Replies came from every state in the Union. In sparsely settled sections, perhaps a reply does not represent the opinion of more than a few hundreds, while another "yes" or "no" may represent from five to fifty thousand. Many are emphatic, yet some answer either "yes" or "no" with "reservations." A few—twenty-two to be exact—tell us that prohibition has been a benefit,but that the workingman thinks there should be a substitute for intoxicating liquors, such as beer and light wines. One replies to the effect that "seventy-five thousand workmen have lost their jobs through prohibition," but admits that the opinion does not represent the membership of his particular union; another states as his personal belief that prohibition will deter emigration to this country. Two say emphatically that prohibition is one of the main reasons for the prevalence of unrest in this country.

The majority, however, confine their answers to either "yes" or "no", although hudreds add remarks in a space provided for that purpose. A total of 345 vote unreservedly that prohibition has been a benefit to the workingman and his family, while 143 are just as sure that it has not been. Thirty-one are doubtful of its benefits, or report that the vote in their union resulted in a 50-50 tie, and seven say prohibition has not yet been given a fair trial.

In eighteen instances where an oral vote was taken at the regular meeting, it was decided without a dissenting voice that prohibition "has been a benefit to the workingman and his family." Many organizations passed resolutions disapproving or favoring prohibition; twelve report in favor of prohibition "by unanimous vote," which, added to the eighteen above, totals thirty, and five unions voted unanimously against prohibition having been a benefit. Several organizations take the pains to assure us that their membership is "100 per cent. American."

BONAR LAW BEST LIKED

Popularity is a strange thing, and often varies inversely with the distance of the centre from the circumference. Who is the most popular politician among the whole mass of Britain? Undoubtedly Mr. Lloyd George. Who is the most popular man in the inner circles of politics? Unquestionably Mr. Bonar Law, says Beachcomber in the Daily Express. To the outside world this seems strange, for there is nothing romantic or magnetic about that curious personality. But for a man to be so much liked requires certain qualities. In Bonar Law's case they are unswerving truthfulness, justice just about as absolute as can be found in mortals, and a erally lovable nature. For many years his recreations were four only — golf, tennis, chess and bridge — and though his tennis was not advertised like Mr. Balfour's it was pretty good.

Early in the war Mr. Bonar Law suddenly gave up bridge for good. There is no doubt as to the cause—a tragic one. He had lost his second son first but it was the death of the elder which struck him to the heart. Any pure amusement seemed beyond his power of enjoyment. He conceived, indeed, that his son's work had been greater than his and he devoted himself to the work of defeating the Germans in the spirit of a man "carrying on" for a higher commander who had gone on before. To such a temperament all ordinary enjoyments are pure torture; the theatre would be an agony to a man who can hardly sit down with patience for the length of an ordinary dinner.

The habit of smoking cigarettes between courses came from Russia; Bonar Law goes one better; he eats only one course altogether, and instantly lights a cigar. It is obvious that he is becoming restless. Finally, he can endure no more. "Shall we go to another room where we shall have more comfortable chairs?" he remarks, adjourning to a sanctum where the chairs are exactly the same as before. In any case, to be a devotee of chess is to be something of an intellectual anchorite, and a man who will pay a professional to battle with him is indeed an enthusiast.

Such is the nature—gentle, courteous, straightforward, but most easily bored—of the man whom the wiles of the Prime Minister lured the other day to the great performance at the Paris Opera. Bonar Law was suffering visibly, even under his placid demeanor. He had promised and he meant to stick it out. After a performance almost unequalled in Europe, his opinion was naturally sought. "It would have been quite tolerable," he said "except for the music."

NURSING THE 'FLU' BROKE HER DOWN

After Taking Tanlac Mrs. Nixon Feels So Fine She Buys It For Her Friend.

"I never felt better in my whole life than I do right now and I am going to praise Tanlac every time I get the chance," said Mrs. Ethel Nixon, of 859 Bannatyne Ave., Winnipeg, Manitoba, when she called at Liggett's Drug Store at that place a few days ago.

"Last Christmas our little boy had such a severe attack of the 'flu' we thought we were going to lose him," continued Mrs. Nixon, "and I stayed up with him night and day until he finally pulled through, but the strain and worry was too much for me and by the time he was up I was almost a complete nervous and physical wreck and about ready to take to my bed myself. My nerves were unstrung so completely that I could hardly stand the least noise, and it was all I could do to keep from screaming at times. I lost my appetite and I was troubled with indigestion so bad that the little I did eat kept me in misery for gas formed terribly bad and caused a burning sensation in my chest and up in my throat and it also presstd up around my heart so that I could hardly get my breath. It was next to impossible for me to get a night's sleep, for I was so restless I would roll and toss all night long.

"None of the medicines I tried did me a particle of good, and then I decided to take Tanlac, as I had heard so much about it. I have never seen anybody improve so fast in my life as I did. Why, I hadn't taken but a few doses before I began to feel better and I could just almost feel my nerves getting steadier, and now they are as steady as a clock, and no kind of noise disturbs me and at night I sleep as sound as a child. My appetite came back and it was no time before I was eating anything I wanted without a sign of indigestion or gas. It has been several months now since I took my last dose of Tanlac and I am still in perfect condition. I have come in here today to get a bottle of Tanlac for my husband to take to a friend of ours who has been terribly troubled with indigestion for years and is in an awful condition. I have all the confidence in the world in this medicine and know it is just what he needs."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell and by the leading druggists in every town.

The Most Interesting Human Being in the World

HER name is Lily Becker—an American girl—and you can read the story of her career in "Star Dust"—Fannie Hurst's first novel. Her fight against an all too apparent destiny—the forces which moulded her character—the desires which fought those forces—all form the background against which Miss Hurst has written a really great, a really important novel.

In Lily Becker you will find a sincere interpretation of the instinct for self-expression in woman asserting itself through the repressions exacted by too indulgent, but too little understanding parents. Lily Becker's fight is the fight of every modern young woman who must face the world. Miss Hurst has drawn a remarkable literary portrait of the girl of today.

"You Can't Please Everyone"

THIS is an amusing story by Frank R. Adams of the "today" that you worried about yesterday and that never happened. Conover Collier was going through life chained to the fear that he might lose his job or his sweetheart or his savings account. Then, when it looked like he had lost all three, he was surprised to discover that "it might have been worse" as inveterate optimists are in the habit of saying.

What Would You Do with a Million?

DO you think you would act as the poor folks in Texas acted when riches fairly rained down upon them? In the new Cosmopolitan Frazier Hunt continues his story of the oil-magic millions that have transformed a wilderness into a metropolis. He tells about Uncle Wash who was going to the government and make all "them drillers stop ruinin' all that wheat." But wheat was forgotten—and now—but read the story. It's all true and amazing!

MARCH AND APRIL DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

MINE HEADS ARE INDICTED

Indianapolis, Ind.— The names of about 125 coal operators and miners in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and western Pennsylvania, indicted here recently by a federal grand jury for alleged violation of the Lever act and conspiracy sections of the federal criminal code, were made public by federal officials. The miners include International President John L. Lewis, Secretary-Treasurer William Green, Chief Statistician Percy Tetlow; Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Mine Workers, and Phillip Murray, head of the Pennsylvania miners.

The operators named include Thomas T. Brewster of St. Louis, chairman of the operators' scale committee; Phil H. Penna of Terra Haute, Ind., spokesman for the operators in conference at Washington just preceding the strike of the miners last fall, and F. S. Peabody of Chicago, one of the leaders among the Illinois operators.

The indictments contain 18 counts, all of which charge conspiracy of some kind. One count sets out 10 overt acts constituting violation of the federal laws.

Among those not identified as miners or operators are: Jonas Waffle, secretary of the coal trade bureau of Terre Haute, Ind.; R. W. Couffer, representative of the National Coal association Chicago; and W. K. Field, president of the Pittsburg Coal company, Pittsburg.

Nw York, March 27.—John Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, named among the coal operators and miners indicted for alleged violation of the Lever act, declared in a statement here tonight that "there are no proper grounds" for the indictment of himself or his associates. He added that he does not "fear investigation by any court of competent jurisdiction."

Mr. Lewis said newspaper reports of his indictment were the first announcement of such action he had received, but that he had "understood that the entire personnel of miners' officials" were to be named.

"The miners' officers have always conformed to the law," he declared, "and have adhered to all its precepts so far as official acts are concerned. I am confident that when trial is held it will result in showing their innocence."

The first four counts of the indictment, brought under the Lever act, charge general conspiracy to "limit the facilities for transporting, producing, supplying, storing and dealing in a certain necessary, to-wit: Bituminous coal * * * by refusing to mine, sell or deliver coal for storage purposes, by increasing and maintaining excessive prices of coal by calling and causing strikes among mine workers and by closing down mines."

Counts five to nine of the indictment contain similar charges, but are based on the amendment to the Lever act passed October 22, 1919, and cover the period from the passage of the amendment until March 11, 1920, the date the indictment was returned. Other counts take up, under separate heads, charges included in the general allegations in the early counts and the 11th count cites 10 overt acts. These include the strike order of October 16, signed by President Lewis and Secretary Green of the United Mine Workers.

The last seven of the 10 overt acts alleged include the charge that Indiana operators employed what is known as the "check-off" system in mines. This system is one in which the operators deduct from the miners' pay the amount of dues owed the unions and in turn pay the money to the union.

CITY COUNCIL HOLD SESSION

The regular session of the council for the initial April function of that august assemblage was held last night. After disposing of the minutes of the previous meeting, the matter of deputations was taken up. Mr. Bigrigg renewed his application for a certain vacant lot for garden purposes. The lot in question had been granted to another party, but that party having relinquished his claim Mr. Bigrigg was given permission to agriculturalize the same. Another piece of property for the same purpose was desired but this will have to be taken up with the school board.

Wilson Quail in a communication acknowledged receipt of his discharge to take effect April 30th.

The Kootenay Telephone Lines requested the council to arrange a joint meeting consisting of delegations from the Company, the City Council and the Executive of the Board of Trade. This meeting is with reference to the demand for reduction in telephone rates, which automatically becomes effective when the number of local subscribers exceed 225. The date fixed is Thursday, April 15

Engineer Smith of the power staff tendered his resignation to become effective April 30. Upon the suggestion of Ald. Bean, however, this matter was tabled until the next meeting of the council.

With regard to an application for relief in a case where relief has already been granted, His Worship will personally investigate and report back.

The Public Utilities Commission advised the council that they had no jurisdiction with regard to water rate schedules, therefore the recently revised schedule will forthwith become effective.

Several quotations and specifications for a motor fire truck were submitted. The prices range from $2650 to $3825 and will be gone into by the fire, water and light committee, who will submit recommendations at the next meeting.

A substantial number of accounts were passed for payment and the Temporary Loan Bylaw was finally passed and adopted.

Applications for city electrician will be called for and due announcement thereof will be made by notice posted on local notice boards.

Upon the suggestion of His Worship, the school board will be approached and requested to make application to extend the school district so as to include the White Spruce mill camp and the Cedar Valley.

Under general business several matters came up and various decisions reached. Among these were steps to be taken concerning certain water and light consumers who are far in excess of the time limit for payment of these charges. It was pointed out that a considerable quantity of ashes were available from the G. N.R. and the C.P.R. gratis. The hydro-electric question was discussed and this will be gone into by the mayor and light committee.

Private Albert Wallwork, who has served at the front with the Imperial forces, returned on Friday last. He put in one year with the army of occupation in France since the armistice. Albert will reside here with his mother.

Daniel J. Kelly, a man of about 35 years of age, was found dead on the floor beside the bed in which his partner, Angus McDonald, was sleeping, at an early hour this moring. McDonald was awakened by the light in his room burning and he discovered Kelly on the floor dead. It was evidently a case of heart failure.

Wm. Johnston has leased the Michel Opera House and will open it as a first-class picture show. This house has been remodeled and the Coal Company have gone to considerable expense in installing opera chairs and providing an up-to-date operating room. First-class machines will be installed and the people of Michel will soon be able to see the same high-class pictures as are shown in the Orpheum theatre here.

The resignation of the Rev. Batzold of the United Church was accepted by the Board of Session at a meeting held for the purpose on Wednesday evening. While a majority of the Session strongly supported the pastor in his stand on amusements and expressed themselves as deeply regretting his resignation, they did so on the recommendation of the Board of Stewards. Rev. Batzold will leave Fernie at the end of April to be stationed by the Methodist Conference, which meets in Vancouver in May.

In the county court this week, J. Wilson was acquitted of the charge preferred against him of having and receiving stolen goods. Immediately following the acquittal on this serious charge the Crown laid an information under the Prohibition Act for illegally purchasing liquor and accused was fined $75. The three lads, Nicholson, Allison and Nadon, who pleaded guilty to stealing four cases of whiskey from the residence of S. Graham, Victoria Ave., were sentenced to two years in the penitentiary, but His Honor suspended sentence conditionally that the boys behave themselves and secure permanent employment.

CARRIED OUT HIS THREAT

Two small boys in the vicinity of West Fernie made the gruesome discovery on Thursday afternoon of a body submerged in the shallow waters of the Elk River. The remains have been identified as those of Geo. Vincent Cousins, who exactly a fortnight ago transmitted a letter to Rev. Batzold, pastor of the United Church, advising him of contemplated suicide by drowning. Search was made then but nothing regarding Cousins' actions subsequent to dispatching the tragic missive, other than his disappearance, was ascertained. Investigation regarding his identity was made and showed that he had recently come here from Montreal, where he was a prominent legal practitioner, a member of the firm of Cotton & Cousins. His status also was highly aristocratic and at one time he was rated as a millionaire. Documents in his effects indicate that he leaves a wife and two children, amply provided for, the latter each being beneficiaries in life insurance policies to the extent of $50,000. His mother resides in the West Mount area in Montreal. Financial complications and poor health would indicate a motive for self destruction. An inquest has been ordered. Deceased was apparently about 34 years of age and a photograph in his effects indicate that he held rank as a lieutenant in the Royal Highlanders of Canada.

BIG CABARET SCENE IN "THE MARKET OF SOULS"

Even Broadway will obtain some new ideas about New Year's Eve celebrations from the new Paramount Artcraft photoplay, starring Dorothy Dalton, "The Market of Souls," which will be on view at the Orpheum Theatre next week. A scene of lavish revelry, unsurpassed in screen presentations, is shown in this picture.

THE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN

The Board of Trade general meeting was held on Tuesday evening in the council chamber, upon which occasion the attendance was very gratifying, some fifty odd being present. The really important matter for consideration was with regard to the 1920 Publicity Campaign, concerning which the discussion took up the greater part of the time. The resolution emanating from the executive to the Board and the correspondence from Cranbrook and Golden rejecting the suggested combined publicity campaign for the entire district, were submitted, following which J. F. Spalding, chairman of the local publicity committee submitted the estimated gross expenditure necessary to carry on a substantial campaign during the coming season. This original estimate fixed the cost at $3850, made up as follows: Salary to publicity agent per annum for half time services, $1800; automobile; Mr. Spalding volunteered to turn his own car in at valuation of $500 and new car purchased at about $1200, leaving thereby $700 to be subscribed by the Board; follow-up pamphlets at $250; stationery $100; postage $300; miscellaneous expense of publicity agent $250; entertainment $300; emergency expense $150. Mr. Spalding also tabled an estimated revenue from subscriptions locally and outside the city from Crow's Nest to Fort Steele to the amount of $3110, of which from personal survey canvas he had already been promised $1000.

The discussion following the foregoing was entered into by Messrs. Young, Spalding, Cummings, Parker, Herchmer, Stewart, Minton, Harvie, Gates, Corrie and others, and it would appear that while the concesus of opinion was agreeable to such a campaign it was felt by reason of its extravagance it could hardly be expected to be handled from the financial viewpoint successfully by the limited number of subscribers in this city. The discussion was terminated finally by a motion introduced by Mr. Gates and seconded by Mr. Herchmer, that the executive be authorized to raise the sum of $2000 for general publicity work and other expenses for 1920, and the distribution of the funds also be left with the executive. This was sanctioned unanimously.

A. J. Moffatt reported progress with reference to the matter of telephone rates. The agreement between the telephone company and the city states that 225 subscribers automatically cause the rental to be reduced. The investigation as to the number of local subscribers while a very tedious operation owing to difficulty in securing these from the telephone company, eventually placed the number at 197 or 28 new subscribers required to obtain the reduced rate. The committee that had canvassed for subscribers secured 46 and these applications were turned in to the company with the request that they be installed and the modified rate secured. Further correspondence had followed between the City Clerk's office and the company with the possibility that installations of sufficient number may possibly or probably be made by May 1st, at which time the expectation is that the rentals will be on the lower schedule incorporated in the agreement.

Only one new member was proposed, namely, E. J. Donald, of the B.C. and Alberta Power Co., and he was unanimously elected.

Correspondence:

Letters from Cranbrook and Windermere Boards suggesting the formation of an Associated Board for East Kootenay, were read. G. J. Spreull, president of the Cranbrook Board, will be invited to attend the next general meeting, at which this matter will be fully considered.

A communication was also received from Mr. Claridge, Dist. Rep. S. C. R., requesting that if the Board decided to appoint a publicity agent that applications from the Professional and Business Men's Section of the Soldiers Civil Re-establishment be called for and thereby permitting returned men of these qualifications to have the opportunity of tendering for the appointment. This was referred to the executive.

Under new business, Mr. Herchmer took the opportunity to announce to the board that the committee constituted last year to raise funds for permanent recreation for the children, would hold a sports day on July 1st, and suggested that everyone who possibly could do so should volunteer their services to assist in making the celebration a success.

Mr. Minton directed attention of the board to the condition of the road between Dorr and Flagtone and requested that representations be made to the provincial government to have the necessary alterations and repairs made on same. A. Cummings advised that a new survey of the road in question had been made and that he believed it was the intention of the government to improve this road at the beginning of this season.

Mr. Baldrey made a similar suggestion regarding the road in the Upper Elk Valley. The Minister of Public Works will be requested to improve this road so that it will be suitable for automobile travel.

Mr. Claridge on behalf of the G.W.V.A. advised the board that the Annual Provincial Convention of the Great War Veterans Association would be held in Fernie this year on May 7 and 8. This has now, however, been postponed until June 4 and 5. It was intimated that some form of entertainment should be extended to the sixty odd visiting delegates. This was referred to the executive, which later appointed a special committee to provide suitable entertainment for the visiting Veterans.

The meeting adjourned shortly after 11 o'clock but was immediately followed by an executive meeting, whereat the appointment of a publicity agent was considered and confirmed. The decision of the executive was that J. F. Spalding be engaged for a period of six months at a salary of $100 per month as publicity agent, and also to act as chairman of the collection committee to collect the necessary funds for the year 1920, estimated at $2000, and that this appointment is contingent upon said funds being subscribed and collected. Salary of publicity agent to become effective as from April 15.

With regard to the request from the District Representative S. C. R., to be permitted to receive applications for the appointment of a publicity agent, the concensus of opinion at the meeting was that in view of the fact that the appointment was only for a brief period and at half time services, it was thought as Mr. Spalding was willing to do the work and his wide knowledge of the district and conditions prevailing therein, he should be placed in charge of the work, and that in view of the position not being sufficiently lucrative there was no necessity to call for outside applications.

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir:—At the meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening I heard doubt expressed that Mr. Spalding has lost any business through his attention to the publicity work he has been carrying on during the last few months. As I am in a position to vouch for the truth of his statement, I think it only fair to make the fact known. I might have said so at the meeting, but I am not used to speaking in public, so decided that I would ask you to give space to this letter in your this week's issue.

Mr. Spalding's studio is above my store and very few people can go up to it without my hearing them. During the last few months a considerable number have gone up there and found he was not there, and many of them have come into my store and asked me where he was as they had to go out of town. In this way I know that he has lost considerable business as he stated.

Believing that the tourist trade will bring considerable business into town and that every business will benefit by it, I shall be very glad to come through with whatever amount is expected from me.

Yours very truly,
J. J. Harrington.

At this meeting the local corps will repeat the special service given Good Friday—basket drill, dialogues, tableau—'The Changed Cross' etc. Collection at the door.

LLOYD GEORGE AND LABOR

Premier Lloyd George's critics, who have of late questioned the wisdom of his biting attacks upon the program of the Labor party, have never charged him with lack of courage. They are now perhaps willing to admit that his attitude toward Labor has been shrewdly timed and voiced, in view of the by-elections made necessary by rearrangements in the Ministry. The strongest opposition to the return of the Coalitionists comes from the Labor party, whose split with the Asquithian Liberal wing shows signs of widening.

In two of the contests women are the choice of the Labor party, namely, Chamberwell (part of London), and Northampton. The former is the most spectacular of the battles. Dr. Macnamara, a Canadian by birth, who has been appointed Minister of Labor, was elected to the constituency formerly as a Liberal. When he helped the Coalition in the contest against Sir John Simon in Spen Valley he lost the support of many of the Liberal workers in his own riding. They are now rallying around an Asquithian Liberal candidate, but the real fight appears to be between Dr. Macnamara and Miss Susan Lawrence for the Labor party. The lady is a political worker and speaker of no mean ability.

In the working-class districts high prices are the pivotal issue of the by-election struggles. They are a potent lever also in the campaign of Lloyd George against the Communism that he now declares is the doctrine of the Labor party. "We cannot take any chances in these revolutionary days," he says. "The nation must realize what the Labor program means, then make the choice with its eyes open." He professes to absolve "a vast majority of the working classes" from association with the program which, he argues, is the work of a group of men "who have received a lop-sided education . . . . and who call themselves intellectuals." This is a rather harsh view of the university-bred men who are associated with the Labor movement.

The miners alone are demanding increases that would aggregate over $220,000,000 a year, and so far have rejected the Government's compromise offer, which would amount to $150,000,000 yearly. The activities of the Labor and Pensions Ministries have been extended and wideened beyond all the forecasts of former years. Indeed it is said that one person in every sixteen in Britain is now in receipt of a pension or allowance from the Government. Lancashire cotton workers are demanding a sixty per cent increase in wages. Operators show their understanding of the pressure of high prices by admitting and offering a raise of twenty-five per cent. The workers, who for long years were certainly not sufficiently well remunerated, reject this as not giving them a proper share of the profits from the enormous orders the trade is now booking. In most industries also the hours of labor have been reduced and production lessened.

It would appear as if Lloyd George had decided to force the issue as between Labor and the rest of the nation, believing that there is no hope of getting any considerable body of the Labor party t ostand by the Coalition. The results in several of the approaching by-elections may decide him for or against an early general appeal to the country.

HAMBURG PORT OF THE DEAD

Hamburg, the greatest port in Germany, is now dead. In a drive round the port an English merchant, on his first visit since before the war, saw scarcely a soul, not a sailor, not a dock laborer. Writing to the Daily Express, he says:

"I have seen the ruins of North France, where the desolation and silence were impressive, but here, where nothing is destroyed, where every appliance for industrial activity stands ready, the silence is almost gruesome. It is as though a magician had waved his wand and caused a blight to fall on this once prosperous city.

"A few ships are lying at the quays so few as to be lost in that immense port; there are a few hands earning good wages unloading the rare American, Scandinavian and British ships. But the masses who used to fill th etunnel under the Elbe, who crowded the little steamers taking them from wharf to ship and from ship to factory, the masses that swarmed on the ferries, where are they? Hidden in some back room in the ugly, gloomy houses overlooking the small canals, sitting in dreary little inns sucking at empty pipes, loafing about waiting for some chance job.

"In the streets one comes across an occasional group of sailors, looking half-ashamed of wearing the international garb of those who go down to the sea in ships. But they are sailors — there is no mistaking the sun-tanned faces, the broad shoulders, and the rolling walk of the seafarer.

"'You dare come here?' says an old captain. 'What do you want To see how far we have fallen? Tell the people in England that they have got what they wanted. Our trade is ruined, our ships are lost.'

"It is useless here to speak of Nemesis and of the responsibility for the war. To these men it is England that caused the war. They have lost everything with their ships, even hope. They see no possibility of rebuilding their prosperity — they do not want to see it. All they know is anger, hate and despair."

WHY EAT ANYTHING

In London, the public, objecting to the increased cab charges, has adopted the simple expedient of not employing cabs, with the result that the spectacle is frequently presented of cabbies appealing for fares at the prospective customer's price. In Paris the refusal of citizens to use taxicabs for a similar reason has had the marvellous effect of rendering the drivers polite instead of insolent, as was their wont. The moral is obvious. The public can cure extortion in any direction by the very simple expedient of leaving the extortioner to his own devices.—Montreal Gazette.

NO LONGER A QUESTION

Membership and representation of Canada and the other dominions in the League of Nations is no longer a controversial question. The thirty-eight nations of the league outside the British Empire are content with the arrangement. The only State in which objection was taken did not give an authoritative decision, but in any case the objection is ot a live question, since that nation has on other grounds declined membership in the league, and is therefore indifferent in the matter. — Vancouver Province.

FRIEND OF UNFORTUNATES

"A friend of the poor and dejected criminal."

This is the keynote of the opinions expressed by leading members of the city bar in commenting upon the death last week of T. C. Robinette, K.C.

Few persons know, or in all probability, ever will know, the vast amount of work done by Mr. Robinette in placing the wayward criminal on the paths of rectitude. Mr. Robinette was reserved regarding his professional services which were often given the needy client gratis. It is stated on good authority that he always welcomed an occasion to defend a person of meagre means.

"If any person has been ill-treated and needs the assistance of a lawyer," he is quoted as having said to a near friend, "never let him fail to get justice because he can't afford it."

That the late Mr. Robinette defended many clients from whom he received no monetary consideration is confirmed by those who are in a position to speak. He considered it almost a duty to advise and defend those who had not sufficient money to pay for a lawyer. More than once he has even given money to those who happened to be in trouble and who needed the necessary funds to keep body and soul together. Mr. Robinette always counselled his students to treat poor clients with respect and kindness. Some of his clients who got into trouble benefited greatly by Mr. Robinette's advice and today are respected citizens, loud in their praises of the great work accomplished by him.

J. M. Godfrey, K. C., who has been associated with the late Mr. Robinette as a partner for the past 25 years, speaks of him as follows:

"I don't believe Mr. Robinette in all his activities made an enemy, and I don't think he had an enemy in the world. He was one of the most lovable men I ever knew. The one outstanding characteristic was his love of home and his absolute devotion to family. That appeared to him far beyond either business or politics. He was a loyal partner and a delightful friend. During the long period that I was associated with him we never had a word of disagreement. As a counsel he seemed to go along the lines of least resistance, and associated with this was a very fertile intellect, and what one might call a bull-dog tenacity. He was one of the most brilliant students who passed through Toronto University.

Although he was so active in politics he never got any government work except once, and the amount he received was about $26. This was always referred to by his friends jokingly, and the story associated with it always made Mr. Robinette smile, and he never denied it. This work occurred when he was acting as crown prosecutor at a case in Simcoe county. It was the only case in which Mr. Robinette was prosecutor. When he came to address the jury, it is declared by his friends, that he forgot himself so far as to comment: "Gentlemen of the jury, you will agree with me that there is not a tittle of evidence against the prisoner." He had gone that far before he realized his own position as prosecutor. Needless to say, the prisoner was acquitted. It was hard to break the habit of a life time.

W. D. Gregory, K.C., who began his legal practice at the same time as the late Mr. Robinette, recalls some interesting incidents which took place in his younger days. They are interesting and go to show that even as a young barrister he gave promise of becoming a great criminal lawyer.

"I first met Mr. Robinette about September, 1884," said Mr. Gregory. "He and I belonged to a group of young men who at that time organized the Young Men's Liberal Club of Toronto. He had recently graduated from Toronto University with high honors and came into our club with a good deal of prestige. He took a leading part in our discussions and was a most popular member. He always showed a solicitude for, and an interest in others. He had a charming manner, and whatever he had to say, he almost invariably said well. Like many other members of the club he did some campaigning at election times. I remember very well our going out together to address a meeting in the little Temperance Hall at Agincourt, and also to a meeting at Brockton. He was one of those of our club who was always in demand when an election was on. He was a 'Canada first' man, and if I recollect aright, supported motions brought forward in the club in favor of Canadian independence. He was not regarded as a deep thinker, but I believe that he thought a good deal more and a good deal deeper than many people imagined. I remember very well going with him one evening, after a committee meeting, which we were at, to one of those impressive services held by D. L. Moody in the Metropolitan Church. We both began to practice law at the some time, but I saw very little of him after those days in the Young Men's Liberal Club. The last time I spoke to him was several weeks ago, when we walked away together from the National Club. He inquired about my family and talked to me of his own—to which he must have been deeply attached."

W. K. Murphy, formerly a student in the office and later junior member of Robinette & Co., gives some interesting reminiscences of the late Mr. Robinette.

"Sometimes Mr. Robinette would be very busy with a large case," said Mr. Murphy, "but he was never too busy to take a poor man's case, irrespective of whether he was paid a fee or not. Frequently he instructed me to handle the case of a poor unfortunate, and, advised me to help them as much as possible, casually saying: 'Somebody has to help these poor fellows if they're going to make good.' Sometimes Mr. Robinette's clients would leave jail without a cent of money and invariably would come to him for financial assistance. He never turned them away."

That the late Mr. Robinette was a great lover of his family is self-evident. It was his custom to leave his office not later than four o'clock, and have his car meet him with some member of his family. He would go either immediately home, or drive around with his family. He liked his family so much and desired to be associated with them as much as possible, that he would have his clients call at his home. The keynote of Mr. Robinette's success, as viewed by Mr. Murphy, was his kindly nature, which was borne out in his speech and demeanor in court.

"Never let your client perjure himself." This was the advice to students who passed through Mr. Robinett's office. In fact, many instances are related of Mr. Robinette's refusal to have anything to do with certain cases because his clients persisted in going into the witness box and perjuring themselves.

DISCARD WAR MACHINERY

If the league of nations succeeds in abolshing war there will be relegated to the scrap-heap a wonderful lot of fighting machinery, much of which has come into being since the beginning of the world war in 1914, and future generations will see only in museums the implements of warfare to produce which brilliant men devoted the best years of their lives.

Already in the Royal Ontario Museum there is set up a modern fighting airplane, donated by the British government, and even now the "tanks" used by the British for the first time only about three years ago are obsolete. This was shown by the announcement in the British House of commons a few days ago that a tank had been evolved capable of a speed of 30 miles an hour, but equally as efficient as the ponderous machine tha ficient as the ponderous machines that were first sent against the Germans on the western front. The United States also is said to have given satisfactory tests to a "tank" of great speed.

What a departure from the days when every soldier was an individual "tank," when cased in armor he got to grips with the enemy and hacked his way through steel clad ranks by sheer brute strength.

But now the "tank" of the great war will take its place in the museums beside the armor of former days. In no place outside of the British Museum is there such a display of old armor and weapons of bygone centuries as in the Royal Ontario Museum, where Sir Henry M. Pellatt's collection is housed.

The collection includes full suits of armor as worn in many countries and covering a period of many centuries up to the time when it was gradually discarded as useless as a defence against bullets, as well as swords and daggers of rich and weird design, pikes and maies, pistols and guns of unweildy size, and every device imaginable for offence and defence in war.

Speed and lightness, it has been demonstrated, count for more than armor plate protection. It was in the battles of Agincourt and Poitiers that the English learned that the heavily-armed knight was not equal to the plebian lightly armed. Not only were the men encased in heavy plate, but also their horses. They were individual tanks of the first order.

If a knight fell he could not rise to fight again, and on foot he fought with difficulty. The fifteenth century marked the climax in heavy plate armor. There was a gradual development from the early chain mail to which plates of steel were added, first over the heart then at the knees. Breast plates and head pieces and reinforcements appeared until the of solid and complete armor was evolved. Elaborate decoration and design in gold inlay with studded and raised or embossed outlines, appear upon the elaborate fighting apparel of the knights of the seventeenth century.

Gradually, the heavy plate disappeared until in the days of Cromwell there was little of it left, the breast plate and the metal hat being the survivals.

LETTERS FROM OTHER BOARDS

Dear Mr. Editor:

The enclosed letters will interest the motorists and busines men of this city, and I shall be much obliged if you will give space for them in your issue this week.

Regarding the Kalispell Chamber of Commerce, mention of the road connecting up with the Flathead, I may say that this road is to be survey this Spring. It will be particularly good news to all here to know that the road between Gateway and Kalispell will be put into good shape this year as a great deal of the Spokane travel will be routed through Gateway then, instead of through Kingsgate.

With respect to the letter from the National Parks Highway Association, I do not think there is much doubt that when the Kalispell-Gateway road is fixed up, we can have this section also included in that Park to Park Highway. The map on the back of their letter gives the outline of that trip and you will see how easily we can be included. I have a large map identical with this one and will mark this highway out on it, and shall be glad to have anyone interested come up and see it.

Yours very truly,
Fred Spalding.

Mr. J. F. Spalding, Chairman, Publicity Committee, Fernie Board of Trade.

Dear Mr. Spalding:—I am in receipt of your very interesting and instructive letter of April 1, and it is one of the best pieces of news we have received in a long time that we are to be connected up with your country by a road, possibly, from Morrissey, or Corbin, or both.

I am sending under separate cover, some maps which will give you a very good idea of roads in our country, locally, and, also, a Montana road map and a National Parks Highway folder.

The tourist proposition is the biggest one confronting us in the northwest today and we should all work together. The road up the North Fork of the Flathead will cost about $5,000 per mile and will be one of the big scenic highways of the country.

Another big feature in connection with the North Fork road is it's intimate connection with the west entrance to Glacier National Park.

The road between Kalispell and Spokane has been in use three years and this year will be better than ever. I made a trip out of Kalispell to Spokane by auto over this road three years ago in ten hours and forty minutes, beating the Great Northern Railroad's time.

The road from Kalispell to Belton is good. It is thirty-five miles from Kalispell to Belton. There is no completed road from Belton, the western entrance of Glacier National Park to Glacier, the eastern entrance. Work started on that road two years ago and about seven miles have been done. There is a stretch of fifty-eight miles between Belton and Glacier. The Great Northern railway, each year, makes special arrangements to carry autos by freight between Belton and Glacier—rate $10 per car.

I will send you some pictures later on of our roads and scenic places and I thank you for your generous offer to display our road and scenic views.

You will be able to make the trip from Kalispell to Helena and Butte about the first of June, that is, I would advise that date, yet you could go in May.

I like your idea of your proposed trip this summer from Seattle, Pendleton, Walla Walla and Spokane and thence to Kalispell. While the road from Kalispell to the International boundary line at Gateway, via Eureka, is not the best, nevertheless, cars make the trip each year and this year the road will be greatly improved. If you conclude to come our way, we will take great pleasure in showing you our country and going into Glacier Park with you.

Helena, Great Falls and Butte are working on the proposition of a road from Many Glacier Hotel, Glacier Park, via Babb to Cardeston. This proposition will be taken up this year. I doubt if you will be able to go from Many Glacier Hotel to Cardeston by auto as I do not think the road is passable for cars. I will look this matter up and let you know.

When you hear, definitely, as to the Morrissey survey, please let me know.

Yours very truly,
P. N. Bernard, Secretary.
Kalispell Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. J. F. Spalding, Fernie, B.C.

Dear Mr. Spalding:—Some time ago one of your circular letters reached my desk and I am much interested. As you will see by this stationery that this letter is written upon, we at Cody are interested in the development of the West as the play ground of North America. That, of course, includes your section of the country and I am only too pleased to cooperate with you in every way possible. The first way we can help you is by advising you we conduct here during the summer season a tourist information bureau where we distribute literature to all we may think are interested and we will be pleased to have a quantity of your literature and will endeavor to give it the best possible distribution.

Just now we are laying our plans for a gigantic publicity trip around the Park to Park Highway as outlined on the back of my stationery and as this trip is purely a publicity trip and where no one connected with a manufacturing concern will be permitted to participate, we are entending invitations to different cities and towns to participate and I am just wondering where your city is located and whether you would be at all interested in joining this party. Details of the trip have not yet been worked out, but inside of 30 days or so we will know definitely what we want to do. This I know, I can extend an invitation to you to come down and tour the United States with us and distribute your literature covering your scenic points of interest and I would be glad to hear from you and will give you more details if you are interested.

Yours truly, Gus Holms,
Pres. National Park to Park Highway Association.

CONDEMN TRIAL AS UNFAIR

Winnipeg, April 6.—(By Canadian Press)—Sentence was pronounced on the six convicted strike leaders by Mr. Justice Metcalfe at the assize court today. William Ivens, George Armstrong, W. A. Pritchard, John Quee and R. J. Johns were sentenced to one year on each of the six counts of seditious conspiracy on which they were convicted, and to six months on the count of common nuisance, sentences to run concurrently, making the term to be served by each in the provincial jail one year. R. E. Bray, found guilty on a charge of common nuisance, was sentenced to six months in the provincial jail.

Before being sentenced each of the convicted men, with the exception of William Ivens, when asked if they had anything to say, condemned the trial as unfair and reiterated their adherence to the principles of the right of general strikes and free speech.

The convicted men while waiting for the court to convene conversed freely and apparently light-heartedly with their families and friends in the court room. John Queen, in particular, keeping the relatives of the prisoners, who were in the jury box, in laughter.

When Mr. Justice Metcalfe entered the court A. J. Andrews, K.C., crown counsel, moved for sentence. Mr. Justice Metcalfe asked if counsel for the convicted men wished to make any statement, E. J. McMurray stated that they did not.

Mr. Justice Metcalfe asked for the indictment, and asked William Ivens, the first of the convicted men to be sentenced, if he wished to say anything. Mr. Ivens stated that he did not, and was sentenced.

As each of the convicted strike leaders received the sentence he was taken in charge by one of the court bailiffs and removed to the provincial jail. The families of George Armstrong and R. E. Bray followed them from the court and were allowed a few minutes in private.

A sensation was caused in the court when Mr. Justice Metcalfe interrupted R .E. Bray in his statement and told him that he had just committed a more serious offence than that for which he was about to be sentenced. He had in his reference to the court as being biased, laid himself open to summary sentence for an indefinite period.

Crown counsel at the conclusion of the session asked the court to take action against the accused, Bray, to uphold the dignity of the court.

Mr. Justice Metcalfe stated that the status of the judiciary of Canada was being lowered by members of the legislatures under the cloak of privilege. He was tired, he said, of trying to uphold the dignity of the court when this was going on. The time is coming rapidly, he declared, when men chosen for the honorable position of judge will prefer their own private practice. It should not, he said, be left to the judges to uphold the dignity of Canadian law. Men should not be allowed to make speeches such as are being made daily in reference to the trial of the strike leaders in which they refer to him as being a representative of the "capitalistic class."

Bray, when making his statement repeatedly caused the courts displeasure by stating that he had not had a fair trial, that the trial and the verdict were a travesty of British justice, and referred to Mr. Justice Metcalfe as biased.

Bray continued by stating that the class struggle had been plainly shown in the trial when well-dressed women had been given reserved seats in court to gloat over the sufferings of himself and comrades.

R. J. Johns was the second man to be sentenced, and in a statement made to the court, declared that anything he had done had been done by the order of the men he represented.

"I am pleased that I carried on the work. I feel that it is my life work," he declared, and went on to point out that any man who had not worked with the workers could not understand the psychology of the working class. Men outside of the working class, he said, did not understand the needs of determination of the work.

The crown, he said, had contended that there were no classes in Canada. There were two classes, a working class and a capitalistic class—who opposed each other. Social ownership, he claimed, was inevitable in time, to support human life. The strike was premeditated and brought on by the Citizens' Committee, who were afraid of the organization of the One Big Union.

"They beat us, and I admire them for it," he said. "The psychology is there, however, and will remain there."

Pritchard stated that he felt the same way as Johns and went on to say that he was ready to go to jail to serve the sentence of the court, but "I go to jail realizing that if a man is to be true to himself, he cannot then be false to any other man," he declared.

Alderman Queen referred to the opposition he and his comrades put up when Mr. Justice Metcalfe was appointed to take charge of the trial. He claimed that Mr. Justice Metcalfe could not help but be prejudiced. He also claimed that the farmers who had suffered losses through the strike were not proper men to serve on the jury.

"We know that the farmers would be willing to hang anyone who had been on strike," he declared.

He claimed that he was convicted merely because he was on the city council and did not prove suitable to the Citizens' Committee.

George Armstrong, who appeared to be very nervous, was interrupted by Mr. Justice Metcalfe when he went into a lengthy outline of the doctrines he had advocated, and asked if he had anything to say as to why the court should not sentence him.

Armstrong then stated that he was not on strike, was not a strike leader and that in his mind the law had been given an unparalleled elasticity to cover his particular case.

Application for a reserve case on behalf of the six convicted leaders will be made some time this week, W. H. Truman, K.C., counsel for the defense, stated today. The defense stated that they were at present preparing material for the application.

SHOW DOWN WITH O.B.U.

Calgary, April 8.—What is considered to be a definite show-down between the members of the One Big Union and Commissioner Armstrong, representing the government in the interests of the mining industry in Canada, has come about in the form of a test case which opened in the police court before Magistrate Daddison on Thursday morning. R. B. Morrow, general manager of the Canmore Coal Co., has been arraigned on a charge under the Lemieux Act, it being alleged that he unlawfully declared a lockout of all miners on March 22, before the dispute was submitted to a board of arbitration.

According to the evidence adduced in court by the prosecution, Mr. Morrow read an order which he had received from Coal Commissioner Armstrong on Sunday, March 21, instructing him to refuse employment to all those who refused to sign the check-off of the United Mine Workers of America. The case is proceeding.

LENINE'S PEACE OFFER

A fear of poison-ivy concealed among the leaves of the olive-branch seems to affect our editors as they scrutinize the peace terms offered by Russia's "Red" autocrat. "Twenty times has Soviet Russia requested the resumption of political and trade relations with the United States, and has been twenty times ignored," the Philadelphia Press tells us, but adds that "the twenty-first request comes, however, under greatly altered circumstances." Lincoln Eyre, the New York World's correspondent in Russia, gives us an idea of these circumstances when he declares, after a ten weeks' sojourn in Soviet Russia, that one basic conviction is "Among the Russian people the period of destruction has reached its end, and the period of construction is at hand." In an interview with Lenine, who shares the dictatorship of Russia with Trotzky, he quotes Lenine as saying that "the world must come to us for wheat, flax, platinum, and other minerals in the end, Bolshevism or no Bolshevism." The overtures which Trotzky made to the United States were sent to other nations, great and small, couched in different terms by that military dictator, who declared to the correspondent that "notwithstanding the 'Red' Army's sweeping victories, we are ready to make peace today as we have ever been."

Russia's so-called peace proposals are received with considerable skepticism by a large portion of American newspapers, though some would offer her a helping hand. Her amazing offer to call a Constituent Assembly, to pay sixty per cent of her foreign debt and pay arrears of interest, giving as a guaranty for the fulfillment of these promises valuable mining concessions, leads many papers to believe that the peace overtures are made in good faith, and if actd upon by this country will help to bring order out of chaos in Russia. Russia's offer to call a Constituent Assembly creates still greater surprise because of her claim, made in the New York Tribune, that "the majority of Russian people are supporting the Soviet system," which is something vastly different. To the newly arisen little states that have come out of the Russian "earthquake" independence is offered; to some of the great nations, the Paris correspondent of the New York Times cables, the offers are more tempting, and read something like this:

"England hears tell of huge stocks of wheat, flax, and hides to be bought at bargain prices.

"To France there comes the promise that the Soviets will reshoulder 14,000,000,000 francs of Czarist borrowing.

"Japan gets a guaranty of the stoppage of revolutionary propaganda which is threatening to plunge her into chaos, and is dazzled by the offer of a 'sphere of influence' in Manchuria.

"To disheartened Germany there is borne a whisper of trade cooperation and free access to sorely needed raw materials.

"For America, there is a bait of rich concessions to add new billions to her wealth.

"'All these things will I give thee,' says the Bolshevik tempter, 'if thou wilt recognize me.'"

The Premiers of England, France and Italy have decided in favor of complete commercial relations with Russia, without officially recognizing Lenine, the dispatches say, and many newspapers believe that full diplomatic recognition will follow. The St. Louis Star predicts that this will be brought about as the result of economic necessity. Says The Star:

"The Allies are not coming to love the Soviet. They are merely realizing, at last, that they have more need of relations with Russia than Russia has of relations with them. Russia is self-sustaining. The rest of Europe is not. That is the key to the gradual change of front. Lenine is a bitter dose, who has to be swallowed."

The Star's contemporary, The Post-Dispatch, believes that:

"Reason has come to both camps. The reign of blood has ceased in Russia, because, having won complete political domination, the Russian dictators see the necessity of economic rehabilitation. They know they can not long survive the ravages of cold and hunger.'

Political as well as economic relations between the rest of the world and Russia, which "is destined to play a large part in affairs under a democratic form of government," is to be desired, declares the New York Mail, and it goes on:

"Having definitely reached the conclusion that their efforts to reorganize Russia's political life by pressure from outside have ended in complete failure, and having admitted that the economic rehabilitation of Russia is essential to the economic rehabilitation of the world, the logical course for the Allies now to pursue is to accept Russia's offer and enter into negotiations with the Moscow Government."

In view of the unprecedented amount of Soviet Russian news now appearing in the press of the country the following dispatch from the Socialist New York Call's Washington correspondent is interesting:

"The deluge of pro-Soviet 'news' now appearing in the metropolitan dailies is a diplomatic gas-attack as deliberate and insincere as the anti-Soviet hysteria which proceeded it during the past two years.

"There is just one difference. The first attack was used to justify war against the Russian Republic and was composed of ninety-nine per cent lies. The present attack is intended to justify peace with Russia and is composed of sixty per cent truth.

"President Wilson and the Allies declared they would never make peace with the present regime in Russia. And they won't. Thef will first destroy it—in the newspapers. With headlines, cartoons, editorials, and special articles they will wipe it from the face of the earth."

Storm-signals were quickly run up by many newspapers throughout the country when the news that Russia had made overtures to this country was disseminated. Officially the State Department will not even consider the note, it declares, as it considers it nothing more nor less than more"Red" propaganda. Many editorial writers see in the overture to this country a plot by Lenise. Frank H. Simonds, in the New York Tribuse, says:

"No one need now expect that, whatever hte terms actually sigsed, the Russian Bolsheviki will change their feelings of hatred and resentment toward the Westers natioss. Their view that they have compelled France, Britain and the United States to recogsize them will not be inaccurate."

The most vitriolic attack upos the Soviet regime which we have seen, and the most urgest advice against acceptisg the peace overtures made by Russia, are contaised in the Providence Journal, which declares:

"The Soviet scheme of things is a menace as real and issidious as the nnnsnsnsssn
German menace ever was, and the business of our Government is to strive with all its might against its vicious pretensions.

"The Soviet leaders are aiming a deadly blow at the civilization of the world. These thugs and assassins are thugs and assassins still. With criminals of their type we can have nothing formally to do."

More tempered are the views of the El Paso Times, which thinks "Allied policy, or lack of policy, toward Russia has been a sad mixture of blunders and lack of vision." Now that a Russo-German alliance is "an ever-looming menace," the Allied statesmen have agreed that something must be done, declares this paper, and concludes:

"No one is enthusiastic about recognizing Lenine and Trotzky. But Lenine and Trotzky are in the saddle. There is no sue denying the fact.

"Some persons have taken the attitude that Bolshevism is a contagious disease born of warped intellects, and have urged that it be isolated lest it become epidemic. A more recent opinion, however, is that it is a malady best combated by letting in light and air.

"But whatever it is, it is a matter that concerns Russia, and the world is slowly getting around to the commonsense view that Russia should be permitted to work out her own destiny."—Literary Digest.

FILLING THEM OUT

Filling out the Federal income tax papers is a duty the good citizen fulfills in the same spirit with which he watches the femininity of his home turning it upside down and inside out in the frenzies of spring cleaning. There seems to be a great field for a clever inventor in the tax-form industry. Such an one would reap the everlasting gratitude of his fellowmen, and save many from feeling that they are not nearly so intelligent as they thought they were, by devising a paper which calls for simple answers to simple questions. To expect people in these days of perplexities to understand all that is meant by the "N.Bs." "Notes," "Offsets to Items," this and that, and the "not elsewhere enumerated" warnings displays a flattering confidence in the ability of income-tax payers as a class that none of them feels when filling in a form.

Most men could tell offhand the amount of their income. But the modern tax paper seems to be designed first to numb their senses and then to trap them into unconsciously contradicting themselves. There ought to be a space in the papers for deductions for the amount of time used in trying to fill them out with an intelligent understanding of what all the questions and schedules mean. Perhaps that is invited in the schedule "Other deductions not elsewhere enumerated. (Specify.) " — Toronto Globe.

Nerves and Stomach Shattered In War—Is Restored By Tanlac.

"I have been so greatly benefitted by Tanlac that you can put unqualified endorsement of the medicine in every paper in Canada," was the statement of Henry Cheffins, of 2160 Broder St., Regina, Sask., to a Tanlac representative recently. Mr. Cheffins, who in an electrician, is widely known in his trade, having worked in Quebec, Ontario and Manitoba as well as Saskatchewan. He enlisted in 1914 and served overseas with the 2nd Canadian Divisional Horse Transport.

"It was while overseas that my stomach and nerves gave way," continued Mr. heffins, "and I spent three months in different hospitals in England. When air raids were expected I would get in a terrible state, tremble like a leaf and have to walk and walk around to get my nerves quieted. It usually took me an hour or more to get to bed, I would be so jumpy. My stomach was frightfully upset and about twice a week I would be deathly sick and nauseated. I could expect one of these attacks of nausea every Friday, just as sure as the day rolled around, and I didn't miss one on that day for nearly a year. I had a heavy uncomfortable feeling in my stomach all the time accompanied by sharp pains in my stomach and back, and sometimes I turned yellow in the face. I dared not eat any pastry or fat meats, and especially mutton was like so much poison in my system. My wife did not know what to cook for me for often I would get so sick at the table I could not sit up and would have to lie down.

"I took a lot of medicines but they didn't seem to hit the spot at all and when I returned to anada I was about as bad off as ever. About two months ago I got a job, but sometimes I shook so from nervousness that I couldn't do a thing.

"One day after a particularly bad attack I made up my mind to give Tanlac a trial, and right after I began taking the medicine I passed my first Friday without having one of those bad atacks of nausea. I want to tell you it was a wonderful relief. I have taken only four bottles; my stomach never gives me any trouble at all now and the other day I ate some mutton just to see if it would hurt me and it didn't; not a particle. My nerves have improved so much they are about as steady as they ever were in my life and I sleep sound as a log every night. I feel about as well and strong as I did before I went to the war and both my wife and I are enthusiastic over Tanlac. I hope my statement will encourage some other fellow to take it for there is no reason why it won't help others as it has helped me."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell and by the leading druggists in every town.

HOW TO BECOME BANKRUPT

More than one smug-faced, self-righteous citizen has, in past years, put his property in his wife's name, and then made an assignment of his business, laughing up his sleeve at his helpless creditors, who are forced to accept a few cents on the dollar. But that old trick will be harder to pull off in future. At last Canada has a Bankruptcy Act and it will probably become effective about the 1st of July next. And be it known that no undischarged bankrupt can hold any civic or other public office.

The clause directed at the "I settled it on my wife," gentleman is a much more stringent piece of law than a similar paragraph in the old Winding-Up Act which deals with such matters today, and places the onus of proof upon the creditor. The new Act forces instead, the insolvent, to prove that any settlement so made was an honest one. Substantially it says in this connection: "Any settlement other than a marriage settlement, or of property sold for cash or bought in good faith, or property which belonged to the wife before marriage and has been made over to her and her children, if given within five years prior to his bankruptcy, shall unless it can be proved that one year prior to his failure the bankrupt was able to pay his debts without the aid of this property, become null and void, and the property in question be seized by the trustee who is administering the bankrupt's estate for the benefit of his creditors." Moreover, relatives claims against his estate must wait until all those of other creditors are satisfied.

How does a man become a bankrupt?

If he be sensible, an insolvent debtor will himself petition the court to so declare him, by making an authorized assignment. The court then appoints a trustee to handle the estate, a meeting of creditors is called and if they are generous he may be permitted an extension of credit. Many insolvents, however, do not voluntarily assign, but by committing an act of bankruptcy have it thrust upon them. A mere statement to his creditors that they cannot pay or else an attempt to cheat them or to abscond empowers the creditors to act. But any creditor or group of creditors must have in the aggregate claims amounting to $500 before they can petition to have a man declared bankrupt. And the act constituting the bankruptcy must have been committed within six months prior to the filing of the petition.

Any man or woman having proved debts of $500 or more which they are unable to pay is eligible for bankruptcy. But this section of the new act does not apply to two bodies of the community. Wage-earners and all farmers are exempted. "Wage-earners," as the new act explains, are all persons who, not in business for themselves, receive in wages, commission or salary not more than $1,500 a year. Farmers are exempted, possibly in view of the fact that a bankrupt farmer might be precluded from carrying on his business— farming —and so diminish the output of food.

The trustee, usually a solicitor, gives a bond to the court for $10,000 or more and cannot receive more than 5 per cent of the total cash receipts for his services. This is much less lucrative for the trustee than under the old act, and in the matter of a very small estate would reduce his fee to almost nothing. The trustee then takes full charge of the bankrupt's property, though sometimes the bankrupt is permitted and paid to carry on the business under orders. The bankrupt must give a full statement of his assets and the names of and debts due to all his creditors. Then the bankruptcy is registered and notice duly published in the official Canada Gazette. All creditors should at once send in their claims, and must be accorded the right to examine the claims of other creditors. The only debts recoverable are those incurred through contract, promise or breach of trust.

All creditors are required to attend the first meeting, where a proved claim of from $25 to $200 entitles the holder to one vote and so on until the holder of a $1,000 claim gets three votes. The bankrupt's entire property, saving the usual exceptions, now vests in the trustee, whose claim on behalf of the creditors overrides every other claim, though in so doing it does not prejudice the claims of secured creditors who hold promissory notes, etc. The trustee, who must insure the property, can sell it off entire or piecemeal as the inspector agrees and forthwith make payments to the creditors in instalments.

But not one cent do the creditors get until the court and trustee's fees have been paid in full. Then, first comes the landlord, if any, and after him, on an equal footing, all the other creditors, none of whom may receive more than 100 cents on the dollar.

A boon to the bankrupt, however, is the new act where it concerns discharge. Under the present Winding-Up Act, one dissenting creditor may refuse to accept the money he has received from the bankrupt estate as payment in full, and so keep the insolvent a bankrupt. And even if all the creditors are satisfied, the court has no power to issue an official discharge. The bankrupt must needs himself obtain a separate release in writing from each individual creditor. But under the new act the court can give a formal discharge, which will officially clear the bankrupt of all the statutory disabilities under which he has been laboring by reason of his bankruptcy. This discharge will be granted by the court if the bankrupt can show that his bankruptcy was caused by misfortune and without misconduct on his part. A refusal to grant discharge may be appealed up to the Supreme Court of Canada. The court can annul any order of bankruptcy which, in its opinion, was improperly made.

On the other hand, the court will refuse to discharge a bankrupt where he has committed an offence under the act, or may suspend the discharge until he has paid 50 cents on the dollar. A bankrupt, even though discharged, is not released from anything but the debts provable under the bankruptcy, and is liable for all judgments or for debts incurred in buying food or other necessities.

Though not as in the bad old days of Marshalsea Prison, when English insolvents languished behind the bars until friends paid their debts, debtors may still be imprisoned for felonious conduct respecting their bankruptcy. The new act contains no less than 18 clauses enumerating various types of misdeed a debtor might commit. For instance, an undischarged bankrupt who obtains credit for $50 or upwards without first informing the person, or who engages in trade under another name, is liable to a fine of $500 and one year in prison. An undischarged bankrupt is not even permitted to have a bank account of his own.

Jail doors and a $500 fine await the registrar who fails to register a bankruptcy. A trustee may be punished for negligence or favoritism to creditors. Failure to attend an examination may land a bankrupt in jail for 12 months. And the jailer who refuses to take into custody a bankrupt committed to his charge can be locked in his own cells and mulcted $500. Such is a general review of the new Bankruptcy Act to be effective all over Canada, and the application of which will mean special judges and courts and changes at Osgoode Hall and other judicial centres.—Toronto Telegram.

TOMB WILL NOT BE DISTURBED

Lovers of the immortal works of Robert Burns in all parts of the world are happy that it has been definitely decided not to destroy the tomb of Mary Campbell, the first and best love of the Scottish bard's life, and the inspiration for the "Highland Mary," which figures as the subject of his most exquisite poems.

Those readers of Burns who recently feared that the grave of his bonnie and beloved Mary would be disturbed to make additional room for the extension of a leading British shipping concern may console themselves with the fact that by a recent offical parliamentary statement the historic spot it to be preserved. After a controversy that goes back to 1918 between the shipbuilders and the Burns Federation and other societies, the sentimental objections of the latter to the destruction of Highland Mary's grave and monument have been legally upheld, with the exception that the monument is to be turned around to face the road instead of the church. In the course of time it is expected that a second suitable monument will be erected on some site more accessible to the public.

The body of Mary Campbell, the one outstanding love in the life of Burns, and the personality of whom has always been a will o' the wisp to the biographers of the noted bard, has rested for almost a century and a half in the Old West Parish Graveyard at Greenock. In 1918 Messrs. Caird and Company, shipbuilders of that city, began proceedings to acquire the memorable graveyard and parish church, for the purpose of securing greater facilities for the building of larger vessels necessitated by the demands of modern commerce. With this object in view they approached the heritors and trustees of the church, but both bodies refused to entertain the proposal.

The project lapsed until 1919, when the question was again taken up by the corporation of Greenock. This body advocated the removal of the graveyard and church on the grounds that they were situated in a slum locality which ought to be swept away as amenace to the public health and an impediment in the way of the improvement of the town.

The Burns Federation again started to launch sentimental objections to the project. The executive of the society met twice, and at the second meeting opposed the granting of the provisional order so far as it proposed the removal of the grave of Highland Mary. In the evidence which was later produced in court, it appeared certain that the provisional order was going to be granted.

The representatives of the Burns Federation who had been sent specially to the inquiry for the purpose of trying to preserve Highland Mary's grave, to forestall the efforts of the corporation of Greenock, announced that they were in favor of the plan of the Harlan and Wolff shipbuilding yards at Greenock to make a recess in the wall, leaving the monument and grave exactly as they stood. They also acquiesced in the proposal that the monument which faced the church should be turned around and made to face the street.

The representatives, however, had no power to bind the federation to this proposal, but believed that it would be a good solution of the difficulty and would placate the federation if assurances were given and plans drawn and laid before them to show that the grave and monument would not be furthes interfered with.

The result of the inquiry was that the Burns Federation had an offer by the shipyard promoters of three alternatives: (1) to remove the remains of Highland Mary and the monument to such place of sepulchre as might be selected by the executive of the federation; (2) to leave the remains interred as at present, and to reverse the existing monument sa as to face the street; or (3) to remove the existing monument, and to place and maintain a mural tablet in lieu thereof, the remains not to be disturbed.

It was moved that it be left to the executive of the federation, in conjunction with the representatives of the Greenock Burns Club, with full power to determine which of the three alternatives they should accept. It was, however, realized that a sufficient amount of national interest in the matter could be created to make the house of lords and the house of commons pause before they gave their final sanction.

The Burns Federation with this end in view sent out an appeal to all Scottish societies to oppose the passing into law of the Greenock improvement provisional order, so as to prevent an indelible disgrace being inflicted on the name and fame of Scotland and its people. By opposition, it was pointed out, the sacredness of all burial grounds in Scotland would maintained, as would the permanent validity of title deeds of all lair holders, whether rich or poor. All members of the federation were then urged to write their various members of parliament and protest against the proposed desecration.

Nevertheless, the provisional order to destroy the grave passed through the house of lords without opposition, but in the house of commons when it came up early this year, it was blocked mainly through the opposition of Alexander Shaw, secretary for Scotland, and of the Scottish members. The result was an undertaking by Harlan and Wolff to carry out alternative No. 2 to the satisfaction of the Burns Federation. The shipping concern offered to erect another monument to Highland Mary on any site chosen by the Federation. This proposal has not yet been considered, but it is believed that eventually it will be accepted, the probable site being a spot on the River Ayr, in the vicinity where the farewell parting of the poet and his beloved took place in May 1786. The great point of interest to the lovers of Burns, however, is that, although the monument will be turned about, the grave itself will not be desecrated.

Years after the parting of Burns and Highland Mary took place on the River Ayr, the poet showed how his heart had been touched at the news of her death in his "To Mary in Heaven," which is considered one of the most precious bits of writing in the world. The true love of the poet is revealed also in many other of his best works.

The meeting of Mary Campbell and Robert Burns probably changed the entire course of the life of Scotland's premier poet. The girl has been described as a sprightly, blue-eyed creature of great modesty and self respect. As a servant in the employ of his friend and landlord she came into hte life of Burns at a most opportune time; when he was low in spirits and needed consolation.

In the year 1786 Burns had suffered reverses as the result af an ill-fated experiment in farming at Mossgiel with his brother Gilbert. The death of his father not long before and the confused condition in which he had left his affairs had also been a source of worry to the young poet, who at that ime had not yet become eminent. His difficulties were further increased due to the consequences of o love affair with Jean Armour, a girl who eventually became his wife.

He had offered himself as the husband of Jean when she gave birth to a child, but her family had cast him off, not considering him good enough. A certificate written by Burns to the effect that Jean was his wife had been torn up by the father of the girl, and shortly afterwards when the poet encountered Mary Campbell, he considered that as his wishes to amend things with the Armour girl had been rejected the latter had no claim on him.

Mary, the beautiful young girl from the highlands, greatly sympathized with Burns and his misfortunes. Sympathy and friendship ripened into love, and the young bard asked Mary to become his wife.. At this time, however, it became necessary for her to visit her father in the highlands, and Burns offered to escort her on the first part of her long walk.

On the second Sunday in May, 1786, the couple reached what he called "a sequestered spot on the banks of the Ayr." Here the parting took place which the poet long years afterward commemorated in touching verses.

According to tradition, they stood on opposite banks of the stream, and dipping their hands into the water swore to be true. They had exchanged Bibles which are still preserved in Burns' monastery at Ayr. Her gift to him was a small plain volume, while his to her was in two volumes.

In one of the volumes Burns wrote, "Ye shall not swear by my name falsely; I am the Lord." In the other he wrote, "Thou shalt not perjure thyself, but shall perform unto the Lord these oaths."

Before meeting Mary, Burns had intended a trip to Jamaica, but on his return from the farewell parting he gave up his plan of emigration and awaited the return of his love. While coming back from the highlands, Mary stopped at Greenock to care for a sick brother, where she fell ill and died of fever. Her body was laid to rest in the little graveyard, the proposed desecration of which caused such a storm among the lovers of Burns. Burns turned pale and kept silent when her death was announced, but years after his immortal poems to her revealed his true affection.

"Highland Mary" has come to be a name to conjure with the poetry of her lover.

THE NORTHERN LIGHTS

The fine display of Aurora Polaris or Borealis, popularly called the Northern Lights, which attracted little public attention in Montreal and other Canadian points on Mondoy night made a decided sensation in New York, where people got on their housetops better to view the spectacle in the heavens. The Northern Lights are common in Canada, so excite no particular interest. Auroral bands wave, wax and wane in the cool northern skies, and give quite a friendly feeling to the Canadian. They are his home lights. The farther north, the more magnificent are they. Even in Northern Quebec the Merry Dancers of the polar regions are frequently seen, and the inhabitants in the distant settlements will insist that they can hear the glorious heavenly curtains of white, green and red crackling in the frosty night. These humble spectators do not puzzle themselves as to their cause. They are satisfied that their Northern Lights are beautiful.—Montreal Gazette.

TRY TO CUT TAXATION

Victoria.—The outstanding feature of the week's proceedings in the Legislature was undoubtedly the speech of Mr. W. J. Bowser, K.C., Conservative leader, in the budget debate, one which made a deep impression upon the House as was evidenced in the subsequent out-spoken criticisms by Liberal members concerning the carnival of expenditures proposed for the coming fiscal year; criticisms which made it clear that, as George Bell, Liberal member for Victoria, declared the government in its demands upon t hepeople of the Province for more and still more taxation is reaching the point where further imposts cannot be borne. "The people of this Province are despairing of ever seeing an end to this continued and increasing taxation," declared the Victoria member, who urged the government to wipe out non-essentials and by economy and thrift, virtues always being preached by the Premier, to ease the burden upon the tax-payer.

Mr. Bowser's effort was one of the best he has ever made in the House. It was temperate in tone and unmarked by anything in the nature of political rancour, the while he clearly emphasized the opposition view-point that the present increasing overhead cost of administration must be reduced, that increases in a staff already greatly over-manned must cease and that while adequate provision must be made for essentials, that the frills must be eliminated. The present civil service staff, he claimed, could be reduced by twenty-five per cent without any loss in efficiency and to the great benefit of the people who, in the face of the increasing cost of living, should not be regarded as a perrenial source of money without stint or limit. It was all very well for the Minister of Finance to bring down what he (Mr. Bowser) declared to be "camouflage surpluses," to seek to prove that the government is living within current revenues, but the fact was the net result in the financial operations of the government was an annual deficit increasing in amount as the years went by. The book-keeping expedient of charging to capital account large sums in an effort to show that current outlays were being kept within current revenues was no relief to the over-burdened taxpayer who footed the bill in any event. As a piece of financial legermain it might serve to distract the attention of the public for the time being, but the final outcome was always the same—the people paid.

"We don't know where we're going, but we're on the way," appeared to the opposition leader to aptly sum up the government's financial policy. He said that had the late government seen fit to charge up annually several millions to capital account, it, too, could have shown paper surpluses, but, instead, it had preferred to invest its revenue in permanent public works to the advantage of the people who were putting up the money. The result had been that when the present government took office there were capital assets over capital liabilities of over $16,000,000. He criticized the administration of the Department of Public Works, pointing to the present bad condition of the roads of the Province and asserting that assets, left by the former government had been allowed to deteriorate to the poist where it will require millioss to restore them. He regarded the announcement by the Misister of Public Works that $5.000,000 would be borrowed to improve the main trunk roads and that that amount together with $1.500.000 to be advanced by the Dominion for public works purposes and the equal amount it is expected the Municipalities will contribute under the new Highways Bill would be spent on road work, as a mere sop to the electors on the eve of an election. The Minister, Mr. Bowser opined, had painted a glowing picture of road construction but he was content to let the public judge, in the light of past experience, just how much of that promised program they might expect to see, nonpurted an dcompleted.

Mr. Bowser twitted the Minister of Finance upon the latter's propensity for political post-mortems, asserting that what the people today [illegible] ed was attention to their present [illegible] future needs. The government could not excuse its lack of administrative efficiency by continually damning the late government or criticising the present day opposition because it was not continually aiding the government by constructive criticism and suggestions. The opposition, he said, would ever be found ready to assist in promulgating policies for the benefit of the people but the fact was the electors saw fit to put the Liberals in power, to entrust them with the affairs of the province and it was to the present administration they were looking for results. The present administration must account for its work and upon its record alone could it base any claims to continuance in office.

The opposition leader went at length into the claim of the Minister of Finance that the present government's financial policies had restored the credit of the province, pointing to the fact that just before the late administration had left office it had floated loons at a rate of 5.5 per cent. The first loan by the present government had cost seven per cent and only within the past year had it been found possible to float loans on as favorable terms as had been done in 1916. The reckless charges made by the Liberals in 1916 concerning the credit of the province had been responsible, Mr. Bowser held, for the later idfficulties in floating loans, the calamity howling of the then Liberal opposition having naturally brought discredit upon B.C. Instead of taking credit for restoring the credit of the province the minister should, Mr. Bowser said, admit that credit would never have been impaired were it not for the Liberals themselves. He declared that in the face of the saturnalis of expenditures and borrowings indicated by the present budget the Minister need not expect that a domestic loan would be possible, and he punctured the Minister's claim to having secured last year the most favorable terms for a loan of $2,450,000 by showing that through Hon. Mr. Hart's inexperience in finance that loan would actually cost, net, five and one-half per cent as claimed but nearer nine per cent. That issue, a five year, five per cent one with principal and interest payable in New York would, in view of the present adverse rate of exchange, an adverse rate that could be expected to continue for the next five years, would cost for exchange on the annual interest payments alone, $14,700 per year or an aggregate of $75,500 in the five years. At maturity it would cost the Province $294,000 to transfer the principal to New York. In all there would have to be paid $367,000 in addition to the regular interest charges of $612,500, just because the Minister did not know enough of finance to have made the principal and interest payable in Canada or, have made the loan for twenty years, within which time the adverse exchange rate would have disappeared. He recalled how the Liberal critics in 1916 were wont to score the then administration for having alienated all the natural resources of the province, the lands, timber, minerals, etc. Yet the present government had not been in office six months before it was issuing the most glowing advertisements telling of the millions of acres of land, the billions of feet of timber and the scores of millions of acres of coal and other minerals possessed by the people. Perhaps, he said, he should not be too hard on them. They were after office in 1916 and any means to an end seemed good to them. The people had been misled and took them at their word. Now the stern duties of office faced them and they were expected to make good.

Mr. Bowser recalled the declaration by the Minister of Finance two years ago that he was "going to the mat" with the federal Minister of Finance to force hte latter to leave this province in undisputed control of the eforcement of the income tax. But Mr. Bowser said, the Provincial Minister had never even got his coat off. he had proved a most docile warrier and now he proposed to hold a conference with the federal minister. He criticized the Minister for proposing to still further increase the income tax burden by restricting the exemption limit for widows, widowers, and unmarried males, declaring the only practical result of such a step might be to encourage matrimony, thus permitting the Minister to collect a few more dollars through the issuance of marriage licenses. He held the present was not the time to reduce the exemption but rather, in the face of the increasing cost of living, to increase it.

NEW DOROTHY GISH PICTURE IS AMUSING

His great-great-great-grandfather had died of heart disease at the age of ninety-seven, so his mother felt considerably worried over his condition. He was only twenty-one, so she hired a physical trainer and hung fever thermometers all over the place. And the he saw Dorothy. The story is "Turning the Tables," by Wells Hastings. It has been done into pictures by Dorothy Gish and Raymond Cannon, and will be presented at the Orpheum Theatre on Friday and Saturday for the first time. It is a Paramount-Artcraft release.

It was a case of love at first sight, an dalthough the trainer made his daily visits, it was Dorothy who led her young lover back to a realization that he needed no doctors and was a pretty healthy speciman of young manhood. They were both confined in the New Hope Sanitarium, she suspected of being insane, and he for what the doctor told his mother was a most delicately balanced nervous system. But they both proved their cases.

ALWAYS WRONG

Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King was sure in 1911, says the Toronto Mail and Empire, that Canada wanted reciprocity with the United States. He was wrong. When that question was put before the people their answer was an emphatic Nay, accompanied by the expulsion of the Laurier Government from office.

In 1917 Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King was sure that the country was opposed to compulsory Military Service. He was wrong. By an overwhelming majority the people declared for Union Government, and its Military Service Act, and its War Time Election Act.

In both these elections Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King was himself defeated at the polls.

At the opening of the present session of Parliament Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King submitted a resolution by way of amendment to the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, which amendment called for the dissolution of Parliament. He was wrong again. The House rejected his resolution by a majority of 34.

Mr. King's judgment is always against the judgment of the country, but that does not prevent him continuing to believe that he is right. He is still for reciprocity with the United States, still opposed to the Military Service Act, and still rages against the War Time Election Act. He is slow to learn that in this country it is the people who rule, and not the Ambitious Citizen.—Vernon News

IN MEMORIAM

In ever loving memory of my beloved husband, Major Bert Black, who died April 12th of wounds received April 9th, 1917, at Vimy Ridge.

Memory links the past and present
With such tender thoughts of thee;
Beautiful beyond expression—
How we love to think of thee.

Hours of sadness still come o'er us;
The silent teardrops sometimes flow;
For memory ever keeps him near us,
Though he died three years ago.

"Until the day dawns and the shadows flee away."

—Inserted by his widow and two little daughters, 1058 Nelson Street, Vancouver.

Winter is almost gone and the boys are again thinking of the "old swimmin' hole". Now is the time to start agitating for a swimming tank. Surely something will be done to provide the boys and girls of Fernie with this necessary equipment for the summer.

Representatives of 18 moving picture theatres in the interior met in Nelson yesterday, and made a unanimous protest against the proposal to increase the amusement tax to 20 per cent of the gross receipts, recently announced by the provincial finance minister. Under the government's plan, half of the proceeds of the doubled tax is to be turned over to the municipalities.

It was brought out at the conference that the existing tax of 10 per cent is four or five times as large already as in other western provinces. It was also pointed out that the operating margin is so small that rates would have to be increased proportionately, which would mean that the public would pay the tax, and in the case of the smaller theatres would probably put some of them out of business, as patronage would fall off.

After the conference, the following wire was sent to Premier Oliver at Victoria:

"At a meeting held in Nelson today, we, the undersigned moving picture exhibitors of the interior of British Columbia, most urgently protest against the proposed increase of amusement tax. Owing to the greatly increased cost of operation the present margin of profit is so small that we assure your excellency that any further increase in admission prices would so affect our attendance as to force many of the smaller theatres to close. As the tax in British Columbia is already far in excess of other provinces, we beg you to consider the injustice the proposed tax would work on the smaller towns."

The 18 theatres whose representatives signed the wire are: the Orpheum and the Isis, Fernie; the Rex and the Auditorium, Cranbrook; the Peekin, Creston; the Starland and the Gem, Nelson; the Bosun, New Denver; the Union, Sandon; the Silverton, Silverton; the Kaslo, Kaslo; the Liberty and the Star, Trail; the Star, Rossland; the Empress, Grand Forks; the Empire, Penticton; the Empress, Vernon; the Empress, Kamloops.

FERNIE MEETING IS POSTPONED

Vancouver, April 7.—In view of the probability of other veteran bodies being merged with the Great War Veterans association as the result of the conference pending in the east at present, the provincial executive of the G.W.V.A. on a telegraph vote today, resolved to postpone the British Columbia convention from May 7 and 8 to June 4 and 5. The meeting place is at Fernie.

CONTEST FOR TRAIL RANGERS

With at least twelve thousand boys taking part, living all over Canada, from coast to coast and from Point Pelee to Prince Rupert, Peace River and the Pas, the Canadian National Athletic contest for Trail Rangers and Tuxis Boys will in point of numbers and possibilities of developing athletics, be the biggest athletic event pulled off in Canada. This big event takes place in the week of April 19 to 24, and is under the direction of the National Boys' Work Board of Canada which is the co-operative body representing all the Protestant churches and the Y.M.C.A. with Fred J. Smith, national physical education secretary of the Y.M.C.A. as manager and chief director.

The contest is conducted as a part of the well known Canadian Standard Efficiency Training programme. The entries are made by groups and any Tuxis Square or Trail Ranger Camp with a registered mentor can enter. Two or more groups conduct their contests together and a record is kept. Every boy must compete unless excused by a medical man or physical director as unfit, and the average is taken of the group. The records are taken by the mentors and forwarded for comparison with those of other groups. The standards of excellence are varied according to the ages and weights of the boys, and the records are kept by points. The provincial and national championships will be decided from these records and will be suitably recognized.

The Trail Rangers, who are boys fifteen and under or up to seventeen and under weight, will have contests in standing broad jump, running high jump, one potato race, three pototo race and floor push. The Tuxis boys who are older will compete in the running broad jump, running high jump, three potato race, five potato race and 8 lb. shot put.

One big thing about this contest is the fact that it is the group score that counts and that receives recognition; the individual boy receives no honor or recognition for himself; he merely strives his utmost to swell the score of his "bunch of fellows." He forgets himself in his concern for the honor of his team or club. No individual boy will be crowned as national champion, but some Camp or Square of wide-awake fellows, because of the strenuous team play of all its members, will receive the laurel as winners for all of Canada.

The registered mentors or leaders of the groups in Fernie are Alfred Cummings, N. Golightly and H. D. Wilson.

TELEPHONES DISCUSSED

A delegation from the Kootenay Telephone Lines reached the city last evening and by arrangement attended a meeting in the council chamber at which were represented the city council and the board of trade. The visitors were A. K. Leitch of Jaffray, R. E. Beattie and W. D. Gilroy of Cranbrook. R. H. McEwan, acting mayor, presided, and called upon Mr. Leitch to make the initial argument on behalf of the company. Mr. Leitch stated after having received the notification from the city clerk that it was the intention, in view of some fifty new subscribers for phones in this city, to demand that the terms of the contract between the city and the company, whereby all local telephone rates would be reduced $1.00 per month when 225 subscribers had been received, that the best thing to do was for representatives of the company to come here and set out all facts with regard to the matter and attempt to show how impossible it was for the company to carry out such terms as incorporated in the agreement made over ten years ago. At the time the agreement was entered into there was no doubt on the part of the company, and for that matter the general public, that the service could be maintained at the rates named but with the apparent never-ending upward trend in the cost of operation, renewals and installations it was now a financial and likewise a physial impossibility to give the service on the minimum basis fixed by the contract. Even at the present rates it was shown that the operation of the Fernie exchange was at a loss or deficit of 2 1-2 per cent.

Application for increasing the rates in Cranbrook to the same basis as paid here had been made to the Public Utilities Commission, and the delegates were very positive in their remarks that if an increase was not granted the Cranbrook exchange would have to be closed, and it was further made clear that in the event of enforcing the reduction in rentals here the same course without doubt would follow.

R. E. Beattie pointed out that the Kootenay Telephone Lines was by no means a closed corporation as had been rumored. He traced the struggle of the public utility from 1908 when the company took over the telephone lines in East Kootenay. He said had the stock placed on the market been purchased thereby placing in the treasury funds for installation and operation it would have meant that the tremendous financial obligation assumed by the directors would have been minimized and the burdensome carrying charges on borrowed capital to finance the proposition largely eliminated. Since the inception of the company over $30,000 has been expended in payment of interest on loans, and at no time has there ever been a cash dividend.

According to the agreement after 225 subscribers are enrolled the following schedule would apply. This schedule is now in force in Cranbrook but the company are seeking to have the present local rates apply in Cranbrook.

Business—Wall or desk $3.35; Extension $1.10.

Residence—Wall or desk, $2.00; Extension $1.10.

(Subject to 10 per cent if paid before 10th current month.)

Following the presentation of the foregoing various questions were asked by residents present and the delegation is to be congratulated for the concise and willing response they made to all inquiries, and they further expressed a keen desire that the figures and records of the company be thoroughly investigated by a local committee when their statements could be positively verified.

Dealing particularly with the Fernie exchange it was shown for the past year the gross revenue amounted to $8324; against this the disbursements in operation, renewals and maintaining the system were $8567.60 or an expenditure of $243.60 in excess of the revenue received. This comparison was also stated to be more favorable than in other years. To instal fifty new phones here would cost about $1500 for material and this was said to be a very conservative estimate.

Acting Mayor McEwan asked the delegation if they had any proposal to suggest and the reply was given that if the citizens would be willing to continue to pay the present rental rates the company would endeavor to instal the new phones. It was also emphasized that each individual subscriber should make personal application as the company could not accept a blanket application covering a large number.

Several local speakers expressed that they felt the request of the company under existing conditions was very fair and it followed that the consensus of opinion at the meeting favored a recommendation to the city council to meet the company in an equitable manner. It was also pertinently conveyed by local speakers that strict enforcement of the terms of the contract would be, to say the least, rather unreasonable. The matter was accordingly left with the city council, who alone has the necessary authority to deal with the matter.

Just prior to adjournment the visiting delegates expressed themselves as being highly pleased with what they termed the courteous and openhearted reception given them, and said it was their desire that the spirit of harmonious co-operation continue to prevail as between Cranbrook and Fernie.

LESS PROFITS BY COAL CO.

A three months' strike last year seriously interfered with the operations of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., but the shareholders who attended the annual meeting in Toronto were given an encouraging statement as to the present outlook. Profits last year were $122,785, as compared with $216,984 a year ago. Of last year's profits $81,017 came from coal and coke and $28,522 from land, timber operations and other sources. A dividend of 6 per cent was paid and the inference from information given was that the prospects are good for continuance of this distribution.

The balance brought forward from profit and loss in 1918 was $318,497 and after paying dividends amounting to $372,669 and other small appropriations the balance at credit of profit and loss at the end of the year was $68,613. During the year the coal company spent $22,414 on improvements and development work, and the M. F. & M. railway company $29,647. It is understood about 1300 men are at work and production is now on a good basis. In the absence of President Elias Rogers through illness, General Manager W. R. Wilson, who came from Fernie to attend the meeting, occupied the chair, and gave a lengthy statement of the company's position. The former directors were re-elected.

POLICE COURT GETS MONEY

In the police court this week arising out of one set of circumstances, four distinct offences netted the city treasury the sum of $220.00. Nick Daniluk, a local Russian of comfortable financial standing, hired an automobile on Monday and proceeded to joy-ride about the city thoroughfares. He was arrested and lodged in the city gaol. With regard to the car at that time in Daniluk's possession, the authorities ascertained that it was a demonstration car and as such not supposed to be hired out. Accordingly the agents, Messrs. Large & Andre, were summoned to appear in the police court and assessed $60 each for contravention of the B. C. Motor Traffic Regulation Act. The final scene in this comedy, however, occurred the following day, when a friend of Daniluk, by the name of Nick Mikitich carried a palatable meal to the lockup for his friend. Mikitich was permitted to serve the same inside the gaol but the suspicious odor of intoxicating liquor came from the tray of viands, causing the constables on duty to make an attempt to investigate. Mikitich upon seeing this made a frantic effort to destroy the liquid but was promptly obstructed and found himself hors de combat. The fatal evidence in the form of a part cupful of presumably whiskey was secured intact. This was the final incident in connection with the foregoing matter, but Mikitich contributed $50 as penalty for his friendly generosity, while Daniluk also contributed $50 for being in control of a motor car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

ELIAS ROGERS PASSES AWAY

A wire was received from W. R. Wilson in Toronto on Sunday last stating that the President of the Company, Elias Rogers, had passed away that morning after a short illness.

During the past twenty years deceased had made many trips to Fernie and he was very well known here.

The Toronto Globe contains the following article relative to the deceased:

Elias Rogers, a coal merchant of national reputation, died Sunday morning in his 70th year at his home Glen House, Deer Park. He took ill Wednesday evening, but his family did not consider his illness serious until Saturday. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon to Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Born in Whitechurch township, York county, on June 23, 1850, Elias Rogers received his early education in Newmarket and at the Cayuga College, New York state. He entered the lumber business in 1871 but later turned his attention to the coal industry. He purchased the first mines opened in Jefferson county, Pennsylvania, and in 1876 he came to Toronto and established, with his brother Samuel, a business which became later the Elias Rogers Coal Company, Limited.

Mr. Rogers was one of the city's most active citizens. In 1887 he was elected to the city council and in 1898 he was President of the Board of Trade. Mr. Rogers also served as Vice-President of the Canadian Peace and Arbitration Society, was Honorary Treasurer of the Upper Canada Bible Society, Vice-President of the British and Foreign Bible Society, also a director of the China Inland Mission.

He married Eliza Selby, who died in September 1910, and in August, 1915, he married Anna E. King. He is survived by his wife, four daughters and two sons. His daughters are Mrs. A. H. Beaton, Mrs. Carlton Angstrome of Toronto, Mrs. L. Whitcomb of Indianapolis and Mrs. J. McLaughlin. His surviving sons are John and Alfred. A third son, Clarence, had served with distinction in the Royal Flying Corps when he was killed in action.

In religion Mr. Rogers belonged to the Society of Friends and was an ardent Quaker all his life. He figured in the controversy between the older and the newer Quaker societies in Ontario, and it was to his branch that the old Pickering College fell in the resultant litigation, which college later was transferred from Pickering to Newmarket.

It was in the coal business that Mr. Rogers made an indelible mark on the activities of this country. Besides founding with his brother the well-known business in this city which still bears his name, Mr. Rogers, in March, 1909, became President of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, and as a result of his management that concern grew to large dimensions.

Nine years ago Mr. Rogers retired from active connection with the company here in Toronto, selling out his interest to his eldest son, Alfred, who became President of the Elias Rogers Coal Company.

Mr. Rogers was a member of the National and Ontario Clubs and belonged to the Masonic Order and the I.O.O.F.

WITNESS IS MISSING

The inquest of Daniel Joseph Kelly, who died suddenly in the early hours of Friday morning, was abruptly and indefinitely postponed Wednesday evening when it became known that one Angus McDonald, a room mate and so far as has been ascertained the last person to have seen Kelly alive, was not present to give evidence. While the sudden demise of Kelly was peculiar owto there being no visible indications of the cause of death, and also owing to the fact that McDonald had retired, fallen asleep, heard no commotion in the room, but upon awakening some hours later discovered the body on the floor, there was absolutely nothing suspicious about the occurrence. An autopsy was held upon the remains from which the cause of death could quite reasonably be attributed to internal complications. On the body there were no serious marks of violence, although there were two slight abrasions on the forehead and a slight discoloration of the left eye, all of which it was assumed had been caused by deceased falling on his face from the bed upon which he was seated when McDonald fell asleep.

However, in the face of McDonald's disappearance, it indicates alarm upon his part and whether imagined or real, subsequent events may divulge. When interviewed by the authorities immediately after the discovery of the tragedy, he told an apparently straightforward story, which amounted to his knowing absolutely nothing as to what had actually happened when the traged occurred. He was in a perfectly rational condition of mind and when ordered to attend the inquest he expressed willingness to do so and give whatever evidence he could. Coroner Thomson issued a warrant to apprehend McDonald as a material witness.

Further information the deceased Kelly indicates his parents reside at Baker, Oregon. He was 33 years old and had a remarkable athletic record. He is credited with having broken no less than five world records. In June, 1905, he made the 100 yards in 9 3-5 seconds at the P. N. A. meet in Spokane. He was a member of the University of Oregon track team in 1905 and 1906. For the 220 yards his record stands at 21 1-5. In 1906 for the broad jump he made 24 ft. 2 1-4 in., while at the Olympic games in London in 1908 he won second prize.

The remains are being shipped to Baker, Ore., for interment.

CHIEF HAS RESIGNED

Joseph Boardman, chief of the city police force for the past 11 months, this week tendered his resignation to the Police Commissioners, same to take effect on May 12. Chief Boardman, prior to accepting the post of head of the police department, was for ten years on the provincial force and stationed at Coal Creek. His record as a police officer has always been favorable and he was noted for his energy in carrying out his duty. His reason for tendering his resignation he bases upon the ground that since the civic force has been numerically reduced, thereby involving additional work upon the remaining members of the force, he claims it is physically impossible for him to efficiently perform the increasing amount of work. Apart from this reason he has also some personal affairs requiring attention which will necessitate a journey to the old country, and consequently he deems the present an opportune time for severing his connection with the city. Applications to fill the vacancy of chief of police are being advertised in the Toronto Globe, Manitoba Free Press, Calgary Herald and Vancouver Province.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN THE KOOTENAY RIVER

The body of an unknown man was recently found in the Kootenay river near Wasa by Provincial Constable Joseph Walsh, of Fort Steele. The body was discovered by Indian Billy Paul, who reported the matter to Constable Walsh, who immediately procured an outfit to remove the body, which was in a badly decomposed state. It was impossible to identify the remains, owing to its being in the water for such a length of time. The flesh was gone from the head and face. The wearing apparel was of a blue serge, with woolen underclothing, light soft shirt with blue stripe, with collar of same. In the coat pocket was a necktie. In hip pocket of suit a number of papers were found. A receipt from the B.C. Logger's union, Vancouver, B.C., giving the name of John Wakus, address 61 Cordova street. Other papers included registration card, poll tax receipt, dated first of May, 1919, from New Westminster, showing deceased was in the employ of H. M. Ellis and Co. It is the opinion of the provincial authorities that the body is that of a Russian, believed to have met accidental death further up the river. The body was buried at Fort Steele, the necessary permission being secured through Dr. G. E. L. MacKinnon, coroner.—Cranbrook Courier.

Don't forget the I.O.D.E. card party and dance on Wednesday, April 21, at 8.30 sharp, in the G.W.V.A. rooms. Those not having tickets and wishing to attend the dance only will please pay at the door.

AFTER YACHT CHAMPIONSHIP

To make Great Britain supreme champion in yacht racing and to win the America's Cup have been the lifelong ambitions of Sir Thomas Lipton. Over a period of years the sport-loving Irish baronet has sent his challenge across the sea, but time after time some playful prank of fate has thwarted him in his efforts to wrest the championship from the United States.

Undaunted by a series of necessary postponements, Sir Thomas has persevered in his challenges, and was recently rewarded for his long efforts when both the New York Yacht Club and the Royal Ulster Yacht Club of Great Britain signed the conditions to govern the races for the America's Cup this coming summer. But it looks as if fate is again determined to interfere with "Tommy" and his set ambition. A jinx seems to follow the noted British yachtsman, as within a few days after the signing of the conditions his challenger, Shamrock IV, and the defending candidate, Vanite, narrowly escaped destruction in a fire that swept the shipyard in City Island, where both yachts were stored.

Shamrock's topsail yard and gaff were burned in a loft, and some of Vanite's light spars were lost. It had been about decided to change Shamrock's sail plan, however, and it is probable that her lost spars would have been replaced. At one time the flames came within 20 feet of the houseboat Killarney, on which were her sails and other equipment. Only a slight shift in the wind and six lines of hose run from a fireboat which placed a barrage of water between the yachts and the flames saved the challenger and defender from destruction.

Perhaps, however, the latest attempt of fate to frustrate all Sir Thomas' plans of attempting to win the cup will be the last, and during the coming summer his ambition of years will at last be realized. The signing of the conditions is at least a step in the direction of such a realization. He may not be returned a victor, but, at least, he will have the satisfaction of knowing that he was again allowed the privilege of trying to wrest from the United States the championship in yacht racing.

According to the conditions which will govern the series for the America's Cup this coming summer, the races will be sailed over the old courses off Sandy Hook. The first heat will be on Thursday, July 15, and the following ones will take place on the succeeding Saturday and Tuesday. The final arrangements are the culmination of the challenge which was sent on behalf of the Irish sportsman by H. L. Garrett, honorary secretary of the Royal Ulster committee, on Aug. 2 last. This challenge mentioned Shamrock IV, as the challenging yacht, and June 24 as the first day of the race.

The America's Cup committee of the New Yok Yacht Club could not see its way clear to conceding Sir Thomas' request for a race as early as that requesttd. No race for the cup has ever been sailed in July before, and very few even in August. In fact, the only contests sailed in August during recent years were those of the last series in 1903, when the speedy Reliance raced against the fleet Shamrock III. on Aug. 22, 25, and Sept. 2, all of these races resulting in victories for the American yacht.

Besides the concession to so early a date, the New York Yacht Club committee, although desirous of staging the series off Breton's Reef of Newport, which is more free from headlands than the Sandy Hook course, did not press the point, and acquiesced in the wishes of the British yachtsmen to have the series off Sandy Hook. Irrespective of details however, the conditions for the series have been isgned, and that is the main point of interest to yachtsmen the world over. Should the jinx decide to lay off for the first time in almost twenty years, yachts representing Great Britain and America will be lining up for the race which will decide the penant winner of the sea.

This will be Sir Thomas Lipton's fourth attempt to lift the historic trophy won by the schooner America back in 1851. In 1899 he first Shamrock sent over went down to defeat before the Columbia, which was good enough to victoriously defend the title again in 1901, when Sir Thomas sent over Shamrock II. in an attempt to wrest the laurels from America.

Shamrock IV., which has been in the United States since 1914, is the same yacht to which Sir Thomas then pinned his hopes of winning the blue ribbon. Almost on the eve of her sailing off Sandy Hook, in the summer of that year, she was deprived of a chance to gain the coveted cup by the assassination at Serajevo, which eventually resulted in almost all the armies of the world being brought into action. Any hope of conducting a series of races vanished during the four years and more of strife. The years of war were slack ones for all sports, and especially for water sports. That arrangements have been completed for an international race so soon after the cessation of hostilities is in itself a good omen for the future in the world of sports.

With three successive Shamrocks, designed by Charles Nicholson, a famous boat builder of Great Britain, the Irish baronet failed to win a race. After the defeat of the third, for ten years he remained passive.

The Shamrock of today, with which Sir Thomas hopes this time to be victorious, has rested in American waters since 1914. The particulars of her construction are of interest.

Shamrock IV. is the largest boat of the America's Cup. Her mast from deck to truck is 152 and from the water line to the cap measures 159 feet. When racing she towers 179 feet above the water, due to the club top sail being set above the cap. Her boom is ninety feet, her gaff sixty five feet; and her bowsprit outward, nine feet; the yacht being able to carry 10,000 square feet of canvas. According to agreement her water line is limited to seventy-five feet, and with her tremendous sail spread she will be compelled to allow time to the defending yacht.

Shamrock IV. has wider beam than the largest American yachts, her width amidships being about twenty-three feet. The fin keel is nearly thirty feet in length and her over all length is 110 feet. Her beauty has been sacrificed for long straight lines, but if she lacks speed then the restrictions evaded by her designer will go for naught.

English yachting experts in 1914 when Shamrock IV. came over said that if she carried her rig and held together she would be a marvel in a light breeze. Whether the six years of lying up have been detrimental to the craft remains to be seen, but Sir ever sent to American shores in quest Thomas still has faith in her powers. If this were not so, he probably would not have issued his challenge so soon after the war. The baronet's twenty-three meter yacht Shamrock will come to this side in the latter part of March to act as t rial horse for he challenger.

The New York Yacht Club being in the same position as Sir Thomas in reference to the lack of time for the construction of a new boat, either the Resolute or the Vanite will doubtless be the defender. The former was designed by the great Herreschoff for the "flag officer's syndicate" of the New York Yacht Club, and the latter by William Gardner as a cup candidate for Alexander Smith Cochran in 1914.

The history of the America's Cup which Sir Thomas is again in quest of, goes back many years. When the schooner yacht America in 1851, designed by George Steers for a syndicate of the New York Yacht Club, won a race around the Isle of Wright she was rewarded with the Royal Yacht Squadron Cup which has often been reroneously referred to as the Queen's Cup. Later this trophy was renamed the America's Cup.

The trophy was formally presented to the New York Yacht Club in 1857, accompanied by a deed of gift prescribing the terms and conditions under which the British challengers could compete for it. It was not until seventeen years later that the yachtsmen of Great Britain attempted to recapture the precious trophy, when in he summer 1870, James Ashforth's Cambria was pitted against the entire fleet of the New York Yacht Club. The race was won by The Magic, a centreboard schooner, while the Cambria finished back in the ruck. After this contest the guardians of the cup decided to select from American yachts one defender to withstand any efforts of regaining the cup by one challenger selected from British yachts. This plan has been followed ever since.

Sir Thomas Lipton's pet ambition has been set aside several times because of circumstances, and had his Shamrock IV been destroyed with other yachts in the recent fire at City Island, he could not be blamed if he gave up hope. The slight shift in the wind which probably saved her may however be a good omen to Sir Thomas.

PLANET IS NAMED AFTER MR. CARNEGIE

Mr. Carnegie shared an almost unique honor with the Empress Eugenie in having a planet named after him during his lifetime. Two of the remarkable family of minor planets situated between the orbits of Jupiter and Mars were named Carnegie and Eugenia. In Mr. Carnegie's case the honor was paid him by the international committee who give the minor planets their names in recognition of his munificent gifts to American observatories and scientific research work generally. It was once suggested that he should buy the right to name the asteroids—of which there are several discovered every year—and that the money thus obtained should be used to endow research observatories in the southern hemisphere, but nothing came of the proposal.

MOHAMMEDAN UNREST

London. — Mohammedan unrest, which has spread eastward to the frontiers of China in Central Asia, has also spread westward to the Atlantic seaboard, where Morocco may become a second Egypt.

Even before the war ended, Morocco was restless. When I visited Tangier in the summer of 1918, its restlessness was attributed to German gold, administered by Raisuli, the famous bandit, whose name will be recalled in connection with the Rooseveltian slogan of "Perdicaris olive orRaisuli dead," when Raisuli captured and held for ransom the American citizen son Perdicaris.

The declaration of war in 1914, had had the effect of moving more than 10,000 Germans out of the French zone in Morocco into the Spanish zone. Financed through the German Embassy in Madrid, these German refugees in the Spanish zone lost no time in seeking to embarrass the French in Morocco. The Sultan of Morocco, one of the last of the independent Mohammedan rulers, was a French protege and had been removed from his capitol at Fez. When I saw him last spring, he was living in a suite at the Hotel Splendide in Marseilles.

The native ambitions which German gold succeeded in reviving in Morocco, far from dying out with the ending of the war, have continued to break into bloodshed. Reports still reach London of fighting between native forces, who are still led by Raisuli, and French forces. So difficult has the situation become that it is quite possible that the Moroccan impasse may have played a par in the recent visit to Paris of the King of Spain. For Morocco has been divided between France and Spain, with the exception of a small hinterland back of Tangier, which with the town of Tangier, has been internationalized.

Morocco, before its partitioning, consisted of an area of 200,000 square miles with a population of 7,000,000 Arabs. Its long career as a bone of contention among the European powers was interrupted in 1912 by a Franco-Spanish agreement, under which 190,000 square miles of it became a French Protectorate, certain coastal areas passed under Spanish influence, and the present international regime was introduced into Tangier.

Tangier is a tragedy of internationalization. A dozen European Governments run the town. Attempts to introduce improvements have been thwarted. The efforts of each have been directed largely toward preventing rivals from carrying out work which might win the gratitude of the population.

The dozen Consular Courts, administered, badly, and not always honestly, a dozen different codes of law. The native courts will hand down any verdict for a price. Any consular complaint against a native leads to his imprisonment. Any native who desires to complain against a European, is referred to the Consular Court, to which the defendant is amenable, and is required to pay a fee. The native knows nothing about taking out a summons, he does not dare to sue in a Consular Court, and he is too poor to pay a fee. For him, there is little hope of justice.

There are 20,000 natives at Tangier and no native hospital. There are one or two small dispensary-rooms into which the sick of the native poor are crowded, but there are no qualified doctors available to natives without the payment of fees. Tangier was ravaged by the grippe in 1918, a month passed before its internationalized administration held a meeting, at which they decided that there was nothing o be done. Scores of the native poor died.

No improvements are made in the native quarter, while plenty of money is squandered on improvements in the small European section of Tangier. Lack of work, high prices, and a terrible shortage of water make pitiable the existence of the natives at Tangier.

POULTRY CULLING DEMONSTRATION

Poultry culling demonstrations that have been carried on by the federal Live Stock Branch have clearly proved that it is possible to take out from forty to sixty per cent of the stock in the average farm flock and still leave the farmer with as many eggs per day as he was getting before. The value of this knowledge to the farmers of Canada can hardly be over-estimated.

An equally valuable service of the federal Live Stock Branch is the grading of market wool. According to the Report of the Minister for the fiscal year ending 1918-19, approximately 4,550,000 pounds of wool were systematically graded and sold co-operatively.

These are only examples of the services of the federal Department of Agriculture, which has branches and divisions for the advancement of practically every phase of farming and gardening. This report, which is obtainable from The Publications Branch, Ottawa, covers concisely the work of the whole Department for the twelve-month period.

A STRIKING CONTRAST

A survey of Russian transportation conditions, published recently by the bolshevist government at Moscow, confesses that only 4100 locomotives are running, as compared with 16,800 in operation in 1914. At the beginning of the war there were 63,000 versts of line in operation, with 28 locomotives to each 100 versts. At present there are 48,500 versts of road in operation, with eight locomotives to 100 versts.

Russia, it is true, was hard hit by the war, and a fair measure of allowance should be made for that. But Belgium was harder hit than Russia, ad Belgium, under stable government, presents a striking industrial contrast to bolshevik Russia. A New York business man, just home from a three-months business tour of Europe, thus describes Belgian conditions:

Belgium is a real surprise. I travelled by motor from one end to the other—from Centrai to Ghent, to Brussels, to Antwerp, to Liege, Namur and Verviers. Green fields were seen everywhere, factories running to capacity in many districts, in others reconstructed and almost ready to resume operations. Belgium's production is increasing daily. High exchange rates have prevented the purchase of all the raw materials they would like to buy to bring their, production up to higher levels, but I believe this will soon be overcome, as the Belgian franc is selling far too cheap just now.

In England, says the same observer, "one finds the most commercially constructive government in the world. The English manufacturer, with the help of his government, is going keenly after business all over the world. And he is getting it, too, as is attested by the fact that most of England's prime industries, such as woolen and steel, are sold up for practically two years to come."

France, says this informant, though not so fortunate in having as farsighted government as the British, si making cheering progress since the retirement of Clemenceau. The old tiger was superb as a war leader, but the problems of reconstruction were too much for him, and the French people, though idolizing him, dropped sentiment for fact and called into service a more constructive government.

The French people, slowly, painstakingly, have gone about rebuilding their homes and industries. Lyons St. Etienne, Grenoble, Roubaix and even Lille are booked with orders for at least two years. Trade with their colonies is flourishing and the Frenchman is determined to regain his financial strength.

But Germany was found "in a very bad way." Wherever the bolshevist, or radical revolutionary blight has stricken one finds demoralization, failing industry, hunger and deadening apathy among the masses.

"FLOATING HAREMS" A GROWING EVIL

London.—Young girls who reside in the vicinity of large docks are adopting a practice of secretly boarding merchant ships and remaining aboard.

Many are mere children, apparently little if anything beyond 15 years of age, and it has been no uncommon occurrence for several to be put ashore from vessels about to proceed to sea. Batches have from time to time been brought before the magistrates by the railway police, who have found them harbored in the forecastles of ships in dock.

It is impossible to keep every ship in port under continuous observation, while when girls or women are found on board they can only be proceeded against for trespass on the company's premises. Most, no doubt, go aboard after dark, but some have been seen doing so in broad daylight.

In one case brought before the Hartlepool bench a short time ago four girls were found in a deplorable condition in the forecastle of a foreign ship, and several similar cases, told by responsible officials, are unquestionably but too well founded. It is, indeed, stated that on one occasion recently 20 girls were rounded up in a big ship.

In most cases the girls who have come under the notice of the authorities have not belonged to the locality, but apparently wandered from port to port, and this would account for the fact that inquiries by parents with respect to absent daughters are but few.

Mr. J. Cruise, presiding at a meeting of the Barry Free Church council, said the attention of the authorities should be drawn to the floating harems known to exist at the docks at Cardiff, Penarth, Barry and other ports. On the previous day two girls found in a ship at Bary were turned off, but later two others were found on board.

TEACHERS HOLD CONVENTION

(Cranbrook Courier)

The first annual convention of the Kootenay and Boundary School Teachers Association opened in Cranbrook Tuesday evening at 9.30. The late arrival of the eastbound train delayed the meeting, which was scheduled to commence at 7.30 p.m. Upwards of sixty teachers were in attendance, nearly every seat of learning in South Eastern British Columbia being represented. A partial list of those in attendance were: F. G. Calvert, inspector public schools, Nelson; E. G. Daniels, principal Fernie public schools; B. P. Stevens, principal Nelson public school; F. C. Sparkes, principal Hume school, Nelson; A. E. C. Martin, Nelson high school; R. W. Ashworth, Deer Park; Thomas Prescott, Coal Creek; J. Celle, Nelson public school; R. B. Forsyth, principal high school, Cranbrook, F. G. Morris, manual training instructor, Cranbrook; R. S. Shields, principal public school, Cranbrook; Miss Palmer Erickson; Miss Dicken, Miss Stott and the Misses Elliott, Fernie public school; Miss Knott, Canyon City; Miss Giegerich, Kaslo; Miss Irving, Miss Hodgson, Miss Bealby, Miss Etter, Miss Donaldon, Miss Hunter, Miss Steeves, Miss Bloomer, Nelson public schools; Miss Dixon and Miss McSween, Jaffray; Miss Jessop, Wycliffe; Miss A. S. Johnson, Morrissey; Miss A. C. Johnson, Michel; Miss McAllister, Baynes Lake; Miss McLaughlin and Miss Munroe, Grand Forks; Miss Schofield, Trail; Mrs. Adams, Waneta; Miss Douglas, Fernie; Miss Briant, Wanklyn; Miss Woodland, Miss Howard, Miss White, Miss Cartwright, Miss Fink, Miss McLennan, Miss Hodgson, Miss O'Hearn, Cranbrook public chools.

