IN DAYS OF TERROR

"But, madame," said Maurice, who during his tete-a-tet had totally forgotten the language imposed by the Republican vocabulary, and returned to the language of a gentleman, "how is it, in all conscience, that at this hour you are found in the streets of Paris, where, with the exception of ourselves, you do not see a single individual?"

"Monsieur, I have told you; I had been paying a visit to the Faubourg du Roule. Leaving home at mid-day, and knowing nothing of what had taken place, I returned, of course, in equal ignorance, all my time having been spent in deep retirement."

"Yes," murmured Maurice, "in some retired house, the resort of the aristocrats Confess, citoyenne, while publicly demanding my protection, you laugh in your sleeve at my egregious folly."

"Why should I act thus?"

'You are aware that a Republican acts as your guide. Well, this Republican betrays his cause, that is all."

"But, citizen," quickly rejoined the Unknown, "I, as well as you, love the Republic; you labor under a mistake concerning me."

"Then, citoyenne, if you are a good patriot, you can have no cause for concealment. Where do you come from?"

"Monsieur, excuse me."

There was in this "monsieur" so much sweetness and modesty of expression that Maurice believed it to be founded on some sentiment concealed.

"Surely," said he, "this woman is returning from some rendezvous d'amour."

At this moment, without knowing why, he felt deeply expressed at this thought, and for a short time he remained silent.

When these two nocturnal promenaders had reached La Rue de la Verrerie after having encountered three or four patrols, who, thanks to the password, allowed them free passage, an officer at length asserted, inclined to raise some difficulties. Maurice save found it necessary to give his name and also his residence.

"That is all that is required from you," said the officer; ;"but the citoyenne, who is she?"

"The sister of my wife."

The officer permitted them to pass.

"You are then married, monsieur?" murmured the Unknown.

"No, madame, why do you think so?'

'Then," said she, laughing, "you had better have said I was your wife."

"Madame," said Maurice, "the name of wife is rather too sacred to be slightly bestowed. I have not the honor of your acquaintance."

The Unknown in her turn felt an oppression of the heart, and remained silent and confused. At this moment they crossed the bridge Marie. The young woman quickened her pace as they approached the end of their journey. They crossed the bridge De la Tourville.

"We are now, I believe, in your quarter," said Maurice, planting his foot o nthe quay Saint Bernard.

"Yes, citizen," replied the young woman, "but it is precisely here I most require your kind assistance."

'Really, madame," said Maurice, "you forbid me to be indiscreet, yet do all in your power to excite my curiosity. This is not generous. Grant me your confidence. I have merited it, I think. Are you not in honor bound to tell me to whom I speak?'

"You speak, monsieur," said the Unknown, smiling, 'to a woman whom you have saved from the greatest danger she could encounter, to one who owes you a debt of everlasting gratitude."

"I do not require so much, madame, be less grateful, and pending the second, tell me your name:"—"Impossible!"

"You might have told it nevertheless to the first sectionary, if you had been taken to the post.

"No, never!" said the Unknown.

'But, in that case, you would have gone to prison."

I had considered all that."

"And prison at this moment—"

"Leads to the scaffold; I know it all."

"And you would have preferred the scaffold?"

'To treason—to discover my name was treason; it is treason to betray others."

'I said truly, you compelled me to act a singlar part for a Republican!"

"You act the party of a truly generous man. You encounter a poor woman subjected to insult; you do not condemn her because she might be 'one of the people,' but that she may be exempted from fresh annoyances, to save her from shipwreck, you reconduct her to the miserable quarters she inhabits."

"As far as appearances go, you argue correctly, and I might have credited you, had I never either seen you or heard you speak; but your beauty and mode of expression stamp you as a woman of distinction, and it is just this distinction, in opposition with your costume and this miserable quarter, which proves to me that your absence from some at this unseasonable hour conceals some mystery. You are silent . . . we will speak no more. Are we far from your house, madame?"

"You see that small dark building," said the Unknown to Maurice, extending her hand, and pointing towards a house situated beyond the walls of the Jardin des Plantes. "When we arrive there you must quit me."

"Very well, madame, issue your orders; I am only here to obey."

"You are angry."

'I angry?—not the least in the world; besides, what does it matter to you?"

'It matters much, since I have yet a favor to ask of you.

"What is that?"

"The farewell of a friend! Oh! madame, you do me too great an honor. A singular friend, not to know the name of his friend, who even conceals from him where she resides, no doubt from the fear of being too much troubled with his company."

The young woman hung down her head, but did not reply to this sarcasm.

"As to the rest, madame,' continued Maurice, "if I have discovered a secret, I did so involuntarily, and without any effort on my part to do so."

"I have now reached my destination, monsieur,"—said the Unknown.

It was facing the old Rue St. Jacques, lined with tall dark-looking houses, intersected by obscure narrow alleys, leading to streets occupied by manufactories and tanyards, as within two steps ran the little river Du Bitre.

"Here!' said Maurice, "is it here that you live?"

"Yes."

"Impossible!"

"It is so, nevertheless. And now, adieu! my brave chevalier, my generous protector, adieu!"

"Adieu! madame," said Maurice, with slight irony of tone, 'but first again assure me you run no further risk of any danger."—"None whatever.

'In that case I will leave you."

Maurice bowed coldly and retired a few paces. The Unknown remained for an instant stationary in the same place.

'I do not like to take my leave of you thus," said she. "Come, monsieur, your hand."

Maurice approached, and held out his hand, and then felt the young woman had slipped a ring on his finger.

'Oh! citizen, what have you done? Do you not perceive that you have lost one of your rings?"

"Monsieur, you wrong me much."

"The crime of ingratitude is wanting in me; is it not so, madame?"

"Come, I beseech you, monsieur—mon ami, do not leave me thus. What do you wish to know? What do you ask?"

"Payment—is it not so?" said the young man bitterly.

"No," said the Unknown, with a bewitching expression, "but forgive me the secrecy I am obliged to preserve towards you.

Maurice, seeing in the obscurity those beautiful eyes almost humid with tears, feeling the pressure of that soft hand reposing between his own, hearing the accents of that persuasive voice, which had almost descended to the depths of prayer, felt his anger all at once yield to admiration.

'What do I ask?" said he. "To see you again."

"Impossible! utterly impossible."

"If only for once—one hour, a minute, a second."

"I tell you it is impossible."

"Do you seriously tell me," said Maurice, "that I shall never see you again?"

"Never," said the Unknown, in a desponding tone.

STARTED WORK ON FRASER MEMORIAL HOSPITAL TODAY

Fuller Company's Employees Staked Off Site This Morning

NEW RAILWAY BRIDGE WORK TO START SOON

Bate-McMahon Representative Coming Here to Look Over the Work

The first actual work in connection with the construction of the Fraser Memorial Hospital building was commenced this morning when employees of the George A. Fuller Company, the construction company who have been awarded the contract for the building, staked off the site.

The new building will be located immediately to the west of the original hospital building and the site involves, it is understood, the removal of the Asa Dow wing, which is used for contagious cases only, and it is said that in the new layout of buildings provision is also being made for a separate building for a maternity wing. It is expected that ground for the foundation of the building will be broken either tomorrow or on Monday. The contract calls for the new building to be completed and ready for occupancy by March 1st, 1921.

It is understood that the Canadian National Railways are also rapidly getting in readiness to have work started on their new bridge across the St. John river here. Tenders have not been called for as yet, but soon will be, and A. M. Jones, of the Bate-McMahon Company, Ottawa, who have done a lot of important work at Halifax and who built several of the large military camps in Canada during the war, will be here tomorrow to look over the work with a view to tendering.

Poor Farm To Be Established by York County, Devon and Marysville

COMMITTEE NAMED TO INSPECT PROPOSED SITES

Will Be Located Within Ten Miles of Here—$20,000 Can Be Spent

The municipal home and farm to be established by York County and the towns of Devon and Marysville will be located in the vicinity of Fredericton so as to be easily accessible from the various parishes.

At the meeting of the commissioners here yesterday afternoon a committee composed of Commissioners Wm. McMullen, of Prince William; Fred Seymour, of Douglas; Douglas Clarkson, of St. Marys; Charles Allen, of Southampton, and H. H. Pickard, of Devon, was appointed to look over and find a suiable site for the Home within ten miles of this city. NEW ENGLAND TEXTILE MILLS ADVANCE WAGE

300,000 Employees Included in the Various Branches to Receive Increase

$1,000,000 ADDED TO WEEKLY PAYROLL

The Advance is Generally Fifteen Per Cent.—Highest Wage Ever Paid

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Boston, May 15.—A wave of wage advance announcements to become effective May 31 rolled in today from New England textiles centres indicating that the increase would extend to virtually all the 300,000 textile operatives in the district. Wherever the amount of the advance was definitely stated, it was fifteen per cent.

This will bring the level of textile wages, already at the highest stage in history, more than 100 per cent. higher than it was four years ago.

Approximately $1,000,000 will be added to the weekly payrolls of New England mills by the latest raise.

Winnipeg Telephone Workers.

Winnipeg, Man., May 15. — Telephone workers in the employ of the Manitoba Government will receive a minimum of 90½ cents per hour and maximum 97½ cents per hour in a new wage agreement which has been ratified by the Manitoba Government Telephone Commission and the Independent Brotherhood of Telephone Workers.

Hair Cuts to Cost 75 Cents.

Chicago, May 15.—A number of Chicago Master Barbers today raised the price of haircuts from 50 to 75 cents, claiming that the wage advance recently granted to employees made the increase necessary. The Barbers union refused to sanction the increase.

FOOD PLENTIFUL IN BRITAIN NOW

Labor Is Fully Occupied at Wages Far in Advance of Pre-War Scales

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 15.—Conditions in England and France, so far as tourists are concerned, are almost normal and both countries are adequately prepared to take care of visitors, it was declared here last night at a banquet given by the foreign press correspondents in honor of Major Evelyn Wrench, a member of the staff of Lord Northcliffe.

Major Wrench said he was surprised to find so many erroneous ideas here regarding England. He declared food was plentiful there, and even cheaper than in the United States, and that labor was fully occupied at wages far in advance of pre-war scales.

Maitre Casenave, French High Commissioner to the United States, declared that all that had been said of England could be well applied to France.

Hun Communists Would Put Land Owners to Death

Communists Said to be Planning a New Insurrection

FEAR GREAT SLAUGHTER

Undecided as to Fate of Women and Children of Land Owners.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 15.—German communists are planning a new insurrection, which may be attended by wholesale murders, according to a Berlin despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company, quoting a statement by Herr Von Graefe, conservative member of the Reichstag.

FRIGHTFUL SLAUGHTER TO BE ANTICIPATED

The despatch says Herr Von Graefe has advised the Minister of Defence that meetings of communists are being held regularly in Mecklenburg, and that the question whether land owners alone should be put to death or whether their wives and children should meet a like fate is being discussed.

He maintains, it is said, that "there is no doubt Mecklenburg will be the scene of frightful slaughter."

BELIEVE SMALL HELD FOR RANSOM

Affidavit Made by Man Who Said He Was Asked to Help Kidnap Small

Toronto, May 15.—The World this morning gives currency to a rumor that Ambrose J. Small, proprietor of certain theatre interests, who disappeared early in December last, is alive, but being held for ransom.

The paper says that it is stated that a warrant has been sworn out by Percy Small, a brother of the missing man, and that the police will execute this document when certain information comes into their possession.

It is also stated, according to the World, that late employee of the Grand Opera House has made an affidavit that shortly before Mr. Small's disappearance he was approached with a proposal that he should be one of a small party to kidnap Small and hold him for ransom.

FRENCH INFORMERS WERE EXECUTED

Three Men and a Woman Convicted of Giving Information to Enemy Pay Penalty

Paris, May 15.—Three men and one woman, convicted last July of denouncing compatriots to German authority during the occupation of Laon during the war, were executed at Vincennes prison this morning.

Those who met death were Toque, Lemoine, Herbert and Madame Aubert.

Of twenty-eight persons tried last summer as "Loan informers" eight, two of them women, were condemned to death. Three failed to appear for trial and were sentenced to death by default, eleven received prison sentences ranging from one to twenty years and six were acquitted.

The Spa Conference Postponed to June 21

Hythe, Eng., May 15.—It was decided by Mr. Lloyd-George and Premier Millerand, of France, at their conference today at Beauclaire, the residence of Sir Philip Sassoon, near here, that the Spa conference between the members of the Allied supreme council and the German leaders should be postponed from May 25 to June 21.

PREMIERS AGREE ON FINANCIAL ISSUES

France to Receive Partial Payment of Hun Indemnity at Earliest Possible Day

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Hythe, England, May 15.—It is understood that Premier Millerand, at his conference with Lloyd-George, accepted the principle of fixing a round figure for the German indemnity, on the condition that France should have priority in the time of payment and that she should receive a partial payment at the earliest possible date.

The conference of the Premiers and their sides opened this morning. The session was attended, in addition to the two Premiers, by M. Francois-Marsal, the French Minister of Finance, J. Austen Chamberlain, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Coal Controllers of France and Great Britain, and Paul Cambon, the French Ambassador at London.

The conference was called primarily to discuss the subject of the meeting at Spa, at which the question of the German indemnity payments and kindred topics are to be taken up with the German representatives.

There was a full discussion at this morning's meeting of the Premiers and their aides regarding the financial questions at issue, and an agreement of general principles was reached.

The meeting was regarded by both the British and the French representatives as most satisfactory.

It is stated that the note informing the Germans of the postponement of the Spa meeting will explain the object and range of the conference so precisely that no misrepresentation regarding it will be possible during the German election campaign.

The question of the disarmament of Germany also was discussed by the Premiers.

After the morning session, which was adjourned during the noon hour, an official statement was issued which said that at the morning session of the conference there was a full discussion of financial questions, particularly German reparation matters. The conference, it was stated, were in harmony on the general principles, and it was added that the details, which experts would work out, would be considered at this afternoon's session.

THE INTER-CHURCH WORLD MOVEMENT

New York, May 15.—Criticism of the Presbyterian New Era movement and the inter-church world movement by the Presbyteries of Pittsburg, Seattle, Chillicothe, Ohio, St. Louis and Philadelphia, and a recommendation that the Presbyterian church withdraw from the last named $300,000,000 project, will be heard at the annual meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly in Philadelphia next week, J. B. Wootan, publicity director for the Presbyterian church in the United States, announced here today.

The Seattle Presbytery, in its strictures on the inter-church world movement, he said, declared that "the expenditures of the inter-church world movement are excessive, needless and destructive as evidenced by its large costs of rentals, its great multitude of employees, its numerous and expensive conferenes, and its excessive cost in publishing and distributing printed matter, etc."

HUSBAND GONE TWO WEEKS

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

ARNSTEIN HAS GIVEN HIMSELF UP TO JUSTICE

The Elusive "Master Mind" of Great Bond Theft Walks Into Police Court

WAS ACCOMPANIED THERE BY HIS WIFE

Arnstein Says He Was in Pittsburg all the Time the Police Were Looking for Him

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 15. — Jules W. (Nickey) Arnstein, putative "master mind" of New York's $5,000,000 bond theft plot, was arrested here today in the District Attorney's office, when he appeared there with his wife, Fannie Brice, the actress.

Arnstein told reporters he had been in Pittsburg all the time the police have been looking for him.

The elusive "Nicky" for whom Canadian and American police from coast to coast have been searching since February, in finally fulfilling his oft repeated promise to surrender himself, appeared at the District Attorney's office bright and early.

Besides his wife, he was accompanied by Wm. J. Fallon, his lawyer. They seated themselves and patiently watched for attaches of the office to show up for the day's work.

Five minutes after their arrival, Detective Edward Rayens, attached to the office, walked up to Arnstein and by order of Assistant District Attorney Rorke, placed him under arrest.

"Nickey" retained his reputation as a successful dodger of police until the last.

Taken to Rayens's office, he described to newspapermen an entrance into the city undetected by the sleuths who have been pursuing him for months.

According to his story, he arrived at the Pennsylvania Terminal from Pittsburg at nine o'clock this morning and went directly to Columbus Avenue and Ninth Street where, by prearrangement, he was met by his wife in her automobile. He used her machine, he said, because the police had faithfully listed the number of his own car.

Finding Miss Brice and Mr. Fallon awaiting him, he entered the machine and drove down Fifth Avenue with them in broad daylight.

The Arnstein car was held up for several minutes as the bluecoats fell in line and when he continued on his way to the Criminal Courts Building "Nickey" passed mile after mile of policemen, reviewing them from his machine, as it were.

The Date Is Fixed for St. John Bye Election

Monday, June 7th, is said to be the date which has been fixed by the Provincial Government for the holding of the bye-election in the city of St. John, when Hon. Dr. Roberts, Minister of Health, will seek endorsement of the constituency upon his acceptance of a salary as minister.

The writ for the bye-election has not yet been issued, but it is believed that it will be next week and perhaps before the Government meet in St. John. Under the amended New Brunswick Elections Act 17 clear days from the time of the posting of the proclamation is required before polling takes place.

It is not known what is to be done in respect to the vacancy in Carleton county, where there has been a demand for a bye-election, but it is evident the proposal for a general provincial election has been abandoned.

The Family Budget Cost More For Month of April

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

OTTAWA, May 15—The cost of the weekly family budget of staple foods averaged $15.99 at the middle of April, as compared with $15.98 at the middle of March, $13.35 in April, 1919, and $7.51 in April, 1914.

The price movement was marked by some sensational declines in foods, says the May issue of the Labor Gazette, but there were again increases in several lines of foods and materials. Increases in sugar and potatoes were offset by decreases in eggs. Fuel was slightly higher, and rent advanced in many of the cities.

Scathing Reply of Prominent American to the Criticisms Of Wilson on British Navy

Scores the President For His Remark That the British Were Helpless to the Point of Panic, When in Fact They Had Held the Seas Unaided for Three Years

New York, May 15.—A lengthy and well written reply to President Wilson's criticism of the British Admiralty, which was made public Wednesday by Secretary Daniels of the United States navy, is printed by the Tribune this morning. It is in the form of a letter to the editor by H. S. Middlemiss, and gives voice to what is believed to be the sentiment of a great many American citizens regarding the United States President's references to Britain's naval administration.

Mr. Middlemiss says that while the present is not an opportune time to indulge in inimical comparison of the achievements of the British and American fleets during the war, it cannot be amiss to indulge in reminiscences of what has taken place, 'particularly when the President of the United States sits in silence while his secret cables are being publishd broadcast to the world, messages that can create only doubt as to the achievements of the silent watchers who kept from America's shores the flame of a burning world.

"In his lamentable mesage," continues the writer, "the President declares the British 'were helpless to the point of panic.' This he had the temerity to say less than ninety days after the United States had abandoned its policy of 'strict neutrality' and had assumed the task of self-preservation.

"This he said after three years' bitter fighting by the men of Great Britain and her Allies, for until then she had no 'asociate.'"

The letter then reviews in detail the wonderful work accomplished by the British navy during the war.

'Panic stricken?'" quotes Mr. Middlemiss, "whatever else the Admiralty and its fleet could be, it was not panic stricken, even on the fourth of July, 1917 when a single regiment (the first of the Americas soldiers), marched through the streets of Paris."

The Tribune gives indirect endorsation to the views expressed by Mr. Middlemiss in the heading printed over his letter, which reads:

'That 'panic stricken' navyq—its record of calm and efficient service to the Allies through four years and on many seas."

BIGAMY CHARGE WAS WITHDRAWN

English Girl Said to Have Married Indian Soldier Now Weds His Brother

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Wiarton, Ont., May 15.—Developments in the war time romance which has stirred up so much interest in this district during the last week, followed one another with dramatic rapidity yesterday when the case against Laurence Keeshig, a returned Indian soldier, alleged to have contracted a bigamous marriage with an English girl was dismissed by Magistrate Miller, no appearance being entered in police court by the prosecution.

The story of the alleged bigamous marriage became public property early in the week, when Miss Marion Engall arrived in town from England and registered at the Aldcat Hotel, according to report, as Marion Keeshig. She was also alleged to have received mail and cables from England adressed to her as Mrs. Laurence Keeshig. She brought with her a six months' old baby.

The first surprise of yesterday was the announcement that Miss Engall, who is said to be well connected, both in this country and England, had been married yesterday by Rev. Mr. McAlee, at the Methodist parsonage, to Willis Keeshig, brother of Laurence Keeshig, and the second was the unexpectedly sudden ending of the matter in the police court yesterday morning.

On the charge of beating his wife, Laurence Keeshig was found guilty by the court, but a plea by his squaw for leniency secured for him a suspended sentence.

In connection with the bigamy charge both Laurence Keeshig and the English girl denied having been married. It was stated by Willis Keeshig that the child which Miss Engall brought with her from England is one that she has adopted.

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Toronto, May 15.—Returning to the generosity of the province of Quebec, twenty years ago, the Government of Ontario is granting $20,000 to the University of Montreal to assist in restoring it after the fire.

It was proposed to give ten thousand, the sum that Quebec gave the Toronto University when it burned, but H. H. DeWart, the Liberal leader, pointed out that that sum is hardly worth half what is was ten years ago. Premier Drury considered this suggestion in the legislature last night and agreed that double the sum should be given.

SAY CARRANZA SURRENDERED TO THE REBELS

With One Thousand Men the Mexican President Broke Through the Rebel Lines

LEFT LOYAL TROOPS TO COVER HIS RETREAT

General Santiago Also Said to Have Surrendered at Same Time as Carranza

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 15.—General Carranza and 800 men have surrendered to the forces surrounding them in the Mexican mountains, according to word received here today by way of Nogales.

This confirmation was given out by Manuel De La Pena, self-styled commercial attache in this city of the New Liberal Mexican government. He said he had received his information from Alfonso Alameda, of the Mexican bureau of information at Nogales.

Gen. Santiago also surrendered with Gen. Carranza, according to word received by De La Pena.

Troops under command of Gen. Flores are in possession of the port of Mazatlan, on the west coast, according to the same source of information.

Carranza Broke Through Lines.

Vera Cruz, May 15.—President Carranza, who, with his loyal followers, has been fighting a grim battle against revolutionary forces near San Marcos, for the past five days, has escaped capture, at least temporarily, according to despatches from the battle zone.

Accompanied by 1,000 of his men, the President has broken through the insurgent lines near Chalchicomula, about fifty miles east of Puebla, and is believed to be in the mountainous country between Puebla and Oaxaca. He left behind him a force of government soldiers, which is still fighting in an effort to delay pursuit of the fugitive chief executive.

Generals Aguilar and Sanchez, at the head of large units of revolutionary troops, on Thursday were preparing for a grand attack, according to a captain who arrived here yesterday from the scene of the fighting. Later despatches seem to indicate that Carranza feared this attack would be successful and he decided to slip through the encircling lines of his enemies, leaving Generals Murguia and Urquizo to meet the onslaught of the insurgents. Before taking refuge in flight, Carranza is said to have destroyed trains still held by his troops, together with war material too heavy to be carried away.

Many Casualties in Fighting.

Serious fighting has probably occurred since Carranza left the battle zone, as despatches say prisoners have been captured by attacking forces.

General Sanchez threw his forces into the battle Thursday afternoon, but was repulsed after a hard struggle. General Torres, one of the Chief Lieutenants of General Sanchez, was fatally injured while leading his men in a hand-to-hand combat, receiving a sword wound in the neck. He was taken to Orizaba, where he died yesterday.

Carranza's troops were well supplied with artillery and machine guns, and revolutionary infantry and cavalry met a perfect barrage of shells and bullets as they advanced to the attack.

Rebels Forced to Retire.

Two of Carranza's trains were taken and burned, but government forces were able to stop the advance and after four hours of fighting the insurgents retired.

Heavy losses were inflicted on both sides during the combat, it is reported in despatches to El Dictatem.

The British cruiser Cambrian, and the United States transport Portland arrived here today.

THE BRITISH FAVOR CLAIMS OF CHINA

British Interests in the Far East Would Like to See Chinese at Shantung

Shanghai, May 14. — The British Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai, representing the bulk of British interests in the Far East, has put itself on record as in favor of China's claims in the Shantung controversy. This is in line with action taken by American organizations in China and is regarded as significant in view of the fact that a part of the English commercial enterprises in the Orient are linked with the Japanese.

"This chamber," declared A. W. Burkill, chairman of the British Chamber's directorate in his address at the annual meeting, "is in full sympathy with China in her very natural desire to have control of this province returned to her.

"When one takes into consideration that Japan in taking Tsingtao with the help of British troops, was only doing her part as an ally, her present attitude is hard to understand.

"She is taking deliberate steps to control the whole of the land surrounding the harbor, docks, wharves and railroad terminals, and every obstacle is put in the way of other nationals of acquiring any property in what undoubtedly is the business centre.

"This policy can only be construed in one way, viz., that Japan is not going to allow any other nation to have an opportunity of trading on fair and equal terms with her own nationals. We, none of us want any special consideration; all we ask for is to be allowed to do business on an equal footing."

THE EXPERIMENTAL - FARM WORK PRAISED

The Minister of Agriculture Reviews the Work of His Department During Year

Ottawa, May 14.—The value of the Experimental Farm system to Canada was placed today at $60,000,000 by Hon. C. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, in discussing the agricultural estimates. Dr. Tolmie gave an exhaustive review of the work accomplished thus far through the experimental farms system and laid stress on the value of educating the farmer and helping him in the choice of better seed and better farming conditions. The addition of a few bushels per acre to the crop from every farm and the addition of a few pounds to the weight of every meat animal killed would mean an immense sum to the country, Dr. Tolmie stated. He quoted estimates showing that $233,211,082 could be added to the value of grain and potato crops by the use of first class seed, while by careful selection of breeding sires and expert feeding of cattle, sheep and hogs for slaughter and also by the improvement of breeding and laying hens, that sum could be brought to $508,500,000 in a year.

Seed Importance.

The importance of first class seed, proper cultivation and the judicious use of fertilizers could not be overestimated, Dr. Tolmie stated. He informed the House that the illustration farm system, whereby a man in certain districts turned over a portion of his farm to the Department and worked it himself under Departmental supervision, had proved a success where it was in operation, and the illustration farm work could be gradually extended to other provinces. To demonstrate the value of purebred stock, Dr. Tolmie told of a Vancouver man buying a heifer calf for $150 and later selling her with her calf for $150,000.

Dr. Tolmie emphasized that good breeding and proper care were both essential.

Members Pleased.

Hon. T. A. Crerar urged that care be taken to prevent overlapping between Federal and Provincial Departments. There were evidences of that in places at present. The description of the illustration farm plan pleased the members so well that not only was Dr. Tolmie complimented on the work of his department, but in the case of many such quarters he was urged to extend the system to their constituency as soon as possible.

J. H. Burnham (Peterboro), wanted a Dominion farm in each county.

The amount to be voted for Agricultural estimates is $3,903,000, of which $1,200,000 was for experimental farms, $18,000 for the branch of entomology, $150,000 for administration and enforcement of the destructive insect and pest act, and $160,000 for the department of the dairying industry and the improvement of transportation, sale and trade in food and other products. These items all carried.

During the evening debate, J. H. Burnham (Peterboro), protested that when agricultural estimates were being discussed there should be a full attendance of farmer members, instead of which very few were in attendance.

The sale to consumers, retail, in England today is equivalent in American money to about 16 cents a pound.

The sugar came from Cuba, the same source as that from which refiners and jobbers in the United States secured most of the supply they are now selling at prices ranging from 21 to 30 cents a pound.

TO RELIEVE CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

Persons suffering from catarrhal deafness, or who are growing hard of hearing and have head noises will be glad to know that this distressing affliction can usually be successfully treated at home by an internal medicine that in many instances has effected complete relief after other treatments have failed. Sufferers who could scarcely hear have had their hearing restored to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven or eight inches away from either ear. Therefore, if you know of someone who is troubled with head noises or catarrhal deafness, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be prepared at home and is made as follows:

Secure from your druggist 1 oz. Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissoved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmint is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are nearly always quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form, or distressing rumbling hissing sounds in their ears, should give this recipe a trial.

WIDE SCOPE OF THE BRITISH EXHIBIT

New York, May 14.—A range of manufacturing from shipbuilding to the making of pins and needles is included in the moving picture exhibition of British industries which will be shown in Canada and the United States during a world tour covering 1920 to advertise the manufactures of Great Britain. Advices from London indicate the scope of the exhibit and the manufacturing centres and individual firms that have arranged so far to take part in the film crusade.

Sheffield is one of the leading participants, with more than 30 firms entered. The Sheffield industries to be shown in operation include the various phases of steel manufacturing, tools and the cutlers and silver plate lines, with which Sheffield has long been identified.

Birmingham manufacturers are to show the production of motor cars, metal lamps and metal goods, bicycles and motorcycles, boiling tubing and pins of every description. Oldham and Manchester firms will exhibit the manufacture of cotton goods. Oldham, in addition to being England's greatest cotton goods centre, produces cordage, and Oldham rope manufacturers are also entered in the film tour.

Tipton proposes to show the manufacture of pumps; Worcester, of condiments; Redditch, of needles and fish hooks; Camborne, of drills and hoists; Liverpool enterprises include those making bagging and sacks, fish oil and mineral oil products, flour and hardware; Eastwood, wire rope, and London firms will exhibit the manufacture at various plants of arms, armament, steel and wall paper, also shipbuilding.

In the Glasgow exhibit are steel, tools, textiles, cordage, aeronautical and ship appliances. Renfrew, Scotland, is represented by firms making dredging and rock cutting machinery.

An itinerary of 97 cities is to be covered by the world tour. The programme is in three sections, one exhibit being scheduled to visit Canada, Western Europe and the United States, a second to visit South Africa, Australia and the Far East, and the third Latin American cities.

The enterprise aims to extend British world markets. It is the first large scale employment of the moving picture film as an "advance agent" of British industry.

POTATO PRICES TAKE BIG DROP

Now Selling at $9 in Carleton County As Well As On the Other Side of the Border

[Hartland Observer.]

On Monday the potato market went to pieces badly and the price dropped from $11 per barrel down to $9. No one was very severely hurt by the fall and most of the dealers were practically shipped out. The drop was a relief to the consumer.

Butter still brings fancy prices, 60c. being the price paid today. Eggs are bringing 45c. Oats are scarce and are bringing $1.25 per bushel. Common, ordinary hay is worth $29.

The Price Across Border.

[Fort Fairfield Review.]

Very few potatoes indeed are coming, and probably few will be in until planting is over. Even then it is expected the offerings will be very small. Some of the shippers have not been buying for the past week or two at all. The price now is $9 or $10 a barrel. Fertilizer is coming faster, yet it is a doubt if enough arrives to allow Aroostook farmers to put in the acreage at first planned. The high prices and serious shortage of help also operate to keep the acreage small. One of Fort Fairfield's biggest farmers, Ray O. Haines, will plant only one acre for himself. He has already leased 40 acres to P. H. Reed, and will do the planting, cultivating, digging and hauling of the crop for Mr. Reed.

How much did it cost the past year to raise a barrel of potatoes in the Aroostook valley? Well, of course, that depends on conditions. The question asked of a hundred different farmers will receive a hundred different answers. The average of these answers, however, has seemed to be from $2.50 to $2.75. A very prominent Fort Fairfield farmer of excellent judgment tells the editor that the cost this coming year will probably be 50 cents more, because the six barrels of potatoes used to the acre for seed will each cost about $7 more than the past year, making $42 extra, and the labor on an acre will probably be $25 more, while the fertilizer may perhaps cost $17 less, making a net increase in the cost of an acre of potatoes this year over last year of $50. Then if the yield should be 100 barrels—it will probably be somewhat less—the added cost of the barrel of potatoes this year over last year would be 50 cents. If this figuring is not all right, kindly write to the editor and tell him what the matter is with it, and your letter will be published if you so desire.

Four of Smallest Countries Of World Seek Admission To the League of Nations

New Interest Awakened in the Peoples of Iceland, the Republic of Georgia, San Marino and Luxemburg—The Present Status of the Little Nations

New York, May 14.—Applications by four of the smallest countries in the world—Iceland, the republic of Georgia, San Marino and Luxemburg—for admission to the League of Nations, which are to come before the council of the league when it convenes shortly in Rome, Italy, have awakened interest in these lands and peoples.

Iceland, which until 1918 belonged to Denmark, has a population of approximately 70,000 and an area of 35,000 square miles. It was discovered by Norsemen in the 9th century and continued as a republic until 1292, when it united with Norway. In 1389 it was taken by Denmark, in whose hands it remained until two years ago when, in full agreement with the mother country, under a principle of self determination Iceland proclaimed its independence. King Christian, of Denmark, honored his former colony by sending a warship to salute the Icelandic national flag.

The Danish Government in 1913 forbade the manufacture or sale of intoxicants and the parliament of Iceland subsequently enacted a prohibition law making the 19 syssels or parishes in the country's three amits or provinces forever "dry." Icelandic women have long had the right to vote.

Reykjavik and Akreyri, the principal villages of Iceland, are on the coast, which is a belt of rich pasture land. The interior is a vast platea 2,000 or more feet above sea level, composed largely of sand and lava desert and practically destitute of grass or trees excepting a few hardy beeches. There are no roads. For centuries Iceland was the center of volcanic eruptions, the lava fields covering an area of 4,500 square miles.

Georgia, formerly ancient Iveria, a part of Russian Trans-Caucasia, is populated by a people who call themselves Martli and who are known by neighboring Persians as Guri. The seats of government are Tiflis and Curia. In the third century they constituted a mighty state which lasted until 1424, when it was divided into three parts. In 1800 Georgia was incorporated in the Russian Empire.

The population of Georgia at the time she declared her independence of Russia, on May 26, 1918, was about 3,000,000. Eighty per cent. of the Georgians are farmers. On March 17 last the independence of Georgia was recognized by Italy. Under the Turkish peace treaty Batum is to become a free port.

San Marino or Sammarino, is not only one of the smallest but one of the oldest republics in Europe. It is enclosed by three Italian provinces and consists of a scraggy mountain 2,420 feet high, on which is the town and some circumjacent terraces with four or five villages. The population prior to the war was about 8,000. San Marino furnished an army to the Allies. The chief industry is agriculture, including the raising of cattle. The legislature of the republic is composed of a Senate of 60 members elected for life equally from the ranks of peasants, citizens and nobles. Two presidents are chosen by the Senate every six months.

Luxemburg, which lies between Rhennish Prussia, Belgium and Alsace-Lorraine, and which was occupied by the Germans during the war, was made a Grand Duchy in 1814 by the King of the Netherlands. In 1867 it was declared neutral territory by the Treaty of London. It has belonged, however, since 1842 and until the signing of the Versailles Treaty to the Zollverein or German Custom's Union.

The population of Luxumburg before the war was approximately 200,000 living in an area of about 1,000 square miles. Walloon French is spoken in a few villages, but the language of the people is chiefly a German dialect.

After the armistice in the world war, the Germans evacuated Luxumburg, a revolution occurred but was halted by the Allies. The American troops passed through the country and were well received. The Grand Duchess Marie, whose abdication had been demanded by a mob, fled from the country and a republic was proclaimed. This new government, however, existed only a few hours. The parliament called for a plebiscite to decide the future form of government and the people voted for a restoration of the Grand Duchy, electing as Grand Duchess, the Princess Charlotte, the sister of Marie.

HIGH WATER

Hartland Has Highest Water Since 1887—Many Buildings Flooded.

[Hartland Observer.]

Following the rain of Saturday the river rose to a height not exceeded in 33 years. Many buildings in low-lying sections of the town were flooded but only one family was forced to move to a higher level. While very few remember seeing such a height of water except during times of an ice jam those who can recall the year of 1887 will recall that the water was so high that a barn on the highest point of Matheson's Island floated away down stream. A canoe from the west side sent over for Dr. Stevens was moored at the basement of the tenement building owned by H. N. Boyer just south of Clarke's Hotel. This event was on May 8 and no ice was running. It followed "the winter of the deep snow."

There are many things you don't know, and it is just as well you don't.

WILSON AND THE NAVY.

As part of his answer to the disclosures regarding the attitude of the United States Navy Department early in the war made by Rear Admiral Sims, Secretary Daniels has made public an address delivered by President Wilson to the officers of the American Atlantic Fleet on board the flagship Pennsylvania in August, 1917. It was a rather remarkable utterance, and it may easily be understood why nothing of it was released to the public at the time, points out the Ottawa Journal.

President Wilson in that address was urging the American Navy to go to it and win the war. He was not satisfied with what the British Navy was doing and had an idea that there was some simple way of ending the submarine menace if someone would only think of it. He complained to the officers of the Atlantic Fleet that American suggestions had not been acted upon by the British Admiralty. "Every time we have suggested anything to the British Admiralty the reply has come back that virtually amounted to this, that it had never been done that way; and I felt like saying: 'Well, nothing was ever done so systematically as nothing is being done now,'" said President Wilson. Therefore, he wanted to see something unusual happen, something that was never done before, and so he advised the American naval officers to "throw tradition to the winds."

Perhaps the British Navy and the brains of the Admiralty did not measure up to the problem presented by the submarine situation. They may have been too timid, and they may have failed in strategy. But President Wilson hardly did them justice in suggesting that they were doing nothing. He himself had no solution for the problem other than the vague notion that the submarines should be attacked at their bases. He was willing, he declared, to sacrifice half the American navy to destroy the bases, but there was no assurance that such sacrifice would accomplish its purpose. And if Britain had sacrificed half her navy in such an attempt and it had failed, where would she have been? A large part of her navy was required in distant waters and the United States Navy Department, as has been disclosed, was unwilling to send all the ships to the North Sea that were wanted. The British Navy made the winning of the war possible by keeping the German fleet bottled up and helpless. Had half the navy been sacrificed in a wild attempt on German bases and had that attempt failed it might not have been possible to keep the German fleet impotent.

Eventually such a plan as President Wilson was thinking vaguely of was carried out by the British Navy and finally succeeded—the attacks on Zeebrugge and other bases. But these efforts were only possible after careful planning and there was never any certainty of success. Earlier efforts were abortive.

Just what the British Navy would have accomplished more than it did accomplish by "throwing tradition to the winds" is difficult to imagine. The first naval engagement of the war, that in Heligoland Bight, put such a fear into the enemy that he never after that ventured far from his fortified bases in any strength. The individual engagements which freed the seas from German armed raiders were also of some account, surely, and the summary bringing to account of Von Spee's squadron in the South Atlantic. And in these actions traditions were not thrown away.

The submarine warfare presented a problem which past experience did not help to solve, but even in that the traditions of the British Navy stood the Allies in good stead. The trawlers and the "Q" ships which risked almost certain destruction daily in combatting the German pirates were inspired by British naval traditions. So were the men of the merchant marine, whose heroism and determination did as much as anything else to foil the German plan for bringing England to her knees.

Traditions after all did count for something, despite the impatience of the President.

THE ST. JOHN BYE-ELECTION.

The date for the St. John bye-election has, it appears, been fixed for Monday, June 7th. The writ will, it is said, be issued early next week. The St. John Standard has promised a contested election and a spirited and an interesting campaign. It may be that the writ for the Carleton county vacancy will also be issued next week, with the election day fixed for June 7th, but in this case the intention of the Government is not yet clear, and naturally so, for the Government has feared public opinion in Carleton for several years. The intention to spring the general elections in July has been abandoned for reasons best understood by the members of Government, who are so tied up with the interests that they are not permitted at all times to give effect to their own notions. The people of the province, particularly the people who have yet faith and confidence in the Opposition, will be much interested in the movements at St. John; for they naturally look to St. John as one of the constituencies of the province in which they can reasonably expect political activity when party principles are involved, as in this instance.

KIEV RECOVERED FROM THE REDS.

The Polish capture of Kiev assumes considerable importance because of the ability that the Poles have displayed to overcome the Bolshevik forces. If the Polish armies can maintain their superiority in the field, the Bolsheviki will be unable to regain the city, and must on the contrary lose the entire region subservient to it. A Ukrainian State under Polish protection will in that case doubtless arise, to the benefit of dozens of millions of people lately or even now under Soviet rule.

To attack and destroy the Bolshevik power at its centre is hardly the task for the Poles. If their nation has a good historic memory, it will recall not without bitterness that old Poland ruined itself when it overthrew the Turks before Vienna. Every people that had relied on John Sobieski's hussars for protection against the Sultan turned upon their descendants. Ukrainian, Muscovite, Austrian and Prussian carved domains out of the territory of the republican State now no longer necessary to their security. The union that they had not often effected in the face of the common peril to Eastern Europe, the partitioners of Poland found no trouble in effecting when it came to despoiling the superfluous neighbor. Why, then, should Poland run to meet a second doom by destroying an enemy of civilization thanks to others' fear of whom she now enjoys such general respect?

The power of Poland is as yet too slight to permit of the effort needful for pacifying a great country like Bolshevik Russia, however she might surmount the organized resistance. It is one thing to occupy and quite another to reorganize a territory. Nor does the spaciousness or the harsh climate of Russia permit the thought of an easy march of deliverance upon Moscow. Odessa on the other hand, and the south Russian region, lie within reach.

GENERAL SIR ARTHUR CURRIE'S NEW WORK.

The appointment of General Sir Arthur Currie to the distinguished position of Principal of McGill University comes as a surprise—a pleasant surprise. In casting about for a successor to Sir William Peterson, or more correctly to Sir Auckland Geddes, the Board of Governors were expected to have chief regard for high academic attainments, and so to preserve the continuity of scholarly men who have adorned the chief chair at McGill. It was a happy, if novel, inspiration that led them to turn to one whose eminence has not been achieved in the field of education, says an exchange. What Sir Arthur Currie may lack academically, and he is not a novice in teaching, he makes up in other qualifications. His signal success as a soldier was not adventitious, nor reaped from extraneous aids; it came from the merits of the man, from his courage, tenacity, alert mind, disciplinary power, and ability to take occasion by the hand. These qualities give reason for confidence that, as Principal of a great University, he will maintain its traditions, extend its usefulness, perfect its organization and enhance its reputation. A nation-wide soldier, Sir Arthur Currie is aptly chosen to direct the affairs of a nation-wide University, for McGill draws its students not from one province or class, but from all degrees of people throughout the Dominion and beyond. He will enter upon his duties under good auspices, with the confidence of the Governors, and the goodwill of Montreal's citizens, who will take no small pride in having at the head of McGill the eminent soldier who won by merit and service supreme command of the Canadian army in the great war, and with whom that army gained imperishable renown.

ITALY'S CABINET DEFEAT.

The defeat and resignation of the Nitti cabinet have no bearing on Italy's foreign policy and but little on her internal affairs. It was not a burning question on which the Chamber of Deputies voted, but merely a matter concerning posts and telegraphs, on which the people are far from likely to get up any enthusiasm, remarks an exchange. The vote appears to have been a snatch vote and a fractional vote. It was taken on a motion made on behalf of the Socialist party, and that party, though it is strong, could not have carried the motion. But the Popular party, seeing an opportunity to strike a blow at the government, joined the Socialists when the question came to the vote, and thus, at a sitting where only three-fifths of the deputies were present, a majority of votes against the cabinet was obtained.

The matter at issue was so unimportant that the cabinet need not have tendered its resignation, if Premier Nitti had not asked for the rejection of the motion and said that he would regard the vote as one of confidence or no confidence in his ministry. Acceptance of his resignation might quite properly be refused. It is a pity that political stability should be disturbed by an affair which is comparatively so trivial. If Francisco Nitti goes out of office, he goes with an enhanced reputation. His leadership has revealed an ability which was not generally known. If, as the Catholic party says, he favored the Socialists, they did not favor him. Perhaps he did not think of favor to any party, but of reconciliation of all. His favor was given to peace. And there is nothing more needful for Italy.

A GLOUCESTER CO. APPEAL TO OTTAWA

Delegation to Go to Capital in Regard to Future of Caraquet and Gulf Shore Ry.

A delegation from Bathurst and other Gloucester county points will go to Ottawa soon to interview the Government regarding the future of the Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway.

Business men and shippers have long been complaining of the service furnished by the railroad, and efforts have been made to have the government operate the road as part of the C.N.R. The government and the owners of the road were unable to agree on the price, and for months the issue has been in abeyance. A recent meeting of the railroad officials and business men was held in Bathurst, with the result that it was decided something must be done shortly to grant relief.

If the federal government does not take over the road the management will be urged to improve conditions. If conditions are not improved, it is understood the Road Act passed in 1919 will be enforced, which means that a new management can be installed.

FATAL ACCIDENTS ON NORTH SHORE

Three fatal accidents occurred recently in this province. Henry Lanteigne, of Island River, Gloucester Co., while crossing over a stretch of weak ice in Shippegan harbor to go to Shippegan village, broke through in the middle of the channel. He held on to the edge of the thin ice for a short time and called lustily for help. Dr. E. Paulin, with a score of others, rushed to the imperiled man, but before they could reach the spot the swift current dragged the unfortunate man under the ice. His faithful dog, which had followed him, sat near the hole piteously yelping for his lost master and would not leave the place until dragged forcibly away by the rescuing party. Lanteigne leaves a wife and three children.

Near Blackville, Northumberland Co., recently, Charles Johnson, who was employed by the Fraser Company, Ltd., on a log drive, was killed by several heavy logs rolling on him from off a landing. The logs were being rolled into a stream, when several broke away unexpectedly. Johnson's home was at Acadiaville, Kent Co.

Theda Boucher, the eight year old daughter of Henry Boucher, of Big River Settlement, Gloucester Co., was so seriously burned about the face and body that she died after being removed to the J. H. Dunn Hospital in Bathurst.

Events of a Day In Parliament

Ottawa, May 15.—The day in Parliament:

In the House of Commons:

The estimates of the Agricultural Department were taken up.

F. S. Cahill, of Pontiac, made a statement regarding D. B. Hanna, President of the Canadian National Railways, and the Canadian Northern Town Properties.

The third reading was given the bill to amend the supreme court act.

The Stock Market

New York (Wall Street), May 15.—A more cheerful feeling prevailed in the stock exchange market today, prospects of a revival of gold imports causing considerable short covering. Dealings were light, however, reflecting the reduced attendance of members on the floor of the exchange. Pools were active in several of the shippings, oils and specialties, substantial gains being recorded by Atlantic Gulf, Mexican and Pan American petroleums, Industrial Alcohol and some of the automomible issues.

FROM THE PEOPLE

MORE PRODUCTION, NOT LESS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Prices to my mind will not recede until there is more production, and greater production cannot be brought about by higher wages and shorter hours. We must get at the seat of the trouble—social unrest.

This unrest is to some extent a reaction from the world war, but one of its main causes is lack of real leadership. While our so-called leaders haggle over problems that are to benefit our children they leave the vital issue, reconstruction, to take care of itself. We need at this time of stress a practical man of sound common sense and large character whom the people will follow, and not a theorist who keeps aloof. We have no leader today; every one shifts for himself.

Social unrest and high prices will not let up until some constructive policy has been put into force. Construction must be speeded up. If it is necessary to have a ten hour working day for one year, well, let us have it. We can then go back to the eight hour day when production reaches normal.

Scarcity makes high prices. Getting after the so-called profiteers does not solve the problem. The real profiteer is the strike organizer. The coal strike, the rail strike and the clothing strike all have caused higher prices. Continued strikes for higher wages make for higher prices, they do not get us anywhere, but cause a general unrest.

Leaders in this age are business men, as in the days of our forefathers they were fighters.

Yours,
COMMON SENSE.

Chatham, May 12, 1920.

HUNGER STRIKES

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I want to ask a question upon which my convictions are not as well settled as I expect them to be after I shall have read the answers of your various correspondents.

I frequently have read of prisoners going on a hunger strike and on that account being as frequently liberated. Now, if a man elects to die by starvation, when his object is to defeat the law, should he not be permitted so to do? If the law permitted a few of these "martyrs" to die, would it not deter others from resorting to this method?

I am not questioning the motive of the hunger striker, but am only concerned at this time with the majesty of the law.

What do your readers think?

Yours,
W. O. T.

AU REVOIR UNCLE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Kindly give publication to the following through the medium of your people's column:

Owing to the lack of a proper name, and in order to conform to the rules of courteousness, in writing this letter I will address the subject as Mr. Uncle Ruben, of Kingsclear, N. B.

Dear Mr. Uncle Ruben, I have had the pleasure of reading both of your epistles and with a few variations the contents were symmetrical, with the exception of several terms of cheap abuse in your last letter, which could easily be counterbalanced if I chose to use the same weapon.

I quite understand that former letter hit you quite forcibly, and to counteract it you chose the line of least resistance, because it does not require the pen of an expert author to quote nursery rhymes, or the language which you append.

Now, Uncle, I do not wish to give offence or be objectionable to your delicate sense of culture, but will endeavor to answer your charges. Mr. Uncle Ruben, why did you write and publish your first letter at all, regarding the majority of soldiers and their dependents? You know, and every person of average intellect knows, that there is not the remotest possibility of that wildcat scheme brought forward by a bunch of Calgary extremists ever becoming fact. As regards the $2,000 bonus to returned men, to show you that the majority of ex-soldiers do not favor this I would point out to you that the G.W.V.A., the recognized official organization of returned men, has condemned this scheme, declaring the amount asked for to be too large.

Moreover, Uncle, some people have a chronic fault of not giving proper thought to the proper subject. I will grant there is a portion of ex-soldiers who are agitators; you must remember that 500,000 men gathered from all corners of the earth are not infallible. Now, Uncle, I happen to be brought up a worthy son of the soil, and do not consider it a disgrace; but I would remind you that they have their percentage of fleecers as well as other vocations, in the way of bleeding their government. I could refer you to several cases of graft right through the country on government work, such as road fixing, election probes, etc. And, Uncle, do you write articles about these people? Certainly not. Why? Because it would reflect discredit upon the farmer. Why, then, do you condemn the majority of soldiers for the sake of a few? I would remind you that the world is made sweeter by taking acids out, not putting them in. Now be honest with yourself; you accuse me of being sour-minded, but had you not a grouch yourself? Your letter has had no effect; if the government wished to sanction the bonus proposal I cannot fancy them referring to a letter written by a certain individual of Kingsclear.

And again, your second letter was headed Soldiers' Bonus. If you had read my letters carefully, I assure you I never hinted such. What I was condemning was the unfair attitude you had taken. Then again you manipulate your words in such a manner as to be led to think I lay the blame on you for starting the war. I may say your expression is crude.

You make mention of the wives of soldiers lounging about in their hammocks during the war. Perhaps there were a few; it is only logical that there should be. But you failed to make note of the fact that the farmer and his wife were amply paid for all their "sweating labor," as you put it; never were the farmers able to enjoy such luxuries as at present.

Then you bring in the theory of monetary compensation. You stroll away to the frozen north, or stop at some lumber camp, and compare the inevitable consequences of everyday life with that of the soldier's wife. But you will note that the late war called for special effort on the part of the nations concerned, and although you may be able to quote harrowing scenes and such like, we can count the war widows by the thousands, and the wives of the crippled pile up a higher rate. The world can support a reasonable percentage of everyday happenings, but the amount is so large today that they do demand attention and help, if the young of Canada are to become vigorous and healthy. We need no scenes painted to remind us of the war, not even by historians, because the facts are evident to those willing to look and consider.

Then you speak of indiscriminate paying of pensions to those who do not deserve them. If there is such discrimination, why did the Pensions Committee recommend a 25 per cent. increase? The committee evidently know their business, and that business is to do justice and economize on their country's purse. If your contentions are correct, why the increase?

Now, Uncle, one bit of rhetoric. I am not asking your presence, imaginative or otherwise.

Some morning you go down to one of those beautiful, quiet streams of your locality. The water is calm, a tree casts its shadow over the water, the bees are travelling in its branches, Nature seems intent on giving cheerfulness and happiness to everyone. The stage is set. Look down; see your own reflection. Is it in keeping with Nature, or does it present the spectacle of a "grouch," a cog out of place even in your own community? Then let one ray of sunshine fall upon you; look around. What you thought was a grievance was but an imaginary one. Stop brooding; the world needs your service, not abuse. Therefore, Uncle, I bid you good-bye, good luck—and sunshine.

Yours,
P. JEFFREY.

Fredericton, May 9, 1920.

P. S.—I may further say this is finis as regards this controversy.

GRAVE BURIES CENSURE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—"Why do we wait till people die to praise them?"

This query in your People's Column expresses a mere psychic manifestation. We talk more of the unknown and mysterious than of things familiar. It is in accordance with God's law that impels mankind to seek new discoveries.

Criticism can be constructive or destructive. Criticism must be exact or it becomes either praise or slander.

While our neighbor lives, we criticise more or less adversely., because his defects glare at us while we simply smile and nod silent approval of his virtues. But when our neighbor passes on we see him as a whole, like a book from beginning to end or a drama from curtain rise to finale. Seeing him thus his defects fade into the background, while his virtues shine out like crystals.

Yours,

Fredericton, May 14, 1920.

RETINAL PHOTOGRAPHS

To the Editor of The Gleaner:

Sir,—A recent letter in From the People impels me to write because I feel that I can explain the pictures of faces that one of your contributors sees whenever she closes her eyes and perhaps give her a timely suggestion.

We ordinarily say that everything is black when we close our eyes. This is not the case, as reflection will show any one of us. Close the eyes and light moving patches against a black background will be seen. Look for a second or two at the sun or an electric light, then turn away and we still see it, and if we shut out all light we can continue to see it, perhaps in changing colors, for several minutes. Or if we look as long as half a minute at something not so brightly contrasting, as a rubber band or a lead pencil on a piece of white paper, and then look at the blank paper or close our eyes so we can see the whole thing with the values reversed, a sort of camera negative of it.

Already the explanation of your correspondent's day dream is obvious. She perhaps noticed the form of a head once. Next time she looked for it. Now it is a habit. The intrinsic retinal light follows curving outlines and blotchings that readily adapt themselves to heads and faces. it is all a matter of chance attention, then interest, then habit. It should be added that it is a bad habit, if carried to excess, for it tends to make real the unreal and makes the mind waste itself on the useless when it should be refreshing itself in thought and contemplation. Perhaps the worst factor of all is that this indulgence in these fancies tends to put habit rather than self in control.

The remedy for the habit is to direct the will toward realities until the fancies are banished entirely. It will take effort for a time, but soon it will be easy.

Yours,
PSYCHOLOGIST.

GOLF ENTHUSIAST RESORTS TO PRESS

London, May 14.—A Scotch golf enthusiast who was too polite to make a face-to-face protest against another player's objectionable manners, but too aggrieved to remain silent, recently inserted this advertisement in the "agony columns" of several London newspapers:

"Would the individual with the handicap of eighteen and the large voice, who hacks his way around a certain suburban course, reflect that his golfing adventures do not interest other members to the extent that he would think?"

"P. H. and G. W. Reed, Fort Fairfield's well known horsemen, have brought from Pennsylvania, by G. W. Gerow, their trainer, a fine black mare by Walter Direct, dam by Allerton, 2.08¼. The mare is said to have a four-year-old trial of 2.13¾."

Her Famous Sire Just Died.

The noted pacing stallion, Walter Direct, 2.05¾, probably the foremost of present-day pacing sires, died May 2 at the home of his owner, W. M. Tolley, Tolley Farm, Columbia, Tenn., his death coming without any warning.

Walter Direct was just twenty years old, having been foaled in 1900, and was bred by E. F. Geers, who campaigned his unbeaten sire, Direct Hal, 2.04¼, and by Chaffin Bros., the dam of Walter Direct being the good pacing mare, Ella Brown, 2.11½, also raced by Mr. Geers, and it was but natural that Walter Direct should have been trained by the veteran Grand Circuit reinsman.

Walter Direct is credited with the following fourteen 2.10 performers: Napoleon Direct, 1.59¾; Grace Direct, 2.00½; Walter Hal, 2.04; The Assessor, 2.04½; Manitoba, 2.04¾; Colonel Armstrong, 2.05¼; Walter H., 2.05¼; Annie Laurie, 2.05½; Merry Direct, 2.06¾; Spy Direct, 2.06¾; Jessie Direct, 2.07¼; Hallie D., 2.08¼; Hallie Direct, 2.09¾; Direct Spy, 2.10, all pacers; while his daughters have produced the pacers Highland Lassie, 2.09¾, and Pat Carmody, 2.07½.

Alexander the Great, 2.05¼, is dead.

A. B. Coxe, of Paoli, Penn., has sent Miss Bertha Dillon, 2.02½; Nella Dillon, 2.05¼, and Dorothy Axworthy, 2.21¾, dam of Chestnut Peter, 2.05¼, to Laurel Hall Farm, where they will be bred to Peter the Great, 2.07¼.

Suspension Still Stands

The following appears in the official report of cases dealt with by the Board of Review of the National Trotting Association recently in New York:

6495—J. B. Gilchrist, Norton, N. B., Canada, vs. Fredericton Trotting Park Association, Fredericton, N. B. Application for release of himself and the chestnut mare, Mac Dillon, from suspension imposed October 10, 1919.

The Shareholders of the Fredericton Park Association Held Meeting Last Night

Those Present Represented 176½ Shares and After Formal Business An Adjournment Was Made Until Next Week When Directors Will Be Elected

In response to a call which had been issued for a general meeting of the shareholders of the Fredericton Park Association, the incorporated company which controls the Fredericton Trotting Park, the most representative meeting of the stockholders which has been held for years took place last evening at the Mayor's Office, City Hall.

Since the call for the meeting was published, there has been a considerable change in the ownership of the stock in the company, and several new as well as many of the original shareholders were present. In all there were 119 shares held by the stockholders present, as well as proxies for 57½ additional shares, making a total of 176½ shares represented at the meeting, which it was said is almost the entire issue.

Those present included Capt. John S. Scott, J. H. Fleming, Ald. T. S. Wilkinson, L.B.C. Phair, Alonzo Staples, H. C. Rutter, Dr. G.C. McCoy, H. J. Morgan, R. W. Smith, F. P. Colter, G.E. Howie, W.B. Lint, P.S. Watson, E. O. McDonald. The meeting elected Mr. Watson as chairman and Mr. Howie as secretary pro tem.

A resolution was adopted ratifying the call for the meeting and declaring it to be a legally held meeting of the shareholders, this being deemed advisable inasmuch as the regular annual meeting of the shareholders had not been called nor held.

It was then explained that it had been deemed advisable by the association's solicitor, before the election of directors for the ensuing year be proceeded with, that a committee be appointed to make a report on the matter of bye-laws at an adjourned meeting. The shareholders then passed a resolution approving of such an adjournment until Wednesday evening, May 19th inst., and appointing Messrs. Howie and Smith as such committee to confer further with the association's solicitor.

The meeting then adjourned until next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, when the new board of directors will be elected and organization completed.

A RACING CIRCUIT IN AROOSTOOK CO.

But Only Intermittent Racing is Planned for the Potato Belt

Presque Isle, Me., May 14. — Fully alive to the best interests of the Aroostook Driving Club Circuit, the Presque Isle Driving Club recently decided to dold a special meeting, inviting the other clubs of the circuit to join them. Accordingly the invitation was given and proved the source of a most congenial gathering and was held in Odd Fellows Hall. In the absence of president Geo. Colbath, J. H. O'Donnell presided and the following visitors were present: Edgar Russ, Frank Riley, Henry Mitton, Jerry Smith, George Harman, Ezra Briggs, N. A. Currier, Walter Bailey, Clint Parsons, Caribou; D. W. Haines, Samuel Billings, P. H. Reed, George Reed, Monte Gerow, Fort Fairfield. The writer hopes none have been omitted.

After a very profitable meeting at which plans were discussed, the gentlemen were all invited to the I. O. O. F. dining room, where the wives of the local club had prepared an appetizing lunch of baked beans, cold ham, hot rolls, pickles, cake and coffee, which all enjoyed. After supper a smoke talk was held in the hall proper and the evening passed most pleasantly. The visiting members returned by auto.

The Aroostook Circuit opens up for business with the fourth of July celebration at Caribou, which comes off Monday, July 5th, as the 4th falls on Sunday.

The second meet of the circuit races will be at Presque Isle July 27-28.

The next meet will be at Presque Isle, August 3-4, followed August 10-11 at Fort Fairfield. The various Fairs will demand the time of the racers for some time after. It was agreed upon to make the purses for the circuit races, $400 making three classes for each day.

The matter of high rate of expenses was duly considered and in order to meet them it was decided to make gate admissions 85 cents including war tax.

Rev. E. A. Gillespie, a Methodist minister at Montrose, Penn., was working with the machinists in a garage tuning up his car when a telephone message came from the parsonage saying that a couple to be married was waiting for him there. He looked down at his soiled clothing and his dirty hands and telephoned to his wife: "Let them come down to the garage and I'll marry them here." They did and he did.

The Big Leagues

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

New York, May 15—In the American League yesterday Washington won a loosely played game from Detroit by 9 to 8.

All other games were postponed because of rain.

In the National League Chicago won its fifth straight game from Boston. Boston outhit Chicago two to one, but the wildness of Rudolph, with bunched hits in the seventh, gave the game to Chicago.

A pitching duel was broken up in the 14th inning of the Brooklyn-St. Louis game when Goodwin weakened and allowed four hits which, with three errors, gave Brooklyn the game.

The wildness of Philadelphia's pitching gave the Reds a 4 to 3 victory.

Babe Ruth With Five Homers Ahead of Last Year's Record But Cobb Has Not Started

Eddie Rousch, of Cincinnati Reds, Has Found His Old Batting Eye

FEW NEW NAMES AMONG THE LEADERS

Players Just Breaking Into the Big Show Find the Old Timers Sticking

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Chicago, May 15—"Babe" Ruth's 1920 offensive towards a new home run record is in full bloom. The New York slugger connected with a trio of home runs in two days and has five circuit drives to his credit, according to averages completed today. The averages includes games of Wednesday.

Johnston, of Cleveland, shot to the front among the American League batters with an average of .414, acquired in twenty games. The Cleveland first baseman connected with twenty-nine hits for a total of thirty-five bases.

Joe Jackson, of Chicago, is right behind Johnston with a mark of .397 compiled in the same number of games. Jackson, however, made 31 hits for a total of 45 bases, being at bat 78 times to his rival's 70.

Bobbie Roth, of Washington, is showing the way to the base stealers with nine thefts. Ty Cobb has not yet fully recovered his batting eye. In twenty one games with Detroit, the star has made only 18 hits for an average of .243. Other leading batters are:

Pittsburg's New Star

Outfielder Nicholson, of Pittsburg, has taken the lead among the National League batters. He is hitting .455 for 12 games, with Hornsby, the St. Louis star, the runner-up with .414, one point in front of Lebourveau, of Philadelphia. The averages include players who have participated in ten or more games.

Max Flack, Chicago's lead off man, is the leading run getter. He has registered 17 times, and has been on base an average of twice a game, but the members following him have not been able to deliver the necessary punch to put him across the plate with anything like consistency.

Williams, of Philadelphia, and Robertson, of Chicago, are tied for home run honors. Each has whacked out three round trips.

Rousch, of Cincinnati, who has recovered his batting eye, and is up among the leaders this week, is in a triple tie for stolen base honors with his team mate Neale, and Stock, of St. Louis. Each has pilfered five bases.

Other leading batters are:

The International League.

Toronto, May 15.—Averages compiled by A. Munro Elias, of New York, show De Noville, of Jersey City, leading the International League batsmen with the splendid average of .462. The hard-hitting Skeeter has made twenty-four safe hits in fifty-two times at bat. Webb, of Akron, is in second place, his average being .448, while Spencer, of Toronto, is right on his heels with .443. No less than sixteen players are hitting .400 or over, while twentysix are past the .300 mark.

The Orioles, who led the league in team batting last season, are running in second place, Toronto showing the way with .341. The Birds are hitting .319, with Jacobson and Holden, former Leafs, setting the pace. The former's average is .429 and Holden's .404. Hill, of Akron; Werre, of Buffalo, and Acosta, of Rochester, are the leading pitchers, each with three victories and no defeats.

BOB BLACK STILL PLAYING BASEBALL

Former Woodstock and St. John Outfielder Would Like to Play Here

A number of players of the old New Brunswick and Maine League would like to come back here and play again, and Fredericton's reputation as a baseball town in those good old days makes many of them look towards this city.

The latest player heard from is Bob Black who played with the Woodstock team for two years and afterwards with St. John. He was one of the best hitting and fielding outfielders in the old New Brunswick and Maine League, but in his last season down here was put out of the game by injuries.

Bob Black's home is at Malden, Mass., and he has written to J. J. McCaffrey, who was the moving spirit in the Fredericton team during the last seasons of the league, to find out if there is to be baseball down here, and says he would like to play here if there is to be a club.—J.D.B.

Will Not Renew Lease.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 15.—The New York American League baseball club will not use the Polo Grounds for its New York city games after the close of this season, according to an announcement here by Manager McGraw, of the New York Nationals. The lease held by the New York Americans will expire at that time, said McGraw, and will not be renewed.

Bond Issue of $200,000 for The Construction and Upkeep Of Enlargements to Hospital

Committee of Ten Members Was Appointed at Meeting Last Evening to Consider Situation—Enlargements and Extensions Necessary—Need More Money

A most representative gathering of citizens, and Devon too, met in the City Council Chamber last evening, to discuss the varied interests of the Victoria Public Hospital. P. J. Hughes, president of the Hospital Board, was called to the chair, and C. A. Sampson was appointed secretary of the meeting.

Improvised seats were placed within the rail for the convenience of the Countess of Ashburnham and members of the Hospital Ladies' Aid.

The chairman at once explained the object of the meeting and in an interesting way described the splendid work done in the hospital and the very great inconvenience experienced by the medical fraternity and the superintendent and nursing staff in their efforts to take care of the sick people, many of whom are obliged to occupy cots in the corridors and elsewhere, for lack of proper accommodation. He then invited a free and full discussion of conditions.

Proposed Bond Issue.

Ex-Mayor Hanson undertook to deal especially with the financial side of the hospital. The year just closed showed an expenditure of $28,139.17. This was met with grants from the Government, the city, the county, Marysville, Devon, Sunbury county, church collections, and a $1,000 legacy of the late John T. Clark. The trustees are met with difficulty each month in meeting demands; this should not be. Mr. Hanson, after consultation with friends, and in view of the early erection of the up-to-date Fraser Memorial Hospital, said that steps must be at once taken towards maintenance and immediate construction of a maternity hospital, a nurses' home, a laundry, and an enlarged contagious wing. He proposed several plans for securing these, and the city might double its annual grant, the county should make a bigger increase than that, and Sunbury, Marysville, Devon and other contiguous places should give substantial help. The city would no doubt be willing to help by bond for $100,000 for construction and a like amount for maintenance. This plan would not bear heavily upon friends of the hospital.

To Aid Hospital in Every Way.

The general expression of views by those present proved very interesting to all present, and the unanimity of feeling manifested by all to aid the hospital must have been appreciated. Dr. W. C. Keirstead gave much interesting information and offered valuable suggestions upon which action will be taken. He was on the ground yesterday and was in consultation with the contractor and architect, and believed that any suggestions by the trustees would receive consideration.

Countess Ashburnham was a source of encouragement to those present as she spoke of the continued assistance rendered the hospital by the Hospital Ladies' Aid. Her ladyship's presidency of the Aid has strengthened the band of ladies surrounding her, and whose annual grant of $200 has never failed through all these years. The Ladies' Aid will do all in its power to help in the maintenance of the proposed maternity hospital.

J. Fraser Winslow and George Brown, representing the Commercial Club were both hearty in their encouragement and offered some schemes a little different from that of Mr. Hanson. However, the new club is ready for business.

Does Not Favor Subscriptions.

His Worship Mayor Reid, who now represents Fredericton on the Trustee Board, gave some good advice and evidenced a desire to have the general public manifest a growing interest in the hospital. He hoped to see this institution increase in popularity and usefulness. Subscriptions for any purpose always fall upon the same persons, and he favored the issue of bonds where everybody could help and not feel it very much.

R. FitzRandolph would much prefer to have preliminaries well established before any great effort was made financially. He thought the hospital, like the public schools, should be provided for by the public.

J. D. Palmer did not think the required amount of money could be raised by subscription. Great things were done in the heat of the war; but this is different. He would favor reaching out after the money by taxation.

Jas. S. Neill, one of our oldest and best known business men, was very enthusiastic in his remarks and commended the effort being made to provide enlarged accommodation for the sick. He would not favor public subscriptions for an institution like the hospital.

Dr. B. M. Mullin is the recognized champion of the maternity hospital from the physician's view. He claimed it is one of the most important needs today; people are continually leaving the city for other places when looking for obstetrical tratment.

Nominating Committee Appointed.

Upon motion the chairman appointed a nominating committee to nominate a committee of ten whose duty it shall be to study all the phases of the great hospital project. This committee retired and later submitted the following, and the nomination was approved:

Pres. Hughes, Mr. Hanson, Dr. Keirstead.

Medical staff—Dr. Mullin.

Ladies' Aid—Countess Ashburnham, Mrs. H. R. Babbitt.

City—The Mayor, Ald. Cain.

Board of Trade—Harry A. Smith.

Commercial Club—J. D. Palmer.

On motion of Dr. Jones the above was approved.

To Take Moving Pictures

Morris Ackerman returned last evening from St. John and left this morning with the special party going to Cain's River to get motion pictures of fishing to be displayed in promoting sportsmen and tourist traffic from Upper Canada and the United States for New Brunswick. J. M. Gibbon, chief of the advertising department of the C. N. R., arrived here yesterday from Montreal to be a member of the party. The others include J. Harold McMurray, secretary of the N. B. Guides' Association, and J. M. Alexander, moving picture operator of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa.

G. W. Turton, of Montreal, formerly of this city, is a guest at the Barker House today.

HOUSING BOARD MEMBERS RETURN

Were at Moncton Looking Over Houses Built by Housing Commission

R. H. Simonds, secretary of the Housing Board, and Ald. R. J. Baxter, a member of the board, returned from Moncton via St. John last evening, where they had been on a trip of inspection in connection with the work of the Moncton Housing Commission.

Mr. Simonds stated this morning that the houses erected last year in Moncton by the Commission at a cost of $3,000 to $3,500 would cost $1,000 more this year, because of the advance in building material and labor. The labor was imported from Montreal, he stated, but as soon as the local people had become familiar with the work the labor from outside was shipped back again and local men took their places.

Over 100 houses, he stated, had been erected last year and to supply the demand and relieve the situation completely 1,000 additional houses are necessary.

The members of the local Commission went to Moncton to see houses built under the Housing Commission and to study the appearance of the houses inside and out. They were escorted around the city by Clement Cormier, secretary of the Moncton Commission, Chief of Police Rideout and other members of the Commission.

They stopped at St. John yesterday and looked over the situation, finding one and a half story houses were being built there.

INSPECTOR M'LEAN WAS APPRECIATED

A Fine Tribute From the School Teachers of Charlotte Co. On His Retirement

A gratifying mark of the esteem in which he is held by those with whom he has been closely associated has been received by W. M. McLean, who recently retired from the office of inspector of schols for St. John and Charlotte counties. It is in the form of an address from the teachers of St. Stephen and reads as follows:

Inspector McLean—We have heard with regret of your resignation as inspector of the Charlotte county schools. During the years in which you have filled that position, we, as teachers, have always been sure of your sympathy and co-operation in our work. To this spirit of "sympathy and co-operation" was added the practical experience acquired during long years of service, first as teacher, and afterwards as inspector.

Now, as you sever your connection with our schools we wish to place on record our sense of appreciation of your work as inspector, and to assure you that you carry with you our best wishes for your future welfare.

Salvation Army Self-Denial Appeal

From T. H. Estabrooks, of T. H. Estabrooks, Ltd., St. John, N. B.:—

April 12th, 1920.

My Dear Commissioner:

I shall be very willing to be named as one of the members of a Provincial Committee of Patrons for your coming Self-Denial Campaign.

Further permit me to say that there is no organization with which I am more happy to identify myself than the Salvation Army. From an unfavorable and perhaps prejudiced opinion of the work of the Army in its early years, I have for many years past been convinced that the Salvation Army is one of the greatest powers for good that has existed during the Christian Era.

I hope and believe you will receive a very willing and generous response to your appeal for needed funds.

Yours faithfully,
T. H. ESTABROOKS.

WHY PALE RUN DOWN THIN WOMEN NEED VINOL

It Enriches the Blood and Creates Strength

Recommended by Physicians and Guaranteed by Druggists

If you are not feeling up to the mark, are run-down, overworked, feel listless and as though you could hardly drag around, do not hesitate to go to your druggist and get a bottle of VINOL, the non-secret cod liver and iron tonic without oil, combined with beef peptones and hypophosphites.

In a natural manner it creates a hearty appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood, and strengthens and energizes the entire system.

There are thousands of women in Canada, once pale, thin, run-down and sickly, who are now strong, well and healthy owing to VINOL.

For all run-down, nervous, anaemic conditions, for thin, puny children, feeble old people, overworked men and women, we guarantee VINOL will build up health, strength and energy more quickly than anything else.

Just as he was passing the cage fell and caught the unfortunate man under it. When he was released from his awful predicament, Dr. Hay, of Chipman was summoned and found that Myers had had his back broken as well as other injuries. He was placed on the Minto train and rushed to this city, being met by the ambulance and conveyed to the hospital where everything is being done to alleviate his sufferings.

GASOLENE PRICES LIKELY TO ADVANCE IN A SHORT TIME

Local Garage Owners Predict Increase Will Take Place Soon

ADVANCE TO BE TWO OR THREE CENTS GALLON

Increase Has Already Gone Into Effect in the United States

Local garage managers and dealers this morning predicted an immediate advance in the price of gasolene.

One dealer said he would not be surprised if advice of the increase was received before night, others said they expected word within a few days and all were united in the opinion that the advance would not be more than two or three cents a gallon.

In the United States the Standard Oil recently advanced wholesale quotations on gasolene 1½ cents per gallon, but at Fort Fairfield, Me., the garage dealers increased the retail prices from 35 to 40 cents per gallon, the spread being increased from 5 to 8½ cents a gallon. The present price in Maine, therefore, is more than the 48 cents a gallon charged here, when the difference in the size of the gallon is considered.

It is doubtful if the new retail selling price of gasolene here will be more than 50 cents a gallon, which will make the price no greater than across the border for a similar quantity, and no further advances are in prospect here.

American Presidential Campaign in Full Swing, With Conventions in June

One Year in Every Four Average American Devotes His Spare Time Almost Exclusively to Politics and From Now Until November Air Will Be Never Free From Party Cries---Republican and Democratic Conventions in June.

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

New York, May 15.—One year in every four, thanks to the rigid terms of its Constitution, the United States must lay aside less important business and elect a President and a Vice-President. This being the year, the American people are at present deeply preoccupied with elections. "Presidential year" is a phrase in the United States that means more than the year during which a new President is chosen. Counting the preliminaries of electing delegates to the national party conventions that choose presidential candidates, and all the varied activities of the many freeborn citizens who think that the mantle should descend upon them, practically the entire year is devoted to politics, from February, when some states pick their convention delegates, until November, when the actual presidential voting is held.

Candidates for President and Vice-President are actually selected at national party conventions. This year these will be held in June, the Republican convention at Chicago and the Democratic at San Francisco. Delegates to these conventions are elected at special party primaries held in the various states early in the year, or at district and state conventions in parts of the country where the primary law is not in vogue. Every state is allowed double as many delegates as it has Senators and Representatives in Congress. The men in each state corresponding to the representatives of that state in the Senate are delegates-at-large, while the others are district delegates. This makes up about 1,000 delegates to each national convention.

The system under which the various states operate in selecting their delegates to the great national nominating conventions is by no means uniform. There are almost as many variations to the primary laws as there are states in the republic. In some states, such as New Jersey and Ohio, the voters at the primaries are given an opportunity of expressing their personal preferences for presidential possibilities, and they elect delegates "instructed" to vote for this or that man as candidate. In other states the delegates are uninstructed. Many states have not adopted the primary system in electing delegates to the presidential conventions, retaining the older convention plan, which roughly corresponds to the method of choosing parliamentary candidates in Canada. District conventions are held throughout the state and district delegates to the national convention are selected. Then a state convention is called, and at this the delegates-at-large are named. New York's "Big Four," for example, were chosen at a state convention at Albany. Alternate delegates-at-large are also selected. It is a sign of the times that this year quite a number of delegates to Chicago and San Francisco are women.

How Candidates Are Selected.

At the Republican national convention a majority vote is sufficient to nominate a presidential candidate, but at the Democratic convention a two-thirds vote is required. It often happens that the "instructions" under which a proportion of the delegates come to the assembly go for nothing, and a dark horse is picked upon on the second or third ballot. In fact, the whole primary system is declared by many influential newspapers of the United States to be a failure, in that it gives as much opening as the old convention for the operation of the party "machine," and after all, decides nothing.

Commenting on this year's results in the state primaries up to the present time, the New York Tribune says editorially:

"In 1916, when, in a number of states the presidential primary was little more than a joke or a fraud, there was a great deal of talk about reforming it in preparation for 1920. Nothing was done. It remains an expensive luxury, largely useless as an expression of public opinion even in states where party integrity is supposed to be maintained under it. In states of laxer primary laws it hospitably permits the opponents of a political party to have a hand in, and, it may be, to decide the selection of the delegates who are to nominate its candidate for President.

"Everywhere it is the voice of the minority of the party. In some states it does not possess even that authority; but the will of all sorts of oppositions that invade it. Mr. Bryan is permitted to continue his favorite task of promoting Democratic harmony because, outside the large towns, it is the privilege of Republican voters to go into the Democratic primaries. In Montana, by a trick at the last moment, a list of Republican delegates whose surnames conveniently begin with the early letters of the alphabet, so as to give them first place on the ticket, includes Socialists and Farmer-Laborites. Wherever the Non-Partizan League is strong, it plumps solidly into the primary of the party which it most desires to injure or control. Even the great state of Ohio has a primary system so 'liberal' that anybody seems able to vote in the primaries of a party other than his own.

The Use of the Primary.

"Politicians use the primary to foste: candidates to whom they are opposed, for the sake of injuring candidates to whom they are likewise opposed, but whose strength alarms them. In some states palpably absurd candidates for President and Vice-President have their opportunity for notoriety. Even in Oregon, whose people have sought perhaps more constantly and seriously than those of any other state to improve political machinery, there is absolutely no way to express the prevailing opinion of a party on great public questions, of the League of Nations, for instance. You can vote for a candidate but not for a principle.

"There is something exasperatingly unreal, as there is something potentially dangerous, in this farce of presidential primaries. What sufficently condemns it, however, is that it decides nothing. After al lthe time and effort and money expended after the creation of animosities and irritations, it is clear that the primaries this year amount to very little and settle nothing. The national conventions will have to do on their own hook the work of selecting their candidates. It may be said that this is what they ought to do, but what has been the use of the primaries? In each convention there will be delegates who never could have been elected if the principle of party integrity had been maintained. It is a reproach to the American political inteligence that so much of comedy, of trickery and of illusion should attach to what is supposed to be a concultation and indication of 'the people's will.' It has failed stupendously, it ought to be abolished."

Many Delegates Uninstructed.

The results of the primaries already held point to the fact that the great majority of the delegates to the Republican and Democratic conventions will be uninstructed, or instructed for local candidates who are likely to last much beyond the first ballot. "Favorite sons," as state favorites are called, do not appear to be having an easy time of it this presidential year. Senator Harding of Ohio secured a nominal endorsement from Republican voters of that state but won only by a nose from Major-General Leonard Wood. In Illinois Governor Frank G. Lowden did better, defeating General Wood by a plurality of 64,551 votes. In Massachusetts Governor Coolidge is the tentative choice of the Republican delegation, but it is known to favor Wood strongly for second choice. So the story goes.

In the meantime the press in general is remarking the efforts of the Wood and Johnson committees to win delegates for their respective candidates throughout the country. Senator Hiram Johnson, of California, is not the choice of the Republican party, that is, of the conservative element of the party and his whirlwind campaign is being closely and nervously watched by the Old Guard. The pro-Wood newspaper, the New York Tribune, says:

"The country is beginning to take note of the character of the Senator's chief support. He has attracted to his standard the remainders of the old German-American alliance, likewise the special champions of Eamonn de Valera, and also radicals and their dupes who regard Lenine as a great statesman. Finally, he has the vociferous endorsement of Hearst, who makes little secret of the fact that he hopes Senator Johnson will be defeated in Chicago, and that in his irritation he will consent to head a third party.

"In the main the Johnson candidacy is flavored with two kinds of hyphenism and carries an odor of extreme radicalism. During the remaining weeks of the pre-convention campaign these things will come more and more to public attention, and the fact will not lead uninstructed delegates to turn to it."

Adam Schumaker of St. Paul, Minn., has sued Mr. and Mrs. Henry Laumann for $10,692, claimed as unpaid wages for work he has done for them in the last twenty years. He went to live with them when he was nine years old, and they say they made a contract with him when he was 11 years old to work for them for $10 a year and board and clothing for 10 years.

Women of Kentucky Given Right to Vote

Frankfort, Ky., May 15.—Women of Kentucky have been assured of the right to vote for presidential electors in the coming presidential election, independent of the ratification of the federal suffrage amendment of the requisite number of states.

This opinion was given Geo. G. Speer, State Banking Commissioner, by Attorney General Charles I. Dawson, who holds that an Act of the Kentucky legislature passed this year to provide for woman suffrage in presidential elections, is valid and that under its provisions women may participate in the presidential election.

The Attorney General said he could find nothing in the bill which would conflict with the constitution of the state of Kentucky or of the United States.

10,000 EXHIBITS FOR WAR MUSEUM

Unique Collection for Exhibition at London to Be Opened by the King in June

London, May 13.—Signposts bearing the inscriptions "Hell-Fire Corner," "Piccadilly" and "Haig Avenue" erected by British troops just behind the front lines in France, are among the more than 10,000 exhibits being assembled at Crystal Palace, London, to form the Imperial War Museum. It will be opened by the King in June and will continue for four years.

Exhibits innumerable have been gathered from every land where the war cast its trail to show the common effort of the Empire during the great conflict. Shortly after the signing of the armistice, the memorable signposts mentioned were found discarded as lumber. In addition to those bearing "street" names, which, to many of the men who knew them best, had meant so many direction posts to avenues of agony, there was found the rallying trench sign of Verdun with its "no thoroughfare." They were all rescued and are now to be preserved as relics of posterity.

There will be on display the gun that fired the first British shot in the war—from the decks of the destroyer Lance at the mine-lawyer Koenig Louise; the E battery gun that opened the military hostilities; the anti-aircraft pom-pom which, mounted at Gresham College, fired the first shot ever directed at a foreign foe from London since the days of the Romans—the occasion being the Zeppelin raid in September, 1915—and scores of other entries which have equally vivid associations.

The larger pieces of ordnance, some of which weigh 14 tons, are being arranged on the floor of the spacious hall. But the galleries will hold displays of equal, if not greater interest. These include war paintings and trench implements, realistic scenic models and protective devices and curios that throw an illuminating light on conditions which existed in the German army. Some of these are amusing, some tragic.

There is a cycle with a dynamo attachment for lighting an officer's dugout upon which two of the worst offenders had to sit in shifts and pedal in order that those within might have illumination while they devised new plans of aggression.

Far less amusing is a specimen of the enemy's "bear trap." A soldier exploring No Man's Land might step into its ugly spikes, concealed in the grass, and escape from their grip was virtually hopeless.

Looking at the lifebuoys of the Lusitania, the shattered funnel of the Vindictive, the portion of the Zeebrugge Mole and the formidable mines that bestrewed the Dardanelles, the exhibit will recall to "those who were there" many chapters of a great epic.

$28,000 PAID FOR TEN CARS OF SPUDS

Edmonton, Alta., May 7—Twenty-eight thousand dollars seems a fabulous price to pay for ten car loads of potatoes, but such a sum changed hands when a dealer of Yakima, Washington, purchased approximately 7000 bushels of Edmonton grown tubers at $3.90 per bushel, the highest on record for such a large shipment. The potatoes are to be shipped to various points in the state of Montana.

BIG POTATO FIELD

(Bangor News)

C. M. White, field agent of the division of market, department of agriculture, who is busily engaged compiling the statistics being gathered in co-operation with the crop and weather bulletins from the national government, remarks upon the fact that Fort Fairfield will have more acres planted this year to potatoes than given up to hay, an unusual state of affairs. The acreage: Potatoes, 9,909; hay, 8,180; oats, 4,694.

Mr. White says the reports of acreage planned for this year are coming in finely, about 175 having already been received. He says, if 50 per cent. of the towns will report, he will be much pleased and consider it very satisfactory. The information in these reports, in a few years, will be of great value in determining the prospective size of various crops in Maine.

The New Fourteen Points

[Boston Globe.]

1. That the name of Brandywine, N. Y., be changed to Coldwater, N. Y.
2. That "Drink to Me only with Thine Eyes" be made the national anthem.
3. That all mention of the Bourbon Kings be expunged from the school books.
4. That on account of being so suggestive, rye bread be withdrawn from sale by all bakeries.
5. That no part of a ship be referred to as the saloon, as such interference might raise false hopes.
6. That all bars be removed from harbor entrances or be designated by some other names.
7. That the word "port" be expunged from navigation charts and references.
8. That the use of alcoholic lamps be forbidden by law.
9. That the useless 9,000,000 white little jackets and aprons in this country be sent to the starving Bolsheviki.
10. That the word "still" be expunged from the American language and all dictionaries, and the word "quiet" substituted.
11. That all mint be ploughed under and vanilla beans planted.
12. That any barber tantalizing a customer by using bay rum on his hair be given 10 years.
13. That men with the "footrail limp" shall not be allowed to march in any public parades.
14. That all pretzels shall be made straight, instead of bent in the old familiar style, to avoid reminiscences.

Drastic Efforts To Suppress the Irish Disorders

Government Authorities Come to Conclusion That Only Stern Measures Can Bring Peace to Unhappy Country, and Will Give Troops the Task of Routing Out Bands of Assassins and Malefactors.

Dublin, May 14.—The plan of General Sir Neil MacCready, commander of the government forces in Ireland, looking to closer co-operation between the police and the military in an effort to suppress the disorders in Ireland, involves the establishment of military posts in isolated districts, where the police barracks had to be abandoned because of attacks upon them, it is stated here on apparently good authority.

The opinion of the British authorities seems to be that the disorders in Ireland, which they regard as acts of rebellion, call for the use of soldiers instead of the police. Previously the police have been largely occupied with work which is essentially of a military nature, and the criticism from the popular side is that the police are not now really a civil force as they ought to be.

In line with this view, the military are already doing the patrol work, which is a dangerous job and hitherto had been left for the most part to the police. The military are endeavoring to check the excesses of the land agitation in the west of Ireland.

Cavalry has been employed to prevent cattle driving, and some of the western towns, which have been the centres of this trouble, have cavalry contingents quartered in them.

The proposal to establish military posts is resented by many of the Irish people who regard it as the setting up of the block house system, which was first tried in South Africa in the Boer war.

CHASE TRACTOR

Built Without —— Differential Gears

Pulls Itself Out of Trouble—Uses Less Kerosene—Avoids Tie-Ups and Repairs

Because the Chase has no differential gears it avoids many frequent causes of tractor trouble.

Understand how differential gears affect the operation of a tractor and the superiority of the simple design of the Chase is clear

Tractors with differential gears can do their best work only on a straight-away pull on level land. The moment one wheel meets an obstacle, the differential throws all the power into the other wheel, so, quite often you see such a tractor with one rear wheel dead and the other spinning. That happens when the tractor gets one wheel in a mud hole. The very time when extra driving force is needed the differential gears rob the motor of its power to move the tractor.

The same thing occurs in a lesser degree in all ploughing work. For, the side-draft tends to place more load on one wheel than on the other and the differential gears throw the power into the other wheel.

Pulls Itself Out of Trouble

The Chase Tractor, having no differential gears, drives both rear wheels with equal power. When the Chase gets into a hole the driver can use both rear wheels to pull out. When obstacles are met, the Chase rides over them. On side-hill ploughing or on level ploughing, the side-draft cannot pull the Chase from a true course. The Chase pulls its load more evenly—is easier to control—is more constantly "on the job."

Uses Less Kerosene.

This no differential feature saves kerosene for two reasons. 1st, Gears waste 10 p. c. of a motor's power. The direct drive of the Chase saves that 10 p. c. In addition, the Chase saves the power that would be wasted by the uneven pull due to differential gears.

Avoids Tie-ups and Repairs

Because it pulls evenly the Chase saves wear on bearings, and avoids strain on all working parts. This means less adjusting and less replacement of parts. It means more hours "on the job."

Judge the Chase on Its Construction and Its Performance

It has fewer parts than other tractors—hundreds less than most tractors.

It is a tractor that a farmer can handle easily either in the field or for Belt power, and because of its simple construction and the accessibility of its parts one that he can attend to with the least trouble and loss of time.

It is a low-riding tractor—gets under trees in orchard work, has sure footing on side hills.

The Chase turns in a narrow radius. By throwing either rear wheel out of gear a sharp turn can be made.

The motor is the heavy-duty tractor type, built to do continuous service without overheating, to give high efficiency on kerosene or low-grade gasoline, to avoid the waste of lubricating oil, which is customary when kerosene is used in ordinary motors. The man who understands and delights in fine machinery should examine the Chase Tractor and watch it in action. The more he knows about tractors, motors and machinery, the greater respect he will have for a piece of engineering construction like the Chase Tractor.

FIND TOMB OF AN AZTEC PRINCESS

An Amazing Amount of Gold Ornaments and Jewels Found in the Grave

Philadelphia, May 14.—Gold ornaments, idols, crowns, armor and other relics of great historic value which date from the civilizations of the Incas, Aztecs and other Mexican and Central and South American peoples are contained in a collection of 300 specimens recently placed on view for the first time in the museum of the University of Pennsylvania.

The exhibit was only recently brought to its present completeness by the purchase of objects which had been in the possession of a noble French family for generations, but which were sold at Paris because the family was impoverished.

Gold was used by the Aztecs and Incas only for ornaments, religious emblems and attire. These objects, shipped to Spain by Pizzaro, Cortez and others in the 16th and 17th centuries were melted and coined. This explains the rarity of the original golden objects.

A grave recently opened in Colombia proved a rich trove of them. It was apparently the burying place of a princess. Enough golden ornaments were discovered completely to clothe a modern woman for her appearance in a ballroom. There were, besides a crown, a breast plate, girdle, armlets and various other appendages, mostly from a great quantity of jewels. Rings and necklaces of amazing beauty are among the objects.

PROFITEERING IN MOTHER COUNTRY

Investigation Started Into Post-War Growth of Alleged Monopolies

London, May 14.—England has started an investigation of the post-war growth of alleged trusts and monopolies.

A profiteering committee which has been looking into the activity of electric light companies and lamp bulb manufacturers, in a report recently made public, says that "a trade combination does exist among electric light manufacturers in this country and exercises a powerful influence over the development of the industry."

It is known as the Electric Light Manufacturers' Association, the report says, and has been created primarily in the interests of three firms—the British Thomson-Houston Company, the General Electric Company and Messrs. Siemens Brothers. It is reported to include from 90 to 95 per cent. of the industry, to fix prices and regulate output, says the profiteering committee.

The prices fixed by the Association, the report says, become the standard for all lamps sold in this country, whether made by Association or non-association manufacturers, or imported from abroad. Because of this standard price policy the general public reap no benefit from lamps of cheaper manufacture, the advantage going wholly to distributors.

Standard vacuum lamps, now sold to the public for three shillings, states the report, could be sold at two shillings at which price the manufacturer and distributor would still have a satisfactory working profit.

"One and a quarter million half-watt lamps," adds the report, "sold to the public in 1919 at twelve shillings and sixpence each were purchased in Holland by three associated manufacturers at about three shillings a lamp. They could have been sold at not more than eight shillings which would still have left ample margin for the importers and distributors. Importers and distributers between them made profits on these lamps, of something like $1,400,000 over and above what would appear to us reasonable.

"Since the largest of the three dominant firms," continues the report, "is under the majority control of an American electrical concern, there is some danger that the interests of the British lamp industry may be subordinated to American interests.

"There is a possibility of an international combination comprising British, Dutch and American manufacturers which would be able to control supplies and dominate prices over a considerable part of the world.

"The operations of an association which so effectively controls an important industry," concludes the report, "should be subject to public supervision and control."

DISGUSTED WITH DAYLIGHT SAVING

Trail, B. C., May 14.—The city of Trail has again reverted to standard time after a short trial of eight days only of daylight saving. Notices to the effect that the offices would be open during the usual hours as per standard time have been posted at the city hall, thus settling the much vexed question at least as far as official action goes.

BOY SCOUT JAMBOREE

Winnipeg, Man., May 14.—Representatives of the Boy Scouts' Association of Manitoba have asked the Provincial Government for a grant of $2,000 to assist in sending 26 Scouts and four officers to represent this province at the International Jamboree of Boy Scouts to be held in London, England, the first week in August. It is believed that the request will be granted.

SUES RICH HUSBAND FOR BIGGER INCOME

Girl Wife of Octogenarian Cannot Live Comfortably on $175 a Month and House

New York, May 14.—Mrs. Kate Wolff Hartt, 20 years old, who left her position as a manicurist in a barber shop two years ago to marry James H. Hartt, 86 years old, a retired jeweller, said to have more than $400,000, today applied to Supreme Court Justice Benedict, in Brooklyn, for an increase in the separation allowance granted by Justice Benedict, April 13, 1919.

She told the court that the $175 a month and the use of one of her husband's houses free of rent did not enable her to live comfortably with the recent increased prices.

In the description of her poverty Mrs. Hartt told the court that in the year following her separation she had bought one coat, two dresses, one suit, two pairs of shoes, two hats, and one pair of gloves, at a total cost of $899. To live properly, she said, she should have three summer dresses at $50 each; three winter dresses at $100 each; four to six pairs of shoes at $15 each; 12 pairs of stockings at $3 each; three summer hats at $15 each; three winter hats at $15 each, and four pairs of gloves at $4 each, making a total cost of $682.

While she is forced to have a second hand carpet on the parlor floor and oilcloth as a covering for her bathroom, Mrs. Hartt continues in her application, her husband has a yearly income of $45,606, of which he spends $25,029. This leaves him, she declares, more than $20,000 which accrues to his estate.

What she really wants to do "so much", she says, is to fit out an apartment, "a nice little place," which will cost $2,000 a year to maintain. To do this, she concludes, it is obvious she must have a more liberal allowance.

Mr. Hartt, through his counsel, Charles C. Miller, answered this application by charging that such would be an "extravagant way of living."

"I believe the amount is much more than she spent before her marriage," Mr. Hartt says. "It is certainly much more than either of my four daughters or my grandchild spend.

"In spite of the fact that she says she is not getting enough to keep her, she keeps a pet dog, which is her companion on the street, and at one time had two pet dogs."

Furthermore, Mr. Hart said, the high cost of living has not increased to an extent warranting his wife in demanding such an increase to her allowance. Justice Benedict reserved decision.

CANADA QUOTED AS GOOD PRECEDENT

Hon. Walter Long Replies to Criticism of Single Irish Council

London, May 14.—In the course of the discussion of the Home Rule bill on the question whether there should be a second chamber for each of the two parliaments in Ireland as a protection for minorities, Hon. Walter Long replied to the criticisms which had been made that there was no precedent for the Government's proposal of a single Irish council for two parliaments instead of two second chambers. He said so far from there being no ground for the suggestion that the experiment was being tried for the first time, the precedent did actually exist in Canada. When local government was first set up in Canada, he said, there was a second chamber in all the old parts, whereas today in every province, barring Quebec, the second chamber had been abandoned, because it had been found not to be a protection, but on the contrary, rather a danger. The government had taken this as their example. He thought it was the best precedent that could have been taken.

BRITISH DRAPERS TOUR OF CANADA

Object of Visit to Study the Retail Trade Methods of the Department Stores

New York, May 14.—The official tour of Canada by twenty representatives of the Drapers' Chamber of Trade of the United Kingdom, headed by F. W. Cook, J.P., O.B.E., chairman, will commence at Vancouver on June 16, and will be preceded by a six weeks' tour of the principal cities of the United States. The party, which recently arrived in New York on the steamship Cedric, was warmly entertained by civic authorities, as well as by the National Dry Goods Association of America. Lew Hahn, managing director of the latter organization, is conducting the tour of the British visitors, and will accompany them on the trip. The party leaves for Boston tomorrow.

Their stay in Canada will be very brief, and only a short time will be spent in the cities they have arranged to visit. They are due to arrive in Winnipeg on June 19. From the Manitoba capital they will continue their journey eastward to Toronto, where there are expected to arrive on June 21. On June 23 they will arrive in Ottawa, and after spending a few hours in the capital will proceed to Montreal the same day, concluding their round trip in New York on June 25. It is understood that the Canadian Retail Dry Goods Association has made arrangements for the delegation to carry out as thorough inspection of the Canadian department stores as the brief space of time available will permit.

The idea of the trip through Canada and the United States was first suggested to the British department store proprietors by Salmon P. Halle, president of the National Retail Dry Goods Association of America, at a dinner given to him in London during the spring of 1919 by the Drapers' Chamber of Trade. The journey, originally contemplated as an unofficial one, attracted the interest of the business men of Great Britain so much that the British Board of Trade took official cognizance of the visit, and invested it with the character of an official tour. The merchants are, therefore, touring as the representatives of the British retail trade.

The primary object of the visit is to study the retail trade methods of the Canadian and American department stores. For six weeks they will tour the principal cities of the United States, investigating trade conditions, department store management, service and efficiency methods. Their study of these matters in the United States will be continued throughout their tour of the five Canadian cities included in their itinerary.

BRITAIN WILL NOT PROTEST SEIZURE

Not Called Upon to Intervene in U. S. Occupation of Taboga

London, May 14.—Major Christopher Lowther, Coalition Unionist, asked in the House of Commons whether the Government's attention had been called to the report that the United States had seized the island of Taboga, which is the property of Panama, for the purpose of erecting fortifications, and whether, in view of Great Britain's desire to protect the rights of small nationalities, a protest would be made to the United States, and, further, whether the matter could be referred to the League of Nations.

Hon. Cecil Harmsworth, Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, in replying, described the proposal of the United States in 1918 to erect defences for the purpose of protecting the entrance to the canal, and America's later decision to postpone action. Mr. Harmsworth added that it did not appear to be a matter in which the British Government was called upon to intervene.

Mr. Lowther asked why it was Great Britain objected to the French occupying Frankfort, and did not protest when the United States occupied an island belonging to a small nationality.

Rt. Hon. Bonar Law, the Government leader, replied that there was no analogy.

"As regards Germany," he said, "we acted together, and our objection was to any of the Allies acting separately."

Retrospect of Temperance Work in Carleton County by An Old Scott Act Inspector

Rev. Bamford Colpitts Tells Something of His Experience in Endeavoring to Carry Out Law Among the Rough Liquor Joints That Existed Along the Border

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Woodstock, May 15. — Discussing with your correspondent the coming plebiscite on prohibition and the rapid advance in temperance sentiment throughout this county, Rev. Bamford Colpitts, who is 90 years of age, said that he had full charge of the enforcement of the Canada Temperance Act in this town and county for 25 years, and he could write an interesting history of the trials of the Scott Act Inspector in Carleton county and along the border of Maine. He had never been seriously hurt, although he had raided, sometimes alone and sometimes with provincial and American officers, the lowest joints along the boundary line; he had been roughly handled at times; revolvers had been pulled on him, but he was always game and generally landed his man. When he retired a few years ago, it was easier for him to keep the law breakers in place than it was when he entered upon the job. The good work of Inspector Colpitts had much to do with the improved temperance sentiment in town and countyy.

Miss Florence Stitham, who has been very ill with fever, is able to be outdoors this week.

Mrs. James Hull is confined to her home this week, ill with pneumonia and pleurisy.

Successful Operations.

Alphonso Niles, one of the firemen who were so badly injured at the theatre fire some months ago, was taken to the Fisher Memorial Hospital on Tuesday, accompanied by his wife; and on Wednesday both went through surgical operations, the latter for appendicitis and, while under ether, parts of her flesh were removed and grafted on to her husband's limb, which had not been healing satisfactorily to the doctors. Both operations were very successful.

Miss Laura Balmain, who has been confined to her home the last two weeks, is very much improved in health.

J. Ken. Sutton, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Sutton, of Woodstock, has been transferred from the Merchants' Bank of Canada at Sydney, N. S., to the branch at St. John, N. B.

W. B. Belyea went to St. John on Monday to attend the funeral of his cousin, Charles Belyea, who died on Sunday.

Mrs. Bert Sewell arrived home this week from a trip to cities and towns in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold H. Britton are rejoicing over the birth of a daughter on Monday last.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Hendry, of Waterville, N. B., announce the engagement of their daughter, Sadie Faye, to Harold Frederick Vroom, the wedding to take place at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, June 9th, at the residence of the bride's parents.

Henry Post, contractor, will commence work on the bungalow to be erected by Hon. Frank B. Carvell, about May 25. The excavating is now being done; the bungalow will be 26 x 36 on the ground, with two 10 foot wide verandahs, one on the side and one on the end.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Everett Colwell, of Tapley Mills, have sold their farm and, with their daughter, Dorothy, left this week to make their home with their children in Toronto.

Return to Montreal.

Mrs. A. N. Boyd and son, Jack, who were visiting her mother, Mrs. Haines, returned to their home in Montreal today.

Mrs. G. Hugh Bruce and two children, Andrew and Annie, left for St John on Wednesday to again take up their residence in that city.

Mrs. Henry Post returned this week from a visit to J. W. Smalley at Houlton. The latter is visiting Mr. Post this week.

Rev. A. H. Trafton and Mrs. Trafton left on Saturday for a visit to St. John.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ridley have arrived home from Boston, where they enjoyed a week's visit.

Arthur H. Stevens, who has been engaged in business in Boston for 12 years, has returned to Boston and is now a member of the firm of Stevens Bros., druggists. His family will arrive here in a few weeks.

John T. Tabor, president and manager of the J. H. Tabor Candy Co., Medicine Hat, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. John Morrison, this week.

On account of the high water, the lath mill of Whalen & McDade is shut down this week and opportunity has been taken of the fact to remove their apparatus for electric power and substitute a boiler and engine, and they will be running by steam inside a fortnight. The foundation is now being built.

Clean-Up Day at Woodstock.

The clean-up day inaugurated by the town manager, R. F. Armstrong, was a grand success. On Tuesday, the day appointed, the manager had seven teams hauling refuse to the dump, but the work was not finished until Wednesday night. As a result, the town is entirely clean of rubbish.

The new Bank of Montreal brick block, corner Main and King streets, is drawing near to a finish, but is being held up slightly owing to the slowness of arrival of fixtures from Montreal. Work in the office is completed; the upstairs is in the hands of the painters, while the basement is ready for plastering. The bank staff will hardly be able to move in much before the 1st of June.

Wm. Rogers, of Northampton, has purchased a controlling interest in the Wm. Scott farm at Hartford and will take possession next week.

Fred B. Wallace, of Cloverdale, has purchased the J. Everett Colwell farm at Tapley Mills and has taken possession.

Mrs. Joseph Faukner died at her home in Belleville on Wednesday, at the age of 81 years. She leaves four sons and three daughters. The funeral on Friday was conducted by Rev. L. A. Fenwick.

Ernest Akerley, of Southampton, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Fisher Memorial Hospital on Tuesday, passed away shortly afterwards. He was 50 years of age and leaves a widow and three daughters; also two sisters, Mrs. David Phillips, of Upper Woodstock, and Mrs. Wendell Phillips, of Greenbush.

Canada at Washington

[New York Sun.]

The representation of Canada by a Minister of her own at Washington, announced by the British Embassy as soon to come about, will mark a striking change in the status of the Dominion. The move will further attentuate the political bond between the seat of Empire and the dependency, if those words can indeed still be applied. Little remains of this political connection.

The Dominion still receives from the British Crown its Governor-General and, through that official, its Ministers and the members of its appointive Senate. But the elected lower House of Parliament runs matters pretty much as does its namesake, the English House of Commons. Ministries are responsible to it and the Senate like the House of Lords avoids seriously antagonizing the popular chamber. The Dominion makes its own life, so far as internal affairs are concerned. It maintains its own army and has the power to build its own navy.

Even in external relations Canada has lately had a voice in what most concerned her. As far back as 1870 Sir John McDonald, Governor-General of the then newly federated Dominion, sat as one of the British representatives in the negotiations which accommodated the subjects of dispute with the United States in the Treaty of Washington. A generation later Rodolphe Lemieux, accredited by England, but an unofficial envoy of Canada, negotiated with Japan an agreement as to restricting troublesome Japanese immigration into the Canadian Northwest. In 1910 the Reciprocity Commission sent forth by President Taft negotiated directly with the Administration at Ottawa.

