occupy in the last ten centuries is a heritage to be treasured by the generations of the future and developed not only to save the glory and the wonder of that heritage but to transmit the virtues thus engendered for our own good and the benefit of the world.

BRITAIN AND HER COLONIES

She stands, a thousand-wintered tree,
By countless morns imperarled;
Her broad roots coil beneath the sea,
Her branches sweep the world;
Her seeds, by careless winds conveyed
Clothe the remotest strand
With forests from her scatterings made,
New nations fostered in her shade,
And linking land with land.

O ye by wandering tempest sown
'Neath every alien star,
Forget not whence the breath was blown,
That wafted you afar!
For ye are still her ancient seed
On younger soil let fall;
Children of Britain's island-breed,
To whom the mother in her need
Perchance may one day call.

—William Watson.

EXTORTIONATE COMBINES

Commenting on the government plan to create a Board of Commerce the Toronto Mail and Empire says that such a board will be expected to be a guardian of the public interest in all cases where combines or the cost of living are concerned. The country has had need of a public prosecutor, dealing with this class of case, and the Board should have an important place in our system of business regulation. Hitherto, the leaving of responsibility to the attorney-general of a province has made the anti-combine laws a farce.

There is need, moreover, of action by some government agency along wider lines than those apparently proposed for the Court of Commerce. As the evidence before the Parliamentary Committee on Cost of Living has indicated in many lines middlemen get extravagant profits. In some kinds of shoes, and certain lines of textiles, the manufacturer's price is perhaps a third, or even a fourth of the price the consumer pays. In a large proportion of cases, the manufacturer's price is doubled in distribution. There is nothing of a "combine" about this distributive system, unless the practice of wholesalers to boycott manufacturers who do not sell through them to the retail trade can be termed a combination. Yet the Board of Commerce ought to have the power to prosecute any merchant, in a combine or not, who can be proved to be exacting unreasonably high prices for necessaries of life. When the late Lord Rhondda set about creating his great system of food control in Britain, he was fought fiercely by the various groups of dealers. Even the producers refused to co-operate under his scheme of fixing prices for every class of dealer, from the producer through to the consumer. Yet, big business man that he was, he knew that what he was seeking was practical, and his determination won a splendid triumph. It is not necessary in Canada that there should be a rigid price-fixing system, but the plain desire of the people is that there should be a public authority to hunt out profiteers in necessaries and compel them to moderate their prices to reasonable levels. The Business Profits Tax does not exert this restrictive influence, because in the present condition of the commodity market, the tax can in most cases be added to the cost of doing business, and the consumer pays it.

The Act defining the powers of the Court of Commerce ought not to limit its jurisdiction to combines, or associations, but should allow it to apply to any and all dealers in commodities the public must have, in an ordinary standard of living, and there ought to be vested in it the power to fix a maximum net profit allowed to any concern dealing in necessaries whose margin per article is shown to be extortionate.

A COMPARISON OF MINSTRELS

Minstrels are not all alike. To be able to demonstrate this fact, the public is urged to attend the Harvey Greater Minstrels when it appears at the Grand Theatre on July 29.

The management of this famous colored organization emphasizes the usual quality of its wardrobe, both that worn in its parade and in the performance. The women will perhaps be the best judges of this wardrobe and will appreciate both the value of the material used and the skill of designing the work. Never was a colored minstrel show dressed as is the Harvey Greater Minstrels, but for it to be any different would be not in line with the high class entertainment offered. There are a couple of meritorious white minstrels, but their success depends largely upon their ability to imitate the colored race. Therefore, the management of the Harvey Greater Minstrels conceived the idea of assembling forty really classy natural and capable performers of that race, and consequently an unusual minstrel organization is the result. The idea of the Creole Beauty Chorus is original with Mr. Harvey.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Whether they hang the ex-Kaiser in the Tower of London, England or drown him in Elk River Canyon is not worrying the people of Elko. It's the crowds of tourists that is visiting the Old Historic Burg that's keeping them busy these days. Adam and Eve might have spent some of their years in the Garden of Eden, though a person with good eyesight would hardly believe it if they had seen Elko, the Queen City of the Crow's Nest Pass.

The Bloomer Girls from Lethbridge, six; a galaxy of grace and beauty from the town that sprang up from the coal dumps. They are prime favorites and are giving exhibitions of ball tossing on the Main street, swimming stunts in Burton Lake, nightingale entertainments at some of the brown stone fronts on Riverside drive. Miss Kipp, also of Lethbridge, gave an exhibition of bare back riding that beat anything in Sanger's Wild West Show. There are some fine people visiting here from Lethbridge and there are some passing through that gives the writer the impression that their room will be mighty good company for their neighbors while they are gone.

A medical journal says that Chicago surgeons are removing a piece of a man's skull to cure him of kleptomania. Jim Thistlebeak says that if the operation is unsuccessful they should amputatate both his hands.

The forest fires are raging down in the Roosville valley and Geo. Schupe, the hustling fire warden, is sure on the jump but doing good work.

The Tobacco Plains Indians are returning from the Big Peace Celebration at Fernie, where they sure made a killing.

Anything German is about as popular with the Tobacco Plains Indians as a certain little striped black and white animal at a Wednesday evening prayer meeting.

Charlie Johnson, walking boss for the W. Woods tie and prop camp west of the town, took down a bunch of tie hacks and four horse teamsters to the big celebration Saturday to Fernie, and then entertained them to a cream sandwich supper on their return.

General Four-Sky-Thunder and his wife passed through to their home via the ridgepole of their cayuse, to the reserve.

One of the social events of the past week was the annual meeting of the school board, the citizens boosting the teacher's salary from $80 to $100 per month. This with free ozone and the finest boarding house in the Pass is some position for any young lady anxious to save money.

Jim Thistlebeak says one of the crookedest men he ever knew neither smoked, chewed, drank nor swore. He couldn't afford any handicaps.

The Elko Tire hospital, owned by Lou Foisy, is sure making a good name for itself and proving a good acsquisition to the town. Lou always leaves them smiling when he says good-bye. Good work and reasonable prices will win anything and is a great force as advertising matter.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harwood gave a delightful motor party in honor of Mrs. J. S. T. Alexander, of Victoria, who is spending the week in Fernie, to Elko this week.

OH YOU HOG!

Chicago, July 23.—The basis for the cost of lard, bacon and pork rose to a new record today. Live hogs this morning were selling at $23.35 a cwt., as against $23.00 yesterday. Until today $23 was the highest price ever reached.

Decrease in the number of arrivals of hogs is the reason given for the new record-breaking advance of prices.

LINES UP WITH INTERNATIONAL

Winnipeg, July 23.—Reorganization of the Canadian National Railway System Federation by the election of delegates lined up with the international trades unionism was strongly suggested in the action taken Tuesday night at a largely attended meeting of the Northern Star Lodge, composed of the C.N.R. Carmen. J. McIlveen, president, was in the chair. The lodge has now about 400 members and approximately 300 were present.

The lodge recommended a C. N. R. joint protective board to immediately appoint delegates to the system of federation to fill two vacanices and that four delegates to the federation be instructed to proceed at once to take steps to reform the federation by getting in touch with the delegates from other crafts.

It was decided to elect delegates to the Reorganized Trades and Labor Council of Winnipeg.

The maintenance of way local is 100 per cent opposed to the O. B. U. This anouncement was made at the conclusion of an address made by A. A. Weeks, assistant general chairman last night. Wm. Varley, general organizer of the A. F. of L. of Toronto, was present last night at the meeting of the Storemen's local of the international organization of Clerks and Freight Handlers of America, and by unanimous vote of its membership this union decided to remain with the international body.

KITCHENER'S FORESIGHT

It will probably be many years before all the controversies of the war, especially those with regard to administration, are cleared up. The process will be effected through the publication of the private papers and memoranda of the statesmen responsible for the conduct of the war, after they pass to the beyond. Already details are coming out now which show the futility of popular verdicts or contemporary newspaper criticism as to matters on which at the time it is essential to public welfare that silence be preserved. Perhaps the most interesting document that has come to light of late is a memorandum written by the late Lord Kitchener in February, 1915, and published by the Yorkshire Observer," which proves him the author of the policy of "diluting" labor, which later proved of such inestimable value in increasing shell production. At that time, Lloyd George was Chancellor of the Exchequer, though some time later he became Minister of Munitions. Lord Kitchener urged that the Chancellor should use his persuasive powers to obtain a suspension of trade union rules, so as to enable unskilled labor to be introduced into the munition factories.

Lloyd George himself has usually been credited with having devised this policy which later led to the employment of millions of women, and enabled an enormous army to be raised and maintained, and factories to greatly increase munitions production at the same time. The memorandum also shows that Kitchener was not shortsighted as to the production of munitions as he has been credited with being. His main idea was to get a great army without disrupting industry, and to increase production of munitions in ratio to the growth of that army. Another evidence of his prescience is shown in this memorandum, when he states that "the war of attrition will not begin to show real effect on German military effort until 1917"—which was precisely what occurred. Had Russia merely held on, without doing much fighting, the war would have been over in 1917, for it was the release of a million or more Germans from the Russian front that enabled Germany to carry the war into 1918 and embark on the great offensives that marked the spring of last year. By the end of 1917 the Germans were aware that unless they could win by one big gamble on the Western front the game was up. Just as Lord Kitchener had foretold when the war was but six months old, attrition did begin to tell in 1917.—Toronto Saturday Night.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Apply few drops then lift sore, touchy corns off with fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. Yes, magic!

A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store, but is sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

The Same Old Question in the East.

The people and the militarists are closing for a hand-to-hand fight. The Peking government, which has been wavering between the people and the militarists will soon be forced to choose between the two. Will Peking accept the people and give up the militarists or will they satisfy the militarists instead of the people? On this will depend not only the success or failure of the Peking government, but also the future safety of China. Judging by the attitude of Peking, it appears that the militarists will be given the preference. Oppressing the students, closing newspaper offices and issuing arbitrary mandates are some of our proofs. The reported drastic measures have now begun.—The Times, Canton, China.

TENDERS FOR COAL

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Quotation for Coal, Dominion Buildings, British Columbia," will be received until 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, August 5, 1919, for the supply of coal for the public buildings throughout the province of British Columbia.

Combined specifications and form of tender can be obtained from the Purchasing Agent, Department of Public Works, Ottawa, and from the caretakers of the different Dominion Buildings.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on the forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with the conditions set forth therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 per cent of the amount of the tender. War Loan Bonds of the Dominion will also be accepted as security, or War Bonds and cheques if required to make up an odd amount.

By order,

MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the city council was held on Friday evening last. Present: The Mayor, and Aldermen Gates, Graham, Hunter and Beck.

Minutes of the meeting held on July 10th were read and adopted.

J. E. Griffiths sent in a bill for electrical inspection which took place some five years ago. There was a general kick but the council finally decided to settle.

The Gold Stripe asked for a donation of $55 to cover cost of honor roll. It was granted.

Metals, Limited, put in a tender of $79.47 for pipe for Block 2 water supply. The tender was accepted, and it was also decided to purchase 100 feet at $30.

The Medical Health Officer submitted the following report:

The Mayor and Council,
City of Fernie.

Gentlemen—The health of the city for the month of June was very good. One case of scarlet fever of a mild type was reported during the month.

The dairy of Roux Bros. was inspected and approved, also the dairy of W. Bricker, of Hosmer; the latter supplies cream only to one of the ice cream shops in the city. M. Valley at McDougall's was prohibited from selling owing to the unsanitary condition of his premises; he has since moved to other quarters which are satisfactory and is to have a well dug for a supply of water necessary for the cleanliness of his dairy and utensils.

Examination of specimens of milk for percentage of butter fat is as follows: G. Pearson, 3.30; Roux Bros. 3.40; G. Bella, 3.40; J. Kosta, 3.20; J. Anderson, 3.30; J. Smolek, 3.30.

I beg to draw your attention to the condition of the City Dump. At present the conditions there are disgraceful and a menace to the health of those who have to use the road which passes close by. I would urgently recommend that this matter should be attended to without delay. In my opinion the time has arrived when the city should have an incinerator for the care of garbage, and I would ask that the council look upon the subject as one requiring their earnest consideration.

Births registered for the city, two; deaths, two.

A large number of accounts were passed and council adjourned.

ED. BROWNE FOR SOVIET

Winnipeg, July 31.—At the preliminary trial of the eight strike leaders today the crown alleged that the One Big Union, to which a large faction of Winnipeg labor is now committed, is part of the seditious conspiracy charged against the accused, and W. A. Pritchard, chairman of the so-called "big five" of the O.B.U., and one of the defendants, was for the first time definitely connected with the prosecution. The constitution of the O.B.U. seized in a raid, was put in as an exhibit.

A. J. Andrews, K.C., crown prosecutor, examined Sergt. S. H. Waugh, of the R.N.W.M.P. secret service, Calgary, who raided the Calgary offices of Edward Browne, O. B. U. delegate. Defense counsel objected, asking if the O.B.U. were on trial. Crown counsel contended that such was the case, and Magistrate Noble said: "I thought we had threshed this out a few days ago; some of the accused were at the Calgary convention and were members of the O.B.U."

Sergt. Waugh told of a conversation with Edward Browne, Calgary, when a copy of the Western Labor News bearing a circular chart of the soviet government reached Calgary. Holding the paper in his hand Browne called Waugh to his side, witness testified, and said:

"This is the aim of the One Big Union, the soviet form of government, as we are going to have it."

Referring to strikes in sympathy with Winnipeg during the general strike here, Sergt. Waugh said it was noticeable that only those struck who were advocates of the One Big Union. He read reports of several meetings at which Mr. Pritchard spoke at which he had taken notes. Reading from these notes a part of one of Pritchard's speeches, he said:

"The government and the capitalists who own the government, whenever the workers demand their rights they call them Bolsheviks. They know that Russia succeeded in doing in 15 months what we have not been able to do in the last 15 years. They know everybody has to get down to work in Russia. They fear the position would be the same in this country if the workers are successful in their aims and so they call them Bolsheviks."

Another report said:

"It was the duty to make the government retract the Prussian hand and let them know once for all that the workers were the only power."

Referring to the postal employees, Waugh said Pritchard declared:

"It is the duty of all workers to strike and cause the government to retract its orders. They may crush us for the time being, but there will be reaction about next winter." There was a big gulf between workers and capitalists and it was merely a question of who had the right to be in power. "They hate us like snakes and would kill us if possible."

Sgt. Waugh then gave a short history of the One Big Union which had its conception at a mine workers' convention. These were chiefly Russians and Austrians led by British, Scotch, Irish and Italians, he said.

Among exhibits filed identified by the witness as having been seized in the offices of Edward Browne was a letter from Ald. W. B. Simpson, of Winnipeg, enclosing a year's subscription for a publication handled by Browne.

Dr. Collins, superintendent of the General Hospital, told of having to present a written request in person to the strike committee for permission to have some of his striking employees return to work.

Robert Snook, several times candidate for alderman, testified to the intimidating tactics of strikers; to being attacked by a large number and his wagon demolished. In his next encounter with strike sympathizers he told of successfully conducting his argument with the aid of a baseball bat.

AUTO CLUB ANNUAL MEET

The Third Annual Meeting of the Fernie District Automobile Association took place on Wednesday afternoon in the city hall, when the following officers were elected:

President: Sherwood Herchmer, Fernie.

1st Vice-President: A. K. Leitch, Jaffray.

2d Vice-President: Wm. McKay, Waldo.

Secretary: J. F. Spalding.

Treasurer: E. K. Stewart.

Executive: A. Klauer, G. F. Johnson, H. R. Huntington, W. B. Harwood, F. C. Lawe, Dr. Weldon, C. A. Klingensmith, Dr. Saunders, C. D. McNabb, Allan Wilmott, and A. Macneil.

W. H. Wilson, of Cranbrook, Secretary of the Cranbrook District Association, was present and addressed the gathering. He congratulated Fernie District on having the best roads in the Kootenays.

A resolution was again passed calling on the B.C. government to change the rule of the road.

A resolution was also passed asking the authorities to enforce the provisions of the Road Act, compelling lumber companies who are using the roads for heavy loads to put them back in good shape again, when the hauling is over.

It was decided to join with the Cranbrook and Windermere Associations in getting out a book in connection with the propaganda work in advertising the district as a tourist resort. G. F. Johnson, R. Huntington and A. Klauer were appointed a committee of three to work with the other Associations in the matter. The Secretary was also instructed to write the other Associations in this connection.

It was decided also to appoint a committee of three to meet with a similar committee from the Board of Trade and the Tourist Association to take up the matter of advertising Fernie and District as a tourist resort.

The meeting adjourned.

Word has been received that Mr. Alvin Perkins, the well known piano tuner, will be in Fernie in a few days.

It is just eleven years ago today since Fernie was wiped out by the big fire. Since then we have had many troubles—mostly of the strike variety—which have prevented the natural growth of what should be the best town in Canada, but we are still struggling along and the day will yet arrive when Fernie will come into its own.

KICKED OUT OF INTERNATIONAL

The charter of District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America has been revoked. This was the official statement made to the Calgary Herald Monday morning by International Representatives Samuel Ballantyne, Samuel Caddy and Wm. Dalrymple, who have been in Calgary during the past day or two thoroughly going into the situation which has led to the long drawn out strike of the miners in this district, and also the action that has been pursued by President Christophers and other officials of the miners in an alleged attempt to break away from international affiliation.

As the result of their inquiries they wired John L. Lewis, international president of the the United Mine Workers of America, on Monday, at headquarters at Indianapolis, as follows:

"Completed investigation today. Find district president is member of dual organization. Showed committee his membership card (O.B.U.). Vice-president and secretary-treasurer also lined up in favor of dual organization. We would advise that district charter be suspended at once. Awaiting early reply.—Samuel Ballantyne, Samuel Caddy, Wm. Dalrymple."

In reply to this telegram the following wire was received later in the day from the international president:

"Message received. Wired H. M. Christophers today as follows: 'As you are aware, the international executive board directed Messrs. Ballantyne, Dalrymple and Caddy to conduct an investigation into the existing affairs in District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America and make recommendation to the international officers as to matters of policy to be pursued in that district. This committee has been pursuing its investigations, and I am today in receipt of its recommendations that the charter of District be revoked for good and sufficient cause. Accordingly I am hereby officially informing you that effective this date (July 27) the charter of District 18 stands revoked, and the district as such ceases its affiliation with the United Mine Workers of America.'"

In the course of an interview with a representative of the Calgary Herald, the international representatives mentioned stated that it now simply means that the international will look after the affairs of the district, and that President Christophers, Secretary-Treasurer Browne and others are out of a job. They stated that they have full authority to act, and that it will practically mean a reorganization of the district of the miners who desire to work under the banner of the U.M.W.A.

They stated that the international had no desire to force itself upon the miners of Canada but the miners will be given the opportunity of retaining their membership in the U.M.W.A. at an early date, providing they were willing to carry out its laws and that the international was willing to do all in its power to assist the miners in bringing about better conditions.

"Then the present officials of the miners in this district are absolutely out of office?" the newspaper man asked.

"Absolutely out of a job," remarked Mr. Ballantyne, "and they have no authority to speak on behalf of the United Mine Workers of America at the present time."

The representatives mentioned that when they asked President Christophers what union he belonged to, he merely flung on the table his membership card in the One Big Union.

In regard to prohibition of members of the United Mine Workers of America belonging to any dual organization the international representatives referred to the rule on this particular matter. This reads:

"Any member accepting membership in the Industrial Workers of the World, the Working Class Union, or any other dual organization not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, shall be expelled from membership in the United Mine Workers of America, and no member of any such organization shall be permitted to have membership in our union unless they forfeit their membership in the dual organization immediately upon securing membership in the U. M.W.A.

Questioned in connection with the present strike the international represtatives stated that if the locals decided to remain with the International that the latter would do all in its power to effect a settlement of the strike which has been in existence now since May 24.

It is the intention of the International representatives to remain in Calgary until matters in District 18 have been readjusted.

Neither President Christophers nor Secretary-Treas. Ed. Browne appeared to be the least bit perturbed when later in the morning a representative of the Calgary Herald asked them what they had to say about the charter of District 18 being revoked. They denied that they had as yet received the telegram from Indianapolis, and did not appear to care very much whether they received it or not.

"Our district is solid," remarked the president, "and when the International representatives talk about reorganization they have something on their plate.

"We will be out to fight them for all we are worth," chipped in Secretary Browne. "We are not one little bit scared."

President Christophers stated there had been a feeling now for years against international affiliation as at present constituted. It would not only be better for the miners of this district but those throughout Canada to paddle their own canoe.

In reply to a question as to what steps woudd be adopted in face of the statement of the International men now in Calgary, President Christophers stated that the present policy committee would certainly continue to act. The members of this committee consisted of Wm. Potter, Fernie; J. Johnston, Coleman; Chas. Peacock, Lethbridge; N. D. Thatchuk, Canmore; Jack Kent, Wayne; A. Susnar, Brule, and A. Benson, Edmonton.

"What about yourselves?" the president and secretary were asked by the newspaperman.

"We are prepared to go to this district any time for re-election," said the latter; "we are not afraid and if the worst comes to the worst we can go back to the picks."

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

A gloom of sadness spread over the citizens of Elko, Baynes and Waldo, when the sad news of the death of Mrs. Joseph Roo became known. The deceased died suddenly at her residence on Saturday night, and leaves a husband and four children.

Rest on, dear Mother; your task is o'er;
Your hands for us shall toil no more.
A faithful Mother, true and kind,
No friend on earth like you we'll find.

The citizens of Elko wish to extend their deepest sympathies to the family in their sad bereavement. Over 30 automobiles followed the remains to the Baynes Lake cemetery, Monday afternoon, July 28.

Not wishing to start anything unpleasant, but the roads in the Roosville and Flagstone district are rotten, and near Flagstone they are driving through private property. The local member was appealed to by the writer some time ago re these roads and the conditions. We would just like to take a two horse, four horse or six horse team over these roads, with Premier John Oliver, Minister of Works J. . King, and Wee Alex Fisher, M.P.P., and it would sure be all over with them when I got to the place to double back. A lumberman from Alberta only today hired an auto to go to a certain mill in the Roosville valley and got five miles from Flagstone with the help of God and gasoline, and asked the driver how much farther it was, and when told he told the driver to turn round —from Alberta ,mind you, where they have nothing to build roads with. The writer was told by a prominent United States government official only last week that it was a crime to ask anybody to drive or take an auto over these roads, and since we have made the trip we have burned up our invitation cards and are going to boost for a quick change of government. It was one Richard who said "A horse, a horse, a kingdom for a horse," but what's the good of a horse if there are no roads to drive him over. Some government, believe me.

Jack Redford wearing four overseas stripes and a pleasant smile, was visiting old friends in Elko last week. Jack used to sell lace handkerchiefs and floor oilcloth for a Cagary house before he left to take a wallop at the Mad Berlin Butcher. J. W. Ireland, also of Calgary, was in this week with fine woollens for winter, also some pink satin affairs and other eyeopeners. Glennie, the Calgary tobacco man, a Chesterfield if ever there was one and a business getter every trip. Black, with Blue Ribbon and Green Tea. Runabout Ford with glass custard cups, sailing vessels, also hand painted salt and pepper shakers, busy as a pup with a feather duster, said that he never hunted for happiness with a small tooth comb, but had a special price on ten gallon crocks with or without covers. Jones, also from Calgary; well you all know what happened to Jones, and Calgary must seem like a deserted village, so many away at one time. Charlie Yandle, engineering a party of scientific fishermen with a new kind of bait, from Edmonton, well known along the Crow line, possesor of a beautiful tenor voice and sings "Till we meet again" so pleadingly that you hate like the mischief to leave him. Jack Berrington was in booking some nice business in lobster claws, shrimps and spread eagle codfish. Several other travellers that were no more use as salesmen than currycombs in Lou Foisy's garage, and the more we see of that class of travelers the more we like our dog.

The Bloomer Girls, after two weeks of fun and frolic, returned to Lethbridge, good boosters for the old historic burg of Elko, the best little town in the Crow's Nest Pass. The party was headed by Miss Shirley, Miss Straker, comedian, Miss Heaton, queen of fun makers, Misses Payne, Doe and Kensley, right hand supporters to the queen bee, and a jollier bunch of girls would be hard to find; all prime favorites and made fast friends while some people would be getting acquainted. Come again, girls, and bring your friends.

The C.P.R. is about as slow giving the general public decent accommodation on its trains as they are paying claims for lost butter shipped from Edmonton. Some of those Freigh Claim Agents should be out fighting fires where they would have to move or get their fingers burned. The writer and several others came on the westbound train a few days ago and the only vacant seats were the platform steps. Why don't the government make them hang out signs, Standing Room Only, when trains are packed like sardines in a box.

On account of the forest fires last week in the Roosville valley, all the residents got what they could and moved down to the port of Roosville. Several families moved into the school but had to move, and for a time it looked bad for the whole valley being swept out. Bill Morrison was captain of the fire fighters and did excellent work, while Fire Warden Schupe commandered all the help he could get and rustled in the grub. It was some fire.

WHERE THE INCAS LIVED

The Vilcamaya Valley, described as the prettiest in the world, abounds in architectural relics of the Incas. The best are to be seen in Pesac, Calca, Yucai, Urubamba, Ollantaytombo and Machu Pichu. The valley, where it joins the Cuzco Valley, is 11,000 feet above sea level and slopes gradually down to the Amazon. It is very narrow, in parts being only just wide enough for the river to pass through. On either side the mountains rise from 3000 to 4000 feet above the river, making a scene of unsurpassed grandeur, with glimpses of the snow-clad peaks of the main Andean chain shiloutted against the blue of the sky.

The inhabitants, who are direct descendants of the Incas, live quiet, peaceful lives, tilling the irrigated lands or tending their flocks of llamas, alpacts and sheep. On all sides the benefits of the Inca civilization are visible. In places where the river was inclined to encroach on the adjoining land it has been canalized by means of a wall made of large stones, all beautifully fitted together without binding material.

Every inch of ground is cultivated, even to within 1000 to 1500 feet above the level of the river. This is accomplished by means of terraces which are irrigated from canals cut in the solid rock. In some places it has been ascertained that the earth for these terraces was brought some thirty miles, and this was accomplished by a people who had no vehicles. The dwellings are all of adobe. Riding along the narrow road in this valley one sees strange signs outside the huts, such as a wreath of plaited marsh grass, signifying that bread is sold; or an old felt hat, that pork is sold.

PREDICTS COAL MINES SOON IN OPERATION

Calgary, July 30.—Walter McNeill, secretary of the Western Coal Operators Association, in the course of an address at the Rotary Club's meeting on Tuesday, expressed the opinion that the coal supplies would be rolling away from the mines in District 18 inside of ten days or two weeks. He said that the strike was no fault of the operators. The coal director has issued an order which the men refused to accept, preferring to go on strike two months ago.

It was presumed that the district would be reorganized under international auspices and that the mines would soon be running as union mines, but with the O.B.U. officials shorn of the power they had exercised.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

DIRECT ACTION

A very interesting struggle is at present going on in the ranks of Labor, and it is one in which the public are keenly concerned. It is the outcome of a movement which antedates the Winnipeg strike, for it was prior to that time that the One Big Union, the origin of which is widely known, first came into the limelight. Summarized in two words, the One Big Union means "direct action," and the movement has a tendency, if not a puissant purpose, to break up trades unionism as all understand that organization. One Big Unionism is extreme radicalism, and it is this which the skilled workers are endeavoring to prevent from intruding itself as a disruptive force into the movement which has already won so many concessions for Labor.

Some indication of what direct action imples can be gathered from a decision recently reached by a Labor Party conference in Great Britain. A resolution was passed there demanding a complete reversal of the Allies' policy in Russia. The resolution went farther than this, for it instructed the executive to devise means with a view to effective action being taken to enforce demands "by the unreserved use of political and industrial power." This, too, is the tenet of the One Big Unionists. It is not the opinion of the vast majority of the working classes but it is part of a campaign which has been going on for some time. Some conception of the views of ultra-radicalism may be gathered from the remarks of one delegate in the conference to which we have allueded, who spoke of the government as having thrown down a challnge to British Labor in supporting the agreed policy of the Allies in Russia. The government, of course, was chaellenging nobody; it was simply doing what it had a right to do by virtue of authority and by the considered opinions of the leaders concerned. What it did would have been sanctioned by parliament at any time. If the supporters of direct action are right in their creed, then they could at any time challenge the government, and not only the government, but parliament, to which the government is responsible. Parliament represents the nation, so it would be the nation that would be threatened. In other words, the nation is asked to obey a small and irresponsible section of the community, for it has been clearly shown that the exponents of direct action do not represent the majority of the workers.

Advocates of direct action have their opportunity at the polls, and have always had it there, but they have never been able to elect a representative to parliament in this country. In Britain the Lloyd George government was returned to power with the express purpose of representing the nation at the Peace Conference. No section of the community has the right to attempt to impose its will in contradistinction to any decision reached at the common council table of the Allies. The Labor Party, or any other party, is exercising its legitimate function in critizing a government or in censuring its policy, but no section of that party has the right, nor never will have, of holding the whole nation to ransom to enforce its decrees. When Labor is co-ordinated, and when it has a settled policy so that it represents the bulk of the electorate, it will have no need for direct action, for then it will be the government in power and can choose what policy it will. This is the viewpoint taken by the great majority of workingmen, who are impatient at the reactionaries in their midst. They do not claim and never have claimed the right to run the government until such time as the people give them the verdict at the polls. That is why direct action, when attempted by an infinitesimal portion of the community, will always be resisted with the entire strength of the union, and so it must fail ignobly whenever it is essayed.—Colonist.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

SEDITION TRIAL AT WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, July 28.—That Winnipeg was practically under the control of the strike committee from June 10 to June 20 was the sworn statement of Mayor Chas. G. Gray at the preliminary trial today of eight Labor leaders held for seditious conspiracy.

The salient points of his evidence were that the city was in control of the strike committee at certain times during the strike; that R. B. Russell, representing the metal trades council, had admitted earlier in the strike that the iron masters were willing to bargain on a collective basis; that Alderman John Queen, one of the defendants, had declared against constituted authority in a committee meeting at the city hall. His evidence also gave facts in conditions in Winnipeg under the strike regime.

He told of a meeting of the city council food committee in which a delegation from the strike committee offered to supply food to citizens by a card ration system controlled from the labor temple. He said he declared the citizens must be fed and that he, representing constituted authority, would see that this was done at all cost.

"Alderman Queen got up," he said, and said, 'I don't want to hear constituted authority. Sit down.'"

The mayor also stated during his evidence that R. B. Russell had declared at a meeting of the city council that the police were left on the street by permission of the strike committee and that the committee might call them out any time.

Mayor Gray: "The control of police was out of the city's hands."

Mayor Gray: "That's a fact."

Magistrate Noble: "The inference is plain."

Mayor Gray: "The police made the same claim at a meeting of the police commission which I attended."

LIFE IN PETROGRAD

Paris during the time of the Red Terror could not compare with the Petrograd of today. The London Times has secured a picture of conditions there from "an informant of great trustworthiness and expeience." and the circumstantiality of what he has to tell leaves no doubt of the truth of his statement, especially when the information he has is borne out by the unanimous opinion of all those who have been in Petrograd in recent times. For some time past the Bolsheviki have been expecting an attack on the city, and all the civil population, with the exception of some 40,0000 has been evacuated. The regime of terror there is so strenuous that nobody speaks in the streets, trains and public places for fear of being overheard by informers. Soldiers especially avoid speaking to one another. Social life has practicall ceased. A Communist sentry is stationed at the entry to every home, and all visitors must establish their identity and explain their intentions. If their explanations are unsatisfactory they are taken to the Fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul and shot down by machine gun detachments, the bodies being thrown into the Neva. All foreigners in Petrograd have long ago been arrested and their money confiscated. Fear is the rampant feeling throughout the city, even the commissaries living in trains and sleeping cars ready for instant flight.

Some extraordinary details of the cost of living are given. Here is a list giving the price in roubles of various commodities: Butter, per pound, 20; bread, per pound, 45 to 50; potatoes, per pound, 20; meat, per pound, 90 to 100; a hundred cigarettes, 150; a box of matches, 8; second-hand boots, per pair 1500 to 2000; and athird hand lounge suit, 3000 to 4000. Sugar, tea and coffee are unobtainable. The informant alluded to says the people go about in rags, and, because wood is unobtainable, furniture is broken up for cooking purposes. He points out that a little while ago the universal question in Petrograd was: "Will the Allies give food if they take the city?" Now, since things have reached the condition described, the people have given up hope. Petrograd, and the memories of the present times in the city, will remain an eternal monument to Bolshevism, which is massacring a nation.

V. C. MAN MUST SERVE TERM IN JAIL

Seattle, July 29. — A wearer of Great Britain's most coveted war decoration, the Victoria Cross, D. M. Delmas, late sergeant-major in the British army, is in jail here awaiting his second return to the state penitentiary at Huntsville, Texas, to serve two years and nine months remaining of a five year sentence meted out because of his having accepted deposits for the International Bank and Trust Co. of San Angelo, when the bank was insolvent.