Proceedings opened with President Steeves in the chair. Mayor Alfred Genest, in welcoming the guests to the city of Cranbrook, emphasized the importance and responsibility placed upon the shoulders of every teacher assembled for their first annual convention. He wanted them to be guests of the city after the more strenuous business of the convention had been disposed of. Miss Fink, a teacher at the central school, rendered a 'cello solo, which was well received and favorably commented upon; Mr. H. White, chairman of the Cranbrook school board, welcomed the teachers on behalf of the local board and complimented the many teachers of the province on their high standard of efficiency; J. G. Spreull, president of the Cranbrook board of trade, delivered a very pleasing five-minute address. He hoped the visitors would enjoy themselves within our gates and felt that they would leave Cranbrook with a good impression of this section of the province. Mrs. James Milroy rendered a solo in her usual pleasing manner which elicited a hearty hand.

The president briefly outlined the work of the convention, feeling that the lateness of the hour and the tiresome train journey of the teachers from the west, would be sufficient justification for postponing the deliberations until the following morning. Adjournment was made.

Convention reassembled at 9 a.m. Wednesday morning. Following the preliminary address by the president, Mr. F. G. Culvert gave a paper on the "Problems Pertaining to the Rural School." He opened by giving the teachers sound advice on the basic principles of teaching and of the spirit of getting together. There was need for as much, yes more, co-operation on the part of teachers than any other line. The necessity of adequate remuneration, so as to be equal at any rate to the medical, legal and other professions, so that teachers may be in a position to equip themselves for their life work. His paper, a mastery of hard facts, dealt with the problems met with in the average rural school, such as equipment. use of the blackboard, co-relation of subjects and the work well planned before hand. The great detriment to the school of the continual change of teachers, such change being neither good for the school nor the teacher. His paper was full of helpful suggestions and criticisms which were of great benefit not only to rural but to city teachers as well. Following the reading of the paper, R. W. Ashworth led the discussion and much benefit was derived therefrom.

Routine business took up the time until the noon hour.

Thursday morning at 9 o'clock the meeting opened in the city hall. Amendments to the constitution were made so that teachers institutes could be formed at the nine principal centres in the Kootenays the same to be under the supervision of the main executive of the teachers' association, each centre electing one member to the association executive. The discussion of salaries lead to information being produced regarding salaries of other professions, and the teaching profession easily holds sellar positions. In order to partially bring the remuneration to the proper standard it is necessary for all teachers to receive 25 per cent increase for several years to come. Fernie has already adopted a twelve hundred dollar minimum, believing that by such a minimum they can hold excellent teachers. It is felt by the teachers that the school boards will receive the recommendation favorably.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

E. G. Daniels, Fernie—President.

R. S. Shields, Cranbrook—Vice-President.

Thomas Prescott, Coal Creek—Recording Secretary.

Miss Hogan, Fernie—Corresponding Secretary.

Miss Stott, Fernie—Treasurer.

Nelson was decided upon as the next place of meeting.

PUBLICITY COLUMN

Well, the first tourist of the season was here on Wednesday evening. He had come through from Oregon and was making for the prairies. Did you see his layout? A Henry F with a frame and canvas structure about 10 by 12 feet erected on it, and he had a crowd of eight persons with him. I didn't get a chance to talk much with him. as they were evidently in a hurry to get to the feed corrall, but he told me they had some time on the road. Coming down Morrissey hill they stuck and had to dig out.

Owing to some error in the map which is to go into the booklet, it had to be re-made, with the result that we shall not have them until next week. We have decided not to send the booklets out without them, but will have everything ready so that they can go out immediately they arrive. This is one of the results of several people handling the work—delay, delay, delay. So far as Fernie is concerned there will be no more of that.

Will the people who would like to have some of the booklets sent to their friends please make out a list of their names and addresses and let me have it as soon as possible. The booklets will all be sent out from my studio and we want to send them to the people who might be induced to take a motor trip through here, so in sending in the names, please confine them as much as posible to motorists.

The American Automobile Association of New York say: "We anticipate that an unusually great number of our members will be making enquiries relative to touring in Western Canada this summer and are therefore anxious to secure all the details possible about roads, hotels and points of interest. Anything you care to send will be greatly appreciated and we will see to it that your region is given all possible publicity."

The Yarapai County Chamber of Commerce of Prescott, Arizona, say: "Many of our citizens have visited our section, including myself, and we are always pleased to recommend our scenery, hotel accommodation etc." This bears out my statement that the hotel accommdations here compare very favorably with any other town of its size in the country.

The Motor League of Louisiana, New Orleans. say: "We have approximately 25 or 30 members we know of who will tour Western Canada this year and will appreciate it very much if you will send us enough booklets to distribute among them."

Judging by the above and many other letters along the same lines, there is certainly going to be a very heavy travel through here this summer, and it is up to us all to make this town as attractive as possible and endeavor to show these tourists that we want to look after them when they come. In this way we shall make each one of them go away and advertise us.

The Publicity Committee will be preparing the follow up pamphlets in the course of the next week or ten days, and will be glad to have suggestions. If anyone has an idea to offer, please come and see me. I particularly want some dope on industrial possibilities and hunting.

A representative of the Forestry department was up to see me the other day in respect to my application to the government to cut trails up into the mountains. He is going to make certain recommendations to the department and I believe that our chances are good.

I would like to see the Alpine Club reorganized and have spoken to several of the old members, who also are anxious for it to get active again. I shall be glad to hear from anyone who is interested in this and if enough enthusiasm is shown to call a meeting to discuss it.

We want everybody in town to be interested in this work, so don't hesitate, if you have any ideas, to come up and shoot them at me.

J. F. Spalding.

BAD ROADS COST US TWENTY MILLION YEARLY

Power costs money to the farmer and to everyone else who must draw loads over our roads. A scientific investigation of the power required to move loads over various kinds of roads discloses some interesting results. To draw a load over a concrete road in an ordinary farm wagon required a pull of 27.6 pounds per ton of gross load. Over a road of asphaltic oil and screenings top over a concrete base the pull was 49.2 pounds; good water-bound macadam, 64.3 pounds; good gravel road, 78.2 pounds; dry dirt road, 92 pounds; dirt with mud on top but firm underneath, 218 pounds; fresh gravel, 263 pounds. No deep mud was available at the time and place the test was made so that we can only guess what power would have been required.

The difference in power required between good roads and poor is power wasted. The loss is borne not alone by the farmer, but by all of us who consume farm products and who pay to have them hauled to us. When the roads are wet and heavy the farmer can haul but one-eighth of the load to town that he could haul if a first-rate road were available. The United States office of public roads estimates the national excess bill for hauling because of poor roads at $200,000,000 annually.

As the United States has gone far beyond Canada in road improvement, and as Canada is more of an agricultural nation than the States, it is manifest that twenty million dollars per annum is a conservative estimate of the cost of poor roads to this Dominion.

Mud slows up the business of the entire nation, Dull seasons are the seasons of mud when the farmer can not get to town with his produce, cannot transact business, so that the business of the town suffers and consequently the business of the nation. Mud means lost time, for the farmer must spend hours instead of minutes upon the road, must make many trips instead of few. Our present need is to turn the power and time lost into productive channels. To do it we must improve our roads.—From the Canadian Motorist.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Wednesday afternoon at St. James Anglican church, when Miss Beatrice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hamil, of Armstrong, was united in marriage to John Crookston, of Fernie. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. R. Alderson, and Prof. Stone played the wedding march. The church was very prettily decorated with daffodils and Easter lilies. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a suit of navy blue serge with Georgette hat to match, and carried a bouquet of red and white carnations. The bridesmaid was Miss Florence Hamil, sister of the bride, and Robert Hamil supported the groom. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, only the immediate friends and relatives being present. The happy couple left for California, and on their return they will reside at Fernie. Mr. and Mrs. Crookston were the recipients of a number of handsome presents from outside points in addition to those from local friends.

SQUARE DEAL WILL SAVE RACE

"If it be true that all men are born free, it is just as true that all men are not born equal," stated Mr. Justice Murphy in course of his address before the conference of the Rotary Clubs of the Northwest District at Victoria Tuesday evening. Justice Murphy was speaking on "The Present Discontents" and continuing, he said that "daily experience convincingly demonstrates the inequality of men in intellect, in will power and in the capacity for getting on in the world. It follows that the burdens of the weak must be borne by the strong if justice is to prevail, for nothing is more unjust than to call for a like performance from unequal capacity. The solution consists not so much in the piling up of new laws as in a new viewpoint on the part of the individual man—the viewpoint of 'Service' and of the 'Square Deal,' and the cultivation of this viewpoint is, I am informed, the foundation stone of Rotary.

"Toilers today demand, and rightly demand, a larger share of the good things of life. The world seethes with unrest, and in the midst of all this confusion, what is the loyal citizen doing?

"In Canada, at any rate, he is showing a tendency not to uphold the state in its struggle with the forces of anarchy, not, at least, until he sees actual revolution raising its ugly head; but to band into factions whose avowed aim is the promotion of class interest, without thought of the welfare of the community as a whole. This movement is not confined to any particular strata of citizenship; it permeates the whole body from its foundation to its apex. That way madness lies. It must lead inevitably to such universal chaos and anarchy as will make people pray for the advent even of Bolshevism, if only it be efficient Bolshevism.

"The solution of the present-day difficulties calls for the abandonment of the individualistic conception of each for himself and the devil take the hindermost," continued the Justice, "and of the principle of conduct that each of us must regard the acquirement of worldly power as the be-all and end-all of our existence, and the substitution therefor of the idea that each is his brother's keeper. I do not mean by that we are to inaugurate an era of mawkish sentimentality, or that we can bring about the millennium, but that we should regard service, not selfishness, as our proper rule of life."

Mr. Justice Murphy led up to those observations through a discussion of Bolshevism.

"Comes now into the court of civilized nations the satyr-like figure of Bolshevism and in menacing tones insistently demands, 'What think ye of me?'" he said.

"Well may this question give us pause. It is being asked with more or less emphasis in every civilized country of the world. It affects the very framework of society—nay, the individual fortunes of every human being—and it is one that willy-nilly must be answered and that right speedily.

"It seems to me capable of easy demonstration that the present struggle of society versus Bolshevism is but a variant of the same class of ideals that produced the great war.

"That struggle was inevitable, and it was inevitable because it was a clash of ideals. Here is the first thing to be carefully noticed, that all great human movements, whether for good or ill, have, despite the sneers of the materialists, ideals, true or false, as their mainspring of action. Ideals have never been successfully combatted by force.

"It behooves us, then, to carefully investigate the truth or falsity of the Bolshevist ideal, and, if it doesn't ring true, to combat it, not by fire and sword but by the weapon of calm reason through the medium of public discussion. It seems to me capable of easy demonstration that the present struggle of society, as now organized, versus Bolshevism, is but a variant of the same clash of ideals that produced the great war. If this is so, it follows that we should go carefully."

Mr. Justice Murphy then reviewed the story of state versus individual rights as recorded in the history of the world since the Christian era.

"The natural habitat of mankind—the crowd—is made up of individuals," the speaker went on, "each one endowed with that sublime but most useful gift, free will.

"Nature then is continuously compelling man to association—the free wills of individuals are so many disruptive forces making for dispersion. Hence the necessity for some curbing force if the race is not to be annihilated, and that curbing force we call government.

"The Germanic ideal of government was that the individual exists for the state. It follows logically that the state can do no wrong; in other words, that might is right. No wonder that the war carried on by people holding such doctrines was one of horrible atrocity.

"The question of which form of government is the true one must be answered by intelligence. Since government is essential to the welfare and, indeed, to the very existence of the race, that ideal of government must nearest approximate truth which has best served this purpose.

"History, the story of the human race, must therefore be our criterion. If the English acceptance is not the true one, how comes it that a people, negligible in numbers when compared with contemporary nations, have gradually painted red a large part, if not the larger part, of this earth's surface

"Again, consider the case of the United States. I said that the English ideal did not make progress without many retrograde movements. By far the most important of these resulted in the establishment on this continent of the world's greatest republic. The fathers of that country explicitly laid down in their organic instrument of government the principle of the relation of the state to the individual, which had been implicit in the British constitution—at any rate from the date of the Settlement Act of William and Mary—freedom of the individual citizen to utilize his intellect and his will as he chose, provided he did no wrong to his fellows.

"It has been well said, therefore, that the uprising in the New England colonies was not so much a rebellion against constituted authority as it was an assertion of the true principles of the British constitution against the machinations of a German king whose object was the destruction of that constitution. He failed in that attempt, to the great joy of every well-informed loyal British subject."

The speaker considered that the history of the United States had proved the Allied ideal to be the true one. Otherwise, how did it become the Mecca for all the downtrodden of the earth. And for what other reason did the people of the United States come to realize the true issues of the great war, and range themselves beside the British and their Allies to defeat the Germanic attempt to destroy that ideal?

"The great struggle resulted in an Allied triumph, and the Allied people expected, if not the millennium, at any rate a speedy return to the old pre-war days at their best. Surely said they, after over four years devoted to destruction, there must be work for all at high pay. They were doomed to bitter disappointment. Work possibly was obtainable, although not in every case, and when obtainable the reward was nominally high, but experience soon proved that in reality it was low, because of the high cost of living.

"This spectre sits at every fireside except those of the very rich, and causes not only acute inconvenience in the present but grave anxiety for the future.

"Now disappointment is almost sure to beget resentment, and although it is an unlovely trait of human nature it is an absolutely true one that resentful people are more inclined to look about for some head to crack than to calmly search for causes and then apply the remedy, especially if that remedy involves some degree of personal self sacrifice. And even in a democracy, the government head, no matter what the political complexion of any particular government, is a shining mark.

"Further, to many who do not trouble to analyze fully their course of reasoning and its consequences, it is but a short step from attacking any particular government to attacking the institution of government itself as at present constituted.

"Here comes the golden opportunity of the advocate of Bolshevism. He is for the most part, but not entirely, the product of centuries of tyranny on the part of governments based on the Germanic ideal. In consequence, he considers every man's hand against him, and certainly his hand is against every man. He is in essence an anarchist.

"But his kind are not the only, nor are they the most dangerous, advocates of Bolshevism.

"The most dangerous of Bolshevists, whether they call themselves so or not, are of two classes: first, men born in free countries and with, therefore, opportunity for the cultivation of their intellects and the exercise untramelled of their will, who have seen and probably been the victims of individualism gone mad, and who have drunk deep of a false philosophy without troubling first carefully to examine the principles underlying that philosophy; and, second, the parlor Bolshevist, the pampered product of all that is wrong about our present system, who, sometimes through sheer boredom, but more often through love for filthy lucre, advocates an overturn of which he would be one of the first victims.

"Now whether you call it autocracy of Bolshevism or autocracy, soviet government or the dictatorship of the proletariat the fundamental principle of this ideal is the old Germanic one—the absolute dominance of the state over the individual—the entire negation of the exercise by the individual of his God-given gifts of intellect and free will with its inevitable sequence of the adoption of the doctrine of might is right.

"Lenine himself has laid it down as the rule for the success of soviet government that there must be complete submission to the dictatorship of a single individual.

"Bolshevism runs counter to the natural laws and when you attempt to abrogate natural laws in just so far as you succeed you destroy civilization and reduce humanity to the level of the jungle.

"The first article of the Bolshevist creed is the destruction of private property. Now there are two natural laws, the one essential to the existence of the individual, the other to the existence of the race, that this article contravenes—the law of self-preservation and the law of the propagation of the race.

"Now no man will willingly devote himself to labor, the fruits of which are to be arbitrarily taken from him without his consent. It revolts that innate sense of justice. In consequence compulsion must be resorted to if the necessary labor is to be performed.

"And so your communistic state must perforce set up stark slavery for that is what such compulsion means.

"Then this is the inevitable end of all the advocates of Bolshevism, despite their pose of being the only true lovers of human freedom. Each attempt to reduce all to slavery must moreover surely fail.

"The ideal of Bolshevism then is essentially false since it runs counter to the fundamental laws of human nature, since it contravenes all the lessons of history and in practice would deprive man of two powers that make him a man at all—his intellect and free will.

"And being false it is the duty of every citizen to resist it to the utmost.

"But the opposite extreme of selfish individualism is equally false and almost as detrimental to the state since it prevents governments carrying out their true function—that of promoting the welfare of the people as a whole. The profitter is every bit as disloyal a citizen as is the Bolshevist. For a short time after the armistice the Allied countries resounded with the cry of peace with victory. But it is mere delusion to shout victory when there is no victory. There can be no peace, there can be no victory without justice if citizens' minds remain wedded to the old selfish individualism that was the basis of society in pre-war days."

In the long run, the speaker thought that the practical application of the principle, Service, Sot Self, would result in a rough approximation of true justice—a fair deal to all, both by the State and by the citizen.

"When that has been achieved," said Mr. Justice Murphy in conclusion, "then, and only then, will the genius of civilization be able to open the great Doomsday Book of humanity, containing as it does the names of hundreds of millions of human beings of all creeds and colors; white, black, brown and yellow, Christian, Pagan, men of all religions and men of no religion; then, I say, can she open that Great Book and, with steady pen and unfaltering faith in the future of the race, write therein in letters of celestial radiance the glorious words, 'Peace with Victory.'"

MADE THREE MILLION IN NINE YEARS

Early marriage, frowned on by Sir Albert Stanley and other staid advisers of youth, brought millions to Richard C. Cox of Boston, not through any money his wife brought him, either.

A poor country lad of 20, he entered Boston University nine years ago. While still a freshman, he fell in love and married a fellow-student. That ended college days for both of them.

"I went to work in a steam guage factory as an experimental designer," he says. "It was there I saw a demand for steam guage testers. I resigned and went to work in a gear factory in Norfolk Downs, working evenings ot home developing my invention.

"I finally succeeded in developing a steam guage tester and had ten of them constructed. I got $250 each for them. I realized then that I was wasting my time working at $35 a week when I was making $500 in a week selling my guages. I began manufacturing them on a small scale and met with a reasonable degree of success." The foundation of this big fortune, however, according to his own story, was laid by a toothache. He found out that the machine used to bore his teeth cost the dentist $240. He was sure the materials could not be worth more than $15, so he set to work and invented a cheaper machine for the same purpose.

COULD HARDLY EAT OR SLEEP FOR 6 MONTHS

Indigestion Would Cut Off Her Breath—Tanlac Made Her Strong Again.

"Yes, Sir, Tanlac has made my wife look like a different person and it does me good to tell everybody what a change has come over her." said Mike Fahlman, a well-known carpenter who lives at 1922 Moir St., Regina, Saskatchewan, in relating his wife's experience with Tanlac the other day.

"My wife had as bad a case of indigestion as anybody ever had," continued Mr. Fahlman. "Why, for the past seven months she has been in a miserable condition. Her appetite was poor and when she did eat a little something she would have the worst sort of cramping pains in her stomach that would almost drive her wild. She was troubled with gas that would rise up in her chest and cut her breath off and sometimes it rose up in her throat and gave her a bad taste in her mouth. She had pains through her back so bad that she could hardly stoop over and severe headaches would often come on her. She was troubled with sleeplessness and would wake up at all hours during the night, and that made her get so weak that during the day she would give out completely and have to go lie down. Four months ago she got so bad off that she went to the hospital and was operated on and for a while she was better, but soon she was suffering again and all her troubles came back.

"A friend advised her to try Tanlac and she did so and it was no time before she commenced to improve and she kept on getting better until now she does not look like the same person at all. The indigestion left her and she can eat anything on the table and never be troubled in any way, and she doesn't have that bad taste in her mouth any more. The pains through her back have entirely disappeared and she hardly ever is troubled with a headache. She sleeps fine at night and gets up every morning full of life and energy and she has gone back to doing all her housework by herself. I feel as grateful to Tanlac as my wife, and I certainly join with her in praising it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell and by the leading druggists in every town.

ON HIGH ROAD TO POLYGAMY

London.—What the "2,000,000 surplus women" think of marriage prospects and marriage laws may be gathered from speeches made on the subject at a meeting of the Women's Freedom League.

"We are already on the high road to polygamy," said Mrs. M. W. Nevinson, who took the chair. "Doctors and poor law guardians know very well that we are not monogamists."

Speaking of the surplus women, she said that the competition was unhealthy for those who wanted to be married, while it was also bad for the men, who were run after toomuch. Although there was a tragedy hanging over these women, yet there were compensations for spinsters.

"Every woman believes her husband will be a warrior saint, and happy warrior," she said. "If a spinster does not marry she can retain that belief. Her husband will still be a dream husband. While other women get drunkards and wife beaters, she will keep her ideal."

"My dream husband at the age of ten was the Lord Mayor of London," confessed Miss Helena Normanton, the woman law student, in a delightful talk on "A Spinster's Reflections on Marriage." "I didn't know that the term of the lord mayor's office was only for a year," she added, "and, anyhow, my dream did not materialize."

Persons who have recently spoken freely about the "unwanted" and 'surplus" women were taken severely to task.

"It is time that the women of our nation made a dignified protest against this cruel and outrageous way of talking," said Miss Normanton. "The unwanted women are those who were begged by our statesmen—if you care to call them so—to give up their men to fight for their country. Those young girls and widows who made the sacrifices are now termed superfluous and unwanted.

"I am most sorry for the young girls in their early twenties who have only a memory to hold to during their arduous lives—little girls who just had the awakening of romance, and have only a photograph, a few letters, or some faded flowers to remind them of the past, and who have to look forward to mateless lives and probably the dreary grind of daily work under arduous circumstances."

She appealed to married women to hold out a helping hand to these women, to help them to careers, to be as sisterly and kind to them as possible, and to help them to broaden their lives.

Nor must they encourage their men folk to shut the gates of the labor market against them. Deprived of their right to maternity, something might yet be done, if the adoption laws were put on a reasonable basis, and it were made economically possible for these women to adopt some of the children now barracked and confined in homes.

OF TAKING ADVICE

A cynic said that there are two fools in the world—the man who offers advice and the man who takes it. Most fellows make up their minds what to do—about getting married, for instance—and then seek advice. If the advice fits the decision they take it. If it doesn't, they forget it.

But sometimes good advice comes back, like Banquo's ghost, and teaches the headstrong that true friendship sometimes is deliberately cruel, in order to be everlastingly kind. It is a fine thing to see a man wedded to his job—till death them do part. But to be so much wedded that he won't rest sometimes is a foolish invitation to death to perform an operation which it is really easy to avoid. The worst foe a man can have often sets up a tempter's throne in his own bosom. The villain tells him "You are indispensable." That is an infernal lie. The only affair at which one is truly indespensable is his own funeral—and the internal liar has by that time ceased to be. Other people may think a business man or an administrator is as essential as lungs are to breath. But nobody should allow himself to imagine so palpable and weak a vanity.

CHANCES ARE SIZED UP

The arrival of Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, and the prospect of a match between the Frenchman and Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, lends interest to an inspection of the record of the best heavyweight from the other side of the Atlantic ocean. Here is how an American reviewer of things fistic discusses the fighting career of the Frenchman.

According to authentic records, Carpentier was born at Lens, France, January 12, 1892, which would fix his age at 28 years, and he should be at the apex of his physical powers.

He stands five feet, eleven and a half inches, an inch and a half shorter than Dempsey, and weighs, in condition, 170 pounds, nearly twelve pounds less than the world's champion.

Carpentier began boxing in 1907 when he was but 15 years of age and a bantam in size. He won the titles of all classes from bantam up to and including heavy in France, which was not a difficult thing to do and he made himself the middleweight champion of Europe by knocking out a mediocre English boxer named Jim Sullivan.

Carpentier became possessed of the heavyweight championship of Europe through stopping Bombardier Wells, the English title holder.

Carpentier recently solidified his hold on the European title by stopping Joe Beckett, British champion, in fifty-three seconds of the first round of a bout at the Holborn Stadium in the presence of a notable throng, including the Prince of Wales.

After four years in the lighter classes Carpentier, who had developed into a middleweight, set sail for the championship of that class. He met and defeated a number of French and English middleweights, and substantiated his claim to the French middleweight title.

Toward the close of 1911 the champion, then being 19 years of age, met a really good middleweight in the person of Harry Lewis, of Philadelphia, and the Frenchman won on points at the end of a twenty-round bout.

Carpentier next got into the ring with a clever, hard hitting negro named Dixie Kid, and was stopped in five rounds.

Carpentier, however, kept on boxing, and was particularly busy in the following year, 1912, when he made himself the middleweight champion of Europe as a result of knocking out Jim Sullivan, English title holder, in the second round.

Carpentier also defeated George Gunther and Willie Lewis in twenty-round bouts on points, but was twice stopped by the American middleweights, Frank Klaus and Billie Papke.

Klaus, who held the American title gave Carpentier a severe trouncing and had the Frenchman on the floor in the nineteenth round. Descamps, manager of Carpentier, who saw that his man had small chances of weathering the storm, ran into the ring and carried Carpentier to his corner. The records show that Carpentier lost the bout on the foul committed by Descamps in entering the ring during a round, but Klaus really scored a knockout.

Klaus' body punching was altogether too much for the Frenchman, who was exhausted in the nineteenth round.

Papke, the Illinois thunderbolt, also stopped Carpentier in 1912, the end coming in the seventeenth round, when Papke's terrific hitting wore the Frenchman down to a point where he was compelled to "resign," as boxers say in England.

In explanation of his defeats at the hands of Klaus and Papke, friends of Carpentier have claimed that he was merely a boy at the time, undeveloped and therefore unable to cope with seasoned veterans like Papke and Klaus.

Without question Klaus and Papke were veterans and well seasoned, but Carpentier was well enough developed physically and pugilistically to vanquish all the best European middleweights, and the handlers of the Frenchman matched him with the Americans without a minute's hesitation.

As indicating his rapid development, Carpentier jumped into the heavyweight division in 1913, won the championship of his own country and then made himself the heavyweight champion of Europe by knocking out Bombardier Wells in the fourth round of a bout at Ghent, Belgium. This was on June 1, 1913, and on December 8 of the same year the Frenchman again stopped Wells this time in the first round.

Among others defeated by Carpentier in 1913 were Bandsman Rice, in eight rounds; George Gunther, in fourteen; Albert Lurie, in three; and Jeff Smith, in twenty, on points.

Carpentier started his campaign of 1914 by knocking out Pat O'Keefe, middleweight champion of England, in three rounds, and the Frenchman's next bout was with Joe Jeannette, and caused more discussion in Europe than any other contest of the time. The bout took place in Paris, was limited to fifteen rounds and the decision went to Jeannette on points.

Many good judges, including A. F. Bettison, of the National Sporting Club of London, declared that Carpentier had earned the verdict on points.

This was regarded as the most notable achievement of the Frenchman, as Jeanette, in 1914, was a formidable boxer.

Carpentier followed this engagement by stopping Hubert Roe, a French heavyweight, and then followed a contest on the outcome of which is based the general conception of Carpentier's status in the heavyweight division.

Gunboat Smith, once a contender for the American title, was the opponent of the Frenchman, and the meeting was in the National Sporting Club, London, July 16, 1914, with Eugene Corri as the referee. The contest came to an end in the fifth round with a decision of foul against Smith, who was declared to have struck Carpentier while the latter was on one knee.

According to the details of the contest, Carpentier looked like a certain winner in the first round, as he brought Smith down for a count of nine with a right-hander to the jaw, much after the fashion in which Beckett was floored.

But the Gunboat refused to stay down, got on his feet before ten had been counted, and grew stronger with each succeeding round. The fifth round was barely under way when the Gunner reached back of his heel with his right, plainly telegraphed his intentions, and then made a rainbow swing for Carpentier's jaw. The blow landed back of the Frenchman's left ear and brought him down in a heap. It was with difficulty Carpentier got on one knee for the count, for he wobbled from side to side.

Then came a bit of strategy by Dechamps, who, in French, counselled his man to feign rising and then fall back on one knee. At the count of eight Carpentier made a move as if to rise and instantly the eager Gunner swung at the Frenchman, who dropped back to his knee as the blow swished past his head, disarranging his hair, but doing no damage.

As Smith had disobeyed the rule requiring a boxer who has scored a knock-down to retire to the far side of the ring, and also had struck at a man who was on his knee, the Gunner was disqualified.

Competent critics at the ringside declared that but for Smith's disobedience of the rules he would have scored a complete knockout, as Carpentier was hopelessly beaten at the time Smith swung the foul blow.

Carpentier did no boxing during the period of the war, but started again last year, and stopped two British heavies, Dick Smith and Joe Beckett, the latter champion of Britain.

As the case stands, Carpentier's reputation as a heavyweight boxer rests on a close fifteen-round bout with Joe Jeanette, a decision of foul over Gunboat Smith, and a one-round knockout over Joe Beckett. The bout with Jeanette must be accepted as the best performance of Carpentier in the heavyweight class, for the decision against Smith, while legal, reflects no credit on the victor, although the manager's resourcefulness must be conceded.

MARTYRS KILLED BY TURKS FOR REFUSAL TO RENOUNCE BIBLE TEACHINGS

"Auction of Souls," the sensational screen story of Auroro Mardiganian, the only survivor of half a million young Armenian girls persecuted by the Turks when they ravished her country. and which is to be presented at the Orpheum Theatre, next Wednesday and Thursday, has its opening scenes laid in the forebodying shadows of Mt. Ararat, which is linked with some of the most ancient of human history. It was in the shadow of this picturesque peak that Auora Mardiganian lived with her parents and a sister and brother, all now dead, in 1915.

Mt. Ararat, which is more than 16,000 feet high, was the mountain on which the Bible says the ark rested as the Deluge dropped, and those on Noah's boat returned to ground. In latter days the Assyrians were ambitious to add it to their domains, and it was the scene of many battles.

In modern times it has been the joining point of the lines of Persia, Turkey and Russian territory. Frequently it has been the scene of earthquakes, and hundreds have been killed by such disturbances.

The land lying in the region about Mt. Ararat is unusually fertile, and therein has been the source of the persecution of the Armenians. Industrious and inclined to accumulate, they have constantly been tormented, robbed and ravished by the indolent and unprincipled Turks.

This persecution reaches its height in the atrocities of 1915, which are pictured in "Auction of Souls." Based on the story of Aurora Mardiganian, this detailed portrayal of Turkish heartlessness follows closely the report of Viscount Bryce, the eminent Englishman who was made head of the commission which was appointed among the Allies to investigate the Turkish treatment of the Armenians.

Every detail of how this little girl's father, mother, sisters and brothers, with two million other Christian Armenians, were made to suffer before they died, is shown in such a way as to make Americans feel the true character of the Turk, ever Christianity's scourge.

TRUTH ABOUT BOLSHEVISM

A Geneva dispatch reports that a worldwide strike on May 1, instigated by Nikolai Lenine, the bolshevik premier of Russia, is being plotted in Switzerland by socialists, communists and other radical elements. The object is to feel out "the solidarity of the world proletariat," with a view to inciting unrest., fomenting disorder and disturbing orderly government wherever possible.

The purpose has some following everywhere. Even here in free America vicious, foolish and ignorant men and women go on reiterating the senseless assertion that true liberty is found only in bolshevik Rusia.

The truth about Russia should be apparent by this time to every intelligent person. One need not go to "reactionary" sources of information. The facts are revealed in startling array by such well-informed and authoritative socialists as John Spargo and Charles Edward Russell in his recently published book, "Bolshevism and the United States." Russia, as Mr. Russell found from his own first-hand examination, is under an intolerable despotism. Lenine and Trotzky have destroyed the right of free utterances, of free assembly and even of free labor.

To give an idea of its clamorous reign is difficult (says Mr. Russell). If we can imagine 100 steamships crossing the Atlantic together, a mutiny occurring on each, on each the mutineers throwing all the officers and engineers into the sea and placing ship and engine in sole control of men that had never before seen navigable water, we can gather some glimpse of what followed. The fires ran down, the propellers stopped, the ships began to roll about in the sea, and nothing but the proverbial luck of the drunken and the demented kept them from collision and total wreck.

Mr. Russell shows that Lenine has always been contempeuous of democracy. The soviet motto, "the dictatorship of the proletariat," is a sufficient refutation of the pretense that liberty exists in Russia. As Mr. Russell forcibly adds:

"Looking over these acts that take away the right of free utterance, of free assembly, of free labor and the rest, it is clear that there is no difference between a dictatorship of the proletariat and any other kind of a dictatorship. I do not know why any one should think or imagine or dream there was, is or could be, but that idea seems to have been spread in some quarters. We could no more have a dictatorship without giving up everything man has gained for his freedom than we could reverse the law of gravitation."

But in point of truth, as Mr. Russell and Mr. Spargo clearly show, the so-called "dictatorship of the proletariat" is but a shamming catchphrase. Russia is really under the dictatorship of a small clique that rules by "decrees" instead of by soviet legislation. Laws are made by a little group and mercilessly enforced, not by civil authority, but by Lenine's red guards, by the bolshevik standing army.

M. Russell further shows that there is not, even in this sham of proletarian dictatorship, a poor pretense of equality of representation among the proletariat. "Every soldier has one vote. Every factory worker has one-eighth of a vote. Every peasant has one-eightieth of a vote."

As these truths sink into the minds of sane socialists in the United States surely their snap judgment sympathy will ooze away.—Spokesman Review.

DIVORCE AND DISORDER GO HAND IN HAND

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle is saying queer things these days. At one time we have him giving countenance to all kinds of unprovable theories said to emanate from various planes of spiritland. Now, according to a recent exchange, he is advocating an extension of what he terms the most barbarous laws in the world, meaning thereby divorce laws as they exist in Great Britain. He points out at the same time that there are 300,000 persons in Britain not allowed to marry, who are separated and not allowed to form new alliances.

As far as we know the noted novelist was never very firm in his hold of things religious, and it looks as if he were slackening his grip on morals also, when he advocates loosening the tie above all others that makes for the stability of the empire. Liberal as England is in many things that are looked upon as modern progress, even to the point of her people largely giving up religion in response to the materialistic tendencies of the times, she has stuck with her objection to divorce and in so doing has preserved the one bulwark which makes it possible to apply to her now as in the past the "happy homes of old England."

A land where divorce may be obtained on the most trivial pretence is never a nation of homes, and the smaller the area with a congested population the larger the harm resulting from such laws. Little England, which is approximately but 50,000 square miles, and its something like 30,000,000 of a population would be a country of incongruous relationships were the abve mentioned 300,000 allowed to do their own sweet will in the matter of remarriage, during the life-term of their former partners.

As a general thing the constitution of the British Empire is looked upon as the most stable in the world. What has made it so? Not the laws themselves nor their framers, but the obedience of the people to those laws and to constituted authority. Conspicious in this regard has been the comparative freedom from divorce which the empire as a whole presents to the outside world.

Were the divorce laws relaxed, as many are trying to relax them in Canada, as well as England, there would be let loose evils to which the scorpions of old would be but blessings and with the abolition of the binding nature of the marriage-tie, other restrictions would follow in gay and rapid procession. All this, too, is but looking at the matter from the standpoints of the econmy and harmony of the people as a nation. To those not yet impregnated with the modern revelation that the story of the flood is a myth, and that one may accept Christianity n just the proportion that suits, or may reject it in its entirety, there is still the mandate "What God has joined together let no man put asunder." For all there is great subject for thought before accepting — even with the spuport of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle—the idea that divorce is the foundation on which a war tired and war worn world is to be reconstructed.

DEVASTATION BY VOLCANOES

In the region of the recent volcanic eruptions in Mexico, both Cordoba and Orizaba, two beautiful cities, lie at the foot of the great volcano and are in a position inviting annihilation in case of a violent eruption. Mt. Orizaba has been on good behavior since the middle of the eighteenth century, and has been regarded as virtually extinct.

Earlier eruptions occurred in 1545 and 1566, but these former disturbances did not discourage settlement. Cordoba is the centre of a rich agricultural district, and the city of Orizaba is a busy industrial town of nearly 50,000 population. It contains a large cotton mill and the great Santa Gertrudis jute mills, owned by English capital. Water power developed by the melting snow of the mountain summit caused the development of these and other industries. There are stone and marble quarries near the city.

There is no possibility of forecasting the outcome of a volcanic eruption when a vast mountain of the bulk of Mt. Orizaba opens up to relieve the internal pressure. A century or more of quiescence tends to thicken the crust of solid matter and to stop the natural vents.

Orizaba was named Citlatepeti or Star Mountain by the ancient Mexicans.

One tradition surrounding this mountain is that the volcano for many years maintained an outburst of flame from its summit, which, viewed from great distances. resembled a star. Another tradition has it that the ancient Aztec priesthood maintained a temple and shrine far up on the mountain, in which the sacred fire was always kept burning on an altar, and this, viewed from the valley far below, resembled a star.

The base of Mt. Orizaba is about 25 miles in diameter east and west and more than 50 miles north and south. This vast bulk of earth crust piled 18,000 feet high so near the sea can resist an enormous internal pressure, but when that resistance is overcome the consequences may be disastrous to the surrounding country.

This recalls the violent eruption of Mt. Pelee, Martinique, in 1902. At the beginning of that year Pelee stood, a huge cone, 5,000 feet high, with a crater half a mile in diameter and 1,600 feet deep. It had been in eruption in 1762 and a slight eruption had occurred in 1851. In the course of time a small lake formed in the crater and the volcano apparently extinct. About 1900 the lake began to disappear from the crater and in 1902 it had become quite dry.

On April 25, 1902, the seaward side of the crater wall fell in, choking the vents of the volcanic gases which had formerly been free. In a few days rumbling sounds began, and slight earth tremors were felt. On May 5 the side of the crater toward the city of St Pierre opened and an avalanche of boiling black mud poured out in such volume that a great sugar plantation and mill on the slope below soon was buried. More than 30 persons were caught and buried alive in it.

This outbreak, instead of relieving the pressure, seemed to encourage a rush of internal fire and incandescent gases toward the vent. On the morning of May 8 there was a terrific explosion and a huge rent was torn in that side of the mountain.

At first the explosion developed only superheated steam, but a second sent a vast sheet of flame and a cloud of incandescent particles of molten rock down on St. Pierre. More than 30,000 persons were killed. The only one left alive was a negro in jail. Several ships were anchored in the harbor, and all, excepting the Roddam, were destroyed. Every man on the deck of the Roddam was killed by the flameblast.

Those who were below rushed on deck, let go the cable and put to sea, where they extinguished the blazing deck and upper works, but most of the survivors were badly burned.

Old St. Pierre was massively built, but was swept away the same as chaff and the entire town reduce to a common level of ruins. Iron lampposts were so softened by the intense heat that the blast bent them to the ground like willow twigs without breaking.

The eruption continued for weeks, and the surrounding country was showered with rocks and stones from the crater.

YOU'LL BE INTERESTED IN "MY HUSBAND'S OTHER WIFE"

Sylvia Breamer and Robert Gordon are due at the Isis theatre Friday and Saturday in their latest co-star vehicle, "My Husband's Other Wife." The title excites your interest and it is understood the picture cannot fail to do likewise, for it is built upon one of the most dramatic situations in either life or fiction.

Divorce made possible the situation. Adelaide Hedlar had no patience with her doctor-husband who wanted a home and childres; who wanted to be useful asd accomplish some good in the world. And he had no patience with his actress-wife who wanted only the adulation asd applause of an admiring public. She was a great actress, and the glamour of the footlights held her in a spell.

So they got a divorce and each west their own way. Adelaide contisued to win new triumphs in plays written for her by Wilfred Dean, who propoed periodically and was always put off. Dr. Ridgewell went among the poor in the mountains and built a hospital and school and church and was regarded almost as a Messiah.

Fisally the actress awoke to the fact that there was something missing in her life, and that was the husband she had so lightly let slip from her. She knew he had married again and a child blessed their union, but everything she had wanted had been hers, and he should be hers again, too. But was he? What happened when the wilful, petted darling of teh stage came face to face with the happiness another had given the man she had failed to make happy? "My Husband's Other Wife" answers the question with dramatic tensity.

Supporting Miss Breamer and Mr. Gordon are Warren Chandler, May McAvoy, Fanny Rice, Gus Alexander, Eddie Dunn, Margaret Barry and others.

PARAMOUNT-ARTCRAFT STAR IN "THE MARKET OF SOULS"

Screen fans who remember the delight with which they viewed Dorothy Dalton in such triumphs of screen art as "Extravagance," "Other Men's Wives," and "Hard Boiled" will welcome the news that Miss Dalton is to appear in another Paramount-Artcraft picture, "The Market of Souls" at the Orpheum Theatre, Friday and Saturday. The story is by John Lynch. Joseph DeGrasse was the director.

In "The Market of Souls," Miss Dalton plays the part of Helen Armes a country girl, who has been educated as a trained nurse and comes to New York to follow her chosen profession. Her introduction to the gay life of the metropolis is at a New Year's Eve revel at a fashionable restaurant—a scene which required the use of hundreds of extras and is one of the most lavish ever shown on the screen. There Helen meets Lyle and Temple Bane. two brothers as wide apart in character as the poles. Lyle, the unscrupulous one, wants her for her beauty and attempts to win her by force. In a quarrel Temple is blinded by Lyle. Matters finally adjust themselves in a manner that is as startling as it is gratifying.

BRANCHES AT FERNIE, MICHEL, NATAL AND COAL CREEK

MARCH AND APRIL DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

"AGATHA" IS A SUCCESS

The Fernie Young People's United Choir made their debut in the operetta "Agatha" before a capacity house at the Grand Theatre on Wednesday evening.

The curtain rises on a woodland glade, occupied by a band of gypsies. The members of the tribe are asleep and when the day is breaking the gypsy women pass through the sleeping men and wake them. The tribe then get ready to go about the daily work and after their departure, Agatha, an adopted gypsy tells in a song that she is the the long lost nurse maid. She weeps in sorrow at the awakening of the past. Hearing the voices of children, she wanders into the woods. Idle Jack then makes his appearance and promptly denies that he ever works. The gypsy children now make their appearance, followed by a little child dragging behind him a toy horse.

The Squire, strolling through the glade, sees the little stranger and persuades the child to come and sit on his knee and then recites in song the loss of his only child, and then takes the child to it's parents.

A band of sailors from the frigate in the bay come on the scene singing a lively song of the sea. After the song the Midshipmate reminds Ben Bosun that he promised to spin them a yarn. The Bosun keeps his promise and tells how twelve years that very day he saved the Middy from a watery grave. Agatha, overhearing the yarn, enquires what clothing the child wore when rescued. She is told of the gold chain and locket and is satisfied that the Middy is the long lost son, "The Child of the Manor."

The second act opens in the old market place. where the statute hiring fair is in full swing. Boxers. sheeneys, gamblers and quack doctors ply their wares and Agatha plys her vocation of fortune telling. The Squire is tempted and is mystified at the words she utters, "The child was rescued from a watery grave." The Squire and his wife both plead with Agatha to tell them the fate of their lost one. She yields somewhat and says that "before the shades of night gather round us the child you lost twelve years ago shall be restored to you." A number of school girls then appear, having broken away from school and locked their teacher in her room. A band of cadets from the training ship then make their appearance and entertain the visitors at the fair with a song and drill. Ben Bosun, the Middy and the sailors from the frigate swing singing into the market place. Ben is in deep sorrow at the approaching loss of his adopted son. The Middy knows the cause of his grief and vows that, come what may, he will never consent to live apart from his protector. Ben gives Agatha a bundle of clothing and handing the vestments to Mrs. Brown cries, "Behold your long lost son." Mrs. Brown recognizng the clothing, offers thanks to God for the restoring of her son. Agatha, questioned by the Squire, throws off her gipsy costume and stands before them as the nursemaid and explains in song the mystery of her disappearance and relates how Ben Bosun had saved their child. The Squire and Mrs. Brown, seeing the depths of feeling which exists between the old salt and the Middy, offers Ben a home at the Manor. This he accepts. All is forgiven and the populace bursts forth in the final chorus, "Let All Hearts Be Happy."

The chorus of gipsies, sailors, cadets, school girls and hobby horses was splendid and showed real talent. Much credit is due to Mr. Biggs for the splendid training of such a large number of young children. The characters were played exceedingly well and showed the Fernie public that we do not have to go outside our own city to find singers of the finest grade. "Baby" Todhunter took the audience by storm when she came on the stage dragging her toy horse behind her and sang her song with the unconcern of a professional.

The characters:

Squire Brown—T. Biggs.
Mrs. Brown—Mrs. T. Lawes.
Agatha—Mrs. Jenkinson.
Ben Bosun—J. Hewatt.
The Middy—J. Davidson.
Quack Doctor—J. Gibson.
Sheeny Man—J. Davidson.
Idle Jack—F. Bough.
Loafer—N. Terry.
Soldier—J. Puckey.
Roberts—W. Farrow.

A reproduction of this operetta will be staged at the Grand theatre on Saturday evening by request. The curtain will rise at 8 p.m. sharp for the benefit of the Coal Creek people who may wish to see the performance.

BERT LYTELL COMING IN RATTLING COMEDY

The feature of the Isis theatre program on Wednesday and Thursday next is a mirth provoking comedy entitled "Easy to Make Money" with the handsome Bert Lytell in the stellar role supported by a cast of the usual strength found in all Metro productions.

The aim of this offering is bright clean entertainment, with the inimitable Lytell in another of his remarkable character creations which have made him one of the most popular stars of the screen today.

The story is one of a young fellow, who, departing from the paths of speed and spending, embarks on a newer and cleaner life in a most unusual manner and with the most unforseen results.

Jimmy Slocum (Bert Lytell) is the young man-about-town who is called to account by his Dad for the life he is leading. It shows that Jimmy has been arrested many times for breaking speed laws and disturbing the peace, and when Dad brings him up on the carpet, he conceives a novel idea of reforming and making money at the same time. He bets Dad that he will only be arrested once during the ensuing year and makes such a bet that is well worth his while to collect.

It is the manner in which Jimmy goes about making good on the wager, and collecting the stakes that offers the hero a store of opportunities for humorous scenes in and out of jail on the road to success.

The settings are the last word in accuracy and lavishness as befits the plot of the play, and all in all it is heralded as the best vehicle Mr. Lytell has had in the entire course of his screen career. The production was staged under the skilful direction of Edwin Carewe who directed Lytell in the well-remembered success "The Trail to Yesterday," and among the sterling cast of prinii-pals are such names as Gertrude Selby, Ethel Shannon, Frank Currier, Stanton Heck and Bull Montana.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Memory of my dear husband, Albert Cecil Brown, who died April 22, 1919, at Fernie, B.C.

One year has passed with hearts still sore;
As time goes on we miss him more;
His loving smile. his welcome face;
No one can fill his vacant place.
There is a link death cannot sever;
Love and remembrance last forever.

CLEANING OF CROWN JEWELS

London. — Spring cleaning the crown jewels is the task allotted to Garrards, Ltd., the famous court jewelers. But in order to keep away robbers and thieves and envious people, a most profound secrecy is being observed about the treasures.

They are no longer in the Wakefield Tower, but in the safes of the bank of England. During a recent afternoon a few unostentatious black-coated individuals passed out from the Tower of London in motor cars with several bulky packages. Some of the individuals were Guards' officers and the remainder detectives of the city police. The packages contained the jewels.

Even the most astute of criminals would never have connected these travelers with the King's regalia, so the jewels all arrived safely at the bank and there they are now.

The custodian of the tower, Major-Gen. Sir George Younghusband, told me that a general renovation of the Wakefield Tower was in progress.

"The tower is therefore closed to the public. It is only the dishonest people who seek information as to the whereabouts of the jewels," he said. "Where they now are or what is happening to them I must not say."

The Beefeaters stare with benign innocence at the mention of crown jewels, as though the inquisitive public expected an immediate production of one of the diamonds from beneath the ample folds of the black and scarlet skirts of their uniform. They are just as watchful in the absence of the treasures as in their presence.

Garrards, Ltd., expect to clean the jewels during the month. Where, is a secret that even the trusted workmen who will be employed on the task do not know.

"We certainly shall not bring them to the workshop," said an official. "Probably the cleaning will take place in the bank itself, as being the safest of all places, and when, in the course of two or three months, they are safely deposited again in the tower, their fresh splendor will rival even the spring sunshine on the white walls of the Tower of London itself."

MINER KILLED IN CAVE-IN AT MICHEL

Michel, April 17.—About 2 p.m. this afternoon a fatal accident occurred in No. 3 east mine when Louis Nagy, an employee of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., was caught in a cave-in, causing his chest to be very badly crushed. He was taken immediately to the hospital unconscious and only regained consciousness shortly before his death at 5 p.m. He leaves a widow and seven small children, the eldest being about nine years, to mourn his loss.

About a week ago Louis Capello and his partner, Dominick, were also caught in a cave-in in No. 8 mine and sustained broken legs, etc., but are recovering nicely and in time will be able to resume work.

The falsework for the new bridge crossing the Elk to West Fernie is all in, but construction is at a standstill waiting for the bridge iron, which is supposed to be in transit from New Westminster. The betting is better than even that high water will destroy all the preliminary work before they get the span up.

CITY COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

The city council met last night with all members present. The minutes of the previous meeting were adopted without comment.

Under correspondence, an order from the Public Utilities Commission authorizing the amended electric light rates discounts, was read. This order is to remain in force until further ordered by the Commission.

Applications to the number of six for the position of electrician were received. These were on a fifty-fifty basis from local aspirants and outside applicants. The salaries ranged from $200 per month down to $125. Some specified no amount. After a brief general discussion the matter of the choice was left to the fire, water and light committee, who will bring in a recommendation to a special meeting within a few days.

The resignation of Engineer D. Smith, laid over from the last meeting, was then taken up. Moved by Rutledge and Tully, that the power house engineer be asked to reconsider his resignation and that he be granted the same increase as the other engineers. The vote, taken by show of hands method, resulted, three in the affirmative and three in the negative. His Worship thereupon interrogated each alderman individually to verify the silent vote. Aldermen Rutledge, Tully and Harrison then verbally supported the motion, while Aldermen Bean, McEwan and Robichaud were contrary, and the first deadlock of this year's council became a matter of record. His Worship, however, did not hesitate to declare the motion lost.

Ald. Bean stated that it had been suggested that the poyer house be operated with three third class engineers, but he desired it to be made most emphatically clear that he would not assume any responsibility for such arrangement and was entirely opposed to it.

The city clerk was authorized to conclude an agreement with one John Woodnorth for use of the property adjoining the city park for two years for $25.

The auditors' report for the year just closed or to Dec. 31, 1919, was received. They advised that all their requirements as demanded by them as auditors had been fulfilled and all reports were certified correct. Briefly the salient features are a very marked reduction in tax arrears, attributable to recent amendments to the Municipal Act enforcing penalty additions for non-payment of taxes within specified periods. The general financial condition is in a far more liquid (see Webster's Dictionary or Prohibition Act) condition than at the end of the preceding year. The deficit in schools estimates was $3289, to be carried to present year. All general departments incurred deficits with the exception of the police department. This latter surplus, however, is offset by deficit in estimated revenue from that source. Without going into a mass of figures, the net result, boiled down to a brief summary, is that the deficit of $9423.60, which existed at the beginning of last year, has been replaced by a small surplus of $576.62, and in addition there was in 1919 estimates an amount of $5000 and applied in reducing old accumulated over-expenditures. The report was formally accepted. The finance committee was requested to analyze said report for printing and eliminate all superfluous data.

Regarding ambulance calls for 15 months there had been 201 divided under the following classifications: Sickness within city, 113; sickness from out of town 46. Insane cases 2. Accidents local and rural 40. The health committee was asked to submit a recommendation in connection with the operation of the ambulance.

The matter of the enforcement of the agreement with the Kootenay Telephone Lines was deferred until more substantial information is obtained from the company.

On motion by Aldermen Robichaud and McEwan an order was placed for a 1 1-2 ton International chassis at a delivered price of $3500. This will be modelled into a vehicle for the fire department.. The Fernie Garage secured the order.

The Health and Street Bylaws were referred to in order to ascertain the penalties that could be enforced for contravention thereof in respect to expectorating on sidewalks and in public places. It is highly probable violations of these ordinances will be prosecuted.

The fire, water and light committee were authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $150 on power house repairs.

Ald. Robichaud opened a discussion of considerable duration by the naive statement: "We are going to start the river pretty soon and want to hire a few men and want to know what to pay." The delicate matter was decided by the following motions:

Rutledge-Tully—That Mr. Harrison be paid $3.50 per 8 hour day from May 1st. The motion received unanimous sanction.

Rutledge-Robichaud—That all pick shovel workers for the city of Fernie be paid at the rate of $4.50 per eight hour day from May 1st.—Carried.

Ald. Bean suggested that Mr. Davis should be granted this rate from April 15th and Ald. Robichaud was of similar mind but the motion as above went through without modification.

Ald. Tully raised a question concerning the matter of certain taxes or interest charged against a certain party who had understood when acquiring said property these had been paid up. The council, however, has no jurisdiction in the matter.

At this juncture Ald. Bean renewed his contention that Mr. Davis receive the increased compensation from April 15, and on motion this was agreed to.

After adjournment, May 12 was set aside as Arbor Day and further notice will be given later.

DEVELOP IRON INDUSTRY

Tremendous development in the iron industry of British Columbia was recently forecasted by Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, in an address before the legslative assembly. In the course of his address he said in the not too distant future the province would find itself in possession of an iron and steel industry launched and operated by the government. The iron possibilities of the Pacific Province are some of the features which are to be demonstrated to the many distiguished visitors to the coast this summer in June when Canada's Industrial Congress will hold sessions in Vancouver and Victoria, just previous to the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers in the former city.

In speaking of the government's plans for the development of the iron and steel industry, the minister said:

"I may say, that the Government has received many applications from various quarters for substantial support in the launching of this industry. All these applications required however, that the Government enter into financial responsibilities of a very serious nature, in many instances to the full fnancial requirements of the enterprise. This would involve a binding obligation not lightly to be undertaken under the conditions with which the Province has been faced during the past few years.

"For this reason consideration has been given the question of whether it would not be the best policy for the Government itself to lead the way to the establishment of an industry for the manufacture from our iron ores of commercial iron and steel rather than finance private enterprises to do so. It is proposed, therefore, that should no more favorable terms be submitted by private enterprise to assemble full and complete data, having special reference to the recent important discoveries of hematite ore in the Whitewater district."

WILL WEAR OVERALLS TO CUT DOWN H.C.L.

Organizations in six states of the American Union have decided to meet one phase of the high cost of living by donning overalls and keeping them on until the cost of clothing falls. Many of the restaurants along the Coast have taken potatoes from their bills of fare and will keep them off until the price of potatoes comes down. The farmers of Nova Scotia, meeting as a political party, have almost unanimously pronounced against the eight-hour day because it must add to the high cost of living. An association has been formed in New York, with a prominent man at its head, whose purpose is to gather all people who do not belong to any "class' into one fold for mutual protection against factions said to dominate politics and business throughout the United States. Do these movements indicate an intention on the part of the worm to turn and bite?

CHARGE IS DISMISSED

The charge against the Canmore Coal Company, Limited, under the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act was dismissed by Magistrate Davidson in Calgary police court on Monday. In a written decision on the case, the magistrate outlined the details of the case, referring to the action of the Canmore Coal Company in refusing employment to the miners who refused to sign the check-off of the United Mine Workers of America. He is of the opinion that the management was liable to prosecution for refusing to comply with the orders of Commissioner Armstrong, director of coal operations, and the action which they took in refusing work to the men was only in pursuance of their obligations as coal operators, under the control of the government official.

This is the full statement of the magistrate's finding:

"The manager of the Canmore Coal Company, Limited, posted an order, the effect of which was that, on and after March 23, 1920, all miners working for the company who were eligible for membership in the United Mine Workers of America, should sign the U.M.W.'s "check-off" before being allowed to work.

"A large number of employees of the company objected to signing the "check-off," which resulted in their being unable to work for the company.

"Notwithstanding the evidence given by a couple of ex-employes, I do not think that anyone was actually refused permission to work because of his not signing the "check-off."

"No request was made by the company or its employes for a board of conciliation under the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act.

"I think what actually happened would constitute a breach of the provisions of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, were it not for the fact that the director of the coal operations issued certain orders which the Canmore Coal Company, Limited, obeyed, and which I think justifies their action.

"The director of coal operations was appointed by order-in-council, and his powers are set out in the order-in-council No. 1725, dated June 25, 1917, and are continued in order-in-council No. 2465, dated December 20, 1919.

"I disposed of all arguments presented at the trial with the exception of the point raised for the prosecution that order-in-council No. 1725 does not give the director of coal operations authority to issue orders such as his order No. 141, for obeying which the Canmore Coal Company is now being prosecuted. It was contended that the only authority the director of coal operations has under order-in-council No. 1725, is to make investigations and inquiries and to issue such orders as are necesary for the making of investigations and inquiries.

"After due consideration of the matter I am of the opinion that this contention cannot be upheld. The preamble of the order-in-council No. 1725 is of considerable assistance in interpreting the provisions of the order itself, and while the working of the order might have more clearly set out the powers of the director of coal operations, I am satisfied that Section 3 of the order is sufficiently explicit, and would render the manager of the Canmore Coal Company, liable to penalties had he disobeyed Order No. 141 of the director of coal operations. The words in Section 3 of the order-in-council No. 1725 which support this view are as follows: 'The owner, agent and manager of every coal mine . . . . shall comply with the orders and directions of the director . . . generally in connection with the management, operation and use of mine. . . .

"I am satisfied that Order No. 141 of the director of coal operations had to do with the management and operation of the mine of the Canmore Coal Company, Limited.

"I therefore dismiss the charge.

"W. S. DAVIDSON,
"Police Magistrate."

The Canmore decision, it was stated in operators' circles Monday, will have a far-reaching effect upon the settlement of the strike in the Crow's Nest Pass, and there is every prospect, they say, of all the men now on strike returning to work at an early date. It is stated that it was the awaiting of this decision that really prevented the men from returning to work Monday morning, but they were prevailed upon by certain agitators to remain out pending the handing down of the decision.

It is also stated that the decision in upholding W. H. Armstrong, the director of coal operations, will have a most beneficial result generally on the coal mining industry of Alberta.

WINSTANLEY—WHALLEY

Robert Winstanley and Miss Bertha Whalley were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother in West Fernie, on Saturday afternoon, April 17 The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Batzold in the presence of the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful wedding gifts. The young couple left on Sunday for Victoria, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will reside in Michel, where the groom is in the employ of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co.

DENTAL TREATMENT FOR SOLDIERS

The A.D.D.S. Military District No. 11, advises that authority has now been received from Ottawa whereby Dental Treatment will be extended through civilian dentists to those ex-soldiers who are able to prove that the dental treatment required by them is a result of active service.

Ex-members of the Forces requiring dental treatment or the completion of such treatment as may have previously been afforded through the Canadian Army Dental Corps, must first make application to the District Dental Officer, M.D. No. 11, 417 Menzies St., Victoria, B.C., giving Regimental Number, Rank, Name, Initials, Unit last served with. An applicant must not report to a civilian dentist for treatment until authority to do so by the District Dental Officer is received.

TO NELSON FOR SIX MONTHS

His Honor Judge Thompson was in town this week holding court sessions. George Chamberlain, who appeared before His Honor about a month ago charged with misappropriating the proceeds of certain cheques received from the Adolph Lumber Co., and who was under the circumstances allowed out on six months suspended sentence, came up again. The mitigation of the sentence previously imposed carried with it the understanding that Chamberlain endeavor to make restitution; in this he failed entirely and for a short time disappeared. He was taken into custody again on April 13 and between the time he was liberated and his re-arrest had considerably altered his appearance by removing his full beard, which he had always worn. The suspension was withdrawn and Chamberlain goes to Nelson for six months.

Ross Costanzo was fined $10 this morning for running his car without a license.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Culleton extend their heartfelt sympathy to them upon the death of their little eleven year old daughter, Mary, which occurred on Monday last. The little girl had been operated upon for appendicitis and was apparently doing well when complications set in and she died almost immediately. The funeral, which took place on the 22nd, was largely attended. The parents wish to thank the following persons for floral tributes: John Bossio, Mr. and Mrs. Benisky, Mr. and Mrs. Niedig, Maggie Davies, Miss Macdonald and class mates, Mr. and Mrs. Euler, Mr. and Mrs. P. Bean, Mrs. Belayti and son, Mr. and Mrs. N. Kennedy.

With the departure of the Rev. Batzold from the pastorate of the United church, indications point to a breaking up of the union. Notwithstanding the financial success of the amalgamated churchs there has been a number of stiff-necked Presbyterians and straight-laced Methodists who have never been satisfied with the arrangement and always considered that their particular denomination was getting the worst of the deal. The feeling seemed to more particularly exist among certain Methodists and they have been pussy-footing around during the last week or two in an effort to smash the union. It is a noticeable fact, however, that those who were active in financing the individual churches are not very keen on a division.

THE AURORA BOREALIS

Much has been written even within comparatively recent years, in expounding the divergent views of physicists, meteorologists, astronomers, and explorers concerning the aurora borealis, or northern lights, says an editorial in the "Christian Science Monitor." A visit to almost any research library, by those seeking to gain, if possible, a somewhat clearer knowledge of the causes of the phenomena, will reveal much that is at least interesting. Just how instructive a rather careful study of this literature will prove may depend quite largely upon the mental attitude of the reader, for it must be said that the conclusions, usually so profoundly stated as to indicate a degree of certitude approaching finality, are almost invariably found to be based upon more or less suppositious hypotheses. And so it comes about that the searcher who seeks facts and theories, perhaps on a day or an evening following an unusually brilliant display of the northern lights, will conclude that, interesting as the compiled bibliography may be, it is not in any sense half as interesting as the spectacle staged, now and again, in the Arctic skies.

Quite recently there was witnessed, by those who were in the open places in the northeastern sections of the United States, at least, and we might add, in many parts of Canada, what was declared to have been the most brilliant and spectacular display of the aurora borealis within the memory of the spectators. In New England, as perhaps elsewhere, atmospheric conditions were ideal. The sky was cloudless, and the stars dazzlingly brilliant. It seemed to be gala night in the heavens. One almost wondered if the elements might not have decided to stage, unannounced, almost in the zenith, a sham barrage on a scale a thousand or a million times larger and more brilliant than any ever staged on the western front. In shafts, in crescents, in pillars, in cornucopias, and in countless other designs and figures the soft white and yellow lights of the Northland were thrown against the blue screen of the firmament. The directing genius was prodigal, apparently, both in the variety of designs and the light consumed. The spectator could not but be convinced that the pageantry of the ages, if combined, would not equal, in grandeur of display or perfection in conception and design, the panorama silently spread out before him, with the scenes ever shifting, also silently, and in apparent perfect order and sequence. A sudden shooting shaft of light darting from horizon to zenith seemed the certain precursor of a detonating roar, the ugly, marning, intimidating guttural from the throat of a twenty-inch gun. But the silence continued unbroken. There was no warning threat, no portent of disaster. With a feeling of relief the observer concluded perhaps that the display was not that of a hostile invader, but a peaceful spectacle, perhaps a masque in which the actors, invisible to the beholders, were portraying and exemplifying the drama of the ages.

Silently the beholder viewed the magnificent spectacle, perhaps from prologue to climax, and thereafter until the spectacle faded away as silently as it had appeared. As if in response to prolonged curtain calls, there were signalled greetings, almost as though from the wings of some vast stage a flickerng dart of light, now and again, from the far horizon, and then the night was left to the darkness and the stars. In a far-off mountain valley, perhaps, in which dwell the silent folk of some never-discovered land where it is always winter, a gratified director is telling, in pantomime, of the wonderful success of the latest spectacle. Perhaps he is recounting, in the sign language of his fellows, how with a single wave of the hand he caused important state messages, flowing over cables under the sea, to be stopped in the twinkling of an eye; how great printing presses remained idle awaiting the transmission of the news of the world's doings for a day; and how even the telephone, the fleet errand boy of commerce and society, was silenced.

THE SMELL OF THE WOODS

One hundred picked Canadian men will break away from their usual ways of life next August and spend ten days together in Algonquin Park the North Woods resort of Ontario. They will come from all walks of life: lawyers, doctors, ministers, farmers, teachers, educators, Y.M.C.A., and church secretaries and a number of choice older boys will be there.

Why will they come?

They will be there because of their interest in two things—out-of-door life and Canadian boys. They will learn something about Boy Behavior; they will give some time to the Canadian Standard Efficiency Training as a program of fourfold work with boys but they will give the bulk of their time to the Campcraft features of this program. They will learn how to make from wildwoods materials a shelter that will not leak, how to get rid of fear of the water, how to fry bacon and flapjacks that would not ruin the digestion of an ostrich, how to say "Good Morning" to a bird and know to whom they speak, how to distinguish the flowers from each other and, to say it briefly, how to live on friendly terms with Mother Nature. They will go back home to put the atmosphere of the woods, the camp and the trails, not only into their program of work with boys, but also into the lives of other workers and of the boys themselves.

These men, after ten days in the open, will know the truth of Walt Whitman's words: "I know the secret of great lives now—to live in the open and associate with green growing things." G. Stanley Hall has studied boyhood long and deeply and it is his opinion that the ideal life for a boy is not in the city, for he should know of anmals, rivers, plants and the great out-of-doors.

These men will form the first "National C.S.E.T. Leaders' Camp," August 20 to 30, 1920.

THE REAL WAR ON

Thomas, the British railway man, tells the workers of his country that they must drive a quarter harder than before the war; the French twice as hard and the Germans eighteen times. So far as we can see, the Germans are the only people who are trying to live up to this program, and they do exceed the other nations in speeding up, just in that degree will they win in the new contest, the struggle of economics, which twenty years from now will have far more effects on the relative fortunes of the Powers than all the shots that were fired from Liege to the Marne and back again. The real war is now on and it is a war of work and brains.—New York Evening Sun.

MAY HAVE AN AIRDROME

Cranbrook, April 18.—A meeting of the Cranbrook board of trade was held Friday night, President G. J. Spreull occupying the chair, there being upwards of 50 members present.

A letter was read from Col. O. M. Biggar, vice-chairman of the air board Ottawa, with reference to construction of airdromes and air harbors for commercial purposes throughout the Dominion. In reply to an inquiry from this board as to the possibility of an airdrome being located here on the open prairie north of the town where Capt. Hoy landed when making his trans-Rocky Mountain flight last summer.

A letter from J. M. Gibson, general publicity agent of the C. P. R., Montreal, in connection with the moving picture film which the C.P.R. propose having made in this district during the coming summer, was referred to the publicity committee for further action.

W. H. Wilson, chairman of the publicity committee, reported that the booklet compiled by the different boards of trade in East Kootenay working in ionjunction for the purpose of attracting tourists to the district, had been completed, and were now being distributed by the joint committee, which up to the present time had received more than 1800 requests for copies of the booklet, the requests coming from all over Canada and the United States.

Mr. Wilson also reported that the committee had received some correspondence regarding the early completion of the Banff-Windermere road and the connecting up of the telephone lines between Wasa and Fairmont.

The secretary was instructed to wire the federal member for the district, urging that every effort be made to have the construction of the connecting link on the Banff- Windermere road completed at as early a date as possible, and also take up with the proper authorities the question of having the Windermere district telephone system connected with that in southeast Kootenay.

R. E. Beattie, chairman of the agricultural committee, reported that A. H. DeWolfe had completed his report on the St. Mary's Prairie irrigation scheme, and as this report was now in the hands of the proper authorities, some action in this matter could be expected in the near future.

The question of providing suitable accomodation for the auto tourists coming to the city during the summer was discussed at some length, and a committee consisting of R. E. Beattie, C. R. Ward, E. Staples and G. H. Hogarth was appointed and were given full power to act.

J. M. ROBERTSON, OF CRANBROOK, PASSES AWAY

Cranbrook, April 18.— The whole city was shocked yesterday afternoon on hearing of the sudden death of J. M. Robertson, usually known as "Curly" Robertson, at his home on Norbury avenue, after only a few hours' illness. Mr. Robertson was around all the forenoon, and was apparently in his usual good health, but shortly after noon complained of a severe pain in his side and went to bed, expiring a couple of hours later. The deceased was one of the best known and highly respected railroad men in the west, having come here at the time of the construction of the Crow's Nest branch, and has been working out of here as engineer ever since. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Madge and Marion, both of whom are at present nursing in Calgary.

DON'T MEDDLE WITH THE IRISH PROBLEM

British Ambassador Geddes' statement to the American people, made on his arrival in this country Monday, is uttered in tact and good spirit. He simply asks that the Irish in Ireland be allowed to grapple with their own political difficulties without outside interference.

That, in clear principle, was what Lincoln asked in the war of secession—that the American people be allowed to grapple with their grave political problem without outside interference.

The agitation in this country for De Valera's Irish republic is based on on erroneous assumption. It begs the question. It assumes that the Irish people are substantially united in this crusade for complete independence, when the truth is they are bitterly divided. A very large and substantial element is unalterably opposed to separation from Great Britain. As a British ambassador says, "strategically the British isles form one unit for purposes of defense." Irishmen in Ireland who oppose separation want to continue that strategic alliance. The lessons of the great war, pointing irrefutably to the perls that beset the smaller nations, have deepened that conviction.

It is the part of good Americanism to avoid movements calculated to involve the United States in the local differences of other countries. We have enough difficult problems here at home without meddling with the domestic problems of other nations. —Spokesman-Review.

BOLSHEVISM DYING OUT IN ENGLAND

From no less an authority than Mr. Tom Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress, we learn that Bolshevism is about dead in England, having virtually talked itself to death. Mr. Moore who has just returned from that country where he was Canada's labor representative at the recent International Congress, states that Hyde Park soap box orators are now utterly discredited by the workmen, the latter having come to the full appreciation of the unsoundness of the doctrines preached by these radicals.

Of course, such pests as Sylvia Pankhurst, who edits a publication which advocates the overthrow of all forms of government as we know it, will continue on her way just so long as she can obtain sufficient readers, and incidentally sufficient money to keep afloat. Sylvia has made a prtty good living at this sort of thing for a considerable period, and will unquestionably run her course, occasionally overstepping the law, as she did in Australia, where she preached pro-Germanism, thereby landing in jail. But jail with Sylvia is just as good advertising and means a new lease of life.

However, there is a great difference between this babbling, such as we have constantly in our Open Forums, and so-called labor churches, and real action as demonstrated in Winnipeg's attempt at Soviet government. Had Ivens and the rest of them, now stowed away in jail contented themselves with merely talking and not acting they would still be free men.—Saturday Night.

"SPOONING" IS DANGEROUS

Would you, like the frog in the Fairy Tales, a-wooing go?

All right, old boy, go right to it, may luck be with you, and if there are others in the game, may the best man win.

But, in the interest of safety and good health, don't do your wooing or "spooning" behind the steering wheel of your motor car while rolling down the open highway, or in and out among its by-ways.

For such practice is a most unhealthy diversion, and is fraught with the gravest dangers. Sooner or later you will come to grief, for the cards are "stacked" against you, and you will pay the toll.

"Spooning" on the road while driving an automobile, may be—undoubtedly is—an exhilarating pastime, but who can say, or would say, how many serious accidents have not been caused by just such an indiscreet performance? How many times have not the automobiles themselves been unjustly blamed for the resultant mishaps? What different tales might we not hear if motor cars that have figured in such incidents could be brought to life and permitted to tell their sides of the stories!

The next time you look upon an automobile "piled up" on the side of the road, don't judge the car too harshly; don't, out of all fairness, jump to the conclusion that something went wrong with the car at a critical moment—that it failed in its advertised faithful performance.

Similarly, when you read in your morning newspaper of a peculiar automobile accident, in which one or more persons were injured, or perhaps killed, don't conclude that all the fault lay with the automobile.

There may have been extenuating circumstances surrounding the incidents that led to the accident. For instance, the driver of the wrecked maihine may have been "spooning" at the time of the mishap.

While not seeking to discourage in any way the mutual interest commonly existing between the fairer and sterner sexes, the Peacock Motor Sales Co. of San Francisco, recently undertook to illustrate as graphically as possible these ever-present dangers of "spooning" on the road.

Through the courtesy of the Alcazar Theatre Stock Company, the services of Miss Emily Pinter, as the fair charmer, were obtained. Tom W. Baily, the intrepid long-distance Chronicle reporter and friend of various and sundry moving picture stars, enacted the ole of the careless, lovelorn youth behind the steering wheel.

Two Chandler models, a seven-passenger touring car and a four-passenger Dispatch, were used in the scenes. The staging of the settings was handled by Eddie Relfe.

Everything has its place, but "spooning" in the front seat of an automobile is entirely out of place. Countless accidents have been caused by that very sort of thing. Better it is to postpone such indulgences, or pastimes, until the journey's end is reached. Or, maybe the happy couple that yields to the temptation of the moment, for whom wedding bells are soon to ring, may not live to enjoy that wonderful moment.

May the peal of their wedding bells not be turned to a funeral dirge.

HIGH WAGES, LOW EFFICIENCY

Those not actually engaged in undertakings such as building have, as a rule, little or no conception of the present disposition not to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay. It must be admitted that no one is more interested in the present high costs than the workmen themselves, and still they persist in maintaining conditions that lead to nothing but still higher costs. Those who have given this "low efficiency" some thought and who are in a position to know whereof they speak, are able to present some startling statistics in respect to what short hours and loafing on the job means in some trades. For instance, on a certain building erected in 1914 the bricklayers put up 1,800 bricks per day, as against a building with similar brick work erected in 1919 on which the average was actually less than 400 per day. Before the war the average good bricklayer would lay up anywhere from 1,400 to 1,800 and call it a day's work. Now the same man does not lay up over 700 per day at probably double his pre-war pay. Of course, those who are destined to occupy such a building are later on going to take these excessive costs out of the public. And the very men who loafed on the job are going to pay their share of this excess, whatever it may be.

If one applies these loafing tactics and short hours to general industry, is it any wonder that a $6 shoe is selling for $12 and a cotton shirt for $2.50 in place of $1? No one wishes to see the artisan back to the times when he worked twelve hours per day, six days in the week, for something like $2 per day. There is reason and justice in all things. But on the other hand the man who will not work eight hours per day at any ordinary employment is a drag on the community, and is, as a matter of fact, getting his keep at the expense of his fellow men. The seriousness of the present situation does not lie in the fact that wages are high, but that the spirit of unrest has brought with it a disinclination to give for such a wage high efficiency. —Saturday Night.

Over His Head

A prosperous farmer has gained the reputation of being the stingiest man in his town, and consequently is not a general favorite with his neighbors.

He owns an old horse which, to put it mildly, is very thin. As if to make up for the lack of flesh on its body, however, the animal has a head many sizes too large. The other week he went to the expense of a new collar for the animal. A few minutes after the delivery he was back at the saddler's with the collar.

"Don't you know nthin'?" he blurted out. "You've made it too small! I can't get it over his head!"

"Over his head!" replied the saddler. "Man alive, it wasn't made to go over his head. Back him into it." —London Tit-Bits.

THE DAY SHE PAID

Another Universal production, "The Day She Paid," is coming to the Osis Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, story by Fannie Hurst, "Oats for the Woman," which appeared in the Cosmopolitan Magazine and which created considerable discussion at the time.

If a man sows his wild oats he can repent and be forgiven; but society eternally frowns upon the woman who has violated the conventions. Why should the double standard be applied to men and not to the gentler sex?

This is the question that will be suggested by all who see "The Day She Paid." The theme is cleverly handled in a story of surpassing interest, and Rex Ingram, the director, has taken advantage of the many opportunities afforded by the story.

In "The Day She Paid" Francelia Billington appears as the head model in a New York ladies' wear emporium, who, under a false promise of marriage, has had an affair with her employer, portrayed by Harry Van Meter. Several years later she is offered marriage by a rich merchant fom up-state, played by Charles Clary and securing a promise of silence silence from her former lover, she accepts the proposal. Her husband is a widower with two daughters, a child of four and a girl of sixteen. Several years later, while visiting his prosperous customer, the New York manufacturer meets and is infatuated with the step-daughter of his former model, and in order to save the girl from a fate similar to her early experience, she is compelled to confess her indiscretion. How her husband bound by the narrow conventions of society, receives her confession, how the young daughter is threatened by an unfortunate alliance and how the self-sacrifice of the woman finally wins its own reward, are told in a series of interesting scenes.

A. I. FISHER ON THE SESSION

Speaking of some of the legislation passed at the recent session of the Provincial Legislature, A. I. Fisher, M.P.P., said:

In the session of 1919 an Act was passed amending the Workmen's Compensation Act, providing that increased compensation might be paid to dependents residing in Canada but this was conditional upon the accumulation of a fund arising from less compensation being paid to alien dependents residing outside of Canada, based upon the estimated proportionate cost of living to them in such foreign countries. This year another amending Act goes further and provides for the payment of a substantially increased compensation to all dependents in any event. In addition an Act providing pensions for mothers was passed, so that we will shortly have suitable provision made for a great many widows and orphans who are not protected under the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The necessity of additional revenue for the municipalities has been met, partly at least, by legislation enabling the municipalities to collect an additional Amusement Tax and impose a poll tax, any person who has paid or is liable to pay any municipal collector of taxes any poll tax for the current year being exempt from the provincial poll tax, as is also a person who has paid to the collector of the municipality assessed taxes to the value of $5 on real property, land or improvements for the preceding year. It has been suggested that possibly municipal councils would not exercise the power given with respect to the poll tax, owing to its unpopularity, but this is hardly likely, as, if the tax is not imposed by the municipality otherwise liable for such to the municipality will have to pay it to the province, for it is only through liability to the municipality that such persons become exempt from liability for the tax to the province.

Certain amendments have been made to the Prohibition Act, which it is hoped will make the Act easier to enforce. The clause with regard to penalties has also been changed so as to provide for the option of a fine in the case of the first offence, and this has been made applicable to cases of persons already convicted so that they will have the right to apply for a revision of sentence accodingly. The Legislature also passed an Act to provide for a Temperance Plebiscite in accordance with which a vote of the electors will be taken upon the following question:

Which Do You Prefer ?

(1) The present "Prohibition Act"?

or

(2) An Act to provide for Government Control and Sale in Sealed Packages of Spirituous and Malt Liquors?

The date for taking the vote will be fixed by proclamation but it is provided in the Act that the date shall not be earlier than Aug. 15th next.

Should prohibition remain in force as a result of the taking of the Temperance Plebiscite, it is understood that in accordance with a resolution passed in the Legislature, a petition will be presented to the Ottawa government asking for the submission of a Federal referendum on the question of the importation of spirituous and malt liquors into British Columbia.

A new Provincial Elections Act has been passed to remedy the defects of existing legislation and to permit of a more general exercise of the franchise by the voters of the province. The new Act contains many new clauses, and its provisions, especially with respect to absentee voters, should tend to make elections less expensive to the voter and to all parties concerned.

In accordance with the resolution of the House passed last session the "Highway Act" has been amended so as to change the rule of the road in what will oe known as Traffic District No. 2, in which the Kootenay District is included, on the 15th of July, 1920, and in Traffic District No. 1 on or before the 31st day of December, 1921.

Under an Amendment to the Semi-Monthly Payment of Wages Act it is provided that in case of mines to which the Coal Mines Regulation Act applies, payment to employees shall be made at least as often as fortnightly and shall be made on a Saturday. It will be remembered that in the session of 1917 the Semi-monthly Payment of Wages Act was passed.

With regard to 8 hour legislation it will also be remembered that the "Coal Mines Regulation Act 1918" provided that no person should be employed above ground at or about a mine for a longer period than 8 hours in any one calendar day of 24 hours. Further 8-hour legislation was proposed during the session, but in view of the Inter-Provincial Conference which is to be held shortly at Ottawa, it was deemed advisable at the present time to bring down further legislation. It will be noted that the Ontario provincial government, in which Labor has representatives, is taking a similar position. One can easily see the advantage of having such legislation Dominion wide and Continental wide if possible.

The Mothers' Pension Act, already referred to, and an Act to secure adequate provision for the maintenance of the wife and children of a testator, are statutes which should tend towards the amelioration of social conditions within the province.

I would like to add that for a long time that I have been convinced that two of the most pressing problems in this province are those of taxation and the conservation or proper utilization of the remaining assets of the province. These two problems are closely related to each other, for if our great natural resources are properly conserved and utilized, there should be no need for direct taxation, whereas if they are not, our citizens are likely to be impoverished by taxes. Centuries ago Wat Tyler objected to direct personal taxation but it is still with us, and the onus is still on those who deny its necessity or jutice in this province to show how sufficient revenue could be otherwise collected. No form of taxation is ever likely to be very well received, but the government that can reach the most satisfactory solution of the problem of taxation and the incidence thereof, which, as suggested, is closely bound up with the proper utilization of our provincial assets, is, in my opinion, the one most likely to survive.

PUBLICITY COLUMN

It begins to look as if our efforts to have the Glacier Park travel routed through here, are going to bear good results. We wrote to the Helena Commercial Club recently about it and the following is their reply:

"I have just returned from a trip to Lethbridge and Calgary and found that it will be possible to send tourists from here by way of Cardston and Lethbridge to Western points. Will you please advise me of the condition of the oads in this territory, because we will undoubtedly send a great number of tourists this way as they all object to shipping their cars from one side of Glacier Park to the other, and would much prefer to run into Canada and enjoy some of the wonderful scenery there. I am enclosing an article on the subject of the North and South road which will carry tourists into your country. This takes up the point you suggest about the permanent value of the tourist business. Referring particularly to the permanent investor, we have found that the more than 10,000 cars which stayed over night in Helena during 1919 left upwards of a quarter of a million dollars, at least 60 per cent of which was spent in stores other than garages and other than hotels. Please send us some of your maps and perhaps we could draw a map to show just how we should go from Glacer Park to Brtish Columbia. If you could draw such a map for us and tell us about the road, I think we would have the map made and printed.

As the National Parks Highway and the Roosvelt Highway Associations have both expressed the same intentions as the above, and as they are the principal routng agencies in the South and East for Yellowstone and Glacier Parks, there is little doubt now about our getting a considerable amount of this travel through here. At the present time a tourist can only drive into Glacier Park for about 50 miles and then has to ship his car across to Belton about 50 miles and continue his journey on via Kalispell and other routes westerly. Now that our road to Gateway is being fixed up, and from there to Kalispell also, these tourists can drive into the Park, then go up to Cardston and Lethbridge and come on through here and on to Kalispell. When our booklets are distributed amongst them and they see what beautiful scenery there is along this way, they will not need much further inducement to come. Shipping one's car at the best is a nuisance and most of them would rather drive an extra hundred or two miles than do it.

When the Banff-Windermere road is opened we shall have a very good chance to draw a considerable amount of travel down here for the Glacier Park trip also, especially so will this be in the case of those going on to Spokane, as the road via Kalispell to Spokane is very much better than the one via Kingsgate.

Jas. W. Davidson, who is President of both the Calgary Good Roads Association and the Winnipeg-Lake Louise tour, has written as follows:

Dear Mr. Spalding—Your letter of February relative to bringing visitors who are making the tour from Winnipeg, down through the Columbia Valley, has reached me here on my return from California. We are making a special effort to induce as many as possible to ship their cars from Lake Louise to Golden and then down the Windermere Valley and back through the Crow.

I agree most heartily with everything you have said in your letter in regard to the interest to be derived from a trip through that way."

I am personally acquainted with Mr. Davidson and know that he is very keen on this part of the country, and as he is a man with a great deal of persuasive powers, I feel sure that we may expect that a considerable number will carry out his advice.

The Secretary of the Inland Auto Association at Spokane has just written about their taking part with Walla Walla and Seattle in the proposed tour from those points to here. He says:

In reply to your letter of April 1, I beg to state we will participate in the trip to your territory. I think that you will find that Walla Walla and Spokane will be about the only ones to participate. It seems customary for those other organizations to always grab at these offers such as yours, then fall down on them. When we say we shall participate, it means that unless anything unforseen happens we will be there with bells on.

As Walla Walla has also stated that they already have several names entered for the tour for whatever date may be set, this will probably mean quite a big tour too. They have asked me to prepare an itinerary for a ten day or two week tour. This will enable us to have them stay here a few days.

Collections for the 1920 campaign are coming in very well. As a result of less than a day's canvassing I have received guarantees for just on $1000. This is a very gratifying result and shows that any proper effort for the benefit of the town need not fail for want of support.

The booklets have all arrived and the map is expected here either on Saturday or Monday. Everything is ready for mailing them now so before the middle of next week they will be on their way. Our efforts then will be devoted to the preparation of follow up pamphlets and these will be sent out early in may. All who have seen the map say that it is a very fine one. It covers all the principal trails from Medicine Hat and shows all the connecting points with the U. S. roads. The size is 15x22 inches and it is printed in three colors.

Watch 'em come.—J. F. Spalding.

FRANCELLIA BILLINGTON In

"THE DAY SHE PAID"

Only strange circumstances can cause a man to raise his hands against a friend in defense of the woman he has cast off as a wife disgraced. When Warren Rogers, played by Charles Clary, in "The Day She Paid" mauls the insidious modiste, played by Harry Van Meter, the wife, acted by Francellia Billington, stands by, joyfully encouraging the husband who had driven her into the streets not long before. This curious situation is the culmination of the dramatic events pictured in "The Day She Paid" which was adapted by the Universal from the story "Oats for the Woman," by Fannie Hurst, and which deals with the double standard.

SHOULD HEED WARNING

Many persons other than those addressed should take thought of certain words uttered by Mr. Justice Metcalfe of Manitoba in sentencing the Winnipeg strike leaders to penalties much lighter than their offences merited. "It should not," he said, "be left to the Judges to uphold the dignity of Canadian law." From the context it would appear that he had in mind certain members of the Manitoba Legislature who have abused their prerogative to denounce the judges and courts of Canada as "capitalistic," meaning thereby that they are dishonest, unfair, and conducted solely in the interest of entrenched wealth. But there are a good many others beside Manitoba legislators and Manitoba socialists who are busily spreading the false and mischievous idea that there is one law for the rich and another for the poor. There are newspaper proprietors in a number of towns and cities, who are playing that game, in the belief that it helps business. To such persons any sham that increases circulation and brings in "want ads" will do. The consequence to the country of inculcating in the minds of the uninformed that judges are corrupt oppressors of the working classes, and the machinery of justice a ghastly travesty on truth and fair play, never seem to concern them.

It is, of course, part of the conspiracy against existing forms of government to inoculate the public with fictitious sense of wrong. But if there is any tendency toward discrimination in our courts, it is all in the interest of the poor man. Let us suppose that a group of capitalists had conspired, as did the Winnipeg strike leaders, to deprive an entire population of water, food and ice, unless certain demands of theirs were granted. The cry that hanging was too good for them would have been heard throughout the length and breadth of the land. Kelly, one of the wealthiest and most influential men in Winnipeg, received a long term of imprisonment for conspiring to defraud the public in connection with the construction of the Manitoba Parliament Buildings. If he had openly flouted the courts and treated his judges with contempt, his reward would have been penalties that in the aggregate would have meant a life term. Yet the offences of Ivens and his pals, apart altogether from the munh debated sedition charge, were in every way more heinous than the commonplace thieving of Kelly; and they resulted in losses to the city of Winnipeg compared with which the Kelly defalcations were the merest bagatelle. Clearly the richer the culprit, the more severely he is mulcted; and what applies to Manitoba, applies throughout the length and breadth of this land. The wealthy man would never dare to make a mock of law to the extent that the more wild and useless labor leaders are permitted to do every day.

In deprecating and denouncing the present widespread attempt to weaken the authority of the courts "Saturday Night" is content to confine itself to the offences of those in its own business of journalism. During the recent trials the old pleader's adage, "When you have no case, abuse the opposing counsel!" was extended to cover "When you have no case, abuse the judge!" The irresponsible conduct of certain lawyers was shocking enough; but equally shocking is the conduct of editors and reporters who, by cunning inuendo, try to undermine respect for lawful authority; and to create the belief that agitators should be immune from prosecution under existing laws merely because their offences are committed in the name of Labor. The better order of organized labor claims no immunity from the law, nor does it seek to attain its ends by inflicting acute personal suffering on thousands of decent citizens, as did Iaens and his crew. Organized labor is not endangered by any assertion by constituted authority of its power to protect the individual in his right to eat and work. To assail by open lying or subtle inuendo the judges who represent that authority is to commit an indefensible crime against the well-being of Canada. Every Canadian has before him the plain duty of upholding the dignity of Canadian law.—Toronto Saturday Night.

DISPOSITION OF ESTATES

The bill now before the Legislature to secure adequate provision for the maintenance of the wife and children of a testator, while designed with a kindly purpose and at the same time with a view to reducing the number of mothers' pensions which the Government will be called upon to pay through new social legislation, opens up a vista of court proceedings in which legacies may be squandered in legal fees. It is true no other power could decide in a matter of this kind save the courts, but there is a possibility, in some cases at least, that such a power will have the effect of destroying the very safeguard which the Government intends to institute. Incidentally, the new legislation is another blow at individual freedom of action, although in this particular instance that may not make it the mark of criticism.

The majority of people are aware that the conception of freedom of disposition by will is familiar in England, although in some other countries alienation is only permitted where the deceased leaves no widow or near relatives. Legal systems which are based on the Roman law provide restrictions such as are now proposed in British Columbia, but in France, which follows this course, the restriction has met with condemnation from eminent legal and economical authorities one of whom, M. Troplong, held that "un peuple n'est pas libre, s'il n'a pas le droit de tester, et la liberte du testament est la plus grande preuve de la liberte civile." In most if not all of its legislation during recent years British Columbia is a copyist, and there is nothing new or radical in the bill introduced yesterday. In legislation in the matter of wills, homever, to the extent contemplated the Government is proposing to throw the question into the thickest hedge of legal entanglements and is claiming the right to dispose of property, subject to the decision of the courts, the title to which is not vested in the crown. So far as the new legislation will safeguard the rights of the immediate relatives of a deceased person it is good. So far as it squanders estates in legal fees there are at least doubts about the complete efficacy of the bill.—Colonist.

CANADA'S FUR TRADE

Much has been said and written about the lure of gold in stimulatsettlement and exploration. In the history of Canada, however, it was the quest for furs that provided an incentive to the traders who threaded the tangle of lakes and streams, traversed the prairies and stormed the rugged mountain passes that barred the way to the Pacific Ocean. True, the outstanding leaders in the task of exploration were fired by higher motives than mere love of gain. Nevertheless, the magnificent profits to be realized in the fur trade formed the economic basis which equipped and sustained the work of discovery.

Canada is not only a great fur-consuming country, but is also one of the leading fur-producing countrie sof the world, and, provided we take proper measures to conserve our wild life, is likely always to remain so. Although here, as elsewhere, furs are often worn for ornament, our rigourous winter makes furs almost a necessity for many persons. The farmer who drives many miles to the elevator over the wind-swept prairies, appreciates the value of a warm coonskin, and knows that no covering devised by the ingenuity of man is so effective in excluding the cold as the natural protection with which the wild animals are endowed.

Before the war, we were importing more furs than we exported. For the fiscal year 1913, our total imports of this commodity amounted to $7,993,651, and our exports to $5,415,119, thus leaving an unfavorable balance of over 2½ million dollars. During the war, we have had a favorable balance, small at first, but rising to $9,214,584 for the fiscal year 1919. For that year our exports amounted to $13,737,622 and our imports to $4,523,037. The increased value of our exports is largely due to the enormous rise in prices, but also indicates a considerable increase in the number of pelts exported. It is gratifying to note that, in spite of the higher prices, our imports have actually decreased in value. This would seem to indicate that there is an increasing domestic consumption of our own furs.

In 1913, our imports from the United States were $4,228,456 and our exports to it $2,343,183, showing a trade balance in favor of the States of $1,885,273. For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1919, the figures, as given in the annual report of the Department of Trade and Commerce, are: imports, $3,801,605; exports, $9,743,464; balance in Canada's favor, $5,941,859.

Our imports from Great Britain have declined from $1,294,462 in 1913, to only $148,456 in 1919. Meanwhile our exports have increased from $2,795,791 in 1913 to $3,763,955 in 1919. Taking into consideration the rise in prices, these figures indicate an actual decrease in quantity.

Undressed furs form much the largest item in our exports, over 98 per cent of the whole, and also about 78 per cent of the imports.

In Russi|a, in pre-war times, great fur sales were held at Ibrit, Nijni-Novgorod and Moscow. In Germany the great market was Leipzig, where the big Easter fair used to attract fur buyers from all parts of the world. Montreal should take its place beside these centres as a great fur market, and the Montreal Fur Sales Board seems to have selected a propitious moment for launching the enterprise, before the channels of trade, which have been dislocated by the war, again settle down into well-worn grooves.

NOT A GAME OF CHANCE

Paris.—"The man who hopes to break the bank at Monte Carlo must be a simple-minded fellow indeed."

This is the moral that is enforced by a newly-published bok, entitled "Revelations of Monte Carlo Roulette," by J. Cousins Lawrence.

The author, who has spent many months observing and investigating inside the Casino, has come to the conclusion "that roulette as played at Monte Carlo is not the game of chance it is supposed to be, but one absolutely and solely of skill."

But the skill is all one-sided. The croupier is so dextrous with the wheel and ball that he can turn up any given number at will.

All that is required is a wink, a nod, a movement of the head or the arm from the chefs, who have reduced secret signalling to a fine art.

Having lost heavily himself, despite the employment of several ingenious systems, Mr. Lawrence decided to become an observer only, to find out if possible, the secrets of the game. His evidence, given in a series of incidents, though mostly circumstantial, is decidedly impressive.

"A young lady was displaying a certain amount of indecision as to what she would back, and finally decided to place a piece on black. The croupier spun the ball and then, catching the lady's eye, he placed a finger on his cheek and gently rubbed it.

"Quickly grasping the meaning of the signal, the lady transferred her piece to red, and won.

"Again she played on black, and again the pantomime, and the change over, and a win.

"The next time she thought it advisable to play on red, and was on the point of doing so, when looking at the croupier she saw he was busy pinching his coat sleeves, a signal that she irghtly interpreted, for she played on black—and won again.

"This sort of play," it is added, "only occurs when the game is deadly dull."

Another time, when there was scarcely apiece being staked, the croupier presiding amused himself by droning out, each time he turned, the actual number he expected. It was a sort of soliloquy, but sufficiently audible to be heard by the other croupiers, who appeared quite interested, for he was right time after time.

A man whose visit had not turned out a success bewailed the fact to a croupier with whom he was staying.

The latter suggested that he should stake his money after the ball was started, but the idea was pooh-poohed.

"How many consecutive zeros can you turn up?" the croupier was asked.

"Oh, nine out of ten spins when I am in form."

This was regarded as a joke, as the achievement seemed miraculous.

Another incident has reference to a mother who lost all her stake money after a "tiff" with her daughter.

The latter came on the scene in time to see the last piece vanish, and decided to try to recover the loss.

"The family jar had not escaped the watchful eye of the chef," the story proceeds, "for he leaned forward and quietly told the croupier 'Let her win.'

"To this the croupier replied, 'I don't know what madam plays.'

" 'Oh, chevals and carres' said the chef.

"The young lady proceeded to play her favorites, and she had quite a phenomenal run of luck."

A remarkable incident given is one of a man who was winning a small fortune. While the game was proceeding the chef motioned to a flunkey.

Very shortly an inspector arrived. Taking a cautious glance at the winner, he whispered to the chef, "Oh, yes, about seven years ago."

Almost immediately a change came over the game, and when time was called the pile of notes and gold had vanished. Apparently the man had been mistaken for a newcomer until the inspector intervened and recognized him as a former winner.

"Doubtless," says the author, "the gamester thought 'luck' had changed, but it wasn't fickle fortune; it was something much more scientific than luck that had so suddenly meted out such shabby treatment to him."

Another piece of evidence Mr. Lawrence obtained from a young woman relative to whom a croupier remarked "I think by the feeling of my fingers zero is coming" just as he spun the ball, and he was correct.

Another time the croupier observed "The last three days of the month have been very good days." The actual date was the 30th, and it was not until 27, 28 and 29 had turned up in succession that the mystic words were interpreted.

On another occasion she was more fortunate. "I have not won anything," she happened to remark.

"Haven't you? Then you shall," came the reply. "Put the maximum on 10 now."

She did so, and won.

Similar incidents are multiplied in these revelations.

The author has seen instances where, with the exception of 2, every number on the board has been covered, and in one case only one was left uncovered, but the neglected ones came up each time.

That much precision and accuracy with the wheel and ball are possible of attainment is suggested by the fact that the author's wife has succeeded in showng her mastery over the ball of a toy roulette wheel.

WHOLESALE BORROWING

It is in the matter of borrowings that the present Liberal administration has shown a complete reversal in form. When in opposition, the Liberal critics of the then administration were wont to rail loudly against the expenditures of the Conservatives. Yet, on the showing of the Price-Waterhouse audit, made by the present government on taking office, the total gross debt as of March 31, 1917, was $23,153,000. The present government, as stated by the Minister of Finance, has already borrowed $13,777,000, bringing the gross debt on March 31, 1920, to $36,923,145. Deducting sinking funds of $6,293,305, the net debt was $30,624,820, an increase in net debt in three and one-half years of $10,900,811, a per capita rate of $76.55, compared with $49.31 on March 31, 1917. But with the progress fo the years the present government is stepping out. Opposition critics during the course of the budget debate last week have shown that when it comes to borrowing, the late administration was an aggregation of pikers. On the government's own showing it is proposed, within the next year, to go further into debt to the tune of no less than $22,400,000. The P. G. E. will take $8,800,000, composed of $4,000,000 for construction purposes to carry the line to Prince George this year and for needed equipment, and $4,800,000 to take up a bank liability occasioned by the former P. G. E. interests, hypothecating stock for a loan. True the government will get this back, but as the road is now a government owned enterprise the stock, a san asset, is not anything in the shape of an additional security. Then, according to the announcement by Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, it is proposed to float a loan for $5,000,000 for main trunk road purposes to cover which the expected increase of $400,000 in motor license fees will be devoted. Another million will be provided fo rthe Department of Industries, the department which the soldiers' committee at last year's session literally forced the Premier to establish. This will bring the total for that Department to $3,000,000. Under the Soldiers' Land Act a further $500,000 will be borrowed; there is an overdraft at the bank of $1,650,000 to be met, and a loan of $200,000 made from the funds of the Workmen's Compensation Board, ne not so far reported by the Minister of Finance, must be repaid. The Sumas reclamation scheme, before it is completed, will undoubtedly call for $2,000,000 and the year's deficit of $3,342,000 will have to be covered by borrowings. It can be seen from the foregoing that the government's aggregate borrowings since it took office will total, by the end of the fiscal year, March 31, 1921, no less than $36,360,000 which, added to the debt left by the late government, will make the aggregate debt of the province next year over $56,000,000. — British Columbian.

CHARLES RAY LIKES ROLE IN FILM, "CROOKED STRAIGHT"

"There is something decidedly human about the character of Ben Trimble that I like," said Charles Ray, discussing his character in the Thomas H. Ince photoplay, "Crooked Straight," which comes as a Paramount offering to the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday.

"I don't believe much in those screen characters which are all heroic and strength with no human weaknesses. Ben is an honest boy at heart, but tempted, and, quite human like, falls. He becomes a safe-cracker, as thousands of others would do in similar circumstances. But the good predominates in him and when he is awakened to a realization of the enormity of his offense the good surges to the surface an dhe comes back with a vengeance. He loves, deeply and sincerely. But he is noble in his passion and before asking the girl to become his life companion he frankly lays before her his past. Then, when the crisis arrives, he risks all to save the fortune of her father. He rises to every emergency and proves himself a real hero. I am sure Ben is going to win th esympathy of every film fan who sees him on the screen. I feel mighty happy, I will say, for having had the opportunity to play the part of Ben Trimble in this picture."

THE MARVELOUS MASCOT

It is not uncommon for women in Scotland to besome unnerved over the loss of a mascot. A few weeks ago in a small town in the south of Scotland, a party of four sat playing whist. During the whole of the first rubber the hands dealt to one of the players were deplorable. She got up at intervals and turned the poker and various other pieces of furniture, but in vain. Then she went upstairs for "Peter," a small silver "fums up." She put him on the table beside the cards that were being dealt to her. And from that moment onwards she and her partner scarcely lost a trick! Probably it was only coincidence, but it was just one of these particular coincidences upon which people of a certain type of mind willingly would found a universal and which bring added grist to the mascot mill of marvelous happenings.

MANAGER SAYS IT HAS NO EQUAL

Executive of National Athletic Club Says Tanlac Put Him Back On His Feet.

"No, Sir, I don't want any other medicine in the world but Tanlac, for I don't believe there is another one that can compare with it," was the statement made a few days ago by Cory A. Hesse, of 743 Cambie St., Vancouver, B.C. Mr. Hesse is a popular salesman for the Anderson Furniture Co. at 1058 Granville Street, and is also manager for the National Athletic Club and for a number of years has been one of the most highly respected citizens of Vancouver.

"For the past three years I had been troubled with indigestion so bad that I practically lost all my appetite," Mr. Hesse contined, "and half the time when I came home to dinner all I cared to eat would be a piece of bread. It seemed that nothing would agree with me, and gas would bloat me up and cause my heart to palpitate so bad that I could hardly get my breath. My back bothered me nearly all the time and the pains were so bad that often I would have to walk right slow, and at times I have had to put both my hands on my hips trying to straighten up, and even then I could hardly make it. Why, it was almost impossible for me to stoop over and pick up anything off the floor. I couldn't sleep well at night, and as I could get no strength or nourishment I felt tired out and weak all during the day.

"So many people of Vancouver were taking Tanlac and praising it so highly that I made up my mind to give it a trial. Like the others I am now ready to give it my unqualified endorsement, for four bottles have not only overcome all my troubles but they have added ten pounds to my weight and put me back on my feet feeling fine. My appetite has come back and everything agrees with me, and, in fact, I can hardly get enough to eat, for I enjoy my meals for the first time in three years. The pains through my back have completely disappeared and I am able to stoop over and straighten back up without an ache or pain. My sleep is sound and restful and I get up of mornings feeling just fine and I am stronger than I have been in years. Tanlac is the medicine for me first, last and all the time."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell and by the leading druggists in every town.

MARGUERITE CLARK IS GAY DECEIVER IN "WIDOW BY PDOXY"

Marguerite Clark introduces a novel addition to her long list of charming screen heroines in her latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Widow by Proxy," which will be the attraction at the Orpheum theatre next week. The story is from the Broadway stage success of the same name, written by Catherine Chisholm Cushing. Miss Clark has the role of a vivacious bachelor girl who pretends to be the widow of a soldier missing in action, so that her dearest chum may collect an inheritance which is due her, but which she is too proud to accept. Complications ensue thick and fast, and the climax is reached when the "late" husband walks in, very much in the flesh.

"Widow by Proxy" is crowded with wholesome comedy and provides just the sort of part that has raised Miss Clark to her present pinnacle of popularity. A capable cast supports the little star, including Nigel Barrie as leading man. Walter Edwards was the director. This is the second picture made by Miss Clark since arriving in California from New York and is expected to prove one of her most attractive vehicles.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BOLSHEVIKI ATROCITIES

Polish newspapers give reports from a Russian source that Lenine's red army murdered more than 3000 officers and soldiers of Denikine's army in hospitals and prisons. This report may be true or it may be a gross exaggeration, but it can not be said that the bolshevists themselves exaggerate the red terror in their official report and publications.

In July, 1918, before any allied troops had been sent into Russia, Sverdloff, president of the central committee, made a report which ended with these words:

"We have no intention to urge the Soviets to moderate, but on the contrary we urge them to increase the terror, however revolting it may be, that it may be greater instead of less."