Yet neither McDonald nor Lemieux had the status of an accredited Canadian envoy. The reciprocity negotiations of 1910 led simply to plans of concurrent tariff legislation at Ottawa and Washington, not to a treaty. The projected appointment of a Canadian diplomatic envoy to the United States will therefore make a further step. It will carry the open acknowledgment of the privilege of the Dominion to negotiate directly with its sole contiguous neighbor. This must in practice become the power to control fully the most essential of Canada's external relations.

MIGRATORY BIRD RESTS ON STEAMER

Victoria, B. C., May 14.—Almost exhausted from its long flight, a bird of the plover species picked out the Nipon Yusen Kaisha liner Tajima Maru as a haven of refuge as the big steamer was plowing her way across the Atlantic for this port. The liner was about nine hundred miles out from Victoria when the feathered visitor settled helplessly on the boat deck. Flying aimlessly above the broad expanse of the ship the bird had sought invitation for something to settle upon in order to rest its weary wings and it eagerly accepted the accommodating vessel to save itself from destruction.

The bird was picked up and soon revived when ministered to by a member of the ship's crew. It proved very tame and diplayed no inclination to resume its flight.

STOP TRAPPING IN FOREST RESERVES

Edmonton, Alta., May 14. — Notice has been given to all game guardians in the province that in future there is to be no more trapping within the forest reserves. Hitherto the reserves have been free to trappers on the same terms and restrictions as other parts of the country, but under the newly amended Game Act all such trapping will be prohibited except by special permit.

The Value of Single Settler To the Canadian Railroads

Statistics Quoted to Show That Each Settler in the Western Provinces Brings a Revenue of Upwards of Seven Hundred Dollars to Railways of District

What is the value of a settler to a country? His value as a producer, a farmer and a citizen?

As a citizen, you will say, his value is in his example, his health, his character and his loyalty, and this estimate seems to be pretty generally accepted without reservation. The statement as it stands is non-controversial.

As a farmer, well, that depends altogether on his knowledge of farming coupled with his energy, determination and enterprise. His stick-to-it-iveness, his ability to learn, and his perseverance. Health enters largely into this also, for without health and strength no farmer—other than one who is possessed of immense means, and directs the farming operation of his employees—can expect to succeed. On this point, too, there should be no controversy.

Traffic Derived from Settlers.

But on his value to the railroad in dollars and cents, there is great variance of opinion. Some authorities hold to the view that if a certain number of average settlers on western farms were interrogated and the history of their operations since they began to farm, with the estimated production of their farms and the disposition of their products, machnery, equipment and supplies purchased, etc., taken as a basis, it would then be possible to figure out a fairly close estimate of the amount of freight and passenger traffic derived from each settler so selected. This figure would then be applied to the total number of settlers who had been induced to locate on Canadian farms, in a given period, and the sum total of their value reckoned.

No Settlers, No Railroad Traffic.

Others do not favor this method, though there is one point in connection with the matter which must not be lost sight of, and it is that a settler is worth to Canadian railways much more in the way of furnishing traffic than he individually contributes. In other words, there should be credited to settlers in the three Western Provinces practically the total revenue traffic of the railroad, for if there were no settlers there would be no railways or traffic. While it is true that the settler furnishes directly only a portion of the passenger and freight traffic, they should be credited with practically the whole, since without them there would be none. There is, however, too much theory in this solution to satisfy thinking men.

How then, you will ask, is it possible to arrive at a practical estimate—for estimate it must always be, no matter how carefully figures are gone into.

Statisticians Figure It Out.

Careful study on the part of the most able statisticians answer that there is but one way. To obtain from the railways, as a basis, the percentage of their whole freight traffic obtained from agriculture (horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, wheat, oats, barley, flax), coal, and in- and out-going passenger revenue, and divide the number of settlers into the figures given. Employing statistics of the Dominion Railway Commission, and figures supplied by the C. P. R., the exact percentages of each of the railways were worked out, based on the total grain tonnage for the year, between the 1st of September, 1915, and the 31st August, 1916.

In 1916 there were 219,105 farmers in the three prairie provinces, and the division of one total by the other places the settler's value at $746.33. Assuming, therefore, that all traffic should be credited to the settler, that sum is the average amount each farmer put into the revenue of the railroad. $746.33 capitalized at 5½ per cent., being interest the Government is paying on its Victory Bonds, gives a return of $13,569.63—the value of each farmer to the country.

Settlers Most Desirable.

On the theory that if there were no settlers there would not have grown up, nor now be, any traffic for the railways, therefore, it is fair to credit all traffic to the settlers. If this solution is not accepted, a 25 per cent. reduction from the figures given (relating to the Prairie Provinces), to allow for traffic revenue on lumber, fish and miscellaneous, would be more than reasonable.

It would not be fair to assume that each settler would be worth that in the future for the reasons that the farm holdings will be smaller, and, therefore, the product per capitum will materially decrease, and the settlers will not each have or spend as much money for railway service as they are doing at present. However, assuming that they only produce one-half as much or even one-fourth, it is certainly, at least from a railway standpoint, highly desirable to bring in agricultural settlers as rapidly as possible.

Results of Colonization Department.

Since the year 1881, the Land and Colonization departments of the C. P. R. have located 48,147 actual settlers on the company's lands in the three Western Provinces. On the basis of each settler bringing in $746.33, as aforesaid, annually, in traffic earnings, these settlers represent approximately $524,545,245 in gross traffic earnings. Nor does this take into consideration the great number of settlers who have been brought into the country by the railroad, and who have located on privately owned or government lands.

It is estimated that since the year 1881—when the Land and Colonization department was organized—to 1919 they have brought in settlers who have earned in actual (net) traffic returns, a figure approximately $157,363,573.

The following is the total lands occupied, improved, unimproved and under cultivation at the period under discussion:

Prov.	No. of Farms	Acres Improved	Area each farm Improved
Sask....	104,006	19,632,206	188.8
Alberta..	67,977	7,510,303	110.48

Percentage of Whole Occupied.

Prov.	Imp'd	Cropped	Not Imp'd
Manitoba	53.5	38.1	46.5
Saskatchewan ..	53.3	37.9	46.7
Alberta	32.6	24.3	67.4

As to the value of the products of these settlers to the country as a whole—well, that is another question, which could be worked out, from the figures given here, by some able statistician, since presumably, a relation can be established between freight rates on agricultural produce for an equal distance, and the value of the commodity transported.

NEW YORK JEWS IN GREAT PARADE

New York, May 2[illegible].—In contrast to demonstration of mourning and protest held in New York in the past, thousands of Jews yesterday took part in the Teulah or Redemption parade in joyfulness that Palestine is to be the Jewish homeland under a British mandatory. It was the climax to the extraordinary Zionist convention that opened here last Sunday.

A fourth member of the gang remained in an automobile a block from the bank and drove the trio away from the scene of the robbery.

One Big Union of Citizens To Protect American Public From Possible Food Famines

An Organization Formed at New York to Offset Revolutionary Labor Upheavals and Strikes by Outlaw Unionists Through Use of Volunteers

New York, May 14.—An investigation of the "one big union of citizens" idea and its feasibility in protecting American communities from possible fuel or food famines during strikes is now under way by ten members of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, recently appointed by the president of the organization as a "Committee on Public Welfare."

Revolutionary labor upheavals and strikes designated as "outlaw" walkouts by union officials and the employment of volunteer Americans in keeping the channels of communication and transportation open, are the object, it is said, of the Chamber's present inquiry. The Chamber for several weeks has been listing and classifying volunteers who, with no antagonism toward unions or partizan interest in labor quarrels, obligate themselves to operate motor trucks or do any other work necessary to keep the nation's commercial arteries open in times of stress. To prevent the "tying up and throttling of whole communities," the committee has received hundreds of responses to blank questionnaires specifying the ability and equipment of the various volunteers. Their occupation, home addresses and telephone numbers, together with other similar data, are in possession of the committee which, in time of crisis, may be utilized.

The Chamber at a recent meeting authorizing the appointment of the committee by President Alfred E. Marling, passed resolutions in which it said that "civilization is now menaced by false and distorted and political ideas and the public welfare demands that the men and women of the nation, who hold to high ideals of personal and political conduct, who believe in sound economic principles and in constitutional government, shall undertake more resolutely to fulfil their civic duties." The resolutions further declared that "the structure of government and society as a whole" was imperilled by the interruption of the normal channels of communication and public service due to "an irresponsible minority of the population of the United States." It further stated that the duties of the Committee on Public Welfare should be to draw up "a plan of organization and co-operation whereby the public may, by volunteer service, aid in maintaining the uninterrupted use of public utilities and assist the duly constituted authorities in preserving law and order."

Many interesting letters accompanied the applications of volunteers. A doctor who formerly was a telegraph operator offered his services in any capacity for "the maintenance of social equilibrium against the rebellions and misled small minority." He said "that the movement deserved the support of all right-minded citizens who are the backbone of the country."

A Russian refugee, a major-general in the former Russian army, "who has suffered the loss of everything I possessed through the Bolsheviki," said he felt in duty bound to offer his services. He wrote: "I am perfectly familiar with the beginning of the Bolsheviki, a movement in Russia which started, as you know, with strikes, uprisings and the curtailment of food. I know thoroughly the Bolshevists of other countries as well as Russia and their methods and, since I am the guest of America and everybody has been so very kind to me, I wish to do all in my power to help America."

A man, a consulting engineer, 67 years old, in "fair health and vigor," wrote: "I am fully in sympathy with your apparent theory that the way to combat 'outlaw' or even 'inlaw' labor obstructions to public activities is to develop a strong and widespread sentiment among the masses of right-minded citizens against such labor disturbances. Also that the best way to develop this sentiment among right-thinking people is to permit them to take part in combatting lawlessness and to aid in the carrying on of public activities which may be interrupted by labor disturbances."

A lawyer wrote enrolling his name "as a member of your organization which has for its purpose the preservation of the national life. No other country," he added, "gives to its citizens and others so large an amount of freedom and privilege as does America, yet many of those within our borders fail to appreciate that with liberty also comes responsibility toward others. It is high time that the true American citizen awakens to the conditions that threaten and rallies to the support of law and order."

The Committee on Public Welfare is expected to make a report of its investigations and progress in the near future.

Webster Shoe Manufacturer to Serve Prison Sentence for Defrauding Country.

Boston, May 14.—The United States court of appeals yesterday returned a finding which upholds the decision of the United States district court, sentencing Frank I. Sears, who was vice-president and general manager of the A. J. Bates Company, shoe manufacturers of Webster, was found guilty in May, 1919, on two indictments charging bribery of government inspectors and a third charging conspiracy to defraud the government, all in connection with the manufacture of shoes for the army.

The sentence will be served in Greenfield jail. Sears was active in Red Cross and Liberty bond campaigns during the war.

Andover, May 11.—The Baptist sewing circle met at the home of Mrs. J. Wright on Friday last.

The funeral service of the late Mrs. T. R. Cameron was held at the Baptist church on Saturday, conducted by Rev. C. Flemington.

The Andover Presbyterian church has secured the services of Rev. Mr. McMerlin, for the summer, at least.

Mrs. George Brown, of Portland, Oregon, has been in town for a few days. she has been visiting her many friends in this vicinity for nearly a year. She plans to leave for her distant home at the end of this month.

S. W. Wright and his sister, Miss Bessie, returned today from a very pleasant week-end visit with friends at Good's Corner, Carleton county.

Rev. Mr. Addison arrived at Aroostook on Saturday, where he expects to remain for a two weeks' campaign of special services. The storm of yesterday prevented his visiting Andover as planned.

Mrs. David Curry, of Tobique River, returned home on Friday, having spent a few days here, the guest of her sister, Mrs. J. E. Wright.

Miss Jessie Jamer, who has been a patient in the Fort Fairfield Hospital is expected home in a few days.

BUTLER FOR LIGHT WINES AND BEERS

Candidate Announces His Political Platform—Gives 17 Points

New York, May 14.—Dr. Nicholas Butler, candidate for Republican Presidential nomination, tonight issued a statement of his principles, favoring among other things light wines and beer and the principles underlying the Kansas Court of Industrial Relations. This will be the only public statement that Dr. Butler will make prior to the Republican convention in June, according to John R. Davies, manager of the Butler campaign committee.

The statement sets forth 17 points covering the subjects which Dr. Butler says urgently need attention. These he says, are of three kinds: "First, those relating to the structure and functions of our Government; second, those relating to our domestic affairs, chiefly economic, financial and industrial; and third, those relating to international duty and opportunity."

Point number twelve reads as follows:

"Resist attempts to bring back the saloon. Displace the Volstead act by a law for enforcement on the basis of common sense. There are beers and light wines that form a part of the staple diet and are not more intoxicating than molasses and not half so harmful as ice water. To prohibit the domestic use of those is unreasonable."

It's useless to waste sympathy on a man who has the toothache.

The new hood with its many long, narrow louvres gives a European touch. So, too, does the smaller, smarter cowl. The gasoline tank is now in the rear. And the Rayntite top, hand-tailored in our own shops, is easily the smartest top on any light car.

Crowning all is the lasting elegance of the coach-builder's art and finish which Gray-Dort craftsmen have spent 60 years in perfecting.

The smooth, quiet Gray-Dort motor with its 5" stroke and 3½" bore: the heavy 40 lb. crankshaft: the channel steel frame: the heavier steering gear: the Thermoid brake lining; the improved ignition and carburetor: the Westinghouse starting and lighting systems: the heavier rear axle and cantilever springs, both Chatham-built:—the more you know about cars the more superiorities will you find in the Gray-Dort, hidden under its robe of smart beauty.

At $1465 there is nothing in the light car class to match the refined and improved Gray-Dort.

It is the dominant VALUE. See it first.

AMERICAN ROADS HANG ON TO CARS

Good Reason for Canadian Roads Refusing to Allow Cars Over the Border

New York, May 14.—The New York Globe publishes an article which purports to endorse the recent action of Canadian officials in refusing to permit Canadian freight cars to cross the international boundary. The newspaper, dealing with the general car shortage at present prevailing in the United States, points out that the car service commission which acts under authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington so far has hesitated to exercise its authority during the present situation. It says:

"The Canadian border is the source of a car shortage which is particularly annoying to New York. It is provoked by neglect of American railroads to return empty cars belonging to Canadian roads.

"During the war, Canadian roads built almost a peace time quota of new and large freight cars. They allowed these cars to come to the United States to bring newsprint and other products to New York and other cities with the understanding that the Canadian cars would be returned immediately.

"American railroads disregarded this agreement, it seems. Canadians assert that their cars have been diverted elsewhere but back home. As a reprisal, Canadain officials now refuse to allow cars over the border, resulting not only in a paper famine for newspapers of the eastern States, but also creating a delicate international situation."

When tthe United States government gave up the roads they were short some 226,000 freight cars, 7,000 passenger coaches and 3,200 locomotives, according to conservative estimates made by the Globe. The newspaper adds these fificures do not include an emergency surplus, nor do they allow for natural increase in traffic, which has grown on an average of 10 per cent. per year. It also says there are some 2,500,000 freight cars in all on American railroads.

ITALY LOOKING TO AFRICA FOR COTTON

Rome, May 14.—Arctic exploration and shooting the savage polar bear have no allurement at present for the Duke of the Abruzzi, who is now engaged in the equally scientific if less hazardous task of investigating the commercial and agricultural possibilities of the Benadir Colony, East Africa, with a view to making it a source of income for Italy, and even eventually of rendering that country independent of other nations for her supplies of cotton and cereals.

The Duke, in addition, intends to explore the sources of the Uebi Scebel river, which, rising in the high plateau of Hanar, toward Abyssinia, passes through the Italian colonies to the sea, and, it is believed, can easily be rendered navigable for small boats, besides being invaluable as a source of irrigation for the extensive agricultural enterprises which the Duke hopes to initiate in Benadir.

The first news has just arrived of the expedition which started last December from Mogadiscio. An exhaustive study has already been made of the winds, the climate and the rainfall of the country. Engineer Agostinelli, who is accompanying the expedition and who has done considerable work on the rivers and canals of the Lower Piave, considers that it will be comparatively easy to utilize the waters of the Uebi Scebel for a system of canals, to irrigate that part of the colony which now suffers from drought which will more than quadruple its productive power.

The Duke of Abruzzi, with the experts who have accompanied him, are setting up two big experimental farms where it will be demonstrated what immense harvests of cotton, dourra, sugar and coffee can be obtained in this country through irrigation, a system of intensive culture and the use of modern agricultural machines.

The ex-German cargo boat, now called the Carlo Pisacane, which brought news of the expedition, also carried a large shipment of dourra from the colony, a grain which resembles maize and can be used, together with ordinary flour, for bread. It has also been proved that the breeding of cattle in Benadir can be greatly increased so that supplies can be sent to Italy of meat and hides.

All this work is being done, it is announced, entirely at the expense of the Duke, who desires that Italy's colonies should be developed and hopes that similar work may be started in Lybia and Cyrenaica.

OTTAWA STRIKE COMES TO AN END

Ottawa, May 14.—The building trade strike, which has involved one hundred members of the different trades unions engaged in building and construction work for the past two weeks, ends this afternoon. This issue out of the dispute has been arrived at through the determination of the painters' union, at a special meeting this morning, to agree to submit their dispute with the contractors to a board of arbitration.

The carpenters, electrical workers and roofers' unions, which were the only other trades in dispute, with the Contractors' Association, having also return to work tomorrow morning and immediate steps will be taken by the contractors to have a board appointed accepted arbitration, all trades will a date as early as possible.

laims New York Dry Laws Being Openly Disregarded

Newspaper Man Finds That It Is Not at All Difficult for a Stranger to Obtain His Favorite Drink, Although He Must Pay an Exhorbitant Price for It

New York, May 14.—When is a law not a law? is a question that is being freely asked in this city by those who favor prohibition and by those who oppose it. Investigations just completed by several leading newspapers of New York purport to reveal the fact that "more intoxicating liquors are being sold in this city in saloons, restaurants, hotels, dives, speakeasies and kitchen barrooms than at any previous time since nation-wide prohibition went into effect Jan. 16 last."

The enterprising newspapermen, carrying on what was no doubt a popular quest, claim to have discovered that in New York at least the dry laws are being openly disobeyed, and that it is not at all difficult for a stranger to obtain his favorite drink at an exorbitant price. In most of the saloons, it is said, 100 proof beaded whiskey is being sold at 75 cents a drink, and, when watered, the price paid by the drinker ranges from 40 cents to 60 cents a drink. In first class restaurants as high as $2 is charged for a ginger ale highball which contains about 20 cents' worth of whiskey, even at present prices.

Colored "hootch," which is better known as diluted wood alcohol, is still being sold in large quantities in corner saloons in the poorer neighborhoods, and is also being peddled in newly-opened dives commonly called kitchen barrooms. The price per drink ranges from 30 cents to $1.

The question naturally arises: Where does the supply come from, since manufacture of liquor in the United States is forbidden? This question the investigator of the New York Times answers as follows:

"They say that our neighbors up north are the most kindly disposed to us when it comes to letting us have some of their sparkling spirits. For a sum, of course. Geographers tell us that the St. Lawrence is a long, beautiful river, whose banks are dotted with charming little hamlets and cities. It is true. The St. Lawrence is a long, beautiful river. And at points it is quite narrow.

"In circles true and tried they tell a story of adventure and romance such as might make the brigands on the coast of Spain blush with shame at the tameness of their sport. Oft in the stilly night, the story begins, when the moon is hidden behind the heavy clouds of darkness, there are little boats that go to and from the North coast of the St. Lawrence to the South. Each of these little boats is filled with luggage. Much luggage, most of which is packed in trunks. Ths trunks are handled carefully, lovingly, gently. The boats silently make their moorings on the south side of the St. Lawrence, where the trunks are unloaded. From there they are carefully shipped to points south. New York is one of these points south. There are others. A good many of the trunks, it is said, go to hotels. Where else should a trunk be sent? Others are sent to private residences. Still others go to private rooms above saloons, private rooms behind saloons, private rooms near saloons. There are many places to which a trunk can be sent."

It is generally admitted that whether the liquor comes from Canada, from warehouses, or from stills, commercial and private, the United States government has not provided sufficient funds for the enforcement of prohibition in places where the people do not want it enforced. The same Congress that headed the prohibition crusaders in passing the enforcement law now decline to set aside the enormous funds which would be required to stop smuggling across the borders or illicit traffic in the cities. Conditions in New York are said to be parallel in many other parts of the United States. Albany, for instance, is famed for its wetness, and similar reputations are borne by various cities east and west.

The newspaper investigators declare that drinking in the home has grown to proportions equal almost to those of European countries. Many a family has its private stock. If it has not, it gets it or makes it. The introduction of private stills into the home is said to have spread fast. Formulas for whiskey, beer and wine are given as freely as in days long past when recipes for gingerbread and preserves were passed around. Evaporated cherries, raisins, preserved peaches and the like are outshining the fish and fowl in relative importance as articles of the family diet.

Still another source of home supply is the family physician. He can prescribe a pint at a time for each patient every ten days, provided he thinks the patient needs it. According to the results of recent inquiries, a very large number of people appear to be suffering from maladies which can be alleviated by liquor some doctors prescribe freely, others less so, others not at all. But most of them can prescribe. The druggists also have fallen in line to meet the popular demand for alcoholic drugs. They get their supplies from warehouses licensed to sell liquor for medicinal purposes. One warehouse in Brooklyn has changed its name so that the word "laboratories" appears on its letter heads. It recently sent out a circular to physicians stating that it was in a position to fill prescriptions for any drinks appearing in their catalogue.

For Producing Winter Layers

Why should we produce winter layers? Because there is an increasing demand, not only at home but abroad, for poultry and poultry products. What has caused this great demand? There are several reasons which, when taken collectively, are very convincing why such a shortage should exist in poultry and, of necessity, poultry products.

Firstly, because Canadians are eating more eggs every year. Secondly, because there is a greater export demand for Canadian eggs and poultry to meet the demands in foreign countries—the latter having been depleted of their laying stock during the war. Thirdly, because of the high prices of feeds and the comparatively low prices of market poultry during the third and fourth years of the war meant that a great many laying hens were killed off. Fourthly, because not sufficient attention had been given to the hatching of early chicks for winter layers. Consequently, the poultry men found their returns were not sufficient to meet their expenses and the increase in poultry raising has been very slow to w hat it might have been, had there been sufficient profits realized out of the poultry industry.

While it is not intended to mislead you into the fact that big money can be made out of poultry and their products with the prevailing high price of feeds, yet this can be said, that your returns may be increased very materially by producing winter layers. The following results, which were obtained on the Experimental Farm, Nappan, from five of the best winter layers, also five of the lowest, from October 1st, 1919, to March 31st, 1920, will bear this out:

The five best birds laid 413 eggs at a total cost of $8.21. The total value of eggs laid and sold for eating was $23.78, leaving a profit of $15.57. The five poorest laid a total of 34 eggs at a cost of $8.10 with a total value of $1.99, making a loss of $6.11 for the six months. Figuring on a basis of 100 hens like the first five, you have a profit of $312 against a loss of $122 from the latter. In computing the above, only the actual food consumed is taken into consideration—labor and interest on investment neglected. Now it can readily be seen that the winter layer is by far the more profitable hen to have. More especially when the high cost of feed is taken into consideration.

In order to produce profitable winter layers we must select eggs for hatching from not only our most healthy and vigorous birds, but from our best laying strain. Hatch these along about the first of April and not later than the last of April. When the chicks are hatched great care must be taken that the baby chicks do not get stunted, otherwise they will not be as good as later hatched birds at maturity. Keep brooders and brooder house clean, light and free from dampness and draught. Give them plenty of wholesome chick foods, such as baby chick scratch grain, baby chick grit, oster shell, charcoal and sprouted grains. Keep an even temperature at all times during the early stages, for that is the most critical time in the development of the winter layer. Keep them growing well throughout the summer. Do not overcrowd your house. Feed plenty of good growing feeds, such as grain mixture of 200 lbs. cracked corn, 200 of wheat, 100 of oats, together with a dry mash mixture of 100 lbs. bran, 100 cornmeal, 100 crushed oats, 100 shorts and 20 lbs. of beef scraps, keeping at the same time plenty of grit, oyster shell and charcoal where they can have access to it.

During September select your most promising pullets from the flock and get them into their winter quarters in order that they may become accustomed to their new surroundings. For winter quarters the house or pens should be light, free from draught or dampness and have plenty of fresh air. A good winter ration for the grain mixture is 200 lbs. corn, 200 wheat, 100 oats and 100 of barley and dry mash, 200 lbs. screenings, 100 bran, 100 shorts, 100 cornmeal and 20 of beef scraps. Hens should always have plenty of grit, oyster shell and charcoal before them and in this way you can easily double your poultry profits.

JAPANESE ABROAD

Tokio, May 14.—According to investigations of the Foreign Office 130,000 Japanese are living in the United States, 110,000 in Hawaii, 59,000 in China proper, 31,000 in Brazil and 70,000 in other countries, the total being 380,000. This is an increase of 90,000 as compared with that of 1918.

AUSTRIA TRYING TO ORGANIZE ARMY

Under the Terms of Treaty With Allies It Is To Be Composed of 30,000 Men

Vienna, April 19.—Austria is trying to organize an army to succeed the Volkswehr under the provisions of the bill hurriedly passed during the panic that followed the German revolution. It is to be composed of 30,000 men. The treaty prohibits any aviation force.

The Socialist elements fought for a workingmen's army with great powers vested in the soldiers' councillors, exceeding in practice the authority of the officers themselves. They were unable to obtain all their demands, but the soldiers' councillors were given a voice in the adjudication of complaints and in all disciplinary measures provided for in the military code.

The Conservatives, however, won their point in securing the allocation of recruiting in the provinces on a population basis and in provisions prohibiting political activity by the military forces.

These provincial units are to be garrisoned within the province itself and no man can be foisted upon a unit in a province in which he was not recruited without the consent of the province itself, and the men must be bona fide citizens of their province.

It is this provincial arrangement that the Socialist element opposed most bitterly. They desired a purely national army and its recruitment as largely as possible from the working classes. On the one hand will be an army of peasant lads, and on the other of industrial classes from the manufacturing centers.

The contest between the provinces and the central Government, or in other words between the Conservatives and the Socialists, is further illustrated in the curious provisions that not only is each provincial Government empowered to frame the service rules for its own contingent, but the soldier takes oath to uphold the laws of both the central Government and those of his province. As there is much conflict in these it is not unlikely that a time will come when army will not know just what it is to do.

In spite of the active efforts of the Socialists, particularly the workingmen's councils, to spur recruiting, a few men have applied for enlistment in Vienna or the other industrial centers, while reports from the provinces are even more discouraging. The enlistment has been open for a month but only a very small fraction of the required 30,000 men have presented themselves.

AERIAL ROUTE TO SOUTH AMERICA

No Serious Difficulties in the Way, Says Recent Commander in British Navy

London, May 14.—Establishment of an aerial route from the Pacific to the Amazon as a means of surmounting difficulties of road travel among the Andes, is advocated by G. M. Dyott, until recently a squadron commander of the British Royal Naval Air Service.

"There is no serious difficulty in the way, so far as the scheme's practicability is concerned," Mr. Dyott told the Royal Geographical Society. "We have heard of the great height of the Andes, but there are low altitudes at which they may be crossed. One of the Andes ridges can be negotiated at a height of 7,000 feet, but there is another rising to 15,600 feet.

"Peru," he continued, "is peculiarly suitable for aerial traffic. Aerial highways will undoubtdely play a large part in the future development of that country. It is of importance that rapid communication should be established between the interior and the coast, and in order to do this the airplane must come to the rescue."

Discussing the difficulty of travelling by road, Mr. Dyott said that it took him five days to travel from one part in the Andes to another, whereas the airplane would cover the distance in fifteen minutes, and in another stage of the journey it took him exactly a week to travel a distance which would be negotiated by the airplane in 30 minutes.

Boys in Winchendon, Mass., built a brick dam three feet high across the Marvin brook and got a two-foot head of water, which they guided through an 8-inch tile pipe and small trenches into the grounds of the Marvin School 200 feet away, and then through a window into the schoolhouse cellar, which the janitor found filled waist-deep. He made the discovery on Saturday, however, so that the boys didn't get a week's vacation.

The parting words of a barber are, "Which side, please?"

The Most Artistic Roof

is the one that completely harmonizes with the design and finishing of the house. For this reason there is a steadily increasing demand for Brantford Asphalt Slates for the modern style of homes.

Brantford Asphalt Slates have a surface of crushed slate embedded into our asphalt coating, the base of the roofing being felt saturated with asphalt. They are cut the size of shingles, and their beautiful soft colors of reddish brown and dark green give a roof a most artistic appearance. The colors are the natural shades of the slate as it comes out of the quarries. Brantford Asphalt Slates are, therefore, unfadeable—never require painting.

Brantford Asphalt Slates

are accurate in size and pliable, which makes them very easily handled and quickly laid, saving time and labor, and therefore costing less to lay.

VACANT POSITION IN MILITIA FORCE

Ottawa, May 14.—Speculation as to the probable successor to General Currie and Inspector General of the Canadian Forces should he resign from that position, brings up the probability that the post will not be filled at present, but that its duties will be filled by the Chief of the General Staff. In informed circles this is believed to be the likeliest outcome of the resignation of General Currie, which will follow his acceptance of the Principalship of McGill University.

It is possible that General Currie may occupy both positions and the active direction of the Canadian Militia will devolve on the Chief of the General Staff, which post may be taken over shortly by Brig. General J. H. McBrien, D.S.O., on the retirement of General Gwatkin, who has taken over the direction of Canada's new militia air force.

D. S. C. R. HOSPITALS COST $2,201,502

The Quebec schedule of fur royalties, which it is expected will be closely followed in this province, is as follows:

On each	Badger	$ .25
"	Beaver	.50
"	Raccoon	.15
"	Wolverine	.40
"	Squirrel (per 100)	.25
"	Ermine	.02
"	Otter	1.00
"	Rabbit (per 100)	.05
"	Wolf	.70
"	Lynx	.50
"	Marten	.75
"	Skunk	.20
"	Bear	.60
"	White bear	.70
"	Fisher	1.25
"	Black fox	15.00
"	Blue fox	1.75
"	Cross fox	1.55
"	Silver fox	10.00
"	White fox	1.75
"	Red fox	1.00
"	Bastard fox	.50
"	Muskrat	.05
"	Seal	.25

Of the above three of the animals are not found in the province, and these pelts—white bear, seal, and badger—will not be included in the New Brunswick schedule. The royalty in Quebec upon each beaver skin is fixed at 50 cents, but, as the beaver permit will be $8, it is intimated there will not be a royalty upon beaver pelts. Rabbit, with a royalty of 5 cents a hundred, and squirrel, with a royalty of 25 cents a hundred, would probably be left out of the schedule, it is stated, as keeping tab on these two items alone would entail a great deal of extra work. It is also said to be doubtful whether there will be a royalty upon the pelt of skunk or not.

U. S. OPINION ON CANADIAN TRADE

Expect Old-Time Conditions to Prevail When Exchange Situation Righted.

New York, May 14.—Since Canada is the second best customer of the United States, the best being Great Britain, American business men have been paying close attention to the movement recently inaugurated in the Dominion to increase trade with the Mother Country with a view to regulating exchange conditions between Canada and the United States. The movement has been in the direction of limiting Canadian purchases from American business houses so that the adverse balance of trade reflected in the depreciation of the Canadian dollar in exchange may be corrected.

Observers on this side of the international boundary line admit that American business has already felt the effects of the Canadian campaign, although probably not to the extent its promoters anticipated. In many lines Canadian imports of American goods have declined, but this is believed to be due, at least in part, to the adverse exchange rate itself, and not to the movement to correct that rate.

American business men who have given their views on the subject to the Canadian Press express the opinion that the campaign in Canada, like the adverse exchange rate itself, will be a purely temporary affair. When the causes that have operated to bring about the exchange conditions are removed, Canadian-American trade will, they say, flow back into its normal channels, which are too well established, and geographically inevitable to be abandoned.

The possibility of a restoration of the former business relations between Canada and Great Britain, to the detriment of American manufacturers, does not appear to be seriously considered here. It is argued, for one thing, that Great Britain will be unable to supply the Canadian demand for goods, as her factories are unable to take care of the domestic needs. The increase in Canadian imports from Great Britain is regarded here as normal trade readjustment following war conditions.

The result of the adverse exchange rate against Canada in the American market is seen in statistics of Canadian-American trade for the seven months ending at the close of January, which reveal a decline in purchases from the United States. As an indication of the present trend it may be expected that a substantial decrease will be reflected in the next report, with a corresponding increase in Canadian importations from Great Britain.

According to the Monthly Summary of Foreign Commerce (Washington), Canada bought goods to the value of $483,159,230 from the United States during the seven months ending January of this year, as against $542,472,967 for the corresponding period ending January, 1919. Canada's sales to the United States for these periods were $319,016,730 and $292,490,855 respectively. Thus the excess of imports over exports representing Canada's adverse balance of trade with the United States in the seven months ending January, 1920, was $162,142,500 as against $249,982,112 for the same period ending January, 1919, a reduction of about $90,000,000.

In spite, however, of the shifting balance, Canada is shown as being still the second greatest buyer in the United States markets, Great Britain is an easy first, and France a close third. In the seven months ending January, 1920, Canada bought twice as much goods from the United States as the whole of South America.

ROYALTY ATTENDS CURZON WEDDING

London, May 14.—King George and Queen Mary and King Albert of Belgium, accompanied by Queen Elizabeth, were among the distinguished personages who attended this week the wedding of Lady Cynthia Curzon, the daughter of Earl Curzon, the Foreign Secretary, and Lieut. Oswald Ernald Mosley, M.P., in the Chapel Royal.

The affair was one of great splendor, outrivalling anything of a similar nature in London in recent years. Besides the royal personages, there was a host of diplomats and other prominent people present.

An additional notable touch was lent to the occasion by the fact that the King and Queen of the Belgians had come by airplane on Saturday from Brussels for the express purpose of attending the wedding. They were week-end guests of Lord Curzon.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

"Madame,' said Maurice, "you certainly jest with me." Then, raising his noble head, he shook his hanging curls like a man wishing to escape from some power which, in spite of himself, still bound him. The Unknown regarded him with an undefinable expression. It was evident she had not altogether escaped the sentiment she had inspired.

'Listen," said she, after a moment's silence, interrupted only b ya sigh, which Maurice had in vain endeavored to suppress. 'Swear to me, upon your honor, to shut your eyes the moment I desire you to do so, and to keep them closed while you county sixty seconds. Mind, upon your honor."

"If I swear ,what will happen to me?"

"It will happen that I will prove my gratitude to you in a manner that a faithfully promise you I will never again to any other person. Do this for me more than for yourself. As to the rest, it will be difficult."

"But, at least, am I not to know—"

"No; trust to me. You see—"

"In truth, madame, I know not whether you are angel or demon."

"Will you swear to it?"

"Yes; I swear to do as you desire me."

"Whatever occurs, you will not open your eyes—whatever happens. You understand? een if you should feel yourself struck with a poniard."

"You bewilder me. My word of honor required with so much urgency

"Swear, then, monsieur. It appears to me that you run no great risk in so doing."

"Well, I swear," said Maurice, whatever may happen," closing his eyes.

He hesitated.

"Let me see you only once more—only once more," said he. "I entreat you."

The young woman let fall the hood with a smile not quite free from coquetry, when, by the light of the moon, which at this moment shed its lustre between two clouds, he again beheld, for the second time, the raven hair hanging in masses of shining curls, the beautifully arhed and pencilled eyebrows, o'ershadowing the almond-shaped eyes, so soft and languishing, an exquisitely formed nose, and lips fresh and brilliant as coral.

"Oh! you are beautiful, exquisitely beautiful," said Marise.

"Shut your eyes," said the Unknown.

The young woman took both his hands within her own, and placed him in the desired position.

All passed rapid as thought. Maurice experienced a sensation almost amounting to pain. His feelings were inexplicable, even to himself.

He made a brusque movement, and extended his arms before him.

"Your oath," said a voice, already in the distance.

Maurice clasped his hands over his eyes to strenuously resist the strong inclination he felt to perjure himself. He counted no more; he thought no more; but remained tottering, his nerves totally unstrung.

In about an instant he heard a noise like that of a door closing a few paces distant from him; then again everything was silent. Then he removed his hand, and opened his eyes, looking round about him like a man just awakened from a sleep, and might, perhaps, have fancied all that had occurred a passing dream, had he not held between his lips the identical ring, proving this unheard of adventure, an incontestable reality.

CHAPTER IV.

Manners of the Times.

When Maurice came to himself, he looked around, but saw only the gloomy, dirty streets extending to his right and left. He essayed to find out exactly where he was, that he might recognize it again; but his mind was disturbed. The night was dark, and the moon, which, for a moment, had appeared to light up the lovely face of the fair Unknown, had again retired behind the clouds. The young man, after a moment of cruel incertitude, retraced his steps towards his own house, situated in Rue de Roule.

Arriving at La Rue Sainte-Avoie, Maurice was much surprised at the number of patrols who circulated in that quarter of the Temple.

"What is the matter now, sergeant?" inquired he of the chief of patrol, busily occupied in thoroughly searching La Rue des Fontaines .

"What is it?" said the sergeant. "It is this, mon officier. It was intended this night to carry off the woman Capet, and the whole nest beside."

"How was that?"

"A band, forming a patrol had, I do not know how, procured the password, and introduced themselves into the Temple in the costume of Chasseurs of the National Guard. Fortunately, he who represented the corporal, when speaking to the officer on guard, addressed him as 'Monsieur.' He sold himself—the aristocrat."

"The devil!" said Maurice; "and have they not arrested the conspirators.

"No. When the patrol reached the street, they were all dispersed."

"And is there any hope of capturing any of these fellows?"

"There is only one among the number of sufficient importance to arrest—that is the chief, a very slight man; who had been introduced among the men on guard by one of the municipals of the service. We had made the villain run, but he had found a door behind, and fled through les Madelonnettes."

Under any other circumstances, Maurice would have remained for the rest of the night with the patriots, who guarded the safety of the public, but since one short hour, love of country was no longer his sole engrossing thought. He continued his way, and the tidings he had just learned were soon obliterated from his memory by the recent events, in which he had himself taken so active a part. Besides, since these pretended attempts had become very frquent, the patriots thmselves were aware, under certain circumstances, they made use of them in a political measure, therefore this news caused our young republican no great disquietude.

On returning home, Maurice found his "official" (at this epoque they had no longer servants)—Maurice, say we, found his official waiting, but who, while waiting, had fallen asleep, and while sleeping snored uneasily. He awoke him, and with all due regard for his fellow-man, made him pull on his boots, then dismissed him, that he might not interrupt his cogitations, and jumping into bed, it being very late, and he also having youth on his side, slept soundly, notwithstanding the preoccupation of his thoughts.

The next day he discovered a letter on his "table de nuit." This letter was written in a clear, elegant hand, but unknown to him. He looked at the seal. The seal was engraved with the single word in English—"Nothing." He opened it. It merely contained these words, "Thank you. Everlasting gratitude in exchange for everlasting forgetfulness." Maurice summoned his domestic (the true patriot never rang, the sound denoted servility, indeed, many officials only entered the service of their masters on this express condition).

The official of Maurice had received, nearly thirty years before, at the baptismal font, the name of Jean, but in '92 he was, by private authority, rebaptised, (Jean savouring of Aristocracy and Deism), and now called himself "Scevola."

Letters full of Praise—
A Wonderful Record of Healing

Gin Pills, the greatest help in overcoming Kidney Troubles, have relieved so many thousands of people throughout Canada, that the verbal praise, from mouth to mouth, is not enough to satisfy those who have suffered and been made well by Gin Pills. They write continually to us, and here are some extracts from the letters which have reached us recently:—

"I am writing to thank you and to tell you the good your Gin Pills did for me. I had been suffering for some time with my kidneys and urine. I was constantly passing water, which was very scanty, some days as many as thirty times, and each time the pain was something awful, and no rest at night. I began to feel quite worn out. I sent my chum out to get Gin Pills (about 60 miles) for me, and in less than six hours I felt relief. In two days the pain had left me altogether. I took about half a box, and to-day feel as well as ever I did, and my kidneys are acting quite naturally."

Mrs. E. Dean, Whiting, Ind., had this to say: "When I sent for the last box of Gin Pills, I was all crippled up with rheumatism and my face was so badly swollen that I could hardly see out of my eyes. After taking six of the pills, I felt better. After a few days I had no more pain."

"I beg you to publish my letter," writes Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, N.B., "so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. Everybody expected my death. I tried Gin Pills and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Gin Pills
FOR THE KIDNEYS

Mrs. B. Walters, Savona, B.C., says: "I have been troubled for years with weak kidneys. One box of Gin Pills cured me. I recommend them as an absolute and reliable cure."

"I suffered untold misery," writes Lewis MacPherson, from Halifax, N.S. "My trouble was inflammation of kidneys and bladder. I finally determined to go to the hospital for treatment. Two days before my intended departure, a neighbour called and happened to have some Gin Pills with him and insisted on my taking them. Six hours after the first dose the effects were simply miraculous. Instead of going to the hospital I sent for a box of Gin Pills, with the result that I am a well man. I recommend Gin Pills to everyone suffering from Kidney trouble."

If you have pains in the back or sides, constant headaches, stiff and swollen joints, rheumatism, sciatica, neuralgia, dizziness, constipation or stone in the bladder, take no chances. Get Gin Pills at once. They may save you from a critical operation.

SHILOH COLONY IS FAST SCATTERING

Rev. William Gleason at Work in Boston Garage—Other Leaders at Work

Durham, Me., May 14.—From all indications the Bible class of the Holy Ghost and Us Society held its last meeting on the Shiloh Hilltop last night and the clas. was broken up, never to be reformed. It is understood that only about 30 of the more than 600 who formerly belonged to the class attended the final meeting.

Rev. Willard Gleason has moved his family from Shiloh and has gone to work in a garage in Boston. Rev. John Sanford, the only son of Rev. Frank Sanford, the founder of the Holy Ghost and Us Society, is employed in the dyehouse of a woollen mill at Lisbon Falls. N. G. Brown, who married Mr. Sanford's sister and who for many years was postmaster at Shiloh, has also gone to work in the dye house. Capt. Knight, another near relative of the Shiloh leader, is now employed in leading one of the horses which drag the shovels used in the construction of the new mill at Lisbon Falls

The State has been asked to take charge of one of the two patients at the Shiloh Hospital, and it is announced that as soon as these patients leave the hospital is to be closed, never to be reopened. On all sides indications point to the complete breaking up of the Shiloh colony.

GERMANS HAVE MUCH PAPER MONEY

Germany's Indebtedness is Now About 230,000,000,000 Marks, Says a Minister

Berlin, May 14—Germany's paper money now in circulation amounts to 50,000,000,000 marks and is increasing by 1,000,000,000 marks a week, declares August Mueller, former Minister of Economics.

The printing of bank notes is the only flourishing industry in Germany today, he writes in an article in the Abendblatt. He attributes this activity in printing of money to government subsidies undertaken in a vain effort to reduce the prices of food and also to the continual increasing of salaries "to an absurdly growing officialdom who find next day they are no better off, owing to the overnight decline of the buying power of the paper mark."

Germany's indebtedness, says Herr Mueller, is now about 230,000,000,000 marks. This, he adds, is, perhaps, redeemable at the present low value of the mark, but never if it recovers even half its former value.

Herr Mueller is unable to see a remedy except in increasing production which, he says, seems to preoccupy the present rulers of Germany less than the anxiety to keep in office.

THE CROWN JEWELS BACK IN TOWER

London, May 14.—The Crown jewels, which were removed to a place of greater safety during a recent succession of daring burglaries about London, have now been returned to their accustomed place in the Tower.

That fact is regarded as hardly likely to prompt anyone to try to steal them, but it is somewhat remarkable that Colonel Blood's attempt on the regalia in 1671, recalled by this incident, should be the only one on record, considering the manner in which his audacity was rewarded. He did not, of course, succeed in his enterprise, but Charles II. was so impressed by his daring that he pardoned Blood and gave him an appointment in his household and an estate in County Clare which was held by his family for over 200 years.

GOOD PROSPECTS FOR THE LEAGUE

Manchester, Eng., May 14—Lord Reading, Lord Chief Justice of England and former Ambassador to Washington, talks hopefully of the prospects of a League of Nations.

"Whether the League becomes a weapon for the preservation of peace, or whether it whithers and dies does not depend upon the government, on statesmen or politicians, but upon the peoples of the member countries," he told the Manchester Chamber of Commerce. "In time to come, if the public of the various countries will put their heart and soul into it, we may eventually arrive at a stage when war might be regarded as a thing of the past."

Lord Reading said the words of Washington's farewell address were treasured by the American people "as perhaps never had words of man been treasured." This he cited as illustrating the very strong conservative traditions of the United States which he asked his audience to take into account in considering the pres-present American attitude toward the League.

ADD INSULT TO INJURY

Middletown, N. Y., May 14.—Lewis Bauscher, a Spring Valley merchant, added insult to injury when, after having been fined $15 for speeding, he asked the judge for a receipt. "Your record on the book is your receipt," said the judge. "You may look at it whenever you wish."

Great Interest in Weight Reducing Experiment Going on

The Leaders of the Fat Elimination Contest at Chicago Aver That the Experiment Can Be Tried by Any One Suffering From Surplus Avoirdupois

Chicago, May 14.—Fat persons all over the United States are watching with great interest the sixty-day experiment in reducing weight which is being conducted here under the supervision of Dr. John Bill Robertson, City Health Commissioner. Inquiries already received here suggest the probability that if the Chicago experiment is successful it may be tried in other communities.

Success reported in the first week when the average weight of the 24 women comprising the first class was reduced by 3.9 pounds, has prompted the organization of other classes in this city, and altogether more than 200 persons here are trying to see how rapidly they can regain their youthful figures.

The leaders of the fat elimination contest here aver that the experiment can be tried by anyone suffering from a surplus of averdupois. Reasonable exercise and a strictly controlled diet constitute two of the chief features of the Chicago experiment.

The daily menus of the reducing class are prepared by Miss Ruth Wilbar, of the Health Commissioner's training school for nurses, who believes this supervision of diet to be essential to success. Those ambitious to become slim are permitted to have lean meat but once a day and potatoes are forbidden. If one is hungry between meals Miss Wilbar suggests that a glass of water will satisfy that "empty feeling."

Breakfast—One medium apple, one egg, one slice of toast, one cup of coffee with one and a half tablespoons of skimmed milk instead of cream.

10.30 a. m.—One-half cup of bouillon with one cracker.

Luncheon—Medium serving of lean cold roast beef; two thin slices of rye bread; lettuce and cottage cheese salad; two and one-half tablespoonfuls of French dressing; tea with lemon; one cracker.

Dinner—Large serving of boiled cod with lemon; large serving of plain cauliflower; one scant teaspoon of butter; lettuce salad or celery; one-half an orange; black coffee.

10.30 p. m.—One-half cup hot skim milk.

Each of the women is expected to work an hour a day in her garden—if she has a garden—otherwise to take long walks and setting up exercises.

Daily the women report by telephone and receive instructions, including a diet for the following day. On Thursday of each week they report at the city hall and are weighed, and the week's loss—or gain—recorded on their charts.

The 24 women in the first class averaged in weight at the start of the experiment, 201.66 pounds, 65.83 pounds more than their average normal weight, and Dr. Robertson says he expects to take approximately 40 of those pounds from each woman.

The leader of the class is Mrs. Nellie Leonard, age 32, a typist, who tipped the scales at 323 pounds but lost eight pounds in the first seven days. Dr. Robertson figured her normal weight at 141 pounds.

Miss Catherine Scott, age 28, also a typist, is the "baby of the class." She weighed in at 166½ and her normal weight was calculated at 121. Miss Scott stands just a half-inch above five feet.

The anti-fat crusade is a serious venture, Dr. Robertson says, aimed to point the dangers and discomforts of excess weight and show the ease with which it can be eliminated.

JAGS COST MORE

Passaic, N. J., May 14. — The cost of getting drunk, like the cost of everything else, is going up in this town. The fine used to be $5 but Police Judge Costello has raised it to $25. The judge says there is no law against putting prices still hilgher.

SOLD BY WEIGHT NOW

Vienna, May 14—Sewing silk is now being sold here by jeweller's weight. The salesmen use fine jeweller's scales and the price is 12 crowns for one-third of an ounce. Formerly the same quantity sold for 12 hellers. A consignment of sewing silk stolen from a freight car was valued at ten million crowns.

The side saddle was invented in the 14th century that Anne of Bohemia, who was deformed, might ride in comfort.

SHOOT NIAGARA FALLS IN BARREL

English Barber Announces His Intention of Making the Attempt Soon

Bristol, Eng., May 14.—Charles George Stephens, a barber of this town, has announced that he is going to try to shoot Niagara Falls in a barrel.

He has booked his passage from Liverpool to Quebec on June 18 and says he intends to make the attempt at the end of June or early in July.

Stephen is 56 years of age and stands 5 feet 2½ inches high. The barrel will be 6 feet 2 inches and in the middle 32 inches. Inside the barrel Stephens plans to be secured by straps and the barrel is to be weighted at the bottom with a hundred pound weight to keep it upright in the water. Special breathing apparatus is also being fitted

Among the many other feats which Stephens claims to have performed are the following:

Kissing a lion in its den, shaving customers in a lion's den, boxing in a lion's den and parachute descents from balloons, for which feats he boasts three ribbons, five gold medals and six silver medals.

To shoot Niagara Falls in a barrel has been the ambition of numerous persons seeking notoriety, but few have accomplished it. Mrs. Anna Edson Taylor, who went over the falls in a wooden barrel about 1904, was severely injured but recovered. "Bobby" Leach made the drop successfully and without injury in a steel barrel in 1911.

FAVORITE CAT BURIED WITH HER

New York, May 14.—The favorite cat of the late Maria Louisa Ewen was buried in the same coffin with its owner. Miss Ewen died a year ago, but her devotion to the cat was not made public until recently when a nephew, John Ewen, a lawyer of Yonkers, N. Y., started to contest his aunt's will on the ground that she had been mentally incompetent.

Why?—and What For?

THE SALVATION ARMY ACTIVITIES IN CANADA

If we are to carry on and extend our work in Canada we must have funds for the maintenance of the following institutions:

Maternity Homes for poor mothers and their babies.
Children's Homes, not "orphanages" or "institutions," but small homes where parental care can be most closely approximated.
Rescue Homes for wayward girls and unmarried mothers and their babies.
Women's Shelters for temporary care of dependent cases.
Police Court Work where men and women, not habitual criminals, are taken in hand, induced to go straight and followed up.
Prison, Jail and Penitentiary Work, visiting prisoners and their families.
Working Men's Homes and Shelters where men may have clean beds and decent surroundings at nominal charge, or, if they have not the price, free.
Free Labor Bureau.
General Hospitals.
Home Mission Department.
Hospital Visiting Bands.
Industrial Workshops where derelict men support themselves and work out their own Salvation.
Lost and Missing Friends world wide enquiry.
Training College for Candidates for Officership.
Young People's Work.

These institutions are manned by officers whom gold cannot buy. They would not consider their service to be a joy unless it involved day-to-day, life-long personal sacrifice for God and their fellowmen.

THE SALVATION ARMY ACTIVITIES ABROAD

From a personal point of view; from a business point of view; from any point of view, THINK WHAT IT MEANS to operate in sixty-six different countries, and in forty-two different languages.

It is a work that you should have a part in. You may not be in the mission field, but you should be behind this great unselfish force of men and women who are on the ground doing the actual work. Work which obviously cannot be fully self-sustaining is carried on by us among:

Argentinians	Guzeratis	Malays	Tamils

GERMAN INDEMNITY THIRTY BILLIONS

THE RAILWAY MAIL CLERKS ON SCHEDULE

Railway Clerks Meet at Winnipeg and Discuss the Civil Service Reclassification

$1,680 MAXIMUM LIKELY BE REDUCED

With Mileage Also Cut Out, There Would Be a Wage Reduction of $45 Month

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Winnipeg, May 17.—A meeting of railway clerks was held here Saturday afternoon with reference to a report that a reduction was to be made in the present wage schedule, as had been reported from the east. The matter was discussed at length and there was no confirmation of the story officially and no definite action was decided on. The association appointed a delegate to attend the meeting of the federation at Ottawa on Wednesday to support a strike if the reduction is really intended.

Information received here yesterday by officials of the Railway Mail Clerks' Association intimated that under the civil service reclassification bill the present maximum of $1,680 per year for railway mail clerks would be reduced to $1,560 and that their mileage would be cut out, which would further reduce wages by $45 a month.

New England Textile Strike.

New Bedford, Mass., May 17.—The textile unions of this city, with the exception of the loom fixers, voted yesterday to accept the 15 per cent. advance in wages offered by the manufacturers.

At a mass meeting of the operatives last night it was voted to continue the present strike in 18 cotton mills in support of the loom fixers, who have demanded that the mills remove notices changing their working conditions.

Wage Demands U. S. Railwaymen.

Chicago, May 17.—Hearings on the wage demands of two million railroad workers were opened here today with representatives of the railroad managers appearing before the railroad labor board.

A statement signed by the heads of 17 railroad unions was issued last night, declaring that "the question of a breakdown of the transportation system of the nation rests with the railroad labor board."

Both the railroad managers and representatives of the railway employees expressed confidence that the board would arrive at a just and equitable decision with all possible speed.

The Allies Must Compel Germany To Assume Debt

Germany Not Likely to Pay Up Unless She is Forced to

A FIXED SUM FOR INDEMNITY

Great Britain's Concessions to France Endorsed by Press.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 17.—Postponement of the Allied-German conference at Spa is approved generally by this morning's newspapers in commenting on the Premiers' meeting at Hythe. They also approve of steps taken relative to German disarmament and are mainly in accord relative to the financial arrangements agreed upon by Premiers Lloyd-George and Millerand.

While rather lukewarm to the whole conference, the London Times expresses doubt whether Germany would undertake, without compulsion, the burden of the debt which the Allies must compel her to assume.

The newspaper regards the scheme for the repayment of the French debt to Great Britain as a very large concession to France, and finds some obscurities in the announcement of this arrangement. It declares this agreement must be thoroughly investigated and made quite plain before given parliamentary and national sanction.

Belief that public opinion, both in England and France will cordially assent to the financial arrangement, is expressed by the London Telegraph, which thinks this was the real achievement of the conference.

The Daily News is enthusiastic over the fact that a fixed sum was agreed upon for the German indemnity and says it constitutes "the foundation of a new order, if statesmen build aright."

It, too thinks Great Britain's concession to France will be heartily endorsed.

German Indemnity Fixed At $30,000,000,000

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 17.—It is understood in official cirles here that the Anglo-French conference at Hythe, which closed yesterday decided that the sum total which Germany should pay as reparation would be fixed at 120,000,000,000 marks gold (approximately $30,000,000,000).

WRIT FOR ST. JOHN TO BE ISSUED TODAY

Hon. Dr. Roberts in Ottawa Today, But Expects to Be Home Latter Part Week

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Montreal, May 17.—The writ for the bye-election in the city of St. John will be issued today (Monday) and polling will take place on June 7th, exactly as predicted in The Gleaner.

Hon. Dr. Roberts left St. John on Saturday night for Ottawa, where he is to attend the meetings of the Advisory Board on Public Health and a meeting of the executive of the congress of the association which is to map out a programe for the combatting of venereal diseases in Canada, which meets in Vancouver the latter part of June.

Hon. Dr. Roberts expects to be back in St. John the latter part of the week, admitted to a representative of The Gleaner that the date which had been named was correct. Today he met Dr. Melvin, chief medical health officer, who had been at Ottawa attending conferences of the Red Cross Association, and this evening the minister went on to Ottawa, while the deputy was leaving for Fredericton.

PERMIT GERMANY TO ISSUE BONDS

Such Action Will Enable France to Discount Part of Claim and Settle Her Debts

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Paris, May 17.—At the meeeting of Premier Millerand and Lloyd-George on Saturday it is understood that it was decided Germany would be permitted to issue bonds covering her indebtedness to the Allies, payable in annual installments.

Such action, it is pointed out, would enable France to discount a part of her claim on Germany and permit her to settle her debts to the United States and the Allies.

These decisions, together with the action taken postponing the Spa conference with the Germans to June 21, comprise the definite conclusions reached by the French and British Premiers and their advisers, according to the understanding here. All the other details of the arrangement remain to be settled by the financial delegation, who are still working upon them.

A special conference of the Allies will be held at Ostend to consider financial questions among the Allies, it is stated. This meeting will be independent of the League of Nations conference at Brussels. The dates of these conferences remain to be fixed.

The decisions thus reported have been favorably received in French circles. While the total amount to be paid as reparation is much lower than the figure France desired, and is still further short of the actual sum declared to be required to restore the devasted regions and pay for other damages, it is pointed out that sixty six billion marks in gold, which is figured as France's share, would be equivalent at the present rate of exchange to nearly two hundred and forty billion francs in French paper.

This, it is felt, could hardly fail to satisfy French public opinion.

WORK HAS STARTED ON NEW HOSPITAL

Building to be Completed in a Year at an Estimated Cost of $175,000

The first sod was turned on Saturday in connection with the building of the Fraser Memorial Hospital and men and horses are now at work excavating.

The ground has already been laid out by Superintendent L. G. Willows, of Montreal, and it is the intention of the contractors to have an imposing building with sand stone front erected in less than a year.

The building as planned will extend with a frontage of ninety-one feet on the Woodstock Road and forty-two feet back into lot, and will be situated at the western end of the Victoria Public Hospital. At its western end a sun parlor will be erected and will give to the building the appearance of a sanitorium. The main building will have a face of solid stone backed by brick, and will be three stories in height. An eleven foot basement will extend all around the building.

It was stated today that the contract held by George A. Fuller & Co. did not include the removal of the Asa Dow Wing of the Hospital.

The estimated cost of the building is about $175,000, and it is expected that the work will be carried on until next Spring when it will be finished.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 17.—Russian Bolshevik forces are striking back at the Polish and Ukrainian troops which captured Kiev about ten days ago, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless. "In the Borisov region fighting of a local nature occurred," the statement continued. "Our airmen again engaged successfully with Polish airmen and downed a Polish airplane. The aviator was taken prisoner.

"In the Cherkask region we have occupied a village west of that town. In Vapniarka direction our troops are conducting a successful fight ten miles north of Vapniarka station.

"In the Crimea sector, west of Perekop Isthmus, enemy ships several times bombarded coast villages. In the Sea of Azov there have been encounters with enemy ships fourteen miles west of Berdiansk. The enemy ships were forced to retire.

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Manchester, N. H., May 17.—Harry G. Wright, of Marblehead, Mass., a speaker for the New England Civil Liberties Committee, was arrested by the police at a mass meeting here yesterday on a charge of violating the state anti-anarchy law. The arrest was made at a mass meeting where he was speaking on behalf of a movement to raise funds for alleged radicals who were arrested in the general round-up last January.

According to the police he said: "A bloody revolution would be a thousand times preferable to a hundred years more of wage slavery."

Wright was held in $3,000 bail.

Scour Mountains For Carranza and Defeated Troops

Victorious Rebels Pursuing Carranza

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Vera Cruz, May 17.—Mexican revolutionary forces commanded by Generals Sanchez and Higinio Aguilar are pursuing President Carranza and the troops which fled with him from the battlefield near San Marcos on Friday.

Government troops numbering 3,500 were captured by the revolutionists following the escape of Carranza. General Torres, who was wounded in the fighting on May 13, and was brought to this city, is dead.

REBELS CAPTURE 3,500 PRISONERS

General Sanchez Has a Strong Cavalry Force Trailing.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Vera Cruz, May 17.—Gen. Aguilar, Governor of the state of Vera Cruz, and son-in-law of President Carranza, who has been virtually a prisoner of revolutionary forces near Orizaba for the past week, escaped last night.

It is believed he is trying to join Carranza, who fled into the mountains near Chelchicomula, on Friday, and who, so far as known, has not as yet been located.

Gen. Aguilar has with him about 300 of his followers.

Pursuit of Carranza is being vigorously pushed by Generals Sanchez and Higinio Aguilar, leaders of the revolutionary forces which fought a grim battle with Carranza's army near Rinconada last week. They have a superior force of cavalry, and are searching the mountains for some trace of the fugitive President.

Seek to Intercept Carranza.

General Medina left here today over the Inter-Oceanic Railroad for the purpose of intercepting Carranza if he attempted to reach the state of Vera Cruz. Lack of water and food lowered the morale of Carranza's men, so that their defeat at the hands of the revolutionists was a comparatively easy task, says a despatch from the Associated Press correspondent at the battle zone.

When the revolutionary forces swept down on the capital, Carranza decided to flee, clinging to the idea that it was necessary for him to reach Vera Cruz and establish his executive powers. His trains carried ten thousand men and a large amount of war munitions, in addition to the presidential suite and government funds and archives.

Joined by Loyal Troops.

On May 8 the Carranza trains reached Apizaco, where they were joined by other troops. They then pushed on, but soon the engineers reported they could go no further because their locomotives were out of water.

The troops detrained and pushed on down the road, defeating a force of revolutionists which tried to check their advance.

After the track had been cut behind it, means were found to take the presidential train further toward Vera Cruz, and on May 11 it reached San Marcos. Rinconnada was reached the next day, and there a battle was fought against troops commanded by Gen. Mireles, which were defeated by the heavier columns commanded by Carranza.

Soldiers Become Despondent.

Later, when the town of Algibes was reached, Carranza's men found the rails cut. No water could be secured at Algibes, and the morale of the soldiers seemed to break, large numbers deserting.

On the afternoon of May 13, General Sanchez made a violent assault on the Carranza army, but just at what seemed to be the moment of victory, its attack was repulsed by a counter thrust led by General Murguia.

The next day found tre Carranza men abandoning some of the ground they had held on the previous day, and General Sanchez launched a new attack, which smashed the Carranza line and routed a part of the government troops.

Prisoners Taken by Revolutionists

More than 3,500 prisoners were taken by the revolutionists, who also captured all of Carranza's artillery and machine guns. It was immediately after this reverse that Carranza

LABOR BODIES GET INTO FREE FIGHT

One Man Taken to Hospital and Several Injured at the New Jersey Convention

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Newark, N. J., May 17.—One man was taken to a hospital and several others were injured yesterday in a free-for-all fight during a special convention of various state labor bodies called here to discuss the attitude of the trade unionists of the state toward political candidates in the national election.

The convention adopted a resolution supporting the national non-partizan policy of the American Federation of Labor with the slogan, "reward your friends and defeat your enemies" in preference to that of the American labor party.

Scarcely had the resolution been passed when the opposing elements began throwing chairs at each other. About 100 men joined in the fight. The faces of many were cut and bruised.

SOME FIERCE FIGHTING ABOUT LONDONDERRY

Nationalist and Unionists Mobs Engage in a Street Battle Lasting for Days

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Cork, May 17—Two thousand troops from England were landed at Bantry on Saturday and immediately distributed throughout west Cork, where they will be stationed at points five miles apart. Troops to the number of 150 also arrived at Skibbereon. They commandeered several buildings there, including the Town Hall, which was made their headquarters.

Thomas Johnson, the acting Secretary of the Trades Congress, declared at a labor meeting in the City Hall here yesterday that the workers of Ireland had no intention of establishing such a republic as that in America, where the very idea of personal liberty was unknown, he said, and where men and women were sentenced to long terms of imprisonment for daring to say that America was not a land of freedom.

Fatal Rioting at Londonderry

Londonderry, Ireland, May 17—Rioting last night between nationalist and unionist mobs was even fiercer than Saturday's fighting. Bottles, bricks and pistols were again freely employed by the combatants and many shop windows were broken.

Groups of men and women in the Unionist quarter of Fountain street, and similar groups in the Sinn Fein quarter of Bridge Street followed an exchange of party cries, with stone and bottle throwing. In addition to the killing of a former soldier named Doherty, three others were wounded. When the hostilities broke out the police in the disturbed area were withdrawn and for a few hours mob law was supreme.

Doherty was passing along Orchard street with a friend when a shot rang out. He ran some distance and then fell and was carried into a nearby house by some girls. As the last rites of the church were administered the crowd outside knelt and repeated the prayers.

Armed and masked men who held Carlisle Bridge as a sort of "No Man's Land" Saturday night, took possession again Sunday night and there was indiscriminate revolver shooting. Nationalists, who previously had used the bridge to reach the waterside, were compelled to employ rowboats.

SWISS VOTE FOR LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The Popular Vote About Four to Three in Favor of Swiss Membership

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Berne, May 17.—Switzerland yesterday, in a referendum on the question of accepting or rejecting of membership in the League of Nations, voted in favor of the proposition. The vote was a narrow one, 11½ of the cantonal votes being in favor and 10½ against. The popular vote in favor of the League was approximately 400,000, and against it 300,000.

Southern Baptist Convention Lays the Blame on Moving Pictures, Lax Laws and Intemperance—Demands Uniform Code Marriage and Divorce Laws

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Washington, May 17—Moving pictures, lax laws and intemperance are blamed for the numerous divorces in the United States by the committee of temperance and social service in its report to the southern Baptist convention today. Enactment of a uniform code of marriage and of divorce laws was recommended as a remedy.

Quoting from government statistics the report declares there were 112,036 divorces in the United States in 1916, when the last figures were published.

Military With Machine Guns And the Police With Rifles Guard Streets Londonderry

Some Further Disturbances During the Day—Bullets Fired at Two Unionist ex-Soldiers Missed Their Mark—The Countess Markievicz Heard From

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Londonderry, May 17.—Londonderry after two nights of rioting was again the scene of riotous demonstrations today. The city was in a state of high tension, and hundreds of men remained away from their work, walking about the streets, where many individual encounters occurred between Sinn Feiners and Unionists. There was stone throwing by the crowds to some extent and at one point Sinn Feiners, the police reported, fired at two unionist ex-soldiers, but missed their mark. Hundreds of the military, with machine guns and police with rifles, were ordered to the usual danger point, between Bridge and Fountain streets.

Police Barracks Burned.

Dublin, May 17.—Countess Georgia Markievicz, Sinn Feiner member of parliament for the St. Patrick's division of Dublin, whose whereabouts has long been a mystery, made a theatrical reappearance, clad in a commandant's uniform, yesterday at an open air meeting in Croker Park in memory of the members of the Irish republican parliament who were executed after or killed during the rebellion of 1916. The Countess delivered an address in which she appealed for support for Irish industries.

It is recalled that the police on March 12 raided the residence of Mrs. Eamonn De Valera, wife of the Sinn Fein leader, in search of the Countess.

The police barracks in Gormanstown, a village of County Meath, near Balbriggan, was attacked and burned Sunday morning.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Edith G., daughter of Mrs. Clara Elliott, who departed this life May 17th, 1916.

Edith dear, when you are standing at the portal,
With your hand upon the oar,
Calmly waiting for your loved ones,
Who will strive to reach the shore.

Will you wait and call them to you,
When they cross the mystic tide,
Waiting, looking for you, Edith
When they reach the other side?

Will you know them, dearest Edith,
Know them surely, one by one?
Will you take them to you fondly,
Telling them the victory's won?

CONTROL AND SALE OF OLEOMARGARINE

The Federal Department of Agriculture Preparing New Regulations at Present

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Ottawa, May 17.—Further regulations designed to make the control of the sale of oleomargarine more effective than it has been in the past, and which will be required under the authority of the act, which is expected to pass through parliament at the present session, are being drawn up by the federal department of agriculture.

Some rather exaggerated statements have recently been made as to the proportion of oleomargarine which is sold fraudulently as butter. No exact figures are available, but the chief inspector of dairy products and his staff know the situation too well to admit that fraudulent sales are anything like as much as has been alleged.

The administration of the oleomargarine law and regulations committees are within the jurisdiction of Hon. Mr. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture, and he is determined to provide the necessary machinery to insure a strict observance of the law on the part of all those who deal in this article.

With the increased penalties and wider powers in the matter of seizure and confiscation of apparatus and material used, or intended to be used illegally in conection with the sale of oleomargarine, it is believed that the fraudulent sale of it will be kept within reasonable bounds.

BUDGET SPEECH EAGERLY AWAITED

No General Policy on Fiscal Matters Likely to be Discussed in Speech, However

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 17.—The budget speech tomorrow is expected to be confined to these subjects which normally come within the range of a budget rather than including, as has been surmised in some quarters, a declaration of general policy on fiscal matters. The latter will come when the party caucus dealing with the question shall have finally passed upon it, as was done tentatively some weeks ago.

The platform will not be extensive, so far as the number of planks is concerned, but will be comprehensive nevertheless, containing references to many questions of domestic policy with regard to fiscal questions. The basic principle of the tariff will be adhered to, though subject to variation from time to time. Possibly an independent tariff board to scientifically adjudicate upon tariff matters will be favored, though its function would necessarily be advisory, as the authority of Parliament cannot be set aside.

Respecting the railway question, the principle of public ownership of the lines now operated, and of the merchant marine in connection with them, will be affirmed. There will also be reference to a policy of selected immigration, to the constitutional status of Canada as established at the Peace Conference and by recent happenings, and generally to plan for development of national resources, including the surrender to the western provinces of their lands and minerals. Reference will be made moreover to the need of developing home industry and export trade, and plans to accomplish these purposes.

No election before the fall of 1922 enters into the calculation of the government. The party caucus will likely be summoned next week, though just possibly it may be at this end of the week.

WAASIS FARM HOUSE BURNED

in time to save the burning building, but, as will appear later, this was an accident.

The case is said to be the outcome of bad blood over negotiations for the purchase and sale of property under the Soldiers' Settlement Board, and the complainant is Private John Little, Jr., also a returned soldier, son of Sergt. Little, late bandmaster in this city, who is a nearby resident.

It seems that the first negotiations had been made by Private Little for the purchase of the Gilbert Howland farm, and these failing, he turned to the Austin property which he secured instead and he had his effects mostly removed to the building in question before the fire. Into this building it seems also was removed the furniture of a former housekeeper of the accused; and now that the case has got into court other circumstances are discussed in regard to the pros and cons of the charge against the accused. Magistrate De Mills after the prisoner was brought before him, fixed tomorrow, Tuesday, at 2 p. m., for the preliminary examination of Howland, who has retained Mr. P. J. Hughes to appear for him at the investigation.

The prisoner was released upon bail Saturday evening, his bondsmen being Duncan Grass and Horace Nason, residents of the parish.

There seems to be no question but that the premises were set on fire, the flames breaking out on the exterior and no fire being used in the main building. The returned men had gone up to Sergeant Little's house for a birthday celebration the same evening and were on the way back when they noticed the outbreak of the fire and hastened and arrived in time to arrest the progress of the flames.

It was rumored today that the matter of prosecuting the case is being furthered by the Soldiers' Settlement Board upon representations made by Privates Little and Austin.

The accused protests his innocence of the charge which comes as a surprise to his friends and naturally he comes in for much sympathy.

France to Harvest This Year 3,000,000 Bush of Cereals in Reclaimed Devastated Area

By the End of the Year It Is Expected that of the 400,000 Acres That Were Completely Useless, Only 70,000 Acres Will Be Unreclaimed—Towns Restored

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 17.—Great progress has been achieved by the inhabitants of the devastated regions of the Somme during the 18 months which have followed the armistice in restoring something like normal conditions.

Of 400,000 acres in a completly useless state, statistics show nearly half have been put in cultivation and this year's harvest will yield a cereal crop of more than 3,000,000 bushels. At the end of the year it is expected there will remain but 70,000 acres unreclaimed. Twenty-seven millions of sixty million square yards of trench and shell holes have been filled in, and eleven million square yards of barbed wire entanglements removed.

At the time of the armistice there wede 235 towns and villages more or less demolished, giving an area of 5,500,000 square yards of debris to be cleared.

About a quarter of this has been done. The towns of Amiens, Corbie, Ham, Hosle, Boves and Ailly-Sur-Noye and a number of neighboring villages have been almost entirely cleared, and more than eight thousand of the twenty thousand damaged houses repaired and made habitable.

Ten thousand huts have ben erected and of the 1,200 industrial plants more or less demolished 230 are in full and 406 in parital operation.

In addition, rivers and canals have ben repaired and are being used. Wells and pits, which were filled up with refuse, have been cleaned and railroads, both main lines and light, restored.

ST. JOHN AND THE BYE-ELECTION

The Provincial Government, in declining to fix the rate of stumpage on Crown Lands at the market value or a little less, has incurred a loss in revenue of at least a million dollars a year for the last three years. While stumpage on private and company lands was commanding nine dollars a thousand in some instances, ten in others and in some cases twelve, Crown stumpage was disposed of at two dollars and a half a thousand. Today, with private and company stumpage worth twelve dollars in some sections and fourteen in others, the Crown stumpage is permitted to pass to the lumbermen in great quantities at three dollars and a half; and this year the people's treasury will, by the process, suffer a loss of not less than $1,500,000. The Province is needing funds for the development of industry and agriculture. It is paying more than six per cent. interest on large sums borrowed for road work; it is to borrow millions more for highways at a rate of interest in excess of six per cent., and as the interest account already wholly absorbs, or nearly so, the total receipts from the principal source of revenue, the public services generally are suffering greatly, if not actually starving, for the want of reasonable assistance. The policy of the Opposition is to fix the stumpage rate on Crown Lands at seven dollars a thousand, and thereby make reasonable provision for the demands upon the treasury. Under this policy our interest account would be reduced; the necessity to borrow in large amounts while the rate of interest is very high would also be lessened; and reasonable provision would be made for the general services, which should obviously be well maintained in this era of national development.

The bye-election in St. John will determine whether the people and the political parties are interested. Party policy is involved, and he is an indifferent man who would say that the public interests are not seriously concerned. An election of the Government member by acclamation, or an election not seriously contested, would not only imply but would be an admission that the people of St. John are not interested in the Opposition policy, and the rank and file of the party are without confidence in the leaders. Inaction could not have any other meaning; for, undoubtedly, the principles at stake are principles of first importance. And surely it is not to be said of St. John, and of the Opposition party in St. John, that they are absolutely indifferent to the principles involved in public issues and care less for the service and policy of their leaders within the constituency and in the Legislature.

The Department of which Dr. Roberts is the head, and as such now asks for a salary as large as the salary of other cabinet ministers, handles annually not more than $35,000 of the Provincial moneys. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, of St. John, opposed the motion in the House to so fix this salary. For prudential and economic reasons, he strongly urged the amalgamation of this department with another. Other members of the Opposition were quite as emphatic as Dr. Baxter on this point; for the policy of the party had been unanimously agreed to. A principle of some importance is involved; and Dr. Roberts is a candidate in St. John at a bye-election because his party in the House carried its motion against the outspoken opposition of Dr. J. B. M. Baxter and other members of the Opposition. The position of the members for St. John who opposed the motion would be singularly suggestive if Dr. Roberts, as Minister of Public Health, were given his election by acclamation or if a serious contest, in which the issue could be freely discussed, were not undertaken. And there are other questions of policy which the people should determine.

The people of the province will await developments with considerable interest.

A WARNING TO WAGE EARNERS.

Sydney Post: "An understanding "having been reached between contractors and carpenters as to wages, "another strike menace has been cancelled. Hereafter the pay of carpenters will be seventy-five cents an "hour,—not too much for a skilled "and conscientious journeyman, but "far too much for the many who call "themselves carpenters. The weakness which has developed in trades "unionism,—and it is a weakness that "threatens to cramp its healthy "growth,—is the failure to establish "any serious test of the fitness of "members to do the work of the "trade they profess. As it is, trades "workers of all kinds,—good, bad and "execrable—are placed on an equal "footing with respect to wages. There "is no premium for conspicuous skill "or merit. There is no discount in "the pay of botch workmen. The consequence is that the money that "should be used to remunerate and "encourage skill goes largely into the "pockets of workers who are often "not worth much more than their "bite.

"The public too are suffering from "this absence of discrimination between efficient and botch workers, "for the logical tendency of such a "system is to lower the general "standards of efficiency."

PROVINCIAL DEPUTY PREMIER.

Premier Drury of Ontario has started an innovation by creating his private secretary a deputy minister whose specific title will be that of deputy to the Prime Minister. The Premier is, of course, fortunate in having for such a deputy Mr. Horace Wallis, remarks an exchange. The credit of having very ably and efficiently organized the office of the Premier of Ontario has been due solely to Mr. Wallis. He joined Sir James Whitney as private secretary when that prime minister first took office in Ontario. Mr. Wallis continued in the same close relationship with Sir William Hearst, and was retained by Mr. Drury. The continuance of his service was to be expected. For some years he was an editorial writer on the Mail and Empire, and as was to be expected, when he joined the government service under Premier Whitney, had an incisive knowledge of Ontario affairs. To it he has added much administrative experience and an intimate relationship with all the public men of his province. Mr. Wallis has poise, good judgment, and an excellent capacity for meeting men and women of all ranks of life. He has developed into that perfection sometimes attained in the civil servant which makes him as indispensable to a succeeding administration as he proved himself to the one which retires. Generally the part of the deputy ministers upon the change of administration is not easy. They may be, as frequently they are, capable and trustworthy public servants; but possibly the incoming ministers are untried and unversed in the affairs of government. Conflicts arise, and it is only by the greater knowledge and extreme tact displayed by the deputies that has saved a ministry which had no share in their appointments. As for the institution of a provincial vice-premier, it seems a very sensible and businesslike arrangement. He would not, of course, initiate any policy or anticipate any expression of the government, any more than would any other qualified and efficient deputy-minister; but he can relieve his chief from a tremendous burden of routine duties which can as well become law and be announced over the signature of a vice-premier as over that of the Prime Minister himself.

A SANE PROVINCE.

Montreal Gazette: "Sir Lomer "Gouin, at the public luncheon tendered him in London the other day, "made an eloquent plea for the larger "recognition of Quebec as a sane, "conservative, and valuable asset in "the Dominion Confederation.

"The Prime Minister of Quebec was "especially in earnest in respect of "the advances made in public education in the province. Here he was "on sure ground, for education, under "his encouragement, has become "vastly more efficient than it was "fifteen years ago. It is not perfect "yet by any means. The province "does not keep step in regard to compulsory education. The superior "education system, while admirable "in many regards, devotes, it has "been said, too much time to what "is called scholasticism, and which "is quite unrelated to modern life "with its urge and pressure. But "great and important forward steps "have been taken since the time Sir "Lomer said of his compatriots that "if they did not receive a better education they would be 'hewers of "wood and drawers of water' in their "own province. The Government of "Sir Lomer, under his inspiration, "has given large grants of money "for elementary education. It created "uniformity of text books; it made "possible the better treatment of the "new teachers, all of whom must now "be properly certificated, which was "not the case in the past, when hundreds of young girls were found to "be employed who had not proper "qualifications for the work they were "so poorly doing.

"Sir Lomer was on strong ground "here; but he was equally confident "in respect of his claims for Quebec "as being sane and conservative in "its attitude and outlook. That this "is the case is proved by the constant incoming of outside capital for "the exploitation of large and popular interests. On the part of the "great army of workers there is "steadiness and sanity. There is much "respect for lawful and reasonable "authority; there is every opportunity "for the unhindered development of "the great natural resources of the "province. Sir Lomer was modest in "respect of his own contribution to "the progress of Quebec; but he "could, without impropriety, have "claimed a share in the favorable "conditions which now obtain in the "province, and which, while hinting "the storied past, keep pace with "modern industrial and commercial "needs."

FRASER COMPANY BONDS PURCHASED

$450,000 Six Per Cent. First Mortgage Bonds Taken at Montreal—Their Purpose

Montreal, May 16.—The announcement was made on Saturday of the purchase and subsequent sale by the Royal Securities Corporation of an issue of $450,000 six per cent first mortgage bonds of Fraser Companies, Limited.

It is understood that the new financing was for the purpose of enabling the New Brunswick Lumber and Pulp and Paper Company to purchase the Dominion pulp and paper mills at Chatham, N. B., the acquisition of which will add 15,000 tons per annum of easy bleached sulphite pulp to the Fraser Companies' present 35,000 tons output.

It is said that the new addition to the Fraser Companies' plants is part of the extensive development programme indicated by the recent introduction to the New Brunswick legislature of a bill involving re-organization on a large scale of the Fraser Companies.

The present Fraser output is already extensive enough to place it well up in the list of large Canadian lumber and pulp and paper producers.

OUIMET TO MEET BRITISH CHAMPION

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Boston, May 17.—Francois Ouimet, former National open and amateur golf champion, will meet Harry Vardon, British open champion, and Edward Ray, former British open champion in match play with a partner to be selected by Ouimet, on Saturday, July 31, at the Brookline Country Club.

Ouimet won the United States open championship when he defeated Vardon and Ray after a triple tie in the final round at Brookline in 1913.

BLISTER RUST DISEASE

New Brunswick Lumbermen Much Interested in Fight in State of Maine

New Brunswick lumbermen are much interested in the fight the State of Maine is waging against the spread of the blister rust disease, which is ravaging many stands of white pine in the State and has made its appearance on the border. The disease is spread by wild gooseberry and currant bushes, and the Maine Forestry Commissioner has organized a force of men to assist lumbermen to destroy currant and gooseberry bushes within 200 yards of a stand of pine. The importance of protecting white pine from this disease is indicated by the fact that the Washington Government has undertaken to pay half the cost of destroying the wild currant and gooseberry, while the State of Maine bears a quarter of the cost, leaving it to the owner of timber limits to pay the other quarter.

The Stock Market

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York (Wall Street), May 17.—Prices showed little change at the quiet opening of today's stock market. Developments over the week-end and the probability of several important decisions by the United States supreme court in the course of the day promoted further caution in trading circles. The usual leaders moved within a narrow area, petroleum and food shares being the only issues to vary more than fractionally. Mexican oils were firm on latest news from that country, but an active selling movement ensued within the first half hour, cancelling all gains.

Montreal Market.

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Montreal, May 17.—Brompton was the outstanding feature of the early trading on the local exchange this morning. This issue, which it has been repeatedly stated would be on a ten per cent. basis, established a new high with its opening figure of 104. After sagging a quarter, it stiffened to 104¼ and finally became steady at 104 at the close of the first hour. Atlantic Sugar opened strong at 94, which represented an eight point gain over Saturday's close.

GREAT EXPANSION IN ARGENTINA TRADE

Buenos Aires, May 15.—Argentina is enjoying great prosperity and experiencing "a veritable rebirth," said President Irigoyen in his message to congress, read at the opening session today.

He declared there was promise that the country's future would reach "enormous and powerful proportions." He said the value of the nation's foreign commerce in the first nine months of 1919 reached 1,183,000,000 pesos, gold, which is 270,000,000 more than in the same period during the previous year.

Fern Hal, 2.06¼, Jennie Penn, 2.14¼, and Victoria, 2.15¼, are among the horses. Under the new time allowance rules this is expected to be a very formidable stable, as Fern Hal is eligible to the 2.15 class on half mile tracks and Victoria can start in the 2.20 trots.

THE MINISTERIAL CRISIS IN ITALY

London, May 15—Suggestion that Signor Bonomi, Minister of War in the retiring Italian government, be asked to form a new cabinet was made by Premier Nitti in an interview with King Victor Emmanuel at six o'clock last night, according to a Reuter's despatch from Rome. Signor Nitti again refused to undertake the task of forming a Ministry, it is said.

FROM THE PEOPLE

TEMPERANCE EXEC. REPORT

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Dear Sir,—I see that the Rev. Thomas Marshall has pronounced before his little diminishing band of apostles who operate with him under the name of the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance his decree of condemnation upon the majority of the members of the Provincial Legislature for their refusal to recognize him and his fanatical associates as their masters in the performance of their legislative duties.

The names of the offending legislators have been carefully recorded in the Alliance's Doomsday Book. They are adjudged guilty, not only of the high crime of disobedience of its supreme authority, but of bringing upon the province "the unenviable reputation of being the only one in the Dominion whose Legislature has refused to the people the opportunity to vote upon the question of real prohibition for rich and poor alike."

The subject people are gravely informed that "the responsibility for its failure (the Dominion referendum resolution), does not rest upon the Alliance." "The responsibility," so runs the decree, FOR ALL THE ILLS ARISING FROM THE PRESENT CONDITION OF THINGS will rest, and not very lightly, upon the shoulders and consciences of the men who refused to the people the right to decide themselves what they wish."

Article No. 11 of the Condemnation declares: "Even the blindest and most obstinate opponent of prohibition knows what the end will be, and that it is only a temporary advantage the liquor traffickers have gained. SOONER OR LATER ALL WE ARE ASKING FOR WILL BE OBTAINED."

There is another illuminating deliverance directed against the disobedience of legislators. This is appropriately numbered 13 and is as follows: "One lesson we have to learn very thoroughly, and that is if WE want temperance legislation WE must see to it, irrespective of our political shibboleths, that WE send temperance legislators TO DO OUR LEGISLATING."

Could anything, I ask, better exemplify prohibition artifice, hardihood and impudent effrontery than this latest production of the "Executive" of the so-called N. B. Temperance Alliance? Unrestrained by any regard either for truth or authority, or the intelligence of thinking men or women, the thing is on its very face an appeal to prejudice and ignorant bigotry.

Your correspondent, Truth, the other day exposed the falsehood as to New Brunswick being the only province in the Dominion which has refused a referendum under the Dominion Act on the importation question. He showed up also the barefaced and withal foolhardy attempt to blame the majority of the members of the Legislature who voted against the Alliance's referendum resolution for the fact that the present Provincial Prohibition Act is one which operates only against the poor and does not affect the rich.

Truth's letter, however, does not deal with the other passages which I have quoted from this extraordinary "Executive Report," and my purpose now is to direct the public's attention particularly to the pregnant statement, adopted as the statement of the New Brunswick Temperance Alliance at its celebrated Y.M.C.A. closed parlor door meeting, that the responsibility "FOR ALL THE ILLS ARISING FROM THE PRESENT CONDITION OF THINGS," will rest, not upon the Alliance, but upon the errant majority of the present Legislature.

What, I ask, are "all the ills" to which the reverend propagandist refers, and what is "the present condition of things, from which "all the ills" have arisen? Can they refer to anything else than the ills and the condition of things which have arisen under prohibition as it exists in this province today? Is the prohibition which we have in New Brunswick not provided entirely by the New Brunswick Prohibition Act, of which the Rev. Mr. Marshall and his associates in his Temperance Alliance were the fathers and the framers?

Yet in the bitterness of his disappointment and resentment at the fact that he found twenty-two members of the present Legislature with sufficient courage and manhood to decline the honor of playing the part of puppets upon his legislative string, he has the hardihood and effrontery to repudiate, in the name of his Alliance, all responsibility for "all the ills" and "the present condition of things which have arisen under his Alliance's own Prohibition Act, and to declare that that responsibility "will rest, and not very lightly, upon the shoulders and consciences of the men who refused to the people the right to decide for themselves what they wish."

The Reverend Captain of the N. B. Prohibition Brigade must surely have had an advance line on President Wilson's instructions to the American Navy. In launching his Provincial Prohibition Act offensive he has been bold and audacious to a degree, and has thrown all prudence, reason and discretion to the winds.

In making this perfectly senseless and futile attack upon the present Legislature he has surrendered the only ground upon which he can hope to stand in the campaign for the retention of the New Brunswick Prohibition Act. In order to gratify his bitterness and resentment and to condemn the New Brunswick Legislature he has condemned the Prohibition Act, which was of his own making, as an abortive Act directed only against the poor and as producing "all the ills" and "the present condition of things" which he so deplores. And yet his Alliance has sent his friends, the Rev. Chief Inspector and Mr. Willard Smith, to his Fairville congregation to pray that they may release him from his less important calling of preaching the gospel of Christ to the more important work of leading his Alliance's campaign to get a majority of the electors of the province to say by their votes that the abortive New Brunswick Prohibition Act, which he has thus condemned as productive of "all these ills" and "the present condition of things" has proved so efficient and successful that it must be retained upon its own merits as the permanent law of this province, no matter what else may happen, and the reverend gentleman has already started in to engineer this extraordinary undertaking. It is surely up to the reverend captain to explain.

As to his condemnation of the Legislature which 'refused to give to the people the right to decide for themselves what they want," is not this refreshing in the extreme from this reverend agitator? For myself I may tell this Fairville pastor, who apparently seriously assumes that his individual tastes and ideas should be made the law for all mankind, that so far as I, one of the people, are concerned, I protest against him or any number of men of his kind impudently undertaking to decide for me what I want and what I and my family shall eat or what we shall drink at my own family table in our own home. I think I have the same right to decide this for myself as he has to decide the same question for himself. The Rev. Thomas would not, I am sure, be willing that I should decide the matter for him, and I am not willing that he or any number of individuals like him or like anybody else should decide it for me.

It is precisely with reference to the right of the people, each for himself and herself to decide such personal domestic matters for themselves, that I for one see in the reverend agitator's campaign a menace which in time will surely bring about a much more serious situation than "the present condition of things" from which "all the ills" of which he speaks has already resulted.

As for the threat of himself and his little band of apostles to constitute a legislature TO DO THEIR OWN LEGISLATING I shall at present leave your readers to ponder upon its import. The only wonder is that he, through his Alliance, did not at once presume to exercise the sovereign power which he apparently already imagines he possesses and dissolve the Legislature.

Yours,

WATCH'EM.

RESTRAINT OF LABOR

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Sir,—Combinations in restraint of trade are illegal—why not combinations in restraint of labor? Both these devices have for their purpose the artificial manipulation of supply and when successful the public pays the bill.

The public expects to pay, but not to be robbed; to be squeezed but not ground to pieces; and while it expects to be cuffed, it objects to being hit below the belt.

The constitutional protection of individuals in the pursuit of happiness does not extend to conspiracies formed by them for the purpose of extracting money from the public to which, by the laws of supply and demand, they are not entitled. For such persons do not merely refuse to work, they threaten the lives of any member of the public who is willing to replace them. The mother of such an association is improvidence, and its nurse is Bolshevism. Its weapons are force and threats and its shield is irresponsibility. Its members "have nothing to lose but their chains!" Bah! In a land where hundreds of millions of acres of fertile land are lying idle!

If these people want action let them operate constitutionally and politically. If what they want is reasonable and constitutional they will get it; if not they don't deserve it.

The public is weary of beggars and highwaymen.

Yours

A LOYAL MAN

PRACTICE PATIENCE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I have taken unusual interest in the question of Just a Woman in a recent issue of The Gleaner, particularly as she makes mention of her prospective husband, which very much reminds me of myself.

My advice would be that Just a Woman should practice patience. Her prospective husband certainly shows a manly spirit and she may be proud of being engaged to a gentleman who has self-respect. My psychology of his refusal to accept her aid is that he would lower his self-respect and feel under obligations. She should inform him to the contrary.

In such case he would probably accept.

Yours, J. S.

HALIFAX HORSES TO TRAIN AT MONCTON

Frank Boutilier Taking Three Horses There This Week—McAllister String Here

Frank Boutilier, the well known Halifax trainer, will take his racing stable early this week to Moncton to prepare for the season's racing. So far as can be learned the Boutilier string that will be raced this year will consist of only three horses, a number of Halifax patrons of the sport having decided to wait over another season before getting back in the racing game. It is expected that next year Halifax will be back on the racing map with the old track in operation again.

The racing string of Dr. D. H. McAllister, ex-M. P., have arrived here and are now quartered at the Fredericton Trotting Park in charge of Fred Cameron, the veteran trainer, who campaigned them with great success last season. Fern Hal, 2.06¼, Jennie Penn, 2.14¼, and Victoria, 2.15¼, are among the horses. Under the new time allowance rules this is expected to be a very formidable stable, as Fern Hal is eligible to the 2.15 class on half mile tracks and Victoria can start in the 2.20 trots.

Philadelphia Broke Its Losing Streak and Took a Game From Champions

In the American League Mays was driven from the New York box in the first inning when Cleveland scored five runs by clean hitting.

Philadelphia broke its streak of nine losing games when it won from the champions in the fifteenth inning. Ring and Rixey both pitched fine ball. The teams were tied in the fifth.

BASEBALL REVIEW FOR THE PAST WEEK

Cincinnati and Cleveland Recover Their Stride and Lead Respective Leagues

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 17.—The Cincinnati world's champions and the Cleveland Americans recovered their stride this week and again led their respective leagues. The Chicago Nationals jumped leo third place yesterday by winning their seventh straight victory. The New York Americans won all four games last week but lost yesterday.

In the National League, Cincinnati batted hard and fielded well except in the game dropped to New York, when the Reds were unable to score on Benton. Reuther, of Cincinnati, allowed St. Louis two hits and no runs last Sunday. The champions split even with the Giants and took two from Philadelphia. The Quakers ended their losing streak yesterday after nine straight defeats by downing the Reds in a 15 inning battle.

Brooklyn engaged in two more extra inning contests and won both. The Superbas lost to Chicago but won twice with St. Louis.

Boston's winning streak ended in the west. The Braves, after six consecutive victories, including a close game with St. Louis, fell before Haines of the Cardinals and lost three to Chicago.

Alexander, of the Cubs, won his seventh straight game yesterday. Pittsburg and New York made no progress. St. Louis gave its pitchers poor support.

In the American League, Cleveland scored over Chicago, St. Louis and Boston, but was halted by Quinn of New York, who checked Coveleskie's winning streak at seven straight by hitting a home run that decided their pitchers' battle. The Yankees pounded the White Sox pitchers hard, but could do little yesterday with Bagby of Cleveland. Ruth, New York's premier long distance slugger, brought his season total of home runs up to five, hitting two Tuesday and one Wednesday.

Boston and Chicago had a losing week. Williams, of the White Sox, had a record of six consecutive victories until defeated by New York. Washington and Detroit were unable to continue their winning play of the previous week. St. Louis pitchers were ineffective. Philadelphia fought hard to get an even break in four games.

In the intersectional games, the western teams of the National League have won 10 out of 16, while the eastern clubs of the American have taken 7 out of 13.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

"Scevola," demanded Maurice, "do you know where this letter came from?"

"No, citizen."

"Who brought it to you?"

"The concierge."

"And who brought it to him?"

"Go down, and request the concierge to walk up."

The concierge complied, because it was Maurice who made the request, and he was much beloved by all the officials with whom he was concerned in any way; but at the same time the concierge declared, that had it been any other tenant, he should have asked him to walk down.

The concierge was called Aristide.

Maurice interrogated him. It was a stranger who had brought the letter, about eight in the morning. The young man multiplied his questions, and varied them in every possible shape, but could elicit nothing further. Maurice requested his acceptance of six francs, also desiring, if this stranger again presented himself, that he would follow him, without appearing to do so, and inform him where he returned to.

We hasten to say, that, much to the satisfaction of Aristide, who felt himself rather insulted by this proposition, the man returned no more.

Maurice remained alone, crushing the letter with vexation; he drew the ring from his finger, and placed it with the crumpled letter upon the 'table de nuit," then turned towards the wall with the foolish idea of sleeping afresh; but at the end of an hour Maurice returned to this fanfaronade, kissed the ring and re-read the letter. The ring was a splendid sapphire, the letter, as we have said, was a charming little billet, displaying its aristocracy in every line.

As Maurice re-read and examined it, the door opened. Maurice hastily replaced the ring on his finger, and concealed the note under his pillow. Was this the modesty of newly-awakened love? or was it the shame of a patriot, who would not wish it to be known that one in relation with the people was impudent enough to write a billet, of which the perfume alone was sufficient to compromise both the hands that pened it and the hand that received it.

He who entered was a young man attired as a patriot, but a patriot of surpassing elegance. His blouse was composed of fine cloth, his breeches of cashmere, and his stockings of fine striped silk. As to his bonnet, it might have shamed, from the elegance of its form and splendid purple color, even those of Paris itself. Added to all this, he carried in his belt a pair of pistols of the royal manufacture of Versailles, and a short sabre, equal to those of the pupils of Champ de-Mars.

"Ah! thou sleepest, Brutus," said the new comer, "and the country is in danger. Fi, done!'

'No, Louis" said Maurice, laughing, 'I do sot sleep, I dream."

"Yes. I understand."

"Well, as for me, I cannot understand."

'Bah!' '

"Of whom do you speak? Who is this Eucharis?"

'Why, the woman."

"What woman?"

"The woman of La Rue Saint Honore—the woman of the patrol—the Unknown—the woman for whom you and I risked our heads last night.

"Oh! yes," said Maurice, who knew perfectly well, what his friend would say, and only feigned ignorance, "the Unknown."

"Well; who was she?"

"I know nothing."

"Was she pretty?"

"Pshaw!" said Maurice, pouting his lips disdainfully.

'Yes; sweet creatures that we are,
'Tis love that ever tortures man."

"Is this possible?" said Maurice, to whom such an idea was at this moment peculiarly pugnant, and who would have much preferred finding the Unknown to be even a conspirator rather than a light woman. "And where does she live?"

"I know nothing concerning her."

"Come, now; you know nothing, that's impossible."

'Why so?"

'You escorted her back."

'She escaped from me at the Bridge Marie."

'Escaped from you!" said Louis, with a roar of laughter; "a woman escape from you!

"Say, can the trembling dove elude
The vulture tyrant of the air,—
The fawn, on whom the tiger rude
Springs from his solitary lair."

"Louis," said Maurice, 'I wish you would accustom yourself to speak like other people. You annoy me horribly with your atrocious poetry."

"To speak like other people, indeed! Now, it appears to me I speak better than most people. I speak as the Citizen Demonstur, both in prose and poetry. As for my poetry, mon cher, I know a certain Emilie who does not consider it so bad. But to return to yours."

"My poetry!"

'No; your Emilie."

'Have I an Emilie?"

"Ah, ah! your gazelle may turn tigress, and show her teeth in a manner that may not please you, although in love."

"I in love," said Maurice shaking his head.

"Yes, you in love."

"Louis," said Maurice, arming himself with a pipe-key which lay upon the table; "I swear that if you will spout verses I will whistle.'

"Then let us talk politics; besides, that brought me here. Have you heard the news?"

'I know that Capet's wife wished to escape."

"Oh! that is nothing."

"What more is there, then?'

"The famous Chevalier de Maison Rouge is in Paris!"

"Is it true?" said Maurice, raising himself to a sitting posture. "When did he come?"

"Yesterday evening."

"But how?"

"Disguised as a chasseur of the National Guard. A woman who is thought to be an aristocrat, disguised as a woman of the people, took him these clothes to the barrier gate; an instant afterwards they are gone out arm-in-arm. It was not till after they had passed the sentinel suspicion was excited. He had seen the woman pass with a bundle and repass accompanied by a soldier, when it suddenly struck him something was wrong and he ran after them. They had disappeared in an hotel of La Rue Saint Honore, where the door was opened as if by magic. The hotel had a second point of egress, leading on to the Champs Elysees, Bon soir to the Chevalier de Maison Rouge and his companion; they had both vanished. They will demolish the hotel and guillotine the proprietor, but that will not deter the chevalier from renewing the attempt which has just failed; it is four months since the preceding one, and yesterday was the second."

"Is he not arrested?" demanded Maurice.

"Ah! well. Yes, mon cher, as well attempt to stop Proteus, arrest Proteus; you know the trouble Aristides had to accomplish it—

'Pastor Aristaeus, fugiena Peneia Tempe.' "

"Take care," said Maurice, carrying the key to his mouth.

"Take care of yourself, for this time you will not whistle at me, but at Virgil.'

"That is very true, and as long as you do not translate it I have nothing to say. Now to return to Maison Rouge."

"We agree that he is a brave man.'

To All Who Own a Home

IS your home ageing? Is its surface protective coating wearing away and giving rot and rust a chance to get in their destructive work?

When you think that a painted or varnished surface will successfully stand exposure to rain, hail, snow, sun, and the wear of contact, surely the absolute necessity for keeping your surfaces protected is apparent.

Every property owner knows what his property costs him---he knows it stands for money just the same as the figures in his bank book. Would he stand for false figures that cut his balance in the bank? Should he stand for false figuring on the upkeep of his property which saves a few paint dollars and loses many dollars in repairs or replacement?

If you spent a day watching the surfaces in your home and counting the times some of them come in contact with wear---the continuous contact of others with weather---you would write a more convincing message perhaps than we can write to you. Saving the surface of your property is the most common-sense idea in the world. Save the surface and you save all.

THIS ANNOUNCEMENT is issued by the Canadian Save the Surface Campaign Committee for the purpose of educating the Public in the Preservative and protective value of Paint, Varnish and Allied Products for the Conservation of Property, and has received the approval of the Canadian Trade Commission in the following words:

"The realization of the above objects will lead to employment during the Reconstruction Period and bears our entire approval."

Eldon Chapman Fell Off Wagon Which Passed Over the Little Body

LIVED FEW MOMENTS AFTER BEING PICKED UP

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Chapman, Who Are Grief Stricken

A most distressing accident occurred at Kingsclear on Saturday afternoon when Eldon Chapman, the four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Chapman, was almost instantly killed when he fell off a wagon driven by his father.

Early in the afternoon Mr. Chapman had occasion to go up the Kingsclear road and he took his farm wagon drawn by two horses. Little Eldon was playing in the yard at the time and asked permission to go with his father, which was readily granted. They had only proceeded a short distance when the wagon gave a jolt and the boy was thrown out, falling in front of the wagon, which passed over the little body. The horses were at once stopped and the father was horrified to find that life had been almost crushed out by the heavy weight of the wagon. He was tenderly picked up but only lived for a few moments.

The grief-stricken parents, three sisters and one brother survive.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon and was very largely attended, service being conducted by Rev. Mr. Bell.

BUDGET SPEECH DELIVERED TODAY

The Minister of Finance Presents His First Budget To House This Afternoon

Sir Henry Drayton Reviews Financial and Economic Position of Canada---With Huge War Expenditures, Country Faces a Pyramid of Debt Which Will Require United Effort to Overcome---Revenue Must Be Sufficient to Carry Current Expenditure and Gradually Reduce the Debt.

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 18—Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, presented his first budget to the House today. Prior to stating his taxation proposals, Sir Henry gave an extensive review of the financial and economic position of the Dominion.

Conditions obtaining not only in Canada, but all over the world, he said, were very different from the conditions which prevailed while the war was in progress. Then, the compelling necessity of the moment required the raising of large sums of money. It was absolutely imperative that there should be no check on production, no hindering to the war effort.

Today conditions were changed. The war was won. Expenses were great, Canada, with other countries which participated in the titanic struggle, was faced with a pyramid of debt.

National Duty Today Is To Not Only Not Add to National Debt, But Reduce Nation's Indebtedness

"The duty today," Sir Henry declared, "is not only to carry on the government of the country without any additions to the debt, but on the other hand to promote measures which will reduce the nation's indebtedness."

The task, while heavy, was not so severe as the obstacles which Canada had overcome in the five years of war and stress.

"Indeed," Sir Henry proceeded, "were it possible for the country again to become as united and earnest as it was during the war period, if it were possible for each and all of us to sink all differences, class and sectional interests and jealousies into an effort towards re-establishing a Canada as united and co-ordinated as that which won the war, the task would indeed be easy and simple."

Progress of Canadian Trade.

Sir Henry sketched the progress of Canadian trade, showing how an excess of imports over exports had within the last few years changed to an excess of exports over imports. He gave further series of tables showing steady growth in the production of wheat, of farm produce generally, of growth in the product of mine and forest, in fisheries and in manufactures, in bank deposits, in fire and life insurance policies.

"If," Sir Henry said, "the progress of the past be but a fair indication, the problems of today and tomorrow may be faced without doubt of a successful issue."

The National Debt.

Sir Henry turned to the national debt, making an analysis of the assets to show how far they should be deducted from the gross debt for calculation of the net debt.

At the end of the financial year, the national debt, according to the ledgers of the Finance Department, stood:

Gross debt—$3,014,483,774.12.
Less investments—$1,078,537,461.27.
Net debt—$1,935,946,312.85.

Beyond all question, Sir Henry went on, it was a matter of importance that the exact position of the country's debt should be cleared. While the books were correctly kept and the entries properly made, some of the investments could not be characterized as active investments.

The result of providing for contra account and of treating the inactive items as items that ought to go in suspense on capital account is to reduce the investments included in calculating the net debt by $337,309,124.07, and to increase the net debt as shown from $1,933,946,312.85 to $2,273,305,436.92.