Delmas escaped from Huntsville prison in 1912, joined the British army, fought until wounded and was dicharged in 1916. Returning to San Francisco to visit friends, he was taken back to Texas in 1917, broke jail again and once more served the Union Jack at the front. In Seattle he was recognized by a police officer from a photograph, arrested and held for the Huntsville authorities.

PRESS COMMENT

An Apostate Bolshevik

Lenine is an aristocrat — is an hereditary nobleman of a family which boasts greater antiquity than the Romanoffs. From the time he attended the university at Kazan to the present he has never put in a day at manual work. In Russia he was a bureaucrat, and as an emigre, when Germany was not furnishing money, lived on collections. The Lenine plan is simple—as simple as "me and my wife, my son John and his wife; us four and no more." Leninism ise tyranny in a gross and undecorated form. The high priest of the cult has about the same feeling for Gorky, whom he fears to suppress as the Czar had for Tolstoy. The methods toward the non-conspicuous are those of Stolypin. The Red Guard and the Black Hundred are largely the same men. Plehve's secret police work for a new boss—that's all. A new jargon is used to exploit a very old thing—a regime that does not differ much from the Pharoah regime that Israel fled from.—New York Tribune.

A New Task For Nature

Will the man of a few million years hence develop eyes on the top of his mental knob? Or will one of the eyes which he already possesses take an upshoot, bringing the heavens into full view, while the other retains its normal field of vision? Scientists have told us that organs of animals adjust themselves to new situations. They may even be brought into existence to fill a need. Butterflies of the tropics are of brilliant hues not for the delight of man, but because, through their brilliance, they obtain a certain measure of concealment in their environment of varicolored foliage. The appendix in the human body probably performed some service for Adam, but today it has run out of a job and nature has hung out a sign, "No loafing allowed!" Surely nature, which has been so good to man up to this time, will not leave him open to the ravages of motor cars from all sides and airplanes from above. What would you do if you were Nature? Milwaukee Journal.

RECOLLECTIONS OF A STRANGE CONTROVERSY

An item which appeared on June 27th, in the very interesting department, "Fifty Years Ago To-day," which has long been a regular feature of the Quebec Telegraph, illustrate the truth that in some respects we have travelled a long way in half a century. In June, 1869, the Presbyterian Synod met at Hamilton, Ont., just as it did this year, and one of the matters taken up was a reference from the Montreal Presbytery setting forth that a church in that city, of which Rev. Dr. Irwin was minister, had been guilty of insubordination, by introducing an organ and using it in its services. It was assumed that the Synod of the previous year (1868) had placed the ban on the use of the organ in churches, but Rev. Dr. Irwin contended that it had really decided nothing, having left a report condemning that instrument on the table, unrejected, but, on the other hand, unadopted.—Toronto Saturday Night.

TWO COUNTY COURT CASES

In the County Judge's Criminal Court this week two cases were disposed of, viz., Rex vs. Stocks, charged with incest, and Rex vs. Colosino, charged with wounding Scarpino in a fight that occurred on the night of July 19. In connection with the Stocks case the trial lasted practically two days. No evidence was adduced by the defendant and His Honor, Judge Thompson, after hearing the evidence for the prosecution, recalled Dr. Corwan in connection with certain medical testimony and finally found that the evidence did not warrant a conviction and accordingly discharged the accused. A. Macneil appeared for the crown, while Donald Mitchell, recently called to the Bar of this province, acted for the accused.

Colosino pleaded guilty to the amended charge of assault, and representations made to the court indicated that the assault had first been made upon him and in the subsequent melee that followed he had drawn a pocket knife and slashed all and sundry. His Honor severely reprimanded the prisoner, stating that in his experience, with nationalities who frequently resort to using the knife when brawls occur, that these occurrences were retarded only by meting out severe gaol sentences. However, in the present case he considered that there should also have been a charge of assault laid against Scarpino, the complainant, and in view of the circumstances a fine of $150 was imposed, together with liquidation of damages in the sum of $175 for clothing, etc., destroyed, together with all costs of the trial and preliminary hearing.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

No further news of the proposed flight of Capt. Hall, who was supposed to stop over in Fernie, has yet been received. It is supposed that the smoke from the bush fires caused him to change his mind.

Jimmy Osborne informs us that the Fairy Creek bridge is almost completed and that the road will be open in a few days. This will be good news to autoists as the old road around McDougall's mill is certainly in terrible shape.

When Browne wires the Fernie Local that the whole district is solid behind them, we wonder if they are not just about as solid as the Fernie Union was at its last meeting, when it instructed Christophers to make an agreement in the name of the United Mine Workers, P.D.Q.

A woman named Mrs. Adamski, of Natal, attempted suicide this morning by jumping off the Elk River bridge at that town. Some men, however, who were close at hand, rescued her before it was too late. No information as to the cause of the rash act has yet been received by the provincial police.

Secretary Ed. Browne and President Christophers, speaking of the fight between the International and the O.B.U., says that "if the worst comes to the worst they can go back to their picks." They seem to think that about the worst thing a man can do is work. We suppose that after a man has held down one of those easy jobs for a while, work looks mighty tough.

Sentences of six months each were conferred upon two of our local hotelkeepers on Monday last. The balance of the cases were remanded for a few days. These cases all are results of the cases against bartenders who were found guilty of selling liquor contrary to the statute regulating the liquor traffic, and who were sentenced to terms in prison. A. Macneil and S. Herchmer are defending in all these cases, and appeals will be taken in each case. Chief Inspector Owen conducted the prosecution successfully against the combined legal ability of the two defending attorneys, and the trials just closed were battles to a finish.

AEROPLANE TO PASS THIS WAY

Vancouver, July 31.—Organized by the Vancouver World and the Aerial League of Canada; acting in conjunction with the Calgary Herald and the Lethbridge Herald, the first attempt to fly across the Rockies will be made next Monday by Capt. E. C. Hoy, D.F.C., who leaving this city early in the morning hopes to effect a landing at Calgary before dark the same evening.

Capt. Hoy will fly alone in order that he may carry enough gasoline to see his machine through the long flight across the mountains which must be accomplished without recourse to supply stations, none being available.

Leaving at daybreak Capt. Hoy will make a non-stop flight to Vernon, replenish his tanks and proceed via Grand Forks to Cranbrook and from Cranbrook to Lethbridge and on to Calgary. He will use a brand new aeroplane, one of the Canadian training plane type, the gift of the Ericson Aeroplane Co., Ltd., Toronto, which had been offered as a prize for the aerial race at Gymkhama held here May 24. It will be fitted with additional tank to provide an ample supply of fuel and obviate necessity of a forced landing.

The object of the flight is to demonstrate to the federal government that aerial mail service may be established with advantage between Vancouver and Calgary in order that time may be saved in carrying fast mails. Ultimately, of course, the Vancouver-Calgary service would form the most westerly link in an aerial mail route across the continent, bringing Ottawa within 48 hours of Vancouver and setting forward closing of Oriental mails in London several days.

LIQUOR INQUIRY FELL DOWN

The anouncement has been made in Victoria, B.C., that the Clement liquor inquiry will not be resumed. Early in the present year, Mr. Justice Clement, of the B. C. Supreme Court, was commissioned by the provincial government to make a full inquiryq into the illegal importation of liquor into British Columbia which had been going on for some time and which came to light over the exposure of the misconduct of the former prohibition commissioner, W. C. Findlay. Just when the Clement probe was getting extremely interesting in the direction of indicating some of the confederates of Finley in his carload operations, Chief Justice Hunter issued a writ of prohibition, holding that the inquiry was illegal. Attorney General Farris promised to secure a special sitting of the Court of Appeals to sit on the Hunter dictum, but on one excuse or another, nothing was done in this direction. The Court of Appeal met in regular spring session in April, and finally handed down a judgment quashing the Hunter injunction. The latter had served the purpose, however, because the delay of several months gave all and sundry lots of chance to either destroy evidence or get out of the province.

After the Court of Appeal had dealt with the matter, some of the prohibition leaders started to agitate for a resumption of the Clement inquiry. Their efforts failed to get any response at Victoria. Attorney General Farris went away to England a few weeks ago, and will be away for some time. Justice Clement has left for his summer vacation, and Premier Oliver is credited with saying that to continue the inquiry now would serve no good purpose. This view is generally held. Findlay is serving two years in the penitentiary and the liquor he imported illegally has probably been consumed long ago.—Toronto Saturday Night.

THE MARVELS OF MILK

Milk and eggs occupy a unique position among common articles of diet, we are told by Dr. Percy G. Stiles, professor of physiology in the Harvard Medical School. The fitness of most foods may be challenged, but these are of nature's own providing. It is self-evident, says Prof. Stiles, writing in the Forecast, that an egg contains all that is needed for the development of a chick and that milk can be transmuted into the various tissues of a growing animal. These, he asserts, would be justifiable inferences from the facts of life, and confirmation for them was long ago furnished from the laboratory. To quote and condense his article:

"The perfect adaptation of milk to its nutritional purpose has been demonstrated in connection with its mineral content. Milk may be dried, completely burned, and then the residual ash may be analyzed. In a parallel fashion the body of a young animal may be cremated and the mineral constituents determined. The correspondence is surprising. Soda, lime, potash, and magnesia—the proportions of all these are nearly identical in the milk and in the suckling. The same is true of the phosphates and chlorides. When, on the other hand, we compare the inorganic residues of milk and of blood, for a given species, we find no agreement whatever. We are led to wonder at the working of the cells of the mammary gland. As the production of milk goes on these cells are dependent upon the blood for their raw material. But they do not transmit to the milk the soluble salts of the blood by a simple filtration; they exercise a most remarkable selective power.

"It is not wholly far-fetched to say that the body which is to be exists in solution in milk. Milk, like faith, is 'the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.' Since the tissues to be elaborated are composed largely of proteins, especial interest attaches to the nitrogenous compounds in milk. Comparison of milks provided for the nourishment of animals of different kinds has disclosed the fact that the protein is always abundant in species having a rapid rate of growth. The human infant takes six months to double its weight at birth. A calf accomplishes this doubling in a much shorter time and, in harmony with this, cow's milk carries a decidedly higher percentage of protein.

"It is probably fair to claim that a food specialized to promote growth will be found valuable in convalescence. Fasting, whether it is voluntary or enforced by illness, makes a draft upon the tissues including those which are active as well as adipose. The renewal of the wasted organs must be a process closely resembling their original development years before. Milk, which served so well in the former case, should be found almost equally suitable in the later emergency. In a single respect it is known to be deficient: It is very poor in iron. The reason this short-coming does not make itself felt in infancy is that the child is born with a store of iron which will suffice for some months without additions."

German Prejudice

A people such as the German people can rise from poverty through hard work. They can one day shake off the foreign yoke, whether it is military, political or economic. German territory and lost Germans can be recovered by fighting for them.

FRIENDS THOUGHT HE WOULD DIE

MR. ROBERT NEWTON.

Little Bras d'Or, C.B.

"I was a terrible sufferer from Dyspepsia and Constipation for years. I had pain after eating, belching gas, constant headaches, and did not sleep well at night. I lost so much weight — going from 185 pounds to 146 pounds—that I became alarmed and saw several doctors who, however, did me no good. Finally, a friend told me to try 'Fruit-a-tives'.

In a week, there was improvement. The constipation was corrected; and soon I was free of pain, headaches and that miserable feeling that accompanies Dyspepsia. I continued to take this splendid fruit medicine and now I am well, strong and vigorous". ROBERT NEWTON.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

COAL CREEK NOTES

Visitors still flock up to this camp to take in the scenery around the "Garden City of the West."

Disciples of Isaac Walton, who have been away during the past week, returned with beautiful samples of "scentialus fontenalis."

Loud and long discussions on the why and wherefore of the present chatotic state of affairs among the workers can be heard every day.

Harry Miard returned from the coast, where he has been attending to his duties in his new official capacity.

Joe Monette arrived back in camp after a long absence overseas, during which he has been reported as killed on several occasions.

All roads will lead to Victoria park on Saturday, Aug. 9, when the sports will be held. It is to be hoped the people of Fernie will reciprocate the work and efforts of the Creekites on the Peace Celebration in Fernie. While we are not yet in possession of full details, rumor has it that Old Mark and others contemplate an aerial race. Sure some humdinger. Come in crowds and don't forget your purses.

Tickets are now on sale for the grand concert to be held in the Grand theatre on Friday, Aug. 8, in aid of the Catholic church. The entire program will be given by the Fernie Veterans' Concert Party. All who have heard this aggregation are assured of a good time. See small bills.

All members are requested to attend a special general meeting of the G.W.V.A., at the Club Rooms, Fernie, B.C., on Sunday, August 3rd, at 2.45 p.m. sharp. Business important.

We are asked to inform the local members of the Loyal Order of Moose that owing to having to vacate the present club room at the Miners Hall, commencing Monday, Aug. 4th, all meetings will be held in Ingram's hall. Lodge meets at 8 p.m. sharp Monday evenings.

Quite a number of Creekites took in the Harvey Minstrel show in Fernie on Tuesday evening.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Mrs. J. L. Gates is holidaying in Seattle.

Con. Dryden, of Waldo, was in the city on Tuesday.

Mrs. R. M. Young and children are visiting at Wasa.

J. A. Broley, of Flagstone, was in the city yesterday.

H. F. McLean, who has been ill for two weeks, is able to be around again.

R. W. Wood returned this week from a month's stay at the Bush Mines.

Pte. Bob Minton left on Tuesday for Vancouver to receive his discharge.

W. Gladstone, of Winnipeg, is the guest of his brother-in-law, Thos. Prentice.

Born—In Fernie, on Wednesday, July 30, the wife of A. D. Campbell, of a son.

Miss E. L. C. Yolland, of the government office staff, is holidaying in Vancouver.

Mrs. R. J. Black and children are the guests of her sister-in-law, Mrs. G. Johnston.

Born—At Fernie General Hospital, on 29th July, to Mr. and Mrs. Thomson Ogg, a son.

Mrs. R. Reading and her daughter Sybil are visiting old friends in Fernie for a few days.

Mrs. Thos. Prentice returned on Wednesday from a six weeks' visit with friends in Vancouver.

Mrs. A. J. Moffatt expects to leave in a few days for England, where she will visit for several months.

The bush fires still continue to rage around Crow's Nest. In the south country they have pretty well burned themselves out.

W. J. Watmough, of the 13th Field Ambulance, formerly of the Trites-Wood Co. staff, arrived back from overseas yesterday.

The M. F. & M. train crew has been laid off. The service to Coal Creek is being handled by the new passenger motor car.

Ex-Constable King, of Bull River, who has just returned from overseas, was in town on Wednesday with Geo. Thrasher, of that town.

A whole train load of sheep passed through Fernie yesterday on the way to the Elko country, where they will pasture for several months.

The Automobile Club gave a very pleasant dance in Victoria Hall on Wednesday evening. A large number of visitors from out of town attended.

Members of the Fernie District Rod and Gun Club will lay information against anyone violating the fish laws. The smallest to be taken is 8 inches and 25 for any one day.

The golf links are being badly worried these days by a series of matches between M. A. Kastner and Jim Corbett. Talk about your Kilkenny cats—they have them all cheated.

Sandy Macneil and Charlie McNabb left last evening for Ottawa, where they will take in the Liberal convention. Between the two of them they ought to be able to put the convention on the rocks right.

Capt. John Angus McDonald, of Blairmore, was in the city yesterday after an absence of over four years. Johnny is a well known old timer here and his many friends are glad to welcome him back. He was with the 10th overseas.

The Harvey Minstrels played to a crowded house on Tuesday evening. That troupe are certainly good singers but they are not strong on baseball. The local team cleaned them up with a score of 11 to 5 at the ball park in the afternoon.

There is quite a lot of talk going around town about the proposed construction of the Calgary-Fernie railway. Whether these rumors are authentic or not it is hard to say, but unless the company holding the charter makes some move very shortly it will be cancelled.

The editor of the District Ledger, one Lawson by name, in referring to our criticism of the Provincial government in not employing a large fire patrol, says that the Free Press in one of its usual skunklike attacks goes after the fire wardens. That gutter snipe does not seem to have a memory that lasts longer than a minute or he would remember the crow which he was compelled to eat after his last dirty attack on the editor of the Free Press. Experience never seems to perculate through some folks' ivory.

Benny Wallace will leave for Pincher Creek shortly.

Furniture For Sale—Mrs. Walter Bergman, 36 Victoria Ave. A1-2

Nurse Watkins returned yesterday, after spending a few week's holiday at her home in Alberta.

L. P. Wood, of the Home Bank staff, returned on Sunday from a holiday trip to the coast.

Blueberries are reported to be very plentiful this year. The dry weather is killing the raspberry crop.

Nurse Binkley leaves tonight for Calgary and Edmonton where she will spend a few weeks holidaying.

There are quite a number of automobilists who complain of the action of two or three drivers who are always trying to hog the road. Some of these road hogs with a slow car will hold the road and make a fast car take the dust for miles. This is strictly against the law and an example should be made of one or two of these drivers. Then there is the driver who will stay almost in the centre of the road when meeting a car, making the other man get out in the ditch. The names of these road hogs should be published. Perhaps if they had a little publicity they would be a little more courteous.

KICKED FROM INTERNATIONAL

Calgary, July 29.—Formal demand has now been made by the International representatives of the United Mine Workers of America at present in Calgary for the district office premises, papers, documents and monies to be handed over. So far this has not been done by P. Christophers or the secretary-treasurer, Ed. Browne, who have replied that the policy committee is meeting on Thursday next, when the matter will be discussed.

It was noticeable, however, that the card bearing the name of the United Mine Workers of America had been removed from the door of the office in the Judge Travis building on Tuesday morning. When this was mentioned to Secretary Browne, he merely remarked that it must have been removed by the keeper of the building or perhaps had been blown away.

The letter that was sent to the late officials of the district by the international representatives read:

"We, as the commission appointed by the International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America, with authority to investigate into conditions of District 18, and clothed with authority to take such action as we deem necessary to meet the situation, and as the charter of District 18 has now been revoked, on behalf of the International organization of the United Mine Workers of America, we have to inform you that we now take charge of the affairs of the United Mine Workers in this territory. We demand that we be given immediate possession of all property, including books, records and monies that may be in your charge, and request that you at once vacate such office as you may have held in District 18 of the United Mine Workers of America and cease to do any further business for the United Mine Workers of America."

In reply to this letter a communication jointly signed by President P. M. Christophers, A. McFegan, vice-president and Ed. Browne, secretary-treasurer, was received by the International men:

"In reply to yours of even date, we beg to say that we are calling a meeting of the executive board and policy committee of this district into session.. Your request that you be handed over the property of the district will be placed before them, and should they so decide, all monies, books, records and other property of the district will be turned over to you."

In reply to a query, the International officers stated that this letter was not at all satisfactory and that they would insist upon their orders being carried out at once.

"As far as outside officers are concerned," they stated, "they have nothing to do with the thing, and we do not recognize the policy committee as far as the district is concerned."

It was pointed out by these International officials that as a matter of fact they had already taken over the affairs of the miners of District 18, and one of them, Samuel Ballantyne, stated that Mr. Christophers had intimated to him that he would recommend to the policy committee that they fall in line with the request that had been made as to the handing over of all the documents and so forth.

When asked what steps had been taken as far as reorganization was concerned, the International representative stated that they had forwarded the following circular to all locals in the district:

To the officers and members of all local unions of the United Mine Workers of America:—

Greetings:—

The international executive board of the United Mine Workers of America, was called together in Indianapolis, Indiana, July 10, 1919, to take up several matters seriously affecting the welfare of our organization. At this meeting the members of the board were informed of the action taken by the officers and members of District No. 18 relative to a referendum vote having taken place on the question of becoming members of the One Big Union and that the membership had voted in favor of becoming members of that Dual Organization.

The international executive board decided to send a commission to District No. 18 to investigate the true status of affairs and the commission to have full power to act as their judgment may dictate to be to the best interests of the membership of District No. 18 and to our organization in general. In accordance with this action of the International executive board the commission arrived in Calgary and interviewed Mr. Christophers and the other resident officers of District 18, and Mr. Christophers informed the commission that he was a member of the One Big Union, and showed his membership card to the commission. The other resident officers declared their position in this respect, which made it necessary for the commission to take steps to stop the officers of District No. 18 from masquerading as officials of the United Mine Workers organization, while holding membership in the O.B.U. The commission recommended to the international president that the charter be revoked.

A reply was received from the International president to the effect that he had acted upon the recommendation and the charter of District No. 18 was revoked.

We herewith quote the last 12 lines of article 14, section 2, of the International constitution, and which reads as follows:

"Any member accepting membership in the Industrial Workers of the World, the Working Class Union, or any other dual organization not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, shall be expelled from membership in the United Mine Workers of America; and no members of any such organization shall be permitted to have membership in our union unless they forfeit their membership in the dual organization immediately upon securing membership in the United Mine Workers of America."

The part of the constitution quoted above made it mandatory for the International Union to revoke the charter of District 18, and Mr. Christophers has been notified of this action.

The commission decided that local unions formerly within the jurisdiction of District No. 18 should have the opportunity of severing their connection with the One Big Union, and continue their membership with the United Mine Workers of America. Any local union or members desiring to take advantage of this opportunity will notify the commission at the above address.

The International Union in making this offer, does not want it understood that it is forcing itself upon the coal miners in this territory. It has no selfish purpose to serve, either financially or otherwise, as the records will prove that four times more money was sent into Canada than was paid to the International Union. Local unions are now called upon to decide if they want to be United Mine Workers and live up to its laws. If so, you are welcome. If the response to this call shows that the miners of this territory are loyal to our union, then the International Union will protect its members in this field as far as it lies in its power to do so.

The commission was also advised of the fact that a strike was in progress in District No. 18, which was the outcome of differences concerning order 124, issued by the coal commissioner. This matter will be attended to by the United Uine Workers, after the commission is satisfied that you desire to do business as United Mine Workers.

In conclusion we desire to say that any local union of the United Mine Workers who desire any further information concerning the present state of affairs, that we will be at your disposal.

Commission representing the International Union of the United Mine Workers of America:

Samuel Ballantyne.
Samuel Caddy.
William Dalrymple.

What purpose will be served by calling the policy committee together is not clear inasmuch as the charter of the district has been definitely revoked and as the international officials have the full authority of headquarters to adjust matters. "They ceased to be officials of the United Mine Workers of America when the charter was suspended," was the way one of the international men referred to the policy committee.

The International representatives had a long conference Tuesday morning with Coal Commissioner Armstrong. This was of a private nature and nothing in connection with it was given out for publication. From oher sources, however, the opinion was expressed that there was every likelihood of the strike being settled at an early date.

In this connection it was rumored that some of the mines purposed reopening in the course of the next day or two. When asked if he had any information as to this Secretary Browne stated that he would not be surprised if the rumor were true, as several of the operators were anxious to recommence business. On the other hand it was stated in other quarters that those who are most anxious for work to be resumed were the miners themselves.

GRANBY MAY OPERATE AT GRAND FORKS

Grand Forks Sun: There appears to be an excellent prospect for the Granby smelter in this city to resume operations for a short time at least. When the smelter shut down it did so owing to the shortage of coke. It is now stated by officials of the company that there is yet 50.000 tons of good ore more in the mine, which the company would like to run through the smelter. To do this would keep a couple of furnaces in operation for about two months. It is not likely that any more ore than the above amount would be treated. The resumption of operations of the smelter is said to be contingent on the condition of the labor market when coke becomes available.

ONLY MEMORY OF TROUBLE IS LEFT

Mrs. Hatlem Was All Rundown For Many Years — Tanlac Brought Relief

"Tanlac has done me so much good that I am feeling more like myself than for a long, long time," said Mrs. Andrew Hatlem, of 3845 221-2 avenue, South, Minneapolis, Minn., to a Tanlac representative, the other day.

"My trouble was a generally run down condition," continued Mrs. Hatlem, "and I had been suffering for a good many years. I had a very poor appetite and I never felt like eating any more than just enough to keep me alive and it just looked like the little I did eat soured and formed gas and this gas pressed so against my heart that I sometimes had difficulty in breathing. I was troubled with terrible headaches, too, and at times they were so bad that it just felt like my head would split and I had aches and pains all over my body and was so weak and in so much misery sometimes that I just dragged around the house at my work. I also suffered a great deal from constipation and dizzy spells and felt so tired and restless at night that I would simply lie awake for hours at a time not able to sleep a wink and my nerves were in a bad condition, too. I took a lot of medicine and treatments for my trouble, but nothing I did or took seemed to help me one bit until I began taking Tanlac.

"I had read about Tanlac and how it was helping others, so I decided to try it myself and I am certainly glad I did, because it began to help me almost from the beginning. My appetite got better and I commenced to pick up strength and my whole system seemed to be benefitted and I kept on improving right along until now I have a fine appetite and can eat just anything I want and I never have a particle of trouble with gas any more. All I have of those miserable headaches is just a memory of them and those dizzy spells have left me entirely and I can sleep just like a little child the whole night through and am feeling so good every way now that I can do all my own housework and never feel any more tired than a person naturally would under the same circumstances. Tanlac certainly has helped me a lot and I am glad to recommend it to others for that reason."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. ARMY PUT CANADA ON FRENCH MAP

That business men in France are turning their attention to Canada as a source of supply more than before the war is emphasized in the information reaching the Canadian Trade Commission. It appears that the participation of Canadian troops, many of them with a knowledge of French, has stimulated interest, and has been, so to speak, an advertising force for Dominion trade. A typical instance is quoted by the Commissioner General for Canada in France, who in describing the requirements of a large importing house says: "I sincerely believe that much sentiment exists here in France from the many interviews I have had and continue to have with men of all sorts—business, commercial and professional. I believe that the sentiment exists that purchases would be much preferable from Canada than from the United States. There is a great deal of love for Canada shown and Canada has become known from the many lines of endeavor undertaken by the Canadian army."

CAPITAL NEEDED TO KEEP DOWN COST OF LIVING

It is an inspiration to know that the War Savings work, in both the United Kingdom and the Dominion, is conducted with the high purpose of educating the public in the matter of Thrift. This presents an almost insuperable difficulty, because there is no definite test as to the effectiveness of educational work. The education of the public is a very slow process. To educate your citizens and ours to save first and spend afterwards is an even slower process. Always there has to be faced that large group of men who are accustomed to adjudge undertakings on the basis of money return. In the Thrift movement this cannot be done. One might as well endeavor to judge the value of a university by the earning powers of its students six months after graduation.

And so your Savings Organization and our Savings Organization must see the road clear ahead and must keep to the roadway regardless of distracting forces. We must recognize that the world has never experienced such a need for capital as at present; that if capital is not secured we shall have a stifled industry and the evil results of unemployment; that if capital is secured it must come from one or another of two sources, namely, from credit inflation or from savings; that if credit inflation continues we shall have a continuously mounting cost of living with its dangerous consequences.

Thus it is manifest that there is only one safe course before us, namely: to increase the capital of the world by widening the margin between production and consumption; that is, by increasing the sum total of saving. If I did not believe this to be the most important undertaking before the people of our nation, I should consider this work not worthy of my own efforts nor the efforts of those thousands of others who are associated with this movement.

PARTY POLITICS

Acrimony is again growing in party politics in Eastern Canada, being carefully nurtured by both men and newspapers to whom, through the years, and despite any experiences that have been gleaned, "the clouds and whirlwinds of the political hurricane are the atmosphere of life." Among those out of power there is a keen searching about for a platform and strenuous efforts are being made to sound the public mind. Those in power are attempting to discredit the bona fides of their opponents, an attitude as old and as threadbar as some of the policies which seemingly bulk so largely in the minds of politicians. What neither the Ins nor the Outs have fully realized up to the present is that the great mass of the people are heartily sick of party politics, of patronage, and of made-to-order policies. They want neither radicalism nor ultra-Conservatism, but simply legislation to meet present-day needs and such as wil lmake the country prosperous. Truth to tell, there is a growing wave of feeling against too much paternalism in government which has a tendency to sap the liberties of the people. There is also hostility being aroused against class legislation.

Fined down, there are only two questions of outstanding moment upon which the country is divided today. One is the Tariff and the other is Prohibition. By common consent the latter is regarded as a matter for provincial self-determination, so that from a federal standpoint the Tariff issue dwarfs all others. About it there are mixed feelings. There are high Protectionists, low Protectionists, and Free Traders. All three are found in the ranks of both Liberal and Conservative parties. They are intermixed in the Unionists, while the farmers on the prairies are by no means a unit on what they want in the matter of the Tariff. It is the Tariff question that will be the burning issue before the Liberal convention to be held at Ottawa next month, where efforts will be made to devise such a policy for the future that the support of the new Farmers' Party may be secured by the Liberals. In the mentime the Unionist Party which is in power is pledged to make no drastic changes in the Tariff before another election. It is not at all clear, especially through the experience of the war and the fact that Germany is again becoming a competitor in the world market, that any changes are wanted but the farmers of the prairies think they should have a measure of Free Trade.

What the people of Canada as a whole are thinking most of at the present time is what can be done to reduce the cost of living. By adopting the grain growers' policy of reducing or abolishing the tariff, certain redulctions of food costs will take place but to offset these there must be increases in taxation to meet the deficit in revenue. As well, Free Trade is certain to promote unemployment in the industrial plants of the country, and unemployment is the breath of life to radical agitators. The chief problem before the country is reconstruction, which means concentrated effort to take advantage of the tremendous opportunities presented by the new markets for our products created by the Great War. This problem will be rendered more difficult to solve if Canada is to be plunged once more into the throes of political animosities. Victory in Peace, no less than in war, is certain with consolidated effort. The question the people are asking is, Are we to have victory?—Vernon News.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—only an acid imitation.

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in Canada by a Canadian Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger sized "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada), of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

WESTERN LABOR WAS MISLED

A large sized cleavage exists in Vancouver labor circles as the result of the recent general strike of inglorious memory. That four weeks farce which was injurious chiefly to the strikers was led by a strike committee most of whom are supporters of the One Big Union idea. After the Calgary convention of several months ago, which was largely engineered from the Coast City, the One Big Union was boomed very busily on the coast and many unions went over to the new banner. Part of the program was to establish a form of industrial Soviet Control all over Western Canada and thousands of fairly conservative members of organized labor fell in with the idea. The collapse of the strikes in Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver, as well as smaller centres, started a counter movement back to the fold of international affiliation. In Vancouver a petition is being circulated among the unions asking the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress and the American Federation of Labor to rescind the charter of the Vancouver Trades and Labor Council on the ground that it has formally espoused the One Big Union cause, and to grant a new charter to the unions which have remained loyal to their old affiliations. Point was given to the subject by the Coughlan shipyards after the general strike refusing to take back any workmen who were not in good standing with their internationals. Not only these victims, but many others, are asking what has the One Big Union done for them except lead them into trouble?

Take the Vancouver situation as an example. In that city the outside civic employees were compelled to go back as new men, forfeiting their usual fortnight's vacation with pay. The longshoremen, one of the most truculent labor unions on the coast, had to go back without securing the dismissal of the returned soldiers who had acted as stevedores during the strike. The Theatrical Federation and many other unions have declared they are through with Labor Temple control. The civic employees, consisting of the inside and outside civic staffs, the policemen and the firemen are discussing a Civic Employees Federation which will have no affiliation with organized labor. The telephone operators who were induced to quit work on the most extravagant inducements as to new conditions they would secure, are still out, and are not wanted back. One after another the striking unions deserted their leaders. Finally, the One Big Union strike served to awaken public opinion to the danger of supinely allowing the spread of seditious doctrines under the guise of labor, and these Red gentry are being watched very closely.

One of the humorous incidents of the Vancouver strike was the great outcry raised by the strike leaders over the fact that a machine gun had been posted at the armory and trained on the Labor Temple. It has since turned out that the supposed machine gun was nothing more than a few bags of sand camouflaged to look like the real thing.—Toronto Saturday Night.

HOW ONE MAN WON HIS V.C.

(From "Thirty Canadian V.Cs.")

When the Canadians went up to take the ridges before Passchendaele the men of the 52nd battalion were in support, and were not pleased with their minor share in the preliminary offensive. Their fears were not justified, however, for no battalion engaged played a larger or more gallant part in the attack.

The 9th brigade attacked at "Zero" hour with the 43rd and 58th battalions, and at first reports were good, and the Canadians appeared to be making excellent progress up the difficult slopes of Bellevue spur. But by 8.30 a.m. the news had changed, weary parties came straggling back in twos and threes to the jumping-off line, and the 52nd battalion troops were aware that their services would be required in short order. Colonel Foster, the Commanding officer, went forward to the front line and returned with news of a critical situation. On the right the 58th had encountered terrible machine-gun fire and had been unable to make any progress, while some forty men of Lietutenant Shankland's company of the 43rd had managed to fight their way to the crest of the spur, had roughly entrenched themselves, being able to advance no more and were still holding out after four hours of steady fighting, under heavy close range fire from pill-boxes on the ridge, and in constant danger of a flanking movement by the enemy on either hand. Lieut. O'Kelly, in charge of A Co., was ordered to move at once to their assistance, advancing on the left flank of the 43rd battalion post upon the hill, and filling the gap between the 8th and 9th brigades.