On August 20, 1918, Lenine said in a letter to the American people:

"At the time of a revolution the struggle between the classes has always and everywhere taken the form of civil war and civil war is impossible without the most frightful destruction and the bloodiest terror. Only those unctuous priests, ecclesiastic or lay, the socialist hangers-on around parliaments and salons, are incapable of seeing this necessity, of understanding it or of seizing it."

Izvestia, the official bolshevist newspaper, of October 19, reporting a meeting of the "extraordinary committee to combat the counter-revolution," said:

"Comrade Kokiy gave details of the work of the Petrograd distrct committee since the movement of the national extraordinary committee to Moscow. The total number of arrested persons was 6220. Eight hundred were shot."

The same organ, October 6, said: "In Penza our comrade Egoroff was killed; 152 counter-revolutionaries were killed for that."

Charles Edward Russell quotes the Russian writer Dioneo that the terror had resulted, at the date of his writing, in the killing of 2500 officers alone in Kieff; in Yalta, 1900; in Restov, 3400; in Novo-Kherkash, 2000. "How many persons were killed in Moscow, Petrograd and Kronstadt nobody knows. The bolsheviks took hostages in almost every town in Russia and murdered many of them, men and women, civilians and officers."

At the close of December, 1918, the Izvestia, organ of the Petrograd bolshevists, reported that the total number of persons put to death in Russia was 14,208—outside of Petrograd and Moscow. A thousand were killed to avenge the death of a single bolshevist.

These are but a few excerpts from the official statements and reports of the bolshevist authorities, who do not, in fact, deny that frightfulness is their chief weapon and that innumerable atrocities have been perpetrated by them. They leave the denying work to their uniformed or falsifying champions, dupes and apologists in the United States.—Spokesman-Revew.

MUTT AND JEFF ARE COMING

A superabundance of wit, originality, features, taste, scenic investiture, and real entertainment is said to be the quota of this season's latest Mutt and Jeff show, entitled, "Mutt and Jeff's Dream," and which is to be the next attraction at the Grand Theatre, Wednesday night and Thursday matinee only.

From all aciounts the produstion eclipses all previous achievements which is something to revel over when memory harks back to some eight vehicles in which this pair of rollicking and epoch-making comics have registered. Manager Gus Hill, who is responsible for bringing Mutt and Jeff into prominence as stage favorites has apparently done unusually well by his illustrious breadwinners this year. He has supplied them with a musical comedy in three acts, in which they go through a series of adventures sure to even move the silent Sphinx to hysterical laughter. Delightful melodies, a carload of picturesque scenery, lighting effects, features, novelties, specialties and other essential ingredients to provoke mirth have been supplied. Above all, it is a vehcle of movable comedy, action, color and entertainment—entertainment of the brand to suit both young and old alike. A good word should be said in advance regarding the chorus. A Mutt and Jeff production is synonymous with all that is good in the way of pretty girls, infectious music and resplendent costuming. There are sixteen of these pretty and lovely damsels who know how to sing and dance with rare and infinite charm and skill. As usual, Mutt is in the limelight endeavoring to make a "goat" out of his faithful and susceptible pal, Jeff. And in the traditional order of things little Jeff manages to extricate himself with flying colors, but not without distributing an avalanche of fun, screams, hilarity and joy in behalf of his vast army of friends and well wishers. Their "Dream" carries Mutt and Jeff through three sidesplitting acts without lull and rapid shifting of scenes and situations. If you are a Mutt and Jeff convert, or intend to be, we cheerfully recommend this latest gloom destroyer as a tonic with a real "kick" in it. The cast is said to be capable and of large proportions. The entire offering is under the personal direction of Mr. Hill. Reserved seats are now selling at McLean's Drug Store.

BRITISH ERECT AIR MOORING TOWERS

London, Eng.—According to the American Chamber of Commerce in London, the steel towers now in course of construction at the Vickers' Barrow works, will enable airships moored to them to be supplied with fuel water, gas and goods, while the crew and passengers will also go aboard from the tower.

When completed, says the Chamber, the construction will be about 150 feet high, and will consist of steel lattice work. The Vickers design is furnished with a revolving head, to which the airship will be closely moored, bow on, and float clear of the ground. The vessel will thus swing to the direction of the wind, protection from which is provided by the stream-line shape of the body.

A winch and cable will bring the airship to the tower head and an elevator inside the tower will carry crew, passengers, fuel cargo, etc., to the vessel. At the top of the tower a small compartment serves as an anteroom to the airship, which will be connected to it by a flexible enclosed gangway.

When an airship is making for the tower, ti will announce its intention by wireless, and an ingenious system has been devised for bringing it safely to its landing place. The automatic mechanism for releasing the vessel from the tower will be controlled by one man, and not more than three men altogether will be required to bring a dirigible to port and send it out again.

The American Chamber in London understands that a number of these towers are expected to be ready shortly and British airdromes will be immediately supplied with them. A further point of considerable interest to the public is the reported intention to build mooring mast waiting rooms at the foot of the tower which might be easily developed into hotels.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY REDUCES OUTPUT

Paris.—Argoments that establishment of the eight-hour day would result in as large, or greater, outputs as the ten or twelve hour day have been proved fallocious, so far as France is concerned, by an investigation conducted by the ministry of commerce. Those who have made a study of the French worker, and know his inherent antipathy to being converted into a machine for automatic action, are not surprised by the conclusion that production is decreased in exact proportion to the reduction in the hours of labor.

In the merchant marine it has been found necessary to increase the personnel 50 per cent; the woodworking industry, in which the working hours were reduced 25 per cent has lost 40 per cent of its output, and makers of bicycles, carriers and other similar machines have found their production cut down at least 33 1-3 per cent. Textile industries centring about Roubaix, report manufactures have fallen off 20 per cent under the eight-hour system, and enough operators to handle the work cannot be found. Other nidustries show similar figures.

The results of the investigation, while disputed by labor organizations, are accepted by the ministry as official.

"THE PRINCE AND BETTY"

William Desmond has a romantic story of adventure in his newest pcture, "The Prince and Betty," coming to the Isis theatre on Friday and Saturday. Pelham Grenville Wodehouse, who wrote "A Damsel in Distress" and collaborated on "Oh, Boy!"—previous Pathe successes—is the author of "The Prince and Betty", a novel that has enjoyed popularity for several years.

The story is that of an American who one day wakes up to learn that he is Prince John III. of Mervo. This mythical kingdom, however, is a republic, but an enterprising American sees a chance to make a lot of money, so he stages a revolution, puts the American on the throne, gets the little country onto the first page of all the newspapers and finds his baby Monte Carlo doing a flourishing business.

But the thing he hadn't counted on happened. The Prince was in love with Betty, an American girl, who had no use for advertisements for a gamblng house, and when he learned that he stirred up some trouble.

BASEBALL

The meeting in the council chamber Sunday last was not attended as well as it might have been, consequently business was very brief. After the pros and cons it was decided that the condition of the diamond be looked into and a meeting called later on to form a city league; also that a masquerade dance be held to procure the necessary funds to secure uniforms for the Fernie team. Watch for announcements later. After appointing a committee of three to look after matters the meeting was adjourned.

Work was commenced this week on the grounds, the diamond being graded and several loads of clay hauled for a top dressing, but owing to inclement weather work is progressing very slowly. The committee wish to thank the livery men for horses and the city for the use of the grader; also those who have turned out so far, and also request that all fans desirous of having the diamond put into shape to turn out every night with a shovel until the job is finished.

FOOTBALL

An enthusiastic football meeting was held in the G.W.V.A. quarters on Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. All present were unanimous that the year would be a winner for football, seeing that the war is over and most of the crack players were back home again. The District League includes Coal Creek, Ferne, Michel, Coleman, Blairmore, Hillcrest, Belevue, and it is more than likely that Trail, Nelson and Rossland will be included. If they are Fernie will see some real football this year. Mr. Cooper has donated a cup for the District League, and there are several cups, outside of this one, which will be competed for. The City League will also be formed this year and some splendid games will be witnessed in ths League. After considerable discussion, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year for the City and District League:

Hon. President—W. R. Wilson.
Hon. Vice-Presidents—R. W. Wood, A. B. Trites, G. A. Bonnallie, W. Harwood, A Watson, N. E. Suddaby, W. A Ingram.
President—S. Herchmer.
1st Vice-Pres.—Archie Corrie.
2nd Vice-Pres.—J. McNicholas.
Secretary—M. Whitelaw.
Treasurer—Robt. Thornton.
Executive—Jas. Roberts, W. Lancaster, Jas. Clarke, Ned Sherwin, George Vines.

An exhibition game will be played on Saturday between Coal Creek and Fernie, at the North End football grounds. A smoker will be given after the game. Tickets will be sold at 50c each to give the boys a chance to buy their outfits. Collection will be taken at the game.

EMPLOYMENT OF ALIENS

Statistics show that throughout British Columbia there are approximately 25,000 persons, who are not citizens of Canada, engaged in the industries of the Province. This represents 6¼ per cent of the population. The lumber industry, coal and metalliferous mining account for some 12,000 of these employees of foreign birth. Out of close to 3,000 persons engaged in pulp and paper manufacturing we note that nearly 2,000 or 66 per cent, are foreigners, and, so far as we are able to learn, those in control of the industries affected show little or no disposition to displace thier foreign employees and substitute Canadian citizens. The question of the employment of aliens at one of the pulp mills in the Province came up during the present session of the Legislature, but it was not pressed and the whole matter of the employment of foreigners in our industries to the detriment of Canadian citizens appears to have aroused no sustained interest either in governmental or legislative circles.

Through its Department of Labor the Provincial Government should know how far it is in the interests of British Columbia to condone the employment of foreigners on the scale to which we have alluded. The Department of Education is aware of the difficulties which exist in school districts where most of the children are of foreign parents. The question of how to deal with these still remains unsolved. In a recent speech before a mining convention at Vancouver Mr. William Sloan, the Minister of Mines, hinted at the probability of something being done to replace the foreign element in the mining community by Canadian citizens. No step whatever has, so far, been taken in this direction. The Government would appear to have no policy regarding alien employment, unless it be that of refraining from interfering with existing conditions, which are anything but a credit to British Columbia. Much, if not all, of the difficulties in rehabilitating returned soldiers would be obviated by strong measures which would insist on the employment, wherever possible, of Canadians in the industries of the Province. There are industrial colonies in Britsh Columbia which are hotbeds of unrest and dissension just because they are controlled by foreign elements, and the very fact of this control militates against the employment of Canadian citizens.

The conditions to which we have alluded are likely to become more aggravated unless steps are taken by the Provincial Government to meet the situation. Various returned soldier organizations have discussed this subject of alien employment from time to time but have failed to enlist the avtive sympathy of the authorities. It is a matter in which no representations should be needed. The menace of an alien population was accentuated during the recent war in more countries than Canada. The Provincial Government, when it established a Department of Labor, must have had some definite purpose in view and we know of none which would meet with more general favor than governmental effort to conserve British Columbia industries, so far as employment in them is concerned, for our own citizens. Legislation to this effect, provided it were enforced, would be of immediate and great potntial value to the welfare of this Province.—Colonist.

TALKS ON THE COAL INDUSTRY

The following is part of an address delivered by W. R. Wilson at the Annual Meeting of the stockholders of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., held in Toronto on April 6:

"The time has come when the people of this country must begin to look for Canadian fuels that are suitable for taking the place of anthracite coal, which for the last fifty or more years has been such a favorite fuel in the different sections of Canada.

"Coke, properly prepared, in sizes that are suitable for the various forms of domestic consumption, will be found to be a favorable substitute for all sizes of anthracite coal and especially when used in surface fuel furnaces, low steam pressure plants and hot water heating plants coke weight for weight with anthracite coal will be found to have a thermal heating value over the average anthracite now shipped into Canada of from 20 to 30 per cent. Coke will not deteriorate in stock like anthracite through oxidation, or otherwise. Coke does not clinker and when properly used will be found to be much freer from deter..... cindering than anthracite.

"In bulk, coke will run from 40 to 60 per cent. more than anthracite. Coke produced from high grade coking coals, or a coke that will run from 82 to 88 per cent. in fixed carbon will require less oxygen for its complete combustion and for this reason there is less draft required to burn the coke and proportionately less chimney waste.

"People who have been accustomed to the burning of anthracite coal will have to be educated to burn coke but once they become accustomed to burn the cleaner coke fuel it is reasonable to believe that they will show due appreciation for the new, lighter and cleaner coke fuels. The contemplated higher prices that are likely to be charged for the old favorite fuel, anthracite, through the fast depletion of the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania will accelerate this desire with the Canadian consumer.

"In the year of 1800 the coal mining records of the state of Pennsylvania show that William Morris, a Welshman, I believe, took a boat load of anthracite coal to Philadelphia but could not dispose of the shipment. The users of fuel at that time did not know how to burn that valuable fuel so they broke it up and made side walks with the coal. Philadelphia at that time evidently had a community more skilled in road building than they were in the use of fuels.

"In the year of 1803 coal mining in a commercial way started in the State of Pennsylvania, during which year some 1965 tons of coal were mined.

"In the 1814 two small boat loads of anthracite coal were shipped and sold to the old charcoal furnaces at Schuylkill Falls, Pennsylvania, and sold for 21 cents per ton. The men operating the furnaces are reported to have spent all the hours of one morning trying to burn this coal. They utterly failed and at the noon hour completely discouraged, went to dinner and after returning from their midday meal were astonished to find the furnace they had closed up in disgust, contained a roaring fire, the furnace doors red hot and the furnace in danger of being melted. Thus the use of anthracite coal began through the medium of a practical accident to prove its own value to the people some 106 years ago.

"Then in 1855, the Iron Furnaces of Pennsylvania began to use anthracite coal instead of charcoal which they had for some years been using. In turn coke began to take the place of anthracite coal for iron smelting, during the year of 1869.

"From the year of 1803 to the year of 1917 the mining of anthracite coal in the State of Pennsylvania increased from 1965 tons for the year to nearly 100,000,000 for the year which figures show an average yearly increase extending over a period of 114 years of approximately 870,000 tons per year. The production of Bituminous coal in the same state and over the same period of time increasng at the rate of about 1,700,000 tons per year. The two sets of figures indicate that the average coal production in the state of Pennsylvania alone had a steady annual growth of 2,570,000 tons per annum over the last 100 years.

"History records the fact that there is less real poverty in nations that are large coal producers than there is amongst the nations that have no coal, or even amongst the nations that are limited in their coal production through the lack of coal deposits in their countries.

"The coal fields of Great Britain made it possible for England to become one of the greatest industrial nations of the world.

"The same class of basic resources has also made it possible for the United States to make the progress that that country has made during the last 100 years.

Nations are recorded in history as remaining poor through the earlier ages because they did not learn to make use of one of nature's greatest gifts.

It has further been stated that the quantity of coal now used in a country and what may in future be used in a country will be regarded as a possible standard of the progress of that country's civilization.

In 1860 the United States produced 14,610,042 tons of coal.

In 1917 Canada produced 13,676,300 tons of coal.

From 1860 to 1917, a period of 57 years, the coal production in the United States increased from 14,610,042 tons for the year to 597,385,820 tons. The amazing development of the fuel resources of the United States should stimulate the people of Canada to take a more active part in developing the latent opportunities or natural resources of this country. Rich coal deposits are distributed over both the Eastern and Western sections of the country. Largely unbroken at this time, they nevertheless silently form a sound unit in the assurance of the nation's prospective and future welfare. They form the basis for all kinds of mineral development, and give a real sense of security for new agricultural settlements that will in the near future make their homes, and are making their homes, in the new hinterland of both the North and West of this country.

It is therefore to be hoped that the human agencies that are assuming and undertaking the responsible direction and guidance of the country will have a clear comprehension of the future possibilities that await systematic and intelligent development. For the potential opportunities that lay before the nation may in truth be favorably compared with the basic possibilities that have made it possible for other countries to develop their industries successfully. In some of the coal mining regions of the West a number of new mining conditions are being encountered. The forces that have tilted some of the coal fields have created physical conditions that have not been experienced in other coal mining sections of this continent. When the mountains were uplifted from their original structural lines of bedding, intense crushing appears to have taken place and in the zones of crushing dynamic heat appears to have vitalized the hydrocarbons from both the beds of shale lying contingent to the coal beds and from the coal beds, changing them into gaseous forms. These gases in some sections of the mining, have undergone a general form of distribution or have been driven into the pores of the surrounding strata in a fairly uniform or normal manner. In other instances the gases appear to have been driven by repeated crushing forces into highly compressed zones, or have migrated in some form from what may be understood to have been the seat of vitalization to more recent disturbed zones. Surrounding these zones and closely adjacent tracts the coal beds are both capped and underlaid with impervious shales and these, held in highly pent up poses, voids, or cavities, which localities have to be approached with care, for pent up pockets of hghly explosive gas under conditions of this character call for more than ordinary attention by all those who may be employed in dealing with such abnormal physical conditions. It may here be stated that in these forms of risk and responsibility there appears to be a peculiar form of stimulus offered to enterprising workmen, management and inventors for such men are oftentimes found amongst the most progressive men of the country. They are men who have a desire to materially aid in the progress of the permanent development of the basic industries of the country. They simply take the optimistic view of all difficulties that confront them. The following theory appears to be their great impelling force: That the quantity of coal used and mined in their country should be regarded as a guiding standard of the progress of the civilization of their country.

W. R. WILSON PRESIDENT

At a meeting of the Directors of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., held in New York on April 15th, W. R. Wilson was unanimously chosen as President to take the place of the late Elias Rogers of Toronto. Mr. Wilson has held the position of Vice-President and General Manager for several years and he will continue as manager. A. Klauer, of Fernie, was also elected treasurer of the Company.

The appointment of a Fernie man to the Presidency of the Company should mean a great deal to this city. With the head of the company residing in Toronto and only visiting Fernie every year or so, he could not be expected to take the same interest in the good and welfare of our community as a citizen of the town. Mr. Wilson has always been alive to the interests of the city and Fernie is to be congratulated upon his appointment to the presidency of the company.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

James Chapman, C.P.R. Yard Foreman, Crow's Nest; L. G. McGee, carrepairer, Wm. Paraby, switchman, F. Meister, switchman, and James Grewcutt, teamster, all also of Crow's Nest were committed for trial here Wednesday by A. H. Watson, J.P., on a charge of stealing thirty cases of rye whiskey from a box car in the yards at Crow's Nest on or about April 9th last. In establishing the case for the Crown twenty odd witnesses testified. The shipment of liquor in question was traced from the time it was received from the Michel Liquor Co. at Natal, B.C., for consignment to William Moon, Cowley, Alta., loaded in box car 129566 and the seal record taken and checked. Upon arrival at Crow's Nest on the night of April 8th, the seals were again checked intact, but on the following morning the conductor checking his train before departure found one seal broken, reported it and had the car resealed. The car contained a consignment of beer for Coleman and this was unloaded at that place and the car re-sealed. Upon arrival at Cowley the shipment of liquor was short. The investigation department of the railway company immediately made inquiries with the result that after a second search of Chapman's abode at Crow's Nest four empty bottles of a kind similar to those which had been in the shipment were found nearby, while under the floor in the shack 10 full bottles were found. Chapman was thereupon placed under arrest. Further search resulted in several full bottles being found submerged in a creek near a stable of J. Strong, while also in five respective caches in the mountains about a mile east of Crow's Nest 24 cases were located, buried in snow mounds. McGee and Grewcutt subsequently became implicated and later made statements to the authorities of their alleged connection with the transaction, and this in turn involved Parnaby and Meister, the two night switchmen, who worked under Chapman. Parnaby also made a declaration to the police.

According to the evidence and the statements of these parties, however, they know nothing of the actual breaking into the car. They came into it, they claim, after it had been removed therefrom and assisted in relays in taking it from the C.P.R. yards to Chapman's shack; McGee and Grewcutt the following day proceeding to Coleman where they negotiated for the sale of the larger portion of the liquor. Evidence was also forthcoming regarding these negotiations for sale by the parties approached, and further as to the removal of the liquor from Chapman's shack in broad daylight by Chapman, McGee and Grewcutt, shortly before the arrival of the authorities. The conveyance used was John Strong's team and sleigh, while Strong in his evidence admitted receiving a case of what he presumed was liquor for permitting Grewcutt to use his team. The wholesale cost value of the shipment was stated to be $750.00. Mr. C. J. Spreull, barrister of Cranbrook, B.C., conducted the prosecution, while Mr. Sherwood Hercvhmer of this city appeared for accused Chapman, Parnaby and Meister. McGee and Grewcutt were undefended by counsel.

EVEN HAY AS FOOD IS HARD TO GET

People in Horodetz, a town near the Polish-Bolshevik front, are eating hay in the absence of real food, according to cable advices to the Canadian war relief, and even that is hard to get.

It is to ameliorate these terrible conditions that the Canadian Jewish War Relief is raising funds throughout the coutry to send to the Jewish peoples of Europe. Throughout eastern Europe, particularly in Poland, there are millions of Jews suffering from lack of food, clothing and medicine.

Lack of window glass is responsible for the spread of typhus, tuberculosis and other contagious diseases in eastern and central Europe.

To resist the severe cold of winter, windows were closed with mud, shutting out light and fresh air. Shortage of buildings causes overcrowding in the rooms, accelerating contagion and the spread of disease.

Cables state that homes for the aged, hospitals, houses of shelter, and all other Jewish relief institutions will have to close if help does not come. One from Vilna, Poland, says:

The death rate here is double the birth rate, an appalling situation due to lack of food, clothing and medical supplies.

"Observers who have seen only the large cities can obtain no idea of the destitution of the small towns and the country," says Lieut. James H. Becker, relief administrator for the joint distribution committee for Jewish war sufferers. "Medicines and disinfectants are exhausted; food and clothing are obtainable only at prohibitive prices, while shoes are practically impossible to get."

Activities in the lumbering industry with the advent of favorable weather the last few days are proceeding with greater rapidity than has been possible this season. Large quantities of logs have been taken out this winter by the two local companies but as it is necessary to construct means of transportation from the limits to the mills in both cases, with the late spring, this work could not be undertaken earlier and consequently there will be some delay in commencing sawing. The Elk Valley Lumber Company are constructing a five mile logging railroad, while the White Spruce Lumber Company has a flume of similar length to instal. Both companies combined are at present employing over 200 men. It is expected the mills will open about June 1st.

WORDS OF APPRECIATION

The following resolution relative to the death of Elias Rogers, late President of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., was passed at a special meeting of the Directors, held in Toronto, on April 11th:

Gentlemen—We are gathered here today to pay a joint tribute of respect to the memory of Mr. Elias Rogers, who departed from this life in the early morning hours of Sunday, April 11th, 1920.

Mr. Rogers has been the active head and guiding influence in the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. for the last twelve years, and through Mr. Rogers' steadfast and loyal attention to the varied duties and responsibilities that are involved in the position of the President in a company of this nature, the Company has safely passed through many trying and abnormal difficulties. Mr. Rogers' long steady years of training, study and experience in varied public enterprises specially fitted him with the qualifications that are necessary to fill the duties that he has held for so many years in the Company. Through the death of Mr. Rogers the Company have lost the services of a proficient and highly matured mind and whose place it will be exceedingly difficult to fill, for men who have had the diversified training and successful experience that Mr. Rogers had acquired are not very much in evidence at the present time. We deeply feel the death of Mr. Rogers, for we always found him ready to utilize the best thoughts of the organization, whether derived from others or thought out by himself. His conception of attainment by the organization was always based by himself on conclusions that became self-satisfying only after his own thinking faculties had been carefully and positively applied to an exacting study of the questions to be dealt with.

SAFEGUARD OUR FORESTS

(By John Duke)

While experts chidingly tell us that Canada is five years behind the United States and Great Britain in aerial navigation, this country has nevertheless demonstrated one use that the airplane can be put to, the patrolling of our great forest areas as protection against forest fres, and it is in this work that the immediate future development of aviation in Canada seems to have its widest scope. Forest ranging by airplane is not merely a tentative proposal in this country; it is actually in operation in Quebec, and the owners of the great timber limits in the St. Maurice district have used planes for forest protection work since the middle of last summer.

A forest ranger in an airplane can detect a fire breaking out, more than forty miles away. Probably ten miles was the extreme limit of vision of the rangers who formerly occupied tall outlook posts in various strategic positions in the forest. And while the fire is still small and concentrated in a slight area, airplanes can carry hose and water pumps to the scene, to be followed up if need requires with a large force of fire fighters and equipment, carried in small units, but speedily, over the tops of the trees to the spot where they are needed.

No estimate has ever been made of the loss by forest fire every year in Canada. But figures for British Columbia for the year 1919, just issued, state that there were 1,160 forest fires in that province last year, involving a total loss of 143 million board feet of timber. The loss in all Canada must be tremendous and there is no doubt that when the provincial governments and the owners of the timber limits get under operation an extensive system of forest patrol by airplane the loss may be much reduced.

And in the lumbering industry there are many forms of service that the airplane is already performing in a small way in Quebec, Northern Ontario, Peace River district and British Columbia, asd will be performing in a large way within the next few years. One is timber cruising. Writers of heroic novels about the adventures of timber cruisers will have to revise their style. No longer will the surveyors spend a winter exploring a half a million acre tract of pulp land or timber area. An airplane will be chartered; an experienced lumberman will survey the area from the air, photographs will be taken to be pieced together in maps as photographs of the battlefields in France were pieced together for the army, and within a few days a report can be taken back to the owner or prospective lessee of the limits.

For this type of work flying boats and seaplanes will probably be used, as the lakes and rivers will probably form the most convenient landing places in wild land areas. A two hundred horsepower flying boat, it is estimated, will have a cruising range of about 1,000 miles at from 75 to 100 miles an hour, and will be able to carry as many as four passengers.

SUNSPOTS AND UNREST

The suggestion advanced by M. Camille Flammarion, the eminent French scientist, that the present unrest among the peoples of earth may be connected in some degree with the state of the sun may be something much more than a fanciful theory. There is a fever on the sun, he says, that has a repercussion on the earth and an influence on the brains of men. This is not only a plausible theory but a likely one, for it is a very long time since mankind, to such a widespread extent, showed so little balance in dealing with human affairs. The world is ful of strange, and sometimes savage, missionaries, who think they have a mandate to straighten out the affairs of earth. Many of them are wholly uneducated in the meaning of government and are regardless of the ultimate consequences of their actions., There are murder plots in existence, there is anarchical propaganda being spread broadcast, there are Simon Tappertits of revolution abroad, there is a strange unbalance in many minds, and all these things are difficult to account for except as due to a disturbed mentality, the product of some outside agency. It is an age of wild visions and even wilder happenings. It is an age of individual and mass egotism, perhaps unparalleled on such a scale. It is an age, ostensibly striving for liberty, but in reality responsible for putting more shackles on the freedom of mankind than any of its predecessors.

"It's a mad world, my masters," wrote the poet, and the question is how far can the common sense of humanity, or what we used to regard as such, be exempted from blame for the mental conditions of today. If M. Flammarion is right it is an outside influence, over which the people of earth have no control, that may in some measure be responsible. The influence of sun spots on the mentality of mankind is a study which should be considered in the physicians' realm, though to the layman, if the effect comes from the cause suggested, it is obvious it is the weaker intelligences that are suffering and making the rest of the people suffer in consequence. Mr. Lloyd George said the world was suffering from "rattled nerves" due to the Great War. If sun spots are to blame the world cannot be criticised, except so far as those responsible for its direction fail to implement the raising of a better type of men and women whose mentality would be proof against the influences of the "fever in the sun."

THE METHODIST CHURCH AND SECULAR AMUSEMENTS

For some time there has been developing within the Methodist Episcopal church sentiment in favor of revising the church's attitude toward amusements. The Methodist discipline has included prohibition of "dancing, playing at games of chance, attending theatres, horse races, circuses," and so forth. It is possible, under the rules of the church, to bring to trial members who have indulged in the discountenanced pastimes, and to expel them from membership if they are found guilty.

As a matter of fact, it is doubtful whether any considerable number of instances have occurred of offending Methodist being disciplined for dancing, playing cards or attending theatrical performances. Lack of insistence on enforcement of the long-standing rule will be used as an argument in favor of modification. There is much to be said for the principle that any rule which remains nominally in force, but is tacitly disregarded, is a bad rule and ought to be eliminated.

But should the Methodists not go in for enforcement, rather than abandonment, of the rule against dancing, card playing and playgoing? A good many Methodists do not think so. The common attitude toward these amusements now is that while they can be and have been used as agencies of immorality, yet as commonly practiced by decent people they are free from blame and can be kept so. There is strong argument in the claim that the church should be made an ally rather than a foe of the theatre, and that dances held under the auspices of church people can be made an effective counter attraction to dances of the questionable sort.—Spokesman-Review.

ATTEMPT AT REVOLUTION

When the Washington authorities state that the present railway strike is the first phase in an attempt to "put over" a revolution on this continent they have but expressed a view that all who have studied the situation must agree with. East and West American railway employees quit their jobs by the thousands, all against the orders of the heads of the responsible unions to which these men had formerly been attached. Moreover when they quit there was nothing before the railway officials to indicate why they had so acted. Indeed, a demand for a new wage scale appears to have been entirely overlooked by the malcontents for a considerable period after the strike or walkout was well under way, and then the demands made were so absurd that no one could take them seriously. In other words the demands were merely a bluff to cover up for the time being the real intent of the uprising.

According to the evidence it is plain that the I.W.W. or the O.B.U., call it what you like, is back of this incipient revolution, and that it will spread through activities other than the transportation services is fair to presume The intent is plain. It is a half-baked attempt to cripple industry, to overthrow government and place the Bolshevists in the saddle. That such a programme will succeed on this continent there is so good cause to believe for the very good reason that a great majority of the people are law abiding and when pushed to it able to take care of themselves, though it may be at great personal sacrifice, as was the case in Winnipeg. And again it may mean organization of a semi-military type; the same spirit that was displayed in England when the forces tried to tie up the British railways and were only prevented from accomplishing their design by the citizen volunteers who came forward to fill the places of the malcontents. The truth was finally driven home to those strikers. The public could get along without them, and when they once realized this there was no more serious trouble.

The cardinal principle of the I.W.W. is that being a member of this order notonly entitles one to live without personal endeavor but that every effort shall be made to stir up disorder and discontent and keep others from working. Of course what their ultimate aim is they do not know themselves, or if they do they never have made it plain. Mass strikes, that is strikes of not one but many industries is the favorite procedure, and at this writing they are meeting with some measure of success in and about New York city and is New Jersey where not only trainmen but dock laborers, ferry boat employees, traction men and tube employees have knocke doff work without warning and without apparent reason.

There is a disposition among us to sit smugly and complacently by and say, "Oh, well, these people are just crazy; it will pass over like the thunder shower of yesterday." And then dismiss the subject from our minds. A case of "It has not hit us yet, so why worry?"

Back is March, 1917, there was entertained at the Harem River Park Casino in New York city, as individual who called himself Trotsky. A dirty looking man with a face full of whiskers. To his friends on that occasios he remarked: "I am going back to Russia to overthrow the provisional government and stop the war with Germany. Keep on organizing until you are able to overthrow this damned rotten capitalistic government."

If any reasonably informed person had at that time taken seriously this odds-and-ends man of the New York East Side his friends would have looked around for a safe place to keep him. But Trotsky left New York the next day and proceeded to Russia via Halifax. There is no need to tell what he, with a few others, were able to do.

I take it that being forewarned is being forearmed. If we are to have any of these thunder showers, and the sky does look threatening on occasions, I for one, want a rain coat and an umbrella, and I believe a whole lot of other people do also. Of course we have not the ignorant masses of Russia to deal with, but none the less we have a super-abundance of an element which at any time may become dangerous and require some handling. It is only by organization that this can be done. Not necessarily military or police organization, but rather civic units are what I have in mind. Organizations which at a moment's notice could undertake to furnish reliable citizens who could operate a gas plant, run a railway train, an electric light plant, a fire station, a water works or any one of the dozens of activities that are necessary to our well being, not to speak of our very existence.—Saturday Night.

THE KELLY INQUEST

The inquest touching the death of Daniel Joseph Kelly, late of Baker, Oregon, who was found dead in a local hotel early in the month was concluded this week, when the jury found that death had resulted from heart failure, superinduced by congestion of the lungs, and abnormally weakened heart. The posponement in these proceedings was due to the absence of one Angus McDonald, who was a room-mate with the deceased at the time death occurred. McDonald claim-he knew absolutely nothing as to what had transpired as he had fallen asleep and later awakened to find his part-her dead upon the floor. He was notified to appear at the inquest but disappeared and nothing was learned as to his whereabouts until Sunday evening when constble Dunlap, on duty at the C.P.R. station, saw McDonald on board the eastbound train. He immediately placed McDonald under arrest and he was held until absolved from all connection with the tragedy by the verdict of the coroner's jury. McDonald pleased ignorance as defence for not appearing when originally instructed and was severly censured for his cnoduct.

PARENT-TEACHERS HOLD REGULAR MEETING

At the regular monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association held on the third Friday, in the Central School, Mr. Daniels gave a most interesting address on Manual Training. A sketch of the history of this branch of education shows that it is no new thing, having grown up to fill a need left when the old system of trades apprenticeships was discontinued. The functions of manual training (beginning with the paper and plasticine modelling of the lower grades) is not merely to "make a carpenter of the boy" as many vaguely suppose, but developes in him the highest type of manly qualities. Physical culture is given by the various muscular exercises required, and the practical training is a relief from our over-amount of theory.

Points gained in the boy's mental development are:

1. It develops imagination — as the boy must have a clear plan in his mind of what he is going to produce, as well as an accurate paper sketch.
2. The exactness which is requisite makes for truthfulness.
3. A high standard of accuracy makes the boy strive to do his best. While marks are given for production, effort is encouraged by praise.
4. It gets away from the deplorable lock-step system, the greatest drawback of the modern school system. Each boy can progress independently, and at his own speed. This encourages individual effort.
5. It trains for craftmanship, but that is secondary to the development of the boy's mind so he can go on learning and training himself.
6. It takes advantage of the construction instinct latent in every boy.
7. It is democratic, in that it puts a premium on honest work, so the boy gains respect for the average working man.
8. It teaches the boy how to select woods and know their properties.
9. It lays the foundation for future technical education.

This sort of training would be of particular value in Fernie, where boys are early lured from school by the temptation of large wages. These wages are, however, stationary, whereas two more years in school, with manual training would make his earning capacity in a few years much greater, with the addition of a chance to climb.

For manual training, a separate building is required, 30 feet by 50 feet, and 25 feet from other buildings, but may be heated by pipes from main building. The government pays 50 per cent of cost of tools and other equipment, or if in connection with night schools, 75 per cent. The government also pays $525 of teacher's salary. The demand for manual training teachers being much in excess of the supply, their salaries range from $1500 to above $2,000. The total cost to Fernie of manual training would be from $1,500 to $1,700 for the first year.

A LESSON FOR LABOR

It would surprise Lenine, Trotsky and their associates, as well as a good many of their professed admirers in this country, to learn that the new Soviet system for the regulation of labor in Northern Russia somewhat closely resembles the regulations which were in force in this country in the far-off fourteenth century. It is a curious anomaly that the Russian evangelists of a Labor paradise, despite all their ideals and the blood which has been shed in their defence, should have advanced no farther than the legislators, with darkened outlook, of the time of our Edward III.. Under the Statute of Laborers of 1349, not only was labor enforced on the lower classes, but men were not free to work where they liked, nor were their employers permitted to pay them more than certain fixed rates of wages. In short, the laborer was a serf, and that is the condition to which the Bolshevik leaders are now endeavoring to reduce all classes in Northern Russia, high and low, rich and poor, except such members as, by the well-known processes of favoritism and bribery, are able to secure more or less comfortable "jobs" in connection with the Soviet or other bodies of great or small dictators. Bentham once observed that "tyranny and anarchy are never far asunder," and the Bolsheviks are illustrating from week to week and month to month the fundamental truth of that statement. The "Manchester Guardian" has performed no mean service by publishing recently a full and explicit summary of the Soviet Code of Labor Laws. We can only trust that the example set by this journal of advanced political thought will be largely followed, for the working classes of this country should no longer be left in ignorance of the conditions to which their fellows in Northern Russia are being reduced by the cold-blooded and blind visionaries who have constituted themselves the arbiters of the destinies of this great and potentially wealthy part of Europe. Before passing on to examine with some particularity the cruel and oppressive Code of Labor Laws dictated by the Soviet, it is interesting to note that our contemporary suggests that, while the stories about the nationalization of women have been exaggerated, "the summary of the Labor Laws. . . should have an equally sobering effect upon the too ardent emulators of Bolshevism in this country," adding that "we may well ask ourselves whether these Laws lay the foundations for a workers' paradise."

In a country in which, owing to the Bolshevik madness, war materials are scarce, reasonable food supplies are hardly obtainable, and production has reached a minimum, the worker's right to work, with fair and continuous remuneration, his right to adequate rest and leisure, and so on, are proclaimed with many high-sounding phrases. If men could live on words uttered by plausible rascals, Northern Russia would indeed be a rich, if not a happy, country. But the territory which was regarded six years ago as an undeveloped Eldorado has become under Bolshevik rule a land where starvation and disease range wide, claiming their victims by the hundred thousand. Everything has undergone a desperate change. Credit, which must be the basis of any industrial activity, has disappeared; the Soviets print off paper money as quickly as the presses can work; and the machinery of industry has been so shattered that all talk of right to work and, failing work, to support is a mockery and a delusion. These Utopian phrases are intended merely to cloak a tyranny which goes far beyond anything known in any country in modern times. The laws—as our contemporary points out—"restrict the worker's freedom to apply, transfer, or deny his labor in a way which would certainly provoke revolution in this country." Nor is that all. "Another striking fact is that the dictatorship" of the proletariat permits private "capitalistic" enterprises(with their inherent possibilities of profit-making) to continue to exist, while forbidding the working man to earn anything in excess of the wage allotted to the trade and category to which he belongs. And these are the conditions existing under a regime which, it has been stated on numerous platforms in the poorer districts of this country, presents a model to be copied by the self-respecting working classes of a nation which, learning wisdom century by century, long since abandoned such childish and tyrannical ideas! The unfortunate people of Northern Russia, the vast majority of whom can neither read nor write, have been caught in the vise of an ignorant terrorism, which they were led to believe would prove their salvation. There is much talk of the evils of Tsarism, but when, under Nicholas II, or any of his immediate predecessors, with all their faults, was any such slavery imposed as is now being introduced by Lenine, Trotsky and their companions of misrule and misery?

The Soviet Code of Labor Laws has an appendix, describing the booklet which all citizens of the Republic receive without payment, and in which their whole industrial history (category, remuneration, standard of work unemployment, etc,) is registered day by day. This is bureaucracy in its ultimate madness. It is, however, apparent on slight consideration that this ridiculous and rritating booklet is an essential feature of a system which proclaims that all citizens, with certan exceptions, "are subject to compulsory labor." For how otherwise could the superior persons of the State departments keep track of the slaves, insuring that those who ought to work do work, and that those who are not permitted to work for various reasons, or who work other than in accordance with the regulations, are duly punished? It is an essental feature of this workers' paradise that all individual likes and dislikes should be ruthlessly stamped out. Every man and woman must labor or idle in obedience to rules which, nominally inflexible, are certainly subject to illicit variations. The aim is to dragoon the workers and stamp out anything in the nature of individual freedom. A limited amount of overtime may be worked for a specified sum, but "no additional remuneration is admissible (in excess of the standard determined for a given group or category), whatever the reason or form under which it is offered and whether paid in one and the same or in different places of employment of labor." The dictum of the Soviet is, in effect, "So many hours shall you labor in the place and under the conditions we dictate, and you shall receive no more money than we consider necessary." Work, work, work, under a system of rigid compulsion, set about by tyrannous restrictions, represents the application of the old and exploded theories which the Bolsheviks, in their ignorance, believed would prove the keys to a new world. For a time they beguiled and bemused their victims by opening all the opera houses and concert halls—non-attendance was a crime—and doing everything in their power to occupy the thoughts of those whom they had entrapped. That, again, was an old trick, which was not unknown to Augustus before the opening of the Christian era. But now the day of reckoning for the people of Russia, who were tempted in their blindness to applaud rapine and murder, has come. In order that anarchy may not lead to a complete dissolution of the body politic, the tyrants who murdered the Tsar and Tsaritsa and their children, and swept like a devouring pestilence over the land, leaving behind them a trail of blood, are now encompassing their dupes, counted not by thousands but by millions, in the bonds of an ignominous slavery. Compare the latter stage of Russia with its conditions six years before the revolution, and we have two pictures in striking contrast, which should act as a warning to the people of this country, enjoying all the advantages of ordered government, reviving industry and widespread and profitable employment.—Telegraph, London.

Church union so far as the local churches are concerned seems to have about reached the end of its tether. The obstructionists, consisting of those Methodists who have always been more or less opposed to union, have put so many obstacles in the way of an agreement that those who really desire union are about ready to throw up the sponge.

Rev. Batzold and Mrs. Batzold were the guests of honor at a farewell social in the United church on Monday evening. A pleasant time was spent by all present and Mr. Batzold was presented with a handsome purse as a token of the esteem in which he is held by the congregation. In the departure of Mr. Batzold the church loses a good preacher and a true Christian and a man the church will have trouble in replacing.

Huirt, alias Watson, the Bluebeard bigamist, did not overlook Fernie in his travels and while there is no evidence that the ladies of this town appealed to him, he was successful in swindling quite a few merchants while representing himself as a representative of the Credit Men's Association. He tried to pull his scheme on that cannie Scot, Bob Duthie, and did get away with quite a bunch of money, but Bob had him arrested in Calgary and recovered the cash.

A man by the name of Dunn, whose initials are either John W. or L. J., attempted to take his life early Thursday morning in the Roma Hotel by stabbing himself several times in the throat with a pocket knife. The injuries necessitated six stitches to close the wounds and while in a critical condition it is not thought they are of a fatal nature. Dunn until recently is stated to have been working in the capacity of foreman in the woods for the White Spruce Lumber Co. here. It is claimed he is normally of a very retiring disposition but a day or so ago his conduct appeared to be peculiar as he seemed to be laboring under the delusion that the "bolsheviki" were about to do him grave harm. His act upon himself indicates this condition did not improve and in addition to his present serious physical condition he is still very irrational mentally.

The C.P.R. passenger trains will change time on May 2nd. No. 67 from the east will arrive at 9.48 a.m., and No. 68, from the west at 6.53, C.P.R. time (local time 1 hour later). The extra local train will not go on until June 1st.

EMMA GOLDMAN AND BERKMAN

It all depends upon where you're born and whom you choose for ancestors, how you turn out in life.

If Emma Goldman had been born in Hawaii she might have been different. But her advent was in Kovno province, Russia, in 1869, amid an atmosphere of bomb explosions and thunderstorms. As a vampire she was rather of the hard-boiled shouting variety, who vamped more in theory than in practice. But she found a number of apt pupils for her free love and atheist doctrines before departed from America on the good ship Buford, surrounded by Alexander Berkman and a choice collection of other radicals.

When Emma was young, her amiable old father lavished care on her early education, teaching her to stab the snow man just back of the droshky garage with icicles, and giving her nihilist cartoons of Alexander II, to play paper dolls with. Even as a child Emma was good at reciting. She could deliver the most iconoclastic lectures by the time she was 9. One evening the Grand Camel of the Anarchist School of Perpetual Emotion patted her under the chin and told her she was a promising little squabovitch. Emma slapped his face and he was so pleased with the militant demonstration that he resolved to send her to Germany to inhale some kultur. She studied in Konigsberg, Prussia, and heard everywhere the beautiful philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, so that by the time she was 13 she was fired with a desire to smash all the cosmic chinaware and teach all future generations to believe in nothing, absolutely nothing.

Emma was so good at this sort of thing that they decided to send her to America, referred to by the Grand Camel as "The Free and Easy."

It was in 1886 that Emma passed the national board of censorship at Ellis Island. But she didn't stop at New York. She went to Chicago because she thought she could work better from the inside of the country looking out. . . . She hadn't been there long before some of her friends were executed for participating in the Haymarket street riot. It was a painful disillusionment for Emma. She had been taught that they never did anything to you for a little affair like that. She decided that Chicago was too quick on the trigger and packed her clean clothes up in her pocket handkerchief and moved to New York.

Here is where she became a convert to her own teachings of free love. She hadn't taken her own theories very seriously to heart until she met and married Jacob Kersner in 1887. Marriage convinced her that free love was less trouble. Jacob took a trip to the well and Emma went to call on John G. Most. John was the head radical in those days though he was pale pink compared to some of his successors. He immediately saw possibilities in Emma, though she couldn't speak English without a strong vodka accent.

"I know, little Tchoopsky flower," endeared John, " you speak but three languages—Russian, German and profane—but I want you to run down to Deadman's alley and Croakem street and address the crowd there. I'll serve the drinks, and it won't matter whether they understand or not. Wave your hands, tap your bean now and then and yell like thunder, and they will fall for those hypnotic eyes and swear to every word yu say."

Even so, the crowd went away from Emma's speech declaring it was the most sensible lecture they ever heard. They could tell by the way she rolled her eyes that she must be right.

Then she met Alexander Berkman. Alexander didn't have any ragtime band, but he was all broke out with elocution. When Emma was arrested by a vengeful capitalist cop for talking too loud from a water plug in Union Square, Alexander went to see her in jail, ant brought her dainty gifts of limburger cheese and wienies all garnished with garlic. That won her heart completely. She couldn't ask for a better Free Silver Lover than Alex, who didn't care a tinker's darn about how many dimes he spent on her.

Not long after, Emma was saddened by the news that Alex had been arrested for target practice, Henry C. Frick being the alleged target.

For a while, Emma was careful with her propaganda. She stuck rather closely to her side line, which was trained nursing, and had the good luck to be called upon to nurse a soignee lady with Fifth avenue on her cards. She served revolution with the nourishment that the doctor ordered for her patient, and soon became a fad among the upper ten ladies, who were bored to death with Airedale cocktails and Sazerac terriers. Emma became almost as necessary as grand opera to the idle rich. It was so original, you know, to have a real live revolutionist address one's club instead of some stupid interpreter of Browning. Emma's books on free love and such began to be classed as ultra smart, and she found anarchy a most remunerative calling. She was even invited to tango teas, and puffed anarchy into her partner's ear while swaying to the schottische.

But a chap named Czolgosz heard her address her subterranean night class and became over-enthusiastic. He shot President McKinley, and Emma was arrested again. There was not enough evidence to implicate her and she was released, but she lost most of her parlor bolshevik trade as a result. She retired again and lived under the unassuming name of Miss Smith.

At last she was emboldened by the reappearance of Alexander Berkman, who immediately swapped his creaking prison shoes for anarchy sneakers, and after a fond reunion they started a magazine.

With the great war white paper became scarce and anarchy unpopular. Emma and Alex had gotten away with so many things that they were bold enough to preach open sedition, and advised the youth of the United States that they ought not to stand for conscription.

The answer to this attitude was immediately to back the Black Maria up to their front door.

Emma stepped in, propped her feet carelessly on the seat opposite, and told the driver: "Home, James."

It was in again, and out again. Emma and Alex got so much free advertising that they felt it was a shame they were in jail so much that they couldn't capitalize it.

They had expressed such undying admiration for the soviet government of Free Russia that the attorney-general conceived a happy hunch. Why not give all the reds a free ride across the sea to that frost-bitten land they loved so much? The transport Buford was fitted up as an ark of the radicals, and Emma and Alex went aboard hand in hand, admitting that after all it was lots better than they would have gotten if their trial had come off in Russia.

When Alex first piped the shore of Finland he turned to Emma and said: "Well, at least Russia is red and wet. We can get a glass of beer and revolute in peace."

HINTS FOR TRAVELLERS

The necessarily small space in a sleeping car in comparison with an hotel suggests that the greatest comfort to the sleeping car traveller will result from a fair regard for the lights and feelings of others by all sleeping car passengers.

So long as passengers desire to have their clothes brushed with a whisk, the space in the passage way at the end of the car is the only proper place for this practice to occur. The sleeping car company's instructions to the porters require them to ask passengers to go to the aisle at the end of the car if desiring to be brushed. Porters are merely human, therefore differ in their obedience to orders. Every traveller can assist in the observance of this rule (which was made for the general good) and prevent annoyance to other passengers. If the public want the brushing practice to cease altogether, the remedy is in their possession.

The combined lavatory and smoking room is necessarily limited in capacity, and at the time in the morning when it has to be used as a lavatory, it is not intended to be used at all as a smoking room.

Don't smoke in this room in the early morning when the otrer later risers than you, are obliged to perform their toilets. You can defer your smoke. You are in the way and merely an annoyance to the majority and show a selfish disregard for the rights of others. Under present conditions, get up late once in a well-filled car and your one experience of the man in the seat smoking will show you what other people think about your case at other times.

Don't bring your suit case into this room. Use a toilet "hold-all." Many men do. You can. Give the other fellows a chance of some room.

Don't whisk your clothes in this room if other persons are present. They don't want to breathe your dust. They merely consider you are wanting in good manners.

Don't get up late and shave, if by so doing you discommode others. No one objects to a man shaving if he does not interfere unreasonably with other men who want merely to wash their face, hands, etc.

The instant you have finished your toilet, get out of the room. You have no further rights there while the other men require the room as a lavatory. They are anxious to see you go as quickly as you can. Don't stay in this room and crowd the later risers.

Don't whistle anywhere in a sleeping car. Your alleged music pleases only you. No one else wants to hear it. Most men think the whistle a nuisance.

Don't talk loudly in the body of the car when most people have retired to sleep. The others have paid for as quiet a rest as such traveling affords. Their only interest in your conversation is to wish you somewhere else.

After 9 a.m. usually the smoking room is in use almost entirely for smoking purposes. Those who are not smoking should not occupy the room to the exclusion of those desiring to smoke. An old Traveller.

"THE TRIFLERS," AT THE ISIS, MONDAY & TUESDAY

Edith Roberts, the dainty and charming little actress who has been starred by Universal in a number of delightful photodramas, such as "The Love Swindler," "Beans," "A Taste of Life." "The Deciding Kiss" and "Lasca," has done the best work of her screen career in "The Triflers," the Universal production in which she will be seen at the Isis theatre next Monday and Tuesday.

HER OWN WORST ENEMY IN "THE WEB OF DECEIT"

In "The Web of Deceit," the Edwin Carewe-Pathe feature showing Friday and Saturday at the Isis theatre, Dolores Cassinelli is her own greatest enemy. She lies to and cheats and deceives herself, and the way in which it is accomplished is very simple—she enacts two roles.

Oddly enough, it is as the selfish, unsrcupulous and deceitful siter that Miss Cassinelli has her biggest opportunity. While the sympathies are entirely with the sweet and gentle Lucille, Wanda manages to hold the centre of the stage because it is she who weaves the plot into a fascinating tangle, pulling Lucille and several others into her web, but none more securely than herself.

An authority on "What Women Will Wear Next Season," Miss Cassinelli brings forth several advanced styles in "The Web of Deceit." Edwin Carewe, making his debut as a producer after many years of directing, gave the picture his personal attention in every detail, and the settings are said to be particularly beautiful and lavish.

Finis Fox, the well known writer for the screen, is the author of "The Web of Deceit," written with Miss Cassinelli in mind for the leading roles. Mitchell Harris, popular leading man of the legitimate stage, makes his debut before the camera in the role of the artist hero. Hugh Cameron, Franklyn Hanna and Letty Ford complete the cast in important roles.

HADN'T SEEN WELL DAY IN 25 YEARS

Mrs. Donaven Eats Anything; Nerves Are Calm and She Sleeps Soundly Every Nnght.

"Just think of it! After being in wretched condition for twenty-five years my wife's health has been completely restored after taking only five bottles of Tanlac," said T. E. Donaven, who resides at 7695 Prince Edward Street, Vancouver, B.C. recently.

"For all these years," he continued, "my wife has not seen a well day, and has had the worst sort of stomach trouble. She had no appetite to speak of and when she did manage to force down a little something it would sour and ferment and gas would form and she would have the worst sort of pains. She had the heartburn nearly all the time and her heart would palpitate dreadfully. Her back pained her so she could barely stoop over or move about. She was very nervous and the least little noise out of the ordinary would completely upset her and even the rustling of a newspaper would get on her nerves. It was impossible for her to get a good night's sleep and she would get up in the mornings feeling worse than when she went to bed. Then, too, she was troubled a great deal with constipation and had to be taking some sort of laxative nearly all the time. She lost in strength and weight and felt tired and worn out all the time.

"After reading so much about Tanlac and knowing of the good results others in our immediate community had gotten from it she began taking it and got better from the very first. Her appetite is simply wonderful and everything she eats agrees with her perfectly. She does not suffer any more with gas nor does she have those pains in her back. Her nervousness is entirely gone and she sleeps all night long without waking up once, and says she feels rested and refreshed in the morning. She has gained in weight and strength with every bottle she has taken and is more like herself than she has been in years. We both are more than pleased with the good results she has received from Tanlac."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

NAZIMOVA IS SUPREME ON SCREEN AND STAGE

Nazimova, supreme star of stage has achieved an added triumph in her latest screen production, "Out of the Fog," which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre on Wednesday next. This play is an adaption for the screen from her great stage success "'Ception Shoals," a play which created great comment both here and abroad and which was noted for the intensity of its dramatic situations.

Madame Nazimova is an actress of unique and original talent, she is known as the woman of a thousand moods and her art is as great in light fantastic or whimsical moments as it is in the heavy emotional drama for whch she is internationally famed. She was born in the Russian Crimea, in a little town on the shores of the Black Sea, but was educated in Geneva, where she decided on the career of a violinist and studied accordingly. She made her first public appearance at the age of twelve at a concert in her native town but it was not long after this that she gave up music for the drama. She studied under the great Sanislawsky who considered her an artist of great ability even at an early age. As leading woman in a Russian stock company she played more han two hundred parts.

Since coming to America Nazimova has played in both Russian and English and is known for her great characterizations in the leading roles of "The Doll's House," "Hedda Gabler," and "Little Eyolf." Like other noted artists she has grown to prefer the screen to the stage and devotes most of her time to the splendid work for which her name has become famous here and abroad. Her work in "Revelation," "Toys of Fate," and "Eye for Eye," has set a higher plane for motion picture achievement than has hitherto been reached by any other screen star, and "Out of the Fog" shows that her art is infinite.

Albert Capellani, the distinguished Frenchman who directed this picture also made the screen adaption from H. Austin Adam's "'Ception Shoals," with the collaboration of June Mathis.

"THE GREATEST QUESTION" GRIFFITH'S LATEST PICTURE AT THE ORPHEUM

When D. W. Griffith's latest production, "The Greatest Question," a photodrama of unseen forces, is shown on the screen of the Orpheum Theatre Thursday next, it will mark the achievement of one of the greatest and most significant landmarks in the history of the silent drama.

Unquestionably the most startling feature of this production is Griffith's daring decision to build a photoplay about the most awesome queston within the human imagination—the question of a Hereafter and Heaven. This element of Occultism has been too daring a problem for those professing a knowledge of this question of mysticism, but Griffith goes on record with a point blank answer.

The delineation of the delicate subject of this picture was entrusted to Griffith's tried and tested players. The part of Nellie Jarvis, the orphaned Kentucky child, is taken by Lillian Gish, whose name has long been linked with Griffth productions.

Robert Harron, who plays the role of a country boy lover, has won a pronounced success through his depiction of parts of kile nature. Ralph Graves, who plays the part of the young sailor who is swept from the conning tower of a submarine, is well known for his work in many Griffith productions, in addition to important parts under various other directors.

George Fawcett, one of the screen's most distinguished actors, plays the part of the father of the impoverished Kentucky family, bitter and rebellious against Providence. As his wife, who relies upon her faith to bring back her son who went to war, Eugenie Besserer is seen.

George Nichols, Josephine Crowell and Kate Bruce, all stars in their own names, complete the cast.

"The Greatest Question" is Mr. Griffith's initial production to be distributed by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, a nation-wide organization of exhibitors assembled to bring about bigger and better motion pictures.

THE ATTACK ON THE INDUSTRIAL COURTS

A struggle of great importance is now being fought out in Kansas. It is to determine whether it is possible to maintain modern industry without constant resort to industrial warfare. In this question employers, employees and the public are equally concerned.

The law constituting the industrial court was not enacted to hold down labor or to harass capital. It was enacted to give both sides the chance to get a square deal without resorting to force. In the Kansas coal fields there have been scores of strikes every year. These have been costly to the miners as well as to the operators. They have helped increase the price of coal to the consumer. Yet the miners have felt the strike was a necessary weapon to obtain justice.

Governor Allen and the Kansas legislature said in effect: "This constant warfare bears heavily on all concerned, including the public. It is a relic of barbarism. Civilization surely has reached a stage where it is possible to get justice in a community like Kansas without fighting for it. Let us organize a court to take cognizance of all grievances ha dto adjust them without fighting. In doing this we shall be following the lessons of history. There was a time when every man sought to avenge his grievance per- [illegible] But that produced an in- [illegible] situation. So now he goes to court. Courts aren't perfect, but they are far better than duels. Our industrial court may make mistakes. But in the long run it will do substantial justice and everybody will be better off."

It was a splendid enterprise, the organization of this industrial court. It is full of promise for America. If it succeeds in Kansas it will be adopted in other states. The widespread adoption of resort to a court instead of to the strike would be a wonderful thing for the country.

Now without giving the plan a trial, the Kansas miners are trying to wreck the law. This is not a petty matter. It is not a matter of politics. It is a matter that concerns the welfare not merely of Kansas, but of the whole nation.

It is hard to conceive that the miners themselves when they have reflected on the issues will continue on their course. Surely public sentiment in Kansas can not permit the law to fail. It is bound to back Governor Allen to the limit in making the court a success. Its destruction would be a tragedy.—Kansas City Star.

"WIDOW BY PROXY" AT ORPHEUM FRIDAY; SATURDAY

More than ordinary interest centres around Marguerite Clark's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, "Widow by Proxy," to be shown at the Orpheum Theatre Friday and Saturday, because it is the dainty star's first production since becoming acclimated to the new California atmosphere in which she is working. Miss Clark's former photoplays have been made in New York, and it is only recently that she left the metropolis and joined the colony of motion picture stars at Los Angeles.

A large amount of that celebrated California sunshine is reflected in "Widow by Proxy," and it is one of the brightest light comedies in which Miss Clark has yet appeared. The little favorite has the part of a pretty "bachelor girl," who poses as her recently widowed chum in order to win for her the inheritance which the real widow is too proud to claim. Two delightful love stories are woven into the plot, which is crowded with pleasant surprises and a startling climax. It was adapted from the Broadway stage success by the same name and was directed by Walter Edwards. Nigel Barrie is leading man.

NURSE'S LIST SHOWS 50 DESERTED WIVES

Observations made by social service workers while visiting the sick showed unusual domestic problems in local households.

On downtown visiting nurse has 50 deserted wives on her list since last April, and there are 33 other women, victims of unfortunate circumstances, who also need advice and assistance.

During the smallpox and influenza epidemics there were many wage-earners who were unprepared for a vacation through illness and when their salaries failed to arrive through enforced idleness they experienced some of the sudden pangs of poverty. Quarantine meant from three to four weeks of rest, and while the city supplied enough food for the table there was no provision made to meet the demands of the landlord.

"Rent is the most difficult proposition we have to handle," said an official connected with a local charitable organization, "nobody seems to have any sympathy for debts contracted through failure to pay the monthly house rent." Solid, hard cash is required to meet the obligations of the landlord, and this does not appeal to the majority of people.

The question naturally arises, why can't people save for these emergencies?—Toronto World.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, lassitude, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

BUICK BUG AT LAST LOCATED

Lost for years and finally recovered from an old warehouse in Kansas City, one of the most famous racing cars of earlier speed history is now holding an honor position in the sales Company at Van Ness Avenue and California, San Francisco. This car is the Buick Bug which brought Louis Chevrolet and Bob Burman from obscurity to fame in a remarkable series of history-making records and speed contests.

It was in 1909 that the Buick factory introduced this go-fast sensation to the world. The car was the forerunner of the modern racer, and marked a big step forward in construction principles. The Buick construction of the day was followed throughtout in the various units with the exception of the radiator. Instead of the conventional front design, the hood was brought down to a bullet-like point in front to decrease wind resistance, and a series of coils with metal fins were placed in horseshoe fashion over the cowl.

The Buick motor, with valve-in-head construction, was six-inch bore with seven-inch stroke, a giant in comparison to the Buick motor of today, but in keeping with the engineering tendencies of the time. And the disc wheels were introduced on this car, a practice now being adopted for touring models.

On the hood of the car are painted some interesting figures, showing a portion of the records created by this marvel of its time.

The most of the records were made on Ormond Beach, Florida, where the distance events were given the additional thrills of flat turns at the end of the course. It was necessary for the drivers to swing around at the finish of the beach course and drive back over the same track. There were no speedways in those days on which the drivers might continue in unbroken pace indefinitely.

When Charles S. Howard, president of the Howard Automobile Company, heard that the historic car had been uncovered in Kansas City, he immediately began negotiations for it purchase. He had particular interest in the old racer because of the important part played by it in the racing history of America. President Howard himself has been a Buick history-maker on the Pacific Coast, not only in various auto contests, but in building up in his fifteen years of sales activities the largest motor car distributing organization in the world.

And President Howard himself delights now in taking a spin at the wheel of the old Buick, accompanied by his two sons, Charles S. Howard, Jr., and Lindsay C. Howard, who drive their own speedy little Howard Specials. And they give their father a spirited race, these boys who have inherited that hardy love of the fair contest which has characterized their father's remarkable business success.

The small speed creations which were built for the Howard boy have been the marvels of the speed tracks. Piloted by the younger Charles and Lindsay, these little Howard Specials have shown a speed of eighty miles an hour. With the fearlessness of their father, the boys were at rome at the wheel on any kind of a road or track, amazing the older drivers with their skill in handling their miniature racers.

AFFAIRS IN IRELAND

According to certain chroniclers, the state of Ireland is much worse than is is painted in the news permitted to reach other parts of the world. If the statement of another, who has been in the country and vouches for the facts, be true, the condition of Ireland is not so bad as it is commonly described and it is not hopeless. The trouble with the country is that its internal affairs have been wrested from the hands of the people really concerned and have been grasped by hands of irresponsible agitators and incendiaries. The farmers of Ireland, this correspondent avers, are proseprous in their business; they are masters of their own acres, as the landlord no longer exists; they have assured markets with previously unheard-of prices for their products, and the only thing they long for is permission to continue their industry in peace. It is the agitator who is the thorn in their flesh, as he is at the bottom of most of the troubles in all sections of the world.

The United States has a drastic method of dealing with that pernicious class of people. It rounds them up, considers their cases summarily and deports them to the place from which they came. That is not the custom in the parts of the earth given to British people for a possession. In the mass or in the unit we are exteremly jealous of personal liberties. It is a cherished right to speak the thing we will. The Irish agitators do not stop at speaking, however; they are acting, and their actions are in the highest degree reprehensible to people who prefer to achieve their objects by peaceful and orderly methods. If the new Secretary for Ireland can devise a way of dealing with masses of the people to follow their genuine inclination, which is on the whole to pursue peacefully their avocations, the Irish problem to that extent will be solved. —Colonist.

THE REWARD OF POLITENESS

They were entertaining the minister at dinner, according to the London Telegraph, and after dessert little Johnny said:

"Won't you take another piece of pie?"

The minister laughed. "Well, Johnny," he said, "since you are so polite, I will have another."

"Good!" said Johnny. "Now, ma, remember your promise. You said if it was necessary to cut into the second pie I could have another piece."

MINE SAFETY ASSOCIATION

Report of a meeting of the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association held at Fernie, B.C., on May 2, 1920:

Present—B. Caufiled, President; W. R. Wilson, President C.N.P. Coal Co.; R. Strachan, District Inspector of Mines; C. Stubbs, E. Rutledge, Fernie, J. McAlpine, Coal Creek; T. H. Williams, T. Baybutt, Michel.

The chairman announced that Secretary Hancock had resigned and left for England and C. Stubbs was elected Secretary.

The chairman announced that in accordance with the action of the meeting of Nov. 2, 1919, rules had been drafted, and these were submitted and adopted as follows:

Constitution and Bylaws

Article 1—This organization shall be known as the East Kootenay Mine Safety Association.

Article 2—The object of the Association shall be to promote safety in mines and mining by the adoption of an active and regular propaganda for the purpose of educating all employees engaged in mining to follow more carefully the safe and proper methods of work which will keep them constantly alert to the need of caution. A scheme of safety measures designed to eliminate as far as possible dangerous conditions that may or have caused accidents, adoption of First Aid methods, and of logical methods of procedure in rescue and recovery work. To recommend the adoption of approved types of First Aid, Mine Rescue and Recovery Appliances, and to obtain and circulate information on these subjects. To obtain the hearty co-operation of officials and employees to establish proper safeguards against injury and loss of life; to encourage workmen in and around the mines to qualify themselves for rescue work and keep constantly in training, and to encourage all employees to take up a course of training in First Aid work.

The standard of First Aid work recognized by this Association shall be that of the St. John's Ambulance Association, and the methods adopted in mine rescue work shall be those adopted by the Provincial Bureau of Mines Department.

Article 3, Section 1—Membership shall consist of all members of Local Centres, members of the Advisory Board and such honorary members as are from time to time elected by the Advisory Board.

Section 2—Applications for membership from any mining district must be submitted to the Advisory Board together with the names of the proposed applicants.

Bylaws of the Advisory Board

Section 1—The officers shall consist of a President, one Vice-President from each Local Centre and a Secretary-Treasurer.

Section 2—The Advisory Board shall consist of two delegates from each Local Centre claiming membership, and the officers of the organization.

Section 3—The annual meeting for the election of officers shall be held on the third Saturday in March, when the offices of President and Vice President shall be filled from the members of the Advisory Board. The Secretary may be elected by the Advisory Board either from the Advisory Board or from the active membership.

Section 4 — The candidate for any office receiving a majority of the votes cast at the Annual Meeting shall be declared elected.

Section 5—In addition to the Annual meeting there shall be a meeting of the Advisory Board each quarter, or more often as the President may deem necessary.

Section 6—The President shall perform the duties of the presiding officer and chairman of the Association. He shall also sign all orders for the payment of money.

The Senior Vice-President shall perform all the duties prescribed for the President in his absence.

Section 8—The Secretary-Treasurer shall prepare a program for and keep a record of each meeting, countersign all orders for money that have been signed by the President, and shall keep a record of all monies received and disbursed by him on account of the Association as the Advisory Board may authorize.

These rules will be sent to the Local Centres for adoption and officers will be elected at the first quarterly meeting to be held at Fernie, May 16, 1920.

A general discussion as to the finances of the E. K. M. S. A. took place, during which it was suggested that the Secretary should communicate with the Provincial Department of Mines, the Compensation Board and the Coal Companies. This suggestion will be carried out.

A general discussion as to payment for time spent in training in mine rescue work took place, the method of obtaining payment rather than the principle involved being the contentious point.

Sunday, May 9, Mothers Day—Special meeting in Salvation Army hall at 7.30 p.m. Children come and bring your mother. All are welcome.

The Benevolent Society has during the past week had two urgent appeals for clothing. One family of six children ranging in ages from 13 years down; the other a family of five children, the eldest being but ten years of age. The fathers in each family have been laid up for weeks by sickness. Anyone having children's clothing or anything suitable for making over, might send to or call up Mrs. E. K. Stewart, phone 114, and same will be called for by the committee and proper distribution made.

SMUGGLED MUCH LIQUOR

During the last week or ten days the United States Customs officials and revenue officers have made some startling discoveries with reference to the liquor traffic from this province into the State of Montana, particularly through the port of Gateway and the lne in that vicinity. It is understood that for some time there has been strong suspicion that large quantities of liquor were being smuggled but it was only recently that it was discovered that cases of liquor were being conveyed across the border buried in open cars of coal. Daily a G. N. freight leaves here with from 60 to 80 cars of coal for export. The report reaches here that on Thursday last the customs officials on boarding one of these trains to check manifests discovered that the train crew, comprising the conductor and two brakemen, were somewhat under the influence of liquor, and a search of the caboose disclosed three cases of liquor concealed therein. Forthwith the entire trainload was ordered on a siding and a minute inspection followed. In one car alone forty cases were found, piled in tiers at each end, completely covered by coal. The train crew were thereupon taken into custody. Each carload was subsequently thoroughly searched and a report from Gateway states that over 150 cases of liquor have been seized. Every coal train entering the United States through Gateway is now held up for 24 hours, during which period the officials of the U.S. Customs department search for hidden contraband. It is further reported from reliable sources that the authorities, American and Canadian, are thoroughly investigating this wholesale smuggling of liquor in connection with which it is alleged there is a ring representing which are agents in Canada as well as in the United States, and it is their purpose to place the responsibility where it rightfully belongs.

ONE BIG UNION EJECTED

Yesterday the One Big Union was ejected from the miners hall here and the International United Mine Workers of America are now in possession. This building was originally constructed by Fernie Local U. M. W. of A. twelve years ago. However, when the disruption occurred in the rangs of labor here a year ago the miners decided in favor of the O.B.U., retained possession of the property and continued to do so until yesterday. Legal proceedings to secure possession for the U.M.W. A. upon the ground that they are the rightful owners were instituted by A. Macneil, barrister, some weeks ago and an injunction secured preventing the occupants from disposing of any of the fixtures and chattels was secured. This injunction was made permanent before the Supreme Court in Vancouver pending hearing of the trial of the action. An appearance on behalf of the O.B.U. was entered and ten days allowed for them to file a defence. Two days ago the time limit for filing defence expired and judgment by default was signed in favor of the U.M.W.A., following which the ejection proceedings took place yesterday.

TOURISTS COMING

(By J. F. Spalding)

It begins to look as if we might have Spring very soon after all. This last winter has been a humdinger. Let us hope that the summer will be the same.

My long description of this district appears in this month's issue of the "Inland Motorist," published in Walla Walla, copies of which have just come to hand. The story occupies most of the issue and the illustrations come out very well. A picture of Crow's Nest Mountain is on the outside cover. The following is the editorial on it:

"Our leading story this number deals with the Canadian country and tells you something of the beauties to be seen there. This summer we are going to organize a trip of about two weeks' duration to visit this section and see how near right friend Spalding is. If you want to come along, please notify the secretary. We will all travel together and have a service car in attendance with a capable mechanic to help you if help is needed. It will be strictly "Dutch Treat," each one paying his own, and everyone should have a real good time. Excellent fishing, hunting, plenty of real beer and good Scotch (at $5 per) should help some. These items coupled with good roads and beautiful scenery are about all one could wish for."

I had a letter from the secretary yesterday saying that he had already received quite a few entries for this tour. This is encouraging, because no date has yet been set, and he expects that as soon as the date is named there will then be a coniderable number of entries. He states that he is going to run the story in the Pendleton papers now and that there is no doubt there will be a lot come from there with them.

Respecting the big tour coming to Lake Louise from Los Angeles, I wrote to the Chamber of Commerce of Helena, Mont., who has charge of the western end of it, and put our claims for it to be brought through here before him in the same way I did in respect to the Winnipeg-Lake Louise tour. He replies in part as follows: "Undoubtedly the tour from California will go up on the East side of the mountains and return on the West side. This will bring Fernie in the itinerary." This makes three tours coming here this summer that we know of now, but these are not all. I understand that there is a good chance of another coming from the Dakotas via Yellowstone and Glacier, and one from Colorado.

It is to be hoped that some effort will be made this year to better the condition of many of our sidewalks and also to clean up the North end of Victoria avenue, at least as far as the school. The block between the garage and the school is a disgrace to any side street, let alone a main highway and will not create a very good impression amongst tourists.

It is impossible to please everyone. (I've realized that in the last few months probably more than anyone else here). An instance of this was brought to me today by one of our business men, who told me that several commercial travellers in the last day or two had complained about the poor accommodation here, or rather, not so much at the accommodation, but the want of service, and neglect. If we want the tourist travel here, this is one thing which the hotel men will have to rectify. Service, service, and more of it, is the essential thing the hotels must see that the tourist gets. No matter how crowded a hotel may be, so long as the service is good, a good impression will be created, but a crowded hotel and poor service will do more to keep tourists away than anything else. They go away and talk about it.

With the greatly increased cost of everything, it is not to be expected that the hotels can charge pre war prices and make good money. Our hotels have barely raised their former prices, with the result that service suffers. During the whole of my last long trip I did not stop at one hotel whose charges were so little as here, and I certainly think that the hotel men here should charge more than they do—$4.00 or $4.50 a day on the American plan would be entirely reasonable, and $1.50 to $2.50 on the European plan. Most of the hotels on the American side have special rates to commercial men and a notice to that effect is conspicuously displayed in them. The average tourist realizes that hotels can give a better rate to regular customers and I have never heard any unfavorable comment about it. Our hotels more than favor[illegible] compare with those in any town [illegible] this size I have been in, and they would be perfectly justified in raising their rates sufficiently to enable them to bring their service up to the standard necessary for the proper handling of the tourist traffic. The hotel men should get together and discuss this question without delay as the seaon will be commencing very soon now, and if any alteration is to be made, it should commence with the season.

We are on the touring map of North America now, but only in small type. If we all pull together as we should, in a very short time we shall be on it in big block type.

Information was received here yesterday of the death of Ralph Dooley at St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver. Mr. Dooley was a former resident of this city, having served on the city police force for four years, and latterly suffered from ill health. He left here about a year ago for Calgary, but later moved to Vancouver. He was a member of the Lethbridge police force for several years prior to coming here.

ROD AND GUN CLUB MEETING

The annual meeting of the Fernie District Rod & Gun Club was was held in the city council chamber on April 12th with a very large attendance. President N. E. Suddaby addressed the meeting on the work done during the last year in connection with the restocking of the streams in this district. The secretary read the annual statement, which showed the Club to be in exceptionally good financial condition and the present membership to be over 100.

The Club will hold a members, Bull Trout fishing competition during the fishing season and all fish entered will be shown in the window of N. E. Suddaby's drug store. Suitable prizes will be offered, which should appeal to all sportsmen in this district.

The following officers were elected to serve during 1920:

President—Thos. Beck.

Vice-President—Guy Johnston.

Sec.-Treas.—J. W. Carnwath.

Executive Board—M Tully, J. Bough, T Muirhead, G. Schupe, A. Fearson, Geo. Hearn, T. Prentice, N. E. Suddaby, W. Baldrey and W. J. Claridge.

The Club is making every effort to promote better fish and game protection in the district and all sportsmen are invited to attend the next meeting of the Club, which will be held in the city council chamber on May 10 at 8 pm.

Applications for membership will be received by any member of the Club.

C. P. Hill, capitalist, of Montreal, spent a few days in the city this week, on a tour of inspection. Mr. Hill has interests in this city as well as others in the Crow's Nest Pass. He originated the Hillcrest Collieries at Hillcrest, Alta.

BOARD TRADE MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the Fernie Board of Trade was held Thursday evening. One of the principal matters considered was the formation of an Amalgamated or Associated Board of Trade for East Kootenay. Cranbrook and Windermere boards are heartily in accord with this endeavor and the Fernie Board last night decided to send a delegation of ten to attend a joint meeting to be held at Invermere on May 28, when the Associated Board will undoubtedly be organized.

With regard to the proposed visit of the Vancouver Board to West Kootenay during June, the local Board has extended a cordial invitation to that body to extend its itinerary to include Fernie and East Kootenay points.

The Publicity Agent reported guaranteed subscriptions aggregating $1365 already received.

The Winnipeg-Lake Louise tour is expected through here in July, while parties from California, Walla Walla, Colorado Springs and several other places have signified their intention of visiting this section during the season. Indications are already very favorable to a great tourist influx of auto tourists through the Crow's Nest Pass this summer, and preparations to receive them are being made.

ELKO NOTES

(By Jim Thistlebek)

An appreciation of the Elko Notes —Not seeing the Elko Notes in the usual local papers, a lady residing at Salmo, B.C., writes to Fred Roo to find the reason why:

Oh, what is the matter with you,
Fred Roo?
It's weeks since I last saw a line from you.
I've hunted the daily news through and through—
Can it be that you died with the flu,
Fred Roo?

Your notes they were breezy and comical too,
From sublime to ridiculous they often
grew,
But nevertheless they were usually true.
I wonder what's happened to you,
Fred Roo?

I passed through town when the year was new,
And as the "Old Historic Burg" came into view
I wished for a chance to say how do you do
To yourself and "Jim Thistlebeak" too, Fred Roo.

I'd be very pleased if I only knew How yu survived the lng winter through.
Did you freeze when the atmosphere
colder grew,
While collecting the bills that were
due, Fred Roo,

I noticed quite clear as the train passed through,
The noses of some were a purplish hue.
Perhaps it's the climate, the air and the dew,
And I wondered if any were you,
Fred Roo.

You don't know me or I don't know
you,
But really your "stuff" isn't bad,
Fred Roo.z
It brings up a smile when we're all feeling blue,
And we tackle life's problems anew,
Fred Roo.

A sixtette of Rotarians registered at the Columbia Hotel last week, with their infectious smiles: J. C. Sheirlock, Oscar Jacobson, G. L. Baldwin, representing the Alberta meat trust and the double yoked egg plants; Walter Harwood, T. Prentice and Jack Ingram, Fernie's Publicity Commissioners.

Life's a game of see-saw;
Many's the ups and downs,
One day you're counting five pun
notes,
Another collecting Brown's.
Whether misfortune may come your way,
Whether you go it too fast,
Never say die, never say die,
Keep up your pluck to the last.

Joe McMullen, "that eminent Soapologist" who made Royal Crown Soap famous throughout the west, was in Elko last week and stated at a meeting of the Queen Bees the other Saturday that soap is one of the distinguishing marks of civilization.

There's a lot of people in this world who would sooner say nothing than speak a kind word.

If there should be any fracture of the peace treaty and another European war, which many papers claim is almost a certainty, those responsible for it should be exterminated.

You can live without neighbors but not without friends.

James P. Watson, the bluebeard bigamist, was well known in the Old Historic Burg of Elko. It is supposed by many that he got considerable hot air while making these visits, while he was munching up his popular ten cent biscuit lunches between walks. The Calgary Herald has the best photo of Watson published, with a complexion like an underdone pie crust. He told the writer when he married Kate Kruse in Nelson how he slipped it over the other grip men. With his pearls of information about the fair and fickle sex you could string a necklace that would girdle Kootenay Lake.

"JOHN BULL" WAXES VERY IRONICAL AT U.S. EXPENSE

London—Horatio Bottomley, publicist and member of parliament, famous in Great Britain as an implacable anti-American, has addressed an open letter to Ambassador Davis resenting what he regards as America's pharisacial spirit in criticizing the conduct of his country's "internal affars."

"Last year alone it was reported that 14 negroes were burned, 31 were shot, 24 hanged, two beaten to death and one cut to pieces for the fiendish entertainment of your countrymen," Bottomley wrote in his paper, John Bull. "During this time the high-souled Senate, the higher-souled American newspapers and a portion of the peerless American people busied themselves in lecturing Britain regarding her internal affairs.

"I suggest that you do everything in your power to induce your noble an dunselfish patriots to end the infamies to which I have alluded."

WEST KOOTENAY POWER & LIGHT CO. MAY COME EAST

The Creston Review's report of the recent meeting of the board of trade there has the following regarding the efforts of the West Kootenay Power and Light Co. to reach Kimberley to supply light and power for the Sullivan Mine there:

"In well informed circles the rumor persists that the West Kootenay Light and Power Co. at Bonnington Falls have been unable to find any short line from that point to Kimberley along which it would be safe to erect a pole line to carry electric power to the big Consolidated zinc plant at Kimberley, and in consequence of this the line will have to come via Creston. The secretary was instructed to write the power company in this connection, suggesting that Creston citizens as well as many of her ranchers would be in the market for both light and power and would be pleased to enter into negotiations for the placing of a sub-station here."—Cranbrook Herald.

STRINGENT FIRE LAWS IN FORCE

With May 1 the season arrived in which clearing fires may only be employed by those with permits.

Stringent fire laws for the protection of life and property and combating forest fires, have been issued for the close season, May 1 to Oct. 1, of this year, providing penalties from $10 to $300, for violation of provincial fire laws, and for violation of criminal laws the penalty ranges from two years for neglect, to fourteen years for wilful breach of fire law.

Camp fires have to be extinguished on breaking camp; smokers must not throw down lighted matches or burning tobacco; no accumulation of inflammable debris is allowed within 200 feet of a railway, and this must be disposed of as directed by forestry officers—the same applies to sawmills and right of way debris.

Imperative orders are given logging camps to enforce provision of fire fighting facilities and fire preventive devices on engines and locomotives.

Finally, all able bodied citizens are placed under the command of authorised officers, and compelled to fight forset fires in cases of necessity. Any neglect involves, in addition to the more serious penalties, a charge for all expenses incurred by the fire warden and subsidiary officers.

For every clearing fire near a forest or woodland, every open burner or fire for industrial purposes, a permit must be obtained from the local forest officer or assistant forest ranger.

OIL IN CANADA

As we hear a great deal about oil in Western Canada these days, it may not be amiss to consider what our best Canadian oil geologist, D. B. Dowling, has said. During March he addressed the members of the Royal Canadian Institute, and also those of the Canadian Mining Institute, upon the oil possibilites of the Dominion, and these addresses contaned the kernel of what his lengthy experience in the various fields has taught him.

A survey of the North American continent, with a view to determining whether oil is likely to be found in commercial quantities shows that the great pre-Cambrian area, known as the Canadian shield, must of course be excluded, being too low in the geological series to have been able to furnish the marine life necessary to the eventual production of oil. Also, the areas of great cosmic stresses, bordering the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, must largely be passed over—referring merely to Canadian area.

But between these there is an enormous area of territory where continental stresses have not been sufficiently severe to destroy possible oil-bearing sources. This stretch extends from Texas to the mouth of the Mackenzie, and from the foothills to Manitoba, in Canada, and to the western slopes of the Appalachians, in the United States. This is the part of Mr. Dowling's self-appointed task which more immediately interests western men. Of Manitoba he said: "In the Manitoba portion, where the Devonian section contains beds that are elsewhere oil-bearing, it should be noted that these beds are there about 800 feet above sea level. Their western continuation at Moose Jaw would be at least 1000 feet below sea level, so that, provided the wastage from before Cretaceous times did not exhaust the beds, the cover of the Cretaceous shales and the limestone of the upper Devonian might retain the oil drained westward. In the absence of folding in the structure, the oil might be found on this slope as low as the line of water saturation, which is not known for this basin, but we might assume it to be as low as sea level. The prospecting of this horizon would mean drilling through the Cretaceous shales and would be confined to a strip of country not more than about 60 miles in width, measured from the edge of the Cretaceous escarpement."

Mr. Dowling evinces a strong preference for the more northern fields, especially that which includes the Great Slave Lake area, of which he says: "The area east of this fold and extending to Great Slave Lake and Great Bear Lake, is a plain bounded on the south by the edge of the plateau built up of Cretaceous sediments, on the west by the Nahanni Mountains, and on the northeast by the manillated surface of the Archaen rocks. The outcrop of the middle Devonian sedimentaries on Slave Lake shows several oil springs. The rocks dip slightly to the southeast and seem to offer a large field for prospecting. To the west of the dividing fold, noted above as the Nahanni Mountains and along the lower part of the Mackenzie valley the sediments show a strong series of folds and oil seeps are quite common. In both these fields there seem to be great masses of oil-saturated shale, and pourous dolomites from which oil is expected to be obtained by drilling."

All the way through his paper Mr. Dowling makes it quite plain that so far from denying the petroliferous nature of the Devonian he recognizes the Middle Devonian as the, probably, greatest oil-bearing series, though he points out the great production of oil from Cretaceous strata in the United States. He attributes, however, some of the Peace river failure to going through the oil sand into the water-bearing strata below it and thus flooding the bore-hole. — Manitoba Free Press.

At a meeting of the Cranbrook District Rod and Gun Club held in the city hall on Wednesday night at which about twenty were present, the following recommendations were made: That martin be left open; season on grouse be set two weeks later, making the date about Sept. 25; endorsed a resolution to the government for improving the road to St. Mary's lake. A committee consisting of Messrs. Guimont, Cooper, and Dezall were appointed to cooperate with other Rod and Gun Clubs with a view to having the fish of the province placed under provincial control. A number of trappers from Bull River and Fort Steele were present to take part in the deliberations with reference to the closed season on fur-bearing animals. — Cranbrook Courier.

THE WORLD'S EFFORT IN MAN POWER

Several correspondents have lately asked for the figures of the world's effort in the matter of man power during the late war. No doubt there are thousands of others who will be interested in the figures. Whittaker's Almanack for the current year contains them so far as known, though in the case of certain countries, no authortitative tables are forthcoming. In reflecting on the losses, which are of course purely military and do not reveal deaths of civilians directly traceable to the war, it must be remembered that they represent a toll on the flower of the nation's manhood with irreparable consequences to production and prospective population. The tables contain some surprises for they show that the countries which suffered most in comparison to population were Serbia and Roumania and those who suffered least were the United States, Belgium and Greece.

France leads in war effort. She mobilized 9,717,000 men of whom 1,398,000 or 3.37 per cent of total population were killed. Great Britain mobilized 5,704,416 and lost 680,886 or 1.5 per cent of population. These do not include the figures for the overseas forces, which do not seem to have been available at the time Whittaker's figures were compiled, but have been collected by the London Times. They are: Canada, mobilization 640,886, killed 56,119; Australia 416,809, killed 58,460; New Zealand, mobilized 220,099, killed 16,-132; South Africa, mobilized 136,070; killed 6,928; India mobilized 1,401,-350, killed 47,746; other colonies, mobilized 134,837, killed 3649. The total enrollment under the British flag was therefore 8,654,467 and the death total 851,117, representing a very considerable percentage of population except in the case of India. It will be noted that Australia suffered proportionately more severely than the other overseas dominions, not excepting Canada.

Italy's mobilization was 5,250,000 men, killed 469,000 or 1.32 per cent of population; United States, mobilization 3,800,000, killed 122,000 or 0.13 per cent of population. Belgium's total mobilization has never been published but her military losses are placed at 44,000 or 0.6 of population. Her speedy investment by Germany, though humiliating, saved her from a very considerable decimation of her manhood. Greece mobilized 200,000 of whom 12,000 or 0.15 of population were killed.

Rumania's losses were appalling. She mobilized 800,000 men and of these one half were slain. The 400,-000 heroes who took up arms in a hopeless case and were betrayed by Rusia represented 5 per cent of her total population. Serbia's suffering was greater. No figures are available as to her total mobilization but the death roll is fixed at 369,000 or 12.3 per cent of population, by far the heaviest loss suffered by any nation in the war.

Figures of Japan and other allied countries which took little part in actual fighting and suffered few casualties are not given. No reliable figures as to Russian effort are available.

Turning to the Central Empires detailed figures are in some instances lacking. Germany mobilized the largest army of any belligerent and suffered the largest number of deaths, but the drain on her population was not so great proportionately as in the case of France. The figures are: mobilization 12,870,000, killed 1,700,-000 or 2.6 per cent of population. Austria mobilized 7,228,000 men it is believed, but owing to the dismemberment of that Empire the casualty totals have not been tabulated. The latter condition is also true of Bulgaria who is credited with having mobilized 600,000 men and must have suffered heavy casualtes. Turkey's mobilization is estimated at 2,000,-000 men, her killed at one fourth of that number, representing 2.5 of her total population.

It is quite clear that in man power the Allies had the Central Empires hopelessly outdistanced. The long resistance the latter maintained was due to the strength of her united geopraphical poition, which gave them an enormous advantage both in offence and defence; and to the successful propaganda which paralyzed allied action on many occasions.

J. Peck McSwain of the Star mechanical staff, returned to work yesterday morning after his holidays. During his vacation he spent some days down the valley taking in Hedley, Keremeos and Cawston. Peck once crossed the burning sands of the Saharah desert on the back of a camel and he has treked through the parching Death Valley on this continent. He has been on shipboard when there was "water, water everywhere but not a drop to drink" but for down right dryness he says that in all his experience he never struck a place like Hedley.—Princeton Star.

Water in the Kootenay is at the lowest in the history of old timers. The recent cold nights have caused a drop of ten feet making it impossible at several points to float logs. The Yahk Lumber company at Wasa are meeting with difficulty in floating their larger logs to the mill, in fact so shallow has the water become that the company have decided to wait for a rise in the waters of the Kootenay before again attempting to bring in their larger sized sticks. — Cranbrook Courier.

CORRECTION

In our last issue in reporting the address of W. R. Wilson before the directors of the C.N.P. Coal Co. at Toronto, we misquoted him in one paragraph. The paragraph should have read as follows:

When the mountains were uplifted from their original structural lines of bedding, intense crushing appears to have taken place and in the zones of crushing dynamic heat appears to have votalized the hydrocarbons from both the beds of shale lying contingent to the coal beds and from the coal beds, changing them into gaseous forms. These gases in some sections of the mining, have undergone a general form of distribution or have been driven into the pores of the surrounding strata in a fairly uniform or normal manner. In other instances the gases appear to have been driven by repeated crushing forces into highly compressed zones, or have migrated in some form from what may be understood to have been the seat of voatlization to more recent disturbed zones. Surrounding these zones and closely adjacent tracts the coal beds are both capped and underlaid with impervious shales and these, held in highly pent up pores, voids, or cavities, which localities have to be approached with care, for pent up pockets of highly explosive gas under conditions of this character call for more than ordinary attention by all those who may be employed in dealing with such abnormal physical conditions.

I. O. D. E. PRESENTATION

Last Wednesday afternoon the Mt. Fernie Chapter I.O.D.E. was "At Home" to its members in the reading room of the G.W.VA., the occassion being in honor of the decoration of three of its members who had lately been made Life Members in the National Chapter of the I. O. D. E.

The decorations were bestowed for special devotion to war work and work of the I.O.D.E. generally. The ladies securing this decoration were first, Mrs. Trites, who was Secretary of Mt. Fernie Chapter for four years of strenuous war correspondence and whose devotion and efficiency in that branch of the work could not be surpassed. Mrs. W. R. Wilson, who for a length of time had had charge of our wool and socks department. and who two years ago was made a Life Member of the Red Cross in recognition of her services, and whose constant interest and devotion to war work and the I.O.D.E. we have been pleased to recognize in this way as well. Mrs. R. W. Wood also from the beginning of war work in Fernie, when the Regent, Mrs. Suddaby, in 1914 called the first emergency war meeting, Mrs. Wood kindly offered her home for this meeting, as a result of which our first shipment of war supplies was dispatched in less than a month from the outbreak of the war. Mrs. Wood was first bandage convenor when war work became finally organized, and is now our very efficient Educational Secretary, which is the most important work being conducted by the I.O.D.E. all over the Dominion. Mt. Fernie Chapter is looking after Fernie schools in this connection and has lately adopted Coal Creek school, which will soon have a Historical Picture Gallery as well as the Fernie school.

The retired Regent, Mrs. Fisher, in whose regime the decorations were recommended, was chairwoman for the occasion and made the presentation speech and referred to the above records of the ladies, following which the ladies came forward, Miss Mildred Kastner carrying the tray of pins, while Mrs. J. L. Gates, 1st Vice-Regent, pinned them on, Miss Olive Brown, Standard Bearer, supporting the Standard.

After the singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," Mrs. Trites, in a neat little speech, thanked the organization for their kind recognition of their work and honors conferred on them, declaring assurance of their continued interest and loyalty to the work of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire.

The ceremony closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

A very pleasing and excellently rendered musical programme was contributed by the following under the direction of Mrs. Watson: Mrs. Watson, Mrs. Lawes, Miss McDonald, Miss Hogan and Mr. Bass, after which tea was served by Mrs. Gates, Mrs. Kastner, Mrs. H. Brown, Miss Olive Brown and Mrs. S. Graham, Miss Mildred Kastner and Miss Dorothy Graham assisting.

Mt. Fernie Chapter now has the honor of having four Life Members in the National Chapter of the Order, Mrs. G. G. Moffatt having been so decorated one year ago.

A report of the meeting of the Local Council of Women was crowded out this week, but will appear next week.

DOESN'T PAY TO FIGHT THE POLICE

Gul Welberg and Smauel Archibald of Coleman, will now have come to realize that it is a serious matter to obstruct and resist the police in the discharge of their lawful duty. For this offence the former was fined $100 and costs and the latter committed to the Lethbridge jail for one month, without the option of a fine, by Magistrate Burrell, sitting at Coleman on Monday.

The arrest of Welberg by Sergeant Caswell was the sequel to a dance which he had been attending at the Coleman opera house. He was seen by the sergeant staggering down the stairs, and when half-way, in apparently a very pugnacious mood under the influence of the liquor he had bibed, proceeded to assault the window, breaking several panes of glass in the punching process. There was something of a rough and tumble description in his resisting arrest, and with the aid of Constable Frewin he was hurried to the barracks and there deposited to cool off.

In the procession to the barracks Welberg was followed by a crowd of men who showed themselves distinctly hostile to the police. They were led and incited by Archibald to effect a rescue. In the process Archibald found himself in the hands of the police and was placed in forcible company with the man he attempted to rescue.

CHURCH UNION

In Canadian ecclesiastical circles the question of church union is discussed in various fashions. It is still felt that the first question of organized union to be settled practically is that which has already been negotiated. The Presbyterian Assembly determined three years ago that the issue should be postponed until two years after the end of the war. This will probably suspend action until the meeting of the Assembly next year. Meanwhile the three churches concerned have closely co-operated among themselves and with other communions in the Forward Movement and have added so greatly to their financial resources. It might be convenient for the church statesmen who are working out the more aggressive programme if they could know positively what the outcome of the union movement would be. Meanwhile they refrain as far as they can from duplication of machinery and effort.—Province.

SPEAKING OF STRANGE LAWS, READ THIS

Lots of things are done in North and South Carolina that, for example, South Dakota and Alaska are not guilty of. Probably, also, vice versa. In the twin Carolinas, for instance, they have a law. They have lots of laws in these two states, but this is a most peculiar law.

The courts have ruled that a pedestrian struck by an automobile can sue for the possession of the vehicle. This law has become o popular of late, it has been upheld so often to the loss of his car by the owner, that a growing number of people in these two states, when they feel the need for a motor car for business or pleasure, walk forth, strut in the right-of-way of a motor car, are knocked down, institute suit and quickly obtain possession of the car that injured them.

THE EXTRA SAFEGUARD

"Should I lose my earning power through accident or disease, who will keep up my life assurance payment?"

You may have asked yourself this question.

The Sun Life's Total Disability provision arranges under such circumstances to keep your policy in force, without further premiums, and, in addition, to pay you an income of one-tenth of the face value of the policy each remaining year of your life, starting immediately. The extra charge is comparatively trifling.

Ask us to tell you about it.

DAME PETER LAMARRE

Pointe St. Pierre, P. Q.

"I think it my duty to tell you how much your medicine has done for me. I suffered for three years with terrible Eczema. I consulted several doctors and they did not do me any good.

Then, I used one box of 'Sootha-Salva' and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Sootha-Salva' and 'Fruit-a-tives.'

'Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Sootha-Salva' completed the cure."

BRITAIN'S MANDATE

Nothing that the Allied Supreme Council has done will strike the imagination of so many millions to such an extent as the giving to Great Britain of a mandate over Palestine. The purpose of the campaign against the Turks has been amply vindicated by the wresting from them of the ancient home of the Jews. What the Supreme Council did is a memorable event in the history of Christendom. It opens up to the Jewish people, wherever they are, the prospect of returning to their homeland as a free people and of having as their capital once more what they and countless millions of the Christian faith regard as the most sacred spot on earth. Jerusalem in Christian literature and art has been the type of the urbs caelestis—of the City of God—and it is there as a centre of a nation that hereafter the Jewish people, in a city venerable and famous before the birth of Christ, will, under the aegis of Great Britain, be given beneficent opportunities to fulfil their destiny.

The Holy Land has imperishable memories for Jews wherever they may be exiled. There are some, no doubt, who will object to the mandate havng been given to Great Britain, but the vast majority will welcome the presence of such a protector during the time that Palestine is being re-established as a nation, and perhaps for long afterwards. To some extent the re-establisment is an experiment because Jews are scattered al over the earth, are located in varied environments and have imbibed different conceptions of government and social usages. They have preserved, however, to a large extent their national aspirations and their passionate affection for the country which is now again open for their reception, and it may be they will bring to the task of rulership all that is best in the experiences of other lands. Britain's mandatory powers are contingent on Palestine being thrown open as the home of the Jews and this is her policy as declared by A. J. Balfour.

GRAY-DORT

Motor-Wise Men Judge Gray-Dort Value at $1465 (PLUS WAR TAX)

Particularly if he has driven another light car, does a man appreciate these Gray-Dort features at $1465.

The Gray-Dort motor, with its big bore and long stroke—a bigger motor than the light car buyer has been getting—with a much heavier crankshaft, as heavy as in big cars. A motor with a cellular radiator and big water-jackets: with a dual exhaust for greater power; a newly-improved Carter carburetor; Westinghouse starting and lighting; improved Connecticut ignition.

The high-grade Gray-Dort Chassis has for foundation an extra heavy frame of channel steel. A big, sturdy rear axle, designed for the Gray-Dort. A new steering-gear, surprisingly big and strong for a light car. Big brakes, now with Thermoid lining. Long springs, built in Chatham under our inspection—rear springs full cantilever. When you drive, you drive in comfort. A shorter, smarter cowl now gives more room in the driving compartment. A new Gray-Dort feature does the same for the tonneau. The gears can be shifted with two fingers. The emergency brake is now on a lever, as in big cars. And like big cars, the Gray-Dort has side curtains opening with the doors. The new gasoline tank is in the rear, with Stewart vacuum feed system. The seats are tilted at the most comfortable angle.

New beauty has been added to the Gray-Dort. You still get the wonderful Gray-Dort finish, result of 60 years' coach-building. But there is a new and smarter top, hand-tailored in our own shops. A new hood, with many long, narrow louvres. The lamps have been raised, to give size to the front of the car. And there are such style touches as the French pleated upholstery, the flat top-edge of the body, the full-sweeping fenders.

At $1465 there will probably not be enough Gray-Dorts to meet the demand. It will be wise to see the Gray-Dort dealer right away.

PRICES

The Gray-Dort 5-passenger car, finished in Gray-Dort green and black with standard equipment is $1465 f.o.b. Chatham. War tax extra.

The roomy 2-passenger roadster is the same price.

THE GRAY-DORT SPECIAL

For the man who wishes something a little extra in his car, we have built the Gray-Dort Special. Maroon body, with brown rayntite top. Plate-glass rear window. Gipsy curtains. Rookie tan wheels. Motometer. Tilting steering-wheel. Real leather upholstery. Mahogany instrument board. Just the touches which lift this car above the ordinary. $150 extra on the standard.

AND THE ACE!

The Gray-Dort Ace—the most beautiful light car of to-day. Sapper green body, with handsome California top to match.

Trouble lamp and bull's-eye flashlight. Electric cigar lighter. Rear-vision mirror. Plate-glass windows. Over-size grooved-tread tires. This is the de luxe car for the man who does not wish to pile up a tremendous operating cost. $255 extra on the standard.

"BE MODERATE IN ALL THINGS"

"It is difficult to give aliens their rights when the people see nothing but red. I believe in free speech, free printing and free assemblage, but, as St. Paul said, 'Be moderate in all things.'" If I were an ardent socialist I would keep still for a few months."

In these few words Judge Anderson of the federal district court in Boston has summed up, with characteritic felicity, the whole duty of man, citizen and alien, conservative and socialist. Judge Anderson's vigorous protest against exaggerated popular fears of the "red menace" and his sharp denunciation of gevernmental procedure bordering on the methods of the agent provocateur in dealing with the communists are quite consistent with his recognition of the fact that there is a public state of mind which socialists, for prudent reasons, must take into account. Public excitement or not, the law must always keep its head and strive for justice; and that is what Judge Anderson has done in the Colyer case. But even the law, a human institution, can not altogether escape the play of mass sentiment. The activities of rabid radicalism only make it harder to render justice to the man innocent of transgression. —New York Post.

VANCOUVER SHOE MAN GAINS 15 LBS.

Bad Health Gone, He Feels Fine All the Time Since Taking Tanlac, He Says

"My three years of troubles have not only been overcme since I started taking Tanlac, but I have gained fifteen pounds in weight also," was the statement made recently by Dominique Sallaberry, a well known shoemaker employed by the P. Paris Shoe Store, of Hastings West, who lives at 1749 Fourth Ave. West, Vancouver, B.C.

"During the past three years I have been troubled with indigestion so bad that I lost my appetite almost entirely," continued Mr. Sallaberry. "Everything I ate disagreed with me, and for three solid hours after a meal I would be in misery belching up gas and undigested food. So much gas formed that it pressed up around my heart and caused it to palpitate terribly, and at times I felt like I was going to choke and I would have to fight to get my breath. I was troubled with heartburn a great deal and I had such severe pains under my heart that I would have weak dizzy spells. I was so nervous that the least little noise out of the ordinary would upset me and often I would have bursting headaches. I was so restless and hardly able to sleep that I dreaded for night to come, and I lost a great deal of weight and felt so weak and out of sorts I was scarcely able to do my work.

"I began taking Tanlac on the advice of a friend, who came up to me one day and said: 'I have tried Tanlac for the same troubles that you have and have never found anything to equal it.' Well, he certainly put me on the right track, for after taking five bottles I am feeling as fine as a man could want to feel. I have such a fine appetite that I can scarcely get enough to eat and it makes no difference what I eat I can digest it perfectly and never have a sign of indigestion. I am not troubled with belching, heartburn or dizzy spells and my breathing is free and normal. Headaches are a thing of the past and I am no longer nervous or restless and can sleep all night long. I have gained back my lost weight, have now strength and energy about me and feel better than I have in over three years. Tanlac is certainly a dependable medicine and if it is given a fair trial wll do everything they say it will."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

ONE FOOLISH THING AFTER ANOTHER

If the overall craze which we have recently borrowed from our friends to the South of us teaches a lesson, all very well. But will it, There is no earthly economy in casting aside half worn clothes and then substituting overalls, smocks and that sort of thing. We are made just so much poorer by the process, and the workman who really requires overalls, owing to the nature of his tasks, must perforce pay a higher price for his requirements, for it goes without saying that a rush for overalls is bound to advance the cost to the consumer.

If the people are really faddists in matters of this sort they will wear their shabby garments, wear them until they are really worn out and not merely shiny at the seams. And, again, why confine this so-called economy to outside garments, for I can well imagine some enthusiastic souls proudly displaying blue overalls which cover shirts and socks of silk and expensive undergarments; not to speak of brand new eighteen dollar shoes, ten dollar hats and fifty cent cigars.

Already dealers in the United States are advertising overalls with all sorts of fancy trimmings, including gold, silver and rhinestone buckles, presumably for the fair sex, at prices ranging from ten to forty-five dollars. All of which leads one to agree with Dr. Grant Ramsay, head of the London Institute of Hygiene, who was led to remark recently that the world has never been so insane as it is at present.—Toronto Saturday Night.

ARCHBISHOPRIC AND LLOYD GEORGE

It is something new in British history south of the Tweed to see an archbishop elected. It has happened in Wales, where the Church of England is not established and the Bishop of St. Asaph elected as the archbishop of Wales. [illegible] where [illegible] different things are religiously in England compared with their position in Canada. The monarch appoints archbishops, bishops, deans and other dignitaries of the dioceses, on the recommendation of the prime minister.