General Inflation Everywhere.

Sir Henry said that in Canada, as everywhere, there had been inflation in the price of commodities, inflation in currency and inflation in credits.

For purposes of comparison, Sir Henry tabulated the combined note circulation of the Dominion and of the banks as on March 31, 1914, and as on March 31, 1920, giving the gold held in each case.

The circulation increase in combined circulation was 108 per cent. In Great Britain between 1914 and the end of 1919, note circulation had increased 207 per cent.

The circulation of the United States showed an increase of 70 per cent. from June 30, 1914, to June 30 1919. The circulation of other countries, taking a prominent part in the war, had increased to far greater percentages.

Canada's Currency Remarkably Good.

Under all the circumstances, bearing in mind that Canada before the war had to borrow abroad to finance her own requirements, bearing in mind that during the war and since the armistice she had not only financed herself but had also extended credits to other nations, "the situation of the country's currency is very remarkably good." The percentage of the gold reserves to the Dominion and bank note circulation was 43 per cent. The percentage of gold to the total circulation of Great Britain, based on 1919 figures, was 26 per cent. and of the United States, approximately 55 per cent.

Large as it was, the circulation was all required. Increased prices of commodities meant that much more money must be kept in the tens of thousands of shop tills all over the country.

High Prices the World Over.

High prices in Canada were not made by Canadian action alone. They were the result of the general trend in the prices of commodities the world over. Today, were it possible suddenly to deflate Canadian credits and circulation, with the general demand for commodities that today existed, the influence on the situation would be negligible.

Prices would continue high and the only result to the Canadian public consequent on the withdrawal of purchasing power would be stagnation of business, unemployment and loss of production.

Inflation of credit more affected the cost of commodities than circulation. Every loan for an unproductive purpose that the government made, no matter how successful it might be to some extent at any rate increased the credit inflation of the country.

"Inflation," said Sir Henry, "can only safely be cured in this as in other countries, by the government and provincial government stopping

THE RECUPERATIVE ENERGY OF FRANCE

Large Increases in Revenue From Indirect Taxation is Shown for Month of April

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Paris, May 18.—Increases in the French revenue from indirect taxation and state monopolies are again shown for the month of April in a statement issued by the department of finance. The total amount received from these sources during the month was 1,057,130,00 francs, or 59 per cent. in excess of the corresponding figure for April, 1914. If this rate is maintained, the year's increase in revenue will be 6,870,000 francs, as compared with prewar figures, says the statement.

The finance department predicts that the permanent budget charges will be fully covered as soon as the new taxes voted by the chamber of 8,500,000 francs are put into effect. The department of finance says the recuperative energy of France is thoroughly demonstrated by the figures quoted, as these taxes constitute one of the best barometers of the economic situation.

MANY PASSENGERS LAND AT HALIFAX

The Steamer Haverford Brings Over Party of Repatriated Imperial Officers

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Halifax, N. S., May 18.—The steamer Heverford, of the American line, Captain Jones, arrived in port at four o'clock this morning from Liverpool, completing a ten days' passage across the Atlantic. The steamer had forty cabin and 699 third class passengers to land here, and will sail this afternoon for Philadelphia, for which port she has forty cabin and 392 third class passengers. The Haverford also brouught 650 packages of letter mail and 190 of parcel post.

Among the passengers were a party of twelve repatriated imperial officers, the majority of whom are returning to Canada after serving in India. One of them, Captain W. G. Bentham, of Ontario, was two and a half years in the veterinary serivce in India, and spent three months in Tibet, where he was purchasing mules from the Chinese for the British Government.

A passenger, Miss Nora Joyce, aged 18, died during the voyage. Miss Joyce was bound for Boston.

SEVERAL ARRESTS OF FRENCH STRIKERS

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 18.—Etienne Leveque, who with M. Monmousson, radical leader of the French railroad workers union, and Leon Midol, Secretary of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Union, is accused of precipating the geneart strike in France, was arrested today, charged with a conspiracy against the safety of the state.

He had been hiding in the home of a friend.

The Gas Workers' Federation has authorized provincial strikers to return to work tomorrow, and Paris gas plants workers are debating whether they, also, will return to their posts.

A number of minor arrests were made here today.

HIGH PRICES HAS REACHED CREST IN U. S.

Reports From Principal Industrial Centres in America Carry Bright Prospects

NO INDICATION THAT PRICES WILL ADVANCE

People Doing Without Non-Essentials and Are Purchasing Cheaper Articles Today

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 18.—Telegraphic reports to the Evening Sun from the leading industrial centres where the necessaries of life are produced are to the effect that the crest of the high prices has been reached in the United States, and in many instances passed. Nowhere is there found an indication that prices will be higher next fall and winter than they are now, and in most places it is indicated that a reduction is certain to come.

The main reason for the prediction is that people have finished their era of extravagance and are not buying with regard to price as in the past They are doing without non-essentials to a larger extent and are buying cheaper articles than the best and highest priced.

Daily Train Service For Valley Railway

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Toronto, May 18.—C. A. Mayes, of the Canadian National Railways, authorized the announcement here this morning that a daily passenger train service will be inaugurated on St. John Valley Railway from Centreville to St. John, when the summer schedule goes into effect on June 27th. The trains will run on the same schedule as the tri-weekly trains now in use and the new six-days-a-week service has been definitely and finally approved by C. N. R. headquarters here.

It is hoped that the traffic with the six-days-a-week service this summer will prove such as to justify it continuance permanently," declared Mr. Mayes to a staff correspondent of The Gleaner, to whom he made the announcement at the King Edward Hotel today.

VERMONT PRIMARIES BEING HELD TODAY

Little Interest Manifested in the Result of Either Republican or Democratic Vote

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Montpelier, Vt., May 18.—Vermont's presidential preference primary was held today, with little display of interest manifested in the result.

No petitions were filed for a place on the Democratic ticket. On the Republican ballot there appeared only the names of William Grant Webster, of New York, and Major Gen. Wood as candidates for the presidential nomination. Voters, however, had the privilege of writing on the ballot the name of any other candidates preferred.

State conventions to select delegates to the party national conventions will be held soon. The eight delegates, including four at large, to each convention, will not be bound by the result of today's balloting, under the law.

Russia and Letvia is Involved Over Boundary

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

MOSCOW, May 18—Peace negotiations between the Russian Soviet Government and Letvia have become involved over boundary questions. Letvian delegates were willing to concede that plebiscites be held in some sections, but maintained the occupation of the Prissen district was necessary to preserve the neutrality of their country, particularly in view of the Polish situation. The Soviet Government has been unwilling to concede this point.

Bolshevik Recognize Siberia As Republic and Will Enter Into Diplomatic Relations

Seventy Five Delegates to Zionist Congress at Moscow Arrested by Soviet—Claim That Zionists Have Given Aid and Support to Britain and Allied Countries

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Moscow, May 18—Recognition of the Far Eastern democratic republic of Siberia has been decided upon by the Russian Soviet government, notwithstanding some opposition on the part of members of the Ministry. A note to this effect will be sent M. Krasnosholkoff, Minister of Foreign Affairs of the new republic, tomorrow. Diplomatic relations between the soviet government and the Far Eastern republic will be opened immediately.

Negotiations between the Far Eastern republic and Japan will continue, but as many questions at issue also concern soviet Russia, it is probable the negotiations will take the form of a triple conference, in which the Moscow government will participate.

M. Krasnosholkoff is regarded as the strongest man in the Far Eastern republic, and was formerly a lawyer of Chicago. He was identified with the American labor movement for several years, and recently has been the president of the executive committee at Khabarovsk. He was the first to advocate a coalition of parties and the establishment of a Zemstvo Democratic government in Siberia as being best suited to the country's needs and the international situation.

It is expected that negotiations with Japan will hinge around the status of the East Manchurian Railway. The Russian soviet government will probably insist that it retain an interest in this road, which was formerly held by the Russo-Asiatic Bank, which was not a government institution.

It is indicated that the rights of foreign shareholders will be fully protected, as the Far Eastern republic recognizes private ownership. It is assumed the soviet government will take the stand it assumed in negotiations with the Chinese government in 1917 prior to the breaking off of relations and reaffirmed in a note sent to Pekin, July 25, 1919.

Moscow Zionists Arrested.

Moscow, May 18.—Seventy-five delegates and alternates to the All-Russian Zionist Congress, which met here late in April, have been arrested, according to a statement issued by the extraordinary commission. It is asserted the extraordinary secrecy observed regarding the meeting of the congress and the fact a large proportion of those present were not connected with the Zionist movement led to the arrests.

Investigation, it is alleged, has resulted in the discovery of compromising documents, many of foreign origin, revealing close contact with Entente countries. The existence of a courier service between Russia and London has also been shown, it is asserted.

Charges are made that bombs have been found in the office of the Central Zionist committee.

It is claimed 80,000 Jewish legionaries in Palestine have pledged support to the Entente armies through an agreement with England, and that Henry Morgenthau, former American Ambassador to Turkey, visited Poland last fall as a representative of the Zionists. It is said that on that occasion he urged the Jewish population to submit to the Polish imperialists. American Zionists, it is charged, furnished financial support to Admiral Kolchak, while Jewish troops, it is alleged, were used by England against the Egyptian nationalists, and on the Archangel and Odessa fronts in Russia.

Reports of pogroms in soviet Russia by the Zionists are cited as part of their propaganda. It is declared the soviet government is not opposed to legitimate Zionist activities, but the abuse of privileges by that party has forced the government to take drastic action.

CARDINAL BEGIN RECEIVED BY POPE

Was at St. Peter's When the Pope Met the French Pilgrims—Vast Crowd There

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Rome, May 18.—Cardinal Begin, of Quebec, was among the high dignitaries of the Roman Catholic church in attendance yesterday when French pilgrims who came to Rome for the canonization of Joan or Arc were received by Pope Benedict in St. Peter's. It had been planned to hold the reception in the Vatican, but no hall in that edifice was large enough to accommodate the throng, which numbered approximately twenty thousand.

Among the other Cardinals who attended the ceremony were Amette, of Paris; Lucon, of Rheims; Dubois, of Rouen; Andrea, of Bordeaux, and Naurais, of Lyons. There wer, in addition, French archbishops, bishops, senators and deputies, all of whom were greeted with especial deference by the Pontiff, who singled out General Castlenau for particular notice.

Monsignor Touchet, Bishop of Orleans, thanked the Pope for the canonization in the name of the entire French nation, the Pontiff answering this address:

"Pope Pius X.," he said, "decreed the beatification of Joan of Arc. I am glad the Almighty allowed me to sanctify her, but I regret this honor was not reserved to Pope Pius X.

Cardinal Andrein presented General Castlenau to the Pope, who warmly congratulated him and spoke flattering words of the French army.

Yesterday afternoon the Pope received in the Vatican Museum six hundred French priests, headed by Monsignor Touchet. This occassion was a new manifestation of rejoicing for the canonization.

OCCUPATION OF THRACE MAY BE TROUBLESOME

Forty Thousand Turks and Bulgarians Said to be Prepared to Resist Greeks

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Constantinoule, May 18.—Greek and Turkish troops have clashed about 25 miles each of Smyrna, where Turks are taking the offensive and are apparently massing reinforcements preparatory to further advances against the Greeks.

Fighting has occurred between Magnisa and Menamen.

Jafar Tayar, Turkish commandant at Adrianople, has sent a message here from that city, saying 40,000 Turks and Bulgarians are prepared to resist the Greeks. He declares they will meet the Greeks midway between Tohatalja and Adrianople, when the Greeks begin the occupation of Thrace.

Haul Down Turkish Flag.

Constantinople, May 18.—Trebizond, an important port on the Black Sea coast of Asia Minor, has been taken over by a local Bolshevik administration, according to an announcement by the Turkish press bureau here. The population hauled down the Turkish flag, raised the Bolshevik emblem and set up a temporary government following a great demonstration in the city.

It is not known that Bolshevik soldiers have actually reached Trebizond from Russia, but the revolution is believed to have been managed by Russian agitators.

In some quarters it is considered a move on the part of the Turkish Nationalists as a protest against the peace terms fixed by the Allies and a blow which would prevent Trebizond becoming the port for free Armenia.

THE SHORTAGE OF FUNDS IN CHINA

China's Repudiation of German Issues of Bond Coupons an Obstacle to Loans

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 18.—Premier Chin Yun-Peng, of China, who last week was given leave of absence when he offered his resignation, is not expected to resume the duties of his office, says a London Times' despatch from Pekin under date of May 14.

Admiral San Chen-Ping, Minister of the Navy, has been appointed to act in his absence.

The shortage of funds in China is making it a very difficult situation for the government, says the despatch. The government, it is added, looked for great things from the visit of Thomas W. Lamont, of the American group of financiers, and has expressed disappointment over his announcement that China's repudiation of the German issues of Hukuan railway bond coupons was a serious obstacle to further loans being made to China.

Meanwhile the supply of funds from Japan has ceased altogether, because of the financial slump in that country.

Recently, the Times message says, there have been numerous outbreaks among the troops because they have not received back pay. In one of these disturbances many lives are reported to have been lost and several million dollars' damage caused to property.

A FAMOUS BULL FIGHTER KILLED

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Madrid, May 18.—Madrid is mourning for her favorite toreador, Gallito, who was killed by a bull Sunday night, while attempting to save a fellow toreador.

The newspapers issued special editions to tell of the event, and a bull fight that was scheduled for yesterday in connection with King Alfonso's birthday fete, was abandoned.

Gallito was 23 years of age and had amassed a fortune of eight million pesetas in the ring. He had killed 1,430 bulls in the arena, and taken part in 674 "corridas."

LEAVES BRIDE TO SERVE LIFE TERM

Pretty Girl Had to be Torn From Sentenced Man Going to Sing Sing

New York, May 17.—A bridegroom of a few hours, Jacob Miller, twenty-six years old, a salesman, of 640 East Sixth street, was taken early today from the Bronx county jail in the custody of Sheriff James F. Donnelly and Deputies Hanratty and Flynn to Sing Sing to commence serving a life term in the state prison. He was sentenced Wednesday by County Judge Louis D. Gibbs, following his conviction as a fourth offender for burglary.

Miller, who was convicted under the alias of George Davis, was married at the Bronx marriage license bureau yesterday afternoon to Hannah Rosenbaum, a pretty girl, who gave her age as 21 years, her occupation as a seamstress and her address as 1,079 Washington avenue.

Embracing Miller after the ceremony, performed by Clerk Matt McCabe, the bride avowed her eternal devotion to the life termer. It required the combined efforts of the clerk and many of her friends to separate her from her sentenced husband.

Clerk McCabe wished the bridegroom the "best of luck" and offered him and his friends cigars. The bride wept copiously.

This is the first time, according to the Bronx marriage license officials, a man sentenced to life imprisonment has been married in this state.

The bride, her family and friends, and the family and friends of the convicted prisoner were assembled at the bureau, a short distance from the jail, when Miller was led in, handcuffed to the sheriff. The chains were released during the ceremony.

The bride visited him every morning. He was arrested April 15 with two others for the attempted burglary of the dental manufacturing establishment of Edward Rowan, 625 East 163rd street, the Bronx. About $300,000 worth of gold was in the place, but the three were arrested before anything was taken. The two others pleaded guilty, one receiving six years and the other from five to six years.

CLOTHING CAUGHT IN THE SHAFTING

Moncton, May 17.—George McEachern, an employee of the Paul Lea Company, met with an accident this morning which almost proved fatal. He was at work on a moulding machine when his machine went out of order. He got upon the machine to see what was the trouble, and as he did so his clothes caught in the shafting and as they wound around the shaft carried him to the roofing when suddenly his clothing tore and he fell to the floor, most of his clothing having been pulled off. He sustained painful injuries but is reported to be not in a serious condition.

ASK TO INCREASE THE EXPRESS RATES

New York, May 17.—The application of the American Railway Express Company for permission to put increased express rates into effect will be argued tomorrow at a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission in this city.

Provided the express company is given authority to increase its rates for interestate shipments, it will then make formal application to increase its rates for service within the state, ranging from 35 cents to $1.20 a hundred pounds, with corresponding increases on less than 100-pound shipments and second class express shipments. The commission says it is claimed the requested increase in express rates will correspond to the increases in freight rates which, it is understood, will be asked by the railroad companies in the near future.

STOP GAMBLING AT BASEBALL GAMES

Boston, May 17—Another effort is being made to rid major league baseball in this city of open gambling. Secretary Lawrence Graver, of the Boston Americans, announced today that the betting crowd which gathers in the first base bleachers will be closed out, and open wagering stopped. Six men were in court today on charges of gambling, having been arrested at Saturday's game.

SHORT OF WHITE SUGAR

Shipments to Ottawa Are Likely to Be Scanty.

Ottawa, May 17.—The wholesalers warned the retail grocers at a meeting here tonight that the city was facing another sugar shortage. "I doubt very much," said H. D. Marshall, "whether Ottawa will be able to receive any white sugar for the next 30 days." He asked the retailers to persuade their customers to use more brown sugar.

A similar warning was uttered by H. J. Chamberlain of the Castle Company, who also stated capital was so destricted by the banks that the day was not far distant when instead of the retailer dealing in sugar with the wholesaler at 30 days, he would have to pay for his needs in this commodity C. O. D. or by demand draft. Every car of sugar shipped now cost the wholesaler $9,000, in addition to which he often carried three times this amount on his books in credit, which made it difficult for him to finance his buying from refineries, who were now insistent on ten-day payments.

NATIONAL HOME FOR JEWS OF WORLD

British Zionists Want the Government to Fulfill Promise Regarding Palestine

Leeds, Eng., May 18.—British Zionists are demanding now that Great Britain has received a mandate in Palestine, that the British government fulfill its promise to restore that country as a national home for Jews. Some of them betray some apprehension that the claims of the Arabs to Palestine may prevent a full realization of the Zionist hope.

"We want to begin our great work," says the Rev. J. E. Goller, of Leeds. "We are ready to provide money—£50,000 or £100,000 is nothing once we are sure of our position—and to arrange for the emigration of Jews not only from England ut from Poland and elsewhere to Palestine.

"We must know definitely if the British government is going to stand by its promise, or betray the soul of the Jewish people? The promise was distinctly that of a national home, which means, ultimately, a Jewish state in Palestine.

"There has always been drawn across the course of Jewish nationalism the red herring of pan-Arabic ambitions. We declare that we are prepared in Palestine to deal justly, fairly, and generously with the Arab problem, but for the Arabs to want Arabia, Mesopotamia, and Palestine as a triple Arab kingdom, ere they have proved their capability of governing a single autonomous unit, is tragically absurd.

"If our fears prove to be well-grounded that what shall be flung to us will be but the shadow of a bone, then there is a great section of us, of which I am the least earnest, that will rise and cry: 'To your tents, O Israel!' and we shall leave the Jewish problem to be solved by a future and better age, one which shall recognize, if this age does not, that the problem of the Jew in the world is the acid test of civilization."

FINNS WORK OUT THEIR PROSPERITY

London, May 17.—Finland has no labor difficulties, declared its foreign minister, Dr. R. Halste, who is on a visit here, in explaining the steadiness and promise of his country's economic and industrial recovery. All the factories are working well, and they were able to export all sorts of timber products, wood pulp, paper, textile goods, and so on. They had, as a matter of fact, huge stocks of paper, but the difficulty was to obtain ships to export it.

"We are anxious," said Dr. Holste, "to have friendly relations with Russia. We are a little nation of three and a half millions of people and we don't want to attack Russia. We are becoming more and more an industrial country; we cannot compete with Russia in growing grain, and friendly relations with her will mean cheap food."

FUNDS FOR EX-KAISER

The Hague, May 17.—The Socialist Deputy Schaper, who had previously addressed pertinent questions to the Ministers relating to the attitude of the Netherlands Government to the German ex-royalties, yesterday asked the Minister the Interior whether funds had been taken from the public revenues for the use of the ex-Kaiser and the ex-Crown Prince for food, luxuries, alteration of buildings or receiving guests. Especially in the case of the ex-Crown Prince the Minister was asked to state the sums and details of these expenditures to date, and if there was any chance of the amounts being returned.

Some of these questions probably relate to the purchase of a house for the ex-Crown Prince on the island of Wieringen.

Dutch newspapers recently published advertisements in which horses, carriages, saddles and other equipment formerly the property of the ex-Kaiser, are offered for sale.

Discussed Appointment of a Canadian Minister to U. S.

The Opposition in the House Ask for Further Details of the Proposed Policy Before It Is Put Into Effect—Premier Borden Answers All Criticism

Ottawa, May 18.—In response to the request made by Hon. W. S. Fielding about a week ago, that the House might go into committee of supply to discuss a matter of public importance, the nature of which he did not disclose, but which was well understood to be the appointment of a Canadian Minister Plenipotentiary to Washington, the House went into committee last night for that purpose and the whole evening until a very late hour was spent in the discussion of a motion that before any arrangments as to presentation at Washington is concluded, the House be fully informed on the matter and all the correspondence should be brought down.

The motion precipitated an interesting debate, but was not the cause of much further information being forthcoming, as Sir Robert Borden, who made his first speech since his return to the House, said that after examining the correspondence very carefully, he had come to the conclusion that it could not be brought down without detriment to the public interest. The negotiations both with Great Britain and the United States had been of an exceedingly confidential nature, including many intereviews, and had been begun by himself more than three years ago. All that had been consummated had been placed before the House, however, the change amounted to nothing more than that a country bordering the United States for thousands of miles as Canada was, and more intimately associated with them than with any other country outside of the British Empire, should have representation with our own kinsmen to the south. There was nothing more startling in this than in thte action of the Laurier Government, by which three men who were nothing but ambassadors, concluded a treaty with the United States about which nothing more in the way of information was vouchsafed until it had been concluded.

The Premier held out a vision of a broad scheme by which our relations with other countries will be worked out so as to give a voice to every part of the Empire. This year, or next, a conference will be held, and whatever party is in power in Canada will be represented. He hoped that the relations of the Dominion to the Empire may be lifted beyond the confines of better policies, when that conference was held this government would certainly ask the opposition to participate.

The attitude of the opposition was that sufficient information regarding the details had not been given to the House and they were asked to vote a considerable sum of money and possibly lead Canada into dangerous paths of international diplomacy, without full information or discussion. It was the old fight for the extension of national status, with the roles reversed, men like Lapointe, Lemieux and Archambault fighting fiercely against a cause to which it had been supposed they were above all things firmly wedded.

Although the government had a somewhat reduced majority, it was not due to defections from its ranks, but to the usual week-end absence. As a matter of fact there was neither great interest taken in the matter nor a wide diffusion of knowledge as to what it involved. The members of the Farmers' party carefully abstained from debating a subject so far out of their depth, although they voted solidly with the opposition.

RETURNING FROM RUSSIAN PRISONS

Men, Women and Children Were in Terrible Condition of Health

The Hague, May 17.—The arrival yesterday of a hundred Netherlanders who had long been held as prisoners in Russia, about whom official negotiations have been carried on since September last, awakened some excitement in Holland.

The prisoners, men, women and children, were mostly in a terrible condition of health, having suffered great privations and persecution. One died aboard ship.

All agreed that conditions in Russia at present are unbearable; that roles have been exchanged and Communists have become bourgeois who give gorgeous evening parties and that work is only carried on in state factories under the direction of Communists for the Red Army.

There is no raw material, no general industry, and everything is nationalized. Former bourgeois sell their furniture in order to live. There was, however, a change recently, said one of the prisoners Trotzky and Lenine are now approaching the bourgeoisie and endeavoring to make use of the former heads of factories and institutions with technical knowledge and have been fairly successful.

Until May, 1919, it appears that foreigners were not persecuted. Then all the foreign representatives left Russia except the Swis representative, who seemed to e on good terms with the Soviet Government. Many Netherlanders sold all their goods, hoping to be allowed to return, but although at that time the soviets treated neutrals fairly well, considering them the last link with the rest of the world, they were not allowed to leave

Is the middle of May the courier service was stopped and regular persecutions of foreigners began. On June 2 all foreign legations and embassies were seized and occupied by the soldiers. Everything as confiscated or stolen, including the contents of the safes. The Dutch legation building contained documents, papers, securities and large sums of money belonging to foreign powers and foreign subjects under Dutch protection during the war which had been placed in the Dutch legation at the beginning of the war for security.

Only four letters were found afterward at the legation. The consulate was also completely plundered. The reason given for this was that neutral legations had become centres of espionage and counter-revolutions.

Every one appearing at a legation or consul was arrested. People were often trapped into coming by telephone, and then arrested.

The Netherlanders, with many Russian notables, ex-ministers, generals and hostages were locked up in prison for two weeks without beds, chairs or food. Finally they were marched off to a station carrying packs and mattresses on their backs and were entrained in goods cars for Moscow, where they were interned in camps wieh n thing but the bare walls.

No sanitary arrangements were provided and dysentery raged, there being no medical help. At one time they were set free, then again imprisoned.

There is no postal rate in Russia, but railway officials carry letters for large bribes. Few lteers arrive. One letter costs 2 to 8 rubles.

Events of a Day In Parliament

Ottawa, May 18.—Yesterday in parliament.

House of Commons:

First reading was given the bill which proposes to place certain lines of electric railway under provincial Government control.

The franchise bill was again considered in committee. Progress was reported.

Hon. W. S. Fielding submitted a resolution demanding that the Government consult parliament before going further in the establishment of Canadian embassy at Washington.

The amendment was defeated, 68 to 63, and the narrow Government majority was the signal for opposition ovation.

FOOTBALLERS FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES

London, May 17.—The football association has made a preliminary choice of thirty-three players from whom the association's amateur team for the Olympic games will be made. Australian advices say that some Australian Olympic representatives will leave on Monday and the New Zealand party early in June.

The Australians include Miss Lily Beaurepaire, Kirkland, Herald, Say and Stedman—swimmers; Halpin and King—cyclists; Hewett — Marathon; Baynes—sculling; Hunt and Parker athletes. —

The New Zealanders also include a lady swimmer, Miss Walrond; Davidson, sprinter; Wilson, hurdles; and Hadfield, sculling.

WOULD HAVE GIVEN VICTORY TO ENEMY

Rear Admiral Fiske's Comment on Wilson's Audacious Advice

Providence, R. I., May 17.—Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, former aide for naval operations, president of the Naval Institute and recognized authority on naval strategy, sets forth certain observations on the British naval policy which have a particular interest in view of President Wilson's criticisms of the prudence of the British Admiralty and his "audacious" advice to American naval officers on how to win the war.

The Admiral was asked whether he would have counselled daring and audacity.

"Yes'," he replied, "but I would have urged courage, only with prudence and with preparedness, with a careful reckoning of the difficulties to be overcome. To have given other advice would have been to urge the rashnes that alone could have given victory to the foresighted and prudent German general staff, and the Germans were prudent until desperation forced their unrestricted warfare. We see now what their impudence did for them.

"Prudence, combined with restraining courage, and sheer audacity, won the war. The boldest, the most valorous naval action, without prudence, could easily have lost it.

"With extraordinary skill and prudence the Germans reared a nest for their submarines in shallow waters against two courses of action on the part of the Allied navies. One, the course of abandoning hope of successful attack and thus leaving an exit to the submarines by which they could reach the lines of shipping on the high seas and the other course an attack upon the German submarine defences by the British Grand Fleet, forced upon it by a desperate public or political opinion, in which case the British warships would have sunk themselves unavailingly on the German mines, and the sacrifice of a half, or even more, of the British naval strength, would have accomplished nothing.

"It would have made it possible for the Germans the invasion of England and have left America with no dependable protection against the German fleet.

"It is to the prudence of the British Admiralty, standing firm to 'dig the rats out of their holes' that the American people owe their protection against invasion."

ROBIN HOOD DREW LARGE AUDIENCE

Theatre Goers Particularly Well Pleased With Last Night's Performance

It was a gratified audience who last evening listened at the Opera House with enjoyment to Reginald de Koven's comic opera, Robin Hood, rendered by the Boston Opera Company, and it showed that Fredericton theatregoers had not forgotten the previous production by this company.

Robin Hood is beloved by all, being redolent of the greenwood, and brings back old friends of childhood. The jests and sparkling music can be heard again and again with ever-increasing pleasure.

Last evening's performance was rendered in an excellent manner, was well costumed and admirable from every point of view. Beautifully staged, every advantage was taken of the picturesque setting of Sherwood Forest.

Ralph Brainerd, as Robin Hood, sang with a quality of voice that won the admiration of all. Miss Helen Morrill, as Maid Marion, was a delightful young person, vivacious and charming in her masculine and feminine attire. Possessed of a sweet, flexible voice, she was particularly good in her solos, and in the Forest Song and a duet with Robin Hood in the first act. She was encored several times.

As Sheriff of Nottingham, Bertram Goltha could not have been better, and he made many funny points with laughing results.

Miss Carley, as Allan-A-Dale, made a most lasting impression personally, and her splendid contralto voice was heard to great advantage in Oh Promise Me and The Story of the Chimes. The Little John, by Stanley Deacon, was well received, and for Brown October Ale he was encored several times. Harold Gels was heard to great advantage in the favorite anvil songs and Nine Tailors. The Country Lout, Guy Gisborne, was one of the best parts of the opera, as portrayed by Lynn Griffin. Friar Tuck was broadly humorous, and his impersonation of a leader was well done. Miss Sellem, as Dame Durden, and Miss Clara Shear, as Annabelle, were very satisfactory in their portrayals.

The ensemble singing was particularly good, The Tinker Chorus receiving loud applause, while the work of the orchestra added much to the performance.

U. S. OFFICERS KILLED

AN EXHIBITION OF UNIQUE PAINTINGS

English Lady Seeks to Improve Relations With Americans Through Art

New York, May 17—Music and art lovers of New York are evincing much interest in the exhibition of unique paintings to be given in the ballroom of the Hotel Commodore this afternoon by Miss Florence Parbury, of London, Eng. Exhibitions will also be given in the afternoons of Tuesday and Thursday, and in the evenings she will give a rendition of her original operetta.

Miss Parbury has undertaken a mission to the United States with a view to promoting an Anglo-American League of Friendship.

She is one of the most noted of the younger generation of British artists, as well as an aviatrix, writer, musician and lecturer. Her paintings are in pastel and water colors, and included among her art patrons are Queen Mary, Dowager Queen Alexandra and the Queen of Italy. A painter of the "great outdoors," Miss Parbury's pictures of the beautiful Vale of Kashmir, in Asia, and other noted spots, have won high praise from some of the best art critics of London. She has painted a number of scenes of the Canadian Rockies, several of which were purchased by the late Lord Strathcona.

A reception will be held tonight to the members of various clubs which have British American friendship at heart. When Sir Auckland Geddes, newly appointed British ambassador to Washington, arrived in New York, she flew down the bay in an Avro airplane and dropped flowers around the vessel to welcome Lady Geddes.

HOW SINN FEINERS DODGE THE POLICE

Do Not Sleep in Same Place Two Nights in Succession—Always on the Go

Dublin, May 17.—Scores of men in this city are "on the run" which, in the parlance of the land, means that the police or military hold warrants for their arrest, yet they go about the streets unmolested by policemen.

Sinn Feiners here, and incidentally few men will admit they are members of that organization, say that the police are afraid to arrrest one of their members on the streets because a crowd collects, often shots are fired and usually the prisoner is rescued. It is at night and at home that they are in danger of arrest. The police do not admit they are afraid to make an arrest in public, but say they dislike to create a scene where many people may gather quickly.

One of the "runners" confided some of his troubles to a newspaper man. He is 38 years of age, has a wife and children and has served several times as a political prisoner. He said: "My wife and the kiddies are getting rather tired of the suspense of not knowing whether I am coming home or going to jail. I have four places where I sleep. It is only at infrequent and irregular intervals that I go home and then never to sleep in a bed. I roll up in a blanket on a couch or floor partly dressed. If they come for me, which they have several times, I get out of the house and they find no evidence that I have been there. I do not have to lay out along a hedge or hide behind a tree as long as I might if they knew I had been there and instigated a thorough search.

"This is only an outline of the sort of life many of us are leading these days. We all follow about the same system in which much is left to chance, but it really has kept many of us out of jail for intervals at least."

This informant said nothing would suit him but an Irish Republic, and he would fight for it as long as he lived.

TELEPHONE MEN IN BROTHERHOOD

Boston, May 17.—Delegates from the 29 locals of Mechanical Workers employed by the New England and Providence Telephone Companies concluded a two days' convention here last night by organizing the International Brotherhood of Telephone Workers. They also instructed a committee of officers to request the executive council of the American Federation of Labor at the annual convention in Montreal next month that action be taken to improve conditions for the workers represented by the new organization.

GANGS OF BANKNOTE FORGERS IN BERLIN

Berlin, May 17. — Fifty gangs of banknote forgers have been discovered and arrested in Germany as a result of the labors of a recently instituted special department of the Reichsbank dealing with counterfeit money.

New types of German banknotes are in course of preparation, which are claimed to be absolutely forger-proof.

A Farmer on Taxation

A Prince Edward Island farmer has written a letter to The Charlottetown Guardian which will be of some interest to farmers and others in this section of the country. The new Government of the Island is imposing direct taxation to a quite burdensome extent, as the Government of New Brunswick is preparing to do, and there is naturally considerable criticism. The writer of the letter to The Guardian makes it clear that the farmers are not unwilling to bear their share, but it is not well to call upon agriculture to bear more than its share, and he argues clearly and logically:

To the Editor of The Guardian,

Sir,—If some of those people who have so much to say about taxing the farmers would take a hand in the routine of farm work and get properly acquainted with what we are up against, they would have more respect for us than they apparently have. In the first place, the farmer is not the dodger away from taxes that he is represented to be. There are a few, as in other professions, who dislike paying any kind of taxes, and a very few even their honest bills. The great majority of our farmers are not of this kind, and believe in dealing fairly with everyone, including the tax collector. We also like to be dealt with fairly.

It is everywhere admitted that increased production is the great need of the world today. This is as much, I might truthfully say more, needed in cities than in country districts. Produce to the utmost we are told and encourage our boys to remain on the farm. The lure of city life is a strong inducement to our sons to leave us, and one of the hard things to contend against. Eight hours a day in the city and often twelve to fifteen hours on the farm. Then we have less of the social attractions which young people today seem to want more than ever before. We have also few of the educational benefits which are enjoyed in larger places, and our children have their longer walks to school.

It is urged that the farmer is getting high prices for his produce and is in a better position to pay than ever before. It is quite true that in this respect we are coming more than ever before into our own, but this gain to us is not as evident as it first appears. It is also apparent that big fortunes, and larger profits than we are making, are also being made by all classes of people. We have to buy, and the high price of everything hits us just as hard as it hits the working man. Seeds have jumped away up in price, clothing and sugar and tea are also twice and three times the old price. Spades and shovels and all kinds of implements are away up in price. The higher prices we get for our produce are invested in these, and while in a sense we are better off it is not so visible in the form of ready cash, and the stringency of the times makes less pocket money for our boys.

Now heavy taxation is not going to improve our condition. We would not object to a few dollars to benefit education, or if it is really needed to improve our Public Works. But they are piling it on too heavy. I notice that your city members both speak out plainly on this point. Mr. C. G. Duffy, whom you call the first commoner in the land, in his speech in the Market Hall, is reported to have "consoled the citizens with the thought that the farmers were more heavily taxed than they were," and Mr. Higgs, the city member, also takes the same ground and says, "the land tax upon farmers has been increased two and a half times what it was before the war" and that the farms have since increased in value and for this reason the taxes would be further increased much more.

To increase our land tax of $20 up to $50 would have been bad enough. When you talk of doubling up the value and making it a full hundred it is a bad outlook for us. Then to go it harder still and stick us for three poll taxes of $8 or $10 on each man or boy over 21 years of age, and then make us pay our teachers' supplement and local school expenses, is making it a hard row for us to hoe. They have also stuck another 35 cents on every horse we own, and the road tax increase is 50 cents more than last year. Besides these taxes, we have also income and personal property taxes, for those of us who have a taxable income or personal property.

We would not complain of a fair tax to meet actual needs, and we are not objecting to our fair proportion of taxation. If agriculture and better production of food products is to be encouraged, it will not be by taxing as they are now doing—beyond reason.

Thanking you, Sir, for giving space, I am, Sir, etc.,

AGRICULTURIST.

FAMOUS WILL CASE BEFORE THE COURTS

Further Arguments in Marshal Field's Will Dispute in Chicago

Chicago, May 17.—Nancy Perkins Field Tree, of London, had her day in court today when her division of the heavy legal battery arguing the Marshall Field will case before Judge Foell presented her claims for a share in the $100,000,000 residue trust which is the stake in the court battle.

The alleged dual character of provisions surrounding the trust of the Marshall Field estate was advanced in favor of the claim of Mrs. Tree to a dower interest in the $40,000,000 share of Henry Field in that trust by her attorney, John S. Miller, Jr.

Mrs. Tree was the wife of Henry Field at the time of his death. The latter's grandfather, Marshall Field, in his will, provided that in case of the death of either of the brothers, Marshall Field 3rd or Henry Field, the interest of the one dying should go to the other.

Can a testator, in making a will, deprive the spouse of a legatee of his or her dower rights? As a partial offset is the claim of Henry Anthony Marsh, illegitimate son of Henry Field, to a share of the $100,000,000 trust. This claim was overruled recently by Judge Denis E. Sullivan but the ruling has been appealed and figured in the hearing before Judge Foell, where Marshall Field 3rd is asking that the entire $100,000,000 trust be turned over to him.

The method of the distribution of the field estate, so far as it affects the grandsons of Marshall Field and his granddaughter, Gwendolyn Field, is:

A trust of $5,000,000 was established the income to be distributed thus. Two-fifths to Marshall Field 3rd, two-fifths to Henry, one-fifth to Gwendolyn.

Following the death of Henry Field, Judge Sullivan ordered the principal of Henry's share to be divided equally between Marshall Field 3rd and Gwendolyn.

The residue of the estate was placed in trust for the benefit of Marshall Field 3rd, and Henry, in the proportions of three-fifths for Marshall and two-fifths for Henry.

Out of the income accumulations were to be made the following payments:

To Marshalls and Henry, respectively $450,000 and $300,000 every five years after they reached the age of 25, and until they were 45 years old, respectively. After each arrived at the age of 45 he was to receive the entire income, including the accumulations. After each became 50 years old his share of the principal of the trust was to be turned over to him.

The death of Henry Field has resulted in the present legal tangle, both as to the income and the distribution of the principal.

CABLE TO IRELAND CUT AT HALIFAX

Halifax, N. S., May 17.—The Direct Cable Company has received no further information regarding the men who cut the cable to Ireland on Saturday. Speaking to the Canadian Press today one of the officials said his theory was that the men forced their way into the building by breaking through a shutter. The cables were enclosed in a metal sheeting which somewhat resembled lead pipe. The official said he believed the men thought it pipe and attempted to cut it into lengths easy to dispose of and that their efforts severed it.

SEEK TO APPEASE THE DIVINE WRATH

The Practice of Self-Whipping Still Flourishes in the Phillipine Islands

Manila, P. I., May 17.—The practice of self-whipping in public to appease divine wrath which flourished in certain countries of Europe centuries ago, still exists in the Phillipine Islands, although in a diminishing degree each year.

Advices from the provinces where educational advantages are not enjoyed, show that the practice was indulged in during the Easter holidays this year, though not by as great numbers as in former years.

Hundreds of Americans and other foreigners gathered at an open field a few miles from the centre of the city to witness the weird perofrmance, but only six appeared to do penance.

These beat themselves over the backs with heavy flexible bamboo flogging rods. Later they walked to seven points in the field, denoting the seven points of the cross, where they were beaten by the master of ceremonies. When the lashing is completed, they throw themselves in to a pool of mud and as they come from the stagnant water their wounds are washed with pure water and healing medicines applied.

SHOT AN OTTAWA TELEPHONE GIRL

Ottawa, May 17.—William Collier, the young man who shot Miss Hazel Evans, Chateau Laurier telephone operator, after escorting the young lady to her home on Sunday night, and who then turned the weapon up himself, died this morning.

The shooting, it is said, is the result of Mis Evans' refusal of marriage to Collier. Miss Evans will recover.

Government Supporters Are Blamed for Absence From House When Vote Imminent

The Government Only Pulled Through by the Narrow Margin of Five Votes, Which Would Have Been Reduced to Two Had Three of Farmers Reached Chamber

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 18.—While the dominant interest today centres around the budget speech of Sir Henry Drayton, considerable reflection is indulged in over the vote early this morning on the question of the Washington Minister. The Government pulled through with the narrow margin of five votes, and it would have been only two had not three of the Farmers' party arrived at the Chamber too late to vote.

The fall down is largely attributable to the absence of Ontario supporters of the Government who were not paired, and who arrived this morning with the explanation that they had not anticipated a vote on the question. Considerable feeling is being worked up over the matter, because in no sense was it a snap vote, due notice having been given and last night fixed nearly a week ago as the night for the debate. The riot act was read around ministerial quarters this morning to the delinquent followers. This is the narrowest vote in Parliament for many years. The full majority of the Government over all ranges normally from 30 to 35, as compared with 75 after the elections of 1917.

Had the Ministry been defeated last night on an amendment moved under such circumstances it would have produced a very embarrassing situation, but would not have necessitated resignation, because the necessary motion of confidence would have been mustered today. Nevertheless it is looked upon as a lesson to the Ministry, and one which is likely to be heeded in the budget debate which begins today, and in which a further fusion of opposition and independent members is highly probable.

further loans, and by all government institutions, including municipalities and indeed every individual whose circumstances permit it, reducing expenditure whenever possible and by an increased production in all our forms of productive industry."

Canadian Trade Figures.

Canadian trade figures showed advances in the value of production and exports. But the fact must not be lost sight of that these figures were based on the inflated values now prevailing. Expressed in quantities, the production of the country last year, as indicated by tonnage carried by the railroads, instead of increasing had actually decreased.

There had been an "extraordinary increase" in the imports from the United Kingdom. For the month of October, they were $8,655,848; for March they stood at $25,555,336—the latter figure constituting a record.

Total imports from the United Kingdom for the fiscal year were $126,249,000 or fifty three millions greater than in 1919 and very nearly as expressed in dollars, equalling the pre-war trade with the mother country. Exports to the United Kingdom, during the fiscal year, totalled $489,000,000, a decrease of $51,000,000 as compared with the previous year, the balance of trade being $363,000,000 in Canada's favor. The 1919 figures, however, included about $170,000,000 for munitions and war materials.

The Adverse Exchange Rate.

Exports to the United States, during the war, amounted too $464,000,000 increasing by $9,000,000, while imports from the United States reached the unprecedented figure of $802,000,000 exceeding 1919 imports by $55,000,000. This increase was all the more remarkable in view of the adverse exchange rate. It was apparent that the mere question of cost had not weighed very much upon the Canadian buyer.

Revenue for the fiscal year 1919-20 would reach approximately $388,000,000, the largest revenue Canada had ever collected. It was no less than $255,00,000 greater than that of the first year of the war.

This included $108,500,000 interest on public debt; $26,000,000 for pensions and $49,000,000 for soldiers re-establishment.

For investment and capital outlays, beyond the orfdinary current expenditure of $349,000,000, an expenditure of $187,806,911 was estimated. The resultant total of $536,741,110 represented the outlay of Canada for all purposes apart from war during the past year.

Surplus Over Ordinary Expenditure.

With a total revenue of $388,000,000 and an ordinary expenditure of $349,000,000, it would be seen that during the fiscal year the government after meeting all ordinary expenditures including an increased amount for interest account and pensions over the previous totalling nearly $39,000,000, had a surplus of approximately $39,000,000 over ordinary expenditure to apply to capital expenditure.

Demobilization expenditure for 1919-20 would amount to $350,000,000 making a total outlay for the year of $886,741,110.

Total expenditure for the war up to and including March 31, 1920, amounted to $1,674,000,000, apart altogether from such expenses resulting from the war as pensions, soldiers civil re-establishment, soldiers land settlement and interest on the war debt.

During the year the country paid off a floating debt of $247,000,000 out of the proceeds of the Victory Loan issue of 1919. The short date indebtedness at the close of the year amounted to only $88,956,000.

Main estimates for 1919-20 totalled $537,149,428 ($328,500,000 on ordinary account and supplementary estimates for civil service bonus $12,500,000.

Estimates for Present Year.

The question of main supplementary estimates was still standing. Revenue for the fiscal year 1919-20, estimated on the basis of existing fiscal legislation and assuming that values of importation for customs purposes should practically remain the same as for 1919-20 should amount to $281,000,000.

Including the cash on hand and outstanding accounts, including balances due from Great Britain, made a whole total of $730,441,752.88.

In all probability the whole of these accounts would not be collected within the year and $571,000,000 would more accurately represent the actual cash resources for the year. No further loan ought to be made, Sir Henry added.

In addition to the commitments already mentioned, certain floating obligations matured this year, totalling $74,058,400.

The revenue of the year and cash assets available, declared the Minister of Finance, should at least not only carry current expenditure, but retire this debt.

Estimated Expenditure.

Current expenditure, however, would be greater this year than that already indicated. Deficits on the railway system had been reported in the main estimates. These deficits, during the readjustment period, would be materially increased by the acquisition of the Grand Trunk.

Some economies ought to be effected in the near future, but with the arbitration pending it was improbable that full benefit of the Grand Trunk acquisition could be expected in the current year.

It would be necessary to make advances to the company to cover past due operation obligations. These advances would contitute obligations of the company and must be taken into account in the arbitration.

In addition, advances of necessity would be made to provide for this year's operations.

Charges of unfairness levelled against Canada by different shareholders at Grand Trunk meeting were unfounded. If the Grand Trunk had not been taken over the shareholders in all human probability would have lost their whole investment.

shock during the amputation and he thought that blood poisoning would have set in.

Possibility of Saving Life.

Dr. Ross claimed that there would have been a possibility of saving the man's life by amputation. He could not tell whether or not the amputation would be a physical impossiblity but as a last resource he favored an attempt at it. He did not think that blood poisoning would have been certain to set in and he thought that the bleeding could have been combatted by the use of an esmarch.

Dr. McIntyre was of the same opinion. He believed that amputation above the knee was a possiblity and stated that he had known cases of amputation under more adverse circumstances where the patient had survived.

At the conclusion of Dr. McIntyre's evidence the inquiry was adjourned until Thursday night, May 20th, when other witnesses will be called.

MUST SHOW "PEP" OR GIVE UP GRANT

The local housing commission have received a communication from the Provincial Government to the effect that the Government is setting a time limit for obtaining the grant of $100,000 for which the commission has applied for housing work in this city.

The Provincial Secretary Treasurer stated in his letter that other municipalities were asking for aid in their housing schemes and that the time limit was being set. The matter, which hould have been takesn up by the commission promptly, is now hanging fire ,and citizens are urging that the commission take steps immediately to do the work for which they were appointed.

Some twenty or more applications for aid in building under the Housing Act have been received by the local commission, but work of no kind has started as yet.

SALVATION ARMY.

Ottawa, April 8.—"I can vouch for the value of the work performed overseas by the Salvation Army, which in every way possible ministered to the comfort and well-being of the troops.

"Through its agency, rest houses and recreation rooms were established; troop trains were met; motor ambulances were provided for the sick and wounded; hospitals, convalescent homes and prisoners' camps were visited; the missing were traced; letters were written to relatives and friends; graves were identified and kept in order.

"Particularly would I mention the services rendered by the women members of the Salvation Army. Capable and ever ready to help, they did cheerfully and well whatever came to hand, forming what has been described as the link between home and the war zone.

"Hostilities have ceased; not so the work of the Salvation Army, which will continue to have ample scope, especially during the present period of re-establishment, the time of testing through which, as a consequence of war, Canada must pass.

"As regards 'Self-Denial Week,' I feel confident that the campaign which is about to open will succeed; cordially I endorse the movement, and I hope you will include my name in a Territorial Committee."

Canadian Coal Importers Protest Against the Order For Prepayment of Freights

The Principal Railway Counsel in Canada at Hearing of the Canadian Railway Commission Today, When the Whole Question Will be Inquired Into

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 18.—The storm of protest in Canada against the order of the United States Railways Committee compelling the prepayment of freight charges on coal to Canada will take concrete form at a hearing which the Canadian Railway Commission is holding this afternoon. The matter of charges on coal will be the particular subject of this inquiry. Thousands of importers of coal from the United States have protested to the railway commission in the last few weeks and the commission therefore has set down the matter for hearing today, when counsel for the importers will present their case.

The principal railway counsel in Canada are down for the commission sitting. The case for the coal dealers is that they are anxious for a compromise, which will give the United States roads their full revenue for the haul in that country, but which will protect Canadian importers against the imposition of higher rates in Canada through the payment of charges in United States currency.

The railway commission, it is understood, has been working for such a compromise on the whole matter of freight charges on imports from the United States for some time past.

Sentenced This Afternoon.

Robert Armstrong, the clerk at the C. N. R. offices in this city who was charged with being over $600 short in his accounts, pleaded guilty to the charge preferred against him and was given two year's suspended sentence by Police Magistrate Limerick this afternoon. He had restored the money stolen and had to pay the costs of the prosecution as well.

THE FEDERAL BUDGET.

Sir Henry Drayton was quite optimistic this afternoon in presenting his first budget to the Commons. The people of Canada, with comparatively few exceptions, will agree with the Finance Minister that "the duty today "is not only to carry on the govern- "ment of the country without any "additions to the debt, but on the "other hand to promote measures "which will reduce the nation's in- "debtedness." The task is heavy, the responsibilities are great, but, as Sir Henry said, not so severe as the obstacles which Canada had overcome in the five years of war and stress. We must all, however, become as united and as earnest as during the war period. We must sink our differences, our class and sectional interests and jealousies into an effort to re-establish Canada as united and coordinated as that which won the war; and this done, we will easily accomplish the task.

Canada has now an excess of exports over imports, and we are maintaining a good record in this respect. While the excess of exports over imports continues, we can have hope that the obligations which the war has imposed upon us will be met and the burdens ultimately removed. The greater the excess of exports the better equipped will we be as a nation to discharge our duty. Greater production will make the situation easier; and in a country such as ours production to the limit would, within a comparatively few years, relieve us wholly of the burdens which we have been called upon to bear. We have great resources, we are a people of energy and determination, and, united, we can dispose of our burdens easily. Sir Henry Drayton was, therefore, not unnaturally optimistic, although the net debt of the country at the end of the financial year was practically $2,273,305,436.

In referring to the high prices, the Finance Minister pointed out that inflation of credit more affected the cost of commodities than circulation. Every loan for an unproductive purpose that the Government makes increases the credit inflation of the country; and inflation, said Sir Henry, "can safely "be cured only by the Federal Govern- "ment and the Provincial Govern- "ments stopping further loans, and "by all Government institutions, in- "cluding municipalities and indeed "every individual whose circum- "stances permit of it, reducing ex- "penditure wherever possible; and by "increasing production in all our "forms of productive industry." The Federal Government is to lead in the cutting out of further loans; and Provincial Governments are invited to follow. Whether they will accede to this proper request, and in this way assist to restrict inflation, remains to be seen.

Sir Henry will inform the House as to how the revenue needed to meet the large obligation is to be raised. At this writing the report of that part of his speech had not reached us. That is a phase of the speech in which the public are deeply interested, and one with which we will have to deal in a later issue. The Finance Minister is ably and admirably performing a great duty.

CHATAUQUA'S FOUNDER.

The death of Bishop John H. Vincent removes a figure known by his influence to millions. He was the chief organizer of the scheme for popular education which took its name from Lake Chautauqua in New York State, where the first assembly for combined education and entertainment was held.

Perhaps the "graduates" of Chautauqua courses have overestimated the intellectual rank implied in the diplomas from their alma mater. But that is a habit indulged in by students of all schools whatsoever. The fact is that an open-minded, hard-working attendant at these popular lectures can learn a good deal. The leading universities are tending in their direction, so far as increasing the number of courses relating to the actual problems of today may indicate a tendency.

Anybody who is curious as to the actual character of Chautauqua audiences may find it well described in Ida M. Tarbell's account of her experiences as a lecturer, printed a few months ago in the Atlantic Monthly. No doubt the assemblies organized in different parts of the country vary in character, according to the needs of the community. Their elasticity and adaptableness are part of their merit.

Dr. Vincent launched a workable scheme which has had a leavening value in supplementing other educational facilities. And it should be remembered that he did a many-sided work as author, lecturer, preacher and leader in various church enterprises. He was a kind of religious Roosevelt. His long career covered seventy years of public work, for he began to preach at 18 and died at 88. And it is only one more count in his favor that in many obituary notices the chief emphasis is placed on the fact that he was father of George E. Vincent, the present head of the Carnegie Foundation. He contributed more than one man's share to education.

MILLERAND CABINET ATTACKS FRENCH LABOR.

The Millerand Cabinet announces its intention to sue for the legal dissolution of the leading French labor combination. This combination, the Confederation Generale du Travail, is known universally by its initials as the C. G. T., a fair indication of the extent to which its powerful hand sways the lives of the French people. Its recent relentless strike policy has led to the countermove which the Ministry now makes.

In one respect the French are fortunate in their dealings with the labor unions. They have effected the incorporation of these powerful bodies, in distinction to Canada and the United States, where the union in the purview of the law has usually no existence, and consequently, except in cases of conspiracy, escapes every form of legal limitation or discipline. As the French master-union has a legal existence, it may forfeit that existence for failure to live within the limits provided; and as union action is regarded as subject to law, this union, once dissolved, cannot hope to continue in business without involving its chiefs in criminal procedure as conspirators.

The swift determination and radical nature of the action undertaken by the Millerand Cabinet need cause little surprise. The French Republic has built up precedent for radical action in matters affecting its sense of security. In the closing years of the nineteenth century it overturned the army hierarchy which had lost public confidence through the disclosures of the Dreyfus case. At that time the military clique formed possibly the most powerful group in the State. A few years later, the radicals of the Republic cancelled the Church-and-State agreement and confiscated the property of the insubmissive Catholic Church, by the effort that broke at least the political potentiality for action of the chief element still unassimilated by the Republic. It stands quite in line with the record that the strongest anti-Government element of today, the Bolshevistic labor group, should go into the same hopper.

It will be noted that the Ministerial declaration charges the union with strikes designed to break down the Government, and not with strikes for the more immediate kind of profiteering. At present France is more of a farming country, probably, than Canada, has more independent workers on the land, in proportion to the population, and fewer wage workers than the United States in the factories. The organized wage workers seek to overcome this inadequacy of their numbers by the resort to more radical means. They will undoubtedly do their utmost against the threatened attack, but driven into the open they may, like Caillaux, and the defeatists of 1917, prove less formidable than in ambush.

NEED FOR TRAINED SOCIAL WORKERS

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Montreal, May 18.—The new department connected with the University of Montreal to meet the need for scientifically trained social workers showed the first fruits of the initiative commenced two years ago when last night at the Academy Bourget, for the first time in Canada, University diplomas were awarded to students who have followed the course during those two years. The occasion was the closing exercises of the Loyola School of sociology and social service, when diplomas were given to six young lady students.

LACK OF NEWSPRINT AND HIGH PRICES

Washington, May 18.—Representatives of more than 100 newspapers, meeting here yesterday, formed the United States' publishers' newsprint conservation league.

Many editors who were unable to attend sent letters that painted harrowing pictures of distress, due to lack of paper and high prices. Many old and well established dailies would be compelled to suspend, it was said, if conditions did not improve.

THE ERA OF PEACE

Paris, May 18. Premier Millerand last evening gave a dinner to the diplomatic corps. Dr. Wilhelm Mayer, the German Charge D'Affaires, was among those present.

The pillory was abolished in England in 1837.

CANADIANS IN THE IMPERIAL SERVICE

Those Who Accepted Commissions Laboring Under a Distinct Sense of Grievance

London, May 17.—Canadians who prefer to accept commissions in the imperial forces on the conclusion of hostilities are laboring under a distinct sense of grievance in connection with leave to their homes in Canada. They must now pay full fares, both ways, whereas English officers are brought home free.

Another apparent injustice has come to light in conection with gratuities to Canadian officers of the former Naval Air Service who have continued serving to the present time instead of being repatriated to Canada after armistice. Those who were accepted in Canada itself were granted a gratuity of £150 for each year's service. One officer, however, with service of two years with the Canadians in France as a private, and who was then accepted for the air service, was taken prisoner on the French front, did eighteen months as a prisoner, and after repatriation accepted service in South Russia, according to the promises made him, ought also to receive a gratuity of £150 for each year, but the authorities here now say that as he was not accepted in Canada for service he is merely entitled to the ordinary temporary officers' gratuity.

This may be within the strict letter of the law, but means that this officer, who came with the first Canadian contingent and has served until now, is poorer for his war service, by several hundred pounds, than many hundreds of Canadians who did not take service until the war had proceeded three years. It is asserted that the Air Ministry takes the position that the promise of £150 gratuity, made to officers joining in Canada, was a mistake from the first. Those denied it are inclined to think that the Air Ministry had to stand by the mistake when there were many hundreds of such officers waiting round London for repatriation to Canada; then they could unitedly have made an effective protest against any attempt of repudiation, whereas any protest from the few officers now remaining here will be ineffective.

$10,000 WORTH OF LIQUOR SEIZED

Another large seizure of intoxicating liquors from New Brunswick has been made by Frank Reed, United States customs officer at Van Buren, opposite St. Leonard's. Mr. Reed, in making a tour of the freight yards after a train had been run over from the Canadian Pacific Railway yards at St. Leonard's, sighted a carload of shingles and laths which looked suspicious.

He found that the car was billed to a fictitious address, Ernest A. Brooks, Bangor, Me., and on searching the car uncovered no less than 1,332 quarts of whiskey, four ten gallon kegs and two 100-gallon drums, containing alcohol. The entire shipment, lumber and all, was seized.

The value of the whiskey and alcohol is estimated at $10,000. The Maine and New Brunswick officers have not been able to trace the original shipment of the contraband, but it was originally shipped by some one in the province of Quebec and brought down the St. John river by way of Edmundston.

WANTS SOLDIERS IN PARLIAMENT

Winnipeg, Man., May 17—"Returned soldiers should be in Parliament, and a returned soldier should be elected Premier at the next election to look after the interests of the returned men. Returned soldiers were considered good enough to go and fight for the country when the call came in 1914, but in 1920, when they have accomplished the object for which they went out, they are not considered good enough to have a say in administration of the country," said J. Harry Flynn, first vice-president and Dominion organizer of the Grand Army of United Veterans, who is here today. He will address a meeting of returned men Tuesday night, which will be followed Wednesday by a meeting for the purpose of organizing a local branch of the Grand Army of United Veterans in this city.

SUPPLEMENTARIES TABLED IN HOUSE

Ottawa, May 17.—Supplementary estimates to cover expenditures made during the last fiscal year, were tabled in the House of Commons today by Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance. They total $19,051,199, and include a vote of $8,9993,867 for Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment (outside service); $400,000 for reconstruction of the Port Colborne elevator; $392,000 for restoration of the parliament buildings; $4,550,000 for arts and agriculture; $55,120 for penitentiaries; and $159,640 for charges of management. There is also a vote of $600,000 for salaries and contingent expenses of the pensions board.

GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Halifax, May 18—John Delaney, who was charged with the murder of his wife, Maud Delaney, on August 15, 1919, was today found guilty of manslaughter. The jury was out two hours. Delaney will be sentenced on Wednesday morning.

Lots of people do a thing twice in order to get it done once.

The Stock Market

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York (Wall Street), May 18.—The uneven course of petroleum shares measured the irregular movement of prices at the quiet opening of today's stock market. Mexican oils were 1 to 2 points higher while European issues of the same class as represented by Royal Dutch and Shell Transport lost about that much. Sugar shares were strong to firm with several of the independent steels, popular motors and American Woollen, but United States Steel, U. S. Rubber and the coppers reacted fractionally. Nominal changes occurred in the railroad division.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF LIFE

He Was No Prophet.

For the sixth time the golfing novice aimed viciously at the ball, but it still remained perched upon the tee. He was about to make his eighth attempt when the caddie held up his hand.

"There's a man going across in front of you, sir."

"What if he is?" snapped the novice.

"You must shout 'Fore!' if there's anybody in the way when you're going to hit the ball."

"How on earth do I know when I'm going to hit the ball?" cried the golfer angrily.

Caught.

"I am sending back those coats you let me have during the sale," she told the manager blandly. "I find that none of them really fit me."

But she didn't smile so broadly that night, when she received a little parcel and a letter, which read:

"Madam, we are returning the pair of gloves and the handkerchief which you inadvertently left in the pocket of one of our coats which didn't fit."

Only the First Letter.

She was giving orders at an express rate, for they were married, and he, as a rule one of the most meek and submissive of men, was like the proverbial worm beginning to turn.

"Do you think," he sneered, "that you rule the whole of the universe?"

"No," she snapped; "but I rule the first letter of it!"

Just How True?

"Is your love true?" asked the girl.

"As true," the man answered, in low, passionate tones, "as true as the delicate flush on your cheek."

"Oh—er—ah," the girl stammered hurriedly, "isn't—doesn't the band play nicely?"

Look Bad.

Smiley—I think that coal dealer down the street will have to change his name if he expects people to patronize him.

Bangs—Why, what's his name?

Smiley — Lyttleton. Some people might not notice it, but I'm afraid most folks would shy at a name like that on a coal dealer's sign.

Takes Time.

"Yes, I was on the stand in that case."

"I thought you told me you knew nothing about it."

"I didn't. But under the regular procedure it took three days to bring that out."

Quite Likely.

Angler (describing a catch)—The trout was so long—I tell you I never saw such a fish!

Rustic—Noa. Oi don't suppose ye ever did.

Looked Like It.

She—How smoothly this motor car runs

He—Yes; I'm afraid something's gone wrong!

Veritably.

Bob—Jackson's a friend in need.

David—It seems so; he's always trying to borrow something.

Both.

"Do you give your wife an allowance, or does she just ask you for money when she wants it?"

"Both."

FROM THE PEOPLE

HIGH COST LIVING

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Will you allow me to suggest through the medium of your paper that if the women of Canada would unite in a war against profiteering there might be a stop to the higa cost of living? I do not mean to suggest that they should resort to the patriotic and philanthropic means used by the suffragettes of burning and wanton destruction, but if they would combine in a peaceful and determined manner they would inevitably bring down the H. C. of I. It will soon be as iniquitous for a poor man to have a potato in his possession as it is for him to have a bottle of whiskey.

Yours,
A SUBSCRIBER.

Boiestown, May 14, 1920.

SOUTH WEST BOOM STRIKE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Begging a space in your valuable paper in contradiction of your statement of 11th instant of shots fired on Miramichi river by union men or their sympathizers.

As far as any knowledge of the union, there were no shots fired.

Hoping to see this published in your next issue,

Yours,
THOMAS DAWSON, Pres.

Upper Nelson, May 14, 1920.

[The above refers to a news item published May 10th. The President does not say that shots were not fired; merely that the union have no knowledge.—The Gleaner.]

WANTS NO BONUS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Many so-called veterans of the world war are crying like hungry politicians for a bonus, adjusted compensation, or whatever you may call it. It is disgusting to some of the real veterans and Canadian patriots, who think too much of themselves and their country to put a price on their patriotism.

When the war broke out I was under age, but decided it was my duty to enlist. Before I enlisted I had to spend some money to have my teeth fixed. I also had to undergo treatment for a fractured septum in my nose. After going through the above I enlisted and saw service in four battles. After the armistice was signed I wasted eight weary months patrolling the neutral line some thirty kilometers the other side of the Rhine.

I have no kick. I knew what I was doing when I enlisted. Now, as long as Canada takes good care to see that our wounded men receive all the comforts and necessities of life, I am satisfied.

Yours,
I AM BACK AT WORK.

St. John, May 17, 1920.

PRESENT DAY CONDITIONS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Many of the letters printed in your excellent People's Column seem to be based on dissatisfaction with present day conditions, both economic and social. May we not attribute as the fundamental cause the overtaxing of the mental and physical powers of the people, primarily, by the tense stress of the war, and, after that, by the "dollar greed" craze and its outcome—the well nigh prohibitive cost of living?

Is it not an unescapable economic and moral law that the nation and its people must experience a sharp and sudden let-down to combat the severe strain they have endured so long? In what form or phases will the revulsion come?

Yours,
E. W. C.

Woodstock, May 15, 1920.

LET GREECE ENTER

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Sir,—Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the Turkish Nationalist leader, realizing that the future of the Turks is to rule the Turks and not the non-Turks, established a revolutionary government at Angora, a purely Turkish city of Asia Minor. The Turkish people, the Parliament and the army joined in the revolutionary movement, and they have eliminated the Sultan's name from their prayers, substituting that of Prince Djemal Eddin, who was proclaimed Emperor in the new capital of the Turkish State. Thus the removal of the Turkish capital from Constantinople to Angora has been accomplished by the Turks themselves and it is strange to say that the Allied Supreme Council instead of making a peace treaty with the de facto government of Turkey negotiates a peace treaty with the Sultan of Constantinople, who is denounced by his own people.

Was the German treaty negotiated with the German Kaiser? Was the Austrian treaty negotiated with the Austrian Emperor? Was the Bulgarian treaty negotiated with the Bulgarian Czar? What is the reason then for keeping the Sultan in Constantinople, which is an essentially Greek city, and negotiating with the world's greatest assassin a treaty which will not have the sanction of the Turkish people or the Turkish Parliament?

Impartial justice requires that the Turkish Sultan should be expelled from Constantinople, and that this metropolis of Hellenism which for twelve centuries was the capital of the Greek Empire should be restored to Greece, the rightful owner and the legal heir. By this solution the cause for future conflicts will be eliminated, Turkey will become a factor of peace instead of war, and Greece will be able to reunite her scattered children under one government.

Yours,
COMMON SENSE.

North Devon, N. B., May 14, 1920.

"OUR COUNTRY"

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Sir,—Referring to the famous saying, "Our Country, Right or Wrong," which one of your correspondents discusses, I think there is no doubt that Decatur used the phrase as meaning when our country is at war. It is then too late for debate and every citizen is in honor bound to back up his government.

But when our or any other country is not at war I see no such obligation resting on the citizen. On the contrary, he must be guided by his sense of right or wrong, or, in fact, as before he was bound to back up his government, he must now oppose it if he thinks it in the wrong. But, alas, in international politics there is nothing more disregarded than ethics. Interests, now as always, is the dominant motive.

Yours,
ARDIS.

BUILDING BETTER BOYS

Military training will help—but it takes something besides "setting-up" exercises to make healthy, sturdy men. The body is built out of the food you digest. Shredded Wheat Biscuit contains the vitamines that are necessary to normal nutrition in addition to the tissue-building elements which are absent from many expensive foods. The crisp and tasty goodness of the baked whole wheat is a joy to the palate-most real food for the least money.

MADE IN CANADA

A Coach of Beauty Adorns This Silent Chalmers

THE fine craftsmanship of coach building turned itself loose in this new appearing Chalmers. You observe a high front line and a low rear line, which a well known artist has said is the way a car should look.

You find nothing severe, however, about this Chalmers. It has a new elegance, a new grace; and yet a quiet reserve distinguishes the car from others.

Particularly does this appeal to you after you've been seated and touch your foot to the accelerator.

The silent flow of power, the notable harmony, the ease of the engine engage you.

And again you pay a compliment to Hot Spot and Ram's-Horn, which tackle the low grade gas of the day and make it perform.

Thus the beauty which the eye sees is enhanced by the beauty of action of its master engine; and you, too, say with so many others that Chalmers surely is one of the few great cars of the world.

CANADIAN NEWS FOR NEW YORKERS

New Magazine Issued to Publish Doings of Canadian Organizations Everywhere

New York, May 17.—To make New Yorkers better acquainted with Canada and Canadians, and to promote and foster the spirit of good-will and friendship which exists between the citizens of the two countries are among the principal aims of the new organ of the Canadian Club, "The Maple Leaf," as stated in the editor's announcement in the first number, out today.

The new magazine, while primarily published in the interests of the Canadian Club and intended as a medium for the dissemination of the news of club events among the members, will also publish news of the doings of other Canadian organizations and articles on Canadian affairs of interest to former citizens of the Dominion now resident in New York.

The editor is Mr. Arthur Elliott Sproul, a well known New York newspaperman, born in the United States, but the son of a Canadian. His notable work in connection with Canadian-American matters has attracted attention on both sides of the line. In his editorial announcement, after referring to the necessity for combatting "the deplorable ignorance of every nation on the face of the globe in respect to all other nations in order to bring about international respect, good feeling and permanent peace, Mr. Sproul says:

"What mental picture confronts the United States citizen when he encounters the word 'Canada' in his reading, or when he hears it spoken in conversation? Does he think vaguely of a land of snowy, wintry conditions—of ice palaces, dog sledges and voyageurs—of a species of picturesque wilderness, in short? Or does he visualize great cities, handsome public buildings, throbbing factories, fine houses, extensive railroads, enormous field crops, big banks, capacious seaports, vast forests, wonderful scenery, enormous water powers, universities, hospitals, churches, important and profitable newspapers, paper mills, fisheries, mineral deposits—and all of these as the background for a social life of refinement, of culture and of the highest charm to those within its scope?

"In other words, is it realized fully that Canada is not a mere sweep of the map-maker's color brush in the area to the north of us, but that it is a nation—big, progressive, growing—a very real and important neighbor of ours?

"How generally is it known, for example, that Canada buys vastly more from the United States than is bought from us by the whole of South America—that is to say, by Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Falkland Islands, Guiana (British, Dutch and French), Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela combined? How generally is it known that there is one retail store in Canada that does more business annually than is transacted by the largest retail store in New York city? How generally is it known that Canada contains the largest university in the British Empire? How generally was it realized, before the very recent $500,000,000 steel merger in Canada that that country had within itself the component parts from which to form an industrial corporation that is at this moment the largest in the British Empire, and second only in magnitude to the great United States Steel Corporation?

"'The Maple Leaf' recognizes these things. It recognizes the immense size of the task of conferring international benefit by spreading international information. It welcomes the aid of all other organizations and publications that are like-minded with it, since there is abundant room for all. It recognizes the need for the increase and the perpetuation on this continent of neighborly good feeling, based upon neighborly information. And it is with the high purpose of promoting these things—with dignity and sanity and loyalty—that the 'Maple Leaf' faces not merely its own future but the future of the two great nations named the United States and Canada."

The first number is a very creditable on both in respect to contents and typographical make-up. It contains news of club events presented in bright, readable form, and a number of interesting articles on Canadian affairs.

CANADIAN TOAD IS HARD TO KILL

Toad Cemented Into Wall 17 Years Ago Alive and Kicking When Wall Torn Down

London, Ont., May 17.—Seventeen years ago, so the story goes, a young and careless toad got himself mixed up in a hopper of cement which was used by some workmen in building the foundation for a stationary engine at the McClary Manufacturing Company's plant here. Today, while tearing out the 17 year old foundation, another lot of workmen came upon the toad tucked away all tight and comy in his cement cubbyhole and, so the story goes, alive and kicking. Here the story becomes tinged with tragedy.

A few hours after his release the toad died. Now Prof. Dearness, principal of the London Normal School, while he admits that stories about "batrachians" living for years walled up in this way are common enough, declares that they lack authenticity and therefore the professor is going to investigate.

He wants to be sure that the toad did not hop into his refuge through an orifice in the cement. If the toad, who is dead now, did not do this, he will have been a party to a valuable scientific discovery.

$50—NO BENEFIT

This money might have been saved by Mr. Z. D'Muro of 722 Papineau Ave., Montreal, had he only known of Zam-Buk sooner. Writing to the proprietors of Zam-Buk, a short time ago, he said:

"For over a year I suffered with eczema which nothing seemed able to cure. I had treatment from three doctors, which cost me $50, but none of them were able to cure me. I suffered intensely from the irritation and pain, and I thought I should never get relief, until one day a friend told me about Zam-Buk and I started using it right away. From the very first application I felt better. Zam-Buk relieved the irritation and seemed to cool and soothe the sores. Gradually the sores began to heal and, with perseverance, Zam-Buk completely rid me of the disease.

"I would like to be able to tell all sufferers from eczema to stop experimenting with useless remedies and use Zam-Buk. By using this balm in the first place they would save themselves needless suffering and expense."

Zam-Buk should be in every home, not only for skin troubles, boils, rashes, pimples, abscesses and ulcers, but also for cuts, burns, and scalds, for which it is indispensable. Get a box to-day. It will keep indefinitely and still retain its strength and purity. All dealers, 50c. box.

Kills Man to Avenge Wrong To Young Sister, Whom Dead Man Had Refused to Marry

First Shot Kills Joseph Klayman When Demand He Marry Girl Is Met With Sneer—Brother Says 14 Year Old Girl Was Kept Prisoner Over Night

Boston, May 17—Joseph Darrigo, 26, married, of 192 I street, South Boston, shot and killed Joseph Klayman, 27, single, of 525 Massachusetts avenue, before 200 persons in Chelsea Square at 5.20 yesterday afternoon.

Having tracked the man he charges dishonored his 14-year-old sister, Frances Darrigo, until he had made certain that he should find him in Chelsea Square at 5.20 yesterday afternoon. Darrigo worked his way through the throng of people and automobiles that crowded the square at that hour, confronted Klayman as the latter sat on a pile of newspapers, and demanded that he marry the girl.

Receiving a taunting answer, the avenging brother drew a .32 calibre automatic pistol, purchased from an overseas veteran a few weeks ago, and sent bullet through Klayman's heart as he started to run away. The shot killed Klayman but, as he pitched forward on the sidewalk, Darrigo fired a second time, this bullet lodging in Klayman's right hand near the wrist.

Then the slayer turned and ran, pursued by a half dozen young men who had witnessed the shooting. Starting from the spot directly between the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company car station and the shoe store of Louis Levenson, where he had found and shot his man, Darrigo fled down Broadway, around the corner of Second street and down that street to the corner of Cherry street, flinging down his automatic as he ran.

Slayer Knocked Down and Kicked.

Herbert Bennett, of 121 Poplar street, Chelsea, snatched up the revolver and set chase. He was joined by John Haley, of 38 Highland street, David Namet, of 9 Third street, James Wall, of 105 Broadway, Fred Carey, of 102 Chestnut street, Daniel Murphy, of 15 Marlboro street, all of Chelsea, and Benjamin Levine, of 69 Baker avenue, Revere.

Haley caught Darrigo at Cherry street and knocked him down. The other pursuers came up and jumped on him, and one kicked him. When Patrolmen Edward Isbester and McKenzie took Darrigo to the Chelsea police station he was bleeding from a cut on his face and was thought to have one or more fractured ribs.

Klayman had been distributing papers to Chelsea newsboys as distributing agent of the Boston Traveler, when he was killed.

The body was taken to the Frost Hospital by Patrolmen Elmore and O'Connor in the automobile of Andrew Yunitz. At the hospital Dr. John G. McPhail pronounced the victim dead.

"Somebody told me Klayman sold papers in Chelsea Square. I came to Chelsea and asked him if he would marry by sister. He made an insulting remark and started to run away, and I shot him.

"My sister Frances left my house, where she lives, last Thursday to go to the superintendent of schools in Boston to get a working card. When near the office of the superintendent in Boston she saw Klaman on the street and asked him the way to the superintendent of shoolsc' office. He said he would take her there.

"Instead he took her to his room at 525 Massachusetts avenue. He kept her there all day Thursday, Thursday night and part of Friday forenoon and then put her out."

Darrigo will be arraigned in Chelsea court this morning if he is in such condition that he can appear.

Sorrow to the Darrigo Family.

The first news of the slaying and the first intimation the family of Joseph Darrigo had that a brother's rage against Klayman would take so virulent a form was taken to the Darrigo home, in the Bay View section of South Boston last night by a Globe reporter.

At the home, 192 I street, in an Italian colony, where Darrigo lived with his wife and 1-month-old baby, his mother and the 14-year-old sister, Frances, the news brought a note of despair to an already disturbed household.

Darrigo's young wife burst into tears. A kindly neighbor came down from the tenement above and, upon learning the cause of the grief of the stricken young mother, volunteered to take charge of the baby Antoinette.

The mother and wife of Darrigo knew only that he had gone as usual at 7 o'clock yesterday morning to his work in a Boston tailoring shop.

They knew that he had been violently enraged at the wrong done his little sister, and that he had done some detective work on his own hook to find Klayman and learn what he proposed to do to make amends. Beyond that they knew nothing of his intentions.

Joseph Darrigo, his family told the Globe reporter last night, was born in Italy 25 years ago. He came to this country 11 years ago, landing in New York, where he lived for two years. Nine years ago he came to Boston and two years ago married and took his bride to the I street home, to which he also welcomed his mother and young sister. The baby came just a month ago and the world looked bright to Joseph Darrigo until last Thursday.

The girl's mother declared Frances left home Thursday morning for Williams School in the South End. She was missing Thursday night and Friday. When Frances returned home, she told her mother she had been picked up by Klayman on Tremont sereet and taken to the Massachusetts avenue room, where she had been kept. The mother, apparently angered at the girl's going to Boston without premission and thus getting into her trouble, sent Frances to the House of the Good Shepherd.

During the mother's story, four men, friends and relatives of the Darrigos, came in and the mother explained the calamity that had befallen the family.

They, too, had a story to tell. All four, August Tiodoro, a brother-in-law of Frances and Joseph, of 532 East 7th street, South Boston; Tony Vadala, of 197 Harbor street, East Boston; Antonio Scaramazini, of 94 Everett street, East Boston, and Joseph Plamerer, had visited Klayman on behalf of Frances, after they heard her story last week.

They stated they had called upon Klayman at his room and demanded to know what he proposed to do in the matter. He left the room, he said, telling them he wished to consult his brother. That was the last they saw of him. When he failed to return and they found he had given them the slip, they searched the neighborhood. Visiting a fruit store near Klayman's room, they were told by a fruit dealer, they declared, that he had seen Klayman, grasping the girl's arm, force her itno the house last Thursday.

Get all the Tire Mileage You Buy!

Many tires are ruined by poor tubes and lack of tube care.

Buy good tubes and give them the best of care.

Learn to use a sprinkle of Goodyear French Talc to prevent chafing and friction.

Keep your valves clean and air-tight, and the air-pressure up.

Repairing a tube with the Goodyear Tube Repair Kit — The tube repaired and ready for talcing

Carry spare tubes in Goodyear Tube bags to prevent injury by loose tools and from chafing.

Let your Goodyear Service Station Dealer show you the advantages of Goodyear Heavy Tourist Tubes, and how to use the Goodyear Tube Repair Kit.

He is glad to do this, and many other things that save tires, to increase your mileage. He knows that long mileage tires bring customers to him.

He is taught by Goodyear that low-cost-per-mile has built for Goodyears the largest sale of any tire in the world.

To supplement his work, we will gladly send you, free, our Tire Conservation Course. Write us at Toronto for this course.

The British Great War Veterans' Association of America was recently incorporated and has a membership of about one thousand discharged Canadian and British soldiers.

SOME ALTERATIONS IN SHAMROCK IV.

Designer of the Lipton Challenger Will First Await the Result of Trial Races

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

City Island, N. Y., May 18.—Charles E. Nicholson, designer of the Shamrock IV., who arrived from England on the Mauretania had his first thorough inspection here yesterday of the yacht with which Sir Thomas Lipton hopes to win the America's Cup off Sandy Hook in July.

At the end of the inspection, which lasted several hours, Nicholson stated he was satisfied with the way his plans had been carried out. He suggested one or two minor alterations.

Mr. Nicholson would not speak about the rumor that he planned radical changes in the sail plan of Shamrock IV.

"Nothing will be done," he said, "until we see how Shamrock IV. acts in her trial spins on Long Island Sound."

Even were the work of Shamrock IV. finished, it would be impossible to launch the craft before the end of the week. The Vanitie, which starts racing the Resolute off New Haven on Friday, for the honor of defending the America's Cup, was hauled out here yesterday for her final cleaning.

JENNIE ZIMMERMAN ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

Tells of Her Betrayal by Dr. Zimmerman While Under Influence of Drug

Springfield, Mass., May 17.—The trial of Miss Jennie Zimmerman, charged with the murder of Dr. Henry Zimmerman, her cousin, was resumed today.

Dr. John A. Houston, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane at Northampton, was the first witness. He put in evidence the insanity record of Ida Zimmerman, the defendant's mother, who was several times committed to the hospital, the first time in January, 1915. He said she was a victim of "maniac depressive insanity" and that her hallucinations included delusions of persecution.

Miss Zimmerman took the stand late this forenoon and, with frequent outbursts of tears, resumed the story of her relations with Dr. Zimmerman. She told of a recurrence of an old heart trouble in November, 1915, and of visiting his office for treatment. While under the influence of a drug he gave her, she said she was assaulted. She said her betrayal was followed by promises of marriage and professions of love, in spite of which he refused to condone his offence.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

"The fact is, that to undertake such things, he must possess immense courage."

"Or intense adoration."

"Do you believe, then, in the love of the chevalier for the Queen?"

'I do not believe it. I only mention what report says. Besides, she has turned the brains of so many others, that this would not be at all surprising. She has seduced Berais, so they say."

'N'ever mind; the chevalier must have had confederates in the Temple even."

"Very possible:

"Love breaks through bars,
And laughs at bolts."

"Louis!"

"Ah! it is true."

"Then you think like the rest?"

"Why not?"

"Because, according to your account, the Queen has had already two hundred lovers."

"Two, three, four hundred. She is quite handsome enough for that. I do not say that she loves them; but, in short, they love her. All the world behold the sun, but the sun does not see all the world."

"You say, then, that the Chevalier de Maison Rouge—"

"I say they are on the track at this moment, and if he escapes this time the bloodhounds of the Republic, he will be a cunning fox."

"And what does the Commune in all this affair?"

"The Commune is about to issue a decree, by which every house (like an open register) must display on the front the name of every inhabitant, both male and female. This is realizing the dream of the ancients. Why should there not be a window in every breast, that all the world may see what passes there?"

'An excellent idea that,'" said Maurice.

"To place windows in men's breasts?"

'No; but to place a list of names on every door."

Maurice felt this might be the means of assisting him to discover the Unknown, or at least afford him some clue whereby he might be able to trace her.

"Is it not so?" said Louis. "I have already betted this measure will secure as a bath of five hundred aristocrats. By the bye, we have received this morning, at our club, a deputation of enrolled volunteers; they arrived conducted by our adversaries of that night, whom I had not abandoned till dead drunk—they are here, I tell you, with garlands of flowers and immortal crowns."

"Indeed," replied Maurice, laughing; 'and how many were there?"

"They were thirty, and were shaved, wearing bouquets in their buttonholes."

"Citizens of the Club of Thermopyles," said the orator, 'we wish the union of Frenchmen not to be interrupted by any misunderstanding; we therefore come to fraternize anew with such excelent patriots as yourselves."

"Well, what then?"

"Then we have fraternized, and in this reiteration, as Diasonis expresses himself, we raised an altar to the country with the table of the secretary and two carafes in which the nosegays were deposited. As you were the hero of the feat, you were three time summoned to apear, that you might be crowned; but as you did not reply, and it was necessary to crown something, they crowned the bust of Washington. This was the order of the ceremony."

As Louis concluded this statement which at this epoch had nothing of burlesque, a noise was heard proceeding from the street; the drums, first heard in the distance, now approached nearer and nearer. They easily comprehended the cause of this noise, now too common to be misunderstood.

"What is all that?" said Maurice.

'The proclamation of the decree of the Commune," said Louis.

"I will run to the station," said Maurice, leaping from his bed, and calling his servant to assist him.

"I will return home and go to bed,' said Louis. "I had not two hours sleep last night, thanks to those outrageous volunteers. If they only fight a little, let me sleep; but if they fight much, come and fetch me."

"But why are you so smart today?' said Maurice, eyeing him all over as he rose to withdraw.

"Because in my road hither I am obliged to pass the 'Rue Bethisy,' and in La Rue Bethisy, on the third flat, is a window which always opens when I pass."

"Then you do not fear being taken for a fop?"

"I a fop! I am, on the contrary, known for a French sansculotte. But one must make some sacrifice to the softer sex. The worship of the country does not exclude that of love; indeed, one commands the other—

"Our republicans profess
We but follow ancient lore,
Beauty we prize none the less,
That we love our freedom more.

Dare to whistle to that, and I denounce you as an oristocrat. Adieu, mon ami."

Louis held out his hand to Maurice, which the young republican cordially shook, and went out thinking of a sonnet to Chloris.

CHAPTER V.

What Sort of Man the Citizen Maurice Lindey Was.

While Maurice Lindey, having dressed quickly, proceeds to the section of La Rue Lepelletier, of which, as we already know, he was secretary, we will endeavor to lay before the public the antecedents of this young man, introduced upon the scene by one of those impulses so familiar to powerful and generous natures.

The young man had spoken correctly the preceding evening, when in reply he had said his name was Maurice Lindey, resident in La Rue du Roule. He might have added he was a child of that half aristocracy, accorded to the gentlemen of the robe; His ancestors, for two hundred years, had distinguished themselves by that same parliamentary opposition which had rendered so illustrious the names of Moles and Masson. His father, the good Lindey, who had passed his life grumbling against despotism, when on the fourteenth of July, '89, the Bastile had fallen by the hands of the people, died from sudden fright, and the shock of seeing despotism replaced by a liberty militant, leaving his only independent by fortune and republican in principles.

The revolution which had closely followed this great event found Maurice in all the vigor and maturity of manhood becoming a champion prepared to enter the lists; his republican education improved by his great assiduity to the clubs, and from reading all the pamphlets of that period. God knows how many Maurice had read. Deep and rational contempts for the hierarchy, philospohical consideration of the events which formed the body, absolute denial of all nobility which was not personal, impartial appreciation of the past, ardour for new ideas, sympathy with the people, blended with more aristocratic organizations, such were the morals, not of those whom we have selected, but which history has given us the heroes of our tale.

As to his personal appearance, he was in height five feet eight inches, from twenty-five to twenty-six years of age, and muscular as Hercules. His beauty was of the French east, that is to say, fair complexion, blue eyes, curling chestnut hair, rosy lips, and ivory teeth.

"BANNER"—The Open-Coil Bed Spring
Built for Sleep—by Simmons Limited

THIS "Banner" spring is worth seeing even if you are not thinking of buying a bed spring at present.

And when you stop in at your merchant's store to see it—take first a few minutes to look over his full stock of sleeping equipment from Simmons Limited.

You will find it interesting—and illuminating—to see how beautifully that Simmons principle, built for sleep, has been worked out to cover the full range of sleeping equipment.

Beds, Cribs, Springs, Mattresses, Pillows—not merely one of each kind but a wide and versatile choice.

Here, for instance, is the "Banner" Spring—for those who prefer the open coil type of spring to the box spring.

The Simmons "Banner" Coil Spring is constructed of the highest grade carbon steel wire—so strong and resilient as to support the body perfectly.

Patented interlaced top keeps the spring taut and firm—Every part evenly flat and elastic—No sagging or humping.

The Simmons "Banner" Spring yields gently to the weight of the sleeper—with equal support for the shoulders and hips.

There is none of the slackening and sagging which break your rest when sleeping on an ordinary spring.

Consider too, the heavy steel frame with angle side rails—a Simmons feature that insures a lifetime of wear.

Note the smooth unbroken finish. No roughness or loose wires to hurt the fingers or tear the mattress.

Simmons Beds, Springs, Mattresses and Pillows cost little if any more than the ordinary merchandise of the average store.

A post card to us will bring you the names of Simmons merchants near your home.

STAFF OF LIFE NOW COSTS SIXTEEN CENTS PER LOAF

Bakers Advanced Price Yesterday Due to the Increased Cost of Flour

MOLASSES NOW LUXURY INSTEAD OF NECESSITY

Tea and Other Foodstuffs Cost More and May Go Higher

Bread, which has been selling for some time at fifteen cests a loaf, took on a new appearance this morning when it was learned that prices had again advanced, bringing it up to sixteen cents a loaf retail and fifteen cents wholesale. This is due to the increase in price of flour, and local wholesalers are again looking for another substantial increase in flour to occur at any time. Flour is at present selling at $16.40 a barrel, and it is expected that the increase will bring it over the seventeen dollar mark.

Other articles of comomn use and food articles are increasing in price, molasses being the latest article to advance. The selling price wholesale is now $1.75 a gallon and wholesalers are awaiting further advances. Indications point to an adance of at least ten per cent. in all varieties of tea. A rise in sugar is looked for and all canned goods are expected to advance ten per cent. if not more. Prunes and other dry fruits have gone higher.

The only foodstuffs that have decreased in price are lard and all pork products and these will take a further slump. Mill feeds are practically unotainable at the present time and local wholesalers have exhausted their supply of these. Oat and corn products are still holding firm.

Inquest Into Recent Wreck On C. N. R. at Penniac Began Last Night at Marysville

Drs. Ross, McNally and McIntyre Had Difference of Opinion as to Amputation of John Estabrook's Leg in Order to Save His Life—Three Trainmen Examined

The inquest into the recent wreck on the C. N. R. at Penniac on Monday, May 10th, whereby John Estabrooks and John Gillies, two C. N. R. employees, lost their lives, was begun at Marysville last evening by Coroner B. M. Mullin, in the Knights of Pythias Hall.

In all twenty-eight witnesses have been summoned and last night Dr. Ross, Dr. McNally and Dr. McIntyre, the physicians who were at the scene of the wreck, and Eugene Moore, Vernon Banks and Edgar Robinson, three C. N. R. employees, were called and gave evidence.

Eugene Moore, Vernon Banks and Edgar Robinson, three trainmen of the crew of the Stanley Branch Engine which passed over the bridge just previous to the wreck, were called but their evidence was of no great value and the three physicians, Dr. McIntyre, Dr. Ross, and Dr. McNally, took up the rest of the evening.

Amputation was Discussed

Dr. McIntyre stated that he had arrived on the scene of the wreck about 5.30 o'clock and he found Estabrooks caught by the foot and resting in a reclining position with his head, one arm, and one breast above the water. He was being supported by the men in the boat. He had given Estabrooks a hypodermic and a drink of brandy but took no other action as he heard that the railway doctors were on their way to the scene of the wreck. Dr. Ross and Dr. McNally arrived about 6.50 o'clock and by this time Estabrooks had sunk until only his head and one arm were out of the water. After viewing him Dr. McNally and Dr. Ross spoke of amputation and he (McIntyre) came up and joined in the discussion.

As to what took place at this discussion the three doctors disagreed. Dr. McNally stated that he was very strongly opposed to amputation and that the other two doctors had agreed that under existing circumstances a successful amputation would be impossible. At that time he stated he saw no hope for the man.

Dr. Ross considered that Dr. McNally was strongly opposed to amputation and that Dr. McIntyre assented to Dr. McNally's views. While he himself considered that as a last resource an amputation should be attempted he considered himself overruled and so did not press the opinion he held.

Dr. McIntyre stated that the other two doctors were Railway doctors and he considered it their case. Dr. McNally was strongly opposing amputation when he approached and Dr. Ross was silent. He took Dr. Ross' silence to mean that he assented to Dr. McNally's views. At this time he (Dr. McIntyre) favored amputation as a last resort.

Whose Patient Was He?

A good deal of inaction was caused by the misuderstanding as to whose case Estabrooks was. Dr. McIntyre claimed that as the other two doctors were railway doctors the patient was theirs after they arrived on the scene. The railway doctors stated that as the man was not on their list of patients and as Dr. McIntyre was first in attendance the man was his patient.

The evidence of the doctors differed as to the possibility of a successful amputation. Dr. McNally stated that there was no possiblity of saving the man's life and he thought that it would not have been a humane act to have attempted the amputation. He thought further that the amputation would have been a physical impossibility. The man would in all probability have bled to death or died of the Enormous Profits Charged Against Wholesale Grocers in Oklahoma Court

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Oklahoma City, Okla., May 19.—Eleven men connected with wholesale grocery concerns in Oklahoma, and one a member of the state fair price commission, appeared in federal court here today to plead to charges of violating the Lever Act by profiteering in the sale of sugar.

The twelve defendants were indicted yesterday by a grand jury. They are at liberty under $2,500 bond each.

According to Herbert M. Peck, United States District Attorney, some of the men obtained profits running as high as ten thousand per cent. on a year's business.

Others made profits of approximately 5,000 per cent., the District Attorney declared, adding that the alleged high percentage of profit was through the turning over of investments two or more times a week at a profit of 100 per cent. on each transaction.

Accuse Britain Of Violating It's Pledges to Reds

British Labor Leaders Denounce Polish Attack on Russia

PROLONG WAR INDEFINITELY

British Government Accused of Sending Munition to Poles.

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

London, May 19.—Denunciation of the Polish attack on Bolshevik Russia and what is claimed to be "Great Britain's complicity in that offensive," is contained in a manifesto issued here by a number of labor leaders, including John Robert Clynes, Wm. Bruce and Wm. Crooks, Laborite members of Parliament.

The manifesto states the attacks of Poland on soviet Russia mean a "prolongation of war and chaos, the victory of secret diplomacy and the defeat of the League of Nations."

The British Government is accused of "violating its pledges by sending munitions to Poland," the manifesto declaring:

"The ferociously cruel blockade of Russia is actually maintained, although leagally non-existent, while a stream of goods is flowing into Poland."

The statement concludes by saying:

"The temper of the whole labor movement is rising rapidly and labor should see that the attack upon Russia is ended."

The triennial conference of the dockers union, sitting at Plymouth, has passed by acclamation a resolution forbidding the loading of any more munitions to be used against Russia.

According to the Herald, organ of labor, the question of a national strike as a protest against the Polish attack on Russia is being discussed in labor circles.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 19.—Bolshevik forces, which on Monday began a counter offensive against the Poles and Ukrainians, have made gains on the extreme ends of the battle line, which extends from northwest of Mohilev to some distance south of Kiev, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless.

The text of the statement follows:

"In the Orsha region (north of Mohilev) our troops, supported by our flotilla, have captured the town of Koneff. To the southwest we captured the village of Zvritch.

"In the Taratscha region, about sixty miles south of Kiev, we have captured the village of Vingrad, northwest of Svenigorod. Southwest of Vaparcika station the fighting continues in our favor."

GIRL CHANGED HER MIND ABOUT MAN

New York, May 19.—There is nothing in the United States immigration laws about a woman who changes her mind in mid-ocean, so Miss Violet Cooper, an English girl, who came to New York on the Mauretania the other day is now on her way back home. She started for America to marry an American soldier who had been her sweetheart in England, but thought the matter over during the voyage and decided to remain unwed. The immigration officials turned her back because of the decision.

THE OUIJA BOARD FOOLS THE POLICE

Pittsburg, May 19.—A ouija board was responsible for Miss Bertha Henry landing in jail recently, and police authorities demand that she take steps to prevent it from getting out of control on murder tips.

The ouija board, Miss Henry said, informed her that three persons had just been shot in the room overhead, and to make sure she had the message "repeated" three times. The police arrived at No. 507 Amery street in response to her alarm that a murder had been committed, but no trace was found. Coroner Dempsey asked her, "Where do you get that stuff?" She referred him to the ouija board.

BRUSILOFF IN COMMAND OF RUSSIANS

Former Commander-in-Chief Under the Imperial Regime Assumes Authority

SOVIET GOVERNMENT IN BACKGROUND NOW

Rumors of a Military Coup at Moscow Have Been Current for Some Days

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 19.—General Brusiloff, former commander-in-chief of the Russian armies under the imperial regime, has for the time being virtually assumed the supreme authority formerly wielded in the Russian soviet Government by Nikolai Lenine and other people's commissaries, according to a statement printed this morning by the London Daily Telegraph.

This would seem to confirm a recent despatch to the Associated Press that military authorities in Russia were about to assume the powers formerly held in the hands of civilian officials of the Bolshevik regime in Moscow. Rumors that a military coup had been sprung at the Russian capital have been current for several days.

Life Sentence For Killing His Wife

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Halifax, N. S., May 19.—John Delaney, of this city, convicted of manslaughter by beating his wife to death at their home here last year, was today sentenced by Judge Ritchie to twenty years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. Delaney's counsel has applied for a crown case reserved, and proposes to submit evidence to prove that the prisoner is not normal. He said in court today that Delaney, who was overseas, had been severely wounded in the head.

SERMONS IMPOSE STRAIN ON CLERGY

London, May 16.—Are sermons indispensable? This is one of the questions on which a decision may be taken by the bishops of the Anglica church at their meeting in Lambeth in July.

A section of churchmen are declared to be of the opinion that the day of the sermon has passed. They hold that if a man has not the gift of preaching it would be better for everyone that he should not preach. The "two sermons each Sunday" custom, they say, imposes a great strain on the clergy—a strain equally if not more heavily felt by the laity who are required to listen to these effusions. The unpopularity of published volumes of sermons, once in great demand, is cited by this faction as evidence of the sermon's waning effectiveness.

COURTING PLACES SCARCE IN LONDON

London, May 16.—London's acute housing shortage presents another complication—hundreds of young couples are declared to have no suitable courting places.

This phase of the situation manifested itself in a court proceeding at Willesden, where a man living in a tenement house complained of courting couples sitting on the stairs. He was granted a summons against a suitor who, the complainant said, had assaulted him when he fell over him.

THE HAT SNATCHER DISTURBS LONDON

London, Moy 19—London has a new kind of thief, the hat snatcher. He mingles with the crowd, snatches off a hat and passes it to a confederate, who mkaes a quick getaway. In the region of Victoria station five hundred complaints have been received from persons whose hats have been yanked off while they were hurrying to catch trains. Because of the prevailing high prices for hats second had chapeaux can be sold by the thieves at a substantial profit.

Foch Says France Must Prepare For German Reprisals

The Franco-Belgian Military Convention

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Brussels, May 19.—Conversations relative to a military convention between France and Belgium will begin immediately after the conclusion of the Franco-Belgian agreement concerning the railways of Luxemburg. Marshal Foch will submit a memorandum to the Belgian general staff, it is understood, and after preliminary conversations the Belgian government probably will ask Great Britain to delegate an officer to participate in the negotiations.

COMPLICATIONS HUNGARY NOW

The Cabinet Council Decided to Sign the Peace Treaty as a Temporary Measure

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Budapest, May 19.—The reasons given by the cabinet council for signing the peace treaty as a temporary measure were:

First, necessity for immediate reconstruction, with the hope of obtaining foreign credits and also to prevent further depreciation in the money of the country.

Second, to establish internal order and get the workmen employed and to prevent the military party from becoming too strong and precipitating another revolution which Hungary could not survive. The peasant party has expressed strong views on this subject, as the burden of mobilization would fall upon it.

Third, it was feared that failure to sign would hazard the rich harvests throughout Hungary's less fortunate neighbors finding an excuse for another occupation of the country.

Fourth, a strong central government will afford opportunity for Regent Horthy to reorganize the administration and increase outside friendships.

Fifth, the signing will give the necessary calm during which to elect a King and dispose of the present provisional government.

Ratification of the treaty offers a wide field for new complications, owing to the fact that there is no permanent head of the state, according to the viewpoint in some quarters here.

Followers of former Emperor Charles refer to his notification to the peace conference that no peace will be valid without his signature.

Mrs. Burton, who is an amateur skipper, won many prizes in regattas of the Royal Corinthian Yacht Club.

He was awarded $5,000 at the assizes here yesterday. The defendant company had expended $2,000 in medical and hospital fees for the plaintiff since the accident.

Who Will Believe Germany is Renouncing War, He Asks

HUN IDEA OF MAKING WAR

Might is Right Teuton Maxim and They Will Bide Their Time.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 19. — A warning that France must in the mide[illegible] make prepara[illegible] was uttered by Marshal Foch, who presided at the annual meeting of the Polytechnic School for Army Engineers today. Discussing lessons of the great war, he said the present economic struggle is the first part of the peace programme, but preparation for war is the second part.

"Which of us," he asked, "dares believe that Germany is renouncing war on the morrow after ruin—Germany, which, inspired by sheer ambition, took up arms in 1864, 1866, 1870 and 1914 on the plea of historic necessity? Germany's neighbors, whether they wish to or not, will be forced to keep up armies and maintain strong frontiers because, quite apart from the generous intentions of civilized humanity, there are historic realities and racial appetites, just as there are geographical realities."

"How can we help mistrusting a nation," he continued, "which reduced to impotence by the great Napoleon, was able, by its martial ardor, to reestablish itself and bring about complete overhrow of the colossal Napoleonic Empire and by superlative militarism and methodic development, extend its authority from east Prussian marshes to beyond the Rhine, making war its national industry and might its right."

$100,000 LOSS IN FIRE AT OTTAWA

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 19—Damage to the extent of between $75,000 and $100,000 resulted from a fire which broke out in the store of A. J. Alexander, Limited, Sparks street, local furriers, last night. Practically all the loss was in the valuable furs destroyed, which had been stored on the premises by people of Ottawa for safe keeping during the summer.

The greater part of this loss is covered by insurance. Little damage was done to the building itself. The cause of the fire is unknown.

PROHIBITION ENFORCEMENT ON THE BORDER

Prominent Canadians Tell of the Inconvenience Travellers Are Subjected To

THEIR VALISES AND POCKETS ARE SEARCHED

Says Public Morality is Being Undermined by Vast Illicit Traffic in Liquors

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

New York, May 19.—Sir Henry Pellatt and Mr. Gordon Perry, of Toronto, while on a recent trip to New York, were given a personal demonstration of [illegible] displayed by some United States prohibition enforcement officers in seeking for Canadian alcoholic refreshment at the border. The experience is described in a letter from Sir Henry printed in this morning's issue of the Sun.

Sir Henry declares that the incident convinced him that prohibition in the United States is to bring about "a condition of things in which the old time name of Land of Liberty becomes little more than a joke.

"It involves an intrusion upon ordinary individual rights," Sir Henry continues, "that is contrary to the simplest principles of British liberty. No man is any longer free to arrange his own life as he likes. His going and coming are watched by a horde of spies and informers. The ordinary peaceful traveller is treated as if he were a criminal."

Sir Henry thus describes his experiences with the United States officials:

"When we came to the American border in walked a customs inspector. He first went through our valises, then our overcoats that were hanging on the pegs. Then each of us in turn had to get up so that he might lift up the seats and look underneath among the pillows, etc.

"He then took the sofa seat off and made a thorough examination of the cushions. After this he went into the wash room and looked around, even taking the top off the ice tin. I truly believe that the only place he did not look was down our throats."

Sir Henry expresses the opinion that "it is ridiculous that any law should be tolerated which necessitates such treatment of the ordinary citizen."

He sums up the result of Uncle Sam's experiment in prohibition as he sees it by declaring:

"Public morality is being undermined by a vast illicit traffic in intoxicating liquors, often adulterated in the most poisonous way, and the public conscience is being shocked by the sight of people being deliberately tempted to break the law by appeals to friendship or sympathy on the part of hired informers."

Luxury Taxes Imposed in Profusion by the Tariff Changes Before the House

The Minister of Finance Expects to Make Up the Loss From Dropping the Seven and a Half Per Cent War Tax by a General Tax on Luxuries

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 19. — The budget speech has come to be almost as much a social function as the opening of Parliament and yesterday richly dressed ladies crowded the private galleries and heard with dismay that hereafter they would have to pay from 10 to 20 per cent. more for the rich apparel and ornaments with which they delight to deck themselves, while the female "hoi polloi" in the Public Gallery smiled grimly and contentedly at the "dresses under $45" which they were wearing, and reflected that there are sometimes consolations in belonging to the old clothes brigade.

It was the luxurious who had cause to groan over this year's budget, and that being the case, it should give a considerable measure of satisfaction. Members of the government have been anticipating that result, at all events, as for some time past hints have been dropped that the cabinet had at last found something in the way of budget-cheering which woud make a hit.

The so-called "luxury taxes" are the outstanding feature of the budget. They are, largely, to make up for the $30,000,000 or more which the Finance Minister expects to lose from the dropping of the 7½ per cent. war tax. They run from ten per cent. on such articles of common wear as boots over $9 and other apparel on the same scale to the 50 per cent. which will be demanded on articles of gold for house hold use, whatever that may comprise.

Some Radical Proposals.

The taxation proposals are, on the whole, pretty radical. There is one class of luxury taxes of ten per cent. imposed on various classes of goods, including wearing apparel over a certain price, the tax to be paid by the purchaser to the vendor at the time of sale. There is another class carrying the same tax, including pleasure and sporting implements, musical intsruments, candy and chewing gum, when sold by the Canadian manufacturer or imported.