Drenched by the steady rain and pounded by the enemy's shells, the men of the 52nd were very bored indeed with inaction. They went forward strongly, penetrating the German barrage on the flank without losing very heavily and making good progress up the low northern slope towards the crest of the spur, where their comardes of the 43rd were not only doing most effective shooting on their own account, but were preventing the Germans from paying very much attention to the manoeuvres of the 52nd.

The top of the hill was defended by numerous concrete machine-gun forts, and these fired spasmodically upon the advancing troops, causing a number of casualties, but no delays. Lieut. O'Kelly had brought his men up well, and sweeping over the brow they caught the flank of the enemy advancing towards the 43rd battalion post, driving the Germans before them and shooting them as they ran.

For a moment it was a most successful rout, but then the fire from the pill-boxes grew heavier, and there ensued a series of gallant attacks upon the strong points before them. Our troops rushed pill-box after pill-box, small parties of men striving to win close to the walls of each fort, while sections to the rear bombareded every opening and loophole with bullets and rifle grenades. This made it very difficult to take aim, and allowed the actual assailants an opportunity of gaining the dead ground close beneath the walls and hurling their bombs inside through any aperature.

The effect of a small bomb upon a mass of men in the confined space of a pill-box is very terrible, and usually the treatment requires no second application before the surrender of the garrison. However the reduction of these forts is a very costly business, and many a time the attacking section would be caught within the zone of fire of a machine-gun an dpractically wiped out though on more than one occasion the attack was carried to a successful conclusion by two or three survivors, who would compel the garrisons of thirty or forty men to surrender to them. Through all this fighting Lieut. Kelly led his men with wonderful judgment, selecting the point and method of attack with cool precision, and never losoing site of his main object—to gain ground and consolidate the ridge. Finally his force was joined by "B" company, and the two companies of the 52nd set out to advance their line. The buildings of Bellevue Farm proved excellent cover for the retiring Germans, and there was stubborn fighting about the ruined outhouses before our fellows got through.

A clear half mile of ground was captured and consolidated, our men reaching the Wallemolen-Bellevue Road and driving the enemy before them from the country west of it. For a time the hostile bombardment was vague and uncertain, though on occasion a barrage would be placed before our advancing men, the enemy's gunners appearing to be supremely indifferent to the scattered parties of their own troops who were still holding out bravely enough before the Canadians. But directly our new line was in progress of formation the Germans' shelling became intense. For an hour the countryside was hammered and pounded, and then the inevitable counter-attack developed at two points of our thinly held line. However, O'Kelly's men felt that they had saved the situation, his pluck and initiative had pulled a victory from a defeat, and the men of the 52nd had no intention of giving up a foot of the grouno they had won.

So heavy a fire developed upon the attacking enemy that the counter-attack shriveled and dispersed 200 yards from our line. The shelling began again but our position was strong and clear, and consolidation was continued, while during the night Lieut. O'Kelly's men went forward again, and raided several strong points that might have hampered the advance of our men in the next phase of the offensive. The men of the 52nd battalion have great reason to be pleased with themselves for that day's work, for they captured nine officers and 275 men, no less than 21 machine guns and more important still, saved a very critical situation indeed.

BOUQUETS FOR THE BARTENDER

"Let us say something good and truthful about the bartender," remarks the Columbus Citizen, evidently moved by a feeling that the whole tribe is shortly to become extinct, and thus worthy of such enconiums as are bestowed nowadays on the dodo, the megatharium, and others who no longer take the sun and air. Having, no doubt, received the desired permission, the Citizen presents the following as good and truthful observations anent this passing human species. If the remarks begin like an obituary, they cheer up toward the last. Says the Citizen:

As an institution he existed in the supply of a demand.

He did not create the demand--he was pretty much like other clerks and salesmen, even tho what he supplied had a negative effect upon those he served.

The bartender was always courteous.

If he was not courteous he did not remain a bartender very long.

He was a good fellow when those he served demanded good fellowship.

He was often bored to extinction by the talk of some that he served, and he had to use infinite tact and patience with others when they were in their cups.

Bartenders as a rule were not drunkards; they were about like other men in other lines who found they could not do their work and hold their jobs in a total or semi-inebriated state; and the best of them, though horrible examples no doubt, did not drink at all.

All those whom the bartenders served were not drunkards—in fact, a very large majority of them were not.

The drunkard or a down and out was never a desirable patron, even tho the saloon as an institution may have been responsible for his state.

Drunkards always have a way of getting drunk in one saloon and then going into another and exhibiting themselves and their state.

A very large number of those whom the bartender served were prosperous intelligent, some were even larnd, and not infrequently men of large affairs.

The bartender came in intimate and frequent contact with these, always to a point of acquaintance, and often to actual friendship.

The employment and wages of a bartender were frequently a matter of the bartender's acquaintance or the amount of trade that he could attract to the place.

The bartender has two assets which would ably fit him for numberless lines of business.

One is his courtesy, the other is his acquaintance and his ability to make friends.

In a good many of the large cities that have been dry for a year or more ex-bartenders in better-class places were actually sought by life-insurance and the larger real estate agencies as salesmen, largely by reason of their acquaintance.

Then, again, by reason of their acquaintance, courtesy, and dexterity in handling glasses and drink-mixing devices, the down-town drug stores and other places with large soda-trade are finding it more profitable to employ ex-bartenders at a higher wage than persons of less experience, since the ex-bartender can handle the trade faster, with greater efficiency and satisfaction.

It is our guess that, after a very short period of readjustment, the bartender will find himself in much higher service of society, and with a much larger degree of prosperity to himself than in the occupation of his enforced abandonment.

BRITISH DIRGIBLES

From Mullion, in Cornwall, right around the coast of England and Scotland to Pembroke, a chain of airship stations came into being during the war. Where a distance between stations were considerable, as for instance, between Mullion and Polegate, (Sussex,) mooring-out stations, camps without permanent sheds or other buildings, were established and manned with just sufficient numbers to handle two or three small dirgibles which were moored out in the open when not flying.

From this chain of stations an immense amount of anti-submarine patrolling and convoy escorting was done. During the first ten months of 1918 the total hours flown by airships amounted to 53,554. In both submarine searching and assisting to protect convoys from under sea attacks lighter than air craft were emphatically of help to the navy.

A large number of hostile submarines were either put out of action or actually destroyed by bombing; others were located by airships and attaked by surface craft, in consequence of information as to their whereabouts thus obtained; and the convoy work was splendidly successful. On the Howden (Yorkshire) airship patrol, extending from the Humber to the Tyne, no German submarine ever attacked a convoy while an airship was near, and the same can be said for other areas.

The special advantages which an airship possesses for duties of this kind have been clearly shown. They can go very slowly and still retain height. For convoy escorting, where the speed of the surface ship is generally low, this is very important; the airship can keep with the convoy, conserve petrol, and maintain a much more comprehensive lookout for enemy vessels and mines than flying boat, seaplane, or land machine pressed into over-water service. Again, an airship, even one of the smallest type, is capable of much greater endurance than any heavier than air machine. It can remain away from its base far longer than a seaplane or an airplane; it can drift with its engines completely cut off, and keep head to the wind in calm weather with engines just ticking over; it is self-contained, for when necessary its crew can prepare meals and take turns at sleeping aboard. During the war a British airship made a cruise lasting 50 hours and 55 minutes, while since the signing of the armistice this record has been beaten by a trip of over 61 hours.

From seven British airships in commission at the outbreak of war, the number increased to just over a hundred by Oct. 31, 1918. There are two types of airships—rigids and non-rigids—and the latter class comprise submarine scouts, S. S. T.'s, (an improved submarine scout with two engines instead of one,) Coastals, Coastal Stars, Parsevals and North Seas. These non-rigids did the main share of the anti-submarine and convoy work, the rigids being better suited for reconoisance duties with the fleet. It is no longer a secret that the Germans owed their escape at Jutland to Zeppelins, that Zeppelins enabled the flotilla which bombarded Scarborough to get away, and that Zepplins had a hand in the torpedoing of H.M.S. Falmouth and Nottingham. The popular belef that these German rigids have been a complete failure is not altogether accurate; they were not intended for overland raiding; but in their real work, as eyes for the German fleet, they did a vast amount of North Sea scouting that was never made public, and were a distinct handicap to the British Navy on occasions. Only three Zeppelins were lost in these legitimate enterprises throughout the war.

The obvious use of airships in peace is for merchandise carryinf, long-distance cruising, journeys of several thousand miles—and round the world is easily within their compass even now—which are beyond the powers of heavier than air craft in a single stage. Not only are they better suited for this sort of work by their very nature, but they possess other advantages over airplanes in personal comfort. Ordinarily an airship need not fly at much more than a thousand feet. This makes for less cold traveling and also enables those in the ship—especially at cruising speed—to enjoy the scenery. In an airplane things rush by so fast underneath that the world looks like a dull contour map. In an airship, however, one can come down even to 200 feet or so, to drift with engines almost or completely stopped, and to look at things.

Then, too, an airship always flies on an even keel; it does not "bank" in turning as an airplane does, nor does it climb or descend steeply. All this makes for comfort and a feeling of greater security. Sleeping in an airship is a calm experience; moving about, comparatively simple. Also there is less noise in an airship than in an airplane. The latter's engines beat incessantly, and the wind shrills and whistles everlastingly among the wires. An airship has no wires to madden with their noise, and the engines can be throttled down to a few revolutions, or absolutely stop with a favorable wind blowing. Traveling in an airship need be no more noisy than in a motor car. Engine failure, too, is not such a life or death matter in an airship. The gas bag will always keep you up until the failure is repaired. The airship is only relatively slow; it is normally twice as fast as an ocean liner. One hundred miles an hour is easily within reach.

COMMENT ON THE CANADIAN LOAN

The oversubscription of the $75,000,000 Canadian loan here is quite natural. It can hardly be taken as a test of the attitude of the investor toward foreign bonds, as there never was the slightest doubt about the value of Canada's offering. None of the other nations is in such good position for the payment of its war debts as Canada. She is, in fact, a creditor, on balance, just as we are, though the debts outstanding to her are not capable of immediate liquidation. Beyond that she has undeveloped resources of all sorts—agriculture, mineral, her forests and fisheries—that make her potentially one of the richest of all nations. She has also a sound and stable government. It is worth remembering that Canada's coalition government was the only one that lasted to the end of the war. Canada's credit is good, at every point, and in any way one looks at it. —New York "Evening Sun."

O. B. U. VS. U. M. W. OF A.

At a mass meeting of Gladstone Union held on Monday last at which 150 out of a membership of 700 were present, it was decided by a standing vote to support the One Big Union in opposition to the U.M.W. of A. P. M. Christophers and a number of other organizers for the O.B.U. were present and persuaded the men to stand by that organization promising an early solution of the strike situation. As a matter of fact, by their action, they have killed any possible chance of an early settlement. Neither the coal operators or any government in Canada will ever stand for such an organization in this country. If western Canada has to go through this winter without coal, the name of the O.B.U. will be a stench in the workingman's nostrils for a long time to come. Dave Irvine, Board Member for the U. M. W. of A. is in the city and a movement is on foot to organize the members of that body who are still loyal. If sufficient members signify their intention of joining, an agreement will be made with the operators and the mines re-opened. Meanwhile, the backers of the O.B.U. are putting forth all kinds of threats against anyone who will join the old organization.

HOLD-UP MEN GET $760

Between the hours of 4 and 5 a.m. on Monday last five or six "knights of the round table" were earnestly engaged in flirting with Dame Fortune within the confines of a subterranean rendezvous of a local hostelry. So eagerly concentrated were the minds of the "knights" in the game of "draw" or "stud" or whatever name the medium of the exchange of currency might be known by, that not one of the players noted the entrance to the secluded retreat of two uninvited guests until above the monotonous tones of "That's good" and "raise," etc., came the metallic command "Put 'em up, boys!" The astonished knights thereupon elevating their gaze found themselves looking into the business ends of a high powered automatic and an equally inducing 38 calibre revolver, behind each of which was a masked individual. The knights without hesitation immediately endeavored to touch the ceiling with their upper extremeties and then were told in the same convincing tones to stand to attention and about face to the wall in skirmishing order. Calmly the master of ceremonies received second firearms from his partner, training the weapons upon exposed backs of distracted knights, while the second in command very hastily proceeded to empty the trousers' pockets of each in turn. This process completed the dealers cache was appropriated and then with equal eqanimity the uninvited guests departed, and it was not until the indistinct sounds of a departing automobile did the humiliated knights venture to attempt any action of their own volition.

The police were immediately communicated with and promptly responded. Asked for descriptions as to how the desporaodes appeared to them, about all that could be ascertained was one was tall and one short, one was light and the other dark, but that was the limit. They were unable to describe the clothing, or give anything at all tangible by which some clue as to the identity of the hold up men might be. They were masked and according to the cosmopolitan make-up of the knights of the round table, they "Speak English good."

When the police arrived the knights were endeavoring to complete an audit and the first estimates indicated that from $300 to $500 had been the prize for the winning hands; later, however, a further check was made, and the amount was advanced to $760. Many rumors and fantastic stories with regard to the episode are in the course of circulation. One of the "knights" while admittedly exceedingly nonplussed at the occurrence, retained sufficient presence of mind to drop a "roll of Canadian lettuce" containing two hundred leaves, on the floor under the table, while elevating his upper extremeties toward the ceiling in response to the first command. This he recovered when the intruders had departed. Another is reported to have had $500 sewn in his underwear which was overlooked by the party making the search. Thus the matter stands; the masqueraders left no telltale evidence as to their identity and those contributing to them are utterly unable to give any assistance in this connection, so in the meantime the knights are out and the other fellows so much ahead in their method of playing with Dame Fortune.

CRICKET

The Cricket Club has made a splendid start, having had several practice games this week and at each game having more than two full teams.

As many of the players are at present out of employment, will those who are interested in cricket and can at present afford it, kindly pay their subscription of $2.00 to Secretary Chas. F. Hesketh, and so assist the Club to pay for the material they are now playing with and which has yet to be paid for.

A practice game will be played on Saturday, at 2.30 p.m.

On Sunday, Fernie City will play West Fernie and Fernie Annex at 2 p.m., so come out to the city park and enjoy an afternoon with the cricketers.

The opening game of the season took place between Lancashire vs. the Rest of England. The Lancs. batted first and scored 55; the rest of England topped them by 6 runs. It was a good game considering the short practice. Some interesting games are in sight when the league is formed. The following was the scores made:

Rest of England—

D. Gash	7
J. F. Spalding, not out	39
G. Sawyer	0
R. Sherwood	2
B. Parsons	1
W. Owen	1
Mr. Hewat	0
A. Silverwood	2
T. Rutledge	9
T. Shorthouse	0
Robson	0
T. Biggs	0
	61

Lancashire—

Lancaster	2
W. Turner	0
Hesketh	6
F. Woodhouse	14
W. Green	0
W. Taylor	3
B. Smith	12
A. Hilton	7
A. Hancock	3
G. Rhodes	0
H. Bentham	0
G. Barker	5
J. Longden	3
Parker, not out	0
	55

G. Barker showed the boys how a Yorkshire tyke can drive, smashing a bat by powerful hitting. Have a little pity on the Club funds, George. You are not smashing P. Dawson now.

A. Hancock's big smile seems to draw the balls to the wicket. Keep smiling, Arthur.

Wanted—A baseball mit. Apply to W. Lancaster.

Silver captured the bowling honors. He has had more practice than the other players, throwing grenades and bombs.

The cricketers have nothing but praise for the workers at the Sunday school picnic. They certainly made the game successful with the fine lunch they put up. Let's have another Sunday school picnic.

Gilbert Sawyer can defend the wickets just as good as he can the football nets.

Dave Gash in some defence player. Loosen up a little, Davy, and let all have a chance to bat. Evenings are pretty short, you know.

Spalding played good cricket and made top score with a well played 39.

Bob Sherwood got Joe Langdon's goat, but we haven't got the cigars yet.

Watch the two southpaws, Woodhouse and Turner. They will take some beating.

Mr. Hewat says he thought he had her but she broke too quick.

Bill Marsh caught a few beauties. Bill says he is 65 and not out.

Tom Biggs certainly knows the tricks at the wicket.

Parker has good style at bat and promises to be a great help to the Fernie Club.

Dave Gash says they have got my wicket.

Theda Bara in "The Forbidden Path," at the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday.

WILL CLEAR 400 ACRES

Lieut. Walker, of the B.C. Soldiers' Settlement Board, is in the city today arranging for the clearing of about 400 acres of land in the valley near the Fernie Lumber Co. property. He expects to give employment to about 75 returned men at this work.

The government has secured altogether about 1500 acres in this vicinity and it is proposed to divide it into forty acre tracts, the government clearing 10 acres in each 40. This land will be disposed of to returned men at actual cost to the government, averaging about $12 to the acre.

The property selected contains the finest soil in the valley and it will not be long before we have a thriving farming community right at our door. In these strike times the thought of a little assistance from a farming community appeals very strongly to the people of Fernie.

PLANE PASSES OVER FERNIE

Capt. E. C. Hoy, the first aviator to make a flight over the Rocky Mountains, passed over Fernie in plain view on Thursday at 4.30. He appeared to be travelling about 75 miles an hour and at an elevation of six or seven thousand feet. Following is the record of his flight as far as Fernie:

Vancouver, Aug. 7.—Capt. E. C. Hoy, D.F.C., left Minoru Park here this morning at 4.15 in an attempt to fly across the Canadian Rocky mountains. At 5.15 the aviator passed over Chilliwack. Favorable weather conditions prevail. The flight is being made under the auspices of the Vancouver World, the Calgary Herald and the Lethbridge Herald. Capt. Hoy expects to complete the filght to Calgary by way of Lethbridge about 8 o'clock tonight.

Vernon, Aug. 7.—Capt. E. C. Hoy, attempting a trans-Rocky flight, arrived here at 7.18 o'clock this morning from Vancouver and left at 8.19 for Grand Forks. The flight from the coast, 225 miles, was made in three hours and six minutes.

Midway, Aug. 7.—Within 50 miles of Grand Forks, his next stopping place, Capt. E. C. Hoy, flying to Calgary from Vancouver, flew over this town at 10.10 this morning. He should land in Grand Forks before 11 o'clock. Grand Forks is 225 miles from Vernon.

Grand Forks, Aug. 7.—Capt. Hoy arrived at Grand Forks at 10.34 a.m. and left at 11.15 for Cranbrook, where he expects to make his next stop on his Vancouver-Calgary 18 hour flight, at 2.45 p.m. He expects to have dinner in Calgary tonight.

At Grand Forks Capt. Hoy met Lieut. E. O. Hall, who left Vancouver some days ago in a Curtiss machine with the intention of flying to Calgary by easy stages. Hall left Grand Forks in the direction of Cranbrook 10 minutes before Hoy left, but it is not certain that he intends to make an effort to beat Hoy to Calgary.

Cranbrook, Aug. 7.—Captain Hoy reached here at 2.05 this afternoon, or ten minutes ahead of schedule time.

BASEBALL

Wycliffe baseball team visited Fernie on Sunday last and trimmed our boys by the score of 13 to 3. The Wycliffe boys were out in full batting strength and managed to pound the ball at will. The day was raw and cold and the Fernie boys appeared to be frozen, as they didn't show up in their usual good form.

On Wednesday afternoon the Crow's Nest Trading Co. staff defeated the Trites-Wood Co. staff in a good game of baseball by a score of 8 to 2. The Trites-Wood boys seemed to have an off day so they are challenging the Crow's Nest to another game in the near future. Wilson and Glover for the Crow's Nest played a good game, as the Trites-Wood boys only managed to score 2 runs in the first innings and never scored after that. The Co-Operative staff have now challenged the winners, so that game will be pulled off soon.

The Fernie City Baseball League have finished the first half of the season, with the F.A.A.C. team winners. A new league has been formed with the F.A.A.C., Hula Hulas and G.W.V.A. teams entered.

The first game of this league was played Wednesday night between the Hula Hulas and the G. W. V. A., which resulted in a win for the Hulas by a score of 13 to 4. The Hula team seemed to all have horseshoes that night as nothing was missed that could possibly be caught.

Tonight the G.W.V.A. and the F.A.A.C. will clash in what promises to be a fast game, as the G.W.V.A. expect to be considerably strengthened by some new players. The F.A.A.C. are also in good form and are out to win. Come out and boost.

KING IS ELECTED LEADER

Ottawa, Aug. 7.—Hon. W. L. King is elected Liberal leader.

The third ballot was cancelled because Graham announced his retirement after a vote had been started.

McKenzie then announced his retirement, leaving the fight to King and Fielding.

CONFER WITH ALL DISTRICT 18 LOCALS

Calgary, Aug. 5.—With the arrival in Calgary of another international organizer, the plans that are being adopted to bring about a thorough understanding between the miners in Alberta and the international are rapidly approaching completion and within the next few days a very comprehensive program will be entered upon whereby all the locals in District 18 will be visited.

FIGHT AGAINST O. B. U. VIGOROUS

In order to strengthen the forces of the international in their fight with the One Big Union, two more delegates have arrived in Calgary. These men are able to speak several languages, and the idea of their being sent to District 18 is that there should be no stone left unturned to thoroughly explain the situation to the foreign-speaking element. In the meantime the opponents of the international are asserting all their strength to win the men over to the O.B.U.

THE SPORTS AT COAL CREEK

The sports which were to have been held at Coal Creek on Saturday, August 9, have been postponed until Wednesday, August 13. This was done to give the Fernie citizens a chance to spend the day at Coal Creek. A train will leave here at 11 a.m. and return at 8 p.m. Free transportation both ways.

The Crow's Nest Colliery Band will be in attendance during the day.

In the evening the Coal Creek Honor Roll will be unveiled.

FINED FOR BREAKING PROVINCIAL HEALTH ACT

The medical health officer has been engaged lately in making an inspection of the local dairies. While the report has not been submitted for publication it is understood that generally speaking, conditions have been found reasonably satisfactory with one exception. The authorities found it necessary to order one Matt. Valley to cease peddling milk until he had complied with certain sanitary requirements. On first notice the said party did not heed these instructions and continued as a vendor with the result that he was summoned to appear in the police court. Upon the case coming up for hearing and the evidence submitted, Valley was fined $5.00 and costs under the Provincial Health Act. This conviction was immediately conducive of the proper sanitary conditions in and around the dairies are so vital to the general public health, the authorities are taking very active steps to see that same are carried out to the full meaning of the law, and the above case should be taken as a salutary warning to all engaged in this class of business that the regulations must be observed, otherwise they may be prevented from carrying on business and also subjected to a far more severe penalty.

Don't forget the Grand Concert tonight in aid of the Catholic church, given by the G.W.V.A. Concert Party. Curtain at 8.15.

THE FAMOUS SECRET

Once more Lord Dundonald's famous secret comes to the fore. This is the terrible invention which he is supposed to have entrusted to the British Admiralty, but which they have ever since declined to use as being "too horrible for humanity." Just what this famous invention is, this dreadful weapon which a civilized nation found too terrible to use, Heaven and the British Admiralty alone know, and neither has so far made any statement on the subject. Perhaps it is just as well. Once the matter was really explained, think how many good articles would cease to be written on the subject, how many writers of fiction would be obliged to seek some other "thrill" for their new tale of mystery and adventure. The Dundonald Secret has been a godsend to many a harrassed author. To solve it would deprive as many men of a comfortable living as did the discovery of the North Pole.

The latest writer to come along with a description of the infernal machine which Admiral Lord Dundonald is supposed to have invented more than a hundred years ago, is Edgar Stanton Maclay. Writing in the New York Times, he states that the machine was an arrangement of "burning glasses"—prisms, that is, which would concentrate the beams of the sun so that they might be directed in terrific force on objects so far distant as a mile, destroying human life like the sword of that angel which descended on the hosts of Sennacherib. We are assured that against a weapon so powerful no power on earth could stand, but that its use would be "an affront to civilization."

Probably this is the season of the year when yarns of this sort most readily flourish. But not even the height of the "silly season" can blind one to the absurdity of this plan. As a matter of fact, we have too much regard for the memory of the tenth Earl Dundonald, a great fighting admiral—the man who helped to shake the yoke of Spain from Chili and Brazil, in addition to performing some of the most brilliant feats in the history of the British navy—to imagine for a moment that he fathered a scheme so impracticable as this. If he did, the only possible reason why the British Admiralty has never divulged the plan is because they did not want to bring ridicule upon a great name.

How many minutes would a huge cumbersome arrangement of glass prisms last under the fire of an enemy warship? Long before the precious contraption could be brought to bear, it would be reduced to smithereens. Naturally it would have to be of enormous proportions to concentrate enough of the sun's beams to develop very much heat, and obviously it could not be protected by armor—it would at least have to be unobstructed on the side of the sun and on the side of the enemy if the light was to be turned on him. Besides, it would have to be a very bright day or—but the thing grows too absurd.

Even more delightfully comic is the praise which Mr. Maclay showers on the British Admiralty for their humanitarian refusal to make use of this horrendus weapon. Would the German government have taken the same exalted view of their responsibilities? asks Mr. Maclay. The answer is distinctly in the negative, as they say in the British House of Commons.

"Time and again Sir Joseph Maclay, the British Minister of Shipping, was urged to avail himself of this hideous weapon as a retaliatory measure against the campaign of submarine frightfulness . . . but to the everlasting credit of the Anglo-Saxon race be it recorded that the use of this weapon was firmly refused both by him and his associates."

We can well believe it—but not for motives of humanity. Sir Joseph probably has far too much sense of humor to suggest for a moment that it is quite legitimate to catch submarines in nets and keep them down till all the crew suffocates, to blow them up with depth-bombs, to ram them with destroyers, to sink them with shell-fire, but against the law of God and man to turn the burning rays of the sun on them.

Once again, we repeat, this is surely the silly season. But it is a little unusual to find a historian of the American navy giving solemn utterance to such fantastic twaddle as this.—Saturday Night.

FORTUNES FOR ALL FOUR

Darius Miller, of Connecticut, is dead. The fact might not arouse more than passing notice except for the headline, "From $700 to Millionaire." Darius Miller was the wealthiest resident of New Britain, Conn., and one of four brothers who attained wealth and prominence.

Sixty years ago a Middletown (Conn.) farmer called his four sons together, and, after giving them his blessing and $700 apiece, sent them forth into the world to make their own living. The brothers were Darius Miller, Nathan G. Miller, Charles Miller and Frank Miler.

Darius setted in New Britain, and, with his $700, founded a dry goods store. Modern devices had no place in his establishment, and, despite his wealth, he continued to conduct the store until within a week of his death on April 2 last at the age of 89 years. He was also interested in many big financial institutions and was a Director of the New Britain National Bank since 1860.

Charles, like Darius, went into the dry goods business in Waterbury, where he founded the Miller & Peck Co. and the Randolph & Clowes Co. He was rated as one of the wealthiest men of that city, and in 1910, when he was 71 years old, he retired and turned his business over to the clerks in his store.

The third brother, Nathan, came to New York to seek his fortune, entered Wall Street and became the first President of the Iron Steamboat Co., owned by the Nickel Plate Railroad Co., and was also President of the Eagle Lock Co., besides being heavily interested in the Edison Electric Light Co.

Frank Miller, the youngest of the quartet and the only one now living, went to Bridgeport and entered the lumber and banking business. He is President of the City National Bank of Bridgeport, president of a large lumber concern in that city and owns vast tracts of timber in the South. He, too, is rated as one of the wealthiest men in the southern part of Connecticut.

A reunion of the four brothers was held in 1910 on the occasion of the golden wedding anniversary of the eldest, Darius. In the course of an interview at that time Frank Miller told of their successes as follows:

"If we were to start out today as we did, the four brothers of us, a little over fifty years ago, with $700 apiece, the chances are that we would be worth in the same time considerably more than we are today. And I suppose that most of the young men who read that story said to themselves: 'Yes, but that was in the good old days of easy times and great opportunities. They couldn't do it today.' The times are easier today and the opportunities are greater than they ever were. Any young man who will live as we used to and work as we used to will succeed.

"When we were boys we were up before daylight taking care of the stock and doing three hours' labor before mother called us in to breakfast. Then we worked all day and till the sun went down. We never heard of a ten-hour day or an eight-hour day."—New York Times.

CRIMINALS' MISTAKES

That cheerful person, Lenine, is reported to have said that he would rather a score of innocent persons were killed than that one of the middle-class should escape, says Tit-Bits.

His state of mind must resemble that of another Russian, the woman calling herself Mrs. Stafford, who shot M. Muller, the wealthy Parisian banker, in the Hotel Jungfrau, at Interlaken.

She fired at her victim as he was reading a newspaper over his luncheon, and killed him on the spot. Confronted with the body, she said she was sorry. She had made a mistake. She had taken him for M. Durnovo, a Russian Minister, who was not too friendly towards anarchists. "But," she added, "in such times as the present one life more or less does not matter."

A similar case occurred more recently in New York. Mr. J. W. Burke, of the Iron Workers' Union, incurred the enmity of a certain political gang of the baser sort because he had accused them of "graft." The gang hired three criminals, known as "Big Shim," "The Dynamite Kid," and "Ernest the Crow," to murder him.

The three went to a saloon, saw there a man whom they evidently thought was Burke, and shot him. Burke was not in New York at all that evening, and the unfortunate victim was Mr. Thomas Conroy, of the Plumbers' Union.

One more victim of blunder on the part of a hired murderer was Mr. Abe, director of the political bureau of the Japanese Foreign Office, who was stabbed to death on a winter's night in 1913. His features closely resembled those of the famous Chinese reformer, Sun Yat Sen, and, as was afterwards discovered, his murderer mistook him for that person.

If murderers make mistakes, thieves do so much more frequently, and sometimes the results are distinctly humorous. A burglar broke into a house at Boston, taking no end of trouble to get in without making a sound. He reached the diningroom without disturbing anyone, collected all the silver, packed it carefully in a bag, and carried this out into the hall. A gleam from his electric torch fell suddenly on a tall figure standing opposite, and the thief, in sudden panic, puled his revolver and blazed away.

Two athletic sons of the house came racing downstairs, to find that the burglar had emptied his pistol into a life-sized bronze figure which stood in the hall. The blunderer had five years in which to repent of his foolish mistake.

During the last couple of years tobacco has become so scarce and dear as to be well worth even a burglar's attention. But he must surely have been a new hand in the profession who broke into a Braintree tobacconist's and raided all he could carry from the front window.

He might have known that in these days the "show" consists entirely of dummy packages. When he discovered his mistake it was too late for useful repentance, so he dumped the whole lot in an alley, where it was found next morning.

Another disappointed criminal was the one who stole a case of shoes from a boot shop in Pittsburg, only to find when he had conveyed them home that they were all for the left foot. They were, in fact, a case of samples.

The way in which burglars overlook booty is very odd. It was in the Strand at no great distance from the offices of this paper, that two men broke into another publishing office and spent half the night cutting open a large safe in which was nothing but an empty cash box.

They were apparently too weary to start on a smaller safe in the same room, which held a quantity of money; but the oddest part of the whole business is that in a confectioner's shop below, through which they had gained entrance to the upstairs offices, was a safe of which they had taken no notice whatever.

SIFTING THE IMMIGRANTS

There is a growing sentiment among Americans that little is to be gained in this country from the presence among us of millions of unskilled and ignorant labor of this transient type, and there are many economic and political questions to be settled before we reach the proper decision in this matter. Sentiment is growing in America that if these aliens refuse all propositions looking to their Americanization and naturalization, we will lose little or nothing if they will pull their stakes and go to their old homes. We are gaining nothing by filling up the country with people who care nothing for it and whose only idea is to remain here until they can make enough to go elsewhere to spend it.—Kansas City Star.

Alternative Plan for First Dreadno't

Sir Philip Watts, in his recent paper before the Society of Naval Architects, made known the details of an alternative design prepared by Admiral Fisher for the first dreadnought. She was to carry 12 12-inch guns in six 2-gun turrets, all mounted on the centre line of the ship, there being three at each end of the vesel mounted closely behind one another and at sucessively higher elevations, so that each pair of guns could fire over the roof of the turret ahead. This would have given a concentration of six guns ahead and astern and 12 on either broadside.

THERE IS ONLY ONE GENUINE ASPIRIN

BAYER

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, refuse them—they are not Aspirin at all.

Your druggist gladly will give you the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" because genuine Aspirin now is made by Canadians and owned by a Canadian Company.

