THE ROSE AND THE SHAMROCK.

A Domestic Story.

Frank found it hard to repress his wrath when he heard this cool illusion to a meeting which blasted his own hopes; unless, indeed, Kathleen could give a very satisfactory reason for meeting this unworthy man.

But now the cousin came in; Norah queenly in black lace draped up with crimson passion-flowers, with their long trails of green leaves and tendrils; Kathleen in a shimmering robe of blue, and forget-me-nots in her brown hair. There was a look about her eyes as if she had been weeping, and her cheek was pale, but her face lighted up when she saw Frank, and she glided to his side with an empressement with which at any other time he would have been delighted.

It was not till all the bustle of finding seats at the concert-room was over, and Frank had contrived to secure one between Kathleen and her chaperone, that he was able to put the question, "Whither went you this morning?"

Her cheek flamed, and her eyelids drooped.

"Did not Norah tell you that I kept my room with a headache?" she whispered, evasively.

"Yes, your cousin repeated what she was bidden to say; but I must know more than this, Kathleen. I demand the truth!"

"Demand!" she repeated, with an offended gesture. "Mr. Dalton, you are speaking very strangely!"

"I cannot stop to consider my words at such a moment; and I repeat that I demand, by our mutual love, that you tell me the whole truth. Kathleen I know that you were not in this house this morning when I called.

"Who has been playing the spy upon me?" she asked, a little terror audible in her accents.

"No one. By a strange chance, I saw you myself in Verrall street."

Kathleen's trembling fingers played with her fan; and she darted a furtive, troubled glance at the young man, which pained him excessively, for there was none of the fearless confidence in it with which he had been hoping against hope that she would have heard and answered him.

"I had an errand in the street you name," she said, presently. "Was it honorable to watch me?"

"Yes, when I saw you in danger!" he retorted. "Kathleen, you must have been mad when you consented to meet that worthless man"—and he darted a furious glance at Lord Glanore—"upon any pretext!"

Kathleen's head had sank lower and lower while he was speaking, but now she looked up and said, "Hush, Mr. Dalton; your loud tones will attract attention. Besides, you are mistaken. I did not go to Verrall street to meet Lord Glanore."

"Thank heaven, you are able to say so!" the relieved Frank exclaimed. "Then the rencontre was an accidental one!"

Almost unintelligibly, she murmured that she had not seen his lordship at all; and her lower was too much shocked by the deliberate falsehood to make any immediate reply.

"Had I been inclined to doubt my own sight, and believe your assertion," he coldly observed, "Lord Glanore's confession that he visited Verrall Street this afternoon would put it out of my power."

"Lord Glanore visited Verrall street!" she repeated, with an expression of countenance difficult to analyze. "But he did not say he had seen—that is, spoken with me? He could not! On my honor, Mr. Dalton, I held no communication with his lordship, nor was I conscious of his presence there!"

"And yet I saw you walking side by side, your hand on his arm."

"Indeed, you are wrong. He may have trod the same payement with me—that I cannot contradict, for I was too much afraid of the crowd too look either to the right or to the left; but see Lord Glanore, or speak with him, I did not."

Frank was silent. How was he too reconcile these earnest assurances with what he had seen!

"Your hand rested on his arm, Kathleen!" he reminded her.

"On Lord Glanore's! Never—never!" But now she spoke with a confusion that marred the impression her words might have made.

"Will you tell me what errand it was that led you to visit Verrall street secretly?"

After some hesitation came the response, "I went to relieve a person who is in distressed circumstances;" and Frank was only too glad to believe her.

"For the future, you must delegate your charitable intentions to me, my dearest, and I will carry them out. Visiting the cottagers round about the farm was a very different thing to relieving the poor in a great city like this. You must not attempt it—at least, not alone. Promise me this."

But she would not give him the pledge he demanded.

"You have no right to attempt to rule my actions, Mr. Dalton," she said, agitatedly. "You will always forget that I have never given my consent to the betrothal you persist in regarding as a decided affair."

He was now really angry.

"Kathleen, this is unworthy of you. If your lips have ever uttered a positive consent to my wishes, you have tacitly permitted me to believe that you will be mine at the time Mrs. Carroll has fixed for our union. Can it be that you have ceased to love me—that another holds the place in your heart that I fondly hoped was mine?"

The little hands lying on her lap were restlessly clasped and unclasped, and her eyes were heavy with unshed tears.

"Mr. Dalton, do me the justice to remember that I have always keenly felt the difference in our position, and have begged you to be contented with my friendship."

"Why should I, if the richer prize of your love is to be won? Kathleen, dearest Kathleen, how can you coquette with me now?"

"I am no coquette," she faltered. "I thoroughly comprehend how much you offer me. Is it nothing, think you, to a desolate, ill-treated girl, to find herself suddenly exalted to a place in the affections of one of the best of men? But it has never been in my power to act for myself. I fear it never will. I dare not grasp happiness, even when it is within my reach."

"My dear love," he whispered, "you are tantalizingly mysterious. Miss Delany must be exercising some secret and evil influence over you. Is it not so?"

Kathleen shook her head, and signed.

"Aunt Ursula prefers to forget my existence. I wish I could teach you to do the same."

"And I," he promptly answered,—"I will not answer questions put to me in such language!" she answered, haughtily. "Release me, Mr. Dalton! If you wish for any further explanations, this is not the time nor place for demanding them."