A tax of 20 per cent. of the total purchase price is imposed on another class of goods, expensive jewellery and toilet articles, wearing apparel and household furniture, payable by purchaser when bought. The same tax is imposed on mechanical musical instruments and records; playing cards are taxed from 25 to 50 cents a pack. Excise duties on beer and wines will be 30 cents a gallon, spirits two dollars a gallon, sparking wines three dollars a gallon.

Fifteen Per Cent. on Motor Cars.

The excise duty on Canadian manufactured or imported cars is increased from ten to fifteen per cent, tax of one per cent. is imposed on sales of manufacturers, jobbers and other dealers excepting retailers, but excluding a large list of essential foodstuffs. The two cent stamps tax is retained on checks, and an additional two cents per hundred dollars is imposed on bills of exchange and promissory notes. Stamp dates on patent medicines are retained, but will be affixed by the manufacturer or importer. The film tax on moving pictures is abolihsed. All the above taxes are effective from May 19th.

Incomes of $5,000 and up are taxed an additional five per cent. The business profits tax is retained, but the exemption allowed is increased from 6 to 10 per cent. On pronts between ten and fifteen per cent. of capital the tax is 20 per cent., between fifteen and twenty, 30 per cent., between twenty and thirty, 50 per cent. In excess of 30 per cent. profit the tax is 60 per cent.

Last year the five per cent. British preferential war tax was removed as well as the seven and a half per cent. tax on food, clothing, agricultural implements, etc. Now the war customs duties are entirely removed.

Intensive criticism of the new budget is still to come.

The Fielding Amendment.

The Hon. W. S. Fielding, put up as the chief opposition critic last night, made practically no reference to the taxation schedules of the budget, confining himself almost entirely to the financial situation, and the tenor of his remarks, though apparently meant to be helpful and kindly, began with a warning as to the direction in which the heavy debt was in danger of ruining the country, and ended with an appeal to the Farmers to join the Liberal party in saving the country. The amendment he proposed to the budget was a moderate one, and apparently was meant to forestall any more radical amendment which the agrarian party may be disposed to introduce. It was very general in tone, confining its demands to "substantial reductions" and ignoring the removal of the 7½ per cent. tax, which may be fairly considered to have done much toward that end. There may be some disposition to question the accuracy of the budget definition of luxuries. It is difficult, for instance, to buy boots at nine dollars, men's hats at five, or suits at forty-five by even the most economical minded. Mr. Breadner, Commissioner of Taxation, who had a good deal to do with framing budget schedules, is of the opinion this clause will work advantageously, however, by immediately reducing higher priced articles so as to come within the tax exempt classification.

LARGE WOOL CLIP FOR THIS YEAR

Grading To Be Carried On In This City During the Summer

Reports coming into the Department of Agriculture from various parts of the province indicate that there will be a large wool clip this year. The shearings are at present under way and the farmers are shipping their wool to the warehouses in the Exhibition Building in this city which is being used as a grading station. Last year the wool clip amounted to 55,000 pounds and this year it is expected that it will be about double that amount.

The wool is handled by the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association of Toronto, an organization of sheep raisers from various parts of Canada. Last year this Association marketed over $4,000,000 pounds of Canadian wool and this year is planning for a much larger year. Work in this connection has been getting so heavy that the services of Prof. W. H. J. Tisdale, formerly connected with the Animal Husbandry Department of Saskatchewan, and W. W. Thompson, former Director of Co-operative work in the same province, have been secured for assistance in the work. These gentlemen will visit this province in a short time to look over the work in connection with the wool growing industry and will endeavor to enlarge the same.

The station in this city expects to have all the wool in by June 15th, when the majority of it will in all probability be marketed in Boston. The Boston prices as reported are as follows:

Coarse—20 to 22 cents.
Low combing—27 to 33 cents.
Low medium combing—45 to 52 cents.
Medium combing—55 to 65 cents.
Fine Medium Combing—65 to 70 cents.

A Summary of the Taxation Proposals Submitted By the Minister of Finance Yesterday

The Luxury Taxes Increased, as Well as Those on Beers, Wines and Spirits—A Sales Tax of One Per Cent. on All Manufacturers, Wholesale Dealers, Importers

Ottawa, May 19.—Following is a summary of taxation proposals brought down yesterday and submitted to parliament by Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance:

Luxury taxes:

Ten per cent. of total purchase price of boots and shoes costing over $9 a a pair; men's and boys' suits costing over $45 cash; men's and women's overcoats costing over fifty dollars cash; fur coats and robes costing over $100; women's dresses over $45; women's suits over sixty and on hats, hose, neckwear, shirts, purses and gloves costing above certain specified figures, as well as on some other wearing apparel. Ten per cent. on pleasure boats, yachts, canoe and motor boats. Twenty per cent. on player pianos, gramophones and mechanical instruments and records. Fifty per cent. on articles of gold for household use. The latter two taxes payable at time of sale by manufacturer or when imported.

Beers, wines and spirits: 30 cents a gallon on beer; $2 a gallon on spirits and $3 a gallon on imported wines (sparkling).

Motor cars, excise tax increased from ten to fifteen per cent.

Sales tax: One per cent. on sales of all manufacturers, wholesale dealers, jobbers or importers (not retailers). This tax not to apply to large list of essential foodstuffs, cattle, foods, anthracite or bituminous coal, or to goods exported.

Income tax: Further general addition to these taxes of five per cent. now added on incomes of $5,000 and up, to be effective this year. In future income tax returns must be accompanied by at least twenty-five per cent., or the whole of amount estimated payable.

Business profits: Present tax modified by increasing exemption allowed from seven to ten per cent. and changing the schedule of taxation to a range of twenty to fifty per cent. on profits in excess of 10 per cent. on capital to profits in excess of twenty per cent. on capital and not exceeding thirty per cent. On profits in excess of thirty per cent. on capital the tax will be sixty per cent. For small business with capital of not less than $25,000 and under $50,000, twenty per cent. on all profits exceeding ten per cent. instead of twenty-five per cent. as now.

Tariff changes: The seven and a half per cent. war customs duty is taken off all remaining items. Sir Henry announced that all public sittings for tariff revisions would be held throughout Canada after prorogation.

To Liquidate Canada's Burdens.

Introducing the resolutions embodying his tax proposals, Sir Henry Drayton expressed the belief that the Canadian people would meet the task of liquidating Canada's financial burdens during the coming year.

"Some people today think that the country is in a bad state. I do not," said Sir Henry.

"Some people apparently believe that the scheme ahead is a bigger one than Canada can look after. I do not. I wonder if we are not altogether too prone to forget what Canada has done during the war. The nation that has done so much for Europe and the world, the people which formed the spear-head in the forces of righteousness, cannot fail to do something for that Canada which is all the dearer to us for the sacrifices which have been made by her men and women, in the principle that it is impossible to do too much for Canada."

A feature of the luxury tax is its general application. It hits articles of all kinds. Small wares, as well as the more expensive opera cloaks, come under the tax. Ten per cent. will be levied on the purchase price of boots in excess of $9 per pair; on hats (men's and boys') in excess of $5 each; on caps (men's and boys') in excess of $2 each; on stockings (silk) mens and boys' in excess of $1 a pair; on neckties and neckwear (men's and boys') in excess of $1.50 each; waistcoats (men's) sold separately from suits, in excess of $5; shirts, including nightshirts (men's and boys') in excess of $3 each; hats, bonnets and hoods (women's and misses') in excess of $12 each; hose, stockings (silk), women's and misses', in excess of $2 per pair; kimonos, petticoats and waists in excess of $12 each; pyjamas and underwear in excess of $5.

The new taxes on luxuries, beer, wine and spirts, motor cars, sales and the stamp duties, come into effect tomorrow.

After prorogation, Sir Henry announced, public sittings with a view to tariff revision would be held throughout the Dominion. The investigation would be conducted by the department of finance with the assistance of such expert and other advisers as would be necessary to conduct a thorough inquiry.

The policy of the government called for a thorough revision of the tariff with a view to the adoption of such reasonable measures as were necessary.

(a) To assist in providing adequate revenues; (b) to stabilize legitimate industries and to encourage the establishment of new industries essential to the proper economic development of the nation—to the end, that a proper and ever increasing field of useful and remunerative employment be available for the nation's workers; (c) to develop to the fullest extent Canada's natural resources; (d) specially to promote and increase trade with the Mother Country, the sister Dominions and Colonies and Crown Dependencies; (e) to prevent the abuse of the tariff for the exploitation of the consumer, and (f) to safeguard the interests of the Canadian people in the existing world struggle for commercial and industrial supremacy.

"As a means of raising revenue," Sir Henry added, "the tariff should be so adjusted as to place the chief burden upon those best able to bear it." Articles of luxury should be heavily taxed through the imposition of customs and excise rates. Necessaries of life, not produced or manufactured in Canada should, if taxed at all, bear only such imposts as were necessary for revenue purposes.

As Sir Henry outlined the proposed increases on alcoholic liquors, Mr. Jacques Burneau, Three Rivers, raised a laugh with the query, "Why tax beer?"

"Cheer up," replied Sir Henry, "we are not going to tax two per cent."

HEARING YESTERDAY IN ARSON CHARGE

At 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, at Waasis, Sunbury Co., Magistrate Geo. DeMille, who is associated with Squire George W. Kimball, of Burton, Sunbury, commenced the preliminary examination in the case of the King vs. Gilbert Howland, charged upon information of John Little, jr., with having set fire to the house of Fred Austin (the latter two being both returned soldiers) at Waasis on Thursday night. The Soldiers' Settlement Board have looked into the matter on behalf of the men from overseas, and have decided to demand a full investigation. The crime of arson is one of the most serious in the calendar, being punishable at the maximum of life imprisonmen. The consequence is that while the accused's friends have interested themselves in his behalf, there is general satisfaction at the action of the settlement board towards protecting the property secured by them for the returned soldiers. It will tend, moreover, to promote some sense of security among property holders in general. Mr. J. J. Hughes is today looking after the interest of the prisoner Howland who is out on bail; and the case for the prosecution is in the hands of Mr. Fred J. Peters. In case of the defendant being sent up for trial he would appear before Judge Crocket, who is assigned to the circuit at Burton Tuesday next, unless meantime he should decide to take speedy trials.

THE TARIFF AND THE NEW TAXES.

The Finance Minister appears to have made somewhat reasonable provision for the needed much larger revenue. There are but few changes in the regular tariff, and these changes make an increase in duty on beers, wine, champagne, liquors, playing cards, etc. The general principle upon which the tariff is based is not affected. There are excise taxes, however, on luxuries, and on the higher priced wearing apparel, including boots and shoes; and from these taxes a large revenue will result. There is, for instance, a ten per cent. excise tax on boots, shoes, pumps and slippers which sell at nine dollars a pair and more; there is an excise tax of ten per cent. on hats and caps for men and boys valued at five dollars and more, on neckties which sell at $1.50 and more, and on suits for men and boys which sell at forty-five dollars and over. In the case of imported goods, the excise will be paid on the duty value, the principle of protection of home industry applying. On automobiles and articles of that kind the excise tax is increased from ten to fifteen per cent., on the principle that those of the people who can afford such luxuries can best bear the burden of taxation. On other specified high priced goods, such as luxury articles made of gold or silver, or for adornment or recreation, the excise tax ranges as high as fifty per cent.

The stamp tax is another source of revenue. Hereafter we must add two cents on promissory notes and bills of exchange for every hundred dollars; quite an increase over the rate of yesterday; and a two-cent stamp on every share of stock transferred. Every business man dealing in articles of luxury, specified in the bill as articles of luxury, must pay an annual license fee of two dallars.

The seven and a half per cent. war tax, which yielded $30,000,000 last year, is removed; the duty on moving picture films has been repealed.

The special taxes have been changed somewhat. The business profits tax, to which serious objections were taken, is continued; but exemption is extended from seven to ten per cent., and there is an intimation of a hope that conditions will be such next year that this tax will not be continued longer.

Taxes on incomes of five thousand dollars and upwards are increased by five per cent., making the tax on a personal income of five thousand dollars $126 instead of $100 such as now; on a corporation income of one hundred thousand dollars $10,500 instead of $6,000 as now.

Business with a capital of $25,000 or over, and under $25,000 have now to pay one-quarter of all profits exceeding ten per cent. on the amount of capital employed, but this tax will now be reduced from 25 per cent. to 20 per cent.

The Finance Minister has promised a complete revision of the tariff for next year. There is to be a ministerial commission of inquiry, assisted by experts, who will take evidence in various parts of Canada before the next session of Parliament with the purpose of completing revision in a scientific manner. The objects of further tariff revision by this government, Sir Henry says, will be to get an adequate revenue to stabilize legitimate industries; to encourage the establishment of new ones; to develop our natural resources; to promote inter-imperial trade; to prevent the abuse of the tariff for the exploitation of the consumer by placing the chief insistence on heavy customs and excise taxes on articles of luxury; to prevent the exodus of Canadian workers for employment denied them at home by reason of the export of natural resources primary products, and raw material; to permit machinery and implements of production to be purchased at prices paid by competing countries for similar articles; to prevent combines, trusts or associations to restrain trade and to prevent competition or enhance the selling price of any article unduly.

Sir Henry has apparently made the best of a difficult situation. We have an enormous obligation to meet; and in assigning the burdens, he has evidently endeavored to make an equitable distribution, whatever may be the opinion of Canadians of moderate means and of Canadians whose energy, ability, foresight and general enterprise have, fortunately for the country, earned wealth in capital.

THE CITY AND THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS.

It will be necessary when the plans of the proposed changes to be made by the Government Railways are submitted to the City Council for approval that they be intelligently and fully investigated before they are approved by that body. The stopping of two of the main thoroughfares of the city, Charlotte and George streets, is a matter not to be considered lightly. The location of the subway on Waterloo Row is also a very important thing. This is one of the beauty spots of the city, and located as it is on the main entrance from St. John and the East, its natural and present beauty must be maintained. The road approaching and leaving the subway should be so located that the curves in the present road will not be accentuated and a clear line of vision be afforded through the tunnel. If this can be done, and at the same time the avenue of maples now existing retained to border the new roadway, and the present road seeded down, the desired result should be obtained; and it can be.

The new street running from University Avenue to Waterloo Row will have to be placed so that the intersection will be well above the ramp or slope of the subway: this as only a matter of ordinary protection to the public. We have in the past given a good deal to the Canadian National in street crossings, lands, etc. The present proposals are put forth as necessary requirements of the railway, but the interests of the citizens and the good of the community should and must be the paramount consideration.

AN AWKWARD SITUATION.

The decline in the value of invested funds during the past few years has brought severe hardship to the English clergy. Even before the war the average salary of the rector was pitiably small; today it is not sufficient to keep him from actual hunger and want. He has become a member of what the Englishmen call their new poor class. Compelled by the requirements of his position to keep up a given standard of living and yet not furnished with the means to do so, his life resolves itself into a long, bitter struggle to maintain a front of respectability.

In its efforts to do something to relieve this intolerable situation, a commission, headed by the Bishop of London, has recommended the demolishing of nineteen churches in the city of London and the sale of their sites. The congregations of these churches are small, the attendance at services averaging for each but a score or two of persons, whereas the ground they cover is very valuable. One site alone would bring £500,000. There can be no surprise, then, that the Bishop of London wishes to sacrifice these churches, rather than have the clergy remain in want.

Yet the sacrifice would be a very great one, a sacrifice which would bring a pang of regret, not only to the heart of every Englishman, but to many Canadians as well. These old churches are of great historic and architectural interest, some of them being the work of Sir Christopher Wren. No wonder the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings has taken up the case, and is appealing for assistance in its efforts to save them!

The despatches fail to state which buildings have been marked for destruction, but so extensive a programme will undoubtedly include some of the shrines visited by hundreds of tourists in pre-war days. To pull down St. Helm's, the Westminster Abbey of the city, or St. Brides, built by Wren in 1680; or St. Bartholomew the Great, with the exception of the chapel in the Tower, the oldest church in the city of London; or St. Mary, one of Wren's best works; or St. Stephen's behind the Mansion House, would be hardly less distressing to Canadians than to Englishmen themselves.

It is sincerely to be hoped that something can be done to preserve these architectural treasures. Let some other provision be made for the clergy, and spare the splendid testimonials to the genius of Wren and Gibbs.

EXPERIMENTAL FARMS WORK.

Almost every farmer in Canada is interested in some phase of the agricultural work carried on by the Dominion Experimental Farms System, both at Ottawa and on the twenty branch farms distributed between the Atlantic and the Pacific. The work covered on these farms includes investigations with live stock, field crops, fruit growing, tobacco, bees, poultry, and in fact all branches of agriculture adapted to Canadian conditions. The Report of the Dominion Experimental Farms for the fiscal year 1919 records many valuable and interesting experiments that are under way. Among these are experiments in feeding live stock for market, and summer and winter experiments in fattening swine; the Bee Division gives a preliminary report of its experiments with two queens in one hive, and in the Division of Economic Fibre Production the variety test and the prairie flax straw experiments are outlined. Throughout this publication there are many valuable conclusions stated which are based on the experimental work conducted at these farms.

FIRE DESTROYED ANGLICAN CHURCH

The Church at Hammond River Caught Fire From Brush Fire in the Vicinity

St. John, May 19.—A brush fire of large dimensions, which was thought to have started from the down suburban C.N.R. train on Monday morning and to have been extinguished, broke out with renewed vigor at noon yesterday and destroyed the Anglican Trinity church at Hammond River station. A party of volunteers fought the fire on Monday and were recalled yesterday with additional help, about fifty in all, to try to subdue the conflagration. A considerable area of woods was burned, about half way between Model Farm and Hammond River, on the east side of the track.

The fire jumped across tthe Hampton road and burned the church to the ground, not, however, until the furniture was saved. It also burned down the home of a family named Mundee, consisting of a man and wife and large number of children. At another time it got across the road but was stopped by a large rock area through which Otty's brook runs.

The church, which was formerly the parish church of Rothesay until about six or seven years ago, was built in Canon Walker's time, when he was rector of Hampton.

WHY MRS. WESTON WANTS A DIVORCE

Husband Too Affectionate With Other Women and Stole Silk Stockings

Bangor, Me., May 18.—In the superior court Saturday Mrs. Emma Weston, of Bangor, told at length and in detail why she wanted a divorce from her second husband, Richard Weston, to whom she was married in 1902 after legal separation from her first husband, by whom she had two daughters.

And Richard Weston was there to object.

Mrs. Weston in her testimony declared that her husband was altogether too affectionate with her two daughters, her niece and another woman, and she accused him also of having robbed several firms by whom he had been employed. From the store of the Besse System Company, she said, he had brought home silk stockings and underwear, and from a bakery several articles, including a blanket. She knew he had not paid for these things, because he brought home his pay envelope unopened.

Weston made a complete denial of all the charges made against him by his wife.

G. C. Dorr, manager of the Besse store, testified that he had examined the goods shown him by Mrs. Weston and found that they had been taken from his store and that he got a warrant in the municipal court for Weston's arrest. Other witnesses testified to an appearance of improper conduct on Weston's part.

Justice Smith reserved his decision.

The jurors will report for duty again this morning and the trial of civil actions will be taken up. It is expected that jury trials may be completed this week by permit of discharging the jurors by Saturday, but it is believed that court matters will occupy the attention of Justice Smith into next week.

HERRING FISHERY FAILURE

Hon. Dr. E. A. Smith, of Shediac, Minister of Lands and Mines, who is in the city, said last evening that the herring fishery thus far this spring has been a total failure in the vicinity of his home town. The season last year was an unfavorable one and the failure this year is a keen disappointment to lobster fishermen and many farmers.—St. John Telegraph.

C. N. R. EARNINGS

The Stock Market

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

New York (Wall Street), May 19.—The movement of prices was again mainly downward at the opening of today's stock market. A majority of the active issues reacted fractionally, but Royal Dutch, American Woollen and Studebaker soon forfeited 1 to 2 points. Dealings were very light, pointing to another dull session. In the bond market, however, there were early indications of further extensive liquidation of liberty issues. A block of $350,000 of the fourth 4¼s changed hands at 82.50, while the second 4¼s sold at 82.40, representing new low quotations in both cases.

The Montreal Market.

Montreal, May 19.—The local market displayed considerable strength during the first hour this morning. Brompton and Howard Smith were the leaders with Breweries running close behind. Brompton opened at 101½, a quarter point below last night's close. It soon began to gain, and in eight sales rose to 104½, from which point it sagged to 103. Howard Smith opened at 98 and went to par, where it was steady during the first hour. Abtibi, under good demand was steady at 67½. Breweries lost a point in the early trading to 50. Brazilian was steady at 43¼ and Atlantic Sugar at 94¾. Other issues were quiet.

Why Do People Take Monkey Glands?

Rejuvenation, both physically and mental, can be acquired much easier and more pleasantly than by taking or eating the glands from monkeys. The French have invented a Medicine, in tablet form, that does away with all other means of rejuvenation. These Tablets are now universally sold throughout Canada, and are known as VITAL Tablets. They supply the necessary Vigor and Youth. There is no need to import chimpanzees from Africa, to take their glands to inject into people. Why go to all this trouble and expense when VITAL Tablets can now be procured right in your own town, from your drug store? VITAL Tablets taken for a short period, disease of every description, old age with all its aches and pains, will be a thing of the past. Young men and women with their pale faces, thin blood, impure blood, botches on the skin, run down, worn out, tired people can be placed in a state of good health, with pure blood, strong nerves, a strong stomach, a healthy body, full of youth and vigor. Every Tablet of this new medicine contains the elements to make you feel as nature intended you to feel, no matter what your trouble is, go to your druggist and procure a box of VITAL Tablets. If they do not do you good, go back and get your money. Get on your feet, away with that pale, worn out look on the face. VITAL will bring back the rose of youth. Price fifty cents per box at all drug stores.

FROM THE PEOPLE

BAD ROADS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I have for some time past been very much interested in the items appearing in your From the People Column.

But as I was reading a late copy of The Gleaner, I was very much interested in an item about Sylvester Moore having to leave this country on account of the bad roads, etc., and such accommodation as go hand in hand with good farming.

Now, in regard to Mr. Moore's statement I must say that it is all very true. Scotch Lake is and always has been one of the nicest and prettiest farming districts of New Brunswick, and if our Provincial Government would spend a little of its thousands here instead of building roads near the Minister of Public Works' home, that cost thirteen thousand dollars a mile, it would be much more to their credit.

Last year two individuals at Bear Island got up a petition to ask Mr. Veniot, Minister of Public Works, to grant them fifteen hundred dollars to be spent on eight miles of highway. They circulated their petition out here at Scotch Lake with the understanding that if they got the money granted that one thousand of it would be spent at Scotch Lake. So our Scotch Lakers swallowed their bait, it tasted, oh, so good! But after they got our beloved signatures on that petition, they changed the reading of their plea, as they wanted all the money to be spent on the river road. So they cut loose and sculled for Fredericton and there they interviewed Mr. Veniot and he granted them the money to be spent on the river road. Mr. Veniot did not know but what all us Scotch Lake people whose names appeared on this petition lived along the river road and would benefit therefrom.

I first saw the light of day here at Scotch Lake, and have been living here for twenty years, and naturally everything here is quite dear to me. I intend to stay here a year or so longer and if our roads are not fixed up by that time I will join some of my neighbors in the U. S. A.

No community can exist without good roads, and as long as individuals such as I have just mentioned are allowed to run at large we will never have good roads. Out of fifteen good farmers here two have gone to Maine this year.

This nice farming country is going back to wilderness again, all on account of not having good roads.

If any of your readers would like to buy a farm they may write to

Yours,
BEECHNUT BURR.
Scotch Lake, N. B., May 17, 1920.

THE SOUTHWEST BOOM

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Will you kindly allow me space in your valuable paper to state a few facts in connection with the recent difference between the workmen and the manager on the Southwest boom.

The men formed a labor union in the spring for the purpose of bettering conditions. The manager of the company wanted the men to go to work at six o'clock in the morning and work until seven in the evening, with one hour each for dinner and supper, that is, to be on the job thirteen hours a day. There are over twenty men who work at the boom and sleep at home. They would have to get up in the morning at five o'clock in order to be at the boom house, have their breakfast and be ready for work at six o'clock and then work until seven before getting home at night. The men offered to go to work at six o'clock and work until six in the evening with forty minutes for each lunch, which would make the day ten hours and forty minutes, and twenty minutes of working time between. The men accepted the pay and all the conditions except the difference of the twenty minutes of work.

The union was formed before the ice went out of the river but the company not giving the men what they wanted they sent a committee to Newcastle by appointment to meet Mr. Brankley, but he did not meet them. Instead he came up to the boom and met them later. The men went to work and put the booms out to save the lumber from going adrift, not knowing what they were going to get for it. When the boom was all placed, which had to be done by experienced men, the manager told the men they could accept the terms or quit work. The men quit and went home. The company notified them on May 8th if they did not go to work on the 12th of May that they would get other men to take their places on the boom.

The men had a meeting and decided not to go to work unless they got a nine flour day. They think they gave the manager a fair offer which he did not accept. I understand the company are looking for men to take their places but I do not think they will find many men willing to come and take other men's places who are asking for a square deal. The pay the company offered was about $4.50 for fifteen men, $4 for sixty men and $3.50 for the balance of what they wanted.

Yours,
ONE WHO KNOWS.
Chelmsford, May 17, 1920.

NEEDS HELP AND ADVICE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I am in need of a scientific food budget, so that I may keep healthy and happy a family of three, father, mother and 4-year-old child. Will not some woman who understands feeding a family scientifically please to send such a budget to your column? If possible, will she tell us how many balanced calories she provides a day for each person, and give the monthly cost of the food?

Many budgets published in the papers have been interesting, but I wonder if, in many cases, the food provided includes enough good butter, eggs and milk, and fresh vegetables and fruits, to "grow upon."

Then, too, I need help in general "managing." Will some woman who uses modern housekeeping appliances and who is doing the house work in a small house, including the washing, cleaning, mending, sewing, and who succeeds in caring properly for a small child, please send in her schedule?

Yours,
M. C. W.

Mortal Remains of the Famous Maj. Duncan Campbell to be Placed with Jane M'Crea's

Glens Falls, N. Y., May 18.—With military honors the historic urn containing the mortal remains of Major Duncan Campbell, Laird of Invernawe, Scotland, who died in Fort Edward, July 17, 1758, of wounds received in Abercrombie's futile attack upon Montcalm's entrenchments at Ticonderoga on July 8, 1758, will be moved memorial day from the union cemetery near Hudson Falls to the plot in the same cemetery where is buried the body of Jane McCrea, who was scalped by the Indians in 1777, and whose name has been passed down through history, thus linking two of the most famous and romantic stories of colonial warfare.

The ceremonies which will mark the removal of the body of the Major of the Black Watch, to whom four times appeared the apparition of his murdered cousin, whose murderer he had given shelter, warning him that he would meet his death at Ticonderoga, are being arranged by the New York Historical Association and the St. Andrew Society of Scots.

CHICAGO PREPARES FOR CONVENTION

Delegations of the Principal Republican Candidates Make Headquarters There

Chicago, May 18.—"Presidential Row," an institution unique in American politics, is preparing for the final drive that will culminate the week of June 8 in the nomination of a Republican candidate for president of the United States.

The "Row," which each four years is the centre of national pre-convention politics, is going through the biggest season in its history.

"Presidential Row" includes parts of two Michigan Boulevard hotels, which are connected by a subterranean passageway, and along the row every leading Republican presidential candidate has established, or will establish, his headquarters. Here, too, the Republican National Committee maintains extensive offices, while the Democratic committee meets here on occasion.

National headquarters of Governor Frank O. Lowden and Major General Leonard Wood were the first to open this season. The Wood delegation has been active on the "Row" since early last winter and the Lowden camp has been on the ground since Jan. 1.

Later arrivals included western headquarters for Herbert Hoover and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, and the regional offices of the National Personal Liberty League, working in the interests of Gov. Edwards, Democrat, of New Jersey.

Reservations have been made for Senator Hiram Johnson, Senator Miles Poindexter and Gov. Coolidge, of Massachusetts. They will open offices several days before the convention.

The Republican National Committee has had offices on the "Row" for several months. The committee will move to convention headquarters at the Coliseum about May 24, and there will begin hearing contests for convention seats on May 25 or 26, according to present plans.

Following the convention the Republican committee will occupy an entire floor, including the ballroom, in a downtown hotel, and also establish rooms in a loop office building.

Will H. Hays, chairman of the committee, is expected to spend considerable time during the campaign here, and one of the large hotel parlors is being prepared for his private office.

The Democratic National Committee will maintain headquarters here, but has not yet selected a location. Chairman Homer S. Cummings will divide his time between the offices here and those at the Grand Central Palace, New York.

AN EXPOSITION OF SPANISH FANS

Madrid, May 18.—Spanish cities are intensely interested in an exposition of fans to be held here this month. More than 400 beautiful specimens showing the development of the art of fan making in the last three centuries have been entered in the exposition.

Queen Victoria was among the first to offer her support for the exposition and to participate in it. Others of the royal house, including the Queen Mother, the Infantas Isabel and Luisa, the Duchess of Talavera and nearly every titled woman in Spain followed her example.

THE BREAD TICKETS EXCEED CITIZENS

Vienna, May 18.—While the recently completed city census showed Vienna to have a population of approximately 1,800,000, it has been discovered that over 2,000,000 bread tickets are in circulation. The loss on this excess ration is estimated at 1,000 carloads of flour a year.

The explanation is that families fail to report deaths or departures of members to obtain the additional ration for themselves or sell the tickets to the left-hand trade. The matter has been placed in the hands of the police for investigation and remedy.

ENGLAND BRAVELY FACING PROBLEMS

Montreal, May 18.—"The outlook in the United Kingdom is dark—but not desperate. The nation is groaning under the enormous debt created by the war, but is bravely taxing itself up to the limit to meet the burden of interest and to avoid borrowing. The Old Country is going bravely forward. Britons will pull together, and will pull through."

Mr. Donald Macmaster, K. C., member of the British House of Commons for the Chertsey division, chairman of standing committee number "A," which discusses and treats or amends bills, after the manner of the "Committee of the Whole"—now largely disused in favor of "grand standing committees," and member of the great conference which has been sitting for the last six months preparing a great plan of devolution for the United Kingdom—made the foregoing remarks in the course of an interesting talk yesterday. Mr. Masmaster is in the city on private and professional business.

Referring to Irish government, Mr. Macmaster said:

"The Irish Government Bill is only an experiment. It provides legislatures for North Ireland and South Ireland with considerable powers of local government, and a council for representatives of both legislatures to meet in and arrange for fuller national government and larger powers. This council is intended to be the bridge over which the Irish of all sects may pass to national government—arm in arm. Whether they will or not, I do not know. Certainly the procession would be hailed with applause in all sections of Great Britain."

Referring to the Dominion Government plan Mr. Macmaster said: "This is not applicable to Ireland geographically or politically. The two islands lie side by side, and to anyone who knows anything of the working of the Dominion plan, it is unthinkable that Great Britain and Ireland should have separate systems of customs tariffs, post and telegraph services. Besides, the Dominion plan contemplates whole-hearted allegiance to the central authority, the Sovereign and all that implies from the naval and military forces. How is such a plan compatible with the demands now made for an independent Ireland under republican rule? All parties in Great Britain are dead set against allowing Ireland to secede from the union, and the fools who are subscribing to "President" de Valera bonds will soon find that they have paid dearly for their folly. Great Britain is sincerely anxious to render and is rendering full justice to Ireland, but its people will never surrender to ignorant, ill-founded opinion or internal or external force, and foreign busybodies had better take note of that fact."

Dealing with the Peace Treaty, Mr. Macmaster said:

"A continental financier said to me: 'You have won the war and lost the peace.' I fear there is a grain of truth in that statement. Where are the war costs? Where are the indemnities? Where are the war criminals now? The arch-criminal is safe in Holland (near the fatherland), and if the Allies did not intend to insist upon his surrender they never should have demanded it. The Dutch scored. The Entente lowered their flag before the world.

"As to indemnities—these faded away under the pale cast of reparation for damages, and everyone knows that proper reparation for damages for devastated property is a very different thing from an indemnity for actual costs of the war. The French, the Belgians and Servians are well within the claims for reparation, but where do the dominions come in under that head? Bismarck very firmly insisted on two hundred millions sterling as an indemnity from France in 1871, and got it. There is no provision in the treaty for an indemnity to Britain and the dominions. Of course, Britain, as a matter of grace, may grant a part of any reparation she gets—if she ever gets any—to the dominions; but that is a different matter. I believe, and have always insisted, that Germany should pay a reasonable indemnity towards the costs of the war and as a deterrent to other would-be world conquerors. Germany was not invaded—her resources are very great—and she should be made to bear the burdens of an unprovoked and hellish war, for the next half-century."

THE HOME GARDEN

Waterbury, Conn., May 18.—War measures, involving the readoption of the "home garden" and the war-time emergency committee, were voted by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday in an attempt to meet conditions, which, in the opinion of the directors, are rapidly approaching a crisis.

COURT JUDGMENT ON BOARD OF COMMERCE

Ottawa, May 18.—Judgment by the supreme court upon the constitutionality of the Board of Commerce is not likely to be delivered until week after next, if then. The case was argued at the opening of the May term, but the other cases were immediately proceeded with and have occupied the attention of the court daily, and there has been on opportunity to consider judgment in regard to the Board of Commerce.

Canadian Papers Comment On Tax Proposal Contained In Budget Speech Yesterday

The Most Important of the New Taxes is That Imposed on All Sales of Manufacturers, Wholesale Dealers, Jobbers and Importers, It Is Thought

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 19. — The following comment on the new tax proposals of the Minister of Finance are from Canadian papers:

From the Montreal Gazette.

"We sometimes hear of systems of taxation which make the rich richer and the poor poorer. The Finance Minister's proposals savor of nothing of that kind. They make the rich poorer and permit the poor to escape. Indeed, there is a sop thrown to the poor in relieving from excise duty their popular source of entertainment, moving picture films. Perhaps, however, the most important of the new taxes is that imposed on all sales of manufacturers, wholesale dealers, jobbers and importers.

"Sir Henry Drayton makes no estimate of the amount of revenue expected to be derived, but it should be very large, falling as the tax does virtually upon the business turnover of the Dominion."

From tthe Ottawa Journal.

These new taxes have three supreme merits. They fall upon the shoulders of those best able to bear them, they discourage a reckless spirit of extravagance and, by checking expenditures upon luxuries, they incidentally tend to help adjust our adverse balance of trade, for which importation of luxuries is largely responsible."

From Montreal Herald, Liberal.

"The budget brought down yesterday in the House of Commons contained little that was sensational or even surprising, new taxes had to be imposed.

"Under the system adopted by Sir Henry Drayton the people who are able to pay high prices for articles required in the course of daily living and indulge in what may be termed luxuries, pay more than the person of small or moderate means.

"The complete abolition of the customs war tax of 7½ per cent. is a wholly satisfactory feature of the budget. Whether the promised investigation and possible revision of the tariff next year will appease the agrarian section of the house remains to be seen."

From the Toronto Mail and Empire.

"The new taxation can hardly be described as of the painless variety. It will make the budget unpleasantly familiar to many people whose path it was never known to cross before.

"The new fiscal scheme is not got up for the purpose of humbugging taxes out of anybody, or for deceiving a population of Red Riding Hoods, but for the stern business of raising the wherewithal to pay off the debt on account of that other stern business into which the nation went without beguiling, the waging of the war."

From the Toronto Globe.

"The result of the form of excise taxation, introduced by Sir Henry Drayton, will be the retention in the pockets of many already rich beneficiaries of the tariff of large sums that should have been diverted to the public treasury."

From the Ottawa Citizen.

"There is nothing very much for the public to enthuse over in the new departure of excise duties. The protectionist tariff is still maintained as high as ever on the necessities of life, and this budget, like last year's, gives no indication of a departure from protectionism by the government."

From the Victoria Colonist.

"New taxation is sweeping in its character; far beyond what was anticipated; and it will have a tendency to burden poor as well as rich. It brings additional increases in the cost of living; and the fact that foodstuffs are not directly taxed in the new proposals is poor consolation in view of the dictatorial powers of the Wheat Board."

From the Halifax Morning Chronicle.

"Altogether the budget imposes a stiff load of taxation which, for the present, the people must grin and bear."

THE NEWSPRINT SHORTAGE IN U. S.

Prominent Manufacturer Gives One Reason Why Paper is Scarce in U. S.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

St. Louis, Mo., May 19.—"The foundation for the shortage of newsprint paper was laid when the reciprocity bill was put through with Canada," declared R. P. Andrews, of Washington, President of the National Paper Trade Association of the United States, in an address before the annual convention of the Wholesale Stationers' Association of the United States here today.

"Since that time," he said, "there have been practically no newsprint paper mills built in the United States.

He said that the United Ctates government always threatened paper mills in the United States with government control when they were about ready to operate, and consequently capitalists were somewhat reluctant about investing.

St. John, N. B., May 19.—Fred A. Campbell, President of the local Trades and Labor Council, said today that organized labor here had nothing to do with providing a hall or raising funds for the Winnipeg strike leaders who are coming here. FARMERS WILL OPPOSE BUDGET

Dr. McMaster to Take Up Debate This Afternoon Where Fielding Left Off

Ottawa, May 19.—After a night to sleep over the budget, the members are beginning to discuss it among themselves and express their opinions upon it. The verdict of course varies a good deal with party lines, but on the whole the opinion is that the government has succeeded in framing a measure to meet the needs of the times. Criticism from the Opposition is still to come, but it is noticeable that Hon. W. S. Fielding, while warning the government of the seriousness of the financial situation and reverting to his reciprocity as the cure, said nothing about the taxing provisions of the budget. That apparently will be left for Mr. McMaster, who adjourned the debate last night and will make the trade speech today. There will probably be no such exchange of love passages as there was between Hon. W. S. Fielding and Sir George Foster last night.

The general opinion expressed on Mr. Fielding's speech is that it was designed to forestall more robust amendment from the farmers party, as was done last session by Mr. McMasters, but Mr. Fielding was a good deal milder and more innocuous than Mr. McMaster was on that occasion. Apparently the only opening left for the Farmers to get in the real red-blooded amendment to the budget will be on the third reading. In the meantime the Farmers are not in good fighting shape. Dr. Clark is not in the House and it is understood that Mr. Crerar's physical condition is so little improved that he will again have to absent himself from the House for further treatment. Possibly Mr. Gould who is a fighter if nothing more, may take up the running.

The position of the Government in bringing down the budget was faced with the necessity of raising the enormous sum of $625,00,000 and having specifically abjured further borrowing, its only recourse was to raise the necessary revenue by stiff taxation.

NEW YORK BANKS CURTAILING LOANS

Importers and Other Dealers Told Only Moderate Financial Accommodation Now

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 19.—Pursuant to their pledge to the federal reserve board, leading banking interests of this city today extended their campaign of deflation of credits and high commodity prices. In the financial district this policy already had been effective, reducing speculative loans against securities to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars in the last fortnight.

In one instance, that of a prominent trust company, it is said that credits of this character had been reduced by $100,000,000 in the last three weeks.

Banks in the wholesale dry goods and general merchandise districts have been proceeding along the same lines and pressure exerted by those institutions is said to be directly responsible for the wave of price cutting in many lines of retail trade, especially by the large department stores.

Downtown banks, which in a large measure control operations of uptown banks, are reported to have advised drastic curtailment of loans to merchants who for any reason fail to comply with the government's deflation programme.

Importers and other dealers in the more luxurious articles of apparel, as well as manufacturers of jewlery, silverware and other so-called non-essentials, are said to have received word from their banks that only the most moderate financial accommodations may be expected at this time.

The Additional Revenue From New Taxes is Hard to Estimate But Likely About $75,000,000

The Purpose of the Tax is Twofold, More Revenue and Prevention of Extravagance—If the Latter Continues the Government Will Benefit by Additional Revenue

Ottawa, May 19.—Instructions for the levying of the new taxes, in force today, have been sent to tax collectors throughout the Dominion. What the revenue will be, finance department experts make no attempt to estimate in anything like exact figures, although it is thought that the additional revenue will be in the neighborhood of $75,000,000 or $80,000,000. The estimated loss of revenue from repeal of taxes is $30,000,000.

The luxury tax is the difficulty. It is admitted that any estimates of revenue from this tax would in all probability be wide of the mark. The turnover of goods now liable to tax is not known nor it is known how far the tax will tend to reduce prices within the exempted limit. The purpose of the tax is twofold—more revenue; prevention of extravagance.

In any event, one of these two objects will be secured. If extravagance continues and high prices still are paid, the government will benefit by the additional revenue. If prices are lowered to within the limit of exemption from taxation, the tax will not produce so much revenue, but the consumer will benefit. It is thought, however, that the tax will give an impetus to reduction in prices.

U. S. RAILWAY BOARD REFUSE PETITIONS

Will Not Hear Applications From Parties Who Are Acting in Disregard of Law

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Chicago, May 19—The United States Railway Labor Board today flatly refused to hear petitions for increased wages presented by John Grunau, president of the Chicago Yardmen's Association, and officers of other organizations which went on strike recently in defiance of orders from the national railroad brotherhoods.

The board, in a ruling handed down by Judge R. V. Barton, chairman, announced that:

"It must be thoroughly understood that the board cannot and will not undertake to hear any disputes or controversies except those which it is authorized by law to hear, and cannot and will not hear the application of parties who are acting in disregard of the law and who are not complying with the law and the rules of the board."

FOREST FIRES HAVE BEEN REPORTED

One at Hammond River Burned Anglican Church to the Ground

It was stated today at the Department of Lands and Mines that a large number of small forest fires had been reported from various parts of the province recently. These were caused for the most part by people out picking May flowers. By far the most serious of the fires was one reported to have been started by C. N. R. trainmen at Hammond river, which spread over a considerable acreage and resulted in the Anglican church at that place being burned to the ground.

Other fires have been reported from Blackville, Chario, Canterbury Station, Hoyt Station, and Upper Gagetown. These were all small fires and caused little damage. Other smaller fires have been reported but are now all under control. One fire which looked dangerous for a while and which broke out at the Indian Reservation at Perth, is now under control.

The lookout at Pennjac started on his duties in the lookout tower there yesterday on the watch for any fires. As yet there have been no serious fires, and it is thought that because of the snow which is still in the woods in the central part of the province any fires which should break out can be easily kept under control.

FREDDIE JACKS TO FIGHT THURSDAY

Clever English Featherweight to Meet Young Chaney at Boston This Week

Boston, May 18.—Freddie Jacks, an English featherweight, who came to this country with a reputation of being one of the cleverest little men developed in England since Owen Moran held the centre of the stage, will make his initial appearance in a local ring Thursday night in Mechanics Hall, where he is scheduled to meet Young Chaney, the sensational Baltimore featherweight, in a 12 round bout under the auspices of the Fenway A. A.

The visitor comes here with the distinction of having defeated the pick of England's scrappers in his class, and he is sure to meet with opposition that will determine his real ability. Chaney fought his way into the hearts of local fans by the clever manner in which he handled Bobby Josephs. He has added several promising candidates for featherweight honors to his lengthy list of victories.

If Jack is as good as English boxing authorities assert, and they are not given to boosting very strongly without reason, Chaney is in for the contest of his career. The Britisher is accustomed to fighting for decisions over the Marathon route and has defeated in long distance fights some of England's crack little men. He recently vanquished in a 20-round bout the champion of Australia, and knows how to judge pace in a contest for a referee's erdict.

Jacks made good in his debut several weeks ago. He is anxious to meet men like Willie Jackson and Johnny Dundee, and would willingly concede a few pounds in weight to obtain a match with either American lightweight.

In action Jacks is said to closely resemble Jem Driscoll, who was easily one of the greatest little men England ever sent here, but he punches harder than Driscoll and is a more rugged type of fighter.

JIMMY WILDE IS GOING TO ENGLAND

The Fly-Weight Champion Believes There Is More Money for Him in Old Country

New York, May 18.—Jimmy Wilde, the world's fly-weight champion, today said that will have to sail for England after his bout with Patsy Wallace at Toronto on May 24.

His manger, Ted Lewis, has several bouts arranged for him in Paris and London and he hopes to sail on May 29.

He will be back in August, he says, and then "any American can take a crack at my title at 112 pounds or have a chance to 'spill' me at 116 pounds."

Knocked Out.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 18. — Bob Martin, heavyweight champion puglist of the A. E. F., knocked out Tom MacMahon, of Newcastle, Pa., in the fifth round of a scheduled ten-round bout here tonight. General Leonard Wood, Republican candidate for presidential nomination, who spoke in Wheeling today, viewed the bout from a ringside seat.

ATTEMPT TO SWIM ENGLISH CHANNEL

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Boston, Mass., May 19.—Henry F. Sullivan, of Lowell, who has made several notable long distance swims, today applied for passports and announced his intention of again attempting the English Channel this summer.

In 1913, his swimming efforts fell short of success by two miles.

Iva Zinn, 2.07¼, picked by Cleveland railbirds as one of the best of the 1920 racing models, was used as a cow pony before raising a couple of colts.

U. N. B. TEAM FOR BIG TRACK MEET

Acadia Has Protested Against Non-Matriculants Entering the Events at Moncton

Two of the team picked to represent the University of New Brunswick at the Intercollegiate track meet on Friday at Moncton have been cut out of the list of those taking part in the meet.

Acadia has protested against non-matriculants entering the events and this cuts out Allen Johnson, who was to have entered in the 100 yards dash and the 220 yards dash. Johnson is taking a special course under the D. S. C. R. and has not matriculated. Otty, who would be a probable second place in the high jump, is unable to go with the team as he has left to take up a position. The loss of these two athletes will probably mean a loss of five or more points in the meet for U.N.B.

The team will leave here on Thursday morning and are sure of making a good showing in the events, particularly in the weights and dashes.

Physical Director C. H. Cochrane, of the Y.M.C.A., has been lending the team his services in practice and several of them have come up considerably since the college sports, held here recently.

The events for the meet will be: 100 yards dash, 220 yards dash, quarter mile and mile runs, broad jump, high jump, pole vaule, 120-yard hurdles, hammer throw and shotput.

HOOF PRINTS.

Fred Swett, of Haverhill, Mass., has bought The Ghost, 2.08¼, from George Booth, Anson, Me. The horse will remain in Irving Pottle's stable, now in training at Lewiston.

Billy Andrews will soon be at the home track with the Pastime stable. The Cleveland syndicate is said to have some remarkable young trotters by the dead champion, Lee Axworthy, 1.58½.

Out in Cleveland they are again touting Peter Mac, 2.08¼, as the best ever. When the sun gets hot he is likely to make Mike McDevitt's life miserable. The turf has seen few faster trotters but none more worthless as a racing tool. He has given Capt. David Shaw, his owner, two rides, however, that make the veteran turfman forget Peter's other failures.

Take heart, trainers. It rained 19 days in May, 1917, and for good measure the clouds shed water 21 days in June, but you will recall that the horses were ready for the early meetings and raced well until the ground froze along in November.

BUDGET SPEECH IN P. E. I. LEGISLATURE

Necessary to Levy Additional Taxes to Provide for Big Shortage in Revenue

Charlottetown, P. E. I., May 18.—Premier Bell in delivering his budget speech in the legislature Monday night estimated expenditure at about $740,000 and revenue about $20,000 more. Last year the actual expenditure was $739,000, but revenue was only $506,000. In order to provide for big shortage in revenue it was necessary to levy additional taxes. The new taxation bill, which is now almost through second reading, will give between $250,000 and $300,000 additional revenue.

Teachers will receive $100,000 more from the Government in 1921 and about fifty thousand more in 1920, as their increase in salaries will not start till July 1st. There will be large increases in expenditures for public works. The Government is going to take advantage of the federal highway grant. They will borrow $250,000 by funding the automobile license fees and receive $165,000 from federal Government on the 60—40 basis.

The leader of the opposition, who followed the Premier, spoke briefly and then moved adjournment of the debate. He charged Government members with acting inconsistently inasmuch as they opposed taxation when they were in oposition.

ZIMMERMAN HAD THREATENED HER

Betrayed Girl Says He Threatened to Blow Her Brains Out if She Told Anyone

Springfield, Mass., May 18.—Miss Jennie Zimmerman, on trial in the Superior Court for the murder of her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman, last August, ended her long testimony this noon with an account of the shooting. Speaking in a voice scarcely above a whisper, she told of threats Dr. Zimmerman had made to kill her if she told his mother or sister of his relations with her. She reached her climax when she told of the brief conversation with him in Ferry street, when she said he had reached for his pocket after she had told him she would tell Evelyn and Sadie Feldman, his companions, what sort of a man he was, and told her: "Dont you dare tell them or I will blow your brains out."

"I had a feeling that I wanted to protect myself,' she said, sobbingly, and said she felt herself to be in mortal danger.

LABOR WILL NOT WELCOME PRINCE

Melbourne, Australia, May 18.—The Melbourne Trades Hall Council has decided that it will not be officially represented at any function connected with the Prince of Wales' visit here, because the money that would be spent on such functions could be used in the interests of the wage earners, whereas, the Council asserted, the proposed expenditure would bolster up the capitalistic system. The resolution also requested trades unionists to refuse to allow their children to partcipate in the welcome to the Prince or any similar function.

After the portrait of the man, comes the position of the citizen. Maurice, not rich, but still independent, bore a name much respected, and, above all, popular. Maurice, known by his education, and principles still more liberal even than his education, Maurice placed himself, so to speak, at the head of a party composed of all the young citizen patriots. It was well that with the sansculottes he pased for rather lukewarm, and with the sectionaries as rather foppish. But the sansculottes no longer remembered his lukewarmness when they saw him snap in twain the knotted cudgels, and the sectionaries pardoned his elegance when he one day scientifically planted a blow between two eyes, that had been watching him in an offensive manner for some time past.

And now for the physical, moral, and civic combined. Maurice had assisted at the taking of the Bastile, he had been on the expedition to Versailles, had fought like a lion on the 10th of August, and in this memorable journey, it is only justice to observe, he had killed as many patriots as Swedes, not being more willing to permit an assassin under a blouse than an enemy to the rpublic under a red coat. It was he who exhorted the deefenders of the chateau to surrender themselves, and to prevent the shedding of blood; it was he who placed himself before the mouth of the cannon, to which a Parisian artilleryman was putting a light; he who by a window first entered the Louvre, regardless of the firing of five hundred Swiss and as many gentlemen in ambust; and when he perceived the signal of surrender, his avenging sword had already cut through more than ten uniforms. Then, seeing his friends leisurely massacring some prisoners, who having thrown down their arms, and, clasping their hands, supplicated for life; he furiously attacked these fiends, which had gained for him a reputation worthy of the good days of Rome and Greece. War declared, Maurice enrolled himself, and departed for the frontier in the rank of lieutenant, with the first 1,500 volunteers the city sent against the invaders, and who each day had been followed by 1,500 other.

At the first battle in which he assisted, that is to say at Jemappes, he received a ball, which, after having divided the muscles of the shoulder, lodged against the bone. The representative of the people knew Maurice, and he returned to Paris for his recovery.

For a whole month, consumed by fever, he tossed upon his bed of suffering, but in January was able to resume his command, if not by name, at least in fact, of the club of Thermopiles, that is to say of one hundred young men of ehe Parisian citizens, armed to oppose any attempt in favor of the tyrant Capet; and yet more, Maurice, with contracted brows, dilated eyes, and pale face, his heart shrouded with a strange mixture of moral hatred and physical pity, assisted at the execution of the king and perhaps he alone of all that throng remained silent when the head of the son of Saint Louis fell on the scaffold, and only raised on high his redoubtable sabre, while his friends loudly shouting Vixe la liberate, omitted to notice that one voice at least did not unite itself with their own.

This was the individual who on the morning of the 14th of March, bent his steps toward La Rue Lepelletier, and of whose stormy career our history will furnish further detail.

Towards 10 o'clock Maurice reached the section of which he was the secretary. The commotion was great. The question in agitation was, to vote an address to the convention in order to repress the conspiracies of the Girondins. They impatiently awaited the arrival of Maurice.

There was no doubt of the return of the Chevalier de Maison Rouge, of the audacity with which this arch-conspirator and for the second time entered Paris, where he well knew a price was now fixed os his head.

To this circumstance was attributed the attempt made the preceding evening on the Temple, and each one expressed his hatred and indignation against the traitors and conspirators.

Contrary to the general expectation, Maurice appeared preoccupied and silent, wrote down the proclamation, finished his employment in three hours, demanded if the sting had terminated, and receiving an answer in the affirmative, took his hat, and proceeded towards La Rue Saint Honore.

Arrived there, Paris appeared quite different to him. He revisited the corner of La Rue du Coq, where during the night he had first seen the lovely Unknown struggling in the hands of soldiers. Then from thence he proceeded to the Bridge Marie, the same road he had travelled by her side, stopping where the patrols had stopt them, repeating in the same place (as if it had preserved an echo of their words), the sentences exchanged between them; only it was now one o'clock in the afternoon, and the sun was shining brilliantly upon this walk. By the light of the sun, I will endeavor to find the door through which she vanished and who knows but I may perhaps even see her at a window?

He then entered the old Rue Saint Jacques and placed himself in the same spot as the Unknown had placed him on the preceding evening. For an instant he closed his eyes, perhaps foolishly expecting the kiss he had then received would impress his lips. But he felt nothing but the remembrance; 'tis true that burned yet.

Maurice opened his eyes and saw two little streets, one to the right, the other to the left. They were muddy, dirty, and badly formed, furnished with barriers, cut by little bridges, thrown over a kennel. There might be seen the beams of arches, nooks, corners, and twenty doors propt up, fast falling into decay. Here indeed was misery in all its hideousness. Here and there was a garden enclosed in a fence, others by palisades of poles, some by walls, and skins hanging in the outhouses, dicusing around that disgusting odor always arising from a tan-yard.

Maurice's search lasted for nearly two hours, during which he found nothing, and divined nothing, and ten times he had retraced his steps to cosider where he was. But all his efforts were in vain, his search was a fruitless one, as all trace of the young woman seemed to have been effaced by the fog and rain of the previous night.

"Truly," said Maurice, "I must be in a dream. This filthy place could not for an instant have afforded refuge for my beautiful fairy of last night."

There was, in this wild Republican, more real poetry than in his friend of the Anacreontic quatrains, since he clung to this idea, fearful to sully, even in thought, the spotless purity of the Unknown. But all hope had now forsaken him.

"Adieu," said he; "mysterious beauty, you have treated me like a child and a fool."

CHAPTER VI.
The Temple.

The same day, and the same hour, when Maurice, disappointed and unhappy, repassed the Bridge De la Tournelle, several municipals, accompanied by Santerre, Commandant of the Parisian National Guard, made a visit of inquiry to the Temple, transformed into a prison, since the 13th of August, 1793.

DEGREE WORK PUT ON BY ST. JOHN TEAM AT LOCAL K. OF P.

About Three Hundred Visiting Knights Took Part in the Exemplification

13 SQUIRES ADVANCED TO RANK OF KNIGHTS

Special Train Brought St. John Knights Here for the Celebration

One of the biggest gatherings of Knights of Pythias ever held in this city celebrated Pythianism last evening at the old Gaiety on Carleton street, as it was found that the K. of P. Hall on Queen street was too small to hold the visitors. Among the visitors were almost two hundred members of the four St. John lodges, New Brunswick No. 1, Union Lodge No. 2, St. John Lodge No. 30, and the new West St. John Lodge. Members from the Woodstock Lodge and from Marysville, besides over one hundred members of Fredericton Lodge, No. 6, were present.

The visitors arrived in this city by special train at 6.30 o'clock, and were met at the C. P. R. station by the local lodge members and the K. of P. band of eighteen pieces, which led the parade to the old Gaiety, where the degree work was held. At 9 o'clock the lodge was opened by Chancellor Commander G. H. Clark, and then the lodge was taken over by the St. John officers, who conducted it throughout the evening.

The degree work was put on by a mixed degree team from the various St. John lodges and thirteen squires were advanced to the ranks of knights in some of the most elaborate and best degree work ever seen in this city. The St. John members brought their own equipment, and the members who were put through the degree were in a mood at the close of the degree work to wish they had left it at home.

The degree work finished about 12 o'clock and the vaudeville performers from the City Hall were then called upon. All were heartily encored, especially the violinist, who had to respond to eight calls. Maurice Williams performed an acrobatic stunt and William A. Walsh and Ralph Harding of St. John gave readings.

At the close of the short but excellent programme the meeting adjourned to the dining room on the upper floor, where refreshments were served by the members of the local lodge. The gathering broke up about 3.30 a. m. after one of the best K. of P. celebrations ever held here.

POTATOES DROPPED IN MARKET TODAY

Not Many Willing to Pay $9 Per Barrel—Other Prices Today

The market this morning was not a very large one, as most of the farmers have commenced seeding, taking advantage of the warm weather of the past few days.

Potatoes seem to have taken a slight slump since Saturday last, when they were offered for $11, as they did not find very ready purchasers today at $9 per barrel. The supply of eggs and butter was not large today, and as a consequence prices advanced slightly over those of last week.

The prevailing prices today:
Potatoes, per barrel, $9.
Apples, per barrel, $4 to $6.
Butter, per pound, 50 to 55 cents.
Eggs, per dozen, 45 to 50 cents.
Mutton, per pound, 12 to 20 cents.
Veal, per pound, 12 to 18 cents.
Pork, per pound, 24 to 26 cents.
Beef, per pound, 9 to 18 cents.
Pickerel, per dozen, 50 cents.
Hay, per ton, $33 to $35.

Proposed Railway Bridge to Be Located 65 Feet Below Present Railway Structure

Road Crossing at Waterloo Row to be by Concrete Subway—Crossings on George and Charlotte Streets to be Closed to Vehicular Traffic

A number of C. N. R. officials arrived in the city in two private cars last evening on the Valley train from St. John. Included in the party were F. P. Brady, general manager; L. S. Brown, general superintendent; C. B. Brown, chief engineer; W. A. Duff, engineer of bridges; Fred Condon, district engineer; S. B. Wass, construction engineer, and others. The party are making a general inspection trip over the lines, and in particular when here looked over the proposed changes in this city necessitated by the building of the new bridge across the St. John river here.

Mayor Reid, with other members of the City Council, the City Engineer, and others interested, interviewed Messrs. Brady and Brown re the proposed changes, which were outlined as follows:

The new bridge is to be located 65 feet below the present structure, and parallel to it. The road crossing at Waterloo Row will be by a concrete subway, with two roadways 18 by 20 feet wide, and sidewalks 10 feet wide on each side, elevated four feet above roadway. The exact location of subway has not been decided on as yet, as further information has to be obtained, and the discussion last night will mean the actual laying out of the alternatives on the ground and a decision then reached as to the best location for the benefit of the community.

The new line from the bridge will pass across the intersection of University avenue and Waterloo Row, through properties owned by John Boyd, L. A. White and R. W. McLellan, to an intersection with the present line near A. F. Randolph & Sons' warehouse. The elevation of the new bridge is such that the crossings of George and Charlotte streets will be closed to vehicular traffic. For the benefit and necessity of children going to Charlotte Street School, a sidewalk will be built under the Charlotte street crossing.

The Railway Company will build a continuous concrete platform extending from the present one at the east side of George street, through to and across Charlotte street, and will maintain a roadway beside it from Charlotte to Brunswick street.

Union street will be extended across the tracks through the Babbitt field to meet University Avenue and another road will be necessary from University Avenue to Waterloo Row. The location of this road cannot be fixed until the subway layout has been decided on.

C. B. Brown, chief engineer of the Government lines, has arranged to have full detailed plans submitted to the Council for their approval before work commences on the building of the substructure. This will be only a matter of days now as the expenditure has been authorized and tenders are to be called at once.

The official cars were attached to the "Whooper" train this morning to go to Newcastle, stopping at Penniac bridge to inspect the scene of the recent accident, where Driver Gillis and Trainman Estabrooks lost their lives in a tragic manner.

R. D. Innes, of Sackville, is at the Queen Hotel.

I.O.D.E. dance at Old Gaiety tonight.

POLISH ARMY IN RUSSIA RETREATING

SAYS DIVORCE NASTY DISEASE FOR THE RICH

Bishop Fallon Asks If It Is To Be Allowed to Become Epidemic Like Measles

MORAL REFORMERS CURTAILING LIBERTIES

Of the People in Small Things, While a Great Home Question Is Left Severely Alone

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

London, Ont., May 20.—In connection with the recent utterances of the Christian Guardian regarding statements made by Bishop Fallon in sermons at London and Woodstock, Bishop Fallon last night gave out a statement for publication in reply, in which he said:

"You are the best people in this province. You are the keepers of its conscience. You admit it yourself, and I am not going to argue the point. For ten years your cohorts have stampeded up and down this province in organized campaigns against tobacco, beer, betting and Sunday newspapers. You have suceeded in curtailing our liberty in regard to matters, indifferent in themselves, but which may be abused, are you going to connive at the enlarging of license in a manner essential to christian civilization?

"Divorce thus far in Ontario has been a nasty disease for the rich, like the gout. Do you propose to allow it to become an epidemic for the poor, like the measles? You have been nervous about allowing men to live as they please. Have you no fear about permitting men to love'?

"I repeat my original questions. Where are your social reform organizations? Where are your battalions of moral uplifters? Have they been demobilized? Have you any policy regarding easy methods of granting and securing divorces? If so, let us have it.

"If you keep silent, or if you just beat around the bush, then I at least shall conclude that you regard tobacco and beer, race tracks and Sunday newspapers as graver dangers for society than the turning of the marriage treaty into a scrap of paper. Surely you do not propose to strain at the gnat and swallow the camel."

THE JOKERS CAUSE OF ANY DIFFICULTY

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20—Sir John Fraser, special British Parliamentary correspondent, speaking at the dinner of the National Budget Committee, said that one of the causes of friction between Great Britain and the United States is that they are always "making jokes about each other."

"It's just this way," said Sir John. "Whenever you've got some stupid joke, you fasten it on some Englishman. I really believe if humorists were asked to cease their calling, the relations between the two nations would be more amiable."

THE MILK DRIVERS STRIKE SPREADING

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20.—Milk deliveries in Manhattan and Long Island City were almost completely shut off today by the strike of milk wagon drivers which threatens to spread into the Bronx and Harlem sections. The few deliveries made were to hospitals, orphanages, nurseries and similar institutions.

While leaders of the unauthorized strike declared that five thousand drivers had joined the walkout, union officials, who are opposing the movement, asserted that no more than 800 were out.

British Army to Assert Supremacy Of Law in Ireland

Armored Cars to be Used by Military in Policing Country

CONSTRUCT HUTS AS BLOCKHOUSES

Huts to be Fortified With Machine Guns and Barbed Wire.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Dublin, May 20.—Contingents of British cavalry and infantry are arriving in Ireland, but the total number of troops now on the island is still considerably below that of a year ago. Many men then on duty had enlisted for the duration of the war and have since been demobilized.

Troops hitherto have been used merely as additional police officers and have not been numerous enough to cope with disturbances. In fights which have occurred at police barracks the attackers have generally been ten times more numerous than the defenders, and as they have also been well armed, the contest has been unequal. Soldiers, therefore, have been called in to establish a balance. In many places they are doing ordinary police patrol, which is a form of duty in which police are exposed to great risks. Many recent murders of policemen have occurred on patrols where the routes of the officers were known, many being shot from ambush. It will be more difficult in future for raiders to carry on this sort of warfare, as armored cars will be used.

Government operations are being directed to the maintenance of ordinary law. When cattle are driven from farms, troops are not concerning themselves with the nature of the dispute between farmers and raiders, but are trying to punish the cattle drivers, and with the aid of cavalry, round up and restore the cattle to their owners. The wholesale burning of police barracks in the recent past appeared to be mere wantonness on the part of raiders, since many of the buildings had been abandoned by the police, but now it appears these acts were attributable to the foresight of Sinn Fein leaders. It was anticipated that an extension of military activity was contemplated by the Government and that these barracks would be used by detachments of soldiers. Difficulties are apprehended in finding lodgings for soldiers in remote districts. Some private houses have been taken over for this purpose, but there are many places where such structures are not available, and there is talk of the construction of huts, which might be described as blockhouses.

There have thus far been no attacks on soldiers, but an insufficiently protected military hut would undoubtedly be inviting to raiders. It is, therefore, anticipated the huts will be fortified and protected by barbed wire, of which large quantities have arrived here. It is expected, too, that at least one machine gun will be installed. Various depots throughout Ireland have in the last few weeks been training machine gunners, many being schooled in this city, the rattling sounds of machine guns being audible every morning in the neighborhood of various military barracks.

General Sir Nevil Macready is the most important member of the Irish administration, because it is felt the forcible assertion of law is more urgent than any other policy.

The commander-in-chief says he has nothing to do with policy, and is interested only in military affairs. He was sent to Dublin by the cabinet to report on the situation, and now, having given all the power he believes necessary, he is organizing the military forces and bringing them into coordination with the police.

CARRANZA NOT YET CAPTURED

Two of His Generals Desert and Surrender to the Pursuing Revolutionists

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico City, May 20.—President Carranza, with a few followers, was reported on May 18 to be in the village of Chignahuapan, in the northern part of the state of Puebla, according to a bulletin issued at military headquarters here.

It is believed he is heading toward the virtually impregnable mountain fastnesses of the Zacapoaxtla Mountains, which Victoriano Huerta failed to occupy after a year's campaign in 1914.

Generals Blanco and Mariel have deserted the fugitives and have surrendered to revolutionary forces.

HUGE PROFITS OF STEEL COMPANIES

Labor Leader Says $750,000,000 Was Cleaned Up by Them During War

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Washington, May 20.—Prices of basic iron and steel products have increased 300 per cent. since 1914, according to W. J. Lauck, consulting economist of the railroad unions.

In a brief filed with the Railroad Labor Board and made public Mr. Lauck estimated the profits of the larger steel companies during the war at $750,000,000, "or a levy of $30 on every American family."

The brief declared that the per ton profit of the United States Steel Corporation increased from $4.69 prior to the war to $14.31 in the period 1916-18. Labor costs increased only 41 per cent. in the same period, he asserted.

AUTO PLUNGED INTO THE DETROIT RIVER

Windsor, Ont., May 20—One man is believed to have been drowned when an automobile, owned by Rollo Westcott, Windsor contractor, plunged into the Detroit River last evening. Witnesses of the accident stated that two men were in the machine and one of them was seen to jump to the pavement just before the machine went into the water. The man who jumped from the machine ran through an alley and disappeared. James Quinn, a returned soldier, jumped into the river to help the man he supposed to be in the car, but after diving a number of times gave it up.

Paris, May 20.—Decision by the miners union in the departments of Nord and Pas De Calais to resume work today has been ratified at a meeting of miners' delegates, and information of this action has been telegraphed to all mining centres in France.

Railway workers in the south of France and employees of transportation companies at Marseilles have also decided upon an immediate resumption of work. Employees of transportation companies at Grenoble have decided to withdraw from the General Federation of Labor and to establish an independent union. Workers at Lorient have decided to return to their posts today.

HUNS TO REVISE DEATH SENTENCES

FRENCH FUND FOR LARGE FAMILIES

Paris, May 20.—Establishment of a national fund for large families, proposed by M. Correard, has been approved in resolutions passed at a meeting of the French Natality Committee. This fund will be raised by taxes imposed on bachelors and upon heads of families who have reached a certain age and have less than three living children.

Rumor of Italian Coup To Take Place This Week

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

LONDON, May 20—Rumors of a supposed plot for a coup d'etat in Italy were current in Rome Wednesday night, according to a Milan despatch to the London Times. It is said General Guiseppe Garibaldi had attended a meeting of the "groupe de renouvellement," at which it was decided to seize public buildings on Thursday.

The story is vague, and it is admitted its origin cannot be traced, but the Times correspondent adds:

"Some truth is apparently attached to it, as police and royal guards occupied public buildings Wednesday night as a precaution against a possible attack, and it is known General Garibaldi has been negotiating with Signor Gasparetti, leader of the 'groupe.'"

A similar story is printed by the London Daily Mail, but this newspaper also quotes a statement from Rome declaring the rumor unfounded.

Council of League of Nations Adopt Programme for League At Its First Formal Session

The President of the Council Declares That Despite All Dissentions the Nations Are Marching on the Path of Right and Justice and the Prospects Are Bright

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Rome, the Council of the League of Nations held its last public sitting here yesterday. Leon Bourgeois, who presided, in a speech expressed the gratitude of the council to Italy and the city of Rome for its hospitality, and to Signor Tittoni, President of the Italian Senate, for his services.

M. Bourgeois declared that the charter of the League of Nations had received its final form in the Roman capital, which for centuries had been the tribune of the world.

"We are passing through difficult hours," continued M. Bourgeois, "but amid the social passions there is the voice of right and justice in solidarity. Despite all dissensions we are marching on that path of right and justice and close at hand is the golden mile post of civilization."

The Greek representative, recounting the work already achieved, in organizing the League of Nations, read a telegram that had been sent to President Wilson, asking the President if he were disposed to convene an assembly of the League of Nations November 15, preferably in Brussels, without prejudice to the scene of future meetings.

Secret Diplomacy.

With a vew to guarding against the perils of what is termed "secret diplomacy," a clause of the League covenant requires both the registration and publication of all treaties concluded by any states parties to the covenant. Otherwise no treaty is to be regarded as binding.

The council of the League studied the creation of the permanent secretariat in which treaties will be secured and inserted in the official journal of the League of Nations, perhaps contemporaneously with the issuing of a copy of the text to the press. All the treaties will be subsequently bound in book form for sale. Thus the public will have a complete collection of all the international agreements. Some such scheme has already been prepared and will be communicated to all the governments. The financial conference originally fixed for May will take place in June at Brussels. The delay is due to the desirability that the Brussels conference shall be informed of the conclusions of the Inter-Allied financial conference, to be held shortly with a view to fixing the German indemnity and thte manner in which it shall be paid. The financial conference at Brussels will probably be presided over by ex-President Ador, of Switzerland.

The Question of Reparations.

The council of the League adopted a programme of work to be done, including the questions of reparations, war debts and debts contracted abroad by each country during the war.

Each state will present a report on its respective foreign debt, internal taxation, currency, amount of international loans, foreign exchange, internal debts and regulations regarding imports and exports.

The Allies must notify the President of the financial conference at Brussels of their decisions regarding the war indemnity claimed from Germany.

The council came to the conclusion it would be unable to do much with regard to typhus in Poland, except to pass sympathetic resolutions and appeal for financial assistance, the members of the council not feeling able to bind their governments on financial matters. A special request will be addressed to the United States that it send representatives to the financial conference at Brussels.

ORDERED SUITS MUST PAY THE TAX

Important Rulings Made by the Commissioner of Taxation —Wholesalers' Tax

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 20.—Mr. R. W. Breadner, Canadian Commissioner of Taxation, was probably the busiest man in Canada yesterday. From early morning till late last night, hundreds of people visited his office inquiring as to how certain of the taxes would work out.

Mr. Breadner made several important rulings. For one thing he pointed out that delivery constituted the consummation of a bargain. That is, if a man ordered a $50 suit a couple of weeks ago and if the suit was only delivered this morning, the buyer would be responsible for the entire tax on the same. This, of course, applies to every other taxable article.

Moreover, Mr. Breadner stated that the one per cent. tax which wholesalers must add to their invoices must be paid by the retailer to which the goods are sold, and not be absorbed by the wholesaler.

That is, every wholesaler must show on his invoice and also collect the full price of his goods and also the one per cent. tax.

INVESTIGATE THE FALL OF ANTWERP

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Brussels, May 20—The Minister of National Defense has issued an army order giving the findings of the court of inquiry in the case of the fall of Antwerp in 1914. The order declares that General De Guise, who was then military governor of Antwerp, exhausted all means at his disposal in defense of the fortresses and conformed to the military laws when he capitulated.

THE DEMOCRATS OF MICHIGAN SPEAK

Grand Rapids, Mich., May 20—Support of the League of Nations covenant and the peace treaty without amendment and "unfaltering support of President Wilson, who has given all but life itself to the service of his country and the world," were pledged in resolutions adopted by the Michigan State Democratic convention here yesterday.

Thirty uninstructed delegates to San Francisco were selected.

DETECTIVES CLASHED WITH POLICE FORCE

Detective Starts Fight by Firing Shot From Pocket Which Killed the Mayor

MAYOR WAS READING WARRANT TO ANOTHER

The Battle Then Became General and Seven Detectives and Four Miners Killed

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Matewan, W. Va., May 20. — With 100 deputy sheriffs, armed with rifles, patrolling the streets, and detachments of the state constabulary expected to arrive at any moment, the situation in this mining village, the scene of the kiling of 12 persons last night in a battle between private detectives and citizens, was quiet early today.

The deputies, rushed here last night by Sheriff G. T. Blankenship, of Mingo County, had the situation well in hand at daybreak, and they made no effort to disperse gatherings of citizens at the Norfolk and Western Railroad station, where the state troops were expected to leave their trains when they arrived.

Last night's shooting, in which Baldwin-Feltz Detectives clashed with citizens and the Matewan police, resulted, according to authorities, from action of the detectives, who evicted a number of miners from Stone Mountain Coal Company houses yesterday. Two Stone Mountain Company mines were closed recently when it became known that an effort was being made to unionize them. The miners claim that the detectives were sent to dispossess families of workers who have been dismissed.

A shot, said by the authorities to have been fired from the coat pocket of Albert Feltz, a detective, and which ended the life of Mayor Testerman, of Matewan, started the battle.

An instant after he fired, Feltz, according to authorities, was killed by "Sid" Hatfield, Chief of Police of Matewan. The shooting then became general and when the battle ended, seven detectives, the Mayor and four miners were dead and three other persons badly wounded. Feltz, it is said, had a warrant for the arrest of Chief Hatfield, on a charge that he had taken a prisoner from detectives some time ago.

The Mayor was reading the warrant when he was killed.

AMORTIZATION OF THE FRENCH DEBT

Bill Introduced in Chamber to Provide Sinking Fund and Purchase of Securities

Paris, May 20.—A bill designed to bring about amortization of the French national debt has been introduced in the chamber of deputies by several members, including M. Doumer, reporter of the finance committee.

The bill provides a sinking fund to be established by means of yearly purchases of securities on the stock market by the government. The securities thus purchased would be held for some definite period and the interest used to purchase additional securities.

The authors of the bill point out that an annual purchase of securities to the amount of 1,000,000 francs would permit amortization of a debt of 200,000,000,000 francs within thirty nine years. Under the proposed law, an appropriation of 1,000,000,000 francs would be included in every year's budget from 1921. The bill also provides that as soon as the securities held reach a total value of 200,000,000,000 francs, the whole amount is to be used in redemption of the national debt.

To Ban Jams and Preserves While Sugar Remains High

United States Manufacturers of Preserves Determine to Refrain From Business and Stay Out of the Sugar Market Until Prices Adjust Themselves

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20—The National Preservers and Food Products Association announced here today that its members will stay out of the sugar market until the price of sugar comes down from its high level. The association claims to represent 85 per cent. of the manufacturers of the country who make jams, jellys and preserves.

Statistics Show France Lost 3,400,000 Men in War

Eight Million Men Were Mobilized and Besides This 800,000 Were Maimed and Many Others Seriously Wounded —Terrific Strain on France

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20—What is perhaps the first concise and comprehensive statement of France's war losses has just been made by Captain Andre Tardieu. In describing what he calls "the balance sheet" of France, Captain Tardieu states that during the five years of the war eight million men were mobilized, of whom 3,400,000 were killed, 800,000 maimed and 300,000 wounded. France thus lost 57 per cent. of her men under 32 years of age.

A good looking woman, identity unknown, circulated around Mt. Vernon, N. Y., after dark in an automobile in which she had a pail of paste, a brush, and a plentiful supply of sheets of white paper. Stopping at a billboard, she would jump out of her auto, run to the billboard as if she feared interference, and paste a sheet of paper covering the legs of a pictured actress from her hips to her toes, and then with a lead pencil print "Censored" in large letters across the middle of the sheet. Later in the night rain soaked through the sheets of white paper, making the legs beautiful again in all their natural perfection.

DRIVEN INSANE BY TERRIBLE DEED

German Commander Who Sank the Lusitania, Raving Madman From That Moment

According to official records, the German U-boat which sank the Lusitania was the U-20, the hull of which now lies a battered wreck off Vrist, near Lemvig, Denmark.

This submarine, after one of her long piratical cruises, was returning to her base, and came to the surface off the Danish coast, only to find a British destroyer waiting for her.

A long chase followed, and U-20 was hit several times by shells from the destroyer. Finally she ran ashore on the sand banks near Vrist.

Her crew, refusing to surrender, were all either wounded or killed by gunfire.

Raving Lunatic.

After the encounter it was officially announced in Germany that the commander of the wrecked U-boat, who had been killed, was the man who fired the fatal torpedo which sank the Lusitania.

From a statement made to me by a former high official of the German admiralty, it would appear that the dead commander of U-20 was not the criminal responsible for the destruction of the mammoth Cunarder.

According to the statement which this official gave me, it would appear that the Lusitania was sunk by U-22, a new submarine commanded by a young German naval reserve lieutenant-commander, named Heinrich von Weirner, and who ever since the sinking of that great vessel, has been a raving lunatic, and for the last three and a half years has been a patient in an asylum.

This ex-German admiralty official was at one time in charge of the most confidential documents of the German admiralty relating to the sinking of enemy ships, and the movements of German U-boats. He gave me details of the most appalling tragedy of the sea.

To Sink at Sight.

"Four submarines were given orders to lie in wait for the Lusitania," he said, "and the instructions were to sink the ship at sight, and without warning.

"Lieutenant-Commander Heinrich von Weirner was then in command of U-22, which had been commissioned only a few weeks previously, and he was ordered to lie off the Old Head of Kinsale to await the arrival of the Lusitania.

"At that time the British admiralty sent instructions by wireless to ships at sea, and the instructions were sent in a code which the Germans were able to decipher.

Under Neutral Flag.

"Four submarines were commissioned to lie in wait for the ships, U-20, U-32, U-40 and U-22, while the latter craft was instructed to lie in wait off the Old Head of Kinsale, the others had different stations allotted in case the course of the Lusitania was changed as she neared the coast.

"Von Weirner took his craft through the North Sea and round the coast of Scotland, dropping down the west coast of Ireland, where he obtained oil and supplies from a vessel sailing under a neutral flag.

"He reached the Old Head of Kinsale two days before the Lusitania came up, and picked up the wireless messages to her.

"On the night before the Lusitania came up U-20 also arrived off Old Kinsale, and was spoken to by U-22.

"During the interchange of messages a British destroyer arrived on the scene, and both submarines were compelled to dive to avoid destruction, U-20 steering towards the Scilly Isles.

The Fatal Tube.

"When the huge liner came up U-22 was lying to the shore side of the vessel and, according to the report which was furnished the German admiralty, Von Weirner himself was at the torpedo tubes of the U-boat, the periscope of which was just above the water. The lieutenant-commander sighted the tubes and fired.

"The torpedo from the port board tube struck the Lusitania almost amidships, and the one from the starboard tube her aft.

"It is said that four U-boats fired at the Lusitania, but that is not correct. Only the U-22 discharged torpedoes at her and each struck the ship.

"Leaving the tube Von Weirner watched the vessel sinking.

"Gazing into the mirror of the periscope, he saw the frantic efforts to get the boats away, saw the death struggles of hundreds of women and children. The sight was too much for him, and the full horror of his deed struck home.

"The man who a moment before had calmly and deliberately sent the great liner to destruction, looked up from the mirror in which he saw the results of his awful deed a raving lunatic."

BULK OF SEIZED LIQUOR STOLEN

Chicago, May 18.—The bulk of the $600,000 worth of liquor seized by the government in raids since July has now been stolen from Uncle Sam. As evidence it exists no more. Collector of Revenue Major and his chief deputy O'Brien, are mystified. The liquor was held in the Kibley warehouse under revenue agents' supervision. Much of it is supposed to have been taken out on former permits.

"Our records in that respect are in very bad shape," Ast. Collector Evans said today, "but there is no doubt that the bulk of the liquor is missing."

It is said that grand jury action will be taken before the matter is disposed of, and that ex-officials of the Internal Revenue Department may be arrested.

Three ex-revenue agents are now under indictment for selling liquor which they were guarding.

A cat walked out on a high tension wire in a big drop forge plant at Fremont, O., lost all its nine lives at once, and caused a short circuit which burned out the insulation and threw 300 men out of work.

SEVERAL SPEAKERS IN BUDGET DEBATE

McMaster Charges the Govt. With Indefiniteness Regarding the Tariff

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Ottawa, May 19.—In the second day of the debate on the budget Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine, and A. R. McMaster, of Brome were the chief speakers. Mr. McMaster, one of the chief Opposition financial critics, who opened the discussion, charged the Government with indefiniteness in its pronouncements on the tariff. Any definite statements which had been made by the Minister of Finance in his budget speech were mere restatements of the old protective policy of the Conservative party.

Protection, as a policy for the country, he declared, was dead, and, after the next election, it would be damned. If the Government would pass its Franchise Bill and then go to the country on the policy of a protective tariff the result would be a change of government. Mr. McMaster criticized the Government for aggravating the exchange situation. He said that the policy of the Government was discouraging trade with Great Britain and France, and encouraging the importation of articles from the United States. He also deplored an increase in the estimates for the Department of Militia and Defence, which, he said, amounted to more than four millions. "Militarism has shown itself to be a ghastly failure, and a stupid mistake," insisted Mr. McMaster, "and I ask the people of this, my country, to join with me in requesting the Government to cut down this expenditure and thereby save the people's money and perhaps the future of Canada."

Expenditures Censured.

A number of expenditures which the Government proposed to make came in for censure by Mr. McMaster. Appropriations for the Hudson Bay Railway, the Welland Ship Canal, the Trent Canal, might very well be allowed to stand over until the country was more wealthy. Estimates such as $1,250,000 for the St. John harbor would bear looking into before they were passed. He also objected to some of the new taxation proposals.

Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine, favored a moderate protective tariff, and declared his view that the country was in sympathy with such a tariff. He asked Hon. W. L. Mackenzie-King, Opposition leader, whether he was in favor of the abolition of all tariff duties, to which question Mr. King replied that he was not. Mr. Ballantyne said he was at a loss to know how Mr. King would raise revenue if he carried out the policy of free trade to the extent advocated at the Ottawa Liberal Convention last August. He did not believe that the Farmers expected, under Free Trade, to continue the prosperous operation of the Western grain fields.

W. K. Baldwin, of Stanstead, had no objection to taxing "the slaves of fashion and mollycoddles of the country." He favored the utmost development of the resources of Canada.

Mr. Elkin Raps Farmer

S. E. Elkin (St. John, N. B.) said that the effect of the departure in taxation would be to offset the adverse exchange situation. If the country was to prosper, United States goods must be kept out. The reduced value of the Canadian dollar in that country might well prove to be a boomerang. The American people were killing the goose that laid the golden eggs. Conditions which may have warranted free trade in the past did not exist today. Canada had to compete with the United States where the commercial life had been developed to a powerful extent on a policy of protection. He demanded to know if farmers were entitled to consideration before the rest of the country. They pooled their interests to obtain through the Wheat Board three dollar wheat. They were combined in the West in a corporation which supplied farmers with nearly everything they needed for their life. These goods were nearly all made in the United States, as the catalogue of the company, the United Grain Growers showed. If the farmers were sympathetic to the returned soldier and the unemployed they would aim to keep their money in the country. Instead they bought wherever they could in the United States.

J. F. Reid (Mackenzie) said he could tell Mr. Elkin why, but Speaker Bolvin ruled he could not do more than ask a question while Mr. Elkin had the floor.

The farmers spoke of the manufacturers as a privileged class, but the term might better be applied to the farmers. As for representation in the House, on the population basis country people had two votes in the House of Commons to the city people's one. In Manitoba there were six members for the same population which was represented in Winnipeg by three. Mr. Elkin read figures to show that in Quebec, on the same basis, eleven members represented cities which had the same population as returned twenty-four members in the country. In Ontario the percentage was six to sixteen. Advertisements in the Grain Growers' Guide solicited advertisements with the statement that farmers were more prosperous than ever before. Obviously they were not entitled to consideration of their views before the rest of the country. And the majority of the electorate had supported the principle of protection in every election for the past fifty years.

Clear Up Misunderstandings As to How New Taxes to be Paid and How to be Collected

Luxury Taxes Went Into Effect Yesterday and Any Merchant Who Failed to Collect the War Tax Must Pay Out of His Own Pocket—Duplicate Sales Slips

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 20.—The general uncertainty as to who has to pay the new taxes, and how, is well illustrated by the condition which prevails among the business men here, and that the same condition prevails all over the Dominion is shown by the number of telegrams which are pouring in on the finance and customs departments.

The retail merchants of Ottawa held a meeting this morning to hear the report of a committee of their number which had been appointed to interview the Minister of Finance and the Commissioner of Taxation. They were informed by the latter that "the taxes as outlined on luxurious went into effect yesterday (19th), and any merchant who fails to colect from their customers will pay out of their own pockets as soon as the machinery for collection is perfected."

That the lack of understanding is not confined to the smaller dealers is shown by the fact that among those who made inquiries were the big departmental stores in Toronto and Montreal.

The Gross Price Taxed.

One of the most common misunderstandings is in regard to whether the tax rate applies to the gross price of the article above the exemption limit, or the difference between that price and the sum exempted. It is the gross price that is taxed. For example a forty-five dollar suit is exempt. If it costs forty-six there is also the tax of $4.60, making the total cost of the suit $50.60. If the cloth is bought in one store and taken to a tailor to be made up the tailor collects the tax for the tailoring and for the price of the cloth as well.

The new tax proposals are largely based on those in operation in the United States, and there the practice is to make out a sale slip, showing the price of the article and the war tax also. As most stores already require duplicate slips for the operation of their sales system, and as the taxation department has announced that it also will require a copy, making the slips in triplicate, some merchants fear they will have to scrap their cash registers

Schemes to Beat the Tax.

Proposals are already being suggested to beat the tax. One suggestion is that two men should conspire in purchasing a suit, one buying the trousers and the other the coat and vest, and so keeping complete the suit under the taxable limit. It looks as though two piece suits would become fashionable in Canada. On credit and instalment sales the purchaser will have to deposit the amount of the tax when the bargain is made. On marked down sales the tax will be collected on the actual price at which the article is sold. The only taxes becoming operative yesterday are the one per cent. tax, wholesale and manufacturers' tax and the retail luxury tax.

As all taxation measures have necessarily to be guarded with the greatest secrecy up to the moment of being made public, even to the length of not making the budget statement until the stock exchanges for the day are closed, the Government was unable to perfect its organization for the administration of the luxury and sales taxes. A temporary system has been formulated by the officials of the customs and inland revenue departments, who are charged with the collection of the excise laws. On the first and fifteenth of the month the retailer must make remittance to the collector or sub collector of inland revenue in his district, with a sworn statement giving all details of collections and vouchers in the shape of duplicates of receipts given the customer.

Must Keep Record of Sales.

Full details regarding sales of luxuries by manufacturers and wholesalers and also regarding the one per cent. tax has not yet been arranged, but manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers are required to collect taxes on sales made from and including Tuesday (19th) and keep a proper record of all transactions. Complete instructions will be issued to them as soon as possible.

A new branch of the inland revenue department to deal with taxation will be organized at once, and a new official will be appointed to deal exclusively with this subject. After proceeding with the organization of his department, he will have charge of the administration of the new measures. Thereafter retailers handling taxable goods as well as manufacturers, wholesalers and jobbers, will be required to take out licenses, and the system of collections and checking of returns will be put on a permanent basis.

MOVING PICTURES AT CAIN'S RIVER

Party of Prominent Sportsmen Had Great Luck Salmon Fishing

J. M. Gibbon, chief of the publicity department of the C. P. R., returned yesterday from a fishing trip to Cain's river with W. Harry Allen, president of the New Brunswick Guides' Association, as guide. Included in the party were Morris Ackerman, sporting writer and hunting and fishing expert of Cleveland, O., J. M. Alexander, moving picture operator, of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, and a representative of the New Brunswick Tourist Game and Resources Association.

Mr. Gibbon, in relating the experiences of the party, stated to The Gleaner that Mr. Ackerman had been fortunate in his fishing, having caught an eight-pound salmon with a four-ounce rod. He played it for over an hour and a half before he could land it, and when he had done so he found that the hook had been broken off.

While handling a catch of a six-pound grilse he (Mr. Gibbon) was carried away by excitement, lost his footing and got a cold plunge into the water. Mr. Alexander, the camera man, was on the job at this time and snapped the proceedings while other members of the party made a "thrilling and dramatic rescue."

The camera man has also secured pictures of deer and snakes and expects to get some pictures of wildcat and partridges before he returns. Mr. Ackerman and the other members of the party will remain out for some time yet. They were joined today by M. McBride and party, of Cleveland, O. Mr. McBride is a well known athlete, having figured prominently in football. He is a former captain of the Yale football team.

INSURANCE FOR RETURNED MEN

Ottawa, May 19.—The problem of insurance to returned soldiers has been well gone into by the special committee on pensions and re-establishment at its last three meetings, and it is expected that some measure of State insurance for sub-standard men will be included in the recommendations of the committee, which are to be laid before the House before the close of the session.

Is Now Inspector Collings.

In a general order from police headquarters, Moncton on Saturday, Sergeant John Collings was notified of his promotion as Inspector, a new position on the local force. The new inspector will receive hearty congratulations upon his advance in the ranks of the force. Firm, determined and at the same time always courteous in the performance of his duty as an officer, Inspector Collings holds the respect of all, and in his new postion will doubtless continue his success. His promtion will necessitate the appointment of a sergeant on the force. Mr. Collings was a former resident of Marysville.

ANOTHER PROMINENT NEW BRUNSWICK LIBERAL FAVORS PROTECTION.

Mr. Stanley E. Elkin, M. P., of St. John, spoke in the Budget debate yesterday with much candor and with knowledge acquired from practical experience. He was possibly less diplomatic than usual, but the situation may have made plain talk advisable. Mr. Elkin is a Liberal; he has been one of the leaders of his party in St. John for many years. His frank admission that "conditions which may "have warranted free trade in the "past do not exist today" is therefore of importance; for it cannot be said that Mr. Elkin does not reflect the views and opinions of a large number of his party in this section of Canada. Again, "Canada," he said, "had to "compete with the United States, "where the commercial life had been "developed to a powerful extent on "a policy of protection." In thus pointing the way, Mr. Elkin is also emphasizing the importance of the duty of his colleagues in the Liberal party if they are interested in the future of Canada, interested in building well upon a solid foundation. We cannot have excess of exports over imports if agricultural and industrial enterprise are not stimulated; and excess of imports over exports means that our national obligations will continue to be a tremendous burden. But our first duty is to maintain ourselves by our own labors and within our own resources; this accomplished, the natural process of development does the rest. To open the door wide until we are in a position to meet competition means disaster at a time when our national obligations are very great.

Mr. Elkin is stoutly opposed to class control in this country, and, in demonstrating that the manipulators of the so-called United Farmers of the West were seeking to promote selfish interests, he also made it clear that the interests of the manipulators were being played at the expense of the interests of the farmers of the East as well as at the expense of the general public. There has recently been no doubt that many of the farmers of the East, or at least those of them who became interested in the Crerar and the grain speculators' movement, have reached the conclusion that they were misled. In dealing with the methods of the United Grain Growers Mr. Elkin points to conditions which, there can be no doubt, the farmers of the East will never countenance; and it is abundantly clear from letters published in western newspapers protesting against the methods of the leaders and the manipulators of the combine, that the average practical farmer, the producer, is naturally much dissatisfied.

In heartily endorsing the tariff and taxation proposals of the Government Mr. Elkin dealt broadly with the situation as he viewed it; and he can well discuss such subjects from the standpoint of a man of experience in big things.

CASH PRIZES FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

The Hon. S. F. Tolmie, Minister of Agriculture for Canada, has completed arrangements whereby the Canadian Bankers' Association will again cooperate with the Dominion Department of Agriculture, in providing liberal cash prizes for boys and girls under seventeen years of age, who exhibit pigs or calves at their local fair, and comply with the rules governing the competitions known under the title of The Canadian Bankers' Competitions. The Canadian Bankers' Competitions are proving of no little value in teaching the future live stock producers of this country the value of type and quality in cattle and hogs, and the healthy rivalry prevailing in the prize ring, together with the reward for merit, makes these competitions deserving of every encouragement. These competitions should therefore receive the support of all live stock associations and clubs, as well as of the individual producer.

In the light of the world's normal meat requirements, Canada is short on supply, especially of beef, while our Wiltshire sides are still lacking somewhat in uniformity of quality. If, therefore, full advantage is to be taken of the present opportunity to expand and develop our export trade in live stock and live stock products, we face the immediate necessity of augmenting our live stock population, and at the same time of largely increasing the percentage of export type and quality. The markets to which we have access are exacting the competitive, and Canadian products must establish themselves purely on merit.

Competitions will be held at practically all the summer and fall fairs in the Dominion during the coming season. Boys and girls eligible to compete for the prizes offered can do no better service for their country than to enter their animals and thereby materially contribute to the production of a better class of live stock.

THE AGRICULTURAL VOTE.

It may be interpreted as a tribute to the Minister of Agriculture that the Farmers' party absented themselves from the House of Commons during the greater part of the discussion of the appropriation for his department, while other members without distinction of political affiliation were not sparing in compliments to him. When a Minister thus escapes criticism he may assume that his administration gives satisfaction, points out the Montreal Gazette. There was, in fact, little constructive suggestion made. Many members requested experimental farms, or as they are aptly called, illustration farms, in their constituencies, the educational value of which has long been demonstrated, and as means permit it is intended to increase the number of them, a work in which the provinces can profitably co-operate; but of grievances, of the alleged hard lot of the farmers, little was heard. If the tillage of land is not now remunerative, it is difficult to conceive conditions that would make it so. Hon. Dr. Tolmie estimated the agricultural wealth of Canada as $7,379,000,000, a prodigious figure, more than three times the amount of the national debt, and a high average per head of rural population; and he placed the value of agricultural products last year at $1,975,841,000, or three times the combined value of the output of mines, forests and fisheries. Had the western farmers been favored with propitious weather in 1919, they would have amassed much riches, but the average wheat yield was only 10.25 bushels per acre, as compared with 26.05 bushels in the bumper crop of 1915. The vicissitudes of farming undoubtedly make the farmers' income precarious, but all seasons are not bad, and fair average crops are gathered.

Dear labor is the fly in the farmers' ointment. Labor is both costly and scarce, but farmers cannot have cheap help and high prices at the same time. Money in the main regulates the supply of labor which drifts to the market where it is best paid, and that market has latterly been found in the cities. Asked what he would do to solve the labor problem, a member of the Farmers' party had no better answer than that it was the business of the Government, which, perhaps, is as good a retort as another since the problem baffles legislation. Immigration may aid, convenient transportation facilities assist, but labor is a commodity that will always sell in the dearest market, and until wages are made attractive or until unemployment in other industries compels, farmers must be content to bid for labor with all other employers. Transfer of taxation from the tariff to the land would serve only to intensify the situation by depopulating the towns of men driven from the country, and so contracting farmers' home market, increasing transportation charges and throwing upon agriculture a larger share of taxation for public purposes. The farm labor problem is continent wide. Making farm life attractive will help, but the real remedy probably is to be found in higher wages, which mean higher prices of farm products.

MEMORIES OF THE WAR.

Time dims the memory, passion fades, the sense of injury becomes remote, and the threat of vengeance meaningless, remarks an exchange.

Immediately after the armistice, a list of German officers and others was prepared—a list which described revolting crimes against humanity. The authors of these crimes were to receive exemplary punishment. The Allies said so. A beginning was to be made with the ex-Emperor, the archcriminal of the ages.

Germany temporized; she would try the alleged criminals herself; she would be impartial; but she would not give up her "nationals." The Dutch Government would not violate the sanctuary of its own creating; and the ex-Kaiser was safe. The German Government sparred for time and the appeasements that time, mercifully, applies. Other and more urgent questions called for settlement. Europe was in a welter. Moral values had ceased to mean anything. Moral obligations were laughed at, as the Germans laughed at the treaty with Belgium as a scrap of paper. Authority was denied. Every man was law unto himself. Civilization itself was rocked to its foundations. A great power, which proposed the millennium, refused to do anything to bring it about; and all the great sanctions of political and economic life were invalidated.

In such circumstances, it has been asked if any good purpose could be achieved by insisting upon the formal indictment of the men on the black list. The crimes of German commanders and others were unspeakable. But there is the lapse of time, the fading memory, the urge of the present and the fateful future. What can be gained, it is said, by resurrecting the past? It will only cause bitter feeling. On the other hand, if nothing is done, it is argued that justice will be a mockery; the dead will be dishonored by neglect; and lawlessness will escape the withering rebuke of the civilized world.

It is noted that the Allies have just forwarded to the German Government a supplementary list of persons against whom charges of cruelty are brought. This might indicate that the Allies are still in earnest in their determination to bring the authors of the unspeakable atrocities committed during the war to justice. On the other hand, Germany, which has been, by every insidious means, trying to evade the provisions of the Peace Treaty, is tardy; the preoccupations of the Allies are urgent; the League of Nations, which was to give support to the purposes of the Allies, does not function; and the clock goes forward.

Even now, the worst horrors which shocked the world are forgotten; and many of the living victims of such horrors still face life and indulge the sense of expectancy. Only the conscience of mankind feels, not the desire for idle and purposeless vengeance, but for the solemn condemnation, by the highest and most impartial tribunal, of crimes which at once shocked and flouted civilization.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF LEPREAUX RIVER

Government Members Visited the Falls Yesterday—Need of a Good Road

St. John, May 20.—Plans for the development of Lepreaux river under the Water Power Act, passed at the last session of the Legislature, are being worked out. The general lay-out of the dams and plant at the Big Falls and the Lower Falls have been approved by Mr. Holgate, the well known hydro-electric engineer, of Montreal. After a visit to both falls with members of the Government yesterday Premier Foster said the project was being proceeded with as fast as possible, and he hoped next month to be in a position to make an announcement of some interest to St. John.

Premier Foster, Hon J. P. Byrne, Hon. Dr. Smith, Hon. P. J. Veniot, Hon. Robert Murray, Hon. C. W. Robinson, Hon. J. F. Tweeddale, with Fred Magee and Frank J. Sweeney, members for Westmorland county, went to Lepreaux in company with C. O. Foss, of the N. B. Water Power Commission. They had to leave their autocar on the St. George road about a mile and a half from the site of the proposed power developments and march in by an old wood road. As the day was warm the Government were soon feeling like Moses on the rocky road to Jordan, and Mr. Sweney and Mr. Magee were protesting that the miles thereabouts were twice as long as in the beautiful vales around Moncton, and to add to their troubles Mr. Veniot seized the occasion to deliver a lecture on the need of good roads.

A ST. JOHN TRAGEDY

St. John, May 20—One of the most pitiful tragedies that has ever occurred in St. John and one which nearly resulted in two fatalities and possibly three, occurred last evening when Morris Downing, of 55 Victoria street, died in the General Public Hospital from the effects of a fall from the North Wharf into the water of the slip. His two companions, Patrick Mariner and Michael Cogswell, who were making ineffectual attempts to save him from drowning when city detectives arrived on the scene, are in the police station on drunkenness charges.

WEDDINGS

Bonnell-Devers.

St. Stephen, N. B., May 19.—A pretty morning wedding was solemnized in the Catholic church at Milltown at 6 o'clock on Wednesday, when Frank Bonnell, of St. Stephen, and Miss Hattie Loretta Devers, of Milltown, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The bride was costumed in a pretty suit of dark blue with hat to match and her bridesmaid, Miss Florence McFarlane, was becomingly attired in blue with hat to match. The groom was supported by Philip McGarrity, of St. Stephen. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Moore and the large number of friends who assembled at the early hour gave striking evidence of the esteem in which the happy pair are held. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the home of Miss Sarah Shannon, where a wedding breakfast was served to immediate relatives and friends. After a brief wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bonnell will reside in St. Stephen. The wedding presents were most elaborate and included cut glass, china, linen and substantial cheques.

The Stock Market

New York (Wall Street), May 20.—Heavy liquidation of stocks was resumed at the weak opening of today's session. The urgent character of the selling was accepted as further proof of the effectiveness of the credit deflation adopted by the federal reserve board with the co-operation of banks in all parts of the country. Initial losses in the various groups of industrial and special issues ranged from 1 to 3 points. U. S. Steel, which suffered severely in yesterday's sharp break forfeited only a fraction. Rails also resisted pressure, although Canadian Pacific yielded 2¾ points.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF LIFE

'Nother Turkish Atrocity.

"I see that a leading Turk has been cooped by the Allies."

"Izzet Pasha?"

"It is."

A Member of the Overalls Club.

"That's tough luck! Now I've gotta get under that bus and look at one of the grease cups. Say, if I only had an old suit now to pull on over these nice new overalls."

The Line Was Busy for a Time.

Bones—I called up on the 'phone today and just for fun I said, "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven."

Interlocutor—What happened?

Bones—Well, that's not exactly what she gave me.

Good Reason.

Miss Worryless was a very witty lady.

A gentleman once remarked to her: "What fine dark hair you have got, Miss Worryless. My wife, who is much younger than you, has her hair quite grey."

"Yes," rejoined the lady, "and if I had been your wife my hair would, no doubt, have been grey, too."

Not a New Discovery.

George Ade, seated in the library of the Chicago Athletic Club, looked up from his magazine and said:

"It says here that an English scientist has discovered how to turn anything to gold."

"But then," he added "our profiteers discovered that several years ago."

Father Said So.

Tommy—Do you go to bed very early, Mrs. Peck?

Mrs. Peck — Yes, Tommy, sometimes—when I feel tired.

"You wouldn't go so early if you were married to my father, would you?"

"Oh, Tommy, you funny boy! Why not?"

"'Cause my father told mother that if he were your husband he'd make you sit up!"

Necessary.

Don't get the notion in your head
That you can't be a shirk;
The world won't give you meat and bread
Unless you give it work.

Some Things Can't Be Borne.

"I thought you said you were not going to quarrel with your wife any more."

"So I did, but there's a limit to human endurance."

"Nonsense."

"When I refused to open my mouth she sat and tapped her foot on the floor until I exploded."

Profiteers Located.

"Those blankety-blankety profiteers!" shouted the laborer, as he struck for a 50 per cent. raise.

"Those blankety-blankety profiteers!" shouted the manufacturer, as he tacked 25 per cent. more on his prices.

"Those blankety-blankety profiteers!" shouted the middleman, as he added 20 per cent.

"Those blankety-blankety profiteers!" shouted the retailer, as he contributed a 30 per cent. boost.

"Those blankety-blankety profiteers!" shouted the ultimate consumer.

And the u. c. was approximately correct.

William Funk, a truckman at Winsted, Conn., trying to sell at auction a wagon which cost him $35 several years ago, found that nobody would bid more than $5 for it. Rather than sell it to anybody at that price, he took the wagon to the city dump, pulled it to pieces, threw the bolts in various directions, made a pile of the wheels, placed the rest of the wagon on top, sprinkled kerosene all over the heap, set it afire, and left the dump, satisfied that one would get his wagon for a song.

FROM THE PEOPLE

THE PATRIOTIC VIEW

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly permit me further space in which to reply to a letter from a contributor from McAdam signing himself H. Ford. I have not had leisure to attend to this before.

The first thing that arrests the attention of the reader is the entire and false mis-interpretation put upon my letter of April 26th. Among all the sentences of the reply thereto there is not one which puts forth in a clear and concise manner the reason why the physically fit returned man should receive a cash bonus. Why, indeed should he? Too much cannot be done in the interests of the crippled and war-wrecked men of this country and in promoting the welfare of the widows and orphans of those who did not return (and there is room for improvement) and when it is recognized that some one must go without and we suggest that the physically fit returned man shift for himself, we become the subjects of much melodramatic speechifying and personalities. It would be an agreeable change to hear why such a procedure ever was favored by any one person or class. It does not require much thought or intelligence to fill five or six columns with a mass of meaningless words and feeble sarcasms, but it does require a little grey matter to advance a few reasons in favor of a measure, public or otherwise.