It is not one of the smallest of the wonders of Lloyd George's career that he should have become the nominator of bishops of a church whose fiercest antagonist he was. The prime minster is a Baptist, and worships with his own people, not only when he is in his Welsh home overlooking Cardigan bay, but also in London. He knows what the domination of a state church in a village is. Indeed he first became famous in his native hills in connection with the popular resentment against the legally autocratic positon of the Anglican clergyman.

Not so many years ago local taxes were levied for the support of the Established Church. They were abolished after a long and bitter agitation in which gentle clergymen of Baptist, Congregational and other churches who refused to pay the church rates saw their household goods seized by the bailiffs and sold by auction.

LARKIN GOES TO JAIL

New York, May 3.—Extraordinary precautions were taken today when James J. Larkin, Irish agitator, convicted last week of criminal anarchy, was sentenced to five to ten years in the state prison at hard labor. Fifteen detectives guarded the court room, which was filled with Larkin sympathizers.

One young woman was rebuked by the court when she rose and attempted to take Larkin's hand as he was led away.

Several women shook hands with Larkin and the mother of former Assemblyman Gotlow, now serving sentence for criminal anarchy, embraced him.

PROTECTION FOR KOOTENAY GAME

Vancouver, May 3.—An appeal for greater efficiency in the enforcement of the game regulations of the province was made by W. J. Claridge, of Fernie, to the provincial game conservation board, which is meeting here, to revise the open seasons for game throughout the province. Mr. Claridge, who represented the Fernie District Rod and Gun Club, asserted that the first principle of the game preservation was protection, and in the Kootenay, he alleged, they had none. The provincial police were doing their best, but it was entirely out of their province.

COURTESY

The difference between courtesy and the lack of it is often a small thing. Once upon a time as I sat in a restaurant, a waiter from another table came up and, without a word "yanked" the sugar bowl from my table that he might serve a customer across the room. In another restaurant another waiter wanted a bowl of sugar and came to the table at which I was sitting. With a bow that would have done credit to Lord Chesterfield, he picked up the sugar bowl, offered to me with, "Have you had sugar, sir?" and then went off with it. These waiters were salespeople for the restaurant in which they worked, for what they did played as large a part in the impression that customers carried away as the food itself. One advertised his house badly; the other advertised it well and got more joy out of his work at that.—

EFFECTIVE BOYCOTT

Much has appeared in the press of Canada and the United States within the past few years regarding the newspapers and magazines owned partially or completely by William Randolph Hearst. All decent citizens of both countries suffer a feeling of disgust whenever Hearst's name is mentioned and they have good cause. During the war the Hearst newspapers were barred from Canada. With the coming of peace the ban has been lifted, but there is little demand in this country for the scurrilous sheets issued by this well-known England-hater. The people here, and the thinking people of the United States, have Hearst's true measure. He is regarded, and quite properly, as a menace to friendly international relations and society in general, and as having written a black page in the history of American journalism.

Sometimes we fear, though, that too much importance is attached to the products of the Hearst press. Is it worth while, after all, to recognize this man to the extent of mentioning his name in the C anadian House of Commons or of talking of replacing the ban on his publications so far as Canada is officially concerned, Indeed it is likely that such recognition is just what Hearst desires. The proper way to handle such a man—and no one must discount his power or importance in his particular field—is through the medium of the boycott, unofficial but tremendously effective. One way in which this may be brought about would be a decision by every Canadian to refuse to buy any article advertised in any Hearst publication. When one stops to consider just what such a campaign would embrace the real possibiltes of the Idea will be appreciated. If successfully carried into effect, this policy, on the part of Canadian newspaper and magazine readers, would have the likely effect of depriving the Hearst publications of several dozen productive national advertising accounts. The advertisers would have the alternative of ceasing to do business with Hearst or losing their Canadian trade altogether. And few of them would care to relinquish the extensive business built up for their products in this country.

Statements could be issued showing the list of Hearst publications and a reasonable time allotted for the manufacturers and dealers of internationally-used articles to remove their announcements from the pages of the Hearst newspapers and magazines. After the expiration of that time there would be a general refusal to buy a product still advertised in any publication issued by this man. Furthermore, the idea could be extended to the United States with the people of that country refusing to purchase the goods of any manufacturer using space in a Hearst publication.

The boycott is easily the most effective way to deal with such a man as Hearst. His financial resources are extensive and his influence large, but it is possible for a disgusted people to undermine both.

The Star would be glad to see this suggestion considered from one end of Canada to the other. If our citizens can get together on the proposition we shall be able to bar Hearst from this country more completely than in any other way and we shall have gone far in the pleasant task of tearing down his influence in the United States.—Border Cities Star.

FOOTBALL MEETING

A meeting of the Crow's Nest Pass Football League was held here a few days ago with representatives from Fernie, Coal Creek and Michel being present. Correspondence from the Alberta Club expressed regret that they were not sufficiently well organized to warrant them taking part in the League this season but expressed the hope that later they would take part in the Cup series. It was further suggested that Alberta clubs were contemplating playing a series of matches themselves and ultimately arrange a championship game or series with the winners of the B. C. section. An invitation was extended to the West Kootenay and Boundary teams to join the League, but Trail was the only club to reply, advising that they were not organized to any practical extent but expect to be in shape in the near future, when they would be in a position to definitely state their position in this respect.

The following officers were elected:

President—S. Herchmer.

Vice-Presdent—Wm. Cooper.

Secretary—Robt. Johnstone.

The following is the League schedule for this season, the final game being played by Aug. 1, which will permit the cup contests being played late in the summer:

May 16—Fernie vs. Michel.
May 23—Coal Creek vs. Fernie.
May 30—Michel vs. Coal Creek.
June 6—Fernie vs. Coal Creek.
June 13—Coal Creek vs. Michel.
June 20—Michel vs. Fernie.
June 27—Fernie vs. Coal Creek.
July 4—Coal Creek vs. Michel.
July 11—Fernie vs. Michel.
July 18—Coal Creek vs. Fernie.
July 25—Michel vs. Coal Creek.
Aug. 1—Michel vs. Fernie.

FOOTBALL CITY LEAGUE

At a special meeting of the executive of the Fernie Football Club the following teams were chosen:

The Harlequins, captained by Bert Sawyer—Sawyer, Sofko, J. Riley, T. Stewart, Martin, H. Robson, J. Davidson, T. Davidson, J. Mills, J. Robson, G. Davidson.

Celtics—Captain B. Riley, Marshall, Booth, J. Corrigan, Sweeney, W. Riley, A. Dicken, Whitelaw, Brown, Guest, P. Robinson, Teddy Williams.

Teamsters, captain B. Smith—Dick Thornton, B. Smith, Gibson, Thompson, Wheeler, Clarkstone, Kasmar, J. Joinson, T. Joinson, J. Hall, N. Goligthly, Callahan.

These players will meet their respective captains as soon as possible so that practice can be arranged.

All those wishing to play football who have not got their names on the different teams, will hand in their names to any of the captans or to the Secretary, J. McNicholas.

COAL CREEK NOTES

A large crowd gathered on Victoria Park on Saturday last to witness the return game between our local leather chasers and Fernie United. Clever footwork was displayed, Fernie carrying off the honors by the only goal scored during the game.

A large concourse of Creekites took in the joint smoker held in the Vets Club rooms on Saturday last, adding their quota to the musical program.

The first of the series of games in the inter-club games will be staged in the Vets rooms on Saturday evening, Coal Creek Club vs. Fernie Literary and Athletic Association.

The bird of the elongated legs paid a visit to camp during the past week leaving a bouncing baby boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Reid, Morrissey Cottage.

Shrieks of childish merriment emanated from the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Thornton on the occasion of a birthday party given in honor of their daughter Vivienna. Everything in which children delight, such as ice cream, etc., was amply provided. After a sumptuous repast the evening was given over to romps and games. In spite of the over indulgence of some of the wee guests we learn that the services of the doctor were not required.

A number of friends gave a party to wish god speed and bon voyag to Mrs. John Pearson, who is leaving camp on a visit to the old country.

Mrs. Nee returned back to camp from Seattle, where she consulted a specialist about her eyes.

Lock McDonald, government road superintendent, was in camp on Monday looking over the roads in this vicinity.

The Club Hall was filled to full capacity on the occasion of the Married Ladies Dance held up here on Friday evening last. Commons orchestra supplied music to please the most fastidious. A generous supply of eats like "mother used to make" were provided.

May 1st was recognized as a general holiday at the mines up here.

Our local autoists are taking full advantage of the summerlike weather prevailing during the past week.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

BY Firelighter

IS THE BAD BOY A REALITY,

Some people will, of course, say "Yes." They think that the only real thing in their lives is a boy whom they think "a bad egg."

Those who believe in the existence of bad boys will have to argue the matter out with Magistrate Beveridge of the Children's Court of Calgary. Mr. Beveridge is quite convinced that there is no such thing as a bad boy. Mr. George Webster, a prominent business man of Calgary, has come to the same conclusion after looking into the matter with a great deal of care. At a public meeting not long ago Mr. Webster said that he had been a member of a committee looking into the work of the Juvenile Court. His work of investigation gave him a keen interest in boys and he stated that he intended to give a great deal of his life in future to help improve conditions for the boys of Calgary.

Mr. Webster found that 75 per cent of the boys with whom he had to deal had got into trouble and had been brought before the Juvenile Court because of bad surroundings. He declared that it was not because they were themselves bad but because they had never had a chance to get into good surroundings and to be influenced by the right ideas. He said it was the duty of the citizens to provide better conditions for the boys to work and play. He said in concluding his speech: "This is not a matter to enter upon lightly. If we are going to help, it must be by more than lip service. It means constant attention and constant self-sacrifice, but believe me, the results will amply repay those who give of their time and resources."

In Toronto recently a group of successful Christian business men listened to a list of the offences for which some boys had been brought into the Juvenile Court, such as pushing one another into church vestibules during service and so on. When the story was finished these men burst into laughter, declaring that in their own boyhood days they had all amused themselves in the same way. —Firelighter.

Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sirs—Enclosed you will find cheque covering our bill for advertising in your valuable paper. Many thanks, as I consider this money well spent. This is a great little town and I am doing a nice business. We meet a lot of people from the Crow. Stepping into our hotel here one would think that they were coming into the Napanee, as the biggest part of our staff is from Fernie. Any of them we cannot put to work we give them a room and take care of them until they can land something. In other words, we are glad to meet our old friends whether they have anything or not. Ralph Dooley, who has been filling the position of night clerk for the last eight months, died here last Thursday and we laid him away on Saturday last.

I had a pleasant visit from our old friend Fred Stock a couple of weeks ago. He was in for a week and is doing well at Prince Rupert.

Give my kind regards to all my friends. Hoping to see you down here in the near future. Yours truly,

T. H. Whelan.

In future income tax returns must be accompanied by a cheque of at least 25 per cent of the whole of the amount estimated to be payable. OPERATORS ASS'N ENLARGED

In order to better co-ordinate the coal mining industry of Alberta from the point of view of the operators, the Calgary Herald was officially informed Thursday that an amalgamation has now been effected which will bring under the jurisdiction of the Western Coal Operators' Association six sub-district organizations, including the Red Deer Valley Coal Operators' Association.

While each sub-division will deal with questions inside of its own association, all matters of policy will be referred to the Western Coal Operators' Association.

The officials elected for the new organization are O. E. S. Whiteside, president; Jesse Gouge, first vice-president; John Shanks, second vice-president; with W. F. McNeil, secretary-treasurer.

In the course of an interview with the members of the new association Thursday, a representative of the Calgary Herald was informed that they were prepared to meet the scale committee of the United Mine Workers of America, but as the special conference that was now in session had not formulated their demands that several of the operators had left for their homes as it was so close to the week-end. They would, however, be prepared to meet the committee in Calgary on Wednesday next.

"We hope to be able to arrive at a satisfactory and speedy settlement," remarked Mr. Whiteside in referring to this special matter.

The operators expressed their satisfaction at the announcement that John P. White, vice-president of the United Mine Workers, would be present in the city when the negotiations were being conducted. As already announced, Mr. White is expected to arrive in Calgary on Saturday.

The fact that the delegates have not yet arrived at any definite conclusion regarding the new wage scale was confirmed by some of those attending the miners' convention. It was expected that they would have been able to have presented their demands Thursday morning but it is now stated that there are several points that require further discussion and that it will be at least Thursday evening before these are straightened out.

As matters now stand the special scale committee of the miners will have to defer meeting the operators until Wednesday next.

The long awaited Edgar Lewis production "Other Men's Shoes" is announced for showing at the Isis on Monday and Tuesday evenings; also Monday matinee at 2.30. This is the first Edgar Lewis picture distributed under the Pathe banner.

Edgar Lewis' production of such features as "The Great Divide," "The Barrier," "The Bondman," "The Blunderer," "The Nigger," "The Light at Dusk," "The Bar Sinister," "The Sign Invisible," and many others, has won for him the reputation of the greatest director of outdoor stories. The themes of his stories are always clean and wholeome, yet vigorous and potent and abounding in dramatic situations.

"Other Men's Shoes" is no exception to Mr. Lewis' rule of good photo play entretainment. Andrew Soutar is the author of the story, which is skilfully woven around twin brothers who are so alike in face, figure and voice, that one can take the place of the other without detection by his most intimate friends.

ASSIZE COURT IN SESSION

The spring assizes opened here on Tuesday morning, Mr. Justice Morrison presiding.

The first matter taken up was the civil damage and libel actions, Alexander McKenzie vs. Guimont, et al, and McKenzie vs. Cranbrook Herald. These cases arose out of an incident last March in the city of Cranbrook, when the plaintiff visited that place as an organizer for the B. C. Loggers' Union. He held a meeting at which there was a very large attendance. The purpose for which it was held, he stated, was solely to explain the advantages to be secured through the lumber workers joining the union, but many in other walks in life had also been present. According to the plaintiff and substantiated by the defendants, who testified, after his address plaintiff gave opportunity for all who desired to sign up with the Loggers' Union, and while this was in progress defendant Guimont arose and asked plaintiff McKenzie to answer some questions, to which request plaintiff, after a slight hesitation, acceded.

These questions were: "Had he (McKenzie) attended the Calgary convention?" to which the reply was in the affirmative. Next: "At that convention were resolutions adopted that messages of sympathy be conveyed to the Soviet government in Russia and the Spartacans' movement in Germany?" This was also answered in the affirmative. The convention referred to was then known as the Interprovincial or Western Canada Labor Conference, held in Calgary early in March, 1919, but now famous for its having been the inception of the One Big Union movement in Western Canada, and incidentally repeatedly referred to during the Winnipeg strike leaders' trials, namely R. B. Russell, Ivens, et al, who were convicted of seditious conspiracy and now serving terms in prison. At the Cranbrook meeting the final question put to the plaintiff: "Did you approve of the respective resolutions of condolence and sympathy passed at this convention?" and again he had responded that he had favored those resolutions. The meeting thereupon terminated.

Plaintiff said he had sensed trouble and in view of this had retired to a room at a hotel very promptly following the close of the meeting. Later he was waited upon by some 12 or 15 persons and ordered to leave town immediately. Certain monies and receipt stubs showing by whom this had been paid to plaintiff for membership in the organization he represented, were taken from him, but for which a receipt was given in exchange by one of the defendants. An automobile was obtained for plaintiff and he had departed at once for the town of Fort Steele. He said he was told by some members of the crowd never to return to Cranbrook again.

The defence substantiated in a large measure the evidence for the plaintiff but the respective defendants emphasized that public feeling at that time in Cranbrook had been so incensed owing to the nature of the resolutions adopted at the Calgary convention, and upon plaintiff admitting having sanctioned these views, he was considered undesirable, and furthermore that as soon as this sentiment had become generally known in the city, particularly his own class, or those whom he sought to organize, believed they had been deceived and were insistent upon doing harm to the plaintiff. In order to prevent any serious trouble and having some control over those whom it is alleged were bent upon grave mischief to McKenzie, they had acted as spokesmen at the interview in his room with the sole view of protecting him from what was termed "the mob," and urged that he comply with the demand that he leave the city at once for his own safety.

His Lordship reserved his decision as he desired to review at length the resolutions passed at the Calgary conference as submitted in evidence concerning which, if there was an established connection with the Cranbrook incident, upon that result in so far as the legal view of the case was concerned, would largely depend. McKenzie, the plaintiff, is no longer an official of the union. This organization, according to the evidence at that time was practically nil but had now a membership in this province of about 30,000, of whom 3200 are in this immediate district. It was then known as the B.C. Loggers Union but is now affiliated with the One Big Union. J. E. Bird, of Vancouver, represented the plaintiff on behalf of the Union. A. B Macdonald, of Cranbrook, appeared for the defendants, with whom was associated A. E. Watts, president of the Cranbrook Herald.

The case of Emil Lundgren vs. the C.P.R., came up on Wednesday and occupied the entire day. This was an action arising out of an alleged wrongful cancellation of contract brought by Lundgren against the C.P.R. in connection with the making of ties in the Bull River country. The evidence was heard before a jury, and after two hours of deliberation they reported that they did not think it was possible to agree on a verdict. His Lordship thereupon discharged the jury and later ordered the case to be retried at the next assize, which will throw it over until October.

On Thursday morning the consolidated action, A. J. Farquharson and Farquharson & Lawe vs. the Great Northern and the B.C. Southern Ry., in which approximately $30,000 is claimed for loss by fire last October, came up for trial. A host of witnesses was called by both sides and the case continued until shortly before midnight Thursday before all the evidence was in. Just prior to adjournment His Lordship commented upon the very conflicting testimony submitted by the respective parties, all of whom he classified as reputable, but faced with this difficult problem he suggested that if at all possible he would like to get an independent competent cruiser to again go over the property and submit a further report with a view to assisting him in reaching a decision. Upon resumption this morning, after some discussion, it was agreed to appoint James Holmes, assistant manager of the White Spruce Lumber Co., Ltd., near here, to perform the additional cruise by direction from the Registrar, and his report will be made direct to the Court. In this case there was considerable numerical strength in the array of counsel. A. H. McNeill, K.C., of Vancouver, and A. Macneil of this city, represented the railroad companies, while G J. Spreull, Cranbrook, with A. I. Fisher, F. C. Lawe and D. M. Mitchell acted for the plaintiffs.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Getting Over the Top

There's a heap of satisfaction
  In trouble if you grin,
If you keep your nerve in action
  And you wear a lifted chin.
There's a joy in doing something
  That you've never done before;
So don't be a deaf or dumb thing;
  Chance is knocking at your door.

Down and out, there's fun in rising;
  Fun in facing heavy odds,
Doing deeds that are surprising
  And the happy fellow plods.
Plods along and hums a ditty
  As he journeys downs the street
Of the busy gold-mad city,
  Till he's back upon his feet.

It's in overcoming trouble
  That a fellow gets his fun;
It's in shattering the bubble
  Whose name is "can't be done."
It's in striving night and daytime,
  When the problem hopeless seems,
Man appreciates his playtime,
  When he realizes his dreams.

There's a heap of satisfaction
  In trouble if you grin;
Difficulties have attraction
  If you keep a lifted chin;
And the harder that your fight is,
  The greater is your fun,
And the finer your delight is
  As you view the things you've done.

Contractor H. A. Wilkes of Fernie has the contract for painting, paper-hanging and decorating the Clumbia Hotel.

Chief Paul (Black Hawk) David of the Tobacco Plains reserve, has returned from a few days trip to the Flathead, Montana.

Jim Thistlebeak says: If you can live on "thanks," literature is a fine field, but if you want grub try farming.

We have been asked at the time of going to press, 17 times, what we would do with Ireland, and for reply we would do with them as "Kelly" did with the bear—leave them to God.

Between me and you and the gate-post, and to cut a long story short, the tourist season has begun. Tourists are coming in from north, east, south and west. This is not counting salesmen, travellers and train jumpers.

As we said in our Notes last week, Supt. McDonald has a crew of road engineers working on the Elk River grade, and there is nothing to compare with the scenery at this point in the whole of Switzerland, and the grade will be made absolutely safe and should prove a Mecca for lovers of scenery. It's at this point where the big char is caught.

Thirteen swallows were seen in Elko alst Sunday. There'll be dozers from now on.

Nothing short of sickness or the sheriff should stop you coming to Elko at this season of the year, and see the Elk Canyon in flood time.

There is no truth in the report circulated in the Ottawa papers that the Prince of Wales will visit Elko this summer.

Prof. Norman Wilson and wife, of Boston, Mass., (the Cambridge of America) are the guests of Mrs. A. J. Carter this week.

J. Thistlebeak says' it isn't what a man takes out of the world but what he puts into it that makes good advertising, and it sure pays to advertise.

Mr. and Mrs. Crookston, of Fernie, entertained at Elk River Canyon, at Elko, on Sunday, a few Fernie friends to a recherche basket picnic.

Some unkind person started the report along the Crow last week that the C.P.R. authorities were arranging to run special trains to Elko this summer from Calgary, Medicine Hat and Lethbridge. I understand the report is incorrect or at all events premature.

The Lincoln High School picnicked at the Roosville Falls last week from Eureka, Montana. There were about 15 well filled automobiles gaily decorated with flags and bunting. The Mons-Star says Jim Thistlebeak was conspicuous by his absence.

The report circulated in the Nelon News and the Fernie Free Press that a Roosville valley rancher had been held up in the town of Eureka in Montana, 10 miles south of the Port of Roosville, was wrong. No such a thing happened. They are too busy in the Roosville valley planting spuds and weeding onions to take any risks in smuggling conversation juice across the border.

Mrs. John Todhunter, who spent the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Crosby, in Seattle, Wash., returned to Elko this week and will be at home to her friends every day in the week, at Cumberland House, Riverside Drive.

A MARVEL OF REALISM

Genuineness and absolute realism are two factors in the enormous success which Cecil B. De Mille has attained as a motion picture director. These qualities are present in "Male and Female," Mr. DeMille's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, which was adapted from Sir James M. Barrie's famous play, "The Admiral Crichton" and will be on view at the Orpheum theatre soon. It is Mr. De Mille's desire that every property or furnishing used in his productions be the best that can be bought. Properties used in his latest picture total thousands of dollars in value. One toilet set alone cost $500 and the gorgeous gowns worn by Gloria Swanson, Lila Lee and Bebe Daniels, who are in the cast, are worth a handsome price.

The story of Crichton, the butler in the family of English nobles who was wrecked with his master's yachting party at sea and became their leader, has long delighted thousands. Under the master hand of Cecil de Mille it is a screen masterpiece. Thomas Meighan plays the leading role, and Theodore Roberts, Raymond Hatton and Guy Oliver are included in the cast.

REGARDING CARE OF EYES

1. The continued hse of the eyes at close work is harmful, even if the eyesight is perfect. Rest the eyes every few minutes when studying or writing by looking up from the book or paper; if they still feel tired do something else for a while.

2. To read or study when tired is to overstrain the eye. Therefore, avoid night study as far as possible.

3. When using artificial light, do not let the light shine directly into the eyes. The light should come from behind you and from your left side. On no account let the artificial light come from in front.

4. When the child experiences difficulty in seeing the blackboard from the back part of the room or suffers from headaches in school, or shows evidences of eye strain, his eyes should be examined to ascertain the cause, and it should be corrected by glasses prescribed by a competent specialist.

5. When glasses have been thus prescribed, they must be worn constantly. If needed in school they are necessary all the time.

6. Keep the glasses clean.

7. The adjustment of the frame is of as much importance as the correctness of the lenses. The child should look through the optical centre of each lens. As frames get bent and children grow, this adjustment should be made at frequent intervals.

8. Glasses order for astigmatism or any severe refractive error require most accurate adjustment and should be mounted in spectacle frames.

9. Eyes should be re-examined for glasses each year of school life, because eyes often change in refraction, as children grow older, and lenses suitable at one age are unsuitable at a later period.

10. The immature eyes of childhood are very susceptible to having their defective sight made worse by using glasses not uited to their special defect. They require constant and careful supervision.

As children obtain their knowledge both in and out of school chiefly through their eyes, it is essential that parents should exercise an intelligent and careful supervision. They should remember that it is better for the child to lose his chance of high marks in school than to have weak eyes for the remainder of his life.

A child's eyes are priceless. The slow progress in school of many a boy or girl is due to poor eyesight, which might easily in most cases be remedied by the use of proper glasses

STUPID TAX LEGISLATION

One is not inclined to sit up nights worrying over the boost in taxes which the banks doing business in Ontario will hereafter pay the provincial government. They will in due course merely pass it on to the citizen through stiffer bank rates. This, however, is not the case with the proposed tax of one and one-quarter per cent on the gross life insurance premiums received on business transacted in Ontario.

As pointed out previously in these columns such funds are in the last analysis the savings of the poor. The head of the family, by no inignificant sacrifice, manages to place aside yearly a specific sum in the form of life insurance premiums for the protection of his family, then along comes the government and takes one and one-quarter per cent of these savings in the form of a tax. It is well to note that this tax is not upon the profits of the life insurance company, but upon the gross premium income. In other words it is a direct attack upon the poor man's pocket book.

It is the tens of thousands of small policies held by people not engaged in big business that go to make up the great bulk of this premium income. The rich man as a rule has little use for life insurance, his funds are engaged in trade, manufacture and commerce, and thereby bring him a larger return than would be possible for an insurance company to give, owing chiefly to the necessarily conservative nature of the latter's investments. And in the natural course of events he has accumulated sufficient to amply protect his family.

On the other hand, the clerk, the professional man and the artisan, not to speak of the ordinary workman, have no means other than life insurance whereby something can be put aside for a rainy day, and now our bright legislators are taxing these very funds. Stupidity personified.—Saturday Night.

HIS LIFE TO CAUSE OF HATE

Copenhagen — Ignatius Timothy Trebitsch Lincoln is in charge of the censorship of telegrams being despatched abroad from Berlin. It is not surprising for so far back as September last he was reported as having been in conference with a number of German monarchists at the Hague, following which he paid a visit to Amerongen, where he was received by General Dommers, who was acting as equerry to the ex-kaiser.

When interviewed, the former M.P. for Darlington was very mysterious, hinting that something of transcendent importance was being arranged. "Personally, I told the British authorities in writing," he said, "that I would devote my life to working against England. I am beginning."

By turn parson, forger, convict, private secretary, member of parliament, and daring spy, Lincoln has had a wonderfully adventurous career. Of Jewish parentage he embraced Christianity and became a curate in Kent, subsequently becoming private secretary to B. S. Rowntree.

He won Darlington from Mr. Pike Pease by 20 votes and after a year resigned on the ground of expense. At the beginning of the war he became censor of Hungarian correspondence at the general postoffice and later attempted to enter the British secret service. Eventually he fled the country. When in New York he made an extraordinary confession of his career as a spy. Extradition proceedings were begun, during the course of which he escaped from custody, but eventually reached England in June, 1906. When tried at the central criminal court for forging the name of Mr. Seebohm Rowntree and Mr. A. D. Farmer, he was sentenced to three years penal servitude on each of the two charges, the sentences to run concurrently.

He tried hard to lure a part of the British fleet into the hands of a vastly superior force of German naval ships, but he met his match in the director of naval intelligence, Sir Reginald Hall. During the war, Lincoln would have spied for anyone, but found himself regarded with suspicion on all sides.

In the stormy chapter of Germany's history, now being written, he has pushed himself towards the forefront It may be taken for granted that he will do his utmost to carry out his vow against England.

U.M.W. OF A. IN SESSION

What promises to be the most outstanding miners' convention in Alberta, opened in Calgary Monday morning. It has been called by the officials of the United Mine Workers of Amerca, to discuss the new wage schedule. Other important matters will claim attention and it is expected that the convention will be in session at least four days.

There was a thoroughly representative gathering of delegates present when the convention was called to order at 10 a.m., in the Labor Temple. It was expected that John P. White, vice-president of the international organization would have been on hand but he will not arrive in Calgary until later on in the day. In his absence, Morgan Lewis, the special representative of the U.M.W. A., occupied the chair.

T. B. Riley, president of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council, welcomed the delegates. In doing so he briefly referred to the present position of the labor movement on the American continent. It had been said, he remarked, and with a certain amount of truth, that there was a great lack of what might be called a permanent policy, and that labor had no definite goal.

He claimed that in the final analysis the ownership of all means of production was what the labor movement should aim at. To obtain that goal they should formulate some definite and progressive policy. Although the American labor movement had been lacking in that connection there were now signs that they were realizing this and were taking steps to offset the mistakes that had been made in the past.

The speaker commended a uniform continental agreement in any given industry. In Canada, he said, there was a movement by a section of Labor to have a purely Canadian national organization. He did not, however, see the necessity for anything like that.

Speaking of his own union (the Railway Shopmen), it had been proved conclusively, to his mind, he said, the international idea was the best. That to a certain extent, he believed, would appeal to the miners. They were closely allied to the workers of that industry on the other side of the line. Unless they could attain to a complete national organization they would get nowhere.

Another point which he said he would emphasize was that an industrial movement in itself was not sufficient. They must pay some attention to the political side of their movement. They had in Alberta a Dominion Labor Party and it was the duty of all workers in Canada to co-ordinate the political with the industrial side, he said.

While the convention had been called for a specific purpose, said Mr. Riley, he hoped some definite attention would be given those two points.

A vote of appreciation was passed by the delegates for the welcome that had been extended on behalf of the Calgary Trades and Labor Council.

CORRESPONDENCE

Editor Free Press:

Dear Sir—A recent issue of your paper contained an item stating that my husband had gone to Rochester, Minn., to consult Mayo Bros. in regard to his illness. As the item in question may be considered somewhat of a reflection on the skill of the local practitioners, I wish to state that the diagnosis of Mayo Bros. was a distinct corroboration of that of Dr. Garner.

Thanking you,

Mrs. Schagel.

PUBLICITY COLUMN

(By J. F. Spalding)

The bulk of the booklets have been mailed out and are already bringing in enquiries for additional information. We have received several very complimentary letters about the booklet from Chamber of Commerce and Tourist Associations. Several of the latter, including three of the leading Associations in America, have asked for a further supply of them and stated that they expect to be able to do us a lot of good with them.

The follow up pamphlets, in which we shall fully describe Fernie's inducements, are being prepared and will be mailed early in June.

Local motorists will do well to heed the traffic reguations which the police have been instructed to enforce, and whilst they are at it, they should stop drivers using their cut outs on the main street and near the hospital.

The Forestry Department are preparing four camping sites between here and Crow's Nest and one at Morrissey Creek. These will all be cleared and have stone fireplaces built. No. 1 site is just at the junction of the old Summit Road and the present road at Crow's Nest, and has a fine view of the first lake. No. 2 site is in the ravine of the North Fork of Michel Creek, immediately under the Loop tunnel. No. 3 site is on the high side of the road opposite McCool's old camp at Olson, and No. 4 site is on this side of the bridge at Hosmer, right at the foot of the bridge. We should have a site in town here, and permission will be asked of the city council to have this in the park.

A number of interesting letters have been received and will be published next week.

At a special meeting of the shareholders of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., held in Toronto on May 10, it was decided to move the head office of the company to Fernie. Secretary R. M. Young, of Fernie, attended the meeting and made arrangements for the transfer.

John Minton met with a serious accident last week in being thrown from a rig by a runaway horse. He was stunned and lay for a long time bleeding from a cut on the head. He finally recovered sufficiently to crawl to a neighboring house. He is gradually recovering from the effects of his accident.

The moving of the head office to Fernie from Toronto, where it has been for some 22 years, would seem like a wise move both from the standpoint of economy and convenience. With the recent change of officers, the President, Secretary and Treasurer all reside in Fernie. Miss Kelly, the assistant secretary, who has been in charge of the Toronto office for many years, will also come here to live.

Fernie and Michel played the opening game of the season before a record crowd last Sunday. Michel won the toss and chose to play with the wind at their back, but in spite of this advantage Fernie held them even until just before half time, when Watson, of Michel, who was lying off side took a pass from the right wing, and our defence, expecting the referee to blow for the offside, did not even tackle, with the result that the ball was pushed into the net, and Referee Caufield earned the displeasure of the crowd by allowing the goal. Half time: Michel 1, Fernie 0. The second period opened up with a strong attack by Fernie, who, however, had hard luck on several occasions. After a scrimmage in front of the Michel goal one of the Michel players handled the ball and Fernie was awarded a penalty. The penalty kick struck the upright and Fernie missed a chance to equalize. After about five minutes of play Fernie should have had another penalty kick, the opposing player knocking the ball down deliberately with his hand, but the referee could not see it. About this time Fernie came to the conclusion that the referee either could not or would not see the fouls and off sides and settled down and tried to play both Michel and the referee, with the result that Fernie scored, the Michel goalie having to reach back into the net to retrieve the ball, but it was of no avail, the referee refused to allow the goal. About five minutes before the whistle blew for the finish the Fernie defence came up to help the forwards and left their positions open, in a desperate attempt to equalize the score, when the ball was cleared to the Michel outside right, who having a clear field ran the ball through on his own and thus ended a good game of football which was spoiled by a remarkably poor exhibition of refereeing.—Michel 2, Fernie 0.

RED LEADER MULCTED

To get the successful suit for slander of the Toronto Labor leader, Arthur E. O'Leary, against his more famous colleague in Labor circles, James Simpson, in its true perspective, the reader should recall the Labor situation as it was a year ago. It will be remembered that there was a movement to start a general strike in all Canadian industrial centres, on the same lines, and in sympathy with the Winnipeg strike. While it is not clear that many Labor leaders seriously considered establishing Soviet rule on the Russian model, a considerable number were anxious to promote an active expression of sympathy and co-operation with the Bolshevik government of Russia, and to initiate a programme looking toward the complete abolition of capitalism. Simpson, who by virtue of unusual oratorical gifts, had for years enjoyed a considerable following, was a proclaimed Bolsheist. But his efforts at revolution, peaceful or otherwise, encountered a severe check through the same influence of moderates like Arthur O'Leary.

It will be remembered that although the "Reds" were successful in securing a proclamation of a general strike by the Toronto Trades and Labor Council, in spite of the protests of moderate leaders, it ignominiously failed because the great majority of workers have no sympathy with Bolshevism. With the Labor Council itself the issue became a straight conflict between the "Reds," of whom Simpson was the ablest and therefore the most dangerous champion, and the Moderates, headed by sane men of the O'Leary type. If the Reds were to make headway, it was necessary to discredit the Moderates. Simpson therefore staged an elaborate "exposure" purporting to show that O'Leary was a traitor who had sought to sell his influence to the capitalistic interests. The plot to discredit O'Leary and others was therefore a part of a general plan to secure the domination of "Red" agitators in the councils of labor; and the verdict of the jury awarding Mr. O'Leary $1500 after a fair trial, is a fitting sequel.

Perhaps the most interesting phase of the action was the attempt to present Brigadier-General Gunn, at that time in command of the Toronto military district, as the private emissary of capital, a contention properly rebuked by Mr. Justice Middleton. Had the "Reds" succeeded in their purpose, Toronto would undoubtedly have been placed under military law, with General Gunn as custodian of order, a contingency any right-minded military commander would be anxious to avert. No good soldier relishes being placed in a position where it may become necessary to shoot down rioters and place peaceful citizens under all sorts of irritating restrictions. General Gunn would have been blameworthy indeed if he had failed to use every influence in his power to prevent such a catastrophe as befell Winnipeg. All sane Labor men must realize that not only General Gunn, but moderates like O'Leary, so far as their efforts helped to avert a general strike, did an inestimable service to the cause of labor and to the community at large.

If the jury's verdict restrains "Red" leaders from shouting "Crook" at the heels of every supporter of moderate methods, and every rival who interferes with their private and mischievous ambitions, its effect will be salutary.—Saturday Night.

GRANBY COMPANY CLOSES PHOENIX MINES

New York, May 14. — No new plans for development are disclosed in the annual report of the Granby Consolidated Mining Company just issued.

Regarding the closing of the original workings at Phoenix, the report says:

"Due to further trouble in the coal-fields and a consequent shortage of coke at the smelter mining operations were brought to a close on June 14 last year, and our instructions are to consider this a permanent close down and to dismantle the plant. Salvage operations are now in progress."

The Midas Mine at Valdez, Alaska, shipped 3459 tons during the early part of the year and was then closed, due mainly to a lack of proper transportation.

The Mamie Mine was closed in July, 1918, due to destruction by fire of the compressor house. Very little, if any, ore of commercial value remains in that mine. The 'It" mine shipped 1560 tons of ore during the first part of last year and then after doing considerable development, the property was abandoned .

The original workings at Phoenix still show 2,513,636 tons of ore of an average grade remaining. Of this amount 50,000 tons and possibly more are available.

"The mine is partially dismantled, but is in working condition and is being kept unwatered. The question of concentrating available ore has been taken up and we are prepared to carry on further tests if desired," says the report.

The Hidden Creek mine at Anyox, "though handicapped in many ways," shipped 683,889 tons, and it is estimated that there now remains available ore supplies of 10,339,086 tons. A great deal of low grade ore is amenable to concentration.

More than 6,000,000 pounds of copper were sold at an average of 17.71c and at the middle of last year there were 12,000,000 lbs. unsold, valued at 16.23c. Silver to the extent of 395,000 ounces was sold at an average price of $1..0143. The smelter product of gold was 13,657 oz. valued at $20.

On June 30 a year ago there was a surplus credit of $1,124,109 on the basis of an annual business of approximately $7,000,000.

FINDING OUT

The Soviet government of Russia is finding out that things have not worked out as the dreamers of that political cult imagined in the beginning. It was a wonderful dream, but it failed to take into account human nature in the mass, with the result that failures were so numerous that official cognizance had to be taken an dthe screws of authority applied. Originally it was conceived that with capital overthrown the masses would be willing to work their fair share daily, in the interests of the common weal. It has turned out differently.

For instance, it has been found necessary to declare martial law in Russian railroad workshops to put an end to slacking. This is not the statement from an ill-wisher of the soviet, but a wireless dispatch from the Moscow soviet. Incurable idlers have been warned that they will be shot if they do not speed up in production. Here is the message sent to them, in part:

"Shame, comrades! The workmen of the railway shops of the Northern railways have during the month of January squandered more than a thousand working days in holiday making. Each workman has practically wasted four days. At a time when millions of people are hungering, it is impossible to transport ten million pounds of bread owing to a lack of railway engines, and railway men are arranging to have two days a week of idleness."

That happened during the month of March but according to dispatches of Saturday last, the warning does not seem to have had any great effect, for we read that martial law has been extended to whole provinces, and that a 24 hour work day has been instituted in the production of war materials. This is a very fair indication that the Soviet regime is being threatened more from within than from without and that the government has decided it may have to fight for its life against its own dissatisfied people. It also means that concentration upon the production of war material must lessen the production of peace time industries, which must put Russia in a still worse state than she has been, and is. — Calgary Herald.

ADMIRAL SIMS AND THE BRITISH NAVY

Admiral Sims has given his views regarding the part played by the United States Navy in the war, and President Wilson and Secretary Daniels have given their version. The Admiral was in command of the American forces and was on the spot. He also is a sailor and doubtless was particularly well qualified for his job. The President and his Naval Secretary have no professional qualifications whatever and were thousands of miles away from the scene of operations yet they have undertaken to criticize the manner in which the navel operations in the war were conducted by the British naval forces. There is considerable temptation to indulge in comment upon those facts, but probably the best thing to do under the circumstances is to let the statements stand and permit the public of the United States to form their own conclusions. For our part, we were under the impression that there were incidents during the course of the war that indicated that the British navy had lost none of its historic boldness and impetuosity in attack, and that the officers of it were fully worthy of the traditions of their seagoing and seafighting ancestors. — Colonist.

New Standards of Value

$1465 F.O.B. CHATHAM WAR TAX EXTRA

GRAY-DORT

Gray-Dort has brought peace-time standards of value to the motor car business. Greater value than the light car has heretofore offered. $1465 brings you a car comparable with those costing several hundred dollars more.

LOOK FOR THESE THINGS IN THE CAR YOU BUY

The Gray-Dort motor is big enough for its job—not stunted—3½" bore and 5" stroke—with big water jackets and a big, honeycomb radiator. The crankshaft is husky—many pounds heavier than other builders of light cars think necessary. The pistons are extra-light and three-ringed. Special design prevents valve-warping. High-carbon steel gives toughness to moving parts.

The carburetor is a Carter—improved this year. Westinghouse starting and lighting. Connecticut ignition (newly improved).

The whole chassis parallels the motor in quality. Heavy frame of channel steel. Husky rear axle, Chatham-built. Long springs, cantilever in the rear, and built here under our inspection. The big brakes now have Thermoid lining. A new steering gear, 50% larger and stronger than the light car standard.

The Gray-Dort is as pleasing to the artist and to the driver as it is to the mechanic.

The smooth lines of the body are restful after so much of the extreme in present-day cars. The Gray-Dort finish, development of 60 years' coach-building, will win your instant, and lasting approval. Add the smartness of French-pleated upholstery, and a new top, tailored in our own shops.

The big gasoline tank is now in the rear—for good-looks and convenience. As in big cars, the emergency brake is on a lever, the side-curtains open with the doors. A shorter, smarter cowl gives more room in the driving compartment. The new hood, with its many long, narrow louvres has a touch of European smartness.

AND YET THE PRICE IS $1465
(PLUS WAR TAX)

You know that such a car as the Gray-Dort will be in heavy demand at $1465. We have doubled our production this year. But there is likely to be a shortage. See the Gray-Dort dealer now.

PRICES

The Gray-Dort 5-passenger car, finished in Gray-Dort green and black and with standard equipment is $1465 f.o.b. Chatham. War tax extra.

The roomy 2-passenger roadster is the same price.

THE GRAY-DORT SPECIAL

For the man who wishes something a little extra in his car, we have built the Gray-Dort Special. Maroon body, with brown rayntite top. Plate glass rear window. Gipsy curtains. Rookie tan wheels. Motometer. Tilting steering wheel. Real leather upholstery. Mahogany instrument board. Just the touches which lift this car above the ordinary. $150 extra on the standard.

AND THE ACE!

The Gray-Dort Ace—the most beautiful light car of to-day. Sapper green body with handsome California top to match.

Trouble Lamp and bull's-eye flashlight. Electric cigar lighter. Rear-vision mirror. Plate glass windows. Oversize, grooved-tread tires. This is the de luxe car for the man who does not wish to pile up a tremendous operating cost. $255 extra on the standard.

HILARIOUS FARCE IS "FAIR AND WARMER"

For sheer absurdity of situation, clever and intriguing acting by a star, spakling wit in titles and finish in production, "Fair and Warmer," which appears at the Orpheum on Friday and Saturday with May Allison as the star, has, to use the effective if colloquial expression, all other pictures we have seen before completely backed off the map.

The hilarious stage success of Avery Hopwood, which was presented for so long in New York, other parts of the country and in London, with such success, has been done into picture form not only without the loss of any of the intrinsic punch and humor, but with an additional merit. The play which Selwyn and Company offered on the stage has been produced exceptionally well by Screen Classics, Inc.

"Flu" Pulledd Gillette Down To 100 Pounds—Tanlac Pulled Him Up to 148.

"For the benefit of others who are suffering from the after effects of influenza and are in a run-down condition, I want to tell of the wonderful results I have gotten from Tanlac," said George Gillette, 448 Logan avenue, Winnipeg, Man., a few days ago. Mr. Gillette is a motorman on the Winnipeg Street Railway and is well know there, having lived in Winnipeg for many years.

"Agout a year ago," said Mr. Gillette, in explaining his case, "I had an attack of 'flu' that came near putting me out of commission. For six weeks I was down in bed propped up with pillows. and for eight weeks after I did get up I was unable to work a lick. I came out of the hospital weighing less than a hundred pounds. My wife could have easily carried me round in her arms, and since I have taken Tanlac and gotten well our neighbors have told us they had no idea I would recover. The 'flu' left me without an appetite and I ate so little that it was hardly any use for me to go to the table. My circulation was so poor and I was so weak that I really thought my heart was affected. I had terrible headaches nearly all the time, and thought my back would break, it hurt so. Nothing helped me and I was just about ready to give up the fight.

"My wife had been keeping up with the Tanlac testimonials and brought me a bottle of that medicine. I had little hopes of it doing me any good, but it has completely overhauled me. It has built me up until I now weigh one hundred and forty-eight pounds, and our neighbors who thought I could not live come in to see us and go away praising Tanlac. My appetite is fine. I eat just anything set before me and have gotten rid of the headaches, pains in the back and all other miserable feelings the 'flu' left me with. I feel so strong and well now that after coming home from my run in the evenings I help my wife with her work and keep up the repairs about the house. Before taking Tanlac I could hardly sleep and always felt dead tired, but now I sleep like a log and get up in the mornings feeling fine and dandy. After getting such wonderful results I can't help praising Tanlac and I recommend it every chance I have."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS
BY Firelighter

SUMMER READING FOR BOYS IN THE TOWN AND COUNTRY

What shall I read this summer? Every wide-awake boy will want some good reading for quiet afternoons in the hammock or at camp or under the trees. He will want reading that smells of trees and fields and tells about what is going on in the outdoor world. Here is a list of some books that will help. Get hold of them any way you can. Buy them through your local bookseller. Borrow them from your friends. Hint to Dad that it is about time he presented you with a real book or a subscription to a boy's magazine. Hunt for them in the local library.

For the outdoor world all around you in the open country:

"Flower Guide" and "Bird Guide" by Read.

"American Boy's Book on Bugs, Butterflies and Beetles," by Beard.

"Field and Forest Handy Book," by Beard.

For outdoor fun of all sorts:

"At Home in the Water" by Corson.

"Camping and Outing Activities" by Cheley and Baker.

For things to make and do:

"The Camera Man" by Collins.

"Shelters, Shacks and Shanties" by BeBard.

"The BoBy Craftman" and "Handicraft for Handy Boys," by Collins.

"Harper's Wireless Book" and "Harper's Aircraft Book" by Verrill.

For adventure, animal and outdoor stories:

"The Pennant" by Tomlinson.

"Around the Fire Stories" by Doyle.

"Around the Fire" (stories) by Burr.

"Captains Courageous" by Kipling.

"Treasure Island" and "Kidnapped" by Stevenson.

"Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn" by Mark Twain.

"The Biography of a Grizzly" by Seton.

"The Ransom of Red Chief", by O. Henry.

"Boy Scouts Book of Stories."

"Twenty Thousand Leagues" and "Mysterious Island" by Verne.

For true stories that stir the blood:

"Boy's Life of Roosevelt" by Hagedow.

"Story of David Livingstone" by Golding.

"Down to the Sea," by Grenfell.

Now see the Sparkle!

HOW shall you keep your cut glass always brilliantly sparkling and clean? Use a tablespoonful of Gold Dust, warm water and small brush. Then a warm water rinse. How easy that is! And how fresh and "sparkly" it looks!

For easy or stubborn household cleaning tasks use Gold Dust. But be sure it is the real Gold Dust.

CONDUCTORS CONVICTED

(Nelson News)

Intense excitement marked the closing scenes of the trial of Conductors Joseph Jackson and William Cameron for unlawfully receiving monies from passengers. The issue narrowed down to whether this money was received as a bribe or was stolen.

Stipendant Magistrate John Cartmel's decision was theft, and the sentence of the court was in each case a fine of $100 or three months imprisonment, no order being made as to costs.

There were dramatic moments in Counsel A. I. Fisher's address in which a flood of powerful oratory was let loose. He attacked the credibility of the crown witnesses and per contra extolled the long and honorable service of the accused men and their position in public life.

For the crown C. R. Hamilton, K.C., in a calm passionless voice defended the character of the witnesses and vivisected that of the only material witness for the defence on whose demeanor he centered powerful invectives.

A strong point was made by Mr. Fisher of the delay between date of alleged offence and date of the issue of summonses—six months, and the improbability of memory serving them accurately at that range of time, also the impossibility of procuring evidence which might have been secured while the incidents were fresh.

The crown counsel rebutted by minimizing this disability and suggested accused had ample time to prepare a defence if there had been one.

Magistrate Cartmel based his finding on the credibility of witnesses, blamed the loss of public morale for encouraging irregularities on railway travelling and advanced this as mitigating the odium that would otherwise follow a conviction.

Court officials say that not for a very long time, even at murder trials has the court been so packed with interested spectators.

Mr. Fisher stipulated for the right of appeal, and the prosecution withdrew the second charge of accepting a bribe.

CRANBROOK CELEBRATION

Quite a number from Fernie took in the sports at Cranbrook on the 24th and all report a good time. The celebration, which was under the auspices of the G.W.V.A,, provided a varied program from golf to horse racing and from the wheel of fortune to prize fighting.

The Fernie baseball team were there and they had their luck with them, capturing second prize without winning a game.

The boxing contest between Jimmy Clarke, of Vancouver, and Chas. McCarthy was the big drawing card of the day, resulting in a win for the latter in the 9th round

The horse races were keenly contested and drew large crowds,

In the golf tournament A. Watson of Fernie carried off the big cup, defeating Geo. Stevenson in a hard game in the finals for the cup.

Over fifty delegates visited Fernie on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to attend the annual session of the Grand Lodge of the Italian Society.

NEW LICENSES ARE IMPOSED

The regular meeting of the council was held last evening, all present except Ald. Rutledge.

The minutes were adopetd as read.

Under heading of correspondence, the Chief Sanitary Inspector advised relative to sanitary regulations in Fairy Creek watershed, stating that his department had notified the party carrying on lumber operations in that locality of liability. Watershed regulations are in effect applying to Vancouver and North Vancouver water supplies which are very stringent in regard to enforcing sanitary precautions where operations are liable to contaminate municipal water supplies. In the local matter if regulations were decided upon an inspection will be made by a member of the Department of Public Health but the council was advised that the recommendations of the City Medical Health Officer would be paramount. The city will investigate and see whether or not the operations have been stopped and will be governed accordingly.

The city was officially notified that F. D. Emory had been appointed gas and electricity inspector as from June 1 for the Nelson district, which includes all the territory in this section of the province east of the 120th meridian. In the event of any meter or other electrical inspections they will accordingly notify the Nelson inspector.

The Royal Financial Corporation telegraphed an offer for $20,000 City of Fernie Debentures, 1940 maturity, bearing 5 per cent at 83.34 and interest, which makes these securities yield 6½ per cent. Further particulars will be requested.

The contract for hydro-electric power was briefly considered but the detailed consideration of this was left over until Monday evening next, when a special meeting of council will be held.

In connection with the Dominion Day committee's suggestion to have the city share 50 per cent of the cost of lumber to be used in the construction of another permanent booth at the city park this was approved.

Relative to complaints re accumulations of rubbish in different streets and lanes and yards in the city, the health committee will go into this matter and dire consequences are likely to happen all and sundry offenders.

Mr. Roadley presented certain grievances, all of which will have due consideration.

Bylaw No. 205, which will be cited as the "Retail Stores Bylaw," was given three readings and will be finally adopted at a special meeting of council on Monday. The purpose of this bylaw is definitely to determine what lines of goods may be sold by a retail store under one license. These are divided into eight classifications as follows:

Groceries, vegetables, cured meats, fish and dairy products.

Fresh and cured meats, fish and dairy products.

Men's wear.

Ladies' wear.

Furniture and floor coverings.

Hardware and sporting goods.

Drugs, stationery, confectionery, toys, sporting goods and musical instruments.

Confectionery, fruit, ice cream and soft drinks.

Bylaw 206, being Poll Tax Bylaw, went through the initial stages. This is a new regulation entirely based upon 1920 legislation, which permits the corporation within the Fernie school district to collect from every male person above 18 years of age residing therein the sum of $5 annually, except those who pay taxes on lands and improvements to the value of $5 to the city. If any taxpayer pays a lesser amount than $5 to the municipality then he shall pay an amount sufficient to make up the said minimum of $5. An interpretation also in this connection is that in the event of a taxpayer being in arrears for municipal taxes he is liable for the poll tax, which will be collected from such party unless current year's taxes are paid. This bylaw is being put through by the city because if they did not do so the provincial government would enforce the collection of the poll tax, in which event the municipality would not receive same. All monies collected from this source are specifically ear-marked for use for school purposes only and cannot be otherwise expended. This taxation is entirely apart from and in addition to the $2 road tax collected by the city.

The Tades License Bylaw is a consolidation of and amendments to the former ordinances governing amounts to be paid by those engaged in various trades and occupations.

Pool and billiard tables and bowling alleys are unchanged at $5 per table for six months.

Wholesalers or retail and wholesale merchants or traders are raised from $10 to $50 for every 6 months.

Retailers, hawkers and peddlers, agents for firms doing business outside city, laundries, pawnbrokers all remain unchanged.

Garages and liveries (established) $12.50 per 6 months; all others having vehicles, etc., for hire, shall pay $10 per half year for every vehicle.

Public circuses and theatres on basis of seating capacity.

Express companies, gas companies, electric companies, street railways or tramway companies, waterworks companies, telephone, investment and loan companies, fur traders or dealers remain unchanged, the present fee being the maximum that can be charged.

Another brand new bylaw by which there will be derived a very substantial income is what is cited as "The Liquor License Bylaw 1920." By the terms of this bylaw stringent requirements will have to be observed by all those seeking to sell any beverages made from malt or hops or containing proof spirits "of not more than 2½ per cent proof spirits." The sale of these beverages is absolutely prohibited unless a license is obtained. This is by formal application accompanied by $2.50 for to cover inspection of premises. The chief of police is license inspector. In the application, which must be in writing, the premses have to be minutely described. The inspector makes a detailed report and then the matter is referred to the council, who have full power to grant or refuse application and at any time to suspend or cancel any license issued. Only one transfer is permitted and all licenses expire Dec. 31 each year.

Some of the stipulations before a license can be secured are: The bar room shall face and have front door on street or avenue. During prohibited hours unobstructed view of interior must be had. No music to be allowed in bar room or adjoining room. Door between bar room and card shall be open at all times. All lisenses must be plainly exhibited. No license will be issued unless certificate of inspection is issued by the chief of police that the premises are clean and convenient for the purpose of a hotel. There must be sufficient fire escapes, etc, furniture and bedding for specified number of rooms, and there must be sufficient and well appointed eating houses to serve meals daily to guests or travellers. Failure to comply with these are to be considered a breach of the bylaw, and thereby subject to the penalties provided. If any licensee is convicted under the Prohibition Act his license will ipso facto become cancelled. An application for reinstatement, however, may be made.

Every bartender serving beverages permitted under the bylaw shall pay an annual licence fee of $5. Females are not allowed to serve beverages. Minors are not allowed to purchase or remain around where same are sold. Hours of sale from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. daily, except Sunday, when premises are closed.

The word "Bar" shall not be written, painted or printed on any premises wherein beverages are sold nor shall licensee use the word bar in advertising his premises.

The licensee shall pay a license fee of $200 to Dec. 31 and thereafter $200 per annum payable in advance.

Persons guilty of a breach of this bylaw are liable to a fine of $100 and costs or 30 days.

MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE

One of the most unexpected and mysterious happenings in this locality was disclosed early in the week when John Telfer, roadmaster for the Canadian Pacific railway on this division for the past twenty years and resident here for over sixteen years, disappeared, and despite every available means to trace him he has not been seen or heard from since last Thursday evening, when he was at Elko, B.C. Mr. Telfer recently has been working on the line supervising gangs operating out of Elko, and owing to the pressing nature of the work, has of late been subjected to extreme physical strain. As far as can be ascertained, he retired to his room in the Elk Hotel on Thursday evening last, after having partaken of a substantial meal, completely tired out.

Not hearing from him on Sunday relatives visited Elko and inquiries were made, but his absence was accounted for by the possibility that he might have journeyed south to Waldo. Efforts being made to trace him with no satisfactory result, the provincial police were notified late on Monday night and immediately instituted inquiries and a district wide search commenced. The C.P.R. officials also took up the quest, followed by federal officers, friends and civilians, and for the past four days every accessible foot of territory surrounding Elko has been traversed. In addition to this every trainman and railway official of the C.P.R. system on the western lines has been advised that the popular roadmaster of the Crow is missing. Friends also have advertised a reward of $200 for any information but all this has resulted in absolutely no trace of the missing man.

The authorities, however, while not ascertaining anything as to the manner or means whereby Mr. Telfer disappeared, have sifted various rumors and have become possessed of a most peculiar state of facts, which, surprisingly, were suppressed by those to whom known until the investigation became insistent. This revelation is that durng the early hours of Friday morning the proprietor of the Elk Hotel, F. Labelle, of Elko, was aroused from slumber by odor of smoke. Investigation of this divulged a fire in the room which had been occupied by Mr. Telfer, caused by an overturned parafine lamp. and from which damage resulted to carpet, mattress and hat of the missing man, but he was not present and no one had heard any commotion or movements of his departure. His overcoat also remained behind him. Those acquainted with these facts did not think seriously over the affair and casually inquired the following day about Mr. Telfer, but it was assumed he had left hurriedly for some point on the line by a freight train passing through, and the lamp incident occurred after his hurried departure. However, although this actually occurred apparently it sheds no further light on the baffling mystery. At present a minute search of the Elk river is being made but so far it has proved fruitless.

John Telfer is 62 years of age, married and has a famly of two daughters, Mrs. A. Dicks, of Lethbridge, and Mrs. J. McLaren, of this city. He has 38 years of service with the C.P.R. and is within two years of superannuation. He was in vigorous health and a man of most exemplary habits.

THE MINING INSTITUTE

The Rocky Mountain Branch of the Canadian Mining Institute met here last Saturday. The sessions were held in the city hall, over which W. P. Williams, President of the Branch, Bellevue, presided. D. McDonald, inspector of mines, Calgary, acted as secretary in the absence of the regular secretary, John T. Stirling, chief inspector of mines for Alberta. The members were welcomed by His Worship Mayor Henderson, following which, owing to the limited time at their disposal, the meeting got down to business. The principal feature of this quarterly session was a paper by Robt. Strachan, inspector of mines, and resident in this city, which dealt with the coal fields of the Crow's Nest Pass within the province of British Columba from 1873 to the present time, and was very favorably commented upon by the members present.

A. I. Fisher, M.L.A., delivered an address cordially lauding the organization for its valuable work as applied to the coal mining industry.

The entire party were the guests of W. R. Wilson at a luncheon held at the Fernie Hotel, while after the meeting adjourned the visitors were entertained by a trip to Coal Creek colliery and mines; also a motor drive to Elko, to view the scenic beauty of the falls on the Elk river at that point. A trip was also made to the golf links, where a number took part in that fascinating game.

The next meeting, it is stated, will be held in either Calgary or Edmonton.

JULY 1ST CELEBRATION

Arrangements are well away for the 1st of July celebration. All committees are working hard and bringing in reports that tend to show that this Dominion Day will be a "hummer."

A very radical change is expected in regard to the football program. This, however, is to be decided at the next meeting.

Three hundred dollars is to be offered for an open baseball competition and some good games are expected as a result.

With regard to the boxing contests, arrangements have been completed with Frank Smithers, manager for Charles McCarthy, who is at present Canadian champion at his weight. McCarthy's opponent will be one of three aspirants to the title. The results of certain bouts being decided soon will enable the Association to obtain the best man possible to box McCarthy. This main bout will be over the 15 round route.. There is also to be a ten round bout between two of the best featherweights obtainable. Further particulars later.

All members of committees are urged to attend the next meeting, which will be held in the council chamber next Wednesday at 8 p.m.

CARD OF THANKS

H C. Harrison and family desire to convey their heartfelt thanks to Esther Rebekah Lodge, Mt. Fernie Lodge I.O.O.F., and other friends for their kindness and floral tributes during their recent bereavement.

Baseball Fans—A meeting will be held in the Catholic Hall on Monday, May 31, for the purpose of organizing the City Baseball League. All players desiring to take part kindly hand in their names to either Pep Colton or Rod McLeod before then so as to be placed on the respective teams.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

If you've anything good to say to a man,
Don't wait till he's laid to rest;
For the eulogy spoken when hearts are broken
Is an empty thing at best.
Ah, the blighted flower now drooping lonely,
Would perfume the mountain side
If the sun's glad rays had but shone today
And the pretty bud espied.

If you've any alms to give to the poor,
Don't wait till you hear the cry
Of the wan distress in the wilderness,
Lest the one forsook may die.
Oh, harken to poverty's sad lament,
Be swift he wants to allay;
Don't sprun God's poor from the favored door,
As you hope for mercy some day.

Don't wait for another to bear the burden
Of sorrow's irksome load;
Let your hand extend to a stricken friend
As he totters down life's road.
And if you've anything good to say to a man,
Don't wait till he's laid to rest;
For the eulogy spoken when hearts are broken
Is an empty thing at best.

P. H. Harding, of the International Bible Students Association, preached in the Presbyterian church, Elko, on Sunday, to a crowded house. The subject was, "Does the Bible teach eternal punishment as the wages of sin." He was by far the best exponent of the Bible ever heard in Elko and seemed to have a memory for texts to prove his subject like a filing cabinet. On May 24 the Bible Students from Fernie and Elko gave a sing song and a lecture on World's Chart which was very interesting and appreciated, at the residence of Mrs. Fred Miller.

Jim Thistlebeak says that some of the walleyed sky pilots who are preaching in the churches to dress parades and millinery shows today, and the money that's in it, try to look as if they were walking in the shadow of Christ himself right down the sunny road, can think and do things that would make some of the residents of New Westminster sizzle with envy. They just fit in, like a bass drum does in their choir.

Jim Thistlebeak says: Why do people persist in boasting about their ancestors and their pedigrees, when we all come from the same monkey.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Perry, of Melbourne, Australia, on their way to England, stopped off at Elko to visit for two weeks and they are sure having the time of their lives. After visiting England they may return to Elko to live. Mrs. Allen Patterson and son, of Commerce, Alta., have rented rooms at Poplar Point Mansions for the summer. Mrs. Fred Roo, of Roosville, was in Elko for the week end. Jack Lougheed, of Maple Creek, was here looking for a place to herd four thousand sheep. F. W. Busmell, of Portland, anxious to buy every foot of lumber between Elko and the Boundary line. Miss Nellie Paterson, of Kootenay Orchars, Cranbrook, spent several days at Roosville last week. Mr. and Mrs. Billy Woods (the prop king) returned from England, where they had been for the winter, with their family, with appetites like an anaconda and thirsts like the desert camels, glad to get back to the old Historic Burg. Billy got orders for ten cars of mine props before he had time to help his family off the train. Miss Beryl Nichols of Creston is down at Roosville, visiting her sister, who has charge of Roosville's rural temple of learning. Miss M. Duncan and Miss L. Benning of Fernie were down at Elko the guests of Mrs. Tom Duncan, at the Columbia Hotel. A jolly party of picnicers, headed by Billy Laniaster, from Coal Creek and Fernie, about 16, went down in J. Perry's auto bus to Silver Heights Ranch, Roosville, and visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Lancaster, late manager of the Corbin stores. Mrs. Frank Labelle and family moved down from Hosmer and took up their residence in the Elk hotel. Mrs. C. A. Klingensmith entertained several Fernie friends to a 5 o'clocker last Monday. Charley Fife, of the C.P.R., Edmonton, was down to Elko on Sunday with a party of key pounders and showed them where in years gone by he used to pull out the big fish. Colin Sinclair took a big load from Rainbow Lumber Co., Roosville Valley, to the Cranbrook celebration. Crowds went from Elko by auto and special train and everybody satisfied.

CAPITALISM

When one considers how little the average man and woman knows of the great fundamental truths as expressed in the science of economics, is it any wonder that the soap box orators, with their wild, heedless propaganda, get the attention they no wise deserve and a following which is a menace to civilization? Our newspapers in this respect have much to answer for. It is easy to suggest that the people, taken as a whole, are the slaves of a sinister system, known as "Capitalism"; that potatoes are high because they are being hoarded; that sugar is 25 cents per pound because refiners, wholesalers and retailers are taking too great a toll; that the baker is stealing their money and so on, ad lib. It would be well if they explained these matters to their readers. That sugar is high because there is a world shortage, owing to the sugar beet producing countries going out of business, and a vast increase in consumption, chiefly owing to prohibition; that potatoes are high because there is a shortage, particularly in the United States; that bread is dear because wheat is dear, and the farmer threateningly says: "Lower the price and I will cease to produce."

The soap box orator has but to mention the words "Capital" and "Capitalism" to bring down the house, so to speak. It is easy to bundle up all one's wrongs, mark it "Capitalism" and let it go at that. That is how Lenine and Trotzky so well succeeded with their nefarious plans, though they are not such fools as to believe all they preach. They at least are intelligent men.

Now, what is a capitalist. In Canada we have a million or more of them. Every person who owns a war bond or possesses a bank account is just as surely a capitalist as if he owned a block of houses or a steel mill. It is merely a matter of degree. The minute a man possesses funds which are sent out to work for him—and if they do not work they are no possible use—the return coming back in the form of dividends or interest, or to put it in a homely way, bringing home its wages, that person—the owner — automatically becomes a capitalist, and incidentally an asset to the community.

Obviously mankind desires to better itself. The problem is to put people in the way of thinking how best this may be accomplished. Exterminating capital is certainly not the path to follow nor the lesson to learn. And right here let me say that it is unfortunately the less too often taught when Hyde Parkers are reported in the press, giving details of their raw, bare arguments without any attempt to show what crazy, vicious rubbish is being preached. I recall a most extraordinary instance of this sort of thing which occurred during the Winnipeg strike. One prominent Toronto newspaper sent to the scene of the disorders a parlor Bolshevist, a half-baked Red, who, if he did not deliberately misstate the facts, had a mind which was unable to grasp the real intent of that drive against law and order. The consequence was, that day after day the facts were submerged in this newspaper, the gang now serving a prison sentence were made to look like heroes, and the decent citizens of Winnipeg forming the "committee of a thousand," who primarily saved the situation by their work, were scarcely mentioned. And if they were ever commended, I missed the item.

This is the sort of thing that leads the public mind astray, and makes Bolshevists of men who would, if properly informed, by decent, law-abiding citizens. The newspapers, rather than the schools, are the educators of the masses, and it is largely up to them as to whether we pull down or build it up.

Remedies such as deportation and jail will have no lasting effect upon anarchistic theories. What the people should learn is the truth in respect to the function of capital and labor. Capital pays wages, says the Hyde Parker. But, of course, it does nothing of the sort. Wages must be paid out of production, and capital merely furnishes the means of production. The truth of this assertion we have before us in the case of Russia. Capitalism in large centres of population in that country was eliminated so far as possible by the Bolshevists, and in consequence the whole structure of prodoction fell to the ground. All that remains in the way of real production is in the farming districts, where the capitalist, or in other words, the farmer, still survives.

And what remedy does the Russian Bolshevists apply? They apply the only one in sight at the moment —forced labor. Work under compulsion or starve, a far cry from the theory that the world owed everybody a living, practically without work.—Toronto Saturday Night.

THE PLAGUE OF STRIKES

During the month of April 84,000 working days were lost through strikes in Canada. Reckoned at ten hours per day this means that 840,000 hours were unproductive. Calculated at the low figure of 50c per hour this tells of a monetary loss to workmen for the month of $420,000, or at the rate of upward of five millinon dollars per year, to say nothing of the loss entailed in the industries where these hands were employed. And the worst of it is the outlook for May, at this writing at least, is worse than a month ago. "A plague on both your houses"! When is this nonsense going to cease?

IMAGINE! A group of men and women, suddenly flung on a desert isle. Master and man, mistress and maid—now only males and females.

Birth, wealth, trappings, vanished. A new life, calling to a test of worth, where those who are strong, lead, and those who are weak, follow.

Such is this great story. Ranging from the splendid home of an English earl to savage scenes in a tropical jungle, from nice conventions of the cultured elite to uncontrolled passions of ancient Babylon.

An epic of love and struggle, vital in theme, stupendous in conceptions, amazingly dramatic, beautiful beyond words.

The bride was assisted by Miss Catherine McGraw, of Victoria, and the groom by J. R. Burden, of Calgary. The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. A. H. Denoon, of the Presbyterian church, was attended by only the immediate friends of the contracting parties and Mrs. Alfred Smith, a sister of the bride, from Calgary. After the ceremony the happy couple were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Turney to a delightful wedding dinner, the room being beautifully decorated for the occasion with sweet peas and roses. In the evening a reception was held. Mr. and Mrs. Pollock left on the late train for Calgary.

Mrs. H. F. McLean and Miss Ruth, who have been holidaying at Conrad, Montana, returned home this week.

If you will notice the Crow's Nest Trading Co. are making a special reduction of 25 per cent on all their ladies suits, coats and dresses. They have a very choice stock to select from and if you really want a bargain don't miss this sale.

A case which ilustrates the persistency of the Mounted Police came up before Judge Morrison last week. Some of our local druggists were summoned before Magistrate Whimster for selling goods without the government stamp, among them being H. F. McLean. It seems that a local sargeant called and purchased a bottle of hair restorer from one of the lady clerks who had just been on the job for a day or so and she neglected to put the stamp on it. Mr. McLean objected to the charge and it was thrown out on the ground that the firm was a joint stock company. The police charged the company with the infraction. This was also thrown out for some technical reason. They then brought the charge against the young lady clerk and Magistrate Whimster fined her $50 and costs. Lawe & Fisher appealed the case and Judge Morrison threw it out because the charge should have been laid against the manager of the concern. We have not heard yet who will be the next one pinched.

PUBLICITY COLUMN

The following letters have been received by J. F. Spalding:

Vancouver, May 11, 1920.

Secretary Publicity Committee,
Fernie Board of Trade.

Dear Sir—As a Director of the Vancouver Automobile Club, I have had the pleasure of examining the folder "Scenic Fernie" and also the splendid brochure issued by the Associated Board of Trade of South East Kootenay, and congratulate you on the excellence of their get up—although you omit Vancouver from the list of travel distances, which may have been an oversight.

The publications are of special interest to me in view of a forthcoming effort to log a new transcontinental motor route, in connection with which the Board of our Club at a special meeting last week pledged the Vancouver Automobile Club to support and encourage the project by all means within its powers. I might add that the Secretary aims to have the tour run under the auspices of "the motor clubs of British Columbia" and has already obtained consent of the Victoria and New Westminster Clubs. I leave here in a few days by rail for Eastern Canada, to secure a car and motor home, "To establish by investigation and travel the shortest and most convenient motor route from Montreal to Vancouver." I might say that the "investigation" element has already occupied much time and attention, and, judging by the advance interest evoked, the tour will have some important results. The Automobile Club of Canada (Montreal) is especially interested, and several stories of the tour are already arranged for in Canadian and U.S. motoring journals, and a series of letters in a number of Canadian dailies. I am assured from the highest sources that the Eastern U.S. motorists especially want to tour to the Pacific via a northern route, out of the heat and deserts, but that, up to date, there has been absolutely nothing of an official guide nature to place in their hands. If the Automobile Club of Canada does not send a representative with me in a separate car they will probably authorize me as their pathfinder as well, so that, with the official support of the proper authorities at either end, the log as issued on completion will be generally recorded, and should result in a considerable number of Eastern tourists following the route almost at once.

The somewhat indefinite designation of "Canadian Highway" or "Transcontinental Highway" as on your sketch, is thought to be insufficient and in fact misleading. The motoring public is very tired of "highways" being named and advertised before they are completed or feasible, and I personally prefer to advertise a route which is available today. There is, as a matter of fact, no "Canadian Highway," so why not designate a route which is an existing thing and which will yet utilize the roads we have. The title "The King's International Highway" has been suggested here, as embodying a road from Montreal, through Ottawa, North Bay, Sault Ste. Marie, Duluth, Winnipeg, west to Cranbrook and Spokane, Seattle to Vancouver. Such a name suggests prominently a British flavor, makes it unmistakable that it is a Canadian enterprise, will appeal quite as much if not more to American motorists than a purely Canadian route, and moreover lends itself well to the ultimate situation when there is a road as "The King's Canadian Highway." right across our country to be known This, however, is merely a suggestion on which I trust we may compare notes when I come through Fernie about August 1 or a fortnight earlier.

I have a large mass of material and information from points all along the line and invitations to confer with Automobile Clubs and Boards of Trade at various places. I should be very glad if you will write me an expression of opinion on the project. The tour is taken purely at my own expense but I feel that its success can only be achieved by the co-operation of all the interests concerned.

Faithfully yours,
Percy Gomery.

Minot, N.D., May 17, 1920.

J. F. Spalding, Fernie, B.C.

My Dear Sir—We have received the booklets, but they are entirely insufficient for our needs. We are establishing information offices for tourists in every town along the Roosevelt Highway in North Dakota, and each of these offices should have a supply of your books, so I would suggest that you send me 500 more of them at once.

We are making fine progress with getting our highway into condition for motor tourists and expect a large number of them this year.

Yours respectfully,
W. E. Holbein,
Pres. N. D. Division Roosevelt Highway.

Tourist Booklet, "The Canadian Rockies and How to See Them."

Calgary, May 15, 1920

J. F. Spalding,
Publicity Commissioner, Fernie.

Dear Mr. Spalding—I thany you for your letter of the 4th inst., and for supply of the above booklet which duly arrived.

Without question, this is the best booklet covering a motor route which I have ever seen.

After reading the descriptive matter, and looking at the photographs, especially the latter, I do not see how any one can fail to appreciate the attractiveness of this trip.

The copies you forwarded have been distributed to our Passenger Department representatives throughout Canada and the United States, and they have been advised that any interested parties can obtain copies of the booklet on application to you, as well as any further information desired in this connection.

Yours sincerely,
E. Officer.
Travelling Passenger Agent C.P.R.

Pacific Northwest Tourist Association
Seattle, May 5, 1920.

Dear Sir—Please allow me to congratulate the Southeastern British Columbia Boards of Trade and yourself upon the very timely and excellent booklet just issued under the title "The Canadian Rockies and How to See Them." The information contained therein has been wanted by this office ever since the Association was started and I am quite sure that your enterprise will yield enormous dividends on the capital invested.

I have only one criticism and that is that it took me a long time to find out to whom I should write this letter. There is nothing in the booklet, so far as I can see, intimating to whom anyone wishing for the information may apply. There is not even a list of Boards of Trade.

With these comments I wish to express my appreciation of everything else that is in the booklet. Will you please send me as many as you can spare, but in small parcels to save duty—not more than six or eight at a time. I can assure you that everyone of them will be placed in the hands of a prospective tourist; none will be wasted.

I would suggest that, if you have enough to spare, that you send one to each member of our Board of Directors. It will interest them and may bring some of them to see you.

I should appreciate it very much if you would have a copy of this letter sent to each Board of Trade interested in getting out the booklets.

Iam sending the only copy you sent me to our artist who is getting out a map of the Pacific Northwest, so that he may compare his map with the one you have issued.

I am free to say that nothing has pleased me so much for a long time as the enterprise you people have shown in getting out this long-needed booklet.

Yours faithfully,
Herbert Cuthbert,
Executive Secretary.

Safeguard Your Roof

THE roof is an important item—it "makes" or "mars" the whole structure. In shingle-roofed houses it is even more necessary to see that it is in good regular repair, because once a roof commences to decay a general deterioration of house-value is the immediate result.

To ensure a permanent durability, as well as an added appearance, use either as a mixture in which shingles are dipped or as a stain to apply to the completed roof.

It comes in all colors, and gives a tough, durable "seasoning," besides contributing largely to the artistic effect of your home.

Like every other B-H product, the B-H Shingle Stain is first choice among people who know good paint.

$1465 F.O.B. CHATHAM WARTAX EXTRA GRAY-DORT

The new Gray-Dort is a veritable treat to the eye—dignified, pleasing, modern.

The new hood with its many long, narrow louvres gives a European touch. So, too, does the smaller, smarter cowl. The gasoline tank is now in the rear. And the Rayntite top, hand-tailored in our own shops, is easily the smartest top on any light car.

Crowning all is the lasting elegance of the coach-builder's art and finish which Gray-Dort craftsmen have spent 60 years in perfecting.

But this beauty of line and finish cloaks even more desirable features.

The smooth, quiet Gray-Dort motor with its 5" stroke and 3½" bore: the heavy 40 lb. crankshaft: the channel steel frame: the heavier steering gear: the Thermoid brake lining; the improved ignition and carburetor: the Westinghouse starting and lighting systems: the heavier rear axle and cantilever springs, both Chatham-built:—the more you know about cars the more superiorities will you find in the Gray-Dort, hidden under its robe of smart beauty.

At $1465 there is nothing in the light car class to match the refined and improved Gray-Dort.

It is the dominant VALUE. See it first.

A Modern Example of Suffering

People suffer—suffer torments—with help at hand. Gin Pills can overcome pain in the most marvelous way—all the suffering which follows in the wake of weak or diseased kidneys, such as rheumatism, sciatic neuralgia, stone in the bladder, excruciating backache, stiff and swollen joints and ankles, yields quickly to the soothing, healing, strengthening power of Gin Pills, which contain Juniper and seven other valuable diuretics and antiseptics.

Mr. Arnold McAskell, of Hants, N.S., writes as follows:

"For a long time I suffered from a pain in my back and could not move without agony. I grew worse until confined to bed. A friend advised me to use Gin Pills. Before I had used one box I began to feel better. By the time I had finished two, I was completely cured. I cannot say too much in favor of these pills and I recommend them strongly to anyone suffering from kidney trouble."

At the first suggestion of pain in the back get Gin Pills from your druggist or dealer. Each box is guaranteed to relieve—or money back. 50c a box. Free sample, sufficient to show its value, sent on request.

NORGROVE DISMISSED

(Grand Forks Gazette)

Because they regarded ten cases of liquor, 120 bottles, with a value of round about $500, as too much for a chief f police, who was instructed to rigidly enforce the provisons of the prohibition act, the Police Commissioners on Saturday night dismissed James Norgrove as chief of police, effective forthwith, and appointed James Walker as constable temporarily. On Wednesday evening Richard Park was appointed to succeed Mr. Norgrove.

Com. Liddicoat asked the chief regarding instruction which had been given him; among other instructions he was to "post himself fully on the provisions of the prohibition act and enforce them rigidly."

Asked if he had done this the chief said: "Yes, I watched it as close as possible." Asked as to receiving liquor himself, he refused to answer.

Com. Liddicoat then proceeded to state that on May 4 ten cases of liquor had been received and signed for by Chief Norgrove and asked if a man could get in ten cases of liquor and be expected to enforce the prohibition requirements.

Chief Norgrove: It is perfectly permissable for a man to buy liquor for private use under the prohibition law.

Com. Liddicoat then started to say that he did not think a man wih liquor in such quantity could be expected to enforce the prohibition law as he would be using it to excess or for other purposes.

Chief Norgrove then asked that he be allowed to secure a stenographer.

Mayor Acres—Mr. Liddicoat, do I understand you are making a charge against the chief.

Com. Liddicoat—I am stating facts which I can back up. There is no need for a stenographer. I will go slow enough for it to be taken down.

Mr. Liddicoat agreed to a stenographer and Miss Graham was sent for. On her arrival Chief Norgrove produced a book and both Mr. Liddicoat and Miss Graham were sworn.

Mr. Liddicoat was asked to repeat his statements and proceeded by stating how he had asked the chief regarding his instructions on entering the police force, of posting himself thoroughly on the prohibition act and enforcing the act rigidly.

Com. Liddicoat—Have you imported any liquor.

Chief Norgorve—I refuse to answer

Com. Liddicoat — Will you allow the Board to look through your house and see?

Chief Norgrove—Certainly not!

Com. Liddicoat—I consider a man shipping liquor in such quantity is not a fit man to enforce the prohibition act, it seems to me but one of two reasons — either using it to excess himself or for other purposes. I am giving the information to the Board that ten cases of liquor arrived at the express office on May 3 and on the 4th Mr. Norgrove received same. It is my opinion that a man importing such a quantity of liquor is not a fit man to enforce the prohibition act, and therefore ask for his dismissal, and would move accordingly.

Com. Taylor—I am of the same opinion as Mr. Liddicoat and would second the motion.

Chief Norgrove—Where did you get your information?

Com. Liddicoat—I got my information from the Express Co.'s books.

The statute affecting the importation of liquor was read.

Chief Norgrove—I think I should be allowed to import liquor as a private citizen.

Com. Liddicoat— And this Board does not think you can give satisfaction when receiving it in such quantity.

Com. Liddicoat—Have you received liquor into your house other than liquor referred to?

Chief Norgrove—Not to my knowledge.

Com. Liddicoat — Will you swear you have not?

Chief Norgrove—I will swear nothing to you, Mr. Liddicoat.

Chief Norgrove then asked each of the commissioners if they had ever seen him under the influence of liquor and they replied in the negative.

Mayor Acres thought the motion should include when the temination was effective and what further salary should be paid. The statutes were referred to, and the motion went through to read "immediately," without provision for any extension of pay, which appeared in harmony with the act.

HE HAD SUFFERED FOR FORTY YEARS

"I Know I Couldn't Hold Out Much Longer," Says McPhee—Troubles Gone Now

"I am sixty-two years old and during the past forty years I can hardly remember a day that I was free from suffering but since taking Tanlac I have gained fifteen pounds and am feeling like a young man again," was the statement made by D. McPhee, a well-known miner, who is operating his mine at Hotham Sound, B.C., recently.

"It does me good to tell the people about Tanlac for after a man had suffered like I have he learns what good health means and when I bought this medicine I bought good health. It was back in 1880 that my troubles started and during all these years I spent lots of money and tried every known medicine and treatment but in spite of it all I got worse and worse until I became practically a wreck. First my stomach got out of order and I hated to see meal time come for often just the smell of food nauseated me. As soon as I ate a few bites my stomach turned sour and I would become bloated up with gas. My heart palpitated terribly and I had a burning like fire in my chest. Then I started suffering with headaches and nearly every day that came my head hurt, sometimes so bad that it almost ran me wild. Next rheumatism set in my feet and legs and at times I could hardy get around at all. Then I had awful pains in my back and they would travel up into my shoulders so that it was agony for me to move my arms. My nerves broke down under the strain and after that I don't think I slept well a single night. I suffered from constipation and had to be taking laxatives all the time. I fell off in weight until I went down to one hundred and thirty-five pounds, was too weak to work and I knew I couldn't hold out much longer.

"Well, when a man suffers that way, and for forty years at that, and then finds a medicine that knocks his troubles winding, I tell you, it makes him want to go out and tell everybody he meets about it. Well, that's just what Tanlac has done for me and as long as I have a breath left in me I will continue to shout its praise. I have an appetite like a bear now, everything I eat tastes good and I never have a sign of indigestion afterwards. I can't tell I ever had rheumatism in my life and the pains in my back and shoulders have disappeared entirely. The headaches are gone and I am no longer troubled with constipation. My nerves are as steady as a clock, I sleep like a log and I feel so well and strong in every way that I want to take my place beside a young man for I believe I can do as much work as any man. I am going back to my work now at the mine and I am leaving in the morning, and to show you how much I think of Tanlac I am carrying several bottles along with me."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

DREGS OF WORLD WAR

London—"On all sides we are drinking the bitter dregs of war, and nowhere are these dregs more bitter than in regard to the relations of the sexes," said the Archbishop of York, speaking on rescue work in his diocese.

The war has caused, naturally, great sex excitement, and we must not be surprised, knowing what human nature was, that it had another side. Young girls and women had been invested with the immense responsibility of a freedom never shared by those who had gone before, and, in order, as it were, to increase the risks of that great gift of responsibility, there had followed, inevitably, the excitement of the mad passion for amusement, which seemed to be running through all classes of the population. It sprang, of course, very naturally, from the reaction which set in after the war.

The enormous increase in petitions for divorce since 1910 was a symptom of recklessness and heedlessness and frivolity of a very widespread nature, and behind all this glitter of excitement and illusory pleasure—and behind all these records of ill-assorted marriages—there was stalking the foul spectre of disease. About this there was happily no longer any doubt or false secrecy in the public mind.

We were entering upon a time when it would have to be decided whether or not, in regard to sexual morality, and ultimately with regard to marriage, this country was going to adhere to Christianity, or was going to admit the Pagan standard.

C.N.P. FOOTBALL LEAGUE

Fernie journeyed to Coal Creek last Sunday for the second game of the C.N.P. League. Quite a number of fans were present when the game started, with J. Caufield in charge of the whistle. Both teams played a hard fast game but neither side seemed able to find the net. Fernie pressed hard in the second half and had hard luck on two occasions. Benny Smith and Hugh Brown had the misfortune to receive injuries which will put them out of the game for a while.

Last Thursday night marked the opening of the City League, when Bill Riley's Celtics and Bert Sawyer's Harlequins locked horns. The play during the first half was all in favor of the Celtics and the score at half time was 2—0, but the Harlequins came back strong in the second half and tied the score. There was a very small crowd owing to the inclement weather. Referee: A. Black.

O.B.U. ACTIVE IN NEW MINING AREA

Wearied of their efforts in the coal mining camps of Alberta, the O.B.U. agitators are turning their attention to the workers in the silver mines of British Columbia, according to R. A. Grimes, of the Slocan silver mine, who was in Calgary Tuesday morning. He explained, in the course of an interview, that without any notice whatever these men went out on strike, and that all the mines of the district, employing approximately 1000 men, are idle.

International representatives of the Miners' and Smelters' Union, he said, were now on the spot and in one or two instances had induced some of the men to return to work.

Mr. Grimes bitterly complained of the tactics of the O.B.U. leaders in bringing about a tie-up without first formulating their demands. It was expected, however, that the strike would be short-lived. The men who were willing to return to work, he said, were being intimidated in every possible way.

FATAL CAR ACCIDENT

William Lancaster, inspector of mines here for the past three years, and one of our most highly respected citizens, lost his life last Saturday morning in the twinklng of an eye, when in some manner the automobile he was driving up the Coal Creek road turned turtle over a small bridge and he was caught beneath. Just how the accident happened cannot be positively stated as Mr. Lancaster was alone in the car and there were no eyewitnesses to the accident. Since his demise it has been established that last Saturday morning was the first time he had ever actually driven a car, either in company or alone. He was very keen, however, to learn, and expressed himself as desirous of learning to manage a car by picking it up himself rather than taking lessons from some one else. With this idea he took out the government car at the Rescue Station about 10 o'clock Saturday morning and after one or two little short trials in that neighborhood, at 11.20 he decided to go for a spin up the Coal Creek road. Shortly after 12 o'clock a young lad by the name of Drew reported at the Rescue station that Mr. Lancaster with the car had gone over the embankment near the Little Rock cut. Dr. Garner was rushed to the scene two miles from the city within fifteen minues but it was at once seen that the accident had been instantly fatal.

Coroner Thomson was promptly summoned and as news of the accident spread rapidly in the city there was soon a host of friends on the scene and a jury was empanelled on the spot. They viewed conditions exactly as they had been found and then adjourned until Tuesday. The evidence adduced showed the inexperience of deceased in the manipulation of a car. Ben Drew, the young lad who fond Mr. Lancaster, testified that he had been on horseback proceeding to Coal Creek and just a short distance from where the accident happened the car had passed him. At that time Mr. Lancaster was driving it very slowly. The car passed around a sharp turn in the road and although he did not see the accident the lad Drew said he heard the crash. He then hastened up the road looking for the road gang, and not locating them galloped back to the city. With a view to ascertaining actually what did happen, Percy Bean was called as an expert witness. He testified that the car appeared to have no mechanical defects and apart from certain exterior damage it was in good operating condition; in fact, after recovering it from below the brdge over which it went, the car was driven back to the city under its own power. In the opinion of this witness the accident was caused by the driver losing control through lack of experience in handling a car, thereby failing to enter upon the bridge squarely in the roadway, and instead one front wheel went outside the stringer on the bridge and the momentum carried it its full length with two wheels on the bridge and two over the side, when it overbalanced and crashed down below. The place where the accident occurred was not considered any more dangerous than hundreds of others in this immediate vicinty; n fact much less dangerous than many. The jury returned a verdct of accidental death.

Deceased was 46 years of age and a widower. He had resided in this city for sixteen years, and for many years prior to his promotion to inspector of mines held a responsible official position with the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. He has been a school trustee for two terms and last municipal election was elected police commissioner by a substantial majority. He is survived by three sisters and two brothers residing in this locality. He originally came from Tinsley, England. The funeral was held Thursday and was largely attended. Elk River Lodge, A F. & A.M., and Mount Fernie Lodge, I O.O.F. took part in the burial obsequies..

COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The Local Council of Women met in the city hal. on Monday and a very interesting and instructive evening was spent.

The health commttee brought to the notice of the council the disgraceful condition of the lanes of the city. Never have they been in such an unsanitary and unsightly condition as this year. Ashes, tin cans and all kinds of rubbish remain in the lanes, making them not only an eyesore but should warm weather set in a positive menace to health. The council discussed ways of having these accumulations removed and were of the opinion that if the city would make a garbage collection holder a small sum, the lanes would once a month and charge each housethus be kept in a respectable condition and no one would object.

Mrs. Herchmer gave a most interesting paper on "Laws for Women in British Columbia." Some of these laws are certainly very unfair and although a few have been changed there is much to be done before the laws of British Columbia will be considered ideal.

All women eligible to vote are urged to have their names put on the provincial voters lists as soon as possible, as the old lists have been detroyed.

Next council meeting will be held Monday, June 28.

G. G. S. LINDSEY PASSES AWAY

G. G. S. Lindsey died after a short illness at his home in Toronto, on May 27.

George Goldwin Smith Lindsey K.C., was in many respects one of Toronto's outstanding citizens. His vesatility was almost amazing and he had an infinite capacity for work. He travelled much and was widely known in other lands than his own.

He was born in Toronto on Mach 19, 1860, the grandson of William Lyon Mackenzie, who was the leader of the rebellion of 1837. He was educated at Upper Canada College and the University of Toronto, played on the football and cricket teams there, took his B.A. in 1882, and at Osgoode pursued his law studies, eventually being made a K.C.

He was an enthusiastic sportsman and in 1887 he organized the cricket team known as "Gentlemen of Canada" and took them on a tour to England, where they made quite a fine showing against the English teams. The story of the tour was told in his book, "Cricket Across the Sea."

After following the practice of law for some years he gradually inclined toward the mining business and became an authority on mining matters and mining laws. He was for several years the president and general manager of the Crow's Nests Pass Coal Co. He was also presidest of the Canadian Mining Institute. In 1915 he went to China in the interests of English mining companies, and remained there for a year and a half. While in China he so completely gained the confidence of the Chinese leaders that he was given the commission of framing the new mining code for the Chinese Republic, the nation never before having had such a code.

Mr. Lindsey was always more or less active in the political world. He was a Liveral, and from 1899 until 1901 was president of the Toronto Reform Association. Before that, in 1894, he had unsuccessfully contested the riding of West Toronto as Liberal nominee for the Ontario Legislature. He broke with his old party, however, on the issue of conscription in 1917, and campaigned for the Union government.

Mr. Lindsey edited his father's volume, "The Life of William Lyon Mackenzie," which is included in the "Makers of Canada" series.

In religion he was an Anglican. He belonged to the Toronto Club, the Ontario Club, the R.C.Y.C., and the Manitoba Club of Winnipeg. He was also a member of the Toronto Chapter of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

In 1889 he married Cora A., second daughter of the late James Bethune, Q.C., who survives him. There are two sons, Major Charles Bethune Lindsey, D.S.O., who had quite a distinguished career in the war, and James Bethune Lindsey.

The morning session was taken up with the annual report of the Provincial Secretary which was a very comprehensive statement of the history of the organization to date.

The delegates will be the guests of the Fernie Board of Trade this evening at a banquet in their honor in Victoria Hall.

MEETING OF BOARD OF TRADE

The meeting held in the council chamber last night was rather poorly attended owing to other affairs taking place. However, a considerable amount of work was transacted in the two hours sitting.

E. K. Stewart, as chairman of the Transportation committee, reported the fact that the C.P.R. had at last placed the local train in service, and illustrated what a big benefit this was to every busness man in town. As this train makes connections with all eastern points and carries express, it will greatly facilitate business. A resolution was passed instructing the Secretary to write a circular letter to each business man in town, point out these facts and requesting him to endeavor to extend his patronage as much as possible to that train. If this is done the company is more likely to keep it running permanently instead of as a temporary measure.

The report of the delegates to the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern B.E. at Invermere was presented by F. Parker, and after a short discussion a resolution was passed confirming the action of the delegates. A report of the convention appears elsewhere in this issue.

J. F. Spalding presented the report of the Publicity committe, which was very optimistc. He presented the commttees budget for the year's expenditure, which was discussed point by point and finally passed as a whole. He reported on the follow-up pamphlet which has been prepared and is now being printed. This gives detailed information of our fishing, hunting, climbng and other features and will be illustrated with eight pictures applicable to each. The pamphlet will have 12 pages.

The committee appointed to arrange for a banquet to the delegates to the G.W.V.A. convention here reported that all arrangements had been made to hold the banquet this evening at Victoria Hall. The Daughters of the Empire have very kindly consented to take over the entire management of this and this is sufficient proof that no effort will be spared to make the banquet a big success. It is hoped that most of the delegates will be able to stay over for Sunday to take part in the motor trip to Elko which is being arranged for them. Mr. Spalding has this in hand and reported that he had already secured a number of cars and thinks that there will be no difficulty in getting sufficient to take every delegate to the convention. The cars will be at the G W.V.A. hall on Victoria avenue at 2 p.m. sharp. There may be several car owners whom Mr. Spalding is unable to get in touch with. If they happen to read this and feel inclined to make good fellows of themselves for this occasion they will be welcomed with smiles at 2 p.m. on Sunday.

The Secretary was instructed to write Mr. Donald of the B.C. and Alberta Power Co and ask if there is any way in which the Board can assist him and if he cared to meet them a special meeting of the executive would be arranged.

Mr. Spalding then moved that an invitation from this Board to the Associated Boards of Eastern B. C. for their next convention to be held in Fernie, be extended. This was carried unanimously. This convention will be held in September of this year.

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

Word has been received from Frank Smithers relative to the engagement of Charles McCarthy to box here on July, guaranteeing McCarthy's appearance. The Association are negotiating with other parties for McCarthy's opponent. We expect to be able to make a definite announcement in the course of a few days. Several offers have been made for the ten-round semi-wind-up. These offers are being gone ove with the intention of getting the very best two.

So far there are no developments in the football arrangements.

Definite word has been received that Coleman will compete in the baseball competition.

Considerable interest is being shown in the log rolling and sawing competitions. We are informed that most of the lumber companies in the district are training teams.

The committee are offering the following prizes for the parade:

Bicycles—Three prizes.

Floats—Two prizes for representative and one for the best comic.

Autos—One prize.

Indians—Two prizes.

Clown—Two prizes.

The next meeting will be held in the council chamber on Wednesday next at 8 p.m. All chairmen of committees are urged to have their committees attend this meeting.

ASSOCIATED BOARD OF TRADE

Invermere, May 30.—With accredited board of trade delegates called together from Cranbrook, Fernie, Windermere district, and Golden, fraternal delegates from Creston, and with a large number of visitors from Cranbrook and the Windermere district present at the Invermere hotel, Invermere, on Friday and Saturday, the Associated Board of Trade of Southeastern British Columbia was organized, and several resolutions of interest to East Kootenay passed. These proceedings preceded and followed an informal reception and banquet tendered by the Windermere district board of trade to the visitors.

Thirteen carloads of delegates and visitors attended, nine of which leaving Cranbrook on Friday morning, were piloted safely and without mishap through the 80 odd miles of gorgeous scenery that lies between that city and Invermere.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says: As the rising sun dissipates fog, so will harmony free you from all ills. Create, produce, cultivate harmony. You cannot sow cucumber seeds and expect to get two-handled pumpkins. Like produces like. If you want harmony sow the seeds of harmony, sow them generously, then cultivate them. A rag doll is not magnetic because it has no feelings, is not receptive, responsive, has no harmony, has no intelligence. Cultivate your personality gifts if you have any, endowments, attributes, and you will have magnetic power and expression.

The Fire Fool—By Request

A fool there was and he threw a match
Carelessly down on a sun-dried patch,
Giving no heed that a fire might catch
And spread to the timber with quick despatch.
The fool returned on his way and found
Ashes and embers all over the ground
And far in the distance with horrible sound
The fire consuming the timber around.
The fool passed on with wondering look:
He couldn't explain the fire that took
The forest away and dried the brook,
Hewas a fool—that's why.

The Elko board of school trustees are appealing to the Supt. of Education at Victoria for another room and another teacher. There are nine children of school age unable to attend school on account of no accommodation and there will be six more of school age next term. There are ten grades in the present school and no teacher can do justice to herself or to the scholars under present conditions.

Jim Thistlebeak says: Blessed is he that has never to sit up at night to poultice his conscience. Wisdom is the tree in the midst of the garden that springs from the heart, blooms on the tongue and bears fruit in actions.

The Elko ladies baseball team are practicing every night on Gospel Hill, if that will help them any. Miss Minnie Cairns, head biscuit shooter at the Columba hotel, is the star pitcher.

A detachment of the R.N.W.M.P. were in Elko this week searching with others for John Telfer, one of the most popular roadmasters the C.P.R. had.

E. F. Hutchings, president of the Great West Saddlery Co., Winnipeg, with R. J. Hutchings, vice-president, with headquarters at Calgary, and G. A. Bonnallie, manger of the Bank of Commerce, Fernie, passed through Elko last week, making a short visit with Fred Roo, renewing old acquaintance.

Jim Thistlebeak says: If you wish for something put yourself in the way of getting it. A fat man stepped out into the road in Elko the other day and asked a friend what he should get in the way of an automobile. Just then a flivver came around the corner and he got it.

The Bill Woods Pineries started up again this week and Frank Ingham is in charge of the motor truck, and the way they are shooting out the mine timber is making the motor truck very popular for this business.

Among the charming visitors who passed through Elko this week were Miss Stella Big Moon and Miss Eagle Feather, just returning from visiting friends at Creston. Both young ladies will be remembered as experts at putting the fancy beads on the buckskin gauntlets for motor tourists.

Two families named White moved here from Winnipeg last week and took up their residence at Kensington Park Gardens west of the town.

Fred Butler, chief accountant for the Nolan Lumber Co., Roosville Valley, was in Elko and Fernie this week. Allen Patterson, of Commerce, Alberta, was in for the week end visiting his wife and boy. The Fernie city council motored down to Elko on Wednesday and spent the afternoon. Ed. Richards came down from Nelson for a few days. Billy Poali, the well known trapper, came in with a big black bear, all he could pack, and went back to the hills for two more. Miss Sally Two Kettles with some beautiful beaded buckskin gauntlets. They say down on Tobacco Plains that when Sally smiles the sun comes out. Mr. Fisher, saw filer for the Rainbow Lumber Co., Roosville valley, passed through Elko on his return from the Fernie general hospital, where he had been with a sprained ankle. Fred Roo, Jr., was up with his new auto and took his mother and the two Miss Nichols, of Creston, back with him to Roosville. Jim Shierlock, that versatile vender of delicatessen dainties and salt pork, was in from the coast just as full of jazz as ever and coast gossip rolled out of him like peas out of a basket. A Calgary traveller taking orders for a patent stamp licked. Looked like if he might have sold lead pencils in his better days. Jim Thistlebeak says that the only thing he would get anyways easy would be a cold. The Alberta Meat Trust had a hurried call to Pincher Creek last Sunday. May the Lord have mercy on Pincher Creek. Joe Christiana came in from Roosville with his team of ivory handled Cldyesdales to work on the government road. Sgt. Pass of Fernie wearing a Harry Carney hat and looked as if he had a load on his stack. A Spokane traveller who smoked Andrew Jackson's corn cob pipe mind as big as a Tobacco Plains hayone time but didn't lay any claim to winning the war. A dry goods traveller from Edmonton, where the Swift people do considerable killing, was in for the first time and looked as if he'd kssed the pet canary good bye when he left home. A Vancouver peddler telling how many blankets he had sold and was going to sell a full house at the mining exchange. We are going to sic Mrs. Carter's bronze torkey on him the next time he comes to town. Sincair Smith, of Creston, of the Soldiers Settlement Board, was down to Newgate looking over some locations. Robinson of Nelson's Fish Bait Co.

Make a real job of it.

PAINTING becomes necessary as your property increases in value, and as property was never so valuable as today there is a greater need than ever for that kind of paint which actually preserves the surface and thus saves the entire house.

This spring, to make a real job of it, use

because it combines permanence, covering capacity and economy.

If B-H "English Paint" was dearer than it is, it would still be the most economical—the shorter life of other cheaper brands makes them more expensive in the end.

It contains the famous Brandram's Genuine B.B. finely-ground white lead—70%—to which is put 30% of pure zinc—a guaranteed formula that no other paint can boast. To this mixture is added fine turpentine and linseed oil from the B-H mills, which is of a quality in keeping with the other ingredients.

When you use B-H Paint you will notice its "body" and brilliance—you will compare the extreme covering capacity with other brands—the permanence you will be able to prove by other exteriors painted with B-H paint years ago.

COULD HARDLY MOVE HER ARMS SHE SAYS

Mrs. Arthur Olson Was Almost Helpless—Takes Tanlac And Is Now Well and Happy

"Come in, I was hoping you would call, for I wanted to tell you how much good Tanlac has done me," said Mrs. Arthur Olson, of 832 Pender St., East, Vancouver, B.C., when the Tanlac representative called to see how she was getting on with the medicine.

"Ever since I came from England a few months ago I have been in poor health," she continued. "My stomach was out of order and I was always feeling sick. I had no appetite and ate scarcely enough to keep a bird alive. I had to be continually taking medicine for constipaton and was driven almost frantic with headaches, when I would have to lie down for hours with cold water bandages on my forehead. I had pains in the small of my back that hurt me especially whenever I stooped over and rheumatism in my limbs and shoulders so bad that for three weeks I could hardly move my arms. I had to give up all heavy work and it was as much as I could do to just straighten up the house. I got very nervous and rarely got to sleep before two or three in the morning. I was simply lifeless, to walk even a short distance would tire me out and I just wanted to lie down all the time.

"You can see by all these bottles how many kinds of medicine I have tried in my efforts to get well. But Tanlac did what all the others failed to do, and now after taking only three bottles I am happy and well. It first of all gave me an appetite and settled my stomach so that my food agreed with me perfectly. I lost all signs of biliousness and the pains in my back and limbs disappeared. Iam no longer constipated and haven't had a headache since I finished the first bottle. My nerves are much better and I sleep as well as I ever did in my life. I have lost that tired feeling and in fact, am so full of energy I want to be out and about all the tme. I walked for several miles the other day and I never even got tired. I just think Tanlac is splendid and I shall always recommend it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

A WONDERFUL BEE STORY

Among the stories told of bees, none, perhaps, is more interesting or more marvelous than that published in a French scientific journal by Professor Bonnier, who witnessed the occurrence. It was found in The Youth's Companion.

A freight train, one car of which had been loaded with coarsely-granulated sugar, had been wrecked on the Paris-Lyon rail line near the Biological Laboratory at Fontainebleau, scattering the sugar in a big heap over the ground. Near the place where the accident occurred there were some beehives, and the heap of sugar was soon swarming with bees.

But the industrious insects found that the sugar was crystallized in grains too large for them to carry away, and too hard for them to penetrate. What did they do then—give it up? Not at all. Apparently under the orders of a competent commander among them, large numbers of the bees proceeded to fly to some watering troughs near by, where they loaded themselves with all the water they could carry. Then they flew to the sugar, upon which they proceeded to deposit the water they carried. Soon they had converted the surface into a syrup, in which they proceeded to roll themselves. When they were well covered with the sticky substance they flew to the hives, where they were relieved of their syrup. Then they flew back to the troughs for more water to wet down more sugar.

Prof. Bonnier says that such clouds of bees were engaged in this work that within four hours the space where the sugar had been spilled had been completely cleared of it. In the meantime, sundry human beings had arrived who had the same intention concerning the sugar, but, seeing the white mass blackened by swarms of bees, they kept their distance rather than take a chance of being badly stung.

SCIENCE AND PRACTICE

Mr. Stephen Paget, author of the following is one of the greatest living authorities in Great Britain on the progres of medical and surgical research. He is himself a Fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons and the author of important works dealing with surgery from the professional standpoint.

