Arrangements in regard to the British Empire Exhibition are speeding up enormously. Over seventy years ago the great national exhibition in Hyde Park drew thousands of visitors from all over the world. Nowadays the exhibition would probably be considered somewhat amateurish, nevertheless it has passed into a family tradition in this country. According to history the exhibition in 1851 was a considerable stimulant to British trade, and it is said that the forthcoming one at Wembley Park will have an equally vivifying effect. When I visited Wembley the exhibition ground seemed to me to be as large as Hyde Park. Not being a surveyor, I do not know how far this approximates to being correct, but I can say that I was conscious of a sense of space and that the buildings springing up on every side reminded me of the fabulous townships which in the far west seem to spring into being overnight. Already arrangements have been made in regard to transportation. Railway communications have been amplified, and the road approaches have been widened, while parking grounds are being provided for motor cars and omnibusses. A census of hotel and boarding house accomodation in London has already been compiled with a view to meeting the requirements of visitors. The year 1924 should be a record year. Meanwhile the pavilion dedicated to Canada continues to grow.

STELL MARIS BRINGS FREIGHT SALVAGED FROM SABLE I.

The s.s. Stella Maris, with three powerful pumps, arrived at Lamaline yesterday, and salvage operations at the scene of the Sable I. wreck are preceeding very favorably.

Reports from Captain Murley yesterday state that two pumps are sufficient to keep the ship free, and he expected the Sable would come off last night, but Mr. King, the local agent, had no news up to noon.

In case the ship is refloated, temporary repairs will be effected and the ship will then proceed to Halifax where she will be docked.

The Stella Maris will take on board the Sable's cargo including the cattle and will come on here as soon as all the freight has been transferred.

Grady—Fresh N. wind, dense fog; no fish.

Flat Islds., Domino, Venison Isld., Battle Harbor—Light North wind, dense fog; poor fishing.

B. D. S. AND FIELDIANS DRAW

There was a fair attendance at last night's football match between the Feildians and B.D.S., which resulted in a draw, each team securing one goal.

The strong west wind that was blowing was not conductive to good play; nevertheless there was some good spurts. Ewing scored the Feildians' goal in the first period and Gordon Halley was responsible for the Irishmen's equalizer in the second half.

THE JEAN CAMPBELL ARRIVES

The schooner Jean Campbell, 29 days from Barbados, arrived yesterday with molasses cargo to Monroe & Co.

The Jean Campbell, which was until recently owned by Messrs Campbell McKay, has been acquired by the Monroe Export Co., who have made application to have her name changed, and she will in future be known as the Benevolence.

AN INVITATION

Invitations have been issued for the opening of the new church at Waterford Bridge, Kilbride Parish, on Sunday next, April 19th. But fearing that perhaps any of the friends and supporters of the parish have been overlooked, the pastor and parishoners, thru the columns of the Press, extend a hearty welcome to any desirous of assisting at the celebration. Solemn High Mass and the other ceremonies of the day begin at 11 o'clock.

ENQUIRY CONTINUED

The magesterial inquiry into the death of the little girl Humphries was continued yesterday afternoon before Judge McCarthy, when the evidence of Doctors McPherson and Anderson was taken.

The further hearing was adjournned till Thursday afternoon next.

ANOTHER EVIDENCE OF TANKER TRAGEDY

NEW YORK, Aug. 18—The scorched body of a man, apparently a seaman picked up among the wreckage of oil strewn waters in the Carribean Sea last month apparently has explained the fate of the tanker Swift Star which vanished some months ago. Other articles picked up seem to indicate that the vessel met her fate and is now lying on the bottom of the ocean.

Failures are Less

TORONTO, Aug. 18—Commercial failures in Canada and Newfoundland for the week ending August 17 as reported to R. G. Dunn and Co. total 50. This is the lowest number in some weeks and compares with 64 for the corresponding period year ago.

London Largely is Pagan Still

LONDON, Aug. 19—The Bishop of Zanzibar at the recent Anglo-Catholic Congress here got into hot water for declaring London was as Pagan as Zanzibar. Nevertheless the Wesleyan Conference in its annual address to the Methodist peoplet makes the almost identical declaration. It says: "While there is much to encourage us yet England still is largely Pagan and unchristian standards still are being applied, almost unconsciously, to social and international questions and life is being interpreted in terms of Mammon rather than God."

200 ARE DEAD IN TYPHOON

HONG KONG, Aug. 19—More than one hundred persons were drowned and about one hundred killed and injured ashore and about fifty junks and sampans capsized during a typhoon at Macao on Saturday.

Eighty Republican Candidates

TORONTO, Aug. 20.—Canadian National officials here state that their information is that eight lives were lost when the Waha Hotel on Lake of Bays, Muskoka, Ont., was burned at one o'clock Sunday morning.

Eight Die In Fire Ontario Chief Justice Ill

MONTREAL, Aug. 20.—Sir William Meredith, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, is lying seriously ill at the Royal Victoria Hospital. He is in no immediate danger.

Dock Strike Ended

LONDON, Aug. 20—The Thames dock strikers have agreed to return to work on Tuesday, ending the unauthorized strike that for several weeks past has appeared to form the basis of a possible national dock strike.

Four Are Killed in Plane Accident

PENSACOIA, Aug. 19—Four men and a woman were killed at Camp Walton, Florida, near here to-day, in an aeroplane accident.

Bandits Rob and Kill in Detroit

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 20—Seven gunmen, early Sunday, held up Allendale Inn at Warren and Synder streets, lined up one hundred and seventy persons at the Inn and obtained money and jewelry valued at several thousand dollars. Four persons, including one woman, were shot and seriously injured, and the gunmen escaped in an automobile.

A short time later an automobile containing seven men believed to be the ones who held up the inn, was seen in Monroe, about forty miles Southwest of here. The night policeman in Monroe approached the car and one of the persons in the machine shot and killed him.

Two of the gunmen stayed outside the roadhouse while three entered from the front door and two from the back. They all began firing thru the crowded dancehall. Women screamed and fainted.

The bandits stripped the jewelry from the women and money from the pockets of the men. In their haste they tore diamonds from rings and stickpins with their teeth.

DE VALERA IS NOW IN MOUNT JOY

DUBLIN, Aug. 18—Eamonn Dealera, Republican Leader, who was arrested at Ennis on Wednesday when he appeared to address a political meeting arrived in Dublin early this morning under escort of Free State troops. He was taken to the military barracks to be transferred later to Mount Joy Prison.

Workers Join Fascisti

BOLOGNA, Aug. 20—Four thousand workers of Molinella, 30 miles from here, have joined the National Fascisti syndicates. This is looked upon as marking the downfall of the power of the Communists there.

Speaking

DUBLIN, Aug. 20.—Nominations for the Free State parliamentary elections furnish no surprises. On an average there are less than three candidates for each of the one hundred and fifty-three seats grouped into thirty constituencies.

The Republican candidates number about eighty.

The Home Bank of Canada

TORONTO, Aug. 18—The following statement was issued by the Home Bank of Canada this afternoon over the signature of Curator A. B. Barker. The Curator is investigating conditions of the Home Bank of Canada but it is unlikely that any definite statement of the position of the Bank will be available for a few weeks. Returns from branches showing the state of affairs must be received and embodied with the Head Office figures before any announcement can be made. Desposits may not be withdrawn but notes of the Bank will be negotiable at par at any other Bank in Canada."

MADE 18,000 MILE MOTOR TRIP

MONTREAL, P.Q., Aug. 16—Fourteen months ago a honeymoon couple began an 18,000 mile trip in an automobile, through the United States. David Grayson's book "The Friendly Road" started them on the undertaking. Now James Shearer, one time organist of the American Presbyterian Church here and his wife ask nothing better than to follow the road wherever it lead. They have just returned to the city and have stories to tell of the people they met on the Friendly Road, on the trail of adventure.

There was a young man who had spent $30 on a Ford car in Detroit and $100 on tires in the distance intervening between there and Idaho. There was a man and his wife rollerskating from coast to coast, and other persons with original ideas on travelling. Occasionally a partially disabled soldier with the dog he had tough tricks in France went by, and men who found their best means of livelihood lay with their pet monkeys or bears. And strangest of all, perhaps, there was a travelling convertible caravan-church with a steeple, which was sometimes up and sometimes down, depending on which ruled at the moment, the religious or the secular.

"In what form should I reply to letters of sympathy and condolence, sent on account of a recent bereavement?" asked Madge.

"Write brief notes of thanks to intimate friends and relatives, to others send your visiting card with 'Thank you for your sympathy,' written on them," replied her Aunt.

"In attending a formal dinner at a hotel should I wear full evening clothes?" asked Sharles.

"Yes, full evening dress should be worn and that means white tie and white or black waistcoat," said his father.

Chamberlain's Plain

MANCHESTER, Aug. 20—Addressing the members of the West Birmingham Unionist Association, Saturday night, Austen Chamberlain declared that "the entente is hanging by a thread ,and any clumsy handling of the reparations question at this moment may snap that thread and undo the work of the last twelve or fifteen years."

He characterized the government's last note to France as inconsistent, illogical and futile, and pleaded for caution in the situation, which he said was fraught with peril for Great Britain, the Allies, Europe and the world. He added: "Germany is almost on the brink of disaster and threatened with revolution. She is in peril of starvation because of the reckless finance in which she has indulged."

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER VII.

Donald sported a wondrous set of blisters at the close of that first day, but after supper he opened them, covered them with adhesive tape, and went back to work next morning as if nothing had happened. During those five days he learned considerable of the art of dropping trees exactly where de desired it, without breakage. He rode down to Port Agnew with the woods crew Saturday night, walked into the mill office, and cashed his time slip for five days' work as a chopper. He had earned two dollars a day and his board and lodging. His father, who had driven into town to meet him, came to the window and watched him humorously.

"So that's the way you elect to work it, eh?" he queried. "I told Daney to pay you my salary when I quit."

"I like to feel that I'm earning my stipend," Donald replied quietly, "so it pleases me to draw wages of the job I'm working at. When I'm thoroughly acquainted with all the jobs in the Tyee Lumber Company, or at least have a good working knowledge of them, I think I'll be a better boss."

The Laird took his son's big brown hands in his and looked at the palms.

"I rather think I like it so," he answered. "A man whose hands have never bled or whose back never ached is a poor man to judge a labor dispute. 'Twould improve you if you were a married man and had to live on that for a week, less twenty-five cents for your hospital dues. The choppers pay a dollar a month toward the hospital, and that covers medical attendance for them and their families."

Donald laughed and flipped a quarter over to the cashier, then turned and handed ten dollars to a wiry little chopper standing in line.

"I was feeling good this morning so I bet Sandy my week's pay I could fell a tree quicker than he with less breakage. He won in a walk," he explained to The Laird.

"Come with me," his father ordered, and led him into the office.

From the huge safe he selected a ledger, scanned the index, and opened it at a certain account headed, "Sandy Clough." To Sandy's credit each month extending over a period of fifteen years, appeared a credit of thirty dollars.

"That's what it's costing me to have discovered Sandy," his father informed him; "but since I had served an apprentice as a chopper, the time required to discover Sandy was less than half an hour. I watched him one day when he didn't know I was looking—so I figured him for a man and a half and raised him a dollar a day. He doesn't know it, however. If he did, he'd brag about it. Thus endeth the first lesson, my son. Now come home to dinner."

After dinner, Donald returned to town to buy himself some working clothes at the general store. His purchases completed, he sought the juvenile department.

"I want some kid's clothing," he announced. "To fit a child of three. Rompers, socks, shoes—the complete outfit. Charge them to my account and send them over to Nan Brent at the Sawdust Pile. I'l give you a note to enclose with them."

Notwithstanding the fact that she was an employee of the Tyee Lumber Company, the girl who waited on him stared at him frankly. He noticed this and bent upon her a calm glance that brought a guilty flush to her cheek. Quickly she averted her eyes, but nevertheless she had a feeling that the young laird of Tyee was still appraising her, and, unable to withstand the fascination peculiar to such a situation, she loked at him again to verify her suspicions—and it was even so. In great confusion she turned to her stock, and Donald, satisfied that he had squelched her completely, went into the manager's office, wrote, and sealed the following note to Nan Brent:

Saturday Night.

Friend Nan—Here are some duds for the young fellow. You gave me the right to look after him, you know; at least, you didn't decline it. At any rate, I think you will not mind accepting them from me.

I sent to Seattle for some books I thought you might like. They have probably arrived by parcel post. Sent you a box of candy, also, although I have forgotten the kind you used to prefer.

Been up in the logging camp all week, chopping, and I ache all over. Expect to be hard and not quite so weary by next week-end, and will call over for Sunday dinner.

Sincerely,

DONALD McKAYE.

He spent Sunday at The Dreamerie and at four o'clock Sunday afternoon boarded the up-train and returned to the logging camp. Mrs. Andrew Daney, seated in Sunday-afternoon peace upon her front veranda, looked up from the columns of The Churchman as the long string of logging trucks wound round the base of the little knoll upon which the geneal manager's home stood; but evenat a distance of two blocks, she recognized the young laird of Tyee in the cab with the engineer.

"Dear, dear!" this good soul murmured. "And such a nice young man, too! I should think he'd have more consideration for his family, if not for himself."

"Who's that" Mr. Daney demanded, emerging from behind the Seattle PostIntelligencer.

"Donald McKaye."

"What about him?" Mr. Daney demanded, with a slight emphasis on the pronoun.

"Oh, nothing; only——"

"Only what?"

"People say he's unduly interested in Nan Brent."

"If he is, that's his business. Don't let what people say trouble you, Mrs. Daney."

"Well, can I help it if people will talk?"

"Yes—when they talk to you."

"How do you know they've been talking to me, Andrew?" she demanded foolishly.

"Because you know what they say." Andrew Daney rose from his chair and leveled his index finger at the partner of his joys and sorows. "You forget Donald Brent and that Brent girl," he ordered. "It's none of your business. All Don has to say to me is 'Mr. Daney, your job is vacant'—and, by Judas Priest, it'll be vacant Remember that, my dear."

"Nonsense, dear. The Laird wouldn't permit it after all these years."

"If it comes to a test of strength, I'll lose, and don't you forget it. Old sake's sake is all that saved me from a run-in with Donald before he had been in command fifteen minutes. I refer to the Sawdust Pile episode. You dissuaded me from doing my duty in the matter, Mary, and my laxity was not pleasing to Donald. I do not blame him a whit."

"Did he say anything, she" demanded, alarmed.

"No; but he looked it."

"He looked," her husband replied, "like the Blue Bonnets coming over the border—that's what he looked like. Then he went down to the Sawdust Pile like a raging demon, cleaned it out in two two's, and put it to the torch. You be careful what you say to people, Mary. Get that boy started once, and he'll hark pack to his paternal ancestors; and if The Laird has ever told you the history of that old claymore that hangs on the wall in The Dreamerie, you know that the favorite outdoor sports of the McKaye tribe was fighting and foot-racing with the other fellow in front."

"The Laird's mild enough," she defended.

"Yes he is. But when he was young, he could, and frequently did, whip twice his weight in bear-cats. Old as he is to-day, he's as sound as a man of forty; he wouldn't budge an inch for man or devil."

Mrs. Daney carefully folded The Churchman, laid it aside, and placed her spectacles with it.

"Andrew, I know it's terrible of me to! breathe such a thing, but—did it ever occur to you that—perhaps—the father of Nan Brent's child might be——"

"Donald?" he exploded incredulously.

She nodded, and about her there was something of that calm self-confidence of an attorney who is winning his case and desires to impress that fact upon the jury.

"My God, woman," cried Daney, "you have the most infernal ideas——"

"Andrew! Remember it's the Sabbath!"

"It's a wonder my language doesn't shrivel this paper. Now then, where in hades do you get this crazy notion?" Daney was thoroughly angry. She gazed up at him in vague apprehension. Had she gone too far? Sudenly she relaxed. "No; don't tell me," he growled. "I'll not be a gossip. God forgive me, I was about to befoul the very salt I eat. I'll not be disloyal."

"But Andrew, dear, don't you know I wouldn't dare breathe it to anyone but you?"

"I don't know how much you'd dare. At any rate, I'll excuse you from breathing it to me, for I'm not interested. I know it isn't true."

"Then, Andrew, it is your duty to tell me why you know it isn't true, in order that I may set at rest certain rumors——"

"You — mind — your — own — business, Mary!" he cried furiously, punctuating each word with a vigorous tap of his finger on the arm of her chair. "The McKayes meet their responsibilities as eagerly as they do their enemies. If that child were young Donald's, he'd have married the Brent girl, and if he had demurred about it, The Laird would have ordered him to."

What the police seem to want is to "go fishing" in people's private papers held confidentially by a bank for clues which might or might not convert their suspicion into evidence that an offence has been committed. In fact—if need be—they want to make the banker help them to make a "case." That is not banking. What is more, it is not British justice, which recognizes the citizen's right first to be charged and heard by the court. And we imagine the banks would be the first to resist any innovation likely to undermine their customers' confidence.

New Church At Kilbride Is Dedicated

Archbishop Officiates At Impressive Ceremony

The solemn dedication and opening of Corpus Christi Church, Waterford Bridge, took place yesterday at 11 a.m. Long before the hour appointed the spacious church was filled to capacity. A squad of honor from the C.C.C. was present and on the arrivel of His Grace the Archbishop, a general salute was given, while the C.C.C. Band played the Pope's March.

After the corner stone was laid, the blessing of the Church took place at which the band played Mazart's "Gloria."

Solemn High Hass wes celebrated by the pastor, Rev. J. J. Rawlins, with Revs. Sheehan and E. J. Rawlins as Deacon and Sub-deacon respectively. Within the Sanctuary were Revs. J. J. McGrath and Dr. Kitchen, assistants at the Throne, Revs. Pippy, St. John, P. J. Kennedy, Flynn and M. Kennedy, with Dr. Carter as Master of Ceremonies. The singing of the Cathedral choir under Mr. Charles Hutton, was excellent.

The Archbishop's Address

Towards the conclusion of the ceremony, His Grace the Archbishop, speaking from the Throne, said that he would like to say a brief word to express the pleasure it gave him to be present at the opening of the new church, and also to congratulate the energetic pastor of Kilbride and his parishoners on their work which was being completed under such happy auspices that morning. He regarded the occasion as being an historic one inasmuch as it brought back to their minds the old church of Kilbride which was destroyed by fire so many years ago, and which the present building was intended to replace. The old church, which was one of the ven erable monuments of the Archidiocese, having been built by Bishop Mullock in the early sixties, was destroyed in that fateful year, 1892, when nearly half of St. John's was left in ruins by fire.

Speaking of the site selected for the new church, His Grace said that circumstances had greatly changed since the days when the first church was built, and that many factors combined to favor the new site as being most suitable for all the interests concerned. It was not without a great deal of regret on account of its ancient associations that the old site was abondoned; but practical considerations prevailed and hence they had erected the new church in the Waterford Valley.

The dedication of a new church, His Grace continued, was a solemn event full of importance and significance. Every new church was another centre of spiritual influence for the diffusion of the principles of virtue and morality and for the inculcation of the teachings of Christ. was the beautiful church which they were dedicating that day—beautiful in its graceful exterior architecural lines, and beautiful also in its chaste and artistic interior finish. The pastor of Kilbride who had labored so zealously to bring this work to completion, his parishoners who so loyal ly seconded his efforts, and the many generous friends who gave assistance, had every reason to be proud of the monument which their united efforts had combined to erect. As they looked around at this new Temple of God—the fruit of zeal, sacrifice and generosity—they might with all humility repeat the words of the psalmist "We have loved, O Lord, the beauty of Thy House and the place where Thy glory dwelt."

Concluding, the Archbishop pray ed that the zealous efforts of Pastor and people would be blessed with an ample measure of reward, and that this new church would be to all who came within its influence a sacred centre from which blessings untold would radiate, a source of spiritual help and inspiration for sharing in the happiness of God's House in Eternity.

The Sermon

The preacher of the day was the Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott, whose sermon was a masterpiece and one which will long be remembered by the large congregation present. He spoke in part as follows:

"Go, ye, therefore, and teach all nations. Behold I am with you all days, even unto the consummation of the world."—Words by Our Divine Lord to the Apostles.

Before the birth of Christ my brethren, the whole world was spiritually blind, the blindness of paganism and superstition darkened the minds of men, and there was no place on the face of the earth where the name of the Lord God was loved and reverenced. It is true that in all lands people lived in another life, not only did they believe in a God, to whom they prayed, and in many places they offered human sacrifice, men, women, and even little children, to appease the wrath of their imaginary deity. In their blindness men believed that those deities possessed human passions, and as a consequence the crudest idea of right and wrong prevailed all over the world. The most degrading forms of vice were openly practiced in their temples as virtue, and the people believed the practice of such vices not only appeased the gods, but insured to themselves a dwelling place in Heaven.

Amonght princes and rulers, amongst the wealthy and influential and learned, such virtues as humility, meekness, and patience were regarded as vain and in all sections of pagan society mercy, pity for the sick or the wounded, sympathy for the afflicted and aged, or respect for parents were practically unknown.

Vanity and selfishness, cruelty and lust ruled and influenced the actions of men. St. Paul, the most fearless, out-spoken man of his own time gives us in one of his Epistles an account of the pagan society of his own day, and in his indictment of pagan culture and pagan customs he speaks not only of the barbarity, but also of the incontinence of the most civilized cities of his time, and the wrath of God is revealed from Heaven against the injustice and irreligion of those men, for they would change the glory of their incorruptible God into the image of corruptible man, and God abandoned them to the desires of their hearts, to the things that are filled with all malice, all iniquity, fornication, covetousness, wickedness, detraction. St. Paul, who spoke thus, had travelled far and wide, and knew whereof he spoke; he dwelt in great cities where art flourished and beautiful poetry was written, where oratory was highly esteemed, where buildings of surpassing grandeur were erected, and statesmen made laws so perfect that many of them are in actual use in all civilized countries to-day; in great cities where unnatural vices prevailed, where men were crucified and where high-born women scourged their servants to death for trifling faults. It is true that in those days there were good and learned men who earnestly sought the truth, men who stood and rebuked the wickedness of their day, but they were few and far between, and sometimes, thru their own ignorance of God, they unintentionally led people into error. And out into that world, that old pagan world of true stability, that world of hatred, murder and fornication, that world of shameless crime, of universal blasphemy, went to the Apostles to preach the crucified Christ. And what a task they faced, and what a miracle they wrought—well might they have quailed at the ordeal, well might they have said as St. Peter said, that "they knew not the man" if God had not strengthened them from on high, if they had not been endowed with the seven gifts of the Holy Ghost, but in spite of opposition, of persecution, the Apostles and their successors successfully fought the world, and in spite of the hatred of princes and rulers, and the contempt of the rich and learned. Persecution after persecution raged for three long centuries, hundreds of thousands of people of all ages and all classes were brutally murdered, but in the end the Gospel conquered; in the end emperor and subject, patrician and slave, were drawn to the Cross of Christ. Temples, whose walls had for long centuries echoed back the despairing cries of victims of false gods, were brought to the Christian Church. Monasteries and convents sprang up as if by magic, and into their walls flocked thousands of young people who devoted their lives to prayer and fasting, and "where sin had abounded grace did indeed abound more."

In due course the Christian Church had been established in the world; magnificent churches were erected to show the pure love and reverence for Christ in the Eucharist; and the cunning hand of the Sculptor, the skill of the artist, the genius of the magician were all utilized to express the pure gratitude to God for the fall of paganism. But though the Cross conquered, victory did not mean a cessation of hostilities, and the church never for a moment underestimated the malignity and power of the forces waged against her, so since the fight for souls began, it still goes on, and must go on to the end of time, for though the Gospel as preached by the Apostles has come down to us pure and undefiled, though the Gospel has civilized the world, yet has the Church to-day to fight for her very existence as of yore; enemies, bitter and malignant, assail her; the world has not changed in its wickedness, it has only changed its manners, and the devil hates God and truth and justice as much now as he did then, and individually we all have to work out our own salvation in fear and trembling. We are well aware that the Church will never fail, that the gates of hell cannot prevail against her, but we know at the same time that during the past fifty years untold harm has been inflicted upon Christian people; we know that in some lands supernatural faith has almost entirely disappeared, or become neglected, and we know that contumelious living has swept over the world; but what the Church did the Church can do, and what prayer did, prayer again can do; but if she fails to convince people of the sacredness of the marriage-tie and the degradation of divorce; if she cannot teach children to respect their parents, then indeed one of two things must soon happen—either the world is rapidly drawing to a close, or God will abandon the Western races to the desires of their hearts and the faith will vanish, and belief in God will die out, and the faith will go back whence it came, back to the East. This may seem farfetched, and we sincerely hope that it is farfetched, but we cannot close our eyes to facts, and we know that no amount of oratory, no amount of talk can hide the fact that belief in God, to a great extent, is dying out, this as everybody knows who reads the times aright, is true. Thirty years ago one of the greatest Popes that ever lived, Pope Leo XIII, foresaw what would happen, and ordered Catholic people all over the world to say certain prayers after Mass, and in one of the prayers we ask God for the exaltation and liberty of the Church, and we beg him to thrust Satan down to hell and with him all the other wicked spirits who wander throughout the world for the ruin of souls. This petition to God is not sentiment, for all around us and about us are evil spirits, spirits wicked and malignant, whose object is our destruction, and the humiliation of the Christian Church. To a great extent, fortunately we in this country are merely spectators of the terrific struggle between good and evil that is going on in the great centres of civilization; we view from apart the struggle between the Church and the world; we have a sense of remoteness from the strife a feeling that our Christian faith can never fail, but let us not feel too sure or too safe, we are a part and parcel of the great world and whatever affects the world for good or for evil affects us. Before the war none of us imagined for a moment that we would be engaged in the struggle that staggered humanity; but our young men were called upon, trained, and sent to take their part in it; who then shall say that we are not concerned with what happens in the great world? Who then shall say the concerns of the Universal Church is no business of his? Our chief business is indeed the sanctification of our own soul, that is our first duty, but we have also a duty to our neighbour, and our neighbour is all mankind, and so for the conversion of sinners we are asked to pray. Are we doing the missionary work that we can do? We may not be able to go out and preach and teach all nations, but we can pray for all nations; we can make the world better by being holier ourselves; and in this beautiful little Church, dedicated this morning, in this Church must our best prayers be said; here shall we give honour to God; here shall we find means for the salvation of our immortal souls; this is the House of God and the Gate of Heaven; this is the place where all things most important for our salvation happen; here our sins will be remitted; here shall we receive the Body and Blood of our Redeemer, and here, most important they might persevere for ever in His grace. This is a place we should love and cherish; here shall we come in the dusk of the evening when the day's work is done, to whisper our thoughts to God, to talk with Him as our best Friend, and here we are always sure to be heard; here the Stations of the Cross and the Crucifix should remind us of the sufferings of Christ, and remind us that our sufferings are as nothing compared to His; here, in a word, we have the place that of all, shall we celebrate the Holy Sacrifice of the Mass, offered up for the salvation of mankind, offered up for all those who have sinned, offered up for all who are friends of God that is "the House of God and the Gate of Heaven."

The ceremonies of the day closed with the blessing of the bell. Amongst those present were Mayor Cook, Hons. J. D. Ryan, F. McNamara, W. J. Ellis, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, and many other prominent citizens, kind donors and generous benefactors.

Coolidge's Childhood

He Was an Amateur Carpenter

"Calvin made this himself when he was a boy."

"What did he use it for?" Mr. Coolidge was asked.

The old man opened the drawers. Notebooks, letters, clippings, scraps of paper were exposed to view, the things that any boy would put in a miniature chest of drawers. The writer has tried her hand at carpentry. Because of that she can say that Calvin Coolidge had done a mighty fine job on that cabinet.

When we came down into the old-fashioned New England parlor, Mr. Coolidge spied a man on the porch. He smiled wearily.

"Somebody to see me, I guess. We had better go out."

It was someone to see him, a reporter from a Boston paper.

Mr. Coolidge greeted him. The man explained his mission, an interview

"But I saw somebody from your paper yesterday," Mr. Coolidge said not without kindness. "You're here to-day. Will they send somebody else to-morrow?"

Not wishing to disturb the two men, the writer left.

"I may come back later," she warned Mr. Coolidge.

"I shall be glad to see you if you come, but I hope you won't," he said. "Please don't take that personally. I like talking to people and I'm not unaware of the honor they pay me by coming here, but I'm so tired of questions and interviews. I feel sorry for Calvin as far as that's concerned. Yet he never does what he doesn't wish to. Yesterday morning some of the photographers who came late wanted him to pose taking the oath of office. Calvin wouldn't. He didn't mind his picture being taken while the thing was actually happening, but it didn't seem right to repeat the pose to meet the public desire for pictures. He was right. It wouldn't have seemed the thing to make a pose out of something as sacred as the presidential oath of office.

An Old Friend's Recollections

Across the road from the Coolidge home, on the porch of the general store, was Miss Florence V. Cilley, a childhood friend of Calvin Coolidge. She was kneeling at the door making a flower cushion for a funeral she was going to attend that day. She swept the flowers and panzies off the chair and made room for her interviewer.

"What kind of a boy was Calvin Coolidge?" she was asked.

"Oh, I don't know. I really didn't know him until he was twelve of fourteen years old. As far as I remember he was the same kind of boy that Calvin Coolidge is as a man, quiet, silent, yet not inactive. He was always doing things and thinking things, but nobody ever knew much what they were. Wait a minute. Clarence Blanchard can tell you more about him than I. They used to live together for a while." She stopped pinning panzies into green ferns for a moment and called:

"Clarence. Clarence. Somebody here wants to know about Calvin. Come out and talk to her, will you?"

Clarence Blanchard came. He is a man probably as old as President Coolidge. He is one of the lumber merchants of Plymouth Notch. Apparently, he too was going to the funeral, for he gave up much of his time in constructive suggestion and criticism about the flower pillow.

"Yes," he said in true Yankee leisure fashion. "I knew Calvin when he was a youngster. I boarded with his grandmother a whole lot. He and I used to go around together a lot. Not that I ever really got to know him. Nobody ever did. He was such a quiet fellow, even when he was a small boy. He was never a mixer; he was always an individual. He and I used to come to the general store together and polish the counters. They're made of alternate bars of birdseye maple and red cherry. We used pumice stone and water and rub them down every night. Calvin used to like to do that. He didn't say much but he'd kind of smile in a very satisfied fashion while he was moving his arms."

A Real Boy, But Very Dignified

"What about pranks? Wasn't he ever up to anything that deserved a whipping?"

Mr. Blanchard smiled slowly.

"I wouldn't say that. But Calvin was mighty careful when he poined any fun of that sort. He wasn't adverse to it, but he didn't like taking chances of public disapproval. He could keep his mouth shut about things and he wanted other people to do the same. He liked to chuckle quietly over the things he'd do.

"As a matter of fact, he was more of a student, than a hail fellow well met person. He was never a jolly person. He was always preserved an outward dignity. Yet he was no spoil sport. He was a real boy to live with.

"Calvin was never a musician but when we were about eighteen, he, another boy and myself would spend many a winter night rending the air with what we thought was harmony. Calvin played the castnets and bones. Do you know what bones are? Originally the darkies would make them out of ribs of beef. That's how they got their name. They're a pair of curved instruments, well—just bones, used in keeping time. It requires a lot of practice to work them. Calvin practiced, and got to working them fine. I played the piccolo and the other fellow the harmonica. We had some great times together.

