County Court Judge to appoint arbitrator in certain cases.

454. If such owner, occupier or person so interested, or the head of such council, whether from want of authority in that behalf, or otherwise, omits to name an arbitrator within seven days after receiving notice to do so, or if the persons having distinct interests as aforesaid omit to name an arbitrator within twenty-one days after receiving notice to do so, or if the two arbitrators do not within seven days from the appointment of the lastly named of the two arbitrators agree on a third arbitrator, or if any of the arbitrators refuse or neglect to act, the Judge of the County Court of the county in which the property is situated, on the application of either party, shall nominate as an arbitrator a fit person, resident without the limits of the municipality in which the property in question is situated, to act for the party failing to appoint, or as such third arbitrator, or in the stead of the arbitrator refusing or neglecting to act, and such arbitrators shall forthwith proceed to hear and determine the matters referred to them. 55 V. c. 42, s. 394.

(a) "If any of the arbitrators refuse or neglect to act."

As to the meaning of these words see note (a) to s. 212, and Direct Cable Co. v. Dominion Telegraph Co. (a)

In Willoughby v. Willoughby, (b) the omission of an arbitrator to make his award within the time fixed by the Statute under which he had been appointed was held to be a "neglect to act" which warranted the appointment of a new arbitrator. The section contemplates the neglect or refusal of an arbitrator to act after the reference has been entered upon as well as the case of an arbitrator refusing to accept the appointment. (c)

(b) "The Judge of the County Court . . . shall nominate as arbitrator a fit person, etc.

"Nominate" here means "appoint." The Judge may make such appointment ex parte. (d)

Note (b).

Appointment of arbitrator by County Judge.

"If the Judge thinks fit, he may act without notice to the opposite party and may make the appointment ex parte. At the same time I think it most undesirable that such appointment should be made without hearing the parties to ascertain whether there is any good objection to the person he may determine to appoint. His duty is to appoint a person resident outside the municipality concerned in the arbitration . . . and there may be other valid objections that he can scarcely be expected to be aware of, as he cannot, being unremunerated for his services, be required to take the trouble of making inquiries outside of the qualification of his nominee to discharge the duties. Of this he may, from the standing of the parties selected, be quite satisfied, and still the person chosen might be an undesirable person from circumstances that would not be within the knowledge of the Judge in that particular matter." (a)

Appointment of arbitrator not to be admission of liability.

455. The appointment of an arbitrator shall not be deemed to be an admission of any liability on the part of the corporation; and all defences and objections shall be open to either party as if an action had been brought. 55 V. c. 42, ss. 487 (6), 487*a*; 55 V. c. 43, s 30.

(a) Even before the passing of this section it had been held that in an arbitration under s. 437 the arbitrators may find that no dama, nas been sustained and are not bound to award even nominal damages. (b)

Time for making award.

456. In any of the cases herein provided for, the arbitrators shall make their award within one month after the appointment of the third arbitrator. 55 V. c. 42, s. 395.

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48,) s. 207. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 195; 16 V. c. 181, ss. 33-35; 22 V. c. 99, s. 336 (6); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 353 (6).

(a) "Shall make their award." These words mean "the execution of the award in the presence of a witness or . . . any other act intended to show the final award of the arbitrator, upon which he becomes functus officio." (c)

(b) "Within one month" As to computation of time see note (b) to s. 214, ante. An award not made within the prescribed period may not be enforceable. (d)

Enlarging time for award.

Section 10 of "The Arbitration Act," (e) (which by s. 467 is made applicable to arbitrations under "The Municipal Act") provides that "the time for making an award may from time to time be enlarged by order of the High Court of Justice or of a Judge thereof, whether the time for making the award has expired or not." (f) In Re City of Toronto and Scott, (g) a similar section of "The Common Law Procedure Act," (h) was held to be applicable to an arbitration under "The Municipal Act," and though not containing the words "whether the time for making the award has expired or not," was held to authorize an enlargement by the Court of the time for making an award even after the period of one month mentioned in this section had expired. (a)

Enlargement of time for making award.

The power of the arbitrators to extend the time for making their award must be regarded as more than doubtful. In Township of Thurlow v. Township of Sidney, (b) PROUDFOOT, V. C. considered that the words "with power to adjourn from time to time," used in s. 459 empowered the arbitrators to award extend the time for making their award beyond the month, and that the Act should be read as enacting that the award should be made within a month unless the time for making it were extended (c); but in Re Township of Muskoka and Village of Gravenhurst, (d) CAMERON, C.J. says:—

"There is no doubt the language used in s. 377 (e) is imperative, i.e., imperative on the arbitrators."

Sec. 4 of "The Arbitration Act," (f) provides that a submission to arbitration shall—(unless a contrary intention is expressed therein)—be deemed to include (so far as they are applicable to the reference thereunder) the provisions contained in Schedule "A" to that Act, among which is one allowing the arbitrators from time to time by writing signed by them to enlarge the time for making their award; but this applies (g) to arbitrations under other Statutes only in so far as "The Arbitration Act" is not inconsistent with the Statute governing such arbitrations.

It is apprehended, therefore, that the express provision of this section and the omission in s. 467 of any reference to s. 4 of "The Arbitration Act" may be regarded as indicating that the latter section is not intended to apply to municipal arbitrations.

Validity of award made after time has expired.

The question as to the right of arbitrators to extend the time for making their award, affects also the validity of an award made by them by virtue of such an enlargement after the month has expired.

In Re Township of Muskoka and Village of Gravenhurst, (h) CAMERON, C. J. was inclined to think that an award so made would be valid, and to regard the limitation of time as directory only in its effect upon the rights of the parties, though it imposed upon the arbitrators an imperative duty to make their award within the month, and subjected them to any consequences which might flow from a breach of such duty. At p. 355 he says:—

"I am by no means prepared to say that the above limitation of a month must have the effect of invalidating an award otherwise valid. . . . It does not follow that the act of those who fail to perform within a specified time a duty made imperative upon them, must be nugatory when performed by them afterwards."

But when the same question was raised before him in the later case of Smith v. Township of Plympton, (i) he says:—

"The current of English authority is, I think, against the validity of an award made after the time fixed by Statute.(j) If the statutory limit is exceeded, there is no limit, and the matter would be pending before the arbitrators so long as they refrained from making any award. This certainly would not be what was contemplated by the Legislature. It is perhaps better to require that the award should be made within the month, unless the time is enlarged by an order of the Court or a Judge."

But a party to the arbitration who has acquiesced in an enlargement by arbitrators beyond the time fixed by the Act for making the award, may be estopped from taking this objection. (k)

(a) See also s. 464 and Re Clement and Dixon, 17 P.R. 455 (1897), where the time was enlarged by BOYD, C. even after the award had been made.

Sec. 456.

Note (b). Enlargement of time for making award.

But where the arbitrators have power to extend the time they must do so according to the strict terms of their authority, and an objection to the award on other grounds by a party ignorant at the time of an irregularity in the mode of such extension is not a waiver of the right to object on this ground to the award. (a)

In Re Laplante and Town of Peterborough (b) a by-law providing that the award should be made within one month from the passing of the by-law, instead of one month from the appointment of the third arbitrator, was quashed with costs as prescribing a condition unauthorized by the Statute. (c)

Persons disqualified from acting as arbitrators.

457. No member, officer, or person in the employment of any corporation which is concerned or interested in any arbitration, nor any person so interested, shall be appointed or act as an arbitrator in any case of arbitration under this Act: but nothing in this section contained shall prevent the appointment of or disqualify as an arbitrator any person by reason merely that such person is a ratepayer of or within any municipality concerned or interested in the arbitration, unless the arbitration relates to drainage under the provisions of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 396; 57 V. c. 56, s. 89 (1).

The first part of the section is taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 288. Cf. 32 V. c. 13, s. 11; 35 V. c. 26, s. 12. The last paragraph ("but nothing in this section contained," etc.,) was added in 1895 by 58 V. c. 38, s. 9 in consequence of the decision in Re Township of Muskoka and Village of Gravenhurst, 6 O.R. 352 (1884), that a ratepayer was disqualified from acting as an arbitrator and that the right to object on this ground to the award was not waived by acquiescence in the proceedings.

Division III.—PROCEDURE.

(Secs. 458-467.)

Synopsis. The procedure in arbitrations under the "The Municipal Act" is regulated by ss. 458-464 and by those sections of "The Arbitration Act" (R. S. O. c. 62) which have been imported into this Statute by s. 467.

Costs and arbitrators' fees are dealt with by ss. 460, 462 (2-10); appeals and motions to review or set aside awards by ss. 463 (2-3), 464 and 465, and the mode of enforcing awards by s. 466.

Arbitrators to be sworn.

458. Every arbitrator, before proceeding to try the matter of the arbitration, shall take and subscribe the following oath (or in case of those who by law affirm shall make and subscribe the following affirmation) before any Justice of the Peace:

Form of oath or affirmation.

"I (A. B.) do swear (or affirm) that I will well and truly try the matters referred to me by the parties, and a true and impartial award make in the premises, according to the evidence and my skill and knowledge. So help me God."

55 V. c. 42, s. 397.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 336 (11). The words "and my skill and knowledge" were added to the oath by the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 289. See 35 V. c. 26, s. 13.

(a) The oath must not only be taken, but must also be subscribed by each of the arbitrators and that "before proceeding to try the matter of the arbitration"; but a slight variation from the words of the Statute will be immaterial so long as the oath taken is substantially the same as the one prescribed. (a) When taken and subscribed it should be filed under s. 462 with the evidence and other papers relating to the reference. (b)

Sec. 458.
Note (a).

459. The arbitrators shall, within twenty days after the appointment of the third arbitrator, meet at such place as they may agree upon, to hear and determine the matter in dispute, with power to adjourn from time to time, and shall make their award in writing, which shall be binding on all parties; and one copy thereof shall be filed with the clerk of each of the municipalities interested. 55 V. c. 42, s. 398; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Time of meeting, etc.

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48,) s. 290. Cf. 35 V. c. 26, s. 14.

(a) "Shall, within twenty days . . . meet to hear and determine."

"If the time for making the award under s. 397 (c) must be regarded as imperative, it is difficult to say that the time for commencing the proceedings must not also be regarded as imperative. I am inclined, however, to think, as it is purely a matter of formal procedure, it should be regarded as directory; and that the omission to hold the first meeting within twenty days would not make an award made within the month invalid." (d)

(b) There is no express direction that the arbitrators shall give to the parties notice of their meetings and an opportunity of being heard; but it is essential that, whether there has been a formal notice or not, it should appear that the parties had knowledge of the time and place of each meeting and a full opportunity of being heard, of producing evidence, (e) and of arguing points of law (f)

But the arbitrators may for good cause and after due notice proceed ex parte, as where a party refuses to attend or causes unreasonable delay. (g)

In Re Johnston and Township of Gloucester, (h) the Court set aside an award in favour of a person through whose land a road had been opened, it appearing that no notice of the time and place of meeting of the arbitrators had been given to the municipal corporation.

Similar notice should be given to each of the arbitrators (i) and if it appears that the arbitrators have received evidence in the absence of one of the parties and without notice to him, this is a ground for setting aside the award (j)

Note (b).

It is not necessary in such a case to impute to the arbitrators any intentional impropriety of conduct, nor to show that their decision has been in any way influenced by such ex parte statements. It is only necessary to show that their minds may possibly have been influenced by the communications which have taken place. (a) And even where the arbitrator swore that the evidence thus received had had no effect upon his mind, LORD ELDON, C., set aside the award, being of opinion that no Court should permit an arbitrator to decide so delicate a question as whether a witness examined in the absence of one of the parties had had an influence upon him or not. (b)

Arbitrators proceeding ex parte.

But in Anderson v. Wallace (c) the House of Lords determined that it is no objection to an award that the arbitrators have in the absence of one of the parties called in the other, and asked him whether he admitted or disputed certain items of an account, and have merely taken his answer.

In the Province of Quebec, arbitrators who are appointed aimables compositeurs, may, under Art. 1346 of the Quebec Code of Civil Procedure, dispense with the strict observance of those rules of law, non-observance of which would result in no more than irregularity; and where such arbitrators in good faith obtained from one of the parties in the absence but to the knowledge of the other, correct information as to the law bearing upon the case before them, it was Held, that that was not an irregularity which vitiated the award. (d)

Misconduct.

Under "The Arbitration Act" (e) the Court may set aside an award or remove an arbitrator for misconduct, and, (independently of that Statute) may restrain him from acting if he is shewn to be disqualified by interest or otherwise. (f)

Interest.

Mistake

(c) Arbitrators being in general judges of the law as well as of the facts, (g) the Court will not set aside the award solely on the ground of mistake in law or of fact, unless such mistake is apparent on the face of the award (h) or is disclosed by some contemporaneous writing (i) and the contemporaneous writing must form part of or be incorporated with the award (j) or unless the mistake is admitted by the arbitrators; (k) or (perhaps) where the mistake is so gross as to amount (in the judicial sense of the word) to misconduct (l). And now by "The Arbitration Act" (m) the arbitrators may (unless the submission

An arbitrator must form his own judgment on the questions submitted (c) and a lay arbitrator may not have a solicitor to sit with and advise him if any of the parties objects. (d)

Award must embody judgment of arbitrator.

But an arbitrator may consult scientific experts or call in a valuator to assist him (e).

Section 464 requires that "the award shall be in writing under the hands of all or a majority of the arbitrators." But for some provision of this kind, an award by word of mouth might be sufficient. (f) Where there are more arbitrators than one, all of them, or at least, those who join therein, should execute the award at the same time and in the presence of each other (g); and an award executed by the arbitrators or by the assenting arbitrators at different times and places is invalid. (h) So an award executed by two out of three arbitrators in the absence of the third and without finally consulting him may be set aside, (i) or referred back, (j) even in cases which are not governed by the express provision of the Railway Acts, (k) that "no award shall be made nor any official act done by the majority of the arbitrators except at a meeting held at a time and place of which the other arbitrator has had at least one—[in the Dominion Act "two"]—clear days notice, or to which a meeting at which such third arbitrator was present had been adjourned." (l) But it seems that if the assenting arbitrators execute the award at the same time, it will not be set aside because the dissenting arbitrator is not present, provided all the matters in dispute have been discussed by all the arbitrators, each is aware of the judgment formed by the others on the several points, and the dissenting arbitrator, having had a full opportunity of joining in the award, declares his dissent from it or definitely withdraws from the reference. (m) But a party to an arbitration may, by acquiescence, estop himself from objecting that the third arbitrator has not joined in the award. (a) It is highly objectionable, and may affect the validity of the award, for arbitrators, even though they may have fully made up their minds upon all the points in dispute, to employ a solicitor for one of the parties to the reference to draw up the award. (b)

(e). "And one copy shall be filed with the clerk of each of the municipalities interested."

This was formerly required only in the case of awards respecting drainage works (c).

Costs.

Taxation thereof.

460. The arbitrators shall have power to award the payment by any of the parties to the other of the costs of the arbitration, or of any portion thereof, and may either direct the payment of a fixed sum, or that the costs should be taxed on either the scale of the High Court, or of the County Court, in which case the costs shall be taxed by the officer of the proper Court in the county without any further order, and the amount shall be payable within one week after taxation. Such costs when taxed by an officer of a County Court or by a local taxing officer of the High Court, shall be subject to revision by one of the taxing officers at Toronto, upon one week's notice, and such revision shall be subject to appeal to a Judge of the High Court, as in the case of appeals from a taxation of costs in an action. 55 V. c. 42, s. 399.

Taken from the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48 s. 291). The wording of the final sentence was altered in the Revision of 1897 (under the authority of 60 V. c. 3, s. 3) so as to bring it clearly into accord with the practice under Con. Rules 774-776 and 1167-1171 (1897).

Form of award as to costs of arbitration.

(a) This provision is, however, subject to the condition imposed by s. 447. The form of the award as to costs may be as follows:

> "And we further award and direct that the said, the municipal corporation of the township of — — shall pay to the said J. B. (the claimant) the costs of this arbitration (or 'one-half, etc., of the costs of this arbitration') to be taxed on the scale of the High Court (or, 'or the County Court,') or, 'which are hereby fixed at the sum of $ — .'"

Before this enactment there was no power to award as to costs (d), but where arbitrators, not having power to do so, assumed to deal with the costs of the proceedings, it was held that this part of the award, being separable, might be set aside without interfering with the rest of the award (e).

Limits of power to award as to costs.

> "The authority given by the Statute is to award costs and to define the tariff, but no more; that being so, the costs are to be taxed as in other and ordinary litigated cases . . . the Act does not empower costs to be awarded as between solicitor and client, which has here been attempted and directed." (f)

But where the award directed that "the costs" should be paid by the land owners, not fixing the amount nor directing on what scale they should be taxed, it was held that there was no authority to tax them either upon the High Court or the County Court scale. (g) Before the passing of "The Arbi-

Award as to costs of arbitrations.

Where a municipal corporation in expropriating lands for waterworks purposes under the authority of a special Act, adopted the procedure prescribed by "The Municipal Act," it was held that the arbitrators had power under this section to award costs (d). On motion under s. 464 the decision of the arbitrators as to costs may be varied by the Court or Judge (e). Con. Rule 1129 (1897)—which authorizes the Court or a Judge to make a charging order in favour of a solicitor upon property recovered or preserved through his instrumentality in prosecuting or defending "any cause, matter or other proceeding,"—applies only to causes in Court, and not to an award under "The Municipal Act," (f). Filing notes of evidence, etc.

(c) "The arbitrators shall file . . . full notes of the oral evidence," etc.

In Re Townships of Albemarle and Eastnor, (a) ARMOUR, J., held that the requirements of this section are imperative, and that the omission of the arbitrators in that case to take full notes of the oral evidence and to put in writing the statement prescribed by the last clause of the section was fatal to the award, although the mere omission to file notes of evidence taken might not have been so, the Court having power to compel such notes if they existed to be filed nunc pro tunc. In Re Colquhoun and Town of Berlin (b) OSLER, J., had held the omission of the written statement not to be fatal to the award, (c) and allowed it to be put in afterwards, and this ruling—having been meanwhile approved by CAMERON, C.J., in Re Township of Muskoka and Village of Gravenhurst (d) and by BOYD, C., in Re Harvey and Town of Parkdale (e) was repeated by OSLER, J. A., in Re Roden & City of Toronto. (f)

(3) Either of the parties to the arbitration may pay into the office of the Clerk of the County Clerk of the county in which the land which is the subject matter of the arbitration is situated the fees of the arbitrators as demanded by them before delivery of their award, together with $10 as security for costs, and the said clerk shall give a receipt for the same, and shall enter such payment in a book to be kept by him for the purpose, and shall be entitled to receive from the said party as a fee to his own use, when the sum paid in does not exceed $50, a fee of fifty cents, and when the sum paid in exceeds $50 a fee of $1; and the said arbitrators, or any two of them, who may have made the award in such arbitration, upon the production of such receipt, shall forthwith deliver their said award to the party so paying in the said fees and the said $10.

Taxation of arbitrators' fees by clerk.

(4) The party so paying in the said sum may have the arbitrators' fees taxed by the clerk on the latter's appointment without any Judge's order, upon giving two days' notice of such appointment by service of a copy thereof upon the arbitrators or upon the person named by them to receive service thereof for them; and if the said fees are found upon the taxation to be authorized by The Arbitration Act, the said fees

How costs to be taxed.

(5) The said clerk upon taxation shall have regard to the charges made by each arbitrator and shall tax the fees of each arbitrator separately; and the costs of the taxation shall be in his discretion, and he may order the same to be paid either by the applicant or by the arbitrators or by any one or more of them; and he shall make such order in the premises as to him appears just.

Revision of clerk's taxation.

(6) Either party to the taxation may, within two days after the completion of such taxation, upon giving four days' notice to the opposite party, require a revision of such taxation by one of the taxing officers of the High Court at Toronto, and may require the clerk to transmit all papers in the matter to such taxing officer; and upon payment of the necessary postage to the clerk, the latter shall forthwith transmit to such taxing officer such papers and his certificate of taxation or decision or a duplicate thereof.

Powers of taxing officer.

(7) Upon such revision, the taxing officer shall revise the said taxation and the order or decision of the said clerk as well as to costs as to all other matters. The costs of the appeal shall be in his discretion and he may order the same to be paid either by the applicant or by any one or more of the arbitrators as to him seems just. His order shall be final and conclusive upon all parties; and such order when necessary may be enforced by execution to be issued out of the County Court wherein the money was deposited.

Payment of costs out of $10 paid in as security.

(8) The order of the clerk (or of the taxing officer upon a revision as aforesaid) may direct the $10 so paid in as security as aforesaid, or so much as may be necessary, to be applied toward the payment of any costs payable by the applicant, and the remainder, if any, to be returned to him, and that any costs payable by any arbitrator shall be deducted from any fees payable to him and so paid into Court as aforesaid. In the event of such moneys being insufficient in any case to pay such costs, the Clerk of the County Court may order that execution issue against the person ordered to pay any balance, and the same shall issue upon such order out of the County Court into which the fees were paid.

Either party may file affidavits.

(9) Upon such taxation either party may file affidavits, or upon the request of either party to the taxation the clerk may examine the parties and the said arbitrators and any other witnesses upon oath.

Award to be binding in certain cases, must be adopted by by-law within a certain time.

463.—(1) In case the award relates to property to be entered upon, taken or used as mentioned in subsection 1 of section 451, and in case the by-law did not authorize or profess to authorize any entry or use to be made of the property before an award has been made, except for the purpose of survey, or in case the by-law did give or profess to give such authority, but the arbitrators find that such authority was not acted upon, the award shall not be binding on the corporation unless it is adopted by by-law, within three months after the making of the award; and if the same is not so adopted, the original by-law shall be deemed to be repealed, and the property shall stand as if no such by-law had been made, and the corporation shall pay the costs of the arbitration. 55 V. c. 42, s. 402.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99, s. 326 (12). "Three months" in line 9 substituted for "6 weeks" by 53 V. c. 50, s. 11 (1890).

(a) Per HAGARTY, C.J.O.:—

"The power given to a municipal council to back out of an arbitration to fix compensation seems to me a most wholesome provision. . . . An alleged improvement is suggested requiring the purchase of property; on investigating the amount of compensation it is discovered to be far beyond the original estimate of the cost. The corporation then find that the proposed 'improvement' is too costly. For the protection of the ratepayers they resolve to abandon its further prosecution, paying the expenses of the other party to the compensation proceedings." (a)

BURTON J.A. in the same case refers to this section as

"a provision which has now for a long series of years been found to be most beneficial . . . giving to the governing body of the municipality a locus poenitentiæ in case the amount awarded proves to be largely in excess of the sum estimated or for other good and sufficient reason, or without assigning any reason, they consider it desirable to abandon the expropriation proceedings." In the Municipal Act of 1858 (a) the corresponding words were

> "as if made on a submission by a bond containing an agreement for making the submission a rule or order of such Court."

One effect of this was to make the provisions of the Statute 9 & 10 Wm. III. c. 15 applicable thereto,—under which (although there was no cause in the Court) the party in whose favour the award was made might have his costs taxed by the Master of the Court, (b) and might

> "enforce the award by the process of the Court when the submission was made a rule, unless it appeared to that Court that the award should be set aside as unduly made,—in which case the Court would not merely refuse the aid of its process; but (upon complaint made in time), would set aside the award." Award may be remitted to arbitrators

In Re Keighley, Maxsted & Co. and Durant & Co., (f) it was held by the Court of Appeal, following Barnard v. Wainwright (g) that under s. 10 of "The Arbitration Act, 1889," (h) the Court or a Judge has power to remit an award to the arbitrator for reconsideration where it appears that since the making of the award, material evidence has been discovered which might have affected the arbitrator's decision.

Per LORD ESHER, M.R. (p. 410):—

> "In Dinn v. Blake, (i) it is said in terms that an award cannot be sent back to the arbitrator on the mere grounds of mistake, the exception being when there has been corruption or fraud, where there is a mistake of law or fact apparent on the face of the award, and where the arbitrator himself admits that he has made a mistake. The law or rule of the Court, therefore, only applies where there is an allegation by the arbitrator that he has made a mistake of law or fact; and the case of Dinn v. Blake is no authority for anything beyond. In the present case there is no allegation of any mistake by the arbitrators during the progress of the arbitration; but it is said that all the case was not before them, further material evidence having since been discovered. Our decision to-day will apply only to cases where evidence has been discovered since the award, and we do not determine whether in other cases and under other circumstances the Court would be justified in sending back the award, as, for example, where the evidence was known to one of the parties, but kept back by him in order to deceive the arbitrator."

An award may be remitted to the consideration of the arbitrators even after judgment thereon has been entered and paid (j).

But an award will not be remitted solely on the ground that the arbitrators have made a mistake in their opinion upon a question of law (k).

or the amount awarded may be increased or diminished.

Note (d).

Court may increase or diminish amount of award.

The case arose out of an arbitration under s. 437 at the instance of a land-owner, who alleged that the town, by altering the grade of a street, had injuriously affected his property. Two out of the three arbitrators (the third dissenting) awarded the claimant $200 damages and ordered the town to pay two-fifths and the claimant three-fifths of the costs. Upon appeal, ROSE, J. took a view of the premises under Con. Rule 701 (1887), (a) and, without hearing further evidence, increased the award to $1,000 and gave the claimant full costs of the reference. Upon appeal from this decision to the Court of Appeal, BURTON and OSLER, JJ.A., held that he had power to do so, HAGARTY, C.J.O., and MACLENNAN, J.A., that he had not,—the result being that the appeal failed and the judgment of ROSE, J., stood affirmed. OSLER, J., (after quoting the words of this section) says, (p. 35):

> "To these provisions may well be applied the observation of PATERSON, J. in Green v. Citizens' Insurance Co., (b) that they are "in the spirit of the day, which tends to bring the subject of arbitration more under the supervision and control of the Court than formerly, and to place it more fully on a footing with other forms of litigation." And it cannot fail to be remarked that the jurisdiction conferred upon the High Court is not only not in terms described as "an appeal," but that it is of the widest and most comprehensive character possible. To deny that these sections confer upon the High Court the power to deal with the case when brought before it with regard to the weight of evidence as well as with the legality of the award is simply to emasculate them and to limit the jurisdiction of the Court, contrary almost to their very words. The Court is to be placed, says section 401 (c), in a position to form a judgment of the weight which should be attached to a view taken by the arbitrators, or to any knowledge or skill possessed by themselves where they proceed partly upon anything of that kind; and by section 404 (d), the Court shall consider not only the legality of the award but the merits as they appear from the proceedings filed. It may, it is true, call for additional evidence; but the power to deal with the case is not dependent upon that—for either without taking such evidence, or after taking it, it may set aside or remit back the award, or may increase or diminish the amount awarded, or otherwise modify the award as the justice of the case may seem to require."

Upon a further appeal to the Supreme Court (e) the view of ROSE, J., and of BURTON and OSLER, JJ.A., was unanimously sustained and the amount of the damages increased to $1,866.20 with interest from the date of the award. (f)

But question of weight of evidence is for arbitrators.

But in Re Calquhoun and Town of Berlin, (g) OSLER, J. said:

> "The arbitrators have awarded that the claimant is not entitled to compensation because his property has not been injuriously affected. Unless I could see that they had arrived at this conclusion upon some erroneous principle . . . . I ought not to interfere with the award merely because I may think the weight of evidence is against the view which the arbitrators have taken. This is a matter peculiarly for them and not for the Judge, even when he is considering the merits of the case as he is required to do by s. 464." (h)

Appeals and motions against awards not requiring adoption.

465. In case the award does not require adoption, but is subject to an appeal to the High Court, the appeal shall lie to the High Court and from the High Court to the Court of Appeal in the same manner, and subject to the same restrictions as in the case of a reference under an order of Court; and all applications (otherwise than by way of appeal) to set aside such award shall be made within six weeks (excluding vacations) after the publication of the award; but the High Court or a Judge thereof may under special circumstances allow the application to be made after the said time. 52 V. c. 13, ss. 2, 3, 5. See 60 V. c. 16, ss. 15, 45; 60 V. c. 3, 3.

This section is new, but is taken in part from "The Arbitration Act," s. 45.

Practice as to such appeals.

(a) "In case the award . . . is subject to an appeal to the High Court."

According to the decision of ARMOUR, C.J., in Re McLellan and Township of Chinguacousy(a) [illegible] cited in note (b) to s. 464—it would seem that these words cover all awards under "The Municipal Act" except those which, under s. 463 (1), do not require to be adopted by by-law. If so, every such award may—like the report of an Official Referee—be filed in the High Court under s. 31 of "The Arbitration Act" and notice of filing given to the other parties. (b) The Con. Rules provide that such a report when thus filed shall have the effect of and be subject to all the incidents of the report of a Master as regards confirmation, appealing therefrom, motions thereupon and otherwise, and shall become absolute at the expiration of 14 days from the date of serving notice of filing the same unless notice of appeal is served within that time. (c)

The practice as to appeals from such reports is regulated by Con. Rules 771 and 772 (1897), and ss. 33 and 34 of "The Arbitration Act,"—the combined effect of which is to require that the notice of appeal shall be a clear seven days notice setting out the grounds of appeal and returnable within fourteen days from the filing of the report, unless under special circumstances the Court or a Judge shall allow an appeal after the fourteen days. (d) The appeal must be set down for argument before a Judge in Court at latest on the day before the day on which the motion is returnable. (e) From the judgment or order of a Judge in Court upon an appeal from such a report an appeal lies to a Divisional Court or to the Court of Appeal in the same manner and subject to the same restrictions as in the case of other judgments or orders of a Judge in Court. (f)

Motions to set aside award.

(b) "All applications (otherwise than by way of appeal) to set aside such an award."

This would apply to an application to set aside the award on the ground of mistake (g) or that the arbitrator or one of the arbitrators was disqualified to act by reason of interest, corruption or partiality (h) or that proper notice of the proceedings had not been given. (i)

In the case of awards which require to be adopted by by-law (j) the time is limited to one month (exclusive of vacations) after the passing of the by-law. (k)

"Publication" of award.

(c) "Shall be made within six weeks (excluding vacations) after the publication of the award."

The award is "published" (i.e. to the parties) and the time begins to run when the arbitrator gives the parties notice that it may be had on payment of Note (c). When Court will extend time for moving against award.

(d) "But the High Court or a Judge may under special circumstances allow the application to be made after the said time."

Sec. 34 of "The Arbitration Act" contains a similar provision as to extending the time for appealing from an award made on a reference under the order of a Court.

The fact that the arbitrator demanded more than his proper fees as a condition of delivering the award was held not to be an excuse for delay in moving. (e) And even where a person is induced to refrain from moving by the act of the opposite party in leading him to believe that such party intends himself to move, it seems to be a sufficient answer that he was not justified in relying upon the opposite party but should have moved himself. (d) In determining what are such "special circumstances" as will induce the Court to extend the time reference may be had to the cases collected in Holmested & Langton, (2nd Ed.) p. 531, under Con. Rule 353 (1897).

Enforcing award by order of the High Court.

466. An award under this Act may, by leave of the High Court or a Judge thereof, be enforced in the same manner as a judgment or order to the same effect. 60 V. c. 16, s. 14; 60 V. c 3, s. 3.

(b) See note (b) to s. 464. The application should be made to a Judge, the jurisdiction of the Master in Chambers being at least doubtful. (e) The proceedings should be entitled

"In the matter of an Arbitration

And in the matter of "The Arbitration Act."" and the notice of motion should be "For leave to enforce the award dated in the above matter in the same manner as a judgment or order to the same effect." The applicant should produce and verify the original award and a copy thereof, the latter being filed with the affidavits to be used on the motion.

Sec. 467.

Note (a). "The Arbitration Act."

(a) The following are the sections of "The Arbitration Act" referred to;

Interpretation.

"2. In this Act, unless a contrary intention appears, "Submission" means a written agreement to submit present or future differences to arbitration, whether an arbitrator is named therein or not.

"Court" means Her Majesty's High Court of Justice.

"Judge" means Judge of Her Majesty's High Court of Justice.

"Rules of Court" means the Rules of the Supreme Court, made by the proper authority under "The Judicature Act." 60 V. c. 16, s. 2. Cf. Imp. Stat 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 27.

"Submission."

(aa) "Submission." An agreement which simply appoints one or more persons to make a valuation, even though it may be of the amount of compensation to which one of the parties may be entitled, is not a "submission." (a)

The word "arbitration" has been construed to mean a proceeding conducted according to judicial rules, where the person who is appointed arbitrator is bound to hear the parties, to hear evidence (if they so desire) and to determine judicially between them. A "valuation" is a proceeding in which a person especially skilled in the subject-matter decides solely by the use of his eyes and his knowledge. (b)

In Re Herring and Napanee, Tamworth & Quebec R. W. Co. (c) ROSE J., (after reviewing the cases), held that the notices by the land-owner and the company naming their respective arbitrators, together with the written appointment of the third arbitrator by the other two, constituted "a submission to arbitration by consent," under s. 201 of "The Common Law Procedure Act" (d).

In Re City of Toronto Lemler Lane Arbitration, (e) a municipal by-law authorizing the widening of a street, together with the written appointments by the parties of their respective arbitrators, was held to constitute "a submission to arbitration by consent," within the meaning of the corresponding section (13) of "The Arbitration Act." (f)

"Judge."

(bb) "Judge."

It is doubtful whether the powers conferred by this Act upon a Judge are exercisable by the Master in Chambers (g).

Arbitrators to administer oaths, etc.

"9. The arbitrators or umpire acting under a submission shall, unless the submission expresses a contrary intention, have power:—

(a) To administer oaths or to take affirmations of the parties and witnesses appearing:"

(cc) It is apprehended that this is a case in which the words "shall have power" would be construed as imperative (h). "The Common Law Procedure Act," (i) expressly required that the witnesses upon a reference under any rule, order or submission should be examined on oath unless the parties should otherwise agree or consent (j).

To state special case.

(b) To state an award as to the whole or part thereof in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court;

(dd) The special case must state the facts found but not the evidence by which they are supported (k), and the arbitrator must also state a question of law finding affirmatively the facts on which it depends (l).

Note (a) (dd).

Under s. 211 of "The Common Law Procedure Act" (a), under s. 35 of "The Arbitration Act," (b) (in the cases therein referred to), and now by s. 41 of "The Arbitration Act," (c)—provided an application has been made to the arbitrator before the award was made (d) the Court or a Judge may direct the arbitrators at any stage of the reference to state in the form of a special case any question of law arising in the course of the reference. But after award made the arbitrator has no power to state nor the Court to order him to state a special case. (e) The Court may give judgment simply upon the special case submitted (f) or may give judgment subject to a further inquiry which it may order the arbitrator to hold (g) and may also deal with the costs of such special case (h).

To state a special case.

(c) To correct in an award any clerical mistake or error arising from an accidental slip or omission. 60 V. c. 16, s. 9. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 7.

To correct clerical errors.

Formerly this was impossible (i).

10. The time for making an award may from time to time be enlarged by order of the Court or a Judge, whether the time for making the award has expired or not. 60 V. c. 16. s. 11. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 9.

Enlarging time for making award.

(ee) Even before the Act this was done in some cases after the time for making the award had expired (j). But where there had been great delay in applying the Court refused to enlarge the time (k). As to the power of the arbitrators to enlarge the time see note (b) to s. 456, ante.

11.—(1) In all cases of reference to arbitration the Court or a Judge may from time to time remit the matters referred, or any of them to the reconsideration of the arbitrators or umpire.

(2) Where an award is remitted, the arbitrators or umpire shall, unless the order otherwise directs, make their award within three months after the date of the order. 60 V. c. 16, s. 12. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 10.

Power to remit award.

(ff) This is fully covered by the wide provisions of s. 464, ante p. 497.

12.—(1) Where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself the Court may remove him.

(2) Where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself, or an arbitration or award has been improperly procured, the Court may set the award aside. 60 V. c. 16, s. 13. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 11.

Power to remove arbitrator or set aside award.

(gg) In order to upset an agreement of reference to an arbitrator who from his position may naturally be open to a suspicion of partiality, e.g., the engineer of one of the parties to the arbitration, it is necessary to show some specific ground for believing that he will not act fairly. Sec. 467.

Note (a) (gg).

Restraining or removing an unfit arbitrator.

And even where it was shewn that an arbitrator who was the engineer of one of the parties had expressed a strong opinion upon the question in difference the Court declined to interfere, the engineer having sworn that if he had expressed such an opinion it was as the engineer of the defendants, and that should the matter come before him as an arbitrator, he would give the plaintiff's contention fair and impartial consideration.(a)

The Court, however, does not approve of the appointment of an arbitrator who, from his position must inevitably be biassed, and will not uphold his appointment in the absence of a positive agreement therefor,(b) or if, though in reality the engineer of one of the parties, he is described as, and is supposed to be, the engineer of a third party.(c)

And even before the enactment of this section, which, it will be observed, applies only "where an arbitrator or umpire has misconducted himself" the Court of Chancery could, and upon sufficient grounds would, restrain an arbitrator from acting (d)—e.g. where he was shewn to have or to have had such financial or other transactions with one of the parties as to render him, in the opinion of the Court, unfit to act impartially, (e) or where a gentleman proposed as arbitrator in a claim by a married woman against a township municipality had acted (being a barrister and solicitor), as counsel for the husband of the claimant on an indictment and trial of the husband for obstructing a highway in the municipality.(f)

Setting aside the award.

Since an arbitration is "a judicial proceeding in which the arbitrator is bound to hear the parties, to hear evidence if they desire it, and to determine judicially between them," (g) an award may be set aside if the arbitrators or any of them have been guilty of misconduct:

1. By refusing to any party a fair opportunity of being heard or of giving evidence or of hearing or cross-examining his opponent's witnesses.

2. By taking evidence behind the back of a party. (h)

3. By fraud, partiality or corruption.(i)

(i) As to setting aside an award for this cause see Russell on Awards, (7th Ed.), pp. 116, 664, et seq.; Re Hotchkiss v. Hall, 7 L.J.N.S. 320 (1871); Moseley v. Simpson, L. R. 16 Eq. 226 (1873); Parsons v. Lloyd, 26 Grant 374 (1879); Coomee v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 16 O.R. 639 (1889); Vinbury v. Guardian Fire and Life Assurance A.R Co., 19 293 (1892). In Barr v. Gamble, 4 Grant 626 (1854) it was held that a charge of corruption and partiality against an arbitrator is not sustained by general affidavits that throughout the arbitration he had evinced a hostile disposition towards the party complaining, by a constant disposition to discredit his witnesses, and by proposing to award a much larger sum against him than was ultimately done. In Blanchard v. Sun Fire Office, 6 Times L. R. 365 (1890)—where it was shown that one of the parties had sold his interest in the subject matter of the arbitration to one of the arbitrators without the knowledge of the other arbitrator or of the umpire the award was set aside. But see Tulles v. Jacson, [1892] 3 Ch. 441.

Sec. 467.

Note (a) (gg).

4. A decision intentionally contrary to law would be gross misconduct, (a) and if, after stating a special case under s. 9 (b), ante, an arbitrator refuses to act upon the law as stated by the Court, this "might be a ground for impeaching his award on the ground of misconduct." (b)

Setting aside award for misconduct of arbitrator.

5. Refusal of a bona fide request to state a special case might amount to misconduct, (c) and "it is a question whether an excessive and extravagant charge by an arbitrator made by him in the award as part of the award might not amount to such misconduct as would justify the Court in setting aside the award." (d) But where an application was made to remove an arbitrator because he refused to alter the date of an arbitration as he was asked to do because the principal witness for one of the parties was leaving England prior to the date fixed, the motion was dismissed with costs. (e)

Enforcing award.

13. An award on a submission may, by leave of the Court or a Judge, be enforced in the same manner as a judgment or order to the same effect. 60 V. c. 16, s. 14; Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 12.

(hh) This is re-enacted as s. 466, q. v., ante, p. 501.

Where submission provides for appeal.

14. Where it is agreed by the terms of the submission that there may be an appeal to the High Court, the reference shall be conducted and an appeal shall lie to the High Court and Court of Appeal in the same manner and subject to the same restrictions as in the case of references under order of Court. 60 V. c. 16, s. 15.

(ii) The practice upon such references is regulated by Con. Rules 648 to 700 (1897) inclusive, (f) and by s. 32 of "The Arbitration Act," which provides that—

"The evidence of the witnesses examined together with the exhibits therein referred to, shall forthwith, after the making of the report, be transmitted by the referee to the proper officer of the Court." (g)

Subpœnaing witnesses.

15. Any party to a submission may sue out a writ of subpœna ad testificandum, or a writ of subpœna duces tecum, but no person shall be compelled under any such writ to produce any document which he could not be compelled to produce on the trial of an action. 60 V. c. 16, s. 10; Imp. Stat. 5[illegible] V. c. 49, s. 8.

(jj) The Ontario Act also provides (s. 17, infra) for the issue of a commission. See also s. 40 as to obtaining the evidence of a prisoner. It is presumed that the allowance to witnesses should be the same as in civil actions, (h) though there is now no express provision to that effect such as was contained in the repealed Act, R.S.O. (1887) c. 53, s. 47. As to what documents are privileged from production on the trial of an action see Holmested & Langton, (2nd Ed.) pp. 640-652.

Evidence, how taken on reference.

16. The evidence of the witnesses examined upon such reference shall be taken down in writing, and shall, at the request of either party, be transmitted by the arbitrator or umpire, as the case may be, together with the exhibits, to the Central Office at Osgoode Hall. 60 V. c. 16, s. 16.

See note (ii) supra and s. 32 of "The Arbitration Act" there quoted.

Commissions to examine witnesses.

17.—(1) In case a party to a reference by submission is desirous of having and submitting therein to and before the referee, arbitrator or umpire, the testimony of any aged or infirm person resident within Ontario, or of a person who is about to withdraw therefrom, or who is residing without the limits thereof, the High Court, or a Judge thereof, may upon the motion of the party, and upon notice to the other parties to the reference, order the issue of a commission under the seal of the said Court in that behalf, to a commissioner, to take the examination of such person.

Commissions to examine witnesses.

(2) Due notice of the execution of the commission shall be given to the adverse party, to the end that he may cause the witness to be cross-examined.

(3) In case the examination of the witness taken without the limits of Ontario, pursuant to the commission, is proved by an affidavit of the due taking of the examination, sworn before and certified by the mayor or chief magistrate of the city or place where the same has been taken, and in case the commission, with the examination and affidavit thereto annexed, is returned to the Court, enclosed in a cover under the hand and seal of one or more of the Commissioners, the same shall prima facie be deemed to have been duly taken, executed and returned, and shall be received as evidence in the matter of the reference by and before the referee, arbitrator or umpire, unless it is made to appear to the Court, or to a Judge thereof, that the same was not duly taken, or unless it was made to appear to and before the said referee, arbitrator or umpire that the deponent is of sound mind, memory and understanding, and living within Ontario, at the time the examination is offered in evidence. 60 V. c. 16, s. 17.

(kk) See s. 15 and note (jj) thereunder, also s. 40 which provides for the issue of a habeas corpus ad test. As to the costs of an order under the above section, see s. 40, post. There is no power under the English Act to order the issue of a commission (a).

Interpretation. "Arbitrator" "Award."

16. In sections 19 to 27 inclusive of this Act:

"Arbitrator" shall include umpire and referee in the nature of an arbitrator; and

"Award" shall include umpirage and certificate in the nature of an award. 60 V. c. 16, s. 16.

Fees to arbitrators not being barristers, architects, etc.

19. No arbitrator, who is not by profession and calling a barrister, solicitor, engineer, architect or Ontario land surveyor, shall be entitled to demand or take for his attendance and services as an arbitrator any greater fees than are hereinafter set down in Schedule B to this Act, except as provided in section 21. 60 V. c. 16, s. 19.

SCHEDULE B.

FEES CHARGEABLE BY NON-PROFESSIONAL ARBITRATORS.

(1) For every meeting where the cause is not proceeded with, but an enlargement or postponement is made at the request of any party, not less than	$2 00
Nor more than	4 00
(2) For every day's sitting, to consist of not less than six hours, not less than	5 00
Nor more than	10 00
(3) For every sitting not extending to six hours (fractional parts of an hour being excluded) where the arbitration is actually proceeded with, for each hour occupied in such proceedings, at the rate of not less than	1 00
Nor more than	1 50

60 V. c. 16, Sched. B.

Fees to arbitrators being barristers, architects, etc.

20. No arbitrator who is by profession and calling a barrister, solicitor, engineer, architect or Ontario land surveyor, shall be entitled to demand or take for his attendance and services as such arbitrator any greater fees than are hereinafter set down in Schedule C to this Act except as provided in section 21. 70 V. c. 15, s. 20.

SCHEDULE C.

FEES CHARGEABLE BY PROFESSIONAL ARBITRATORS.

(1) For every meeting where the cause is not proceeded with, but an enlargement or postponement is made at the request of any party, not less than	$4 00
Nor more than	8 00
(2) For every day's sitting, to consist of not less than six hours, not less than	10 00
Nor more than	20 00
(3) For every sitting not extending to six hours (fractional parts of hours being excluded) where the arbitration is actually proceeded with, for each hour occupied in such proceedings, at the rate of not less than	2 00
Nor more than	3 00

60 V. c. 16, Sched. C.

(a) Re Douglas and Paul, 9 Times L.R. 228, 37 Sol. Jour. 357 (1892).

(ll) Upon the proper construction of these Schedules, arbitrators are not entitled to charge as fees for a single day's sitting which extends beyond six hours, any amount beyond the maximum (of $10 or $20 as the case may be) fixed by the second item of the Schedules for a single day's sitting (a).

Parties to submission may agree as to fees to be paid to arbitrators.

21. The parties to the submission may agree, by writing signed by them, or by making such agreement a part of the submission, to pay to the arbitrator, or arbitrators if more than one, such fees or sums for such day's attendance, or such gross sums for their taking upon themselves the burden of the reference and making the award, as the said parties see fit, and in every such case the fees and sums so agreed upon shall be substituted for those set down and authorized in the Schedules to this Act, and shall be taxed and allowed by the taxing officer accordingly. (b) 60 V. c. 16, s. 25.

Fees to witnesses.

22. No greater fees shall be taxed or allowed to any person called as a witness before an arbitrator than would be taxed and allowed to the same person in an ordinary action before a Court having jurisdiction over the subject of the reference. 60 V. c. 16, s. 21.

In case of absence of parties, or postponement at their request, costs of meeting to be charged against them.

23. Where, at a meeting of the arbitrators, of which due notice has been given, no proceedings are taken in consequence of the absence of any party, or because a postponement is made by the arbitrators at the request of any party to some future day, the arbitrators shall make up an account of the costs of the meeting, including the proper charges for their own attendance and that of any witnesses, and of the counsel or solicitor of the party present, and not desiring the postponement, and unless, under the special circumstances of the case, they think that it would be unjust so to do; they shall charge the amount thereof, or of the disbursements against the party in default or at whose request the postponement is made, and the last named party shall be bound to pay the same to the other party, whatever may be the event of the reference, and the arbitrators shall, in the award, make any direction necessary for that purpose, and if such sum is payable by the party in whose favour the award is otherwise made, it may be set off against, and deducted from any amount awarded in favor of that party. 60 V. c. 16, s. 22.

Taxing costs on arbitrations.

24. Any party entitled to an arbitration shall be entitled to have the costs thereof, including the fees of the arbitrators, or such fees alone, taxed by one of the taxing officers of the Supreme Court at Toronto, upon an appointment which may be granted by the taxing officer for that purpose on the filing of an affidavit setting forth the facts. A taxation of the said fees by one of the said taxing officers may likewise be had upon an appointment at the instance of the arbitrators granted upon an affidavit as aforesaid. 60 V. c. 3, s. 3; c. 16, s. 23 and part 27.

(mm) This section appears to be controlled by ss. 460 and 462 (3-10) of "The Municipal Act" so far as it is inconsistent therewith (c). The taxation is to take place in the first instance before the local officer (or as to arbitrators' fees in cases under s. 462 (3-10) before the Clerk of the County Court)—subject to revision by one of the taxing officers at Toronto as provided by Con. Rules 1167 to 1171.

Discretion of taxing officer.

25.—(1) The taxing officer shall in no case, except as provided in section 211, tax higher fees than are set down in the Schedules to this Act, but, reasonable grounds established upon affidavit, he may reduce the maximum mentioned in the Schedules, but not below the minimum, having always regard to the length of the arbitration and to the value of the matter in dispute, and the difficulty of the questions to be decided; but he shall not tax more than one counsel fee to either party for any meeting of the arbitrators.

Costs of award.

(2) The taxing officer may tax and allow a reasonable sum for the preparation and drawing up of the award.

Revision of taxation.

(3) An appeal may be had from such taxation in the same manner as from the taxing officer's certificate of taxation in an action. 60 V. c. 16, s. 24.

Counsel Fees.

(nn) Item 163 of Tariff A appended to the Con. Rules (1897), provides that:

"On arbitrations, counsel fees may be allowed and taxed on the same scale and conditions, so far as possible, as those hereinbefore prescribed for counsel fees at trials."

And, under Item 153 of the same Tariff, the fee with brief at trial ($10) may in High Court cases be increased by the Taxing Officer in his discretion to a sum not exceeding $40 to a senior counsel and $20 to a junior counsel in actions of a special and important nature, and in County Court cases by the Judge in actions of a special and important nature . . . to a sum not exceeding $25.

Note (a) (nn).

Counsel fees.

In Re Montague and Township of Aldborough (a), WILSON, C.J., held that the maximum counsel fee which could be allowed to counsel when the costs were to be taxed on the County Court scale was $25, even though the attendance was for several days.

In Re McKeen and Township of South Gower (b), it was held by BOYD, C., that Item 153 is to be read as incorporated with Item 164, and that the effect is to enable a taxing officer at Toronto to allow increased counsel fees in a proper case.

In Re Pollock and City of Toronto (c), it was held by ROSE, J., that the provision in R. S. O. (1887), s. 53, s. 25, that the taxing officer shall not tax more than one counsel fee to either party for any meeting of arbitrators, being inconsistent with items 153 and 164 of the Tariff re-enacted in the Con. Rules of 1888, was repealed by 51 V. c. 2, s. 4, and that the taxing officer might therefore allow a second counsel fee on an arbitration. But now that the same words in this section of "The Arbitration Act" have been re-enacted as from December 31st, 1897, as part of "The Municipal Act," it seems that they supersede the provisions of the Tariff, which came into force on September 1st, 1897 (d), and therefore that the above decision is no longer to be followed.

Penalty for arbitrator attempting to exact excessive fees.

26. An arbitrator who, after having entered upon the reference, refuses or delays after the expiration of one month from the publication of the award to deliver the same until a larger sum is paid to him for his fees than is by this Act permitted; or receives for his award or for his fees as arbitrator any such larger sum, shall forfeit and pay to the party who has demanded delivery of the award or who has paid to the arbitrator such larger sum in order to obtain, or as a consideration for having obtained it, treble the excess so demanded by and paid to the arbitrator and received by him contrary to the provisions of this Act, to be recovered with costs in an action to be brought in the High Court. 60 V. c. 16, s. 26.

When right to penalty arises.

(oo) The liability imposed upon arbitrators by this section is penal in its nature, and does not arise where a person entitled to take up the award has voluntarily paid the arbitrators' charges, without there having been first a demand for the delivery of the award and a refusal or delay to make, execute or deliver it until the excessive charge has been paid. Taxation of the fees is not a condition precedent to the right to maintain an action for the penalty (e). And an arbitrator is not brought within the punitive provisions of the section when payment of the alleged excessive fees is made by cheque to an agent who has authority to accept money only, and the arbitrator refuses to take the cheque.

Per OSLER, J. A.: (f)

> "In order to fix the arbitrator with the penalty, there must be, after the expiration of the month, either actual payment of the sum demanded, or else a demand and refusal as stated in the judgment in 25 O. R. 444."

Per MACLENNAN, J. A.: (g)

> "The person desiring to take up the award may either have the fees taxed and then tender the amount, or he may pay the amount demanded and then bring an action for the penalty, which is a sum equal to treble the excess demanded, and not treble the whole amount of fees demanded."

But see now the summary procedure provided by s. 462 (3-10).

Arbitrator to have action for fees.

27. In all cases where an award is made the arbitrator may maintain an action for his fees upon the award, after the same have been taxed; and in the absence of an express agreement in respect thereof, the arbitrator may maintain such action, after taxation, against all parties to the reference, jointly or severally. 60 V. c. 16, s. 27, part.

(pp) In England an arbitrator cannot maintain an action for his fees (h), unless there has been an express promise to pay them (i).

Note (a) (qq).

Issuing writs of habeas corpus ad test.

40. The Court or a Judge may order that a writ of habeas corpus ad testificandum shall issue to bring up a prisoner for examination before . . . any official or special referee, or before any arbitrator or umpire. 60 V. c. 16, s. 41. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 18.

Statement of case for opinion of Court.

41. Any referee, arbitrator or umpire may at any stage of the proceedings under a reference, and shall, if so directed by the Court or a Judge, state in the form of a special case for the opinion of the Court any question of law arising in the course of the reference. 60 V. c. 16, s. 41. Imp. Act, 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 19.

(qq) "At any stage of the proceedings." The application to compel the arbitrator to state a special case may be made before he has ruled upon the questions of law (a); and although he has in no way indicated his own opinion thereon (b). "At any stage" means before the proceedings have come to an end by a completed award (c); but even then the Court may, under s. 11 of "The Arbitration Act," and s. 464 of "The Municipal Act," remit the award to the arbitrators with a direction to re-state their findings in the form of a special case so as to raise the point of law whether their calculation of compensation has proceeded upon a right principle (d). In arbitrations under "The Common Law Procedure Act," s. 211, and "The Act respecting Arbitrations and References" (e), the referee or arbitrator might—if he chose and if the reference did not preclude him from so doing,—state his award or any part thereof in the form of a special case, but he was not compelled to do so (f). The order is discretionary with the Court and is subject to appeal (g).

Costs in discretion of Court.

42. Any order made under this Act may be made on such terms as to costs or otherwise, as the authority making the order thinks just. 60 V. c. 16, s. 42. Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 49, s. 20.

(rr) This section enables the Court to deal with the costs of a special case ordered under s. 41 (h), and it "probably gives a discretion to the Court setting aside an award to deal with the costs" (i).

Copies of documents used as evidence may be filed in lieu of original.

43. The . . . referee or arbitrator to whom a reference is made, upon the application of any party, and where no special reason appears to him to exist for filing any original book, paper or document as an exhibit, as hereinbefore provided, may, at the close of the reference, and before the said exhibits are so filed, allow a sworn copy of such original book, paper or document which has been given in evidence before him on the reference, or of such portions thereof as he may deem material to be substituted as an exhibit in the place of the original book, paper or document. 60 V. c. 16, s. 46.

Production of exhibits on appeal or motion to set aside award.

44. Upon any appeal or motion to set aside an award, any party may by notice require any other party to produce, and the party so required shall produce, upon the hearing of the appeal or motion, any original book, paper or document in his possession which has been used as an exhibit or given in evidence upon the reference, and which has not been filed with the depositions. 60 V. c. 16, s. 44.

Pending arbitrations.

45. This Act shall not affect any arbitration pending on the 1st day of September, 1897, but shall apply to any arbitration commenced thereafter, under any agreement or order made on or before the said date. 60 V. c. 16, s. 45.

(ss) Sec. 52 of "The Arbitration Act"—which was added in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 11, s. 12—provides that—

> "52. No submission or reference to arbitration heretofore or hereafter made shall be deemed to have been, or be revoked by the death of any party thereto whether occurring before or after the passing of this Act."

In the absence of any enactment amending s. 467 of "The Municipal Act" so as to include the above section among those applicable to municipal arbitrations, it must—for the reasons already suggested in note (a) to s. 449—be regarded as extremely doubtful whether this provision applies to such arbitrations (a).

TITLE VI.—ACTIONS AGAINST MUNICIPAL CORPORATIONS

(SECS. 468-471.)

Synopsis.—Secs. 468-9 relate to actions for damages against municipal corporations on account of something done under an illegal by-law, order or resolution. Section 470 provides for the tender or payment into Court of compensation in case of claims or actions for alleged negligence; and s. 471 describes the method in which a fi. fa. against a municipal corporation is to be executed by the sheriff.

Actions against a municipality for acts done under illegal by-law.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 201. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 155; 14-15 V. c. 109, s. 35.

(a) The effect of this section was fully considered in Connor v. Middagh and Hill v. Middagh (b), where all the previous cases are reviewed by HAGARTY, C. J. O., and OSLER, J. A.

They were actions of trespass to land, brought against a person who had been appointed by a by-law passed by a county council under s. 652 of this Act to enforce a previous by-law of the same council opening a road between two townships. Neither of the by-laws had been quashed or repealed, but it was contended that the road authorized to be opened was not upon the true road allowance. The plaintiffs having recovered damages at the trial, and their right to recover having been affirmed by a Divisional Court, the cases were appealed to the Court of Appeal on the ground that this section applied. It was held (BURTON, J.A., doubting) that whether the road defined in the by-law was the true road or not, and whether, therefore, a trespass had been committed or not, the by-laws, being within the general competence of the council, and not having been quashed, afforded a complete defence to the actions.

HAGARTY, C. J. O. in giving judgment, says (p. 374):—

> "I think the Legislature has wisely provided, as a most important element in the scheme of municipal government, essential to the working of a complex system of local legislation, that, prior to the right to seek damages for any interference with private rights, the judgment of a Court shall be sought and obtained that the local law warranting such interference is illegal and beyond the limited authority given to the enacting body."

Sec. 468.

Note (a).

By-law must first be quashed or repealed.

And again (p. 366):—

"This protecting clause has been in our Statutes since 1849,—since the Act which recast the early Act of 1841, and created the township municipalities. The Legislature was creating several hundred inferior representative bodies, and endowing them with large powers of interference with private rights and properties. Their by-laws would have to be enforced by individual officers or servants, and it was felt that the strict rules of law might not be infrequently violated, and claims for damages incurred, both as to the council and the executors of its mandate. In the passing and preparation of these by-laws, and in ascertaining whether all the statutable requirements and conditions precedent had been fulfilled, very great care was necessary, and, as the innumerable cases before our Courts during the last forty years can testify, it was very hard to be always free from some omission or miscarriage which Judges would be compelled to hold fatal to the legality of the whole proceeding. It would be a most unfortunate state of the law if, in actions of trespass against the municipality enacting the by-law or against those to whom its execution was committed, at the trial every objection should be open, and if the success or failure of the action were to depend on the proof of exact fulfilment of all conditions necessary to warrant the passing of the by-law."

And OSLER, J. A. says, (p. 388):

"The object of the Legislature seems to have been,—in the first place to protect officers and persons acting ministerially in carrying out the by-law and in reliance upon it, and to confine the remedy of the person injured to the corporate body under the authority of whose illegal enactment the injury was committed,—and secondly, to provide that the illegal legislation and apparent authority should be removed out of the way of the suitor by an independent application. While it stands, an action of trespass cannot be maintained against the corporation any more than (by force of an analogous provision) it can be maintained against a magistrate for acts done under a conviction made by him, though illegal on its face, without, or in excess of his jurisdiction, until the conviction has been quashed."

(b) "No such action." The action referred to is an action for damages against the corporation or its officers for something done under the by-law, order or resolution. (a)

To what actions this section applies.

"It is only the remedy for acts done under the by-law which is interfered with." (b) The section would seem therefore not to apply to an action of replevin, brought merely to try the right in the property replevied. (c)

It certainly does not apply to an action brought to restrain a municipal corporation from proceeding to enforce rights claimed by them under an illegal by-law, (d) even (it seems) though a claim for damages may have been added, (e) provided the substantial relief sought is the injunction restraining the wrongful acts complained of. (a)

And a municipal corporation is not liable to an action for damages arising out of the enforcement or attempted enforcement of a by-law passed under a misconstruction of its powers, unless such liability is expressly or impliedly imposed by Statute. (b)

Notice of action.

(e) "One month's notice in writing of the intention to bring the action."

As to computation of time see note (a) to s. 127. "Month" means a calendar month; R.S.O. c. 1, s. 8 (15). A clear month's notice exclusive of the first and last days is necessary. (c) Notice served March 28th; writ issued April 29th, Held sufficient. (d)

The notice should be a notice of intention to bring an action, not a mere notice that injury has been sustained, as under s. 9 of "The Workman's Compensation for Injuries Act." (e)

Under Rev. Stat. N.B., c. 56, ss. 1 and 2, and 31 V. c. 19 (N.B.), s. 1 which provides that no action shall be brought against a commissioner of highways unless "upon one month's previous notice thereof in writing,"—the following letter from the plaintiff's solicitor was relied on as sufficient notice of action:

"The Council of the City of Portland.

Gentlemen:—On behalf of Mr. J. J. Christie of the city of St. John, dealer in shoe findings, and as his attorney, I have to notify you that on Friday last, in consequence of the defective sidewalk in your city, he fell and received severe injuries, from which he is now and for weeks will be confined to his bed.

As it is Mr. Christie's intention to claim damages from you for such injuries, I give you this notice that a prompt inquiry into the circumstances may be made, and such damages paid as Mr. Christie is entitled to."

Held, (per RITCHIE, C. J. and STRONG, J.), that the letter was not a sufficient notice of action. (f)

TASCHEREAU, GWYNNE and PATTERSON, JJ., holding that upon the construction of the Statutes relating to the city of Portland no notice was necessary, gave no opinion upon this point.

Per Sir WM. RITCHIE, C. J. (p. 7):—

> "I cannot think that this is a sufficient notice; there is nothing whatever to convey to the council of the city of Portland the intention to bring an action."

The notice need not state the form of the intended action; (g) it is sufficient to state the cause of it (h); but this should be stated with clearness and certainty; (i) and the time and place of the act complained of should be mentioned. (a) But where notice of action in trespass described the place as "at or near the W. ½ of Lot 31" and the jury found that it had been committed on the East half of Lot 32, the notice was held sufficient, as reasonable certainty only is required and the defendants could not have been misled. (b) A conditional notice,—e.g., that an action will be brought unless something is done by the defendant, was held bad in Norris v. Smith (c) and Wingard v. Marks. (d) Since "the intent of the Statute is that the party should have an opportunity of tendering amends," it is advisable, if not necessary, to state in full the name and place of abode of the intended plaintiff. (e)

Notice of action.

By the terms of this section, notice of action is required only "in case anything has been done" under the by-law, etc., which gives the right of action, e.g., an act of trespass. (f) Notice would therefore seem to be unnecessary in an action for an omission. (g) And, except in the cases referred to in this section and s. 606, a municipal corporation is not entitled to notice of action; (h) unless by virtue of some special Act. (i)

In cases under this section and s. 606 the want of a notice of action must be raised by the pleadings. (j)

And now in England "The Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893" (k) has repealed so much of any public general Act as requires a notice of action to be given.

Note (a).

Tender of amends.

(b) "In case the corporation tenders amends," etc. The tender may be made "to the plaintiff or his solicitor" i.e., the solicitor employed in the action. It should be made in "legal tender," viz., silver up to $10 and gold to any amount, (a) provided it is not defaced, (b) but a tender of bank notes will be good if not objected to on that ground (c). If change is required which the claimant says he has not got, the tender is insufficient, but if no objection is made on this ground it is a good tender (d). A mere offer to pay is not a tender (e). Still less is a mere statement of readiness to pay (f). There must be actual production and offer of the money (g) unless dispensed with by the declaration of the party that he will not accept it (h) or by other conduct fairly warranting the assumption that it would be refused (i). The offer to pay must be unqualified, and it clogged with conditions,—e. g. that a mortgage or other document shall be given up, (j) or that the sum offered shall be accepted as the amount due (k) it is not a valid tender; for the person offering the money has no right to insist upon admissions which will be evidence against the party receiving it (l). Therefore an offer of money to be accepted as "all that is due," (m) or "in full of all demands" (n) or "as a settlement" (o) is not a valid tender; But a tender accompanied by the words "I have come to pay the amount of your bill" is good,—being no more than is implied in every tender, viz., that the tenderer intends to cover the whole demand and insists that the sum tendered is sufficient for that purpose (p)—and a tender "under protest" is a perfectly good tender (q), and though the tenderer may not demand a receipt "in full of all demands," (r) he may demand a receipt for the amount paid, leaving the opposite party at liberty to claim more (s), at all events where the tender is not refused on that ground; for if the party to whom a tender is made gives his reasons for not receiving the money, he must rely on the objections then stated, and will be taken to have waived all other objections (a).

Tender of amends.

When the words or facts accompanying a tender are disputed, it is a question for the jury (or for the Judge sitting as a jury) whether the tender was conditional or not; (b) or whether the person to whom the offer was made dispensed with the actual production and offer of the money (c) but where the facts are undisputed or have been found by a jury, or the expressions in question are contained in written documents, their legal effect is to be determined by the Judge (d).

(c) "If such tender is pleaded and . . . . . proved, and if no more than the amount tendered is recovered, the plaintiff shall have no costs but costs shall be taxed to the defendant."

Where a defendant,—not alleging a tender before action—pays money into Court under Con. Rule 419 (1897), the plaintiff (if he so elects) may take out the money in satisfaction of all his causes of action, tax his costs and sign judgment therefor (e). But where money is brought into Court under Con. Rule 428 with a defence setting up a tender before action, Rules 424 and 425 do not apply (f); for "if the plea of tender is made out, the action ought never to have been brought, and the defendant is entitled to his costs, and in order to get them he is obliged to go to trial and have the issue tried which is raised by the plea of tender" (g).

Tender or payment into Court of compensation in action for negligence.

Added to the Act in 1881 by 44 V. c. 24, s. 25. Cf. s. 447.

(a) By this section the provisions of s. 469 as to the effect of a tender of amends before action are made applicable to claims or actions against municipal corporations for damages for alleged negligence. See note (e) to s. 469.

Where the defence set up is not tender before action but payment into Court pendente lite, the plaintiff may take out the money under Con. Rules 424 and 425, (1897) in which case he will be entitled to costs; but if, instead of doing so, he chooses to proceed with the action, and recovers no more than the amount paid in, the result will be that the defendant, having succeeded on the issue (of "damages extra") will be entitled to the costs of the action; as—independently of this section—he formerly was under "The Common Law Procedure Act," (a) and still is under the present practice (b); subject however to the discretion as to costs of the Court or Judge under Con. Proceedings on writs of execution against municipalities.

471.—(1) Any writ of execution against a municipal corporation may be indorsed with a direction to the sheriff to levy the amount thereof by rate, and the proceedings thereon shall then be the following;

Sheriff to deliver copy of writ and statement of claim to treasurer.

(a) The sheriff shall deliver a copy of the writ and indorsement to the treasurer of the municipality or leave such copy at the office or dwelling-house of that officer, with a statement in writing of the sheriff's fees, and of the amount required to satisfy the execution, including in such amount the interest calculated to some day as near as is convenient to the day of the service.

If claim not paid, rate to be struck by Sheriff.

(b) In case the amount, with interest thereon from the day mentioned in the statement, is not paid to the sheriff within one month after the service, the sheriff shall examine the assessment rolls of the corporation, and shall in like manner as rates are struck for general municipal purposes, strike a rate sufficient in the dollar to cover the amount due on the execution with such addition to the same as the sheriff deems sufficient to cover the interest, his own fees, and the collector's percentage, up to the time when the rate will probably be available.

Sheriff's precept to collector, etc., to levy rate.

(c) The sheriff shall thereupon issue a precept or precepts, under his hand and seal of office, directed to the collector or respective collectors of the corporation, and shall annex to every precept the roll of such rate, and shall by the precept, after reciting the writ, and that the corporation has neglected to satisfy the same, and referring to the roll annexed to the precept, command the collector or collectors, within their respective jurisdictions, to levy such rate at the time and in the manner by law required in respect to the general annual rates.

Rate rolls.

(d) In case at the time for levying the annual rates next after the receipt of such precept, the collectors have a general rate roll delivered to them for such year, they shall add a column thereto, headed "Execution rate in A. B. vs. The Township" (or as the case may be, adding a similar column for each execution if more than one), and shall insert therein the amount by such precept required to be levied upon each person

(SEC. 472.)

472. In any prosecution, action or proceeding in any civil matter to which a municipal corporation is a party, no ratepayer, member, officer or servant of the corporation shall, on account of his being such, be incompetent as a witness. 55 V. c. 42, s. 425, part.

(a) The parties to a civil action or criminal proceeding, and all other parties having any interest, however trifling, in the result (a) were formerly incompetent as witnesses. This disability,—(except as to the parties by or for whose immediate benefit the action was brought or defended and the wives and husbands of such parties)—was removed in England by Lord Denman's Evidence Act (b). By our Provincial Statute 14-15 V. c. 66, s. 1 (1851) even these exceptions were removed, and the parties to the record and persons for whose immediate benefit the action was brought or defended and the wives and husbands of such parties were made competent witnesses: and (under s. 2) a party to any civil proceeding could be called and examined as a witness by the opposite party, save that a wife could not give evidence for or against her husband. But in the following year the enabling provisions of 14-15 V. c. 66, s. 1 were repealed (c) and it was not until 1869 that the disqualification of witnesses in civil cases on the ground of interest was finally removed by 33 V. c. 13, save as provided in s. 5 of that Act. of 1849 (a) and has been the law ever since. The word "ratepayers" and the words "in any civil matter" were inserted in 1868 by 32 V. c. 6, s. 13. The Act of 1849 further provided that no such member, officer or servant of the corporation should on that ground be liable to challenge as a juror if he had no more direct interest in the result of the suit, etc., and was not otherwise incompetent. This provision was altered by 32 V. c. 6, s. 13; and now by "The Juror's Act," (b) it is provided that :—

> "Every warden and every member of any county council, every mayor, reeve, [or deputy reeve] of any city, town, township, or village, every Justice of the Peace, and every other member and officer of any municipal corporation, is hereby absolutely freed and exempted from being selected by the selectors of jurors . . . to serve as a grand or petit juror in Her Majesty's Inferior Courts; and none of the names of any such persons shall be inserted in the rolls from which jurors are to be taken for such purposes; and if any such name be at any time accidentally inserted in any such roll, it shall, if drawn in selecting any jury list or drafting any panel therefrom for such Inferior Courts, be set aside and not inserted therein."

And by s. 112 of the same Act :

> "In any prosecution, action or proceeding in any civil matter to which a municipal corporation other than a county is a party, every ratepayer, member, officer, or servant of the corporation shall, on account of his being such, be liable to challenge as a juror."

DIVISION I.—JUSTICES OF THE PEACE.

(SECS. 473-478.)

Synopsis :—Section 473 provides that certain municipal offices shall confer upon the persons who hold them, the status of J. P.'s. Sec. 474 relates to the jurisdiction over certain offences of the Mayor of a town having no Police Magistrate, (see infra note (b) to the section), and s. 476 to the jurisdiction of county J. P.'s over cases arising under by-laws of local municipalities in the county which have no Police Magistrate. In the case of wardens, mayors, reeves and aldermen, who, under s. 473, are constituted ex officio J. P.'s, sec. 475 dispenses with further property qualification than that required by law for these municipal offices; and ss. 477-478 provide that the fact of a J. P. being a municipal councillor or ratepayer shall not disqualify him from adjudicating in certain cases.

Certain persons to be ex officio Justices of the Peace.

473. The head of every council, all members of a county council, and the reeve of every town, township and village, shall, ex officio, be Justices of the Peace for the whole county or union of counties in which their respective municipalities lie; and aldermen in cities shall be Justices of the Peace for such cities. 55 V. c. 42, s. 415: 60 V. c. 45, s. 8.

Sec. 473.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51,) s. 357, which also included (in clause 1) "the Police Magistrate of every city and town." The words "all members of a county council" were added in 1867 by 30 V. c. 45, s. 8. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 72, 109; 16 V. c. 181, s. 22; 22 V. c. 99, s. 340.

Certain municipal officers to be ex officio J. P.'s.

(a) The ordinary rule is that the jurisdiction of a local officer is not to extend beyond the municipality of which he is an officer. But as many of the criminals who find their way into cities and towns are from rural municipalities, and as some of those who escape from cities and towns find their way into rural municipalities, it has been deemed proper, in order to obviate the necessity for backing warrants in such cases, to make the officers in this section mentioned not simply "ex officio Justices of the Peace," but ex officio Justices of the Peace "for the whole county or union of counties in which their respective municipalities lie" (a).

(b) "Aldermen in cities shall be Justices of the Peace for such cities." It was formerly provided that before any alderman or reeve could act in the capacity of a Justice of the Peace for the city or county, he should take the same oath of qualification, and in the same manner, as is by law required of Justices of the Peace (b); and it was held that a warrant of commitment signed by an alderman who had not so qualified was invalid to uphold the detention of the prisoner confined under it (c). But now no alderman, etc., after taking the oaths or making the declaration as such, is to be required to have any property qualification or to take any further oath to enable him to act as a Justice of the Peace. See s. 475.

Where there is a Police Magistrate, no other Justice of the Peace to act.

(c) R.S.O. c. 87 provides (d) that, except at a Court of General Sessions of the Peace, or in the case of illness, absence, or at the request of the Police Magistrate, no Justice of the Peace shall admit to bail, or discharge a prisoner, or adjudicate upon, or otherwise act in any case for a town or city where there is a Police Magistrate, or (in a county in which a Police Magistrate has been appointed under s. 15 of the Act,) in any case prosecuted under any Statute of Ontario within the district assigned to a Police Magistrate (e).

But in Reg. v. McLean (f), McDougall, Co. J. of York, held that the words "any case for a town or city" refer to cases originating, (i.e., to offences committed) in the town or city, and that a J.P. for the County of York could sit in Toronto and adjudicate upon a case arising out of an offence committed at the village of Woodbridge which is within that county (g).

Jurisdiction of mayors over certain offences.

474. The mayor of a town or city where there is no Police Magistrate, shall have jurisdiction, in addition to his other powers, to try and determine all prosecutions for offences against the by-laws of the town or city, and for penalties for refusing to accept office therein or to make the necessary declarations of qualification and office. 55 V. c. 42, s. 416.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 208. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 185; 16 V. c. 181, s. 31.

(a) This section seems to be entirely unnecessary. See ss. 473, 479, 704 and 705.

(b) "Any town or city where there is no Police Magistrate." "Every city and every town having more than 5,000 inhabitants shall have a Police Magistrate. (h) "Every other town may, if the Lieutenant-Governor sees fit to make an appointment, have a Police Magistrate." (i)

Secs. 475-477.

Qualification of certain officials.

475. No warden, mayor, reeve or alderman, after taking the oaths, or making the declarations as such, shall be required to have any property qualification or to take any further oath to enable him to act as a Justice of the Peace. 55 V. c. 42 s. 417.

Taken from 16 V. c. 181, s. 26; 22 V. c. 99, s. 341.

Property qualification.

(a) It is the policy of the law to require that those who are authorized to discharge the responsible duties of a Justice of the Peace shall have some property qualification to answer to persons who may be aggrieved by their misconduct. It is therefore enacted by R.S.O. c. 86, s. 9 that—

> "Except where otherwise provided by law, no person shall be a Justice of the Peace, or act as such, who has not in his actual possession, to and for his own proper use and benefit, an estate in free and common soccage, in absolute property, or for life, or lease for one or more lives, or originally created for a term not less than twenty-one years, in lands, tenements or hereditaments, lying and being in this Province, or of above the value of $1,200 over and above what will satisfy and discharge all incumbrances affecting the same, and over and above all rents and charges payable out of or affecting the same."

No one can become a warden, mayor, reeve or alderman without a property qualification (ss. 76, 77). The possession, therefore, of such an office affords evidence of this, and, to some extent, of the other necessary qualifications.

Since no greater property qualification is required of a warden than of every other member of a county council (a), and since they all (equally with the warden) become ex officio Justices of the Peace (b), there would seem to be no reason why this section should not be amended so as to include all county councillors.

Jurisdiction of J. P.'s. under by-laws.

476. Every Justice of the Peace for a county shall have jurisdiction in all cases arising under any by-law of any municipality in the county for which there is no Police Magistrate. 55 V. c. 42, s. 418.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 364. Cf. 27 V. c. 18, s. 3.

(a) But, as to cities and towns which have a Police Magistrate, and as to other local municipalities situated within a county for which a Police Magistrate has been appointed under s. 15 of R.S.O. c. 87,—see ss. 7 and 17 of that Act quoted in note (c) to s. 473, ante. Section 8 of R.S.O. c. 87 also provides that:

> "Nothing in the preceding sections contained shall interfere with the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace for the county in which a town having no Police Magistrate is situate, over offences committed in the town."

J. P.'s not disqualified by being members of council.

477. A Justice of the Peace shall not, by reason of his being a member of a municipal council, be disqualified to act as a Justice in the case of a prosecution for an offence committed against a by-law of such council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 419, part.

This section has been re-cast in the last Revision, apparently under the authority of 60 V. c. 3, s. 3. Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99,) s. 204, and based upon the last clause of 12 V. c. 81, s. 185, it had remained until 1892 in the following form:

> "In case any offence is committed against a by-law of a council, for the prosecution of which offence no other provision is made, any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the locality where the offender resides, or where the offence was committed, may try and determine any prosecution for the offence, whether the Justice is a member of the council or not;" Cf. s. 705. 55 V. c. 42, s. 419.

Sec. 477.

Note (a).

(a) In Reg. v. Justices of Huntingdon (a), it was held that a J. P. who was a member of a town council, and as such had taken an active part in the making of an order under "The Dogs Act" (b), was not disqualified from sitting to hear a complaint for non-observance of the order thus made.

But it has been held in the Province of Quebec that a J. P., who is at the same time a member of a municipal council, is not competent to preside at a proceeding taken, upon the instructions of the council, against an officer of the municipality for the infraction of a by-law which he (the J. P.) had concurred in passing. (c)

Nor by reason of penalty being payable to municipality.

478. A Justice of the Peace shall not be disqualified to act as a Justice where in case of a conviction the fine or penalty or part thereof goes to a municipality in which he is a ratepayer. 55 V. c 42, s. 419*a*; c. 43, s. 24.

Taken from "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1892," (55 V. c. 43,) s. 24.

(a) The words "Justice of the Peace" now used in this section instead of the word "magistrate" used in 55 V. c. 43, s. 24, mean and include a police magistrate (d).

Division II.—POLICE OFFICE IN CITIES AND TOWNS.

Police offices in cities and towns.

479.—(1) The council of every town and city shall establish therein a police office; and the Police Magistrate, or, in his absence, or where there is no Police Magistrate, the mayor of the town or city, shall attend at such police office daily or at such times and for such period as may be necessary for the disposal of the business brought before him as a Justice of the Peace: but any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in a town or city may, at the request of the mayor thereof, act in his stead at the police office. 55 V. c. 42, s. 432.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 347. Based upon the Act of 1849, s. 49 (police office in towns), and s. 93 (as amended by 13-14 V. c. 64, Sched. A. (18)—(police office in cities)

Note (b).

(b) "The Police Magistrate or in his absence, or where there is no Police Magistrate, the Mayor . . . shall attend . . . but any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction . . . may, at the request of the Mayor . . . act in his stead."

Police office in cities and towns.

This section must be read with s. 13 of R. S. O. c. 87,—which provides that where there is a Deputy Police Magistrate he shall have authority to act in case of the death, illness or absence of the Police Magistrate—; and also with ss. 7 and 29 of the same Statute—which empower the Police Magistrate to request any Justice of the Peace or any two or more Justices of the Peace to act for him in case of his illness or absence. It is apprehended that the duty and power of the mayor under this section arise only where there is no Police Magistrate or Deputy Police Magistrate, or where the Police Magistrate has failed to request any one to act for him during his illness or absence.

(c) Section 38 of R.S.O. c. 87—which provides that:—

> "Except in cases of urgent necessity no attendance of the Police Magistrate shall be required at the police office on Sundays or other holidays, or on any day set apart by the municipal council as a civic holiday."

—was formerly part of this section and applied also to the attendance of the mayor at the police office in towns not having a police Magistrate.

Accomodation, etc., for police office.

(2) The council shall from time to time provide all necessary and proper accommodation, fuel, light, stationery and furniture for the police office, and for all officers connected therewith. 59 V. c. 51, s. 35; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Taken from 59 V. c. 51, s. 35 (1896).

Clerk of police office, and his duties.

If paid by salary, fees to be paid over to municipality.

Taken (except the last clause) from the Act of 1858, 22 V. c. 99, s. 354. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 73; the last clause, "And such clerk shall be the officer of" etc., was added in 1896, by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 374.

(a) "Or such other person as the council . . . appoints," etc.

The appointment should be made by by-law.(a) Where a town clerk, though specially instructed by resolution of the council, did not act as Police Court Clerk, and the Police Magistrate appointed a clerk who acted for nearly six years with the knowledge of the municipal council of the town, and without any repudiation by them of his right to do so, it was held that he might be considered as if appointed by the council and was entitled to the emoluments mentioned in this section. (b)

(b) "And shall perform the same duties and receive the same emoluments as clerks of Justices of the Peace."

This section applies to cases arising under both Dominion and Provincial Acts. (c) As to the duties of the Clerk of the Police Court, see R.S.O. c. 94, ss. 1, 3, 4, 5, 8, 9. The "fees to be taken by Justices of the Peace or their clerks in summary proceedings or convictions before the Justice where no other fees are expressly prescribed," are fixed by the Schedule to R. S. O. c. 95, entitled "An Act respecting the Fees of Justices of the Peace," and are as follows:—

Sec. 481.

DIVISION III.—BOARDS OF COMMISSIONERS OF POLICE AND POLICE FORCE IN CITIES AND TOWNS.

(SECS. 481-499.)

Synopsis:—Sec. 481 constitutes a Board of Commissioners of Police in every city and provides for the constitution of a like Board in every town which has a police magistrate. By sec. 494 a town council may in the case therein mentioned assume the powers theretofore exercised by an existing Board.

Secs. 484, 486, 486 (a), 489, 490 and 492 enumerate the various powers exercisable by Boards of Police Commissioners under the Municipal Act; and ss. 482, 483 and 485 relate to the mode of such exercise.

Secs. 487-493 and 495-499 relate to the appointment, government, duties, remuneration and suspension of high-bailiffs, chief-constables, and constables.

Boards of Commissioners of Police.

Boards of commissioners of police in cities and towns, of whom composed.

481—Notwithstanding anything in any special Act contained there is hereby constituted in every city a Board of Commissioners of Police, and in every town having a Police Magistrate the council may constitute a like Board. Such Board shall consist of the mayor, the Judge of the County Court of the county in which the city or town is situate, and the Police Magistrate. In case the office of County Judge or that of Police Magistrate is vacant, the council of the city shall, and the council of the town may, appoint a person resident therein to be a member of the Board, or two persons so resident to be members thereof, as the case may require, during such vacancy; but the council of such town may at any time, by by-law, dissolve and put an end to the Board, and thereafter the council shall have and exercise all powers and duties previously had or exercised by the Board. 55 V. c. 42, s. 434; 62 V. (2nd Session), c 26, s. 28.

Taken from 37 V. c. 16, ss. 10, 13 (1874). The first six words of the section were added in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Sess.) c. 26, s. 28.

(a) The first step in the direction of transferring to an official (but not representative) body some share of the powers exercised by municipal councils under the Act of 1849 was made by the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99, s. 374), which constituted in every city a Board of Commissioners of Police, to be composed of the Mayor, Recorder and Police Magistrate, and to have the powers now given by ss. 490, 491, together with some of those given by s. 492 (1). (a) The composition of the Board has remained substantially the same ever since,—the County Court Judge being substituted for the Recorder by s. 12 of "The Law Reform Act of 1868," (b) when the latter office was abolished by s. 10 of the same Act—(c) but the powers of the Board have from time to time been extended, as will appear from the notes to ss. 484, 540 (1), 541, 583 and 585, post.

(b) "Every town having a police magistrate."

See note (b) to s. 474.

(c) "The Mayor, the Judge of the County Court . . and the Police Magistrate." i.e., one member chosen by the municipal electors, one appointed by the Governor-General (d), and one by the Lieutenant-Governor (e).

(a) See the notes on those sections.

(b) 32 V. c. 6.

(c) See note (a) to s. 479 ante.

(d) B.N.A. Act, s. 96.

(e) R.S.O. c. 87, s. 4.

The powers of a Board of Commissioners of Police must be exercised judicially; and in a proper case the Court will, no doubt, compel the Board so to exercise them. Semble, that an action for a mandamus for this purpose is not within the terms of R.S.O. c. 88, entitled "An Act to protect Justices of the Peace and Others from Vexatious Actions," and that no notice of such an action is necessary (a).

Person acting as mayor to act as police commissioner.

(2) In case of the illness or absence of the mayor, or of the office of mayor being vacant, the person appointed by the council under section 272 as their presiding officer shall also have authority during the time he acts as such presiding officer to act as a police commissioner in the place of the mayor. 55 V. c. 42, s. 239 (2); c. 43, s. 9.

Payment of police commissioners.

(3) The council of any city with a population of 100,000 or over, may by by-law provide for the payment of the Police Commissioners or any of them. 55 V. c. 42, s. 434 (2).

Added by 53 V. c. 50, s. 14 (1890).

Board may examine witnesses on oath.

482.—(1) The commissioners shall have power to summon and examine witnesses on oath on all matters connected with the administration of their duties, and shall have the same power to enforce the attendance of such witnesses and to compel them to give evidence as is vested in any Court of law in civil cases. A notice to attend before the Board shall be sufficient, if signed by the chairman of the Board, or by any one of the commissioners.

The first clause of subsection 1 (power to summon and examine witnesses on oath) is taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 394; the rest of the subsection, and also subsection 2, were added in 1887 by 50 V. c. 8, Schedule.

(a) "The same power to enforce the attendance of . . . witnesses," etc.

A witness refusing or wilfully neglecting to attend on being duly served with a subpœna may be proceeded against by attachment. See note (c) to s. 254. One who refuses to be sworn or give evidence, or to answer any question which the Court holds that he is bound by law to answer, is guilty of contempt, and may be punished instanter by fine and imprisonment. (b)

(2) No party or witness shall be compelled to answer any question his answer to which might render him liable to a criminal prosecution. 55 V. c. 42, s. 435 (1), (2).

(b) See also "The Evidence Act," (R.S.O. c. 73), s. 5, and cf. s. 255 of this Act.

Chairman.

483.—(1) The commissioners shall annually at their first meeting held after the mayor of the municipality has taken his oath of office, elect a chairman. 57 V. c. 60, s. 6.

Quorum.

(2) A majority of the Board shall constitute a quorum, and the Acts of a majority shall be considered acts of the Board.

(a) See Hasdem v. Schwarz, 30 O.R. 89 (1898), an action against License Commissioners; in which Leeson v. Board of License Commissioners of the County of Dufferin, 19 O.R. 67 (1890), was not followed.

Sec. 483 (3).

Meetings in cities to be open to public.

(3) All meetings of the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities shall be open to the press and the public, unless otherwise decided by the Board. 55 V. c. 42, s. 435 (3), (4).

Subsection 1 is taken from 57 V. c. 50, s. 6 (1894); subsection 2 from 50 V. c. 8, Sched. (1887), and subsection 3 from 45 V. c. 8, s. 2 (1882).

Licensing and regulating second-hand and junk shops, livery stables, cabs, etc., in cities.

484.—(1) The Board of Commissioners of Police shall, in cities, license and regulate second-hand shops and junk stores or shops and the owners of livery stables and of horses, cabs, carriages, carts, trucks, sleighs, omnibuses and other vehicles regularly used for hire within the said city whether such owners are resident or non-resident therein, and shall establish the rates of fare to be taken by the owners or drivers of such vehicles for the conveyance of goods or passengers, either wholly within the limits of the city, or from any point within the city to any other point not more than three miles beyond said limits, and may provide for enforcing payment of such rates; and for such purposes shall pass by-laws and enforce the same in the manner in which and to the extent to which any municipal by-law passed under the authority of this Act may be enforced. 55 V. c. 42, s. 436 (1).

These powers have been gradually and successively conferred. See the notes infra.

"License and regulate."

(a) "Shall license and regulate"

See note (b) to s. 19, note (a) to s. 329, and note (c) to s. 330. Under s. 329 the right to license includes the right to pass by-laws

(1) For fixing the sums to be paid for a license,

(2) For enforcing payment thereof (a), and

(3) For determining the period during which the license shall be in force.

But, as pointed out by HARRISON, C. J., (b) "There is a great difference between prevention and regulation, and between restraint and regulation." (c) Accordingly, in Reg. v. Levy (d) a by-law of a Board of Police Commissioners that "no keeper of a second-hand store and junk store shall receive, purchase or exchange any goods, articles or things from any person who appears to be under the age of eighteen years," was set aside as ultra vires.

"Junk shops."

(b) "Second hand shops and junk stores and shops."

This power was conferred in 1886.(e) "Junk," (from the Latin junceus, a rush or reed), means old cordage or pieces of old cable which when untwisted and picked to pieces forms oakum for filling the seams of ships, (f) and a "junk-shop" has been defined by a South Carolina Court as "a place where odds and ends are purchased or sold." (g) As to licensing junk shops see City of Montreal v. Walker, (h) referred to in note (a) to s. 329 and note (c) to s. 330; as to "regulating" them, Reg. v. Levy, cited in note (a) supra; and as to the powers of the councils of cities and separated towns in reference to junk shops, s. 583 (22) and s. 586 (5).

Owners of livery stables, cabs, etc.

(c) "Owners of livery stables and of horses, cabs, carriages," etc.

towns and for establishing the rates of pay or hire to be taken by the owners or drivers thereof." The Act of 1850 (a) added "and to compel in a summary manner the prompt payment of the lawful pay or hire . . . . by the parties hiring or using the same." The Act of 1858 (b) extended this power to the councils of villages (c); but (as regards cities) it was transferred in 1868 (d) to the Boards of Commissioners of Police. The last clause of this sub-section "and for such purposes shall pass by-laws, etc.," was added in 1869.(e) The whole sub-section was re-cast in 1886 (f) and again amended in 1892 (g) when for the words "used for hire" were substituted the words "regularly used for hire within the said city, whether such owners are resident or non-resident therein."

As to the powers of town and village councils in relation to livery stables and vehicles used for hire, etc., see s. 583 (37) (38); as to the powers of county councils, s. 584; as to the meaning of the word "owner," Reg. v. Seadwell,(h) referred to in note (jj) to s. 583, and as to the extent of the power "to regulate" under this section Reg. v. Verral, (i) referred to more fully in note (dd) to the same section.

In Reg. v. Hiscox, (j) the defendant was convicted in 1878 under a by-law passed by a city council in 1866 of carrying on the business of a livery stable keeper without a license. Held, that the conviction must be quashed.

ARMOUR, C.J., in giving judgment, observed that if the power to legislate on this subject had still continued to be vested in the city council, the by-law would have remained in force notwithstanding the repeal of the Statute under the authority of which it was originally passed, since in each subsequent consolidation of "The Municipal Act" there has been inserted a section preserving existing by-laws.(k)

> "But the effect of . . . taking away from the city council the power to pass by-laws for regulating and licensing the owners of livery stables, and vesting this power in the Board of Commissioners of Police, and of then making it imperative upon the Board to regulate and license the owners of livery stables, and of repealing the legislation inconsistent with the duty so imposed upon them, has been to render the by-law of no further force or effect."(l)

Accordingly in Re Kirby, (m) a by-law passed in 1887 by a city council declaring it unlawful for any person to establish or keep a livery stable in the city unless he should first have procured the consent of a majority of the owners and lessees of surrounding property within a certain radius, was held to be ultra vires.

Per WILSON, C.J., at p. 456:

> "I am of opinion the Board of Police [Commissioners] is the body which alone has the power to regulate and license livery stables, etc., that the by-law of the city is one which assumes to regulate them, and cannot be supported. The power to regulate confers upon the Commissioners the power to declare in what locality or localities such stables shall be allowed." (n)

For the form of a by-law licensing livery stables and of a conviction thereunder see Reg. v. Seadwell (o); for a form of license, Reg. v. Gurr (p). Such a license applies only to the premises therein mentioned and does not authorize the licensee to solicit passengers elsewhere, though on the premises owned by him (a).

There was originally no power under this section or s. 329 to impose a license fee upon the driver of an omnibus or other vehicle used for hire (b).

Owners of livery stables, cabs, etc.

A by-law passed under R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, — viz., before the word "regularly" had been inserted in the section by 55 V. c. 43, s. 25 — provided that no person should, without being licensed, "keep or use for hire any wagon, cart or truck," etc. The defendant, a contractor, owned carts which he used in his business. These were employed by him in hauling coal and gas pipes for a gas company, for which he was paid by the hour or day. On motion to quash a conviction of the defendant under the above by-law, it was contended that to "keep or use carts for hire" means "keep carts for hire or use carts kept for hire," but, Held, that the conviction was valid (c).

A Police Commissioners' by-law fixing the rates of fare to be charged for the conveyance of goods, etc., enacted "that no other or higher rate unless varied by agreement, should be collectable." Held, that the by-law was bad (d).

Prohibiting livery stables, etc., except within certain areas.

(2) The Board of Commissioners of Police in any city may pass by-laws defining areas or districts and localities in the city within the limits of which no livery stable or sale or boarding stable, or stable in which horses are to be kept for hire or for express purposes shall be established or maintained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 436 (2); c. 43, s. 25; 56 V. c. 35, s. 11; 59 V. c. 51, s. 9: 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (116).

For the sources of this subsection see the references thereto. See also in note (c) supra, a reference Re Kiely (e), which occasioned its enactment.

(3) The Board of Commissioners of Police in any city shall pass a by-law or by-laws for regulating the hours of labour of persons employed in livery or boarding stables, or as drivers of cabs, carriages or sleighs kept for hire within the said city, and may also pass by-laws for regulating the hours of labour of persons employed by the owners of horses, carts, trucks, omnibuses and other vehicles kept for hire within the said city, and for licensing drivers of cabs within the said city. 60 V. c. 45, s. 52.

Regulating hours of labour.

(d) The first part of this subsection (like the first part of subsection 1) is imperative (f). The latter part is permissive only.

(e) "For licensing drivers of cabs." See Reg. v. Reeves (g); Reg. v. Butler (h), referred to in note (c) supra.

(c) Bootblacks. 55 V. c 42, s. 436 (3).

(f) Added by 51 V. c. 28, s. 17 (1888). The reason for conferring this power is obvious (a). The duty is imperative (b).

(g) "Children." The limits of the age of childhood are undefined by law. The word does not include a person over 21 years of age (c) ; but, on the other hand, it is said to be not synonymous with "minor" or "infant." (d) "It means a young person as distinguished from one supposed to have settled habits and fixed discretion." (e) It is generally restricted to one under the age of puberty, i.e., 14 in males and 12 in females (f). But in R.S.O. c. 262, entitled "An Act to regulate the Immigration into Ontario of certain classes of Children," "child" means a person under 18 years of age (g), and "The Assessment Act" (h) speaks of "children between the ages of five and twenty-one years." The granting or refusing of a license to any person to carry on a particular trade, calling, business or occupation under any of the powers conferred upon the municipal council or Board of Police Commissioners of any municipality by this Act shall be deemed to be in the discretion of the council or Board as the case may be; and the council or Board shall not be bound to state any reason for the granting or the refusing of any such license. 62 V. High Bailiff and Police Force.

High bailiffs.

487. The council of every city shall appoint a high bailiff; but may provide by by-law, that the offices of high bailiff and chief constable shall be held by the same person. 55 V. c. 42, s. 439.

The first clause is taken from the Act of 1849, under which the High Bailiff was to be appointed annually; the rest of the section from 13-14 V. c. 64, Sched. A (17). Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 369; 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 380.

(a) The High Bailiff seems to have been an officer of the Recorder's Court,(a) corresponding to the officer so styled in the (English) County Courts Acts, (b) whose duty it is to attend the Court when sitting, to serve summonses, execute orders, warrants, etc. (c).

(b) If the city council pass a by-law under this section providing that the offices of high bailiff and chief constable shall be held by the same person, the right of appointment would seem to be henceforth vested in the Board of Police Commissioners (d). The city council formerly had power to suspend the High Bailiff (e)

Police force in cities and towns.

The first part of the section is taken from 37 V. c. 16, s. 12 (1874) based upon 22 V. c. 99, s. 376; 29-30 V. c. 54, s. 396; extended to towns having a police magistrate by 36 V. c. 18, s. 339. The last clause (which is quite unnecessary; see s. 1) was inserted in 1893, 56 V. c. 18, s. 440 as an attempt to consolidate part of 44 V. c. 24, s. 23. See 4 V. c. 31, s. 24.

489. The members of the police force in cities and in such towns shall be appointed by and hold their offices at the pleasure of the Board, and shall take and subscribe the following oath:

Appointment of members of police force.

I, A. B., do swear that I will well and truly serve our Sovereign Lady the Queen in the office of Police Constable for the of without favour or affection, malice or ill-will; and that I will, to the best of my power, cause the peace to be kept and preserved, and will prevent all offences against the persons and properties of Her Majesty's subjects; and that while I continue to hold the said office, I will, to the best of my skill and knowledge, faithfully discharge all the duties thereof according to law.

Oath of office.

55 V. c. 42, s. 441.

First clause taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) s. 377, the words "in cities and in such towns" having been inserted in the Revision of 1897 (60 V. c. 3, s. 3). The latter part "and shall take and subscribe the following oath," etc. was added in 1896 by 29-30 V. c. 5, s. 397. The form of oath was as in this section; but with the addition of the words "and that I will not connect myself with, or attend the meetings of any secret society while I am a member of the police force for the said of . So help me God." These words were struck out in 1896 by 31 V. c. 30, s. 41.

See note (a) to s. 321.

(c) "Shall take and subscribe."

See ss. 316, 317.

490. The Board shall, from time to time, make such regulations as they may deem expedient for the government of the force, for preventing neglect or abuse, and for rendering the force efficient in the discharge of all its duties. 55 V. c. 42, s. 442.

491. The constables shall obey all lawful directions of, and shall be subject to the government of the Board; and they shall be charged with the special duties of preserving the peace, preventing robberies and other crimes and offences, and apprehending offenders; and shall have generally all the powers and privileges, and be liable to all the duties and responsibilities, which belong by law to constables duly appointed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 443; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. Duties of constables.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99,) s. 379, the words "crimes and offences" (in line 4) having been substituted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A (78) for the words "felonies and misdemeanours." See "The Criminal Code, 1892," Art. 535.

Sec. 491.

Note (a).

(a) Under "The Criminal Code, 1892," (a) every police officer, police constable, constable, or other person employed for the preservation and maintainance of the public peace, etc., is a "peace officer" within the meaning of the Code (b).

Article 552 (7), provides that,

Power to arrest without warrant.

> "Any peace officer may, without a warrant, take into custody any person whom he finds loitering in any highway, yard or other place during the night, [i. e. from 9 p. m. to 6 a. m.] (c) and whom he has good cause to suspect of having committed, or being about to commit any indictable offence, and may detain such person until he can be brought before a justice of the peace, to be dealt with according to law.
> No person who has been so apprehended shall be detained after noon of the following day without being brought before a Justice of the Peace."

Article 28 provides that a peace officer is justified in making such an arrest.

Article 552 (3) enacts that a peace officer may arrest without warrant any one whom he finds committing any offence against the Act, and Article 27 that he shall be justified in arresting without warrant any one whom he finds committing "any offence."

"The Indian Act," (d) provides that any constable or peace officer may arrest without warrant any person or Indian found gambling or drunk or with intoxicating liquor in his possession on any part of a Reserve, and may detain him until he can be brought before a Justice of the Peace.

Under "The Animal Contagious Diseases Act" (e):—

> "Any constable may without warrant apprehend any person found committing an offence against the provisions of the Act with respect to infected places," but such person shall not be detained in custody longer than 24 hours without the order of a Justice.

The words "found committing" used in the above Articles mean either that the person was actually seen committing the offence (f) or was pursued immediately or continuously after he had been seen committing it (g).

"Immediately" means immediately after commission of the offence, not immediately after the discovery of its commission. A pursuit after an interval of three hours would not be considered a fresh pursuit (h), and two hours has been held too long (i).

Article 22 of the Code provides that :—

> "Every peace officer who, on reasonable and probable grounds, believes that an offence for which the offender may be arrested without warrant has been committed, whether it has been committed or not, and who, on reasonable and probable grounds, believes that any person has committed that offence, is justified in arresting such person without warrant, whether such person is guilty or not." (i) Reg. v. Walker, 23 C. L. J. N. S. 123 (1887).

(j) This Article not only protects the peace officer from civil or criminal proceedings (under the circumstances mentioned), but it also authorizes the arrest and makes it lawful; Reg. v. Clouthier, 12 Man. Rep. 183 (1898).

Sec. 491.

Note (a).

Power to arrest without warrant.

And Article 25 that,—

In order to justify an arrest under these sections the belief must be based on reasonable and probable grounds, i.e., on such grounds as would lead any reasonable person, acting without bias or prejudice, to believe the person guilty of the offence. (a) But in Malcolm v. Perth Mutual Fire Ins. Co. (b) a finding (warranted by the evidence) that the defendant's officers, who had laid the information upon which the plaintiff was arrested for arson, believed it to be true, was held by ROSE, J. to negative the absence (in other words to establish the existence) of reasonable and probable cause; and the action (for malicious prosecution) was accordingly dismissed with costs, although the jury further found that the defendant's officers in laying the information did not act upon their belief in the plaintiff's guilt, but were act[illegible]d by improper motives. This judgment was affirmed by a Divisional Court.

The offence must be one for which the offender, if guilty, might be arrested without warrant. Driving an omnibus for hire without a license contrary to a Police Commissioners' by-law passed under s. 484 (1) does not justify the arrest of the offender, without warrant, although the officer who arrested a person in the act of infringing a by-law, may have believed that he was acting legally and in the discharge of his official duty. (d) In Jordan v. McDonald, (e) the defendant, a police officer of and within the Town of Windsor in the County of Hants, N.S., holding a warrant (not indorsed for service out of the jurisdiction) for the arrest of the plaintiff for unlawfully wounding a police officer at Windsor, arrested him at Halifax which is in another county. Held, that he could justify the arrest by showing that he was then aware that the plaintiff was guilty of the offence charged, and that the question whether the arrest was in fact made under the warrant or under Article 25 of the Code should have been submitted to the jury.

Assisting constable in making an arrest.

Article 23 provides that :—

> "Every one called upon to assist a peace officer in the arrest of a person suspected of having committed such an offence as last aforesaid (i.e., an offence for which the offender may be arrested without a warrant) is justified in assisting, if he knows that the person calling on him for assistance is a peace officer and does not know that there is no reasonable grounds (sic) for the suspicion."

And by Article 142,—

> "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence . . . . who, having reasonable notice that he is required to assist any magistrate or peace officer in the execution of his duty in arresting any person or in preserving the peace, without reasonable excuse omits to do so." (f)

Under Article 29,—

> "Every one is protected from criminal responsibility for arresting without warrant any person whom he on reasonable and probable ground, believes to have committed an offence and to be escaping from and to be freshly pursued by those whom he on reasonable and probable grounds, believes to have lawful authority to arrest that person for such offence." Sec. 491.

Note (a).

Using force to effect arrest or prevent escape.

Articles 31 and 33 provide that:—

"Every one justified or protected from criminal responsibility in executing any sentence, warrant or process, or in making any arrest, and every one lawfully assisting him, is justified or protected from criminal responsibility (as the case may be), in using such force as may be necessary to overcome any force used in resisting such execution or arrest, unless the sentence, process or warrant can be executed, or the arrest effected by reasonable means in a less violent manner." (a)

And

"Every peace officer proceeding lawfully to arrest, with or without warrant, any person for any offence for which the offender may be arrested without warrant, and every one lawfully assisting in such arrest, is justified, if the person to be arrested takes to flight to avoid arrest, in using such force as may be necessary to prevent his escape by such flight, unless such escape can be prevented by reasonable means in a less violent manner." (b)

But the protection of these sections does not extend to a case in which the force used is unnecessary and unreasonable, (c) where a constable who without necessity or justification handcuffed a prisoner, was held liable in trespass.(d) A constable is entitled upon the lawful arrest of a person charged with crime to take and detain any property found upon the prisoner, which will form material evidence for the prosecution.(e)

Breaches of the peace.

As to breaches of the peace, Articles 38 and 39 provide that—

"Everyone who witnesses a breach of the peace is justified in interfering to prevent its continuance or renewal, and may detain any person committing or about to join in or renew such breach of the peace, in order to give him into the custody of a peace officer; provided that the person interfering uses no more force than is reasonably necessary for preventing the continuance or renewal of such breach of the peace, or than is reasonably proportioned to the danger to be apprehended from the continuance or renewal of such breach of the peace." (f)

(2) "Every peace officer is justified in receiving into custody any person given into his charge as having been a party to a breach of the peace by one who has, or whom such peace officer, upon reasonable and probable grounds, believes to have, witnessed such breach of the peace." (g)

Arrests under warrant.

As to arrests under warrant,—it is, under Section 32 of the Code, the duty of every one executing any process or warrant to have it with him, and to produce it if required.(h)

and

"It is the duty of every one arresting another, whether with or without warrant, to give notice, where practicable, of the process or warrant under which he acts, or of the cause of the arrest." (i)

"A failure to fulfil either of the two duties last mentioned shall not of itself deprive the person executing the process or warrant, or his assistants or the person arresting, of protection from criminal responsibility, but shall be relevant to the inquiry whether the process or warrant might not have been executed, or the arrest effected, by reasonable means in a less violent manner." Sec. 491.

Note (a).

Arrests under warrant.

Provided the requirements of Article 32 of the Code are complied with, a warrant of commitment, valid on its face and issued by a magistrate or magistrates having jurisdiction over the offence, protects a constable executing it from civil as well as criminal responsibility, though the warrant itself may be irregular.(a)

It is (in effect) provided by the Imperial Statute of 24 Geo. II c. 44 (1751), s. 6—which is in force in this Province by virtue of the Provincial Act 32 Geo. III. c. 1 (1792)—that "No action shall be brought against any constable . . . or against any person . . . acting by his order and in his aid for anything done in obedience to any warrant under the hand and seal of any Justice of the Peace until a written and signed demand has been served or left at the usual place of abode of the defendant by the party . . . intending to bring such action or by his attorney . . . for the perusal and copy of the warrant"; and also that if the action is brought jointly against the Justice of the Peace and the constable or person so aiding him, the jury shall, on proof of the warrant, give a verdict for the constable.

> "This provision was made for the protection of constables acting in obedience to a warrant issued by a Justice of the Peace without authority."(b)

The section does not apply where the constable had no warrant, (c) or where, having a warrant, he has not acted strictly in obedience to it.(d)

It seems that a constable executing a warrant of commitment issued on default of payment of a fine and costs has no authority to receive the fine and costs and discharge the prisoner.(e)

When police constable may take bail.

When officers in charge of police station may take bail.

R. S. O. c. 100, entitled "An Act to authorize Police Constables to take bail," and applying only to cities, provides that:

> 1. Where a person charged with an offence against any Statute of the Province of Ontario, or against any by-law passed under any such Statute, is taken into custody either with or without the warrant of a Justice of the Peace and is brought into a police station in a city at any time during the day or night, the police officer in charge of the station may, if he thinks the case a proper one, take bail without fee from such person, by recognizance conditioned for his appearance for examination within two days before the Police Magistrate or other Justice in the city at the time and place therein specified. 59 V. c. 27, s. 1.

Effect of recognizance so taken.

> 2. A recognizance so taken shall be of equal obligation on the parties entering into the same, and liable to the same proceedings for the estreating thereof as if taken before a Justice of the Peace. 59 V. c. 27, s. 2.

Entry of recognizance by person taking same.

> 3. The said police officer shall enter in a book the name, residence and occupation of the person entering into the recognizance, and of his surety or sureties, if any, with the condition of the recognizance, and the sums acknowledged, and a proper book shall be kept in every city police station for the purpose of making such entries. 59 V. c. 27, s. 3.

Return of recognizance to Magistrate on day for appearance of recognizor

> 4. The said police officer shall make a return of all recognizances taken by him to the Police Magistrate (or other Justice present) at the time when, and place where, the person charged is required to appear. 59 V. c. 27, s. 4.

Sec. 492 (1).

Remuneration and contingent expenses.

492—(1) The council shall appropriate and pay such remuneration for and to the respective members of the force, as may be required by the Board of Commissioners of Police; and shall provide and pay for all such offices, watch-houses, watch-boxes, arms, accoutrements, clothing and other necessaries and necessary expenses as the Board may from time to time deem requisite and require for the payment, accommodation, use and maintenance of the force; but this section shall not affect or apply to any city in which, by the special Act of incorporation thereof, provision is made for the appointment, control and management of the police by the council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 444; 58 V. c. 42, s. 16.

The first part of the section is taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 400. The words "and necessary expenses" in lines 5 and 6 and the word "maintenance" in line 8 were inserted in 1895 by 58 V. c. 42, s. 16. The final clause "but this section shall not apply," etc., is an attempt (unnecessarily made in the Revision of 1883) to consolidate with the section a part s. 23 of 44 V. c. 24. See ante under s. 488.

Amount to be fixed by Board of Police Commissioners.

(a) In the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99,) s. 380, by which this provision was first made, the words used were:—

> "The council shall fix and pay a reasonable remuneration to and for the respective members of the force," etc.(a)

Accordingly in Re Prince and City of Toronto, (b)—where the city council had fixed the remuneration of a chief constable at a sum which the Court could not consider so unreasonable as to constitute evidence of an intention to evade the duty imposed by the Legislature, but the Board of Commissioners of Police, thinking it insufficient, had increased the salary by $300—a mandamus to the city requiring them to pay the difference was refused.

Under "The Public Schools Act" (c), municipal councils are required to raise "such sums as may be required by the trustees for school purposes." These sections do not (nor does the present section) require the submission to the council of the estimates according to which the amount stated in the requisition is made up (d).

And Council must provide.

(b) The duty of the council is imperative; "they shall appropriate and pay," . . . . "shall provide and pay." It may be enforced by mandamus (e). But the Board of the Commissioners of Police cannot dictate to the Council the mode in which the money is to be procured (f).

(2) The council may in its discretion appropriate any sum necessary for and may pay for the protection, defence or indemnification of members of the police force in proper cases, where suits or prosecutions are brought against members of the force, and costs are necessarily incurred and damages recovered, and where the Board of Commissioners of Police certify to the council that the case is a proper one for such payment or indemnity. 59 V. c. 51, s. 10.

496. Arrests by constables for alleged breaches of the peace not committed in their presence.

497. In case any person complains to a chief of police or to a constable in a town or city of a breach of the peace having been committed, and in case such officer has reason to believe that a breach of the peace has been committed, though not in his presence, and that there is good reason to apprehend that the arrest of the person charged with committing the same is necessary to prevent his escape, or to prevent a renewal of a breach of the peace, or to prevent immediate violence to person or property, then, if the person complaining gives satisfactory security to the officer that he will, without delay, appear and prosecute the charge before the Police Magistrate or before the Mayor or sitting Justice, the officer may, without warrant, arrest the person charged, in order to his being conveyed as soon as conveniently may be before the Police Magistrate, Mayor or Justice, to be dealt with according to law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 449.

DIVISION IV.—COURT HOUSES, GAOLS, REFORMATORIES AND PLACES OF CORRECTION OR IMPRISONMENT. (SECS. 500-529).

Court Houses and Gaols.

Court houses and gaols.

The Act 32 Geo. III. c. 8—which was passed at the first Session of the First Parliament of Upper Canada (1792)—provided (s. 1) that a gaol and court house should be erected in each and every District throughout the Province. The erection and control of these buildings was at first committed to the District Magistrates "at their General Quarter Sessions assembled," but by "The District Councils Act," (a) the powers and duties of the Quarter Sessions were transferred to the District Councils to be elected under that Act; and by 12 V. c. 79 the District Gaols and Court Houses, etc., were vested in the counties and unions of counties mentioned in the Schedule to the Act. (b). The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may set aside and appropriate Crown lands for the sites of court houses and gaols. (c) Before a provisional county can be erected into a separate municipality it must have procured the necessary land at the county town, and erected thereon the proper buildings for a court house and gaol (d) which must be built according to plans approved by the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities and sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor (e). The Act 61 V. c. 36 (1898) authorizes (under the circumstances therein mentioned) (f) an arrangement by a county council for keeping and maintaining in its county gaol the prisoners committed to the gaol of an adjoining county (s. 1) and the Lieutenant-Governor may by proclamation declare such gaol to be the common gaol of such adjoining county (s. 2).

Lock-up Houses.

Lock-up houses.

The Act 10 & 11 V. c. 41 (1847), reciting that "it is requisite for the safe-keeping of prisoners under examination before magistrates and for the more effectual punishment of disorderly persons and other offenders, that there should be in Upper Canada places, other than the District Gaols, in which such persons may be confined," empowered (s. 2) any District Council, upon the petition of two-thirds of the inhabitant householders of any incorporated town or village, to authorize the expenditure, under the direction of two Justices of the Peace, of a sum not exceeding £100 in the purchase of land and the erection of a lock-up house in such town or village, (s. 3) and to establish a lock-up house in any such town or village containing not less than 100 adult inhabitants and distant at least ten miles from the county town. Every such lock-up house was to be placed in the charge and keeping of a constable specially appointed for that purpose by the Quarter Sessions (s. 3); and s. 5 provided that:

> "It shall be lawful for any Justice of the Peace, residing near any town or village where a lock-up house may have been established, or nearer to the same than to the district town, to authorize by written order the confinement or detention therein of any person or persons who may be charged on oath with having committed any criminal offence, and whom it may be lawful and necessary to detain until such person may be examined and fully committed for trial to the common gaol. as the case may be, so as such confinement or detention shall not exceed the period of two days; and also all persons found in the streets or highways in a state of intoxication, and all persons who may have been convicted of unlawfully desecrating the Sabbath, and generally, all persons convicted, on view of such Justice of the Peace, or on the oath of one or more credible witnesses, of any offence cognizable by the law of Upper Canada, so as such detention or confinement in any of the last mentioned cases shall not exceed the period of twenty-four hours; and to authorize the detention therein of any person committed to the common gaol, until such person can be conveyed to such gaol."

By the Municipal Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81) s. 60 (11), the council of every village was empowered to pass by-laws:

"For establishing, maintaining and regulating one or more public lock-up houses in and for such village for the detention and imprisonment of all persons sentenced to an imprisonment of not more than ten days, under any of the by-laws of such village, and of all other persons lawfully detained in custody for examination before a Justice of the Peace or other competent authority on any charge of having committed any offence against the law or the by-laws of such village, or detained for the purpose of his transmission to any common gaol or house of correction upon commitment or otherwise either for trial or in the execution of any sentence that may have been passed upon him either by a Justice of the Peace or other competent authority in that behalf."

And ss. 71 and 82 gave similar powers to the councils of cities and towns.

The Act of 1850, (13 & 14 V. c. 64), s. 16, provided for the establishment by any county council of a lock-up house in any town, village, or police village within the county, and for payment out of county funds to the constable in charge thereof (who was to be appointed by the Quarter Sessions) of such salary as the county council might deem just and reasonable.

Houses of Industry.

The establishment of Houses of Industry was first authorized in 1837 by 7 Wm. IV. c. 24, which enacted (s. 1) that it should be the duty of the Court of General Quarter Sessions of the Peace in each District, after the presentment of three successive Grand Juries recommending the same, to erect a House of Industry for the reception and employment of the poor and the indigent and of the idle and destitute, and to appoint five Inspectors to manage the same. Registry Offices

Registry offices.

As to Registry Offices—"The Registry Act," (R.S.O. c. 136) provides that

"Whenever any county is separated for judicial purposes from a union of counties, or a new county is formed and set apart for judicial purposes, there shall be a separate Registry Office established therein by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, which office shall be kept in the county town in like manner as in other county towns," (s. 3), and that for the safe-keeping and protection of all books, memorials, duplicates, and other instruments of whatever description, and plans, belonging to the office of Registrar, the council of every county where at any time there are no safe and proper fire-proof offices and vaults provided by the council, or where hereafter any Registry Office is established, shall provide, furnish and maintain, and keep in good repair, a safe and fire-proof Registry Office, fire-proof vaulted, upon a plan and on a site to be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council; and the said council shall keep the said Registry Office furnished with fuel and furniture and in good repair; and towns separated from counties for municipal purposes, and cities in which no separate Registry Offices exist, shall bear a rateable proportion of the expense thereof, based on the assessment of all the municipalities within the jurisdiction of the county. (s. 9.)

A by-law by the council of a union of counties, levying an assessment on one only of the counties for building a registry office therein was quashed (a).

Establishment.

County council may pass by-laws as to county buildings.

(a) As to the acquisition of the land required for these purposes see ss. 501, 524 (1) (2), 534 (1): R.S.O., c. 28, s. 13.

(b) "Every county council." This includes a provisional municipal council (a). In Pim v. County of Ontario, (b) the defendants were held liable for the price of work done in erecting a gaol and court house for a provisional county, although there was no contract under seal (c). But in Silsby v. Village of Dunnville, (d), it is said by BURTON, J. A., at p. 529 that > "Some of the cases referred to in Pim v. County of Ontario have lost much of their weight as authorities since the decision of the Lords Justices of Appeal in Hunt v. Wimbledon Local Board, 4 C.P.D. 48,".

And it is to be noted that the power given by this section is "to pass by-laws," thus implying the possession and use of a corporate seal (e).

It seems that the court house and gaol may only be erected at the county town (f).

(c) "May pass by-laws for erecting." The exercise of the power seems to be discretionary (g).

(d) "Shall keep the same in repair." In order to secure the keeping of gaols and court houses in repair it is provided by ss. 24-26 of "The Prison and Asylum Inspection Act," R. S. O. c. 721 that Liability of municipalities for accidents arising from non-repair of municipal buildings etc.

> "In case an Inspector at any time finds that the common gaol in any county or city in this Province is out of repair—or is or has become unsafe or unfit for the confinement of prisoners, or is not constructed or maintained in conformity with the provisions of the next preceding section, or that the same does not afford sufficient space or room for the number of prisoners usually confined therein—he shall forthwith report the fact to the Lieutenant-Governor, and shall at the same time furnish a copy of such report to the council of the county or city to which such common gaol belongs, and the council shall thereupon appoint a special committee to confer with the Inspector, and to arrange with him as to the repairs, alterations or additions that may be deemed necessary to remedy the defect so reported upon by the Inspector, and to report the same to the council, and in case the Inspector and the committee do not agree upon the repairs, alterations and additions the matter shall then be referred to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to decide between them, which decision shall be reported to the council; and it shall be the duty of the council in either case, by by-law, to order and provide for the making of the repairs, alterations or additions, and for the appropriation of any money that may be required for that purpose, and in default thereof the council may be proceeded against by mandamus issued out of the High Court at the instance and prosecution either of the Attorney-General for Ontario or any private prosecutor, to compel the making by the council of such repairs, alterations or additions, and the council and the members and officers thereof shall be subject to all the process of the Courts for contempt of the orders or process thereof," (s. 24).
> "The Inspector and the special committee of the county or city council shall, in arranging the particulars of the necessary repairs, alterations or additions, as aforesaid, have due regard to the plan of the gaol, and to the ability of the council to meet the expense thereof, and in the case of alterations or additions, shall make the same as few and inexpensive as, in their opinion, the requirements of this Act and of the public service will admit." Note (d).

"The provisions of this Act as to the inspection, construction, and repairing of gaols shall, so far as may be, apply to court houses (s. 20.)

Liability of municipalities for accidents arising from non-repair of municipal buildings.

Under "The District Councils Act," (a) which provided that no District Council should pass a by-law for performing any public work . . . without having first received an estimate of such work prepared or examined and reported upon by the District surveyor, an officer appointed by the warden (b) who was himself appointed by the Crown (c), it was held that the council could not be made liable in damages for an injury resulting in death, occasioned to an individual in walking up the court house steps, which had been allowed to fall into an unsafe and dangerous condition (d). But now, in case of such an accident, the municipal corporation would be liable, (e) the responsibility of the corporation being precisely the same as that of any other property owner (f). In Earle v. City of Victoria, (g) the municipality was held liable for damages caused by a broken wire belonging to the city fire alarm system falling upon the electric wires of a private corporation. But in Lazarus v. City of Toronto, (h) it was held that the defendants, occupants of part of a public building in Toronto and owners of the land upon which it stood, were not liable for injury caused by a fall of snow from the roof, there being no evidence of negligent construction of the house or roof and no by-law regulating the removal of snow. In Schmidt v. Town of Berlin, (i) a municipal corporation, owners of a public park and a building therein, were held not to be liable to a mere licensee for personal injuries sustained owing to the want of repair of the building, knowledge by them of such want of repair not being shewn. (j) Still less would they be liable in the case of a mere volunteer who for his own purposes and without invitation from or notice to the corporation goes upon such premises or into such a building (k).

In McCann v. City of Toronto (l) the facts were as follows:—A fire hall was in course of erection for the defendants by competent contractors. Before it had been taken over by the city, a trap-door in the roof, the construction of which was expressly required by the specifications, was blown off, on account of the want of proper fastenings, and fell, injuring the plaintiff. The contract provided that all work should be done in a good and workmanlike manner, and that the contractors should be responsible "for injury to any person or persons, either workmen or the public, from any cause which might have been prevented by them." Damages were recoverred in an action by the plaintiff against the city, on the findings of the jury that there had been negligence on the part of the city and that the specifications did not stipulate for fastenings. The city (on the same evidence) sought to recover from the contractors, brought in as third-parties defendant on the terms that the findings in the action should be binding on them only as to the amount of damages, and that the question of their liability should be afterwards tried:—Held, that, under the circumstances the corporation could not recover over against the contractors.

Per STREET, J., (p. 652):—

"The corporation have been made liable to pay damages, because the jury have found that they did not stipulate that the work should be done in a safe manner. In now seeking to recover these damages over from the contractors they appear . . . to be confronted by a dilemma from which there seems no escape. If the finding of the jury was right, then the corporation cannot ask that the result of its own negligence should be visited upon the innocent contractors. If, on the other hand, the finding of the jury was wrong (as I think it was), and the accident was due to the negligence of the contractors, then I must hold that the corporation was never liable to the plaintiff at all, that the contractors alone are liable, and therefore that the corporation cannot recover over from them.

"I do not see that the covenant of the contractors . . helps the city . . It is an agreement . . that they and not the corporation shall be responsible to third parties for injuries arising from causes which the contractors might have prevented . . There has been no breach of it, for the contractors have never been asked by any third person to pay damages; and they still remain technically liable to any third person who has been injured by their negligence."

Acquiring land for court houses in cities.

City councils may erect, etc., certain public buildings.

503. The council of any city may erect, preserve, improve and provide for the proper keeping of a court house, gaol, house of correction and house of industry, upon lands being the property of the municipality, and may pass by-laws for all or any of such purposes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 455.

Sec. 504 (1).

Care of Court Houses and Gaols.

Custody of gaols.

Keepers.

504.—(1) The sheriff shall have the care of the county gaol, gaol offices and yard, and gaoler's apartments, and the appointment of the keepers thereof, whose salaries shall be fixed by the county council, subject to the revision or requirement of the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities.