Dizzy with rage and shame, he drew back, and let her pass on. She flew to the side of Mrs. Carroll, but glanced over her shoulder, and, after a moment's hesitation, held out her hand with a gesture that seemed to entreat pardon. But Frank, who had a sister's wrongs to resent as well as his own, gave her one withering look, and dragging Rosamond with him, hurried away.

CHAPTER XXIX.

GONE!

Allie Brean, who was sitting up for her young mistress, saw that something unpleasant had occurred as soon as she entered the house. For Frank was without his hat, and Rosamond chilled with the night, and the conclusions she had drawn from her brother's dark looks and strange exclamations, was scarcely able to support herself.

Allie hastened to lead her to a chair.

"Mavourneen, 'tis fit to swoon ye are! What will I give you to put the life into ye again?"

Rosamond tried to answer composedly, "Nothing, dear Allie. I will go to bed as soon—as soon as——". But here, unable to control her emotions, with a wall of terror, she flung herself on to her brother's breast, "Oh, Frank, what is it that possesses you? What has happened? Tell me, for I can bear this suspense no longer! Has Glanore——"

He interrupted her with a furious execration.

"Never mention his detested name again! Forget him! He is unworthy another thought! I have been madly careless of you, to let this crafty villain ever enter your presence!"

"And Kathleen?" she faltered.

He drew from his vest the note he had found, and gave it to her. She read it, and slid down at his feet, resting her head against his knees. Oh, it was hard to be obliged to believe that she had given the rich treasure of her love to one who had been paltering with it all the while! Was there no sincerity in him? Why had he sought her so persistently? She had striven to avoid him, but all in vain. He had wooed her with every tender word men's lips can utter; he had vowed such constancy that, listening, she had believed; and this was the end of it!

Then her unselfish nature evinced itself, for, in the midst of her own grief, she remembered Frank's equally bitter disappointment, and raised herself to comfort him.

"My dearest brother, do not be too hasty! Kathleen is young, very young. It may be that she herself comprehends not the wrong she has been compromising herself in granting secret interviews to Lord Glanore. Remember what a home she has had, and that she is motherless!"

"I will—I do remember," was the passionate reply; "and that the love I have borne her gives me a right to protect her. Lord Glanore shall be compelled to do her justice. She shall not save her fair fame tarnished through his agency."

"You'll not do anything rashly!" his anxious sister exclaimed.

"Not unless it be forced upon me!" said Frank, in his sternest accents. "I will see Mrs. Carroll in the morning. She stands in the position of guardian to Kathleen; with her assistance, I will concert measures for Kathleen's safety."

"But Lord Glanore—you will avoid him!"

"Avoid him! Am I a coward, that I should do so? Would any punishment that his arm could inflict be too great for one who has acted as he is doing!"

Rosamond's heart sank within her till she remembered that if the Viscount pursued his original intention, he would be on his way to England long before Frank could possibly seek him.

And now Mrs. Brean interfered.

"Miss Rose, acushla, you'll come away wid me to bed, or we'll be having you ill. Thrust in Providence, me darlint, that makes the sun pierce darker clouds than this one!"

"Darker! Oh, Allie, impossible!"

"Fais, but 'tis very possible; for, after all, you've but heard one side of the story, and 'tis hard for me to believe that Miss Kathleen, that wept her blue eyes out of her head when Master Frank lay ill, could give her smiles to another!"

Frank silently pointed to the note, and taking up his candle, quitted the room; but Allie shook her head, and refused the proffered evidence.

"I've no pinion of letthers. 'Tisn't many I've written myself, and never was able to say just what you meant after no more. I'd rather have a simple yes or no from Miss Kathleen's purty lip than all the palavering papers you could bring me. Wait for the daylight, Miss Rose, dear, and persuade Master Frank to do the like. May be, when he's face to face wid the poor child, she'll be able to set all straight again."

"I should be very glad if I could think with you," Rosamond replied, with a doubtful sigh. But she was comforted, nevertheless; and went to rest, dwelling on the cheerful predictions the old woman had uttered. She even strove to instil a little hopefulness into Frank before he left her to seek an interview with Mrs. Carroll; but his efforts were not crowned with success.

He found that lady alone, and not in the best of humors.

"I'm beginning to think I've done a foolish thing," she said, "in undertaking the charge of two wilful girls, who seem to fancy that they neither owe me gratitude nor consideration. Norah goes out whenever she pleases, and gives audience to strange men, who look so like Jews and money-lenders that I am ashamed to have them seen coming to my house; while Kathleen mopes about, or shuts herself up, or takes solitary walks, in spite of my disapprobation. And now, to add to my perplexities, here is a letter from Ursula Delany, accusing me of having encouraged one of her nieces in the grossest disobedience, and the other in ruining her. 'Tis true that Norah has dressed well since she has been here; but I have desired her bills to be included in mine, so what her aunt means I cannot tell. And, worse than all, Ursula is on her way here, to reclaim Norah before she can commit worse follies. Dead, Mr. Dalton, 'tis provoking, when one's been doing one's best for these motherless girls, to be thwarted as I am!"

The Rev. W. B. Afflock whose originality and eloquence delighted so many of our citizens last winter, writes from England in the following strain:—"Canada, the country of all countries of greatness, goodness, and promise, seems to have so impressed me that I am as restless as the poor storm-petrel. The vastness and grandeur of your country, the kindness and hospitality of your people, have made an impression on my mind that has unfitted me for enjoying the narrowness, caste and conventionalities of England."