"Once we took part in a minstrel show. Calvin was the end man. He made a mighty good one. His humor was always quiet, but he got in some mighty good digs."

"Tell about the picnic, Clarence," Miss Cilley suggested.

Clarence hesitated. We urged him.

"Well, the young folks of Plymouth Notch went out on a picnic. Calvin took one waggon load and I another. For some reason or other I got there first. Calvin got there a few minutes later, his horse all covered with sweat.

" 'Calvin,' somebody said to him? look at that horse. What did you do to him? He's all covered with sweat.'

"Calvin loked at the horse in his own quiet, inimitable fashion and shook his head dryly while doing so, 'Well, I tried to rush him and get him here before he'd sweat.' "

Miss Cilley who had been listening quietly while she was pursuing her task, broke in. "Another time we were at a picnic and we were awfully hot. Cal was there and he was hot too. He loked around and a good distance away from us he spied a spring. He continued mopping his brow never moving in its direction.

" 'There a spring over there,' he said. 'I don't ask anything for the suggestion.'

Sable I. Still Aground

Messrs. Harvey & Co., received a message last evening from Lameline stating that all efforts to refloat the S. S. Sable I. which went ashore there on last Monday night had failed, and that extra apparatus was being brought from Halifax, when another attempt will be made to get the steamer off. While the weather holds moderate the Sable is in no danger, and it is believed that with the necessary gear, there is little doubt that the ship can be refloated.

The Stella Maris with the Sable's cargo is due here this afternoon. The Stella Maris is bringing all the freight with the exception of the cattle.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, MONDAY, AUG. 20th, 1923.

ENCOURAGING NEWS

The coastal steamer Portia brings very encouraging news from the northward where in many places the fish has struck in large quantities. During the early part of the season the fishery from Cape John to Cape Norman, with the exception of the Groais Islands, was practically a blank and many crews must have given up the voyage as hopeless. For those who kept their traps in the water, however, the reward is now at hand and failure will be turned into success in many sections. Unfortunately, there has been a tendency on the part of many this season to give the fishery but a scant trial and a too-great willingness to abandon the industry at an earlier date than usual. The unwisdom of this course has been frequently pointed out by The Advocate in the past few weeks and our advice has now, to a great extent, been justified.

A CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE

The Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba has been asked to decide a nice constitutional point, says a Toronto Globe editorial. When the Government framed the Speech from the Throne it foreshadowed a bill for the creation of a Wheat Board, but three Ministers voted against the proposal when it came before the House. The Conservative group, in a memorial to the Lieutenat-Governor, has directed his attention to the circumstances and asked him to take such steps as might be necessary "to preserve and maintain responsible government."

The passage in the Speech from the Throne implied that the bill would be a Government measure. As such it must have been discussed in Cabinet Council. If Ministers differed they were bound by constitutional usage to conceal their disagreement and to stand by any majority decision, unless they chose to resign. The Premier of Manitoba, however, refused to stake the Government's fate on the Wheat Control Bill when it came before the House, and left it an open question. The Lieutenant-Governor has so far declined to pronounce on the Government's right to make the change of front, and it is probable that public opinion would not favor an election on such an issue even if the weight of precedent were on the side of the petitioners.

It is evident that in legislative bodies in this country where no group is sure of a compact working majority the Executive is going to take a more elastic view of its duties. Some critics will profess to see in this a weakening of the principle of responsible government, as do the Tories in Manitoba. Others will defend it as a concession to the authority of Parliament.

A Lesson of the Unfortified Frontier

NEW YORK, August 10—(By Canadian Press)—The Wall Street Journal recently printed the following editorial under the heading "The Fortless Frontier":

"The unfortified frontier between ourselves and Canada supplies a fitting symbol to President Harding in his gracious response to the warm welcome given him as the first President to step on Canadian soil.

"It is truly an object lesson to an older world where in this year of grace borders are bristling with hates and suspicions, if not with actual forts and guns. But it may be asked, in appreciating the well phrased sentiments of "fraternity and faith," whether there is not also a slight hint of instruction for us Americans and Canadians who have no ancient grudges or revenves. It is not a phase to be cited officially on such an occasion; yet it is suggested by certain recent happenings.

"The President did not omit from his reckoning of common attributes and mutual ties the industrial and financial link—an investment of two and one-half billions of our money. And it is along these very lines that the great and beautiful object lesson should instill a little caution just now on both sides of the unguarded frontier.

"In Europe, where the great war was so largely economic in nature, the present weaponless warfares are very largely also of an economic character. Replacing the physical barbed wires of armed hostilities are various sorts of economic barbed wire athwart the mutual business of the peoples of Europe. Are we not here in a vastly less and still largely potential danger of something of the same sort?

"On the American side of the fortless frontier we have been somewhat guilty in that respect in our recent taiff-framing. Its aim, which was doomed by its own fallacy to disappointment, was the selfish serving of a single class of the population—now seeking other forms of government coddling. But its necessary victims were our northern neighbors—many of them our own by birth and Canada's by migration—engaged in raising wheat and cattle.

"Now the temptation to be a bit less neighbourly, comes to the Canadians in turn. They, too, feel a self-serving impulse. It is one of mingled motives—conservation of their forest heritage, greater, largest to their own workers, in producing and selling pulp and paper instead of simply wood. But it inevitably means dislocation and damage to a great American industry, and probably an added cost burden on the American roads.

"It is, therefore, encouraging or reassuring to note that Premier King now epresses hope that a 'more excellent expedient' than the suggested embargo will be found in the impending Canadian investigation of the subject.

"That should be the teaching of the business logic of the situation. Back of that should lie a deeper lesson—all that the unfortified frontier stands for."

Governor Allardyce Prorogues Legislature

The prorogation of the first session of the twenty-fifth General Assembly took place with due ceremony on Saturday afternoon.

At 3 p.m. His Excellency the Governor, accompanied by Major Wilberforce-Bell and Capt. Goodfellow, arrived for the official closing. In the grounds the police including the mounted force under Supt. O'Neil, were present as a guard, while the C.L.B. Band was also in attendance and played the National Anthem as His Excellency entered the grounds. After inspecting the police, His Excellency repaired to the Council Chamber and after the members of the House of Assembly had been summoned by the usher of the Black Rod, His Excellency gave his assent to the following Bills:—

"An Act for granting to his Majesty certain sums of money for defraying certain expenses of the Public Service for the Financial Years ending respectively the 30th day of June, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three and the 3rd day of June, one thousand and nine hundred and twenty-four, and for other purposes relating to the Public Service."

"An Act for the Confirmation of an Agreement between the Government and Malcolm Joseph Mooney, Lumberman."

"An Act to further Amend the Revenue Act, 1905."

"An Act for the raising of a sum of money on the credit of the Colony for certain purposes."

"An Act respecting certain retiring allowances."

"An Act to amend 12 & 13 George V. Cap. 17, entitled "An Act for the Encouragement of Shipbuilding.'"

"An Act respecting certain Rights, Privileges and Franchises connected with the supply of Electric Light and Power to St. John's for Street Railway and other purposes."

"An Act to amend Chapter 23 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled "Of the Auditing of Public Accounts."

"An Act to amend Chapter 22 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Customs."

"An Act to amend the Business Profits Tax Acts (1917-1922)."

"An Act respecting a Preferential Tariff on Products of Jamaica."

"An Act respecting a Preferential Tariff on Products of Spain."

"An Act for the Confirmation of an Agreement between the Government and Harry J. Crowe, Timber Merchant."

His Excellency then delivered the closing address as follows:—

Mr. President and Hon. Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly.

I am glad to be able to relieve you from the responsible duties of this Session. You have applied yourselves earnestly to the consideration of the various matters that have been brought before you and I appreciate the zeal with which you have performed your Legislative duties.

Since the opening of the Legislature in June last a change has taken place in the personnel of my ministry. The late Prime Minister saw fit to resign and consequent thereon a new administration was formed. A thorough investigation into various Departments of the Civil Service has been promised by my Ministers and steps have already been taken to carry that promise into effect. The Government has requested the Secretary of State for the Colonies to select a competent and reliable man for the work.

The passing of the legislation respecting the development of the Humber Valley is a step forward in the utilization of the resources of the Colony, and it is hoped that it is but the beginning of an era in which our water powers may contribute to the wealth of the Island.

The Railway Settlement Act brings to an end the conditions that pertained in relation to the running of the railway and steamship services.

In the meantime a temporary operating Commission has been appointed and every effort will be made towards the running of the Railway and allied services in an efficient and economical manner.

The prospects for employment in lumbering and logging during the coming winter seem better than last year.

His Majesty's Government has invited my Prime Minister to attend the Imperial and economic conferences to be held in London this Autumn, and I am glad to announce that he has accepted the invitation.

These Conferences, at this stage of the development of the Empire, will be of the utmost importance and it is hoped that this Colony will be a sharer in the beneficent results that we trust will come from these deliberations.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly.

I thank you for the supplies which you have voted for the various Departments of the public service and I can assure you that my Ministers will expend the same with due regard for economy and efficiency.

Mr. President and Honourable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honourable House of Assembly.

In taking leave of you, I desire to express my sincere wish for your prosperity and general welfare.

The House was prorogued till Wednesday, Oct. 17.

Round Trippers Enjoy Stay At Port Union

The round trippers on the Portia availed of the opportunity of the delay of the ship in Catalina to visit the magnificent premises of the F.P.U. of that place. Unfortunately for them they could only see the dimensions of the buildings from the outside as all the operatives in the several departments had finished their daily labours and had gone to their homes. The buildings are spacious and spick and span and are up to all modern requirements for the handling of the large business which is now being transacted at Port Union. Some of the round trippers on board had the opportunity of visiting the bungalo. We noticed Mr. Donald Nicolson and Mr. William Taffe made a minute inspection of this beautifully located residence, and they were much taken and interested in its conveniences as a model home. It is doubtful if any house in this city has the useful and artistic contrivances which go so much to make up the residential advantages of modern civilization. The residence well repays the time occupied by any visitor in looking it over.

The trip notwithstanding a little adverse weather at the outset was enjoyed wholeheartedly by all passengers aboard. The skill of the captain, the kindness of the officers and crew, the untiring attentions of the steward and his staff and the urbanity of the purser all contributed to make it a record of happy hours and happy events enjoyed by the passengers who were the guests on board the ship. The passengers themselves were as merry as a gang of school boys let loose on the play ground, and their bandsmen Messrs. Piercy Gardine, Tommy Doheney, Sandy Lawrence, Michael Morris, Jack Walsh, M. Hackett, R. Martin would not suffer any one aboard to have a dull hour.

It would not do to pass over the kindness of the Fortune Harbour Soggarth with the hospitality of his class threw open his hall and afforded the round trippers the pleasures of a turpsichorean evening in which all hands danced the long night into the bright morning. The only regret in the whole trip as expressed by all the company was when the ship reached St. John's and the flying hours of pleasure were brought to a close.

"These," said the schoolmaster on holiday, pointing with his silver-mounted cane, "are two nations of ants. Observe how the great mass scurry about, toiling busily. Yet mark a few in each nation who hold themselves apart, and are sustained by the industry of the others."

"Why are the working ants making so much noise" asked the wonder ing pupil.

"Some of them," said the schoolmaster disdainfully, "are complaining at the idleness of the leisured few, and the rest are quarrelling among themselves."

"Do they never work together without quarrelling?"

"Only when the workers of the two nations engage in battle to defend their leisured classes."

Police Court

A large docket was presented to His Honor, Judge McCarthy this morning. The first called before the bar was a daughter of Eve, who claims a distant Northern village as the place that gave her birth; no home was the charge preferred against her, and the Judge sent her down to the Penitintiary for ten days. How long more will this uncharitable and inhuman practice of harboring females in a prison, be permitted to be followed is unknown to us, but we say in all sincerity and so do all right thinking men and women, that some more befitting place should be found for our erring womanhood.

A seaman from "La Bella France", who had no place to rest his weary head, was handed over for the next ten days (till his ship comes home) to the tender mercies of Supt. Parsons at the Lake Side Hotel.

A Knight of the Saw and Hammer, who acted disorderly on the public street, was asked to pay two dollars for his action or in default to spend five days in the Pen.

A labourer of one score of years and 10 charged with having assaulted a victim at the shrine of Bachus, was given his freedom on depositing two dollars with Supt. Fitzgerald, for the Public Treasury.

A labour of twenty-five summers, from the borders of historic Mundy Pond, taken for safe-keeping, was released.

Footballers Leave

The football team to play with the Grand Falls team left by special train Saturday night at 10.30. The footballers were accompanied by several of the members of the Star Jazzola Orchestra who will play at a dance to be held in Grand Falls. A large number of football fans were at the station to bid them Good Luck.

The Prince's Canadian Ranch

LONDON, Aug. 6—In connection with the proposed visit of the Prince of Wales to his ranch in Alberta in the early autumn some interesting information about the ranch is given by the Times. As has been announced the Prince's visit to Canada this fall will be entirely unofficial. Travelling under the name of the Duke of Cornwall His Royal Highness will make the trip as a private citizen of the Empire and he will not accept engagements, if official, of any kind while in the Dominion.

The coming visit of the popular Prince is regarded as a proof of the serious business character of his Canadian enterprise and also of his close personal interest in agricultural affairs generally.

The Royal Edward Prince Ranch at Pekisko, Calgary, is situated on the foothills of the Rocky Mountains, and extends to some thousands of acres pasture, with about two hundred acres under cultivation for the production of supplementary winter feed. The ranch is managed by Professor W. L. Caryle, who was recently in England and took back with him consignments of Shorthorn cattle and Hampshire Down sheep to replenish the herd and flock of pure-bred stock already on the ranch, and also three young Clydesdale fillies as a nucleus of a new stud of the Scottish breed of draught horses, the type popular in Western Canada. The King's thoroughbred stallion, Will Somers, was also included in the interesting shipment, it being the intention to let this representative of the Turf stand at the E. P. Ranch for the benefit of the stud-owners of the Province.

The herd, at the head of which stands the bull Prince of the Fairies, a prize winner for the Stock Climsland herd in which he was bred before being exported, now numbers nearly one hundred head, and by degrees the grade cattle will be displaced by registered Shorthorns.

The sheep kept are Hampshire Downs and Shropshires, the former having been recently increased by important consignments from England. The Hampshire breed has many supporters in the Western Provinces of Canada and the United States.

It is a notable point in favor of the E.P. ranch that the stock—cattle as well as sheep—can be kept out of doors the whole year round. As hinted, provision is made for giving supplementary food in winter, or when the supplies on the pastures run short, but the herd and flock practically support themselves on the open pastures of the ranch, and prosper and multiply liberally under these frugal and hardening conditions.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

One of the powerful princes of India, a gentleman named the Maharaja of Kapurthala, made some remarks recently about the power that he, like any other prince of India, wields.

"I have absolute power and not partial power," he declared. "That means absolute power of life and death over people.

"But I am a man who has been around the world and lived in several countries," he adds, "and therefore it is natural that I should not do anything that is not done in a civilized community.

"I am liberal and democratic, and I have worked for the betterment of my State. Since I have been ruler of Kapurthala—now many years—I have never once exercised the power of death, and have always commuted the death sentence of a criminal to life imprisonment, as I do not believe in capital punishment."

A wise and human belief, one that well might be adopted by the so-called civilized nations of the western world. We civilized people still murder murderers to show how we abhore murder. It's a unique way to show it, too, isn't it? To show the high value we place on life we take a man who has taken life, and kill him.

We don't agree with the idea of that uncivilized Indian, the Prince of Kapurthala, who thinks that the best way for a government to show the people how much it values human life is to refrain from killing a man who has taken life. Catch us doing such a thing! We snatch at the murdered and snuff out his life. We have such an exalted and lofty conception of the value and sacredness of human life.

I must admit that it is rarely that I find myself agreeing with anything that William Randolph Hearst, the American publisher of several dozen newspapers says, or anything his newspapers say. Once in a while, however, he manages to speak some accuracy.

A recent issue of the New York American contained an editorial article with which I largely agree. It backed up the Prime Minister of Gt. Britain, Stanley Baldwin, in his stand on the question of France's doings in the Ruhr Valley in Germany. Says the article:

"Lest we (that is, the United States) and France forget, recall the fact that on December 1, 1918, the German Chancellor asked President Wilson to summon the billigerants to a peace conference on the basis of the Fourteen Points.

"The Allies thus bound themselves not to destroy the German people but only to force the surrender of the autocratic, militaristic German government.

"The Germans at our command over threw their autocratic government, set up in its place a democratic government, surrendered arms, territory, ships, colonies and all means of defence and relied upon our honor. In five years they have since paid five times the indemnity exacted by Germany of France in 1870 in a war which France itself caused. They are willing to pay as much more as an international commission of experts finds them able to pay. Had France or Belgium declared the purposes they are now relentlessly carrying out against England's and Italy's protest, the armistice papers would certainly not have borne an American signature.

"For the American people believed then, as they believe now, that the German people should pay to the limit of their capacity for the ruin their armies wrought.

"But they did not then, and they certainly do not now, wish to see the German people enslaved by French militarists who, under the guise of seeking reparations, are in fact covetously and brutally seizing the industrial heart of an unarmed neighbor."

It was the abnominable German ruling class, her militarist clique and bombastic, empty-headed Kaiser and his gang, that the people of England, France, Russia, Italy and the United States fought against. The people of these nations did not fight against the German people. There was no quarrel with the people of Germany. The quarrel was with the junkers and imperialists, the war-lords and militarists of Germany. They have been conquered and put down, and the German people have set up a Republic The German people have learned their lesson, and a bitter one it is, as the millions of widows, orphans and cripples there well can testify. Our part now is to act like humane men toward them. They never were our enemy; they are not now. Those that were our enemy still are, whether they be in Germany or in France.

A Life Down Through The Ages

CALUMET ISLAND, Quebec, Aug. 14—Born four years before the great Napoleon Bonaparte died in exile on the island of St. Helena and a witness to the burning of the Parliament Buildings in Montreal on April 25th, 1849, which followed the sanction of the Rebellion Losses Bill by Lord Elgin, then Governor-General of Canada, are some of the claims to distinction of Mr. Joseph Beland, sturdy French-Canadian Centenarian and a pioneer of Clemet Island, Quebec. Should Mr. Beland live to see May 3, next year, he will then have attained his one hundred and seventh birthday

Mr. Beland has lived under six British sovereigns. He is still vigorous, and his general apearance would lead one to believe that he was closer to 80 years of age than considerably beyond the century mark and still going strong. In fact, only the production of the centenarian's birth certificate carries conviction as to his exact age.

One would imagine that Mr. Beland burdened as he is by the weight of 106 years and with a record of sustained arduous work as a lumber jack, pioneer settler and farmer, during a period of more than 80 years, would be quite content to lead for the balance of his terrestrial existence a life of complete repose. But this is not the case with the venerable and stout-hearted centenarian of Calumet Island. Mr. Beland's one worry is that the relentless hand of time will, ultimately press so strongly on him that he will be compelled to while away the closing days of his existence in an arm-chair.

Standing about five feet five inches and weighing about 140 pounds, Mr. Beland is anything but a frail man. He walks with a firm step. One of his feats last winter was to cut down a towering red pine measuring five feet in circumference. Mr. Beland boasts that he is still able to cut one cord of wood a day, either with the axe or buck-saw. It is no idle boast, and no more than one occasion he has performed this truly remarkable feat for a man of his years.

Mr. Beland leads the simple life. He is as a rule an early riser and until recently was in the habit of getting up before sunrise. His customary hour of retirement is nine o'clock. He is blessed with a hearty appetite. Mr. Beland has been a smoker all his life and will occasionally take a drink of liquor.

Mr. Beland said he came and settled on Calumet Island when about 16 years of age. He remembers being in Montreal when the Parliament Buildings were burned down on April 25, 1849. He also witnessed the rioting that marked the burning of the Building and the attack on Lord Elgin, then Governor-General. As a boy and young man, Mr. Beland witnessed the birth and growth of one of Canada's greatest industries, that of lumbering. He was in the employ of various companies operating the Upper and Lower Ottawa valley as a lumber jack and river driver.

"In my day," Mr. Beland stated, "we used to work long hours and were paid 50 cents a day and considered it good wages. The concerns were very strict and if a man "jumped" before his time was up he lost all his wages for the winter's work. "Mr. Beland recalled having been associated with Joseph Bontferrand, the famous French-Canadian strong man and "bully of the shanty," who is credited with having performed herculean feats and on many occasions beating single-handed several men who tried to knock him out.

Although the information was not given by Mr. Beland some of his relatives stated that he was a grand-uncle of Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, Minister of Health and Soldiers Civil Re-Establishment. A family of four sons and four daughters all of whom are living with the exception of two daughters blessed the union. There are 137 direct descendants.

Just Phone Your Grocer

HE'S the Carnation Milkman. He'll send you a supply of sweet, fresh milk you can keep on your pantry shelves in perfect safety—even through the heat of summer!

Then you have it always on hand. No running out, no waste, no inconvenience! Carnation Milk is just pure "whole" milk with about 60% of the natural water content removed by evaporation. For tea or coffee use it as it comes from the can; for cooking or drinking reduce its richness by adding water as desired.

Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans with your groceries.

The Carnation Cook Book contains 100 delightful tested recipes. Here's one. Try it—and write to-day for the Cook Book.

FROZEN CUSTARD

2-3 cup sugar, 1¼ cups water, 1¼ cups Carnation Milk, 2 eggs, ⅛ teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful vanilla. Scald the milk. Beat the eggs slightly; add sugar and salt. Add the scalded milk mixed with the water and stir constantly. Put in double boiler and stir until the mixtures thickens and a coating is formed on spoon. Cool, add flavoring and freeze. This recipe makes one quart, enough to serve six people.

Has Cure for Leprosy

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—A sure for leprosy, hitherto regarded as incurable, has been discovered, according to Dr. F. F. Carr-Harris, a medical missionary of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, who is home on furlough from Wei-hwei-fu, Honan Province, China.

To a Canadian Press representative the doctor stated that a drug called Eparseno, had been experimented with by French physicians and in one test made by a series of systematic injections particularly on victims of the nodular type of leprosy 15 out of 18 were completely cured, while in another instance three cases out of three tests made were cured.

The doctor explained the nodular type of leprosy as being that which started by depriving the unfortunate victims of the use of their limbs. Complete cures had been effected in from five to six weeks according to the stages the disease had reached before the patients were submitted to the tests. Injections were made at intervals of from one to three days.

Dr. Carr-Harris is a farmor Kingston boy. He went to China in 1913, was invalided to England for special treatment in 1915 and on recovery served three years on the Western Front in the war. On discharge from the army he returned to China and is now in Canada on furlough.

Garden Party at Flatrock

The Garden Party at Flatrock yesterday afternoon was, in every way, a great snuccess. Taking advantage of the Bus Service from Rawlin's Cross a large number of people went from St. John's and were accorded a hearty welcome at the Garden Party.

During the afternoon the patrons were entertained by various side shows and music by the Mount Cashel Band so that the time passed rapidlly. The ladies of the parish served appetising teas in a capable manner and these were largely patronized.

The visitors returned by bus at 10 o'clock after a most successful day.

Big Improvement in French Shore Fishery is Reported

Crews At Many Places Getting All They Can Mandle.

The Northern Coastal steamer Portia, Capt. Field, arrived yesterday at 1 p.m. The ship met with very stormy weather all through especially going North, and Capt. Field states it was a regular November trip.

The Portia reports quite an improvement in the fishery on the French Shore, and at St. Anthony, Griquet, Quirpon, Cook's Hr., Grey Islands an Raleigh fish is very plentiful and both traps and hook and liners, are getting as much as they can handle. At several places a salt shortage is reported, but the necessary supplies are being forwarded from other centres. At Nipper's Hr. there is a good sign of fish, but further South there is very little doing.

The Portia, brought a little freight and the following passengers:—Messrs. W. J. Martin, M. E. Martin, Wadlane, S. Newman, J. Walsh, M. J. Morris, T. Dohney, E. and J. Moakler, M. Hackett, P. H. Junior Football League

A meeting of the Junior League was held on Saturday night, when various matters were discussed. As several of the League players are now at Grand Falls, the League has given St. George's Field to the Juniors and they have arranged to run off as many of the remaining games as possible. The following games will therefore be played this week:

Monday—Cadets vs. St. Mary's.
Tuesday—Gaelic vs. Wesley.
Wednesday Forenoon—T. A. vs. Scouts; B.I.S. vs. Holy Cross.

The Harmony Here From Moravian Settlements

The S.S. Harmony, Capt. Jackson, arrived from the Labrador yesterday morning, after making her first trip for the season to the Moravian Settlements. The Harmony left London June 29th and went direct to the coast, making a fair trip out. The ship called at all the settlements as far North as Nain, and reports that the fishery while not up to last season was fair, while the trappers were also short after their season's work. The Harmony brought out a cargo of stores for the different posts, while Mr. and Mrs. Walderman who were home on furlough returned to their station. A staff photographer for a number of English newspapers also came out by the ship, and was landed at Hebron, he also visited Stag Bay and other places of interest. The Harmony has a quantity of fish and furs on board and as soon as her freight is discharged she will load a cargo of supplies for the settlements.

Concert on Portia

On Tuesday night last, while the Portia was at Jackson's Arm on her way North, a very enjoyable concert was held on board, which was attende by the passengers, and was held in the ship's saloon. The programme was a varied one and included selections by the ship's orchestra, songs, recitations, and step dances, by the veteran, Martin Day. Others who contributed numbers included Misses Nellie Hennebury, Doris Wills, Florence Martin, Mary Moakler, Thomas Dohney, Sandy Lawrence, Jack Walsh and Parcie Jardine. Mr. Fred Moore was chairman and at the conclusion a collection in aid of the Marine Disasters Fund was taken up and the sum of $22.73 was realized.

Motor Accident

Yesterday morning one of the Mack motor busses went through a bridge on the Bay Bulls Road near Middle Pond. The bridge was completely demolished, and boards had to be placed across, in order to allow the many motors and other vehicles that went out yesterday to get past. Even then it was very dangerous and it is hoped the bridge will be replaced as soon as possible. The bus was bringing a party of picnicers to Middle Pond when the accident happened.

The Governor at Grand Falls

His Excellency and Lady Allardyce accompanied by Miss Allardyce and Captain Goodfellow, left on Saturday by special train on an official visit to Grand Falls. It is understood that the Governor and Party will be away for about ten days.

PERSONAL

Mr. Allan Noseworthy, son of Inspector Noseworthy, leaves tomorrow to join his ship at Botwood. He is second engineer of the Alconda and was in the city for a few days the guest of his parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilliatt of Bell Island are now guests at the Crosbie.

PERSONAL—

Mr. and Mrs. K. Calpin are passengers on the incoming express due this afternoon.

Hon. Philip Templeman is spending a short vacation at Bay Bulls and is staying at Sea View Hotel.

Capt. Edward Bishop arrived from Wesleyville yesterday by the Portia on a business trip.

The Rev. G. Lightbourne and Miss Lightbourne, who were spending a holiday at Trinity, returned by the Portia.

His Lordship Bishop March, who was making his annual visitation North, came South by the Portia and disembarked at Bay de Verde.

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Reid, left by a special train Saturday night to meet Sir Glynn and Lady West at Port Aux Basques. After inspecting the works at the Humber Development the whole party will arrive at St. John's on September 1st.

Mr. Donald Nicolson, the popular, genial and energetic Manufacturers Representative, looked well on landing on the Coastal Wharf yesterday after his round trip. We trust that with his renewed energy greater results will attend his successful business.

LOCAL ITEMS

On Saturday night a French sailor who was one of the crew of the S.S. Yankton, was arrested for being drunk. The steamer sailed for Boston Saturday, and it is understood the seaman left the ship because the officers wanted him to work a twelve hour day. He will be held until arrangements are made with the Consul to have his sent home.

H. B. THOMPSON, Optician, will be at Bonavista Aug. 20 and 21, on business. His office will be at the Thornlea Hotel; hours, 9.30 to 12.30, and 2.30 to 6 p. m. aug 20, 2i.

Laid To Rest

The funeral of the late Alexander Roger took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence Barnes Rd., and was very largely attended. A guard of honour from the Masonic Order acted as pall-bearers while many of the brethern were amongst the mourners. Interment was at the General Protestant Cemetery, the service being conducted by Rev. Hammond Johnson of Gower St. Church.

In For Repairs

The French banker Armoricain, 2 days from the Grand Banks, arrived yesterday for repairs. The vessal is leaking, and it is expected will have to be docked. The Armoricain has done exceptionally well, and hails for 6000 qtls. of fish.

There is nothing more helpful or timely than a word of praise to any one, but most of all to the young.

DILLUSIONMENT

(Indianapolis News)

Some progress has been made on the road to permanent peace, it is believed, especially through the treaties negotiated at the Washington Conference, which have been finally ratified by all the contracting parties. The League of Nations also has received credit for adjusting several threatening situations in Europe. Yet, all in all, the high hopes for the banishment of war forever, so generally held at the end of the world war, are still to be realized.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER VII.

"Thank you for that vote of confidence in the McKaye family, Andrew," said a quiet voice. "I think you have the situation sized up just right."

Andrew Daney whirled; his wife glanced up, startled, then half rose and settled back in her chair again, for her legs absolutely refused to support her. Standing at the foot of the steps that led off the veranda was Hector McKaye.

"I drove Donald down from the Dreamerie to catch the up train, and thought I'd drop over and visit with you a bit," he explained. "I didn't intend to eavesdrop, and I didn't—very much; but since I ouldn't help overhearing such a pertinent bit of conversation, I'll come up and we'll get to the bottom of it. Keep your seat, Mrs. Daney."

The advice was unnecessary. The poor soul could not have left it. The Laird perched himself on the veranda railing, handed the dumbfounded Daney a cigar, and helped himself to one.

"Well, proceed." The Laird commanded. His words apparently were addressed to both, but his glance was fixed on Mrs. Daney—and now she understood full well her husband's description of the McKaye look.

"I had finished what I had to say, Mr. McKaye," Andrew Daney found courage to say.

"So I noted, Andrew, and right well and forcibly you said it. I'm grateful to you. I make no mistake, I think, if your statement was not in reply to some idle tale told your good wife and repeated by her to you—in confidence, of course, as between man and wife."

"If you'll excuse me, Mr. McKaye, I—I'd rather not—discuss it!" Mary Daney cried breathlessiy.

"I would I did not deem it necessary to discuss it myself, Mary. But you must realize that when the tongue of scandal touches my son, it becomes a personal matter with me, and I must look for a weapon to combat it. You'll tell me now, Mary, what they've been saying about Donald and Caleb Brent's daughter."

"Andrew will tell you," she almost whispered, and made as if to go. But The Laird's fierce eyes deterred her; she quailed and sat down again.

Andrew cannot tell me, because Andrew doesn't know," The Laird rebuked her kindly. "I heard him tell you not to tell him, that he wasn't a gossip, and wouldn't befoul the salt he ate by being disloyal, or words to that effect. It it possible Mary, Daney, that you prefer me to think you are not inspired by similar sentiments? Don't cry, Mary—compose yourself."

"Idleness is the mother of mischief, and since the children have grown up and left home, Mary hasn't enough to keep her busy," Daney explained. "So, womanlike and without giving sober thought to the matter, she's been listening to the idle chattering of other idle women. "Now, then, my dear," he continued, turning to his wife, "that suspicion you just voiced didn't grow in your head. Somebody put it there—and God Knows it found fertile soil. Out with it now, wife! Who've you been gossiping with?"