The first part of this subsection is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99). The rest of the subsection—"whose salaries shall be fixed by the county council"—was added in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 358.

(a) Under the Act of 1792 (a), it was provided (s. 14) that the sheriff should appoint and remove the gaoler and keeper of the gaol and court house, and (s. 17) that the salary of the gaoler should be fixed by the General Quarter Sessions. After the jurisdiction of the Quarter Sessions had been transferred (b) to the District Councils, disputes arose as to whether the sheriff or the council had a right to the control of the court house when it was a building separate from the gaol (c). The object of this section and of sections 506 and 507 was to make clear the relative rights of the parties.

So long as there is but one gaol for the City of Toronto and the County of York, the control of such gaol is vested in the Sheriff of the City (d).

The appointment and removal of surgeons of the gaol and other institutions under the charge of any municipality belong to the council thereof (e).

(b) "Whose salaries shall be fixed by the county council subject to the revision or requirement of the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities." It is apparently intended that the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities shall have power under s. 12 of "The Prison and Asylum Inspection Act" (f), to revise the salaries fixed by the County Councils and to require that they shall be such as to enable the Sheriff to secure fit men for the office.

Appointment and dismissal of gaolers.

(2) Every appointment or dismissal of a gaoler shall be subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor. 55 V. c. 42, s. 464.

Added by 43 V. c. 24, s. 27 (1880).

(a) As to cases in which the sheriff may make a temporary appointment of a gaoler, or may himself become ex officio the gaoler, see 61 V. c. 36 (1898), ss. 8-12.

Gaoler to have yearly salary in lieu of all fees, etc.

505. The salary of the gaoler shall be in lieu of all fees, perquisites or impositions of any sort or kind whatever; and no gaoler or officer belonging to the gaol shall demand or receive any fee, perquisite or other payment from any prisoner confined within the gaol or prison. 55 V. c. 42, s. 465.

County council to have care of court house, etc.

dation, fuel, light, stationery and furniture for the Courts of Justice other than the Division Courts, and for the library of the Law Association of the county (such last mentioned accommodation to be provided in the court house), and shall provide proper offices, together with fuel, light, stationery and furniture, for all officers connected with such Courts other than (1) officers of the Maritime Court of Ontario (not being in the County of York) and (2) official assignees. 55 V. c. 42, s. 466; c. 43, s. 26; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Based upon s. 399 of the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), the words of which, after the words "keepers thereof," in line 5, were as follows:

> "and shall from time to time provide all necessary and proper accommodation for the Courts of Justice other than the Division Courts and for all officers connected with such Courts of Justice."

So in the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 419.

The Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 359, defined the duties of the keepers of the court house as above, and added after the word "accommodation" the words "fuel, light and furniture."

The Act 42 V. c. 31, s. 16 (1879), struck out all the words after "Division Courts," and substituted

> "and shall provide proper offices, together with fuel, light and furniture for all officers connected with such Courts other than official assignees."

The words referring to the library of the County Law Association and to the officers of the Maritime Court (as to which latter see foot note (d), p. 548,) were inserted in 1885 by 48 V. c. 39, ss. 11, 13. The word "stationery" was inserted in line 8 by 55 V. c. 43, s. 26, and in line 12 by the Statute Commissioners in the revision of 1897 (60 V. c. 3, s. 3).

(a) "The county council shall have the care of the court house," etc. See note (a) to s. 504.

(b) "Shall provide all necessary and proper accommodation . . . . for the gaol and Courts of Justice." As to the gaol, see 61 V. c. 36, ss. 1 to 7, authorizing an arrangement by which the common gaol of an adjoining county may be substituted for that of a county in which a gaol is no longer required.

> "The court house, from its very name—as well as from the provisions of law requiring the erection of a gaol and court house in every county or union of counties before these can be constituted separate municipal authorities,—is a building devoted to and intended for certain public uses; and the municipal council may be considered as holding this building for and subject to these uses." (a)

"The Judicature Act" (b) provides that

> "The sittings of the High Court for the trial of civil causes, matters and issues in any County may, at the discretion of the Court or of the Judge who is to hold the same, be held in the court house of the county town in which the same are appointed to be held, or in such other place in the county town as the Judge selects, and the Judge shall in all respects have the same authority as a Judge formerly had when sitting at nisi prius in regard to the use of the court house, gaol and other buildings or apartments set apart in the county for the administration of justice."

The (Ontario) Act respecting the Supreme Court of Canada and the Exchequer Court of Canada, (c) s. 3, provides that:

> "In case sittings of the Court of Exchequer of Canada are appointed to be held in any city, town or place in which a court house is situated, the Judge presiding at any such sittings shall have in all respects the same authority as a Judge of the High Court in regard to the use of the court house and other buildings or apartments set apart in the county for the administration of justice."

Note (b).

Use of court house.

"In case sittings of the Maritime Court of Ontario, or of any Judge thereof, are appointed to be held in any city, town or place in which a court house is situated, the Court or Judge shall for all purposes connected with the said Maritime Court and its process, have the same authority as the County Court or a Judge thereof in regard to the use of the court house, gaol and other buildings or apartments set apart in the county for the administration of justice." (a)

"The Ontario Voters' Lists Act," (b) in making provision for the holding of a Court by the County Judge for the revision of the voters' lists, enacts (c) that:

"(1) It shall be the duty of the municipality within which [such] a court is held, to provide some suitable and convenient place, properly furnished, heated and lighted for the holding of the Court, and in case the same is not done the Judge may hold the Court at such other place in the county as he may deem proper: and if the Court is held elsewhere than in the county court house, the proprietor of the building in which it is held may recover from the municipality which should have made such provision the sum of $5 for each and every day during which the building is used for the purposes of the Court;

"(2) Every Court held in the county town shall be held in the county court house, or in such other place in the county town as the Judge may deem proper."

As to Division Court sittings in the court house, it is provided by s. 12 of "The Division Courts Act," (d) that

"The sittings of the Division Court in a county town may be held in the county court house, and in the cases of cities and towns separated from the county, the use of the court house for such purpose may be taken into account in settling the proportion of the charges to be paid by the city or town for the maintenance of the court house."

See ss. 509, 516, as to the adjustment and settlement of the charges referred to in this section.

The right of a police magistrate to use the court room is regulated by R.S.O. c. 87, s. 28, which is as follows:

"Every Police Magistrate shall, whenever he deems that there is occasion therefor, have a right to use any court room or town hall belonging to the county or to any municipality therein (which has no Police Magistrate of its own), for the hearing of cases brought before him; provided the magistrate in so using the court room or town hall shall not interfere with the ordinary use of the court rooms for the other courts, or with the use of the town hall for the purposes for which the same was built."

In Dark v. Municipal Council of Huron and Bruce, (e) a case under the Act of 1849 (f), the plaintiff claimed payment for the use of a room in his hotel as a court room, and proved that the room had been engaged by the Sheriff, and that the Chairman of the Quarter Sessions had signed an order on the District Treasurer for the amount claimed. Held, that these facts established no legal liability on the part of the defendants, and the action was dismissed. (g)

(a) The Legislature apparently overlooked the fact that by 54-55 V. c. 29 (Ca.) s. 23, and by the proclamation of October 10th, 1891, which brought that Statute into effect, the Maritime Court of Ontario was abolished, and the Judge of that Court invested with "all the jurisdiction, powers and authority of a local Judge in Admiralty" within and for "the Toronto Admiralty District," of which District the registrar and marshal of the (former) Maritime Court of Ontario were to be respectively registrar and marshal during the pleasure of the Governor-General in Council. No express statutory provision seems to have been made regarding the accommodation of the Admiralty Court.

(c) "Other than the Division Courts."

Section 11 of "The Division Courts Act" (a) provides that :

Accommodation for Division Court sittings.

"The municipality in which a Division Court is held shall furnish a Court room and other necessary accommodation for holding said Court, not in connection with an hotel.

(2) In case a proper Court room and other necessary accommodation for the holding of the Division Court are not furnished by the municipality in which the Court is held, the Judge may hold the Court in any suitable place in the division, or in any other division of the County in which suitable accommodation is provided ; and the owner, lessee or tenant of the building in which the Court is so held, shall for the use of the building be entitled to receive from the municipality whose duty it was to provide proper accommodation for the Court, the sum of $5 for every day on which the Court is held in the building.

(3) Where a municipality, not being a town or city, furnishes a court room and other necessary accommodation for a Division Court as aforesaid, or pays any owner, lessee or tenant for the use of any building, it shall be entitled to recover from any other municipality wholly or partly within the division for which such Court is held, such reasonable share of the cost of providing accommodation for holding the Court as shall in that behalf be decided and ordered by the Judge of the said Court, to be paid and contributed by the latter municipality, and in every such case the total cost of providing such accommodation for holding the Court shall be deemed to be $5 for every day on which the Court is held."

(d) "Shall provide proper offices for all officers connected with such Courts," etc.

Accommodation for officers of Courts.

This includes the County Attorney and Clerk of the Peace who is "an officer connected with the General Sessions, which is a Court of Justice within the meaning of the Statute." (b). Accordingly it was held in that case, under the corresponding section of the Act of 1866 (c) ; that the plaintiff could maintain an action against the council for breach of duty in not providing necessary and proper accommodation for him as such County Attorney and Clerk of the Peace, and could recover by way of damages the rent paid by him in securing such accommodation elsewhere. (d)

But as to the Clerk of the Division Court there is no such obligation, and money paid by him for office accommodation cannot be recovered from the municipality. (e)

(e) "Fuel, light, stationery and furniture."

"Stationery" includes the articles usually sold by stationers, e.g., paper, pens, ink, pencils, blank books, etc. Even before this word was inserted here by the Statute Commissioners of 1897 it had been held by ROSE, J., (f) that under the word "furniture" is included everything necessary for the furnishing of the offices referred to for the transaction of such business as might properly be there transacted, and (inter alia) stationery and printed forms in use in the Courts. A county council was held not to be liable for the price of curtains, carpets and chairs supplied to a court house upon an order given by the Sheriff on the authority of the magistrates in Quarter Sessions, though the county council, meeting in the court house, had made use of such furniture. Liability of cities and towns separated from counties for erection and maintenance of court house, etc.

509.—(1) Cities and separated towns shall, as parts of their respective counties for judicial purposes, bear and pay their just share or proportion of all charges and expenses from time to time incurred in erecting, building and repairing and maintaining, enlarging or improving the court house and gaol of their respective counties, and of the proper lighting, cleansing and heating thereof, and of providing all necessary and proper accommodation, fuel, light, stationery and furniture for the gaol and Courts of Justice, other than the Division Courts, and for the library of the Law Association of the county and of providing proper offices, together with fuel, light, stationery and furniture for all officers connected with such Courts, where the same are required to be provided by the county council, and all other charges relating to criminal justice, payable by the county in the first instance, except constables' fees and disbursements, and charges connected with coroners' inquests, and such other charges as the counties are entitled to be repaid by the Province. 55 V. c. 42, s. 469 (1), part; c. 43, s. 27; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3; c. 45, s. 9

Interpreters.

"In case the municipal council of any county pass a resolution requesting or approving of the appointment of an official interpreter to act at the Courts held in that county, an appointment may be made accordingly in the same manner, and subject to the same terms and conditions, as provided in regard to shorthand writers by the next section and the said section shall apply as nearly as may be to the official interpreters." (s. 26).

Shorthand writers.

"In case the municipal council of any county or the municipal councils of any county and a city or town united with the county for judicial purposes and not within the jurisdiction of the county council, pass a resolution or resolutions, as the case may be, requesting or approving of the appointment of a shorthand writer to and for the Local Courts of the county, the Lieutenant-Governor may from time to time appoint a person to fill the office of shorthand writer for the said Courts, and such person shall be subject to the direction of the Senior Judge, or, in his absence, to the direction of the Junior Judge, and shall be entitled to such remuneration, either by salary or by fees, or partly by salary and partly by fees, as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may from time to time direct; and if paid by salary only, the fees payable in respect of his duties as a shorthand writer shall go in reduction of his salary, and the balance, if any, shall be paid by the county quarterly, on the first day of January, April, July and October of every year.

(2) The fees, and all matters relating to the duties of the said officer shall be determined and regulated from time to time by the Judges of the said County Court, subject to the approval of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

(3) The city or town aforesaid, shall bear and pay the county for a proper proportion of the salary, and the proportion, in case the city or town and county disagree, shall be determined by arbitration, according to the provisions of "The Municipal Act"; and, subject to such agreement or arbitration, and until and unless the same determines a different proportion, the city or town shall pay to the county one-half, and the county's share shall be one-half of said salary." (s. 27).

Section 27 does not apply to the County of York; but similar provisions relating to that county are contained in s. 28 of the Act.

Purchase of lands and erection of buildings for municipal and judicial purposes.

(3) It shall be lawful for the council of any county and the council of any city or town situate in such county, but separated therefrom for municipal purposes, to enter into any agreement,

(b) For the erection, maintenance, use, management and control of such buildings; and

(c) For fixing or ascertaining the amount which each municipality shall pay or contribute for the purpose aforesaid; and

(d) For the subsequent disposition of such land and buildings, and of any insurance or other moneys that may be received in respect thereof; and to acquire such land as may be necessary for the erection thereon of such buildings; and to pass all such by-laws as may from time to time be necessary for the purchasing of such land, and the carrying out of any such agreement. 55 V. c. 42, s. 469 (2).

Added in 1889 by 52 V. c. 43, s. 27.

When county has paid amount of town's interest in county buildings.

510. Where a city or separated town has before July 1st, 1897, been paid by the county after the separation for its interest in such court house and gaol, or in a house of correction or registry office, and where the city or town has not erected separate buildings, the award may determine what sum (if any) shall be annually paid to the county as the share or contribution of the city or town for or in respect of any enlargement or improvement made by the county after the separation. But no award shall provide for the purchase by the county from a city or town not separated from the county for judicial purposes of the interest of such city or town in such buildings or in the enlargement or improvement thereof. 60 V. c. 3, s. 3; c. 45, s. 10, (469*a*).

This and the two next following sections were added to the Act in 1897, by 60 V. c. 45, s. 10, in order to avoid in future cases certain difficulties which arose in relation to these matters between the City of Chatham (incorporated by 58 V. c. 65) and the County of Kent. See also s. 516 (3) which arose out of the same dispute. Sec. 512 was repealed and re-enacted with a slight verbal alteration by 62 V., (2nd Session) c. 36, s. 39 (2).

When city or town to pay 5 per cent. per annum upon sum received for its interest in the court house, gaol, etc.

511. Where under an agreement or award made before July 1st, 1897, upon the separation of a town from a county for municipal purposes, or under an award made or agreement entered into thereafter between the city or town and the county, the corporation of the county has paid to the corpora-

512. Nothing in sections 510, 511 or 511*a* shall affect any agreement or award in force on July 1st, 1897, or any action or proceeding at law pending on said date; but the said sections shall apply in case of any agreement or award thereafter made between any such county and city or separated town. 60 V. c. 45, s. 10 (469*c*); 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 30 (2).

Pending actions not affected.

See the note to s. 510.

(a) The reference in s. 30 (2) of "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1899," to s. 511*a* is evidently a mistake. Sec. 516 (3) was no doubt intended.

513. The council shall not be liable to pay for any furniture which they are required to provide under the provisions of sections 506 and 509 of this Act, unless the same has been ordered by the council or by some person duly authorized by them so to do. 55 V. c. 42, s. 470.

Liability for furniture for use of county officials.

This section was inserted in 1880 by 43 V. c. 24, s. 12. See 42 V. c. 31, s. 17 (1), and 43 V. c. 24, ss. 10, 11.

514. The corporation of any county, city or town separated from the county, are hereby declared to have, respectively, insurable interests in the court house and gaol of the county, and the furniture thereof, in the proportions in which they shall, for the time being, be liable to contribute towards the erection, building, repairing and maintaining the same, and towards providing necessary accommodation and furniture for the said gaol and Courts of Justice, and for the officers connected with such Courts; and any such corporation may insure its said interest accordingly. 55 V. c. 42, s. 471.

Insurable interests of corporations in certain cases.

Taken from 42 V. c. 13, s. 17 (2), (1879). The amendment of this subsection by 43 V. c. 24, s. 11, seems to have been an error; see 43 V. c. 31, s. 16, and 43 V. c. 24, s. 10.

Matters to be considered in determining compensation.

516.—(1) While a city or town uses the court house, gaol or house of correction of the county, the city or town shall pay to the county such compensation therefor, and for the care and maintenance of prisoners, as may be mutually agreed upon, or settled by arbitration under this Act.

(2) In case of arbitration under this section, in determining the compensation to be paid for the care and maintenance of prisoners confined in the gaol, the arbitrators shall, so far as they deem the same just and reasonable, take into consideration the original cost of the site and erection of gaol buildings, and of repairs and insurance, so far as the same have been borne or sustained by one or other of the municipalities, and they shall also take into consideration the cost of maintaining and supporting the prisoners as well as the salaries of all officers and servants connected therewith; but the provisions of this subsection shall apply only to the determining of the compensation to be paid for the care and maintenance of any such prisoners subsequent to the 1st day of January, 1886. 55 V. c. 42, s. 473.

Settlement of amount payable by city or town for use of court house in certain cases.

(3) Where in any city or town the court house and gaol have been erected at the expense of the county after the separation of such city or town from the county and before the 29th day of March, 1873, and such city or town has not erected separate buildings, in default of any agreement between the city or town and county, the arbitrators shall, in making their award, take into account the use of the court house by the inhabitants of such city or town in common with the inhabitants of the county, and apart from and in addition to any amount payable under this Act for the use of the said buildings by the city or town as a municipal corporation or for municipal purposes, and to the extent of the use of the said buildings by the inhabitants of the said city or town and of the county respectively or by the municipal corporation of the said city or town and the municipal corporation of the county respectively, for any or all purposes jointly or severally as well connected with the general administration of justice of the entire county and city or town as for the separate use for municipal purposes by either the county or the city or town, and in estimating the amount to be paid by the city or town to the county, the arbitrators shall award a proportion of the annual interest upon the cost incurred prior to the said date in the erection of such buildings, which interest shall be computed at the rate of five per centum per annum, and the amount so awarded to be paid by the city or town shall be in addition to the amount payable by such city or town under section 509 and the preceding subsections of this section. 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 30 (1).

Subsection 1 is taken from s. 383 of the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), which is based upon s. 200 of the Act of 1849 (12 V. c. 81). Subsection 2 was added in 1886 by 49 V. c. 37, s. 10; subs. 3 in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 30 (1). See ante s. 510, note and s. 512 note (a).

(a) The word "town" here means a separated town (a). The Act of 1849 (b), provided that Former law.

> "So long as a city or town . . . shall use or continue to use the court house, gaol and house of correction of any county . . . or any of them . . . the municipal corporation of such city or town shall pay to the municipal corporation of such county such annual sum of money as shall be mutually agreed upon between them as a fair compensation for the use of such buildings, or any of them, and in the event of such corporations being unable to agree as to the amount of such compensation, then the same shall be settled by arbitration."

Arbitrators were appointed under that Act by articles of agreement, dated 28th December, 1855, to settle certain differences recited as pending between the City of London and the County of Middlesex, respecting the compensation to be paid by the city to the county for the use of the county court house and gaol, and concerning certain financial matters then depending between the respective municipalities. They awarded, . . . (4) that in future each of the municipalities should pay the expense of all prisoners committed to the county gaol by each of them respectively, and that the portion of such expense incurred by the city should be paid over by them in January of each year; (5) that in future the city should pay to the county one-third of all the incidental expenses connected with the court house and gaol, including repairs and insurance, together with one-third of all expenses connected with the administration of justice not paid by Government, such payment to be made in the month of January in each year; (7) that the award should take effect on the 1st January, 1855, and remain in force until the 1st January, 1860. Held, that the giving to the award a retrospective effect—to the 1st January, 1855, being the time when London was declared a city—was not objectionable, but proper; that the arbitrators had authority to give time for payment; that the limiting the continuance of the award till 1st January, 1860, was inconsistent with the terms of the Act (see now s. 517) and rendered bad the fourth and fifth clauses of the award respecting the court house and gaol; that the fourth clause of the award was also bad, because it authorized a rateable division of the expenses, instead of awarding the payment of an "annual sum;" that the fourth and fifth clauses might be separated from the rest, and the award was set aside as to them only. (c)

Subsection 1 was amended in 1858 (d), by substituting for the words "such annual sum of money," etc., the words "such compensation therefor and for the care and maintenance of prisoners as may be mutually agreed upon or be settled by arbitration under this Act," and was re-enacted in this form in the Act of 1866 (e) as s. 403 thereof.

Up to that time, and subsequently, until the coming into effect of "The Law Reform Act of 1868" (f), there was at least one instance,—viz., that of Note (a) Compensation by city or town for use of court house, gaol, etc., of county.

Toronto,—where a city as such used the court house of a county, of which, for judicial purposes, it formed no part; and its use thereof for such purposes,—viz., by the Recorder's Court, the city Quarter Sessions, etc.,—was intended to be, and was in fact provided for under this section (a). "The Law Reform Act of 1868," however, abolished Recorder's Courts and re-united the city to the county for judicial purposes, whereupon it was held in a second action between the same parties (b), that there was no longer any liability on the part of the city to pay the county for the use of the court house. HAGARTY, C.J., after quoting s. 403 of the Act of 1866 (c), says (p. 517):

> "This expression—("uses the court house," etc.)—must surely mean some user independent of the general user as a county court house some user by the city or town municipality as such. Here the city makes no special user of the court house apart from the county. It can hold no courts of its own. Its user is the same in a larger degree as the user by the village of Newmarket or the town of Yorkville, and unless there be some express provision in the Statute law I do not see how any liability can be created."

In consequence of this decision, such express provision was accordingly made at the next Session of the Legislature by 36 V. c. 48, s. 363, which forms the basis of s. 509 of the present Act.

In Re County of Carleton and City of Ottawa (d), OSLER, J.A. said (p. 414):

> "Speaking of court houses erected before 1873, the Legislature, notwithstanding the decision in County of York v. City of Toronto, have made no provision for ascertaining how cities not judicially separated from their counties can be said to make any user of them qua city, other than as they may happen to do so by holding some city court therein."

And—as to the court houses erected since 1873—he further remarked (pp. 414, 415):

> "I see nothing in the Act which would warrant the arbitrators in making a charge for user based upon cost of site, erection of buildings, etc. The Act of 1873, s. 363 (e), provided for future cases, in which there seems no room to put forward a claim for user by the city of a building to which (though the property of the county) the city contributed its just proportion of the cost of erection, maintenance and repairs, as well as of its equipment."

In consequence of these decisions subs. 3 was added to the Act in the Session of 1899.

(b) As to cases in which a county town (not separated) uses the county gaol as a lock-up house, see s. 521.

(c) "The care and maintenance of prisoners." A large part of the expense of the care and maintenance of prisoners, though payable in the first instance out of county funds, is repaid to the counties by the Provincial Government (f).

It is only as to the residue not so re-payable, that a city or separated town is liable to contribute under this section and s. 509. As to the basis upon which the respective shares of the contributing municipalities should be determined see note (g) to s. 27 and note (e) to this section.

(d) "Such compensation as may be mutually agreed upon." See note (f) to s. 27. It is not necessary that the compensation shall be a fixed annual amount; it may be a proportionate share (g).

As to the matters to be considered in determining the amount of compensation payable for the care and maintenance of prisoners see note (b) supra, note (g) to s. 27 and subsections 2 and 3 of this section.

Compensation by city or town for use of court house, gaol, etc., of county.

Before subs. 3 had been enacted it was suggested by OSLER, J.A., (a) that if the arbitrators in fixing this compensation should "deem it just and reasonable to take into consideration the original cost of the site and erection of the gaol buildings and of repairing and insurance," etc. (as they might have done under subs. 2), compensation for the user of the gaol must be substantially included in the amount of compensation thus arrived at.

In Re City of St. Catharines and County of Lincoln (b) it was suggested by the same learned Judge that in an arbitration between a county and a separated city or town under s. 27 (1) of this Act, the relative population of the two municipalities interested is a safer guide than their relative assessment, in determining the share to be borne by each of expenses connected with the administration of justice; and in Re County of Carleton and City of Ottawa, he says (c)

> "The controlling element must, as it seems to me, be the number of prisoners sent up by the city authorities (s. 502) and perhaps,—though this is very doubtful,—for offences committed in the city."

When the amount of compensation may be reconsidered.

517. In case after the lapse of five years from such compensation having been so agreed upon or awarded, or having been settled by Statute, it appears reasonable to the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, upon the application of either party, that the amount of the compensation should be reconsidered, he may, by an Order in Council, direct that the then existing arrangement shall cease after a time named in the Order; and after such time the councils shall settle anew, by agreement or by arbitration under this Act, the amount to be paid from the time so named in the Order. 55 V. c. 42, s. 474.

Lock-up Houses.

Lock-up houses may be established by county councils.

518. The council of every county may establish and maintain a lock-up house, or lock-up houses, within the county, and may establish and provide for the salary or fees to be paid to the constable to be placed in charge of every such lock-up house; and may direct the payment of the salary out of the funds of the county. 55 V. c. 42, s. 456.

520.—(1) The council of every city, town, township, and village may, by by-law, establish, maintain and regulate lock-up houses for the detention and imprisonment of persons sentenced under any by-law of the council to imprisonment for not more than ten days; and of persons detained for examination on a charge of having committed any offence; and of persons detained for transmission to any common gaol or house of correction, either for trial or in the execution of any sentence; and such councils shall have all the powers and authorities conferred on county councils in relation to lock-up houses. 55 V. c. 42, s. 458.

(5) All the provisions of this Act relating to industrial farms, houses of industry or houses of refuge respectively, shall apply to any such local municipalities and to any industrial farm, house of industry or house of refuge acquired, erected, occupied or maintained thereby as fully as to any other municipality or municipalities in the preceding subsection mentioned, or to any industrial farm, house of industry or house of refuge acquired, owned, erected, occupied or maintained by them, or any of them.

Maintenance of patients sent by local municipalities to house o refuge.

(6) The county council may provide by by-law that each local municipality within the county shall be required to pay a sum not exceeding the rate of one dollar and fifty cents per week for the maintenance and support of each person sent to the house of refuge by or from such local municipality and received therein. 55 V. c. 42, s. 460.

Detention o indigent persons.

(7) The county council may pass by-laws for committing to and detaining at any house of industry, indigent persons, for a period of not more than twelve months; and the warrant under the seal of the corporation of the warden or head of a council passing such by-law shall be sufficient authority to the keeper of such house of industry to detain the person therein mentioned for a period stated in such warrant not to exceed twelve months; but this shall not affect the powers of committal by law conferred on any other person or officer. 58 V. c. 42, s. 17.

This section has been much altered since the establishment of houses of industry by the Quarter Sessions of each District was authorized in 1837 by 7 Wm. IV. c. 24. See the note preceding s. 500, ante, p. 542. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 41 (1) (2);—counties—; ss. 81 (1) (2), 82, 107 (1), 139;—cities and towns—; 22 V. c. 99, s. 393;—counties only. These sections (like the present one) were simply permissive, but the Act of 1860, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 413 made it the duty of every county, city and separated town to establish a house of industry and a house of refuge within two years, i.e., before Aug. 15th, 1868, subject,—in the case of united or contiguous counties having each a population of less than 20,000 inhabitants,—to a proviso similar to that now contained in sub-section 2.

In 1868, however, by 31 V. c. 30, s. 42 the section was again made permissive, the time extended to August 15th, 1870 and sub-section 2 re-cast in its present form. Cf. the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48, s. 355) which omitted the (now unnecessary) time-limit, and is re-enacted without alteration in sub-sections 1 and 2 as they now stand.

Sub-section 3 was added in 1881 by 44 V. c. 24, s. 9; sub-sections 4 and 5 in 1888 by 51 V. c. 28, s. 18; sub-section 6 in 1889 52 V. c. 36, s. 17, and sub-section 7 in 1895 by 58 V. c. 42, s. 17. As to cities and towns see also s. 576 (3-5).

(a) Owing to the manner in which this section has been from time to time amended it has become impossible to state with certainty its precise effect. Apparently, however, it is intended to provide:

(1) That the powers given by sub-sections 1 and 3 may be exercised (a) by the council of any county, city or separated town, or (b) by the councils of any such combination of these as is mentioned in sub-section 2, or (c) by the councils of any two or more municipalities neither of which is a county (s. 2 (9)).

(2) That in the case last mentioned, other local municipalities may become by agreement entitled to joint ownership or occupancy or right of user in any land and buildings held under sub-section 4; but whether this carries with it the right to a share in the management seems to depend upon the terms of the agreement.

(3) It is not clear whether the powers conferred upon county councils in regard to houses of refuge by sub-section 6, and in regard to houses of industry by sub-section 7, are intended to be exercisable in any case where such houses are wholly maintained by local municipalities. Though the wording of sub-section 3 would seem to warrant an affirmative conclusion, it cannot be intended that the county council should have any jurisdiction over property belonging wholly or in part to a city or separated town. (a)

(b) As to Provincial aid towards the establishment of houses of industry or houses of refuge see R. S. O. c. 312, and as to the inspection of such houses by the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities appointed under "The Prison and Asylum Inspection Act," (R. S. O. c. 321) see s. 11 of that Act and ss. 4 and 6 of R. S. O. c. 312. See also R. S. O. c. 311, "An Act respecting Houses of Refuge for Females" and the corresponding Dominion Statute, 57-58 V. c. 60.

(a) See also s. 527 as to industrial farms, houses of industry or houses of refuge maintained by a city or separated town.

Sec. 524 (7).

Inspectors to keep and render accounts of expenses, etc.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99,) s. 396. Cf. 7 Wm. IV. c. 24, s. 5.

(a) The last clause of this section has become a dead letter and might well be repealed.

Justices, etc., may commit certain persons to house of industry, etc.

526.—(1) Any two of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace or of the Inspectors appointed as aforesaid, may, by writing under their hands and seals, commit to the house of industry or of refuge to be employed and governed according to the rules, regulations and orders of the house:

1. All poor and indigent persons who are incapable of supporting themselves,
2. All persons without means of maintaining themselves and able of body to work, and who refuse or neglect to do so,
3. All persons leading a vagrant life, and exercising no ordinary calling or lawful business sufficient to gain or procure an honest living,
4. And all such as spend their time and property in public houses to the neglect of any lawful calling, and
5. Idiots.

46 V. c. 18, s. 479 part; 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 32 (1).

Punishment of refractory inmates.

(2) Every person committed to the house of industry or refuge, if fit and able, shall be kept diligently employed at labour during his confinement therein, and in case any such person is idle, and does not perform such reasonable task or labour as may be assigned, or is stubborn, disobedient, or disorderly, such person shall be punished according to the rules and regulations of the house of industry or refuge in that behalf. 46 V. c. 18, s. 479 part.

Commitments to be approved by or on behalf of county council.

(3) But before any such person is actually received into such house of industry or refuge the commitment shall be approved by the municipality in which such commitment takes place or by a member of the county council in writing. 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 32 (2).

Sub-secs. 1 and 2 are taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) ss. 394, 395. Cf. 7 Wm. IV. c. 24, ss. 3, 4. The words "lewd, dissolute and" which preceded the word "vagrant" in clause 3 of subs. 1, were struck out in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 32 (1), and subs. 3 was added by s. 32 (2) of the same Act.

(a) Sub-secs. 1 and 2—which until 1899 constituted the whole section—were retained (as being within the jurisdiction of the Province) in the consolidation of The Municipal Act in 1873, (a) and also in that of 1877 (b). In the latter they were printed in bourgeois type and noted by the Statute Commissioners in Appendix B. Vol. II, p. 2394 as "Part Dom." (c) They appear in the Act of 1883 (d), but were omitted in the Revision of 1887 and are marked "effete" in Appendix B to Vol. II of R. S. O. 1887, p. 2749. The original section was restored to its former position by the Statute Commissioners of 1897. (e)

(b) 'Subsec. 1, clauses 2-4.' See also s. 527 (2), and for other statutory provision as to the punishment of "loose, idle or disorderly persons or vagrants," Articles 207 and 208 of "The Criminal Code, 1892."

Houses of Correction.

527. The council of every city and town may respectively pass by-laws:

By-laws may be passed establishing workhouses and houses of correction.

1. For erecting and establishing within the city or town or on such industrial farm, or on any ground held by the corporation for public exhibitions, a workhouse or house of correction and for regulating the government thereof.

Who liable to be committed thereto.

2. For providing that the mayor, Police Magistrate, or any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the municipality, may commit and send, with or without hard labour, to the workhouse or house of correction, or to the industrial farm, house of industry, house of refuge, or house for the poor, aged, and infirm, or lock-up, or to any work or service for the municipality as aforesaid, such disorderly persons, drunkards, vagrants, indigent persons, and such description of persons as are set forth or referred to in section 526 and as may by the council be deemed, and by by-law be declared expedient; and such farm, house of correction, house of industry, house of refuge, or house for the poor, aged, or infirm, lock-up house, or ground held as aforesaid, shall, for the purposes in this subsection mentioned, be deemed to be within the municipality and the jurisdiction thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 462 (1, 2).

Subsection 1 is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) s. 397 (1). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 61 (1), 82, 107 (1). Subsection 2 is taken (with some verbal alteration) from 44 V. c. 24, s. 10. Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 397 (2); re-enacted as 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 417 (2), and 36 V. c. 48, s. 357.

(a) "On such industrial farm or on any ground held by the corporation for public exhibitions." See ss. 524, 576 (3).

(b) "Or house for the poor, aged and infirm." This seems to be only another way of describing the buildings already referred to by their proper designations.

(c) "Or to any work or service for the municipality as aforesaid." The reference is to s. 524 (3).

Sec. 527 (2).

Who may be committed to house of correction, etc.

(d) "And such description of persons . . . as may by the council be deemed and by by-law be declared expedient." The language is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99,) s. 397 (2). The discretion originally given to the council was of the widest possible character and is now controlled only by the well known rule that the persons referred to must be of the same class with those more particularly described in the preceding words of the section.

Until houses of correction erected, the common gaols are constituted houses of correction.

528. Until separate houses of correction are erected in the several counties in Ontario, the common gaol in each county respectively shall be a house of correction; and every idle and disorderly person, or rogue and vagabond, and incorrigible rogue, and any other person by law subject to be committed to a house of correction, shall, unless otherwise provided by law, be committed to any such common gaol respectively. 55 V. c. 42, s. 463.

Taken from C. S. U. C., c. 127, s. 11, the original of which is 50 Geo. III, c. 5. First inserted in the Municipal Act as s. 439 of R. S. O. (1877) c. 174.

Inebriate Asylums.

Institutions for reclamation of habitual drunkards.

529. The council of every city having a population of 50,000 or over may pass by-laws:

1. For erecting and establishing within the city an institution for the reclamation and cure of habitual drunkards.

2. For providing that the mayor, Police Magistrate or any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the municipality, may commit or send, with or without hard labour, to the institution for the reclamation and cure of habitual drunkards, such drunkards as are also persons set forth or referred to in section 526 and as may by the council be deemed, and by by-law be declared to be expedient.

Rev. Stat. c. 318, ss. 97-108 to apply.

3. In the event of an institution for the reclamation and cure of habitual drunkards being established in any city, sections 97 to 108, both inclusive, of chapter 318 of the Revised Statutes shall be applicable thereto as if such institution had been named in said Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 462, part; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (80, 81).

Added to the Act in 1888 by 51 V. c. 28, s. 18. The amendments made by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (80, 81) are not of a substantial character.

(a) "Such drunkards as are also persons set forth or referred to in s. 526 and as may by the council be deemed and by by-law declared to be expedient." The philanthropy of the draftsman is more to be commended than his English. The intention apparently is that—under the circumstances which may be specified in the by-law—drunkards who come within the description of classes 2, 3 or 4 of s. 526 (1) may be declared to be habitual drunkards, and liable as such to be sent to an inebriate asylum established under sub-section 1.

(b) "Sections 97 to 108 both inclusive of Chapter 318 of the Revised Statutes," entitled "An Act respecting Private Lunatic Asylums" provide for the admission of commitment to an institution licensed under that Act of any inebriate who voluntarily applies for admission thereto, or of any habitual drunkard, so found to be upon an enquiry by the County Court Judge and committed by order of the Provincial Secretary.

DIVISION V.—BOARD OF AUDIT—CRIMINAL JUSTICE: ETC. (SEC. 530.)

County Boards of Audit.

Previous to the 19th day of December, 1868, the date of the passing of "The Law Reform Act of 1868," (h) all accounts and demands preferred against a county for services and disbursements connected with the administration of justice were required to be audited and passed at a Court of General Quarter Sessions. (i) By 32 V. c. 6, s. 9 (2, 3) and 33 V. c. 8, s. 1, this duty was transferred to a "Board of Audit," composed of the Chairman of the Court of General Sessions of the Peace and two other persons to be appointed by the county council at their first meeting in each year, and of whom not more than one was to be a member of that body.

This is practically the present composition of the County Board of Audit which, under s. 6 of R.S.O. c. 102, is to be composed of the Judge, or Junior Judge, of the County Court, and two other persons appointed annually for that purpose by the county council, not more than one of such persons being a member of the county council for the time being.

The Board is to be convened by the Clerk of the Peace quarterly between the first and fifteenth days of January, April, July and October in each year, and, at the completion, in October, of the audit for the year, is to make a report to the county council of any irregularity in the accounts presented to them, or of any claim made contrary to law or of any other matter which they may consider it desirable to bring under the notice of the council. (j) S. 8 provides that:—

> "Where the accounts of constables preferred against the county for services performed in any local municipality in connection with the arrest and detention of vagrants are deemed unreasonable, or where the arrests appear to have been unnecessary or appear to have been made for the purpose of making fees, the Board of Audit may refuse to certify the accounts for such fees, in whole or in part, or may certify the facts and their opinion thereon to the county council which may, by resolution, refuse payment of such accounts in whole or in part."

See further as to the powers of the Board, ss. 12 and 13 of the Statute.

In 1886 (a) provision was made for relieving the County Boards of Audit of a part of the duties formerly discharged by them. That Act (b) provides that:

"The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may appoint the Local Registrar or Deputy Clerk of the Crown of the county, or some other public officer resident in the county town of the county to be the Auditor of those accounts relating to the administration of justice in the county, for which the Province is liable." (S. 1.)

"Where such an appointment is made it shall not be requisite for the Board of Audit appointed under [R.S.O. c. 102,] to approve or audit any accounts in respect of items set out in the [Tariff of Fees printed ante at pp. 576-572] under any of the following headings, namely:—"Sheriff," "Coroner," "Clerk of the Peace" and "Crier"; nor in respect of the items under the heading of "Constables" where the accounts rendered under these headings are in respect of offences belonging to any of the following classes;

(a) Offences for which the parties charged had been committed or held to bail for trial at the Assizes or General Sessions.

(b) Offences for which the parties charged had been convicted before a Police or Stipendiary Magistrate, under Part LV. of "The Criminal Code, 1892."

Nor in respect of fees to gaol surgeons under the heading "Other Matters" in the said Tariff." (S. 2.)

All other accounts in connection with the administration of civil or criminal justice which are payable out of county funds must still be audited by the Board of Audit.

Section 14 of R. S. O. c. 102, provides that:—

"The treasurer of every county shall, without further authority, pay the amount of the fees which are payable out of county funds, when duly allowed by the Board of Audit, in the following order and in preference to all other charges unless otherwise provided by law—that is to say, after the expenses of levying and collecting and managing the rates and taxes imposed in the county are paid;

1. All sums of money payable to the sheriff, coroner, gaoler, surgeon of the county gaol, or to any other officer or person, for the support, care or safe keeping of the prisoners in the county gaol, or for the repairing and maintaining of the court house or gaol;

2. The accounts of public officers and officers of the Court of General Sessions;

3. All sums of money payable for any other purpose whatever connected with the administration of justice within the county;

4. All other sums of money allowed by the Board of Audit in the order in which the same were allowed.

And sec. 11 of R. S. O. c. 104, authorizes the county treasurer upon the recommendation of the County Judge, without waiting for a meeting of the Board of Audit, to pay 75 per cent. of the amount of a duly certified or verified account by a High or County Constable for services rendered by him.

Landmarks and Monuments.

Placing landmarks and monuments or marking boundaries of concessions, lots, etc.

531.—(1) In case the council of any township, city, town or village adopts a resolution on the application of one-half of the resident land-holders to be affected thereby, or upon its own motion, that it is expedient to place durable monuments at the front or rear of any concession or range or part thereof in the municipality, or at the front or rear angles of the lots therein, the council may apply to the Lieutenant-Governor, in the manner provided for in sections 14, 15 and 16 of The Surveys Act, praying him to cause a survey to be made of such concession or range, or such part thereof, and to cause such monuments to be placed under the authority of the Commissioner of Crown Lands.

R. S. O. c. 181, ss. 14-16.

(2) The person or persons making the survey shall accordingly plant stones or other durable monuments at the front or at the rear of such concession or range, or such part thereof as aforesaid, or at the front and rear angles of every lot therein (as the case may be); and the limits of each lot so ascertained and marked shall be the true limits thereof; and the cost of the survey shall be defrayed in the manner prescribed by the said statute. 55 V. c. 42, s. 491.

Sec. 531 (1). Mode and cost of survey.

Taken from 18 V. c. 83, s. 8 (1855); 22 V. c. 99, c. 258; the words "or upon its own motion" in lines 3 and 4 of sub-s. 1 added in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 380. Cf. 12 V. c. 35, s. 31; C. S. U. C. c. 93, s. 6. See also 12 V. c. 81, s. 30.

(a) "The Surveys Act," (a) provides for the re-survey (b) upon application to the Lieutenant Governor by any township council, of any concession lines or side-road lines not run in the original survey under competent authority or which have become obliterated, and (c) on the application of the council of any township, city, town or village, of any concession, range or block or any part thereof in the municipality; and in either case for the placing of stone, iron or other durable monuments to mark such re-surveyed lines or the front or rear boundaries or angles of the lots in such re-surveyed concession, range or block or part thereof. The expenses incurred in making such surveys, etc., are to be paid by the municipality, (d) and may be levied upon the proprietors of the lands thus re-surveyed in proportion to their respective holdings in the same manner as any sum required for any other purposes authorized by law may be levied. (e)

The resolution of the council should recite the application (if any) of the "land-holders to be affected," should state (in the words of this section) that it is expedient that durable monuments should be placed, etc., specifying the lines to be run or the concessions, ranges or blocks or parts thereof to be re-surveyed, etc., and it should be forwarded to the Commissioner of Crown Lands with a petition from the council to the Lieutenant-Governor, praying him to cause the desired survey to be made and boundaries planted.

Forms of applications by land-holders to the council and of the necessary resolution and petition of that body will be found in Cooper v. Wellbanks, 14 C. P. 364 (1864) and Reg. v. McGregor, 19 C. P. 69 (1868) the latter of which was an application by a county council under C. S. U. C. c. 93, s. 6; 12 V. c. 35, s. 31.

In order to the validity of the survey and to the right of the council to recover the expenses of it from the land-holders affected thereby, it is necessary that the procedure prescribed by this section and ss. 14 and 15 of "The Surveys Act" should be strictly adhered to by the council; (f) and also that the surveyor entrusted with the work should follow the directions contained in "The Surveys Act." (g) as to the mode of survey.

532. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Ascertaining and Establishing Boundaries.

proper application for ascertaining and establishing the boundary lines of the municipality, according to law, in case the same has not been done; and for erecting and providing for the preservation of the durable monuments required to be erected for evidencing the same. 55 V. c. 42, s 489 (56).

Taken from the Act of 18. s, (22 V. c. 99,)s. 259 (1): Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (26) 52, 59, 61, 67, 80, 82, 106, and the Statutes referred to under s. 531.

(a) See note (a) to s. 531 and note (c) to s. 5.

(b) "For providing for the preservation of the durable monumente required to be erected." etc.

"The Criminal Code, 1892," provides that "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to seven years' imprisonment who wilfully pulls down, defaces, alters or removes any mound, land-mark, post or monument, lawfully erected, planted or placed to mark or determine the boundaries of any Province, county, city, town, township, parish or other municipal division;" (a) and

"Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to five years' imprisonment who wilfully defaces, alters or removes any mound, land-mark, post or monument lawfully placed by any land surveyor to mark any limit, boundary or angle of any concession, range, lot or parcel of land.

2. It is not an offence for any land surveyor in his operations to take up such posts or other boundary marks when necessary, if he carefully replaces them as they were before." (b)

The intention of this sub-section of "The Municipal Act" is probably that the duty of caring for the preservation of these lands marks should be entrusted by the by-law to some officer of the municipality (c).

Surveying and Naming Streets.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

For marking the boundaries of and naming streets, etc.

2. For surveying, settling, and marking the boundary lines of all streets, roads, and other public communications, and for giving names thereto, and for affixing such names at the corners thereof, on either public or private property: but no by-law for altering the name of any street, square, road, lane, or other public communication, shall have any force or effect unless passed by a vote in favour thereof of at least three-fourths of the whole council, nor unless and until the by-law has been registered in the registry office of the proper registry division; and the registrar shall be entitled to a fee of $1 for every by-law so registered, and for the necessary entries and certificates in connection therewith.

(b) The Judge, on an application by or on behalf of the municipal council, shall name a day, hour and place for considering the same, and for hearing the advocates of the change, and also any persons who deem themselves aggrieved thereby and desire to be heard, and any other persons as the Judge may think fit.

(c) A copy of the by-law and of the Judge's appointment shall be served on the registrar or deputy registrar of the registry division at least two weeks before the time named, and shall be published once in the Ontario Gazette at least two weeks before the time so named, and at least weekly for four weeks in such other newspaper or newspapers as the Judge directs.

(d) If the Judge approves of the change he shall certify to that effect, and his certificate shall be filed with the by-law in the registry office of the registry division in which the territory lies. The change shall take effect from the date of the registration of the certificate and not before. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (31).

The first clause is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99,) s. 324 (5). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (4). The remainder of the first paragraph was added in 1877 by 40 V. c. 7, Sched. (180), and the words "unless passed by a vote in favour thereof of at least three-fourths of the whole council" were inserted in 1885 by 48 V. c. 39, s. 18. Clauses (a) to (d) inclusive were added in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 26, clause (a) having been since recast into its present form by 54 V. c. 42, s. 20 (1891).

(c) Some limitation of the power of municipal councils in regard to altering the names of streets became necessary in consequence of the frequent and unnecessary changes made by certain councils without any respect for historical associations and to the great inconvenience of those engaged in searching the titles to property (a).

(d) "By a vote of at least three-fourths of the whole council." Cf. ss. 24, 102. It is advisable that some evidence of the fulfilment of this condition should appear either by recital in the by-law itself, or in the certificate attached to the copy for registration. This is not, however, essential to the validity of the by-law (b).

Numbering Houses and Lots.

Numbering houses, etc.

3. For numbering the houses and lots along the streets of the municipality, and for affixing the numbers to the houses, buildings, or other erections along the street, and for charging the owner or occupant of each house or lot with the expense incident to the numbering of the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (29).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) s. 290 (43), which applied only to cities and towns; extended to villages by the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51,) s. 296 (48).

houses and lots numbered thereon respectively, and for entering therein, (and every such council is hereby required to enter therein) a division of the streets with boundaries and distances for public inspection. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496, (30).

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 290 (14) which applied only to cities and towns; extended to villages by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (49).

(e) The directions of this section are imperative. The object, no doubt, is "to insure the avoidance of the inconvenience of having several streets of the same name, or several houses in the same street or place bearing the same number." (a)

533. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Census.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Local census.

1. For taking a census of the inhabitants, or of the resident male freeholders and tenants in the municipality. 55 V c. 42, s. 479 (13); 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 242 (5), the word "tenants" being substituted for "householders." See s. 2 (7).

(a) See also s. 20, giving the council of a town or village power to pass a by-law for taking a census of the municipality (b). A census of Canada was required by s. 8 of "The British North America Act, 1867," to be taken in 1871 and in every tenth year thereafter. Provision therefor is now made by R.S.Ca. c. 58, s. 2.

Mortuary Statistics.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

Bills of mortality.

2. For directing the keeping and returning of bills of mortality; and for imposing penalties on persons guilty of default 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (8).

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (30). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 60 (15), 61, 67, 80, 82, 106.

(b) "Bills of mortality" are returns of the deaths which occur within a certain district. Such returns were first required in London in 1592, after a visitation of the plague, the object of their publication being to check exaggerated returns, and also to warn those who could conveniently do so to leave London when the pestilence became more fatal than usual. In Ontario these statistics are now secured by the "Act respecting the Registration of Births, Marriages and Deaths" (c).

Obtaining Property.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages:—

1. For obtaining such real and personal property as may be required for the use of the corporation; and for erecting, improving and maintaining a hall, and any other houses and buildings required by and being upon the land of the corporation; and for disposing of such property when no longer required. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479, (1).

Obtaining property, real and personal, etc.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99,) s. 242 (1). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (1), townships; s. 41 (1), counties; ss. 52, 59, villages; ss. 61, 67, 80, towns; ss. 82, 106, cities.

(a) The words "obtaining" used here and in s. 587 (1), and "acquiring" in subs. 2 and 3, in sections 524, 576 (3) and elsewhere throughout the Act, do not seem to confer the power of taking land compulsorily. When it is intended to confer such power apt words therefor are employed (a).

As to personal property, a corporation not expressly restricted therefrom may acquire, hold and deal with personal property required for corporation purposes in like manner as an ordinary individual (b). But as to real property the case is otherwise, for the Statutes of Mortmain, restricting the right of corporations to hold lands and tenements without authority of Parliament or due license for that purpose (c), are in force in this Province (d), and municipal corporations are within their operation (e). A conveyance of lands to a corporation not authorized to hold lands is, therefore, voidable, and such lands may be forfeited, but only by the Crown (f). The real property which may be acquired by a municipal corporation under this section is only such as is "required for the use of the corporation," i.e., such as it is expressly authorized to hold and use for corporate purposes (g). The words "for the use of" do not mean "for the benefit of," and a municipality cannot pass a by-law to raise money for the purchase of land to be presented to the Dominion Government for the site of a post office and custom house (h).

In Township of Oxford v. Bailey (i), a municipal corporation, having invested surplus clergy reserve moneys on mortgage, was held to be entitled to a decree of foreclosure, and not to be restricted to a sale of the property, notwithstanding the Statutes of Mortmain; but in that case the investment had been expressly validated by the Act 27 V. c. 17, s. 2.

In Town of Belleville v. Judd (j), the plaintiffs, having taken a mortgage for $500 to secure a balance of corporation moneys due them by a defaulting treasurer, sued the mortgagor upon his covenant to pay that amount. It was pleaded that being a corporation they had no power to take the mortgage and could not, therefore, recover; but the Court held that the question of the plaintiffs' power to take a conveyance of land did not arise upon the pleadings, and that the action being one upon a covenant to pay an indebtedness which arose in the course of the legitimate business of the corporation, they were entitled to recover.

Obtaining property for corporate purposes.

In Brown v. McNab (a), where a mortgage had been executed to a municipal corporation under similar circumstances (viz., to secure a debt due by a defaulting treasurer), and, by mutual mistake, a part of the land intended to be mortgaged was omitted from the description of the parcels, it was Held, that although a private person would have been entitled to a decree rectifying the conveyance, the plaintiffs, being a municipal corporation, were within the Statutes of Mortmain, and were, therefore, not so entitled. The earlier cases of Township of Orford v. Bailey and Town of Belleville v. Judd are referred to and distinguished by STRAGE, C. (b).

Erecting buildings.

(b) "And for erecting, improving and maintaining a hall," etc. See also ss. 500, 503, 509 (b), 518, 524, 527, 529, 576 (4), etc.

A contract by which a private person agrees with a municipality to put up a saw mill on his own land is apparently ultra vires of the corporation. (c)

As to the responsibility of municipal corporations for accidents arising from negligence in the management of land and buildings held by them under their corporate powers, see the authorities collected ante in note (d) to s. 500.

Disposing of real property.

(c) "And for disposing of such property when no longer required." A township council may dispose of a town hall and the site upon which it stands when they consider that a new town hall in another situation would be more convenient for the public. (d) And the Court has no power to interfere with the discretion of a municipal council as to the advisability of disposing of a site purchased for a town hall, etc., and acquiring a new site therefor, it not being shewn that persons have purchased lands on the faith of the dedication of the site first purchased or that any corrupt or selfish motives influenced the council in making the change. (e) Express authority is given for the sale of lands acquired by local municipalities for the erection of powder magazines thereon (f) or for industrial farms, or park or exhibition grounds. (g)

But if the land has been conveyed to the municipal corporation as to constitute them trustees thereof for the public, they cannot without statutory authority, alienate it even for another public purpose. An attempt to do so will be restrained by injunction, and if the land has been actually alienated, a reconveyance will be ordered. (h) In City of Hamilton v. Morrison (i) it was held that no part of a block of land conveyed to the plaintiffs "for the purposes of a public market" could be dedicated by them for a highway. As to land dedicated for public parks, see s. 576, and as to land dedicated for streets, squares, etc., s. 637 (1) and notes thereto.

Acquiring Lands outside the limits for public purposes.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Acquiring land outside of municipality.

2 For acquiring and holding by purchase or otherwise, for the public use of the municipality, lands situate outside the limits of the municipality; but such lands so acquired shall not form part of the municipality, but shall continue and remain as of the municipality where situate; and all by-laws passed by township councils for the purpose of acquiring land as provided by this subsection, are hereby declared as legal and binding where the by-laws have not been contested or impeached before the 23rd day of April, 1887, as if the lands were within the limits of the municipality the council of which passed the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (57).

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 25 (39) (1887). A similar enactment, 40 V. c. 25 (1877), applying only to cities, towns and villages and ending at the words "where situate," was repealed by 50 V. c. 25, s. 27.

(c) It is not easy to see why the by-laws of a corporation which has thus acquired land "for the public purposes of the municipality" should not apply thereto (a) as they do to land acquired by cities and towns for an industrial farm or for exhibition purposes (b) by townships, cities, towns and villages for cemetery purposes (c), and as the by-laws of the Board of Park Management of any municipality apply (d) to lands acquired for parks, although these may be outside the limits of the municipality to which they belong. (e)

Town Halls.

By the councils of townships:—

Acquiring land for a town hall in a town or village.

3. For acquiring lands in any town or village within or partly within the original boundaries of the township, for the purpose of erecting thereon a town hall, or for renting or acquiring a hall, within such town or village, for the purpose of a town hall.

Township and other meetings may be held and notices posted at such hall.

(a) Any township owning, renting or otherwise acquiring a town hall in any such town or village may hold at such town hall any meeting, nomination or election, or may post at such town hall any notice, assessment roll, or voters' list, or may do thereat any other act required by law to be held, posted or done in the township at the town hall; and any meeting of any mutual insurance company, or upon the formation thereof, which is required by any statute to be held in the municipality, may lawfully be held in such hall. 55 V. c. 42, s. 521 (9) (10).

Taken from 42 V. c. 31, ss. 29, 30 (1879).

(d) The formation of mutual insurance companies was formerly a quasi-municipal matter (f). The company was styled "The Mutual Fire Insurance Company of the [District or] Municipality of ——" (g), and certain of its meetings were required by Statute to be held within the municipality (h), but this is now no longer necessary (i).

DIVISION II.—MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS. (Secs. 535-536).

Disqualification of electors for not paying taxes. Sec. 535 (1)
Polling subdivisions. Sec. 535 (2), 536.

535. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:—

Disqualification of Electors not Paying Taxes.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Disqualifying electors in arrear for taxes.

(1) For disqualifying any elector from voting at municipal elections who has not on or before the 14th day of December next preceding the election paid all municipal taxes due by him. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (2).

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 379 (2).

(a) Income voters (s. 86) (3) whose names appear on the return to be made to the clerk under s. 137 (1) as not having paid their taxes by December 14th are ipso facto disqualified from voting (a); all other voters whose names appear upon such return are so disqualified if the council of the local municipality in which they are assessed has passed a by-law under this sub-section. (b)

Polling Subdivisions.

Dividing townships and villages and wards of cities or towns into polling subdivisions.

(2) For dividing the wards of the city or town, or for dividing the township or village into two or more convenient polling subdivisions, and for establishing polling places therein; and for repealing or varying the same from time to time.

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 18), s. 379 (1); 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (1). Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 268 (townships); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 278; 32 V. c. 21, s. 25.

(b) This is obligatory. See s. 536 and s. 16 (2) of "The Election Act," (c).

Boundaries of polling subdivisions, etc.

Based upon "The Election Law of 1868" (32 V. c. 21), s. 25, which was extended to villages by 33 V. c. 4, s. 1 (1869).

Alteration of subdivisions.

(2) Where a municipality embraces parts of two or more electoral districts, a polling subdivision shall only include territory in one electoral district. 60 V. c. 15, Sched. A (48).

(a) S. 88.

(b) See ss. 88, 137, 151 (2), 152, 154, 292 and 295 (5).

(c) R.S.O. c. 9.

Sec. 536 (3-8).

When to be made.

(3) Any alteration of existing polling subdivisions, or creation of new polling subdivisions, shall be made before the publication of the voters' lists. 55 V. c. 3, s. 8 (3).

Taken from "The Election Amendment Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 2, s. 2 (3). Cf. 32 V. c. 21, s. 25 (1869) last clause.

(a) "Before the publication of the voters' lists." The time allowed for the publication of the voters' lists under R.S.O. c. 7 is, in municipalities to which Part I. of that Act applies, (a) forty days in cities, and in other municipalities 30 days, after the final revision and correction of the assessment roll of the municipality (b); in cities coming under the operation of Part II. fifteen days after the revision of the roll for any ward or sub-division of a ward (c). As to the date on which the assessment roll is to be considered as finally revised, see s. 3 of this Act.

Duty of clerk.

(4) For the purpose of enabling the council to make the required alterations, the clerk of the municipality, as soon as he finds that the number of qualified voters in a subdivision exceeds 200, shall call the attention of the council to the fact. 55 V. c. 3, s, 8 (8).

Taken from 46 V. c. 2, s. 2 (4), (1883).

If not made before voters lists published.

Taken from 46 V. c. 2, s. 2 (5), (1883).

New subdivision to be made when necessary.

(6) Whenever the number of qualified voters in a polling subdivision increases so as to exceed 200 or whenever the municipal council consider that the convenience of the electors would be promoted by a new and different subdivision, the city, town, ward, township or village, shall be again in like manner divided into polling subdivisions so as to conform to the intent and meaning of this Act, and so again, from time to time, as like occasion shall require. 55 V. c. 3, s. 9.

Taken from s. 26 (1) of "The Election Law of 1868"; (32 V. c. 21).

Subdivisions to be based on assessment roll.

(7) Every division made under this section shall be based upon the then last revised and corrected assessment roll of the city, town, ward, township, or village. 55 V. c. 3, s. 10.

Founded upon ss. 25 and 26 of 32 V. c 21.

(b) "Shall be based upon the . . . assessment roll." Since the division is to be made before the voters' lists are published (d), the assessment roll must furnish the information required. It is not, however, the number of persons assessed, but the number of those entitled to be entered upon the voters' lists which in reality forms the basis of subdivision.

Appeal.

(8) At any time within two months after the filing of the by-law, an appeal shall lie from any subdivision, at the instance of five of the electors, to the Judge of the County Court, who shall promptly correct the division so as to conform to the true intent and meaning of this Act. 55 V. c. 3, s. 11.

Taken from 32 V. c. 21, s. 26 (1), last clause.

(a) S. 5. (b) S. 8. (c) 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 3, s. 3. (d) Subs. 3.

Sec. 536 (8-10).

(c) "After the filing of the by-law." See sub-s. 9.

Appeal as to polling subdivisions.

(d) No procedure on such an appeal has been prescribed. A notice of a motion, signed by or on behalf of any five persons entitled to vote either at municipal elections or at elections to the Legislative Assembly, and specifying the grounds of objection to the by-law should be served upon the municipal corporation, and an affidavit filed verifying these grounds and showing the status of the applicants. The affidavit and notice and the order of the Judge may be entitled as in an application to quash a by-law (a).

Subdivisions to be numbered.

Taken from 32 V. c. 21, s. 26 (2).

Polling subdivisions to be the same for elections to Legislative Assembly and for municipal elections.

(10) Where a municipality is divided into polling subdivisions, the same polling subdivisions shall be used both for the election of members of the Legislative Assembly and for municipal elections, except that the municipal council of every city, town or village, may by by-law unite, for the purpose of municipal elections, any two adjoining polling subdivisions: and the polling subdivisions for elections to the Legislative Assembly and for municipal elections shall hereafter be made the same in all cases. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (1a); c. 3, s. 8 (2).

Taken from 40 V. c. 12, ss. 2, 3 (1877).

(e) "The same polling subdivisions shall be used both for the election of members of the Legislative Assembly and for municipal elections."

As to elections for the Legislative Assembly, it is further provided by "The Election Act," (b) that

> "The returning officer shall, on receiving the writ of election, fix one polling place for each subdivision into which a city, town or other local municipality is subdivided, in the most central and convenient place for the electors of such subdivision" (c).
> "A returning officer may in his discretion grant such additional polling places in any polling subdivision as the extent of the subdivision and the remoteness of any body of its voters from the polling place render necessary" (d).
> "In cities, the returning officer may in his discretion unite two or more adjoining polling subdivisions and fix one polling place for the united subdivisions; provided always that such united polling subdivision shall not contain more than 200 voters" (e).
> "In case of failure on the part of a municipal council to divide a city, town or other local municipality into polling subdivisions proportioned to the number of electors, as provided by The Municipal Act, or in case the time to appeal from the division should not have expired before the receipt of the writ, the returning officer shall provide as many polling places for polling the votes of the electors in the city, town or other local municipality, as shall correspond (as nearly as may be), with the number of polling places which would have been required if the city, town or other local municipality had been subdivided into the proper number of polling subdivisions" (f).

(a) See s. 378, note (j). (b) R. S. O. c. 9. (c) S. 43 (1).
(d) S. 43 (2). (e) S. 43 (3). (f) S. 18.

and by the amending Act of 61 V. c. 5, s. 4, that

"In cities the returning officers shall provide suitable polling places, but shall before so doing, when practicable, confer with the city clerk or treasurer; and the expense thereof, not including six dollars for each polling place, shall be paid by the treasurer of the city on the order of the returning officer."

In certain cases clerk may choose polling place.

(11) Where a polling place has been fixed by by-law for the holding of any election, or for the taking of any vote in any township, city, town or village, and it is afterwards found that the building named as such polling place cannot be obtained, or is unsuitable for the purpose, the clerk of the municipality may choose in lieu thereof as a polling place the nearest available building suitable for the purpose, and he shall post up, and keep posted up, a notice on the building fixed by the by-law, and in two other conspicuous places near by, directing the voters to the place chosen as aforesaid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (1*b*).

Added in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 22; extended to townships by 54 V. c. 42, s. 17 (1891).

Election not to be voided if subdivision is wrongly formed.

(12) An election shall not be irregular or void or voidable for the reason that a polling subdivision which contains more than 200 voters has not been divided, provided it does not contain more than 300 voters. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (1*c*).

Added in 1889 by 52 V. c. 36, s. 23.

(f) As to elections for the Legislative Assembly, it is further provided by "The Election Act," (a) that

"It shall not be necessary for a returning officer to re-divide a polling subdivision, on account of the same containing more than two hundred voters, so long as it does not contain more than three hundred; but if it contains more than three hundred, he shall divide it into two subdivisions. Nothing in this section contained shall be held to relieve the council of a municipality from the duty of making a new division of the municipality or any part thereof into polling subdivisions, or re-dividing a subdivision as often as the number of qualified voters in a polling subdivision exceeds two hundred" (b).

"In case it is necessary for a returning officer to divide a municipality or any part thereof into polling subdivisions, he shall be paid by the treasurer of the municipality a reasonable allowance therefor" (c).

Uniting polling subdivisions in certain cities.

(13) The council of any city having a population of 100,000 or over, may, by by-law, amalgamate for voting at municipal and school trustee elections and upon questions submitted to the electors by the council, two polling subdivisions into one division, with one polling place therefor; and may by such by-law provide that three or less of such polling places shall be in a public school house or public building belonging to or controlled by the municipality in, or conveniently near to, such polling subdivisions.

Payment therefor.

(14) Where any school house is so used, the council shall forthwith pay to the public school board of the city a sufficient sum to cover any damage to the same and any expense for cleaning or otherwise, caused by such use.

(a) R. S. O. c. 9. (b) S. 16. (c) S. 17.

Sec. 537.

Consent of public school board.

(15) No school house shall be so used or taken without the consent of the public school board first had and obtained.

Constable to attend each such polling place.

(16) The Board of Commissioners of Police or the chief of police for the city shall cause a police constable to attend at each such polling place in a school house or public building where an election is being held, to perform the duties required by this Act of a constable appointed for that purpose by the returning officer. 59 V. c. 51, s 14; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (120).

Added by "The Man. Amendment Act of 1896," (59 V. c. 51) s. 14, the words "over 100,000" being altered to "100,000 or over" by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (120).

Division III.—Municipal Officers. (Secs. 537-538).

Officers generally. Sec. 537 (1), (2).
Overseers of highways and pathmasters. Sec. 537, (3).
Inspectors of weeds and thistles. Sec. 537, (4).
Corporation surveyor. Sec. 537, (5).
Fire wardens, etc. Sec. 537, (6).
Engineers—Inspectors of House of Industry—Gaol surgeons. Sec. 538, (7).

537. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Appointing Certain Officers.

Appointing certain officers.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages:—

1. For appointing such—
   Pound-keepers,
   Fence-viewers,
   Overseers of Highways,
   Road Surveyors,
   Road Commissioners,
   Valuators,
   Inspectors of sheep worried or killed by dogs, and other officers as are necessary in the affairs of the corporation, or for carrying into effect the provisions of any Act of the Legislature or any by-law of the corporation; and for the removal of such officers.

Based upon s. 242 of the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99). Cf. the Act of 1849 (12 V. c. 81), s. 31 (5), (townships), s. 41 (6) as amended by 13-14 V. c. 64 Sched. (A) (8) (counties); ss. 52, 59, (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns), and ss. 82, 106, (cities).

(a) The power conferred is to appoint not only the officers named, but "such other officers as are necessary," etc. The list has grown considerably since the Act of 1849, and will continue to increase in length as the matters with which municipal councils have to deal become more numerous. Section 31 (5) of the Act of 1849 expressly directed that the officers therein named should be appointed "under the corporate seal" of the municipality; and since many of these officers have to perform statutory duties the appointment should in every case be made by by-law, as is authorized by this section and required by s. 325.

In British Columbia an appointment by mere resolution is sufficient (a).

(a) See note (a) to s. 321, citing Tuck v. City of Victoria, 2 B.C.R. 179 (1892).

For further provisions relating to the officers specially named in the sub-section see—as to pound-keepers, R.S.O. c. 272,—as to fence viewers, R.S.O. c. 269 (forest fires); c. 272, ss. 20, 22 and 24, (lawful fences); c. 284, "The Line Fences Act";—as to overseers of highways or pathmasters, s. 537 (3); R.S.O. c. 224, ("The Assessment Act,") ss. 109, 110; c. 237, s. 5 (double tracks in snow roads); c. 269 ss. 1, 2 (forest fires); c. 279, ss. 8, 9 (3), 11 (noxious weeds), etc.,—as to road commissioners (in incorporated townships) R.S.O. c. 224, ("The Assessment Act,") ss. 111, 128;—as to valuators (appointed by counties only) s. 310 and R.S.O. c. 224, ss. 87-92.

Officers appointed under "The Municipal Act."

Road surveyors—(formerly appointed by township councils under 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (5), and by county councils under 13-14 V. c. 64, Sched. A (8)—are not elsewhere referred to.

"Inspectors of sheep worried and killed by dogs" were added to the list in 1893 by 56 V. c. 35, s. 12, but are not referred to in R.S.O. c. 271. "The Con. Municipal Act, 1892," also mentions "game inspectors"; but these officers, formerly appointed by the municipalities, (a) are now appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, (b) except such of them as are authorized ex officio to enforce the provisions of "The Ontario Game Protection Act." See s. 24 (2) of that Statute. (c).

"The Ontario Tree Planting Act" (d) provides (e) that the council of any municipality may pass a by-law for paying out of municipal funds a bonus for trees planted under the provisions of the Act, and "such by-law shall provide for the appointment of an inspector of the trees so planted."

Under R.S.O. c. 243.

"The Public Health Act" (f) provides that > "Every municipal council may appoint a medical health officer and a sanitary inspector or inspectors for the municipality,"

Under R.S.O. c. 248.

and (g) that

> "Any county council may appoint one or more county or district medical health officers."

County and township councils may by by-law appoint an officer to enforce the provisions of the "Act to regulate the means of egress from Public Buildings" (h) In cities, towns and villages the enforcement of the Act is the duty of the high bailiff, chief constable or chief of police. (i) Under "The Yellows and Black Knot Act," (j)

Under R.S.O. c. 263.

> "Every municipal council may, and upon a petition of fifteen or more ratepayers shall, appoint at least one inspector to enforce the provisions of the Act in the municipality;"

Under R.S.O. c. 280.

And "The Ditches and Watercourses Act," (k) enacts that > "Every municipal council shall name and appoint by by-law (Form A) one person to be engineer" to carry out the provisions of that Act.

Under R.S.O. c. 285.

As to officers appointed only by certain classes of municipalities, see the remaining sub-sections of this section and the notes thereto.

(b) "And for the removal of such officers." The right to remove is involved in the power to appoint. (l) As to the mode of removal from and tenure of office (unless where otherwise specially provided, as in R.S.O. c. 285, s. 4 (1) and as to the right of the Legislature or the council to impose new duties upon municipal officers, see s. 321 and the notes thereto.

Member of corporation may be appointed.

Remuneration.

(a) Nothing in this Act shall prevent any member of a corporation from acting as commissioner, superintendent or overseer, over any road or work undertaken and carried on, in part or in whole, at the expense of the municipality; and it shall be lawful for the municipality to pay such member of the corporation acting as such commissioner, superintendent or overseer. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (2); 56 V. c. 35, s. 12.

Taken from 31 V. c. 30, s. 25 (1868) which contained the additional words "in the same manner as councillors are paid," omitted in the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 372 (2), and in all the subsequent Acts.

(c). This proviso was substituted in 1868 by 31 V. c. 30, s. 25 for one made two years before by the last clause of 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 246 (2), viz.,—

"No member of the corporation shall be eligible to act as commissioner, superintendent or overseer over any work undertaken and carried on in part or in whole at the expense of the municipality, nor shall any member of a corporation be a valuator." (a)

A—Liability of Municipal Corporations for Acts and Defaults of Agents or Officers.

Sec. 537.

Liability for acts, etc., of officers.

It scarcely requires authority to prove that any one is responsible for a wrongful act which has been done according to his command or request, (a) or which, having been done on his account or for his benefit, (b) he has adopted as his own (c).

But more difficult questions arise when it is sought to make one liable for the act of another which he has not specially authorized, and for which he must be answerable, if at all, by virtue of the relation in which he stands to the doer of the act. The rule governing such cases has been thus expressed in a judgment "which may now be regarded as a classical authority."

> "The master is liable for every such wrong of the servant or agent as is committed in the course of the service and for the master's benefit, though no express command or privity of the master is proved." (d)

There is a wide difference (as to the responsibility of the principal or master) for the wrongful or negligent act of a servant or agent who is "under the control and bound to obey the orders of his master," (e) and for that of an independent contractor, i. e. "one who undertakes to produce a given result, but so that in the actual execution of the work he is not under the order or control of the person for whom he does it, and may use his own discretion in things not specified beforehand." (f)

In the first case—viz.,—where power to control and direct the work is retained—the rule respondeat superior applies; (g) in the latter it does not, (h) unless (a) the contractor is employed to do an unlawful act, (i) or (b) the work contracted for is such that in the natural course of things it will occasion injury unless precautions are taken to prevent this, (j) or (c) the principal is under a legal obligation to do the work properly, (k) or (d) he personally interferes and assumes control. Liability for acts, etc., of officers.

If the evidence is not clear as to whether or not the right of interference has been retained, the onus is on the defendant to make out that he had no control. (a)

2. The act of the servant or agent must be one within the scope of his authority or employment, (b) and must have been done "in the course of his service or employment." (c)

It may be (a) the natural consequence of some thing done with ordinary care in the execution of specific orders (d); or (b) due to the negligence of the servant or agent while engaged about his master's business (e).

> "Not every deviation of the servant from the strict execution of duty, nor every disregard of particular instructions will be such an interruption of the course of employment as to determine or suspend the master's responsibilities. But when there is not merely deviation but a total departure from the course of the master's business, so that the servant may be said to be "on a frolic of his own" (f) the master is no longer answerable." (g)

(c) Or it may be done in the excessive or erroneous execution of a lawful authority,—in which case the rule will not apply unless the servant intended to do on behalf of his master something of a kind which he was in fact authorized to do, and the act, if done in a proper manner, would have been lawful under the circumstances which the doer of it erroneously supposed to exist. (h)

(3) Even where the servant acts wilfully, yet "for the benefit of the master," (i. e., with a view to advancing his interest) the master may be liable if the act was done on his account and for his purposes, (i) and this although the act was done contrary to the master's orders, (j) or is punishable criminally (k).

Sec. 537.

Liability for acts, etc., of officers.

It is said, upon eminent American authority, that (a) "a municipal corporation is not responsible for the unlawful or negligent acts of officers appointed in obedience to an Act of the Legislature to perform public services in which the corporation has no particular interest, and from which it derives no special benefit or advantage in its corporate capacity."

And that "when the duties of an officer are prescribed by law and are independent in their character, and he is not subject to the control and direction of the corporation as to time, place or manner of their discharge, he is a public officer and not in any sense a servant or agent of the corporation." (b)

Accordingly it has been held that a municipal corporation is not liable for a tort committed in the course of the performance of his statutory duties by the medical health officer of a city, appointed by the council under what is now s. 31 of "The Public Health Act," R.S.O. c. 248; (c) nor for an illegal arrest made by a member of a city police force which though paid by the municipality is appointed and controlled by a Board of Police Commissioners. (d) But in the Province of Quebec—where authority is given to the cities of Montreal, Quebec, etc., by special charters, and to every town and village by Art. 668 of the Municipal Code, "to maintain and lodge and clothe a police force in the municipality and to fix the duties of such force"—municipal corporations have been held responsible in damages for the acts or defaults of members of a police force thus appointed and maintained (e) but not for the unauthorized acts of policemen whom the corporation was authorized by a local Act "to appoint, remove and replace" but not to control (f).

The rule which exempts a municipality for the torts of officers appointed to perform a public duty has in the United States been extended to firemen (g) but the reasoning of these cases has not been adopted by our Courts (h).

Upon examination these propositions appear to be no more than a particular application of the rules above stated, for the officers thus appointed are not — in respect of their public (and usually statutory) duties —subject to the direction and control of the municipal council, nor is their authority derived from that source.

Secs. 537-538.

Liability for acts, etc., of officers.

The case of a pathmaster or overseer of highways seems to stand very near the line.

In a recent case the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada thought it open to consideration how far a municipal corporation is responsible for the acts of a statutory officer such as a pathmaster (a) but in earlier cases (b) the liability of the corporation for the torts or negligence of such an officer seems to have been taken for granted, even though there was no evidence of express prior authority (c) or of subsequent ratification by the council (d).

It is submitted that the corporation, being (by s. 606 of this Act) under a statutory obligation to keep its highways in repair, cannot escape liability for the acts or defaults of an officer appointed for the purpose of fulfilling this duty (e).

As to the officers referred to in subsections 4-7, the American rule above quoted would seem to exempt the municipal corporation from liability unless where the officer has acted under direct instructions or the acts done by him on behalf of the corporation have been ratified by the council. Whether there is sufficient evidence of such ratification must be in every case a question of fact.

In Stalker v. Township of Dunwich, (f) the fact that the defendants had kept and maintained the ditch made by the pathmaster, and had refused to alter it in spite of frequent complaints, was held to be an adoption of the act of the officer.

In Kelly v. Barton, and Kelly v. Archibald, (g) it was contended that the defence by the city solicitor, under the authority of a resolution of the council, and at the expense of the municipality, of an action against police constables was sufficient evidence of ratification to render the municipality liable for the trespass complained of; but the Divisional Court held otherwise, (h) and in the Court of Appeal the question was not raised.

By the councils of counties and townships :—

Remuneration to councillors.

1. For paying the members of the council for their attendance in council, or for paying any member while attending on committee of the council, at a rate not exceeding $3 per diem, and five cents per mile necessarily travelled (to and from), for such attendance. 55 V. c. 42, s. 231.

Until 1858, (22 V. c. 99, s. 262), only county councillors were paid for attendance (cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 41 (6); 16 V. c. 181, s. 9 (4). The Act of 1858 authorized an allowance to both county and township councillors at the rate of $1.50 for each day's attendance at meetings of the council. This was increased by the Act of 1866 to $2 a day and five cents per mile for travelling expenses, (29-30 V. c. 51, s. 271); the provision as to meetings of committees was added in 1868, (31 V. c. 30, s. 26,) and the per diem allowance fixed at $3 by 40 V. c. 7, Sched. 171 (1877).

(a) Township by-laws passed under 12 V. c. 81, for the remuneration of councillors as "township officers," were quashed (a).

Under the Act of 1858, and the C. S. U. C., c. 54, s. 269, by-laws authorizing payment to members of a county council of money for travelling expenses (b), and to members of a township council of "$20 for services as councillors and $10 for services for letting and superintending repairs of roads (c)," were held bad; and the applicant in that case having brought an action against the township councillors who had received $20 in each year from 1854 to 1858 and the additional $10 in each year from 1860 to 1865 inclusive they were ordered to repay the $10 a year paid to them for their services in letting and superintending repairs of roads, and so much of the $20 as would exceed the amount of $1.50 per day allowed by Statute for attending council meetings (d).

The allowances authorized by the Statute must not be exceeded, and any overpayments may be recovered back by the municipality (e).

A municipal councillor, like any other trustee (see note (b) to s. 10), is entitled to be re-imbursed out of corporate funds any legitimate expenses necessarily incurred by him by reason of his fiduciary position (f).

By the councils of certain cities :—

Remuneration of aldermen in certain cities.

2. In cities having a population of 100,000 or over the council may by by-law determine that an annual remuneration, not exceeding $300, may be paid to aldermen, and that an annual remuneration not exceeding $100 in addition may be paid to the chairman of the standing committees and of the Court of Revision and the Local Board of Health, and it shall be thereby provided that in the case of such aldermen or chairmen there shall be deductions from such remuneration on account of absence from meetings of the council or committees or of the Court of Revision or the Local Board of Health. 57 V. c. 50, s. 3.

DIVISION V.—AS TO FINANCE. (SEC. 539).

539. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Borrowing Money for Drainage Purposes.

By the councils of townships, towns and villages:—

Drainage.

1. For borrowing money and issuing debentures therefor, for the purpose and subject to the provisions of The Tile, Stone and Timber Drainage Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 509 (1).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18,) s. 509.

(a) See "The Tile, Stone and Timber Drainage Act," R. S. O. c. 41.

Sewer Rents.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

Charging rent for sewers.

2. For charging all persons who own or occupy property which is drained into a common sewer, or which by any by-law of the council is required to be drained into such sewer, with a reasonable rent for the use of the same; and for regulating the time or times and manner in which the same is to be paid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (34).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99,) s. 290 (20), which applied only to cities and towns and was based upon 16 V. c. 181, s. 15 (1). Extended to villages by the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51,) s. 290 (55).

(b). See also s. 551 (1-3). The sewer rents which may be charged under this sub-section must be distinguished from the special rates now leviable under ss. 664 et seq., for the cost of constructing common sewers as local improvements, a procedure unknown at the time of this enactment. The original sub-section (a) applied to sewers then already constructed out of the proceeds of the general rates. (b)

A form of by-law fixing and imposing sewer rents under the authority of that clause, re-enacted as C.S.U.C. c. 64, s. 287 (20) will be found in Moore v. Hynes. (c) It was there held, upon the language of the section—"for charging . . . persons,"—that the rents payable under such a by-law were not a tax or charge upon the land itself but only upon the occupant or owner. (d)

And in Re McCutchon and City of Toronto, it was decided in the same year that payment of these rents could not therefore be enforced in the same manner as ordinary assessments. (e) But see now s. 357, ante.

(c). "A common sewer." See note (a) to s. 554.

(d). "A reasonable rent."

was quashed, on the ground that the rate was an arbitrary one and not one in proportion to the assessed value of the property, as required in the case of local or direct taxes by 16 V. c. 181, s. 13, now s. 6 of "The Assessment Act." (a)

Sec. 539 (2-4). Sewer rents.

(c). "For regulating the time or times, and the manner in which the same is to be paid." Semble, the by-law may legally provide for commutation of the annual rent by the payment in gross of a fixed sum. (b)

Reduction of Sinking Fund on By-Laws passed before March 17th, 1879.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages :—

3. For authorizing the reduction of the annual sinking fund rate, or amount required to be collected under local improvement by-laws passed by the council prior to the 11th day of March, 1879 ; and for making allowance for the interest accrued from the investment of the amounts of sinking fund theretofore collected under such by-laws.

Reduction of sinking fund.

Provided that in settling the sum to be raised annually for the remaining years which any such by-law has to run for the payment of the debt, in lieu of the sinking fund rate fixed by the original by-law, the rate of interest on future investments shall not be estimated at more than four per cent. per annum, to be capitalized yearly.

Provided also that no by-law reducing the sinking fund rates fixed by any such local improvement by-law shall become valid or effectual until assented to by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (5) ; 62 V. c. 2.

Taken from 49 V. c. 37, s. 38, which applied to cities, towns and villages. Extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48. The word "four" substituted for "five" in line 12 by 62 V. c. 2 (1898). See s. 384 (8).

(f). See also ss. 412, 413. This matter is fully dealt with in note (a) to s. 412 and in notes (e) and (h) to s. 384.

Guaranteeing Debentures.

By the councils of counties :—

4. For guaranteeing debentures of any municipality within the county, as the council may deem expedient. 55 V. c. 42, s. 511 (2).

Guaranteeing Debentures.

Taken from 43 V. c. 24, s. 25 (1850).

(g) The assent of the electors is not required to make valid a by-law passed under this subsection.

At the time such a county by-law was passed, the by-law of the minor municipality authorizing the issue of the debentures had not been finally passed, but had been provisionally adopted and had received the assent of the electors, in accordance with s. 338, and the form that the guarantee of the county was to take was such that it could not be actually given until after the final passing of the by-law of the minor municipality ;

Secs. 539 (4), 540.

Guaranteeing Debentures.

Held, that, under the circumstances, the county by-law was not prematurely passed.

The by-law in question enacted: (1) that the county corporation "do hereby guarantee the due payment of the debentures" etc; (2) that upon each debenture should be written "payment hereof guaranteed by the corporation of the county," etc: (3) that the warden and clerk should sign and seal such guarantee on each debenture: (4) that when so signed the corporation shall be liable to the holders of the debentures and responsible for the due payment thereof.—

Held, that the by-law did not impose upon the county corporation any greater liability than that of guarantors. (a)

DIV. VI.—PROTECTION OF LIFE AND PROPERTY, (Secs. 540-548.)

Sub-Division i.—Prevention of Accidents, etc. (Sec. 540).

Tax on dogs. Sec. 540 (3).
Cruelty to animals. Sec. 540 (4).
Children running behind vehicles. Sec. 540 (5).
Tobogganing. Sec. 540 (6).

540. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities or Boards of Commissioners of Police and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Dogs.

By the councils of townships, towns and villages, and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:

Regulations as to dogs.

1. For restraining and regulating the running at large of dogs; and for seizing, and impounding dogs running at large contrary to the by-laws; and for selling the dogs so impounded or any of them at such time or times and in such manner as may be directed by any by-law in that behalf. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (15); 56 V. c. 35, s. 17.

The first clause of this subsection is taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48,) s. 379 (10); the two remaining clauses were added in 1893 by 56 V. c. 35, s. 17.

Killing dogs.

2. For killing dogs running at large contrary to the by-laws. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (16).

Tax for dogs.

3. For imposing a tax on the owners, possessors or harbourers of dogs. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (15) part.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 259 (6) (7). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (29), (townships) ss. 52, 59, (villages), ss. 64, 67, 80 (towns), ss. 82, 106, (cities).

(b). See also R. S. O. c. 271, "An Act for the protection of Sheep and to impose a tax on Dogs." and s. 6 (2) of "The Ontario Game Protection Act," (R. S. O. c. 287).

(a) Re Kerr and County of Lambton, 27 O. R. 334 (1896).

(b). The power is not merely to "regulate," but to "restrain" the running at large of dogs. This may be read in connection with the next sub-section, which provides for killing dogs running at large contrary to the by-laws. The validity of laws providing for the forfeiture or destruction of property without compensation to the owners, has been doubted. See note (a) to sec. 437. But it is now settled that all rights of property are held subject to such reasonable control and regulation as the Legislature may think necessary for the preventing of injuries to the rights of others, and the security of the public health and welfare. In the exercise of this power, the Legislature may not only provide that certain kinds of property, either absolutely or when held in such a manner or under such circumstances as to be injurious, dangerous or noxious, may be seized and confiscated upon legal process, after notice and hearing, but may also, when necessary to insure the public safety, authorize such property to be summarily destroyed by the municipal authorities, without previous notice to the owner. (a) A familiar example given is that of pulling down buildings to prevent the spreading of conflagration, or the impending fall of the buildings themselves (b). Other examples are the seizure and destruction of instruments used for gambling (c); of tainted and unwholesome articles of food (d); of bread containing deleterious ingredients (e), of adulterated foods, drugs etc. (f)

Dogs have always been entitled to less regard and protection than more harmless and useful domestic animals (g) In the view of the common law, they had no intrinsic value, and the owner was held to have so little property in them that the stealing of them was not larceny (h). In the case of a by-law against the running at large of dogs, the object is not to prevent or punish trespasses upon property, but to protect the people of a city or town against danger to their lives—against threatened death in perhaps its most distressing form. The most effective means of protecting people from such a danger is the annihilation of the cause of danger; and so, under a Statute which merely authorized the corporation to pass by-laws for "preventing and regulating" dogs running at large, it was held that the corporation had power to pass a by-law for the killing of dogs running at large in violation of the provisions of the by-law (i). In the present Act, the Legislature have not left the power to inference, but have conferred it in express language.

(c) Sub-s. 2. It is to be observed that the power to restrain, regulate, impound or kill is only to be exercised as to "dogs running at large." The question whether a dog is under the control of any person is one of fact, to be determined, if necessary, by a magistrate. (j)

(d) Sub-s. 3. Besides the power to restrain, regulate and, if necessary, kill dogs, additional power is here conferred to provide by by-law for imposing a tax on the owners, possessors or harbourers of dogs.

> "The imposing a tax is to be looked upon rather as a measure of revenue than as a mode intended to be pointed out for indirectly restraining or prohibiting the keeping of dogs by imposing a tax on them." (k)

Cruelty to Animals.

Preventing cruelty to animals, and destruction of birds.

Children Riding Behind Vehicles.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

Preventing children from riding behind waggons, etc.

5. For preventing children from riding on the platforms of cars, or behind waggons and other vehicles, and for preventing accidents arising from such causes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (40).

Taken from 44 V. c. 24, s. 14 (1891).

Tobogganing.

Coasting and tobogganing.

6. For prohibiting or regulating the practice of coasting or tobogganing on the public streets. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (37).

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 19 (1885).

(f). Questions as to the liability of municipal corporations for accidents caused by the practice of coasting or tobogganing on public streets have frequently been considered in the United States,—(1) where (no permission having been given) recovery was sought on the ground that to allow coasting is a breach of the statutory duty of the municipality to keep the streets "safe and convenient" for passengers, and (2) where a city has licensed coasting generally or on particular streets.

The weight of authority is in favour of holding that in neither of these cases would the corporation be liable. In the first case, because, unless expressly given by Statute, no action lies for failure to perform a public (governmental) duty; and in the second, on the ground that a municipal corporation is not liable for the acts of licensees unless these acts are dangerous per se, or unless the corporation derives some benefit from them, and must on this account be held answerable for their results (a).

Bicycles.

By the councils of cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

Regulating bicycles.

7. For regulating and governing (but not licensing) persons using bicycles and other vehicles not drawn by horses. 58 V. c. 42, s. 24.

Taken from 58 V. c. 42, s. 24 (1891).

(g). A portion of any highway may be set apart as a bicycle path, (b) and the use of bicycles on sidewalks or in avenues, parks, gardens, etc., may be prohibited (c). As to the "rule of the road" in regard to bicycles, etc., see R. S. O. c. 236, ss. 1 (2), 2 (3) (4), 7. The sub-section will apply also to tricycles and to auto-motors.

Sec. 540 (7). Note (g).

A tricycle has been held to be "a locomotive" and subject as such to the statutory regulations respecting the use of locomotives on highways in England (a).

Tricycles.

It is apprehended that the by-law may regulate the speed at which bicycles or tricycles, etc. may be driven along streets and in public places (b).

A constable has no right to arrest without a warrant one who is violating even a statutory regulation as to the riding of bicycles (c).

Other subjects of legislation for protection of life, etc.

(h) In addition to the by-laws for the protection of life and the prevention of accidents authorized by the above sub-sections, by-laws may be passed:—

1. By the councils of all municipalities:—

Rev. Stat. c. 256.

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 22 (1890).

(d). The existence of this subsection (6) was probably overlooked by the draftsman of sub-section 5, otherwise the latter might have been worded so as to include "cranes" and to apply as well to construction as to operation.

The Ontario Factories Act, (a) provides (b) that—

"In every factory,

(a) All dangerous parts of mill gearing, machinery, vats, pans, caldrons, reservoirs, wheel-races, flumes, water channels, doors, openings in the floors or walls, bridges, and all other like dangerous structures or places shall be as far as practicable securely guarded.

542. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

Erection of buildings, etc. Fire limits.

1. (a) For regulating the erection of buildings;

(b) For preventing the erection of wooden buildings, or additions thereto, and of wooden fences in specified parts of the city, town or village;

(c) For prohibiting the erection or placing of buildings, other than with main walls of brick, iron or stone, and roofing of incombustible material within defined areas of the city, town or village;

Repairs to existing buildings.

(d) For regulating the repairing or alteration of roofs or external walls of existing buildings within the said areas, so that the said buildings may be made more nearly fire-proof;

Pulling down, etc., buildings illegally erected.

(e) For authorizing the pulling down or removal, at the expense of the owner thereof, of any building or erection which may be constructed, repaired or placed in contravention of any by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (10).

Taken from 47 V. c. 13, s. 16 (1884). See more fully in note (2).

(a). Under the Act of 1849, (a) towns were empowered to pass by-laws "for regulating the erecting of buildings and preventing wooden buildings from being erected in thickly built parts of such towns" (b) and cities "for regulating . . . the erecting of buildings and preventing wooden buildings and wooden fences from being erected in such cities." (a) Under the Acts of 1858, 1859 and 1866, both cities and towns had power to regulate the erection of buildings and to prevent the erection of wooden buildings and wooden fences in specified parts of the city or town. (b)

Sec. 542 (1) Note (a).

Erection of buildings.

A by-law passed by the City of Toronto in 1869, under the last of these Statutes, required that all buildings theretofore begun or which should thereafter be begun or built within certain defined limits should be erected and built of stone, brick, iron or other materials of an incombustible nature. Held, that the by-law was ultra vires and void, and therefore that the Court could not decree the abatement as a nuisance of a building erected in contravention thereof (c). In consequence of this decision, clauses (c) and (e) were added to the subsection by the Act of 1873. (d)

In Reg. v. Howard, (e) the defendant was convicted under a by-law of the City of Hamilton which provided that

> "All roofed buildings within the said fire limits shall be finished externally with tin, tile or felt and gravel, or shingles laid in hair mortar, etc., and no roof of any building already erected within such fire limits shall be relaid or recovered except with materials before enumerated."

The conviction having been quashed on the ground that the by-law was ultra vires in so far as it referred to existing buildings, or ordinary repairs, (not being "additions" within the meaning of clause (b), the sub-section was recast in its present form at the next Session by the addition of clause (d) and the extension of these powers to villages.

When a by-law has been passed regulating the erection of buildings, the council has no power to approve of plans or to authorize the construction of buildings which do not conform to the requirements of the by-law. (f)

Removal, repair.

(b). "The erection or placing of buildings" includes the removal of a building to a site within the prohibited area but does not affect ordinary repairs not amounting to an "erection" or "addition." (g)

Fire limits.

(c). "Specified parts of the city, town or village." "Defined areas of the city, town or village." The boundaries of these "fire limits" (h) should be clearly set forth in the by-law.

Existing buildings not affected.

(d) "The erection or placing of buildings." This seems clearly meant for future erecting or building, not to affect existing structures." (i) Clause (d) applies to existing buildings, but its operation is limited to the external walls thereof, and municipal councils have no power to prescribe the materials or thickness of the internal walls of such buildings. (j) Nor does this clause authorize the passing of a by-law which requires "that all buildings damaged by fire if rebuilt or partially rebuilt shall be made fire proof." (k)

Note (e).

Pulling down buildings erected in contravention of municipal by-laws.

(e). "For authorizing the pulling down or removal . . . of any building or erection which may be constructed, repaired or placed in contravention of any by-law."

The power conferred by this clause extends to the enforcement not only of by-laws passed under this section but of "any by-laws." (a) Under a somewhat similar section of "The Local Government Act, 1858," (b) it was held that the power to provide for pulling down or removing buildings was not confined to cases in which there had been a contravention of by-laws relating to structure, but might be extended to and incorporated in by-laws requiring persons to give notice of their intention to build and to deposit plans. (c) But where a building has been erected in contravention of a by-law, the extreme measure of demolition must not be resorted to until the guilty party has had notice and an opportunity of shewing cause. (d)

> "In condemning a man to have his house pulled down, a judicial act is as much implied as in fining him £5 . . . The party to be affected should have a notice given him; and there is no notice unless notice is given of time when and place at which the party may appear and show cause . . . Justice requires that the man should be heard." (e)

And on appeal, (f)

> "The power is a highly penal one and those who exercise such a power are bound to act strictly within it . . . Where there is power to enter and pull down buildings which have been erected contrary to by-laws it would be contrary to fundamental justice to allow that course to be taken without giving the owner notice and an opportunity to show cause."

Where a local authority attempts to exercise this power in a case to which the Statute does not apply, its action may be restrained (g); but in a case clearly within the Act the decision of the local authority is final, (h) and a Court of Equity will not interfere. (i)

By-laws under the English "Public Health Act, 1848" (j), s. 115, and the "Local Government Act, 1858" (k), s. 34, were made by the local board of Sunderland, by one of which (No. 12) all party walls except in houses of one storey, were required, under a penalty of 40s., to be nine inches at least in thickness, and by another of which (No. 42) it was provided "That in case any offence under any of the foregoing by-laws shall continue, the person offending shall be liable to a further penalty not exceeding 40s. for each day during which such offence shall continue after written notice of the offence has been given by the local board to the offender." A person having been convicted and fined for an offence against the by-law No. 12, in building a party-wall four and a half inches in thickness instead of nine inches, was convicted upon an information charging him, under by-law No. 42, with continuing the offence, and was again fined. Held, that suffering the party-wall to remain unaltered was not a continuing offence within by-law No. 42, or if it was that the by-law was unreasonable—the appropriate remedy being the removal of the structure by the board as authorized by sec. 34 of "The Local Government Act, 1858" (l).

Note (e).

Pulling down buildings erected in contravention of municipal by-laws.

In Tompkins v. Brockville Rink Co., (a) MEREDITH, C. J. dismissed an action for an injunction and damages against persons who were erecting a wooden building contrary to a by-law passed under subs. 1 (b) brought by the owner of contiguous property who would be injuriously affected thereby. He held that the prohibition authorized by the statute and imposed by the by-law vested no specific right in the plaintiff for his own benefit and advantage, and imposed no specific duty in his favour (b) and that contravention of the by-law being punishable by a penalty imposed in the general interest of the public at large, an action by a person injured was prima facie not maintainable.

(g) "Building or erection." "The Local Government Act, 1858," s. 34, empowered local boards to pass by-laws "with respect to the structure of walls of new buildings for securing stability and the prevention of fires"; and by s. 157 of "The Public Health Act, 1875" (c), similar powers were given to urban sanitary authorities. The following were held to be "buildings" or "new buildings" within the meaning of these Statutes: a stable erected chiefly out of old materials (d); a structure put on small wheels, dragged along the street and deposited on a site where it was used as a butcher's shop (e); a pig-stye (f); and a wooden frame covered with corrugated iron and used as a sanatorium (g), but otherwise as to temporary brick structures (h); hoardings for advertisements (i); a new boiler substituted for an old one (j). An iron and glass conservatory projecting beyond the wall of a house was held not to be an "erection" under an Act which prohibited "any building, structure or erection" without the consent of the Metropolitan Board of Works (k). In Lavy v. London County Council (l) it was held that a dwarf wall three feet high forming the boundary of a courtyard was not, but that a new wall eleven feet high on the same foundation was, "a building, structure or erection" within the meaning of a similar section (m). Bay-windows may be "buildings" within the meaning of a covenant not to erect any building beyond a certain frontage line (n).

Dangerous manufactories.

(h) Sub-s. 3. The corporation of the town of P. passed a by-law to "regulate or prevent the carrying on of manufactures or trades dangerous in causing or promoting fire," whereby it was provided that no such manufacture or trade should be allowed to be carried on within 300 feet of any other building, and a fine of from $5 to $20 was imposed for each day that a violation of the law continued with distress on default of payment, and imprisonment in default of sufficient distress. Afterwards they passed another amending by-law, providing that the restriction should not exist if the owners of such buildings within 300 feet consented in writing, the said consent, however, to be submitted to the Chairman of the Board of Works for approval.

Held, that the by-law as amended was invalid within the principles laid down in Re Kiely (a), and in Re Nash and McCracken (b), because, by requiring the consent of the owners of the adjoining buildings to be obtained, it delegated to these persons the right to determine the advisability of granting the privilege asked for, and divested the council of the power they should personally exercise in respect thereof,—and by requiring the approval of the Chairman of the Board of Works it permitted favouritism, and all persons who desired to follow the same trade were not placed on the same footing. It was also bad because it delegated in part the exercise of the judgment and discretion that should be exercised by the enacting body alone.

The council also passed a by-law making it unlawful to erect a steam-engine, etc., within the village limits without the leave of the council.

Held, that this by-law was also bad, and unauthorized by the above sub-sections, since it applied to all cases whether there was danger in causing or promoting fire or not (a).

(h) Sub-s. 5. A by-law providing that no persons other than chimney inspectors appointed by the council shall sweep or cause to be swept for hire or gain any chimney or flue in the municipality, is bad (b).

(k). Sub-s. 7. A "party wall" is a wall separating one house or building from the adjoining one. (h) External walls are not party walls (i) nor are the internal (partition) walls of a building which all belongs to the same owner. (j)

> "The question as to whether a wall is a party wall or not can only arise where a wall separating adjoining lands belonging to different owners is claimed by them as tenants in common." (k)

A wall may be a party wall so far as it belongs in common to two buildings, and may yet cease to be a party wall for the rest of its height, (l) or of its length. (m) Power to pass by-laws "to authorize the erection of party walls" etc., includes power to authorize their erection upon the application of either owner and without the consent of the other. "The Ontario Shops Regulation Act," (a) provides that:—

Of "The Ontario Shops Regulation Act."

"(1) Besides the present requirements as to fire-escapes, there shall, in the case of shops over two storeys in height, be provided in every room which is above the ground floor, or in so many of the rooms above the ground floor as the inspector shall in writing certify to be in his judgment sufficient, a wire or other rope for every window in the room, or for as many windows in the room as the inspector shall certify in writing to be sufficient.

As to hotels, R.S.O. c. 264.

R. S. O. c. 264, entitled "An Act for the Prevention of Accidents by Fire in Hotels and other like Buildings," provides that

"2.—(1) Every owner, lessee, or proprietor of an hotel exceeding two storeys in height, shall erect or cause to be erected at least one permanent outside stairway or ladder, from the landings or floors, landing or floor above the first storey of such hotel and extending to at least said first storey, such stairway or ladder to be built of iron and to be firmly attached to the wall of the building and to be supplied with a hand rail on either side, and to be of sufficient strength to sustain the weight of at least six full grown persons at the same time; and every such lessee or proprietor shall at all times keep the way or passage to such stairway or ladder unobstructed and free of access.

Requirements of R.S.O. c. 264, as to fire escapes in hotels.

(2) If by reason of the default of any owner, upon reasonable notice in this behalf, any lessee or proprietor is compelled to erect a ladder or stairway under the provisions of this Act, then said lessee or proprietor shall have a right of action or set-off against the owner for all actual necessary and reasonable disbursements by him made or incurred by reason of the default of the owner.

3.—(1) The keeper of every hotel shall, where the same is more than two storeys in height, provide and keep in each of the sleeping apartments or bed-rooms which are situate above the ground floor, a fire escape for the use of guests occupying the same.

(2) Such fire escape shall be sufficient within the meaning of this Act if it consists of a rope not less than three-quarters of an inch in thickness, and of sufficient length to reach from the room or apartment in which it is kept to the ground below, and is kept in a coil or other convenient position in each of the said bed-rooms or sleeping apartments; and if the outside window or opening of such sleeping apartments or bed-rooms is provided with proper, secure and convenient fastenings or appliances to which one end of the rope may be safely secured or fastened.

4. In case any hotel is provided with outside stationary or other fire escapes, differing from what is herein provided for, by means of which, in the opinion of the inspector of the license district in which any such hotel is situated, a reasonably safe and convenient means of egress from the sleeping apartments or bed-rooms is provided in case of fire, the same shall be deemed a compliance with this Act, so far as relates to all sleeping apartments or bed-rooms from the outside windows or openings of which there is access to the said fire escapes. But the keeper of such hotel shall procure a certificate from the inspector, certifying to the sufficiency of such stationary or other fire escapes; and a copy of such certificate shall be transmitted by the inspector to the clerk of municipality in which the hotel is situate.

Burning Stumps, Brush, etc.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:

Regulating the burning of stumps, trees, brush, etc.

16. For regulating the times during which stumps, wood logs, trees, brush, straw, shavings or refuse may be set on fire or burned in the open air, and for prescribing precautions to be observed during such times, and for preventing such fires from being kindled at other times. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (24);

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 378 (10).

(q) An owner of land, who without wilfulness or negligence, uses his land in the ordinary manner will not be liable to damages though mischief is thereby occasioned to his neighbour. But if he brings upon his land anything which would not naturally come upon it, and which in itself is dangerous, and may become mischievous if not kept under proper control, he will be liable to damages for any mischief thereby occasioned, though in so doing he may act without personal wilfulness or negligence (a). But as to fire set out for the purpose of husbandry the law appears to stand upon a different footing, and it is necessary that negligence should be shown in order that damages may be recoverable (a). It is not very long since this country was altogether a wilderness. Till the land is cleared it can produce nothing, and burning the wood is a necessary part of the operation of clearing. If it could be shewn that this business of clearing land could, by means within the reach of those employed in it, be done at a time or in a manner that would make it wholly independent of any accident beyond the control of the party, then perhaps, the bare fact of not having used those means might be held to constitute negligence (b).

The above decisions apply only to fire set out for the purpose of husbandry; and a railway company has been held responsible for damages caused by sparks from its engines setting fire to dried grass and leaves allowed to accumulate along the sides of the track (c). This is in accordance with the rule of the common law that an action lies against the party if by his negligence or that of his servants a fire arises on his premises and damages the property of another (d). The kindling of a fire, in a municipality where a by-law passed under this subsection is in force at a time other than prescribed by the by-law, or in disregard of the precautions made necessary by the by-law, would be strong, if not conclusive evidence of negligence. See also the provisions as to townships of R.S.O. c. 268 "to authorize the appointment of Fire Guardians and for the Prevention of Bush Fires."

Water for Fire Purposes.

Secs. 543 (1) 544 (1).

Council may contract for supply of water.

543.—1. Every municipal council shall have power to contract for a supply of water within the municipality for fire purposes and other public uses, from hydrants or otherwise as may be deemed advisable; and for the renting of such hydrants for any number of years not, in the first instance, exceeding ten; and for renewing such contract from time to time for such period, not exceeding ten years, as the council may desire; and every council shall also have power to purchase hydrants necessary for any of the purposes or uses aforesaid; and also to erect the same; and to purchase or rent for a term of years or otherwise, fire apparatus of any kind, and fire appliances and appurtenances belonging thereto respectively. 55 V. c. 42, s. 480 (1) part.

Added to the Act in 1882 by 45 V. c. 18, s. 13 and 45 V. c. 23, s. 7 (2) which are identical except that the latter alone contains the last clause of the present subsection. Until the Con. Mun. Act, 1892, the words were, "to contract with any water works or water company" etc.

(a) "Shall have power to contract . . . and to purchase hydrants . . . and to purchase or rent fire apparatus."

The contract must be under the corporate seal (a) and must have been authorized by by-law. (b)

Snow fences. Sec. 545 (5).
Water gates. Sec. 545 (6).
Marking boundaries of marsh lands. Sec. 545 (7).
Powers of counties as to fences. Sec. 545 (8).

545. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

When and why fences are required.

(a) Fences and Pounds.—With s. 545 relating to fences and s. 546 to pounds, should be read "The Act respecting Pounds" (a), "The Line Fences Act" (b), and s. 94 of "The Unorganized Territory Act" (c).

> "The only general obligation with respect to fences imposed by the common law is that every proprietor of land should prevent, by fences or other means, his cattle from trespassing upon the lands of his neighbour" (d).

Except for this purpose (and in the case referred to in note (a) to s. 545) a land-owner was under no common law obligation to erect or maintain fences (e), and the fact that his land was unfenced did not affect his right to distrain animals trespassing thereon, or to recover damages for such trespass (f).

But by c. 2 of the Acts passed at the second Session of the First Parliament of Upper Canada (1793), authority was conferred upon the "town-meeting" of each township (g) to determine "What shall be a lawful fence," and "What animals shall be free commoners in the township for the year," and to appoint fence-viewers and a township pound-keeper, the latter of whom was authorized to impound cattle, etc., trespassing upon lands enclosed by a lawful fence.

(g) See the Prefatory Chapter to this Manual, ante, p. 4.

Sec. 545.

Note (d).

Accordingly, whenever and wherever the regulations or by-laws of the municipality permitted cattle to run at large, or did not forbid their running at large, "they could not be taken for damage feasant unless the owner of the land trespassed upon had a sufficient lawful fence" (a).

See now s. 546 (2), as to the power of the councils of local municipalities to pass by-laws restraining and regulating the running at large or trespassing of any animals. For cases decided under "The Act respecting Pounds" and "The Line Fences Act," see the notes to these Statutes. As to the duties of railway companies in regard to fencing, Williams v. Manitoba and North Western R. W. Co., (b) Duncan v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. (c) Where the obligation to erect or maintain fences exists, whether by Statute, by-law, agreement or prescription, it is in general absolute, the act of God or vis major excepted; and it is no answer to an action for damages that the defendant did not know of the want of repair (d).

Enclosure of Vacant Lots.

By the councils of cities, towns, and villages :—

Vacant lots.

1. For causing vacant lots to be properly enclosed. 55 V. c. 42 s. 496 (4).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) s. 287 (22). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (10), villages; ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns); ss. 82, 106, (cities).

(b) The words used in the original clause (e) were, "For causing vacant lots in central situations to be properly enclosed when they become nuisances," e.g., where there is a pit or excavation so near the highway that a person lawfully using the latter may, if he steps thereon, fall into the hole (f).

It is a common law duty of the owner of land to prevent it from becoming a public nuisance (g).

Fences.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns, and villages :—

Fences.

2. For settling the height and description of lawful fences, and for regulating and settling the height, description and manner of maintaining, keeping up and laying down fences along highways or any part or parts thereof; and for making compensation for the increased expenses, if any, to persons required so to maintain, keep up or lay down such last mentioned fences or any part thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (17).

The first clause is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 259 (8); Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (25) (townships); ss. 52, 59 (villages); 61, 67, 80 (towns); 82, 106 (cities). The rest of the sub-section was added in 1876 by 39 V. c. 34, s. 2.

Sec. 545. Notes (e)-(h).

(e). "Compensation for the increased expenses," etc. The amount is to be determined by agreement or arbitration. (a)

Division Fences.

Division fences, and cost thereof.

Provisions until by-laws made. Rev. Stat. c. 284.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 258 (9), as amended by 62 V. (1st Session) c. 2

(f). "As penalties . . . may be recovered under this Act." See s. 704.

(g). "The Line Fences Act" "shall continue applicable."

The reference in the Revised Statutes to "The Ditches and Watercourses Act" was a mistake. Until the passing in 1874 of "The Ontario Line Fences Act," (37 V. c. 25) the provisions of both Acts were contained in one Statute. (b) The error was corrected by the Act of 1898, 62 V. c. 2.

Barbed Wire Fences.

Barbed wire fences.

4. For providing proper and sufficient protection against injury to persons or animals by fences constructed wholly or in part of barbed wire or any other material; and in towns and cities for wholly prohibiting the construction or erection, along streets and public places, of fences made wholly or in part of barbed wire or any other barbed material. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (19).

The first clause is taken from 45 V. c. 23, s. 10 (1882): the rest of the sub-section was added in 1890 by 53 V. c. 50, s. 18.

(h). In Hillyard v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co. (c) it was held by WILSON, C.J., and ARMOUR, J., (O'CONNOR J., dissenting) that in view of this sub-section, which seemed to sanction the use of barbed wire fences, such fences, constructed by the defendants along a country road, could not be treated as a nuisance, no by-law of the municipality having been passed respecting them, also that evidence of the common use of such fences in other townships, and that municipalities held out inducements and offered bonuses to persons who put up such fences, was admissible to shew that they were not considered dangerous or a nuisance. Several English and American cases are reviewed in the judgment of WILSON, C. J. (d)

B. 199, where a row of sharp spikes on the top of a wall 18 inches high adjoining a highway was found by a jury to be undoubtedly a dangerous nuisance.

Snow Fences.

Sec. 545 (5 8)

5. For requiring the owners or occupiers of lands bordering upon any public highway, to take down, alter, or remove any fence or fences, subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Snow Fences 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (20). Snow fences. Rev. Stat. c. 240.

Taken from the Con. Mun. Act of 1883, (46 V. c. 18,) s. 490 (17).

(i). See sub-sections 2 and 8 of this section and the provisions of R. S. O. c. 240 (originally 44 V. c. 26).

Water Gates.

6. For compelling the owners of lands through which any open drain or water-course passes to erect and keep up water gates where fences cross such drain or water course. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (21) part. Water courses.

Taken from the Act of 1873. (36 V. c. 48,) s. 379 (14). The rest of the sec. now forms subsec. 11 of s. 552, post.

Boundaries of Marsh Lands.

By the councils of townships:—

7. For declaring that in the case of any lands, the boundary line, or any part of the boundary line whereof passes through a marsh or swamp, or any land covered with water, the same shall, so far as respects that part of such boundary line which so passes through a marsh or swamp, or land covered with water, be deemed to be wholly enclosed within the meaning of section 1 of The Act respecting Petty Trespasses, if posts are put up and maintained along such part of such line at distances which will permit of each being clearly visible from the adjoining post. 55 V. c. 42, s. 521 (13). Boundaries of marsh lands. Rev. Stat. c. 120.

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 50 (1887).

(j). The Act referred to (a) subjects to a penalty of $1 to $10 any person who unlawfully enters into, comes upon, or passes through or in any way trespasses upon any land or premises "being wholly enclosed" etc.

Sec. 546

Powers of County Councils as to erection and removal of fences.

(c) The council of every county shall be deemed and held to have had and possessed on, from, and since the first day of February, 1883, the powers conferred by the preceding clause 8, and also the power to assist, aid, and compensate, either by payment of money or otherwise, any owner or occupier of land bordering upon any public highway within the county, for the taking down, altering or removing any fence or fences, which in the opinion of the council would be likely to cause such an accumulation of snow or drift as would impede or obstruct travel on such highway or any part thereof, or for the erection and construction of some other description of fence, approved of, or designated by the council, and subject to such terms and conditions in that behalf as by such council may be fixed and prescribed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 511 (3).

Taken from 49 V. c. 37, s. 35 (1886).

(1) Compare the powers conferred upon local municipalities by R. S. O., c. 240 respecting snow fences. The date mentioned is that on which "The Consolidated Municipal Act, 1883," came into force.

Div. VI.—PROTECTION OF PROPERTY.

Sub-Div. v. Pounds. (Sec. 546).

546. The council of every township, city, town and village, may pass by-laws (not inconsistent with the Statutes of Canada respecting Cruelty to Animals):—

(a) "The Statutes of Canada respecting Cruelty to Animals" are now Articles 512 to 515 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," as amended by 58-59 V. c. 40 (Ca.)

See also post, s. 742a and R. S. O. c. 272, "An Act respecting Pounds."

For restraining and regulating the running at large or trespassing of any animals, and for providing for impounding them; and for causing them to be sold, in case they are not claimed within a reasonable time, or in case the damages, fines and expenses are not paid according to law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 490 (2).

Appraising the damages.

547. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purpose in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Protection of Graves.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Protecting graves.

1. For preventing the violation of cemeteries, graves, tombs, tombstones, or vaults where the dead are interred. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (13).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 259 (12)

(a) It is an indictable offence at common law to disinter a dead body, (b) and s. 28 of An Act respecting Cemetery Companies, [R. S. O. c. 213], declares that:—

"Any person who:—

Penalty on persons defacing tombstones, etc.

1. Wilfully destroys, mutilates, defaces, injures or removes any tomb, monument, grave-stone or other structure placed in a cemetery, or any fence, railing or other work for the protection or ornament of a cemetery, or of any tomb, monument, gravestone, or other structure aforesaid or of any cemetery lot within a cemetery; or,

2. Wilfully destroys, cuts, breaks or injures any tree, shrub or plant in a cemetery; or,

3. Plays at any game or sport in a cemetery; or,

Sec. 547 (1). Note (a).

"The Criminal Code, 1892," Article 206 (b) provides for the punishment of "any person who improperly . . interferes with . . any dead human body."

Protection of graves, etc.

In Re the Widening of Beekman Street, (a) it was held by the Supreme Court of New York that the right to bury a corpse and to preserve its remains is a legal right which the Courts will recognize and protect; that this right, in the absence of testamentary disposition, belongs to the next of kin and includes the right to select the place of sepulture and to change it at pleasure; that if the place of sepulture is taken for public use, the next of kin may claim to be indemnified for the expense of removing and re-interring the remains. (b)

Weeds.

Prevention of growth of thistles and weeds.

2. For preventing the growth of Canada thistles and other weeds detrimental to husbandry and for compelling the destruction thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (22) part.

(c). As to the planting, protection, trimming and removal of shade or ornamental trees, see also s. 574 (as amended in 1898 by 61 V. c. 23, s. 19) and "The Ontario Tree Planting Act." (d)

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 379 (21).

(d). It is to be regretted that councils (especially townships councils) do not avail themselves more and more fully of the powers conferred by this sub-section. The nuisance which it is intended to prevent is becoming a serious one, and destructive of the beauty of much fine scenery on this continent. Protecting Booms.

By the councils of counties :—

6. For protecting and regulating booms on any stream or river for the safe keeping of timber, saw-logs and staves within the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 511 (1). Protecting booms.

Taken from the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51) s. 314 (4).

(f). The right to float timber, saw-logs and staves down rivers, creeks and streams is an ordinary right of navigation and is recognized and established in this Province by Statute. (c) Such timber is usually kept for a time in booms, the protection and regulation of which is therefore a matter of municipal concern. In McMillan v. Southwest Boom Co., (d) the New Brunswick Supreme Court held that Provincial Acts authorizing a local company to erect and maintain booms in a navigable river were intra vires; and that the words "navigation and shipping" in sec. 91 (10) of the B.N.A. Act are to be construed as conferring upon the Parliament of Canada exclusive jurisdiction to prescribe rules and regulations for vessels navigating the waters of the Dominion, but not as excluding for all purposes Provincial jurisdiction over navigable waters. But in a later case from the same Province, it was held by the Supreme Court of Canada that although a Provincial Legislature may incorporate a boom company it cannot give it power to obstruct a tidal navigable river, and that the power in respect to "navigation" conferred upon the Parliament of Canada by sec. 91 (10) of the B.N.A. Act "includes the exclusive right to legislate so as to authorize an obstruction in a navigable public river where the tide ebbs and flows." (e)

DIV. VI.—PROTECTION OF LIFE AND PROPERTY.

548. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say;

(2) For appointing, employing and paying a night-watchman or watchmen, for the purpose of patrolling at night or between certain hours of the night, any street or any portion thereof within the municipality to be defined by such by-law, and of guarding and protecting the property, real and personal, within the limits thereby defined.

Special rate to be levied.

(a) For levying in the same manner and at the same time as payment of the other rates or taxes within the municipality is enforced, by special rate upon all the real property within the limits defined by the by-law, except vacant lots, all the expenses of or incidental to such employment of such night-watchman or watchmen;

Petition by ratepayers.

(b) No such by-law shall be passed except upon petition therefor by two-thirds of the freeholders and householders who, upon the passing thereof, would become liable to be charged with the expenses to be incurred thereunder, and who represent in value at least two-thirds of the assessed real property on the street or portion thereof liable to be charged with such expenses;

Proof of signatures.

Liability of tenant.

(d) As between the landlord and tenant of any premises comprised within the limits defined by the by-law, the tenant shall be liable for the expenses to be levied thereunder, for the period or time of his occupation, unless there is an express agreement to the contrary. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (43).

549. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Public Morals.

Extent of municipal jurisdiction as to criminal offences.

(a) Any practice which has a tendency to injure the public morals is an offence at common law (a). In the United States many of the powers expressly mentioned in this section have been held to be conferred by charters empowering municipalities to pass "such ordinances as the council may deem expedient to maintain the peace, good government and order of the city," or "to ordain and publish such acts, laws and regulations . . . as shall be needful to the good order of the city," or other like expressions, constituting what is commonly called a "general welfare clause" (b).

The words of s. 23 of "The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882" (c), "The council may, from time to time, make such by-laws as to them seem meet for the good rule and government of the borough," have received a less extensive construction, being held not to enable the council to carry out any peculiar ideas of general good government, or to impose penalties for the doing of acts not prohibited by Statute or common law, but to refer wholly to the government of the borough as a corporation, and to by-laws for carrying into effect the purposes for which it was incorporated (d); and it is to be observed that the power conferred by that section in regard to by-laws for the suppression of nuisances is limited to the prevention and suppression of such nuisances as are "not already punishable in a summary manner by virtue of any Statute."

In the United States, questions have frequently arisen as to the validity of charters empowering municipal corporations to make by-laws in relation to matters which are already regulated by Statute and which (if criminal) are punishable under the general law of the State or of the Union; and it has been doubted whether it can be legal to authorize the passing of ordinances under which the same act may subject the offender to two separate and different punishments, one prescribed by merely local authority, and the other by the general law of the land. The same question has also been suggested in Canada.

In Winslow v. Gallagher, (e) the defendant having been convicted under a municipal by-law of being "intoxicated, drunk and disorderly" on the public streets of a town, it was urged that the conviction must be quashed on the ground that since the by-law was passed the Dominion Act, 32-33 V. c. 28, s. 1, (now embodied in Art. 207 of "The Criminal Code, 1892") had made the offence a misdemeanour and punishable as such under the criminal law of Canada, but it was held that the conviction was good, since there was no evidence that the defendant belonged to one of the classes of persons to whom the Statute was intended to apply, or that he could have been convicted under it.

Note (a).

Can municipalities pass by-laws as to criminal offences?

Reg. v. Shaw (a) was a case in which the defendant had been convicted of unlawfully keeping a gambling house in the City of Winnipeg contrary to a municipal by-law passed under the Provincial Act, 53 V. c. 51, s. 375 (39), (b) the language of which is identical with that of sub-section 4 of this section. KILLAM, J. quashed the conviction on the ground that since the keeping of a common gambling house was an indictable offence at common law, the provisions of the Municipal Act empowering municipal councils to pass by-laws for suppressing gambling houses must be held to be ultra vires, "the criminal law" being one of the subjects in respect of which the Parliament of Canada has exclusive jurisdiction.

On appeal this decision was affirmed by the full Court.

Per TAYLOR, C. J., (p. 537).

> "In my opinion the keeping of a gambling house, being an offence against the general criminal law to be dealt with by the Parliament of Canada, cannot be made an offence against a Provincial law or by a municipal by-law passed under the authority of such an Act. To hold otherwise would seem to render the defendant liable to be punished twice for the same offence, contrary to all principles of law."

See also the remarks of the late Sir MATTHEW CAMERON in McLellan v. McKinnon, quoted in note (b) infra.

The question is certainly not free from difficulties, but the weight of argument and of authority seems to support the conclusion arrived at by the Court of Queen's Bench for the Province of Quebec in Pillow v. The Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal (c) that although the Parliament of Canada has exclusive jurisdiction over "the criminal law," a Provincial Legislature may nevertheless authorize municipal councils to pass by-laws for the suppression of nuisances; and therefore that, as stated by CHIEF JUSTICE COOLEY, (d) "the same act may constitute an offence both against the State and against the municipality, and both may punish it." Thus the same act which renders a member of a municipal council a criminal, imposes upon him the further punishment of forfeiture of his office, (e) and in England a by-law imposing a penalty upon a corporator for refusing to serve in a corporate office is good, although the recalcitrant member may also be indicted for his refusal. (f)

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Indecent placards, etc.

1. For preventing the posting of indecent placards, writings or pictures, or the writing of indecent words, or the making of indecent pictures or drawings, on walls or fences in streets or public places. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (33).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 275 (3), which applied to counties, cities and towns, but by the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 370 (32) was made applicable to all local municipalities. Cf. "The Indecent Advertisements Act," Imp. Stat. 52-53 V. c. 18.

(b). In McLellan v. McKinnon, (g) it appeared that the plaintiff had been convicted under a village by-law for posting up indecent placards in public places in the village. CAMERON, J., in giving judgment, says: (h)

> "The by-law is that no person shall post any indecent placards . . . on walls or fences or public places making a more extensive prohibition than the words of the Act would sanction. Under the by-law the posting of an indecent picture or placard in a public hall, though not on a public street, would be an offence, whereas under the Act, no authority is given to prevent the posting of an indecent picture or placard except on a wall or fence in a street or public place."

"There is no doubt that the placard which the plaintiff was convicted of posting was a criminal libel. It is a grave question . . . whether a municipality has power to make a new offence, and award a new punishment or add an additional one to that which is a criminal offence, and may be punished as such under the criminal law."

Vice, drunkenness, etc.

2. For preventing vice, drunkenness, profane swearing, obscene, blasphemous or grossly insulting language, and other immorality and indecency. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (34).

Taken from 33 V. c. 26, s. 4 (1869). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (9), (villages); 61, 67, 80, (towns); 82, 106, (cities); also 22 V. c. 99, s. 375 (4) and 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 284, (3), which applied only to counties, cities and towns, and in which the power was limited to the prevention of the specified acts "in streets, highways or public places." See also Art. 207 (e), (f), of "The Criminal Code, 1892," and the definition of a "public place" in 57-58 V. c. 57 (Can).