Hints for the Family.

Plants kept in the windows should be turned every morning, or the light, striking one side only, will draw the plant to that side so that all its branches and leaves will turn toward the window.

When color on a fabric has been accidentally or otherwise destroyed by acid, an application of chloroform will, in almost all cases, restore the original color. The application of ammonia is common, but that of chloroform is but little known.

If the heat of a room occupied by an invalid is oppressive, it may be greatly lessened by hanging in the open windows some towels or canvas well wetted. Water, in passing from a liquid to a gaseous state absorbs caloric. The chemical process will lower in a few minutes the temperature of a room by five or six degrees, and the humidity distributed in the air makes the heat more supportable.

Moths will work in carpets in rooms that are kept warm in the winter as well as in the summer. A sure method of removing the pests is to pour strong alum water on the floor to the distance of half a yard around the edges before laying the carpets. Then once or twice during the season sprinkle dry salt over the carpet before sweeping. Insects do not like salt, and sufficient adheres to the carpet to prevent their alighting upon it.

Glass can be drilled with a tool moistened with dilute sulphuric acid. This last is better than turpentine.

Soap and water is the best material for cleaning jewelry.

To wash calico without fading, infuse 3 gills of salt in 4 quarts of water. Put in the calico while the solution is hot, and leave until the latter is cold. It is said that in this way the colors are rendered permanent and will not fade by subsequent washing.

Rancid butter, pork, and lard casks may be purified by burning straw or shavings in them.

Extinguishing Fires by Steam.

Some additional experiments, with very satisfactory results, have been made in England, with the recently invented apparatus for extinguishing fires by means of steam—a principle which, in this contrivance, is said to prove of peculiar convenience and effectiveness.

The self-acting arrangement, in this device, consists of a number of thermometers, which serve as contact-makers in an electric circuit, and the apparatus proper, which turns on the steam-valve by releasing a pin on the wheel, and permitting the weight attached to the same to turn it round. Contact can be made at any given temperature, the fire simply raising the mercury in the thermometer to the desired point.

The test, in the experiments referred to, was applied to an empty woollen mill which was in a condition highly favorable to be consumed, from the quantity of oil, grease and dust deposited on the floors, walls, pillars, etc. A quantity of firewood and shavings were placed on the floor of the bottom room, and being ignited, produced immediately a large body of flame, and not quite a minute elapsed before the apparatus turned on the steam. For the next two minutes, the fire continued to burn unchecked, but then it became less, and in another two minutes no more fire could be seen.

When the steam which was forty pounds in the boiler, had been going into the room for fifteen minutes, it was turned off and the door opened; but a well-known cracking inside told that the fire was burning up again, so the door was closed, and steam turned on for twenty minutes longer—this proved quite sufficient to remove every trace of fire, and, after the room had been aired for about half an hour, the whole of the interior was found perfectly dry.

AN UNFASHIONABLE WEDDING.—The London News: "A somewhat remarkable wedding took place a few days since at St. George's Church, Old Brentford. The bride groom, a laborer at the gas works, not putting in an appearance at the appointed time, the sexton was dispatched in search of him, and found him smoking his pipe, coming out of a neighboring inn, coatless, and with his shirt-sleeves tucked up, having apparently just left off work. On telling him that they were waiting, the man hastened to the church in his shirt sleeves. The sexton observing that the only persons present besides Jones was the bride and her maid, asked who was to give the bride away, when Jones replied, 'You do that, Guyler.' At first, it is said, the clergyman hesitated about going on with the ceremony, but finding the parties appeared really serious, he conducted the service in the usual manner, the sexton kindly undertaking the duty of giving away the bride. The ceremony being over, the wedding party adjourned to the inn, and after partaking of refreshments, the bride proceeded to her new home, while the bridegroom returned to his work at the gas factory.

Few persons are probably aware that the terrible Chancellor of North Germany was nearly being a Frenchman, or, at all events, taking service in France.—Prince Bismarck's father, says a Paris journal, was forced to leave his country in consequence of a duel, and in 1807 he offered his services to the King of Wurtemberg, Jerome Bonaparte. In this way Prince Bismarck's father found himself in the service of France, and took part in the Russian campaign.—Marshall Ney, in whose army corps he served during several dangerous night marches, gave him the command of the advanced guard. At the battle of Borodino he had three horses killed under him, and his regiment, which he commanded, was one of the most ill-treated during the retreat. After the passage of the Beresina, Col. Bismarck led the shattered remains of his regiment back to Wurtemberg and recruited it. He afterwards distinguished himself as a light cavalry commander at Bautzen, and was decorated with the Legion of Honor. Having gained glory and honor in the service of France, it would not have been extraordinary had Colonel, afterwards General Bismarck, unable to return home, adopted France as his country.

FELLOWS' HYPOPHOSPHITES — The merit of this remarkable remedy is due to its peculiar property of restoring the wasted tissues of the body to their original firmness and vigor. It is well known that for every thought and action there is death or decay of an amount of material proportionate to the magnitude of the thought or action.—This waste is supplied by the unimpaired nutritive function. The precocious activity of youths, the enthusiastic struggle for wealth and fame in the middle aged, and old age itself cause an undue decay of material nervous force.—"We live by dying," says Wendall Holmes, "and we must all be born again, atom by atom, from hour to hour, or perish all at once beyond repair." To the end that power of repair may be vouchsafed to the enfeebled organization, we commend Fellows' Hypophosphites.