"I'll name no names," the unhappy woman sobbed; "but somebody told me that somebody else was down at the Sawdust Pide the day Donald burned those shacks, and after he burned them he spent an hour in the Brent cottage, and when he came out he had the baby in his arms. When he left, the child made a great to-do and called him, "daddy.' "

The Laird smiled.

"Well Mary, what would you expect the boy to do? Beat the child? To my knowledge he's been robbing the candy department of my general store for years, and the tots of Port Agnew have been the beneficiaries of his vandalism. He was born with a love of children. And you would convict him on the prattle of an innocent child in arms?"

"Certainly not, Mr. McKaye. I understand. Well, then, on Saturday night he sent over a complete outfit of clothing for the child, with a note in the bundle——"

"Hm-m-m-m."

"And then somebody remembered that the child's name is Donald."

"How old is that child, Mrs. Daney?"

She considered.

"As I recall it, he'll be three years old in October."

"Since you're a married woman, Mrs. Daney," The Laird began, with old-fashion deprecation for the blunt language he was about to employ, "that the child wasn't found behind one of old Brent's cabbages. This is the year 1916."

But Mrs. Daney anticipated him.

"They've figured it out," she interrupted," and Donald was home for the holidays in 1912."

"So he was," The Laird replied complacently. "I'd forgotten. So that alibi goes by the board. What else now? Does the child resemble my son?"

"Nobody knows. Nan Brent doesn't receive visitors, and she hasn't been up-town since the child was born."

"Is that all, Mary?"

"All I have heard so far."

Old Hector was tempted to tell her that, in his opinion she had heard altogether too much, but his regard for her husband caused him to refrain.

"It's little enough, and yet it's a great deal," he answered. "You'll be kind enough, Mary, not to carry word of this idle gossip to The Dreamerie. I should regret that very much."

She flushed with the knowledge that, although he forgave her, still he distrusted her and considered a warning necessary. However, she nodded vigorous acceptance of his desire, and immediately he changed the topic. While, for him, the quiet pleasure he had anticipated in the visit had not materialized and he longed to leave at once, for Daney's sake he remained to tea. When he departed, Mrs. Daney ran to her room and found surcease from her distress in tears, while her husband sat out on the veranda smoking one of The Laird's fine cigars, his embarrassment considerably alleviated by the knowledge that his imprudent wife had received a lesson that should last for the remainder of her life.

About eight o'clock his wife called him to the telephone. The Laird was on the wre.

"In the matter of the indiscreet young lady in the store, Andrew," he ordered, " do not dismiss her or reprimand her. The least said in such cases is soonest mended."

"Very well, sir."

"Good night, Andrew."

"Good night, sir."

"Por man!" Daney sighed, as he hung up. "He's thought of nothing else since he heard about it; it's a canker in his heart. I wish I dared indicate to Donald the fact that he's being talked about—and watched—by the idle and curious, in order that he may bear himself accordingly. He'd probably musunderstand my motives, however."

CHAPTER IX.

During the week, Mary Daney refrained from broaching the subject of that uncomfortable Sunday afternoon, wherefore her husband realized she was thinking considerably about it and, as a result, was not altogether happy. Had he suspected, however, the trend her thoughts were taking he would have been greatly perturbed. Momentous thoughts rarely racked Mrs. Daney's placid and somewhat bovine brain, but once she became possessed with the notion that Nan Brent was the only human being possessed of undoubted power to create or surpress a scandal which some queer feminine intuition warned her impended, the more firmly did she become convinced that it was her Christian duty to call upon Nan Brent and strive to present the situation in a commonsense light to that erring young woman.

Having at length attained to this resolution, a subtle peace settled over Mrs. Daney, the result, doubtless, of a consciousness of virtue regained, since she was about to right a wrong to which she so thoughtlessly had been a party. Her decision had almost been reached when her husband, coming home for luncheon at noon on Saturday voiced the apprehension which had harassed him during the week.

"Donald will be home from the woods to-night," he announced, in troubled tones. "I do hope he'll not permit that big heart of his to lead him into further kindnesses that will be misunderstood by certain people in case they hear of them. I have never known a man so proud and fond of a son as The Laird is of Donald."

"Nonsense!" his wife replied complacently. "The Laird has forgotten all about it."

"Perhaps. Nevertheless, he will watch his son, and if, by chance, the boy should visit the Sawdust Pile—"

MRS. DAVIS NERVOUS WRECK

Tells Women How She Was Restored to Perfect Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"I cannot speak too highly of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was a nervous wreck and I just had to force myself to do my work. Even the sound of my own children playing made me feel as if I must scream if they did not get away from me. I could not even speak right to my husband. The doctor said he could do nothing for me. My husband's mother advised me to take the Vegetable Compound and I started it at once. I was able to do my work once more and it was a pleasure, not a burden. Now I have a fine bouncing baby and am able to nurse her and enjoy doing my work. I cannot help recommending such a medicine, and any one seeing me before I took it, and seeing me now, can see what it does for me. I am only too pleased for you to use my testimonial."—Mrs. EMILY DAVIS, 721 McGee Street, Winnipeg, Man.

SAYS BRITISH REGULATION A DAMNABLE ONE

S.P.C.A. Will Not Permit Cruel Branding of Cattle

MONTREAL, Aug. 21—"This is the most damnable thing that has ever been brought to our notice," said J. R. Innes, Secretary of the Canadian S. P. C. A., to-day in discussing a regulation of the British Government that on and after September 1st, all Canadian store cattle for export must be branded with white-hot electrical branders.

He added that the animals would not be branded in such a cruel manner if the S. P. C. A. could prevent it.

Mr. Innes showed a piece of hard pitch on which the electrical brand had been pressed for the required ten seconds, and C. was charred into it to a depth of fully one-eighth of an inch.

The brand is approximately four inches high and two inches wide.

DEAD NOW NUMBER 400

Korean Provinces Are Devastated by Tidal Wave

TOKIO, Aug. 21—Advices received here to-day from Seoul said that 346 persons are dead and more than a thousand missing as a result of the recent tidal waves and storm in the four western provinces of Korea.

OBITUARY

HARRY HOGAN (Carbonear)

Messages received in the City on Sunday conveyed the sad news of the death at his parents' home, Carbonear, of Master Harry Hogan, second youngest son of Thomas Hogan Esq., Sub-Collector of that town.

Deceased had been a pupil of St. Bonaventure's College where he entered as a scholarship winner having had a brilliant studenship at the Carbonear Academy. During his stay at St. Bon's he was unqualifiedly popular with both pupils and teachers and the attainments which he showed in his earlier training became more marked during his career at the College where there was no brighter nor more enthusiastic student than he. Although he was not blessed by robust health, he maintained an unvarying kindliness and cheerfulness of disposition rarely to be found and his early passing removes one for whom the future would have held great things in whatever sphere his lot might have been cast.

To his sorrowing parents, brothers and sisters the Advocate tenders sincere sympathy in their loss.

Cream of Tomato Soup

½ cup Libby's Evaporated Milk
1½ cups water 1 tablespoon flour
1 can tomato soup Soda

Blend flour with a small amount of cold water, add remaining water and Libby's Milk. Heat to boiling and cook one minute then add the tomato soup and a pinch of soda. Heat quickly and serve at once

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every 16 oz. can

A better way to cream canned soup

—at a third less cost than even ordinary milk!

WITH the pride that good home cooks always have in finding economical ways to improve the foods they serve, scores of women have told us this:

Libby's Milk is especially fine for creaming canned soups.

Thousands of other Libby Milk users have probably "discovered" the same thing, for when a woman once tries this milk she uses it for all her regular cooking. You'll see why when you try the Cream of Tomato recipe above.

Instead of equal amounts of ordinary milk or cream, as the canned soup labels read, you use only one-half cup of Libby's Milk and water. That's a saving of practically 33⅓% over the cost of common milk—a cost only one-seventh that of the cream.

Yet your soup, you'll find, is wonderfully rich and creamy, with a delightful body and flavor.

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every can

Libby's Milk gives greater richness to cooking for the same reason that cream and butter do: it is rich in butter fat. There are, in fact, 7½ teaspoons of this enriching substance in every 16 oz. can of Libby's Milk!

"From famous pasture lands"

For, unlike ordinary milk, Libby's Milk comes only from selected herds in the finest dairy sections of the country—those favored localities where nature has made of shady hills and green, well watered meadows ideal pasture lands, and where men specialize in raising cows that give exceptionally rich milk.

Not only that. At our condenseries in the heart of these famous dairy sections, we remove more than half the moisture from this fine milk, making it double rich.

Nothing is added to it; none of its food values taken away. We just seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it, for only so can we bring it safely to you who live, perhaps, many hundreds of miles away.

The milk that good cooks use

Order a can of this richer milk from your grocer today. Try it tonight in place of ordinary milk—in the Cream of Tomato recipe given above, in a gravy or sauce, or in your favorite dessert.

You'll see at once why Libby's Milk has become the regular choice of good cooks everywhere. You'll want it for all your cooking, not only because it gives greater richness and finer flavor but because it's so convenient and economical to use.

Write for free recipe folders

Upon request we'll gladly send you copies of some new folders containing many excellent recipes sent us by good cooks who use Libby's Milk. Write today.

CANON SCOTT VISITS CAPE BRETON MINES

Canadian Minister Will See Conditions for Himself

QUEBEC, Aug. 21—Rev. Canon B. Scott, rector of St. Matthew's Church, this city, has gone to Cape Breton to see if conditions in the mining district are as represented by Rev. Mr. Hamlin of Newport, R. I.

In a sermon preached in St. Matthew's Church, he says: "I consider it only fair and right to see conditions myself. If I have been misinformed on any point I shall have no hesitation in saying so. Calling upon the Federal Government to furnish troops in the strike area has made the affairs of the British Empire Steel Co. a matter of personal interest to every man, woman and child in Canada. We look to the Federal government to give an explanation and a satisfactory one."

ELEVEN ARE DEAD LATEST FROM FIRE

Burning Hotel Claims Many Victims

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 21—Eleven lives were lost in the fire which destroyed Wawa Hotel in Muskoka Sunday morning, according to the latest figures to-night.

Three partly burned bodies are still unidentified and eight identified.

Miss E. Farrel, who jumped from a second storey window, striking her head, is still unconscious and may die. The other twenty or twenty-five who suffered from burns or injuries are improving.

Dr. Stokes, registering from some place in the United States, and his daughter, have been missing since the fire.

HUNTSVILLE, Ont., Aug. 21—Seven dead, two missing and possibly dead, and five seriously injured, are the latest available figures of the casualty which attented the total destruction of Wawa Hotel, Lake of Bays, early Sunday morning.

LATEST

WASHINGTON, August 21—Thousands of farmers in the United States will go bankrupt with wheat selling at considerably less than cost of production, Secretary Wallace of the United States Department of Agriculture declared yesterday, while thousands of others will be able to hold on only by most grinding economy if present plane prices other than agricultural to be maintained, he added, then to have general prosperity prices of farm products must be increased.

GLOUCESTER, MASS., Aug. 21.—In a battle with rum pirates on board his schooner J. Scott Hankensen, out of Nova Scotia, Captain Arthur Moore, Weymouth, N.S., was shot and probably fatally injured yesterday. Harry Harm Cook was shot in several places. Both were brought to hospital here by fishermen who sighted the schooner's distress signals. According to story told by the crew, the vessel was lying off Rockport about four-thirty in the afternoon when two men approached her in motor boat and boarded her. Schooner's cargo consisted of three thousand cases whisky. Men entered the cabin and at once opened fire with revolvers on captain and cook. Although shot through stomach first Capt. Moore returned fire, wounding one of his assailants; Cook was shot in neck, shoulder and legs. Pirates discouraged at skipper's resistance left schooner without any plunder. Physicians state Moore would probably die of wounds.

SYDNEY, Aug. 21.—Remenant of military forces in Sydney area numbering about seventy men, left for Halifax Saturday night and all indications are that provincial police will be paid off within a day or two.

ST. PAUL, ALASKA, Aug. 21—Captain Amundsen, who was forced by accident to his airplane to abandon proposed flight from Alaska to Spitzbergen over North Pole, has indicated that he will make another attempt, using Spitzbergen as base. Explorer's new plans contemplate much better equipped expedition.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—French Government's reply to note of Marquis Curzon, British Foreign Secretary, on reparations situation was handed to British Embassy at nine o'clock this morning.

DARTLESVILLE, MISSOURI, Aug. 21—Kansas and Texas passenger train southbound was held up by bandits one mile south of Okesa, Okla., at midnight. Crew engaged bandits in gun fight and it was reported that at least one man was wounded. Robbers escaped with twenty packages registered mail, value of which is unknown.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—Rescue workers early to-day estimated that at least ten firemen had been killed and more than thirty injured, some fatally, in collapse of room and section of wall during fire which destroyed old three storey brick building in Brooklyn after midnight.

A PROTECTION FOR INDIA

It should further be noticed that the Amir and his Government are nomoe friendly to Bolshevik propaganda than they are to Bolshevik armies. With the miserable plight of the Amir of Bokhara before their eyes, with thousands of families fleeing from Soviet tyranny as refugees within their borders, they are not blind to the disintegrating consequences of the doctrines professed—but not practis'—by the Communist dictator of Moscow. hTere was a time when the Russians hoped to use Afghanistan as a propaganda base against India; but their hopes have remained so far unfulfilled, with the result that such Bolshevik propaganda as finds its way to India has to adopt a more devious and less effective route.

From A Scrap Book

"The old order changeth, yielding place to the new,
And God fulfills Himself in many ways.
Pray for my soul, more things are wrought by prayer
Than this world dreams of."
—Tennyson.

"Let me have wisdom, beauty, wisdom and passion,
Bread to the soul, rain where the summers parch;
Give me but these, and tho' the darkness close,
Even the night shall blossom as the rose."
—John Mansfield.

"Beauty is truth, truth beauty, that is all Ye know on earth and all ye need to know."
—John Keats.

"Oh! lift me as a wave, a leaf, a cloud!
I fall upon the thorns of life, I bleed.
A heavy weight of hours has chained and bowed
One too like thee, tameless, swift and proud.
O, wind,
If winter comes, can spring be far behind?"
—Percy B. Shelley.

"The best I've known
Stays here, and changes, breathes, grows old, is blown
About the winds of the world and fades from brains
Of living men and dies. Nothing remains."
—Rupert Brooke.

"Oh Earth! with all thy transport,
How comes it life should seem
A shadow in the moonlight,
The murmur in a dream?"
—Bliss Carman.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, TUESDAY, AUGUST 21, 1923.

The Local Market

The past week has seen the coming of the first of this season's new fish to the local market. While it is yet too early for schooners to arrive from the northern or southern outports, many of the fishermen of nearby settlements are daily carting the first of their catches to the city and ready sales are being made. For a few days last week there was quite a little competition among buyers, all of whom are anxious to get the first of the new fish, and the price for talqual went from $5.50 to $6.00, some of the exporters expressing their willingness to purchase all they could get at the latter figure. So far nothing has been done among the exporters as to concerted action with regard to marketing and we may look forward again this season to the usual competition on the part of the agents of local firms when the fish reaches the other side. Unfortunately the competition in buying from the fishermen which gives prices a temporary boost in the beginning of the season does not last; it is not permitted to last. The only kind of competition our exporters can tolerate is that which is calculated to benefit foreign consumers and beggar our own producers.

Dangerous Laxity

Rules and Regulations that permit vendors of milk to transfer this article of food from cans to bottles on every street corner at any time during the day are absolutely inefficient. It is as well to have no rules and regulations of any sort, for when this practice is permitted we fail to guard against the greatest danger of infection to which milk may be exposed. The proper handling of milk calls for the most minute carefulness and if it is to be kept free from infection it must be placed in the receptacles in which it is to be delivered in some place of which the surroundings are the very cleanest.

It is no uncommon sight in St. John's to see milk vendors stop their delivery waggons on busy streets during the busiest hours of the day and frequently while dust storms are raging and coolly and calmly dip milk from large mouthed cans and transfer it to bottles for delivery to their customers. If the milk men who are guilty of this kind of thing were to try and devise some effective means of infecting their milk with dangerous bacilli they could scarcely hit upon a method better calculated to produce successful results.

British Unemployment

The Baldwin Government are being subjected to the bitterest criticism by the House of Commons Industrial Group because of their alleged failure to take adequate steps to meet the unemployment situation that faces Great Britain during the coming Winter. In a letter sent to the Government by Sir Allan Smith on behalf of the group the Cabinet's unemployment proposals are characterized as "an inadequate substitute for a constructive policy to deal with a position, the gravity of which cannot be exaggerated." The Minister of Labour placed the number to be employed on relief schemes during the Winter at 200,000 directly and 100,000 indirectly and Sir Allan Smith in his letter says:

"If the present rate of unemployment is maintained (and there was nothing in the Minister's speech to encourage the most sanguine to hope that the rate will be checked) this relief will be quite inade to prevent even larger numbers than last year from becoming workless.

"The gravity of the position cannot be exaggerated. A point which does not appear to have had the consideration it deserves is the demoralisation resulting from continued unemployment and its deadening influence on the workers, and more particularly on the youth of the country. The whole question of national vitality is at stake.

"The problem is urgent and does not admit of a single day's delay.

"Failure or delay on the part of the Government to adopt immediately a strong constructive policy of employment, in place of the present half-hearted temporising and palliatives, will deal a blow to the economic and social life of the country, from which recovery will be impossible."

The Irish Elections

Yesterday's messages announced that less than three candidates had been nominated for each of the one hundred and fifty-three seats to be contested in the Irish Free State election to take place before the end of the present month. Of this number about eighty are said to be Reoublicans whose progress in the battle of the ballots will be watched with all the greater interest because of the very marked influence which it is thought the arrest and incarceration of Eamonn DeValera will have upon the contest. It is believed in some quarters that the Republican chieftain deliberately challenged the Free State authorities to arrest him, knowing that whether they accepted or failed to accept the challenge, the result was bound to millitate against them in the election. Whether or not there is ground for that belief, the fact remains that the arrest of their chief will serve to solidify the forces of republicanism and convert luke-warm followers into active and fervent supporters.

Another feature of the coming election which tends to brighten the outlook for the Republican cause is the enfranchisement of all women of twenty-one years and over, for, it is notorious that women have been amongst the most consistent and most pronounced opponents of the Free State.

The new Dail will consist of twenty-five members more than constitute the present parliament, the number of constituencies being thirty with proportional representation. The introduction of equal suffrage will mean a very large increase in the total number of voters.

Railway Earnings

Since the beginning of active operations by the Armstrong Whitworth Company at Deer Lake and Corner Brook, the increase in freight traffic on the Newfoundland railway has been such as to bring the earnings of the system through its freight department up to the highest standard reached practically since its inauguration, if we except, perhaps, a period during the war when ocean traffic was reduced to a minimum. While a large quantity of the Humber mills machinery and material has come direct from the points of shipment to Humbermouth, there has been no disappointment in the proportion of freight traffic which has thus far come to the railway as a result of the West Coast activities and there is every reason to hope that the present advantages in this way will be maintained thruout the construction period.

Coincident with the appreciable increase in freight earnings, passenger traffic on the system has during the past few months been very satisfactory and the tri-weekly cross-country service has been strained to the utmost of its capacity.

There is every reason to believe that the Government's estimate of a greatly reduced railway deficit for the current fiscal year will be completely justified.

Notes from Champney's

On Sunday Aug. 12th, Rev. F. P. Law, P.P. of Trinity East, visited English Harbar and held 11 o'clock service. He also held service at 3.30 p. m. at Champneys East. Rev. Mr. Law is a worker and never ceases visiting the aged and infirm of his parish. Long may he be spared to do the good work amongst us.

Our energetic teacher, Miss G. Freeman of Champneys West gave the annual Sunday School Treat for the children last week, and it was greatly enjoyed by the little ones. Miss Freeman leaves no stone unturned to moke life happy for the children both in the day school and Sunday school. It is understood that school will re-open shortly, when Miss Freeman returns from a short vacation which she is spending in St. John's.

Mr. Stephen Eddy, C. of E. teacher of Spaniard's Bay, has been spending his holidays at Champneys with his mother and will shortly return to Spaniard's Bay to re-open school. Mr. Eddy has served the best interests of the people of Spaniard's Bay the past few years.

Mr. E. B. Gabriel, student of Queen's College, St. John's, Has been spending his vacation at home with his parents. Mr. Gabriel is greatly improved by his rest, and returns to St. John's in September to resume his studies. We wish him continued success.

The trap fishery in this vicinity has been a failure to date. Our fishermen are now getting ready to prosecute the fishery with hook and line, and in all probability, if weather permits, our men will secure an adequate voyage to provide for the coming winter season.

The F. P. U. is still strong and although a good many of our men are scattered around at present, we hope in short to have our council meetings going in full swing as before. Most of our men will be home the fall, and will as usual, keep the F.P.U. Flag floating.

We understand from visitors returning from Port Union, that Sir Willian is still a worker, always busy directing the operation of the Trading Company and the Outport branches with the aid of his asst-manager and staff. Sir William is one of the most endurable type of men, and although on all calls, he responds readily to any inquiries made by the employees or visitors. One will often wonder who will take his place arter retirement. We must remember men of Sir William's type are very scarce. Long may he live to continue his good work in behalf of the fishermen and the country.

In closing I must extend my best wishes to the new Administration under the leadership of Hon. W. R. Warren. May success attend the present government in their undertakings. Also my best wishes to The Advocate for a wider circulation and more vigor to fight the fishermen's battles.—XYZ.

Sons of England, In Supreme Lodge, Are Made Welcome

(Toronto Globe, Aug. 15th.)

Thrift and economy were the points emprasized by Mayor Maguire yesterday afternoon in his speech of welcome to the 300 delegates from all parts of the Dominion and Newfoundland, who are attending the 36th session of the Supreme Lodge of the Sons of England, which met to transact the first business of the convention yesterday afternoon in Victoria Hall.

The meeting opened with an official welcome by Toronto to sister lodges, after which reports were read by the Chairman of various committees; these, it was agreed, marked a most satisfactory progress in all departments. The present session is the largest, and promises to be the most successful, in the history of the order.

Mayor Praises Order.

In his adress the Mayor spoke in part as follows:

"I assure you that on assembling in Toronto for your biennial meeting you are heartily welcome. Coming from all parts of Canada and Nfld., you will be glad to know, as English men, that there is no city in the Dominion whose people are so strongly attached to the Imperial connections as are those of Toronto.

"As natives of England, or descendants of Englishmen, you entertain warm feelings of affection for England, and I think you do well to love the Old Land. Whether we have regard to England's historic past or her part in the great war, or the part she is playing in the post-war controversies and negotiations, we may well entertain a feeling of pride that we belong to the British Empire. Throughout this, the most trying period in human history, the course of British Nations has been characterized by scrupulous honor, courage, fortitude, self-sacrifice and unselfishness. It is our sincere hope that these qualities may ever be displayed by the people of the British Empire.

Solid Citizenship

"A large proportion of the citizens of Toronto are of English birth or extraction, and it is needless to say that they, together with the people from Ireland and Scotland, constitute, perhaps, the most solid portion of Toronto's citizenship. Their characteristics are obedience to law, industry, enterprise and thrift. It is not too much to say that if the people of Toronto who have come from the British Isles were to be lifted out of Toronto there would be a complete transformation, and, perhaps, deterioration, in the character of this city."

Last evening the delegates were entertained at dinner by the sister societies of the city. Their appreciation of the attention devoted to their comfort was expressed in a hearty vote of thanks. Later a program of musical numbers was put on, and subsequently a reception and social evening was held.

The Canadian Sapper, which arrived from Montreal on Sunday berthed at the dock premises this morning to discharge some 300 tons of heavy machinery which she brought for the Deer Lake paper mills. This cargo includes a number of boilers, etc., and will be taken by special freight trains to the scene of operations.

"Pawnee" Here—Quick Trip

The s.s. Pawnee, which was engaged on the Conception Bay route last season, running to Bell Island and other points, arrived here yesterday, covering the distance from the island in two and a half hours.

The Pawnee has recently undergone a thorough overhauling, and had a new boiler installed which has proven very satisfactory, and the ship can now make 16 knots.

The Pawnee has been taken off the service as the traffic this season has not been sufficient to keep her employed. The ship has berthing accomodation for twenty-five passenzers, but isc apable of carying eighty on a short run.

It is understood that several offers have been received by her owners, but as yet pothing definite has been decided upon.

Digby Left Liverpool On Saturday for Here

The Furness Withy Co. were advised yesterday that the Digby left Liverpool at 4 p.m. Saturday. The ship has thirty-three passenzers for this port, and 23 in transit for Halifax, while she is bringing 800 tons of general cargo for here.

She is due on Saturday or Sunday, and will probably be sailing for Halifax and Boston on Monday night next.

ON THE DANGEROUS AGES OF MAN

There are THREE kinds of men,
Good. Bad. Indifferent.
As a rule the BAD ones
Make interesting lovers,
The GOOD ones,
Uninteresting husbands,
And no SELF-RESPECTING woman
Ever yet had time
For a man who was INDIFFERENT.
The NICEST men are about nineteen,
The kindest, FORTY-NINE,
The HARDEST, about twenty-nine,
But, of all men, the most FASCINATING,
Blasc, difficult and EXPERIENCED,
Is the young man of thirty-nine.
And if he is a BACHELOR—
Spare me!
For the LOVE of a bachelor of forty
Is worth very little.
It is frayed and THREADBARE,
And would give little SATISFACTION
To a SENSITIVE woman.
What a wise WOMAN looks for
Is Security and Principle
In a man and in the BANK,
But she generally finds
By the time a man HAS ENOUGH of both,
He's nearly seventy,
At least he's SIXTY-NINE—
So what's the use?

A Splendid Signboard

The large twenty-four-sheet billboard at the junction of Theatre Hill and Duckworth Street on the Majestic Building, is now adorned by a splendid and attractive poster advertising the popular Life Savers. The magnificent coloring effect of this attractive poster has been commented upon by all who have seen it, and it is not only a splendid advertisement for this popular confectionery, but an actual attraction for the locality. Life Savers are becoming immensely popular in Newfoundland and the manufacturers' progressive advertising efforts are a fine tribute to the 'ompany's methods.

Newfoundland Premier to Consult In Toronto

(Associated Press Cable)

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Aug. 12.—Sir Richard Squires, former Premier of Newfoundland, left to-day for Canada. While the purpose of the trip was not made public, it was supposed that the former premier intended to consult counsel in Toronto regarding the proposed investigation into the fall of his ministry last month.

The schooner Melba, H. Miller Master, arrived at New Bonaventure yesterday from the Straits with 800 qtls codfish.

Coolidge's Childhood

"Some of us went to get water. Calvin, however, felt his duty done in giving the suggestion. As a matter of fact, he had contributed greatly to the comfort of the party, but the way he did it didn't bring any thanks to him. That's somehow typical of Cal. He never did things in such a way as to publicly get a deal of thanks, nor did he get into mischief in a way that you could lay your hands on him. You might suspect that he had taken part in a prank but there rarely was any evidence you could pin onto him. He was canny and careful. Everything he did was in a quiet methodical way. He always got what he set out to get. You knew what he wanted only after he got it. He never made a confident of anybody. He was a lone wanderer, part of a crowd yet not of it."

The pillow was done. Miss Cilly and Mr. Blanchard had to go so we proceeded to make our departure.

"You ought to see his aunt, Mrs. Wilder," they both suggested. "She lives across the way." After partaking of some lunch of soda pop and doughnuts served over the counter that the president had polished, we accepted the suggestion and knocked on Mrs. Wilder's door. A little old lady, dressed in blue gingham came to the door. She was bent and gray. Her hands trembled, her eyes were blurred with age.

"Is Mrs. Wilder in " we asked.

"I am Mrs. Wilder," she answered. We stated our errand and she opened the door for us to enter. A man in khaki farm clothes and suspenders sat at the table eating his lunch. He was old and grizzled, unshaven but still strong looking and upright. That was Mr. Wilder.

"I don't know that I can say that I'm going to answer all your questions but let's hear them and I'll talk while I'm eating if I have anything to say."

"Considered a Good Boy"

She took her seat at the table, next to Mr. Wilder, and motioned the writer to an old sofa. The room was that of an old farmhouse. It had the peculiar smell of places where cheeses and hams and poultry find their habitat. Most New England farms smell like that.

"Calvin used to come here a lot when he was a child," she told us. "He was a special friend of my son Allen. The two boys used to do lots of things together. Calvin was considered a good boy at school. He was a better scholar than Allen. They used to have plays and he'd take part in them. Once I remember he was the villain. All plays have villains. That's what make them interesting. He was a very good villain. I liked it.

"He used to come here to play. He was the only child after his sister died and he just naturally wanted company. He'd like to stay overnight. His family lived right next door but he used to think it kind of good fun to stay away from home. Boys and girls are like that. They learn better when they get older.

"We used to make maple sugar. His father didn't. That was another reason he used to like to come here. He never said much but he never missed a thing. He was a very good boy." The old lady stopped talking and turned to her food. It was time to ask a question. We did.

"That's what everybody says. Did not he ever get into mischief of any kind? Wasn't he ever caught in a fix?"

We thought we heard Mr. Wilder chuckle under his grizzled tan. He was, as it happened, just then pouring out some cream over his vegetables.

"Tell her about the cream," we heard him say in a low voice.

Mrs. Wilder looed up under her bent head to see whether we had heard.

We intimated we had.

We also heard her chuckle.

"No," she said. "No. I can't tell you that story. No. I don't know of any scrapes. You'll have to ask Allen about that. Allen's my son. He lives in Perkinsville. It's on the other side of Ludlow. No. Calvin never was caught in a fix. He knew how to keep out of them.

When He Wrote a Prize Essay

"Once," and her shrewd eyes twinkled, "once he got a prize. He was at home on his vacation from college and one of them societies of ladies of the Revolution—what do you call them, Daughters of the Revolution—offered a prize for the best essay on the causes that led up to the American Revolution. He wrote the essay in his room and brought it down and read it to his stepmother. She said it was very good. I never heard it. I don't now how many essays were handed in. It's a kind of hard subject to write about during vacation time. But anyway, Calvin got the prize. I don't presume it was money. They don't give that altho' money is the one thing that's always acceptable. Isn't it?"

We agreed.

"I guess Calvin spent his share in college. I don't know what his father gave him. I know his grandmother used to give him money. I'll tell you how I know. One evening I was standing at the door here and I heard them two coming down the road. They were mighty fond of one another. I heard her say to him that she was expecting some money to come in. 'I shall send you some,' she said. Then they went on. Yes, he got money from her all right.

"Calvin's real name is John Calvin, you know. Yes. When he was in law at Northampton he used to call himself J. Calvin. Then he dropped the J. I don't know whether it was legally dropped. He could have done it easily, though. When he was governor it wouldn't have been any trouble to drop it legally. Calvin must have done it. He always did things in proper fashion.

"Not many boys in this place went to college. Calvin wanted to, though. That's why he went. I don't think he would have met Mrs. Coolidge if he hadn't gone to college. They met at Northampton. Calvin used to go some with girls in Plymouth Notch. He used to carry his cousin Geneva, my daughter, around some. They were good friends. But Calvin was never much for showing his feelings. That's the kind of boy he was. Quiet. Kept to himself. When he came back from college he was shyer if anything. He didn't go around much with boys. Kept more to himself. He'd work on the farm and keep himself busy. At night he'd read. You never knew what he was thinking. You see, he never thought aloud. Most folks do."