It is, of course, quite unfair to compare the very few with the very many in cases of this nature, which have come up for debate in the People's Column, but what must the public at large think when such a saying as the following was reported last winter by a newspaper of recognized standing. A group of returned men in Toronto were asked what they contemplated doing if the impossibility of a gratuity should develop into a reality, and the reply was that they "were going to have a good time." The returned man may think his responsibilities have ceased once he has doffed the khaki and unfortunately with many this is true. But this is not a sane and patriotic view for a wide-a-wake citizen of Canada to possess and not in keeping with the sacrifices which have been made to keep this country's privilege of freedom, and if it is going to take money to buy a man's interest in his homeland it does not auger well for that country. Yet these men went overseas in a spirit of loyalty and honor to their country, as they would have us believe and which we are quite ready to believe, many of them making the Supreme Sacrifice in this belief, many of them today wrecks in the cause of right. One could not forget if they would. Yet this spirit and belief is apt to be somewhat overclouded when one contemplates the zeal with which some individuals uphold a cash gratuity and like impossibilities; they seem to feel that they are under obligation to uphold any measure, beneficial or impossible solely because it relates even remotely to the army. This may be conceded as a spirit of unity but it is not at all consistent at whatever angle it is viewed from. Why did they not claim exemption from taxes for a number of years and so have put a larger portion of the burden on the profiteer.

We are accused of having the state of the country's pocketbook, figuratively speaking, too much at heart, but it would appear upon consideration that we are not weighing sacrifices and scars against dollars and cents and that this is a whole-hearted interest to the exclusion of all others. There have been sacrifices made on all sides which cannot be made up by money, far-reaching as its powers are. We are in need of guidance evidently, and if this is the attitude you take, and as there is no set time for reform of any kind, this is an excellent opportunity for the able bodied returned man to show a true spirit of patriotism and comradeship by stepping aside and allowing the war wrecks to have first place. This would not be putting too great a burden upon anyone I am sure, for example is better than precept in any one individual or class and is not limited in any way whatsoever. The Government cannot possibly hand out indiscriminately a cash bonus to each and every ex-service man without becoming hopelessly and overwhelmingly in debt, and even if it could follow out this plan of an equal allowance there would be many physically unfit in whose case the gratuity would not be equal to the demands upon it. I repeat, there cannot be too much done for this latter class and no doubt in the G. W. V. A. they will have able representation in the years to come, but also let us hope there will be at the head men of sane and moderate thinking, who, while they will not allow the country to forget the sacrifices these men have made, will also refrain from placing unreasonable and undue strain upon it.

The wage of a dollar-ten a day paid the soldier also comes in for a lot of discussion and does not compare favorably with the wages received by munition workers, etc. The majority of these people did receive at that time what seemed stupendous wages on a sliding scale, but they too worked in the interests of their country, it comparisons are to be drawn pretty fine. If their ambition was directed toward seeing how many shells they could turn out this was in the interests of the country too. No doubt to many of them who had no near relatives in the conflict the war seemed very far away and unrelated to them except by the processional reminder of shells and more shells, but they also worked hard under trying circumstances, and if the result of their work meant to them more money it also meant more shells with which to combat the enemy. Many of them worked amid danger day and night, though in all sincerity it could not be said they were in constant danger of death such as the man behind the gun, and if you wish to say they were only working for their own pockets, still they were serving their country indirectly. While we cannot regard them with the hero-worship accorded soldiers, yet if comparisons are to be drawn then these people played a big part in the war too.

Then again, do you imagine that all those who remained at home were able to save a dollar-ten clear after all living expenses had been paid. The cost of living jumped by dollars and cents day after day, and while some provident souls put by for the inevitable "rainy day," others spent as they went along, and when the armistice was declared and industries became less active many of them were up against it. There were many families throughout the country drawing an allowance who were wishing the war would last forever. Apart from the worry and fear of what might happen their near ones, they were better off than ever before. It is not so much the amount a man earns as how it is spent. If the shoe fits, wear it.

Considering the "big fellows," the profiteers who amassed huge fortunes during the war period, this state of affairs goes on all the time, and while the increase in the number of millionaires was startling, yet fortunes are being made and unmade every day, war or no war. The profiteer who traded on the sufferings of his fellow-beings during that time is assigned a place to himself, and it is not a pleasing one. It is not fair, however, to imagine that no one ever succeeded in accumulating a fortune only during war time. Injustice always has, always will be rampant throughout the world.

You state "it is very nice to hear economy talk during the period of reconstruction." Is there any other more appropriate time when it should be discussed.

I do not agree with your remark with reference to medical attention to returned men that "such men get treatment only and if they have a family this country shows its appreciation by giving them nothing." It is a little difficult to know whether you are speaking of the families or the men themselves, but if it is the latter it is to be regretted they did not receive the six months' allowance based on their term of service overseas, which, while it would not make any one a millionaire, helps. There were many ex-service men, however, who had never saved a dollar in their lives and who have now been given a good start toward independence through the efforts of the Government of this country in their behalf. If they do not take advantage of their opportunities they must, of course, realize they have only themselves to blame.

On all sides it is apparent that efforts are being put forth to assist the returned men in establishing themselves independently. Abuses are liable to creep in there also, such as an agitation a while ago to put in returned men over the heads of Government employees of established departmental experience, many of whom had grown old in the service. It would appear that the Government had not been altogether indifferent to the problem of establishing the returned men when they are ready to undertake such an experiment as this.

With reference to my alleged slander against war brides. Tut! Tut! Far be it from the intentions of any of us to belittle the dignity of motherhood, and you know you should not have excluded all women excepting war-brides from this privilege. The comparison was general, as it does not require any great amount of understanding to see, and cannot possibly be construed into a slander, unless, of course, some wrong-minded person wishes to take a false meaning from it, as evidently the disgruntled contributor from McAdam prefers doing. However, I am glad you agree with me that motherhood is the noblest profession ever created.

However, no doubt under such an able educationalist as yourself many matters which appear to be rather in the dark will become clear, if you will graciously concede us sufficient understanding to ferret out your meaning My dear sir, if your views are really those as set forth in your letter, be not weary in well-doing, and it is to be hoped we shall have a reply forthwith conclusive enough to bring this discussion to a finish. Also that it will not be necessary to appeal to any one else to help you out.

Yours,
VERY MUCH INTERESTED.

ADVICE TO WORKING BOYS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—About a year ago a discussion arose in your column as to the best way to teach working boys to save money. Some of your correspondents advised parents to charge the boy a certain amount for board and beyond that to let them keep what they earn. Another was in favor of parents taking the boy's salary and doling out to him the necessary expense money. With this idea I certainly disagree. Let a working boy have the fullest possible interest in what he earns and you encourage him as a worker as well as to save.

This last correspondent added the opinion that working boys spend too much for lunches. A healthy growing boy needs a good sized lunch and I moreover know from personal experience that boys have work that makes them hungry. Food is not the place to call on a working boy to economize.

But there are two indulgences in which boys from 15 to 20 may well economize. They are tobacco and clothes. Every boy who smokes before he is 21 acquires an unnecessary, expensive and dangerous habit. Every one is better off if he does not smoke until he is 21. Then he has not stunted his growth and probably will not acquire the habit to excess. As to clothes, a boy should dress neatly but he should be satisfied with one good suit that fits well rather than a number of the latest cut and color.

Boys would do well to consider that cigarettes and long trousers do not make the man and that he is not the less a man by abstaining from smoking and long trousers. If a boy wishes to economize he will find that it costs less to wash or darn stockings than it does to clean and press and repair trousers and, unless he is unusually tall, he will do better to stick to knickerbockers till he is 18 than to indulge too soon in the glory of long trousers.

Yours,
EXPERIENCE.

TENDED TO LOWER PRICES IN FRANCE

Manner in Which Government Met Strike Helped French Foreign Credit

Paris, May 19.—In an interview today, an official pointed to the manner in which the French government had met the May Day strike and the ensuing crisis as markedly helping French credits in foreign markets.

In general, the official gave it as his view that the production of the world was relatively in a better position toward consumption that it had been since 1914. He noted that there had been a general tendency toward lower prices in cotton and wool and that silk prices were declining and he thought that similar improvements might be expected within a year in steel, iron and coal.

The wholesale dealers generally are not affected by the decline in the pound sterling and the dollar, as most of the stocks on hand have been purchased at 30, 60 or ninety days' credit. The cash buyers alone, who are in the minority, are the sufferers.

The exchange market opened today with a rush, speculators who had been playing for the rise of the dollar and the pound unloading, while others were busily engaged in trying to stem the tide of decline. The opening transaction in sterling was 5,000 pounds at 48 francs. Later transactions averaged fifty francs. Dollars were not quite so active.

The dollar closed at 13 francs 44 centimes and the pound sterling at 51 francs 40 centimes, after the heaviest days transactions in foreign exchange since the armistice.

Zimmerman Girl Tells of Being Drugged and Ruined

Swears the Doctor She Slew Promised Marriage After Attacking Her—Weeps on the Stand as She Reveals the Horrid Chapter in Her Life

Springfield, May 19.—Interspersed with moments of weakness in which she appeared on the verge of physical and mental collapse, Miss Jennie Zimmerman told of a criminal assault which she declared the doctor made on her in his office Nov. 11, 1915, of following years in which their relations were those of man and wife, and of two operations which she testified were performed by Dr. Zimmerman for conditions for which he was responsible.

Her sad story was told before 100 officers and spectators, who filled every seat in the court room. All were stirred deeply by the detailed description of the drugging and assault, the recital of which appeared to require every ounce of strength in her frail body. It was as dramatic a story as was ever heard here.

Swears She Was Drugged.

Taking up her testimony where she broke off last Thursday when the case was halted by her collapse. Miss Zimmerman told of feeling ill and going to consult Dr. Zimmerman, with whom she was on extremely friendly terms after his frequent calls at her home and store.

It was in the afternoon of Nov. 11, 1915, when after recurrences of her former attacks of dizziness, headaches and heart trouble she sought treatment. After a brief wait she was admitted to the private office, where she described her illness and he asked her to remove most of her clothes.

He tested her with a stethescope and then brought her some liquid in a glass which she drank on his instruction. She immediately began to feel weak and warm and dizzy. He calmed her fears and lifted her to the operating table.

Then followed the story of the assault which she said was committed while she was in a sleepy and semi-conscious condition and entirely unable to resist. When she became conscious she fought desperately for several minutes, she said, while the doctor attempted to attack her again.

Several times during this part of her testimony the defendant was stricken with convulsive sobbing and tears flowed down her cheeks. Though much of the time she held her hands over her face, the words were uttered clearly and reached every corner of the court room in which her voice was the only sound. Several times she swayed in her seat and was supported by the jail matron beside her.

When the doctor finally released her, she said, he tried to soothe her. "He tried to reason with me then," she said, sobbing. "He said, 'don't cry, everything will be all right. I will marry you as soon as I can.' When she became hysterical and cried, "see what you have done to me. You have ruined me," he protested his love and willingness to marry her "as soon as he could."

Again and again, she said, Dr. Zimmerman professed his love for her and his determination to marry her. She refused to be comforted, she said, because of the enormity of his offense, but when she would let him he would try to comfort and quiet her with caresses. Later, she said, he assisted her to put on her clothes.

Always Sought Marriage.

Following the story of her betrayal, Jennie became more calm and resumed her story of her relations with Dr. Zimmerman and the growing hope that he would make good his promise to atone for his wrongs by marrying her.

"I told the doctor that I felt awful weak, and he replied, 'You will be all right.' I came downstairs from the doctor's office and waited for a car to take me home. I was very ill that night, but did not call the doctor until next day.

"She said that she told her sister she was too ill to go to work. "Dr. Zimmerman came during the day and after some talk he tried to kiss me, but I pushed him away," she continued. "He told me that he said to people that the scratches on his face were inflicted by a barber. I had never kissed him at his own office or at my home until the episode I told about. I was ill all the week and Dr. Zimmerman attended me."

Dr. Zimmerman came to her in December, Jennie said, and after an examination ordered some medicine from a drug store. "I took the medicine and hot mustard baths, which made me very weak and sick," she said.

Told Her of His Love.

"Henry came again and the improper relations were resumed. That night I asked him to marry me. His reply was to tell how much he loved me.

"I went to Henry's office afterward when the doctor told me to take off my corsets, coat and hat for an examination. He did not operate on me at this time, but he used other treatment."

The witness testified that she was operated on by Dr. Zimmerman in February, 1916. In reply to a question by Attorney McKechnie she said: "The only excuse Henry gave me was that he could not marry me then. He did not want his family to know then of our relations. I said to Henry, You must marry me.'" Here the girl's story was interrupted by a violent burst of sobbing.

When able to resume her testimony she said: "When I got home I fainted and the next day he came to me. He left some medicine for me, but said he could not stay very long on this visit. He came back in the evening and stayed with me all night. Henry cautioned me to tell nobody and have no one attend me but himself. He told me to say if anybody should ask me what the trouble was to say I had hemorrhages."

"Yes," Jennie answered her attorney, "Dr. Zimmerman told me not to worry, that we were man and wife to all intent and purpose just the same as if a ceremony had been performed." Jennie declared that she told him, "Henry, that is the socialist idea, and may be all right for them, but it is not for me."

Gave Her a Ring.

She told of warning the doctor that he could not come any more until he married her and that the next month he gave her a ring. She identified the ring as one exhibited by Attorney McKechnie and said that she told Dr. Zimmerman at the time, "That's no kind of an engagement ring."

Dr. Zimmerman did not become intimate with her again for some time afterward, she said, and then qualified it by saying, "Not very long, after, however." She told of a visit by the doctor when he tried to get into the house. Later, in the store, she said, Dr. Zimmerman asked her to explain her coolness toward him. "I said to him, 'I am not your wife.' We took a walk very soon and Henry kissed me."

Witness told of a visit to Dr. Zimmerman's office and finding in his private apartment the picture of a woman which she subsequently identified as that of Sadie Feldman, one of the young women with the physician on the day he was killed.

"I told Henry he had no business to have that picture there; it should be my picture instead," Jennie said. "He then told me that I had no business to put the picture in a drawer."

Hurled Against the Wall.

"Henry would get very angry and slap me against the wall," Jennie said, when she told of scolding him for his companionship with other women. She told of seeing him one night in Fox's theatre with Mrs. Abraham Levin, a relative of Dr. Zimmerman by marriage. She took him to account on this occasion and asked him why he didn't take her.

In the case of the second operation, Miss Zimmerman testified, he urged her, saying, "If you love me you will go through it."

Several letters received by Miss Zimmerman while the doctor was in camp during the war were introduced by Attorney McKechnie to show that the girl was frequently sending gifts of candy, tobacco and often money to the man who had betrayed her, and that the letters became colder and colder as time went on.

Witness said she began to give Dr. Zimmerman money in 1916, first in small amounts, from 75 cents upward. She said it got so that Dr. Zimmerman helped himself to cigars and cigarettes in her store and asked for more money. "In April, 1916," she said, "I got a loan for $300, Samuel Zimmerman, my uncle, and Samuel Shapiro indorsing the note." She said the doctor borrowed in all between $600 and $700, using the money for personal use.

When she became convinced that he did not intend to marry her, Jennie said she upbraided him and he replied: "If you don't shut up I'll put you in Northampton with your mother."

ONLY ONE DRINK PER HALF HOUR

"No Smoking" Another Rule in This London Public House

In a dingy London by-way there is a public house which displays no sign, serves only one drink to a customer every half-hour, and has equally quaint rules of its own, says the London Daily Chronicle.

When visited by a Daily Chronicle representative, it confirmed its reputation of stern respectability.

Near Liverpool street station is a small alley known as Artillery Lane, containing this "Pub" of Surprises. Of three persons questioned in the alley only one knew where it was, and then its name was unknown.

Years ago—in 1686, when it had the first license—it was probably familiar as The Ship, but today it is known only to a few by the name of its proprietor.

There is only one bar, and it is useless for customers to return for a second drink before 29 minutes are up, for the barmen have been trained to a wonderful pitch of facial memory. That is the first surprise.

A second surprise is the almost pre-war price of bitter beer—3½d. a half-pint—but the fiend behind the bar positively refuses to serve a pint.

Surprise No. 3 is the landlord. Instead of being greeted by a gigantic personage, as one might perhaps imagine, Mr. Lionel Williams, silver-haired and diamond-pinned, is introduced. His appearance is that of an eminent literary character, upon whom "the pale cast of thought has drooped.

Perhaps the biggest surprise of all is when the ever-watchful barman orders you to take your cigarette out of your mouth, as "no smoking is allowed here."

There are many other shocks in this strange house, including spirits to sell (but only one small drop is allowed) at 2d. below the controlled price.

"My father strongly advocated temperance," said the æsthetic landlord in explanation, as he handed me the Book of Rules, a copy of which he sent to Mr. Lloyd-George in 1915. "And when, after 60 years," he went on, "the license management came into my hands, my brother and I decided to enforce strict discipline.

"This is a free house; I can do what I like, and the ward beadle of the city says that the house is the longest held license without prosecution. You are welcome to come in and have one drink and no more, but I reserve the right to serve if I think anyone is a bit 'merry.'

"I want only temperate customers, the sameas my father did. My regular one-drink customers come in every day, and I extend an invitation to Mr. 'Pussyfoot' Johnson, who can also have one drink, but no more until the next half-hour is up."

And, passing his fingers through his hair, the eminent-looking landlord finished his one drink and gazed thoughtfully at the clock.

Ottawa, May 20.—Yesterday in parliament.

House of Commons:

The budget debate was continued, A. R. McMaster, of Brome, being the first speaker. He charged that the Government had aggravated the exchange situation and declared that protection had been responsible for much of the rivalry and ill-feeling between nations.

Hon. Mr. Ballantyne expressed his belief in a policy of moderate protection. He was satisfied that the country would brook no interference with this policy.

Other speakers were W. K. Baldwin, Stanstead; R. J. Manion, Fort William; T. Gervais, Berthier; S. E. Elkin, St. John, N. B., and J. E. D'Anjou, Rimouski.

The House rose at 11 o'clock.

Annual Meeting Today of New Brunswick Telephone Co. With the Directors' Report

The Directors' Report Shows That the Earnings for the Year Greatly Increased, But at Same Time the Expenses Increased at a Faster Rate

The executive of the New Brunswick Telephone Company met this morning at the Telephone Company's office in this city, to prepare a programme for the annual meeting of the shareholders which takes place at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The directors' meeting was held this afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. At the shareholders meeting the financial statement for the year will be submitted and the president's report delivered to the shareholders. The directors for the ensuing year will also be elected.

S. H. White, of Sussex, who has been president of the company since 1918, is unable to be present at the meeting owing to ill health. Among the old directors who are present at the meeting are R. O'Leary, Richibucto; W. B. Snowball, Chatham; R. B. Emerson, Lt. Col. J. L. McAvity, J. M. Robinson, H. P. Robinson and O. J. Fraser, of St. John, and F. R Sumner, of Moncton.

The directors' annual report follows:

To the Shareholders of the New Brunswick Telephone Co., Ltd.:

In submitting the financial statement for the year ending March 31st, 1920, your directors can again call attention to the material growth of the company, and the still greater growth in operating costs. The net gain for the year in telephones installed was 2,482—238 more than any preceding year. We have added to our system 270 miles of long distance circuit and 190 miles of farmer line circuit.

The company has purchased suitable land and buildings for the establishment of permanent exchanges in St. Andrews, Dorchester, and Gagetown.

The number of long distance calls for the year was 735,330, an increase of 91,201 over last year.

Turning to the financial side you will find a corresponding growth.

The earnings for the year increased $91,791.40, but our expenses increased $148,694.33.

This increase in expense over earnings was anticipated by your directors and was indicated in our last report.

The sleet and wind storms of last winter did great damage to the company's property, and created an unexpected and extremely heavy demand on our reserve. Because of the constantly increasing cost of material and labor and the immediate necessity for increased revenue, your directors, in December last, made application to the Public Utilities Commission of New Brunswick for increased rates. (Particulars re this application are fully set forth in pamphlet form and a copy can be obtained by any stockholder on application to the secretary). The amount of increase revenue asked for was $264,000, based on conditions existing on September 30th, 1919.

Since then the cost of all material and labor has greatly increased, additional taxes have been imposed on the company, and we will now require, and are asking for, $330,000, and even this may be found insufficient to meet future requirements. This application is now being considered by the commission.

In order to maintain our dividend throughout the year we have had to reduce the amount set aside for depreciation reserve to 2 4-5 per cent., whereas under normal conditions we should set aside 8 per cent.

Early in the year your directors decided on a policy of group insurance, covering all the company's employees. At the end of the fiscal year we had 671 employees insured for a total amount of $537,400 at a total annual premium of $4,171.31. Three deaths have occurred on which claims amounting to $3,500 have been paid.

We believe ours was the first company in the province to adopt free insurance for its employees. So far the results have been most satisfactory.

With sorrow we have to record the death of one of your most valued directors, Mr. F. W. Sumner, of Moncton.

We note with great regret the absence of our president, Mr. S. H. White, who is confined to his home by illness. We extend to him our sympathy, and hope for his speedy recovery.

To the staff and employees of the company we once more express our appreciation for their excellent services throughout the year.

The financial statement is herewith submitted.

TRADE UNIONS IN DENMARK FINED

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Copenhagen, May 20.—Three trade unions which were found responsible for the strike which paralyzed Denmarks export trade for nearly two months, have been fined by the permanent court of arbitration on industrial disputes.

It is improbable the unions will be able to pay the fines after the great expense incurred during the strike, and the court may order their funds seized and declare the unions bankrupt.

IMPROVE ST. JOHN STREET RAILWAY

N. B. Power Company Seek Permission of City to Construct Extensions

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

St. John, May 20.—For the purpose of improving the system and for the public convenience, according to a letter submitted to the Common Council this morning, the N. B. Power Company is seeking permission to construct several extensions to the street railway lines so as to permit the continuous passage of all their cars on the loop system, and also the introduction of the one-man car.

Commissioner Frink said the intention was to have all lines radiate from "a hub" at King Square, and was intended to provide a step towards better service for the city. He suggested that Mr. McCauley be asked to explain his plans to the council. He said the company was planning a well equipped waiting room somewhere in the vicinity of the Market. A hue and cry was immediately raised and many residents in the vicinity, thinking that some dangerous criminal had escaped, took to cover. HURRY CARS WEST FOR FOOD AND FUEL

Building Operations in the East Seriously Affected by the U. S. Car Shortage

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20—In an effort to move eastward vast supplies of food and fuel held in the west because of lack of railroad equipment, the Pennsylvania Railroad today began speeding westward long trains of empty box and gondola cars. All outgoing freight has been halted by the Pennsylvania for 48 hours. It is expected that during the day other roads will also place short time embargoes in effect.

The car shortage, coupled with labor disturbances on the railroads, is rapidly creating an acute situation here, it was said by business men, who asserted that building operations were being seriously affected. Announcement was made by the Merchants' Association yesterday that a number of additional manufacturing establishments had been forced to close because of lack of raw materials and others would close perhaps every day from now on unless something drastic was done to relieve the situation.

FLAMES THREATEN QUEBEC VILLAGES

Women and Children Driven From Their Homes by Forest Fires Surrounding Villages

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Quebec, May 20.—Fire has broken out in the woods surrounding the villages of St. Camille, St. Fabien, Panet and Dauquam, Bellechasse County. The flames are sweeping over the railway tracks. Dauquam is in danger and the inhabitants are fleeing from their homes.

Last evening some women and children took refuge in a Quebec Central train which had to fight its way through the flames.

Water is being supplied by tenders. The manager of the St. Maurice Lumber yards has telegraphed to Sherbrooke for assistance. Wood valued at over a million dollars is exposed to destruction. Public prayers are being offered up. Aid will be sent from neighbouring districts.

WEST ONLY WANTS REDUCED TARIFF

Montreal, May 20—Hon. Frank Oliver, former Minister of the Interior in the Laurier cabinet, interviewed here last night, said the western farmer was not to blame for the high cost of living, as he has made no profit out of the inflated prices of wheat. While the Canadian Government was selling Canadian wheat to England, France and Germany at $2.30 a bushel, the Canadian customer was paying $2.80 a bushel for it.

Mr. Oliver says the west has never specifically supported free trade, but rather wants a reduction of tariff.

GERMAN REICHSTAG TO MEET JUNE 16

New York Bank to Accord Only Absolutely Necessary Credits to Luxury Importers

A Drastic Curtailment in Trading Operations in Luxuries Is Predicted—The Banks to Co-operate With the Deflation Plans of Government

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 20.—New York banks today applied pressure to importers and merchants dealing in luxuries and non-essentials, in compliance with the request of the Federal Reserve Board that they aid in the deflation of credits.

Customers who handle such lines as jewelry, pleasure automobiles, furs, objects of art, cosmetics and the more luxurious articles of wearing apparel, were notified that for the time being they would only be accorded such credits and accommodations as were absolutely necessary for the conduct of their business.

In financial circles it was believed this action would effect a drastic curtailment in the trading operations of such dealers, which would necessarily be reflected in their sales to extravagant customers.

Meanwhile, the wave of price cutting by department stores and others continued to spread here. The principal reductions are in clothing and shoes, with cuts from 15 up to as high as 70 per cent. in one instance.

It is understood that the action of the bankers in renewing pressure to curtail luxuries sales has been taken independently of each other, but at a dinner here tonight, tendered by Faul M. Warburg, to the executive committee of the American Acceptance Council, it is expected that the bankers will decide upon some co-operative formula, whereby banks throughout the country may co-operate with the Reserve Board on the government's deflation plan.

STEPPED ON NAIL HAS LOCKJAW

Marysville Lady Called to Chatham by Brother's Serious Illness

A few days ago Mr. McCormick stepped upon a rusty nail which entered his foot. Later lackjaw set in and he was rushed to the Hotel Dieu hospital at Chatham for treatment. His condition is considered critical. His daughter, Miss Jennie McCormick, who has been teaching school in Carleton county, went home Tuesday. Miss Bessie A. Gailey, a niece of Mr. McCormick's, is nursing him at the hospital. His many friends here and elsewhere hope for his recovery.

The coroner's investigation into the death of John T. Estabrooks and Frank Gillis will be resumed in the Knights of Pythias hall this evening at 7 o'clock. Additional witnesses have been summoned, and it is possible that some of the witnesses who have testified may be called.

The annual meeting of the Sewing Circle of the Methodist church was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Stafford last evening. In addition to routine business the officers were elected for the ensuing year as follows: President, Mrs. P. E. Nickerson; vice-president, Mrs. J. A. Stafford; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Stella Cochrane.

A. O. Dawson, of Montreal, Joseph Dolphin and Alfred White, returned by the Whooper last evening from a successful fishing trip to the Miramichi

Mrs. Jennie White has been confined to her room for several days with illness but is now recovering.

J. Spence, of St. John, was in town yesterday on a business trip.

Peace Temple, No. 12, met in Castle Hall last evening. The degree staff had a good work-out during the evening.

The Police Committee will have the signs warning auto drivers against over speeding in the town limits placed in position in a few days. A Fredericton auto owner was called before Magistrate Clayton this morning, charged with driving at a rate of speed on the streets dangerous to life and property.

THE NEW ENGLAND SPEED SALE TODAY

At Least 100 Horses, Including Many Colts and Fillies to Change Hands

Boston, May 19.—All auction records for the past 10 or 15 years in New England in all probability will go by the board Thursday at the Readville track, where nearly 100 trotters, pacers and show horses go under the hammer. More steeds have been consigned to the New England speed sale than any other held hereabouts since the "Down East" affairs were regularly held at the 2-minute track.

Foreign Buyers Expected.

As foreign buyers are expected to be here either in person or by proxy, the bidding promises to be lively, for there are many aged performers of class, as well as a host of highly-bred colts and fillies, which will be brought before the auction block during the day.

What horse will bring the top prize of the day is a question, but it is expected that Oro Fino, 2.03¼ the bay pacer owned and consigned by Sam B. Hastings, who says he is going out of the game temporarily at least, will be knocked down at a price well up in four figures.

Oro Fino is a young horse, being only 6 years old. He holds the world half-mile track record for 3-year-old pacers, having negotiated a small oval in 2.06, and his races last season, especially at Springfield, where he lowered the track record to 2.08¾, and undoubtedly could have gone faster show he has the whiz. Let's hope the foreigners do not get him.

Many High-Class Youngsters.

When it comes to young stock, there is better quality at this sale than in former years. For instance, Charles W. Leonard has consigned five yearlings and 2-year-olds by leading sires and out of good dams, which should measure up to the requirements of the most exacting. Bertha Volo, one of the best-looking youngsters at the Readville track, and a daughter of the 4-year-old champion Peter Volo, 2.02, is one of the lot coming from Beaumont farm.

The youngster that probably will attract as much attention as any other however is the 2-year-old miss, Lou Harvest, which A. B. Hastings, owner of Fair Oaks farm, has consigned. This filly is a daughter of The Harvester, 2.01, former champion trotting stallion, while her grandam is none other than the champion trotting mare Lou Dillon, 1.58½. Lou Billings, 2.08¾, by Bingen, 2.06¼, one of the matrons at Fair Oaks, is the dam of the youngster.

There are more consignments from a distance than ever before. Robert Burgess, of Wenonah, Ill., sends two green pacers. John Kessling, of Tiffin, O., will dispose of two, while Will Harrison, of Laurel Hill, Indianapolis, has consigned a green trotting mare by Peter the Great, 2.07¼.

McGRAW SUSPENDED

New York, May 19—President Heydler, of the National League, announced today that he had suspended Manager John J. McGraw, of the New York National League Club, for five days. The suspension, he said was inflicted on account of McGraw's having had trouble with umpires at Pittsburgh and Chicago.

The Big Leagues

In the American League excellent support for Cicotte held Boston to a 3 to 2 victory, although the winners made 14 hits for a total of 19 bases.

Coveleskie, defeated Saturday, came back strong yesterday and scored an impressive victory for Cleveland against New York.

Philadelphia found Oldham, after being retired in order in the first three innings, and batted him out of the box against Detroit.

St. Louis bunched four hits with two passes in the fifth for five runs, Hornsby tripling with the bases full, and easily defeated Philadelphia.

Ten Fast Rounds Fought at Detroit With No Appreciable Advantage to Either

Cincinnati, O., May 20.—"Knock out" Brown, of Toledo, was given the decision over Elmer Hogan, of Detroit, at the end of a fifteen round bout here last night. The men fought at 146 pounds.

Lew Tendler Gets Decision.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 20.—Lew Tendler, Philadelphia lightweight boxer, was given the newspaper decision over Pinkey Mitchell, of this city, in a ten round bout here last night. Tendler's award, it was said, was based principally on his aggressiveness.

Mitchell emerged without a blemish, while he caused the blood to trickle from Tendler's nose in the last session. Tendler's blows were directed principally to the body. Mitchell held the easterner even in several rounds and slowed him up on several occasions with stiff rights to the jaw.

"THE KING OF DISC HARROWS"

We have just received a large shipment of the well known Bissell Disc Harrow and would like to point out to you the distinguishing features which make it the "King of Disc Harrows."

The Beam or Arch is directly over the Gangs, making the BISSELL lighter on the horses necks than any other Out-Throw Harrow on the market.

One gang is set slightly ahead of the other. On this Harrow the gangs do not crowd or bump together.

Has two levers for use on side hills. Gangs work close together in the centre. Hitch is well back. There is no neck weight. The Draught is light.

In all BISSELL Disc Harrows the end thrust is taken by the frame and bearings which makes the draught easy. The gangs are free to cultivate down to the bottom of a furrow or other hollow. The Levers are long, with a good sweep, making it the easiest of Disc Harrows to handle and operate.

The BISSELL is made of the very best of material throughout. We are able to furnish you this Harrow with either 12 or 14 disc; the discs are 16 in. in diameter.

Hurd Disposes of Charges Against Admiralty's Work

President Wilson Entirely Misinformed About Naval Situation in 1917—Admiralty Had Been Working on Question of Barrage Long Before U. S. Entered War

London, May 19. — Archibald Hurd, in an article in the Daily Telegraph discussing Secretary Daniels' disclosures of President Wilson's letter to Admiral Sims in 1917, wherein he referred to the British Admiralty as helpless to the point of panic, says that the President's appreciation of the naval situation, "formed a distance of 3,000 miles from the scene of operations, was based upon incomplete knowledge both of the principals of naval warfare and also of the action which the Admiralty was taking."

He asserts that when America intervened in the war, the Admiralty had been conducting operations against the enemy for two years and ten months, and had gained a good deal of experience, and that it was the opinion of every admiral that the flotillas associated with the Grand Fleet for screening it when cruising in the North Sea had been reduced to the lowest minimum compatible with reasonable safety of the force upon which the Allied cause depended more than any other.

It has always been understood, says Mr. Hurd, that Admirals Benson and Mayo, who were eventually sent from Washington to investigate matters, gave a certificate of efficiency to the Admiralty, confirming generally Admiral Sims' conclusions.

Referring to the situation in the early months of 1917, when the enemy had embasked on the submarine campaign, Hurd declares that "the losses in British merchant tonnage had risen to 545,000 tons in April, and that in the last week of that month, 250,000 tons of British, Allied and neutral shipping had been destroyed.

Situation Desperate

"This was the situation when America intervened in the war on April 6. The first few destroyers under the American flag reached Queenstown on May 14, six weeks after America's declaration, and not until the end of June was the number increased to twenty. The last month in the year had opened before a single armored ship of the American fleet had crossed the Atlantic to strengthen the Grand Fleet. The organization at Washington reacted only slowly to the naval situation, which had become desperate, for if the losses of merchant shipping had continued in subsequent months at the same rate as in April, not only this country and its allies in Europe, but America itself, having embarked in the war, would have been defeated."

Hurd then refers to the "great debt we owe and the whole civilized world owes to the American navy," and says the arrival of the American destroyers at a critical moment, saved the situation and, among other things, "the British navy was at last able to supply convoys for the larger proportion of the American troops' who were brought in safely through the war zone.'

As regards the great northern barrage, Mr. Hurd admits that American seamen laid the larger number of mines in it, but he says the scheme had been under consideration at the Admiralty when the United States was still a neutral.

"Before the American declaration of war, I believe a British naval officer had been despatched to the United States to see whether a suitable mine could be obtained there, for we were so hard pressed that we could not face the problem of the production of about 10,000 mines, which were required. As a result of conferences between British and American naval officers, a more or less satisfactory mine was at length evolved. The mine field was not completed when the armistice was signed, owing to delays in delivery of mines, and it is very doubtful whether the project, in which the British and American seamen cooperated, had much influence on the submarine campaign."

Mr. Hurd concludes: "We are content to know that the British navy did its duty, and that the Admiralty throughout the years of war exhibited a fine competency in defeating the perils which had not been foreseen by the British, French, Italian or American naval officers in the period of peace. For the rest we take off our hats to the American seamen, who exhibited in every situation, however embarrassing, high technique, unfailing resourcefulness and good seamanship.'

CHARGE PASTOR STOLE $50,000

Manchester, N. H., May 19. — The police announced today that Rev. Stephen Plaza, pastor of the Polish Church of the Holy Cross, at Pearl and Union streets, is a fugitive from justice, charged with the embezzlement of $50,000.

The church is not under the jurisdiction of the Catholic bishop, but has been conducted as an independent church.

The accounts of the parish have been under investigation, and a keeper was in charge of the rectory pending the completion of the audit. According to the secretary of the church, Lawrence Lacheta, the breach between the pastor and the parishioners has been growing for five years, with an increasing suspicion that the finances, of which the pastor had full charge, were not being properly accounted for.

A week ago a committee of the parishioners demanded that the books be audited. Yesterday the discovery was made that the clergyman had disappeared. A complaint was sworn out and placed in the hands of Timothy F. Connor, county solicitor, alleging Fr. Plaza to be an embezzler. Efforts are now being made to locate him.

THE NEW ENGLAND DAIRY DECLINING

Massachusetts Loses 2,000 Milch Cows in Year—Shortage in Milk Supply

Boston, May 19.—One of the factors that farming experts foresee is the causes of food scarcity next winter is the diminishing "cow population," not only of Massachusetts, but also of New England. The Massachusetts department of agriculture has statistics showing that there are 2,000 fewer milch cows in this state alone than there were a year ago.

It has been shown that while farm labor is scarce, the class of help that is able and willing to milk a barnful of cows is still more so. This condition, plus the cost of hay and grain, which are at a height never before reached, are resulting in auctions of some well-known dairy herds in Rhode Island and the disposal of numerous head of cattle at private sales. The best animals go to build up other herds, the culls from which are being sent to the slaughter houses.

GREAT CONVENTION OF MANUFACTURERS

Vancouver, May 19.—When the Canadian Manufacturers' Association convention opens here on June 7, official welcomes to the delegates will be voiced by Premier Oliver on behalf of the province and Mayor Gale on behalf of the city. The provincial branch of the association with the assistance of other organizations, is making every effort to present in the fullest form all information respecting the possibilities and resources of British Columbia, with a view to inducing Canadian capital to invest in the West. About 500 delegates, many of whom will bring their families, are expected to attend the convention which will be the largest "all Canadian" gathering scheduled for western Canada for this summer.

Nearly every one of the delegates is interested in the development of export trade, according to J. B. Thomson, chairman of the British Columbia division of the association. Added to these 500 delegates will be others attending the fisheries convention, which is booked for approximately the same time. Indeed some are intending to put in attendance at both conventions.

FOURTEEN SLEEP IN THREE BEDS

Slum Conditions in Quebec Revealed by Anti-Tuberculosis Secretary

Quebec, May 19.—Miss Alice Fitzpatrick, secretary of the Anti-Tuberculosis branch of the Red Cross making her report on conditions in the city of Quebec, writes in part as follows:

"I have heard it said that there was no need for effort in the cause of tuberculosis, because only one section of the community was affected; and that their own people should look after them. I wonder if many of you know that the second cook in one of the most exclusive and smartest eating places in Quebec is a patient at the dispensary. One would be shocked to hear even the suggestion of slums in the city of Quebec. Well, I dare to state that if there are not slums, slum conditions exist here, for instance: A family of fourteen sleeping in three beds in two rooms, ten children, boys and girls, sleeping in one room, the father, the mother and two other children in one bed in the other room. Another case is that of a tubercular woman of 66 whose brother, a half-wit, sleeps in her room on the floor. This woman, who ownes the house, rents the other three rooms to a widow with nine children and she is tubercular as well as her children."

The visit was made especially to an apartment in the third story, consisting of an antechamber and three rooms. One of these chambers was occupied by two females, a young girl, and a child of nine years old, all dressed in mourning. The elder of the females was about seven or eight and thirty. She was seated at a table reading.

The second, whose age appeared twenty-eight or twenty-nine, was engaged on a piece of tapestry.

The young girl of fourteen years, was seated near the child, who, ill and in bed, closed his eyes as if asleep, although that was utterly impossible, owing to the noise made by the municipals. Whilst some moved the beds, others examined their cloths and linen; the rest, when their search was concluded, remained rudely staring at the unfortunate prisoners, who never even raised their eyes, the one from her book, the other from her embroidery, and the third from her brother.

The eldest of these women was tall, handsome, and very pale. She appeared to concentrate all her attention on her book, although in all probability her eyes read but not her mind. One of the municipals approached her, brutally snatched away her book, and flung it into the middle of the room. The prisoner stretched her hand across the table, took up the second volume, and continued to read.

The Montagnard made a furious gesture, as if he would take away the second, as he had the first, but at this attempt, which startled the prisoner at her embroidery near the window, the young girl sprang forward, and encircling the reader's head with her arms, weeping, exclaimed, "My poor mother! my poor mother!" and then embraced her. As she did so the prisoner placed her mouth to her ear, and whispered—"Marie, there is a letter concealed in the stove; remove it."

'Come! come!" said the municipal, brutally dragging the young girl toward him, and separating her from her mother, "shall you soon have finished embracing?"

"Sir," said she, 'has the Convention decreed that children shall not embrace their mother?".

"No, but it has decreed that traitors, aristocrats and si-devants shall be punished, that is why I am here to interrogate you. Answer, Antoinette."

She who was thus grossly accosted did not even deign to look at her examiner, but turned her head aside, while a flush passed over her face, pale, and furrowed with tears.

"It is impossible," said he, 'that you are ignorant of the atteempt last night. Whence came it?"

The prisoner still maintained silence.

"Answer, Antoinette," said Santerre, approaching her, without remarking the almost frenzied horror which had seized the young woman at sight of this man, who, on the morning of the 21st to January, conducted Louis XVI. from the Temple to the scaffold. "Reply. They were conspiring last night against the Republic, and seeking your escape from the captivity in which you are expiating your crimes, by the will of the people. Tell me, do you know who are the conspirators?"

Marie started at contact with that voice, which she endeavored to fly from by removing her chair to the greatest distance possible, but replied no more to this question than the former ones; paid no more deference to Santerre than she had done to the municipal

"You are then determined not to reply," said Santerre, stamping his foot furiously.

The prisoner took up the third volume from the table. Santerre turned himself away. The brutal power of this man, who commanded 80,000 men, who had only need of a gesture to cover the voice of the dying Louis XVI., was defeated by the dignity of a poor prisoner, whose head he could cause to fall, but whose will he could not bend.

"And you, Elizabeth," said he, addressing the other female, who at that instant abandoned her tapestry to join her hands in prayer, not to these men, but to God, "will you reply?"

"I do not know what you ask," said she; "therefore I cannot reply."

"Morbleu! Citizen Capet," said Santerre, impatiently, "I think what I say is sufficiently clear, too. I again tell you, that yesterday an attempt was made for your escape, and you certainly must know the culprits."

"Having no communication with those outside, monsieur, we cannot possibly tell what they do, either for or against us."

"Very well,' said the municipal; "we will now hear what your nephew will say."

And he approached the bed of the young Dauphin. At this menace, Marie Antoinette suddenly rose.

"Monsieur," said she, "my son is ill, and now asleep—do not wake him."

"Reply then."—"I know nothing."

The municipal walked straight to the bed of the little prisoner, who, as we have said, feigned sleep.

'Come, wake up, Capet,' said he, shaking him roughly.

The child opened his eyes, and smiled.

The municipals then surrounded his bed.

The Queen, agitated with fear and grief, made a sign to her daughter, who, profiting by this moment, glided from the apartment into the room adjoining, opened the mouth of the stove and drew out a letter.

"What do you want with me?' asked the child.

"To inquire if you heard nothing during the night?"

"No; I was asleep."

"You are very fond of sleep, it seems."

"Yes; for when I sleep I dream."

"And what do you dream?"

"That I again see my father, whom you have killed."

"Then you heard nothing?" said Santerre, quickly.

"Nothing."

"These wolf's cubs are, in truth, well agreed with the she-wolf," said the municipal, furious with rage. "There has been, notwithstanding, a plot."

The Queen smiled.

"She bullies us, the Austrian!" cried the municipal. "Well, since it is thus, let us execute in all its rigor the decree of the Commune. Get up, Capet."

"What would you do?" said the Queen, forgetting herself; "Do you not see my son is ill and suffering from fever? Would you wish to kill him?"

"Your son," said the municipal, "is the cause of constant alarm to the council of the Temple; he is the point at which all the conspirators aim, and flatter themselves they shall carry you off altogether. Well, let them come. Tisoncall Tison."

Tison was a species of journeyman, charged with all the household work in the prison. He appeared. He was a man of forty years old, much sunburnt, of a rude and ferocious aspect, with matted black hair, overhanging his eyebrows.

'Tison," said Santerre, "who came yesterday to bring the prisoners' food?"

Tison uttered a name.

"And their linen, who brought it to them?"

'My daughter."

"Then your daughter is a laundress?"

"Certainly."

'And you gave her the washing of the prisoners?"

"Why not? She gains as much by one as another; it is no longer the tyrant's money, but belongs to the nation, who pays for them."

"You were told to examine the linen with the greatest attention."

"Well, do I ever fail in my duty? In proof of which, they had yesterday a handkerchief tied in two knots. I have taken it to the council, who ordered my wife to wash, iron, and return to Madame Capet, without saying about it."

SEAPLANES BEST FOR THE MOUNTAINS

A QUEEN STREET STORE BURGLARIZED THIS MORNING

Oak Hall Visited During Early Hours by One or More Thieves

ENTRANCE GAINED THROUGH REAR DOOR

No Clue to the Thieves, But Police Are Working on the Case

Early this morning Oak Hall, the clothing store of C. H. Thomas & Co., was entered by one or more thieves, who ransacked one of the shelves of clothing in the store and helped themselves, but it is not known yet how much of the goods were stolen.

Entrance was gained to the store through the rear door of the establishment which faces the back of The Gleaner's mechanical department building. The door was found forced, the two shutters on the inside being removed and the crossbar which held them in place being broken in two pieces. The double door opening to the clothing department from the back of the establishment was forced with the aid of a nail puller which was found on the floor by the door when the clerks in the store went to work this morning. One of the double doors was wrenched loose in such a manner that the thief or thieves were enabled to get their hands on the crossbar which held the doors tightly closed, and to lift it, forcing their way into the store.

One shelf of clothing, including coats, hats and caps, was disarranged and the articles found scattered over the floor in the vicinity this morning when the store was opened. Other articles of clothing besides those on the shelf were scattered around, and as they were all men's sizes it is not thought the thief or thieves were juveniles. This morning when the robbery was discovered the police were notified, and they are at present at work on the case.

Frank Thomas, proprietor of the store, was out of the city this morning and it will not be known how much of the goods were stolen until he returns.

RETURNED SOLDIERS GET APPOINTMENT

Fishery Guardians for Grand Lake Section Named Today by Fisheries Inspector

Fisheries Inspector H. E. Harrison returned last evening from a trip to the Grand Lake section where he had been placing fishery guardians for the coming season. Those appointed were George Denton for Lower Grand Lake, Jemseg and Maquabit Lakes; and W. H. Appleby, H. C. Henderson and Lewis B. Evans for the shad fishing season on the Kennebecasis. The last two named of these are returned soldiers and a third returned soldier has been apopinted to the position of fisheries guardian in the St. John and Bell Isle waters.

While on his trip Mr. Harrison laid information against a man from Kings County for water pollution with saw dust and mill refuse. The same man was penalized heavily last year for polluting a stream in Queens County and his case will come up at a later date. A mill case at Nauwigewauk has also been reported as conditions in that vicinity are not very satisfactory.

Mr. Harrison left here the latter part of last week and made the journey in a motor boat the greater part of the time. He stated this morning that other offenses were being reported and these would come up within a short time.

PRETTY WAR ROMANCE

Bride and Groom Met in Scotland While He Was on Overseas Duty

A pretty war romance which began in Scotland during the war was culminated in the city last evening when Albert Parsons and Miss Minnie Shields, of Glasgow, were united in marriage by Rev. Z. L. Fash.

The bride, who is a daughter of John Shields, of Glasgow, arrived in Halifax on Friday last and came to Fredericton on Saturday. She met her husband while he was on furlough in Scotland, they became engaged, and in May last he returned to Fredericton and she came last week and the wedding took place last evening. Miss E. M. Parsons, a sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid, while William McGoldrick, a cousin of the groom, and a returned soldier, was groomsman.

The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Parsons, of this city. He went overseas with the 85th Nova Scotia Highlanders and had over four years service. He was never wounded and returned home in May, 1919. He and his bride will reside in the city.

LOCAL JEWS ARE BUYING SUGAR IN LARGE LOTS

Already One Hundred Bags Have Been Shipped to St. Stephen

SUGAR WILL PROBABLY BE TAKEN INTO MAINE

Some Action Should Be Taken to Prevent Supply From Being Exhausted

If the work being carried on by two local Jews continues the sugar market in Fredericton will be cornered and consumers will find themselves compelled to pay fancy prices for this necessary article.

During the past few days two Jews have been going the rounds of the different retail stores buying all the sugar they possibly can in lots of 100 pounds. This is being shipped to St. Stephen, presumably to be taken into the State of Maine, where there is a shortage. Up to the present these men have succeeded in getting in the vicinity of 100 bags, and these have been shipped away, and today they were again buying 100 pound bags and expected before the day was out to have another large shipment to make.

As the wholesalers are practically without sugar and the retailers not having a very large stock on hand, it will not be long before the consumers will be facing a sugar famine, and it is time that some action was taken to prevent this wholesale shipping of sugar to American towns.

C. P. R. Train Service.

Attention of citizens is drawn to the fact that effective May 24th the early morning train leaves for St. John at 5.05 a. m. local time, instead of 6.05 a. m. as heretofore. This train makes connection at the Junction with the morning express for Boston.

BRUSILOFF DIRECTING RED CAMPAIGN

Polish Forces Drive the Enemy Back Twelve Miles Along the Beresina Front

The Poles Made Strong Counter Attack Near Krzyzezopol

REPULSE REDS AT THE CENTRE

Bolshevik Claim Continued Successes on the Dwina River.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Warsaw, May 21.—Polish troops, counter-attacking Bolshevik forces on the northern sector of the battlefront, have driven the soviet armies back twelve miles, near Krzyzezopol, according to an official statement issued here today.

The statement declares that on the middle Beresina sector the Bolsheviki were repulsed when they tried to force their way across the river.

The Bolshevik Statement.

London, May 21.—Russian soviet troops are continuing their pursuit of the Poles in the region of Polotsk, on the Dvina river, according to an official statement issued in Moscow and received here by wireless.

The statement adds:

"In the direction of Pytoloff, the enemy's attempts to advance northward of Zhlobin, have been repulsed. In the Borisov region, further south, we have occupied a number of villages after fierce fighting.

"In crossing the Beresina river our troops were assisted by a squadron of airplanes. In the Kiev region nothing important is reported, but we have taken a number of villages northwest of Zvenigrod."

Germans Aid Bolshevik.

Warsaw, May 21.—Information indicating some elements in Germany are determined to help the Russian Bolshevik continues to be received here, it is said in military circles. The latest report is regarding upper Silesia, where German armed forces have been assembling on the borders of the plebiscite area. Newspapers here today published prominently despatches stating that 4,000 security guards had arrived in upper Silesia by special train.

For weeks, it is declared, Germans have been hauling ammunition into Silesia, hiding it beneath beets in railroad cars. Military authorities say the Germans are advertising their troop movements in this region for the purpose of compelling the Poles to transfer forces from the east and thus weaken the Bolshevik front.

Warsaw papers recently printed reports that eight Zeppelins had crossed Poland toward the eastward, and army headquarters afterwards confirmed this information.

There is much speculation as to whether the Zeppelins bore officers en route to join the Bolshevik or were carrying away men named for extradition by the Allies.

Gen. Brusiloff in Command of the Russian Offensive Against the Poles, With Designs Against East Prussia

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

WARSAW, May 21—General Brusiloff, former commander-in-chief of Russian armies, is understood to have assumed command of the Bolshevik offensive against Poland. In Polish military circles they say the Soviet attack is designed to overrun Lithuania and extend the Bolshevik front westward to East Prussia.

Military authorities here declare vast stores of munitions and supplies have arrived in East Prussia in anticipation of a break in the Polish front before the Bolshevik offensive.

Fighting continues along the northern sectors of the front, but all Soviet attacks have been repulsed along the upper reaches of the Beresina River, according to announcement.

A TORONTO BOY KILLED BY AUTO

Car Was Driven by 14 Year Old Boy, Who Was Arrested Along With Father

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Toronto, May 21.—Edward Kettlewell, eight years of age, was killed by a motor car and Henry Miller, a local manufacturer and his 14 year old son, Benjamin, are under arrest on charges of manslaughter in connection with the case. The police say the boy was driving the car at the time of the fatality.

Soon after the accident occurred police headquarters were notified that the car had been stolen from in front of the Miller home.

Detectives immediately called at Miller's and were informed that her husband, who had gone to attend a Zionist banquet, had told her that the car had been stolen.

The officers searched the house and found the Miller boy hidden in the attic.

Young Miller admitted that he had driven the car and that his father had told him to hasten home and say nothing about the accident.

A SENSATIONAL ARREST AT QUEBEC

Frank Godin Taken in Charge for Robbery of $5,000—Two Others Escaped

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Quebec, May 21.—A sensational arrest was made here last night at the Clarendon Hotel, just opposite the Central Police Station, when Joseph Thabit, of Beauce, led Detective Laureat Lacasse to one of the rooms and directed him to arrest Frank Godin, alias Ernest Cyr, on the charge of having robbed him of $5,000.

While the detective was taking Godin in charge, Lucien Dufour, alias Ludger Quinn, and M. Julien, alias Jos. Groulx, who were in an adjoining room, jumped from the window into the yard and escaped through the adjoining building and disappeared.

Warrants had been issued in Montreal recently for the arrest of three men on a complaint lodged against them by Thabit, who alleged that they had robbed him of $5,000 at the point of a revolver after an exciting card game in which he had won everything.

NEW YORK HARBOR TIED UP BY STRIKE

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 21.—Harbor facilities in New York were further tied up today as the result of the walkout yesterday of lightermen, who have been handling freight for the coastwise shipping companies, including all of the Atlantic coastwise vessels out of this port. Several hundred men are out.

The men are said to be striking in sympathy with longshoremen who have been out on four coastwise lines for several weeks.

Union headquarters declared the strikers had made no demands and no question of wages or hours is involved.

VOICE OF SINGER CARRIED 100 MILES

Audience at Ottawa Listen to a Singer in Montreal by Wireless Telephony

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Ottawa, May 21.—A large audience at the Chateau Laurier assembly hall last night heard quite distinctly a gramaphone played in Montreal and also Miss Hutton singing in that city, over 100 miles away, by means of wireless telephony. The demonstration was arranged by Dr. A. E. Eeve, in connection with an address on Some War Inventions before the Royal Society of Canada. The experiment took place at 9.30 and, by means of a magna vox, the voice of the distant singer was quite distinctly heard in all parts of the hall.

The magna vox, however, not only accentuates the sounds coming from the telephone receiver, but also the ordinary noises of a city, and for that reason at times the singing was slightly interrupted. Dr. Eve explained that scientists were endeavoring to so develop the instrument that only the sounds coming from the wire would be heard. Another test was made from a gramophone half a mile away and that was very distinct. Several members of the audience wore receivers similar to those used by "Centrals" at the regular telephone exchange, and they heard the singing from Montreal with absolute accuracy.

PERTINENT INQUIRY MADE IN THE HOUSE

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 21.—Replying to a question in the House yesterday as to how many times the private car of Sir Wm. Mackenzie had traveleld on the Canadian National Railways within the last two years, Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, said that no details were kept of the operation of each individual car on the system.

STERILIZED WITH ULTRA-VIOLET RAYS

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Winnipeg, Man., May 21.—Water from the Assiniboine river is being sterilized by ultra-violet rays for use in the Brandon Hospital for the insane and is as pure as is possible.

This is one of the first instances in Canada where this system has been installed.

Hon. George Grierson, Minister of Public Works, said that the provincial Government would install this system in all institutions where the supply of water was in danger of becoming impure.

Persia Appeals to League Of Nations Against Bolshevik

Asks for Protection Against Aggression of the Reds, Who Are Said to Have Landed Troops on Persian Soil From the Caspian Sea Recently

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 21—Persia has appealed to the League of Nations to protect her against Bolshevik aggression. The appeal, which follows the landing of Bolshevik forces on Persian soil from the Caspian Sea, was made through the Persian Foreign Minister, who is in Paris.

The appeal alludes to the presence in Enzeli Harbor of warships belonging to the anti-Bolshevik forces formerly operating under General Denekine, and maintains that Persia acted within her rights as a neutral with regard to these vessels.

It points out that she declined to allow these ships to enter the harbor until she was assured she would not be hampered in disarming and interning them.

DETERMINE BOUNDARY OF NEW POLAND

The Council of Ambassadors Fix Date for Holding Plebiscite in Border Districts

MAY INCREASE THE ALLIED FORCES THERE

Approve Convention Between Poles and the Free City of Dantzig

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Paris, May 21.—The Council of Ambassadors at today's session fixed the date for the holding of the plebiscite in the Allenstein and Marienwerder districts, for determining the boundaries of Poland with regard to East and West Prussia. The Council, however, decided not to make the date public until the measures to be taken for organizing the control of the plebiscite had been worked out, and the advisability of increasing the Allied force there had been considered with Marshal Foch, the Allied Commander-in-Chief.

The taking of these precautions is explained as being due to the more or less violent friction which had developed in the plebiscite areas between the different races.

The council also approved a provisional convention between the Poles and the free city of Danzig regarding the administration of that port.

The Ambassadors will probably take cognizance of the final decision of the Hungarians regarding the peace treaty tomorrow, and fix the date and place for signing the document. They may ask Hungary to send for the signature a person of higher importance than M. Prasnowsky, one of the secretaries of the Hungarian delegation, who brought the reply from Budapest this morning

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Washington, May 21.—A loan of at least $125,000,000 out of the $300,000,000 revolving fund to enable railroads to purchase equipment required to meet transportation needs of the public was approved today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

CHARGE ATTEMPT TO MURDER UNCLES

Montreal Lad Shot at Uncles While They Were Endeavoring to Pacify Him

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Montreal, May 21.—Charged with the attempted murder of his two uncles on the night of April 2nd last, and having been at large since that date, Dominico, alias Tomasso Lepore, 17 years old, was arrested last night.

Lepore, being accused by his father with the theft of a watch, had fired at him with a revolver, and his two uncles, attempting to pacify him, had been shot, one of them dangerously. Altogether it is stated that fifteen shots had been fired, of which three took effect.

The father, who is wanted as a material witness in the affair, is still missing.

CHICAGO STRIKERS RETURN TO WORK

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Chicago, May 21.—Five thousand city employees on strike since Monday returned to work today. Teamsters voted unanimously to return when the city council finance committee last night declared their demands would not be considered while they were on strike.

Street sweepers, chauffeurs, team owners and garbage handlers voted to follow the teamsters' lead.

THE VANCOUVER STRIKE

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Vancouver, B. C., May 21.—An attempt to break the coastwise sailors strike now in its third week, will be made Friday evening when the Union Steamship Company's steamer Venture will sail for Skeena. The company has refused to make any concessions to strikers.

Carranza Still Evades Capture by Rebel Troops

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico, which has undergone a remarkable political upheaval resulting in the flight of President Carranza and the establishment of a provisional government is now confronted with possibilities of further internecine strife.

Francisco Villa, the rebel leader, who was a consistent opponent of the Carranza government, has announced he will not support General Obregon, whose election as President of the country appears assured, and will continue his fight until his "ideals of government are satisfied."

Attempts by a Villa emissary to commit General Calles, acting Minister of War, to an agreement in which Villa's claims would be recognized, have failed, according to report and considerable interest is taken in the action Villa may take when he receives report to this effect.

President Carranza is still evading capture and is reported to be approaching the Gulf coast north of Vera Cruz.

W. A. Body, British Vice Consul at Vera Cruz, who was with the Carranza trains, is reported to have reached Puebla in safety.

Germans Complain of Savage Brutality of the Black Troops Sent by France Across Rhine

German Minister Says Appeal Will Be Made to the League of Nations—Woman Member of Assembly Asks Why Nothing Was Said of German Brutality

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Berlin, May 21.—Stormy scenes in the meeting of the German assembly yesterday arose over the discussion of the employment by the French of black troops in the occupied area.

Adolph Koester, Minister of Foreign Affairs, replying to an interpellation complaining of acts of savage brutality by these troops towards women and children, only a tithe of whose horrors were known, said that protests from Great Britain, the United States, Sweden and Norway had made no little impression on the French Government as the German protests and that Germany intended to appeal to the League of Nations so that the moral pressure of the whole world could be brought to bear.

Immoral Brutality of Huns.

Frau Zeitz, independent socialist, then caused an uproar by reminding the interpellators that they had said nothing about the acts of immoral brutality committed by German soldiers against women in Russia, Belgium and elsewhere.

Indignant shouts of "shame," unheard of baseness," prevented the speaker from continuing. She waited unperturbed for the storm to pass, then resumed, only to meet with renewed interruptions.

"This is only a racial fight against the blacks," she declared, amid shouts of "leave the house."

She retorted: "It is the fault of all the capitalistic Governments that the blacks have remained behind in civilization. The history of the German colonial policy is one long story of German cruelty."

After speeches by other members of the assembly protesting against the utterances of Frau Zeitz, the storm subsided.

German Programme for Spa.

Geneva, May 21.—The Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, who generally is well informed, today telegraphed his newspaper the Spa programme of the Germans as adopted by the cabinet at its recent meeting.

In face of the impossibility of obtaining revision of the Versailles treaty, the correspondent says, Germany will put forward other claims and set forth some of her problems, especially concerning indemnities and the mode of payment of them. These include, first, the loss of northern Silesia, which considerably reduces the vitality of Germany as regards exportation of coal; second, restitution of a portion of the German mercantile fleet and also some of the German colonies; third, the question of credit for raw materials, and fourth, questions of transport and freights.

Huns Ask Deferred Payments.

Germany will further demand, according to the correspondent, a reduction of the Allied troops in the occupied districts and deferment of payments in gold. On the other hand, Germany will declare she is disposed to rebuild devastated France by workless German workingmen.

Finally, Germany will demand a permanent army of 200,000 and immediate admission to the League of Nations.

The Berlin correspondent of the Swiss newspapers generally report that great disappointment was caused in Germany by the declaration of the recent Franco-British conference at Hythe. The Germans, the correspondents say, believe the Spa conference will be useless, owing to the German government being given no occasion to prove the claims of the Allies far exceed Germany's economic powers.

Doubts are also expressed by the Germans as to whether the United States will play the big part in the settlement assigned her by the Allies.

WAGE SCHEDULES AT OTTAWA AWARDED

The Dispute Between Employers and Men in the Building Trades Arbitrated

Ottawa, Maay 21.—Four of the six wage schedules in dispute between the employers and men in the building trades were awarded at the rates originally asked by the men, in the report of the Board of Conciliation dealing with the dispute, which was returned to the Department of Labor last night.

The carpenters are awarded 85 cents; journeymen electricians 80 cents, five cents less than their demands; electrician improvers 55 cents; roofers 75 cents; laborers 55 cents, and the painters 75 cents, five cents less than their demand.

The findings of the board were unanimous. Members of the various crafts affected by the board's report expressed themselves for the most part as satisfied with the result last night.

The arbitration was decided upon a short time ago to end the strike which had more or less held up building operations after May 1.

ROYAL TREASURES NOW IN AMERICA

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Worcester, Mass., May 21.—A handsome fan bought by the Czar of Russia as a love token for the Czarina the time the royal couple visited Paris, a baptismal bowl, 1,100 years old, from which all members of the royal family were baptized, several bracelets belonging to the Czarina, and a number of other intimate trinkets, owned by the unfortunate Czarina and her daughter, now are in possession of Rev. John Findlay, pastor of Old South Church, and are stored away in a Worcester bank for safekeeping.

These articles were all purchased by Rev. John Findlay from soldiers of the Kerensky regime as they staggered out into the streets, following looting raids on the treasures and wine cellars of the Winter Palace.

WILL NOT BUY UNTIL PRICES ARE REDUCED

Prominent Department Stores in New York Will Not Stock Up at Present Prices

DEMAND SUBSTANTIAL REDUCTIONS IN PRICE

The Situation in Great Britain Shows That the Sale of Luxuries Is Declining

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 21.—The price cutting movement here today reached some wholesalers, when managers and buyers of prominent department stores announced their establishments would refuse to purchase from jobbers until substantial reductions were made. The department stores which claim to offer reductions from fifteen to fifty per cent. now demand that wholesalers make concessions to them.

An official of one of the largest department stores, with branches in six cities, said:

"We are not buying future stocks now and will not until manufacturers and wholesalers come down with their prices. Normally we buy $750,000 of furs on our initial purchase. So far we have refused to purchase a single piece."

Say Price Cutting Artificial.

Similar statements were made by officials of other stores.

Some representative wholesalers of wearing apparel declared they believed the price cutting movement throughout the country to be artificial and uneconomic, asserting that it has stimulated buying without a corresponding increase in production, and a reaction was bound to come.

Meanwhile local merchants in lines other than foodstuffs continued to advertise reductions. The first reduction in food was announced yesterday when one of the largest cabarets and restaurants in the city stated it had cut all items of its menu thirty per cent.

Conditions in Great Britain.

London, May 21.—Cabled reports of a slump in prices in the United States are featured in newspapers here and are being read with enormous interest, as they excite the hope that conditions across the Atlanic may be reflected in Great Britain. Some writers on economics, however, hold out little hope that this will be the result, maintaining the new conditions in America are more likely to have a contrary effect here, but hope persists, and is supported by some rather pointed indications. There was a decline is trading during April compared with March. This decline, although small, is regarded as significant, because it was the first for more than a year.

Unofficial statistics show the people are spending less, while British banks are assuming a more careful attitude.

Manchester reports an absence of new textile business from abroad and retailers in many trades are said to have found they are overstocked.

Food Prices More Reasonable.

There has been a downward trend in some food prices here recently, and although these are, for the most part, seasonal, the public is building some hope on the circumstances.

Managers of large stores in London admit that the sale of luxuries is declining, and think extravagance is becoming unfashionable, but they express doubt whether any general decline in prices has begun, or is likely to begin very soon.

The chairman of the textile section of the London Chamber of Commerce declared today he regarded the American decline in prices only a passing phase of the situation, and that he did not expect much alteration here.

FARMERS' PARTY IN PARLIAMENT

Levi Thompson Speaks for the Party on the Budget—Lays Down Farmers' Policy

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 21.—The Farmers party still maintains the attitude of aloofness which it assumed on its formation as one of the House groups, and will plow its lonely furrow regardless of the threats or blandishments of the old parties. This is the message which Mr. Levi Thompson, whip of the party, gave when he made the first speech from the Farmers' corner on the budget. Hon. Mr. Crerar and Dr. Clarke are still absent from the House.

Mr. Thompson saw nothing of which to approve in the budget beyond some faint praise for the tax of luxuries. For the rest he ascribed it to the influence of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. The atitude of the Farmers' party as a whole is that the removal of the 7½ per cent. tax gives no real relief, as high prices leave the commodities affected if anything above where they were when the tax was put on. There was a good deal of humor in his description of the various stle of wooing adopted by the other parties towards the Farmers. Mr. Fielding had not been ardent, and that of the Government was after the style of the cave man, who goes after his beloved with a club. The Liberal style was Turkish, being animated simply by a desire to add the Farmers to their political harem. In the meantime the Farmers stood on their platform, and if the Liberals expected their support they must get back to the days of 1893.

The Farmers' party was not at present asking for free trade beyond the articles contained in their platform, which was before the public, and on it they would stand, whatever might be the individual differences of members of the party. The fact that the most important on the free list was given to the article produced almost exclusively by farmers was sufficient to disprove the charge that they were asking for class legislation. The growing exports in flour showed that open competition was not ruinous to industry, and the large exports of farm machinery, fertilizers, cement and many other articles prove that our manufacturers can compete abroad.

He admitted that there were some farmers who asked for protection on their products, but the supporters of the Farmers' platform were not that kind.

MANSLAUGHTER CASE WAS ADJOURNED

Preliminary Hearing Called at Hampton Yesterday and the Case Postponed

Hampton, May 20.—At a preliminary hearing held before Stipendiary Magistrate P. W. F. Brewster in the Kings County Court House this afternoon, Harold Beverly, John Kennedy, Charles Ross, Allan Currie and Jack Wilkinson were charged with having on the 29th of April, 1920, killed and slain, at Renforth, in the county of Kings, Virginia Garrett, a female child.

Dr. W. B. Wallace, K. C., who appeared on behalf of the crown, stated that in view of the fact that one of the parties implicated was unable to be present, the crown was unable to proceed with the case, and he, therefore asked that it be adjourned. He further stated that the crown would raise no objection to the five of the accused able to be present, being allowed their liberty on a reasonable amount of bail, pending the resumption of the case.

Magistrate Brewster acquiesced with the prosecution's request and adjourned the case to Tuesday, July the 20th, at 2.30 in the afternoon.

ANNUAL MEETING N. B. TELEPHONE CO.

F. D. Black Elected President —Dr. Barnhill a New Director

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the New Brunswick Telephone Company was held yesterday afternoon after the meeting of the directors at 2.30 o'clock. The directors' report was hard and the financial report was read, showing that the surplus of the company during the past year was over $7,000. Dr. A. P. Barnhill was elected a new member of the board of directors, and S. H. White, who has been president of the company since 1900, was appointed honorary president. The fiscal year of the company was changed so as to end on December 31st instead of March 31st, and this will bring the date of the annual meeting on to the third Thursday in February instead of April.

The election of directors resulted as follows:

F. B. Black, Sackville, president; Senator F. P. Thompson, Fredericton, vice-president; Richard O'Leary, Richibucto, second vice-president; Senator I. R. Todd, St. Stephen; H. P. St. John Fire Department Aids in Fighting Blaze—Four Horses Perished

St. John, May 21.—A fire which broke out in Milford at 8 o'clock last evening and fanned by a stiff breeze raged for several hours, destroyed property which was said to be valued at $100,000. The bakery, grocery store, residence, barn and practically all the stock of Dwyer Brothers were burned, and it was estimated that the loss of this firm was in the vicinity of $60,000. Other properties which were preyed upon by the fire were the residence of Thomas Evans, including the Milford Post Office, a landmark for many years, the home of Thomas McGrath, a house belonging to William Stout, the "Old Crowley House," occupied by two tenants, William Shannon and Thomas Kane, and the residence of Patrick McBriarty. Several sheds were also destroyed and four horses belonging to Dwyer Brothers perished in the flames. There was no loss of human life and no accidents took place.

IRISH HOME RULE UNDER DISCUSSION

Sir Edward Carson Says Bill as Framed Means Separation of Ireland From Union

London, May 20.—The Home Rule bill was further discussed in committee in the House of Commons. No important changes were made. The discussions concerned the composition of the proposed council and the powers of the new parliaments.

The only notable feature was another declaration from Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster Unionist leader, that the bill as framed was going to mean the separation of Ireland from England and that the government would be powerless to prevent the separation once these Irish parliaments with unlimited powers were set up.

FUR FARM IN CELLAR

Ottawa Citizen Has Trapped Thirteen Muskrat.

Ottawa, May 20.—Mr. A. Turcotte, 13 Third avenue, has caught thirteen thieving muskrats in his cellar. The back of his lot is near the inlet from the Rideau Canal. He first set a trap, thinking there were house rates in the basement of his residence, and was surprised to find a muskrat the next morning. He consulted the game warden and took out a trapper's license. He continued to trap one furbearer each night, until he had thirteen.

Coroner's Inquiry Into Death Of C. N. R. Employees When Train Jumped Into Nashwaak

Six Witnesses Examined and Inquiry Further Adjourned Until Tuesday Evening, May 25—The Appeal of John Estabrooks to Have His Leg Cut Off

The inquest into the deaths of Frank G. Gillis and John T. Estabrooks, victims in the recent railroad tragedy on the C. N. R., was continued last evening at the Knights of Pythias Hall in Marysville before a large crowd of people. Coroner Dr. B. M. Mullin presided. Seven witnesses were called and their evidence all corresponded. Dr. McIntyre was recalled for a short space to answer several questions put by the coroner as to the cause of the death of Estabrooks and he stated that death was due to exhaustion and not shock, as within an hour of the time that Estabrooks expired his pulse was good and showed no signs of shock. The evidence of William T. Estabrooks, brother of the deceased, who did not know that he was on the train until after the wreck, was touching and the friends of the deceased who were present at the inquest were unable to control their feelings when he repeated the words said to him by the deceased when he begged him to get a saw, cut his leg off and free him.

Other witnesses who were called were Hiram Wade, of Penniac, section foreman, Walter S. Long, of South Devon, conductor of the train, Daniel Mountain and Miah Osborne, the other two brakemen on the train, and Archie Estey, of Marysville.

First Witness Called.

The first witness called to the stand was Hiram Wade, of Penniac, foreman of bridge building and repair work. He had arrived at the wreck between 6.30 and 7 a. m. on the day of the accident and when asked whom he had seen there on his arrival he named over a list of those he remembered. The wreck, he stated, was lying on the right hand side of the C. N. R., having gone off the rails just at the approach to the bridge, which was a high fill. The nose of the engine lay on the abutment of the bridge and the cab was lying partly in the water. The tender was on its side close to the cab of the engine and, two box cars loaded with pulpwood were off the track lying on their sides close to the engine.

When the witness arrived on the scene apparently no one was in charge and R. Z. Walker, the superintendent, was the first one he could call to mind who had taken charge. When he first saw Estabrooks, he judged the latter had been in the water then upwards of an hour. He was in a reclining position and the men present were trying to extricate him. He was holding on to something on the cab and called to the witness, asking him to get a saw and cut his leg off. Israel Nash and Murray Spencer were in the water at that time and when witness asked how Estabrooks was caught he was told by the foot and that the two men could feel his boot. They found they could do nothing for him at the time and decided to wait 15 or 20 minutes for the wrecking train to arrive. Witness said from his examination of Estabrooks' condition he did not think that his boot could be cut off his left foot, which was imprisoned, effecting his release. Two jacks were used by those present trying to release him but no foundation could be secured for them to work upon. Upon examination of the deceased's foot after his death he (witness) found it imprisoned near the ankle between two steel plates.

Dr. McIntyre, he stated, was on the scene of the accident when he arrived, administering stimulants to Estabrooks, but he did not know at what time Drs. McNally and Ross had arrived. He saw no attempt made to lift the tender and when asked what plan he thought should have been adopted, he said that he thought the only thing to do was to fasten the crane of the wrecking train to the part of the engine holding Estabrooks and lift it up.

Here a five minute rest was given the witness while Dr. McIntyre was recalled to answer several questions.

Death Due to Exhaustion.

Dr. McIntyre stated in answer to a question by the coroner, Dr. B. M. Mullin, that Estabrooks had died at 9.15 a. m. or 9.20 a. m. and that he thought death was due to exhaustion and cold, as the pulse was good within an hour of the death and showed no signs of shock.

Should Have Repaired Track.

After a five-minute recess Mr. Wade was recalled. The first work done towards the rescue of Estabrooks was after the auxiliary train had arrived. When questioned, he stated it was necessary to have the crane close enough to the wreck so that the boom of it would hang over the engine, if an attempt were to be made to lift it. The wrecking train could only come within 60 feet of the cab and engine at that time and it would have been necessary to put that length of track in to bring the crane up so it could have taken hold of the part to be moved. The track, he stated, could have been laid on the remaining part of the fill and, with the necessary workmen, this would only have taken about half an hour, he thought. An attempt was made to repair the track within half an hour of Estabrooks' death. The track could have been fixed up by 7.30, if the required number of men were on hand so that when the wrecking train arrived the crane could have been fastened to the engine. When the train did arrive, a block and tackle were hitched around a tree to take a lift on the engine, the line running across the top of a box car with the purpose of lifting the engine as well as sliding it up. He could see no reason why an attempt at lifting was not made. Nothing was done with the crane until Estabrooks died.

The accident, he said, would not have happened had there been no jam of logs to wear away the ballast under the road. Washouts on the Nashwaak were, he said, continually happening. He did not know whether the road had been patrolled or not on the morning of the 10th of May, the day of the accident.

Conductor's Evidence.

Walter S. Long, of South Devon, who was conductor of the train, was called. He stated that while approaching the bridge he was thrown to the floor of the car in which he then was by a shock, and on getting to his feet rushed to the head of the train to find that that part of the train had gone over the embankment. He went directly to a telephone, ringing up South Devon and asking for immediate assistance. On doing that, he returned to the wreck, and though he could not see Estabrooks because of steam he heard him and answered him, Estabrooks asking him to get a saw and cut his leg off, as he was held by the foot to the wreckage. To make sure of getting a doctor, he returned to the telephone and asked to have one sent at once. He remained at the Marysville station until the auxiliary train arrived and went to the scene of the wreck in it. Twelve cars were removed to provide room for the auxiliary train. The coupling between the tender and engine of the wrecked train, he stated, was unbroken, and to move one would be to move the other. A hook and line, part of the equipment of the wrecking train, he stated, were put onto the tender and a chain attached. By this time two men with chisels, saws and bars were trying to extricate Estabrooks and asked them not to move the tender, as it would probably bring it over on them and perhaps crush Estabrooks also. The crane, he stated, was put at work trying to lift one of the cars of pulpwood, which, with its contents, weighed 48 tons. The cable of wire which was used broke, and as the engine weighed about 70 tons he did not think that the crane would do much towards moving it.

Daniel Mountain and Miah Osborne, the other two brakemen, were called and their evidence corresponded with that of the preceding two witnesses.

Brother's Evidence Given.

William Estabrooks, brother of John T. Estabrooks, the deceased, a weaver in the Marysville cotton mill, was the next witness. He had been working with Wm. Collins on the opposite side of the bridge from the wreck and had observed that there was a washout at the approach to the bridge. He had only a pole and he waved this to attract the attention of the engineer and cause him to stop the train. He saw Archie Estey on the bridge, and, thinking he would stop the train by waving, turned again to his work. Hearing a snap, he looked up and saw the engine sinking over the approach and the cab and tender follow it. He ran across the bridge and met Clifford Hughes, the fireman, emerging from the steam. He supported him for a while and learned for the first time that his brother was in the wreck. He ran to the water and his brother, recognizing him, asked him to get a saw and cut his leg off. Witness told him he would get a doctor and see what could be done for him. He was with his brother when he expired through exhaustion.

Archie Estey, of Marysville, corroborated the evidence of Wm. Estabrooks in detail, and the inquest then adjourned.

CAUSE OF HIGH LIVING COST.

A correspondent asks a number of questions, which seem to express as many popular prejudices, equally prevalent and fallacious. Here are a couple of the opening ones:

Is it not true that the high cost of living was not caused primarily by increased wages? My recollection is that foodstuffs, clothing and other necessities increased in price before the workingman began to strike for higher wages. Was it not this increase in prices which first led the men to strike?

The increase in wages is the largest single element in the increased price of commodities. It acts directly as a factor in the cost of production and indirectly through increasing demand for commodities of all sorts. Increased demand, of course, sends prices up.

Historically, the high cost of living began when the vast orders for munitions and other such supplies were placed. These orders caused serious scarcity in many lines, with resulting increase of price. They also caused a great shifting of labor from ordinary fields of production and a great demand for labor both in ordinary and extraordinary fields. Labor used the opportunity to the limit to increase its rates. There has been a progressive and sometimes headlong campaign of wage increases ever since 1914. The amount paid out in wages is today at least double what it was before the war. It may be added that the production given in return is not much more than 75 per cent. of its pre-war volume.

Here are two more questions:

Are there not many indications that unholy profiteering of capitalists is the real cause of the present high cost of commodities? Is it not apparent that since the demand for war supplies ceased, industries producing clothing, food and other staple necessities of life have exploited the public to even a greater extent than during 1914, 1915, 1916, 1917 and 1918?

It is quite probable that profits have increased as well as production costs. The capitalist's dollar is just as much reduced in purchasing power as the hand-worker's. Naturally, the capitalist seeks to make up in the number of dollars he gains enough to compensate for their loss in purchasing power. As for profiteering—defining the term to mean inordinate and oppressive profits—it is practically impossible to tell where it begins or ends. It is mere nonsense to call increased gains resulting from increased business profiteering.

No doubt there is a good deal of advantage taken of acute demand and market control, and some "unholy" profits have certainly been made; but it is likely that living cost has been boosted at least ten times as much by non-production and non-distribution due to strikes as by all the illicit gains of capital put together. Our correspondent cites what he claims to be an authority as asserting that certain industries have reaped profits far in excess of total labor costs on their products. The assertion is too vague to answer, in that form. It must be remembered that labor cost on shoes is not confined to the shoemakers' wages; it extends back through the railroads, the stockyards, and the tanneries to the help of the farmers who raised the animals and the woodcutters who produced the hemlock bark.

One more point, though it is not new, must be answered for the hundredth time:

It is common knowledge that cargoes of fruits and vegetables have been allowed to rot in the holds of ships rather than cause a drop in prices by dumping them on the market.

This is not common knowledge, but common stupidity. There is no truth whatever in the statement that food has been allowed to rot to affect the market. Food sometimes rots at the terminals in small quantity, because of railroad insufficiency, or more mischance. Of late, it has often done so in large quantities because of strikes. No money can be made by destroying valuable commodities. The only way that either producers or middlemen can live and make profit is by selling their wares. The middlemen like a cheap market, because it means quick sales and sure commissions.

Finally our correspondent says:

The wage earner is now worse off than before the war for the reason that his salary has not advanced proportionately with the increased cost of necessities. It is now difficult for him to educate his children and maintain his family in decency.

We do not think these statements have any foundation in fact. There is plenty of employment for every one at rates averaging approximately double those of 1914. Education is free. Much pleasure is free, too, and very much more, moderate in cost. The fact, as regards necessaries of life, is that it is very hard for retailers to sell any but the best and costliest. The people have the money. They spend it lavishly. Their insistment on having the best and only the best naturally makes the best come high. But still they buy it, often with complaint but always with ready cash.

NEW BRUNSWICK TELEPHONE COMPANY.

The annual report of the New Brunswick Telephone Company, submitted to the shareholders yesterday, shows a satisfactory growth in the business of the company, but, unfortunately, a much greater increase in the operating costs. The earnings for the year increased $91,791.40; the increase in operating expenses is $148,694.33. The net revenue is $125,252.30; an amount not sufficient to maintain the regular dividend which calls for $134,592.26. The situation is therefore serious for the management, for the shareholders and for the public; and it cannot be truthfully said that the management is not efficient and prudent. To provide for the dividend, it becomes necessary to draw upon the depreciation reserve; in other words, to reduce the amount set aside for that necessary fund to 2 4-5 per cent., while the amount so set aside should be at least eight per cent. Last year the surplus over all was $14,850.16, then regarded as shaving the mark much too closely. This year the surplus has dwindled to $7,223.20. The only solution is in increased rates; and unless the Public Utilities Commission authorize a reasonable advance in rates, it is merely a matter of time, and a very short time, when the company must go out of business. Great damage was done to the company's property last year by the severe storms of sleet and wind; and the cost of labor and material being exceptionally high, the repairs were very expensive and made serious inroads on the reserve fund. If wages are not to be reduced and material not to be lessened in cost,—and there is certainly no evidence to warrant the belief that there will be reductions in these accounts within the near future—the company will need an additional annual revenue of $350,000 or more to operate successfully, to give a more efficient service to the public and do its duty to its shareholders. There is clearly no substantial business reason upon which this increase can be denied.

THE ST. JOHN BYE-ELECTION.

The Provincial Premier and others interested fixed Monday, June 7th, as the date for the bye-election in St. John. Hon. Dr. Roberts, the Minister of Public Health, admitted the fact to a representative of the Press on Saturday last. Apparently the plans have been changed since last week and an "open" date arranged. Why? Did the Premier understand, while fixing the date for June 7th, that there would not be opposition to the return of Hon. Dr. Roberts? There are persistent rumors that Premier Foster had reason to believe that things would be arranged to give Dr. Roberts his election without a contest, others to enter into an understanding or give an undertaking on behalf of the Premier's friends to "work something" on another occasion as a quid pro quo. We cannot believe that these rumors have foundation wholly in fact, but clearly there is a reason which calls for an explanation for changing the date of election to a later day or arranging an "open" date. An election in St. John at present by acclamation, under arrangement, means the undoing of the Provincial Opposition; furthermore, it means that the politicians have taken the election of representatives from the hands of the people, a situation all too serious to permit of the belief that such a situation exists, worked out in cold blood. There are principles of public policy of first importance at stake, and we cannot think that these are to be sacrificed for personal or factional considerations. If sacrifice is the determination, the people of the province, who are at present much interested in the situation at St. John, will be quite sorely disappointed, if not incensed. But why the delay in issuing the writ?

LONG TALK.

After the wireless telegram became a fact, it was evidently only a question of time before the method of talking through the air would be worked out. Marconi, with whose name the radiogram as a commercial factor is inseparably connected, seems to be making progress along this line—or rather, to be literally exact, on this plan to do without lines! It is said that he has talked 500 miles. If one can do that without wires, why not some day talk around the world? Why not telephone to Mars?

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Switzerland's acceptance by referendum of membership in the league of nations reminds us that, contrary to the common impression, the league is actually in existence, a vast international organization of twenty-eight member states, or thirty-three if the great British colonies are separately counted, and representing all five continents. The league came officially into being on Jan. 10, 1920. Fifteen states became members by signing and ratifying the treaty of Versailles; thirteen neutral states have joined the league upon invitation. The council of the league, a small executive body of nine men, representing the five great and four small powers, is now in session in Rome; a few days ago it referred to the coming general assembly the requests for admission to the league which came from Luxembourg, San Marino, Georgia, Finland, Esthonia, the Ukraine, and—Ireland. The Swiss vote was the first referendum in a free country upon the question of acceptance or rejection of its membership in the league. All other nations now members came in without a direct popular mandate.

The league, therefore, is not merely an abstract proposition, points out an exchange. Two things, however, have thus far handicapped it: the failure of the United States to become a member, and the continued existence of the supreme allied council. There is a growing demand for the dissolution of this council—the body now in conference at Rome—and when it does terminate its existence the league of nations will come into that degree of power which its projectors contemplated, except that they counted on the membership of the United States. The first meeting of the assembly of the league, composed of three representatives of each of its member states, comes during the present year.

Thus far, the supreme council has held four meetings, at Paris in January, March and April, and at London in February. The league has a secretariat, with a staff of about one hundred men, located temporarily in London; its international labor office is at work, and the next conference is to be held at Genoa in June, the first having met at Washington last October; and, to mention only two more of the league's agencies, the international health office is now in process of organization, and the final plans for the permanent court of international justice are expected to be ready for the coming meeting of the assembly. This court aims to be a world tribunal for the peaceful settlement of international disputes. It got its start at the February meeting of the council, and an organizing committee of twelve jurists was there appointed. Elihu Root was named for the United States.

SEEDING IN WEST IS WELL ADVANCED

Ottawa, May 21.—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has received from the statistics branch of the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture a telegram, dated May 17, which states that 75 per cent. of wheat and 7 per cent. of oats seeding has been completed over all the province. Many districts have finished wheat seeding and almost all districts will finish this week. The moisture conditions are excellent and the germination is rapid, some wheat being three and four inches high.

DEATH AT TORONTO

Prize Dance Was Popular

The dance given last evening by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Great War Veterans Association in the rooms, was an unqualified success, one of the largest crowds of the season being present. The rooms presented a very pretty appearance trimmed with flags and bunting, and the floor was in excellent condition. The music, furnished by the City Orchestra, who gave their services free, was out of the ordinary, while the extras were played by Mrs. G. C. McCoy and Messrs. McGinn, Gaudette and Allen. At 10.15, the prize dance, the event of the evening, took place, and the judges had indeed a difficult task as so many graceful dancers took part in it. Thirteen couples competed and in the final round the prizes, a pair of gold cuff links and vanity case, were awarded to Mr. Kavanagh and Miss Jean Barry. Special mention was made of Mr. Atchison and Mrs. Lamson, Mr. Foster and Mrs. Sadler, Mr. McDougall and Miss Banks, and Mr. Bourque and Miss Waters. The judges were the Countess of Ashburnham, Mrs. W. C. Crocket, Miss Parker and Mr. Roberts. The chaperones last evening were Mrs. Crocket, Mrs. Osborne and Mrs. Slipp, while the committee in charge were Mrs. Harry Robertson, Mrs. J. C. Allen, Mrs. J. Bebbington, Mrs. A. E. Mathewson and Miss McConaghey. The proceeds are for the Memorial Fund.

W. F. Robinson, of St. John, is a guest at the Barker House.

The Stock Market

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

New York (Wall Street), May 21.—Announcement that the Government had practically resumed control of the railroads as an emergency measure to relieve abnormal freight conditions was received with approval today in financial circles. This was not reflected in the movement of prices at the opening of the stock market, however, further substantial reactions occurring in shippings, steels and food shares. Atlantic Gulf, Crucible Steel, and the active sugar issues lost 1 to almost 3 points. Gains of 1 to 2 points were made by General Electric, American Locomotive and Colorado Fuel.

THE LIGHTER SIDE OF LIFE

Of Course Not.

"Don't you suppose, Mrs. Grundy, that there are profiteers in shoes, too?"

"Do I? Say, you don't think they're walking around in their bare feet, do you?"

The Culprit.

Mother—Now, Bobby, was it you who ate all the white meat off this chicken?

Bobby—Well, mother, to make a clean breast of it, I did.

True Sarcasm.

"Shake before taking," read the fever and ague victim from the label on the bottle of medicine.

"Talk about sarcasm," he said himself, "that is quite the real thing."

Penniless.

He fairly tottered into the room like a man reeling under the effect of some terrible mental blow. His wife looked on aghast. "What is it?" she asked in trembling accents. "It was not my fault," he murmured incoherently. "How can I tell you? We are penniless." "Penniless!" she repeated, in a half-dazed way. "Oh, but my dear brave boy, I can keep the wolf from the door. But, tell me this, have you been gambling or speculating on that dreadful Stock Exchange? Tell me you have done nothing to tarnish your honor." "Nothing—nothing!" he replied. "Oh, thank goodness for that!" she cried, "Now I can brave anything. Where has your money gone?" The wretched, grief-stricken man placed his arm around her, and drawing her close to him, gasped out. "I have paid the gas bill."

Discharged.

"It's too bad," said a condoling friend. "I thought you were right in line for promotion."

"No," mournfully replied the other, "I was right in the firing line."

All Supplied.

Magistrate (to prisoner charged with having caught fish under standard weight)—"And what have you to say in answer to this charge?"

Prisoner—"Nothing, your honor, except that I thought the fish weighed more than two pounds."

"It seems to me, sir, that your judgment was entirely at fault; you should have weighed them when they were caught."

"But I had no scales," protested the prisoner.

"No excuse!" snapped the magistrate "There were scales on the fish; fined five pounds."

ACIDS IN STOMACH CAUSE INDIGESTION

Medical authorities state that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, bloating, nausea, etc., are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach and not as some believe to a lack of digestive juices. The delicate stomach lining is irritated, digestion is delayed and food sours, causing the disagreeable symptoms which every stomach sufferer knows so well.

Artificial digestents are not needed in such cases and may do real harm. Try laying aside all digestive aids and instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This sweetens the stomach, prevents the formation of excess acid and there is no sourness, gas or pain. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and is the most efficient form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

FROM THE PEOPLE

WHY NOT CALL A HALT?

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—You are interested more or less in the question of a bonus to returned soldiers. We have an agitation over here also. Who promised the soldiers a bonus and what authority had such person or persons to represent the United States?

The Canadian Government handed out a bonus of $600 to soldiers a short time ago. That was soon spent, and they are now out in full force for another one of $2,000. It's the old, old story, "The more you get, the more you want."

Certain members of the American Legion seem to think that all they have to do is to decide among themselves how much they want and notify Congress, and a law will be enacted forthwith directing the public to provide the money. I happen to know several voters and taxpayers in this town who do not accept this view. Most of us find it difficult to meet our present State and Federal taxes and pay our just debts. We do not know of any legal or moral reason why we should be called upon to provide able bodied young men with a handout, bonus, adjusted compensation or gratuity.

If the Legion is allowed to put this bill through Congress this will be followed by other legislative favors, such as exemption from taxation, civil service privileges and pensions. All this will tend to increase our taxes and weaken the backbone of many competent young men. It will also make legislative office holders and candidates subject to the O. K. of an organized minority. Why not call a halt now? Yours,

REASON.

IN DREAMLAND

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—In regard to a letter recently published in this column asking whether the mind is able to do original or constructive work in dreams, I would say that the mental faculties are often excited by external stimulation and that their content is usually in some way connected with the events of the preceding day, or experiences of the past. The course of the dream is determined by the laws of association. Those run their course without full control, and the results are not subject to the same censorship as in the waking state.

We dream events that would not be permitted to make their appearance in waking life, and we accept results as true that we would immediately reject if awake, and that we do reject when awake. This is because only parts of the cortex are awake and these parts alone determine the course of thought and pass upon the results of the thinking. The bizarre nature of dreams is the result of this lack of control.

Dreams are the expression of dominant ideas that are repressed during the waking life. Therefore I believe that there is nothing constructive in a dream, but that it is usually the haphazard workings of only part of the mind. Yours,

STUDENT.

St. George, N. B., May 18, 1920.

DUTY TO PROTECT LIFE

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—One of your correspondents tackles in this column a question that has stumped premiers, potentates and criminologists when he proposes to allow hunger strikers to die.

But isn't a man who is given charge of a prisoner, convicted or otherwise, under either moral or legal obligation to preserve his life even against the would-be-suicide's determination to be a "martyr?" I believe that if a jail official deliberately allows a prisoner to commit suicide, or a mob to hang him, he (the official), is guilty of criminal neglect of duty. It is his duty to protect at the hazard of his own life all prisoners in his keeping.

Undoubtedly, as your correspondent says, if the law permitted a few hunger strikers to die, others would be deterred from resorting to this method. But the law does nothing of the kind. Moreover, I believe that every person who tries, by starvation or other means, to commit suicide, is a lunatic and should be treated as such.

But if I were an official and had sworn to uphold the law, I would not allow any prisoner, no matter what my personal opinion might be, to commit suicide. I might be obliged to release the prisoner, but I would hate to do it if the prisoner chanced to be some fanatic or looney agitator.

Yours,

JOHNSTON.

Miss Kathryn Jervis, a milliner in Grant City, Mo., was persuaded to buy stock in an automatic signal company, in payment for which she gave two cheques, one for $700 and the other for $1,302. Then she had a dream, as a result of which she tried to stop payment on the cheques. The $700 cheque went through, but the company has lost its suit for the $1,302, and has been ordered to refund the $700 paid.

Germany Prepared to Put Forward a Reparation Plan To Meet Demands of Allies

The German Offer Will Be Made Dependent Upon the Restoration of the European Economic Machine to Something Like Working Order at an Early Date

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Monchester, May 21.—Writing on the forthcoming conference at Spa with the Germans, the Berlin correspondent of the Manchester Guardian says:

"I am assured on very high authority that German is potentially in a position to put forward a reparation estimate that ought not to fall short of intelligent and reasonable Allied demands, but it will be expressly pointed out that the naming of a figure must be dependent upon the restoration of the European economic machine to something like working order.

"The present chaos renders any reasonable conversation impossible. Among the conditions precedent to a reasonable discussion are likely to be found the following:

"The granting to Germany of a moderate amount of shipping tonnage, say 400,000. At the moment she has not sufficient tonnage for her minimum coastal requirements.

"The allocation to Germany of the proceeds of the liquidation of the German property in England and France in pounds and Francs. America and Brazil have led the war in this matter. Otherwise Germany, under treaty, will be compelled to compensate her dispossessed nationals to an amount likely to be between ten and twenty billion gold marks, at any rate a stupendous and, under present conditions, intolerable sum, which could only mean a catastrophic addition to the paper money inflation.

"A drastic reduction of the grossly excessive and swollen costs of the occupation, which amount to between two and three billion marks.

"Insistence upon the impossibility of fulfilling the coal delivery obligations if the Silesian coal field is lost.

"The restoration of economic intercourse between Germany and her neighbors, at east on the basis of reciprocity.

"This last is the most important condition of all."

The manager of the N. B. Gasoline Tank at Gallagher's Stable in Woodstock Exploded This Morning

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Woodstock, N. B., May 21.—By the explosion of a gasoline tank at Gallagher's stable shortly before noon, John Bragdon was seriously but not dangerously wounded, while Frank Cornelison and Clarence Hamilton were less seriously injured. Very great care was taken in the cleaning of the tank so how the accident occurred is a mystery.

MARTIAL LAW AT MADRID TODAY

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Madrid, May 21.—Martial law has been proclaimed here as the result of the bread disturbances.

A government statement issued early this morning made the announcement that martial law had been put into effect. The statement chronicles disturbances during which rioters pillaged shops, especially those of bakers and grocers. Even some private houses were attacked, the statement adds, although no actual robbery was committed.

MOLASSES STILL GOING HIGHER

Fredericton May Have to Pay $2 Per Gallon for Molasses Before Long

Molasses is still soaring, and it begins to look now as if the citizens of Fredericton will have molasses at $2 retail. Yesterday the wholesale price for the best grades of molasses reached $1.80 a gallon and is still going strong. Once molasses sold in this province for 35 cents a gallon in the days when articles were within reach of the purse of the working man and before old High Cost of Living began his reign. Sugar here is worth $19.20 to $19.25 a hundredweight for granulated, and it is hard for the citizens to believe that the pre-war price of granulated sugar was $4.60 a hundredweight for the best grade of granulated sugar.

Flour, per barrel	$6.25	$16.40
Cornmeal, per bag....	1.80	4.75
Rolled oats	5.25	13.50
Coffee, per pound.....	.35	.62
Bran, per bag.....	1.40	3.65
Oats, per bushel.....	.70	1.45
Kerosene oil	.19	.32
Cheese per pound....	.17	.35
Pork, per barrel.....	23.00	55.00

Besides the advance in the various articles another thing which the public have to deal with is the tax on luxuries. Wholesale grocers have received a list of the fololwing articles which are exempt from taxation, which include meats, butter, cheese, oleomargarine, margarine, butter, butter substitutes, lard, vegetables, fruits grains, seeds in natural state, buckwheat, barley, cornmeal, oatmeal rolled oats, flour coffee, tea, salt, cattle foods, hay, straw, nursery stock, fish, sugar and molasses.

Will Ask for Allotment.

The local housing commission met last evening at the Board of Trade rooms and decided to proceed at once toward getting the Provincial Government to allot the sum of $100,000 as applied for by the commission for aid in erecting houses under the Housing Act. The number of applicants for aid under the housing scheme has now amounted to twenty-five and the committee expects to start work immediately upon escuring the grant.

MARYSVILLE GIRL ILL IN JAPAN

Miss Florence Bird, Missionary in Japan, Is Ill With Pneumonia

Marysville, N. B., May 21.—Mrs. Samuel Bird has received a letter written in Japan twenty-five days ago, informing her that her daughter, Miss Florence M. Bird, was ill with pneumonia. Miss Bird has been in rather delicate health for some time, and when she was taken ill she was at the seashore for her health. Mrs. Bird is naturally very anxious about her daughter's condition, but as no further word has been received it is hoped that the crisis is past, and that Miss Bird is recovering. In a letter previously written home by Miss Bird she said that when she first went to the seashore in Japan her appearance caused great excitement. She was followed by crowds who shouted and yelled, calling her barbarian and other names. A white person in that locality was to them what a Chinaman was to us many years ago.

The following extracts from Moncton papers tell of the promotion of a former Marysville boy, who left here a few years ago and went to Moncton to accept a position on the Moncton police force, and his many friends here will be pleased to hear of it. The Moncton Times: "Promotion came to Sergt. John Collings, of the local police force, this morning when he was appointed inspector to the force. Sergt. Collings joined the force on May 12, 1916; on Aug. 1, 1918, he was promoted from patrolman to sergeant and today, May 15th, 1920, he wears the inspector's uniform. That the promotion is deservedly popular is obvious. As a patrolman, Inspector Collings gave eminent service to the city; as a sergeant, he kept up the good work; and it is believed that the promotion today is but a tangible reward for his services. In a general order from police headquarters on Saturday, Sergt. John Collings was notified of his promotion to the rank of inspector. The new inspector will receive hearty congratulations upon his advance in the ranks of the force. Firm, determined, and at the same time always courteous in the performance of his duty as an officer, Inspector Collings holds the respect of all, and in his new position will doubtless continue his success." Moncton Transcript: "Inspector John Collings, of the local police force was pleasingly remembered by the police department last evening when he was presented with a gold mounted fountain pen, suitably engraved, and an Eveready pencil. The presentations were made by Chief Rideout on behalf of the members of the force. Inspector Collings made a suitable reply. The presentation shows most tangibly the good relationship between the Inspector and the members of the police department."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Pond and family have removed to Lake George, where they will conduct a hotel and store. During their short residence in Marysville they made many friends who will regret their departure.

A ten-pound baby boy has arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison W. Eno.

George Eno, who has been confined to his home for a few days with lameness, is able to be about again.

In the Police Court yesterday morning a Fredericton man was fined $5 and costs for driving his car at a rate of speed contrary to law. Magistrate Clayton gave him a severe caution, warning him and others that for future offences the full penalty would be enforced.

Mrs. C. Holden, of Shang Hai, China, has arrived in the city and will spend some time here the guest of her aunt Mrs. A. B. Kitchen, at Windsor Hall. Mrs. Holden before marriage was Miss E. P. Cox and many friends here will extend her a warm welcome.

Every Mail Brings a Shoal Of Requests for Information Regarding New Luxury Taxes

A Canadian Manufacturer Raises the Point That He Had Contracted to Deliver Goods at a Certain Price, and That New Tax Would More Than Wipe Out Profit

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Ottawa, May 21.—New problems are daily arising in the administration of the new luxury taxes. At the Department of Finance there is a constant stream of callers with requests for information and every mail brings a shoal of questions.

This morning a delegation of fur dealers was in conference with the Minister of Finance regarding the taxes.

An important point for decision has been raised by a Canadian manufacturer. Before the budget he had contracted to fill a large order for goods now subject to an additional excise duty of ten per cent.

The budget resolutions provide that in this case the excise duty is payable by the manufacturer. If, the manufacturer contends, he pays the duty, not only will his profits be wiped out, but he will have to fill the order at a loss.

This, however, is but one of a number of cases submitted to the department.

It is probable that when the resolutions are in committee there will be amendments made to correct any anomalies existing.

GENERAL STRIKE IN FRANCE CALLED OFF

The Federation of Labor Decide for a Resumption of Work by Vote of 96 to 11

Paris, May 21.—The General Federation of Labor decided today to call off the strikes it had ordered in support of the railwaymen's walkout.

The decision for the resumption of work was reached by a vote of 96 to 11.

Twelve members of the national council of the Federation were absent when the vote was taken and fifteen members abstained from voting.

The motion provided for resumption of work tomorrow. It asserted that the hasty presentation in the chamber of deputies of the government's railroad re-organization plan showed that the action in calling the strike for nationalization was justified, and that nationalization was demanded by the country.

NOVA SCOTIA VOTE ON REFERENDUM

How many men do you know who do just as they please?

OBITUARY

Mrs. John Rogers.

Maple Grove, May 18.—On May 1st there passed peacefully to her rest, at her home in this place, Mrs. John Rogers, widow of the late John Rogers, aged 74 years. Deceased was loved and respected by all and will not only be missed in her own home but in the community as well. She leaves to mourn their loss eight daughters—Mrs. Oliver Thomas, Mrs. Marshall Merrill and Mrs. Nellie Gill, of Stanley; Mrs. Wm. Timms, Mrs. Geo. Day and Mrs. Harry Sheperd, of Fredericton; Mrs. Judson Carroll, of Holyoke, Mass., and Mrs. Arthur Carson, of Auburn, Me.; and three sons—Hiram, in New Hampshire; Herbert, of Pelepscot, Me., and James, at home. One sister, Mrs. Albert Stickles, of Woodlands; two brothers, Gilbert Gibsons, of Stanley, and David Gibbons, of Robinhood, Me., twenty-six grand children and twelve great-grandchildren also survive.

While her death is a great sorrow and loss to all, yet with that sorrow we have the consoling knowledge that she is now "asleep in Jesus." The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mr. McCully, of Stanley, and interment in the Baptist cemetery at Cross Creek.

AutoStrop Razor

—sharpens itself

ALL safety razors seem alike because of the similarity in size and appearance. As regards the AutoStrop Razor, however, the resemblance ends there. Its peculiar and additional advantage is, that without being larger than any other safety razor, it combines within itself a self-stropping feature that enables the user to keep the blade sharp without taking anything apart. It thus prevents dull blades and the expense of buying new ones.

You may not be interested in economy of blades, but surely you want a good shave and that is only possible with a stropped blade.

Any dealer will demonstrate the AutoStrop Razor to you, guarantee satisfaction or refund of purchase price. Only $5.00—complete with strop and twelve blades in an attractive assortment of cases.

HARNESS RACING SPORT AT BOSTON

Mile in 2.28¼ by Three Year Old—Peter Ibbetson Impresses by Early Season Form

Boston, May 20.—A mile in 2.28¼ by the 3-year-old trotter Peter Ibbetson was the feature of the Metropolitan Driving Club's matinee racing on the Charles River Speedway track yesterday.

Peter Ibbetson is one of the half dozen 3-year-olds bought last winter by members of the club and in the allotment was drawn by George A. Graves, its president. His fine, early-season performance has the owners of the other five colts wondering if Mr. Graves secured the prize. He is a son of Belwin, 2.06¼, and Genevieve, 2.13¾.