PORTER HILL.

FIRE.—Last Sunday night about nine o'clock, Robert Miller, shortly after going to bed was awakened by the smell of fire. On getting to his window he perceived his house to be in flames, and at once gave the alarm. There was a strong westwind blowing at the time, and notwithstanding the exertions of Mr. Miller, Mr. Lorre and Samuel McDougall, who were the first on the ground, they were unable to save the house. They at once directed their attention to saving the furniture which they did to a very great extent. The barn being but a short distance from the house, the wind was driving sparks of fire in all directions round and over it. A wheat stack at one time took fire, and it was only with the most desperate exertions the whole of the buildings with their contents were saved. Mr. Miller desires to thank his neighbors who assisted him on such a trying occasion, but more especially the two men who were on the ground first and who worked like Trojans. The fire originated in the chimney.—Corr.

A QUESTION.—Why will people keep four or five ill-looking sickly human to do the work that one good horse might perform? If the horse has the heaves, is broken winded, has a cough or cold, or his wind in any way affected; if his appetite is bad, or his digestive organs, deranged, has a rough skin or is hide bound, we would in all cases recommend the use of "Darley's Condition Powders for Animal Stock Exclusively"—it never fails to benefit and almost always removes the disease; it is free from anything that can injure, and may be used at all times with safety. Try it and you will be satisfied. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Hurd & Co. is on each package. Northop & Lyman, Toronto, Ont., proprietors for Canada. CANADIAN NEWS.

Kincardine is to be made a port of entry.

Guibord is at present probably the most unsettled man in the Dominion.

A true bill for murder has been found against "Dr." Davis and his wife, the Toronto abortionists.

It is reported in Montreal that a further reduction in the wages of Grand Trunk employees is about to take place.

The epizootic is prevalent among the horses in many parts of Canada and the States.

A construction train has arrived at Exeter on the line of the London, Huron, and Bruce railway, and was hailed with rejoicing by the inhabitants.

Birch's tavern and the buildings adjoining were destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. The origin of the fire is unknown. It must be a case of spontaneous combustion—a case of "too much liquor inside."

It is reported that the foot and mouth disease among cattle has broken out in a valuable herd owned in Pickering Township, County of Ontario, and that it is spreading with fatal effect to neighboring cattle.

The frequence of highway robberies in London township, is causing considerable nervousness among farmers residing in that section. Four flagrant cases have occurred within a week, in one instance the victim losing $100.

The burial of Guibord will take place in a few days. Two stones are being cut so as to fit over the coffin, and these will be riveted together with wrought iron bars. An explosive is to be placed in the coffin, which will burst with powerful effect if touched.

The Q'Appelle treaty between the North West Indians and the Canadian Government has been completed. Those Chiefs who were not present at its ratification in 1874 signed it last month. The terms are satisfactory to the Indians.

At Toronto on Tuesday, whilst the officer was paying the pensions to the veterans, of 1812-13, two jolly old fellows, named F. Bondoyn and Jacob Hollingshead, met for the first time since the battle of York in 1812. And they did have a hearty shake of hands! A regular pump-handle break-out.

On John street, Hamilton, the other day, a little boy, son of John Milne, of Burrows, Stewart & Milne, met with such injuries as it is feared will result in disfigurement for life. It seems the lad was playing near a vicious horse, when the animal bit his right cheek, taking out a circular piece of flesh fully two inches across, causing an awful wound.

In Hamilton, on Wednesday morning, the dead body of a child, apparently about four months old, was found in the Murray street school yard. It had a remarkably healthy and fresh appearance, and was robed in a neat white dress. A nursing bottle was lying on the ground by the body, also a little hat trimmed with red ribbon. There were no marks of violence about the body, and no clue that would lead to identification. The most probable theory is that the little one died from exposure.

An elderly gentleman retired to bed a few nights ago, in London, leaving the door unlocked, as one of his daughters was at a party. Shortly after midnight he was awakened by some one stumbling about in the lower rooms and hearing a heavy fall. Full of alarm he seized a cudgel and a lamp and went down stairs, expecting a tussle with burglars, but instead found a young limb of the law asleep on the floor, with the furniture capsized on him. He had mistaken the house.

Toronto is becoming famous for rowdyism. A few evenings ago as Mr. Higgins, of Simcoe street, with his sister and two cousins were walking along the street they met five men carrying certain articles of furniture. Mr. Higgins accidentally jostled one of the men, who immediately turned upon him and knocked him down, and two of his companions commenced to kick and otherwise ill treat him as he lay on the ground. Miss Higgins, in gallantly endeavouring to aid her brother, received a severe blow on the forehead, cutting it open in a very serious manner. The rowdies then retired. Three of them, named M. McClure, C. Watson and J. Shedden were afterwards arrested, though the two others escaped.

About two weeks ago a party of young men entered a notorious house of ill-fame, all of them more or less under the influence of liquor. One of the party had been visiting a woman in the house for some time back, but on this occasion he treated her with the greatest contempt, and took up with another girl. This roused all the evil passions in her desperate nature, and in an evil moment she poisoned a glass of beer and offered it to her truant lover. The poor wretch was about to swallow the contents when the mistress of the house snatched the goblet from his hand, screaming: "the beer is poisoned." The scene which followed baffled description. Horror and fear was depicted on every countenance, and, overcome with dread, the young man left the house. The friends of the young man have noticed that he has stopped drinking, and no wonder; and it is hoped this affair will prove a lifelong lesson to him.—Hamilton Times.