Mrs. Wilder got up from the table. She took an old straw hat down from a hook on the wall.

"I haven't any more time to give you," she said. "I've got to get to work."

She stopped and again her blue eyes seemed to come out of hiding.

"I'm eighty years old. A fine age to be working. There aren't many that can do it. Eighty! Forty years ago I wouldn't have told you how old I was; women of forty don't, but when you get to be eighty and still moving about you're proud of it. Humans are funny, aren't they? Now, I really haven't any more time to give you. Go see Allen in Perkinsville. Tell him I sent you."

We left. The last we saw of Mrs. Wilder, she was feeding her chickens in the poultry yard, a small, silent, bent little round-shouldered figure in blue amidst the clacking crown of brown.

Memories of "Cousin Cal"

Perkinsville and Allen, then, was our next objective. That meant going back to Ludlow and about ten miles in the oposite direition. Perkinsville is a typical Vermont farming hamlet with about six houses and a general store on the main street and scattered farms reaching out from it. Allen Wilder runs the general store, the post office, and in addition, owns a farm. It must be a very prosperous general store, for it has a number of helpers, one of whom is gifted with a facetious wit. Allen Wilder was sitting behind the post office counter when we came in. We told him our errand. The one with the facetious wit laughed. It was fatal as far as opening up Allen Wilder was concerned.

An Ancient Volume

OTTAWA, Aug. 15—A remarkably old volume published in Birmingham England, in 1733, and which is still in a very excellent condition though over 189 years old recently came into the possession of George Perrin of this city.

The book, which is entitled "Sermons" was written by the late Rev. Edward Brodhurst, and was sold by auction in Birmingham. It came into the possession of the Perrin family over a hundred years ago and its last resting place was in the library of Marlow Perrin, a brother of George Perrin, who died some time ago in England. On the death of Marlow Perrin the library was broken up and the old family heirloom sent to Canada.

The book for its age is really in a wonderful state of preservation as the original leather binding is almost intact with the exception of the corners of the covers, where leather corner caps have been inserted. The pages are still white and the type is readily readable. Of the 488 pages in the book only one has been slightly torn and has been neatly sown with thread instead of being pasted up.

"I am invited to a wedding and am in mourning. Should I wear my mourning to such an event?" asked Julia.

"Mourning garments are out of place at a wedding. White is proper and is often used as mourning," replied her friend.

Great Britain, first of the allied nations to make formal arrangements for payment of the war debt due the United States, has set a good example to other European countries. Some of our other debtors seem to thinl that the United States is a selfish and grasping nation, and apparently they conclude that they have at least a moral right to attend to everything else under the sun before they even think about the money which they borrowed from America.

If I were a millionaire well-wisher of humanity, I should broad-cast millions of copies of the latest book from the hand of G. Lowes Dickinson, the English publicist. (War: Its Nature, Cause and Cure. Published by George Allan and Unwin, Ltd.)

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

Now, except in time of war, the subject of war usually is not one that interests the average man or woman; and in time of war the thing about war that interests people is not, unfortunately, its ghastliness and horror. Which may be one of the explanations of the unfailing recurrence of this blasting evil.

While wars actually are being fought, people's thoughts are herded by the propagandists away from the horrors of war itself and are focussed on the particular horrors perpetrated by the "enemy." Exactly the same thing goes on in each combatant country. Hence the people of each warring nation emerge from the war filled with hatred not of war itself, but of its late enemy; and if they do hate the horrors of war, they have been propagandized into blaming the horrors on the enemy, which effectually prevents them seeing the results of the situation.

During a war no writer is permitted to write in condemnation of war, but only in condemnation of the enemy; and so the opportunity to press home the lesson of the utter bestiality and murder of war is lost—irretrivcably lost, perhaps.

And when the war is over people don't want to hear anything about the subject. Meanwhile the war-makers renew their activity in behalf of "the next war." As Mr. Dickinson says:

"Every day you, whom I am addressing, go about your work. You marry yourself, or you marry your son or your daughter. You plan for the future. You look forward to life, for yourself, for your children, for your country. The play, the music hall, the concert occupy and amuse you. You read books. You ride in motor cars. You travel. You hope and aspire. And all this time, side by side with you, in this laboratory, at that harbor, in those barracks, accompanied by cheerful music, wooed by patriotic songs, the agents of destruction are at work. They are people, no doubt, much like others. But their work is to destroy all that those others are building up; to make mockery of all their purposes and hopes; to kill, with incredible numbers of men."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

"My theme," the author starts off with, "may be put in a sentence: If mankind does not end the war, war will end mankind. This has not been true in the past. But it is true in the present. For the present has produced something new. It has produced Science. And if Science is the principal hope of mankind, it is also the principle menace. For it can destroy as easily as it can create, and all that it creates is useless if it creates only to destroy. But destruction is what war means."

He elaborates this phase of the matter:

"In all the principal countries of the world, after the 'war to end war,' men of science are busy investigating methods of destroying by war men, women, children, factories, cities, countries, continents. In part they know how to do it already, in part they are perfecting their weapons; and there is no limit to their powers.

"This was not true in the past, but it is true in the present, and it will be truer in the future. There is the new fact, that puts out of date all the ordinary discussion of war. War now means extremination, not of soldiers only, but of civilians and of civilization."

Mr. Dickinson quotes Major-General Seeley, ex-Minister of War for Great Britain:

"Chemical knowledge is now so far advanced that, with little trouble and at very moderate cost, a hundred thousand people could be blotted out by lethal gas during an air raid. A great deal of nonsense has been spoken about wonderful discoveries. The truth is that the manufacture of the most deadly gasses is easy and inexpensive. It is simple and horrible. The choice is really between disarmament and extermination."

And Thomas Edison, the famous inventor says:

"There exists no means of preventing a flotilla of airplanes from flying over London to-morrow and spreading a gas that would poison its millions in three hours."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

There are many quotable passages in this book, and it is only the truth to say that every page is tightly packed with well-reasoned argument. His treatment of the causes of war constitutes a valuable addition to the existing literature on the subject. I warmly recommend "War: Its Nature, Cause and Cure."

Sold Catch to Portuguese

A Portuguese vessel which arrived here sometime ago is now practically loaded with a cargo of salt bulk fish which has been purchased from our local fishermen. It is understood the price paid was $3.00 per puintal. The Lunenburg schooner Alicante which arrived from the Banks several days ago for supplies, disposed of her whole catch amounting to about 1900 quintals, to the Portuguese in this manner, and the ship is now outfitting for another trip to the Banks. This is a new departure and it is understood that as soon as the vessel's cargo is complete she will be sailing for Lisbon and if the trip turns out successful other vessels will be coming here.

Guards Sports Tomorrow Afternoon

The postponed sports under the auspices of the Methodist Guards Comrades Association, willl be held on the Ayre Athletic Grounds, Pennywell Road, to-morrow afternoon. In view of the interest in the programme, which has been aded to since the postponement, it is expected that there will be a large attendance. The Sports will commence at 2.30 and will continue until tea time when the ladies of the Auxiliary will provide dainty suppers after which the programme will be continued until all the items have been run off. Very dainty prizes are to be awarded the winners and they are now on exhibition in Trapnell's window.

Develop the Lime and Gypsum Deposits

(Editor Evening Advocate)

Dear Sir,—Will you please give us a helping hand with your paper to induce the development of our natural resources? The soil is the treasure of the country, beyond a money equivalent it is life-giving to all the people and to every industry. To be deprived of the soil would mean destruction and death. Since the soil is so dear to us and so essential and its power for good is so mighty, we should give it the best of care to strengthen its force and increase its energy for the greatest good.

Now, how is this to be done?

It can be done by opening a new industry and making our gypsum and lime deposits available for the soil.

What do experts say about agricultural gypsum? Benjamin Franklin was one of the first to introduce this material into America. He had a field of red clover that sloped down to one of the main roads out of Philadelphia. On this he sowed ground gypsum to form the following words: "Land plaster used here—Ben Franklin." The words soon became conspicuous to passersby, due to the luxuriant growth and deep green color. (Hoards Dairyman, Feby. 9th, 1917) "We regard land plaster gypsum richly worth the price to use in the gutters and in the summer manure heap."

Agricultural gypsum is produced at numerous plants distributed over the United States in such a way that nearly every section can be reached by low freight rates.

Now, why do we allow those valuable resources to lie dormant? Is it that we cannot get money to develop them? Now with doing away with the stock farm, surely money can be found to get a Portable Grinder to grind our lime stone and gypsum, and make it available for the farmers that they may be able to compete with the countries that are using them.

Yours truly,

S. RUBY.

A Sad Sight

The police picked up on the street yesterday an old woman (widow) aged sixty-five years. The condition of the unfortunate creature may be likened to that of the woman in Hood's poem:

"Oh, it was pitiful
Among a whole city full
Home, she had none.'

Is it not discreditable on the part of those who dwell amongst us, whose duty it is to see to the betterment of the condition of helpless widows, and young women, who from time to time have been sent to reside within the grey stone walls of a prison. We spend vast sums of money on pleasure, and on amusements of various kinds, but no influential number of citizens within our midst seem to care three straws how it fares with their fallen sisters. The woman we refer to was, so we have been told, when found by the police, in a most filthy state, and she will be sent to the penitentiary for ten days until some more suitable accommodation can be provided for her.

Fish Goes To $7.00

Competition amongst local buyers of new shore fish continues to-day with the result that the price is still mounting.

The price started at $5.50 a few days ago and went to $6.00 yesterday. This morning a Water St. firm paid $6.50 for all they could get and we learn that an East End concern has expressed its intention to pay $7.00 a quintal this afternoon.

Fishery Reports

The Board of Trade has received the following fishery reports from the various districts.

Fogo

To Hare Bay Head, Aug. 10—To date, 960 qtls; for week, 100 qtls. Prospects are poor as there is no bait and the fishermen are unable to work traps owing to adverse weather.

Trinity

Southern to Northern Head, Catalina, Aug. 11.—To date, 5880 qtls.; for week, 760. Prospects are good, caplin has struck in at Melrose, and but for weather conditions hook and line men would have done very well.

Trouty, Aug. 11.—To date 1050 qtls.; prospects never worse; all traps in, and fishery practically abandoned.

Placentia & St. Mary's

Cape Race to St. Shott's, Aug .11.—To date, 7470 qtls.; for week 750; schooners from grounds 15; prospects fairly good; fish fairly plentiful for trawls and jiggers.

Burin

St. Lawrence to Lawn Point, Aug. 11—To date, 11060 qtls.; for week, 1,600 qtls.; prospects good; fish struck off; traps taken in; trawl fishing excellent.

Lawn Point to Sandy Cove, Aug. 11.—To date, 4650 qtls.; for week, 350 qtls.; prospects good.

Port aux Bras to Corbin, Aug. 11—Landed to date, 22,300 qtls.; Josie & Phoebe arrived from Banks, 900 qtls.; prospects fair.

Police Court

A twenty-two year old laborer, found drunk, and conveyed to to the lock-up in a cab, was given his liberty on payment of the fare.

Another of the same age and calling, who claimed the blue sky for a mighty canopy, was discharged.

A laborer of 35 years, found loitering and sleeping on the premises of an East End firm was sent down to make mats for the next ten days with Supt. Parsons.

The above, with the appearance of the unfortunate widow mentioned in another column, constituted the docket of the day.

Bay Bulls Garden Party

Sunday next Rev. P. O'Brien's garden party takes place at Bay Bulls. Mr. S. Ryall of Anderson's Dry-goods establishment will be going with the many who are expected to leave the city. Sister Mary Paul, of the Bay Bulls Convent, is a daughter of Mr. Ryall.

Junior League Football

The Cadets and St. Mary's were the contesting teams in last night's game of the Junior League, which resulted in a win for the former by a score of 5-0. In the first period play was very evenly divided, both teams putting up a fine exhibition and no scoring resulted.

On changing ends, however, the Cadets had matters all their own way, and shortly after the start, Hayes scored from a nicely placed corner. Foley got an easy one shortly after, and Hayes was responsible for two more goals, and Kearney netted No. 5.

The attendance at the game was only fair.

To-night the Gaelic League and Wesley will be seen in action, and as both are in the running a good game should result. To-morrow will be a big day, and no less than five games will be played. The following is the standing of the teams at present:

(The Times)

Naturally the Dominions would not relish the idea of an influx of those who are mentally or physically helpless and unfit. But sound men, as Lord Haig said, of good flesh and blood, with grit and determination, capable of being trained to become useful citizens in their new surroundings, men of the adventurous and hardy type of the old pioneers, would be a most valuable addition of the population of any of the Dominions and Colonies. If the overseas members of the League can combine to influence their fellow citizens to be less exacting than has sometimes been the case in their attitude to British immigrants, they would, we believe, render a service of incalculable value not only to this country, but to their own.

Armstrong Whitworth Co. Bring Assembly Men to View Works on Humber

The special train which took the lature and press representatives as the guests of the Armstrong Whitworth Company, Limited, on a tour of inspection of that Great Industrial Venture, known as the Humber Enterprize, returned to the city at 7.45 this a.m.

The train bearing the men in whose hands the destinies of our Island home at present rest, pulled out from the railway station, St. John's, at 4.10 Sunday afternoon. The following comprised the party: Hon. W. R. Warren, Prime Minister; W. J. Higgins, K.C., Leader of the Opposition, Sir Michael Cashin, Hon. W. H. Cave, Finance Minister, Hon. W. W. Halfyard, Colonial Secretary, Hon. M. Hawco, Postmaster General, Hon. Joseph Downey, Minister of Agriculture and Mines, Mr. George Grimes, Minister of Marine and Fisheries; Mr. W. W. Woodford, M.H.A., Mr. W. J. Walsh, M.H.A., Mr. C. J. Fox, M.H.A., Mr. R. Hibbs, M.H.A., Col. M. S. Sullivan, M.H.A., Mr. Edward Sinnott, M.H.A., Mr. R. G. Winsor, M.H.A., Mr. John Abbott, M.H.A., Mr. J. H. Scammell, M.H.A., Mr. N. J. Vinicombe, M.H.A., Mr. James Moore, M.H.A., Mr. P. H. Moore, M.H.A., Mr. K. Brown, M.H.A., Mr. A. Calpin, M.H.A., Mr. E. Simmons, M.H.A., Hr. Grace; Mr. R. C. Cramm, M.H.A., Bay de Verde; Mr. Harvey Small, M.H.A., Burgeo and La Poile, and press representatives: T. E. Clouter, C. T. James, P. J. O'Reilly, and J. M. Browne; Sergeant-at-Arms in the present Legislature Mr. A. Targett, and the veteran Robt. Walsh. Fine weather favored us at the start and continued until yesterday morning when a downpour of rain prevented the full exploration of the paper town of Grand Falls. At Brigus Junction a delay of nearly an hour occurred waiting for the members for Harbor Grace, but a telephone message brought the welcome news that the bay representatives were already at Brigus Junction. At this point we were joined by Messrs. Moore (Carbonear) and Simmons and Calpin (Hr. Grace). The real trip was now on. Our first impressions were here and now formed that we had in verity housed upon that train real representatives of Newfoundland in the truest and best sense. It seemed as the sun slowly sank in the west, so too were buried the asperities, incident to the life of those, who while representing the people as a whole, are apt and do at times allow the personal element of party fervor to bring about estrangements in our political associations which should never be. We left Tickle Harbor at 8.15, Rantem at 8.35, and reached Clarenville at 10.08, a distance of 44 miles in an hour and 33 min. At Clarenville the original program was so arranged that we should pick up Sir William Coaker. There was general disappointment expressed by the whole party that Sir William, whose unceasing efforts to bring into being the Great Humber project had bourne abundant fruit, was unable because of stress of business to be with his associates on the auspicious occasion.

The Sunday express which left at 1 p.m. was ahead, and consequently the balance of the western trip had to be made at a the average speed allowing for stops at stations. The early morning of Monday found us at Grand Falls. An early morning shower between 6 and 7 a.m. cleared the elements which brought from the "Good judge of weather-men", (and we had several on board) the happy assurance that we were out of the jurisdiction of the Toronto weather director and were almost certain to be favored with a fine day, and so it turned out on the whole. At Corner Brook in the afternoon a generous downpour occurred for half an hour, but this was regarded by an ex M.H.A who until quite recently represented a northern constituency, as a wise dispensation of providence—his hunch being that the repentant politicians—government and opposition, having determined to turn over a new leaf and work hand in hand to make the Humber hum, this deluge was intended to drown the flies. Anyway something happened because the much-abused nipper in its various and tortuous forms was non est for the whole period.

We passed Quarry at a few minutes to ten on Monday. Three miles further on was Howley station the 366 mile. At this point where it may be stated the actual operations in connection with the Humber development begins. A new railway, 10 miles long, to divert the Government Railway around the land which will be flooded by the raising of Grand Lake level. The railway track has been laid from both ends so as to enable the contractors to get their supplies, machinery and equipment to the site of the main dam etc. When the permanent reenforced concrete dam, 1,110 feet long and 77 feet high, is completed, which it is confidently hoped will be an accomplished fact by the autumn of 1924, the regular express train leaving St. John's and Port Aux Basques, will pass over the dam; it being the intention to use the top of the dam for the road-bed of the railway line.

At Howley, a number of shacks, cook-houses and some pioneer traders were noticed. Howley has a history in the industrial life of the Colony in, connection with our coal bearing areas which have been the subject of usual investigation and some practical work and the expenditure of some thousands of dollars. The latest attempt to develop the area made, if we remember ringhtly, by the A.N.D. Co., under the superintendency of the late W. E. Scott, C.E. At present nothing is being done in this connection; but we fell across a resident of Howley, during our trip, who in conversation, expressed the firm conviction, that just a little further on, if the drift had been followed would be found the main lode in workable quantities, a high grade bitumious coal.

Grand Lake, at the point where Junction Brook leads, it is but 3 miles from Howley. Here is shown o the visitor a piece of engineering skill, and incidently tribute to that mechanical ingenity, endurance and rescourse of the Newfoundlander. This temporary crib-dam, 820 feet long, across the point where Junction Brook leaves the Grand Lake, which has at present a water area of 130 miles, and which area when the main dam is completed, it is estimated, will be raised to appromixately 200 ft., was commenced in November, 1922, for the Armstrong Whitworth people by the Reid Nf'd. Co. with Mr. J. P. Powell at that time Superintendent of the Reid System, Engineer in charge, and a force of 150 men. It will be remembered that for two months during the past winter only three trains passed

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER IX.

"Then it will be time enough to worry about him, Andrew. In the meantime,, it's none of our business, dear. Eat your luncheon and don't think about it."

He relapsed into a moody silence. When he had departed for the mill office, however, his wife's decision had been reached. Within the hour she was on her way to the Sawdust Pile, but as she approached Caleb Brent's garden, she observed, with a feeling of gratification, that, after all, it was not going to be necessary for her to be seen entering the house or leaving it. Far up the strand she saw a woman and a little child sauntering.

Nan Brent looked up at the sound of footsteps crunching on the shingle identified Mrs. Daney at a glance, and turned her head slowly away at right angles, in order to obviate a meeting. To her surprise, Mrs. Daney also changed her course, and Nan, observing this out of the corner of her eye, dropped her apronful of driftwood and turned to face the visitor.

"Good afternoon, Miss Brent, May I speak to you for a few minutes?"

"Certainly, Mrs. Daney."

Mrs. Daney nodded condescendingly and sat down on the white sand.

"Be seated, Miss Brent, if you please."

"Well, perhaps if we sit down, we will be less readily recognized at a distance." Nan replied smilingly, and was instantly convinced that she had read her visitor's mind aright, for Mrs. Daney flushed slightly. "Suppose," the girl suggested calmly, "that you preface what you have to say by calling me 'Nan.' You knew me well enough to call me that in an earlier and happier day, Mrs. Daney."

"Thank you, Nan. I shall accept your invitation and dispense with the formality." She hesitated for a beginning, and Nan, observing her slight embarrassment, was gracious enough to aid her by saying:

"I dare say your visit has something to do with the unenviable social position in which I find myself in Port Agnew, Mrs. Daney, for I cannot imagine any other possible interest in me to acount for it. So you may be frank. I'm sure nothing save a profound sense of duty brought you here, and I am prepared to listen." This was a degree of graciousness the lady had not anticipated, and it put her at her ease immediately.

"I've called to talk to you about Donald McKaye, she began abruptly.

"At the solicitation of whom?"

"Nobody." Mrs. Daney sighed. "It was just an idea of mine."

"Ah—I think I prefer it that way. Proceed, Mrs. Daney."

"Young Mr. McKaye is unduly interested in you, Nan—at least, that is the impression of a number of people in Port Agnew."

"I object to the use of the word 'unduly' in connection with Mr. Donald's interest in my father and me. But no matter. Since Port Agnew has no interest in me, pray, why, Mrs Daney, should I have the slightest interest in the impressions of these people you refer to and whose voluntary representative you apepar to be?"

"There! I knew you would be offended!" Mrs. Daney cried, with a deprecatory shrug. "I'm sure I find this a most difficult matter to discuss, and I assure you, I do not desire to appear offensive."

"Well, you are; but I can stand it, and whether I resent it or not cannot be a matter of much import to you or the others. And I'll try not to be disagreeable. Just why did you come to see me, Mrs. Daney?"

"I might as well speak plainly, Miss Brent. Donald McKaye's action in ridding the Sawdust Pile of your neighbors has occasioned comment. It appears that this was the first official act after assuming his father's place in business. Then he visited you and your father for an hour, and your child, whom it appears, you have named Donald, called him 'Daddy.' Then, last Saturday night, Mr. McKaye sent over some clothing for the boy——"

"Whereupon the amateur detectives took up the trail," Nan interrupted bitterly. "And you heard of it immediately."

"His father heard of it also," Mrs. Daney continued. "It worries him."

"It should not. He should have more faith in his son, Mrs. Daney."

"He is a father, my dear, very proud of his son, very devoted to him, and fearfully ambitious for Donald's future."

"And you fear that I may detract from the radiance of that future? Is that it?"

"In plain English," the worthy lady replied brutally, "it is."

"I see your point of view readily, Mrs. Daney. Your apprehensions are ridiculous—almost pathetic. Don McKaye's great sympathy is alone responsible for his hardihood in noticing me, and he is so much too big for Port Agnew that it is no wonder his motives are misunderstood. However, I am sorry his father is worried. We have a very great respect for The Laird; indeed, we owe him a debt of gratitude, and there is nothing my father or I would not do to preserve his peace of mind."

"The talk will die out of course, unless something should occur to revive it, Miss Brent—I mean, Nan. But it would be just Donald McKaye to start a revival of this gossip. He doesn't care a farthing for what people think or say, and he is too young to realize public opinion. You must realize that, of course."

"I ought to, Mrs. Daney. I think I have had some experience of public opinion," Nan replied Nan sadly.

"Then, should Donald McKaye's impulsive sympathy lead him to —er er——"

"You mean that I am to discourage him in the event——"

"Precisely, Miss Brent. For his father's sake."

"Not to mention your husband's position. Precisely, Mrs. Daney."

Mary Daney's heart fluttered.

"I have trusted to your honor, Nan—although I didn't say so at the beginning—not to mention my visit or this interview to a living soul."

"My 'honor!'" Nan's low, bitter laugh raked the Daney nerves like a rasp. "I think, Mrs. Daney, that I may be depended upon to follow my own inclination in this matter. I suspect you have been doing some talking yourself andm ay have gone too far, with the result that you are hastening now, by every means in your power, to undo whatever harm, real or fancied, has grown out of your lack of charity."

"Nan, I beg of you——"

"Don't!" You have no right to beg any thing of me. I am not unintelligent and neither am I degraded. I think I possess a far keener conception of my duty than do you or those whom you have elected to represent; hence I regard this visit as an unwarranted impertinence. One word from me to Donald McKaye—"

Terror smote the Samaritan. She clasped her hands, her lips were pale and trembling.

"Oh, my dear," she pleaded, "you wouldn't breathe a word to him, would you? Promise me you'll say nothing. How could I face my husband if—if——" She began to weep.

"I shall promise nothing," Nan replied sternly.

"But I only came for his father's sake, you cruel girl!"

"Perhaps his father's case is safer in my hands than in yours, Mrs. Daney, and safest of all in those of his son."

The outcast of Port Agnew rose, filled her apron with the driftwood she had gathered, and called to her child. As the little fellow approached, Mrs. Daney so far forgot her perturbation as to look at him keenly and decide, eventually, that he bore not the faintest resemblance to Donald McKaye.

"I'm sure, Nan, you will not be heartless enough to tell Donald McKaye of my visit to you," she pleaded, as the girl started down to the beach.

"You have all the assurance of respectability, dear Mrs. Daney," Nan answered carelessly.

"You shall notl eave me until you promise to be silent!" Mary Daney cried hesterically, and rose to follow her.

"I think you had better go, Mrs. Daney. I am quite familiar with the figure of the Laird since his retirement; he walks round the bight with his dogs every afternoon for exercise, and, if I am not greatly mistaken, that is he coming down the beach."

Strong Spanish Resistance

MADRID, Aug. 22—Military aviators report that the Spanish Garrison at Tifaruin, Morocco, is continuing to resist heroically the assaults of Moorish tribesmen who are endeavoring to reduce it. The Moors have succeeded in closing in their position but the Spaniards declare they will die to a man rather than surrender.

Chief Justice Meredith is Dead

MONTREAL, Aug. 23—Sir Wm. Meredith, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario, died this evening in Royal Victoria Hospital, aged 83.

[Sir Wimmiam Meredith was a brother of Sir H. Vincent Meredith, President of the Bank of Montreal, Chief Justice R. M. Meredith, London Ont., T. G. Meredith K.C., London, Eng., C. M. and L. Meredith of Montreal.—Ed.]

German Prices Have Sky Limit

BERLIN, Aug. 22—Retail food prices in greater Berlin have reached levels out of all proportion to revised scale agreed upon last week, causing added suffering among the poorer classes. The Municipal has appealed to the Federal Government for subsidies to enable it to keep street lines and power and gas plants in operation as the City treasury is unable to meet the mounting price of German coal.

Anthiracite Coal Strike Likely Sept.

Coolidge Assures American Public Normal Fuel Requirements will be met

ATLANTIC, CITY, N.J., Aug. 22—The parley between Anthracite Operators and Miners over the new wage contract, designed to prevent a cessation of work in the hard coal fields September 1st. broke up to-day. Adjournment was taken subject to call of the joint conference. John L. Lewis, President of the United Miners of America, declared that unless some thing unforeseen intervened, the Miners would consider themselves out of employment September 1st.

WASHINGTON, Aug., 22—Failure of anthracite operators and miners to reach agreement at their Atlantic City Conference, will not be permitted to inflict a fuel shortage on the consumer, it was declared last night at the White House. While no indication of the Government programme was given, it was announced that President Coolidge wished to assure the public normal requirements for fuel would be met.

French Take More Coal Mines

DUSELDORF, Aug. 21—Three more coal mines in Gelsenkirchen District have been seized by the French. It was announced at occupation head quarters here to-day, and 35,000,000,000 marks have been confiscated in this city.

LATEST

To Insure Coal Supply

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23—Perfection of the system of distribution designed to insure adequate supplies of fuel, will be the first object of the United States government in the case of the stoppage of production in the anthracite fields.

A survey of the situation, made by the government bureau, was said to show a reserve of from fifty to fifty-five million tons of soft, and twenty-three to twenty-five million tons of hard coal on hand, which could be rationed out.

Will Requisition Foreign Currency

BERLIN, Aug. 23—Compulsory requisitioning of foreign currencies wherever found, is provided for in the government's program of emergency measures, which becomes effective immediately.

Chancellor Stressman frankly informed the leaders of finance and business that the government would not countenance the slightest attempt to evade the provisions.

A forthcoming emergency ordinance would deal with all slackers in a most drastic manner. It is not proposed to be content with a formal appeal to patriotism. All foreign monies will be gathered in without formality, owners being reimbursed with paper marks. The funds thus obtained will be devoted in part to an effort to regulate the financial chaos which is causing an unwarranted advance in the prices of food commodities, and also to establish a steady reserve from which food purchased abroad may be made.

The government's money draft ordinance provides excessive money fines and confiscation of private fortunes for wilful concealment or possession of foreign currency, and demands a voluntary declaration of sush possessions. The extent to which holdings will be requisitioned depends upon whether or not the holder needs them for legitimate business purposes. The government expects to realize between two and three hundred million gold marks from the initial raid, and expects that the impending action will stimulate a desire to invest foreign currency in the new international loan in preference to having it confiscated and replaced with paper marks.

Spanish Lose 300 Killed

MADRID, Ahg. 23—A war office communication says the Spanish losses in the fighting at Tifaruin approximated three hundred killed or wounded. The tribesmen were hard pressed and showed signs of demoralization. They left behind them a number of dead and wounded.

Two Spanish columns have now encamped in the neighborhood of Tifaruin in readiness to meet the enemy should he resume the offensive.

Election Is Peaceful

DUBLIN, Aug. 22—The election campaign is being conducted peacefully throughout the Free State, except in a few cases of minor disturbances at meetings, taking the shape of rowdyism in which candidates are pelted with eggs.

Training Ships Sinks in Gulf

WASHINGTON, Aug., 21—The United States Training Ship Gopher, attached to the Ninth Naval Reserve District was sunk in the Gulf of St. Lawrence in a North-West gale, but with no loss of life. She sank in thirty-six fathoms of water in Latitude 46.47 Longitude 62 West. Advices of the loss came from the United States steamer Wadnak through the radio station at Grindstone, Magdalene Islands, thence to the Signal Service at Quebec, whence it was forwarded to the Navy Department here. The Gopher was an obsolete gunboat, 840 dead weight tons, of wooden construction, built at New York in 1871. She carries three six pounders.

France Rejects British Proposals For Settlement Reparations Mess

Will Not Evacuate Ruhr Unless She Is Paid In Full—Declares Occupation Legal

PARIS, Aug. 22—The French Government's reply to the recent British note asserts that France refused to withdraw from the Ruhr except she is paid, and that she rejects the plan for international re-estimate of Germany's capacity to pay. The French position remains unchangeable and they declare French occupation of the Ruhr is legal. The note repeats determination of France not to give up the pledges she holds until after complete payment of reparations has been paid.

PARIS, Aug. 22—The reparations note to Britain in answer to that of Lord Curzon, declares "France will not change her attitude on evacuation. To ask her to do otherwise would be to justify the attitude of Germany and in the words of Lloyd George before the Supreme Council in March 1921, it would be the victors who would pay the cost of defeat and the vanquished would harvest the fruits of victory."

Liner Goes On Rocks

ON THE BANKS OF THE HUMBER

Political parties must have their differences of opinion and of policy. They must fight one another when the political smoke beclouds the sky and fight hard and bitterly. Similarly, the people themselves differ in political opinion and divide into opposing political factions and support, according to the dictates of their conscience, the party whose personnel and policy best commend themselves as in the interest of the country.

Yet, when the battle is fought and the victory is won, it is meta that both forces in the political field, and in the public field, should forget their personal political animosities and remember the high duty they hold to the common country.