Under the Act of 1866.

(c) Where a city by-law enacted that no person should make use of any profane swearing, etc., or be guilty of any other immorality or indecency "in any street or public place" and the defendant (who was an officer of Her Majesty's Customs) had used profane and insulting language to and of the complainant in a private room in the Custom House, though in the presence of a third person, his conviction therefor under the above by-law was quashed (a). The object of such a by-law is to prevent injury to public morals, and the "public place" referred to is one ejusdem generis with a street (b).

Under the Act of 1873.

A section in a town by-law providing that "no gambling, profane swearing, blasphemous or grossly insulting language or any indecency or disorderly conduct shall be permitted in any licensed tavern or shop" was held valid (c).

Lewdness.

3. For suppressing disorderly houses and houses of ill-fame. 55 V. c. 42, 489, (35).

Taken from the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 284 (4) which applied only to counties, cities and towns, but was made applicable by the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 379 (34) to local municipalities only. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 60 (9), (villages); 61, 67, 80, (towns); 82, 106, (cities); 22 V. c. 99, s. 275, (5).

Disorderly houses.

(d) "Disorderly houses." These words were substituted in 1866 for the words "tippling houses" used in the Act of 1858. The Act of 1849 reads:—

"For suppressing and imposing penalties on the keepers of low tippling houses and houses of ill-fame visited by dissolute and disorderly characters."

A "disorderly house" is declared by "The Criminal Code, 1892," Art. 198, to be "any common bawdy house, common gaming house, or common betting house as hereinbefore defined," (d) and the keeping of any disorderly house is declared to be an indictable offence.

In Reg. v. Rice, (e) the defendants acted as master and mistress of a house to which men and women resorted for the purpose of prostitution, but no indecency or disorderly conduct was perceptible from the exterior of the house. Held, that upon these facts the defendants were guilty of keeping a disorderly house, which is an indictable offence at common law (f). That a house may have a character as a disorderly house, (g) and that evidence of general reputation is admissible to prove that character, see the authorities cited by ROSE, J., in Reg. v. Macnamara (h).

Note (e).

(e) "Houses of ill-fame." See s. 702 (3), which confers power to impose six months (instead of 21 days) imprisonment under a by-law for the suppression of houses of ill-fame.

Houses of ill-fame.

It has been held in the United States that authority to pass ordinances for the suppression of nuisances includes the power to impose penalties upon the keepers of bawdy houses and upon owners who knowingly allow their property to be used for such purpose; but, though the destruction of the house would be one means of suppressing the nuisance, power to demolish is not to be inferred from the grant of power to suppress, for the building in which a particular trade is carried on, or the house which may be kept as a disorderly house or used for improper purposes is not per se a nuisance; it is the misuse or abuse of it which may be prohibited (a).

Under s. 23 of the English "Municipal Corporations Act, 1882," no such questions can arise, since the power there conferred is to make by-laws "for prevention and suppression of nuisances not already punishable in a summary manner by virtue of any Act," etc., and the keeping of a brothel is so punishable under 48-49 V. c. 69, s. 13. Under that Act it was held by a Divisional Court (b) that a woman who occupies a house and is there visited by men who have improper intercourse with her cannot be convicted of keeping a brothel if she is the only woman so occupying and using the house.

The C. S. C. c. 105, s. 1, authorized the summary trial of any person charged with keeping or being an inmate or habitual frequenter of any disorderly house, house of ill-fame or bawdy house. A conviction under that Act that "the defendant did, on, etc., in the City of Toronto, keep a common disorderly bawdy house on Queen Street in said city, a place of resort for both men and women of lewd character for the purposes of prostitution" was held to be sufficient (c).

32-33 V. c. 28 (Ca.) (d) authorized the summary conviction as vagrants of "common prostitutes or night walkers wandering in the . . . public streets . . . and not giving a satisfactory account of themselves." A conviction under that Act was held bad for not showing sufficiently a request made to the woman at the time of her arrest to give an account of herself, and that she did not give a satisfactory account, and that therefore the arrest was made (e).

When a conviction for keeping a house of ill-fame "contrary to a certain by-law of the corporation" was amended by the magistrate after notice of appeal to the Sessions had been given and the time for hearing the appeal had arrived, by substituting the words "contrary to the Statute," referring to a Statute (f) under which there was no appeal,—it was held that the amendment could not be made. (g)

Bawdy houses.

Article 195 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," defines "a common bawdy house" as "a house, room, set of rooms or place of any kind kept for purposes of prostitution." And Art. 198 declares that any one who appears, acts or behaves as master or mistress or as the person having the care, government or management of any disorderly house (which includes any common bawdy house, common gaming house or common betting house) shall be deemed to be the keeper thereof.

Art. 207 of the Code further provides for the summary conviction of any person who,—

> "(j) Is a keeper or inmate of a disorderly house, (h) bawdy-house, or house of ill-fame, or house for the resort of prostitutes, or
> (k) Is in the habit of frequenting such houses and does not give a satisfactory account of himself or herself, or
> (l) Having no peaceable profession or calling to maintain himself by, for the most part supports himself by gaming or crime, or by the avails of prostitution."

(g) Reg. v. Smith, 35 U. C. R. 518 (1874). See now Arts. 882, 883 of "The Criminal Code, 1892."

(h) An information charging that the defendant "unlawfully kept a disorderly house, that is a common gaming house" is good: Reg. v. France, Q. R. 7 Q. B. 83 (1897).

In Reg. v. Rehe (a) it was held that the last clause of the above Article does not apply to a woman who is kept by a married man and who surrenders herself to sexual intercourse with him alone.

Bawdy-house.

That evidence of general reputation may be given to show that a house is a house of ill-fame or a bawdy-house, see the authorities referred to by ROSE, J. in Reg. v. Macnamara (b).

Gaming.

4. For suppressing gambling houses, and for seizing and destroying faro-banks, rouge et noir, roulette tables, and other devices for gambling found therein. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (36).

Taken from the Act of 1858, 22 V. c. 99, s. 275 (8), which applied to counties, cities and towns; made applicable to all local municipalities in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 379 (36).

What is gambling.

(f). "The playing of dice and cards is not prohibited by the common law," (c) nor is it unlawful, if money or money's worth is not at stake, to play dominoes, (d) or billiards (e). But playing for money is gaming, whether it be at cards (f) or at any game of chance or mixed chance and skill (g). So, playing at tenpins for a pint of beer on each game, (h) or at skittles for beer, though the beer is not drunk on the skittle ground (i).

The Imp. Stat. 12 Geo. II, c. 28, "for the more effectual prevention of excessive and deceitful gaming" prohibited, under a penalty of £50, the games of "the ace of hearts, pharaoh, (sic) basset and hazard." In Reg. v. Matheson (j) the defendant was convicted under this Statute by the Police Magistrate of the City of Toronto and sentenced to pay the above penalty. On a motion to quash the conviction, it was held that the jurisdiction of Justices of the Peace in such cases having been taken away by 27 Geo. III, c. 1, s. 2, the penalty could only be recovered by civil action under that Act; but semble, per WILSON, C. J., the defendant might have been convicted under a municipal by-law passed under the above sub-section (k).

"All common gaming houses are nuisances in the eye of the law." (l)

What is a gambling house.

"The Criminal Code, 1892," defines "a common gaming house" as > "(a) A house, room or place kept by any person for gain, to which persons resort for the purpose of playing at any game of chance, or at any mixed game of chance and skill; or

> (b) A house, room or place kept or used for playing therein at any game of chance or any mixed game of chance and skill in which—
> (i) a bank is kept by one or more of the players exclusively of the others; or
> (ii) in which any game is played the chances of which are not alike favorable to all the players, including among the players the banker or other person by whom the game is managed, or against whom the game is managed, or against whom the other players stake, play or bet;

Notes (f), (h).

Gambling.

2. Any such house, room or place shall be a common gaming house although part only of such a game is played there and any other part thereof is played at some other place, either in Canada or elsewhere, and although the stake played for, or any money, valuables or property depending on such game, is in some other place, either in Canada or elsewhere." (a)

Clause (b) of sub-sec. 1 is taken from the judgment of Sir A. L. SMITH, J., in Jenks v. Turpin, (b) and sub-section 2 was added in consequence of the decision in Reg. v. Wettman (c).

By Article 198 of the Code it is declared to be an indictable offence to keep a common gaming house (d) and by Article 199 it is an offence to play or to look on while any other person is playing in a common gaming house, (e).

Sections 28 (2) of "The Agriculture and Arts Act," (R.S.O. c. 43), referring to exhibitions held by Agricultural, Horticultural, etc. Societies and Associations, enacts that:

> "The officers of any such Association or Society shall prevent all kinds of gambling and all games of chance at the place of holding the exhibition or fair, or within three hundred yards thereof, and any Association or Society permitting the same shall forfeit all claim to any Legislative grant during the year next ensuing."

(h) "The Agriculture and Arts Act," enacts (s. 29) that Horse-racing.

Horse-racing is not per se illegal (a). By the Imp. Stat. 13 Geo. II. c. 19, s. 1, no person is permitted to run a horse at a race unless it is his own; nor to enter more than one horse for the same "plate" on pain of forfeiting the horses. The amount of a wager upon a horse race made illegal by this Statute if it has been paid by the loser, may be recovered back (b). But where the horse race was not rendered illegal by 13 Geo. II. c. 19 and 18 Geo. II. c. 34, the winner of the wager was held to be entitled to retain the amount thereof received by him (c).

Vagrants.

6. For restraining and punishing vagrants, mendicants, and persons found drunk or disorderly in any street, highway or public place; and in cities and towns any such by-law may provide that the chief constable of the municipality, or the inspector or other member of the police force in charge of any police station to which any person is brought on the charge of being drunk without being disorderly, may release such person without bringing him before a Justice of the Peace or Police Magistrate. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (38): c 43, s. 34; c. 14, s. 1; 58 V. c. 42, s. 23; 59 V. c. 51, s. 15.

Release without trial of persons arrested for drunkenness.

The first clause is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 275 (9), which applied to counties, cities and towns, and was made applicable to all local municipalities by 36 V. c. 48, s. 379 (38). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (9) (villages); 61, 67, 80 (towns); 82, 106 (cities). The rest of the subsection was added in 1892 by 55 V. c. 43, s. 34, but has been since amended by the Statutes cited in the reference appended thereto. Cf. R. S. O. c. 100, "An Act to authorize Police Constables to take Bail," quoted ante, p. 535.

(i) "Vagrants.

See as to "Vagrancy," Articles 207, 208 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," referred to in notes (e) and (f) supra and notes (j) (k) (m), infra. There must be positive evidence of vagrancy (d). When a son lives at home and is supported by his parents the fact of his being without employment does not constitute him a vagrant under Art. 207 (a) of "The Criminal Code, 1892." (e)

Vagrants.

(j) "Mendicants." See also ss. 526 and 586 (10). Article 207 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," classes among vagrants every one who:

Mendicants.

And under Article 208 every such person is liable upon summary conviction to fine or imprisonment or both (f).

Notes (k), (l).

Drunkenness or disorderly conduct in public places.

(k) "Drunk or disorderly in any street, highway or public place."

Articles 207 and 208 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," apply also to every person who

> "(e) Loiters on any street, highway or public place, and obstructs passengers by standing across the foot path or by using insulting language or in any other way," or who
> "(f) Causes a disturbance in or near any street, road, highway or public place, by screaming, swearing or singing, or by being drunk, or by impeding or incommoding peaceable passengers."

And 57-58 V. c. 57 (Ca.) declares that the words "public place," in Art. 207 include any open place to which the public have or are permitted to have access, and any place of public resort (a).

Sub-sec. (e) of Art. 207 does not apply to the case of a person using insulting language to a passer-by from the window of a dwelling house (b); and a person cannot be arrested for being drunk in his own house, unless his conduct is such as to make him a public nuisance, i. e., by his creating a public disturbance (c).

This sub-section, and also s. 409 of 29-30 V. c. 51 (consolidated ante under s. 519), apply to any person who is drunk in a public highway, though he may not be disorderly; but under Article 207 of the Code there can be no conviction unless the person charged is also proved to have "caused a disturbance in or near the street," etc. (d); and where the evidence showed that the defendant was drunk and that he was guilty of "impeding and incommoding peaceable passengers," but negatived his having caused a disturbance in the street by being drunk, the conviction was quashed (e).

A person was convicted for being drunk on a public street "contrary to law" and sentenced to pay a fine of $50 or to be imprisoned for six months at hard labour. There was power to impose this punishment under a city by-law, but the by-law was not referred to in the conviction. Held, that the omission was fatal, there being no common law right to award imprisonment for the offence (f).

Indecent exposure.

7. For preventing indecent public exposure of the person, and other indecent exhibitions. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (39).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 275 (10), which applied to counties, cities and towns; made applicable to all municipalities by 36 V. c. 18, s. 379 (39). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 60 (10) (villages); 61, 67, 80 (towns); 82, 106 (cities).

(l) "Indecent public exposure of the person."

See also Article 177 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," as to the wilful commission of indecent acts "(a) in the presence of one or more persons in any place to which the public have or are permitted to have access, or (b) in any place, intending thereby to insult or offend any person" Section 6 of 53 V. c. 37 (Ca.) (which is still in force) provides that:

> "Everyone who wilfully commits any indecent exposure of the person or act of gross indecency in any public place in the presence of one or more persons, is guilty of a misdemeanour, and liable, on summary conviction before two Justices of the Peace to a fine of fifty dollars or to six months imprisonment with or without hard labour, or to both fine and imprisonment."

At common law an indecent exposure in a place of public resort, if actually seen by only one person, no other person being in a position to see it, was not an indictable offence (g), and in order to render a person liable to an indictment for indecently exposing his person in a public place, it was not necessary that the exposure should be made in a place open to the public. If the act was done where a great number of persons might be offended by it, and several saw it, it was sufficient (a).

Indecent exposure.

A person was indicted for an indecent exposure in an omnibus, several passengers being therein. Held, a public place (b). In Reg. v. Orchard, (c) a urinal, with boxes or divisions for the convenience of the public, though situated in an open market, was held not to be a public place; but in Reg. v. Harris, (d) where the prisoners had been convicted of indecently exposing their persons in a urinal, open to the public, which stood on a public footpath in Hyde Park, and the entrance to which was from the footpath, it was held that the jury might properly find that the urinal was a public place, and they having found the prisoners guilty, the conviction was unanimously sustained by the Court.

Indecent exhibitions.

(m) "Indecent exhibitions." Under Article 207 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," every person is liable to summary conviction who "(e) openly exposes in any street, road, highway, or public place any indecent exhibition." Keeping a booth in a public place containing an indecent exhibition for hire was an indictable offence at common law (e). A herbalist who publicly exposed in his shop on a highway a picture of a man naked to the waist and covered with eruptive sores, was held to be guilty of a nuisance, though there was nothing immoral or indecent in the picture and his motive was innocent (f).

Bathing in public places.

8. For preventing or regulating the bathing or washing the person in any public water in or near the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (40).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (19), which applied to cities, towns and villages, and was extended to townships in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 379 (40). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (10), (villages); 61, 67, 80, (towns): 82, 106, (cities): 22 V. c. 99, s. 275 (11): 29-30 V. c. 51, ss. 284 (10), 296 (19).

(n) Bathing on the sea-beach near inhabited houses from which the person may be distinctly seen, is an indictable offence, although the houses have been recently erected and until then it was usual for men to bathe in great numbers at the place. "Whatever place becomes the abode of civilized men, there the laws of decency must be enforced." (g) Men who bathe, without any screen or covering, so near to a public footpath that exposure of their persons must necessarily occur, are guilty of an indictable nuisance (h).

Sale of intoxicating drink to children, etc.

9. For preventing the sale or gift of intoxicating drink to a child, apprentice or servant, without the consent of a parent, master or legal protector. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (32).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 275 (2), which applied only to counties, cities and towns; made applicable to all local municipalities by 36 V. c. 48, s. 379 (31). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 60 (9) (villages); 61, 67, 80 (towns); 82, 106 (cities).

(o). Under the Act of 1849, cities, towns and villages were authorized to pass by-laws:—

> "For preventing the sale of any intoxicating drink to children, apprentices and servants, without the consent of their legal protectors."

Notes (o), (q).

Sales of intoxicating liquor to children, etc.

In Re Barclay and Township of Darlington, (a) a township by-law forbidding such sales was held ultra vires, the power being then limited to cities, towns and villages; but in Re Ross and United Counties of York and Peel, (b) after this subsection had been made applicable to counties, a county by-law was held good, which provided that:—

> "It shall not be lawful to sell or sell or give intoxicating drinks . . . to any child, apprentice, idiot or insane person . . . without the consent of the parent or legal protector of such person or child, nor shall any person sell or give intoxicating liquors to any servant when notified . . . by his employer to that effect."

The Liquor License Act of 1874, (c) which created the Boards of License Commissioners, did not transfer this power from the municipal councils to such Boards. (d) The by-law may require a written order from the parent, master or legal protector. (e)

Section 78 of "The Liquor License Act," (f) imposes penalties upon:

"(a) Any licensed person who allows to be supplied in his premises by purchase or otherwise any description of liquor to any person of either sex apparently or to the knowledge of the licensed person or of the person supplying the same, under 21 years of age, except upon the written order of the parent, guardian or master of such minor,

(b) Any society, club, corporation or association etc., or any servant thereof or person resorting thereto, that sells liquor to any such minor, and

(c) Any licensed person who without proper cause suffers any such minor person, not being a resident on the premises, to linger or loiter in or about the bar-room, etc., unaccompanied by a parent or guardian."

Inspection of bathing-and boat-houses

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

10. For inspecting public bathing-houses and boat-houses or premises wholly and partly used for boat-house purposes; and for preventing the use thereof for illegal or immoral purposes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (42).

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 28 (1887).

(p) The reason for this enactment is sufficiently obvious.

Children on the streets after night fall.

(q) Section 21 of "The Children's Protection Act of Ontario," (g) provides that:

> "Municipal councils in cities, towns, and incorporated villages shall have power to pass by-laws for the regulation of the time after which children shall not be in the streets at nightfall without proper guardianship, and the age or apparent age of boys and girls respectively, under which they shall be required to be in their homes at the hour appointed; and such municipal council shall in such case cause a bell or bells to be rung at or near the time appointed as a warning, to be called the "curfew bell," after which the children so required to be in their homes or off the streets shall not be upon the public street except under proper control or guardianship or for some [illegible] cause.
> (2) Any child so found after the time appointed shall be liable to be warned by any constable or peace officer to go home, and if after such warning the child is found loitering on the streets, such child may be taken by such constable to its home.
> (3) Any parent or guardian may be summoned for permitting his child to habitually break said by-law, after having been warned in writing, and may be fined for the first offence $1, without costs, and for the second offence $2, and for a third or any subsequent offence, $5."

As to the meaning of "child," "children," see ante, note (g) to s. 484. "Girl" or "girl" generally means one under the age of puberty.

550. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Other Statutes relating to food and drink.

(a) With this section should be read ss. 74, 108, 109, and 122 of "The Public Health Act" (a), "An Act respecting the Slaughtering of Cattle and the Inspection of Meat and Milk Supplies of Cities and Towns" (b), "An Act to prevent Fraud in the Manufacture of Cheese and Butter" (c), and "An Act to prevent Fraud in the Sale of Milk in Cities and Towns" (d); also R. S. Ca. c. 100, which prohibits the manufacture or sale in Canada of oleomargarine, butterine or other substitute for butter manufactured from any animal substance other than milk; "The Adulteration Act" (e), which forbids the adulteration of "food,"—including therein every article used for food or drink by man or by cattle and (f) every ingredient intended for mixing with the food or drink of man or cattle for any purpose whatever (g)—"An Act to provide against Frauds in the Supplying of Milk to Cheese, Butter and Condensed Milk Manufactories" (h), "The Dairy Products Act" (i), "The Dairy Act, 1897" (j), and s. 194 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," which provides that > "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment who knowingly and wilfully exposes for sale, or has in his possession with intent to sell for human food, articles which he knows to be unfit for human food."

Corresponding English Statutes are The Public Health Acts, the principal of which are the Acts of 1875 (k), of 1890 (l), of 1896 (m), "The Public Health (London) Act, 1891" (n), "The Nuisances Removal Act, 1863" (o), and "The Sale of Food and Drugs Act, 1875" (p).

In Re Workman and Town of Lindsay (q), ROSE, J. considered it doubtful whether the powers formerly exercisable by municipal councils in respect of public health had not been transferred to the Local Boards of Health by 47 V. c. 38, s. 12; but under the language now used in R. S. O. c. 248, s. 48 that question can no longer arise.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Inspection of milk and provisions.

1 For appointing inspectors, and for providing for the inspection of milk, meat, poultry, fish and other natural products offered for sale for human food or drink, whether on the streets or in public places, or in shops. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (53).

Taken from 45 V. c. 23, s. 12 (1882), which applied only to cities, towns and villages; extended to townships in 1884 by 47 V. c. 32, s. 13 (10).

Inspectors under "The Adulteration Act."

(b) "The Adulteration Act" (a), s. 6, further provides that the council of any city, town, county or village may appoint one or more inspectors of food, drugs and agricultural fertilizers for the purposes of that Act. See note (g) to s. 537, also 53 V. c. 26 (Ca.) and 59 V. c. 12 (Ca.), and s. 11 of Sched. B. to "The Public Health Act" (b).

Tainted provisions.

(2) For seizing and destroying all tainted and unwholesome meat, poultry, fish, or other articles of food. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (50).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (17), which applied only to cities, towns and villages. Extended to townships by 47 V. c. 32, s. 13 (2). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6) (villages), 61, 67, 80 (towns); 82, 106 (cities).

(c) See note (b) to s. 540 and note (o) to s. 542. Apart from any statutory provision such as is now made by Article 194 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," quoted supra, note (a), it was held to be a nuisance at common law, and therefore an indictable offence, to expose for sale or to have in one's possession with intent to sell, articles intended to be used as food, but which, to the knowledge of the defendant, were unfit to be so used (c).

But, semble, it is not necessary to prove such knowledge in order to authorize the exercise of the powers conferred by s. 108 (1) of "The Public Health Act" (d), or by a by-law passed under this sub-section (e).

By the councils of cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

Seizure of cattle, etc., unfit for human food.

3. For authorizing the seizure of unslaughtered cattle, sheep, calves and hogs which have died on any railway car, or on any market, or within the municipality, in order to prevent such animals from being used as food, and for disposing of the carcasses of such animals in such a way as not to produce any harm to the public health, and to secure to the owner such value as remains over and above the expenses incurred in disposing of such carcasses. 59 V. c. 51, s. 30; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (122).

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Bread.

4. For preventing the use of deleterious materials in making bread; and for providing for the seizure and forfeiture of bread made contrary to the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (52).

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99) s. 287 (16), cities and towns and villages; extended to townships in 1874 by 47 V. c. 32, s. 15. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (8), villages; 61, 67, 80, towns; 82, 106, cities.

(d) Under "The Food and Drugs Act, 1875," (f)—which provides that "food" shall include every article used for food or drink by man—other than drugs or water—it was held that baking powder, at the time it is sold, is not food, and that it was not an offence under s. 3 of the Act to sell baking powder containing alum, etc., although the alum remains in articles of confectionery, etc., in

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Construction of cellars, drains, etc.

1. For regulating the construction of cellars, sinks, cess-pools, water closets, earth closets, privies and privy vaults; and for compelling and regulating the manner of draining, cleaning, clearing, and disposing of the contents of the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (47).

Filling up, draining, etc., grounds, yards, etc.

2. For compelling or regulating the filling up draining, cleaning, clearing, altering, relaying or repairing of any grounds, yards, vacant lots and private drains. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (48).

Regulations for sewerage, etc.

3. For making any other regulations for sewerage or drainage that may be deemed necessary for sanitary purposes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (49).

Closing and filling up water-closets, privy vaults, cess-pools, etc.

4. For compelling owners, lessees and occupants of real property within any defined area to fill up or close any water-closets, privies, privy vaults, wells or cess-pools, the continuance of which may, in the judgment of the council, be dangerous to health. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (43).

By the councils of townships:—

Dry earth closets.

5. For regulating the construction of dry earth closets and compelling the use of the same within such limits within the municipality as may be defined by the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 521 (15).

Sub-sections 1-3 are taken from 47 V. c. 32, s. 13 (7), (8), (9) (1884), which enlarged and extended to townships the powers conferred by the earlier Acts upon cities, towns and villages. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (villages): ss. 61, 67, 80 (towns); ss. 82, 106 (cities): 22 V. c. 99, s. 290 (17-19) (cities and towns only): 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (21) (52-54), and the succeeding Municipal Acts down to 1883, (46 V. c. 18), s. 496 (6) (39-41), (cities, towns and villages).

Sub-section 4 is from 47 V. c. 32, s. 13 (4) (1884). Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (21) and the sections above cited from 29-30 V. c. 51 (1866) to 46 V. c. 18 (1883).

Sub-section 5 was added in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 31.

Drainage of privies, etc.

(a) These powers are conferred upon municipal councils to be exercised "for sanitary purposes," i.e., "to prevent the creation or to secure the abatement of nuisances which may in the judgment of the council be dangerous to health" (a). If by-laws passed under this section are disobeyed by the owners or occupants of real property, the remedy authorized by s. 703 will be found most effective.

In Reg. v. Osler (b), a city by-law passed under the Act of 1866 (c), for preventing and abating public nuisances and for preventing and regulating the construction of privy vaults was held valid, which provided that:

> "27. The owner, agent, occupant or other person having the care of any tenement used as a dwelling house, or of any other building with which there is a privy connected and used, shall furnish the same with a sufficient drain under ground, whenever practicable, to carry off the waste water.
> "28. All vaults and privies shall be made tight so that the contents thereof cannot escape therefrom.
> "29. In case any privy or privy vault is not properly drained, the committee . . . may give notice to the occupant or owner of the premises upon which such privy or privy vault is situate, requiring such occupant or owner to cause the same to be properly drained within a time to be limited by such notice, and in case such privy or privy vault has not been properly drained within the time limited by such notice, the said committee, ... may enter upon the premises and cause a proper and sufficient drain to be constructed for such privy or privy vault, and the expense of constructing such drain may be recovered with costs by action or distress from the occupant or the owner of such premises, and in case of non-payment thereof the same may be recovered in the same manner as the municipal taxes of the year, and such occupant or owner shall also be liable to the penalties of this by-law.

Note (a).

Drainage of privies, etc.

"30. Whenever any privy vault or drain shall become offensive or obstructed, the same shall be cleansed and made free, and the owner, agent, occupant or other person having charge of the land in which any privy vault or drain may be situated, the state or condition of which shall be in violation of the provisions of this by-law, shall remove, cleanse, alter, amend or repair the same within such reasonable time after notice in writing to that effect given, etc., and in case such privy vault or drain has not been properly removed, cleansed, altered or repaired within the time limited by such notice the said committee, etc., may enter upon the premises and cause the said privy vault or drain to be removed, cleansed, altered or repaired, and the expense of such removal, cleansing, alteration or repairs may be recovered with costs by action or distress from the occupant or owner of such premises and in case of non-payment thereof the same may be recovered in the same manner as the municipal taxes of the year, and such occupant or owner shall also be liable to the penalties of this by-law."

But in Re Mackenzie and City of Brantford (a) a by-law was held objectionable in which the powers conferred upon "the committee" by ss. 29 and 30 of the by-law above quoted were delegated to persons not members of the council, viz.: the Local Board of Health.

As between landlord and tenant.

The cleaning and repairing of drains, etc., is prima facie the duty of him who occupies the premises, and does not devolve upon the owner merely as such. (b) The occupier of a house is liable for damage done by the escape of sewage in consequence of a defect in his drains (c) and he is so liable independently of any proof of negligence or even of his knowledge of the existence of the drains. (d)

An owner who lets premises with a nuisance upon them, (e) one who re-lets them and (perhaps) one who continues an existing tenancy (f) after the user of the buildings has created a nuisance, or after he has undertaken the cleansing of them but has not performed it (g) is liable for the continuance of the nuisance. So, one who lets premises for a fixed and definite purpose is liable for a nuisance arising naturally and necessarily from their use for that purpose. (h)

In Reg. v. Oster, (i) where the defendant had, as agent for the owner, let to one D., a house in the City of Toronto having a drain from a privy vault which was obstructed and offensive, and had refused and neglected to clean, alter, amend or repair the same after notice, it was held that if the nuisance existed at the time of the letting, both the owner and the tenant were liable therefor, (j) but that if it arose after the tenancy was created, the tenant only was responsible; also that the defendant, (who was merely an agent to let and to receive the rents), could not properly be convicted under the by-law. (a).

Drainage of privies, etc. As between landlord and tenant.

In Smith v. Robinson, (b) a lessee who had covenanted with his landlord to repair and to pay "all charges imposed upon the demised premises or upon the lessor for or in respect thereof," allowed a drain on the demised premises to get out of repair and to cause a nuisance. The landlord, having been compelled by the sanitary authority to put the drain in repair, sued the lessee on his covenant for the money so disbursed. It was held that the expenses thus incurred were a "charge imposed upon the lessor in respect of the premises" and that he was entitled to recover them from the lessee. (c) But the tenant of a house in which a nuisance arose by the stoppage of the drains owing to structural defects therein was held entitled under s. 11 (1) of "The Public Health (London) Act, 1891" (d) to recover from his landlord the costs and expenses incurred in abating the nuisance, and (per CHARLES, J.), apart from the provisions of that section he would have been entitled to recover at common law on the ground that he had been compelled to expend money upon work for which the defendants were legally responsible. (e)

In Thompson & Norris Manufacturing Co. v. Hawes (f) where the occupier of premises on being served with a notice under "The Public Health (London) Act (1891)" that if certain works were not completed proceedings would be taken by the service of a statutory notice, went on and did the work without communicating with his landlord, it was held that not being himself compellable to do the work, he had acted as a mere volunteer and had no right to reimbursement. The Court distinguished Gebhardt v. Saunders on this ground and its authority has been further shaken by Farlow v. Stevenson (g).

The owner of houses occupied by tenants may maintain an action in his own name for damages and to restrain the continuance of a nuisance arising from privy pits upon the lands of an adjoining owner if the nuisance is of such a nature as to be practically continuous and permanent; and the owner of the adjoining land, (although it also may be occupied by tenants), is liable for the nuisance caused by them if the pits are so constructed that the constant use of such pits will necessarily result in the creation of a nuisance, or if they are allowed by the owner to remain in an unsanitary condition when there is power to remedy the grievance (h).

(b) Sub-section 2.

"For compelling the . . . draining . . . of any grounds, yards, vacant lots, etc."

Compelling drainage of yards, etc.

A by-law passed under the authority of similar words in the Act of 1858, (i) required that all grounds not already drained, abutting on any street in which there was a common sewer, should be drained into the same within fourteen days from the advertisement of the by-law, imposed a penalty in case of omission of not less than $1 nor more than $10 for each month, and provided for its recovery by distress or imprisonment: Held, that the by-law was unauthorized, for the clause requiring drainage within fourteen days was unreasonable, and the Act showed how the persons were to be "compelled" to drain, viz., by the council doing the work and assessing them for the cost. "We do not think that the continued omission to do an act which the council on such default are authorized to do and to assess the owner for the cost thereof, authorized the infliction of a penalty or of imprisonment. If there can be a penalty for each month, pari ratione there can be imprisonment also for non-payment of each penalty, a consequence sufficiently monstrous to prevent a construction of the Statute which would give such powers." (c) Sub-section 3. "Regulations for sewerage and drainage."

As to the difference between "drains" and "sewers," see note (a) to s. 554 (1); as to the power of the councils of cities, towns and villages to pass by-laws imposing sewer rents, s. 539 (2).

Regulations as to sewerage and drainage.

In Reeves v. City of Toronto, (b) Sir JOHN ROBINSON, C. J., refers with approval to a "regulation" adopted under the authority of this subsection, viz., that any person desiring to drain his premises into a public sewer shall make application to the council, or to one of its committees, stating such particulars as will enable the proper officer to compute the cost of constructing the connection required. The applicant, upon receiving permission to drain into the sewer, pays to the treasurer the cost of the necessary connection, which is thereupon made by the municipality itself in the manner prescribed by its regulations and under the direction and inspection of its street surveyor or engineer.

In Re Workman and Town of Lindsay, (c) a municipal corporation had passed a by-law for the construction of a sewer without limiting the purposes for which it was to be used, and (subsequently) another by-law regulating how it might be tapped for drainage purposes, enacting that no one should drain into it without permission from the municipal council first obtained, and specifying a certain rate of payment for its use when so permitted. The applicant had obtained no leave from the council or any committee thereof to u the sewer, but several members of the council had given him permission to connect some water-closets with it on condition of paying when called upon, whatever sum was reasonable. It was held, (1) that the sewer was constructed for general drainage purposes, including that of water-closets; but (2) that the permission given to the applicant so to use it did not bind the council; (3) that the council could compel him to cut off the connection, since he had never obtained their consent to make the same, nor paid the rate fixed by the by-law; and (4) that the fact of his having enjoyed the privilege for several years placed him in no better position than he was in at first.

Semble, that even if he had the legal right to use the sewer, either the corporation, under this section, or the Local Board of Health, under 47 V. c. 38, s. 12, could, upon the facts stated, have passed a by-law compelling him to cut off the connection.

Areas may be defined.

"For compelling owners . . . to fill up or close any water closets . . . wells . . . the continuance of which may, in the judgment of the council, be dangerous to health." See also as to closing wells, s. 550 (5), and as to "compelling," note (b), supra.

Closing of wells, water closets, etc., which are dangerous to health.

"The Metropolis Local Management Act," (d) prohibited the erection or rebuilding of any house in certain localities without a sufficient water-closet or privy and ash-pit, etc., and empowered the local authorities "if it appeared to them that any house was without a sufficient water-closet or ash-pit, etc.," to notify the owner to provide them, and upon his default to cause a sufficient water-closet or privy and ash-pit, etc., to be constructed and to recover the expense so incurred. Held, that under this section the local authority could not lay down a general rule substituting water-closets for privies throughout the district, but was bound to exercise its discretion with reference to the circumstances of each particular case. (a)

But when the local authorities have decided what should be done in any particular case, they may make the necessary order; (b) and their discretion, if exercised bona fide, is not subject to review by the Court. (c)

Earth closets.

(f). Sub-section 6.

"Compelling the use of dry earth closets within . . . limits . . . defined by the by-law."

It is somewhat difficult to see how any one can be "compelled to use" a closet of any kind, but the sub-section may authorize the passing of a by-law forbidding any person to keep or have in any privy situate on premises owned or occupied by him within a defined area of the township, any receptacle for urine and night-soil other than a dry earth closet to be constructed and used as directed by the by-law. (d)

Maintaining public conveniences in cities and towns.

552. The councils of cities or towns may provide and maintain lavatories urinals and water-closets and like conveniences in situations where they deem such accommodation to be required, either upon the public streets or elsewhere, and may supply the same with water, and may defray the expense thereof and of keeping the same in repair and good order. 59 V. c. 51, s. 37.

The words of the section are almost identical with those of s. 88 of "The Metropolitan Management Act," (e) under which, the local authorities having passed a resolution to erect a urinal in Grosvenor Place adjacent to the wall of Buckingham Palace, were restrained from so doing by Stuart, V. C., on the ground that it would be a serious injury to the neighbouring property. But on appeal this order was set aside, the Lords Justices holding the evidence insufficient to show that the proposed urinal would be a legal nuisance, or that the local authorities were exceeding their statutory powers or were influenced by improper motives. (f)

But while the local authorities have a discretion as to the site, the section does not empower them to erect these conveniences where they would be a nuisance to the owners of adjoining property; for such conveniences are not necessarily nuisances, and the section does not expressly or by necessary implication authorize the creation of a nuisance. 553. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Dwellings on Narrow Streets.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

1. For regulating the erection or occupation of dwellings on narrow streets, lanes or alleys, or in crowded or unsanitary districts. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496, (10*a*). See secs. 630, 631. Dwellings on narrow streets.

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 24 (1889).

(a). Under the power to pass by-laws "with respect to the sufficiency of space about buildings to secure a free circulation of air" conferred upon local authorities in England by "The Local Government Act, 1858," (d) and "The Public Health Act, 1875," (e) a by-law was held valid which provided that every building to be erected and used as a dwelling house should have an open space exclusively belonging thereto to the extent of at least 500 feet free from any erection thereon above the level of the ground. (f) But a section in a similar by-law providing that wherever an open space had been left belonging to any building it should never be built upon without consent of the council and without leaving an open space of specified dimensions, was held bad as to existing buildings though it might be good as to new buildings. (g) It is apprehended that although the power therein given to regulate the erection of dwellings applies only to new buildings, the power to regulate the occupation of dwellings on narrow alleys, etc., is not so limited, and that the by-law may prescribe the maximum number of persons who shall be permitted to occupy a dwelling house having a certain air space. (h)

Contagious Diseases.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

2. For making provision for supplying blanks for the notification and recording of cases of contagious or infectious disease; for giving public notice of houses wherein such cases exist; and for taking such measures as by The Public Health Act, or any other Act, are required to be taken in that behalf, and such other measures as may be necessary for preventing the spread of such diseases. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489, (55). 554. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Drainage.

By the councils of counties, cities, towns, townships and villages:—

Opening or stopping up drains and water-courses, etc.

The first two clauses are taken from s. 317 (6) of the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99) the words "in or adjacent to the municipality" in line 5 having been inserted in 1888 by 51 V. c. 28, s. 20. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 30 (9), (townships); 60 (1), (villages), 61, 67, 80, (towns); 82, 106, (cities); 16 V. c. 181, s. 35, (cities, towns and villages).

The remainder of the sub-section, after the words "for the said purposes" in line 6, was added by 51 V. c. 28, s. 20, as amended in 1896 by 59 V. c. 51, s. 11 and in 1898 by 62 V. (1st Session), c. 2.

Sec. 554 (1). Notes (a)-(d).

(a) "Drains, sewers." (a) In "The Public Health Act, 1875." (b) the word "drain" is confined to a drain used for one building only, or for premises within the same curtilage (c) while the word "sewer" has "a much more extended signification, embracing works on the largest scale, such as draining the fens of Lincolnshire by means of canals" etc. (d) "Sewer . . . . may mean the whole apparatus, and in its specific sense a drain as part of that apparatus." (e).

"Drain," "Sewer," meaning of.

In these Revised Statutes, on the contrary, "drain" is the generic term, applying not only (as in the English Act) to a private drain, (f) or a branch drain, (g) but also to a common or public drain or sewer, (h) or to part of a system of drainage works, (i) while the word "sewer" is specifically used in the second only of these senses, viz., to indicate a public (usually covered) drain intended to receive and carry away fluid and faculent matter from streets and houses in a closely inhabited locality.

Under the English Act, a drain becomes a "sewer" as soon as more than one house is connected with it (j).

(b) "Water-courses."

What is a water-course.

In order to constitute a water-course there must be a natural and accustomed flow of water from a permanent source forming and maintaining a distinct and defined channel. It is not essential that the supply of water should be continuous and from a perennial living source. The volume of the stream may be occasional or temporary, but its "course" must be permanent and defined, (k) and that cannot be called a definite channel which has no visible banks or margins within which the water can be confined (l).

(c) "Entering upon . . . . taking or using."

Powers of council.

In Roderick v. Aston Local Board, (m) words empowering a local authority to carry a sewer "into, through or under" any lands within its district, were held to authorize the construction of a sewer across the plaintiff's pleasure grounds at such a level that the bottom of the sewer would be only slightly below the surface of the ground, and a permanent embankment about six feet high would be necessary to cover it. "The words "into, through, or under" do not mean that it must be wholly under ground."

(d) "Necessary or convenient for the said purposes."

Their discretion will not be reviewed.

"The necessity for making a new sewer being ascertained as a matter of fact, it was for the local authority to exercise their judgment in what direction that sewer should be made . . . . and so long as they exercise an honest discretion without misconduct or negligence, they are not liable to have their judgment overruled in a Court of law." Notes (e)-(h).

(e) "Any land." includes "any estate or interest therein or right or easement affecting the same," (a) e. g., a right to support for the sewer, (b) and (by s. 1 (9) of "The Assessment Act") "all minerals" (e. g., water) "under the same." (c)

Compensation.

(g) "Subject . . . . to the payment of compensation." See s. 437. Compensation may be claimed in respect of any right or easement which is necessarily acquired in the construction of the drain, e. g., the right to subjacent support, (d) and to lateral support (if this is necessary for the safety of the work) (e). The arbitrators may consider the impossibility of building over the sewer, the possibility of its defective construction, and the annoyance likely to arise from the opening of manholes and from stenches caused thereby (f). The rules and principles laid down in the notes to s. 437 are of course applicable to claims for compensation under this sub-section.

As to the time when the claim must be made, see s. 438.

Restrictions and liabilities.

(h) "To any restrictions and liabilities imposed by this Act or otherwise."

"The restrictions contemplated were that pertaining to the expropriation of private lands, and those prescribed by [s. 325], which are intended to safeguard the interest of the adjacent municipality." (g).

The Act does not authorize the creation of a nuisance (h); and a municipal corporation has no right, any more than a private individual, (i) to collect surface water, sewage, etc., and discharge it upon the lands of another instead of making proper provision for its disposal. The remedy of a person thus injured is by action and not by arbitration under s. 437 (j). If it was the act of others which really caused the damage the corporation cannot be held liable (k); but the fact that others were associated with the municipality in committing the trespass is no defence (l); and persons who lawfully,—i.e., with the consent and approval of the municipal authorities,—use as a common sewer a drain which was originally constructed for surface water only, are not responsible for a nuisance created by the disposal of such sewage (a).

Liabilities of municipal corporations in respect to drains and sewers.

So,—although municipal corporations are not bound to make drains or sewers (except where and so far as these may be necessary to keep their highways in repair) (b), and although no action lies against them for not exercising their (discretionary) powers in reference thereto (c)—they are held liable, if they do undertake the task, for any damages arising by reason of their negligent or improper performance thereof (d), or by reason of their negligently permitting drains or sewers under their jurisdiction to become obstructed or out of repair (e).

But the mere fact that flooding has taken place is not per se evidence that the corporation have been guilty of negligence (f). There must be evidence that by the exercise of reasonable care and diligence ("ordinary human foresight") they could have foreseen and prevented the occurrence of the injury (g). Accordingly, where a sewer is free from structural defects and is of sufficient capacity to answer all ordinary needs, the municipal corporation are not liable for damages caused, as the result of an extraordinary rainfall, by water backing into the cellar of a person who is compelled by by-law to drain into the sewer (h). And such a rainfall, though not unprecedented, may be treated as an act of God or vis major, if there has been nothing in previous experience to make its recurrence probable (i).

But where a drain is out of repair and lands are injured by water overflowing from it, the municipality cannot escape liability on the ground that the injury was caused by an extraordinary rainfall, unless it is shewn that even if the drain had been in repair the same injury would have resulted (j).

heretofore dug or constructed, or which may hereafter be dug or constructed along the streets of the municipality; such levels to be with reference to a line fixed by the by-laws. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (32).

Compelling the furnishing of ground or block plan of buildings to be erected.

3. For compelling to be deposited with an officer to be named in the by-law, before commencing the erection of any building, a ground or block plan of such building, with the levels of the cellars and basements thereof, with reference to a line fixed by the by-laws. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (33).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 290 (49), (49), which applied only to cities and towns; extended to townships by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (50), (51).

(i) "For ascertaining the levels of the cellars heretofore dug," etc. The object is apparently to enable the council to determine the depth at which a sewer will require to be constructed.

(j) Sub-section 3. As to the means of "compelling," see note (e) to s. 542.

The duties of municipal corporations in adopting a plan of drainage and determining when, where, of what size, and at what level sewers shall be built, are of a quasi-judicial character,—and the bona fide exercise of their discretion in regard to such matters is not subject to revision by a Court (a). Accordingly a municipality, having properly constructed a sewer along a street in pursuance of a general plan of drainage adopted for that locality, will not be liable to the owner of houses subsequently erected on the street for damage occasioned because the sewer is not deep enough to drain the cellars of such houses (b).

Acquiring land in another municipality for drainage purposes.

4. For accepting or purchasing any land in any other municipality which may be required for preventing such city, town or village, or any part thereof, from being flooded by the surface or other waters flowing from such other municipality into such city, town or village (c); and for providing an outlet for such waters through any other municipality; and for opening, making, preserving and improving drains, sewers and water-courses in the lands so acquired;

Proviso.

Provided always that the consent of the municipality in which the lands to be taken are situate shall be obtained before the powers conferred by this clause are exercised. 55 V. c 42, s. 496 (35).

Taken from 43 V. c. 24, s. 21 (1880).

(k) "For preventing such city, ... from being flooded by . . . surface . . . waters." "The flood is a common enemy against which every man has a right to defend himself" (d). In so doing he may take all reasonable measures, which do not infringe upon his neighbour's rights, to prevent the flood coming upon his land, although as a necessary consequence it passes on to his neighbour's land instead of his own (e). He may fill up low places on his land, build walls, etc., though by so doing he keep back the surface water to to the injury of the owners of the land of higher level (f).

But the owner of land has not, as an incident of his estate therein, the legal right to have the surface water which falls on his lands discharged over another's lands of lower level, even though it would naturally find its way there (a). As to natural watercourses the case is otherwise (b).

(d) "Provided always that the consent of the municipality shall be obtained before the powers conferred by this clause are exercised." But in Kerfoot v. Village of Watford (c), MEREDITH, J., refused to restrain the defendants from acting and from expending corporate funds under a by-law for raising money to maintain, improve and repair a drain which ran through lands in an adjoining municipality, the council of which had not consented to its construction (d).

Extension of Sewers.

Extension of sewers into adjoining municipality

555.—(1) In case any township, city, town or village is so situated that in the construction of any sewer therein it becomes necessary in order to procure an outlet therefor, to extend the same into or through a contiguous municipality, the township, city, town or village so situated, shall have power subject as hereinafter provided, to so extend such sewer into or through such contiguous municipality, and shall have power to unite and connect the same to any already existing sewer or sewers of such contiguous municipality, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the respective municipalities, and, in case of a difference, then upon such terms and conditions as may be determined by arbitration, under the provisions of this Act.

(2) In any case where the council of any municipality objects to allow an adjoining municipality to connect a sewer with any existing sewer, or to extend a sewer through its territory as above provided, the arbitrators shall not only determine the terms and conditions upon which the connection or extension is to be made, but also whether the connection or extension should, under the circumstances, be permitted or allowed to be made; but nothing in this section contained shall authorize the making of an open drain or sewer, nor shall anything herein contained affect the provisions of The Ditches and Watercourses Act. Rev. Stat. c. 285.

Extension of sewers into an adjoining municipality.

(a) This section and s. 554 (1) supra, "are, upon their face, in pari materia and their provisions should not be divorced. The two together form a complete provision to secure proper drainage from one municipality into and through another, and for acquiring all lands of private proprietors necessary for the work to be done" (a).

(b) "Subject as hereinafter provided," i.e., subject to such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the respective municipalities, or may in case of difference or opposition, be determined by arbitration. It is not enough that the land necessary for the extension into and through the contiguous municipality has been acquired from the private owners thereof; the council of the servient municipality are still to be dealt with and their consent to the extension obtained or the right secured by means of an arbitration with them (b).

(c) "In . . . case . . . the council . . . objects to allow an adjoining municipality to extend a sewer through its territory as above provided." "The word 'territory' is not here used to signify land belonging to the corporation as owners, but land within their territorial ambit, over which they have territorial jurisdiction. This is the primary and proper meaning of the word as used in the Statutes" (c).

(d) "Nor shall anything herein contained affect the provisions of "The Ditches and Watercourses Act." S. 19 of that Act (d) authorizes the extension (within the limit of length provided by s. 5), of any ditch constructed under the Act "into or through so much of the lands in any other municipality as may be found necessary without the consent of the council of such municipality."

(e) Sub-section 3. The object of this sub-section is not apparent. It may be that the reference is to the powers conferred by s. 556.

Sub-Div. iv.—Wet Lands. (Sec. 556) (1).

556 By-laws may be passed by the councils of townships.

Purchasing Wet Lands.

Purchase of wet lands from Government, etc.

1. For purchasing from the Government or from any corporation or person, at a price (in case of Crown Lands, to be fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and which price the Lieutenant-Governor in Council is hereby authorized to fix), all the wet lands at the disposal of the Crown or of such corporation or person in such township; and such lands may be sold accordingly to the corporation of such township;

Secs. 558 (1). 557 (1).

Notes (a), (b).

(a) The purchase and draining of such lands shall be one of the purposes for which any such corporation may raise money by loan or otherwise, or for which they may apply any of their funds not otherwise appropriated. Raising money for purchasing and draining same.

(b) The township may possess and hold the land so purchased, and may, whenever they deem it expedient, sell or otherwise depart with or dispose of the same by public auction, in like manner as they may by law sell or dispose of other property, and upon such terms and conditions, and with such mortgages upon the land so sold, or such other security for the purchase money or any portion thereof, as they may think most advantageous. May hold or dispose of such land.

(c) The proceeds of the sale of such lands shall form part of the general funds of the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 521 (12). Proceeds of sale.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51) s. 345 (5-8).

(a) This is a large extension of the general power conferred by s. 534 (1) to pass by-laws "for obtaining such real . . . property as may be required for the use of the corporation." See note (a) to that section; also "The Ontario Drainage Act" (a), the Drainage Acts in the Revised Statutes, 1897, and s. 664 et seq. of this Act.

(b) "With such mortgages upon the lands so sold, etc. . . . . as they may deem most advantageous." This apparently carries with it the right to foreclose such mortgages (b).

Sec. 557.

Note (a).

Obstruction of Roads or Streets.

(a) "Every unauthorized obstruction of the King's highway to the annoyance of his subjects is a nuisance." (a).

What is a lawful and what an unlawful use of a highway.

"The primary object of the streets is for the free passage of the public, and anything which impedes that free passage without necessity is a nuisance." (b). A municipal corporation, though it has statutory power (c) to close, stop up, lease or sell roads, streets and other highways, etc., may not place or authorize the placing of obstructions upon highways still retained as such, e. g., weigh-scales upon a street in a town (d).

The right of any one person lawfully to use the street is subject to the right of every other person to make a corresponding use thereof. Thus the carriage and delivery of goods, &c., is the legitimate use of a street, although it may result in the temporary obstruction of public transit. No man has a right to throw wood or stones into the street at pleasure. But, inasmuch as fuel is necessary, a man may throw wood into the street for the purpose of having it carried into his house, and it may lie there a reasonable time. So because building is necessary, stones, bricks, lime, sand and other materials may be placed on the street, provided it is done in the most convenient manner (e). A stage coach may set down or take up passengers in the street, but it must be done in a reasonable time (f). "A cart or waggon may be unloaded at a gateway, but this must be done with promptness. So as to the repairing of a house: the public must submit to the inconvenience occasioned necessarily in repairing the house; but if this inconvenience is prolonged for an unreasonable time, the public have a right to complain." (g)

Obstructing the highway.

A man has no right to occupy one side of a street before his warehouses in loading and unloading his waggons, for several hours at a time, both day and night, so that no carriage can pass on that side of the street, although there be room for two carriages to pass on the opposite side of the street (h). If a man does anything or permits anything on his premises in view of the public, and crowds of persons are thereby attracted to it, to the inconvenience of the public, that thing he cannot be allowed to do. A bookseller in Fleet street took out the frames of his first-floor windows, and put figures into the windows. These figures attracted such crowds to gaze at them that the bookseller was convicted of obstructing the highway (i). Where the private right of the owner of a house adjoining a highway to access from his house to the highway is interfered with by an unreasonable use of the highway, he is entitled to recover damages from the wrongdoer, in respect of loss of custom in the business which he carries on in his house. He is entitled also to recover damages on the ground that he has suffered a particular injury from a public nuisance (j). The right of a landowner to use a public highway for the purpose of bringing materials for the building of a house on his land must be exercised reasonably. If there are several ways of access to the land there is no absolute right to use the most convenient way exclusively without regard to the convenience of neighbouring landowners (k).

The obstructions referred to in sub-section 1 and in s. 560 are temporary in their character, and incidental to the use by the public of the highway as such —those referred to in sub-section 2 are in the nature of encroachments upon the highway by owners or occupants of adjoining land; while sub-sections 3 and 6 deal with obstructions such as may, if permitted, amount to non-repair of the highway, a subject more fully considered in the notes to s. 606.

Obstructions to highways.

Certain obstructions upon highways have been permitted and made legal by Statute,—e. g., (unless otherwise provided by by-law), worm-fences not more than half of which are upon the road allowance, (a) cab-stands, (b) telegraph, telephone and electric light poles, in certain cases, (c) ornamental and shade trees, etc. (d)

As to the occupation of highways by railways, tramways, etc., see ss. 569, 697, post, and "The Railway Act of Ontario," (e) "The Railway Act" (of Canada) (f): "The Street Railway Act," (g): "The Electric Railway Act," (h) As to railway signal poles erected under statutory authority, Soule v. Grand Trunk R. W. Co. (i); also Dillon, s. 698.

Section 636 of this Act, which permits the Canadian Wheelmens' Association to erect sign posts, mile posts, danger signals, etc., upon the public roads, etc', provides that these shall be "so placed as not to be an obstruction to the highway or to endanger the safety of any person travelling thereon."

When a magistrate may adjudicate summarily.

Subject to the rule of law that where a bona fide question of title is raised, the summary jurisdiction conferred by section 705 upon a Justice of the Peace is ousted, (j) the question whether the place alleged to have been obstructed, incumbered, injured, etc., is or is not a highway, road, street, square, etc., is one to be determined by the magistrate upon a prosecution under a by-law (k). But the mere assertion by the defendant of a claim of right, even though made bona fide, will not oust the magistrate's jurisdiction (l). It is for him to determine whether or not the case involves a bona fide question of title or property, (m) and his decision on this point is conclusive and not subject to review, (n) provided there is any evidence (or any reasonable evidence) on which it could have been arrived at, but, semble, not otherwise (o).

Removal of door-steps, etc.

2. For directing the removal of door-steps, porches, railings or other erections, or obstructions projecting into or over any road or other public communication, at the expense of the proprietor or occupant of the property connected with which such projections are found. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (28).

Incumbering, injuring or fouling highways.

(b) "For regulating or preventing the incumbering, injuring or fouling . . . of any road . . ." This clause relates to acts incidental to the use of the highway, etc., as such. As to "incumbering" or obstructing, see more fully the next note and Dillon, s. 680, note 3, citing Grand Rapids v. Hughes, 16 Mich. (54); as to "fouling" see sub-section 6, and note (g). As to "injuring," an instructive case is St. Mary, Newington (Vestry of) v. Jacobs (a), in which the respondent was the owner and occupier of premises consisting of a warehouse and yard adjoining a public highway, part of which highway, extending along the front of the premises, was a flagged foot pavement. The premises were used for the deposit of heavy machinery, etc., which was at first unloaded on the roadway and then moved by means of rollers and levers across the pavement into the premises. This occupied much time and was objected to as causing a nuisance by the obstruction of the foot-pavement. The respondent accordingly applied to the appellants (the local authority) for permission to take up the flags and make a proper paved carriage access across the footway; but they refused the permission. He then conveyed his machinery across the footway in waggons or trolleys, the weight of which crushed and injured the flags, whereupon the appellants summoned him under s. 72 (1) of "The Highway Act, 1835," before a magistrate for "causing injury to be done to the highway." The magistrate dismissed the summons, finding that the premises in question could not reasonably be enjoyed without access across the footpath, and that the rights of ownership and those of the public might be jointly exercised consistently with the general welfare; and the Court of Queen's Bench upon a stated case affirmed this decision.

What is a "vehicle."

(c) "By animals, vehicles, vessels or other means" (b). A bicycle is a "vehicle" (c), and a conviction for obstructing a highway by riding one on a sidewalk, contrary to a municipal by-law passed under this section, is good, though no person was near at the time (d). So a conviction under a similar by-law for unlawfully incumbering a street by placing and leaving thereon a cart used for taking likenesses was held good (e). But a perambulator in which a child is being pushed or pulled along is not a carriage in the ordinary sense of that word, and such a vehicle may reasonably be used on a footway, provided it is of such a size and weight as not to injure the footway or to be a nuisance to other passengers thereon (f).

As to "vessels" see now s. 562 (8), which in the Act of 1849 formed part of this section.

Among other modes of incumbering highways ejusdem generis with the foregoing may be mentioned— Sec. 557 (1), (2).

Notes (c), (d).

(a) Sawing lumber on the highway (a).

(b) The deposit of building material thereon, which is a matter for regulation under this clause (b). Under similar words in s. 22 of the Act, incorporating the City of Toronto, (c) a city ordinance allowing persons building houses to occupy a certain portion of the street with their building materials, was held good (d). Incumbering, or obstructing highways.

(c) The removal of buildings from one site to another along the highways of a municipality (e).

(d) Exposing articles for sale on the highway where there is no established market (f).

(e) Collecting a crowd by an exhibition or performance either upon the highway or upon adjoining premises (g).

So a highway may be unlawfully obstructed by making speeches or holding public meetings upon it; for such a proceeding "is in its nature irreconcileable with the right of free passage, and there is no authority whatever in favour of it" (h).

"The Criminal Code, 1892," declares every person to be a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant, punishable on summary conviction, who—

> "(e) loiters on any street, road, highway or public place, and obstructs passengers by standing across the footpath, or by using insulting language, or in any other way."

See also Coggins v. Bennett, 2 C. P. D. 568 (1877), where it was held that an encroachment upon a highway is not a continuing offence.

Sec. 557 (1), (2).

Note (d).

But the summary procedure authorized by the Statute should not be resorted to until the offending party has had notice and an opportunity to show cause. (a) And the authority to remove must be given by by-law, not by a mere resolution. (b)

Encroachments upon highways.

Among corresponding English Statutes relating to encroachments on highways are, 57 Geo. III. c. 29, s. 72, ("Michael Angelo Taylor's Act")—which empowers paving authorities in the metropolis to regulate or remove from the front or sides of houses all fixed or moveable projections which in their judgment are inconvenient or incommodious to passengers along the carriage or foot ways; (c)—"The Highway Act, 1835," (d)—which prohibits encroachments on any carriage or cart-way, and under which it was held that a conviction of the offending party is a condition precedent to the right to remove such encroachments, (e) and is a sufficient warrant and justification therefor, although it subsequently turns out to have been an erroneous conviction, (f)—and "The Highway Act, 1864," (g) as to which see Easton v. Richmond Highway Board. (h)

"The Metropolitan Police Act," (i) imposed a penalty upon every person "who shall set up or continue . . . any projection . . . from any . . . part of any . . . shop . . . so as to cause any . . obstruction in any . . . thoroughfare."

Under that Act a person was convicted upon evidence that he used (affixed to the front of his shop) a showboard 11½ inches of which projected over a street 36 feet 8 inches wide at a height of 2 ft. 3 inches across the footway. Evidence that the public were not incommoded was tendered but refused. Held, that the conviction was right, as upon the above facts the magistrate could lawfully find that an obstruction was caused. (j)

"The Towns Improvement Clauses Act, 1847," (k) and "The Metropolitan Local Management Act, 1855," (l) provided (in words almost identical) for the removal or alteration after notice to the owner or occupant, of "any porch, shed, projecting window, step . . . lamp . . . sign . . . showboard, gate, fence or any other obstruction or projection . . . in front of any . . . building . . . which is ["an obstruction to the safe and convenient passage along any street" (T. I. C. Act)] an annoyance by reason of projecting into or endangering or rendering less commodious the passage along any street" (M. L. M. Act, s. 119).

These sections (as well as s. 72 of Michael Angelo Taylor's Act) are limited to actual encroachments upon a highway and do not extend to area railings (m); or other erections close to but not upon the highway. (n) But "a rotten fence near a highway is an obvious nuisance," (o) and may therefore be abated under the authority of s. 583 (1) of this Act. (p)

It is for the magistrate to determine whether the thing complained of is "an obstruction" or "an annoyance;" (q) and he need not, either under these sections or under the corresponding section (28) of "The Town Police Clauses

Expenses of abatement.

(e). "At the expense of the proprietor or occupant of the property connected with which such projections are found."

This applies although he may claim that the nuisance was not created by him or exists with his consent. A person who merely suffers a tree to grow so that it projects over a bridle-way does not "wilfully obstruct" the road within the meaning of s. 72 of "The Highway Act, 1835;" (f) but in order to constitute a wilful obstruction it is not necessary that there should be any act of commission. The offence may be complete by the omission of some person, whose duty it is to remove an obstruction, to do so after notice. (g)

The expense incurred in abating the encroachments may be recovered by action or distress, and in case of non-payment (or of no distress being found), in the same manner as municipal taxes. See ss. 387,703. In England the only mode of recovering them is by action, (h) and it must be therein established that an obstruction or encroachment did in fact exist. (i)

Removal of obstructions from highways.

(f). Since the matters dealt with by these sub-sections are already elsewhere provided for (a) and the period which they allow for the removal of obstructions is a dangerously long one, it would seem that the chief result of the enactment is to render legal the occupation of part of the highways in rural municipalities by worm fences.

6. For preventing persons from throwing any dirt, filth, carcasses of animals, or rubbish, upon any street, road, lane or highway. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (23).

See also s. 28 of "The Town Police Clauses Act." (e)

Repair of Roads.

Stone or gravel on roads.

558. No stone, gravel or other material shall be put upon the roads for repairs during the winter months so as to interfere with sleighing. 55 V. c. 42, s. 523.

(a). Any one who without lawful excuse wilfully does the act forbidden by this section is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment. See note (a) to s. 393.

559. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

Removal of Snow, Ice and Dirt.

By the councils of towns, villages and cities, except cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more.

Removal of snow, etc.

non-payment, to charge such expenses as a special assessment against such premises, to be recovered in like manner as other municipal rates.

Removal of snow, ice and dirt from roof and sidewalks.

(a) The council may, in the by-law passed for the purposes of the preceding clause, define certain areas or streets within the municipality, within or upon which the by-law shall be operative. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (25), 57 V. c. 50, s. 10.

The Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99, s. 299 (12) authorized cities and towns to pass by-laws "for compelling, etc.," (as in the first clause of this sub-section) "and also to remove the same from the sidewalks, streets or alleys in front of such premises; and for removing the same at the expense of the owner or occupant in case of his default." This was extended to villages by the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 296 (47). The present form of the sub-section is taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 384 (11) clause (c) having been added in 1885 by 48 V. c. 39, s. 17 and a slight verbal amendment made in 1894 by 57 V. c. 50, s. 10. By 58 V. c. 42, s. 26 (1895), cities containing over 100,000 inhabitants were excepted from the operation of this section; see also 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (117).

(a). "For compelling persons to remove all snow and ice from the roofs of the premises owned or occupied by them." The powers conferred by this and the following sub-section are intended to aid municipal corporations in the fulfilment of their duty to keep the highways in repair, and must be interpreted in the light of this intention (a).

In Lazarus v. City of Toronto, (b) where the plaintiff, while walking along a street in the city of Toronto, was injured by snow falling from the roof of a building erected by one H. upon land of the defendants, and occupied by the defendants as tenants of H., it was held that at common law there is no duty incumbent upon the owners or occupiers of buildings adjoining public highways to clear away snow from the roofs of such buildings; and that, there being in this case no evidence of improper construction of the building or its roof, or of any municipal by-law requiring the removal of snow from the latter, the defendants were not liable for the accident. The statement that there is no common law liability on the part of a property owner to remove snow, etc., from the roof of a building abutting upon a highway may fairly be questioned; but, as was said by CAMERON, C. J., in Landreville v. Gonin, (c) "The case of Lazarus v. Toronto was well decided on the facts, as there was no evidence whatever of negligence on the part of the defendants."

There must be some evidence of negligence to fasten upon the owner or occupant of a building, liability for damage arising from the falling of ice, snow or other things therefrom. The leading American case on this point is Shipley v. Fifty Associates, (d) where it was held that "for an injury resulting from the sliding of a mass of ice or snow from a roof upon a person travelling with due care upon a highway, the owner of the building is liable if he suffered the ice and snow to remain an unreasonable time after he had received notice of its accumulation and ought to have removed it." And this exposition of the law is quoted with approval by HAGARTY, C.J., in Skelton v. Thompson, (e) and by CAMERON, C.J., in Landreville v. Gonin, (f) where the facts that there was a by-law of the municipality requiring persons to remove snow and ice from the roofs of their buildings, and that the defendant had been notified about half an hour before the accident that there was danger of snow and ice falling from his roof, were held to be evidence of negligence which should have been submitted to the jury. In Roberts v. Mitchell, (g) the defendant, who owned and resided in a building from which a cornice overhanging the sidewalk had fallen upon the plaintiff because of the nails by which it was fastened having become loosened by ordinary decay, was held liable for the injury, without proof of his knowledge of the dangerous condition, the defect being one which he could have ascertained by inspection.

Notes (a) (b).

Liability for damage done by objects falling into the highway.

The Court of Appeal in that case adopted Sir Frederick Pollock's statement of the law, viz.,

> "Where damage is done by the falling of objects into a highway from a building, the modern rule is that the accident, in the absence of explanation, is of itself evidence of negligence . . . . . In other words, the burden of proof is on the occupier ("owner") of the building. If he cannot show that the accident was due to some cause consistent with due repair and careful management of the structure, he is liable" (a) "The owner of property abutting upon a highway is under a duty to keep it from being a cause of danger to the public by reason of any defect either in structure, repair, use or management which reasonable care and skill can guard against." (b)

In the Province of Quebec the proprietor of a house fronting on a public street is responsible for accidents caused by snow or ice falling from the roof.(c) In that Province it is the duty of the tenant to remove snow and ice from the roof of the building which he occupies, and if he makes default the landlord may do the work and recover from him the expense so incurred. (d)

According to most of the American decisions, municipal corporations are not liable for accidents arising by reason of the falling of objects from adjoining buildings into highways. As to snow and ice sliding from roofs, their exemption from liability is unquestioned; but as to cornices, signs, awnings, and as to trees, telegraph poles, etc., so falling, there is authority for holding the corporation responsible if the highway has been allowed to become unsafe from want of proper supervision. (e)

In Thibault v. City of Montreal, (f) it was determined that the defendants, having no power beyond that of punishing the occupant of a building who neglects to remove snow, etc., from the roof, could not be held responsible for an accident occurring by reason of the sliding of the snow therefrom into the adjoining street.

But it is to be noted that in Ontario the municipality in addition to the power conferred by the sub-section now under consideration to pass by-laws compelling persons to remove and clear away snow and ice from roofs, may, under s. 703, direct that this shall be done at the expense of the owner or occupant in case of his default.

(b). "To remove and clear away all snow, ice. . . . dirt and other obstructions from the sidewalks." Under the General Paving Act of 1817, (g) every occupant of a "building" in the metropolis is bound during the continuance of frost and after the fall of snow to sweep and clean once every day, excepting Sunday, before 10 a. m., the footway adjoining his premises. But a by-law "that all occupiers of premises . . . shall properly clean and remove all snow . . . from the footpath opposite their respective premises," etc., was held to be unauthorized by s. 55 of the Public Health Act of 1848, which empowered Local Boards to compel the removal of "dust, ashes, rubbish, filth, manure, dung and soil" (h).

In the United States an ordinance requiring the occupant (or in case there is no occupant, the owner) of every building bordering upon certain streets to clear the snow from the sidewalks adjoining their respective buildings was held to be authorized by a "general welfare clause" empowering a municipal corporation to make "needful and salutary by-laws" (i).

Sec. 559 (1)-(2). Notes (b)-(c).

Even where such a by-law exists, neglect to comply with its requirements will not per se render such adjoining owners or occupants liable for accidents caused by an accumulation of snow, ice or rubbish on the highway or sidewalk (a). But where the accumulation of snow, ice or dirt is due not only to natural causes (b) but to some wrongful act on the part of the owner or occupant of adjoining property, e. g., to his having deposited it upon the highway (c); or to his having wrongfully discharged thereon water which froze and caused the mischief (d), such owner or occupant will be liable for any damage thus occasioned (e), and the action may be brought either directly against him (f) or, (if the defect has continued long enough to make it incumbent upon the municipal authorities to remove it), then against the municipal corporation, which may in that case avail themselves of the remedy over given by s. 609. See the notes to that section.

(c). "To charge such expenses as a special assessment against such premises." An account is usually kept of the expense incurred in each removal of snow, etc. This is divided among the properties benefited pro rata according to their frontage, and at the end of the winter a statement shewing the total amount thus expended in respect of each parcel of land is made up by the clerk or treasurer, who demands payment thereof from the occupant, or the owner (if there is no occupant), and, upon his default in payment, enters it upon the collector's roll in a separate column.

Cab-stands and Booths.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages :—

Cab stands.

3. For authorizing, and for assigning stands for vehicles kept for hire on the public streets and places; and for authorizing the erection and maintenance of covered stands or booths on the streets, highways and public places, for the protection or shelter of the drivers of such vehicles;

Proviso.

Provided that no such booth or covered stand shall be placed upon any sidewalk without the previous consent of the owner or lessee of the property fronting, abutting or adjoining such stand or booth. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (38).

Taken from 43 V. c. 24, s. 15 (1880).

(d) It had been held by MORRISON, J., in Re Davies and Village of Clifton, (a) that a by-law authorizing a cab-stand to be kept on a public highway was illegal, since the result would be to license the creation of a nuisance, which is ultra vires of a municipal corporation (b); but in Re Colborne and Town of Niagara Falls, (c) ROSE, J. refused to quash a by-law authorizing hacks to stand on the street in front of the applicant's hotel, though it was urged that the stand interfered with the view of the Falls from the ground floor of the hotel, that the manure on the stand was offensive, and that the noise of the hackmen amounted to a nuisance.

Per CURIAM :—

> "The two latter objections do not necessarily arise from the stand being allowed. . . . Under proper regulations, it ought to be kept clean, and the drivers not allowed to make an excessive noise. This is a matter for municipal regulation. If the stand proves a nuisance, the proper steps may be taken to abate the nuisance."

Electric Light, Telegraph and Telephone Poles and Wires

Poles and Wires.

4. For regulating the erection and maintenance of electric light, telegraph and telephone poles and wires within their limits. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (39).

Taken from 44 V. c. 24, s. 14 (1881); "electric light" added in 1891 by 54 V. c. 42, s. 21.

What companies are, and what companies are not, subject to municipal control.

(e) It is evident from the position of this subsection that the powers here conferred are intended to enable the councils of cities, towns and villages to protect public highways from being obstructed or interferred with by poles and wires. But owing to the fact that there are several telegraph and telephone companies doing business in Ontario in respect of whose lines it is claimed that the Province has no jurisdiction thus to legislate (d), questions of considerable difficulty may arise in such cases as to the scope of the powers exercisable by the municipality.

Provincial companies.

As to companies within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Legislature,—such, for example, as have been incorporated by Provincial statutes or letters patent—no such difficulty arises (a); and, in the absence of express exemption therefrom, the right of such companies to place poles and wires upon the highway is clearly subject to municipal regulation and control under this subsection.

Dominion companies.

Section 92 (10) of "The B. N. A. Act, 1867," exempts from Provincial jurisdiction, and places within the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada "(a). Telegraphs, etc., connecting the Province with any other or others of the Provinces or extending beyond the limits of the Province," and "(c). Such works as, though wholly situate within the Province, are . . . declared by the Parliament of Canada to be for the general advantage of Canada or for the advantage of two or more of the Provinces." It has been claimed that this description applies to the lines of the Montreal Telegraph Co. (b), the Great North Western Telegraph Co. (c), the Dominion Telegraph Co. (d), the Canada Mutual Telegraph Co. (e), the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's telegraph and telephone lines (f), and the lines of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada (g).

Their statutory powers.

All these companies have, under their charters, the right to erect and maintain telegraph lines along or across public highways, but only on condition that they do not interfere with the public right of travelling thereon (h); and in the

S. Q. Art. 4705,—viz., "to construct and operate telephone lines through, under, along the sides of and across streets and highways of towns and cities therein, provided that passage or traffic thereon shall not be impeded or interfered with by the location of the poles and wires of the company," did not confer upon the company power to plant poles upon or to carry wires along and across the streets of a city without first having obtained permission of the city corporation, in whom, by Articles 752 and 757 of the Municipal Code, the ownership of the street is vested. The company accordingly obtained in 1882 a further Act (45 V. c. 95 (Ca.)), by s. 4 of which its works were declared to be for the general advantage of Canada. See Bell Telephone Co. v. Belleville Electric Light Co., 12 O. R. 571 (1886). Telegraph poles, etc.

Dominion companies.

cases of the Bell Telephone Company (a), and the telephone lines of the Great North Western Telegraph Company (b), and of the Montreal Telegraph Company (c), further statutory provision is made relative to the height of poles and wires in cities, towns and villages, the location of poles and the opening up of streets for the erection of poles or for carrying wires underground; and it is provided that this shall be done under the direction and supervision of the city, town, or village engineer, or of such other officer as the council or corporation may appoint, and in such manner as the council or corporation may direct.

If it be assumed that the Dominion Parliament, in incorporating these companies, had power to confer upon them the right to occupy public highways within a Province, the authority delegated to municipalities by the Provincial Legislature in enacting the present subsection would seem to be limited to the enforcement of the charter conditions prescribed as above.

Their liabilities.

It is clear that if the poles or wires of any of the above companies are so placed or maintained upon a highway as to interfere with the public right of travelling thereon, they are public nuisances. The company so placing them is liable to indictment (d); and the obstruction would be removable under an order of the Court, or by means of a writ de nocumento amovendo (e), or by any person specially injured thereby (f), or by a municipal officer acting on the authority of a by-law passed under s. 586 (1) or 637 (3) of this Act. The company by which such an obstruction was placed and maintained would also be liable in damages to any person specially injured by reason of the highway being thereby out of repair (g); and it would be no defence that the location of the poles had been determined, and the poles themselves erected under the direction and supervision of an officer appointed by the municipality (h), though this, if established, might render the municipality liable as well as the company (i). But it would seem that in such cases the municipality is entitled, under s. 609, notwithstanding such assent, to a remedy over against the company for the full amount of damages and costs recovered (j).

Effect of municipal action in locating poles.

In Bonn v. Bell Telephone Co. it was argued on behalf of the defendants that the action of the municipal authorities, in supervising and directing the place on the street where the pole was planted, legalized the act, so that it could not, as against the telephone company, be made unlawful or declared to be a nuisance by the verdict of a jury.

Bonn v. Bell Telephone Co.

The case was thus put by the defendants' counsel:—"The telephone company have the right to plant poles along the side of any highway. In incorporated villages, the particular spot is to be located by the municipal authorities through their officer appointed for the purpose. This being done, the company is shut down to that very spot and must plant their poles there and nowhere else. The pole so erected is lawfully there, and cannot become unlawful because a runaway horse rushes against it."

In this instance the pole had been placed on the slope of a hollow ditch or watercourse at the side of the road, and was well off the usual travelled part of the road. There was a space of twenty-one feet between the track and the pole, and the latter was fourteen feet from the side of the street.

In delivering the judgment of a Divisional Court, refusing to disturb the verdict and judgment entered against the defendants at the trial, Boyd, C., says (p. 702):—

> "The liability of the telephone company turns upon the proper construction of the original Statute 43 Vict. ch. 67, sec. 3 (O.). The company has not an absolute right to use the highways. It is only a permission—they may construct, provided that it shall not interfere with the public right of travelling on or using the highways. That is a general and all-controlling provision which has a paramount place as to the use of all highways. Superadded is a provision when the company seeks to go through towns and incorporated villages, the streets of which are suffered to be subject to more and more varied easements and uses than the roads in rural districts. In these more crowded highways the choice of location is supervised or controlled by the action of the municipal authorities—the location of the line and the opening up of the street for the erection of poles shall be done under the direction and supervision of the engineer or other officer in that behalf appointed by the council. That further safeguard, however, does not nullify the provision placed first in the Statute that the company is not to interfere with the public right of travel. The company does not acquire absolute rights on the street because the locality of the line has been determined under the direction of the civic or municipal officer. It is still open for inquiry as to whether the public user has been interfered with—and by that I mean appreciably interfered with—interfered with so as to render the way in some sense dangerous to travel. Theoretically, there is some interference with the public right in the highway wherein the poles may be placed even though close along either side. In every case of accident, where injury has been caused by the poles, the question will arise as to whether there has been any undue interference with the free use of the road.

This question is not foreclosed, in my opinion, as to cities, towns and villages, because the poles have been planted under municipal direction. It is for the forum of trial—whether before Judge or jury—to determine whether the poles, situated as they are, unreasonably interfere with the free use of the highways, so as to become an element of danger to the public.

According to our law (based on that of England) the telephone company has no right to use the streets without having received legislative sanction, either directly, or indirectly through the action of properly authorized municipal bodies (a). The right of the public is to have the whole width of the road preserved free from obstructions, and it is not confined to that part which is used as the via trita. (b) So that the effect of Canadian legislation is to legalize the obstruction created by the poles so far that they cannot be abated or complained of as a public nuisance (c), but it still leaves open the question whether the company may not suffer in damages for particular injury to a traveller, if the obstruction is found to be dangerous (d).

Such seems to be the present case. The jury have found that the public right is sensibly interfered with by the location of the pole, and that it forms a place of danger owing to the proximity to the railway track which laterally encroaches on a great part of the street.

This decision is in accord with Atkinson v. City of Chatham (e), and with some American authorities (f), though it is at variance with rulings in the Massachusetts Courts which go to exempt from all liability whether as regards company or municipality. In New York State both may be answerable for maintaining a dangerous pole (g) if the pole was placed by direction of the council—though they need not have given very minute directions (h)."

Conveyance of Traffic, Driving of Cattle, etc.

Regulating traffic on streets and width of tires and wheels.

5. For regulating the conveyance of traffic in the public streets and the width of the tires and wheels of all vehicles used for the conveyance of articles of burden, goods, wares or merchandise; and for prohibiting heavy traffic, and the driving of cattle, sheep, pigs and other animals in certain public streets and places to be named in the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (36).

The first part of the sub-section down to and inclusive of the word "merchandise" is from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 384 (54); the remainder was added in 1884 by 47 V. c. 32, s. 14.

(f) "For regulating the conveyance of traffic in the public streets . . . and for prohibiting heavy traffic in certain public streets and places to be named," etc.

Object of this power.

This sub-section, like sub-sec. 1, confers powers intended to aid municipalities in the discharge of their statutory duties in regard to highways; and the object of regulating the conveyance of traffic, (i. e., of "articles of burden, goods, wares or merchandise,"—for the words seem to be used in an equivalent sense) is, apparently, that the highway shall not be injured, or the public right of passage unnecessarily impeded or interfered with (a).

"An ordinance which would operate as a total exclusion of the right of the citizen to pass over the streets with his loaded waggon and team would be unreasonable and void as against common right;" but one limiting the weight which waggons and other vehicles employed in the transportation of goods, wares or produce of any kind may carry through the streets of a city, merely regulates the enjoyment of the right, and is valid (b).

Heavy traffic.

It was a nuisance at common law to convey an unreasonable weight along the highway with an unusual number of horses (c).

Traction engines.

The use of traction engines on highways is regulated by Statute both here (d) and in England (e). Our Statute provides (f) how the use of such engines on certain streets of a city or town may be prevented or regulated by an order of the County Judge; and the Imperial Statute declares (g) that nothing therein contained "shall authorize any person to use a locomotive which may be so constructed or used as to be a public nuisance at common law." (h)

McMillan v. Portage la Prairie.

Section 393 of the Municipal Act of Manitoba (as amended by 58 V. c. 32, s. 14 (Man.)) empowers rural municipalities to pass by-laws "for regulating or prohibiting the passage of traction engines, threshing machines or other heavy vehicles over highways, or bridges upon highways, and for providing the penalty in case of violation of the provisions of such by-law." The defendants passed a by-law providing that no traction engine, steam engine, threshing machine or water tank should be transported over any of the highways of their municipality except at the sole risk of the owner of such engine, machine, etc. Held, that this was not a bona fide exercise of the power conferred by the Statute, since it neither regulated nor prohibited the passage of such engines, etc., and that the by-law was ultra vires (i).

Stat. 41-42 V. c. 77, and to be therefore subject to the regulations prescribed by 24-25 V. c. 70 and 28-29 V. c. 83. Parkyns v. Preist, 7 Q. B. D. 313 (1881).

(i) McMillan v. Portage la Prairie, 11 Man. Rep. 216 (1896).

By-laws regulating the use of streets for loading and unloading goods may be passed under s. 557 (1), and by-laws regulating the conveyance along highways of night-soil, swill or other offensive substances, under "The Public Health Act" (a).

Sec. 559 (5), (6). Notes (f), (g).

(g) "For regulating the width of the tires and wheels of all vehicles used for the conveyance of articles of burden, goods, wares and merchandise."

Width of tires and wheels.

Again the object is the keeping of the highways in repair. The sub-section therefore applies to all vehicles (of the character referred to) which use the roads or streets of the municipality, whether or not their owners reside within its corporate limits (b).

A by-law for regulating the width of the tires of vehicles used upon any of the streets of a town for drawing . . . articles of burden, when the weight of the load exceeded a specified limit, enacted that its provisions should not apply "to any waggon laden with lumber or goods, and used for the purpose of conveying the same from the mill or place of manufacture thereof into the town, provided the mill, etc., is more than two miles from the limits of the town; nor to any person passing through the town with vehicles loaded with the articles aforesaid." Held, bad as unreasonable (c), since it discriminated against residents of the town in favour of others (d).

It has been ingeniously suggested that although "width of tires" undoubtedly refers to a transverse section thereof across the felloe parallel with the axle, "width of wheels" means their diameter from tire to tire through the centre of the hub, [illegible] the draftsman had in mind the fact that the larger the wheel the gre[illegible] be the bearing surface in contact with the highway, and consequently [illegible] the pressure per square inch. Bearing in mind that one object of this sub-section is the protection of the highway from injury, a by-law regulating the diameter as well as the width of wheels used on vehicles conveying heavy burdens might fairly be claimed to be within the powers of the council. Cf. on this point the different language used in s. 584 (e), post.

(g) "For prohibiting the driving of cattle, sheep, pigs, etc., in certain public streets, etc." See also sub-sections 7 and 9. A local Act for a parish in which there was a large cattle market, enacted that no drover or other person should conduct or drive "any oxen, sheep or cattle through any of the streets of the parish during Sunday." Held, that a person driving a van in which were fourteen calves for market, was not "driving or conducting" cattle within the meaning of the Statute (e). The owner is not liable, in the absence of negligence, for damages done by his cattle while they are being lawfully driven along the highway (f).

Driving of cattle, etc.

Width of Sleigh Runners.

By the councils of counties:—

6. For providing that no sled, sleigh, or other vehicle upon runners (except cutters or pleasure sleighs) drawn by horses or other animals, shall be used by any person residing within the county for the conveyance of persons or goods on any of the roads or highways within the county, unless the runners thereof are apart from each other at the bottom 3 feet 9 inches at least;

Not to apply to non-residents.

Provided that no such by-law shall apply to any sled, sleigh or other vehicle upon runners owned or used by any person not resident within the said county.

Power to exempt from by-law.

(a) The council in passing such by-law may exempt from its operation all sleds, sleighs or vehicles on runners owned at the time of the passing of such by-law, by persons resident within the county.

When by-law to come in force.

(b) The by-law shall not come into force until the expiration of one year from the time of the passing thereof, or of such further time as the council may determine upon. 55 V. c. 42, s. 511*a*.

Taken from 51 V. c. 28, s. 26 (1888).

(h). The Legislature having in this case expressly authorized the passing of a by-law discriminating against residents of the county, the objection which was held fatal in Reg. v. Pipe (a), and in the other cases cited therewith in note (d) to s. 325, would not apply to a by-law passed under this sub-section.

Driving or Riding on Roads and Bridges.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages :—

Driving on roads and bridges.

7. For regulating the driving and riding of horses and other cattle on highways and public bridges.

8. For preventing racing, immoderate or dangerous driving or riding on highways or public bridges. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (14).

Setting apart streets for fast driving.

Provided that in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more, the council thereof may by by-law set apart a street or streets on which horses may be driven or ridden more rapidly than is permitted upon the other streets of the city; and may pass by-laws for regulating and governing the use of such street for the aforesaid purposes. But if a majority of the property owners on any such street petition against such by-law, it shall repealed. 59 V. c. 51, s. 32.

Sub-sections 7 and 8 are taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 372 (9). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (13), (townships); s. 41 (13-14) (counties); s. 60 (17), (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns); ss. 82, 106 (cities); 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (26) (cities, towns and villages), s. 317 (8) all councils, s. 328 (2), (counties). The proviso was added in 1896. See the reference appended thereto. See also sub-section 5, (note (g)), and sub-sec. 9.

R.S.O. c. 236.

(i) R.S.O. c. 236, entitled "An Act to regulate Travelling on Public Highways and Bridges," provides (s. 5) that "No person shall race with or drive furiously any horse or other animal upon any highway"; and see, as to bridges, ss. 8-10 of that Act.

As to bicyclists.

Although "racing, immoderate or dangerous driving or riding" with bicycles was not contemplated in 1849 when the original of sub-s. 8 was passed, semble, its provisions would, nevertheless, apply to bicycles. In Taylor v. Goodwin (b) it was held that section 28 of "The Town Police Clauses Act," (a) which applies in terms to "every person who rides or drives furiously any horse or carriage", justified a conviction for riding a bicycle upon a highway at such a pace as to be dangerous to passers-by; and although it had been held that a bicyclist who, while riding furiously and recklessly, unintentionally knocked down and injured a pedestrian, could not be convicted of an assault, (b) yet a person who knocked down and injured another by furiously riding a bicycle, was convicted and sentenced under s. 35 of "The Offences Against the Person Act, 1861," (c) (identical with Art. 253 of "The Criminal Code, 1892") which provides that,—

562. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say :—

(a) "The British North America Act, 1867," confers upon the Parliament of Canada exclusive jurisdiction in reference to "beacons, buoys, lighthouses . . . navigation and shipping" (a) and enumerates (b) among the public works and properties of the several Provinces which shall be the property of Canada;—"(2) public harbours ; (3) lighthouses and piers ; (5) rivers and lake improvements." In view of the interpretation placed upon these words in Holman v. Green, (c) and Re Provincial Fisheries, (d) it is manifest that there may be grave doubt as to the right of a Provincial Legislature to deal with some of the matters referred to in subsections 1-10 of this section. Within the limits of these notes it is impossible to discuss, and it would be presumptuous to decide many of the questions which thus suggest themselves. For the present purpose, these enactments will therefore be treated as within the legislative authority of the Province (e).

(b) See s. 591 (6), authorizing municipal councils to pass by-laws for granting aid by way of bonus towards the construction of harbours, wharfs, docks, slips and beacons, and s. 591 (8), for taking stock in, or lending money or granting bonuses to any incorporated company in respect of any harbour within or near the municipality.

Public wharfs.

(c) Public Wharfs.—While a riparian owner has at common law the right to establish on his own land a wharf which the public are not at liberty to use without his consent, (express or implied), the right to erect public wharfs and to demand tolls or fixed rates of wharfage appears to be a franchise which must have its origin in a legislative grant. But where streets have been established terminating or fronting on navigable waters, the municipality, under legislative authority to establish and regulate wharfs, may cause public wharfs to be constructed at the ends or in front of such streets and may receive wharfage from the same (a). A municipal corporation possessing and controlling a public wharf and receiving toll for its use, is liable, without statutory enactment to that effect, for injuries caused by its failure to keep the wharf in a proper and safe condition (b).

Public Harbours.

(d) Public Harbours.—It is the duty of those who have the possession and control of a public harbour and who receive tolls or harbour dues levied for its use, so to maintain and manage their property that it shall not become a source of danger to those who are invited to use it (c). This rule applies to a corporation entrusted by Statute with the performance of a public duty, although they receive therefrom no profit or emolument,—e. g., where the tolls are devoted entirely to the maintenance of the public works, (d)—and even where no tolls are imposed, reasonable care must be exercised by those in charge of a harbour so that vessels using it in the ordinary way may do so without sustaining damage. (a) But where the removal of obstructions and impediments to navigation is wholly discretionary, it seems that unpaid trustees in charge of a public work cannot be held liable for injury arising because such obstructions have not been removed (b).

(e). Sub-section 7. This sub-section authorizes the imposition of tolls on vessels and other craft, but only for the purpose of cleaning and repairing harbours and paying a harbour master. It does not sanction the levying of such dues for the revenue purposes of the municipality to which the harbour belongs. Accordingly it was held that a section of a market by-law which enacted that every vessel . . . arriving in the harbour of Kingston . . . containing firewood brought to the city for sale or market, and all boats . . . bringing into the harbour, for delivery or consumption in the city, firewood, coal, charcoal, lumber, potatoes, fruit, butter, cheese or vegetables, should be liable to a toll of 25 cents for every ton's capacity, could not be sustained either under this section or under s. 580 (12). (c)

Harbour dues.

In Re Hagaman and Town of Owen Sound, (d) the Court held ultra vires a by-law (passed under this sub-section) which authorized individuals to erect wharfs, and to remunerate themselves by imposing on all goods landed upon or passing over such wharfs, whether shipped from or "arriving in" the harbour, tolls according to a scale to be fixed by a by-law, two-thirds of which were to be payable to the municipality. But power to pass by-laws imposing such tolls during a period of ten years was afterwards conferred upon the town by 24 V. c. 63.

The Bronte Harbour Company, having been authorized by their Act of incorporation (e) to detain any goods on which the tolls imposed by them thereunder were due and payable, until such tolls should be paid, were held not to be confined to their remedy by distress, but authorized to recover such harbour dues by action. (f) This subsection, however, authorizes the imposition of harbour dues only upon "vessels, and rafts" and not upon their cargoes.

In Bogart v. Town of Belleville, (g) DRAPER, C. J., thought that the use of the word "rafts" in this sub-section would authorize a charge on lumber and saw-logs coming into the harbour, but a provision in the by-law that timber (in the removal of which by the harbour master from one part of the harbour to another expense had been incurred) should not be allowed to leave the port till payment had been made in full, was held not to be expressly authorized by the Statute, and therefore, though not unreasonable, to be ultra vires (h).

In Re McLeod and Town of Kincardine, (i) the Court set aside with costs so much of a by-law (passed under the section of the Act of 1873 corresponding to subsections 1-8 of this section) as enacted (1) that the consignees of goods, etc., should be chargeable with harbour dues or wharfage rates, (2) that the harbour master might seize, distrain and sell the goods for these dues, (3) that the dues might be recovered by action, and (4) that any person evading or attempting to evade or assisting in such evasion or attempt should be punished, etc.

(f) Subsection 8. As the corresponding words in s. 557 (1) relate to the incumbering, injuring or fouling of roads, streets, etc., by acts incidental to their use qua highways, so this section primarily refers to the obstruction of public wharfs, docks, slips, bays, harbours, rivers, etc., by acts incidental to the public right of navigation. Note (f).

Obstructions to navigation.

"navigation and shipping" belongs exclusively to the Parliament of Canada (a) the validity of a Provincial Statute relating thereto, and of municipal by-laws passed under its authority, must be considered as more than doubtful. Assuming, however, that the section does confer power to pass such by-laws, the principles governing the rights of the public in respect to navigable waters are clearly established.

A navigable river, dock, slip, bay or harbour is a public highway navigable by all Her Majesty's subjects in a reasonable manner and for reasonable purposes and (b); no person has a right to obstruct such a highway without necessity or for an unreasonable time (c). "You cannot lay down a priori what is reasonable. You must know all the circumstances. It must be reasonable user and nothing else (d)." In Gibbs's case the defendant was perpetually restrained from interfering, by obstructions placed in a river, with the access to the plaintiff's wharf, of vessels which on account of their length extended beyond the end of the wharf so as to overlap the defendant's adjoining premises, although the plaintiffs would not have been allowed to interfere with the access to defendant's premises if used as a wharf, or with a free entrance to or exit from such premises by other vessels.

In Rex. v. Russell (e) it is said :—

> "For traffic, there are rights, not only of navigation,—i.e. of going and returning,—but also of remaining (so far as necessary or reasonable) for loading or unloading, or for a wind, etc. The enjoyment of each of these rights by some is frequently and necessarily an obstruction to the free and complete enjoyment by others either of the same right or of some other of the above rights,—e.g., ships at anchor in the channel of a river are an obstruction to ships sailing, boats and wherries plying, etc. But such obstruction is not necessarily, or as a matter of law, a public or private nuisance. Each of the rights above mentioned must occasionally yield and become subordinate, as may be necessary and reasonable, at least in part, to some of the others." (f)

These principles were applied in Hall v. Ewart, (g) where it was held that an action for obstructing a navigable river by tying up a vessel so near its mouth that the plaintiff's vessel could not get out, must fail for want of an allegation that the stream was unreasonably obstructed after the defendant knew that plaintiff had loaded his vessel and had required the defendant to move the obstruction (h).

A public waterway may be unreasonably "incumbered, injured or fouled", within the meaning of this section, by the abutments of a bridge, (i) by placing a boom across the stream, (j) or by throwing sawdust and mill-refuse into a river so as to impede its free use by vessels (a). See further as to booms in navigable waters, s. 547, note (f).

Sec. 562 (9).

Notes (f), (g).

How illegal obstructions to rivers, etc., may be removed.

An unlawful obstruction to a navigable highway, being a common nuisance, is indictable (b), and may be abated, (c) or its abatement may be ordered on information at the suit (in all cases) of the Attorney General of the Province (d),—(in certain cases affecting a navigable tidal river or a harbour the Attorney-General of Canada seems to have a concurrent right,) (e)—or it may be so abated (f), or an action against those who have created it may be maintained, by any one to whom it has occasioned special damage (g).

Access to waterways from riparian land.

The right of access to the waterway from riparian land is a private right which the owner of such land enjoys qua owner, (h) and an action will lie for interference therewith,—e.g., by barges and planks, (i) or floating timber, etc. (j),

> "In these cases it is the right of access to and from the highway not the right of access by means of the highway which is regarded as a private right . . . In other words, the distinction is between rights of immediate access from a man's property to a highway, and the power to complain of a mere obstruction in the highway" (k).

But the title of the riparian owner must be clear (l).

As to injuring a public wharf, see Condenning v. Turner (m).

(g) Sub-section 9. The ground of jurisdiction over minor encroachments of the character referred to in this sub-section is thus stated by Sir GEORGE JESSEL, M.R., in Attorney-General v. Terry (n), "You have a right to prevent that which may hereafter, under altered circumstances, become a nuisance, without proving that it is likely to become so." Accordingly in Bickett v. Morris (o), the Court prohibited by perpetual interdict an encroachment upon the bed of a running stream by taking in a small strip 2½ feet wide at one end and narrowing to nothing at the other, without its being established that damage had been, or was likely to be occasioned thereby. In Attorney-General v. Lonsdale (Earl of) (p), the same principle was applied in the case of a navigable river in which the defendant had been in the habit of erecting "bulwarks,"—i.e., protective works on his own land but which projected into the channel of the river so as to interfere with navigation. And in Attorney-General v. Terry (q), a wharf owner having driven poles into the bed of the river, extending his wharf so as to occupy 3 feet out of a breadth of about 60 feet available for navigation, it was held that this was an obstruction which would be restrained at the suit of a municipal corporation empowered by Act of Parliament to remove obstructions from the river.

Notes (g), (h).

Encroachments upon public harbours, rivers, etc.

But in Orr Ewing v. Colquhoun (a), Lord BLACKBURN says (b):

> "I think it clear law in England, that except at the instance of a person (including the Crown) whose property is injured, or of the Crown in respect of a injury to a public right, there is no power to prevent a man making an erection on his own land (though covered by water), merely on a speculation that some change might occur which would render that piece of land, though not now part of the waterway, available as part of it at some future period. I think that the land being covered be water is in such a case a mere accident,—and that the defendants are as much at liberty to build on the bed of the river (if they thereby occasion no obstruction) as they would be to build on an island which might at some future period be swept away."

And in Ratté v. Booth (c), the plaintiff, being in lawful possession of a water lot extending out two chains into the River Ottawa at a distance of 700 feet from the main channel and in a part of the river where outside of this strip there were ample facilities for shipping, was held entitled to construct and moor to his bank a floating wharf and boat house 40 x 140 feet in size, "the same not being an obstruction to the navigation."

Removal of Obstructions from Wharfs, Waters, etc.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

Removal of obstructions from wharfs, harbours, etc.

Taken from 47 V. c. 32, s. 12 (1880).

(h) This enactment was suggested by the decision in Hood v. Toronto Harbour Commissioners (d). At common law no indictment lay against the owner of a vessel sunk by accident or misfortune in a navigable river, for not removing it (e), nor, if the sunken vessel was abandoned by her owners, was a duty ordinarily cast upon such owners to use any precaution by placing a buoy over the wreck or otherwise to prevent other vessels from striking against it (f).

The by-law may also direct that upon default of the person liable to remove the obstruction, the work may be done by an officer of the corporation at the expense of the person in default (g).

Obstructions to Streams and Watercourses.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 270.

(g). "For preventing the obstruction . . . of streams, etc. . . . and for clearing away and removing such obstructions."

"This provision seems to point at obstructions actually caused by parties ("the offenders") rather than at the ordinary accumulation of drift-wood." (a) In Danard's case the defendants, having passed a by-law under the section of C.S.U.C. c. 54 corresponding with the above sub-sections, cleared out a stream on and above plaintiff's land and assessed him $75 for the expenses thereof, which he paid. They did not, however, clear out the stream on the lot below, nor did they cause the occupant of that lot to do so, and consequently in times of freshet increased quantities of water were brought down and dammed back on plaintiff's land, instead of (as before) lying in the woods above and gradually passing away without doing any injury. In an action for breach of duty in not clearing the creek throughout, or not clearing it below plaintiff's lot, and for consequent damages, it was held that the plaintiff could not recover. Danard v. Tp. of Chatham.

Per HAGARTY, C. J.:—

"The whole claim is for a nonfeasance . . . It is not suggested that any Statute requires them [the township] to do the work, or makes them responsible for omitting to do it, nor is it alleged that an unreasonable time has elapsed, etc. I cannot see how the mere levying of a rate for the removal of a nuisance does by itself create a cause of action for injuries caused by the continuance of the unabated nuisance. It is urged, however, that the defendants had undertaken the general duty of clearing out the stream, and that their partial performance of that duty caused the injury. . . . We cannot hold that a proprietor of land can be a wrongdoer . . . in removing fallen timber, driftwood, etc., from a natural stream. . . . He has a right to clear and cultivate his own land; and, so long as he does not alter or interfere with the natural flow of the stream, I do not see how he can be liable for the consequences of his merely (without negligence or want of due care) removing the casual and accidental obstructions to that ordinary flow. . . . I cannot understand how the plaintiff can acquire any higher or larger right against [these defendants] . . . than the latter could have against the owners of the lands had they thought proper to exercise their clear right."

R. S. O. c. 142, entitled "An Act for protecting the Public Interest in Rivers, Streams and Creeks," further enacts (ss. 1, 2) that (subject to the other provisions of that Act) :— R. S. O. c. 142.

"1. All persons shall have, and are hereby declared always to have had, during the spring, summer and autumn freshets, the right to, and may float and transmit saw-logs and all other timber of every kind, and all rafts and crafts, down all rivers, creeks and streams;

(a) Per HAGARTY, C.J., in Danard v. Township of Chatham, 24 C. P. 590, 597 (1875).

Notes (j)-(m).

"The Rivers and Streams Act." and no person shall by felling trees or placing any other obstruction in or across any such river, creek or stream, prevent the passage thereof; and in case it may be necessary to remove any obstruction from such river, creek or stream, or construct any apron, dam, slide, gate-lock, boom, or other work therein or thereon, necessary to facilitate the floating and transmitting such saw-logs and other timber, rafts or crafts, down the same, then it shall be lawful for the person requiring so to float and transmit such saw-logs and other timber, rafts and crafts, and it is hereby declared always to have been lawful to remove such obstruction, and to construct such apron, dam, slide, gate-lock, boom or other work necessary for the purposes aforesaid, doing no unnecessary damage to the said river, creek or stream, or to the banks thereof.

2. In case there is a convenient apron, slide, gate, lock, or opening in any such dam or other structure made for the passage of saw-logs and other timber, rafts and crafts authorized to be floated down such stream as aforesaid, no person using any such stream in manner and for the purposes aforesaid, shall alter, injure or destroy any such dam or other useful erection in or upon the bed of or across the stream, or do any unnecessary damage thereto or on the banks thereof.

It is, however, provided by s. 5 of the Act that the above provisions shall not apply to a dam, weir or bridge erected in or over such river, rivulet or watercourse, or to anything done bona fide in or for erecting the same, or to any tree cut down or felled across such river, rivulet or watercourse, for the purpose of being used as a bridge from one side thereof to the other; provided such tree does not impede the flow of water or the passing of rafts.

"Obstructions," meaning of.

In Farquharson v. Imperial Oil Co. (a), it was held by a Divisional Court that the words "any other obstruction," used in s. 1, do not prohibit a person who owns the bed of a creek and the land on both sides of it, from erecting a dam across the stream so as to interfere with the passage of logs by lowering the water, and that they refer only to obstructions resulting from by acts ejusdem generis with "felling trees;" but this decision was reversed by the Supreme Court of Canada (b).

See a number of the earlier cases upon this section referred to in note (f) to s. 547, ante.

"Streams" and "creeks."

(k) "Streams, creeks and watercourses." In McHardy v. Township of Elice (c), it is pointed out by HAGARTY, C.J.C.P., that the Legislature seems throughout the Statutes to have used "stream" and "river" as synonymous terms; and in Township of North Dorchester v. County of Middlesex (d), FERGUSON, J., concurs in this statement.

"Watercourses."

As to the meaning of "watercourses" see note (b) to s. 554. The above words seem therefore wide enough to include all water courses, except such "little rills" as are referred to by Lord BLACKBURN in Caldwell v. McLaren (e).

When stream in any township cleared of obstructions, notice may be served on council of adjoining municipality requiring them to clear such stream within their municipality.

563. Wherever any stream or creek in any township is cleared of all logs, brush or other obstructions to the town line between such township and any adjoining township into which such stream or creek flows, the council of the township in which the creek or stream has been cleared of obstruction may serve a notice in writing on the head of the council of the adjoining township into which the stream or creek flows, requesting such council to clear such stream or creek through their municipality; and it shall be the duty of such last named council, within six months after the service of the notice as aforesaid, to enforce the removal of all obstructions in such creek or stream within their municipality, to the satisfaction of any person whom the council of the county in which the municipality whose council served the notice is situate, shall appoint to inspect the same; and if the council receiving such notice neglects the said duty, and by reason of such neglect any public road, street, bridge or highway in either of the said townships becomes out of repair, the corporation in default, but not the corporation which served the notice, shall, (besides being subject to any punishment or proceeding provided by law), be civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such want of repair; but the action shall be brought within three months after the damages have been sustained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 522.

Clearing streams in townships of logs, brush, etc.

Notice to adjoining municipality.

Liability of such municipality after notice.

The first part of the section down to the words "inspect the same" is taken from 34 V. c. 30, s. 14 (1871). Cf. 31 V. c. 30, s. 29 (1868). The remainder of the section,—"and if the council receiving such notice neglects the said duty," etc., was added in 1888 by 51 V. c. 28, s. 28.

(a) "It shall be the duty of such last named council."

It is apprehended that the performance of this duty would be enforceable by mandamus. See note (a) to s. 617. See also s. 619 as to the removal of accumulations of drift-wood and fallen timber from rivers or streams forming boundary lines between two or more municipalities.

Mandamus.

(b) "An Act to amend the Municipal Act" passed in August, 1898, (62 V. (1st Sess.) c. 5), provides that:—

563a. (1) In the case of any river, stream or creek flowing through or in the neighbourhood of a municipality, the municipal corporation thereof, for the purpose of preventing damage to property within the municipality by floods arising from the overflowing or damming back of such river, stream or creek, may acquire by purchase, lease or otherwise land in such municipality or in any adjoining or neighbouring municipality, and may construct such works thereon, or perform such work in respect thereof as they may deem necessary, and may also, for the purpose aforesaid, deepen, widen, straighten or otherwise improve such river, stream or creek upon the land so acquired, or remove therefrom islands, rocks or other natural obstructions to the free flow of the water in such river, stream or creek; and may expend such moneys for all such purposes as may lawfully be appropriated therefor by the municipality, or may make such contracts in respect thereof as in the opinion of the council may be necessary for the purpose aforesaid; and the council of any municipality may from time to time pass by-laws for any or all of the said purposes, in the manner provided by The Municipal Act as to the passing of by-laws.

2. In case other lands than those so acquired are injuriously affected by any works undertaken under this section the owners or occupiers, or other persons interested in such lands shall be entitled to compensation, and sections 437 to 447 of The Municipal Act shall apply thereto.

[See also s. 563*a*, supra.]

Power to acquire water rights.

564. In addition to the powers given by The Municipal Waterworks Act and subject to all the provisions of the said Act, including those relating to the making of compensation and otherwise, every municipal corporation may acquire by purchase, demise or gift the right or title to any stream, river, creek, waters, waterpower, watercourse or lands, situate, being or flowing in or through any such municipality, or within three miles thereof; and may build, erect, make, preserve, improve, renew, widen or alter any dam or dams, water gates, waste gates, weirs or flumes upon, over or across any such stream, river, creek, waters, watercourse or lands, and make, dig, widen, preserve, alter or improve any raceway or raceways leading to or from any such dam or dams for the purpose of obtaining power to run or drive the necessary machinery for supplying electric light within the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479*a*.

Taken from 51 V. c. 28, s. 38 (1888).

Object of this power.

(a). "Every municipal corporation may acquire . . . for the purpose of obtaining power . . . for supplying electric light."

The latter words apparently control the whole section. The powers conferred by s. 3 of "The Municipal Light and Heat Act," (a) "to manufacture and supply electric . . . or . . . other artificial light" are limited to cities, towns and villages (b).

Powers under R.S.O. c. 235.

(b). "Being or flowing in or through any such municipality or within three miles thereof."

"The Municipal Waterworks Act" authorizes local municipalities to divert and appropriate for the purposes of that Act, ponds, streams or springs of water on any lands within ten miles and to take water from any lake or river within 15 miles of the municipality (c).

Town or village may acquire water privileges and lands adjacent.

565.—(1) The corporation of any town or village may acquire by lease or purchase any water privilege or water privileges situate within its limits, together with sufficient lands adjacent thereto, for the proper user of such water privileges or water privileges, and may from time to time expend thereon such sums of money as are necessary for the development, repairs and user of such water privilege or water privileges and lands, including the erection, improvement and repair of buildings in connection therewith, and they may for the purposes aforesaid borrow upon the debentures of the corporation such sums as are required for the same, for such periods and at such rates of interest as the corporation may by by-law determine.

Sec. 565 (1)-(4), 566 (1).

Acquiring and improving water privileges.

(2) Before acquiring any such water privilege or water privileges and lands, a by-law shall be submitted to the ratepayers of the municipality setting forth, (1) the agreement for such acquisition, which shall have been previously entered into subject to ratification by the ratepayers, (2) the amount required to be borrowed for the purpose of such acquisition, and containing generally all such matters as are required by this Act in relation to money by-laws.

By-law to be submitted to ratepayers.

(3) The vote of the ratepayers upon such by-law shall be taken in the manner provided by sections 338 to 365, both inclusive, of this Act, and the persons entitled to vote thereon shall be the persons named in the said sections, and in case a majority of such persons vote in favour of the by-law the council shall pass the same.

Proceedings for taking vote.

(4) Upon the acquisition of such water privilege or water privileges the corporation may use the same for their own purposes, and may grant leases of the whole or any parts thereof upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon and may otherwise deal with the same as fully and effectually to all intents and purposes as might be done by an individual; but no sale of any part of the said water privileges or lands so acquired shall be made until a by-law authorizing the same has been submitted to the ratepayers and passed by a vote of the same class of persons as voted upon the by-law authorizing the acquisition of said water privileges and lands; and no lease shall be granted for a longer period than thirty years with right of renewal and renewals. 60 V. c. 45, s. 14.

Power to use water privileges and lease same.

works and all buildings, materials, machinery and appurtenances thereto belonging in the municipality and in the neighbourhood thereof, subject to the provisions contained in The Municipal Waterworks Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (3).

Taken from 45 V. c. 25, s. 2 (1882). "The Municipal Waterworks Act," (R. S. O. c. 235), which applied only to cities, towns and villages, was extended to townships in 1886 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48.

Acquiring existing waterworks.

3. For authorizing any gas or water company to lay down pipes or conduits for the conveyance of water or gas under streets or public squares, subject to such regulations as the council sees fit. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (30).

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V, c. 99), s. 259 (15).

(b) Nearly all the charters of gas and water companies incorporated by special Acts authorize the company "to break up, dig and trench . . . streets, squares and public places," etc., after giving notice to the local authorities of intention to do so and without requiring the authority of a by-law under this subsection (a). Companies incorporated under the general "Act respecting Joint Stock Companies for supplying Cities, Towns and Villages with Gas and Water" (b) have similar powers under ss. 22 and 25 of that Act; but, upon an application for the incorporation of such a company, evidence must be given that the council of the municipality in which the operations of the company are to be carried on has passed a by-law under this section empowering the applicants, when incorporated, to lay down pipes under the streets, squares and other public places of the municipality (c); and after incorporation the consent of the council is necessary to the exercise by the company of any compulsory power to take land. (s. 17).

The powers conferred as aforesaid by ss. 22 and 25 of R. S. O. c. 199 upon gas and water companies are extended by R. S. O. c. 200, s. 4 to companies incorporated under that Act or its predecessors (d), so as to authorize Constructing gas, electric lighting and waterworks.

4. For constructing gas, electric light or water works, and for levying an annual special rate to defray the yearly interest of the expenditure therefor and to form an equal yearly sinking fund for the payment of the principal within a time not exceeding thirty years and not less than five years for gas or waterworks, in the case of any such city, town or village, or for electric light works in towns having a population of 5,000 or less, as ascertained by the latest census of Canada, and in villages, and not exceeding twenty years or less than five years for electric light works in cities and towns having a population of over 5,000 as ascertained by such latest census. 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 35 (1).

Council to buy out works of existing companies.

(a) In case there is any gas, electric light or water company incorporated for or in the municipality, the council shall not levy any such special rate, or construct works for lighting the public streets, until such council has, by by-law, fixed a price to offer for the works and property of the company or companies, nor until after thirty days have elapsed after notice of such price has been communicated to the company or companies, without the company or companies having accepted the same, or without the company or companies having, under the provisions of this Act as to arbitrations, named and given notice of an arbitrator to determine the price, nor until the price accepted or awarded has been paid, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the company or companies, and in case the company or companies and the municipality do not agree, the said price shall be determined by arbitration under this Act: and where there is more than one such company in the municipality the arbitrators shall determine the share or proportion of the price paid to each company. This clause (a) shall only apply to a gas or electric light company that has supplied or shall supply gas or electric light for street lighting in the municipality, or to a water company that has supplied or shall supply water for street hydrants in the municipality.

How value of property is to be determined.

(*a*2) In any arbitration under clause (a) hereof to determine the price to be paid for the works and property of a gas or water company, the arbitrators shall determine the actual value of such works and property having regard to what the same would cost if the works should be then constructed or the property then bought making due allowance for deterioration and wear and tear, and making all other proper allowances, but not allowing anything for prospective profits or franchise and shall increase the amount so ascertained by ten per cent. thereof, and such increased amount shall be the amount which the arbitrator or arbitrators shall award as the price to be allowed for the said works and property.

And price fixed by arbitrators.

(*a*3) In any arbitration under clause (a) hereof to determine the price to be paid for the works and property of an electric light company the arbitrators shall determine the actual value of such works and property having regard (1) to what the same would cost if the works should be then constructed or the property then bought; (2) to the condition of the works and to any deterioration thereof from use and wear and tear or by reason of the system or appliances having become in whole or in part obsolete; (3) to the value of such works and property to the municipal corporation for the purposes and to the extent to which the municipality can make use of the same and to such value for commercial and such other purposes as a company could use them for; and (4) to the cost of procuring more valuable or modern improvements or appliances therefor, if any, and the cost of acquiring the right to use and of adapting such improvements, the arbitrators making all proper allowances but not allowing anything for prospective profits or franchise, and such amount so ascertained shall be the amount which the arbitrators shall award as the price to be allowed for the works and property.

Where the proposed works are not intended to supply light or water for commercial purposes.

(*a*4) Where in any of the said municipalities the municipal council desires to construct works as aforesaid to supply light for street lighting and other public uses on highways, or to supply water for street hydrants and other public uses on highways, but not for commercial purposes, the council may by the said by-law, limit the price to be offered as aforesaid to a price for part only or for the use of part or for the purchase of certain parts and the use of other parts of the works of a company, that is to say, to so much thereof as may be required for such public uses, and in the event of an arbitration hereinafter thereafter held to determine as to such offer and price, the arbitrator or arbitrators shall have power, after taking into consideration the effect of severance, if any, or user on the remaining property and business of the company, to award a severance of the works, if the arbitrator or arbitrators shall determine that after severance, if any, or user the company will be in all probability, having regard to the nature of the business, and all the circumstances, in a position to successfully carry on that part of their business which consists in supplying private consumers at rates not less favourable to the consumers, the company to have the right to continue to operate the balance of their works for that purpose, and if the arbitrator or arbitrators shall so award a severance, they shall, by their award, determine what part of the works the municipality shall acquire for said purposes before levying the said special rate, as well as the price thereof, but nothing herein contained shall affect the right of the council at any subsequent time to offer a price for the said balance of the said works under the provisions of this Act.

Acquiring existing light or waterworks.

When proposed works are not intended to supply light or water for commercial purposes.

(*a*5) And if within one month after the publication of any award made under article (a) or (*a*4) hereof the municipality shall give notice in writing to the company that they will not accept the terms thereof their offer may be withdrawn provided they first pay all costs of the reference and award and provided also that in the event of such withdrawal the municipality shall not until after the expiration of two years from such withdrawal be entitled to again avail themselves of the provisions of the clause under which the award was made.

Municipality may withdraw from purchase.

(*a*6) In case there is any gas or electric light company supplying gas, electric energy or light or water company supplying water in any municipality, the council may, by-law, fix a price and terms to offer for the supply by contract by such gas or electric light company of gas or electric energy or light for street lighting and other public uses, or for the supply by contract by such water company of water for street hydrants and other public uses for a term of not less than five years and not more than ten years, and after thirty days have elapsed after notice of such price and terms has been communicated to the company without the company's having accepted the same, the council may, under the provisions of this Act as to arbitration name and give notice of an arbitrator to determine the price and terms of the contract for such supply of gas or electric light as aforesaid, and in case the company and the municipality do not agree the said price and terms shall be determined by arbitration under this Act.

Arbitration to fix price for supply of gas, etc., by contract.

(*a*7) Upon an application in writing signed by not less than five ratepayers of the municipality, the council of any municipality may in its discretion by by-law permit the persons making such application to use the name of the municipal corporation for the purpose of taking proceedings to determine the price at which electric light shall be supplied to inhabitants of the municipality for domestic and other purposes provided that no such by-law shall be passed until the persons making such application have given satisfactory security to the council to indemnify the municipal corporation against all costs which may be incurred in the arbitration proceedings. the municipal corporation name and give notice of an arbitrator to determine the price and terms of the contract for the supply of electric light or energy to the inhabitants of the municipality for domestic and all other lighting purposes; and for the purposes in this paragraph set forth, the said applicants so acting in the name of the municipal corporation shall have the power to do all necessary things and take all necessary steps, and their acts shall be as binding upon the municipal corporation, as if the said proceedings were taken by the municipal council thereof, and in case the company and the applicants so acting in the name of the municipal corporation do not agree, the said price and terms shall be determined by arbitration under this Act. The municipal corporation shall have the right and is hereby authorized to take proceedings by arbitration in its own name for the purposes in this subsection mentioned and shall have all necessary powers for that purpose whether on its own motion or when used as in this sub-section is provided.

Where an individual supplies gas, etc.

(*a*8) All the provisions of this section shall apply where an individual supplies electric light or electrical energy, or gas or water for municipal and public purposes. In all such cases the municipal corporation and the individual shall proceed hereunder, and be subject to the provisions hereof in the same manner as if the individual were a company.

(*a*9) Any municipal corporation and company or individual may agree that the official arbitrator appointed under The Act respecting Municipal Arbitrations shall determine any matters in difference hereunder, and in such case his award shall be final and binding upon the parties as if such award had been made by arbitrators appointed under this Act.

Sub-s. 4 (in so far as it relates to gas and waterworks) is based on s. 291 (4) of the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99.) The provision as to electric light works was added in 1897 by 60 V. c. 15, ss. 3, 85, and the whole sub-section recast in its present form by s. 35 of 62 V. (2nd Sess.) c. 26 (1899).

The first part of clause (a), down to the words "satisfaction of the company" in line 13, has a similar history; the words "and in case the company and the municipality do not agree, the said price shall be determined by arbitration under this Act" were added in the Revision of 1897 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C 188.

The rest of clause (a) and the whole of clauses a2—(which is copied from s. 60 of R. S. O. c. 199, respecting Gas and Water Companies)—and a4 to a9 inclusive were added when this clause was re-enacted in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Sess.) c. 26, s. 35, which further provided that nothing therein contained should apply to or affect any by-law then (April 1st, 1899) in force, or which had theretofore come into effect, or to any contract theretofore made or entered into between a municipal corporation and any gas, electric light or water company, and that nothing in the Act contained should be deemed to prevent (1) any contract being thereafter entered into between a municipal corporation and any such company, or (2) any by-law being passed by a municipal council not inconsistent with the Act in the same manner and for the same purpose and to the same extent as before the amendment of the sub-section.

(c) "For constructing gas and water works." See also "The Municipal Light and Heat Act" (a), with which is incorporated (b) ss. 14 and 15 of R. S. O. c. 199, respecting gas and water companies (c).

(d) The Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99) s. 291 (7), which applied only to cities and towns, provided that the power, now conferred by sub-s. 4, of levying rates to defray the cost of constructing gas or water works, should not be exercisable until the works and stock of any gas or water company already incorporated in the municipality under "The Act respecting Joint Stock Companies for Supplying Cities, Towns and Villages with Gas and Water," had been acquired by the municipality.

Acquiring works and stock of existing companies.

By 45 V. c. 18, ss. 3-11 (1882) (a), more detailed provision was made as to the procedure to be adopted for the acquisition by a city, town or village of the works of any such company thereafter incorporated or which might agree to come within the purview of the Act; but the directions of the Statute (b) as to the basis upon which the arbitrators should determine the value of the company's property, having been found not to be sufficiently clear or definite, (c), fuller provision on this point has now been made by clauses a3-a5, supra, and additional powers have been conferred upon the municipality by clauses a6 to a9 inclusive.

It is apprehended, however, that ss. 59-67 of R. S. O. c. 199 still remain in force, and that the municipality may, in the cases and under the circumstances therein mentioned, take possession of works intended to be thus acquired before actually paying the amount of the award. (d)

Proviso as to provisions in special Acts.

(b) The provisions of the two preceding clauses 3 and 4 shall not be construed to apply to, or affect the provisions contained in any special Act obtained, or to be obtained, by any company or municipal corporation, or the provisions contained in any contract existing on the 1st day of April, 1899, between any municipal corporation and any company. 55 V. c. 42, s. 508; 62 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 26, s. 35 (2).

Powers in respect of lighting and construction of gas works.

(c) Subject to the provisions of this Act, or of any special Act, so far as the same may be applicable, the powers of a municipal corporation for lighting the municipality, or for constructing gas works, whether by this or any special Act, shall include the powers conferred on gas companies by sections 14 and 15 of The Act respecting Joint Stock Companies for supplying Cities, Towns and Villages with Gas and Water. 55 V. c. 42. s. 480 (2).

(e) The powers conferred upon gas companies by the Act referred to, (and which are by this clause extended to municipal corporations,) are now substantially covered by s. 3 of "The Municipal Light and Heat Act." (e) Since this clause was first passed they have been still further enlarged by 56 V. c. 29, s. 1, so as to include the power "to manufacture and supply electricity for the purpose of generating heat or power and for all other purposes for which electricity is capable of being used."

Note (f).

Municipal gas, electric light and water to be supplied on request to buildings on line of supply pipes or wires.

where there is a sufficient supply thereof, it shall be the duty of the corporation to supply with gas, electric light or water all buildings within the municipality situate upon land lying along the line of any supply pipe or wires of the said corporation, upon the same being requested by the owner, occupant, or other person in charge of such building.

Corporation may require security from consumer.

(e) The corporation, before supplying gas, electric light or water to any building, or as a condition of continuing to supply the same, may require any consumer to give reasonable security for the payment of the proper charges of the company therefor or for carrying the gas, electric light or water into such building.

Liability for failure of supply not affected.

(f) Nothing in the preceding two clauses (d) and (e) contained shall be construed in any way to affect the liability of any corporation in respect of damages on account of any failure of supply through mischance, accident or mismanagement, but the position of the corporation in respect thereto shall remain as if said two clauses had not been enacted. 55 V. c. 42, s. 480 (3-5); 62 V. Duty of corporation to supply gas water etc.

(f) Clause (d). The effect of this clause was considered in Attorney-General of Canada v. City of Toronto (a). In that case a by-law of the defendants, passed under a local Act containing language similar to that of ss. 20 and 21 of "The Municipal Waterworks Act" (b), allowed a discount of 50 per cent. on all water rates paid within the first two months of each half year, but excepted from the benefit of this discount "government or other institutions exempt from city taxes." The trial Judge held the by-law valid on the ground that the water-rates were not taxes, but the price paid for a commodity (water) sold by the city to the consumers, and his view was unanimously concurred in by the Court of Appeal; but the Supreme Court reversed this decision and declared the by-law invalid, holding that the effect of the clause now under consideration is to treat the corporation "not as a mere commercial vendor of a commodity, but as a public body entrusted with the management of the water for the benefit of the whole body of inhabitants, and as such compelled to supply this element, necessary not merely for the private purposes of individuals, but indispensable for the preservation of the public health," etc., (c). PATTERSON, J., dissented on the ground that the section does not compel a municipal corporation to supply the water free of charge, or free from restrictions as to the quantity to be used, or the mode in which or the purpose for which it may be used (d). An application for leave to appeal to Her Majesty in Council was refused with costs.

Not a contractual relationship.

In Scottish Ontario and Manitoba Land Co. v. City of Toronto and in Dejoe v. City of Toronto (f), both of which were actions by consumers of water against a municipal corporation for not providing a proper supply of pure water for the plaintiffs' elevators according to agreement, and for negligently and knowingly allowing the water supplied by them to become impregnated with sand which greatly damaged the elevators,—it was held by ROSE, J., before whom the case was tried; (1) that there was no right of action in the plaintiffs by reason of any statutory obligation on the part of the defendants arising upon the (special) Acts under which the defendant's waterworks had been established; (2) that upon the evidence there was no contract between the plantiffs and defendants by which the latter were bound to supply the former with water free from sand, and (3), semble, that the relation between the parties was rather that of licensor and licensee than one founded upon contract.