Huron Signal.

GODERICH, OCT. 13, 1875.

Thanksgiving Day.

Thursday, the 28th inst., has been appointed by the Governor-General as a day of public thanksgiving. We notice that the Bishop of Huron has named Sunday, the 24th inst., as a day of thanksgiving throughout this diocese. It was hoped last year that all religious denominations would recognize the same day, and we hope that this latter announcement will not interfere with the universal celebration of the day this year.

Appointment.

Mr. D. McDonald, of Brussels, of the firm of Squier & McDonald, has been appointed to the office left vacant by the death of John T. Ellwood. The appointment, we feel certain, will meet with general satisfaction, as Mr. McDonald is a young man of ability, well qualified for the office, and is in every way worthy of the commission. We congratulate him upon his appointment.

"H. W. B." on the Situation.

A correspondent writing to our town contemporary attempts the difficult task of showing that we erred in saying that McGowan's popularity was waning in West Wellington, as evidenced by the decrease in his majority of 99 in the last general election to a majority of 31 in the recent election—we might here state that the official returns still further reduce this majority to 28. The figures do not seem to be any evidence to this astute mathematician of any decrease in popularity; but he attempts to prove that McGowan gained 157 votes, and chalks down that number to the baiful of Conservative gains. New friend, look here in the McGowan-McKim contest the former had a majority of 98, and in the late election he had 29, which according to our arithmetic shows a decrease of 70 votes. And yet "H. W. B." puts McGowan with the Conservative gains, with 157 votes to his credit. Ridiculous!

Mr. Garbut polled exceedingly well, when we consider that he was fresh in the field whilst his opponent had been through previous contests with success. McGowan defeated a previous member by a majority of 98, and with this record his majority has been decreased to the present amount. His popularity in the western part of the constituency and the double dealing conduct of J. P. MacMillan, a quasi Reformer (who professed sympathy with Mr. Garbutt, while at the same time permitting his name to be used for the purpose of aiding Mr. McGowan) alone saved him from defeat.

"H. W. B." swallows, without a wink, the tale of Grit corruption promulgated by those unimpeachable authorities, the Guelph and Stratford Heralds, to the effect that Mr. D. D. Hay, M. P. P., and Mr. Gibson, M. P. P., had carried out Mowat Forest "Mr. Mowat's pledge of a County Town if the Government candidate were elected." Mr. Hay has emphatically denied this imputation, and as a sample of the spirit which moves Tory, being this tale is a disagreeable evidence, as well as the fact that one of the journals of that party refused to publish the denial which Mr. Hay addressed to it. "H. W. B." styles the few remarks we made as "trash," but it has proved food for his brain to work upon. His initials and the subject of his arguments are wonderfully well associated in the light of recent events, and "H. W. B." and scandal look perfectly natural in close association.

Here is the "rounded edge."

Agricultural Shows.

The show season, with all its associations agreeable and disagreeable, is virtually over, and we again hear the opinion which has been expressed at this season for so many years past:—"What is the use of so many shows; why don't we combine more and have better and larger ones, with less of the trouble, expense and unsatisfactory results that accompany the present system." The introduction of Electoral District Agricultural Societies has a tendency to abolish many of the faintly existing township and branch societies, and gives some magnitude to the organization. And possibly a few years' trial of this system will have the effect of killing out all but electoral district societies. Agricultural shows are very good in their purpose and results, but the business is overdone, and the exhibitions under the auspices of barely existing societies are very unsatisfactory and so way beneficial in their results. A competitor has not the opportunity at a local show which he has at one representing a greater portion of the county in winning credit, and making beneficial observations. It is generally the case in these small shows that Mr. So-and-so has always taken first prizes for stock, another gentleman for years carries off the honors in fruit, another is unapproachable in roots and so on, and each exhibitor has a little preserve of his own in which his right is to carry off the first prize, and he only encroaches upon his neighbor so far as to show some ordinary articles to carry off a second prize. This does not encourage a pure competition, and the result is that a person will reach a certain point where he will remain until some other person has the audacity to approach and beat him.

If the County of Huron could be contented with its three Riding shows, the result would be highly satisfactory. Then a county show might be inaugurated, and the choicest portion of the three brought together, a fair estimate of the county's wealth, resources and characteristics would be obtainable. By combining enterprise the electoral societies could be made so popular that smaller ones would die out, and special inducements offered to exhibitors in the way of prizes and accommodation would draw universal attention to their exhibitions. Give them a leading position, and the object is gained. As to a county show, it needs but an enterprising effort upon the part of some of our towns—which will derive great benefit therefrom, and can therefore afford to offer a large prize list and give inducements to exhibitors—to make a bid therefor. Clinton is centrally situated for this purpose, and has lines of railway running north, south, east and west; and Fortune seems to have chosen it for this purpose. But Goderich, has the means wherewith to inaugurate such a show, and, as the County Town, should do so. An effort is being made to secure a large show ground and erect proper buildings, so that we may be equal to other towns in this matter of accommodation.