To deep thinking and intelligent men, it will be most gratifying that our public men have now shown themselves big enough, broad-minded, public-spirited and patriotic enough to pursue this line of conduct. It augurs well for the future and sheds across it a ray of hope where heretofore so many were inclined to look through darkened glasses.

Too long the country has suffered from continued political hatreds and the lust for political revenge. The country is too great in its resources of real manhood as well as in its wealth of fish and mine and lakes and forest, that this sad fact should indefinitely continue.

The visit of the two opposing political factions to the scene of one of the greatest engineering projects of modern times, is indicative of a better political life in our midst and that happy condition will appeal very strongly to many who are of opinion that better politics are essential to a better country.

Elsewhere in The Advocate we attempt a description of the Humber industry, which has awakened the western coasts and has sent a clarion call of hope and good cheer from the tops of the still snow-dotted peaks of Blomidon to every hamlet of our island home.

Let every fisherman, whose ears have heard the despondent propaganda of the destructionists, whose hands are cracked from dragging at grapnels and tearing at grinding fishing lines and whose souls may be sickened through having toiled and found nothing, share the message—the message of an industrial awakening and of material assistance.

For, though it is manifestly impossible for all to secure employment, the establishment of the great pulp and paper mills at Corner Brook will be a god-send to Terra Nova and is, we trust, the forerunner of that possible development of the huge resources which are ours, and which, if developed, may conveniently employ from 15,000 to 20,000 additional men who are now fishermen.

That is the material side of the matter.

There is another side, not less important. On the banks of the Humber there seems to have developed a new political life, which shall not die. That is the message which The Advocate gives its readers this day.

Our legislators after inspecting, as the guests of the Sir Wm. Armstrong, Whitworth Company (and not of the Government, as some supposed) the Humber centres, have realised the great possibilities of our country and are more proud, than before, that they are Newfoundlanders; and being proud of their country, they intend, we hope, to place country first and consider politics and party in a secondary sense.

It is regrettable that from our every platform, from our every school, our people could not hear all members of the Assembly expressing, as they did on board train last night, their confidence in the Humber and in the future of the country. They were words of hope, fortified by personal inspection of our interior resources, and sorely needed in these days: and they were words of friendly assurance that our future political life shall not be characterized as much by senseless bitterness as by a genuine common effort to make our country happier and better.

Is it too much to hope that the future months will confirm the sincerity so apparent in both members of Government and Opposition?

The future will tell. At any rate we leave our readers today with the outstanding features of the Humber inspection, viz.: the materialization of the Humber problem and the hope of a better understanding between our public men.

THE PARLIAMENTARY TOUR

The train which brought the members of the House of Assembly from the Humber Valley works, arrived at eight o'clock this morning.

Consequently, our limited space and time prevents a complete description of Humber operations, etc., from appearing in today's issue.

It is hoped to complete the account to-morrow when we trust we will have given our readers some faint idea of the greatest project ever undertaken in Newfoundland.

We realise the utter impossibility of penning any description that will do justice to the immensity of industrial activities now being merely initiated by the Sir Wm. Armstrong Co. Ltd.

UP TO BRITAIN

The reply of the French Government to the recent British Government note on reparationse now leaves no doubt as to the French attitude regarding the Ruhr crisis.

The French refused to withdraw from the position occupied by their forces until Germany has paid in full.

That Germany will not pay in full in the near future is certain. The French Government as well as the British Government are aware of that fact.

Thus, the French are determined to hold German territory, which will confirm the opinion of many British public men that the Ruhr will become another Alsace-Lorraine, and the storm centre of probably another European conflict.

What will Britain do?

Will it lead to independent action by Britain and the consequent disruption of the Entente?

over the Topsails. The general weather conditions for such a class of labor were about as bad as a Newfoundland winter has produced in 40 years; yet this cofferdam, commenced in November and finished in May, was successfully put in place and this mighty body of water harnessed. The C.H.E. pupil will find here a problem worth while solving, if he or she obtain the correct figures of the water areas of the lake, and given the fact that the water is now rising at the rate of an inch per day, determine the increase in six months. It will be understood that the purpose of this temporary dam is to hold back the waters in Grand Lake during the construction of the permanent structure. The distance of the main dam from the crib-dam is 1½ miles. Down this river less than three months ago hundreds of tons of water rolled; today the river bed is as dry as a bone. But time is an imperative essential in this most important work of putting in the dam. Every hour counts. The job of finishing the main dam must be completed by the Autumn of next year; otherwise a set-back must occur, because the waters of Grand Lake will have again taken control. Should such a contingency arise, then a year or may be two, will be required to get the dam completed. No such contingency, however is feared. Despite the lateness of the season, and other set-backs, which provented operations, the management for Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth & Co. Ltd. have expressed themselves to us as well satisfied with the progress already made. They have the money and Nfld. has the men to put her through. We have the men of brawn and muscle in overalls, looking for a the experience of the past few days work, and we know full well from the experience of the passed few days the public custodians of our common country's cause sincerely welded in the bond of trust and confidence in Premier Warren to help and sustain Old Terra Nova, as she enters upon a new epoch of industrial development in her national life.

Sir Patrick McGrath, who is enroute to England, and who detrained at Grand Lake, joined the party and formed one of the press gang until Tuesday morning when he left us to await the arrival of the west-bound express.

At Deer Lake station, a stop of half an hour ensued. This enabled us to pay undivided attention to cusine—which by the way was ample and excellent. Here J. M. Alexander, Esq. General Manager in Newfoundland for the Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth Co. Ltd., Mr. Southerny, who is charge of operations in Deer Lake section, Major Butler who looks after the employment of common labor, was also met here. As he was known to most of us, he must have had a tired arm before the hand-shake part of the reception was over. From Major Butler, we gathered that there are at present employed over the whole works 2008 persons, skilled and unskilled labor, while the engineering staffs, clerks in supply stores, timekeepers etc., will total another 175. As we are to return to the Deer Lake section, we will leave more detailed reference until to-morrow. Deer Lake was, in the first instance to have been the town site. The decision to build the mills at Corner Brook might be regrettable from the view point of those whose eye for the beautiful fails to take in comprehensive view, all the elements utilitarian and otherwise, which have to be taken into accordance when bringing into practical and profitable shape the cogs which go to build the wheel of such a vast industrial enterprise of which it was our privilege and pleasure to view at first hand the initial steps within the past few days.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

Three boys, arrested at Bay Roberts, by Sergt. Wells, charged with breaking into a city store, were remanded.

Three men charged with stealing a motor boat and fittings, were sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from thirty days to three months.

A youth found by the police last evening asleep on the side of a country road, where he was ridding himself of an overdose of liquor, had to pay his cab fare and attendance. When found, practically the whole of one side of his outer garments was burnt away as a result of a smoulder ing pipe having been placed in one of his pockets.

Great Britain Is Bearing Unfair Share

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Ang. 22—Premier W. F. Massey referring to the question of defence in speaking at a banquet given by the Wellington Chamber of Commerce emphasized the importance of Great Britain's naval effectiveness. He said a second class nevy would mean a second class Empire. Great Britain was bearing an unfair proportion of naval expenditure for the Empire, Premier Massey said.

Body of Accident Victim Brought By Silvia

The remains of the late Daniel Fitzgerald, son of Mr. Thomas Fitzgerald of Mobile, arrived here by the Silvia this morning from Boston, accompanied by two of the deceased.

The late Mr. Fitzgerald, who was engaged at construction work in Boston, met with an accident on Thursday last, Aug. 16th, which resulted in his death a few hours later.

Deceased who was little more than thirty years old, had been working in the States at intervals during the past few years, and was a splendid type of young Newfoundlander.

He was extremely popular, and his sobriety and industry made him a man to be relied upon at all times, while his genial disposition endeared him to all who knew him.

On arrival, the remains were taken in charge by undertaker Martin and conveyed to his late home, accompanied by his aged father.

Deceased leaves to mourn, besides his father, two sisters, one of whom is Rev. Mother Carmella of Littledale

NORMAL SCHOOL ARCHITECT IS AT PRESENT IN THE CITY

Mr. A. J. C. Paine, B. Arch., A.M. E.I.C., of Montreal, architect of the Normal School, has been in the city for the past ten days supervising the construction and arranging for the completion of this building. He is the son of Rev. George Paine, who was so well known for his work on many of the circuits in Newfoundland.

Mr. Paine studied at McGill and then became connected with Messrs Darling and Parsons, Architects of Toronto, in the reconstruction of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. He is now engaged upon an extension to the Head Office Building of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, at Montreal. Mr. Paine furnishes another instance of the success achieved by Newfoundlanders by industry and ability.

Mr. Paine is accompanied by his wife and two children, and his mother, Mrs. (Rev.) George Paine. They will return to Canada by Sunday's express.

OBITUARY

Dear Mr. Editor: Please allow me space in your valuable paper to record the death of our dear little boy, Cluny Toms, who passed away on August 3rd, after eleven days illness. It was a fearful shock to us and relatives, and all kind friends around: also we want to thank Dr. Coman, Nurses Schmidt and Logan who have been on Mission Work here this summer visiting sick people, and helping them out in every possible way.

When our dear little boy Cluny was taken ill we called in Nurse Schmidt who gave him treatment during eleven days of sickness, Dr. Coman and nurses gave him their every attention morning, noon and night. All that could be done for him in every possible way was done. Dr. Coman and Nurse Schmidt treated him with medical skill in every way, medicines of all kinds were prescribed but all seemed to be of no avail, and on the eleventh night he passed peacefully away. Doctor and Nurse felt it very keenly when they had to tell us he was dead. They stayed with us three or four hours after the life had left his little body, expressing their deepest sympathy.

Before we laid him to rest Nurses Schmidt and Logan made a wreath of flowers and placed on his casket, they felt it was the last thing they could do for him.

Again we say many thanks to Dr. Coman, Nurses Schmidt and Logan. We feel sure their kindness will not be forgotten by us.

I remain,
Yours truly,
"PARENTS"

A dear one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place made vacant in our home,
Can never more be filled.

ON REFLECTIONS.

It's GOOD to be a woman;
A PRETTY woman
Or even a
PRETTY GOOD woman;
For women get so much pleasure
Out of their own REFLECTIONS.
For when a woman
LOOKS into her mirror
She generally sees
A work of ART.
But when MEN
Look at themselves,
They only see
What funny things
NATURE does—
I think, myself,
Nature was so SURPRISED
At the average man's face
That she deliberately
Covered her MISTAKE
With a prickly growth,
Which man, ARTLESS as always,
Daily SHAVES OFF.
But woman,
For all her ARTIFICIALITY,
Is too artful
To take anything
At FACE value.
So, men should worry!

Doctors Predict Rapid Growth of New York City

In seven years the population of New York and surrounding districts in Long Island, the adjacent counties, and in Connecticut and New Jersey will have increased to 11,500,000, according to a study recently completed by Dr. Raymond Pearl and Dr. Bowen J. Reed, of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene and Public Health.

The population of this territory now is estimated roughly at about 9,000,000. By the end of the century it will be nearly 20,000,000.

The negro element, which now constitutes 2.5 per cent. of the population, will have tripled by 2,000 and will approximate 5 per cent. of the whole, the study forecasts.

On the other hand there will be a sharp decline in the element of foreign-born. The percentage of this, which at present is more than 36 per cent., will be reduced before the end of the century to slightly less than 26 per cent.

The study was made at the behest of the committee on plan of New York and its environs. Later studies by the committee into industrial, housing and other trends in certain localities may "indicate factors which will undoubtedly modify the population aggregates for particular sections of the region," Frederick P. Kemp, secretary of the committee, stated in an introduction to published report of Dr. Pearl and Dr. Reed. What has been aimed at is "the development of a formula which is believed to express the fundamental law of normal population growth," but taking into account the fact "that distributing factors in population trends have much greater effect in computing for small areas than those of whole nations or countries."

The area embraced in the survey is about 5,500 square miles. Growth in this area will be steady rather than sudden, at no time as much as 3,000,000 in a single decade. This is shown in the following table:

1940	14,100,000
1950	16,800,000
1960	19,600,000
1970	22,300,000
1980	24,800,000
1990	27,000,000
2000	28,800,000

In publishing their findings Dr. Pearl and Dr. Reed disclosed the abstruse and highly complicated mathematical formulae used in reaching them.

THE "SLIM" GERMAN

(Springfield Republican)

It is sometimes said that if Germany can replace its lost shipping, develop its railroads, dig canals and instal improved machinery in its factories it might have used the resources thus expended in paying its debts. But to treat the matter so summarily is to ignore the difficulty of effecting international payments which exceed resources in gold and foreign credits. These repairs and improvements have been accomplished not with money in the international sense, but with labor, of which Germany has an ample supply. The workers have been paid in marks, and while the mark has collapsed the substantial results of the labor remain in an industrial plant capable of earning money if international conditions make this possible.

RURAL RE-POPULATION

(Natal Advertiser)

The whole problem of settlement, and of the conversion of urban into agricultural population, needs to be considered from the point of view of the women concerned even more than from that of the men. If the conditions of settlement are unsuited or intolerable to women, no real, permanent development is possible. The farm becomes a mere transit station where the newcomer works for a while till he can go and do something

Sir P. T. McGrath Visits Humber Works

Is Greatly Impressed With Extensive Operations

Sir Patrick McGrath, who left by Sunday's express, for Canada, was able to accompany the parliamentary group around the various Humber activities, including Grand Lake, Junction Brook, Deer Lake and Corner Brook.

Sir Patrick said he was very much impressed with the extent of the Humber project, and also the progress made by the contractors. He was the guest of Mr. Campbell, of the Company, and accompanied him back to Corner Brook from Deer Lake. He left by last Kyle for points in Canada.

ADVERTISE IN THE ADVOCATE

Follow this simple rule to have lovely, gleaming hair

Never shampoo your hair without olive oil, hair specialists warn. To do so is to leave hair dry, dull, brittle—all its rich warmth of color and life gone. No hair can be beautiful unless clean, they say. Nor can hair be beautiful without the glossy sheen so much admired.

Therefore—use olive oil shampoo.

You see prettier hair everywhere, today. Women have learned that the most delightful form of olive oil hair wash is PALMOLIVE SHAMPOO.

It is convenient for home use, and most economical—costing but a fraction of what you'd pay to have the same treatment from a specialist.

It cleanses away all dirt and oil—thoroughly removes dandruff. And it leaves hair fluffy, soft, pliant as a baby's; with the gleaming sheen of new silk.

Coolidge's Childhood

"Tell her," the man drawled, "of how you and Calvin drank hard cider and how you went fishin' in the book and got drowned, and how you caught a bear. That's the kind of stuff people want to hear about presidents. That's why they send people up here. Har! Har."

Allen Wilder pushed his hat back from his forehead, took hold of his suspenders, and tilted his chair up against the wall.

"Don't mind him," he drawled. He leaned back in his chair and looked straight ahead of him. You can't push a New Englander for information. You must just sit tight and wait.

"I don't know that there's anything I can tell you," he finally said. We felt the baleful influence of the wit's remarks. We urged him to tax his memory.

"No, there ain't anything."

"What about the cream?" we asked, inwardly calling upon his mother's name for aid.

Allen Wilder's face broke into a slow smile.

"There ain't anything in that. There's nothing to tell. Maybe I'm like my cousin Cal. I don't talk."

"But the cream is a funny one, isn't it?"

"Yes," he drawled. "It sure is. I'll tell you. Cal's grandmother's hired man used to tell about it. I didn't witness it so I don't know. Well, they had a dash churn. The cover wasn't fastened on. You just kept it down by somebody holding it down. Well, one day the hired man got Cal to stand on the cover while he worked the churn. In the middle of the job the cover slipped and Cal dropped right into the keg, bare feet first. He never said a word but let the hired man pull him out, scrape the cream from off his feet, washed and ran home. The hired man kept right on with the job as though nothing had happened. Cal never said a word bout the thing to anybody. He never talked much. You never heard him mention anything that ever happened. He doesn't do it today. He's a great person for holding his tongue. The hired man told us this. Cal never contradicted him.

"People think he never got into scrapes. I know better. But there's this to be said for him. If he went into a scrape he knew how to pick his companions. They had to know how to keep their mouths shut.

Learned His Lessons Easily

"Cal was pretty smart in school. He had a good memory and learned very easily. His days were spent pretty much as all farmers' boys spend their days. He'd work around the farm doing chores in the daytime and go early to bed at night. In the winters, we'd sometimes go to parties. Cal always went but he didn't have his fun in a noisy way. He'd always have a good time but you couldn't hear him having it.

"He'd like to come over to our house when we made maple sugar. That's done in the spring. The trees are tapped first. Then the sap is boiled in pans on the sugar lots. After it's made into syrup it's brought home where it's boiled in kettles until it turns into sugar.

"Cal used to like to be at our house when we were boiling sugar. The lamp would be burning and the mess cooking on the stove. Call dressed in overalls and barefooted would hang over the pot watching it bubble. He was a thin child, not good looking, freckled and tow-haired. He knew how to pitch in when the sugar was done.

"In the winter time he'd wear what we used to call a long frock. It's like a long shirt and comes below the knees. His grandmother made his for him to keep him warm in the cold. None of us other boys had one. They were kind of old-fashioned. He'd wear his anyway, whether or not his friends wore any. In coasting time it certainly kept him warm.

"Cal was a good fisherman. I do not mean to say he was a wonder at catchin' fish but he did know how to keep his mouth shut. I guess he got that trait from his father. His father never says much but he can be counted on to do a job in the right way. Cal never seemed proud of whatever he did. I never heard him express any desire for political work, not even when he was a young man but all the same he got the jobs that have landed him in the White House. It's the quiet way he has. He says nothing but just does things.

"When Cal grew older he was great for fixing himself up. He liked looking well dressed. When he came back from college on his vacations he sure looked different from the rest of the boys. He looked quiet as well as acted quiet. He was neat. He did not do much courtin' in Plymouth. He had no time what with studying and farm work. I guess his courtin' days was in Northampton.

"I haven't seen Cal goin' on two years now. He came out this way when he was up at the Notch this summer, just before he became president, but I wasn't here at the time. I'm mighty sorry. Cal's a queer one with his quiet ways but he's a fine fellow. He can be trusted to keep the country out of a scrape.

"I guess that's all I can tell you. I'm not much of a talker myself. It runs in the family, I guess. Ask the folks up Ludlow for stories. They might tell you."

Placing Returned Soldiers

OTTAWA, Ont., Aug. 15—Among the many problems confronting the present Government on taking office was the re-establishment of returned soldiers, particularly those who thru disabilities sustained on active service were unable to follow their previous occupations. Especially was this a vital question as regards those departments which require large numbers of employees to carry on the work both at Ottawa and throughout the country.

Since the conclusion of the great war returned soldiers have been given preference in the matter of employment in the Civil Service. One of the most extensive and wide-spread channels of employment has been the Post Office Department.

A great number of returned men were taken on in the Postal Service from year to year during the holiday period to relieve members of the regular staffs on annual leave. Heretofore, temporary men taken on for holiday relief purposes were dispensed with in post office work. Moreover their services were dispensed with at the end of October, a very unfavorable time of the year owing to the difficulty of securing other work to tide them over the winter months.

With a view to obviating the necessity of releasing the annual leave help at the end of the holiday period and to increase the efficiency of the service the Postmaster-General directed the officers of the department to go into the matter thoroughly. A proposition has now been approved by Postmaster-General Murphy where by the annual leave will be spread out over a period of ten months—Feb. to November—instead of six months as formerly and bw the establishment of what is known as a Postal Pool.

Remington Quiet 12

The Postal Pool will constitute a permanent relief staff to take care of annual leave, sick leave, Christmas rush work and other emergencies. This will mean that a full staff of trained employees will be available at all times. Also the taking on of green hands at the beginning of each holiday period will be eliminated and the temporary help required at Xmas will be materially reduced.

The Postal Pool will virtually constitute a training ground for post office employees from which they will be drafted to the regular staff as vacancies occur. All new employees entering the service will be first attached to the Pool and will be assigned work suitable to their capabilities. While undergoing the training they will enjoy all the privileges of Civil Servants.

Employees of the Postal Pool giving a satisfactory service will be advanced to the regular staff as vacancies occur. In this way continuous employment will be given instead of annual temporary employment as in previous years.

Britain Reveals Correspondence With Her Allies

French Occupation of Ruhr is Illegal Under Versailles Treaty, Says Curzon--Danger to Europe --Renews Bonar Law's Offer

LONDON, August 13.—(Associated Press.)—The British Government, in the publication yesterday of its official corespondence with the Allies since June, placed on record its position with regard to German reparations problem.

Lord Curzon, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, in an elaborate note dealing with all the manifold aspects of the problem, sets forth that the British Government regards the occupation of the Ruhr as illegal and unauthorized by the Versailles Treaty, thus supporting the German contention. At the same time, however, he offers to submit the point to arbitration at The Hague or by some other body.

While still adhering to a tone of the utmost courtesy and saying nothing definite with regard to any separate action on the part of Great Britain, Lord Curzon emphisazes that Great Britain cannot agree with the French policy, which he intimates plainly seems to point to an indefinite occupation of the Ruhr.

Lord Curzon still leaves it to the French Gvernment to suggest the method of creating an international committee to examine into Garmany's capacity to pay reparations, but he plainly declares that Great Britain cannot accept the decision of the Reparations Commission on this matter, since that commission has become the mere instrument of Franco-Belgian policy.

LONDON CONTENT TO GET ENOUGH FROM ALLIES AND GERMANY TO PAY ANGLO-U.S. DEBT.

Finally Lord Curzon declares that the British Government still adheres to the Bonar Law plan, under which Great Britain would be satisfied to obtain from German reparations and Allied debts to meet Great Britain's obligations to the United States.

Lord Curzon's note hande to the French and Belgian ambassadors on Saturday, expresses the sincere disappointment with which the British Government had received the previous communications of France and Belgium, especially since Great Britain had suggested that an inquiry into Germany's capacity to pay should be conducted within the frame-work of the Treaty of Versailles, and that the German Government should be asked to withdraw its orders enjoining passive resistance on condition that this should be regarded as evidence of good faith involving reconsideration by the occupying powers of their conditions of occupation and a gradual return to normal of the industrial life of the Ruhr.

The British note remarks that "it is difficult to think in what way greater consideration should have been shown to the Franco-Belgian point of view."

It then at great length outlines the British viewpoint, which Lord Curzon summarizes as follows:

"His Majesty's Government never contemplated, and does not contemplate, that Germany should be relieved of all reparation payments. They are determined that Germany shall pay to the maximum of her capacity. What the maximum may be should be decided by an imperial inquiry. It cannot be ascertained by casting up amounts Germany's creditors would like to receive.

NOT PROFITABLE.

"To ask more than Germany's capacity can only destroy assets which Germany would be able to offer the Allies. To force liquidation is not the most profitable way of making recovery from a debtor with resources.

"It is admitted that Germany can only make substantial payments if, by restoration of her finances and stabilization of her currency, she secures a budget surplus available for reparations. Moreover this surplus must be in a form which can be made available for external payments over the foreign exchanges. External debts cannot be paid by the collection of depreciated paper marks.

"In the view of His Majesty's Government, forcible interference with the economic life of Germany, even if consistent with the Treaty of Vertailles, cannot assist in the necessary restoration.

Not only will it prevent realization of any surplus for reparations, but, by intensifying the disorder of German finance and currency, will have the gravest reactions on trade.

"His Majesty's Government therefore regard as doomed to failure the method pursued by the French and Belgian Governments to secure reparations. Despite the wholesale seizures, the occupation of the Ruhr has produced, at great cost, less receipts for the Allies, notably of coal and coke, then were forthcoming the previous year. Moreover, His Majesty's Government feel that the resulting situation involves a great and growing danger to the peaceful trade of the world, and not the least of that of Great Britain.

GRAVEST RISK.

"The Government regard the continuance of the present position as fraught with gravest risk, both economic and political. They consider an impartial fixation of Germany's liability at a figure not inconsistent with her practical power of making payment as a result of great urgency and they have suggested what appears to them appropriate means to this end.

"When steps have been thus taken to ascertain the real value of the asset represented by Germany reparations and to secure its realization without further depreciation, His Majesty's Government will be ready to deal as generously as circumstances permit, and in the light of their respective capacities to pay, with the debts due to Great Britain by her Allies.

"They cannot, having regard to Great Britain's heavy material losses during and since the war, and to future tax burdens on its trade, admit that other countries are justified in claiming that the agreed percentages of reparations payments should now be further modified or changed in the order of priority.

"But they remain prepared to ask for no more in respect for the very large sums due by their Allies than will, together with the reparation payment by Germany, meet the British war debt to the United States Government.

"Their policy in this matter is stated in Mr. Bonar Law's proposal submitted to the Paris conference in January and has not changed. It means that Great Britain would be prepared to waive in the interest of a complete general settlement a very large part of the amount for which the British taxpayer holds the due obligations of the Allied governments.

PAINFUL IMPRESSION.

"It is the hope of His Majesty's Government that the above explanations will convince the French and Belgian governments of the reasonableness of the British position and will win their assent to its acceptance.

"They are reluctant to contemplate the possibility that separate action may be required in order to hasten a settlement, which cannot much longer be delayed without gravest consequences to a recovery of trade and the peace of the world."

Lord Curzon, in the body of his note, which is very long and filled with argument over various proposals and points raised in the negotiations, complains that, notwithstanding the terms of courtesy employed by France and Belgium regarding the recent British suggestions, the reception of these suggestions by those Governments "leave His Majesty's Government under the painful suggestions welcome by their Allies, nor is their offered co-operation held to merit consideration except on condition that no departure be made in any one particuler from whatever France and Belgium declare to be their over-riding views and decision.

Lord Curzon admits that the Belgium reply at first sight appeared to be less uncompromising but that, on closer examination, it showed both the attitude for Belgium and France, for all practical purposes, to be identical. Hence, he said, the British Government dealt with both Governments in a single reply.

SPIN-OUT DELAY.

"The omission is hardly compensated for by the series of argumentative passages, inquiries on points of details and offers of further discussions and holding out prospect of an indefinitely spun-out controversy, while the fundamental principles were only mentioned in order to declare that they do not admit of discussion."

Much of the note is taken up with arguments against the Franco-Belgian claims of special priority in payments, and especially France's claim that she ought to receive 26 billion marks net and also have her debts to Great Britain and the United States cancelled. Lord Curzon delcares that such a demand is for an amount three or four times larger than would, on balance, fall to France's share under the existing agreement.

"It is difficult to see," said Lord Curzon, "on what grounds a failure by Germany to meet her obligations, by which Great Britain is proportionately indemnified equally with her Allies, can be held to justify the claim by France to be placed, at the expense of her Allies, in a far more favorable position than she would have occupied under the schedule of payments itself."

Lord Curzon declares his Government cannot admit there is any ground whatever for revising the Spa percentages. In this connection he emphasized that Great Britain alone among the Allies is paying interest on debts incurred abroad during the war, representing the sum of thousands of millions at the present rate of exchange due the United States and that Great Britain alone has been deprived in the Allied interest of foreign securities estimated at from $700,000,000 to $800,000,000, which would otherwise substantially assist in the payment of the British debt to the United States.

TOO ONE-SIDED

Lord Curzon opposes the Franco-Belgian contention that the reparation commission is competent to undertake an investigation of Germany's capacity to pay, taking the ground that, in the absence of a United States representative, France and Belgium would be able to carry any resolution over the heads of the British and Italian representatives. Regarding the constitution of the proposed expert commission, the note says the British Government would be willing to see upon it nominees not only of the powers entitled to reparations, but of the United States and of powers which took no part in the late war, and, it would seem desirable of Germany herself. If, however, the French Government would prefer any other form of constitution, the British Government would be happy to consider it.

Declaring that the British Government cannot subscribe to the thesis that passive resistance must cease unconditionally because it is contrary to the Treaty of Versailles, Lord Curzon declares the highest legal authorities in Great Britain has advised the Government that the German contention is well founded; that the Franco-Belgian occupation of the Ruhr is not a sanction authorized by the Treaty itself, but the British Government is quite willing that this, or any other difference respecting the legal interpretation of the vital provisions of the Treaty, should be automatically referred to the international court of justice at The Hague or to other suitable arbitration.

IN RUHR ILLEGALLY.

Arguing the illegality of the occupation of the Ruhr, the note says:

"If His Majesty's Government hitherto have abstained formally from contesting the legality of the Franco-Belgian occupation, they have done so solely in conformity with the spirit of Mr. Bonar Law's declaration at the Paris Conference in January, that His Majesty's Government desired to avoid causing any needless embarrassment to their Allies.

"This should not be a reproach to them. His Majesty's Government would not even now have taken up this question of legality had they not been challenged to do so."

The note contends that the Treaty only authorizes occupation of the left bank of the Rhine and the bridge-heads, and declares that the parallel France seeks to draw with Germany acion in 1871 can hardly be sustained, because the latter action was expressly provided for by the preliminaries to the peace of 1871, and no similar analogy can be cited in the case of the Ruhr.

Furthermore, the note states, the recovery of a comparatively small indemnity after the brief campaign of 1870 is not really comparable to the enforcement of a thirty-three fold claim against a country financially exhausted by four years of strenuous warfare and blockade.

Complaining that even the British suggestion, that the occupation of the Ruhr should terminate from the moment that guarantees or pledges less economically harmful and more effectively productive should have been not merely devised and obstained but seen to be satisfactorily operating, have only been met by a definite refusal, the note proceeds:—

IN RUHR FOR YEARS.

"Complete evacuation apparently is not contemplated until the total German reparation liability is integrally discharged. Reiterated announcements to this effect coupled with insistence on leaving undiminished the total of 132 billion marks of German indebtedness can only be interpreted as an intention to remain in occupation of the Ruhr for a number of years, which at best cannot be less than thirty six and which, in view of the generally admitted improbability of complete execution of the schedule being found practicable under any circumstances, may be extended indefinitely if not in perpetuity.

"Such a situation, of which the political, quite apart from the economic, consequences, could only be described as disastrous, cannot be viewed by His Majesty's Government without the greatest concern. It would vividly conjure up danger of international relations being affected in a manner threatening—to use the words of the 11th article of the covenant of the League of Nations to disturb international peace and the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends. His Majesty's Government cannot believe the French and Belgian governments will be able to reconcile the opinion of the world to an indefinite maintenance of so perilous a situation.

The note concludes with a recapitulation of Bonar Law's plans, concerning which it says the principle is that Britain is ready, subject to the just claims of other parts of the Empire, to limit her demands for payment by her Allies and by Germany together to a net sum approximating 14 billion, two hundred million gold marks, the present value of Great Britain's funded debt to the United States. The concessions the Government may be able to offer in respect to inter-Allied debts, says the note, must accordingly depend largely on the percentage of this sum of 14 billion two hundred million gold marks which it can recover from Germany.

WANT REAL ASSET.

"They can only be granted in substantive form when the general reparations settlement for which the Government are pressing has been agreed upon and is such that His Majesty's Government can regard their share of the German payments as an asset of real financial value," the note declares.

Lord Curzon asserts that this will be attainable under a settlement guaranteeing punctual payment of the German debt by a system of control "free from the economically unsound impediments inherent in the military occupation of the Ruhr."

Finally, the note says that in view of the fact that although Belgium warmly welcomed the British offer to discuss with the Allies the question of future security, as France had contended this question had nothing to do with the Ruhr and must be postponed to a future date, the British Government thinks no useful purpose can be served by pursuing the matter.