No contractual relationship.

The learned Judge says (p. 464):—

> "I find nowhere in the (special) Act, and certainly not in the general Waterworks Act, anything which would imply that the supply of water by the corporation to any individual is on the basis of a contract between the parties, by which the corporation undertakes to supply water in any particular quantity or of any particular quality. It would seem to be against the reason of the thing. The powers given are for the benefit of the public generally; and the needs and requirements of different individuals vary. Most would require water for domestic purposes, some for manufacturing purposes, and some for scientific purposes. The inhabitants as a whole would require water for municipal purposes, such as putting out fires, laying the dust upon the streets, etc. Is it intended to enable or compel the corporation to enter into a contract with each taker according to his particular need or requirement? If a contract was made, then there was a contractual obligation to furnish the taker with water fit for the purposes for which he might reasonably require it. And if, without any fault on the part of the city, there was a breach of such contract, the liability for damages would exist. If, by reason of the supply having failed, the householder suffered damages,—as for instance in winter, by the bursting of pipes, or, in the case of a manufacturer, by the destruction of machinery, or in any other way that loss might come to any individual taker,—then an action would lie for breach of contract, and damages almost without limit might be recovered from the corporation in actions almost without number. The reason of the thing is against such conclusion."

And no warranty as to quality of water, etc. supplied.

This judgment was affirmed in appeal (a), OSLER, and LISTER, JJ. A., holding that the city being bound by law to supply water from their system of waterworks to any inhabitant of the city who applies therefor and complies with the statutory conditions, no contractual relationship arose between the city and plaintiffs by reason of the application for water and the city's compliance therewith, and that the city were not liable, as upon a breach of contract to supply pure water, for injuries caused to the elevators; and, per Sir GEORGE BURTON, C. J. O., (p. 348):—

> "It surely cannot be said that there was any warranty that the water was fit for the purpose for which it was required. Here was a sale of an existing article upon which the purchaser had the opportunity of exercising his own judgment, and there was no fraud on the part of the sellers; and even though the defect might not have been discoverable until after the water was in use, whenever it was ascertained, it was open to the plaintiffs to cease to take it, and thus to prevent the damage which subsequently occurred. I think the learned Judge was right in holding that the action was not maintainable."

Unless negligence, no damages recoverable on account of water not being pure.

In Milnes v. Huddersfield (Mayor of) (b) the defendants, being empowered by their special Act to prescribe the materials to be used for service pipes, prescribed that the material might be either lead or cast-iron, and upon the application of the plaintiff and at his expense laid into his premises a leaden service pipe, which thereupon became the plaintiff's property, but continued to be under the control of the defendants, and could not without their consent be interfered with by the plaintiff. Through these pipes they supplied to the plaintiff water which was pure and wholesome in the mains, but which, in its passage through the service pipes, became contaminated by the lead, and poisoned the plaintiff. of "The Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847" (a) to provide, etc., pure and wholesome water, it was held that the statutory obligation of the defendants was only to supply water which was pure and wholesome in the mains, and that this obligation having been complied with, and no negligence having been alleged or proved, the defendants were not liable.

Security may be required before supplying gas, water, etc.

(g). Clause (e). As to the right to cut off the supply of gas or water for non-payment of rates, see, as to gas, Cadieux v. Montreal Gas Co., (b) and as to water, Lindbery v. City of Halifax, (c) and s. 21 (2) of "The Municipal Waterworks Act," (R. S. O. c. 235).

Under s. 35 of "The Waterworks Clauses Act, 1847," (d) any company authorized to construct waterworks under that Act is compellable to lay down pipes and bring water to any part of the town, etc., provided a binding agreement to take a supply of water for three successive years is executed by so many owners and occupiers of houses in the district to be served that the aggregate water-rates payable by them annually shall amount to one-tenth of the expense of providing and laying down such pipes, and (e) to lay in service pipes and supply water to any house in a street in which pipes have been laid, provided the owner of such house (or the occupier with the written consent of the owner) so requests and pays or tenders the proportion of the water-rate which is payable in advance in respect of such house.

Liability for failure of supply through accident, not affected.

(h). Clause (f). See also R. S. O., c. 235, s. 26.

A private Act provided that a water company should,—at the request of the owner or occupier of any premises situate in or adjoining any street in which any main or service pipe of the company was laid,—furnish a supply of water if required by such owner or occupier. In an action by a person so entitled, alleging that the company had made default, by reason whereof the plaintiff had been unable to extinguish a fire which destroyed his premises, the company pleaded,—(1) that the default was occasioned by the fact that the fire-plug was opened for the purpose of extinguishing another fire, and (2), that they were prevented from affording the said supply of water from unavoidable cause or accident. Held, that the first plea was good but the second bad (f).

Rev. Stat. c. 235.

See references at end of section. (60 V. c. 45, s. 85 merely fixes the date (July 1st, 1897). Since clause 4 of s. 566 has been repealed and re-enacted by 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 35 (1), the words (in italics) in line 4 relating thereto have become unnecessary.

(a) Sub-section 2 was passed in consequence of the decision in Re Hay and Town of Listowel, (a) where a by-law of that municipality "to raise $15,000 for the purpose of acquiring and constructing a system of waterworks and gas or electric light works," etc., was quashed on the ground that the debentures to be issued thereunder were made payable in thirty years from the date on which the by-law took effect, instead of being limited to twenty years, as was then required by 55 V. c. 42, s. 340 (2), (now superseded by s. 384 (4)).

(b) Sub-section 3. "And in case the by-law embraces two or more subject matters, the procedure shall be that of this Act and not that of "The Municipal Water Works Act."

Procedure.

The procedure of "The Municipal Water Works Act" is defined by ss. 51-53 of that Act, under which the council are bound to submit the by-law to the vote of the rate-payers on receiving a sufficiently signed petition and a deposit to cover the expense of taking the vote. The procedure of this Act has been already described. (b) Section 569 (5) applies to by-laws for constructing, but not to by-laws for acquiring water works.

Contracts for the supply of gas or electric light for street lighting, etc.

568. Every municipal council shall have power to contract for a supply of gas or electric light for street lighting and other public uses for any number of years not in the first instance exceeding ten, and for renewing such contract from time to time for such period not exceeding ten years, as the council may desire. 55 V. c. 42, s. 480 (1) part.

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 20 (1889).

(a) By making contracts of this sort, extending over a term of years, municipalities are often enabled to secure cheaper lighting, but doubts having been expressed as to the power of a council thus to tie the hands of its successors, express statutory authority for such contracts was considered to be desirable.

In Hull Electric Co. v. City of Ottawa Electric Co. and City of Hull, Q. R. 14 S. C. 124 (1898), it was held that a resolution of a municipal council granting to an individual or a company the exclusive privilege of lighting the municipality for a term of thirty years was invalid, and that the confirmation thereof by a Provincial Act was also invalid and ultra vires of the Legislature as being a restriction upon "trade and commerce" which, under s. 91 (2) of "The B. N. A. Act, 1867," the Dominion Parliament has exclusive jurisdiction to regulate. An exclusive permission to the defendant company to plant poles and put up wires along the streets of the town was held to be ancillary to the foregoing grant, and, therefore, to be also ultra vires. 569.—(1) By-laws may be passed by the councils of cities and towns:—

Street Railways.

Power to build, maintain and operate street railways.

For building, equipping, and maintaining and operating street railways in, along and over such streets of the city or town and subject to and upon such terms as the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may approve; and for leasing the same from time to time on such terms as may be determined on; and for levying an annual special rate to defray the yearly interest on the expenditure therefor, and to form an equal yearly sinking fund for the payment of the principal within a time not exceeding 30 years.

But not where there is a street railway in operation.

Provided that the powers conferred by this subsection shall not apply to a municipality in which there is an existing street railway constructed or operated under any agreement or contract between the municipality and any street railway company. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (14).

Rights and liabilities of municipality.

(2) A municipal corporation which builds, constructs, owns, or manages a street railway shall have and exercise the same rights and powers and be subject to the same liabilities as street railways and companies under The Street Railway Act, except where the same conflict or are inconsistent with or are repugnant to the rights, powers, liabilities or duty of a municipal corporation as provided by law. Nothing herein contained shall relieve any municipality from its obligations and liabilities in respect of roads, streets, highways or bridges as provided by this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (15).

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 25 (1890). See also the power conferred upon a municipal council by ss. 41-45 of "The Street Railway Act," R. S. O. c. 208, (originally 46 V. c. 18, ss. 18-21) to acquire, operate and dispose of a street railway incorporated since February 1st, 1883, and operating its lines (or the greater part thereof) in the municipality.

Power to build and operate extensions of street railway in adjoining municipality.

(3) In addition to the powers given and contained in subsection 1 of this section any city or town operating or proposing or intending to build or operate a street railway within its own limits may also pass by-laws for building, equipping, maintaining and operating any extension of any such street railway in any adjoining municipality (with the consent of such adjoining municipality by by-law, and subject to and upon such terms as the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council may approve) upon the same terms and subject to the same conditions and provisions of law as any street railway company may build, maintain or operate any street railway under The Street Railway Act; and such city or town building, constructing, owning or managing a street railway extending beyond its territorial limits (and authorized as aforesaid and with the consent aforesaid) shall not be held to be illegally expending money, merely because it is expended upon or in connection with such portion of said street railway as extends beyond its territorial limits. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (16).

Sec. 569 (4) Note (a).

Extensions of municipal street railway into adjoining municipality.

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 23 (1891).

(a). The difference between railways for general traffic and street railways consists in their use and not in their motive power.

What is a street railway?

> "A railroad, the rails of which are laid to conform to the grade and surface of the street and which is otherwise so constructed that the public is not excluded from the use of any part of the street as a public way, which runs at a moderate rate of speed, which carries no freight, but only passengers from one part of a thickly populated district to another . . . and for that purpose runs its cars at short intervals, stopping at street crossings to receive and discharge its passengers, is a street railway, whether the cars are propelled by animal or mechanical power." (a)

A street railway constructed on a public highway without authority is a public nuisance (b) and, semble, a municipal corporation cannot, without express legislative authority, (c) legalize the construction or operation of a street railway on any of the highways of the municipality. (d) In Reg. v. Train et al. (e) the defendants under a contract with the local authority, (the vestry of a parish), laid down in one of the streets of London a double line of tramways on which omnibusses of a peculiar construction plied for hire, but they were dangerous and inconvenient for ordinary vehicular traffic. It was held that, although these tramways might (in a sense) be for the convenience of the public, they were a public nuisance, and the contract was ultra vires of the vestry. Winnipeg Street R. W. Co. v. Winnipeg Electric R. W. Co. and City of Winnipeg (f) turned upon the construction of the contract between the plaintiffs and defendant municipal corporation; but in giving the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, Lord WATSON expresses doubt as to whether, if the city had by its agreement with the plaintiffs given them an exclusive right to use the streets of the municipality for street railway purposes, such a contract would not have been ultra vires of the city council.

Legislative authority necessary to legalize occupation of highways by a street railway.

Electric Street Railways.

(4) By-laws may be passed by the councils of cities:—

Bylaws compelling street railway companies to provide shelter for motormen.

For compelling every electric railway company, operating its railway within the limits of such city, to provide proper and sufficient enclosed vestibules upon its street cars to protect the motormen and persons in charge of such cars, from expo-

J. of York, held that the words "persons in charge," etc., refer to other persons than motormen, and apply to the conductors of electric street cars. As to the right to proceed by summary prosecution under s. 705 of this Act for contravention of a by-law passed under this subsection, see Reg. v. Toronto Railway Co., 30 O. R. 214 (1898), 26 A. R.—(1899), not yet reported.

By-laws Relating to Street Railways or to Gas, Electric Light or Water-works.

(5) No by-law under clause 4 of section 566 or under sub-section 1 of this section shall be passed :—

Estimates and notice of holding poll on by-law to be published.

Firstly :—Until estimates of the intended expenditure have been published for one month, and notice of the time appointed for holding a poll of the electors on the proposed by-law has been published for two months and until a copy of the proposed by-law at length, as the same is to be ultimately passed, and a notice of the day appointed for finally considering the same in council, have been published for one month in some newspaper in the municipality, or (if no newspaper is published therein, then) in some newspaper in the county in which the municipality is situate ; nor,

Poll to be held and majority of votes in favour of by-law.

Secondly :—Until, at a poll held in the same manner and at the same places and continued for the same time as at elections for councillors, a majority of the electors voting at the poll vote in favour of the by-law ; nor,

By-law to be passed within three months.

Thirdly :—Unless the by-law is passed within three months after holding the said poll.

The above clauses of this sub-section (and also sub-section 6, infra) are taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99) s. 291 (5-6), which applied only to by-laws under what is now s. 566 (4). Its application was extended in 1890, by 53 V. c. 50, s. 26, to by-laws relating to the building, etc., of street railways (s. 569 (1)), and in 1899, by 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 35 (4), to by-laws relating to electric light works. By 59 V. c. 51, s. 18 (1896), the time during which the proposed by-law is required to be published was reduced from three months to one month ; and in the Revision of 1897 the words "as the same is to be ultimately passed" were substituted for "as the same may be ultimately passed." See 60 V. c. 3, s. 3, and Re Bryant and Township of Pittsburg, 13 C. C. R. 347 (1855).

The last clause, which in the earlier Acts provided that the by-law should "be passed at the special meeting mentioned in the published notice" was altered to its present form in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 389.

"Electors," meaning of.

from time to time to raise on the credit of the said corporation such further sums as may be necessary to extend or improve the said works or to pay the expense of any extensions or improvements thereof already made or completed, wholly or in part, and to pass by-laws for levying on the whole rateable property of the said corporation an annual special rate sufficient to defray the yearly interest upon the sums so expended, and to form an equal yearly sinking fund for the payment of the principal within a time not exceeding thirty years nor less than five years; and in such cases it shall not be necessary to comply with the preceding requirements of this section, or to obtain the assent of the electors or ratepayers to such by-law or by-laws, provided the same are first approved of by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, it being first shewn to the satisfaction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council that the said extensions are or were necessary, and that a sufficient additional revenue will be derived therefrom to meet the annual special rate required to pay the new debt and interest; and provided also that on the final passing of such by-law or by-laws, three-fourths of all the members of the council vote in favour of the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 505; 59 V. c. 51, s. 18; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (87); 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 35 (4).

This proviso, as first added to the sub-section in 1888 by 51 V. c. 28, s. 24, applied only to the case of a city having a population exceeding 50,000. By 55 V. c. 36, s. 26, it was made applicable to all cities and towns; and by 53 V. c. 50, s. 28, the last mentioned section was repealed, re-enacted, and declared to have been in force at and from the date of the original enactment of the proviso in 1888. "The Municipal Amendment Act of 1891," (54 V. c. 42), s. 32, extended the power of the council by enabling them to raise moneys under this section to pay the expense of extensions or improvements "already made or completed wholly or in part," and (without altering the effect of the clause) its wording was made more clear by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (87). The words "electric light" were inserted by 62 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 26, s. 35 (5), passed on April 1st, 1899, which further provided that:—

"(5) Nothing in this section contained shall apply to or affect any by-law now in force or which had at the time of the passing of this section come into effect, nor to any contract heretofore made or entered into between a municipal corporation and any gas, electric light or water company, nor shall anything in this Act contained be deemed to prevent any contract being entered into hereafter between a municipal corporation and any such company, or any by-law being passed by a municipal council not inconsistent with this Act, in the same manner and for the same purpose and to the same extent as heretofore."

If by-law rejected.

(6) If the proposed by-law is rejected at such poll, no other by-law for the same purpose shall be submitted to the electors during the current year. 55 V. c. 42, s. 506.

Provisions in special Acts.

(7) The foregoing sub sections or any of them shall not be construed to apply or to affect the provisions contained in any special Act obtained, or to be obtained, by any company or municipal corporation, or the provisions of any contract existing on the 1st day of April, 1899, between any municipal corporation and any company. 55 V. c. 42, s. 508; 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 35 (2).

Telephone Service.

Cities and towns empowered to carry on telephone service.

570. The council of every city and town shall have power to construct, build, own, purchase, lease, rent, improve, extend, maintain, manage, conduct and carry on a telephone business and service, and all works, land, buildings, plant, machinery, conduits, materials, equipment, apparatus and appurtenances necessary therefor or thereto belonging or appertaining or that may be properly used therewith in the municipality or within two miles thereof, and for supplying the corporation or persons in the municipality or in the neighbourhood thereof with a telephone service and connection therewith, and may make a rate, charge or rent for such service and connections and for the use of transmitters and other apparatus therewith, and may require such payment to be made in advance, and may discontinue such service or the subscriber's connection therewith in default of such payment and may forthwith thereafter remove all transmitters, wires and other apparatus from the premises of such subscriber; and such rate, charge or rate may be collected by action as an ordinary debt, against the person owing the said rate, rent or charge, or may be collected in the same manner as municipal taxes are collected against the person liable to pay the same; and the council may pass by-laws for levying an annual special rate to defray the yearly interest of the expenditure therefor and to form an equal yearly sinking fund for the payment of the principal at any time within a time not exceeding thirty years nor less than five years. 60 V. c. 45, s. 16, part.

This and the next three sections were added to the Act in 1897, by 60 V. c. 45, s. 16, passed at the instance of the Corporation of the City of Toronto.

Carrying works over streets and private property.

571. Such corporations, or their servants under their authority, may for the purpose of laying down, taking up, erecting, constructing, examining or keeping in repair the plant, machinery, conduits, materials, poles, wires, rods, equipment, apparatus or other appliances for conducting, distributing or otherwise carrying on the said telephone business or service or connections therewith, break up, dig and trench in, upon, through, over, under and along the highways, streets lanes, roads, squares and other public ways, passages and places in the munipality, or in, upon, through, over, under and along any private property, or may by means of conduits or upon poles or otherwise conduct or carry such plant, materials, equipment, apparatus, wires or rods through, over, under, along or across such streets, lanes, roads, squares and other public ways, passages and places in the municipality or upon private property, and may also break up, dig and trench all passages common to adjoining owners or tenants for the purpose of laying down conduits or erecting poles therein. But such corporations shall make satisfaction or compensation to the owners or proprietors of buildings or other property for all damages by them sustained in or by the exercise of any of the powers by this section granted. 60 V. c. 45, s. 16, part.

By-laws, etc., for management.

Protection of corporation and officers and limitation of actions.

573. Such corporations and their officers and agents shall in such telephone business and service have the like protection in the exercise of their respective offices and in the execution of their duties as municipalities or their officers now have under the laws of this Province, and if any action is brought or claim made by way of arbitration or otherwise against such corporations or against any person or persons for anything done in pursuance of such telephone business or service or the powers given for the purposes thereof, whether tort or contract, the same shall be brought within six calendar months next after the committing of the act or the discovery of the injury or damage by the injured party or the owner of the property damaged, or in case there is a continuation of damage, then within one year after the first committing of the said act or the discovery as aforesaid. 60 V. c. 45, s. 16, part.

Fruit and Shade Trees.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

Encouraging planting of certain trees, etc.

labour, or out of the general fund, a sum of not less than twenty-five cents for every tree so planted. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (27).

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 379 (20).

"The Ontario Tree Planting Act."

(a) The first step toward encouraging the planting of trees on highways was taken in 1871 by the Act 34 V. c. 31, entitled "An Act to encourage the planting of trees upon the highways of this Province and to give a right of property in such trees to the owners of the soil adjacent to such highways." S. 1 of that Act declared shade trees, etc., then growing on the sides of the highways to be the property of the owners of the adjacent land; and s. 2 gave such owners the right to plant trees upon the contiguous portion of the highway and a right of property in trees so planted. (a)

This Statute (consolidated in 1877 as R.S.O. c. 187), was repealed and re-enacted with modifications in 1883 by 46 V. c. 26, which became R.S.O. (1887) c. 201, and (as amended by 53 V. c. 60) was in its turn repealed and superseded by 59 V. c. 60, which now forms R.S.O. c. 243, "The Ontario Tree Planting Act."

Municipal by-laws.

See. 8 of that Act provides that :—

"The council of every municipality may pass by-laws :—

1. To regulate the planting of trees upon the public highway ;

2. To prohibit the planting upon the public highways of any species of trees which they may deem unsuited for that purpose ;

3. To provide for the removal of trees which may be planted on the public highway contrary to the provisions of any such by-law."

and s. 3 that :—

Municipal bonuses.

"(1) The council of any municipality may pass a by-law for paying out of municipal funds a bonus or premium not exceeding twenty-five cents for each and every ash, basswood, beech, birch, butternut, cedar cherry, chestnut, elm, hickory, maple, oak, pine, sassafras, spruce, walnut or whitewood tree, which shall, under the provisions of this Act, be planted within such municipality on any highway, or on any boundary line of farms, . . . or within six feet of such boundary.

Inspector of shade trees.

(2) Such by-law shall further provide for the appointment of an inspector of trees so planted ; for their due protection against injury and against removal by any person or persons, including the owner, excepting as authority may be given therefor by special resolution of the council ; for the conditions on which bonuses may be paid, and generally for such regulations as are authorized by sub-sections 2 and 3 of section 574 of "The Municipal Act." (b)

See also 62 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 30, here consolidated as s. 746*a* of this Act.

(b) "In abatement of statute labour." See "The Assessment Act," (R.S.O. c. 224) ss. 96-110.

Provincial refund of municipal bonuses.

(c) "Or out of the general fund." i.e., out of municipal funds. See R.S.O. c. 243, s. 3, quoted supra. Sec. 5 of the same Act authorizes the Provincial Treasurer, under the circumstances and upon the terms therein mentioned, to refund to the municipality one-half the amount of any bonuses thus paid.

(d) "Not less than twenty-five cents for each tree so planted." Sections 3 of R.S.O. c. 243, (c) says "not exceeding 25 cents" in the case of the species of trees therein mentioned.

By the councils of counties, cities, townships, towns and villages :—

Removal of trees planted on streets, etc.

2. For causing any tree, shrub or sapling, growing or planted on any public place, square, highway, street, lane, alley

(a) As to ss. 3 and 5, see the small-print references under subsec. 2, infra.

(b) S. 2 of the Act is quoted infra in note (e) and ss. 6 and 7 are referred to in note (c) to s. 547 (3), ante.

or other communication under its control, to be removed, if and when such removal is deemed necessary for any purpose of public improvement; but Notice and compensation to adjoining owner.

(a) Any owner of adjoining property shall be entitled to ten days' notice of the intention of the council to remove such tree, shrub or sapling, and shall be entitled to be recompensed for his trouble in planting and protecting the same.

Resolution of council necessary.

(b) No owner of adjoining property nor any pathmaster or other public officer, nor any other person, shall remove or cut down or injure such tree, shrub or sapling, on pretence of improving the public place, square, highway, street, road, lane, alley or other communication or otherwise, without the express permission of the municipal council having the control of the public place, square, highway, street, road, lane, alley or other communication.

Council may plant or preserve shade, etc., trees, or may grant money for that purpose.

(c) Any council may expend money in planting or preserving shade and ornamental trees upon any public place, square, highway, street, road, lane, alley or other communication within the municipality, and may grant sums of money to any person or association of persons to be expended for the same purposes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (20).

This sub-section is based upon ss. 3 and 5 of the Act 34 V. c. 31, referred to in note (a). It was incorporated into "The Con. Mun. Act of 1873", (36 V. c. 48), as 5. 372 (19), and has been repeated without alteration in each successive consolidation down to 1887, when it formed s. 479 (20) of R.S.O. c. 174, "The Municipal Amendment Act of 1891" repealed and re-enacted the whole sub-section with the substitution of "ten days' notice" for "one month's notice" in clause (a) thereof.

(e) Section 2 of R.S.O. c. 243 provides that:—

Adjoining owners may plant trees on highways, etc.

"2.—(1) A person owning land adjacent to any highway, public street, lane, alley, place or square in this Province, may plant trees on the portion thereof contiguous to his land; but no tree shall be so planted that the same is or may become a nuisance in the highway or other public thoroughfare, or obstruct the fair and reasonable use of the same.

Trees on boundary lines.

(2) Any owner of a farm or lot may, with the consent of the owner or owners of adjoining lands, plant trees on the boundaries of the adjoining lot.

Property in trees planted by owners.

(3) Every tree so planted on such highway, street, lane, alley, place or square, shall be deemed to be the property of the owner of the lands adjacent to such highway, street, lane, alley, place or square, and nearest to such tree; and every such tree so planted on a boundary line aforesaid shall be deemed to be the common property of the owners of the adjoining farms or lots.

Property in all shade and ornamental trees.

(4) Every growing tree, shrub or sapling whatsoever planted or left standing on either side of any highway for the purposes of shade or ornament shall be deemed to be the property of the owner of the land adjacent to the highway and nearest to such tree, shrub or sapling."

Sec. 574 (2.) (3), (4).

Notes (e), h).

Adjoining owner may sue wrongdoer cutting shade trees on highway.

In Douglas v. Fox (a) it was held that under the Act then in force (b) the owner of land adjoining a township highway had such a special property in the shade and ornamental trees growing on the highway opposite to his land (though not planted by him) that he might maintain an action against a wrongdoer for cutting and removing them, and was not restricted to recovering the penalty given by s. 5 (now s. 6) of the Act (c).

But (formerly) not in cities unless by-law passed making R.S.O. c. 243, s. 2, apply thereto.

All the Tree Planting Acts prior to the one now in force provided that the section thereof which declared trees growing on a highway to be the property of the owner of the adjoining land, should not apply to the highways in any city, town or village unless the council thereof should so enact by by-law; and in Hodgins v. City of Toronto, (d) it was held that the subsection now under consideration had no force in a city where such a by-law had not been passed. In that case the Bell Telephone Company, under an arrangement with the other defendants, the Corporation of the City of Toronto, maintained a police patrol telephone system in the city. The wires belonging to this telephone system being interfered with by the branches of trees, the two defendants sent men to put them right, in doing which these men cut off branches of trees, some of which grew within the plaintiff's grounds and others in the adjoining boulevard. None of the trees or branches so cut had interfered with the ordinary use of the highway, and there was no by-law or resolution of the council authorizing the acts complained of. The trial Judge, finding as a fact that the cutting was not judiciously done and that the trees had been injured, gave judgment for the plaintiff, but on appeal it was held that although in respect of the trees growing upon his own land the plaintiff was entitled to recover, as to those growing upon the highway he had no such right, for the reason above stated.

And where no such by-law, s. 574 (2) did not apply.

R.S.O. c. 243, applies only to travelled highways.

In Connor v. Midlagh, (e) OSLER, J. A., in giving judgment, says, (p. 390) "I doubt . . . whether the Act applies . . . except to the case of trees on the side of a travelled highway." (f)

(g). Clause (b). The property of an adjoining owner in trees growing upon a highway is of a somewhat peculiar character. Such trees cannot be cut down without notice to him, nor (if he has planted or protected them) without his being entitled to compensation, yet he cannot himself cut down or remove them, unless under a special resolution of the council, without becoming liable to fine and possibly to imprisonment. Nuisances caused by overhanging boughs, etc.

(i). This sub-section was passed at the instance of the Corporation of the City of Toronto in consequence of the decision in Hodgins v. City of Toronto, supra, note (e). By the common law of England any traveller along a highway may lop off overhanging boughs which create a nuisance by obstructing his free passage thereon (a); and every landowner possesses the same right in regard to branches of trees growing upon his neighbour's land, but which overhang his own (b).

As to the meaning of the word "trim," Unwin v. Hanson (c) may be referred to. It was an action of trespass against a surveyor of highways, in which the plaintiff claimed damages for the cutting and mutilation of trees in and near the hedges on his lands adjoining a highway. The defendant had cut off the tops of the trees, acting (as he claimed) upon an order of Justices made under the authority of s. 65 of "The Highway Act, 1835," (d) which directed that the trees in question should be "pruned or lopped so that the carriage- or cart-way shall not be prejudiced by the shade thereof, and so that the sun and wind may not be excluded from such carriage-way to the damage thereof." It was held that the word "lop," as used in the section, meant to cut off the branches laterally, and that neither the surveyor nor the Justices had any authority to cut off the tops of trees, or to order them to be cut off (e).

As to the city of Toronto.

5. For authorizing the park commissioner or other officer appointed by the council of any city of over 100,000 inhabitants to cut down and remove all decayed trees, and remove and transplant any trees, shrubs or saplings growing or planted in any public place, square, highway, street, lane or alley, or other means of communication under its control, after giving forty-eight hours' notice of the intention so to do; and the corporation shall not be liable to any owner or owners of adjoining property for any act so performed.

Provided that no live tree, unless within 20 feet of other trees, shall be removed without the consent of the owner of the property in front of which such tree is situate.

Added in 1898 by 61 V. c. 23, s. 19.

(j). This sub-section also was passed at the instance of the Corporation of the City of Toronto, and for the same reason as the preceding one. Passed in 1896. See the references.

(a). See the case of Hodgins v. City of Toronto, referred to in note (e) to s. 574. Since the rights, as well as the remedies, of the adjoining land owners in respect to trees growing upon highways are created and limited by statute, it is difficult to see what effect this section can have, beyond the not undesirable one of emphasizing the rule that a municipal corporation should, as a rule, express its will by means of a by-law.

576. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say:

By the councils of counties, cities, townships, towns and villages:—

Public parks.

(a) See also "The Public Parks Act" (a), and as to the establishment of public parks, etc., by police villages, s. 746 post. Parks belonging to a municipality and in use as such are exempt from taxation (b). Parks may also be established by street railway companies (c), or electric railway companies (d).

Acquiring Land for Parks, etc.

Acquiring land for parks, etc.

Where land expropriated is in an adjoining municipality.

2. In every case in which any municipality expropriates lands in an adjoining municipality, the municipality so expropriating such lands shall put the same in an efficient state to be used as, and shall open the same to the general public, for the purposes of such public parks, squares, boulevards and drives, within a reasonable time after such expropriation, and shall maintain and keep the same in an efficient state of repair, and shall provide and maintain such police protection for such public parks, squares and drives as shall be necessary for the safety of the public frequenting and using the same and the residents whose lands adjoin the lands so expropriated. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (23).

Sec. 576 (2-5) Notes (b), (c).

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 21 (1887).

(b) "Entering upon, taking and using." These words confer upon al[illegible]ici-palities the right to expropriate lands for the purposes mentioned, [illegible]ght not theretofore enjoyed, under sub-section 3, even by cities and town[illegible]

Land may be expropriated.

(c) "Public parks, squares, boulevards and drives."

Section 603 authorizes the acquisition by cities and towns "for a public avenue or walk" of any public highway or road in an adjacent municipality, but only with the consent of such municipality. See the similar provision in the case of sewer extensions through an adjoining municipality, (s. 555), and Township of Barton v. City of Hamilton, referred to in note (b) to that section. The words "boulevards" and "drives" used here and in s. 560, 637 (3), 673 (7) may yet require judicial interpretation. A "boulevard" is defined by the Imperial Dictionary as "a public walk or street occupying the site of demolished fortifications" (cf. "bulwark"); but in s. 638 it is employed to indicate that portion of a (usually residential) street between the street boundaries and the carriage way, which is not occupied by sidewalks, and on which grass and shade trees may be grown.

For what purposes.

"Boulevards," meaning of.

(d) "Shall provide and maintain . . . police protection . . . necessary for the safety of the public . . . and the residents whose lands adjoin."

This is a new statutory duty, and may yet give rise to some interesting questions of municipal liability. A municipality is not, in the absence of some such express provision, liable for failure to provide police protection. (b) S. 560 empowers the council of every municipality to make provision for the safety of the public in parks, gardens, etc., by prohibiting the use of certain vehicles on sidewalks, pathways or footpaths "in or upon any avenue, boulevard, path, park plot, garden," etc.

Police protection.

Vehicles on sidewalks, footpaths, etc.

Industrial Farms.—Exhibition Grounds.

By the councils of cities and towns:—

3. For acquiring any estate in landed property within or without the city or town for an industrial farm, or for a public park, garden or walk or for a place for exhibitions, and for the disposal thereof when no longer required for the purpose; and for accepting and taking charge of landed property, within or without the city or town, dedicated for a public park, garden or walk for the use of the inhabitants of the city or town. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (8).

Industrial farms, parks, exhibition grounds, etc.

4. For the erection thereon of buildings and fences for the purposes of the farm, park, garden, walk or place for exhibitions as the council deems necessary. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (9).

Buildings, etc., thereon.

5. For the management of the farm, park, garden, walk or place for exhibitions and buildings. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (10).

(f). "For the disposal thereof when no longer required for the purpose." See also note (c) to s. 534. Quære, however, as to the right of a municipal creditor to restrain such a sale if his security would be thereby impaired. See Brooklyn Park Commissioners v. Armstrong (a). In that case it was held that the owners of adjoining property had no equity which would entitle them to prevent such a transaction, but this seems to have been doubted by OSLER, J., in Re Peck and Town of Galt, cited in note (h) infra. As to leases of park lands, see subsection 6, infra.

Sale of park lands.

What is a "dedication" for park, etc., purposes.

(g) "Dedicated . . . for the use of the inhabitants." For American authority as to what amounts to a dedication to the public for purposes of recreation, etc., see Dillon, s. 348, note 6.

City of Toronto v. McGill (b) was an action to restrain the owner of a block of land in Toronto from selling it or building upon it. The land had always been enclosed by fences, and formed the garden and grounds attached to the residence of the proprietor or his tenants. On the opposite side of streets surrounding this property the same proprietor had laid out and sold building lots according to a plan on which this block (delineated as within fences) was marked, "McGill's Square," and it was alleged that upon the sale of these lots McGill by his agents had represented that the block in question was intended to be a public square for the use and benefit of the inhabitants of the city and would never be built upon. Held, that what had been done did not amount to a dedication of the block to the public. (c)

Dedicated lands may not be sold.

(h) It is to be noted that the express authority to dispose of lands acquired for a public park, etc., does not extend to lands "dedicated for a public park, garden or walk for the use of the inhabitants of the city or town;" which the municipal council has accepted and taken charge of as such. In Re Peck and Town of Galt (d) the owner of property had registered in 1849 a plan showing an open square bearing the words "Square to remain always free from any erection or obstruction"; and thenceforward until 1881 the square had been open to and used by the public. Held, that the municipality had not power to close up part thereof and sell it to the trustees of a church. OSLER, J., points out that this sub-section "clearly distinguishes between the power of a municipal corporation to dispose of property acquired by dedication and that acquired by purchase," and expresses the opinion that although "a square or park which they lay out upon lands acquired by them for that or other purposes . . . may be dealt with under the ample powers conferred upon them (e) at least where no one has acquired any rights in consequence of their action, yet that section does not authorize them . . . so to deal with property dedicated by the owner for a special purpose."

Without express legislative authority.

It is, however, clear that the Provincial Legislature may authorize the sale, lease or diversion to other uses of lands expressly dedicated or granted by the owner thereof to a municipal corporation for the purpose of being used as a public park, garden or walk. (f) In the United States the power, even of the Legislature, to confer such authority in the case of lands accepted and held by municipalities upon trust for a specific purpose has been doubted, (g) especially where private rights have arisen by reason of the purchase and improvement of adjoining lands. Notes (a)-(g).

Acquiring, etc., land for public cemeteries.

for laying out, improving and managing the same; but no land shall be accepted or purchased for such purpose except by a by-law declaring in express terms that the land is appropriated for a public cemetery, and for no other purpose; and thereupon such land, although without the municipality, shall become part thereof, and shall cease to be a part of the municipality to which it formerly belonged; and such by-law shall not be repealed; and the trustees of any burying-ground or cemetery, or the cemetery company owning any burying-ground or cemetery, may agree for the sale or transfer thereof to the municipality which desires to acquire the same; and in cases where such grounds have not been used for burials, the municipality may dispose thereof, and acquire other ground instead thereof:

The first part of the subsection, down to and inclusive of the words "and such by-law shall not be repealed," is based upon s. 259 (9) of the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99). In the re-enactment of the clause by the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48, s. 379) (7), the words "but not within any city, town or incorporated village," were inserted, and so much of the last clause was added as refers to "the trustees of any burial ground." 50 V. c. 29, s. 23 (1887) inserted the words "except as hereinafter provided" in line 3; and by 51 V. c. 28, s. 228, (1888) the last paragraph was amended by inserting the words "or cemetery, or the cemetery company owning any burying ground or cemetery." Cf. the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), s. 60 (16), (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns); ss. 82, 106, (cities).

(a) The proper interment of the dead is a matter which concerns the health of the living, and is therefore a proper subject for municipal management and control (a). A cemetery is not per se a nuisance (b).

(b) "But not within any city, town or village, except as hereinafter provided. As to cities and towns the prohibition is absolute; as to villages it is qualified by clause (b). As to the enlargement of existing cemeteries, see sub-s. 2. See also s. 553 (3) and note (e) thereto.

(c) "It shall become part thereof and shall cease to be a part of the municipality to which it formerly belonged." So in ss. 527 (2) and 576 (3); but cf. s. 534 (2), and see note (c) thereto.

Power to alienate land so acquired.

(d) "By-laws . . . for managing the same." s. 547 (1), note (a) thereto, and note (j) to s. 576, supra.

(e) "And such by-law shall not be repealed," i.e. the land so accepted or purchased shall not (without express legislative sanction) be disposed of or appropriated to other uses. See notes (f) and (h) to s. 576 and Newark v. Stockton, cited in foot note (h) on p. 708. It is otherwise as land acquired under the latter part of the sub-section, but which has not already been used for burials.

(f) "The trustees of any burying ground or cemetery." See R. S. O. c. 214.

"The cemetery company owning any burial ground or cemetery." See R. S. O. c. 213, especially s. 31 thereof.

(g) "And may acquire other land instead thereof." which land (it is apprehended) must be held for the same purposes.

Selling portions of such land for certain purposes.

(a) For selling or leasing portions of such land for the purpose of interment, in family vaults or otherwise, and for declaring in the conveyance the terms on which such portion shall be held:

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99,) s. 259 (4).

As to cemeteries in villages.

(b) Provided, however, that the municipal council of a village may pass a by-law for accepting or purchasing land for a public cemetery within the territorial limits of the village upon the by-law being first approved of by the Local Board of Health, and ratified by the Provincial Board of Health; and the by-law shall thereupon be as valid and effectual as if the land was situated without the municipality; Sec. 577 (1) (b) (c), (2). Cemeteries in villages.

(c) All expenses incurred by the Provincial Board of Health in respect of and incidental to the by-law, and whether the by-law be ratified by the Board or not, shall be paid by the village municipality to the Secretary of the Board. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (11). See also cap. 213. Expenses of Provincial Board of Health.

Added in 1887 by 60 V. c. 29, s. 23 (a) (b).

Enlargement of Cemeteries.

2. For the acquiring and expropriation of lands to be used for enlarging any existing public cemetery or burying-ground; but no expropriation of any land within the limits of a city shall be authorized, and as to any such enlargement in a village or town the consent of the Provincial Board of Health shall be first obtained; For taking lands for enlarging cemeteries.

(a) In case the owner of the land required refuses to sell the same, or refuses to take the price the council of the municipality is willing to pay, then in either of such cases the matter in dispute shall be referred to arbitration, and shall be proceeded with under the provisions of this Act respecting arbitrations as to compensation for lands taken. Reference to arbitration.

(b) The arbitrators shall decide whether it is necessary in the public interests that the lands should be expropriated for the aforesaid purposes or any of them, and if so decided they shall award as to the price to be paid to the owner of said lands, but the costs shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators. Powers of arbitrators.

(c) If the arbitrators award that the lands shall be taken for such cemetery, or burying-ground, one copy of the award shall be deposited with the registrar of the county or city, as the case may, in which the lands are situate, and shall be a valid title to the said lands. Registration of award.

(d) Lands used as an orchard, pleasure ground or garden, and lands within two hundred yards of any dwelling house, shall not be expropriated without the consent of the owner or owners. Certain lands not to be taken except with consent of owner.

(e) The award shall be in writing and the boundaries of the lands or premises taken shall be fully described therein. Boundaries to be described in award.

Certain sections to apply.

(f) All the provisions of clause 1 of section 547 and of the clause 1 of this section shall, as far as applicable, apply to the lands acquired under this clause. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (12).

Taken from ss. 1-5 of 48 V. c. 38, "An Act respecting the Expropriation of land for Public Cemeteries." Expropriation.

(h) "For the acquiring and expropriation of lands," etc. See note (a) to s. 534. As the cemetery itself may be outside the municipality (a), the lands thus expropriated would in that case be part of another municipality. Hence, perhaps, the special jurisdiction conferred upon the arbitrators by clause (b). Cf. s. 555 (2).

Costs of arbitration.

(i) "The costs shall be in the discretion of the arbitrators." As to the power of the arbitrators in regard to costs, see ss. 447-460, and Re Pattullo and Town of Orangeville, 31 O. R. 192 (1899).

What lands may not be expropriated.

(j) Clause (d). The Municipal Acts of 1849, 1858 and 1866 provided that no council, in the exercise of its powers to open, widen, or divert highways, should authorize an encroachment on any dwelling-house, barn, stable, outhouse, orchard, garden, yard or pleasure ground without the written consent of the owner. In Wilson v. Town of Port Hope (b), a case under the Act of 1849, the defendants were restrained by injunction from opening a proposed street without the written consent of the owners of certain houses standing on the line thereof, the action being brought by a person whose land lay in the line of the proposed street, but was not within the scope of the prohibiting clause; but in Re Lafferty and Municipal Council of Wentworth and Halton (c), the Court refused to quash a by-law for opening a road intended to run through an orchard which had been planted 18 months after the applicant knew that it was intended to lay out the road there, and after it had been actually selected and surveyed. Per ROBINSON, C. J., "It seems but too probable that the trees were planted there merely to obstruct the change of road." (d)

578. By-laws may be passed by the councils of counties, cities and separated towns:—

Public Fairs.

1. For authorizing, on petition of at least fifty qualified electors of the municipality, the holding of public fairs at one or more of the most public and convenient places not separated from the municipality for municipal purposes; — Authorizing the holding, etc., of public fairs.

(a) The purposes for which such fairs may be held shall be restricted to the sale, barter and exchange of cattle, horses, sheep, pigs and articles of agricultural production or requirement. — Purpose of such fairs restricted.

(b) The by-law to authorize the establishment of any such fair shall establish rules and regulations for he government of the same, and appoint a person whose duty it shall be to have them carried out, and shall also fix the fees to be paid him by persons attending the said fair. — Rules to be made for governing fair. — Fees.

(c) The council authorizing the establishment of a public fair shall, immediately after the passing of a by-law for that purpose, give public notice of the same. 55 V. c. 42. s. 495 (10). — Public notice of by-law establishing same.

Taken (except the last 16 words of clause (b)) from 34 V. c. 21 (1897), "An Act to facilitate the Establishment of Public Fairs," etc., which applied only to counties and separated towns. The Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 383 (10) extended its provisions to cities, and added the words at the end of clause (b) relating to fees.

(a) A "fair" is a greater species of market recurring at more distant intervals (a).

(b) "Fifty qualified electors." The word "electors" as here used means persons entitled to vote at a municipal election. See s. 2 (5); cf. note (b) to s. 338, note (c) to s. 569, and the cases of Re Croft and Town of Peterborough, 17 O. R. 22; 17 A. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 36 (1).

Fees not to be charged on articles delivered in pursuance of prior contract.

(3) Where the vendor of any article brought within the municipality in pursuance of a prior contract for the sale thereof, proceeds directly to the place of delivery thereof, under such contract, without hawking the same upon the streets or elsewhere in the municipality, it shall not be lawful to impose, levy or collect a market fee thereon, or in respect thereof, or on the vehicle in which the same is so brought. 55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (3).

When fees not to be charged, though no prior contract.

(4) Where there is no prior contract as mentioned in the preceding subsection, no market fee shall be imposed, levied or collected upon or in respect of any article brought into any municipality after the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, nor on or in respect of any vehicle in which such article is so brought, unless such article is offered or exposed for sale upon the market place of the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (4).

Restriction as to by-laws requiring articles to be weighed or measured.

(5) No by-law shall require hay, straw or other fodder to be weighed, or wood to be measured, where neither the vendor nor purchaser desires to have the same so weighed or measured. 55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (5).

Limit of time for enforced attendance to sell goods on market.

(6) After nine o'clock in the forenoon between the 1st day of April and the 1st day of November and after ten o'clock in the forenoon between the 1st day of November and the 1st day of April, no person shall be compelled to remain on any market place with any article which he may have been exposing or offering for sale in such market place, but may, after the expiration of such hour, proceed to sell such article elsewhere than in or on said market place, provided that such person has paid the market fee on or in respect of such article, or the vehicle in which the same is contained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (6).

Scale of market fees.

(7) No market fees shall be imposed by any municipality higher than those contained in the following scale:

55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (7).

For weighing a load of hay .....15 cents.

For weighing slaughtered meat, or grain, or other articles exposed for sale, under one hundred pounds.....2 cents.

Over one hundred pounds, and up to one thousand pounds.....5 cents.

Over one thousand pounds .....10 cents.

For weighing live animals, other than sheep or pigs, per head .....3 cents.

Sheep or pigs, if more than five, per head.....1 cent.

For measuring a load of wood .....5 cents.

55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (8).

Regulation of sale by retail in or near streets.

Regulation of traffic on streets.

(9) Subject to the other provisions of this section, the municipality may regulate the sale by retail in the public streets, or on vacant lots adjacent thereto, of any of the articles herein mentioned, and may regulate traffic in the streets, and may prevent the blocking up of the same by vehicles or otherwise. 55 V. c. 42, s. 497 (9); and see s. 515 (4).

Subss. 1-9 not to apply where by-law in force allowing sale, except at the market place, without payment of fees; but such by-law may impose fees on persons voluntarily using market;

(10) The preceding nine subsections shall not apply to any municipality which passes, and so long as it keeps in force, a by-law providing that the vendors of any articles in respect of which a market fee may, under this Act, be lawfully imposed, may, without paying market fees, offer for sale and sell or otherwise dispose of any such articles, at any place within the municipality, excepting only at and upon the market place or places thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (1).

(11) Such by-law may, nevertheless, provide for the imposition and collection of market fees from such vendors of articles in respect of which a market fee may now be imposed, under this Act, as voluntarily use the market place for the purpose of selling such articles. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (2).

Sec. 579 (12-16).

And on others taking advantage of market.

(12) The by-law may also provide for the imposition upon and collection of market fees from any person who shall remain, or cause his vehicle to remain upon that part of any street immediately adjoining or surrounding or being within 100 yards of the market place, for the purpose of selling upon such street or streets such articles, so as to obtain the advantages of the said market place; but driving through or across such portions of streets shall not of itself be deemed sufficient ground for the imposition of any fee; but this subsection shall not apply to grain, seeds, dressed hogs or wood. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (3).

By-law not to interfere with sales to persons carrying on business in vicinity of market.

(13) The by-law shall not prevent the sale of any such articles to any person carrying on business and having an actual and bona fide store, shop or other similar place of business, on those portions of the streets in the next preceding sub-section mentioned; nor shall the by-law authorize the imposing or levying of any fee in respect of any article so sold, or of any vehicle in which the same is contained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (4).

Restriction n fees.

(14) It shall not be lawful for any municipality passing such by-law to impose a higher tariff or greater fee upon any article or vehicle than is provided for in subsection 7 of this section. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (5); 60 V. c. 45, s. 15 (1).

Where municipality had sold or leased market fees.

(a) In any municipality which under subsection 19 of this section, has, on or before the 30th day of March, 1897, leased, assigned or sold its market fees, the preceding subsection 14 shall come into force and operation only upon the termination of the period for which such fees have been leased, assigned or sold. In all other municipalities the said subsection shall come into force and operation on the 1st day of January, 1898. 60 V. c. 45, s. 15 (2).

Fees not to be charged on markets made in streets.

(15) No market fee shall be levied, collected or imposed by any municipality in respect of any market place or market, or any portion of any such market place or market hereafter established, declared or made in, on, or out of any street or part of any street within said municipality:

Proviso.

Provided always that this subsection shall not apply to so much of any street as immediately adjoins and abuts upon any market square, either now or hereafter established as a market place. 55 V. c. 42, s. 498 (6).

Subss. 10-15. not to apply where no fees were charged on March 10th, 1882.

(16). The preceding 6 subsections shall not apply to any municipality where no market fees were charged or imposed on the 10th day of March, 1882, but subsections 1 to 9 and 17 and 18 of this section shall apply to such municipality in the event of market fees being thereafter charged or imposed therein. 55 V. c. 42, s. 499.

Secs. 579 (17-19).

(17) Nothing in the preceding 16 subsections contained shall prevent any municipality wherein no market fees are imposed or charged from regulating the sale and the place of sale of any articles within the municipality to the same extent as it might do before the 10th day of March, 1882;

Power to regulate sales where no fees were charged on March 10th, 1882.

Provided always that market fees within the meaning of this subsection shall not include fees for weighing or measuring;

"Market fees," meaning of.

Provided further, that after nine o'clock in the forenoon between the 1st day of April and the 1st day of November, and after ten o clock in the forenoon between the 1st day of November and the 1st day of April, no person shall be compelled to remain on, or resort to, any market place with any articles which he may have for sale, but may, after the expiration of such hour, sell or dispose of such articles elsewhere than in or on said market-places. 55 V. c. 42, s. 500.

Market hours limited.

(18) When and so long as subsections 1 to 9 or subsections 10 to 15 of this section are in force and apply to any municipality, so much of any Act or law as may be contrary to, and as conflicts with the same, shall not be in force in or apply to such municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 501.

Inconsistent enactments to be of no effect.

Taken (except sub-s. 14) from 45 V. c. 24, "An Act respecting Market Fees," which came into force on April 2nd, 1882. Since amended as follows:—

Sub-sec. 2.—The words in italics were inserted by 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 36(1) (1899), the amendment to come into effect in municipalities where the market fees were then sold or leased only at the expiry of the period of such lease or sale.

Sub-sec. 12.—Last clause added in 1883 by 46 V. c. 17, s. 1.

Sub-sec. 14.—Before the passing of 60 V. c. 45, s. 15 (1897) the tariff was limited to that which "was in force or imposed by such municipality on March 1st, 1882."

Sub-sec. 17.—The second proviso was added in 1883 by 46 V. c. 17, s. 2.

(b) The effect of these somewhat involved provisions is not easy to apprehend at a glance; but upon examination their general scheme appears to be fairly intelligible. The object of the Statute 45 V. c. 24 (as amended by 46 V. c. 17) was apparently:—

Objects of s. 579.

(1) To limit (a) the powers which, for the purpose of increasing their revenues, had been in many cases assumed by cities, towns and villages in the matter of market fees, and, in return, to confirm and extend the authority of municipalities to regulate traffic outside their market limits (b) and to sell, lease or assign their market fees. (c)

(2) To provide for the cases (a) of such municipalities as should elect to abolish or dispense with fees on marketable articles sold elsewhere than at the market place of the municipality, (d) and (b) of municipalities in which, at the date of the passing of the Act, no market fees were imposed (e).

The right of a municipality which imposes no market fees, to pass by-laws "for regulating the sale and place of sale of any articles within the municipality to the same extent as it might do before March 10th, 1882,"—i.e. to exercise all the powers enumerated in ss. 580 and 581—is continued by sub-s. 17, subject to the conditions mentioned in the provisoes thereto.

(c) Sub-section 9. Compare the powers then (1882), already enjoyed by cities, towns and villages under s. 580 (4) with respect to the articles therein enumerated, and under s. 580 (6) with respect to criers and vendors of small wares; and see notes (e) and (g) to that section.

Sales by retail in or near streets.

(d) Sub-section 10. A by-law passed under this subsection was construed by ROSE, J., in Re Borthwick and City of Ottawa (f).

Secs. 579-580 (1).

Notes (f), (g), (a).

Where fees are imposed upon certain vendors voluntarily using the market place.

(e) Sub-section 11. In Reg. v. Reed, (a) a by-law, intended to have effect under this sub-section, enacted that: "Any person who shall voluntarily come upon the said market-place for the purpose of selling upon said market-place any grain, meat," etc., shall pay market fees; and that: "All butchers' meat . . . exposed for sale or disposed of in the market shall be subject to the following charges," etc. The defendant was convicted for refusing to pay the market fees on eight quarters of beef exposed for sale on the market. Held, (by O'CONNOR, J.) that the words (of the Statute), "such vendors . . . as voluntarily use the market-place for the purpose of selling" were not identical with or equivalent to the expression (in the by-law) "persons who shall voluntarily come upon the said market-place," etc., (as above) but were broader and much more comprehensive; for all persons are not vendors, and one may come upon the market-place for the purpose of selling and yet not use it, i.e., he may not sell or even offer for sale. (b) Held, also, that the conviction was bad in that it differed from both the Statute and the by-law.

No fees chargeable in market places established in streets.

(f) Sub-section 15. Although municipalities have in many cases appropriated portions of their highways to the purposes of a public market (c) their right to do so under the authority of "The Municipal Act" has been doubted; but see note (a) to s. 580.

Right to sell or lease market fees.

(19) Subject to the provisions of the last preceding 18 sub-sections, every municipality shall have the power to sell, assign, or lease its market fees. 55 V. c. 42, s. 502.

Taken from 46 V. c. 17, s. 3 (1883), which relates back to the date (April 2nd, 1882) when the principal Act, (45 V. c. 24), came into force.

Market by-laws.

580. Subject to the restrictions and exceptions contained in the last preceding section, the council of every city, town and village may pass by-laws:

Taken (except sub-s. 6) from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (6-16, 18). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 90 (6), (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns); ss. 82, 103, (cities). Alterations made in the language of the Act of 1858 are noted under the several sub-sections.

Establishing markets.

1. For establishing markets:

Markets on public streets.

(a) By the common law, a market could only be set up by royal grant, or by long and immemorial usage and prescription, which presupposes a grant. (f) Power to establish a market involves, as a necessary incident, the power to erect market buildings, and to acquire land for that purpose, (g) but not to erect such buildings in a public street. "Such erections upon streets are nuisances, although sufficient space be left for the passage of persons and vehicles; and they can only be legalized by an express Act of the Legislature." (h)

It has been doubted whether a municipal corporation has, in virtue of the power to establish markets, authority to set apart as a market-place part of a public highway, and to authorize its occupation by stalls, vehicles, etc., so as to deprive the public of its use as a highway; but subs. 4 of this section and sub-ss. 9, 12 and 15 of s. 579 seem to indicate that in Ontario such authority exists.

Markets on the streets.

In Reynolds v. City of Toronto (a) the defendants having leased to the plaintiff the fees arising from a wood market established by them on a public street, and having covenanted with him against interference by themselves or by any person on their behalf with the collection of such fees, it was held that the market, being upon a public highway, which is prima facie for the purpose of public travel, its use for any other purpose must be subordinate to its primary and principal use as a highway. (b) Per ADAM WILSON, J., (p. 282):—"It may not be quite clear how far the corporation had the right to create this market in the public highway for stationary waggons during nearly the whole period of daylight; . . . probably it has such a power."

Compensation to adjoining owners.

In New Jersey, under the constitutional limitation providing that private property shall not be condemned for public uses without due compensation, it was held that a city, having established a market on a street under a statutory authority "to prescribe and locate . . . streets to be used as public markets for the sale of country produce," was bound to compensate an adjoining proprietor who owned the land to the middle of the street subject to the public easement (c).

But in Davidson v. City of Montreal (d), the Supreme Court of Canada affirmed a judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench for Lower Canada dismissing an action for damages brought by the owner of land near a public market on account of the street and sidewalk opposite to his place of business being obstructed by traders, hawkers, etc., licensed by the defendants to carry on business there.

Regulating markets.

Title to market reservations, etc.

2. For regulating all markets established and to be established; the places, however, already established as markets in the municipality, shall continue to be markets, and shall retain all the privileges thereof until otherwise directed by competent authority; and all market reservations or appropriations heretofore made in any such municipality shall continue to be vested in the corporation thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (1, 2).

(b) "For regulating all markets established or to be established."

Regulating markets.

In order to have any legal force, market regulations should be made by-law, (e) not by the mere resolution of a committee. When adopted by the council they may be moved against under s. 378. (f)

> "Regulation must of necessity include the appropriation of one or more parts of the market for one purpose and other part or parts for other purposes, and of providing for free passage through the market being kept open for ready access to shops, stalls or other places where different commodities are exposed for sale, etc." (g).

"Regulating markets" would also fairly include fixing the market hours, making provision for lighting, watching, and cleaning, detecting false weights and unwholesome food, preserving order, enforcing obedience to the rules, and other arrangements calculated to facilitate the intercourse and insure the honesty of buyer and seller. (h) So in Re Snell and Town of Belleville (i) the Court sustained the validity of a by-law requiring that: "Every person selling meat or articles of provision by retail, whether by weight, count or measure in the town of B. shall provide himself with scales, weights and measures; but no spring balance, spring scale, spring steelyards or spring weighing machine shall be used or allowed to be used for any market purpose." (a)

May prohibit certain sales in market.

Under a general power to regulate markets, it would seem that (if their action be not unreasonable), municipal authorities may also prescribe what articles shall not be sold at the public market. (b) "The Markets and Fairs Clauses Act," (c) authorizes the passing of by-laws "for regulating the use of the market place and fair and the buildings . . . therein, and for preventing nuisances or obstructions therein or in the immediate approaches thereto." A by-law (passed under this authority) was held good which provided that the sale-rings at the public market should not "be used for private sales, or for sales to a limited number of persons, or for sales in which any class of the public are excluded from bidding or buying" (d).

But not the exercise of a lawful calling.

In Bollander v. City of Ottawa, (e) the plaintiff had been licensed as an auctioneer, his license containing the following condition: "This license is subject to the laws of the Province of Ontario, and to such by-laws, rules and regulations of the corporation of the city of O. as are now or may hereafter be in force."

The defendants had passed a by-law providing that "No auctioneer . . . shall practise his or her calling upon any of the public markets, or in any of the public streets contiguous thereto, or in any of the vacant lots adjoining any of such streets, or in any buildings that have been allowed frontages on the public market squares." The plaintiff having attempted to sell on one of the public markets a horse which had been impounded by a pound-keeper of the defendant corporation, the defendant H., who was the market inspector of the corporation, prevented the sale, and laid an information against the plaintiff before the police magistrate of the city for a contravention of the above by-law. The plaintiff thereupon brought this action against the city and the market inspector, claiming,—(1) damages, (2) a declaration that the above section of the by-law was ultra vires, and (3) an injunction restraining the defendants from interfering with him in the exercise of his calling as an auctioneer on the public markets of the city. The trial Judge, (MACMAHON, J.) dismissed the action, holding the by-law to be within the powers conferred upon municipal corporations by 57 V. c. 50, s. 8 (f),—"For prohibiting the granting of a license upon residential or other streets in which, in the opinion of the council, it is not desirable that the business of an auctioneer should be carried on"; but this judgment was reversed by a Divisional Court, on the ground that the by-law in question was not authorized either under the power of the prohibition given by 57 V. c. 50, s. 8, or under the power conferred by this section to pass by-laws for regulating markets.

Per ARMOUR, C.J., (p. 15):—

> "Where the Legislature intended to give the power to pass by-laws to prevent, it has done so in express terms. In sub-section 6 of this section of the Act express power is given to pass by-laws:—'For preventing criers and vendors of small wares from practising their calling in the market place, public streets and vacant lots adjacent thereto'; and this power, so given expressly, to prevent certain classes of persons from so practising their calling, excludes the inference of any power given impliedly to prevent any other classes of persons from so practising their calling.' (g)
> The markets established by this by-law were so established for the sale therein respectively of certain kinds of commodities; and the defendants can, of course, prevent the plaintiff or anyone else from selling therein any commodity but those for the sale of which the said markets were respectively established. The license granted to the plaintiff was made 'subject to such by-laws, rules and regula-

An injunction should go restraining the defendants from interfering with the plaintiff . . . in selling by auction upon any of the markets in the city of O. any of the commodities for the sale of which therein such markets were respectively established."

Sec. 580 (2) (3). Notes (b)-(d).

(c). "The places, however, already established as markets shall continue to be markets," etc.

Markets existing before Jan. 1st, 1850.

This and the remainder of the sub-section originally formed s. 138 of the Act of 1849. (a) Prior to the passing of that Statute, markets had been established under the authority of local Acts at certain towns and cities in Upper Canada, —e.g., Kingston, (b) York, (c) Niagara, (d) Cornwall, (e) etc., and it was thought desirable to continue any special privileges which might belong to these markets; but it is probable that they are now all regulated by by-laws passed under the general law embodied in "The Municipal Act."

Regulating sales, etc.

3. For preventing or regulating the buying and selling of articles or animals exposed for sale or marketed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (51); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. (85).

Until the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (99)), this sub-section applied only to cities, towns and villages, and was limited to articles exposed for sale or marketed "in the open air." Cf. 12 V. c. 81, 66 (6), etc.; 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (9); and though in the Act of 1866 the sub-section reads as here, the marginal note is (as before) "Vending in open air." By 47 V. c. 32, s. 15 (1884), the power hereby conferred was extended to townships. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 174, s. 489 (51); 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (41). By 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (85) it was again restricted (as in the earlier Acts) to cities, towns and villages.

May sales of marketable commodities be restricted to the market place?

(d) In previous editions of THE MUNICIPAL MANUAL the question was much discussed whether these very general words empower the council of a city, town or village to restrict within the market limits of the municipality the sale of articles usually described as "marketable commodities;" and American authorities (f) were quoted in which ordinances forbidding the sale by retail of such articles except at the public markets and within certain limits about the same, had been held to be valid under a general authority to the council to make by-laws "for the good of the inhabitants of the municipality." (g)

But—apart from the consideration that sub-s. 5 infra (by conferring authority to regulate the place of selling the articles therein specified) indicates that as to articles not therein enumerated this power was not intended to be conferred upon municipal councils, and that the proviso to sub-s. 7 expressly authorizes sales by farmers and other producers at stores and shops—it is to be observed that all the jurisdiction conferred by s. 580 is "subject to the restrictions and exceptions contained in s. 579." That section, as already pointed out, (h) refers to three classes of municipalities, viz.,—

(1) Those which impose market fees on all marketable articles wherever sold; (i)

(2) Those in which such fees are exacted from such vendors of marketable articles as voluntarily use the market place for the purposes of selling, etc. (j) and

(3) Those in which no market fees are imposed. (k)

May sales of marketable commodities be restricted to the market-place?

In municipalities which belong to the second of these classes, no such power of restriction is possible, since their by-law must provide (a) that the vendors of marketable articles "may offer for sale and sell . . . such articles at any place within the municipality excepting only at and upon the market place;" and there also they may sell on paying market-fees.

Municipalities belonging to the first class "may regulate the sale by retail in the public streets or on vacant lots adjacent thereto," but (apparently) may not prohibit sales elsewhere than on the market place. In the case of these municipalities and also of those (Class 3) in which no market fees are imposed, all power to restrict sales to a particular locality after a certain hour is expressly taken away by sub-s. 6 and the second proviso to sub-s. 17, while sales at stores and shops of the articles and by the persons mentioned in s. 580 (5) may be made at any hour. Reduced within these narrow limits, the right to restrict sales of marketable articles to a particular place—even if it exists—can be of little practical value to municipal councils.

See further the cases collected in note (f), infra.

Regulating vending in streets, etc.

4. For preventing or regulating the sale by retail in the public streets, or vacant lots adjacent thereto, of any meat, vegetables, grain, hay, fruit, beverages, small-ware and other articles offered for sale 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (3).

In the Act of 1849 (12 V. c. 81), s. 69, etc.:—"For preventing the vending or selling by retail in the public highways any meat, vegetables, fruit, cider, beer or other beverage," In 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (8) and 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (8):—"For preventing or regulating the sale by retail in the public streets of any meat, vegetables, fruit or beverages," 33 V. c. 26, s. 5 (1869) extended the power to "vacant lots adjacent," etc., (as here) and added to the list "small-ware and all other articles offered for sale."

Power limited to these articles and localities.

(e) Cf. s. 579 (9); and as to the words "adjacent thereto" and "small ware" see Re Harris and City of Hamilton (b) referred to in note (g) infra.

The by-law must be expressly limited to the articles and localities mentioned in the Statute. In Re Fennell and Town of Guelph (c) by-laws were held ultra vires which (1) provided that no person should expose for sale any meat, fish, poultry, eggs, butter, cheese, grain, straw, cordwood, etc., within the town of G., except at the public market, without having first paid the market fee thereon, and (2) made similar provision as to hides and skins, except the hides and skins of animals slaughtered by licensed butchers holding stalls in the market.

Per DRAPER, C.J.:—

> "We think [these provisions] exceed the powers given by the Act. . . . They prohibit the sale within the town of any of the articles mentioned unless a fee be paid,—thus in effect levying a tax (d) on all such sales made within the town, for the words "market fee" import a tax if the sales are within the market. The power to prevent or regulate sales by retail in the public streets is limited to meat, vegetables, etc, ... while the power to regulate the place and manner of selling is limited to [the articles now enumerated in sub-s. 5]. . . . . This by-law . . . imposes a tax for selling any of the articles mentioned in every house or shop within the town, extending to things not specified in the Statute, and over the sale of which the law gives the council no control, except when the exposure for sale is in the open air, or by retail in the public streets."

So, in Re Kinghorn and City of Kingston, (e) for reasons identical with those given in Fennell's case, a by-law was quashed which prohibited persons bringing "produce, articles, commodities or things" to a city market from selling or offering the same for sale within the city limits on their way to the market, or without having paid market toll, and before first offering said articles, commodities or things for sale at the proper market place.

Sale of grain, meat, farm produce, small-ware, etc.

5. For regulating the place and manner of selling and weighing grain, meat, vegetables, fish, hay, straw, fodder, wood, lumber, shingles, farm produce of every description, small-ware, and all other articles exposed for sale, and the fees to be paid therefor. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (4) part.

In the Acts of 1849, 1858 and 1866, "For regulating the place and manner of selling and weighing butcher's meat, fish, hay, straw, fodder, wood and lumber;" 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6), etc.; 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (10); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (10). The sub-section in its present form is taken from 33 V. c. 26, s. 6 (1869).

Decisions prior to the passing of s. 579.

(f) Since the powers conferred by this sub-section are now "subject to the restrictions and exceptions contained in s. 579," the cases upon it, decided prior to April 2nd, 1882, when the Act 45 V. c. 24 (the original of s. 579) came into force, must be read in the light of that section, and, have, therefore, lost much of their force. See note (d) supra.

In Peters v. Board of Police of London (a) a local Act (b) which empowered the defendants "to fix upon and to appoint such days and hours for . . . selling butcher's meat, etc., and to make such other orders and regulations relative thereto as they shall deem expedient," was held to authorize the passing of a by-law prohibiting the sale of butcher's meat at certain hours, except at the public markets.

In Ferguhar v. City of Toronto (c) DRAPER, C. J., says:—"The power of regulating the place of selling wood authorizes the establishment of a wood market": and the Court upheld a by-law requiring that all waggons, carts or other carriages bringing wood into the city for sale should be placed on the wood market, and that any person leaving the line before disposing of his load, (unless to leave the market), or loitering about the streets with his load, should incur a penalty. But another clause providing that "all wood brought into the city for sale shall be subject to a fee or charge of five cents per cord, as if the same were brought into the market for sale" was quashed, as being an attempt to levy a tax, for the imposition of which express authority would be necessary.

In Re Kelly and City of Toronto (d) the power conferred by this sub-section to regulate "the place of selling butcher's meat" was held to warrant a by-law "that no butcher or other person shall put up or expose for sale any fresh meat in any part of the city except in the shops or stalls in the public markets or at such places as the standing committee on markets may appoint."

In Re Fennell and Town of Guelph (e) a clause that "meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese, grain, hay, straw, cordwood, shingles, lumber, flour, wool, meal, vegetables or fruit (except wild fruit) shall not be exposed for sale within the municipality before noon at any other place but the market," was held good as to the articles named in the Statute, but bad as to the others,—there being no authority so to enact with regard to them. See this case and Re Kinghorn and City of Kingston referred to in note (d) supra.

In Re Snell and Town of Belleville (f) a market by-law was held valid which enacted (1) that only butchers and persons occupying shops or stalls for the sale of fresh meat in the market or in two specified wards of the town should sell or expose fresh meat for sale in any less quantity than by the quarter; that such butchers and persons might so sell at these places but not elsewhere; and that no person should sell any fresh meat in the town except at the market-stalls or such place as the council should appoint, being not less than 400 yards from the market within certain defined limits in the said two wards.

they may require the sale of all butcher's meat to be at such places, there can be no harm in their allowing it when it is by the quarter to be sold elsewhere . . . The council has undoubtedly power to say that those who are privileged to sell by less than the quarter at the specified places shall not be entitled to sell out of those places otherwise than by the quarter."

Decisions on sub-s. 5 prior to April 2nd, 1882, when s. 579 was passed.

The third section of the same by-law provided that no person should buy, sell or offer for sale any game, fish, poultry, eggs, butter [enumerating a number of articles] until the seller had paid the market fees, etc., and [? "or"] before certain specified hours; and that before noon no butcher's meat, fish, hay or straw should be bought or sold in the town except at the market and in the shops or stalls in the two wards aforesaid. This section was also held valid under what are now sub-ss. 3 and 5 (a).

A by-law passed by the city of Hamilton which provided that no person should upon or after the sale thereof deliver any stove-wood in or from any waggon, etc., otherwise than in or from a waggon of a certain capacity, the sides of which should be constructed of slats of a certain width and distance apart, was held bad, as unauthorized by this sub-section or by sub-ss. 9 or 11 (b).

Per HAGARTY, C. J.:—

> "For the purposes of the case I concede their right to provide for the weighing or measuring of the wood sold by the defendant, but when he has sold it, I do not see how they can force carriage and delivery in a specially sized and constructed vehicle."

A by-law enacted that "All hay, straw, grain, etc., sold . . . in the town of C. which is required to be weighed by the vendor or purchaser (c) shall be weighed with the public weigh scales." A conviction "for that [the defendant] brought hay into the town of C. and had the same weighed on scales other than the public scales of said town, the same being in contravention of the market by-law," was quashed, as it did not state that the hay had been sold. The costs were ordered to be paid by the weighmaster, who had, after warning, instituted the prosecution for his own benefit, instead of suing for the penalty in the Division Court. (d)

Criers and vendors of small ware.

6. For preventing criers and vendors of small ware from practising their calling in the market place, public streets and vacant lots adjacent thereto. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (4) part.

(g) This enactment is not ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature as being a regulation of trade and commerce, but is simply a provision of municipal government and within the powers of a local Legislature (e).

"Adjacent thereto," meaning of.

A city by-law under this sub-section enacted that no crier or vendor of small ware should practise his or her calling (sic) in the J. Street market, or in the public streets adjacent thereto. Held, that the prohibition contained in the phrase in italics was void for uncertainty (f). Per ARMOUR, C. J.: "Had the by-law followed the exact words of the Act it would have been good. Not having done so, it was necessary to describe particularly the streets intended."

The learned Chief Justice also expressed the opinion that the words "public streets and vacant lots adjacent thereto" meant vacant lots adjacent to the public streets. But in City of Toronto v. Virgo (g) Lord DAVEY, in delivering the judgment of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, says:—

> "Their Lordships are not required to construe this section, or to say whether the words 'adjacent thereto' do not refer to both public streets and vacant lots, and mean 'adjacent to the market.' Having regard to the previous sub-sections under the same rubric, ["Markets"] they think the clause is one for the protection of the market only, and of limited application."

Sec. 580 (6)-(8). Notes (g), (h).

The term "small ware" may yet require judicial interpretation, owing to the uncertainty which must exist as to what articles are included within it. It is apprehended, however, that no by-law would be considered faulty for following the exact wording of the Statute (a).

"Small ware," meaning of.

The following clauses in a market by-law were held valid:

"(1) No person shall use any portion of the J. Street market for the purpose of exposing for sale or selling dry-goods, fancy goods, small wares or merchandize, pastry, confectionery, medicines, or any articles other than meat, fish, fruits, vegetables, poultry, eggs, and farm and dairy products."

(2) That a certain specified locality "shall be set apart for occupation by all criers and vendors of small wares or merchandize and such other persons as are by [clause (1)] excluded from the said market; and such criers and vendors of small wares or merchandize and such other persons shall be entirely excluded from all parts of the said J. Street market other than the portion contained within the limits in this section mentioned" (b).

7. For preventing the forestalling, regrating or monopoly of market grains, wood, meats, fish, fruits, roots, vegetables, poultry and dairy products, eggs and all articles required for family use, and such as are usually sold in the market. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (6).

Preventing forestalling, etc.

Provided always that farmers and other producers may sell such produce and articles at stores and shops in the municipality at any hour of the day. 59 V. c. 51, s. 17.

Proviso.

The first two lines (down to and including the word "vegetables") are as in the Acts of 1849 and 1858: 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6): 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (11). The Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 296 (11), added "poultry and dairy products" and the Act 31 V. c. 30, s. 32 the rest of the sub-section proper. The proviso was added in 1896: see the reference.

8. For preventing and regulating the purchase of such things by hucksters, grocers, butchers or runners. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (7).

Regulating hucksters, etc.

In the Acts of 1849, 1858 and 1866, "For preventing [In the Act of 1849," "For restraining"] the purchase of any such things by hucksters or runners living within the municipality or within one mile from the outer limits thereof." See 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6), etc.; 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (12); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (12). 31 V. c. 30, s. 32 (1868) added "butchers." 34 V. c. 30, s. 32 (1871) struck out "or within one mile from the outer limits thereof," and the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48 s. 384 (38)) re-enacted the sub-section in its present form.

(h) These two sub-sections must be considered together, and would be more clear if they had been so printed, appending to the latter the proviso, which really governs both, and which takes away the value of the enactment itself and of the previous decisions thereon. "Forestalling,"—i. e., buying up articles on their way to market, or dissuading persons from bringing goods to a market, or persuading them to enhance the price when there, and "regrating,"—i. e., buying corn, dead victuals, etc., in any market and selling them again in or near the same place,—were both common law offences (c); at least when practised with respect to the necessaries of life (d). They were abolished in England by 7 & 8 V. c. 24; and in this Province a combination for the purpose of enhancing the price of an article is now "neither illegal nor against public policy" (e).

"Forestalling" and "regrating."

Sec. 580 (8)-(10). Notes (h), (j).

The following cases were all decided before 1896, when the proviso to sub-s. 7 came into force. The section has not since then been the subject of judicial interpretation.

Decisions prior to April 7th, 1896.

A by-law that before certain specified hours no huckster, butcher, dealer, trader, runner, agent, or retailer, or any other person purchasing for export or to sell again should buy, bargain for, engage, or offer to buy any article of household consumption brought to the market excepting pork, grain, flour, meal or wool, was held to be good as to the persons named in the Statute, but bad as to the rest. (a).

In Re McLean and Town of St. Catharines (b) the corporation had passed a by-law that no butcher, huckster or runner should, before certain specified hours, buy or contract for any kind of fresh meat, provisions, eggs and all (sic) other articles required for family use and such as are usually sold in the market, on the roads, streets or [at] any place within the town or within one mile distant therefrom. Held, bad, for the section as it then stood (c) applied only to such persons when living in the town or within one mile from the outer limits thereof (d). Another by-law was then passed in which the words "or within one mile distant therefrom" were omitted; but this by-law having been attacked in Wilson v. Town of St. Catharines (e) was also quashed, because it should have been limited to purchases and contracts made for the purpose of selling again. The by-law as it stood "would have the effect of fixing a personal disability on a man carrying on the trade of huckster, butcher or runner . . . so as to render him liable to . . . penalties if he purchased any of the articles mentioned . . . for the use of his family and not for the purpose of re-sale" (f).

A by-law that "no person shall forestall, regrate or monopolize any market grains," etc., (as in the Statute) "within the Town of B." was held good. (g) Per A. WILSON, J.:—"It repeats the obsolete English provisions enacted in the sub-section and does nothing more." See this case referred to in notes (b) and (f), supra.

Measuring, etc., certain articles.

9. For regulating the measuring or weighing (as the case may be) of lime, shingles, laths, cordwood, coal and other fuel. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (8).

In the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), s. 60 (6), etc.:—"For regulating the measurement, length and weight of" these articles. In the Acts of 1858 to 1883 inclusive:—"For regulating the mode of measuring or weighing," etc. See 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (13); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (13); 36 V. c. 48, s. 384 (9), etc. The words in italics were struck out in 1886 by 49 V. c. 37, s. 13.

Penalties for light weight, etc.

10. For imposing penalties for light weight or short count or short measurement in anything marketed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (9).

As in the Acts of 1849 and 1858 and all subsequent Municipal Acts: 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6); 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (14), etc.

(j) "The Weights and Measures Act," (j) provides that:—

> "When any fraud is wilfully committed in the using of any weight, measure, scale, balance, steel-yard or weighing machine, the person committing such fraud, and every person party to the fraud, shall incur a penalty of twenty-five dollars, or, in the case of a subsequent offence, of fifty dollars, and the weight, measure, scale, balance, steel-yard or weighing machine shall be forfeited and shall be forthwith seized as being so forfeited."

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 379 (36), which applied only to townships, cities, towns and villages; extended to counties by 57 V. c. 16, s. 16 (1894), and restricted, as here, to cities, towns and villages by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (83) (1897). Cf. the Acts of 1849, 1858 and 1866:—"For regulating the assize of bread . . . and for providing for the seizing and forfeiture of bread baked contrary to the by-law"; 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (8), etc.; 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (16); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (16); and see now ss. 550 (4), 583 (1) and note (a) to the latter section.

12. For regulating all vehicles, vessels, and all other things in which anything is exposed for sale or marketed and for imposing a reasonable duty thereon, and establishing the mode in which it shall be paid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (10). Regulating vehicles used in market vending.

The words "in any ["highway" [1849]] street or public place," used in the Acts of 1849 and 1858 after the words "exposed for sale or marketed," were omitted in the Act of 1866 and ever since. See 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (6), etc.; 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (16); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 296 (15); 36 V. c. 48, s. 384 (11), etc.

(k) This does not authorize the imposition, merely because they may be carrying firewood, of tonnage dues on scows, crafts, rafts, railway cars, &c., coming into the municipality, though such firewood may have been brought into the municipality for the purpose of being exposed or offered for sale or marketed for consumption within the municipality (a). "What the Statute authorizes is the regulating the vehicles, vessels, etc., in which anything is exposed for sale or marketed, and for imposing a reasonable duty thereon. When the commodity is exposed for sale, the power to impose the duty, if it is really given, arises, and if it be intended to impose the duty on the vehicle or vessel, it must be on that in which the article is exposed for sale or marketed. . . . . The Legislature never contemplated that, under pretence of passing a by-law to regulate markets, any municipal corporation should have the power of levying a tax on the general commerce of the country merely because a particular town or city happened to be the place where forwarders are in the habit of transhipping commodities from one description of craft to another, and where merchants frequently contract that certain articles in which they deal shall be delivered, in view of this very practice of transhipment." (b) What vehicles are intended.

13. For selling, after six hours' notice, butchers' meat distrained for rent of market stalls. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (11). Sale of meat distrained.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (18). Cf. the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), s. 60 (6): "For distraining butcher's meat for the rent of market stalls and for selling the same after six hours notice."

(l) In departing (as above noted) from the original language of the section, the Revisers of 1858 seems to have overlooked the fact that without a statutory provision to that effect, butchers' meat is not distrainable for rent. (c)

581.– (1) Subject to the restrictions and exceptions contained in section 579, the council of every town and village, and of every city having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and the Board of Commissioners of Police in every city having 100,000 inhabitants or more, may pass by-laws :—

Taken from 42 V. c. 31, s. 20, (1879), the proviso having been added in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 29. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 503 (6); 53 V. c. 50, s. 23. These powers were transferred by 59 V. c. 51, s. 21 (repealed and re-enacted by 60 V. c. 45, s. 22) to the Boards of Commissioners of Police in cities "of over 100,000 inhabitants," altered by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (122) to "cities having a population of 100,000 or over." See s. 4, ante, and the references appended to s. 585, post.

Preventing, etc.

Retail sales only affected.

(b) "Less than by the quarter carcass." In Reg. v. Cushing (c) the defendant had been convicted and fined by the police magistrate for the city of Hamilton for selling fresh meat "without a licence in less quantities than of a carcass," contrary to a city by-law which forbade any such sale in quantities less than a carcass. Held, (d) that this provision of the by-law was unwarranted by the above section; and the conviction was quashed with costs to be paid by the informants. Sections 330 and 579 (10) of the Act were quoted and considered.

By-law may fix places at which alone fresh meat may be sold by retail.

(c) Proviso. A by-law under this section provided (1) that every butcher or other person selling fresh meat in the city of Ottawa in quantities less, etc., should obtain a license; (2) that a person so licensed might sell in certain specified places but not elsewhere; and (3) that no person should sell fresh meat, etc., in the city of Ottawa without a license. The defendant was convicted for selling without a license and in a place not being one of those specified—a double offence—but only one fine was imposed. On a motion to quash the conviction it was held:—(1) that the by-law was not ultra vires, express power in regard to the subject matter (the licensing of such sales) being given by the Statute; and that the question of its reasonableness could only be considered on a direct motion to quash (e): (2) that the by-law was not defective for not embodying the exceptions now contained in the second proviso to s. 579 (17), nor the conviction for not showing that the sale was before the hours therein named, since the section in question does not refer to the same subject matter as this section, and is limited to municipalities "wherein no market fees are imposed or charged", whereas it appeared that such fees were charged in Ottawa; but (3) that the conviction was bad, being for two distinct offences, yet imposing only one penalty (f). Per O'Connor, J.:—"For which offence is the fine inflicted? If the defendant were prosecuted again on either of these charges separately, could he plead this conviction in answer?"

Upon a subsequent motion to quash this by-law, it was held by WILSON, C.J., and affirmed by the Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada, that the by-law was valid; but (in the Supreme Court) STRONG and TASCHEREAU, JJ., dissented, holding that the section of the by-law which fixed the places where fresh meat might be sold in quantities less than a quarter and prohibited its sale elsewhere, was in excess of the powers of the council (a).

Notes (c), (a).

Per WILSON, C. J. :—"As to the objection that the by-law was unreasonable because sufficient accommodation for the sale of fresh meat in less quantities than by the quarter has not been provided by the council,—. . . I should say that the Court might quash the by-law if the accommodation is so plainly insufficient that it must be held to be utterly unreasonable, unless . . . the municipality would provide reasonably fit and full accommodation" (b)

(2) Subject to the restrictions and exceptions contained in section 579, the councils of every city, town and village may pass by-laws :

583. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities or Boards of Commissioners of Police and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say :—

Assize of Bread.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages :—

Assize of bread.

1. For regulating the assize of bread. 55 V. c. 42, s. 503 (12).

Taken from the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), s. 60 (8) (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80 (towns); ss. 82, 106 (cities). Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 287 (16), and see references under s. 580 (11).

(a) "The apparent meaning of 'the assize of bread' seems to be the power or privilege of 'assizing' or adjusting the weight or measure of bread." (a). A by-law of the city of Toronto was held valid which provided that :—"(1) All bread sold or offered for sale in the city of Toronto shall be in loaves of one pound, one and a half pounds, two pounds and four pounds respectively :—(2) The weight of every loaf of bread sold or offered for sale in the city of Toronto shall be stamped thereon :—(3) All bread offered for sale of any less weight than the weight fixed by this by-law shall be forfeited" (b).

Auctioneers.

By the councils of counties and separated towns and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Boards of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more :—

Auctioneers.

2. For licensing, regulating and governing auctioneers and other persons selling or putting up for sale goods, wares, merchandise or effects by public auction; and for prohibiting the granting of such license to any applicant who is not of good character, or whose premises are not suitable for the business, or upon residential or other streets in which in the opinion of the council or Board it is not desirable that the business of auctioneer should be carried on, such disqualifications to be determined by such means as the by-law provides; and for determining the time such license shall be in force: but no such by-law shall apply to or affect a bailiff offering for sale goods or chattels seized as a distress for rent; and such bailiff shall not require any license to entitle him to sell such distrained goods or chattels by public auction to satisfy such rent and the cost of seizure and sale. 55 V. c. 42, s. 495 (2) part; 56 V. c. 35, s. 19; 57 V. c. 50, s. 8; 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22; c. 15, Sched. C. (122); and see sec. 585.

Auctioneers.

By the councils of counties, cities and separated towns:—

3. For fixing the sums to be paid for licenses required under by-laws passed under the preceding clause 2. (Ib)

License Fees.

In this Province, auctioneers were first required to take out (government) licenses by 58 Geo. III c. 6 (1818). By 16 V. c. 181, s. 3 (1) (1853), cities, towns, villages and townships were authorized to pass by-laws for regulating and governing auctioneers and other persons putting up goods for sale by auction, requiring them to take out a license, fixing the fee therefor, and the time during which the license should be in force. By the Act of 1858 the power was restricted to counties and cities; (22 V. c. 99, s. 277 (2)); but in 1860 it was extended to separated towns by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 286 (2). The last six lines (relating to bailiffs) were added in 1893 by 56 V. c. 35, s. 19. The clause "and for prohibiting . . . by such means as the by-law provides" was added in 1894 by 57 V. c. 50, s. 8, except that in the present Revision (1897) the word "disqualifications" is substituted for "qualifications." The Statutes transferring this power in certain cities to the Boards of Police Commissioners are noted under s. 585, post. As to auctioneers' licenses in the Territorial Districts of the Province, see R. S. O. c. 225, s. 25.

(a 2) "Licensing, regulating and governing." There is no express power to "prevent" as in sub-ss. 8, 10 and 27. As to the limitations of the power of "regulating and governing" see note (a) to s. 329, notes (j) and (u) to this section and Bollander v. City of Ottawa, 30 O. R. 7 (1898), referred to ante in note (b) to s. 580.

"Regulating," etc.

(b) "Auctioneers." "Auction" (from the Lat., augere, auctum) signifies, generally, an increasing or enhancement. Hence the term is applied to a public sale of property, usually conducted by competitive biddings, which (except in the case of a "Dutch auction") augment the price (a). It is "a public sale of property to the highest bidder." (b) An auctioneer is one who conducts such a sale by auction, whether the property sold be his own or another's. (c)

What is an "auction" and an "auctioneer."

(c) "Other persons selling," etc. An agent of the assignee of an insolvent estate, who sold by public auction the stock-in-trade of an insolvent, was held to have been rightly convicted under a county by-law prohibiting any person from selling or putting up for sale any goods, etc., by public auction, although this was the only occasion on which he had so acted. (d)

One act of selling is sufficient.

(d). "Goods, wares, merchandise or effects." The conviction (under a by-law similar to that mentioned in note (c)) of one who, without an auctioneer's license, had sold land by auction under a Chancery decree for sale, was quashed with costs. (e)

Section does not apply to sales of lands.

Notes (e), (f). Auctioneers.

These words were inserted in 1894 (see references supra) in order to settle the question raised in Merritt v. City of Toronto (a).

Right to refuse license.

In that case the defendants having refused to grant the plaintiff an auctioneer's license on the ground that he was a person of notoriously bad character and ill repute, into whose hands the goods and moneys of the public should not be entrusted, it was held by Rose, J. (b), that the power to pass by-laws "for licensing, regulating and governing auctioneers" having been conferred under the authority of s. 92 (9) of "The B.N.A. Act, 1867" which expressly states that the jurisdiction over the subject of such licenses is given to the Province solely "for the purpose of raising a revenue for provincial, local or municipal purposes" the council had no power of prohibition. (c) The defendants were accordingly ordered to issue the license on payment of the proper fees. This decision was unanimously affirmed by the Court of Appeal. (d)

Bagatelle and Billiard Tables.

By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages, and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

Bagatelle and billiard tables.

4. For licensing, regulating and governing all persons who for hire or gain, directly or indirectly keep, or have in their possession or on their premises, any billiard or bagatelle table, or who keep or have a billiard or bagatelle table in a house or place of public entertainment or resort, whether such billiard or bagatelle table is used or not, and for determining the time during which licenses shall be in force. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (6); 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22; c. 15, Sched. C. By the councils of townships, cities, towns and villages:—

5. For fixing the sums to be paid for licenses required under by-laws passed under the preceding clause. (Ib.)

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 254 (1), which applied only to billiard tables. (Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (9); 16 V. c. 184, s. 3 (3). By the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 379 (3) the section is made to include bagatelle tables. As to the transfer of this power to the Boards of Commissioners of Police in certain cities, see the reference under s. 585. A by-law under this clause declaring that:—"It shall be unlawful to have internal means of communication between a room in which a billiard table or bagatelle table is kept, and any place in which spirituous, fermented or other manufactured liquors may be sold," was held valid. Bagatelle and billiard tables.

"The keeper of a licensed billiard, pool or bagatelle room, who directly or indirectly keeps the same for hire or gain, admitting a minor under the age of 16 years thereto, or allowing him to remain therein, without the consent of his parent or guardian, shall be subject to a fine of not exceeding $10, for the first, and not exceeding $20 for each subsequent offence, to be imposed by any Justice of the Peace, one half of which fine shall go to the informer. Provided always that this Act shall not apply to a minor who is a member of the family of the keeper or his servant, or who does not go to the billiard, pool or bagatelle room for the purpose of loitering, or to play billiards, pool or bagatelle therein; nor shall this Act apply to any case where the keeper, in the opinion of the Justice of the Peace, had reasonable cause to believe that such consent had been given by the parent or guardian, or that such minor was not under the age of sixteen." (a)

(g) "A billiard or bagatelle table in a house of public entertainment or resort."

Regulating houses of public entertainment, etc.

The late Chief Justice SPRAGGE, when giving his judgment (b) in the case of Reg. v. Hodge, (c) called attention to the fact that there was, at the time the proceedings against the defendant were commenced, a by-law of the city of Toronto, passed under the authority of this section, which provided that "Every licensed billiard room situate in any house of public entertainment and resort shall be closed from and after the hour of 7 on Saturday night till the hour of six on Monday morning thereafter."

He expressed his "surprise and regret that the city officials concerned in the information laid against the defendant should have prosecuted as for an offence against the resolution of the License Commissioners instead of prosecution for an offence against the by-law," and proceeded :—

"The conviction and the evidence upon which it was founded both show that every fact necessary to constitute the defendant an offender against the by-law was proved; and the penalty adjudged . . . was within the penalty authorized by the same Statute for breach of the by-laws of [municipal] corporations. If this course had been pursued, the only question that could have arisen would have been whether the provisions of the Municipal Institutions Act in force in Upper Canada at the date of Confederation have been abrogated, a question upon which no reasonable doubt can be entertained."

As to what is "a house of public entertainment or resort," see notes (r) and (ii) infra.

(h) Sub-section 5. "For fixing the sums to be paid for licenses."

License fee, amount of.

In Re Neilly and Town of Owen Sound, (d) a by-law which provided that licenses for billiard tables, etc., for hire or gain, or to be had or kept in a house of public entertainment within the municipality, might be issued on payment of a fee of $300, was submitted to and approved by the electors of the town, and passed by the council. A motion to quash the by-law on the ground (among others) that it was unreasonable and oppressive, and was in fact a by-law to prohibit such tables and therefore void, was refused with costs.

Sir JOHN A. MACDONALD, arguing in support of the by-law, pointed out that so long ago as 1810 the Legislature of Upper Canada had considered £40 a proper sum to pay for a license to keep a billiard table set up for hire or gain, the fee annually payable to the Province being fixed at that amount by 50 Geo. III. c. 6, s. 1. Also that in Church qui tam v. Richards (e) the imposition by the (then) town of London, under the authority of its charter, (f) of a further license fee of £10, had been sustained, thus making the total license fee £50. It was urged that having regard to the relative value of money in 1810 and in 1875, a license fee of $300 could not under these circumstances be regarded as excessive. The Court concurred in this view, and further pointed out that "the trade or profession of keeping a billiard table for profit is not like that of buying or selling the necessaries of life . . . It is not like a license to a butcher, or a baker, or a seller of firewood and such like articles of daily necessity. If this corporation imposed a license duty of $300 on every seller of firewood, or of meat or bread, the effect might be to prohibit the exercise of such trades. . . . We know of market prices for wood, or meat, or bread; but we have no such knowledge as to the cost properly chargeable for playing billiards. It is merely a matter, not of necessity, but of pleasure and luxury." (a)

And in the United States, the right of a municipal corporation to use its licensing powers as a source of revenue has been regarded as much more extensive in the case of amusements and exhibitions than in the case of useful trades and employments. (b)

"Exhibitions" and "shows."

Under a by-law which followed the exact words of this sub-section, and absolutely prohibited such exhibitions and shows, the defendant was convicted and fined for exhibiting a machine called a "merry-go-round." The evidence showed that no charge was made for looking at the merry-go-round, but that a charge of five cents was made for riding upon it. Held, not a case within the meaning of the Statute or the by-law, and the conviction was quashed with costs (b).

(l). "Roller-skating rinks," etc. The date of this amendment (1886) indicates the period when this was the popular amusement, just as that of s. 540 (7), viz. 1895, marks the era of the bicycle. See also Reg. v. Tucker, (c) referred to in note (r), infra.

Roller-skating rinks.

Amount of fine.

(n) "For levying the same by distress of the goods . . . used in such exhibition, whether owned by such showman or not, or for the imprisonment of the offenders," etc.

Leviable by distress or imprisonment.

It is for reasons sufficiently obvious, having regard to the peripatetic character of these circuses, menageries, etc., that the by-law may authorize and may be enforced by such extensive powers of distress, or may direct imprisonment in lieu of a fine, instead of awarding it only upon non-payment thereof and default of sufficient distress. See ss. 702, 705, 707, 709, and notes thereto.

Under the Act of 1849 the maximum license fee was $20. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (22). It was increased by the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 260 (10) to $100 at which figure it remained until altered to $500 in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 24. See note (a) to s. 329 and note (h) to this section. In the case of travelling shows, menageries, circuses etc., a Provincial license fee is also imposed by R. S. O. c. 244.

In the Act of 1849, 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (9), etc., (which applied only to cities, towns and villages): "For licensing, regulating or preventing bowling alleys or other places of amusement." The Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 275 (7), added, "exhibitions held or kept for hire or profit" and extended the power to counties, but took it away from villages. So in the Act of 1860, (23-30 V. c. 51), s. 284 (6). In 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 379 (35) the section read as now, and applied to townships, cities, towns and villages. See, under s. 585, the transfer of this power to the Board of Commissioners of Police in certain cities by 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22, and 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (122).

"Preventing," etc.

(p) "For preventing or regulating and licensing." See note (a) to s. 329, note (b) to s. 580, note (j), supra, and note (u), infra.

Bowling alleys.

(q) "Bowling alleys." In the State of New York it has been held that a general authority to a municipal corporation to make by-laws relative to nuisances generally, authorizes an ordinance prohibiting the keeping of a bowling alley for hire or gain, and that such a place is a public nuisance at common law (b). But in New Jersey it was held that a ten-pin alley kept for gain and public use is not per se a nuisance (c). In Maine (d) and New Hampshire (e) authority conferred by city charters to determine whether bowling alleys should be allowed, and if so under what restrictions, was held to warrant ordinances requiring such places to be closed at a certain hour.

Places of amusement.

(r) "Other places of amusement."

The Imp. Stat. 25 Geo. II. c. 36, s. 2 (1752) declares that any house, room, garden or other place kept for dancing, music, or other public entertainment of the like kind in London or Westminster, etc., without a license, shall be deemed a disorderly house.

(e) State v. Freeman, 38 N. H. 426 (1859).

Under that Act it has been held that the entertainment must be a public one to which all persons (a) have a right to go; but it is not necessary that admission should be by payment (b), nor (in the case of dancing) that public dancers should exhibit as performers (c). In Reg. v. Tucker (d) a skating-rink, partly covered and partly open, in which, during the evenings, a band played operatic and dance music, was held to be within the Statute.

Ferries.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities and separated towns:—

13. For fixing the sums to be paid for licenses required under by-laws passed under the preceding clause 12.

License fees.

The present form of these sub-sections is new. Cf. 55 V. c. 42, s. 494 (4), (now R.S.O. c. 139, s. 14) and s. 521 (11).

In the Act of 1849 (counties only), the corresponding section read:—

"For regulating all ferries between any two places in such county, and for establishing the rates of fare to be taken by the owners or conductors of the boats or vessels employed on such ferries; but no by-law for any such purpose shall have any force or effect until the same shall have been assented to by the Governor of this Province in Council."

The power is substantially the same in the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 277 (4)—(counties and cities)—and in the Acts of 1866, 1873, 1877 and 1883: 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 286 (4); 36 V. c. 48, s. 383 (4); R.S.O. (1877) c. 174, s. 465 (4); 46 V. c. 18, s. 495 (4), which applied also to separated towns; but in the Acts of 1873, 1877 and 1883 it was further provided that until the council should have passed a by-law under the section, and also in the case of ferries not between two places in the same municipality, the regulation of ferries and of the rates of ferriage should be vested in the Governor [1873]—or Lieutenant Governor [1877, 1883]—in Council. Cf. 12 V. c. 81 s. 145; 20 V. c. 7, s. 3; 22 V. c. 41 (1859); C. S. U. C. c. 46, s. 15; R. S. O. c. 139, s. 14. The power to license and regulate ferries between two places in the same township was transferred from the county council to the township council in 1885 by 48 V. c. 39, ss. 15, 16.

The sub-section would have been more clear if the words "between any two places in the municipality" had been inserted after "ferries" as in R. S. O. c. 139, s. 14. See next note. (f)

Sections 14 and 15, which are those relating to the powers of licensing and regulation here conferred upon municipal councils, are as follows:—

Provisions of "The Act respecting Ferries." (R. S. O., c. 139), ss. 14-15.

"14.—(1) The council of every county, city and town separated from the county for municipal purposes, may pass by-laws for licensing and regulating ferries between any two places in the municipality; and establishing the rates of ferriage to be taken thereon; but no such by-law shall have effect until assented to by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, and the powers conferred by this section on county councils shall not extend to a ferry between any two places within the same township. . . . .

(3) Until the council passes a by-law regulating such ferries, and in the case of ferries not between two places in the same municipality, the Lieutenant-Governor, by Order in Council, may from time to time regulate such ferries respectively, and establish the rates to be taken thereon subject to the provisions of this Act.

Hawkers and Pedlars.

By the councils of counties and towns, and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

Hawkers, pedlars, petty chapmen, etc.

Proviso.

Provided always that no such license shall be required for hawking, peddling or selling from any vehicle or other conveyance any goods, wares or merchandise to any retail dealer, or for hawking or peddling any goods, wares or merchandise, the growth, produce or manufacture of this Province, not being liquors within the meaning of the law relating to taverns or tavern licenses, if the same are being hawked or peddled by the manufacturer or producer of the goods, wares or merchandise, or by his bona fide servants or employees having written authority in that behalf; and such servant or employee shall produce and exhibit his written authority when required so to do by any municipal or peace officer;

Proviso.

And provided also that nothing herein contained shall affect the powers of any council to pass by-laws, under the provisions of sections 579 to 582 and clause 30 of this section.

The earlier Provincial Acts relating to the licensing of hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen are 47 Geo. III. c. 9 (1807); 51 Geo. III. c. 2 (1811); 56 Geo. III. c. 34 (1816); and 58 Geo. III. c. 5 (1818), the last of which (as amended by 9 Geo. IV. c. 8 (1828)) was made perpetual by 2 V. c. 23 (1839). 13-14 V. c. 7 (1850) exempted from the operation of these Acts persons employed by any temperance, religious or benevolent society, so far as to make a license unnecessary to authorize such persons to sell or peddle "temperance tracts and other moral and religious publications under the direction of such society." By 16 V. c. 184, s. 2 (1853), counties and cities were empowered to make by-laws for licensing, regulating and governing "hawkers and petty chapmen and other trading persons going from place to place or to other men's houses, or who have not become permanent householders by permanent residence within such county or city, or travelling either on foot or with a horse or horses . . . or other beasts bearing or drawing burthens, boats . . . vessels or other craft carrying to sell or exposing for sale any goods, wares or merchandise."

18 V. c. 134 (1855)—(following the precedent established by 56 Geo. III. c. 34, s. 3, and 9 Geo. IV. c. 8)—provided that no municipal duty should be imposed "upon persons hawking or peddling goods, wares and merchandise of the growth, produce or manufacture of this Province," an exception which, when the clause came to be embodied in "The Municipal Act,"—as s. 277 (3) of 22 V. c. 99 (1858),—was qualified by adding the words "not being liquors mentioned in the 245th section of this Act," viz.,—"spirituous, fermented or other manufactured liquors" (s. 245).

The Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51, s. 286 (3)) extended to separated towns that power of licensing and regulating which had been conferred upon counties and cities by 16 V. c. 184, s. 2; but it omitted the exception in favour of domestic goods, which, however, was restored in 1869 by 32 V. c. 43, s. 19 and continued in the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 383 (3), but was dropped again when the section was consolidated as s. 405 (3) of R. S. O. (1877), c. 174.

In 1880 the section was re-cast and re-enacted by 43 V. c. 24, s. 13, in (substantially) its present form, except that "pedlars" are not mentioned, and the first "or," in line 5, is omitted. The provisoes are identically as now. The word "or" where it first occurs in line 5, makes its appearance in the R. S. O. (1887), c. 181, s. 495 (3); and the word "pedlars" was inserted in 1896 by 59 V. c. 51, s. 16. As to the transfer of these powers to the Board of Commissioners of Police in certain cities by 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (122), and 60 V. c. 45, s. 22, see the references appended to s. 581, ante, and s. 585, post.

Hawkers and pedlars.

(u) "For licensing, regulating and governing." See note (a) to s. 329, s. 580 (3-6) and note (b) to that section, also note (j) supra.

"Regulating," etc.

It is to be observed that these words confer no express power for "preventing" or "prohibiting" or "restraining" such as has been given by various other sections of the Act (a).

It was mainly because of the omission from this sub-section of any express authority "to prevent" that the majority of the Supreme Court of Canada, and (on appeal) the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, held to be ultra vires and void a by-law of the city of Toronto which prohibited any of the traders herein enumerated from prosecuting his trade or calling on certain defined portions (including some 10 miles in all) of eight of the principal streets of the municipality (b).

In the Supreme Court, both GWYNNE, J., (p. 464), and KING, J., (p. 474), refer especially to the first proviso, as shewing that the Legislature—in thereby declaring that the business of a hawker, pedlar or petty chapman, (or certain forms of it), might be carried on with respect to certain articles and in a certain way without a license fee—could never have intended to confer upon the local authorities the power of absolutely prohibiting its exercise upon certain streets; and Mr. Justice KING, at p. 477, further observes that:—

> "As a general principle all by-laws in restrain of trade, whether general or partial, must be beneficial to the public or they cannot be supported (c); but the securing of any public benefit which the council are authorized to promote is strikingly absent from anything that appears likely to follow upon the enforcement of this by-law."

And Lord DAVEY, in delivering the judgment of the Privy Council (p. 94), says:—

> "The question should be regarded from the point of view as well of the public as of the hawkers. The effect of the by-law is practically to deprive the residents of what is admittedly the most important part of the city of the privilege of buying their goods from or trading with the class of traders in question. And this observation receives additional force from the very wide definition given to "hawkers" by clause (a). There was no evidence, (and it is scarcely conceivable), that the trade cannot be carried on without occasioning a nuisance; and the applicants wisely disclaim any intention to discriminate against hawkers and pedlars in favour of permanent shopkeepers."

It was therefore held that the language of the sub-section is not wide enough to authorize a by-law "making it unlawful to carry on a lawful trade in a lawful manner." See this case also referred to in note (a) to s. 329 and followed in Bollander v. City of Ottawa, (d) cited in note (b) to s. 580.

Note (v).

(v) "Hawkers, pedlars or petty chapmen, and other persons . . . who go from place to place or to other men's houses . . . carrying goods . . . for sale."

These words,—"hawkers," "pedlars" and "petty chapmen",—are used in the earliest Provincial Acts relating to the subject (a).

Who are "hawkers," "pedlars" and "petty chapmen."

A "hawker" is said to be "one who cries goods and wares on the streets or from place to place" (b); and the Imperial Dictionary—after defining a "hawker" as "one who offers goods for sale by outcry in the street; one who travels about the country selling small wares," and a pedlar as "a travelling foot trader: one that carries about small commodities on his back or in a cart or waggon and sells them"—proceeds to observe that "both hawkers and pedlars are a sort of itinerant retail dealers, but the former are supposed to carry on business on a larger scale than the latter." The word "pedlar" has not been defined by Statute either here or in England; but in "The Hawkers Act, 1888" (c) a hawker means:—"Any person who travels with a horse or other beast bearing or drawing burden, and goes from place to place or to other men's houses carrying to sell or exposing for sale any goods, wares or merchandise, to be afterwards delivered," and the term includes:—"Any person who travels by any means of locomotion to any place in which he does not usually reside or carry on business, and there sells or exposes for sale any goods, wares or merchandise in or at any house, shop, room, booth, stall, or other place whatever hired or used by him for that purpose." "Petty chapman" ("cheap-men" or "cheap-men") are defined as "retail dealers, especially itinerant dealers who travel about from place to place buying and selling": (d) "such as carry goods from market to market, or from house to house to sell." (e)

In Rex v. Little (f) it was held that a single act of selling does not make a man a hawker so that he ought to take out a license before he trades as such. But where a person residing in London had brought drapery to Hastings, and sold it there without a license, the Court sustained his conviction under "The Hawkers and Pedlars Act" of 1810 (g) which imposes a license duty upon "every pedlar, hawker, petty chapman and every other trading person . . . going from town to town or to other men's houses and travelling either on foot or with horses or otherwise carrying to sell or exposing for sale any goods, wares or merchandise"; and they held that he was within the meaning of that Act "a trading person going from town to town." (h)

As will be seen by reference to the small-print note supra under subs. 14, our Provincial Statute of 1818, (58 Geo. III, c. 5) in reference to hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen, adopted almost verbatim the language of the Imperial Act, 50 Geo. III. c. 41.

The Provincial Statute (i) authorized the summary arrest of "any * * * hawker, pedlar, petty chapman or other trading person as aforesaid who shall be found trading without a license"; but in an action against a constable for making such an arrest without a warrant, a plea that the plaintiff was at the time of the arrest a pedlar, etc., selling goods in the city of Toronto without a license, was held bad for not alleging (as required by the Statute) that the plaintiff was "found trading." (j)

"Persons who go from place to place," etc.

Under the Imperial Act of 1810, a licensed auctioneer, going from town to town in a public stage coach, sending goods by public waggons and selling on commission by retail or by auction, was held to be a "trading person," etc., who must take out a license as a hawker and pedlar (a); but where a licensed tea dealer sent his servant round the neighborhood to solicit orders for tea, and subsequently delivered parcels of tea thus ordered, it was held that the servant was not "carrying to sell" within the meaning of the Act, and was not subject to a penalty for trading as a hawker without a license. (b) This class of cases was covered, so far as respects sales by samples or patterns, by the Imp. Stat. 24-25 V. c. 21, s. 9; and see clause (a) infra.

In Reg. v. Lord (e) a canvasser for a sewing machine company, who travelled with a horse and cart, and sold machines for a company without a license was convicted under "The Hawker's Act, 1888."

The Pedlars Acts, (Imp. Stats. 34-35 V. c. 96; 44-45 V. c. 45), require an annual certificate to be taken out by: "Any hawker, pedlar, petty chapman, tinker, caster of metal, mender of chairs and other person who without any horse or other beast bearing or drawing burden, travels and trades on foot and goes from town to town and to other men's houses carrying to sell or exposing for sale any goods, wares or merchandise or procuring orders for goods, etc., immediately to be delivered, or selling, or offering for sale his skill in handicraft" (s. 3), but they exempt from this requirement,—commercial travellers; persons selling goods to or taking orders for goods, etc., from dealers therein; persons who buy to sell again; persons who sell or take orders for books under written authority from the publishers; sellers of vegetables, fish, fruit or victuals (f), and persons selling goods in a public market (s. 23).

One of twelve ladies who had made up aprons, chemises, handkerchiefs, wool-mats, etc., to be sold for the benefit of a village school and the furnishing of a minister's house, having gone about on foot to several houses in the village with a basket containing these articles, and sold and exposed them for sale without having taken out a pedlar's certificate, it was held that she did not come within the definition of a "pedlar" contained in the words above quoted, and that she was not liable to a penalty for selling without a certificate. (g) And, semble, a person who stands in the street to sell his goods, but does not "go . . . to other men's houses carrying to sell," etc., is not a "pedlar" within the meaning of the section. (h) But in O'Dea v. Crowhurst (i) one who without a license went about peddling oil from a cask hung on wheels so as to form a cart, and which was drawn by a horse, was held to be a "hawker" within s. 1 of the Act and liable to conviction as such.

License is personal.

In Re Ford and McArthur (j) ADAM WILSON, J., doubted whether a license under "The Municipal Act" to a hawker or pedlar is personal to the licensee only or extends to a servant. He inclined to the opinion that it was personal, but did not determine the question (k).

Hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen.

In Thomas v. Turner (a) the agent of a grocer doing business in London, Ont., went from house to house in Brantford taking orders for tea, and the defendant (another agent) afterwards delivered the tea so ordered. The defendant, having been convicted and fined for breach of a by-law of the city of Brantford (passed under this sub-section) to prevent hawkers, pedlars, etc., from exercising their calling in the municipality without a license, appealed to the General Sessions, and Reg. v. McKnight was cited on his behalf; but the County Judge upheld the conviction, observing that our Statute does not (like the English Act, 50 Geo. III. c. 41) contain the words "exposing for sale," and that the city by-law expressly prohibited sales made by taking orders per sample. In Reg v. Coutts (b), however, ROSE, J., upon precisely similar facts, came to an opposite conclusion. There the defendant, who was a traveller for a tea dealer, carried samples from house to house and took orders for tea, which orders he sent to his employer. The latter forwarded the tea in packages to the defendant, who delivered it to the customers and received the price. On these facts the defendant was convicted "for that he did . . . offer for sale and sell tea as a pedlar . . . without a license," etc., (negativing the cases excepted by the Statute). Reg. v. McKnight (c) was cited and discussed. Held:—(1) that the defendant was not a "hawker" (d):—(2) that if he was a "petty chapman or person carrying on a petty trade," the conviction could not be supported, for he was not "carrying goods for sale,"—and (3) that a municipality could not [then] pass a by-law prohibiting unlicensed traders from sending out agents to take orders for goods from private persons not being retail dealers and from subsequently delivering the goods ordered.

Per ROSE, J. (p. 650):—"If it is deemed desirable that such power should be given to the municipalities, the Legislature can be applied to for an Act similar to the Imp. Stat. 24-25 V. c. 21."

The Legislature accordingly at its next Session passed the Act 41 V. c. 40, which is now embodied in clause (a) of this sub-section.

Information and conviction for breach of by-law must negative the statutory exceptions.

In Reg. v. McFarlane (e) a conviction for breach of a by-law under this sub-section was quashed as bad upon its face for not negativing the exception of the above proviso as to the goods, wares or merchandise, the growth, produce or manufacture of this Province, etc.

This decision was followed in Reg. v. Smith (f) and it was held that a by-law not containing the statutory exceptions was invalid.

"Hawkers," what the term includes.

(a) The word "'hawkers" in this clause shall include all persons who, being agents for persons not resident within the county, sell or offer for sale tea, dry goods, watches, plated ware, silver ware, furniture, carpets, upholstery, millinery, or jewelry, or carry and expose samples or patterns of any of such goods to be afterwards delivered within the county to any person not being a wholesale or retail dealer in such goods, wares or merchandise.

By-laws passed before October 1st, 1885.

(b) The provisions of any by-law passed or enacted by any municipal council prior to the first day of October, 1885, shall not be held as extending to any persons who, by this clause are to be held as included within the meaning of the word "hawkers."

Taken from 48 V. c. 40, ss. 1, 2 (1885), which, however, did not extend to "watches, plated ware, silver ware" (added in 1892 by 55 V. c. 43, s. 38), or to "furniture, carpets, upholstery, millinery" (added in 1896 by 59 V. c. 51, s. 16). Cf. Imp. Stat. 24-25 V. c. 21, s. 9, referred to in note (v) supra.

(c) 10 B. & C. 734 (1830).

(d) The word "pedlar" was not then used in the subsection.

Note (w).

Hawkers and pedlars.

Agents selling by samples or patterns.

(w) The first reported decision upon this sub-section, after the addition of clause (a) by 48 V. c. 40, s 1, is Reg. v. Chayter (a), a motion to quash a conviction of the defendant under a by-law of the county of Huron framed in the words of the amended sub-section:—"For that he did, etc., offer for sale at the town of Seaforth, electrotype wares and other goods, wares and merchandise, as an agent by sample to have the said goods delivered at a future time," etc. Held, that the word "jewelry," used in the section, was not an apt term to describe electrotype wares; since "jewelry" as commonly understood, "consists of ornaments or gold or silver, precious metal, precious stones, richly cut glass or highly finished steel. Jewelry may be made of electrotype ware, but electrotype ware is not jewelry any more than the rude gold or the rough and unpolished precious stone is jewelry." (b) Held also, that the words "other goods, wares and merchandise" were too general; and on these and other grounds the conviction was set aside. Hence the amendment of clause (a) by 55 V. c. 43, s. 38.

In Reg. v. McNicol, (c) decided in the same year and by the same learned Judge, the defendant was convicted, under a precisely similar by-law of the county of Bruce, of having sold and delivered tea in that county "as agent for one P. W. of the City of London." On the hearing before the magistrate the defendant, notwithstanding the protest of his counsel, was called and examined as a witness for the prosecution. The evidence showed that "in order to get over this by-law," P. W. had supplied the tea to the defendant as and when he required it to fill orders; that the orders were sent to P. W., who made up the parcels for the customers, but charged the price (less a discount) to the defendant and sent the parcels to him for delivery, but that the defendant was personally liable to P. W. for the (reduced) cost of the tea, any loss or profit on the sales being the defendant's. Held:—(1) that upon the evidence the defendant was an independent dealer and trader, and that, not being an "agent" within the words of clause (a) nor "carrying goods for sale within the wording of sub-section 14, he required no license"; (2) that the conviction did not shew that "P. W. of the City of London" was a non-resident of the county of Bruce, and "a person may not inaptly be described as 'of the city of London' for some purposes, although he is at the time a resident within another county"; (3) that the conviction might be found open to objection for alleging only that the defendant "did sell tea and deliver the same" without mentioning any quantity; (d) (4) that the possession of a license was a matter of defence, and its absence need not be proved by the prosecution, and (5) that the defendant had been improperly compelled to give evidence against himself. (e).

In Reg. v. Bassett (f) the defendant was convicted under a by-law of the county of Waterloo (similar to the by-laws mentioned in the two preceding cases,) "for that he did, etc., carry and expose samples or patterns of dry goods to be afterwards delivered," etc. What the defendant exhibited were samples of suitings not yet made up. He sold no manufactured clothing; but he solicited orders for suits to be made up at London from materials similar to those which he shewed. Held, (per GALT, J.), that "the clothing for which he solicited orders after exposing his samples of the cloth from which it was to be manufactured, is not intended by the Act to be comprehended in the term 'dry goods.' . . . If the defendant had sold . . . imported cloths in bales and large quantities according to samples . . . he would probably have been liable to conviction under the by-law."

On a motion before the same learned Judge to quash another conviction under the same by-law, it was held that a member of a firm carrying and disposing of samples or making sales himself, is not an "agent" within the meaning of the Act (g).

(a) 11 O. R. 217 (1886). (b) Per ADAM WILSON, C. J., at p. 220.

(c) 11 O.R. 659 (1886).

(d) "The precise quantity need not be stated, but it might properly (as in an indictment) be given under a videlicet. The name of the purchaser of the tea should also be given if known, and if not known the fact might be so stated." (Ibid. pp. 663-664).

Note (w)

Agents selling by samples or patterns.

In Reg. v. Henderson (a), the defendant, a wholesale and retail tea dealer residing and carrying on business in the city of Hamilton, sold tea by samples in the county of Halton to persons not being wholesale or retail dealers therein, and forwarded the orders to his own place of business at Hamilton, whence the tea, made up in parcels ready for delivery, was sent to him at Milton in the county of Halton for distribution to the purchasers. He was convicted of carrying on a petty trade. Held, under the authority of Reg. v. Coutts, supra, that he was not a hawker, "since he was not carrying goods for sale" nor did the amendment of sub-section 14 by clause (a) bring him within its purview, since the Act as amended applies only to "agents" and does not include a principal. Reg. v. Marshall, supra, was approved and followed (b).

In view of these decisions, clause (a) will require further amendment in order to accomplish the apparent object of the Legislature.

Powers of towns not separated from counties as to hawkers' and pedlars' licenses.

Runners.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:

27. For preventing persons in streets or public places from importuning others to travel in or employ any vessel or vehicle, or go to any tavern or boarding house, or for regulating persons so employed; 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (6).

Importuning travellers.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (27). Cf. the Act of 1849 (cities and towns): "For preventing runners, stage drivers and others in the streets or public places from soliciting and teasing passengers and others to travel in any boat, vessel, stage or vehicle": 12 V. c. 81, ss. 81 (4), 82, 196.

(dd) "For preventing." Cf. subss. 8 and 10, supra.

"Preventing," etc.

This sub-section might (perhaps more appropriately) have been inserted in Div. XIX., s. 580, under the head of "Nuisances." One reason for extending, in the Act of 1858, its then existing provisions, so as to include runners for hotels and boarding houses, may be found in Re Davis and Town of Clifton (d). The township of Stamford had obtained a special Act (e), which—after reciting that the rapid increase in the number of visitors to the Falls of Niagara demanded more stringent provisions for the regulation of runners, guides, etc., than those which then existed—authorized the township council to pass by-laws "to prohibit any person or persons from soliciting passengers, visitors or others to resort or go to any inn, tavern or boarding house, museum or other place of resort" without having first obtained a license so to do.

Re Davis and Town of Clifton.

By 19 V. c. 63 (1856), part of the township of Stamford was incorporated as the town of Clifton "with all the privileges and rights of an incorporated town in Upper Canada," (f) all former Acts, by-laws, etc., inconsistent therewith being expressly repealed (g). A by-law passed by the town under 12 V. c. 81, s. 81 (4) providing that:—"It shall not be lawful for any person to solicit passengers, visitors or others, except at a railway station or steamboat landing, to go to any inn, etc., or to act as a runner or guide within the limits of the municipality," was set aside as ultra vires, DRAPER, C.J. observing (h) that the Act of 16 V. c. 35 was in effect a legislative declaration that the general authority conferred upon municipal councils to make "such regulations as the good of the inhabitants of the municipality requires" (i) does not empower them to prohibit any particular occupation not in itself unlawful, and only a nuisance from its abuse.

A by-law passed by the Board of Commissioners of Police of the City of Toronto under the authority of s. 484 of this Act provided that no person licensed thereunder "shall solicit any person to take or use his express waggon, or shall employ or allow any runner or other person to assist or act in consort [? concert] with him in soliciting any passenger or baggage at any of the stands, railroad stations, steamboat landings or elsewhere in the said city," etc. The defendant was the president of a baggage transfer company, an employee of which, (one C.) under his directions and with the consent of the railway company, went on board an incoming passenger train at a suburban city station and while the train was on its way to the (central) Union Station, passed through the cars calling out "Baggage transferred to all parts of the city," and having in his hands transfer checks of defendant's company for delivery to passengers. The defendant having been convicted of a breach of the by-law, it was held:—(1) that C. had not solicited any person to take or use an express waggon; and, though he had solicited baggage, that this was not such a solicitation as was contemplated by the by-law, since "the object to be attained was to prevent passengers from being harassed by expressmen and others on their arrival," whereas there was here no personal solicitation; (2) that the words "elsewhere in the said city," used in the by-law, must be read in connection with the preceding words "at any of the stands, railroad stations, steamboat landings," etc., and could not be extended to a railway carriage, the property of the railway company, and not under the control of the Police Commissioners. The conviction was accordingly quashed with costs. (a)

Regulating sale of tobacco.

Rev. Stat. c. 245.

28. For licensing and regulating the owners and keepers of stores and shops (other than taverns and shops holding licenses under The Liquor License Act) where tobacco, cigars or cigarettes are sold by retail. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (41); 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22; c. 15, Sched. C (122); and see sec. 585.

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 28 (51), which also empowers these municipalities to pass by-laws:—"For preventing the sale of tobacco, cigars or cigarettes to children under the age of 14 years except on the written order of the parent, guardian or employer of the child." This portion of the sub-section,—though embodied in R.S.O. (1887) c. 184, s. 496 (41),—was omitted from the Act of 1892 as having been superseded by the Statute of that Session, 55 V. c. 52, now R. S. O. c. 261; see infra. As to the transfer of these powers to the Boards of Commissioners of Police in certain cities by 59 V. c. 51, s. 21; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22, and 60 V. c. 15, Sched. Supplying tobacco to persons under 18.

"1. Any person who either directly or indirectly sells or gives or furnishes to a minor under eighteen years of age, cigarettes, cigars or tobacco in any form, shall on summary conviction thereof before a Justice of the Peace be subject to a penalty of not less than $10, nor more than $50, with or without costs of prosecution, or to imprisonment, with or without hard labour, for any term not exceeding thirty days, or to both fine, with or without costs, and imprisonment to the said amount and for the said term, in the discretion of the convicting Magistrate. And in case of a fine, or a fine and costs being awarded, and of the same not being upon conviction forthwith paid, the Justice may commit the offender to the common gaol, there to be imprisoned for any term not exceeding thirty days, unless the fine and costs are sooner paid.

Where purchase made for the parent or guardian.

2. This Act shall not apply to a sale to the minor for his parent or guardian under a written request or order of the parent or guardian.

Transient Traders.

By the councils of townships, towns and villages, and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

30. For licensing, regulating and governing transient traders and other persons who occupy premises in the city, town, village, or township, for temporary periods, and whose names have not been duly entered on the assessment roll of the municipality in respect of income or personal property for the then current year; and who may offer goods or merchandise of any description for sale by auction, or in any other manner, conducted by themselves or by a licensed auctioneer or otherwise. Regulating transient traders.

(a) No such by-law shall affect, apply to, or restrict the sale of the stock of an insolvent estate which is being sold or disposed of within the county in which the insolvent carried on business therewith at the time of the issue of an attachment or of the execution of an assignment. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (9); 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22; c. 15, Sched. C. (122); and see sec. 585.

The earlier Provincial Acts relating to the licensing of hawkers, pedlars and petty chapmen, (referred to under sub-sec. 14 of this section), and also 10 V. c. 184, s. 2 and the corresponding section of the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 277 (3) applied, not only to the persons now within the purview of sub-section 14, but also to "other trading persons . . . who have not become permanent residents in the county or city." The Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), while retaining those words in the section relative to hawkers and petty chapmen, (s. 286 (3)), empowered the councils of cities, towns and villages to pass by-laws "For licensing, regulating and governing transient traders and other persons who occupy places of business in the city or town (sic) for uncertain periods less than a year, and whose names have not been entered in the assessment rolls for the current year," (s. 296 (56)). 33 V. c. 26, s. 7 (1869) inserted after the words "city or town" the words "or incorporated village" and struck out the word "uncertain." The Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48) s. 384 (63), substituted "premises" for "places of business" and inserted after "assessment rolls" the words "in respect of income or personal property." See R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 466 (53). In 1880 this sub-section was repealed by 42 V. c. 31, s. 22 (53) and re-enacted in substantially its present form, the power being at the same time extended to townships.