Another matter we wish to refer to, and that is the introduction of competition between the counties of the Province, at the Provincial Exhibition. Many of the counties have become famous in some particular branch of agriculture, from the quality of the soil, the nature of the climate or some other cause, and to more clearly define might be set down as the chief feature in the exhibition, especially the horses and thorough-bred cattle. S. McDougall and John Glen had the best brood mares and foals, and divided prizes equally. The heavy draught class all through was up to the mark fully. In the general purpose class H. Girvin carries the first for a span of carriage horses of style and fine motion. Although ten entries were made in general purpose spans, only two put in an appearance. The thorough-bred cattle were all from the well-known stock men T. Dark and John Washington, and were choice. E. Gaunt had some fine grade stock, and J. Washington had the best calf, a very large and well-shaped animal. The judges had no difficulty except in working oxen. There were nine entries, and all good cattle, but the difficulty was as to the first prize, both oxen being well matched, and possessing the general good qualities necessary in this class of cattle. In Cotswold sheep, H. Snell carried nearly all before him, and he divided Leicesters with others. T. Dark had a fine flock of South Downs and carried all the prizes. The Suffolks and Berkshires were the sole occupants of the pig pens, and Joseph Govier was the leading exhibitor in the former class, which was upon the whole rather better than the latter. Poultry was not up to the mark in numbers.

Colborne Fall Show.

The annual fall show was held at Smith's Hill on 5th inst., and was a grand success, both as regards the number of entries and the quality of the various articles. As a township show, Colborne certainly takes the lead, and indeed may justly be placed side by side with the other shows. The inside department was, taken as a whole, far before our Horticultural, especially the Ladies department which was filled to overflowing and the general average of the work was excellent and some very superior. One point worthy of note was the fact that all the work was new and of home manufacture and largely the Colbornites. We like to see the young ladies taking a lively interest in these exhibitions, and perhaps this fact accounts more than any, for their success. It would be useless to single out individuals or point to a few specially noticeable articles; we think it sufficient to point to the prize list and remark that the Colborne young ladies have taken the palm from Goderich, and unless the latter beatir themselves they will never be able to claim it back. The fruit was also excellent, especially apples. We were glad to see that there was less incorrect naming than at the Horticultural, and we believe that a good deal might be done towards perfection in this point if the producer would exercise more caution in selecting, always bring due care to deal with no strange agent without the very best of home reference. We notice a good deal of fruit of the useless class, fine in appearance no doubt, but of no further benefit to the producer than mere show, and in dealing with such the judges do right to withold prizes and award such to the more deserving varieties. A beautiful specimen of the 13 ounce pippin was shown. The display of dairy produce was large and the judges must have had a task to come to a decision. As a matter of course vegetables were large and abundant. The live stock list was not filled as well as it should, although there were some very superior horses; but we always look for this, as Colborne takes a principal part at other and larger exhibitions in horse flesh. Mr. J. Glen's and Mr. S. McDougall's mares and foals were among the finest for farm or heavy draught purposes. The show was deficient in cattle, some of the best stock raisers not thinking it worth while to drive out their herds. Sheep and swine were not up to the mark, although the prize takers were fine animals. There was not keen competition in poultry, but the birds were well worthy of exhibition room and the prizes awarded them. In buggies our enterprising carriage builders Messrs Knox and Rothwell were the chief exhibitors, and as a matter of course were awarded prizes. Mr. Brown of the Hill had a farmer's waggon of solid make and good finish. Mr. James Hayden's toy barn was one of the interesting features of the department, and we hope another year to see other boys competing in handiwork. We noticed a newly patented churn of a simple and evidently superior style, which we hoped the judges would recommend a special. Messrs Armstrong & Sons, of Goderich, had their new spring seat on the ground also. It is very simple and cheap and will prove a boon to the farmer. Mr. Strachan still keeps the first rank for his iron harrows.

MASONIC SERMON.—On Sunday evening, the 3rd inst., Rev. Mr. Broley delivered a Masonic sermon to the members of the brethren of Morning Star Lodge, in Nile Church. The church was filled to its utmost capacity, and rapt attention was paid to the address. Mr. Broley chose for his text the 22nd chapter of Proverbs, 28th verse, and in an able manner he referred to the nature of Free Masonry, the objection taken against the organization, the benefits derived from the Association, and concluded with some eloquent remarks touching upon the duties of Masons to their brethren. The sermon was excellent, and very well received by the listeners.

Miss J. Stewart, Agent for Cornwall's Self-Fitting Chart and Patterns

The superiority of our patterns is manifested in all parts. Now to satisfy yourself that this claim is well founded, examine them carefully, and compare them with others, and you will notice among other things that ours have different shoulder measurement, by which any shaped shoulder—high, low, square or sloping—can be thus accurately fitted. Again, you will observe in our patterns for clo e fitting waists, the sizes of the darts are determined by a mathematical rule, thus producing a perfect fit. For example: If a given bust measures 38 inches, and the waist 24 inches, the difference—14 inches—will be the exact amount taken up in the darts. These two never-failing methods are embraced in our Patents, and can be used by no other establishment. This is the only system in the world that will produce a perfect-fitting dress or pattern. Furthermore, each garment is cut with such exactness, that the whole when brought together, fits perfectly. Lustres, Switches and Braids, Gloves and Hosiery, Mantles, Corsets and Dress Caps. A call solicited. Market Square, next door to Wm. Campbell's Boot Store.

AGUA MIRACULOSO.