The race between Un, 2.02¼, and Billy Jackson, 2.04¼, was won by W. J. McDonald's handsome bay stallion in 2.23, 2.21, with the final quarter of the second heat in 32½. Billy Jackson set the pace in the first heat, Un winning by a rush through the stretch. In the second heat Un was not headed, although the holder of the track record made the finish a very close one.

John J. Kingsley took two blue ribbons, winning the first event on the card with Casperita, and the third with his Bingara mare, Bryso. The latter had to trot fast to stall off Albia Todd.

W. R Scudder won the race for fast record trotters with Dr. Kilburn, the Cochato gelding that cracked out a mile in 2.21¼ a week ago, which apparently did him no harm.

FOX STABLES HAS SOME FAST HORSES

Something About Neptune Boy, 2.23¼, and Old Dependable May Bird, 2.07¾

The American Horse Breeder has the following regarding some of the horses in the Fox stable:

"The four-year-old trotter, Neptune Boy, 3, 2.23¼, by Mainleaf, 3, 2.08¼, out of the dam of Peter Neptune, 2.09¼, raced last season by George R. Russell, Lake George, N. Y., and second to C. W. Lasell's Henry Mac, 3, 2.13¾, in the three-year-old race at Malone, N. Y., has been purchased by Austin L. Baker, of Boston, Mass., and now is in charge of trainer Frank P. Fox at Combination Park. Several New Englanders have been angling for Peter Neptune since the close of the last racing season.

"The dependable May Bird, 2.07¾, owned by W. W. Sprague, Boston, and the heroine of many a hard-fought Bay State Circuit joust of recent years, will forsake the scenes of her many triumphs and do practically all her racing this season over Maine tracks. Frank P. Fox will take the game little pacing mare with him when he forsakes Combination Park, Medford, Mass., for his trip down east."

Maine Stake Entries.

The $1,000 Pine Tree Stake offered by the Maine State Fair, Lewiston (Sept. 14-17) for Maine-owned and Mainetrained 2.30 trotters (within the state March 1) and closing May 1, received twenty-three nominations, and should prove the feature race of the big fair week.

Tommy White is getting Jolla Elder and Christy Mac ready over the Speedway track.

Oscar Dewell, Lowell's crack amateur reinsman, is at Combination with Little Prince, 2.04¼.

Cox will soon turn Harvest Girl, 2.11½, over to Cliff Todd for racing over Ohio two-laps.

W. J. McDonald is going to sell Ben Ali, 2.03¼, Onward Forbes, 2.09½, and Doctor Ben, 2.20¼.

Fred Field, of Brockton, Mass., has returned from a Kentucky visit well pleased with the young trotters he owns there.

A meeting of representatives of the various baseball teams in the York County League will be held at the Y. M. C. Several of those have for various reasons refused to act, but the names of those who have been decided upon as umpires will be announced tonight.

The various teams who are lining up for the league are conducting practice at the Fredericton Trotting Park and at the College Field nearly every evening of the week, and by the appearance of the players in their practice games some good baseball is assured local fans for the coming season.

"THE KING OF DISC HARROWS"

We have just received a large shipment of the well known Bissell Disc Harrow and would like to point out to you the distinguishing features which make it the "King of Disc Harrows."

The Beam or Arch is directly over the Gangs, making the BISSELL lighter on the horses necks than any other Out-Throw Harrow on the market.

One gang is set slightly ahead of the other. On this Harrow the gangs do not crowd or bump together.

Has two levers for use on side hills. Gangs work close together in the centre. Hitch is well back. There is no neck weight. The Draught is light.

In all BISSELL Disc Harrows the end thrust is taken by the frame and bearings which makes the draught easy. The gangs are free to cultivate down to the bottom of a furrow or other hollow. The Levers are long, with a good sweep, making it the easiest of Disc Harrows to handle and operate.

The BISSELL is made of the very best of material throughout. We are able to furnish you this Harrow with either 12 or 14 disc; the discs are 16 in. in diameter.

GOT LICENSE IN '75 WED LAST FRIDAY

A Great Barrington Couple Thought They Were Married All the Time

Pittsfield, May 19.—City Clerk Michael F. Quinn received today a marriage return from Great Barrington, showing that J. L. Bouteiller and Augustine Dulvat, who took out a marriage license 45 years ago, were just married last Friday at St. James' Episcopal Church rectory in Great Barrington by the Rev. Robert Backman, Jr. The bridegroom is 75 and the bride is 77. The license as issued by the late Theodore E. Allen, Pittsfield town clerk, is dated Oct. 15, 1875.

Mr. and Mrs. Bouteiller, who are highly respected residents of Great Barrington, were born in France and at the time they took out the license lived in Cheshire. They supposed that obtaining a license made them husband and wife and they discovered their error only last week. Mrs. Bouteiller had carefully preserved the license. Witnesses of the wedding were Judge Walter B. Sanford and Register of Deeds Malcolm Douglas of Great Barrington.

"Why, all I see is a long stretch of low ground," said the visitor.

"Well, that's it," said the member.

"It?" exclaimed the Scot. "Great heavens, I thought it was a man."

IN DAYS OF TERROR

At this remark of two knots being tied in the pocket-handkerchief, the Queen trembled, the uplis of her eyes dilated, and she and Madame Elizabeth exchanged hasty glances.

"Tison," said Santerre, "your daughter is a person of whose patriotism no one can entertain a doubt; but when she leaves the Temple today she returns there no more."

"Ah, mon Dieu!" said Tison, terrified, "what are you saying to me? I shall not see my daughter till I go out."

"You will not go out," said Santerre. Then looked wildly around, without allowing his eye to remain fixed on any particular object, and suddenly exclaimed—"I am not to go out; that is it, is it? Well, then, I will go out altogether. Give me my dismissal. I am neither traitor nor aristocrat, that I should be detained in prison. I tell you I will go out."

"Citizen, said Santerre, "obey the orders of the Commune, and be silent, or I tell you it may be all the worse for you. Remain here and watch all that passes. There is an eye on you. I warn you of this."

During this time the Queen, who thought herself for a moment forgotten recovered by degrees, and replaced her son in his bed.

"Desire your wife to come up," said the municipal to Tison.

He obeyed without a word. The threats of Santerre had rendered him meek as a lamb.

Tison's wife came up.

"Come here, citoyenne, said Santerre, "we are going into the antechambers; during that time, search all the prisoners."

"Listen, wife," said Tison; "they will not permit our daughter to come here! Then we shall see her no more."

Tison mournfully shook his head.

"What do you say to this?"

"I say we will make a report to the Council of the Temple, and the Council shall decide it. In the meantime—"

"In the meantime I will see my daughter again."

"Silence," said Santerre; "you came here for the purpose of searching the prisoners; search them, then, and afterwards we will see—"

"But—now—"

"Oh, oh!" said Santerre, kniting his brows; "you are contaminated, it appears to me."

"Do as the Citizen-General tells you wife," he said; "afterwards, we shall see."

And Tison regarded Santerre with a humble smile.

"Very well," said the woman; "go, then, I am ready to search."

The men went out.

"Ma chere, Madame Tison," said the Queen; "you know—"

"I only know Citoyenne Capet," said the horrible woman, gnashing her teeth, 'that you are the cause of all the misery of the people; and also that I have reason to suspect you, and you know it."

Four men waited at the door, to assist Tison's wife, if the Queen offered any resistance.

The search commenced on the Queen.

There was found on her person a handkerchief tied in three kots, which unfortunately appeared a reply to the one spoken of by Tison; a pencil, a scapulary, and some sealing-wax.

"Ah! I know it," said Tison's wife; 'I have often told the municipals she wrote, the Austrian! The other day I found a lump of sealing-wax on the candlestick."

"Ah madame," said the Queen, in a supplicating tone, "only show the scapulary, I entreat you."

"Yes," said the woman, "I feel pity for you, who have felt so much pity for me; to take my daughter from me."

Madame Elizabeth and Madame Royal had nothing found upon them.

The woman Tison recalled the municipals, who entered, Santerre at their head. She showed them the articles found upon the Queen; which, as they passed from hand to hand, afforded subject for an infinite variety of conjectures; but the handkerchief tied in three knots excited, above all, the imagination of these persecutors of the royal race.

"Now," said Santerre, "we are going to read the decree of the Convention to you."

"What decree?" demanded the Queen.

"The decree which orders you to be separated from your son."

"Is it, then, true that this decree exists?"

'Yes; the Convention has too much regard for the health of a child confided to its guardianship, to leave him in the care of a mother so depraved.'

The eyes of the Queen flashed like lightning.

"But form some accusation at least, tigers that you are."

"That is not at all difficult," said a municipal; and he pronounced one of those infamous accusations brought by Shotone against Agrippine.

"Oh!" cried the Queen, standing, pale with indignation, "I appeal to the heart of every mother."

"That is all very fine," said a municipal "but we have already been here two hours, and cannot lose the whole day. Get up, Capet, and follow us."

"Never, never!" cried the Queen, rushing between the municipals and the young Louis, preparing to defend the approach to his bed, as a tigress the entrance to her den. "Never will I permit you to carry away my child."

"Oh! Messieurs," said Madame Elizabeth, clasping her hands in an attitude of prayer, "Messieurs, in the name of Heaven, have pity on us both."

"Then speak," said Santerre; "state the names, avow the project of your accomplices; explain what they wished to intimate by the knots made in the pocket-handkerchief brought with your linen by Tison's daughter, and the meaning of those tied in the handkerchief found in your pocket, and on these conditions I will leave you your child."

A look from Madame Elizabeth seemed to implore the Queen to submit to this dreadful sacrifice.

Then quietly brushing from her eye a tear which sparkled like a diamond, "Adieu, my son," cried she; "never forget your father who is in heaven, or your mother who will soon join him there, and never omit to repeat morning and evening the prayer I have taught you. Adieu my son."

She gave him a last kiss; then rising calm and inflexible, "I know nothing, Messieurs," said she, "do as you please."

But the Queen must have required more than the usual amount of fortitude contained in the heart of woman, and above all of a mother. She fell back fainting upon a chair, whilst they carried away the child, who with fast flowing tears held out his arms, but uttered not a single word or cry.

The door closed behind the municipals who carried away the child, and the three women remained alone. There was for a moment the deep silence of despair, interrupted only by occasional sobs.

The Queen first broke silence.

"My daughter," said she, "that letter?"

"I burnt it, as you desired me, ma mere."

"Without reading it?"

"Without reading it."

"Adieu, then, to the last ray of hope, divine hope," murmured Madame Elizabeth.

"You are right, my sister, you are right; it is almost beyond endurance." Then turning towards her daughter, "But you at least saw the handwriting, Marie?"

"Yes, ma mere, for a moment.'

The Queen rose, went to the door, to make sure she was not observed, then drawing a pin from her hair, approached the wall, and from a chink drew out a small paper folded like a letter, and showing it to Madame Royale, "Collect your thoughts before you reply, my child," said she; "was the writing the same as this?"

"Yes, yes, ma mere," cried the princess; "I recognize it."

"God be praised, then," cried the Queen, falling with fervour on her knees. "If he could write since this morning, he is safe. Thanks, mon Dieu! thanks! So noble a friend deserves my miraculous preservation."

"Of whom do you speak, ma mere?" demanded Madame Royle. "Who is this friend? Tell me his name, that I may recommend him to God in my prayers."

"You are right, my child; never forget it. This name, for it is the name of a gentleman replete with honor and courage, one not devoted to us through ambition, for he has only revealed himself since our misfortunes. He has never seen the Queen of France, or rather the Queen of France has never seen him, and he vows his life to her defence. Perhaps he will be recompensed as all virtue is now recompensed, by a dreadful death. But . . . if he dies . . . Oh! I shall still think of him in heaven . . . he is called . . . ."

The Queen looked uneasily around, then lowering her voice, "He is called the Chevalier de Maison-Rouge . . . Pray for him.'

EMPIRE DAY WAS OBSERVED IN CITY SCHOOLS TODAY

Interesting Programmes Fitting To Day Carried Out in Various Departments

DAUGHTERS EMPIRE VISIT MORRISON'S MILL SCHOOL

Children Who Read All Books in the Library Received a Decoration

As Empire Day falls on Sunday this year it is being observed in the schools today with exercises appropriate to the day.

At the Smythe Street School in the different departments there were talks on the Empire and the flag and patriotic choruses were sung, Prof. Harrison being present.

At the High School no programme was arranged, the usual routine work being carried on. The York Street School observed the day with Empire talks.

At the Model School lessons on the Empire were taught by student teachers of the Normal School while the rest of the student body were present as visitors. O Canada and The Maple Leaf Forever were also sung by the children.

At the Regent Street School talks were given on the Day and the flag and choruses were sung.

At Charlotte Street School, it was planned to have the exercises out of doors, but on account of the threatening weather, the advanced departments met upstairs and carried out the programme, which consisted of essays on Empire day, patriotic songs and an interesting talk on citizenship by Miss Pinder.

Morrison's Mill School carried out a programme and during the day Mrs. A. F. Gregory and Miss Gregory, from the Sir Howard Douglas Chapter of the I. O. D. E., visited the school and presented the pupils who had read every book in the library presented by the Chapter to the school with a decoration.

BUMPER APPLE CROP EXPECTED THIS FALL

Trees Show No Ill Effect After the Recent Severe Winter

A. G. Turney, provincial horticulturist, stated this morning that the apple trees of the province seemed in very favorable condition at present and prospects were that this year's apple crop would be an extensive one.

It was thought that many of the trees of the province would be weakened by the intense cold in the early part of the winter, as there was then very little snow to cover the lower parts of the trees and protect them. As far as is known, none of the trees which have been inspected by fruit growers in this province have shown any signs of being weakened by the hard winter, and, should any signs develop, they will be seen in the blossoms which are now out.

Mr. Turney also said that, in the blossoms he had examined, he saw no sign of any weakening and did not think there had been any. The prospects so far for the crop this year could not be estimated, but he considered that the crop would without doubt be as large as last year's, if not larger.

Mrs. Chappin expressed herself as well pleased with the condition of Celestial Chapter, and this morning she left for Woodstock, where she will inspect Woodstock Chapter tonight.

At the conclusion of the initiation exercises a banquet was tendered Mrs Chappin in the banquet hall, the tables being very prettily decorated with flowers. At one table were seated Mrs. Chappin and the past worthy matrons and patrons while at the other were the members of the order.

During the evening Mrs. Chappin was presented with a beautiful piece of cut glass, Prof. Cadwallader making the presentation in a neat speech. The gift was engraved with the Chapter's name and the recipient's initials.

SPECIAL MEETING OF CITY COUNCIL CALLED TONIGHT

The Proposed Bond Issue of $100,000 for Hospital to be Discussed

STREET LIGHT PROBLEM MAY BE FINALLY SETTLED

Special Committee to Report on the Employment Service Bureau in This City

A special meeting of the City Council is called for this evening to take up a number of matters which have arisen out of and since the last regular meeting of the council.

The ways and means to provide funds to enable the trustees of the Victoria Hospital to build and maintain an addition or additions in connection with the Fraser Memorial Hospital, work upon which has started, will be considered. A proposal was placed before a recent meeting of the Hospital Board that the city be asked to issue bonds to the extent of $100,000 for building and $100,000 for maintenance, and this will be taken up at the meeting.

The city street lighting plant and problem will also be considered and the matter will without doubt be finally settled. As the situation stands now the council are in favor of the city buying its current for the street lighting from the Maritime Electric Company, and a representative of that company will probably be heard before the council this evening, who will explain the offer of that company and discuss the situation in detail.

The report of the special committee appointed to consider the matter of the Employment Service Bureau will also be given as well as the reports of other special committees. Petitions will be considered and tenders for the city coal will be considered and acted upon.

MEXICAN PRESIDENT SLAIN BY REBELS

Carranza Killed When Followers Revolt Under Leadership of Herrara

Herrara Commanded a Small Guard With the Fugitive President

OTHER LOYALISTS WERE ALSO SLAIN

Carranza's End Came on Thursday Morning in Puebla Mountains.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico City, May 22.—President Carranza, who with a small party of followers has been a fugitive in the mountains of Puebla since late last week, was killed at Tlaxcalaltongo, early Thursday morning, according to official announcement here. A number of his companions, the names of whom are as yet unknown, also were killed.

KILLED IN ATTACK BY GENERAL HERRARA

General Herrara, it is said, directed the attack that resulted in the death of the fugitive President and his followers. He belonged to forces commanded by General Francisco De P. Mariel, who accompanied Carranza in his flight from this city, but who last week deserted Carranza and joined the revolutionists.

There is some uncertainty regarding the exact affiliation of General Herrara, but it is generally believed possible, however, that he commanded a small guard which was with the fleeing President.

He was in rebellion against Carranza for several years, centering his operations in the state of Puebla. He surrendered last March to General Mariel, who was in command of government forces in that state.

Desertion of Herrara.

When General Mariel went over to the revolutionists last week, a portion of his troops, it is known, remained loyal to the President and belief exists that Carranza might have taken along with him in his flight toward Tuxpam, Herrera's forces, which finally turned against him.

Tlaxcalaltongo is a small village in the vicinity of Huauchinango, in the southern "panhandle" of the state of Puebla. It is approximately 85 miles from San Andres, where Carranza left his forces and took refuge in the mountains.

The official announcement, which was given out last night from headquarters of General Obregon, stated it was based on official despatches which have been received.

Reports received here early this morning state that General Barrafan, chief of the Presidential staff; Ygnacio Bonillas, former Mexican Ambassador at Washington; General Marciano Gonzales, and General Montes, who accompanied President Carranza in his flight from San Andres, are safe.

No mention is made of others in the party, which it is believed included Luis Cabrera, Minister of the Treasury; Alfonso Cabrera, his brother, Governor of Puebla, and General Murguia, who acted as commander of the Carranza troops after the President had fled from this city.

Orders have been given that a train be taken to Beristain, the nearest railway point to Tlaxcalaltongo, to receive the bodies of those killed in the encounter in which President Carranza lost his life.

GIVE MINISTERS A LIVING SALARY

Toronto Methodists Organizing to Increase Ministers' Salaries 70 Per Cent.

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Toronto, May 22—The Methodists are organizing for the purpose of bringing the salaries of the ministers up seventy per cent It is stated that whereas the cost of living has advanced one hundred per cent since 1914, the Methodist ministers' salaries have advanced only thirty per cent. The first step towards the organization was taken here yesterday, when a meeting of representative laymen from Ontario and Quebec was held, with A. E. Ames, presiding.

An outline organization will be presented to the Laymen's Associations at the various annual conferences in June, and it is expected that in August or September the quarterly official boards of the Methodist churches will make provision for adequate salaries for their ministers.

The new organization is to be known as the Dominion Ministerial Support Committee.

THE GRASSHOPPER MENACE TO WEST

The Manitoba Government Is Taking Vigorous Action to Overcome Danger to Crops

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Winnipeg, Man., May 22.—The government's of Manitoba and Saskatchewan are fully alive to the danger of the grasshopper menace to the western crops. In Saskatchewan last fall grasshoppers laid eggs in from forty to fifty rural municipalities. The eggs have been examined carefully during the last two weeks by the provincial field experts and a large percentage survived the winter and the embryo is rapidly forming now; in fact, in three places, messages say, the young nymphs are beginning to emerge—at Carnduff, Stoughton and Carlyle. Ten field directors are in direct touch with the situation and the local authorities in the infested area and the campaign against the pest has been well organized in almost military fashion, even the school teachers and pupils joining in the work with bankers, merchants and volunteers.

The Saskatchewan government, Department of Agriculture, has purchased 50,000 gallons of molasses, 90 tons of arsenic, 1,000 tons of bran and two carloads of lemons, most of which has reached Regina.

Large quantities have already been transported to the needy spots and the cost is being borne largely by the municipalities and the Saskatchewan government in equal shares.

In a case where a municipality refuses to use the bait, there is legislation already passed to employ others to poison the locusts and the cost is charged to the local account. Unless a good battle is fought, it is probable that in two weeks' time the two varieties of the pest most dangerous may get ahead. These are red-legged locust and the clear winged locust, now beginning to be hatched.

In Manitoba the locusts are reported in Melita district in millions. The few hot days of the past week have caused concern, but there is no need for panic and the hungry state of the hoppers leads the government to think that, as in the state of Kansas, early vigilance will defeat the danger.

SEEK TO INTENSIFY WORLD PRODUCTION

Economic Conference at Paris Urges Return of Nations to Pre-War Position

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Paris, May 22.—A communique given out today covering Thursday and Friday's sessions of the Franco-German economic conference says:

"With all the delegates in accord it was decided to constitute three additional sub-committees. The first will be devoted to metallurgy, the second to textiles, such as wool, cotton and silk, and the third will deal with all branches of the chemical industry. To these probably will be added a commiteee to consider wholesale commerce."

August Isaac, French Minister of Commerce, in welcoming the German delegates, declared the task of restoration which had been imposed on the European peoples put in the background all economic rivalry.

All efforts, he said, must be co-ordinated to intensify the world's production to hasten the return of each nation to its pre-war economic position.

OTTAWA, May 22—The boot and shoe retailers of the city are to raise objections regarding the imposition of the budget of a ten per cent. tax on all boots and shoes remaining at $9 or over.

A. E. Stephens, of the firm of A. J. Stephens, last night received a telegram from Warren F. Eagen, Toronto, President of the National Shoe Retailers Association, to the effect that a wire had been sent to the Finance Minister that "the National Shoe Retailers Association of Canada protests against the price of shoes maximum being $9. This should in all fairness be $12. We submit the tax should be ten per cent. on increase above specified amount on all total sales. Price forms should also be procurable for checking of same.

A meeting of the local retailers will be held early next week when the members will come to a decision regarding the action to be taken.

German Reichstag Dissolved And New Elections to be Held Throughout Empire on June 6

The Closing Hours of the Session Marked By Much Strife—Prediction That the Majority Socialists Will Emerge From Fight With Large Losses

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Berlin, May 22.—The German Republic's first parliament went out of existence at noon yesterday, for although its mandate is effective until the new Reichstag is convoked, it will not sit again unless summoned as a result of some great emergency.

The closing hours of the session were marked by acrimonious party strife, which resulted in the bill providing for abrogation of the military courts being left in abeyance. Obstruction by the reactionaries delayed the final vote twenty four hours, and Konstantin Fehrenbach, President of the Chamber, afterwards was unable to muster a quorum.

The government was subjected to a second embarrassment by being forced to ignore Thursday's vote, which was jammed through by the independent socialists with the aid of the majority socialists, demanding that the state of siege throughout the country be raised.

During the session yesterday, Minister of the Interior Koch in an address referring to this vote said the government during the last fewd ays had received advices indicating revolutionary agitation by radicals and that the state of siege could no be raised in the Ruhr region or Gotha, but the partial raising of it in Bavaria was contemplated. He added that the government was considering the posibility of a further amelioration of the situation.

The Minister declared that the freedom of the press and of public meetings would be guaranteed during the election campaign.

The session ended with speeches by President Ebert and Chancellor Mueller. Both thanked the deputies for their services and predicted better days for Germany.

The assembly which disbanded had been under constant charges by the reactionaries of having exceeded its prerogatives. It was elected primarily to enact a constitution, elect a tempopary President of the republic and provide for army re-organization.

Elections to be Held June 6.

Its activities soon spread in many directions, chiefly in the enactment of staggering tax legislation and voting appropriations of huge dimensions. Its sessions at first were held at Weimar. Then it returned to Berlin, but later was forced to flee to Stuttgart during the Kapp rebellion. Never during its sessions in Berlin was it permitted to sit without ample armed protection. Rifles and machine guns became an accustomed sight at its sessions.

The prediction today is that the majority socialists will emerge large losers from the elections, which are to be held June 6.

The democrats also are expected to forfeit numerous seats. The only hope expressed is that the present three party bloc will control enough votes to insure a continuation of the coalition government is based on the prospect that the clericals will hold their own or make a slight gain.

I tried many remedies and was under the care of a physician; but nothing did me any good. Then I began to take 'Fruit-a-tives' and in a week I was easier, and in six weeks I was so well I went to work again.

Council Postponed Decision In the Matter of Endowment Fund for Victoria Hospal

A Delegation of Interested Citizens Lay the Proposition Before the City Council, Last Night, But After a Lengthy Discussion the Matter Was Postponed

A delegation of about forty people, including business men and members of the Hospital Board, waited upon the City Council last evening at their special meeting and introduced the matter of ways and means to provide for necessary additions to the Fraser Memorial Hospital. Among the speakers were P. J. Hughes, president of the Board; R. B. Hanson, K.C., the Countess of Ashburnham, Dr. G.C. VanWart, Dr. W.H. Irvine, Dr. W.C. Keirstead and R. F. Randolph. These issued a plea for co-operation on the part of the city in the proposed plans. When the matter came up at the meeting of the Council in committee, it was, after discussion, stood over until the regular June meeting.

P. J. Hughes, president of the Hospital Board, presented the needs of that institution to the Council for consideration. Mr. Hughes stated that the Hospital was built to serve the needs of the public over thirty years ago. From time to time additions had been made, but at the present time conditions could not be coped with because of the needs of the institution. When the gift from the late Donald Fraser was received, a gift of land also was received from the government for building purposes. This building, in spite of the generous wish of the donor, would not take care of all the cases crying for entrance to the Hospital, as only about twenty-eight cots would be provided for in the new building.

The Hospital Proposition.

As soon as Messrs. Fraser had commenced to build, the Board decided to move at the same time and provide for all needs. Included in these were maternity wing, contagious wing, nurses' home, etc. The Hospital Board had discussed with the various city organizations the possibility of changing the plans for the Hospital to take in some of the needed additions. Mr. Rea, the architect, in a letter written to him, stated that following up the meeting with the Board he had considered the matter and would say that another wing or pavilion about eighty feet long and forty feet wide could be provided to the rear of the new building to contain about forty cots. The maternity wing would be provided in the lower floor of the pavilion and would be a separate unit of the Hospital. Mr. Rea also referred to a boiler house for all necessary heating apparatus and a laundry. The project of moving the Asa Dow wing was also considered. The estimated cost, he thought, would be $150,000. As a result of this letter, a meeting of the Board was held yesterday to consider the matter, and it was decided by a resolution to go ahead in the building of an up-to-date hospital, if the co-operation of the City Council were secured. The proposal was made that the City Council be asked for a grant of $100,000 and $50,000 be asked from the County of York, and that work be started at once.

Mr. Hughes stated that work was being held up on the Fraser building until the decision of the Council had been reached regarding the matter. The City could bond itself for a sum of $100,000 to extend over a series of years.

Necessity of the Work.

R. B. Hanson, K. C., was the next speaker. He referred to the necessity of relieving the crying needs of the hospital in the form of a maternity wing and contagious wing. He also referred to the difficulty encountered by the nurses in securing the proper accommodation and stated that although the sum of $100,000 would appear large to the Council, it was absolutely necessary that these matters be taken up immediately because of the changes which would be required in the present plans. If the Council were to provide for the passing of a bill at the next session of the Legislature to provide for the issuing of bonds to the extent of $100,000 by the city, he thought that the Hospital Board could secure funds to carry along the work until the city funds were available. The moment to tackle the scheme was the present time, and should the city decide to carry on as was suggested, it would be of lasting credit to the city. He stated that a sinking fund of $100,000 would be extinct in 28 years at an annual sum of $7,500 and asked for an immediate consideration. The County of York would be seen later in the matter.

The Countess of Ashburnham said the ladies would do all in their power to help along the situation.

Dr. G. C. VanWart stated that two things were needed at once, money and immediate action. Concerning the money question, he looked upon it in the same light as receiving a grant for the school trustees for educational purposes. The citizens needed the hospital and he thought that acting with Messrs. Fraser the work could be done cheaper at the present time than if deferred.

Had Fraser Plans for Three Weeks.

Ald. Wilkinson asked the members of the Board how long they had had the plans of the proposed Fraser Memorial Hospital in their hands, and President Hughes stated that the plans, which were revised ones, had been in their hands about three weeks. In answer to a question by Ald. Wilkinson, Mr. Hanson stated the matter of additions was held back until the building of the Fraser Memorial Hospital began, as it was not thought opportune to proceed before.

Dr. Keirstead stated the scheme, if carried out, would provide for over sixty-five cots.

Dr. W. H. Irvine, R. F. Randolph and others were heard in favor of the question of a proper hospital for the city.

When the matter came up for discussion Mayor Reid stated that for the twenty-five years the matter would be a shade over 4 per cent. increase on the tax bill and in 20 years it would be a little less than 4 per cent. increase on a man's tax bill. A long term at 30 years would be about 3 1-3 per cent. increase.

Ald. Neill stated that the city corporation was the body which ought to stand behind the suggestion, and he thought that 30 year bonds would be favorable.

Not Fair to the Poor Man.

Ald. Wilkinson stated that he could not see how the Hospital Board could let the Fraser Memorial Hospital go on and then after sod had been broken to bring the matter up. It wasn't a feasible thing for the city to issue bonds for anything which the city was not to control. It was all right to tax the big men who could stand it, but the poor man would be forced to leave the city, as he would not be able to pay the taxes.

Mayor Reid stated that the board were undoubtedly waiting to hear the Fraser plans on the subject, and that probably they were diffident about approaching Fraser about a broader scheme.

Ald. Baxter stated that he thought that time ought to be taken to consider the question. He would not agree with Ald. Neill that the present hospital was a disgrace to the city. It was all right, but additions were wanted. Labor, he stated, was bound to go down almost any time now. He would not be prepared to vote on the question without consideration.

Mayor Reid thought that prices instead of being lower would be higher. He thought the situation was the same as that in 1915.

Ald. Cain stated that he was in agreement with the version strangers took that the hospital was not unified. He thought that the new scheme under one operation was better than the former patch work one. He would be in favor of the scheme going forward and thought that the scheme of asking a unified increase in taxation would be favorable. Charity should begin at home, and the present hospital situation warranted a change almost immediately.

Ald. Camp stated that the question was a great surprise to him. Under the new scheme he thought the heating plant would be thrust upon the city instead of Fraser. He could see the object of the architect, as he was saving money for Fraser. He did not think labor would drop and thought that the poor man would leave the city to escape heavier taxes if such matters came up continually. He did not see how some of them could live at all. Like Ald. Wilkinson, he could not jump at a conclusion in a moment's notice as he did not like to see an increase of $100,000 thrust upon the city. If taxes went up while he was at the board he would move that a revaluation of the city be made and the rich agitators be made to pay their shares. It looked to him as if the gate were open for a revolution if the taxes kept on rising the way they did.

Ald. Young said that if more time were taken the matter of issuing the bonds could be satisfactorily arranged. The matter of revaluation was one way out of this. He would like to see the citizens take an interest in the matter.

R. B. Hanson stated that the principal assessor had considered every piece of property in the city today, and where the property was valued low it was raised and where it was high it was lowered.

Ald. Young stated that as revalution was being discussed he thought that the matter should be handled by tax on the ground space.

Ald. Barker stated that he was not prepared to vote on the matter at once, and asked if it could not be put over until the regular meeting. He wanted to know what means were provided for maintaining the hospital.

R. B. Hanson stated that eighty per cent. of the maintenance of the present hospital came from the paying patients, and this would be about the same in the new hospital.

On motion of Ald. Cooper, seconded by Ald. Camp, the consideration of the proposed aid for the Victoria Hospital was defererd until the regular June meeting.

LITTLE DAMAGE IN QUEBEC FORESTS

Sherbrooke, Que., May 21.—Greatly exaggerated reports of forest fires in Bellechasse county were circulated yesterday, which affirmed that several villages in the neighborhood were in danger and that millions of feet of lumber were threatened. Mr. J. H. Walsh, general manager of the Quebec Central Railway, stated this morning that there was less than twenty cords of wood damaged and that the incipient fire was quickly extinguished. The scene of the blaze was nowhere near the railroad tracks at any point.

Two trains of men were despatched by the Q. C .R. to the limit affected, and several lumber firms including the B. C. Howard Company, the Murray and Gregory Company, and the St. Maurice Lumber Company sent large gangs of men, who, together with the railway employees, successfully prevented the flames from spreading and extinguished the fire.

Mr. B. C. Howard, of the Howard Pulp and Lumber Company, said this morning that no appreciable damage was suffered by any firm operating in that district.

If all men were compelled to practice what they preach, the majority of them would discontinue preaching.

PRESIDENT HANNA REPLIES TO CAHILL

Declares He Has No Personal Interest in Canadian Northern Town Properties

Toronto, May 21.—Replying to the speech made by Frank S. Cahill, M. P. for Pontiac, in the House of Commons last week, President D. B. Hanna, of the Canadian National Railways, this morning issued the following statement:

"On my return to the city I have had an opportunity of reading the House of Commons debates of May 14th and the statement of Mr. Cahill respecting the suit which I have entered against him.

"I wish to state that I have no personal interest in the Canadian Northern town properties, either as stockholder or a purchaser of lots. I am acting as president of that company, as I am also acting as president of many other subsidiary companies of the railway company or the Caandian Government Merchant Marine, because the securities of the town properties are pledged against the securities issued by the railway company. I have no other interest in that company, directly or indirectly.

'When Mr. Cahill deals with coal purchases," continued Mr. Hanna, "he is talking about matters over which I have no control, as was explained by Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, in his speech replying to Mr. Cahill. As to the moving of terminals, this is a statement that carries on its face utter foolishness. There is simply not one word of truth in it."

Mr. Hanna made a reference to the writ of libel and stated that it would undoubtedly be served shortly.

"If the writ has not already been served on Mr. Cahill," he said, "it must be due to some legal formality of which I have no immediate knowledge."

Mr. Hanna concluded by saying that he would see that Mr. Cahill got every opportunity to prove his statement concerning him.

There are lots of great men until you get close to them.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS MAY BE OVERCOME

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are even just a little hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone losing hearing or who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.

FARMERS' QUANDARY IN BUDGET DEBATE

Rules of House Will Not Permit an Amendment to the Fielding Amendment

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 22.—Members of the Farmers' party are finding themselves in somewhat of a quandary over the budget debate. Hon. W. S. Fielding's amendment to the budget seems to have headed off any amendment by the third group in the House. The ex-Minister of Finance moved an amendment calling for substantial reductions of the customs duties on necessaries of life and implements of production, and then went on to support his position by a rather protectionist speech.

Farmer members, while they certainly do not approve of many of the sentiments expressed by Mr. Fielding, will probably have to support his motion. They would prefer, however, to introduce an amendment to the amendment, or a second amendment, when Mr. Fielding's is rejected, as it will be by the Government majority. They are prevented from doing so, however, by the rules and customs of the House. For the Farmer members the Fielding amendment is much too vague and general in its tone. It is not specific in its demands, as was the resolution passed by the National Liberal convention last August, when western delegates, imbued with western low tariff ideas, were present. The Farmer members probably will not be allowed to move an amendment of their own. There is no precedent in the practice of the Dominion parliament since Confederation to justify the Speaker in accepting an amendment to the amendment, or a second amendment when the Fielding amendment is defeated, nor is there any British parliamentary precedent up to July 1st, 1867. Mays' parliamentary practice cites an instance of the acceptance of second amendment to the motion that the British House go into committee of supply, but this took place in 1879, and cannot govern proceedings in Canada, because the rules of our House of Commons provide that questions of procedure not covered by them shall be decided by the rules and customs of the British House prior to July 1st, 1867.

Some western members who wished to present an amendment to the budget last year found themselves in the same predicament as the Farmer members today.

DEVELOPMENT OF CANADA'S RESOURCES

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Port Arthur, Ont., May 22.—A party of officials of the new British Empire Steel Corporation and subsidiary companies visited Port Arthur and Fort William yesterday, coming up the lakes on the steamer Hamonic. At a dinner given by J. W. Norcross, President of the Canada Steamship Lines, to a number of local business men, statements were made that the new merger would result in considerable revelopment of Canada's natural resources and do much to create additional trade between units of the Empire. Particular benefits to this part of the country were promised.

STOP GAMBLING AT BASEBALL GAMES

Chicago, May 21.—Drastic action to stamp out gambling on baseball games of both the American and National Leagues was decided upon here yesterday at a conference of four baseball chieftains.

According to an announcement made by Ban Johnson, president of the American League, who met with Garry Herrmann, president of the Cincinnati Nationals, President Charles Stoneham and Manager John McGraw, of the New York Nationals, it was decided to employ detective agencies in the campaign.

Mr. Johnson said strenuous efforts would be made to smother the gambling evil.

MEMBERS OF HOUSE AND THE INDEMNITY

Government Supporters and Opposition Members Pressing for Increase to $4,000

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 22—The government is having a rather embarrassing time over the question of increased indemnities, and it is understood that there is an agreement between a large proportion of the members on both the government and opposition sides to press for an increase this year of fifteen hundred dollars. So far has this gone that it is said many members of the government side will not hesitate to go the length of putting the government in an unpleasant position on the budget vote unless their demands are complied with. The recent vote on the appointment of a Minister to Washington, when the government had a majority of only five, is now believed not to have been an accident as was suggested, but was designed to scare the leaders into a realization of their position should they not listen to the demand for an increase.

Meanwhile it may be pointed out that our representatives have done fairly well since this parliament opened. In a little over two years they have drawn about ten thousand dollars and perquisites, although attendance in the House has probably been more irregular than ever before. The argument for the increase to four thousand dollars is the increased cost of living and the many demands made upon the members. There is likely to be a delegation wait upon the Premier urging the increase, and the matter will probably come up in caucus next week.

Meanwhile the position of the government, in view of the absolute refusal to increase gratuities to soldiers, is strongly against any increase. They realized that it would not look well to the people of the country and would help agitators like Flynn with people who are now convinced that, for motives of economy, the Government should not grant his demands. If the increased indemnity is granted, it is as well for the country to realize that it will be due to the fact that their representatives have held a pistol to the head of the government.

KAISER'S FAMOUS YACHTS FOR SALE

Meteor Fourth and Meteor Fifth to be Placed on Auction Block

New York, May 21.—With household furnishings of the Kaiser already on the auction block, the marine part of the former German Emperor's establishment is in the market for a new owner. Realizing, apparently, that the big new moat around Doorn is all right for privacy, but not so good for regattas, he has offered for sale his two famous racing schooners, Meteor Fourth and Meteor Fifth.

Andrew Blom, of Svenborg, Denmark, agent in the transaction, announced in an advertisement today the Kaiser's decision to part with the boats, one of which he used to pilot to victory at Kiel. Mr. Blom stipulated that delivery of the vessels be in "Scandinavian waters."

The Meteor Fourth is an American-built schooner, having ben laid down in New York city in 1902. The yacht is of steel construction and was completed from designs made by Cary Smith. The craft, in addition to its big sail spread, had auxiliary motors, and, advertises Mr. Blom, "it is the fastest vessel afloat of its size."

The yacht is magnificently fitted out. For the craft and attendant privilege of treading the boards once paced by Wilhelmn when he used to steal away to read the Krupps' latest report and "dream of peace," $300,000 is asked. Or, at today's rate of exchange, 15,000,000 marks.

Whether Mr. Blom's information is wrong or the reporters who covered the launching of the Smith designed yacht in New York eighteen years ago, were less accurate than present day reporters, is open to question, but at any rate the racer that slid down the ways of the Townshend-Downey Shipbuilding Yards in 1902 was known as Meteor Third.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, then Miss Alice Roosevelt, was the sponsor. Her father, then President, was among the brilliant assembly that witnessed the event. Prince Henry of Prussia also was there and a detachment of the "Imperial Guard." A newspaper account of the launching told how an officer of the Guard "asked pardon for inadvertently jostling the wife of a local politician."

The Meteor Fifth as set forth in Mr. Blom's advertisement, was "never used." The schooner was constructed in the Germania Yards at Kiel in 1914 and was launched just before her imperial owner turned from yachts to submarines and from regattas to regrets that he should be away cruising when his army invaded Belgium. The racing ship was put together from designs by the Krupps and lavishly decorated throughout.

The price asked for the Meteor Fifth is $350,000, or 17,000,000 German marks.

SUGAR INQUIRY BY BOARD COMMERCE

The First Public Inquiry Held by the Board for Some Time Tuesday Next

Ottawa, May 21.—The sugar inquiry, which will open in Ottawa on Tuesday next, marks the first public inquiry held by the Board of Commerce of Canada for some time past. The Board has invited refiners, wholesalers, retailers and consumers to attend and give evidence, the inquiry being general in its scope. For some time past it is understood that the board has been accumulating information on the marketing of sugar in every section of the Dominion and is in possession of the most exhaustive details on the sugar situation.

The decision of the supreme court in the Board of Commerce stated case probably will come down Tuesday morning. If it affirms the jurisdiction of the Board as a profit fixing tribunal, it is expected that amendments to the combines and fair prices act will be introduced in parliament.

Representations have been made to the Prime Minister by business men, notably the Retail Merchants' Association, that the act should be amended to define more clearly the scope of the Board of Commerce.

It is not unlikely that the Board of Commerce also will submit some amendments to the act for the Government's consideration.

The decision of the supreme court affects the power of parliament to invest the Board of Commerce with powers to fix the limit of profit which may be taken in the general conduct of a business.

The board's function as an investigating body has been carried on steadily while the litigation has been in progress since the middle of March.

Its reports on cost of production of commodities such as bread are regularly issued, and its survey of the grocery and other general businesses has accumulated a comprehensive understanding of wholesale and retail conditions throughout Canada.

In a natural manner it creates a hearty appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood with thousands of red corpuscles, creates strength, and the system is filled with renewed vigor.

Do not let any druggist sell you a substitute for VINOL, as there is nothing like it, so nothing else will do.

Republicans and Democrats Preparing for the Acid Test of Popularity in November Next

The Chief Difference Existing Between the Republican and Democratic Platforms This Year Is Found in Attitude Towards Peace Treaty and League of Nations

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

New York, May 21.—With the great national conventions at which presidential candidates for the November elections will be nominated, but a short time off, political parties in the United States are at present hard at work building platforms which they hope will stand the acid test of the popular vote next fall. Final and definite platforms will be decided upon only at the June conventions in Chicago and San Francisco, but in the meantime all possible planks have been canvassed by state party conventions and the finished structures can easily be visualized.

The chief difference existing between Republican and Democratic platforms this year is found in the attitudes of the parties toward the Peace Treaty and the League of Nations. After twice failing of ratification when a Democratic President presented itself to a Republican Senate, the treaty was projected into the political campaign, and forms the piece de resistance of both party pronouncements. As a party, the Democratis, following President Wilson, are for ratification "without destructive reservations," but there is a rift in the lute, and Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts, Democrat, has openly announced that there exicts a weighty group of younger members of the party who are irreconcilably opposed to the Peace Treaty and League of Nations as they now stand. This split in the party is not expected to make for harmony at the San Francisco convention, and there is even some doubt expressed as to the final wording of the Democratic national plank on the treaty.

Senator Hiram Johnson, Republican, of California, who has been making a grand sweep in the state primaries in the race for the Republican nomination, is one of the "irreconcilable" foes of the treaty. Many both of his own party and on the Democratic side point to his big vote in the primaries as evidence that there is a serious Democratic sentiment against the peace treaty in its present form, and claim that disgruntled Democrats have been invading the Republican primaries and voting for Johnson.

War Records of Parties.

In their preliminary announcements of record and programme both Republican and Democratic parties claim the credit for the part played by the United States in the war, the latter because there was a Democratic President and administration in the saddle at Washington when the United States entered the conflict, and the former because since 1918 the Republicans commanded majorities in both houses of Congress. A Republican Congress passed the "bone dry" prohibition law, so there is evidence of a tendency among Democrats to demand the repeal of the Volstead Act. This wing of the party does not, however, include William Jennings Bryan. The New York Democrats in state convention declared themselves "unalterably" opposed to prohibition by federal amendment. Other political platforms are being prepared and issued by minor parties, including the Socialist, National Labor and prohibition organizations.

A general idea of what the Democratic national platform as adopted at the San Francisco convention next month will be may be gleaned from the platform announced by the Democratic party of the state of New York, as adopted at the state convention in Albany recently.

"We stand," said the pronouncement, in part, "for the immediate ratification of the peace treaty and a League of Nations without destructive reservations, to the end that normal business relations in the country and in the world may be resumed, and future wars prevented. We deplore the refusal of the Republican United States Senate to act on this all important question, and the consequent tremendous loss of national prestige.

"America must not relinquish her world leadership for the solitude of the western hemisphere. She must ever maintain her position as a friend of all peoples struggling for liberty."

Woman Suffrage Question.

On the subject of woman suffrage both parties agree in their platforms. The Democrats at Albany said:

"The complete enfranchisement of women should speedily become a part of the basic law of the land, and women, in the exercise of their political rights, should be given full and equal representation in party affairs and not half-hearted subordinate representation.

Coming to the vexed question of prohibition the New York Democrats voiced this view:

"We are unalterably opposed to prohibition by federal amendment. We believe it to be an unreasonable interference with the rights of the states as guaranteed by the constitution. We feel that the recent enactment was the imposition of the ideas of an active minority against the wishes of the great majority of the American people. We, therefore, declare for its speedy repeal. . . . We favor an amendment to the national constitution whereby al lamendments to the constitution of the United States hereafter shall be ratified by a referendum of the whole people."

The matter of policy with regard to meeting the radical menace was also taken up in these terms:

"Declaring our allegiance to the political faith of our forefathers, we oppose any restrictions upon free assemblage or free speech. We have no quarrel with any citizen, or group of citizens, who by peaceful and lawful means seek changes in the structure of the Government. But we denounce with all the energy we can command any group who, understanding our Government, would by appeal to popular passion or prejudice hold up to criticism or ridicule the constitution of our country, the guarantee of our liberties during all our national life. Democratic party principles are the best safeguard against the Bourbon and the Bolshevik, the reactionary and the 'red.'"

The Republican Platform

The Republican platform, as adopted at the New York state convention February 20, and following the lines of other state pronouncements, sets out the following policy on the Peace Treaty:

"We favor the immediate ratification of the pending treaty of peace, with such distinct reservations and declarations as shall make it clear to all the world that the United States retains its unconditional rights to withdraw from the League of Nations on proper notice; that the United States assumes no obligation, either moral or legal, to send American soldiers or sailors for service abroad unless the Congress, in the exercise of its constitutional power, shall so authorize and direct; that the Monroe Doctrine is protected both in letter and spirit; that no foreign power or council of foreign powers shall have any control whatsoever over the domestic policies of the United States; and that the government and people of the United States shall not be drawn, by the operation of part XIII. of the treaty, the so-called Labor Clauses, into the net spread by international socialism. Article X of the covenant for a League of Nations, in its original form, cannot and should not be ratified by the Senate or accepted by the people of the United States. To do so would not only contract away control by the American people of their own policies and acts, but would certainly embroil the country in an endless succession of wars, great and small.

"We believe that the proposed covenant for a League of Nations is gravely defective in that it attempts to substitute discussion, instead of the rule of the law, for force in the settlement of international differences. We declare it to be the policy of the Republican party, when the treaty of war is ratified, promptly to take steps for the institution of an international high court of justice to hear and decide, in accordance with the principles of law and equity, disputes that are justifiable in character arising between nations, and for an international conference, meeting at stated intervals, to declare and revise the rules of international law and conduct; and to urge upon the civilized nations, as a long step forward in promoting permanent peace, their assent to such a code of law defining the rights and duties of nations."

The platform urged the adoption by all states of the women's suffrage amendment, the establishment of commissions on industrial relations to avert trade disputes; revision of the system of taxation and business regulation so as to promote rather than prevent enterprise and production; inauguration of a national budget; and continuance of the policy of tariff protection.

"We are absolutely opposed," continued the platform, "to government ownership of railroads and the so-called Plumb plan for their management. The transportation of the country should be privately-owned and privately managed under strict government regulation that will insure the lowest possible rates to passengers and shippers, while affording the owners of the railways a fair return on their investment."

Declare for Merchant Marine.

The Republicans declare for "a merchant marine manned by American seamen, owned by private capital and operated by private energy." The federal trade commission, they charged, has prostituted its proper functions, persecuting instead of promoting trade." The platform asks for a small standing army, with a trained citizen reserve, subject to call for service only in case of declaration of war by Congress. The training of citizen soldiers, it holds, should be under national supervision. Enforcement of immigration laws is demanded.

The platform expresses satisfaction with the conduct and achievements of the Republican party during the war. It calls attention to the election of a Republican Congress in 1918 over the President's appeal for the election of men of his own party.

"Still the President persisted in his course," the platform says. "Both in his conduct of the peace negotiations abroad and in his advocacy at home of ratification by the Senate of his own individual work, he has assumed a purely personal and partizan attitude. He has forced the Republican party to take an attitude of sharp opposition to his recommendations in order to protect the independence and to promote the highest interests of the people of the United States, as well as to open the way to the adoption of a real, instead of an illusory, plan for securing the peace of the world.

"We shall appeal to the people to support a policy of liberal and constructive progress both at home and abroad, one which will secure international cooperation for the preventing of war and the reduction of armaments without sacrificing love of country and American ideals to a false and harmful form of internationalism."

The Socialist national convention held in New York this month included in its campaign manifesto demands for recognition of Soviet Russia, the independence of Ireland, and "self-determination for small nationalities whose will is now being defeated by imperialist powers." Other features of the manifesto were:

Failure to Meet Problems.

"Condemnation of the dominant parties for their failure to meet the political, social and economic problems of the day. Arraignment of the administration for the wiping out of civil liberties, a demand that oppression and violence cease and that constitutional rights be restored. A demand for the release of all political prisoners.

"Condemnation of the League of Nations scheme and a demand for a treaty of peace which shall not be a breeder of war and bulwark of oppression. A demand for repeal of the Espionage Act, under which no spy, but hundreds of persons holding opinions, differing from those of the administration at Washington, have been sent to prison. Denunciation of the tyranny of the Post Office Department, with a demand for the ending of practices which have prevailed in that department under Postmaster-General Burleson.

"Demands for immediate and drastic steps to end profiteering. Demands for a drastic revision of taxation in order that the burden may not continue to fall upon the worker and the consumer, but that war debts may be paid out of the war profits of the profiteers. A pronunciamento in regard to 'unearned increment' including the exorbitant profits made in war-time. The usual Socialist demand for the socialization of basic industries."

The National Labor party, despite the opposition of Samuel Gompers and organized labor generally, is in the political arena this year. This party was formed last November and will hold a national convention in July. The planks of its platform include the following:

Nationalization of all essential industries; nationalization of unused land; a League of Workers to "destroy autocracy, militarism and economic imperialism and bring about world-wide disarmament"; repeal of the Espionage Act; equal suffrage and equal pay for men and women in industry; abolition of the injunction power of judges in labor disputes; endorsement of the Plumb plan for tripartite railroad control; steeply graduated income and inheritance taxes; a national budget system; limitation of the power of the Supreme Court to veto legislation; abolition of the United States Senate.

PRISON FOR SLAYING HIS WIFE'S LOVER

Caleb Rankin Sentenced to 8 to 15 Years After Wife Gives Evidence in the Case

Boston, May 21.—Caleb Rankin, who fatally shot Corado Banugli, proprietor of the cafe in the Hotel Blackstone, on March 19, when he found the latter embracing his wife, was given a sentence of from 8 to 13 years in state prison by Judge Cox yesterday. Rankin was indicted for second degree murder but pleaded guilty to manslaughter in court yesterday.

Mrs. Eva Rankin appeared in the superior court and told the story of her clandestine love affair with Banugli. She admitted that the cafe proprietor was attempting to embrace and kiss her when her husband entered with a revolver, and recited, in considerable embarassment at times, the details of her relations with Banugli during nearly two years.

The testimony was for the consideration of the judge in fixing sentence. In noting the provocation to which the husband had been subjected and determining upon as light a penalty as possible, Judge Cox announced: "I am concerned lest the sentence I may impose be taken by the public as a recognition by this court of the unwritten law, so-called. Of course, that is not so."

St. John to Boston Train on C.P.R. Was Wrecked at Rooth Station Today---Nobody Hurt

Three Cars Smashed Up and Passengers and Crew Had Narrow Escape—Train Parted After Locomotive and First Two Cars Had Gone Over Switch

Part of train No. 101 on the Canadian Pacific Railway from St. John to Boston crashed into a way-freight train standing on the siding at Rooth Station, ten miles west of Fredericton Junction, this morning and, although a considerable portion of the equipment of the express train was smashed up, trainmen and passengers escaped with their lives—in fact nobody was even seriously hurt.

After the locomotive and two of the cars had passed over the east switch at Rooth, something happened which caused the switch to open so the balance of the train ran into the siding, where it punched into the locomotive of the way freight, which was standing in the siding ready to continue its eastward journey. The impact knocked the freight locomotive off the rails and the cars of the passenger train were quickly piled up, on the through chair car for Boston on the rear remaining on the rails.

An express car, a smoking car and a second class car of the Boston train were all more or less smashed up, one end and almost half of one side of the express car being torn out. The messenger and others who were in that car were thrown about and bruised. The smoking car was also smashed up but none of the passengers in it were more than scratched and slightly bruised, all escaping in some remarkable manner. The track was torn up for some distance and one of the cars was forced by the impact into the embankment of soft earth alongside the track.

An auxiliary train was sent out from McAdam together with a passenger car and the passengers from the Boston train were then taken as far as McAdam in that car attached to the locomotive and baggage car which had gone safely over the Rooth switch. Meanwhile the wrecking crew were busily engaged in getting a track arranged over which the various through trains could pass and the trains from Montreal and Boston for St. John finally passed Rooth about an hour late, the first train getting by the scene of the wreck about 11.30 o'clock.

What caused the accident is equally as mysterious as in the case of a similar wreck in which the Montreal express figured last February at Fredericton Junction.

DAVID W. BROWN DEAD IN DELEWARE

Railway Engineer Has Many Friends in This City, Where He Resided for Years

St. Stephen, May 22.—A telegram was received by relatives in St. Stephen this morning containing the sad news of the death of David W. Brown, which occurred at his home in Dover, Delaware, after an illness of several months from a shock of paralysis. Mr. Brown for many years was a well known civil engineer in this province. He was the third son of the late Hon. James Brown, of Tower Hill, and a brother of the late John C. and Gilmore Brown. He was sixty-eight years of age. He leaves his widow, who was Miss Alice Burton Abbot, of St. Stephen, and three sons, Lieut.-Col. J. C. Brown, R. E., of the Imperial Army, who arrived from Constantinople at New York today to visit his father, but was too late; John and Daniel, in Delaware, and two daughters, Miss Vera and Carolyn, to mourn his loss. The remains are to be brought to St. Stephen. Probably they will arrive on Tuesday and will be interred in the Rural cemetery.

The deceased was for a number of years a resident of this city and was for a time an engineer on the Valley Railroad. He was also an engineer with the Kent Northern Railway, Dover to Dexter Railway in Maine and others.

EXPECT TO SETTLE THE MADRID STRIKE

Madrid, May 22—A meeting of employers and delegates of the workers, called last night for the purpose of endeavoring to reach a settlement of the strike in Madrid, ended at three o'clock this morning. The employers accepted the demands of the strikers with certain reservations.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Employment Service Bureau.

At their meeting last evening the City Council decided to take no further action in connection with the Employment Service Bureau in this city, as, after getting in touch with members of the local government and others interested, they were no wiser off than before, and it was felt by the meeting last evening that there was absolutely no need of that office any longer in the city. The matter as discussed would cost in all for its maintenance the sum of $4,000. The plan proposed by the Federal Government was that they would pay one-half, the Provincial Government and the city of Fredericton to pay equal shares of the other $2,000. The question, when brought up last evening, did not bring on any discussion, as it was decided upon motion that the Council did not favor the continuation of the offices, and would take no further action in the matter.

THE GRATUITIES TO NAVAL RATINGS

An Order-in-Council to Grant One Month's Pay for Every Year of Service

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Ottawa, May 22.—An order-in-council, dated May 15, provided for the payment of gratuities to naval ratings and warrant officers in the Royal Canadian Navy, who served continuously since July 1, 1914, and who were distinguished in consequence of the reorganization, was tabled in the House of Commons yesterday by Hon. C. C. Ballantyne.

The order provides for the payment of one month's pay and allowances, including marriage allowance, but not allowances in lieu of lodgings, provisions for fuel and light, and subsistence allowance, reckoned as to pay and allowances being drawn on the date of discharge, for each completed year of serivce as warrant officer or rating.

In cases where gratuities are payable for service both as rating and warrant officer, the rating gratuity if not already paid, shall be reckoned on the basis of pay and allowances being drawn on the last day prior to promotion to warrant rank, and the warrant officer gratuity according to pay and allowances at date of discharge.

The gratuities are being paid in view of the fact that ratings and warrant officers are unable through discharge to complete the time necessary for pension and the order sets forth that payment of this gratuity frees the government from any future claim for pension or gratuity, except in the case of disability.

DISCUSS STREET LIGHTING PROBLEM

ers and an electric clock to regulate the system, should the city supply the material; and again, if the company were to supply the material. A discussion also arose out of the question of installing a compressed air fire alarm whistle or fire alarm horn, and proposals were also to be had from the company regarding the cost of installation. Messrs. Winslow and White urged that the city put some definite proposal in writing before further steps were taken, as it would simplify matters a good deal.

When the matter came up for consideration, it was decided, on motion of Ald. Wilkinson, seconded by Ald. Cooper, to ask the company to submit the following proposals in writing:—

1. Cost of putting the distribution line of the city in shape and maintaining it for the period of the proposed contract.
2. Cost of maintaining line after it has been put in shape by the city, on a mileage or other lineal basis.
3. Cost of installing transformers and electric automatic clock for regulating: (a) the city to supply all material, (b) the company to supply all material.
4. Cost of installing a compressed air fire alarm whistle or compressed air fire alarm horn at a place to be designated.

Extensive Forest Fires Have Caused Considerable Damage To Crown and Private Lands

Reported That Small Village Near Edmundston Had Been Wiped Out, But Only Few Barns and House Burned—One Also Reported From Glassville

This morning the Department of Lands and Mines in this city were notified that a serious fire which had resulted in the village of Theriault, Madawaska county, being totally destroyed had broken out in that settlement last evening.

When the report was heard this morning Ranger Octave King, of St. Jacques, was communicated with, and he stated that the fire had been reported to him as having been started by a spark from a passing locomotive, and he indicated that only two houses had been burned. The village is a small settlement and as it is cleared it is thought that the fire was caused by a spark from a passing engine. Later it was learned that the fire was started by youngsters fooling with matches, and four houses and a barn were burned down.

Reports were current this morning that a very serious fire had broken out at Plaster Rock, but these were denied, as no word had yet reached this city concerning them except from a traveler who started the story.

A very serious fire was reported to the Department from Baker Lake, but this is reported to have been on the Quebec side of the line and is now under control by the fire fighters.

Slash Fire at Edmundston.

At Edmundston recently ten acres of slash caught fire near the town reservoir and the Fraser mills were closed down and the crews, numbering about eight hundred men, were put to work and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. At Seigas a slash fire which burned very rapidly was conquered after a stiff fight. The fire broke out in the brush and gave the fighters a hard time.

A serious fire was reported to have broken out at Glassville last evening, but as yet no reports concerning it have been received.

Detailed reports of the forest fire at Hammond River have been received by the Department of Lands and Mines, and it is now stated that the fire, which caused damage to the extent of $12,500, was set by a spark from a passing locomotive. The fire when reported to the Crown Land Department was investigated and crews were immediately sent to combat it. In spite of their efforts, however, the house and barns of one resident of that section, the Anglican church and about 400 acres of cut over forest lands were destroyed.

Fires Along C. P. R. Lines.

Up to date twelve fires have been reported along the C. P. R. line, but these, because of the prompt action of the train crews, have been extinguished before they had done any damage. One of the fires along the line kept a crew of 50 men busy for some time. As far as is yet known by the Department officials no fires have been reported from the central part of the province.

A number of small fires which were extinguished before they could do any damage have been reported due to the carelessness and neglect of fishing and camping parties, and the Department finds that all parties going into the woods must be warned to take care of their fires and see that they are properly extinguished before they leave them.

Archie Alcorne's mill at Blackville was closed on Wednesday and the men, over 100 in number, went to Weaver Siding, where they were engaged in fighting a bad forest fire all day. They finally got it under control before any extensive damage was done.

Numerous smaller fires which have been got under control have been reported from various other parts of Madawaska county, but these smaller ones are yet no giving the Department much worry, as they are being left to the rangers in the various sections to combat.

THE COLLECTION OF LUXURY TAXES

Numerous Suggestions to the Finance Department in Regard to the Regulations

[By Canadian Associated Press.]

Ottawa, May 22.—Regulations for the collection of luxury taxes are now being prepared by the Finance Department and will be made public as soon as possible. The numerous suggestions and difficulties reported to the Department in connection with the tax have given material assistance in connection with the preparation of the regulations. When, in effect, it is felt the regulations will not only remove apparent amonalies but they will tend to make the incidence of the tax more equitable.

A case in point will be that of diamond rings. There is no tax on loose diamonds, and it has been suggested that a purchaser might buy a diamond at one store, have it set at another, and thus escape paying tax on the whole ring. Such an evasion of the tax will be met in the regulations. In all probability they will provide for taxation of the total value of the rig, at the store where it is set, under the clause which imposes a twenty per cent. on "articles, commonly or commercially known as jewelry, whether real or imitation, for personal use or for adornment of the person."

The fifty per cent. duty on gold articles, it is pointed out, does not apply to jewelry for personal use, but to gold adopted for use in the household or office. Persnal jewelry is taxed twenty per cent.

VICTORIA DAY.

Victoria Day always has special significance for all loyal adherents of British institutions because of the fact that it is the anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria of glorious memory. The passing years enlighten and deepen memories of the revered Queen, whose natal day has been dedicated to pleasure and recreation throughout the Empire. The first impression of a day of childish rejoicing grew, during that reign, to a mature appreciation of the far-reaching influence of a life of noble sincerity, and as year followed year each birthday found that elevating and unifying power gaining greater strength and blending imperceptibly with a nation's reverence and devotion. We may measure the power and authority of the lawmaker with the more subtle and vitalizing influence of the writer of a nation's ballads; but there is more potent sovereignty in the life that exemplifies, in quiet sincerity, all the Christian virtues that sustain the foundations of national greatness. It is the unconscious mandate of that exemplary life which impelled the sturdy manhood of Britain, in all parts of the world, to take up arms on behalf of outraged Belgium against the brutal Huns.

When the perspective of history clears we will be able to discern, in the patient devotion of the Queen-mother, the leading influence which kept Britain's peaceful, democratic revolution exempt from the excesses, extravagances and decadent perversions which have characterized and retarded changes in other nations. The pervading influence of that life was an effective and safe defence against the vulgar plausibilities and subtly clever sophistries that would weaken the foundations of national character and undermine the domestic virtues on which alone national greatness can be built. Time is strengthening national affection with sincere reverence, and is also bringing more discerning appreciation of a lasting debt to one whose life was an Empire-wide influence, inculcating, unconsciously, that perfect standard of domestic virtue which sustains the moral fibre of the race. Let the established day be a monument more enduring than bronze or marble, and let the impulse aroused and implanted by the moral leadership of that distinguished reign be strengthened and intensified as time goes on.

AFTER-WAR MORTALITY.

In his alarming declaration made the other day at Des Moines, Henry P. Davison presented the after-war mortality in Austria as far less serious than that in several neighboring countries of which less has hitherto been heard. Poland, to judge by the vigor displayed in the defence against the Bolshevik attack, would hardly be taken for a country in the grip of epidemic sickness, but according to Mr. Davison 250,000 cases of typhus existed in Poland and the territory occupied by Polish troops on March 20. As chairman of the recent convention of Red Cross societies held at Geneva, he had a unique opportunity to obtain health data in respect to the portions of the European war area from which the fewest reports come.

The members of the United States Congress, urged to appropriate half a billion dollars for feeding and sanitation in the worst stricken lands of Europe, may object that bare reports like these supply but scant information upon which to grant for foreign use so large a sum of public money. To this the Red Cross may doubtless rejoin that rough and vague reports alone can be gathered in lands where the health service, as we know it, with minute tab-keeping on sickness, does not exist; and indeed, even if it did, heavy totals, such as the reports now published indicate, would overwhelm the takers of careful health statistics.

As to the chances of conditions being as bad as the assertion, it serves as guidance to know that pestilence follows a ravaging war as consistently as rain the east wind. That it has not swept the war-torn districts of France, Belgium and Italy is an exception, marking the triumph of the best sanitary practice of the day. The great peasant countries of Poland, Galicia, Ukrainia, Slovakia, Hungary and Jugo-Slavia, deprived now for the most part even of the little care the landlord masters used to give to their well-being, obliged to create governments of their own, must naturally suffer the normal sequelæ of war in an abnormal degree.

The convulsion in human affairs started in 1914 continues, and the last victim of the war declarations of that fateful August week is not dead, nor sick, nor hungry, nor wounded, yet Safe to say, he will die of a sickness that feeds upon the exhausted victims of famine, filth, exposure and the other hardships prevalent in the wake of active warfare. Before the war counts this last victim the total of those slain outside the battle areas of the armies or within those areas after the end of military action may rival the total of the victims made in the time and place of the fighting.

HAS CAPITAL GONE ON STRIKE?

Toronto Telegram: "When labor "goes on strike everybody knows "about it, but when capital goes on "strike it is not immediately so ap-"parent. Twenty-five billions of "dollars are reported to be loafing "in banks across the line, and a pro-"portionate amount here. Capital "just at present is in hiding, waiting "till the labor question has been "settled.

"People with money to invest natur-"ally hesitate to risk their earnings "in such an uncertain market. In "proportion to the largely increased "deposits in the banks, production has "decreased.

"When prices of labor and raw "materials have been stabilized there "will be an immense increase in pro-"duction.

"When the world decides to put "the same energy into production of "necessities that was exerted in their "destruction, high cost of living "problems will solve themselves."

TO PROVE THE RULE.

Even the most inflexible of rules, even the fixed facts of mathematics, seem to shelter exceptions, of one kind or another. It would seem quite as likely that a clandestine digit could shelter between twice two, and come out with the other four, as that an example of elaboration in military defection in the late war should be offered to history by a Frenchman.

Yet the cable tells us that Jules Reant, a farm laborer, listed as a deserter since the end of August, 1914, was arrested on May 15 at Lille. The correspondent goes on to say that he had been secreted in a farm granary near the village of Auchel, in the Department of Pas de Calais, for five years. Neighbors kept the secret of his hiding place and brought him food. The Germans passed through the place without discovering him; he stayed there in solitude until last July.

The correspondent does not give the circumstances of his arrest. Did he give himself up, or was he recognized and taken after skulking free for five years? Perhaps one need not feel surprise that a French farm hand should desert; even if French, he may have been born with alien traits. Perhaps the real wonder was that there were not more such deserters; only one in all France? What a record!

New York, May 21.—The plan of the Canadian Government for financing the purchase of railroad equipment for the national railway lines was announced in detail here tonight by William A. Read and Company, which firm is financing the loan.

It consists of $15,000,000 fifteen-year 7 per cent. sinking fund equipment trust gold certificates of the Canadian National Railways. The interesting feature of the new offering is that it gives investors an opportunity to purchase a long time security at better than a seven per cent. basis, thus giving them the advantage of rates which have only been available on short term securities with the seven per cent. coupon. The announcement continues:

"It retains the adantages of the serial equipment trust plan by providing semi-annual payments sufficient to retire the entire issue by the maturity date, May 1, 1935. These payments, instead of being used to retire specific maturities, must be used by the trustee to purchase certificates in the open market at or below par, if obtainable.

"The fixed rentals may be increased from time to time to buy certificates at a premium if the railway elects. Each payment is held by the trustee until the next one is due unless absorbed in the meantime by the purchases of the certificates from holders.

"If the semi-annual payment is not used up by the compulsory purchases of the certificates up to par or by the optional purchases at a premium, the payment must be invested in obligations of the Dominion of Canada maturing at or before the maturity date of the certificates. Certificates can only be retired by purchase in the market, and are not callable."

BRITAIN KEEPS CONTROL OF OIL

Excludes Aliens From Empire's Resources, President Reports to Senate

Washington, May 21.—President Wilson today informed the Senate that exclusion of aliens from control of oil resources within the empire, government aid in developing new supplies in other countries and restrictions against disposal of oil stocks now held by British nationals are outstanding features of Great Britain's petroleum policy.

The information, given in the form of a special report from the State Department, was in answer to a Senate resolution asking what disabilities attached to American participation in petroleum resources of the world. The governmental policy of Great Britain, the report added, also contemplated financial and technical aid to pioneer companies.

The Senate resolution, introduced by Senator Gore, Democrat, Oklahoma, requested the President also to say what diplomatic efforts had been made to remove the restrictions upon participation in oil development by Americans elsewhere than in the United States. Representations had been made to Great Britain concerning restrictions upon oil development in the occupied sections of Turkey, the report said, and had been met with assurances that no discrimination against Americans would be allowed. With regard to Mexico, the department quoted the last note of warning, which said that the United States "would not acquiesce" in any procedure resulting in confiscation of American oil holdings.

Observing that all of the regulations in England and her possessions were aimed at restricting oil operations to control of British nationals, the report said "this form would seem to be justified in the viewpoint of international law, however impolitic it might be as regards reciprocity and international comity."

Citing a large number of general and special consular reports, the report said that the British policy appeared to be developing by a process of deterring foreigners from owning or operating oil property in the British Isles, colonies or protectorates by direct participation of the government in financing the larger exploiting companies, of which the Anglo-Persian, having a monopoly of the industry in Persia, was named, and by governmental orders in council preventing British oil companies or individuals from selling their property to foreigners.

French, Japanese and Dutch policy was somewhat the same as that of Great Britain, the report indicated, but its effect was of minor importance.

Never judge the taxes a man pays by the size of the diamond he wears in his shirt front.

"Venice? Venice?" murmured Mr. Brown. Then he turned to his wife:

"Mary, did we go to Venice?"

"Well, we did just stop there," replied Mrs. Brown pompously, "but don't you remember that there was a flood on, so we didn't leave the station?"

"OUR COUNTRY, RIGHT OR WRONG"

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—"Our country, right or wrong," is good ethics, consequently good morals, patriotism and proper sentiment. Your correspondent, who evidently believes that the Decatur motto is bad ethics and that an individual should be governed by his own conscience, should consider how herd animals stand together when attacked; how members of a family rush to the support of one of their kin, whether he is right or wrong. This is a strong, deep-seated instinct.

Standing with one's group whether right or wrong makes for survival; following the individual conscience means dissension and disaster in times of stress. If survival is a proper sentiment, then standing by one's country, whether right or wrong, is good patriotism.

Yours,
PATRIOTISM.

Andover, N. B., May 22, 1920.

DEFINES THOSE ODD WORDS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Some time ago I noticed in your People's Column a list of words submitted by one of your correspondents as compiled from a classic—from, I think, Carlyle's French Revolution.

The meaning of some of these words may be of interest to some of your thinkers:

Ashlar—Hewn stone, rough from the quarry.

Garron—A horse, for all work, impressed in war, war garron.

Epicede—A funeral oration, a death elegy.

Eutheromania—Excessive belief in a remedy.

Dirl—To repeat; drill, thrill (Scottish dialect).

Esurient—Lacking nutrition, hungry.

Fuliginous—Pertaining to chimney sweepers; sooty, smoky.

Gulosity—Pleasures of the gullet; gluttony.

Nenia—A funeral song.

Fanfaronde—Bluster, assumption.

The other words are accessible in most dictionaries excepting "brool." The meaning of this would, I think be indicated by the context, being probably Carlylian, a product of Scottish dialect—as, broo' for broth, brew; implying heat, turmoil—hence, "brool" for brawl.

I am willing to bet a Scotch, Mr. Editor, that Thomas Carlyle of Ecclefechan is the source from whence flowed the thirty words in the list of your correspondent.

Yours,
SANDY.

Fredericton, May 19, 1920.

PASSING THE "BUCK"

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Now that wages and costs are both at high mark, I would appreciate anew the opinions of your readers as regards why the promiscuous and pernicious tipping still persists. It must be that one of two conditions exists; either the tip is necessary to maintain the tipee at a decent standard of living, or it is not necessary. The former case implies that some workers are still underpaid, the latter, that the tip constitutes an unwarranted bonus.

Obviously tipping is retrograding into a thoughtless habit. The acute employer has quickly recognized this fact and has proceeded to reduce wages in direct proportion to the amount of tipping income received by the worker. Thus it comes that we pay not only a maximum price for our haircuts, meals, etc., but in addition contribute generously toward the wages of the workers. Briefly, we are philanthropists without reason and in spite of ourselves.

What are we going to do about it?

Yours,
AS WE SEE IT.

Fredericton, May 19, 1920.

BI-PLURAL TROUSERS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—There was a time when a man could buy two pairs of trousers with one coat and vest, which was the equivalent of buying two suits of clothes. If this could be done today it would decrease the cost of men's apparel say 35 per cent.; in other words, you could almost get the price of two suits of clothes for one, but the consumer today asks for such a thing so seldom that the dealer no longer carries his stock in this way.

As nearly as I can find this is too simple a method of saving to appeal to the Canadian public. What we are out for is immense expenditure and small savings, so I write this with very little hope that it will make a ripple.

Yours,
TOM.

St. Stephen, May 19, 1920.

THE HOME LAUNDERED COLLAR

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Regarding the possibility of reducing the high cost of laundering by converting the stiff collar into a soft one, perhaps you are not aware that the soft collar is built on entirely different lines from his aristocratic brother. You may reduce the stiff collar to a point of extreme comfort, but you cannot give him pride. He will not stay put. Once an aristocrat always an aristocrat. Try to cover him in the disguise of something else and you will find that he rebels.

No, my dear sir, the problem does not lie in that direction. If a poor, simple Chink can launder a collar with a finish good enough for Chesterfield, why cannot some of these Canadian wives do as well? They haven't the time, you say? Are they too lazy and phlegmatic to acquire the knack of doing something worth while.

Get busy, you dames of the afternoon silk stocking parade and do something worth while to help put these profiteering gorillas out. Perhaps then your poor husbands may wear nice clean linen collars and eventually afford a little recreation now and then.

Yours,
VERITAS.

Fredericton, May 25, 1920.

SHINE OUR OWN SHOES

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I suppose others are being startled by the same thing that confronted me when I offered 10 cents after having my shoes polished, and was informed in broken English that "shines" have gone up to 15 cents—15 cents!—for something that required the elbow grease of the type of a man whose labor isn't worth at most over 25 cents an hour; five minutes of his valuable time at the most and about two cents worth of polish, brush and rag.

Certainly we can meet this by buying polish and attending to our own "shines."

Yours,
E. T. C.

The House adjourned at eleven-ten.

SAD STORY SELLS LACE

New York, May 22.—It is a sad, sad story that two little Irish girls of 14 and ten have been telling in several Wall Street offices. Their father had been killed in the war and they had just arrived penniless from Ireland. They brought some "genuine" Irish lace, made by their grandmother. They hated to part with it, but they did—at $1 a yard. Later the purchasers learned the lace was machine made and could be bought for

MISS ZIMMERMAN RESUMES HER STORY

Tells of Her Relations With the Man She Killed—How He Threatened Her

Springfield, Mass., May 21.—After a three days' lapse due to her collapse in the court Friday morning, Miss Jennie Zimmerman, on trial on the charge of murdering her cousin, Dr. Henry Zimmerman, today resumed her testimony, telling of her relations with the doctor, of his repeated borrowing of money from her and of his alleged threats to have her sent to the state hospital for the insane at Northampton, if she persisted in her demands that he marry her. The defendant had not completed her testimony at adjournment this afternoon and will resume the stand tomorrow morning.

Although pale and needing the assistance of the county jail matron at times, Miss Zimmerman was able to give her story without much questioning from her attorney, William G. McKechnie.

The accused girl told in detail of her intimate relations with the physician and of two illegal operations he performed upon her, made necessary, she testified, to cover the consequence of his actions. Her condition the first time was due, she said, to a criminal assault committeed in the doctor's office while under the influence of a drug he had given her when she went to his office for treatment of heart trouble. Upon her insistence that the doctor make her his legal wife, the witness testified that on one occasion he said to her:

"If you don't shut up, I will put you in Northampton with your mother."

Miss Zimmerman testified that at various times she loaned the physician money in amounts as high as $50 after he had pleaded with her that he needed it. This money, she said, was taken from the receipts of her little candy store and eventually resulted in foreclosure proceedings. The total amount loaned to the doctor, Miss Zimmerman said, was between $600 and $700 which the physician was at no time able to return to her.

At the time the physician entered the service, Miss Zimmerman testified, she told him she intended to go overseas as a Red Cross nurse. To this she said the doctor answered, "Only fools would do that; this is a rich man's war." The defendant testified she pleaded with the doctor to marry her before she left for service but each time he reufsed, finally consenting to the marriage after his enlistment had been completed.

Letters from the doctor to Miss Zimmerman while he was in the service were entered as evidence by the defense, the purpose being to show the physician openly asked Miss Zimmerman for money. The tone of the letters, the defense claimed, gradually grew more distant.

The Cross-Examination.

Under cross-examination Miss Zimmeran testified that she feared the doctor was about to kill her during their conversation in Ferry street just before she fired the shots which ended the life of the physician. As the attorney for the defense had outlined in his opening argument, Miss Zimmerman said she shot the doctor in self-protection, fearing that when Dr. Zimmerman placed his hand in his pocket, "he was going to shoot me—I wanted to protect myself, to get away."

The cross-examination was not completed today and will be continued tomorrow morning.

Under the rapid questioning of the district attorney, Miss Zimmerman answered all questions without faltering and retained her composure even better than during the direct examination of her life and relations with Dr. Zimmerman. At the close of the afternoon session, her emotions caused her to weaken slightly, but she left the court room without the assistance of Miss Elizabeth A. Mahoney, the matron, who has been her constant attendant.

In her direct testimony Miss Zimmerman had testified that previous to purchasing the revolver with which she had admitted killing Dr. Zimmerman she had possessed another revolver, which had been left in her home by a roomer. The defendant said she kept this gun for protection. "He (Dr. Zimmerman) had threatened my life," she said, "and I felt that I should keep it for that purpose."

Under further questioning she said she had kept it "partly because I had wanted to kill myself. I didn't care whether I lived or not. I was so despondent, after the way Dr. Zimmerman treated me." Eventually she gave the gun to a Mr. Balkin, upon his request, she said. She denied she had kept the gun for the purpose of killing Dr. Zimmerman.

Asked why she did not complain to the police when she first began to fear her life, Miss Zimmerman replied that she "wanted to give him another chance to make good his promise to marry me. I wanted to feel that he meant what he said when he promised to marry me."

Miss Zimmerman denied District-Attorney Wright's allegation that she intended to kill Dr. Zimmerman on the day he was shot. She declared she had not such intention when she followed the automobile containing Dr. Zimmerman and the Misses Sadie and Evelyn Feldman into Ferry street. She admitted having the revolver with her and had carried it from the time she purchased it because, she said, she was "afraid he would come back and renew his relations with me and I was determined he should not. I was afraid he would kill me—he had said he would and I was afraid."

CANADA NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS MEET

An Organization for Montreal News Service Dealt With at Toronto Meeting

Toronto, May 21.—Daily newspaper publishers to the number of between forty and fifty from every part of the Dominion, from Sydney to Victoria, attended Wednesday the very successfull special general and annual meetings of the Canadian Press, Limited, the co-operative and mutual organization of Canada for the supply of domestic and foreign news services that includes within its organization every daily paper. Problems of internal administration and finance were thoroughly canvassed and satisfactory resolutions were reached.

Proposals for an improved cable service, to be entirely within the control of the Canadian Press, were advocated. The Canadian newspapers as a body, although grateful to the British Government for its offer of financial aid, decided, however, that they could not in self-respect burden the British taxpayer but were prepared, from their own resources, and by continuation of aid received from the Ottawa Government to develop a service of inter-Imperial cable news.

Drectors were elected as follows:

Maritime Division — G. Fred Pearson, Halifax Chronicle, and J. D. Black, Fredericton Gleaner.

Ontario and Quebec — H. Gagnon, Quebec City Le Soleil; C. F. Crandall, Montreal Star; John Scott, Montreal Gazette; E. Norman Smith, Ottawa Journal; C. Stewart Lyon, Toronto Globe; Irving E. Robertson, Toronto Telegram; T. P. Preston, Brantford Expositor, and H. H. Pickett, London Advertiser.

Western Division — E. H. Macklin, Manitoba Free Press; R. L. Richardson, Winnipeg Tribune; Burford Hooke, Regina Leader; J. H. Woods, Calgary Herald, and Griffith Hughes, Victoria Times.

At a subsequent meeting of the board of directors the following officers were elected unanimously; President, E. Norman Smith; first vice-president, H .H. Macklin; second vice-president, G. Fred Pearson.

C. O. Knowles, general manager since the organization of the new association in 1917, resigned to become assistant managing editor of the Toronto Telegram, and J. F. B. Livesay, assistant general manager since 1917, with headquarters in Winnipeg, and acting General Manager since last November, was appointed general manger in his stead.

NEW TOGS DONNED AT 'KISSING POST'

Many Alien Women Start Americanization at Island Dock

New York, May 21—The "kissing post" at Ellis Island has other claims to attention than as a meeting place for the newly arrived immigrants and their friends. Here the immigrant woman is frequently introduced to American "style" for the first time. Her friends look her over anxiously and then from bag or bundle emerge articles of attire which they have brought from New York so that the newly arrived relative may be clothed in what they regard as suitable raiment before the neighbors see her.

Many are the comedies enacted at this point. The other day a sturdy peasant woman, under instructions of the friend who had come to meet her, hurriedly discarded her broad, sensible shoes, while with eager interest the friend brought out a pair of patent leather pumps, high heeled, narrow toed, tottering and ridiculous.

The newly arrived alien thrust her poor feet into these offerings, which were many sizes too small for her.

Then, her free walk replaced by an uncertain, faltering gait, she prepared to totter into the land of liberty.

BELIEVES SUGAR WILL GO HIGHER

British Buyer Thinks America Should Adopt a Policy of Rationing

New York, May 21. — Gilbert W. Fox, New York representative of the British Royal Commission on sugar supply, before sailing for England, said to a representative of the Wall Street Journal:

"America is drawing sugar from all markets of the world. Price is apparently no consideration. Sugar which normally found a market in London is now flowing into New York. You are drawing refined sugar from Calcutta and Hong Kong.

"It is my opinion that sugar prices will go higher. Unless the United States takes some drastic action toward rationing, sugar, within a year, may go to 35 or 40 cents. Canada is now consuming sugar at the rate of two pounds a head a week, while England, rationing, allows only eight ounces a person.

"I have purchased 5,000 tons of sugar, now loading at Philadelphia, for England, which will be sold at 55 shillings per 112 pounds. I could sell this sugar in New York at 130 shillings. Sugar sells at 50 shillings in England to manufacturers, while ordinary consumers pay only about 80 shillings. England would have riots were she to follow America's policy.

"Cuban producers don't want prices to go higher, because already labor is becoming discontented.

"In 1914 Cuban sugar could be purchased under four cents a pound, f. o. b. We are compelled to pay at present between 30 and 40 shilings per cwt. for sugar, compared with nine shillings before the war.

"England's present annual consumption is about 1,200,000 tons, while America used 4,017,000 tons last year and now has a potential consumption, figuring the stimulus given by prohibition, of 5,000,000 tons."

VIGOROUS DRIVE ON DRUG TRAFFIC

Much Illicit Trading Being Done in Opium and Its Derivatives

Ottawa, May 21. — Passage of the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act through parliament marks the beginning of a vigorous campaign in Canada against the illicit trade in opium and its derivatives, cocoaine, morphine, heroin, etc., which form the basis of the drug habit on this continent. While the registered imports in the drugs have fallen off by several hundred per cent. in the last ten months, in which the activities of the Canadian Health Department have rendered the traffic difficult there remains much to be done in the way of restricting illicit traffic, which is said to have centered in Canada for this country and the United States for some years.

Smuggled opium to the value of $100,000 is under seizure in Canada, much of which was intended for United States consumption. The high prices of opium sold to addicts under illicit trade, frequently in adulterated form, makes the value of the quantity under seizure very much higher than this. It is estimated that illicit traders in the drug sometimes make two hundred per cent. profit in their sale to drug addicts here and in the United States.

The rigorous enforcement of the Harrison Opium Act in the United States has driven illicit traders in that country to wholesale smuggling from Canada and Mexico. Quantities of opium have been shipped from the United States to other countries, such as Japan, by companies formed for the purpose. Having been reported to Washington as exported, these shipments are aailable for illicit sale in the United States, after they have been stolen somewhere in Canada, en route to the Orient, and smuggled back across the border.

Many addicts from the United States are coming to Canada in the hope of obtaining drugs which the stringent laws of their country deny to them. In Montreal there are many American addicts, and reports of physicians in Winnipeg show that about eighty per cent. of the addicts there are American citizens.

TWINS BORN; WOMAN KEEPS ON TRAIN TRIP

Going to Brother's Funeral, Refuses to Quit the Car for Hospital

Erie, Penn., May 21. — After giving birth to boy twins on a New York Central passenger train, eastbound, outside of Erie at noon yesterday, Mrs. J. L. Franey, of Nashua, N. H., refused to heed the advice of a physician to leave the train and go to an Erie hospital for care.

Mrs. Franey said her brother, wounded in France with the 2nd Division, died in a Boston hospital and that she was going to get to Nashua to attend the funeral tomorrow morning, "even if it meant my death."

Dr. Mark C. Halpin, of Jersey City, who was a passenger on the train, attended Mrs. Franey and with the aid of other passengers made her as comfortable as possible. The conductor attempted to persuade the woman to be treated at a local hospital and held up his train for several minutes in the hope that she would do so, but after relating her mission she added she could not be deterred in her desire to get to Nashua in time to attend the funeral service.

"It was the greatest and pluckiest stand I ever heard of a woman taking," stated George L. Rogers, a traveling man, who was on the train, alighting at this city. "The twins were born about 10 minutes outside of Erie, but before their birth Mrs. Franey was attended by the physician, who worked like a beaver to make the brave woman comfortable."

The woman informed the physician her husband died in St. Joseph, Mo., some months ago and that yesterday she received word of the death of her brother. The woman's condition was such that the doctor stated he believed she could make the trip without any serious result.

ALL PRISONERS WERE RELEASED

Captured Followers of Carranza are Allowed to Return to Their Homes

Laredo, Texas, May 21.—The Excelsiore, a Mexico City newspaper, says the revolutionary government has liberated all prisoners captured in fighting with troops guarding General Carranza, and permitted them to return to their homes.

Fifteen hundred former Carranza soldiers and men have also been released from Santiago prison and sent to their homes, the paper adds.

General Mandez, commander of the prison, addressed the prisoners, asking them to devote themselves to the patriotic work of helping to restore the country to peace and prosperity.

The revolutionaries, he said, were not disposed to reprisals or revenge and had forgotten all old rancor.

Half of the Price of Shoes To Buyer Held to be Profit

Cost of Manufacturing $8.50 Pair in 1917 Only $3.46, Survey of Economist Shows—Labor's Wage Increase Share Only 15 Cents—Retail Margin Advanced

Washington, May 21.—Charges that more than one-half of the price the consumer pays for shoes in profit is made by W. J. Lauck, former secretary of the war labor board, in a survey of alleged profiteering in the boot and shoe industry. Lauck has been retained as consulting economist for the railroad brotherhoods in their fight for increased wages.

The survey asserts the entire cost of manufacturing shoes for which the consumer paid $8.50 in 1917 was only $3.46, and presents a detailed analysis of the cost and profit in each operation from the unfinished hide down to the product in a merchant's window.

He ridicules the contention that wage increases are responsible for the price advances and declares that of a representative $3.50 increase in prices during the war on a pair of shoes labor received only 15 cents, or less than one-twentieth of the advance.

Retail Margin Third of Price.

"The retailer's margin of profit," Lauck declared, "is by far the largest, absorbing over one-third the price, but it does not show so large an increase as the packers' and tanners' profits. As the larger tanneries are indirectly a part of the varied interests of the packers, it can be said without danger of contradiction that their profiteering is very largely responsible for the high price of shoes.

"The retailer has increased his margin 102 per cent., or $1.82 per pair on the basis of shoes selling for $8.50."

Condemning the shoe trade for ascribing wage advances as the compelling cause for the price increases, Lauck said that in 1914 all the labor costs, from the hide to the finished shoe, absorbed less than one-sixth of the price paid by the consumer, while in 1917 this share of labor had decreased one-ninth of the price. A wage increase of 35 per cent., after 1914, he asserted, was responsible for a direct increase of merely 15 cents in a pair of shoes.

Showing how the cost of a pair of men's shoes increased from $5 to $8.50 Lauck revealed that the cost of hide used in a pair of shoes jumped from $1.03 in 1914 to $1.44 in 1917, or 39.8 per cent.; the packers' margin from 8 cents to 46 cents, or 475 per cent.; tanning material from 20 cents to 22 cents, or 10 per cent.; labor in tanning from 9 cents to 12 cents, or 33 per cent.; factory expense from 8 cents to 11 cents or 37.5 per cent.; administration expense from 2 cents to 4 cents, or 100 per cent.; tanners' profit 19 cents to 33 cents, or 221 per cent.; shoe manufacturing material from 28 cents to 33 cents, or 17 per cent.; labor in shoe manufacturing from 71 cents to 88 cents, or 12 per cent.; overhead from 30 cents to 37 cents, or 22.3 per cent.; manufacturers' profit from 24 cents to 37 cents, or 54.2 per cent.; and retail profit from $1.78 to $3.60, or 102.2 per cent.

"The shoe industry," he said, "is no exception to the general rule that the war made possible higher margins all along the line—that these profits have been absorbing a much larger proportion of the consumer's money than prior to the war, and that this fact has resulted in enormous corporation profits and in exorbitant prices."

Profiteering by Packers.

Citing the increase of 63 per cent. in the price of packers' hides as against 42 per cent. in "country" hides and an advance from 12.9 to 25.7 per cent. on investment in the earnings of the tanners over the pre-war level, Mr. Lauck severely scored the big packers.

"The large packing house interests have completely dominated the hide trade in this country, exacted exorbitant prices for their product, and have extended their influence to the packing industry in such large measure that they are practically in a position to dictate the price of leather," he said. "The price of packer hides, during the war, advanced much more rapidly than country hides, although the prices of the cattle from which the hides were taken remained virtually the same, indicating an exorbitant price charged for packers' hides.

"Wages in the tanning industry were advanced over pre-war values, but total wage payments in the largest tannery in the United States were less than half the proportion they were of profits in 1912, 1913 and 1914."

SIX TESTIFY IN POISONING CASE

Witness Says Mrs. Tomaskiewicz Refused to Have a Doctor Called

Northampton, May 21. — Dist. Atty. Thomas J. Hammond gave his opening address to the jury, and six witnesses for the prosecution were heard today, the second in the trial of Mrs. Anna Tomaskiewcz of South Hadley, charged with the murder of her fourth husband, Andrew Tomaskiewicz, by poisoning. The testimony of the witnesses covered the time just prior to Andrew's death.

The district attorney stated that evidence would be introduced to show that Andrew and Anna became acquainted late in 1917 or early in 1918; that they were married in November, 1918, and that 18 days later Anna took out insurance on her husband's life. On April 14, 1919, Dist. Atty. Hammond said, she increased the insurance, making it the largest amount possible in an industrial policy.

After reviewing the man's illness and his death on Aug. 11, 1919, the attorney said, "Evidence will further show that the defendant's only interest was in the death of her husband. She made frequent calls at the hospital to ascertain whether he was dead and began immediately, on learning of his death, to take steps to secure the life insurance."

The state's evidence will also show, he said, that the autopsy on Tomaskiewicz's organs revealed arsenic and that arsenic was the cause of his death.

Miles Baccus, a neighbor, said that he called at the Tomaskiewicz house three days before Andrew's death and found him ill in bed and asking for a physician. His wife, Baccus said, refused to call a doctor, saying she did not want one around and could not afford it. Baccus said that he communicated with Dr. F. L. Leland, who reported the case to Chief of Police Daniel O'Connell of South Hadley.

Dr. Leland told of finding Andrew in bed, bleeding profusely from the nose and the bed clothes saturated with blood. He said that he then came to the conclusion that the man was suffering from arsenic poisoning. At the doctor's request, the man was removed to Holyoke City hospital. The driver and attendant of the ambulance told of loud words between Andrew and Anna when they called for the sick man.

Dr. E. P. Bagg of the hospital was on the stand when court adjourned for the day. He testifeid that Andrew was in a state of coma on arrival at the institution and that he then diagnosed the case as one of poisoning.

Mrs. Tomaskiewicz showed extreme composure during the proceedings. She did not wince in the least when the district attorney referred to what he called her cold-blooded attitude during the illness and death of her husband.

Vancouver, B. C., May 21.—Daylight saving will be put into effect here at midnight Sunday, according to a decision reached in the City Council last night, and will continue until September 10th.

THE BISSEL

"THE KING OF DISC HARROWS"

We have just received a large shipment of the well known Bissell Disc Harrow and would like to point out to you the distinguishing features which make it the "King of Disc Harrows."

The Beam or Arch is directly over the Gangs, making the BISSELL lighter on the horses necks than any other Out-Throw Harrow on the market.

One gang is set slightly ahead of the other. On this Harrow the gangs do not crowd or bump together.

Has two levers for use on side hills. Gangs work close together in the centre. Hitch is well back. There is no neck weight. The Draught is light.

In all BISSELL Disc Harrows the end thrust is taken by the frame and bearings which makes the draught easy. The gangs are free to cultivate down to the bottom of a furrow or other hollow. The Levers are long, with a good sweep, making it the easiest of Disc Harrows to handle and operate.

The BISSELL is made of the very best of material throughout. We are able to furnish you this Harrow with either 12 or 14 disc; the discs are 16 in. in diameter.

WOODSTOCK RACES TO BE HELD JULY 12

Purses Aggregating $3,000 Will Be Offered—Proposed Carnival Same Date

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Woodstock, N. B., May 22.—The programme arranged for horse races here on July 12-13, for purses aggregating $3,000, is attracting the attention of the prominent horsemen all over the country. At a meeting of the Driving Club on Monday evening it was decided to enlarge the scope of the plans with the addition of many new features. Holding a carnival on the same dates, along the lines of a similar event held some years ago, seemed to meet with the approval of those present. His Worship Mayor Nodden has called a citizens' meeting in the Town Hall on the 26th inst., when the whole matter will be discussed and action taken. A prominent proposed feature will be a programme of water sports, single sculls, and four-oared races, in which Messrs. Hilton and Fred Belyea, and other oarsmen from Carleton, Indiantown and St. John will compete; canoe races by local Indians will be a feature; parades by local organizations will be numerous; the boats on the river will be decorated, and the town will put on a gala appearance.

DALHOUSIE WON THE COLLEGE MEET

Acadia and St. Francis Xavier Failed to Appear—Standing of U. N. B.

Moncton, N. B., May 21.—The Intercollegiate sport meet was pulled off successfully this afternon on the M. A. A. A. grounds, with a small number of spectators present to witness the various events. Lowering skies and a cool, damp breeze prevailed, rain being not far away throughout the afternoon. The majority of the ten events were, however, keenly contested between the representatives of Dalhousie and the University of New Brunswick, which were the only two institutions who sent teams to enter in the competition. For some unknown reason Acadia and St. Francis Xavier, both of whom were expected to send strong teams, did not appear, thus lessening the interest very materially. Dalhousie was represented by seven athletes, and the University of New Brunswick by three. Dalhousie carried off 51 points and U. N. B. 39.

TO TRY WIDOW ON MURDER CHARGE

Massachusetts Woman Accused in Court of Poisoning Her Fourth Husband

Northampton, Mass., May 21.—Mrs. Anna Tomaskiewicz, of South Hadley, will be placed on trial for her life here in the superior court Monday. She is charged with the murder of her husband, Andrew Tomaskiewicz, in South Hadley last August. By the indictment returned on Feb. 24 of this year she is charged with administering poison to her husband, which caised his death.

To this indictment she pleaded not guilty and was held without bail for trial at the special sitting of the criminal court on Monday. Since her arraignment she has been confined at the Hampshire county court on Union street, this city.

According to evidence which has been secured and through statements which Mrs. Tomaskiewicz has made, she has been married four times. She is a native of Galicia, and married her first husband, Ignace Malchek, in that country. He died in the Chicago City Hospital of consumption, according to Mrs. Tomaskiewicz.

Her second husband was Theodore Dalmako, whom she married in Albany, N. Y., May 25, 1917. They moved to Pittsburg and he died within a short time from injuries sustained in a street car accident. He was buried in Pittsfield. The third husband, Peter Belos, was a resident of Holyoke. The couple were married in that city in May, 1918, the ceremony being performed in the Polish church. He died in the Holyoke City Hospital in January, 1919, where, according to Mrs. Tomaskiewiz, he was taken suffering with fits and cramps. He was buried in Holyoke.

She married Andrew Tomaskiewicz in the Polish church in Holyoke on May 4, 1919. He died the following August in the Holyoke City Hospital and was buried in Holyoke. Symptoms at the time of his death indicated poisoning, and an autopsy was held. This it is alleged, disclosed arsenical poisoning. It is understod an attempt will be made to show the deaths of one or more of her other husbands also resulted from poisoning. It is also alleged the motive behind the murder, if such it is, was a life insurance policy of considerable size, which, it is understod, Mrs. Tomaskiewicz took out on her husband.

While living in South Hadley, Mrs. Tomaskiewicz was employed as a scrub-woman in the office of the Lyman mills in Holyoke. She is 38 years old, is 5 feet 2 inches tall, weighs 127 pounds, and has blue eyes. She has three sons by her first husband, all of whom live in Galicia. She has no other near relative in this country. She owns a few hundred dollars equity in a small place in South Hadley. Stapleton & Stapleton, of Holyoke, have been assigned by the court to defend her and the commonwealth will be represented by Dist. Atty. Thomas J. Hammond, of this city, asisted by Thomas R. Hickey, of the firm of Cook & Hickey.

PROHIBITION RUM WAS BURGLARIZED

Pittsburg, Pa., May 21.—Whiskey thieves entered the office of the prohibition agent in charge, James W. Conner, here yesterday, and carried off liquor valued at $500. The thieves used several containers to carry the whiskey from the office room, which is a storage place for evidence gathered by the prohibition agents.

SCORES ALIEN REDS AS HUMAN GARBAGE

Dr. Van Allen, at Boston Banquet, Attacks Move for Irish Independence

Boston, May 20.—The Rev. Dr. William H. van Allen, rector of the Church of the Advent, speaking at the 29th annual banquet of the Daughters of the Revolution at the Copley-Plaza Hotel last night, made a scathing attack on the movement in this country in behalf of Irish independence, and declared that the actions of a certain element in this city had led him "to believe that the name of Boston should be changed to New Dublin."

He asserted that "certain newcomers, under the leadership of an Irishman named DeValera, would dictate to our colonial descendants what they should do in their fathers' house," and asked that "God have mercy on the coward in New England who is afraid to bear testimony of his love for old England."

Denounces "Human Garbage"

In the course of his address Dr. Van Allen also scathingly arraigned the deported alien Reds, whom he characterized as "a pile of human garbage," and referred to the advocates of radicalism remaining in this country as "Russian tramps," and "pinks from Prof. Laski's class at Harvard."

"Whoever tries to justify the revolution of the Reds today knows neither history, logic, religion nor morals," he said. "Let us remember that our revolutionary ancestors revolted against tyranny, and there is no more comparison between them and Bolshevists and Communists than there is between light and dark. I had rather see our country destroyed than have it become another Russia."

Dr. van Allen also assailed the efforts now being made to repeal the prohibition law, declaring "Whoever proposes to nullify the 18th amendment to the constitution is as much an anarchist as he who wages war against the whole of that document."

Mayor Peters, who also spoke, said that the Daughters of the Revolution were keeping alive the spirit of Americanism, as typified by their ancestors, and that there never was greater need for the ideals which the Puritans brought to this country than today. Charles L. Burrill, former state treasurer, and Mrs. Everett Menzies Raynor, of New York, president general of the society, made brief addresses. Mrs. Adeline F. Fitz, a former president-general, presided. Several hundred delegates to the convention of the society, which is being held at the Copley Plaza, and their guests, attended.

Convention Opens

The convention opened its business sessions yesterday morning with invocation by the Rev. William Dewart, pastor of the Old North Church. The delegates saluted the flag and sang "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. Julia M. Rowe, the state regent, delivered an address of welcome, and annual reports were made by the following officers: Mrs. Bevier Smith, recording secretary-general; Mrs. Frank P. Whiting, treasurer-general; Miss Mary A. Todd, registrar-general; Mrs. William L. Cunningham, corresponding secretary-general; Mrs. John F. Berry, historian-general, and Miss Clara J. Coburn, librarian-general.

Mrs. Raynor, president-general, gave a patriotic address in which she paid tribute to the teachers in the public schools, "who have silently, but surely instilled into our boys and girls the principles which gave such a mighty answer when our beloved flag called for volunteers."

"Let us insist, then," she continued, "that our teachers continue to be 100 per cent. American, then we need have no fear of our country's foundations or its institutions. Let us teach the foreigners that this country was bought with a price and was not to be had nor enjoyed for the asking. There must be obligations. This is our country and theirs to enjoy if they will obey its laws. If not, we must show them that this country is for Americans and those who will live up to her high ideals. It is for us to do our part to save our native land from the Red peril. We must educate by example and personal work and our chance lies with the young."

SAYS CHURCHES ARE LIKE SEPULCHRES

Toronto, May 21.—Rev. Dr. G. H. Williams told the Methodist Union of Toronto last night that ten churches in the down town section of Toronto ought to be scrapped, as they stood like sepulchres and were not doing the work at hand. Instead there should be four mission churches, he said, and these should have gymnasiums and moving pictures in them.

RETURN VERDICT OF WILFUL MURDER

Both Badley and his sister were said to have been mentally defective.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

CHAPTER VII.

The Oath of the Gamester.

The attempted abduction, so contestable was it, because it had had no one to commence the execution of it, had excited the anger of some, and the interest of others. That which likewise corroborated this event almost to a certainty, was that the Committee for General Security learned that three weeks or a month before a number of emigrants had entered France from different parts of the frontier. It was evident these people who thus risked their lives did not do so without design, and this design was in all probability to co-operate in carrying off the royal family.

Already upon the proposition of the Conventionalist Asselim, the terrible decree had been promulgated, which condemned to death all emigrants, convicted of having returned to France, all Frenchmen convicted of having intended to emigrate, particularly all convicted of having assisted in their flight, or in their return, either a female or male emigrant; and lastly, all citizens convicted of having afforded shelter to an emigrant. With this dreaded law commenced the "Reign of Terror." All that was wanting was the law for suspected persons. The Chevalier de Maison-Rouge was an enemy far too active and audacious for his return to Paris and his apparition in the Temple, not to call forth the gravest measures. More severe inspections than had previously taken place were made in a number of suspected houses, but with the exception of some female emigrants, who allowed themselves to be taken, and some old men, whose few remaining days they did not trouble themselves to dispute with the executioner, their researches produced no other result.

The sections, as may be imagined, were after this event much occupied for several days, and consequently the secretary of the section Lepelletier one of the most influential in Paris, had little time to think of his unknown fair one. At first, as he had resolved on quitting La Rue Vieille St. Jacques, he had tried to forget her, but, as his friend Louis had observed to him—

Alas! endeavoring to forget
But makes us recollect the more.

Maurice, however, neither said or confessed anything. He buried in his heart all the details of that adventure which he had been able to conceal from the scrutiny of his friend. But he who knew Maurice to be of a joyous and hilarious nature, and now saw him constantly sad and thoughtful, seeking solitude doubted not, to use his own expression, that the rogue Cupid had passed that way.

It is remarkable that, during its eighteen centures of monarchy, France had had few years so mythological as the year of our Lord 1793. In the meantime the chevalier was not taken, and he was no more spoken of. The widowed Queen, cruelly robbed of her child, contented herself by weeping, in company with her sister and daughter. The young dauphin was consigned to the care of "Simon the Shoemaker," this poor little martyr who, in the short space of three years was reunited to his father. There was a moment's calm. The Montagnard volcano rested before devouring the Girondins.