Science and practice are inseparable; they are met together in every drug, every operation, every method of protective treatment. I have had, and am thankful for it, five operations, many unconsidered trifles of surgery, two doses of typhoid vaccine, two of anti-streptococcic serum, and forty-six of tuberculin. Science and practice, one and indivisible, guided my kind physicians and surgeons every inch of the way; the healing art in them was founded and built on the healing sciences; they were men of science in practice; not their skill alone lifted me out of my trouble, but their exact knowledge.

The healing sciences, the medical sciences, are like all the other natural sciences. They must incessantly be experimenting or they will incessantly be going wrong. To find out the cause of things they must have them under conditions exactly known, defined and pre-arranged. That is why so little has been discovered about the causes of earthquakes. You cannot arrange conditions for earthquakes; you cannot experiment with them. But where the experimental method is possible, there it must be pursued, or the sciences will go astray and will never find out the causes of things.

Darwin, Lord Kelvin, Lord Rayleigh, Sir William Ramsay, Marconi, Sir Joseph Thomson—take these half dozen names at random—they stand for experiments, experiments, tens of thousands of experiments. The inventors of steam engines, steel, aniline dyes, telegraphs, telephones, dynamos, all were incessantly experimenting. It is not for nothing that the French word for experiment is experience.

The medical sciences, physiology and pathology, and bacteriology, and pharmacology, and so forth, being natural sciences must behave accordingly. They must make experiments or they will gradually lose health and strength; and so will the nations, whose obedient servants they are. Some of these experiments must be made on animals. Our bodily life and our bodily diseases must be studied, not only at the bedside and in the post-mortem room, but also by the experimental method, under conditions exactly known, exactly defined.

All these experiments are restricted and bound by the Act of 1876. It is a clumsy, short-sighted, ill-drafted, antiquated measure. I should like to see it simplified and brought up to date; but I think it reasonable enough that experiment on animals should be submitted to some sort of legal restriction, and that the laboratories should be open to government inspection. Great discoveries mostly come not from solitary workers in back parlors, but from men and women working together in well appointed institutes.

The administration of the Act rests with the Home Office; and the Home Secretary has the help of a special advisory body. The latest report (1918) of the inspectors under the Act can be bought, through any bookseller, for twopence. The vast majority of experiments, 96 or 97 per cent, involve no operation on any animal; they are concerned with bacteriology, with the testing and standardizing and making of antitoxins and vaccines and drugs, with the study of food values, with the diagnosis of obscure cases of inheredity and immunity, with the control of the milk supply, with the detection of ship-borne diseases, and so forth.

No operation, more than the lancing of a vein, must be done on any animal, unless it is under an anaesthetic. In the majority of these experiments the animal is killed, then and there under the anaesthetic. Few of us will die so easily as that. In the minority the animal is kept for observation; but the Home Office requires in all experiments that if the animal be found in severe pain, which is likely to continue, it must at once be killed under an anaesthetic.

Many experiments, but not all, are absolutely painless. We have to put pain given to animals — which are mostly mice, rats, rabbits and guinea-pigs — against the immeasurably greater pain, the immeasurably sadder death, averted from men, women and children.

And we have to remember that most of these experiments are made in the direct service of the national health and efficiency. Our workers in dangerous trades must be protected; our children's food must be of the right sort; our hospitals and infirmaries must have drugs of standard strength; tubercle mut be kept out of the national milk-jug, plague and cholera must be kept out of the country; and, above all, our men in the war had to be safeguarded so far as it is possible against typhoid, paratyphoid, tetanus. And, heaven be praised, they were. Experiments on animals are not merely scientific curiosities; they are mostly work done for the nation or for the government.—London Daily Mail.

THE EMPLOYMENT SERVICE OF CANADA

Reports from over 5300 employers to the Dominion Headquarters of the Employment Service of Canada, indicate that, disregarding loss of time due to strikes, there was another increase in the volume of employment during the week ending April 24 in comparison with returns from identical firms for the preceding week. For the week ending May 1 a further large increase was expected. In comparison with the returns for January 17 the reports show that since then these firms had made very considerable additions to their staffs.

The returns indicate that increases were recorded in all provinces, that in Quebec being especially substantial.

ASSOCIATED BOARDS OF TRADE

W. H. Cleland, Frank C. Stocqdale, E. M. Sunderlands, J. C. Pitts, R. G. Newton, Wm. Chamberlain, D. L. McLeod, Frank Richardson, Joe Lake, G. A. Bennett, N. Weir, Windermere district. Other visitors present were Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works, L. J. Simmons, Calgary; G. B. Watson, Fort Steele, and D. Larmour, Edgewater.

Proceedings opened at 8 o'clock Friday night, when George A. Bennett, president of the Windermere district board of trade, called the meeting together and extended a welcome to the visitors. He then asked the meeting to appoint a provisional chairman and a secretary. G. J. Spruell of Cranbrook was voted to the chair, and B. G. Hamilton, Invermere, was appointed secretary.

Mr. Spreull outlined the object of the meeting, stating that the five towns represented through their board of trade representatives had parallel aims and interests, and expressed the opinion that the time was ripe to get concerted action by the boards of trade on all matters of general and specific interest to each. He left the matter open to discussion by the meeting as to whether they wished to inaugurate an associated boards of trade.

Amotion proposed by J. P. Fink that the meeting proceed to form an association as suggested having carried, the chairman was instructed to appoint a committee to draw up the constitution and bylaws on similar lines to that of the Eastern British Columbia. One member of each board represented was appointed with instructions to report back to the meeting at 10 o'clock the following morning, the personnel being Guy Constable of Creston; Captain Bert Blyth of Golden; W. H. Wilson of Cranbrook; George A. Bennett, of Windermere district and G. G. Henderson of Fernie.

On a motion by G. A. Bennett the chairman appointed a resolutions committee, which consisted of J. A. Buckham, Golden; R. A. Beattie, Cranbrook; A. G. Cuthbert, Windermere; F. A. Parker, Fernie, and C. F. Hayes, Creston

At this point in the proceedings Mr. Hayes explained that the Creston delegates were not authorized to commit their board to anything definite, but were merely there as spectators to report to the board on the proceedings on their return. He asked for more information as to the means by which the association would be kept financially alive.

Some discussion followed, during which Mr. Hayes was reminded that they were all in the same boat, and were trying to find their own way, and that it would be advisable for him to await events. Finally Mr. Constable outlined some of the ways in which the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia secured funds.

This concluded the work of the opening session.

At the Saturday morning session J. G. Spreull, of Cranbrook, again acted as chairman, and G. B. Hamilton as secretary.

The report of the committee on constitution and bylaws was submitted through Guy Constable, of Creston. Taking the articles individually, Mr. Constable submitted them for discussion and amendment, after which they were passed in bulk.

Among the articles one defined the name of the association as the Associated Boards of Trade of Southeastern British Columbia.

The territory under the jurisdiction of the association was defined as: The area bounded by the C.P.R. main line on the north; by the international boundary on the south; by the British Columbia provincial boundary on the east, and by a line drawn from Golden, B.C., due south to the international boundary on the west.

One article fixed the annual convention of the association for September at the call of the executive committee, who were also empowered to call special meetings.

The annual membership fee was placed at $50 for each board in the association.

The constitution being read and adopted, the bylaws were presented in the same manner and were passed with very few amendments.

Declaring the organization formed, the chairman asked if any boards represented wished to assume membership at once, and appointed a committee to examine the credentials of applicants.

Capt. Bert Blyth, speaking for himself and his fellow delegate from Golden, J. A. Buckham, M.P.P., made the first formal application on behalf of the Golden board of trade; G. A. Bennett and A. F. Chisholm applied for Windermere; G. G. Henderson and F. A. Parker for Fernie. W. M. Harris and J. P. Fink applied on behalf of the Creston board, promised consideration.

Those elected to office in the election by ballot which followed were President, G. J. Spreull, Cranbrook; vice-president, T. Prentice, Fernie; secretary-treasurer, B. G. Hamilton, Invermere. Executive members in accordance with the constitution will be: H. G. Parsons, Golden; G. A. Bennett, Windermere; H. R. Huntington, Fernie.

R. E. Besttis, of Cranbrook, as chairman of the resolutions committee, presented six resolutions, which, after being amended and passed, were in effect as follows:

That the Dominion government be petitioned to instal fish hatcheries throughout the district within the jursdiction of the Association.

That the Dominion government be urged to increase the wages paid to workmen engaged on construction work on the Banff-Windermere, or to take such other measures as are possible to prosecute the work with more vigor, that the road may be made passable of automobiles by autumn of this year.

That the matters of custom office hours at Kingsgate on the American side, and the barrier erected by the United States government at Kingsgate be taken up with the United States government, the Canadian government and the Spokane chamber of commerce.

That the provincial government be petitioned on the subject of having district on the plan approved by permanent mileposts erected in the various trail associations, and that distrct roads be gravelled where needed.

That the provincial government be asked to make provision for having sufficient timber left on either side of main roads; around certain lakes, and other natural beauty spots, to preserve their scenic value, and as a means of assisting tree reproduction.

That the Dominion government be requested to construct a telephone line from Windermere to Wasa, in the Kootenay valley to connect with the Kootenay Telephone Co. lines, the same to be of metallic construction; also that the line from Sirdar to Yahk be changed to metallic construction.

The original motion regarding the Banff-Windermere road construction was rejected on the grounds that it did not fully cover the ground. It was pointed out that work was practically at a standstill in consequence of the small number of men attracted by the wages offered on construction work on the road. Further, it was stated by J. F. Spalding of Fernie that much interest was being evinced in the completion of the road by tourists from the American side from whom he had received 75 enquiries on the matter this year. On Mr. Beattie's motion the chairman appointed a committee of three to redraft the resolution on stronger lines.

Mr. Fink of Cranbrook spoke from personal experience on the resolution regarding customs office hours and the barrier at Kingsgate. He asserted the only time tourists from either side could cross the international boundary line at that point was between 9 o'clock in the morning and 5 o'clock in the evening and that there was absolutely no accommodation for tourists who had to wait until United States customs officials opened the barrier in the morning if they arrived at that point after closing hours. This interrupted the natural flow of tourist traffic, and he expressed himself in favor of a petition to have the customs office on the American side held open until midnight, the evening being the time at which the largest amount of tourist traffic was in evidence there.

Very vigorous support was given to the project of approaching the provincial government to preserve certain areas of timber for scenic and utility purposes. Mr. Spalding spoke in support of the motion, contending that logging companies in many instances had the right and would no doubt denued the highways of East Kootenay of timber, thus detracting from the scenic value of the country and destroyng the chance of natural forest reproduction. He was firmly of the opinion that the companies concerned would willingly meet the government in this matter, though naturally they would want compensation for their loss.

Mr. Beattie of Cranbrook spoke in support of the motion on telephone construction. He pointed out that the proposed line from Wasa to Windermere would put the whole district from the Crow's Nest Pass line to Windermere in touch with Golden. The Creston line, being a single line seldom permitted Cranbrook to converse with Nelson, and he stated the addition of another wire would enable Cranbrook to call up Nelson and also to communicate with Yahk later on, should the wire now under consideration be put through.

Mr. Fink also supported the proposal, stating that two lumber companies, the Cedar Valley company and the Leask & Borden company were out of touch with the district telephone connection.

A number of other subjects were presented to the resolution committee for motion, but time prohibited further resolutions being framed. They were classified under the heads of mining, agriculture, lumbering, colonization and settlement, railway [illegible] transportation, organization and irrigation, and publicity.

Some discussion was given to the new luxury tax, Mr. Fink of Cranbrook taking the lead, but until further light should be thrown on the tax by the government the matter was left in abeyance.

J. Edwards of Cranbrook, president of the East Kootenay Prospectors association spoke on the association he represented in response to a request from the chair. He voiced the opinion that the major difficulties confronting the prospectors association would have to be solved by the association with the assistance of business men. He stressed the necessity for further mineralogical exploration as stated by governmental officials, but condemned the plan of training returned soldiers as prospectors as impracticable. He believed returned men should be helped in this matter, but was of the opinion that individual prospectors would render more service than returned men independently of governmental aid.

A brief session was held Saturday afternoon, when the small amount of unfinished business was cleaned up.

On a motion by Mr. Fink the place of the annual meeting, which will be held in September, was left in the hands of the executive committee. A vote of thanks was accorded the Windermere board of trade for the splendid reception given the visitors, also on motion of Mr. Fink.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING

Get out the old alibi about "taking the children to see the circus" and polish it up, for it will come in handy on June 8, when the Al. G. Barnes big four-ring circus comes to Fernie.

There are many small aggregations calling themselves circuses in this country and some of them are fairly good, but the Al G. Barnes show is the one big wild animal circus of the world, and it is a Canadian institution, all of the official staff having their homes in the Dominion.

The Barnes circus travels in 52 heavily loaded cars now, according to R. W. Thompson, of Vancouver, one of the advance men, and the performance is given in four rings and a massive steel arena. There are 110 features, any one of which would more than constitute the whole show of some other organizations, if they could produce them, there being 1200 wild animal actors. 600 people and 550 horses in the exhibition by Al. G. Barnes.

There are 45 clowns and all of them are in action all the time.

The zoo is the largest collection of specimens of the animal kingdom ever gotten together, a tour of which is an education in itself. In many cities schools close so that the pupils may have the benefit of close-up study.

There are four bands, the main circus band being composed of 60 overseas musicians.

This year the street parade is two miles long; many of the animal quarters are open, so that all may see. It starts at 10.30 from the circus grounds and is worth going many miles to witness, all previous street parades fading into insignificance beside the Barnes pageant this season.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" Made Her Well, Strong and Vigorous'

MADAME ARTHUR BEAUCHER

805 Cartier St., Montreal.

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take 'Fruit-a-tives'. I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with 'Fruit-a-tives' and in a short time, the Constipation was banished, I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

THE GREAT FRENCH TONIC WILL BUILD YOU UP

How many people today are putting in an existence, far different from what nature intended. Disease of one sort or another is lurking in the system, sapping the very life itself. One cannot enjoy life. The French have come to the rescue of all such persons. In VITAL Tablets are all the essentials to make you healthy and strong. You have no appetite, your food does not agree with you, your nerves are all on an edge, why? If they do not build you up, you can have your money back. Build yourself up, and away goes every disease. VITAL Tablets are a wonderful reconstructive remedy, known to science. Go to your druggist and procure a box of VITAL TABLETS. See for yourself. Price fifty cents per box, at all drug stores. M28-2

$1465 F.O.B. CHATHAM WAR TAX EXTRA GRAY-DORT

When the Gray-Dort was designed, our engineers had two definite orders.

"Build an economical, simple, low-priced car."

"Build a light car at least 50% stronger and finer and greater value than light-car purchasers have been getting."

The original Gray-Dort was built to these orders. Every improvement and refinement since that time has been in line with this policy.

And yet the price is only $1465. Note what you get in to-day's Gray-Dort for $1465.

A big motor—3½-inch bore and 5-inch stroke—finely finished and smooth running. A forty-pound crankshaft, against the usual twenty-five pounds or so. Three-ringed pistons, instead of two-ringed. Cellular radiator, instead of tube and finn. Newly improved Carter carburetor. Improved Connecticut ignition. The starting and lighting system is Westinghouse, a big-car feature.

We designed a bigger and better rear axle for light cars—and we are having it built exclusively for the Gray-Dort here in Chatham. We solved the spring problem in the same way—and you'll realize what we've done when you see the long, cantilever rear springs of the Gray-Dort. We've set a new standard of safety by using Thermoid brake-lining. We've increased safety by building a steering gear 50% bigger and stronger. We've put in a bigger gas tank—and put it in the rear, with a vacuum feed system.

Your comfort in driving or riding has been attended to. With a shorter cowl, there is more room in the driving department. There are several inches more leg-room in the tonneau. The side-curtains open with the doors. You sink into the seats at the most comfortable angle. The top is really a one-man top. The gears can be shifted with two fingers' pressure. The emergency brake is now on a lever. The instruments are handy.

The Gray-Dort is just as outstanding in appearance. Its lines are the lines of the really fine big cars—reduced in proportion. It has big car style. There is not a line nor an angle which is extreme. And it has what no other car ever can have—the wonderful Gray-Dort finish which had its beginning 60 years ago in our body plant.

There are other style touches—many of them new this year. French-pleated upholstery. A hood with many long, narrow louvres. A particularly smart top, hand-tailored in our own shops. Lamps raised to a new location. Short, smart cowl. Straight top-edge to the body.

So much does the Gray-Dort dominate the field, that our production, doubled this year, will probably not meet the demand. We would advise you to see the Gray-Dort dealer now.

PRICES

The Gray-Dort 5-passenger car, finished in Gray-Dort green and black, and with standard equipment, is $1465 f.o.b. Chatham. War tax extra.

The roomy 2-passenger roadster is the same price.

The Gray-Dort Special

For the man who wishes something a little extra in his car, we have built the Gray-Dort Special. Maroon body, with brown rayntite top. Plate-glass rear window. Gipsy curtains. Rookie tan wheels. Motometer. Tilting steering wheel. Real leather upholstery. Mahogany instrument board. Just the touches which lift this car above the ordinary. $150 extra on the standard.

And the Ace!

The Gray-Dort Ace—the most beautiful light car of to-day. Sapper green body with handsome California top to match.

Trouble lamp and bull's-eye flashlight. Electric cigar lighter. Rear-vision mirror. Plate-glass windows. Over-size grooved-tread tires. This is the de luxe car for the man who does not wish to pile up a tremendous operating cost. $255 extra on the standard.

QUAKER BAKED BEANS ARE OLD FASHIONED

They're simply old fashioned baked beans, cooked as we remember them years ago when they went into the big pot at home.

We put in just enough pork and tomato sauce to give them zest.

"I have great pleasure in sending you a salad dressing recipe I used with good results while cooking in a lumber camp up the Coast last summer, where fresh milk was unobtainable.

"Canned milk had to be used for everything, and I may say in passing that I never had lighter cakes and puddings than those I made with Pacific Milk."

We will print Mrs. W.'s recipe next time. She expressly asked that her name be not published.

AN OLD TIMER

There has just been installed in "Dinosaur hall" at the American Museum of Natural History, New York, a skeleton of a prehistoric deinodon. Experts calculate that this particular representative of his species flourished no fewer than 60,000,000 years ago. Even if those caluculations are a trifle inaccurate, it must be admitted that the relics of this monster are old, very old, indeed.

The deinodon is also given the name of "terrible tooth." He is thought to have been the most swift and powerful creature of his time. The skeleton which has just been mounted stands 11 feet 5 inches high and measures 20 feet from its nose to the tip of its tail. It is geologically proved that the deinodon lived during the cretaceous period of the age of reptiles.

The bones of the new addition to "Dinosaur hall" were found three years ago in the canyon of the Red Deer river, Alberta. It is assumed that the geography and climate of that region was far different 60,000,000 years ago to that which now prevails there, and at that extremely remote time the country was probably warm and marshy as the interior sea, once stretching from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arctic ocean was gradually receding and filling up with tropical growths and swamps. The section, therefore, was highly favorable to the existence of such gigantic reptiles as this deinodon.—Salt Lake Tribune.

Accordng to statements of a Minister of the Crown from Queensland now visiting this continent, Ausralia must be a most highly favored land. He says the people of that country have plenty of sugar and that it costs them only nine cents a pound, while meat can be bought everywhere for twelve cents a pound. There would appear to be distinct advantages in position of isolation. Australia's remoteness from the spheres where juggling with and "cornering" markets is an ordinary business proceeding, has many advanatges for the people. There are more things common to the markets of the world today that are past finding out than is dreamt of in the philosophy of any man. It is stated in an American publication that the warehouses of Cuba are bursting with supplies of unmarketed raw sugar, yet scarcity prevails on this continent; while the elevators of Canada are filled with wheat and prices of flour are higher than ever before in the history of the country. Our economic machinery must have slipped a cog, or perhaps two cogs.

THE OLEO LEGISLATION

Hon. W. S. Fielding was quite right in denouncing the timidity of the Federal government in temporizing with the oleomargarine question. Some readers may have forgotten that there has existed on our statute books for many years one of the most flagrantly oppressive achievements in class legislation that was ever devised; prohibition of the manufacture, sale and importation of oleomargarine. During the war when butter prices commenced to soar, pressure of public necessity compelled the government to suspend this law by order-in-council, but it has never been courageous enough to wipe out the iniquitous statute itself. The other day it again compromised by extending the operation of the order-in-council for a year, thereby holding out hopes to the farmers and dairymen that one day the old oppressive conditions may be restored.

It is evidence of the manner in which consideration for the farmer's wishes has always dominated Canadian policy that anti-oleo laws were ever enacted at all. The original pretext was that oleomargarine was unsanitary, oblivious of the fact that in those days before scientific butter production had come into vogue, it was much more sanitary than a great deal of the butter that came on the market. The charge that this butter substitute was a deleterious compound was long since exploded, but the statute was preserved. The aim of the men who still wish to prohibit oleomargarine is that of forcing the city housewife to buy butter at a dollar a pound or do without—a condition which would be intolerable. The National Council of Women are therefore quite justified in threatening political reprisals against all politicians who continue to support this acute form of class legislation. The failure to entirely wipe out the anti-oleo laws shows how little weight the old theories of political liberty carry in Canadian public thought.

On one point only are the anti-oleo advocates right. They properly insist that dealers should not be permitted to use it to adulterate butter, and that all oleomargarine, still permitted to be sold under order-in-council, should be properly labelled as such. No one will disagree with them on that point.—Saturday Night.

PUBLICITY COLUMN

(By J. F. Spalding)
(Crowded out last week)

We have just received a letter from the Tour Committee of the Winnipeg-Lake Louise tour, to he effect that the tour has had to be abandoned this year. Their letter, which follows, is self-explanatory. This is very disappointing, but cannot be helped. However, it is only a small part of what we expect in the way of tourist travel this year, and doubtless when this tour is pulled offf it will be greater than it might have been this year.

Letters of congratulation from all over America are daily coming in together with more requests for the booklet and additional information. A few days ago I received a list of 19 different parties in Nashville, Tennessee who intend touring up here this summer.

The Camp Sites have all been cleared out and fireplaces built in them, and trails are now being cut up the mountains. This latter will make climbing easy and should be an inducement for the re-organizing of the Alpine Club.

Signs with the names of the different mountains and their elevations will be placed along the road. Each will have a finger pointing to the mountain.

Anyone desiring to have booklets sent to their friends had better give me their names without delay. They are going very fast and I expect that we shall have to have some more printed, as there are quite a lot of auto clubs to hear from yet.

Calgary, May 21, 1920.

J. F. Spalding, Fernie, B.C.

Dear Sir—It is with keen disappointment and with considerable reluctance that the committees in charge of the Winnipeg Canadian Rockies 1920 Tour were forced to the conclusion to abandon the tour for the present year. While at the commencement of the movement prospects were bright for carrying this very important undertaking to a successful conclusion, a number of circumstances beyond the control of the committee in charge have arisen which cast such doubt upon the success of the tour as to force those in charge of it to the above conclusion.

The season through the Western Provinces is unduly late, and much of the contemplated work on highways has been so far belated that it is doubtful if the work will be completed, and in this fact may be found a reason for such a lack of co-operation and definite action of organization committees in other cities and towns up to the present time to complete the necessary arrangements for a successful tour.

The committees in charge are in no wise insensible to the wonderful and incalculable advantages of such a tour, especially where arrangements had been made to have such eminent and outstanding writers as Alex. Johnston, Elton Jessup and Mrs. Jessup, who had promised to accompany the trip, and it is from the unmistakable importance of such an event that the committees have decided to defer it rather than from lack of hearty co-operation and support from all the cities and towns to be benefitted, to have it meet with disappointment. Yours very truly,

W. F. W. Lent.

"THE WOOING OF MISS CANADA"

Wednesday evening at the Grand theatre the playlet "The Wooing of Miss Canada" was presented by the Catholic Juveniles ,and the manner in which these young boys and girls played their parts was nothing short of marvellous, considering the fact that every member of the caste was a raw amateur and of very tender age. It is indeed only on rare occasions that the theatregoing public of this city, even with seasoned professional presentations, get better quality in the rendition of the dramatic art than that exhibited in the "Wooing of Miss Canada." The success which the performers attained is entirely due to the efforts of our popular musician, Fred C. Bass, under whose general direction the production was staged, and also the tireless efforts of Miss Corbett and Miss Nicholson of the public school teaching staff, who had direct charge of the training and rehearsing of the children taking part in the drama. How well the directors succeeded in developing the talent at their disposal is emphasized by the fact that not a hitch occurred during the performance; not once did any of the performers miss a cue or stumble in their lines and scene followed scene with punctual regularity just as smoothly and naturally as though each youngster was in their own home amid familiar surroundings instead of acting character parts before a large audience.

Of the fifty members in the cast it is almost impossible to distinguish n the order of merit on account of the perfect manner in which the members rendered their parts. The leading role, "Miss Canada," was played by Violet Brehler. Margaret Heaphy as the Fairy Godmother and Jack Canuck by John Billings, and John Bull by Alois Rudnicki were extremely good. Jeanette Heaphy made an unmistakable hit with the audience with the number "Tiny," and the little tot was repeatedly encored. The dancing of the Sailor's Hornpipe by Margaret Heaphy and the Highland Fling by Fay Cox were particularly well executed. The musical numbers were all a treat ,the chief ones being "Lullaby Land" by Blanche Labelle, Helen Herchmer, Frances Heaphy, Anna Shulaika and chorus; the Quaker Girls with Conroy Colton, soloist; "Let the Rest of the World Go By," full chorus; "Who is the wife of the Man in the Moon," duet F. Bass and Anna Shulaika; "Bonnie Jean," chorus of Highland laddies.

While the performance was well attended there are certainly a very large number of citizens who did not have the opportunity of seeing this producetion, and in view of this it is hoped those in charge will see fit to give a return performance in the near future, in order that everyone may be able to attend and learn for themselves what really excellent talent we have in our city.

BASEBALL

Last Sunday the Fernie ball team went to Waldo and were defeated by Baynes Lake in a hard fought game by a score of 4 to 3. When Baynes went to bat in the last of the eighth Fernie had the game practically won being on the long end of a 3-1 score. But a hit, coupled with errors enabled Baynes to score three runs, making the score 4-3. Fernie failed to score in their half of the ninth. It was a fast game and kept the crowd on their toes all the time. Both Gillis for Baynes and Sofko for Fernie pitched fine ball, the latter allowing only two hits.

Weather permitting Fernie will play its first home game of the season on Sunday, June 13, with Baynes Lake at Victoria Park at 2.30 sharp. Come and boost and see a good ball game.

The City baseball league will open on Wednesday evening, June 16, at 6.15 sharp. The committee in charge have picked three teams and will announce which two will open the season and also bill particulars by posters either Saturday or Monday.

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

The parade and decoration committee are working hard to make a feature of the parade this year. Citizens are requested to co-operate and decroate with flags and bunting. Give the city a gala appearance on this occasion. Remember this is Children's Day, so let us make things bright for the kiddies this Dominion Day.

We are assured of four teams to compete in baseball. Arrangements are also being made for a junior baseball game during the day.

The Football committee have recommended a football competition for gold medals, and incidentally we have been notified that the Trail football club will be here to compete, with Lethbridge a possibility. With the local teams, this will mean some football.

Mr. Heaphy, who has charge of the log rolling and sawing competition, informs the committee that teams for log sawing are in training at all the mills and camps in the district. It is hoped that too much training will not be taken by the log rollers, as we hope to see a few splashes in the pond.

Work on the new pavilion is to commence Tuesday evening next at the park. All committeemen and those interested and willing to help are requested to be on tap—hammers and saws required.

In the boxing competitions the headliner contestants are McCarthy and Roughhouse Burns. Arrangements have also been made with Irvine Gleason, Pacific coast featherweight champion, and the continent is being scoured for the best possible to box Gleason.

The following is a list of events at present decided on:

CITY COUNCIL HOLD SESSION

The city fathers met last evening with all members present. The attendance at the council meetings this year has been equal to if not better than previous years, and the members of this council receive no quarterly cheques for attending meetings or other duties performed.

J. F. Spalding appeared before the council and requested that facilities be provided for display of the Tourist Bureau banner, and also a camp site at the city park for the convenience of tourist camping parties.

S. Herchmer represented the proprietor of the Roma hotel in an application for an extension of six months in so far as enforcing the clause in "Beverage License Bylaw requiring each establishment to maintain a proper and suitable dining room. On behalf of the Canadian Boarding House he asked that the above mentioned bylaw be amended so that establisments affected by the bylaw are not confined to within the fire limits. It was pointed out that unless this restriction was removed it would undoubtedly force that place to close up.

Mr. Herchmer, as chairman of the school board, also took the opportunity to advise the council that it was the desire of the board to co-operate with them in every possible way. Some suggestions with regard to the proposed extension of the Fernie school district were made.

A communication from the Local Council of Women regarding scavenging of the city, asked whether or not some system could be inaugurated whereby the city teams could make regular calls and a fee charged for such service. The question was referred to the board of health.

The Minister of the Interior in a lengthy communication urged steps to be taken to protect insectivorous birds and outlined means by which this could be accomplished.

The Provincial Inspector of Electricity wrote regarding inspection of local meters. Several are installed which have not been inspected and after July practically all are due for re-inspection. The inspector suggests that in view of it having been found that an annual inspection of a certain number of meters was more satisfactory in other places this method might be followed in this city. By this means a small charge is made each year instead of having one large item every five years.

Two representatives of the teamsters union presented copy of proposed agreement for 1920 for ratification.

On account of vacancies on the school board and police commission through the demise of Wm. Lancaster and the resignation of H. Hancock, it will be necessary to hold an election to fill these vacancies. Nomination day will be on June 9 and if a poll is necessary it will take place on June 23.

By regular motion the council defined the limits of the Fernie school district and this recommendation will be forwarded to the Sperintendent of Education for ratification.

An inspector of the Provincial department of health recently visited the city in connection with the Fairy Creek watershed controversy and went over the ground. Acting upon advice the council will request the Public Health Department to reserve the whole catch basin and drainage area into Fairy Creek as a special health district.

Applications under the Beverage License Bylaw were received from nine hotels. On eight of these the inspector reported favorably, and accordingly licenses will be granted to: Alice Watt, Fernie; J. L. Gates, King Edward; Anna Mills, Kings; J. Perry, Central; Alice Haigh, the Queens; P. Marchinek, Royal; Edith Mills, Waldorf; C. W. Barrett, the Northern. With regard to the Roma this will be further investigated and finally decided at next meeting.

An amendment to the Street Bylaw was put through, which is merely in accordance with the change in the rule of the road from July 15, as enacted by the legislature at the last session.

The Kootenay Telephone Co. will be officially notified that the council expects the company to fulfil the terms of the contract by reducing rentals when required subscribers as per applications submitted have been supplied. No unreasonable delay in completing installations will be countenanced.

EAST KOOTENAY I.O.D.E. BAYNES AND WALDO

Through the activities of this Chapter the services of a Red Cross health nurse have been obtained for the district. Miss Kelly took up her duties early in the month, heartily welcomed by all.

On June 3rd at the monthly meeting of the Chapter the members had the pleasure of hearing an address from Miss Kelly on the nature and scope of her work. This is very far reaching and is based on the axiom that "prevention is better than cure." Her speech was full of suggestions and she is assured of the hearty cooperation of the Chapter.

Early in May a most successful dance and basket social was given at Waldo by the members of the Chapter. The gathering was representative of the whole neighborhood, friends from Elko, Cranbrook and Jaffray being heartily welcomed. All had a delightful time and a substantial sum ($166.00) was realized for the general fund of the Chapter.

To celebrate Empire Day the Chapter presented prizes to the scholars of the neighborhood for the best essay on "The Death of Wolfe." These were gained by Humphrey Madden, of Waldo, and Orran Morrow, of Baynes Lake, for excellent essays. The work sent in was, on the whole, very good.

On June 3, Mrs. A. E. Ingham of Sheep Mountain was presented with a Life Membership of the Red Cross in recognition of her generous help towards the funds of the organization durng the war. Mrs. Ingham crocheted a magnificent bedspread, involving hours of patient labor, which was raffled, bringing in the goodly sum of $150.

AGREEMENT SIGNED UP

The agreement between District 18, U.M.W. of A., and the Western Coal Operators Association was signed up in Calgary late yesterday afternoon. As yet full details of the Agreement have not reached the city but the salient features of it are that it is for a period of two years from April 1st. It is applicable only in so far as the members of the United Mine Workers of America, being closed shop for that organization. It carries increases of 13 per cent on top of present scale for all coal mining, contract and day wage workers. This 13 per cent, together with the 14 per cent received some time ago, brings the schedule up to 27 per cent over and above the actual rates embodied in the agreement just expired, and is identical with the increases granted in the United States, excepting that the day men have received 6 per cent more of an increase than the day wage men have received in the States. For all dead work there will be an increase of 20 per cent, while the per diem bonus rate of 92c to all employees is advanced to $1.17. All rates will be retroactive to members of the U.M. W. of A. as from April 1.

G. W. V. A. CONVENTION

The fifth annual convention of the British Columbia Command of the Great War Veterans Association was officially concluded late Saturday afernoon after a two days session. There were in attendance about 40 delegates and while the delegates were in session they transacted a huge volume of business, all of which is of extreme importance to the organization within this province, as well as having dealt with many matters of Dominion wide importance. Officers and delegates expressed themselves that never in the history of the Association had a more harmonious convention been held, and that while many issues were threshed out on the floor and in a number of cases delegates could not see eye to eye on some of the subjects and modes of solution, in every instance an amicable decision was finally reached and the true spirit of comradeship and loyalty were ever present. At the conclusion the delegates dispersed with the definitely announced motto: Allegiance to the G. W.V.A. and the fixed purpose of promoting the Association as a really efficient body in this Province in the affairs of state and all matters which will tend to the betterment of our country and the conditions under which its citizens shall live.

During the final session 11 members were elected to the Provincial Executive on the principle of one member for each of the zones. The complete executive will be as follows:

President—T. N. Harnett, Vancouver.
1st Vice-President — T. Barnard, New Westminster.
2nd Vice-President — Col. Lennox, Vancouver.
Vancouver Island — Riley, Merville.
Victoria—Stone.
Vancouver District — Carmichael, Point Grey.
Vancouver—Ian McKenzie.
Fraser Valley — Donaldson, Pitt Meadows.
Kamloops—A. F. Cooper.
Okanagan—Wilson, Penticton.
West Kootenay—C. Dee, Nelson.
East Kootenay—J. W. Bell.
Main Line, Kamloops to Golden not included—Dr. Hamilton, Revelstoke.
North Coast—W. W. Kelly, Prince Rupert.

Some thirty odd resolutions were adopted by the convention dealing with pensions ,pay and allowance, clothing for S.C.R. patients, preference for returned soldiers, bonus question, vocational training employment for disability cases, franchise, subsistence allowance, exclusion of Orientals, development of natural resources, Soldiers Settlement Board, Re-establisment, etc.

One of the most contentious questions considered was through the presentation of a resolution proposing to extend the franchise to all discharged members of the C.E.F. of foreign birth. The debate was particularly notable for the lengthy addresses on this subject. The fact that this would permit some 140 Japanese having votes, while no objection was raised to the right of these individual comrades having the franchise, it was argued that the principle might ultimately involve the extension of the franchise to all Orientals. This latter it was the unanimous opinion would never be countenanced. The motion was endorsed 24 to 11.

Resolutions pertaining to vocational training were adopted as follows: Whereas, despite efforts of the Dominion government through its medical and vocational departments, there is an irreducible minimum of disabled comrades who must, owing to their war disabilities, be a continual charge on the public; And whereas, great numbers of these men have been absorbed into commercial life, there are others whose capabilities are so reduced that no private employer can be asked to take them on his payroll except in charity; and whereas, these men became disabled while defending the people as a whole; and whereas, it is better that such men should be allowed to do what they can towards earning a living, rather than that they be segregated in hospitals or homes; Resolved that this convention of the Provincial G.W.V.A. now in session, place itself on record as asking that the Dominion and provincial governments exert themselves to give such men such minor positions as they can fill, so that the dread of unemployment shall no longer weigh upon them, militating against and retarding their partial recovery. Another resolution along these lines was that the Dominion government be requested to grant vocational training to all bona fide students and apprentices who enlisted under the age of 18, whose training was interrupted by enlistment, irrespective of age.

A telegram was introduced by a delegate to the convention received from the officers of the New Denver branch, in which locality, it was claimed, a labor dispute is now on. The purpose of the introduction of the telegram was to announce the fact that there was ample employment for 200 men in the mines in the locality. This was believed to be useful information for delegates who resided in localities where there was a surplus of the unemployed. The delegate who submitted the wire intimated that the dispute in question was what might be termed an irresponsible one. It was immediately ruled by the chair, however, that the Association could not consistently talk of the merits or demerits of a matter of this nature, but that the fact that there was employment available could be noted.

The convention unanimously resolved that inasmuch as the Oriental question is becoming of greater vital importance to the welfare of industrial prosperity for the citizens of this country, and in view of the said Orientals acquirings vested interests in the country, which was in itself characterized as a serious menace, it was resolved that the G.W.V.A. urge upon federal and provincial governments the necessity of prohibiting or at least restricting Oriental immigration and that legislation be enacted precluding Orientals from purchasing or leasing land in the Dominion.

The convention strongly endorsed the message from Dominion President Maxwell urging all members to take united political action against certain hurtful influences now prevailing, and all local branches were instructed to use every endeavor to see that all ex-service men be immediately placed on the list of voters now in course of preparation.

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

It pays to advertise if you know how. But you've got to know how. See the editor of this great family paper and he'll put his hand on your shoulder in a friendly sort of way and show you.

When a man ain't got a cent,
And he feeling kind of blue,
And the clouds hang dark and heavy,
And won't let the sun shine through,
It's a great thing, O my brother,
For a feller just to lay
His hand upon your shoulder
In a friendly sort of way.
It makes a man feel curious;
It makes the tear drop start,
And you sort of feel a flutter
In the region of your heart.
You can't look up and meet his eye;
You don't know what to say
When his hand is on your shoulder
In a friendly sort of way.
Oh, the world's a curious compond,
With its honey and its gall,
With its cares and bitter crosses—
But good works after all.
And a good God must have made it—
Leastways that is what I say
When a hand is on my shoulder
In a friendly sort of way.

The Blairmore Enterprise says that the P. Burns Co. will open up a creamery at Vernon, B.C. Wm. Shaw, the popular branch manager, Lethbridge, made several visits to Elko for the same purpose but found the milk around Elko was so thick the cream couldn't get to the top, so they are going to try Vernon.

Allen Paterson was in from Diamond and Commerce, Alta., and said the farmers were using steam shovels moving the land back to where it belonged, and the gophers were that big and fat they were using them for herding sheep down on Milk River.

Mrs. Joseph Austin and family were visiting their many friends in Elko last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Blue Cloud passed through Elko on ther way to Invermere from Tobacco Plains, Saturday, with their family.—Some clouds.

Ed. Kummer, the well known Fernie contractor, and one of the oldest, may move to Elko in the near future. There is such a demand for efficiency that Ed. puts in his work that the mill men would sooner shut down and wait for him than hire someone else, and it is only once in a while Ed. can get home to visit his family.

N. E. Suddaby motored down to Elko on the King's birthday with a party of pleasure seekers and shot one of the biggest coyotes ever seen in these hills, and then told Jim Thistlebeak that after shooting the coyote a deer ran across the C.P.R. tracks and got his horns caught between the telegraph poles.

Jim Thistlebeak says it is simply awful how the cost of living keeps going up; even my wife is getting dearer.

After all, it's a fairly mild winter we're having, isn't it?

Why go to Banff when you can motor through the Crow's Nest Pass and see a dozen Banffs on the trip, and read the Elko Notes? (Deep stuff. Think it over). And don't overlook the Elk River Canyon when you come to Elko, the Queen City of the Crow's Nest Pass, the wonderland of the Kootenays.

Fred Clarkston, late of the Coldstream Guards G.W.V., who used to spend his summers on the south fork of the Elk and buy his bait from Fred Roo, while pursuing the elusive and gamey trout, was in Elko on Sunday with several others (one a fish bait cutter for P. Burns) billing the town for the Dominion Day sports at Fernie.

Jim Thistlebeak welcomed a big delegation of Great War Veterans brought down to Elko from Fernie Sunday morning, headed by W. J. Claridge, en route to their respective homes via the C.P.R., entraining at Elko. There were colonels, majors, captains, regimental sergeant majors and drummer boys. It was welcome to our little city. Elko extends its most cordial greetings and hospitality to the G.W.V.A. attending the convention at Fernie. The Old Historic burg is proud to have for its guests the Veterans and we want you to enjoy every minute of your stay. Jim is like the Prince of Wales was for a while, carrying his arm in a sling through shaking hands with visitors. About 15 cars brought down the Veterans. We noticed E. K. Stewart, Walter Harwood, Bank Manager Watson, Inspector Dunwoody, Tom Graves, Milt Kastner, P. Bean, W. Morrison and others who kindly lent their cars to show the Veterans the most beautiful scenery in B.C. between Fernie and Elko, and then the Elk Canyon and Falls, scenery that has driven artists mad with joy. One grey haired Vet got so intoxicated with the magnificent scenery that he wanted to stay right in Elko, and said if the Lord made a more perfect spot than Elko he forgot to put it down on the earth. He was determined to stay right in Elko, and they had to form a corporal's guard over him until the train pulled out of Elko. They were a fine bunch of men with hearts as "big as all outdoors" and paid Elko a great compliment, saying they had read with pleasure the Elko Notes on the battlefields of France and Belgium and other battle fronts, which proves that it pays to advertise if you know how.

Staff Capt. Shorty Williams of the Morrissey Chateau was seen bringing in fur bearing animals in a Ford sedan car from Jack O'Brien's trap line last week, which is going some.

Mrs. Stanley Norton entertained a jolly party of friends at her bungalow, Sunkist Orchard, Rainbow Creek, Roosville Valley, last week, when the luncheon table held as centre piece culsters of apple blossoms. Prof. C. Ferguson's string band supplied the music for the dance which followed the first birthday party Mrs. Norton had seen in Canada. It was a splendid affair and the guests all bade Mrs. Norton the usual formality of the occasion. Mrs. Norton conducted the entire affair in a most charming manner, and is a big favorite with everyone she met.

J. D. Simmons, of Raymond, Alta., opened up a real estate office in the Millett block next to the Columbia Hotel. Write him. for bargains.

Miss Laura Labelle, captain of the Elko Light Blue Baseball team, is changing the girls around again. Miss Minnie Carins is catcher and Mss Edth Cartlidge pitcher, and Edith slides the ball into Minnie's hands like a bullet into a feather bed, and Minnie sends the ball passing over the infield like a shooting star.

Mr. Baldwin, of the Gordon, Ironsides & Fares Co., Moose Jaw, and Fred Roo, were down to Roosville and Tobacco Plains last week looking over some cut over lands, and Mr. Baldwin took options on several sections of land for his firm.

Salesmen, travellers, train jumpers and yeddlers arrivals and departures held over for next week.

THE THINKER

(By Berton Braley)

Back of the beating hammer
By which the steel is wrought,
Back of the workshop's clamor
The seeker may find the Thought,
The Thought that is ever master
Of iron and steam and seel,
That rises above disaster
And tramples it under heel!

The druge may fret and tinker
Or labor with lusty blows,
But back of him stands the Thinker,
The clear-eyed man who Knows.
Back of the motors humming,
Back of the belts that sing,
Back of the hammers drumming,
Back of the cranes that swing,
There is the eye which scans them,
Watching thru stress and strain,
There is the mind which plans them,
Back of the Brawn, the Brain!

Might of the roaring boiler,
Force of the engine's thrust,
Strength of the sweating toiler,
Greatly in these we trust.
But back of them stands the schemer,
The Thinker who drives things thru,
Back of the Job—the Dreamer
Who's making the dream come true.

HODGE-PODGE OF LANGUAGES

In the southeastern corner of European Russia, between the Black Sea and the Caspian, there rises abruptly from the dead level of the Tartar Steppes a huge, broken wall of snowy, Alpine mountains, which has been known to the world for more than two thousand years as the great range of the Caucasus.

The Caucasian range may be regarded for all ethnological purposes as a great mountainous island in the sea of human history, and on that island now live together the surviving Robinson Crusoes of a score of shipwrecked states and nationalities—the fugitive mutineers of a hundred tribal bounties.

The languages and dalects spoken by the different tribes are more thon 30 in number, and two-thirds of them are to be found in the province of Daghestan, at the eastern end of the range, where the ethnological diversity of the population is most marked.

Languages spoken by only twelve or fifteen settlements are comparatively common and on the headwaters of the Andiski Kiisu, in southwestern Daghestan, there is an isolated village of fifty or sixty houses—the Aoul of Innookh—which has a language of its own, not spoken or understood by any other part of the whole Caucasian population.

Of course the life, customs and social organizations of a people who have lived for perhaps two thousand years in almost complete isolation from all the rest of the world presented when they first became known many strange and archaic features. In the secluded valleys and canyons of the eastern Caucasus it was possible to study and see in full operation customs and legal processes that had been obsolete everywhere else in Europe for at least a millenium.

Many of the aouls of central and southern Daghestan bear a striking resemblance to the Pueblos and cliff dwellings of New Mexico. The stone walled houses are built together in a compact mass on the steep slope of a high terrace and the flat roofs rise in tiers or steps, one above another, just as they do in the settlements of the Pueblo Indians. The roof of one house forms a small square front yard for the occupants of the house next above it, and ladders serve as means of intercommunication between the roofs of the ascending tiers.

C TUXIS BOYS S AND TRAIL RANGERS E BY Firelighter T

A Boy's Creed

I have just read what is called the "Indian's Creed." It seems to hit off so accurately just what many Canadian boys are trying to live up to that I am going to copy it for them here. It is as follows:

1. He keeps himself in good condition.
2. He is temperate.
3. He helps his parents in their old age.
4. He never steals.
5. He believes in speaking the truth.
6. He believes in making everything in his life as beautiful as possible.
7. He belives in the simple life.
8. He believes it is a crime to be afraid.
9. He meets death cheerfully, singing his death song.
10. He loves nature.

Although the old-time Indian was somewhat cruel to his enemies, he tried to live up to the standard set in his creed.

Out Goes the Fire

Most boys when they first light a fire, pile on too much wood and so put it out. The whole secret of setting a good fire is, first to make a little pile of ferns or dried grass with a handful of small pieces of wood as small as matches. Then get four or five other thin logs about one inch in thickness and eight long and prop them up in pyramid fashion. Before setting the fire alight, have ready beside you some logs and splinters with which to feed it.

A Weighty Question

Tuxis Boy—When do we get heavy weather?

Trail Ranger—At night.

Why at night?

Because it's light in the daytime.

EVERYDAY MAGIC

I hold, say, a tennis racket in my right hand, as I am right-handed. I transfer it to my left hand, and it feels heavier. That is natural, perhaps. But also the handle feels bigger.

Why? Because my left hand is smaller (as it is) than my right or because it is not accustomed (as my right is) to holding a racket? I do not think this kind of touch-peculiarity has been noticed by the psycologists.

The sense of feeling in the fingertips may be developed enormously, as is shown in the case of pickpockets. Myself, without touching, and while keeping the fingers half an inch away, I can feel whether there are, or are not, cigarettes in my case.

I believe psycologists would challenge this claim. But in all sensations of actual touch there is no direct contact between the object and the sensory nerve. A "cushion" intervenes.

Many fire--tricks are explained on this principle; it makes little difference whether the "cushion" is of skin, air, or moisture. The South Sea custom of walking on red-hot lava, the mediaeval ordeals of walking on red-hot plowshares and of touching a red-hot iron with the tongue, the plunging of the bare hand into molten steel; as practiced by visitors to iron foundries are well known cases.

Few organs are so untiring of work as the mouth and tongue. Most persons, especially non-smokers, "work" their lips and tongues almost continuously.

One main origin of the smoking habit is the occupation it gives to a restless mouth. Before the introduction of smoking young men of fashion were always sucking sweets. Today a large proportion of Americans chew gum.

"Seeing red" is a familiar experience to those who have been in battle. But inquiry shows me that when applied to the desire to kill as it usually is, the phrase is purely metaphorical.

But the phrase is literally true of the sensation-interval between being wounded and the lapse into unconsciousness. It is then that you "see red"; the whole vision is filled with a blood-red mist. No doubt this is the same phenomena as you may experience in a strong sunshine by closing the eyes; you see a mist of blood, which is actually the blood-vessels of the retina.

I find I am most fit and energetic in body and brain when it rains after a fine interval.

This observation works down to a difference in barometric pressure. When the barometer is high, one feels highly strung, nervous, restless; when it falls, one becomes normal, matter--of-fact, and at the same time more energetic and capable.

Observations of real life, everyday psychoogical, details are clearly of use if they are new; it was was on such that Darwin and Galton worked.

A communication from New Westminster showed that on the Canadian Northern railway white labor was employed at 40c an hour on basis of an eight hour day, while Oriental labor was engaged at the same rate but worked 10 hours a day, the company in addition furnishing the Oriental bunk houses, light, fuel, etc. In view of this the convention will demand: A living wage for all workers in government employ; employment on government work to white labor only; adoption of 8-hour day on all government work.

In order to improve conditions and administration of the Soldiers Settlement Board, an effort will be made to have legislation enacted whereby district superintendents appointed under the Act will have full power and authority to act immediately on questions arising within their districts. Also that greater dscretionaary powers be given resident supervisors so as to avoid unnecessary delay entailed by reference to Ottawa or Victoria. Information will be demanded from Ottawa by the Provincial Secretary under what authority the Settlement Board requires collateral security from soldier settlers as additional security for loans under the Act.

Further consideration was given ex-Imperial Veterans, when the announcement was made that many in this category after arrival here and settling were, by reason of disabilities received on service, required to re-enter institutions for further treatment, in which event their dependents were obliged to wait six weeks to two months before their cases were taken on the strength of the S.C.R. and pay and allowances were granted. During this interim very frequent extreme hardships were caused the dependents and this feature will be eliminated if possible. The question of tax examption was again considered and it was refered to the provincial executive for further negotiation with the government.

Concerning lighthouse keepers on the Pacific coast, the government will be petitioned to increase remuneration, also establish pension systems and provide educational facilities for children of those engaged in this arduous and dangerous occupation.

The Ways and Means committee in its report paid a very high tribute to Prov. Sec..Treas. Drinnan for his excellent services and a cash bonus was granted that officer.

Cordial votes of thanks were passed to representatives of the press, the Fernie Board of Trade, Fernie G.W.V.A. and Auxiliary, the I.O.D.E. and citizens for their efforts to make the visit to the city pleasant. The unanimous decision was that a more pleasant and successful convention had never been held. Pres. Bryant of Fernie received the following telegram from Prov. President Harnett while on return journey to the coast: "All the boys from other locals want to thank you and our comrades at Fernie for giving us a thorough good time and making all arrangements so successfully."

Thos. Prentice, President of the Board of Trade ,also received a telegram from President Harnett conveying appreciation for efforts extended in entertaining the delegates. Those who took advantage of the motor trip to Elko were enraptured with what they saw and were extremely enthusiastic in their praises to those who had arranged this tour as well as those who so kindly supplied cars to convey the visitors.

Presented by th[illegible]d Central Hotel, Fernie, for District Football Association.

TIME FOR PLAIN TALK

The time seems to have arrived for a little plain speaking. It, at least, will do no harm. From Washington comes the Underwood Resolution, approved by the United States Senate, and favorably reported to the House of Representatives, to the effect that unless we open up our Crown lands for the exploitation of pulpwood by Americans who desire to feed their own paper mills with our raw products, embargoes may be placed upon the exportation to us from the United States of such products as coal, sulphur, kaolin and dyes; utilized by Canadian mills in the manufacture of news print.

Next comes a proposal that the government of the United States shall recognize the so-called Provincial Irish Republic. And in spite of the fact that the "Irish Republic" has no local habitation, form of government or anything that would characterize it as being a "State in being," the Foreign Relations Committee of the United States House of Representatives only missed passing such a resolution by two votes, having been rejected by ten votes to nine. The passing of such a resolution, under present circumstances, could only be construed by Great Britain as an unfriendly act, and quite properly might have led to the withdrawal of the British Ambassador.

William Randolph Hearst, together with numerous other pro-German, anti-British routabouts have recently done their best to stir up additional ill-will between England and the United States by a complete misrepresentation of Britain's attitude in respect to the world's oil supply. Far and near has gone the statement that Great Britain has been working to secure a monopoly of the world's crude oil fields, other than those contained in the United States. It is true that the boastings of an alleged "oil magnate" in London, whose chief business is apparently gambling in oil stock rather than supplying the public with the product, was partially responsible for such silly yarns, which now, however, have been given the lie by authoritative statements of no less a person than Sir Auckland Geddes, Britain's new Ambassador to the United States. Sir Auckland, in a carefully prepared speech before the Pilgrim's Club, made the statement that far from controlling a monopoly of the oil supply Britain produced a little under five per cent of the world's total. The Ambassador further said that Britain, contrary to the statements made in United States papers and by politicians, owned none of the Baku, Batum, Palestine or Mesopotamia fields, and that the story of a British pipe line from Bagdad to Hafia was pure invention.

Another bald canard which has been a trump card in prominent pro-German, pro-Irish political circles in the United States, to the effect that Britain was creating a navy to dominate the oceans, was promptly killed by Sir Auckland. He pointed out that when the armistice came England had more than one thousand ships, designed for war purposes, on the stocks. Of these over six hundred were broken up. Of the four great battle cruisers under construction, three were scrapped, the only one retained being the Hood which was practically complete.

Of course, we quite understand that this is Presidential election year in the United States, and that the average politician is busy catering to the German and Irish vote, and that anything he can put over in an attempt to drive one more nail in John Bull's coffin is just so much to the good. Political liars have unfortunately a very serious advantage. Their lies get away to a good start and the truth has a hard time overtaking them. The British Empire, including Canada, has for over a hundred years striven manfully to live on friendly terms with the United States of America, and if it were not for the curse of cheap politicians whose sole aim is advancement at the expense of both truth and decency, we would probably get along nicely. — Toronto Saturday Night.

CASTE DISTINCTION PASSES IN ENGLAND

From the new point of social history the really interesting thing about the marriage of Lady Dorothy Cavendish to Mr. Harold Macmillan was that the marriage of a duke's daughter to a publisher's son struck no one as being the least resmarkable, says the Mancheter Guardian. Twenty years ago such an event would have been hailed as a sign of the passing away of caste distinctions at the top; today nobody notices it.

A yet more exalted marriage, that of the Princess Patricia to Commander Ramsay, did not bring a heading of 'The Stooping Lady" to any of the newspapers, and the present wedding is seen by even the most old fashioned inmates of Mayfair as quite an ordinary suitable match, as indeed it is. The April sun shines on the marriage, and the affair was both grand and pretty.

Marriage presents in a big marriage nowadays seem mostly to take the form of old furniture, old glass, old china, old jewelry, old lace, old mirrors, old silver and old lacquer. There were many useful things such as umbrellas, dresing caps, lace doylies, clocks of all kinds, enamel buttons, and clothes brushes. There were very few books, uness address books and manuscript books are counted. Sir Sidney Lee presented his life of Shakespeare, Mrs. Drew her life of Mrs. Gladstone, and the Misses K. and J. Penrose two Irish books.

THE NEW TAXES

In this issue of the Free Press appears an official advertisement dealing with the Sales and Luxury Taxation Resolutions now in force throughout the Dominion. As the matter is one which affects practically all lines of merchandising and manufacturing, all merchants and manufacturers would do well to clip this advertisement and file it for reference. The subject matter is a verbatim copy of the Memorandum on the Resolutions as forwarded to Collectors of Inland Revenue and is an exact and authoritative statement on the matter as is available.

Appended to the official Memorandum has been outlined in brief form paragraphs dealing with the practical application of the Taxation Resolutions and the duties of merchants and manufacturers in connection with the matter in so far as reports and collections are to be made under the Resolution.

LABOR AND FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald is on perfectly sound ground when he advises the Labor Party to educate itself in foreign affairs and to have a definite policy in regard to them. One of the real weaknesses of Labor is that it has neglected a branch of politics that for all time now must be of the first importance. In fact, we would go further. The Labor Party has not carried the weight in parliament that rightly belongs to it because it has concentrated most of its energy upon purely sectional matters, and has shirked dealing with bigger affairs at home and abroad. Labor must decide where it stands in regard to the world future as well as what policy it has for wages and working conditions. Until it does so it will not be an effective force in national and international politics. The labor leaders are beginning to see this but it cannot be said that the attendance of Labor members in Parliament when the wider questions are under consideration suggests a widespread desire to gain the information without which the party cannot play an effective part.

LUCK AT MONTE CARLO

Paris—I have visited Monte Carlo for the last 25 years. This year I did extraordinarily well. By sheer good luck I broke the bank at one table at roulette three times within an hour —which means that I won in that time 150,000 francs. At another sitting, as the banker, and giving banque ouverte at baccarat, I lost 500,000 francs of my winnings, but, taking, the visit throughout, I won enough to keep myself and my friends and go home with a handsome surplus.

Did I hypnotize the chefs or the croupiers? Not a bit of it. And I disagree completely with what Mr. Cousins Lawrence has said in his new book—that the croupiers can turn up any given number at will by skilful manipulation of the wheel. Such suspicions have existed in the minds of many other visitors, but they are merely superstitions.

Systems, Mr. Lawrence says, cannot win. But I believe that, given three things—courage, capital and reasonable luck, with a sensible plan of progressive staking—money can be made at Monte Carlo. One must be content to win very little at a time. Heaps of people today are making a living at the game, and they never play high.

I know, for instance, of an American who went to the Riviera for his health and is doing very nicely at the tables. He has actually kept himself there for the last eight years, winter and summer.

He not what one might call a gambler at all. When he went there I do not think he had seen a roulette table. But watching the tables, he came to the conclusion that he had discovered a very fine investment. So he withdrew from America a small amount of capital that was bringing in between 6 and 7 per cent. Now each day he goes to the casino with $500. He plays with 5-franc pieces, on a plan which he devised, with so much success that the capital he withdrew is now bringing him in between 30 and 40 per cent.

Carefulness is the whole secret. Only novices go at it haphazard.

It is equally true, though, that no infallible system of breaking the bank has been found, and that, to my mind, is the best possible proof that roulette is absolutely a game of chance.

It is absurd to suggest that any croupier can turn up given numbers at will—just as absurd as to say, as they do, that a man who has won heavily once is doomed to be relieved of all his superfluous wealth the next time he visits the casino.

The men who operate the wheel and ball are human beings, as eager to become suddenly rich as anyone. Don't you think, if they are as skilful as is suggested, they could be persuaded, for a handsome sum of money, to turn up a series of numbers arranged before hand?

I am prepared to agree that the croupier is able to spin the ball into a certain section of the wheel, but as for spinning into an exact number, that is altogether out of the question.

The whole fact of the matter is that the croupier knows fully the feeling of superstition that exists in the casino, and naturally he does everything he can to encourage the belief, just for the fun of the thing. Turning the wheel and spinning the ball hour after hour must become dreadfully monotonous for him at times.

After all, what is roulette? It is merely a blue-blooded cousin of tossing a penny. The table can give you one of only three things—a run of blacks, a run of reds or a series black and red alternately. And records show it has "spasms" of each.

Many people have seen a dozen blacks turn up at once, then a dozen reds. The novice, seeing a long string of blacks, naturally jumps to the conclusion that red is bound to come sooner or later, and begins to back red, instead of waiting for the run on the black to break. These people will insist on speculating on what is going to happen instead of watching what the table is doing. They are "fighting the table," and that is the usual way of losing money quickly

To win one must have a run of average luck and plenty of courage.

Ihave seen men and women lose golden opportunities through lack of courage; they have been winning all along the line, when suddenly, their courage fails and they stop just when they should have been most persistent. Because they are winning they are afraid to lose and reduce their stakes.

On the other hand, when a man is losing he often gets "rattled" and begins to plunge heavily, to sink further into the mire. He runs away from his good luck and chases after his bad luck.

He is the fellow who makes the casino a paying concern. There are thousands like him.

They go with $250 and the hope that at the end of a fortnight they will return home having had a free holiday and with $2500 of surplus cash. It is upon such people that the casino is able to live; they are in a hurry to get rich, and, in the heat and excitement of a moment, go all to pieces.

The change that has come over Monte Carlo in the past few years is remarkable. More and more women are at the tables, till today they outnumber the men by three to one. Pretty as some of them are, they are not able to hypnotize the croupiers by their fascinating beauty into being supermen of skill. While the bored croupier, I feel sure, would like to assist some of them sometimes—if he could—he absolutely cannot.

REFORMERS' ROCKY ROAD

The way of the reformer is hard and the path to power is paved with good intentions. One of the planks in the platform of the Ontario Farmers' party was the abolition of Government House, which was alleged to be a white elephant. Now it appears that the Drury government has been unable to abolish Government House. It is to be permitted to flourish and provision has been made in the Provincial estimates for maintaining it on a more elaborate scale than ever. The cost of the Ontario Government House for the current year will be $26,000 or nearly $9000 in excess of the expense of maintaining it under Conservative rule.

Abstract criticism of institutions and things is a much more simple process than instituting reforms after acquiring power. The explanation of the action of the Drury government respecting Government House may be that there are farmers in the party who aspire to the honor and dignity of becoming its occupants. The Drury government, of course, has not the power of appointing its own lieutenant-governor, but the farmers aspire to occupation of the seats of the mighty at Ottawa, so that ambition of the kind mentioned is not impossible of realization. Another fact illustrative of the thorns that beset the path of the reformer is the general cost of government under an administration pledged to rigid economy in expenditures. It will cost the people of Ontario over $4,000,000 more this year to conduct their affairs than it did last year, when an alleged extravagant administration was held responsible for the high cost of government.—Colonist.

LETTER FROM ITALY

The following letter has been received in the city and is published at the request of Mrs. Oliva, wife of deceased referred to in the letter.

Villa Dosia, May 12, 1920.

Sir—It was my ardent desire to answer you immediately upon receipt of your esteemed letter with body of poor deceased son of mine, but circumstances prevented, so kindly pardon delay and accept the present communication.

Now the body, shipped from Fernie, B.C., arrived at Genoa on Jan. 5th, but owing to some consular documents not being received the body had to remain at the customs house until Feb. 3, when it was forwarded to Cimbro, Milan. Before proceeding with the funeral services, with the permission of the sanitary authorities of the cty of Milan, th body was exposed to the public for four days, after which it was interred in the family tomb. A great concourse of people came from afar to view the body and admire the excellent work of the embalmer. The municipal authorities were officially present to receive the remains of deceased. I feel the need to express my great thanks for the great work performed.

Yours devotedly,
Gspare Oliva

CALGARY EXHIBITION

The prize list for the Calgary Exhibition may be obtained by writing to E. L. Richardson, Manager, Calgary. The Fair dates this year are June 26 to July 3, and entries close on June 14. Over $7000 has been added to the prize list for the live stock department for this year, making the total offered in all departments now $34,500.

The new $100,000 cattle stable and judging pavilion will be used for the first time this year and will add greatly to the comfort and convenience of the exhibitors.

Calgary is fortunate this year in being able to secure Locklear, possibly the most daring acrobatic performer in the world. He does acrobatic stunts all over an aeroplane and finishes his act by changing from one machine to another in full filght in mid-air. This is positively the greatest attraction that can be obtained for any exhibition.

Auto polo will also provide many thrills for Fair visitors, while the musical program will be supplied by Canada's crack military band, the 48th Highlander of Toronto.

Special passenger rates will be in force for the Calgary Exhibition from all points in Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia east of Golden on the main line and Nelson on the Crow's Nest.

Brandram's Genuine BB WHITE LEAD

THEY used it for the stage-coach of olden days in England—we use it in Canada today. Compare it with any other white lead or white paint, and you will decide that your house—or anything you wish to have truly white and remain white—must be painted with this brand which has survived as the leading white lead for nearly two centuries.

Thinned with linseed oil and turpentine, it makes a perfect white paint. Combined with coloring matter, it makes the satisfactory tinted paint of any shade. It is the basis for that finest of ready-mixed paint, B-H "English" Paint.

Made in a modern Canadian factory, and by the same process as was employed for its manufacture by its inventor in England, it is today the only survivor of all the patented white lead processes of that earlier generation. It has survived because it results in a white lead of exceptional fineness, whiteness and durability.

FFRNIE'S EXCLUSIVE SHOE STORE

PRAIRIE MARKET FOR LUMBER

A late spring has militated against an early start with the season's building with this year, but preparations are being made all over the west for the biggest building year since 1914.

Prairie dealers are much interested in prices. That there will be no further increase in the price of lumber if the manufacturers can possibly help it, is the opinion of I. R. Poole, secretary of the Mountain Lumbermen's Manufacturing Association, and this statement is made notwithstanding the increased cost of production. If the manufacturers can control the situation the price of lumber will certainly not further advance.

From 1908 to 1912, the retail dealers of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba bought immense quantities of lumber in the United States, about $10,000,000 of Canadian money being put into the pockets of foreign manufacturers to the detriment of Canada. The lumber industry of British Columbia suffered great losses during that period and subsequent years and at least 60 per cent of the lumber manufacturers were forced into liquidation, and many have not recovered; hence when trade revived the supply was not equal to the demand.

The revival occurred first in the United States, there being at that period practically no demand for lumber in the Western provinces of Canada. During 1919, Canadian shipments of lumber, lath and shingles to the United States amounted to over $22,000,000, at a time when the balance of trade was against Canada, and this should be recognized in its true light, being one of the greatest factors in restoring the balance of trade and the value of the Canadian dollar. Further, had it not been for the extensive market in the United States, Western Canadian mills would have been forced to suspend operations during the latter part of 1919. Retailers in the West reduced their stocks, evidently with the hope that lumber would sink below the disastrous prices which prevailed prior to that period, and scarcely any business could be obtained in the Prairie provinces.

Notwithstanding the abnormal demand in the United States in 1919 the lumber manufacturers did not make the profits generally imagined, as the statement covering 1919 operations now being prepared for the Board of Commerce will show. Whilst it is true that some mills enjoying natural advantages can survive during depressions, this is not applicable to the majority of the mills with difficult logging propositions, but even those possessing great natural advantages made but very meagre profits during 1919.

It is true that lumber prices advanced with rapid strides during the past year; still, the advance in cost was even more rapid, with the result that, in spite of increased returns, the costs kept pace and almost wiped out the profits, even of those mills favorably situated. The cost of lumber is high compared with previous years, but in comparison with other goods it has not risen in equal rato. A bushel of wheat, for instance, will purchase three times more lumber than it would 10 years or so ago, and this item has a direct bearing on the increased cost of lumber and other commodities. The cost of labor, the biggest item in the production of lumber, has increased over 100 per cent, and will still rise higher. The terrible effect of the war has wiped out thousands of skilled workmen, and rendered thousands more unfit for work, and new hands hard to get, have to be trained—and other costly operation. Hay costs 12 per cent more, oats 150 per cent flour 100 per cent, dried and canned goods 300 per cent, hams, bacon pork, eggs over 100 per cent, cereals and other foodstuffs over 100 per cent. All these are used in enormous quantities in the production of lumber, and farmers and others are apt to lose sight of the fact that British Columbia imports agricultural products averaging over $20,000,000 per annum. Mill supplies increased 100 per cent to 200 per cent. For example, a circular saw that a few years ago cost $80 now costs over 200; band saws that cost $3.85 per foot are now $8, and belting has advanced over 250 per cent. Another important item is the great increase in freight rates.

It can readily be seen that the wholesale price of lumber has not kept pace with other commodities, and the statement of operations now being prepared for the Board of Commerce will verify the position taken by the manufacturers as regards costs of production and receipts for lumber which will dispel the popular idea that lumber manufacturers are profiteers.

A statement was widely published that the British Columbia mills had shipped 80 per cent of their product to the United States, to the detrimental of the Canadian consumer had suffered in consequence. That statement, like many others, is not true, the correct figures being 20 per cent exported in 1919, and a large quantity of that stock has laid in the mill yards for years—dead stock prairie dealers would not take. If the latter were short of lumber at any time, the manufacturers were not aware of the fact, as it is their desire to give Canadian consumers the preference, the natural market being the Prairie provinces, which they are extremely anxious to hold. Dealers and other purchasers of lumber cannot reasonably expect manufacturers to pile up great stocks of lumber at the present excessive costs and hold the stocks until purchasers are ready to place orders. It is not only unreasonable but impossible to do this, and if the mills are to continue operations they must ship somewhere. When the prairie market cannot absorb the products of the mills it is in the public interest that other provinces or states who can pay for it should have it. To cease shipping means cessation of operations, which would deprive thousands of men, women and children of their daily bread. Immediately the Retailers' Association notified the Manufacturers' Association of the anticipated shortage of supplies the retailers were invited to meet the manufacturers on the 22nd of March in Calgary to discuss the problems confronting the industry and to make arrangements to supply the present and future requirements of the Prairie provinces. This invitation was not accepted, the natural inference being that the alleged shortage is not so serious as represented.

The reasons for the upward trend of prices are too many to enumerate. The demand of working men for higher wages are not wholly responsible for the increase in costs. The government has nearly doubled the charge for royalty. Freight rates increased over 30 per cent. The chief cost in producing lumber is the raw material—saw logs. It will be noted that the public quotations for logs are: Cedar, $30 to $50; fir, $20 to $30—an average cost of $25 to $30 per 1000 logs. There are many other factors which are responsible for the ever-increasing cost of lumber. Not many years since, logs could be obtained for $3 to $5 per 1000, but as timber is cut nearer to mills it recedes from the point of operations and calls for the building of expensive logging railways, log flumes and other expensive means of transportation.

At the best, the lumber manufacturing business is a hazardous one, and the public records will show that over 90 per cent of the companies have never paid any dividends and some have not even paid interest on bond issue.

During the last 15 years mills which were able to survive have done so through depreciating their assets and other sources in the hope that prosperous times would return. It must strike observers as most remarkable that manufacturers of other commodities who are protected by tariffs are immune from the public attacks and false charges which are made on the only unprotected industry in Canada.—Western Lumberman.

WORKING AND LIKING IT

It has always been possible to separate men into two grand divisions—those who like to work and those who do not. The number and proportions of those who do not like to work is somewhat higher now than it used to be. Why this is so the psychologists may be able to explain.

The fact remains that there is a very considerable proportion of men who are going on with their work as faithfully and loyally as they did before there was a war or an armistice. They are the men who have what science calls "the instinct of workmanship." They like their jobs. They work as if they believed it a good, healthful, wholesome thing to perform constructive service six days a week at the very jobs they are holding down.

In a list of the men who work should be included those who are in processed industry. The driver hauling earth starts his horses when the steam shovel has filled his wagon. The steam shovel engineer runs his machine better when a long line of wagons is waiting to be filled. Each feels himself a part of a process, to speak scientifically, or he is playing a game, to use the term of sportsmanship.

Working and liking it is normal existence. It is also the most lasting form of enjoyment.—Chicago News.

ITALIAN ALPS

I have spoken of a monte and of an alpe. An alpe, or alp, is not, as so many people in England think, a snowy mountain. Mont Blanc and the Jungfrau, for example, are not alps. They are mountains with alps upon them.

Summer pasturage just below the snow-line, and only capable of being grazed for two or three months in every year. It is held as common land by one or more villages in the immediate neighborhood, and sometimes by a single individual to whom the village has sold it. A few men and boys attend the whole herd, whether of cattle or goats, and make the cheese, which is apportioned out among the owners of the cattle later on. The cheese is not commonly made at the alpe, but as soon as the curd has been pressed clear of whey, it is sent down on men's backs to the village to be made into cheese. Sometimes there will be a little hay grown on an alpe, as at Gribbio and in Piora; in this case there will be some chalets built, which will be inhabited for a few weeks and left empty the rest of the year.

The monte is the pasture land immediately above the highest inclosed meadows and below the alpe. The cattle are kept here in Spring and Autumn before and after their visit to the alpe. The monte has many houses, dairies, and cowhouses—being almost the paese, or village, in miniature. It will always have its chapel, and is inhabited by so considerable a number of the villagers, for so long a time both in Spring and Autumn, that they find it worth while to make themselves more comfortable than is necessary for the few who make the short Summer visit to the alpe. —From "Alps and Sanctuaries of Piedmont and Canton Ticino," by Samuel Butler.

QUAKER BAKED BEANS ARE OLD FASHIONED

They're simply old fashioned baked beans, cooked as we remember them years ago when they went into the big pot at home.

We put in just enough pork and tomato sauce to give them zest.

MRS. F. C. W. WROTE THIS

"I have great pleasure in sending you a salad dressing recipe I used with good results while cooking in a lumber camp up the Coast last summer, where fresh milk was unobtainable.

"Canned milk had to be used for everything, and I may say in passing that I never had lighter cakes and puddings than those I made with Pacific Milk."

We will print Mrs. W.'s recipe next time. She expressly asked that her name be not published.

THE WORLD MOTHER

By crag and lonely moor she stands,
This Mother of half a world's great men,
And kens them far by sea-wracked lands,
Or Orient jungle or Western fen.

And far out 'mid the mad turmoil,
Or where the desert places keep
Their lonely hush, her children toil,
Or wrapped in wide-world honor sleep.

Brave sons of her, far severed wide
By purpling peak or reeling foam,
From Western ridge or Orient side,
She calls them home, she calles them home.

For the Scotsman's speech is wise and slow,
And the Scotsman's thought is hard to ken;
But through all the yearnings of man that go,
His heart is the heart of the Northern glen.

For there's something strong and something true
In the wind where the sprig of heather is blown;
And something great in the blood so blue,
That makes him stand like a man alone.

Yea, give him the road and loose him free,
He sets his teeth to the fiercest blast,
For ther's never a toil in a far countrie,
But a Scotsman tackles it hard and fast.

He builds their commerce, he sings their songs,
He weaves their creeds with an iron twist,
And making of laws or righting of wrongs,
He grinds it all as the Scotsman's grist.

Yea, there by the crag and moor she stands,
This Mother of half a world's great men,
And out of the heart of her haunted lands
She calls her children home again.

And over the glens and the wild sea floors
She peers so still as she counts her cost,
With the whaups low calling over the moors,
"Woe, woe, for the great ones she hath lost."

—Wilfred Campbell.

"IT SAVED MY LIFE" DECLARES STEPHEN

Was Flat On His Back With Stomach Trouble When He Began Taking Tanlac

"Honestly I don't believe I would be alive today if it hadn't been for Tanlac, and if I praise it the balance of my life I can never say enough for it," said A. M. Stephen of Redvers, Sask., who is in the butcher business in that city, but now spending a few months in Vancouver. Mr. Stephen has lived in that part of Saskatchwan for the past thirty years and is well known, having been one of the first settlers in that section of the province.

"For twenty-five years I had suffered from stomach trouble more than I will ever be able to tell. My appetite was very poor all the time and at times even the smell of food would nauseate me. Everything I ate lay heavy on my stomach and fermented, gas would form and sometimes there were such intense pains in the pit of my stomach I could hardly stand them. I suffered with severe pains in the region of my heart, which palpitated dreadfully, and at times I became frightened, for I just felt like I was going to die. My head ached just about all the time, and I often got so dizzy I had to catch hold of something to keep me from falling. Then, too, there was always such awful pains across the small of my back I could hardly get up or down. I kept getting worse until finally last winter I got so bad off I was not expected to live. I was taken down suddenly, my stomach would not digest a single thing, and I was so weak I could not turn over in bed.

"Along about this time Tanlac was put on sale out where I live, and I heard so many good things said about it I decided to give it a trial. Well, sir, I firmly believe it saved my life. I had not taken all of the first bottle when I commenced to digest what I ate, and when I had taken two bottles I had a splendid appetite and everything agreed with me. Since then my improvement has been steady until now I am never troubled with gas, pains in my stomach, back or around my heart, and am not bothered with palpitation. In fact, I am in better health in every way than I have been for years. I never expect to be without Tanlac again, and also I never intend to miss an oportunity to praise it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

TEN CANADIAN COMMANDMENTS

The Canadian Reconstruction Association urges observance of the following "Ten Commandments for Canadian Trade" as a means towards a safer trade situation and the development of Canadian resources:

1. Buy Canadian products. In doing so you develop the home market, encourage factory expansion, provide employment for new populations and create bigger and better markets for all kinds of farm produce.

2. Import only necessities and then only if similar Canadian articles or substitutes are not available.

3. Produce to the limit in field and factory. Increased production means new wealth, and it is essential to the success of any effort to reduce imports and promote export trade.

. Co-operate, conserve, specialize, standardize. These are the means to maximum production of high quality goods at minimum cost.

5. Develop export markets. Foreign business gives stability to trade. It reduces unit costs, benefits domestic consumers, affords employment to factories and workers in times of depression, and corrects adverse exchange by improving the trade balance.

6. Utilize Canadian services. Ship by Canadian carriers through Canadian ports. Patronize Canadian railways, Canadian steamships, and Canadian banks. Place insurance in Canadian companies. Employ Canadian architects, engineers, scientists and other experts. Spend vacations in Canada.

7. Manufacture raw materials to f nal stages in Canada. Hundreds of millions of dollars are lost annually to the Dominion and especially to Canadian wage earners by the exportation of raw materials and semi-products.

8. [illegible] for the determination [illegible] of natural re- [illegible] research will re- [illegible] industrial pr[illegible] help to relieve our eco- [illegible] upon outside sources for fuel, iron and other essentials.

9. Make quality the hall mark of Canadian products. In return for public support of the home market Canadian manufacturers should provide products that compare favoragly with imported goods and Canadian workers should recognize good workmanship and maximum production as their standards.

10. Be fair to capital. Canadian money should be encouraged to invest at home and foreign capital attracted to promote Canadian industrial expansion.

A KITCHENER STORY

One of the good stories that are to be found in Sir George Arthur's "Life of Lord Kitchener," which Macmillans publish today—three great volumes, packed full of matter of the deepest interest—concerns his adventures as a "poilu"—though the name had not been invented when he, a Woolwich cadet, took service with a companion who is now Sir Henry Dawson to fight for France against "les Prussiens." The end of the campaign came, for him, when an ascent in a balloon gave him a chill which induced pneumonia, and left him such a physical wreck that "his one fear was that he would never have the strength to be a soldier."

But "K" trouble did not end there. When he got back to England, Sir George Arthur says, "he found his alleged breach of military discipline" —which, he always maintained, was no breach at all—"had been taken seriously and he was told to report himself at the Horse Guards. Brought into the presence of the Duke of Cambridge, he was severely scolded, informed that he had behaved abominably, and threatened with the forfeiture of his status and the refusal of a commission. The Commander-in-Chief, having administered this fierce rebuke, paused a moment, and then murmured: "I am bound to say that in your place I should have done the same thing!"

BOWSER SAYS LOOKS LOOKS LIKE ELECTION

Vancouver, June 4.—That the Conservatives and the soldier organizations may link forces in opposition to the Oliver administration in the next election was the hope held forth by W. J. Bowser, Conservative leader, at a meeting under the auspices of the Vancouver Conservative Association.

The meeting was well attended, there being a good sprinkling of ladies in the audience who joined in giving the Tory chieftain a hearty reception.

"As regards the returned soldiers," said Mr. Bowser, "there is no reason why the Conservatives and soldiers should not reach a thorough understanding before the next election. If Conservatives, soldiers, independents and all those opposed to the government should agree on candidates the enemy could be met with undivided forces.

"It looks like an election," continued the speaker. "The Premier and his cabinet ministers are not running around the country making speeches for nothing. There is a strong independent feeling here and I am glad to see it. It is this big body without strict party affiliations who make and unmake governments and it is a mighty good thing for the country that it is so. They may have made no mistake in relieving me of office in 1916 but I have learned a lot since then and those who voted against me have learned a lot, too. Oliver is on the toboggan now just like I was in 1916. I did not enjoy it, but I'm enjoying every minute of it now."

Touching upon the proposed prohibition referendum, which was scheduled for early in the fall, the speaker said it would not likely be held until December or January, inasmuch as the machinery for staging the vote woud not be ready until that time.

Preceding his address on the general political outlook Mr. Bowser elucidated the new Election Act, touching more particularly upon the duties to be performed by the registration commissioners in compiling the electoral lists.

During his address Mr. Bowser registered strong objection to the closing of the lists on July 15, stating that through lack of time to make application, thousands of voters in B.C. would be disfranchised.—Colonist.

METEOROLOGY AND THE WAR

That the meteorologist may, together with the engineer and the chemist, claim to have had his share in deciding the war fortunes will perhaps be conceded. But few of the people who listened to the two lectures which Lieut. Col. E. Gold, F. R. S., delivered at the Royal Institution in London, on the first two Thursdays of March, were probably aware to what extent the Meteorological Section of the army influenced the hour of gas attacks and aeroplane flights, the laying of guns and operations generally In the early months of the war the Meteorological Office sent its advice from London. When the gas attacks commenced in 1915 a meteorological section was established near headquarters at St. Omer. Stations behind the front were connected by telephone with chief stations further off, and these with the central station; forecasts and directions were issued four hours in advance; the distribution of the message took about half an hour, so that the wind direction and force, temperature and humidity of the air, etc. were generally known for three hours in advance. The messages, however, stated definitely—all by codes—what corrections should be applied to ballistic calculations with respect not only to the surface winds, but also to the winds to be expected in higher strata. In the northern section of France the work was to a certain extent complicated by the fact that the range of hills extending southeast from Calais to Albert and further inland gives rise to a gravitational wind, of which the Allied forces were able to make good use.

THE CAUSE OF FOOT DISFIGUREMENT

A well-known foot specialist says that 90 women out of every 100 have ugly feet. And at that, he continues, our women are a great improvement over their European sisters, since on this side of the water we manufacture superior shoes.

The most common result of badly fitting or badly shaped shoes is corns. These are nothing but horny thickenings of the skin, hard on the outside of the toe, but soft between them where the skin perspires. If the corns are soaked or softened by means of poultices they can be cut out. Then if the spot is kept free from friction by covering it with a thin soft bandage or piece of felt, there should be little or no trouble.

A bunion is not a skin ailment but is an enlarged bony growth, generally of the big toe. It results from the constant pressure of ill-fitting shoes and, if it is very bad, may require operating on. The usual treatment, however, consists in wearing shoes with a straight inside border and rounded toes.

Another painful disfigurement is an ingrowing toe nail. This can be avoided, and to a certain extent cured, by cutting the large toe nail in a V which has its point turned inwards. The tendency of the nail is to grow together and this pulls the edges of the nails out of the flesh, where they have become painful.

TWO MONTHS NELSON JAIL

Judge Thompson held County Court in Fernie on Wednesday.

R. Donaldson pleaded guilty of stealing from a dwelling near Fort Steele two blankets, one sheep-lined coat, two pair socks, one Winchester rifle, box of cartridge and a pair of boots. Accused recently hailed from the United States, having been attached to the Al. G. Barnes Circus. He missed the circus at Spokane and was following them through but apparently thought housebreaking would be more profitable. However, his endeavors in this line were promptly frustrated by the Provincial Police. He was sentenced to two months at Nelson jail and will be deported upon the expiration of the sentence.

Two applications for naturalization were made, both of whom were natives of Italy and of lengthy residence in this district. The granting of these applications was recommended to the Department of State.

FIND BODY OF JOHN TELFER

Last Tuesday afternoon a lumberman by the name of James Van Camp while crossing over the G. N. R. bridge at Elkmouth, noticed a human hand protruding from the water in midstream, and assisted by Charles Limberg, who was working near by, they recovered from the river the body of an elderly male, which later was positively identified as the remains of John Telfer, who has been missing since the night of May 20-21, when he disappeared under rather phenomenal circumstances from the Elk Hotel at Elko. The body was in such a state that positive identification at first was rather difficult, but while the features were abnormally distorted there was nevertheless some facial characteristics, together with the gray hair and a portion of closely clipped moustache, which left no doubt in the minds of friends of Mr. Telfer who went to view the body where it was recovered, that it was he. Later through certain dental peculiarities, an abdominal scar caused by an operation about ten years ago, the boots and socks, which with a portion of the under drawers were the only articles of clothing on the body, positive identification has now been established.

Coroner Thompson accompanied by members of the provincial police were promptly summoned to Elkmouth and brought the remains to this city. The jury, comprised of H. E. Douglas, foreman; E. K. Stewart, D McVannell, S. Graham, G. G. Henderson and D. G. Harvie, viewed the body on Wednesday and the inquest was adjourned until Friday evening, when evidence will be heard. Drs. Garner and Asselstine performed an autopsy and while details of their findings will not be officially announced until presented in sworn testimony at the inquest, it is understood that here were no severe marks of violence sufficient to have caused death. The body was more or less severely bruised but there were no indications of mutilation which might be expected to be found upon a body if it passed through the seething, rocky Elko canyon. The right shoulder appeared to be the only bone fractured, while the lungs, it is reported, when a test was made, did not definitely prove that death had occurred from drowning, as there was little or no water in the cells. The stomach has been forwarded to the Provincial Analyist for minute examination of the contents, with a view to ascertaining whether or not any abnormal substance could be found which might shed some light on what is up to the present one of the most baffling mysteries with which the local authorities have had to contend in this district.

The funeral of the deceased was held on Thursday afternoon from the family residence, thence to the United Church. The obsequies were attended by the members of Elk River Lodge A. F. & A.M., deceased having been a member of Perfection Lodge, Calgary, for over 25 years.

While the tragedy has, through the recovery of the remains of Mr. Telfer, advanced another step, the solution appears to be as elusive as it was in the beginning. The authorities since the matter was placed in their hands some four days following the disappearance, have never let up in their investigation and it is known that a considerable mass of evidence will be tendered at the inquest, from which it is hoped that the jury will be able to reach a conclusion. However, in view of the popularity and esteem with which deceased was held by all that knew him; a man who was of most regular and exemplarary habits, and the peculiar circumstances surrounding the fire discovered in the room lately occupied by him, together with other apparently insignificant but nevertheless peculiar features, has aroused widespread interest, and emanating thereform numerous fantastic and imaginary rumors have been circulated. It will not, however, be through this medium that the true facts of the case will be disclosed but strictly upon sworn statements of fact adduced before the coroner's jury.

PREPARING FOR JULY 1

Contracts have been signed between the F.A.A. and agents of McCarthy versus Burns; also Gleason versus Pete. The committee is also arranging for one four-round preliminary. This card is undoubtedly the best boxing card ever staged in the interior. Burns states that he has always figured himself a better man than McCarthy and simply wanted the opportunity to settle McCarthy's chances for the Canadian light weight title. The winner of the McCarthy-Burns affair is to box Clonie Tate at Calgary for the title. In the 10-round semi-wind-up, Irvin Gleason's record is too well known to need publicity. Gleason will box Frank Pete of Seattle, who is one of the best boys at his weight in the west. The committee expect this 10-round semi to be equally as good as the headliner. The arena is being prepared and the reserved and ringside seats will be on sale next week at Ingram's Cigar Store.

Work is progressing in the Park, the grounds committee having their end of the work well in hand. Volunteers are needed to assist in the building of the new permanent pavilion. Provide yourself with hammer and saw and proceed to the Park. There is plenty to do.

The officials of the Crow's Nest Pass Football League have offered the Crahan Cup for the football competition, in addition to the gold medals being provided by the celebration committee.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday evening next at 8 p.m. All committeemen please attend.

CONFISCATES MUCH LIQUOR

The city police, acting with a search warrant last Friday, visited the premises in the Alex. Beck Block occupied by Wm. Kerr and therein found a large quantity of liquor. An information was laid against Mr. Kerr under the Prohibition Act for having liquors in a place other than a private dwelling house. This was opened in Police Magistrate Whimster's court on Saturday, when evidence was heard. The testimony adduced showed that Mr. Kerr occupied a single room, and in addition to some 362 cases of whiskey, gin, rum and brandy, and five barrels of intoxicating liquor, there was a stove, some cooking utensils, some eatables, a bed, a dressing table, table and chairs. The Crown also adduced that the premises below were occupied by the Crown Liquor Export Co., while in the building upstairs there was a photographer's studio and premises until recently occupied as a tailor shop. Also that from a party stairway and hallway entrance could be made to the Fernie Club. Mr. Kerr gave in evidence that the room was occupied by him as a private residence and that he ate his meals and slept there. At an adjourned session on Tuesday the Crown called Mrs. A. Wyatt, proprietress of the Fernie Hotel, and Mrs. B. I. Martin, waitress in the Fernie hotel, to rebut the testimony of Mr. Kerr, concerning partaking his meals in the room wherein the liquor was found. Mrs. Wyatt testified that Mr. Kerr was employed by her and that the remuneration paid him did not include meals or board, nor so far as she knew did not eat his meals at the hotel. Mrs. Martin stated that Mr. Kerr usually breakfasted at the Fernie hotel, but with regard to any other meals she could not state positively. She had only been employed at the hotel for about two weeks. Lengthy argument was submitted by F. C. Lawe, counsel for the accused, on the ground that the case for the Crown failed to show that the premises wherein the liquor was found was not a private dwelling within the meaning of the Act. The Crown submitted that in view of the places of business being upstairs in the block and further that the Act clearly specified suite of rooms, the premises in question could not be interpreted to be a private dwelling. His Worship adjourned the case until today in order to review the evidence and consider the authorities submitted, and this afternoon at 2.30 found the accused guilty, inflicting a fine of $100, the maximum, and confiscating the liquor, which is valued at over $10,000.

REPORTS TO I. O. D. E.

The following reports of the Annual Convention of the National Chapter of the I.O.D.E., held at Calgary, were were given at the meeting of the local I.O.D.E. last Saturay. Mrs. A. B. Trites, as delegate, presented the general report, and Mrs. R. W. Wood, Educational Secretary, presented the War Memoral report.

The following was Mrs. Trites' report:

To give a detailed report of everything that transpired at the 20th Annual meeting of the National Chapter would have necessitated the services of a competent stenographer, but in as few words as possible I shall endeavor to convey to you a general outline of some of the various topcs under discussion.

As was anticipated, most of the delegates were already in Calgary when we arrived there on Sunday morning. The Municipal Chapter had made arrangements to take the delegates on a sightseeing trip about the city in the afternoon and we were fortunate enough to have a most delightful hostess and after the drive were invited to her home for tea.

On Monday after the delegates had registered and had received their votes they were asked to attend an informal conference. At this conference the many problems which confront the Chapters in the course of their work were brought up and discussed. Among these was the vexing question regarding the status of British or Canadian women whose husbands are not British subjects, and it was generally expressed that the best way to overcome the difficulty was to Canadianize the husbands. The method of conducting Girls Chapters as outlined by a number of delegates who were Regents of Girls Chapters, was also interesting.

The forming of Business Girls and Teachers Chapters was especially worthy of note and in commenting on the splendid efforts of the girl members of the order, Mrs. Bruce, National President, sad that "it was the wonderful enthusiasm of these girls that was going to keep the work going after the older women had become worked out."

What should characterize the make up of the membership of Junior Chapters now being organized in the public schools throughout the Dominion was another subject that caused much discussion. The child of alien parents is debarred from becoming a member of these Chapters, and some of the delegates, particularly those from the provinces which are confronted with the problem of the new Canadian, were in favor of making some change in the Constitution that would make it possible for these children to become members. One speaker expressed the opinion that if Canada, and especially the west, did not do something to win the love and respect of the foreign born there would be many places in Canada where there would exist similar conditions to that in Quebec. Another delegate said that "the most precious thing Canada has today is its British connection and the maintenance of this is the reason for which the Order was formed, and she thought that every teacher should set such an example of good citizenship that such an impression should be left upon the minds of the children under her charge that they would feel that to be called a Canadian, and to be one, would be the proudest thing in the world.

Just after 12 o'clock the Convention formally opened with the Special I.O.D.E. prayer and the singing of the National Anthem

Mrs. Spence, of Calgary, in a splendid address, welcomed the delegates. She said she "would like to see the convention preach the gospel of unity," and urged the necessity of cooperation among the members. "Let us think together, act together and work together," said Mrs. Spence, "for Canada is facing, along with other countries, the tensest time in its history. Let us put into action our better forces; be straightforward with one another. Let us strive to know the great woman's heart that is ours, and Oh Lord, help us to be kind," as quoted from her address, is worthy our best thoughts and endeavors.

As the resolutions addressed to Their Majesties the King and Queen and Their Excellencies the Duke and Duchess of Devonshre were read, the entire assembly arose. On this memorable Empire Day the local Chapters of the I.O.D.E. had prepared an Intercession Service, which was given in the assembly hall of Knox church, the text being: "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people."

Tuesday morning after the minutes of the previous day had been read, a committee on resolutions was appointed, each province being represented on the committee.

During the reading of the correspondence a large file containing letters was handed to the Secretary by the President with the explanation that they referred to the dispute between Mrs. Gooderham and Lady Kingsmill, and as she thought it would be better if these letters were not read, she asked for a resolution to that effect.

Later when Mrs. Gooderham's letter of resignation from the War Memorial Committee was read, some few of the delegates thought this letter should have been included in the correspondence not to be read, but Mrs. Bruce explained that the National Chapter at their last anndal meeting had bestowed upon Mrs. Gooderham the honor of being a Life Member of the War Memorial Committee, and that her resignation from the committee could only be dealt with by the National Chapter. After the letter had been read Mrs. Moffatt moved "That a vote of confidence and appreciation be passed to Mrs. Gooderham for her eight years of faithful service to the Order during the most strenuous period of its history, and that she be asked to re-consider her resignation." Miss Gordon, of Kingston, in an attempt to thwart the vote of confidence, moved an amendment that the National Executive's recommendation be confirmed and that the resignation be referred to the War Memorial Committee to be dealt with by them, an amendment which aimed to take away the rights of the National Chapter and make a committee paramount to the National Chapter, but when Mrs. Geo. Smith proposed a resolution sustaining Mrs. Gooderhom's administration and imploring her to reconsider her resignation from

(By Fred Roo)

Salesmanship—

When you get up against the man
Who says he doesnt need a thing"
(And says it so it leaves a sting),
Don't let him get you on the pan,
But hold your goat and lay your plan,
Then after he has had his fling—
Just sell him something.

The man who's always full of sir
Will often preach at length to you,
And tell you just what he would do
If selling goods was his affair.
You wait a bit till he's all through—
Then sell him something.

The man who always cuts you deep
Is he who holds you at the door,
And shows you plainly you're a bore.
He'll make you feel so rotten cheap
You'll want to knock him sound asleep.
But don't get mad. Just talk some more
And sell him something.

With home rule Ireland may become a second "Heligoland" and it sure will if "Ulster" is fools enough to cede it to a hostile power.

There was a heavy frost in Elko last week but the two handled pumpkins were too far advanced to hurt.

The C.P.R. depot at Elko is closed during the afternoon so the agent will not be able to make any over time. The patrons can wait. If the C.P.R. had to work under the same conditions they impose on the public and retail trade, how long would they be in business? A very short time. There are some of them pin-headed official so mean that if they had the measles they wouldn't give you one of the spots. Arancher drives in from the south country and gets here at the off hour he knows nothing about and he must wait until the agent is allowed to come on duty, then drive home in the dark. Some service.

Harry Blakey, the well known mining man who is working several copper claims in the mountains east of Roosville, is very optimistic with the showing as the work goes on. Last week he took up seven pack horses loaded with supplies and will put men to work as fast as he can make room for them. The Gorrie boys of the Clydebank Stock Ranch, have some good copper claims east of the Harry Blakey claims and they are also putting men to work on their claims and are expecting outside capital to develop their holdings.

Tom Letcher of the Square Deal Ranch, with his son Blair and family, have moved on to the Sunkist Orchard and will make considerable improvements to the place. This is one of the best orchards in Southeast Kootenay if properly looked after. This is where the big red apples grow.

The Great War Veterans call Brigadier General McLean "the contemptible snob," but that is a mild expression compared to what we have heard the Finance Minister and his funny Tax Budget called. You wonder how in the name of Elijah's great grandmother such people ever get elected to a cabinet position, but when they do they sure knock things head over hallelya, and fat jobs for several thousand misfits who should be producing something and helping to reduce the high cost of living.

James P. Sawyer, contractor, Spokane, with his two daughters, the Misses Ellen and Grace, motored from Spokane, and will remain here for the summer, the rest of the family following later on.

There is nothing like a good old fashioned smile. Dobson, the flour man from Medicine Hat, was in last week, and several of the queen bees were in the store at the time and when they taxed him about the high price of flour he said that flour had to rise to make good bread. C. Vermilyea, of Calgary, was in Elko. Baynes and Waldo with a full line of brushes and brooms, and said that on account of the rise in material and wages they had to advance the price. So the rise in prices goes sweeping on. With him was Arthur Merrill, a regular old war horse on the road and sold everything from arrowroot biscuits to zeppelins with a line of cheese cutters and meat slicers, but who would buy these delicatessen dainties these days. A Vancouver traveller, very strong on economy and shredded prunes and looked about as lively as an ice-cream festival is to a good drinking man. He started back via Spokane. Several tobacco men carrying samples, advertising matter and a line of talk that would draw the corks out of your driving boots. Tobacco is a dry weed. I like it. It satisifies no moral need. I like it. It makes you thin; it makes you lean; it takes the hair right off your bean; it's the darndest stuff I've ever seen. I like it. Just help yourself to a Tobacco Plains cigar. A Vancouver dentist, who was here for a few days fishing, was so delighted with the place he said that if any Elko people came to the coast and wanted any dental work done he would pull teeth at 10c per tooth. "Cheap, by gum." Newton, with the Pat Burns Meat Packers and overland trout salesmen, taking over James C. Sheirlock's division. Born in a slaughter house back in Toronto, he should make a good meat salesman. Three wandering Jews frm Calgary, selling cigarette papers and other farm journals. They sure have 'em in Calgary.

M. Gorman (the human ferret) of Elko, as we go to press, makes a clever capture about 4 o'clock a.m., with special constable Lou Foisy, of a big consignment of whiskey en route to Washington. The Ferret has been laying for this consignment for several nights, and the two officers were just changing shifts when the long looked for boat came sailing over the bridge into the arms of the policemen.

Mrs. H. A. Wilkes is spending a week in Elko for her health.

The nice summer weather is bringing lots of tourists to the Old Historic burg and business is ripping.

The Editor of the Blairmore Enterprise was in Elko last week looking for a site to build a summer bungalow on Riverside Drive.

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

"I have great pleasure in sending you a salad dressing recipe I used with good results while cooking in a lumber camp up the Coast last summer, where fresh milk was unobtainable.

"Canned milk had to be used for everything, and I may say in passing that I never had lighter cakes and puddings than those I made with Pacific Milk."

MACHINE RULE BY U. F. O.

The curiously involved statement issued by the Executive of the United Farmers of Ontario last week, when read carefully, reveals a resolve to establish the most extreme form of machine rule that was ever promulgated in Canada. Its tyrannical nature is not lessened by the fact that it is speciously presented in the name of "democracy." On the pretence that it wishes to "establish the responsibility of the individual voter," it proposes to destroy the public responsibility of the individual legislator.

The belief that the farmer-member must not vote according to his convictions or his directly acquired knowledge of a given issue, but must obey the mandate of the U.F.O. executive of his own riding, is clearly set forth in the following clause:

"The Board of Directors regard the member as being responsible to the Executive of his own riding, and if he and his Executive can no longer act in harmony, it is his duty to resign."

That is to say, he is to dismiss from his mind any idea of responsibility to his own conscience to his constituency as a whole, or to the country at large, and merely act as the mouthpiece of a half dozen men who hold office in the local U.F.O. Club.

Nor is the local junta to be permitted entire freedom of action. This perhaps is well—else we might have resignations and bye-elections in 50 different constituencies from 50 different causes. It is made clear that local executives are to take the tune from the Central Executive at Toronto. Thus runs the mandate:

"Whereas it is the aim of the U.F.O. to preserve democratic principles throughout the operations of its organization; therefore, the Board of Directors regard it as necessary for the closest possible relationship to exist between the riding executive and the central body, the riding executives to be the advisory units so far as possible, suggesting to the central body the course to be pursued on any particular issue, the central body on their part to formulate such a policy and place it intelligently before all units."

In connection with American Presidential conventions we hear much of "the steam roller" and of "the machine," but was a more complete machine to control governmental administration ever evolved from the brain of a politician? It certainly does credit to the organizing brain of J. J. Morrison, secretary of the U.F.O., who evidently aspires to be the Farmers' Pope.

It is obvious that it aims to take away all political initiative from Premier Drury and place it in the hands of the U.F.O. Central Executive. If his ideas run counter to those of the headquarters staff (a wholly irresponsible body so far as the public is concerned), then through the riding executives a resignation of his supporters will be asked, and he will be left without a following. No organization of Grit or Tory heelers in any city of Canada ever dared to contrive such an open assault on the independence of parliament and on the initiative of ministers of the Crown.

The trouble with the proposed machine is that it is too beautiful in its harmonious contrivance of parts to stand the wear and tear of practical application. The first snag it strikes in the shape of a Cabinet minister or member, too firm to get out of the way, it will go smash. — Saturday Night.

WHEN YOU AND I WERE YOUNG, MAGGIE

"Turn backward, turn backward, Oh Time in your flight, make me a boy again just for tonight." So sang the poet, and who among us has not often longed to turn back the Clock of Time to Childhood's happy, carefree days.

You are going to have an opportunity to do so for" Peck's Bad Boy" is coming to recall to you those days of youth.

He brings no serious problems for you to solve—just two hours f fun and youthfulness. He plays all the pranks you used to play as a boy and several new ones young America has invented since that time, for it's many years since you knew "the ole swimmi'n hole," the tree where the largest and sweetest apples hung, and the stream where the trout were biting best. He is surrounded by a bevy of pretty girls, nimble dancers, singers and funny comdians. Two and one-half hours of sane fun with a laugh for every minute, and nary a frown or headache. A show absolutely devoid of vulgarity is the promise of the management. Next Thursday, June 24, is the date of this company's appearance at the Grand Theatre.

TWO GOOD REASONS

Two good economical reasons why you should eat more fish;

It is cheap and nutritious, and provides a thrifty meal.

One of Canada's greatest sources of wealth is her fisheries, and you help develop the industry by eating fish, and you also help to put Canada in a better financial position.

Probably you are not aware how little fish Canadian people use.

Great Britain is one of the greatest fish consuming countries in the world. During 1918 she had a per capita consumption of 58 pounds, and in 1919, it is believed, this was increased to 60 pounds. This means that each individual consumed at the rate of more than one pound per week.

In the United States last year it is estimated by officials at Washington the per capita consumption was 19 pounds. Although little reliance can be placed in this estimate there is no doubt but that the local consumption in the United States has increased greatly in recent years.

A few years ago the per capita consumption in Canada per annum was a matter of ounces. Through the combined efforts of the Canada Food Board and the Fisheries Branch it is estimated that the local consumption at one time reached a point equal to 45 pounds per capita. During 1919 it is estimated the per capita consumption was somewhere between 23 and 25 pounds per annum.

Canada is one of the greatest, if not the greatest, fish producing countries of the world. Why have our people so little faith in fish?

REGISTER IF YOU DESIRE TO VOTE

No one who wishes to exercise the franchise in provincial or Dominion affairs should neglect to register before July 15.

Existing lists are wiped out and only those who re-register will be able to vote in the event of an election or referendum.

Registration is now taking place under the new provincial act and applies to both men and women. Applications may be taken by justices of the peace, postmasters, mayors, aldermen, commissioners for taking affidavits, special commissioners, notaries public, registrars of voters, government agents, assessors and some other officials.

Qualifications are British citizenship, an age of 21 years, six months residence in British Columbia and one months residence in the riding in which registration is desired.

While no date is set for an election it is quite possible that one may be held upon the list which is now being made up. In any event there is to be a vote on the prohibition question—on the issue as to whether the public favors the present act or an amendment providing for government liquor stores. Both those in favor of the present act and those in favor of a change will desire to vote on the referendum. They cannot do so unless they register before July 15.