This Exquisite Spanish "Toilette Preparation," for beautifying and preserving the complexion and skin, has for years been exclusively prepared by DON MANUEL ACOSTA, an eminent chemist of Seville, Spain, and by him sold in large quantities to the elite of that city, Madrid, Havana and elsewhere, as an incomparable beautifier and preservative of the complexion, and certain preventive of Wrinkles, Freckles, Pimples, Sunburn, Tan, and all blemishes of the Skin. While making a voyage to Cuba some years ago, on one of the British Royal Mail Steamships, DON MANUEL was overtaken by severe sickness, and his life for days despaired of, but ultimately, he rallied and recovered, and as an acknowledgement of his appreciation of Dr. Campbell's services, (Dr. C. being at that time Medical officer on board the steamship), he presented the Doctor with the formula from which he prepared his famous 'AGUA MIRACULOSO,' (Miraculous Water.) So many lady patients for whom Dr. C. has prepared an occasional bottle, having expressed themselves most enthusiastically in regard to its merits, he has determined for the future to prepare it as a STANDARD TOILETTE PREPARATION. Its use imparts to the skin, a dazzling brilliancy, healthy freshness, transparent clearness, velvety smoothness and exquisite softness. A few applications will convert the roughest skin into one of Alabaster delicacy. It is not a "Paint" or "Enamel," but a Deliciously Fragrant Medicated Water for the skin, of marvellous efficacy. WARRANTED harmless as pure milk. Price One Dollar per bottle. Six bottles for Five Dollars. Expressed to any address. PREPARED ONLY BY JAMES P. CAMPBELL, M. D., Chemist, 66 FULTON ST., N. Y. Beware of dangerous and worthless imitations. 1473-1yr

Heart Disease.—A Card.

New York, December 24, 1874.

JAS. P. CAMPBELL, M. D. 66 Fulton St. N. Y.

Dear Sir—

For many years my wife has had serious Organic, and of course, Functional Disease of the Heart, and frequently has "seizures" of the most terrible description, menacing her with instant death. I have tried many prominent Heart Remedies without avail, but in Dr. Campbell's 'Heart Regulator' I am free to confess, we have found the "Supreme Palliative," if not the "Radical Cure." Your preparation, Doctor, always relieves her instantly and perfectly, while the 'seizures' are much less frequent and severe. I have also prescribed your remedy in my practice, I can and do, most conscientiously commend its use to all suffering from Organic or Functional Cardiac Derangements.

Very truly yours,

GOOD AND BAD.

Comfortable quarters—twenty-five cent pieces.

If you wish for early consultations, don't wear a gold-back dress.

Why is the lottery the hardest in the alphabet? Because when it is in we you always find it before us.

As a hackney girl exclaimed, "Oh the reason she has never married is because she has never found a man who is worth a good-back dress."

A Kentucky editor tells whether that would round out of a boy taken out not surrounded by a cornfield.

A woman is very like a bible. It is meant to think of it. She ought to be plentifully read of. She stands on your best manners. She is the good book you lend your sister. Sometimes she is lost in the shelves and never returns, till she has been lent half a dozen times. Sometimes she is borrowed by a friend who keeps her before two o'clock. "Oh, I'll say, but what shall I tell him if he asks for her?"

A new and stylish collar for gentlemen, is the "Bonner," which, if high enough to reach above the vest and collar, thereby affording a valid reason for the use or rolling plate for the back.

Ladies will doubtless be interested to learn that that "leaf" of the tree, which Nature, in dooming them to labor, gave red and yellow.

"The first step toward wealth," says an exchange, "is the choice of a good wife." And the first step toward getting a wife is the possession of good wealth.

Precise old gentleman (Conductor, to pray, sat on. I'm an aspirant, sir. Conductor: "All right, sir! Now, be alive, Bill, here's a hold gent wants to meet his young wife.")

A Baltimore servant girl on other morning tried that good old time-honored plan of lighting the kitchen fire with kerosene. Nothing but pieces of her since.

A pair of stockings that certainly are as solid as a rock will crackle in the joints and creak, and creak, together with all the fervor of a thunder clap when one is attempting to climb them veteranly late at night.

At an auction sale of Chinese women at San Francisco, only Chinamen being allowed to purchase, the most desirable damsel brought but $3, and one beauty whose nose was a little out of plumb, fetched only the ridiculous sum of 65 cents.

A very genteel-appearing young man, wearing kid gloves and carrying a lithe and flexible walking-stick, thought he would have a joke with a rusty and venerable farmer on the Fair Grounds last Tuesday afternoon. "Hallo," said the gaudy, "there was one of the judges on horse! Wait, yes, walk right up and let me look at you," said the old farmer. That youth was soon lost amid the crowd, and no other judges on swine saw him.

Those editors who are decrying the "pullback" skirt, and seeking to bring ridicule on the fair sex, would do well to look at home, and mend their own foolishness. They should stop coloring their whiskers, and cudding their shoulders, and wearing boz-toed shoes, and eating cloves for the tooth(ache). Let them "pill-back" on some of their shortcomings first before they read the ladies such fearful lectures on what is evidently a good fashion when not carried to extremes.