The only subsequent alteration of importance was the insertion of the words "in any other manner" made under the authority of 43 V. c. 25, s. 24 (1880), in "The Con. Mun. Act of 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 490 (6).

As to the transfer of this power to the Boards of Commissioners of Police in certain cities by 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22, and 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (122), see under s. 585, post.

31. For requiring all transient traders who occupy premises in the municipality, and are not entered upon the assessment roll or who may be entered for the first time upon the assessment roll of such municipality, in respect of income or personal property, and who may offer goods or merchandise of any description for sale by auction, or in any other manner, conducted by themselves or by a licensed auctioneer, or by their agent or otherwise, to pay a license fee before commencing to trade. Licensing transient traders.

Transient traders.

Sale of insolvent estates.

(a) No such by-law shall affect, apply to, or restrict the sale of the stock of an insolvent estate which is being sold or disposed of within the local municipality in which the insolvent carried on business therewith, at the time of the issue of an attachment or of the execution of an assignment. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (9*a*); c. 43, s. 31; 56 V. c. 35, s. 16; 57 V. c. 50, s. 7; 58 V. c. 42, s. 21; 59 V c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22: c. 15, Sched. C. (122); and see sec. 585.

Taken from 54 V. c. 28, s. 23 (1888), the word "local" before "municipality" in the third line of clause (a) having been since inserted by 53 V. c. 50, s. 19 (1890), and the words (in the third and fourth lines of the principal clause) "or who may be entered for the first time in the assessment roll of such municipality" by 57 V. c. 50, s. 7 (1894). As to 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 45, s. 22, and 60 V. c. 15 Sched. C. (122), see under s. 585, post.

Meaning of words "transient traders."

(b) The words "transient traders," wherever they occur in clauses 30 and 31 of this section, shall extend to and include any person commencing in the municipality the business in the said clauses mentioned, who has not resided continuously in such municipality for a period of at least three months next preceding the time of the commencement by him of such business therein. 58 V. c. 42, s. 22.

Added in 1895; see the reference.

"Regulating," etc.

(ff) "For licensing, regulating and governing." See note (a) to s. 329, notes (j) and (u) to this section and Bollander v. City of Ottawa, (a) cited in note (b) s. 580.

To whom this section applies.

(gg) "Transient traders and other persons who occupy premises." The occupation of premises in the municipality, though only for a temporary period, is the essential note of difference between the class of persons herein described as "transient traders" and those to whom sub-sections 14-16 are applicable. In Reg. v. Cuthbert (b) the defendant, who was the agent in Canada for Messrs. Thomas Russell & Sons of London, Eng., had consigned to auctioneers in London, Ont., a large quantity of jewelry to be sold by them on account of Thomas Russell & Sons at specified rates. The goods were placed in the ware rooms of the auctioneers, and were there sold, partly by auction and partly by private sale, some of them by the auctioneers and some of them by the defendant, who for that purpose had taken out an auctioneer's license; but all the sales were controlled and (as between them and purchasers) were made by the auctioneers in whose premises they were carried on. The conviction of the defendant as a transient trader selling without a trader's license was quashed.

Per OSLER, J.:—

> "The first requisite to jurisdiction over any transient trader . . . is that he shall be an occupant of premises in the municipality. Where goods are consigned (as in the present case) to be sold on commission, and they are so sold in the shop or premises of the commission merchant and by him or on his behalf . . . it is impossible to say that the owner of the goods is a transient trader merely because he happens to accompany the goods and assist in their sale."

In Reg. v. Caton (c) a by-law that:—"No transient trader or other person occupying a place of business in the town of M. for a temporary period less than one year and whose name has not been duly entered on the assessment roll for the current year shall . . . offer goods, wares or merchandise for sale . . . within the limits of the town of M. without a license," etc., was held good, the words "less than one year" being regarded merely as a limitation of the words "temporary periods," used in the Statute. The conviction of the defendant was, however, quashed for not showing that his name had not been duly entered on the assessment roll for the current year

Sec 583 (31) (33). Note 88.

In Reg. v. Banks (a) a conviction for "carrying on the business of a transient trader without having obtained a license so to do, contrary to the by-law," etc., was quashed for not stating in terms that the defendant was a person who occupied premises in the municipality, etc., following the language of the Statute.

Transient traders.

So in Reg. v. Appelbe (b)—where the by-law provided that:—"No person not entered on the assessment roll of the city of W. . . . or who may be entered for the first time on the said assessment roll . . . and who at the time of commencing business . . . has not resided continuously in said city . . . at least three months, shall commence business . . . for the sale of goods or merchandise . . . until such person has paid to A. the sum of $—by way of license."—it was held that the by-law was invalid as not being limited to persons occupying premises in the municipality, and that clause (b) of sub-sec. 31 has not dispensed with this requirement. A conviction in the terms of the by-law was therefore quashed.

In Reg. v. Langley (c) the conviction of the defendant as a transient trader was quashed under the following state of facts:—

The defendant had entered into an arrangement with various retail merchants by which each of them was to receive from him a quantity of "trading stamps" (the property in which, however, was to remain in the defendant), to pay him fifty cents for every 100 of such stamps so received, and to give one of these stamps to each customer who purchased for cash ten cents worth of goods. The defendant on his part was to advertise these merchants in certain newspapers, and also in certain directories to be distributed by him. In each of these directories a blank space was left for pasting in such "trading stamps;" and every customer of any of the merchants who brought to the defendant one of the directories with 990 stamps pasted therein, was entitled to receive in exchange any article which he might select out of an assortment of goods kept in stock by the defendant. Except as aforesaid these goods were not for sale. Held, that—since the essence of a sale is the transfer of property from one person to another for money or money's worth,—these transactions did not constitute a selling or offering for sale of goods by the defendant within the meaning of a municipal by-law passed under the above sub-sections, the stamps delivered by the defendant in exchange for his goods being of no value to him.

In territorial districts.

Provided, nevertheless, that the license fee imposed by any by-law of any village situate within a territorial district may be a sum not exceeding $200. (Ib.)

Based upon 51 V. c. 28, s. 23 (1888), by which the maximum amount of the license fee was fixed at $100 in cities and $50 in other municipalities. 55 V. c. 43, s. 31, (1892), "raised the limit" in towns to $100; 56 V. c. 35, s. 16, (1893) added a proviso as to the fees in towns and villages situate in the judicial or territorial districts of the Province, fixing the maximum fees at $250 for towns and $200 for villages; but a further amendment in 1895, by 58 V. c. 42, s. 21, left the figures as they now stand.

Victualling Houses, etc.

By the councils of townships, towns and villages, and of cities having less than 100,000 inhabitants, and by the Board of Commissioners of Police in cities having 100,000 inhabitants or more:—

Victualling houses, etc., number and regulation of.

Licensing same.

35. For licensing the same where no other provision exists therefor, and for revoking any license so granted whenever the council or Board deems such revocation desirable without stating any reason therefor; but in the case of the revocation of a license under any such by-law, the treasurer of the municipality shall refund to the licensee such proportionate part of the license fee as will represent the unexpired portion of the term for which the license was granted. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (7-8); 59 V. c. 51, s. 31: 60 V. c. 45, s. 22; c. 15, Sched. C (122): 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 37 (2); and sec sec. 585.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. 99), s. 254 (2-3). The words "and for revoking," etc., to the end of sub-s. 35 were added in 1899 by 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 37 (2). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (9) (19), (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80, (towns); ss. 82, 106, (cities). As to the transfer of these powers by 59 V. c. 51, s. 31, 60 V. c. 45, s. 22 and 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (122) to the Board of Commissioners of Police in certain cities, see under s. 585, post.

These words will not authorize the passing of a by-law which results or may result, in a total prohibition of such houses, or in such a limitation of their number as would, in effect, create a monopoly (a).

(ii) "Victualling houses, ordinaries, houses where . . . victuals are sold to be eaten therein, and . . . places for the . . . reception, refreshment or entertainment of the public."

"Victualling houses."

"Ordinaries."

A "victualling house" is "an eating house," (b); "a house where provision is made for strangers to eat." (c). The Imp. Stat. 9 Geo. IV. c. 61, s. 1, speaks of "licenses to persons keeping inns, alehouses and victualling houses." (d) An "ordinary" meant a regular (table d'hote) meal as distinguished from one cooked to order, and hence, a place where such meals are served at a fixed price. (e)

"Places for the refreshment or entertainment of the public."

The nearest English analogue to a house of the class intended by this sub-section is a "refreshment house," described by Imp. Stat. 23 V. c. 27, s. 6 as a "house for public refreshment, resort and entertainment," words which have been held to include any place where the public are received, sheltered and refreshed,—e.g. a "temperance" hotel, where chops, coffee and non-intoxicating ale are sold to be consumed on the premises (a).

Sec. 583 (35-37).

Note (ii).

"Places for the reception, refreshment, or entertainment of the public."

In Taylor v. Oram (b) the defendants kept a dancing saloon where liquor was not proved to have been sold, but was purchased and fetched if requested. The magistrate, conceiving that "entertainment" did not mean "diversion" or "amusement," but that it must be construed as ejusdem generis with "refreshment"—(i. e., as meaning food and drink, etc.),—declined to convict; and, upon a special case stated by him, the Court of Exchequer held his finding as to the facts to be conclusive, and (MARTIN, B., dissenting) that his construction of the Statute was correct.

In Muir v. Keay (c) it was argued that the words "and entertainment" refer to something wholly different from food or drink, and that the entertainment intended must be a musical entertainment or something of a like nature; but the Court declined to accept this view. Per BLACKBURN, J.:—"I do not think that 'entertainment' need be something in the nature of refreshment. It is rather the co-relative of 'resort': . . . it means public reception." And per LUSH, J. (p. 598):—"I think 'entertainment' is something connected with the enjoyment of refreshment rooms,—tables and the like. It is something beyond refreshment, it is the accommodation provided, whether that includes a musical or other amusement or not." In that case the defendant, who kept a café where cigars, coffee and ginger beer were sold and consumed on the premises, was held to be the keeper of a refreshment house within the Imperial Statute above cited.

Howes v. The Board of Inland Revenue (d) is,—to use the expression of GROVE, J. at p. 390,—"a marginal case." The appellant's shop consisted of one room, open in front and having a counter, but no seats of any kind. Persons frequenting it bought and drank lemonade or ginger beer at the counter and then went away. The question was whether this shop was "a refreshment house" within the Statute. A Divisional Court (e) held that it was, and their decision was affirmed by a majority of the Court of Appeal; but CLEASBY, B., (in the Divisional Court) and BAGGALLAY, L. J., (in the Court of Appeal), dissented, holding that under Muir v. Keay the house or shop must be kept open for something more than refreshment and resort, and that there was nothing here in the nature of public reception or accommodation. The principal ground on which the majority of the Court held the case to be within the Act is thus put by MELLISH, L. J., at p. 393:—"It seems to me that 'entertainment' qualifies 'refreshment' and that the two words together mean . . . the receiving of a customer and the providing him with drink and food of an agreeable nature. . . . In my opinion a man is not the less 'entertained' because he is not asked to sit down while he takes refreshment." And per QUAIN, J. (p. 394):—"Refreshment was sold, and a man cannot be refreshed without being at the same time entertained."

As to the scope of the Imp. Stat. 25 Geo. II. c. 36, s. 2 (1752), referring to houses, etc., kept for public dancing, music or other public entertainment of a like sort, see note (r), supra, and Guaglieni v. Matthews, 34 L.J.M.C. 116 (1865).

Regulating and licensing livery stables, cabs, etc.

38. For regulating and licensing the owners of livery stables, and of horses, cabs, carriages, omnibuses and other vehicles for hire; for establishing the rates of fares to be taken by the owners or drivers, and for enforcing payment thereof, and for defining localities or districts within the limits of which no livery or boarding stable shall thereafter be established. 55 V. c 42, s. 510.

The first part of this sub-section, down to and inclusive of the words "and for enforcing payment thereof" is taken from the Act of 1858, 22 V. c. 99), s. 287 (31), which applied to cities, towns and villages. 31 V. c. 30, s. 33 (1868) transferred this authority to the Boards of Police Commissioners in cities; and 52 V. c. 36, s. 27 (1889) added the last clause, "and for defining localities."

"Owner," meaning of.

(jj) "Owners . . of horses . . for hire." In Reg. v. Swalwell, (a) a by-law of the town of Almonte that "Every person owning a livery stable or letting or intending to let out horses or carriages or other vehicles for hire in the said town" shall take out a license, and a conviction "that the defendant did keep horses and vehicles for hire in the said town of A. without having first paid the license fee required by by-law No. 63 of said town" were both sustained as against an objection that the Statute only mentions the owners of horses, cabs, carriages, and that one may keep horses and vehicles for hire without owning them. WILSON, C. J.—after an elaborate review of numerous English decisions upon the meaning of the word "owner"—arrives at the conclusion, (p. 401), that it is a word "having no strict legal or technical meaning, but . . . of a very flexible nature" and "manifestly used, both in the Statute and in the by-law, in its ordinary popular and colloquial sense."

Defining localities.

(kk) "For defining localities." The last clause of sub-section 38 was added in consequence of the question raised in Re Kiely, 13 O.R. 451 (1887), referred to in note (c) to s. 484, ante. (b) See ss. 542 (1) (c); 686 (2) (4).

Regulating and licensing livery stables etc.

(b) For issuing and regulating teamsters' licenses;

(c) For enforcing the payment of the fees for such licenses;

(d) For establishing and regulating the rates of fare that may be collected or taken by the owners or drivers of such vehicles for the conveyance of goods or passengers: and

(e) For regulating and enforcing the width of tire that may be used on such vehicles, when travelling on the aforesaid county gravel or macadamized roads. 55 V. c. 42, s. 512.

585. In cities having a population of 100,000 or more, the Board of Commissioners of Police shall have full power to license, regulate and govern each person engaged in any of the businesses or employments in respect to which the Board has power under this Act to pass by laws, whether the full power to license, regulate and govern was, prior to April 7th, 1896, possessed by the councils of such cities or not; but the council of every such city shall, subject to the limitations contained in this Act, have the power, by by-law, to fix the fees to be paid for licenses required under the by-laws of the Boards of Commissioners of Police passed under sections 581 and 583 of this Act; and any moneys derived from such licenses shall be handed over by such Board to the treasurer of the city to form part of the revenue thereof. 59 V. c. 51, s. 31; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (122): c. 45, s. 22. See also sec. 329.

Transfer of licensing powers from councils to police commissioners.

This section is based upon 60 V. c. 45, s. 22 (1897), which repealed and re-enacted a similar enactment of the previous Session, (59 V. c. 51, s. 31 (1896)). The earlier section did not include the powers conferred by s. 540 (1 part), relative to seizing and impounding dogs running at large and selling dogs so impounded; s. 540 (3), tax on owners, possessors and harbourers of dogs: s. 581, sale of fresh meat by retail; s. 583 (12-13), ferries; s. 583 (25-26), plumbers, nor the general words, "and also all other powers possessed by the councils of such cities in reference to licensing, regulating or governing trades, businesses or occupations," which (although used in 60 V. c. 45, s. 22), have been omitted from this section in the Revision of 1897.

These sections applied to "cities of over 100,000 inhabitants;" but as most of the similar statutory provisions referred to "cities of 100,000 or more": (Cf. 52 V. c. 36, s. 22; 52 V. c. 50, ss. 1, 41; 54 V. c. 42, s. 37; 56 V. c. 35, s. 15; 58 V. c. 42, s. 24; 59 V. c. 51, s. 33, and c. 58, s. 3 (3)),—or "100,000 and upwards" (54 V. c. 42, s. 2,—or to "cities having a population of 50,000 or more" (53 V. c. 50, s. 44; 55 V. c. 43, s. 67)—or "of 40,000 or over" (53 V. c. 54, s. 4)—or "of 30,000 or more" (58 V. c. 47, s. 3; 59 V. c. 58, s. 3)—it was considered desirable that the language should be made uniform in all these cases; and accordingly the wording was altered by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (80), (117), (120), (122) to "cities having a population of 50,000 and over," or "of 100,000 or more."

What is a nuisance.

(a) Blackstone (a) says that "nuisance (nocumentum) signifieth anything that worketh hurt, inconvenience or damage;" but this, (as Mr. Garrett points out (b), can hardly be termed a definition; for very many things "work hurt, inconvenience or damage" which the law does not regard as nuisances,—e.g., the establishment of a rival factory or school which diminishes the profits of an existing one; the erection by my neighbour of his house so that it overlooks my private grounds (c) or interferes with the access of air to my windmill (d), or with the draught of the chimneys of my dwelling; (e) the discomfort necessarily occasioned to me by the carrying on of noisy or other trades in the locality where I live or do business (f); the interference by new buildings, etc., with the outlook from my windows (g) or with the view of my place of business (h).

It seems, indeed, impossible to formulate any satisfactory definition which shall cover all the Protean forms assumed by nuisances; and Sir Edward Coke's division of them (i) into,—"(a) Public or general nuisances, being to the hurt of the whole kingdom; (b) Common nuisances, to the hurt of the passers by, and (c) Private or special nuisances," cannot be considered as either a satisfactory or a scientific classification.

Mr. Garrett's classification of nuisances.

Mr. Garrett (j) arranges the several classes of nuisances under three heads somewhat as follows:—

(1) Acts (or omissions to discharge a public duty) which result in an interference with the enjoyment by the public of rights belonging to them. (k)

Examples under this head are:—The obstruction of highways or waterways (l) the interference with public safety, health or comfort, by keeping or maintaining dangerous animals, buildings, etc., (m) by carrying on dangerous trades (n), by selling, or exposing for sale) meat or drink unfit for human food (o), by exposing infected persons in public places (p) by

A thing may be a public nuisance, within the meaning of this subsection, although it is not dangerous, or even injurious, to health (m). R.(o)—"an inconvenience materially interfering with the ordinary comfort, physically, of human existence."

Note (a).

What are nuisances.

"One ought not to have so delicate a nose that he cannot bear the smell of hogs," (a) for "lex non curat rotis delicatorum;" and the law will not regard as a nuisance the doing of something which is not in itself noxious "unless it interferes with the ordinary enjoyment of life, or the ordinary use of property for the purposes of residence or business"; (b) and this "not merely according to elegant or dainty modes and habits of living, but according to plain, sober and simple notions among the English people." (c)

In Christie v. Davey (d) it was held not to be an actionable nuisance for members of the family of the plaintiffs (who occupied one of two semi-detached houses) to give music lessons for 2½ hours daily, to sing and practise (sometimes as late as 11 p.m.) on the piano, violin and violoncello, and to give musical performances and parties in the evening: and,—it being alleged that the defendant (who occupied the adjoining semi-detached house) had annoyed the plaintiff and his family by blowing whistles, knocking on trays and boards, hammering, etc.,—an injunction was granted restraining him from causing or permitting sounds or noises in his house so as vex or annoy the plaintiffs or either of them or the occupants of their house.

In Llandudno Urban District Council v. Wood (e) an injunction was refused to restrain the defendant from holding meetings and delivering addresses on the beach in front of a watering-place without the permission of the plaintiffs, in whom the foreshore was vested.

In St. Margaret's Church, Toronto v. Stephens et al. (f)—an action by the churchwardens and trustees of a church to restrain the proprietors of an adjoining skating-rink from disturbing their church services by the music of a band which played in the open air during the evening while public worship was going on—it was held by a Divisional Court that the plaintiffs' use of their church was ordinary, reasonable and lawful, and that the defendants' acts were such as materially interfered therewith. An injunction restraining the defendants from causing the band to play at such times or in such manner as to disturb public worship in the church, or to prevent its use for the purposes for which it had been erected, was upheld; but the Court struck out a further clause of the order by which the band had been prohibited from playing, even when no service was going on, if such playing caused rough people to congregate in the adjoining lanes (g).

Temporary annoyance, caused by the execution of works in the ordinary user of land, is not an unlawful nuisance where all reasonable care and skill have been used to avoid annoyance to the neighbours (h); nor is even permanent annoyance or damage, when caused by the exercise, according to the best known and least objectionable methods, of powers distinctly conferred by statutory (or the like) authority (i).

Note (a)

But if the works are so negligently or unskilfully executed as to cause unnecessary injury (a), or if the statute (or other authority) under which the work is done does not expressly authorize the doing of the thing which occasions the nuisance, it affords no defence to the action (b). In Rapier's Case the defendants had been authorized by an Act of Parliament to construct and operate two tramway lines "with all proper rails, plates, works and conveniences connected therewith"; but the Act did not expressly mention "stables," and it gave no power to expropriate land. Stables built by the company for their horses created a nuisance which the plaintiff sought to restrain. Held, that although horses were necessary for the working of the tramways, the company had no statutory warrant for creating a nuisance, and it was no sufficient defence to say that they had used all reasonable care. Per LINDLEY, L. J.:—"An Act of Parliament might be so worded as to be an answer. It was . . . . an answer in the case of The London, Brighton & South Coast R. W. Co. v. Truman (c),—and it might be an answer here, if the Act . . . went further . . . An Act of Parliament might be so worded as to cast upon them [the defendants] no greater duty than to take reasonable care. But unless . . . . so worded . . . I think the common law must prevail; that they must exercise their powers so as not to commit a nuisance." (d)

What are nuisances.

The jurisdiction of municipal corporations in England with regard to nuisances rests wholly upon s. 23 of "The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882," which enacts that "The council may . . . . make such by-laws as to them seem meet for . . . . . prevention and suppression of nuisances not already punishable in a summary manner by virtue of any Act in force throughout the borough."

As to the manner in which the Courts have interpreted the authority thus conferred, see the cases cited in note (d) to s. 326 and in notes (b) to (l) inclusive on this section.

The principal difference between the English Act and ours is that in the latter so many classes of nuisances are specifically mentioned as to leave little (if any) room for municipal councils to claim, under s. 326, authority to deal with unenumerated cases. See ss. 540 (1) (5) (6), 542 (1) (3) (4) (9) (16) (17-17d), 545 (1) (4), 547 (2) (4), 549, 550, 551-553, 557, 558, 559, 562, (8-10), 583 (8) (10) (27), etc., and the observations of DRAPER, C.J., in Re Davis and Town of Clifton (e), quoted in note (u) to s. 583, ante.

Public nuisances.

The remedy by abatement.

(b) "For preventing and abating," etc. The power here given is to pass by-laws "for preventing and abating public nuisances",—i. e., to prohibit anything which is (but not everything which municipal councils may happen to regard as) public nuisances; (a) and—in the case of nuisances actually existing—to authorize their abatement,—i. e., their removal, destruction or extirpation—by duly appointed officers of the corporation, (b) or (it would seem) by any private individual specially injured thereby—at all events where this does not involve a breach of the peace (c) or a trespass. (d) Even without the authority of a municipal by-law, any person who is specially injured thereby may abate a public nuisance, (e) provided that in so doing he occasions no riot, nor any greater injury to property than is absolutely necessary. (f) He may enter, for that purpose, upon the land of him who, either by some positive act or by default in the performance of some legal duty or obligation (g) has created the nuisance; and this he may do without notice, but only where the nuisance is one immediately dangerous to life and health. (h).

In order to warrant a resort to the summary remedy of abatement, the nuisance must actually exist (i); the abatement must not go beyond what is necessary to get rid of it (j); and "if there are two ways of abating the nuisance he must choose the less mischievous of the two," unless "by one of these alternative methods some wrong would be done to an innocent third party or to the public," in which case "that method cannot be justified at all, although an interference with the wrongdoer himself might be justified, . . . and it may become necessary to abate the nuisance in a manner more onerous to the wrongdoer." (k)

The remedy by action or information.

In general, no private action can be maintained for a public nuisance, the damage being common to all the subjects of the Crown; but "if any particular person, after the nuisance made, hath more particular damage than any other, in such case, and because of his particular damage, he shall have particular action, as if he and his horse fall into a ditch dug in the highway whereby he receives hurt and loss." Sec. 586 (1). Note (b.)

The Attorney-General may take proceedings on behalf of the public even though there is no evidence that actual injury has been inflicted. (a) But "in order to entitle a private person to maintain an action for damages caused by that which is a public nuisance the damage must be particular, direct and substantial." (b) Accordingly in Baird v. Wilson (c) the plaintiff failed in an action for obstructing the public highway, because he was unable to prove any substantial damage peculiar to himself beyond that suffered by the rest of the public who used the way, but only that he was obliged (like others) to travel by a less direct road.

The remedy by action or information.

If there is both public nuisance and private damage, the proceeding should be by the Attorney-General to restrain or abate the public nuisance, and by the individual specially injured, as relator and also as plaintiff in respect of his particular damage. (d)

Or by both.

Information of nuisances to Local Board of Health.

"67. Information of any nuisance or unsanitary condition under this Act within the jurisdiction of any Local Board may be given to such Local Board by any person aggrieved thereby, or by any two inhabitant householders, or by any officer of such Local Board, or by any constable or officer of the police force within the jurisdiction of the Board. (e)

Investigation to be made by Local Board.

68. Where such information has been so given, it shall be the duty of the Local Board of Health to investigate the cause of the complaint: and to hear the testimony of all persons who may be produced before it to testify in respect of such matter; and every Local Board or any two of its members shall have the same authority as a Justice of the Peace to require and compel the attendance of witnesses and the giving of evidence.

Local Board to serve notice requiring abatement of nuisance.

69. Wherever the Local Board of Health is satisfied of the existence of the nuisance, it shall serve a notice on the person by whose act, default or sufferance the nuisance arises or continues, or, if such person cannot be found, on the owner or occupier of the premises on which the nuisance exists or from which the same arises, requiring him to abate the same within a time to be specified in the notice (f) and to execute such works and do such things, as may be necessary for that purpose, (g) provided:

Sec. 586 (1) Note (b.)

Public nuisances. R.S.O. c. 248, ss. 69-73.

First,—That where the nuisance arises from the want or defective construction of any structural convenience, or where there is no occupier of the premises, notice under this section shall be served on the owner; (a)

Second,—That where the person causing the nuisance cannot be found, and it is clear that the nuisance does not arise or continue by the act or default of the owner or occupier of the premises, and it is therefore improper that such owner or occupier should be required to abate the said nuisance, the Local Board of Health may abate the nuisance at the expense of the municipality or district. (b)

Power to proceed where cause of nuisance arises without district.

70. Where a nuisance in a municipality or district appears to be wholly or partially caused by some act or default committed or taken place outside of the municipality or district, the Board of Health of the municipality or district affected thereby may institute an inspection, and when necessary may take or cause to be taken against the person by whose act or default the nuisance is caused in whole or in part, any proceedings in relation to nuisances by this Act authorized, with the same incidents and consequences, as if such act or default were committed or took place wholly within its jurisdiction, so, however, that summary proceedings shall in no case be taken otherwise than before a Court having jurisdiction in the municipality or district where the act or default is alleged to be committed or to take place. (c)

Recovery of costs and expenses incurred in abating nuisances.

71. All reasonable costs and expenses incurred in abating a nuisance shall be deemed to be money paid for the use and at the request of the person by whose act, default or sufferance the nuisance was caused, and such costs and expenses shall be recovered by the municipal council or Local Board of Health or person incurring the same, under ordinary process of law; and the Court shall have power to divide costs, expenses and penalties between persons by whose acts or defaults a nuisance is caused as to it may seem just. (d)

Provision where abatement of nuisance involves considerations of difficulty.

73.—(1) If, on an investigation by any Local Board of Health, any nuisance or thing prejudicial to health is found to exist in a municipality in which it has jurisdiction; and if, after the Board has required the removal or abatement of the same within a specified time, the Board finds that default in such removal or abatement has been made, and the case seems to the Board one involving considerations of difficulty owing to the fact that such removal or abatement involves the expenditure or loss of a considerable sum of money, or that any trade or industry is seriously interfered with, or owing to other circumstances, the Local Board of Health may apply to the Provincial Board of Health to investigate and report upon the same, and it shall be the duty of the Provincial Board, with the approval of the Minister of the department to which the same is attached, to make a full investigation and report.

Order of the H. C. J.

(2) If the report recommends the removal or abatement of the nuisance or thing, the Local Board or any ratepayer residing in the municipality, or within a mile thereof may apply to the High Court, for an order for the removal or abatement of the nuisance or unsanitary condition, and to restrain the proprietors of any such industry from carrying on the same until the said nuisance has been abated to the satisfaction of the Provincial Board of Health; and the Court may issue such order upon the report of the Provincial Board of Health."

In the absence of some such express statutory provision as above (e) or of some special damage to municipal property, it would seem that, except in the case of a public highway vested in the municipality under s. 601, or over which it has the jurisdictional rights conferred by s. 600 of this Act, the right of a municipal corporation or other local authority to bring an action in its own name for the prevention (a) or abatement of a public nuisance is not different from or greater than that of an individual (b), and the proceeding must be by indictment or by an action in the nature of an information by the Attorney General, the corporation or other local authority being, if they choose, the relators (c). But if the nuisance is one affecting property owned by the corporation, or vested in them, or placed under their jurisdiction by statute, they may be joined as co-plaintiffs with the Attorney-General or may themselves, without him, maintain an action for an injunction or for damages or for both (d).

The remedy by action or information.

An instructive case relating to this subject is Attorney General v. Clerkenwell Vestry. (e) It was an information and action brought against the local authority of the parish of St. James and St. John, Clerkenwell, by the urban sanitary authority of an adjoining district, for an injunction restraining the defendants from permitting sewage to flow from their parish into and through the plaintiff's district so as to cause a nuisance. It appeared that houses in the defendant parish emptied their cess-pools (by connecting pipes) into main pipe sewers, which, passing under streets in that parish, ultimately emptied sewage into certain brooks in the plaintiff's district, where it caused a nuisance which was alleged to endanger the public health. It was conceded that the plaintiffs could have put an end to the nuisance by proceeding against the persons actively committing it,—i. e. the occupants and owners of these houses—; but the question was as to their rights against the defendants, who had done no more than permit the sewage to pass through their drains. It was held:—(1), that the defendants (they having undertaken not to allow any new connections to be made with their sewers without the plaintiffs' consent) could not be compelled to cut off and could not legally cut off private drain connections which they had already permitted to be made (f); (2) that inasmuch as the sewers and cess-pools were acting properly as such, the defendants could not themselves successfully take proceedings against the owners or occupiers of the houses in question under s. 85 of "The Metropolis Management Act, 1855," which relates only to drains, etc., which "appear to be in bad order and condition,"—nor (since there was no nuisance within the district over which alone they had jurisdiction) could they proceed under "The Nuisances Removal Act, 1855;" (3) that even if they had power so to proceed, the Court would not compel them to exercise it for the benefit of the plaintiffs (g), and (4) "that it is no ground for granting an injunction against a Local Board that they are not properly exercising their powers or performing their duties." (h)

(a) "The jurisdiction of this Court [of Chancery] in relation to matters of public nuisance . . . is is in its nature a preventive rather than a remedial jurisdiction." Per BLAKE, C., in Attorney General v. Weston Plank Road Co., 4 Grant 211 (1853), at p. 216.

Public nuisances; the remedy by indictment.

There remains, however, the remedy by indictment, (a) which, though in form a criminal proceeding, is really remedial in its object and therefore substantially in the nature of a civil action. (b)

It was held that the owner of works carried on by his agents for his profit could be indicted for a public nuisance caused by acts of his workmen in carrying on the works, although the acts causing the nuisance (viz., the deposit of the rubbish from a slate quarry in a public navigable river) were done without his knowledge, and contrary to his general orders. (c)

Manufactures and Trades.

Manufactures and trades.

2. For regulating manufactures or trades which may prove to be nuisances. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (44); 521 (14), part; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (84) (90).

Slaughter-houses, gas-works, distilleries, etc.

3. For preventing and regulating the erection or continuance of slaughter houses, gas works, tanneries or distilleries or other manufactories or trades which may prove to be nuisances. 55 V. c. 42 s., 589 (44).

Sub-sec. 2 is based upon 49 V. c. 37, s. 14 (1886), by which township councils were empowered to pass by-laws:—"For regulating, within the township, slaughter houses and other manufactures or trades which may prove to be nuisances." In R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 521 (11) the words in italics were omitted. The effect of 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (84) (90) was to strike out the specific reference to slaughter-houses and extend to all local municipalities the general powers conferred by the sub-section. Sub-section 3 is from the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), s. 60 (10) (villages); ss. 61, 67, 80 (towns); ss. 82, 106 (cities), and was extended to townships in 1884 by 47 V. c. 32, s. 13.

(c) "For regulating." "For preventing and regulating." See note (a) to s. 329, note (b) to s. 580, and notes (j) and (u) to s. 583.

Extent of municipal powers.

(d) "Which may prove to be nuisances." The powers here referred to do not extend to every manufacture or trade which, in the judgment of the council, may prove to be a nuisance, (d) but only to such as in fact come within that category (e). And—with regard at all events to manufactures and trades not herein specially named—it is apprehended that the power of prevention must be read as limited (f) to cases in which the manufactory or trade is a nuisance per se, or by reason of the manner by which it is carried on. (g)

The principal nuisances arising from the carrying on of manufactures and trades in thickly settled localities are noise, smoke, and noxious or offensive smells.

Noise.

"A nuisance by noise (supposing malice to be out of the question) is emphatically a question of degree. If my neighbour builds a house against a party wall next to my own, and I hear through the wall more than is agreeable to me of the sounds from his nursery or music-room, it does not follow,

Sec 586 (2) (3). Note (d).

Noise.

In Webb v. Barker (b) an injunction was granted preventing the defendants from carrying on building operations during the night to the annoyance of an adjoining occupier, and limiting the working hours to those between 6 a.m. and 8 p.m.; and injunctions have been granted to prevent noise arising from a rolling mill (c), a steam engine and circular saw (d), stables (e), the making of confectionery (f), the rivetting of boiler plates (g), the carrying on of a dairy business (h), the giving of music and singing lessons (i), the construction of public works, etc. (j); and see as to nuisances arising from the ringing of bells, blowing of horns and playing of musical instruments, the cases cited in note (a), supra and note (k), infra.

Smoke.

Several decisions as to the nuisance caused by smoke will be found collected infra under sub-sec. 6, which relates to that subject. See also, as to the common law rights of parties in regard to nuisances thus created, Cartwright v. Gray (k), in which the defendant was restrained from using the steam engine of a saw- and planing-mill in such manner as to cause damage or annoyance to the plaintiff by smoke emitted from the mill-chimney.

As to smells, etc., arising from the carrying on of offensive trades,—section 112 of "The Public Health Act" (l) provides that:—

Offensive trades.

> "In case a person establishes, without the consent of the municipal council of the locality, any offensive trade, that is to say, the trade of blood boiling, or bone boiling, (m) refining of coal oil, or extracting oil from fish, (n) or storing of hides, or soap boiling, or tallow melting, or boiling, or slaughtering of animals, or manufacturing of gas, or tripe any other noxious or offensive trade, business or manufacture, or such as may become offensive, he shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $250 in respect of the establishment thereof; and any person carrying on a business so established shall be liable to a penalty not exceeding $10 for every day on which, after notice in writing by the Local Board or an officer thereof to desist, the offence is continued, whether there has or has not been any conviction in respect of the establishment thereof."

This section is copied from s. 112 of "The Public Health Act, 1875" (o), which, however, does not mention the trades above named in italics, and under which (or under the corresponding words of Imp. Stat. 11-12 V. c. 63, s. 61) it has been held that the business of brickmaking is not per se a noxious or offensive trade analogous to those specifically enumerated in the section (p); nor is a brewhouse (a), nor a manufactory of manure (b), nor a hospital for infectious diseases (c). But in Passey v. Oxford Local Board (d), where the appellant, having set up the business of a rag-and-bone merchant, was convicted under this section,—the magistrate holding as a fact that the business was noxious and ejusdem generis with those specified in the section,—it was held that the conviction was right. See sub-sec. 5, infra.

Offensive trades.

Braintree Local Board of Health v. Boyton (e) decided that the section only applies where a business is necessarily noxious or offensive, and that a fish-frying business, although it was so carried on that the effluvia arising therefrom extended to a distance of 200 or 300 yards, was not a noxious or offensive business within the meaning of the section; and in Cardiff Manure Co. v. Cardiff Union (f), where a bone-boiling business—though it is one of those named in the section—was carried on in such a way, (viz.—by enclosing the bones in metal cylinders and treating them with dry steam), that there was no smell, the Court held that the Quarter Sessions had rightly quashed a conviction of the defendants for carrying on a noxious or offensive business without the sanction of the Local Board of Health.

The business of a butcher who slaughters beasts on the premises has been held not to be "a noxious, offensive, noisy or noisome trade" within the meaning of these words in a restrictive covenant (g).

Slaughter Houses.

4. For establishing public slaughter houses, and for preventing, regulating and inspecting the erection or continuance of slaughter houses, and for prohibiting the slaughter of animals intended for food except in slaughter houses designated in the by-law. In towns, villages and townships this clause shall not apply to the slaughter of animals which are so slaughtered for the use of the person killing the same and of his family. 55 V. c. 42 s. 521 (14), part; 56 V. c. 35, s. 18.

Further provision regarding this subject is made by R. S. O. c. 250, entitled "An Act respecting the slaughtering of cattle and the inspection of meat and milk supplies of cities and towns," which declares that :—

Slaughter houses.

"1.—(1) The municipal council of every city or town may by by-law provide for the establishment of a public slaughter house, or abattoir, within the limits of the municipality, or in such adjoining municipality as shall by by-law sanction its erection therein, and for the construction of cattle yards and pens for the proper keeping therein of animals intended for slaughter, and for charging fees to defray the costs incurred by the Local Board of Health in carrying out the provisions of this Act.

2. (1) The Local Board of Health of every city or town in which such slaughter house or abattoir, cattle-yards or pens, may be established shall have the control and supervision of the same, and shall be responsible for the due carrying out of the regulations of the Provincial Board of Health made in connection therewith; and the costs of the supervision and inspection carried out under this Act, and of any regulations made under it with regard to slaughter houses or abattoirs, or cattle-yards or pens, or in carrying out any other provisions of this Act, shall be paid from time to time by the treasurer of the city or town out of the fees charged for such slaughter or inspection, on the order of the Local Board of Health.

Local Board of Health to have control.

(2) The powers conferred upon Local Boards of Health and their officers by section 108 of The Public Health Act shall apply in the supervision and inspection carried on under this Act.

R. S. O. c. 248, s. 108, to be applicable.

3. The Local Board of Health of every city and town where such cattle-yards and pens are established may employ one or more competent persons, approved of by the Medical Health Officer, to inspect at such slaughter house or abattoir, or at such cattle-yards or pens, all animals, carcasses and meat brought into the municipality and intended for human food."

Inspecting animals and meat.

The limitation, in the sub-section under consideration—and also in the last clause of R.S.O. c. 250, s. 3—to "animals . . . intended for [human] food," was probably suggested by the decision in Elias v. Nightingale (a).

Section 61 of "The Public Health Act, 1848," (b) which corresponds with the section [112] of "The Public Health Act, 1875," quoted in the preceding note, prohibited, under a penalty of £50, the establishment in any building or place to which the Act applied, of the business of a slaughterer of cattle, etc., without the consent of the Local Board of Health. After the Act had been applied to a district—cattle not having theretofore been slaughtered in the market thereof—a cattle company erected a building in which they allowed persons to slaughter cattle on payment of two shillings a head, the company finding the tackle attached to the building, but the persons slaughtering bringing their own implements. Held, that the company had established the business of slaughterers of cattle, within the meaning of the Statute (c).

Note (i). Prevention of smoke nuisance.

By the councils of cities, towns and villages :

6. For compelling manufacturers and others to have such chimneys or other apparatus as shall consume the smoke or prevent the same from fouling the atmosphere or being carried by the wind or otherwise to other shops, houses, or premises, to the inconvenience or injury of the neighbouring premises or residents therein. 55 V. c. 42, s. 496 (16), part.

Taken from 44 V. c. 24, s. 13 (1881), the rest of which now forms s. 542 (5) of this Act.

(i) Section 91 of "The Public Health Act, 1875," (a) declares to be nuisances :—

> "Any fire place or chimney which does not as far as practicable consume the smoke arising from the combustible used therein, and which is used for working engines by steam, or in any mill, factory, dye-house, brewery, bake-house or gas-work, or in any manufacturing or trade process whatsoever; and any chimney (not being the chimney of a private dwelling-house) sending forth black smoke in such quantity as to be a nuisance."

Magistrates, acting under the above sections and ss. 12 and 13 of Imp. Stat. 18-19 V. c. 121,—which empower Justices of the Peace to make an order for the abatement of a nuisance in such manner and within such time as in such order shall be specified,—ordered the occupiers of certain premises to cease sending forth black smoke from their chimneys, so that the same should be no longer a nuisance. This order having been persistently disregarded, nineteen informations were laid, each for a separate day, and the offenders were convicted and fined separately on each charge. They objected that their disobedience constituted but one default, and that they could only be convicted and fined for a single offence; but it was held that each daily emission of smoke was a separate act of disobedience, for which a separate summons could lawfully be issued (b).

To be a nuisance under these sections the smoke need not be injurious to health (c).

Under a local Act which prohibited the negligent use of a furnace so as to cause the emission of smoke—it being shewn that the furnace was properly constructed, and a competent person placed in charge, but that the smoke was caused by the negligent act of a servant,—it was held, (BLACKBURN, J. dissenting), that only the servant, and not the employer, was liable (d).

In Barnes v. Akroyd, (e) the defendants having been summoned for sending out black smoke from a chimney of premises belonging to them—not being the chimney of a private dwelling house)—in such quantities as to be a nuisance under the above section, proof was given that the smoke had been emitted and was a nuisance, and that the defendants occupied the premises as a factory ; but there was no evidence as to who had charge of the premises. The magistrates dismissed the case, holding that the person primarily liable was "the person by whose act, default, permission or sufferance the nuisance arises" etc., (f) and that the owner or occupier of the premises could only be summoned "if such person cannot be found or ascertained." (g) But the Queen's Bench Division held that the defendants were properly summoned as the persons by whose "permission" the nuisance arose, and that they were responsible as such if the person who caused the smoke to arise was their servant. But in Chisholm v. Doulton, (i) where the defendant, (the owner and occupier of the well-known pottery works), was summoned before a

Police Magistrate for "negligently using a furnace so that smoke arising therefrom was not effectually consumed and burnt"—contrary to the provisions of 16-17 V. c. 128, s. 1, which makes this an offence punishable on summary conviction,—the magistrate dismissed the summons on its being made to appear that the furnace was properly constructed so as to consume its own smoke if carefully used, that neither the defendant nor his foreman was guilty of any negligence, and that the emission of smoke was due to the carelessness of the stoker employed by the defendant to attend to the furnace; and upon a stated case it was held that the defendant was not criminally responsible for the negligence of his servant, and could not be convicted of the offence.

Sec. 586 (6), (7). Notes (i), (j). Smoke.

Per FIELD, J.:—

> "I entertain no doubt that if this were a civil proceeding for damages he would be liable . . . . but the mere use of a furnace so as to emit smoke is not an offence . . . The offence is the using of it negligently . . . The essence of the offence is that it should be negligent, and here the respondent took all the care he could. Looking at the cases in which it has been held that no appeal lies to the Court of Appeal from decisions relating to public nuisances, I am forced to the conclusion that this is not a mere civil proceeding, but that the offence charged is a criminal offence. . . . The case here being a criminal one, I must apply the general rule, and by that rule the defendant must be acquitted."

As to Reg. v. Stephens (a) the learned Judge says:—

> "That case must be taken to stand upon its own facts. No doubt the learned Judges came to the conclusion that in that particular case the proceeding was civil. Whether they were right or wrong it is not necessary for me to express an opinion."

In Dumfries Commissioners v. Murphy (b) it was held that a properly constructed furnace might be so misused as to become a nuisance under this section. (c)

(j) This sub-section probably applies to the keeping of cows, pigs, etc., and not merely to the business of cow-keeping, pig-keeping, etc. Almost every farmer keeps cows; but a farmer who keeps cows is not a "cow-keeper" within the meaning of that word in "The Public Health (London) Act, 1891". (g) Even the business of cow-keeping may be so carried on in a borough as not to be a nuisance (h); and quaere, whether a by-law for its total prohibition in a rural neighborhood would be held reasonable under "The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882," s. 23.

Keeping cows, pigs, etc.

and the suppression of nuisances, etc., will not warrant a by-law which wholly prohibits the keeping of pigs in a borough, though it might have been good if it had prohibited the keeping of pigs so as to be a nuisance; but in Wansteat Local Board of Health v. Wooster (a) the by-law (of an urban authority) prohibiting any occupier of a house from keeping pigs within 100 feet of a dwelling house was held to be valid, on the ground that the creation of a nuisance thereby was so likely as to be almost a certainty; but a by-law by a rural authority (although possessing urban powers) prohibiting the keeping of swine within the distance of 50 feet from any dwelling house was held to be unreasonable and bad. (b)

It is to be observed that the by-laws referred in Heap v. Burnley Union, Wansteat Local Board of Health v. Wooster and Tong St. Local Board v. Seed were made, not under "The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882," but under s. 32 of "The Local Government Act, 1858," (c) and s. 44 of "The Public Health Act, 1875," (d) which authorize the making of by-laws "for the prevention of nuisances arising from . . . filth, "etc., and" for the prevention of the keeping of animals on any premises so as to be injurious to health."

In Steers v. Manton (e) the defendant (a dealer in pigs) had them brought every morning to a pen within 50 yards of his dwelling, and kept there during the day, but sent them back at night to a more distant place where they were fed. He was summoned for breach of the by-law forbidding the "keeping" of swine within 50 yards of a dwelling house; but the magistrates dismissed the summons, holding that the pigs were not "kept" at a place where they neither ate nor slept. Held, (on appeal) that this decision was wrong, and that there had been a "keeping of swine" contrary to the by-law.

Ringing of bells, etc.

8. For regulating or preventing the ringing of bells, blowing of horns, shouting and other unusual noises, or noises calculated to disturb the inhabitants. 55 V. c. 42, s. 489 (46).

Taken from 47 V. c. 13, s. 12 (1884). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 60 (10), etc.:—"For preventing the the ringing of bells, blowing of horns, shouting and other unusual noises in the streets and public places."

It will be observed that until 1884 the power to prevent and regulate was limited to "unusual noises;"—the class of noises secondly herein referred to, viz., such as are "calculated (sic) to disturb the inhabitants" being added in 1884 to the sub-section as then re-enacted. "The Town Police Clauses Act" (f), imposes a penalty upon any one who . . . in any street . . . to the annoyance of the residents . . wilfully and wantonly disturbs any inhabitant by pulling or ringing any door bell or knocker at any door," etc.; and in Clark v. Hoggins (g) the Court sustained the conviction (under that Act) of one who, having been instructed to deliver papers to a solicitor who had refused to receive them, returned to the house of the solicitor at 10 p.m., and rang and knocked at the door for more than a quarter of an hour so violently as to disturb not only the inmates of the house but also the neighbours.

Per WILLES, J.:—"'Wantonly' means not having a reasonable cause . . . Wantonness consists in doing that which will worry another, and which the person doing it knows will produce no result to himself." (h) son shall in any of the streets . . . blow any horn, ring any bell, beat any drum, play any flute, pipe or other musical instrument, or shout or make or assist in making any unusual noise or noises calculated to disturb the inhabitants of the said city."

Ringing bells, blowing horns, etc.

Held, that as the beating of drums is not specifically mentioned in the Statute, —as are the ringing of bells, the blowing of horns, etc.,—the noise must be,— and should have been shewn by the evidence to be—either unusual or calculated to disturb, in order to warrant its prohibition by by-law; and, this not having been established, the prisoner was discharged.

In Reg. v. Martin (a) the conviction was that the defendant did on, etc., create a disturbance on the public streets of the village of L. by beating a drum, tambourine, etc., contrary to a by-law which prohibited "the . . . beating of drums, and other unusual or tumultuous noises on the public streets of L. on the Sabbath day." The only evidence was that of a witness who said:—"I saw him playing the drum on the streets of L. last Sunday morning." The conviction was quashed.

Per A. Wilson, C. J.:—

> "I think the Justice could not infer from the evidence given here that the drum made in fact any unusual noise. The witness does not even say he heard any noise; he says only 'he saw' the defendant beating a drum. Then the conviction states that the beating of the drum by the defendant created a disturbance. The words of the Statute refer to noises 'calculated to disturb the inhabitants.' 'Calculate' is a word which, it is said, mostly refers to the future—and it is frequently used with a meaning 'to intend' or 'to expect' a certain event or act. It is in this latter or irregular sense [that] the word is used in the Statute; or perhaps it was used as meaning the making of a noise which would be likely to disturb the inhabitants, whether so intended or not by the performer, in which case I think it should have been averred that the person beating the drum 'well knew that the noise would disturb' the inhabitants. The Statute speaks of 'disturbing the inhabitants.' The conviction is that the defendant, by the noise, 'created a disturbance.' Are these equivalent terms? I think not. 'Disturbing the inhabitants' is annoying them,—as by making a noise which interferes with the thoughts or proceedings of others. But 'creating a disturbance' applies either to raising a clamour, commotion, quarrelling, or fighting. The former seems to apply to the comfort or convenience of the 'inhabitants'; the latter to a breach of the peace or something like it. The disturbance should be of the nature of a nuisance: Johnson v. Mayor, etc., of Croydon, 16 Q. B. D. 708 (1885)."

Johnson v. Mayor of Croydon has already been referred to in note (d) to s. 326. In that case, a by-law, made under the powers as to nuisances conferred by s. 23 of "The Municipal Corporations Act, 1882" (b), which enacted that no person not being a member of Her Majesty's Army or Auxiliary Forces, etc., should sound or play upon any musical instrument in any of the streets of the borough on Sunday, was held to be ultra vires, because the statutory authority of the council extends only to the suppression of nuisances:—and, (per Mathew, J.):—"This by-law is not confined to cases where a musical instrument is so played as to be a nuisance." But in Reg. v. Powell (c) a by-law (made under the same authority) was held to be reasonable which imposed a penalty upon "every person who shall sound or, play upon any musical instrument, or sing or make any noise whatsoever, in any street or near any house, . . . after having been required by any householder . . . or by any police constable to desist, . . . either an account of the illness of any inmate of such house, or for any reasonable cause."

In Booth v. Howell (d), the appellant Booth,—a member of the Salvation Army,—had been convicted of having used a noisy instrument—(to wit, a concertina)—in the street of a city contrary to a by-law, (passed under the same authority) which imposed a penalty upon "every person who shall blow any horn or trumpet or use any other noisy instrument to the annoyance of any of the inhabitants of this borough." The Justices found that the concertina was a noisy instrument; and several inhabitants testified that they had been annoyed by it. Held, that the by-law was valid, that there was evidence to support the conviction, and that it was not necessary to prove that the instrument was a public nuisance to all the inhabitants of the borough.

In a prosecution under a by-law providing that "any person making a violent noise in the streets of a town to the annoyance of the inhabitants" shall be guilty of an offence, it is sufficient to prove that an inhabitant has been annoyed (a).

"Fire-arms." In Reg. v. Moore (d), one who kept a shooting ground where persons came to shoot with rifles at pigeons and at a mark, was held to be guilty of creating a nuisance, partly by reason of the crowds which were thus caused to assemble (e). So a rifle gallery with an organ and "round-about" was held to be a nuisance. (f)

"Fireworks." In Bliss v. Lilley (g) fog-signals for use on railways were held be "fireworks" within the meaning of Imp. Stat. 23-24 V. c. 139, s. 6, which prohibited the manufacture and keeping of fireworks within specified distances from dwellings and other buildings. (h)

In Walker v. Brewster (i) the late Lord HATHERLEY (then V. C. WOOD) expresses his "clear opinion that the noise of fireworks,—to say nothing of the danger from falling rocket-sticks,—is a serious nuisance;" and Art. 207 of "The Criminal Code, 1892" declares that:—

Prevention of begging, etc.

(m) Art. 207 of "The Criminal Code, 1892" declares that :—

> "Every one is a loose, idle or disorderly person or vagrant who, without a certificate signed within six months, by a priest, clergyman or minister of the Gospel, or two Justices of the Peace, residing in the municipality where the alms are being asked, that he or she is a deserving object of charity, wanders about and begs, or goes about from door to door, or places herself or himself in any street, highway, passage or public place to beg or receive alms."

(m) "Common begging." Colliers "on strike," who were householders and had wives and families, went from house to house in a town with a waggon inscribed "Children's Bread Waggon," and begged for aid in money or in kind, but were in no way disorderly. They were convicted under "The Vagrants Act" (b) which declares that :—

> "Every person wandering abroad or placing himself or herself in a public place, highway, etc., to beg or gather alms . . . shall be deemed an idle and disorderly person."

Held, that as it was not their habit and mode of life to wander abroad and beg, they were not within the purview of the Act, and their conviction was quashed. (c)

Notes (b), (c), (d).

Section 65 of the Act confers like powers upon urban School Boards,—i.e., the school corporations ("Public School Boards") of cities, towns or villages.

Section 62 (12) empowers and directs the trustees of all public schools:—

Public schools.

> "To take possession of all property which has been acquired or given for public school purposes, and to hold the same according to the terms on which it was acquired or received; and to dispose, by sale or otherwise, of any school site or property not required in consequence of a change of site, or other cause; to convey the same under their corporate seal, and to apply the proceeds thereof to their lawful school purposes or as directed by this Act" (a)

By s. 117 of R. S. O. c. 292 (b)—it is declared that:—

> "All lands which, previous to the 24th day of July, 1850, were granted, devised or otherwise conveyed to any person or persons in trust for common school purposes, and held by such person or persons and their heirs or other successors in the trust, and have been heretofore vested in the public school trustees of the school section or municipality in which such lands are respectively situate, shall continue vested in such trustees, and shall continue to be held by the said trustees and their successors upon the like trusts and subject to the same conditions and estates upon or subject to which the said lands are now respectively held."

It has been held that land conveyed to school trustees "in trust for the use of a common school," with a proviso that if not so used for any three consecutive years it should revert to the grantor, his heirs and assigns, could not be sold under an execution on a judgment recovered against the trustees for the price of work done in building the school house (c).

(c) "And for the disposal thereof when no longer required." See note (c) to s. 534; notes (f), (g) and (h) to s. 576: Williams v. School Trustees S. S. No. 8, Plympton, 7 C. No. 7, Southwold*, 17 O.R. 428 (1889).

(d) "For providing for the . . . support of public schools according to law." The public schools of Ontario derive their support from:—

(1) The grant annually made by the Provincial Legislature from the proceeds of "The Upper Canada School Fund" (d), and

(2) School taxes levied and collected by local municipal councils under the authority of ss. 66, 67-70, 71, 72 and 74 of "The Public Schools Act" (e).

In order properly to understand the subsection now under consideration a glance at the earlier School Acts seems to be necessary. The first legislative provision for the support of common schools in Upper Canada was made in 1816 by 56 Geo. III, c. 36, which authorized the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor or other person administering the government of the Province to appoint "not more than five fit and discreet persons to form a Board of Education" in and for each of the nine Districts into which Upper Canada was at that time divided (f). The Act further provided that certain sums of money therein mentioned, amounting in the aggregate to £6,000 per annum, should be annually paid out of Provincial funds to the several District Treasurers, to be apportioned by the Board of Education in each District among the common schools of the District, but so that no allowance to any one school should exceed £25 per annum. The inhabitants of every "town, township, village or place" were authorized to hold an annual school meeting; and—so soon as there were 20 scholars to form a school, a school house had been built, and provision made for part payment of the salary of a teacher—school trustees were to be appointed, by whom a teacher might be engaged. By 60 Geo. III. c. 7 (1820) the annual Provincial grant was reduced to £2,500. By 4 Geo. IV. (2nd Session), c. 8 (1824), a further grant of £150 was made to purchase "books and tracts designed to afford moral and religious instruction"; and in 1841 all the preceding Acts were repealed by 4-5 V. c. 18, which provided for an annual legislative grant (for the united Provinces) of £50,000, to be called "The Common School Fund," and to be distributed as was by that Act provided.

Under subsequent Statutes, (a) a tax, the amount of which for each year was to be determined by a majority of the freeholders and householders present at a "school meeting" held in every school section during the month of January, was to be annually imposed upon the rateable property of the school section to raise the amount thus determined to be necessary for the school purposes of the section during the year. Until 1879 this tax might be collected either by the school trustees (personally or by deputy) (b) or, at their option, they might require the municipal council to levy and collect it with the other municipal taxes. (c) Since the passing (in 1879) of 42 V. c. 34, s. 11, the power of rural school trustees to collect school taxes has ceased to exist, and such taxes are now levied and collected by means of the ordinary municipal machinery.

By the School Act of 1850 (d) township councils were directed to levy and collect by assessment upon the taxable property of each school section respectively, such sums as—having first been fixed by a "school meeting"(e)—the trustees of the section should require to be so raised for the purchase of a school site, the erection, repairs, renting and furnishing of a school house, the purchase of apparatus and text books for the school, books for the library, and the salary of the teacher. (f) After 1874 (g) the previous approval by a "school meeting" of the trustees' estimate for ordinary expenses was no longer required. (h) The council might however (if the trustees so desired) authorize the latter to borrow the sum required, in which case the council was to levy annually upon all the taxable property of the school section (i) a rate sufficient to pay the interest and form a sinking fund to pay off the principal within ten years. (j)

If the council declined to levy a rate, after a proper demand upon them to do so and the lapse of a reasonable time, a mandamus might issue; but where the demand was informal, undated, and furnished no information to the coun-

Note (d). How the public schools are supported.

In cities, towns and villages, since the passing in 1850 of the 13-14 V. c. 50, it has been the duty of the Board of School Trustees for the municipality—which since the passing of "The Consolidated Public School Act of 1874" (d) is styled the "The Public School Board of the city, etc., of ———, etc."—"to prepare . . . and lay before the municipal council of the city, town or village an estimate of the sums which they think requisite for . . . the necessary expenses of the schools under their charge" (e); and until 1879 the council were bound by law and compellable by mandamus (f), "to provide such sums in the manner desired by the said Board."

But by 42 V. c. 34, s. 29 it was provided that :—

> "In any case where a High School Board or Public School Corporation may, by law require the municipal council to raise or borrow a sum of money for the purchase of a school site, or the erection or purchase of any school house, or addition thereto, or other school accommodation or for the purchase or erection of a teacher's residence, such municipal council may refuse to raise or borrow any such sum when it is so resolved by a two-thirds vote of the members present at the meeting of the council for considering any by-law in that behalf.
> (2). Where the municipal council, by a two-thirds vote, refuses to raise or borrow the sum proposed, then such question shall be submitted by the municipal council, if requested by the School Board, to the vote of the electors of the municipality in the manner provided by The Municipal Act for the creating of debts; and in the event of the assent of the municipal electors being thereby obtained, then it shall be the duty of such council to raise or borrow such sum." (g)

In School Trustees of Port Hope v. Town of Port Hope (h) it was determined by Chief Justice MACAULAY that although under 16 V. c. 185, s. 6 the trustees of rural schools could not purchase or change a school site without the approval of "a school meeting," the Public School Board of a town might under 13-14 V. c. 48. s. 24 (6) make a requisition upon the town council for funds for that purpose without first obtaining authority therefor from the ratepayers.

In Re Scott and City of Ottawa (i) it was held that nothing contained in the School Acts sanctioned a departure from the leading principle of the assessment law that all rates shall be imposed equally upon the ratepayers in proportion to their taxable property ; (a) and a by-law (passed by a city council) which—in compliance with the demand of the Public School Board of the municipality—assumed to raise for school purposes different amounts of money in the different wards of the city was therefore held to be unwarranted by law and void. (b)

The present Public School Act (R.S.O. c. 292) provides that :—

62. "It shall be the duty of the trustees of all Public Schools and they shall have power :— * * * *

9. To submit to the municipal council, on or before the first day of August, or at such time as may be required by the municipal council, an estimate of the expenses of the schools under their charge for the twelve months next following the date of application ;

10. To provide (in the case of rural schools) for the payment of teachers' salaries quarterly and, if necessary, to borrow on their promissory note, under the seal of the corporation, at interest not exceeding eight per cent. per annum, such moneys as may be required for that purpose, until the taxes imposed therefor are collected ;

11. To submit (in the case of urban municipalities) all accounts, books and vouchers to be audited by the municipal auditors, whose duty it shall be to audit the same (c) and to publish at the end of every year, in one or more of the public newspapers, or otherwise, an abstract of the annual report of the auditors, with such findings and recommendations as the auditors deem expedient."

The method in which the money directly contributed by the ratepayers toward the support of public schools, is to be raised by local taxation for the support of the public schools is set out in ss. 66, 67, 70, 71, 72 and 74 of "The Public School Act," which are too long to be here noted, and for which reference must be had to the Act itself.

The first two lines of sub-sec. 2 were added in 1892 by 55 V. c. 43, s. 37 to the subsection as it appears in the earlier Acts of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51, s. 288 (1)) and 1873, (36 V. c. 48, s. 383 (5)). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 41 (3); 22 V. c. 99, s. 279 (1).

(f) "For establishing High Schools and appointing High School trustees," etc.

Appointment of High School trustees.

"The High Schools Act" referred to in 55 V. c. 43, s. 37 (by which this power was first conferred upon the municipal councils above mentioned), was the Act of 1885, (48 V. c. 50), ss. 15-17 of which altered the mode of appointing High School trustees theretofore existing under the authority of "The High Schools, etc. Consolidation Act of 1874." (a) The law now governing the appointment of High School trustees by the councils of counties, cities and separated towns, and which is referred to in the sub-section now under consideration, is contained in ss. 12 and 13 of "The High Schools Act," (R.S.O. c. 293) which are as follows:—

Qualification of High School trustees.

"12.—(1) Any ratepayer 21 years of age, residing in the county or municipality in which the High School is situated, who is not a member of the municipal council of such municipality or county, shall be qualified to serve as a High School trustee, or as a member of a Board of Education.

Number and appointment of High School trustees.

(2). Every High School Corporation shall consist of at least six trustees. In the case of High Schools situated in any municipality within the jurisdiction of the county, three of such trustees shall be appointed by the county council, and additional trustees shall be appointed by the municipalities composing the High School District as follows, that is to say:—

(a). Where a High School District is composed of one municipality the municipal council thereof shall appoint three additional trustees; where a High School District is composed of two municipalities, each municipality shall appoint two additional trustees; and where a District is composed of more than two municipalities, each municipality shall appoint one additional trustee. Any portion of a municipality assessed for $50,000, included in a High School District, shall be considered a municipality for the purposes of this section. In every case one of the trustees appointed by the county council and one trustee in each municipality composing the High School District shall retire each year.

(3). Where a High School District is composed of a county, the county council shall appoint six trustees for such District, two of whom shall retire every year.

(4). In cities and in towns separated from the county, the municipal council thereof shall appoint six trustees for each of the High Schools of such city or town; where the High Schools in a city do not exceed three in number, the municipal council shall appoint six trustees for each High School, and the trustees so appointed shall, with such additional trustees as are authorized by this Act, form one corporation. The municipal council of every city and town shall, by by-law, provide for the annual retirement of so many of the trustees appointed by the council as shall secure a complete rotation every three years.

(5). Where the trustees of any High School situated in a city or in a town separated from the county, notify the county clerk that such High School is open to county pupils on the same terms as High Schools in the municipalities not separated from the county, the county council may, from time to time, appoint three additional trustees of and for such High School so long as the School is open to county pupils on the terms aforesaid; and such school shall for all the purposes of this Act be considered a County High School.

Appointment of High School trus-

(6) The Separate School Board of the city, town, or incorporated village in which a High School is situated, may appoint one trustee of and for the High School Board or Board of Education, who shall not be a member of the Separate School Board and who shall hold office for one year, provided always, in the case of a Board of Education, that such trustee shall not take part in any of the proceedings affecting the public school.

(7) Except in the case of a Board of Education, the Public School Trustees of every city, town, or incorporated village in which a High School is situated, may appoint annually one trustee of and for the High School Board, who shall not be a member of the Public School Board, and who shall hold office for one year.

Vacancies, how filled.

13.—(1) Vacancies arising from the annual retirement of Trustees shall be filled at the first meeting thereof after being duly organized in each year by the municipal councils or by the Boards of Trustees empowered under this Act to make the appointments; and vacancies arising from death, resignation, or removal from the High School District or county, or otherwise, shall be filled forthwith by the municipal council or Board of Trustees having the right of appointment, and the person appointed to fill such vacancy shall hold office only for the unexpired term of the person whose place has become vacant.

(2) Where any town that has been separated from the county for municipal purposes is re-united to the county, the High School trustees appointed by the town council and in office at the time of such union shall continue in office till the expiration of the term for which they were appointed. Vacancies arising from any cause in the representation of the town shall not be filled till the number of Trustees has been reduced below the number required by this Act."

In Dawson v. Town of Sault Ste. Marie (a) it was held by Sir THOMAS GALT, C. J., that the appointment of High School trustees by a municipal council must be made by by-law; but this decision was reversed by the Court of Appeal in Port Arthur High School Board v. Town of Fort William, (b) where MOSS, J. A., in delivering this judgment of the Court, says (p.527):—

> "There is nothing in the Act (c) expressly requiring the Board to be appointed by by-law of the council, and the act of appointing trustees is not done under the provisions of "The Municipal Act." The attention of the learned Chief Justice (d) does seem to have been called to the opinion expressed by OSLER, J. A., in Township of Pembroke v. Canada Central R. W. Co., 3 O.R. 507 (1882), at p. 508, (e) that the section of "The Municipal Act" requiring the powers of the council to be exercised by by-law must be construed as referring to the exercise of powers of the council under "The Municipal Act," and not to powers which may be exercised under a special Act passed for other purposes, or by another Legislature * * * Appointments of trustees are made every year, and from year to year, and there seems no special reason why the corporate action (f) in such cases should not be manifested in the form of a resolution."

By ss. 16-29 of the same Act, the Board are empowered (subject as therein provided) to take (c) any lands required for a High School site or for the purpose of enlarging the High School premises; and s. 30 (d) declares that:—

"(1) All property heretofore granted, devised or acquired in any municipality, and vested in any person or persons or corporations for high school purposes, or which may hereafter be so granted, devised or acquired, shall be deemed and be taken as having vested absolutely in the Board of High School Trustees, and the Board shall have full power to convey, sell, transfer, or lease such property, upon the adoption of a resolution by the Board that such property is no longer required for high school purposes, and the proceeds of such sale, transfer or lease shall be applied for the use of such High School.

(2) The trustees of any High School District or any Board of Education may with the approval of a majority of the municipal council or councils composing the district, and of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, sell, transfer or lease any site, territory or other property vested in them as a corporation, and after making provision for all debts and liabilities of the corporation, apply to the residue of the proceeds of such sale, transfer or lease to any purpose that may be approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council; and on such sale, transfer or lease and disposition of assets as aforesaid, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council may, by proclamation in the Ontario Gazette, declare such corporation dissolved and determined." Note (d).

Municipal aid to High Schools.

Under this section it was held that a county council could not by mandamus raise money to build a Grammar School (a).

In 1871 the law on this point was amended by 34 V. c. 33, s. 36, which provided that, in the case of a High School situate in a city or separated town, a sum equal to one-half of the government grant, together with such additional amount as might be required for the accomodation and support of the school, must, upon the application of the High School Board of the city or separated town, be provided by the municipal council thereof; and that—in the case of a High School in a township, village or town not separated from its county—any sums required to provide school accommodation and maintenance must be provided by the local municipality, and that a sum equal to one-half the government grant must be provided by the county council. In the event of a county council forming the whole or a part of a county into one or more High School Districts, the sum required for the maintenance of the High School was to be provided by the council or councils of the municipality or municipalities by taxation levied upon the inhabitants of the area composing the District.

Upon an application under the above Act by the trustees of a High School situated in a township, for a mandamus to compel the township council to raise a sum of money for the maintenance, etc., of the High School, it was held:—(1) that the fact of the applicants, "The Trustees of the Port Rowan County High School," being described in the requisition to the council as "The Port Rowan High School Board" was immaterial, since the township council were not thereby misled: (2) that the demand was properly made by the secretary and treasurer of the Board: (3) that it was not necessary (b) to furnish to the council the estimates upon which the amount of the demand was based; (4) that the purposes for which the money was asked, viz., "for expenses of conducting High School" and "current expenses of High School" were equivalent to "maintenance and school accomodation"—the words used in the Statute;—and that the demand was good (c).

Under that Act it was also held (d) that where a High School District had been formed, consisting of a town and township, the High School Board of the District could by mandamus compel the township to contribute towards the erection, and not merely towards the maintenance, of a school house in the town; and (e) that the Joint Board of Education of a town, and not the High School Board thereof were the proper applicants for a mandamus to compel the town to provide the money required to pay for a joint High and Public School house; (f) and that the sections of "The High Schools Act" and "The Public Schools Act," then in force, (37 V. caps. 27, 28), which conferred upon the joint Board the powers of each of the amalgamated Boards, referred only to those powers which, prior to amalgamation, each Board possessed for the purposes of its creation. The relevant sections of both Statutes are quoted and reviewed in the judgment delivered by HARRISON, C. J.; and although the demand was not strictly in proper form—not being expressed to be for the balance required over and above the government grant,—the council having based their refusal upon other grounds, effect was not given to the objection.

In Re Chamberlain and the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, (g) the united counties having been formed into five High School Districts, it was held,—under the section of the Act of 1874, (37 V. c. 27), corresponding with that above quoted from the Act of 1871,—that the aid granted by the council of the united counties to high schools to supplement

Note (l).

Municipal aid to High Schools.

the government grant must be raised by an equal rate upon all the assessable property of the three counties, and not upon each High School District for the sum apportioned to its schools. (a).

The Act of 1874, (37 V. c. 27), speaks of municipal aid to High Schools under two distinct heads, viz. :—

(1) In s. 47—voluntary municipal assessments (the class here referred to) which may be made under by-laws passed by the councils of counties, cities or separated towns, (a) for procuring sites for High Schools, (b) for renting, building, repairing, furnishing, warming and keeping in order High School houses, grounds, etc., (c) for purchasing, etc., High School sites (b) and (d) "for making provision" (in addition to the compulsory provision next to be referred to) "in aid of such High Schools as may be deemed expedient by the council."

(2) In s. 44—obligatory municipal assessments to be made in the same way, by the same authority and for the same purposes as had already been mentioned in s. 36 of 34 V. c. 33. (c)

In Dawson v. Town of Sault Ste. Marie (d)—a motion to continue an injunction restraining the defendants from paying to the Sault Ste. Marie High School Board the sum of $15,000 raised by the town under a by-law passed by them under R. S. O. (1887), c. 226, ss. 34, 36 for the purchase of a site and the erection thereon of a High School for the town,—it was urged (1) that the Board were about to build the school upon land not yet acquired by them, and (2) that it had not been shown in the application of the Board to the council how much of the $15,000 was appropriated for the purchase of the land and how much for the erection of the building.

Both objections were over-ruled. Per Sir THOMAS GALT, C. J.:—

> "As to the first objection,—the observations made by PROUDFOOT, V. C., in the case of Little v. Wallaceburg, 23 Grant 540, at p. 546, are very applicable. He says: 'I cannot assume that the defendants are going to spend $6,000 on property to which they have no title.' A portion of the money was to be expended on the necessary site, and I 'have no doubt that before this is done a clear title will have been shown' (e). . . . As to the second objection—I can find nothing in the Statute that renders such a declaration necessary."

"The High Schools Act," (R. S. O. c. 293), now provides (s. 15) (8), that:—

> "It shall be the duty of every Board of High School trustees and they shall have power to apply to the municipal council or councils liable under this Act on or before the 1st day of August, or at such other time as may be required by the municipal council, for such sums of money as the Board may require for [the maintenance of the High School for the twelve months next following the date of such application, exclusive of all fees from pupils and other sources, and of appropriations from the Legislature and municipal council of the county, and for such additional sum as they may deem expedient for permanent improvements for the same period of time, not exceeding five hundred dollars."]

The corresponding section of R.S.O. (1887), c. 226, (viz., s. 25 (6))—instead of the words in brackets—read as follows, "the maintenance, accommodation and other necessary expenses of their High School, and as said council is required . . . to raise by local assessment for these purposes"; and in Re Oakwood High School Board and Township of Mariposa (f) it was held:—

(1) That these words "maintenance, accommodation and other necessary expenses" included the purchase of a school site, the erection, purchase or

Note (i). Municipal aid to High Schools.

(2) That an application by a High School Board to a township council to raise or borrow money for any of these purposes must be made before August 1st, must be the corporate act of the High School Board, and must specify the purposes for which the money was required.

Now, however, by s. 2 (8) (9) of "The High Schools Act," (R. S. O. c. 293), it is declared that:—

"Permanent improvements."

"8. 'Permanent improvements' shall mean such expenditure as may be necessary for the purchase or rental of a residence for the teacher, or for the purchase or rental of a school site and the erection or rental of a school house, or for the enlargement of both or either of them, or for permanently changing the system of heating and ventilation, the erection of fences, outhouses and gymnasium, or for the purchase of school furniture, maps and apparatus, library and all other appliances required by the regulations of the Education Department for High Schools.

"Maintenance."

"9. 'Maintenance' shall mean such expenditure as may be necessary for ordinary repairs in the teacher's residence or for the improvement of the grounds attached thereto, and for the salaries of teachers, officers and servants of the Board, and for conducting the entrance examination prescribed by this Act, and for repairs to school buildings, outhouses, gymnasium, and fences, and for the improvement of the school grounds, the repair of school furniture, insurance of the school property and sundry expenses for ordinary school purposes, and such annual additions to the library, apparatus, and other school appliances as may be required by the regulations of the Education Department for High Schools."

And ss. 31-37 of the Act (which it is unnecessary here to note) deal in detail with the steps to be taken by High School Boards in order to obtain municipal aid either for "maintenance" or for "permanent improvements."

The Municipal Amendment Act of 1868, (16 V. c. 181, s. 9 (2), provided that the council of any township in Upper Canada might pass by-laws:—

> "For levying, collecting and appropriating a rate, to be assessed equally on the whole rateable property of such township, for raising such moneys as may be considered necessary for the support of any indigent, infirm or helpless persons resident in such township. But no by-law for such purpose shall be made or passed unless upon a written request to that effect signed by a majority of the freeholders and householders on the assessment-roll of the township for the year in which such request shall be made, nor unless for at least one month previous to the passing of such by-law, printed copies of such request, with the names of the signers thereto, shall have been put up in at least four public places within such township, and at the usual place for holding the meeting of the township municipality, and also by inserting the same weekly for at least four weeks in some newspaper published within the county."

The Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 372 (7) conferred upon all municipalities the powers now contained in sub-ss. 1 and 2 of this section. Clause (a) was added in 1893 by 56 V. c. 35, s. 13.

Sec. 588 (1).

Notes (a-b).

Support of indigent persons not compulsory.

(a) The English Poor Laws (a) were by the first Act of the First Parliament of Upper Canada (b) expressly excepted from those "laws of England" which by that Statute became "the rule for decision in all matters of controversy relative to property and civil rights." (c) Under the Provincial Acts above referred to (d), township councils (under the Acts of 1853, 1858 and 1866), and village councils (under the Act of 1868) were authorized to pass by-laws for levying rates to raise money for the support of the resident poor; but in Re McDougall and Township of Lobo (e) the Court refused a mandamus to compel a township to provide for the support of an indigent labourer.

Per ROBINSON, C. J.:—

> "The Legislature have enabled—but not required—township councils to raise money by rate for the support of the poor resident in the township . . . but . . . they have left a discretion to be exercised by them in regard to the necessity for such a rate . . . and . . . it does not rest with us to dictate to the municipal councils what particular cases of distress call for public relief." (f)

In Kaiser v. Township of East Whitby, a Division Court case tried before the late Judge Dartnell, the plaintiff, a medical man, sued the municipality for medical attendance upon a family of indigent poor resident in the township. The claim was based upon the grounds:—(1) that the municipality had received benefit from the services rendered, in being probably saved the expense of one or more pauper funerals, and (2) that the township council had specified in their estimates for the year a sum for poor relief, and had included it in the tax rate.

In giving judgment His Honour said:—

> "It is contended that a sum was was set apart for poor relief and that the defendants are therefore bound to distribute it for that purpose. This is a fallacy. The by-law is for the purpose of raising by a general rate upon the taxpayers the sums required for various municipal purposes; but it does not follow that because a sum for the relief of the poor was included in the estimates upon which the by-law is founded, the defendants are therefore bound to distribute it. It is still within their discretion to determine whether they shall expend all or any or more than the sum thus estimated. There may be no poor requiring relief. Supposing that at the time when, as the plaintiff contends, the defendants became liable to him, the amount estimated had been fully expended, would his position not be the same as if there had been no by-law."

(a) The Provincial Statute 11 Geo. IV. c. 20 (1830)—after reciting that "it appears by the petition of the Chairman of the Quarter Sessions in and for the Home District, and also by presentment of the Grand Jury of the said District, that several insane persons, destitute of any provision for their maintenance, have been charitably received into the gaol of the Home District; and that (there being no funds for their support provided by law) a charge has been incurred from necessity and paid from the funds of the District without any legal authority"—provided:—(1) That the Clerk of the Peace should lay before the Grand Jury of the Quarter Sessions an account of any money paid or required to be paid for the purpose of maintaining and supporting insane destitute persons as aforesaid; (2) That each Quarter Sessions the Grand Jury should state in their presentment the amount to be allowed during the next year for this purpose, and that an account of the money expended during the preceding year should then be laid before the Grand Jury by the Clerk of the Peace; (3) That the District Treasurer should, upon the warrant of the Chairman of the Quarter Sessions, from time to time pay out of unappropriated District Funds the sum required for the purpose aforesaid up to the limit fixed by the Grand Jury.

591. By-laws may be passed by the councils of the municipalities and for the purposes in this section respectively mentioned, that is to say :—

(A.) Aid to Manufacturing Establishments.

The Municipal Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), contained, as s. 372 (5) thereof, the following clauses, based upon 34 V. c. 30, s. 6, which was re-enacted as R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 454 (5); 46 V. c. 18, s. 482 (10) and R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 479 (10), but was repealed by "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1892" (55 V. c. 43), s. 28, it having been discovered, (after nearly twenty years of experience) that attempts to nourish manufacturing industries by means of the artificial stimulus of bonuses taken from the pockets of the local taxpayers usually produce an unhealthy condition of the body politic, and end in disappointment and loss.

The repealed clause was as follows :—

> "The council of every county, township, city, town or village may pass by-laws :—
> (5). For granting aid by way of bonus for the promotion of manufactures within its limits, by granting such sum or sums of money to such person or body corporate and in respect of such branch of industry as the said municipality may determine upon ; and to pay such sum, either in one sum or in an annual or other periodical payments, with or without interest, and subject to such terms, conditions and restrictions as the said municipality may deem expedient, and may take security therefor : provided, however, that no such by-law shall be passed until the assent of the electors has been obtained, in conformity with the provisions of this Act in respect of by-laws for creating debts. Any municipality granting such aid, may take and receive of and from such person or body corporate that may receive any such aid, security for the compliance with the terms and conditions upon which such aid may be given."

Sec. 591 (1-2). Notes (A), (a).

By 42 V. c. 31, s. 34 (1879) it was further provided that no property owner or lessee interested in or holding stock in any company should be qualified to vote on a by-law granting a bonus to such company. See further note (a) to s. 366, (which formerly applied to by-laws for bonuses to manufacturing establishments); s. 411 (power to exempt manufactories from taxation), and,—as to the securities taken by municipalities for compliance with the terms of bonus by laws,—the cases referred to in note (d) to s. 700, post.

Aiding manufacturing establishments.

In Re Cameron and Village of Lanark, 20 A. R. 372 (1893), a village by-law, passed after the Statute of 1892 had taken from municipal councils the power to bonus manufacturing establishments, was quashed with costs, though valid on its face, it appearing that under the pretext of paying $4,000 for the purpose of "purchasing from one Caldwell for twenty years a water power for electric light purposes," the real intention of the council was to aid Mrs. Caldwell to rebuild a grist-mill which had been burnt down. See also Scott v. Town of Tilsonburgh, 13 A. R. 233 (1886), referred to in the notes to s. 694.

Agricultural and Horticultural Societies.—Live Stock Exhibitions.

By the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages :—

1. For granting or loaning money or granting land in aid of the Agriculture and Arts Association or of agricultural or horticultural societies as authorized by The Agriculture and Arts Act: or in aid of any association formed for the holding of a fat stock or live stock show or exhibition or any exhibition for the promotion or improvement of farming in any of its branches or departments 53 V. c. 42, s. 479 (9), part : 62 V. (2nd Session) c. 26, s. 38.

Aid to Agricultural Associations, etc.

(a) "The Agriculture and Arts Act," (R.S.O. c. 43), s. 45, provides that :—

R.S.O. c. 43.

"(1) The municipal council of any city, town, village, county or township in this Province may grant or loan money or grant land in aid of any Agricultural Society or Horticultural Society formed within the limits of the municipality, or partly within the limits of such municipality and partly within the limits of other municipalities, or wholly within the limits of an adjoining municipality, when such Society has made the returns required by this Act to be made to the Minister in the case of a Township Society ; provided always that the total amount or value of the money or land heretofore or hereafter granted or loaned to any municipality or to an Agricultural Society under this section shall not exceed, in the case of a city, $3,000, in the case of a township or town, $2,000, and in the case of a village, $1,000.

"4.—(1) Any municipal corporation in Ontario may subscribe for, acquire, accept, hold and transfer stock in any company to be formed under the authority of this Act, and from time to time may direct the mayor, warden or other chief officer thereof, on behalf of the municipality, to subscribe for such stock in the name of such municipality, and to act for and on behalf of the municipality, in all matters relative to such stock, and the exercise of the rights of the municipality as a shareholder; and the mayor, warden or other chief officer shall, whether otherwise qualified or not, be deemed a shareholder in the company, and may vote and act as such, subject always to such rules and orders in relation to his authority as may be made in that behalf by the municipal council, by by-law or otherwise, but acting according to his discretion in cases not provided for by the council.

(f) Section 31 of "The Public Libraries Act," (R.S.O. c. 232), provides that:— Rev. Stat. c. 232.

"31. Any municipal or school corporation may contribute to the maintenance of a public library as such corporation may deem expedient, and may exercise its corporate powers for the collection of any sum so contributed from the taxable property of the ratepayers under its jurisdiction."

Cf. "The Free Libraries Act, 1882," (45 V. c. 22), afterwards R. S. O. (1887), c. 189. This was repealed and new provisions made respecting Free Libraries, etc., by 58 V. c. 45 (1895), which, as amended by 59 V. c. 57 (1896) is now R. S. O. 232.

Head of corporation to be a director in certain cases.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), ss. 250 (16), 260. Cf. 16 V. c. 181, s. 4 (14) (1853), which applied only to cities and towns.

Sec. 591 (5), (6).

Notes (g-j).

(g) "Assented to by the electors as hereinbefore provided." See ss. 338-365: 367-368. The provisions of ss. 369-374, 384 (or 386) and 396 are also applicable to by-laws passed under this sub-section.

Gas and water companies.

R. S. O. c. 199.

(h) Sections 12-13 of R. S. O. c. 199, entitled "An Act respecting Joint Stock Companies for supplying Cities, Towns and Villages (a) with Gas and Water," further provide that:—

"12. Any of the municipalities in which the works of any such company are erected or placed may subscribe for or take stock in the company, or may loan any sum of money, on mortgage or otherwise to the company, or contribute in any manner towards advancing the object for which the company has been incorporated.

13. The head for the time being of a municipality holding stock i such company to the extent of one-tenth part or more of the whole of the capital stock, thereof, shall be ex officio a director of the company so long as the municipality continues to hold stock to the extent aforesaid."

R. S. O. c. 200.

And by s. 4 of R. S. O. c. 200, entitled "An Act respecting Companies for supplying Steam, Heat, Electricity or Natural Gas for Heat, Light or Power," it is declared that the above sections are to be read as forming part of the last mentioned Act,—in other words, the powers conferred upon municipal councils by R. S. O. c. 199, ss. 12 and 13 in respect to Gas and Water Companies are extended so that they now apply to:—

"A company for supplying steam, hot air, or hot water, for power or for heating purposes, or [a company] for supplying electricity or natural gas for the purposes of light, heat or power in any city, town or incorporated village, township or other municipality." (b)

Harbours, Wharfs, Beacons, etc.

Granting aid by way of bonus to harbours, etc.

6. For granting aid by way of bonus, for or towards the construction of harbours, wharfs, docks, slips, and necessary beacons on any river, lake, or navigable water passing in through, or forming any part of the boundary of a county, whether such bonus be given by such county or by a city, town, township, or village situate therein and to pay such bonus either in one sum, or in annual or other periodical payments with or without interest, and subject to such terms, conditions and restrictions as the council may deem expedient;

Assent of electors necessary.

(a) No such by-law shall be passed until the assent of the electors has been obtained in conformity with the provisions of this Act in respect of by-laws for creating debts;

Security may be taken.

(b) Any municipality granting such aid may take and receive of and from the person or body corporate, receiving any such aid, security for the compliance with the terms and conditions upon which such aid is given. 55 V. c 42, s. 479 (8).

This power was conferred by 42 V. c. 31, s. 19 (1) upon the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages. In the present Revision, counties are not mentioned. This is doubtless a mistake, and should be corrected by the Legislature. The section itself speaks of a "bonus . . . given by a county." See also sub-s. 8, infra, as to "taking stock in or lending money or granting bonuses to any incorporated company in respect of any . . . harbour within or near the municipality."

(1) In addition to the powers conferred by these sub-sections, it is provided by s. s. 9 and 10 of R. S. O. c. 195, entitled "An Act respecting Joint

(a) "Townships or other municipalities" are now included.

(b) See note (b) to s. 566.

Stock Companies for the Construction of Piers, Wharves, Dry Docks and Harbours," that the council of any county, township, city, town or village may acquire, hold and transfer stock in a company incorporated under any of the various Acts under which such companies have from time to time been incorporated and may pay therefor out of municipal funds, etc.; (a) Ss. 11 and 14 of the same Act further provide that:

Harbours, wharfs, beacons, etc.

"11. A company may sell to any municipality representing the interest of the locality in which the work is situate, and any such municipality may purchase the stock of the company at the value agreed on between them, and the municipality shall hold the same for the use and benefit of the locality; and shall, in all respects thereafter, stand in the place of the company, and shall possess all such powers and authority as the company had theretofore possessed and exercised.

14. A municipal council representing the interests of the locality in which the work is situate, may, after twenty-one years from the time of the work being so far completed as that tolls were and have been collected thereon, purchase the stock of the company at the current value thereof at the time of purchase, and shall hold the same for the use and benefit of the locality; and the municipality shall thenceforth stand in the place of the company, and the council thereof shall possess all such powers and authority as the company had theretofore possessed and exercised." (b)

(j) Clause (a). See note (g), infra.

(k) Clause (b). "Security for compliance with the terms and conditions upon which such aid is given." As to the form of such security and the rights of the municipality in case default is made in the fulfilment of the terms and conditions thereby imposed, see note (d) to s. 700, post.

Railway Companies.

(l) As to the power of municipal councils to aid railway companies (including electric railways) see ss. 694-696, post, and R. S. O. c. 209, ss. 61-80, referred to in the notes to s. 696, post.

Aid to Rifle Associations and Militia.

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 19 (1889), the rest of which now forms sub-s. 2 of this section.

(m) "Any regularly organized Rifle Association." These words apparently include the Dominion Rifle Association, the Ontario Rifle Association, the Bruce, Grey, Guelph, Hespeler, Toronto, Victoria, etc., Rifle Associations, and such organizations as the Sault Ste. Marie Rifle Company, the Sudbury Rifle Company, the Thessalon Rifle Company, etc., which are not attached to any battalion of the Canadian Militia.

(a) The language is substantially the same as that of ss. 37 and 38 of R. S. O. c. 193, quoted infra in note (o).

Road, Bridge and Harbour Companies.

Aid for roads, bridges and harbours.

8. For taking stock in or lending money, or granting bonuses to any incorporated company, in respect of any road, bridge or harbour, within or near the municipality, under and subject to the respective statutes in that behalf, or for granting aid by way of bonus to any incorporated road or bridge company;

Assent of electors necessary.

(a) No such by-law granting such aid by way of bonus shall be passed until the assent of the electors has been obtained in conformity with the provisions of this Act in respect of by-laws for creating debts. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (11).

The first part of the sub-section down to and inclusive of the word "behalf" is taken (in its present form) from 37 V. c. 16, s. 4 (1874). Cf. its earlier forms in 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (18) (townships) and s. 41 (19), (counties); 16 V. c. 190, ss. 23, 24, Joint Stock Companies for roads, bridges, etc.); 18 V. c. 139, do. (powers extended to cities and towns); 22 V. c. 99, s. 317 (19) (all municipalities). The remainder of the sub-section, including clause (a), was added by 39 V. c. 34, s. 9, (1876).

Provisions of R.S.O. c. 193, as to aiding road, etc., companies.

(o). "For taking stock in or lending money . . . to any incorporated company in respect of any road, bridge . . . within or near the municipality." See also s. 645, post. "The General Road Companies' Act," (R. S. O. c. 193), further provides (ss. 37-42) with respect to companies incorporated under that Act or its predecessors (a) that for the purposes therein mentioned, and with respect to roads and other works constructed by any such company:—

"37. A municipal council, having jurisdiction within the locality through or along the boundary of which such road passes, or in which such work is constructed, may subscribe for, hold, sell and transfer stock in any company formed under this or any former Act passed for the like purpose, and may from time to time direct the mayor, reeve, warden or other chief officer of the municipality on behalf thereof, to subscribe for such stock in the name of the municipality, and to act for and on behalf of the municipality in all matters relative to such stock, and the exercise of the right of the municipality as a shareholder; and the mayor, reeve, warden or other chief officer shall, whether otherwise qualified or not, be deemed a shareholder in the company, and may vote and act as such, subject to any rules and orders in relation to his authority, made in that be-

Aiding road, bridge or harbor companies.

38. The municipal council may pay all instalments upon the stock they subscribe for and acquire out of any moneys belonging to the municipality, and which are not specially appropriated to any other purpose and may apply the moneys arising from the dividends or profits on the said stock, or from the sale thereof, to any purpose to which unappropriated moneys belonging to the municipality may lawfully be applied (b) R. S. O. (1887) c. 159, s. 69.

39. Where a municipal council holds stock in the company, and is by law entitled to vote for the election of directors, and holds a controlling amount of the stock in the company, such council shall by resolution appoint such number of directors only as will suffice to form a majority of the board of directors, and all members of such municipal councils, whether shareholders in their own right or not, and any ratepayer in the municipality not being a shareholder in his own right shall be eligible to be appointed directors on behalf of the municipality, and the shareholders other than such corporation shall elect the other directors. (c) 55 V. c. 36, s. 1.

40. The municipal council of any locality through or along the boundary of which such road passes, or within which any such work connected therewith is constructed, may, out of the moneys belonging to the municipality and not appropriated to any other purpose, lend money to the company authorized to make the road or construct the work, or to any company heretofore chartered by Act of the Legislature for a like purpose, and upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the company and the municipality making the loan, and the municipality may recover the money so loaned and appropriate the same to the purposes of the municipality. (d) R. S. O. (1887), c. 159, s. 71.

41. The municipal council may issue debentures for the payment of any loan negotiated by them with such company, in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as required by law with regard to the issuing of other debentures. (e) R. S. O. (1887), c. 159, s. 72.

42. The provisions of the last preceding five sections shall, in so far as respects the municipal councils of cities and towns, apply to all cases of companies formed under this Act, or heretofore chartered by any Act of the Legislature, for the formation of roads or the construction of bridges within or without such cities and towns respectively." (f) R. S. O. (1887), c. 159, s. 73.

(p) "Under and subject to the respective Statutes in that behalf."

Re Peck and Township of Ameliasburgh (g) was an application (under s. 378) to quash a by-law (duly assented to by the electors) by which the reeve and treasurer of a township were authorized to subscribe for stock in the Bay of Quinte Bridge Co. and to issue township debentures to pay therefor. One ground of objection was that the Act (h) which incorporated the bridge company, does not profess (i) to authorize a municipality to take stock in the company; and on this as well as on other grounds (j) the by-law was held bad.

Sec. 591 (8-10). Notes (p-s). Aiding road, bridge or harbor companies.

Per STREET, J.:—"The words . . . 'under and subject to the respective Statutes in that behalf' mean . . . that wherever in any special or general Act under which a road or bridge company is incorporated, a provision is contained authorizing the municipal council . . . to hold stock in it, then [and then only] the municipal council may take stock in the company."

(q) "For . . . granting bonuses . . . in respect of any road (or) bridge." "For granting aid by way of bonus to any incorporated road or bridge company."

It is to be noted that by-laws for granting aid by way of bonus to the companies mentioned in this sub-section do not require the assent of one-third of all the ratepayers entitled to vote on money by-laws, but that a mere majority of the votes of such ratepayers is sufficient. See s. 366, ante. The "assent of the electors" must, however, be obtained in the manner prescribed by ss. 338-365 and the provisions of ss. 367-386 and 396 also apply to such by-laws.

Superannuation and Benefit Funds.

By the councils of cities and towns:—

Superannuation and benefit funds for fire brigade and police force.

9. For aiding and assisting by annual money grant or otherwise, as the council may deem expedient, the establishment and maintenance of superannuation and benefit funds for the benefit of the members of the police force and fire brigades, and of their families respectively, where police forces and fire brigades are established. 55 V. c. 42, s. 504 (7).

Taken from 44 V. c. 21, s. 24, which, however, applied to fire brigades only when they had been established by the city or town. See also s. 592 (2), post.

Aiding benefit funds for corporation employees.

10. For aiding and assisting by annual money grant, or otherwise, as the council may deem expedient, the establishment and maintenance of official benefit funds for employees of the corporation (other than employees of the police force and fire brigades hereinbefore provided for) and their families 58 V. c. 42, s. 27.

See the reference appended to the section.

(r) In 1889 a corporation called "The Hamilton Police Benefit Fund" (sic) was formed under R.S.O. (1887), c. 172, entitled "An Act respecting Benevolent, Provident and other Societies," (as amended by 53 V. c. 39, s. 9); and by deducting 3 per cent. monthly from the pay of each member, a fund was created, the object of which was "to grant gratuities and pensions for long service in the force, and to assist members of the force who may be disabled in the actual execution of their duty or incapacitated . . . . by long sickness, and to make provision for old age and for families in case of death."

One of the rules provided that (except in certain specified cases) no money should be drawn from the fund until it should have reached $8,000. A corporator and subscriber having died before the fund had reached that amount, it was held that his widow and children were entitled to a gratuity from the fund to be payable as soon as it should reach $8,000, but to be calculated on the basis of its amount at the time of the subscriber's death. Telegraph Companies.

Telegraph companies. R.S.O. c. 192.

Any municipal corporation in this Province . . . . may subscribe for and hold stock in any telegraph company incorporated under chapter 67 of the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, or any general Act passed subsequently thereto or hereafter passed authorizing the incorporation of such companies, and may pay the amount of such subscription out of any municipal or other funds not specially Bounties for destruction of wolves.

R.S.O. c. 290.

"1. 2. In case the Justice of the Peace before whom the head of the wolf is produced, is satisfied of the fact that the wolf was killed as in the preceding section mentioned, he shall first cut off the ears thereof, and then give the person a certificate that the fact of the wolf having been killed as in the last section mentioned has been proved to his satisfaction, and such certificate shall authorize the person holding the same to demand and receive from the treasurer of the county the said bounty of $10 (a).

3. The treasurer of the county shall forthwith pay such bounty to the person presenting the certificate, provided the county funds in his hands enable him so to do: and if the said funds do not so enable him, then the said treasurer shall pay the same out of the moneys of the county which next thereafter come into his hands (b).

4. Upon the production of the said certificate and a written acknowledgment of the payment by said county, signed by the person to whom the same has been paid, the corporation of the county, except the Provisional County of Haliburton, shall be entitled to receive from the Provincial Treasurer the sum of $4 upon every bounty of $10 so paid, and the said Treasurer may pay the same out of such moneys as may be voted by the Legislature for that purpose (c).

5. The treasurer of a county shall not pay the bounty to which any such certificate entitles the person presenting the same, until he has paid the annual expenses of the county, arising from the building of a court house and gaol, and keeping the same in repair, the fees of the Clerk of the Peace, the salary of the gaoler, and the maintenance of the prisoners (d).

6. When the funds of any county do not enable the treasurer thereof to pay the bounty, the certificate thereof shall be a lawful tender to the full value and amount therein specified, for and towards the discharge of any county rate or assessment to be collected from any person within the county in which the wolf was destroyed, and shall be accepted and taken by the collector of any township within the county as equivalent to so much of the current money of Canada, and may be by him paid and delivered over to the county treasurer, by whom the same shall in like manner be taken and accepted as equivalent to so much of the current money aforesaid (e).

7. Where any wolf is so killed in any district of the Province which does not form part of any county, or in the Provisional County of Haliburton, upon the production of the head with the ears on, before any District Judge or Stipendary Magistrate or Police Magistrate, Sheriff, Crown Lands or Free Grant Agent, or before any Division Court Clerk of or within such district, or in the Provisional County of Haliburton, and the person so killing the same makes oath or affirmation, as the case may be, and establishes to the satisfaction of such officer that the wolf was killed within such district, he shall be entitled to receive from the Treasurer of the Province the sum of $10 as a bounty for the same (f).

8. In case the officer before whom the head is produced is satisfied that the wolf was killed as in the preceding section is mentioned, he shall first cut off the ears thereof and then give the person a certificate, as mentioned in section 2 of this Act, and that such person is entitled to receive from the Provincial Treasurer the said sum of $10, and the Treasurer may pay the same upon the production of the certificate upon being duly satisfied that the same has been duly signed by any such officer, out of such moneys as may be voted by the Legislature for that purpose (g).

9. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council may make regulations prescribing the manner in which proof shall be made and otherwise in order to carry this Act into effect." (h)

Medals for Firemen.—Gratuities to them or their Widows.

Secs. 592-594.

Notes (a-b).

By the councils of cities, towns and villages:—

2. For providing medals or rewards for persons who distinguish themselves at fires; and for granting gratuities to the members of the fire brigade who may have become incapacitated for service on account of injuries or ill-health caused by accident or exposure at fires, or from old age or inability to perform their duties, and for granting pecuniary aid or other assistance to the widows of persons who may be killed while in the discharge of their duties by accident at fires, or who may die from injuries received or from sickness contracted while in the service of the corporation as firemen. 56 V. c. 35, s. 22.

Rewards to firemen and persons distinguishing themselves at fires.

Aid to widows of firemen, etc.

See also s. 591 (9), ante.

Rewards for Conviction of Criminals.

593. The council of any municipality in which a flagrant crime is believed to have been committed, may offer and pay a reward for the discovery, apprehension, or conviction of the criminal, or of any person who is suspected to be the criminal. 55 V. c 42, s. 481.

Davidson*, 11 A. & E. 856 (1840), it was urged that the plaintiff being a constable and police officer for the district in which the felony was committed, it was his duty to give every information and to apprehend and prosecute, and that he had therefore no right to recover; but it was held that the giving of the information was a sufficient consideration for defendant's promise to pay the reward. See also ss. 12 and 13 of R. S. O. c. 101, entitled "An Act respecting the Fees of Officers engaged in the Administration of Justice," referred to in note A under s. 530, "Expenses of Administration of Justice in Ontario," ante, pp. 665-676.

When such rewards are payable.

It would appear to be doubtful whether, in the absence of express statutory authority, a municipal council could, as incident to its general duty to protect the property and persons of the inhabitants of the municipality, offer a reward for the detection of those who have committed crimes, even though these should be of such a character as to be dangerous to the public safety,—e.g. arson (a).

594. The council of any municipality may offer and pay a reward or rewards for the discovery, apprehension and conviction of any person or persons guilty of personation, as in this Act defined. 59 V. c. 51, s. 12.

Rewards for detection of personators.

(a) "Discovery, apprehension and conviction;"—not (as in s. 593) "discovery [or] apprehension or conviction." In order to entitle a plaintiff to recover, or a council to pay the reward, there must have been a conviction.

(b) "Personation as in this Act defined." The Act nowhere defines personation, but the offence is punishable under s. 193, sub-sections 1(c) and 2. (b)

Horse Thieves.

Rewards for apprehension of persons guilty of horsestealing.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 355 (20), which applied only to counties; extended to cities in 1880 by 43 V. c. 24, s. 17.

TITLE II.—POWERS AND DUTIES OF COUNCILS AS TO HIGHWAYS AND BRIDGES.

DIV. I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS. (SECS. 598-636.)

DIV. II.—POWERS OF COUNTIES, TOWNSHIPS, CITIES, TOWNS, AND VILLAGES. (SECS. 637-646.)

DIV. III.—POWERS OF TOWNSHIPS, CITIES, TOWNS AND VILLAGES. (SECS. 647-656).

DIV. IV.—POWERS OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP COUNCILS. (SEC. 657.)

DIV. V.—POWERS OF COUNTY COUNCILS. (SECS. 658-659.)

DIV. VI.—POWERS OF TOWNSHIP COUNCILS. (SECS. 660-663.)

DIVISION I.—GENERAL PROVISIONS. (SECS. 598-636.)

Synopsis:—Section 598 declares that certain roads and certain road allowances shall be deemed public highways. Ss. 599-602 deal with the title to highways generally; ss. 613 (1), 614 with the assumption of roads and bridges by counties—(which are by s. 626 invested with any now) undistributed powers formerly exercisable by the magistrates in Quarter Sessions);—and by s. 613 (2-4) county councils are to have exclusive jurisdiction over the bridges therein described. The assumption of certain of these bridges by the villages within which they lie is provided for by s. 604. Roads vested in Her Majesty or in any public Department or Board are dealt with by ss. 627-628.

Ss. 606-608 deal generally with the liability of municipal corporations to keep highways and bridges in repair; s. 605 with the maintenance of bridge approaches; ss. 620-625 with the opening, maintenance and improvement of township and county boundary roads; and s. 619 with the cleaning out of boundary streams. Ss. 616-618 impose special duties upon county councils as to roads and bridges within their jurisdiction; and by s. 615 they are permitted to expend money upon certain township, town and village roads.

S. 612 provides that actions (under s. 606) for damages occasioned by the non-repair of highways shall be brought against the municipality and not against any municipal councillor, officer or employee. A remedy is given in certain cases by ss. 609-610; and (by s. 611) municipal corporations are exempted from liability for the acts or defaults of persons or corporations exercising statutory powers without the consent of the municipality.

Ss. 629-633 impose restrictions and conditions upon the powers of municipal councils to deal with roads within their jurisdiction. S. 635 makes provision for remedying mistakes in opening road allowances; and under s. 634 the heads of councils are empowered to administer oaths in case of disputes respecting roads, boundaries, etc. S. 636 gives certain powers to "The Canadian Wheelmen's Association of Canada." S. 603 provides for the acquisition of roads in adjoining municipalities for public avenues or walks and for the purchase of lands required to widen the same. It might more appropriately have been included in the next division of this Title.

Highways Defined.

What shall constitute public highways.

598. All allowances made for roads by the Crown surveyors in any town, township or place already laid out or hereafter laid out; and also all roads laid out by virtue of any Statute, or any roads whereon the public money, has been expended for opening the same, or whereon the statute labour has been usually performed, or any roads passing through the Indian lands, shall be deemed common and public highways, unless where such roads have been already altered, or may hereafter be altered according to law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 524.

Taken from 59 Geo. III. c. 1, s. 12 (1810), the only difference being that in the section, as it first appears in "The Municipal Act," (22 V. c. 99, s. 300), the final words are "may hereafter be altered according to law," instead of "altered according to the provisions of this Act," (the words used in 50 Geo. III. c. 1). See note (d) infra.

Sec. 598.

(a) "Shall be deemed common and public highways."

Note (a)

What is meant by "a highway."

The words "common and public" are unnecessary; for a "highway" is, ex vi termini, a common and public way, as contra-distinguished from a "by-way."

"A highway is a passage which is open to all the King's subjects." (a). "The term 'highway' . . . comprises all portions of land over which every subject of the Crown may lawfully pass." (b) These definitions exclude land over which a man may lawfully pass (a) by virtue only of a personal license, or (b) as owner or occupant thereof, or (c) as owner or occupier of other land to which an easement over the first mentioned land is appurtenant.

A cul de sac may be a highway (c); and even if an open highway becomes a cul de sac, by reason of the erection of buildings, etc., the remaining (vacant) portions will not cease to be a highway (d). But in Bourke v. Davis (e) KAY, J. says (p. 123):—"That is so in the case of a street in a town: . . . but I am not aware that this law has even been applied to a long tract of land in the country on which public money has never been expended." And a way ceases to be public when access at both ends has become impossible by reason of the ways leading to it having been legally blocked up (f).

How a highway is created.

At the time of the passing (in 1810) of the Act 50 Geo. III. c. 1—(from which s. 598 is taken)—the roads and streets intended to be thereby invested with the character of highways seem to have been chiefly, if not entirely, of two classes,—viz.:—

(1) The Crown roads,—i.e., the "allowances made for roads by the King's surveyors,"—as to which see note (b), infra, p. 812. To this class was added in 1849 (g) all allowances for roads, streets, lanes or commons laid out in the original Government surveys of cities, towns and villages, and all allowances for roads or commons surveyed and laid down in the plans thereof by the owners of townships, tracts or blocks of land granted by the Crown to companies and individuals before any surveys had been made therein (h).

(2) Quarter Sessions highways,—viz., roads opened (or to be opened) by the Quarter Sessions, under the authority of "The Highway Acts," 33 Geo. III. c. 4, and 50 Geo. III c. 1. In this category should now be also included such highways as have been purchased or expropriated by municipal councils, since the transfer to these bodies by "The District Councils Act," (4-5 V. c. 10), of the powers, in respect to the opening of highways, which were formerly exercisable by the Courts of Quarter Sessions.

(3) A third class of highways has, since the passing of 50 Geo. III. c. 1, become so important as to require detailed consideration. It embraces all such public roads, streets, lanes, etc., as have been dedicated by private owners, and accepted as highways by or on behalf of the public.

Sec. 598.

Note (a).

Highways arising by private dedication.

Whether the private owner of lands has or has not dedicated them to them public for highway purposes must in every case be a question of fact (a).

His intention to do so may be evidenced :—

(1) By his executing a deed or other writing in which the land is described as a highway (b) ;

(2) By his laying out the land, according to a plan, in lots bounded by streets or lanes, and selling, according to such plan, lots to which these streets or lanes would give access :—or

(3) By his dealing with the land itself in such a way as to indicate his intention to make it a public highway.

Apart from any considerations as to the effect of either "The Registry Act" (c), or "The Surveys Act" (d),—(presently to be discussed) — it is clear that when a man lays out a parcel of land on a plan, in village lots with streets or lanes to bound these lots, and sells according to that plan, he evidences an intention that the streets or lanes indicated on the plan shall be used as such by the purchasers of the lots abutting thereon (e) ; and, upon well known principles of equity, the purchaser of such a lot would be entitled to restrain his vendor from attempting to divert to other purposes land thus set apart as a street or lane (f), at all events where the street or lane is required to afford convenient access to the lot or lots thus purchased (g).

The purchaser of a lot shewn upon such a plan as abutting upon streets thereon indicated, acquires, as against the person who laid out the plot and sold the lot, a private right to use these streets subject to the right, if any, of the public to make them highways (h).

But—apart from "The Surveys Act,"—such a dedication of roads and streets is not absolute and irrevocable.

> "Neither the mere marking out upon a plan of spaces for roads and streets, nor the registration of such a plan, nor the sale of lots according to it, nor all these acts combined will constitute an absolute dedication of the places so marked down as public highways" (i).

And if all the lots thus sold become again the property of the original holder, he may make a new plan ; and in doing so he may close up any of such roads, streets or lanes which have not yet become public highways, subject only to the condition imposed by s. 100 (4) of "The Registry Act" (j), that :—

> "No part of any street . . . shall be altered or closed up, upon which any lot of land sold abuts, or which connects any such sold lot with, or affords means of access therefrom to the nearest public highway" (k).

Plan not binding until some sale is made under it ; alterations in plan.

Sec. 110 of the same Act provides that :—

> "In no case shall any plan or survey, although filed and registered be binding on the person so filing or registering the same, or upon any other person, unless a sale has been made according to such plan or survey, and in all cases amendments or alterations of any such plan or survey may be ordered to be made, at the instance of the person filing or registering the same or his assigns, by the High Court, or by a Judge of the said Court, or by the Judge of the County Court of the county in which the lands lie, if on application for the purpose duly made, and upon hearing all parties concerned, it be thought fit and just so to order, and upon such terms and conditions as to costs and otherwise as may be deemed expedient. An appeal shall lie from any such order to the Court of Appeal."

Effect of s. 39 of R.S.O. 1.

Such, briefly stated, being the relative rights of vendor and purchaser where lands have been sold according to a plan on which streets and lanes are shewn, it remains to consider the effect of s. 39 of "The Surveys Act," (a) which is as follows:—

> "39.—(1) All allowances for roads, streets or commons, surveyed in cities, towns, villages and townships, or any part thereof, which have been or may be surveyed and laid out by companies and individuals and laid down on the plans thereof, and upon which lots of land fronting on or adjoining such allowances for roads, streets, or commons have been or may be sold to purchasers, shall be public highways, streets, and commons; and all lines which have been or may be run, and the courses thereof given in the survey of such cities, towns, villages and townships, or any part thereof, and laid down on the plans thereof, and all posts or monuments which have been or may be placed or planted in the first survey of such cities, towns, villages and townships, or any part thereof, to designate or define any allowances for roads, streets, lots or commons, shall be the true and unalterable lines and boundaries thereof respectively; . . .
> Provided that the municipal corporation shall not be liable to keep in repair any road, street, bridge or highway laid out by any private person until established by by-law of the corporation or otherwise assumed for public use by such corporation, as provided in The Municipal Act."

This section is based upon s. 41 of 12 V. c. 35, and (until recast in 1887 by 50 V. c. 25 s. 62 (1)) it read as follows:—

> "Whereas towns and villages in Ontario have been or may be surveyed and laid out by companies and individuals and by different owners of the lands comprising the same, and lands have been or may be sold therein according to the surveys and plans thereof; therefore all allowances for roads, streets of commons, which have been surveyed in such towns and villages and laid down on the plans thereof, and upon which lots of lands fronting on or adjoining such allowances for roads, streets or commons have been or may be sold to purchasers, shall be public highways, streets and commons." (b)

In Re Morton and City of St. Thomas (c) PATTERSON, J. A. expressed the opinion that these words were applicable only to the original survey of a town or village as a whole and that they had "no reference to the subdivision of a small town-lot into a few smaller town-lots."

But since the section has been altered to its present form (as above), this view of its scope, although upheld by BURTON, J. A., in Gooderham v. City of Toronto (d), was disapproved by OSLER and MACLENNAN, JJ. A., in the same case (e), upon reasoning which seems to be conclusive and incontrovertible.

The question whether the section (as amended in 1887) is or is not retrospective was much discussed in the same case. The trial Judge, FERGUSON, J., (f) was of opinion that as so amended the section applies to streets laid out on plans made before 1887; but this view—although it received the concurrence of ROSE, J. in the Divisional Court (g) and of OSLER, and MACLENNAN, JJ. A. in the Court of Appeal (h)—was finally negatived by the judgment of the Supreme Court (i).

Note (a)

Dedication by filing plans and making sales.

By this judgment the law as it stood prior to the amendment of the section in 1887 is thus stated :—

> "1st. The right of the public or of a municipal corporation to use as a public highway a road or street laid out by a private person on his own property applies only to such roads or streets as were in actual use as private roads or ways to property purchased by parties, and fronting on such roads or streets.
> 2nd. This right was qualified by such reservations as might have been made by the person laying out such road of street when first used as such road or street, —showing very clearly, I think, that the user of such road or street as a private road or street was an essential condition precedent to the public or the municipality being in a position to acquire a right to use it as a public highway.
> 3rd. A private road, so in use, was liable to be made a public road or highway by the application of public money for keeping it in repair and in a condition fit to be used ; but, until it was so converted from a private road or street into a public road or street, the municipality were under no responsibility to keep it in repair, or liability to persons injured by its not being kept in a sufficient state of repair."

But in cases which are within the scope of the amended section as defined and limited by the above decisions,—viz., surveys and plans of towns and villages made since 1849, of cities, towns and villages or parts thereof since 1887, and of townships since 1897,—(when the enactment was extended to townships by 60 V. c. 27, s. 20)—the making of a plan on which streets are indicated and the sale of lots shewn thereon as abutting upon these streets, has the effect of constituting these streets public highways, which, by force of section 601, are vested in the municipality (a). The liability of the municipality to repair such highways is, nevertheless, still limited by the proviso to s. 39 of "The Surveys Act," quoted supra, which is repeated in "The Municipal Act" as s. 607 thereof. (b)

Dedication by permitting public to use the way.

The intention to dedicate land as a highway may also be evidenced by the manner in which the land itself has been dealt with by the owner.

> "If the owner of the soil throws open a passage, and neither marks by any visible distinction that he means to preserve all his rights over it, nor excludes persons from passing through it by positive prohibition, he shall be presumed to have dedicated it to the public."

Such a presumption will, therefore, arise from the fact that a way is used by the public openly and as of right without objection by the owner of the soil. (d)

In England, and especially in urban localities, such public user—even for a short time—is sufficient to create the presumption of a dedication.

In Rugby Charity v. Merryweather (e) Lord Kenyon, C.J. mentions a case in which six years was held sufficient ; and in Jarvis v. Dean (f) it was held that four or five years user of a new street, though it had not been paved or lighted and led nowhere but to the fields, was sufficient to warrant a jury in finding (as they did) that there had been a dedication of it to the public as a highway. But "in a new country like Canada it would never do to admit user by the public readily as evidence of an intention to dedicate. Such user is very generally permissive, and allowed in a neighbourly spirit ; and it may go on for a number of years with nothing further from the mind of the owner of the land—than that his rights should be thereby affected (a);" and "a single act of interruption by the owner is of much more weight upon a question of intention than many acts of enjoyment by the public." (b)

C. that there had been no irrevocable dedication of the road.

Public user of a way as evidence of dedication.

In Poole v. Huskinson (c) the affixing of a notice board; in Roberts v. Kerr (d) the placing of a bar (though it was soon knocked down); in Lethbridge v. Winter (e) the erection of a gate (f); in Healy v. Batley Corporation (g) posts and chains,—were held sufficient evidence to rebut the presumption of dedication. So, where the land owner swore that people had no right to use a way across his garden, and that he had repeatedly sent them back. (h)

It would seem that the effect of public user of a way in creating a presumption of dedication should not be extended beyond the limits of the way as actually used (i); but when the fact of dedication has been proved and the limits of the dedicated land have been established by evidence other than that of mere user—e.g., by reference to a deed in which the original owner refers to it as a lane of a certain width,—the public are entitled to the whole width of land thus dedicated; evidence that they have used the whole width is not essential; and no obstruction of part thereof by one who knew that he was obstructing a street already laid out, affords any evidence to displace the intention of the original proprietor (j).

If there is no definite enduring trackway, but merely temporary and transitory tracks (k), or an open space not defined by posts and fences (l), this is strong evidence against the existence of a public right of way.

Dedication may be limited.

It has been held in England that the dedication of a highway may be limited:

As to times of user.

(1) As to time,—i.e., the right of the public may be exercisable at certain hours only (m); but (unless expressly authorized by Statute) there cannot be a dedication for a limited period of time (n).

(1866), forty years use of a country road (thirty of them being subsequent to the patent), and in Frank v. Township of Harwich, 18 O. R. 344 (1889), seventy years use of such a roadway was held to be conclusive evidence of dedication. In Reg. v. Donaldson, 24 C. P. 148 (1874), the use of a lane in a town for forty years was considered sufficient evidence of dedication to go to a jury.

In the last of these cases it was held by the Supreme Court of Canada that the user of old travelled roads or trails over the waste lands of the Crown in the North-West Territories of Canada prior to the Dominion Government survey thereof does not give rise to a presumption that the lands over which they passed were dedicated as public highways.

Note (a).

(2) As to the nature of the user thereof—e.g., only for a footway, or excluding certain kinds of traffic (a).

As to the nature of the user.

So the owner may reserve the right to plough the land in due course of husbandry (b); or to keep up gates (c); or he may dedicate the land to be used as a highway subject to prior existing rights,—e.g., market rights (d); or the right to use a part of the highway as a towing path (e); or as a depository of goods (f); or for washing carriages (g); or to the right to encroach thereon by an existing structure. (h) But in Brown v. Town of Edmonton (i) the Supreme Court of Canada appears to have held that the right of the public to the free and unobstructed use of the whole width of a street is not taken away by the fact that at and prior to the time of its dedication there was an obstruction (—e. g., a log house) upon the land so dedicated as a highway.

Where land granted to a municipal corporation for a public market place was subsequently declared by Statute to be: "a public street, etc., provided that nothing herein contained shall affect public rights," it was held that the right of the public to the use of the highway was subject to that of the defendant municipality to erect thereon weigh-scales for the purposes of the market. (j)

If the public accept the right offered to them, they must take it secundum formam doni (k).

Limitation to public.

A highway cannot be dedicated to a limited portion of the public,—e.g., a parish (l)—for it is essential to the notion of a "highway" that it shall be a way "common to all the King's people (m);" and if a way be dedicated with such a reservation (which cannot take effect in law), the dedication is void.

Who can dedicate.

The general principle is that no one but the owner in fee simple can dedicate land for a highway; because the right given to the public is a right in perpetuity (n).

Therefore a locatee of Crown lands cannot dedicate any part of them for highway purposes before he has obtained a patent (o); but he may so act that after patent issues he will be bound by rights meantime acquired by the public with his sanction. (p)

Highways by dedication.

And in City of Hamilton v. Morrison (a) it was held that a municipal corporation to which land had been granted and conveyed as and for a public market, being, by reason of this trust, incapable of dedicating any part of the property as a highway (b), no such dedication could be presumed from their permitting its user as such for a long time. (c)

But the dedication of land by the owner thereof is not alone sufficient to make the land a highway (d): there must be also an acceptance of the highway by or on behalf of the public. (e) This acceptance may be evidenced, —

(1) By Statute,—as in the cases to which ss. 20, 21 and 39 of "The Surveys Act" are applicable (f); (2) By municipal by-law; (3) By long continued public user of the land as a highway (g); or (4) by the expenditure of public money or the performance of statute labour thereon. (h)

Once a highway, always a highway.

"Once a highway, always a highway" is an established maxim; "for the public cannot release their rights, and there is no extinctive presumption or prescription." (i)

Original road allowances.

(b) "All allowances made for roads by the Crown surveyors in any . . . . township . . . . already . . . . or hereafter laid out."

The initial step towards the formation of a township in this Province is, of course, its survey. This, in nearly every case, is (and has been for many years past) made by a Government surveyor under instructions from the Department of Crown Lands (originally "the Land Office Department)."

The earliest of these instructions (known to the editor) were issued on June 18th, 1785, to Patrick McNiff, who made the first survey of that part of the eastern portion of the District of Luneburg (j) which lies along the north shore of the River St. Lawrence, commencing at the easterly limit of the District (the Province line) near "Point au Bodett" [Beaudette] on Lake St. Francis, and extending westerly along the north bank [of the river] to the westerly boundary of township No. 5 [now the township of Matilda] and back to the rear of the second concession of Lake [now Lancaster] township, to the seconde concession north of the River aux Raisin in Charlottenburg, to the eighth concession (as numbered on the easterly boundary) of the township of Cornwall, to the third concession of Osnabruck, and to the second concession of Williamsburg and Matilda.

McNiff's instructions (k) were to lay out a forty-foot road as near as conveniently might be to the River St. Lawrence, and, to the rear thereof and fronting thereon, to lay out the "first concession,"—viz., a range of lots, each with a frontage of 20 chains by a depth of 100 chains. In rear of this first concession there was to be another concession road 40 feet wide, and so on. The written instructions say nothing about "side roads"; but the plan itself (which is dated Nov. 1st, 1786, and is now in the possession of D. B. Maclennan, Q.C., of Cornwall)—shows that cross roads running N. 24° W.—at right angles to the concession roads—were laid out by McNiff in the township of Lancaster between lots 8 and 9, 16 and 17, 24 and 25, 34 and 35, and, in the townships of Charlottenburg, Cornwall, Osnabruck, Williamsburg and Matilda, along the boundary of every sixth lot. These side roads—like the concession roads—were apparently only 40 feet wide.

Sec. 598 Note (b). Original road allowances.

The "Rules and Regulations of the Land Office Department, 17th February, 1787"—(a) provided that:—

> "X. The dimensions of every inland township shall be 10 miles square; and such as are situated upon a navigable river or water shall have a front of 9 miles by 12 miles depth; and they shall be subdivided respectively in the following manner:—(See note)."

Unfortunately, however, the all-important "note" is omitted from the printed copy; and the original MS. of the "Rules and Regulations" seems to have disappeared.

How townships were laid out.

It would appear, however, that soon after Mr. Chewett took charge of the Surveys Department of Upper Canada (which was in December, 1791) the instructions to Government surveyors were revised and altered; and, from the plans of several of the townships surveyed about the beginning of the century, it is evident that first the "concession lines" and, at a later period, the "side roads" were directed to be laid out of a uniform width of 66 feet (one chain).

In Robert Gourlay's "Statistical Account of Upper Canada," (Toronto, 1822) the usual method by which townships were laid out at that date is thus described:—

> "A front line was first adjusted to the shore, so as to leave as little as possible of head-land between it and the water, and of back-water between it and the land. A second line was then drawn parallel with the first, and at the distance of one hundred chains or a mile and quarter, besides the allowance for road. The intervening range of land was called "the front" or "first concession." In the same manner the second was laid out, and then a third, fourth, etc. In the front, and between the concessions, a strip of land was allowed for a road. The allowance for the front road was generally 60 feet, and for the other concession roads 40 feet. Each concession was divided into lots of 200 acres, by parallel lines at right angles with the concession lines, and 20 chains or a quarter of a mile distant from each other. At intervals of two or three miles a strip of 40 feet was left between lots for cross roads."

The intervals between the "side roads" varied considerably at different dates and in different localities. In McNiff's survey (as already noted) it was, as a rule, 120 chains—i.e., the width of six lots—except in Lancaster township, where it varied from 160 to 200 chains. In other places—e.g., in the Niagara Peninsula—there are townships in which every lot has a side road; but the most common practice—e.g., in the Newcastle, Home, and most of the Western Districts—was to allow an interval of 100 chains—i.e., five lots of 20 chains each—between side roads.

Surveyor's plans not alone sufficient.