Accompanying Lord Curzon's note was a memorandum fully explaining Great Britain's position with regard to inter-Allied debts.

The memorandum declares the Government's opinion is that it will be impossible satisfactorily to deal with the question of inter-Allied debts until it is known what amount is recoverable from Germany. It points out that the total amount Great Britain asks from Germany and her Allies together, is, in effect, less than the amount of the British debt to the United States without regard either to loans raised by Great Britain in the open United States market or to the value of United States securities valued at £700,000,000 and £800,000,000 used to finance the Allied cause in the United States before it entered the war, the loss of which, from the economic viewpoint, is the equivalent of contracting an equal amount of the foreign debt.

SECURITY WORSE NOW.

The British Government, however, the memorandum says, cannot conceal from the French Government that Bonar Law's suggestion is less attractive to it now than when made in January, inasmuch as deterioration of Germany's financial prospects thru the unwise Franco-Belgian action has made the security of the German reparation bonds much more precarious. It must also be understood that willingness to discuss the question must not be interpreted as a waiver on Great Britain's part of British rights as creditor, which are governed solely by contracts under which money was advanced and the securities which Great Britain holds.

The memorandum declares there was no suggestion, when the loans were made to France, that repayment was dependable on recoveries from Germany. The bills were made subject to renewal for a limited period only after the termination that they should be redeemed by French Government loans raised on the London market, the redemption money being applied to the cancellation of British securities issued on the French accounts.

"It must be clearly understood," says the memorandum, "that in the absence fo a new agreement, French obligations in this respect cannot honorably be repudiated and that in the meantime the present practice of adding interest to capital cannot be indefinitely continued and that the commencement of payment, at any rate of a part of the interest, should be made as soon as the sterling and franc exchange becomes reasonably stable."

Proper Guidance of Boys Urgent Question Today

"The proper guidance of boys outside of school hours is a question of paramount importance today," said Brother Barnabas, F.S.C. addressing the recent convention of the Knights of Columbus here. One result of the convention was the decision to launch a movement for boys between the ages of 9 and 16.

"It is a vital need, a tremendous task, a problem of compelling interest," said the speaker. "The average boy spends but one thousand hours a year in school, out of a possible four thousand when he is awake. How are the other three thousand hours occupied? Is it consistent to support highly qualified school staffs to train his mental faculties during a period of five and one-half hours daily, and to allow him, during eight hours every day after four o'clock, and all day Saturday to drift in unchartered channels for his pleasure and receation?

"Education is not merely the process of providing the individual with the means of earning a livelihood, though such an education is essential. The true and ideal education—that which brings out the best, and qualities which may be latent—such an education embraces many phases. It means the fully developed man; the bringing out of all one's possibilities. Such an education has all the advantages the secondary schools and colleges afford, yet develops the powerful tendencies that lie within heart and soul. In a word, true education is identical with character training, the training that develops will-power, that teaches to distinguish between right and wrong, and that furnishes the key to the best means to choose the right and to refrain from wrong. Such character training is a greater factor in the right system of education than teaching to recite poetry, translate Latin or solve equations. The movies, the daily press, the current magazines, the places of public amusement, seem to form a combination that draw only too well, but not wisely on the imagination and emotions of child life. To offset these influences is the task confronting those responsible for the upbringing of children. Counter attractions, deeper interests, entertainment with a variety of phases that will draw every type of boy, these constitute the fare that the growing bodys, soul and mind need, in order to develop into a one hundred per cent. man.

Under-Privileged Boys

"The need of supervision over recreation is obvious. In no instance is it of more importance than with the under-privileged boys who constitute sixty per cent of the boy population. The children of the wealthy have every desire and whim satisfied, those from fairly well-to-do homes can at least afford to pay their way, and secure the benefits of companionship with others of their age. But there is a large class of boys from homes where conditions are not normal, who, because of poverty, lack of parental control, or other unfortunate circumstances, are deprived of the benefits and privileges their age demands. To provide for every lad suitable and attractive occupation for the hours when he is not in school, at meals nor in bed, some eight or ten hours daily, to see that he develops mentally, morally, spiritually and physically in an atmosphere of refinement, and amid surroundings that foster enthusiasm for the better things of life, to direct his youthful energies in wholesome channels, this is a task that cannot be left to the haphazard direction of care takers of buildings, nor is it to be supplanted by the knowledge gleaned and the habits formed from association with chance companions of the street.

"It is a trite suggestion, though doubtless a true one in most cases, that a boy ought to be at home, and not upon the streets at night. It is also true that we have to deal with things as they are in this world and not as we think they ought to be. The truth of the matter is that the majority of boys, and especially the under-privileged boys, are on the streets when they should be at home, and even in bed. The only real effort that is being made to offset this perilous condition is the work done by such organizations as the Boys' Club Federation, Boys' Work Board, and Boys' Scouts Association. The community work of the Knights of Columbus, Kiwanians and Rotarians in some centers, are the factors that are working to raise the standard of boy-life. Clubs of this nature strive mightily to develop along lines that make for good citizenship, noble manhood, and a well-rounded life. It follows that the management of such activities must be in the hands of men who have the essentials of character, personality and education, supplemented by a training along definite lines to fit them for the enobling profession of boy leadership.

Trained Leaders Wanted

"We have reached a period in social life where none but trained leaders may have jurisdiction over the recreation of our boys. This raises the question: Who can handle this work? Where can men be found who are by temperament, training and experience, fitted to direct the activities of lads in the growing stages? Therefore, the crux of the matter lies in the statement: Properly trained leaders are necessary before any phase of boys' work can be taken up. The course of training offered to young men for such leadership is now on a par with training for teaching, for law, medicine or any other profession. Where are these young men to be found? And how will the matter be made so attractive from a financial standpoint that any who have an inclination towards it will seriously consider it as a life work? Will fraternal and philanthropic organizations, municipal and social bodies place such a value upon the welfare of the youth of their respective communities that they will take steps to provide scholarships for promising candidates? Will they help in the solution of the boy problem to the extent that a demand will be made for trained leaders?

"If we are to place in jurisdiction over our boys during the most plastic period of their lives, men of calibre to help these lads to achieve sterling manhood, then the profession of boy leadership must be made sufficiently attractive to encourage young college men to adopt it as a life work. Every provision has been made for the adequate training of young men for law, medicine, teaching. The universities now offer courses in commerce and journalism, with the result that these fields are more than well supplied. But the necessity for a course in boy leadership has been, until recently, overlooked. The dearth of men competent to superintend boys' clubs, summer camps, and other social and recrational associations is deplorable. This fact was brought home to organizations which undertook to study the problem of boyhood. A survey was made of conditions for boys under sixteen and there was concerted effort to have every boy put in touch with some association for guidance during his recreation time. Then was it realized that this work needs men with the basic qualities of mental alertness, scholarship, resourcefulness, who have made a systematic study of social conditions and psychological facts. No field offers a young man today such opportunities for service of the highest type, to the youth of vision, of imagination, of ideals, the possibilities are greater than along any of the much-travelled professional roads. It now lies with the authorities to put this profession on a par with those of long standing, and on a basis of adequate remuneration.

"When young men feel that their expenditure of time and money upon a course in leadership will be rewarded by the opportunity to serve in a community where there is a definite work to be done, there will be no dearth of candidates.

University Courses

"Many universities, realizing the need of stressing this profession of boy leadership so as to draw the very best type of young men, have instituted special courses for training in boys' work. These courses deal with pograms and methods of work in boys' clubs, in schools and rural districts, boy scouts, woodcraft, camping and ecreation. A very highly specialized and intensive course has been planned and carried out for the past five years at Columbia University, New York, by the Boys' Club Federation. It includes not only lectures but demonstrations and the study of boys' clubs and kindred organizations in action. The lecturers and instructors are members of the faculty at teachers' college and twenty-two additional boys' work specialists. The course deals with such practical matters as: dramatics, surveys, boys' club bibliography, motion pictures, the organization of boys' clubs and their programs, physical instruction and examinations, industrial art and handicraft, camping, vocational guidance, health programs, boy psychology, discipline and self-government, financing publicity, music, indoor and outdoor games, big brother, boy scout and woodcraft league work, and the general problems of boy leadership."

JOY OF HEALTH WOMAN'S RIGHT

Mrs. Evans Freed from Female Weakness by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"I had female weakness with pains in my back, and I could not stand on my feet for any length of time. I was working in a factory but had to quit as I was too much on my feet. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me, and I can hardly believe it myself that I am well. Oh, it is a grand thing to have your health! I feel well all the time and can go out like other women and not feel that awful torture. When I took your medicine first I thought it should cure after the first bottle, but I am glad my husband kept me at it. I have had nine bottles and now I am well."—Mrs. JENNY EVANS, 1604 Lafayette Blvd., Detroit, Michigan.

If you are suffering from displacements, irregularities, backache, nervousness or other forms of female weakness, you should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The reason is given in letters like these, and we have published thousands of them. You may expect that a medicine that has helped other women will help you. Try it.

for home illumination now-a-days is unquestionably Electricity. It is superior to gas in many ways—cleaner, too, and not nearly so dangerous. Every home should now be lighted with Electricity—it is so easy to install, so easy to operate. And the light it gives far transcends gas. We are prepared to install electric light systems in households at a most reasonable figure—to fix the same complete and attend to all details and necessary repairs.

Boy Scouts' Sports

The Boy Scouts' under the distinguished patronage of H.E. Sir Wm. L. Allardyce, K.C.M.G., Chief Scout, and Lady Allardyce, Island Commissioner Girl Guides, Nfld., take place at St. George's field on Wednesday next. By reference to our advertisement columns it will be noted that the programme is a very attractive one, more especially as the flat races are being handicapped officially by the N.A.A.A., which should insure closely contested events. Entries for the open events, should be forwarded as early as possible to the Secretary care P.O. Box 916, so that the handicapping Committee is given time to do the necessary work.

Mount Cashel Band, under Mr. A. Bulley, will furnish the music, and we are asked to request volunteers to come forward and provide cars to transport the Band to and from the field. Mr. Arthur Bulley or Mr. H. A. LeMessurier will be pleased to hear from those who are willing to take this matter in hand. The Girl Guides are catering on Wednesday and should be largely patronized.

The Digby is bringing along Cups and Medals, and other usefulprizes are being obtained locally.

Has Many Tourists

The Silvia had on this trip one of the largest passenger lists in her history, mostly tourists. On Sunday the Catholic passengers had the privilege of being able to assist at Mass which was celebrated by Rev. Dr. P. W. Browne. A very generous offering was made at the end of the service which Dr. Browne presented to the Purser for the Marine Disasters Fund. Dr. Browne returns to Washington by the Rosalind on September 1st.

Engine Trouble On Excursion Train

The Excursion train from Kelligrews was delayed last night owing to engine trouble which developed shortly after leaving Topsail. At Donovan's the train waited for the incoming shore train to which it was attached and town was reached at 11.10. Owing to the unpleasant weather a small number went out by the 2.30 p.m. train, but at the various stations returning, many passengers were picked up who left the city by Tuesday's trains.

Boy Is Injured By Motor Car

James Walsh, aged 9, son of Mr. Daniel Walsh, Cookstown Road, and an employee of the Street Railway Co., is now in hospital as a result of a motor car accident at Holyrood yesterday, of which he was the victim.

The accident happened about 7.30 o'clock, and it seems that the young lad, who was at a house opposite the railway station, crossed the child-like curiosity, went across the roadway and stood by the railing watching the outgoing train, which was then at the station.

After the train pulled out, young Walsh started to return to the house, when a motor car, driven by Mr. Chesley Pippy, came around the curve. Before the car could be stopped it had struck the lad in the head, throwing him to the ground.

When picked up, the lad was in a semi-unconscious condition, and it was seen that he was seriously injured.

All that was possible was done by Mr. Pippy, and as there was no doctor at Holyrood, Mr. Pippy took the injured lad in his car, and accompanied by the lads father, Const. Grouchy and Rev. Fr. Walsh, who is in charge of the parish during Rev. Fr. Finn's absence, hurried to the city, where they arrived about 10.30, when the injured boy was taken to the General Hospital.

He regained consciousness before he reached the city, and the hospital informed The Advocate to-day that he rested easily, and had spent a good night, and it is believed his injuries are not as serious as at first thought.

Prospero To Undock Saturday

The S. S. Prospero, which has been on the dry dock for some weeks past undergoing extensive repairs, as a result of her striking the rocks near Greenspond last December, will come off the stocks on Saturday.

The ship will then be in first class condition, as during the past two months she has received a thorough cleaning and overhauling from stem to stern. Chief McKinley and his staff have given special attention to the engines and machinery while Chief Steward Grills and his assistants have seen to the saloon, staterooms, etc., all of which have been painted and are now in excellent condition.

The repairs to the hull included a new stem, forty feet of new keel, over twenty new plates at the bow, the fore peak and No. 1 tank renewed, and a new deck fitted.

After the Prospero comes off the French banker will be going on for repairs to her hull, after which the Viking for her annual overhauling, the Seal to be surveyed, and the Daisy to have a new rudder put in position will be going on. After these are completed it is possible the Portia will be docked for permanent repairs.

Kyle's Passengers

The following first class passengers arrived at Port aux Basques on the s.s. Kyle, and are on the incoming express: A. E. and Mrs. Baxter, Miss J. Devereaux, Mrs. M. Store Entered; $30.00 Stolen

A daring burglary occurred at the West End Bazaar Tuesday night, when the store was entered and the sum of thirty dollars was stolen.

The thief gained access to the building by means of a fanlight at the rear of the store and then helped himself to the contents of the till.

This is the third occasion on which this store has been visited by burglars and it is about time a burglar alarm was installed.

It is understood the matter has been reported to the police.

DEATH

SHEPPARD—At the General Hospital, Aug. 22nd. in her 34 year Bertha Harvey, wife of Henry Sheppard of Pt. Leamington, N.D. Bay, and youngest of the late George and Rebecca Tucker, leaving a husband and three children, also three sisters and one brother to mourn.

LOCAL ITEMS

During last night's storm a Portugese barquentine anchored off Bishop's wharf dragged her anchors and drifted down across Ayre & Son's wharf, where she was secured without doing any damage.

The passengers who made the round trip by the Portia, held a reunion at Peach's bungalow, Torbay Road, Tuesday night at which Capt. Field and the officers of the ship were the guests, when a very enjoyable time was spent.

A resident of Pine Street was found wandering along the old railway track yesterday morning only partly clad. He was taken to the police station by Sergt. Stapleton, and on examination by Dr. Anderson was ordered to the Lunatic Asylum.

Kilbride Sweep Drawn

The drawing in the Kilbride Derby Sweep took place at the Club House, Tuesday night, in the presence of officials of the Committee, and a large gathering of others who were interested in the sweep. The drawing was conducted by Messrs T. J. Rolls, J.J. Doyle, J.P., C. Myler, E. Walsh, M. Tracey, and M. Darcy, and resulted as follows:

First Prize, $200—Mrs. P. Raynes, New Gower Street.

Second Prize, $75—Master John Prowse.

Third Prize, $50—Miss Mary O'Brien, Presbytery, Trepassey.

Fourth Prize, $25—Monsignor McDermott, Palace.

After the drawing, a dance was held and a very enjoyable time was spent.

Susu Back From Fogo Service

The S.S. Susu, Capt. Roberts arrived from the Fogo Mail Service at noon Tuesday, after a quick trip of five days. The ship reports fish plentiful at Catalina for a few days last week, but continous off shore winds during the past two months has interfered with the success of the voyage, and the out-look is not promising. Coming South the Susu passed a number of vessels near Cabot Island, bound home from the Straits with big trips. The Susu brought a small freight and the following passengers:—Misses M. Foley, B. Brown, E. Bishop, A. Downey, M. Russell, S. Davis, Wright, L. Burey, Capt. Abbott S.A.; Mesdames Foley, W. Perry, J. Goodland, Dr. Whiteway, F. Hounsell, J. Bishop. Messrs. Rev. J. T. Hiscock, C. Butler, F. W. Abbott, Geo. Perry, M. Perry, Dr. Hogan, J. Goodland, H. H. Halfyard, C. Whiteway and 5 in steerage.

Personal

Mr. Samuel Tiller, the popular Commodore Cook of the sealing fleet, and who has been steward on the motor vessel F. P. Union during the summer, entered the General Hospital this morning to undergo treatment for an internal ailment.

City Wins First Game

The city won the first game of the inter-town series which was played at Grand Falls Tuesday night, by a score of 3 to 0. His Excellency the Governor and suite, who are visiting the paper-town, started the series by kicking off the ball.

The City played good combination, while Grand Falls spoiled their chances by wild kicking and bunching.

Ewing was the goal-getter for the City, and twenty minutes from the start he registered the first goal, while just before half time he again scored.

Grand Falls, pressed hard during the closing minutes of the period, but were unable to get past Walsh, who was in good form.

In the second period, Grand Falls worked better, but without results, the city defence being impregnable, while during the early minutes of the period, Ewing again did the needful for the city. Balleny, Halfyard, Simpson and Raynes, did good work for Grand Falls, while Duggan, Maddigan, Flynn, Ewing, Quick and Walsh, were the shining lights for the city.

Mr. McPherson was refree and the following was the line-up.

Grand Falls—Goal, Lockyer; full backs, Halfyard, Raynes; half backs, Simpson, Hannaford, Rose; forwards Brain, Frew, Halfyard, Pitcher Balleny.

City—Goal, Walsh; full backs, Delahunty, Thistle; half backs, Maddigan, Duggan, Vavasour; forwards, Coultas, Meaney, Ewing, Quick, Flynn.

The second game was scheduled for last evening, but owing to the telegraph lines being out of order, no report was received, but it is likely that owing to the unfavorable weather which extended across country, the game was not played.

Arrested at Bay Roberts

Sergt. Wells of Bay Roberts arrived in the city by last night's train bringing two young lads named Smith and Williams, who are charged with breaking into a store in the West End and stealing about twenty dollars. The young lads who are about 11 years of age, then took a holiday trip around the Bay and were captured by Sergt. Wells at Bay Roberts. They came before the Magistrate this morning.

NO REPORT FROM SABLE I.

There was no word from the strand ed steamer Sable I., yesterday, and in view of the stormy weather it is not likely anything was done. The wrecking tug, Harriett, with heavy tackles, is now at the scene and will make another attempt to get the ship off.

The divers have plugged the holes in the ship's bottom, and all is in readiness for salvage operations to begin. Capt. Farquhar, and Mr. T. C. Worwman of the Salvage Association, London, are still at the scene.

Portia Sails

The s.s. Portia, Capt. Field, sailed north yesterday at 10 a.m., taking a large freight, including a quantity of salt and other fishery supplies.

The following passengers left by the ship. Messrs H. Simms, B. Kean, M. Jones, J. B. Hann, J. W. Janes, Const. Dewling, R. A. Parsons, H. Diamond, Gosse, Jackman, M. King, C. Winsor, Master Pickford, R. Joyce, J. Operations At Corner Brook and Deer Lake Are Described

Whole Humber Section is Hive of Industrial Activity

From the head of Deer Lake to Corner Brook is 30 miles. The lake is about 18 miles, at the bottom of which, the Lower Humber begins and flows majestically to the open arms of Bay of Islands. Had we the gift to paint in suitable pen colors the beauties of the Lower Humber and the country around about Deer Lake as we saw it in 'verdure clad' on Monday afternoon August 21st, 1923, and pass it along to Advocate readers, a service would be done our country's natural resources which might well repay all the time and talent we are capable of bestowing on such a task. As with the real magnitude of the Humber enterprise, that must be actually seen to obtain a true and honest conception of what the industry really is and is likely to be, so too must those who would learn how lavishly kind nature has been to this section of the West Coast, go and do likewise as we have done. To us at least "there is not in the wide world a valley so sweet" and fair as the Humber.

The party reached Corner Brook where the Paper Mills are in course of construction, on land reclaimed from the sea, and which will be capable of turning out 400 tons of paper daily, at 3.15 p.m. Monday. H. D. Reid. Esq., Mr. W. Joyce and Mr. H. Russell, Manager of the Railway, were already at the site and joined in inspecting the mill site which covers an area of 35 acres. Rain came on at 4 o'clock. It was then decided to postpone the tour until Tuesday morning. The Hon. Mr. Downey, who intends leaving us at Bay of Islands interested Charge-de-Affaires Scammell and had him interview the Premier with he result that arrangements were made to have our train back down to Curling railway station for the night. This distance from the works may be covered on foot in 15 minutes. The people of Curling can therefore get back and forth to the plant every day, and are thus enabled to live at home.

The boom in trade caused by the location of the Paper Mills at Corner Brook has had its immediate effect on Curling. Land values have doubled, in some cases trebled. The practical failure of the Herring Industry the past three years hit Curling hard and a tide of emigration followed. With prospects of making a good living at home the return of many of this fine type of Newfoundlanders may be taken for granted. Already the tide has turned—young fishermen who went to Gloucester and Boston in goodly numbers, are waiting for the work to get in full swing when they will come back to the homeland assured of a comfortable living. At Curling the prominent citizens of the place called on the Premier, Sir Michael Cashin and Mr. Higgins. Invitations of a social character were extended in plenty to the visitors but lack of time prevented the acceptance of the hospitality offered.

A number of workmen from Easten distict got in touch with their representatives. They had some minor grievances to refer to. One in particular which we think should command the immediate attention of the P. M. General is: The six o'clock closing of the Telegraph and Post Office should be in some way rectified with a general closing of government offices. All over the country we appreciate many difficulties present themselves, but the telegraph office at Corner Brook might be kept open until 8 p.m. to give the men a chance to file messages which could be forwarded the following morning. The post office should be kept open on express days for mail delivery until 8 o'clock p.m. This was done when construction work was going on at Grand Falls.

Hon. Mr. Downey was kept busy interviewing his constituents. He is no doubt a well liked representative. Business of a governmental character, which it is hoped may result in still further development on the West Coast, compelled him to part company at Curling. He went on to St. Andrew's.

Corner Brook

Tuesday, August 21st. A beautiful morning. After breakfast the train is started east. The first lap of our homeward bound journey is covered in a few minutes, we are at Corner Brook by 9.30. Here as already stated, will be located the paper mills capable of producing 400 tons of paper daily.

The mill site takes in an area we should say of approximately 35 acres and abutts the main railway line on its northern side—seven eighths of this land has been reclaimed from the sea. The material, clay and gravel for making this new land is obtained from a gravel hill located along the south side of the track, so convenient as to make it possible to place it on the site very cheaply. In operating this gravel pit, a steam shovel having a capacity of lifting 3¼ cubic yards of gravel or filling every scoop and which excavates at the rate of 3000 cubic yards per 24 hour day, was working full time, 3 shifts are at work At night the work is carried on by the aid of electric light. At eastern boundary of the plant a pier—in all 1400 feet long—is about completed. The trestle work is 1000 feet in length and the main wharf 400 feet. The pier is built half moon shape tapering towards the west. Inside this pier an 8000 ton steam ship can be berthed and loaded directly from the paper storage building. With the gradual extention of the plant will come the requirement of further docking facilities. This pier is so constructed as to permit the addition of another 400 feet providing a terminus for any sized ship. The depth of water at the present loading point is 25 feet.

Along the water front built on wood piles driven to rock botton will be built two paper storage buildings 600 feet long by 100 feet wide, girded by steel and capable of storing 40,000 tons of paper. To carry the foundation of these two buildings it will be necessary to drive 7000 piles. A scow carrying the pile driver for this work is already completed and the pile driving is now going ahead. In addition 2000 steel piles are to be set up over the mill site to carry the foundations of the various buildings.

A contract to do this part of the work has been let to William I. Bishop and Sons, Ltd., Constructing Engineers, Montreal. This firm own and operate the Raymond Concrete Pile Co. Ltd. and the Ambursen Hydraulic Construction Co of Canada, Ltd. They furnish their own machinery and ap-

Russia Protests Occupation Of Wrangle

MOSCOW, Aug. 23—Foreign Minister Tchitchernin has sent a note to the British Government, protesting against the raising of the British flag on Wrangle Island by explorer Stefanson, as Wrangle was incorporated into the Russian territory in the years 1821-24.

The note says that in 1910 Russia built lighthouses on the island and undertook other works, and in 1915, formally notified allied and neutral governments that Wrangle, together with the other islands and territories along the coast of Siberia, constituted integral parts of Russian territory. As during the intervening period, no government questioned Russia's claim, the note says, the Soviet government regards the rising of the British flag a violation of Russia's sovereignity.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER IX.

Mrs. Daney cast a terrified glance in the direction indicated. A few hundred yards up the beach she recognized The Laird, striding briskly along, swinging his stick, and with his two English setters romping beside him. With a final despairing "Please Nan; please do not be cruel!" she fled, Nan Brent smiling mischievously after her stuot, retreating form.

"I have condemned you to the horrors of uncertainty," the girl soliloquised. "How very stupid you are, Mrs. Daney, to warn me to protect him! As if I wouldn't lay down my life to uphold his honor! Nevertheless, you dear old bungling busybody, you are absolutely right, although I suspect no altruistic reason carried you forth on this uncomfortable errand."

Nan had heretofore, out of the bitterness of her life, formed the opinion that brickbats were for the lowly, such as she, and boquets solely for the great, such as Donald McKaye. Now for the first time, she realized that human society is organized in three strata—high, mediocre, and low, and that when a mediocrity has climbed to the seats of the mighty, his fellows strive to drag him back, down to their own ignoble level—or lower. To Nan, child of poverty, sorrow and solicitude, the world had always appeared more or less incomprehensible, but this afternoon, as she retraced her slow steps to the Sawdust Pile, the old dull pain of existence had become more complicated and acute with the knowledge that the first ray of sunlight that had entered her life in three years was about to be withdrawn, and at the thought, tears, which seemed to well from her heart rather than from her eyes, coursed down her cheeks and a sob broke thru her clenched lips.

Her progress homeward, what with the heavy bundle of driftwood, in her apron, impending her stride, coupled with the necessity for frequent pauses to permit her child to catch up with her, was necessarily slow—so slow, in fact, that presently she heard quick footsteps behind her and, turning, beheld Hector McKaye. He smiled, lifted his hat, and greeted her pleasantly.

"Good afternoon, Miss Nan. That is a heavy burden of driftwood you carry, my dear. Here—let me relieve you of it. I've retired, you know, and the necessity for finding something to do— Bless my soul, the girl's crying!" He paused, hat in hand, and gazed at her with frank concern. She met his look bravely.

"Thank you, Mr. McKaye. Please do not bother about it."

"Oh, but I shall bother," he answered. Remove your apron, girl, and I'll tie the wood up in it and carry it home for you."

Despite her distress, she smiled.

"You're such an old-fashioned gentleman," she replied. "So very much like your son—I mean, your son is so very much like you."

"That's better. I think I enjoy the compliment more when you put it that way," he answered. "Do not stand there holding the wood, my girl. Drop it."

She obeyed and employed her right hand, thus freed, in wiping the telltale tears from her sweet face.

"I have been lax in neighborly solicitude," The Laird continued. "I must send you over a supply of wood from the box factory. We have more waste than we can use in the furnaces. Is this your little man, Nan? Sturdy little chap, isn't he? Come here, bub, and let me heft you."

He swung the child from the sands, and while pretending to consider carefully the infant's weight, he searched the cherubic countenance with a swift, appraising glance.

"Healthy little rascal," he continued, and swung the child high in the air two or three times, smiling paternally as the latter screamed with delight. "How do you like that, eh?" he demanded, as he set the boy down on the sand again.

"Dood!" the child replied, and gazed up at The Laird yearningly. "Are you my daddy?"

But The Laird elected to disregard the pathetic query and busied himself gathering up the bundle of driftwood, nor did he permit his glance to rest on Nan Brent's flushed and troubled face. Tucking the bundle under one arm and taking Nan's child on the other, he whistled to his dogs and set out for the Sawdust Pile, leaving the girl to follow behind him. He preceded her through the gate, tossed the driftwood on a small pile in the yard, and turned to hand her the apron.

"You are not altogether happy, poor girl!" he said kindly. "Im very sorry. I want the people in my town to be happy."

"I shall grow accustomed to it, Mr. McKaye," Nan answered. "Today, I am merely a little more depressed than usual. Thank you so much for carrying the wood. You are more than kind."

"Is it something you could confide in an old man?" he queried gently. "You are much neglected, and I—— I understand the thoughts that must come to you sometimes. Perhaps you would be happier elsewhere than in Port Agnew."

"Perhaps," she replied dully.

"If you could procure work—some profession to keep your mind off your troubles—I have some property in Tacoma—suburban lots with cottages on them." The Laird grew confused and embarressed because of the thought that was in the back of his mind, and was expressing himself jerkily in disconnected sentences. "I do not mean—I do not offer charity, for I take it you have had enough of insults—well, you and your father could occupy one of those cottages at whatever you could afford to pay, and I would be happy to advance you any funds you might need until you—Could— that, is, of course, you must get on your feet again, and you must have help——" He waved his hand. "All this oppresses me."

The remembrance of Mrs. Daney's interview with her prompted the girl to flash back at him.

" 'Oppresses,' Mr. McKaye? Since when?"

He gazed upon her in frank admiration for her audacity and perspicacity.

"Yes," he admitted slowly; "I dare say I deserve that. Yet mingled with that ulterior motive you have so unerringly discerned, there is a genuine, if belated, desire to be decently human. I think you realize that also."

"I should be stupid and ungrateful did I not, Mr. McKaye. I am sorry I spoke now as I did, but I could not bear——"

"To permit me to lay the flattering unction to my soul that I had gotten awaw with something, eh?" he laughed, much more at his ease, now that he realized how frank and yet how tactful she could be.

"It wasn't quite worthy of you—not because I might resent it, for I am nobody, but because you should have more faith in yourself and be above the possibility of disturbance at the hands—or rather , the tongues —of people who speak in whispers." She came close to him suddenly and laid her hand lightly on her forearm, for she was speaking with profound earnestness. "I am your debtor, Mr McKaye, for that speech you found it so hard to make just now, and for past kindnesses from you and your son. I cannot accept your offer. I would like to, did my pride permit, and were it not for the fact that such happiness as is left to my father can only be found by the Bight of Tyee. So, while he lives I shall not desert him. As for your apprehension" —she smiled tolerantly and whimsically—"though flattering to me, they are quite unnecessary, and I beg you to rid your mind of them. I am—that which I am; yet I am more than I appear to be to some and I shall not wantonly or wilfully hurt you or yours."

The Laird of Tyee took in both of his the slim hand that rested so lightly on his sleeve—that dainty left hand, with the long, delicate fingers and no wedding ring.

"My dear child," he murmured, "I feel more than I dare express. Good-by and may God bless you and be good to you, for I fear the world will not." He bowed with old-fashioned courtesy over her hand and departed; yet such was his knowledge of life that now his soul was more deeply troubled than it had been since his unintentional eavesdropping on his manager's garrulous wife.

"What a woman!" he reflected. "Brains, imagination, dignity, womanly pride, courage, beauty and—yes; I agree with Donald. Neither maid, wife, nor widow is she—yet she is not, never has been, and never will be a woman without virtue. Ah, Donald, my son, she's a bonny lass! For all her fall, she's not a common woman, and my son is not a common man—I wonder—Oh, tis lies, lies, lies and she's heard them and knows they are lies. Ah, my son, my son, with the hot blood of youth in you—you've a man's head and heart and a will of your own—Aye,s she's sweet—that she is— I wonder!"