Maurice felt the weight of this calm, as the heaviness of the atmosphere is felt in stormy weather, and not knowing how to disposed of his leisure, abandoned himself entirely to the ardor of a sentiment which, if not actually love itself, bordered closely upon it. He re-read his letter, again kissed his beautiful sapphire ring, and resolved (notwithstanding his oath to make one more attempt, promising himself this should indeed be the last. The young man had first thought he would go to the section of the Jardin des Plantes and there make inquiry from the secretary, his colleague. But the first idea (and we may add, which he still retained) that the beautiful Unknown was mixed up in some political plot, still restrained him, as he thought that any indiscretion on his part might be the means of sending this lovely woman to La Place de la Revolution, and her head to the block, caused his blood to curdle and freeze in his veins. He therefore determined on seeking this adventure alone, and without any further information. His plan, besides, was very simple. The catalogue of names inscribed on each door would certainly afford him some clue and then, by interrogating the porter, he might be able to solve the mystery.

In his capacity of secretary of La Rue Lepelletier, he possessed full and entire right to make all inquiries. Besides, Maurice, ignorant of the name of the Unknown, was able to judge of it by analogy. It was impossible so lovely a creature should not possess a name in harmony with her form, some name appertaining to sylph, fairy, or angel since her arrival on earth must have been hailed as that of a superior and supernatural being. This name would then most infallibly guide him.

Maurice then dresesd himself in a blouse of dark brown cloth, adorned his head with the "bonnet rouge," worn on great occasions, and set out on his voyage of discovery alone. He had in his hand one of those knotted cudgels called "une Constitution," which, wielded by his vigorous hand, was powerful as the club of Hercules, and in his pocket he placed his commission as secretary of the section Lepelletier. These were at once his physical security and his moral guarantee.

He prepared himself to review afresh La Rue St. Victor, La Rue Vielle St. Jacques, reading by light of the declining day all those names (inscribed in a hand more or less practised) upon the panels of every door.

Maurice had reached the hundredth house and consequently read the hundredth list, and nothing had yet occurred to induce him to imagine that he was in the least degree upon the trail of the Unknown, when a good-natured shoemaker, noticing the anxiety and impatience depicted on the young man's countenance, came out with his strap of leather and his punch, and looking at Maurice over his spectacles—

"Do you wish any information respecting the tenants of this house, Citizen?" said he; "if so, I shall be happy to give it to you."

"Thanks Citizen," stammered Maurice; "I am looking for the name of a friend."

"Tell me the name, Citizen; I know everybody in this quarter. Where does this friend live?"

"He lives, I think, in the Old Rue Jacques, but I fear he has removed."

"But how is he named? I must know that."

Maurice taken thus unawares hesitated for a moment, then pronounced the first name that presented itself to his memory.

"Rene," said he.

"And what trade?"

Maurice was surrounded by tanneries.

"A working tanner," said he.

"In that case," said a burgess, who stopt and regarded Maurice with a certain goodnature not totally exempt from distrust, "it is necessary to address yourself to his master."

"That is true," said the door-keeper; "it is quite right, the masters know the name of these workmen; there is the Citizen Dixmer, who is manager of a tannery, he has more than fifty workmen in his yard, he will perhaps tell you. Maurice turned round and saw a burges of commanding figure, with a mild countenance, the richness of whose attire denoted opulence.

"Only as the citizen porter observes, it is necessary I should know the family name."

"Ma foi," said Maurice, growing impatient under this species of interrogation, "the family name? I do not know it."

THE BOSTON WOOL MARKET VERY DULL

Boston, Mass., May 21.—The Commercial Bulletin will say tomorrow:

The wool market has been very dull here so far as private trading is concerned, and prices are difficult to quote because of the lack of business and the uncertainty. Prices decline ten to twenty per cent. on the fine wools offered at the English government auction here. Buying in the west is practically at a standstill.

The reports from the goods markets are anything but encouraging, with cancellations more or less general. The worsted mills have not felt these cancellations so much as the woolen plants.

Ten Years After

Ten years ago the first packages of KING COLE TEA were packed and put on the market. The time that has elapsed since then has been filled with hard work and with many difficult situations to be met and overcome. But withal, it has been a period of unquestionable, steady and persistent progress. KING COLE TEA has never looked back. Every year has brought its increase. Today its sale is ten times greater than the first year's business. This is the public's remarkable tribute to the worth of KING COLE TEA. It speaks for unusual service.

CAIN'S RIVER TO BE PLACED ON MAP AND BOOSTED

Moving Pictures of Fish and Other Game Taken on the Trip

Morris Ackerman, sporting writer and hunting expert, of Cleveland, O., is in the city today, having returned from his trip to Cain's river with W. Harry Allen as guide.

Mr. Ackerman is leaving the city this afternoon for his home in Cleveland, O., and plans on making a trip to Sudbury, Ont., later, where he will have moving pictures taken of the French River country. He is returning to this city in July, when he will take motion pictures of moose and other animals. On June 3rd he is leaving for Grand Falls, where pictures will also be taken.

In describing his experiences to The Gleaner today he stated that, as a result of his trip to Cain's River, New Brunswick would be properly boosted by him in the release of his stories, which would be sent to over 500 different newspapers in the United States and Canada. He could not praise his guide, W. Harry Allen, enough, but would sum up his appreciation of Mr. Allen's services by saying that he had never seen a better cook, guide or all around man.

During the trip J. M. Alexander, camera man of the Department of Trade and Commerce, Ottawa, managed to secure pictures of deer, porcupine, snakes, partridge and other scenes of wild life. Mr. Ackerman himself was snapped while landing an eightpound salmon. He was fishing for trout at the time and had to play the salmon for exactly one hour and fifteen minutes before he could land it.

"No one need ever tell me that black salmon are not good to eat," he said, "as I know different. The flesh is pink and I cannot understand where the name black salmon comes from. The flesh is good eating, and every time I get a chance I will have some." When asked how weather conditions were, he said they could not be better.

Claim That Carranza Took His Own Lite Rather Than Fall Into Hands of Enemy

Doctors Who Performed Autopsy, However, Say He Was Assassinated

TWO BULLETS ENTERED BODY

Gen. Herrero Sends Report of Circumstances to Mexico City.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico City, May 25—President Carranza committed suicide rather than be taken prisoner, according to a telegram given out at the headquarters of General Gonzales.

It purports to have been sent from Cerro Azul, state of Puebla, the morning of Thursday, May 20, by Colonel Herrero who, previous reports have stated, was responsible for Carranza's death.

Colonel Herrero, leader of the revolutionary forces, on whom has been placed the responsibility for the death of Carranza, has telegraphed to army authorities here that the President committed suicide rather than surrender. He has offered to come to Mexico City to prove his assertion.

Autopsy on Carranza's Body.

Vera Cruz, May 25.—Reports of an autopsy performed on the body of President Carranza at Tlaxcalantongo, fail to agree with the claim of Rodolfo Herrero, that the President committed suicide rather than be taken captive, it is asserted in official quarters here.

Surgeons who conducted the autopsy, it is declared, found Carranza had been struck by two rifle bullets, one of which penetrated his breast and the other his abdomen. The bullets entered from in front, and it was the conclusion of those who witnessed the operation that the President had been assassinated, it is said.

Herrero's Report.

The text of Colonel Herrero's report to Mexico City was received here last night. The part relative to the attack on Carranza and the latter's death follows:

"With the object of arresting Carranza, and the principal officials who were with him, I attacked his camp at 3 o'clock in the morning, having eighty men with me. He had reached Tlaxcalantongo, in the district of Huachinango, where there is a pass leading northward to the part of the republic where he had planned to establish his seat of government. The President was under escort of troops commanded by General Murgula.

"When he realized that escape was impossible, Carranza committed suicide by shooting himself in the breast with his pistol, which he always carried. So close was the muzzle of the weapon to his breast that blood was spattered upon it, and the barrel of the pistol still bears blood stains.

"The body was recovered and taken to Villa Juarez. Three of my men were killed and one wounded.

(Sgd) "RODOLFO HERRERO."

Commissioners Satisfied.

Four Commissioners sent into the state of Puebla by Generals Obregon and Gonzales, to investigate the circumstances attending the death of Carranza, have reported that in view of the data they have secured and the manner in which the President was killed, they consider it unnecessary to go to Tlaxcalantongo.

The Remains of the Slain President Of Mexico Interred in the Shadow Of Chapultepec At His Own Desire

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

MEXICO CITY, May 25—In accordance with his oft repeated request, President Carranza, slain last Thursday morning at Tlaxcalantongo, was buried late yesterday afternoon in Dolores Cemetery, where, in the shadow of Chapultepec, the poorest of Mexicans have for many years found their last resting place.

As the funeral cortage left the home of the late chief executive, the extraordinary session of congress was being called to order to choose a President ad interim to hold office until a new President, to be elected September 5, is inaugurated. Adolfo De La Huerta, Governor of the State of Sonora, was named after Congress had been in session an hour and a half.

The body of the slain President arrived in Mexico City at five thirty o'clock yesterday morning and was taken to the family home, being escorted by soldiers and a delegation from the diplomatic corps. Later the body lay in state until the hour of the funeral, thousands passing before the casket to look upon the face of the man who was hurled from power by revolution and whose death occurred under circumstances that await explanation.

Huerta Will Take Oath of Office as the Provisional President of Mexico June 1

Gen. Enriquez Sent With a Strong Column of Troops After Villa —Americans Pleased That Villa May Be Captured— Talk of Fresh Revolutionary Movements

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico City, May 25.—Provisional President Huerta will take the oath of office on June 1, according to present plans.

General Enriquez is leading a strong column of troops into southern Chihuahua, where Francisco Villa, who recently announced his opposition to the new government, is operating.

The government has prohibited the sale of liquors containing more than fourteen per cent. of alcohol.

Juan Sanchez Ascona, in charge of the Foreign Office, has sent a note to all foreign diplomats here explaining the reason for the extraordinary session of congress which named the provisional president. Virtually the only assertion made is the statement that President Carranza had "rebelled against the constitution."

The Interest at Washington.

Washington, May 25.—Official interest in the Mexican situation was intensified yesterday by reports of a widespread reaction resulting from the killing of Venustiano Carranza, the deposed President.

These indications were accompanied by information that the de facto government might have to face almost immediately the problem of reducing Villa, the long time rebel leader, to submission if not more important armed opposition.

Reports received here were to the effect that men prominent in Mexican political affairs are suspected of preparing to take advantage of the indignation caused by Carranza's death to lead an avenging movement, as did Carranza himself when Madero was assassinated in 1913.

General Calles has failed to effect an adjustment between the new government forces and Villa. Ignacio Enrique is said to have left Chihuahua Saturday with a strong force to cooperate with other troops in the pursuit of Villa.

Yesterday Luis N. Marones, a confidential agent sent to the United States by Obregon, called at the White House, to leave for President Wilson, a message signed by Obregon, containing reassuring declarations as to the aims of the revolutionists. He expressed the belief that a strong and unopposed government would be established.

CHINA IS READY TO POLICE RAILWAY

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Pekin, May 25—The Chinese government Saturday sent its long deferred reply to Japan on the subject of Shantung, says a despatch to the London Times.

The reply expresses pleasure that Japan proposes to return Kiao Chau and would withdraw the railway guards, but fails to see the necessity of formal negotiations.

China, the reply states, is ready at any moment to take over the policing of the railway, which responsibility was hers when the railway was a German concession.

DWINDLING SALMON FISHERIES OF B. C.

Catch of Salmon on Fraser River Shows a Great Decrease From Past Years

(By Canadian Associated Press.)

Montreal, May 25.—John McMillan, of the Vassiar Cannery, on the Skeena River, B. C., who is now in Montreal, states that the catch of salmon on the Fraser river has decreased from an annual product of about a million cases, representing from four to eight million dollars, to a product of less than forty thousand cases, representing a few hundred thousand dollars yearly. With the regulations going into effect next June under which unlimited purse seine fishing is to be allowed, Mr. McMillan thinks that there is promise of the total destruction to the salmon fisheries of all the other rivers along the British Columbia coast.

To prevent this a movement, in which the influence of eastern Canada will be enlisted, to bring about an organized effort to save the British Columbia fisheries, and it is pointed out that the matter will require international co-operation and the suggestion is made that some sort of a congress should be convened to which representative men from the United States and Canada should be called.

BITTERNESS AND HATRED FROM WAR

General Odlum of Vancouver Believes There Will Be Another Struggle Soon

Montreal, May 25.—Commenting on a despatch from Quebec, in which he was stated as saying that there would be another world war within the next decade, General Victor Odlum, of Vancouver, interviewed here last night, conveyed the impression that this belief was embodied in a conversation of which it was more the text than the conclusion. He pointed out that the sentiment conveyed in the despatch was intended to give emphasis to a feeling that there was nowadays all the more need for the employment of real Christian efforts towards the removal of the hatreds and bitterness engendered by the war.

The French Tax Bill Dooms Auto as a Luxury

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

PARIS, May 25—Adoption by the Chamber of Deputies of a provision in the tax bill placing levies totalling 951 francs on small cars has doomed automobiles as luxuries, in the opinion of owners of machines in this city.

In addition, owners of machines pay indirect taxes on gasoline, which, even for cars driven on an average of twenty miles per day, amount to 1,000 francs annually.

Taking into consideration the tax on the purchase prices of automobiles, the cost of a car and its operation is double that of ten months ago.

WRECKED HYDRO PICKED UP AT SEA

Nothing Known as to Occupants or What Happened to the Plane

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

New York, May 25.—A hydro air plane marked No. 826, was picked up at sea yesterday off Scotland Lightship by the steam pilot boat New York. The hydro airplane was upside down when it was found and there were no traces of any occupants.

According to one of the pilots of the New York, the plane had evidently been abandoned or had washed out to sea. It was without wings or engines and has evidently been in the water for some time. They expressed the opinion it may have been an amateur experimental plane which had floated away before more than the body had been completed.

Officials here of the navy hydroplane stations said there was no record of a plane bearing the number 826 in any of the stations in the vicinity of New York.

LABOR SHORTAGE THROUGHOUT FRANCE

500,000 Laborers Needed Urgently in Europe at the Present Time

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 25.—Four to five hundred thousand imported laborers are needed urgently in France for the devastated regions, according to the newly created superior council of materials and labor appointed by Jean Ogier, Minister of the liberated regions. It is calculated that France's pre-war forces of 1,100,000 builders has been reduced by heavy war casualties and application of the eight hour law to the equivalent of about 650,000, which is inadequate.

The new commission, which has been functioning unofficially for several weeks, has drawn up a programme to speed work. Reclaimed materials from wreckage will be utilized first and then material capable of being manufactured on the spot where it is needed before bringing in products of other regions or importing them.

The departure of more than 200,000 Germans and the return home of some Chinese laborers have made the shortage of workers more acute. The recent arrival of thousands of Polish laborers brought small relief, and it is considered probable some arrangement will be effected soon by which Germany will send unemployed men to France.

WANT THE BRITISH TO WITHDRAW ARMY

Resolution Says the World of Labor Looks With Horror on Situation in Ireland

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 25.—Resolutions urging the workers of England, Scotland and Wales to exert their political and economic power to the end that their government "withdraw the army of occupation from Ireland and permit its people to peacefully pursue their lives under the form of government which they have lawfully chosen," were adopted at a mass meeting held here last night, under the auspices of the Central Federated Union of New York.

"The world of labor looks with eyes of fixed horror," the resolution stated, "upon the sinister preparations now being made for a supreme massacre in Ireland, as evidenced by the despatch of men, provisions and all the horrible implements of murder from England to that unarmed and helpless country.

"This monstrous crime cannot be consummated unless we become its guilty participants."

Copies of the resolutions will be cabled to representatives of the British labor party and mailed to every international, state and local labor union in the United States and Canada.

This Feeble Aged Woman

Tells How Vinol Builds Up Strength and Vitality For Old People

She says: "I am seventy-three years of age and suffered from a weak, run-down condition, and was so feeble I could hardly get around; my daughter induced me to try VINOL, and it gave me a good appetite, I sleep well, am stronger and healthier in every way, so I can get around and do all my house work."

The reason VINOL is so successful in such cases is because it contains the tissue building and medicinal elements of cods' livers, aided by the blood-making, strength-creating properties of tonic iron, beef peptone and hypophosphites.

Thus in a natural manner it increases the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood with thousands of red corpuscles and imparts strength, health and vitality to every organ, muscle and tissue of the body.

If feeble old peoplpe only realized the good VINOL will do them, our druggists would not be able to supply the demand.

Generally the head of the family foots the bills.

Stanley Elkin Advocates a Strong National Policy for the Dominion

Member for St. John Makes an Impressive Speech in House, Showing That Any Considerable Lowering of Tariff Would be an Injury to Canada---The Grain Growers of the West and Class Legislation Dealt With.

STANLEY E. ELKIN, M. P.

Following is the interesting speech of Stanley E. Elkin, M. P. for St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert, taken from Hansard:

Mr. Speaker, in opening my remarks this evening I desire in the first place to congratulate the Minister of Finance on the very able way in which he presented his Budget Speech yesterday. I think he is to be highly commanded for the frankness with which he placed the country's present position, and particularly the financial situation, before the people. The people for some time have been waiting to know just what the conditions were following this terrible period of five years through which we have just passed. Naturally, with such large expenditures as the Government had to face during those years, it was to be expected that it would take some time to balance the accounts. I am sure that the situation, now that we know the truth, was not so serious as many of us had expected it would be. I think also that the country is to be congratulated on having a Minister of Finance with courage and boldness enough to bring into effect such a budget as was introduced yesterday. It must have taken considerable courage to go from the beaten track of years into practically a new sphere of taxation, but the Minister and his colleagues were convinced, no doubt, that the time had come when the people of Canada should bear the burden imposed by the war and that we should no longer borrow money for the immense revenue we have to raise. In this connection the Minister, I think, has brought down a budget which in every way will make for economy and production. Those who have studied the situation of this country during the last year have realized that if Canada is to take her place in the export markets of the world, if our people are to be prosperous, if posterity is not to be burdened with an enormous debt for years and years to come, then those of us who are directing or helping to direct the policy of the country should immediately get down to business as other countries are doing. Apropos of this, I may quote a little sketch I read the other day:

"In popular parlance, the "comeback" of John Bull & Sons proved something of a boomerang. It was as if John Bull was saying to the world, with the man who was called upon to deny his published obituary notice, 'the report is grossly exaggerated.'

"American manufacturers have quickly realized that an insistence upon discounting our dollar to the limit was in truth the very killing of the goose that laid the golden egg. That is why many of them accepted Canadian funds, banking their balances within the Dominion until the situation clears."

THE DISCOUNT ON THE CANADIAN DOLLAR

I am sure that when our financial friends in the United States have had time to digest the Budget Speech of the Minister of Finance they will realize that so far as gold reserves and general trade are concerned, with the courage of the people of Canada there will be no need further to discount the Canadian dollar.

I am glad to hear the Minister of Finance say that if it is possible the business profits tax will be taken off next year. At the present time that tax seems to be about the only thing in the system of taxation that is vexatious to the people. It cannot be denied that the business profits tax is unfair in many ways. We were the only country that put on a profits tax on business without making it retroactive. Every other country that adopted it permitted a company, when it had lost money in one year, to make up the deficit the next year. That scheme was not adopted here. A careful examination of results will show that a great many concerns did not make money during the war period. Some concerns, particularly those engaged in staple lines, in the early part of 1914 and 1915 incurred losses, and they were not permitted in 1916 and 1917 to make them up; they had to pay the full war profits tax on their business as it stood when the tax was levied. During the year 1917, and until the close of that year, prices of all commodities rose anywhere from 125 per cent. to 250 per cent., and in some cases 300 per cent., and to a large extent the merchant or manufacturer paying his war profits tax was not able to keep up with the increasing cost of articles which he put into his store or his factory. The result is that today a large number of manufacturing houses, wholesale and retail, are borrowing from the banks far more money than they did before. The reason is obvious: a dozen eggs cost today two and three times what they did before, and the same thing applies to all commodities which are in stock. I am glad therefore that the Minister of Finance and his colleagues realize this situation and that we have their assurance that, if possible, the tax may be removed next year.

CANADA MUST CORRECT THE BALANCE OF TRADE

I have been very much interested in the discussion of the budget, so far as the debate has gone. As I listened to the hon. member for Fort William and Rainy River (Mr. Manion), bearing in mind at the same time what I intended to say, I could not help thinking that we seemed to be in the position of two men who had had an enemy in their home town, and returning from a trip abroad expecting that they should have to do battle with this foe, found him dead. For I cannot see that at the present time there is any one in this House on either side, but particularly in the Opposition benches, who is prepared to voice his long-cherished love of free trade. I believed in free trade once myself, but conditions have changed, and I think we are approaching that stage where men should face things as they are. Even the Western free trader of the past does not exist today. We have an immense nation to the south of us, whose manufacturing industries, natural resources, and every phase of commercial life, have been developed to the highest point. This country to the south of us is immensely wealthy. It has been built up under a protectionist policy. How are we going to face competition with these people? The one thing that is bothering us at the present moment is the problem of correcting our balance of trade. There is an indication that the tariff between this country and the United States should be higher and not lower. If we are going to build up a nation within the Empire we must keep out these American goods.

ANY AMERICAN THREATS WILL NOT HARM CANADA

Let me say right here, without attempting to be an alarmist, that I think the people of this country will do well to consider the situation existing between Canada and the United States. We had a sample the other day when Senator Underwood, before a committee of Congress in Washington, uttered what was almost tantamount to a threat when he said that unless certain commodities exported from this country to the United States were made more accessible to those people the United States would shut down on Canada's imports of coal and other things which we take to a large extent from that country. That situation is serious. It is more serious than would appear from casual observation. It is time that the people of Canada were self-sustaining; it is time that we developed our natural resources so that we can be a nation within ourselves and be not dependent on our neighbors to the south for anything but possibly the luxuries which, in time of stress, we could get along without.

I am interested in a comparison which shows the resources and the courage of this country. The revenue of Canada from 1899-1900 to 1918-1919 has increased, in the following way:

	Revenue.
1899-1900	$ 51,000,000
1909-1910	101,000,000
1918-1919	313,000,000

This year we expect to raise, through the resourcefulness of the Canadian people, $720,000,000. Surely this is an indication to the world of the courage and reserve powers of the Canadian people.

SMALL NUMBER CANADIANS BELIEVE IN FREE TRADE

Passing now to the only advocates of free trade that exist in the House at the present moment—because, after listening to the words which have fallen from the Opposition or Liberal benches, there apparently is no one, other than the hon. member for Brome, who is willing to take the responsibility of absolute free trade—we come to the Western Grain Growers, who want to make immediate and sweeping reduction in the tariff, are fond of picturing Canadian manufacturers as a small group of selfish men who support the tariff policy solely in their own interests. These grain growers ask, "why should this privileged class be permitted to levy toll on all other people in the country?" I would like to make reply that the following benefit by a protective tariff just as much as the manufacturers:

1. 600,000 men and women who work in Canadian factories.

2. The wholesalers, retailers, and their employees who distribute the products of Canadian factories.

3. The farmers, who find a market in Canada for 80 per cent. of everything they produce.

4. The railways and steamship companies, and their employees who carry Canadian goods.

5. The bankers, brokers, and commission agents, and their employees who help to finance Canadian industries.

6. The innumerable investors who own stock in Canadian manufacturing concerns but who are in no sense manufacturers.

7. The professional classes, (doctors, lawyers, dentists, teachers, clergymen), insurance agents, the publishers, and all others who make their living directly or indirectly from industrial concerns and the industrial population.

CANADA HAS PROTECTION BECAUSE PEOPLE WANT IT

Canada does not have a protective tariff because a few manufacturers want it, Canada has a protective tariff because the nation wants it. The nation has so expressed itself at the polls time after time under both Conservative and Liberal Governments, during the last forty years. Is the policy of this country to be determined by the majority, or by the farmers and politicians who have little at stake but unwholesome notoriety.

Protection! Could there be any more flagrant abuse of the word than by the farmers themselves. They demanded the Canadian Wheat Board, practically pooled their interests to prevent competition and at a crisis in foodstuffs demanded a price from Canada and the world. What about $3 wheat? Granted it cost more to produce. So do manufactured goods. The farmers knows there is more than a tariff form of protection. Pooling in a world shortage is one other way, and he took it.

In passing I wish to make reference to the fact that we have a member, the hon. member for Assiniboia, (Mr. Gould), who came to the House under what is known as the referendum and recall. I think that form of election to the House of Commons is based on a very dangerous and retrograde principle. Why should a man come to this House elected with the idea of doing what he thinks best for the country all the way down till he reaches his own constituents, to be at the beck and call of five, ten or sixteen men who may constitute the committee which asked him to agree to the referendum and recall? That form of election is a part of the policy of the Farmers' party and it will be put into force if they get into power. It is well that the people of this country should consider that fact very carefully before the next election, for the reason that we cannot expect to have independent thought and action on the part of our law makers if they are to be at the beck and call of a few party politicians at home.

At a time like this when there are already a number of people in Canada out of work, it is the obvious duty of every man who can hand out a job to do so. The man who can but won't is not playing the game. He is not half so bad, however, as the man who deliberately hires workmen in some other country to do a job that could be done just as well by Canadian workmen.

AMALGAMATION OF THE FARMERS OF THE WEST

There is a company operating in the Canadian West which is an amalgamation of farmers. It boasts of 36,000 shareholders, all western farmers. It owns 300 interior elevators, and operates a 2,500,000 bushel terminal elevator at Fort William. It owns a timber limit, runs its own saw-mill to supply its shareholders with lumber, and prints its own journal. It undertakes to purchase for its shareholders on the co-operative plan practically everything that is used on the farm. In all this it is to be commended for the enterprise it is displaying, but it certainly gave Canadian work-people a raw deal when picking out the goods it decided to advertise in its mail order catalogue. The catalogue of the United Grain Growers, Limited, is a well printed book of over one hundred pages covering everything from binder twine to sewing machines. It is barely possible that some of the goods shown there are made in Canada, but if so their origin is carefully concealed; every single article whose origin is made clear by the illustrations in the catalogue is shown to be made in the United States. The ploughs, harrows and cultivators, all come from La Crosse, Wisconsin; the mowers, rakes, tedders, stackers and wrenches came from Peoria, Ill.; the portable elevators and washing machines come from Pontiac, Ill.; the wagons from Nashua, Ind.

Mr. Reid (Mackenzie).—May I ask the hon. member a question?

Stanley E. Elkin Advocates a Strong National Policy For the Dominion

Canadian Grain Growers' Association come from the United States? I don't suppose the hon. member is aware, so I will tell him.

Mr. Deputy Speaker—Order. I must remind the hon. member that what he proposes to do would not be submitting a question.

THE GRAIN GROWERS AND U. S. FACTORIES

Mr. Elkin—I do not know the authority for the statement, but it has been rumored that the Canadian Grain Growers' are interested in some of these factories in the United States I cannot say whether that is the case or not.

The practice of the western farmer, when buying an implement from a Canadian manufacturer, is to ask for credit which may vary from six months to three years according to the kind of implement bought. When he buys through the United Grain Growers Limited, he sends in cash with the order and the United Grain Growers Limited then sends the cash out of the country. This point should be borne carefully in mind when western farmers complain of the high prices they have to pay for Canadian implements as compared with imported implements.

If every shareholder in the United Grain Growers, Limited, is the head of a family and the family purchases its supplies as far as it can from the United Grain Growers, Limited, then that company must do a business comparable to what would be done by a departmental store that enjoyed a monopoly of the retail trade in a city of 125,000. These Grain Growers have it in their power, therefore, to help materially in solving the unemployment problem by handling only Canadian-made goods. But when they deliberately handle nothing but imported goods, it forces one to the conclusion, taking the most charitable view of it, that the troubles of their fellow-Canadians give them no concern. Every dollar they send out of Canada for goods that could just as well be made here represents at least fifty cents taken off our Canadian factory pay-roll to be added to the factory pay-roll of the United States. And these are the people who are insisting that in the redress of grievances they shall have priority.

FARMERS NOT THE ONLY CLASS WITH A GRIEVANCE

The farmers are not the only people in Canada with a grievance. What of the artisan classes temporarily out of employment as the result of the cessation of all war industries? What of the wage-earners and salaried people in general who are struggling with the problem of increased cost of living? What of organized labor with its demand for a shorter working day? Are the grievances of the farmers so pressing that they must be remedied before we deal with the grievances of other classes? Are Canadian farmers, as a class, so badly up against it that returned soldiers and unemployed work people must stand aside until the tariff is adjusted? Have prices of agricultural products been held down to that point where farmers have barely been able to make a living? Have farmers been taxed more heavily than other people? Have they been called to contribute more generously to the Patriotic Fund, the Red Cross, than people living in our towns and cities? Are they struggling under the load of Victory Bonds they are carrying—or income taxes?

It should be the aim of Parliament to remedy every legitimate grievance, giving attention first to those that are most pressing. If the case of the farmers is to be given priority, then let the farmers show some cause more convincing than the loudness of the howl they are putting up. What taxes do they pay to swell the federal revenues other than those levied by means of the tariff? When other people are paying taxes under the tariff, and income and profit taxes besides, how do the farmers justify their demand that they be relieved of taxes altogether? If their grievance is a real one, how do they account for the fact that there is such a brisk demand for western farm land, with advancing prices? If there were a movement away from the land there would be some color to their argument, but the movement is all the other way. The Grain Growers' Guide, in soliciting advertising from manufacturers, represents western farmers as being more prosperous than ever they were before. In justification of that statement, it instances the fact that in one year 17,000 new motor cars were sold to the farmers of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Advocates of free trade or one-sided trade are prone to refer to manufacturers as a "privileged class." They repudiate the idea that the tariff is of any benefit to the farmers; according to them, the "beneficiaries" of the tariff are all to be found among those who dwell in towns and cities. In tariff matters, they claim, the policy of the Government is dictated by our industrial centres, and they issue solemn warning that some day a long suffering public will arise in its might and sweep the pernicious principle of protection into the discard.

As a matter of fact, the long suffering public is made up of those city dwellers who have tolerated a system whereby the farmer has two votes to their one. The farmer always has dominated in Parliament and in our provincial legislatures, a fact which may explain why it is that, in all our plans of taxation, he escapes with an easier load than that which the townsman is called upon to carry. If the farmer persists in an attempt to get from under altogether, and leave the whole load to be carried by the townsman, it is not unlikely that the latter will arise in his might and sweep aside the pernicious principle whereby he has been deprived of his just representation and voting power.

COMPARATIVE TABLES ON REPRESENTATION

The following comparative tables are illuminating. The figures are the official estimates of population given for each constituency after the last redistribution.

Manitoba
Winnipeg Centre	55,903
Winnipeg North	45,682
Winnipeg South	35,525
	140,110

Lisgar	25,978
Macdonald	20,802
Neepawa	23,913
Portage	22,059
Provencher	23,996
	140,119

It will thus be seen that there are three members for 140,000 city people and six members for 140,000 country people. Now let me cite the figures for the Province of Ontario:

Ontario
Parkdale	59,609
Toronto Centre	54,762

Toronto North	51,318
Toronto South	43,956

According to the Ontario figures we find that six city members represent a population greater than the population represented by sixteen rural members.

Now let me take the Province of Quebec:

	487,440

Here, there are 24 members for a population of 487,440, and only 11 members for a population of 490,818. Why should it be a case of one man two votes in the country and one man one vote in the city? Which is the privileged class?

AMERICAN CAPITAL IS BROUGHT TO CANADA

The hon. member from Brome (Mr. McMaster) said this afternoon that protection was an iniquitous form of taxation; that it has not done any good to the country; that we should abolish it as soon as possible, and that if his party came into power he would be prepared to act on that principle. I want to point out as a matter of record that by means of the tariff—I do not say under the tariff, but directly as a result of its having been so effective in this country—over 616 manufacturing concerns in the United States have crossed the border and established branches in Canada. If there had been no tariff against the United States, it would not have been necessary for the manufacturers of that country to come to Canada; for they could have supplied the requirements of our market from the idle capacity of their parent plants. These 616 branch factories employ about 90,000 people in Canada, to whom they pay annually in wages about $90,000,000. If each employee, on an average, has three dependents, it means that over one-quarter of a million people are supported by factories that owe their existence entirely to the tariff. Some are demanding that the tariff wall be broken down, and that Canada commence to work towards the ultimate establishment of free trade with the United States. If these demands are granted, will any more branches of American factories be established in Canada? Will all those which are now here remain?

I would like to place on Hansard a few figures in connection with this migration of American factories to Canada, and in doing so, I shall have regard to the statistics for the years 1905, 1915 and 1917:

1905—
Establishments	15,796
Capital	$846,585,023
Employees on salaries	36,496
Salaries	$ 30,224,086
Employees on wages	356,034
Wages	$134,375,925
Value of products	$718,352,603
1915—
Establishments	21,303
Capital	$1,994,103,272
Employees on salaries	52,683
Salaries	$ 60,308,293
Employees on wages	462,200
Wages	$ 229,456,210
Value of products	$1,407,137,140
1917—
Establishments	34,380
Capital	$2,772,517,620
Employees on salaries	73,598
Salaries	$ 95,983,506
Employees on wages	619,473
Wages	$ 457,245,456
Value of products	$3,015,506,869

These figures must be conclusive evidence that a protective tariff, a protective policy, a policy which protects the infant industry, has been well worth while for Canada.

Having regard to the fact that this Government and possibly some other governments have not been unmindful of the consideration that a moderate protective tariff is an advisable tariff and that they have realized that conditions have so changed from time to time in this country as to warrant a reduction in tariff, I wish to place on Hansard a record of some of the tariff reductions which have been made since 1911. In doing so, I direct attention to the fact that there has been no reduction in the United States tariff since the introduction of the Underwood tariff in 1913. But at present there are pending in the United States a large number of Bills which will change the situation there. The figures are as follows:

Is Canada to be the only free trade country with free trade a misnomer as it is at the present time? Free trade, as we understand it today, or as it might be possible under our Farmer and Liberal friends, would be a one-sided trade.

In view of the demands which western farmers are making that our Government make an immediate and substantial all-round reduction in the customs tariff, it is only proper that we should consider what our Allies are doing!

The importation of manufactured goods into Great Britain is subject to restrictions which constitute a very high protection.

France is not lowering her tariff; on the contrary she is shutting out the goods of other countries by a system of import licenses.

Italy, like Great Britain and France, is restricting imports.

The Premier of South Africa has announced that the tariff of that country, heretofore designed for revenue only, will be increased to protect home industries.

Nothing has been heard to warrant the belief that any lowering of the tariff is even under consideration Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, Japan, Brazil or Portugal.

In the United States the Republican party has now a majority in both the Senate and Congress and it has always supported a high tariff. The National Industrial Conference Board of the United States reported—"That a more highly protective tariff will be advocated . . . is practically certain, and twenty-six Bills now before Congress increasing the tariff.

The farmer, or one-sided trader might well be challenged to point to a single country in the world today which is proposing to lower its tariff at this critical time. And why is this? Because the above-mentioned countries are determined to reconstruct their industries on a peace basis, to manufacture for themselves what they need, and to provide employment for their soldiers and war workers.

CANADA CANNOT IGNORE LESSONS TAUGHT BY WAR

Is Canada to be the only country in the world to throw down its safeguards? Is she going to ignore the great lesson taught by the war, that a nation must maintain within its own boundaries all the elements of self-protection and self-support? Are we to build a nation within the Empire—a Canadian nation, not a dependent; a nation self-sustaining in days of need as well as plenty. Our policy with our immense natural resources and people of initiative should be national, not class.

Referring for a moment to the latest budget brought in by the Finance Minister of Australia, the new tariff, it is said for the first time follows the Canadian precedent in having three distinct schedules of duties—British, preferential, intermediate and general tariff columns. The British preferential rates came imediately into operation in so far as goods and products manufactured in the United Kingdom are concerned.

The Finance Minister of Australia states:

While it is admitted that no parliament can bind the succeeding parliament to any prospective duties, yet the new principle of a "deferred scale of duties" to become operative at fixed dates (mainly on January 21, 1921, and the same date in 1922) has been introduced into the tariff bill. The deferred duty proposals comprise twenty-two items, and their incidence bears chiefly upon iron and steel products, vessels trading in Australian waters, and certain lines of fuse and explosives. The minister explained that the deferred duty principle was to give definite encouragement to investors to establish industries within Australia, and quoted instances of the probable establishment of industrial plants when sufficient protection was to some extent assured.

I might point out a few features as to the Australian tariff. Pig iron was free until the new tariff came in; today the general tariff is forty shillings per ton. Pipes cast and wrought per ton, forty-eight shillings before this tariff came down; the Finance Minister of Australia has raised the duty to eighty shillings. Rails and other items in that category which were thirty-five shillings per ton have been raised to seventy-five shillings, eighty-five shillings and ninety-five shillings. And so on throughout the whole tariff. The Australian Government—and a more or less Labor Government at that—have at last realized that if Australia is to be a big industrial country these new industries must be protected, and they have gone at it in a wholesale way. Further than that, the value for duty is to be taken as the fair market value of the goods in the principal markets of the country whence the same were exported in the usual and ordinary commercial acceptation of the term and free on board at the port of export in such country, with a further addition of ten per cent. on such market value.

CANADIAN FREE TRADE AND TRANSPORTATION

Dealing with free trade as it concerns our transportation problem, transportation was a large issue in the reciprocity campaign of 1911. It is a bigger issue today, because since then Canada has begun the operation of the Canadian National Railways, a great transcontinental system. She has already suent hundreds of millions upon these enterprises, and may have to spend many millions' more. Her only chance to prevent that investment becoming a dead loss is to keep a steady

Troublesome Small Pulleys

Have you trouble getting belts flexible enough for small pulleys, yet strong enough to last?

Goodyear has produced Extra Power Belting—belting flexible enough that it need not be too tight! Gripping enough to prevent slipping at any speed!

For this is 5-point belting.

1. It is extremely strong, because of specially-designed, properly-woven fabric.

2. Yet it is very flexible, for it is not stitched, but is welded together with high-grade rubber, forced through and through the fabric and surrounding every thread. It hugs even small pulleys.

3. It has a friction surface which grips, dry or damp, and needs no dressing.

4. It has a seam sealed tight with high quality rubber.

5. The same rubber which gives Goodyear Extra Power its flexibility, prevents ply separation, even when the edge is worn or torn by shifters or accident.

The list of satisfied users of Goodyear Extra Power Belting on small pulleys is very great—too long to print here. But a few are:

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Ithaca, N. Y., May 25.—Many merchants of this city have joined the price lowering movement, a leading clothier and haberdasher announcing a reduction of twenty five per cent. on his entire stock with the statement that the price of men's and boys' clothing must be lowered and lowered substantially.

Board of Commerce Reference.

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 25. — The supreme court did not render its decision in the Board of Commerce reference when court reassembled this morning after the holiday recess. The Quebec list of cases is being proceeded with and will occupy the court for a week or so. The pending judgment of the supreme court will define the jurisdiction of the board of commerce as a profit fixing tribunal, based on the intra vires of the combines and fair prices act and the board of commerce act, under which the board operates. The supreme court may not give its judgment at the end of the present term, when judgments are usually given altogether.

SWISS INDUSTRIES AT A STANDSTILL

Geneva, May 25.—Switzerland is being buried in a golden avalanche, according to President Sarasin, of the Swiss bank. He says the gold stored in banks has no outlet in Europe, that many industries are at a standstill and the situation is becoming worse. The hotel industry is nearly ruined, Mr. Sarasin declared, largely because the adverse exchange is keeping away tourists.

FOREST FIRES IN MANY DISTRICTS

the superintendent of the Nashwaak Pulp and Paper Company, with a crew of men succeeded in getting it under control. A fire was also reported from the Narrows on the Nepisiguit River, supposedly caused by fishermen.

Word was received this morning of a serious fire at Kilburn Lake on the Shogomoc and a crew under the forest ranger of that section was immediately sent there but no word had been received up to noon as to the extent of the fire.

A fire was also reported by the look-out from the neighborhood of Killarney Lake. This was investigated and was found to have spread from a fire lighted by a man in that section to warm his lunch. It was not very extensive and is under control.

A fire reported from the neighborhood of Geary, Sunbury County, was investigated, a crew of men being sent there and is at present under control.

A serious fire was reported by the look-out from the region of Little River but is now under control. Pasture lands to the extent of ten acres, including a small section of woodland owned by private parties, about a mile to the back of the city were burned over yesterday by a fire supposedly started by flower pickers.

The C. P. R. and all railways under the Commission are patrolling their own lines to minimize the danger from sparks blowing from the locomotives, and the C. N. R., in co-operation with the Forestry Branch of the Department of Lands and Mines, is patrolling its lines.

Regarding the fire reported on Saturday from Plaster Rock it now develops that the Baptist Church and parsonage and the Orange Hall there were burned on the reserve, but the fire was not caused from a forest fire but spread from the sawdust burner at a mill. Fourteen horses are reported to have been burned with the barns of Roy Welch, a farmer residing near Bristol, Carleton, County, whose house and store were also destroyed on the 20th.

FRENCH PRESIDENT PASSES GOOD NIGHT

Is Suffering From Superficial Wounds in Face and Leg From Fall From Train

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Paris, May 25. — President Deschanel, who was injured yesterday morning by a fall from a train near Montargis, spent a good night and his physicians issued a bulletin this morning saying his condtiion was as satisfactory as possible, although rest was necessary.

M. Deschanel did not preside at today's cabinet meeting, as was expected, members of the ministry insisting that he obey his physicians and rest.

After the cabinet session, Jules Steeg, the Minister of the Interior, announced that the President's condition was satisfactory, but that the executive would take a long rest at Rambuoillet. The date of his departure, however, has not yet been fixed, the secretary said.

President Deschanel rose at seven o'clock this morning and ate a hearty breakfast. He declared he felt no ill-effects from his adventure. He insisted that he was sufficiently fit to preside at the cabinet session, but the doctors and the cabinet ministers eventually succeeded in persuading him not to attend the meeting.

The funeral of John A. Edwards, former postmaster of Fredericton and for many years proprietor of the Queen Hotel in this city, took place on Sunday afternoon from the residence of his sister, Mrs. George W. Members of Hiram Lodge, F. & A. M., and the Fredericton Society of St. Andrew were present, while the directors of the Fredericton Park Association, of which the deceased had been a director and at one time the secretary, also attended. Many former employees of the deceased when he was in the hotel business, some of whom had worked with him for a score of years, were present, while the business and professional interests of the city were fittingly represented.

Services at the house were conducted by Rev. J.S. Sutherland, pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, assisted by Rev. G. M. NATURALIZATION ACT AMENDED

Enemy Aliens Who Have Spent Ten Years in Canada May Be Naturalized

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 25.—Notice is given of the introduction of a bill by the Minister of Justice to amend the Naturalization Act, 1919, which will have an important effect on the position of former enemy aliens in Canada. The act now proposed to amend provided that such persons had to be in Canada for ten years after the conclusion of peace before they could be naturalized, no matter how long they may have lived in the country before the war. The proposed amendment provides that the Secretary of State may grant naturalization to any man who has been in Canada for ten years prior to July 7th. The bill was to have come up today, but as the Minister of Justice is absent it will probably be delayed for a day or two.

The Government is understood to have been trying for some time to arrange this change, but as the naturalization act is a meaasure in which the whole British Empire is concerned, permission to make the change had to be secured from other parties to it. After negotiation through the Mother Country this consent has now been obtained.

NAZIMOVA COMING IN "THE BRAT"

Great Screen Production of Maude Fulton's Stage Success Promised at Gaiety

The supreme Nazimova in her latest production, "The Brat," has been booked as the attraction at the Gaiety Theatre as a special attraction for Wednesday and Thursday of this week, May 26th and 27th, and the management promises a rare treat to its patrons. "The Brat" is Nazimova's own screen version of Maude Fulton's highly successful stage play. She collaborated with Charles Bryant in the adaptation of the dramatic vehicle, which was made into scenario form by June Mathis.

In "The Brat" Nazimova is to be seen for the first time in her screen or stage career as an Americal girl. Her great fame hitherto has been derived from her impersonation of foreign types.

As star and dramatist, therefore, she is coming in "The Brat." The story has to do with the vicissitudes and final triumph of "the brat," a nameless waif on the turbulent sea of life in a big city. She loses her "job" in the chorus because she is too shabby to "make a front." Dejected and shelterless, she leaves the theatre, only to be insulted by a masher and then haled to the Night Court on his trumped up charge.

There her fortunes change for the better. A novelist, seeking a "type" for the heroine of his new novel, takes her home and studies her. Their friendship, which is at first casual interest of his part, although it is abject devotion on hers, ripens into a pretty romance, which is said to be unfolded with surprising twists and captivating incidents.

No doubt capacity houses will witness this big production, which has had a wonderful run in all the large centres.

Fredericton Dogs Winners.

At the dog show held by the Ladies Kennel Club, of Montreal, two Fredericton dogs, the collie Hanwell Lucille, owned by G. W. Aiken, of this city, and Mrs. W. W. She also won the special prize, the McKay cup, for the best collie competing from New Brunswick. Mrs. Laskey's Scottish terrier was the reserve winners, bitches, and also won the medal for the second best bitch of any breed in the province of New Brunswick.

VICTORIA DAY WAS QUIETLY OBSERVED

Fishing and Picnic Parties Were the Order of the Day

Yesterday was very quietly observed in this city, there being on excitement of any kind marking the holiday. Fishing parties who were out reported good catches generally, though the water was too high in places for successful fishing. Picnic parties and canoe parties spent the day outside of the city and on the river, which was in splendid condition for paddling.

The Fredericton Golf Club held its fourth Annual opening tea yesterday under most favorable conditions. Mrs. J. D. Palmer, Mrs. R. B. Hanson, Mrs. W. D. Gunter, Mrs. W. S. Thomas, Miss Marion Crocket, Miss Hilda Gregory and Miss Margaret Hall were in charge and to them much of the praise for the auspicious opening of the club is due.

About one hundred guests were present and to get them to the club house large cars were available through the efforts of the transportation committee, which consisted of R. FitzRandolph, J. D. Palmer and W. D. Gunter. They gathered at Parliament square at 2.30 o'clock and were conveyed too the links, leaving there at 6.30 o'clock for home.

The full nine hole course was in play for first time yesterday and many people took advantage of the day to have round. Considering the time of year the professional T. J. Devlin had the course in excellent shape.

A Permanent Union of the Liberals and Conservatives Has Been Effected at Ottawa

The House of Commons Has Been the Scene During the Past Week of a Momentous Political Event—The Question of Leadership Not Yet Decided

Ottawa, May 25.—Barely noticed by the country, almost escaping the consciousness of Parliament itself, the House of Commons has been the scene during the past few days of a momentous political event. It has been the coalition of Liberals and Conservatives, entered into in 1917 for war effort, emerged from the obscurities and uncertainties of the past two years as a single new party with a distinctive political creed.

Situation Improved.

When Parliament met, the situation for Unionism was bad. Its enemies in the country seemed to be multiplying. Its bravest friends began to waver in allegiance. Members, impressed by the restlessness of their constituents, were harboring doubts as to what they should do, and the ministerial ship, without the aid of Sir Robert Borden's hand on the helm, seemed to be heading for the shoals.

With the opening of the session, however, the position improved. The agrarians, who were expected to drive a wedge through the government's Western supporters, showed little or no parliamentary capacity. Mr. King's leadership of the Opposition was commonplace and often mediocre and the Ministry more than held its own in defending its policies and measures.

The result was that possibilities of a Unionist breakup grew progressively more remote. The Unionists, both Liberal and Conservative, began to realize that there could be no choice as between the crude acts and class consciousness of the Agrarians, the sectionalism and organized insincerity of the Opposition, and the record and achievements of the Government, and that, therefore, the perpetuation of the coalition in distinctive party form was the goal toward which they should strive.

New Party Boom.

Thus the project of a new party, so eagerly embraced in early coalition days, but afterwards so often in danger of death, began to take permanent form. There were difficulties and obstacles in the way, bickerings and small doubts and surface dangers. But they were not strong enough to break the links that had been forged in battle, in common patriotism and in association, and this past week, Sir Henry Drayton unveiled the ministry's fiscal policy, displaying adherence to moderate protection, and, as one Liberal Unionist after another stood up in its support, there were few observers who did not realize that Unionism, as a permanent party, with the old N. P. as its fiscal flag, was at last an accomplished fact.

Much, of course, remains to be done. There is ground to be consolidated, organization and platform details to be worked out and a number of other things to be settled that are inseparable from ractical politics. But these, after all, are minor matters. The main objective, the history-making fact that a new political party has appeared upon the political stage, is the thing that counts.

Whether the advent of the new party means the passing of Conservatism, the obliteration of the party of Macdonald and Cartier, remains to be seen. It may be that the name "Conservative" will disappear, but that the constructive spirit and genius which have characterized its history will be largely retained. When the Chamberlain radicals went over to the Conservatives in the eighties, not even the dominant spirit of "fighting Joe" could obliterate the old traditions and in the Unionism which followed, it was the principles of Pitt and Dizraeli that prevailed. And so in a large measure it is likely to be in the new union party of Canada.

Party for Public Service.

Not that the new party is to be a Tory party. It will be anything but that. On the contrary it is likely to be neither reactionary nor radical. It will not cling to the doctrine that to persevere it is necessary to stand still, but neither will it try to uproot old and established institutions under the guise and in the name of reform. It will simply be a party devoted to public service, studying and grappling with problems as they appear, and refusing to divorce itself from realities for the sake of formulæ and creeds.

Meanwhile a number of important questions are awaiting decisions. There is cabinet reorganization—long delayed, three Senate vacancies, a by-election writ to be issued, an appointment of a Minister to Washington, and one or two other matters hardly less important. Finally, there is the question of leadership. Since Sir Robert Borden's return from the South there has been a remarkable lull in gossip about this problem. Whether this means that the Premier has decided to remain at his post, there is no telling. The truth, indeed, would appear to be that Sir Robert is keeping his own counsel, and has not confided his mind to any of his colleagues. A decision of some kind, however, would not injure the beginning of the new party. And the sooner the better.

A STRAIGHTFORWARD SPEECH.

Montreal Gazette: "Free traders, "real and counterfeit—and the latter "far outnumber the former in the "House of Commons—can have de-"rived little comfort from the speech "contributed to the budget debate by "Mr. Stanley Elkin, of St. John. The "making of a protectionist speech by "a manufacturer is not surprising, "but the fact that Mr. Elkin is a "manufacturer is no answer to the "strong argument which he put for-"ward or to the timely and pertinent "statistics with which that argument "was fortified. Newspapers and indi-"viduals addicted to the theory of "free trade are wont to condemn the "protective tariff as a device em-"ployed for the benefit of 'big inter-"ests.' There is more truth in the "contention than those who repeat it "with parrotlike frequency are able "fully to appreciate. A protective "tariff does benefit the big interests, "the biggest interests of all, namely, "those of all the people and of all "industries. 'Canada,' said Mr. Elkin, "'does not have a proctective tariff "because a few manufacturers want "it. Canada has a protective tariff "because the nation wants it. The "nation has so expressed itself at the "polls time after time, under both "Conservative and Liberal govern-"ments, during the last forty years. "The attempt which is made to decry "protection as a policy for manufac-"turers only is a disingenuous one, "used chiefly by those who know bet-"ter, for the purpose of misleading "those who do not. Mr. Elkin re-"minds all these that Canadian fac-"tories provide employment for six "hundred thousand people and sup-"port for their families, and that "other beneficiaries are the whole-"salers, retailers, and their employees "engaged in the distribution of man-"ufactured products; the farmers "who find a market in Canada for "eighty per cent. of their produce; "the transportation companies and "their employees, engaged in the car-"riage of Canadian goods; bankers, "brokers and their employees, en-"gaged in financing Canadian indus-"tries; the large army of non-manu-"facturing people having investments "in Canadian industries, and men and "women of the various professions "who are dependent upon the pres-"ence of an industrial population. The "list might be extended to cover all "classes and all occupations, because "all are dependent upon the national "prosperity which in this country is "founded upon the protective system. "Mr. Elkin was able to quote some "striking figures as establishing the "fact that the protective tariff has "brought hundreds of United States "industries into Canada, enlarging "the field of employment and increas-"ing the wealth of the country. Space "does not permit a recital of all the "points which bristled in this inter-"esting address, but one other must "be mentioned. Canada has invested "hundreds of millions in state-owned "railways. 'Her only chance to pre-"vent that investment becoming a "dead loss is to keep a steady flow "of traffic moving east to west, and "from west to east. If ever it be-"comes diverted to a north and south "direction, her transportation plant "might as well be scrapped.' It should "not be necessary, in view of recent "disclosures in regard to the railway "muddle, to enlarge upon the impor-"tance of this consideration."

THE RESTRAINTS ON CREDIT.

Circumstances readily visible have called forth the renewed efforts of the Federal Reserve Board of the United States to restrict credit. The season has advanced to the point where Western trade will presently begin to require loans for financing the new wheat crop. The congestion of freight transportation has at the same time deprived many inland dealers and manufacturers of the money that they were to receive ere now for goods already manufactured once these were aboard the railroad cars. Finally, in the New York money market, the low prices of old securities and the outpouring by the railroads of unusually remunerative new ones attract and fully consume the funds otherwise available for credit.

The insufficiency of accommodations to legitimate routine borrowers in the United States has already produced noteworthy symptoms. The great clearing-out sales held in the past few days by retail stores in a number of cities must be laid to the need of the storekeepers to realize at from 10 to 30 per cent. discount, rather than prolong their borrowings on terms available to them. The sale of the government's war bonds in increased amounts at diminished prices has for several days pointed equally to the fact that numerous possessors, not true investors, but hard-pressed, borrowing business men, must have funds and find it impracticable to borrow.

The task of the Federal Reserve Board is a difficult one. The Board is endeavoring to reduce the pressure upon credit without rupture to the distended credit structure. It now makes its third attempt within about six months. The other two did no serious harm, unless possibly to stock speculators, and failed likewise to administer any lasting remedy for the situation. The policy of occasional palliative applications of credit restraint is not limited, however, to a third or yet a fourth occasion.

There is evidence that in Canada we are in the second lap of the process of restraint on credit, and the process here will naturally follow that found necessary in the United States. Prudence will be necessary if serious results are not to follow.

ANOTHER METEOR APPEARS.

France is so rich in heroes, heroines and artistic achievement of every order that she need not be perturbed by the sudden appearance of one of the prodigious children whose occasional meteoric passage through the firmament of older and more settled stars leads to a great opening of eyes and mouths while it lasts. France has continued to regain her balance since the war which blew up her material but never shook her spirit. It will take more than a boy-monster from Poland to disturb her composure.

This eight-year-old boy, Samuel Rzeschewski by name, is a frail child with a thoughtful face and a well formed head, not abnormal in size. He stood up the other day at the Pavillon de la Rotonde against twenty venerable men chosen from the best chess players of the Palais Royal Society, and moving quietly among the square of tables beat them all out of their boots, carrying on the whole twenty games at the same time. The defeated chess players included some of the best in France; one, at least, of them could boast that he "drew" with Capablanca, the Pan-American champion. But this child moved quickly from one board to another, delaying but half a minute at the most, and mated them when they least expected it.

Under the circumstances, of course, the only thing to do is to remember that these boy-prodigies are all alike, and some of them get over it. This boy's father is himself a player, and when the child was five years old he taught him the moves. Within a fortnight the boy was beating his father badly; the parent had to take a rook and anotfier piece to stand any chance at all. But this is all traditional; Capablanca acted just like that at the same age. So did other masters of this art; so, in a way did Josef Hofmann, when he first appeared in black velvet and an Eton collar in the golden 'eighties of the nineteenth century. So did Papa Haydn (as we remember the story of the popular picture) when the family found him seated at the piano in his nighty at the age of five or six; he wouldn't stay in bed. Haydn and Hofmann never got over their infantile urge to virtuosity; neither has Capablanca. Possibly this boy will do as well; he, too, is a Pole, and the fact seems to be historic that the Poles can do almost everything; they have maintained a cohesive existence against impossible conditions.

This boy's father says he will take the child to London to complete the conquest of Europe, and that then he "must retire from public life and "begin his education," which has been neglected during the war. This decision shows that the father is a wise man and as brave as a Pole must be. For a schoolroom will be a dull place after the war, or even after the Pavillon de la Rotonde. Yet through that dull avenue even a genius must travel if he would not be left a helpless freak in a world where the balanced mind must rule.

BANK OF MONTREAL.

The half-yearly report of the Bank of Montreal, just made to the shareholders, is instructive and specially interesting at this time. In the transition from war to peace conditions and in meeting the much larger requirements of the industries and commerce of the country, there has been a very marked increase in commercial loans, as well as in the assistance given to cities, towns, municipalities and school districts. There have also been notable increases in all classes of deposits.

As compared with a year ago, there is a marked expansion in all departments, and as a result total assets now stand at $571,150,138 against $489,271,197 a year ago. Of the total assets, liquid assets amount to $302,821,820 against $293,980,708 last year, while total current loans and loans to cities, etc., have gained to $253,637,253 compared with $183,668,838, an increase of approximately $70,000,000. Both classes of deposits have shown steady advances during the year and deposits not bearing interest now stand at $157,790,000 against $124,736,000 a year ago, while deposits bearing interest have now reached a total of $312,317,174, up from $268,167,111. This represents a gain in total deposits for the year of approximately $77,000,000.

The profit and loss account shows a slight gain, as compared with the corresponding period in the previous year. This is probably due to the very much larger business the bank is now handling. Net profits for the six months to April 30th amounted to $1,802,585, as compared with $1,751,237 in the corresponding period last year. After the payment of dividends and making reservation for bank premises and war tax, the balance carried forward totalled $2,090,440, against $1,661,614 at the end of April a year ago.

Throughout the unprecedented conditions of the war period the Bank of Montreal was reported to be following a very conservative policy, in order to prepare for any conditions which might arise during the period of readjustment. The country is now reaping the advantage of this policy, and at the same time the bank is in a position to keep pace with the expanding business of the country.

THE QUEEN'S COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT

Gagetown, May 24.—Of the five civil cases which were before Judge Chandler of the Queen's county term of the Supreme Court at Wickham on Saturday, only one was given a hearing; the others were postponed until June 22.

The case tried involved a charge of malicious prosecution, brought by Frank L. Akerley against Alfred Robertson, the matter arising from a previous court experience. After a short recess, the jury brought a verdict for the defendant and the case was dismissed. Daniel Mullin, K. C., was counsel for the defence.

FLOUR DECLINES

Minneaolis, May 24.—Flour made a further decline in price at the largest Minneapolis mills today, family patent being quoted at $14.75 to $15 a barrel in 98-pound cotton sacks in carload lots. This marked a decline of twenty-five cents a barrel.

Other people must die in order that the undertaker may live.

The Stock Market

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

New York (Wall Street), May 25.—Gains exceeded losses at the opening of today's stock market, but the undertone denoted a continuance of bearish sentiment among professional traders. Oils were the only noteworthy exception, Mexican Petroleum rising 1½ points with a more moderate gain for Pan American. Buying of lower priced rails, attributed to western interests, effected an advance of one point for Rock Island. U. S. Steel made a fractional gain, but most of the seasoned industrials and rails were little changed. Atlantic Gulf, yesterday's strongest feature, forfeited a point at the outset.

The Montreal Market.

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Montreal, May 25.—The local market opened very strong this morning and very soon assumed a broad aspect with the trading divided among a variety of issues. The feature of the trading was Howard Smith, which after two sales at 120 jumped five and one half points to 125½, later gaining another point to 126½. Abitibi was firm at 166½, a quarter point above Saturday's close. Quebec Railway sagged a quarter point to 24¾. Ontario Steel, which has not been active locally of late, advanced a point in the early trading to 67⅛. Other issues were quiet and unchanged.

FROM THE PEOPLE

PROHIBITION AND THE POOR AND SICK

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Sir,—I read with much interest the letter of your correspondent Truth in a recent issue of your valued paper dealing with the N. B. Temperance Alliance Executive's description of their own Provincial Prohibition Act which operates only against the poor.

I felt that I should let the public know of an incident which happened in my own experience. Last winter I had the misfortune to have my wife laid up with a serious illness. I had to employ a trained nurse to attend her. She had a high temperature and required alcohol rubs. The doctor gave me a prescription to get a pint of alcohol, for which I had to pay the prohibition price of $1.80 in addition to the charge for the prescription without which, under the Prohibition Act, I could not lawfully have obtained it.

On a Sunday, the nurse, when preparing to give my wife an alcohol rub, discovered that there was not enough alcohol left for the purpose. I took the bottle to my druggist to have it refilled when he informed me that he could not do so without having another signed prescription from the doctor. I went to the doctor's home and found that he was absent in the country and would not be back for some hours.

I had therefore either to let my wife go without her needed treatment until the doctor's return or to employ another physician to visit her in order to obtain a second prescription for the refilling of the bottle for which I had already paid one prescription.

I may say frankly that I determined to do neither and that I returned to the druggist and prevailed upon him to violate the prohibition law. He told me that he was rendering himself liable to a heavy fine under the Prohibition Act and that I, myself, would be liable to a penalty of $200, but under such circumstances the druggist said he would take his chance, and I took mine, and paid another $1.80 for a second pint.

What would have been the plight of a poor man living in a country district, far removed from a doctor or a prohibition vendor, in such circumstances?

I became a law breaker and a criminal in order to relieve my wife's distress and caused the druggist also to become a law breaker, and although I am not a drinking man and have no use for liquor as a beverage, I determined then and there that no man who was in the last Legislature and allowed such an outrageously unchristian act to be railroaded through the House without a protest would ever receive a vote of mine.

We surely have come upon strange and evil times when the sick and distressed are to be sacrificed to such insane fanaticism and political cowardice as gave us this Provincial Prohibition Act.

Yours,
ONE WHO HAS SUFFERED

St. John, May 22, 1920.

NOW THAT WAR IS OVER

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I would like to ask through the columns of your paper how is it, now the war is over, people travelling to England have to send two dollars and a photo, costing at least twenty-five cents, to Ottawa for a passport? Surely that could be cut out? It has been cut out in England. What do the travelling people think about it?

Yours,
RETURNED SOLDIER.

Fredericton, May 25, 1920.

LEST WE FORGET

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I was asked a few days ago by an interested friend if I saw many memorial tablets or honor rolls to our fallen heroes in the factories, shops, or offices of our well-to-do manufacturers. As I call on a good number of firms every three months in the course of business, I made a special note of the ones I did see. They were indeed few, and far between. Have the honor rolls which were so popular and patriotic in 1916-17 been relegated to the dump heap? Or have they been placed in less conspicuous places? I was told by one of the office staff of a large firm that there was an old honor roll somewhere, but that the names were never altered since it was first printed. He thought it badly needed revising, as quite a number of the names that appeared on that list were now wiped out for ever. I asked him how many remained "over there." He did not know. I dare say if I asked the managing director, or any one of the directors of that firm, they could not tell me, either.

Would it not be a fitting tribute to those brave sons who now sleep in France, to have small memorial tablets erected to their memory in some prominent place by the firms they worked for, and whom they safeguarded in the hour of need? I would like to see the G. W. V. A. interest themselves in this. They probably would be able to inspire the minds of those patriots of means with a little sentiment.

Yours,
AMIENS.

St. John, May 22, 1920.

REINSTATE THE BOYS

To the Editor of The Gleaner.

Sir,—When I remember what the returned soldier did for this country, and look on the cripples who were the victims of the Great War, I wonder why it is that the returned men are not reinstated as they should be, and why there should be any opposition to their having the gratuity. Were they reinstated, and established in business or in homes fully or nearly paid for as they hoped to have been, would it not be a good thing for the country? They had many friends when they were marching away. How many real friends have they now? They can never be repaid for what they did for the country. Is it possible that this country can forget so soon?

Yours,
JUSTICE

St. Stephen, May 22, 1920.

105TH ANNIVERSARY OF SUNDAY SCHOOL

Interesting Services at the Fredericton Methodist Church, Sunday

The 105th anniversary of the Methodist Sunday School was observed with appropriate exercises on Sunday last. In the morning about 100 boys and girls occupied the choir seats, and under direction of Prof. Harrison their singing was most attractive. Little Miss Hickson captivated the large congregation with a sweet solo.

Rev. G. M. Young, the pastor, was the preacher, and just held the undivided attention of the little tots with his illustrated sermon, and promised to give them his text when he finished, not at the beginning as he does for the older people. With his closed hand uplifted, he said there was something in his hand he had never seen and nobody had ever seen; and when he would show it to them nobody would ever again see it. Everybody was nervously waiting until the hand would be opened. It proved to be a nut in its shell, and with a nut cracker he removed the shell and placed the kernel in his daughter's mouth (she happened to be seated near him) and it was gone never to be seen again. A few nuts were scattered among the children with the caution not to crack them in the church. Interesting lessons on industry and work followed. Again he produced an apple, an orange, and banana, and told of the improvement in size and lusciousness of these by man's work grafting and cultivating. The application was brought home to the boys and girls in order that they may be always ready to help their mothers in running on errands and performing work cheerfully. Then the text: John 9, 4.

The Afternoon Programme.

In the afternoon the children had control, and the large school was filled and everybody was delighted with the exercises. The opening address was by the pastor, and Mr. Weddall presided. The programme was as follows:

Chorus—June-time Glory.
Recitation—Eleanor Young.
Solo—Doris Bailey.
Primary Exercise.
Report of officers.
Song—Blue-eyed Violet, 5 girls.
Recitation—Maisie McLean.
Exercise—The Call of the Other Children.
Solo—Verna Hickson.
Offering—Chorus.
Recitation—Vesta Webster.
Song—Merrily Singing, 6 girls.
Recitation—Irene Fitzpatrick.
Solo—Ida Harris.
Chorus—Nature's Lesson.

The report of J. J. Weddall, superintendent of the Methodist Sunday School, for year ending May, 1920, was as follows:

"In reviewing the work of the past year, we recognize the guiding hand of our loving Father in heaven, and rejoice in the fact that we are permitted to close a successful year of our Sunday School history.

"The attendance has been large, the amount of money contributed for missions and school purposes above the average, and the general work of the school encouraging.

"We call attention to the reports of the other officers for details.

"After the lapse of some years, owing to the war, our picnic was held at Marysville, and a most enjoyable time was had. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for one this year to be held on the second Thursday in July.

"The school will be held at the close of the morning service during the summer months.

"While the school has been successful among it many avenues we must always remember that the great work of the Sunday school is the spiritual, the leading of the scholars to Christ.

"In closing we wish to thank the officers and teachers for their hearty co-operation in all matters affecting the welfare of the school.

'Comparisons are invidious, but we wish to take this opportunity of thanking Miss Jennie Torrens, our faithful pianist, for the great service she has rendered the school during the year.'

The reports of C. H. Burtt, secretary, and Robt. Baxter followed, and Geo. S. Clarke submitted his report as librarian, which was in part as follows:

"The number of books in library and circulation about 1,000.

"A good number of those out may never return, as library books do considerable circulating, and often get so far that it is impossible to trace them.

"The average output each Sunday is from 45 to 50 books. This is not as large as it should be, but many scholars having books out are debarred from getting new ones until returned. And then some of our teachers and scholars apparently do not care for Sunday school books."

At the evening service Rev. Mr. Young, pastor, delivered an interesting sermon, his theme being The Child's Relation to the Church. This was treated from different standpoints, showing all children are members of Christ's kingdom and are saved should they die before reaching the age when they understand between right and wrong; then they are capable of being entered as members of the church. Great is the responsibility of parents or guardians who neglect the religious training of their children at this stage in their lives. The Saviour will suffer the children to come to me. The preacher held the interest of the congregation while he dealt with special election, baptismal regeneration and universal salvation of the children.

During the service an appreciated solo was rendered by Miss May Nichols, of Chatham, "Teach Me."

The Policy Behind the Goodyear Cord Tire Built This Better Hose

MORE motorists would not be riding on Goodyear Tires than on any other brand, if Goodyear scientists had been satisfied with orthodox methods of tire building.

Neither would Goodyear Industrial Hose possess the qualities that enable it to give longer, more satisfactory service, if old-fashioned methods had been followed in its construction.

Modern industry's methods were studied exhaustively to ascertain the conditions industrial hose must meet in use. Then new formulae were created, new and more exacting standards set—resulting in a better hose, capable of standing up under the severest service.

The long service given by Goodyear Air Drill and Goodyear Pneumatic Tool Hose in mines, quarries, shipbuilding yards and structural work—where it is dragged over rocks and steel girders, beaten by ore and building materials—is evidence of the thoroughness of construction of all Goodyear Industrial Hose.

The cover on any air drill or pneumatic tool hose is prominently responsible for the life of the hose. The extra-heavy cover of tough, white rubber on Goodyear Air Drill and Goodyear Pneumatic Tool Hose resists wear and greatly prolongs the life of the hose.

Inside this hard-wearing cover is a special, oil-resisting inner tube, and a fabric of such strength that five-ply is found as satisfactory as six or seven-ply of old-style hose.

Records of Goodyear Air Drill Hose giving from 18 months to 2 years' service are in our files. We have similar records of long, satisfactory service and lessened hose costs, due to the use of Goodyear Industrial Hose in other classes of work.

Let a Goodyear man specify the particular kind of Goodyear Industrial Hose that will lessen hose costs in your plant. No obligation. Phone, wire or write the nearest branch.

flow of traffic moving from east to west, and from west to east. If ever it becomes diverted to a north and south direction, her transportation plant might as well be scrapped.

Under reciprocity or free trade that is what would inevitably happen. In fact western farmers are quite frank in the expression of their desire to market their grain in Minneapolis and Chicago, and to buy their requirements in manufactured goods from the Middle and Western States. Their whole effort at present is to encourage the buying of United States goods in preference to Canadian. Inferentially, therefore, their whole effort is to make it difficult or impossible to operate our transcontinental railways at a profit. These railways were built with the money of the people of Canada, in order that there might be opened up for settlement a territory whose population are now enjoying marked prosperity. Without the railways there would have been no West. Without the taxes cheerfully paid year after year by Canadians in the East there would have been no railways. Is the partnership arrangement, that has proven so mutually profitable, now to be terminated simply because of the unwillingness of the West to pay its share of the operating expenses? And must the whole investment be wiped out in consequence?

It is essential the Canadian credit should be maintained at the high standard at which it now is. It may be necessary at some day in the future for public works or for other capital account to borrow money. When Canada goes to her banker, fortunately the Canadian people at the present time, and asks for a loan they will want to know two things: First, what is she going to do with the money she is asking for, and second, what sources of income has she that will justify the belief that she will be able to repay? Canada can hardly borrow money when she has to admit that she is going to give it away, or is going to use it in meeting interest charges on what she already owes. Her chances of success would be better if she could show that she was going to employ it in useful public works, but even then she would have to be in a position to prove that her revenue would be equal to the task of carrying all existing obligations, plus interest and sinking fund on the new loan she was trying to negotiate. Faced with the direct question "What is your estimated revenue for the year ending March, 1921, or 1922, and from what sources?" how would she answer were she at this juncture to enact any measure of free trade? She could show that under her present tariff, with the addition of the special war tariff and taxes, after meeting all claims for drawback, who was abale to meet all her obligations for the year. But what guarantee would there be that she could do as well under free trade? At the very time when she absolutely must maintain her credit, is she deliberately to invite refusal, if need be, by adopting fiscal changes that will make it impossible for her to give any satisfactory assurances as to what her revenues will amount to? If she cannot borrow money for public works, and if, in consequence, there ensues a long period of widespread unemployment, what is the effect going to be on Victory Bonds? With business depressed and people out of work, the bonds will undoubtedly come onto the market in large volume, and that in turn will depreciate their value. Is Canada to be a party to an arrangement that will double-cross her own people who have come so nobly to her assistance in financing the war? I think sometimes governments find it a difficult lesson to learn that future governmental revenues are based entirely on the present development of the nation's resources, and development can only be attained through the attraction of capital into enterprise by the inducement of satisfactory and reasonable returns on the capital invested.

I think it would be advisable for the Minister of Finance, if he can see his way clear, to impose a more moderate rate of income tax next year. It seems to me that the difficulty of collecting the small tax hardly makes it worth while, and the other tax is so heavy as to be almost exorbitant, and at times defeats its purpose.

I am sorry it has been necessary for me to take up so much time this evening, but I felt that, not having declared myself before, I should take a stand before this parliament and before the country and my constituents. It seems to me that this is a time when all members of parliament must shoulder the responsibility which rests upon them. After all the country looks to some extent to its law-makers sitting in this House to lead the way. We have a long journey before us in Canada, but it is a journey on which we can see our way. We have great resources. We have a courageous people. We are not so old but that the courage and faith of our forefathers still remain in us. We are not so old but that we can remember many of the large developments that have taken place in this country. We have before us always the record of the past five years. Surely in Canada we have nothing to be ashamed of. We can look forward with a great deal of confidence to the mastering of the problems that face us financially, and in nation-building; and I do hope that this debate will be characterized by its high national tone.

After all, there is nothing so important at the present time in this country as that Canada shall stand higher than she has ever stood before. There is no real difference between the two sides of this House. The difference is purely imagery, because while we have one side talking protection, the other side is talking partial free trade but means protection. This is a time in our history for us to forget to a large extent out party differences. The Government have many problems to face, and it behooves all of us who are in the fortunate position to represent constituencies in this parliament at this critical time to maintain the general interest, not the interest of a class.

WINNIPEG TO BE A WIRELESS CENTRE

Winnipeg, May 24.—If experiments being conducted by Prof. John Dorsey at the University of Manitoba wireless station prove satisfactory, Winnipeg will become a central station for receiving wireless messages from all over the globe, Mr. Dorsey declared today. A message was recently caught from Mexico City, 2,500 miles away, under unfavorable static conditions, indicates that the experiment will be successful. This is the first time an aerial at Winnipeg has received a message from such a distance. Equipment will be installed immediately which will give the station here a wave length sufficient to receive and send news to any city on the American continent. Prof. Dorsey said: "Within the next few months we hope to be catching messages from England, Australia and South Africa."

CLOSE INSPECTION ON IMMIGRATION

Ottawa, May 22—The recent appointment of a number of extra medical inspectors in connection with immigration into Canada is understood to be consequent on the representations of public health bodies throughout Canada that many imbeciles were being admitted to Canada without proper inspection. The staff of medical immigration inspectors has been more than doubled and every precaution is now being taken to prevent incurable imbeciles from entering the country and becoming a public charge.

Fifty per cent. of the patients in an asylum in British Columbia are said to be recent immigrants. Four of them are said to have been admitted at Atlantic ports after they were refused admittance to the United States. In answer to inquiries on the point, the Dominion Health Department stated that there was no lack of precaution at the present time, and modern scientific tests were being made by competent alienists at port of entry.

PLEA TO ENCOURAGE WEST COAL OUTPUT

Proper Development Would Make Canada Independent in Fuel Supply

Calgary, Alta., May 22.—In answer to an appeal from the Manufacturers' Association of Toronto for assistance in carrying over the present situation caused by the attitude of American coal operators, the conference of the Boards of Trade of Western Canada yesterday morning adopted a resolution, which if acted on, will doubtless increase the coal output of the province to a considerable extent and incidentally demonstrate to Ontario consumers that the products of the west are at their disposal.

Following is the resolution:

"That every effort possible be made to increase the use of Western Canada coal and that this conference favors the investigation of freight rates on coal from Western Canada to the manufacturing centres of Ontario with a view to making Canada independent of any other country in its fuel supply."

It was decided to ask the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways, including the Grand Trunk Pacific, to give up the freight rates for the summer haulage of coal from Western Canada

And further that the coal operators be requested, if they have not already done so, to make special summer prices for the sale of this fuel.

A resolution asking that immediate consideration be given the question of commercial and political union with the British West Indies to the extent of requesting members of the various West India Island Governments to send delegates to Ottawa to consider the subject, was adopted by the delegates to the Boards of Trade Congress, and forwarded to Premier Borden.

Why hens go on a strike!

The feed elements that make whites of eggs are entirely different from those that make yolks. When hens aren't fed both the white and yolk making elements, they can't lay.

Missouri Experiment Station tests prove that 100 lbs. of wheat, corn, oats, barley and kaffir corn make (above bodily maintenance) an average of 224 yolks to 154 whites. Based on data from the same experiments, Purina formulas produce, (above bodily maintenance), as follows:

Purina Scratch Feed	247.49 yolks	142.11 whites
Purina Chicken Chowder	182.05 yolks	282.55 whites
Combined Ration	429.54 yolks	424.66 whites

These Purina feeds not only make a practically equal number of whites and yolks but more of both than ordinary feeds.

Note that Purina Chicken Chowder contains the necessary white-forming elements to balance up the yolk-making grain ration. That's why it makes hens lay so heavily. Instead of the yolks being absorbed by the hen's system, Purina Chicken Chowder makes the whites to complete the eggs and they are laid. Thus we can absolutely guarantee

on Purina Chicken Chowder if fed with Purina Scratch Feed as directed. You take no risk.

The gratifying reception given to Maple Leaf Fabric Tires—the Non-Skids selling at the same price as the Plain Treads—warrants the introduction of Maple Leaf CORDS—tires in which the woven fabric is replaced by layers of strong, supple cords imbedded in rubber. The extra comfort, extra long life and extra economy justify the extra cost at the start.

THE BISSEL

"THE KING OF DISC HARROWS"

We have just received a large shipment of the well known Bissell Disc Harrow and would like to point out to you the distinguishing features which make it the "King of Disc Harrows."

The Beam or Arch is directly over the Gangs, making the BISSELL lighter on the horses necks than any other Out-Throw Harrow on the market.

One gang is set slightly ahead of the other. On this Harrow the gangs do not crowd or bump together.

Has two levers for use on side hills. Gangs work close together in the centre. Hitch is well back. There is no neck weight. The Draught is light.

In all BISSELL Disc Harrows the end thrust is taken by the frame and bearings which makes the draught easy. The gangs are free to cultivate down to the bottom of a furrow or other hollow. The Levers are long, with a good sweep, making it the easiest of Disc Harrows to handle and operate.

The BISSELL is made of the very best of material throughout. We are able to furnish you this Harrow with either 12 or 14 disc; the discs are 16 in. in diameter.

MILE IN 2.24 1-2 AT WOODSTOCK RACES

Oro Fino, 2.03¼, Paraded at Woodstock, Driving Club's 1920 Opening

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Woodstock, N. B., May 24.—The Woodstock Driving Club signalized the opening of the racing season yesterday by some sensational performances which maintained their already bright record as producers of big things.

Old Glory, 2.22¼, an own brother of Millie Irwin, 2.09¾, the trotter that showed so well on the Bay State circuit last season that she is headed for the Grand Circuit this year, was the winner of the feature event of the day and incidentally turned in a heat in 2.24½, which is believed to be the fastest heat ever raced as early in the season as Victoria Day.

Alonzo DeWitt, for many years located at Presque Isle, Me., but this year attracted to Woodstock's parlor track ,drove Old Glory, a big rugged bay trotter by Bingara, but it was not his fault that the time was so unseasonable. That was due to Wellington B. Belyea, the veteran merchant horseman of this town, who set sail with his handsome black trotting mare Rhona Adair in the first heat as if it was midsummer. He was at the quarter in 35 seconds and flashed under the wire for the first half in 1.10½, but the terrific pace so early in the season commenced to show its effect, and not only Old Glory, but Myrtle Rysdyk, a trotter driven by Jimmie Gallagher, also beat her home.

After that racking heat Rhona Adair was not much of a factor in the race, but Togo M., another one of the several new members in Jimmie Gallagher's string and driven by his nephew, Frank McCrea, showed well in the second heat and almost beat out Myrtle Rysdyk, which won that time, while the third heat was marked by a close finish between the two heat winners, Old Glory and Myrtle Rysdyk.

The other races were won in straight heats, Jimmie Gallagher uncorking another promising member of his stable in College Swift, an Admiral Dewey gelding which came down to New Brunswick from Ontario during the winter, while Cassie W., the big bay pacer which raced in sensational fashion on the ice at Hartland during the winter, won the slower pace for Alonzo DeWitt and showed much promise. Robert Hamilton won the green class with Budworth, a chestnut Axworthy gelding.

Oro Fino, 2.03¼, Paraded.

The day's sport was a glowing example of what a healthful public spirit such as exists in this town will do for an organization such as the Woodstock Driving Club. There were no money purses, the horsemen racing for oats donated by the citizens, about 1,000 people attended and the 67th Regiment Band added a great deal to the pleasure of the ocasion by furnishing an excellent musical programme, also giving their services to help the sport along. During the afternoon Oro Fino, 2.03¼, the free-for-all pacer which was recently bought at the Readville sale by a syndicate of local horsemen, was paraded by "Red" Hannifan, a well known Boston reinsman, and made an impressive apearance. The summary:

YORK CO. BASEBALL LEAGUE IS OPENED

City Team Wins a Protested Game from Devon—Imperials Bumped

The York County Baseball League opened yesterday with two games played in the afternoon, one at Marysville and the other at the Trotting Park, Fredericton.

At Marysville the Imperials were easily beaten by the home team, who hammered out a 13 to 1 victory. The game here was played under protest, the Devon team claiming that Fred McLean, who pitched for the city team, was ineligible upon the grounds that he is a professional. No admission fee was charged and upon that ground the city team claimed McLean was eligible to compete.

PLAYED UNDER PROTEST

Devon Objected to Presence of Fred McLean Who Pitched City Team to a 9 to 4 Victory.

In a game played under protest at the Trotting Park yesterday the Fredericton City baseball team defeated Devon by a score of 9 to 4.

The game was played under protest because of the appearance of Fred McLean on the mound for the home team. Umpire Arthur Finnamore, when the Devon team refused to play because they said they were in danger of being suspended from the League which is being run on a strictly amateur basis, stated that because of the fact that no admission was charged to the game, they were in no danger of suspension. Under these conditions the Devon team agreed to play.

In the game which followed the City team, encouraged by the presence of McLean in the box, played a steady game, hitting and fielding well. The Devon team showed strength in the initial stages of the game with the result that the first three innings were over before there was any scoring. In the fourth inning Devon secured one run which the City team scored twice and from that on the game was in the hands of the City team.

The veteran players on the City team proved a surprise to the fans as they played a steady game throughout. Both Ed and Lee King and Mike McDonald showed that they had the come-back stuff in them and their play was up to requirements at all times.

The score:

EASY FOR MARYSVILLE

Imperials of Fredericton Beaten by 13 to 1 Yesterday.

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Marysville, N. B., May 25.—The first game in the baseball league here was played yesterday between the Marysville team and the Imperials of Fredericton. A good sized crowd witnessed the game, many being from Fredericton. Seven innings were played. The batteries: Earl Macpherson and McLean for the locals; Clark and Boyne for the visitors.

Fredericton was first to bat, and scored their only run in the first inning, through errors by Marysville. Clark's work in the box for the visitors was excellent, but he received poor support. In all the Imperials used four pitchers in a vain attempt to win. The work of Macpherson in the box for Marysville was of the gilt-edged quality, while McLean caught in his usual fine style.

The Fredericton boys were outclassed but proved themselves to be good sports and took their defeat in sportsmanlike manner. There is no doubt that, as the season advances, they will give a good account of themselves.

While the score is very much one-sided, there were no glaring errors on either side.

J. Walter Walker acted as umpire in a manner satisfactory to both teams.

The score by innings:		R.	H.	E.
Marysville	005134x	13	19	1
Imperials	1000000	1	4	1

Summary: Bases on balls, off Macpherson 4, off Clark 3. Hit by pitcher, by Clark 1. Struck out, by Macpherson 10, by Clark 6. Hits, off Macpherson 4, off Clark 19. Passed balls, by McLean 1, by Boyne 4. Double plays, Collett to Anderson to Finn; B. Chappell to Lafford to G. Chappell. Time, 2 hours. Umpire, W. Walker.

TO REDUCE WORLD'S LEATHER SHORTAGE

Prince Rupert, B. C., May 24—Large numbers of sea lions on the British Columbia coast which destroy annually vast quantities of food fish may be slaughtered and their hides placed on the market to reduce the world's leather shortage. The proposal, first put forward by Premier Oliver, has the approval of many experienced fishermen.

One Prince Ruppert pioneer declared recently that, with three companions he had killed seven hundred sea-lions on the Queen Charlotte Islands in two days. The sea-lions, it is said, weigh from 2,000 to 2,500 pounds. The hides are nearly an inch in thickness and make a tough and durable rough leather such as used in workmen's gloves and saddles. Fishermen declare that a sea-lion will eat fifty pounds of fish in a day.

WINNIPEG HOTELS MOST PROSPEROUS

Winnipeg, May 24—Absence of receipts from the sale of liquor are proving no detriment to the profits of local hotels, according to F. W. McGill, city hotel inspector, who stated today that last year's profits by hotel keepers were the largest in the history of the city, and that as a result this year will see a great improvement in local hotel service. No hotels have closed their doors during the past year and business at present is proving a record.

Vancouver, B. C., May 24—Muskrat farming is now a promising industry in British Columbia, according to reports reaching here. One of the pioneers in this industry has blocked out a "rat ranch" and is feeding several families of muskrats. He claims that within two years he will be able to get several thousand pelts.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

"What," said the burgess, with a smile, in which Maurice thought he discerned more irony than he wished to appear, "What, not know the surname of your friend?"

"No."

"In that case, it is not probable you will find him," and the burgess gravely bowing to Maurice, walked a short distance and entered a house in the Old Rue Saint Jacques.

"The fact is, that if you do not know his surname," said the porter. . . .

"Well, I do not know it," said Maurice, who would not have been sorry to find some occasion to vent his ill temper, and was at the moment much inclinded to seek a quarrel. "What have you to say to that?"

"Nothing, Citizen, nothing at all, only since you do not know the name of your friend, it is as Citizen Dixmer said, more than probable, you will not find him." And the citizen porter went into his lodge, shrugging his shoulders. Maurice felt a great inclination to thrash this porter, but he was an old man, and his infirmities saved him. Besides, the day was drawing to a close, and he had only a few moments of daylight left. He availed himself of it by returning to the first street, then to the second, examined every door, searched in every nook, looked under every palisade, climbed each wall, threw a glance into the interior of every gateway, looked through the keyholes, knocked at some deserted warehouses without receiving any reply till at length nearly two hours had elapsed in this useless investgiation.

Nine o'clock struck; no more noise was heard, no movement seen in this deserted quarter, whose life seemed to have retired with light of day. Maurice in despair made a retrograde movement, when all at once, at the winding of a narow alley, he discerned a light burning. He imediately ventured into the dark passage, without remarking that at the moment even where he had thrust himself, a curious head, which for the last quarter of an hour (from the midst of a clump of trees rising rom under the wall), had followed all his movements, and then disappeared suddenly behind this wall. A short time after this head had disappeared, three men came out from a small door in this same wall, went into the alley, where Maurice had preceded them, while a fourth for greater security, locked the door of entrance into this alley. At the end of this alley, Maurice discovered a court; it was on the opposite side of this court the light was burning. He knocked at the door of a poor solitary house, but at the first sound the light was extinguished. He redoubled his efforts, but no one answered to his call, he saw they were determined to make no reply, so comprehending that it was only a useless waste of time, he crossed the court and re-entered the alley. At this moment the door of the house turned softly on its hinges, three men came out, and then the sound of a whistle was heard.

Maurice turned round, and saw three shadows within a short distance. He saw in the darkness, also (his eyes having become accustomed to this obscurity) the reflection of three glittering blades. He knew he was hemmed in. He wolud have branished his club, but the alley was so narrow that it touched the wall on either side. At the same moment a violent blow on the head stunned him. This was an unforeseen assault made upon him by the four men who entered through the door in the wall. Seven men at the same time threw themselves upon Maurice, and notwithstanding a desperate resistance, overpowered him, and succeeded in binding his hands and bandaging his eyes.

Maurice had not even uttered a cry, or called for aid. Strength and true courage suffer by themselves, and are tenacious of the help of a stranger. Besides, Maurice had often heard that no one could enter this deserted quarter Maurice was thus, as we have said, thrown down and bound, but had not uttered a single complaint. He had reflected as to what would follow—that as they had bandaged his eyes they did not intend to kill him directly. At Maurice's age, respite becomes hope. He recovered his presence of mind, and listened patiently.

'Who are you?" demanded a voice still breathless from the late struggle.

'I am a man they are murdering,' replied Maurice.

"What is more, you are a dead man if you speak so loud, or call for assistance, or even utter the least cry."

"If I had wished to do so, I need not have waited till the present time."

'Are you ready to answer my questions?'

"Let me hear them first, I shall see whether I ought to reply."

'Who sent you here?"

"No one."

"You came then of your own accord?"

"Yes."

"You lie."

Maurice made a desperate effort to disengage his hands, but it was in vain.

"I never lie," said he.

"In either case, whether you came of your own accord or were sent, you are a spy."

"And you are cowards!"—"We cowards!"

"You are seven or eight against one man bound, and you insult that man. Cowards! cowards! cowards!"

This violence on the part of Maurice, instead of enraging his adversaries, appeared to produce a contrary effect. It was even a proof that the young man was not what they deemed him; a true spy would have trembled, and begged for mercy.

'There is nothing insulting in that,' said a voice, milder, yet firmer than any that had previously been heard, 'in the times we live in, one may be a spy without being a dishonest man, only it is at the risk of one's life."

"If that is your opinion, you are welcome to question me, I will answer you faithfully."

'What brought you into this quarter?"

"To search here for a woman."

An incredulous murmur followed this asertion. The breeze increased, and became a hurricane.

"You lie!" said the same voice; 'it is no woman—there is no woman in tentions, or you die."

"Well, then," said Maurice, 'you surely would not kill me for mere pleasure of doing so, unless you are true brigands."

And Maurice made a second effort, more strenuous than the first, to disengage his arms from the cord which secured them. It was useless, and at that moment he experienced a sharp pain in his breast, which made him flinch.

'Oh! you feel that," said one of the men; "there are eight more similar to this, with which you will claim acquaintance."

"Kill me, then," said Maurice, with resignation; "it will at least be finished at once."

"Who are you?" said the mild, but firm voice.

'Do you wish to know my name?"

"Yes, your name."—"I am Maurice Lindey."

"What!" cried a voice; "Maurice Lindey, the revolu—the patriot, Maurice Lindey, the secretary of the Section Lepelletier?"

These words were pronounced with so much warmth, that Maurice felt they were decisive. This reply was calculated to decide his fate. Maurice was incapable of fear; he drew himself up like a true Spartan, and replied in a firm voice—

'Yes, Maurice Lindey; yes, Maurice Lindey, secretary to the Section Lepeletier; yes, Maurice Lindey, the patriot, the revolutionist, the Jacobin; Maurice Lindey, in short, whose happiest day will be that on which he dies for liberty."

This reply was received with the silence of death.

RETURNED MAN FELL UNDER WHEELS OF TRUCK WAGON

William Neathway Seriously Injured Yesterday at Nashwaaksis

WHEELS PASSED OVER CHEST AND SHOULDERS

It Is Also Feared Now That He May Develop Pneumonia as Well

William Neathway is lying in a critical condition at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ferris, North Devon, as the result of injuries received yesterday afternoon, when he fell from a loaded wagon at Nashwaaksis.

He was sitting on a loose seat on top of a wagonload of heavy millwood when the seat slipped and he fell between the horses feet and tongue of the wagon, the front wheels of the wagon passing over his shoulder, chest and base of neck. Passersby who saw the accident stopped the horses before the rear wheels passed over him, otherwise he might have been instantly killed.

James Monteith, who was returning from Nashwaaksis, placed his automobile at the disposal of the wounded man and conveyed him to the home of Mr. Ferris, where he boarded, and Dr. Irvine was called, who found that the man had been seriously injured, although it could not be ascertained whether any bones were broken or not on account of the chest being so badly swollen, but it was feared that pneumonia would develop as he was suffering with chills last night.

The injured man is a Scotchman and a returned soldier, having gone overseas with the 236th McLean Highlanders from this city, and is thirty-five years old. He served in France with the 72nd Battalion, Seaforth Highlanders.

HIGHWAY BRIDGE IS IN SERIOUS STATE

Flooring Rotting Away and Accidents Feared—Two Fires During Week End

The flooring of the Fredericton-Devon highway bridge is rapidly getting into a delapidated condition, the planks having rotted away to such an extent that there is every liklihood of serious accidents resulting unless immediate steps are taken to put the flooring in proper shape.

On Sunday evening and again last night about midnight the Fire Department were called out by fires on the bridge, evidently having started from cigars and cigarettes being dropped on the dry and rotten flooring. The firemen found it necessary to rip up several planks of the flooring to extinguish the flames and this has added to the dangerous condition of the bridge.

Some time ago the bridge flooring got into a dangerous condition and in making repairs old and new lumber was mixed and in some cases large patches put on. The present unsatisfactory state of the flooring is due to the methods then followed.

DIED IN MONTREAL

Hugh McMonagle Passes Away After an Illness of Pernicious Anæmia.

The death occurred at the Montreal General Hospital on May 20th of Hugh McMonagle after an illness of pernicious anæmia, aged twenty-six years.

Mr. McMonagle had been in poor health for the past five years, and in March last he went to North Hatley, Quebec, where his father, Walter McMonagle, is manager of a large stock farm, hoping the change of climate would be beneficial to his health; but he did not improve, and a few weeks ago he was taken to the Montreal General Hospital for treatment and passed away on Thursday last.

Mr. McMonagle came with his parents from Sussex some few years ago to this city. He was a student at the University of New Brunswick, having won the L. A. Wilmot Scholarship at the matriculation examination. He also won the Lieutenant Governor's Medal for King's county. He was a poultry raiser of some note and his birds carried off prizes at all the fairs. Failing health did not permit of him finishing his course at U.N.B. For three years before coming to Fredericton he was on the staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Sussex.

Deceased is survived by his mother, who is residing in this city, and his father, at North Hatley, Ont.; one brother, James, who is principal of the High School at Saskatchewan, and three sisters, Miss Maud, teaching school in Saskatchewan, and Elizabeth and Muriel, students at the University of New Brunswick.

The remains were taken to Sussex, where interment was made in the family plot.

Fire on Sunday.

On Sunday the fire department responded to a still alarm from the residence of A. T. Murchie, chief lumber scaler of the province, for a fire which emanated from an open fireplace. The interior of the room was more or less destroyed before the fire was extinguished.

SAYS MARRIAGE DIVORCED PERSONS IS UNCHRISTIAN

Striking Pronouncements on the Divorce Evil by Rev. A. F. Bate

HITS AT FOUNDATION OF BRITISH EMPIRE

Sanctity of the Home in Years Gone by and at the Present Referred To Declaring that marriage of divorced persons was against the teachings of Christ and the bible, Rev. A. F. Bate, acting rector of Fredericton and one of the leading younger Anglican ministers of New Brunswick, made some striking pronouncements upon the divorce evil in an Empire Day sermon.

Islington Lodge, No. 151, Sons of England Benefit Society, attended divine service at Christchurch Parish Church on Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Bate welcomed the lodge and preached an interesting sermon, taking his text from the first verse of the 90th Psalm. He spoke on the British Empire and its glories and said it was laid on two foundation stones, the home and the Bible.

He spoke of the sanctity of the English homes in years gone by and of the present divorce evil and said he did not see how any Christian minister could marry divorced persons, as it was against the teachings of Christ and the Bible.

As to the second foundation stone, the Bible, he gave as an example the African Prince, who during the reign of the late Queen Victoria, asked her to show him something to account for England's greatness and the Queen handed him a Bible and said it laid the foundation for England's greatness.

Resumed His Duties.

E. P. Bradt, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who has been confined to his home with illness for the past week, resumed his duties this morning.

U. S. TRIBUTE TO CANADIAN TAX SCHEMES

New York Papers Commend Canada's Measures to Make Budget Balance

MERITS EMULATION BY OTHER COUNTRIES

Manufacturers in Quebec to Present Some Objections to Taxes to the Government

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

New York, May 26. — Under the heading "Sound taxing in Canada," the Sun and New York Herald this morning discusses the new Ottawa budget, declaring that the Canadian Government's "courageous and determined measures to make the 1920-21 budget balance merit commendation by all and emulation by other governments, which have far less excuse for swollen expenditures which have to be met by higher taxes."

Object to Wholesale Tax.

Montreal, May 26.—At a meeting of representative members of the Canadian Manufacturers Association held at the Windsor Hotel yesterday, the 1 per cent. sales tax was especially objected to, as likely to repeat itself until it was a burden to the consumer.

W. W. Birks, of Henry Birks and Sons, jewellers, strongly criticized the tax on gold objects for personal and household use which he considered to be severe as not only to check trade, but also tend to kill tourist business.

An executive committee of the Canadian Manufacturers Association for the province of Quebec was appointed to present budget objections to the government.

Ottawa, May 26.—Lieut. Col. A. K. Tylee, O. B. E., of Toronto, has been appointed air officer, commanding the Canadian Air Force, and will arrive in Ottawa today to assume his duties.

Colonel Tylee will continue in command for nine months.

He will be assisted by a staff of three officers who, like himself, will be appointed temporarily. In its announcement of the appointment, the Board points out that this is in pursuance of the policy adopted of providing for the administration of the Canadian Air Force by a succession of officers so that the experience of command and staff duties in peace will be obtained by a number of officers in the force.

The Air Board announces that applications for commissions in the Canadian Air Force are coming in very rapidly and that unless an increase in the proposed establishment can be obtained it may not be possible to grant commissions even to all who post their applications on or before May 29th.

Dublin, May 26. — Another hunger strike is on at Mount Joy prison. A visiting justice who saw the strikers yesterday says that two men are in a very grave condition.

Nine constables successfully withstood an attack by a considerable force of raiders who exploded a bomb under the Lough George barracks in Galway and poured bullets into the building for more than an hour. The police responded with rifles and a few bombs. One policeman was slightly wounded.

According to an Athlone despatch the Irish Bishops have agreed to confer with the government regarding the Irish education bill, the enactment of which is expected to be greatly facilitated by his action.

TERROR TO OWNERS OF LAND IN ERIN

Sinn Fein Land Committee Compel Land Owners to Dispose of Their Property

[Associated Press by Leased Wire.]

Dublin, May 26.—Control of Irish land by the Sinn Fein is very effective, as is instanced by an occurrence at Carrick-on-Shannon, which was reported here yesterday.

A farmer named Morrison was summoned before the Sinn Fein land committee to show why he had attempted to buy land over the heads of young men of the district who did not own property. He had just purchased a grazing farm for £3,500 and told the committee he had bought it for his two brothers in the United States. The committee warned him to surrender it immediately, which he agreed to do with reluctance.

CANADA'S WAR INDEMNITY TO BE ADJUSTED

Canada to be Represented at the Conference by Sir George Perley

INDEMNITY LIKELY BE COMPARATIVELY SMALL

To Arrive at Amount Canada's Expenditure Will Be Proportioned to Britain's

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 26.—What Canada is to do in the way of indemnity will probably be settled at the coming conference at Spa, at which Sir George Perley is to represent Canada.

The proposal is that the different parts of the Empire shall be indemnified for expenditure in proportion to what they spent in comparison with the expenditures of Great Britain. As our expenditures were about two billion an dthose of Great Britain about thirty billion we shall likely receive about one-fifteenth the amount received by the Mother Country. At most ,it will be small compared with our epxenditure.

Carranza's Rank Betrayal And Assassination By Troops Of Herrero Shown By Inquiry

The Mexican President First Led to Place Trust in Herrero's Loyalty to Govt.

PLACED IN A HUT WITH A FEW FRIENDS

The Hut Attacked During the Night and the President Killed by Shots Fired Into It

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Mexico City, May 26.—Formal investigation for the purpose of clarifying the part taken in the death of President Carranza both by Colonel Herrero and members of the Carranza party, is recommended by the commission of four named by Generals Obregon and Gonzales to inquire into the tragedy. The commission submitted its report last night and cited ten points which the members had agreed had been proved from stories by witnesses.

It was added that in a number of points many other stories purporting to tell the actual circumstances could not be confirmed and were unworthy of credence.

The commission's report, which is the first authoritative story of the death of Cararnza, may be summarized as follows:

"Colonel Herrero joined the Carranza party at Putla, state of Puebla, on May 20, following a conference with General Mariel, to whom he surrendered last March. Herrero pledged allegiance anew, and promised to defend Carranza, which promise was accepted by General Mariel, who told the fugitive President that Herrero was willing to fight for him. General Mariel then left the Carranza party and did not go to Tlaxcalantongo.

Carranza Placed in Hut.

"When Carranza reached Tlaxcalantongo he was led by Herrero to the hut where he was to sleep. Herrero was with Carranza when beds in this shelter were assigned to the President; Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, Minister of the Interior; Captains Amador and Suarez, his sides. General Murguia and other members of the party were taken to different houses in the village. Before retiring Carranza ordered Captain Suarez to assist in placing sentinels, all of whom were Herrero's men.

"Herrero later told Carranza that a messenger had informed him his brother was injured, whereupon Herrero left the village, promising to return. At three o'clock on the morning of May 21 three of Herrero's men entered the President's hut, stating they had been ordered to report to him what the situation was, adding that nothing new had occurred. Carranza listened to the report, and then told the men to leave.

(The report says this move was probably for the purpose of ascertaining if all in the hut were in bed and whether Carranza had changed his position

Hut Attacked from All Sides.

"Half an hour later the hut was attacked from all sides. President Carranza was heard to cry: 'I can't get up, my leg is broken.' He then begged for a carbine so that he could defend himself, but was answered by a volley which ended his life instantly.

"The other occupants of the hut fled, as did those in the other shelters, and there was great confusion in the village. Herrero, at the head of his men, captured many of the party, who were taken 12 miles away, while others were left at Tlaxcalantongo.

"Four or five of these prisoners were forced to sign a statement that Carranza had committed suicide. This statement was dictated by Manuel Aguirre Berlanga, and written by Paulino Fentes, director of Mexican national railways."

These facts are alleged to "prove a conspiracy was prepared in advance by Herrero, which inspired confidence in him by Carranza and ended in the President's betrayal.

This is due to the strike which is at present being called in these refineries.

La Presse adds that demurrage charges at the rate of five dollars a day is piling up on these cars, payable by the consignees. The total weight of sugar involved runs into millions of pounds, it is asserted.

SECRET HISTORY SUBMARINE WAR

Chancellor Bethman-Hollwey Against It, But Von Hindenburg Determined

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Berlin, May 26.—Secret protocols on the submarine war now published include an account of the conference held at Pless on Jan. 8 and 9, 1917, between Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, Gen. Ludendorff and Admiral Von Holtzendorff and other naval officers.

Admiral Von Holtzendorff advocated unrestricted U-boat war, which, however, he asserted the German Emperor and Chancellor on Bethmann-Hollweg seemed to be lukewarm about. He added that Von Bethmann wanted diplomatic preparations, as a preliminary, in order to keep the United States out of the war, and that the opinion prevailed in the Foreign Office that if the United States came in South America was bound to follow.

During the course of the conversations, on Holtzendorff said: "What shall we do if the Chancellor refuses?"

Von Hindenburg—"That's what is bothering me, too."

Von Holtzendorff—"Then you must become Chancellor."

But Von Hindenburg repeatedly refused, saying he could not talk in the Reichstag. Finally, the Field Marshal said: "Well then, we will stick together. It must be. We reckon with war with the United States and have made all preparations. Things cannot get worse. The war must be shortened by every possible means."

BOLSHEVIKI HAVE TAKEN RETCHITSA

The Soviet Troops Now Operating Some 125 Miles North of Kiev

CLAIM POLISH ATTACKS HAVE BEEN REPULSED

For Forty Miles Along the Beresina a Fierce Battle is Being Continually Waged

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 26.—Retchitsa, a village on the right bank of the Dneiper river, approximately 125 miles north of Kiev, has been occupied by Russian Bolshevik forces, which are also advancing on the fortified outskirts of Bobruish, on the Beresina River, according to an official statement issued in Moscow yesterday and received here by wireless.

Fighting is proceeding sixteen miles northeast of Kiev, the statement declares, and attacks by Polish and Ukrainian troops southeast of Kiev, along the Kiev-Poltava railway, have been repulsed.

Along the upper reaches of the Beresina river, soviet forces are said to have occupied a number of villages six miles southwest of Dokiechitha and sixteen miles west of the Beresina. On this front the battle is going on over a front forty miles long.

Polish forces fighting in front of Minsk have received reinforcements and are fighting stubbornly against the Bolshevik advance, the statement says.

Soviet Message to Entente.

London, May 26.—A wireless message addressed by the soviet government at Moscow to the governments of Great Britain, France, Italy and the United States, was received here yesterday.

The message says among other things that the soviet republics of Russia and the Ukraine are free from territorial ambitions, that they have no aggressive designs against other countries and that they are devoting themselves to economic reconstruction.