Register today and there will then be no danger of forgetting. — Nelson News.

KITTY GORDON'S OFFERING TIMELY

At a time when activities for women, women's votes, congresswomen, and women street car conductors are part of daily life United Picture Theatres, Inc., is presenting Kitty Gordon in a superpicture which, while in no sense carrying a mission, is timely in subject and entrancng in its modern day interest. "Playthings of Passion" is a striking story of society and of tenement life and depicts the adventures of a young society woman who interests herself in "uplift" work in the slums. In the end she returns, no longer a mere social butterfly, but with a ripened experience and a broader view of life that reveals itself in a keener sense of the value of home, domesticity and the love of a husband. The beneficial change is brought about in the course of her adventures among the "submerged tenth" by a startling revelation made to her husband which leads to a tremendous sacrifice on the part of the young clergyman who has been her guide, philosopher and friend in the work of uplife and regeneration.

"Playthings of Passion" comes to the Orpheum theatre on Monday and Tuesday next.

BASEBALL

Last Sunday the Baynes Lake boys took the local boys in tow in a loosely fielded game, by the score of 11-6. Fernie fought hard to overcome an 8-0 lead gained in the first two innings by timely hits coupled with costly errors. The outstanding features were the numerous errors, neither pitcher getting any too good support, and poor officiating, which at times turned the diamond into a battle royal, and proved disappointing to the large crowd of fans.

Baynes Lake—Gillis 1 b, Vercho ss, Rossman 3b, Gillis p, Newman cf, Whitey c, Ayre 2b, Moldern rf, Maxwell lf.

Fernie—Dunlap 1b, C. Colton cf, Rist 2b, Mceod rf, R. Colton c, Sullivan 3b, Glover ss, Rushcall lfL, Sofko p.—Umpire, Murray.

Next Sunday, weather permitting, the locals will lock horns with Wardner in their effort to get in shape for the big tournament on July 1. Game is called for 2.30 Also arrangements are being made for a game at Michel during the coming week. The team has received quite a setback with the removal of Private Rist to other fields. However, with several new men in view it is hoped that the team will be strengthened considerably in the near future.

The City baseball league opened up on Wednesday night with the Cubs and Elks in the field. When the smoke cleared away after a see-saw contest the Cubs had nosed the Elks out in a close score of 6-5.

The Summit Lake Lumber Co., operating near Nelson, with which T. Althouse and Wm. Boynton, formerly of Fernie, are connected, has gone into liquidation.

D. McDougall, of the Ingram staff, left on Tuesday for Rochester, Minn., where he will consult Mayo Bros. in regard to some internal trouble from which he has suffered for a long time.

The names of Harold Wilson, T. Uphill and S. Graham are being mentioned in connection with the position of police commissioner. It is also said that Dick Phillips will be a candidate for school trustee.

Egesti Bigantinni, who alleges a man named DePalmer of Fernie attempted to rob him in the Venezia Hotel, and beng frustrated, shot hm, has so far recovered from his wounds to be able to leave the hospital and has gone to Fernie to visit.—Cranbrook Herald.

Tomorrow is nomination day for the positions of police commissioner and two school trustees. No active interest is noticeable among our citizens in the matter. Both positions are very important and an effort should be made to secure good men to fill the vacancies.

The Trans-Canada Theatre Co., Ltd. one of the largest theatrical concerns in Canada, have leased the Grand and C. J. Riley, of Calgary, arrived in the city Tuesday to take over its management. Several large attractions are booked here for the immediate future, the first being for the 22nd and 23rd, "A Night in Honolulu."

YPRES IS YPRES

News of the latest—but not the least—grim discovery in Ypres made one almost afraid to revisit it. And other things added to a certain sense of shrinking.

In Ostend scores of notices proclaim trips to Ypres and the battlefields; and thinking of what the Salient meant, and was, you might well shiver at the evidence that it was become a peep-show, a trippers' paradise, for little vulgarities and petty exactions.

When you reach Ypres you are met with quite enough justification of your tremors; and yet in spite of all, Ypres is still Ypres, with its curious beauty, its atmosphere of fate, its peculiar poignancy. Not even the tripper can smother these things with any more success than the ruins can hide the dead.

Women shove photographs into your face. They seem to compose an abnormal percentage of the 2000 people now living within the walls—some in wooden shanties, some in corridors made of twisted tin on the top of brick, some in botched ruins, just a few in real houses.

There are stalls in the open market. A neat little park garden is already patterned out, close to the station, and trees begin to outline streets that will be boulevards before long. Ypres is to be rebuilt, to become a Flemish city in the old sense, to consist of homes and hotels grouped as before and built on the old foundations.

Yet in spite of these things, including chars-a-bancs crowded with cosmopolitan visitors, I felt as I entered Ypres very much as in the old days when shells always began to fall just as you passed the water-tower with the hole in it.

Not a brick or stone seemed to have shifted on town hall or cathedral. The two rose windows kept the same startling undamaged beauty. I stepped over the same rough stones to peer into the vaults beneath the ramparts which were once divisioal headquarters, and was half inclined to tell the chaffeur to be careful to put the car close against the wall.

Grass and nettles and a tumble of rubbish and the indefiniteness of streets that have no houses beside them—this is still Ypres; and confused by the muddle the driver was not quite sure which was his way to the Menin cafe. The banks of the canal are fallen in and the locks are gone, and the mud bridges—across which I came last on a wounded tank—these are all unchanged except that the bed has rather less water at the bottom or is more overgrown with rush and reed. And when you go outside the walls the trees still stand like broken hop-poles, bare and grey as the ribs of a stranded ship though they try manufully to throw suckers from the relic roots.

The broken tanks have sunk no lower and rusted little more. Trippers wrestle in vain to wrench off souvenirs. Like the walls of the station, stil lpocked with shrapnel holes, even the road surface suggests shell-fire, so that it is well to circumvent Pilken and Hooge and Poelcapelle and the rest, and take the main road by Furnes.

It is true the insistent women, with the hawker's tinsel grin, sell photographs under the Cloth Hall, but the battlefields outside are a land, where "all things always are the same." Some spots are better avoided as of old, for the same reasons. One almost believes sometimes that the earth round Ypres refuses to bury any bit or body of an enemy. So feel many of our 500 soldiers quartered round about and busy with the work of registering graves.

But change is on the wing. British sheep graze round the shell-holes, which are lush with grass. Red roofs dot the country and foundation ditches are dug. Though the Cloth Hall will remain a permanent memorial, Ypres itself will change very quicky. The sites for many new houses are cleared. The State is getting to work. At a particular moment which will be recorded in the annals of the town or hamlet, official reconstruction begins.

As I stopped at Dixmude on the way back the proprietor of a little wooden inn told me with real excitement that the cleaning of Dixmude—a Spring cleaning indeed—was to begin at once. This meant that a gang of state "huosebreakers"—strange word among houses that had known shell-fire—and clearers and reparirers and builders were to arrive. Official reconstruction would begin. In Ypres it has begun. If you would see Ypres as you knew it, see it soon.

PROVED TO BE A FRIEND IN NEED

Mrs. Green Says Tanlac Brought Her Health, Strength and Happiness

Just think of it, only a few weeks ago I was almost a nervous wreck and life was hardly worth living, but now I am a well and strong woman and I feel more grateful than words can express," declared Mrs. E. G. Green, of 158 Melborne Sereet, Collingwood East, Vancouver, B.C., a few days ago.

"A year ago last November I was taken down with a serious case of influenza and I got so bad off that at one time I wasn't expected to live. But after I did finally pull through I was left in such a weakened condition it was an effort for me to move around at all. My appetite was extremely poor and not even the most delicate food appealed to me. My strength and energy seemed to have all left me and I simply felt miserable all the time. Every few days I had fearful headaches and when one of them came on me I wasn't able to stay up and would have to go to bed. Sometimes they lasted for twenty-four hours without letting up and I couldn't stand anyone around me and would have to be left alone in a dark room.

"Not long ago a friend of mine advised me to try Tanlac and I am indeed thankful that I took it because it has certainly proved to be a friend in need.' I have such a splendid appetite now that I want to be eating all the time and everything I eat tastes good and agrees with me perfectly. I seldom have a headache and when I do it is so light I hardly notice it and my sleep is sound and refreshing. I have already gained eight pounds in weight and I am getting stronger every day. Everything around me has brightened up, my housework is a pleasure and life is now worth living. Tanlac has given me health, strength and happiness and I am now convinced that it deserves all the praise that people everywhere are giving it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

BIG MUSICAL SHOW COMING TO THE GRAND

On next Tuesday and Wednesday, June 22 and 23, at the Grand theatre, a big company of 14 people, actors, singers, musicians and dancers come direct from a successful engagement at the Grand Theatre, Calgary, to re-open the Grand Theatre here.

The opening play will be "A Night in Honolulu," a petty musical play of old Hawaii, by Howard Mc. Barnes. It is an interesting and absorbing musical drama very much on the same lines as "A Bird of Paradise."

A troupe of real Native Hawaiians will play and sing their dreamy, wistful music, that wonderful entrancing music that once heard is never forgotten—the most entrancing and satisfying music in the world.

Miss Una Carpenter will offer her artistic dance creations. Miss Carpenter has been accorded a wonderful reception everywhere throughout Canada. The Winnipeg newspapers all acknowledge her as the peer of all Hawaiian dancers. The Winnipeg Free Press said: "Miss Carpenter is without a doubt the best in her own peculiar style that ever came to Winnipeg. She is both an artist and a dancer and will long be remembered."

On Wednesday night the company will offer a big musical comedy "The Rose of Panama," a funny side splitting comedy full of singing, dancing and good clean comedy, pretty girls in gorgeous costumes, good singing, and the famous Hawaiians in an entirely new program of instrumental and vocal music.

The cast of actors include Una Carpenter, June Rose, Frances Dowling, Hazel Baker, Lester Al Smith, Milton Goodhand, Russell Huffman, Randell Noreu and Thos. Keeney.

This company comes to Fernie under the direction of the Trans-Canada Theatrical circuit and is hhighly recommended and guaranteed.

"WHAT'S YOUR HUSBAND DOING?"

Doris May and Douglas McLean will be the attraction at the Orpheum theatre on Friday and Saturday in a screen version of the stage play, "What's Your Husband Doing?" The picture is described as a rollicking comedy about young husbands and wives and a grand mix-up at a lively roadhouse.

Miss May has the role of Beatrice Ridley, newly married and suspicious of the notes which her husband gets every morning from "Honeysuckle Inn." She consults Douglas MacLean, in the role of John Widgast, a lawyer, and they resolve to investigate. In the meantime, the wives of Widgast and Pidgeon, his partner, have become jealous of the divorce business which their spouses find necessary to talk over with pretty co-respondents and other designing creatures.

The real reason for young Ridley's letters are that he owns a share in the Inn and is trying to sell it out. On the same evening that he goes to close the deal, taking Pidgeon with him to draw up the papers, Widgast and the lawyers' wives and Beatrice also appear at the roadhouse. And to cap the climax, the place is raided by the police. Matters are cleared up the next morning in a police court in a most amusing fashion.

The film, which was produced by Thos. H. Ince, is said to provide a fine vehicle for these youthful stars, who have already established themselves in high favor with screen fans.

— and this is the greatest surface saver of them all.

LOSS from paint-neglect is vastly greater than the cost of paint-protection. But it is to be noted also that the real cost of using ordinary paint—however cheap it may be—is vastly greater than that of painting with a pure and durable paint such as

If you would avoid constant repainting—if you would have the paint that has maximum covering-capacity, investigate the cause of the high reputation attained by B-H. You'll find that the favor in which it is held by so many experienced painters is due to a truly remarkable degree of purity—a purity attained by using such ingredients as the famous Brandram's Genuine B.B. White Lead—together with pure zinc and the purest linseed we know how to make in our own splendidly-equipped mills. Your investigation will result in a trial of this brand—and that trial will make you a confirmed adherent of this paint that goes so far and that lasts so long. Its fine, smooth surface never cracks or peels—the tough, air-tight coat it gives affords the surest kind of surface-protection against time and weather.

REPORTS TO I.O.D.E.

the War Memorial Committee, which position she had occupied as a Life Member, this was pessed by a standing vote, with only Lady Kingsmill voting against it. A very small faction refused to vote or take any part in the dscussion, but as it is customary in such an event for those to retire from the floor, their presence could not be taken into consideration.

The retirement of Mrs. Geo. Smith as National Educational Secretary, as a result of the trouble, was the only disappointment.

The balance of the morning session and the entire afternoon sesson was consumed by the reading of reports.

At the close of the meeting the President's address was given, but as this beautiful address is to be printed and sent out to the Chapters it will be useless to quote extracts from it. After the session was closed a reception at the Country Club by invitation of Mrs. Melvin, Regent of Municipal Chapter of Calgary, was given, and an address by Mrs. Murphy (Janey Canuck) in the evening rounded out a busy day.

Wednesday after the minutes of the previous meeting were ratified, the names of the Life Members were read out and voted on. The meeting then proceeded with the amendments. As the amendments that were carried are to be included in a new Constitution, the redraft to the Constitution not having been considered, it will be useless to dwell upon them. But the drafting of a new Constitution is a slow procedure and it occupied much time that might otherwise have been given to more interesting subjects.

Individual members are no longer to be included as a part of the membership; boys and girls both may become members of Junior Chapters.

Proxy voting is consdered delegated voting and is allowed, but for a time it seemed as if the vote of the Life member might be taken away.

At the appointed hour of 4 o'clock on Wednesday the election of Councillors took place and proceeded with much formality. As each voters' name was called by the National Treasurer she went forward to the platform, where ab allot 18 inches wide by 24 inches long was handed to her by the scrutineers. If more than one vote was to be polled she was asked if she wished a separate ballot for each vote, otherwise the number of votes was recorded at the top of the ballot. where a ballot 18 inches wide by 24 ed considerable care and as some members asked for separate ballots for each vote, those who had to fill out from 36 to 42 ballots must have fund it quite a task.

Each morning the minutes of the previous day had to be read and generally corrected before it could be read, which caused Miss McGaffin, the Asst. Secretary, long hours of work after the meetings were adjourned. She showed such wonderful patience at all times that those who had the privilegee of contributing to a Life Membership in the National Chapter for her in recognition of her long service as Asst. Secy., as well as having to act in the capacity of National Secretary for the past year, did so with much pleasure.

During the afternoon session on Thursday, Miss Lang gave a very comprehensive report on Educational Work and explained fully the scheme of the War Memorial, which subjects will be dealt with fully by Mrs. Wood, our Educational Secretary and she will probably include in her report an outline of the splendid address on "Educaton, Its Relationship to Citizenship," given on Thursday evening by Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, of Regina.

Among the resolutions brought in by the Resolutions Committee was one asking the members of the Order to pledge themselves not to purchase any of W R. Hearst's publications and to do all in their power to prevent them for being sold in Canada, which was carred without any discussion. The list as presented included the Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, American Motor Magazine, American Boating Magazine, Harper's Bazaar, New York American, New York Evening Journal, New York German Journal, Chicago American, Chicago Examiner, San Francisco Examiner, Los Angeles Examiner, Boston American, Boston Advertiser, Atlanta Georgian.

Another resolution which had been passed by the National Executive in January was read by the committee, which shows that the Order considers it to be the duty of all those who call themselves Daughters of the Empire to rally to their country's side in the "Buy in Canada" movement, and they are urged to purchase whenever possible, articles of clothing, food or other necessities of life which are manufactured or grown in Canada or some part of the British Empire, and the National Executive is to frame a resolution later asking the members to observe this order for a period of ten days or one month.

A resolution in regard to military training of all citizens in peace time was passed; alo one aking the government to contnue the suspenion of the embargo on oleomargarine.

A resolution asking the government to authorize one version of 'O Canada' which had not been taken up at the last annual meeting, was again not acted on as the resolution was not considered properly signed.

The meeting decided to continue the publication of Echoes but considerable discussion occurred as to what form it should take. Some would have the price increased and have it published monthly; others suggested that the price might be reduced and that the Chapters either subscribe for all their members or increase the yearly fee and include the magazine. A circulation of 50,000 was the object of the Echoes Committee but it seemed impossible to reach any conclusion and the question was left for the National Executive to solve.

After the scrutineers' report was announced and as those who had been elected were retiring to elect the National officers, Mrs. Bruce asked that her resignation from the National Executive be accepted as she could not sit in council with those who had refused a vote of confidence in Mrs. Gooderham's administration, of which she had been the treasurer. Mrs. Bruce had been treasurer of the Natonal Chapter for 19 years and had never made a mistake and had never missed a meeting.

The result of the election of officers was expected before the close of the meeting Friday, but they could not agree and a second meeting had to be called for Saturday morning.

It was planned that the work of the convention shold end Saturday morning but there still remained so much unfinished business that another session had to be called for the afternoon, even with the extra time there remained many amendments and resolutions had to be left for the next annual meeting.

Toronto invited the National Chapter to meet there next year and their invitation was graciously acceped.

Before the conventon closed a vote of thanks was moved to the Municipal Chapter of Calgary, the Provincial Chapter of Alberta, the Municipal Chapter of Edmonton, the Canadian Club and to all other hostesses who had made the delegates comfortable while in the city.

Just before the close of Saurday morning's session the announcement was made that the National Officers had been elected and when Lieut. Joan Arnoldi, the newly elected President, entered the hall, the delegates rose and applauded. She was welcomed to the platform by Mrs. Bruce, and her address, though brief, was appealing. In the course of her address she said "to me the Order stands for all the ideals for which our glorious men fought and died, and if we can stand steadfast we shall prove ourselves worthy the sacrifices they made for the Empire we love," and it is felt that with her guiding influence the ideals of the Order wll not be lightly thrown aside. The officers elected are as follows:

National President—Miss Joan Arnoldi.

1st Vice-President—Mrs. Thompson Graham.

2nd Vice-President—Mrs. Angus McMurchy.

3rd Vice-President — Mrs. E. B. Johnson.

4th Vice-President—Mrs. McDougall.

5th Vice-President—Lady Pope.

6th Vice-President—Mrs. Boyle.

Secretary—Mrs. S. Martin.

Treasurer—Mrs. Hamilton Burns.

Organizing Sec.—Mrs. John A. Stewart.

Educational Sec—Miss Lang.

Standard Bearer—Miss Ives.

The delegates were not allowed any dull moments while in Calgary. Besides the entertainments already mentioned an evening reception was given by the Canadian Club on Wednesday, while the Municipal Chapter of Calgary entertained at the Palliser Hotel on Friday evening. The music was delightful and such social events are conducive to good feeling as it gives an opportunity for the members to become acquainted. The invitation from the Municipal Chapter of Edmonton to visit their city had to be declined owing to lack of time but the trip to Banff, where the Mt. Rundle Chapter gave a luncheon for 125 delegates, and the Munilipal Chapter of Calgary invited them to dinner at the Banff Springs Hotel, must have been a revelation to those members from the east who had never seen this wonderful playground of Canada.

The following is part of the report on Educational Work, given last Saturday by Mrs. R. W. Wood, one of the delegates to the National I.O.D.E. meeting in May, held in Calgary:

In order to perpetuate the memory of the men and women who gave their lives in defence of the Empire in the Great War, the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire has planned a War Memorial which should be of great educational value to the youth of Canada Its leading features are Bursaries in Canadian Universities, Post Graduate Scholarships in British Universities, the placing of Historical Pictures and Libraries in Schools.

Bursaries in Canadian Universities—

1. Nine Bursaries—one for each Province—will be offered for a period of 18 years. For these, only the sons and daughters of deceased and permanently disabled soldiers and sailors and men of the Air Force are eligible.

2. These Bursaries will be of the value of $250 per annum, tenable for four years, provided that the holder passes in due order the successive examinations of each year.

3. The claim to compete for these Bursaries will be decided in each Province by a Committee of Selection, consisting of the three members of the I.O.D.E., who represent the Province on the National War Memorial Committee, and two or more educationists chosen by the I.O.D.E. members.

4. In selecting the candidates the Committee of Selection will take into consideration their general record and standing in High School, Collegiate Institute, etc., and the circumstances of their family.

5. Candidates will be selected before June 1st, 120—thereafter, before fore June 1st, 1920—thereafter, before May 1st.

6. The candidates selected by the Committee will write the Junior Pass Matriculation examination in June, and the Bursaries will be awarded on the basis of the marks obtained at that examination. In the event of two candidates in a Province gaining the same number of marks, the I.O.D.E. representatives will reserve the right to make the award.

7. Announcement of the award will be made early in September.

8. In the event of there being no applicant for the Bursary in any one Province, and conversely, if there be an additional applicant in any other Province, it will be within the power of the Special Committee to award the Bursary to this applicant.

9. The choice of a University will be left to the scholar.

10. These Bursaries may be tenable with other University Scholarships.

11.Every candidate for a Bursary is resuired to furnish to the Provincial Committee of Selection not later than June 1st, 1920, and afterwards April 1st, the following:

a. A certificate of age.

b. Certified evidence as to the fact that he or she is the son or daughter of a deceased or permanently disabled soldier or sailor or member of the Air Force.

c. A written statement from the Principal of the School he or she has attended as to good character and industry, also that his or her application as a candidate is approved.

d. A written statement as to his or her purpose in taking a University course.

e. References to not more than three responsible persons whose addresses must be given in full, and of whom one must be a teacher under whom he or she has studied.

Application blanks are obtainable by eligible candidates from the undersigned, who will also be glad to furnish any additional information desired.

Mrs. J. L. Boynton, Education Secretary for Province of B.C.

1. The Committee of Selection in each Province shall consist of the three members of the I.O.D.E. who represent the Province on the National War Memorial Committee (i.e., in organized Provinces, of the Regent, Educational Secretary, and one member elected by the Province, the Educational Secretary to be Convener; in unorganized Provinces, of the three elected representatives who will select their own convener) assisted by two or more educationists who shall be chosen by the I.O.D.E. members.

In making this choice, it should be remembered that the function of the Committee of Selection is twofold—1st, to select candidates for Bursaries in Canadian Universities 2nd, to select candidates for Post Graduate Scholarships in British Universities. For the first, Principals of Schools or members of their staff would be most suitable, and for the second, members of a University Faculty—not necessarily the President.

On the basis of $100,000—the sum set aside for Bursaries in Canadian Universities at the War Memorial Meeting, 9 Bursaries of the value of $250 each can be offered annually for a period of 18 years:

9 Bursaries at $250 per year each in 1921—9 Bursaries.

9 Bursaries at $250 per year each in 1922 plus 9 of 1921—18 Bursaries.

9 Bursaries at $250 per year each in 1923 plus 9 of 1921 plus 9 of 1922—

9 Bursaries at $250 per year each in 27 Bursaries.

1924 plus 9 of 1921 plus 9 of 1922 plus 9 of 1923—36 Bursaries.

And for the following 14 years, 36 scholars each year will be supported. In other words, from 1923, there will be 36 holders of I.O.D.E. Bursaries in attendance at Canadian Colleges or Universities, which will take $100,000 using both principal and interest.

The results of the Junior Pass Matriculation are published in alphabetical order in the Press during the month of August. It will then be necessary for the Committee of Selection to obtain from the Provincial Department of Education the marks of selected candidates and award the Bursares as early in September as possible.

In the event of there being fewer candidates than Bursaries offered, or in case a scholar does not finish his or her course, the Bursary money shall revert to the General War Memorial Fund.

The largest Bursary given by Toronto University is $270.

Of the $220,000 to date raised, $100,000 will be set aside for Overseas Scholarships. The selection of candidates for I.O.D.E. Scholarships will take place in each province in the Dominion in the mont hof November each year, beginning this year. The candidates may be either men or women, must be British subjects, having been residents of Canada at least five years, must be between ages of 19 and 27, unmarried, must hold a degree or be in the final year preceding a degree. The committee in making the selection of candidates will not only consider the scholastic attainments but also his or her personal character, physical fitness, aims and ideals in life. These scholarships will each be of a value of $1400 per annum, tenable for one year.

With every $100,000 raised 36 more scholarships will be awarded.

The matter of furnshing means for the children of soldiers to obtain secondary education in order that they might take advantage of the scholarships offered, was discussed at some length. While this could not be undertaken as part of the War Memoral scheme, it was pointed out that individual Chapters might, and in some cases have, made themselves responsible for the educaton of one or more such children.

It was pointed out that the War Memorial scheme has made great progress during the year. Quoting from a debate on Alien Immigrants and Canadian citizenship recently held in the House of Commons at Ottawa, the president stated that a member had gven the following testimony: "Perhaps no organization in the country has made more genuine effort to do something for the Canadian foreign born than the I.O.D.E. I am glad on this occasion to be able to say a word on behalf of this society and to commend the splendid efforts that it has made during recent years to bring under the influence of our Canadian life and spirit the young people of our country." The War Memorial, in the opinion of the speaker has first claim upon the effort and the financal resources of all members of the order.

STRANDED BRITISH WOMEN STARVING IN GERMANY

A heart-rending cry for help for British women whose misfortune it is to be the wives of Germans comes to England from one of their number in Wurtemburg.

In a tearful letter received by a King's Cross family from a sister, she says conditions are now "ten times worse than ever."

"We are really starving," the writer proceeds. "If you were to see the poor kiddies and me—we are only skin and bone. Please do not send any money, because we cannot buy any food, only black, hard bread and potatoes, black flour full of grit and dirt, and oats with the shells which we cannot eat.

"For three weeks now we have lived on potatoes boiled in the skins with sour milk for dinner, and hard sour bread for breakfast, tea and supper; no tea, no coffee, no cocoa. The bread is sour because the dough is not made with yeast.

"This is the worst time of my life. We are homeless, hungry and shoeless—destitute, and no one here will help us British-born wives and children. They say they must help their own first because there is much poverty here in Germany.

"If you can, send me some rice, golden syrup, semolina, and some dripping in a tin. Just post it off. Do not register anything. Don't send money; the shops are empty.

"I expect to be home soon, but I must wait until the revolution cools down a bit because they think nothing of setting fire to the trains, and if the soldiers are called out, the machine guns are turned on the people.

"I have sold my wedding ring towards my fare to Holland. I have written to the British consul stating my case, and asked him to pay my fare from Holland to London."

The writer evidently is driven to desperation in her despair, since she adds:

"If the British consul won't pay the fare I shall ride to Holland and then be left in the streets destitute. Then he must send me back to England. The German government will do nothing. The Germans are real brutes, rotten to the core, and they have proved it from beginning to end."

The letter concludes with a request that it shall be sent with the envelope, to prove that it comes from Germany, to the press, "to do for us British wives and children what they can, because the Germans are letting us all starve to death."

DECLARES WAR ON ONE BIG UNION

Montreal, June 15.—The building trades organizations of the federation at a meeting here today declared war on the One Big Union of Canada. They decided to send representatives from each of the 20 international unions of the building trades department into Winnipeg, to open the campaign.

The One Big Union movement in Vancouver, Montreal and other cities will also be fought by similar methods.

Officials of the building trades union said that it had been decided to revoke charters of all local unions that failed to oust One Big Union members. New locals will be formed wherever a charter is withdrawn.

As the One Big Union has not 'made much progress' in the United States, it was stated, little attention will be given the situation there at the present time.

"LUCK IN PAWN"

The familiar story of the country girl who aspires to be a great artist is given a brand new twist in "Luck in Pawn," Marguerite Clark's latest Paramount-Artcraft picture, which will be the attraction at the Orpheum for Friday and Saturday. Generally in fiction the aspiring heroine wins immortal fame with a masterpiece just as she is about to succumb to starvation. "Luck in Pawn" treats the situation in a much more true to life and pleasant manner. Annabel Lee, the pretty heroine, played by Miss Clark, is a country girl whose mother has paid for her art training by considerable sacrifice. Annabel is informed by a noted painter that her talent is infinitesimal and is feeling pretty blue when a bored young millionaire, attracted by her unaffected clothes and ingenious manner strikes up an acquaintance with her. The pretty love story that follows, with its rather startling ending, is said to furnish a thoroughly entertaining comedy picture in Miss Clark's best manner.

COUNCIL HOLDS TWO SESSIONS

On Monday evening a lengthy session of the council was held and in the absence of His Worship, Ald. McEwan presided. The chief matter for consideration was the proposed contract with the B.C. & Alberta Power Co. with the city for the supply of hydro-electric power, and in this connection some objection was raised to the thre phase system recommended by the company instead of the obsolete two phase system now in use. It was explained by Mr. Donald, secretary and general manager of the company, that it would ultimately be a greater advantage to the city to incur the additional expense to make the suggested change at this time when the cost would be the minimum. It was further pointed out that the three phase system was now more or less universal and difficulty might be encountered by adhering to the two phase system in securing renewals and repairs for equipment. Further, this city was the only party with whom the company were contemplating contracts that appeared to at all favor continuing with the two phase as all other contracts concluded or in course of negotiation, approved of the changing to the modern three phase system. A representative of the Canadian Westinghouse Co., the large manufacturers of electrical equipment, was present and explained that the actual cost of re-connecting or re-winding the 17 old motors in use here would be less than $1000, and this together with the installation of a purely power line system seperate from the lighting system and a complete overhauling of the outside wiring system, would not exceed $3500. After further lengthy discussion relating to certain details in connection with operation and the assurance by the representative of the company that they were prepared to co-operate and lend every assistance in the matter of advancing the interests of the city and the possible inducing of other power consumers to locate here, it was unanimously decided to accept the agreement.

Three applications for licenses under the Beverage License Bylaw were submitted, but as the chief of police reported that none of these establishments had strictly complied with the regulations he could not approve of them. The council accordingly declined to act on them until such time as the chief reported favorably on them.

The regular meeting of the council was held last evening.

In view of the anticipated greater cost in making juice, a forecast was made that the light rates will be advanced a cent per kilowatt. This is due to a marked increase in wages to power house employees and intimation from the Coal Co. that coal would shortly be advanced from 25c to 40c per ton.

The proposed contract for hydro-electric power with the B.C. & Alberta Power Co., will be submitted to D. M. Mitchell, as solicitor for the city, to have a proper legal contract drafted and a bylaw submitted to the ratepayers for final ratification.

The Chief of Police as Beverage License inspector, reported that the Imperial hotel had now made those premises satisfactory and recommended that the license be granted. Two other local establishments so far have not strictly complied with the requirements under the by-law and until the necessary requirements are complied with the sale of beverages will not be permitted.

A draft scavenging bylaw was taken up but was referred back to committee for further consideration.

The city clerk will receive an increase in salary of $25 per month and the city engineer $15 per month.

The fire, water and light committee will go into the matter of amending the power and light rates to meet increased expenditures.

A CHAPTER ON WHISKEY

In the stipendiary magistrate's court recently a man giving the name of W. Murphy alias C. Partin, appeared in answer to several charges. He was first taken into custody at Elko, where he raised a disturbance in a Chinese restaurant and wrecked things in general, and it was shortly thereafter discovered that he was in possession of an automobile containing sixteen cases of whiskey. Further investigation disclosed that he had crossed into Canada from Montana without reporting to the authorities, and upon being searched it was found he carried a large calibre revolver. He was charged first with committing serious mischief and raising a disturbance, but upon payment in full for the damage done at the restaurant this charge was withdrawn. He, however, was required to face three additional charges, viz., Having intoxicating liquor in other than a private dwelling house; carrying concealed weapons, and, under the Immigration Act, crossing the International boundary by stealth. The Dodge car was also seized by the customs officials and held for payment of duty. In all Murphy, or Partin, was fined $255, and the automobile seized pending investigation by the Department of Customs.

The sixteen cases of liquor were also confiscated and upon being brought to this city it was discovered each and every case bore an address on the label of J. Woodyga, Bethune Avenue. From this the city police opened an inquiry and from the records of the express company it was learned Woodyga had signed within a reasonably recent period for eighty cases of liquor. A search warrant was taken out and Woodyga's residence searched, but only three cases of liquor were found there. The city authorities immediately laid a charge under the Prohibition Act against Woodyga for having liquor for the purpose of sale and this case is now proceeding in the police magistrate's court. This is based upon the fact that some sixty cases are to be accounted for as only 19 have been seized all told, while 80 were receipted for. In evidence for the prosecution Constable Clarkston testified to a statement made to him by the accused that he, the accused, had been requested by a local hotel proprietor to allow the liquor to come in in accused's name, and although he feared this might cause him to get into trouble with the authorities, he had upon arrival of the liquor merely signed the receipt and that is all he knows about it.

Still another episode bearing upon the complications arising from the arrest of Murphy or Partin at Elko, came to light when the owner of the Fernie Garage proceeding to work early in the morning discovered the Dodge car which had been seized by the customs officials and stored in his garage, in the alley at the rear of the establishment. It was then found that during the night the garage had been broken into and by making some emergency connections with the ignition, the car was driven out of the rear of the garage. However, the authorities had taken precautionary measures to frustrate just such an attempt by removing the fastenings of one of the rear wheels and taking out some bearings, as a result of which the car only travelled a very short distance when the wheel came off and the car rendered helpless as a self-propelled vehicle and the thieves were completely balked.

Later—Woodgya was fined $300.00 and costs with the three cases of liquor seized returned to the custody of the accused. By what method of reasoning does one man get fined $100 and $15,000 worth of liquor confiscated, and another man fined $300 with a paltry three cases of bourbon?

CIVIC OFFICES ARE FILLED

The election for school trustees and police commissioner, which took place on Wednesday of this week, passed off very quietly, only about half the available votes being polled. Harold Wilson was elected commissioner over S. Graham by a majority of 12, and A. Cummings and R. Phillips were elected trustees. Following was the vote:

Police Commissioner

Sam. Graham	148

DOMINION DAY CELEBRATION

Work is progressing well in the Park. There is still much to be done, however, and the committee would much appreciate some further voluntary assistance on Monday and Tuesday evenings next week.

The arena is being fixed up and seats will be on sale next week. We would ask the tolerance of those who have already applied for ringside seats. These reservations have been noted and will soon be allotted.

Word has been received from an independent source that Burns is training hard at the Vancouver Athletic Club and is in good shape. One enthusiast wants to wager $100 that Burns will win. Burns and Frank Pete will arrive Sunday.

McCarthy is in strict training at Seattle and is due to arrive here on Sunday, together with his manager and Irvin Gleason of Portland. Arrangements have been made for training quarters in town.

It is interesting to remember that Burns won the lightweight championship from Johnny O'Leary, afterwards losing the title from O'Leary in a 15-round bout at Vancouver. Since losing the title Burns has had several bouts and has never been beaten, and moreover he has never yet been knocked out in his long ring career. McCarthy has beaten the best of his class in Canada and is a real contender for the lightweight title. The winner of the Gleason-Pete ten round affair has been promised a bout at Saskatoon on July 12 next.

The latest in the football line is that Cranbrook will place a team in competition for the Crahan Cup and gold medals. We now have at least five football clubs competing.

Eureka is expected here to play baseball and entries have been received from Wardner, Wycliffe and Baynes, which, with the local team, will mean five teams for baseball.

Word was received this morning that a special train would be run from Hillcrest to Fernie, to leave here on its return late in the evening.

The G.N. train will be held here until 12 midnight for the accommodation of those returning to the south country.

Providing the weather man is kind this Dominion Day celebration will be a hummer, and we expect the largest crowd we ever had to cater to.

DO NOT LIKE DEFEAT

The following letter from the Secretary of the O.B.U. has been handed to us for publication. What he hopes to gain by such a statement is hard to understand. We do not need to take the U.M.W. of A. figures for the vote, as we know positively that over three hundred miners have signed the U.M.W. of A. check-off in Fernie. If they did not vote on the agreement it was because of the system of intimidation which the O.B.U. officials have been practicing. The figures as given out by the U.M.W. of A. for Fernie, and we have no reason to believe they were false, were: 105 for, 3 against and 1 spoiled ballot.

Editor Fernie Free Press.

Sir—Owing to the many lies put in circulation by the U.M.W. of A. organizers concerning the ballot on the proposed agreement, we deem it necessary to notify the public of the true facts concerning the number of votes cast. Our representative counted all ballots put in the box; 37 in all were counted. The above will show that the miners of Fernie have no desire to belong to an alien organization. The above figures were admitted to be facts by one of their local officials.

Signed, G. G. Sawyer, Sec. O.B.U.

W. J. BOWSER GIVES ADDRESS

W. J. Bowser, leader of the Oppositionsition, visited Fernie on Tuesday evening of this week, when he addressed an informal gathering of about sixty supporters in the offices of Herchmer & Graham.

Mr. Bowser described the government as about at the end of its financial tether. Hon. John Hart, he said, went east to borrow $4,000,000, but returned with only $2,000,000. The eastern financiers wre shutting down on this province because of the government's profligate expenditures to which there was no limit.

In addition to having lost the confidence of the financial men, and injured the credit of the province by piling up the debt, the opposition leader said the government had estranged investors, by its Dolly Varden legislation, which removed the protection of the courts from invested capital. The result of this was that the development of the resources of the province would be greatly hampered.

It was the custom of the government to blame the preceding administration for the way the debt was mounting up but, asked Mr. Bowser, did the preceding government raise the salary list from $1,664,000 in 1916 to $3,202,280 in 1920? This was the party that had criticised his government for war-governing the country. One fairly stumbled over civil servants these days. With a suffered revenue of $12,000,000, salaries alone took one-quarter of the total, against 5 per cent in Alberta.

This was a fair sample of a government's system of administration, and no further explanation was needed as to why it was in difficulties.

Premier Oliver always started out his speeches defending the government by alleging that his predecessors had $8,000,000 in the treasury and dissipated it. "That $8,000,000," said Mr. Bowser, "came from the sale of the public domain. This money belonged to the people, and we gave it back to the people in public assets—roads, trails, bridges, schoolhouses—that are still monuments to the constructive and precedent administration of that government. We are accused of having been speculators and optimists. We would have been recreant to our duty if we had not been optimists. It was an era of development, speculation and optimism. All were tarred with it. Our policy was to develop the province and if we sinned, we sinned in good company.

But political shortenings, for which that administration had been duly punished by the people, could not excuse the Oliver government, Mr. Bowser continued, and it could not continue to justify itself by post-mortems. People lived in the present,

ELKO NOTES

(By Fred Roo)

The beautiful weather of last week brought out the tourists by the dozens and camping outfits of every description passed through the Old Historic Burg and made business for everybody. Jim Thistlebeak says it's the outside money that builds up the town. So come down to Elko. Come and see the Elk River Canyon in flood. There are two and a half miles of the most beautiful scenery in the Dominion of Canada. This canyon is featured in that beautiful folder entitled "The Canadian Rockies," published by the Associated Boards of Trade of South East Kootenay. "How To See the Canadian Rockies" via the South Eastern British Columbia motor route.

Elko is the gateway to the famous Tobacco Plains, 25 miles north of the International boundary line, the home of the big red apple, and scenery that gives you something to write home to your auntie about.

The Coal Creek Operatic Society was in Elko on Sunday and gave some splendid selections to a large audience in the Columbia hotel parlors.

Miss Margery Broley, who arrived from Victoria for a visit with her parents at the Rainbow Lumber Co., Roosville valley, entertained a few friends to a motor drive to Elko on Sunday.

Jang Fang, of the Jang Bang Kindling Wood Co., and proprietor of the Rhinoceros Eating Corral in Elko, was a Fernie visitor last week.

Master Theodore Swanson, Master Richard Hirtz, Misses Bertha Swanson, Edna Gallagher and E. Neldrett left Elko for Fernie to write at the entrance examinations. We sincerely hope they will not accrue the strike bug with their other accomplishments.

Black, brown and grizzly bears can be seen every day from the main street in Elko, basking in the magic sunshine. Fred Spalding and Jack Harrington were down last week to get permission to fence them in for the benefit of tourists travelling through, but the high cost of living prevented the townspeople from offering to finance their meal ticket.

Press reports from Ottawa undoubtedly show that our belated legislators have been sitting up at night. We believe they're working over time to tax the poor all right. Some talked while others slept, and the chief result was the loss of many tempers and a frightful waste of gas. If children who are hungry sigh, if others who are cold complain, no guilt lies in my conscience, I have never wronged them for my gain. But knowing how they weep at night, when all is dark and cold and bare, I wonder if I have the right to let myself forget the care.

Flour, sugar and everything is climbing beyond the reach of the working man. Will the ministry of food let us know who is controlling these articles. We only want to know —no harm.

Mrs. Ronald Hewat, of Fernie, was down to Elko last week wishing her Elko friends good bye before leaving Fernie for Kaslo, B.C., where Mr. Hewat is government agent.

Jim Thistlebeak said at a meeting of the Queen Bees the other day, that no man allows himself to be henpecked unless he is chicken hearted.

Last Saturday night there was a reunion of the Elko cutups and the Old Historic Burg was open to the world, no one barred. Francis Sawyer, no relation to Tom of pious memory, came in from Montana, where they never have the blues, where the captain kills the colonel and the colonel kills the booze. Earl Holbrook, the first white child born in Elko, came in from Washington. Earl is the best left handed ball tosser Elko ever had. Phil Broster, veterinary surgeon for the Adolph Motor Truck Co., Baynes Lake. Lockie Kennedy, buzz-saw juggler from one of the big mill plants at Seattle. Chris Foisy, Secretary of the Lewbrication Dept., with Doctor Fields of France, the King pin of the bunch of Gee-ruselem, but he's some pumpkins, and a great friend of Gen. Currie's. By the Brooklyn bridge, Charlie Sawyer drifted in from the U.S. shipyards with tales of high finance, and the closing down of all the big industries at the coast pending the re-election of Grandma Wilson. Charlie says it's so dry in the coast cities 15 feet from shore that you can't even buy a Jerusalem cocktail or a pink elephant. Everyone was glad to get back to Elko and fill up on doughnuts and pie—great stuff. The town boys gave them a great reception and on Sunday some went fishing, some motor riding, while some stayed at home and helped chase the old black cow out of the garden.

CALIFORNIA MOVIE GIRLS COMING TO THE GRAND

A bevy of stunning bathing beauties, all well known in the picture studios of California, are coming to Fernie for a one day appearance at the Grand theatre on Thursday next.

These film favorites have been picked from scores who wished to leave the arduous work of the studios for a vacation tour of Canada. They are about the most perfectly formed specimens of athletic girlhood that have ever been combined in one company. Unlike some of the "personally appearing" movie favorites, who can neither sing, dance nor act, these versatile little maidens not only possess their share of good looks but are capable artists and each contributes her share to the performance. Their various acts range all the way from artistic interpretation of classic dances to peppy jazz numbers. Special scenery and electric effects are carried and the costuming is said to be gorgeous. Paul Robinson, famous as a comedian with the Universal Film Co., heads the show and his winning smile has twice the kick when you see him in person that it registered in the side splitting comedies we have all seen him on the screen.

"THE VARMINT!"

Every keeper and every man who has spent many seasons in the hunting field will tell you that the cunning of the fox has not been exaggerated. Some maintain stoutly that he reasons and deliberately plans methods of evading hounds.

Those who know tell of hard-pressed foxes which have doubled on their tracks, following their former footsteps closely for some distance, and then taking a wide leap aside to the leeward of their path, concealing themselves in a ditch or deep fursow. Hounds racing up on the hot scent suddenly find themselves at fault and while casting to find anew the wily one slinks off to safety unless viewed.

Tales have been told of beaten foxes which have come across a comrade, and apparently persuaded it to take up the running in full view of the field, while the tired one hides until danger is past.

Such an example occurred not far from Ranmore during a hunt with the Surrey Union several seasons ago. A very tired fox was observed creeping along the side of a road through a wood. He was joined by a vixen from the covert and for a few minutes they jogged along together as if in converse. The vixen then turned back in their tracks for some distance, crossing and re-crossing the line. Returning to where the hunted fox had been left she made off at top speed in an opposite direction to the beaten one.

In a few minutes the pack came up and at first undecided which scent to follow, finally took up the new one while the observer could see the tired fox slowly slinking away hidden by a hedgerow.

There is a remarkabe story of a fox which used a railway train to outwit the packs.

The Fitzwilliam hounds were close on the heels of their quarry as he approached the line as a train was coming up. He deliberately got on the metals and ran ahead the pack being hastily called off for fear of accident. Just as the train reached the fox he was seen to lie down and let it pass over him and no sooner had it gone than he was up and off, disappearing before the hounds could get on terms again. Foxes have been known to take refuge in a poultry house, and one in Warwickshire hid in the works of a stable clock. He ran into the yard and disappeared, the hounds close behind showed a desire to climb the roof, some actually doing so until the pack was called off for fear some might fall. Later, when a man went to wind the clock, Reynard's vanishing trick was explained.

Captain Burn-Hartopp, one time master of the Quorn, told of another fox which took to a stable-yard from which there was no escape. Though hounds were close upon him he showed no perturbation, but made for a corner enclosed by a brick wall topped by a wire fence. Up came the pack in a body but before he could be seized Reynard sprang on the back of a hound and up to the wires and over.

A sporting magazine once related a more marvellous story of how a cunning fox evaded hounds. While following a path across a field a clergyman heard hounds in the neighborhood, and soon afterwards saw them in an adjacent field. A minute or two later he saw a fox coming from the hedge and making towards him. To his surprise it came close up, and followed at his heels like a dog. In the meantime hounds had reieived a check, and seemed undecided which way to go.

The huntsman looked over the hedge, but only noticing a dog apparently following a parson, cast off in another direction. No sooner were hounds well away than the fox took to his heels in the opposite direction.

THE MENNONITES

The report that 8000 Mennonites are about to leave Manitoba and go to one of the southwestern states, where they expect to have more liberty of conscience is probably exaggerated. The Mennonites have had greater concessions and immunities in Canada than any such body will ever receive in future. They will find obligations of citzenshp will find obligations of citizenship imposed on them by the state to which they go. They can not dwell as an isolated and independent people in the midst of an organized community. Granted that their citizenship is in heaven their dwelling is on earth, where also some claims of citizenship have been recognized by most godly men. Mennonites have not failed to claim and receive the benefits that national and local organization gives. Even though they may not make much use of the schools they accept national protection to their life and property, they make use of the public utilities, they sell and buy in markets which have been established by the community, they get rich in the same way as those whose citizenship is in this world. If they go away they will have the privilege of selling their lands at a high price.

Before five years we shall hear complaints from them in their new home. They will charge that faith has not been kept with them by the state authorities, that they are not allowed to live their own life but are called upon to conform to the institutions of their country. But as a matter of fact the majority of them will stay where they are, in opposition to the orders of their ecclesiastical authorities. They have prospered in Manitoba, especially in the last five years, in which they have been exempt from military service, but have received war prices for their products while freer than most other Canadians from the high cost of living.

TONGUES OF QUEBEC

The Hamilton Canadian Club, from which all other Canadian clubs have sprung, frequently shows a commendable leadership in having speakers discuss aspects of Canadian patriotism which some organizations seem afrad to tackle. The other day Mr. Horace Gagne, K.C., of Montreal, discussed the relations of the French and English in Canada with kindly breadth and a warm devotion to the cause of his compatriots.

The Montreal Star agrees with Mr. Gagne that the differences between Quebec and Ontario, like the premature reports of Mark Twain's death, have been very much exaggerated—as, indeed, they have.

Dr. Johnson, sitting with Boswell in the Cheshire Cheese, one day said of a man who left the hostelry: "I don't like that man." "And pray, sir, why?" said Boswell. "Because I don't know him, that's all," replied the Doctor. That is largely the position between Quebec and Ontario.

In October, 1916, a company of Ontario business men toured Quebec to become acquainted with their fellow-Canadians, and had a wonderful time. The visit was returned in January, 1917, by twice the number of Quebec men, who visited Toronto, Hamilton and Niagara Falls. Mr. Gagne was one of the pilgrims. As a sample of the sort of humor, friendliness and brilliance which our French brethren freely place at our disposal, it is worth recording that when the party went over to the American side for lunch at the Prospect House—Ontario had gone dry three months before—Mr. Gagne, in mock distress, came to one of his Ontario friends saying, "Won't you please lead me to the bar? I am a bilingualist, and both my tongues are dry."

LATE MRS. STEWART PROMINENT IN W.C.T.U.

After an illness of but four days, Mrs. Jane Kenny Stewart passed away at 10.30 o'clock this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. E. B. Stewart Neill, 8th Avenue West. Death was due to heart trouble. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mrs. Stewart was born 73 years ago last Monday at Aylmer, Quebec. where she spent the greater part of her life. Her husband, a prominent lumberman of Aylmer, died 12 years ago. There are left four sons, E. K. of Fernie, R. A. of Ottawa, W. D. of Middlesboro B.C., and Thomas of San Francisco; also three daughters, Mrs. E. B. Stewart Neill, 8th Ave., Mrs. H. R. Walsh, 12 Ave., and Mrs. Albert Twining, of the Richmond Apartments.

Mrs. Stewart was of a very kindly and lovable disposition and her death will be a severe blow to several organizations connected with the Kitsilano Methodist church, of which she was a member and regular attendant. She was active in W.C.T.U. circles both here and in Ottawa, where she headed the Ottawa city W. C.T.U. for 15 years. A week ago today on the occasion of her 73rd birthday she was presented with a life membership in the Kitsilano W. C.T.U. She held similar memberships in the Woman's Missionary Society and of the James StSewart Mission Band of the Kitsilano Methodist church—Vancouver Province.

BASEBALL

Fernie won its first game this season last Sunday, when they defeated Wardner 5-4 in ten innings. As usual they didn't start to play ball until the third innings and by that time the score was 4-1 in favor of Wardner. Fernie tied the score in the 7th and scored again in the 10th. A return game is to be played at Wardner on Sunday, June 27.

Batteries—Todhunter and Thompson; Sofko and Colton.

On Wednesday evening Fernie went down to Michel to play what they considered a practice game for the Wardner game and came home on the short end of 10-9 score. Fernie played a listless game and were bothered a lot by the grounds but are going out for blood the next time they meet Michel.

Batteries—Krall and Krall; Colton and Dufour.

The Cubs won their 2nd game by a last innings rally, which netted them 7 runs and enabled them to beat the Colts 10-9 after they had apparently lost by a big score. The next game is tonight between the Colts and Elks, so come out and see a good ball game. The schedule for the next couple of weeks is:

July 2—Cubs v. Colts.
July 6—Cubs v. Elks.
July 9—Colts v. Elks.
July 13—Cubs v. Elks.
July 16—Cubs v. Colts.
July 20—Colts v. Elks.

Will all those taking part in the July 1 parade please meet at the Central school at 9.30 a.m., when they will be assigned their places.

Bantry—What was apparently a concerted series of reprisals against Sinn Feiners occurred here last night, one death and the burning of several houses and shops resulting. Cornelius Crowley, reputed to be prominent in Sinn Fein circles, was the victim.

Constantinople—The Turkish Peace delegation in Paris has been instructed from Constantinople that the Turkish government will uncompromisingly refuse to sign any peace treaty which deprived Turkey of Smyrna district, Adrinople or Eastern Thrace.

Montreal—For the first time in the history of St. Lawrence shipping oil burners will be added to the Atlantic passenger service. The Canadian Pacific Ocean Service announces that the former German liner Kron Prinz Wilhelm, which has been refitted at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars, will make her first sailing from Liverpool on July 14 for Quebec. She has been for a number of months in a shipbuilding yard and has been converted into an oil burner.

ALWAYS BEST TO GET THE BEST

Time was when people who always insisted on having "the best of everything" were deemed either wealthy or extravagant, but now we have a different idea. We know that the best is more satisfactory "in the long run." And it gives much more satisfaction in the using or wearing of the particular article.

This applies particularly to diamonds. Whether it is your turn to purchase diamonds next week, next month, or two or three years hence, it is good to know that Birks' are "The Finest Diamonds Procurable."

The liquor confiscated by the city authorities in the W. J. Kerr case last week was this week shipped to the coast by the government authorities without waiting for the appeal to be heard. They evidently needed the booze badly down there, as it was shipped by express at a cost of at least $700 more than it could have been sent by fast freight, and the time saved by expressing would not have been more than five days. The appeal will come before Judge Thompson in July and the betting is even or better that the confiscation will prove illegal. If the court orders the restoration of the liquors, either the government or the city will be out about $2000 in cold cash. Everybody seems to be working for the express company these days.

W. J. BOWSER GIVES ADDRESS

not in the past, and 1916 was the dividing line. It was the Premier who was on the line of fire, not the leader of the opposition and the people wanted an accounting which they had not yet been able to get.

While the Oliver government had nearly doubled the taxes, it had given no proportional benefit or service in return for them, the speaker argued. In the matter of highways, for instance, hardly a mile of new road had been built in the Kootenay. "The minister of public works is calling camouflage tenders for roads, but you will not see the roads, and the tenders will be filed for they cannot get the money from the financiers," he said.

The Price-Waterhouse audit, which cost $18,000, and which was intended to expose devilish things about the preceding administration, had given it a clean bill, and for that reason had never been tabled. Only by threatening to raise a storm in the house had he obtained from the premier the opportunity to refuse the report and its net effect was to recommend some changes in bookkeeping. This was what the charges came to.

When the Liberals came in, they found the net debt of the province outside of bond guarantees of railways, $18,000,000, and they had added $12,000,000 to it. This was the net effect of the government's waste.

A fair sample of the government's haphazard system of administration of the province's affairs was found in its dealings with the returned soldiers, which was worth study. When the war came to an end and the men came back, of course the situation found the government without a policy. In 1918 a deputation of returned men waited on Premier Oliver and drew his attention to the fact that he had not prepared any area for settlemnt by the soldiers. Instead of admitting that he had no policy worked out, or, to take the other alternative, stating he did not consider land settlement a proper enterprise to put the people's money in, he started buying acres right and left, and putting the soldiers on them at starvation wages.

Now, in 1920, after two years $2,200,000 had been spent, and the soldiers were still on starvation wages, and there was no land ready to put into crop on any of these areas. Further, not a single soldier had yet received title, or even been told what his tract would cost him, and the government was standing them off with $4.00 a day, and the information that they must provide 20 per cent of the cost, not daring to tell them the cost, because, owing to the government's criminally wasteful methods, it would be prohibitive.

The only place the soldiers would be able to get the lonas necessary to them for the purchase of the land would be the Dominion government through the latter's Soldiers Settlement act. When recently in Ottawa, Mr. Boweser said, he had gone to the department, and inquired what procedure would be followed, and he had been informed that each solider would be dealt with separately and directly, and his land appraised as an individual tract, as was the case with all returned men receiving benefit under the act.

If the government had been content to put and keep practical men in charge of the settlement, the soldiers would not now be up against an excessive cost that they would now have to meet. If the Dominion appraised a tract at a certain figure, and it had cost the provincial government double that figure to prepare for him, where was the soldier to get off.

Mr. Bowser said his own proposition which had been made to the premier in the house, was that the province must pay the cost of the government's incompetence, and not the returned men, and he had stated he would support such a measure. That was the only course that would be fair to the men. This question of inflated cost of the tracts had been brought to the speaker's attention at Courtney, and he had advised the men to appeal to the premier. They did so, and six months later were still at Courtney, with no change whatever in methods.

One of the devilish things the preceding government had been accused of doing was passing orders-in-council, and one would naturally think that the present government would never do such a thing. As a matter of fact the Oliver government had passed probably 50,000 of them. But the opposition had been able to extract from the legislature the privilege that the leader of the opposition should have the right to inspect these orders-in-council during office hours, and he had read them all, keeping just about a week behind the government. When the members of the government passed an order-in-council, they knew he would be reading it next week, and it probably made them more careful than they otherwise would be.

best candidates. I want men of broad vision with me in the next legisla-

It was at the end of May he had looked into what the government owed the bank, by means of the orders-in-council. They had been getting in, getting in, issuing treasury notes for their indebtedness, and on maturity day renewing them, saying to themselves with each note or renewal, "Thank Heaven, that's paid."

But there was no sign of any change in regard to administration methods. Not one single government department attempted to run things in either an expeditious or an economical manner.

There had been a wonderful change in Premier Oliver's mentality since he had received office, suggested Mr. Bowser. When he was plain member for Delta, John Oliver would split a 10-cent piece. Now he would spend a million dollars of the people's money like a drunken sailor.

The premier thought if he spent enough of the people's money they would return him again to power, rather than see the money not spent. In this the premier misjudged the heard-headed people of British Columbia. As honest Tories had joined with honest Liberals in turning out the previous admipistration when they thought it was at fault, so would the honest Liberals join with the honest Tories in the coming election to turn the present government out. They would do this because they believed that the new administration they would place in office would give more honest government than the Oliver administration was giving.

Party affiliations had been partly broken away by the unrest general by the war and voters were more independent than formerly, and yet there must be left some in public life who possessed the general confidence, and whose integrity could be made a rallying point. It was not necessary to stampede to new movements. There was no reason why any old Tory should line up elsewhere than with him, in the coming election, and the same applied to the soldiers, and to the farmers. If the voters divided their strength in this election, and split into factions, the minority supporting the government might win. There was no reason why the soldiers should not study carefully the records of the two parties, and on the merits of the case give their support to the Conservative party. There was no reason why the farmers, who were naturally Conservative, should not also unitedly support the opposition in the coming contest.

"The Conservative party is good enough for me," affirmed the speaker. 'Its record, its history, and its constructive policy are good enough for me. I will try to be worthy of its leadership when I lay it down, as unsullied as when I received it."

Mr. Bowser said when his party was defeated, it was suggested that he was responsible for it. "I was not the leader my predecessor was," explained Mr. Bowser. "Though a hard worker in the cabinet, I had not the crystal touch. I was blamed by our own friends. I was the goat. It was somewhat hard on me, but I endeavored to take the criticism in good part, feeling that in the end a more charitable judgment would prevail."

The first two years with an inexperienced government in office, and legislation behindhand, he gave only constructive criticism, and held no public meetings, conceiving it his duty to the boys overseas to do nothing to divide the people. When the armistice was signed, however, and the war over, he started to address public meetings in various parts of the province. There was heard everywhere the suggestion, "Bowser can't win." The Conservatives called an enormous convention of 500 delegates, all paying their own expenses. That enormous gathering tendered him the unanimous nomination as leader of the Conservative party. No other name was mentioned.

"I accepted the responsibility," said Mr. Bowser, "and I have attempted to discharge the duties pertaining to the leadership.

They were now through with the past, Mr. Bowser said. "Let the dead past bury its dead." The war changed many things including the position of affairs in the province. What was needed was an economical administration of provincial affairs by a new government that would clarify and stabilize conditions, and put into effect a new constructive policy.

British Columbia needed industry and it needed population.

The Dolly Varden legislation which stepped between two litigants, was opposed by the Conservative party with its traditions, and two Liberal members. That act, which destroyed faith in the Oliver government closed the door of investment to this incomparable province, that needed capital for its development.

In stead of this province sending out $21,000,000 annually for products produced on the prairie and in the United States, it should have a large agricultural population, to produce their commodities at home, and keep this money here. People must be placed on the land.

The Oliver government had placed under resrve areas of coal land and of oil land but was sending out no parties to make discoveries on these areas. This was at a time when the United States government had decided that the only way to develop such lands was by issuing leases to discoverers. This latter was the proper policy for British Columbia. The discoverer should be granted a lease, and he could then enlist capital, which would come in and develop. In this way the province's money would not be at hazard.

All iron had also been put under reserve by the Oliver government. This meant that the prospector would not go out. All the great mines and mining towns of the Kootenay had come into existence through prospectors going out into the hills. The idea of the iron deposits being owned for the public was academic and visionary, for they would not be discovered if the prospector was not induced to go out. And the prospector would not go out if he did nt see a chance of profit.

"Increase our population, increase our production and increase the number of our industries. We want more mines and smelters," enjoined Mr. Bowser, amid applause.

"You have heard that Bowser means a one-man government," stated the opposition leader. "If I cannot use in my government the best men obtainable in the province, I ought not to aspire to head an administration.

"I want the people to send me good men—men who will give the best service, and who will give the best counsel. I want this constituency to give me a good man.

"I do not want to head a government of dubs—like the present one. Let the women take this to heart, too, and help in the selection of the ture.

"Let the Conservatives and the Liberals, the soldiers and the farmers who are strving for better government, join on a common platform, and send strong men to the legislature under the Conservative banner.

"And if the constituencies do their duty, and elect good men, and the province commits the trust of government to our hands, we will endeavor to administer affairs faithfully, and put into execution those wise and constructive policies that will ensure to our incomparable province some part of the progress and glorious future that it deserves of us."

Comfort and Service

THE man who is on his feet all day long must have a work boot that is comfortable as well as one that will give long wear. An uncomfortable, ill-fitting boot decreases his efficiency and lessens his earning power.

By careful selection of materials and exacting manufacturing methods the Leckie Work Boot gives "foot ease" that is a source of lasting satisfaction to the wearer. The "test of time" will more than prove its wearing qualities. The name "Leckie" stamped on the sole of a work boot means "More Miles per Dollar."

Varsity's Great War Record

VARSITY MAGAZINE'S fourth supplement completes the series that forms a record of the work of the University of Toronto in the Great War. It is an admirable production, and a credit to the young ladies and gentlemen who are responsible for it. As in its forerunners, and as is eminently fit, pride of place is given to the Honor Roll, the unreturning brave who as graduates or undergraduates heard the call and answered it, paying the "last full measure of devotion" to their Alma Mater, and all it represented. This section contains no fewer than 530 photographs and the inscribed names of 74 whose photographs could not be secured. The total honor roll of Varsity is now 604, and the fact that it was only 346 when the last special number was issued a year ago is testimony of the ferocity of the struggle in the closing months of the war, beginning with the last great German drive in March, 1918. The issue is printed on the finest of paper, is handsomely illustrated, and will be proudly cherished in the thousands of homes from which the students have gone forth.

The editor, in a preface, says that while it is difficult to give precise figures it has been estimated that between 15,000 and 20,000 graduates, undergraduates and prospective students of Canadian universities enlisted in the war. Probably no class in the community has such a high percentage of voluntary enlistments as the schools and universities. The Military Service Act applied to few of them, in English-speaking Canada, particularly. Of this numbers 5,400 were graduates or undergraduates of the University of Toronto, and if one were to add the prospective students, the figures might indicate that nearly one-half of the numbers to the credit of the universities of Canada should be placed under the colors of the old blue and white. This is not surprising, and would be only in keeping with the general war record of the city of Toronto and the Province of Ontario, and it was equally characteristic of the students as a class all over the Empire that they should be among the first to grasp the situation and hasten to the defence of their country.

The idea was beautifully expressed by Winnifred Letts, one of whose verses is reproduced in the Supplement:

God rest you happy, gentlemen,
Who laid your good lives down,
Who took the khaki and the gun
Instead of Cap and Gown.

In addition to the sacrifice of life Varsity has been active in other phases of war work, and through the Students' Administrative Council more than $31,000 has been distributed among various patriotic and relief societies. The list of honors won by graduates and undergraduates is fully in keeping with the number of enlistments. Indeed, its average is probably unusually high. We notice one V.C., that of Major T. W. MacDowell, and no fewer than twenty-three C.M.G.'s, half a dozen C.B.'s, and sixty-nine D.S.O.'s, as well as three with a bar to the D.S.O., while those who won the M.C. or the M.M. number hundreds. It is a glorious company, indeed, that one is presented to in this fourth supplement.

The reading matter consists of articles by Sir Robert Falconer, Sir Edmund Walker, Roland G. Usher, of Washington University, St. Louis, one of the chief American authorities on history; Dr. Alex. Hill, of Southampton University College, and various other well-known Canadian, American and British educationists. An article we are particularly pleased to see is that of Prof. D. R. Keys, M.A., on Commencement Day, 1918. On this occasion, it will be recalled, Lord Reading and Honorable Elihu Root were given honorary degrees, and the speech made then by Mr. Root was, in the opinion of many, the best delivered in Canada in the course of the war. It is well that it is reproduced in such a form that is likely to be preserved. One might quote many fine things from this address, so full of an eloquence that was both tender and wise. In one place Mr. Root said:

'As I saw the slender ranks of this once crowded and populous university, as I thought of the same spectacle in all the great institutions of the United States, the skeleton forces remaining in Harvard, in Yale, in Princeton, in Columbia and all the other universities, I have been thinking: Shall not these universities which lose their life save it? Has not the new day come in education through the lessons that your young men and young women are learning in these years of war? Has our education on this Western Continent done its full duty and reached the heart of the democracy which it has undertaken to educate?"

He answered the question thus: "We have forgotten on this Western Continent that all our system of justice is developed so that the principle of individual liberty may be subserved by government. Until a few years ago we had forgotten that liberty did not come, as the air comes, to all who choose to breathe, that justice did not come, as light comes, to all who look towards the sky. We had forgotten that not only is eternal vigilance the price of liberty, but that eternal struggle is the price of liberty. We had forgotten that no people could continue free who do not subscribe in their hearts with all sincerity and truth to the underlying principles of freedom, and this war has come in time to save us from the sad results of that forgetfulness and indifference. Let us hope and pray for true liberty, the dignity of true independent manhood, the high capacity to suffer, to sacrifice, to die if need be for a principle, the principle that makes men free."

WILL SELL OLD CASTLES

England is selling its castles and estates. The announcements of the London real estate brokers read like excerpts from histories of the old country families. In The Daily Telegraph one morning recently there were listed for sale the following historic seats: Kingsgate Castle, the Broadstairs residence of the late Lord Avebury; Kylemore Castle, Galway; Ruthin Castle, a famous Welsh mediaeval stronghold; Killeen Castle, County Meath; Lindisfarne Castle, Holy Island, off the coast of Northumberland, one of the most romantically situated and beautiful properties in England; the ancient ruins of Amberley Castle, near Arundel, Sussex; Ellon Castle, near Aberdeen; Clonyu Castle, West Meath, the home of the first Lord Greville; Goodrich or Godric's Castle at Ross, Herefordshire, and Donington Castle in Berkshire, near Newbury. Godric's Castle was the stronghold of the Lords of the Southern Marches, and for five centuries was the property of the Earls of Pembroke and Montgomery. It took three sieges to reduce Donington Castle in the great civil war, the parliamentary troops being determined not to leave the stronghold as a rallying place for the king's followers.

One of the most interesting of recent sales to the students of London St. James street, which included the weel-known club house of the ancient Cocoa Tree Club. The Cocoa Tree, which originally stood in Pall Mall, first of all was a political organization. It was the offspring of the Tory Chocolate House of the days of Queen Anne. Political and social lines were closely drawn in those days and men took club life as seriously as they did politics. The Cocoa Tree then was in St. James street, and the Whig Coffee House was further along down the same street, nearer the palace. There was o saying among the "bloods" and young noblemen of the day and observed by the rival statesmen of the period that a "Whig will no more go to the Cocoa Tree or Ozinda's than a Tory will be seen at the coffee house of St. James'."

Exactly when the Chocolate House was established is not clear, but the club seems to have first existed as a political assembly shortly before 1746 indorsements amounting to hundreds of thousands of pounds sterling and there were advertised for sale such was the premises in Blue Ball yard, at which time the place was the headquarters of the Jacobite party in parliament. Horace Walpole referred to in that year, when, in writing to George Montague, he said: "The duke has given Brigadier Mordaunt the pretender's coach on condition that he rode up to London in it. 'That I will, sir!' said he, 'and drive till it stops of its own accord at the Cocoa Tree'."

With all its contemporary clubs of those days the Cocoa Tree was known in the gossip of London for the gambling that went on within its walls. Stories of high play, in which fortunes were staked on the turn of a card or the throw of a die, were as palatable a morsel of tattle at the suppers and routs as the latest duel, the elopement of some beauty or the honors to be bestowed upon a political favorite. The clubs which with the Cocoa Tree possessed this reputation were Almack's, White's Brooke's and Boodle's, the last three taking their names from their founders and all being located in St. James street. In the records of Almack's, White's and Brooke's the name that most frequently occurs in the stories of high play is that of the brilliant Charles James Fox, at once the reckless spendthrift, the matchless orator and the astute statesman. His love of gambling was appalling. His best friends were half ruined by going as security on the loans he obtained from money lenders. At one time that at a period when the term "millionaire" was practically unknown. This weakness of Fox often interfered with his public career. Walpole writes in the debate on the thirty-nine articles Fox did not shine and adds:

"Nor could it be wondered at. He had sat up playing at hazard at Almack's from Thursday evening, the fourth, until 5 in the afternoon of Friday, fifth. An hour before he had recovered 12,000 pounds he had lost and by dinner, which was at 5 o'clock, he had ended by losing 11,000 pounds. On the Thursday he spoke in this debate; went to dinner at half-past 11 at night; from thence to White's, where he drank till 7 the next morning; thence to Almack's, where he won 6,000 pounds; and between 3 and 4 in the afternoon he set out for Newmarket for the races. His brother Stephen, lost 11,000 pounds two nights after and Charles 10,000 pounds more on the 13th, so that in a few nights the two sons of Lord Holland, the oldest not yet 25, lost some 32,000 pounds."

APPEAL TO THE LEAGUE

Persia is the first state which has appealed to the League of Nations for protection against foreign aggression. She has put to the test the efficacy of that organization, and to some extent is sounding its opinion on the limits beyond which Bolsheviki rule cannot go. Primarily the duty of the League is to protect small states, to uphold the doctrine of self-determination and to avoid war, as far as possible, through the medium of an international court of arbitration. Russia is not a member of the League and cannot be bound by its decisions; she would refuse to submit her cause to an international court; therefore, the remedy for the situation which has now arisen lies first in an appeal to the Soviet government to recall its troops from Persia, and, if this fails, the League of Nations must take military action. The moral strength of the League holds no terrors for Bolshevism.

If the League fails to act in defence of Persia, and if, as a result Bolshevist aggression continues, it is only a question of time before Great Britain, in self defence, will be forced to halt the march of anarchy towards the Indian frontier. Whatever is done, whether by Britain or the League of Nations, no doubt the same crescendo of objection will be raised by the friends of Bolshevism in the Allied countries. It is this uninformed public opinion which, because it is strident and persistent, appears in these latter days to make itself heard and to influence the actions of governments. It is organized by those who believe that no act of aggression by the Soviet power constitutes a subject which other nations have any concern. This doctrine is maintained in order that the League of Nations may fail. Mr. Bonar Law has stated that the Anglo-Persian Treaty does not place Great Britain under obligations with regard to the Bolshevik invasion of Persia, but it will be a serious matter for British interests should that state come under Soviet control, in fact such an eventuality would make it imperatively necessary for intervention.

The League of Nations will make or mar its future by the manner in which it safeguards interests in the Near East, which, for the time being, is the danger spot of the world. The occasion has arisen when limits must be placed to the domain of Bolshevism, except in instances where other states by a process of self determination embrace the tenets of that system. It is the menace which the government at Moscow is to the whole world that is the greatest of all questions with which the League of Nations has to deal. The Persian situation is sufficient to warrant for an immediate meeting of the council of the League to decide on definite action which will preserve the independence of Persia.—Colonist.

TWICE THOUGHT TIME HAD COME

Case Was Pronounced Hopeless — Gratitude to Tanlac Is Unbounded, He Says

What is doubtless one of the most remarkable statements published in connection with a medicine was made by Georges Boudreau, a grocery clerk living at 1288 Notre Dame Street West, Montreal, a few days ago.

The story of Mr. Boudreau's restoration to health is profoundly interesting and is given below just as related by himself in a conversation with a Tanlac representative:

"Two and a half years ago I began suffering from stomach trouble and twice during that time my case was pronounced hopeless and it was thought I could not live. My trouble began with a feeling like a big lump, after nearly every meal, in the pit of my stomach. I would then have to drink a great quantity of hot water in order to get a little relief. I had to live mostly on milk and my stomach pained me so at times that I fainted and thought I would surely die. The least efforts would cause me to perspire a great deal, my legs were swollen terribly and my heart would palpitate at a frightful rate. Six months after my troubles started I had to give up all idea of work. If I ventured to go for a walk on the street the least little breeze would almost take my breath away and I had to go back into the house. I could not sleep at night and had to prop myself up in bed with pillows. I was bloated all the time with gas on my stomach, was constipated the worst kind, and had absolutely no appetite. I also had rheumatism in my joints so bad that I had to take something to ease the pain. My case seemed to be a puzzle, as no one understood it, and I got worse in spite of all that was done for me. I was often caught weeping in despair over my condition.

"But I am now a happy man and my gratitude towards Tanlac is unlimited. It has not only restored my health, but I believe it has saved my life, and I can see that I will soon be able to take up the work again that I was doing before my troubles began. Why, my appetite is so ravenous that I simply can't get enough to eat and my digestion is so good that I never have a pain or an uncomfortable feeling no matter what or how much I eat. My legs do not swell any more, the rheumatic pains are gone, and I sleep every night just like a child. In fact, I am feeling perfectly well and I mean to say by that that I haven't an ache or pain of any kind. My recovery has been a surprise to just lots of people and some who have met me on the streets lately seemed absolutely amazed at the wonderful change that has taken place in me. All the praise, thanks and gratitude belongs to Tanlac. It is simply wonderful and I wish everyone knew its value as I do."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., June 29, 1920.

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Dear Sir—Would wou please find a little space in your paper for publication of the following information which I desire to place before the public of Fernie because of the genpenalty I personally was obliged to eral opnion prevailing regarding the suffer for conviction under the Prohibition Act, which I am informed, is circulated that my fine of $300 was paid by Perry Bros., my former employers, and this I positively wish to deny.

The true facts of the case are that I paid this fine personally, being convicted while employed by Messrs. Perry & Dragon at the Central Hotel as bartender. Mr. Dragon also was convicted and personally paid his own fine. Upon my return from Nelson gaol, Joe Perry said he would give me a cheque for $150 payable Jan. 1st, 1921, conditional upon my being satisfied with this amount and say nothing wrong about him. I refused any conditional settlement. Thanking you for allowing space for the publication of these facts. Yours truly.

CELEBRATION A SUCCESS

The Dominion Day celebration for beautiful weather, large crowds and good clean fascinating sport this year surpassed any that has been held for a long time. The financial end also with the exception of one department, was a huge success. Visitors started arriving on Wednesday and with the arrival of each incoming train yesterday their numbers increased in amazing proportions. With regard to the special attractions in the way of baseball and football competitions there were such a number of entries that in addition to the City Park being used it was necessary to resort to play of games at both Victoria Park and "Hughes Park." The children's program also was very much enjoyed by the youngsters, although the baseball and football were the chief attractions of interest to the adults. The celebration was formally opened by a parade in which the school children, decorated autos, bicycles, etc., participated. The musical program for the day was furished by the Fernie Italian Band under the direction of Prof. Zaccaro, and these concerts were very pleasing to everyone who appreciates good music. The committees in charge of each department worked with untiring vigor and with the exception of the boxing contest every branch made substantial profits for the benefit of the Children's Fund and the Reconstruction committee. With regard to the failure to declare a dividend in connection with the boxing contest this was enirely due to the apparent lack of support from the general public because it certainly cannot be said that the program was not a first class one. Those who attended received ample entertainment for the price of admission paid and the only reason that it was not a money maker it did not attract the crowd. Even at that it is believed by the committee that when all accounts are reckoned the deficit will not be nearly so large as at first anticipated.

In the baseball tournament Baynes Lake copped first money, Fernie second and Wycliffe third. Blairmore and Michel, the two other teams entered, being eliminated by Fernie in the preliminary games.

Fernie and Blairmore were drawn for the first game, played in Victoria Park immediately after the train arrived, a seven innings game being agreed upon owing to lateness in the starting and the number of games to be played. Fernie came from behind and in a batting rally in the 5th and 6th innings scored 9 runs, enabling them to win 9—6.

Batteries—Sofko and Colton; Paddon and Gates.

Umpire—McIntyre.

The second game was played in the city park between Baynes Lake and Wycliffe and was the best game of the series. Baynes got Ault for four runs in the 4th innings, while Wycliffe secured 1 in the 1st and 1 in the 2nd. Catcher Dunn of Baynes Lake received a broken finger and had to retire in favor of Ferko.

Batteries—Trekell and Dunn and Ferko; Ault and McMann.

Umpire—Kastner.

Michel drawing the winner of the first game it fell to the lot of Fernie to appear on the diamond for the second time, and Fernie did not leave any doubt as to their determination to win, taking the game easily by their timely hitting and excellent fielding behind Sofko. Score 10—2.

Batteres—Sofko and Colton; Krall and Krall.

Umpire—McIntyre.

The final game was played at Victoria Park, Fernie having the services of Ault of Wycliffe, which caused dissention, and Fernie forfeited first place and an exhibition game was played, which was called in the 6th innings owing to darkness. Score: Baynes 4, Fernie 2.

Batteries—Gillies and Ferko; Ault and Colton.

Umpire—Kastner.

In the Juvenile baseball games the Fernie Midgets easily defeated the Waldo Midgets by 9—4, while the Fernie Juniors were victorious over Michel Juniors by 6—5.

The football competition was the biggest drawing card of the day. The draws were made at 10 a.m., Coal Creek being drawn against Cranbrook, Fernie against Trail, and Coleman getting the bye. Coal Creek and Cranbrook played on the north end football grounds. Coal Creek thought they had a walk away but the Cranbrook boys showed that they could play football. When time was called there was no score. Over time play resulted in one corner for Coal Creek, which gave them the win and put them in the semi-finals against Coleman. Fernie and Trail played their game immediately afterwards, and this game was worth going a long way to see. Fernie scored one goal by Dick Thornton, after some nice combination between Booth, Hardy and Thornton. This game put Fernie in the finals. Fernie played to win but they were sorry to see Trail lose, as they are the finest bunch of men and sports that come to Fernie, paying their own expenses and losing three days in the bargain. Fernie expects to play Trail at Trail some time this coming fall. Coal Creek and Coleman played in the afternoon in the city park, Coleman winning after a strenuous game. This put Coleman in the finals against Fernie at 6 o'clock, and this was the game of the day. Fernie pressed most of the time but Coleman scored their first goal by Dugdale. This goal was easy for Coleman as the Fernie boys thought the ball was out of touch, the baseball line and the football line confusing the Fernie backs. In the second half Fernie pressed but Sam Moore, the sturdy Coleman back, cleared in nice style. Some splendid combination was now put forward by Robson, Thornton, Booth, Hardy and Davidson of the Fernie team, which resulted in the equalizing goal for Fernie being scored by Davidson. This was a beautiful piece of work and Davidson sure deserves credit for his splendid shot. This only occurred three minutes before full time. When time was called the game was a draw and overtime being played resulted in Fernie obtaining a corner against Sam Moore, the Coleman full back, putting Fernie one point ahead. Coleman immediately started to press and the Fernie goal had some narrow escapes, but the redoubtable Sawyer was always on hand. The game ended in a win for Fernie, 3 points to Coleman's 2. This was the best game of football that has been pulled off in Fernie for many moons. Fernie has a forward line that will keep any defence on the jump. Fernie in their second game had to play Wheeler, their first reserve, who put up a splendid game instead of Robinson, who was injured in the game against Trail. W. Riley also played with a strained tendon, but he played the game of his career, and you can't beat W. Riley. Sweeney played his usual stellar game and was always on the job. Thompson at full back played a good game notwithstanding the fact that he has not played many games. Joe Riley, the other full back, well you all know Joe. He can put the crimp in the forward line. Sawyer, the old war horse in goal. Yon can't beat him and he played in rare form yesterday. Fernie won the Crahan Cup and the 12 gold medals and they won on their merits. This competition was one of the best during the day, and the Fernie team hopes to play return games against all the visiting teams.

At the boxing contest Charles McCarthy won a fifteen round decision over Rough-house Charlie Burns. McCarthy outfought and out pointed Burns all through the contest and although Burns carries the reputation or non-de-plume of Rough-house, this must be due only to his tactics of always boring in from the beginning to the end of each round and his ability to take punishment. He, however, undoubtedly had at all times the better of the exchanges in the infighting but McCarthy was too clever for him or knew him too well to allow himself to get in clinches. The semi-windup between Frank Pete of Seattle and Stanley Clements, billed as featherweight champion of Western Canada, but who at present hails from Vancouver, was the most spectacular bout of the two. The contest went the full ten rounds with the Seattle boy getting the decision. Pete knocked Clements down twenty-one times during the ten rounds but Clements always came up gamely ready to accept his chances. The contest was much more appreciated by the meagre number attending than the main bout. Mulligan and Joinson gave the fans their money's worth in four rounds of boxing, concluding same with their comical travesty "knock-out" preluded by dialogue in the Chinese tongue. Cam. Lindsay of Cranbrook was a very satisfactory referee for the main bout and the semi-windup.

The Isis has a feast in store for their patrons this week. Monday and Tuesday a fine feature about the Lumbermen. Wednesday and Thursday a special Paramount, featuring Catherine Calvet in "Career of Catherine Bush," by Eleanor Glynn. Be sure and see these. You will enjoy doing so.

MOTHERS PENSION ACT NOW IN FORCE

Geo. F. Pyke, who for the past two years has occupied the position of secretary of the B.C. Returned Soldiers Commission and who was recently appointed Asst. Supt. of Neglected Children and assigned the duty of organizing and bringing into force the Mothers Pension Act, passed at the last session of the provincial legislature, was in Fernie last Saturday on business connected with his office.

Mr. Pyke was positive in his assurance that the Mothers Pension would be officially proclaimed to be in force on July 1, and payments of allowances to those who are entitled to receive same under the Act will be made for the month of July, although on account of the large number of applications that is anticipated will be received at the beginning it will in all probability be well on towards the middle and possibly the end of the month before all the cheques will be ready for distribution.

Application forms, one of which must be filled out by every applicant, will be available this week, and a supply will be sent to the provincial police and government agent at Fernie, where anyone who is entitled to benefit under the Act may obtain a copy by applying either in person or by mail. Those who are entitled to allowances are widows, deserted wives, wives whose husbands are incarcerated in a penal institution or asylum, and wives whose husbands are totally incapacitated by illness or accident, provided in all cases that there is at least one child under the age of 16 years, that the applicant is a British subject and has been a resident of B.C. for at least 18 months previous to the date of application.

The Act does not apply to families who are already in receipt of military pensions or compensation allowances or any other income sufficient to meet living expenses.

STRIKE MANIA STILL EXISTS

Strike mania still seems to prevail in certain quarters, although a few signs that Labor is taking a saner view and acquiring a higher consideration for public rights are discernible. The growing power of the "moderates" seemingly tends to make those who advocate strikes, because they are a form of anarchy, the more violent in their efforts to disrupt our present social organization. A year ago many of these restless spirits fully anticipated that by the weapon of the strike they would by this time be in entire control of the industries of Canada. Twelve months has shown that a majority of the workers are not prepared to endorse a general system of grand larceny as the solution of the world's ills. But recent events have indicated that there is still a powerful minority, able to control decisions in certain trades, which advocates the strike, upon whatever pretext, as an end in itself.

The Labor Gazette, published by Hon. Gideon Robertson, recently furnished some interesting statistics indicating the trend of events. Canadian strike returns for the month of May, 1920, showed a very considerable improvement on conditions in May, 1919, when the Winnipeg general strike was in progress. The campaign of idleness last year was in that month embraced by 74,252 workers, involving 849,676 working days and embracing 96 distinct strikes. In May of this year there were 73 strikes in progress, of which 53 originated in that month, involving only 12,005 workers and the loss of 145,168 working days. The improvement is encouraging, but the total is too high, because so far as can be gathered, hardly one of these 73 strikes was based on adequate grounds. In almost every instance it was engineered by unscrupulous or fanatical persons who are to all intents and purposes enemies of mankind.

Any strike under present conditions when there is a world shortage of almost every needful article, is an act of war against humanity. There have been justifiable strikes in years gone by when the greed and tyranny of private employers, or the pressure of social conditions drove men to desperation, but in no trade and no employing institution throughout the length and breadth of Canada today do conditions which justify such desperate remedies prevail. The continuing unrest is a purely artificial creation. The strike advocates know that just as well as any of us. Their purpose is the destruction of the capitalistic system; and they have no plan to offer in place of it that would not in a short time bring the whole community to the alternative of starvation or slavery, which Russia is facing today. Yet their doctrinaire madness against capital still impels them to urge that Labor emulate the Gadarene swine that rushed down a steep place into the sea.

What else are we to think of the motive which prompted the majority of the Trades and Labor Council of Toronto to pass a resolution requesting Samuel Gompers, head of the American Federation of Labor, to stay away from that city? Mr. Gompers has gone pretty far in support of strikes but he is definitely opposed to strikes which have no object save warfare against the community and are born of the infection of idleness. Because of that he is called the "lick spittle of capital."

We should have thought that the action of Mr. Gompers in presiding over the American Federation of Labor convention at Montreal would have satisfied the strike-enthusiasm of most Bolsheviks, for he apparently gave countenance (perhaps because he could not help himself) to an open conspiracy to organize another steel strike when the time is propitious. If the steel workers strike, it will probably be to obtain two motor-cars instead of one, for no more handsomely paid body of mechanics can be found the world over. The aim is clearly to disrupt the steel industry because it is basic, and a prolonged strike will paralyze other trades.

The high cost of living will no longer serve as an excuse for these assaults on public welfare. The strike promoter works in a vicious circle. Every strike and every increase in wages helps to boost the cost of living; and that cost in turn becomes the pretext of further strikes. Sooner or later the whole community will have to tackle this wide conspiracy to promote groundless strikes and frame laws to effectively deal with the men who make war against society through the command of "down tools."—Toronto Saturday Night.

MOVIES IN THE OLD LANDS

Motion picture production in England and France is booming to such an extent that in a short time these countries will reach the crest of development, according to the statement of Mr. Goldwyn, who has organized producing and distributing centres in both countries. He has just returned to America and reports the co-operation of leading government and financial heads abroad in a movement to put the industry in a position of importance.

"Banks in Great Britain and France are beginning to realize the power, strength and stability of the cinema. They are encouraging the building of theatres and lending financial aid to many enterprises intended to further the development of the screen. England plans to build 1000 theatres in the next eighteen months. France, at present only has 1200 theatres for a population of 40,000,000. Of these, 95 per cent are small theatres seating less than three hundred. Imagine the opportunity that awaits capital, vision and industry in the country alone.

"The British government is seriously considering the development of educational pictures for schools. Goldwyn Co.'s affiliation with the Bray Educational Films makes this project particularly interesting to us," Mr. Goldwyn continued. "Both the French and British governments realize the great help that motion pictures have been in the way of publicity to America. Europeans know the people, customs—even the streets of cities in the United States as well a we do.

"The day of the English fop, the French dandy and the Spanish villain is over as far as the screen is concerned. The people of those countries resent being forever made the butt of ridicule and the target of prejudice. If America expects to retain its patronage and prestige in pictures, producers will have to present heroes of other countries besides their own. Continental exhibitor claim, and not without some justification, that they see nothing but Americans in the role of snappy business men, hard riding two-gun westerners and misunderstanding wives of Wall St. brokers. 'Let us have English, French and Italian heroes in some of your films for a change,' they say. I believe that their plant is a fair one and one that requires action on our part.

"Great Britain is doing great things. They have been through a desperate war, but since the cessation of hostilities they have been making great strides along the line of bettering their pictures. Foreign competition in this industry must not be underestimated.

"The English climate, although not the most desirable in the world from the standpoint of photography, is not a handicap to filming pictures. When one considers that Paris with its historic and beautiful edifices is but six hours away from London by train and steamer, and less than an hour by plane; Rome with its ruins and brilliant sunshine, a mere over night journey; the Riviera, Nice and Monte Carlo but fourteen hours away, and Egypt a little more than two days' journey distant, it is easy to understand the advantage of establishing our producing plant on the British Isles. During the war it was impossible to use those countries for 'locations' but now we can stage our productions in practinally every portion of Europe and Afrira.

"I think it will be a great thing to see some new personalities on the screen. This will result, in no small degree, from foreign films."

SIGHTSEEING BY AERIAL TAXIS

Americans are famously rapid sightseers in Europe and many a European jest is built on the hustle of the average American tourist. There is, for instance, the ancient story of the two Americans who motored to Durham Cathedral. One of them alighted from the car in a hurry and bolted into the famous old cathedral, remarking to his companion as he left the car: "I'll have a look at the inside of it and you can take a look at the outside."

Just now the latest thing in hustling sightseeing is the air trip from London to Shakespeareland at Stratford-on-Avon, the first flight of which was taken by an American tourist recently. He had breakfast in London, lunched at Stratford and was back in London again for 7 o'clock dinner. During this time he found time to visit Ann Hathaway's cottage, Shakespeare's house, attend a matinee at the Memorial theatre, where the birthday festival was being held drive to Leamington, visit Warwick Castle and fly back to London in time to be put down at Picadilly Circus at 6.45—a new record even in air travel.

The flight to Shakespeareland is part of the program of the new aerial taxi scheme of a London travel bureau. Taxis can be hired for private parties of two, four, six or eight passengers at $97.50 per passenger. This charge includes cars, lunch and guides' erpenses.

The passengers leave Piccadilly Circus at 9 a.m., go by auto down to Waddon aerodrome, near Croydon, and fly thence to Coventry by 10.45. A car meets the party at Coventry and, driving by way of Leamington and Warwick, an extensive visit is paid to the birthplace.

Lunch at the Shakespeare Hotel, a visit to Wrwick Castle and a return flight to London complete the day's outing.

Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

This privilege is also made retroactive.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING.

M'CLUSKEY TALKS LABOR

H. S. McCluskey, of Miami, Arizona, of the executive board of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, was in Trail last week in the interests of his organization, and when interviewed by the News man, in the course of his remarks said:

"That the people of the United States are facing a crisis with more dangerous complications than at any other period of its history, and that this same condition applies to Canada where the problems are practically the same as those of our neighbor to the south," is the opinion of H. S. McCluskey.

"The steady advance in the cost of living from 1914 up to the present time, averaging over 100 per cent in many of the principal articles of food and clothing, the depreciation of the value of money measured in purchasing power due to the inflation of the currency ,the enormous taxes required to pay interest on the war debts, ruthless profiteering in the necessities of life, the failure of the government to enact any effective legislation to reduce living costs and stop profiteering, the continued use of repressive laws, enacted to meet a war emergency, against the workers, the failure to establish a satisfactory peace and the feeling of a betrayal on the part of the people on that account, the repudiation by statesmen of their promises to the people and especially to labor of a greater share of democracy, the attempt of "industrial autocrats" to take advantage of national hysteria to deny labor the principle of collective bargaining and establish an anti-union policy, are responsible in a large measure for the present unrest and discontent that is gradually creating a condition bordering on panic," says Mr. McCluskey.

"Judging from the information available there is no immediate prospect for a reduction in the cost of living in the opinion of those who have made a study of the situation. We are told that the enormous increase in land values, the shortage of farm labor which is demanding and receiving shorter hours and double the pay formerly paid such labor in many localities, together with a shortage in many of the leading crops, coupled with higher freight rates for transporting food and other commodities and the necessity for a still further advance in rates to enable the railroad workers to obtain living wages, the advance in coal prices thereby increasing manufacturing costs, and increasing costs in the manufacturing establishments all indicate that we can expect the present level of prices to be maintained if they do not climb higher.

Continuing Mr. McCluskey said "there is no panacea or short cut for meeting the situation and solving the problems that confront us. The co-operation of every employer, workman and government agency is required to work out a solution. It is the duty of the employer to recognize and co-operate with the organizations of the men in the industry in working out the problems of the industry for the public good, the acknowledgment and assumption of responsibility on the part of the workers for their actions to the people as a whole, where they are given a recognition and power through their organizations and drastic legislation on the part of the government to stop profiteering and reduce living cost and to assist in stimulating industry.

"To a large extent the failure of the government to solve the question of the cost of living has caused the workers to resort to the use of the strike as a solution of the problem. The fact that we have had some 8000 strikes in the United States during the past three years that averaged over 18 days each and that many of them were in basic industries, would indicate that the use of this weapon alone connot solve the problem and, in fact, due to the enormous economic loss they entailed. In November, 1919, there were over two million men and women on strike or locked out and the cost of living was higher in May of 1920 than it was six months ago.

"It is essential that machinery for the adjustment of labor disputes must be establihed to eliminate the waste of strikes and the best method is the tested and proven machinery advocated by the American Federation of Labor which, while being far from perfect, is capable of being strengthened, the election to office of progressive thinking men who are able to see a better order of things and have the courage and ability to grapple with the problems that menace us, and the development of the co-operative movement to eliminate the great army of middlemen, who take their toll between the producer and the consumer and the nationalization of the big monopolistic industrial enterprises."

ALICE BRADY IN "THE FEAR MARKET" BEALART PICTURES

Coming to The Orpheum

"In discussing the One Big Union movement, Mr. McCluskey said that "it was largely a product of the effects of the war and that men in certain sections were being temporarily swept off their feet by irresponsible visionaries, self-seeking demagogues and criminal disruptionists.

"The O.B.U. presents nothing new or constructive to the labor movement. It is simply another dual movement advocating many of the same principles of other movements similar in character that have sprung into being before, such as the Knights of Labor, that left behind it nothing of a constructive nature, the American Railway Union, founded by Eugene V. Debs, that after a destructive strike left behind it the abusive use of the injunction process by the courts and the use of U.S. troops in industrial disputes and a trail of wrecked local unions. The Socialist Trades and Labor Alliance, and the Western Labor Union, both short lived, and leaving disrupted organizations and dissension in the ranks of the workers as a heritage, and the I.W.W., that for years has always been called the One Big Union, that has a record of jail sentences for its advocates, wrecked organizations that were once powerful, hatred, suspicion, disaster and a legislative record of having been the cause of anti-sedition and criminal syndicalist laws being written upon the statute books of practically all the states in the west that were formerly classed as a progressive, and the election of reactionary executive officials to the various offices—in brief, a record of disaster to the men who toil.

"The B.C. Federationist in its last issue complains of the legislative accomplishments of the O.B.U. to date, pointing out the amendments that were made to the Canadian immigration laws during the Winnipeg strike that still stand upon the statute books of Canada in spite of efforts to repeal them.

"The O. B. U. in the name of idealism and the emancipation of the workers is making the same appeals to cupidity, greed, hatred, prejudice, ignorance and emotion that its predecessors did, and can only reap the same chaff.

"Instead of trying to solve industrial and social problems by constructive effort, based upon knowledge of facts, two recent proclamations show the purpose of the organization to create disorder and chaos instead. The first takes the form of an appeal to SINGLE men to join the organization, pointing out that the sun is shining on both sides of the street, posted in front of the O.B.U. hall in Trail, B.C., and the still more significant and official appeal contained in the O.B.U. Bulletin in connection with the provincial election in Manitoba and reprinted in the B.C. Federatonist last week from which I quote the following, in which the doctrine of 'massed action' in connection with political action, is advocated and it is to be brought about not by an appeal to intelligence and reason but by an 'appeal to the emotions:'

"'Let labor recognize that it has a fight on its hands and that the fight is clear-cut and a continuation of the struggles of the past, that the enemy is the same old enemy animated by the same old hate.

"This is an opportunity for the workers to take their part through the much maligned massed action. To stir the workers to massed action their emotions must be aroused. Now is the time when the emotion may be turned loose with no one to say, nay! On to the fray.'

"The O. B. U. is irresponsible, undemocratic, destructive in tendency and can only accomplish what its forerunners have done—leave disaster, disrupted organizations, hatred, bitterness and failure behind and its leaders then move on to try their theories on other places where the workers have through constructive effort built an institution that they may hope to control and destroy."

NATURAL LIMITATIONS

"There is a destiny that shapes our ends, rough-hew them how we will." Those inspired words apply to everything that lives and moves and has its being upon this earth and even to the operations of inanimate things in the heavens above. The Germans thought they had rough-hewn their ends and made them meet for world-domination, when the forces of destiny stepped in and proved to them the error of their ways. So in lesser matters affecting mankind something invariably happens to circumvent apparently well-laid plans. The cost of many things necessary to the maintenance of life on what we are accustomed to regard as a comfortable basis is high, and in some commodities it is going higher, but even to that movement there is a reasonable assurance, based upon past experience, that bounds have been set. When any situation or condition reaches a certain stage, counteracting influences invariably begin to assert themselves. When a thing becomes too costly for consumption or use, people reason with themselves and determine to do without it, or at least to limit its use to the utmost. If the article is indispensable, resourceful people set to work and proceed to devise or to discover "something just as good" to take its place. The cost of oil as a fuel has reached that stage now, and we observe that the people of a certain part of the State of Washington have determined to do without it for the purpose of generating heat for use in their public buildings. They are going to use wood instead, as wood is a by-product of the sawmills and still is fairly plentiful in that part of the world. The producers of oil doubtless will make note of this counter-movement against excessive prices and govern themselves accordingly. The story contains a moral that may be usefully and profitably applied in many directions. The stern injunction, "thus far shalt thou go and no farther," has an application to forces other than the tides. There is a turning-point in every one of the affairs of life, and it is a wise corporation or trust or institution, that knows the precise moment at which to apply the brakes.—Province.

"I have great pleasure in sending you a salad dressing recipe I used with good results while cooking in a lumber camp up the Coast last summer, where fresh milk was unobtainable.

"Canned milk had to be used for everything, and I may say in passing that I never had lighter cakes and puddings than those I made with Pacific Milk."

We will print Mrs. W.'s recipe next time. She expressly asked that her name be not published.

LOSSES BY FIRE

At a time when the scarcity of houses is felt all over the Dominion, it is something for grave concern when we read of an occurrence such as recently took place in Fernie, when three cottages were destroyed by fire. In the circumstances, Conservation has a timely article when it refers to the fire loss in the year 1919.

It is pointed out by the publication referred to that in 1919 there was paid to insurance companies the sum of $40,000,000; the upkeep of fire departments and interest on investment in equipment amounted to the sum of $8,700,000; losses not covered by insurance $5,800,000; making a total of $54,500,000.

In reference to the above Conservation says that this was a direct charge against the production of Canada for 1919 and it was paid by those who produce; it was the penalty for neglect of one of the first essentials of property protection — fire prevention.

Canada is not in any position to continue this policy of laissez faire in regard to the fire waste. Houses are scarce and building costs are exceedingly high. To relieve the housing situation, governments and municipal councils are advancing money or pledging public credit for building purposes.

Regardless of this condition, however, reports of Provincial Fire Marshals show that last year fires occurred in 5792 dwellings in Ontario, and in Saskatchewan 603 dwellings suffered from fire.

Undoubtedly the greater proportion of the monetary loss resulted from fires in large properties, but these dwellings where fires occurred, continues Conservation, were the homes of employers or employees in our industries. It is only reasonable to suppose that the careless householder will be the careless worker—that the same degree of neglect of precautions against fire will be evident. Private dwellings provided by far the greatest number of our fires; each of these fires is a potential conflagration, and yet no authority exists for a compulsory inspection of dwelling houses for fire dangers. With such a record as the above, fire departments and fire inspectors should be provided with such authority, and employers should in every manner promote education in fire prevention among their employees.—Lethbridge Herald.

IMPROVED ROAD TO SPOKANE

Autoists and others will be interested in the following annaouncement regarding the north and south road, which comes from the state of Idaho:

"Work on the Bonner-Boundary section of the North and South highway will begin next month, is the welcome word that Major Clyde Chaffins, engineer in charge, gives out to the people of this locality. Major Chaffin represents the United States Bureau of roads, department of engineering and he expects the call for bids on the work at any time. As soon as the contracts are let work will begin and then will be pushed to completion. But it is a pretty big job, involving as it does the expenditure of approximately $450,000.

"Thirty-five miles of road are in the plans, beginning at Sandpoint and extending to Bonners' Ferry. The roadbed will be semi-waterbound macadam, which consists of crushed rock screened to size and rolled in place. The width of the roadway is to be 20 feet; maximum grade 5 per cent, and maximum curvature 20 degrees though the curvature may not be strictly observed at railroad crossings. Eventually all the crossings will either be subways or overhead, but this cannot be done at the present time.

"The line will follow the present road in the main but corrections will be made at various points. The jog at the sandhill just this side of Colburn will be eliminated the road following the Great Northern. Just before Park River is reached a change will be made deflecting the line to cross the river somewhat above the present location and the bridge will be moved. Beyond Naples there are places where the road is overflowed in time of high water and these will be filled.

"It is expected that upwards of three hundred men will be employed on the line and that it will possibly take as much as 9 months to complete the job. The money is furnished by the state and federal governments. The road is one of the worst of the main roads leading out of Sandpoint and the people have long waited the beginning of the project of building it into a modern highway which will be a decided advance in the county road system."

We are asking our friends to help him in ths way. Send a pie, buy a ticket and then come yourself and have a good time at the Army, July 9 at 8 p.m.

APACHES HUNT IN PACKS

There is a great increase in crimes of violence since the war, and in this respect, as in so many others, Paris shines forth as a leader of the world's capitals.

The apache is the type of young criminal, who corresponds to the Australian larrikin, the San Francisco hoodlum, or the professional gunman of Chicago or New York. There is nothing in London quite parallel, the nearest approach being the bands of young hoodlums who used to make night hideous in the east and south, and who used their belts as weapons.

What makes the Paris apaches so distinctive is that they form a veritable guild, with customs, dress and a certain code of etiquette and points of honor.

It is not sufficient to be an idle or violent young blackguard in Paris; an apache belongs to a corporation. His trade is crime; but even then he keeps a specialty—robbing by violence. The burglars or the pickpockets are not apaches.

Here is a typical apache crime. A middle-aged gentleman from the country has been seeing Paris; he has been amusing himself; he has taken too much wine at supper.

In the early hours of the morning his body is found on the footpath of one of the outer boulevards. His pockets have been turned inside out; he is lying in a pool of blood. An examination reveals the wound of a dagger which has entered between the shoulder blades, evidently struck from behind with sure and deadly force.

Or again, a citizen has gone to the Luxembourg Gardens to listen to the music of the military band and he has remained sitting on a bench enjoying the balmy afternoon until the shadows of night have begun to fall. Suddenly an apache may appear before him and demand his money.

The citizen is lucky if the apache does not also take his life—this has frequently happened in such circumstances—for an apache does not consider himself quite a "man" until he has at least one assassination to his credit.

Another exploit becoming more frequent and more audacious in recent days, is that of a hold-up of the owner of some little business, or the entry into an hotel, even near the principal streets, by two or three apaches, who pounce on the chasier or landlady, kill her, rob the safe, and vanish—all this cleverly arranged and carried out in surprisingly short time.

The motor bandits of Paris, who have a list of daring "coups" to boast of, are rather superior in education to the average run of apaches, but the assistants are often recruited from those ranks.

Before the war there was a round of sight-seeing after dark called the "Tour of the Grand Dukes," when, for a fiver or two a guide would show the trembling, but interested visitor, the haunts of the apaches, and even give him a peep into the back room of a sinister looking hotel, where he would see terrible fellows with slouch hats and ferocious moustaches with knives and revolvers.

The real apache is not demonstrative although he is picturesque. He is to be found in the quarters of La Villette or Menilmontant — corresponding to Whitechapel and Old Kent road—and his costume is not unlike that of the London coster.

He wears a cap with a peak, trousers tight around the thighs but "sprung" at the bottoms, and he sports a colored sash, generally red, round the waist. When in working order this sash will hold a revolver and a long, keen knife.

The knife is a great weapon of the apache. He is always dreaming of how to "cool a type" with that redoubtable blade. He would kill a man for two-pence rather than let him go if the chance was good. The revolver he uses to defend himself if pursued by the police, and as the apaches often hunt in gangs, some great fights take place between them and the sergeants de ville.

The typical apache is rather short, slight, but active; pale of countenance; he is very vain, and he cultivates for the rest of the world a disdain unequalled by the most exclusive set of Oxford.

He invariably has a female companion, often a girl in her teens, whom he maltreats, but who generally sticks to him with dog-like fidelity.

If an apache girl runs away from her "man," whether to go to another gang or to return to respectable life, then the code of honor of the apache comes into full swing. The gang to which she has fled will generally force her to return, or if she tries to escape altogether they will agree to kill her.