CHAPTER X.

AT THE FRONT of Caleb Brent's little house there was a bench upon which the old man was won't to sit on sunny doys—usually in the morning, before the brisk, cool nor'west trade-wind comenced to blow. Following Hector McKaye's departure, Nan sought this bench until she had sufficiently mastered her emotions to conceal from her father evidence of a distress more pronounced than usual; as she sat there, she revolved the situation in her mind, scanning every aspect of it, weighing carefully every possibility.

Slashed By Shipmate In Fight Stoker May Succumb

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—The story of a wild fight in the stokehold of the steamship Munamar as she lurched northward through last Tuesday's squall, was recounted when the vessel made port with one man at the point of death, and another in irons.

Knives and monkey wrenches were the weapons, and Alfonso Rido, fireman, who was worsted by Adolph Mohojo, a water-tender, bore ghastly evidence of the fury of the fight. His left arm is almost severed at the shoulder, one of his lungs punctur- and his head badly cut. Mohojo escaped with a few bruises.

The men were engaged in some trifling argument which resulted in their seizing monkey wrenches. They were separated before either was seriously hurt. They met again, however, in a passageway, and Mohojo, who had armed himself with a knife, resumed the fray.

Rido fled to the deck, pursued by Mohojo, and falling near the rail, was literally slashed to pieces.

Rido, it is said, will probably die.

Federal Govnts. Will Not Interfere

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug 23—A semi-official notice that the federal government would not intervene further in the anthracite wage negotiations, to prevent the stoppage of the mines on September 1st, was released from Atlantic City to-day by the United States Coal Commission.

Both sides were told they could go no further in an endeavour to enforce peace, since the renewal of the wage contract negotiations, which was taken up at its intervention last week, merely served to percipitate another break.

Vera Cruz In Hands of Strike Committee

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 23—The city is virtually under the control of the committee of strikers which has taken over the direction of the police. Order is being maintained. No trains are running, and no public utilities are in operation, but the stores are being kept open.

Miss Ione Wyse using Libby's Milk

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every 16-oz. can

How Miss Wyse makes an exceptionally rich cream sauce

Melt 2 teaspoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour, ⅓ cup Libby's Milk and ⅔ cup water; cook until thickened. Season with salt and white pepper. Serve on fish, vegetables or meats

Milk that often makes butter and cream unnecessary

You'll discover a new delight in cooking—a new economy, too—when you try Libby's Milk. Just as Miss Ione Wyse of Chicago did.

What she says is especially interesting, since she has had more than ordinary success in cooking.

She writes: "Libby's Milk is wonderful for cooking use especially, so rich it often makes it possible to eliminate expensive butter and cream entirely—in muffins or cream soups, for instance."

A rather startling statement to be sure. But consider this fact about Libby's Milk:

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every can

There are 7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat in every 16 oz. can of this milk. And it's this substance in cream and butter, you know, that makes them great enrichers.

Libby's Milk is so rich in butter fat because, first, it comes from selected herds in the finest dairy sections of the country—those favored localities where nature has made of shady hills and green, well-watered valleys ideal pasture lands, and where men specialize in raising cows that give exceptionally rich milk.

Then, at our condenseries in the heart of these famous dairy sections, we remove more than half the moisture from this fine milk, making it double rich.

Nothing is added to it; none of its food values taken away. But to bring it safely to you who live, perhaps, many hundreds of miles away we must seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it.

This, then, is Libby's Milk—just the finest cow's milk in the land, made double rich!

Have richer dishes—tonight

Thousands of women are using this richer milk now—getting better results from old recipes, finding new joy in cooking, and saving money, too.

Get a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer today. Try it tonight in place of ordinary milk—in a soup for instance, a sauce or dessert. See what wholly new richness it gives to your cooking. And what delicious flavor.

Write for free recipe folder

Upon request we'll gladly send you a copy of a new folder containing recipes sent us by good cooks who use Libby's Milk.

Libby's MILK
The milk that good cooks use

GOSLING MEMORIAL LIBRARY, ST. JOHN'S, NFLD.

LATEST

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—(By Canadian Press)—Records of the life history of fish by their scales, kept in the fisheries branch of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, have now been supplemented by records secured through the aid of silver tags attached to a certain number of the fish upon their release after their eggs have been taken at the hatcheries. The expert can not only tell the age of a salmon by its scales, but the markings reveal the number of times it has spawned and at what period; how long it remained in fresh water before first going to sea, and the length of the subsequent periods spent in salt and in fresh water.

After the salmon have been taken and had their eggs extracted the Department, inquisitive as to their further journeyings, attach a silver tag to the dorsal fin of a certain proportion, before releasing them. Another scheme is to remove the adispose fin. This is apparently of little value to the fish, and its removal causes it very little discomfort. Whenever such a fish is caught the Department rewards the fishermen by the payment of $1 for the return of the tag or of the scar and some of the fish's scales with information at to where caught, its weight and condition. The object is to obtain definite information as to frequency in spawning, and also, of course, to find out the salmon's favorite haunts.

A marked salmon released in the Restigouche River in May, 1921 weighed 2 1-2 pounds; caught re-ascending the river in June of the next year, it weighed 12 lbs.

Between September, and October of the following year, a salmon increased its weight from 8 to 16 lbs in its wanderings between its release in York River, Gaspe, and its recapture in the harbor the following July.

One tagged at Tadousac in November, weighed 11 lbs, turned up at Grand Anse the following June, having increased to 23 lbs.

A marked salmon in the Kedgwick river, has been taken in Placentia Bay, Newfoundland, and one released at South Esk in the Miramichi river was captured at Bonne Esperance, Newfoundland. Captures have also been made of marked salmon in Stephenville, Newfoundland, which had been released in the Margaree river.

BALBOA, Spain, Aug. 24—A general strike was declared here yesterday in sympathy with the striking miners. Several strikers have been injured in clashes with the police.

LONDON, Aug. 24—A despatch from Tangiers, Morocco, says that according to reliable advices reaching there, two hundred Moroccan tribesmen with arms concealed in their clothing, entered Tetuan Wednesday evining, and shot up the town.

It is said the total casualties were ten persons killed and thirty-four wounded.

ESSEN, Aug. 24—German syndicalists and Communists are opposing each other at every step, the trouble beginning recently, when the Syndicalist leaders came out in favoring a Rhineland Republic.

Numerous coal mines and industries have been forced to close down, and the gas plant which furnished all the street lights of the city have not been operating for ten days.

Many workmen among the membership of the Syndicalists were alienated by the leaders' announcement of going in favor of a separate republic. The men look upon this step as playing into the hands of the French.

No Violence in Campaign

DUBLIN, Aug. 23—In the election campaign there is an absence of violence, which usually characterizes all Irish elections. This is regarded as eloquent of a change of political conditions, but it is also partly due to the fact that the Republicans are now professing to stand for law and order.

Polling day is next Monday and has been proclaimed a public and bank holiday.

The Junior League Series

The Junior League football programme on Wednesday was only partly carried out, owing to the inclement weather. In the morning the Scouts and T.A. played a good game the Scouts winnig by a score of 1 to 0.

The second game between the Holy Cross and B.I.S. was played at 11.30 the farmer winning by 3 to 0. The Irish lads were handicapped by two of their players failing to put in an appearance.

The Cadets and Gaelic League, despite the weather went on with their game in the afternoon, which after a hard fought contest, was won by the Brigade lads, by 2 to 1. The other two games were postponed owing to the rain.

Last night the B.I.S. and Scouts faced off and the game resulted in a draw each team scoring two goals. The high wind prevented anything like good football, while on this occasion three of the B.I.S. team did not turn up. To-night the Gaelic and Holy Cross will try conclusions, and as the latter are in the running for the championship a good game should result.

Art Exhibition

The window of Messrs. A. E. Hickman and Co. Ltd., is exhibiting a group of ten sketches in water color depiciting land and marine views about St. John's.

The magnificience of scenery about the quaint harbor and village of Quidi Vidi must have appealed very strongly to the artist within him, when the producer of the pictures, Mr. G. P. Ennis, member of the Salamagundi Art Club, U.S.A. caught sight of the sequestered and historic fishing hamlet, for the best efforts of the visiting artist are put forth in a noble attempt to produce in color the striking sea and land-scape which there met the eye of the onlooker.

Mr. Ennis came he saw and he transferred to his pastels what his eye beheld and he accomplished this in a style remarkably free from all restraints of the conventional in design and color.

Mr. Ennis uses colors as the poet uses words and his brush with the alchemy of the wizard transforms the drab and the grey and sombre into colors that charm the imagination and looking on one sees familiar scenes transfused with rainbow light that the dull work-a-day mind never fancied and opacity itself seems transmuted by the magic brush into circumambient transparancy.

This is the gift of Mr. Ennis and in order to realize fully what is meant by this, one must see the pictures for himself.

Manoa Here From Montreal

Many Tourists Making Round Trip.

The S. S. Manoa Capt. Dufour arrived from Montreal via Charlottetown at 5 p.m. yesterday after a stormy passage from the latter port. The Manoa has been on dock at Montreal during the last two weeks, undergoing repairs, caused by her colliding with the wreck of the Canadian Recruit, in the St. Lawrence on her last trip to this port.

Several damaged plates were replaced, and the work was carried out with despatch.

The Manoa brought over 1000 tons of general cargo. Some 50 round trippers, a large number of whom are Americans, are on the ship, while the following landed here:—W. J. and Mrs. Pratt, Mrs. W. E. Bearns, Miss Helen Hiscock, Hon. S. K. Bell, Miss M. P. Mare, Miss Edith Joyce, Rev. H. L. and Mrs. Pike.

Storm Claims Victim

Channel Man Is Lost Overboard from Stella Maris

A message has been received by the Fisheries Department from Capt. Renouf of the Stella Maris, from St. Pierre, saying that one of the steamer's crew, named J. Lomond, of Channel, was lost overboard at 1.15 p.m. yesterday in heavy weather. Everything possible was done to rescue the unfortunate man, but without avail.

Men's Conditions on the Humber

NO SERIOUS COMPLAINTS AGAINST COMPANY

Those whose fathers, and brothers, and sons are working on the Humber will naturally be anxious to know how are conditions under which men must work.

It would be impossible to expect conditions to approach the ideal, for in the initial stages of a great construction work, situated for the most part in the interior, there are difficulties which militate against convenience and comfort and which are humanly impossible to overcome in a few months. The building of shacks for the men now employed was a considerable task and had to be undertaken before the workingmen could be employed. Even now, we understand, men are arriving for which housing is found only with the greatest difficulty.

Among the workmen are some who worked in the Grand Falls plant, when under construction. These men agree that the shack-towns of Corner Brook, Campbell's Camp, Junction Brook and the other centres are superior in many respects to that of the early Grand Falls days. Some complaints were heard, but they were confined to particular cases. They did not include matters of a general character.

The camps or shacks are comfortable and are kept clean by men appointed by the company for that purpose. Most of the shacks are divided into two compartments or they may be called double shacks. Eight men live in each compartment, or sixteen men in each building. In the case of the Canadian sub-contractors, they give men the option of board for $22 per month, which is accepted by considerable numbers of laborers. The food supplied is reported by the men to be very satisfactory, the cooks being experienced. The cooks receive very good pay and as a rule give good value for it.

It appears the Sir William Armstrong, Whitworth and Company do not board their men, who must consequently 'shack' themselves. Many men voice their objection to this state of affairs. Others are satisfied as they claim they can earn more than if they paid their board: there is not that satisfaction as obtains from the boarding system, but every cent saved counts even though extra inconvenience must be suffered.

The Company's officials were approached respecting board affairs and the matter is under consideration though it was reported that at a meeting of the workingmen in some centres the men decided by vote against the boarding system.

One general grievance there is which is justifiable and capable of remedy by the Company, particularly if men in their shacks continue to provide for themselves. The Company's shacks are provided with sheet-iron stoves altogether too small for cooking purposes for eight men. There is no doubt about the justification for this complaint for eight men find themselves prevented from cooking anything sufficient on such contraptions. They are scarcely large enough to boil the kettle on! When fall and winter come, it will be worse.

The Advocate feels that the Company, now that the matter is brought to their notice will readily acquiesce in providing larger iron stoves as requested by men who must shack themselves.

On the whole, though there is much to be desired, conditions are probably as good as can be expected in a few months and with the companies ready to give attention to any legitimate request of the men, there is a likelihood that conditions will still improve.

The Keepiug of the Gate

Once again Great Britain stands close to "splendid isolation" in Europe. Russia is hostile, Italy is cautious and reluctant, France for reasons which we need not condemn and which are easily understood rejects British counsels, while any alliance with Germany against France would shame the dead and revolt the living. Thus even the alliances of the Great War are shattered and all the balances of Europe are disturbed. It is certain, however, that the great objects of Britain are to restore order and stability in Europe, give confidence to the exchanges and a free run to the world's commerce, and to give work and wages to her million of unemployed who constitute a material problem commensurate with that created in France by German devastation.

Sooner or later the two great English-speaking nations, the United States and Great Britain, will come together by the inevitable logic of events, by common understanding, if not by actual alliance, to steady the nations and establish peace and security upon enduring foundations. There are problems in China and Japan as well as in Europe. Still there are multitudes who have not yet learned the ways of peace and who will trouble Israel in the future as Israel has been troubled in the past if they are not restrained. The strength to restrain lies in the moral power of the English-speaking nations and since they have both lost the lust of conquest they can be trusted to act together, as the elect guardians of the peace and freedom of mankind. But meanwhile the burden of maintaining the world's peace and prosperity is resting mainly, as so often before, upon the broad unyielding shoulders of Great Britain.—Montreal Weekly Star.

Extensive Scope of Humber Activities

It is almost impossible to give readers much of an idea of the scope of the work that is under way at Junction Brook, Grand Lake, Campbell's Camp and Corner Brook. Only a visit to these centres will enable one to get a fair idea of the operations.

There is listed below however, the principal works on which men are now employed, viz.:

A temporary Crib-dam, 820 feet long, across the point where Junction Brook leaves Grand Lake. This is built to hold back the waters in Grand Lake during the construction of the permanent structure.

The crib-dam was commenced October, 1922, and by continuous effort was completed in time to pass the spring floods of 1923.

Owing to the lateness of the 1923 season, practically no work could be started until well into the month of May, while, for various reasons, it was impossible to commence moving construction plant until early in June.

A large re-inforced concrete dam, 1,100 feet long and 77 feet high, is to be built across Junction Brook to retain the water of Grand Lake. This represents an engineering feat of first rate magnitude and is now under construction.

A new railway, 10 miles long, to divert the Government Railway around the land flooded by the raising of Grand Lake level.

A canal, 6 miles long, 125 feet wide in the bottom, to carry the water across country to the Forebay from Grand Lake.

A series of eight pipe lines varying from 8 ft. to 10 ft. in diameter and ¾ mile long, built of wood at the top, where the pressure is low, and of steel from about half-way down, where the pressure is high, to carry the water from the Forebay to the Power House on the shores of Deer Lake.

The Power House, over 400 ft. long, housing water turbines and generators, capable of generating 100,000 h.p.

A transmission line, 30 miles long, from the Power House to the Mill at Corner Brook.

The Paper Mill to be built on land reclaimed from the sea and capable of turning out 400 tons of paper daily.

The construction of two huge piers aggregating 1400 feet in length and forming an enclosure to be largely filled in from excavations from a hill of gravel now being demolished by huge steam dredges or draglines.

The removal of a hill of stone on the west of Corner Brook for cement purposes for the plant. The erection and operation of tremendous machinery on the shores of Deer Lake, 10 miles from Power House site, for crushing of stone and the mining of sand for the making of cement for dam and canal.

The building of a town, to accommodate a population of approximately 5,000 people, together with all the numerous minor details necessary.

Since the middle of June over $1,000,000 worth of machinery for construction has arrived in the country, been off-loaded, transported to site and erected, and put into service. To transport it to site it has been necessary to build over 20 miles of railway.

The whole of the work, with the exception of the crib-dam, has been done since the first week of June—just over two months.

pliances for doing the various jobs in this mammoth undertaking they have contracted for. Bishop also constructs the main dam. He is at present on the job giving his personal supervision to the various portions of the work for which he is responsible.

Splendid Co-operation

A noticeable feature, and one which augurs well for efficient and satisfactory results, is the splendid co-operation existing between the three sub-contracting firms now engaged.

Some further idea of the extent of the plant may be gathered from the following dimensions of some of the concrete buildings to be erected on the mill site. Finishing room, 76 ft. x 54 ft.; machine room, 310 ft. x 28 ft.; screen room, 270 ft. x 54 ft., and coarse screen room for preparing the pulp for paper board, 35 ft. square; grinder room, 235 ft. x 54 ft.; blowers, 105 ft. x 54 ft.; digesters for cooking the wood, 108 ft. x 32 ft diameter; two acid towers, 22 feet in diameter, the slash mill and stock piles.

On the western side of the works a natural cove furnishes an ideal harbor for assembling the timber as it comes down the Humber; here the logs in thousands of cords are held in booms; placed on an endless grab, they are taken from the water and by this chain or grab carried to the slash mill where large circular saws cut the log into required lengths—the run to the barkers where the rind is removed, the next process is to chip the log into small pieces, whence it is carried along to be cooked in the digesters—it is then ready for the screen room where it comes out in sheets of pulp—these sheets are next beaten into a pulp and reduced to liquid form. It is now run on the machines converted into paper and finds its way into the large paper storage compartments outlined above. ready for shipment to the world's markets.

o the south is a flat area containing about 60 acres, here the company proposes to build what will be the most modern town in Newfoundland. The present program provides for a town of 5000 inhabitants. This plot has already been brushed and road making is well advanced. A main thoroughfare on the eastern side has been staked off. This section will contain the stores and will be used as the business section of the town. Running parallel with the street north and south will be the public square, public buildings, schools, theatre, &c. A Presbyterian church is in the immediate vicinity. The plan shows the site for an R. C. church and a splendid location for the staff hotel was pointed out to us by Mr. Carpenter, one of the engineering staff A full view of Bay of Islands may be obtained from here. The view of the surrounding country is entrancing. Nestling amongst the hills to the north across the Arm lies the pretty farming village of Summerside. An enterprising Canadian has recently acquired a considerable farming property in this locality and intends to go into the dairy farming business on an extensive scale, having satisfied himself that a ready and increasing market for dairy products can be found at his door. Standing near the Presbyterian church on the hillock overlooking the works away to the west distant it appeared to us—10 or 12 miles—are shown the snow capped hills of Blomidon, whilst here we were enjoying to the full a bright summer sunshine with a temperature of 75 and a westerly wind increasing as the morning sours slip by to a whole sailed breeze at noon. Before leaving this part of our itinerary The Advocate wishes to thank the engineering staff for the courteous assistance and ready replies to all information sought. Corner Brook, the new industry and prospective town can be given but a very cursory pen sketch, further than to voice the opinion of all our party that evidence of real progress exceeded anything which might reasonably have been expected in so short a time. In this connection also we might refer to the freely expressed opinion of Mr. Alexander, Mr. Carpenter and other officials that the natural conditions for building a town were as near perfect as possible. All over the town site the gravel soil formation made conditions from the view point of sanitation and health all that could be desired. Our next stop is Humbermouth.

POST OFFICE MATTERS AT CORNER BROOK

MINISTER OF POSTS TAKES ACTION

Throughout the country, where telegraph operators are also postmasters, the telegraph and post-offices close during this time of the year at six o'clock. This causes no little dissatisfaction in some places, but in a place like Corner Brook, it is so inconvenient to the men as to be deserving of immediate remedy.

At Corner Brook most of the men shack themselves. Even if the post office was open at "dinner hour", these men may not have time to get or enquire for their letters, or to mail their own letters. Moreover, numbers of men take a long time in a new place to dispose of such business and there is usually congestion and delay.

In fact, we know from the men themselves that it is impossible to get any kind of satisfaction with the post office closing at six, as this prevents men from visiting the office after the day's work.

It will be glad news to the men to know that the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, whose attention was called to this condition, has taken steps to have the postal officials, of whom there are two, to stay after six o'clock and attend to the needs of the men.

Man, the ORACLE, speaks
And, having spoken,
Says NOTHING
Of much importance,
But OH! HOW THEY TALK!
Men use such BIG words
To express such SMALL ideas.
They DAZZLE us with science,
They DROWN us in technique.
But a woman ALWAYS
Knows the point
LONG before they get to it.
Some men talk well, that is
If you like conversation
Turned on like a FAUCET.
Some "SPOUT."
Most married men DRIP—
A constant reiteration
Of the same thing—
This is very WEARING
On the wife.
Other men use
TORRENTS of words,
And these think they cut
A LOT of ice.
Some men talk QUIETLY,
These are the best;
They get listened to LONGEST,
Because if it's quiet enough
You can fall asleep.

No Great Finds of Labrador Gold

Rush to Gold Fields Not Great Says Sir R. A. Squires.

(Montreal Star.)

The gold rush on the Labrador Coast has not attained any high proportions according to Sir Richard Anderson Squires, ex-Premier of Newfoundland who is a guest at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel to-day.

"Although there is great interest taken in the developments," he said, there is no uncontrollable rush of prospectors. When I left there were eighteen, two from England, two from Alaska, two from Canada, some from the States and elsewhere. The Government of Newfoundland has the district well policed and arep repared to handle any emergency that might arise if there is a very great rush. But when I left there were no exciting finds reported. One man to whom I was speaking discovered ten d ollars worth of gold after exploring for eight weeks near the Big Brooks, Stag Bay section."

Regarding conditions in Newfoundland, he said they were quite good. The Humber development scheme where ah uge power and paper mill was being erected by the Armstrong Whitworth Company, was progressing satisfactorily and by two years should be completed. The prosecution of the cod fisheries was not carried on on the broad a scale as before, but considering the amount invested the returns were very satisfactory.

Sir Richard expects to be in Montreal for a few days.

CITY AGAIN VICTORIOUS

The second game of the inter-town series was played at Grand Falls last night before a record attendance, and resulted in another win for the city by a score of 3 to 1. The City had the advantage of the high wind in the first period, and Flynn and Ewing were responsible for the scoring in this half, while just before the close of the period, Pitcher registered the paper-town's one goal.

On changing ends, with the score 2 to 1 and with the wind in their favor, Grand Falls pressed hard, and the City defence was called upon time and again to save the situation. It was impossible to get past Walsh, however, and in the final minutes, the City rallied their forces, and Maddigan notched up No. 3 and the game concluded City 3, Grand Falls 1.

There was no change in the City line-up and the final game will be played to-day. On Wednesday night the team was tendered a dinner, which was presided over by Mr. Judge, and a very enjoyable evening was spent. Last night a dance was held in the Town Hall, and the team returns to the city by to-morrow's express.

Coolidge's Childhood

It was to Ludlow, Vermont, a town of twenty-five hundred people, about thirteen miles down from Plymouth Notch, that Calvin Coolidge was sent for his High School education. Most of the Plymouth boys who graduated from the country school up at the Notch went there. They'd board with friends or neighbors in the town and come home for weekends and holidays. The High School was called the Black River Academy. It was originally founded by the Baptists but today, it is said, it has entirely lost its denominational character and is considered more of a township school. It is still a paying school, however.

Many of President Coolidge's childhood and boyhood friends are today living in and near Ludlow. I made the rounds of them a few days ago. One of them is C. Ellen Dunbar, the woman who taught him his A. B. C.'s at Plymouth Notch. For a long time she boarded with the Coolidge family. The writer paid her a visit to hear something of the impressions she retained of Calvin Coolidge, schoolboy. She talked freely. At the close of the interview she said something which will most help to show how secluded is the community from which Mr. Coolidge comes.

Miss Dunbar lives about three miles up country from Luldow. It was on the Saturday evening after the president's death that we went to see her. It was after eight. The windows of the little farmhouse on the hill were dark. In response to the writer's knock, she came to the door and asked her in. She is a rather tall woman and angular. Her hands, which are very small and slender, are probably the best indication of her chaacter. An old man sat at one of the windows, his white head silhouetted against the dusk of the evening. A woman sat in one of the other chairs. Miss Dunbar pulled a rocker forward for her visitor. She sat down in a straight backed seat.

What His Teacher Says

"I taught school up at Plymouth Notch," she began. "I taught there for many years and lived with many of the families. Calvin went to the old stone school house. It no longer stands. They have a frame schoolhouse today.

"Plymouth Notch was a strange community. It was different. You hear or read of backwoods today and you imagine a wild, uncouth country and people. Plymouth Notch was never wild and uncouth. The people up there were all descendants of old New England stock. They carried the dignity of their family with them. Everybody came of good family. All the families were related in some way. It would never do to say anything about anybody. There was always a cousin of somebody about.

"I taught for many years, there and in other places. It would be interesting for me to say that I always knew Calvin would turn out to be something, but it wouldn't be true. How can anyone tell," she asked almost sympathetically, "which of the boys will be great? I noticed Calvin much the same as I noticed any other boy but I never took special pains to find out what he liked or what he thought or what he did. There was no occasion for it. He was just a little boy at school the same as other little boys at school.

An Unusual Boy

"He was, nevertheless, unusual in many ways. I guess we called it 'queer' then. At four, Calvin was about as sedate as he is today. At about eight when I best remember him, he was quiet, undemonstrative, enjoying himself in his peculiar way. He enjoyed mischief in his own way. His eyes would twinkle when he saw a joke played on any of the other boys. He seemed to be interested in watching the processes of other children's difficulties. I don't think I ever saw a child so isolated. Not that he didn't like the other boys and they liked him, too, but he would stand and watch them in their pranks more as a man observing a lot of mischievous youngsters than as a child taking part in them. He could always be trusted to keep his mouth shut on any confidence. He was not brilliant in his work at school but he was interested in his studies.

"I have always believed that many of his peculiarities, his quietness, his isolation, his shyness, his subtle humor, could be traced to the fact that his mother had always been an invalid. She met with an accident many years before she died and was weak and ailing for a long time. Calvin and his sister Abbie knew that the house had to be quiet when their mother was ill. They lived also, in the continual fear that she would die. She died when Calvin was thirteen. I have been told, but I do not know how true it is, that Calvin always carries a picture of his mother in his pocket.

"Calvin had much sorrow when he was a youngster. His grandfather on his father's side whom he loved dearly, died when he was less than six. His mother died when he was thirteen His sister died when she was fifteen. Calvin and his sister were greatly attached to each other but you'd never suspect it by seeing them together. Continual teasing was the way in which they showed their interest in each other.

"They didn't look very much like each other. Calvin at eight was slight, fair, freckled and blue-eyed. His hair was light with a tinge of red. Abbie's hair on the other hand was a glorious red. They were great friends but neither would let the other know it by any sign or deed. It wasn't good taste to show affection.

His Grandmother's Influence

"For a long time Calvin lived with his grandmother on his father's side. Because of the illness of his mother and the loneliness of his grandmother whose husband died when Calvin was very young, the boy used to be sent away from home on lengthy visits to the old lady. He probably got a good many of his oldfashioned traits from her. It was she who made him his long frock, a heavy woolen shirt of homespun which came down below his knees. He wore it in the winter time. He was a familiar and an odd figure in his long frock and boots.

"I never saw Calvin cry. I have never seen him look especially grieved. I don't remember ever hearing him laugh uproariously. The most he'd show when he was pleased or amused was a twinkle in his eye.

Sweetheart Slayer Suffers Collapse When Found Guilty

Lovelorn Youth Whines Like Dumb Anical and is Unable to Walk

MAD DRIVE to TORONTO

Dramatic Story of Flight After Shocking Murder on Hamilton Veranda

HAMILTON, Aug. 14—George King, 19-year-old youth, was tonight found guilty of murder by a Coroner's jury.

He shot and killed Erie Johnston, his 17-year-old sweetheart, at the doorway of her parents' home, 84 Kinrade Avenue, late on the night of August 7.

King broke down when he heard Coroner Rennie read the verdict He buried his face in his hands and sobbed piteously. His strength also seemed to suddenly desert him. He was unable to walk and had to be carried to the detention room.

Whines Like Dumb Animal.

When being assisted to the patrol, en route to the jail, he collapsed again, and had to be lifted into the vehicle. Low whines, such as a dumb beast in agony might emit, were the only sounds he made.

His mother was at the inquest, but neither prior to nor after the inquiry did she speak to him. King was not represented by counsel.

Of the evidence given tonight, that of F. Stock, owner of a poolroom at 703 Barton street east, showed that King owned two revolvers.

On the day of the shooting, Stock said, King left a club bag and a .38 calibre revolver in his store. This revolver was not the weapon exhibited in court, with which King shot Erie Johnston. The latter weapon was a short, black automatic.

Before addressing the jury Coroner Rennie turned to the prinoser, and after vouchsafing him the fullest protection of the court, said: "You may make any statement you wish to, but if you do so, I must warn you that you cannot have the protection of this court, as anything you may say will be used against you at your trial. You are not obliged, however, to say anything. It is optional. Is there anything you wish to say?

Dazed, King merely nodded his head in a dumb and negative manner.

Summing up the evidence, Coroner Rennie said the evidence of eyewitnesses pointed to King as being the slayer of Erie Johnston. The question was: Did King murder the girl? Murder meant malice aforethought and premeditation. He thought the jury would have little trouble in reaching its verdict.

Deliberating but a few minutes, the jury returned the following verdict: "We, the jury, find that Erie Johnston came to her death by being shot with a revolver fired by George King, and from the evidence given, we find him guilty of murder."

King Ill at Ease.

Sitting between two constables in the prisoners' dock, King appeared ill at ease, and very seldom raised his eyes. He sobbed deeply at times, then would become stony, as though petrified with grief.

George Johnston, father of the slain girl, said he knew of no reason why King should have killed his daughter. She and King had been keeping company for about two months previous to the tragedy.

King's actions immediately prior to the shooting were calm and normal, the father said. He was upstairs preparing to go to bed when he heard Erie scream twice and exclaim: "Oh, I am shot!" When he rushed downstairs King had escaped.

The father said he did not know that King had a gun on the night of the tragedy, although he learned after Erie was shot that King had shown a revolver to her young brother.

Showed Boy Revolver.

Oswald Johnston, son of previous witness, said that an hour before his sister was shot King showed him the revolver. King made no threats nor did he say why he carried the weapon. The boy said he did not tell anyone of this until after the accident, as he did not appreciate what use the weapon was intended for.

Iona Johnston, sister of the murdered girl, said King had visited the home on the afternoon of the day of the shooting to bid members of the Johnston family good-bye, as he said he was going to Fort Erie that night.

Much to the surprise of the family, King came back to the Johnston home about ten o'clock that night. He said he was not going to Fort Erie until the next day.

Write Note to Mother.

King, witness said, went into the dining-room with Erie and asked for paper and ink. He consumed a half-hour writing a note to his mother.

After he had finished writing the note, Iona Johnston said, King shook hands with those in the room. He said good-bye to Erie last. Her last words to him were: "George, be sure and write." King promised he would, then walked into the hall and called to Erie to take the note he had in his hand.

Had Never Quarrelled.

Erie went into the hall, her hand outstretched for the note, when the report of a revolver followed. Miss Johnston said her sister screamed that she was shot and fell to the floor. Erie and King had never quarrelled so far as the witness knew.

Clare Thompson, who was in the Johnston house, and witnessed the shooting, testified that after King shot the girl he jumped off the verandah and ran to Barton Street, where he disappeared.