There is not a cent's worth of German interest in Aspirin, all rights being purchased from the U. S. Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. But now you can get genuine Aspirin, plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross."—Aspirin proved safe by millions for Headache, Toothache, Earache, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Colds, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger "Bayer" packages.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

STRIKES ARE A BOOMERANG

If the working men of British Columbia only viewed economic conditions dispassionately before they decide on a walkout, the probability is that they would come to some other conclusion than to tie up the industries of the province in the manner they have done in the past month. And if they delved still further into the reasons why they were asked to walk out they would discover that their supposed leaders had only one object in view, that is to make catspaws of them. But, it is unfortunate that the worker cannot be made to see through other than labor glasses, though the recent strike would suggest that there is among their rank a section who are commencing to realize that the workers' Valhalla will not be secured by methods such as have obtained in that dispute.

The conditions to which the lumber industry have been brought by their action in suspending operations in almost every mill on the lower mainland is one to be deplored and the fact that a comparatively large number of them are willing to return to their machines long before the strike was called off was in itself evidence of dissatisfaction with their self-styled leaders and with their frothy rhetoric and vaporings of the promised land. But apart from these considerations, the workers have now an opportunity of analyzing the trouble and sifting the whole thing to the bottom and ascertaining whether the strike was really brought about to benefit them or to keep a few blatant agitators in a job.

And there is the further consideration ,that must not be lost sight of for a moment, that the lumber industry has suffered severely and, at a time, too, when hours and days were never so valuable. The curtailment in the output of lumber was enough to half fill the British government's order of 70,000,000 feet, not to mention the losses sustained by the shingle industry. Labor has professed a desire and anxiety to work hand in hand with the employers, but when it is stated that though production was down to zero during the strike, the overhead expenses still continued in each mill and that condition has brought the employers face to face with a situation that cannot be ignored.

Let us suppose for a moment that each mill decided on a substantial reduction of its output, the demand from every quarter for lumber notwithstanding, and that, as a result of that decision, which would be in the interests of economy, hundreds of men were thrown out of employment, on whom would the responsibility rest for that state of things? Primarily on the workers, unquestionably, for the reason that they were instrumental in compelling the employers to adopt a policy that would protect themselves at a time when the necessity for a practical demonstration in economy was imperative and when the last thing that should have been considered was a walkout, not to benefit themselves, but at the behest of a few men who are a menace to this country.

Th employers of men in sawmills and logging camps owe it to themselves to take action that will preclude the possibility in the future of a repetition of similar trouble. Ways and means can surely be found among the manufacturers of British Columbia to counteract measures of that character. And the time to take action is now.—Western Lumberman.

CANADA FIRST

(From The Sailor)

During the last few months Canada has faced a grave industrial crisis. Strikes and threats of strikes have been the rule. Throughout the entire Dominion labor problems have become acute. In the West particularly there sprung into being the One Big Union idea, which precipitated a general sympathetic strike throughout that section of the country. The same system was adopted in the east, but it failed singularly. It was in Winnipeg that the movement reached the zenith of its success, and there, according to reliable press writers, a Soviet Government was actually formed for the purpose of seizing the civic reins of power. Fortunately the attempt was frustrated by effective action on the part of the Dominion and local police. Since then a thorough investigation has been made into the affairs of the One Big Union and it is stated on governmental authority that a connecting link between its heads and the leaders of the Bolsheviki has been established. This is to be deplored. It shows that the rank and file of organized labor have been made the tools of the Bolshevik propaganda and the unscrupulous demagogue for the purpose of subverting the present system of government. The strike in Winnipeg lasted just six weeks to a day; it threw thousands into idleness and it brought all constructive work to a cessation. It cost the striking workers of Winnipeg hundreds of thousands of dollars; it cost the City of Winnipeg thousands of dollars to repair damage done; and it caused the residents of Winnipeg indescribable discomfort and anxiety. The strike in Winnipeg shows that Bolshevism and labor have nothing in common; the failure of the strike in Winnipeg and elsewhere shows that the great mass of thinking laborites realize the necessity of divorcing any Bolshevik tendencies from the labor movement. They are in sympathy with Mr. Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in his antipathy toward Bolshevism, who in a recent address to the National Civic Federation declared:

"All of you who know me or know of my attitude in regard to labor conditions know my absolute opposition to Bolshevism in theory and to Bolshevism in fact. In theory Bolshevism is an impossibility. In fact, if it were put into operation, or could be put into operation, it would mean the decadence or perversion of the civilization of our time. To me the story of the desperate Samson who pulled the Temple down on his head, is an example of what is meant by Bolshevism. I am not willing that all of the genius of past ages should be flung to the winds. And I am not willing that the little service that I may have been able to render during the long years that I have attempted to improve conditions in a constructive way should be destroyed by maddened desperation. And so I may say to you that it is well for us to see now that our own house is kept in order."

Councillor Peter Wright, trustee and chairman of the Seamen's and Firemen's Union, of Great Britain, the biggest single labor organization in the world, is another far-sighted advocate of the labor movement, and no one who heard Peter Wright speak during his recent Canadian tour will accuse him of insincerity as a labor leader. Unlike Mr. Gompers, he has come into personal contact with the Bolsheviki and has witnessed from personal observation the result of the Bolshevik regime in Russia. During one of his last Canadian addresses he said:

"I've seen some of the Bolshevik work in Russia, and I want to tell you men of labor, you young men, all of you, I want to tell you that if you have any God-given sense, any respect for your country and for the sailors and soldiers who were victims of a foe as dirty and low as history has ever seen, that the safety of the liberty of the nation might be assured—watch out for the men who are trying to lead you the way of Trotsky and Lenine. They are Bolsheviki and I.W.W., and their way is red with blood! Keep down these men! Don't listen to them! Don't give them a chance! If you do, the principle of labor upheld by the men of the merchant marine and the great mass of patriotic and thinking men that have the real progression of labor at heart is lost. Take your time and consider your words and actions, and don't let these men touch you. They are not labor—they are Bolshevik Socialists, and the greatest menace to civilization since the death of German kultur!"

Words of warning such as given in the foregoing excerpts should not pass unheeded by the working men of Canada. That there are labor problems in Canada which require adjustment no one denies; that there are industrial wrongs to remedy everyone admits. But such conditions do not call for violent action upon the part of capital and labor; to adjust them does not necessitate a violent class war. Every situation which the labor movement feels inflicts an injustice upon the workingman can be remedied by constitutional means. In a critical reconstruction period which inevitably follows the cessation of a great war, there must of necessity be a certain amount of unrest and confusion. This is especially noticeable in industrial life, where wartime activities must go by the way to make place for former peaceful pursuits. In times of such grave industrial and economic crisis it is the duty of the patrotic citizen to keep such unrest and confusion at a minimum. It is a time for steadiness and moderation. Never has Canada needed the co-operation of everyone more than today; never has there been a greater need for unity and concord than now. The country must be guided safely through one of the most critical periods of its history. Our future and prosperity are at stake. Let us abandon the policy of precipitating bitter industrial struggles and get together and solve our problems in a spirit of fairness and moderation. Let us evolve from the wreckage of the past a spirit of Canadian Brotherhood which will have all that is best for the nation as its unselfish aims. Then we can eliminate struggles and strife and make Canada the finest place in the world to live in. In fine, let us be Canadians first. It is for Canada.

A Battleship Costs $32,000,000

The Navy Department estimates that the two super-dreadnoughts for which bids were recently received, will cost with armor and guns a total amount of $32,000,000. These are ships of the 1916 program, and they show an increase in construction cost during the war of nearly 100 percent. The increase has been progressive, with a big jump, of course, during the past five years. Thus the "Alabama" (11,565 tons) of 1900 cost $2,722,000; the "Connecticut" (16,000 tons) of 1906 cost $4,096,000; the "Florida" (21,825 tons) of 1911 cost $6,400,000; and the "Nevada" (27,500 tons) built in 1915, cost $11,000,000.

NOTICE OF CANCELLATION

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the reserve existing over lands lying within the boundaries of Lot 7783, Group 1, Kootenay District, by reason of a notice published in the British Columbia Gazette on the 27th December, 1907, is cancelled in so far as it relates to that portion surveyed as Lot 11705, Kootenay District, for the purpose of granting said Lot 11705, Kootenay District, to the Land Settlement Board.

THE LESSON OF WINNIPEG

It is well not to lose sight of the principle that nobody gets anything who doesn't earn it. Work is the only thing that will save the world. But he who works must receive all that is honestly coming to him, not only in the shape of pecuniary reward, but in the respect and esteem of his fellow men. The citizens' committee of Winnipeg has rendered as great a service as has ever been rendered to a country. It has said to labor in effect: "We are with you insofar as you are right, but when you set up judgments which ignore the rights of all the rest of us, we are against you.—Milwaukee Journal.

The "no-exUnionists need apply" sign appears to have been hung out by most conventions selecting delegates for the National Liberal convention. In St. John, N. B., Premier Foster, who supported conscription, was entirely ignored, Laurier Liberals selecting their own delegates and overriding the protests of an ex-Unionist minority which demanded representation. In Winnipeg, according to reports, there has been a similar occurrence, anti-conscriptionists of the extreme partizan type being exclusively selected as delegates; while from a number of other centres come reports of like discrimination.

Manifestations of such resentment, taken in conjunction with what happened to Mr. Proudfoot at the Ontario Liberal convention, is significant. It suggests for one thing that that "light in the window" is not entirely a beacon.—Ottawa Journal.

The coal strike in Great Britain hits this country hard. Premier Lloyd George states that "the last twenty-four hours has witnessed grave and unprecedented developments in the miners' strike" and that "eighty-five mines are flooded and will probably be ruined." No wonder it is said that the strikers "not only prejudice their own means of livelihood but threaten disaster to every one."— New York Herald.

LABOR UNIONS SMALL FACTOR

One might imagine from the commotion organized labor has been making in this country for the past nine months or so, that every other man must belong to a trade union of one kind or another. Not so, however. The Canadian Department of Labor, in a pamphlet just published, informs us that in 1918 the total membership of trade unions throughiut the country amounted to no more than 248,-887, which was an increase of some 44,000 over 1917, and the largest total in the history of Canada. In other words, not over one individual in thirty-two is a member of a recognized labor union, but, of course, these figures do not take into consideration the I.W.W.. and other outlaws, who have long been banned in both this country and the United States.

In the face of these figures, how can some of our so-called labor leaders pretend to believe that they are predestined to run the country to the practical exclusion of all others, as these so-called "progressives" have told us from the public platforms many times within the past few months?

Accepting the above figures as substantially correct, there must be in Canada anywhere from five to seven non-union workers to one union man. Labor leaders, such as R. C. Brown, president of the Metal Trades Council, should inform themselves, for only the other day, in one of Brown's tirades against the Federal government for arresting the Winnipeg Reds, he went on to infer that they (the unions) represented in one way or another 85 per cent of the population. It was on this calculation apparently, that he based his argument on a new constitution by which there is to be a joint participation in the ownership of Canadian industries by all the people.

In the interval, under the leadership of such men as R. C. Brown, industry is fast going to the devil. Unionism has in the past done wonders for the workers, but it was only under the sane leadership of such men as Samuel Gompers that it has progressed. Owing to the evil influences of the Red element, it is now practically out of hand, and a condition is being created from which unionism itself will in the last analysis be the greatest sufferer.

The unwillingness of the Metal Trades Union to adjust matters on any but their own exclusive terms has reacted on other industries from one end of the country to the other. Coal miners in Nova Scotia are complaining for want of work, caused by steel plants standing idle, the steel plants being idle by reason of the fact that the metal trades refuse to consume their products. The building season is passing swiftly, and not one-fiftieth part of the work contemplated nine months ago has been touched; again the metal trades.

In the interval such men as the president of the Metal Trades Council are fanning the air. Instead of preaching the gospel of work, they are preaching the doctrine of discontent.—Saturday Night.

INTERNATIONAL MEN TALK ON COAL AND COKE

The three international board members of the United Mine Workers of America, who are here from across the border in an effort to settle the strike of coal miners in southeastern British Columbia and Alberta, are tremendously impressed with the great coal resources of this province. The three men are Samuel Ballantyne of Iowa; Samuel Caddy of Washington; and Wm. Dalrymple of Oklahoma. These men are thoroughly familiar with coal fields in every portion of the United States and are students of European conditions in relation to coal production and coal markets.

The United Mine Workers have had their statistician, Robt. Harlin, over in Europe making a survey of conditions and at the same time they were co-operating with the National Coal Association of the United States which has perfected the details of production possibilities in that country. In the United States the geologists have estimated that there are more than fourteen hundred billion tons of the various grades of the so-called soft coals, but the end of anthracite is nearly in sight. Actual conditions show that less than 5 per cent of the bituminous deposits are high grade coals.

What has particularly impressed the Americans visiting this field is the fact that in this southeastern corner of British Columbia there are more than 1,000,000 acres of proved coal lands, carrying billions of tons and five per cent is high grade coal, far in excess of any other bituminous coalfied on the American continent, if not in the world.

Another feature that has interested the investigators is the appalling waste there has been of by-products. Coke ovens have been burning up millions of tons of raw coal saving only the carbonized product and permitting all the other latent values to go up in smoke. They show that last year the value of products obtained in the by-product ovens of the United States was approximately $150,-000,000, while the coal if carbonized in the way it is carbonized in British Columbia would have given a coke product not more than $75,000,000.

ROAD BUILDING IN CRANBROOK AREA

Cranbrook, Aug. 4.—The appointment of Oliver Bristow, a well known Cranbrook man who recently returned from overseas, to the position of road superintendent, is meeting with approval on all sides, says the Cranbrook Courier. Mr. Bristow is familiar with the work and is acquainted with all the roads and trails in the district.

Road work in the Cranbrook district is being continued and will be carried on until late in the fall. Besides the usual amount of repair work there has been two miles of reconstruction work done between Cranbrook and Moyie, straightening and widening the road and the same kind of work has been done from Moyie to Goatfell and Kingsgate. A crew is now working at Yahk opening up the streets and doing other necessary work at that point to accommodate the large amount of new business being done there, and the government is constructing a police building at that place. A crew is at work on a new road at Green Bay and around the lake shore to the beach, which has been much needed for years, as this is one of the most popular bathing and recreation places in the vicinity of Cranbrook.

ANYOX COKE OVENS DOING GREAT WORK

Anyox, Aug. 2.—Using coal taken from its mines at Cassidy, on Vancouver Island, the Granby coke plant at Anyox is now in full operation turning out a splendid product for use in the smelter. Thirty ovens each with a capacity of more than ten tons are now making coke. Work on the by-product plant will be completed in September and turned over to the Granby Co. by the Foundation Co., builders. Pushing coke is now a daily operation.

By-products which will be handled are coal tar, which is now being extracted in large quantities and stored in a huge tank. Immediate market for this is found in all northwest seaport cities where it is fractionated and used in creosote products for piling. The benzol plant is being fast turned to completion and will be the most up to date plant of its kind on the Pacific Coast. Gas will be manufactured and turned into mains that will supply fuel for the big power and compressor plant during the winter months when steam takes the place of waterpower.

There are seventeen other by-products to be manufactured, including aramonia, "T.N.T.", touloul and dyes. The plant was erected at a cost of several million of dollars, being constructed of steel, pressed brick and concrete.

FOR EX-PRISONERS OF WAR

At first blush it may appear a somewhat novel idea that decorations should be awarded to men who have been prisoners of war in Germany or Turkey, but the more the proposal is examined the greater appears the desirability that such recognition should be extended. The world, as yet, knows but little of the heroism displayed by numbers of these men or how under duress they refused to engage in work for their captors which would assist the enemy in the prosecution of the war, and of how individuals, persecuted to the extent of being buffeted about and even bayonetted, fought day and night to better the lot of their comrades. The ills unflinchingly endured by such men show their conduct ranks with that of those who performed deeds of valor in No Man's Land, and it is no less due to them that the patriotism they displayed under the most adverse circumstances should be recognized.

The British government is considering the desirability of giving decorations to former prisoners of war. The Canadian government, although it does not give war decorations, is assembling information about the life and deeds of Canadians who were in prison camps of Germany, so that it may be forwarded to the British War Office. Many of these prisoners have returned to their homes, and some o fthem, it is obvious from what their comrades in captivity have to say, are fully deserving of recognition. There are Canadians who spent upwards of three years in German prison camps during the war. In doing so they missed their chances of decoration and promotion through deeds on the battlefield, but when in prison many of them sustained the honor of their country in no uncertain way, and even performed feats which saved the lives of their comrades from German cruelty. These men should be rewarded; for certain of them no decoration would be too great. They served their homeland no less certainly in captivity than they would have done had they been privileged to fight through the war. Since the British government is about to recognize them it is the duty of all who have been prisoners to give the War Office all the information in their power so that those who deserve to be honored will not be forgotten.—Colonist.

THE CULPRITS

An imposing list of volunteer whipping boys for the ex-Kaiser has been made up recently, charmingly coincident with the abatement of public interest in the future of the hermit of Amerongen. Princes and prime ministers have offered to take upon themselves the burden of defense. Bethmann-Holweg has gone further, as befits a statesman, and has declared himself responsible, as in law he was, for the acts of his emperor. The death penalty being by tacit consent excluded, the trial should be a piquant affair in any case.

It is a pity that things should have worked out this way, and that the trial of the ex-Kaiser should be used as a diversion in English politics. For there is a serious side to it. The trrial is intended to be the responsibility for the war, just as later examinations will determine the criminality of those who ordered pillage and terror in Belgium and deportation in France. In that sense it does not matter who is tried. It is important that the proper witnesses be present. And it is of first importance that the trial be public. A star-chamber proceeding will do little to satisfy the public's demand for justice and less to make a repetition of the offense impossible. It is a case in which the prosecution must lay itself open to publicity as pitiless as justice.—Collier's.

German Ry. Equipment for Allies

Thanks to the provision in the Armistice calling for delivery by Germany of 5,000 locomotives and 150,-000 freight cars, a considerable proportion of the railway equipment in Belgium and Northern France is of German manufacture. The locomotives were to be delivered in good order and were to be accompanied by spare parts. The American inspection by the engineers of our Army of Occupation was discriminating, if not severe. Of the total of 8,333 cars inspected our engineers accepted 6,717 and rejected 1,666. The locomotives did not fare so well, for out of 225 inspected by our officers 143 were rejected and only 82 accepted.

Fish to Destroy Mosquito Larvae

A long series of experiments was made last year by Mr. S. F. Hildebrand, of the Bureau of Fisheries, on the use of the top minnow (Gambusia affinis) for destroying the larvae of mosquitoes in ponds. This investigation was carried on at the request of the Public Health Service as a part of the antimalarial work in the extra-cantonment zone of Camp Hancock, Ga. In his recently published report on the xperiments, Mr. Hildebrandstates that this species of fish is especially suitable for antimosquito work because (1) it seeks its food at the surface; (2) it is very prolific; (3) it gives birth to well-developed young, therefore requiring no special environment for depositing and hatrhing the eggs; (4) it lives and thrives under a great variety of conditions and frequents areas especially suitable for the support of the mosquito larvae; and (5) it usually lives and multiplies in ponds stocked with predacious fishes, provided it has very shallow water for refuge. Mosqhitoes may, however, breed in water so badly polluted that Gambusia is almost instantly killed thereby.—Scientific American.

Both these sterling remedies are sold by dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

"Fruit-a-tives" is also put up in a trial size which sells for 25c.

Climbing Fish

An interesting account of the climbing catfish of Columbia (Arges marmoratus) was published a few years ago by Mr. R. D. O. Johnson. These fish can climb, by means of suction apparatus, not only up the steeply inclined bed of a mountain torrent, but even up a smooth vertical surface. Mr. Johnson saw some of them climb a vertical distance of 18 feet in half an hour, up a wall of rock over which trickled a thin film of water. In connection with a recent republication of this article in" Natural History," Mr. G. K. Noble states that other species of fish are known to climb in the same manner. Several of these occur in the Himalaya. Nemachilus rupicola and perhaps other species of mountain cyprinids adhere to the rocks by means of their smooth ventral skin and enlarged lips. The silurid genera Pseudecheneis and Glyptosternum cling by means of a well-developed abdominal sucker The mountain torrents of the Himalaya form the nursery for many species of frogs. Their tadpoles, like the fish have become adapted to their location; some cling by means of their lips and ventral musculature, while others possess a well-developed ventral sucker.—Scientific American.

Nauen Wireless Time Signals

In a recent issue of "Zeitschrift fur Instrumentenkunde", a device is described whose operation is initiated by a single current impulse. This impulse actuates an electromagnet and sets a pendulum free. The pendulum in its swings causes a disk to rotate in jerks, following the swings of the pendulum. On the edge of the disk projections are provided that make a series of contacts by pressing against the tongue of a spring, and these contacts control the signals. After the series of time signals has been given in one revolution of the disk, a cam on the disk closes a second contact, which causes a second electromagnet to be energized. This electromagnet releases an armature that cathces the pendulum and arrests it ready for its release for the first electromagnet at the succeeding time signal.

Sandy Macneil, one of the delegates to the Liberal Convention at Ottawa, managed to make his voice heard the other day and landed a place on one of the committees.

The picture you will never forget, "Mickey."

Press reports from the Liberal Convention at Ottawa would seem to indicate that the delegates present were pretty much of the same variety that went from Fernie, that is, of the old dyed in the wool machine brand.

The regular monthly meeting of the Fernie District Committee for National Reconstruction, which should be held on Tuesday next, has been postponed for one week, or until Tuesday, Aug. 19, at 8 p.m. in the council chamber.

Dave Irvine, International Board Member of the U. M. W. of A., has called a meeting in the Catholic church hall of all those who wish to continue their membership in the U. M. W. of A. The meeting is called for 2 p.m. Saturday.

Fred G. Perry leaves tomorrow evening for Calgary to act as stenographer for the Alberta Industrial Congress during the tour of that province, which will include sessions at Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, Calgary, Edmonton and Banff, during the next fortnight.

Alberta coal mine operators say they will have no dealings with officers of the One Big Union. If they maintain this attitude it is not difficult to see where the O. B. U. will "get off at" in District 18. The miners have been badly advised in this business.

It is reported on the streets that the Elk Lumber Co. are negotiating for the purchase of the Cedar Valley limits. It is sincerely to be hoped that the reports are true as it would be a hard blow to this city to have the Elk Lumber Co. cease operations in this valley.

Gladstone Local seems to forget that it is an incorporated institution with shareholders who have property rights. One of these days some of those same shareholders are going to get tired and kick the O. B. U. bunch out of their building, which would be quite within their rights.

At Fernie the other evening a poker game was visited by hold-up men and $600 taken from the table. There is nothing surprising about the hold-up part of the story; the unexplainable part of it all is that in Fernie, where the miners have been on strike for three months, there should have been that much loose change lying around.—Calgary Herald.

A big golf match, President vs. Vice-President, in which nearly all the members participated, took place on Wednesday. The scores have not yet all been turned in so it is not known who won the match. At last reports some of the new golfers were still adding up their strokes. Another match will be pulled off next Wednesday afternoon.

Every person in Fernie was out on Thursday to get a look at the airship which passed over the town at 4.30. Capt. Hall, who was also due to pass over the city, met with disaster at Creston, where he landed for gasoline. He had replenished his supply and was preparing to raise from the ground when an automobile crashed into his machine, putting the airship temporarily out of business. Capt. Hall seems to be out of luck in his attempts to make the flight over the Rockies.

The winding up meeting of the Peace Day celebration committee has been deferred until Monday, Aug. 18, at 8 p.m. in the city council chamber, when it is desired that all committeemen and workers will be present. The chairmen of the respective committees are specially requested to bear this date in mind and to notify the individual members of the various committees that it is extremely urgent that all be in attendance. The complete report of the celebration receipts and expenditures will be submitted.

Lieut. Tom Corsan arrived from the coast Wednesday on a visit to his parents. Tom, who enlisted from Victoria at the opening of the war as a private, won his promotion on the field. Early in the war he was severely wounded and it was thought that he would never be able to walk again, but finally under the best surgical treatment that could be secured, he was, after a year in the hospital, once more fit for service. While recovering from his wounds, he, for a time held a position on the office staff but as soon as he was able, returned to the trenches and was in the game until the finish. Tom's many friends are delighted to extend to him the glad hand.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 7, 1919.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Would you kindly allow me a short space in your valuable paper that I may bring to the attention of the ratepayers of the city the unbusiness-like action of the School Board in letting a contract (repairing Central school) to the Currie Bros. for the sum of $950, without asking a price from any of the other contractors of the city. One would naturally think when so much money was to be expended that tenders would be called for if for no other purpose but as a guide, so they would know they were not giving away public money. Apparently the School Boarrd has adopted the Currie Bros. into their family and has granted them a license to do all repairs on the public schools at their own prices.

There are others in this city just as capable of doing part of the school work as the Currie Bros., but who never get a chance to submit prices, but pay more in one year into the city treasury than they do in five. In fact one member of this firm lives outside the city limits — wise man.

Mr. Editor, when we consider that we have on the School Board some of the most clever business men of the city, specially in handling money of their own, why is it they are so lax with the school funds? It is enough to make a person think there is a nigger in the bush somewhere, and it is time for the ratepayers of this city to arouse themselves and find out where he is. Thanking you,

I remain,
A Ratepayer.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 4, 1919.

To the Editor Fernie Free Press.

Dear Sir—Is This Business? One firm does practically all the school work at their own price. The School Board have just given them the contract of repairing the Central School roof and putting on a tin cornice for the tidy sum of $950.00, and without calling for tenders.

An inquiry into some of these matters might enlighten the taxpayers on the high tax question.

There are other and heavier taxpayers in the contracting business who were given no opportunity to figure on this work. This is only a repetition of what has been going on for years and it is time something was done to put a stop to it.

Yours truly,
A. E. Ferguson.

COMMUNICATION

Dear Mr. Editor:—Will you please spare the space for the following:

There are many of our local motorists who do not appear to know the rules of the road, or if they do, don't carry them out. The following pointers are given for their benefit with the request that they observe them as closely as possible:

Always drive on the left side of the road and when passing vehicles going in the same direction, pass them on their right and sound your horn to let them know.

Don't be a road hog, if another car wants to get past you, draw over to your own side and let him do so.

Always slow up when meeting or passing a horse drawn vehicle, and stop your engine if the horse appears at all nervous.

Always keep well into the bank when making any of the curves between here and Elko, and when coming in from Elko swing well out to your left on the curves.

Always slow up and sound your horn when coming to a curve.

Road courtesy costs nothing, and whenever you see another driver in apparent trouble, offer your help; you might need some yourself sometime.

Many accidents which have occured on the Morrissey Hill could have been avoided if proper precautions had been taken. When going up it you should change into low gear at the bottom and not attempt to change gears on the hill, and when coming down it, if you shut off your ignition and go into low gear, you will find that you will hardly have to use the brakes at all, as the car cannot go faster than the engine can turn over in low gear.

The speed limit in the country is 25 miles an hour, and in town it is 15 miles an hour. When turning around in town always go to a corner before doing so, and when standing still have your car headed in the right direction for whichever side of the road you are on. This is a city regulation which the police have orders to enforce.

If the above pointers are carried out, accidents will be minimized.

J. F. Spalding,
Sec., Fernie and District Auto Assoc.

IN MEMORIUM

In sad but loving memory of Lance Corporal Thomas Woods, C. E. F., who was killed in action in France August 10th, 1918.

"Thy purpose Lord, we cannot see,
But all is well that's done by thee
Some day; some time we'll understand."

By his wife and daughter.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of my dear husband, Charles Clarke, who fell on August 10th, 1918.

A loving husband, true and kind,
He was to us in heart and mind.
A peaceful neighbor, too, as well,
When he on earth with us did dwell.
How hard it is to part with those
We hold on earth so dear.
The heart no greater trial knows,
No sorrow more severe.

—From his loving Wife and Children.

FACE THE FACTS

A member of the United States senate complains that the peace treaty "fails to say what are the rights of neutrals." Does the complainant not understand that the league of nations not only destroys the volume of international law built up to protect the rights of neutral nations but abolishes all neutrality as well?—New York Herald.

DISCOUNT ON CAN. MONEY

News dispatches to the effect that American banks in Buffalo, N.Y., are discounting Canadian silver money at the rate of eight cents on the dollar, and that banks in the state of Washington, on the Pacific coast, are discounting Canadian dollars at six p.c. is no surprise to local bankers. In fact, something of this sort was predicted by Hugh Shaw, president of the Union Bank of Canada, at the recent meetng of Alberta managers of that bank in Calgary.

At that time the discount rate was around five per cent., and Mr. Shaw said he would not be surprised to see it drop to six per cent., Local bank managers said this morning that, generally speaking, the discount rate was around 5½ per cent., but that it was difficult to determine what the exast rate would be from day to day, esperially as banks in various cities on the other side of the line were varying the rate.

"If the banks knew what the rate was going to be we could make a lot of money," said one manager, "but we have no more idea of what it will be tomorrow than the general public."

"The basis of the whole trouble," said another well-known senior bank manager in Calgary, "is, of course, the export situation. We are importing far more goods from the United States than we are shipping to them, and as long as that situation continues, the rate of exchange will be against us. Everyone who buys an American motor car, an American suit of clothes, or any commodity made in the States, is helping to keep the exchange rate against us.

"The exchange situation between Canada and the United States is just the reverse of what it is between Canada and the British Isles. That is to say, the rate of exchange between Canada and Britain is in favor of Canada and against Britain. The English pound sterling of a value of $4.86 2-3 cents, can be bought in Canada today for about $4.30. It was even lower a few days ago, but the situation has improved to some extent.

"These differences are caused by precisely the same reasons. Britain has not yet begun to make many exports, and is buying much more from Canada than we are buying from her. Once British exports are resumed, the situation will be remedied. Coal, for instance, is one of the biggest exports of Britain, but little is being shipped now.

"Exchange is a commodity, just like any other kind. When there is more Canadian exchange in the United States than is needed, the price goes down. That is the situation now, and at the same time there is not as much U.S. exchange in Canada as is needed, which puts the price up in this country. It makes a big difference to people going from one country to the other, and is especially in favor of American farmers just now coming into Canada and bringing U.S. money with them.

"One of them came into the bank recently with a draft for about $7,000 and asked me if I could cash it for him. 'Certainly', I said, 'and I will pay you something for it.' The difference in exchange was such that after cashing the draft, he received something over $250 in addition, and went out of the bank with a dazed look, hardly knowing what to think. Of course, if he had been going to the other side of the line, it would have been the other way around, and he would have had to pay about the same amount to get a Canadian draft cashed in the United States."

This manager went on to emphasize the necessity of Canadians buying Canadian made commodities. He also said that, of course, the placing of Canadian loans in the United States would help to remedy the situation, and that in time, as Canada got back from a war to peace basis, the situation would gradually improve.

"The export situation," he said, "is due primarily to war conditions, when Canada went into the making of war munitions and supplying other commodities to Britain. Our exports changed their direction to Britain, and the current has not yet changed."

Incidentally, the situation is causing much annoyance to Canadians travelling to the United States who find their money at such a big discount. On the other hand, it operates to the benefit of American travelers coming into Canada, who receive a premium on every American dollar they bring over and spend on this side of the line.—Calgary Herald

AFTER TWENTY YEARS

The persistence of John Armstrong Chaloner, of "Who's Looney Now?" fame, at last brings its rightful reward. Coming back from Virginia to New York, in which state he has long been deemed insane, to fight a libel under the protection of the United States government, Chaloner stayed a little longer after his court victory and made a strong plea to be declared sane and competent. It was granted, Justice Ford confirming the application for the discharge of the committee of his person and property. He is to be congratulated upon the result of his more than 20 years' contention.

The question naturally arises: Was Chaloner ever insane? Was he not "railroaded" to an asylum in the first place by those to whose advantage it was to have him shut up? There is no particular answer to that question, but in the victory the man has won is hope for anybody who may have been unjustly declared incompetent.—Boston Post.

THINK OVER IT.

Thinking men and women will do well to consider the striking arguments brought out by the World Trade Club of San Francisco in their campaign for adoption of the units of the metric system of weights and measures.

They show a striking anomaly: That the metric system was invented by a Briton, James Watt, in 1783, and yet all civilized nations have adopted it exclusively, excepting the United States and Great Britain, in cluding Canada.

That the so-called "British system" of weights and measures is of German origin—a relic of the old German Hanseatic trade league—and yet Germany scrapt it in 1871 and adopted the metric system, invented by a Briton.

People of the British Empire and United States may well ask themselves whether they are not carrying conservatism too far.

The metric system is no untried theory.

Its principle—the principle of decimal computation—has been used in the monetary system of the United States since 1786. If the United States had heeded Thomas Jefferson they should also have adopted this system of weights and measures based on decimals—so simple a system that a child can learn its main features in ten minutes. The Dominion of Canada now uses decimal coinage. We know how well the decimal system works with money. It will work equally well with weights and measures.

The World Trade Club has started the ball rolling. What we all need is to look the subject up.

PLANNED TO SEIZE BARRACKS

Winnipeg, Aug. 5.—R. E. Bray, returned and Winnipeg strike leader, on trial for conspiracy, declared on June 10 last that he had a fully organized band of 3000 to 4000 men ready to take up arms at a given signal. A. A. Heaps, labor alderman of the city of Winnipeg, who is on trial with Bray and six other labor leaders, knew of the plan.