Sometimes it happens that a new lover refuses to give her up. Then a duel is arranged. This may take the form of killing on sight, each side being warned. Or, in the small hours of the night, after the Bal Musette (a ball in which a kind of Breton bagpipes supplies the music) the two men will have it out with knives till one of them lies bleeding to death under a lamp post.

Then the "Beauty of the Gold Hair" —in all this I am giving facts—goes off calmly but proudly with the victor.

It is of little use for the police to investigate these crimes, for the apaches, who have a stoicism of their will not give themselves away.

At these dances, by the way, or at their own more intimate little soirees, for instance in the underground of some restaurant, the apaches and their ladies dress and dance with decorum. The girls wear high-necked plain dresses, and the only flamboyance of the apache is in his waistband.

The arms of the young man pass under those of the girl, and he clasps her round the shoulders; then they move slowly round and round, as they dance like tops. Their expression is that of absorbed attention and rapt enjoyment.

The apaches have a slang of their own, but fashionable young men in Paris plume themselves on being able to use it, and so it gradually filters through the advanced novelists till it comes to enrich the French language.

Their lives are generally short, but they are not merry in the sense of boisterous amusement. The apache is serious, though with an underlying sense perhaps of enjoyment, and he has a grim humor. He calls the guillotine the "w'dow"—because she loses her man.

"I CAN'T SAY TOO MUCH FOR TANLAC"

Fraser Avenue Man Says He Never Saw Anything Like the Way He Improved

"I never saw anything to equal the way Tanlac has so quickly and thoroughly built me up, and I believe it would be impossible for me to feel any better than I do now," said J. E. Brooks, 3516, Fraser Avenue, Vancouver, B.C., an employee of the Point Grey Municipality, a suburb of Vancouver.

"A short time ago I commenced going down hill very fast and my stomach became so badly upset I could not eat a single thing without suffering from it afterwards. My appetite was so poor I just had to force down every mouthful I ate, and even the smell of food nauseated me. After every meal I would bloat up with gas, and there would be a heavy feeling like lead in the pit of my stomach. There was always a bitter taste in my mouth, and I suffered from heartburn so much I nearly went distracted. My head ached so bad all the time it almost made me desperate, and there was always such severe pains in the small of my back I could hardly bend over. It was impossible for me to get a good night's sleep, and I always got up feeling simply horrible. In fact, I was just in a bad fix generally, and felt so tired, worn out and depressed all the time I had to force myself to get around.

"It was almost no time after I started taking Tanlac before I began to feel beter, and my improvement has been so fast that now, after taking only four bottles, I am a well man. I have gained nine pounds in weight, have a fine appetite, eat anything I want without having a particle of trouble afterwards, and don't know what it is to have a pain of any kind or a headache. I sleep all night long every night, and always get up in the mornings feeling simply fine, and ready for work. After what Tanlac has done for me, I just can't say too much for it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in every town.

IS CANCER CURABLE?

Inoperable cancer cases have shown remarkable improvement under the treatment given by Dr. Glover, St. Michael's hospital and while complete cures have not as yet been registered the authorities in the medical world have every reason to hope that Dr. Glover's new solution treatment will effect absolute cures. This was the substance of an interview given to the World on Saturday afternoon by Dr. Julian Loudon, of St. Michael's hospital, who presided over the clinic.

"We had about a dozen cases under observation," said Dr. Loudon. "These cases have had cancer some considerable time. We can say naturally that none were worse than before they took treatment a week ago, and that they have shown remarkable improvement is noted in the fact that two weeks ago they were comparatively lifeless and in great pain, whereas theis morning's observations showed that their appetites had improved appreciably, that their pains had visibly decreased, and their general sense of the fitness of things changed from aimless depair to very reasonable optimism.

"Dr. Glover has studied cancer, its cause and possibilities many years. He found that it developed in every part of the body where epithelial tissues predominated. Clear hereditary history in individual cases was rarely evidenced, and the disease has no direct relation with their injuries or abrasions. Neither was it contagious. It was found with both sexes, but perhaps more frequently among alcoholics, and more among the educated than among the uneducated classes. Dr. Glover experimented on white mice, rats, guinea pigs, rabbits and other animals. In these he injected types of active cancer. He then realized that if he could produce cancer he could also cure it.

"Dr. Glover then took other animals, protected them with special treatment, and was unable thus to produce any cancer. Later he treated those animals which had been injected and in which it had been produced, and cured them. Experiments repeated over and over again produced similar results. Finally Dr. Glover gave treatment to many patients at St. Michael's hospital, and this was followed by the clinic subject of our researches this morning."

Dr. Glover is a Toronto boy, a graduate of Toronto university, class 1909 or 1910, and has done much private research work in New York and public research work with many of the best known laboratories in America. He is a member of the staff of St. Michael's hospital, which body he desires to be closely associated with his success in this important field of research work.Toronto World

(By Fred Roo)

Jim Thistlebeak says: Be optimistic; get the fear out of your hearts; fear of the unknown. When business is dull don't stand around looking at the hole in the doughnut. Think some fun into your daily events. Don't be over-serious; it breeds disease germs, just as anger and hate induce cancer, tumor and liver troubles. Start a hurricane of jollity; break loose in a thunderstorm of mirth; it will clear the atmosphere under the roof just as the thunderstorm clears the atmosphere over the roof. Light the candle of a new thought and diligently sweep every corner of your mind and you shall find the rare treasure — happiness. Put fun into your thinking. Do not take yourself so serious. Put the red blood of mirth into your daily thinking, and take a run down to Elko, where you can inhale the pure air of heaven and see the magnetic mountains you have read about in the Arabian Nights.

W. B. Bamford, Nelson, C.P.R. general passenger and freight agent, was in Elko and Kootenay river points this week. Just from Toronto but a railroader who will make good, with the nerve to tackle the hardest thing, with feet that climb and handshake that clings, and a heart that never forgets to sing. That's pep.

W. J. Bowser, the ex and next premier of B.C., was in Elko last week for a short visit with Fred Roo, publicity booster of the Old Historic Burg. And he will come back to Elko because he knows he will get the best of the whole darned show.

The Elko school children were entertained to a picnic by the parents in Westmoreland Park. Mesdames T. Roberts, Foisy, Duncan, Swanon, Ingham, Birnie, Lacey, Edmunds, Neldrett and others assisted Miss Anderson, the teacher, in making the children happy. The weather was ideal and typical of the town. There are millions of ways to be happy, too many to recall, and the man that is proud of his children owns more than the man with his gold. The picnic was called to leave the school at 11 o'clock but the kiddies were around long before that, tooting tin horns that you'd think Al. G. Barnes had doubled back to Elko, where the weather coaxes the flowers to bloom and the onions make the potato eyes water, and the weeping willows weep, but different with the kiddies, who were wearing smiles that made you happy, and the afternoon was spent in games, races, and the way those children enjoyed themselves was a good prescription for the blues. You have often heard them say pies like mother used to make. Well there were sandwiches, cakes and pies that the mothers made and about 75 of mother's boys and girls to eat them, and the grown-ups were more than satisfied to see that their efforts had been a success. Thanks to Mrs. Tom Duncan for the ice cream.

Jim Thistlebeak says that some men play second fiddle all their lives when they might lead the orchestra if they had any pep.

There is to be a new biography of John Calvin to be brought out during the celebration of his birth. Suppose Calvin had not died, there would not be a freethinker on earth. He would have burned them at the stake as fast as they had showed their heads. There are worse things than death, and Calvin was one of them, and the pious frauds that banned the Finished Mystery is as bad as Calvin. The world moves if the church doesn't. The mintage of wisdom is to know that rest is rust, and that real life is in love, laughter and work. As Jim Thistlebeak said the other evening after working 18 hours: This work is a pleasure only there's geeting to be too damned much of it.

Good advertising always creates criticism. If you have nothing to say, say nothing and stick to it. If you don't know how to create comment, see the editor of this great family paper and he'll start you advertising that will bring the grist to your mill.

Miss E. B. Paterson, Kootenay Orchards, is visiting at Roosville, the guest of Miss E. May Roo, before leaving for the east for the holidays.

The Hornby Restaurant Co. have opened a short order cafe at Rock Creek, Reeder Park, near Caithness. There are some splendid camping places in the park which can be had from the manager of the cafe.

Jack Pillsworth Lowe, the whirlwind express agent of Fernie, was down to Elko for a few days this week, after visiting Spokane, Wash. Conductors and trainmen say that Jack can handle more express in less time than any agent on the whole C.P.R. system.

Some of the travellers visiting the Old Historic Burg the past week may be mentioned. Jas. A. Black from the Orkney-Corkney Islands, for a Vancouver house, with laces and shawls he claims that are worn by the uncrowned Empresses on Cordova St. and around English Bay. Any one of them will assay 98 per cent pure ginger. M. M. Awty of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., with a memory for figures like a filing cabinet and a jovial personality. The Alberta Meat Trust burning up gas and seeing how many miles they could cover on a gallon of soap grease. Oscar Jacobson, the oldest of the three, with special price on peameal backs and pork bellies with the buttons on. Reddy Baldwin with a smile you could warm your hands on, with specials on side bacon and reckless rabbit, and a side line of beef tallow face cream. Baldy had a very bad start as the firm had quit the Crow line several times and dealers were shy of giving him any business but he is cutting into the tenderloin. R. F. Newton, the last on the route but offering fancy prices on rolling stock cheese for fall delivery, and lamb chops in disguise, for immediate. The trio are all blondes and Beau Brummels. Earsine from Vernon, with biccuit flour and rolled oats, a gentleman and a scholar, and gives you a close figure on car load lots. L. s. Ponsford, an old timer who used to work this territory in the early days with a line of fly hooks and dip nets, now selling ladies wear for a coast house and doing well. Joe McMullen, that eminent soapologist from Calgary with a smile as contagious as a sneeze. Jack Ingham of Fernie working like a blue streak all day, then driving a tin lizzie at night to get back to headquarters. Sheppard, an old Fernieite, brother of Chas. Sheppard, with hardware and silos, hay rakes and safety razors and an infallible grease remover, but when it comes to selling blacksmiths' anvils he is there in seven separate and distinct languages.

A party of geologists from Milwaukee, U.S.A., are camped south of the town taking observations of the different formations of the Elk Canyon and Castle Mountain north of the town.

Hugh L. Stevens, the well known hotel man, was in Elko on Saturday. Mr. Stevens owned the Melbourne hotel in Elko, which was fired last fall by paid incendiary, that burned the whole of block one. The hotel was vacant at the time with no insurance on the building, which was used for a purpose and a shield.

Several families from Lethbridge are here renting furnished rooms and cottages. The improvements made down at Canyon Park make it ideal for campers and picnicers.

James Findlay of Cranbrook and Shawnigan Lake was down to Elko this week and Flagstone, also looking over the Rock Creek Lumber moll plat in the Roosville Valley. While in Elko he was over the list with Fred Roo as to who would be eligible for the ex-mayors' banquet to be held in Cranbrook in the near future, which will top anything ever held in southeast Kootenay.

The Rainbow Creek Lumber Co. of Roosville Valley, have five motor trucks hauling lumber to the Eureka Lumber Co. yards at Eureka, Mont.

"JOHN PETTICOATS"

Ladies, how would you like to buy your spring hat from Bill Hart. That's not as improbable as it seems, for the noted two-gun man is proprietor of a modiste shop in his new Paramount-Artcraft picture "John Petticoats," which is coming to the Orpheum Friday and Saturday. The filming of the story, which was supervised by Thomas H. Ince, took the famous star from the great North woods to the old Creole section of New Orleans. He starts as a lumberjack and is surprised to learn that he has inherited a modiste shop from a deceased uncle in the Southern city. Determined to investigate, "Hardwood" John Haynes, the hero, played by Mr. Hart, travels to New Orleans and there becomes involved in a serio-comedy of big dramatic scenes, laughs and a pretty little romance.

Mr. Hart is said to be thoroughly at home in this strikingly new type of role and to shine as brightly in a dress suit as he does in the familiar garb of his Western parts.

WINDERMERE-BANFF ROAD

Invermere, B.C., June 28.—Latest advices relative to the reconstruction of the Banff-Windermere automobile highway from the west end are to the effect that the present contract work will probably be completed by the end of July. When this is finished it will enable travellers to go from here to the height of land and look down upon the waters of the swift running Kootenay River. Other further word is that Lieut. C. A. Davidson has been despatched into the valley of Kootenay river proper with a gang of men with instructions to push along the work of making a road suitable for wagon traffic to the crossing of the Kootenay river. The camp for this gang has been started on its way. The completion of these two stretches will mean that automobiles may travel up the road for a distance of approximately 17 miles from the mouth of the Sinclair Canyon, and by late fall wagons may travel to the Kootenay river, the extreme distance from this end then being about 35 miles. If the work is pushed with equal dispatch from the other end, it may be possible to take the through trip from this place to Banff by car before the close of the automobile season of 1921.

ARE YOU WILD ?

"'Who's the stranger, Mother dear?
Look! He knows us! Ain't he queer?"

"'Hush, my own! Don't talk so wild,
That's your father, dearest child!'

"'He's my father? No such thing!
Father died, you know, last spring!'

"'Father didn't die, you dub!
Father joined a golfing club.
But they closed the club, so he
Had no place to go, you see!
No place left for him toroam—
That's why he is coming home.

"'Kiss him—he won't bite you, child;
All them golfing guys look wild!"

LOCAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

The regular meeting of the Local Council of Women was held in the council chamber on Monday evening, June 27.

The meeting found it necessary to forego the lecture by Mrs. Nellie McClung, as the date fixed by her, July 5, seemed a very poor time and likely to prove a disappointment both to the distinguished speaker and those interested in hearing her.

Discussion re the establishment of a local maternity ward resulted in the recommendation that a school or district nurse was both a more necessary and more practical objective.

The Education committee reported that the facilities would soon be secured for the erection of playground apparatus on the West Fernie and Annex school grounds.

The next meeting will be held in September.

What offers for a partly finished, 6 roomed house in the Annex Extension, two blocks from the school. A large corner lot; Lot 5, Block 89. Apply Mr. T. W. Bolderston, Red Gap, Vancouver Island, B.C. A23-2m

ONE PENNY—FIVE POUNDS

The issue of fifty-centime "paper" to meet the shortage of small change in Paris may recall the smallest note ever issued in this country. By some mistake the Bank of England printed and issued in 1868 one solitary note for the value of a penny, which, once in circulation, was a source of annoyance to the cashiers in making up their account, for, I believe, over half a century. In the end it passed into the hands of some one who realized the value of its destruction. He took it to the bank and easily obtained $25 for it.—London Daily Express.

At a meeting of the board of trade executive arrangements were completed for the entertainment of the Vancouver board of trade, which body, about 30 strong, will arrive in Cranbrook at 8.30 Saturday evening, July 17. A banquet is being arranged for Saturday night when the visitors will be the guests of the local board until Monday morning, when they leave for the north, going via the Kootenay Central through the Columbia Valley. During their stay in Cranbrook they will be taken to the Sullivan mine at Kimberley, the farming section of St. Mary's prairie and Fort Steele.—Cranbrook Courier.

VISITORS WILL ARRIVE TONIGHT

Forty of the leading business men of Vancouver and Victoria, representing the Vancouver Board of Trade, will reach Fernie this evening in two special cars and remain with us for a whole day, leaving for Cranbrook on Saturday evening.

At a special meeting of the executive of the Board of Trade it was decided to entertain the party and the following arrangements have been made:

As the party are travelling direct from Nelson to here, it was thought that after such a long and hot journey they would not care for any formal proceedings on their arrival, so they will be met at the depot in an informal manner and arrangements will be made to take as many of them as care for it, for a drive of an hour or so.

On Saturday morning the Coal Co. will run a special up to Coal Creek and the party will be shown around. On the return to Fernie they will be entertained at lunch at the Fernie Hotel, after which the whole party will be driven to Elko for a visit to the Canyon, and if time permits the trip will be extended to Waldo and the return timed to reach Fernie by about 6 o'clock.

The committees to handle the affair are as follows: Lunch, T. Prentice and E. K. Stewart. Trip to Mines: R. Young. Securing autombiles, Dr. W. E Gee and J. F. Spalding.

About 20 cars will be needed and those willing to help out are asked to hand their names to the committee in charge at once A few cars may be needed for this evening and if those able to will be at the station to meet the train their kindness will be appreciated.

Following is a list of the visitors: D. A. McKelvie, Vancouver Province; B. F. Gorrie, Taylor Engineering Company; T. S. Dixon, Gault Bros.; Ald. Joseph Patrick, Victoria; James B. DROWNED AT ELKO

Shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon a deplorably shocking fatal drowning accident occurred in the vicinity of the Upper Elk Falls, when little seven year old Marjorie Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eder Harpe, Victoria Avenue, of this city, fell into the river and was at once swept down stream through the raging canyon torrent. Mrs. Harper, the mother of the child, with other children of her own and some visiting girls, were spending the day picnicing at Elko Falls. Supper was prepared at one of the numerous expanses along the canyon gorge while the children were playing nearer the river near the upper falls. They were called to partake of the meal prior to taking the eastbound train on the return journey to this city, and as far as can be ascertained the little child instead of following one of the proper paths from the river side up to the picnic ground, attempted to scale the precipitous rocky cliff, and overbalancing toppled backword into the seething stream and in the twinkling of an eye was swept to instant death and utterly beyond human power to rescue. Constable Gorman was at once notified and instituted a vigorous search but this has so far been unavailing. Owing to the extremely high velocity of the stream through the canyon at this season of the year it may be some time before the remains are recovered, as immediately below the place where the accident occurred the Elk river for some miles passes through a canyon gorge.

The deepest sympathy of the citizens of this community are extended to the bereaved parents.

This locality is an extremely popular picnic and camping place for Fernieites and while it is very dangerous to venture too close to the river this tragedy is the first to have ever occurred at the Falls in the recollection of the oldest residents.

TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION

City Chief Lawson, accompanied by Constable Dunlap, yesterday made a sudden visit to the King's Hotel and searching behind the bar obtained a bottle alleged to contain intoxicating liquor. From there they paid a similar visit to the bar of the Fernie Hotel, and again a bottle was found. Informations will be laid against Mrs. Anna Mills in whose name the licence of the King's Hotel was granted, and against Mrs. Alice Wyatt, licensee of the Fernie. The authorities appear to have decided to strictly enforce the Prohibition Act in all local hotel establishments, and while it is understood that in each of the above cases the charge will only be that of having intoxicating liquor in other than a private dwelling, thereby limiting the fine in the event of accused being found guilty, it will also be a salutary warning to other places that contravene the Prohibition Act and Beverage Licence By-law.

No trace of the bodies of Mrs. Moe or Mrs. Blaine has yet been found, though it is hoped that the search will prove successful as soon as the water in St. Mary's river abates, permitting an absolutely thorough search of all the pools and eddies in the stream. A reward has been offered for the recovery of either body. —Cranbrook Herald.

FRED ROO CROSSES DIVIDE

Fred Roo, one of the most highly respected residents of this district, died very suddenly on Monday last at Elko, following an attack of acute indigestion, with which he became afflicted a few hours prior to his demise. The deceased had not been suffering from ill health and the unexpected sudden visitation of the Grim Reaper in claiming him, one of the most prominent characters, plunged the bright and cheerful community of Elko into the deepest gloom. Simultaneously as the news spread to other localities in this district, in every remote corner of which he was known, with the realization of the loss of this outstanding individual, the mantle of sadness and sincere regret was wafted. Fred Roo was one of the earliest settlers in this district having come into this section of the Pass ahead of the construction of the C.P.R. Crow line, some 25 years ago. He first settled by taking up a fairly large area of land south of Elko, near the International boundary, in what is now known as the Roosville Valley, and which land has been successfully developed for agricultural purposes, stock raising and also for the very fine quality of apples now produced there. Having keen business perception, he opened a general store at Tobacco Plains and soon worked up a thriving business. He also became exceedingly popular with the Indians on Tobacco Plains reservation and ever since the early days was indeed a white father to them. Through his friendly artivities on behalf of the Redskins he was accorded the honorary non-de-plume of "Chief Jim Thistlebeak." His business success has been very largely due to his keen belief in advertising the locality in which he resided and the surrounding territory. His humorous narratives and weekly notes during recent years were published in various daily and weekly publications and these continually kept Elko and the district in the public eye. As the demands upon his trading business grew he was quick to realize the opportunities for expansion and opened stores at Elko and Flagstone, and these with the original post established at Roosville were being successfully operated under his management at the time of his death.

Deceased is survived by his widow, three married daughters, one unmarried daughter, and Fred, Jr. The family residence is at Roosville and the funeral will be held from there on Sunday, interment taking place in the family plot at Roosville cemetery. He was 57 years of age and always enjoyed vigorous god health. On Sunday last he journeyed from Elko to the ranch and owing to having this opportunity to partake of choice seasonable viands he ate largely. He felt no ill effects until early Monday morning when between five and six o'clock he ordered a car to convey him to consult Dr. Saunders at Baynes, as he was suffering from severe abdominal pains. He received treatment and returned to Elko and opened the store. However, as he was still ill, he left the store in charge of his clerk and repaired to a room in the Columbia hotel, and later received further medical attention and appeared to be relieved and at no time showed any critical symptoms. At 11.30 he was sleeping peacefully and his pulse was quite normal, at 12 noon he appeared to be in the same condition, but at 12.20, when visited, life was found extinct.

With the death of Fred Roo, British Columbia and Fernie district in particular, loses the greates single handed booster the west has ever produced.

COMMUNICATION

Mr. Editor—Would you please allow me space in your paper to apologize for a statement I made on the council board some time ago regarding the Veterans. It has been drawn to my notice since, that I was in error, although I made it in good faith. We are all under a deep obligation to the Veterans who went overseas and fought our battles.

TAKE LIQUOR PLEBISCITE ON OCTOBER 25

Ottawa, July 1.3 — The Canada Temperance Act, commonly known as the Scott Act, will be voted upon on October 25 in the Yukon territory and the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and Nova Scotia; and possibly one or two other provinces. The vote will be on the question of whether a provincial-wide Scott Act shall be adopted, and thus prohibit the importation or conveying of liquor from other countries or other provinces into the provinces adopting the act. It will be a definte "yes" or "no," and one question only. Alexander Smith, barrister, and election authority of this city, points out that "the lists to be used will be the liss to be prepared under the new Dominion Election and Franchise Act as this act has repealed the War Times Election Act and other federal election laws of unhappy memory."

BULL FIGHT AT CROW'S NEST

A bull fight which narrowly escaped a fatal ending, took place at Crow's Nest last Friday, when Alec Emery of that place measured his strength and mentality with a ferocious three year old bull, which had gotten loose from his tethering and went wandering about the place.

Mr. Emery, who by the way, is seventy-one years of age, fearing the bull might attack a small grandchild who was playing about, undertook to lead the bull back to the corrall where he could be confined. He was able to get the bull as far as the corrall without much protest from the animal but when inside the bars, Mr. Emery dropped a club which he had taken the precaution to carry with him. The animal was quick to take advantage of his opportunity and at once attacked Mr. Emery in a most ferocious manner.

Being without any means of defence except his two good hands the man began a most one sided contest for his life.

When seen by the reporter next day at the Fernie hospital, whither he had been removed after his miraculous escape from death, Mr. Emery was resting easily, although he had sustained two broken ribs, a badly crushed foot and many other bruises and contusions scattered over his body. Mr. Emery was resting easily and had recovered from the effects upon his nerves sufficiently to be able to see a little of the humorous side, if there was such a side to the fight.

It was a three round affair, the total time being about haif an hour and as there was no referee, and no money in connection with this fight, it may be said that it was fought on the merits of the two unequal contestants.

Three times Mr. Emery succeeded in gaining his feet after being thrown to the ground and trampled by the bull in its efforts to get one of his horns inside Emery's anatomy.

Finally Mr. Emery succeeded in getting the bulldog hold with finger and thumb in the nostrils of the bull and getting a good hold upon a horn with his other hand Mr. Emery put all his strength in one mighty effort to kink the neck of the bull and was so successful that he made the animal forget his enemy for a brief moment, during which the man made a spring for the gate and succeeded in placing that obstruction between himself and his assailant in time to end the fight.

Although it was a "bully" fight, to use a Roosveltian expression, it was too one-sided an affair to suit Mr. Emery, and he feels that his escape from a horrible death was little less than a miracle.

The bull is the property of John Strong.

Mr. Emery, though 71 years of age, is still a hale and hearty man, blessed with a full share of courage and strength, or the ending of the fight would certainly have been a fatality.

Mr. Emry said that when the bull had got him down for the third time and was down upon him with his knees and endeavoring to land a side thrust with his horn, he thought it must be time to pray, but there was no time for praying while the fight went on.

Dr. Asselstine, who has charge of the case, reports that while Mr. Emery's injuries are painful there is not likely to be any serious complications as his patient is of so robust and vigorous constitution as to ensure a speedy recovery from his injuries.

COULD SUPPLY COAL MARKET

Calgary, July 10.—The statement of "a leading coal merchant" in Montreal, contained in a Canadian Press dispatch from that city that the mines in the west "already market all their own product" is just one of those instances, in the opinion of coal operators and others here, of the deliberate campaign on the part of some people in the east to keep the western product out of the eastern market. The actual facts are that many domestic coal mines in Alberta, owing to lack of orders, are at the present time only working about 25 per cent of their capacity. This particularly applies to Drumheller, the largest domestic coal producing district of the province.

When the dispatch mentioned was shown to W. F. McNeill, the secretary of the Western Coal Operators' Association, this official at once referred to Drumheller as a case in point where lack of orders was the cause of the present limited output. The Montreal merchant, he said, was utterly unacquainted with the actual position of affairs in the west.

In Mr. McNeill's opinion the thing for eastern people to do was to make arrangements for all the coal they could get from the United States to go to Ontario and Quebec, allowing the western coal to take care of markets from the Great Lakes west. That, he said, was a feasible proposition. He strongly asserted that it was the height of folly for people in Manitoba to burn eastern coal when the people of Ontario were suffering for want of the product and mines in Alberta were shut down owing to there being no orders.

F. E. Harrison, assistant to W. F. Armstrong, the director of coal operations, stated that the Montreal man was talking nonsense. If the price of coal, including the freight, would be satisfactory to the eastern consumer, Alberta could supply them with all their requirements. He confirmed the fact that at the present time the Drumheller fields alone were only working to about 25 per cent of their capacity.

BILLIE BURKE HAS STRENUOUS TIME AS BRIDE IN NEW FILM

Playing much the same sort of role in which she proved so charming in "The Misleading Widow," Billie Burke is again the misjudged young wife who gets herself in and out of a laughable mess in "Sadie Love," her new Paramount-Artcraft picture, to be shown at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday. The story was adapted from Avery Hopwood's well known Broadway farce by the same name. It centres around a vivacious girl who shortly after her marriage to a handsome Italian count imagined herself in love with a "twin soul" with whom she had had an affair some time previous.

The entrance of her soul mate's wife and of a French countess, an old flame of the young Italian's, complicate matters and cause an estrangement between the newly married pair. However, Sadie, the heroine, is really in love with her husband, and matters straighten themselves out in the end, but not before a series of amusing episodes.

Prominent in the cast supporting Billie Burke is James L. Crane, the talented actor who was her leading man in "The Misleading Widow." Others are Helen Montrose, Hedda Hopper, Jed Prouty, and Shaw Lovett. John S. Robertson was the director.

VEIL FACES NO MORE

Turkish women are no longer the shy, veiled creatures who passed their time in the seclusion of the harem and were never seen by foreign men.

They still cling to the veil, but the streets in Constantinople and other larger Turkish cities are filled with women who have their veils thrown back from their faces. They are highly ornamental and becoming.

Most Turkish women don't want to abandon them in favor of hats. But there are many sorts of veils and the smart black silk veils which some women wear are very fetching when draped artistically over their hair.

In railways and street cars there are special seats for women, but the flimsy curtains which are supposed to screen them from the gaze of men are usually drawn back, and it is not uncommon to see men standing in the compartments of women.

Only very old men, however, are rash enough to sit down in the same seat with a Turkish woman. Turkish women seldom go to a theatre where there are men. Special matinees and evening performances are arranged for women only.

The war has done much to break down the barrier between Turkish men and women. The women were needed so badly as nurses and relief workers that the government had to avail itself of their services; and now it is regarded as quite proper for men and women to be associated in all sorts of charitable and educational works.

Consequently, many women who were formerly forced to content themselves with seclusion in a home where fancy work and French novels were the only diversion are devoting their time to hospitals, orphanages and other philanthropic institutions.

Women who have been educated abroad or in the foreign schools in Turkey are the leaders in this movement for greater freedom for their sex. Their broad expeience in war work has interested many women in politics, and they have openly played a great part in the nationalist movement.

In the Constantinople American Women's College, Turkish girls take great interest in basketball and other athletic games, and the effect upon women who have come under foreign influence is making the old life of seclusion and inactivity unattractive to younger Turkish women.

WHAT HE WAS FIT FOR

In an Irish courthouse an old man was called into the witness box, and, being confused and somewhat nearsighted, he went up the stairs that led to the bench instead of those that led to the box.

The judge, good humoredly, said, "Is it a judge you want to be, my good man?"

"Ah, sure, yer worship," was the reply. "I'm an old man now, and mebbe it's all I'm fit for."

EMPLOYMENT STATISTICS

Reports were tabulated from 506 firms in British Columbia, with an aggregate payroll of 64,249 persons. As compared with their returns for the preceding week, the statement shows that these firms had, on the whole increased their staffs by 760 persons or ne and two-tenths per cent. Firms in 18 industrial groups recorded increases totalling 843, while in 7 groups increases aggregated 63 persons were reported. An increase for the week of June 12 had been anticipated and the returns show that the actual increase exceeded that expected.

For the following week firms in 6 industrial groups anticipated having additions in their staffs amounting to 320 persons, in 5 groups no changes were proposed, while in 14 groups it was expected that decreases totalling 171 persons would occur. The net increase, therefore, anticipated for the week of June 19 was 149 persons or two tenths of one per cent.

As compared with their returns for January 17, firms in 20 groups reported that they had enlarged their staff by 5525 persons. In six groups, however, declines totalling 1343 persons were recorded. The net increase, therefore, registered by thse 490 firms since their returns for the middle of June was 4102 persons or 7 per cent.

Plus Industries—The following were the most substantial increases recorded as compared with the return for June 5:

Hotels and Restaurants, an increase of 165 persons.

Railway Transportation, an increase of 171 persons.

Water Transportation, an increase of 207 persons.

Minus Industries—The largest decrease as compared with their returns for the preceding week were reported by fims in Building Construction and Coal Mining, 39 and 23 fewer persons being employed in these groups respectively. For the following week further though smaller decreases were anticipated in these groups, the changes in the remaining minus industries, both actual and anticipated were nominal in character.

As rompared with returns from the identical employers for Jan. 17, large increases in staffs were reported in logging, building and railway construction, edible animal products, edible plant products, pulp and paper, non-ferrous metal products, miscellaneous manufacturing industries, hotels and restaurants, telephone operation, wholesale trade, railway and water transportation, that of 2172 persons registered in railway construction being the most noteworthy. In ten other groups increases of a minor character were recorded. On the other hand, large declines were reported by fims in lumber and its products, iron and steel, and coal mining, that of 887 persons in iron and steel products being the largest. In three other groups decreases of a minor nature were registered.

HUNT SARDINES WITH SEAPLANES

California promises to be the greatest sardine canning centre of the world as the result of the use of seaplanes in the industry on the Pacific Coast. Since the first of the year naval seaplanes have been flying out from the sea coast sighting schools of fish and sending a wireless back to the naval station giving the direct location. The naval station then telephones the information to the San Diego office of the Fish and Game Commission. Fishing boats are immediately directed exactly where to seek their game and are consequently assured of a big catch.—Wall Street Journal.

STRONG AND HAPPY WOMAN ONCE MORE

Gained Fifteen Pounds and Troubles All Gone Since Taking Tanlac

"My health was never better in all my life and I have gained fully fifteen pounds since I began taking Tanlac," said Mrs. Isabella Garrie, 729 College Ave., St. Johns, Winnipeg, Canada.

"My suffering began a year and a half ago," she continued, "and since that time life has hardly been worth living. My appetite was so poor that half the time I didn't want to look at anything to eat, and when I did force down a little something it soured on my stomach. After eating I always had a heavy, nauseated feeling and my heart palpitated so bad I could hardly breathe. Often I became dizzy and faint and everything would turn dark before my eyes and for a minute or more I would be perfectly blind and would have to hold on to the nearest thing for support. My nerves were on edge all the time and the little noises I had always been accustomed to would upset me and I could hardly keep from screaming out. I suffered with such terrible sick headaches spells that I would have to go to bed and stay there for days at a time. More than half the time I was not able to do a bit of my housework and I did not know what a night's sleep was, but would lie awake for hours unable to close my eyes. I had a frightful pain across my back nearly all the time and it was perfect agony for me to bend over and try to straighten up again. I also suffered with rehumatism in my arms and knees, and they were so stiff and ached so I could hardly bend them. It was difficult for me to comb my hair and I had so many pains through my body I didn't know which was the worst.

"My only regret now is that I did not take Tanlac as soon as a friend of mine recommended it to me, but after I did start taking it my troubles began leaving me right away. I could feel the rheumatism and pains disappearing and now they are entirely gone. My appetite is fine and I enjoy everything I eat, for it agrees with me perfectly. The headache and dizzy, fainty spells have all gone and my nerves are perfectly steady and strong. I sleep like a child every night and I can do every bit of my housework without the least trouble. I feel as well and strong as I ever did in my whole life, and I have recommended Tanlac to all my friends and neighbors and I will always praise it every chance I get."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in ecery town.

KISSES AND COMFORTERS BOTH BAD FOR BABY

Toronto, July 12.—Toronto mothers are warned by Dr. C. J. Hastings, the local officer of health, not to kiss their babies on the mouth. "Babies are too precious to experiment on," counsels the medical officer of health and "therefore do not hesitate to ask your best friend to leave your baby alone." He denounced in strong terms the pernicious practice of giving baby a "comforter" as a pacifier and declares that the manufacture of comforters should be prohibited by law.

A CAREER WORTH WATCHING

England has had its Rothchilds; America its Vanderbilts, Goulds and Carnegie; Germany had its Krupp. Today another name has arisen in the land of the ex-kaiser that bids fair to lead the world a race in the matter of financial astuteness and the things that money may buy. In a recent issue the London Daily Mail told something of the story of Hugo Stinnes, the richest man in Germany, who, thru means of his millions, is stretching out and taking possession of industries in such a masterly manner that he is already one of the dominant figures in the world's activities.

Recently, according to the correspondent of the London paper, Stinnes quietly bought up the printing firm which controls the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, the government organ, in this way taking it from government control. He also engaged General von Ludendorf as military expart. He is the owner of the Munich-Augsburg Gazette and another paper in the Ruhr district. A recent purchose is the Buxenstein printing business, bought at a cost of something like five million dollars. The purchase includes a dozen other papers.

Additional interests attributed to Stinnes are the control of fifteen groups of coal mines which extend into France, immense ore and metal interests in Germany and Luxembourg, six wholesale coal distribution centres, a score of large shopping concerns, a cellulose business, a hotel, a textile factory, an automobile business in the chief city—Berlin. The lately purchased Deutsche Alligemeine Zeitung, which, according to report was to come into existence under its new garb this month, is to be a world-renowned paper like the London Times.

TOURISTS DELIGHTED

The last few weeks I have been so busy sending out our publicity circulars, and with so many tourists calling at the office which takes up a great deal of time, I have not been able to run the publicity column as well. However, the circulars are all out now, asd this column will appear regularly from now on.

Owing to the late spring and very bad weather on the prairies which has made the roads nearly impassable, the season has been very late in starting, up to last week practically the only motorists going through have been people on business. The real tourists are coming through now and if the last few days are any indication there will be a steady stream of them until the end of the season. A good percentage of them are taking advantage of the Information Bureau and express considerable appreciation of the advantage of being able to get information to help them along, this is something that is badly needed in all the large centres, and those who have called have said that outside of Winnipeg, Vancouver and Spokane there are none. There is supposed to be one in Calgary, but a tourist told me the other day that he went to them for directions to reach here, and they did not even give him the correct way out of Calgary.

Already I am receiving quite a few enquiries respecting fishing and hunting, these are coming from as far off as New York and Frisco, and are a direct result of the booklet and circular. If it had not been for the high water here, during last week and this week, I could have kept six different parties here for fishing, but they secured their licenses here and I sent thm to Rock and Sand Creks. One party of 12 in two cars from Calgary are going up to Lake Windermere Camp at Invermere for a month, and the men folk are coming back here the first week in August to spend a week fishing here and at the South Fork. Three other parties have decided to come for some fishing at the end of this month.

The city council made us take the banner off the pole on account of being afraid that the strain would be too much for it, and we have been unable to get permission to put a bracket on the building across the way so that we can have it across the street where it can be seen the whole length of the street. This is unfortunate because I am sure that many more tourists would call at the office and I should have a better chance to get some of them to break their journey here for a few days. Both garages have told me that tourists have told them they wanted the information bureau and would have stopped when passing it if they had known where it was, but would not bother to go back. Where it is now, it can only be seen when they are level with it and then only if they are looking up. The council refused to allow us to put up another pole. We all admit that the poles are unsightly, but if an additional one will enable us to bring more business into the town by getting tourists to stay a while, I for one, think that it is a short-sighted policy not to allow it to be put up. There are more unsightly things in this town than an extra pole on the main street would be, which little or no effort apparently is made to remedy.

My statement last summer, that we had the best roads and finest scenery in North America, was received with a considerable amount of skepticism. The Register in the Bureau, which contains expressions of the opinions of some of the turists will make rather interesting reading, and I should like some of our business men to take enough interest to come up and read them. Here are a few samples:

H. A. Sasse, of Britton, S. Dakota, says, after driving 9000 miles through Arizona, Texas, Utah, California, Oregon and Washington: "Outside of California, these roads are the best we have found."

Arthur Lakes, of Spokane: "United States roads in sad contrast with those in B.C.,, H. H. Clifford, of Calgary: "Alberta roads are a crime and a disgrace. Am highly pleased with your roads and scenery."

F. Ratcliffe and party, of San Francisco: "If there are better roads anywhere, we have yet to find them, and as for scenery, it is wonderful. The conservative tone of your advertising has been a pleasant surprise to us, as we have found it all better than we expected."

P. Massersmith, Dallas, Texas: "We are glad we came this way as we have enjoyed this part best of all. We have seen some lovely scenery all through, but nothing to equal this here. The beautiful roads of B. C. enables one to fully enjoy the wonders of your mountains. We wish that our time would let us make a longer stay, but we hope to come back this way from Chicago." This man says this after driving through Yellowstone and Glacier Parks, Mount Rainier National Park and all the resorts between Los Angeles and Spokane.

Dr. Fred Stockton, of Calgary: "We were planning another trip, but on receipt of your folder we were attracted to this trip. We are thoroughly delighted and consider ourselves very lucky to have received the booklet, otherwise we would never hav known about it."

What little time I have had for observation, I have spent watching as many of these tourists as I could so as to get a line on what stores they patronize, and if anyone from now on tells me that it is only the hotels and garages who get any benefit out of them, I'm going to tell them that they are chronic pessimists. Last week a tourist even wanted a dentist, and today one wanted a doctor. Everybody gets a whack at it one way or another.

Look out for something extra interesting next week.

—J. F. Spalding.

TOURISTS REQUIRE CONSULAR PAPERS

Word has just been received from the Collector of Customs at Eastport, Idaho, advising that automobile tourists approaching the International Boundary should carry a certificate of identification or invoice from the Fernie Consulate. Tourists neglecting to take this precaution may, upon arrival at the Boundary, be required to give bond for their car and deposit the amount of duty as security. The foregoing does not, however, apply to local parties who may be known to the Collector or can otherwise satisfy him as to their identity.

The staement published in our issue several weeks ago relative to this matter was premature.

MAY ENFORCE NEW RULE OF ROAD BEFORE 1921

(Victoria Colonist)

Public sentiment throughout the province favored a change in the rule of the road, and the provincial government took steps to bring about the change only after becoming thoroughly convinced of this preponderance of opinion, Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works, told members of the board of trade yesterday at their quarterly luncheon in the Dominion Hotel.

Dr. King reviewed the negotiations that had led up to the legislation providing for the enforcement of the right hand rule in the interior sections of the province July 15, 1920, and in the lower mainland and Island districts in 1921.

"Before the government took action," said Dr. King, "we received letters from boards of trade, auto associations, trades and labor councils and other public organizations all over the province recommending that the change be made. As conditions are now, British Columbia is isolated with the left hand rule, the Maritime provinces being the only other territory that abides by the old English system. The provinces bordering on the United States long ago adopted the continental system and thus have eliminated all danger resulting from confusion of road rules.

"When horse traffic predominated it was all right to continue under the old system," continued the minister. "But the motor has now become the established mode of transportation, and the people now generally recognize that there must be uniformity in road rules if accidents are to be avoided. It may be difficult for some people to recognize the danger now, but we must look to the future. Eventually we would be forced to make the change, and there is no advantage in delay."

Dr. King said that the provincial government would see that every effort was made to make the public conversant with the new conditions as soon as the turn to the right rule took effect. An extensive publicity campaign, he said, would be undertaken, and motorists would be compelled to paste printed warnings on the windshields of their cars until such time as the new rule became definitely established in the mind of the public. Road signs everywhere would be altered to conform with the new conditions.

He said that the delay in enforcing the right hand rule in District No. 1, embracing Vancouver Island and adjacent islands and the lower mainland, was largely due to the difficulty experienced by the British Columbia Electric Railway in changing the tracks. He hoped that before 1921 it would be possible for the government to reach an understanding with the company whereby the law could be enforced without further delay.

PATHFINDING ALL RED LINE

Winnipeg, July 12.—Driving his path-finding car in the first direct Montreal to Vancouver motor trip, Percy Gomery of Vancouver will leave Winnipeg for the west tomorrow. His object is to fix upon a transcontinental route for motor cars which will be Canadian to the fullest possible extent.

From Montreal to Winnipeg occupied 15 days and 900 miles of the distance was over United States roads. Mr. Gomery pointed out today that the line from Kenora to Port Arthur was the stumbling block in the all-red route and he predicted that upon the completion of this stretch of road large numbers of cars would travel to the Canadian Soo and then after being ferried to Port Arthur would resume the trip under their own power. Mr. Gomery had to take to the United States side of the boundary at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and came back into Canada at Emerson, Man.

On his westward trip Mr. Gomery will travel by way of Brandon, Moosomin, Regina, Lethbridge, Fernie and Cranbrook. He will have to cross the border for a distance in British Columbia but the completion of new roads which have been planned will in the future make this unnecessary.

WHEN THE PEOPLE SPEAK

The statesmen and politicians can go on if they choose keeping a fancy figure on their books and pleasing their Chambers and their constituents by so doing—until the inevitable day of reckoning comes—but if they want cash and an honest settlement of the account they must fix their figures on a business basis and put it at what they can reasonably expect to get and no higher. This is not a question into which national passions or politics enter at all; it is a question which ought to be settled by the experts of the different nations on cool and rational grounds and it can, in the long run, be settled in no other way.—Westminster Gazette.

WHAT WE LACK

It is computed that from half to two-thirds of the adverse trade balance of the nation last year was made good by the earnings of British shipping. It is a mistake for us to regard ships merely as carriers of goods and passengers; they are more than that. In the last analyis they are powerful agents in adjusting exchange, and thus enabling us to buy and sell to advantage. Nelson's Hardy, who became First Sea Lord of the Admiralty, used to declare that "Happen what may, it is England's duty to take and hold the lead." He was thinking of ships of war; we shall do well, while not ignoring the Navy, to interpret his words in terms of ships of commerce.—London Daily Telegraph.

Then, I used one box of 'Sootha-Salva' and two boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives' and my hands are now clear. The pain is gone and there has been no return. I think it is a marvellous cure because no other medicine did me any good and I tried all the remedies I ever heard of, without benefit until I used 'Sootha-Salva' and 'Fruit-a-tives.'

'Fruit-a-tives' cooled the blood and removed the cause of the disease, and 'Sootha-Salva' completed the cure."

Change of Heart in Mexico

General Alvaro Obregon says anti-Americanism is a dead issue in Mexico. "There is only one party in this country," he is quoted as saying, "and it has only one aim—to restore credit and end militarism by reducing the army to 50,000. I want o make it emphatic Mexico needs and will seek friendship and close co-operation of America and other countries. Mexico has found herself at last and will tolerate nothing but good government."—New York World.

SEAFARING BRITAIN

Control of classification and insurance is one of the means by which the British merchant marine has been built up. It has given British merchants and shipowners a ready means of gaining exact knowledge of their country's tonnage and of that of other countries, of the type of ship that is adapted to particular lines of trade and particular ports and of the commerce that is done by competing countries. That control, combined with that of cables and coaling stations, gives the British a great power over the world's trade which has gone far to establish British maritime and commercial supremacy. — Portland Oregonian.

BRITISH COLLIERY WARNINGS

In the year 1881 an anonymous individual began to issue warnings to British colleries of the approach of conditions which increased the danger of explosions in the mines. These warnings were not taken very seriously at first, because they went against the prevailing belief that explosions were more likely to occur when the barometer was low. As time went on, however, it was discovered that when the warnings were disregarded the deaths from explosion increased and that the annual loss of life was much lower in later years when belief in the warnings became more common. It has now been made known that the author of these warnings is Mr. Henry Harries, who recently retired from the British Meteorological Office. His study of the subject convinced him that when the barometer was high the increased weight of the air on the earth forced the gas out of the fissures and pockets in coal seams and so augmented the risk of explosion.

During his stay in Fernie he has always taken an active interest in the public affairs and was mayor for a term. He and his amiable wife are very highly respected members of this community and their departure will be deeply regretted by all.

The change in the rule of the road caused a serious accident near Hosmer last evening, when a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Sinclair and Mr. and Mrs. H. Perry, of Lethbridge, was run into by Wm. Shomer, of Fernie. Sinclair, who was driving the Lethbridge car, drew out on the right hand side to allow the Fernie car to pass but got the idea that the latter car was going to crash into him and swung out into the road, the two cars meeting in a head on collision. Sinclair was badly hurt by the steering wheel and was taken to the Fernie hospital. Both cars were wrecked.

Fernie won their game against Michel last Sunday, July 11, giving the Fernie boys two more valuable points. This was a strenuous game owing to the exereme heat and the even play most of the time. The game started at 4.30 p.m., Fernie winning the toss. They elected to play against the wind with the sun in their backs. Michel pressed most of the time, but they did not seem able to find the net. Finally Fernie broke away and scored, but the goal was disallowed as Dick Thornton fouled the ball. Fernie pressed immediately after and a nice goal was scored by Hardy, the centre forward. Michel started in to press and Fernie goal had some narrow escapes. Half time, Fernie 1, Michel 0. At the start of the second half the play was ding dong in mid field, and Michel kept Fernie defence busy for a time. Some nice combination was now indulged in by both sides. Dick Thornton got a nice pass from Booth and sent in a stinger which the Michel goalie was unable to hold. Fernie settled down to steady play and Michel played harder than ever but they were unable to get through Fernie's defence. The game ended Fernie 2, Michel 0.

It was a clean game throughout and Michel had just a little tough luck in not being able to score, as Fernie did not by any means have the play all to themselves. Michel made quite changes in their line-up and it made a big difference. Michel will still be heard from before the season is over. Fernie plays Coal Creek on Sunday, July 18, at Coal Creek.

BASEBALL

The local boys travelled to Cranbrook via train last Sunday and on to Wycliffe in cars, by courtesy of Crowe and Clark of the Wycliffe team, and lost out to Wycliffe in a fast game by a score of 5 to 1. Up to the fifth innings the play was fast and good, the score standing 1-0 in favor of Fernie. Then the Fernie team seemed to relax and Wycliffe got 1 in the fifth, 2 in the sixth and added two more in the seventh. While there arrangements were made for a return game which will be pulled off on Aug. 1.

Arrangements were under way for a game here on Sunday first but owing to the football game at Coal Creek the game was called off to let the football enthusiasts have full sway of the day.

FOR THINGS SENSATIONAL

That the world—meaning people—is ever on the lookout for the sensational, is nowhere shown to a greater extent than in the big city. In the country where a wagon passing down the lonely road, a group of children on their way to school, a man in the distant field walking up and down after his steadily-going team, are the only sights that break the monotony of the daily grind, it is excusable if things apparently small in themselves are the occasion of a good-sized sensation. In the city, however, it might be expected that plethora of incident would result in more or less indifference or at least passivity, but this by no means follows. Three or four persons standing before a shop window is enough at any time to draw a crowd who stretch necks in an endeavor to look over the heads of their neighbors to find out in what they are interested.

Just now there is an unusual desire to learn anything that tends to enlighten on things psychic. Anyone who comes along with a 'cult' or with self-advertised information as to the "planes" with which he is supposed to have communication or who professes to know those who have had this inside knowledge, is sure of an audience and a hearing. The unrest of various character that covers the universe shows itself in an acute form in regard to things outside the plane of Mother Earth upon which humanity as we know it has been cast.

The strangest thing about this thirst for psychic knowledge is the creduality of its votaries. Many in advance have already thrown over evidence of the Scriptures, of tradition, of the writing of scholars and sages, men who gave their lifetime to the things they professed. The Old Testament with its history of the genesis of our world, is looked upon by numbers of these seekers after the psychic as a fable, and the New Testament is denied divine inspiration tho others just as brilliant as our twentieth century intellectuals died the death of the martyr to attest their faith in its teachings.

All these things, however, are thrown overboard in the search for something—anything—new. Self-appointed ambassadors, illiterate or otherwise, it makes little difference, which come along with a "message" and the gaping crowd runs, listens and accepts, until the next sensation arrives, when the message of the other is forgotten, which, by the way, is for the most part a good thing, for no calibre of humanity could possibly assimilate all the eccentricities of thought that find their way into the arteries of the life of a city without doing violence to its makeup.

NEW REGULATIONS RE MIGRATORY BIRDS

Ottawa, July 9—Important changes are involved in the new regulations under the migratory birds convention act, which regulations were issued today. Daily bag limits are imposed in all provinces and there are new restrictions with regard to protection of the birds imposed throughout Canada.

In Manitoba the open season for ducks is September 1 to December 14, both dates inclusive, and the bag limit is 20 ducks on any one day to October 1 and 40 thereafter in the aggregate of all kinds. Ten geese are allowed per day, 15 brant and 25 aggregate of rails, coots and galinules. Plovers and yellowlegs are limited to 15; snipe, 25; woodcock, 10; doves, 25. The season's duck limit is 250.

Saskatchewan — Limits are 50 ducks, geese or brant, with the smaller birds the same as Manitoba. The season's limit is 250 birds, including ducks, geese or brant.

Alberta sportsmen may take 30 ducks daily, 15 geese, 15 brant. The season's duck limit is 200.

British Columbia's limit is 20 ducks per day, 10 geese and 15 brant. The duck limit is 250 and geese 50.

SATELLITE CITIES

Much interest has been taken throughout England in a new plan for the building of a city about 20 miles from London on model lines. Under this Welwyn Garden City scheme it is intended that a town of ultimately about 50,000 inhabitants shall be gradually constructed as a complete unit, with its own factories, warehouses, shops and residences, in contrast to the many districts which are almost exclusively confined to dwelling houses for people who go into the metropolis daily in pursuit of their livelihood. Such places have come to be known as dormitory suburbs, and the new shceme is based on the theory that the only solution of the problem of comfortable housing and convenient transport is to set up instead what are described as satellite cities, in the sense that London itself is the centre of all things, but that within a radius of 20 to 25 miles there should be a ring of these almost self-contained communities. An interesting feature of the scheme is that the capital provided will only receive a maximum interest of 7 per cent, and as the town is gradually built, any increment of values arising from the settlement of the people will be conserved for their own social advantage.

SHOULD KNOW THE WORST

Germany does not know how much money she is expected to find, or when she must find it and, quite naturally, she is doing nothing to meet her obligations. It will soon be two years since the armistice, and yet neither France nor Belgium can as yet look forward with any certainty to receiving so much as a penny-piece toward the repair of the damage which Germany did. This is an absurd situation and until it is remedied Germany's victims will suffer an added wrong, and Germany herself will be prevented from settling down to a heavy task of reparation which her war-madness has laid upon her. Germany must know the worst in respect of every article in the treaty. That is the only way to exercise a steadying influence on the German people and to facilitate the establishment of stable government in the country. — London Daily Chronicle.

MAN KNOWN BY HIS NOSE

"Give me a man with a good nose," said Napoleon and nature in one of her whimsical and ertraordinary generous moods confronted him with Wellington. The olfactory organ has literally and figuratively played a prominent part in history, altho latterly a square jaw has been more favored by some people as indicative of aggressiveness. That most famour race among the ancients, the ancient Romans (and most detested by first year high school students) had noses which became the prototypes of all modern hawk-like, midfaicial appendages. Wellington had a nose distinctively "Roman," or, as some might call it "Norman," and so had his most successful lieutenants, and so had Robert Edward Lee, and so had Gladstone, the fighting statesman, and so today have Haig and Foch and Jellicoe and Beatty. A child born with a Roman nose should therefore stand a pretty good chance of becoming a fighter of some sort, possibly a champion heavyweight or a mere admiral.

The nose, whether of aquiline, broad or retrousse contour, is the centre of personal dignity with most people, and, to hit a man on the nose hurts his pride almost as much as it does his skin. A noseless statue excites more ridicule than it would with a saucepan on its head. During the allied occupation of Bonn, Germany, in December, 1918, the inhabitants celebrated the birthday of Emperor William I. with almost their usual ardor, to the ertent of decorating the statue of the old autocrat with floral wreaths. The soldiers of the army of occupation took umbrage at the latter bit of defiance in a somewhat over-hilarious, but, perhaps, pardonable manner, knocking the spike off old William's helmet, and ,what was worst, breaking his nose. The smashing of the Hindenburg line could hardly have made the departed Hohenzollern turn in his grave any more than this awful instance of lese majeste.

The nose, of course, is most important as the organ of smell, irrespective of any aesthetic qualities. In this respect, it is more frequently an advantage, but sometimes a disadvantage to the owner. Among the pleasures of smelling may be mentioned beefsteak and onions (except when it comes upstairs from the flat beneath), certain kinds of perfumes, new mown hay and dollar bills, even when they have grown yellow and musty. The disadvantages include sulphide of hydrogen, in the shape of spoiled eggs, sewers and other olfactory sensations, which, when smelled once, are never forgotten. The hospitality which the nose extends to the germs of pneumonia, influenza, catarrh and hay fever is something that altogether fails to win the appreciation of the owner. The time-honored medical advice of keeping one's mouth shut only seems to make the poor old nose work overtime in its invitation to all comers.

Noses formerly were of many colors, as well as contours. Prohibition has largely succeeded in driving the crimson tipped proboscis off the streets, altho a few choice samples are still to be found (due no doubt to indigestion) among the lordly honors of substantial bank accounts and well filled cellars. Powdered noses are a distinctively feminine ornament, and, when skilfully done, defy detection, altho the owners must under no circumstances so far forget themselves as to kiss the baby.

The nose, more than any of the other organs of sense, is frequently associated with certain mental and moral traits in th human species. Among the former characteristics may be cited the "nose for news," said to be possessed by all good reporters and great editorial lights, in fact a famous keeper of the daily assignment book was credited with the faculty of being able to walk along the dullest thorofare in the world and literally—or should it be said psychologically?—"smell" news, not even the corner brewery, fish shop, or adjacent tannery disturbing him in the least, as he sniffed in the big headlines for tomorrow's paper. The moral, or rather unmoral failing suggested immediately by the word "nose" is that other disagreeable little word "noseiness," which means briefly that some despised wretch has his or her curiosity bump developed to an abnormal degree, and not counter-balanced by a correspondent enlargement of that of caution. People with acquiline noses are supposed popularly to be so endowed, but, as a matter of fact, there is no guiding rule, just as the greatest hound for "scoops" that ever walked may have a nose that in the polite French tongue would be classed as retrousse but ineveryday English speech be put down as "pug."

TYPISTS OF ENGLAND ARE BETTING ON RACES

As if there were not social troubles enough, the alarming prevalence of "starting price betting" among office girls is engaging police attention. "They are all out for what they call sport," a prominent city man said to a press representative. "Where it hits me is not so much what they lose as the amount of my time they waste in thinking of the three o'clock winner, and sending the office boy out for afternoon papers when they ought to be attending to my business. It starts simple enough. A girl may have a little windfall and a sporting friend may persuade her to try to make a good lump sum of it because she did not expect it, and will not miss it if lost.

"It is better for her if she loses, because then she does not get a taste for betting."

"If she backs a winner two things occur. First, she thinks it a good new way of making a living; and, secondly, she fancies she is a good judge of form. Whether she gets the tip straight from the horse's mouth or shuts her eyes and pokes a pin some where down the list of runners, the result is the same.

"Before the war there was a fair amount of betting in sixpences and shillings, but far more was done in less reprehensible sweepstakes. Now it is different, and your typist puts, perhaps four separate half-crowns on four horses on one day in the week, hoping to get enough out of it for a similar "flutter" every day.

"Big offices are honeycombed with indoor amateur bookmakers and there are always one or two of the staff who make a good thing out of it on commission — probably commission both ways, out of the gamblers' winnings and out of the principal bookmaker's receipts.

"In quite a number of cases the business is done over the telephone.

"It is a very real danger. Young men and women, missing the daily excitement of war, find their nerves on edge for continuous excitement, and that excitement is provided by starting price betting.

"One thing that nobody seems willing to do is to get back to honest, solid, everyday work."

MONEY AND THE MICROBE

Experiments recently carried out in New Zealand show that money in the form of coins is practically microbe-proof. Even the attempt to cultivate germs on coins was a failure. Contrast this with an American investigation into paper money. One dollar bill yielded no fewer than 901,320,000 bacteria, and the average of 24 fairly clean notes examined in the laboratory at Yale was 142,000. This led to the theory that paper money spreads disease, so the New York board of health carried the investigation a stage further, and reassured the public by the emphatic pronouncement that they had been unable to trace a single case of infectious disease to the use of this form of currency. But to make sure, the American Treasury set up a paper-money laundry and for the last few years all bills returned to the Treasury are carefully washed and ironed before being reissued.—London Daily News.

THE CENTRE OF FINANCE

In five years the United States has been transformed from a debtor into a creditor nation, and built up a credit position abroad which we know to be very substantial. Indeed, the meteoric rise of financial America has given color from time to time to the foolish prediction that New York will displace London as the monetary centre of the world. Mr. Kahn, a leading New York banker, is under no misappremension on this point. He recognizes that not only has this prophecy not come true, but that "it ought not to come true, and will not come true." This statement by an acknowledged leader of economic thought in the United States should be sufficient to discredit the fustian nonsense which is occasionally produced for the edification of the unthinking on the other side of the Atlantic. The monetary supremacy of London was not organized in five years. It is the result, as Mr. Kahn admits, of psychological, geographical and economic factors, which have been in operation for many decades. —London Times.

"The Five Boroughs" were Leicester, Lincoln, Nottingham, Stamford and Derby. Athelflaed, ruler of Mercia, and her brother Edward, king of England, wrested these strongholds from the Danes, proving themselves worthy children of their father, Alfred the Great.

WHERE LABOR SCORES

Those who, against the cocksure denial of Winston Churchill, declared that Labor is fit to govern—in Britain, at least—will find a useful text for a new sermon in Lloyd George's talk to the house of commons on the advisability of trading with soviet Russia.

Lloyd George uttered a great deal of common sense on this question. He pointed out that it is a new doctrine that you should not trade with a people because you don't approve of the manner of its government. Britain never refused to trade with Turkey, even during the period of Abdul the Damned's massacres of the Armenians, which, as Lloyd George said, were very much worse than anything the Bolsheviki have done. England, her premier said, opened up more trade with cannibals than any other country.

The business of trading in human flesh has been extensively operated by ourselves. Sir John Hawkins, who began the slave trade which has placed ten million negroes on this contient, was not only an Englishman, but a devout Englishman. One of the godliest men in history was the author of the hymn beginning

How sweet the name of Jesus sounds
In a believer's ear,
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds
And drives away his fear.

He was the captain of a slaver. His diary, which records the deaths of slaves in the suffocating hold of his ship, also records the blessed seasons of communion with God which he enjoyed on the ghastly voyage.

Britain is going to trade with soviet Russia, by agreement with the Lenin government, which, it used to be said, would never be done. You cannot influence the recovery of Russian sanity by keeping away from all contact with her. The statesmen have found out that they cannot subdue Soviet Russia by armies. The wise thing to do is to get into the country with the civilization of honest invoices. The high statesmanship of this is now proclaimed by the prime minister.

Labor, which was declared to be unfit to govern by ministers who have conferred successfully with the soviet envoy, was advocating the policy now adopted by the government at the very time it was asserted to be disqualified for authority. Often enough, in elemental situations like many of those which now afflict the world, it is the statesmen who are unstatesmanlike, and the supposedly simple minds that see far and straight.

JUVENILE STOCK COMPANY

A new society has been formed in the city under the name of "The Juvenile Stock Company." This company has been formed with the view of giving the theatre-going public a real, first-class show within the periods of five to sir weeks, and the library of plays from which they have to chose embraces everything from farce comedy to the heaviest drama. It is the intention of the Company that all shows given by them will be in aid of the various societies and organizations of the town. The management and direction of the company is under Fred C. Bass, and rehearsals are now under way for the first show, which is being held within the next two or three weeks. The baseball club will be the first organization to benefit by this company's work and the various societies are reqsuested to communicate with Mr. Bass.

The show in aid of the baseball club will be in two parts, part one consisting of a farce comedy entitled "French Without A Master." This play, which lasts about 45 minutes, deals with the humorous predicament of French guests in a London hotel and an "interpreter" whose vocabulary consists of "Oui." The second half of the show is a musical comedy lasting an hour and deals with military life in a screamingly funny manner. There is of course a chorus which handles all the latest song hits, and if you should happen to hear a young lady humming "Oh, by jingo" or any of the latest hits, she is in the chorus. Altogether you can depend on seeing the best in Fernie talent that can be obtained. There is just one point to remember and that is to support your home talent. Watch for dates.

VAUDEVILLE AT THE GRAND

A big vaudeville bill will be the attraction at the Grand theatre on Saturday night, July 17. The show consists of six big acts, headed by the Ukarainian String orchestra of six pieces. They will play all of the latest popular music with several operatic selertions. The Overseas Quartette are also on the bill and they are featuring one of the biggest song hits of the day, "Salvation Lassie of Mine." The quartette is composed of such well known singers as Joseph Riley, Wm. Riley, Geo. Parnell and Harold Bowen. The rest of the program is made up with Miss Anna Hyra, a lyric soprano; Dan Vichristoff, the melody man, and Harold Bowen in impersonations and songs. There will be but one show, starting at 8.30 p.m.

JAMES WHITEHOUSE WITH "PAL O' MINE" COMPANY

A local boy who has won fame throughout Canada and the United States as one of the most foremost musical directors is James Whitehouse, who will be seen with the "Pal o' Mine" company, that plays the Grand next Friday night, July 23.

Mr. Whitehouse left Fernie last August to join the Billy Oswald Co., and after a very successful season with this organization he was engaged by Mr. Springer, manager of "Pal o' Mine" company, to arrange the music for this show.

As a director and musical arranger Mr. Whitehouse stands by himself, and as a result of his very excellent work with both of these companies he has a very attractive offer from one of the biggest theatrical enterprises in Canada for next season, namely, the Trans Canada Theatre Co., Ltd.

Mr. Whitehouse arranged all of the music with "Pal o' Mine" and the score contains many numbers of his own composition.

Miss Phyllis Hughes (wife of Mr. Whitehouse and also a local girl) is also a member of this organization.

TIT-BITS OF INFORMATION

Raphael, the great painter, was only 37 years old when he died. He was born at Urbino, in Italy, in 1483. For more than four centuries his works have lived, and artists still look upon him as a master.

The beautiful Paisley shawls, made of very fine wool, were manufactured in the town of Paisley, in Renfrew, Scotland. In the early part of last century the yearly value of the trade was more than $5,000,000 of our money.

The beautiful and ancient vale of Cashmere, in India, has given its name to the shawls of goats' hair, first made there, and to other fabrics since manufactured elsewhere. The finest shawls were made by hand and were very richly colored.

The antelope has been discovered by Roy Chapman to be able to travel at a speed of 60 miles an hour for a short time. This species lives in the Mongolian desert and the animal is also a native of Africa.

The Royal Humane Society's Medal is given to those who risk their own lives to save those of others. The society was founded to teach the correct method of reviving those who seemed to be drowned.

The returns issued by Lloyd's Register for the quarter ended on March 31, 1920, show that Great Britain has regained its lead as the world's greatest shipbuilding nation. The tonnage under construction in Great Britain exceeds that of the United States by over 800,000 tons. New British vessels put in hand during the quarter numbered 229 and aggregated nearly 710,000 tons. There is a notable increase in the number of large ships building there being 62 vessels of over 10,000 tons under construction as compared with 55 at the end of 1919.

A BY-PRODUCT OF COKE AS NEW MOTOR FUEL

Thousands of gallons of benzol, a by-product of coke, are now being used for motor fuel. While being much more combustible than gasoline benzol has not yet reached the highest stage of refinement, and present results are best when it is mixed in equal proportions with gasoline. Heat and cold have a totally different effect upon it than upon gasoline. Ford chemical laboratories, however, are doing a great deal of experimenting, and soon hope to be able to refine it so it can be used alone and under all conditions. Of course, its chief effectivenesss comes from its high combustive power, which is between 12 and 15 per cent greater than gasoline.

Ford officials state there is no possibility of benzol ever displacing gasoline as a motor fuel, since it is a by-product of coke, and therefore obtainable only in limited quantities.

CITY COUNCIL HOLD MEETING

The regular meeting of the city council opened last evening punctually on time with the chairs of Ald. McEwan and Ald. Harrison unoccupied. They arrived a little later.

Applications for reinstatement of Beverage Licenses for the Fernie Hotel and the King's hotel were received. His Worship requested the council to decide upon these applications. That of the King's hotel was considered first and Ald. Robichaud suggested they should be given another trial. With brief discussion and reference to said by-law it was moved by Ald. Rutledge, seconded by Ald. Tully, "That Mrs. Anna Mills be granted reinstatement license for King's hotel."

Ald. McEwan moved, seconded by Ald. Robichaud, That Mrs. Wyatt be granted renewal of licence for the Fernie Hotel.

S. Herchmer applied to council for licence for Napanee Hotel in name of Max Belecky, as from Aug. 1st, if this establishment meets with the requirements of the bylaw and is approved by Chief Lawson. Moved by Tully and Rutledge that, subject to the foregoing conditions the licence be granted.

A communication was received from the Archives Department ,Ottawa, notifying His Worship that the City of Fernie had been awarded a war trophy in the form of a German 77m gun, No. 23426. According to the shipping bill this gun weighs 5000 lbs. It is expected a month will elapse before the arrival of this trophy.

The Chief of Police submitted a report that the Roma Hotel now complied with the Beverage bylaw and recommended that said licence be granted. This was approved.

F. F. Woods, an ex-employee of the power house, wrote requesting remittance of wage adjustment. Ald. Bean stated that Mr. Woods was not definitely promised an increase but he would endeavor to secure this for him. Mr. Woods received same rate as other employees and he will be so notified.

Miss Carmichael applied for an increase in salary of $25. This was referred to finance committee for report at next meeting.

Hang-overs from the last meeting were then taken up. The first was an application for increase from the city electrician, Mr. Boyce. It was regularly passed that an increase of $25 per month be granted. His Worship stated he did not consider this amount was warranted.

At this juncture the proceedings were temporarily interrupted by the pleasing strains of a brass band, following which H. A. Bryant, President of the G.W.V.A., entered and announced a mass delegation of the G. W.V.A. desired to appear before the council. This was cordially acceded to and then over a hundred veterans marched into the council chamber. Pres. Bryant in a brief but very forcible address lodged a vigorous protest against what was termed the unconstitutional and most undemocratic method in vogue regarding employment of civic servants when vacancies occurred. He took occasion to resent certain indiscreet remarks made by one of the aldermen concerning the preferential employment of returned soldiers. These remarks, he stated, had been publicly retracted but had nevertheless aroused strong feeling among the veterans.

The delegation further submitted protest that members of the city police force were obliged to work 12 hour shifts and urged that the shifts be reduced to 8 hours, which was recognized as maximum hours for working day, according to convention concluded by Allied Peace Conference. Strong exception was taken to the manner of appointing a civic teamster, who was not a veteran over a returned soldier applicant. This objectionable feature has been eliminated by the returned nominee securing this job.

His Worship in reply advised the veterans that council highly appreciated their thoughtfulness in relieving the monotony of these sessions by providing instrumental prelude to more earnest business and assured the G.W.V.A. that their requests would receive very full and ample consideration. President Bryant announced this reply was quite satisfactory.

The mass delegation, which considerably overcrowded the council chamber, was commendably decorous and strictly observant of rigid discipline.

Reverting to routine business a recommendation from the fire, water and light committee raising the electric light and power rates one cent per k.w. from Aug. 1, was passed.

The proposed hydro-electric power contract as drafted by the city solicitor, was read. His Worship and the city clerk were delegated to negotiate this contract with representatives of the B.C. and Alberta Power Co.

The Amusement Tax Bylaw fixing 5 per cent of gross receipts on all admissions, received three readings.

An amendment to the Beverage Licence Bylaw, striking out the clause which restricted licences being issued to premises within the fire limits only also received three readings.

A large number of current accounts were approved for payment.

MORE WHISKEY CONFISCATED

The Great Northern Railway "coal drag," southbound from this city on Wednesday morning, was held up at Waldo by Provincial Constables Gorman and Hughes, who, armed with search warrants, investigated the contents of certain cars, presumably loaded with coal. The search was successful to the extent that six cases of liquor were found aboard, and pending instructions, the train crew was detained. Chief Spiller motored at once to Waldo, but after investigating the matter fully, released the train crew and permitted them to continue southward with their train. The liquor was confiscated and while no official announcement has been made it is understood that the authorities are continuing the investigation, with the probability that the principals connected with this illicit traffic may have to answer a charge under the Prohibition Act at an early date.

VICIOUSLY ASSAULT HINDU

About 11 o'clock last Friday night at Waldo, Taihl Singh, while alone in his shack, was visited by two lads whom it is alleged were Billy and Charlie Chineaud, and for some reason, so far insufficiently explained, they attacked the Hindu and brutally beat him about the head almost to death, and as a result of which the unfortunate victim did not regain consciousness for a period of over 12 hours, He was found about noon on Saturday in this condition and the authorities notified. Chief Spiller and Magistrate Stenson motored hurriedly to Waldo, information being received here that Taihl Singh could not survive. However, some treatment enabled those in charge to have him conveyed to the hospital here and as he continued to hold his own it was believed he would recover. While the actual facts relating to the attempted murder are difficult to ascertain, they very strongly implicate the two Chineaud boys, who, it is stated, only arrived in Waldo on Friday afternoon, and having resided in that locality prior to now, and having also been intimate with the victim of the assault, who alone accuses them, the evidence so far secured points to their guilt. A further fact that they hurriedly left the locality shortly after the time the incident occurred and crossed the international boundary, supports the charge.

Taihl Singh on Wednesday morning himself expressed the belief that he would succumb to the medical authorities and the police were accordingly notified and an ante-mortem statement taken. He repeated his former accusation that Billy and Charlie Chineaud were the guilty parties and that no altercation or trouble between them and himself had occurred, but that shortly after arriving at the shack they attacked him, beating him unmercifully with some instrument, he knew not what. They had not asked him for money or valuables but had taken his bank book from him. He insisted that no dispute arose over anything and that nothing in the way of conversation traspired before the unprovoked attack. The injuries sustained by the victim consist of a huge gash over the side of the head, partially severing the right ear; nose and upper jaw smashed in; large circular cut around socket of left eye; left eye completely cut through and organ had to be removed smaller cuts, bruises and abrasions about the head.

Warrants have been issued for the Chineaud boys and the provincial police have been constantly tracing them since notified. They were reported to have been in Libby, Montana, on Sunday, and the trail thence doubled back presumably into Canada. The Chineaud family formerly lived in this neighborhood, about a mile west of the city, where Mr. Chineaud, the father, for some years was a post and mining prop contractor. They moved from here to Waldo and from there to Calgary, where Mr. Chineaud and other members of the family reside, he being employed by the Alberta Box Co. Descriptions of the fugitives have been sent broadcast and the local authorities believe their capture is only a matter of days.

The latest report concerning the condition of Taihl Singh is that but slight hopes can be entertained for his recovery. There is, however, a possible chance.

SETTLEMENT OF LOCAL AND GENERAL DISPUTES:

(a) In case any disputes or grievances arise under this Agreement or any local Agreement made in connection therewith, whether the dispute or grievance is claimed to have arisen by the Company, or any person or persons employed, or by the men as a whole, then the parties shall endeavor to settle the matter as hereinafter provided. But before any grievances or disputes shall be submitted to the Pit Committee, the person or persons affected shall endeavor, by personal application to the Pit Boss, Overman or Foreman in charge of the work where the dispute arises, to settle the matter, and in the event of them agreeing their decision shall be final.

(b) In case of any local dispute arising in any mine and failure to agree between the Pit Boss, Overman or Foreman in charge of the work where the dispute arises and any employee, the Pit Committee and Mine Superintendent or Mine Manager shall endeavor to settle the matter, and if they agree their decision shall be final.

(c) In the event of the failure of the Pit Committee ond the Mine Superintendent or Mine Manager to settle any dispute so referred to them, as well as in the event of other disputes arising, the matter in dispute shall be referred in writing to the Commissioner of the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association and the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, who shall meet as soon as practicable, and not in any event later than fourteen (14) days, with a Joint Committee of six (6), composed of the Commissioner of the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association, the General Manager or General Superintendent of the mine where the dispute arose, and another appointed by him, the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, the President or Secretary of the Local where the dispute arose, and one other District Officer. If they agree their decision shall be binding upon both parties. In the event of their failure to agree, they shall endeavor to select an independent Chairman, and failing to agree upon an Independent Chairman, the Commissioner of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association and the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, shall ask the Minister of Labor to appoint such Chairman. The decision of the Committee thus constituted shall be binding upon both parties, provided, however, during the term of office of the Director of Coal Operations, he shall act as, or appoint the, Independent Chairman mentioned herein.

(d) In the meantime, and in all cases while disputes are being investigated and settled, the miners, mine laborers and all other parties involved must continue to work pending investigation and until final decision has been reached; but where miner, miners, mine laborer or mine laborers has or have been discharged by the Company, he or they shall not remain in the employ of the Company while his or their case is being investigated and settled. If the claim be made within five (5) days, where a man or men has or have been unjustly discharged, the case shall be dealt with according to this article, and if it is proven that he or they have been unjustly dealt with, he or they shall be reinstated. If a claim is made for compensation for time lost, in cases where reinstatement has followed, it shall be left to the Joint Committee as provided for in Sub-section "C" to decide what amount (if any) is to be paid.

(e) Any breach of this Agreement by any of the parties hereto is not to void the said Agreement, but the same is to be continued in full force and effect.

(f) If the Commissioner of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association or the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, are unable, on account of sickness or absence from the District, to attend to the duties hereinbefore set out, these duties in the first instance would be assumed by either the President or Vice-President of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association, and in the second instance by either the Vice-President or Secretary of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America. Due notice of whom would attend to these duties to be sent immediately, in the first instance, to the Party of the First Part, and in the second instance to the Party of the Second Part.

(g) All settlements and decisions that have been made and are in effect should be considered in taking up disputes, during the life of this agreement.

DUTIES OF PIT COMMITTEE:

The Pit Committee shall be a Committee of three (3) in each mine or other plant covered by this Agreement, selected by the employees working at such mine or other plant from among their own number, except one (1) member may be a Checkweighman or an Officer of the Local Union not necessarily an employee of the Company. This member must previously have been selected as Checkweighman or Officer from amongst the employees of the aforesaid mine or other plant. Due notice of such selection, properly certified in writing, shall be given to the Company.

The duties of the Pit Committee shall be confined to the settlement of disputes between the Pit Boss or Foreman and any employee working in or around the mines, arising out of this Agreement and all Agreements made in connection therewith, the Pit Boss or Foreman, and man or men, having failed to agree.

The Pit Committee, in discharge of its duties, shall, under no circumstances, go around the mine, for any cause whatever, unless called upon by the Pit Boss or Foreman, or by a Miner or Dayman, who may have a grievance, which he has first tried to and cannot settle with the Boss.

Members of the Pit Committee employed as Daymen shall not leave their places of duty during working hours except by permission of the Pit Boss or Foreman, or in cases involving the stoppage of the mine.

NEW WORK:

Whenever any new work arises a price for which has not been provided for in this Agreement, on the request of the Company or the Miners, a Joint Committee of six (6), composed of the Commissioner of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association, the General Manager or General Superintendent of the mine where the price is asked for, and another appointed by him, the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, the President or Secretary of the Local where the price is asked for, and one other District Officer, shall meet within fourteen (14) days. If they agree their decision shall be binding upon both parties. In the event of their failure to agree they shall endeavor to select an Independent Chairman, and failing to agree upon an Independent Chairman the Commissioner of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association and the President of District No. 18, United Mine Workers of America, shall ask the Minister of Labor to appoint such Chairman. The decision of the Committee thus constituted shall be binding upon both parties, Provided, however, during the term of office of the Director of Coal Operations, he shall act as, or appoint the, Independent Chairman mentioned herein.

Whenever any new system is inaugurated or radical change in the present system is made in any mine where there is a contract price fixed thereon, the Company or the employee may ask for a price to be fixed on the work as "New Work"; as for example, a change from "Longwall" to "Pillar and Stall," or vice versa, shall be considered "New Work."

In making the prices for New Work the Company shall be guided by existing prices in the same mine or other mines in the neighborhood.

Meantime, if the work is continued until such price has been arranged, all men shall be paid on the Day Wage Scale.

EMPLOYEES NOT UNDER JURISDICTION:

All employees connected with the Management of the Mine are not to be under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers of America or be members thereof, and shall include the following:

The erection of head frames, tipples, breakers, washers, buildings, coke ovens, scales, machinery, railroad tracks and switches, etc., necessary for the completion of a plant, all being in the nature of construction work and extensive repairs or rebuilding of the same class of work, are to be considered as improvements and extensive repairs, and the employees thereon are to be excluded as above when employed on such work only.

PENALTY FOR ABSENCE FROM WORK:

When any employee absents himself from his work for a period of two (2) days, unless through sickness or by first having properly arranged with the Pit Boss or Foreman and obtained his consent, he may be discharged. All employees whose absence would cause any stoppage of work must, before absenting themselves, properly arrange with or notify the Pit Boss or Foreman for or of their absence, otherwise they may be discharged. Any employee who habitually, to the extent of five (5) days per month, absents himself from work may be discharged.

CHECKWEIGHMEN AND CHECKMEASURERS:

The Company will grant the right to the miners to employ Checkweighers and Checkmeasurers, and will grant the said Checkweighers and Checkmeasurers every facility to enable them to render a correct account of all coal weighed or checked, and will allow the cars to be tared from time to time, and the machine to be properly tested from time to time, and will deduct from the wages of all Contract Miners such amounts as may be designated from time to time and will pay over the same to the Checkweigher or Checkweighers, Checkmeasurer or Checkmeasurers.

PREFERENCE OF EMPLOYMENT:

In case an employee is thrown out of employment, unless discharged, he shall be given preference over new men in other mines in the same camp operated by the same Company.

MINIMUM RATE:

When a miner's working place becomes deficient owing to any abnormal conditions, or where coal in any district becomes so hard, preventing him from earning the minimum wage of $6.35 per shift, the Company shall pay him a sufficient amount to secure him the said minimum, providing he has done a fair day's work. Provided, however, regard shall be hed to the pay period in which the deficiency is claimed. This shall not apply where work is performed in two separate places, one being normal and the other abnormal.

MINERS TAKEN TO DO COMPANY WORK:

The Company shall pay the sum of $6.35 per day for all miners taken from contract work to do company work.

DELIVERY OF MATERIAL:

In accordance with the Coal Mines Regulation Acts of British Columbia and Alberta, the Company will, at all times, deliver an adequate supply of suitable timber, rails, ties, planks and sheet iron at the nearest cross-cut to the face of all mine workings, and in places where the regular pit cars go to the working face, without being handled by the miner, they shall be delivered on the cars to the working face; in other places across the pitch the timber, rails, ties, planks and sheet iron will be delivered at the mouth of the room.

LOADING OF COAL FROM CHUTES:

In pitching seams, where chutes are used, the Company will handle all coal placed in the chutes by the miners.

DOCTOR AND HOSPITAL ARRANGEMENTS:

The matter of doctor and hospital arrangements is to be arranged as provided by the Workmen's Compensation Acts of Alberta and British Columbia.

The following days only shall be observed as holidays: New's Year's Day, Good Friday, May First, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving Day, District and International Election Day, Christmas Day.

FUNERALS:

In the event of an instantaneous death by an accident in the mine or outside the mine, the miners underground and all other employees may suspend work in the seam where the accident occurred on the day of the accident, but shall resume work on the following day and continue to work till the day of the funeral, when it is optional with them whether they shall work or not.

SUB-CONTRACTING:

No sub-contracting shall be allowed in any mine operated by the Company, but this shall not apply to the employment of Back-hands.

EMPLOYEES TO CARE FOR MINE:

In case of either local or general suspension of mining either at the expiration of this Agreement or otherwise, the Engineers, Firemen and Pumpmen shall not suspend work, but shall, when mining is suspended, fully protect all the Company's property under their care, and operate fans and pumps, and lower and hoist such men and supplies as may be required to protect the Company's property, and any and all coal required to keep up steam at the Company's plant; but it is understood and agreed that the Company will not ask them to hoist any coal for sale on the market.

The single shift system in rooms and pillars shall be adhered to as far as practicable.

WET PLACES:

A working place in the mine where water drops from the roof in quantities sufficient to wet a man's clothing, or where standing water is over six inches deep, shall be considered a "wet place." The rate for wet places shall be 64 cents per day extra for all inside day wage men. Where extra remuneration is now provided for in contract rates in the Tentative Agreement, same will not be affected.

ROCK MINER:

Where a man is engaged on rock work where hammer and steel are used he shall be considered a Rock Miner and paid Rock Miners' wages.

If an air drill is used the driller shall be paid machine runner's wages, and the helper paid machine Runners' Helpers' wages. The other men engaged shall be classed as miners or laborers as may be.

When a man is engaged on brushing either top or bottom, using the usual drills and tools, he shall be classed as a coal miner; if the brushing is done by hammer and steel he shall be classed as a rock miner.

Timbermen taking out rock while engaged in re-timbering or repairing shall not be classed as rock miners.

RETIREMENT:

Where any employee has drawn his time before the regular Pay Day, he thereby severs his connection with the Company, and any alleged grievance he may have ceases to be a question for consideration under this agreement. The words "drawn before the Regular Pay day" is satisfied by the application of the employee for, and his receipt of his time check before the regular pay day.

Note—This clause shall not apply with respect of retroactive monies from April 1, 1920.

CHINESE LABOR:

The United Mine Workers of America do not in any way prohibit the employment of Chinese in or around the mine, but where such labor is employed they shall be paid the scale for such work, with the following provisions, i.e., that where they are now employed at Bankhead and Canmore the present rates shall not be interfered with in any way by the United Mine Workers of America during the life of this Agreement.

The Company shall, as far as possible, supply each and every miner with an equal turn of cars.

BACKHANDS:

The present practice of working miners either as partners or with miners and laborers, as it exists in the several camps at the present time, shall be adhered to.

OVERTIME:

All overtime shall be paid for at the Scale Rate per hour. Operators are hereby requested to eliminate overtime and work on Sundays and Holidays as far as practicable.

BLASTING:

Where in the future blasting is prohibited in the mine and it can be shown that the earnings of the miner are decreased thereby, the contract rates shall be taken up as under the "New Work" Clause and an equitable allowance shall be made.

POWDER:

Where (explosive supplies) are being sold to the miners they shall be furnished at cost price, which shall include handling, transportation and insurance.

Note—In case any dispute should arise under this clause with respect of selling price, it shall be determined by the Joint Committee in the same manner as is provided in clause "C" of "Local and General Disputes." It is suggested that representatives of employers and employees in the several fields meet and endeavor to agree upon the selling price.

Where b y mutual consent this contract is changed, which change would increase the earnings of the men to a greater degree than provided by the basic agreement, the same shall become effective from the date of signing this agreement.

DOCKAGES:

The dirt or slate or other impurities picked from the coal going over the picking tables or screens shall be weighed for a period of twelve working days. From this method of weighing the average weight of waste in each mine car will be determined and form a basis of deductions per car in favor of the Company; or, in other words, presuming that the average dirt taken from each car equals 17 pounds, then the Company will have the right to deduct from the weight of each pit car 12 pounds, to compensate them for hauling and handling of waste. If the average of waste does not exceed 5 pounds per car, there will be no deductions for waste, the 5 ponds per car being considered reasonable allowance for slate or waste that the miner or loader cannot consistently pick out from the various kinds of coal.

If the average weight of dirt in each car exceeds 17 pounds or runs below 17 pounds, the difference between the actual average weight of dirt in each car and the 5 pounds per car allowance shall form the basis of allowance for waste.

It is further understood that this system of weighing the average dirt sent out in each car may be checked at either the request of the miners or the Company at anytime during the life of this Agreement.

Further, should the dirty coal or slate sent out by the miners exceed the allowance above specified, the following system of fines to prevail:

First Offence: 50 pounds of rock or slate, warning and fine of 100 pounds of coal. After the first offence 65 pounds rock or slate shall be fined 200 pounds of coal; 85 pounds of rock or slate shall be fined 400 pounds of coal; and 150 pounds of rock or over shall be fined all the coal in the car and liable to discharge.

The weighman shall give the first warning and keep record of offences, and report them daily to the Mine Manager.

The money coming from this special list of fines (after deducting the actual weight of rock) shall be applied to providing prizes for miners' sports or to the entertaining of miners' children.

This Agreement is based upon the following Report:

REPORT OF SUB-COMMITTEE

We, your sub-committee, beg to report and recommend the following as the basis for a joint agreement between the miners and operators of Alberta and Eastern British Columbia:

(1) A contract be made effective from April 1, 1920, to March 31, 1922.

(2) That the retroactive monies from April 1st shall be paid on or before August 1, 1920.

(3) This contract is made and entered into for the sole use of the members of the United Mine Workers of America and the members of The Western Canada Coal Operators' Association. All men who work in and around the mines who are eligible to become members of the United Mine Workers of America shall join that organization and agree to sign the check-off for all dues, assessments and fines, and the management of the mines agree to forward deductions made to the Acting Secretary of the District or such other person as that official may designate.

(4)—(a) That all day wage rates in effect on October 31, 1919 (which shall include the 92 cent War Bonus) shall be advanced 27 per cent.

(b) Exept in lignite fields, all contract tonnage rates and contract yardage mining rates in effect October 31, 1919, be advanced 27 per cent.

(c) That the tonnage rates in the lignite fields be advanced 24 cents.

(d) That all yardage, room turning and dead work rates in effect October 31, 1919, be advanced 20 per cent.

(e) That the Application of the H.C.L. 92c on contract miners' wages be made by adding the 27 per cent on the 92c, or $1.17 to his wages for each day's work.

(f) The 1917-1919 Agreement be used as a base, and no changes other than above indicated to be made unless the same has been made by order of the Director of Coal Operations or by mutual consent by the two interested parties, except the selling price of (explosive supplies) and coal.

THE GARDEN PARTY

A most enjoyable, if not altogether a financially successful, garden party, was given under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the United church upon the beautiful grounds of the Junget home in the Park last Tuesday evening.

Under the management of President Mrs. Fisher and her able assistants of the society the grounds were handsomely arranged and decorated.

Tea was under the management of Mrs. Kastner and Mrs .Mott, and Miss Brown, Mrs. Digby, Mrs. Ingram, Mrs. King and Mrs. Frey had done the soliciting in a most thorough manner, resulting in a bounteous supply of everything needed.

Mrs. McVannell and Mrs. Frey, assisted by Miss Kerr, Mrs. Gee, Molly Henderson and others were attentive waitresses and if anyone went away without a bounteous serving it must have been that one's own fault.

Miss Ruth Wilson, Miss Constance Bonnell, together with Miss Heaphy and Edith Bonnell, looked after the candy and other delicacies, while back in the privacies of the Junget home, Mrs. Munkwitz brewed a specially fine brand of her famous coffee, which was highly appreciated by all those fortunate enough to have a share of it.

While not as successful financially as might have been wished, owing to the uncalled for visit from the weather clerk, who brought along a second supply of ice in the shape of hail stones. The ladies report a handsome profit, and the social part was so successful that many expressed a fervent wish that the ladies would try again soon, with the hope that the weather man may not interfere next time.

A clock golf competition was provided for the amusement of the visitors. Mrs. Liphardt won the prize for lady contestants and Mr. Liphardt outplayed the men and got the men's prize. In the juvenile class first prize was won by Olive Young and Master Alex Fisher got the boy's prize.

GOR GAVE HERBS TO RELIEVE SUFFERING

No person should despise the lowly herb, for it is the Creator's gift to the world for the relief of suffering. The roots, stalks, leaves and blossoms possess medicinal properties for the relief of disease such as are found in no other work of Creation.

Every reader is familiar with the use of herbs in the early days of British Columbia. Every home was stocked with simple herbs and their use in case of sickness saved the day many a time.

The most striking instance of the value of herb remedies is given in the case of Wonder Health Restorer. This preparation, while sold in all drug stores, differs widely from ordinary remedies. It is a true Nature remedy in that it contains not a trace of alcohol or drugs. It depends solely for its work upon the action of the herb juices of which it is composed for the treatment of the blood and diseases existing in the various organs. It represents the lifework of one of the world's greatest herbalists and is a treatment no sufferer from disease can overlook.

All over the world the name of Wonder Health Restorer is known. Thousands state that it has given them relief in cases of Asthma, Rheumatism, Stomach trouble, Nervous complaints, Kidney disease, Skin troubles, Piles, etc. In many of these cases the ailment was present in very acute form and the sufferer tried Wonder Health Restorer after all other forms of treatment had failed. No person can question or doubt the honesty of the persons whose testimonials are recorded in "The Road to Health," a booklet which can be obtained from your local druggist. Get a copy and read it through. If God has blessed you with good health, pass it on to a friend who may be suffering.

Arrangements have been made for the distribution of Wonder Health Restorer in Fernie by H. F. McLean.

Call and get a copy of the booklet and enquire concerning this unparalled preparation, which has made a new record in the successful treatment of human disease.

VISITORS WERE MUCH PLEASED

The "Kootenay Delegation" of the Vancouver Board of Trade, some 40 strong, arrived in the city last Friday on the eastbound passenger train and were received by members of the local Board of Trade. Friday night the visitors were entertained at the residence of A. B. Trites and were loudly expressive of their pleasure at this initial ceremony which they unanimously acclaimed surpassed any that had been tendered them on their tour. On Saturday morning the delegation were conveyed to Coal Creek mines as the guests of the Coal Co., and inspected the colliery, returning to he city in time for a luncheon tendered them by the Fernie Board of Trade. Some seventy odd attended the luncheon, over which His Worship Mayor Henderson presided. After the call of the inner man had been satisfied His Worship addressed the assemblage, extending a cordial invitation to the visiteors and expressing gratification that those of the coast cities had arranged the tour to the interior, by which means only could first hand knowledge of our resources be obtained. Blake Wilson, president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, responded on behalf of the visitors, the object of the tour, he explained, being the sole desire of "get-together." Speeches were delivered on various subjects by W. R. Wilson, A. I. Fisher, Dr. Bonnell and others, while interesting and witty addresses were made by Mr. Malkin, vice-president W. H. Malkin & Co., Vancouver, and Ald. J. Patrick of Victoria. The delegation "choir" rendered two very pleasing vocal selections, the hit being "Ol' Tam Prentice Had a Farm" Tom consumed a magnum of "Fairy Creek Special" in an endeavor to tune his vocal chords for the reply but owing to the heavy smoke-laden atmosphere and unfavorable acoustic properties of the dining salon, the response was confined to an inaudible smile.

As soon as the luncheon was concluded the entire party was taken for a motor ride to Elko, where, in addition to enjoying the scenic beauty of this route, the visitors were taken to the Elko Falls to view that beautiful spot. They returned to the city and left via the local train for Cranbrook.

BUSH FIRE AT CROW'S NEST

Last Thursday afternoon the first serious bush fire of the season was reported from Alexander Creek, near Crow's Nest, on the limits of Joyce Bros., who are operating in that locality under the name of the Rock Creek Lumber Co. Ranger Schupe soon had a crew of sixty men engaged in fighting the blaze and by Monday had it fairly well under control. However, a strong wind sprung up that afternoon and the fire made further headway but with the providential assistance of heavy showers Tuesday and Wednesday it was finall ertinguished. The fire in its progress spread over three sections, two of which are classified as slashings and one of green timber. The damage to the standing timber will be small as it will be possible to get it out before it ceases to be merchantable. The company, however, suffered loss to the extent of 700 feet of flue, used in conveying logs to the mill, and 2000 logs which were in the bush. During the height of the fire the camps and sawmill were continually in danger of destruction as they were completely surrounded by the fire. The company has already started work on the reconstruction of the flume and as they have a good supply of logs available at the mill there will not be any interruption of sawing operations.

PATHFINDER HAS ACCIDENT

The Montreal-Vancouver pathfinder car, driven by Percy Gomery, of Vancouver, reached here late Wednesday evening on its westward journey. Leaving here early yesterday morning via the scenic Fernie-Elko route, it came to grief six miles west of the city at the "hairpin" turn, when it was in a head-on collision with a car owned by the Kootenay Telephone Lines. The occupants of both cars escaped miraculously without a scratch but the cars were not so fortunate. The pathfinder car was returned to the city, where it was found that repairs could be effected to enable it to continue its journey with a 24-hour delay. Until Wednesday the trip from Montreal has not been marred by accidents. Two minor mishaps, however, occurred beween Crow's Nest and here and these were followed by the more serious one. Depite these unfortunate occurrences, all of which happened since entering B.C., Mr. Gomery spoke very highly of the satisfactory condition of our roads for motor traffic in this section. He was also elated with the scenery. He left Montreal three weeks ago Wednesday and the itinerary for the remainder of the trip to Vancouver will be via Cranbrook, Kingsgate, Spokane and Seattle.

FISHER BRINGS FLATHEAD OILS

(Nelson News)

One of the most interesting exhibits at the mining convention is that brought in by James Fisher from the North Fork of the Flathead river—a bottle of petroleum and one of heavy oil. The latter was gathered from a seepage on the surface and the light oil from a well at only 100 feet deep.

Both samples come from his property on the southeast corner of British Columbia where it joins Alberta.

Besides these oils, Mr. Fisher has brought in samples of oil shales, but the high water at Cauldrey creek precluded samples from the best shales located.

The particular interest of the oil samples lies in the fact that southwest Alberta has long been looked to by oil experts as a feasible source and to this the Flathead is possibly geographically contiguous.

It has been admitted as an axiom in the oil world that a geo-anticline was the ideal source for search and Mr. Fisher's discovery is on the apex of an anti-cline dome whose geological strata combines the favorable impervious cretaceous capping and underlay, with the oil bearing sands between—nature's pipe line, as it were.

Apart from the seepage, gas has been located in the neighborhood, and the lighter oil, of which a sample is shown, is found on the surface water of the well, and can be skimmed off with a ladle.

Mr. Fisher believes he is on the direct track of an important discovery. The seepage, so high authority says, is an indication of the first importance; the perculation through water is another proof of oil and the gas yet a third.

Exploration to get below the water offers the possibility of locating a pool which in this go-anticline formation may easily drain an enormous area.

This area on the Alberta side has already been under exploitation for many years and has been favorably reported on in the government geologist's report by Ralph Arnold, seen in the report of the minister of mines, 1914.

PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH

"HEALTH ACT"

Sanitary Regulations Governing Watersheds

Regulations re Logging Operations Within the Health District Established on Fairy Creek

An Inspector shall be appointed by the Provincial Board of Health, who will also act as special Provincial Police constable.

It shall be the duty of the Inspector to enforce the regulations hereafter set forth. He will reside on the works and consult with the manager of the company in regard to all recommendations he may make in the way of other regulations which may be deemed necessary to enact, owing to changing conditions incidental to the progress of the company's work.

The Inspector shall make a weekly report to the Provincial Board of Health.

No person shall be allowed on the watershed except on business connected therewith.

When a railway-track, road or trail is in close proximity to the river or creeks, the road-bed shall be drained from the cuts in the soil back from the river, allowing the surface wash to be carried back with permeable soil to sink-holes. It should be arranged that such drainage does not flow directly into the river.

The company shall place all buildings or camps of whatever kind or nature at such points as may be designated by the Sanitary Inspector.

At the camps the necessary latrines shall be placed over reasonably deep pits for the reception of discharges. An average of 8 feet in depth is recommended, and the pit shall be filled in before the refuse reaches a point within 2 feet of the surface.

During use the pits are to be disinfected by the application of lime daily. All privies adjacent to the camp must be rendered fly-proof.

All men operating in the bush are to carry portable privies of galvanized iron, with covers. These privies to be returned and emptied into pits. All portable privies or pails to be supplied with 8 oz. of unslaked lime daily.

Rules relating to the use of these conveniences, and absolutely prohibiting the discharge of human waste elsewhere within the watershed, will be enforced with great strictness, and under penalty of dismissal.

An incinerator must be provided adjacent to the camp where all garbage and refuse must be burned each day.

Proper receptacles must be kept on hand into which all refuse, whether liquid or solid, must be placed, and such refuse must be regularly destroyed by fire.

Every camp coming under these regulations shall be equipped with a wash-house or laundry containing a stove, tubs, and facilities for drying; also wash-basins, shower-baths, soap, and all proper sanitary faicilities to the approval of the Inspector. Cleanliness, of course, is necessary for the health of the men, and it must be insisted upon. Persistently unclean persons will be debarred from the watershed.

Bathing or laundry work in the creek or stream is absolutely prohibited.

Liquid waste from kitchen, bath, laundry, and wash-sinks must be trapped, and led in a properly vented drain to a covered pit of sufficient area, located at a safely remote point to ensure filtration without endangering the purity of any stream or watercourse.

Plans and specifications of all buildings to be erected to be furnished in duplicate to and approved by the Provincial Board of Health.

Maps of the property (in duplicate) shall be furnished to the Department showing proposed buildings and roads in their relative positions to any stream or watercourse.

The company shall furnish food and shelter for resident and visiting Sanitary Inspectors whilst on the property.

In reference to the employees of the company, these regulations will provide for the taking of a Widal from every person entering the watershed as an employee in any capacity whatsoever.

Every person must submit to typhoid inoculation in order to protect them from contracting typhoid when out of the watershed, either on business or pleasure.

All manure, cattle droppings or refuse of an insanitary naure must be removed daily in a manner satisfactory to the Medical Health Officer or Sanitary Inspector.

The Inspector shall order lime or other disinfectants to be used where thought necessary.

All bunk-houses must be built with adequate light and ventilation, the interior limewashed or painted, and fitted with iron bunks.

Urinals of an approved sanitary type to be provided and run into a treatment tank.

In all camps above the intake, while working in the watershed, the pail system must be used and removed daily to the incinerator. Any man found not using these pails will be instantly discharged.

Spitting or blowing noses on the ground and all other filthy habits must be absolutely forbidden.

2. All officials and employees of companies operating in the watershed shall produce to the Inspector a certificate of a licensed medical practitioner that they are not affected by any disease which, in his opinion, would pollute the water.

3. (a.) Certificates of health and of a successful typhoid inoculation must first be produced before any man will be permitted to work for the company, in any capacity, above the city's intake.

(b.) Certificate shall state:—
(1.) That he is not suffering now from any communicable disease.
(2.) That he is not a "carrier" of typhoid fever, diphtheria, or scarlet fever.

4. (a.) All persons entering the watershed, for whatever purpose, other than officials and employees of the company, must first submit themselves to a blood test (Widal), and certificates of health must state:—
(1.) That the blood test is negative;
(2.) That he is not suffering now from any communicable disease.
(3.) That he is not a "carrier" of typhoid fever, diphtheria, or scarlet fever.

(b.) All persons who may be found to be typhoid-carriers, tubercular, or suffering from some venereal disease shall be rigidly excluded from the watershed.

(c.) No person, other than officials or employees of the company, will be permitted to enter the watershed above the intake without first presenting the above certificate of health to the Provincial Health Inspector in Charge and obtaining from him a permit to enter said watershed.

5. All sanitary regulations adopted by the Provincial Board of Health and applicable to a logging company or works where a number of men are congregated in the watershed, must be read to a man in a language he understands before he is placed at work. His signature must be obtained, so that he may understand that for any breach of these regulations he will be dismissed from the camp.

In cases of dispute between the city authorities and the company or individual as to the interpretation of these regulations, the Provincial Board of Health may be appealed to to act as arbitrators, and their decision to be final.

Provincial Secretary.

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependents, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving forfeiture, on fulfilment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

DEVELOP OUR COAL RESOURCES

Arthur V. White, consulting engineer of the commission of conservation of Canada, arguing that "there is no menace to Canada's economic and general welfare at all comparable to the fact that she is largely dependent upon a foreign country for her fuel needs," urges Canadian development of its own coal resources. In respect of quantity, quality and accessibility for mining purposes, the Dominion, he declares "possesses coal deposits which compare favorably with those of the greatest coal mining countries of the world. She has nearly 1,000,000,000 tons of semi-anthracite coal, 315,000,000 tons of bituminous coal and 10,000,000,000,000 tons of semi-bituminous coal and lignite. Canada's only sane policy is to develop as rapidly as possible, both her own fuel and power resources, and to provide for the distribution and storage of fuel in all communities of the Dominion.

Mr. White's statements admit of no argument. The prairie provinces alone are paying nearly $19,000,000 annually to United States interests for imported coal. The amount of anthracite coal imported annually is estimated at 533,000 tons, entailing a payment to U.S. interests of $4,541,160. Bituminous coal is imported each year to the extent of 2,376,000 tons, at a cost of $12,592,800. The total cost of both grades of coal amounts to $17,133,960, which with exchange at, say 10 per cent, totals $18,847,356.

In addition to the difficulty of obtaining the quantities required, the transportation situation is exceedingly difficult. All upper lake ports (United States ports as well as Fort William and Port Arthur) are absolutely without any hold-over, and their requirements for the coming year are placed at 33,000,000 tons. It is said to be quite impossible to transport more than 20,000,000 tons to supply such a demand.

The above figures take no account of the transportation cost from Fort William to Winnipeg (about $2.40 per ton), or other destinations, or of a duty of 53 cents per ton on imported bituminous coal.—Nelson News.

TASTY AND NOT SO HEAVY AS MEAT

Beat together 1 cup of bread crumbs, 1 cup of grated cheese, ½ cup of Pacific Milk, ½ cup of water, 1 egg.

Add a little red pepper and salt. Put into a greased dish, brush the top with butter and bake half an hour.

This is surprisingly good and is not as heavy as meat. Try it, it is, as you see, quite simple.

IS WELL FOR FIRST TIME IN FOUR YEARS

Edmonton Business Man Makes An Enthusiastic Statement Regarding Tanlac

"Tanlac has made a well man of me, and it's the first time I have been free from suffering in four years," said Charles Baker of 9549 102nd Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta, proprietor of a livery, feed and sales table at 10246 98th Street. Mr. Baker has resided in and around Edmonton practically all his life, and is well known locally and in the surrounding district.