A Liverpool paper states that two hours before the recent meeting at Hawarden, "Mr. Gladstone was engaged in his favorite exercise of felling trees."—For a portion of two days he has been wielding the axe upon a large tree in a lane at the outskirts of Hawarden village, and he succeeded with felling it to the ground. Those who saw him say that he went to work in true woodman fashion, with his sleeves thrown off behind him and his shirt collar unfastened. After completing his task, he walked home with his axe slung over his shoulder, and two hours afterward was at the meeting, looking not tired and weary, but refreshed with his bodily labor.

It truly says in Holy Writ
Man's life is but my first;
To tell my second when transposed,
A good child never durst.
If you will now the two connect,
An animal you'll soon detect.

My first is a part of the human frame;
My second has no feet;
My whole in my first is worn,
As you can tell, dear friend.

4 Enigma.

I am composed of 14 letters. My 2,5, 1,9, is to incline. My 3,1,10 is an article used by ladies. My 11,8,1,4 is a period of time. My 7,5,1 is what some people drink. My 13,10,8 is a number. My 3,1,14,10,11 is a girl's name. My 11,13,9,6,8,4 is an adverb. My 7,5,14 is a number. My 12,11,9,13,6 is a kind of council. My 7,11,4,1,14,7 is a cruel ruler. My whole is a distinguished poet.

Here is a puzzler for some of our mathematicians.

A certain lady, the mother of three daughters, had a farm of five hundred acres, in the form of a circle, with her dwelling house in the centre. Being desirous of having her daughters settled near her, she gave to them three equal parcels, as large as could be made in three equal circles included within the periphery of her farm, one to each, with a dwelling house in the centre of each; that is, there were to be three equal circles, as large as could be made within a circle that contained 500 acres. How many acres did the farm of each daughter contain, how many acres did the mother retain, how far apart were the dwellings of the daughters, and how far was the house of each daughter from that of the mother?

Political life is a curious study.—In England the most dazzling prizes are political—the crown of life of the most illustrious in ranks and riches is political distinction—and in English works of fiction political success is represented as a greatest triumph. But we think no greater triumph has been achieved in modern times than the production of the "Canadian Pain Destroyer," for removing pain from the system and curing colds, coughs, rheumatism, neuralgia, bowel complaints, &c. DR. WHELER'S COMPOUND ELIXIR OF Phosphites and Calisaya, composed of essential agents of Nutrition, may be taken in all diseased conditions of the body with benefit, because it perfects the Digestion and Assimilation of Food, and the formation of Healthy Blood. Phosphites are Nature's great restorative in Nervous and Physical Prostration, arising from over-exertion of brain and body, and when combined with Calisaya Bark and specific for Chill's and Fever, and all febrile diseases, it constitutes the most elegant and reliable preparation ever used in restoring the Vital Forces and energizing all the organs of the body. Sold at 60 cts.

Beware of Countorfeits.

For the protection of the Public of British North America, I deem it my duty to state that my Pills and Ointment are neither manufactured nor sold in any part of the United States.

Each Pot and Box bears the British Government Stamp, with the words, "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London," engraved thereon. On the label is the address, 533, Oxford Street, London.

This notice has become necessary, in consequence of vile and spurious imitations of "Holloway's Pills and Ointment," being fabricated at 78, Maiden Lane, New York, by parties styling themselves "Holloway & Co.," with an assumed trade mark, thus—

Unprincipled vendors can obtain this trash at a very low price, and so deceive men by selling the same for my genuine Holloway's Pills and ointment, which are manufactured only at 533 Oxford Street, London.

Persons who may be so deceived will be pleased to communicate with me.

Many respectable Firms in the British Provinces, who obtain my medicines direct from here, have very properly suggested that I should, for the benefit of themselves and the public, insert their names in the papers, that it may be known that my medicines can be had genuine from them.

The following is a list of the Firms alluded to; and I particularly recommend those who desire to get my medicines to apply to some of the Houses named:—

Messrs. Evans, Mercer & Co., Montreal.
Messrs. Lamson, Avery, Brown & Co., Halifax, N. S.
Messrs. Fillis, Forsyth & Co., Halifax, N. S.
Messrs. T. B. Barker & Sons, St. John, N. B.
Messrs. Apothecaries' Hall Co., Charlottetown.
Messrs. Langley & Co., Victoria, B. C.
Messrs. Moore & Co., Victoria, B. C.
Mr. John Pallen, Chatham, N. B.
Messrs. Munro & Co., Montreal.
Messrs. J. Winer & Co., Hamilton, Ont.
Mr. H. J. Rose, Toronto.
Mr. A. Chipman Smith, St. John, N. B.
Mr. John Bond, Goderich, Ont.
Messrs. Elliot & Co., Toronto.
Mr. J. Chaloner, St. John, N. B.
Messrs. Hannington Bros., St. John, N. B.
Mr. B. S. Priddy, Windsor, Ont.
Mr. Orpen, Morden, N. S.
Mr. George C. Hunt, Jun., Fredericton, N. B.
Mr. W. H. Thompson, Harbor Grace, N. F.
Mr. J. M. Wiley, Fredericton, N. B.
Messrs. W. & D. Yuile, Montreal.
Chas. I. Davies, Fredericton, N. B.

The medicines are sold at the lowest wholesale prices, in quantities of not less than £20 worth—viz., 8s. 6d., 22s. and 34s per dozen boxes of Pills or pots of Ointment, for which remittances must be sent in advance.

Chemists and other vendors of Holloway's genuine Pills and Ointment may have their names inserted in the local papers if they will please apply here—