This was the sworn evidence of Detective W. A. McLaughlin, of the Northwest Mounted Police, in court here today. McLaughlin testified in part as follows:

'In the course of my conversation with Bray, he stated that this affair was going to end in a fight and when I lamented the fact that we had no guns, Bray said: 'Don't worry about guns. We will get them. We have got between 3000 and 4000 ready and instructed to be in certain places when the alarm is sounded, when they will get into the citizens' cars which are to carry the militia to Minto barracks, pass themselves off as militia men until they get inside the barracks, get possession of the rifles, turn these on the real soldiers and seize the barracks."

McLaughlin was a plain clothes man assigned to follow the strike and he was in the confidence of several of the labor leaders.

In the same conversation, McLaughlin testified, Bray said that the strikers were fully informed through their agents of what was going on in the ranks of the opposition. Bray had heard that a raid was to be made on aliens in the north end of Winnipeg and said that he had got a car and a girl who could "speak their lingo" to warn the aliens. Bray was quoted as saying that "the way the bohunks ran to their homes to get something to fight with was plain evidence that the police would get what was coming to them."

McLaughlin's report covered various meetings of the strikers and their committee and dealt exclusively with utterances made by various leaders as the strike progressed.

PREPARETNESS

We advocate at present no specific solution of our military problem, but we do say that we must prepare against a recurrence of the perils of this war; that this preparation must be such as will increase popular control over foreign policy; and that the dangers of militarism are increased by separation of civilian and military into two classes, and diminished in proportion as the army is the people and the mirror of the mind and the energy of the whole nation.—London Times.

DOCTOR ADVISED HIM TO TAKE IT

A. F. Roberts, Successful Cattle Dealer, Gains 16 Pounds In 60 Days Taking Tanlac

"One of the best doctors in Colorado advised me to take Tanlac, and it has not only overcome my troubles but I have gained sixteen pounds since I began taking it sixty days ago," said A. F. Roberts, who lives at Rocky Ford, Alberta, Canada, a few days ago.

Mr. Roberts is one of the largest cattle dealers in his section of the country, and before moving to Canada a short time ago, he had spent most of his life in Colorado, U.S.A.

"I can now understand why Tanlac enjoys such wide popularity both in Canada and the United States," continued Mr. Roberts, "and since it has done me so much good, I know that it is a very dependable medicine and deserves all the praise that is being given it. For the past two years I have suffered from stomach trouble, and when I commenced taking this Tanlac, it was almost impossible for me to retain anything I ate. I was very nervous and never got a good night's sleep, and finally got so weak and rundown that I was hardly able to get about. I often had dizzy spells, and was bothered a great deal with constipation.

"My physician certainly knew what he was doing when he prescribed Tanlac for me, for it has done the work for me, as I am as healthy and strong now as I ever was in my life. In fact it has done moch more for me than I expected it would do. I have a fine appetite and everything I eat agrees with me perfectly, and I never have the slightest sign of stomach trouble of any kind. I am no longer bothered with constipation, and never have those dizzy spells any more. I have regained all my strength, too, and that nervousness has left me, and I sleep like a log every night. In fact I am simply enjoying perfect health again, and I give Tanlac credit for it all."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Nakusp by E. H. L. McLean; in Trail by E. W. Hozelgood; in Kaslo by Frank Abey; and in Rossland by W. H. Wainman; in Golden by J. A. Buckham; in Bull River by B. E. Markle; and in Field by Field Drug Co.; in New Denver by Chas. F. Nelson; and in Ymir by O. Dowling.

VALUABLE METHODS OF COMBATTING DIPHTHERIA

The New York City Health Department was one of the pioneers in the into this country. The same department is now much interested in securing the general adoption of two other measures for the control of the disease. One is the Schick test, for discovering whether persons are susceptible or immune to diptheria, and the other is the active immunization of susceptible persons by means of toxin-antitoxin mixtures. The Schick test consists in injecting, intracutaneously, a minute quantity of diphtheria toxin. If the subject has not sufficient antitoxin in his blood to constitute immunity, a small local inflamation follows; otherwise the skin remains normal. The negative reaction shows that a person need not take antitoxin treatment in case he is exposed to diphtheria, and it is said that the use of this test would save a large amount of antitoxin and the unnecessary sensitization of more than 65 per cent of exposed individuals. It should, therefore, prove a boon to the health authorities during a diphtheria outbreak. The process known as "active immunization" is said to confer immunity from the disease for at least three years and probably much longer; whereas the immunity due to injections of antitoxin does not last more than three or four weeks. The immunity conferred by the new process does not, however, develop until the lapse of from two to twelve weeks, and so is not appropriate for use in the case of persons recently exposed. The dose consists of a mixture of diphtheria toxin-antitoxin, and three subcutaneous injections are given, at weekly intervals. In New York City diphtheria still causes 1,000 deaths per annum. Dr. W. H. Park, who has made extensive investigations with the Schick test, finds that the susceptibility of the population to diphtheria rises with the age from 15 per cent for infants under three months, up to a maximum of 70 per cent between one and two years, and the diminishes to 15 per cent for persons over 20 years of age. Ample details concerning the very important matters set forth above will be found in Public Health Reports for May, 16th, 1919.

THROW ON THE LIMELIGHT

How many wars have been made in the past, not by the people, but by a handful of old men—often very stupid old men? How many would have been averted if the people had had a say? And how many more if they had had an understanding say? The world, as an outcome of the proceedings of the past five years, has conceived a deep suspicion of press, diplomatic and every other form of obscurantism. It is eager to see the principle of adequate ventillation applied to all public matters—even the most nationally important. So eager that it is prepared to believe that many Huns may have sinned because they knew not what they did.—Sydney Bulletin.

"THE LITTLE HOME PAPER"

"The little home paper comes to me,
As badly printed as it can be;
It's ungrammatical, cheap, absurd—
Yet how I love each intimate word!
For here I am in the teeming town,
Where the sad, mad people rush up and down,
And it's good to get back to the old lost place,
And gossip and smile for a little space.

"The weather is hot; the corn crop's good;
They've had a picnic in Sheldon's Wood.
And Aunt Maria was sick last week;
Ike Morrison's got a swollen cheek,
And the Squire was hurt in a runaway—
More shocked than bruised, I'm glad they say.
Bert Wills—I used to play ball with him—
Is working a farm with his uncle Jim.

"The Red Cross ladies gave a tea,
And raised quite a bit. Old Sol McPhee
Has sold his house on Lincoln Road—
He couldn't carry so big a load.
The Methodist minister's had a call
From a wealthy parish near St. Paul.
And old Herb Sweet is married at last—
He was forty-two. H ow the years rush past!

"But here's an item that makes me see
What a puzzling life can be.
"Ed. Stokes," it reads, was killed in France
When the Allies made their last advance."
Ed. Stokes! That boy with the laughing eyes
As blue as the early summer skies!
He wouldn't have killed a fly—and yet,
Without a murmur, without a regret,

"He left the peace of our little place,
And went away with a light in his face;
For out in the world was a job to do,
And he wouldn't come home until it was through! . . .
Four thousand miles from our tiny town
And its hardware store, this boy went down.
Such a quiet lad, such a simple chap—
But he's put East Dunkirk on the map!"

—Charles Hanson Towne.

Naval Rivalry Deprecated

In its leading editorial a recent issue of the "Naval and Military Record" speaking of the future development of the British Navy said: "The German fleet has disappeared. . . . and the only foreign power which has augmented its Navy upon a large scale is the United States. In these circumstances it will not be easy to hit upon a working formula to represent our minimum needs. . . . We might of course base our future building programmes on the corresponding efforts made by the United States, but the objection to such a course is that it would imply a rivalry in armament between the very Powers on whom the world relies to prevent fresh wars. Few people in this country would approve of a naval policy which could in any sense be interpreted as a threat to our friends across the Atlantic."

Ten Thousand Yearly Ry. Casualties

The Interstate Commerce Commission quarterly accident bulletin of March 31st, 1919, showing the railroad accidents in the United States for the third quarter of 1918, states that in train accidents 348 people were killed and 2147 injured. If that rate prevailed for a whole year, it would result in a total of 1,392 killed and 8,538 injured. For a period of 17 months, which was the time we were in the war, these railway accidents would produce a toll of 2,088 killed and 9,980 wounded, which means that for every 24 United States soldiers killed during the war, the United States railroads alone killed one citizen. Government control of railroads evidently is as dangerous as it is extravagant.

GIRLS! WHITEN YOUR SKIN WITH LEMON JUICE

Make a beauty lotion for a few cents to remove tan, freckles, sallowness.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply you with three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Squeeze the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle, then put in the orchard white and shake well. This makes a quarter pint of the very best lemon skin whitener and complexion beautifier known. Massage this fragrant, creamy lotion daily into the face, neck, arms and hands and just see how freckles, tan, sallowness, redness and roughness disappear and how smooth, soft and clear the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless, and the beautiful results will surprise you.

THE STORY OF WHEAT

Throughout Canada the midsummer sunshine is already painting the wheat fields golden, and soon the now waving grain crop will be tied in bundles and collected in stooks, ranged in rows like prisoners, ready to surrender their wealth of grain to the on-coming threshers. What the harvest will be in quantity will not be known until the threshers' work is finished and what we now speak of by acres can be expressed in bushels.

No plant renders man greater service than does wheat, because it supplies to the greater part—and the better part too — of the western world its staff of life. From wheat the leading nations of the earth obtain their bread.

The origin of the wheat plant is, however, in doubt. It was discussed by the famous scientist, Darwin, in his work on "Animals and Plants in Domestication," but he could not decide whether wheat was derived from a wild plant subjected to cultivation and gradual improvement or whether it was a natural product. Upon this, however, many high authorities agree —its natural home was Mesopatamia, the land between the Euphrates and the Tigris Rivers, which British arms have rescued from the crushing rule of the tyrannical, wrecking Turk.

Mesopotamia was the seat of the mighty Babylonian Empire and in its time one of the richest portions of the known world. Its soil is fertile, but the rainfall there is light and uncertain. The ancient inhabitants built a vast irrigation system which enabled them to grow great crops of wheat. Centuries later the Turks came. They constructed nothing; they did not even keep what they found. The irrigation system fell into ruins, and for many generations the only parts of Mesopotamia that were cultivated were narrow strips along the river banks.

Already two years of British occupation have wrought a great change. The irrigation system is being restored and fertile land that had been allowed to become a waste for want of water, is again producing wheat.

And the people are made secure in the enjoyment of the fruits of their labors, which lies at the very foundation of production on a large scale. Mesopotamia will again be one of the world's wheat producing areas.

Wheat is mentioned in more than sixty passages in the Bible, and in other passages it is included in the general term "corn." In England, by the way, if you mention corn you are supposed to mean wheat, that being the leading kind of corn grown in the country, though the word is also to indicate the cereals generally. In Scotland, "corn" is taken to mean oats. And on this continent the word has been stolen and monopolized by what the early colonists called "Indian corn."

The first mention of wheat in the Bible will be found in Genesis xxx. e4, the passage reading "And Reuben went in the days of the wheat harvest and found mandrakes in the field . .

The Hebrews probably obtained their first wheat from Egypt, too, the grain was carried to the Mediterranean countries of Europe. Wheat was the staple crop of Italy after the peninsula had passed under the rule of Rome, and the grain was grown in most of the adjacent countries.

Italy, however, was not self-supporting in the matter of food, and large quantities of wheat were imported. Egypt became one of the grainaries of Rome, the imported wheat being sea-borne and landed at Ostia, the port of Rome, at the mouth of the River Tiber.

Depending to a large extent for bread upon wheat grown in Egypt, Sicily and Sardinia, sea-power was essential to Rome in order to protect the Mediterranean trade routes. At times that control was lost and disaster threatened. This was particularly the case about the middle of the century before the birth of Christ.

One of the strongest and best organized pirate forces known to history obtained supremacy in the Mediterranean, destroying Roman commerce and even burning ships in the harbor at Ostia. The pirates were doing to Rome what German submarines tried to do to Great Britain.

Then the Roman Senate committed to Pompey the great supreme command over the Mediterranena and its shores. In three months he swept the sea of pirates, and wheat again began to pour into the storehouses of Rome.

The Romans introduced wheat into Great Britain. They did not have to carry it far, because before they invaded Britain they had conquered Gaul, the France of modern times, and the Gauls were growing large crops of wheat when the Romans crossed to the western islands. The Britons began to grow wheat, and the Saxons continued the work. Still, through the Middle Ages the bread of the poorer classes was made of flour ground from the coarser grains.

The first wheat that ripened in Canadian sunshine was grown in 1607 at Port Royal, now Annapolis Basin, Nova Scotia. Here Champlain and de Monts founded a post and built a fort. They were joined by Marc Lescarbot, a lawyer of Paris, a poet, and the earliest writer of Canadian history. Outside the palisades of the fort he cultivated a plot of land in part of which he sowed wheat, brought, of course, from France. His sowing was fall or winter wheat. It grew well, ripened perfertly, and with sickles Lescarbot and his associates cut the crop. That was the first wheat crop harvested on land now within the Dominion of Canada.

Official statictics of the world's wheat production during the five years immediately preceding the outbreak of the late war, show that Great Britain led in the average yield that in bushels per acres, her average being 31.9 or almost 32 bushels. Germany came second with 31.8 bushels; Austria third with 20.2 bushels and Canada fourth with 20 bushels. France was fifth with 19.1 bushels; Hungary sixth with 18.8 bushels and the United States seventh with 14.6 bushels. In Russia the average was only 10.8 bushels, and under the blight of Bolshevism it will drop still lower.

However, owing to her vast grain areas and also somewhat to the fact that many millions of her population eat rye bread, Russia led in the world's export of wheat. During those five years Russia's average annual export amounted to 164,508,000 bushels. Today famine prevails in many parts and it will be widespread before better conditions are restored. This is the result of anarchy trying to disguise itself as democracy, and known to the world as Bolshevism.

As an exporter of wheat the United States stood second, with an average of 108,208,000 bushels and Canada was third with 95,146,000 bushels. Two years later, however, Canada made a record. During 1915-16 Canada exported 267,766,000 bushels Of course, flour is included, expressed in its equivalent in bushels of wheat.

The greatest buyer of wheat in the world is the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. In 1913, the last year before the war, when conditions were normal, Great Britain imported 226,978,000 bushels. It was with the hope of cutting off that supply of food into submission, that Germany launched her campaign of submarine piracy. It wrought much havoc, but it failed.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR

The office of Lord Mayor of London dates from the twelfth century, and the first held office 25 years. It then became annual.

The first two centuries remain misty. However, John Carpenter, town clerk, wrote his copious book in 1419, giving a full account of the Corporation. It is interesting to observe up to what privileges the Lord Mayor fought. He was a century and a half getting the title of Lord, with all its meaning. Most readers will be surprised with what he has gained.

Within the city proper the Lord Mayor ranks next to the King. He is even technically before the Queen Consort, not to mention such dignitaries as the Premier, who has no heraldic rank, the Lord Chancellor and the Archbishop of Canterbury.

The Lord Mayor takes precedence of the Lord Chancellor as First Judge of the Criminal Court. Neither of them enters upon "details" there, but it must be remembered what the outranking means when liberties had to be fought for.

The Lord Mayor of London cannot jump up easily. First he must be a member of one of the livery companies. Next elected alderman. Then Sheriff. Anybody refusing to be an alderman is liable to fine of $2500 if he cannot prove his wealth to be under $150,000 a year. The Sheriff gets $3500 a year, but must spend about $20,000. The Lord Mayor gets $50,000 and spends at least twice that in normal times. When a sovereign dies he attends the Privy Council and is a signer of the proclamation of the new monarch.

HIDES BRING 300 P.C. MORE THAN IN 1910

In the opinion of some users the inflated price of leather is simply a question of a case of supply and demand. So long as European agents are on this side buying up every pound they can lay their hands upon, for which they are prepared to pay fancy prices, so long will the price continue to soar.

"What will be the approximate limit?" was asked one of the men by a reporter.

"There will be no such thing, and I will be surprised if boots next year will not bring $20 a pair. Of course, I am not in the boot and shoe business, but one has only to give the matter but little attention to see that this is more than a possibility."

The manner in which prices have jumped during the past ten years was instanced by this tradesman. Chicago packer steer hides in 1910 were 16c to 18c. This year they are 52c to 55c. Heavy native cows ten years ago ran from 13c to 14c; today they are worth 51c to 52c.

And it is not merely the packer hides that have shot up so, but the hides dressed by ranchers themselves. In 1910, these were, for heavy steers, 10½c to 11½c. This year they are 40c to 45c.

"There is a world shortage of leather," stated the tradesman referred to, "and the inflated prices do not arise from any 'ring' or owing to the actions of stockmen. It is simply a question of buyers coming over to this country with unlimited funds to buy up all the hides in sight for Europe."

BRITISH JAZZ

It is feared that the jazz stuff will not be able to survive a bone-dry world. A man with only half of 1 per cent of alcohol on board can not show feverish excitement over a harmonious discord that carries only half of 1 per cent of real music. London, which is still far from being a dry town, is setting its face sternly against the jazz. The jazz band came to England as a part of the world war. The English people first endured, then pitied, then embraced—just as they would any other amiable vice. It was a half-portion of Ypres and Vimy Ridge. But now that parliament has ratified the peace treaty the British are taking steps to expatriate the jazz. They are anxious to forget all the horrors of war, including the jazz band. In London the men and women who formulate the dances of the people have frowned upon all the wild and woolly stuff inspired by the jazz. Syncopated music and freak orchestral combinations are to be banished even if the provisions of the good of the realm act are to be invoked.—Los Angeles Times.

THE WHEAT CROP

The Federal government's decision to be responsible for the marketing of Canada's wheat crop is in line with the policy now prevailing in the majority of countries which have an exportable surplus. When the crop is taken over the farmers are to receive a cash payment on account and when it is disposed of the surplus proceeds after expenses are deducted will be distributed among the original sellers in proportion to grade and quantity. There is to be no speculation on exchanges and profiteering by handlers of the crop is to be eliminated. This work will be superintended by a Federal board which will sell wheat to millers and wil sell the flour milled for export. For domestic consumption the sales will be made as usual, but the price will be restricted to a fixed maximum of reasonable profit, allowing, within that maximum, competition among the millers thmselves.

It is contended this arrangement will have the effect of bringing down the price of wheat and flour but how it will work in this respect remains to be seen. If world prices are to govern the Canadian crop there will be optimism regarding a consequent reduction in price and similarly an all-round fall in the cost of living. What is of the highest interest to the people is to know what will be understood by a "fixed maximum of reasonable profit" on flour. This would imply that profits will be controlled. They need to be judging from the evidence submitted before the Parliamentary committee which inquired into the cost of living. If the government is actuated by the desire to insure that flour purchased by the home consumer shall not cost him more than is made necessary by actual world prices, and if it carries out this plan, there can be no complaint. Wheat is falling in price on the European markets. We have the evidence of Sir James Wilson that it will fall still farther, and since world conditions are to govern the price in Canada the outlook is at last beginning to look hopeful. Much will depend on the absolute integrity of the personnel of the board that is to be appointed. This board must carry out its task without fear or favor. It must be composed of men who have both the ability and knowledge to deal with their important task.—Colonist.

CAMP FIRES DESTROYERS OF B.C. FORESTS

The camp fires of fishing and picnic parties continues to destroy more of public-owned timber than could be grown by the planting of scores of millions of trees. Urgent suggestions have been received from every quarter that the government should commence to replace the waste areas, but it strikes us that the first thing to do is to put a period to the destruction of timber that has taken centuries to become merchantable. The extinguishing of camp fires is an inexpensive method of handling this proposition, and if this were done there would be less necessity to make demands on the government for the re-afforestation of the country. Take a leaf out of the book of the veteran woodsmen who build their fires small and on a safe spot, such as on a rocky shore or sand and gravel base, but never among leaves or against a log.—Western Lumberman.

"THE ROMANCE OF TARZAN" COMING TO THE ORPHEUM

Vivid in ccharacterization and gripping in plot is "The Romance of Tarzan," which visualizes the concluding chapters of Edgar Rice Burrough's great story, "Tarzan of the Apes," for patrons of the moveing picture screen.

"The Romance of Tarzan" will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre soon. It is in seven parts, and in addition to the remarkable novelty of its theme orers the eye a rare treat with scenes of natural splendor, amid which wild animals nad equally savage cannibals are shown in all their primitive strength and cruelty.

Elmo Lincoln again takes the part of Tarzan, the white ruler of this untamed wilderness, while Enid Markey has the role of Jane Porter, the beautiful daughter of the rich American scientist on an exploring expedition in the wilds of Africa, where she meets and loves Tarzan.

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S OIL PROSPECTS

Edmonton.—Prof. J. C. Gwillim, of the mining engineering department of Queen's University, Kingston, has undertaken to make for the British Columbia government a survey of the western Peace River district at the headwaters of the Peace River, and with a party has gone north for this purpose. The particular object of the survey is to ascertain the oil possibilities of that region. There is a belief among geologists and prospectors that the country has petroleum as well as the Alberta section, and Prof .Gwillim's work will be to investigate the lay of the land and make a report to the B.C. government. The professor had undertaken this survey before being requested by the Alberta government to make an examination of Alberta's iron possibilities.

For the purpose of furnishing a complete geological map of the country through which the Smoky and Little Smoky rivers flow, Prof. F. H. McLaren of the Canadian geological survey, has gone north with a party of four men to carry to a conclusion the work commenced last summer.

UNION GOVERNMENT'S RECORD

At a moment when the Unionist party is about to undergo a transformation from a temporary perhaps to a permanent character, the eastern press has been summing up the Union Government's accomplishments. These are not so small nor so insignificant as might be thought from the remarks of some critics.

The Toronto Star, by no means an enthusiastic supporter, quotes the following as, "things accomplished by the Union Government," which could have been "accomplished by no party administration."

The passage of the conscription bill whereby the army was maintained at full strength and enabled to do its share in the war. The maintenance of the Excess Profits Tax which powerful interests sought to destroy. The adoption of the income tax with its super-tax which hit wealthy men in their sorest spot, the pocket-book. The limitation of the profits of the packers to 11 per cent. (which as the Star points out would have been impossible if the opposing "interests" had been able to saw off one party against the other as they have too often done.) The introduction of Prohibition and the suppression of the liquor traffic during the war. The abolition of patronage in the outside civil service, and in the purchasing of supplies for government departments. The taking over of the Canadian Northern Railway Company and the decision to purchase the Grand Trunk Company. The creation of a Board of Commerce to bring down the high cost of living and to curb profiteering. The abolition of titles in Canada. Tariff changes, including the free list, on which are placed wheat, flour and potatoes.

This is not a bad record for a government which has been in existence for only a little over a year and a half. The Toronto Star is satisfied. While it admits the Conservatives look coldly on a government with Liberals in it and the Liberals dislike a Conservative Prime Minister, yet it concludes that "more progressive measures have been introduced and put into effect by the Union Government since it came into office than the country has got from any preceding one-party Administration, or would have got from any such Administration, Liberal or Conservative, during the same period. The coalition enabled reforms to be introduced which would not otherwise have been possible."

Union Government has its weaknesses and defects, but it cannot be said, in view of the above record to have been either a mistake or a failure.—Vancouver World.

Electric Heated Clothes for Airmen

The extreme cold encountered at the higher altitudes makes it necessary to provide electrically-heated clothes for airmen, at least in the instances of most military machines which offer no protection to the passengers. The energy required to heat these suits is generally around 80 watts, disposed as follows: Helmet, 20 watts; each glove, 16 watts; each moccasin, 14 watts. The energy is supplied at 12 volts, either from a storage battery or from a small fan-driven generator of streamline shape mounted on the airplane, the fan being rotated by the passage of the plane through the air. The heating elements are flat loops of resistance wire spaced about seven per inch and about nine thirty-seconds inch wide per row. They are machine-sewed on a cotton cloth base, the cotton thread being carried along the top and bottom of each row of loops parallel to the horizontal axis of the row. Flexibility results from this mounting, and the base can be stretched or crumpled at will without danger of breaking the wire. Each heating element is composed of two bare wires in contact with one another throughout a considerable part of every loop, so that if a break occurs in any one wire, the effect is merely to force the small amount of energy concerned through a conducting path of smaller cross-section between the break and the near points of contact.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

"God Save the King" and bless his popular eldest boy.

The newspapers throughout this fair Dominion are giving considerable space to the coming of His Royal Highness, The Prince of Wales, to Canada. The Fernie District Ledger gives the Prince two colums, and tersely remarks as follows: "The Prince may come to Fernie, and he may go to see beautiful Elko, and if he does, Fred Roo will come out of his store and warn his Royal Highness about the terrible bolsheviks infesting this country. Turn as he will the poor prince will always be finding someone to take the joy out of life by trying to make him believe that this portion of his father's domain is rebellious." Jim Thistlebeak says if the prince comes to B.C. and wants to see the best of it, he will sure come to Elko, where he will receive a royal welcome with no country rock in it. No person will mention anything about the terrible bolsheviks or try to take the joy out of his trip while around the old historic burg of Elko, because he is coming from merry England.

Where kings may be beloved and monarchy
Can teach Bolsheviks how they must be free.

If he should pay us a visit, he will remember Elko as the one bright spot in this whole Dominion he visited, minus affectation, and memorials shallow as Grasshopper Creek in August. He will see scenery that drives artists mad with joy, while the trout jumps high, inhaling the pure air of Heaven, and when he leaves Elko he will say:

"Well Jim, old boy, "I'll say au revoir'
He'll drop a tear and heave a sigh
"No better burg I've ever touched,
And Jim, old boy, I thank you much."

Mrs. R. Reading and daughter Sybil, of Vancouver, were in Elko last week visiting some of the picturesque spots they had spent many a happy day in, from Fernie coke oven fog, and talked over old times wiht Jim Thistlebeak.

Alex. Gladstone, of Winnipeg, who is the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. T. Prentice, manager of the A. MacDonald Co., Fernie, was down visiting the Elk canyon and falls last week. He was so impressed with the beautiful scenery that he wanted Prentice to go and wire his wife and family, while he hunted up a suitable place to camp.

It pays to advertise if you know how, but if you are advertising to donkeys, do not make fun of long ears. We are still anxiously waiting for the C.P.R. Freight Claim agent at Edmonton to settle that claim we have for 50 lbs. of butter shipped from Edmonton last May, from the Swift Canadian Co. If the C.P.R. had to run their business under the same conditions they impose on some of the merchants, there would be a lot of pink tea railroaders looking for jobs.

Miss Florence McNeill, of Regina, whose charming personality makes Cleopatra look like Martha the sewing girl, can sing like a nightingale, and talk to beat the band was in Elko this week fraternizing with Jim Thistlebeak, and left via auto for Nelson with an overland trout salesman and a candy manufacturer from Medicine Hat.

A great many comments have been made to the writer and we have received several letters re the remarks we made in the papers last week re the roads in the Roosville Valley and the Flagstone district, and we say again that the roads are rotten and it is a crime for any government to ignore them the way this false alarm government is ignoring the whole people. This is no attack on Supt. of roads, McDonald. He's the best man the district has had, and doing good work, and giving good satisfaction all along the route, but its the nincompoops ahead of him that know no more about road building than a bullfrog knows about an eagle. The sooner John Oliver and his whole bunch is back on the farm hoeing spuds and weeding onions, the better for the tax-payer of B. C. The people of B. C. wanted a change of government and they got one, and the sooner they make another change the better.

CAPT. HOY EXPLAINS ACCIDENT

Vancouver, Aug. 13.—Capt. E. C. Hoy, the first aviator to fly across the Rocky mountains, the feat being accomplished during the trans-Rocky flight, stepped from the train here last night bearing evidence that he had been in an airplane crash.

His face under the right eye was decorated with sticking plaster. He had been cut slightly when his plane crashed at Golden on Monday, but otherwise he appeared none the worse.

"The city of Vancouvver is proud of you," said Acting Mayor Owen, as he extended an official welcome to Capt. Hoy. There were a large number of personal friends in addition to citizens representing various public bodies gathered at the station when the train pulled in.

Capt. Hoy sad:

"The trouble was altogether caused by an inadequate landing ground. I was only about 15 feet off the ground when I had to bank steeply in an effort to avoid trees and the plane sideslipped and the wing crashed into the ground. The machine, I am afraid, is a total wreck."

STRIKE NOW BREAKING UP

The strike situation is clearing more every day and it now looks as though the men would be back at work in a few days. The gradual undercurrent of feeling against the O.B.U. reached a climax this week when President Christophers and several of the District Officers were ordered out of Wayne and Drumheller.

The aims of the One Big Union as indicated in its constitution issued at the Conventon held in Calgary in June are clearly in contravention of the provisions of the Criminal Code, which declares it to be an offence to belong to any organization which advocates force, confiscation of property without compensation and the overthrow of constituted form of government.

Inasmuch as the One Big Union leaders have on various occasions openly advocated the use of these unlawful methods and because they are not recognized by the international labor movement, they and their organization cannot be recognized or tolerated. The Mine Operators Association and the United Mine Workers are in complete accord on this point and their decision is fully endorsed by W. H. Armstrong, Fuel Director, on behalf and with the approval of the Federal Department of Labor.

An agreement has been reached whereby individual mines will be opened on order of the Fuel Director and such orders will be issued as soon as individual operators and the representatives of the United Mine Workers of America are in a position to start said mines as provided by existing agreements with that organization and all orders issued by the Director of Coal Operations, which are in effect, including the order 124 of April 1919, together with the right therein to settlement and the adjustment of disputes. The resumption of work in all the mines now depends upon the men themselves, who are guaranteed rates and conditions as set forth in the existing agreements and Order 124, which gave the outside employees 9 hours' pay for 8 hours work, and also Order 126, which has reference to new agreements.

Orders have been issued today for the reopening of 16 mines in District 18.

CITY FATHERS IN SESSION

The regular meeting of the city council took place last evening with the mayor in the chair and all the aldermen present with the exception of Ald. Robichaud.

Minutes of the previous meeting were adopted as read.

A delegation from the G. W. V. A., with Mr. Mitchell as spokesman, waited on the council with regard to to loans which are being made by the federal government for the building of homes for returned men, these loans being handled through the provincial government, who guarantee repayment to the federal government, and who in turn work through the municipal bodies of the province. The amount allotted to Fernie in this manner was $15,000, but it is thought that this can be increased considerably. The council decided to communicate with the provincial government to see if these loans can be secured to purchase property instead of building new houses, as this city is already overbuilt and property can be purchased much cheaper than by building at the present time.

Mr. Mitchell also appealed to the council to provide a suitable place for an indoor rifle range for the boys of the city. The total cost of fitting it up would not exceed $50, if a suitable place could be found. A committee of the council will look into the matter.

A resolution from the Princeton Board of Trade, asking the Dominion government to immediately commence work on the uncompleted links of the National Highway in B.C., was endorsed.

Govt. Engineer Cummings of Cranbrook will be asked to check up the work done on river bank protection, so that the city will know just how much they still have on hand to spend on this work.

An invitation from the Union of B. C. municipalities to send a representative to their meeting at Vancouver in September, gave Ald. Gates a chance to ask a few questions about who was really responsible for the present law, which penalizes a taxpayer to the extent of 15 per cent if his taxes are not paid before Oct. 31. It would appear that the Union of B.C. Municipalities had asked the government to enact this legislation. Ald Gates thought, that while possibly it might be a good thing in some localities, it did not appear to work out justly to this community. He considered the 15 per cent penalty was altogether too high, as did other members of the council. The matter of sending a delegate will be taken up at the next meeting.

The poles and lines of the G. N. W. Telegraph Co. from their former up town office to the depot, will be purchased by the city, as they are now making use of a few of the poles.

IMPORTANT MEETING

On Thursday next, the 21st, there will be a meeting of the Board of Trade in the Council Chamber at 8 p.m .This meeting is called for the discussion of business of vital importance to our town.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee, President A. Corrie and J. F. Spalding were appointed to canvas the town for members, and up to the present time have secured about 140, and expect to bring the number up to 200. Even now this is the largest membership the Board has ever had and is an evidence of the interest which has at last been created in the most important matter which will come up for discussion, viz., Publicity.

There is only one way in which a town can make anything of itself, and that is by its citizens getting away from class factions, sinking all petty differences and getting together and pulling in the same direction for the general well being of the whole, in other words, cutting out the small town stuff.

The fact that not only have the men in business joined up but almost without exception all their employees, also, is evidence that this better feeling is existing, and now is the time to cement it by working together for the benefit of all.

This is the best move that the Board of Trade has ever made. The admittance of the younger element to its membership cannot help but give pep to its actions. It is hoped that every one of the new members who possibly can, will be at the meeting next Thursday, and help the different committees to get off to a good start.