Prior to 1810—when the Act from which this section is taken was passed—the mere laying out of a road allowance by a Crown surveyor and the deposit of his plan in the Land Office Department were not alone sufficient—i.e., without evidence of use or acceptance by the public—to constitute the road allowance a public highway (b). Like any private person whose proposal to dedicate lands for a highway had not yet been accepted, the Crown was still at liberty to revoke its offer to the public, and to grant to an individual lands which had thus been intended for road allowances.

> "A reservation by the King of a public way through a tract of land granted by letters patent would not (of itself) constitute a public way. Such a reservation . . . might be considered a dedication: but an acceptance on the part of the public must be superadded to create a public right. . . . The Crown would be bound by the dedication: the public by the acceptance" (c).

Effect of the Act 50 Geo. III. c. 1.

It was to this state of things that the Statute of 1810 applied. It operated as a parliamentary acceptance of the lands dedicated by the Crown as highways; so that thereafter—"The fact of a Government surveyor laying out allowances for roads in the plan of the original survey of Crown lands was sufficient . . . to give to such roads . . . the legal character of highways, though there may have been no stakes planted in the ground to mark them out. They would be deemed in law highways before they were actually opened and used, and before statute labor or public money had been expended upon them." (a)

Accordingly it was held in Reg. v. Hunt (b),—an indictment for obstructing two streets in the City of London, Ont., laid out in 1826 by Col. Burwell, Deputy P. L. S.,—(1) that a public road shown on the original plan of a survey of Crown lands by a Government surveyor is a public highway, though not laid out on the ground; and (2) that after a road has thus become a public highway, it is not in the power of the Crown, by grant of the soil and freehold thereof to a private person, to deprive the public of their right to use it as a road.

This is, however, subject to the condition that the surveyor's plan should be shewn to have been adopted by the Crown,—an adoption established in this case by evidence of sales having been made according to the plan and survey. (c)

Highways by virtue of R.S.O. c. 181, ss. 20-21.

(c) Highways by virtue of "The Surveys Act." Of a character very similar to the Crown road allowances referred to in the preceding notes are the street allowances made in the original Government surveys of cities, towns and villages in this Province, and the allowances for roads made in the original surveys of those townships, tracts, and blocks of land which were granted by he Crown to companies—e.g., the Canada Company—before any Crown surveys had been made therein.

As to these, ss. 20 and 21 of "The Surveys Act," (R. S. O. 181), provide that:—

Streets, lanes, etc., shown on original surveys of cities, towns and villages.

"20. In every city, town or village, or any part thereof, which has been surveyed by the authority [of the Provincial Government], all allowances for any road, street, lane or common laid out in the original survey of such city, town or village, or any part thereof, shall be public highways and commons; and all posts or monuments placed or planted in the original survey of such city, town or village, or any part thereof, to designate or define any allowance for a road, street, lane, lot or common, shall be the true and unalterable boundaries of every such road, street, lane, lot and common (d).

Read allowances in townships, etc., patented prior to Government survey thereof.

21. All surveys of townships, tracts or blocks of land in this Province, granted by the Crown to companies and individuals before any surveys had been made therein, and which were afterwards surveyed by the owners thereof, shall be original surveys thereof, and shall have the same force and effect as though the said original surveys and the plans thereof had been made by competent authority; and all allowances for roads or commons surveyed in such townships, tracts or blocks of land, and laid down on the plans thereof, shall be public highways and commons; and all lines run and marked in such original surveys, and all posts or monuments planted or placed in such original surveys to designate and define any allowance for road, concession, common, or lot of land, shall be the true and unalterable lines and boundaries of such allowance for road, common or lot of land (e).

tion of a certain number of freeholders to the county surveyor, stating that any public highway, etc., then in use was inconvenient, but that it might be so altered as to better accomodate His Majesty's subjects, etc., or that it was necessary to open a new highway, etc., the surveyor should examine into the matter, and report to the next ensuing Quarter Sessions thereon; and if, after public notice of the proposed alteration of an existing highway, or the opening of a new one, no opposition was offered, the Quarter Sessions might confirm the surveyor's report and direct the work to be done. In case of any opposition, the matter was to be determined by a jury, who had power to confirm, annul, alter or modify the proposals contained in the surveyor's report, as the exigency of the case might seem to require. Any highway or road thus altered or opened was declared (a) to be a "common and public highway;" and the report (as finally adopted) was to be filed and to remain on record in the office of the clerk of the peace (b).

In order to establish a highway under the above Acts and to maintain an indictment for its obstruction, it was necessary to prove that all the requirements of the Statute had been complied with (c).

In Re Lawrence and Township of Thurlow (d) a mandamus was refused for the opening of an alleged highway laid out by a Crown surveyor in 1839 under 50 Geo. III. c. 1, though the surveyor's report was marked "Allowed, I. F., Chairman Quarter Sessions." The Court of Queen's Bench held that there was no proof of the report having been filed or presented to "the next ensuing Quarter Sessions" after its date, or of the Sessions having ordered the opening of the road; and—per MORRISON, J. (p. 22)—a mere minute that the report was "allowed" without showing that the road was ordered to be opened, would not be sufficient (e).

But in Palmatier v. McKibbon (f),—an action of trespass q. c. f. in which the defence was that the locus in quo was a public highway,—it appeared that a surveyor had laid out a township road in 1834 under the authority of the Acts 50 Geo. III. c. 1 and 8 Geo. IV. c. 14; that his report (now destroyed) had been indorsed with a note "Confirmed by the Court"; that the precise line of the original road had not been adhered to; that the road now in question was adopted in 1853 in lieu of the original line and used until about 1860, when it was closed by a township by-law. Between 1853 and 1860, statute labour had been done on the road now in question. It was held that this (the substituted) road was a public highway.

Per OSLER, J. A., (p. 448):—

> "No doubt the road as it now exists . . . does not very exactly follow throughout its whole course the line which was laid out by the surveyor [in 1834]; but it was intended as an adoption of that road, and as being (so far as it varies from the line thereof) a mere straightening of its course."

Held also—per MACLENNAN, J. A.,—that the expressions, "laying out" and "opening" a road are used in the Statute 50 Geo. III. c. 1 in an equivalent sense, and actual work on the ground is not required before the road becomes a public highway; and the dictum of MORRISON, J., in Re Lawrence and Township of Thurlow, that a minute merely allowing the surveyor's report, without directing or ordering that the road should be opened is not sufficient to establish it as "a highway," is very far from being an adjudication on the point, and as a dictum cannot be maintained." Notes (e-f).

Effect of expending public money or statute labour on a road.

(e) "Any roads whereon the public money has been expended for opening the same."

"Public money" may be either Provincial or municipal funds. The expenditure must have been made under proper authority (a).

(f) "Or whereon the statute labour has usually been performed."

The effect of these words is to make the fact that statute labour has been usually performed upon a road presumptive evidence that the road has been laid out and dedicated as a highway (b); but this presumption may be rebutted by evidence to the contrary.

In Reg. v. Rankin (c) the defendant was indicted for obstructing a highway which had been laid out in 1846 by the county council of Kent. Under "The District Councils Act" (4 & 5 Vic. c. 10) the council could not open a new road except by by-law, and no by-law was proved. The road had, however, been opened by statute labour in 1846 or 1847; and much statute labour and public money had been expended upon it from that time until 1856, when the defendant obstructed it where it crossed his land. It was held that the road had not become a public highway, and that the defendant could not be convicted for obstructing it.

Per ROBINSON, C. J., (p. 310):—

> "We think there could be no ground for holding that the defendant had voluntarily dedicated this land as a highway, or that it had become a highway by dedication. We see what the origin of the road was,—that it was intended to be established by public authority without regard to the will of the proprietor. It has either become a road by the authority and acts of the county council, or it is not legally a road at all. The fact of the public using it for ten years, or expending labour and money upon it between 1846 and the present time is not sufficient to establish it as a lawful highway against the will of the owner of the soil, where there is no sufficient ground for presuming a dedication."

In Township of St. Vincent v. Greenfield, (d) OSLER, J. A. (after reciting the facts) observes (p. 571):—

> "If the origin of the road is unknown, it is presumed to be a highway if statute labour has been usually performed upon it. If the road has been laid out and dedicated by the land owner, the performance of statute labour upon it, or the expenditure of public money in opening it, is evidence of its acceptance and establishment as a highway by the municipality; but the continued performance of statute labour upon a road which was in its inception a trespass road does not in my opinion, by force of the Statute, absolutely make such a road a public highway. It may, at most, raise a presumption of dedication, or be evidence from which a dedication by the owner may be inferred, and may throw upon him the onus of rebutting such presumption or inference. I do not think it has any higher effect. Here—as I have said—the origin of the road is known; and, as regards the defendant's land, I agree with the Court below in thinking that the circumstances rebut any inference of dedication which might be drawn from the performance of the statute labour."

In Reg. v. Plunkett, (e) where a witness swore that, having once been pathmaster for two years, he had directed statute labour to be done on a road—ROBINSON, C. J. considered that this "did not amount to proof that statute labour had been usually performed on the road in question, but came very far short of it."

And in Reg. v. Hall (f), evidence that statute labour had been performed, not continuously, but at intervals, and only upon certain parts of a road running diagonally across four concessions was held insufficient to establish the road as a highway under this section.

Notes (f)-(a)

Performance of statute labour as evidence of a road being a highway.

In Hubert v. Township of Yarmouth (a)—an action to compel a municipal corporation to maintain and repair a street laid out by private persons—it appeared that the street had neither been established as a highway by by-law nor assumed for public user by any corporate act of the municipal corporation; but it was contended that the performance of statute labour thereon with the consent of the pathmaster and (on one occasion) with the consent of the councillor for the ward and of the reeve, was evidence that it had been "otherwise assumed for public user." (b) But it was held that the acts required to work such an assumption must be corporate acts, clear and unequivocal, and such as clearly and unequivocally indicate the intention of the corporation to assume the road; and that the acts relied upon in this case could not bind the corporation or work such an assumption.

(g) "Any roads passing through the Indian lands."

Roads passing through Indian lands.

"It never could have been meant that every by-road or short cut used by the Indians across the plains or the flats was to be established as a permanent highway. . . . The meaning of the clause is, I think, that roads which, under the provisions of the Act were to acquire the character of legal highways, should have that same legal character when they passed through Indian lands as in other parts of their course, although they might not (as to such portions of them) be public allowances made in any original survey nor [have] had any public money expended or statute labour performed on them." (c)

(h) "Shall be deemed common and public highways"—i. e., shall be presumed to be highways. But, as pointed out in note (f), supra, the presumption of dedication which arises from the fact that public money has been expended or statute labour performed upon a road may be rebutted; and such presumption will not, it seems, be extended to a greater width of road than that upon which the work was actually done or the public money expended (d).

Presumption is rebuttable.

(i) "Unless where such roads have been already altered or may hereafter be altered according to law."

When highway altered.

When a road, street or lane has once become a public highway it must continue to be one until deprived of that character by statutory authority (e).

Sec. 599.

Note (a).

Of what highways the soil and freehold is vested in the Crown.

two classes of highways then in the contemplation of the Legislature (a) were the original allowances for roads made by the King's surveyors,—the fee of which undoubtedly remained in the Crown subject to the public easement—and the Quarter Sessions highways then already laid out under 33 Geo. III. c. 10 or to be laid out and established under the authority of the new Act.

To these, "The Surveys Act" of 1849, (12 V. c. 35), added the highways referred to ante, in note (c) to s. 598; and s. 1 of the Act of 13-14 V. c. 15, provided that:—

> "The right to use as public highways all roads, streets or public highways within the limits of any city or incorporated town . . . (except in so far as the right of property or other right in the land occupied by the same highways may have been expressly reserved by some private party, when it was first used as such road, street or highway, and except as to any concession or side-road within any such city or town when the persons now in possession, or those through whom they claim may have laid out streets in such city or town without any compensation therefor in lieu of such concession or side-road) shall be vested in the municipal corporation of such city or incorporated town, etc."

At the consolidation of "The Municipal Act" in 1858, both of these sections were included and both were amended; the clause above quoted from 13-14 V. c. 15, by extending it to all local municipalities, and by vesting in the corporations thereof not the mere right to use the public highways, but the actual highways themselves, and the 35th section of 50 Geo. III. c. 1, by prefacing it with the words "unless otherwise provided for."

In this amended form these two sections have been repeated in every consolidation of the Statutes down to the present time, and they now form ss. 599 and 601 of the present Municipal Act.

Where the soil and freehold is vested in the municipality.

As to the scope of these (apparently inconsistent) enactments, two differing opinions have been held,—the later (and the one now more generally accepted) being that the application of s. 601 (b) is restricted to roads, etc., which have been dedicated by or acquired from private owners of the land (c); and that in such cases it is not only the road or highway itself which is vested in the municipal corporation, but also the soil and freehold; (d) while in the case of highways otherwise created there is no property in the municipal corporation, but only the right of control given by s. 600.

On the other hand, it has been suggested (e) that the combined effect of ss. 599 and 601 may be that while the soil and freehold of every highway legally laid out otherwise than by the dedication or acquisition of private property is vested in the Crown, there is also vested in the local municipality, even in the case of original road allowances, a right of property in "the highway" itself,—using this word "highway" in the sense which has been given to the word "street" in corresponding English enactments, (f)—viz., as meaning "the surface and the area of ordinary user of the road qua road both above and below the surface;" this right of property being,—to use the words of the late Lord HERSCHELL (a)—"such . . . and such only as is necessary for the control, protection and maintenance of the street as a highway for public use." (b)

It is submitted (though with great deference, in view of the authorities to the contrary) that this construction—which provides for uniformity in the tenure of highways, and which best accords with the intention of the Legislature as indicated by the changes made in the Consolidation of 1858—is also the only one which gives full effect to all the provisions of both ss. 599 and 601, and, in particular, to that portion of s. 601 which, by excepting certain original road allowances from the operation of the enactment, indicates that highways existing upon all other original road allowances were intended to be vested in the local municipal authority.

Nor is this view in any way inconsistent with the generally received opinion that in the case of lands purchased or expropriated by municipal councils the soil and freehold, and not the mere highway, is vested in the municipal corporation (c).

Jurisdiction of Municipal Councils.

600. Subject to the exceptions and provisions hereinafter contained, the municipal council of every municipality shall have jurisdiction over the original allowances for roads and highways and bridges within the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 526.

Jurisdiction of councils over roads, etc.

Notes (b); (a). Jurisdiction of municipal councils over original road allowances.

So, under the express provisions of this Act, municipal councils may pass by-laws for preventing the obstruction of public highways (a): for removing such obstructions at the expense of the person who places or maintains them on the highway (b): for preventing and abating public nuisances (c); and under such by-laws the offender may be summarily convicted and fined (d).

Or, if the obstruction or other interference with the highway amounts to a common nuisance (e), the offender may be indicted and fined or imprisoned under Articles 191, 192 of "The Criminal Code, 1892,"—quoted in note (d) to s. 606, post; (f)—and if the Court gives judgment that the nuisance be abated, the person convicted may be commanded to remove it at his own costs (g), or a writ "de nocumento amovendo" may be sued out and delivered to the sheriff (h); but the Court will not make such an order if the nuisance is not a continuing one (i), or if it has already been abated (j).

601. Every public road, street, bridge or other highway in a city, township, town or village,—except any concession or other road therein, which has been taken and held possession of by any person in lieu of a street, road or highway laid out by him without compensation therefor,—shall be vested in the municipality, subject to any rights in the soil reserved by the person who laid out such road, street, bridge or highway. 55 V. c. 42, s 527.

(3) To roads constructed by joint stock companies incorporated under "The General Road Companies Act," (a) or under the similar earlier Acts. (b)

Sec. 601.

Notes (a), (b). What streets are vested in the local municipality.

And where the freehold of lands intended for roads or streets has been purchased or acquired by municipal corporations by expropriation or otherwise: where bridges have been built; or where the roads (or portions of the roads) of joint stock companies have been purchased (c) or assumed by a municipality after having been abandoned by the company which constructed them, (d) no further enactment would seem to be necessary in order to vest the road, street or bridge in the municipal corporation.

The section, however, seems to apply:—(1) to original road allowances, the soil and freehold of which is by s. 599 vested in the Crown, and (2) to roads, streets, etc., situate within local municipalities, and which have been dedicated to the public by individuals,—the soil and freehold of which would at common law have remained in the original owners of the land, subject to the public right of passage. (e) Each of these cases is dealt with in the section, either expressly or by implication.

(b) "Except any concession or other road (f) . . . taken and held . . . by any person in lieu of . . . a highway laid out by him without compensation.' (g)

What is so vested in the case of original road allowances.

These words indicate (h) that in the case of those original road allowances of which private persons have not taken and held possession under the circumstances specified, there shall be vested in the local municipality something more than the mere naked jurisdiction conferred by s. 600,—in other words, an interest or right of property similar to that which in England is vested in the local authorities by "The Metropolis Local Management Act, 1855," and "The Public Health Act, 1875."

By the former of these it is declared that:—

> "All streets being highways, and the pavements, stones and other materials thereof. . . . shall rest in . . . the vestry or district board of the parish or district in which such highways are situate." (i)

And by the latter that:—

> "All streets being . . highways repairable by the inhabitants at large within any urban district, and the pavements, stones and other materials thereof . . . shall rest in and be under the control of the urban authority." (j)

The effect of these enactments is to transfer to the urban authority or local board the property in the surface of the street, and in the zone or area of ordinary user of the street, qua street, both above and below the surface. (k)

> "'Street' means more than the surface: it means the whole surface and so much of the depth as is or can be used, not unfairly, for the ordinary purposes of a street. It comprises a depth which enables the urban authority to do that which is done in every street,—viz., to raise the street and to lay down sewers; and also what is necessary for the purpose of laying down gas and water pipes. . . . It does not include such a depth as would carry with it the right to mines." (a)

Property in highways.

The property in the streets, which in England is vested in the local authorities by the above Statutes, does not entitle them to restrain the erection of a telephone wire across a street at such a height above it as to cause no appreciable danger to the public or to the traffic (b); nor to excavate the soil and erect lavatories below the surface of the street (c); nor to license a salt company to lay down brine pipes under the highway (d); nor to compel the removal of wires which have been laid by an electric company in the subsoil below the street in such a manner as not to interfere with its use as a highway (e). But the proprietary rights of the local authority were held to be sufficient to entitle them to an injunction restraining the owner of the subsoil under a highway from cutting the wires of an electric lighting plant put up thereon by the local board (f).

In England.

Title to highways created by private dedication, etc.

(c) "Subject to any rights in the soil reserved by the person who laid out such road, street, bridge or highway."

In cases of private dedication, where no rights in the soil have been reserved by the owner of the land, these words would seem to vest in the municipality a complete title, not only to the highway, but also to the soil and freehold of the land; and this is the construction now generally accepted (g).

> "There is a distinction between the Canadian law and the law of England as to public highways. The Canadian law agrees rather with the law of Scotland, which is founded on the civil law,—viz., that when a street or road becomes a public highway, the soil of the road is vested in the Crown if there is no other public trustee, or, if there is a corporate body that fills the position of trustee, then in that corporate body in trust for that public use." (h)

But the property thus vested in the municipalities "is a qualified property, to be held and exercised for the benefit of the whole body of the corporation. . . . They may be said to hold the freehold; but . . . it is only as trustees for the public." (i)

Acquiring Roads for Public Avenues.

603. The council of every city and town may respectively pass by-laws:— Notes (a); (a).

1. For acquiring and assuming possession and control, for a public avenue or walk, of any public highway or road in an adjacent municipality by and with the consent of such municipality, the same being signified by a by-law passed for that purpose: and Acquiring roads and lands for public avenues or walks.

2. (Subject to the provisions of sections 437 and 438 of this Act) for acquiring from the owners of the land adjacent to such highway or road, so much land as may be required on either side of such highway or road to increase the width thereof to the extent of 100 feet or less. 55 V. c. 42, s. 528.

Assumption of County Bridges by Villages.

604. The council of every county and village may pass by-laws for carrying out any arrangement between them for the assumption, by the village, of any bridge within its limits, under the jurisdiction of the county council, and for such bridge being toll free; and for the payment by the village to the county of any part of the cost of the construction of such bridge; Assumption by villages of bridges under control of county.

(a) After the passing of such by-laws the bridge shall be, and remain, under the exclusive jurisdiction of the village; and the village shall be subject to all the liabilities in the premises, which, but for the transfer, would have devolved on the county; and the bridge shall be and remain toll free. 55 V. c. 42, s. 529.

Notes (a); (a).

Approaches to bridges.

The word "approaches" means all such artificial structures as may be reasonably necessary and convenient for the purpose of enabling the public to pass from the road to the bridge and from the bridge to the road. It does not include the highway to a distance of 100 feet from each end of the bridge unless the artificial structure extends so far; nor does it relieve the local municipality from its liability (under s. 606) to keep and maintain the bridge in repair; but it merely gives to such municipality the right to enforce the provisions of the section against the municipality or municipalities owning the bridge. (a)

Liability to Repair Highways and Bridges.

Liability for repair of public roads, etc.

Limitation of actions.

606.—(1) Every public road, street, bridge and highway shall be kept in repair by the corporation; and on default of the corporation so to keep in repair, the corporation, besides being subject to any punishment provided by law, shall be civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such default, but the action must be brought within three months after the damages have been sustained.

This sub-section first appears in its present form in the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 409. It had originally formed part of 13-14 V. c. 15, s. 1, which,—after the words quoted in note (a) to s. 599, supra, p. 818—went on to provide that:—

> "Such roads, streets and highways shall be maintained and kept in proper repair, so long as they shall remain open as such, by and at the cost of such corporation: . . and if the municipal corporation of any such city or incorporated town shall fail to keep in repair any such road, street or highway within the limits thereof, such default shall be a misdemeanour for which such corporation shall be punished by fine in the discretion of the Court before whom the conviction shall be had; and such corporation shall be also civilly responsible for all damages which may be sustained by any party by reason of such default, provided the action for the recovery of such damages be brought within three months after the same shall have been sustained, but not otherwise."

The corresponding section in the Act of 1858, (s. 323), immediately follows what is now s. (a) of the present Act. It was repeated in C. S. U. C. c. 54 as s. 237 thereof; (Cf. C. S. C. c. 85, ss. 2, 3); and in 29-30 V. c. 51 as s. 339,—being extended by the last mentioned Act to roads, bridges, etc., in villages and townships.

Compare the provisions contained in Articles 788 and 793 of the Code Municipal of the Province of Quebec, which are as follows:—

> "788. Every municipal road must be at all times kept in good order, free from holes, cavities, ruts, slopes, stones, incumbrances or impediments whatsoever, with hand-rails at dangerous places, in such a manner as to permit of the free passage of vehicles of every description both by day and night, except in the case of Art. 389. (b) The sidewalks must also be kept in good repair, free from all obstacles and impediments whatsoever, with hand-rails at dangerous places.
>
> 793. Every corporation is bound to cause the roads and sidewalks under its control to be maintained in the condition required by law . . . under a penalty not exceeding $20 for each infraction thereof. Such corporation is further responsible for all damages resulting from the non-execution of such . . . provisions of law, saving its recourse against the officers or ratepayers in default. But no suit shall be taken against any such corporation without 15 days notice of such suit being given in writing to the secretary-treasurer of the corporation, which notice may be given by registered letter, etc."

(a) "Every public road, street, bridge and highway."

In the original section (c) the words were "every such road, street, bridge and highway,"—thus limiting their application to those highways which, by s. 601 of the present Act, are declared to be vested in the local municipalities. But the section now extends also to county roads (d),—i. e., roads assumed by county councils under ss. 613 (1), 614, or under R. S. O. c. 193, ss. 54 (3), 102, 103.

(b) Art. 389 provides that:—"Whenever such obstructions arise in the course of some work duly authorized by law, by the council, or by the road inspector under the provisions of any by-law . . . the same is not to be deemed an obstruction, . . etc."

Sec. 606 (1).

Note (a).

It does not, however, apply to "any public road or bridge vested as a Provincial work in Her Majesty or in any Public Department or Board" (a), (at all events while it continues to be so vested) (b), or to roads owned by companies incorporated under "The General Road Companies Act" (c), or its predecessors (d),—but such roads, on being acquired by a municipality under s. 33, or abandoned by the company under s. 50, or taken possession of under s. 102, become subject to the provisions of this section. (e)

To what highways the obligation to repair extends.

"It is plain that only travelled roads, etc., including allowances for roads on which the corporation has, by opening them, invited the public to travel, are intended; and not a road which has never been opened." (f) And though the public are entitled to the use of the entire width of the highway (g), the obligation of the municipality does not, as a rule, extend to a deviation extra viam (h). But where there is no visible boundary to the line of street, and there is a dangerous place upon a portion of the travelled roadway, which, though really outside the limits of the highway, is so near thereto as to induce a reasonable belief that it is part thereof, it seems that there is an obligation to protect travellers, either by the erection of a guard or in some other way (i).

Defects extra viam.

Municipal corporations are not bound to lay down street crossings (j), nor to provide sidewalks (k); but if street-crossings and sidewalks are constructed on a highway, they become part of it, and the obligation to repair applies equally to them (l).

Notes (a), (b).

It does not however apply to crossings or approaches from private property which have been constructed by individuals for their own use, even though this may have been done with the knowledge of the corporation and without objection from them (a).

(b) "Shall be kept in repair."

"Kept in repair," Meaning of.

Few words in "The Municipal Act" have been more frequently than these the subject of judicial discussion and interpretation (b). In Castor v. Township of Uxbridge (c), HARRISON, C.J. says (p. 122):—

> "The object of the Act is the safety and convenience of the public when lawfully using the highways of the municipality. We should therefore, if possible, give to the Act such fair, large and liberal construction as will best ensure the attainment of that object. When a highway is in such a state, from any cause, whether of nature or man, that it cannot be safely or conveniently used, it may, in a large and liberal sense, be said to be out of repair. Whether the defect be an excavation caused by nature or man, or an addition making an obstruction caused by nature or by man, it may be equally unsafe and equally inconvenient to the public to use the highway. The Statute prescribes no standard of repair, nor does it in any manner declare what is to be deemed non repair. It would not be practicable for the Statute to do so. It would be absurd to require the municipality to keep all its roads in the same state of repair, or to require the municipality to keep even the same road in the same state of repair during all seasons of the year. The question whether a highway is in repair or not at the time of the occurrence of an accident is, in general, a question of fact. In the determination of the question, it is necessary to take into account the nature of the country, the character of its roads, the care usually exercised by municipalities in reference to such roads, the season of the year, the nature and extent of travel, the place of the accident, and the manner and nature of the accident."

"Kept in repair," Meaning of.

And, per PATTERSON, J.A. in Lucas v. Township of Moore (a):—

"It is now well settled . . . that the obligation expressed by the general phrase 'keep in repair'—a phrase which is applied equally to an allowance for road in a newly surveyed and organized township and to a crowded street in the business part of a city—is satisfied by keeping the road in such a state as is reasonably safe and sufficient for the requirements of the particular locality; and that in deciding whether any municipal council is chargeable with default, regard must be had to such considerations as the means at the command of the council and the nature of the ordinary traffic of the locality."

And, per ARMOUR, C.J. in Foley v. Township of East Flamborough (b):—

"The word 'repair,' as used in 'The Municipal Act,' has been held to be a relative term; and to determine whether a particular road is or is not in repair, within the meaning of the Act, regard must be had to the locality in which the road is situated,—whether in a city, town, village or township, and (if in the latter), to the situation of the road therein, whether required to be used by many or by few,—to how long the township has been settled, to how long the particular road has been opened for travel, to the number of roads to be kept in repair by the township, to the means at its disposal for that purpose, and to the requirements of the public using the road. All these matters are to be taken into consideration, and from them is to be deduced the quality of the repair necessary to comply with the terms of the Act. And I think that if the particular road is kept in such a reasonable state of repair that those requiring to use the road may, using ordinary care, pass to and fro upon it in safety, the requirement of the law is satisfied."

Does it only forbid indictable non-repair?

In Ringland v. City of Toronto (c), the opinion was expressed (d) that such a state of repair as would exempt the corporation from liability on an indictment under the (yet unrepealed) provisions of C. S. C. c. 85, s. 3 (e) would also exempt them from liability in a civil action (f); but in Burns v. City of Toronto (g), this view was not concurred in by HARRISON, C. J.; and "our Courts have not adopted it as a rule of decision" (h).

It is also to be observed, that (except in the case of cities and towns), the reasoning upon which this opinion was originally founded—viz., that the civil and criminal liability were both imposed in respect of the very same default, and by the very same section of "The Municipal Act" which created the obligation—is now no longer applicable. In the case of counties, villages and townships, the liability of the municipality to indictment for the non-repair of a highway now depends upon Arts. 191, 192 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," and these differ entirely from s. 3 of c. 85 of the Con. Stat. of Canada, which still applies to cities and towns (i).

"Kept in repair," Meaning of.

The duty of keeping a highway in repair does not involve its construction or reconstruction; and where a road which ran along the side of a lake had been completely submerged, so that no ordinary reparation would suffice, it was held that the municipal corporation was not bound to restore the highway (a).

But a municipality has been held to have failed to perform the duty imposed upon it by this section, when it has neglected to provide proper guards and fences necessary to make roads and bridges safe for public travel (b); or has allowed the highway to become defective by reason of holes or excavations, (c) even when these are not within the limits of the highway itself, but so near thereto as to render it unsafe (d); or by reason of the inadequacy of bridges and causeways (e); or by reason of obstructions to travel, whether these are natural obstructions—e. g. stumps (f), or overhanging branches (g), or a rock (h)—or are such as have been placed on or near the highway so as so affect its safety and convenience for ordinary travellers (i), unless they have been so placed under the authority of a Statute, and in accordance with its requirements (j).

As to snow and ice, see ante, s. 559 note (l), and infra, note (h). Subject to the provisions of s. 612, the action may be brought directly against the person who caused the highway to be out of repair (k).

But municipal corporations have been held not to be liable as for non-repair by reason of the non-removal of objects placed upon, above or along the side of a highway in the reasonable and lawful use thereof (l); or of slight irregularities or inequalities of surface arising from a reasonable mode of construction or user of the pavement (a); or of defects or obstructions arising at the moment from accidental circumstances (b); or which are outside the limits of the highway proper (c), except where there being no visible boundary, the defect is in or upon land used as part of the highway (d). A municipal corporation is not an insurer against accidents upon the streets and highways;—nor is every defect therein actionable, even though it may occasion injury and damage (e).

"Kept in repair," Meaning of.

In Castor v. Township of Uxbridge, (f) HARRISON, C. J. held that the obligation to keep a highway in repair does not include the duty of keeping it free from objects, which, while they do not block the way of the traveller, may nevertheless be calculated to frighten horses; though in the same judgment he quotes with approval the opinion of Judge GOWAN of Simcoe, that "a highway cannot be said to be in repair if there are obstructions on it so close to the travelled track as to render it unsafe to pass them either by day or by night." And it is submitted that:—

> "A town is not liable for every object which renders a way unsafe or inconvenient for travellers to pass over it; but only for such as not only render the way unsafe and inconvenient, but also defective or out of repair; . . and it would be giving an unwarrantable interpretation to the Statutes which impose . . the duty of keeping highways . . in safe and convenient condition . . to hold that the existence of an object, though within the limits of a way, or the state of the surface of the road, which may cause horses to take fright, constitutes a culpable neglect" (g).

The questions put by HAGARTY, C. J., C. P., in Rounds v. Town of Stratford (h), viz:—

> "Must the corporation at its peril insist upon the removal of everything as likely to startle horses as an old country waggon with a red board seat standing up in it, hauled completely out of the travelled way? Must the flag of a foreign consulate, projecting a few feet over the sidewalk, be lowered; or gaudy bales of goods at shop-doors, or sensational picture-bills or advertisements pasted on board boardings be removed lest they might startle a sensitive horse?"—

Notes (b)-(d).

"Kept in repair," Meaning of.

Rylands (a):—

> "Traffic on the highway . . . cannot be conducted without exposing those whose persons and property are near it to some inevitable risk; and those who go upon the highway . . may well be held to do so subject to their taking upon themselves the risk of injury from that inevitable danger." (b)

(c) "By the corporation."

On whom the obligation to repair is imposed.

The municipal corporation which under this Statute has jurisdiction over a highway is bound to keep it in repair. (c)

As to roads,—this is the local municipality (or in the case of boundary roads the two municipalities) within which the road lies; unless the road is one which has been assumed by the county council as a county road under ss. 613 (1), 614 (d), or under ss. 59 (3), 102 or 103 of "The General Road Companies Act," (R. S. O. c. 193), or is owned by a road company incorporated under that Act or its predecessors (e), or is a toll road purchased by some person or company from a municipal council (f), or under an execution against a road company (g), or (in the case of a boundary road) unless the obligation to repair has been transferred by agreement to one of the two municipalities which would otherwise be jointly liable (h), or unless the want of repair is due to the default of an adjoining township council in clearing a stream or ditch of obstructions, after notice to do so has been given under s. 563.

As to bridges forming part of the highway, the same rule applies, except in the case of county bridges as defined by s. 613. As to the erection and maintenance of bridges between counties or between a county and a city or separated town, see s. 617.

The non-fulfilment of this obligation to repair is not excused by evidence of the fact that proper overseers of the highway have been appointed, and authority and means given them to keep the road in good order (i). Nor is it a defence that another corporation,—e. g., a street railway company—has agreed to keep up and maintain the highway and to indemnify the corporation from liability for damage in respect thereof, even though such agreement may have been authorized by a special Act (j). And although a statutory liability may have been imposed upon railway companies to maintain and repair the bridges by means of which highways are carried over their railway lines, this does not absolve the municipal corporation in which the highways are vested from responsibility for any want of repair of such bridges (k). As to the responsibility of the municipality in which (by s. 601) are vested the portions of the highway referred to in s. 605 as forming the approaches to (county) bridges, see note (a) to section 605.

(d) "Any punishment provided by law."

Criminal liability for non-repair of highways.

There are,—besides an action for damages—two modes of punishing municipal corporations for failure to keep their highways in repair, one, under "The Criminal Code, 1892,"—which applies to all municipal corporations; the other, under C. S. C. c. 85, s. 53,—which applies only to cities and towns.

Sec. 606 (1). Notes (d), (e). Indictments for non-repair of highways.

First,—Arts. 191 and 192 of "The Criminal Code, 1892" provide that :—

> "A common nuisance is an unlawful act, or omission to discharge a legal duty, which act or omission endangers the lives, safety, health, property or comfort of the public, or by which the public are obstructed in the exercise or enjoyment of any right common to all Her Majesty's subjects ;" and
> "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to one year's imprisonment or a fine, who commits any common nuisance which endangers the lives, safety or health of the public, or which occasions injury to the person of any individual." (a)

Secondly,—The Consolidated Statute of Canada, c. 85, s. 3 (which seems to be still in force) declares that :—

> "If the municipal council of any . . . city or . . . town shall fail to keep in repair any such road, street or highway within the limits thereof, such default shall be a misdemeanour for which such corporation shall be punished by fine in the discretion of the Court before whom the conviction shall be had."

This section was first enacted in 1850, by 13-14 V. c. 15, s. 7 (quoted in the small-print note, supra, at the end of s. 606 (1)), and was consolidated (as above), in the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, and also as s. 337 of The Municipal Act of 1859 (C. S. U. C. c. 54). The latter section was repealed by 49 V. c. 4, s. 5 (2), entitled "An Act respecting the Revised Statutes of Canada" (b) ; the former (s. 3 of C. S. Ca., c. 85), only "from and after a day when the proper Legislature makes provision for the punishment of the offence by fine or imprisonment under 'The B. N. A. Act, 1867,'" (c) a day which, in the case of this particular enactment, has not yet arrived. The section therefore appears to be still in force. (d)

In Attorney-General ex rel. Mead et al. v. Weston Plank Road Co. (e), an attempt was made to compel the defendants to fulfil their statutory duty to repair a public highway by means of an injunction restraining them from suffering their road to continue out of repair ; but it was held that the Court has no jurisdiction to enforce by injunction the ordinary repair of a highway, and that the proper remedy is by indictment.

This case was approved and followed in Attorney-General v. Toronto Street R. W. Co. (f), an information filed at the relation of certain inhabitants of the city of Toronto to compel the defendants to comply with the requirements of the Statute authorizing the construction of their railway, and praying an injunction against the continuance or use of the railway in its then condition (g).

Per MOWAT, V. C. :—"I think that though the Court cannot order the repair of the road, the Attorney-General has a right to insist on the removal of the rails as of a nuisance, if he thinks the public interests demand their removal." (h)

(e) "Shall be civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person."

The civil remedy by action for damages occasioned by neglect to keep highways in repair.

The right of action for damages occasioned by non-repair of a highway is a purely statutory one.

Note (e). Actions for damages occasioned by neglect to keep highways in repair.

The varied character of the powers and functions of municipal corporations in this Province have already been referred to (a). The municipality may own lands, buildings, wharves, ferries, parks, cemeteries, etc.: may act as a telephone company, or a water company, or gas company, or an electric light or street railway company: may determine whether or not roads or streets shall be opened, closed, or altered in direction or level, drained, paved, cleaned, lighted, provided with sidewalks, etc., and if so, when and how those works shall be executed. The exercise of all or any of these powers is discretionary, and (within certain limits already noted) (b), the discretion of the council in reference thereto is absolute.

But (as has already been pointed out) the exercise of these powers involves correlative responsibilities. The municipal corporation, as the owner of lands, buildings or machinery, will be liable to persons who, while lawfully upon, in, or near them, receive injury owing to their being negligently managed or allowed to fall into disrepair (c). So,—although they are not bound to light the municipality (d), or to provide sewers (e), or sidewalks (f), or waterworks,—yet if they choose to undertake the duty of doing so, and damage arises from the imperfect or negligent performance of the work thus undertaken, the corporation will be responsible (g).

Again—apart altogether from any express legislative provision to that effect—damages are recoverable by any person injured through the misfeasance of the corporation, arising either from its having exceeded its statutory powers, or having executed them so negligently as to cause nuisance or unnecessary damage (h).

But the case is wholly different when the corporation is sued, not for misfeasance,—viz., for doing something which is unlawful, or for doing in an unlawful (i. e. a negligent or improper) manner something which would be lawful if properly done,—but for mere nonfeasance,— i.e., for leaving undone a substantive duty imposed by law.

A person is not necessarily entitled to maintain an action because he has sustained injury from the non-performance by another of a statutory duty (i); and, in England, there being no express provision giving a right of action in such a case, damages for injuries arising merely from the non-repair of highways are not recoverable from the local authorities, even though the highways are by Statute "vested in, and under the management and control of" such local authorities, coupled with a statutory obligation to keep them in repair (a).

In former editions of the MUNICIPAL MANUAL, the learned editors seem to have thought,—apparently from some dicta of ADAM WILSON, J. in County of Wellington v. Wilson (b), and in Harrold v. County of Simcoe (c), and also of VANKOUGHNET, C. in the latter case (d)—that the common law obligation of parishes in England to repair their highways (e) and of counties to repair bridges (f)—which has there arisen from long custom, and is enforceable by indictment (g)—necessarily involved the existence also of a civil liability to any one who might sustain injury owing to the non-repair of such a highway or bridge. But this was never the case (h); and it may now be regarded as settled law that a person injured by the mere non-repair of a road or bridge cannot sue the municipality unless a right of action is given him by the Legislature (i).

"Any person" means any person lawfully using the highway. In Lockhart v City of St. John (j) the plaintiff (a teamster) had taken a load of iron to be weighed on public weigh-scales situate on a street on one side of which was a public slip about 12 feet lower than the street. A railing ran along the brink of the street above the slip; and the plaintiff, while waiting until his load could be weighed, leaned upon this railing which gave way, precipitating him into the slip. It was held by the Supreme Court of New Brunswick that he was lawfully using the highway and was entitled to recover damages from the defendants, the jury having found negligence on the part of the latter in not properly maintaining the railing.

In Maine and Massachusetts—where the statutory obligation of the town is to keep the highways in repair "so that the same may be safe and convenient for travellers,"—it has been held that no action lies by a person who is injured while using the highway for the express purpose of horse racing (k), or simply as a play-ground (l). Yet, even in these States, it has been established (by later decisions) that evidence that a plaintiff was loitering by the way,—e. g., to pick berries (m),—or that a child had been playing "tag" on the street just before the accident (a), was not sufficient to take away the right of action. And in other States,—e. g., New York, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Missouri, West Virginia, Wisconsin (b) where the obligation of the municipality is not expressly limited to "travellers"—damages are recoverable in the case of a person loitering or stopping to watch a public spectacle, or even of a child using the highway for play;—the true rule being (as stated by Judge DILLON (c)) —viz., that:—

Note (e).

Action for damages occasioned by neglect to keep highways in repair.

Who may sue.

> "If by statute a city is required to keep its streets in repair, without being limited to proper repair 'for travellers only,' and if it has the power and the means to do so, it may be held responsible for damages sustained by persons using them for pleasure, recreation, or even through mere idle curiosity." (d)

Neither these nor the English authorities on the subject seem to have been cited to the Court in Griffiths v. Town of Portland (e), a case which turned chiefly upon the questions whether the defendants could be held liable for nonfeasance, and whether the plaintiff had been guilty of contributory negligence, and in which Sir WM. RITCHIE, C.J., in giving his judgment in the Supreme Court, expressed an opinion (obiter) that the plaintiff—who, while engaged in washing the windows of her house from the outside, had stepped backwards and fallen into a hole—was not lawfully using the street at the time of the accident.

Nor were they followed by FALCONBRIDGE, J. in Ricketts v. Village of Markdale (f), where the action was brought by the parents of a child killed while playing on or near a village sidewalk, by a stick of square timber which had been piled with other similar timbers on the highway, and which, having "slewed round" when he attempted to walk along it, crushed him against another piece of timber, thus causing his death.

In giving judgment the learned Judge said:—

> "I was not referred, to and have not been able to find, direct English or Canadian authority on the point which is, I think, crucial and decisive against plaintiffs,—viz., the fact that the child was not going out to school, or on any errand or business, but simply left his home about twenty minutes past seven p.m., his mother knowing that he was going out alone on the street to play. She says he had done this for two or three years, and that the sidewalk and street were used generally as play grounds. I refer, however, to Eversley on the Law of Domestic Relations, (2nd Ed.) 802: Singleton v. The Eastern Counties R. W. Co., 7 C. B. N. S. 287 (1859): Hughes v. Macfie, Abbott v. Macfie, 2 H. & C. 744 (1863): Town of Portland v. Griffiths, 11 S.C.R. 333 (1885), (opinion of Sir Wm. RITCHIE, C.J., at p. 338).
> The law in the United States is well summed up in the Am. & Eng. Encyc. of Law, vol. ix, p. 400. "Little children have a right to go upon the streets of a city for air and exercise without regard to the occupation or pecuniary condition of their parents; and a city's duty towards a child who is lawfully upon a street or bridge does not differ from its duty towards an adult, even though the child may be incidentally using the way for purposes of play,—e. g. rolling a hoop. . . . But children using a highway merely for play, are putting it to a use for which it was not intended, and cannot recover for injuries due to defects or obstructions."
> The cases cited in support of the proposition just enunciated seem to be founded on a condition of law as to municipal liability similar to our own, and the opinions of the learned Judges who decided them

(b)

Who may sue for damages sustained by reason of a highway being out of repair.

(f) "Shall be civilly responsible for all damages sustained by any person by reason of such default."

The conditions of the right of action.

The right of action depends wholly upon the Statute. See supra, note (e), at pp. 831-833. In addition to the fact that the highway was out of repair, it must be shewn :—

(1) That this non-repair was due to negligence on the part of the municipal corporation, and

(2) That the damage was sustained by reason of the non-repair.

1. There must be direct evidence of the neglect of some duty on the part of the corporation which is sued (c).

Where the non-repair of the highway is due to the act of some third party, a municipal corporation will not be held responsible for damages resulting therefrom (d) unless :—

(1) The corporation have had express notice of the existence of the obstruction or defect, or

(2) It has been there so long as to warrant a jury in finding that they were aware of it, and might have amended or removed it (e).

But where the defect has been created under the express or implied authority of the municipal corporation, they will be liable (f); although it seems that even in such a case the remedy over given by s. 609 against the person actually creating the obstruction is available to the corporation. (g)

2. The non-repair of the highway must have been the efficient and proximate cause of the accident. (h)

(a) In Beven on Negligence (2nd Ed.) 431 the learned author, after citing Stinson v. City of Gardiner, and a later case of Stickney v. City of Salem, 85 Mass. (3 Allen) 374 (1862), observes that "these cases do not represent the English law;" and he cites, in support of that statement, Gwinnell v. Eames, L.R. 10 C. P. 658 (1875), and Jewson v. Gatti, 1 Times L.R. 635; 2 Times L.R. 381, 441 (1886).

(b) In the case referred to, the soil of the highway was vested in the Duke subject to the public easement of passing and repassing along it: Reg. v. Pratt, 4 E. & B. 860 (1855) (a case almost, if not quite, unknown in this Province); and—per Lord ESHER, M.R.—"Highways are primarily for the purpose of the public passing and repassing along them; but things are done upon them which have come to be recognized as done by the public in the reasonable and usual mode of user, and if no more were done than that the person would not be a trespasser."

Note (f).

Matters affecting the right of action against a municipality for damages sustained by reason of the non-repair of highways.

It is not, however necessary that it should have been the only cause. Conditions such as unfamiliarity with the road, the darkness of the night, or stormy weather, or other circumstances for which neither party was responsible may have contributed to produce the result (a); and although such other circumstances and the non-repair of the road may have been equally proximate causes of the injury, the liability of the corporation will still exist (b). Thus a plaintiff—if he has exercised reasonable care and skill—is not disentitled to recover by reason of his horses having become temporarily ungovernable. (c) But where horses are injured while unattended, or wholly beyond the control of the driver, the non-repair of the highway is not a ground for fixing the corporation with liability; their duty being only to keep the highway in such repair that it shall be safe and convenient for ordinary travel (d).

Where, however, the plaintiff is so far responsible for the conditions which led to the accident that but for his negligence or want of ordinary care and caution, the misfortune would not have happened, he can not recover (e); which accords with the rule of the Roman law: "The harm I bring upon myself I must bear myself." (f)

"The question of contributory negligence arises where both parties are substantially in fault, and where the fault of each contributes to the disaster" (g); and the inquiry is limited to the question "which of the two, by exercising ordinary care and caution, could last have prevented the accident?" (h) It is clear that in an action against a municipal corporation for damages occasioned by the non-repair of a highway the plaintiff, must be the person on whom this duty last devolved; and accordingly, wherever he could have avoided the accident by ordinary care, he is disentitled to complain of the negligence of the corporation. He has contributed to his own injury, and has lost his right of action (i), because his negligence was the proximate, or last efficient cause of the misfortune (j).

Contributory negligence.

To deprive a plaintiff of his right to recover there must be positive evidence of some contributory negligence on his part (a); but if this be established, the degree of such negligence is immaterial (b), and a very slight degree of carelessness or incaution will deprive him of his remedy (c).

As to how far "the doctrine of identification" will operate to make a party responsible for the negligence of a driver or other servant, see The Bernina, 12 P.D. 58; 13 App. Cas. 1 (1888). So, though persons who are of unsound mind, or drunk, or blind, or deaf have a right to use the highways (d), yet it is not unreasonable to require in such cases a more than ordinary degree of care and caution (e); and while the use of a highway known to be out of repair does not per se amount to contributory negligence (f), yet it is a circumstance to be taken into account in determining the degree of care and caution required (g).

Where it appears from the evidence of the plaintiff's witnesses that he has been guilty of contributory negligence, it is unnecessary for the defendants to adduce any evidence (h).

(g) "Within three months."

The action must be brought within three months.

The limitation applies only to actions brought under the authority of this statutory provision against municipal corporations for neglect to perform the obligation, imposed upon them by the section, of keeping highways in repair,—i.e., for nonfeasance. (i)

It does not apply where the corporation has negligently exercised a discretionary power (j); nor where there has been active misfeasance, for which (apart from any statutory provision) an action would lie,—e.g. where an obstruction has been placed upon a road (k), though it was so placed for use in making repairs (l); but where the obstruction consisted of materials taken out of a hole in the road made for the purpose of ascertaining whether repairs were needed, and both obstruction and hole were left unprotected, the case was held to be within the section (m).

Sec. 606 (1), (2).

Note (g), (h).

Action under s. 606 must be brought within 3 months.

The time runs from the date of the accident, even though the extent of the injury sustained cannot be estimated until after the expiration of the period of limitation. (a) So in the Province of Quebec under Art. 4616 of the R.S.Q. (b)—which is copied from ss. 1-3 of Con. Stat. Ca. c. 85 (c)—and under Art. 2262 of the Code Civil, which prescribes actions for bodily injuries after one year, save in certain excepted cases (d).

Under our practice, the defence that the action was not brought within three months must be raised upon the pleadings (e); but it seems that in Quebec the Court may act sua sponte, if it appears that the action is brought too late (f).

Snow or ice on sidewalks.

(2) No municipal corporation shall be liable for accidents arising from persons falling, owing to snow or ice upon the sidewalks, unless in case of gross negligence by the corporation;

Taken from 57 V. c. 50, s. 13 (1895).

(h) A municipal corporation which has laid down sidewalks and street crossings must keep them—as well as other portions of the highway—"in repair;" but the law is not so unreasonable as to require that at no time during a Canadian winter shall the highways be unsafe or inconvenient for travellers by reason of snow or ice.

"A municipality is not liable for accidents occasioned solely by the presence of snow or ice upon a street or sidewalk. It is not, as a rule, bound to remove either. But . . . snow may so accumulate as to make particular places impassable, and [thus] impose the obligation of removal." (g)

The American authorities are reviewed by HARRISON, C.J. in Burns v. City of Toronto, 42 U.C.R. 560 (1878); but (although that case was no doubt well decided) it is respectfully submitted that in some of the dicta of the learned Chief Justice therein, the words of "The Municipal Act,"—"shall be kept in repair"—are erroneously regarded as equivalent in effect to the language used in the Statutes of Maine, Massachusetts and Rhode Island,—"shall be kept in repair so that the same may be safe and convenient for travellers . . . at all seasons of the year."

---

*In Taylor v. City of Winnipeg, the plaintiff's claim was for damages for an injury sustained by falling upon an icy slope which had formed on a sidewalk in the City of Winnipeg, adjacent to a public well supplied with a pump, which was daily used by a large number of people. The well was one of about sixty provided by the corporation and maintained at its expense, and a number of men were employed by the corporation, whose duty it was to visit the well from time to time during the winter, and to remove or reduce the mounds of ice on the sidewalks and around the pumps, caused by the freezing of the water that dripped from them, or was spilled from pails while being carried away. One of these employees was on the spot on the very day of the accident and did not consider it necessary to do anything for the purpose of making the place more safe for foot passengers; and other employees of the city, whose duty it was to report unsafe conditions, had passed the place on the same day and made no report upon it. The action was tried without a jury. The evidence for the plaintiff showed that there was a general slope of the ice from the east to the west side of the walk, that there were lumps or raised places in the ice at two different points, and that the ice was very smooth and slippery at the place where the plaintiff fell; but the judge thought the witness had exaggerated the height of the lumps and the steepness of the slopes. He came to the conclusion also that the ice-mounds and the slopes on the sidewalk had been caused, not from the water that dripped from the pump or was spilled in filling pails there, but by the spilling of water from the pails while being carried along the sidewalk or in the filling of other vessels, and were thus the result of

Sec. 606 (2).

Notes (h), (i).

But where mounds of snow or ice are negligently allowed to remain on a street (a), or where there is unreasonable delay in making a road (b) or a sidewalk (c) passable, or there is some defect in the way itself which is made more dangerous by the snow or ice (d), the municipality will be held responsible (e). So, where the mode of construction of the roadway (f), or an attempt to remove ice or snow from a portion of the highway (g), or the use of a street or sidewalk for sliding or tobogganing thereon (h), has occasioned or contributed to the action by making the snow or ice more dangerous to travellers.

Accidents occasioned by snow or ice on sidewalks.

The fact that a municipal corporation has passed a by-law under s. 559 (1) (2) (for compelling owners and occupants to remove snow and ice from streets and sidewalks adjoining their property) does not affect the liability of the corporation (i); nor does a frontager who has failed to comply with the requirements of such a by-law become, by reason thereof, responsible in damages to a person who sustains injury by reason of such non-removal (j); but evidence of the existence of such a by-law may be given as showing what the Legislature (k) and the corporation (l) considered necessary to be done in order to secure the reasonable safety of persons using the sidewalks.

(i) "Gross negligence."

What is "gross negligence."

Whether there is any—and, if any, what—difference between "negligence" and "gross negligence" has been much and often discussed (m); but,—as was observed by Lord CHELMSFORD—(n), "the epithet 'gross' is certainly not without its significance." The expression here means "very great negligence" (o).

negligence on the part of other persons, and not of any faulty construction of the pump or its approaches; and the place where the accident happened was not shown to have been at the time more unsafe than many other spots on the sidewalk are frequently rendered by local conditions where freezing and thawing follow each other at short intervals.

1. Held, (following City of Kingston v. Drennan) that although to allow the formation and continuance of obstructions or dangerous spots in the highways, due to accumulations of snow or ice, may amount to non-repair for which the corporation would be liable; yet it is in every such case a question whether, taking all the circumstances into consideration, it is reasonable to hold that the municipality should have removed the danger.

2. That in the present case it would not be reasonable to hold the city liable, as there were over sixty such wells in the city, usually placed at street crossings and in constant use, and to keep the sidewalks near them completely free from ice, or roughened by chopping or sprinkling sand or ashes on them would be well-nigh impossible. Action dismissed with costs.

Notice of action.

(3) No action shall be brought to enforce a claim for damages under this section unless notice in writing of the accident and the cause thereof has been served upon or mailed through the post office to the mayor, reeve, or other head of the corporation, or to the clerk of the municipality within thirty days after the happening of the accident where the action is against a township, and within seven days where the action is against a city, town or village;

When dispensed with.

Provided that in case of the death of the person injured the want of notice shall be no bar to the maintenance of the action. 55 V. c. 42, s. 531 (1); 57 V. c. 50, s. 13; 59 V. c. 51, s. 20; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Taken from 57 V. c. 50, s. 13 (1894), except the words "where the action is against a township and within seven days where the action is against a city, town or village," which were inserted in 1896 by 59 V. c. 51, s. 20.

(j) This provision applies to all actions under s. 606 against municipal corporations for damages occasioned by non-repair of highways (a).

The defence of want of the notice required by this subsection must be raised upon the pleadings, and not by a motion for nonsuit (b). The giving of the notice is a condition precedent to the right to bring an action (c).

In Davignon v. Corporation of Stanbridge Station (d), LYNCH, J. held that if the fifteen days notice prescribed by s. 793 of the Code Municipal (e) is required to be given in an action against the corporation for damages, (as to which there is some doubt), it is at all events sufficient that the notice shall be plain and intelligible to an ordinary understanding (f).

Notice of claim for non-repair of highways where municipalities jointly liable.

(4) Where the claim for damages is against two or more municipalities jointly responsible for the repair of the road, street, bridge or highway, no action shall be brought to enforce such claim under this section unless the notice to each of the municipalities jointly liable has been served or mailed as provided in sub-section 3 within the period or periods therein mentioned.

Taken from 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 39.

(k) This sub-section was added in consequence of the decision in Leizert v. Township of Matilda (g) that sub-section 3 was inapplicable to an action brought against both a township and a village, to recover damages occasioned by the non-repair of a road which both municipalities were jointly liable to repair

(l) S. 104 of "The Judicature Act," (R.S.O. c. 51), provides that;—

> "All actions against municipal corporations for damages in respect of injuries sustained through non-repair of streets, roads or sidewalks, shall be tried by a Judge without a jury; and the trial shall take place in the county in which the road, street or sidewalk is situated."

This applies to actions for damages sustained by reason of the non-repair of bridges (h).

Secs. 607, 608.

Notes (a); (a).

To what roads s. 606 applies.

Taken from the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 409, last clause. Cf. the proviso to s. 39 of "The Surveys Act," (R.S.O., c. 181), quoted in note (a) to s. 598, ante, at p. 808. In the Acts of 1858 and 1866 the words were:—"Shall not apply to any road, street, bridge or highway laid out without the consent of the corporation by by-law, until established and assumed by by-law."

(a) "Or otherwise assumed for public user by such corporation." The acts required to work such an assumption must be corporate acts, clear and unequivocal, and such as clearly and unequivocally indicate the intention of the corporation to assume the road (a).

Where a bridge, which had been dedicated to the public and in public use for a number of years, formed part of a public thoroughfare which was the only means of direct communication with the south, and on which houses had been built; and the bridge had been repaired by the municipality out of the public funds for nine or ten years, it was held that the municipality was thereafter liable to keep it in repair (b).

Repairs of Crossings, Sewers, Sidewalks, etc., on Toll Roads.

Repair of crossings, etc. made by leave of municipality on toll roads.

Taken from 47 V. c. 32, s. 17 (1884).

(a) Ss. 147-149 of "The General Road Companies Act," (R.S.O. cap. 193), provide that:—

> "147. The council of a municipality through which a toll road runs, that has been constructed under this Act, or the owner of any land lying adjacent to the road, may set out shade and ornamental trees alongside the road, in the same manner and with the same rights as if the road were an ordinary highway.
> 148. The council of a municipality through which the road runs, or any person by the permission and direction of the council, may plant shade and ornamental trees, and may grade, level, cut down, or fill up the land alongside of the road, and may build sidewalks of plank, gravel, or other material thereon, as if the road were an ordinary road or street.
> 149. The council of a municipality through which any such road runs shall have authority to make stone, wood or other crossings across such road, and may construct watercourses across or alongside the road, and may construct culverts and approaches over watercourses or ditches crossing or alongside of the road from streets, lanes or buildings in the municipality, and may raise or lower the road, or change the grade thereof when necessary in order to connect with other roads or streets, and shall have all other rights and privileges with regard to sidewalks, culverts and approaches to the road as if the same were an ordinary highway or street; but the council shall in all every such case without unnecessary delay replace the road in as good condition as it was before such work was undertaken, and shall keep in proper repair all such crossings."

Section 608 (in its original form) applied only to works done under the authority of the above Act.

Secs. 609 (1)-(4).

Remedy over, in case of Action.

Remedy in case of damages for damages caused by parties other than the municipal corporation sued.

609.—(1) In case an action is brought against a municipal corporation to recover damages sustained by reason of any obstruction, excavation or opening in or near to a public highway, street or bridge placed, made, left or maintained by another corporation, or by any person other than a servant or agent of the municipal corporation, or to recover damages sustained by reason of any negligent or wrongful act or omission of any other corporation, or of any person other than a servant or agent of the municipal corporation, the last mentioned corporation shall have a remedy over against the other corporation or person for, and may enforce payment accordingly of the damages and costs, if any, which the plaintiff in the action may recover against the municipal corporation. 55 V. c. 42, s. 531 (4); 60 V. c. 45, s. 18.

Remedy over for damages caused by non-repair of road against persons causing same.

(2) The municipal corporation shall be entitled to such remedy over in the same action, if the other corporation or person is made a party to the action, and if it is established in the action as against the other corporation or person that the damages were sustained by reason of an obstruction, excavation or opening as aforesaid, placed, made, left or maintained by the other corporation or person; and the municipal corporation may in such action have the other corporation or person added as a party defendant or third party for the purposes hereof (if not already a defendant in the action jointly with the municipal corporation); and the other corporation or person may defend such action as well against the plaintiff's claim as against the claim of the municipal corporation to a remedy over; and the Court or Judge upon the trial of the action may order costs to be paid by or to any of the parties thereto, or in respect of any claim set up therein as in other cases. 55 V. c. 42, s. 531 (5).

Where person causing damage has not been made a party.

(3) If such other corporation or person be not a party defendant to such action, or be not added as a party defendant or third party, or if the municipal corporation has paid the claim for such damages before any action is brought to recover the same, or before any recovery of damages or costs against the municipal corporation therein, such municipal corporation shall have a remedy over, by action against any other corporation or person for such damages and costs as have been sustained by reason of any obstruction, excavation or opening placed, made, left or maintained by the other corporation or person.

When the validity of the original judgment is deemed to be admitted.

Rev. Stat. c. 51.

(4) Such other corporation or person shall be deemed to admit the validity of the judgment, if any, obtained against such municipal corporation in cases only where a notice has been served on such other corporation or person pursuant to the provisions of the Rules of Court made under the authority of The Judicature Act, or where such other corporation or person has admitted, or is estopped from denying the validity of such judgment. 55 V c. 42, s. 531 (6) part.

Note (a).

When a fresh action will be necessary.

(5) Where no such notice has been served, and there has been no such admission or estoppel, and the other corporation or person has not been made a party defendant or third party to the action against such municipal corporation, or where such damages have been paid without action, or without recovery of judgment against the municipal corporation, the liability of the municipal corporation for such damages, and the fact that the damages were sustained by reason of an obstruction, excavation or opening placed, made, left or maintained by the other corporation or person, must be established in the action against such other corporation or person to entitle the municipal corporation to recover in such action. 55 V. c. 42, s. 531 (6) part.

The of Act 55 V. c. 29, s. 33 (1887) first gave to a municipal corporation sued for damages occasioned by the non-repair of a highway a remedy over against a third person through whose wrongful act the highway had become out of repair; but under that statute the remedy over was confined to cases (1) where such third person had made "any obstruction, excavation or opening in a public highway," etc., and (2) where he was added as defendant or third party in the original action. The Act of 54 V. c. 42, s. 24 (1891) inserted the words "or near to" before "a public highway," and permitted the remedy over to be enforced by means of a separate action. See subs. (2) (3) (4) (5). By 60 V. c. 45, s. 18 (1897) the remedial operation of the section was extended to cases where the damages had been sustained "by reason of any negligent or wrongful act or omission" of the third person.

Remedy over in case accident caused by negligence of a third party.

(a) Before this section was added to the Act a municipal corporation had no remedy over in the cases mentioned (a); but now they are entitled to such a remedy wherever the accident has been caused (1) by reason of any obstruction or excavation, in or near to a highway, etc., placed, made, left, or maintained by any corporation or person not acting as a servant of the defendent municipality (b), or (2) by reason of any other negligent or wrongful act or omission of such corporation or person.

The fact that the section applies when an action has been brought against the municipality, indicates that it was intended to apply to cases where there has been default in fulfilling the obligations imposed by s. 606; and it seems that even though such default may be established in the action as against the municipal corporation, this will not take away their right to a remedy over.

In Atkinson v. City of Chatham, (c) the city, being sued for damages occasioned by the sleigh of one of the plaintiffs having been upset by collision with a telephone pole, brought in the Bell Telephone Co. by a third party notice. The company contended that under an agreement between them and the city, this pole had been located four years previous to the action by an officer of the municipality, and had since remained on the street with the knowledge and acquiescence of the corporation and its officers. The trial Judge found that the pole was an obstruction to the highway, which, on account thereof, became and was out of repair; that the pole had been erected and maintained by the company under the superintendence of the city's officers and with the knowledge of the corporation; and he held that the municipality was liable to the plaintiff, and that they had no right under this section to a remedy over against the telephone company. But on appeal (d), his decision on the last point was reversed, and judgment was directed to be entered with costs in favour of the city against the telephone company for the full amount of damages and costs recovered by the plaintiffs.

Per MACLENNAN, J. A.:—

> "The further question is whether the city is entitled to a judgment of indemnity against the Bell Telephone Company as provided by section 609 (1), (2) of 'The Municipal Act.' It is clearly a case of (a) Township of Vespra v. Cook, 26 C. P. 182 (1876). In the Province of Quebec it was otherwise: Rousseau v. Parish of St. Nicholas, Q. R. 15 S. C. 214 (1899).

(b) In which case the action must be brought against the municipality alone. See s. 612. (c) 29 O. R. 518 (1898). (d) 26 A. R. 521 (1899).

Sec. 609.

Notes (a)-(c).

Remedy over, in case damages were occasioned by the act or default of a third party.

an obstruction on a highway made and maintained by the latter company; and the city having been held liable, it has primâ facie under that section a right to a remedy over against the company for the damages and costs recovered by the plaintiffs. The learned Judge has held that the company is not liable to indemnify the city, on the ground that the pole was placed where it stood under the superintendence of the corporation and with its sanction,—that is to say, as provided in the Statute and in the agreement of the 20th of February, 'under the direction and supervision of the engineer, or such other person as the council may appoint.' . . . Assuming then, that the pole was placed with the knowledge and consent of the city, does that bar the claim of indemnity? The Statute makes no such exception, but declares that if an action is brought against a municipal corporation for damages by reason of an obstruction in a street placed by another corporation, the municipal corporation shall have a remedy over against the other corporation for damages and costs recovered. The enactment assumes liability by the municipal corporation for the same obstruction, which must either be for consenting to its being placed there in the first instance, or for allowing it to remain. It is a case of joint tort-feasors committing and continuing the same wrong; and the Legislature has said—in that respect changing the rule of the common law—that the municipality shall be entitled to indemnity. I therefore think that upon the very language of the Statute, even if the city has expressly assented to the placing of this pole, it would be no bar to its claim for indemnity."

The section goes further than to give merely a remedy over. Had this been its sole effect, the defendant corporation could only have added the person responsible as a third party under Consolidated Rules 209 et seq.(a). That course may now be adopted; or he may be added as a party defendant, in which case judgment may be given against the municipality for the plaintiff's damages and costs, and for the municipality as against the added party for this amount together with the costs of the corporation (b).

The section "seems intended solely for the purpose of the remedy over which it gives, and not for the purpose of giving a judgment for the plaintiffs against the added party." (c) But in Stillway v. City of Toronto (d)—where the pleadings were amended after verdict so as to exonerate the municipality and give the plaintiff damages directly against the added party—it was held by a Divisional Court that the leave so to amend had been properly granted; and the judgment was affirmed.

It is apprehended—notwithstanding the decision of ROSE, J., in Erdman v. Town of Walkerton (e), that the defendant municipality are entitled as of right to the remedy given by this section, and that they have an option as to which of the two modes of procedure therein mentioned they will select and adopt. Where the plaintiff's right to succeed is clear, and there is no substantial issue to be tried between the municipality and the person whom it is desired to add, it may be found more convenient to make the latter a party defendant: in all other cases he should be served with a third party notice.

Contribution Between Municipalities Jointly Liable.

Secs. 610, 611, 612 (1), (2).

Note (a) Apportionment of damages where more than one municipality liable for non-repair.

610. Where two or more municipalities are jointly liable for the keeping in repair of a public road, street, bridge, or highway, there shall be contribution between them as to the damages sustained by any person by reason of their default in keeping the same in repair, and any action brought by any such person shall be brought against all of such municipalities, and any of the defendants therein may require that the proportions in which such damages and the costs of the action are to be borne between them shall be determined therein, and in settling such proportions, either in the action or otherwise, regard shall be had to the extent to which each municipality was responsible, either primarily or otherwise, for the act or omission for which the damages have become payable or are recovered, and the damages and costs shall be apportioned between them accordingly. 55 V. c. 42, s. 531 (7); c. 43, s. 46.

(a) This section was passed in 1892 (a) in consequence of the decision in Township of Sombra v. Township of Moore (b), that where judgment had been recovered against one of two municipalities for damage for injury sustained upon a road which they were jointly liable to keep in repair, the one was not entitled to contribution from the other.

No Liability for Acts or Defaults of others.

Actions for negligence in repair of highways, etc.

611. Nothing contained in sections 606 to 610 of this Act (both inclusive) shall cast upon the municipal corporation any obligation or liability in respect of acts done or omitted to be done by other persons, companies or corporations, acting in the exercise of powers or authorities conferred upon them by law, and over which such municipal corporation has not control, where the municipal corporation is not a party to such acts or omissions, and the authority under which such persons, companies or corporations have acted or shall act is not a by-law, resolution or license of the council of the municipality. 59 V. c. 51, s. 22.

Action shall lie only against the Corporation.

Corporation not responsible for acts of certain others in non-repair of highways.

612.—(1) In any case where an action may be brought against a municipal corporation by any person who has suffered damage by reason of the default of a municipality in keeping any public road, street, bridge or highway in repair as provided by section 606 of this Act, no action shall be brought in respect of, or to recover such damage, or any part thereof, against any member of the council, officer or employee of the municipality personally, but the remedy therefor shall be wholly against the municipality.

(2) Nothing in this section contained shall apply to or affect litigation pending on the 7th day of April, 1896, or prevent any action from being brought or maintained by any municipality against any officer or employee for negligence or misconduct, or for any act of omission or commission in breach of his duty as such officer or employee.

Secs. 612 (3), (4); 613, 1, 2, 3, 4.

Notes (a), (b).

When an action for non-repair of a highway must be brought against the municipality.

(3) Where any such action was brought against any such officer, member or employee prior to the 7th day of April, 1896, the municipality may assume the same or the defence thereof, and may pay any damages or costs for which such officer, member or employee may be or has become liable in respect thereof.

(4) This section shall not extend to or include a mere contractor with the corporation, or any member of council, officer or employee who is such contractor, and by reason of whose act or neglect the damage was caused. 59 V. c. 51, s. 21.

This section was passed in consequence of McDonald v. Dickenson, 25 O. R. 45; 21 A. R. 45; 24 A.R. 31 (1894-7), and Freeman v. Dickenson, referred to 24 A.R. p. 32.

County Roads and Bridges.

613. Every county council shall have exclusive jurisdiction:—

Jurisdiction of county council over roads and bridges assumed by by-law.

1. Over all roads and bridges lying within any township, town or village in the county, which the council by by-law assumes with the assent of such township, town or village municipality as a county road, or bridge, until the by-law, assuming the same has been repealed by the council, and

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 341, which applied only to roads and bridges within townships, and did not require the assent of the local municipality. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 37, part; 29-30 V. c. 57, s. 341; 36 V. c. 48, s. 410. Extended to roads and bridges within towns and villages by 37 V. c 16, s. 17 (1874), by which also the words "with the assent of such township, town or village municipality" were inserted. From this section, however, townships were omitted; an error corrected by 39 V. c. 7, s. 2 (1876).

Over bridges separating townships.

2. Over all bridges, across streams, rivers, ponds or lakes separating two townships in the county, and

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 325 (1858), which applied only to "streams." "Ponds" and "lakes" were inserted by 51 V. c. 28, s. 30 (1888), and "rivers" in the Revision of 1897. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 38.

(a) "Streams, rivers." See note (j) to s. 562.

Over certain bridges in villages.

3. Over all bridges crossing streams or rivers over 100 feet in width, within the limits of any incorporated village in the county, and connecting any main highway leading through the county, and

This sub-section appears first in 34 V. c. 30, s. 7 (1871), which applied to "any highway leading through the county," but only to "rivers . . . over 500 feet in width." By 36 V. c. 48, s. 410 (1873), the necessary width of the river was reduced to 200 feet, and by 37 V. c. 16, s. 17 (1874), it was further reduced to 100 feet, and such watercourses were then called indifferently "streams or rivers." 50 V. c. 29, s. 34 (1887) introduced the word "main" before "highway." By 49 V. c. 37, s. 16 (1886), jurisdiction was given to counties over bridges crossing rivers or streams within townships or separated towns; but this provision was repealed in the next year by 50 V. c. 29, s. 36 (1887).

Over bridges over rivers, etc., forming municipal boundaries.

4. Over all bridges over rivers, streams, ponds or lakes forming or crossing boundary lines between two local municipalities in the county. 55 V. c. 42, s. 532; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (91).

Taken from R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 492, from which, however, the words "streams, ponds or lakes," "local," and "in the county" were omitted. The words "ponds or lakes" were inserted by 51 V. c. 28, s. 30 (1888); the remainder by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (91) (1897).

(b) "Exclusive jurisdiction." It is apprehended that the effect of these words is to confer upon county councils, with regard to the highways and bridges mentioned in this section, powers and duties co-extensive with those conferred upon local municipalities by the word "vested" in s. 601 as to the highways to which that section refers (a). The result is doubtless to bring county corporations within the operation of s. 606 (b), and subject them to indictment or civil action in case of neglect to keep their highways in repair (c).

Secs. 613, 614.

Notes (b)-(g); (a)-(c).

County roads and bridges.

(c) "By by-law assumes." Where a county by-law declared a township road to be assumed "for the purpose of expending thereon the county appropriation, and for such purpose only" the road was held to be a county road within the meaning of this section (d).

As to the duty of the county council in respect of any road or bridge within a township, which has thus been assumed, see s. 616 (1).

(d) "With the assent of such township." It seems that this assent need not be by by-law, but that it is sufficiently expressed by the absence of objection by the local municipality to the county by-law, or to the expenditure, during some years, of county funds upon the highway pursuant thereto (e).

(e) Clause 3. See, as to the assumption of such bridges by the villages in which they are situate, s. 604, supra.

(f) "Over 100 feet in width." The width of the stream or river is to be ascertained at the place where the bridge crosses, and is to be determined by the width of the stream after heavy rains and during freshets (f).

(g) Clause 4. Although, under s. 617 (1), local municipalities may be liable to contribute toward the cost of erecting such a bridge, the exclusive jurisdiction conferred by this subsection upon the county council is not interfered with (g).

The county council may, by by-law under s. 617 (3), declare that this clause shall not extend to rivers, streams, ponds or lakes less than eighty feet in width.

614. Any county council may assume, make and maintain any township or county boundary line at the expense of the county, or may from time to time grant for the said purposes such sum or sums as they deem expedient. 55 V. c. 42, s. 533.

Boundary lines may be maintained by county.

This section—with the exception of the word "boundary" (added by 36 V. c. 48, s. 413, (1873))—appears as subs. 11 of 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 431 (1866), but, until 1877, was unnecessary, by reason of the provision, omitted in the Revision of that year—attention having been called to it in O'Connor v. Township of Otonabee, 35 U. C. R. 83 (1874), that county councils should have exclusive jurisdiction "over every road or bridge dividing different townships." See 12 V. c. 81, s. 38; 22 V. c. 99, s. 325; 29-30 V. c. 51, 341; 36 V. c. 48, s. 410; 37 V. c. 16, s. 17; and Re McBride and Township of York, 31 U. C. R. 355 (1871).

(a) "May assume." In this case the road becomes a county road; and the assent of the local municipalities is not necessary as it is under s. 613 (1). As to the case township boundary lines not so assumed, see ss. 620-625.

(b) Any * * * county boundary line. Under s. 622 such boundary lines until assumed are under the joint jurisdiction of the local municipalities bordering thereon. It is apprehended, therefore, that the county council cannot assume more than the township's share of this joint jurisdiction. (h)

(c) "For the said purposes."—i.e., apparently, for the purpose of assuming as well as of making and maintaining.

Maintenance, etc., of roads in local municipalities by county councils.

615. Any county council may, at the expense of the county, make, maintain and improve any township, town or village road or highway which runs into any county road, and may grant such sum or sums from time to time for the said purpose, as they may deem expedient. 59 V. c. 51, s. 23.

(a) It would seem that the power given by this section is in addition to those conferred by s. 658 (5)-(7), and that the word "grant" is used here (as in s. 614) in the sense of "appropriate." Quære—whether a road thus made, etc., by a county council remains vested in in the local municipality in which it is situate? If so, it would seem that a county council, by opening a road under this section (at least upon an original road allowance (a)) might cast upon the local municipality the duty of keeping it in repair. See ss. 600 and 606.

Improving and Maintaining County Roads and Bridges.

Roads or bridges assumed by county councils.

616.—(1) Where a county council by by-law assumes as a county road or bridge, any road or bridge within a township, they shall, with as little delay as reasonably may be, and at the expense of the county, cause the road to be planked, gravelled or macadamized, or the bridge to be built in a good and substantial manner. 55 V. c. 42, s. 534, part.

Taken from 22 V. c 99, s. 326 (1858) with some verbal amendments made in the Revision of 1897. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 37 part; 22 V. c. 99, s. 326; 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 342; 36 V. c. 48, s. 412.

(a) This subsection does not apply to roads or bridges within a town or village assumed under s. 613 (1), or to township or county boundary lines assumed under s. 614.

(b) "Shall . . . cause the road to be planked" etc.

In Re Township of Augusta and United Counties of Leeds and Grenville, (b) the Court was of opinion that this duty might be enforced by mandamus. In Hacking v. County of Perth, it was held by the Court of Error and Appeal (c), that—since it would be impossible in such a case to fulfil the duty imposed by this section—a county council had no power to assume a road already planked, gravelled or macadamized; but—apart from the obvious possibility of substituting one of the other pavements above named for that which had previously been laid, it would seem that this decision is not in accord with the general intention of the Statute as shown by the original form of the enactment (d), where provisions corresponding to s. 613 (1) and to this sub-section were both contained in the same section; and it is possible that if the question came up again the decision might be different.

(c) "Or the bridge to be built."

See note (a) to s. 617 (1).

Maintenance of certain bridges in villages.

(2) The county council shall in a like manner cause to be built and maintained, all bridges on any river or stream over 100 feet in width, within the limits of any village in the county, necessary to connect any main public highway leading through the county. 55 V. c. 42, s. 534, part.

This subsection first appears in 34 V. c. 30, s. 8 (1871), but was there much restricted in its application. It was amended by 36 V. c. 48, s. 412 (1873), and was repealed and re-enacted in its present form by 37 V. c. 16, s. 18 (1874) with the omission (supplied by 50 V. c. 29, s. 38 (1887)) of the word "main" before "public highway."

(a) "Shall . . . cause to be built and maintained."

See note (a) to s. 617 (1).

(b) "Necessary to connect." It will be observed that the duty here imposed is not co-extensive with the jurisdiction conferred by s. 613 (3).

(c) 35 U.C.R. 460 (1874).
(d) The Act of 1849: 12 V. c. 81, s. 37.

In Reg. v. County of Wellington (a), there were in a village two bridges which divided the travel on a leading county road. One was on the direct line of the road: the other about 300 yards away. Neither had been assumed by the county. Held, that the bridge not on the direct line was not within this clause.

Secs. 616 (2), 617 (1).

Notes (b); (a), (b).

617.—(1) It shall be the duty of the county councils to erect and maintain bridges over rivers, streams, ponds or lakes forming or crossing boundary lines between any two municipalities (other than a city or separated town) within the county; and in case of a bridge over a river, stream, pond or lake forming or crossing a boundary line between two or more counties or a county, city, or separated town, such bridges shall be erected and maintained by the councils of the counties or county, city and separated town respectively; and in case the councils fail to agree as to the respective portions of the expense to be borne by the municipalities interested, it shall be the duty of each to appoint arbitrators as provided by this Act, to determine the proportionate amount to be paid by each, and the award made by them shall be final. 55 V c. 42, s. 535 (1); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (92).

Bridges between municipalities.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 22 (1885): the words "streams, ponds and lakes" having been inserted in 1897 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (92), and certain verbal amendments made in the Revision of that year.

(a) "It shall be the duty of the county councils to erect and maintain bridges."

In case of refusal on the part of a county council to comply with the requirements of this and the preceding section in regard to the erection of bridges, proceedings may be taken under s. 611, post; and the county corporation would, it seems, be liable also to indictment (b) under Art. 138 of "The Criminal Code, 1892" quoted ante in note (a) to s. 393. It is doubtful whether (in cases to which s. 618 does not apply) the performance of the duty thus imposed may be enforced by mandamus. That procedure has been attempted in several cases (c); but in each the mandamus was refused. In Re Townships of Moulton and Canborough (d)—decided before s. 618 was passed—HAGARTY, C.J., and OSLER, J.A., held that though the mandamus would lie, indictment was the appropriate remedy; while BURTON and PATTERSON, J.J.A. considered that the duty under these sections was not the general obligation to keep the highways and bridges in repair, but a specific duty, like that cast upon railway companies by their charters with respect to the restoration of roads or the building of bridges—which has always been enforceable by mandamus.

Duty of county council, how enforced.

In case of non-repair, indictment and not mandamus is the proper remedy (e).

(b) "By the councils . . . respectively."

"There is nothing in section 617 which has the effect of divesting the county council of the exclusive jurisdiction conferred upon it by section 613 over all bridges over rivers or ponds or lakes forming or crossing boundary lines between two municipalities. And although, in case of a bridge over a river forming or crossing a boundary line between a county, city or separated town within the county, such bridge is to be erected and maintained by the councils of the county,

Jurisdiction still vested in county councils.

Jurisdiction over bridges between municipalities.

city and separated town respectively, each contributing such portion of the expense thereof as may be agreed upon or determined by arbitration, yet the exclusive jurisdiction over such bridge so erected and maintained still remains in the county council. And although such bridge is to be so erected and maintained, yet the approaches for 100 feet to and next adjoining each end of such bridge are, by the provisions of section 605, to be kept up and maintained by the county council, under whose exclusive jurisdiction such bridge is declared to be by section 613." (a)

Accordingly it was held in Cummings' case that claims for compensation for lands injuriously affected by the construction of approaches to such a bridge must be made against the county alone, and not against the county and the local municipality jointly.

Deviating boundary roads.

(2) A road which lies wholly or partly between two municipalities shall be regarded as a boundary line within the meaning of this section, although such road may deviate so that it is in some place or places wholly within one of the municipalities; and a bridge built over a river, stream, pond or lake crossing such road where it deviates as aforesaid shall be held to be a bridge over a river, stream, pond or lake crossing a boundary line within the meaning of this section. 55 V. c. 42, s. 535 (1, 2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (93).

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 22 (2) (1885), "streams, ponds or lakes" having been inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (93) (1897). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 38; 22 V. c. 99, s. 325; 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 341; 36 V. c. 48, s. 410; R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 498; 46 V. c. 18, s. 538.

(c) "Although such road may deviate."

In County of Brant v. County of Waterloo (b) ROBINSON, C. J. expressed the opinion that the deviation intended was one made only for the purpose of obtaining a good line of road. This decision was approved, and the meaning of the word "deviate" was considered, in County of Victoria v. County of Peterborough (c).

Rivers, etc., less than 80 feet wide.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in this section or in section 613, the council of any county may, by by-law, provide that where the words "rivers, streams, ponds or lakes," are mentioned in those sections as applying to the erection and maintenance of bridges over rivers, streams, ponds or lakes, where such rivers, streams, ponds or lakes form or cross any boundary line between two municipalities within such county, the said words of any of them shall not include or extend to any river, stream, lake or pond less than eighty feet in width. 55 V. c. 42, s. 535 (3); 56 V. c. 35, s. 25; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (94).

County by-law.

In 58 V. c. 36, s. 28 (1889), where this section first appears, the words "streams" after "rivers" and "form or" before "cross," were omitted. The latter was inserted by 56 V. c. 35, s. 25 (1893), the former by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (94) (1897).

Duty of local municipalities if such a by-law is passed.

(4) In the event of the council of any county passing a by-law under the last preceding subsection, the councils of the local municipalities bordering upon such boundary line shall erect and maintain all necessary bridges over rivers, streams, lakes and ponds of a less width than 80 feet forming or crossing such boundary line. 55 V. c. 42, s. 535 (4); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (95).

The principle of this section was first embodied in the Act by 52 V. c. 36, s. 28 part (1889), which, however, was very badly worded and was corrected in several particulars in 1897 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (95) and in the revision of that year.

"11.—(1) No person shall remove any stones, gravel, earth or sand from the bed of any river, stream or creek running between two municipalities, or over which bridges have been erected, or through or under which drainage pipes or water mains have been laid by or at the instance of a municipal corporation, so as to endanger the safety of or injure such bridges, pipes or mains, without the consent of the council of the municipality or municipalities within whose limits the stones, gravel, earth or sand are to be taken.

Removal of stones, etc., from beds of certain streams prohibited.

(2) Any person guilty of a contravention of this section shall, for every such offence, be liable on summary conviction thereof to a penalty of not less than $10, nor more than $25, or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or to both fine or imprisonment to the said amount and for the said term; and if a fine is imposed and is not paid forthwith, the person convicted shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding three months, unless the said fine and costs are sooner paid."

Penalty.

618. Wherever there is a dispute between a county council and the council of any other municipality as to whether the duty or liability to build or maintain a bridge over any river, stream, lake or pond belongs to or rests upon such county council or such other council, either party to the dispute may bring and prosecute an action in the High Court of Justice for Ontario against the other to try the question in dispute, or the said Court may, upon the application of either party, compel by mandamus the performance of such duty or liability by the party upon or to whom such duty or liability rests or belongs. 55 V. c. 42, s. 535*a*; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (96).

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 40 (1890), which, however, did not contain the words "lake" or "pond." These were inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (96) (1897).

Driftwood in Rivers and Streams.

619.—(1) Where a river, or a stream forms a boundary line between two or more municipalities within a county, it shall be the duty of the council of the county to keep such river or stream free from all accumulation of driftwood or fallen timber now or hereafter accumulated.

When county councils to keep river or stream free of driftwood.

(2) In the case of any river or stream which forms a boundary line between two or more counties, or a county, city, or separated town, it shall be the duty of the councils of the county or counties, city and separated town respectively to keep such river or stream free from all accumulation of drifted or fallen timber now or hereafter accumulated; and in case the councils fail to agree as to the respective portions of the expense to be borne by the municipalities interested, the same shall be decided by arbitration under the provisions of this Act, and the award made shall be final. 55 V. c. 42, s. 535*b*.

Boundary lines not assumed by county councils.

(a) The effect of this section with section 617 (1) and 622 is that:—

> "The duty to maintain the boundary line roads in the case of townships and counties, where not assumed by the county council, and the joint jurisdiction over them, is cast upon the adjoining townships, whether in the same or adjoining counties, while the duty to erect and maintain the bridges in the course of such roads is devolved upon the council of the county,—or the councils of the two counties—as the case may be." (a)

Road allowances on township boundary lines.

(2) In the case of any township boundary line, or any portion of such line on which a road allowance has not been reserved, in the original survey thereof, the council of any one of the municipalities bordering on such boundary line, may pass a by-law for acquiring within such municipality either by purchase or expropriation the land necessary for one-half of the required road allowance.

(a) Within four days after the passing of the by-law the clerk of the municipality shall send a copy of the by-law by registered letter to the clerk of the adjoining municipality.

Sections 623 and 624 to apply.

(3) Sections 623 and 624 of this Act shall apply to proceedings taken under the provisions of this section.

Arbitration.

(4) If the matters in dispute between the two municipalities are referred to arbitration, the arbitrators shall have power to decide upon the proportion of the cost of the land which will be required upon each side of such boundary line for a road allowance which shall be borne by each municipality, and shall also have power to decide whether a road allowance shall be laid out or not.

When arbitrators decide against laying out allowance.

(5) If the arbitrators decide against the laying out of a road allowance upon such boundary line or any portion of such line, then no further proceedings shall be taken for a period of two years, or such further time as the arbitrators may determine upon, but not exceeding in all four years. 55 V. c. 42, s. 536 (2-5).

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 31 (1890).

Township boundaries, being also county boundaries.

(1877), c. 174, s. 497, part—the words "the duty of the county council under the provisions of this Act" (lines 4, 5) having been substituted for the word "necessary" by 60 V. c. 65, Sched. C. (98) and the words "streams, lakes or ponds" having been inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (97) (1897).

(a) "Except where it is the duty."—i. e., in all cases in which no by-law has been passed under s. 617 (3).

Roads under Joint Jurisdiction.

622. In case a road lies wholly or partly between a county, city, town, township or village and an adjoining county or counties, city, town, township or village, the councils of the municipalities between which the road lies shall have joint jurisdiction over the same, although the road may so deviate as in some places to be wholly or in part within one or other of them.

Joint jurisdiction over certain roads.

Taken from 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 329 (1866), which applied to both roads and bridges. The application of the section was restricted to roads alone by R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 498.

(a) "Joint jurisdiction." This section applies whether the road (if an original road allowance) has been opened or not (a); and it involves a joint liability to repair any road which has been opened (b) and to contribute towards any damage sustained by reason of its non-repair (c), unless by-laws have been passed and registered, as required by s. 625.

The dividing line between a village and a township was the middle of an original road allowance; but each municipality had passed resolutions providing that the whole road should be kept in repair by the village. Held, that for the purpose of repairing and widening the road, the village had the right to enter on the portion of the road within the township limits and to take sand therefrom.

See as to the jurisdiction of county councils over county boundary lines, note (b) to s. 614, supra.

(b) "Although the road may . . deviate." See note (c) to s. 617.

(a) The word "road" in this section shall not include a bridge over a river, stream, lake or pond, forming or crossing the boundary line between two municipalities other than counties, which bridge it is the duty of the county council to erect and maintain. 55 V. c. 42, s. 538; c. 43, s. 50; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (99).

Certain bridges not within purview of section.

Until 1877, s. 622 applied to both roads and bridges; but in R. S. O. (1877), s. 174, s. 498, this sub-section appears as at present, except that "streams, ponds or lakes" and all the words after "municipalities" (line 4) are omitted. Of the latter, the words "in the county" were added by 45 V. c. 23, s. 13 (1882), the rest by 55 V. c. 42, s. 538 (1892): "streams, ponds or lakes" were inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (99) (1897).

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 315 (1858), which was applicable where only two municipalities were interested. The words were extended to other cases by 33 V. c. 26, s. 9 (1869).

Arbitration if they do not concur.

624. In case the other council or councils, for six months after notice of the by-law, omit to pass a by-law or by-laws in similar terms, the duty and liabilities of each municipality in respect to the road or bridge shall be referred to arbitration under the provisions of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 540.

See reference under s. 623. The sections containing this provision were s. 316 of 22 V. c. 99 (1858) and s. 10 of 33 V. c. 26 (1869).

Agreements between adjoining townships as to maintenance of boundary roads.

625. (1) The councils of adjoining townships may enter into an agreement for the maintenance and repair of any road forming the boundary between such townships, whereby each of such townships may undertake, for a term of years, not to exceed ten years, to maintain and keep in repair any portion of such road for its whole width, and to indemnify and save harmless the other township from any loss or damage arising from want of repair of such portion.

Agreement may be registered.

(2) Any agreement so made, shall when confirmed by by-law of the council of each of the contracting townships, be registered in the registry office in the manner provided by sub-section 1 of section 633 of this Act.

Effect of agreement.

(3) After the registration of the by-laws confirming such agreement, each of the contracting corporations shall have sole jurisdiction over that portion of the road which it has undertaken to maintain and keep in repair, and shall be liable for all damages incurred by reason of neglect to maintain and keep the same in repair, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any road lying wholly within and under the jurisdiction of such township; and the other contracting corporations shall be relieved from all liability in respect to the maintenance and repair of such portion.

(4) Any such agreement heretofore made and entered into shall, after confirmation thereof, and registration of the confirming by-laws as aforesaid, be legal, valid and binding upon each of the said township municipalities, and the said townships shall severally have jurisdiction over and be liable for the maintenance and repair of portions of any road which is the subject of such agreement, according to the terms and tenor thereof. 60 V. c. 45, s. 56.

Transfer to County Councils of former powers of Justices in Sessions.

Certain powers of justices in sessions transferred to county councils.

626. All powers, duties and liabilities which at any time before the 1st day of January, 1850, belonged to the magistrates in Quarter Sessions, with respect to any particular road or bridge in a county, and which are not conferred or imposed upon any other municipal corporation, shall belong to the council of the county, or in case the road or bridge lies in two or more counties, to the councils of such counties; and except as by this Act otherwise provided, and in addition to the provisions thereof, the neglect and disobedience of any regulations or directions made by such council or councils shall subject the offenders to the same penalties and other consequences as the neglect or disobedience of the like regulations of the magistrates would have subjected them to. 55 V. c. 42, s. 541.

Transfer to county councils of former powers of quarter sessions.

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 327 (1858), the words "except as by this Act otherwise provided, and in addition to the provisions thereof" having been inserted in the Revision of 1897. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 190 (1849).

(a) "The section was, it is presumed, inserted ex abundanti cautela and not because there was any case or property upon which it could operate" (a). It is no longer of any practical value.

Roads vested in Her Majesty.

627. No council shall interfere with any public road or bridge vested as a Provincial work in Her Majesty, or in any public Department or Board: and the Lieutenant-Governor shall by Order-in-Council have the same powers as to such road and bridge as are by this Act conferred on municipal councils with respect to other roads and bridges; but the Lieutenant-Governor may, by proclamation, declare any public road or bridge under the control of the Commissioner of Public Works, to be no longer under his control, and in that case, after a day named in the proclamation, the road or bridge shall cease to be under the control of the Commissioner, and no tolls shall be thereafter levied thereon by him, and the road or bridge shall thenceforth be controlled and kept in repair by the council of the municipality whose duty it is to repair the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 542; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (100).

Roads, etc., being provincial works vested in Her Majesty, etc., not to be interfered with.

Proclamation by Lieutenant Governor as to roads, etc., under control of Commissioner of Public Works.

Taken, with some verbal alterations, from 22 V. c. 99, s. 303 (1858). The last words "whose duty it is to repair the same," were added by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (100) (1897). Cf. 13-14 V. c. 15, s. 2 (1850).

(a) "Vested." The word is not here used in the sense of "vested in estate": it apparently means "under the control of." Accordingly, a road originally constructed as a colonization road, but upon which the statute labour had been performed for 10 or 15 years by the municipality in which it was situate was held not to be within this section (b).

(b) "May by proclamation." Such a proclamation was presumed in an action to recover damages for non-repair where the local municipality was shown to have repaired the road for twelve years prior to the occurrence of the accident (c).

(c) "By the council of the municipality." Where under a similar provision in "The Public Works Act, (d) the Minister of Public Works had relinquished a portion of a public road, the control over which had consequently devolved upon the township corporation within whose limits it was situate, it was held that the township could not authorize another township corporation to assume control of and keep in repair such portion of the road, that the latter township could not assume the road and lawfully collect tolls thereon, and that by-laws

It would seem that, even when there is no statutory provision similar to the last clause of the above section, a municipality may become responsible for the repair of a bridge by reason of acts done by their officers, though without the authority of a by-law of the corporation (c).

There was originally no alternative. It was provided that such a road should not be closed, but should "remain open for the use of the person who requires the same." See 20 V. c. 69, s. 7 (1857) and 22 V. c. 99, s. 305 (1858); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 320 (1866), the two latter of which contain the first five lines of the present section practically verbatim. The proviso to subsection 1 was added by 36 V. c. 48, s. 422 (1873), and subs. 2 by 49 V. c. 37, s. 15 (1886).

(a) "No council shall." This section limits the general power conferred by s. 637 (1) to pass by-laws for stopping up any road. In case its requirements are not complied with, the proper remedy is by application to quash the by-law closing the road (a). Such an application may be made at any time after the date on which the by-law is to take effect; it is not necessary to wait until the road is actually—i. e., physically—closed (b).

(b) "Whereby any person will be excluded from ingress and egress to and from his lands . . over such roads."

Before 1873 (c), no council could close a road of this class, the provision being that such a road should "remain open for the use of the person who requires the same." (d) This made it practically impossible to close any road; since, as HAGARTY, C.J. pointed out in Moore v. Township of Esquesing (e), "if a road be stopped, most certainly all persons must be excluded from ingress and egress to and from their lands over such road. There can be no ingress or egress over a stopped up road."

In 1873 the section was amended (c) so that upon giving compensation, and providing other convenient means of ingress and egress, any road might be stopped up; and it has been held that it now applies only to prevent a council from completely taking away (even with compensation) a man's sole or only convenient means of access to his lands.

If some other convenient road or way of access is already in existence, it is not necessary for the council to "provide" a new one (f); but it lies upon the corporation to show that the other road or way satisfies the requirements of the section (g).

The hardship and injustice sought to be avoided by the Judges in Moore v. Township of Esquesing (h) has been obviated by the provision for compensation since inserted in the Act (i).

(c) "Unless the council provides some other convenient road or way of access."

Unless some other road is provided.

Such provision need not be made in the by-law for closing the road; but it must be made before it is actually closed (j).

(d) "In addition to compensation."

The right to compensation under this section arises only when the lands are injuriously affected by the closing of the road (k). As to the circumstances

Width of Roads.

Width of roads.

630. No municipal council, except the council of a city or town, shall lay out any road or street more than 100 nor less than 66 feet in width, except where an existing road or street is widened, or unless with the permission of the council of the county in which the municipality is situate; but any road, when altered, may be of the same width as formerly. 55 V. c. 42, s. 545, part.

Taken from 36 V. c. 48, s. 423, part (1873). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 139 (1849)—which fixed the maximum and minimum width of any new road at 90 ft. and 40 ft.—and 22 V. c. 99, s. 307 (1858) and 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 322 (1866), which provided that no road or lane should be more than 90 ft. or less than 30 ft. in width.

(a) This section imposes a restriction upon the general authority to open roads, conferred by s. 637 (1); and the words "lay out" here used seem to be synonomous with the word "open" in that section.

Permission of county councils necessary.

(b) "With the permission of the council of the county."

In Re Ostrom and Township of Sidney (b), ROSE, J. held that this permission is not a condition precedent to the passing of the by-law of the local municipality for opening and establishing the road, but only of its "laying out," which he considered to mean "either the actual work on the ground or the laying of it out on a plan for registration; . . [which] . . could not well be done in most cases until after the passing of the by-law under which the laying out of the road is authorized."

(2) No highway or street of a less width than 66 feet, shall be laid out by any owner of land, without the consent of the council of the municipality, by a three-fourths vote of the members thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 545, part; 60 V. c. 45, s. 57.

Taken from 36 V. c. 48, s. 423, part (1873), except the words "by a three-fourths vote of the members thereof," which were added by 60 V. c. 45, s. 57 (1897).

(c) Section 110 of "The Land Titles Act," (R.S.O. c. 138) provides that:—

> 110. "No map or plan shall be filed in the office of the Master of Titles at Toronto or in office of any Local Master of Titles upon which a road, street or highway less than 66 feet wide is laid out unless and until the assent of the proper municipal council is registered therewith where such assent is by law necessary."

By-laws prescribing width of streets, etc. on which dwellings may be erected or occupied, etc.

631.—(1) The municipal council of any city having a population of 50,000 or more may pass a general by-law prescribing the minimum width of streets, lanes, alleys or other public places within the municipality wherein dwelling houses may be erected or occupied, and the minimum area of vacant land to be attached to and used with any dwelling house hereafter to be erected, as the courtyard or curtilage thereof, and the mode of erection of buildings occupied or intended to be occupied as dwelling houses within the municipality or within any Notices of By-laws affecting Public Roads.

632.—(1) No municipal council shall pass a by-law for stopping up, altering, widening, diverting, leasing or selling any original allowance for road, or for establishing, opening, stopping up, altering, widening, diverting, leasing or selling any other public highway, road, street or lane;

Conditions precedent to passing by-laws intended to affect public roads.

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 308 (1858)—the word "leasing" in line 2 having been inserted by 60 V. c. 45, s. 29 (1897), and in line 4 by the Revisers of 1897, under the authority of 60 V. c. 3, s. 3 (1897). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 192 (1849) which applied only to "stopping up, altering, widening and diverting" a "public highway, road, street or lane." The word "opening" was inserted in 1850 by 13-14 V. c. 64, Sched. A (31); and by 20 V. c. 69, s. 8 (1857) provision was made for the exercise of these powers in respect of original road allowances.

(a) Until written or printed notices of the intended by-law have been previously posted up for one month in six of the most public places in the immediate neighbourhood of such original allowance for road, street or other highway, road, street or lane.

Notices to be posted up,

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 308 (1358). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 192 (1849); 20 V. c. 69, s. 8 (1857), and see the note as to the sources of the preceding sub-section.

(b) And published weekly for at least four successive weeks in some newspaper published in the municipality; or if there be no such newspaper, then in a newspaper published in some neighbouring municipality; and, where no newspaper is published in the municipality or in a neighbouring municipality, then in the county town, if any such there be.

And published in a newspaper.

The first two clauses are taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 308 (1858). By 36 V. c. 48, s. 424 (1873), publication in the county town was made necessary in every case; but the provision was restricted by 55 V. c. 43, s. 51 (1892) to the cases to which it now applies.

(c) Nor until the council has heard, in person or by counsel or solicitor, any one whose land may be prejudicially affected thereby, and who petitions to be so heard. 55 V. c. 42, s. 546 (1-3); c. 43, s. 51; 60 V. c. 45, s. 20; c. 3, s. 3.

Persons prejudicially affected to be heard.

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 308 (1858). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 192 (1849).

(a) "No council shall." This sub-section restricts the powers conferred by ss. 637 (1), 640(1), 660 (2), 661, 662; and the strict observance of its provisions is essential to the validity of a by-law passed under any one of these sections (a).

In the case of the sale by a township of an original road allowance, s. 660 (2b) further requires that the by-law be confirmed by a by-law of the county council. Thus where it was not shewn when the notices required by clause (a) had been posted up, nor what they contained, and it appeared that the advertisement required by clause (b) had been published for three weeks only, the by-law was held to be invalid (a). So where it appeared that a month could not have elapsed between the notice and the passing of the by-law (b): where the notice was given on March 28th for April 28th (c): on July 29th for August 29th (d): where it did not state the day on which the council intended to consider the by-law (e); and where it was given as for a money by-law (f). But where the notice described a road intended to cross not only the four lots ultimately mentioned in the by-law, but also five others, the variance was held not to be fatal (g). An obvious clerical error in the notice is immaterial (h).

On a motion to quash a by-law affecting a public road, the Court, until the contrary is shewn, will presume that the council have acted regularly (i); but municipal corporations should nevertheless be careful to preserve affidavits proving that the notices required by clauses (a) and (b) have been duly posted and published (j). "Although, when a by-law is assailed and sought to be quashed, the Court will not presume that the proper notices have not been given—yet when it is advanced as a valid by-law, the existence of the facts without which it could not be lawful must be averred and proved." (k) So, in Winter v. Keown (l), where a plaintiff in ejectment relied on a by-law reciting the opening of a new road and the conveyance of the old road allowance to himself, it was held that he must prove that the statutable notices had been given. But upon an application to quash a by-law, the onus of showing that the conditions have not been complied with is upon the person who impugns its validity. Thus the by-law was sustained where the applicant swore only that he had tried to ascertain whether notices had been posted up and could not find that they were (m); and similarly where the only evidence of the invalidity of the by-law was an affidavit that the witness had no recollection of having seen any notices (n).

In some cases in this Province, an applicant who had personally received notice has not been allowed to attack the by-law on the ground that sufficient notice had not been given. Thus the Court refused to interfere, though it was proved that the whole number of notices required by clause (a) had not been put up, where the applicant had been aware that the closing of the road was in contemplation, and had expressed his intention to take no part in the matter one way or the other (o): so where the applicant had seen one or more notices, and had signified an intention to oppose the by-law though he failed to appear at the meeting, proof that all six notices had been duly posted was considered to be unnecessary (p); and where the applicant knew of the contemplated by-law before it was passed, had appealed to the Court of Revision against his assessment under it, and had given notice of a further appeal to the County Judge (q).

But it was held in Manitoba that although the applicant had actually attended the meeting at which the by-law was passed, and had taken part in the proceedings, he was not thereby estopped from setting up the omission of the council to give due notice; since "these provisions are for the protection of the public generally, and not for that of the applicant alone" (a).

Consequently where the only paper published in the municipality appears at greater intervals than a week it cannot be made use of (b). Whether the notice is published weekly or oftener, the full period of four weeks must be allowed to elapsed between the first insertion and the consideration of the by-law (c).

Provided that every such sign-post, mile-post and danger sign shall be so placed as not to be an obstruction to the highway or to endanger the safety of any person travelling thereon; and provided further that no advertisements or notices shall be placed thereon except those only which give the names of places and show danger signs and distances as above mentioned, under a penalty of $5 for every offence, to be recovered before any Justice of the Peace having jurisdiction in the locality. 59 V. c. 51, s 39.

Aiding bridge companies. Sec. 645.
Statute labour on toll roads. Sec. 646.

637. The council of every county, township, city, town and village may pass by-laws:—

General Powers.

Opening, etc., or stopping up roads, etc.

1. For opening, making, preserving, improving, repairing, widening, altering, diverting, leasing, selling, or stopping up roads, streets, squares, alleys, lanes, bridges, or other public communications within the jurisdiction of the council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (1), 60 V. c. 45, s. 20.

Taken from 22 V. c. 99, s. 317 (6) (1858), which conferred the powers here enumerated, together with that of "pulling down," but not those of "leasing" or of "selling," and which applied to "drains, sewers, water-courses" as well as to "roads," etc. The provisions as to drains and roads were separated in 1873, becoming respectively sections 372 (10) and 425 (1) of "The Con. Mun. Act" of that year (36 V. c. 48). The words "leasing, selling" were inserted in 1897 by 60 V. c. 45, s. 20. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 31 (10), 41 (11), 60 (1) (1849).

(a) Certain restrictions upon the general powers conferred by this section are imposed by ss. 629, 630, 632, 633, 640 (11), 641, 661, 662. See the notes to those sections.

Opening, etc., roads, etc.

(b) "Opening, making . . widening, altering . . diverting."

The exercise of these powers is in the discretion of the council; and a mandamus will not lie to compel them to act. This applies even to the opening of original road allowances (a).

In all of these cases a by-law is necessary, and it must be passed with all the formalities required by s. 632; (b) but a road may have become a public highway by dedication, user, etc., and in such cases the absence of a by-law authorizing its opening will not excuse those who have obstructed it, or exonerate the municipality from keeping it in repair (c).

(b) See the notes to section 632; and also Reg. v. Rankin, 16 U.C.R. 304 (1858): Taylor v. Township of Verulam, 21 C.P. 154 (1870).

(c) See s. 598, notes (d), (e), (f); s. 607, note (a).

Sec. 637 (1). Notes (b), (c). By-laws for opening, widening, etc., roads.

It is essential to the validity of a by-law to establish and lay out a highway, that "the course, boundary and width of such highway, should be capable of being ascertained either from the by-law itself or from some document or description referred to by it, which may be treated as incorporated therewith. Failing this, the by-law is necessarily inoperative and void; since, merely as regards the width of the road, it cannot be seen whether it was to be of the maximum or minimum width prescribed by the Act, or of some width intermediate between the two," (a)

The by-law was accordingly held to be invalid,—(1) where it did not state the width of the proposed road (b); (2) where neither the course or the width of the road was stated, but the by-law merely referred to a surveyor's report which was not annexed (c); and (3), a fortiori, where the reference was only to "a survey," and no report or plan was stated to have been made (d).

But the proposed road was determined to have been sufficiently described where the by-law provided merely that it should be in continuation of an existing street "on a course N. 16° W. from the side road of lots 39 and 40 to the side road of lots 41 and 42, up to the survey of Gordon Brown" (e); and where, although the road was insufficiently described, it appeared that its course was clearly marked by fences on each side, and that it had been travelled for a number of years, the Court in its discretion refused to interfere (f).

Where the boundaries of the proposed road were given with precision, so that no one going over the ground could fail to see and know what was being taken, the by-law was sustained, although there was a doubt whether the land to be taken belonged to the municipality or to a private owner (g).

A provision in a by-law for opening a road, which exonerates the corporation from liability to make compensation to owners of land injuriously affected thereby, and casts this duty upon private persons, is void (h); and, where it appeared that without this provision the by-law might not have been passed, it was quashed (i). But a provision that persons in possession of an original road allowance should by a certain date give up possession and open the road for public travel was held to be good (j). Where a by-law to open an original road allowance not only described the course and boundaries of the road to be opened, but went on to declare these to be the true boundaries of the original road allowance, (which was a matter then in litigation), that portion of the by-law was quashed (k).

It appears that land vested in the Province cannot be expropriated by by-law for the purpose of opening a highway (l).

Preserving, improving or repairing roads.

(c) "Preserving, improving, repairing." There has been some conflict of judicial opinion as to whether a by-law is necessary in these cases. The question has usually arisen in an action against the municipal corporation for damage occasioned by reason of lands having been injuriously affected by changing the grade of highways or doing other work thereon with a view to their improvement or repair.

Note (c).

When by-law necessary for "preserving, improving and repairing" roads.

By the Act of 1849 (a) municipal corporations were authorized to pass by-laws for "levelling, pitching, raising [and] lowering" any highway, etc.; and under that Act compensation could be obtained by arbitration only when a road was opened, changed, widened or diverted (b); which was held to mean only when land had been taken. This rule continued in force until the amendment of the Act in 1873 (c).

Where ingress or egress to or from land had been cut off or rendered difficult by an alteration in the grade of a highway, it therefore became important to decide whether the owner of the land was left without remedy, or whether he had an action of trespass against the corporation. It was held that such an action would lie unless what had been done was mere repair, and (if more than mere repair) unless there was a by-law authorizing the work.

Thus in Croft v. Town of Peterborough (d), where the level of a street had been raised, the plaintiff having been non-suited on the ground that the work was one of mere repair, (which under the Statute the defendants were bound to perform), the Court set aside the non-suit and granted a new trial to ascertain whether this was the fact; and, the jury having found for the plaintiff, it was held that a by-law should have been passed to authorize the work.

Per MACAULAY, C. J., (p. 46):—

> "Whatever is cast upon the defendants as executive duties under the statutes in relation to the maintenance and repair of the roads, or whatever is fairly included in those terms, they may do without a by-law: when not so, and it is only within their discretion, in the exercise of their legislative powers, it would be otherwise."

The same principles governed the decisions in Reid v. City of Hamilton, 5 C.P. 269 (1856); Buchanan v. Town of Galt, 12 U.C.R. 73 (1862); Perdue v. Township of Chingucousy, 25 U. C. R. 61 (1865). In the last case, HAGARTY, C. J. says (p. 64):—"For the performance of a statutable duty like the repairs of highways,—a work required to be done, as it were, from day to day, we think no by-law to be necessary."

In Lewis v. City of Toronto (e), it was held that the acts there complained of could not have been done even under a by-law, but the cases of Croft v. Town of Peterborough and Reid v. City of Hamilton were quoted with approval.

In 1873 the words "or injuriously affected by the exercise of its powers" were introduced into the section giving compensation (f), and it has thenceforward become of less importance to distinguish between acts which may and acts which may not be done without a by-law; since the damages may be assessed by arbitration in every case.

Re Yeomans and County of Wellington (g) was an appeal from a consent award for damages for injuriously affecting the lands of the plaintiff by the raising of the grade of a road, the work having been done without a by-law. The case was very fully considered in the Court of Queen's Bench and also in the Court of Appeal, and it was held that the proceeding (by arbitration) was proper, and that the award must be sustained (h). The report of Adams v. City of Toronto (i), in which on demurrer to a statement of defence it was decided that no action lay for raising a sidewalk and thereby injuriously affecting the plaintiff's land—is silent as to whether there was a by-law authorizing the work.

(h) The contention that because of the absence of a by-law Yeomans had a right to bring an action of trespass was not expressly raised in either Court, although GWYNNE, J. expressed the opinion that no such action would have lain, and MOSS, C. J., spoke of the grading as having been done "under the general jurisdiction of the council as to roads."

Sec. 637 (1).

Note (c).

When a by-law is necessary for "preserving, improving, or repairing" roads.

The question whether the absence of a by-law gave the plaintiff a right of action came up directly for decision for the first time since 1856 in two cases determined in 1887, viz: Pratt v. City of Stratford (a), and Ayers v. Town of Windsor (b). In the latter of these, ROSE, J., held a by-law necessary on the ground that the decision in Town of Parkdale v. West (c) applies to municipal corporations, and that the express power given by the Act is not "to raise or lower" the level of streets, but "to pass by-laws" authorizing this to be done.

In Pratt v. Town of Stratford—which was an action for injury to real property by raising the grade of a highway in order to form the approach to a bridge reconstructed by the defendants at a different level from the one which it replaced—BOYD, C. held that the rebuilding of the bridge was merely the making of repairs in the exercise of a statutory duty, the non-fulfilment of which would have subjected the corporation to indictment: that the raising of the approaches was the unavoidable consequence of properly performing this duty; and that consequently no action lay, the remedy by arbitration being alone open to the plaintiff. This decision was affirmed by the Court of Appeal (d).

Per HAGARTY, C. J. O. (p. 127):—

> "I cannot see any sensible distinction in principle between a four foot and a four inch change of level. The most ordinary repair of a highway may involve constant changes of elevation, consequent upon the filling up of holes or marshy spots or the laying down of new material for the road; and it is quite possible that such alterations may injuriously affect the approach to buildings or lands."

OSLER and MACLENNAN, JJ. A. concurred in holding that the corporation could not be made liable in an action for damages occasioned by the raising or lowering of a highway, even when the work was done without a by-law. The latter—though basing his judgment in part upon the fact that the Act incorporating the defendants as a city (e) had declared the bridge to be necessary, and that its erection therefore became a corporate duty—continued, (p. 211):—

> "In Croft v. Town of Peterborough (f), justice required that the corporation should be held to a very strict observance of the authority which enabled them to do injury without compensation. But in the present case, the same reason requires as full effect and meaning as possible to be given to the words of the Legislature. The policy of the Legislature has always been to have such claims settled by arbitration and not by action, so that the advantage which the claimant has derived from the work may be a set-off against his injury; and a construction of the section [s. 437] should (if the language will admit of it) be adopted, which will effect to the intention and policy of the Legislature in all proper cases. The application of the section ought not to be left to depend on whether the act was done with all due formalities or not. The substance and not the form of the matter should be regarded and should govern."

BURTON, J. A. differed from the majority of the Court, and considered that in the absence of a by-law authorizing the work, the plaintiff's action could be maintained. He says (p. 32):—

> "I should have thought it too clear for argument—but for the doubts which have been thrown upon it—that what was intended was to delegate to the municipal council the right to legislate upon these subjects. That is the true, clear and grammatical construction of the words used—intended, as I think, to obviate the necessity of applying to the Legislature for powers, as is the case in England, and at the same time not to give these powers generally, but only after the subject had been discussed by the governing body, and a by-law passed with the prescribed formalities. If that be the correct view, it is clear that the by-law becomes all-important—inasmuch as the power to do the work is derived from it—and it cannot be referred to 'as a mere matter of form.'"

In view of these conflicting opinions it cannot be regarded as settled law that the raising or lowering of a highway to any height or depth is in all cases

Notes (c)-(f).

When a by-law is necessary to authorize the preserving, improving, or repairing of highways.

"a mere act of repair," which the corporation is bound to perform at the peril of indictment. It may be difficult, if not impossible, to suggest any general criterion as to the cases in which a by-law may, and those in which it may not, be safely dispensed with; but to hold that a corporation may, without any by-law, carry out extensive permanent improvements—possibly affecting large sections of a municipality—would be a dangerous extension of the powers conferred by this Act; and—though it is doubtless the policy of the Legislature to provide for the settlement by arbitration of disputes arising from the exercise (even informally) of their corporate powers—it is submitted that this consideration should not be allowed to outweigh the plain requirement of s. 325—viz., that these powers "shall, unless otherwise provided, be exercised by by-law."

In none of the later cases (above referred to) has the authority of Croft v. Town of Peterborough, and Reid v. City of Hamilton been directly questioned; and the rule laid down by Chief Justice MACAULAY—that, although a by-law is unnecessary when the duty to be discharged is the statutable and executive duty imposed by s. 606, it is otherwise when the corporation is exercising discretionary and legislative powers—seems on the whole to be a safe and wise one, especially when the change of grade may involve encroachments upon adjacent land owned by private persons (a).

Leasing or selling roads.

(d) "Leasing, selling." As to the formalities to be observed before passing a by-law for selling or leasing a road, see s. 632; as to the sale of original road allowances, ss. 640 (11a), 641, 660 (2b); and as to the sale of toll roads, s. 658 (9). The provisions of ss. 658 (1), 661, 662, of the remainder of ss. 640 (11) and 660 (2) appear to be superseded by this section.

Stopping up roads.

(e) "Stopping up." In these cases, also, a by-law is necessary, and the formalities required by s. 632 must be observed (b).

A by-law for closing an existing road need not describe its course, etc., so minutely as one by which a new road is established (c); but a by-law not showing on its face which of two roads was intended to be closed was held to be void for uncertainty (d).

A highway is legally "stopped up" when a by-law for that purpose is passed, though there may be no physical obstruction to the use of the road (e).

In Hewison v. Township of Pembroke (f), ROSE, J. doubted whether a township council had any power to close or divert a main highway—such, (e.g.), as the Kingston Road—which runs through several municipalities.

Entering upon land.

2. For entering upon, breaking up, taking or using any land in any way necessary or convenient for the said purposes, subject to the restrictions in this Act contained;

Taken verbatim from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 317 (6).

(f) "For entering upon, . . . taking or using any land." For the exercise of these powers a by-law is necessary. If there is no by-law, the corporation is liable to an action, even where the trespass has taken place in the course of gravelling a road and no unnecessary damage has been done (g). Where there is not even an order or resolution authorizing the work, it is apprehended that the trespassers would be personally liable (h).

(a) See City of New Westminster v. Brighouse, 20 S. C. R. 520 (1892), per STRONG, J. at p. 526, and per GWYNNE, J. at p. 533: but contra, per PATTERSON, J. A. at p. 540:—"I have no doubt of the power of the corporation to improve the street by altering its level, or in any other way, without passing a by-law for the purpose."

(b) See, however, the suggestion of Sir JOHN ROBINSON, C.J., in Re Choate and Township of Hope, 19 U.C.R. 424 (1858), at p. 429, that it would be unnecessary to quash a by-law for selling a road of which due notice had not been given; since the alienees could not make out a title under it.

See also ss. 534 (2), 576 (1), 603, and Jones v. Town of Port Arthur, 16 O.R. 474 (1888), cited ante, at p. 583. Where a municipal corporation, authorized to make certain street works, had power to take compulsorily "for the purpose of the street works, the lands shewn on the plans deposited in connection therewith, and which they may require for the purposes thereof," it was held that they had no power to take compulsorily lands not required for the purpose of the street works, but merely for the purpose of re-sale at a profit so as to reduce the cost of the street works (a).

Notes (g)-(k). What lands may be taken.

(h) "Subject to the restrictions in this Act contained." See ss. 325, 637.

3. For setting apart and laying out such portions of any or such roads, streets, squares, alleys, lanes, bridges, other communications, as the council may deem necessary or expedient for the purpose of carriage ways boulevards and sidewalks, or for the improvement or beautifying of the same.

Setting apart carriageways, boulevards and sidewalks.

Taken from 51 V. c. 28, s. 32 (1888). See s. 638.

(i) As to the powers of the council in regard to any portion of a highway which has been laid out as a sidewalk, boulevard, etc., see ss. 559 (9), 560, 638.

4. For preventing and removing any obstructions upon any roads within its jurisdiction.

Obstructions on highways.

Taken from 34 V. c. 30, s. 4 (1871), which contained the words "or bridges" after "roads." These were omitted by 58 V. c. 42, s. 30 (1895).

(j) See ss. 557, 583 (1) and the notes thereto.

5. For permitting subways for cattle under and bridges for cattle over any highway. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (1); 58 V. c. 42, s. 30; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (118); 60 V. c. 45, s. 20.

Subways or bridges for cattle.

Taken from R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 509 (1), which applied only to subways. By 58 V. c. 42, s. 30 (1895), the words "or bridges" were inserted after "subways," but (as amended) the section conferred the power to permit only "subways or bridges for cattle under any highway." The obviously necessary correction was made in 1897 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (118).

(k) As the construction of these bridges or subways may increase the probability of accidents for which the municipality would be liable under s. 606, it is suggested that a proper indemnity should be taken whenever permission is given therefor.

Boulevards (b).

638. The council of every city, town and village may pass by-laws:

1. For setting apart, upon such terms as to resumption by the municipality and otherwise as the by-law may state, portions of the public streets at or near the sides thereof for the purposes of boulevards;

Setting apart.

2. For regulating the construction and maintenance of such boulevards;

Regulating.

3. For permitting the owners of property abutting on any street to construct such boulevards at their own expense, but so as not to unreasonably confine, impede or incommode public traffic;

Permitting construction of.

4. For regulating and confirming boulevards already constructed on any street;

Confirming.

Protection of boulevards.

5. For making regulations for the protection of all boulevards constructed in the public streets. 57 V. c. 50, s. 9.

Areas and Openings in or under Streets and Sidewalks.

Construction of areas in or under sidewalks.

639.—(1) Municipal corporations may permit areas or openings to be constructed in or under the sidewalks and streets of their respective municipalities, and may authorize the continuance of any such areas, constructed prior to July 1st, 1897, and may make an annual charge for such privilege and for the use of the areas or openings theretofore constructed of such sums as the council may think reasonable, and may enforce the payment of said sums in like manner as municipal taxes.

Existing agreements cancelled.

(2) All bonds and agreements entered into before and existing upon said date between any owner or owners of property in any municipality and the municipal corporation thereof for indemnity in respect of such areas are hereby cancelled and made void as to such indemnity except as to any rights or causes of action which have accrued thereunder to the corporation owing to any accident or injury arising from negligence in connection with such areas or from the improper use thereof prior to the said date.

No vested rights created

(3) Neither this section nor any permission or privilege in respect of such areas or openings granted by any municipal corporation under this section shall interfere with any liability created or existing under the provisions of this Act, nor with the remedies over provided by section 609 of this Act, nor shall this section or such permission or privilege create any vested right in any such area or opening. 60 V. c. 45, s. 21.

Passed in 1897. See the reference.

Rights of frontagers to make areas or openings in or under sidewalks or streets.

(a) It has been held in the State of New York, that owners of property abutting upon streets—although they have no property in the highway itself, or in the soil thereunder—are entitled as of right to make vaults under the streets, subject to municipal or police regulations as to the location, mode of construction and use of such vaults, and also to the prior and paramount right of the public to the use of the street as a highway (a).

Before this section came into effect (b) it had been the practice of the corporation of the City of Toronto to grant permission for the making of an area or opening in or under a sidewalk only after receiving from the owner a bond of indemnity against all claims for damages thereby occasioned. For this, the Act now substitutes an annual charge, collectable in the same manner as ordinary taxes.

(a) July 1st, 1897. (b) Dillon, s. 656 (b).

Bicycle Paths.

Sec. 640 (1)-(4). Notes (a)-(c).

640. The council of every county, township, city, town and village may pass by-laws:

Bicycle paths.

1. For setting apart so much of any highway or road or street as the council of any such municipality having control over the same deems necessary for the purpose of a bicycle path; and any person who rides or drives a horse or other beast of burden, or a wagon, carriage or cart over or along such bicycle path shall incur the penalties imposed by The Act to regulate Travelling on Public Highways and Bridges. 60 V. c. 45, s 19; c. 57, s. 1.

Rev. Stat. c. 236.

Passed in 1897. See the references.

(a) The penalty referred to is a fine of not less than $1 or more than $20, in the discretion of the convicting Justice, payment of which may be enforced by distress or, in default of sufficient distress, by imprisonment for not less than one or more than twenty days (a).

Roads Crossing Railways and Railway Lands.

Roads across railway lands.

2. For establishing, opening, making, preserving, improving, maintaining, widening, enlarging, altering, diverting or stopping up within the limits of the municipality, any highway through, over, across, under, along, or upon the railway and lands of any railway company, and for entering upon, breaking up, taking or using any such land in any way necessary or convenient for the said purpose; but subject to the provisions contained in The Railway Streets and Drains Act, and provided that the highway is within the jurisdiction of the council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (2).