"For the past four years I had suffered terribly from rheumatism in my legs from my knees down," he continued. "I was in pain all the time and especially when sitting or lying down I just couldn't rest. I was in such misery at night I could get but little sleep and would lie awake at night for hours at a time. My Stomach also gave me a lot of trouble and nothing I ate agreed with me. After every meal there was a heavy feeling like lead and severe pains in the pit of my stomach, and I would bloat up badly with gas. Finally, I got to where I suffered so much after meals I went without eating as much as possible.

"A friend advised me to try Tanlac, but I had taken so many medicines without getting any relief I had just about come to the conclusion that nothing would help me. However, I took my friend's advice and Tanlac did me so much good right from the start that I know now the only trouble was I hadn't got hold of the right medicine before. The rheumatism has left me entirely, my stomach is in fine shape and I can eat anything I want without having that heavy feeling or pains in the pit of my stomach or a sign of gas. In fact, my whole system has been built up and I feel simply fine all the time. I can never say too much for Tanlac after what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in ecery town.

Fernie travelled to Coal Creek last week to try conclusions with that club. The day was hot but nevertheless a splendid game was dished up to the spectators. Coal Creek had the best line-up they have had this year, and Fernie had a shade weaker team than in previous games. Referee Mangles from Michel did not turn up to referee the game and considerable wrangling took place before a referee was decided on. Adamson, a Coal Creek man, was finally decided on. Fernie won the toss and elected to play up hill with the sun in their backs. The first half was fairly even play and the teams crossed over with no score. On resumption of play Fernie did some pressing and managed to rush through a goal from G. Davidson, who always seems to be in the right place at the right time. This nettled Coal Creek and they started in to bombard Fernie goal, and only for the sterling work of Sawyer, Fernie would have lost the game. Coal Creek had it all over Fernie the last 15 minutes of the game and the Fernie boys were very lucky in coming out on the winning side. This was the best game of the season so far. Each team has a chance to win the League, and only two more games to play. Coal Creek plays Michel on Sunday, July 25, and Fernie plays Michel at Michel on Aug. 1.

CARELESSNESS CAUSED 1140 FOREST FIRES LAST SUMMER. THESE COST TAX PAYERS $370,000. A LITTLE CARE WOULD HAVE SAVED THIS. BE CAREFUL!

D. W. Griffith Presents
"THE IDOL DANCER"
Orpheum, Wed. and Thurs., July 28 and 29

A healthy body means healthy arteries. The railways are the arteries of Canada.

IN the operation of railways Canadians hold high reputations.

The chief Canadian systems are operated over great stretches of territory presenting widely different problems.

Their traffic obligations fluctuate rapidly with the seasons.

Climatic conditions are sometimes difficult. Unusual foresight, skill and determination are called for.

Yet the only unfailing highways for the heavy traffic across the New World from China to France during the war—were Canadian railways.

Canada alone among the allied countries had no war-time transportation crisis. When foreign roads choked under their load, she relieved them of millions of tons. At a time when ships were the need of the hour no ship lost time in any Canadian port through failure of the railways to deliver cargoes at the docks.

To-day the Canadian producer still commands the fastest, the most dependable and the cheapest railway service in the world.

But the foresight that made this record possible could do nothing without MONEY! The skill that kept terminals uncongested had to be backed with MONEY! The determination that drove crippled engines ahead in the face of 40-below gales and mounting snow would in the long run have been useless without MONEY!

Thus to-day the alarming fall in the net revenues of the railways is a menace to railway efficiency. It injures railway credit. It dissolves the reserves needful to meet the expanding needs of a growing country. It imperils national prosperity.

Increased freight rates are imperative therefore, not merely on behalf of railways but in the interests of Canada itself!

In July 1918 the Canadian roads were threatened with a general strike. To prevent this public catastrophe they agreed to follow the American scale of wage increases. The Government of Canada meantime allowed freight rate increases intended to make up the cost of these new wage rates.

Leaving aside all question of increased cost of material, the new wages cost the railways of Canada an extra eighty million dollars for the first year alone.

The new rates yielded them an additional forty-three millions!

The annual deficit on wages alone was thirty-seven millions and is constantly growing!

The Leckie BOOT

"As Good As It Looks"

The first glance you give a Leckie Work Boot tells you that quality is "sticking out" all over it. Your eyes tell you at once that here is a work boot that is built for comfort and heavy duty—and your eyes tell you the truth, for it's every bit as good as it looks.

The good, honest oak-tanned sole of a Leckie Work Boot gives many a day of extra wear. The solid, tough yet pliable uppers (tanned in our own tannery), not only gives service, but also gives that "restful" feeling to your foot. You'll never go wrong on a work boot if "Leckie" is stamped on the sole.

RESTOCKING OUR STREAMS

As a result of organization, the District Rod and Gun Club are achieving results very satisfying to the members and to the public generally. For the past two years the Club has carried on active propaganda for better game protection, this especially to apply to the Elk Valley Game Reserve, with the result that the Club has recently been informed that two game wardens are to be appointed for patrol and protection purposes on the reserve. Our efforts for better game protection are not to receive a pause as a result of these appointments, as in the opinions of the members more appointments throughout the Fernie District of men thoroughly qualified to give our wild life adequqate protection, is badly needed.

The anglers of the District will be pleased to learn that the Club has been successful this year in having the Elk river and its tributaries restocked with trout, this being due solely to the enterprise of the Club. The trout fry, some 50,000, were purchased from the Dowdell Hatcheries at Stryker, Montana, and arrived last week in first class condition. The fry were taken over by the Club at Elko and distributed along the river at suitable places between Elko and Olson. They were of the Eastern Brook Trout variety. Next year it is the intention of the Club to obtain fry of the Cutthroat and Rainbow varieties.

In May last as a result of certain representations made to the Chief Inspector of Fisheries at Vancouver, a representative of the Department of Fisheries visited Fernie and district to make an inspection of the streams and lakes with a view to stocking them with the well known Kamloops Trout. As a resule of the inspection, Surveyors Lake at Baynes, Silver Spring Lake at Elko and McBaynes Lake at Jaffray were recommended as suitable bodies of water for the Kamloops trout. On Monday last Inspector of Hatcheries Harrison arrived from the Gerrard Hatchery with 20,000 fry of Kamloops trout. These have been placed in the lakes named, and Inspector Harrison is himself of the opinion that the fish will do nicely in all three lakes. The fry arrived in excellent condition notwithstanding the fact that it took 60 hours from the time the fry left the hatchery to their arrival. Inspector Harrison was loaned from Vancouver specially to make this trip, as it was considered more or less of an experiment to bring the fry such a long distance to point of disposal. Inspector Harrison was particularly pleased as a result of this work. These Kamloops Trout grow to be very large fish, one specimen taken from Premier Lake in May last weighing 32 pounds.

Next year the Club hopes to do much more in the line of restocking our streams and lakes, and with this intention in view we appeal to all the anglers and hunters in Fernie and District to join our Rod and Gun Club, thus giving us greater power of organization and the necessary funds to carry on the work. Membership fees will be accepted by Tom Beck at Ingram's Cigar Store or any of the committee.

FRED J. BLAND WINS I.O.D.E. SCHOLARSHIP

(Victoria Colonist)

Official notification was received yesterday at the headquarters of the Municipal Chapter, I.O.D.E., from Mrs. Boynton, Provincial Educational Secretary of the I.O.D.E., of the awrad of the first British Columbia scholarship, under the I.O.D.E. War Memorial scheme, to Frederick Jas. Bland, of 929 Caledonia Ave., a student of the Victoria high school.

A student i nevery sense of the word, Fred Bland has created a brilliant record throughout his public and high school career and his teachers—particularly Alex. Smith, late principal of the high school—cannot speak too highly of his ability. Commenting upon the award Mr. Smith said in part:

"Fred is a splendid boy, both as regards character and scholarship, and one that will do credit to the I. O. D. E. as the holder of their scholarship."

The successful candidate is the second of a family of five, whose mother died in the winter of 1914-15, and mhose father after a long period of service in the war contracted an illness, which resulted in his death. Fred's one ambition is to forge ahead in order that he may help more substtntially in the support of the orphaned family, and needless to say, he was delighted to hear that he had been awarded the scholarship, which grants four years at any Canadian university and carries with it a grant of $250 for the first year, which will probably be increased to $350 for the remaining three years. He has elected to stay at the Victoria Arts College for the first two years on account of his extreme youth and will proceed to one of the universities for the other two years of the scholarship.

It is a matter of great satisfaction to the members of the Order in British Columbia to see the first I. O. D. E. scholarship go to such a splendidly deserving candidate and it should impart a new zest to their efforts to raise the necessary funds to carry through a memorial of this magnitude.

INQUEST ON TAIHL SINGH

With the death of Taihl Sing, the Hindoo victim of the Waldo tragedy, late Friday evening last, the degree of the crime changed from attempted murder to murder. Before the coroner's jury last night the evidence of the crime was presented, and based upon statements of the victim, together with corroborative testimony, the names of Charlie and Bill Chineaud were frequently mentioned. About a dozen witnesses gave evidence and as far as possible the facts relating to the hideous crime were submitted. This required slightly over three hours, but the jury after deliberating but a short time returned the following verdict:

"Taihl Singh died in the Fernie hospital on the 23rd July, 1920, from injuries received at Waldo, B.C., on the evening of July 16, 1920, or the morning of July 17, 1920, the injuries having been inflicted by a person or persons unknown to this jury."

Signed: W. J. Claridge, foreman, Wm. Vanbuskirk, C. W. Barrett, Wm. Bailey and D. S. Fraser.

Coroner Thomson presided, while Inspector Dunwoody and Chief of Provincial Police Spiller interrogated several of the witnesses on behalf of the Crown. Warrants on the charge of murder have been issued by the authorities for the arrest of the Chineaud boys.

FINE CAST SEEN IN HALL CAINE PICTURE

What is believed to be one of the most powerful casts ever assembled for a motion picture was selected to appear in the Paramount-Artcraft special adaptation of Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre on Friday and Saturday.

Katherine MacDonald, one of the screen's most beautiful and accomplished actresses was engaged for the role of Mary. For the unpleasant but highly important part of the young libertine, Lord Raa, Jack Holt was chosen. He was in "The Squaw Man" as Cash Hawkins, and will be remembered in support of Sessue Hayawaka and other Paramount stars.

Mary's lover, the explorer, is played by Milton Sills, formerly leading man for Clara Kimball Young, and a favorite with motion picture fans.

PERCY GOMMERY ARRIVES AT VANCOUVER

Vancouver, July 29. — Spattered with the mud and dust of six provinces, the pathfinding car driven by Percy Gomery arrived here last night. The car was in splendid condition after completing its 3,000 mile journey.

It was necessary to ship the car for a few hundred miles along Lake Superior, and to enter the United States twice, once near Lake of the Woods, and again between Kingsgate and Blaine, Wash. Trouble was encountered only twice, once when a fallen tree near Pembroke ripped the top of the car, and the other time when the car collided with another automobile near Fernie.

The object of the tour was to stimulate interest in a trans-Canadian highway, and in this Mr. Gomery stated that he was highly successful.

What happened to Percy's $11? Well, Jimmy might have got it but—see the Juvenile Stock Co. in "French Without a Master" on Aug. 10 at the Grand.

NEAR-TRAGEDY ON MAIN STREET

Yesterday afternoon in the business section of Victoria avenue a near tragedy was enacted when John Vichuk, formerly a resident of this city but more recently hailing from the State of Montana, drew a revolver and threatened to shoot his wife. The incident happened about 3.30 and was witnessed by at least a dozen people. The domestic relations in the Vichuk family, it is reported, had for some considerable period been, to say the least, strained, and by mutual consent the couple had been living apart. Early in the week Vichuk returned to the city and visited his wife, who has been employed in one of the local hotels as chambermaid, and upon that occasion an altercation took place, when, it is alleged that Vichuk drew a revolver and threatened to exterminate the weaker member of the family. The matter, however, culminminated in the episode yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Vichuk, accompanied by her mother, were on Victoria avenue and Vichuk approached them. After the exchange of a few words he pulled the gun and pointed it at his wife. The mother intervened and forcibly deflected the aim. According to eyewitnesses Vichuk thereupon brushed the mother aside and again aiming the revolver at his wife snapped the trigger twice but for some unknown reason the cartridges failed to explode. The police by this time had been notified and Vichuk scenting danger, bolted, passing up Victoria avenue, around the Central hotel corner, and down in the direction of West Fernie on the run, with the police giving chase. He eluded his captors and it was not until late in the evening that he was apprehended by Constable Clarkston in room 20 of the Central hotel. Upon being searched, however, no offensive weapon was found, but he was placed in a cell at the city gaol and this morning appeared before Magistrate Whimster in answer to a charge of pointing an offensive weapon at his wife. The case was remanded and will be heard next week. Meanwhile Vichuk remains in jail.

FIRE IN WEST FERNIE

Shortly before noon yesterday the fire department responded to a telephone alarm from West Fernie, when a fire from some unknown cause started in a log stable owned by Wm. Griffiths. The new fire truck made a quick run and in short order had about a thousand feet of hose laid. However, owing to the West Fernie water system undergoing repairs some little delay was experienced before the water was turned on and as the supply was not continuous the log stable and adjacent frame building were completely destroyed, together with their contents. Owing to the close proximity of the burning buildings to the Great Northern railway trestle this was for a time in danger. One of the large G.N. locomotives, however, was promptly on the spot prepared for emergencies in the event of the trestle catching fire. Despite the handicap through insufficient water supply the fire brigade did excellent work, as also did a volunteer bucket brigade, which confined its attention to throwing water on nearby residences to prevent any spreading of the fire.

THERE IS NO PEACE

The real object of M. Krassin's mission to Great Britain is, as he admitted, to negotiate what the Bolsheviks call peace, and thus to strengthen the Bolshevist position in Russia, which has been sorely shaken by the loss of Kieff and the growing misery of the Russian people. They are dying slowly of starvation in that land of "bulging bins," and the Bolshevist health commission has recently admitted that the death rate for Russia last year was 75 per thousand, against a birth rate of only 12—fearful figures. They are falling victims to typhus, bubonic plague, and cholera as the result of Bolshevist misrule. Bolshevism, in fact, is killing Russia.—London Globe.

WHEN AMERICA DICTATES

If western civilization is to survive, there soon must be an exercise of reasoned power. We can see no way out without recognition of the accomplished fact of Bolshevist rule at Moscow. If western Europe cannot make war it must make peace, and rely upon time and the natural processes of reviving intercourse to place once more a foundation under European society. Bolshevik Russia will continue to plot, but she cannot do the hurt she is now doing, and with peace there is hope that the forces of intelligence and progress will assert themselves among the Russian people. The first essential is to withdraw the pressure of invasion which sustains the authority of the existing government as nothing else could do, uniting all classes against the invader, fusing all differences in the common passion of defence. — Chicago Times.

FINAL PROTEST OF O. B. U.

The O.B.U. made a final kick against signing up with the U. M. W. of A. on Saturday last at a mass meeting of their supporters held in Hawthorne's Hall. It was finally decided to send a delegation to General Manager Wilson and ask him if they were to be compelled to sign up. The delegation, followed by the entire audience, amounting to about 175 men, marched to the Coal Co. office, where Mr. Wilson listened to them for over an hour. He told them what they should do was to take the matter up with the Minister of Labor as the affair was entirely out of his hands.

The men then returned to the hall and eventually decided that they would not sign up, but keep on working at the old rate.

At Michel the men also held a meeting and decided to continue at work.

Since Saturday last a large number of additional men have signed the U.M.W. of A. check-off and it is not anticipated that there will be much further trouble.

EXPECT COAL STRIKE TO BE CALLED OFF

Indianapolis, July 28.—The strike of company men and dayworkers in the Indiana coal fields was expected by miners and officials to be called off late today. This followed a conference of representatives of the local unions of the United Mine Workers of America of District 11, held at Terre Haute this morning.

ACCUSED IS ACQUITTED

His Honor Judge Thompson presided at a crminal session of the County Court on Tuesday of this week when one Charles Martin Karaus appeared in answer to a charge of an unmentionable crime upon a young girl. The alleged offence took place at Corbin on July 11. At the conclusion of the presentment of the evidence for the presecution, accused went into the witness box in his own defence. His Honor, after a lengthy review of the evidence, dismissed the accused. D. M. Mitchell appeared on behalf of the Crown, while Sherwood Herchmer was counsel for the defence.

Tickets are now on sale for the Juvenile Stock Co. show. General admission tickets can be bought from any of the members of the company or members of the baseball team. Reserved seats can be obtained at McLean's drug store. If you have a general admission ticket and require a reserved seat you can obtain one by taking the general admission ticket and paying the 25c difference at McLean's.

RECOVERED THE BODY

The remains of little Marjorie Harper, seven year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eder Harper, of this city, who lost her life by falling into the Elko Canyon on the afternoon of July 16, were found last Sunday morning under the traffic bridge at Elkmouth, and later conveyed to the city. This was the ninth day following the accident and while the body had passed down through the turbulent waters of the Elk Canyon, it very remarkably escaped mutilation. Every stitch of clothing, however, had been rent from the body. The funeral was held here on Tuesday afternoon from the Baptist church, interment taking place in St. Margaret's cemetery.

PLENTY OF TOURISTS

(By J. F. Spalding)

Made a trip of inspection of the camp sites between here and Crow's Nest on Tuesday last and found that they are being well patronized, and from remarks made by some of the tourists they compare very favorably with the camp sites across the line. Our road is very good as far as the Loop, but from there on to Crow's Nest it is rough and in need of repair. However, compared with the road from there on to Blairmore it is a boulevard. That is without exception the worst road I have ever driven over and that is saying something. They have a small crew at work on it now but I haven't much hope they are going to make a great improvement on it.

Two tourists were here from Walla Walla recently and told me that they had intended coming up with the tour from there, but found that they could not wait for it. They say that there are a lot of cars entered for it, and that it will be quite a big tour. They were very enthusiastic about this part of the trip and said they were writing back to several of their friends to tell them to come up with it. No definite date is set yet, but it will be some time next month. This part is left to the secretary of their auto club to decide on.

Several parties have stayed over lately for fishing and have expressed themselves as well satisfied. One party is staying over a week and is going to the South Fork with me next week. Fishing there is a bit late this year, but indications are that it will be good very soon now.

Accidents are getting to be very frequent in our vicinity lately, and with two exceptions our local motorists have been the victims through their own carelessness. It is nearly time that the provincial police made a few examples. Not only do they do injury to themselves and their cars, but they are a constant menace to everybody else on the road. Fortunately no great personal injuries have resulted so far, but that is only sheer luck and unless some drastic steps are taken now, it is only a matter of time before accidents of a very serious nature will occur. There are so many new drivers here who get out on to the highway with all the confidence in the world just as soon as they can start and stop their cars, and are all right just as long as they have a clear road, but in case of emergency they simply blow up, and the road between here and Morrissey is no place for explosions.

All of the American motor magazines are boosting for international travel. There are three highways which are of an internation character now, the Roosevelt International Highway, the Geysers to Glacier Highway and the National Parks Highway. Another one is in the preparatory stages at present, but is an assured fact; it is the King's International Highway and is a purely Canadian enterprise, instigated by Pecy Gomery, who passed through here last week on his pathfinding trip from Montreal to Vancouver. The great number of American motorists visiting this section of B. C. this summer will be the best of advance advertising for us, and the only unfavorable criticism I have heard from those who have visited the bureau has been in respect to the need of road signs.

FOREST TURNED TO STONE

We are apt to look upon America as a country whose age cannot be reckoned with the age of Europe. Yet in her contribution to the record of earth's days the North American continent ranks first among the countries of the world. Nowhere in the history of the earth's formation s extensively and so remarkably preserved as within the boundaries of the United States.

We have a striking example of this in the petrified forests of Arizona. Indeed, these trees of stone are rigidly regarded as one of the wonders of the world. Here are forests of giant trees, or rather tree trnuks, which have been turned into stone many ages ago. Some of these trunks measure twelve, fourteen and even twenty feet in circumference. In length they vary from a few feet to as many as 200 feet. The weight of any single trunk is greater than that of any living tree. It is equal to that of so much stone—for indeed, these trees are stone, or rather solid rock.

The great petrified forest of Arizona covers nearly 100 square miles. It is now a national park and belongs to the United States government. Anyone who intrudes unlawfully, or who does wilful damage, is subject to a fine of $5000 and imprisonment for twelve months.

The trees in this strange forest are scattered about in the wildest confusion. Not one of them is standing—most are broken into huge sections, stripped of limb and twig, great glistening logs of rock. Although as hard as granite, the stone when polished, is of incomparable beauty. It comprises all the colors of the rainbow—yellow and red prevailing and making one of the most beautiful hard stones that can be imagined. We have agates of the purest violet, as well as onyx, jasper and opals in all varieties of pattern and color. Before the government took over the forest, enterprising manufacturers carried off the logs by the score and made table tops, clocks and other articles from the agatized wood.

A number of petrified trees are also to be found in Yellowstone Park. Here we find them standing, like giant columns of some ruined temple. Then fossil or silicified trees are by no means unknown in this country. A fossil was unearthed at Parkfield Colliery, near Wolverhampton, in 1844. In the space of about a fourth of an acre stumps of seventy-three trees, with their roots attached, were found, the trunks lying prostrate in every direction.

But how came these trees to be turned into stone. So far as those in Arizona are concerned, it was undoubtedly due to volcanic phenomena. They were probably thrown to the ground in an upheaval of the earth's surface—an upheaval that occurred hundreds of thousands of years ago—and then partially buried in sand and water. As the wood decomposed it was replaced by silica in the sand. Particle by particle each cell was replaced by mineral matter, so that the original form, to the minutest detail was exactly reproduced.

"OVER NIGHT" COMING TO THE GRAND

Welcome news to local theatregoers is the announcement that on Saturday, Aug. 14, the Sarah Gibney Co. the same excellent company that presented "Pal 'o Mine" here a short time ago, is to pay us a return visit. The play that the company has selected for the coming engagement is the side splitting farce comedy "Over Night." This play was one of last season's biggest laughing hits in New York and has been meeting with wonderful success on the road this season. Miss Gibney announces that she will be supported by the same company that appeared with her on her previous visit and she has also added two new members to her organization.

It is the intention of this company to play in Fernie every Saturday night and they will give us a new show each trip.

Some of the plays that will be presented by them during their engagement here are "Very Good Eddie," "Twin Beds," "Mary's Ankle," "Peg o My Heart,' "Peaceful Valley" and "The Man of the Hour."

Synopsis of Land Act Amendments

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residence, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation not less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other cause, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residential and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANTS ACT.

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with His Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a deceased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provision for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS.

BASEBALL

Wycliffe baseball team journeyed to Fernie last Sunday and won the return game from Fernie by a score of 3 to 2. Fernie was exceedingly unlucky in not capturing the honors, outhitting the Wycliffe nine, and up to the eighth innings it looked as if Fernie was going to show a shut-out, but a costly error and two hits in this innings enabled the visitors to bring in three runs and win. From start to finish it was a regular pitcher's battle between Sofko and Musser. Sofko outpitched Musser, fanning no less than 12 batsmen to Musser's five, and had he been given airtight support there is no doubt the Wycliffe team would have had a goose egg to their credit. Fernie started the scoring in the first innings, C. Colton getting a clean hit, Murray fanned, Dunlap flied out, Colton going to second. McLeod secured a hit, scoring Colton. In the second innings Fernie notched up another run, Callahan scoring. No runs were scored by either side up to the eighth, when Wycliffe rallied and cinched the game. L. Crowe knocked a high fly to the right field, which McLeod dropped, allowing Crowe to go to second. Adamson fanned, McMahon hit safely, Crowe going to third, McMahon stole second, McTier hit scoring Crowe and McMahon, McTier scored when Clark hit a fast grounder to the right field. Bamford fanned, Finnis fanned.

In the last half of the ninth Fernie's chances looked rosy, when Musser fanned Colton, then walked Murray and Dunlap but managed to pull himself out of the hole by fanning R. Colton and McLeod.

Batteries: Musser and McMahon; Sofko and R. Colton.

Umpire—J. McIntyre.

The game scheduled for last night between Fernie and the White Spruce Lumber Co. had to be called off on account of rain.

Fernie will play Baynes Lake at Baynes on Sunday and it is expected a return game will be played here on Sunday, Aug. 8.

THE MARXIA THEORY

The general strike is an invention of Karl Marx, and is intended as the weapon of the proletariat, or non-propertied wage earners as against the mass of society, including such of the wage earners as have saved money. Marx's theory is that society is divided into classes, and that the solution of the social, industrial and economic problem is the forcible triumph of the proletariat class over all others. Majorities cut no figure at all in this reasoning; indeed it is fully admitted, as now in Russia, that the class which thus seeks to enforce its will may be in a decided minority. But this does not matter. The theory is that the non-propertied wage-earners, by the ultimate weapon of the general strike, may first enforce their will by destroying government and then abolishing all other classes or elements — thus, in Marx's phrase, "freeing" all classes even against their own will.—Boston Transcript.

FOOTBALL

Coal Creek travelled to Michel last Sunday and got beaten to the tune of three goals to one. Coal Creek won the toss and played with the wind in the first half. The play was slightly in favor of Coal Creek and after some pressing they secured the first goal. It was an easy shot to stop but the Michel goal keeper not being an expert on high ones, let it pass. In the second half Michel started in to overcome the lead of Coal Creek and it was only a few minutes before they scored the equalizer. Michel continued to press and gave the spectators a nice exhibition of combination play, and soon secured two more goals through the fine playing of the Fraser boys and Brown. At this stage the play became rather rough and a free fight was narrowly averted, the trouble arising over Wilson of Coal Creek charging a Michel man and knocking him out. The referee decided that the charge was fair enough and allowed Wilson to play. The game ended, Michel 3, Coal Creek 1. Michel deserved to win as they had the best of the play in the second half. McGovern at centre half played a steady game but Holmes at back was sorely missed. Coal Creek halfbacks did not check close enough and that was the reason for their downfall. Michel grounds should be suspended until the officials can show that they can keep the crowd within bounds. The public do not want to see any rough stuff pulled off and the sooner it is stopped the better for the game.

Fernie goes to Michel on Sunday, August 1, and the winner of the game wins the league championship. If it should result in a draw, all three teams will be tied. This is the last League game of the season and both clubs will have their strongest line-up. The teams are fairly evenly matched, Fernie having a shade the better team, but Michel has the advantage of playing on their own grounds. All the trucks and cars in Fernie are hired for the day, as this match is worth going a long way to see. The footballers are travelling by cars kindly donated by several of our citizens.

"WHY WEAR CLOTHES?" ASKS ERNEST SETON THOMPSON

As To Morals—Turkey is the most clothed nation in the world—consider its morals. The 17th century was the most clothed period in the history of our own race—nuff said. Among the Indians, the Arapahoes were without moral standard and the Cheyennes of spotless virtue—both dressed alike. The Kavirondos of British East Africa go stark naked and are of a much higher order than others who hide their nakedness. Ergo—"Vice and virtue have their origin in other things."

As to Health—To the covered throats and high necked uniforms of the army are attributed diseases as shown by the following figures quoted by Mr. Seton and taken from the records of 1914, the latest that we as yet have. Diseases of respiratory organs in the ratio of 49.45 per one thousand men; but—sailors only 21.1 per one thousand men—"As the men are of the same race and in all other cirrumstances the same, the test is perfect, the evidence conclusive, that covering up men's throats guarantees an increase of throat diseases," says Mr. Seton.

BY HALL CAINE

"Oh, you good women, who are happy in the love that guards you, shields you, shelters you, wraps you round and keeps you pure and true,—tread lightly over the prostrate soul of your sister in her hour of trial and fierce temptation." Thus does Hall Caine plead for the unhappy young wife who flees, in this great picture, from a hateful husband to a decent man she loves. LABOR PARTY'S SANE VIEWS

It would be a mistake for the rest of Canada to assume that all of the Labor members who constitute an important group in the new Manitoba Legislature, are of the same stripe as Ivens, Armstrong and other strike leaders who were elected in the City of Winnipeg. A considerable number of those chosen in other constituencies were candidates of the Dominion Labor party, an organization which gives recognition to the rights of the community at large; rights which the One Big Union Party denies.

The Dominion Labor party is entitled to the good will of many individuals not directly identified with the labor movement, if recent utterances by its organ, "The Statesman," of Edmonton, correctly voices its views. In passing let it be said that the publication has no connection with "The Statesman" of Toronto, a journal financed by aliens to promote the disintegration of the British Empire. The Albertan "Statesman" is on a different plane, and a recent pronouncement in its columns on the subject of strikes is well worth the attention of everyone.

Citing the last steel strike in the United States, the attempted general strike in France, and the Winnipeg general strike of last summer, its editor says that the results "do not seem reassuring to those who hold that the strike is Labor's greatest weapon."

"Indeed," he continues, "there are not a few persons today, both Labor leaders and others, who think that the strike is fast becoming obsolete. It is 'tactics' for which there is too small a measure of success. It is symptomatic merely; it does not remedy or suggest a remedy. And if the success of the strike for industrial purposes is questionable, the strike for political purposes is futile and doomed to failure. Perhaps its only real benefit to labor consists in the impetus it gives to strengthened organization and solidarity."

Most of the statements in the paragraph above quoted are unquestionably true. Within the past few months the condition which prompted members of trades unions to sentimentally support strikes from whatever cause, has evaporated. It is seldom that public opinion, even among staunch union men of other trades, is with the strikers, unless they have a real and discernable grievance. One reason, no doubt, is that the workers have discovered that incessant strikes have been a strong contributory cause of the high cost of living, which bears very heavily on themselves and their families. It is even to be doubted whether today a strike promotes solidarity in the union which initiates it. On the inside there is usually a cleavage between the unmarried men, without family responsibilities, who relish the excitement and freedom of a "holiday" (as many of them cynically call it); and the older men who know that a strike, if prolonged, means privation for their wives and children.

Above all, the conviction has become widespread that the public at large has rights which cannot be cancelled at will by the decision of employees in some essential calling, to strike. When the well-being of the community is menaced, citizens at large depart from an attitude of neutrality and become voluntary strike breakers. The disposition among most employers at the present time is to give the worker a fair deal; but they cannot be expected to pay men or women more than the product of their labors will bring in the open market. The prevailing policy of passing the increase in the cost of labor on to the consumer has its limits. Prices reach a peak where the consumer ceases to buy and learns to do without. The more thoughtful representatives of Labor know this full well, and it is an excellent sign when we see the Dominion Labor Party impressing on its followers the danger and futility of indiscriminate strikes.—Toronto Saturday Night.

RAIN AT SO MUCH AN INCH

Rain is being contracted for on the Pacific coast by farmers who have accepted the proposal of a professional rainmaker to furnish precipitation on the basis of no rain, no pay. Fifteen hundred dollars an inch under a recent contract was to be paid a rainmaker for all precipitation recorded at Oakdale in March and up to April 10. The district needing the rain was the San Joaquin valley, where the rainfall had been heavily deficient for several months. Ordinarily the San Joaquin valley gets considerable rain in the spring, and it received more than its normal supply this year, so the rainmaker may have a profitable contract. He is following an ancient profession. From the dawn of history the medicine man has been an active figure in time of drought. His incantations were expected to furnish moisture. Presumably he was usually shrewd enough to follow the admonition that came from Kansas in the dry years, that it did no good to pray for rain as long as the wind was in the southwest. By selecting a favorable occasion for making rain he kept up the trade for generations. — Kansas City Star.

VANCOUVER LADY TALKS ABOUT HERB REMEDIES

All over British Columbia, Wonder Health Restorer is having a wonderful sale. Behind its success there is nothing but an actual record of the relief of human suffering and disease through the marvellous medicinal properties of the herbs it contains. It is not a "patent medicine"—it is a herbalist's prescription—the work of a lifetime of study and investigation.

What Wonder Health Restorer is doing may be judged from the following endorsement from a Vancouver mother:

"I feel I must write and tell you of the benefit derived from your Wonder Health Restorer. We have used it as a family medicine and tonic and find it beneficial to both children and adults. My little girl (3 years) did not seem to grow or develop for a year, but since giving her Wonder Health Restorer during the past month everyone has remarked on her development.

"Personally I cannot speak too highly of it. I am enjoying better health now than ever and have never been so free from women's troubles as now, for the past eight years being under the doctor for nerves and heart trouble. Since taking the tonic I have never had a return of the old pain, which always bothered me as soon as I started to do any work and from which I could not get relief.

"I shall never fail to recommend it to sufferers and feel grateful that Wonder Health Restorer was brought to my notice.

"MRS. ERNEST G. WOODROW.

Wonder Health Restorer is sold in Fernie by H. F. McLean.

Ask about it. Get a copy of "The Road to Health," which gives personal letters from sufferers from Asthma, Rheumatism, Stomach troubles, Kidney complaints, Nervous diseases, Female troubles, Piles, Eczema, etc. It has worked wonders in these cases. It will do the same for you.

IT WAS EXACTLY WHAT HE NEEDED

Sleepless and Weak, He Could Hardly Stay on Job—Tanlac Again Proves Merit

"Tanlac certainly proved to be the medicine I needed, and I am glad of the opportunity to recommend it," said James Payne, foreman of the paint gang of the Canadian National Railroad, for which road he has worked sixteen years, recently.

"Before Christmas I had an attack of the 'flu,' which left me in a badly run-down, weakened condition. My appetite dwindled away until I could hardly eat a thing and finally I stopped eating breakfast altogether. I am a sign painter by trade, and my nerves got in such bad shape my hands shook like a leaf and it was impossible for me to do any small lettering. I could get but little sleep, often lying awake until three or four o'clock in the morning, and always got up feeling as tired as when I went to bed. I was troubled a great deal with dull, mean headaches, and finally became so weak and felt so tired and worn out all the time I could hardly stay on the job.

"As almost everyone I talked to spoke so highly of Tanlac I decided to give it a trial, and now I praise it as much as anybody. It went right after my troubles at once, and I have a splendid appetite, am always anxious for breakfast, have gained several pounds in weight, and feel as good in every way as I ever remember feeling in my life. My nerves are as steady as a clock, and I can do the smallest kind of lettering better than I ever could. I can sleep like a child all night long and always get up feeling simply fine. I never have a sign of a headache, and, in fact, just feel good and full of life all the time. Tanlac has helped me even more than I expected and has certainly maintained its reputation in my case, and I will always take pleasure in recommending it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggists in ecery town.

CAPITAL, LABOR AND JESUS CHRIST

"First, Be it hereby resolved that we, the duly elected delegates representing all of the organized crafts of the Wheeling District, do hereby unanimously declare it to be our belief that the teachings of Jesus Christ constitute a platform upon which all men can agree.

"Secondly, That we believe they can be applied to modern industrial problems.

"Thirdly, That we will cooperate with those who will join with us in an earnest endeavor to apply His teachings in the Wheeling District.

"Fourthly, As further evidence of our sincerity we have duly appointed a committee of three to confer and decide what method shall be pursued."

They were busy, practical, everyday men who adopted unanimously the above resolutions. They represented the workers in Wheeling, West Virginia, and vicinity.

Never before has a body of workers adopted the teachings of Jesus Christ as their platform. Never before has any large body of either employers or employees declared that on this platform capital and labor may meet.

People the country over have taken the news of the action of the Labor Assembly in Wheeling much as the elders reacted to the words of Jesus. Capital and labor adopt the teachings of Christ as their platform? Some have laughed and turned their backs; some have pretended to believe, some have argued that they never had and never will; others have been cynically sarcastic in their comments. Others are pondering the whole matter, and to them is coming a vision of what this old world might be if men thought of each other as brothers.

The spirit expressed in the Wheeling resolutions is gaining ground. I talked the matter over with John J. Walsh, a member of the Commission of Conciliation of the United States Department of Labor. He is one of the men whom the Department sends out at the request of employers or employees to help in labor troubles. Mr. Walsh has had remarkable success in averting strikes and in settling disputes. How does he do it? I quote from one of his speeches made recently to hundreds of employees of a big packing-house who were about to strike. He said:

"Take your troubles to the Lord. He is your Big Boss."

Before a gathering of the employers Mr. Walsh said: "We must get back to God's teachings and must have brotherly love in our hearts if we hope to make the world's big undertakings go forward."

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for wharf at Graham Landing, B.C.," will be received at this office until 12 o'clock noon, Tuesday, August 17, 1920, for the construction of a Public Floating Wharf at Graham Landing, on Arrow Lake, District of Kootenay, B.C.

Plans and forms of contract can be seen and specifications and forms of tender obtained at this Department, at the office of the District Engineer at Nelson, B.C., and at the Post Office, Graham Landing, B.C.

Tenders will not be considered unless made on printed forms supplied by the Department and in accordance with the conditions contained therein.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, equal to 10 p.c. of the amount of the tender. War Loan Bonds of the Dominion will also be accepted as security, or both War Bonds and cheques if required to make up an odd amount.

Note—Blue prints can be obtained at this Department by depositing an accepted bank cheque for the sum of $10, payable to the order of the Minister of Public Works, which will be returned if the intending bidder submit a regular bid.

Secretary.

CARELESSNESS CAUSED 1140 FOREST FIRES LAST SUMMER. THESE COST TAX PAYERS $370,000. A LITTLE CARE WOULD HAVE SAVED THIS. BE CAREFUL!

The flight of a train is like the throb of an enormous pulse in the arteries of the nation. To slow the beat is to slow the life of the country.

THE train in this picture is one of the eleven hundred freight trains in daily service in Canada.

It consists of one heavy-duty freight engine and 45 standard box cars.

It can carry 2,000 tons of wheat.

In 1913 its engine could have been built for $34,700—to-day $81,000; its box cars for $1,138.85 each—to-day $3,797.50.

In other words the rolling stock alone in the movement of 2,000 tons of wheat has increased in cost from $85,948.25 to $251,887.50 or 193.1%!

The labor bill of the railways has risen in the same period from $115,000,000 to $231,000,000,—101%!*

The cost of rails for a mile of track has gone up from $9,497 to $19,680—107%!

No cost has been unaffected by the general rise.

Operating expenses continue to rise more rapidly than Gross earnings. Net earnings are sinking at an alarming rate.

These are the facts that lie behind the application for increased freight rates for the railways.

*Estimated

Explanation of Chart:

Top line shows the rise of Gross revenue.

Middle line shows the more rapid rise of Operating Expenses.

Bottom line shows the downward plunge of Net earnings as a result of the rise in the middle line—Operating Expenses.

LOCAL TRAIN IS HELD UP

Shortly after five o'clock on Monday afternoon, while travelling between Coleman, Alta., and Crow's Nest, B.C., the westbound "local," officially known as Train No. 63, was the scene of a holdup in which the male passengers only were the victims. The bandits were travelling as ordinary passengers and according to Conductor Sam Jones, boarded the train at Lethbridge, having transportation from that place to Crow's Nest. The first intimation of the desperate purpose of the gang, which consisted of three men, was when about two miles west of Coleman station upon entering the second class car or smoker from the baggage car, Conductor Jones was ordered to "hold 'em up," he being then accosted by a short, stout , dark man, presumably of French or Italian extraction, about 28 or 30 years of age, but armed with a vicious looking, high-powered automatic. Conductor Jones and others present at this incident did not at first realize that the man was in earnest but thought it a crude practical joke. Conductor Jones ordered him to restore the gun to his pocket and walked down the aisle in the smoker, when he grasped the air signal cord, pulling it once. Immediately the bandit fired and simultaneously every one promptly understood that the man meant to carry out his initial threat. Following this incident another armed man came from the front of the train, ordering the baggageman and brakeman toward the rear. The first bandit then took the three members of the train crew in his custody and marched them to the rear platform of the train, where they were forced to remain. Robber number two then ordered all passengers from smoker to first class coach and robber number three then came into prominence by guarding the forward platform of this car. In this manner all within the car were under surveillance from both front and rear platforms by bandits number one and number three, while number two performed the function of searching the male passengers and relieving them of such sums of money as was available.

The robbers during the episode made absolutely no attempt to hide their identity by means of masks, etc., and consequently good descriptions of them were obtained. Based on these descriptions the following are now suspected of having been implicated: They are John Bassoff, height 5 feet 9 in., heavy dark moustache tinged with grey, about 45 years old, cast in one eye and known in Calgary. He wore dark cowboy hat, khaki Norfolk jacket, khaki shirt and breeches and high laced boots. Another is believed to be Frank Allen, about 30 years old, height 6 feet, also clad in khaki coat and breeches. This man is thought by the authorities not to have been on the train but had a conveyance available for his cohors near Sentinel, where they departed from the train, in order to swifty carry them away from that locality. Alex Bassoff, 30 years of age, dark complexion, thin featured, slim build, wearing dark suit and high boots and dark hat is thought to have been bandit number one, while Grim Attin, 5 feet 8 in., stout build, wearing dark suit, compares strongly with the description of robber number two. All are foreigners, this being particularly noticeable of the one who did the searching, as he spoke with a decided accent.

At the time of the robbery there were about one hundred passengers on the train and little happenings during the affair, which was pulled off speedily nevertheless, left the impression that they were apparently amateurs at this dangerous game. It was further quite evident that they were bent upon making a rich haul from some party they thought to be a passenger on the train but of whose identity they were not positive. This theory was gathered from the fact that the one making the personal searches repeatedly walked back and forth through the car after brief conversations with those on guard. F. E. Harrison, of Calgary, assistant director of coal mines operations, was a passenger and he with another unidentified passenger bore the distinction of being searched twice. Mr. Harrison was relieved of all his cash but a valuable watch, presented to him while he was mayor of Saskatoon, was not taken. Another peculiar incident was that an elderly gentleman, stated to be a post office inspector from Lethbridge, was not searched at all. Female passengers were entirely ignored and, and a further demonstration of what might be termed unprofessional management of the holdup is the fact that in several cases husbands took advantage of the opportunity to transfer their reserve bank rolls to their wives and thereby did not sustain as heavy a loss as might otherwise have been expected. J. C. Donald, of this city, general manager of the British Columbia and Alberta Power Co., successfully secreted his pocket book between the end of the seat and side of the coach, retaining only about a dollar in small change in his trousers pocket, and the robber after examining it considerately returned the change to Mr. Donald's pocket, spilling a portion of it on the floor in his nervous haste to complete his work. Mr. Donald at the time of hiding his pocket book had forgotten that in addition to a sum of money in bills it also contained bearer cashier's checks to the amount of $1000.

Within ten minutes after the bandits ordered the train to proceed it had arrived at Crow's Nest and Conductor Jones had the alarm on the wires. The Alberta Provincial Police, the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the B.C. Provincial Police forces were speedily requisitioned for duty to search for the robbers and posses left here on the eastbound train at 8 o'clock. Every road and trail was patrolled and guarded leading from the locality where the robbers disappeared, while all freight and passenger trains were frequently searched. So far, however, no trace has been reported of the missing culprits, but as it is believed they may have endeavored to make their way into Montana by way of a mountain trail through the Flathead country, posses taking up that duty have been out of communication with any centres since the morning following the hold-up and are not expected to be heard from in any event for five or six days.

MEN ARE IDLE TODAY

During the past week practically all the miners have signed the U.M.W. of A. check-off. Some trouble developed this morning at Coal Creek over the refusal to allow Wm. Sherman to sign up and the men returned from work, sending a delegation to General Manager Wilson to inquire into the trouble.

Mr. Wilson, we understand, informed them that if they returned to work he was prepared to discuss the matter with them, but so long as they violated their agreement by remaining away from work he would do nothing.

A mass meeting of the men was held in the Grand Theatre and it was decided to return to work pending a further discussion of the matter with Mr. Wilson tomorrow.

ROD AND GUN CLUB HOLD MEETING

The Rod and Gun Club held their usual monthly meeting on Monday last. Reports in connection with the restocking of our streams were submitted, to the general satisfaction of the members.

The badges are now ready for distribution. Any member wishing to obtain a badge is requested to get in touch with Tom Beck or Secretary Jim Carnwath.

The Club decided to pay a visit to Michel on Thursday evening to meet the Michel club for a conference.

It was decided to form a junior branch of the Club in the near future. All the boys in town who fish or hunt are asked to watch for the announcement of meeting. The juniors will be made full fledged members and given a badge for the sum of 50c, which is the actual cost of the badge.

Fishing was reported by several members to be very good at present, some very good catches having been made.

In the competition for the largest char to be caught by any member, the interest is still keen. Several large char have been taken, the largest so far reported being 13 lbs.

The P.G.'s and 3D's played a game of golf—no cricket—we mean baseball, last evening. The 3D's took 11 strokes to the first hole, and the P.G.'s five. In the next the 3D's got 8 strokes and the P.G.'s 14 strokes. It was only a two-hole affair. A. C. Liphardt counted the strokes and Johnny Garbutt judged the fairness of play. The players wish to extend their thanks to the local baseball club for use of their equipment.

MICHEL WINS THE TROPHY

Michel defeated Fernie in 2 goals to 1 in a hard fought contest in the last league game, before a record crowd numbering nearly a thousand. Fernie boys were first on the field, closely followed by Michel. Jimmy Wilson refereed the game. Fernie won the toss and played with the wind in their backs. Michel opened hostilities and scored their first goal right from the kick-off in 1 minute. This was an easy goal for Michel and the Fernie boys were dumfounded and did not seem to settle down to their regular game until near the finish. Fernie kept bombarding Michel goal but none of them seemed to take effect and the teams crossed over with Michel one goal up and the wind in their backs. Everything looked blue for the Fernie team but they played classy football and they set out to win. A nice cross was sent over from G. Parnell and that old war horse Dick Thornton was in his place and he made no mistake in finding the net. The game was now on even terms and both teams battled for the winning goal. Michel did most of the pressing having the wind in their backs, and ten minutes before time Michel again found the net, after some fumbling in front of the goal. There was no more scoring and the game ended as above mentioned. The game was clean throughout and was ably handled by Jimmy Wilson. Only once did it look as if something would happen on the side lines, when the Michel linesman was giving some very one-sided decisions. The referee promptly asked for a new linesman, and everything went smoothly after that. Michel boys played the game of their career and the Travers boys were very much inevidence. They deserved to win but the Fernie boys still think they have the best team. However, this remains to be seen as the Mutz Cup games have yet to be pulled off as soon as they are drawn.

BASEBALL

On Sunday last the local team journeyed to Baynes by auto and for the third time this year went down to defeat at the hands of the "Sawdust Eaters," the local aggregation being snowed under in a game of bad breaks, coupled with numerous errors, by a score of 11-3. The game was anything but baseball from the first inning, when a mixup on the base path between second and third caused dissention which lasted all through the entire game and was disappointing to the fans. In the sixth innings Fernie had the misfortune of having two players put on the crippled list in as many minutes. Catcher Colton had his hand badly split open between the fingers from a foul tip, and McLeod, who replaced him, got a wrenched shoulder by coming in contact with a base runner in an effort to field a ball thrown from the outfield. Archie Dunlap then donned the catcher's regalia and ably finished the game, and in all probability will be seen in that position during the remainder of the season.

The local team, undaunted by the several successive defeats and loss of two players who will be out of the game for at least a month, are again meeting Baynes on the local diamond on Sunday, Aug. 8, at 2.30 p.m. The team is being rebuilt and are practicing hard all week in an endeavor to cop at least one game from Baynes before Pitcher Sofko leaves for college.

Besides the game with Baynes on Sunday next, arrangements are completed for a game with Wycliffe nine to be played in Cranbrook on Sunday, Aug. 15, and a return game will be expected here the following Sunday, Aug. 22. These three games will be the last that Sofko will be with the team and the boys are determined to back him up to their best during these games.

The management wish to extend their thanks to Fred Johnson, M. A. Kastner, H. R. Huntington and Tom Graves, who so kindly donated their cars for to convey the players to Baynes; also to Wm. Johnson and J. T. Mangan, in a similar capacity for the game at Michel some time ago. The club would appreciate any car owner's effort in this direction for future games out of town. Any who feel so inclined can make arrangements with Rod McLeod or Pep Colton.

The local Chautauqua committee are busy rustling tickets for the big show, which starts on Aug. 14.

TOURIST TRAVEL INCREASING

Last week I drove to Blairmore and told you what a rotten road it is between there and Crow's Nest. I also wrote to J. W. Davidson, the President of the Calgary Good Roads Association, and have had a leter from him in which he says: "I am very glad that you wrote me in regard to the condition of that road; I am quoting those paragraphs from your letter to the Minister of Public Works (Alberta government) in a strong letter which I have sent to him suggesting that immediate action be taken to improve this road. Your trip will be of great help in this particular line."

It pays to kick sometimes and if this hurries them up to fix that road this year, we shall have a fine road all the way to Calgary, which will be a very decided advantage to us, as I know that quite a few motorists who would be driving from there, through here, have decided not to on account of the condition of the road between Pincher and Crow's Nest.

On Wednesday there were two large touring cars here from San Antonio, Texas. One of the party told me that when they were at Yellowstone Park they were given one of our booklets and after reading it decided to come this way to get to Spokane instead of going through Montana. They expressed themselves as more pleased with this part of the trip than any of the places they had been through and said that this part of the Rockies will undoubtedly become very popular with motorists from all over the States, as they have nothing to compare with it over there, either from a scenic or good roads point of view. They wrote home whilst here and advised some of their friends to come this way also. They were very enthusiastic about the scenery between Lundbreck and here. I wonder what they said about it after reaching Elko?

Mr. Percy Gomery, who pessed through here two weeks ago on his trans-continental trip logging out the King's Highway, has written and asked for some pictures of this vicinity with which to illustrate some magazine articles, and particularly wants "The Eastern Gateway to B.C.," and "The Twin Peaks of the Lizard Range." These will appear in foreign as well as American magazines and also in a guide of the new highway. This will be splendid advertising for us. He compliments us for the publicity work we are doing and winds up his letter by saying, "And I wish to take this opportunity of expressing my appreciation of your splendid work in bringing the Canadian Rockies before the touring world."

TO TELL AGE BY THE SKIN

An elastic, snappy skin is that of a young person; a sluggish, doughy one denotes age. How to test this condition is told by an editorial writer in Good Health. His rule is a desirable one to know, for one doesn't always realize his age. There are men and women young at sixty; or they may be old at thirty-five. The skin-test tells. Hold your fingers out straight, says the Good Health writer, and pick up a fold of the skin on the back of your hand. If the skin snaps quickly back into place, you are young. If it stays up in a ridge you are old. It's no use to say you aren't. You are seventy or eighty or ninety years old, no matter what the date of your birth. You are prematurely old. Even so, perhaps by painstaking effort you can win back some of the youth you have lost. He continues:

"Many years ago a French physiologist made the sage remark which has since become classical: 'A man is as old as his arteries.' This statement is literally true, because the arteries are the channels through which nourishment reaches the individual cells and tissue fibres of the body. The ever-waning energy of the living cells is replenished by the living supplies of nutritive material which reaches them through the blood. When this is greatly reduced, they degenerate. Still further: Every living cell is continually, by its activity, producing poisons. If left to accumulate in the cell or about it, these poisons first depress and cripple and finally actually destroy the cell. A poisoned cell is intoxicated. This condition of the cells is fatigue or exhaustion.

"When the arteries become old, they are shrivelled and narrowed. The life-giving streams which poured in myriads of rivulets through every nook and corner of the body dwindle, and finally, in many areas, dry up completely and cease to flow. The result is first weakness, decrepitude, senality, and, finally, death.

"It is equall true to say, 'A man is as old as his heart,' for when the heart fails to circulate the blood, the effect upon the tissues is the same as when the arteries shrivel so that they can no longer convey the blood.

"We may also say, 'A man is as old as his kidneys,' for it is the duty of the kidneys to remove the poisonous acid wastes of the body. When these are left behind, the cells are rapidly poisoned, and the same condition is produced as when the arteries are shriveled and no longer able to carry to the cells fresh blood to wash away their poisons. The blood becomes saturated with poisons and all the cells become crippled and degenerate, until finally death closes the scene.

"It is likewise perfectly correct to say, 'A man is as old as his liver,' for the duty of the liver is to destroy poisons; and when it, through overwork, becomes prematurely worn out and unable to perform its normal function, the blood is flooded with toxins which damage every cell and tissue and cause premature decay and death."

Again, it may be said, "A man is as old as his skin." One can get along without a stomach, but the skin is an organ essential to life. When an animal is deprived of the function of its skin, death occurs within a few hours. A healthy skin is an indication of good health. A dingy, dry, wrinkled or diseased skin is always an indication of some morbid condition. A healthy skin is thick, elastic, translucent. The bloom of health is on it, as upon the skin of a ripe, luscious peach. The writer goes on:

"The skin is kept in health by the thyroid gland, which presides over its functions in a wonderful way. It is the function of the thyroid gland to destroy poisons, but the principal source of the poisons with which the thyroid gland has to deal is the alimentary canal. When puterefaction occurs in the colon as the result of constipation, a state of things always present in meat-eaters, floods of poison are continually poured into the blood, which impose upon the thyroid, as well as the liver and the kidneys, an enormous amount of useless and unnecessary work, by which they are prematurely worn out.

"The wasting atrophy of a worn-out thyroid gland causes it to shrivel in size, a condition indicated by a depression at the lower part of the neck in front, just above the breast bone. This may be constantly seen in old people, also in middle-aged persons who are prematurely old. In such cases, the skin is always found to possess certain characteristics which which are a certain indication of old age. The skin, instead of being thick and elastic, snapping quickly back into place like a piece of rubber when a fold is pinched up, will be found to be thin, wrinkled, parchment-like, often so nearly transparent that the veins can readily be traced by their bluish color, and not infrequently marked by dark-brown spots scattered here and there. These spots are at first small and almost imperceptible, but as age advances, they become more intense and finally of a very dark-brown tint. These spots are produced by the deposit in the skin of a poisonous pigment known as brenzcatechin.

"For years the writer has given much attention to the skin as an indication of the degree of advancement of the old-age process. When a fold of skin on the back of the hand of an old person is picked up between the thumb and finger, the ridge that is formed will remain elevated above the skin for some seconds, while in a young person a fold of skin picked up in a similar manner snaps back into place the instant it is released.

"The writer's former method in examining the skin in this way was to pick up a longitudinal fold of the skin. Some years ago, in examining a lady's hand in this way, she surprised us by remarking: 'You don't do it right, doctor. You don't do it right. My uncle, Judge Jones, told me that in the old slavery times the buyers, in examining slaves, used to examine the skin of the hands by pinching up a transverse fold. If the fold stood up instead of instantly disappearing when the skin was released, the examiner would say, "Oh, you're too old for any good. I don't want you.'" Evidently the slave dealer found this simple test a better means of determining the age than the testimony of the poor slaves themselves or the masters who sought to dispose of them.

"Now look at your hands and see what story they tell. If you find a shiny, wrinkled skin, or one that has lost its elasticity, this is an announcement of the fact that you are prematurely old; and if you haven't already taken cognizance of this fact and begun to mend your ways, to economize your energies, to cultivate health and longevity, you would better begin at once. There is no time to be lost, for from now on your progress toward physical bankruptcy will be rapid unless you adopt every possible means to conserve youth, vitality and life. Cut out meats of all sorts from your bill of fare. Discard tea and coffee. Take pains to masticate your food thoroughly. Avoid overeating.

"Discard condiments of every sort. Go early to bed and sleep eight or nine hours out of every twenty-four. Take a day off for an outing two or three times a month. Live in the open air as much as possible. Sleep in the outdoor air on a porch or with widely opened windows. Drink two or three quarts of water every day. Make a liberal supply of greens a part of your daily bill of fare. Eat potatoes largely instead of bread. Eat a big spoonful of bran at every meal. Don't worry."

THRASHER—COULDREY

Wilmer, Aug. 2.—A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Couldrey, when their eldest daughter, Florence, was united in marriage to Mr. George Thrasher, a well known business man of Bull River, B.C. The Rev. E. G. Thatcher officiated. The bride looked charming in a travelling navy suit with crepe blouse and hat of maline. She was attended by her sister, Miss Winnie Couldrey, who wore a flesh pink silk gown. The groom was supported by his old friend Charles R. Walker, of Nelson. After the ceremony luncheon was served at the home of the bride. The happy couple left in their car for an extended trip in the Windermere valley. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Thrasher will reside at Bull River.

THE DARLING OF SPAIN

Joselito Gomez, the most popular bull-fighter in Spain, was killed recently at Talavera, 40 miles from Toledo, by the fifty bull of the afternoon's sport.

Joselito was better known as "el Gallito" (the Cockerel), says Reuter, to distinguish him from his brother, Rafael Gomez, also a matador and known as "el Gallo." When the Queen of Spain was present in the Maestranza bull ring in Seville a few days ago, it was Joselito, the darling of the people, whom she honored by throwing him her white handkerchief as token of her admiration and pleasure.

Tall and handsome, elegant in his gold-laced matador's dress, imperturbably brave, but never reckless, Poselito Gomez was wont to boast that no bull would ever kill him, so confident was he in his skill. A native of Seville, of gipsy birth, he earned enormous sums by his prowess, and his popularity was so great that his supporter grouped themselves into a party, calling themselves "Gallistas," who upheld his fame against that of his rival, Belmonte, known as "Bomita" (the Firework), who is left by Joselito's death the premier bullfighter in Spain. Joselito, not yet thirty, was unmarried. In 1917 he took part in 117 fights. The earnings of a first-class matador reach as much as $100,000 a year.

FARMER IS HUNGRY ALL THE TIME NOW

Had No Appetite and Was All Run Down—Feels Fine Since Taking Tanlac

"I am feeling as fine as I ever was in my life, and the reason for it all is Tanlac," said Adrien Blackburn, a prosperous farmer living at Beaumont, Alberta, recently.

"For nearly two years," he continued, "I suffered all the agony that goes with stomach trouble, backache, and headaches, and the strain was so great that it almost made a complete wreck of men. Nothing I ate tasted right, and my appetite was so poor that what little I did force down barely kept me on my feet. Right after eating I would bloat up with gas and feel as miserable and nauseated I would have to lie down. I was absolutely run down, a great deal under weight, and at one time I had to lay off work for a month. I had sharp pains across my back and my head ached nearly all the time and some days it hurt like it would split. I just had to grit my teeth and force myself to do my work, for it was almost more than I could stand.

"My father suggested that I try Tanlac, but as I wanted to feel sure that I was taking something that would help me I went to a doctor and he recommended it also. So I began taking it and on the fourth day I began to feel better. I have taken three bottles now and I eat like a bear. Why, I can hardly get enough to satisfy my appetite. My digestion never was better and I never suffer after eating. These headaches have left me and the pains in my back have entirely disappeared. I have gained nine pounds in a little over three weeks, and can do as hard a day's work as any man. Yes, sir, Tanlac has fixed me up so fine I will always be glad to say a good word for it."

Tanlac is sold in Fernie by A. W. Bleasdell; in Glacier by A. E. Morris, and by the leading druggist in every town.

AFRICAN GEMS GIFT OF THE SEA

South African diamonds came originally from the sea, according to a writer in the Mining and Scientific Press (San Francisco) and there is a huge deposit under its waters, off the African coast. Diamonds are even now dredged from the sea-bottom, but the original source has never yet been tapped. Diamond mining, the writer tells us, is now the principal industry in southwest Africa. Diamonds were first discovered in 1908, during railway construction, in the valley sands of the coastal desert, and have since been recovered over a stretch of 270 miles between latitude 28 and 24 degrees S. However, there are wide intervals where no stones have been found, and none has been discovered at a greater distance than fifteen miles from the coast. He goes on:

"Various theories have been advanced as to the origin of these diamonds, but the theory to which facts appear most satisfactory to lend themselves is that the diamonds are of sea origin. It is generally believed by geologists that primary deposits exist under the sea within the area between Possession Island and Pomona on the mainland. The stones already found by dredging in the sea are believed to have been thrown up on the floor of the ocean by volcanic action, while the stones on the mainland, according to this theory, have been washed up and carried by the wind in the drifting sand dunes. Another fact which geologists believe substantiates their theory is that the largest stones hitherto found have been picked up just south of Pomona, which indicates that the centre from which the gems were distributed is situated in closer proximity to the southern part of Pomona claims than to any other section of the fields. Taking everything into consideration, they are led to believe that the southwest African diamonds have been derived from primary deposits that lie buried beneath the sea somewhere in the neighborhood, and evidently to the south of Pomona. Experts are agreed that the diamonds are unlike those of any other known source—primary or alluvial—in the Union of South Africa. This view is indorsed by the Antwerp and Amsterdam cutters, who maintain that the stones in hardness and other physical properties more closely resemble the product of the Brazilian fields. They are characterized by great brilliancy, even in the uncut state, and the quality is remarkably good. This accounts for the fact that, notwithstanding their diminutive size, great numbers of these stones have been absorbed by the world markets. In weight the diamonds range from 1-20 to 34 carats. The average size of diamonds produced in 1913 was 1-5 carat. The largest stones have been found in the Pomona and Ida Tal area. As regards color, diamonds of almost every conceivable hue are represented. Blue-white stones occur, but are on the whole rare. On the other hand, clear white crystals are very common and Many yellow, pink, dark red, purplish, bluish, green and black stones are also found. During 1913, the last full year before the war, the production amounted to 1,284,727 carats, valued at $13,132,250."

COURT DECISION HARD ON BIG ESTATES

According to a judgment handed down recently by the Canadian Supreme Court, large estates, subject to succession duties, are going to have hard sledding. The case is point is the Province of British Columbia, versus the estate of the late Sir William Van Horne. The estate left by the late Sir William has a total value of about six million dollars, and of this amount $300,000 was located in the province of British Columbia. The contention of the province was that the Finance Minister, Hon. John Hart, had the right in fixing the succession duties to strike the rate for the $300,000 located in that province, on the basis of the rate for the six millions, scattered not only over all Canada, but in Cuba as well. Of course such a ruling means a rich haul, for the larger the estate the more the various provinces take as their share. But it is readily conceivable that if all the provinces get into the game as British Columbia is doing there will not be much left for the family.—Saturday Night.

Revenue from income taxes this year is expected to total $40,000,000. While this is not in excess of last year, it is attributable to the fact that the measure of excess profit is not nearly as large now as was the case in 1919, when the calculations were based on the last year of the war. An amendment made to the act this year simplifies the prosecution of defaulters and it is announced that there will be extensive prosecutions of delinquents. Failure to make a return and the subsequent registration of a notice to the party so failing is sufficient proof under the new act to secure conviction.

COMMUNICATION

Fernie, B.C., Aug. 6, 1920.

Editor Free Press:

Last week's Free Press contained the following item:

"The new city amusement tax has caused the local picture houses to reduce their staffs, each house cutting one man out of the orchestra. They are also only running one show a night, which will save them about $20 a month light bill. Mr. Johnston, manager of the Orpheum, says that it was either a case of curtail expenses or close doors."

Half the truth is worse than a lie. It cannot truthfully be said that the above item is the whole truth and nothing but the truth.

First, the city amusement tax was not the "cause," but the "excuse" for cutting one man out of the orchestra, if this has actually been done. Neither was it the cause of running but one show a night, as they announced their intention of doing this during July and August weeks before the amusement tax by-law was considered by the city council. As proof of this, see their advertisements in the Free Press. It is a well-known fact that hot weather is poor show weather. Last winter and spring Fernie had but one picture show. It paid the government from $70 to $130 per week in amusement tax, and I am sure every fair minded person will agree that the city is entitled to a part of this.

For years every municipality in the province has been demanding of the government more assistance for school purposes. In compliance with these requests the provincial legislature at its last session gave municipalities the right to collect $5 poll tax and 10 per cent amusement tax, all of which must be used for school purposes.

Prior to the 1st of July, 1920, the amusement tax was two cents on a 15-cent admission ticket and four cents on a 35-cent ticket. On 200 15-cent tickets and 200 35-cent tickets this amounted exactly to $12. Under the new rate the government and city tax combined on these admissions amounts to $15, a difference of $3 on a hundred dollars. To offset this $3, they are no longer required to pay the tax of 15 cents per reel per day, which is probably more than sufficient to do so, leaving the amusement tax actually less than it was prior to July 1st.

Had the city taken advantage of all it was authorized to collect, 10 per cent, instead of 5 per cent as called for in the city bylaw, the picture shows might have some cause for complaint, but as it is I fail to see that they have any. If a difference of $3 on $100 is the cause of laying a musician off or likely to cause them to close their doors, people will wonder how they paid as high as $130 a week before this new law came into effect.

G. G. Henderson.

EAST AND WEST

Men look to the East for the dawning things, for the light of a rising sun,
But they look to the West, to the crimson West, for the things that are done, are done.
The eastward sun is a new-made hope from the dark of the night distilled;
But the westward sun is a sunset sun, is the sun of a hope fulfilled!

So out of the East they have always come, the cradle that saw the birth
Of all the heart-warm hopes of man and all of the hopes of earth—
For out of the East arose a Christ, and out of the East has gleamed
The dearest dream and the clearest dream that ever a prophet dreamed.

And into the waiting West they go with the dream-child of the East,
And find the hopes that they hoped of old are a hundred-fold increased.
For here in the East we dream our dreams of the things we hope to do.
And here in the West, the crimson West, the dreams of the East come true. — Douglas Malloch in New York Times.

Emphatic denial is given at Ottawa to a statement appearing in certain Canadian newspapers to the effect that no more photographs of soldiers' graves would be supplied to relatives owing to a shortage of funds supplied for the purpose by the Red Cross and other patriotic organizations. At the militia department it was explained that a Canadian photographic staff is still maintained overseas. Every Canadian grave in France and Belgium is to be photographed and copies of the photograph in each case will be sent automatically to the next of kin through military headquarters at Ottawa.

Nobody would have thought that Captain Brown was a liar but it is proved in the Juvenile Stock Co. sketch "You're in the Army Now."

The West Fernie Ice Cream Parlors are open on Sundays, where you can have some ice cream these hot days.

Mrs. Jos. Austin and children, Mrs. J. Rewers and children and Mrs. J. P. Lowe are spending a few weeks at Proctor.

Roman Mazurkiewicz, of Winnipeg, first secretary of the Polish Consulate for Western Canada, will visit Fernie in a few days in the interest of the Polish National loan.

Fernie's three-inch piece of German artillery arrived this week and will be set up in some conspicuous public place. Cranbrook and Golden each received a gun of about the same calibre.

Sherwood Herchmer is driving the longest ball on the Fernie golf links. The old story about golf being the game when you hit the ball and if you find it that day you win, seems to be true in his particular case.

The showing of pictures this week at the Isis promises to be of the most pleasing kind. Monday and Tuesday, Edith Roberts in "Her Five Foot Highness." A dainty feminine play. Be sure to see this.

Friday and Saturday, Aug. 13 and 14, a Cappellani Special "Oh Boy" will be the feature at the Isis. This play had a wonderful run in Calgary and is sure to prove a great attraction with the theatregoers; also the 4th episode of "Trailed by Three."

Deputy Grand Chancellor Irvine, of Nelson, and H. S. Winn, chairman of the Provincial Compensation Board, visited the local lodge of the Knights of Pythias on Thursday evening. They are on their way to the meeting of the Supreme Lodge at Minneapolis.

Word was received on Tuesday from Rochester, Minn., that very little hope is entertained for the recovery of D. McDougall, who underwent an operation for the removal of a cancerous growth. His son Joseph left on the evening train for Rochester.

John Vichuk, charged with pointing a gun at his wife, came up before Magistrate Whimster on Tuesday. His previous good reputation together with the fact that the gun was not loaded, got him off with a $25 fine. The domestic troubles which led to the affair have been adjusted and the young couple are living together again.

Messrs. Howard Blesard, of Trenton, N.J., and Guy B. Baker, of Los Angeles, travelling from Trenton, N.J., through Washington, D.C., Virginia, Mammoth Cave, Rocky Mountain Park of Colorado, Yellowstone Park, Glacier Park, Banff and then to Spokane, Seattle and Los Angeles, say: "This is one of the most beautiful stretches of scenery and roads we have yet enjoyed. The booklet "The Canadian Rockies" was responsible for our taking this road west, and we are greatly indebted to it for this pleasure."

On Tuesday M. A. Kastner, while endeavoring to ride a log in the White Spruce Lumber Co. flume, had a narrow escape from being killed. Mr. Kastner's river driving is very punk but he is hell on insurance drives.

Several small fires have been causing more or less trouble throughout the district, but they are nearly all under control at the present time. Two are raging back in the Bull River country and the rangers are taking in a fire fighting crew today. A fire at Morrissey on the C. P. R. property has a crew of about 30 men figthing it.

The Provincial Voters List closed on Aug. 31, some 2873 persons having registered. This number seems very small as there must be fully 5000 eligible to register in this district. If you have overlooked registering there will be a court of revision in the court house at 10 a.m., Sept. 13, where if you appear in person you may still be able to get on the list.

DEALS BLOW AT SEDITION

At last, almost, a case of catching the higher ups! It isn't quite the first case, absolutely, but it is near enough to the first to call for comment. The radical or the discontented elements of society never weary of asserting that there is one law for the poor and another for the rich, the meshes of the law being large for the rich and small for the poor, but the conviction of a millionaire socialist at Chicago presents proof again that the assertion has but slight foundation in fact.

William Bross Lloyd, a man of some prominence at Chicago on account of his wealth and his descent from a good family of Illinois pioneers, has long made himself notorious there by his academic anarchism and seditious use and abuse of the right of free speech. His idea of the rights of a citizen was decidedly elastic and liberal, such in fact as encroaches on the rights of other citizens and in practice proves subversive of the rights of society and the state. He used his rights, so-called, as an American citizen to proclaim his contempt for and defiance of the national government. According to the testimony of hearers of his public speeches he urged revolution against the republic.

Such views and urgings clearly transgress the right of the free citizen to criticize the policy or policies of the government of his country. As a citizen he had taken oath to support his country and its government and its institutions. To advocate armed antagonism to the government, as he is accused of having done, falls outside the bounds of legitimate criticism and the real rights of the critic.

Mr. Lloyd and 19 other members of the communist-labor party have been convicted and sentenced, not because they hold particular views, but because they have openly advocated overt action against the people and their government and have preached lawlessness. The evidence appears to be conclusive that these men were proved guilty, not only of participation in an un-American and anti-American conspiracy, but of what other nations would consider anarchism. The state government has done a good job in netting the big criminals first and the state's prosecuting attorney at Chicago deserves thanks from loyal citizens everywhere for his success in putting these men behind the bars. A shrewd stroke has been struck against the foes of society and of the republic. —Spokesman-Review.

DISCOVERY IN RUBBER

A discovery of the highest importance has been made by a lecturer in chemistry at the Manchester (England) School of Technology. When rubber and sulphur are mixed together at a high temperature the rubber becomes hard and tough—"vulcanized" is the technical term for the change. While rubber can stand the necessary heat, other raw materials with which it might be usefully mixed would be destroyed. The new invention is a cold process, in which two gases are used to produce the free sulphur required in vulcanizing. When the liquid form, is treated with the crude rubber, either in the solid or two gases it becomes efficiently vulcanized, and when it is mixed with any waste material such as sawdust, leather scraps, or paper, a similar change takes place without the properties of the waste material being affected. This discovery is to be applied immediately to the manufacture of linoleum, the heavier classes of wallpaper and artificial leather for upholstery. It is also applicable to the manufacture of one-piece boots (of rubber and leather scrap) and of felt (combining rubber and "shoddy"). There will also be development in connection with motor tires.

TAIL-TWISTERS HAVE OVERSHOT

Straws are said to show which way the wind is blowing, and in the United States just now there are a good many straws which indicate that the anti-British propaganda has been overdone to such an extent as to produce a serious reaction. The sounder elements of the American population have become less and less passive in their opposition to an agitation which aimed at the embroiling of two great powers, with common ties of intellectual and moral tradition, of literature and laws. The De Valera wave has washed itself out, and in several States the Sinn Fein leader has been made to feel unwelcome. The identity of the enemies of Great Britain with the elements which are seeking the overthrow of American institutions also, has been established in many specific instances and this fact alone has reacted in overt expressions of friendship for the motherland.

A very significant announcement is that the State of Virginia will this summer present to Great Britain a replica of the Hudson statue of George Washington, and will send Col. Richard L. Brewer, Speaker of the Virginia House of Delegates, to England in company with Colonel John W. Williams to make the official presentation. This tribute from the "old Dominion," where Cornwallis met with the decisive defeat that ended the war of Independence, is gratifying indeed.

A Canadian who recently went to New York on business had an interesting experience of the repute in which the Hearst publications stand at present. While waiting in a hotel lobby for a New York friend, he bought a copy of the New York "American" just to see what more it might have to say in denunciation of the British Empire. He noticed that several persons looked at him askance, and a few minutes later his friend, on arriving said: "For Heaven's sake, man, what are you doing with that rag in your hand?" That's not done, you know, old man, here in New York." He seemed to have committed as great a faux pas as though he had publicly exhibited indecent photographs.

Even in the Senate, hammering Great Britain, except in very parliamentary language, has gone out of fashion. Not long ago a lengthy debate was precipitated by the silly boasting of a certain London oil promoter about cornering the world's petroleum supply. But while some of the senators spoke with apprehension the tone of most speakers was almost one of admiration for Great Britain in showing foresight on the petroleum question.

Of course before the November Presidential elections, we shall probably hear of some casual tail-twisting, but the average American is showing his true Americanism by exhibiting a sincere desire for friendly relations.—Toronto Saturday Night.

WORK OR STARVE

It was in France during the world war. The English had 45,000 Chinese coolies working for them; the Americans had 25,000. As usual, the "Heathen Chinee" (quoting Bret Hart) were giving their overseers "pecks of trouble"—they were eating aplenty but working very little. The overseers were in despair. They coaxed; they swore; they growled. They lashed the coolies; they beat them; they kicked them—nothing doing. The coolies, accustomed to such treatment and hardened to it till it had no effect on them, merely went on in their old, idle, shiftless way—eating more and working still less.

At this point enter a young American officer. Placed in charge of the coolies attached to the American army, he at once sized up the situation. He said to the American overseers under him (and to the English overseers not under him):

"Your system is all wrong; these hardened creatures never will respond to such treatment. From this day every coolie found loafing on the job is fired—and stays fired till he is ready and willing to come back and do an honest day's work. Anybody caught giving these loafers assistance or anything to eat will be court-martialed."

The longest period any coolie stayed away from the eating which went with his work was thirty-six hours, and one innings on the "Work or Starve" basis cured every patient of the deadly malady of idleness. The problem resolved itself into self-solution. It was a case of "work or starve." They worked.

LOST—Valuable gold brooch, set with stones. Finder kindly return same to Mrs. H. A. Wilkes.

PREACHING CIVIL WAR

The answer to those who are advocating recognition of the Soviet government is written in letters of blood in the reply which the Moscow Internationale has sent to questions asked by the British Independent Labor party. Nothing but world revolution, accompanied by bloodshed, nothing but a struggle, the scene of which will be the entire world, nothing but victory for so-called Communism through the agency of "heavy civil war," will satisfy the despots, Lenine and Trotzky. The doctrines they are trying to fasten on a world saturated by war, would, in normal times, be regarded as the ravings of fanaticism, but today, when there is a nervous social system, the missionaries of bloodshed find too many eager listeners. The gospel of the Moscow Internationale is finding a wider publicity in proportion to the overtures made by the Allied Powers to the Soviet government.

The psychology which would make political friends with the advocates of wholesale murder and those who in their own sphere have pursued assassination as a pastime cannot be understood by anyone who is imbued with a sense of justice. I would be on all fours with this propaganda to urge the British government to lie down at the bidding of the Murder League which is terrorizing Ireland. The reliability of Soviet faith is again being illustrated by the subterfuges being adopted in meeting Poland's request for an armistice. Fighting continues, although the promise of an armistice has been given. At the moment when the Russian Foreign Minister has asked Great Britain to permit of a peace conference in London between Russia and her enemies, the political party to which M. Tchitcherin belongs is urging the British workmen to launch a revolution against their government, to do away with parliament and establish Communism on the ruins of civil war. Propagandists of this kind the British people are asked to trust, to give political recognition to, and to trade with, just so that there may be some mythical material gain for the world. Whatever gain of that character there might be would be swamped in the immense moral loss to humanity, not only in civilization having condoned the crimes of despotism, but of having afforded the apostles of bloodshed every opportunity for the dissemination of their noxious creed.—Colonist.

SHARK MEAT IS VERY GOOD FOOD

Dr. Samuel Johnson's Dictionary of the English Language, published in 1755, defines oats as a cereal eaten by people in Scotland and by horses elsewhere. The tomato, formerly known as the love apple, was as late as the middle of the nineteenth century regarded with suspicion because of its relationship to poisonous herbs. Lack of familiarity with the merits and thoughtless prejudice have retarded the use of products of the sea as well as those of land.

With the more frequent appearance of new sea foods in our markets, the truth of the old saying, "There are as good fish in the sea as have ever been caught," is acquiring a new application. This is especially true of a large family of fishes representatives of which occur on all shores of the sea and in all climes—the sharks, strong, active, gracefully shaped fishes, varying in length from a few inches to fifty feet or more, which offer a wholesome, palatable and nutritious food, comparing favorably in dietary qualities with many of the highly prized sea foods

Many people, indeed, have recognized their value, and have utilized them extensively for food. In the countries bordering on the Mediterranean and in Great Britain, Norway and Sweden they are well known as valuable and nutritious food. At Folkestone, England, the flesh of one of the small sharks, salted and dried, is marketed as "Folkestone beef." Until recently their use as a food in the United States has been limited principally to seafaring people in scattered localities and to the fish markets of some of our larger cities, but with late interest aroused in new sea foods they are finding a place in our largest fish-distributing centres and have appeared on the menus of some of the leading hotels in several cities.

As already intimated sharks are of wide distribution, occurring in all seas from the equator to polar waters, but in great abundance in the tropics. Those, however, taken in the cooler waters of the temperate zones are among the most desirable species for food, and it is from these that the principal supply for the markets of this country is maintained.

Like the cod, squeteague, bluefish and other well known fishes, sharks feed mainly on fishes, crabs, mollusks and other small forms living in the sea, their method of foraging and capture in many cases being unusual and interesting. The threher shark uses its whip-like tail, which is as long as its body, to splash the water as it swims round and round a school of fish in ever narrowing circles, crowding the fish closer and closer together until the moment of attack.

The grayfish, sand sharks and some other species work in schools and do not hesitate to attack the fish taken in the fishermen's nets, the larger forms tearing the nets and liberating the catch. Others, as the smooth grayfish and the blue shark, are noted for their keen sense of smell. Swimming lazily along until it scents its prey, perhaps a crab hidden in a tuft of seaweed, the smooth grayfish turns and, rapidly moving its head from side to side, begins a systematic search over the bottom, circling closer and closer to the hidden prey, which it seizes with a rush and quickly swallows. The basking shark of temperate waters and the whale shark of the tropics are the largest of our fishes and at the same time among the most helpless and inoffensive. Their teeth are of little use, food being obtained by straining the small plant and animal forms living in the waters of the sea through their highly developed gillrakers. At certain seasons the first of these—the basking shark — is gregarious, the schools swimming gregariously along or lying motionless at the surface of the water with the backs awash. The most serious charge that has been made against the second — the rare whale shark — is that it sometimes rubs itself against the passing small boat upsetting it although it makes no attempt to molest the occupants thus unceremoniously cast into the sea.

The economic uses to which these forms may be put are somewhat varied. At one time large quantities of the hides, cleaned but not tanned, were used for polishing wood, metal and the like. With improvements in methods of preparation of sandpaper and emery, these have largely replaced animal hides. However, small quantities of certain classes are still in demand among cabinetmakers and for other special uses, as in optical fittings. Peculiarity of markings and character of the small, close set, variously sculptured, calcarious particles which cover the skin have adapted some to uses for sword grips, card cases, jewel boxes and other novelties. The demand for sword grips is at present unusually large and difficult to supply with satisfactory material.

Within the last year the bureau of Fisheries has interested American tanners to experiment in the production of leathers from these hides with excellent results and there now exists a demand for large quantities of raw materials. In tensile strength, leathers tested compare favorably with those made from mammal hides, and the market for these products appears assured. In addition, the livers are rich in a marketable oil, which is of value in dressing leather, soap-making, paints, and for medicinal purposes. The yield varies from less than a pint in some of the smaller sharks to about 125 gallons in some of the larger sizes.

The meat of sharks is white, slightly gelatinous, resembling halibut, but somewhat less firm and compares favorably in food value with other staple food fishes and meats. Russel J. Coles, who has eaten the flesh of many of our sharks, states that the flesh in freshly killed examples of some species has a peculiar odor which can readily be removed by salting. After several hours the meat should be freshened, then parboiled and cooked as any other fish. The flesh of the young sharks and such small forms as the grayfish is particularly good fresh, but it is as a preserved product that the meat of the sharks especially commends itself. Salted and smoked or kippered it is excellent. It may also be salted and dried, flaked or shredded.

In some parts of the meat the layers of connective tissue are quite close together. These parts may conveniently be run through a meat chopper and the meat used for fish balls, chowders and the like. Persons in position to smoke the fish will find the mild-cured, hot-smoking product particularly appetizing. Of its qualities, one who has tasted it says:

"One may compare it with halibut, haddock, cod and salmon only to record its essential superiority in every particular of tenderness and flavor. In the matter of light smoking, I regard the shark as enormously superior to any fish for this process, for in the samples from which I partook there was a complete absence of the strong fish flavor which is so hard to eliminate from light-smoked halibut and salmon."

CARELESSNESS CAUSED 1140 FOREST FIRES LAST SUMMER. THESE COST TAX PAYERS $370,000. A LITTLE CARE WOULD HAVE SAVED THIS. BE CAREFUL!

BEHIND every industry in Canada—

—from the patient truck-gardener bowed over his lettuces—

—to the young manufacturer struggling to prove the worth of Canadian skill and Canadian material in some new enterprise—

—stand the railways—the intelligence, the power and the hopes of the railways of Canada.

Not, like the Exploiter, watching to take harsh advantage of hard-times or the follies of a boom—

Not seeking by a moment's shrewdness to "clean up a million and get out!"

Not interested in the price of real estate in just ONE town, or the prosperity of just ONE province—

But, instead, employing their widely-gathered intelligence in the interests of all Canada for all time to come!

For the railways of Canada cannot be lifted up and carried away to serve any other master than Canada!

Their services cannot find any buyer but Canada!

They injure themselves if by asking too high returns To-day they damage the prosperity of the citizens of To-morrow.

MIDSUMMER DELINEATORS FOR DISTRIBUTION

THE NEW MALE SHOPPER

Until recently men did not shop — they bought.

Men jeered at women's shopping, but in shopping women showed far more discrimination and intelligence than men. They did at least observe shop windows and compare values. Now, men — if I may judge them from my own relations and acquaintances—were most conservative shoppers. It took much to make a man change his tailor, or hatter, or hosier. He simply walked into his regular shop and took very much what they offered him.

At last, however, men, slow-moving and conservative as they are, have been forced by the high prices to become real shoppers. For a long time they evaded the high prices by the simple method of doing without. I must admit that in this respect men can rival our sex.

When at last they were forced to buy things I found to my amazement that men were becoming students of advertisements. I have heard more talk among men about clothes prices during the last twelve months than during the previous twelve years.

I have heard men used to the careful fitting of expert tailors grow arrogant over the value of their new "ready-mades." I have even heard the clergy deplore the fact that their unfortunate professional attire keeps them from rushing to the ready-made shops.

The other day, when some man remarked that a firm had a stock of last year's straw hats at last year's prices, I was surprised to find that every man in the room at once asked the address.

My own husband's idea of the price of socks was exceedingly vague. I think he usually said: "Send me six pairs of those," without inquiring the price. The other day he remarked that X's were selling all-wool socks at 6d. a pair less than Y's. And until this last year he was scarcely aware of the existence of shop windows save as places of boredom when he was in town with his wife.

I am afraid that in the near future the shops that cater for men will find their trade distinctly less profitable. The high prices have killed—I know the sex is wrong—the goose that laid the golden eggs.—V. R. in the London Daily Mail.

CHEERS AND TEARS

"Put not trust in princes." Nor in a cheering multitude.

Mr. Bryan was unable to learn the lesson. Naturally enough he was misled in 1896. He was having his first experience then as his party's national leader. When the people gathered in great numbers and made his stumping tour a continuous ovation, he could read in his receptions only victory at the polls.

Four years later he was as rapturously acclaimed wherever he stopped, and again he closed his campaign supremely confident of success on election day.

Eight years later still — in 1908—he swung around the circle and found enormous crowds awaiting him. Again he closed his campaign with the feeling that the people were with him, and would vote as they had been shouting.

He had been speaking on the subject of prohibition for several months prior to the San Francisco convention and arrived at the convention certain of his ability to insert a dry plank in the platform. He was so quoted in interviews. His confidence of course was based on the responses he had just been receiving to his stump appeals. He did not doubt that he had stirred the people to the point that they would bring pressure to bear on the convention for a straight-out dry expression.

Then, for the fourth time, came the experience. The convention cheered him to the echo. Large numbers of delegates paraded about the hall in his honor. Everything was Bryan—but the votes. Only a hundred and fifty odd of the thousand and ninety-odd delegates recorded themselves in favor of his proposition. No wonder he wept.

As an orator—an entertainer—Mr. Bryan ranks with the best. As a vote-getter, he lacks lcass. — Washington, D.C., Star.

GOT ROAD GUIDES FROM FERNIE MAN

The following item appears in the Saskatoon Phoenix of Aug. 2, and shows that our Board of Trade is making good:

Several Saskatoon motoring parties have passed through Fernie, B. C., recently, and have been greatly assisted in finding their way around by J. Fred Spalding, chairman of the publicity bureau of the Fernie Board of Trade.

Charles E. Houlding is one of the toon, and has written to friends here saying that the Fernie board has complete and reliable information covering all the roads of the three western provinces and the States of Washington, Idaho, Oregon and California. Mr. Houlding states that he was informed that the board would be glad to supply advance information by mail to any Saskatoon people who intend to take motor trips west-recent arrivals in Fernie from Saskaward.

COAL CREEK NOTES

An "extra" pay day was held up here on Saturday last for retroactive monies due those entitled, resultant on the new agreement.

Jim Burrows, an old timer of this camp, was renewing acquaintances during the week.

Several of our local disciples of Isaac Walton were indulging in their favorite hobby during the week end, the creeks around here losing large numbers of the denizens of the finny tribe as a result.

Quite a large number of our sports journeyed to Michel on Sunday last to witness the football game between Fernie and Michel.

A special train was requisitioned to convey Johnny Hughes to Fernie hospital on Wednesday, suffering from a broken leg, broken ribs and other injuries received while following his occupation on the tipple.

A BIT PREMATURE

A successful old lawyer tells the following story anent the beginning of his professional life: "I had just installed myself in my office," he said, "had to put in a phone and had preened myself for the first client who might come along when, through the glass of my door, I saw a shadow. Yes, it was doubtless someone to see me.

"Picture me, then, grabbing the nice, shiny receiver of my new phone and plunging into an imaginary conversation. It ran something like this:

"'Yes, Mr. S.' I was saying as the stranger entered the office, 'I'll attend to that corporation matter for you. Mr. J. had me on the phone this morning and wanted me to settle a damage suit, but I had to put him off as I was too busy with other cases. But I'll manage to sandwich your case in between the other somehow. Yes. Yes. All right, good-by.'

"Being sure, then, that I had duly impressed my prospective client, I hung up the receiver and turned to him.

"'Excuse me, sir,' the man said, 'but I'm from the telephone company. I've come to connect your instrument."

PLAYING GOLF AT 81

"Except for golf," John D. Rockefeller had no program for the celebration of his 81st birthday. It is assumed that he otherwise passed the anniversary quietly, as most octogenarians do. But the exception is worth noting.

To how many men of his years is it allowed to take the vigorous physical exercise on a birthday or at any other time which a game of golf requires? Golfers 10 and even 20 years younger than the Standard Oil veteran will read with interest of his exploits on the links and in some cases no doubt with a feeling of envy at his continued pursuit of a sport interdicted to them by reason of failing health.

But is Mr. Rockefeller never to escape the solicitous comment of his countrymen? Time was when it was his millions that provoked remark. Playing golf now as he does at a period of life when most men are devoting themselves mainly to their slippered ease, he must expect to become the target of new attentions. Where he has derived his robust old age and why is he so unduly favored physically as well as financially? A man who has heaped up so much wealth as the Standard Oil chief ought by all the laws of the pursuit of riches to be broken down.

It is the fate of the fortunate to be thus misunderstood. Newspaper readers with only moderately long memories may recall when John D. Rockefeller's impaired digestion and his luncheon of crackers and milk were the subject of sympathetic comment. Possibly his present vigor is due to care in nursing his vitality; it may be he has conserved his health as he did his millions by his own prudence and with no supernatural assistance. Those who envy him may ask themselves whether he is not an example of what they might have been with equal painstaking. All at least can agree on one point, that Mr. Rockefeller has proved golf to be an "old man's game."

NOW AFTER THIRD MAN

Following the disclosures made by Tom Bassoff, murder-bandit, captured at Pincher late Wednesday night, that Alex. Auloff, leader of the gang, had chosen the Crow's Nest westerly route as a means of escape, the bandit man-hunt is being vigorously pursued from here, with civic, provincial, Royal Canadian Mounted and C. P. R. police. According to information supplied Auloff has many friends at Michel and in this city, who would willingly afford him shelter from the authorities, which is the alleged reason why he broke from the gang last Friday. Systematic searches were made here and in Michel of the residences in the foreign quarters but were unsuccessful in locating the missing bandit. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police in their widespread investigations have information whish corroborates the statements concerning Auloff made by the captured Bassoff. Last Tuesday evening John Gregory, teamster, of Crow's Nest, returning from a walk along the wagon road about a mile from the town noticed a friend on the railroad track, the railway and the road being close together. Gregory took a short-cut through the bushes to catch up to his friend, and in doing this came to a small cleared space and suddenly came upon a man armed with a rifle and completely answering the description of Auloff, except that the long light laced boots had been replaced by a new pair of heavy lumbermen's shoes. The man, while not actually covering Gregory with the rifle, kept it ready for instant use. The only conversation was a gruff demand from the supposed bandit for matches, which were supplied and Gregory was permitted to proceed. This incident was reported and in response to the call thre mounties were dispatched by auto and co-incidentally engine trouble delayed the police car for some time within a few hundred yards of the spot where Gregory had seen the suspicious character. Reaching the place at daybreak there were ample indications someone had been there and trackers had no difficulty following a winding course taken by the party, who apparently had dragged a a light pack behind him through the tall grass when departing. The trail abruptly terminated upon converging with the wagon road not far from Michel. The vantage point chosen by this suspect was admirably situated for him to observe great distances along the railroad and wagon road without exposing himself. No further trace was found until late in the afternoon, when a man carrying a rifle was seen on the road about a mile this side of Natal and hurriedly took to cover of the hillside when he noticed that he was observed. Cordons of police are distributed at every place between Crow's Nest and Fernie, with reserves held here ready to be dispatched to any locality. The authorities are now firmly convinced that the bandits were leaders of a larger gang of desperadoes who intended operating in this district and evidence is in their possession that their headquarters was near Crow's Nest, and that the train holdup was only a commencement of their activities. Bandit Akroff, killed at Bellevue on Saturday, has been positively identified by Albert Sullivan, government road foreman at Crow's Nest, as the man who on July 29, whlie Sullivan was engaged with a gang of men fighting fire near that place, came to him offering for sale some bacon. Sullivan refused and Akoff, who carried his wares in a suitcase, then left this with the fire fighters and departed. Examination of the contents later disclosed about forty pounds of bacon, bread, biscuts and cheese. The assumption is that he was endeavoring to take the food to a mountain cache but that the bush fire prevented him. All three bandits have in the past worked in bush camps and putting up ice at Crow's Nest. That the bandits have friends who are doing their utmost to divert the attention of the police from following the proper trail, is emphasized by a repetition of the attempt at Sentinel to obstruct the main line of the railway. Barely half an hour before the train was due a railway patrol bound from Coleman to Crow's Nest, discovered 34 railway spikes driven over the rails, a log secured across the track and a switch light put out of commission by the substitution of water in the lamp for oil.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Bachus, of Spokane, are spending the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pollock.

YOUTH—OUR INHERITANCE

While we have not counteracted age to any great extent, sufficient has been done in the last fifty years to enable us to see that, if we had only the courage to believe it, youth is our natural inheritance.

We, as individuals, whatever our task, are instruments of the divine energy which cannot fail. Success lies in knowing our relation to that energy and endeavoring to keep pace with it. Time, money, and ability are our God-given co-workers. Those who recognize their origin and motive will never lack any of the three.

PRESS TO VISIT INVERMERE

Invermere, B.C.—Preparations are now under full swing for the public reception of the members of the Imperial Press Association, who, together with their ladies to the number of 150 all told, are to visit this part on the afternoon of Monday, the 23rd of August. They are due to arrive in two special trains early in the afternoon and will spend the balance of it in this neighborhood.

A tentative program has been arranged which amongst other forms of pleasure and amusement will take that of motor boating, swimming in the warm waters of Lake Windermere, golfing, examining the Experimental Station of the Dominion government and other less strenuous features of entertainment. The proceedings will be closed with a tea which will be tendered to all visitors on the grounds of the Golf Club at the Community house of the Lake Windermere camp.

As this is the first reception that will likely be tendered them after entering this province, invitations have been sent out to some of the representative men of the Southern part of British Columbia, and to the leading members of the press, to be present as the district's guests. Special invitations have been sent to the members of the neighboring Boards of Trade.

It is the present intention to have the grounds set off with some Indian teepees, an assemblage of miners or hunters gathered in a miniature camp and then to go through the formality of breaking camp and going off with their picturesque train will also be attempted. In fact, all that pertains to the earlier days of the life in here will more than likely be graphically portrayed.

JUVENILE STOCK CO.

The Fernie Juvenile Stock Co. again demonstrated their ability to entertain the Fernie public in a manner unsurpassed by many of the road shows which visit this city, last Tuesday evening, when they produced a sketch entitled "French Without A Master," and the musical comedy, "You're in the Army Now."

"French Without a Master" was presented in the first act and was very clevely exhibited. Miss Blanche Labelle portrayed a young French girl with a slight knowledge of English, who elopes with a young Englishman, played by E. Colton, to a London hotel. Fred Bass in the roll of an "English bum," picked up by Porter Jimmie Davidson to act as interpreter in emergency, caused great amusement in his attempts to act in his new official capacity. Keith Colton, representing the paternal Frenchman, took his part exceptionally well. Miss Ruth McLean as the hotel clerk, and Mike Kasmar as the Scotland Yard detective, completed the cast of this little sketch and are to be commended on their good work.

The hit of the evening was the musical comedy "You're in the Army Now." Pep Colton in the roll of the Jew Recruit was certainly the right man in the right place, his interpretation of his part leaving no room for criticism. Fred Bass as Captain Brown and Miss Clara Cody as Nursing Sister are to be complimented on the splendid way in which they played their parts. Their songs were enjoyed by every member of the audience. Elmer McDougall as the Sergeant Major and Johnnie Gibson as the cook, acted their roles very well. The chorus of dancing and singing girls, comprised of Misses F. Heaphy, L. Mangan, D. Nelson, A. Corrigan, K. Hughes and H. Herchmer, were in a class by themselves. They certainly went through their evolutions in a manner which surprised their audience and it is to our credit that Fernie can produce such talent as they exhibited.

CITY FATHERS HOLD SESSION

The city council met last evening. Aldermen Bean, Tully, McEwan and Rutledge were the only aldermen present. His Worship the Mayor presided.

The minutes of the last regular meeting, July 22, and a special meeting on July 29, were adopted as read.

Fire Chief McNicholas applied for two months leave of absence to visit the old country on account of the serious illness of his mother. The leave was granted and the appointment of an acting chief laid over for a special meeting next week.

Applications for fire truck driver were received from Carl J. Foss and Harold Bowen. Moved by Rutledge and Bean that Harold Bowen be appointed on trial at regular truck drivers' wages.

A long letter was received from the Union of B.C. Municipalities dealing with the forthcoming convention to be held in Nelson in October. This was laid over until next meeting.

The question of renting certain property acquired through tax sale was referred to the public works committee.

The hydroelectric contract had to be laid over owing to the absence of Mr. Donald, manager of the company. There are still some points in the contract to be definitely adjusted before it will be presented to the ratepayers.

Application for Beverage Licence for the Canadian Hotel was made. The license inspector, however, did not recommend or report unfavorably as to the application, referring it for disposition in such manner as the council might decide. It was finally decided to hold the matter over until next meeting, when a further report will be available.

Miss Carmichael's request for increase, laid over from the previous meeting, was disposed of by the following motion by Rutledge and McEwan: That said salary be fixed at $100 per month from August 1.

The application of Ritchie, Paterson & Co., chartered accountants of Lethbridge, for city auditors, was further stood over. The auditors tendered to do the work this year for $475, which is a reduction as compared with fee for former years.

Bylaw No. 212, being an ordinance to provide a scavenging system for the city, was introduced. In committee it was dealt with seriatim. Much discussion was indulged in with a view to inaugurating suitable regulations. The fee for the removal of garbage and refuse was fixed for householders at 50c to $1 per month. Special regulations may also be adopted by the council by means of resolution at any time to meet with conditions. The bylaw received its three readings.

The noxious weeds are to be harvested at an early date.

BASEBALL

The Baynes boys took the local lads measure in last Sunday's game by a score of 10—9. Both teams were out with their heavy artillery and pounded the ball to all corners of the lot. Baynes secured 16 hits and Fernie 13. The score was tied no less than four times and the game had to go into an extra innings to decide the winner. Baynes started out by scoring 1 in the first, Fernie got three in this frame. Glover, Fernie's lead off, secured a hit, went to second when Murray walked, then Dunlap connected for a three-bagger, driving in Glover and Murray and coming home on a wild throw from deep right. In the fourth Baynes tied the score and secured 4 more in the fifth by consistent hitting. Fernie's turn came again in the sixth, when they tallied 3 times, and tied the score in the seventh, each team got one in the eighth and ninth. Baynes with one on and two down in the tenth sent in a pinch hitter, who drove in the winning run. Fernie failed to tally in their half, so Baynes went away with the honors for the fourth time. Fernie missed their chance in the ninth, when after the tieing run was registered and had runners on second and third, the next three batters were retired without further score. The game, despite the large score, was one that kept the fans on the go all the time, even to almost going on the diamond in their excitement. Fernie had another player added to the cripple list when Glover got spiked in the fourth, but managed to finish the game. However, we almost won a game.

On Sunday the team plays in Cranbrook, with a return game here on Sunday, Aug. 22. Negotiations were under way with the Winnipeg Gians, a colored aggregation, travelling through the country, for a game here on Tuesday, but up to now have not terminated, but keep your eyes open.

The ball club wish to thank Fred Bass and members of the Juvenile Stock Co. for the donation of $50, a percentage of the receipts realized at their show on Tuesday night.

ESTEVAN IS TOWN OF MANY THRILLS

Regina, Aug. 9.—Life is just one damn thing after another in Estevan. Sensations have been plenty in this southern Saskatchewan town the last month. There have been a couple of cyclones, and today another thrill was added when the provincial police made wholesale arrests following the kidnapping of O. M. Christophers, the O. B. U. organizer, who was run out of town on July 3rd.

The following have been arrested as being connected with the "kidnapping" and are held on $10,000 bail: Captain Sam Dryden, president of the Estevan branch of the G.W.V.A.; Tom Munro, a farmer; Corporal Geo. Hunter, of the Saskatchewan provincial police; Jim Clarke and Ames Gouh.

The arrests followed investigations by the provincial police since a delegation from the O.B.U. at Winnipeg came to Regina and asked the attorney-general to hold an investigation. Sensational developments are expected to follow the preliminary hearing at Bienfeit on Thursday.

CAPTURED THE BANDIT

Bellevue, Aug. 9.—The death toll in the man hunt that has stirred the entire south country reached a total of four this morning, and the probability is that other lives will be sacrificed before Tom Bassoff, murderer-bandit is taken. Every possible avenue of escape is blocked by cordons of mounted and provincial police, reinforced by 100 specials, forming the posse that are on Bassoff's trail. Following the battle on Saturday afternoon in a Bellevue cafe, when Corp. Usher of the mounted police, Constable Baillie and Bandit Akroff lost their lives, Nick Kistruck, a Russian working in conjunction with the police, failed to answer a summons to halt on Sunday night and a bullet from a gun in the hands of a police officer brought him low. He was dead when the officers reached him, the bullet from a high-powered rifle tearing its way through his heart.

Kistruck had been searching an empty house on the outskirts of Hillcrest when he hard a freight train pulling into the station. He jumped out of the window and started running toward the train, presumably to search it. An officer on guard called upon him to halt, and when he did not heed the officer fired. The first rays of dawn today found the little towns of Bellevue and Hillcrest simply alive with police officers, armed to the teeth. On the surrounding hillsides could be seen the silent watchers of the night, and a fight to the death is certain as it is believed Aloff will not be taken alive. When the time comes it will be a battle where quarter will not be asked nor given. Details of the tragedy on Saturday show how desperate a criminal the police have to deal with, a murderer armed with two Luger guns, and one that is a deadly shot.

Blairmore, Aug. 8.—Saturday afternoon Constable Frewin received a phone message from Bellevue to the effect that the bandits had put in an appearance there and he boarded a passing train arriving in Bellevue between two and three o'clock. The Bellevue police had located two of the bandits in the Bellevue cafe, an eating house run by a Chinaman. The police at once prepared to attack and take the men. Constable Baillie went to the rear of the place and Constables Frewin and Usher to the front door.

The restaurant is divided off in stalls or small eating rooms on the right side and the two bandits were sitting in the second one from the front of the building. The two policemen entered and were in the door of the little room before the bandits were aware of their presence. Constable Frewin ordered the two men to hold up their hands and as they began to raise them he saw the barrel of a gun in the bandit's hand and immediately opened fire with his automatic. Both bandits began shooting at the same time, but Frewin was

WOMEN'S NAMES PERPETUATED

In a bulletin issued by the U. S. National Geographical Society the writer says that the names of such women as Joan of Arc and Edith Cavell are written indelibly upon the hearts of people for all ages. Generous and well-desreved tributes have been paid lastingly to others, but so much have their names become a part of our daily lives that many who frequently pronounce them are unmindful of their significance. Cities, rivers, provinces and islands bear the names of women of distinction. Continuing the bulletin says:

"Lady Franklin Island, near Baffin Island in the Arctic Circle, is named for the wife of Sir John Franklin, the explorer who lost his life in first finding the northwest passage through the great ice of the Polar regions. There is perhaps no more beautiful story of untiring devotion and persistent effort than that of Lady Franklin who, after the failure of many attempts, fitted out a ship which, though it brought back to her the definite proof of the loss of her husband's expedition, established his achievement of his object.

"The picturesque stories of the little Indian princess Pocahontas always will hold a loved place in the hearts of American childhood. Counties in Iowa and West Virginia, villages in Bond County, Illinois, and Cape Girardeau County, Missouri, and in the Rocky mountains in Alberta, Canada, are named after her.

"Queen Victoria's name is wrapped around the British Empire from the capital of British Columbia, over the heart of Africa at Victoria Nyanza and Victoria Falls, and beyond into the Queensland and Victoria in faraway Australia. America, too, in its early days of colonization paid its tribute to the queens of the mother-country and to the gracious ladies who braved the dangers of untried shores with their lords. Elizabeth, a cape in Maine, and Elizabeth city in Virginia, as well as the State itself, together with some twenty-five other places in the United States, bear the name of the clever, witty, versatile coquette who took the dissension-torn England and whipped it into a place of world power. Elizabeth Carteret, the charming wife of one of the aristocratic proprietors of New Jersey, shares with Queen Elizabeth some of the honors of the name. Elizabethtown in North Carolina and Elizabeth city in New Jersey are named after her.

"The name of Clara Barton is perpetuated in Barton County, Kansas, and the wife of George Washington, who before her first marriage was Martha Dandridge, is honored in the town of Dandridge, Tenn.