CONCERT BY G.W.V.A. CONCERT PARTY

The Grand theatre was filled to its utmost capacity on Friday evening last when the local Veterans Concert Party, dressed in their new costumes ,gave a concert on behalf of the funds of the Catholic church. The efforts of the promoters were very successful. When the curtain arose and the gallant fellows who in the past had been battling against the Huns and who at present are actively engaged in battling against despair and melancholy, cheer after cheer arose. A lengthy program of solos, part songs, elocution, step-dancing, music and musical interludes was given, each artist filling the part creditably to themselves and the aggregation. Space will not permit us to speak of each individual turn. The position as interlocuter was admirably filled by R. Billsborough, secretary of the party. The corner men, Pete Mulligan and Tommy Joinson, with their "funny stuff" were the delight of young and old alike. Harold Bowen as a soloist received rounds of applause, and assisted by J. Hayes gave a realization of Old Bill and Bert, and the singing of "Joan of Arc" under the reign of "Itchy Koo" provoked great laughter. Jack Hayes as step dancer was all that could be desired. The vocal efforts of the Riley Brothers are too well known to need much mention. As a humorous entertainer G. Parnell made good, receiving encores. The quartette, consisting of Banks, Riley Brothers and Parnell, were well received. The wild and woolly west mining camps, where drinking and revolver play were the order, were vividly portrayed by the elocutionist of the party, H. Wheeler, who held his audience spellbound by his dramatic rendition of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew." It is to be hoped this party will again appear at the theatre in the near future and a full appreciation shown. After the show the boys were the guests of Father Michel and church party to a supper in the school room. Remarks of an appropriate nature were delivered by the members of the church.

WHY MINERS WENT ON STRIKE

"Did the coal miners of Alberta go on strike because they wanted 11 hours' pay for 8 hours' work for a score or so of their number? No. It was because of certain influences in the world, and which were particularly active among the miners, in which the doctrine is preached of the destruction of industry, the confiscation of property and the overthrow of government.

Such was the declaration of Senator G. D. Robertson, minister of labor, in an address before the Industrial Congress in the Grand theatre yesterday afternoon.

Senator Robertson announced that he had attended a conference during the morning of representatives of the International Mine Workers Union and of the Alberta Operators.

"I tell you," said he, "that the government is backing the international unions who believe in the sancity of an agreement. You will have coal in Alberta this winter if you will back the United Mine Workers of America, with their membership of 500,000 in Canada and the United States. The Canadian government is satisfied with the way in which they conduct their business on a sound basis, and the way in which they carry out the promises they make. They have promised to build up the coal industry in Alberta again, and they will do their best to do it.

"It is true that the workingman's pay today has not the purchasing power that it had five years ago, but that does not justify him in a propaganda of destruction of industry, confiscation of property and the overthrow of the government."

Senator Robertson declared he was glad of the opportunity of discussing one of the most important problems before Canada with the members of the Industrial Congress.

"The natural advantages of Alberta exceed those of any other province in Canada," said he, as he was enumerated them—grain, cattle, timber, coal, gas, etc.

"Alberta is a country for the man who is willing to work," he remarked, continuing with an analysis of the causes of industrial unrest as they exist on the North American continent.

He attributed the spirit of brotherhood between the United States and Canada in a large measure to the international labor unions and brotherhoods and to their unifying influence.

"Which is the proper and sensible view?" he asked. "That capital and labor can work together or that there is nothing in common between them?"

Supporters of the latter idea declare that the recent extensive growth of the internationals is raising an insuperable bar to the advent of real socialism, as advocated by the extremists. This province has seen recently the growth of both these bodies.

"There is a certain class of agitation today — and he has been no stranger in Canada for the past few months—who declares that all forms of governments are against labor. Of course that is not correct. Certainly it is not true of those nations who signed the labor clauses in the League of Nations.

"Before the Dominion of Canada could participate intelligently in the world's labor convention, it would have to know the views of Canadian employers and workmen. The industrial relations commission secured the necessary data for this. Then, also, an industrial congress is being held in Ottawa next month, to discuss labor legislation.

"Some representatives of workingmen will say, and are saying, that the workingman has no representation in framing legislation, and so on. Yet on thirteen various boards and commissions named by the Dominion government there were seventeen labor representatives named, in nearly every case by labor bodies.

The Dominion government has 88 employment bureaus established, which have placed 103,000 working men and women up to July 1, 1919, and are now placing them at the rate of 1000 per day.

Labor has two representatives on the Dominion and one on each provincial service council. Senator Robertson described the machinery established by the government to prevent a cessation of work during the war.

"One class of agitator declares that labor must seize the industries and control the government. That would mean that one-eighth of the population would control the whole.

Labor's loyalty to the state was defended by the senator, who declared that he believed 90 per cent of the laboring men were behind recognized law and order. Thirty-nine million dollars of the last war loan was contributed by workmen, while much more probably was subscribed through various agencies not directly connected with labor.

During June, he said, Canada lost 1,004,000 days of work, due to 80 strikes, with a monetary loss of $3,500,000 and yet in every case the workmen would have been farther ahead if they had arbitrated.

SAYS CHRISTOPHERS HAS THROWN UP SPONGE

That P. M. Christophers has gone on record as severing his connection with the One Big Union, is the statement brought to Calgary by a Drumheller man, who says that Mr. Christophers, of his own free will and accord, subscribed before witnesses to the following declaration:

"I, P. M. Christophers, do solemnly declare that I am through with the O.B.U. or I.W.W. movements. That I see I have been wrong, and have been misleading ignorant men who do not know any better. I realize that I have made a serious mistake, and that during these times of war I should have been otherwise engaged. I am sorry, and apologize for what I have done, and here on my bended knees, before my God, I swear that I will have nothing further to do with this movement, and that I will leave the country."

FORSAKING THE O.B.U.

Vancouver, Aug. 13.—Important secessions from the local ranks of the One Big Union organization took place here last night, when the local unions of the International Longshoremen, the Shipwrights and the Pressmen and Press Feeders voted to resign from the One Big Union.

Fred Perry is in Calgary this week reporting the big Industrial Convention.

DISTRICT 18 BROKE FAITH

Calgary, Aug. 12. — The International Mine Workers, who are at present in the city, outline their attitude towards the One Big Union in the following statement, which was made to the Calgary Herald today. In this statement they openly charge the strikers with violating their agreement with the operators:

"The commission representing the United Mine Workers of America takes this opportunity of informing the coal miners and the general public of the policy that will guide them in their efforts to adjust the present state of affairs in this territory, which was formerly known as District 18.

"The commission acting for the International organization cannot and will not countenance a strike that is called in violation of our international law, which is clearly defined in Section 1, Article 16, of our international constitution, which reads as follows:

"Section 1—No district shall be permitted to engage in a strike involving of, or a major portion of, its members without the sanction of an international convention or the international executive board.

"The section of the constitution quoted above makes it very clear to those who desire to see that the district officers were without authority to call the entire district out on strike until they received the permission to do so from the international executive board or the international convention and this permission was neither asked for or given in this instance. The International Union was ignored in the matter entirely.

"The International Union will use its resources to see that the law of our organization that was adopted by referendum vote of the rank and file will be complied with either by individuals or units affiliated with the International Union.

"The United Mine Workers success is largely attributed to their honesty of purpose and the manner in which they have lived up to terms of their contracts entered into between the members of our union and the coal operators. The International Union insists that both parties to contracts will carry out its terms in all sincerity.

"We, the International Commission find, after investigation, that the terms of the contracts agreed to between the members of our union and the Western Coal Operators Association have not been carried out in this particular instance. We find that the working agreement in District 18 on Page 17, provides for:

"In case of either local or general suspension of mining, either at the expiration of this agreement or otherwise, the engineers, firemen and pumpmen shall not suspend work but shall when mining is suspended, fully protect all the companies' property under their care and operate fans and pumps and load and hoist such men and supplies as may be required to protect the company's property and any and all coal required to keep up steam at the company's plant. But it is understood and agreed that the company will not ask them to hoist any coal for sale on the market.

"The International Commission finds after investigation that the above rule has not been carried out in its entirety by the officers and members of District 18, as firemen, pumpmen and engineers was included in the call for the strike on May 24, 1919, and which was a distinct violation of that part of the agreement quoted above.

"We have no further desire to go into details concerning the present situation as this is certainly no time to criticize those who have been the victims of this destructive policy. The commission will use every effort to try and establish order out of the present chaotic condition that exists in this territory and if the proper cooperation of the rank and file is received then there can be no good reason why the mines cannot be put into operation and the United Mine basis for working conditions and Workers' agreement continue as a the settlement of disputes. To reach this stage it will be necessary to once more have local unions in the various mining camps throughout this territory with a charter of the United Mine Workers.

"In each locality where this is accomplished the miners will be notified when to resume work under their disputes which may arise under the present existing agreement and any agreement or out of Order No. 124 will be then taken up and the International Union will see that the interests of the members of the United Mine Workers are fully protected.

"The International Commission desires to call the attention of the coal miners in this district to the intimidating methods of the advocates of the One Bg Union, in which they try to prevent men from joining the United Mine Workers. The word 'scab' is commonly used to intimidate men from joining the United Mine Workers. The International Commission takes this means of informing all the coal miners in this territory that there is no strike in this territory which has been endorsed by the International organization and we wish to inform those men who became members of our union that they will be furnished protection against the intimidating underhand tactics that are employed by the One Big Union to prevent them from becoming members of the United Mine Workers.

"The commission treats the inferences of the One Big Union advocates with the contempt that they deserve and before long some of these individuals who drew their salary from the United Mine Workers will be apologizing for their action. We are desirous to say on behalf of the International Union that the United Mine Workers are here to stay.

"Too great a sacrifice has been made by the coal miners to build up the United Mine Workers' organization to its present proportions and power for the International Union to permit it t obe destroyed or supplanted by an organization that was born during a period of hysterics when thoughtfulness and consideration of consequences was lacking. The commission warns those who may have charge of the funds or property that belongs to the United Mine Workers of America that they will be held to strict accountability for their safe keeping until the funds and property is turned over to the United Mine Workers.

"In conclusion we hope the miners will give this their earnest and thoughtful consideration and lend their full undivided support to the International Commission in restoring order and establishing the banner of the United Mine Workers in every coal mining camp in what was formerly District 18, so that we may be able once more to get this district into normal condition.

TYPO OFFICERS TALK ON O.B.U.

"The O. B. U. will undoubtedly share the same fate as the Knights of Labor, an organization that was started thirty years ago in the United States," was a remark made to a representative of the Calgary Herald on Monday morning by J. W. Hayes, secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union. He is is on a visit here to the local union with W. W. Barrett, the first vice-president.

In referring to the now defunct American organization mentioned, Mr. Hayes stated that all the men were thoroughly honest and capable and real organizers, but when they came to the point where they had to put theories into practice they failed. "The O.B.U. will amount to exactly the same thing," he said. "With some people it is a mistaken idea, and with others it is effort to 'capitalize' labor. The people who take it up honestly are those who have the mistaken idea.

"In my opinion the Winnipeg strike was a disastrous thing for labor," he continued, "but I also believe that the result has been of benefit to western Canada. The original intention of the O.B.U. was to give a demonstration on July 1 of a general strike. The Winnipeg strike occurring previous to that time showed what the result would be and because of that this 'demonstration' has not taken place and will not take place now. The failure of the Winnipeg affair will save a lot of difficulty in Western Canada."

W. W. Barrett, the vice-president, also covered much of the ground taken by Mr. Hayes, who stated that the evidence that had been produced in the Winnipeg trial should convince anybody who had followed that the leaders of the O.B.U. movement in that city were not working in the interests of the workers, that they were advocating revolution. Their main object was overthrow constituted authority. "That is a big thing in my opinion," said Mr. Barrett, "so far as the people are concerned, and it is the thing to watch."

Referring generally to the present unrest throughout Canada and the United States, both representatives agreed that this was primarily caused by the present high cost of living and the uncertainty of employment. "If these two causes could be eliminated," remarked Mr. Barrett, "we would not hear anything about the O.B.U. In the United States during the war we had breadless days, beefless days, and when the armistice was signed packers ran all over the country stating that these regulations had now been taken off and that there were plenty of foodstuffs, but still the price of beef and other commodities went up. Some authority, governmental or otherwise, have got to take hold of people like that and show them where they get off."

Asked if he thought President Wilson was correct in his statement that it was the retailers who were really responsible for the continued advance in prices, Mr. Barrett stated that the president had his special attention directed to the matter by representatives of railroad organizations and he immediately sent out investigators. "Of course, they have reported to him, and I suppose he knows the situation better than anyone else," said the International representative.

According to the visitors the Typographical Union is in excellent shape and remained thoroughly loyal to the International organization.

They stated that while at Medicine Hat they were invited to address the Western Canada Irrigation convention and were asked to remain here to address the Industrial Congress on Wednesday. They were trying to rearrange their itinerary in order to do this, although at the moment it appeared to be hardly possible. They stated they were on their way to the coast and would proceed south as far as San Francisco, and would attend the meeting of the board of trustees of the Typos' home at Colorado Springs.

BUY THRIFT STAMPS

We want to talk in this Thrift Campaign to the man who earns $75 a month just as much as the man who earns $300 a month. You may say that what you save would not help you or Canada very much. That is a mistake. If you saved $3.50 a month on your $75 wage and everybody would do the same in proportion Canada would save over Forty Million dollars a year. The Dominion Statistics office gets its figures from the Census Returns. It says that the income of the wage and salary earner in Canada is $881283,300 a year. This is not including the income of the man with money invested, but the actual earnings of the workers. If every one of us earning salary or wages got the good habit of putting aside 5c in every dollar just as if we never had it, and invested it in Thrift Stamps and W.S.S., we could raise $40,00,000 in one year and never miss it. The country would pay interest on that amounting to$1,680,000 a year and we should have that much more money added to wages and salaries of the earners of Canada instead of going to swell the dividends of rich foreign bondholders. That is if we put aside for one year only 5 per cent. If some did better the results would be better. Every dollar in interest paid to ourselves not only makes us that much richer, but is turned over and over again a score of times and benefits trade and each one of us indirectly. Good times will be all the time when we learn to save. Start Now. Buy Thrift Stamps.

The issuance of a special Canadian postage stamp, commemorating the signing of the peace treaty, is now under consideration of the postal department at Ottawa. This stamp will be of the three cent denomination, if it should be decided upon and probabilities are that it will be printed in two colors or possibly in three. Already a number of Allied countries have issued peace stamps, the first to appear being the three-cent purple of the United States showing the flags of the Allies.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres, before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

SITUATION AT DRUMHELLER

Drumheller, Aug. 10.—The death blow was given to the O.B.U. movement in the Drumheller valley last night. For some time the leaders of this movement have been stepping on the toes of the members of the G.W.V.A., and at a meeting of this association on Friday night it was decided to have a showdown as to whether the O.B.U. with its radical leaders and foreign backers should run the town, or whether the more conservative International would come into its own.

One G.W.V.A. delegate was sent to Rosedale on Saturday morning to find out how the men stood, and was nearly mobbed by Moody's miners in their delight at such an opportunity of getting back at the people who had been calling them "scabs."

It took over twenty large touring cars to bring the Rosedale delegation to Drumheller on Saturday night, as they were about 200 strong, and this crowd, with the addition of the Drumheller Vets, and assisted by two-thirds of the citizens, quickly rounded up the leaders of the O.B.U. and dropped them out in the country some 15 or 20 miles in different directions.

The men gathered in were Secretary Sullivan, who is alleged to be the main agitator; Thompson, who is said to have got in wrong with returned men by cursing the army and the country at an O.B.U. meeting early in the week; Dufore and about three other of the smaller shining lights.

They were all instructed to stay away from the town. The veterans were very well organized and did not engage in any rough work.

Some of those who were down on the black list could not be found, but it is thought they went before they were located, as they no doubt knew they had reached their limit.

It is now thought that the International can very quickly get organized here and that the mine operators are willing to come to an agreement through them and get the mines going at once.

Calgary, Aug. 11.—The latest information from the Drumheller district is that there is a possibility of many of the mines in the valley reopening Tuesday morning. In fact, some of them, including Rosedale, Western Commercial and Jewell, at Wayne, made a start Monday afternoon, and several others, it is stated, will do likewise within the next day or two. A dispatch from Wayne states that loading coal will be in operation in the course of a couple of days and by the end of the week 18 to 20 cars will be dispatched from the Western Commercial alone. It is predicted that in ten days' time Wayne will have an output of 40 cars a day.

There has now been a truce affected between the Returned Veterans and the O.B.U. men at Drumheller, the former having given the strikers unti Tuesday morning to return to work at the mines or as an alternative to clear out of the district.

Another dispatch confirms the statement that there is now an easier feeling in the valley, and in some quarters it is expected that the O. B. U. propaganda has been effectively checked and that the miners will line up under the auspices of the International. As a matter of fact at Wayne a new local has been formed affiliated with the International.

The serious development that occurred Saturday evening and Monday morning was the climax to the action of O.B.U. advocates in their attempt to prevent the Rosedale mine working. At a meeting of the returned men it was decided to eject the leaders from the valley and this was quietly done Saturday night. The round-up continued at other points, and amongst those caught in the dragnet were P. Christophers, the late president, and Vice-President McFegan and others. Every effort was also made to get hold of Ed. Browne, the late secretary, who was supposed to arrive at Drumheller on Monday morning, but evidently he changed his mind in going to the mining centre.

The actual trouble first arose by some of the strikers calling returned veterans "scabs." This was resented by the latter and at the meeting referred to it was decided to take immediate action in ridding the district of the strike leaders.

From information received at the headquarters, both of the Royal North West Mounted Police and the Alberta Provincial police, the running out of Drumheller of the leading agitators among the miners in that district, is the outcome of the feeling amongst the leading merchants, mine owners and veterans who wish to see the mines at once in operation, that some such drastic action was needed in order that those among the men (and it is believed that these are even now a large proportion of the miners) who wish to go to work, may have an opportunity to do so.

Neither Inspector Spaulding nor Inspector Brankley anticipated any serious trouble, as they say the decent element is only too willing to co-operate with the authorities in protecting the miners who wish to return to work, and to see that property is secure from the attacks of the lawless element which is always present in greater or less numbers in such camps.

Leading men at Drumheller assert that the greater number of the ignorant foreign element among the miners are not aware of the true state of affairs and that what is urgently required is an intelligent statement of conditions as between the International Miners' Union and the O.B. U. as represented by Christophers and Browne and the present local leaders of district 18, should be undertaken at once by the accredited representatitves of the International.

The provincial police have six men on the ground under Sergeant Skelton, while Inspector Spaulding has four constables at Drumheller. The district, however, from Wayne to the northern end of the Drumheller district is 16 miles in length and this force alone would be inadequate to deal with sporadic cases of attacks upon mining property. The mine-owners have been directed therefore to have special constables sworn in to co-operate with the regular police, so that any sudden trouble may be adequately and immediately put down.

What the decent, law-abiding citizens of Drumheller want, however, is to have an educational campaign undertaken at once so that the foreigners who are dominated by English-speaking agitators may see the situation in the proper light.

There was no one in the offices of District1, Mining Department of the O.B.U. this morning. P. F. Lawson, of Fernie, editor of the miners paper, the District Ledger, who arrived in the city this morning, said that President Christophers, Vice-president McFegan, and Secretary Ed. Browne were all out of town on invitations of different locals.

"We are faced with this situation," said the editor, "the International has twelve men in the field, and more coming. They are holding meetings, and giving their side of the controversy. Calls are coming in from all over the district to Browne and Christophers to come and hold meetings to offset the work being done by the organizers from the United States, but Christophers and Browne are only human, and can only be in one place at a time. I am not surprised that there has been some frame-up to detain Christophers, and to threaten Browne if he goes near Drumheller.

"The operators have the full co-operation of the authorities and having been given the power to swear in special constables to protect property, there will soon be lots of armed men.

"So far as district 1 is concerned, we have no guns, no big international fund to pay organizers, and no operators on our side. We are strong, however, in the fact that we have the big majority of the miners in every camp with us, and that they have confidence that they can win without the use of any underhand methods or attempts at violence. The resentment is growing more bitter every day as the evidence becomes plainer that the triple alliance of government, operators, and the International organization are determined to dictate what organization the men must adhere to."

Inspector Brankley in formed the Herald early this afternoon that he had been in touch with Sgt. Skelton at Drumheller, and that the sergeant informed him that the current report that two O.B.U. men had been shot in a clash with the war veterans was not true.

The inspector thought the situation was well in hand as Sgt. Skelton was confident there would be no more trouble. It seemed that the former soldiers were picking out the agitators and asking them to go elsewhere and leave the Drumheller district in peace.

NORTHERN GAME HERDS INQUIRY

Under the provisions of Part I of the Inquiries Act, Chapter 114 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, a commission has been appointed recently to investigate the possibilities of the Canadian Northland as a permanent meat and wool producng area. The commission is made up of Dr. J. G. Rutherford, chairman, Ottawa; Messrs. J. S. Maclean, manager Harris Abattoir Company; J. B. Harkin, Commissioner of Dominion Parks; and Vilhjamur Stefannson, the Canadian explorer. The commission, which is authorized to employ, with the approval of the Governor in Council, such assistants as its members may determine, shall receive no compensation except expenses. The commission is expected to report, with the least possible delay, upon the feasibility of the propositions mentioned in the memorandum which follows, together with recommendations in regard to the best method to follow to bring about efficient development in case it is found that conditions warrant action on the part of the government, as stated in the July number of the Agricultural Gazette:

"Special attention has recently been directed to the potentialities of the Arctic and sub-Arctic regions of Canada as a grazing country. It is represented that in these regions there is an abundant growth of vegetation in the summer which forms nutritious food for grazing animals in winter as well as summer. It is estimated that there are at least a million square miles of such grazing grounds in Northern Canada. The winter climate of these areas is too severe for ordinary domestic cattle, but musk-ox and reindeer can graze there in the open the year round. The dimensions of the reindeer industry in Lapland and in Siberia and the great development of the reindeer herds of Alaska suggest that corresponding development can reasonably be anticipated with respect to northern Canada. In this connection it is pointed out that herds of barren land caribou aggregating, it is estimated, twenty to thirty million animals, frequent northern Canada, and that biologically these animals are practically identical with reindeer.

"Vilhjalmur Stefannson, the Arctic explorer, is convinced that the musk-ox can be rapidly domesticated, and has urged that steps be taken in that connection with the object of developing herds for domestic purposes.

"The development of large reindeer and musk-ox herds in northern Canada will represent a very important addition to the meat production of the Dominion. The development of musk-ox herds will represent not only an addition to the meat production but also to the wool production. The value and attractiveness of reindeer flesh for food purposes is well established. In regard to musk-ox meat, Mr. Stefansson claims it is practicall indistinguishable from beef.

"The Arctic and the sub-Arctic regions of Canada lie too far north to be included in the lands suitable for the profitable production of cereals, and therefore may be regarded as permanent grazing grounds.

"In view of the foregoing the Minister considers that there are good grounds for believing that the Canadian North may become a great permanent meat and wool producing area and that a commission should be appointed for the purpose of making thorough investigation into the subject from a business and national standpoint and to report their finding."

PRINCE'S VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES

The Prince of Wales, after a visit to Canada in August, will be the guest of the American government at Washington upon Mr. Wilson's invitation, and will afterwards stay in New York for a short time. Here, doubtless to the disappoinment of Mrs. Leo Hunters, he will live on a British naval vessel. Fifty-nine years ago his grandfather, the then Prince of Wales ,traveled in the United States under the guardianship of the Duke of Newcastle and the name of "Lord Renfrew." The then rather unformed youth of 19 was to develop into the accomplished man of the world, the mirror of tact, the able and quietly influential statesman whom the world learned to know and admire as Edward VII.

Vastly different are the relations between the United States and Great Britain, wonderfully transformed is the general American feeling toward Great Britain since then. The cardinal work of the British navy through the war, the unfailing heroism and dogged resolution of the British Army through all discouragements and disasters, the fact that American and British soldiers have fought together side by side and in the same great cause, have removed the ancient prejudices and grudges from the hearts of Americans. The co-operation of the two great democracies in war is felt to be a promise of their cordial co-operation in the long peace for which the world hopes. They have stood together for freedom and democracy. They must stand together for the maintenance of freedom and democracy.

The young Prince of Wales has the repuation of a brave, modest, and democratic young man. He comes to us, however, rather as a symbol than as a person, though both for himself and as the son of his democratic father, George V., whom Americans respect and like, he would be more than amply welcome. He comes not as a representative of a family, nor of a sovereign who is himself but a symbol of the sovereign parliament and people of Great Britain. In him the government and people of the United States will honor that mighty people and nation wherefrom the traditions and foundations of our liberties, our law and representative institutions sprang, in all the course of its splendid history never so great and so heroic as in its desperate battle with Germany. They will honor our gallant comrade in that battle wherein it made sacrifices far exceeding ours, our friend, our honorable competitor and associate in the arts and works of peace, a fellow guradian of the peace of the world.—New York Times.

CODE OF PRINCIPLES FOR GAME PRESERVATION

1. In the well settled regions of the United States and Canada the supply of wild game is nowhere sufficient to render it an important food supply; and in view of its steadydestruction by man, predatory mammals and birds, severe winters and scarcity of food and cover, game killing in those regions must be regarded as a severely limited pastime and not as an industry in competition with the stock raiser and the butcher.

2. In well settled regions it is impossible to make bag limits too small, or open seasons too short, for the best continuance of the game supply.

3. No frontiersman can reasonably be expected either to devise or to execute, unaided by his Federal government, methods for the adequate preservation and increase of large game.

4. Well settled and well fed regions require game laws of greater stringency than frontier regions.

5. Frontier and savage regions require to be especially defined on the map and provided with game laws specially adapted to the needs of their inhabitants and the available supply of game.

6. The strict regulation of game killing in frontier regions inured directly to the benefit of the people most dependent on the game for existence.

7. The sale of game should not be permitted at any time anywhere; because all commercialization of wild game and other forms of wild life is thoroughly exterminatory in its effects.

8. In all countries the rational utilization of wild game, but only on a basis that will provide amply and adequately for the perpetuation of the breeding stock.

9. Regions that are remote from lines of power transportation, or are in winter entirely cut off from supplies of fresh meat from without, are entitled to preferential treatment.

10. The relief of persons inhabiting frontier regions who by reason of sex, age, or other causes are unable themselves to take out licenses and hunt and kill their animal quota of game must be specially provided for by the law.

11. Every community large enough to contain a post office should be established as a game protection centre or unit and a deputy game warden should be appointed for each centre, to whom an annual salary should be paid during satisfactory service, no matter how small the salary might be.

12. The duty of every such deputy game warden should be to issue hunting licenses, check up the reports of license holders, and generally promote and be responsible for the observance of the laws affecting game.

13. The cold storage of legally killed game to promote its full utilization by the hoders of hunting licenses, beyond the regular season for hunting, is desirable and necessary.

14. It is time for the governments of Canada and the United States to stop all killing of female hoofed game other than caribou, by Indians, by prospectors, and by all other persons.

15. The waste of game should under certain fixed conditions be made a penal offence.

16. Regulations should be framed to require the reasonable salvage of game meat by sportsmen.

"It would be placing a very low estimate on the mental fertility of Canadian and American lawmakers to assume that it is impossible for them to provide a share of caribou meat and snow geese for the widow and the missionary without the sale of game. To the lay mind it seems entirely possible to work out a scheme for having a certain amount of hunting by proxy under special licenses prepared and issued to meet such cases. The game warden or his deputy, or in their absence some other government officer, could determine the merits of each application and exercise the discretion of issuing or not issuing such a license to hunt by proxy. The holder of such a license could be relied on to find a suitable person to act as a proxy, go out and haul in the meat for a daily consideration."

AUTO-INTOXICATION OR SELF-POISONING

The chief cause of poor health is our neglect of the bowels. Waste matter, instead of passing from the lower intestine regularly every day, is allowed to remain there, generating poisons which are absorbed by the blood.

In other words, a person who is habitually constipated, is poisoning himself. We know now that Auto-intoxication, due to non-action of the bowels, is directly responsible for serious Kidney and Bladder Troubles; that it upsets the Stomach, causes Indigestion, Loss of Appetite and Sleeplessness; that chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Pain In The Back, are relieved as soon as the bowels become regular; and that Pimples, Rashes, Eczema and other Skin Affections disappear when "Fruit-a-tives" are taken to correct Constipation.

"Fruit-a-tives" will protect you against Auto-intoxication because this wonderful fruit medicine acts directly on all the eliminating organs.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of H. D. Stewart, killed in France, Aug. 15, 1917, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Stewart, Fernie, B.C.

We cannot think, we will not say
That he is dead; just gone away
With a cheery smile, and the clasp of the hand,
To wait us in an unknown land.

We knew it not, but, oh, how fair
It needs must be, since he is there;
And we who mourn and sadly yearn
For the old-time step and the glad return,
Think of him still, as he was, and say:
He is not dead; he is just away.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Alan Graham is spending a week at Lethbridge.

Mrs. Jos. Kennedy, of Trail, visited friends in town this week.

Wm. Johnston, of the Orpheum, was in Calgary several days this week.

The Chautauqua opened on Wednesday and are playing to good houses.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Kossoff returned on Wednesday from a motor trip to Spokane.

Wilfred Biggs and Miss Edith returned on Tuesday from a motor trip to Spokane.

Quite a number from Fernie attended the dance at Waldo on Wednesday evening.

Walter Allen, of Waldo, was fined $85 and costs this week for shooting a deer out of season.

A marriage license was issued this week to John Waddington and Mary Amelia Lyons, both of Michel.

The postponed meeting of the Reconstruction committee will be held on Wednesday next, the 20th inst.

Nels Krohn, B. Barrett and Gus Gibson returned on Tuesday from a week's fishing trip at Ram Creek.

Mah Wing, a Chink of Waldo, contributed $100 to the provincial treasury for breakng the Prohibition Act.

W. R. Wilson and R. M. Young were in Calgary on Wednesday attending a meeting of the Coal Operators.

Mrs. John Whitelaw left on Monday night for Calgary where Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw will make their future home.

Miss E. Yolland, of the government office staff, has accepted a position in Vancouver and will not return to Fernie.

Editor Lawson's appeal for loyalty to the O.B.U. published in last week's issue, sounded a good deal like his swan song.

Mrs. R. J. Black left today for the Okanagan valley, where she will visit for some weeks before returning to Vancouver.

Two boys named Yolland and Madden were each fined $25 the other day for killing grouse out of season at Baynes Lake.

Blairmore is holding a big baseball tournament on Wednesday next. Charley Spence is arranging to take a team down.

Frank Greenwood and Geo. Herrin returned on Wednesday from a fishing trip up the Elk. They visited with Charles Wiegert.

There will be a meeting of the executive committee of the G. W. V. A. on Saturday, 16th inst., at 7.30 p.m. Business important.

S. Herchmer, A. Watson and A. Klauer motored to Wasa on Sunday, where quite a number of Fernie people are holidaying.

Wilfrid Biggs, of the Home Bank staff, has been transferred to Cabri, Sask., where he will hold down the teller's job. He leaves on Sunday.

Commandant Greenland, in charge of the local corps of the Salvation Army, returned from the coast on Saturday, feeling much better for the few weeks' rest.

Thos. Williams, of Michel, is our authority for the statement that the remarks attributed to him in an article published in last week's Ledger, relative to the firebosses' strike, are absolutely false.

John Kent, formerly a well known Fernie agitator, was run out of Wayne the other day with Phil Christophers by the local vets. They became tired listening to the vaporings of a bunch of paid agitators.

The winding up meeting of the Peace Day committee will be held on Monday evening, at 8 p.m. in the council chamber. All chairmen and members of committees are specially requested to be present.

Archie Corrie and Fred Spalding signed up 140 members for the Board of Trade this week. It looks as if that organization was about to come to life again. A good live Board of Trade can do a whole lot for a community.

Fire broke out early this morning in a stable belonging to Perry Bros. at the North End of the city. The building was completely destroyed, but the horses were saved. The fire brigade turned out in time to save neighboring buildings.

Wm. Bird, who enlisted from Winnipeg about two years ago, arrived in the city this week on a visit to his mother. He will be taken on the staff of the local branch of the Home Bank until such time as he is permanently reinstated in his old position again.

The well known Russian, Romeo Dunisick, is under arrest on a charge of gambling and corruption.

R. S. Day, B.C. Manager of the Guardian Assurance Co., was in the city this week on business.

G. G. Moffatt paid out $22,000 today in connection with claims arising out of the recent bush fires.

Mrs. A. Klauer and Mrs. J. Corbett returned on Sunday from Wasa, where they have been holidaying.

DiedAt Fernie, on Aug. 12, the infant son of A. D. Campbell, aged 2 weeks. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Lizzie Whitelaw has recovered from an attack of the quinzy and left on Thursday evening for Calgary where she will reside in the future.

Died—At Blairmore, on August 13, Mrs. James Boultier. The funeral took place from the Church of England, Fernie, at 2.30 this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Wasman and Miss L. LeClair, motored in from Great Falls, Montana, on Thursday, and were the guests of E. A. Kummer for a day.