Rev. Stat. c. 241.

Taken from s. 4 of "The Railway Streets and Drains Act, 1882," (45 V. c. 21), which is now consolidated as R. S. O. c. 241, s. 4.

Straightening, etc., Streams.

3. Subject to the provisions of this Act respecting compensation for lands taken or injuriously effected:—

Straightening etc., streams dangerous to bridges, etc.

For straightening, deepening, widening or diverting any river, creek or stream, for the purpose of preventing the flooding, undermining or carrying away of any land, or for preventing injury to any highway, bridge or other structure by the flow of the waters of any such river, creek or stream; but nothing herein shall authorize the interference with any mill site or water privilege on any such river, creek or stream. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (2*a*); 60 V. c 15, Sched. C. (103).

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 30 (1889),—the words "injuriously affected" (in line 2), having been substituted in 1897 for the word "injured," by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (103).

(c) See ante, ss. 563, 563a, and the notes thereto.

Tolls.

Raising money by toll.

4. For raising money by toll on any bridge, road or other work to defray the expense of making or repairing the same. 55 V. c. 42. s. 550 (3)

Taken verbatim from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 317 (7).

(a) R. S. O. c. 236, ss. 11, 13.

Secs. 646, 4-7.

Notes (d)-(h).

Tolls on roads.

(d) "For raising money by toll on any bridge, road or other work."

Section 151 of "The General Road Companies Act," (h) provides that certain sections of that Act shall apply to all toll roads which "may have been constructed by or belong to the municipality of any county, and to all toll roads which may have been purchased from the Government of the late Province of Canada and are owned or held by any private companies or by municipal councils." (a)

(e) "To defray the expense of making or repairing the same."

See Campbell v. City of Kingston, 14 C. P. 285 (1864), referred to in note (d) to s. 562.

Power to lease tolls.

5. For granting to any person in consideration or part consideration of planking, gravelling or macadamizing a road, or of building a bridge, the tolls fixed by by-law to be levied on the work for a period of not more than twenty-one years after the work has been completed, and after such completion has been declared by a by-law of the council authorizing tolls to be collected; and the grantee of the tolls shall, during the period of his right thereto, maintain the road or bridge in repair. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (4).

Taken verbatim from 22 V. c. 99, s. 317 (14) (1858). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 191 (1849); 14-15 V. c. 109, Sched. A. (26).

(g) "The tolls fixed by by-law."

It appears that a by-law of the municipality must be passed authorizing the tolls (c), but that the limitation as to the amount of the tolls which may be imposed under sub-s. 4 does not apply to those which may be fixed under this subsection (d).

Dangerous Places.

Regulations as to dangerous places.

6. For making regulations as to pits, precipices and deep waters, and other places dangerous to travellers. 55 V. c 42, s. 550 (5).

Taken (except for the substitution of "and" for "or" before "other places") from the Act of 1849 (12 V. c. 81), ss. 31 (15), 41 (15).

(h) Cf. also the power given by s. 543 and see note (b) to that section. It is apprehended that the regulations contemplated are such as will secure the safety of travellers by preventing the meeting of teams, and by regulating the speed of travel at places where, from some cause beyond the control of the municipal authority, there is danger to travellers on a highway (e).

Timber, Stone, etc., on Road Allowances.

For preservation of trees, stone, etc.

Rev. Stat. c. 32.

7. For preserving and selling timber, trees, stone, sand or gravel on any allowance or appropriation for a public road; but this shall be subject to the provisions of The Act respecting Timber on Public Lands relative to Government road allowances and the granting of Crown timber licenses. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (6).

The first clause is taken verbatim from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 317 (6). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, ss. 31 (12), 41 (12) (1849). The proviso first appears in the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 425 (4), where the reference was to 34 V. c. 19 (1871), which was passed in consequence of the decision (Town of Barrie v. Gillies, 29 C. P. 369; 21 C. P. 213 (1871)) that Government licenses to cut timber did not apply to road allowances. See now R.S.O. c. 32, ss. 7-13, infra.

Notes (i), (j).

Preserving timber on road allowances.

(i) "For preserving timber," etc. Even without a by-law, the municipality may recover from a wrong-doer the value of the timber trees cut on any road allowance which is not covered by a Government timber license (a). So, an action may be maintained where stone, sand or gravel is wrongfully taken from a road allowance (b).

But where a Government road allowance is included in a Crown timber license, the right to the timber or trees cut thereon is vested in the licensee; and no by-law under this section is to have any force or effect against such license (c). In the case, however, of a township which has passed a by-law for preserving or selling timber or trees on such a Government road allowance, and where a certified copy of the by-law, verified by an affidavit of the clerk or reeve of the township, has been filed in the Department of Crown Lands at Toronto within six months of the passing of the by-law, it is provided that the township shall be entitled to be paid by the Province 2 per cent. of the dues received by the Crown in respect of any timber or saw-logs which, during the existence of the by-law, were cut within the township under the authority of the license; and that any moneys so received shall be expended in improving the highways of the township (d).

Granting Privileges to Road or Bridge Companies.

Granting privileges to road or bridge companies.

8. For regulating the manner of granting to road or bridge companies permission to commence or proceed with roads or bridges within the jurisdiction of the council, and for regulating the manner of ascertaining and declaring the completion of the work, so as to entitle such companies to levy tolls thereon and for regulating the manner of making the examinations necessary for the proper exercise of these powers by the council. 55 V. c. 42, ss 550 (7). See also Cap. 193.

The first two clauses, down to "thereon" (line 6), are taken—with some merely verbal amendments and a restriction to "joint stock road or bridge companies," i. e. companies incorporated under "The Joint Stock Road Companies Act," 12 V. c. 84—from the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), ss. 31 (17), 41 (18). See 13-14 V. c. 64, Sched. A (5). The last clause was added by 22 V. c. 99, sec. 317 (12) (1858), which also removed the limitation of the applications of the section to "joint stock road and bridge companies."

(j) "Permission to commence or proceed." "The General Road Companies Act," (e) provides that:—

When municipal by-law necessary.

"7. No road shall be constructed or pass within the limits of any city, or of any incorporated town or village, except by permission under a by-law of the city, town or village passed for that purpose.

Thirty days notice to be served on the head of the municipality, prior to any company commencing any work.

11. No company formed under this Act shall commence any work until thirty days after the directors have served a written notice upon the head of the municipality in the jurisdiction of which the road or other work connected therewith is intended to pass or to be constructed; and if the municipal council of such locality passes a by-law prohibiting, varying or altering such intended line of road, or the plan of such other work, such by-law shall have the same force and effect, and be as obligatory upon all persons, and upon such company, if the company proceeds in the construction of the road or other works, as if the provisions thereof had been inserted in the body of this Act.

If no by-law passed within thirty days company may proceed.

12. If no by-law is passed within thirty days after service of the notice upon the head of the municipality, then the company may proceed with the intended road or other work without being liable to any interruption or opposition from any source whatever."

Sec. 640. (8-10).

Notes (k), (l). Joint Stock Co's. roads. R.S.O. c. 193, ss. 7, 11, 12.

It is to be observed that permission to construct the road is required only from the councils of any cities, towns and villages through which it is to pass; but that the road may be carried through a township unless a by-law prohibiting the work is passed within thirty days after notice to the head of the municipality. A company proceeding without such permission, or contrary to the terms of a by-law, would doubtless be restrained by injunction (a).

(k) "For . . . ascertaining and declaring the completion of the work so as to entitle such companies to levy tolls, etc."

There is now, nor has there ever been, a provision in any of the Road Companies' Acts (b), making the passage of a municipal by-law or a declaration by a municipal council or officer, a condition precedent to the right of a road or bridge company to collect tolls. Such a by-law is however necessary in the case referred to in subs. 5, supra.

Power to purchase and hold land, stone or gravel beds, etc.

Power to sell same.

9 For purchasing and holding by itself or jointly with any other municipality such land containing stone or gravel beds within its own or any adjoining municipality as may be necessary to procure stone or gravel therefrom for the purpose of constructing, maintaining or repairing any streets, roads or highways owned by such municipality, and for selling and conveying the same whenever the object for which the same was purchased no longer exists. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (7*a*).

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 25 (1891).

Procuring Materials for Repairing Roads.

Power to take materials for roads.

10. For searching for and taking such timber, gravel, stone, or other material or materials (within the municipality) as may be necessary for keeping in repair any road or highway within the municipality; and for the purpose aforesaid, with the consent of the council of an adjoining municipality (by resolution expressed), for searching for and taking gravel within the limits of such adjoining municipality.

Arbitration.

(a) The right of entry upon such lands, as well as the price or damage to be paid to any person for such timber or materials, shall if not agreed upon by the parties concerned be settled by arbitration under the provisions of this Act:

To be a condition precedent.

(b) No such gravel shall be taken or removed from the premises of any person in an adjoining municipality until the price or damage has been agreed upon between the parties, or settled by arbitration. 55 V. c. 42, s 550. (8).

This power was first given by 16 V. c. 4 (1852), which extended to municipalities the powers already possessed by road companies under 12 V. c. 84 (1849). The first clause of the subsection is taken from 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 333 (10) (1866),—where, however, the words, "within the municipality" were omitted, the words "making [illegible] before "keeping in repair," and the words "belonging to" replaced "within" [illegible] the municipality." In 1885 the clause was enacted in its present form by 48 V. c. [illegible], s. 23 by which also the second clause of the section was added. Clause (a) is taken from 29-30 [illegible] c. 51, s. 333 (10) (1866), the words "timber or" before "materials" having been omitted [illegible] the re-enactments of the section by 48 V. c. 39 s. 23. Clause (b) also was added by the latter Act.

(l) "For searching for and taking."

The same by-law cannot authorize both the searching and the taking. The search must have been made, and the gravel, etc., found before the by-law providing for its taking be passed.

(a) See Attorney-General v. Bytown and Nepean Road Co., 2 Grant 626 (1851).

(b) 12 V. c. 84; 13-14, V. c 72; 16 V. c. 190; C.S.U.C. c. 49, etc.

A by-law which empowered the pathmasters and other employees of the corporation to enter upon any land and search for and take "such timber, gravel, etc., as might be necessary" was accordingly held bad (a).

Sec. 640, (10-11).

Notes (l)-(n).

Procuring material for road repairs.

Per STREET, J. (p. 297):—

> "What the Legislature did intend, I think, was that the council should, as necessary arose for them to do so, exercise the right to take gravel from any parcel or parcels of land, having first declared the necessity to exist, and chosen and described by a by-law the land from which the gravel was to be taken. The by-law is therefore upon its face illegal; because it purports to confer upon the officers (of the corporation) powers much wider and more extensive than the Statute authorizes."

It has been held that the quantity of material to be taken must also be fixed by the by-law or by the notice to the owners; and where the by-law did not state the quantity of gravel to be taken, and the arbitrators awarded "32 cents a load," but did not specify the number of loads, the award was held bad (b).

(m) "With the consent of the council of an adjoining municipality."

Consent of local authority necessary to authorize entry on its territory.

An agreement under s. 625 between two municipalities jointly responsible for the maintenance and repair of a boundary road, whereby the duty is cast wholly upon one of them, authorizes officers of the latter to enter upon that part of the the road allowance situate wholly within the other municipality, and to take therefrom any gravel, etc., which might be necessary for the repair of the road (c).

(n) Clause (a).

The first words of this clause would seem to make an agreement or an arbitration a condition precedent to the entry upon lands by the authority of a by-law passed under this section, as it is also under clause (b). But for this provision the case would have been otherwise (d).

Selling Road Allowances.

When the council may stop up or sell a road allowance.

11. For selling the original road allowance to the persons next adjoining whose lands the same is situated, when a public road, for the site or [illegible] of which compensation has been paid, has been opened in lieu of the original road allowance, and for selling, in like manner, to the owners of any adjoining land, any road legally stopped up or altered by the council; and in case such persons respectively refuse to become the purchasers at such price as the council thinks reasonable, then for the sale thereof to any other person for the same or greater price.

(a) In the case of road allowances reserved under original surveys along or leading to the bank of any river or stream or the shore of any lake or other water, such by-law shall be of no effect unless and until the same has received the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 550 (9); 59 V. c. 51, s. 25; 62 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 26, s. 40.

Under the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81), ss. 187, 188, the power of municipalities to sell roads extended only to such as were not original road allowances; but their power to sell was extended to such allowances in 1857 by 20 V. c. 69, s. 4. The section in its present form is taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 317 (11), the words "or leading to"—in the second line of clause (a)—having been inserted by 62 V. (2), c. 26, s. 40 (1899).

Notes (o)-(q).

Selling original road allowances.

(o) "For selling the original road allowance."

Since power to sell public highways—which by s. 598 includes every original road allowance—is now conferred by s. 637 (1), this sub-section seems no longer to be necessary. It authorized a sale only when a new road had been opened in lieu of the original allowance (a). The powers conferred were exercisable only by by-law, in the passing of which the formalties prescribed by s. 632 were to be most strictly observed. Such compliance must still be proved by any one who seeks to justify the occupation of an original road allowance by setting up a title acquired by the purchase of such an allowance from a municipality (b).

"Owner," Meaning of.

(p) "The owners."

A mortgagee of property is "an owner" within the meaning of this sub-section, and is entitled to the right of pre-emption, subject to the right of the mortgagor to redeem.

> "The . . idea . . is that the persons to whom the adjoining land belongs should have the first right to acquire and add to that land the accretion formed by closing the highway . . The interest of [the mortgagee] in the land is not infrequently the only valuable interest belonging to any one. Even where the equity of redemption of the mortgagor is a valuable one, he might seriously impair the security of the mortgagee if he were allowed to become the owner as against him of a highway upon which the property originally had a front, and to close this front against him "(c).

Selling stopped-up roads.

(q) "For selling . . any road legally stopped up or altered."

It is apprehended that since the insertion in 1897 by 60 V. c. 45, s. 20, of the words "leasing, selling" in s. 637 (1) this provision is superseded by the general power thereby given to sell roads, streets, squares, alleys, etc.

When landowner opening road to be entitled to original road.

641.—(1.) In case any one in possession of a concession road or side line has laid out and opened a road or street in place thereof without receiving compensation therefor, or in case, in lieu of an original allowance for road, a new or travelled public road has been laid out and opened for which no compensation has been paid to the owner of the lands so appropriated, such owner, if his lands adjoin the concession road, side line, or original allowance, shall be entitled thereto in lieu of the road so laid out; and the council of the municipality, upon the report in writing of its surveyor, or of an Ontario land surveyor, that such new or travelled road is sufficient for the purposes of a public highway, may convey the said original allowance for road, in fee simple, to the person or persons upon whose land the new road runs.

Compensation to party whose land is taken who does not own land adjoining original road.

(2) Where such original road allowance is, in the opinion of the council, useless to the public, and lies between lands owned by different persons, the municipal council may, subject to the conditions aforesaid, sell and convey a part thereof to each of such persons, as may seem just and reasonable; and in case compensation was not paid for the new road, and the person through whose land the same passes does not own the land adjoining the original road allowance, the amount received from the purchaser of the corresponding part of the road allowance when sold shall be paid to the person who at the time of the sale owns the land through which the new road passes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 551.

Where original road allowance may be conveyed to owner of adjoining land who has given a new road in lieu thereof.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 318. Cf. 20 V. c. 69, ss. 5, 6, (1857).

(a) The powers conferred by this section must be exercised by by-law (a).

As the provisions of the section are somewhat intricate, the following attempt to state them in a less complex form may aid in their interpretation.

1. Any one in possession of an original road allowance, who has himself, without compensation, laid out and opened a new road in place of the allowance, is entitled to a conveyance thereof from the municipality if a surveyor reports to the council in writing that the new road is sufficient for the purposes of a public highway.

2. An owner of lands adjoining an original road allowance through whose lands the municipality without paying compensation has opened a new road in lieu of the allowance, is entitled to a conveyance thereof (although he may not have been in possession) if a surveyor reports as aforesaid.

3. Where the owner of lands through which a new road has been opened in lieu of an original road allowance has received no compensation for the lands taken for the new road, and has no lands adjoining the allowance, the corporation may sell part thereof to each of the adjoining owners, if a surveyor reports as aforesaid and the council decides that the original allowance is useless; and in case the original allowance is so sold, the owner at the time of the sale of the land through which the new road has been opened is entitled to the purchase money (b).

If he who gave the new road owns no land adjoining the old one.

(b) The conditions imposed by this section upon the exercise of the powers which it confers must be strictly observed; and the onus of proving that they have been so complied with lies on the party setting up the by-law (c). The surveyor's report must fulfil the requirements of the Statute. Where the surveyor reported that "the said road answers the purpose of a public highway," McLEAN, J. said (d), "It certainly is not in substance what the Act requires." It is also necessary that the council should have decided that the original allowance is useless (e). Where the council had passed—but had subsequently repealed—a by-law opening the road allowance, this was held to be evidence that it was not in their opinion useless (f).

Section strictly construed.

(c) "Owner."

This term probably includes a mortgagee (g).

"Owner," meaning of.

(d) "May convey."

A conveyance is necessary; and without it the owner has no claim to the land which formed the original allowance (h). But when he has become entitled to it, it cannot be refused by the corporation (i). It appears, however, that this right is personal to him who, at the time the new road was opened, was the owner of the lands through which it runs, and that it does not pass under a conveyance of those lands to a transferee (j). It will be observed, however, that this is not so of the right (under subs. 2) to the purchase money realized from the sale of a road allowance thereunder, which, it is expressly provided, is to be paid to the person who "at the time of the sale" owns the land through which the new road passes.

Right does not (usually) pass by conveyance of land.

Sec. 642, 643, 644.

Notes (a), (b); (a).

Possession of Unopened Road Allowances.

Original allowances for road when to be deemed legally possessed till a by-law is passed for opening them.

642. In case a person is in possession of any part of a government allowance for road, laid out adjoining his lot and enclosed by a lawful fence, and which has not been opened for public use by reason of another road being used in lieu thereof, or is in possession of any government allowance for road parallel or near to which a road has been established by law in lieu thereof, such person shall, as against any private person, be deemed legally possessed thereof until a by-law for opening such allowance for road has been passed by the council having jurisdiction over the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 552.

Taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 319.

(a) "Adjoining his lot."

It is perhaps unnecessary to say that this means "actually touching," not simply "adjacent,"—i.e., lying near to (a).

(b). "Until a by-law . . . has been passed."

It appears that long possession may under certain circumstances give a title to an original road allowance even as against the municipality.

In Re Burritt and Township of Marlborough (b), a by-law opening an original road allowance was quashed, there being evidence which would warrant a jury in finding that a road, which had been travelled for sixty years, had been given without compensation by the owners of the lots across which it ran, in lieu of the original allowance, which had been in their possession for a corresponding length of time; and in Re Beemer and Village of Grimsby (c), the possession of the lot-owners having continued for eighty years, it was held that in the absence of evidence of their having received compensation, they must be presumed to hold the allowance in lieu of the travelled road. A by-law for opening it as of right was therefore quashed.

Notice of By-laws for Opening such Allowances.

Notice of by-law to be given.

643. No such by-law shall be passed until notice in writing has been given to the person in possession, at least eight days before the meeting of the council, that an application will be made for opening such allowance. 55 V. c. 42, s. 553.

By-laws to aid adjoining municipality to open roads, etc.

644. The council of any municipality may pass by-laws for granting aid to any adjoining municipality in making, opening, maintaining, widening, raising, lowering, or otherwise improving any highway, road, street, bridge, or communication passing from or through an adjoining municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 554.

Taken from 32 V. c. 43, s. 20 (1869).

(a) "Adjoining." As to the meaning of this word, see note (a) s. 642. In Re Bateman (Baroness) and Parker's Contract (d) a plot of ground separated from a church yard by a highway about twenty feet wide was held to be "ground adjoining to an existing churchyard," within the meaning of Imp. Stat. 30-31 V. c. 133, ss. 1, 5.

Aiding bridge companies.

Statute Labour on Toll Roads.

Power to agree with owners of toll road as to the expenditure of statute labour thereon.

The council of every county, township, city, town or village through or adjoining which any toll road passes may enter into an agreement with the owner or owners of such toll road to expend on such road, for a limited number of years, such statute labour or such sum of money as may be agreed upon, and that at the end of the term of years agreed upon such toll road shall be made free and shall become the property of the municipality or municipalities in which the same it situate. 56 V. c. 35, s. 26.

New Roads.

Aiding counties in making roads and bridges.

Improvements on Streets between two Municipalities.

Improvements on streets between two municipalities.

3. Wherever a public street, square or drive forms the boundary between any two or more municipalities (although such street, square or drive is wholly within the limits of one of such municipalities or partly in each), the councils of such municipalities may make and enter into any agreements and pass any by-laws proper and necessary to provide for the construction and maintenance of any one or more of the street improvements or works, and the performance of any one or more of the street services for which provision is made in this Act in sections 664 to 686, both inclusive, and every such council may pass by-laws for ascertaining, determining and raising so much of the cost of any such work, improvement or service as is to be borne by the municipality generally, and for determining the proportion thereof to be assessed and levied upon the real property benefited thereby, and for assessing and levying upon the real property so benefited and situate within its jurisdiction, and for collecting the proportion or share of the cost of any such improvement, work or service done under any such agreement by the municipality, in the same manner and with the like remedies as if the improvement had been made, or the work had been done, or the service had been rendered upon or in a street within the municipality, and as if the cost thereof was assessable upon real property, the whole of which was situate in the same municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 555 (3).

Added in 1889 by 52 V. c. 36, s. 31; which was passed at the instance of the Corporation of the City of Toronto in order to authorize the making of arrangements with the adjoining Village of Parkdale for the improvement of streets lying between the two municipalities.

Repair of Township Roads—How Enforced.

Township councils failing to maintain township boundary lines.

648. Where township councils fail by mutual agreement as to the share to be borne by each, to maintain township boundary lines not assumed by the county council, in the same way as other township roads, it shall be competent for one or more of such councils to apply to the county council to enforce joint action on all township councils interested. 55 V. c. 42, s. 556.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 341 (2).

Resident ratepayers may petition county council to enforce opening up of road.

649. In cases where all the township councils interested neglect or refuse to open up and repair such lines of road in a manner similar to the other local roads, it shall be competent for a majority of the ratepayers resident on the lots bordering on either or both sides of such line, to petition the county council to enforce the opening up or repair of such lines of road by the township councils interested. 55 V. c. 42, s. 557.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 341 (3).

Repair of township roads, how enforced.

650. A county council receiving such petition, either from township councils or from ratepayers, as in the preceding section mentioned, may consider and act upon the same at the session at which the petition is presented. 55 V. c. 42, s. 558.

Action by county council on petition.

651. The county council may determine the amount which each township council interested shall be required to apply for the opening or repairing of such lines of road, or may direct the expenditure of a certain portion of the statute labour, or both, as may seem necessary to make the said lines of road equal to other roads. 55 V. c. 42, s. 559.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 341 (4), in which the language was :—"It shall be the duty of the county council to determine," etc.

Amount, etc., to be determined by each township.

652. It shall be the duty of the county council to appoint a commissioner or commissioners to execute and enforce their orders or by-laws relative to such roads. If the representatives of any or all of the townships interested intimate to the council or to the commissioner or commissioners so appointed their intention to execute the work themselves, then the commissioner or commissioners shall delay proceedings for a reasonable time; but if the work is not proceeded with during the favourable season by the township officers, then the commissioners shall undertake and finish it themselves. 55 V. c. 42, s. 560.

Taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 341 (5).

Proviso.

653. Any sum of money so determined by the county council as the portion to be paid by the respective townships, shall be paid by the county treasurer, on the order of the commissioner or commissioners, and the amount shall be retained out of any money in his hands belonging to such township; but if there are not, at any time before the striking of a county rate, any such moneys belonging to such township in the treasurer's hands, an additional rate shall be levied by the county council against such township sufficient to cover such advances. 55 V. c. 42, s. 561.

Meetings of wardens.

655. It shall be the duty of the wardens of the counties interested, within twenty-one days of the time of receiving the application, to meet for the determination of the matter in dispute. The warden of the county in which the township first making the application is situated, shall be the convener of the meeting; and it shall be his duty, within eight days after receiving the application, to notify the warden of the other county and County Judge of the time and place of meeting. 55 V. c. 42, c. 563.

656. At such meeting the wardens and County Judge, or any two of them, shall determine the share to be borne by the respective townships, of the amount required on the part or parts to be opened or repaired by each or both, and shall appoint a commissioner or commissioners to superintend such work, and it shall be the duty of the township treasurer to pay the orders of the commissioners to the extent of the sum apportioned to each; and pathmasters controlling the statute labour on the lots adjoining such line, on the portion of such line to be opened or repaired, shall obey the orders of the commissioner or commissioners in performing the statute labour unexpended. 55 V. c. 42, s. 564.

Division IV.—POWERS OF COUNTY AND TOWNSHIP COUNCILS IN RELATION TO ROADS. (Sec. 657.)

Sale or Lease of Minerals on or under Roads. Sec. 657.

Sale or lease of mineral rights under roads.

657.—(1) The corporation of any township or county, wherever minerals are found, may sell or lease, by public auction or otherwise, the right to take minerals found upon, or under, any roads over which the township or county has jurisdiction, if considered expedient so to do.

(2) No such sale or lease shall take place until after due notice of the intended by-law has been posted up in six of the most public places in the immediate neighbourhood of such road, for at least one month previous to the time fixed for considering the by-law.

Sec. 657 (2), (3). Note (a). No sale of lease till after notice.

(3) The deed of conveyance or lease to the purchaser or lessee under the by-law shall contain a proviso protecting the road for public travel and preventing any uses of the granted rights which would interfere with public travel. 55 V. c. 42, s. 565.

Sale or lease not to interfere with public travel.

Taken from 31 V. c. 30, s. 37 (1868), which, however, did not include a power to lease; and which, instead of the words "the right to take minerals found upon or under," had the words "the mineral rights to." The former words were substituted for the latter by 36 V. c 48, s. 442 (1873); and power to lease was given by 44 V. c. 24, s. 18 (1881).

(a) "The right to take minerals." The conveyance or lease should be of the right to take the minerals, not of the highway itself. But where the lease was of a portion of the highway, "for the purpose of boring and taking therefrom all gas or other minerals"—the quantity of land being no more than was required for the company's purposes, and the rights of the public being fully protected—it was held that the practical difference was so small as not to constitute a ground for quashing the by-law (a).

Form of lease or conveyance.

> "The selling or leasing is not restricted to the adjoining owners, but may be to any one; and the purchaser or lessee may interfere with and obstruct the highway to a reasonable extent, so long as public travel is protected and not unreasonably interfered with." (b)

"Minerals" have been held to include "every substance which can be got from underneath the surface of the earth for the purpose of profit, unless there is something in the context or in the nature of the transaction to induce the Court to give the word a more limited meaning," (c) a definition which, although criticized by Lord HALSBURY in Lord Provost, etc., of Glasgow v. Farie (d), received the support of Lord HERSCHELL in the same case, and was afterwards warmly approved by the Court of Appeal in Earl of Jersey v. Neath Poor Law Union (e).

What are "minerals."

The word has been held to include natural gas (f), brick-earth clay (g), but not flint (h), or common clay or sand (i).

DIVISION V.—POWERS OF COUNTY COUNCILS IN RELATION TO ROADS AND BRIDGES.

Closing road allowances. Sec. 658 (1).
Opening and altering roads. Sec. 658 (2).
Trees obstructing highways. Sec. 658 (3).
Double tracks in snow roads. Sec. 658 (4).
Aid to local municipalities. Sec. 658 (5).
Repair of county roads therein. Sec. 658 (6).
Abandoning or disposing of toll roads. Sec. 658 (7).
Improvements by united counties. Sec. 659.

658. The council of every county shall have power to pass by-laws for the following purposes:—

Closing Road Allowances.

Disposing of original allowance for roads in certain cases

1. For stopping up, or stopping up and sale, of any original allowance for roads, or part thereof within the county, which is subject to the sole jurisdiction and control of the council, and not being within the limits of any village, town or city within or adjoining the county; but the by-law for this purpose shall be subject to section 632 of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (1).

Taken from 20 V. c. 69, ss. 3, 8 (1857).

(a) Since these powers are now included among those conferred by s. 637 (1) upon the councils of all municipalities, this sub-section is no longer necessary, and might be repealed.

Opening and Altering Roads.

Opening, etc., roads, etc., within or between several municipalities.

2. For opening, making, preserving, improving, repairing, widening, altering, diverting and stopping up roads, streets, squares, alleys, lanes, bridges or other public communications, running or being within one or more townships or between two or more townships of the county; or any bridge required to be built or made across any river or stream over 100 feet in width within any village in the county connecting any public highway leading through the county, and which is in continuation of a county road, or between the county and any adjoining county or city or separated town, or on the bounds of any town or village within the boundaries of the county, as the interests of the inhabitants of the county, in the opinion of the council, require to be so opened, made, preserved and improved; and for entering upon, breaking up, taking or using any land in any way necessary or convenient for the said purposes, subject to the restrictions herein contained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (104).

Taken mainly from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 328 (3). The words "or any bridge" (line 5) down to and inclusive of the words "leading through the county" (line 8) were inserted by 34 V. c. 39, s. 9 (1871). Amended (as to width of rivers) by 36 V. c. 48, s. 440 (2); 37 V. c. 16, s. 17 (1874), and R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 524 (2). The word "streams" was inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (104) (1897); the words "and which is in continuation of a county road" (lines 8-9), and the words "or separated town" (line 10) by 36 V. c. 48, s. 440 (2) (1873).

(a) The clause referring to bridges over streams within villages is not only unnecessary,—since jurisdiction over these is already conferred upon counties by ss. 613 (3) and 637 (1)—but it also obscures the true construction and object of the sub-section, which originally (a) applied only to roads (1) running through one or more townships (b) (2): between two townships of the county: (3) between the county and an adjoining county, city or separated town; or (4) on the bounds of a town or village within the county.

Sec. 658 3.

Note (a).

Powers of county councils as to opening, etc., certain roads etc.

But—even after the interpolated clause relating to bridges has been eliminated—the interpretation of the section presents no little difficulty. Read literally, it gives a county council power,—if in the opinion of the council the interests of the county so require—to exercise, as to every road not situate within a city, town or village, all the powers conferred by s. 637 (1) upon the council of every municipality as to roads which are within their respective jurisdictions. Such an interpretation would render s. 613 (1)—quoad bridges in townships—and also s. 614 wholly unnecessary; since, if a county council is intended to possess under this sub-section powers as extensive in regard to such roads as they could acquire by assuming them under one of the sections mentioned, there would be no reason for their taking the latter course, and assuming, with the road, the burden of maintenance imposed by s. 606. Section 615 would also become unnecessary; since larger powers would be conferred by this sub-section than by that section.

It is apprehended, therefore, that a county by-law for "opening, making, preserving, widening, altering, diverting or stopping up" any of the "public communications" to which this sub-section applies, is—in effect if not in form—a by-law for assuming the highway or bridge in question.

In the case (first above mentioned) of a road within a township, or within more townships than one, this right of assumption by the county council would seem to be controlled by s. 613, which requires the assent of the local municipality or municipalities. In the case (secondly above mentioned) of a road running between two or more townships, no such assent is necessary. See s. 614 and note (c) thereto.

As to the roads thirdly and lastly above mentioned—viz., boundary roads not lying between two townships,—s. 622 has already conferred joint jurisdiction upon the contiguous municipalities; and it is apprehended that no county by-law could affect the jurisdiction conferred by that section upon a local municipality lying outside the limits of the county, or upon a city or separated town, although it might be locally situate within the county. This subsection may, however, possibly authorize the county to assume the share of such joint jurisdiction which would otherwise have belonged (under s. 622) to a township situate within the county and lying along one side of the road in question. If this be the intention of the enactment, it is most unhappily expressed; and a more probable conclusion seems to be that in the various Revisions of the Act from 1873 to 1897, the language of the clause as it stood in 1858 has been retained without any attempt to consider how its practical utility may have been affected by the amendments since made in other sections relating to bridges and highways.

It may be that a county by-law passed under this subsection merely for "improving or repairing" a township road or bridge would not ipso facto amount to an assumption thereof (c); but in view of the conflict of jurisdiction and the uncertainty as to the incidence of municipal liability which would result from such a construction, it can scarcely be adopted without the authority of a judicial decision.

Trees Obstructing Highways.

May direct the trees to be cleared on each side of highways.

3. For directing that, on each and either side of a highway under the jurisdiction of the council, passing through a wood, the trees (except such as are reserved by the owner for ornament or shelter) shall, for a space not exceeding twenty-five feet on each side of the highway, be cut down and removed by the proprietor within a time appointed by the by-law, or, in his default, by the county surveyor or other officer in whose division the land lies; and, in the latter case, for authorizing the trees to be used by the overseer or other officer for any purpose connected with the improvement of the highways and bridges in his division, or to be sold by him to defray the expenses of carrying the by-law into effect; and the council may further pay such expenses out of county funds. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (3).

Based upon the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 328 (4). The words "under the jurisdiction of the council" (line 2), and words corresponding to the last clause of the section were inserted by 36 V. c. 48, s. 440 (3) (1873), and the exception in brackets (lines 3, 4), then received substantially its present form.

Compensation.

(c) The learned editors of the preceding editions of the MUNICIPAL MANUAL seem to have been of opinion that in no case would the land owner be entitled to compensation for injury sustained by reason of the exercise of the powers hereby conferred upon the council (a); but there seems to be no valid reason why the general provisions of s. 437 should not apply here; and it is apprehended that any diminution in the value of the land occasioned by the exercise of this corporate power would be a subject for compensation under that section.

Double Tracks in Snow Roads.

Double tracks in snow roads.

Rev. Stat. c. 237.

4. For providing for the making and keeping open of double tracks in snow roads according to the provisions of The Act Respecting Double Tracks in Snow Roads. 55 V. c. 42, s. s. 566 (3).

This power was given to county councils by 36 V. c. 46 s. 1 (1873), and was first consolidated in "The Municipal Act," as s. 524 (4) of R.S.O. (1877), c. 174.

(d) See "The Act respecting Double Tracks in Snow Roads," (R.S.O. c. 237).

Aiding Local Municipalities.

For aiding the making of roads and bridges.

Guaranteeing debentures of local municipalities.

5. For granting to any town, township or village in the county, aid, by loan or otherwise, towards opening or making any new road or bridge in the town, township or village, in cases where the council deems the county at large sufficiently interested in the work to justify such assistance, but not sufficiently interested to justify the council in at once assuming the same as a county work; and also for guaranteeing the debentures of any municipality within the county, as the council may deem expedient. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (5).

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 328 (7), the last clause having been inserted in 1873 by 36 V. c. 48, s. 440 (4). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 41 (16) (1849).

(e) This subsection applies only to aid granted towards making new roads or bridges; and in Re Strachan and County of Frontenac (b), a by-law granting money to certain townships to assist them "in preserving, improving and repairing roads and bridges" was quashed. But see now the next two subsections.

Aid to local municipalities for construction or maintenance of road.

6. For granting aid to any town, township or village in the county in making, opening, maintaining, widening, raising, lowering or otherwise improving any highway, road, street, bridge or communication passing from or through any township, town or village municipality into a county road. 59 V. c. 51, s. 26.

Passed in 1896. See the reference.

(a) See Mr. HARRISON'S note at p. 446 of the 3rd Ed., which is repeated by Mr. JOSEPH in the 4th Ed. at p. 532-3, and in the 5th Ed., at p. 540.

(b) 41 U.C.R. 175 (1877).

(f) See s. 615 and the note thereto. The making of such grants, and even the expenditure, by commissioners appointed by the county council, of money thus granted, is no evidence that the county intends to assume the road as a county road, but rather of the contrary (a).

Sec. 658 7, 8, 9. Notes (f)-(h).

7. For granting to any town, township or village in the county, aid towards improving any road, street, bridge or other public communication running into any county road of the county within which such local municipality is situate. 59 V. c. 51, s. 27.

Aid towards road improvements in local municipalities.

Passed in 1896. See the reference.

(g) This sub-section seems to be wholly unnecessary, since these and even wider powers are already conferred by sub-section 6.

Repair of County Roads in Local Municipalities.

8. For requiring that the whole or any part of a county road within any local municipality shall be opened, improved and maintained by such local municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (6).

Opening roads in local municipalities.

(h) This section appears first in the Act of 1858 (b), being there so worded as to empower a county council to impose upon a local municipality the duty of maintaining any county road whether situate within the local municipality or not. It was omitted from the Act of 1866 (c); but was re-inserted in its present form in the Act of 1873 (d), no authority for its re-insertion being stated. The intention and effect of the section are doubtful. In 1858—when it was first enacted—roads dividing townships were county roads by virtue of the Statute; but under the Act as it now stands, there are no county roads except such as have been assumed by by-law. It is apprehended that the section—if it has now any application whatever—merely authorizes a county council to repeal a by-law by which a road has been assumed as a county road, and to declare (what is already the law) that the road shall be henceforth maintained, or (if they see fit), that it shall be opened or improved by the local municipality in which it is situate.

> "Although it may not be altogether easy to say what county roads the sub-section does or does not include, . . . yet I am of opinion, . . . that the county cannot by by-law assume a road . . . as a county road, and compel the local municipality or municipalities of such place or places at their sole expense to improve such road." (e)

It seems that so long as a road continues to be a county road, the county council cannot divest themselves of the duty to maintain it (f).

Abandoning or Disposing of Toll Roads.

9. For abandoning or otherwise disposing of the whole or any portion of a toll or any other road owned by a county, whether situated wholly within the county or partly within the county and partly within an adjoining county or counties.

Disposing roads.

(a) On the passing of such by-law the clerk shall forthwith forward a certified copy thereof to the local municipality or municipalities which any portion of said abandoned road runs through or along or borders upon.

Power to abandon or dispose of county roads.

(b) No such by-law shall take effect until assented to by the local municipality or municipalities affected, nor until the same shall have been approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 566 (7).

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 24 (1885), the words "or any other" between "toll" and "road" (line 2) having been inserted by 53 V. c. 50, s. 32 (1890), and clause (b) having been added by 49 V. c. 37, s. 18 (1886).

(a) "For abandoning." These words would authorize the repeal of a by-law which had been passed for assuming a toll road under s. 50 or 102 of "The General Road Companies Act," (a), or for assuming any other road under s. 613 (1) or 614 of this Act.

(b) "Or otherwise disposing of." These words authorize the council to pass a by-law for selling a toll road under s. 34 of "The General Road Companies Act," (b), or for selling or leasing any road within the jurisdiction of the municipality (c).

Ss. 33 and 34 of "The General Road Companies' Act," (R. S. O. c. 193,) provide that :—

Companies may sell their works and rights to municipalities.

"33. A company formed under this or any former Act may sell to any municipal council representing the interests of the locality through or along the boundary of which such road passes, or in which the work is situate, and the municipal council may purchase the stock of the company, or any part of the road belonging to the company, at the value that may be agreed on between the company and the municipal council ; and the municipality may hold the same for the use and benefit of such locality, and shall, after the purchase, stand in the place and stead of the company, and possess all such powers and authority as the company theretofore possessed and exercised in respect to the road or part of road, or other work purchased.

Municipalities may sell roads, etc.

Application of proceeds.

34. The municipal council may sell any work, or any macadamized, plank, or other toll road which they have constructed or purchased, or any stock held in any road or other company, and apply the proceeds of such sale to the payment of existing debts contracted for the construction of the same, or for such stock ; or if no debt exists for such work, road or stock, then to the general purposes of the municipality or otherwise, as they may determine."

Improvements by United Counties.

Enabling either county of a union to make improvements therein.

659.—(1) The councils of united counties may make appropriations and raise funds to enable either county, separately, to carry on such improvements as may be required by the inhabitants thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 515.

Taken from 20 V. c. 68, s. 1 (1857). Consolidated in the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 281 (1858

Councillors representing the county affected alone to vote.

Exception.

(2) Whenever any such measure is brought before the council of any united counties, none but the members thereof representing the county council divisions comprising the county to be affected by the measure shall vote; except in case of an equality of votes, when the warden, whether a representative of any portion of the county to be affected by the measure or not, shall have the casting vote. 55 V. c. 42, s. 516 ; 60 V. c. 3, s. 3.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 282, a slight redundancy in which is corrected by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 291. The section formerly referred to reeves and deputy reeves; but was made applicable to the present system of governing united counties in the Revision of 1897, under the authority of 60 V. c. 3, s. 3 (1897). Cf. 20 V. c. 68, s. 2 (1857).

Note (a).

(3) In all other respects, all the provisions of this Act making provision for the payment of the amounts appropriated, whether to be borrowed upon a loan or to be raised directly by taxation, shall be adhered to. 55 V. c. 24, s. 517.

Provisions of this Act for repayment to apply.

Taken from 20 V. c. 68, s. 3 (1857). The words "giving such privileges and" having been omitted before "making" (line 1) in R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 517. Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 283; 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 292; 36 V. c. 48, s. 399; R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 480; 46 V. c. 18, s. 517.

Treasurer to pay over moneys without deduction.

(4) The treasurer of the united counties shall pay over all sums so raised and paid into his hands by the several collectors, without any deduction or percentage 55 V. c. 42, s. 518.

Taken from 20 V. c. 68, s. 4 (1857), in which the words "raised and" before "paid" (line 2) were omitted; and the word "for" occurred instead of the word "or" before "percentage." The change from "for" to "or" was made by 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 293 (1866); and the omitted words were inserted by 22 V. c. 99, s. 284 (1858).

The property to be assessed in such cases.

(5) The property to be assessed for the purposes contemplated in the last four preceding sub-sections, shall be the same as the property assessed for any other county purpose, except that any sum to be raised for the purposes of one county only, or for the payment of any debt contracted for the purposes of one county only, shall be assessed and levied solely upon property assessed in that county, and not upon property in any other county united with it, and any debenture that may be issued for such purposes may be issued as the debenture of the said one county only, and shall be as valid and binding upon that county as if that county were a separate municipality: but such debentures shall be under the seal of the united counties, and be signed by the warden thereof. 55 V. c. 42 s. 519.

Debentures.

The first clause, down to the words "united with it" (line 8) is taken from 20 V. c. 68, s. (1857), with some verbal amendments made in the consolidation of 1858 (22 V. c. 99, s. 285). The second clause (relating to debentures) is taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 294.

Form of debentures.

(a) "May be issued as the debentures of the . . one county only." It is not easy to understand this part of the section. The provision that any debenture that may be issued may be so issued "as the debenture of the one county only, and shall be as valid and binding upon that county as if that county were a separate municipality," would appear to indicate an intention that the promise to pay shall be that of the one county only? But the concluding provision, that such debentures "shall be under the seal of the united counties, and be signed by the warden thereof," is inconsistent with such a conclusion. And since the united counties form but one corporation (a)—there can be, prior to the date of separation named in the proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor (b), no other corporate body capable of making such a contract. It is submitted that the debentures should be issued as debentures of the union, but should be so drawn as to shew on their face that they form a charge upon the one county only.

660. The council of every township may pass by-laws :—

Aiding Counties.

Aiding adjoining county in making roads, etc., and granting aid to county for roads assumed by county.

1. For granting to any adjoining county, aid in making, opening, maintaining, widening, raising, lowering or otherwise improving any highway, road, street, bridge or communication lying between the township and any other municipality, and for granting like aid to the county in which the township lies, in respect of any highway, road, street, bridge, or communication, within the township, assumed by the county as a county work, or agreed to be so assumed on condition of such grant. 55 V. c. 42, s. 567 (1).

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 329 (1). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (16).

Closing Road Allowances.

Stopping up, leasing or sale of original road allowance.

2. For the stopping up, leasing or sale of any original allowance for road, or any part thereof, within the municipality; and for fixing and declaring therein, the terms upon which the same is to be leased, sold and conveyed;

But no such by-laws shall have any force,—

Proviso.

(a) Unless passed in accordance with section 632 of this Act, nor

(b) Until confirmed by a by law of the council of the county in which the township is situate, at an ordinary session of the county council, held not sooner than three months nor later than one year next after the passing thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 567 (2).

Taken from 20 V. c. 69, s. 2 (1857), with the exception of some verbal amendments which were made in the Consolidation of 1858, (22 V. c. 99, s. 329 (2)), the substitution of the word "or" for "and" before "sale" (line 1), and the omission of the power to lease. This change was made and the omission supplied by 44 V. c. 24, s. 17 (1881).

(a) Since power to sell public highways (a) was conferred in 1897 upon the councils of all municipalities (b), it is apprehended that this section is no longer necessary. The restrictions contained in clauses (a) and (b) are, however, still in force.

Trees obstructing Highways.

Ordering trees to be cut down on each side of a road.

3. For directing that, on each or either side of a highway under the jurisdiction of the council, passing through a wood,

Footpaths.

Footpaths.

4. For setting apart so much of any highway as the council may deem necessary for the purposes of a footpath, and for imposing penalties on persons travelling thereon on horseback or in vehicles. 55 V. c. 42, s. 567 (4).

Sale of Roads in Villages or Hamlets.

When roads in police villages and certain hamlets may be stopped up, sold, etc., by township council.

661.—(1) In case the trustees of any police village, or fifteen of the inhabitant householders of any other unincorporated village or hamlet consisting of not less than twenty dwelling houses standing within an area of 200 acres, petition the council of the township in which the village or hamlet is situate, and in case the petition of such unincorporated village or hamlet, not being a police village, is accompanied by a certificate from the registrar of the registry division within which the township lies, that a plan of the village or hamlet has been duly deposited in his office according to the registry laws, the council may pass a by-law to stop up, sell and convey, or otherwise deal with any original allowance for road lying within the limits of the village or hamlet, as the same shall be laid down on the plan, but subject to all the restrictions contained in this Act with reference to the sale of original allowances. 55 V. c. 42 s. 568 (1).

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 330.

When village is partly in each of two townships.

662. The preceding section shall apply to a village or hamlet situate in two townships, whether such townships are in the same or different counties, and in such case the council of each of the townships shall have the power thereby conferred, as to any original allowance for road lying within that part of the Sale of roads in police villages and hamlets.

(a) These sections seem to be no longer necessary, since by s. 637 (1) power has been given to all municipalities to sell public highways—a term which, by s. 598, includes original road allowances.

Roads connecting Side Lines in Double Front Concessions.

Side lines in double front concessions.

663.—(1) In any township in which the concessions have been surveyed with double fronts, that is with posts or monuments planted on both sides of the road allowances between the concessions, and the division or side lines drawn from the posts at both ends to the centre of the concession do not meet, and road allowances have been laid out along such lines, the council may by by-law provide for the opening and laying out (upon a survey made by an Ontario land surveyor, to be named in the by-law) of a roadway joining the ends of such road allowances.

(2) The centre of such roadway shall be determined by a straight line drawn along the centre of the concession between the ends of such road allowances, unless it shall appears to the surveyor that any other line would be more suitable according to the circumstances of the case.

(3) The surveyor shall determine the compensation to be paid to persons whose lands are taken for opening and laying out the said roadway, and the amount so determined shall be paid to such persons by the municipal corporation of the township.

(4) A copy of the by-law shall be served upon all persons over whose lands the proposed road will pass; and any such person desiring to object to the surveyor named in the by-law may, within one month after service thereof upon him, serve on the clerk of the municipality and on the other persons interested a notice of objection to such surveyor together with an appointment returnable before the County Judge of the county in which the lands lie.

(5) Upon the return of the appointment the Judge, after hearing all parties concerned, may confirm the appointment of the surveyor named in the by-law or may name and appoint some other Ontario land surveyor to carry out the terms of the by-law; and in such case the surveyor so appointed shall act in the place and stead of the surveyor named in the by-law. 60 V. c. 55, s. 1.

TITLE III.—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCILS AS TO IMPROVEMENTS TO BE PAID FOR BY LOCAL RATE.

The Local Improvement System.

Origin of special local assessments.

It is, no doubt, very commonly believed—even among those who know something about our local improvement system—that it is of American origin; but this is a mistake. Its fundamental principle,—viz., the right of the local authority to assess and levy from the owners of real estate specially benefited by the construction of a local work a share, at least, of the benefit thus conferred—may be traced back to the Statutes of 6 Henry VI. c. 5 (1427) and 23 Henry VIII. c. 5 (1531), which authorized the levy of a rate upon land owners to meet the cost of constructing sea-walls and similar protective works; and—as applied to municipal improvements—it was embodied in an Act of 1662 (a), entitled "An Act for repairing the highways and sewers and for keeping clean the streets in and about the cities of London and Westminster," etc., and again in an Act passed in 1667 (b), to regulate the rebuilding of the City of London after the Great Fire (c). A local improvement system "was in full operation in London at a period when the American colonies were in their infancy, and the United States, to which they gave birth, were a full century yet unborn." (d)

In England.

The existing law.

"The Metropolis Local Management Act, 1855," (e) and the amending Act of 1862 (f) now provide that where a "new street" (g) has been or is to be paved by the local authority, the frontagers shall pay on demand the expense—or the estimated expense—of the work according to an apportionment to be made by the local authority, which may charge owners of land in a less proportion than owners of house property, and may accept payment of the amount apportioned or charged in respect of each house, by instalments spread over twenty years. The local authority is not bound to charge the frontagers rateably inter se, according to frontage or otherwise; and, if the requirements of the Act have been complied with (h), the apportionment cannot be questioned except for mala fides in the making of it (i). As to the expense of constructing sewers, similar powers are given to the local authorities by s. 80 of the first mentioned Act (j) and by ss. 52-57 of the Act of 1862 (k); but the apportionment of expense in the latter case is subject to an appeal to the Metropolitan Board of Works.

Again,—s. 8 of "The Artisans Dwellings Act, 1882" (l) provides—in case of the demolition of what is therein styled "an obstructive building"—that "where, in the opinion of the arbitrator, the demolition . adds to the value of . other buildings . the arbitrator shall apportion so much of the compensation to be paid for the demolition of the obstructive building as may be equal to the increase in value of the other buildings amongst such other buildings respectively; . and the local authority may make and levy improvement rates on the occupiers of such premises accordingly."

The Local Improvement System.

In England.

Lastly,—ss. 23, 36, 41, 62, 150 and 160 of "The Public Health Act, 1875" (a) and s. 3 of "The Public Health (Water) Act, 1878" (b) authorize the imposition, by local or sanitary authorities, of "private improvement rates" for the expenses of works done by these authorities upon default of the property-owners (after notice) to comply with regulations in respect of house drainage, water-closets, water supply, street paving, etc.,—a method which we have adopted in those sections of "The Municipal Act" which authorize councils to pass by-laws for "compelling" property owners to execute certain works,—coupled with s. 703, which empowers them in case of default on the part of the property-owner, to do work at the expense of the person so in default, and to collect the amount thus expended by action or distress, or in the same manner as municipal taxes.*

On the Continent.

The principle of special assessments for local improvements is recognized also in France (c), in Belgium (d), and in Germany (e); but it is in the United States

(e) Leidig,—"Preussiches Stadtrecht"; Loening,—"Verwaltungsrecht"; Neumann,—"Die Steuer und das öffentliche Interesse"; Ludwig Wolf, "Sachsische Gesetzgebung über Wegebau."

* A most interesting discussion of the whole subject may be found in the report of a Select Committee of the House of Lords appointed to consider a Bill entitled "The Town Improvements (Betterment) Act, 1894." The report, together with a verbatim copy of the evidence, is printed in the House of Lords' Sessional Papers for 1894, Vol. 8, at page 129. The Committee consisted of fifteen members, and included Lord Halsbury who was Chairman—Lord Tweedmouth, the Duke of Norfolk, Lord Salisbury, Earl Cowper, Lord Farrer, Lord Eggerton and Lord Thring.

They were directed "to consider and report whether, in the case of improvements sanctioned by Parliament and effected by the expenditure of public funds, persons, the value of whose property is clearly increased by an improvement, can be equitably required to contribute to the cost of the improvement; and, if so, in what cases, and under what conditions, Parliament should sanction the levying of such contributions in local Acts or provisional Orders."

After hearing a number of witnesses specially familiar with the subject, the Committee came to a unanimous conclusion in regard to the matters referred to them, and reported to the House in July, 1894. Among their conclusions are the following:—

"1. The principle of betterment—in other words, the principle that persons whose property has clearly been increased in market value by an improvement effected by local authorities, should specially contribute to the cost of improvement, is not in itself unjust, and such persons can equitably be required to do so. But the effect of a public work in raising the value of neighbouring lands is shown by experience to be uncertain. Whether, in any particular case, it is possible to pronounce that such an effect has been produced by the completion of any public work, is a point upon which the evidence of eminent valuers differs greatly. * * *

3. It should be provided that within some reasonable period after the completion of the work, the owner of the property intended to be charged should receive notice of the amount of the charge which the local authority proposes to make in respect of the alleged increase in the market value of his property due to the work in question. Inasmuch as the appropriateness of the period must to some extent depend upon the nature of the work and the condition of the neighbourhood, it would be difficult to fix any definite time applicable to all cases; but the period should not be so short that the effect of the improvement could not be adequately tested, and it should not be so long as to make the property intended to be charged suffer in market value by the suspension of the decision as to the charge.

4. In default of acquiescence by the person on whom notice is served, the amount of the charge to be made should be decided by an arbitrator, unless the said person claims to go before a jury; and the decision should be taken with as little delay as possible.

5. All the costs of such arbitration or inquiry before a jury should be borne by the local authority claiming to lay such charge, unless the arbitrator or jury finds or awards the same sum or a greater sum than that which the local authority sought to lay upon the property, in which case each party should bear his own costs incident to the arbitration or inquiry; and the costs of the arbitrator or jury should be borne by each of the parties in equal proportion, unless otherwise ordered by the arbitrators, or (in the case of a jury) by the High Court, upon the ground that the opposition to the proposed charge has been frivolous and vexatious.

6. If the owner has property in the immediate neighbourhood, which is found to be injured in its market value by the same work, the amount of the injury should be considered in determining the charge to be imposed upon him for improvements.

Its origin.

of America that the system has attained its highest development (a)—for reasons which are especially applicable to loosely-built and widely-extended towns and cities—(where some of the territory within the corporate limits is urban only in name)—and which have exceptional weight and influence with governing bodies where the Legislature has seen fit to limit the amount which may be annually raised by general rate. A summary of the legislation of various States on the subject will be found in chap. XIX. of Judge DILLON'S invaluable work on Municipal Corporations (b); and in s. 761 the learn[illegible] [illegible]hor sums up the general result of the American decisions relating to [illegible] assessments in respect to local improvements—pointing out that :—

In the United States.

1. A local assessment upon property immediately and specially benefited by a local improvement, although resting for its foundation upon the taxing power, is in many respects distinguishable from a tax.

2. Special benefits to the property assessed—i.e., benefits received by it beyond those received by the community at large—form the only true and just foundation upon which local assessments can rest.

3. The assessment may be made on benefited lots in proportion to their superficial area or to their assessed value.

4. Where the property is urban, and is laid out in blocks or lots of equal depth, all abutting upon the local improvement, and there is nothing in the nature or circumstances of the case which will cause an assessment according to frontage to work manifest injustice—the assessment may be so made.

5. But the method most generally adopted,—and the only one which (in the author's judgment) is right in principle and equitable in its practical workings—is to assess the cost of the work (or a definite part or share thereof) rateably upon the several properties specially benefited thereby, according to the special benefit which each separate lot or parcel of property actually and separately receives therefrom.

In this Province.

Although—as is pointed out infra in the small-print note to s. 664 (2)—the principle of the local improvement system was recognized in this Province by s. 81 (5) of the Municipal Act of 1849 (c) and s. 9 of the Act of 1853 (d), the foundation of the procedure now contained in ss. 664 et seq. of this Act was laid in 1859 (e) by the Act of 22 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 40. This Statute authorized the council of every city to pass by-laws :—

> "1. 1. For providing the means of ascertaining and determining what real property will be immediately benefited by any proposed improvement, the expense of which is proposed to be assessed as hereinafter mentioned upon the real property immediately benefited thereby : and of ascertaining and determining the proportions in which the assessment is to be made on the various portions of the real estate so benefited ; subject in every case to an appeal to the County Court Judge, in the same manner and on the same terms, as nearly as may be, as an appe[illegible] [illegible]om the Court of Revision in the case of an ordinary assessment.

(a) The first American Statute giving power to impose local assessments for local improvements is an Act of the Assembly of the Province of New York, passed in 1691, "for regulating the buildings, streets, lanes, wharfs, docks and alleys of the City of New York." [See Angell & Durfee on Highways (2nd Ed.), s. 178]. It authorized the mayor and aldermen,—"to impose a reasonable tax upon all houses in the said city, according to the benefit they shall receive thereby, for and towards the making, altering, etc., of the said drains, sewers, pavements," etc.

(b) Cf. also Cooley on Taxation, pp. 26, 637.

(c) 12 V. c. 81. (d) 16 V. c. 181.

(e) Special assessments for drainage works were introduced in 1858 (22 V. c. 99, ss. 271-272), when township councils were authorized—upon a petition sufficiently signed—to make an assessment of so much of the cost of draining any locality as should not exceed the benefit derived from such drainage. The assessment was to be according to the proportion of benefit received. The principle of assessing only up to the amount of benefit received was soon abandoned ; but, with this exception, the present "Municipal Drainage Act" is but an amplification of the two sections of the Act of 1858.

The Local Improvement System.

In this Province.

22 V. c. 40 (1859).

2. For assessing and levying upon the real property to be immediately benefited by the making, enlarging or prolonging of any common sewer, or the opening, widening, prolonging or altering, macadamizing, grading, levelling, paving or planking of any street, lane or alley, public way or place, or of any sidewalk therein, on the petition of at least two-thirds in number and one-half in value of such real property of the owners of such real property, a special rate, sufficient to include a sinking fund for the repayment of debentures, which such councils are hereby authorized to issue in such cases respectively on the security of such rates respectively, to provide funds for such improvements, and for so assessing and levying the same,—

(1) By an annual rate in the pound on the real property so benefited, according to the assessed value thereof, including the improvements thereon, or

(2) By an annual rate in the pound on the real property so benefited, according to the value thereof, exclusive of the improvements thereon, or

(3) By an annual rate of so much per foot, equally, according to the frontage of the real property so benefited without reference to the comparative value of the different portions thereof, or

(4) By an annual rate on each portion of the real property so benefited in proportion, as nearly as may be, to the benefit derived by such portion, or

(5) Partly by each of these methods, or partly by each of any two or three of them.

3. For regulating the time or times and manner in which the assessments to be levied under this Act are to be paid, and for arranging the terms on which the parties assessed for local improvements may commute for the payment of their proportionate shares of the cost thereof in principal sums:

4. For effecting any such improvement as aforesaid with funds provided by parties desirous of having the same effected.

2. No such local improvement as aforesaid shall be undertaken by the council of any city . . otherwise than on the petition of two-thirds in number and one-half in value of real property to be directly benefited thereby of the owners of such real property,—the number of such owners and the value of such real property having been first ascertained and finally determined in the manner and by the means provided by by-law in that behalf. And if the contemplated improvement be the construction of a common sewer having a sectional area of more than four feet, one-third of the cost thereof shall also first be provided for by the council of the city, by by-law for borrowing money (which every such council is hereby authorized to pass for such purpose), or otherwise. * * *

6. Nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to apply to any work of ordinary repair or maintenance; and every common sewer made or prolonged and street, lane, alley, public way and place and sidewalk therein, once made, opened, widened, prolonged, altered, macadamized, paved or planked under this Act shall thereafter be kept in a good and sufficient state of repair at the expense of the city generally" (a).

(a) This Act was introduced upon a petition of the mayor, aldermen and commonalty of the City of Toronto, and was presented to the Legislative Assembly of Canada in March, 1859, by the late Hon. George Brown. The Bill—which as introduced by him applied to towns as well as cities—was referred to a Special Committee consisting of Messrs. Brown, McMicken, Buchanan Benjamin and Mowat, and (having been passed by the House as reported by that Committee), was sent up to the Legislative Council, where it was amended by striking out all reference to towns. The Lower House having concurred in this amendment, the Bill became law on May 4th, 1859. The Mayor of Toronto,—who signed the petition for the Bill on behalf of the City,—was the late Sir (then Mr.) Adam Wilson, afterwards Chief Justice of the Q. B. D. He had been elected (by popular vote) in the preceding January; and it is not improbable that he was the principal promoter of the Bill.

How the system has extended since the Act of 1859.

The powers conferred by this Act have since been extended to all other local municipalities (a), and its principle has been from time to time applied to new works and undertakings. In 1871, bridges were included (b); in 1880, the deepening of streams, drainage works, and the curbing, sodding and planting of streets (c); in 1890, culverts and embankments (d), and in 1892, water and light mains (e). It has been found necessary to authorize councils to assume out of their general funds the rebate (if any) allowed on corner lots (f) the cost of work at street intersections and opposite exempt properties (g), a share of the cost of bridges, culverts, embankments, of the opening up and extension of streets, and of certain improved sidewalks (h), and to make special assessments only for the balance; but, except in these cases, practically the whole cost of a work undertaken as a local improvement must be locally levied (i).

The mode of ascertaining the property to be assessed has been frequently altered. From 1859 to 1882, benefit was the only criterion of assessability; and all benefited property, wherever situate, was assessable. In the latter year, however, locality became in certain cases the test, the rates being imposed "upon the real property fronting or abutting upon the street or place whereon or wherein" the work was done (j), and in 1883, this rule was made applicable to all cases (k). It was, however, found to be too arbitrary; and exceptions became necessary, as in the case of the rule which required that the whole cost of the work should be locally levied. Accordingly an amendment was made in 1885, whereby property benefited, though not abutting, might be included in assessments for the cost (or part of the cost) of bridges, culverts, embankments or the opening up and extension of streets (l). In 1888 the restriction of the assessment to abutting property was removed in the case of sewers of greater capacity than that required for the drainage of the particular streets in which they were laid (m), and in 1892, in the case of all works in certain townships (n). It was completely swept away in 1896; and the present rule, which is the same as that in force prior to 1882, was then adopted (o).

Alterations have also been made in the method of apportioning the amount to be levied among the various parcels of property to be assessed (p). Under the Act of 1859, the council had the option of adopting any one or more of four modes, viz.:—(1) by rate on assessed values exclusive of benefit; (2) by rate on assessed values including benefit; (3) by frontage rate; or (4) according to the proportion of benefit received by each parcel of land. By the Act of 1866 (q) this option was taken away, the first mode—viz., by rate on assessed values exclusive of improvements—being the only one authorized. In 1881, a further change was made by which the respective frontages of the lots became the standard for determining their respective shares of the sum to be levied, the rate being one per foot of frontage. This has since remained the general rule, subject to the decision of the Courts that the rate upon non-abutting property need not be the same per foot as that upon abutting property (r).

In assessments made upon this basis the fact of benefit is of importance only in determining the property which is to be assessed. The apportionment of the amount to be levied among the various parcels of such property depends solely upon their measurement, the relative amounts of their respective benefits being altogether disregarded. The resulting distribution of the burden is equitable in simple cases—e.g., in that of sidewalks or pavements in urban localities where abutting property is alone assessed, and where the lots are of approximately equal depth and of similar capabilities; but in other cases it is sometimes most unfair. For instance,—suppose that by the construction of a bridge three lots of equal frontage are benefited to the respective amounts of $50, $100 and $500. According to this method each of them will nevertheless be assessed for exactly the same amount; and if—as is quite conceivable—these lots alone receive any benefit, and the bridge costs $2,000, of which the municipality assumes one-half (a), each of these proprietors will be charged $333, one of them thus being compelled to pay nearly seven times the amount of the increase in value of his property, while another pays but two-thirds of the amount of his benefit.

Assessment according to the proportions of benefit received.

Possibly because of the injustice which must occasionally result from an assessment according to frontage, another method has been introduced since the passing of the Act of 1866. In 1882, townships were authorized (if they saw fit) to assess each parcel of property benefited by a bridge or culvert, or by the opening up and extension of a street, etc., according to the proportion of the whole amount of benefit received by that parcel (b); and in 1892 this power was conferred, in the case of all works, upon townships any part of which lies within five miles of a city containing 50,000 inhabitants or over (c). This method of assessment is scarcely more defensible than that according to frontage If—upon appeal to the Court of Revision or the County Judge—the assessment proposed by the engineer is varied in respect of a single lot, a compensating variation must also be made in respect of another or others, in order that the amount which is to be raised may remain the same; and since the assessment is based upon the proportion of benefit received, it may be necessary—in order to effect a proper apportionment—to have every assessed owner and his witnesses before the Court. Furthermore—considerable difficulty arises when lands have been benefited but have at the same time been injuriously affected. If the benefit and damage are set off one against the other (d) an assessment cannot be equitably made upon the benefit which has been thus set off; while, on the other hand, it may not be equivalent in amount to a share of the whole cost proportionate to the benefit. E.g.—suppose that by a work costing $600 (including land damages) lot A. is benefited $100, and lot B. is benefited $200, but damaged $300, no other land being affected. The benefit to lot B. being set off against the damage, its owner will receive but $100 as his compensation. He therefore contributes toward the cost of the work $200, the amount of the benefit to his property. Lot A. must then be assessed for the balance of the cost, viz. $400, or four times the amount of the benefit which it has received. Properly speaking, damage and benefit should be kept entirely distinct, lot A. being charged $200 and lot B. $400, but the owner of the latter recovering full compensation for all damage.

This procedure, however, is not free from objecti[illegible] In following it, the amount of the benefit and the amount of the dama[illegible]st be separately estimated. Since each is properly determined by asc[illegible]g the difference in the market value of the land due to the construction of the work, to determine either of them separately, without regard to the other, is a task of extreme complication; and it is most unlikely that the resultant effect of the decisions of the Court of Revision as to benefit, and of an arbitrator as to damage, will be to place the owner of lot B. in precisely the same position as if both these matters had been determined by the same tribunal (e).

(a) This is the limit of its power. See s. 675.

(b) See s. 674 (3).

(c) See s. 665 (3 proviso). This is the method of assessment under "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R.S.O. c. 226.)

(d) In cases under this Act benefit and damage must be set off: see s. 437: Re Richardson and City of Toronto, 17 O. R. 491 (1889): Re Pryce and City of Toronto, 16 O.R. 726; 20 A.R. 16 (1892); and apparently also in cases under "The Municipal Drainage Act": Township of Ellis v. Hiles, 23 S.C.R. 429 (1894), at pp. 448-9: Re Thackeray and Township of Raleigh, 25 A.R. 226 (1898).

(e) It has been suggested that the Court of Revision should make the assessment according to benefit alone, and that the arbitrator should allow to the owner his damage less any advantage which he may have derived, and plus the excess of the amount of the special assessment over and above the benefit. This course must probably be followed in practice, but it is open to the objections urged against both methods of assessment. Benefit and damage must be separately estimated; and the result is identical with that arrived at by a direct assessment according to the actual benefit after damage has been deducted. See per OSLER, J. A., in Re Thackeray and Township of Raleigh, 25 A. R. 226 (1898), at p. 236-7.

Its present unsatisfactory condition.

All the amendments already noted—together with many others of less importance—have been from time to time grafted upon the original Act of 1859. By twenty-three amending Acts, and in nine consolidations, about one hundred and twenty variations (exclusive of many verbal changes) have been made in that short Statute, and the three pages which formed the original Act have been expanded to eighteen pages in the present Revised Statute. Yet during all these forty years no attempt has been made to deal with the subject in a comprehensive or scientific enactment. The annual alterations and additions have been made upon principles—if any—constantly varying, and often with reference to some particular case of assumed injustice or hardship. In the result, our local improvement law has become—to use the language of OSLER, J.A.—"a patchwork of clauses," which Sir WILLIAM MEREDITH, C.J., considers "complicated, cumbrous, and contradictory"—an opinion fully concurred in by Sir GEORGE BURTON, C. J. O., who adds that the result is "sometimes illogical, and frequently unjust." (a)

It is not surprising that questions innumerable, and sometimes insoluble, should arise when one attempts to interpret such a chaotic conglomeration of heterogeneous clauses; and the reasons why they have not proved more fruitful in creating litigation are (probably) their very complexity, the consequent uncertainty of success, and the comparatively small amount involved (as a rule) in any individual case.

Suggestions for its improvement.

In view, therefore, of the self-evident fact that some scientific and well considered enactment is needed to remove the ambiguities, anomalies and inconsistencies of the present local improvement sections, it may not be amiss to discuss the general lines upon which such an enactment should be based, in order that it may be at once equitable, simple, and of practical applicability.

General principle.

The principle upon which ordinary municipal taxes are assessed and levied is that which was laid down in 1776 by Adam Smith (b), viz., that:—

> "The subjects of every state ought to contribute to the expense of the government as nearly as possible in proportion to their respective abilities, i.e., in proportion to the revenue which they respectively enjoy under the protection of the State;"

in order to which "The Assessment Act" provides (c) that,—"All municipal . . . taxes . . . . shall be levied equally upon the whole rateable property, real and personal, of [in] the municipality . . . . according to the assessed value of such property." (d)

The logical basis of special local assessments.

Special local assessments may seem at first to be inconsistent with the above general principle; but this inconsistency is more an apparent than a real one, at least in two cases. First—where the value of land has been directly increased by the construction of a municipal work, it seems fair that the owners of property thus specially benefited should bear the expense of the work to the extent to which their ability to pay has been enhanced thereby. Such property-owners suffer no pecuniary loss, since they receive, in the increased value of their lands, an equivalent for the money which they are thus called upon to repay to the municipality (a).

Secondly, if a work is (or will be) required everywhere in a municipality, the amount levied from each individual will be the same, whether he pays his share of the aggregate cost, or the whole cost of the particular part of the work especially referable to him; provided only that the assessment is in both cases upon the same basis.

To each of these cases a different mode of assessment is suitable; and each will be found to apply to different classes of municipal works.

The municipality may act:—

In its governmental capacity,

Or as a trustee for its citizens,

Or as an agent for local property owners.

A municipal corporation in undertaking a work may act in any one of three capacities:—

1. It may perform the functions of a governing body, as it usually does in constructing pavements or bridges, or in procuring the cleaning, lighting, etc., of streets.

2. Its position may be that of a capitalist and trustee, as in the laying of water, light or heat mains.

3. It may act as an agent for certain individuals who desire the construction of a work, but who (in most cases (b)) have neither the necessary organization nor the available capital. This is most frequently its position in the construction of drainage works; but the same principle might be applied to the opening up of roads, etc., etc.

An assessment for a work constructed in the exercise of either of the first two functions is properly a tax. An assessment for the cost of a work undertaken by the corporation as an agent is more like the collection of an account for services rendered and disbursements made.

In urban municipalities, such works as pavements, sidewalks, street sweeping, lighting, etc., may be required on every street, the requirements of each street being independent of and unaffected by those of any other. Where they are needed, the property is usually of higher value than where they are not, and in localities where more substantial works and more frequent renewals are called for, the owners are in general of higher "ability" than in those where requirements are more modest and the necessity for renewals occurs at longer intervals. If, therefore, such works were carried out on every street according to its needs, the whole cost of the work directly affecting the land of an indi-

St. 118, 121 (1862), and per WALKER, J., Crawford v. The People, 82 Ill. 557 (1876). This principle is, in fact, correlative to that which governs the right of a land owner to be paid out of public funds the amount by which his property may have been "injuriously affected"—(i. e. diminished in value) by reason of a municipal improvement undertaken for the public benefit. See ante, note (d) to s. 437. The local improvement system has however been carried further than is warranted by this principle; and, under the specious name of "betterments" or "local improvements" works have been undertaken and expenses incurred far beyond local requirements or commensurate benefits.*

The municipal machinery—diverted from its legimate objects—has been pressed into the service of speculators, land jobbers and contractors; the municipal accounts have been unnecessarily complicated, and the true condition of the municipal finances in many cases dangerously obscured. §

(b) But see s. 664 (4); taken from 22 V. (1859), c. 40, s. 2 (4).

* An illustration of this fact—cited by Dillon, s. 760*a*, note 2—is afforded by the case of the City of Elizabeth, N. J., which shortly after the grant of a new charter in 1863, commenced to make expensive local improvements, many of them being merely aids to real estate speculations. "Miles of wooden pavement were laid across the meadows and woods adjoining the built-up portions of the city; bonds to the amount of several millions of dollars were issued and sold to obtain money to pay for the work in anticipation of the assessments; and the entire cost of the improvements was assessed on the land fronting on the streets thus 'improved.'" A similar experience has not been unheard of in Ontario. Indeed a classical punster might say "Mutato nomine, de T——— fabula narratur." vidual would be substantially the same as his share of the aggregate cost of all the works. Special assessments for the cost of constructing them on one street—before they are actually carried out on every street—may be justified it on the grounds—(1) that the primary and direct effect of the work is local (though no actual enhancement in the value of property may result); (2) that the land-owners upon a street may thereby procure the class of work which they consider to be suitable and at the time when they deem it to be requisite; and (3) that (possibly venal) local authorities are thus deprived of power to unduly favour certain localities in the distribution of public works to be paid for out of general funds.

§ The local improvement debt of the City of Toronto in December, 1899, was $6,205,265.95, or about $30 per head of its population. Every farthing of this is represented by city debentures, of which even those secured by local improvement rates are guaranteed by the city at large under s. 385(2) of this Act. Section 685 (2) declares that the debentures issued under local improvement by-laws for the ratepayers' share of liability thus incurred shall not be part of the general debt of the municipality; but notwithstanding the provisions of s. 685 (1) [See post p. 967] "The City of Toronto Debt and Consolidation Act, 1889," (52 V., c. 70), which was passed upon the petition, and at the instance of the city council, provides (s. 11) that the debentures to be issued for the city's share of the cost of local improvements (assumed under the authority of ss. 629 and 685 of "The Municipal Act,") shall not be counted as part of its general debenture debt. If these local improvement debenture debts were taken into account, the limit of the city's borrowing powers, fixed by s. 1 of the Act of 1889, would have been long ago exceeded.

Suggestions for improving

Sewers—though it may at some time or other be necessary to construct them upon every street in the town—stand upon a somewhat different footing from pavements and other like works, since their size and cost may be increased far beyond the needs of the streets in which they are constructed, by reason of the necessity that the sewage of other streets at higher levels should pass through them to gain an outlet. An equitable mode of meeting their cost would seem to be to assess locally the expense which it would be necessary to incur for the purposes of the street in which a sewer is laid, the excess of the expenditure being met out of the general rates.

In the case of assessments of the class now under discussion, the whole cost—or practically the whole cost—of the work, or of that part of the work which is referable to the street where it is constructed (a) should be locally levied upon the property from which direct access is or might be had to the street or sewer, the apportionment being made according to the assessed values of the various parcels, or—where the lots are of equal depth and similar capabilities—by a frontage rate.

But the list of works for which special assessments may be made has not yet been exhausted. Such works as bridges, subways, the opening and grading of streets, etc., etc., cannot be required everywhere in any municipality; nor can such works as pavements become necessary on every country highway. To assess the whole (or any arbitrary part) of the cost of such works upon neighbouring property is clearly unfair (b), unless the work has been undertaken by the municipality as agent of the owners, as to which see infra. But local assessment is not excluded. Resort may be had to the principle of benefit; and the amount of any increase in the value of a parcel of land due to such a work may be demanded from its owner, just as the amount of damage thereby occasioned is paid to him. Where benefit has accrued and damage has at the same time been suffered, they may be set off one against the other, and the difference paid by the party against whom the balance is found. Any expenditure upon the work over and above the aggregate benefit is—or should be—its value to the municipality at large, and ought to be paid out of general taxes.

The class of works to be next considered are those constructed by the corporation as capitalist and trustee. These are represented in this Act by water, heat and light-mains, the whole cost of which may be locally levied. Expenditures upon works like these are virtually investments of capital, and would as a rule remain so, a sum being annually written off for depreciation and wear and tear. If they were to be realized, the profits should repay the capital thus invested; but this, in the case of municipal services, is practically impossible, since the cost to the consumer is forced down so that the return barely covers expenses. There remains taxation, and to this the same rules would seem to apply as in the case of sewers,—viz., that the cost of laying a main sufficient for the purpose of a street should be locally assessed upon the property from which direct access to the main is or might be had—i.e., practically, abutting property,—the balance of the cost being borne by the municipality (c).

There remains the class of works which the municipality executes as agent for certain property owners, for whose particular benefit the work is carried out, and at whose request the whole expense is assessed and levied by the municipal machinery provided in the case of other special assessments.

(a) The municipality should assume the proportion of the cost referable to exempt property, probably part of the assessment on corner lots, and possibly also the cost incurred for construction across street intersections.

(b) An example has already been given of the inequality which may (and often does) result from such assessment according to frontage. A rate based upon assessed values might be equally unjust; and reference has been made to the objections to an assessment according to the proportion of benefit received.

(c) The inclusion in the assessment of the cost of private service pipes cannot, of course, be justified upon principle. See, however, ss. 664 (2), 673 (1) (3).

Works under "The Municipal Drainage Act" are undertaken upon this system, which, though not expressly recognized in "The Municipal Act," is applicable in the case of bridges and like works in all municipalities, and in the case of sidewalks, pavements, etc., in rural districts (a). The variation between the incidence of assessments upon this basis and those assessments which the municipality makes for similar works which it has constructed in the exercise of what we have styled its governmental functions, lies in the mode in which the excess of the expenditure over benefit is to be met. Ordinarily, that excess falls upon the general rates; but in this case it must be paid by the promoters of the work—i.e., the petitioners therefor and those whom they have power to bind. The rules generally applicable to the set-off of benefit against damage will apply, the difference being collected or paid by the corporation, as the case may be. By this operation every land owner affected (whether damaged or benefited) has presumably been placed in exactly the same position as if the work had not been carried out. The proportional benefits received by each, form, therefore, a standard for assessing the excess no more satisfactory than would the proportional damages suffered. Recourse must be had to "ability"; and the assessment must be made upon the petitioners and those whom they bind in proportions fixed by the petition, or according to the assessed values of their respective properties. By adopting this basis of assessment, the practical difficulties attending an assessment according to the proportion of benefit received are also overcome.

Synopsis;—S. 664 (2) enumerates the works which may be constructed as local improvements. These may be initiated in any of the modes provided by ss. 668, 669, 672 (4), viz.,—by petition (s. 668 (1)), by notice (s 669 (1)) or by recommendation from the local board of health (s. 668 (4)). S. 677 creates an exception to the necessity for observing these preliminaries. S. 671 (1-4) provides for giving notice of the assessment to the persons to be charged, who may, if they consider the apportionment incorrect, apply to the Court of Revision and appeal to the County Judge to amend it (ss. 664 (1a), 671 (5)). The powers of the County Judge in certain cases are dealt with by s. 671 (6). His decision is final (s. 671 (7)). Under ss. 664 (1) and 667 the council may pass a general by-law to regulate the details of the procedure in these matters.

The municipality is compelled to bear a share of the expense connected with certain works (s. 664 (5)), and councils are empowered to assume one-half of the cost of a bridge, culvert or embankment (ss. 674 (1), 675) a percentage of the cost of certain improved sidewalks in towns (s. 678), any proportion of the cost of the opening up and extension of streets (s. 674 (1)), that part of the cost of any work referable to street intersections or exempt property (s. 679), and part of any assessment upon corner lots (s. 673 (4)).

Assessment by-laws are authorized by s. 664 (2), (3); and s. 665 (1) specifies the property to be assessed and the nature of the rate, the latter of which may in a proper case be varied by the council under s. 673 (6). The assessable property is further defined by ss. 664 (6), 665 (3), 673 (2), 674 (3), 683, 684; and under ss. 665 (3) and 674 (3) townships may in certain cases make the assessment on a basis different from that usually adopted.

S. 665 (2) provides for a supplementary assessment by-law where the first one was passed before the completion of the work and the amount thereby levied proves to be insufficient. When the passing of the assessment by-law is deferred until after the work has been finished, temporary loans to meet the cost of the work may be raised under s. 672 (1), the period of assessment in such case being limited by s. 672 (2).

If the assessment by-law is (for any reason) quashed, the council may pass another in substitution therefor (s. 672 (3)). The issue of debentures to meet the municipality's share is provided for by s. 685. Ss. 673 (1), (3) authorize assessments for the combined cost of different works. S. 674 (4) deals with the purchase of completed works; s. 676 with the construction of sidewalks by private owners; s. 664 (4) with the construction of works by the municipality out of funds provided by persons desirous of having the same effected; s. 686 with the exemption of persons specially assessed from general rates for the same purpose; s. 673 (7) with assessments for works in public parks, squares, public drives and boulevards; s. 666 with the repair of works constructed as local improvements, and s. 682 with the adoption by the electors of the local improvement system and its extension in such cases. The same extension in other cases is authorized by s. 686. S. 670 provides a short form of local improvement by-law; and s. 681 enacts that assessments for local improvements shall not be deemed incumbrances as between vendor and purchaser.

(a) It might also be applied in certain cases to sewers and water and light-mains; but in such cases somewhat different considerations arise.

By-laws respecting Local Improvements.

Sec. 664 (1).

Note (a).

664. The council of every township, city, town and village may pass by-laws for the following purposes:—

1. For providing the means of ascertaining and determining what real property will be immediately benefited by any proposed work or improvement, the expense of which is proposed to be assessed, as hereinafter mentioned, upon the real property benefited thereby; and of ascertaining and determining the proportions in which the assessment of the cost thereof is to be made on the various portions of real estate so benefited. 55 V. c. 42, s. 612 (1), part; and see sec. 647 (3), ante, p 880.

Providing means of ascertaining real property benefited by local improvements.

And how it should be assessed.

This section is taken from 22 V. c. 40, s. 1 (1) (1859)—(see ante, p. 895) which was first included in "The Municipal Act" as s. 290 (1) of C.S.U.C. c. 54 (1859). The word "immediately"—which in the original Act followed the words "real property" (line 4)—was omitted in 47 V. c. 32, s. 20 (1884), and the words "work or" (line 3) and "of the cost thereof" (line 6) were inserted in the re-enactment of the local improvement sections by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890). The section at first applied to cities only. It was extended to towns in 1868 by 31 V. c. 30, s. 35; to incorporated villages in 1871 by 34 V. c. 30, ss. 10, 19; to unincorporated villages in 1885 by 48 V. c. 39, s. 59 (3) (see s. 37, supra), and to townships in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48. Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R.S.O. c. 226), ss. 3 (1), 19 (5), and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

(a) "For providing the means of ascertaining," etc. Even without this provision, any municipality would have power to pass a by-law such as is here authorized,—viz., to provide machinery whereby a council proposing to carry out an improvement, the cost of which is to be repaid by local assessment, may obtain all necessary information as to what real property would be thereby benefited, and as to the proportions in which the various portions thereof should be assessed for the cost of the work (a).

What a report under s. 664 (1) should contain.

The information referred to is usually procured by means of a report from an engineer or other officer of the corporation; which, in the case of any of the works provided for, by ss. 664-685, should show:—

I. NATURE.

1. The nature of the proposed work. S. 671 (2). See VII. infra.

II. COST.

1. The total estimated cost of the work (b), including:—
   (a) The probable contract price.
   (b) The amount of any land damages necessarily resulting from its construction.
   (c) Any engineering expenses connected therewith.

III. LIFETIME.

1. The probable lifetime of the work. S. 672 (2).

IV. PROPERTY BENEFITED.

1. What real property will be benefited thereby.

This now probably includes, in every case, both abutting and non-abutting property (c); but non-abutting property may certainly be assessed in the following cases:—

(a) In any municipality:
   (i) The construction or repair of bridges or culverts. S. 674 (2).
   (ii) The opening up and extension of any street, lane or alley. S. 674 (2).

(a) See note (a) to s. 667.
(b) S. 671 (2). See note (e) to this section.
(c) See note (b) to s. 665.

Sec. 664 (1).

Note (a).

What a report under s. 664 (1) should contain.

(iii) The construction of a sewer of larger capacity than would be required for the efficient sewerage and drainage of abutting property. S. 673 (2).

(b) In a township any portion of which is within five miles of a city containing 50,000 inhabitants or over:—

(i) The construction of any work. S. 665 (3)

V. THE METHOD OF ASSESSMENT.

1. Whether—instead of being made according to frontage—the assessment should be according to the proportion of benefit received by each parcel of property benefited:—

(a) In any township by:—

(i) The construction or repair of a bridge or culvert. S. 674 (3).
(ii) The opening and extension of any street, lane or alley. S. 674 (3).

(b) In a township any portion of which is within five miles of a city containing 50,000 inhabitants or over, by:—

(i) The construction of any work. S. 665 (3 proviso).

VI. THE DISTRIBUTION OF THE AMOUNT TO BE LEVIED.

A. In cities, towns and villages:—

(a) The total frontage of:—

(i) Abutting property (including street intersections).
(ii) Non-abutting property benefited.

(b) The abutting frontage of street intersections.

(c) The frontage of the exempt portion of:—

(i) Other abutting property.
(ii) Non-abutting property benefited.

(d) The frontage of the assessable portion of:—

(i) Abutting property,
(1) Benefited. (2) Not benefited.
(ii) Non-abutting property benefited.

(e) Whether all the lands on one side of the street are unfit for building purposes. S. 673 (6).

(f) The situation, value and superficial area of each corner lot as compared with adjoining assessable pieces of land. S. 673 (4). (c)

(g) The proportion of the whole amount to be levied which should be assessed on the assessable portion of:—

(i) Benefited abutting property fit for building purposes. S. 673 (6).
(ii) Benefited abutting property unfit for building purposes (if all property on one side of the street is so unfit). S. 673 (6).
(iii) Non-abutting property benefited.
(iv) Each corner lot as compared with adjoining lots. S. 673 (4).

B. In townships:—

1. If the assessment is to be made according to frontage (b):—

(a) As in cities, towns and villages, omitting (e) and (f), and showing, under (g), only the proportions which should be assessed on:—

(i) Abutting property benefited.
(ii) Non-abutting property benefited.

2. If the assessment is to be made according to the proportion of benefit received by each parcel of the property benefited (c):—

(a) The proportion of the amount to be levied which should be assessed against each such parcel.

(a) See note (b) thereto.
(b) Ss. 665 (1), (3); 673 (1), (2); 674 (1), (2), (3).
(c) Ss. 664 (6); 665 (3) proviso; 674 (3).

Notes (a), (b).

What a report under s. 664 (1) should contain.

VII. THE PROPORTION OF THE COST TO BE LEVIED.

I. Whether or not it would be advisable for the municipality to assume :—

A. In any municipality :—

(a) The portions of the cost of any work referable to :—

(i) Street intersections. S. 679 (1).

(ii) Exempt property. S. 679 (1).

(b) Any allowance made on the assessment of corner lots of land. S. 673 (4).

(c) Any—and if any—what proportion of the cost of :—

(i) The repair of bridges or culverts. S. 674 (1).

(ii) The opening up and extension of a street, lane or alley. S. 674 (1).

(d) Any, and if any, what proportion (up to one-half) of the cost of :—

(i) The construction of a bridge, culvert or embankment forming part of a highway. Ss. 674 (1), 675; see s. 664 (2).

B. In a city or town which has not adopted the local improvement system in respect to sidewalks :

(a) A percentage of that part of the cost of a granolithic, stone, asphalt, or brick sidewalk on a leading or principal business street, referable to property assessable therefor. S. 678.

VIII. SPECIAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

A. Whether, with the cost of draining any locality or of laying or prolonging any sewer, it would be advisable to include the cost of constructing branch drains to the line of street. S. 673 (1).

B. Whether, before constructing or renewing a pavement, it would be advisable to put in private drain connections, water-mains, etc., and to levy their cost with that of the pavement. S. 673 (3).

C. In the case of a work on a public park, square, drive or boulevard, the cost and lifetime of the work, the amount of benefit to be received therefrom by assessable abutting property, and the frontage of such property, are in general all the matters which need be dealt with by the report. S. 673 (7).

A report from the treasurer or other officer may also be required, shewing :—

(a) The probable cost of obtaining a temporary loan under s. 672 to meet the cost of the work.

(b) The probable expense of issuing and selling the debentures which must be issued to cover the cost of the work, including the discount on their sale.

(c) The probable cost of advertising, printing, etc., connected therewith.

(b) "For providing the means . . . of determining," etc.

Matters to be determined by the coun- by the

When the council are in a position to proceed with any work, by reason of—

(I) A sufficiently signed petition therefor having been presented (b), or

(II) The local board of health having made a recommendation (c), or

(III) A sufficient time having elapsed after notice of their intention to undertake the work (d),—they may at once pass a by-law providing for its construction. The power to do this, and the power to levy the cost of the work by special assessment, are wholly distinct. They need not be exercised by the same by-law, or at the same time, or even by the same council (e). The former power is conferred, not by the local improvement sections, but by one of those other sections throughout the Act,—e. g., ss. 554, 566, 606, 637, etc.,—which authorize the council to pass by-laws for, and to carry out, certain works; and the only point at which the exercise of these powers is touched by the local improvement sections arises from the requirement that certain conditions precedent (a) must be complied with before the commencement of the work in order that its cost may be leviable by local assessment (b).

By the by-law authorizing the work (or by a contemporaneous by-law), the council may, however, make an assessment of its estimated cost. If this course be adopted, they must at once determine the matters presently mentioned; a by-law must be passed for providing for the municipality's share of the cost (c), and the proper proceedings must be taken before the Court of Revision and County Judge. But this course cannot be recommended; since, if the actual cost of the work exceeds its estimated cost, a second assessment by-law will be necessary, and a second Court of Revision must be held (d).

The more business-like—and as a rule the more economical—course is to pay for the work as it proceeds, either out of moneys on hand, or by means of advances obtained under s. 672, and to defer the assessment by-law until the improvement is completed and its exact cost ascertained. The engineer then makes a report, showing all the matters referred to in note (a) supra, but substituting the actual for the estimated cost, etc.; and the council determines the following matters, which under the Statute are left to their decision (e):—

A. In any municipality:—

1. The items of expense to be included in "the cost of the work." (f)

2. The period of assessment (g).

3. The shares of the amount to be levied which shall be borne by abutting and by non-abutting property respectively (h).

4. Whether the municipality will assume:—

(a) In the case of any work:—

(i) The proportion of cost referable to:—

(1) Street intersections. S. 679 (1).

(2) Exempt property. S. 679 (1). See note (a) thereto.

(ii) Any allowance made on the assessment of corner lots. S. 673 (4).

(b) In the cases of the repair of a bridge or culvert, or the opening up and extension of any street, lane or alley:—

(i) Any—and if any what—proportion of the total cost. S. 674 (1).

(c) In the cases of the construction of a bridge, culvert or embankment forming part of a highway:—

(i) Any—and if any what—proportion (up to one-half) of the total cost [two-thirds vote]. Ss. 674 (1), 675, and see s. 664 (2).

B. In a city, town or village:—

(a) The respective shares of the amount to be levied which shall be respectively borne,—(i) by property which is unfit for building purposes, and (ii) by building lots. S. 673 (6).

C. (1) In any township,—in the case of the construction or repair of a bridge or culvert, or the opening up and extension of a street, lane or alley (i), or

D. In a city or town which has not adopted the local improvement system in respect of sidewalks:—

In the case of certain improved sidewalks:—

(a) Whether the municipality will assume a percentage of that part of the cost which is referable to the property assessable therefor. S. 678.

Sec. 664 (1) (1a).

Notes (b d.)

Matters to be determined by the council.

When these matters have been decided, a by-law should be passed forthwith to provide for the municipality's share of the cost of the work (b). But the time for an assessment by-law has not yet arrived. The matter should now be referred to the assessment commissioner (or some other like officer) to prepare a statement which—if the rate is to be a frontage rate—ought to show:—

1. The parcels of the property reported by the engineer as being benefited.
2. The name of the owner of each such parcel.
3. The annual rate per foot necessary in order to levy, within the time fixed (c), the amount which it has been determined by the council to raise from,—
   (i) Abutting property, fit for building purposes,
   (ii) Abutting property, unfit for building purposes,
   (iii) Non-abutting property.

If the levy is to be according to the proportion of benefit received, the report of the engineer will be sufficient if it shows the owners of the parcels benefited.

The notices required by s. 671 (1) (2) may now be given, and a Court of Revision held to confirm the proposed assessment. When the assessment has been thus finally revised and settled, a by-law may be passed for assessing and levying the amount to be raised during the time already fixed, either by means of the annual rate found to be necessary therefor, or (if the assessment is according to benefit) in the proportions found to be correct (d).

This by-law should recite the determination of the council upon any of the matters mentioned above as depending upon their decision.

(c) "And of ascertaining and determining the proportions." See note (a) to s. 665.

(a) There shall be the same right of appeal from any such assessment, or proposed scale of assessment, to the Court of Revision, and from the Court of Revision to the County Judge, as is provided for by The Municipal Drainage Act; and the proceedings thereon shall, except as otherwise provided in section 671 of this Act, be the same respectively as in the case of appeals from ordinary assessments under The Assessment Act. 55 V. c 42, s. 612 (1).

Rev. Stat. c. 224.

The original section, (22 V. c. 40, s. 1 (1) (1859): see ante, p.895) provided for an appeal to the County Court Judge on the same terms as an appeal from the Court of Revision in the case of an ordinary assessment. See C. S. U. C. c. 54, s. 299 (1). By the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51, s. 391 (1)), the Recorder was substituted for the County Court Judge; but the section was changed back to its original form by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10 (1871). The present clause is taken from 47 V. c. 32, s. 20 (1884), the words "or proposed scale of assessment" (line 2) having been inserted in 1890 by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38.

of his own lands, (2) of undercharge in the assessment of any other lands, or (3) of the omission of any lands which should have been included among the properties assessed (a).

Appeals to Court of Revision and County Judge from proposed local assessments.

In the case of assessments under this Act according to frontage, the quantum of benefit is immaterial, if any benefit at all has been received; since the rate must be a uniform rate upon each foot of the property of the same class (b). An appeal therefore lies from the assessment commissioner (or other like officer)—(1) to include benefited property omitted from his statement, (2) to omit unbenefited property included therein, or (3) to correct inaccurate frontage measurements.

If the assessment is according to the proportion of benefit received (c), an appeal lies in respect of the first and second of the above matters, and also in respect of the proportion of benefit alleged to have been received (d). An amendment of the statement in any of these particulars by the Court of Revision will involve the re-adjustment of the rates (when the assessment is according to frontage) or of the other assessments (when it is according to benefit); since the gross amount which is to be levied can be neither increased or reduced.

A further power is given to the Court of Revision by s. 673 (4),—viz., to see that effect is given to the provisions of any by-law which may have been passed under that sub-section (e); and (though it is not expressly so provided) an amendment of the statement in respect of the names of the owners or lessees chargeable is probably within the competence of the Court in every case, as it certainly is in cases which fall within s. 671 (5). (f)

The powers of the County Judge upon appeal are probably co-extensive with those of the Court of Revision (g); and his decision upon these matters is final.

If, by an assessment by-law, the requirements of the Act are not fulfilled, and benefited property is unassessed, unbenefited property charged, or the apportionment is otherwise unfair, there is no remedy. If the statutory procedure has been followed, and these errors have nevertheless remained uncorrected, there is no appeal,—and if it has not been followed before the passing of the by-law, the time for doing so has passed, and the opportunity of amendment has been lost.

Except in the case provided for by s. 671 (6), a Court of Revision must be held to confirm every assessment (h), whether there has or has not been a previous assessment for the same work (i). "The imposition of a tax is a quasi-judicial proceeding; and . . . when a person's property is to be affected by anything analogous to a judicial proceeding he is entitled to be heard" (j).

Sec. 664 (2). Note (d).

For what works local assessments may be made.

Of opening, widening, prolonging or altering, macadamizing, grading, levelling, paving or planking any street, lane, alley, public way or place, or

Of constructing any sidewalk, bridge, culvert or embankment forming part of a highway therein, or

Of curbing, sodding, or planking any street, lane, alley, square, or other public place, or

In any case where a system of waterworks has been constructed by such municipality, then for providing for the cost of the extension within the limits of such municipality of branch mains and pipes, and all other work necessary for connecting the properties of the property owners with the waterworks system of said municipality, in order to permit such property owners to receive the benefit of such waterworks; or

In any case where a system for lighting within a municipality has been constructed or erected, by such municipality then for providing for the cost of the extension within the limits of the municipality of the poles, wires and pipes, and all other work necessary for lighting any street, square or other public place whereon the lands to be benefited thereby front or abut, or

Of reconstructing any work hereby provided for. 55 V. c. 42, s. 612 (2); c. 43, s. 65.

The principle of special assessment for local improvements was recognized in the Act of 1849, (12 V. c. 81). S. 81 (5) of that Act gives power to towns, and ss. 82 and 106 thereof to cities, to pass by-laws:—

> "For assessing the proprietors of such real property in any such town [or city] as may be immediately benefited by such improvements for such sum or sums as may at any time be necessary to defray the expense of making or repairing any common sewer, drain, flagging, posts or pavement in any public highway . . . immediately opposite or near to such real property."

Under 16 V. c. 181, s. 9 (1853), all the rateable property in a part of a township might be assessed by the council thereof upon petition of two-thirds of the resident freeholders and householders representing one-half of the property within the part to be assessed for sums sufficient to defray the cost of constructing, improving or repairing any road, bridge or other public improvement.

Both these provisions were omitted from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99). Under ss. 271, 272 of that Act, townships had power to make local assessments for the cost of draining localities; and by s. 324 (1) cities, towns or villages might impose a local assessment, but only for the making or repairing of pavements. The latter section was repealed by 22 V. c. 40 s. 7 (1859); but by s. 1 (2) of that Act, cities were authorized to impose upon the properties immediately benefited local rates for the repayment of debentures issued to provide funds for "the making, enlarging or prolonging of any common sewer, or the opening, altering, widening, prolonging or macadamizing, grading, paving," etc., (as in lines 5, 6) of any road or sidewalk,—but only upon the petition of two-thirds in number and one-half in value of the owners of the property to be assessed; Ibid, s. 2. See this Act, printed supra at pp. 895, 896: also C. S. U. C. c. 54, s. 299 (2); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 301 (1866).

The section was extended to towns by 31 V. c. 30, s. 35 (1868) and to villages by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10 (1871). By s. 11 of the latter Act it was made to apply also to "any bridge forming part of the highway." See also 36 V. c. 28, s. 464 (2) and R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 551 (2). By 43 V. c. 27, s. 10 (1880) further power was given to make local assessments for deepening streams, draining localities, curbing, sodding, and planting (which became "planking" in 55 V. c. 42, s. 612 (2)) of streets, or reconstructing any authorized work; and in 1882 (by 45 V. c. 23, s. 4) a petition by the owners to be assessed was made no longer a necessary pre-requisite to the undertaking of the work.

Section 612 (2) of "The Con. Mun. Act of 1883," (46 V. c. 18), collects all these enactments and contains (practically verbatim) the first twelve lines (down to "other public place") and the last line of the present section. Certain other verbal amendments have from time to time been made; and the words "culvert or embankment" (line 7) were inserted in the re-enactment of the local improvement sections in 1890 by 53 V. c. 56, s. 38. That part of the section from the words "or in any case" (line 13) to "front or abut" in the last line but one, were inserted in 1892 by 55 V. c. 43, s. 65. The powers conferred by the section were extended to townships in 1887 by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48. Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R. S. O. 226), s. 19 (3) and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

Sec. 664 (2).

Note (e).

By-laws for assessing and levying the cost of local improvements.

(e) "For assessing and levying the cost."

See, as to assessments for local improvements on streets, etc., between two municipalities, s. 647 (3), ante, p. 886.

The word "assessing" (as here used) means allotting and apportioning the amount to be raised between the various parcels of the property out of which it is to be "levied" (levé) or collected.

Every assessment must be made by by-law. A resolution is not sufficient, even under a general by-law authorizing such resolutions to be passed for a particular purpose (a). The by-law should state the property out of which the levy is to be made, the amount to be raised, and the annual rates to be imposed therefor. But where the work had already been done, and the amount involved was small, the Court refused to quash a by-law which had been passed before the execution of the work, for levying an amount to be estimated upon the contract price (b).

When a work is undertaken as a local improvement, its "cost" is required to be assessed, unless either—(1) the Statute compels the municipality to assume a part thereof (c), or (2) the council has exercised a discretion to do so—as they may in certain cases (d). Except in these cases, there is no power to assess any amount less than the whole cost of the work (e).

The term "cost" is nowhere defined by the Act. It certainly includes,—the contract price of the work (with the additions authorized by s. 673 (1) (3))—probably also any engineering expenses connected therewith—the cost of advertisements, of serving notices, etc.—the expense of the issue of debentures—any discount on their sale—and the interest upon any loans obtained under s. 672. It may also possibly include land damages (if any) necessarily resulting from the execution of the work; but probably not damages arising from its improper or negligent construction (f).

The council should in every case decide which of the aforesaid items they will include in the amount to be levied; and the exercise of a reasonable discretion in this particular would not probably be interfered with. But the assessment (and levy) of an amount greater or less than that which may fairly be comprehended within the term "cost of the work" would furnish ground for an application to quash the assessment by-law (g).

(c) The municipality must assume,—(1) one-third of the cost of every common sewer having a sectional area of more than four feet [s. 664 (5)]; (2) that part of the cost of any work in a public park, etc., beyond the benefit derived therefrom by abutting property (being at least one-half in certain cases) [s. 673 (7)]. When no by-law has been passed under s. 682, they must also assume (3) the cost of culverts and other works necessary for street surface drainage [s. 664 (5)]; and (4) that part of the cost of any sewer chargeable in respect of street intersections or exempt property [s. 664 (5): see note (a) to s. 679].

Taken from 22 V. c. 40, s. 1 (3) (1859)—see ante, p. 896—first consolidated as part of The Municipal Act in C.S.U.C. c. 54, s. 299 (3). See 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 301 (3). The words "works or" (line 4) were substituted for the word "local" in 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890); and the word "persons" (line 3) for the word "parties" in the Revision of 1897. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 81 (5) (towns); ss. 82, s. 106 (cities), and (as to drainage), 22 V. c. 99, s. 272 (3).
The subsection originally applied to cities only. It was extended to towns by 31 V. c. 30, s. 35 (1868); to villages by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10, 19 (1871), and to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887). Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R. S. O. c. 220), s. 19 (4), post, Vol. II.

(f) It is evidently the intention of the Act that the period over which the assessments are to extend shall coincide with the term of the debentures issued to repay the amount advanced by the corporation for the work. Taken from 22 V. c. 40, s. 1 (4) (1859)—see ante, p. 896—first consolidated as part of The Municipal Act in C.S.U.C. c. 54, s. 299 (4). See 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 301 (4). The words "work or improvements" were substituted for "improvement" by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890); and the word "persons" for "parties" in the Revision of 1897. The subsection originally applied only to cities. It was extended to towns by 31 V. c. 30, s. 35 (1868), to villages by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10, 19 (1871), and to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887).

Construction of sewers, etc., in part to be provided by council.

5. If the contemplated work or improvement is the construction of a common sewer having a sectional area of more than four feet, one-third of the whole cost thereof shall be provided for by the council. The council of every municipality which has not passed a by-law within and under the provisions of section 682 of this Act shall also provide, in connection with all sewers, the cost of all culverts and other works necessary for street surface drainage, and also the cost of that part of every such work, improvement or service which is incurred at and is chargeable in respect of street intersections, and also that part thereof done or made opposite real property which by any general or special Act is exempt from special or local assessment. 55 V. c. 42, s. 612 (5).

Works at street intersections and opposite exempt property.

The first sentence is taken from 22 V. c. 40, s. 2 (1859)—see ante, p. 896—consolidated in C.S.U.C. c. 54, as s. 300; and in 29-30 V. c. 51, as s. 302. The words "also first" which originally occurred after the word "shall" (line 3) were varied to "before the work is undertaken" by 46 V. c. 18, s. 612 (8), and were omitted in the re-enactment of the section by 47 V. c. 32, s. 21 (1884), when the second sentence of the present section was added. The words "work or" (line 1) were inserted by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890). The subsection originally applied only to cities. It was extended to towns and villages by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10 (1871), and to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887).

(g) "Common sewer," i.e., a public sewer. See s. 539 (2) and note (a) to s. 554.

(h) "Which has not passed a by-law . . under . . section 682."
A by-law might be passed under s. 682, which would not apply to sewers, or to works necessary for street surface drainage. The probable intention of the sub-section is that, unless the by-law includes such works, the municipality shall be compelled to assume that part of the cost which is referred to. See note (a) to s. 682.

which provides that "The local board of health shall . . . cause to be made such sewers as may be necessary for effectually draining their district." (a)

(j) "Every such work, improvement or service."

The use of the word "service" is inexplicable, except upon the supposition that the word "such" refers to the works mentioned in the preceding subsections, and that it was intended to compel municipalities to assume—not only in the case of sewers, but also in the case of all other works or services for which special assessments may be made—that portion of the cost of all these works which is referable to street intersections and to exempt properties. It is, however, at least possible that the word was inserted through mere inadvertence.

Lands benefited to be charged with proportion of costs of certain local improvements.

6. If the contemplated works or improvements relate to any stream, creek or watercourse, or to draining any locality, and in the opinion of the engineer or surveyor specially benefit any lands lying within the municipality or any road or roads lying therein or any roads therein belonging to any other municipality or corporation, then the engineer or surveyor aforesaid shall charge the lands, road or roads to be so benefited, and the municipality, corporation, person or company whose lands, road or roads, are improved, with such proportion of the cost of the work or improvements as he may deem just, and the amount so charged for lands or roads, or agreed upon by arbitration, shall be paid by such person or out of the general funds of the municipality, corporation or company, as the case may be, and the provisions of The Municipal Drainage Act so far as applicable shall apply to any such work or improvement constructed under this section. 55 V. c. 42, s. 612 (6).

Alternative methods in drainage cases.

(k) "Relate to any stream, creek or watercourse, or to draining any locality."

It appears that an assessment of the cost of deepening any stream, creek or watercourse or of draining any locality may be made either under "The Municipal Drainage Act" (b); or under this Act—and that in each of these cases a different set of provisions will apply.

Under "The Municipal Drainage Act," the work may be undertaken only upon petition, for withdrawal from which special provision is made, as it is also for the ascertainment of the quantum of benefit to be derived from the work by each parcel of property affected thereby, for the settlement of damage claims, and for all other incidental matters.

If s. 664 (2), supra, be taken as the authorization for the assessment, the work may be initiated not only by petition, but also by notice under s. 669, and, in the case of a drain, without even notice, upon the recommendation of the local board of health. The apportionment must then presumably be made by the method outlined in this subsection (6), but it remains uncertain which of the other matters connected with the assessment are to be governed by the provisions of this Act, and which regulated by those of "The Municipal Drainage Act."

It may be doubted whether this result was intended by the Legislature. It seems highly improbable that the elaborate system of "The Municipal Drainage Act" should have been devised in order to make complete provision for assessments for drainage works, and that the adoption of the less highly developed system of "The Municipal Act" should nevertheless (in the case of such a work) be left optional an as alternative; and it appears equally unreasonable to impute to the Legislature an intention that where this alternative had been adopted it should be left to litigants to ascertain the respective fields of operation of the two Statutes.

(a) Swanston v. Twickenham Local Board, 11 Ch. D. 838 (1879).

(b) R. S. O. c. 226, post Vol. II.

Secs. 664 (6), 665 (1).

Note (a).

On the other hand, these provisions were (from the time of their enactment in 1880 and 1885 respectively) until 1894, to be found in "The Municipal Act" side by side with special provisions as to drainage works—similar to those now included in "The Municipal Drainage Act"—(a), and it can scarcely be presumed that they were overlooked in 1894, when the drainage sections were transferred to a separate enactment.

Apart, however, from this initial difficulty, the interpretation of the section is by no means clear. Who is "the engineer or surveyor ?" Presumably the reference is to such an engineer or surveyor as is to be appointed in certain cases under "The Municipal Drainage Act." Again, it is not easy to determine how the amounts payable by each corporation or person are to be arrived at. The engineer is to charge each with a certain amount,—but this, if objected to, is to be "agreed upon by arbitration." Possibly this means "agreed upon or determined by arbitration"; but, if so, questions arise as to the parties who are to agree, and what are the circumstances in which resort is to be had to arbitration. If it is intended that the municipality which is about to construct the work and the person or corporation to be charged with part of its cost, may agree upon the amount payable therefor by the latter, and that in default of agreement they may resort to an arbitration to determine such amount,—then this is the only case under either this Act or "The Municipal Drainage Act," in which such a procedure is authorized.

The uncertainty which must result from provisions so obscure makes it useless as well as dangerous,—without the aid of judicial decision—to do more than point out these difficulties and apparent inconsistencies. In the notes to the other subsections of this section the questions here suggested have accordingly been passed over: and this subsection has been treated as if it belonged to "The Municipal Drainage Act," and not to "The Municipal Act" (b).

Rate to be assessed on frontage.

665.—(1) The special rate to be so assessed and levied shall be an annual rate according to the frontage thereof, upon the real property immediately benefited by the work or improvement. 55 V. c. 42, s. 613 (1); c. 43, s. 66; 59 V. c. 51, s. 28 (1).

The property to be assessed was originally, (as here), that "immediately benefited" among the various parcels of which the amount to be levied might, at the option of the council, be apportioned in any one or more of the following methods:—

(1) By an annual rate in the pound on the assessed value including the improvement,

(2) By an annual rate in the pound on the value exclusive of the improvement,

(3) By an annual equal rate per foot frontage, or

(4) By an annual rate on each portion in proportion to the benefit derived by such portion.

See 22 V. c. 40, s. 1 (2) (1859) (quoted ante at p. 896); C.S.U.C. c. 54, s. 299 (2). Under the Acts of 1866, 1873 and 1877, there was but one method (No. 2, supra), viz:—"By an annual rate in the dollar on the real property so benefited, according to the value thereof, exclusive of improvements." See 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 301 (2); 36 V. c. 48, s. 464 (2), and R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 551 (2). These words were struck out in 1881 by 44 V. c. 24, s. 26, which substituted for them the words, "by means of an annual rate on the real property so benefited according to the frontage thereof." In 1882 it was provided (45 V. c. 23, s. 4) that the council—without a petition therefor (which had theretofore been in most cases necessary)—might pass a by-law for constructing a local improvement, and for assessing the cost by a frontage rate "upon the real property fronting or abutting upon the street or place whereon or whereon such improvement is proposed to be done or made." The provisions of these two sections were combined in s. 612 (4) of the Act of 1883, (46 V. c. 18), in which the words used were "an annual rate according to the frontage thereof upon the real property fronting or abutting," etc.—as in 45 V. c. 23, s. 4,—the assessment being restricted in all cases to abutting property, and the only authorized method of dividing the cost being according to frontage. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 612 (4); 55 V. c. 42, s. 613, and also 55 V. c. 43, s. 66. Thus the law continued until 1896, when the section was re-enacted in its present form by 59 V. c. 51, s. 28 (1) (1896), which is practically a return in every case to the method which had been applied by 44 V. c. 24, s. 26 to cases where the work had been petitioned for. But see note (d), infra.

(a) "A rate according to the frontage." "The proportion of the cost of the work charged against each parcel of land must be an amount which bears the same proportion to the whole cost as the frontage of the parcel bears to the entire frontage of all the parcels of land which are found to be benefited." (c). Re Robertson and City of Chatham (d) was an application by the City for prohibition to the County Judge of Kent, to prevent the enforcement of his decision reducing the assessment of R.'s lands in respect of a sewer proposed to be constructed in one of the city streets. The lands abutting upon the street had been assessed for the sewer proposed at the uniform rate of 32 cents per foot of their frontage. The County Judge found that R.'s lands would be benefited, but not to an equal extent with other lands abutting upon the street; and he accordingly reduced R.'s assessment from $239.95 to $47.87. It was contended on behalf of R. that s. 664 (1) authorized a County Judge to determine "the proportions in which the assessment should be made on the various portions of the real estate benefited" by the work, and that the Act nowhere compelled the imposition of an arbitrary equal frontage rate upon each foot of benefited land along the whole street irrespective of the quantum of benefit.

But it was held (a) that the County Judge had no power to change an assessment of an equal rate per foot according to the frontage, to an unequal one, based upon his judgment of what would be a just and equitable share of the cost of the work to be charged upon R.'s land.

Per OSLER, J.A.:—

> "I think that under the present system the Legislature has expressed its intention that—at all events as regards properties fronting on the street in which the work or improvement is done and which are benefited thereby—the cost of the work is to be raised by an equal per foot frontage rate upon such properties, without regard to the fact that they may be unequally benefited; unless the council deem it inequitable to assess lands—which (like the appellant's) though fronting on the street in which the improvement is made, are unsuitable for building purposes,—at as high a rate as the building lots fronting on the same street, and [unless they] so determine by by-law under the authority of section 673 (6)." Per MACLENNAN, J.A.:—

> "The cost of the work is not only to be assessed, but levied by means of a rate according to the frontage. If the quantum of benefit were to be regarded, the frontage would be quite immaterial, and would afford no assistance in distributing the burden. Each owner would have to pay his proportion according to the amount of his benefit, whether his frontage was much or little. Having regard, therefore, to section 664 and section 665 (1), I think it is plain that the question of benefit is not an element to be regarded in making the assessment."

But, semble, the rate per foot on non-abutting property need not be the same as that on abutting property.

MEREDITH, C.J., was however of opinion (c) that where non-abutting—as well as abutting properties—are assessable for a work, although, as regards properties belonging to the same class,—i.e., abutting or non-abutting—the rate must be an equal one per foot, yet as between these two classes there may be a difference in the rate per foot; and OSLER, J.A.—concurring in this opinion—thought also that perhaps a different rate per foot might be imposed "in the case of corner or irregular lots provided for by s. 673 (4), and under that peculiar clause, s. 664 (6)."

What property may be assessed for a local improvement.

(b) "The real property immediately benefited."

Under ss. 665 (3), 673 (2) and 674 (2), express permission is given to assess property immediately benefited, other than that fronting or abutting upon the street, etc., whereon or wherein the improvement is made or to be made. It is not clear whether under this subsection—as it now stands—non-abutting property may not be assessed in every case where it is benefited.

Prior to 1882 (d), the assessability of real property for local improvements depended upon benefit alone: its situation was wholly immaterial. Thenceforward, until 1896, the special rate leviable under this subsection was restricted to property "fronting or abutting," etc.; and it was during this period that the above exceptions to that rule were created—s. 674 (2) having been passed in 1885, s. 673 (2) in 1888, and s. 665 (3) in 1892 (e). What property may be assessed for a local improvement.

tion of these sections in the Act since the amendment of 1896 is probably due to oversight; since there seems to be no reason why the words of this subsection should not now be construed in the same sense as the almost identical words of the Act of 1881 (a),—viz., as permitting the assessment of all property immediately benefited, whether it does or does not front or abut upon the street or place whereon or wherein the work or improvement is done or constructed.

It therefore becomes important to define the word "benefited" as used in the Act: a task by no means easy. The primary and natural meaning of the word is "increased in value;" and in order to determine whether or not property has been or will be "benefited," it is necessary to ascertain whether or not its market value has been or will be (b) enhanced by reason of the work (c). Yet there are cases in which a strict application of this test would result in no local assessment being possible under the wording of the Act; for it must often happen that the laying of a pavement or sidewalk has no perceptible effect, either actual or prospective, upon the value even of abutting property; and a fortiori is this the case where a pavement or sidewalk is renewed. It is therefore in many cases necessary that the assessment should be based upon locality rather than upon benefit; and the Act seems to contemplate such a course (d). Indeed it is apprehended that the property abutting upon a street in which any local improvement is constructed may always be assessed for its cost, unless the land is of such a character that no possible increase, even of personal convenience, can accrue to the owners or occupiers thereof (e).

Where, however, the strict test of benefit can be applied, it must be taken as the guide in determining what property shall be assessed; and every parcel, the value of which has been increased by reason of the work, must be charged, whether it abuts or does not abut upon the work or upon the improved street.

The word "immediately" does not refer to time, or to space; it means "directly," as also does the word "specially," which is used instead of "immediately" in ss. 665(3), 673(7). The use of either word is, indeed, unnecessary, since the expression "benefited by the work" conveys the whole idea,—viz., an in-

(e) In City of Toronto v. Canadian Pacific R. W. Co., 26 S. C. In Re Hodgins and City of Toronto, 23 A. R. 80 (1896), decided before the amendment of 1896, MACLENNAN, J. A., expressed the opinion (p. 89), that property on one side of a street could not be alone assessed; but there seems now to be nothing in the Act which forbids such an assessment, provided the benefit received by the lands on one side is distinguishable from that conferred upon those on the other. crease in value and consequent upon or due to the construction of the improvement. All property so increased in value must be assessed; and there is no authority whatever for the assessment of part only of the property benefited (a).

When it is found that the value of a parcel of property has been decreased by the construction of a work, it does not necessarily follow that it may not be assessed therefor, although the amount of any compensation payable to the owner for the damages occasioned by the work must (under s. 437) be reduced by deducting therefrom the amount of any benefit received (b). The property is nevertheless assessable, if there is any benefit at all to be so deducted: in other words,—if the value of the property would have been increased had no damage been suffered it is assessable as "benefited" property (c).

Provision in case of insufficient or excessive assessment.

(2) If in any case the first assessment for any such work or improvement proves insufficient, the council shall make a second or other additional assessment in the same manner, and so on until sufficient moneys have been realized to pay for such improvement or work, and if too large a sum has at any time been raised, the excess shall be refunded rateably to those to whom it was paid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 613 (2).

Taken from 43 V. c. 27, s. 10 (1880), the words "or other additional assessment" (line 3) having been inserted in 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890), in which also the words "work or" (line 1) were substituted for the word "local." See 46 V. c. 18, s. 612 (5); R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 612 (5). Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act" (R. S. O. c. 226), ss. 66, 74 et seq. and notes thereto post, Vol. II.

(c) "If the first assessment . . . . proves insufficient."

The insufficiency of the first assessment may be due either to an erroneous estimate, or to deviations and variations from, or even additions to, the work as originally planned (d).

(d) "The council shall make a second assessment in the same manner."

When the estimated cost has been assessed, and the estimate proves to have been too low, a second—and if necessary a third, fourth, etc.—assessment must be made under this sub-section, which is imperative.* The council has no power to assume any part of the cost of a local improvement except in those cases where express authority to do so is conferred by the Statute (e); but, in case an assessment by-law has been quashed, the council may probably exercise a discretion as to whether they will pass another in its place (f).

* The retention of the above subsection (2) in "The Municipal Act" is of doubtful expediency. The knowledge that when once a local improvement has been authorized the property owner must pay, pay, pay, till it is finished, has led (in many cases within the experience of the editor) to estimates of the cost of proposed works which turned out to be very far from the truth, as subsequently told by the assessment by-law. Here are a few specimens:

	Estimated cost.	Actual cost.
Extension of Margueretta St., Toronto	$ 8,200	$21,921 41
" Gladstone Avenue, Toronto	14,500	36,180 22
Rosedale Valley Road	27,500	69,532 73
Carlaw Avenue	14,600	46,770 88
Boswell Avenue	1,575	2,477 68
Total actual cost		$176,882 92
Total estimated cost	$66,375
Difference		$109,507 92

or an excess of 165 per cent. over the estimates.

A by-law passed under this sub-section should authorize the levy of no more than the amount by which the actual cost of the work has exceeded its estimated cost (a); and, though the levy of the total actual cost may have been authorized by a second by-law, it is apprehended that the first assessment by-law would still remain in force, since any by-law repealing it would be illegal under s. 392, supra.

Sec. 665, (2), (3), Notes (d), (e).

Notices under s. 671 (1), (2) must be given of the sitting of a Court of Revision to confirm every assessment imposed under this sub-section (b), unless s. 671 (8) has the effect of making these unnecessary where the supplementary assessment does not exceed 10 per cent. of the first one (c).

Assessment of cost of certain local improvements in townships.

(3) In the case of a township, any portion or which is situate within five miles of a city containing 50,000 inhabitants or over, if the council determine that any real property other than that fronting or abutting on the street, lane, alley, public way or place, or the portion thereof whereon or wherein the improvement made, or to be made, is specially benefited and ought to be charged with a part of the cost thereof, and determine the proportion in which the cost of the improvement is to be assessed against the land so benefited, the council may, upon the petition of three-fourths in number of the owners representing three-fourths in value of the lands to be benefited, assess and levy, by frontage rate in like manner as the same would be assessed and levied in the case of lands fronting or abutting upon the street, lane, alley, public way or place, or the portion thereof whereon or wherein the improvement is made or to be made, the proportion of the cost chargeable against the lands benefited, whether such lands do or do not front or abut upon such street, lane, alley, public way or place.

Provided, that, instead of assessing and levying by a frontage rate, the council may by by-law provide that the cost of the local improvement therein specified may be assessed and levied by a special rate upon the lands benefited thereby, according to the proportion of benefit received therefrom, instead of by a frontage rate. 55 V. c. 42, s. 613 (3); c. 43, s. 67.

Taken from 55 V. c. 43, s. 67 (1892), included in "The Consolidated Municipal Act" of that year (55 V. c. 42) as s. 613 (3). Some merely verbal amendments were made in the Revision of 1897.

(e) "Fronting or abutting on the street," etc. By s. 150 of "The Public Health Act, 1875," (d) provision is made for payment of the expenses of paving, sewering, lighting, etc., private streets within any urban district by the owners of the premises "fronting, adjoining or abutting" thereon; and these words have been frequently interpreted in England by judicial decision.

The general result of the cases is that all property from which there is a right of access to the street is assessable under the section, even though it is not actually contiguous to the street. It is not necessary, apparently, that there

(f) "If the council shall determine." The assessment by-law should recite this determination, following the words of the Statute.

(g) "Upon the petition," etc. It is essential to the validity of the by-law that the petition should be signed by the requisite number of owners, and that they should in fact be the owners of lands of the requisite value (d).

In 1883 (46 V. c. 18, s. 612 (6)) the enumeration of the works referred to was omitted, and the section was recast in its present form. The words "or improvements" (line 3) were inserted in 53 V. c. 50, s. 38. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 612 (6). The last clause from "and any ratepayer" (line 6) to the end of this section, were added in 1889 by 62 V. (2), c. 26, s. 41.

The section originally applied to cities only. It was extended to towns and villages in 1871 by 34 V. c. 30, s. 10, and to townships in 1887 by 50 V. c. 28, s. 48. Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R.S.O. c. 226), ss. 68, 69, and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

Local works to be kept in repair at general expense.

(a) This section imposes upon the municipality a duty which must not be confounded with the general duty to repair. That duty is one toward the public: this one is imposed for the benefit of the persons at whose expense the local improvement has been made (a). In Re Medland and City of Toronto (b) an application was made by a ratepayer for an order respecting the keeping in repair of a city street which had been constructed by placing cedar blocks upon a foundation of gravel. Although the estimated lifetime of the pavement had not yet expired, it was proved that its repair would involve the reconstruction of the wearing surface, the gravel foundation alone remaining. It was contended, on behalf of the applicant, that the duty imposed by this section must be performed by the municipality unless the council had, either upon their own initiative or upon petition, commenced the re-construction authorized by s. 664 (2),—but it was held that to repair this pavement involved its practical reconstruction, and that:—

"The duty to repair, imposed by s. 666, . . . ends when the time arrives when it becomes necessary to reconstruct the work or improvement, and whenever it is in such a condition that practical men would say of it that it is worn out and not worth repairing, the municipality cannot be compelled to do that which is, ex hypothesi, impossible to be done." (c)

Per Sir WILLIAM MEREDITH, C.J.:—

"Had it appeared that the present condition of the pavement was due to the municipality having in the past neglected the duty to repair, it may be that the answer to the motion which I decide to be a sufficient one, might not have been any answer."