It adds that in spite of heroic efforts for the inauguration of peace negotiations with the Polish government, Poland launched fresh attacks against the two republics.

"It appears," the message concludes, "that those countries where the workers are not in power regard as a menace to themselves the fact that in another country the workers themselves are successfully managing their own affairs. No other explanation, therefore, is possible of the sudden attack launched against the two republics by Poland."

AUTO BANDITS ROB JEWELRY STORE

The Robbery Committed in Broad Daylight, With the Streets Crowded

New York, May 26.—Five masked bandits escaped in an automobile yesterday with jewelry valued at $8,000, after holding up six persons connected with the jewelry store of David Gumbiner, at Broadway and 105th street.

Dashing down the crowded west side after their robbery, committed in broad daylight, the bandits narrowly missed striking a traffic policeman and several pedestrians as their machine, driven at top speed, swerved from one side of the street to the other.

The robbery was engineered with the greatest daring. The bandits, of distinguished appearance, according to the shopkeepers, alighted from a sedan automobile and just before they entered the store donned their masks.

The proprietor's wife screamed, but the bandits calmly continued their work and none of the crowd attracted by her cries dared intervene.

Arthur Meighen Hits at Opponents of Protection

Minister of Interior Delivers One of His Ablest Speeches in House, Giving a Straight Talk on a Plain Issue---The Glaring Inconsistencies of Liberal and Farmers' Parties Pointed Out.

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 26.—In one of the ablest speeches delivered in the House of Commons in recent years, Hon. Arthur Meighen held the undivided attention of the House for three hours last night, while he delivered a biting and destructive criticism of the tariff policies and fiscal wriggling of the two opposition parties, whom he charged with fighting under two flags but the same banner, endeavoring to attract support from both free traders and protectionists with the ultimate intention of throwing both down.

He said that Mr. Fieldings amendment only covered half of the official platform adopted at the Ottawa convention, and did not even represent the real convictions of the Liberal ex-Minister of Finance, who had stated in his paper that the Liberal platform was made "to get in on, not to stand on." Its sole purpose was the hope of securing a vote of want of confidence in the government. The Farmers' party had done their share in the alleged conspiracy by not daring to move their platform in the House, lest they embarrass the Liberal protectionists, who dared not openly support it.

Farmers Turn Down Crerar.

Turning to Hon. T. A. Crerar's taxation proposals as substitutes for customs taxation, he said they were income and land taxes; a commission in Manitoba which recently prepared a report on taxation, and which included in its personnel representatives from the Grain Growers' organization, declared that the land tax should be left to municipalities and the income tax to urban districts, Mr. Crerar being thus grievously wounded in the house of his own friends.

Perhaps the most telling part of his speech was the evidence he produced to show the present economic condition of Great Britain under free trade, which showed the culmination of a gradual decline in commerce since 1850, and now flourished only by reason of returns from its investments.

He read extensively extracts from a commission appointed there a few years ago, and which had recently reported, showing that the salvation of the coal, iron, electrical and other industries of that country depended upon the institution of protective measures, including prohibition of imports, protective tariffs, bonuses or anti-dumping measures. In this connection he threw such a volley of caustic rhetorical questions at the sage from Red Deer that the latter left the House after the Speaker had denied him the right of explicit replies, though Mr. Meighen expressed his willingness to hear the same. He closed his address with a strong appeal for consistency in political policy, declaring that Canadian progress and prosperity depended on industrial growth.

Straight Talk on Plain Issue.

While there may be some question as to the wisdom of so obviously a tighting protectionist speech on the eve of a final effort of the Premier to form a permanent Unionist party, there could be no denying the ability with which it had been prepared and was delivered, nor the unconcealed satisfaction which it gave to the Conservatives in the House. It is one of the attractive characteristics of the Minister of the Interior that there is never any doubt where he stands, nor that he will maintain his convictions in a straightforward way. He believes, apparently, that the time has come for straight talking on a plain issue. That he has kept faith with his Liberal fellow ministers to the utmost during the continuance of Union Governmen during the war is witnessed by some who formerly were his strongest opponents in the House having repeatedly expressed the warmest admiration for him as a colleague in the House. He has fought the battles and steered the bills of pretty nearly every member of the cabinet, often very contentious measures, which a less courageous politicians would have left alone. In the country, too, he has done more than any other to tell the world of the accomplishments of Union Government, being about the only member of the cabinet to realize that Unionism was languishing from lack of publicity.

Just what the effect of today's speech will be remains to be seen. There are one or two of the Liberal Unionists who have been waiting for some time to take the last chance of going ashore and terminating their voyage in the Unionist craft It is probable that one or two will now accept this as final notice that the time has come for them to make the move, although it is not expected that there will be any serious defections from the ranks of the government.

Dr. Michael Clark Speaks.

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 25.—The attitude of the new Progressive party toward the budget was indicated by Dr. Michael Clark. "We are against the budget," said Dr. Clark. "The Fielding amendment is a milk and watery affair, and our policy is that outlined by the Canadian Council of Agriculture." He stated, however, that he would have to vote for the amendment because by voting for the budget he would be increasing the cost of living.

Dr. Clark, who spoke for about an hour and a half to a well-filled house and galleries, was especially critical of the government's new luxury tax. He characterized this tax an internal tariff, and compared the returned soldier buying a $50 suit of clothes and paying a tax of $5 with the millionaire purchasing a suit for $150 and paying a tax of only $15 on it. "There is," he said, "neither equality or decency in a tax of that kind."

Hon. Mr. Meighen Replies.

Hon. Arthur Meighen, who followed Dr. Clark, charged that there were two groups in opposition to the government, each holding opposite views to the other on the tariff. They hoped to go to the country and take into camp people of diametrically opposed views on the tariff by deceiving them.

He said that the Liberals were trying to imitate the tariff planks in the Farmers' platform. The leader of the Opposition had been touring the country telling the farmers that they and the Liberals were near relations, and that there was little difference between them on the tariff. It was a noticeable thing, however, that the Liberals did not include coal in their free list articles. The member for North Cape Breton and Victoria (Mr. D. D. McKenzie) and the member for Queens and Shelburne (Mr. Fielding) would never stand for coal being placed on the free list, and it looked as if they had succeeded in "putting it over" the leader of the Opposition.

Mr. Meighen argued that free trade had not been a success in Great Britain. From 1850 to the present day, the trade of the Mother Country had shown an adverse balance. Every year shows less than she bought. He quoted at length from reports of committees which investigated the key industries of Great Britain to show that England, after sixty years of free trade, was now turning towards protection. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, he said, had not left a legacy of free trade to anyone. He concluded by saying that a high tariff was not advisable, for obvious reasons. The government only sought to protect Canadian industries from unfair competition. He asked that the tariff be left alone until a thorough and scientific revision could be made.

Clark Walks Out.

As he proceeded Mr. Meighen made statement after statement in the interogative, and his questions led to a curious incident. Was it not better, Mr. Meighen had asked, to support a Government which did things rather than a party which merely professed to do them.

"I'll answer that question," interjected Dr. Clark, rising from his feet.

The Speaker broke in—"The hon. member for Red Deer has already spoken."

"Well then," replied Dr. Clark, "let me suggest to the minister that he should not put his speech in the form of questions."

On this, Dr. Clark rose from his seat, walked slowly to the bar, turned, bowed toward the Speaker, then left the House. He did not return while Mr. Meighen was speaking.

E. K. Spinney, (Yarmouth) indicated what he termed some of the evils of the business profits tax.

A Remarkable Speech.

"He speaks like a lawyer from a brief," Mr. Chamberlain complained of Mr. Asquith in the old tariff reform days, whereupon a famous Liberal retorted, "Yes, but what a brief," and that is what must be said of the speech which Mr. Meighen delivered in the Comons today. It was the brief of a lawyer, but a very remarkable one, the case for the ministry's proposals in a form so exhaustive, so lucid and so comprehensive that it will serve as a veritable handbook for political writers and speakers for a long time to come. Always a keen student, a tireless investigator, and blessed with a mind singularly logical and acute, Meighen today displayed a range of knowledge and an historical sweep which placed his utterance upon a high plane as a parliamentary effort, and, although there were times when he seemed to tax his auditors with a surplus of lengthy quotations, it was a notable tribute to his ascendancy in the House that he held a crowded chamber for upwards of three hours.

Want Sale of Beer.

Brantford, Ont., May 25—At the 18th annual convention of the labor educational association of Ontario here yesterday, a resolution was passed asking the government to permit the purchase of beer "in an open public manner, thereby doing away, to a large extent, with the existing order of boot-leggers, kitchen bar rooms and other forms of subterfuge now practiced."

Tide of Immigration.

His Death Expected

New Brunswick Man Saved

Mr. Isidore Thomas, of Tilley's Road, Gloucester County, N.B., while expecting death, availed himself of help that was offered at random. Here is part of a letter he wrote to us:—

"I beg you to publish my letter, so that people may know what Gin Pills did for me. My case was very serious. I was so sick everybody expected my death any day. Finally, on advice from friends, I tried Gin Pills, and in a short time was well again, and soon had gained 20 pounds."

Kidney and bladder troubles, very often, work in secret ways. A bad condition may exist, with only a backache to indicate it. That is why the slightest pains in back or sides should be investigated. These pains, along with sciatic neuralgia, rheumatism, dizziness, constipation, lassitude, lumbago, highly-colored urine, headache, floating specks before the eyes, gravel, indicate kidney trouble. A course of Gin Pills, taken at once, will give relief, and prevent the progress of the disease, enabling the organs to right themselves and restore good health. Gin Pills are the sure, safe, quick remedy. Get a box from your druggist or dealer—50c. Money refunded if no relief found. Send for free sample.

Is Your Blood Starving For Want of Iron?

Iron is Red-Blood Food—Nuxated Iron Helps Put Roses Into the Cheeks of Women and Gives Strength and Energy to Men

If you were to go without eating until you become weak, thin and emaciated, you could not do a more serious harm to yourself than when you let your blood literally starve for want of iron—iron that gives it strength and power to change food into living tissue, muscle and brain. Without plenty of iron in the blood, no matter how much or what you eat, your food simply passes through you without doing you any good—you don't get the strength out of it and instead of being filled with youthful strength and energy you are weak, nervous and all run-down. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can walk or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks, then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have most astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form. But don't take the old kinds of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like Nuxated Iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. You can procure Nuxated Iron from your druggist on an absolute guarantee of satisfaction or your money will be refunded.

"The Cup of Fury"

By RUPERT HUGHES

WHICH WAS THE REAL WOMAN?

Was the laughing, dancing butterfly of wealth and luxury the real she? Or was it the worker, the hard worker of brawn and muscle, who cast aside money and ease for the lot of a common laborer?

There was one man who saw her as both, but never knew—she never knew herself which was the life she was really meant to live. You won't know until you see this great Rupert Hughes' picture, because the story unfolds naturally and mysteriously just as life itself. It is a great picture!

LABOR AND HIGH PRICES.

Occasionally one hears from sources that are not informed on the subject that labor is not an important factor in the increased cost of shoes, and the public are expected to assume that the manufacturers are profiteers and all that kind of thing. A few days ago an Associated Press despatch quoted a labor representative as ridiculing the contention that wage increases are responsible for increased prices, and setting up that of $3.50 increase in price of shoes during the war labor received only 15 cents. What are the facts? No less an authority than the Reconstruction Survey of Canada demonstrates that labor represents, in the final analysis, seventy per cent. of the value of most manufactured goods. In the shoe industry of Canada the cost of labor has increased from seventy-five to one hundred per cent. since 1914. That increase will be accepted as quite an important factor in the cost of manufacturing. The materials from which the shoes are made have also undergone a very great increase; and in each instance labor has been a large factor in the high cost. Tanners' wages have been increased nearly a hundred per cent.; the wages on the farm where the animals were fed and cared for have also gone up to nearly the 100 per cent. mark, the hemlock bark workers in the woods have been given increases in pay in like proportion, and so with the extract men, the packers over one hundred per cent. increase, and the railways, which handle the goods from the raw state to the finished product, have increased wages since 1914 to the present by something approaching, if not in some cases exceeding, one hundred per cent. Therefore we find the cost of material used in the manufacture of shoes:

Calf leather, increase since 1914, at least 300 per cent.

Kid leather, increase 400 to 500 per cent.

Sole leather, increase over 100 per cent.

Linings, increase about 400 per cent.

Findings, such as linen, silk threads, etc., increase 300 to 400 per cent.

So that the cost of labor is a material factor in increasing the cost to the public of boots and shoes, in the final analysis representing seventy per cent. Fortunately, the thoughtful public have not been misled by those who have been indulging in sentimental demonstrations in which the high costs and increased living expenses are put down wholly to profiteering.

The shoe industry in Canada is not one of the big money makers, although some people have been led to assume that it is. Nineteen-eighteen was probably the industry's most profitable year of recent times. In that year the records show the profit on the turnover to have been only 5.37 per cent; and on the capital represented only 7½ per cent.

There are $35,000,000 invested in the shoe industry of Canada, and the annual volume of the turnover is $50,000,000—quite an important industry in this country. And yet the business has not produced a millionaire.

WORK AND SAVE.

The recent decline in clothing prices in the United States has called forth the opinions of a number of leaders in business regarding the proper way in which to effect a return from the present oppressive conditions of living. Some authorities hold that "people must work and must economize," and that unless they do this intentionally, under the impulsion of a foresight of discomforts to be avoided, they will do so perforce under the compulsion of stern want.

The outcry against luxurious spending, viewed from the basis of this idea, does very well as far as it goes. Goods are scarce largely because the public have consumed them too freely, and indeed continue to consume them despite the restraint that high prices should impose. Essential goods in many lines run particularly scarce because of the especial demand for luxuries: a demand so great that it has robbed the necessities of producers and made the production of them unprofitable.

But greater emphasis still, as it seems to us, should rest on the plea that people make up their minds to produce more abundantly; in other words, that they work harder. Mere thrift will not do. Matters have gone too far for that. The ship of state runs by steam nowadays, it is true, and the people, who formerly rowed it industriously are more like passengers than stokers. But the ship has taken water, which threatens to put out the fires under the boilers. The people must forget their neat clothes and clean hands and bail with all their might.

It is an emergency. The doctrine of idleness, which has sapped the vigor of the nations for some time, with its lure of short hours and light tasks, must be dropped for the present. Idleness and luxury for that matter go hand in hand. One draws the other. And unless the Canadian will banish both he will have both still; also their consequences.

THE FRANC.

The violent fluctuations in the franc which have characterized the past few weeks constitute a most unfortunate development, a development which cannot fail to react unfavorably upon French industry and postpone the return of normal conditions. For some days the franc advanced rapidly in value. May 5 it was 16.40 in terms of the United States dollar; May 15, 15.30, and May 20, 13.75. At this point there came a sudden reaction, and last Thursday's transactions were marked by a drop back to 14.25, today 12.22.

The French Government should take steps to remedy this state of affairs. That the franc should have sunk in recent years to a fraction of its former value, bringing with it heavy losses to patriotic citizens, is of course most unfortunate. But the great need now is for stability.

It is to be hoped that as months and years pass the franc will recover its old value, so that justice will be done the French people, but the change should be gradual. The strongest industrial system in the world would crash under the strain of a currency which meant one thing today and another tomorrow; for France, in the midst of its post-war reconstruction, the thing cannot fail to produce most unfortunate results. For her own sake, it is to be hoped that she will do something to fix the value of her currency and put an end to the recent unfortunate fluctuations.

In the development of type and quality in live stock, public competition is a dominant educational factor. The show ring is the sorting house for type and quality, and it is there, through contrast, that desirable animal characteristics stand out in the most instructive manner. The Canadian Bankers' Competitions, promoted to impress upon the younger generation the great importance of good breeding and feeding in farm live stock, provide such public competitions for boys and girls. Banking institutions, in co-operation with the Dominion Department of Agriculture, offer attractive cash prizes to boys and girls who feed and exhibit pigs and calves at the local fair.

The writ for the St. John bye-election is issued at last. It was originally intended to hold the election on Monday, June 7th, but delays, apparently for a purpose, from day to day resulted in a change to a later date, a week later, June 14. There should now be some activity at St. John. Carleton County again goes untouched, at least for the present; a vacant seat for three years, yet no writ.

A country minister tells a funny story of an incident that happened in his church the other day. During the sermon a baby began to cry, and its mother immediately picked it up, and began to carry it towards the door.

"Stop!" the minister exclaimed. "Don't go away; the baby is not disturbing me."

The mother continled her way to the door with the very audible remark:

"Oh, 'e ain't, ain't 'e? But you're a disturbin' of 'im!"

No Idea.

"Where are you going for your holiday?"

"I haven't the least idea."

"But can't you judge from what you've heard your father and mother say?"

"Well, from the way ma talks I should think we were going to Monte Carlo, Switzerland, and Egypt. From the way pa talks I should think we were going to the workhouse."

FROM THE PEOPLE

CITY COUNCIL AND THE HOSPITAL

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—I read with surprise and indignation your report of the proceedings at last Friday evening's meeting of the City Council in which an organized effort was made by an able committee to stampede the aldermen into an agreement pledging the Council to obtain legislation making a present of one hundred thousand dollars to the Victoria Hospital. None knew better than this committee that the Council had no legal right to make such a bargain. The excellent work done by the Hospital has nothing to do with the principle involved. The question for the aldermen to consider is, have we any mandate from our constituents to make a bargin like this? None whatever; the people have not been consulted. A plebiscite to obtain the views of the ratepayers was not even suggested, but strenuous effort was made to force the scheme through at once without giving the citizens a chance to pronounce on its merits. Haste was the keynote of the promoters. Give us the guarantee, say the committee, and we will raise the money to meet the outlined expenditure; but how? With provincial bonds selling at between three and four points below par, with our city now heavily in debt, the taxes increasing every year, more money to be borrowed to carry out projected public works, what chance would there be to sell one hundred thousand dollars of city bonds either now or a year hence at a fair price. To float such an issue, a big discount would have to be accepted. We will raise the money, say the committee. The only plan would be to borrow from the banks or other source at a high rate of interest. Even if other conditions were favorable, to expend this large sum in building operations at the present time with labor and material at present prices would be most imprudent. Some years ago hardwood flooring could be procured for forty dollars a thousand. I am credibly informed one hundred and eighty dollars is the price now quoted, and the advance in other lumber and material is almost in the same ratio. Still haste, and more haste, urge the committee.

One is reminded of the pious ejaculation of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on a memorable occasion in which he prayed to the Lord that it was not already too late. This was the prelude to the most disastrous enterprise Canada ever engaged in, involving not only a wasteful expenditure of over one hundred million dollars, but now and for many years to come, requiring the annual expenditure of many other millions to keep the work from collapse; a safe course to pursue when a scheme like this is suddenly launched on the community and immediate acceptance urged. Stop right there, go slowly, consult the people, who must eventually carry the burden. It is well to give some consideration to who would pay the taxes in case a scheme like this carried; of which I do not at present think there is the least probability. Would it be our large employers of labor? Not much; they would not have to pay a cent. I did hear it stated that somebody had interviewed several large taxpayers, and they were favorable to the scheme. A nice way that to conduct public business. Let those in this town favoring the project and who are known to have made enormous profits the last few years, emulate the example of the late Mr. Hutchinson, of Chatham, put their hands in their pockets and provide the funds required and not seek to load one hundred thousand dollars on this already heavily burdened city, to build property which it would neither own nor control. Gentlemen of the Council, stand firm, act on your judgment, do not be induced to commit the Council to large expenditure which you must know those you represent would not sanction. One hundred thousand dollars is a large sum to add to this city's over six hundred thousand dollars present indebtedness. At least as a preliminary let the people be consulted.

Referring to taxes, the time is at hand when nine-tenths of the people of this town find it hard to pay present rates without the addition of increased assessment. A few days ago in conversation with a man who has steady work in one of our institutions, he said he received ten dollars a week in wages and after paying for rent and fuel he found it impossible to live and keep his family on the balance, so he notified his employers he must have a raise or get out and try something else. Take what we might call the daily wage earners; wages are now high, but so far from there being any assurance of continuity of work, with the present almost cessation of building and our long winters to provide for there must be a great loss of time and expenses going on. So with a large number on small salaries, with the prices that have to be paid for even bare necessaries of living, even moderate taxes must be quite a burden.

Thanking you Mr. Editor, for printing this communication. I have always found The Gleaner advocating the rights of the people.

Yours,
CITIZEN.

PROHIBITION ACT AND SOME OF ITS SECTIONS

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—There has been a great deal of comment concerning the case of Mr. George W. Thorne, whose home at Enniskillen was recently searched and ransacked by a prohibition inspector and who was prosecuted and convicted and fined $50 and costs for having five ounces of gin in his possession in his own home for purely medical purposes.

Although I have no doubt there are many people who have not been able to understand how such an outrage could take place in a British province, which has been supposed to be under British law, the explanation is perfectly simple. British law has been entirely overturned by the New Brunswick Prohibition Act.

The man or woman who, for economical or necessitous reasons, has his or her home in any building which is partially occupied or used as a shop or place of business or as a boarding house or as a lodging house, or in any building the rooms or compartments in which are rented to different persons, or in any part of which meals or lodging are provided for money, is, under clause (t) of section 2 of the New Brunswick Prohibition Act, considered as not having any home or dwelling, and thereby forfeits all the rights and protection which appertain to "the house" of a British subject.

Section 7 of the Act provides that no person shall have any liquor of any kind in his possession in any place whatsoever other than in "the private dwelling" in which he resides. Section 153 of the Act expressly provides that any prohibition inspector, for the purpose of preventing or detecting the violation of any of the provisions of the Act, shall "at any time have the right to enter into any and every part of any place other than a private dwelling, whether under license or not, and make search in every part thereof."

No one, therefore, whose situation and circumstances are such as to bring them within the excluding terms of clause (t) of section 2 of this remarkable Act, and to make it impossible for him or her to maintain a home entirely separated from any other family or families, can lawfully keep in his or her own home, for perfectly legitimate medicinal use in the emergency of sudden illness, any liquor of any kind containing over two per cent. by weight of proof spirits.

The home of such a person—male or female—is expressly made liable by section 153 to be entered at pleasure at any time, either by day or by night, and to be searched and ransacked "in every part thereof" by any constable or prohibition inspector, without warrant or other legal authority.

Mr. Thorne, as a country storekeeper, happened to fall within the large and unfortunate class of persons who, according to the Prohibition Act, have no "dwellings" and no rights.

The Magistrate who fined him $50 and costs had no option in the matter. This Christian law obliged him to impose a fine of not less than $50 and not more than $200 for an act which no one but a hopeless lunatic could regard as an offence against either God or man. Under the Prohibition Act the Magistrate might have imposed a fine of $200 and costs—the highest penalty provided by the Act for a first offence against any of its provisions. He could not impose less than $50 and costs, and showed his discretion by making the fine as small as the Act allowed him to make.

These are the penalties which the Act provides—the maximum penalties—for such offences as those illustrated by Mr. Thorne's case. But what of the man who deliberately and systematically uses premises which he has leased "for the illegal sale, keeping for sale or other unlawful disposition of liquors" in violation of section 14? He is liable to a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100 for a first offence—just half the penalties imposable for offences of the class of Mr. Thorne's.

Is it any wonder, Mr. Editor, that this misshapen legislative abortion, the New Brunswick Prohibition Act, has earned the contempt of every man who knows its provisions?

Yours,
LEX.

St. John, May 22, 1920.

PUTTING SCOTCH LAKE ON THE MAP

To the Editor of The Gleaner,

Sir,—Now that Scotch Lake and its residents have been brought into public notice by the announcement of Sylvester Moore and the letter from Beechnut Burr in the From the People column in recent numbers of The Gleaner, I ask for the privilege to give other interesting facts.

We are led to believe that we are losing our residents on account of bad roads, and that others are threatening to go. Our roads are not good in early spring when the frost is going out of the ground. Beechnut Burr certainly had the 1919 road improvement scheme down fine, and as it actually happened. That was on one of the roads leading to Scotch Lake. On two other roads leading here through the Parish of Bright, the residents of Bright take no interest in our welfare; and those two roads are a disgrace to the Parish of Bright, not to Scotch Lake. In winter, one of these roads is the highway for farmers at Scotch Lake to get their farm produce to market at Fredericton and to stations on the C.P.R. and Valley railways. Scotch Lake residents have always had to keep this road open in winter, even if nearly three miles of it is out of their road district entirely.

I do not feel that the blame for our bad roads should all be saddled onto the Minister of Public Works, but rather upon his deputies, the road supervisors.

We, like farmers in other districts, have been so continually preached at to produce more, produce more, that we have had little time to repair roads. But the farmers here did a lot of free repairing in former years; some did more free road work than many in other districts did for pay. The deep snow of last winter was a great handicap to us here, and at Skowhegan, Me., the people complained bitterly at the extra work it involved there; so we are led to believe that Mr. Sylvester Moore is not going to get away from all trouble by moving there from Scotch Lake.

We do not resent the going away of Mr. Moore; it is only showing a spirit of adventure; but we do resent his trying to induce others to follow his example. There is a spirit of uneasiness among people everywhere now. They evidently are trying to better their social conditions.

We hope Beechnut Burr will be successful in selling some farms to people who will move into this district and be prosperous. Mr. Slyvester Moore has gained his entire accumulation of prosperity since he moved here.

Right methods used here will bring happiness as well as comfort. Let us improve ourselves by bettering our surroundings instead of moving to a district where others have done some landscape gardening which appeals to the eye of man. Let us fix up our roadsides to look as if people lived here. Our roads are no worse than some in Maine, Fredericton, Devon or Keswick. If you are doubtful, come and see.

Yours,
W. H. M.

THE CONFERENCE WITH WEST INDIES

Canadian Ministers Expect to Increase Volume of Trade With the Islands

Ottawa, May 25.—Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Sir Henry Drayton, Minister of Finance, Hon. Martin Burrell, Minister of Customs, and Hon. C. C. Ballantyne, Minister of Marine, will represent the Dominion Government at the conference with the West Indies, which opens in Ottawa on Monday next.

A result of the conference, it is expected, will be a large increase in the volume of trade between Canada and the West Indies.

Two subjects will be primarily before the conference:

1—Renewal and extension of the existing reciprocal preference.

2—Improvement in transportation facilities.

Under the agreement of 1912, between Canada and the West Indies, a reciprocal preference was granted of approximately twenty per cent. On the part of most of the West Indies representatives, it is understood, a plea will be made for an increase of the reciprocal preference to fifty per cent. with free food both ways. With food stuffs on the free list, it is urged, Canada would get cheaper fruits and sugar and the West Indies would benefit from Canadian agricultural production.

STEADY INCREASE IN BRITISH TRADE

The Demand for All Kinds of Steel Reported to Be Enormous at Present

London, May 25—That Great Britain is making steady and satisfactory progress in the return to stable industrial conditions, despite frequent interruptions caused by labor upheavals, is indicated by recent trade reports.

The demand for all kinds of steel and finished iron is reported to be enormous in England at present. British steel works state they have enough orders on hand to keep them busy for several months ahead; and in some cases orders have had to be rejected because the plant's capacity was booked far ahead.

Building sites on which to erect new works are in great demand in all parts of the country. With but few exceptions existing factories do not permit of the necessary expansion. Many large companies are planning important extensions and it is expected that this summer will see the erection of many new factory buildings.

One of the largest British engineering firms, the Armstrong-Whitworth Company, has during the past year transformed its vast ammunition works into a plant for the construction of locomotives. Their output is expected to reach 45 locomotives per week before the autumn. The company is said to have important contracts in hand for the leading rail way systems in Great Britain, India, Nigeria, Trinidad, Belgium, Brazil, Argentina and Java.

SEEK TO KEEP THE PEOPLE ON LAND

Buenos Aires, May 25—Argentina, like the United States, has difficulty keeping people on the farms and out of the cities. To combat the tendency toward city life, the Minister of the Interior, Ramon Gomez, has asked all the Governors of the provinces and territories to urge people to colonize the public lands.

Under a new law colonists are enabled to borrow from the National Mortgage Bank up to 80 per cent. of the value on land they have purchased and under the Homestead law the Government is permitted to give to colonists small lots of land in some districts.

SWEDE DISBARRED IN OLYMPIC GAMES

Antwerp, May 25—Wislander, the all-around Swedish athlete, who was second to Thorpe in the 1912 Olympic games as individual champion, has met with the same fate as Thorpe—disbarment from competition in the 1920 Olympiad, for his refusal to accept the prizes won by Thorpe, but awarded to Wislander when Thorpe was declared a professional, according to Swedish athletes who attended the Olympic ice events here.

Wislander has steadily declined to accept the medals and statuettes on the ground that they were not his, but Thorpe's, by right of victory and these awards are still in the hands of the 1912 committee at Stockholm.

For refusing to accept the committee's rulings, Wislander has been barred from Olympic competitions.

BELGIANS TO USE AMERICAN RIFLE

Antwerp, May 25—If the American authorities consent, the American army rifle and pistol will be used by at least one European team—the Belgians—in the markmanship events of the Seventh Olympiad, to be held at Waterloo, near Brussels, July 24-31.

Belgian army experts, after studying the results of the army shooting contests held during the past year in France, have decided that the American weapons are superior to all others and have requested the American embassy at Brussels to secure permission to use them.

Much interest is attached to the markmanship events of this Olympiad because of the tests they are expected to give of wartime sharpshooting experiences. Entries close June 23 and practically every European nation, as well as North and South American teams, will be represented.

WAR BREAD FOR BRITAIN

Food Controller McCurdy Says It May Be Necessary Shortly.

London, May 25—Food Controller McCurdy, speaking in London, said: "It is quite possible that in a few months from now the people of this country will be called upon to eat war bread of a quality only comparable to that we were obliged to eat during the most difficult period of the war. If that necessity comes about, it will be due simply to the fact that the wheat supplies of the world are not going to be enough for the world's demands."

SHIP AUSTRALIAN WHEAT TO BRITAIN

Twenty Cargo Boats Diverted to Australia to Carry Grain Surplus to England

London, May 22.—The British Government and the government of Australia have come to an arrangement whereby the whole of the balance of the British government's purchase of wheat and wool remaining in Australia will be shipped to England and disposed of to the trades concerned within the next few months.

In response to a government appeal to British shipowners over twenty cargo boats, with an aggregate carrying capacity of 200,000 tons, have been diverted Australia-wards, under instruction from their owners, from India, China, the Cape and Mediterranean, and other routes. They will all load wheat to their full capacity and will be followed by a number of other vessels of the tramp class with a view to getting the whole of the wheat shipped within the ensuing three months.

As this wheat is in the states of Western Australia and South Australia, neither of which is able to provide bunker coal, some of the ships will have to coal at Sydney or Newcastle, in New South Wales, and others at Durban, South Africa. This disability has added much to the transport problem.

In the matter of wool supplies the Imperial authorities are reported to be extremely anxious to bet the balance of their purchase now in store in Australia, which amounts to no less than 2,000,000 bales, shipped within the next six months. Some time ago it was announced that the Director of Raw Materials stipulated that the wool should be "lifted" before the end of June. This was found to be impossible, but a strenuous effort will be made to get the last of the wool shipped by October.

When Home Seems Good

A BLIZZARD OUTDOORS—warmth and comfort within. There is nothing in the home so necessary as a good furnace. Stoves and base burners are unequal to the task—they choke the air with dust and only warm parts of the house.

And buying a furnace is a matter of knowing how. The warm air heating system is the least costly. It is the most effective and healthful too. The will keep every corner of your home delightfully comfortable in all kinds of weather. It draws in the pure fresh air from the big outdoors, warms and moistens it and sends it on its way to you. Stoves and radiators can only heat the same air over and over.

Every part of the Enterprise Blazer Furnace is made just a little bit better than is necessary—the grate bars a little stronger—the fire-pot a little heavier. These are the things that enable us to guarantee that the Blazer Furnace will give you entire satisfaction.

98% Metal

A Maxwell is 98% metal, and the very best metal that metallurgists can specify. Pound for pound it equals the metal in any car built.

The Maxwell is made of light-weight but strong metals.

They had to be light because the mission of the Maxwell is economical transportation.

They had to be strong because the Maxwell is built to carry just as heavy a passenger load over the same roads and at the same speed as any car, despite its price or size.

Any engineer will tell you that in getting that rare combination of strength with lightness high prices must be paid for the metals.

Their use, however, repays the makers of the Maxwell in many ways because each car each day is winning friends.

To-day these friendships, expressed in terms of cars, are well on the road to 400,000.

You cannot go back of these numbers any more than you can go back of the fact that the sun rises in the morning.

They tell the story; and it's largely a story of what the Maxwell is made of—fine metals.

SUSSEX MILITARY CAMP CANCELLED

Superintendent R. Z. Walker Tells at Inquest of the Efforts To Save Trainman's Life

Ordered Cars Upset Into River, But This Was Impossible Owing to Insufficient Power of Crane—John Price Told of Estabrooks Begging to Have Leg Sawed Off

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Marysville, N. B., May 26.—The coroner's inquest into the death of John T. Estabrooks and Frank J. Gillis on May 10th was resumed before Coroner B. M. Mullin last evening in the Odd Fellows' Hall. At the opening of the session F. H. Peters informed the court that he had been retained by G. M. McDade, of Chatham, to act as counsel for the family of the late F. J. Gillis. C. D. Richards, of Fredericton, was present representing J. B. Dickson, for the railway brotherhood.

The first witness called was Benjamin J. Morris, who teseified as follows: I am section foreman on the C. N. R. The scene of the accident is in my section. My duties are repairing and taking charge of the track. I patrol the road every day, Sunday excepted, between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. I passed over the bridge about 5 p. m. on May 8. Considerable rain fell on Sunday, over half an inch I should say, but I did not think this unusual. The road is patrolled every Sunday, the regular section men taking Sunday about. Sunday, May 9, it was Tom Wade's turn to patrol the road, and he reported nothing unusual in connection with the road to me. I arrived at the scene of the accident about 8.20 a. m., and here the witness described the scene of the wreck. He then described the work of the auxiliary crew under charge of T. Murray Brewer, but nothing new was brought forth in this evidence.

To Mr. Richards the witness stated that he thought the cause of the wreck was the jam piers giving away, and a jam of logs moving out causing a strong back current which washed away the fill. He also stated that in winter season it was a rule to patrol the track prior to the first train going over it in the morning. This rule also applies to cases of exceptionally severe weather conditions.

Conductor T. M. Brewer.

T. M. Brewer, of North Devon, was the next witness. He stated that on the morning of May 10 he received a telephone message from Despatcher Burns of the C.N.R. that a bad wreck had occurred at the Nashwaak bridge, above Marysville, and to come as quickly as possible to go out with the auxiliary train. This was about 6 a. m. He started on his bicycle for the station at South Devon, and on his way called up some of the auxiliary crew. He arrived at the station about 6.20. The auxiliary train was on the siding in Miles' field. The auxiliary train left South Devon at 7.30 a. m. and arrived at the scene of the wreck about 7.45 a. m. When asked why so much time had elapsed from the time he received the message until the auxiliary had left, Mr. Brewer explained that, owing to congestion in the Marysville yard, it was necessary to bring the cars belonging to the wrecked train back to South Devon before the track was clear for traffic. When asked the lifting capacity of the crane, he stated about 45 or 50 tons with all outriggers out. The crane was an old one which was brought from the main line last fall and had undergone some necessary repairs in the shops at Devon. Mr. Brewer then told of the lines which had been attached to the engine and the box car. When asked why a strain had not been taken on the line attached to the engine, he said the men who were working trying to get Estabrooks released had told him not to do so for fear it would cause the engine to roll over into the river, in which case Estabrooks, and possibly those about him, would be buried beneath it in the water. He stated that an attempt was made to upset a box car loaded with pulp into the Nashwaak, but that the crane had not sufficient power to do so owing to the position of the cars. He stated that the crane had sufficient power for ordinary work, but had not sufficient power to do any good in this case.

Mr. Brewer told of the efforts made to get Estabrooks freed from the position in which he was, which coincided with former evidence.

Cross examined by Mr. Peters he stated that he had been wrecking foreman for four or five years on the C. N. R. When asked why the empty gondola of which two wheels were off the track, was not thrown clear of the track instead of being righted and then hauled to the Marysville yards he stated that it would take much less time to haul it to the siding at Marysville than to upset it off the track. When asked what had been done to relieve Estabrooks he stated that everybody was doing the best to help. Although the cross examination was lengthy no new facts were brought forth. To Mr. Richards, Brewer stated that in order to lift the engine and tender from its position in the river, it was necessary to bring a 120 ton crane frfom Moncton to assist the crane already here. He also described the manner in which the lifting of the engine was carried out. When asked if he had seen or heard anyone trying or planning to lay a temporary track he stated that he had helped to carry rails and ties forward for that purpose, but owing to the condition of the roadbed it would be impossible to get within 120 feet of where the engine lay, and the crane would have no lifting power whatever on account of there being not support for its arms and all that might possibly be done was to take a pull on it and this was deemed inadvisable, consequently tthe temporary track was not laid.

R. Z. Walker Gives Evidence.

R. Z. Walker, assistant superintendent on the C. N. R. on this sub-division, was the next witness. Mr. Walker stated that he received a telephone message from Dispatcher Burns shortly afer six o'clock on the morning of May 10, informing him of the wreck. He hurried out as soon as possible and proceeded to the station at Fredericton where he found the "Whooper." He started on foot across the railway bridge, arriving at South Devon about 6.30, passing the suburban train on the bridge. On reaching the dispatcher's office he was told that the suburban had been sent over for the doctors. In a few minutes the suburban with Doctors McNally and Ross arrived, and he went with them to the scene of the wreck, arriving about 6.55.

On arriving at the scene of the wreck Mr. Walker described what he saw. His description tallied with that previously given. He stated that in order to clear the track he decided to haul the balance of the wrecked train back to Marysville, but found it necessary to take it to Devon, as the Marysville sidings could not accommodate it. Immediately after arriving at Devon the auxiliary train started for the scene of the wreck and he went along with it, arriving about 7.15. Mr. Walker then told of the efforts made to release Estabrooks, and of the plans suggested to remove the cars which were piled against the engine and tender. He stated that he ordered the cars to be upset into the river, but this was found impossible, owing to the insufficient power of the crane. He also told about placing the gondola on the track and stated that by taking it to Marysville yard time would be saved. He also told of the proposal to lay the temporary track and the reason why it was not feasible. He stated that before the track would be safe to run the crane out on opposite to the wreck, it would take ten or twelve hours provided that the necessary material was on hand. He further stated that the fill on the west side of the bridge was made up of rock and ballast from the Boleestown gravel pit, which contained the best ballast on this sub-division.

Cross-examined by Mr. Richards he described the position in which he saw Estabrooks, and said that on inquiry he had been told that no person knew where Gillis was. When asked about throwing the box cars into the river he stated, "I ordered them to throw them over as it was not a case of cars but a man's life we were thinking about."

To Mr. Peters he stated, "I saw Dr. McNally and Dr. Ross there, but did not see them go near enough to Estabrooks to touch him or make any effort to extricate him. Dr. McIntyre was the only doctor I saw attending to Estabrooks. Everybody seemed to me to be doing all they knew to help extricate Estabrooks. Gillis' body was taken out from under the engine about an hour after Estabrooks' body was removed." Further cross-examination produced no new developments.

John Price, who lives directly opposite the scene of the wreck, on the eastern side of the Nashwaak, was the next witness and stated that he was standing in his yard when the light engine which preceded the freight train passed over the bridge. After it had passed he saw a quantity of fresh dirt on the western end of the embankment, but as the morning was foggy he could not see clearly just what amount of the fill had given away. He saw the freight train go over the embankment and was first to get to Estabrooks. Later Mr. Nash and his son arrived with a boat and he joined them in trying to locate what was holding Estabrooks. Estabrooks asked if some one would not get a saw and cut his leg off. Dr. McIntyre, who was administering stimulants to Estabrooks, asked where a saw could be got, and someone said there was one in the tool box in the van. The saw was brought and Dr. McIntyre ordered it thoroughly sterilized. Price took the saw to Charles Finnamore's and had it sterilized, also bringing back all the hot water he could carry. On returning he placed the saw on a box car, informing the doctor of the fact. The saw was not then used to take the leg off. Price remained with Estabrooks until he died at 9.20. He did not know who amputated the leg, but he thought it took 15 to 20 minutes to cut it off, as owing to the position Estabrooks was in the saw could not be used below the knee.

To Mr. Richards he described the position of Estabrooks in the water and of how his foot was caught.

It was 12 o'clock when Mr. Price finished his evidence, and the hearing was adjourned until Friday evening. Eight or ten more witnesses are still to be examined.

BORROWED CLOTHES TO WIN BACK WIFE

Colored Man Objected to His Clothes Being Used and an Arrest Followed

A colored man from Devon, who had been arrested on a warrant issued upon the information of another colored man, well known in this city, appeared before Police Magistrate Limerick yesterday afternoon on a charge of assault and was fined $5 or twenty days in jail. Not having the money he was marched off to jail.

The cause of the scrap between the two was explained in court and it was learned that the prisoner, who had been separated from his wife for some time, borrowed the clothes of the assaulted one in order to visit his spouse in an attempt to settle affairs between them and bring her back to live with him. His wife, it was stated, had inherited "some property" from her, mother, who died since the separation. When the colored man, whose clothes had been borrowed, learned of the use to which they were applied, he rebelled and a lively scrap ensued between them. The two appeared at Devon before Magistrate Jeffrey who, it was said, told them to fight it out. Later the owner of the clothes swore out a warrant before Magistrate Limerick for the arrest of the second man.

The owner of the clothes stated that he had had enough of jail and was not looking for any more trouble of that kind, so he decided to use the law to get back at the prisoner for the assault, instead of continuing the scrap.

The Clark Case Starts Tomorrow

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Grand Falls, N. B., May 26.—The preliminary examination of Newman Clark, of Four Falls, N. B., the young farmer who is charged with the murder of Phoebe Bell, a popular young woman of this place on March 25th last, will open here tomorrow morning.

Police Magistrate Kelly will conduct the examination and the case is due to open at 10 o'clock. Incidentally Peter Dubois, of Grand Anse, Madawaska county, who was identified by Clark as one of his "kidnappers" the night the alleged murderer suddenly disappeared from Dr. Puddington's private hospital at Grand Falls, when he was generally supposed to be in a serious state as a result of self-inflicted wounds following the shooting of the Bell girl.

The case has thus been postponed for almost two months to allow Clark to recover sufficiently to be able to come to court, and he is being brought here today from the Victoria county jail at Andover. Attorney General Byrne will be here to conduct the preliminary examination and Hon. W. P. Jones, K. C., of Woodstock, is to appear for Clark. It is not expected that the cases will take very long, as the crown will doubtless have little difficulty in establishing a prima facie case, and the defence will probably not make a fight at the preliminary examination as that would involve revealing their plan of action.

It is therefore expected that the interesting part of this case will not develop until it comes before the Victoria Circuit Court at Andover on September 28th, when Mr. Justnce Chandler is to preside.

There has been no action taken regarding the vacancy which has existed for more than three years in the representation of Carleton County in the Legislature, no writ having been issued for the election of a successor to the late G. L. White, who died soon after the general election in 1916.

GREAT BRITAIN IS NOT MILITARIST

Sir Auckland Geddes Says Britain is Trying to Pour Oil on Troubled Waters

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

New York, May 26.—Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States, made a sweeping denial before the Pilgrim Club that Great Britain was seeking to monopolize the world's fuel supply.

"If you will look closely you will find my government trying to pour oil on the troubed waters of Europe and you will also find onlookers who seize the oil as it is poured and throw it on the fire of anti-British feeling here," said Sir Auckland.

Regarding Britain's navy policy, he said that while more than a thousand ships, including battle cruisers, were under construction when the armistice was signed, one cruiser, the Hood, too far advanced to permit of cancellation, was the only major ship completed.

"The British army and air force had been even more drastically dealt with," Sir Auckland continued, and added:

"It is no business of mine to compare these facts with the corresponding action of any other nation, but I ask you who know yourselves to be non-militarist to contrast them with your own national acts, if you are tempted to think Britain militarist."

Elimination Contests Start to Select Olympic Team for France

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Strasbourg, Alsace-Lorraine, May 26.—No records were broken at the Olympic games eliminations trials just concluded here, except that for the number of athletes engaged in any athletic tournament in France.

Seven hundred and fifty-three young men and women participated. From these two hundred have been chosen and will compete at the Joinville school near Paris next June for the honor of representing France at the Antwerp Olympic games.

Paoli, champion weight thrower of France, broke his own record with a throw of fourteen metres fifty decimetres, only to have the judges decide after the games were over that the record should not stand, as the weight was 300 grammes short of the regulation 16 pounds.

Peter Allen, of Dorchester, now owns Andy Ashland, 2.10¼, and expects to have considerable fun besides getting a little money with this now 2.16 pacer.

THE BISSEL

"THE KING OF DISC HARROWS"

We have just received a large shipment of the well known Bissell Disc Harrow and would like to point out to you the distinguishing features which make it the "King of Disc Harrows."

The Beam or Arch is directly over the Gangs, making the BISSELL lighter on the horses necks than any other Out-Throw Harrow on the market.

One gang is set slightly ahead of the other. On this Harrow the gangs do not crowd or bump together.

Has two levers for use on side hills. Gangs work close together in the centre. Hitch is well back. There is no neck weight. The Draught is light.

In all BISSELL Disc Harrows the end thrust is taken by the frame and bearings which makes the draught easy. The gangs are free to cultivate down to the bottom of a furrow or other hollow. The Levers are long, with a good sweep, making it the easiest of Disc Harrows to handle and operate.

The BISSELL is made of the very best of material throughout. We are able to furnish you this Harrow with either 12 or 14 disc; the discs are 16 in. in diameter.

Fredericton Will Have Three Harness Meetings

New Management Soon to Have Programme Ready For Season

STRONG LINK IN M. & M. CIRCUIT

Hearty Co-operation of Circuit Members Given New Management.

The new Board of Directors of the Fredericton Park Association are expected to complete the racing programme for the local season at their first formal meeting since their election to be held this evening.

Because of the delay in overcoming various obstacles in putting the Association back upon a proper and legal basis the new management find themselves unertaking the staging of the season's racing under a distinct disadvantage, but with thte hearty co-operation of the various tracks of the Maritime & Maine Circuit it is believed the local track will prove one of the strongest links in the M. & M. chain.

At Woodstock this week President P. S. Watson and other representatives of the new management of the local track were in conference with various horsemen from Aroostook county, as well as the several trainers with stables at Woodstock, and plans are already under way which assure a large entry for the two circuit meetings to be staged in Fredericton during the weeks of July 25th and September 19th.

The "Curtain Raiser."

Announcements of a "curtain raiser" meeting to precede the opening of the Maritime & Maine Circuit were made on behalf of the Fredericton Park Association some time ago, a programme was outlined and it was said that various horsemen had been writing to the association making suggestions as to classes they desired and so forth. Then some changes were made in the original programme because, it was said, certain horsemen had made suggestions. The engagement of a starter was also announced and finally a statement was made that arrangements had been made for the meeting to be a benefit for the Victoria Hospital fund.

The new officers elected by the shareholders of the Fredericton Park Association so far have been unable to secure any records or correspondence from the previous management, but in spite of that are now going ahead to put on the "curtain raiser" meeting and the horsemen have been notified that all arrangements made by the previous management will be carried out insofar as reasonably possible. It is realized, however, that with several other meetings on Dominion Day it will be a difficult proposition at the best to get a large number of horses to race here the latter part of the week preceding the opening of the circuit at Houlton on July 5th and 6th.

However, the new management are prepared to carry out the obligations they have assumed and it is likely that a programme of six races on the thre-heats plan will be offered for June 30th and July 1st and, if announcements made by the previous management that various stables were coming here to start the season prove true, there are good prospects of a successful meeting being held. Correspondence is being carried on with Frank Fox at Combination Park, Boston; Irving Pottle at Portland, Me.; R. Potvin at Valleyfield, P. Q.; W. W. Bowser at Combination Park, Boston, and various other campaigning horsemen with a view to having them come to Fredericton for the "curtain raiser" meeting.—J. D. B.

HOOF PRINTS.

Cochato Chief, a trotter that matineed in 2.16¾ at South Weymouth last year, has been placed in Henry Tiler's stable at Readville.

The roan trotter mare L. E. O., 2.07¼, has been bred to Captain Volo, 2.10¼, but will continue in training.

A. B. Coxe, the wonderfully successful Paoli, Penn., breeder, uses Peter Thompson, 2.07½, the Kentucky Futurity winner of 1911, on the road.

Raymond Bickford is training Valley Forbes, 2.18¼, and four others at the Rochester Fair track for Harry Hayes, of East Rochester, N. H.

Fred Hyde expects to race Oscar Watts, 2.07¼; Prince Pepper, 2.09¼; Gold Belle, 2.15¼; Adelaide Guy, 2.18¼, and Eliza Dillon at Findlay this week.

Mary Kenna, the 2-year-old daughter of San Francisco, 2.07¾, and Bondella, 2.07¾, was given a record of 2.28¼ last week at Arden, Penn.

Miss Hellmont, 2.11¼, the crack 3-year-old pacer on the Pacific Coast Circuit last season, has been purchased by John Pender, Johnstown, N. Y.

Over in Philadelphia they think Joe Serrill will ride behind one of the 3-year-old stake of the campaign, Sister Bertha, 2.09, sister to Miss Bertha Dillon, 2.02½.

Peter Farren at Moosepath

Peter Farren, 2.07 1-2, the St. John free for aller, is to be taken to Moosepath Park today by William Brickley, the well known St. John trainer, and will get the first of his preparation there. Later, it is expected, he will come to Fredericton.

Alcy E., 2.10 1-4, now eligible to the 2.16 class, Singer, 2.15 1-4, and "Kid" Dryden's new horses, including King Wilkes, 2.09 1-4, are all at Moosepath Park and the new management of the Fredericton Park Association have been advised that along in June they will all be shipped to Fredericton, making their first start at the "curtain raiser" meeting here.—J. HUN COALITION EXPECTS TO WIN

The Three Parties Forming the Government View the Elections With Complacency

Berlin, May 25—Leaders of the coalition of three parties now in control of the German government profess confidence that these parties, the Majority Socialists, German Democrats and Christian Peoples' Party, or Clericals, will continue in control as a result of the general election to be held June 6. This election will choose members of the first regular National Assembly under the republican constitution.

These leaders concur in saying that probably the Majority Socialists, who now have 165 seats, will lose one-third of these to the Independent Socialists, who are expected to emerge from the balloting with seventy members of the Assembly, instead of twenty-two, which they now have. The political leaders say the communists probably will have five representatives in the new Parliament, as the German bolshevists are well supplied with money, although their party organization is not wholly intact.

The ultra reds expect to benefit through the recent rioting in the Ruhr and Saxon districts, while the Democratic and Clerical leaders say they expect to retain their present representation.

There is a strong effort being made by the Conservative Clericals in the direction of inducing the National Liberals to join the coalition bloc not only for the purpose of fortifying it numerically, as set off to the losses expected to be incurred by the Majority Socialists, but also because the Clericals feel the need of moral support in new quarters for their church school policies, in defence of which they are virtually deserted by the Democrats and basically opposed by the Majority Socialists.

One of the most influential of the Clerical leaders is making overtures to Gustav Stresemann, the National Liberal leader, to induce him to pool issues with the coalition block.

No Lower Prices Until the Production Equals Demand

Dr. Robertson's Statement After Tour of Europe and Canada—Nation Must Spend Wisely But Courageously and Generously on Education and Agriculture

Ottawa, May 25.—That it is useless to look for an immediate remedy for the present high cost of living, simply because the world's production of foodstuffs is not nearly equal to the demand, was the gist of an interview here with Dr. J. W. Robertson, C.M.G., who was sent overseas by the Canadian Government to look into after-war food problems, and who has just completed a tour of the Dominion in an effort to get the people to understand the real nature of the country's most pressing duty and opportunity at the present time.

Dr. Robertson recently predicted that farmers would continue to receive high prices for their products for the next two years. The announcement of the value of the participation certificates issued by the Wheat Board supports this view, and, according to his opinion now, there is still great need for increased production before any decline in prices can be looked for.

No Instantaneous Remedy.

"People are impatient of explanation of present conditions. What they want is an immediate remedy. But the consequences of four years of losses, destruction and waste cannot be remedied in a twinkling," says Dr. Robertson.

Whole world conditions must be taken into consideration when the broad question of food supplies is being examined, according to Dr. Robertson, and the policies of European Governments will have much to do with what is likely to happen to Canada's wheat crops after they are garnered for the next two years at least. There has been no attempt, he says, by any of the Allied Governments to reduce the prices paid to their farmers for products; on the contrary, they have guaranteed minimum prices, the evident conclusion being that they wish to encourage in every possible way this most necessary industry of agriculture. He refers to greater production of food as the prime need of the world today.

Must Spend Courageously.

A great mistake likely to be committed in the name of retrenchment or economy, according to Dr. Robertson, is a penny wise and pound foolish policy in regard to education and agriculture. The nation must spend wisely, but generously and courageously, on both these matters. He says: "As for the individual as well as the nation, there is only one safe course to follow, to work diligently with intelligence, to live economically and to waste nothing."

It had been estimated that no less than 40,000,000 workers were taken away from productive work on farms by the war. The primary cause of the high cost of living was that there was not enough of the necessary commodities to go around, and the fear that there will not be enough to meet the actual needs. A secondary cause was the depreciation in the value of buying power of the unit of money. Many of those who received greatly increased wages, because of the reduced value of money, were led to spend freely and wastefully. That aggravates the scarcity. No one could foretell with any certainty the prices which millions of workers in some European countries will be able to pay for their necessary supplies. All that one can state with reasonable certainty, is that it will likely take at least two years, 1920 and 1921, for the production of breadstuffs to meet the world's requirements and leave over a moderate reserve as security against scarcity the following year; that it will be many years before the world's production of milk, butter and cheese can adequately meet the demands; and that several years must pass before the supplies of cattle and hog production can be sufficient.

Farmers may depend upon being able to obtain the highest prices which the world's markets will afford. Canadian farm products have a preference in the markets of Great Britain, because of their known superior quality, and in other European markets they are sure of at least an equality in price with the products imported from any other country.

Imperfectly Organized.

Canada must rely, in the main, on the improvement of agriculture and the further development of her other natural resources and industries to enable her to maintain stable conditions of prosperity to pay her way as a nation and to pay her public debt. Moreover, in the keener competitions she is sure to meet in the world's markets, she cannot expect to hold her place unless her people are well-informed, as well-trained and as well-organized as others.

On the productive side of her agriculture, Canada is, as yet, very imperfectly and incompletely organized. Locally it seemed to him there should be a neighborhood improvement association, grouped around an illustration farm, in every community of farmers in Canada. That would be one means whereby the people would organize themselves so that the ability of the natural leaders of the locality would be brought into full use and full play for the benefit of the neighbors, the development of the leaders themselves and the improvement of the community. Such a scheme of organization might increase the annual value of the output of the farms by from 20 per cent. upwards. That estimate was based on knowledge of what had already been accomplished in the neighborhood of illustration farms, under the commission of conservation. At the current range of prices, 20 per cent. increase would represent between $300,000,000 and $350,000,000 annually. Education and agriculture were Canada's most profitable and beneficial forms of national investment.

U. S. AND BRITAIN TO PULL TOGETHER

Sir Arthur Shirley Benn Speaks of the Good Feeling Between the Two Countries

Leeds, Eng., May 25.—Sir Arthur Shirley Benn, who was head of the British mission to the International Trade Conference at Atlantic City last fall, has just told the members of the Luncheon Club that he believed the United States and Great Britain would continue to "pull together." If so, he said, he thought they and their Allies would be able too reconstitute Europe and get back to former conditions of trade.

A great many people had said there was no chance of Great Britain and the United States pulling together, because they were too much alike—too impetuous and aggressive. He did not believe it. He had known America since 1877 and had never known a better feeling to exist ebtween England and America than exists today among the people who counted.

There were in America, he said, pro-Germans, Sinn Feiners, and others—"wild men who were trying to uproot the whole American Constitution." There were people who were working, with pro-Germans and Sinn Feiners, to do all they could against England. But they would not succeed, he said. The class of people in America who were descended from Anglo-Saxon stock were not going to give up the government of the country to any "mixed cosmopolitan body of people like the Bolshevists and their class who were making the trouble in America today."

The bulk of the people of the United States, he declared, had the most absolute faith in the honesty, courage and determination of John Bull. Great Britain, he said, owed America a big debt, but the Allies owed this country a larger one.

ZIMMERMAN GIRL DECLARED SANE

Springfield, Mass., May 25.—That Miss Jennie Zimmerman was perfectly sane when she shot Dr. Henry Zimmerman last August, and that she is sane today, was the statement of Dr. L. V. Briggs, alienist for the commonwealth, on the witness stand today in the resumption of the trial of Miss Zimmerman for the murder of the physician. The shooting was the act of a jealous, emotional woman, he testified.

Dr. Briggs is the last of four alienists called in the case, two by the commonwealth and two by the defence.

Ottawa, May 25. — Substantial increases in the grain crops of India and Argentina are estimated for the coming season by the International Institute of Agriculture. The corn crop of Argentina is estimated at 258,692,000 bushels, compared with 224,000,000 last year and a five year average of 196,000,000 yearly.

IN DAYS OF TERROR

Maurice presented his breast, expecting every moment the sword, of which he had only felt the point, would be plunged into his heart.

"Is this true?" said a voice full of emotion; "let us see, young man, that you lie not."

"Feel in my pocket," said Maurice, "and you will there find my commission. Look upon my breast, and if not effaced by my blood, you will see my initials, an M and L embroidered on my shirt."

Maurice felt himself immediately raised by strong arms, and carried to some distance. He first heard one door open, then a second, which he knew was narrower than the first, from the trouble the men found in carrying him through. The murmuring and whispering continued.

"I am lost!" said Maurice to himself; 'they will fasten a stone round my neck and cast me into the Briere.'

In an instant he felt the men who bore him were mounting some steps. A warmer air fanned his face, and he was placed upon a seat. He heard a door double locked, and the sound of departing steps. He fancied he was left alone. He listened with as much attention as was possibile in a man whose life hung upon a word, and thought he again heard the voice which had already struck upon his ear say, with a mixture of decision and mildness, "We will deliberate."

CHAPTER VIII.

Genevieve.

A quarter of an hour passed away; it appeared an age to Maurice. And what more natural? Young, handsome, anad vigorous, highly beloved and esteemed by a hundred devoted friends, with whom he sometimes dreamed of accomplishing great things, he felt himself suddenly, without preparation, liable to lose his life—the victim of a base ambuscade. He knew no one was shut in the chamber, but was he watched? He again exerted all his strength to break his bonds, till his iron muscles swelled, and the cords entered his flesh, but this, like all his former efforts, was useless.

It was the more terrible his hands being tied behind, he was unable to draw up his bandage. If he were only able to see, he might perhaps be able to escape. However, as these various attempts were made wkhout opposition, and hearing no one stirring, he concluded he was quite alone.

His feet pressed upon smething soft and heavy, it might be gravel or perhaps clay. An acrid and pungent smell announced the presence of vegetable matter. Maurice fancied he was in a greenhouse, or some place very like it. He took a step or two, hit the wall, turned, and, graping with his hands, felt some garden tools. He uttered an exclamation of joy. With unparalleled exertion he began to examine these tools, one after the other. His flight now became a question of time. If chance or Providence granted him five minutes, and if among these tools he found a sharp instrument, he was saved. He found a spade. From the way in which Maurice was bound, it required a great struggle to raise the spade a sufficient height for his purpose. He at length succeeded, and, upon the iron of the spade which he supported against the wall with his back, he at last cut, or rather wore away, the cord which confined his wrists. The operation was tedious; the iron cut slowly. The perspiration streamed from his face, he heard a noise as of some one aproaching; with a tremendous effort the cord (rather worn) broke. This time it was a cry of joy he gave utterance to; now at least he was sure to die in defending himself. Maurice tore the bandage from his eyes. He was not deceived, but found himself in a kind of not greenhouse but pavilion, used as a receptacle for the more delicate plants, unable to outlive the winter in the open air. In a corner the gardening implements were stowed away, which had been the means of rendering him so important a service. Facing him was a window; he glanced towards it, and saw it was grated, and a man armed with a carbine placed sentinel before it.

On the other side of the garden, about thirty paces distant, perhaps rather less, rose a small turret, fellow to the one where Maurice remained a prisoner. The blind was down, but through the blind a light was visible.

He approached the door and listened, another sentinel was placed before this door. These were the footsteps he had heard. But from the end of the corridor a confusion of voices resounded. The deliberation had evidently degenerated into disputation.

Maurice could not hear distinctly what was said; some words, however, reached him, and amidst these words—as if for them only the distance was short—he distinguished plainly, Spy! Poniard! Death! Maurice redoubled his attention, a door opened, and he hear more distinctly.

'Yes," said one voice, 'it is assuredly a spy; he has discovered something, and is certainly sent to take us and our secret unawares. In freeing him we run the risk of his denouncing us."

"But his word," said a voice.

"His word—he will give it only to betray it. Is he a gentleman, that we should trust his word?"

Maurice ground his teeth at the idea which some folks still retained, that only a gentleman could keep his oath.

'But he does not know us; how can he denounce us?"

'No, he does not know us certainly, nor our occupations, but he knows the address, and will return; this time he will be well accompanied."

This argument appeared conclusive.

'Then," said a voice, which several times alreaady had struck Maurice as belonging to the chief; 'it is then quite decided."

"Yes, a hundred times yes; I do not comprehend you with your magnanimity. Mon cher, if the Committee for the Public Safety caught us, you would see if they acted after this fashion."

'You persist, then ,in your decision, gentlemen?"

"Without doubt, and you are not, we hope, going to oppose it?"

"I have only one voice, gentlemen, it has been in favor of his liberation; you possess six, and they all vote for his death. Let it then be death."

Maurice felt the blood freeze in his veins.

"Of course he will howl and cry,' said the voices; "but have you removed Madame Dixmer?"

"Madame Dixmer!" murmured Maurice; 'I begin now to comprehend I am in the house of the master tanner, who spoke to me in the old Rue Saint Jacques, and who went away laughing because I was unable to tell him the name of my friend. But how the devil can it be to his interest to assassinate me?"

Looking round about him, Maurice perceived an iron stake with a handle of ash-tree wood.

"In any case," said he, "before they assassinate me, I will kill more than one of them."

And he sprang to secure this harmless instrument, which, in his hand, was to become a formidable weapon. He then retired behind the door, and so placed himself that he could see without being seen. His heart beat so tumultuously, that in the deep silence its palpitations might be heard. Suddenly Maurice shuddered from head to foot. A voice had said—

"If you act according to my advice, you will break a window, and through the bars kill him with a soht from a carbine."

"Oh! no, no—not an explosion," said another voice; "that might betray us. Besides, Dixmer, there is your wife."

W. F. M'LEAN JOINS FARMERS' CLUB

Toronto, May 25.—W. F. MacLean, Unionist member for South York, has joined the Don Mills club of the U. F. O., and it is reported that were the U.F.O. nomination to come his way it would not be proffered in vain. All the Yorks are organizing for a federal election, and a U.F.O.-Labor candidate will be placed in West York to contest the seat now occupied by Capt. Tom Wallace.

Farmers in North York have planned a series of political picnics for this summer, and are more confident than ever that their standard bearer, R.W.E. Burnaby, president of the U. F. O., will defeat W. L. Mackenzie-King, if the Liberal leader adheres to his expressed intention of running there.

SILLY TO PUT THE BAN ON BARE LEGS

Washington, May 25—Bare legs and scanty one piece bathing suits will be permitted this summer at Chesapeake Bay, the capital's seashore resort. Officials today agreed to disregard as precedents the prohibitory orders issued at Coney Island and Atlantic City against daring bathing costumes.

"It's silly to put the ban on bare legs," they said. "And if any of the girls want to cut the high cost of dressing, the police won't say a word."

GENERAL VILLA DEFIES ENEMIES

El Paso, Texas, May 25.—Gen. Villa, bidding defiance to the newest Mexican government, again has become an outlaw among his own people.

The bandit, with a small force of men, was reported today between Parral and Jimeniz, Chihuahua, the hunted quarry of de facto troops, with a price of 100,000 pesos on his head.

Condition is Critical

The many friends of William O'Keefe, who is in the General Public Hospital, will be sorry to learn that his condition was considered very critical at an early hour this morning. Mr. O'Keefe was badly burned when he was taken with a fainting spell and fell against a lamp in his room, setting fire to his clothing. His wife was fatally burned last winter.—St. John Telegraph.

Had Successful Trip.

The Junior Mission Band of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, which made such a decided hit when they put on the musical drama Bringing Up Father, returned last evening from Campbellton, where on Monday evening they played to a crowded house, clearing over $300. After the performance the young ladies and gentlemen were entertained by Mrs. Frank Sheppard, formerly Miss Muttie Cameron, of this city.

Fire at Nashwaaksis Mill.

The Hawkins mill at Nashwaaksis was in danger of destruction last night when, at 12 o'clock, the night watchman, Clowes Hallet, in making his rounds, observed that a sawdust pile near the furnace had caught fire and was blazing. The blaze spread to the side of the boiler house before it was checked by a stream of water from the hose which had been coupled up by the watchman. Had it not been for his prompt action the fire would have swept the whole building and destroyed it.

The Civic Playgrounds.

The civic playgrounds committee met last evening at the Mayor's office in the City Hall building to settle all outstanding debts against the committee. Those who held bills against the committee were asked to attend the meeting last evening and present their bills in person. Among those to whom bills were owing was Frank B. Horncastle and he, rather than have the committee pay the bill, let the amount stand to be used in the work on the playgrounds. The total sum paid out by the committee was in the vicinity of $75.

A NEW FLOORING FOR THE HIGHWAY BRIDGE PROMISED

Hon. P. J. Veniot Announces Plans for Creosoted Flooring Here

ROAD CONTRACTS TO BE AWARDED TODAY

Minister Declares the Roads Were Not Much Damaged by Spring Break-up

Hon. P. J. Veniot, Minister of Public Works, is here today taking up the awarding of contracts for permanent roads under the Federal Highways Aid Act and before night it is likely that several contracts will have been awarded.

Incidentally Hon. Mr. Veniot announced that a creosoted floor which should last at least twenty years is to be placed on the Fredericton-Devon highway bridge across the St. John river here, reference having been made in The Gleaner yesterday to the serious state into which the flooring had been allowed to get.

"The Department has been endeavoring for the last year to get proper and suitable lumber for the flooring of this bridge and notwithstanding that tenders were called for on two different occasions no offers were received," said Hon. Mr. Veniot. "The bridge will not support a permanent concrete flooring but plans are now being worked out for the laying of a creosoted floor, somewhat similar to the one recently placed on the International Bridge at St. Stephen. This flooring cannot be laid this year but in the meantime the present flooring will receive such attention as to eliminate any cause of danger to traffic. The new flooring should last at least twenty years."

"All I can say is that I am satisfied," was the Minister's reply when asked respecting the report of Chairman Campbell and members of the Federal Highways Commission as a result of the recent tour of the commissioners, which concluded last Saturday at Campbellton.

The Minister stated that he had been over a large mileage of roads in the Province and "notwithstanding the severe winter the roads were in splendid shape." The early spring break up and freshets did some damage to the roads in the hilly sections of the country, he said, but "the patrol system, inaugurated last year, was successful in having the affected sections repaired." It was the first time in the history of the Province, he stated, that previous to May 20th automobile traffic had been maintained on all the trunk and secondary roads of the Province, as well as a large mileage of the branch roads.

SMALL MARKER TODAY

Farmers Too Busy Seeding to Bring Their Produce to Town This Morning

The country market today was a very small one. Only about twelve farmers came to market this morning, everyone being busily engaged in seeding.

The supply of produce was not equal to the demand and in consequence prices were on the upward trend. Butter brought 50c and 55c a pound, while eggs sold all the way from 45c. to 55c. a dozen. Potatoes, while not plentiful, sold at $8 per barrel.

The prevailing prices today were:
Veal, per pound, 12 to 16c.
Beef, per pound, 12 to 18c.
Fowl, per pound, 40 to 45c.
Butter, per pound, 50 to 55c.
Eggs, per doz., 45 to 55c.
Potatoes, per barrel, $8 to $9.
Live pigs, each, $6 to $8.

The Brat is Delayed.

On account of a tie-up between Montreal and this city "The Brat" the big special Nazimova production advertised to be shown at the Gaiety today, will not be shown here until Thursday. Dustin Farnum, the popular Paramount star, will be featured, today only, in "A Man in the Open," from the famous story by Roger Pocock.

On Departmental Business.

Forest Fires Destroy Mill At Rollingdam; Situation in New Brunswick is Serious

Smith and Doten Suffer $20,000 Loss When Their Mill is Burned—Other Big Fires on Taxis and Restigouche Rivers—Note of Warning Sounded

A note of warning respecting the forest fires situation in New Brunswick was sounded at the Department of Lands and Mines this morning.

So far this season approximately seventy-five forest, brush and slash fires have been reported to the department, but it was not until today that reports of fires in the green woods of the heavily timbered Crown Lands commenced to come in.

There are fires raging now in practically every forest section of the province, and unless heavy rains come within the next day or two it is feared the situation will become extremely critical. Hundreds of men are fighting the various fires, and the lookout towers—the eyes of the forest protective service—have been proving their value; but it was declared this morning that greater care must be exercised by settlers, fishing parties and others in the woods or there will be tremendous losses incurred.

Twelve Prosecutions Promised.

Already information has reached the Department of Lands and Mines upon which to base prosecutions to the number of a dozen or more as a result of the fires which have already occurred, three of these cases being from Madawaska county, several from the Tobique and others from various sections of the province. These cases, it is understood, are largely the result of settlers lighting fires to burn brush and slash without first having secured permits. "Unless there is rain within a very short time I do not hesitate to say that the situation in New Brunswick will become very critical," declared Provincial Forester G. H. Prince this morning.

Three Serious Fires.

The three most serious fires now raging in the province are on the Taxis river, a tributary of the Miramichi; on the Restigouche river, about 25 miles from Kedgewick, where the $150,000 fire occurred last year about this time; and near Rollingdam, Charlotte county, where Smith & Doten's lumber mill was destroyed with a loss of about $20,000. There has as yet been insufficient time to receive reports as to the actual extent of these three fires, but they are known to be extensive and large crews of men are engaged in fighting them.

Among the new fires reported to the Department is one from Sunbury Station, which was reported yesterday afternoon by the Forest Service Railway patrol. Some twenty acres of Crown Lands were reported burned, but as yet no details have been learned, although it was stated the fire was under control. A fire near Crown Lands was also reported from the neighborhood of Rollingdam in Charlotte county, and Chief Scaler A. T. Murchie left last evening for there. This is the fire that destroyed the Smith & Doten mill.

REFUSAL TO TAKE MUNITIONS FOR IRELAND

The National Union of Railwaymen Arrive at Decision at London Conference

WILL ALLOW FOOD SUPPLY FOR TROOPS

The Stoppage of Cargo Boats Will Seriously Affect Irish Industry and Produce

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

London, May 27.—The executives of the National Union of Railwaymen discussed in London yesterday the refusal of the Dublin railwaymen and dockers to handle munitions for English troops in Ireland.

The Transport Workers' Federation also considered the matter, although the interest of this organization is only indirect, as all the men up to the present involved are members of the National Union of Railwaymen.

WORKERS IN DUBLIN ABSOLUTELY REFUSE

It is uncertain how the discussions will affect the situation. In the meantime, the determination of the workers in Dublin and some other Irish centres not to handle munitions is absolute. An instance occurred at Harcourt Station, Dublin, yesterday, when a consignment of munitions taken in an ordinary train for transit to Arklow was held up, the railwaymen refusing to make the trip if the munitions were put aboard. The consignment was then taken back to the military depot and the train proceeded.

The only concession the railwaymen will make is to allow food supplies to be conveyed to the troops.

The Munition Tangle.

The munition tangle has led to a complete stoppage of the cargo service of the London & Northwestern railroad between England and Ireland. The company's dockers refused to unload two of the company's steamers because the cargo of one steamer contained a small consignment of revolvers for the Dublin police. The resultant dispute with the company ended by the men quitting work.

None of the company's cargo steamers crossed the Channel Wednesday. The passenger boats ran as usual, although when the steamer Arvonia arrived at Dublin the passengers were obliged to carry their own baggage ashore, as the baggagemen were absent.

The stoppage of the cargo boats will seriously affect Irish industry, large quantities of dairy produce, fish and cattle being held up at Dublin.

MANY APPLICANTS FOR NEW AIR FORCE

It Will Be Necessary to Obtain Extension of Authorized Strength to Allow All In

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 27.—Lists will close in three days for membership in the new Canadian air force. May 29 is the last day on which applications for membership can be posted to the Air Board in Ottawa. The force is practically over strength already, most of the applicants coming from eastern Canada. It will be necessary to obtain an extension of the authorized strength to take care of all ex-airmen who wish to participate in the voluntary training scheme of the air force at Camp Borden this summer.

The camp will be opened as soon as provincial committees have completed their arrangements, by which air officers will train at their convenience. One hundred and forty new English service machines of the latest type have been recently unpacked.

'It is going to be the best air force in the world," said Commodore A. K. Tylee, the first commander of the force, who visited Ottawa yesterday.

U. S. EXPRESSMEN ASK HIGHER WAGE

Their arms and ammunition were taken and their wives and children turned out, after which the building was burned.

SHIP UNABLE TO DISCHARGE CARGO

Government Steamer Loaded With Munitions at Queenstown Cannot Get Men

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Queenstown, Ireland, May 27.—A government steamer from Woolwich, loaded with munitions, arrived here Tuesday, but was unable to discharge as the dockers and railwaymen refused to handle the cargo. The steamer lies in the harbor alongside a destroyer.

A meeting of railwaymen of all grades, held in Cork, unanimously decided not to handle any munitions in that city.

The railwaymen have withdrawn their refusal to forward the military supplies train which was held up at Kingstown for several days because it was believed to carry munitions. It was disclosed, however, that there was nothing aboard except a hundred tons of fresh beef.

The military authorities last evening allowed the railway union officials to inspect the train thoroughly and the union men found that it contained no war materials, but merely beef for the troops in the southwest. Accordingly the order was given that the train should be despatched at the earliest possible moment.

Thomas Dace Brings Action Against Minister of Interior for Remarks in House

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Edmonton, Alta., May 27.—Thomas Dace, Alberta representative on the Dominion executive of the G.W.V.A., yesterday entered action in the supreme court of Alberta against the Hon. Arthur Meighen, claiming damages to the extent of $10,000. The action is the result of charges made against Dace by the Minister of the Interior on the floor of the Ottawa House on May 7th last, at which time Mr. Meighen declared resolutions prepared by Dace on soldier settlement and presented in G.W.V.A. convention had been actuated by desire for personal gain and were not in the interest of the returned men as a whole.

INCREASE WAGES FOR HONEST WORK

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Chicago, May 27.—The railroads of the United States are not opposed to a fair increase in wages for their employees if the employees guarantee that they will give honest, conscientious work in return, E. T. Whitar, representing the roads, told the railroad labor board yesterday, in finishing the presentation of his reply to the employees' demands.

The High Velocity Anti-Trade Winds Will Carry Machine 250 Miles an Hour

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Cincinnati, O., May 27.—Major W. R. Schroeder, holder of the world's record airplane altitude flight, told members of the Chamber of Commerce, whom he addressed here yesterday, that in a few months he expected to make a high altitude flight across the continent, having breakfast at San Francisco and dinner at New York.

"At an altitude of thirty thousand to thirty five thousand feet," he said, "the high velocity of anti-trade winds alone will carry us over 250 miles an hour, and our engines will add more than a hundred miles an hour to the speed.

"These terrific winds of the upper air will make a morning spin from New York to Paris a common occurrence."

World's Altitude Record.

San Antonio, Texas, May 27.—What is said to be a world's record for an altitude flight with an aeroplane carrying three passengers and pilot was made at Kelley Field late Tuesday, when Lieut. Harry Weddington reached an altitude of 20,081 feet.

The record was made in one hour and 25 minutes of steady climbing. The return trip was made in 15 minutes. A De Havilland Four, Model B., ship, was used, equipped with a barograph to record the altitude.

Loans to Manufacturers in New England and New York Show Contraction

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

New York, May 27.—Bankers and commission agents in the wholesale dry goods district yesterday confirmed reports of further reductions of operations in the textile industry, the silk trade again being most affected.

Cancellation of orders continue in heavy volume, it is said, despite the efforts of converters and jobbers to allay apprehensions.

Loans to manufacturers here and in New England show steady contraction.

There has been heavy buying of domestic silks at greatly reduced prices by retailers, who feature these wears in their price cutting sales.

French Decline in Prices.

Paris, May 27.—Concern is felt in commercial markets throughout France because of a rapid decline in prices of stable commodities.

CANADA'S BILL AGAINST HUNS

Canada Has a Total of $1,871,000,000, But Will Only Get Small Part of It

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 27.—Canada's claim against Germany for reparation for losses sustained by the country and by individual citizens during the war has been forwarded to England for presentation at a conference of representatives of all parts of the British Empire soon to be held in London, and subsequently at an inter-Allied conference at Spa.

This bill rendered by the Dominion is for a total of $1,781,000,000. The total is made up of the following items:

Cost of war and demobilization—$1,715,000,000.

Separation allowances—$85,000,000.

Halifax losses—$30,000,000.

Army of occupation—$8,000,000.

Illegal warfare—$31,500,000.

By Halifax losses is evidently meant the damages occasioned in that city by the explosion of the munition ship Mont Blanc, in 1917.

It is estimated that Canada and other British Dominions will share the indemnity received by the British Empire in the proportion which their expenditures bear to the total expenditures of the Empire.

SPECIALLY MADE CHAIR FOR CANADA

New Canadian Minister to Washington Will Find Seat With Canadian Arms

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Philadelphia, May 27.—A musty diplomatic secret has been disclosed here through the announcement that Canada soon will send its own Minister to Washington. It is that for the last ten years a specially made chair, carved with the Canadian coat of arms, had been waiting in Washington for use of this envoy. Elihu Root, then Secretary of State, ordered the chair, one of many specially designed for the Pan-American union building at the capitol, Andrew Carnegie's memorial to cement more firmly the relations of the Americas.

The story is told by Albert Kelsey, of this city, one of the architects of the Pan-American building, who said:

"Once a month the Ambassadors and Ministers of all the American republics meet and are presided over by our Secretary of State in the Pan-American building and each representative has a chair of his own, with the arms of his country carved on the back.

"Now when these chairs were decided on, Secretary Root asked me to have an aditional one made with the Canadian arms on it, which was done, and which has been hidden for the past ten years, for Secretary Root cautioned me—to use his exact words—to be a 'little reticent about the matter.'"

The Killing of Admiral Kolchak.

Victoria, B. C., May 27.—Details of the killing of Admiral Kolchak, head of the All-Russian government, were given by Capt. W. L. Webb, provost marshal with the British forces in Siberia, who arrived here today on the steamer Malita Maru from Vladivostok. Through treachery, he says, Kolchak was killed by revolutionists. He had been incarcerated with former Premier Peppeliayeff, at Irkutsk. When placed in front of a firing squad the former Premier was shot down when he attempted to escape. Kolchak, denied a trial and the privilege of seeing his wife, coolly smoked a cigarette and awaited the volley. The order of fire was disobeyed by the firing squad, whereupon a commissary strode forward, pushed Kolchak's head back and shot him to death with a revolver.

Kolchak Placed in Cage.

Vancouver, B. Deberg, former member of the Admiral's staff, who arrived yesterday from the Orient on the steamer Manila Maru.

Crowds surrounded the cage, according to Deberg, heaping epithets upon Kolchak and jeering at him.

Previous to Admiral Kolchak's capture, Deberg said, he had journeyed toward the sea coast in an automobile, supposedly under protection of the Allied governments. Deberg escaped at night in a steamer on which all lights were masked, and reached Tokio.

The Vote on Fielding Amendment Will Do Much to Clear the Political Stage and Define the Future Affiliations of Members

At Least Two Supporters of the Unionist Government Have Announced Their Intention of Parting Company, and There is Likely to be a Few Others.—The Position of Rowell, Calder and Sifton in the Cabinet the Subject of Some Speculation at Ottawa.

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Ottawa, May 27.—The Budget debate has now reached a stage when estimates of the vote are beginning to be made.

At this stage the number of those who may part company with the Government is put down as considerably larger than it is at all likely to be eventually. A Liberal Unionist, who is an old hand at the game, made an estimate yesterday of seven, with a possibility of nine who may vote with the Opposition.

The following are the possibilities: Davis, Nepawa; Campbell, Nelson; Cruise, Dauphin; Wright, South Battleford; Argue, Swift Current; Buchanan, Lethbridge; Peck, Skeena; Long, North Battleford; Richardson, Springfield. Of the above those who may be put down as probable bolters are Campbell, Wright and Long. Buchanan is understood definitely to have decided to go over. The present arrangement between the whips is that the vote will be taken on Friday.

There is also an interesting field for speculation as to the course which the Ministers who were formerly Liberals will follow. There is a somewhat vague rumor that they may leave in a body and add another wing to the many now in the House, under the leadership of Hon. James Calder. Otherwise they will have to take up a permanent residence within the folds of the Conservative party, which would be, to say the least, embarrassing for men like Rowell, Calder and Sifton, and would require an extraordinary feat of swallowing.

Hon. Arthur Meighen's speech is coming to be more and more looked on as the final solvent of political affiliations. These who remain with the Government party hereafter may be considered as having crossed the Rubicon, and permanently thrown in their lot with the Conservative idea. That the three former Liberal leaders above named will consent to take this step is looked on as so radical a departure as to arouse questions as to its probability. Whatever decision they may make at this time will certainly have an interesting and important bearing on the future of Canadian policies, as each of the men named has a considerable following, who cannot fail but be influenced to some extent by their action. The speeches to come from them on the budget are therefore looked forward to with great interest.

May Be Next Tuesday.

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 27.—Interest in the budget debate has been renewed by the events of last evening, when H. O. Wright, of Battleford, and W. A. Buchanan, Lethbridge, bolted from the ranks of Government supporters and announced that they would support the Fielding amendment, since, under the rules of the House, no further amendment could be introduced.

There was talk of the debate closing tonight, but among the speakers at present lined up are Hon. R. Lemieux, Hon. T. A. Crerar, Ernest Lapointe, Major G. W. Andrews, and others. Therefore, it is felt at present that a division on the Fielding amendment will not be reached before Tuesday.

The feeling that two or three more westerners are likely to take the bit in their teeth and follow the lead of Messrs Wright and Buchanan in refusing to support the Government, is being freely talked of about the corridors this morning.

One or two more additional defections are said to be almost certain.

Australian to Have Smallest Wheat Crop in Twenty Years

The Crop in New South Wales Especially Has Been Disastrously Affected by Drought and Yield Will Not Be Sufficient for the Domestic Consumption

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Washington, May 27—The wheat crop of New South Wales has been so disastrously affected by drought that the yield probably will not be sufficient to meet domestic consumption in Australia, said a report today from the American Consulate at Sydney. The crop was estimated at only 4,296,000 bushels, the smallest yield in twenty years.

I. O. D. E. CONVENTION HELD AT CALGARY

The Ballot Taken for the National Executive, but Result Not Known Yet

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Calgary, May 27.—Mrs. A. E. Gooderham and Mrs. George Smith will not be members of the national executive of the I. O. D. E. this year. At yesterday's session, just previous to the casting of votes for councillors from which the national officers will be chosen, it was announced that eight of the 200 nominees had withdrawn, these being Mrs. A. E. Gooderham, Mrs. Geo. Smith, Miss Constance Boulton, Mrs. Auden, Mrs. T. J. Clarke, Mrs. W. R. Riddell, Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt and Mrs. A. F. Rutter.

The report of the credentials committee, presented by Mrs. Angus MacMurchy, of Toronto, showed that 660 votes had been registered. Although there are only about 100 delegates at the convention, they were entitled to 967 votes, as many of the delegates represented a number of chapters.

The ballot papers were then distributed and the votes cast, but the result will not be announced until Friday, after which the election of officers will take place.

Elimination of the individual member from the organization was decided upon at the morning session of the convention yesterday.

The resolution called forth a rather heated discussion. When put to a vote the motion was carried, and in future every member must belong to a primary chapter, although the individual members at present members of the order will retain the former status.

MARYSVILLE MAN TO PACIFIC COAST

E. J. Kingsley to Attend the Commercial Convention at Vancouver, B. C.

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Marysville, N. B., May 27.—A pretty wedding took place at the Baptist parsonage, South Devon, yesterday afternoon when Rev. H. H. Ferguson united in marriage Miss Margaret Briggs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Briggs, of Penniac, and Miles Odbur White, only son of Mrs. Jennie White, of Marysville. The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends. The couple were unattended. The bride was charmingly gowned in a suit of navy blue and wore a picture hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of white carnations. Immediately after the ceremony the wedding party motored to Marysville to the groom's home, where a dainty wedding supper was served. In the evening a reception was held, and the happy couple were serenaded by a host of friends. The bride is one of Penniac's most charming young ladies, and the groom is one of Marysville's most popular young men. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, including china, linen, cut glass, etc. Mr. and Mrs. White will reside in Marysville.

Marysville contributed $248 to the Salvation Army drive last week.

Miss Myrtle Staples has returned from a pleasant visit to friends at Stanley and Cross Creek.

William Harris has disposed of his residence and other property to Newton Stafford. The purchase price was in the vicinity of $1,000.

James F. Inch has so far recovered as to be able to be out of doors in fine weather.

Two well known clerical gentlemen, one a Ph. D., and a layman, went fishing on the 24th. The Ph. D. forgot his fishing rod, the layman went without any hooks, and when the party called upon friends at Penniac they left their entire supply of bait at their friend's home when they again started on their way to the fishing grounds. If these gentlemen were not pronounced advocates of prohibition, one might think something.

E. J. Kingsley left today on a four weeks' trip to the Pacific coast. Mr. Kingsley is to be one of the commercial excursion party which goes to Vancouver, where a large convention of commercial men is to be held. The party will stop off at the principal cities and towns along the line of route.

SEARCH FOR RUM CACHED 150 YEARS

The Liquor Taken into Northwest Territory and Hidden by French Trading Party

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

The Pas, Man., May 27.—Search is being made at Cumberland House for ten cases of rum which, according to Indian legends, have been buried there for the past century and a half. The story which has been handed down is that the rum was brought into the north by a French trading party who were stopped at Cumberland House and turned back by the Hudson Bay people after they had hidden the liquor, which had been intended for Indian trade.

The alleged cache is supposed to include merchandise, muskets and ammunition, but it is thought that these goods may not have aged to the same advantage as the rum, which is the subject of the search.

BOMB EXPLOSION DID LITTLE DAMAGE

The State Guardsmen Kept on Duty During the Night at Hartford, Conn.

(Associated Press by Leased Wire.)

Hartford, Conn., May 27.—Small details of state guardsmen were kept on duty throughout the night as the result of a "bomb" explosion in the cellar kitchen of the state armory and arsenal last night. The capitol and the Connecticut river bridge to East Hartford were kept under guard until daylight.

Experts had opportunity today to examine the fragments of the "bomb." Its outside casing was a fifteen inch section of brass tubing, apparently.

The material damage to the kitchen was not great.

WOMEN TEACHERS NOT SATISFIED

the Fredericton teachers. In view of this fact they ask for an additional increase of $50, and that the following year they receive the provincial maximum salary for N. B. teachers. The petition then calls attention to the fact that four of the women teachers have been more than twenty years on the staff and should have their services recognized by the trustees with an addition to their salary.

Later in the session a delegation of teachers was received to emphasize the petition previously read. This delegation was composed of Miss L. E. Alexander, Miss E. J. Thompson, Mrs. J. L. Simpson, and Principal Foster and Principal Hughes. The gentlemen admitted they were present to support the ladies in their important mission. After explaining their mission the delegation withdrew.

Letters of thanks were received from several teachers acknowledging receipt of promise of increase in salary next school year. There is now no danger of Smythe street school being closed next year for want of a principal. Applications were received from different parts of Canada, even from St. John and Moncton. After consideration two or three names were allocated to a special committee for further information, and it is possible a decision may be made the present week.

Report on Cadet Corps.

A communication was read from J. E. Page, of the High School staff, giving a most favorable report of the work of the Cadet Corps for the year. Most satisfactory progress had been made and the attendance good. At the beginning of the year the trustees agreed to allow each cadet, whose attendance showed 80 per cent., the sum of two dollars. About fifty of the boys will be able to make a jingle in their pocketbook.

It is expected the pupils of Charlotte street school will have their public closing exercises next month in the assembly hall of the York street school, as it was found necessary to turn the hall at Charlotte street into a class room.

In a day or two some of the trustees will visit Doak Settlement and look over the ground to decide whether the present building could be improved, or whether a new building with less expensive trimmings than called for in last plans received, could be undertaken and to decide upon the site.

Mr. Lemont and Mr. Weddall reported that they had not yet purchased the necessary coal for the schools. This committee was continued. Other committee reports and the payment of salaries completed the session.

Those in attendance were Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Cox, Mr. Weddall, Dr. Crocket, Mr. Lemont, Mr. Hughes and Mr. Shute. Mr. Spurden was absent from the city.

C. P. R. Train Service.

Attention of citizens is drawn to the fact that, effective May 24th, the early morning train leaves for St. John at 5.05 a. m. local time, instead of 6.05 a. m., as heretofore. This train makes connection at the Junction with the morning express for Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Smith, of St. John, are guests at the Queen Hotel.

Newman Clark Now Renounces Identification of Peter Wood As One of His "Kidnappers"

First Witness at Preliminary Examination on Murder Charge Today Says He Saw Clark Fire One of the Four Shots Into Bell Girl's Body

(Special despatch to The Daily Gleaner.)

Grand Falls, N. B., May 27.—Circumstances surrounding the shooting of Phoebe Bell during the course of a party at the residence of Herbet Woods in this town on the afternoon of March 28th, were recalled today when the preliminary examination of Newman Clark, prosperous woung farmer of Four Falls, N. B., was commenced here before Police Magistrate Kelly this morning.

Two witnesses had been examined before the adjournment at noon. The first was Claud Murphy, who said that in all six shots were fired while Clark and the Bell girl were in a bedroom adjoining the living room in the house where a number of people were gathered. Murphy said he saw Clark fire the third shot into the body of the girl as she fell upon the bed and later Clark came into the living room and declared he had shot the girl because she refused to marry him—he had already been twice married. Murphy said that after firing four shots into the body of the Bell girl, Clark shot himself twice in the breast before he could be interrupted. Miss Ida Pelletier's evidence largely corroborated that of the first witness.

It is expected that the preliminary examination will be completed today and there seemed little doubt this afternoon but that Clark will be sent up for trial at the Victoria Circuit Court at Andover in September. Clark has surprised everybody by renouncing his previous action in identifying Peter Dubois or Wood, of Grand Anse, as one of the two men he declared "kidnapped" him when he mysteriously disappeared from Dr. Puddington's private hospital here during the night about a week after the tragedy and was later recaptured at Limestone, Me. As a result of this strange new development, which was confirmed by Hon. W. P. Jones, K. C., of Woodstock, counsel for Clark, it is expected that Hon. J. P. Byrne, attorney General, who is personally conducting the Crown's case, will move for Wood's dismissal some time this afternoon.

Runaway Yesterday Afternoon.

Two boys who were driving down Charlotte street yesterday afternoon delivering some washing which their mother had done for patrons, when between Regent and St. John streets some boys who are employed by the city were throwing dirt and stones into a dump cart and as the wagon containing the boys passed these employees, apparently with malicious intent, threw shovelfuls of dirt over the dump cart on to the horse, which became frightened and ran away. The young boys were thrown out of the wagon and the horse kept on going until it collided with a tree near the residence of T. Amos Wilson, with the result that it cleared itself from the wagon and continued on its run. It was finally caught and brought back to where the wagon, which was almost demolished, was in the ditch. The boys, while not seriously hurt, were badly shaken up, and the outcome of the runaway will be that the city will be held responsible for the damage caused by these thoughtless employees.

THE U. S. TOURISTS NEED NO PASSPORTS

Canadian Government Will Extend Every Courtesy to Travellers

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 27.—American tourists visiting Canada do not require passports as a condition of entry to Canada from the United States, or as a condition of leaving Canada for the United States, acording to a statement just made by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization.

Canada welcomes bona fide tourists, the statement continues, and will extend every possible courtesy to such travellers in entering and leaving the Dominion.

The statement is prompted by the fact that many thousand of Americans spent their summer holidays in Canada. This year they find an additional inducement in the fact that the United States money commands a premium in Canada, and many inquiries have been received concerning restrictions at the border. The statement by the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization sets all doubts on that subject at rest.

The only loss was the frame-work of the mill and the lath machine, which he estimated would be about two or three thousand dollars.

WHICH WAS THE REAL WOMAN?

Was the laughing, dancing butterfly of wealth and luxury the real she? Or was it the worker, the hard worker of brawn and muscle, who cast aside money and ease for the lot of a common laborer?

There was one man who saw her as both, but never knew—she never knew herself which was the life she was really meant to live. You won't know until you see this great Rupert Hughes' picture, because the story unfolds naturally and mysteriously just as life itself. It is a great picture!

FATAL ACCIDENT AT MILLTOWN MILL

Andrew Peterson Had His Neck Caught Between Ascending Elevator and Floor

St. Stephen, N. B., May 26—A very sad and fatal accident occurred at the St. Croix Cotton Mills, Milltown, N. B., this afternoon. Andrew Peterson, a young lad of 14, who was employed in the mill, was sitting on the back of the elevator which was going from the weave room. When the card room was reached young Peterson's attention was attracted to someone in the room and he leaned over while the elevator was ascending. His neck was caught between the elevator and the floor and was broken. The elevator man who was running at the time was facing the other way and did not notice anything wrong and so did not stop. The body was dragged off the elevator and fell to the basement floor a distance of over thirty feet. Coroner Lawson was immediately notified and an inquest was held.

Mothers Need Not Worry

Because Children Are Frail, Ailing and Sickly

Vinol Will Build Them Up and Make Them Strong, Robust and Rosy

There is nothing that will build up frail, sickly, ailing children like VINOL.

Mrs. L. Andrews, Bainbridge, N. Y., says: "My little daughter was run-down, tired all the time, pale, thin, nervous, and had headaches so we had to take her out of school. VINOL has built her up, she has a good appetite, no more headaches, her color is good and she has returned to school."

VINOL owes its success in such cases to the tissue-building extractives of fresh cods' liver, without oil, aided by the blood and strength-creating elements of tonic iron, beef peptones, and hypophosphites which it contains.

Thus in a natural manner it creates a healthy appetite, aids digestion, makes rich, red blood, and the result is a good, healthy color, strength and vitality.

Your druggists guarantee it.

BUDGET DEBATE IN HOUSE YESTERDAY

Two More Supporters of the Unionist Government Break Away on the Tariff

[Canadian Press by Leased Wire.]

Ottawa, May 26.—The cross benches obtained a new recruit and the Government lost a supporter this evening in the House of Commons, when H. O. Wright, member for Battleford, declared his intention of voting for the yielding amendment and in opposition to the budget. Mr. Wright's announcement, that he intended to support the amendment, was greeted with loud applause from the Liberal members in the House, which was, however, somewhat dampened when he stated that he did not think there was anything material in the amendment," but that the rules of the House preclude the moving of any other.

Mr. Wright broke with the Government on the tariff. He refused to be satisfied with the promise of a thorough investigation followed by a revision during the present year. That promise, he said, had been given last year, and had not been kept for various reasons. It would take more than the promise of future blessings to secure his support of any budget in the future. He was a farmer, and he stood four-square for the tariff principles contained in the Farmers' platform.

Another Bolter.

W. A. Buchanan (Lethbridge) also bolted from the ranks of Government supporters, refusing to support the budget on the ground that the time to cut away from protection had come. Development of natural resources demanded duty free machinery for farmers and others.

After the preliminaries were concluded in th eafternoon Dr. J. W. Edwards, of Frontenac, continued the budget debate. He supported the Government proposals and outlined recent fiscal history of the Dominion to show that Conservatives had done more than Liberals to reduce the tariff on agricultural implements to its present level.

Dr. Edwards, of Frontenac, attacked the Grain Growers' Grain Company of the West in the course of his speech. He characterized this organization as the most colossal profiteering concern in Canada, and quoted profits made by the company in support of his statement .

F. F. Pardee, Lambton, was opposed to the new taxes proposed by the Government, arguing that they would add a load to that which the consumers were already carrying and would not produce the results expected by the Government. He favored the abolition of the duties on food, clothing and the implements of farm production.

J. F. Reid, of Mackenzie, criticized S. E. Elkin, member for St. John, stating that he had previously declared himself a free trader, and was now a high protectionist. He argued that Mr. Elkin would probably justify the title of a war profiteer because he bought steel rods in Germany, manufactured them into nails in Canada, sold them under a protective tariff, and send the money back to Germany for steel rods.

IN PARLIAMENT YESTERDAY.

Two Unionists, representing constituencies in the West where the so-called Grain Growers' Association exercises some influence, took exception, yesterday in Parliament, to the tariff and abandoned the Government ranks. This action was not unexpected and is without significance except in so far as it may show the extent of the grip the leaders of the wheat monopolists of the West have upon certain people. These two Unionists, Mr. Wright of Battleford and Mr. Buchanan of Lethbridge, will vote for the Fielding amendment and in opposition to the Budget, although Mr. Wright declared he could not see anything material in the amendment. He probably, however, sees something material in his seat in Parliament, which the wheat monopolists would contest if he did not vote in accordance with their wishes. His position is much like that of Dr. Clark of Red Deer, who, while supporting the Fielding amendment, confessed that "it is a milk and watery affair." There may be some other defections. The wheat monopolists are playing their game with determination, and will take advantage of whatever dissatisfaction the new tariff has created. In this aspect the situation is somewhat interesting, even although the country is assured that the Government and its proposals will undoubtedly be well sustained unless indeed there should develop a serious break within the Cabinet itself; and such a break would be very unusual.

The principle of protection is under attack by the wheat monopolists, who are protectionists only where protection serves their interests; it is to some extent under attack also by the Liberals, who have mixed notions and are without a definite policy which they can consistently claim to be their own. Protection has been largely endorsed by the people of Canada for many years; and it is under protection that Canada has developed substantially and splendidly in agriculture and in individual enterprise. That principle will again, we believe, be heartily sustained in the country, whatever may be the views, the notions or the ambitions of the wheat monopolists who are now playing into the hands of the Liberals for mere selfish reasons.

BRITISH VOLUNTEER ARMY.

It was the fine but possibly too ethereal thought of President Wilson that with the signing of the armistice war was abolished. Sweet reasonableness was to take the place of brutal force. The League of Nations would see to that. In the last resort there might be force employed to keep a recalcitrant member of the League peaceable; but, in any case, a year must elapse between the offence and the first blow struck in earnest; and that would calm passion and virtually guarantee perpetual peace. It was beautiful. It was almost sublime. The world hung upon the idyllic condition pictured in the general mind—horror-struck at the desolations of the Great War.

As first move in the direction of universal and perpetual peace, there was to be general disarmament. What do we see, asks an exchange. In the United States there is talk of universal military training. France has been accused of striking the military note. The secretary of the United States navy says that that country will build the biggest fleet in the world. Germany secretly augments her so-called police force, and only England of all the powers abolishes conscription, which she did not like and which she only adopted in the exigent moment.

A volunteer territorial army is to be called into being. The territorial army was the creation of Lord Haldane. It was ridiculed, but in the war it rendered admirable and heroic service. Britain has always instinctively shrunk from the standing army. In the military law there is a clause which insists that the forces, whatever they may be, shall only be maintained from year to year, and a special vote is therefore necessary to secure the annual appropriations. Britons always dreaded the possible tyranny of an army obeying the will of the court; and king after king has had to beg from Parliament an enlarged bodyguard. History is full of instances of the transformation of a national army into a creature of the ruling sovereign, who was thus enabled to bend the people to his will. The volunteer army, for which recruiting is now proceeding apace, will, taken as it is directly from a free people, be an instrument of defence, a menace to no other power, but a sure rock of defence in case of need.

The League of Nations is becoming more and more nebulous; and England cannot afford to be defenceless.

STUDENTS TAKE A HAND.

Yale University is about to put into operation a unique and interesting experiment in undergraduate instruction. In each course the students are to choose a committee to make criticisms and suggestions. The professor is to be informed if his work is unsatisfactory, if he does not make his points clear, if he is dull and tedious, if the reading has not been wisely selected. In short, the students will no longer be compelled to submit passively to whatever instruction is given them, good, bad or indifferent, but are themselves to have a voice in the conduct of their courses.

Undoubtedly there is something to be said for this plan, for at present it is undeniable that some college professors are inclined to neglect their teaching. They are too interested in research work or writing to give their best to the young men and women who are placed under their instruction. This the student feels to be an injustice, and this the new Yale system would do much to eradicate. No professor would dare neglect his courses in the face of the open criticism of a student committee.

Yet it is seriously to be doubted whether the experiment can be worked out successfully. After all has been said, the professor is far better qualified than the undergraduate to judge of the efficiency or lack of efficiency of any given method of instruction. His knowledge of the subject, his experience in teaching, his wider vision of the ends which are to be obtained, should make his judgment the last court of appeal.

Moreover, none save the teacher himself can decide which method is best suited for his own personality. He cannot always adjust himself to a different procedure solely because his students have found it successful under some other man. The conscientious instructor usually is fully aware of the approval or disapproval of the undergraduates, and if his efforts fail to arouse their interest or hold them to their work, is himself not slow to change his methods. But to have this change dictated to him is almost certain to result in harm.

CROP PROSPECTS SERIOUS.

The reduction of the acreage in crop this year in New Brunswick is quite serious. Scarcity of labor and the high price; scarcity of seed and fertilizer and the high cost are of course largely responsible, but a reduction of fifteen to twenty per cent. in the acreage is much too great for a province such as ours. The Department of Agriculture recently told the public, through the medium of the newspapers, of the accomplishments of the Minister of Agriculture in cheapening the cost of fertilizer, lessening freight rates and that sort of thing; and, if we mistake not, of his making good seed, and plenty, available to the farmer at a reasonable figure. Was that talk and bluster and mere commonplace publicity? If not, what of the scarcity and high cost of fertilizer, and the scarcity and high cost of seed? The responsibility for the reduction in acreage is placed to scarcity and high cost. The prospects for the coming fall and winter are not comforting. We are at the beginning of a serious reaction in industrial life; and already we are told that we are also to face a scarcity in food and provisions, the natural result of inactivity on the farm due to conditions which in this province the Department of Agriculture could have and should have influenced materially. We have too much politics and too little of intelligent effort.

MANY ROBBERIES IN VICTORIA CO.

Andover, May 26.—A number of robberies have occurred in this vicinity recently. A bicycle, owned by Gage Montgomery, was stolen from an alley in Perth on Wednesday night and on Saturday evening Charles Howard left his bicycle near the Specialty while he was attending the pictures. During his absence the wheels were taken off and parts of it are still missing.

On Thursday afternoon a man in khaki climbed in an open window in the rear of the store of Harry Cox at Four Falls, during the absence of Mrs. Cox, broke open the cash register and took what money was there. When Mrs. Cox returned she notified Constable Miles MacCrea, who caught the man on the California road on the way to Grand Falls, and brought him to Andover jail. On Saturday he appeared before Police Magistrate Hanson and was sent up for trial. He gave his name as Emil Lavine. One hundred and thirty-eight dollars and a large bunch of keys were found in his pockets. He has asked for a speedy trial.

THRILLING RESCUE IN ST. JOHN RIVER

St. Leonard's, May 26.—Two young men had a thrilling escape from death one evening this week in the St. John river, near the international railway bridge which connects this village with Van Buren. Patrick Cyr and Hector Andre started in a small boat to cross the swollen and rapidly running river at a point just above the bridge. The current carried the boat against one of the piers of the bridge, the shock breaking the frail craft in two and leaving the men almost helpless in the water. Both young men clung to a piece of the boat. Cyr, realizing their peril, told Andre to hold on to the wreckage and started to make his way to the shore in the icy water.

Friends on the shore aided Cyr to land. Andre drifted along with the swift current, shouting lustily for help. He drifted against a sheer boom and finalyl caught one end of it. To let go meant certain death in the torrent among the numerous rapidly moving logs.