The regular monthly tea of the Ladies Guild of Christ church will be held at the home of Mrs. G. A. Bonnallie on Wednesday, Aug. 20, from 3.30 to 6.00 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Dudley arrived home from Victoria on Saturday. Mr. Dudley, although still unable to walk, is slowly recovering from the stroke with which he was afflicted about two months ago.

Frank Varto, a man who was brought here from near Michel to have a leg amputated as the result of an accident in the bush, died on Thursday. Funeral arrangements are not yet completed.

Mrs. A. I. Fisher, Regent of the I.O.D.E., is rustling money to give the soldiers who are in the Frank Sanitorium a motor ride. The local chapter presented the boys with a dozen fishing rods and $50 worth of bedroom slippers some weeks ago.

Phil. Christophers, when he landed in Calgary yesterday from the north country, was approached by the Vets and told that the climate of Calgary was just about as uncomfortable as Wayne and that he had better move on. He took the hint and is now at his home in Blairmore.

The larger portion of the District Ledger plant was sold this morning to satisfy a judgment obtained in the recent libel case against Editor Lawson and the District Officers. C. H. King, of Calgary, representing Miller & Richards, of Winnipeg, purchased the big press and linotype, and it will be shipped to Winnipeg.

Monday witnessed the closing of one of the largest transactions in farm lands in this district, when Al. Doyle, of Fort Steele, sold the Humphrey ranch at Wolf Creek to Bert Armstrong, of Great Falls, Montana. The price paid is said to be in the neighborhood of $25,000. Mr. Armstrong is an experienced sheep man and will come into the country with a band of two thousand. He will make some alterations to the property and expects to move the herd into new quarters by the end of September.—Cranbrook Courier.

BASEBALL

Last Sunday, Aug. 10, Wycliffe defeated Fernie in the fastest game of baseball seen in this part of the country for a number of years, by a score of 2—1. The Fernie team was defeated by Wycliffe the Sunday before by a large score and everyone thought the score on the 10th would be about twice as large, as the game was on Wycliffe's home ground, but the Fernie team sure made them go all the time to win and a lot of Cranbrook people remarked after the game that Fernie had the best little team seen in years.

The game started with Sofko, who was knocked out of the box the week before, pitching for Fernie and Quillman for Wycliffe. Fernie failed to score in the first half of the first innings. Sofko stuck the first two Wycliffe men to face him out. The next man had two strikes called and as nearly all the spectators said, struck at the third ball, which hit him. The umpire gave him his base. Then Quillman hit one to centre field which dropped too short for the centre field to get. Adamson scored on the hit. R. Colton threw to the left in trying to catch Quillman at third and let in the runner. This was the only two runs Wycliffe scored. Fernie got in one run in the last of the second innings, but did not manage to score again. Only four Wycliffe men got to first base after the first innings.

A return game will probably be played after the baseball tournament at Blairmore, in which Fernie will participate.

Fall Term Commences August 25th.

DRUMHELLER SEES THE COMIC SIDE

Drumheller, Aug. 12.—Drumheller is roaring with laughter over the manner in which P. M. Christophers, late president of District 18 of the U. M. W. of A., was taken by the returned veterans. He was spotted on the roof of a boarding house at Wayne in the small hours of the morning, wearing nothing but his spectacles and his night clothes. A picket guarding the building, was speedily overcome and Christophers much agitated and with chattering teeth, was compelled to hastily don more suitable garments.

When confronted later by the party who came to march him out of the district, he confessed that he had advised the O.B.U. executive in Calgary the previous day that in his opinon there was no use in further proceeding with the strike, and that it was to all intents and purposes over. He also stated to the veterans that he would renounce the O.B.U. and return to the pick in the mines.

OLD CASTLES TO BE RENTED

Naworth Castle, the ancient baronial seat of the lords of Gisland, the home of the Howards, Earls of Carlisle, is to be let furnished for a term of years. The castle stands in a park of 500 acres to the south of the River Irthing, near Brampton. The original character of this feudal stronghold first mentioned in the reign of Richard II., remains unspoiled, thought it has been modernized as a place of residence. Armor, pictures, tapestry and antique furniture of great value adorn the banquetting hall and other rooms. Shooting over ten thousand acres and trout fishing are among the sporting attractions of Naworth. Vestiges of the great Roman wall are still visible in the district, and an occupier of antiquarian tastes could find matter for interesting speculation as to the origin of other features of the countryside near Brampton, including what are supposed to be traces of a Danish encampment.

Douglas Castle, Lanarkshire, is also to be let for a long term furnished, with forty thousand acres of mooreland. A loch in the park and the Douglas water afford excellent trouting.

Scotland Yard has evidence of a plot which has been working out in the various strikes through Britain, to subvert the present system of government and substitute in its place something of the Soviet order. It has been shown that money to carry on the strikes has come from European countries. And the same thing, by the way, is suspected in connection with labor uprisings in America, not excluding Canada.

END OF A FUTILE STRIKE

Thousands of members of the various branches of the metal trades who went on strike in and around Toronto on the first of May have concluded to go back to work. They have lost three months precious time and have accomplished practically nothing other than to drive business out of the country. The sum of $2,100,000 has been lost in wages while the amount the various corporations involved have lost, directly or indirectly, is beyond reckoning. The men returned to work on a 48 hour basis, with pay for 50 hours, and this is what the various employing bodies originally offered. The men, however, contended for a 44-hour week, with large increases in the rate of pay.

It would seem that the abnormally high wages paid during the war to these men, who were mainly upon war work of one sort or another, caused them to lose all perspective. They wrongly argued that there was no top to the labor market; that employers could be made to pay anything the men might demand. There was, therefore, but one thing to do. The employers closed up the shops and such orders as could not be carried over until a later period went to the United States and to points in Canada where labor was less exacting. The pity of it is that not only have these men lost valuable weeks, with fat pay checks at the end of each, but the country is millions of dollars poorer by the crippling of industry.

The strike of these metal workers was, from the first, ill advised. The men, to a large extent, were the tools of a disturbing element which was out to disrupt business and upset commerce. The men, for the most part, wanted to work. They realized that they were getting high wages, the highest known in the history of their various trades. At the instigation of the agitators, however, they threw down their tools, and where they could began picking up odd jobs to tide them over. Many a man who voted to strike if not given even higher wages than he was then receiving with less hours was glad to take on a side line as it were, where he worked eight or ten hours per day at forty cents per hour, or about half of what he would have obtained in his own trade. The strike promoters, doing their best, were unable to keep the men in the metal trades from going back to their old jobs, and weeks ago certain industries where strikes had been declared, were in reality working full staffs at the old scale of wages and hours.—Toronto Saturday Night.

THE ONE BIG UNION

Spokesman-Review: The labor unions of this state will be required to vote on August 29 on the question of whether a special convention should be called to commit the state labor federation to the "one big union" plan of organization. This referendum was ordered by the last regular convention of the state federation, a meeting in which the radical element held a small margin of control.

Fundamentally the question on which the unions will vote is this: Shall the American Federation of Labor system be discarded in favor of the Industrial Workers of the World system? Regardless of what some of its advocates may say the "one big union" idea is thoroughly I.W.W. in principle and method. In fact it was the I.W.W. that coined the phrase and uses it constantly.

The trade union idea is that each craft shall have its separate organization, with locals and internationals, the whole functioning through the A. F. of L., which has practically no jurisdiction over the internationals. The "one big union" scheme calls for discarding the trade divisions, all organized workers being lumped in a single group, with a highly centralized form of government.

From its advocates' point of view the beauty of the one big union would be the readiness with which it could bring about general strikes. The lumberjacks of Idaho could be called from their work to join the striking longshoremen of Massachusetts, because all would be members of the same organization. Further, it would be easier for a single leader or small group of leaders to control the actions of the whole working population.

Australia has the one big union plan. It has been taken up in Canada and was dominant in the troubles at Winnipeg, but reports are that it is being dropped in many places, notably in western Canada, in favor of the trade union method. The best example of its workings in the United States, in fact the only example, is the I.W.W.

CHAUFFEURS' EXAMINATIONS

"It's all a joke—any boob can drive a car and people continue to wonder why we have so many accidents," said an automobile repair man to "The Insurance Field." "Look at a poor old stationary engineer, for instance. He has to go through a long period of apprenticeship and then take an examination before they'll give him a license to operate an engine that's screwed to the floor. It's impossible for him to run over anybody or into anything. But they'll let anyone loose on the streets with an automobile engine, even a man who's so near-sighted he can't tell the difference between a tricycle and a fire truck fifty feet in front of his nose. They ought to make an automobile driver stand a stiff examination, I tell you."—The Insurance Field.

FARMER MOORE HAS GAINED 37 POUNDS

All Troubles Overcome By Taking Tanlac — Had Suffered For Eight Years

"I suffered for eight long years before I found a medicine that would do me any good, but since taking Tanlac I have gained exactly thirty-seven pounds, and all my troubles have been completely overcome," said John N. Moore, a well known and prosperous farmer who lives on R. F. D. No. 4, Empire, Ill., while in Shorthouse's drug store in Bloomington the other day.

"When I commenced taking Tanlac," he continued, "I had reached the point where I couldn't do any work at all, and was forced to hire a hand to take my place on the farm. I had suffered so much and so long with stomach trouble, I was just about down and out so far as health and strength was concerned. During all these years my appetite was very poor, and what little I did manage to eat would cause me worlds of suffering. Gas would form on my stomach so bad that I could hardly get my breath, and I would have the worst sort of cramping spells. I finally got to where I was hardly ever able to retain what I ate, and would actually get nauseated every time I looked at anything to eat. I had fallen off so much, and was so low in health that all my friends were talking about the awful condition I was in. I was very nervous all the time and never knew what a good night's sleep was.

"I heard about Tanlac, then, and I thought I would give it a trial. Well, sir, my friends and neighbors are talking differently now. They are asking me what the world I have been taking to make such a big improvement in my condition, and it just does my heart good to tell them that Tanlac did it. It is wonderful the way I have gained in weight and strength. I can go to the field now and do as much hard work as any hand on the farm. My stomach seems to be in pesfect condition, and I never have indigestion, and am not bothered with gas forming after meals. I have the best appetite I ever had in my life, and can eat just anything I want. I am free from all nervousness, too, and I sleep just like a boy every night. Tanlac has done all that for me, and I am as well and hearty now as I ever was in my life, and as long as I live I pass the good word along to others who suffer as I did."

"MICKEY" KEEPS THEM ALL MOVING

Synopsis of Great Comedy Drama "Mickey," Featuring Mabel Normand—Wed. and Thurs., August 20 and 21

Mickey had lost her mother and father when she was a bit of a child in a small mining town, and her father's partner, Joe Meadows, had taken it upon himself to bring her up. Her only other relations are an aunt and some cousins living on Long Island. Mickey grows up a harem-scarem little tomboy— the trial as well as the love of the old man's life. The only mother Mickey has ever known is Minnie, Joe's housekeeper, an old Indian woman, who dutifully cares for her and worships the little impish waif.

Mrs. Drake, Mickey's aunt, is striving to maintain a millionaire establishement, with but little or no funds. Her only real asset is her daughter Elsie, whom she is trying to marry off to a man with money. She has Herbert Thornhill in mind, and the engagement is almost closed when the man is called West.

In the West, Herbert Thornhill meets Mickey and falls in love with her, despite the evident distrust of Joe Meadows. Joe then decides that it is time Mickey had some women folks to look after her, and so he writes to her aunt, telling her that Mickey owns a gold mine. This is enough for Mrs. Drake and the girl is urged at once to come to Long Island.

Joe takes her there and just as he leaves the Drake home for the West, he mentions to her aunt that the gold mine is worthless, and much to his sorrow it has not paid for years. The aunt, greatly disappointed, puts Mickey to work as a servant, where the little tomboy gets into all sorts of amusing and pathetic scrapes.

When Herbert thinks he has lost Mickey, he gives up his search and returns to the East. Very soon after, he becomes engaged to Elsie. Reggie Drake, the renegade cousin, meantime makes several unpleasant advances to Mickey, which she repulses.

One evening, during a reception given in honor of Herbert and Elsie, Mickey, the little Cinderella of the household, dresses up in one of Elsie's gowns and escapes downstairs to the ballroom. She does not get very far, however, before her aunt drags her to her room and locks her in. Mickey is greatly surprised on turning around to discover the intoxicated Reggie who had evidently been shut in, out of the way, and forgotten about. Mickey uses all her wits to escape. In getting away she climbs down the porch, into the garden—and finds her self face to face with Herbert, who has been watching her escape.

After the renewal of their love, Herbert regrets the proposal to Elsie and the acceptance. His lawyer and friend, Tom Rawlins, notices this and on his own initiative, manages matters perfectly, by inforoming Herbert that his fortune has been swept away. Herbert believes this to be the truth —and then Elsie breaks the engagement.

Reggie, seeing a chance for a good gambling trick, informs Thornhill that if he could get five thousand dollars and place it on his horse, he would win back his fortune. Thornhill manages to scrape together the money and the bet is made. Reggie then fixes matters with his jockey to double-cross Herbert, by pulling his horse and losing the race. Accidentally Mickey overhears the plans. She realizes the full importance of the scheme and plans to take the jockey's place. She is winning the race, when the horse stumbles and throws her. The crowds gaze in amazement when they discover that the jockey is Mickey. She is severely hurt but recovers shortly afterwards.

Reggie now presses his suit with more vigor than ever. Out riding with her one day he traps her in an old country house and tries to attack her. Thornhill, who has followed, comes to her rescue, but it is only after a long and furious fight that he succeeds. And after that they are married and to make matters ideal, Rawlins informs Thornhill that his fortune was never really lost after all.

DOING EXCELLENT WORK

Farm & Ranch Review: Notwithstanding the criticism flung at the "Soldier Settlement Board" from various quarters, they are evidently doing excellent work on the whole. It is only natural that disappointment has been the portion of a good many returned men owing to the lack of speedy settlement in their individual cases. When we find out, however, that about 5000 applications (the figures to the end of May are more than double) made by returned men have been approved, which, at 160 acres each, means a total of 800,000 acres of land, and that the movement is only really beginning to get under way, there should be little real cause for criticism of the board, but perhaps real criticism can be made that the government did not take action and appoint a board sooner. It is considered reasonable to expect that eventually between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 acres will in this way be settled by returned men in the prairie provinces. That would mean over twenty-five thousand soldier settlers which at an average loan of $4000 would mean $100,000,000 of new capital for agricultural development work in the three provinces. This is really a bigger thing than most of us have contemplated and recently Major Ashton of the Soldiers Settlement Board, in speaking at Regina made the statement that probably 30,000 soldiers would return to Saskatchewan and that the records show 75 per cent of them would be either farmers or farm laborers. Up to the present one-third more applications have been approved from Alberta than from Saskatchewan, so it is easy to see that the West stands to gain tremendously both in men and money from this plan.

EFFECTIVE COLORADO PLAN

A few years ago the Colorado Fuel and Iron company was a storm centre of industrial unrest. The whole state in which the company carries on its principal business was disturbed by the incessant turmoil and violence which centered in and around the properties of the company. Today these conditions are practically unknown. Conferences and compromise have taken the place of strikes and riots. Management and men are learning to understand and trust each other as partners in a common endeavor.

What has brought about a change so extraordinary?

It is generally conceded that Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., himself is the moving cause. At the darkest hour in the experience of the company, Mr. Rockefeller went to Colorado. Up to that time he had been simply a name to the workmen of the mines and mills. They pictured him as an oppressor of the poor, making vast sums from their toil, and quite indifferent to their welfare. When he appeared upon the scene they were surprised to discover that he was a human being like themselves. He lived among them for a while; went down into the mines and talked with them face to face; visited their homes; ate with them at their tables; danced with their wives and sweethearts.

Then he met with the men and the management in conference. And in an address, remarkable for its tact, for its skill and downright courage, he laid before them his plan for solving their mutual problems.

The plan was adopted and has worked well. Indeed it has worked so well that in principle it has been adopted by the Standard Oil company in the east with even more satisfactory results to both parties in interest.

The plan as developed by experience is in essence a method of continuous personal contact and conference between employees and employer for the purpose of discussing and deciding all matters in dispute between them.

The Colorado plan is simply the democratic principles of representative government applied to industry. If it had been tried in no other institution but this one, it would still constitute a valuable chapter in industrial evolution.

MALIGNANT LEADERS

The Journal of Commerce: Probably the mass of the workers of the country sincerely desire an amicable settlement of all troubles. But, unfortunately there are some leaders of labor movements who have no sympathy with arbitration, conciliation or conferences of any kind, and who preach the doctrine that strikes are labor's only remedy for grievances.

Canada owns over 450 big guns, scores of aeroplanes and many thousand rifles and machine guns. The trophies are too many to house in the proposed War Museum at Ottawa and a great number will fall to the lot of various municipalities throughout the Dominion. The distribution will start mmedately after the Canadan National Exhibition.

LIFT CORNS OR CALLUSES OFF

Doesn't hurt! Lift any corn or callus off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

BANK OF ENGLAND TRADITION UPSET

Mr. Knowall was heard to assert the other day that a person could legally demand gold for bank notes from the Bank of England. He was wrong. You could do so before the war because the gold standard was based on a rule which provided that the Bank of England note issue must be backed up by a certain amount of gold held by the bank. The gold standard, however, could not be observed when war broke out.

The Bank is now under no obligation to redeem its notes in gold as was formerly the case and the Treasury have issued Treasury Notes to the value of 346 millions, which are legal tender for the payment of debts. Neither can the holders of these demand that they should be redeemed in gold.

The gold standard received its final blow on April 1st, 1919, when the export of gold was prohibited. Nations carry on their trade by barter. We send so much goods to the Argentine, for instance, and they send us so much goods. If there is a balance between the two, it is satisfied by the export of gold. Now that our gold reserves have fallen very low—it is estimated that at the moment they only amount to some twenty million pounds—the government have prohibited the export. Consequently, we must do our foreign business by the export of goods or on credit.—Tit Bits.

STANDING OF O.B.U. MEN IS DOUBTFUL

Winnipeg, Aug. 7.—The question is already being asked by men who have gone over to the O.B.U. what their status is when seeking employment in closed or union shops. Many large employers of labor have agreements with the international organizations, this being particularly true of railways and agreements at present existing with various brotherhoods.

The general supposition is that where such agreements do exist, a man with a card from the One Big Union will to all intents and purposes be looked upon as non-union, and the employer cannot take him on without violating the pact made with international organizations.

STEADY

(From the Montreal Star)

Where are the advocates of the old gospel of Retrenchment and Reform? If ever there was a time in Canada when such teaching was needed, it is now. When the war began the public debt was $336,000,000. It is now nearly $2,000,000,000. But a multitude of people in all classes seem to think that we can best meet the situation by huge new expenditures, restrictions upon industry and reduced production.

A year ago we all looked to the era of reconstruction with apprehension. We believed that it would be difficult to turn the industries from war production to peace production, and that we would do well if wages could be maintained and munition workers and returning soldiers re-established in civil life without a period of serious industrial depression. We recognized that without economy in private and public expenditure and sympathetic co-operation between the workers and employers to increase production, the common burden would be intolerably heavy, and sooner or later a situation which dismays the countries of Europe would be created in Canada.

But, instead of economy, we have waste and extravagance. Instead of industrial unity and stability, we have unrest, disorder and tumult. Instead of co-operation to maintain wages and increase production we have conflict and paralysis in various branches of industry and demands upon employers and upon the public treasury which threaten general disaster if wiser councis do not prevail. In the press there is exploitation and indiscriminate denunciation of capital. In parliament there are few speeches which reveal understanding of the true situation or apply the lessons of history to the conditions which we cannot escape. There is little said to inspire confidence and much to destroy confidence. There is free and justifiable denunciation of "profiteering," but no candid confession that profiteering is not general, that many commercial and public companies are content with reasonable profits, and that the restrictions which a few strong concerns could bear would drive a multitude f weaker companies into bankruptcy.

There are degrees of profiteering. Many companies with a small margin of profit have greatly increased their total income but the chief explanation is the enormous demand which war conditions created. Of these profits a heavy percentage goes back into the public treasury. The abnormal demand of Europe has forced prices upward in Canada, but could we deny supplies to the stricken nations of the Old World or control world prices. There may be companies which hold food in storage to the disadvantage of consumers, and for these stricter regulation is necessary and legitimate. But we cannot afford to be stampeded by mere suspicion and denunciation. During the American Civil War prices of food rose tremendously and Canada benefitted. But in those days the packing house was in its infancy and the causes which we now think explain high prices did not exist.

No one suggests that the farmers of Canada have raised prices by any illegal manoeuvre or secret combination or that they are blameworthy because they sell at war figures. But the conditions by which they have profited have benefitted classes of labor and many manufacturers. The supreme object of governments which fixed wheat prices and prices of war supplies was not to benefit farmers or manufacturers, but to get production, feed the armies and secure necessary war materials. As Sir Thomas White said the other day, with 50,000,000 people withdrawn from productive pursuits there was bound to be a universal disturbance of conditions and prices, and Canada could not avoid the consequences any more than she could avoid participation in the war in Europe. But let us not by angry controversy and denial of primary causes prolong the evil consequences and tumble the whole industrial structure into ruin.

Let us understand that deliberate provocation to class warfare is criminal folly and that "save and produce" is even more necessary for the Canada of today and of the future than before peace was declared. While millions in Europe are starving we cannot have normal prices in Canada. While millions over there are unclad we must divide our supplies with Europe, and division means scarcity and higher prices. Just as this continent helped to save the Old World from despotism it must help to save it from starvation and chaos. One result will be to create for Canadian producers and manufacturers permanent overseas markets of very great advantage to the Canadian people in the future. Surely among us there is too much screaming and shouting for immediate political effect and no adequate recognition of the certain consequences to all classes of labor conflict, unwise legislative interferences, industrial uncertainty, sectional suspicion and class antagonism.

A Commercial Tribunal wisely organized to prevent abuses and punish extortion, discharging its functions not in enmity to any element or interest, but with intelligent appreciation of the inexorable laws of business and with no bowels of compassion for plunderers, may be of great national advantage. There is in the report of the Industrial Commission the framework of an attractive and practical industrial structure. But let us speak with moderation and act with discretion and not give the impression that the commercial and industrial interests are bent only upon plunder, disunion and conflict we can meet our obligations, provide gratuities for soldiers and higher wages for labor. A peculiar and imperative obligation lies upon the business elements of Canada to come into politics, apply their knowledge and experience to the instruction of the people, and do what they can to steady the forces which make for confusion and disruption.

TWISTING THE LION'S TAIL

William Allen White, editor of the Emporia, Kansas, Gazette, one of the leading publicists of the United States, who was a member of the United States peace delegation, in an article in the New Europe draws attention to one of the most disturbing developments of current United States politics; the inauguration of a furious anti-British campaign which is being encouraged for purely factional purposes by the Republicans who are, for the moment, the dominant party in the country. Mr. White says:

"Just now a strong anti-British current is running in American politics. The Republicans — who have recently turned tail-twisters and love to bait the British lion in campaign oratory—have gone out hopefully for the Irish vote. They are thrifty souls and are scooping up the Irish vote while digging pits for President Wilson.

"Their game is this: they must defeat the League of Nations in the American Senate by proving to the American people that the League is a British device to rule the world. to convince the Americans that Great Britain is a grasping oppressor of unwilling captive peoples. The Irish situation furnishes the example needed. America is filled with men and women of Irish blood whose traditions are rife with Irish stories of Ireland's wrongs in other days and times. The Sinn Fein fable today of a nation struggling for freedom is the story needed to fructify the anti-British sentiment implanted in American hearts by school histories of the inquity of George III. and watered by the old tales of Ireland's wrongs.

"And the Americans, thus aroused against England and persuaded that England is backing the League of Nations for British Imperial aims, may lose their heads and permit partisan malice and jealousy to defeat the ratification of the League in the American Senate. If that is done, Wilson and his party are discredited for the 1920 elections, the Republicans will whoop it up against England to justify the slaughter of the League and incidentally to bag the Irish vote and the pro-German vote; and, while the demagogues triumph, humanity will suffer. For, with the League of Nations abandoned, English-speaking peoples will have to spend their energies in wars and preparations for wars. The whole fabric of the plan is based upon the fiction of England as the Cruel Stepmother."

"HEART OF HUMANITY" COMING TO ORPHEUM

August 27th and 28th

In a little Canadian village lives Nanette, the ward of Father Michael. She is engaged to John, son of the Widow Patricia. John is one of four other brothers, all of whom adore the little girl.

John returns from college, picking up on the way as a travelling companion Oscar Strang. John and Nanette are overjoyed to be reunited but their happiness is clouded by Strang, who is attracted to Nanette and makes love to her. Nanette, however, remains true to John and repulses the attentions of Strang.

Then comes the war. News of the opening of hostilities comes on the wedding day of John and Nanette. John and four other sons enlist for service with the Canadian forces. One after another all but John are killed, and misery comes into the home of the Widow Patricia. Then Nanette's child comes to soften the grief of the mother and the anxiety of the wife. Finally, the fifth son of the widow enlists.

John's letters home tell of the sufferings endured by French and Belgian children in the war and Nanette finally determines to go to their aid. She enlists in the Red Cross and is assigned to duty in a convent in France. She sees her husband, now an aviator, but soon afterward he is brought down inside the German lines and is made a prisoner.

In the meantime Oscar Strang becomes an officer in the German army. In the advance on Paris the Germans take the convent in which Nanette is on duty, and Strang meets Nanette again. He attacks her and a terrific fight develops. She succeeds finally in escaping to another room and bars the door.

Meanwhile John escapes from the German war prison and, in the uniform of a German soldier whom he has killed, starts for the convent. Nanette, safe for the time being behind a barred door, stands in horror as Strang pounds on the door outside. She grasps a knife, determined to plunge it into her bosom if the door yields.

John, after killing two German guards, reaches the room in which Strang is struggling to open the door. There is a fight and he kills Strang. Then he forces open the door to find that his wife has stabbed herself. She does not die, however, and recovers after several weeks in a hospital.

Nanette is persuaded to go back home, which she does after John urges that their boy needs her now. There is a happy reunion in the little Canadian village between mother and child, but their joys become still greater when John, one day after peace is signed, walks back to the arms of his mother, wife and child.

BOLSHEVISM REVEALED

The Overman committee of the United States senate has investigated German Bolshevism as found in operation in Russia for some months past. The committee's report, condensed under 29 heads, has been issued in pamphlet form by the Canadian Reconstruction Association. It shows that the movement is the avowed enemy of democracy, of the agricultural classes, of property owners, large and small, of the Christian religion, of marriage and the home. It means confiscation of churches and church properties, the suppression of newspapers and free speech, the disfranchisement of all classes except the ignorant members of the mob which is to establish an autocratic government of its own and tread most of the people under foot. Bolshevism seizes bank deposits, large and small, cancels life insurance, ruins industry, enslaves the farmer and enthrones that element of the population which is least fitted to govern. Facts like these reveal the real inwardness and iniquity of the propaganda which was behind the revolutionary O.B.U. movement in Winnipeg and other parts of Canada. The country owes a great debt of gratitude to organized labor and to the returned soldiers, who have steadfastly assisted the public authorities in overcoming one of the worst menaces the Dominion has ever faced.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says the man who gets mad at what the newspapers say about him should return thanks three times a day for what the newspaper men know about him and suppresses.

It was Horace Greeley who said the darkest hour in any man's career is that where he first fancies there is an easier way of gaining a dollar than by squarely earning it. Jim Thistlebeak says that the town of Drumheller got the best advertising any town could get when her citizens drove from the town a bunch of good for nothing (never known to earn an honest dollar in their lives) soap box orators who live, and seem to make it stick, from the ignorant hard working man. You've heard the old adage, Put a beggar on horseback and he'll ride him to death. Fernie, it's your move. G.W.V.A. with the experience you have had it should be plain for you to see through this Hun propaganda and you must know that prevention is far better than cure.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Austin, of Fernie, with their family, are renting a suite of furnished rooms at Harrogate House on Gospel hill, for the summer. Miss Mabel Barton of Fernie's leading music house, is visiting with them. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Booth of Fernie are looking up a summer cottage. Dozens of visitors from Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Calgary are renting rooms and camping. Travelers and train jumpers are still flocking to the old historic burg, the Mecca where tired humanity may forget work and worry and fill their lungs with the pure air of heaven, not exactly paradise but the very next door to it. Where everybody finances their own meal ticket and don't sponge on their brother workers. Cassidy that noted rubber man with a party of capitalists are visiting Elko this week. Report says that Cassidy is the highest paid rubber traveller on the road. The walleyed spendthrift was just in buying rubber balls and peanuts for the kiddies. Mr. and Mrs. Kemm and family from Lethbridge moved into Boston cottage for a couple of weeks. The magnetic mountains around the Old Historic Burg is drawing visitors this summer like a watermelon patch draws coons. Elko this summer has attained the acme of popularity. Mr. and Mrs. Theil and family, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and family, Mr. Penn of the Frith of Forth, Milk River and a dozen others, just looking over a big catch of fish brought in by two of the town boys with the object of buying a few and getting their photos taken to send their friends. Elko is the nearest and the dearest summer resort to Calgary, Medicine Hat, and Lethbridge there is, and much cheaper than Banff. If you visit Elko once you'll come again.

A. I. Fisher, M.P., and Supt. of Roads McDonald, passed through Elko for Roosville and Flagstone. We are in receipt of two letters saying that they were going hell bent for election, so that it pays to advertise. The writer was down to Flagstone the next day and saw several people and if there is no move to give the settlers some road improvements down in that section of country, we'll be like the real estate man, we'll have lots to talk about. And all the farmers want down in that section of the province is a square deal and they are entitled to that. But they hardly expect it while the Oliver government is in power.

The Joyce Bros. of Flagstone are putting in another mill in the Roosville valley about two miles north of the Broley-Nolan mil 2 mies north of of the Roosvile post office, and expect to be logging and running early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Letcher and son Herb, who have been out to the coast, returned Monday via auto to their homestead, the Square Deal ranch.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The boarding house received a formal unannounced visitor one day during the past week. After enjoying a sumptuous repast consisting of eggs, etc., the uninvited one proceeded on his way taking an inventory of several rooms, and before leaving dropped his card in the dining room. He sure must miss the dinner pails.

Several work seekers have been noticed in camp lately.

An energetic committe worked hard preparing for the sports which were held here on Wednesday. The Park was laid out comparable with any sport field in the vicinity, running tracks being roped and one portion of the field set aside and occupied by the many devices got up to entice the loose change from the pockets of the people. The "Hanging the Kaiser" stunt proved very popular. One of the visitors not satisfied with the hanging process, proceeded to throw balls at the image. Refreshment booths were erected on the ground. The day's proceedings opened at 10.30 a.m. when all children under the age of 13 years congregated at the depot, where they received a gift of 10c each. Shortly before 11 o'clock the first train load of Fernieites made their appearance. Two special trains were placed for convenience of the Fernieites. long program of events, racing, skipping, jumping, quoits, football competition, tug of war, etc., was carried out, the result of which we hope to publish next week. In the evening commencing at 8 a short concert was held, and after a few vocal renditions by members of the Fernie Veterans Concert Party, the chairman called upon Dr. Workman to unveil the Honor Roll, containing the names of members of the the Club who joined the colors in defence of the Empire. Dr. Workman in a neat speech befitting the occasion, drew attention to the fact that one or two names had been inadvertently omitted but this would be remedied later. He recounted the many occasions gatherings had been held in the hall as a send off and god speed to many whose names were on the list, but whose bodies are left on the fields of France and Flanders. The Doctor was visibly affected, as he recalled instances and particular names, and after thanking the officials for the honor which had been conferred upon him, the Doctor unveiled the "Roll." "The King" brought to a close another important epoch in the annals of Coal Creek Club. The floor space was then cleared and patrons of the terpschicore had the opportunity to indulge in their delights to the beautiful strains from the Fernie orchestra, with Mrs. McGregor at the piano. Refreshments were served at midnight.

RULES FOR EFFICIENT FURNACE MANAGEMENT

The Fuel and Fuel-Testing Division, Mines Branch, Department of Mines, has issued the following suggestions for the guidance of, householders in the proper operation of house-heating appartatus:

1. Do not overheat your house.
2. Prevent air entering through cracks by means of weather stripping or other device. Use storm doors and double windows and do not open them unnecessarily.
3. Use as few rooms as possible; seal up and cut off the heat from those not in use.
4. Cover up hot water radiators or shut off hot air supply to bedrooms at night when the windows are open.
5. Keep the furnace working as evenly as possible; do not let the fire burn too low and then burn coal rapidly to warm the house again.
6. Regulate the air supply over the fire to suit the air supply through the fire, except just after charging fresh coal, when a larger supply must be provided to burn the coal gas.
7. Control the rate of combustion in the furnace by the turn damper in the flue pipe as much as possible. Care must be taken however in using this damper to see that it does not unduly cut off the draft which would cause the gases, some of which are poisonous, to pass up into the house.
8. Use those dampers as sparingly as possible which operate by admitting air into the flue or above the fire. It will, however, be dangerous to substitute the turn damper for the air damper where the flue passes close to unprotected wood or other combustible material.
9. When it is impossible to reduce the rate of combustion in the furnace by the damper use smaller coal, or cover the top of the fire bed with small size coal.
10. Prevent air from leaking into the gas passages of the furnace.
11. Remember that any device introduced into the space above the fire bed of the furnace for evaporating water for humidifying the air, or for heating water for general purposes, uses heat which would otherwise be used for heating the house. Use water heated by this means, therefore, as sparingly as possible.
12. Keep the gas passages in the furnace clean.
13. Where a hot air furnace is installed, take no air into the system from outside.
14. When the basement is warmer than necessary, cover the furnace and pipes with asbestos, magnesia, or other insulating material.