(b) "Any ratepayer whose property adjoins and who has been assessed."

Who may make the application.

Both these qualifications are necessary to the status of the applicant. In Re Thompson and City of Toronto (d) a joint application under this clause was made by a husband and wife, the former, after he had been assessed for the work and prior to the application, having conveyed to the latter, the property adjoining the street, and upon which the status of the applicant was based. Held, that such a joint application is not within the Statute, and the order was refused.

62 V. (2), c. 26, s. 41.

667.—It shall be deemed to have been and to be a sufficient compliance with the provisions of section 664 if the council shall have passed or shall pass a general by-law or general by-laws, providing the means of ascertaining and determining what real property will be immediately benefited by any proposed work or improvement, the expense of which is proposed to be assessed upon the real property immediately benefited thereby, and of ascertaining and determining the proportions in which the assessment of the final cost thereof is to be made on the various portions of real estate so benefited, and it shall not be deemed to have been, or to be necessary to pass a special by-law in each particular instance for the purposes above mentioned. 55 V. c. 42, s. 615.

Council may undertake works on petition of owners to be benefited.

668.—(1) Upon the receipt of a petition praying for any of the works and improvements mentioned in the four preceding sections, signed by at least two-thirds in number of the owners of any real property to be benefited thereby, according to the last revised assessment roll of the municipality, such owners representing at least one-half in value of such real property—the number of such owners and the value of such real property as appears by the last revised assessment roll as aforesaid having been first ascertained and finally determined in the manner and by the means provided by by-law in that behalf—the council may take all proper and necessary proceedings for the execution and completion of the work or improvement with as little delay as possible, and after such final determination no name shall be removed from such petition without the consent of the Judge of the County Court. 55 V. c. 42, s. 616 (1); 58 V. c. 42, s. 31; 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 42 (1).

Sec. 668 (1). Notes (a), (b), (c).

Initiation of local improvements.

It was originally provided that (except where constructed with funds provided by the persons interested):—"No . . . local improvement shall be undertaken . . . otherwise than on the petition of one-third in number and one-half in value of the real property to be directly benefited thereby, of the owners of such real property." See 22 V. c. 16, s. 2 (1859), ante p. 890; C.S.U.C. c. 54, s. 390; 36 V. c. 48, s. 465; R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 552.

1. By petition of property-owners.

By 34 V. c. 30, s. 12 (1872) authority was given to the council to initiate local improvements without petition in certain cases, and this was extended to all cases by 45 V. c. 23, s. 4 (1882). (See small print note under s. 669 (1)).

In the Consolidation of 1883 (46 V. c. 18), the provision allowing their initiation by petition was omitted, but it was re-inserted in the following year by 47 V. c. 32, s. 21 (1884), upon which this section is based. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 612 (9). The words "according to the last revised assessment roll of the municipality" (lines 4, 5) were inserted in the Consolidation of 1890 (53 V. c. 50, s. 398), from which also some unnecessary words before "may take" (line 11) were omitted. The words between dashes (lines 7-11), which had been used in the early Statutes, were re-inserted in 1895 by 58 V. c. 42, s. 31, and the last three lines, from "and after such final determination," were added in 1898 by 62 V. (2), c. 26, s. 42 (1). Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act" (R.S.O. c. 226), s. 3 (1), post, Vol. II.

(a) "A petition." (a)

Contents of petition.

The petition must state the nature of the work desired; its locality (by metes and bounds), and the real property which will be benefited thereby. It would be advisable also to name the amount which the petitioners desire that the municipality should expend upon the work. In such a case the council would probably not be justified in letting the contract at a higher figure,—but if, after beginning the work, it is found that it will cost more than the amount named in the petition, the excess must also be levied (b).

(b) "Ascertain and finally determine in the manner provided by by-law."

How its sufficiency is determined.

The usual mode of determination is by a certificate of the clerk of the municipality. When a by-law has been passed providing the means of ascertaining and determining the number of the owners petitioning, and the value of the property which they represent, and when these matters have been determined in the manner so provided, a by-law, based upon such a petition, for assessing the cost of a local improvement will not, (in the absence of fraud), be open to attack on the ground that a sufficient number of owners have not in fact petitioned, or that those who have petitioned do not represent the necessary proportion of value (c). The "determination" of these matters must, however, be based on the area and assessment of the lands which it is alleged by the petitioners will be benefited by the work. If, as a matter of fact, other land is benefited and the area or assessment of the lands actually benefited is such that the petitioners—though upon the face of the petition they may appear to be sufficient in number and value—are not so in fact, this seems to be a ground for quashing the assessment by-law (d).

(c) "The council may take all proper and necessary proceedings."

Proceedings consequent thereupon.

Two courses are open to the council:—

1. A by-law may be passed (if a by-law is necessary) providing only for the construction of the work—(for which the petition is a sufficient authority)—; and, after the work has been completed, the notices required by s. 671 (1) (2) may be given, and an assessment by-law passed for levying the whole ascertained cost.

2. Notices of the sitting of the Court of Revision may be given under s. 671 (1) (2)—or (in a proper case) under s. 671 (3) (4) (e)—and provision made by one by-law for the execution of the work, for assessing its estimated cost, and for the issue of debentures. If, when the work is completed, this estimate is found to have been too low, a supplementary assessment by-law must be passed for levying the excess and authorizing the issue of further debentures (f).

Note (d).

"Owner" to include certain leaseholders.

(2) Where the word "owner" occurs in this Act in sections 664 to 686 both inclusive, 689 and 690, it shall be construed and deemed to include a leaseholder, the unexpired term of whose lease (including any renewals therein provided) extends over a period which is not less than the duration of the proposed assessment, if the lessee has covenanted in his lease to pay all municipal taxes on the demised property during the term of said lease, and would be liable for the taxes for the proposed improvements, and every such lessee shall have the same right to petition for or against any local improvement proposed to be constructed under this Act as if he were the owner of the property liable to be assessed therefor. 55 V. c. 42, s. 616 (2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (105).

Based on 19 V. c. 37, s. 2 (1886). Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890), which applied to all the local improvement sections except those corresponding to ss. 691-701. Its application was restricted as at present in the Revision of 1897.

Lessee's covenant "to pay taxes" does not (now) include local improvement rates.

(d) In leases made before September 1st, 1897, in pursuance of "The Short Forms of Leases Act," a covenant "to pay taxes" includes local improvement rates unless they are expressly excepted (a). In leases made since that date, it does not include such rates unless so specifically provided (b); and the form of lease given in Schedule B to R.S.O. c. 125 now contains an express exception of such rates (c).

Owner not to petition where lessee may.

(3) In any case where a lessee has the right to petition for or against any proposed improvement under the provisions of the last preceding subsection, the owner of the property in fee shall not have such right.

(a) This subsection and subsection 2 shall not apply to townships. 55 V. c. 42, s. 616 (3).

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890).

2. Initiation of certain local improvements for sanitary or drainage purposes.

(2) On Sanitary Grounds.

(4) If the council of any city, town or village upon the recommendation of the local board of health, affirm by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of the council at any regular meeting thereof, that it is desirable and necessary in the public interest to construct, make, enlarge or prolong a drain, sewer or sewers, for the purpose of draining a particular locality for sanitary or drainage purposes, as a local improvement, it shall not be necessary for such council to give notice of the proposed assessment for such local improvement, except the notice required by subsection 4 of section 671 of this Act, of the sitting of the Court of Revision for the purpose of hearing complaints against such proposed assessment.

(a) This shall not affect or impair the powers heretofore conferred upon any municipality by special Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 616 (4); 58 V. c. 42, s. 32.

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890), which applied only to cities and towns. Extended to villages by 58 V. c. 42, s. 32 (1895). An error in the original reference to the notice was corrected by 54 V. c. 42, s. 26 (1891).

(e) "Local board of health."

As to the constitution of the local board of health see "The Public Health Act," (R.S.O. c. 248), ss. 48-55. See also note (c) to s. 672.

(f) "Two-thirds of all the members of the council."

See note (b) to s. 24; and, as to the necessity of strictly observing this requirement, note (d) to s. 671.

(g) "Draining a . . locality . . for drainage purposes."

This seems to cover every case where it is in the public interest to make, enlarge or prolong a sewer.

(h) "Subsection 4 of section 671."

What "notice of the sitting of the Court of Revision" is intended to be referred to.

In "The Municipal Amendment Act, 1890" (a), s. 38,—in which this subsection first appears as s. 616 (4), the words are:—"It shall not be necessary . . to give notice of the proposed assessment . . except the notice of the Court of Revision . . that is required by s. 623 of this Act." The section referred to is s. 676 of the present Act (b). The draftsman probably intended to refer to s. 623 of R. S. O. (1887), c. 184 (c); and in reconsolidating the Act in 1892 the reference was accordingly altered,—regardless, however, of the fact that by the Act of 1890 the form of notice in the section referred to had been so altered as to apply only to cases where the assessment is made before the completion of the work. Moreover,—the restriction to that form of notice never was an appropriate one, since that notice applied only to improvements undertaken under the provisions of a general by-law providing for assessment upon abutting properties only, whereas the construction of sewers was one of the few cases in which non-abutting property might be assessed (d). It is therefore apprehended that, the conditions precedent having been fulfilled, the council may construct, enlarge or prolong, a drain or sewer, and, upon its completion, may adopt the procedure set out in s. 671 (1) (2). Since a petition against the work would be unavailing, it would seem useless to compel the the adoption of a procedure which may necessitate the holding of two Courts of Revision (e).

(3) On the Initiative.

3. Initiation of local improvements by the municipal council.

669.—(1) Any work or improvement mentioned in section 664 (2) of this Act, may be undertaken and the assessment of the cost thereof may be made upon the properties benefited thereby, unless the majority of the owners of such real property, representing at least one-half in value thereof, petition the council against the same within one month after the last publication of a notice of the intention of the council to undertake the said work, such notice to be inserted once in each week for two weeks in at least two newspapers published in the township, city, town or village, if there are two newspapers published therein; and, if not, then in a newspaper published nearest to the proposed improvement or work.

The method of initiating local improvements without petition was first recognized in 1871 by 34 V. c. 30, s. 12, under which cities and towns were empowered to do so under much the same conditions as are provided by this section, but only where the council assumed one-half the cost. See 36 V. c. 48, s. 466. By 43 V. c. 27, s. 12 (1880), cities, towns and villages were authorized to impose the whole cost without petition, provided that the local improvement system had been adopted by general by-law; and in 1882 their power was extended to other cases by 45 V. c. 23, s. 4. This was consolidated in the following year as s. 612 (4a) of 46 V. c. 18, which is identical with the existing section except in the omission of the first three lines thereof, the substitution of "notice of the intention of the council to undertake the said work" (line 7) for "notice of such assessment," and certain verbal amendments. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 612 (4a). The section was recast, into its present form, by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890).

Sec. 669 (1).

Notes (a)-(d).

Procedure when a local improvement has been initiated by the municipal council.

(a) "The majority of the owners."

A petition praying for a local improvement must be signed by at least two-thirds of the owners of the property to be benefited (a),—but where proceedings are initiated by the council, the petition of a bare majority is sufficient to block the work.

As to the manner of ascertaining and determining the number of owners petitioning, etc., see sub-s. (3), infra, and note (c) to s. 668.

(b) "Petition the council."

If a petition is presented within one month after the last publication of the notice mentioned in note (c), infra, the construction of the work must be abandoned; or (if constructed) it must be paid for out of the general rates. A by-law making a local assessment of its cost would be invalid (b).

If no petition is so presented the council may adopt any one of the following courses:—

1. They may authorize the work, passing a by-law for this purpose if necessary (c) and

(a) May meet its cost out of ready money on hand or moneys raised by loans under s. 672, leaving the assessment to be made when the work is completed (d), or

(b) They may give notices under s. 671 (1) (2), hold a Court of Revision, and pass (another) by-law assessing the estimated cost and authorizing the issue of debentures to meet it.

2. They may give the notices required by s. 671 (1) (2); hold a Court of Revision, and (after the assessment has been confirmed) pass one by-law authorizing the work, making the assessment, and providing for the issue of the necessary debentures.

3. In the cases to which s. 671 (3) (4) applies—they may cause the lands to be measured, the statement required by sub-s. 4 to be prepared, and notices in the form therein given to be published; then allow ten days to elapse; finally decide to undertake the work; hold the Court of Revision, and, at the last, triumphantly pass a by-law authorizing the work, making the assessment, and providing for the issue of debentures.

The first mentioned course "(1a)" is to be recommended. Unless it be adopted, matters will probably be still further complicated by the necessity for passing a supplementary assessment by-law to provide for the difference between the actual and the estimated cost and (sometimes) to authorize the issue of further debentures (e).

(c) "A notice."

The notice required by this sub-section is simply "a notice of the intention of the council to undertake the said work"—describing it (f). It is not, as under the Act of 1887 (g), a notice of a proposed assessment. It would therefore seem to be unnecessary to specify in the notice either the estimated cost of the work or the lands to be benefited thereby. By sub-s. 4a "such a notice, so given, shall stand good as the authority for undertaking any such work, improvement or service."

(d) "Once in each week for two weeks in at least two newspapers."

An omission to comply with this provision would doubtless invalidate the assessment (h). The notice of a proposed assessment and of the sitting of the Court of Revision under s. 671 (4) is required to be published in one newspaper only.

(2) In the event of any sufficiently signed petition as aforesaid against the proposed work or improvement being presented to the council, no second notice for the same shall be given by the council within two years thereafter.

(3) The number of the owners petitioning against the proposed improvement or work and the value of the real property which they represent, may be ascertained and finally determined in such manner and by such means as are provided by by-law in that behalf; and after such final determination no name shall be removed from the petition unless by the consent of the Judge of the County Court.

Determining number and value of property of petitioners.

Adopted from the provisions of 22 V. c. 40, s. 2 (1859) as to petitions for local improvements. See ante p. 896. Cf. 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 302; 36 V. c. 48, s. 465; R.S.O. (1877), c. 174 s. 552. The subsection in its present form is taken from 46 V. c. 18, s. 612 (4c), the words "proposed improvement or work" having been substituted for "assessment" by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38. The last three lines,—from "and after such final determination"—were inserted by 62 V. (2nd Sess.), c. 26, s. 42 (2).

(e) See note (b) to s. 668.

(4) When notice of a proposed improvement, work, or service to be paid for by special assessment as a local improvement, has been given by the council of any municipality pursuant to the provisions of this Act, and no petition sufficiently signed as aforesaid has, within the time limited in that behalf by this Act, been presented to the council against such proposed improvement, work or service and assessment it shall be lawful for the council, in the same or any succeeding year, to carry on the proposed work, improvement or service to completion before making the assessment therefor.

Completion of local improvements.

(a) A notice, so given, shall stand good as the authority for undertaking any such work, improvement or service, and for making such assessment or assessments, and passing all necessary by-laws, whether the same shall have been or shall be undertaken and completed by the council giving such notice or by any succeeding council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 617.

Taken from 49 V. c. 37, s. 40 (1886). See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 616; 53 V. c. 50, s. 38. Some verbal amendments were made in these Consolidations and in that of 1892. In that of 1897 the last three words were substituted for the words, "the council in any succeeding year."

(f) See note (b), ante, and s. 437.

(5) Any owner of real property to be benefited by the construction of any work or improvement, the cost of which is payable by local special assessment under sections 664 to 676 of this Act, may, notwithstanding that his name does not appear on the last revised assessment roll of the municipality, petition for or against such local improvement upon satisfying the clerk of the municipality by statutory declaration or otherwise that he is the owner of the property instead of the person assessed therefor upon such last revised assessment roll. 55 V. c. 42, s. 617*a*; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (106).

Owner whose name is not on assessment roll may petition.

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 41 (1891). The application of the section was extended from s. 668 to s. 676 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (106).

Notes (a); (a), (b).

Short Form of Local Improvement By-laws.

Words in column one of schedule to have same effect as words in column two.

670.—(1) Where a by-law made according to the form set forth in Schedule N annexed to this Act or any other by-law expressed to be made in pursuance of this section or referring thereto, passed by any municipal council for borrowing money by the issue of debentures secured by local special rates on the property benefited thereby, contains any of the forms of words contained in column one of Schedule O hereto annexed and distinguished by a number therein, such by-law shall be taken to have the same effect and shall be construed as if it contained the form of words contained in column two of said Schedule O, and distinguished by the same number, but it shall not be necessary in any such by-law to insert any such number.

By-laws failing to take effect hereunder.

(2) Any by-law which fails to take effect by virtue of this section, shall, nevertheless, be as effectual to bind the corporation, the council of which passed such by-law, as if this Act had not been passed.

Use of form to be optional.

(3) Nothing herein contained shall require any municipality to adopt the said form of by-law. 60 V. c. 47, ss. 1-3.

Passed in 1897. See the reference.

(a) This form of by-law is printed ante, at pp. 400-403.

Notice may be given in lieu of Advertising By-law.

Notice may be served on owners, etc., in lieu of advertising.

671.—(1) No by-law passed by the council of any township, city, town or village under the provisions of section 664 of this Act shall require to be advertised in any newspaper, but a written or printed, or partly written and partly printed notice of the sitting of the Court of Revision for the confirmation of every such special assessment shall be given to the owners and lessees having the right to petition, or to the agents of such owners and lessees. 55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (1); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (108).

Taken from 42 V. c. 31, s. 21 (1879). See 46 V. c. 18, s. 618; R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, c. 622; 53 V. c. 50, s. 38. By the Revision of 1892 some verbal amendments were made in the section as it appears in these Consolidations. In the Revision of 1897 the words "or published by the said council" were omitted after "advertised" (line 3). By 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (108), the words "of each parcel of real estate included in such by-laws and assessments" were omitted after "lessees" in the last line. The section applied originally only to cities, towns and villages. It was extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887).

(a) "By-law . . . under . . . section 664."

The by-law referred to is the assessment by-law authorized by s. 664 (2), (3). The section does not apply to a by-law which merely authorizes the construction of a work, without making any assessment of its cost. See note (b) to s. 664.

(b) "Owners and lessees having the right to petition."—i.e., all owners of property to be assessed, and all leaseholders who come within the description in s. 668 (2). The words "having the right to petition" are misleading; since the right to petition must have ceased to exist before this notice can be given (a).

(a) See note (b) to s. 664, note (c) to s. 668 and (b) to s. 669.

(c) "Agents of such owners and lessees."

The agent here referred to is probably a general agent with power to let, repair and act in all respects for the owner. An agent for a particular purpose —e.g. for sale—would, probably, not come within the meaning of the clause (a).

Contents of notice and how served.

(2) Every such notice shall contain a general description of the property in respect of which the same is given, and the nature of the proposed improvement, work or service, the total cost thereof, the amount of the proposed assessment on the particular piece of property, and the time and manner in which the same is to be payable, and shall be signed by the clerk, assessment commissioner or other officer appointed by the council for the purpose, and shall, at least fifteen days before the day appointed for the sitting of the Court, be mailed to the address of the person entitled to receive the notice. Ten days' notice of the time and place of the meeting of the said Court shall also be given by publication in some newspaper having a general circulation, which notice shall specify generally what such assessment is for and the total amount to be assessed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (2).

Taken from 42 V. c. 31, s. 21 (1899). Verbal amendments have been made in the various Consolidations from 1883 to 1897. See 46 V. c. 18, s. 618; R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 622; 53 V. c. 50, s. 38. Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act" (R.S.O. c. 226), s. 22, and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

Requirements of Act as conditions to the right to assess are strictly construed.

(d) The non-existence of any of the facts, or the omission to perform any of the duties prescribed by the Statute as necessary in order to confer upon the municipality jurisdiction to impose a local assessment (b), or any substantial departure from the prescribed mode of procedure, will vitiate the assessment (c).

Notice of every local assessment must be given to the persons intended to be affected thereby (d), and the corporation must be prepared to show that the statutory provisions in this respect have been strictly followed. Evidence that notices in the usual form have been posted is insufficient. A certified copy must be produced, so that the Court can upon view of the notices decide whether or not they comply with the requirements of the Act (e).

The by-law must correspond with the notice. Where the notice given was for a macadam roadway, to cost $17,710 and to be paid for by local assessment in five and twenty equal instalments, an assessment by-law founded upon it for a macadam and granite sett roadway with stone curbing, constructed at a cost of $21,320, of which $7,860 was to be raised by local assessment in five annual instalments, the balance being assumed by the city, was quashed with costs (f).

Notice of proposed assessment: not proposed improvement.

(e) "Proposed improvement."

The word "proposed" is (now) misleading. It occurred in the section as originally passed in 1879, and should have been excised in 1883, when councils were authorized to defer the making of an assessment until after the completion of the work. These notices should not be given until just before the assessment by-law is to be passed, so that the statement upon which it is based may be corrected up to the latest possible moment. The Court of Revision may, however, be held as soon as the work is determined upon, although no assessment is to be made until after its completion; but, if in such a case, the actual cost of the work exceeds its estimated cost by more than 10 per cent., a second Court of Revision will be necessary (a).

When By-law General and Rate a Frontage Rate.

Where special rate is a frontage rate general description sufficient when by-law has been passed under s. 667.

(3) Where notice of the intention of the council to undertake any work or improvement is given under the provisions of a general by-law passed under section 667, which provides, or is intended to provide, that the special rate to be assessed therefor shall be an annual rate according to frontage upon the real property fronting or abutting upon the street or the portion of street or place whereon or wherein the improvement or work is proposed to be done or made, it shall be sufficient if the notice of the proposed work or improvement describes the street or place or portion thereof whereon or wherein the work or improvement is to be done or made by a general description thereof, stating the points between which it is to be made. It shall not be necessary in such cases to state the value of the real property rateable for the work or improvement, or to impose a rate upon such real property by any description other than that hereinbefore mentioned. 55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (3).

Statement and Notice in Such Cases.

Notice of by-law and sitting of Court of Revision

(4) In cases within the preceding subsection the council shall procure a measurement to be made of the frontages liable to assessment for the cost of the proposed work or improvement, and of the frontages exempt from taxation, and shall, for at least ten days before its final decision to undertake the said proposed work or improvement, keep a statement of the same open for inspection in the office of the clerk of the municipality. The council shall also cause to be inserted once a week for two successive weeks in a public newspaper published within the municipality or in the county town, or in a public newspaper published in the nearest municipality in which a public newspaper is published a notice in the form following or to the like effect:

Statement and notice when by law general and rate a frontage rate.

55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (4).

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 38 (1885), slight amendments having been made in the various Consolidations from 1887-1897. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 185, s. 623; 53 V. c. 50, s. 38.

(f) Sub-sections 3 and 4 authorize a mode of procedure which may be followed instead of that prescribed by s. 671 (1)(2)—when so provided by by-law,—when the work is initiated by the council,—when only the abutting property is to be assessed,—when the rate is a frontage rate,—and when the council has adopted the policy of assessing the estimated cost before undertaking the work. These sub-sections appear now to be wholly unnecessary; and they are certainly misleading. The procedure which they authorize can be adopted in but a few cases; it is very intricate (a); and some of the provisions indicate that the draftsman was wholly unfamiliar with the general scheme of the Act. The reference in sub-section 3 to a notice "given under the provisions of a general by-law passed under s. 667" is clearly wrong, the notice which is intended being that provided by s. 669 (1); and the provision in sub-section 3 that the council shall not finally decide to undertake the work until the statement has been for ten days kept open for inspection, necessitates a perfectly useless delay, since either the time for petitioning against the work has elapsed, or—if it has not—s. 669 precludes the council from taking any action. The notices effect no economy, either of time or of expense; and while the adoption of this procedure may save the municipal clerk some trouble, it obliges every interested property owner to visit the clerk's office, in order that he may be able to determine whether or not he should appeal from the assessment of his property.

A clumsy method of procedure.

Appeals to Court of Revision and County Judge.

(5) From any such proposed assessment there shall be the same right of appeal to the Court of Revision, and from the Court of Revision to the County Judge, as is provided in The Municipal Drainage Act, and the proceedings thereon shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act, be the same (as nearly as practicable) as in the case of appeals from ordinary assessments under The Assessment Act, and the Court of Revision and the County Judge shall respectively have the like jurisdiction, rights and powers in respect to every such appeal as in the case of such last mentioned appeals. 55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (5).

Appeals from Court of Revision. Rev. Stat. c. 226.

Rev. Stat. c. 224.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 38 (1895). Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R. S. O. c. 226), ss. 33 et seq. and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

(g) This subsection was passed at the same time as the two which immediately precede it, having (presumably) been added in order to preserve the right of appeal in cases where the procedure authorized by subss. 3 and 4 was followed in lieu of that provided by subss. 1 and 2. It may possibly apply only in those cases (b); but it confers upon the Court of Revision and the County Judge a power which is not expressly given by s. 664 (1*a*). That clause gives only "the same right of appeal as is provided for by 'The Municipal Drainage Act,'"—ss. 32-47 of which confer no express power to amend the statement in respect of the names of the persons chargeable. This subsection gives to the Court of Revision and County Judge the like jurisdiction to that which they respectively possess in appeals under "The Assessment Act,"—which includes the power of adding or striking out the names of persons erroneously omitted from or inserted in the roll (a). It is difficult to see why the Court and Judge should not be held to possess this power in every case of local assessment, whether under subss. 1 and 2, or under subss. 3 and 4; since it is necessary not only that the proper lands should be assessed, but that the list of the persons who are to be charged in respect of them should also be correct (b).

Powers of County Judge in cities and towns.

Rev. Stat. c. 224.

(6) Wherever, in cities and towns, an appeal lies from the Court of Revision to the County Judge under sections 664 to 676 inclusive, the said County Judge in addition to his other powers under this Act and The Assessment Act, may, inquire and determine what lands (if any) other than those included in the assessment appealed from are or will be specially benefited by the proposed work or improvement and may add such lands to the lands to be assessed, notwithstanding that such lands may not have been specified in any notice of appeal to the said Judge; and the said Judge shall cause all persons who may be affected by the addition of their lands to the lands so to be assessed, to be notified of the time and place when the said appeal and matter will be considered, and may for that purpose, from time to time, adjourn the hearing of the said appeal. 55 V. c. 42, s. 623*a*.

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (last clause), some verbal amendments having been made in the Revision of 1897.

(h) To decide what lands are benefited by a work is within the competence of the Court of Revision and of the County Judge upon appeal, not in cities and towns only, but in every municipality (c). The effect of this subsection would seem to be to confer upon the County Judge original jurisdiction to add to the statement any benefited lands omitted therefrom in the case of an assessment in a city or town.

Powers of County Judge restricted in certain cases.

Provided that the said County Judge shall not have power, in case the assessment is duly made in accordance with a by-law for ascertaining and determining what real property is immediately benefited by such work or improvement, to interfere with or alter the said statement as to the lands liable to pay the said assessment unless and only so far as:

(a) Upon the evidence he finds that they have been incorrectly measured, or

(b) Unless lands other than those fronting or abutting upon the street, or place, or portion of a street whereon the work or improvement is proposed to be done or made, are alleged to be benefited and are brought into the scheme or assessed therefor, or

(c) Unless the proportion of assessment of corner lots, triangular or other irregular pieces of land situate at the intersections or junctions of streets, has to be modified on appeal to him, or

(d) Unless the share to be borne by the municipality in his judgment should be changed, or

(e) Unless he finds that the property in respect of which an appeal is brought cannot, from its situation, be benefited by such work or improvement,

Powers of County Judge restricted in certain cases.

and in each such case the said Judge shall only interfere with or alter the assessment of the said lineal frontage so far as may be necessary to carry into effect any of the changes which are occasioned by his judgment. 59 V. c. 51, s. 28 (2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (121).

Taken from 59 V. c. 51, s. 28 (2) (1896)—the words from "to interfere with" (lines 5, 6) to the end of clause (b), having been substituted by 60 V. c. 13, Sched. C. (121) for those used in the earlier Act.

(i) The interpretation of this subsection presents many difficulties. It applies only to "an assessment made in accordance with a by-law for ascertaining and determining what real property is immediately benefited" by a work. No such by-law is authorized by the Act (a). A by-law may be passed for providing the means of ascertaining this and other facts (b); and, after they have been ascertained and determined by the means thus provided, an appeal lies to the Court of Revision, and from the Court of Revision to the County Judge, to correct any errors which may have been made. But when an assessment has been imposed by by-law upon certain property, neither the Court of Revision nor the County Judge has power to amend or alter the by-law, or to interfere with its legal operation. Any attack upon it must be by way of motion to quash or by one of the modes specified in note (h) to s. 378. It is possible that the sub-section was meant to read:—"In case a proposed scale of assessment has been prepared in accordance with a by-law for providing the means for ascertaining," etc.; but this, of course, is merely a conjectural emendation.

Some problems for Judges to solve.

Apart, however, from this initial difficulty, the effect of the sub-section is doubtful. Clauses (a) (b) (c) and (e) enumerate the ordinary powers of the Court of Revision and County Judge (c),—but the inclusion of clause (d), in a sub-section professedly intended to restrict the powers of the County Judge (d), is wholly inexplicable. The council may, in certain cases, exercise a discretion as to whether they will or will not assume part of the cost of a local improvement (e); and it is surely not intended that this clause should empower a County Judge to abrogate their decision (f). If he may do so, the procedure by which his interference may be procured is not clear. The Court of Revision has certainly no power to consider the matter; and provision is nowhere made (g) for the exercise by the County Judge of any function other than the hearing and determining of appeals from that Court.

When Assessment Becomes Final.

(7) The statement referred to in the two preceding subsections unless so far as the same is altered or varied by the Court of Revision or the County Judge upon appeal shall be final and conclusive as to all matters therein contained. 55 V. c. 42, s. 618 (6).

Assessment unless altered on appeal, to be conclusive.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 38 (1885), as re-arranged in the Revision of 1897. Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R.S.O. c. 226), s. 51, post, Vol. II.

(c) See note (e) to s. 664. (d) See the side-note to the subsection.
(e) See ss. 673 (4), 674 (1), 678 (1), 679 (1), by none of which is an appeal given in respect of the amount assumed by the council.

Notes (j), (k); (a).

(j) After—and not until after—the statement has become final and conclusive as in this subsection provided, should the assessment by-law be passed (a). The by-law must follow the statement in respect of the land to be charged and the rates per foot frontage. The other matters dealt with by the statement need not appear in the by-law.

Second Court of Revision when unnecessary.

(8) Where the proposed assessment has been regularly brought before a Court of Revision and the County Judge, (in case there has been an appeal to such County Judge), and where there is in force in the municipality a by-law passed under the provisions of section 667 of this Act, it shall not be necessary to submit to another Court of Revision the by-law for the actual cost of the work or improvement when such actual cost does not exceed by more than ten per cent. the estimated cost thereof as submitted to the Court of Revision. 59 V. c. 51, s. 29.

Taken from 59 V. c. 51, s. 29 (1899), as re-arranged in the Revision of 1897.

Another unsatisfactory clause.

(k) The procedure apparently contemplated by the draftsman of this section is unnecessarily cumbrous and ineffective. The Court of Revision to confirm an assessment should not be held until just before the assessment by-law is to be passed (b), whether this is prior to the commencement of the work or not until after its completion (c). That the sitting of the Court should be held before the commencement of the work, when no assessment is intended to be imposed until it is completed, is both unnecessary and unwise. Such a course has nothing to recommend it; especially as a second sitting of the Court will be thereby rendered necessary if the actual cost of this work exceeds its estimated cost by more than 10 per cent. The first sitting will in that case have been wholly useless.

Power to Incur Debts for the Cost of Local Improvements.

Power to borrow funds for local improvements.

672.—(1) For the purpose of enabling councils to avoid the necessity of making supplementary assessments or of refunding in case of over assessments, and for the purpose of ascertaining the exact cost of any work or improvement, done or constructed as a local improvement under the provisions of this Act, the council of any local municipality may make agreements with any bank, or with any person or body corporate for temporary advances and loans for meeting the cost of the work and improvement, until the completion thereof, and may in their option make the special assessments for the cost thereof, after the work or improvement has been completed, and may then pass the necessary by-law authorizing the issue of debentures to repay the amount of the temporary loan or advance. 55 V. c. 42, s. 619 (1).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 617 (1),—the words "the council of any local municipality" (line 6) having been substituted for the word "they" in the Revision of 1897.

The former procedure.

(a) Until the enactment of this section (in 1883) municipal councils were obliged, before a local improvement could be commenced, to pass a local assessment by-law for its estimated cost and to provide for the issue of debentures to raise the amount required. If their estimate proved too low, a second by-law became needful, upon the completion of the work, to assess the difference and to authorize the issue of debentures to repay it. Under this section, however, an alternative mode of procedure is authorized. The cost of the work may be met by means of loans from a bank, etc.; and, when the work has been completed, a single by-law may be passed making the assessment and authorizing

(a) See note (b) to s. 664.

(b) See note (d) to s. 671.

(c) See note (c) to s. 668, and note (b) to s. 669.

the issue of the necessary debentures (a). The two modes of procedure are mutually exclusive. If the old system is followed, the council has no power to effect a loan under this section (b); and in such cases the expenditure must be met by the issue of debentures (c).

(b) "The cost thereof." There is no power under "The Municipal Act" to assess any amount less than the whole cost of the work, except where the council are compelled to assume a share, or where they have a discretion so to do and have exercised that discretion (d).

Time for repayment of loans.

(2) Every by-law passed under the preceding sub-section for borrowing money by the issue of debentures as aforesaid, shall provide for the repayment of the loan and the maturing of the debentures to be issued pursuant to such by-law, within the probable life of the work or improvement for which such debt has been incurred, as certified by the engineer, or other proper officer to be appointed by the council for that purpose. 55 V. c. 42, s. 619 (2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (107).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 617 (2),—the words "under the preceding sub-section" (line 1) and "by the issue of debentures as aforesaid" (line 2) having been inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (107) (1897). Cf. "The Municipal Drainage Act," (R.S.O. c. 226), ss. 53 et seq., and the notes thereto, post, Vol. II.

(c) Before 1897 (e) this sub-section applied to "every by-law for borrowing money" [for a local improvement]; but in that year its scope was restricted to by-laws passed after the completion of a work or improvement the cost of which has been met in the first instance by means of loans procured under the preceding sub-section. Where this method has been adopted, the debentures must be made payable within the estimated lifetime of the work; but, if an assessment of the estimated cost is made, and the debentures are issued before the work is undertaken (f), the period of time during which they may run is, in ordinary cases, 20 years, and, in the case of debentures to pay for sewers, 30 years (g). It is probable that the period over which the assessments extend must be in all cases identical with that within which the debentures are made payable (h).

Where a local assessment by-law has been quashed, a new one may be passed.

(3) If a debt has been incurred by a local municipality for any work done or improvement constructed under the provisions of this Act, and if after the incurring of the said debt the special assessment for such work or improvement or the by-law providing for borrowing money therefor is set aside or quashed, either wholly or in part, on the ground of any irregularity or illegality in making such assessment or passing such by-law, it shall be lawful for the council, and they are hereby authorized, to cause a new assessment or assessments to be made, and to pass a new by-law, so often as may be necessary to provide funds for the payment of the debt so incurred for such work or improvement. 55 V. c. 42, s. 619 (3).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 617 (3). See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 627 (3).

Notes (d)-(g).

(d) The power conferred by this sub-section is apparently discretionary; but see s. 682 (1) and note (a) thereto.

Where a local assessment by-law has been quashed,

(e) In Banque Ville Marie v. Morrison (a), where assessment rolls by which local improvement rates had been imposed had been set aside or lost, and legislative authority was granted for the preparation of new rolls, it was held that the vendor of property, a conveyance of which was made after the loss of the first set of rolls, but before authority had been given to prepare the second, was not liable to pay such rates under his warranty that all taxes had been paid; since both sets of rolls could not be in force at the same time, and the taxes for the work were, therefore, not legally imposed until after the date of the conveyance (b).

But only if improvement has been properly initiated.

(4) Nothing herein contained shall be construed as authorizing any assessment to be made, or any work or improvement to be undertaken, unless the same has been initiated in some one of the three methods by law provided, namely:

(a) Either on the report of the engineer or other sanitary officer, and of a committee of the council, adopted by the council, recommending the proposed work or improvement for sanitary or drainage purposes, or

(b) On a sufficiently signed petition of the owners of the real property to be benefited, or

(c) After due notice, as above provided, of the proposed assessment and no sufficiently signed petition of the owners, as hereinbefore defined, of the real property benefited being presented to the council against the proposed assessment within the time limited therefor. 55 V. c. 42, s. 619 (3), part.

(b) Clause (a). This section was passed in 1883; but s. 668 (4)—which was passed in 1890—does not require a report from an engineer or other officer, and substitutes "the local board of health" for "a committee of the council."

SPECIAL PROVISIONS AS TO ASSESSMENTS FOR CERTAIN LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

As to Sewers.

Cost of sewers.

673.—(1) In ascertaining and determining the cost of draining any locality or of making and laying or prolonging any common sewer, the council of any township, city, town or village, may estimate the cost of the construction of branch drains from the drain or sewer to the line or street and may, in making the assessment for such drains or sewers, include the cost of such branch drains as part of the cost of the local improvement. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (1).

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 49 (1887), which applied only to cities, towns and villages; extended to townships by s. 48 of the same Act. Some verbal amendments have been made in the various Consolidations. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 613; 53 V. c. 50, s. 38.

When non-abutting property may be assessed for sewers.

(2) Where in order to afford an outlet for the sewerage and drainage of real property other than that fronting or abutting upon the street in which a sewer is constructed, such sewer has been constructed of a larger capacity than that required for the efficient sewerage and drainage of the real property fronting or abutting upon the street, the council may impose a special assessment upon any other real property benefited by the construction of such sewer in the manner provided by sections 671 and 672 of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (2); c. 43, s 68.

Sec. 673 (2), (3), (4).

Notes (a), (b).

When non-abutting property may be assessed for a sewer.

Taken from 54 V. c. 28, s. 33 (1890): a clerical amendment having been made by 55 V. c. 43, s. 68 (1892). The reference to ss. 671, 672 is a mistake. The sections intended are ss. 674, 675, which were referred to in the clause as first enacted in 1888 by their numbers in R. S. O. (1887), c. 184 (ss. 618, 619). In the consolidation of the local improvement sections in 1890, these numbers were changed; and the resulting mistake has since remained uncorrected. See per MEREDITH, C. J., in Re Robertson and City of Chatham, 30 O. R. 158 (1899), at p. 177.

(a) This subsection was probably rendered unnecessary by the amendment of s. 665 (1) in 1896. See note (b) to that section. As to the municipality's share of the cost of sewers in certain cases, see s. 664 (5) and notes (g) (h) and (i) thereto.

(3) In case the council of a municipality is about to construct, renew or alter the character of a pavement on any street, highway or public place, or portion thereof, as a local improvement, the council may, before putting down such pavement, put in all necessary private drain connections from any existing drain or sewer upon such street or portion thereof to the street line on each side of the drain or sewer, and also all necessary water mains, and may assess and levy the cost thereof, and of any alterations of service pipes and stop-cocks, thereby necessitated, against the properties benefited thereby as part of the cost of the said local improvement, pursuant to the provisions of section 664 of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (3).

Private drains, water mains, service pipes, etc., may be included in cost of pavement.

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 38 (1889),—the words "and all necessary water mains" (lines 7, 8), and "and of any alterations of service pipes and stop-cocks thereby necessitated" (lines 9-10) having been inserted by 54 V. c. 42, s. 27 (1890).

As to Corner and Irregular Lots.

(4) The council of every township, city, town and village may, by by-law, provide an equitable mode of assessing for local improvements, works and services, corner lots, triangular or other irregular shaped pieces of land situate at the intersections or junctions of streets, having due regard to the situation, value and superficial area of such lots, as compared with adjoining lots and pieces of land assessable for such improvements, works and services, and may charge the amount of any allowance made on any such lot or piece of land, on the other real property fronting on the improvements, or may assume the same as a portion of the municipality's share of the works or improvements. Any such assessment shall be subject to appeal to the Court of Revision and from the Court of Revision to the County Judge as in this Act provided. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (4).

Assessment of corner lots, for local improvements.

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 613,—some verbal amendments having been made in subsequent Consolidations. The subsection was extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887). See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s 614.

(b) This subsection applies only to corner lots. The assessment of irregular(ly)-shaped pieces of land, which are not situate at the intersections or junctions of streets, cannot be varied. The apparent intention of the enactment is to confer upon the municipality power to pass a general by-law "for providing an equitable mode," etc.; but it would be practically impossible to draw such a by-law in which due regard could be had to the situation, value and superficial area of every corner lot in the municipality as compared with adjoining assessable lots. Moreover, this section does not authorize the passing of such a by-law applicable to cases where the only adjoining property is not "assessable for the improvement," —e. g., where it is exempt property. Yet such a case is clearly within the spirit of the enactment. Some municipalities have passed by-laws providing for the exemption of a certain number of feet of a corner lot, or of a proportion of the whole frontage ("flankage allowances"); but this does not seem to be in accordance with the literal requirements of the subsection. It is therefore suggested—though with some hesitation and doubt—that, as a mode of complying with the evident intention of the clause, the by-law should direct the engineer to suggest in his report upon each individual case what he considers to be a fair proportion to be borne by each such lot (a), and that the council should exercise its discretion in accepting, rejecting or varying this recommendation, and as to whether the amount of the rebate (if any) shall be assumed by the municipality or added to the amount to be levied from the remaining properties. The jurisdiction of the Court of Revision and the County Judge would then seem to be confined to seeing that the provisions of s. 665 (1) are complied with (b).

By-law respecting assessment of corner lots for local improvements.

Refund of part of special rate for local improvements imposed on corner lots, prior to March 30th, 1885, etc.

(5) The council of any township, city, town or village may, by a two-thirds vote of the council, pass by-laws to remit and refund so much of the special rates imposed prior to the 30th day of March, 1885, on corner lots or irregular pieces of land for the construction of pavements and sidewalks under local improvement by-laws as may be necessary to equalize the assessment made on adjoining properties for the same improvement or work, and may provide the amount of all rates so remitted or refunded by passing by-laws for borrowing money by the issue of debentures, or by including said amounts in the rate bills for the year. No such remission or refund shall be made in any case where the work or improvement was made or constructed more than four years before the passing of the by-law authorizing the refund or remission. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (5).

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 35 (1885)—the words "made on such property with the assessment" having been omitted after "assessment" (line 7) in the Revision of 1897. The subsection was extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887). See R. S. O. (1887), c. 154, s. 615.

(c) This subsection is now probably effete. It confers power to remit or refund only in the case of an assessment imposed before March 30th, 1885, for a work finished within the last four years. It is at least unlikely that there is any existing pavement or sidewalk which fulfils these conditions.

Lands on same street unequally benefited.

Determining proportion of cost of work in special cases.

(6) Where the lands on either side of a street, lane, or alley in a city, town or village are, in the opinion of the council, unfit from any cause for building purposes, and the council deems it inequitable to assess the same for local improvements at so high a rate as the building lots fronting on said street, lane or alley, the council shall, in all such cases, determine in what proportion the cost of any such improvement shall be borne by the lands on each side of said street, lane, or alley, respectively. 55 V. c. 51, s. 620 (6).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 614. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 617.

(b) See note (d) to s. 664 and note (a) to s. 665.

(d) This section applies only when all the lands on one side of the street are building lots and all on the other side are unfit for building purposes. In Quebec, it has been held that a similar power was implied where the Statute merely directed that part of the cost of a work should be borne by the frontagers (a).

Secs. 673 (6), (7), 674 (1).

Notes (d)-(f).

Where all the lands on one side of a street are unfit for building purposes.

The reduction of the rate (in a proper case) is wholly within the discretion of the council. If they have not chosen to exercise their power, the property owner has no right, before the Court of Revision or elsewhere, to insist upon its exercise. If they have exercised it, the proportions fixed by them are not subject to review (b).

Lands Fronting on Parks, Boulevards, etc.

Assessment for works on boulevards, etc.

(7) Real property adjoining and fronting on any park, square, public drive or boulevard shall be specially assessable for and in respect of the improvements, works and services made, done or provided upon or in any such drive or boulevard in like manner as real property fronting or abutting upon any public street, but where a public park, square, drive or boulevard exists or may hereafter be established, the lands adjoining it not exempt from taxation shall be assessable only in respect of such improvements, works and services to the extent to which such lands are specially benefited by such improvements, works and services; and where the lands on one side of such drive or boulevard are a public park or square, or for other reasons are exempt from taxation, at least one half of the cost of such improvements, works and services shall be borne by the municipality generally.

(a) No petition shall avail to prevent the carrying out of any local improvement, work or service in any such park, square, drive or boulevard, and the making of special assessments therefor as aforesaid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 620 (7).

Taken from 52 V. c. 36, s. 39 (1889).

In the case of an assessment under this section the Court of Revision and the County Judge have jurisdiction to determine the quantum of benefit received by each parcel of property, as well as to decide the matters which are within their jurisdiction in other cases (c).

Property not fronting or abutting may be assessed.

Cost of constructing bridges or culverts and of opening and extending streets.

674.—(1) Where in the opinion of the council of any township, city, town or village it is expedient and necessary to construct or repair bridges or culverts on any street, lane or alley, or to open up and extend any street, lane or alley within the limits thereof for the more immediate convenience or benefit of any locality within such limits, and the council is of opinion that from any cause it is inequitable to charge the whole of the cost of the improvement on the lands fronting thereon, the council shall determine what lands are benefited by such works or improvements, and the proportion in which the cost thereof shall be assessed against the land so benefited, and also the proportion, if any, of the cost of the improvement, which shall be assumed by the township, city, town or village as its share thereof:

(a) The share or proportion of the cost of such improvement assumed by the municipality may be provided for by the issue of debentures upon the credit of the municipality at large in like manner as in the case of the share of the municipality of other local improvements.

(b) All assessments made under the above provisions shall be subject to an appeal to the Court of Revision and from the Court of Revision to the County Judge in like manner as in the case of other special assessments for local improvements under the provisions of this Act. 55 V c. 42, s. 621 (1).

Taken from 46 V. c. 18, s. 615 (1883) and 48 V. c. 39, s. 33 (1885). The former refers to the construction, etc., of bridges ,and contains all the rest of this section except the provisions as to streets—clause (a)—and the last three lines immediately preceding that clause. The latter section, (48 V. c. 39, s. 33), refers to the extension, etc., of streets; and it contains the whole of this section except the provisions as to bridges. The consolidation of the two sections was effected by 50 V. c. 29, ss. 42, 43 (1887). See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 618—a verbal error in which was corrected by 51 V. c. 28, s. 36 (1888).

(a) "The opening up and extension."

The conjunction is important. It is apprehended that the provisions of this section would not apply where a new street opened is not an extension of one already existing.

(b) "The council shall determine what lands are benefited."

This is remarkable as the only instance—except under s. 688—in which the Act permits the council to exercise any judgment upon the question "what lands are benefited?"—and since under clause (a) an appeal lies to the Court of Revision and the County Judge—who, as in other cases, are finally to decide it—an interim determination by the council seems to be useless. The question is one, not of discretion, but of fact; and it cannot be affected by any decision on the part of the council.

(c) "The proportion . . . . . which shall be assumed."

It is only under this subsection that the council is authorized to assume an unlimited share of the cost of a local improvement (a); and in the case of the construction of bridges and culverts, the power here conferred is narrowed by s. 675, which fixes the limit of the municipality's share at one-half the total cost of the work (b).

(d) Clause (a). So soon as the council has arrived at its decision, a by-law providing for the issue of debentures to meet that part of the cost of the work which they determine to assume, must be passed. The municipality cannot be charged with a payment for which no provision is made either in the estimates or by the issue of debentures (c).

(2) In the case of the construction or repair of a bridge or culvert, or the opening up and extension of any street, lane or alley—if the council determines that any real property other than that fronting or abutting on the street, lane or alley, or the portion thereof whereon or wherein the improvement is made, or to be made, is specially benefited, and ought to be charged with a part of the cost thereof, and determines the proportion in which the cost of the improvement shall be assessed against the lands so benefited—the council shall assess and levy the proportion of the cost chargeable against the lands benefited by, but not fronting or abutting upon such street, lane, or alley by a frontage rate, in like manner as the same would be assessed and levied in the case of lands fronting or abutting upon the street, lane or alley, or the portion thereof whereon or wherein the improvement is made or to be made. 55 V. c. 42, s. 621 (2).

Assessment of non-abutting lands benefited by certain improvements.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 34 (1885),—the words "or the portion thereof" (lines 5, 14) having been inserted, and the words "of the improvement" after the word "cost" (line 10) omitted, by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890). See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 619 (1). The insertion of the word "by" (line 11) after "benefited" in the Revision of 1897 is evidently an error.

(f) It is probable that non-abutting property is now assessable wherever it has received any benefit, and that this subsection is therefore no longer necessary (a).

(3) Or in the case of a township, the council may, by by-law, provide that the cost of the works therein specified may be assessed and levied by a special rate upon the lands benefited thereby according to the proportion of benefit received therefrom instead of by a frontage rate, as hereinbefore provided. 55 V. c. 42, s. 621 (3), part.

Purchase of Works or Improvements already Constructed.

(4) In the case of a township, where the owners of real property have constructed works or improvements which might have been constructed by the municipality as local improvements, the council may, upon the petition of three-fourths of the owners of lands to be benefited by the acquisition of such works or improvements, representing at least two-thirds in value thereof, acquire the same at a price to be fixed by arbitration pursuant to this Act, and the purchase money therefor may be raised, assessed and levied, as for local improvements upon the real property benefited thereby, as above provided.

Purchase (by township) of works already constructed, e.g., the Rosedale Ravine Bridge, Toronto.

Taken from 51 V. c. 28, s. 37 (1888),—the words "agreement or" before "arbitration" (line 7), and the words "to the Judge of the County Court" before "appeal," (line 6 of clause (a)) having been struck out by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890). Subsections 1 and 4 of s. 674 originally formed one section. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 619 (2).

(g) Clause (a). "Subject to appeal as in the case of other local special assessments."

The number of owners petitioning, and the value of the property which they represent, is in no other case subject to appeal, but is to be settled in the manner provided by a by-law (a). It is therefore apprehended that in this case there is no appeal. It was probably the intention of the Legislature that there should be an appeal from an assessment imposed under this section; and such a right undoubtedly exists, notwithstanding the absence of any express provision on the subject (b).

When the Corporation may pay half the Cost of Bridges, etc.

Where council declares the whole municipality to be benefited by the construction of a bridge, etc.

675. In any case where a council affirms by a two-thirds vote thereof that the constructing, erecting or making of any bridge, culvert or embankment benefits the municipality at large, and that it would be inequitable to raise the whole cost of such improvement or work by local special assessments, the council may pass a by-law for borrowing money by the issue of debentures upon the credit of the municipality at large to provide as the corporation's share of the cost of such improvement or work an amount not exceeding one-half of the whole cost thereof; and no such by-law shall require the assent of the electors before the final passing thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 622.

Taken from 50 V. c. 29, s. 43 (1887).

(a) The power of assuming, on behalf of the municipality, a share of the cost of the construction of a bridge or culvert (given by s. 674 (1)) is by this section restricted to one-half of such cost; and there is at the same time conferred upon the council the further power to assume one-half the cost of constructing an embankment,—which (by s. 664 (2)) means "an embankment forming part of a highway."

(b) "A two-thirds vote thereof." See note (b) to s. 24. Cf. s. 677.

Council may permit owners to build or improve sidewalks in front of lands.

676. The council may permit the owner or owners of lands in any township, city, town or village to build or improve the sidewalk in front of his or their lands, under the direction of the council or an officer thereof appointed for that purpose, and according to such plans and regulations as the council may prescribe, in which case the owners or occupants of such lands shall be exempt from all taxes for improvements of a like nature so long as they shall keep the same in repair to the satisfaction of the council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 623.

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 616,—the words "of lands in any township, city, town or village" (lines 1, 2), having been inserted in 53 V. c. 50, s. 38 (1890). Cf. R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 620.

Laying Plank Sidewalks without Petition or Notice.

Laying plank sidewalks in cities and towns.

677. Notwithstanding anything contained in any by-law of the municipality, the corporation of any city or town may construct and lay down a plank sidewalk upon and along any street, lane, alley or other thoroughfare or park in the said city or town as a local improvement, and the cost thereof may be assessed against the properties fronting or abutting thereon, if such sidewalk is, in the opinion of two-thirds of the members present at any regular meeting of the city or town council, desirable in the public interest. 55 V. c. 42, s. 623*b*.

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 42 (1890),—which applied to cities only. Extended to towns in 1891 by 54 V. c. 42, s. 33. The words "in s. 612" [now s. 664] of "The Municipal Act," which occurred in the original section, after the words "anything contained" (line 1), were amended as noted infra by 54 V. c. 42, s. 34, and were omitted in the Revision of 1897.

(a) During the period when this section began with the words:—"Notwithstanding anything contained in the preceding fourteen sections of this Act," the City of Toronto attempted to make an assessment of the cost of a sidewalk constructed thereunder, without having given the owners any personal notice of the assessment, or having had a sitting of the Court of Revision to confirm it. It was held that the right of an owner to be heard before being assessed can only be taken away by an explicit provision, and that this section was not sufficiently definite to deprive him of that right (a).

Notice of proposed assessment must be given.

The decision of the council that the construction of the sidewalk is desirable in the public interest is final and conclusive (b). As to the property which may be assessed, see note (b) to s. 665.

(b) "Any park." See s. 673 (6), supra.

Cities and Towns may pay part of cost of Improved Sidewalks.

Cost of Local Improvements opposite Street Intersections or Exempt Properties.

Certain part of improvements may be charged on general rates.

679.—(1) In case of a special assessment being made on property benefited by any local improvement, the council of the municipality (if they think fit) may, by by-law, provide for constructing, at the expense of the general funds of the municipality, such part of the local improvement as is situate upon or in that part of any street, lane, alley, public place, or square, which is intersected by any other street, lane, alley, public place or square or as would otherwise fall on property exempt from assessment: and the council may provide for the cost thereof in the general rates or taxes for the year, or by the issue of debentures, or in such other manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this Act, or of any special Act, as to said council may seem best, and subject to such by-laws as the council may pass in that behalf.

Taken from 43 V. c. 27, s. 14 (1880).

(a) Under this section, councils may exercise a discretion as to whether they will or will not assume either that part of the cost of a work or improvement referable to street intersections, or that part referable to exempt property, or both. But the section probably applies only to municipalities which have not passed a by-law under s. 682, and (in other municipalities) only to works which do not belong to any of the classes covered by a by-law which has been so passed (a). Even in such other municipalities, it certainly does not apply to sewers; since it is expressly provided by s. 664 (5) that so much of the cost of any sewer as is chargeable in respect of street intersections and exempt property must be provided by the municipality out of general rates. Indeed the words of that sub-section might be interpreted as compelling such provision to be made not only in the case of sewers but also in the case of every other work, improvement or service for which a local assessment may be made (b).

Secs. 679 (2), 680 (1)-(3).

Note (a).

(2) The by-law authorizing the issue of the debentures need not be submitted for the assent of the electors of the municipality; and the debentures issued to pay for that part of the work payable by local assessment may, if the council thinks fit, be issued as a series distinct from those required to pay for that part which is to be borne by the general funds of the municipality, or all the debentures required for the work may be issued in one series, as "Local Improvement Debentures." This sub-section shall be deemed declaratory of the law on and from the 5th day of March, 1880. 55 V. c. 42, s. 627.

Provisions as to "Local Improvement Debentures."

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 622 (2). The 5th of March, 1880, was the day upon which sub-s. 1 came into operation.

Exemption from General Rates for Like Purposes.

680.—(1) Any real property specially assessed by any council for any local improvement or work under this Act, shall be exempted by the council from any general rate or assessment for the like purpose, except the cost of works at the intersection of streets, and except such portion of the general rate as may be imposed to meet the cost of like works opposite real property which is exempt from such special assessment.

Property specially assessed to be exempt from general assessment for like purposes.

This provision was first made in 1880 by 43 V. c. 27, s. 11, which applied only to works constructed by petition,—the only method then open. With the adoption of the "initiative system" in the following year, a similar provision was made by 45 V. c. 23, s. 4, as to works so undertaken, and the two sections were consolidated as s. 619 (1) of "The Con. Mun. Act" of that year (46 V. c. 18), from which this sub-section is taken verbatim.

(2) Where a local improvement or service is petitioned for and the petition is by two-thirds in number of the owners of the real property fronting or abutting upon the street or place wherein or whereon such improvement or work is proposed to be done or made, the exemption may be for a specified period named in the petition and agreed to by the council.

When exemption may be for specified period,

Or a period fixed by arbitration.

Procedure.

(4) In case the matter is to be determined by arbitration, a sole arbitrator shall be chosen for the purpose by the County Court Judge, unless some person or persons is or are agreed to in that behalf by the petitioners and the council.

Council to distinguish proportion of general rate thus occasioned.

(5) Where, by reason of a special assessment, the owners are exempted from a general rate, for the like purpose, as aforesaid, the council shall, from year to year, by by-law, directing the general rate of assessment, or by some other by-law, state what proportion of the general rate is for purposes for which there is such special assessment in any part of the municipality, and shall state the same in such manner as may give effect to this section.

Otherwise general rate not to be used for local improvements.

(6) Until a by-law is passed containing such statement, none of the money raised by general rate on real property especially assessed or rated for any work or service hereafter executed shall be applied to any work or service of the same character in any part of the municipality. 55 V. c. 42, s 624.

Subss. (4), (5), (6) are taken from 43 V. c. 27, s. 11 (4), (5), (6) (1880).

(a) The effect of this section is to compel councils to distinguish in each year what proportion of the general tax rate is referable to the municipality's share of the expenditure during that year upon each kind of work for which a local special rate is being levied in the municipality; and every owner who pays any such local rate during the year is to be exempt from payment of that proportion of the general rate which is due to expenditure upon the particular kind of work for which such local special rate is levied. Thus, the council should, in their general assessment by-law, state the proportion of the tax-rate referable to expenditure for the construction of pavements; and any person paying a special local rate for any pavement must be exempted from the payment of that proportion of the general tax-rate. Similarly, in the case of each other kind of work for which special assessments are being made. The section (it is apprehended) applies only to municipalities which have not passed a by-law under s. 682, or (if there is such a by-law) then only to the classes of works not included therein (a).

The provisions of subss. 2 and 3 (as to a petition for exemption, etc.) are not easy to understand. In the Act of 1883—where these subsections first appear in their present form—(b), there was no provision for the initiation of local improvements otherwise than by the council, and the subsections had therefore no meaning or application. It may be through inadvertence that they have since remained in the Act. In cases where no petition has been presented, there is no provision for putting an end to the period of exemption, which is presumably in such cases synchronous with the period of assessment. This should also be the standard for determining the proper period in the cases provided for in the section.

Covenants against Incumbrances, How Construed.

Local improvement rates not covered by a covenant against incumbrances.

681. Where local improvements benefiting real property have heretofore or are hereafter made under the provisions of the local improvement sections of this Act the costs whereof, in whole or in part, have been charged upon or against the real property, the petitioning for or procuring to be made, or the making of any such local improvements or the charging the costs thereof upon or against the real property, or the fact that they are a charge upon or against such real property, shall not be deemed to be a breach of the covenant by a vendor or person agreeing to sell that he has done no act to incumber the real property, except to the extent that the annual or other payments in respect of such charge are in arrear, and unpaid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 624*a*.

Secs. 681.682(1). Note (a).

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 35 (1891),—a grammatical mistake in the second line thereof having been corrected in the Revision of 1897.

(a) Before this section was passed, it had been held that improvement rates imposed to pay the cost of a local improvement, for which the vendor of real property had petitioned formed an incumbrance upon the property which he was bound to discharge under a covenant against incumbrances, even though the assessment by-law had not been passed at the date of the execution of the conveyance (a). So, where, although the vendor had not petitioned for the work, the assessment by-law had been passed prior to the date of the contract (b); and where the work was done before the making of the contract, but the by-law was not passed until after it had been made (c). Such cases can now no longer arise.

Former law.

Where the assessment proceedings contain no description of the property to be charged, but only the names of the owners, the assessment must be considered as having been made upon the smallest parcel of land which answers to the description in the statement. It forms a charge thereon, like a mortgage in favour of the corporation payable by instalments, in the nature and extent of which no difference can be made by any subdivision of the property among various owners after the imposition of the charge. In subsequent assessment rolls, therefore, "these parcels, with the persons assessed for each, must be bracketed; and the annual sum charged against the original parcel should be placed opposite the bracket as that for which the parcels and the persons assessed for them are liable under the assessment by-law." (d) Where the boundaries of the subdivisions do not correspond with those of the original lot, "all the persons assessed for any part of the original lot are jointly and severally liable for the annual special rate" (e). See note (d) to s. 672 (3).

From how large a parcel of property the local rate is leviable, in case of subdivision after rate is imposed.

Adoption of Local Improvement System by Electors.

682.—(1) The council of any township, city, town or village may, by by-law, passed with the assent of the electors according to the provisions of this Act, direct that all future expenditure in the municipality for the improvements and services, or for any class or classes of improvement or service, for which special provisions are made in sections 664 and 686, shall be by special assessment on the property benefited, and not exempt by law from assessment. 54 V. c. 42, s. 625 (1).

By-laws directing future improvements to be paid for by local assessment.

Taken from 43 V. c. 27, s. 84 (1880), which applied only to cities, towns and villages, and of which the concluding words "and in such cases a petition from the owners of the property benefited shall not be necessary" were omitted in "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 620 (1). See the small-print note under s. 668 (1). When—by 47 V. c. 32, s. 21 (1884)—provision for petition was again made, the restoration of this subsection to its original form was apparently considered inadvisable. See R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 625 (1). The application of the section was extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887).

(a) "All future expenditure." The language of the section—"all future expenditure in the municipality," etc.,—is as comprehensive as possible; and it is apprehended that upon the passing of a by-law under this subsection the council is deprived—as to classes of works therein provided for—of the power to assume any part of the cost of such works,—a power which, but for such by-law, it would have possessed under ss. 673 (4), 674 (1), 675 and 679 (1)—and that the second clause (or sentence) of s. 664 (5) thereupon ceases to apply to the municipality (a). After the words, "shall be" in the last line but one the word "repaid," "levied," (or some like word) has evidently been omitted. To fulfil the requirement that the "expenditure . . . shall be by special assessment," is an obvious impossibility.

Repeal of by-laws.

(2) After such a by-law has been passed in manner aforesaid, it shall not be repealed without the like assent of the electors; and, in case of such repeal, the provisions of section 680 with respect to freedom from any general rate or assessment of property which is subject to a special rate, shall apply to all property which had been specially rated or assessed for such improvement or service, while the repealed by-law was in force. The time when the exemption is to cease, shall be determined by arbitration, and the arbitrator shall be appointed by the County Judge, on the application of the municipal council. 55 V. c. 42, s. 625 (2).

Taken from 43 V. c. 27, s. 12 (1880),—the word "municipal" before "council" (last line) having been inserted in the Revision of 1897.

(b) "Exemption." The proper standard for determining the period of exemption would seem to be the unexpired portion of the period of assessment. See note (a) to s. 680.

Extension of Local Improvement System in such Cases.

Repairing and cleaning streets.

(3) Notwithstanding anything contained in clause 3 of section 664—after such a by-law has been passed in manner aforesaid, the council may pass a by-law or by-laws dividing the municipality into certain areas, districts or sections within which the streets or parts of streets may be maintained, repaired, cleaned, cleared of snow and ice, watered, swept, lighted and the grass therein cut and trees therein trimmed, and may impose a special rate upon the assessed real property therein, according to the frontage thereof, in order to pay any expenses incurred in maintaining, repairing, cleaning, clearing of snow and ice, watering, sweeping and lighting such streets or parts of streets, and cutting grass and trimming trees therein, or for any one or more of such services. 55 V. c. 42, s. 625. And see sec. 686.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 30 (1885),—the reference in which is to section s. 612 (3) of "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (= s. 666 of the present Act). This reference, and the number of the section referred to remained unchanged in the Revision of 1887 (R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, ss. 612 (3) (cf. 625 (3) of that Act); but when the local improvement sections were re-cast in 1890 by 53 V. c. 50, s. 38, although the numbering of s. 612, subss. (1), (2) remained as before, the number of s. 612 (3) was changed, and it became s. 614. The section now under consideration (s. 682 (3)) was not included in the re-enactment of 1890, and when the whole Municipal Act was again consolidated in 1892 and 1897 this wrong reference passed unnoticed. The reference should now be to s. 666.

(c) "After such a by-law." The fact has apparently been overlooked that a by-law may be passed under s. 682 (1) which does not include the works and services mentioned in this subsection. The probable intention was to make this provision apply only to municipalities which had passed a by-law under s. 682, which would be applicable to the particular services here referred to.

Assessment of lands in connection with churches for local improvements.

683 Land on which a place of worship is erected, and land used in connection with a place of worship, shall be liable to be assessed in the same way and to the same extent as other land for local improvements made or to be made. 55 V. c. 42, s. 626. [See also Cap. 224, sec. 7 (4)].

Taken from 53 V. c. 55, s. 1 (1890), the word "hereafter" having been omitted after "improvements" (line 4) in the Revision of 1897. Cf. 43 V. c. 27, s. 13; 46 V. c. 18, s. 621; R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 620.

Assessment of colleges, etc.

684. The buildings and grounds of and attached to a university, college or other incorporated seminary of learning, whether vested in a trustee or otherwise, shall be liable to be assessed in the same manner and to the same extent as other land is assessed for local improvements made or to be made. This section shall not apply to schools which are maintained in whole or in part by a legislative grant or a school tax. 55 V. c. 42, s. 626*a*. [See also Cap. 224, sec. 7 (4)].

A Municipality's Share of Local Improvement Debts may be raised without assent of Electors.

Assent of electors not required to by-laws for raising municipality's share of cost of local improvements.

685.—(1) The council of any township, city, town or village may pass all by-laws necessary, from time to time, to raise loans and borrow moneys required for its share of any local improvements and works, on the credit of such township, city, town, or village at large; and it shall not be necessary to obtain the assent of the electors of such township, city, town, or village to the passing of any such by-law under the provisions of this Act, any special or private Act in that behalf to the contrary notwithstanding; provided always that nothing in this section contained shall be construed as authorizing an extension of the general debt of such township, city, town or village beyond the limits thereof fixed by any Act limiting the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 628 (1).

Ratepayors' Share not to be counted as part of General Debt of Municipality.

Ratepayers' share not to be counted of general debt of the municipality.

(2) It is hereby declared that the debentures issued under local improvement by-laws on the security of special assessments therefor form no part of the general debt of any such municipality, within the meaning of any such last above mentioned Act, and it shall not be necessary to recite the amount of the local improvement debt so assured by special rates or assessments in any by-law for borrowing money on the credit of the township, city, town or village at large as aforesaid, but it shall be sufficient to state in any such by-law, that the amount of the general debt of the municipality as therein set forth is exclusive of local improvement debts, secured by special Acts, rates or assessments. 55 V. c. 42, s. 628 (2).

Taken from "The Con. Mun. Act, 1883," (46 V. c. 18), s. 623 (1) (2), the word "assured" subs. 2, line 6) having been substituted for the word "secured" in the Revision of 1897.

Secs. 685 (2), 686 (1).

Notes (a), (b); (a), (b).

(a) Cf. ss. 385 (2), 674 (1a), 675, 678 (1), 679 (2).

(b) "It shall be sufficient to state," etc.

This is a directory provision. The omission, in a by-law for borrowing money on the credit of the municipality, to state that the amount of the pre-existing debt therein recited is exclusive of local improvement debts; is not fatal to a by-law otherwise valid on its face (a).

EXTENSIONS OF THE LOCAL IMPROVEMENT SYSTEM.

(And see sec. 682 (3)).

Sweeping, Lighting, and Watering Streets.

Sweeping, lighting and watering streets.

686.—(1) The council of every township, city, town and village may pass by-laws for raising, upon the petition of at least two-thirds of the persons resident in any street, square, alley or lane, whose names appear upon the last revised assessment roll of the municipality as freeholders or tenants of the assessed real property therein representing in value one-half of the said assessed real property, such sums as may be necessary for sweeping, watering or lighting the street, square, alley, or lane, by means of a special rate on the real property therein, according to the frontage thereof, or according to the assessed value thereof when only such latter system of assessment shall have been adopted by a three-fourths vote of the full council; but the council may charge the general corporate funds with the expenditure incurred in such sweeping, watering or lighting as aforesaid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 629 (1); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (109).

First in the Act of 1849 (12 V. c. 81), s. 81 (6), which applied only to towns and cities (ss. 82, 100) and to sweeping and watering. The rate was to be "a special rate to be assessed equally on the whole rateable property on such street," etc. Extended to street lighting in 1853 (16 V. c. 181, s. 15 (2)); to villages by the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 324 (2), which made it no longer necessary that the rate should "be assessed equally" or upon the "whole of the property upon the street," and by which also the last three lines of the section were added. See 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 346 (2) (1866). It was intended by the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 18), s. 468, to make the rate a frontage rate, but this was not effected until the following year by 37 V. c. 16, s. 21. See R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 555; 46 V. c. 18, s. 624. The alternative method of assessment based upon assessed value—was introduced by 50 V. c. 29, s. 45; and by s. 48 of the same Act the powers conferred by the section were extended to townships. See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 629 (1). The words from "persons resident" (line 3) down to "or tenants of" (line 5) were substituted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (109) (1897) for "freeholders and householders resident in any street, etc., representing in value one-half" which were the words used in the Act of 1858 and in the subsequent Acts.

(a) This section applies whether a by-law has been passed under s. 682 (1) or not. It is otherwise in the case of s. 682 (3), by which much the same powers are conferred.

(b) "Persons resident in any street."

The persons who may petition are probably those owners and tenants of property abutting on the street whose names appear on the last revised assessment roll as such, and who eat, drink and sleep—or whose families eat, drink, and sleep—upon such property (b).

It is not necessary that the petition should be signed by two-thirds of all the qualified persons resident in a whole street, from one end of it to the other. The necessary number of residents on a portion of a street, defined by cross-streets or otherwise, may petition; and the work may be done and the assessment made upon that portion only (c).

Notes (c), (d)

(2) The council may also, by by-law, designate certain streets or parts of streets, or define certain areas or special sections within the municipality, in which the streets should be watered, swept and lighted, and may impose a special rate upon the assessed real property therein, according to the frontage thereof, or according to the assessed value thereof when only such latter system of assessment shall have been adopted by a three-fourths vote of the full council, in order to pay any expenses incurred in watering, sweeping or lighting such streets. 55 V. c 42 s. 629 (2); 58 V. c. 42, s. 34.

Special rate may be imposed therefor.

First in the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 468, which authorized assessments by a frontage rate for watering a city, town or village street: extended by 46 V. c. 18, s. 624 (2) to assessments for sweeping and lighting and, by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887) to townships. The alternative method of assessment according to assessed value was introduced in 1891 by 54 V. c. 42, s. 24.

(c) "By by-law designate . . . certain areas . . . and . . . impose a special rate."

These powers are completely distinct; and they need not be exercised by the same by-law. See note (b) to s. 664. It seems that neither petition under s. 668 (1) or notice under s. 669 (1) is required before the by-law designating the streets is passed and the work done. Notice of the assessment must of course be given. See note (d) to s 671.

Cutting Grass and Weeds.—Trimming Trees and Shrubbery.

(3) The council may also include in either of the foregoing by-laws, the cutting of grass and weeds, and trimming the trees or shrubbery on any such street, square, alley or lane, and otherwise cleaning the same. 55 V. c. 42, s. 629 (3).

Cutting grass, etc.

Taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 31 (1885).

(d) There is no power to pass a by-law providing solely for the assessment of the cost of the works enumerated in this section. An assessment for their cost must be made by means of a by-law passed under one of the two preceding sections in which—at the option of the council—these works or any of them may be included with other works.

Removing Snow, Ice and Dirt.

(4) The council may also by by-law define certain areas or sections within the municipality in which all snow, ice and dirt and other obstructions shall be removed from the sidewalks, streets, lanes or alleys, in such areas or sections, and may impose a special rate upon the real property therein, according to the frontage thereof, in order to pay any expenses incurred in removing such snow, ice, dirt or other obstruction. 55 V. c. 42, s. 629 (4).

First in 48 V. c. 39, s. 32, (1885), which applied only to villages and included only street-lighting and the construction of waterworks: extended to townships by 50 V. c. 29, s. 48 (1887); to the purchase of fire engines and other appliances by 52 V. c. 36, s. 46 (1889); and to the purchase and laying of water mains, etc., by 56 V. c 35, s. 27 (1893). The words "the" before, and "the municipality" after, "lighting" (line 3) were inserted in the Revision of 1897.

Cost of, may be locally assessed.

(2) The council may, by by-law, define by metes and bounds, or otherwise, what real property will be immediately benefited by the proposed improvement, and is to be charged with the cost thereof, and may also, by by-law, make provision for assessing and levying on the property so defined the cost of managing and maintaining the said works, fire engines and appliances. 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (2).

(3) Section 666 of this Act shall not apply to any works constructed under the powers by this section conferred. 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (3); 56 V. c. 35, s. 28.

Subss. (2), (3) are taken from 48 V. c. 39, s. 32 (1885). In the Revision of 1892, the section contains the same error as s. 682 (3), supra, in regard to the section to which reference is made. See note in small print to s. 682 (3), supra. But the error was in this case corrected by 56 V. c. 35, s. 28 (1893). See R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 630 (3): 53 V. c. 50, s. 38; 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (3).

Fire trustees.

(4) The council of a township may also, by by-law, direct in any case where a fire engine and appliances for the purpose of fire protection have been or are about to be purchased, that at the then next ensuing, and at each subsequent municipal election for the municipality, three trustees, with the powers and for the purposes hereinafter mentioned, shall be elected for the same periods of time and in the same manner as municipal councillors are elected. 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (4), part.

(5) The said trustees shall have the care, control and management of said fire engine and appliances. 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (5).

Who may vote.

(6) No person shall have a vote at said election of said trustees unless he is the owner of real property defined by a by-law of the said municipality as real estate to be benefited by and charged with the cost of the purchase of such fire engine and appliances, and has the same qualifications as are required by this Act to enable owners of real estate to vote at municipal elections. 55 V. c. 42, s. 630 (4), part.

Subss. (4), (5), (6) are taken from 54 V. c. 42. s. 31 (1891).

Agreements between adjoining townships for purchase of fire engine and road making appliances.

(7) The councils of two or more adjoining municipalities whether in the same county or not, may enter into an agreement for the purchase of and may purchase jointly a fire engine and other appliances, for the purpose of fire protection, or road-making machinery and appliances. The councils of such municipalities may in and by such agreement, determine the proportion of the purchase money and yearly cost of managing and maintaining such fire engine and appliances or other machinery and appliances to be borne by each municipality and the place or places where the same shall be kept and all other matters and things necessary and proper in the maintenance and use of the engine and other machinery and appliances, and each council shall, as to the assessing and levying of its proportion, proceed as hereinbefore in this section provided.

Secs. 687 (7)-(8); 688 (1)-(2), 689.

(8) Where the councils of two or more municipalities purchase a fire engine and appliances or road-making machinery and appliances jointly, the reeves of such municipalities shall be the trustees, having the care and control of such engine, machinery and appliances. 61 V. c. 23, s. 20.

Who shall be trustees in such case.

Subss. (7), (8) were passed in 1898. See the reference.

or otherwise improve (by approved material) and to drain the road, street or public way (describing it), or to build a bridge in connection therewith, the council may procure an engineer or Ontario land surveyor to make an examination of the road, street or public way so proposed to be improved, and may procure plans, estimates of and a report upon the said work to be made by such engineer or surveyor, showing the real property, municipalities and corporations to be benefited by such work, or the owners or occupants of real property who may or can use the same, and stating as nearly as may be, in the opinion of such engineer or surveyor, the proportion of benefit to be derived therefrom by every such lot or portion of a lot, railway or street railway, or municipal or other corporation; and the council, if of opinion that the proposed work or a portion thereof would be desirable, may pass by-laws:

(a) For providing for the proposed work or a portion thereof being done.

(b) For borrowing on the credit of the municipality, the funds necessary for the work, although the same extends beyond the limits of the municipality (subject in that case to be reimbursed as hereinafter mentioned), and for issuing the debentures of the municipality to the requisite amount, including the costs of reference, if any, in sums of not less than $100 each, and payable within twenty years or less from date, with interest at the rate of not less than four per cent. per annum.

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 38 (1891), several verbal amendments having been made in the consolidations, of which the least intelligible was the substitution of the word "drain" (line 4) for the word "plank."

Rev. Stat. c. 226 to apply.

(2) The provisions of The Municipal Drainage Act not inconsistent with this section, shall, mutatis mutandis, be applicable, as far as possible, to the making and improvement of the said road, street or public way, and the drainage and other works connected therewith, as if the said Act related to roads and the improvement thereof (so as to make the said clauses efficient for the construction of roads in substantially the same way as drains are constructed). 55 V. c. 42, ss. 611*a*, 611*b*.

Taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 39 (1891), some minor changes having been made in the various consolidations, one of which was the omission in 1897 of the words "and in aid thereof" after "section" (line 2).

(a) The method of assessment herein prescribed is that adopted in "The Municipal Drainage Act." See note (j) to s. 665.

Exemption of Property so Specially Assessed.

Exemption of property specially assessed.

690. Any real property specially assessed by any township council for any local improvement or work under the last preceding section of this Act, may be exempted by the council in whole or in part from any general rate or assessment for the like purpose. 55 V. c. 42, s. 611*c*.

DIVISION IV.—POWERS OF COUNTIES.—SECS. 691-693.

Local improvement by-laws for making, repairing or improving roads, bridges, etc. Sec. 691 (1).

But not roads or bridges in a town or village. Sec. 691 (2).

Conditions under which by-laws may be passed. Sec. 692.

Roads or bridges assumed or acquired. Sec. 693.

691.—(1) The council of every county may pass by-laws for levying by assessment on all rateable property within any particular part of one or parts of two townships to be described by metes and bounds in the by-law, in addition to all other rates, a sum sufficient to defray the expenses of making, repairing or improving any road, bridge or other public work, lying within one township or between parts of such two townships, and by which the inhabitants of such parts will be more especially benefited. Special assessments by counties for improving certain roads, bridges, etc.

(2) This section shall not apply to any road, bridge or other public work within the limits of any town or village. 55 V. c. 42, s. 631.

Subs. 1 is taken [illegible] V. c. 181, s. 14 (1853), which applied only to works between two townships; extended [illegible] wholly within one township in the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51) s. 344 (6). Verbal amendments have from time to time been made in the various consolidations of the Act. See 22 V. c. 99, s. 328 (5); 36 V. c. 48, s. 469; R. S. O. (1877), c. 174, s. 558; 46 V. c. 18, s. 625; R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 632. Subs. 2 is taken from the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 344 (6).

(a) "By assessment." The assessment of the cost of the work may apparently be made by the method which, under the circumstances, seems to the council to be most just and convenient. If all the property receives an approximately equal benefit per acre, the assessed values of the parcels will probably be found to constitute the most satisfactory standard. If some lands receive considerably more benefit per acre than others, it will probably be fairer to assess upon each parcel the exact amount of the benefit conferred upon it, and to meet the balance, if any, of the expense by a rate in the dollar upon assessed values (a). Basis of assessment.

(b) "Road, bridge or other public work."

The powers of constructing local improvements conferred by this section upon county councils are very wide. They are (by implication) authorized to undertake as a local improvement the making, repairing or improving of "any road, bridge or other public work" anywhere within the county, except in a town or village thereof.

692. No by-law under the last preceding section shall be passed, except:— Procedure.

1. Upon a petition signed by at least two-thirds of the electors who are rated upon the last revised assessment roll of the municipality for at least one-half of the value of the property within those parts of the township which are to be affected by the by-law; nor Petition.

Based upon 16 V. c. 181, s. 14 (1853); taken from 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 344 (7) (1866), the words "upon the last revised assessment roll of the municipality" having been inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (111) (1897). Cf. as under s. 691 (1).

(a) As to petition, see note (j) to s. 665, and as to "electors," s. 2 (5) and note (b) to s. 338, ante.

(a) See note on "The Local Improvement System," supra, p. 901.

Secs. 692 (2), 693 (1)-(4).

Note (b).

Notice to be posted up, and published for three weeks.

2. Unless a printed notice of the petition, with the names of the signers thereto, describing the limits within which the by-law is to have force, has been given for at least one month, by putting up the same in four different places within such parts of the township, and at the places for holding the sittings of the council of each township, whether it be within such parts or not, and also by inserting the same weekly for at least three consecutive weeks in some newspaper (if any there be), published in the county town, or if there is no such newspaper, then in the two newspapers published nearest the proposed work. 55 V. 42, s. 632: 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (111).

Taken from 36 V. c. 48, s. 470 (1873). Cf. as under s. 691 (1).

(b) As to publication, see note (a) to s. 632, and as to the necessity for strict observance of these requirements, note (d) to s. 671.

Roads or Bridges Assumed or Acquired.

Power to pass by-laws acquiring roads, etc., lying within one or more townships, etc., and to levy special rates for improvement thereof.

693.—(1) A county council may, by by-law, assume or acquire any road, bridge or other public work, lying within or adjacent to one or more townships, towns or villages, and may, by by-law, raise by way of loan, a sum of money for the improvement of such road, bridge or public work, to be repaid by a special assessment on all the rateable property within the municipalities immediately benefited by such road, bridge or public work. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (1).

Particulars which are to be stated in the by-law.

(2) The by-law shall state the amount to be raised for the work, and shall define the municipalities forming the portion of the county municipality which will be affected by the by-law, and the portion of the work to be performed in each municipality, and shall provide for the raising of the said amount by the issue of debentures of the county, payable in twenty years, or by equal annual instalments of principal, with interest, and shall provide for assessing and levying upon all the rateable property lying within the section defined by such by-law, an annual special rate sufficient for the payment of the principal and interest of the debentures. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (2).

By-law to be submitted to electors in portion of county interested.

(3) The by-law shall, if approved by a majority of the representatives in the county council of the municipalities which are defined in the said by-law, be submitted to the vote of the qualified ratepayers, who are entitled to vote on money by-laws, in the portion of said county to be affected by said by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (3).

By-law only to apply to those municipalities in which it has a majority of votes.

(4) In case there should be a majority of votes cast against the by-law in any one or more of the municipalities mentioned therein, although the by-law be carried, then the by-law shall only apply to those municipalities in which it has received a majority of the votes cast, and shall not in any way affect the other municipalities mentioned; and the amount of money mentioned in the by-law to be raised by way of loan, shall be reduced by the proportionate amount which the said municipality or municipalities, giving a majority of votes against the by-law, would have been required to pay under the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (4).

Secs. 693 (4)-(7), 694.

Note (a).

(5) In case there should be a majority of votes cast against the by-law in any one or more municipalities mentioned therein, although the by-law be carried, then upon the approval of the majority of the representatives in the county council of the municipalities which have given a majority of votes in favor of the by-law, the same may be read a third time and passed by the county council, or dropped altogether; but in case the by-law is finally passed, only the representatives in the county council of those municipalities giving a majority in favor of the by-law, and to be affected by the same, shall have any voice in reference to the expenditure of the money to be raised thereby. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (5).

By-law, if carried in some municipalities only may be passed or dropped.

(6) In all other respects the voting on the by-laws, and the passing and subsequent proceedings thereon, shall be in accordance with the provisions of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (6).

General provisions to apply to voting, etc.

(7) Cities and separated towns may, with the approval of the ratepayers qualified to vote on money by-laws, pass similar by-laws to assist in the purchase of any toll roads, in which the cities or separated towns may be interested, or may pass by-laws abolishing the market fees charged by them, on condition that certain toll roads therein named are made free. 55 V. c. 42, s. 633 (7).

Powers of cities and separated towns.

Subss. 1-6 are taken (with some verbal amendments) from 45 V. c. 23, s. 14 (1882). Subs. 7 was added by 49 V. c. 37, s. 34 (1886), by which also were inserted the words "or adjacent to" after "within," in line 4 of subs. 1. See 46 V. c. 18, s. 627; R.S.O. (1887), c. 184, s. 633.

(a) Sub-s. 1. "A sum of money for the improvement of any such road," etc.

The procedure outlined in subss. 1-6 applies only to by-laws passed by county councils for making special assessments to raise money for the improvement of a road, bridge, or other public work, but the first clause of subs. 7 gives cities and towns power to pass similar by-laws for assisting in the purchase of toll roads. The last clause of subs. 7 appears to have no necessary connection with the rest of the section. As to the necessity for the strict observance of the prescribed procedure, see note (d) to s. 671.

TITLE IV.—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCILS AS TO AIDING RAILWAY AND STREET RAILWAY COMPANIES. (SECS. 694-699).

Aiding railway companies by taking stock, etc. Sec. 694.
When head of council to be a director ex-officio. Sec. 695.
Aid to railways by portions of townships. Sec. 696.
Townships may permit railways to be constructed on highways, etc. Sec. 697.

Aid to Railway Companies.

694. The council of every county, township, city, town and village may pass by-laws—

By-laws may be made for:

Sec. 694 (1)-(6).

Note (a).

Taking stock in certain railways or guaranteeing debentures. Rev. Stat. c. 207, s. 39, 51 V. c. 29 (Ca.).

1. For subscribing for any number of shares in the capital stock of, or for lending to, or guaranteeing the payment of any sum of money borrowed by an incorporated railway company, to which section 18 of the Statute 14 and 15 Victoria, chapter 51, or sections 75 to 78 inclusive of chapter 66 of the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, or the equivalent sections of The Railway Act of Ontario, have been or may be made applicable by any special Act; or to which the equivalent sections of The Railway Act of Canada do now or may hereafter apply. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (1).

For guaranteeing the payment of debentures, etc.

2. For indorsing or guaranteeing the payment of any debenture to be issued by the company for the money by them borrowed. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (2), part.

Special rates.

3. For assessing and levying from time to time upon the whole rateable property of the municipality, a sufficient sum to discharge the debt or engagement as in the two preceding subsections mentioned. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (2) part.

For issuing debentures, etc.

4. For issuing, for the like purpose, debentures payable at such times, and for such sums respectively, not less than $20, and bearing or not bearing interest, as the municipal council thinks meet. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (3).

Bonuses.

5. For granting bonuses to any railway company in aid of such railway, and for issuing debentures in the same manner as in the preceding clause 4 provided, for raising money to meet such bonuses. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (4).

Form of debenture.

6. For directing the manner and form of signing or indorsing any debenture so issued, indorsed or guaranteed, and of countersigning the same, and by what officer or person the same shall be so signed, indorsed or countersigned respectively.

Assent of electors necessary.

But no municipal corporation shall subscribe for stock, or incur a debt or liability for the purposes aforesaid, unless the by-law, before the final passing thereof, receives the assent of the electors of the municipality in the manner provided by this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 634 (5). See also sec. 366 and R.S.O. c. 207, s. 39 (3).

These powers were first conferred upon municipal corporations in 1851 by s. 18 (1-3) of "The Railway Clauses Consolidation Act" (14-15 V. c. 51) (See note (4) to s. 338], which was substantially identical with s. 39 (1-3) of "The Railway Act of Ontario" (R.S.O. c. 207). In 1858 these clauses were introduced into "The Municipal Act," as s. 332 (1-3) of 22 V. c. 99, which corresponded to subs. 1-4 and 6 of the above section. The references (in subs. 1) to c. 66 of the C.S.Ca. and to the equivalent sections of "The Railway Act of Ontario," were inserted in the Consolidation of 1873, 36 V. c. 48, s. 471 (1). Cf. R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 559 (1). The power to grant bonuses to railway companies was conferred in 1871 by 34 V. c. 30, s. 6; but the present form of subs. 5 is taken from the Act of 1873: 36 V. c. 48, s. 471 (4).

(a) "For subscribing for any number of shares," etc. "For granting bonuses," etc. (a)

Grants may be made to Dominion as well as to Provincial railway companies (b), upon such conditions as may seem desirable:—e.g., that debentures

(a) See as to aid to bridge companies, s. 645, supra.

(b) Canada Atlantic R. W. Co. v. City of Ottawa, 8 O.R. 183, 201; 12 A.R. 234; affirmed 12 S.C.R. 365 (1884-5); Canada Atlantic R. W. Co. v. Township of Cambridge, 11 O.R. 392 (1886). It appears that it is not necessary that any railway should be named in the by-law or that a company should have been formed to undertake the work described: Vickers v. Shumiah, 22 Grant 410 (1875).

of the municipality shall be accepted at par by the company (a), or that the bonus shall only be payable upon the certificate of a Government (b) or other engineer (c), that stations (d) or machine shops shall be located and maintained by the company within the limits of the municipality (e); that the company shall remain independent (f); that it shall grant running powers to other companies, and itself erect and procure such other companies to erect stations (g); or that the line shall be completed and in running order within a specified time (h),—but, even where no time is specified for the completion of the line, a condition is presumed that it shall be completed, or that the bonus shall be earned, within the time fixed therefor by the company's charter (i). The right of the company to the grant depends only upon the conditions set out in the by-law; and the bonus cannot be withheld because of the non-performance by the company of covenants which are contained only in a contemporaneous agreement (j); nor may such covenants be set out on the face of the debentures issued by the municipality, since these must be negotiable instruments (k). Damages may, however, be recovered in respect of such non-performance; and it appears that the debentures will be ordered to be delivered up only upon payment or upon the giving of a bond for the payment of any damages which may be found to be due (l). A mandamus to compel the municipality to deliver up the debentures will not be granted upon motion; the applicant must bring his action (m). Where the company makes default in the performance of conditions named in the by-law, the debentures may, at the suit of the contracting corporation (n), be recovered back from a trustee into whose hands they have been placed pending such performance (o), or, if the bonus has been actually paid over, its amount may be recovered as liquidated damages in an action on a bond given for the performance of the conditions (p). Payment to contractors for the company, at the request of the latter, will discharge the municipality (q).

The "assent of the electors" is a necessary condition precedent to the exercise of the powers conferred by this section (r); and the requirements of the Statute must be bona fide complied with (s). As to the procedure prescribed in voting, etc, on by-laws requiring the assent of the electors, see ss. 338-374.

In certain cases head of council to be ex-officio a director.

695. In case any municipal council subscribes for and holds stock in a railway company under the next preceding section to the amount of $20,000 and upwards, the head of the council shall be ex-officio one of the directors of the company, in addition to the number of directors authorized by the special Act, and shall have the same rights, powers, and duties as the other directors of the company. 55 V. c. 42, s. 635. See also R. S. O. c. 207, s. 39 (4).

Based on s. 18 (4) of "The Railway Clauses Consolidation Act," 14-15 V., c. 51. Cf. R.S.O. c. 207, s. 39 (4). Introduced into "The Municipal Act" in 1858 as s. 334 of 22 V. c. 99, from which this section is taken.

Aid to railways by portions of townships.

696.—(1) In addition to the powers conferred by section 694, a portion of a township municipality which may be interested in securing the construction of a railway, or through or near which any such railway may pass or be situated, may aid the said railway by granting money or debentures by way of bonus or gift, or by way of loan to such railway under and subject to the provisions hereinafter contained;

Provided always that such aid shall not be given except after the passing of a by-law for the purpose, and the adoption of the by-law by the qualified ratepayers of the said portion of the municipality in the manner provided in respect to granting aid by way of bonuses to railways. 55 V. c. 42, s. 635*a* (1). See sec. 366.

Petition.

(2) Before a by-law is submitted under this section to the vote of the ratepayers a petition shall be presented to the council expressing the desire to aid the railway, and stating in what way and for what amount, and defining the portion of the township to be charged by metes and bounds, or lots and concessions, and shall be signed by fifty or a majority of the freeholders resident in such portion of the township, being duly qualified voters under this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 635*a* (2); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (112).

Contents of by-law.

(3) The by-law shall in each instance provide:—

(a) For raising the amount petitioned for in the portion of the municipality mentioned in the petition by the issue of debentures of the municipality, and shall also provide for the delivery of the debentures or the application of the amount to be raised thereby as may be expressed in the said by-law:

(b) For assessing and levying upon all rateable property lying within the portion of the municipality defined in said by-law, an annual special rate sufficient to include a sinking fund for the repayment of the said debentures within twenty years with interest thereon payable yearly, or half yearly, which debentures the councils, reeves and other officers of the municipality are hereby authorized to execute and issue in such cases. 55 V. c. 42, s. 635*a* (3).

Taken from 51 V. c. 28, s. 37 (1888),—the words "or a majority" (subs. 2, line 6) having been inserted by 53 V. c. 50, s. 2 (1890). The word "resident" (subs. 2, line 7) was omitted by 53 V. c. 50, s. 2 (1890), but re-inserted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C (112). See 55 V. c. 42, s. 635*a* (2).

(a) As to the procedure to be followed in obtaining the assent of the "electors," see ss. 338-374, and note (b) to s. 694.

Secs. 697, 698, 699.

Note (c).

697. The council of every township may pass by-laws for authorizing any railway company, in case such authority is necessary, to make a branch railway on property of the corporation, or on highways, under such conditions as the council see fit, and subject to the restrictions contained in The Railway Act of Ontario, and in any other Acts affecting such railway; and may also pass by-laws to authorize companies or individuals to construct tramways and other railways along any highway on such terms and conditions as the council see fit. 55 V. c. 42, s. 636.

By-laws authorizing branch railways, tramways, etc., along highways. Rev. Stat. c. 207.

First clause taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99) s. 335. Cf. 16 V. c. 181, s. 9 (6). Last clause—beginning "and may also" (line 7)—taken from 33 V. c. 26, s. 12 (1869), "ways" having been added to the word "tram" by R.S.O. (1877), c. 174, s. 561.

(a) Before a railway can be carried along an existing highway leave must be obtained, under "The Railway Act," (a) from the Railway Committee of the Privy Council, and under "The Railway Act of Ontario," (b) from the proper municipal authority—but it appears that this leave may be sufficiently given by resolution, and that acquiescence will deprive the municipality of any right to complain (c).

698. So much of any enactment in any private or other Act passed on or before the 5th day of March, 1880, as authorizes or provides for the grouping or joining together of municipalities or a municipality, or part of any municipalities or municipality with part of another municipality or parts of other municipalities, for the purpose of granting municipal aid to any railway or railway company is hereby repealed and declared to be inoperative. 55 V. c. 42, s. 637.

Grouping clauses in railway Acts passed on or before 5th March, 1880, repealed.

By-law to be passed by council for levying rates.

(2) Upon receipt of such petition the council (after the assent of a majority of the ratepayers within such municipality or portion thereof who are entitled to vote thereon, has been obtained in the manner provided by this Act), may pass the by-law for the granting of such aid in accordance with the petition and for raising the amount petitioned for in the municipality or portion thereof mentioned in the petition, by the issue of debentures of the municipality, and for the delivery of the debentures or the application of the amount to be raised thereby as may be expressed in the by-law, and for assessing and levying upon all the rateable real property lying within the municipality or portion thereof defined in the by-law an annual special rate for the repayment of the said debentures within twenty years, with the interest thereon payable yearly or half-yearly: which debentures the council, reeves and other officers of the municipality are hereby authorized to execute and issue. 55 V. c. 44, s. 636*a* (2); 62 V. (2nd Session), c. 26, s. 44 (2).

Agreement to be published in full.

(a) In every such case any agreement which has been entered into between the municipal corporation and the street railway company defining the terms and conditions upon which the construction of such railway is to be authorized, shall be published in full with such by-law; and all provisions of law respecting the publication of any such by-law in any newspaper or otherwise shall also apply to such agreement. 55 V. c. 42, s. 636*a* (2); 56 V. c. 35, s. 31.

Repayment of debentures and interest.

(3) The principal and interest of the debentures may be made repayable by annual instalments, as provided for by section 386 of this Act, or a sinking fund may be provided for by the by-law. 55 V. c. 42, s. 636*a* (3).

Arbitration as to rate for transfer tickets where two companies operating lines in same municipality.

(4) In any and every case in which street railway lines are built by different duly incorporated street railway companies in the same or adjoining municipalities along different routes to the same terminal point, then in case an agreement cannot be arrived at between two such companies providing for the exchange and transfer of tickets for a continuous trip over both such lines or portion thereof, the matters in difference in respect thereof shall be referred to arbitration under the provisions of this Act. 55 V. c. 42, s. 636*a* (4).

Subsection 2, except the proviso, and subsections 3 and 4 are taken from 54 V. c. 42, s. 36 (1891). The words "or portion thereof" in lines 2, 6 and 12 of subs. 2 were substituted by 62 V. (2) c. 26, s. 44 (2) for the words "portion of the" which formerly preceded the word "municipality." The proviso to subsection 2 was added in 1893 by 56 V. c. 35, s. 31.

(a) As to the procedure to be followed in obtaining the assent of the ratepayers, see ss. 338-374. The requirement of s. 366, that one-third of all the ratepayers entitled to vote must vote in favour of the by-law does not apply to aid granted under this section (a).

TITLE V.—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCILS IN CERTAIN DISTRICTS AS TO AIDING SMELTING WORKS.

Sec. 700.

700.—The council of every municipality within the districts of Algoma, Manitoulin, Thunder Bay, Rainy River and Nipissing, whether established under the provisions of chapter 225 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario or of any special Act, and the council of every [other] municipality may pass by-laws:

For granting aid by way of bonus for the promotion of iron or other smelting works within or adjacent to the limits of the municipality, or within or adjacent to the limits of any municipality contributing aid thereto, by granting such sum or sums of money to such person or body corporate, in respect of the said industry as the council may determine upon; and to pay the said sum, either in one sum or in annual or other periodical payments, with or without interest, and subject to such terms, conditions and restrictions as the said council may deem expedient;

(a) No such by-law shall be passed until the assent of the electors has been obtained, in conformity with the provisions of this Act in respect of by-laws for creating debts, and the assent of one-third of all the ratepayers entitled to vote shall be necessary as well as the assent of a majority of the ratepayers voting on such by-law.

Assent of electors necessary.

(b) No property owner or lessee interested in, or holding shares or stock in any company shall be qualified to vote on a by-law for the purpose of granting a bonus to the company in which he is so interested as aforesaid.

Persons interested in company not to vote on by-law aiding same.

(c) Any municipality granting such aid may take and receive security for the compliance with the terms and conditions upon which such aid is given. 55 V. c 42, s. 637*a*; c. 43, s. 69; 56 V. c. 35, s. 32; 57 V. c. 50, s. 17.

Security may be taken.

(d) The debentures to be issued for any such bonus may be issued at such time or times as may be provided in any by-law granting the bonus, and the issue thereof may be postponed until the conditions contained in the by-law have been fulfilled, or until such other time or times as may be provided for in the by-law. 56 V. c. 35, s. 33, part.

the municipality may deem expedient, and subject to the assent of the electors as provided by this section. 56 V. c. 35, s. 33, part.

Aiding smelting works.

By 55 V. c. 43, s. 60 (1892) the powers herein enumerated were conferred upon the municipalities of all the Districts above named except the District of Nipissing—which, however, was included by s. 637 (a) of "The Consolidated Municipal Act" of the same year (55 V. c. 42). They were extended to cities by 56 V. 5, s. 32 (1893), to all municipalities by 57 V. c. 50, s. 17 (1894), were again restricted to cities by R.S.O. (1897), c. 223, s. 700; and once more extended to all municipalities by 62 V. (1) c. 2, Sched. (15). The operative words of the principal clause—together with clauses (a) (b) (c)—are taken from 55 V. c. 43, s. 60 (1892), the words "or other" (line 7) having been inserted by 55 V. c. 42, s. 637a (1892), and the words "or adjacent to" (lines 7, 8) by 56 V. c. 35, s. 32 (1893), by which also clauses (d) and (e) were added.

(a) "For granting aid by way of bonus."

A municipality has also power to make a loan (a).

With regard to the conditions (as to security, etc.) under which aid may be granted, and the measure of damages in case of their breach, see note (a) to s. 694: Village of Brussels v. Ronald (b), and Village of Brighton v. Auston (c).

(b) "The assent of the electors."

As to the procedure to be followed in obtaining the assent of the electors, see ss. 338-374. A certificate of the clerk of the municipality that one-third of the ratepayers entitled to vote have voted in favour of the by-law should be obtained, as under s. 366, supra, in the case of bonuses to railways, etc.

(c) Clause (b). See s. 680 (2) and note (e) thereto.

(d) "Security." See Scottish American Investment Co. v. Village of Elora, 6 A.R. 628 (1881): Village of Brussels v. Ronald, 4 O.R. 1; 11 A.R. 605 (1885), cited in note (a) supra.

Bonuses to rolling mills and iron works.

700*a*. The council of any city may pass by-laws for granting aid by way of bonus to promote the establishment of rolling mills and iron works in the same manner and to the same extent and subject to like terms and conditions as in the case of by-laws for granting aid in the promotion of iron smelting works, and all the provisions of the last preceding section shall apply to by-laws for granting aid to promote the erection or establishment of rolling mills and iron works which may hereafter be passed or which, since the first day of January, 1898, have been submitted to and have received the assent of the ratepayers of any city qualified to vote thereon, and may hereafter be passed by the council of such city. 61 V. c. 23, s. 23.

Passed in 1898. See the reference.

TITLE VI.—POWERS OF MUNICIPAL COUNCILS AS TO AIDING THE ESTABLISHMENT OF GRAIN ELEVATORS. (SEC. 701).

701. The council of any municipality may pass by-laws for granting aid by way of bonus to promote the establishment of grain elevators, in the same manner and to the same extent and subject to the like terms and conditions as in the case of by-laws for granting aid for the promotion of iron smelting works, and all the provisions of the last preceding section shall apply to by-laws for granting aid to promote the establishment of grain elevators. 60 V. c. 45, s. 58.

TITLE VII.—AS TO THE ENFORCEMENT OF BY-LAWS.

DIVISION I.—BY FINE AND IMPRISONMENT. (SEC. 702).

702. By-laws may be passed by the councils of counties, townships, cities, towns and villages:—

1. For inflicting reasonable fines and penalties not exceeding $50 exclusive of costs:— Fines and penalties.

(a) Upon any person for the non-performance of his duties who has been elected or appointed to any office in the corporation and who neglects or refuses to accept such office, unless good cause is shewn therefor, or to take the declaration of office, and afterwards neglects the duties thereof; and For neglect of duty or refusal to accept office.

(b) For breach of any of the by-laws of the corporation. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (17). Or for breach of by-laws.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 242 (6), clause (a) having been amended by 34 V. c. 30, s. 3. See 36 V. c. 48, s. 372 (11), etc. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (29) (villages); s. 41 (29) (counties); s. 80 (3) (towns); s. 107 (5) (cities).

2. For collecting such penalties and costs by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender; 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (18). Collecting penalties and costs.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 242 (7), the words "and costs" having been inserted by the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 372 (12). Cf. as under sub-s. 1, and also 22 V. c. 99, s. 205. See also references under sub-s. 3.

3. For inflicting reasonable punishment for breach of any of the by-laws of the council, in case of non-payment of the fine inflicted therefor and there being no distress found out of which such fine can be levied, by imprisonment either in the common gaol, house of correction or a lock-up house of the county or municipality, with or without hard labour, for any period not exceeding six months in the case of a by-law of a city or of a by-law of any municipality for the suppression of houses of ill-fame, and not exceeding in other cases twenty-one days, unless in any of the said cases the fine inflicted and costs (if any), including the costs of the distress and of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the gaol, house of correction or lock-up house are sooner paid. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (19); 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (82).

Taken from 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. 82 (1897)—by which the sub-section (as it formerly stood) was amended and re-arranged. Cf. 55 V. c. 42, s. 479 (19); R. S. O. (1887), c. 184, s. 479 (18); 46 V. c. 18, s. 482 (20); 42 V. c. 31, s. 18; R.S.O. (1877) c. 174, s. 454 (14); 36 V. c. 48, s. 372 (13); 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 246 (8); 22 V. c. 99, s. 242 (8); 14-15 V. c. 109, Sched. A (7); 13-14 V. c. 61, Sched. A (9); 12 V. c. 81, s. 31 (29), etc.

(a) "Fines and penalties." The fines and penalties referred to in sub-section 1 are pecuniary only. If a penalty is imposed by a by-law, its recovery is, in general, the only remedy for the infraction of the by-law (a); and if no punishment is provided (a), a right to bring an action founded upon the breach arises only where the duty is imposed for the benefit of particular persons, and one of such persons is injured by the failure to perform it (b).

(a) Tompkins v. Brockville Rink Co., 31 O.R. 124 (1899).

Sec. 702, Notes (b)-(e).

Enforcement of by-laws by fine and imprisonment.

(b) "Not exceeding $50." For the breach of the provisions of a by-law under s. 583 (8) a fine of $500 may in certain cases be imposed (c); but this is the only instance in which a greater penalty than $50 may be provided for the breach of a municipal by-law. That result may not be arrived at either directly or indirectly, as by inflicting a penalty for each stroke of a goldsmith's hammer made by an unlicensed person (d), or for each day's default in the performance of an act, at least when, upon such default, the corporation itself has power to do the act and to assess the owner for the cost (e); but a new act daily performed, though of the same nature, may constitute a new offence each day, and separate and distinct breaches of the by-law may thus be committed, for each of which the offender may be convicted and fined (f).

A minimum as well as a maximum fine may be fixed by the by-law (g); and it appears that larger penalties may be inflicted for the second and subsequent offences (h), provided the limit of $50 be in no case exceeded.

If the by-law assumes to deal with the disposition of the fines imposed thereunder, it must direct their disposition in accordance with the provisions of s. 708; otherwise it will be bad (i).

(c) Clause (a). By s. 319, a penalty of not more than $80, and not less than $8, is imposed upon members of councils who refuse to make the declaration of office and qualification; and it is doubtful whether an additional fine can be provided by by-law under this sub-section (j), which, however, authorizes penalties to be imposed upon an officer of the corporation who, without good cause, refuses to accept and neglects to perform the duties of the office to which he has been appointed.

(d) "Not exceeding six months." For the offences of keeping, being an inmate of, or frequenting a house of ill-fame, six months' imprisonment may, under s. 208 of "The Criminal Code, 1892," be awarded as a substantive punishment, but not as a means of enforcing the payment of a fine. Art. 788 authorizes six months' imprisonment only when it is imposed conjointly with—not in default of—a fine; and under s. 872 (b), that punishment may be awarded in the first instance, but imprisonment in default of payment of a fine may be for three months only (k). Under a municipal by-law, six months imprisonment may be awarded only upon default of payment of a fine and of sufficient distress out of which the fine may be levied (l).

(e) "Twenty-one days." Within this limit the by-law may fix a maximum and a minimum term of imprisonment in a gaol (m), but if it authorizes a longer term, it will be bad (n).

(a) A by-law which provides no penalty for its breach is not necessarily bad: Re Local Option Act, 18 A.R. 572 (1891).

Note (a).

Mode of compelling performance of matters directed to be done by council, etc.

703. Wherever any municipal council has any authority to direct, by by-law or otherwise, that any matter or thing should be done by any person or corporation, such council may also by the same or another by-law, direct that in default of its being done by the person, such matter or thing shall be done at the expense of the person in default, and may recover the expense thereof with costs by action or distress; and, in case of non-payment thereof, the same shall be recovered in like manner as municipal taxes. 55 V. c. 42, s. 482.

Taken from the Act of 1873, (36 V. c. 48), s. 377.

(a) This section provides for a class of cases referred to by ss. 542 (8) (15), 545 (1) (6), 551 (1) (2) (4), 557 (3), 559 (1) (2), 562 (10) (12) (13), 586 (6), etc., in which punishment by fine would be an inadequate remedy (a). In these cases it appears that no fine may be inflicted for breach of the by-law (b).

Imprisonment in default of payment.

704. Every fine and penalty imposed by this Act may, unless where other provision is specially made therefor, be recovered and enforced with costs, by summary conviction, before any Justice of the Peace for the county or of the municipality in which the offence was committed; and in default of payment the offender may be committed to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house of the county or municipality, there to be imprisoned for any time, in the discretion of the convicting Justice, not exceeding (unless where other provision is specially made) thirty days, and with or without hard labour, unless such fine and penalty, and costs, including the costs of the committal and conveyance of the offender to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house, are sooner paid. 55 V. c. 42, ss. 419, 420; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. Taken from the Act of 1873 (36 V. c. 48), s. 315, the words "and with or without hard labour" (line 11) having been inserted by 42 V. c. 31, s. 15 (1879), and the words "and conveyance of the offender to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house" by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. Notes (a), (b).

(a) "Every fine and penalty imposed by this Act." This section applies only to fines and penalties imposed by this Act (a), not to those which municipalities are authorized under s. 702 to impose by by-law (b).

Summary procedure for punishment of offences.

(b) "By summary conviction." The procedure by summary conviction is regulated by Part LVIII. (Arts. 839-909) of "The Criminal Code, 1892," made applicable by R.S.O. c. 90, s. 2, in every case where any penalty or punishment is imposed under the authority of a Provincial Statute, and is recoverable before, or may be inflicted by a Justice of the Peace or a Police or Stipendary Magistrate.

Proceedings may be instituted by an information or complaint before a Justice (upon oath or affirmation when the Statute so requires), which may be in the following form:

Canada, Province of Ontario. County of To wit: } The information and complaint of of the township of taken [on oath] before me, Esquire, a Justice of the Peace in and for the said county of the day of in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred

[Signature of J.P.]

The information must be laid within six months from the commission of the offence (c) and the above form should be closely followed. Only one offence must be charged (d); and the words of the Act or by-law creating it should be used (e). The municipality in its corporate capacity cannot lay an information; this must be done by an officer on its behalf.

No warrant should issue for an offence against a by-law (f); but the defendant should be served with a summons, which may be in the following form:

Canada, Province of Ontario, County of Village of To wit: }

Summary procedure for punishment of offences.

These are therefore to command you in Her Majesty's name to be and appear before me on (a) the day of in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred, at o'clock in the noon at (b) in the said county, or before such other Justice or Justices of the Peace for the said county as shall then be there to answer to the said charge, and to be further dealt with according to law. Herein fail not.

Given under my hand and seal this day of in the year 19 at the village of . [Signature of Justice.] [Seal.]

If the defendant does not appear, either in person or by counsel or solicitor, it will be necessary to prove that the summons was served a reasonable time previous to the time fixed for appearance (c). The evidence may then be heard and a conviction made (d). In such cases, care should be taken that the charge is clearly and fully proved (e). If the complainant does not appear, the Justice must dismiss the charge, unless he thinks fit to adjourn the hearing (f).

Both the complainant and the defendant may appear in person or by counsel or solicitor (g): the personal appearance of the defendant is unnecessary. The absence of an information or summons, or any irregularity in either, is waived by the defendant's appearing and pleading to the charge (h). Upon his appearance, a plea of guilty may be received, or the facts may be admitted (i); but if a plea of not guilty is entered, and the facts are disputed, the informant must prove the charge.

According to the usual practice, either party is entitled to an adjournment at the first hearing, unless there is some special reason to the contrary; and adjournments may be subsequently made from time to time. Every adjournment must, however, be to a time and place certain, and must not be for a period beyond the eighth day (j), but if made at the defendant's request (k), or if he afterwards appears without objection (l) the conviction cannot be impeached on the ground that this limit has been exceeded; and the Justice may reserve judgment for a longer period (m).

The evidence (n) must be taken upon oath in the presence of the accused or his counsel, who should have an opportunity to cross-examine the witnesses. It should be reduced to writing by the Justice; and care must be taken that it is sufficient to support the charge. If the offence is created by by-law, the by-law must be proved (o), and (in all cases) the time and place of its commission, in order that the jurisdiction of the Justice may appear. No variance between the information and the evidence is to be deemed material; but, if it appears to the Justice that the defendant has been prejudiced by such variance, he may adjourn the hearing (p). The defendant cannot, however, be convicted of an offence which he was not summoned to answer, and to which the evidence is not addressed (q).

If, in the opinion of the Justice, the complainant makes out a case, the defendant must be called upon for his defence; and his witnesses may be cross-examined by the complainant or his counsel. If the case is one within the jurisdiction of the magistrate, and there is any evidence upon which he may convict, the weight to be attached to such evidence is a matter wholly for him to determine (a). The summary jurisdiction of the Justice will be ousted if the defendant sets up a claim of right which the Justice finds to be bona fide, but not otherwise (b); and if the offence is proved, it is the duty of the Justice to convict; if not, he must dismiss the charge.

A memorandum of the conviction should immediately be made, from which the formal conviction may be afterwards drawn up. This should be done as soon as possible and the form given in s. 707 should be followed where the offence is the contravention of a by-law; where the penalty is imposed by the Act the conviction should be in the form WW in Schedule 1 of "The Criminal Code, 1892."

(c) "Any Justice of the Peace," etc.

Jurisdiction of J. P.'s

A police magistrate is ex-officio a Justice of the Peace for the county within which lies the city or town of which he is police magistrate (c); and he has within such city or town the powers of two Justices (d). The jurisdiction of a Justice of the Peace is territorial, not personal. Outside the boundaries of the territory for which a Justice has been appointed he cannot act as such, nor can he take cognizance of any offence committed outside its limits (e); but an offence may be tried by any Justice of the Peace for the county in which it has been committed, unless it has been committed within the jurisdiction of a police magistrate (f), or unless the Justice has a direct interest (g). If more than one Justice acts, the decision of the majority will govern.

Penalties imposed by by-laws.

705. All prosecutions for any offence against a municipal by-law, or a by-law of a Board of Commissioners of Police may be had by summary proceedings before a Justice of the Peace for the county or of the municipality in which the offence was committed, or where the offender resides, and the Justice before whom the prosecution is had may convict the offender on the oath or affirmation of any credible witness, and shall award the whole or such part of the penalty or punishment imposed by the by-law as he thinks fit, with the costs of prosecution, and may by warrant, under the hand and seal of the Justice (or in case two or more Justices act together therein, then under the hand and seal of one of them), cause any such pecuniary penalty and costs, or costs only, if not forthwith paid, to be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the offender. 55 V. c. 42, s. 419, part; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (73).

The first six lines, down to "Justice" (line 6) are taken from 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (73) (1897). The words "or where the offender resides" (line 6) and "before whom the prosecution is had" (line 7) were inserted in the Revision of that year. The rest of the section is taken from the Act of 1858, (22 V. c. 99), s. 205, the words "the whole or such part thereof" (lines 7, 8) and the words "as he thinks fit" (line 9) having been inserted in the Act of 1866, (29-30 V. c. 51), s. 209, in consequence of the question raised in Re Fennell and Town of Guelph, 21 U.C.R. 238 (1865), at pp. 243-4. Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 185; 16 V. c. 18, s. 31.

(a) "A Justice for the county . . . where the offender resides."

These words—which were inserted, apparently without authority, in the Revision of 1897—seem to authorize the trial of an offender against a municipal by-law by a magistrate of the county where he resides, although the offence has been committed outside of its limits. This jurisdiction did not formerly exist (a).

Commitment in default of distress.

706. In case of there being no distress found out of which the penalty can be levied, the Justice may commit the offender to the common gaol, house of correction, or nearest lock-up house, for the term specified in the by-law or some part thereof. 55 V. c. 42, s. 422.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 206, the words "or some part thereof" having been added in 29-30 V. c. 51, s. 210 (1866). Cf. 12 V. c. 81, s. 185 (1849).

(a) "Lock-up house." Commitment to a lock-up house may be for ten days only. See s. 520, supra.

(b) "In case of there being no distress found," etc.

For an offence under a municipal by-law, the punishment of imprisonment may be inflicted only when a distress has been made and has been found insufficient to cover the fine (b). If the amount of the fine has been thus levied and collected, the defendant cannot be sent to gaol, although the costs may be still unpaid and cannot be recovered by distress (c). When, however, the defendant has been lawfully committed to a gaol, etc., he may be detained until not only the penalty, but also the costs of the prosecution and of the committal and conveyance to gaol are discharged (d).

Form of conviction under by-laws.

707. It shall not be necessary in any conviction made under any by-law of any municipal corporation, to set out the information, appearance or non-appearance of the defendant, or the evidence or by-law under which the conviction is made; but all such convictions may be in the form following:

PROVINCE OF ONTARIO, County of , To WIT. } BE IT REMEMBERED that on the day of A.D. , at , in the county of , A. B. is convicted before the undersigned, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace in and for the said county, for that the said *A. B. And if the said several sums are not paid forthwith (or on or before the day of as the case may be), I order that the same be levied by distress and sale of the goods and chattels of the said A. B. to be imprisoned in the common gaol of the said county of (or, in the public lock-up at) for the space of days, unless the said several sums, and the costs of the said distress and of the committal and conveyance of the said *A. Notes (a); (a); (a).

Taken from 27 V. c. 18, s. 1 (1863) and introduced into this Act as s. 362 of the Act of 1866 (29-30 V. c. 51), the words "and the costs of the said distress and of the committal and conveyance of" (last line but 5 of the form of conviction), having been substituted by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (76) for the words "and all costs and charges of conveying."

(a) The form of conviction here given should be closely followed. The offence should be described in the words of the by-law, and it must be that to which the evidence is addressed (a). If the by-law creates two offences, a conviction stating one as alternative to the other is bad; and if there are exceptions in the by-law they should be negatived (b). It is necessary that the by-law should be referred to sufficiently to identify it. As to the costs, see s. 708 and R. S. O. c. 4, ss. 4 (3-5), 5.

Application of penalties.

708. Unless otherwise provided, where the pecuniary penalty has been levied under this Act, one moiety thereof shall go to the informer or prosecutor, and the other moiety to the municipal corporation, unless the prosecution is brought in the name of the corporation, in which case the whole of the pecuniary penalty shall be paid to the corporation. 55 V. c. 42, s. 423.

Taken from the Act of 1858 (22 V. c. 99), s. 207. Cf. 22 V. c. 99, s. 338 (24); 29-30 V. c. 51 ss. 211, 355 (25); 36 V. c. 48, s. 316.

(a) See also "The Interpretation Act," R. S. O. c. 1, s. 8 (30), (32). The informant may be ordered to pay costs (c).

Convictions not to be void for certain informalities.

709. All by-laws authorized under the provisions of this Act, which have been, or which may hereafter be enacted and which have imposed or may impose fines and penalties and the recovery thereof with costs by summary conviction, and which authorize, in default of payment, the commitment of the offender to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house of the county or municipality unless such fine and costs, including the costs of the committal and conveyance to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house, are sooner paid, are hereby declared to be good and valid, notwithstanding that such by-law, amongst other things, authorizes the imprisonment of the accused during the period for which by law he might be imprisoned unless such costs of committal and conveyance to the common gaol, house of correction or lock-up house, are sooner paid; and no conviction shall by reason only that it includes the cost of such conveyance and committal, be impeached, quashed or set aside. 55 V. c. 42, s. 423*a*; 60 V. c 15, Sched. C. (74) and see Sched. C. (72).

Taken from 53 V. c. 50, s. 13 (1890), some words rendered unnecessary by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (72), having been struck out by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (74), and the words "by-law" and "authorizes" (line 11), having been substituted, in the Revision of 1897, for the words "conviction" and "directs."

(a) The meaning of this section is not clear. Before the Revision of 1897, it read:—"All by-laws, etc. (as above) . . . are hereby declared to be good and valid, notwithstanding that such conviction . . . directs the imprisonment of the accused . . . unless the costs of committal and conveyance to gaol are sooner paid."

Note (a).

The substitution (in that Revision) of the words "by-law . . authorizes" (line 11) for "conviction . . directs" have, at least, had the effect of giving some meaning to the section; but it seems impossible that there should be, even now, any by-laws to which it can apply. S. 702 authorizes the passing of by-laws under which imprisonment may be directed, but only in case there is no sufficient distress out of which the fine can be levied; and ss. 705 and 707 clearly show that the insufficiency of a distress is a condition precedent to the exercise of the right of a Justice to imprison under a by-law. When, therefore, this section (709) speaks of a by-law which authorizes the commitment to the county gaol of an offender against a by-law unless he at once pays both fine and costs, it is describing a by-law which no municipality has—or ever had—power to pass under "The Municipal Act." The provision that such a by-law "shall be good and valid" notwithstanding that it makes certain directions as to costs, is evidently an error, and cannot but be nugatory (a). It is apprehended that the intention of the Legislature was merely to permit the costs of conveyance, etc., to be included with other lawful costs, a provision rendered necessary by the decision in Reg. v. Grant (b), where a conviction was quashed on the ground that it included the costs of conveyance to gaol; hence the amendment (in 1897) of s. 702 (3) and of the form of conviction in s. 707 by 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. (72), (76). It therefore seems that section 709 is now no longer necessary, and that it should be repealed.

Certain by-laws and convictions validated.

710.—(1) On an appeal from a motion to quash a conviction made under a municipal by-law or under any by-law of a Board of Commissioners of Police passed in pursuance of any Act of this Legislature, the conviction shall not be deemed invalid or be quashed for want of proper proof of such by-law before the convicting Justice; but upon any proceeding to quash such conviction the Court to which the application is made may, in its discretion, dispense with proof of the by-law or may allow the same to be proved before it by affidavit or by the production of a copy duly certified in manner provided by section 334 of this Act in the case of a by-law passed by a municipal council, or in the manner provided for by section 485 of this Act in the case of a by-law of a Board of Commissioners of Police. 58 V. c. 44, s. 1; 60 V. c. 15, Sched. C. 191. " 172. Note (b). In Hastings v. Summerfeldt, 30 O.R. 577 (1899), it was held by FALCONBRIDGE, J, that the word "conveniently" in section 109 of R.S.O. ch. 9, "The Ontario Election Act,"—which is substantially identical with s. 172 of "The Municipal Act"—means "conveniently for the voter and for his wish, purpose and intention in voting." The facts were that the plaintiff in marking his ballot had inadvertently marked it for the candidate against whom he intended to vote. Immediately, and before leaving the apartment set apart for marking ballots, he informed the defendant, (the deputy returning officer,) of his mistake, and asked for another ballot paper. The defendant said he must first see the marked ballot paper. This the plaintiff refused to allow, but, on the scrutineer for his party recommending him to do so, he handed it to the defendant, without creasing or folding it that it might be placed in the ballot box, but so that those present could not see how it was marked. The defendant looked at it, and then either shewed or placed it in such a manner that it could be seen and was seen by nearly all present, and contending that it was not a spoiled ballot and contrary to the plaintiff's protest, placed it in the ballot box, and it was counted for the person against whom the plaintiff intended to vote.
Held, that the defendant by his acts in disclosing how the plaintiff marked his ballot paper, in not cancelling it, and in refusing to give the plaintiff another ballot paper on his demanding one, and by thus compelling the plaintiff to vote for the candidate which he was about to oppose, had been guilty of breaches of duty which entitled the plaintiff to judgment in his favour for the penalties under the Statute.