BOXING AS A SPPORT

There are communities where first class men, men who are broad-minded, men who believe in athletics of all kinds and yet look upon a boxing contest as one of the greatest crimes on earth. They would have no objections to a wrestling match, a good tumbling bout in the backyard among their own boys, but to stage a scientific match for points seems to be where the crime is committed. We have no use for a bloody knock-down battle in a ring where two men batter each other to that extent where both approach the stage of dying; but a scientific exhibition, based on points, with a limited number of rounds, is sport to which no reasonable man should object. Still there are communities throughout Canada and the United States where the extremists have prohibited sport of this character. Conditions are changing, however, and in New York, where the feeling has been so strong, in many of the western states, as well as some points in Canada, have changed their attitude on the question and it is possible that soon the time will come when all reasonable men will look upon clean boxing from a different point and admit it freely with all other kinds of sport. — Kamloops Sentinel.

EAST KOOTENAY CHAPTER DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE

The East Kootenay Chapter I. O. D. E. of Waldo and Baynes, at their June monthly meeting decided to close their meetings during the two months' summer vacation. Nevertheless they have been busy keeping their funds up.

Mrs. Frank Adolph, Baynes Lake, gave a tea which cleared $7.25. A very successful dance was given at Baynes Lake on June 27, for general funds and cleared $93.75.

On July 10th the Chapter gave a very delightful dinner to the returned soldiers of the district at the Waldo hotel. The evening finished up with a musical program and dancing.

A subscription of $10 is sent every month to the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

The Daughters deeply regret the death of their late Regent, Mrs. J. W. Ross, of Waldo, and great sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

A shipment of over 100 articles, socks, pyjamas, etc., has been sent to the Provincial Chapter to be forwarded to the French refugees.

A parcel of 23 laundry bags was sent to the Balfour Sanitarium.

COAL CREEK MINES WORKING

The office of the Coal Co. at Coal Creek has been kept very busy signing the men on all week. The fans commenced running on Tuesday and the the first coal is being mined today. It will be a month before everything is running again as usual, as the men are scattered all over the country.

This absolutely useless and uncalled for strike has passed into history after almost every employee of the Company has lost between $300 and $500. It was caused entirely to inaugurate the O.B.U. movement, which to any sane man was an impossible scheme from start to finish.

The men in the mines who are looking, and rightly so, for improvement in wages and mining conditions must realize that there is a point in the production of coal where profits cease and loss begins. The greater the production the more money the companies make and consequently the better wages they can pay. The idea of the union man of late seems to be to cut down production to the minimum and to take every dollar that comes in for wages. This course would soon put our country in the same class with Russia, which seems to be the idea of the Reds who have been in the saddle for the past few months.

From reports coming in Coleman seems to be the only camp that is still adhering to the O.BU. Dave Reese visited that camp this week but was unable to make much impression on his hearers.

All over the district the camps have resumed operations and some of them are already shipping.

Editor Lawson of the defunct District Ledger, is up running around Calgary trying to find someone who will stake him to keep the paper going, but the International Commissioners seem to think it is a good time to let the white elephant die a natural death.

The following notice was posted on Monday morning asking the miners to resume work:

Order Number 126 (F).—

"I am advised by the International headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America that the charter of District 18 has been revoked and that a special commission consisting of Messrs. Samuel Ballantyne, Samuel Caddy and Wm. Dalrymple, has been placed in charge of the affairs of the United Mine Workers of America in this area.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by order of the Committee of the Privy Council, passed under the provisions of the War Measures Act of Canada, 1914, I hereby direct that the following rates and conditions shall be in force and effect from date until further notice.

I hereby instruct that the employees at the following mines shall resume work upon the basis as outlined below:

The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Coal Creek, B.C.

1. Acceptance of Tentative Agreement and all orders to date.

2. That negotiations for a new agreement will commence as soon as the International Convention of the United Mine Workers of America has met and formulated a policy. This territory will be granted the same privileges as other outlying districts affiliated with the International Union of United Mine Workers of America in negotiating new contracts.

3. The non-suspension policy of the International organization will be in force and effect pending all negotiations.

(Signed) W. H. Armstrong,
Director Coal Operations.

The above order No. 126 (F) has been issued by the Government Director of Mines for this District. It will, therefore, now be in order for the various employees at Coal Creek to report to the Mine Office for work. The men who worked around the coke ovens at Fernie are also in compliance with Armstrong's order, No. 126 (F) respectively requested to see the Coke Oven Superintendent about restarting work.

Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Ltd.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Alex. Watson, manager of the Home Bank, and champion golfer of the Crow's Nest Pass, reached a milestone in his golfing career on Tuesday evening, when he made the fifth hole on the local course in one stroke. This is one of the rare happenings on a golf course. It is the first time it has happened in B.C. this year. A Lethbridge expert pulled it off in that city some weeks ago and the Herald is still talking about it. Mr. Watson made the nine holes in 37.

The combination team of Mine Rescue and First Aid will finish their practice on Tuesday, Aug. 26, and will leave for Nanaimo on the 27th. The competition starts on Sept.1. The team has put in six weeks of hard practice and expect to make a good showing in both contests.

Albert Mutz, of Blairmore, was in the city on Wednesday. He says they shipped their first car of coal since the strike on Tuesday. Mr. Mutz says that one of the drivers who remained loyal and worked through the strike was badly beaten up a couple of weeks ago. His assailants are in Lethbridge jail waiting trial.

The road to Hosmer was reopened on Wednesday by way of Fairy Creek. The new bridge over that stream has been completed and the road repaired and put in first class shape. This will be good news to motorists as the old road had become almost impossible, especially in the neighborhood of the Fernie Lumber Co. mill.

The closing of the Grand theatre and the demise of the District Ledger last week are two more instances of trying to crowd business to death. This is about the fifth time that both these concerns have gone out of business, but notwithstanding some other fool with a shoestring for capital will take a chance and lose his little stake. The force of example never seems to appeal to some people. This town never was large enough for two picture shows or two newspapers. Every time a business goes broke in a town it is a slap at that community and particularly is this the case in regard to a newspaper which is circulated all over the country.

DANCE AT BAYNES LAKE

The Baynes Lake Wide Awake Club held a very successful dance in the Adolph Hall on Tuesday, Aug. 12. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens. A most appetizing supper was served at 12 o'clock by the members of the Club. Many people from Fernie, Wardner, Jaffray, Elko, Waldo, Roosville and Rexford danced to the strains of the Fernie four-piece orchestra.

It hit their heads and then their feet,
They simply couldn't keep their seat,
It made them wiggle, jig and prance
Like old St. Vitus at a dance,
That sycopating, aggravating, animating,
Palpitating, fascinating
Something that was jazz.

It was the most successful dance that has been held here for a long time and the young people are to be congratulated. We only hope that the W. A. C. will continue as well as it has begun. Many picnics and other forms of entertainment are being planned for the ensuing weeks.

CLEAN AUTO TRAVELLING

The Fernie correspondent of the Lethbridge Herald says:

Tourists still keep coming and going over the inter-provincial highway, one of the latest being Mr. Harry E. Hall and wife, from Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, California. Mr. Hall is an automobile dealer in his town, having had ten years' experience in the business. This makes him an authority as to good road conditions and his car showed by its perfect condition after the long trip through Salt Lake, Yellowstone Park, the Glacier Park and the trip through the pass, that Mr. Hall knows how to get the best out of it.

His outfit carries the banner for perfect condition as to cleanliness and condition of motor.

Some, not many, of the tourist cars which pass through Fernie do not appear inviting to a fastidious individual, who likes a clean bed in which to sleep. Bedding tied up in a roll and tied upon the running board of a car gets filled with dust, and all manner of shaking will not clear it of all dust that a day's drive accumulates when passing over dusty roads. Mr. Hall had but his wife—they appeared like a pair of honeymooners—along with him, so they had the rear seat of their car in which to stow away their bedroom furniture. This they covered with a black oilcloth cover, which was securely buttoned down all around, thus preventing any dust getting inside their bedding. It was a unique arrangement, which brought comfort and convenience to the owners. Mr. Hall is now enroute to Los Angeles by way of Spokane, Portland and San Francisco.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLD MEETING

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Fernie Board of Trade was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening. President Corrie called the meeting to order and G. G. Henderson acted as secretary in the absence of F. G. Perry.

The committee appointed to solicit new members reported that during the last week 184 new members were added to the Board. Among the new members are a number of the younger people, who seem to take a great interest in the welfare of the city, and from all appearances Fernie will have a real live board of trade.

Funds are to be raised to give Fernie and district greater publicity throughout the motor world. Pamphlets are to be gotten out and spread broadcast over the country. These funds are to be raised by assessment of the different business places in town, according to classification. This classification will be made according to the benefit derived from the added tourist traffic which will come this way when the outside people realize what we have to offer them in the line of scenery and sport throughout this district. To get the motorists to stop off here, cards are to be put out advertising our camping places and sports, such as fishing, hunting and mountain climbing. These cards are to be placed in the most important places along the road where the tourists are most apt to see them.

A suggestion was made to get Elko to co-operate with us in the line of advertising as Elko certainly has some lovely scenery, in fact the prettiest spot being the Elk canyon which very few motorists know about. The business men of Elko have signified their willingness to co-operate with Fernie in this matter and also suggested placing photographs of some of our best scenery in the larger cities along the road, to let people see what we have to offer as they pass through.

The matter of good roads was taken up and from all reports we have the best roads in the country. As the B.C. Union of Municipalities had already petitioned the government to refund part of the money derived from auto licenses, the board decided not to interfere until they saw what developed from the Municipalities' petition.

The subject of a city band was also brought up and discussed. This would add to our advertising, as motorists would be pleased to hear a Sunday night concert as they were passing through or stopping off.

The sidewalks in the city were also discussed at length and something will be done to improve the looks of the sidewalks as they are in a very bad condition at present.

The traffic bylaw will also be enforced as to observing the rules of the road in the city.

The third Thursday in each month will be the reguar meeting night of the Board.

Adjournment was taken at 10.30 p.m.

FERNIE GOT THE MONEY

The Ball Tournament in Blairmore last Wednesday turned out to be one of the best ball days seen in the Pass for a long time. All three games held the fans to the last innings in a fever heat.

Fernie was drawn with Blairmore for the opening game and this seemed to satisfy the Fernie boys as Cowley was looked to have a packed team but nothing definite was known about them as they were late in arriving.

Blairmore started off with three runs in the first innings and four in the second, while Fernie failed to hit safely, but from then on Fernie played air tight ball and one more tally is all the Alberta team could get. Fernie by a rally in the 5th and a steady uphill fight tied the score in the 7th and put over the winning run in the 8th.

Michel went right on with Cowley, and from the glad rags the Pro. Battery had disguised themselves in it looked as if Michel boys would have to play gilt-edged ball to win. Krall, pitching for Michel, didn't show much form on the slab, but he evidently had a polish on the ball for Cowley only managed to get five runs to Michel's ten. The Michel team sure were there with the hickory and the faster the balls came the farther they knocked them. Estabrook behind the bat proved a great asset.

Michel and Fernie then went out for the final. In the first innings they scored three runs through heavy hitting and an error, but from then on they were shut out, but were always dangerous when the heavy batters came around, but errorless ball in the infield held them down. Fernie got one in the 3rd, one in the 5th and tied in the 7th, and in the last half of the 9th, with a man on third, one on 1st, one down and two strikes on him, Sofko, the Fernie twirler, slammed out a drive that was good for two bases, the game and first money. He was carried off the field by his team mates, and every fan on the ground was with him, he having pitched both games, and both of them from handicaps that would well have fased an older head.

Blairmore gave the boys a royal time, and the only complaints heard were from some of the boys who said they were so tired at the dance and the girls were so nice that they could not rest.

Donaldson behind the bat played a wonderful game, only one man in both games attempting a steal and he was nipped. He also did good work batting. Archie Dunlap at short in the 1st game and at 3rd in the final took a lot of chances and handled them without an error. Pep Colton on 1st lived up to his reputation and scooped them all in.

George Sofko in the box gave an exhibition of getting out of a dangerous place in the steadiest manner possible, and the last few innings were better than any of the others. Eighteen innings in an afternoon for a boy against a bunch of batters such as he faced and handled the way he did, is a feat the big fellows would be proud of.

Dunlop and Dragon went down the night before and registered from Spokane. This caused quite a stir among the fans and they called up the Fernie manager to inquire about it.

Dr. Asselstine took a load of the boys down and was as pleased as any of them when they landed the bacon.

Jim Graves and Bert McEwan took a car of players and were very busy themselves on the side lines.

W. R. Wilson gave the Michel and Fernie teams a supper after the games, he having been an interested spectator of all the games.

Quite a few cars went down from Fernie. They were all fans and they helped materially in winning both of the games.

Line up for first game—

Donaldson c, Sofko p, R. Colton 1b, J. Dragon 2b, A. Dunlap ss, S. Glover 3rd, R. McLeod rf, S. Wilson lf, C. Spence, lf.

Line up 2nd game—

Donaldson c, Sofko p, R. Colton 1b, J. Dragon 2b, B. Wilson ss, A. Dunlap 3b, Callahan rf, C. Colton cf, C. Spence, lf.

Umpire Winslow umpired a very good game, and all games were run off in the very best style; no disputes, and the best of good fellowship ruling throughout the tournament.

SECOND TARZAN CINEMA SURPASSES PREVIOUS ONE

Beginning with one of the most novel ideas in the whole realm of fiction, the producers of "The Romance of Tarzan," which comes to the Orpheum theatre next Monday and Tuesday, have lavished money, brains and energy upon the theme of Edgar Rice Borrough's masterly book with unusually happy results.

The new cinema drama presents the concluding chapters of "Tarzan of the Apes" in a manner that surpasses the original production, according to the judgment of metropolitan critics who have reported prerelease showings of the massive seven-reel picture play.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Archie Farquharson had a narrow escape from drowning the other day. He was driving a team across a light bridge near his post camp when one of the chains holding the bridge gave way and he was thrown into the rushing water with his team and load. After being carried down the stream about a hundred yards he finally succeeded in making the shore. With the assistance of some men from the camp he succeeded in getting one horse out but the other was drowned. The lost horse was valued at $250.

Dick Beard, secretary of Michel miners union, is n town today.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says the man who gets mad at what the newspapers say about him should return thanks three times a day for what the newspaper men know about him and suppresses.

It was Horace Greeley who said the darkest hour in any man's career is that where he first fancies there is an easier way of gaining a dollar than by squarely earning it. Jim Thistlebeak says that the town of Drumheller got the best advertising any town could get when her citizens drove from the town a bunch of good for nothing (never known to earn an honest dollar in their lives) soap box orators who live, and seem to make it stick, from the ignorant hard working man. You've heard the old adage, Put a beggar on horseback and he'll ride him to death. Fernie, it's your move. G.W.V.A. with the experience you have had it should be plain for you to see through this Hun propaganda and you must know that prevention is far better than cure.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Austin, of Fernie, with their family, are renting a suite of furnished rooms at Harrogate House on Gospel hill, for the summer. Miss Mabel Barton of Fernie's leading music house, is visiting with them. Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Booth of Fernie are looking up a summer cottage. Dozens of visitors from Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Calgary are renting rooms and camping. Travelers and train jumpers are still flocking to the old historic burg, the Mecca where tired humanity may forget work and worry and fill their lungs with the pure air of heaven, not exactly paradise but the very next door to it. Where everybody finances their own meal ticket and don't sponge on their brother workers. Cassidy that noted rubber man with a party of capitalists are visiting Elko this week. Report says that Cassidy is the highest paid rubber traveller on the road. The walleyed spendthrift was just in buying rubber balls and peanuts for the kiddies. Mr. and Mrs. Kemm and family from Lethbridge moved into Boston cottage for a couple of weeks. The magnetic mountains around the Old Historic Burg is drawing visitors this summer like a watermelon patch draws coons. Elko this summer has attained the acme of popularity. Mr. and Mrs. Theil and family, Mr. and Mrs. Williams and family, Mr. Penn of the Frith of Forth, Milk River and a dozen others, just looking over a big catch of fish brought in by two of the town boys with the object of buying a few and getting their photos taken to send their friends. Elko is the nearest and the dearest summer resort to Calgary, Medicine Hat, and Lethbridge there is, and much cheaper than Banff. If you visit Elko once you'll come again.

A. I. Fisher, M.P., and Supt. of Roads McDonald, passed through Elko for Roosville and Flagstone. We are in receipt of two letters saying that they were going hell bent for election, so that it pays to advertise. The writer was down to Flagstone the next day and saw several people and if there is no move to give the settlers some road improvements down in that section of country, we'll be like the real estate man, we'll have lots to talk about. And all the farmers want down in that section of the province is a square deal and they are entitled to that. But they hardly expect it while the Oliver government is in power.

The Joyce Bros. of Flagstone are putting in another mill in the Roosville valley about two miles north of the Broley-Nolan mil 2 mies north of of the Roosvile post office, and expect to be logging and running early in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Letcher and son Herb, who have been out to the coast, returned Monday via auto to their homestead, the Square Deal ranch.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The boarding house received a formal unannounced visitor one day during the past week. After enjoying a sumptuous repast consisting of eggs, etc., the uninvited one proceeded on his way taking an inventory of several rooms, and before leaving dropped his card in the dining room. He sure must miss the dinner pails.

Several work seekers have been noticed in camp lately.

An energetic committe worked hard preparing for the sports which were held here on Wednesday. The Park was laid out comparable with any sport field in the vicinity, running tracks being roped and one portion of the field set aside and occupied by the many devices got up to entice the loose change from the pockets of the people. The "Hanging the Kaiser" stunt proved very popular. One of the visitors not satisfied with the hanging process, proceeded to throw balls at the image. Refreshment booths were erected on the ground. The day's proceedings opened at 10.30 a.m. when all children under the age of 13 years congregated at the depot, where they received a gift of 10c each. Shortly before 11 o'clock the first train load of Fernieites made their appearance. Two special trains were placed for convenience of the Fernieites. long program of events, racing, skipping, jumping, quoits, football competition, tug of war, etc., was carried out, the result of which we hope to publish next week. In the evening commencing at 8 a short concert was held, and after a few vocal renditions by members of the Fernie Veterans Concert Party, the chairman called upon Dr. Workman to unveil the Honor Roll, containing the names of members of the the Club who joined the colors in defence of the Empire. Dr. Workman in a neat speech befitting the occasion, drew attention to the fact that one or two names had been inadvertently omitted but this would be remedied later. He recounted the many occasions gatherings had been held in the hall as a send off and god speed to many whose names were on the list, but whose bodies are left on the fields of France and Flanders. The Doctor was visibly affected, as he recalled instances and particular names, and after thanking the officials for the honor which had been conferred upon him, the Doctor unveiled the "Roll." "The King" brought to a close another important epoch in the annals of Coal Creek Club. The floor space was then cleared and patrons of the terpschicore had the opportunity to indulge in their delights to the beautiful strains from the Fernie orchestra, with Mrs. McGregor at the piano. Refreshments were served at midnight.

RULES FOR EFFICIENT FURNACE MANAGEMENT

The Fuel and Fuel-Testing Division, Mines Branch, Department of Mines, has issued the following suggestions for the guidance of householders in the proper operation of house-heating appartatus:

1. Do not overheat your house.
2. Prevent air entering through cracks by means of weather stripping or other device. Use storm doors and double windows and do not open them unnecessarily.
3. Use as few rooms as possible; seal up and cut off the heat from those not in use.
4. Cover up hot water radiators or shut off hot air supply to bedrooms at night when the windows are open.
5. Keep the furnace working as evenly as possible; do not let the fire burn too low and then burn coal rapidly to warm the house again.
6. Regulate the air supply over the fire to suit the air supply through the fire, except just after charging fresh coal, when a larger supply must be provided to burn the coal gas.
7. Control the rate of combustion in the furnace by the turn damper in the flue pipe as much as possible. Care must be taken however in using this damper to see that it does not unduly cut off the draft which would cause the gases, some of which are poisonous, to pass up into the house.
8. Use those dampers as sparingly as possible which operate by admitting air into the flue or above the fire. It will, however, be dangerous to substitute the turn damper for the air damper where the flue passes close to unprotected wood or other combustible material.
9. When it is impossible to reduce the rate of combustion in the furnace by the damper use smaller coal, or cover the top of the fire bed with small size coal.
10. Prevent air from leaking into the gas passages of the furnace.
11. Remember that any device introduced into the space above the fire bed of the furnace for evaporating water for humidifying the air, or for heating water for general purposes, uses heat which would otherwise be used for heating the house. Use water heated by this means, therefore, as sparingly as possible.
12. Keep the gas passages in the furnace clean.
13. Where a hot air furnace is installed, take no air into the system from outside.
14. When the basement is warmer than necessary, cover the furnace and pipes with asbestos, magnesia, or other insulating material.

BOXING AS A SPPORT

There are communities where first class men, men who are broad-minded, men who believe in athletics of all kinds and yet look upon a boxing contest as one of the greatest crimes on earth. They would have no objections to a wrestling match, a good tumbling bout in the backyard among their own boys, but to stage a scientific match for points seems to be where the crime is committed. We have no use for a bloody knock-down battle in a ring where two men batter each other to that extent where both approach the stage of dying; but a scientific exhibition, based on points, with a limited number of rounds, is sport to which no reasonable man should object. Still there are communities throughout Canada and the United States where the extremists have prohibited sport of this character. Conditions are changing, however, and in New York, where the feeling has been so strong, in many of the western states, as well as some points in Canada, have changed their attitude on the question and it is possible that soon the time will come when all reasonable men will look upon clean boxing from a different point and admit it freely with all other kinds of sport. — Kamloops Sentinel.

EAST KOOTENAY CHAPTER DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE

The East Kootenay Chapter I. O. D. E. of Waldo and Baynes, at their June monthly meeting decided to close their meetings during the two months' summer vacation. Nevertheless they have been busy keeping their funds up.

Mrs. Frank Adolph, Baynes Lake, gave a tea which cleared $7.25. A very successful dance was given at Baynes Lake on June 27, for general funds and cleared $93.75.

On July 10th the Chapter gave a very delightful dinner to the returned soldiers of the district at the Waldo hotel. The evening finished up with a musical program and dancing.

A subscription of $10 is sent every month to the Canadian Institute for the Blind.

The Daughters deeply regret the death of their late Regent, Mrs. J. W. Ross, of Waldo, and great sympathy is felt for the bereaved family.

A shipment of over 100 articles, socks, pyjamas, etc., has been sent to the Provincial Chapter to be forwarded to the French refugees.

A parcel of 23 laundry bags was sent to the Balfour Sanitarium.

COAL CREEK MINES WORKING

The office of the Coal Co. at Coal Creek has been kept very busy signing the men on all week. The fans commenced running on Tuesday and the the first coal is being mined today. It will be a month before everything is running again as usual, as the men are scattered all over the country.

This absolutely useless and uncalled for strike has passed into history after almost every employee of the Company has lost between $300 and $500. It was caused entirely to inaugurate the O.B.U. movement, which to any sane man was an impossible scheme from start to finish.

The men in the mines who are looking, and rightly so, for improvement in wages and mining conditions must realize that there is a point in the production of coal where profits cease and loss begins. The greater the production the more money the companies make and consequently the better wages they can pay. The idea of the union man of late seems to be to cut down production to the minimum and to take every dollar that comes in for wages. This course would soon put our country in the same class with Russia, which seems to be the idea of the Reds who have been in the saddle for the past few months.

From reports coming in Coleman seems to be the only camp that is still adhering to the O.BU. Dave Reese visited that camp this week but was unable to make much impression on his hearers.

All over the district the camps have resumed operations and some of them are already shipping.

Editor Lawson of the defunct District Ledger, is up running around Calgary trying to find someone who will stake him to keep the paper going, but the International Commissioners seem to think it is a good time to let the white elephant die a natural death.

Order Number 126 (F).—

"I am advised by the International headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America that the charter of District 18 has been revoked and that a special commission consisting of Messrs. Samuel Ballantyne, Samuel Caddy and Wm. Dalrymple, has been placed in charge of the affairs of the United Mine Workers of America in this area.

By virtue of the authority vested in me by order of the Committee of the Privy Council, passed under the provisions of the War Measures Act of Canada, 1914, I hereby direct that the following rates and conditions shall be in force and effect from date until further notice.

I hereby instruct that the employees at the following mines shall resume work upon the basis as outlined below:

The Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Coal Creek, B.C.

1. Acceptance of Tentative Agreement and all orders to date.

2. That negotiations for a new agreement will commence as soon as the International Convention of the United Mine Workers of America has met and formulated a policy. This territory will be granted the same privileges as other outlying districts affiliated with the International Union of United Mine Workers of America in negotiating new contracts.

3. The non-suspension policy of the International organization will be in force and effect pending all negotiations.

(Signed) W. H. Armstrong,
Director Coal Operations.

The above order No. 126 (F) has been issued by the Government Director of Mines for this District. It will, therefore, now be in order for the various employees at Coal Creek to report to the Mine Office for work. The men who worked around the coke ovens at Fernie are also in compliance with Armstrong's order, No. 126 (F) respectively requested to see the Coke Oven Superintendent about restarting work.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Alex. Watson, manager of the Home Bank, and champion golfer of the Crow's Nest Pass, reached a milestone in his golfing career on Tuesday evening, when he made the fifth hole on the local course in one stroke. This is one of the rare happenings on a golf course. It is the first time it has happened in B.C. this year. A Lethbridge expert pulled it off in that city some weeks ago and the Herald is still talking about it. Mr. Watson made the nine holes in 37.

The combination team of Mine Rescue and First Aid will finish their practice on Tuesday, Aug. 26, and will leave for Nanaimo on the 27th. The competition starts on Sept.1. The team has put in six weeks of hard practice and expect to make a good showing in both contests.

Albert Mutz, of Blairmore, was in the city on Wednesday. He says they shipped their first car of coal since the strike on Tuesday. Mr. Mutz says that one of the drivers who remained loyal and worked through the strike was badly beaten up a couple of weeks ago. His assailants are in Lethbridge jail waiting trial.

The road to Hosmer was reopened on Wednesday by way of Fairy Creek. The new bridge over that stream has been completed and the road repaired and put in first class shape. This will be good news to motorists as the old road had become almost impossible, especially in the neighborhood of the Fernie Lumber Co. mill.

The closing of the Grand theatre and the demise of the District Ledger last week are two more instances of trying to crowd business to death. This is about the fifth time that both these concerns have gone out of business, but notwithstanding some other fool with a shoestring for capital will take a chance and lose his little stake. The force of example never seems to appeal to some people. This town never was large enough for two picture shows or two newspapers. Every time a business goes broke in a town it is a slap at that community and particularly is this the case in regard to a newspaper which is circulated all over the country.

DANCE AT BAYNES LAKE

The Baynes Lake Wide Awake Club held a very successful dance in the Adolph Hall on Tuesday, Aug. 12. The hall was tastefully decorated with flags and evergreens. A most appetizing supper was served at 12 o'clock by the members of the Club. Many people from Fernie, Wardner, Jaffray, Elko, Waldo, Roosville and Rexford danced to the strains of the Fernie four-piece orchestra.

It hit their heads and then their feet,
They simply couldn't keep their seat,
It made them wiggle, jig and prance
Like old St. Vitus at a dance,
That sycopating, aggravating, animating,
Palpitating, fascinating
Something that was jazz.

It was the most successful dance that has been held here for a long time and the young people are to be congratulated. We only hope that the W. A. C. will continue as well as it has begun. Many picnics and other forms of entertainment are being planned for the ensuing weeks.

CLEAN AUTO TRAVELLING

The Fernie correspondent of the Lethbridge Herald says:

Tourists still keep coming and going over the inter-provincial highway, one of the latest being Mr. Harry E. Hall and wife, from Glendale, a suburb of Los Angeles, California. Mr. Hall is an automobile dealer in his town, having had ten years' experience in the business. This makes him an authority as to good road conditions and his car showed by its perfect condition after the long trip through Salt Lake, Yellowstone Park, the Glacier Park and the trip through the pass, that Mr. Hall knows how to get the best out of it.

His outfit carries the banner for perfect condition as to cleanliness and condition of motor.

Some, not many, of the tourist cars which pass through Fernie do not appear inviting to a fastidious individual, who likes a clean bed in which to sleep. Bedding tied up in a roll and tied upon the running board of a car gets filled with dust, and all manner of shaking will not clear it of all dust that a day's drive accumulates when passing over dusty roads. Mr. Hall had but his wife—they appeared like a pair of honeymooners—along with him, so they had the rear seat of their car in which to stow away their bedroom furniture. This they covered with a black oilcloth cover, which was securely buttoned down all around, thus preventing any dust getting inside their bedding. It was a unique arrangement, which brought comfort and convenience to the owners. Mr. Hall is now enroute to Los Angeles by way of Spokane, Portland and San Francisco.

BOARD OF TRADE HOLD MEETING

A very enthusiastic meeting of the Fernie Board of Trade was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening. President Corrie called the meeting to order and G. G. Henderson acted as secretary in the absence of F. G. Perry.

The committee appointed to solicit new members reported that during the last week 184 new members were added to the Board. Among the new members are a number of the younger people, who seem to take a great interest in the welfare of the city, and from all appearances Fernie will have a real live board of trade.

Funds are to be raised to give Fernie and district greater publicity throughout the motor world. Pamphlets are to be gotten out and spread broadcast over the country. These funds are to be raised by assessment of the different business places in town, according to classification. This classification will be made according to the benefit derived from the added tourist traffic which will come this way when the outside people realize what we have to offer them in the line of scenery and sport throughout this district. To get the motorists to stop off here, cards are to be put out advertising our camping places and sports, such as fishing, hunting and mountain climbing. These cards are to be placed in the most important places along the road where the tourists are most apt to see them.

A suggestion was made to get Elko to co-operate with us in the line of advertising as Elko certainly has some lovely scenery, in fact the prettiest spot being the Elk canyon which very few motorists know about. The business men of Elko have signified their willingness to co-operate with Fernie in this matter and also suggested placing photographs of some of our best scenery in the larger cities along the road, to let people see what we have to offer as they pass through.

The matter of good roads was taken up and from all reports we have the best roads in the country. As the B.C. Union of Municipalities had already petitioned the government to refund part of the money derived from auto licenses, the board decided not to interfere until they saw what developed from the Municipalities' petition.

The subject of a city band was also brought up and discussed. This would add to our advertising, as motorists would be pleased to hear a Sunday night concert as they were passing through or stopping off.

The sidewalks in the city were also discussed at length and something will be done to improve the looks of the sidewalks as they are in a very bad condition at present.

The traffic bylaw will also be enforced as to observing the rules of the road in the city.

The third Thursday in each month will be the reguar meeting night of the Board.

Adjournment was taken at 10.30 p.m.

FERNIE GOT THE MONEY

The Ball Tournament in Blairmore last Wednesday turned out to be one of the best ball days seen in the Pass for a long time. All three games held the fans to the last innings in a fever heat.

Fernie was drawn with Blairmore for the opening game and this seemed to satisfy the Fernie boys as Cowley was looked to have a packed team but nothing definite was known about them as they were late in arriving.

Blairmore started off with three runs in the first innings and four in the second, while Fernie failed to hit safely, but from then on Fernie played air tight ball and one more tally is all the Alberta team could get. Fernie by a rally in the 5th and a steady uphill fight tied the score in the 7th and put over the winning run in the 8th.

Michel went right on with Cowley, and from the glad rags the Pro. Battery had disguised themselves in it looked as if Michel boys would have to play gilt-edged ball to win. Krall, pitching for Michel, didn't show much form on the slab, but he evidently had a polish on the ball for Cowley only managed to get five runs to Michel's ten. The Michel team sure were there with the hickory and the faster the balls came the farther they knocked them. Estabrook behind the bat proved a great asset.

Michel and Fernie then went out for the final. In the first innings they scored three runs through heavy hitting and an error, but from then on they were shut out, but were always dangerous when the heavy batters came around, but errorless ball in the infield held them down. Fernie got one in the 3rd, one in the 5th and tied in the 7th, and in the last half of the 9th, with a man on third, one on 1st, one down and two strikes on him, Sofko, the Fernie twirler, slammed out a drive that was good for two bases, the game and first money. He was carried off the field by his team mates, and every fan on the ground was with him, he having pitched both games, and both of them from handicaps that would well have fased an older head.