Dr. Deadman, who performed an antopsy on the dead girl, said that death was due to a gunshot wound. The bullet had entered the chest near the fifth rib, and had pierced the tip of the heart and the liver.

Interesting testimony was given by Acel E. Kells, a motorist who was held up by King at the point of a revolver and forced to drive the latter to Toronto.

Mr. Kells said he was driving west on King Street about midnight on the night of the murder. As he approached Queen Street, he said, a pedestrain hailed him from the curb and demanded a ride. Witness said he slowed down to five miles an hour, but was about to increase his speed, because he was suspicious of the man, whom he tonight identified as King.

King, he said, jumped on the running board of the car and said: "You are going to Toronto."

Decided to Go.

Kells—I said, "No, I am going home to my garage."

At that, witness said, King jumped into the front seat of the car, and, stooping down, held an automatic revolver close to a light on the instruction board, and said, alluding to the weapon, "It is genuine."

"With that," Kells said, "King thrust the revolver close to my side. "All right, I am going to Toronto!"

Witness said that King acted very strange and was nevrous. He told witness that the latter would have to get him out of Hamilton, as he had shot his girl.

Kells—I asked him why he had shot her, and he replied: "Because she was going with other fellows."

When the automobile got within 20 miles of Toronto, Mr. Kells said, he stopped the car and got out to see how much gasoline was in the tank. Getting back into the car, witness said King removed the mtgazine from the weapon, looked at the one bullet there, and put the magazine back in the revolver.

Went to a Restaurant.

Passing an intersection of Queen Street in Toronto and another street, the name of which he did not recollect, Kells said that a traffic constable closely scrutinized the car and its two occupants. Witness said he did not slow up, as King had the gun within two inches of his side all the while. Half a block farther on, King said that if the constable had stopped them he would have shot.

They then went to a Queen Street restaurant, where one of the waiters, Kells said, looked at himself and King then walked to the front door and looked up and own the street. King said: "They're wise."

Kells said to King not to worry, perhaps his girl was not dead, and he would not hang. King repeated he would jump in the lake or take his own life in some way.

Mr. Kells concluded by saying he finally got away from King and notified attaches of the first garage he came to. Meanwhile King had surrendered to the Toronto police.

Sagona is Back From Labrador

Ship Had Stormy Passage—Plenty Fish on Labrador—Bad Weather Prevents Operations--Most of Floaters Loaded—Schr. Lost Making Second trip—Many gold Seekers and Marconi men come South--Senef's report

The Labrador mail steamer Sagona, Capt Burgess arrived at noon to-day from Labrador having left here on the 3rd. inst and reached Hopedale on the 19th. Capt. Burgess reports having had the worst trip for the season. S.E. to E.N.E. winds prevailed throughout with continual dense fog and heavy sea. Fishermen on the coast have done nothing since August 8th., it being impossible to haul a trap or to keep one in the water. Fish has been and still is very plentiful at the majority of places and but for the bad weather, Capt Burgess says everything afloat on the coast would have been loaded.

As things have turned out the fishery is by no means a bad one and most of the floaters have secured good voyages whilst good catches have been landed by the stationers in many harbours.

Capt. Jesse Winsor lost his vessel in Assizes Hr. Run on his way down for the second trip and two of the crew came south by the Sagona. The ship also brought twenty five passengers including a number of gold seekers from Stag Bay and Supt. Collins of the Marconi, who with an operator had gone there to install a wireless station. Owing to the failure of the gold rush the idea was abandoned and the operator also returned.

Brought Sick Esquimaux.

A party of twelve Esquimaux, all of whom are ill were taken on board at Hopedale and brought to the Hospitals at Indian Hr., Battle Hr. and St. Anthony to be treated. Some of the number were suffering from blindness.

The following is the report brought by Captain Burgess from the different harbours:

HOLTON, HORSE HR. AND EMILY HR.:—Both landsmen and floaters have done well.

WHITE BEARS:—All crews did well.

SMOKEY:—Traps doing fair.

INDIAN HR. AND PACK'S HR.:—Nothing.

GRAD Y:—No fish. McRae's traps have done nothing and crews have not had such a blank in years.

INDIAN TICKLE:—Crews have erage catches.

GRIFFIN'S HR., DOMINO and SPOTTED ISLDS.:—Fishery a blank.

BLACK TICKLE:—Traps have done fair, others nothing.

BATTEAU:—Fair catches have been landed.

SANDY ISLDS.:—Crews did well and all have good voyages ashore.

FLAT ISLDS.:—Munns have done very poorly.

COMFORT B.—Good catches have been landed, all crews doing well.

BOLSTER'S ROCK— Crews here have done practically nothing.

HAWK'S HR. VENISON ISLD., and STYLES—All crews did well and have good voyages ashore.

SNUG HR.—There has been splendid fishing here all season. Thos. Finn's crew of four men have 600 qtls. ashore. Twelve vessels loaded there.

DEAD ISLDS—and SQUARE ISLDS.—All crews did well.

OCCASIONAL HR.—All did well.

FISHING SHIPS HR.—All did well

SPEAR HR.—All did well.

BATTLE HR.—Not much doing with traps, but good hooking.

Mr. Masach Brown, who is on the Sagona, kindly furnished us with the following report of the Senef which is on the northern part of the shore, also of the floaters.

The Senef reports ice from Moor's Harbor with no fish north of the Farmyards. At the Farmyards there is good fishing and also a good sign of fish at Cape Harrington. Very little doing at Turnavic, Mackovik and Iron Bound Island; good fishing at Cape Harrison and Ragged Island. Four schoners there doing well and five schoners at Cape Harrison. Arthur Samson has twelve hundred and Bishop six hundred; White in the Laura Grace has four hundred, and at Sloop Cove, Hunt in the Douglas Haig has six hundred.

Five schooners at Emily Harbor are doing well and Bishop in the schooner D. M. Owen has nine hundred.

There is good fishing at Cut-throat and the schr. Jack Tar is loaded and also another schooner from Conception Bay is loaded. At Sandy Hill Bay four or five schoners are loaded. Collins in the schr. Challenge has six hundred. At Batteau schooners are doing well. The Ocean Bride, Perry, master, has six hundred, and the schr Beothic, Barbour master, has five hundred.

Although past the allotted span, Mr. Wadden is quite smart, and has thoroughly enjoyed his holiday, and is looking forward to another visit in the near future.

DISEASE CREATES PEARLS.

The formation of pearls in oyster shells is not, as has hitherto been supposed, due to an irritant, but to a peculiar disease which attacks the shells. It is a form of rheumatosm, which has its origin in an excess of uric acid in the oyster, just as in human beings. The theory that the pearl forme round a grain of sand or similar foreign body is not based on fact. Thousands of grains of sand find their way into the outer opening of the shell with receding tides, and are washed out again when the tide returns. Besides the glands which secrete the pearl-forming substance are found where no foreign body could penetrate.

WHEAT POOL FOR ALBERTA AT WORK

Moral Support Assured by Manitoba Government.

CALGARY, August 9.—(Canadian Press)—Organization of a wheat pool for Alberta took definite shape here yesterday when the Commission appinted for that purpose held its first business session in the office of the United Farmers of Alberta.

According to a statement, the business consisted chiefly of the appointment of the various sub-committees, including an executive committee to take charge of the general work when the full commission is not in session.

Fifteen elevators, with a capacity of 800,000 bushels of grain, owned by the Cummings Grain Company, Ltd., have been offered to the wheat pool of this province on terms similar to those under which other elevators have been offered, according to J. K. Cummings, the president.

SAPIRO CONFIDENT.

REGINA, August 9. — (Canadian Press)—"In my judgment they will get 75 per cent. of the wheat crop in the Alberta pool. I never saw such a splendid spirit as that manifested in Alberta. In Saskatchewan the pool ought to get fifty per cent and if they get fifty per cent. of the wheat crop in Manitoba less half the early wheat marketed there, they ought to give 200,000,000 bushels of wheat to be sold through a Dominion pool."

This was the statement made today by Aaron Sapiro, California co-operative marketing expert, who arrived in the city early yesterday from Saskatoon.

GOVERNMENT HELP

WINNIPEG, August 9.—(Canadian Press).—Government assistance will be lent any effort to form a co-operative wheat selling pool in Manitoba, Hon. John Bracken, Premier of Manitoba, said yesterday on his return from Saskatoon where he attended a conference for formation of the voluntary selling agencies for Saskatchewan and Alberta.

"I cannot speak for the farm organizations of Manitoba, but if they should decide it is desirable to proceed immediately to organize a voluntary pool on the contract basis, the Government will only be too glad to lend its moral support," Mr. Bracken stated.

THE STRAITS FISHERY

The S. S. Home, Captain Norman, arrived from the Straits on Wednesday night. The fishery reports by her are not very encouraging. From Blanc Sablon to Henley Hr. the cod fishery has been a blank. In Salmon Bay some fishermen have done very good. The season is so far advanced that there is no outlook for improvement in the Straits fishery.

Falls Over Wharf

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Lawrence Thorne employed discharging the Manoa at Harvey's wharf had a narrow escape from drowning last night. He was engaged on the pier, and was in the act of throwing some straps on to the ship's deck when he lost his footing and fell between the ship and the pier. Fortunately owing to the undertow, the ship was several feet from the wharf, other wise Thorne would have been crushed to death. When he went overboard an outcry was immediately made, and Mr. James Collins went to his rescue being lowered down by a cable and after much difficulty succeeded in rescuing Thorne who was in the water nearly five minutes.

Very Few Attend

At five o'clock yesterday evening the postponed Guards' Sports were commenced in spite of the very high winds prevailing and the meagre attendance of fans.

The competitors were all on deck, however, and by 6 o'clock five items had been run off. At this juncture an interval was declared for tea, after which the committee decided to postpone the balance of the program until September 5th. The winners of the events held are as follows:

100 yds. Dash—T. Butler, 10 4-5; Parsons.

Putting the Shot (14 lb.)—T. Butler, 35 ft. 5 ins.; W. Burns, 34 ft. 10 ins.

220 yds.—T. Butler, 27 3-5 secs.; Johnston.

Sack Race (Scouts)—G. Bailey; P. Williams.

Quarter Mile—Hamlin, 1.09 4-5; Johnston.

Broken Links, By Gertrude I. Parsons

Arthur H. Stockwell of Ludgate Hill, London, E.C., has just put a new novel on the market, entitled "Broken Links", by Gertrude I. Parsons. The authoress is a St. John's lady and the daughter of A. A. Parsons Esq., Governor of H. M. Penitentiary and the story is a work of which we can heartily compliment Miss Parsons.

"Broken Links" is a love tale, the scene of which is laid in England and the picture of the peaceful country life of the Old Land which it portrays is realistic and attractive. The author has created an intensely interesting romance around the lives of a boy and girl, the children of typical English County families and while she does not attempt any exaggerated flights of imagination or seek to introduce the unusual, the writer has succeeded in giving the public a story which will occupy a foremost place in the literature of its class and one which will be read with keen satisfaction by all lovers of a romance which has for its sitting the simple life, and, for its character, people from real life whose problems are those of the men and women one encounters daily, whose joys can be understood and appreciated and whose sorrows can be sympathized with.

"Broken Links" has a philosophy which appeals strongly because it is real and true, altho the simple philosophy of life. The story itself is well written and has a wholesome naturalness all thru. The climax is not the usual happy consummation of the hopes and aspirations of the characters portrayed but, nevertheless, it is somehow not disappointing.

We predict for "Broken Links" a prominent place in the literature of the day.

Wireless Operator Injured

The Shipping Department received a message yesterday from Capt. Bragg of the Watchful, stating that Hunter Snelgrove the wireless operator, was a victim of a gunning accident, the contents entering his right foot. The injured man was brought on to Indian Harbor for treatment at the Hospital. Dr. Padden made an examination and found that the man's injuries were not serious and the patient will be able to come South by the next trip of the Sagona.

After landing Snelgrove the Watchful returned to Stag Bay, where she takes on board the dismantled police station and customs offices etc., that were erected there some months ago, and she is due back here next week.

We are always prepared to supply Bill Heads, Letter Heads and Envelopes at short notice. Union Publishing Company, Ltd.

Eleven Hundred-Foot Dam, Nine-Mile Canal 125 Feet Wide, Thirty Miles of Transmission Lines and 14 Hundred-Foot Trestle Are Amongst Items of Humber Construction Work

NEW TEN-MILE RAILWAY TO CONNECT WITH MAIN LINE

Colossal Engineering Project In Grand Lake And Deer Lake Region

DROP OF OVER 200 FEET BETWEEN THESE LAKES WILL CREATE ENORMOUS ELECTRIC FORCE

It is nearly noon by the time we get away from Humbermouth. Considerable activity is also in evidence hereabouts. Since the middle of June, over $1,000,000 worth of machinery for construction work has arrived in the country, a considerable portion of which has been landed at Humbermouth at the Reid Nfld. Co's pier. Now that the pier at Corner Brook is ready for use, unloading will likely be transferred to the Company's own terminal. A three-thousand-ton steamer, carrying structural steel and materials for the power house, was due at Corner Brook on Monday. The ship, which has since arrived, is now discharging the first cargo at the new 400-ft. pier.

To transport the machinery and railway equipment to the sites where it will be assembled, over twenty miles of railroad have been built. Owing to the backwardness of the season of 1923, practically no work could be started before June.

An opportunity was afforded us at Humbermouth station, to have a word with Mr. Alexander. A million tons of machinery and material has been landed and most of it planted and in working order in less than three months. This was no small undertaking, but was the Company's record, nevertheless. It was natural that the novice should enquire where the timber to supply the mills was coming from, for as yet, we had not noticed any great body of spruce and fir, the principal raw material used in paper making. He pointed across to Hughes' Brook, which empties itself into the Lower Humber, opposite and further dawn the stream than Humbermouth, and directed our attention to a vast forest growth which followed the northern bank of Deer Lake, rising tier after tier as far as the eye could search. "Right around here," gentlemen," said he, "is an ample supply of wood for ten years to come, without driving a log thru the canal."

Col. Sullivan also, who has personal knowledge of the country, says that the present holdings of the Company, and the areas under option, guarantee an unlimited supply. The thoroughness of the manner in which the Company has gone to work in erecting their plant, leaves no room to cavil at the permanency of the undertaking, and that once started, the wheels of a great industry will turn profitably for many long years to come.

Sixteen miles from Humbermouth, another important and extensive plant in connection with the works is in full swing. Frazer Brace & Co., a large Canadian concern , whose headquarters are at Montreal, have set up a huge outfit for quarrying and crushing rock, which will be utilized in the mixing of concrete to be used in the power house and dam building. A spur line of railway one-eighth of a mile long has been built to the quarry. Two crushers, which will crush 100,000 tons of stone, are also installed.

The sand required is also available in unlimited supply along the foreshore of Deer Lake in this locality A 400-horsepower engine drives the machinery at this plant and compressed air is used to operate the various mechanical devices found in an up-to-date machine shop which is in operation.

A series of pipe lines carry the compressed air to the quarry for the operation of jack-hammers etc. In every case the machine takes the place of manual labor.

Deer Lake

Another eleven miles takes us to Deer Lake, the site of the power house, the heart of the Humber's industrial life. Bishop & Co. have the contract for the erection of the power house. The natural beauty of the country about here beggars description. The location for a town by the side of the lake is unsurpassed. There are at present erected five or six modern residences containing concrete basement, parlour, dining room, kitchen and four bedrooms, with bath and electric light. A large staff house is also about finished. Roads over which the most fastidious could desire, are being travelled over, where a few months ago not even a wood-path existed. Again, the cost of construction is made relatively cheap, because right at hand is splendid road-making material.

The potential power which can ultimately be developed from the Humber waters, has been computed by eminent engineers to be equal to 235,000 horsepower. What this enormous power means may be better realized if we put it in another form, and say that two and a half million (2 500,000) tons of coal would be required annually to produce by steam 235,000 horsepower. Therefore, once the waters of Grand Lake and its tributaries are harnessed, we have available the surplus electric energy necessary to supply three or four big timber or mineral development schemes. Gull pond Copper Mines would take 65,000 horsepower, and the establishment of an aluminum industry on the Humber is also a practical possibility in the near future.

From the forebay, where the waters of Grand Lake, after being carried thru a canal 9 miles in length, are finally harnessed, a huge trench three-quarters of a mile long and 144 feet wide, and graded to produce a drop of 112 feet at the power house, is being dug. Here again, the evidence is forced upon us, that the laborers' hands are robbed by mechanical appliances. A huge scoop, technically known as a Bycrus revolving shovel, does the work of hundreds of men in a day. With every dip of this drag-line, three and a quarter cubic yards are removed—put plainly, the earth and rock taken out in a single operation, makes a hole 10 x 4 by 4 ft., a good day's work for a couple of ordinary working men. From 2,500 to 3,000 cubic yards are taken out in a day. This ditching is being done by the Northern Construction Co., of Winnipeg, Ont.

Flumes

Seven flumes varying in diameter from 9 ft. 6 in. at the intake of the forebay, to 8 ft. 6 in. where they enter the power station, will be used to convey the water force to the power station. At present seven such flumes will be installed, and the others will be built as required. These flumes convey sufficient water to develop approximately 100,000 horsepower, or accurately, each tunnel carries 14,000 horsepower. Two-thirds of the connecting penstocks will be of wood, in the construction of which 2,500,000 feet (board measure) of lumber will be used. Steel pipe will be used on ont-third of the line, ta the points of greatest pressure, or that section leading to the power house.

The main power house building will be a one-storey reinforced concrete structure, 406 feet long. In addition there are rooms for the turbines, transformers and generators. A transmission line, conveying the high-tension current to a plant thirty miles distant, will be erected. This route will be somewhat shorter than the railway line, as some distance below Deer Lake the line is detoured across country in a straight line to Corner Brook.

We shall have more on the Deer Lake section on Monday.

NEW GERMAN MINISTER OF FINANCE WILL USE "BRUTAL" TAX METHODS

BERLIN, Aug. 24—Dr. Rudolf Hilferding, first socialist to hold the federal position of minister of finance, yesterday informed the Reichstag budget committee that he purposed to inaugurate an era of "brutal and ruthless taxation policies."

Banks and industrialists, said Dr. Hilferding, already had received warning and he was particularly desirous to inform the public at large of his intentions. It was his opinion that dictatorial methods within constitutional limits would prove the only means of saving the country in the present situation.

The minister's first official utterance was a straightforward statement of Germany's internal financial chaos which had culminated in the announcement of the Government's emergency measures for the requisitioning of foreign currencies and providing penitentiary sentences for persons committing perjudy in connection with the declarations demanded by the government, of holders of foreign exchange.

WILL BE NO SYMPATHETIC STRIKE IN OTHER MINES

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 24—Representatives of the Anthracite Mine Workers in the United States took the last step necessary to shut down the mines on September 1st, the news came to them from Washington that Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania with President Coolidge's support, would seek a last word before the impending struggle in the anthracite region began.

Scale committees from three union districts have authorized by unanimous vote, the issuance of work-suspension orders, and walked out of the meeting room to take mst of them to their homes. Their officials, however, sai that any request which Governor Pinchot might extend for further conference probably would be accepted. In this view members of the operators' policy committee, which was still held in the city, also joined.

Proposition to Keep St. Lawrence Open

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—Diametric Joanowici, Roumanian engineer, has arrived in Ottawa for the purpose of presenting to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries a scheme to modify weather conditions in Eastern Canada, and one to keep the St. Lawrence River open for winter navigation.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER B. KYNE)

CHAPTER IX.

In common with the majority of human kind, Nan considered herself entitled to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, and now, at a period when, in the ordinary course of events, all three of these necessary concomitants of successful existence (for, to her, life meant something more than mere living) should have been hers in bounteous measure, despite the handicap under which she had been born, she faced a future so barren that sometimes the distant boom of the breakers on Tyee Head called her to desert her hopeless fight and in the blue depths out yonder find haven from the tempests of her soul.

In an elder day, when the Sawdust Pile had been Port Agnew's garbage dump, folks who clipped their rose bushes and thinned out their marigold plants had been accustomed to seeing these slips take root again and bloom on the Sawdust Pile for a brief period after their ash-cans had been emptied there; and, though she did not know it, Nan Brent bore pitiful resemblance to these outcast flowers. Here, on the reclaimed Sawdust Pile, she had bloomed from girlhood into lovely womanhood—a sweet forget-me-not in the Garden of Life, she had been transplanted into Eden until Fate, the grim gardner, had cast her out, to take root again on the Sawdust Pile and ultimately to wither and die.

It is terrible for the great of soul, the ambitious, the imaginative, when circumstances condemn them to life amid dull, uninteresting, drab, and sometimes sordid surroundings. Born to love and be loved, Nan Brent's soul beat against her environment even as a wild bird, captured and loqsed in a room, beats against the window pane. From the moment she had felt within her the vague stirrings of womanhood, she had been wont to gaze upon the blue-black hills to the east, to the horizon out west, wondering what mysteries lay beyond, and yearning to encounter them. Perhaps it was the sea-faring instinct, the Wanderlust of her forebears; perhaps it was a keener appreciation of the mediocrity of Port Agnew than others, in the little town possessed, a realization that she had more to give life than life had to give her. Perhaps it had been merely the restlessness that is the twin of a rare heritage—the music of the spheres—for with such had Nan been born. It is hard to harken for the reedy music of Pan and hear only the whine of a sawmill or the bosom of the surf.

Of her mother, Nan had seen but little. Her recollections of her mother were few and vague; of her mother's people, she knew nothing save the fact that they dwelt in a world quite free of Brents, and that her mother had committed a distinctly social faux pas in marrying Caleb Brent she guessed long before Caleb Brent, in his brave simplicity, had imparted that fact to her. An admiral's daughter, descendant of an old and wealthy Revolutionary family, the males of which had deemed any calling other than the honorable profession of arms as beneath the blood and traditions of the family, Nan's mother had been the pet of Portsmouth until, inexplicably, Caleb Brent, a chief petty officer on her father's flagship, upon whom the hero's medal had just been bestowed, had found favor in her eyes. The ways of love, as all the philosophers of the ages are agreed, are beyond definition or understanding; even in his own case, Caleb Brent was not equal to the task of understanding how their love had grown, burgeoned into an engagement, and ripened into marriage. He only knew that, from a meek and well-disciplined petty officer, he had suddenly developed the courage of a Sir Galahad, and, while under the influence of a strange spell, had respectfully defied the admiral, who had foolishly assumed that, even if his daughter would not obey him, his junior in the service would. Then had come the baby girl, Nan, the divorce—pressed by the mother's family—and the mother's death.

If his wife had discerned in him the nobility that was so apparent to his daughter— Poor old hero! But Nan always checked herself in her meditations at this point. They didn't seem quite fair to her mother.

Seated on the bench this afternoon, Nan reviewed her life from her sixth year, the year in which her father had claimed her. Until her eighteenth year, she had not been unhappy, for, following her arrival in Port Agnew, her father had prospered to a degree which permitted his daughter the enjoyment of the ordinary opportunities of ordinary people. If she had not known extravagance in the matter of dress, neither had she known penury; when her feminine instinct impelled her to brighten and beautify the little home on the Sawdust Pile from time to time, she had found that possible.

She had been graduated with honors from the local high school, and, being a book-lover of catholic taste and wide range, she was, perhaps, more solidly educated than the majority of girls who have had opportunities for so-called higher education. With the broad democracy of sawmill towns, she had not, in the days gone by, been excluded from the social life of the town such as it was, and she had had her beaus, such as they were. Sometimes she wondered how the choir in the Presbyterian Church had progressed since she, once the mezzo-soprano soloist, had resigned to sing lullabys to a nameless child, if Andrew Daney still walked on the tips of his shoes when he passed the collection plate, and if the mortgage on the church had ever been paid.

She rose wearily and entered the little house. Old Caleb sat at the diningroom table playing solitaire. He looked up as she entered, swept the cards into a heap, and extended his old arm to encircle her waist as she sat on the broad arm of his chair. She drew his grey head down on her breast.

"Dadkins," she said presently, "Donald McKaye isn't coming to dinner to-morow after all."

"Oh, that's too bad, Nan! Has he written you? What's happened?"

"No; he hasn't written me, and nothing's happened. I have decided to send him word not to come."

"Aren't you feeling well, my dear?"

"It isn't that, popsy-wops. He's the new laird of Tyee now, and he must be careful of the company he keeps."

Old Caleb growled in his throat.

"Much he cares what people think.

"I know it. And much I care what people think, for I've grown accustomed to their thoughts. But I do care what his father thinks, for, of course, he has plans for Donald's future, and if Donald, out of the kindness of his heart, should become a frequent visitor here, The Laird would hear of it sooner or later—sooner, perhaps, for it would never occur to Donald to conceal it—and then the poor laird would be worried. And we don't owe The Laird that, father Brent."

"No; we do not." The old face was troubled.

"I met Mrs. Daney on the beach, and it was she who gave me the intimation that The Laird had heard some cruel gossip that was disturbing him."

"I'm sorry. Well, use your own judgement, daughter."

"I'm sure Donald will understand," she assured him. "And he will not think the less of us for doing it."

She got up and went to the peculiar little desk which Mrs. McKaye had picked up in Italy and which Donald, calm in the knowledge that his mother would never use it or miss it, had given her to help furnish the house when first they had come to the Sawdust Pile. On a leaf torn from a tablet, she wrote:

The Sawdust Pile,
Saturday Afternoon.

Dear Donald:

I had planned to reserve my thanks for the books and the candy until you call for dinner to-morrow. Now, I have decided that it will be better for you not to come to dinner to-morrow, although this decision has not been made without father and me being sensible of a keen feeling of disappointment. We had planned to sacrifice an old hen that has outlived her margin of profit, hoping that, with the admixture of a pinch of saleratus, she would prove tender enough to tempt the appetite of a lumber jack, but, upon sober second thought, it seems the part of wisdom to let her live.

We honor and respect you, Donald. You are so very dear to us that we wish to cherish always your good opinion of us; we want everybody in Port Agnew to think of you as we do. People will misunderstand and misconstrue your royalty to the old friends of your boyhood if you dare admit your friendship. Indeed, some have already done so. I thank you for the books and the candy, but with all my heart I am grateful to you for a gift infinitely more precious but which is too valuable for me to accept. I shall have to treasure it at a distance. Sometimes, at colors, you might wave to

Your old friend,
NAN BRENT.

Her letter completed, she sealed it in a plain white envelope, after which she changed into her best dress and shoes and departed up-town.

Straight to the mill office of the Tyee Lumber Company she went, her appearance outside the railing in the general office being the signal for many a curious and speculative glance from the girls and young men at work therein. One of the former, with whom Nan had attended high school, came over to the railing and, without extending a greeting, either of word or smile, asked, in business-like tones,

"Whom do you wish to see?"

"Whom do you wish to see?"

In direct contrast with this cool salutation, Nan inclined her head graciously and smilingly said:

"Why, how do you do, Hetty? I wonder if I might be permitted a minute of Mr. Daney's time."

"I'll see," Hetty replied, secretly furious in the knowledge that she had been serenely rebuked, and immediately disapepared in the general manager's office. A moment later, she emerged. "Mr. Daney will see you, Miss Brent," she announced. "First door to your right. Go right in."

"Thank you very much, Hetty."

Andrew Daney, seated at a desk, stood up as she entered.

"How do you do, Nan?" he greeted her, with masculine cordiality, and set out a chair. "Please be seated and tell me what I can do to oblige you."

ENGINEER'S REPORT.

The Engineer stated that the work of laying 225 ft. of pipe at the Penitentiary will be gone on with, if Mr. Churchell of the Public Works Department agrees to the arrangements.

He stated that the road near the Sanatorium has been oiled and Le-Marchant Road is now being made ready for oiling; and, in connection with the dump at Rennie's River, that Mr. Rennie will let the Council have the land for the purpose of widening the road all along the frontage.

Councillor Outerbridge gave notice that at the next Meeting he would move that Section 150 of the City Charter be put into effect, i.e. "That the Council shall have power to make regulations for the placing of awnings, signs and show-boards, placed so as to contravene such regulations."

The accounts for week were ordered to be paid, and the meeting adjourned.

Pilot Forced to Go With Ship

A message received in the city today says that Pilot Turner of St. Brendan's, who took the steamer Mumi into Bonavista Bay to load pit props, has gone to England in the steamer which sailed on Wednesday in the height of the gale. When the ship got out the Bay it was so rough that no boat could get near her and the pilot had to remain on board and make the trip across to the other side.

The Antics of Budworms

Despite the unusual coldness of the weather, the budworm is out again.

This time it is not the trees of Nagle's Hill, the budworm is gnawing. It is the thick growths surrounding Grand Lake and the Humber Valley.

Owing to the great resources of forests in those regions, this species of budworm will have some gnawing before it destroys the Humber proposition.

Since the disturbing appearance of this insect around Nagle's Hill last summer, it has been "going to it" until one wonders how teeth and broken ribs can stand it. Indeed, the anatomical wonders of budworms would puzzle Darwin himself, if it would not persuade him to revolutionize his theory altogether.

Which explains why some people are anxiously enquiring for opinions on Darwin's theory of Evolution.

"The Humber is seen more clearly from a distance," says somebody. Another instance of the peculiar 'focal' powers of budworms.

Budworms see large forests and go for them, creating redness in trees But both Opposition and Government members saw no "redress" in the Humber growths; though the advice to stay away from the West Coast by an authority on insect species, leads to suspicions that a close scrutiny would discover the budworm at work.

Only the Budworm sees red.

Will somebody remove the specie from the Island?

The picture of Assembly members sitting on the Gaff Topsails looking through spy glasses provided by Mr. Arthur English will soon be around town.

The Humber and Tourist Traffic

The immediate result of the establishment of the Humber enterprize on the West Coast will probably be a big influx of Canadian and American tourists next season. Hotel accommodation formerly lacking will be well provided for. The staff house at Deer Lake can be utilized to some extent immediately for the convenience of the travelling public. At Corner Brook, thirty miles further west, the heart of the salmon fishing pools and rivers a dollar a day hotel will shortly be started. Bay of Islands close by has a splendid hotel, the Davis house, where patrons are assured of every convenience. The electric power so soon available will make it possible to provide comforts in hotel life quite as up to date as can be obtained in Montreal, Boston or New York. Sane legislation to encourage tourist traffic is all that is required to bring us a revenue which will surprize the biggest optimist in Newfoundland.

Sable I. Going to Halifax

The S.S. Sable I. which was refloated on Thursday, was at St. Pierre yesterday, where she arrived under her own steam. The temporary repairs effected while the ship was ashore at Lamaline will be sufficient to carry the steamer to Halifax, where she will be docked, and permanent repairs made. These will take about 14 days, after which the Sable I. will resume the Sydney-St. John's service.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, SATURDAY, AUGUST 25, 1923

THE RAILWAY

The railway outlook is very encouraging just now, according to General Manager H. J. Russel who returned to the city a few days ago after a trip over the Western Division. The road is in excellent condition to meet the demands of the tremendously increased traffic and special attention has been paid to those sections on which there is the largest amount of work.

A large staff of men have been at work on the road between Humbermouth and Grand Lake ballasting and effecting other necessary improvements, the work having been carried on with the aid of a steam shovel. A section of twenty-five miles between Clarenville and Bishop's Falls has also been repaired and ballasted and the steam shovel is now operating at Come-By-Chance where a large number of men are at work.

It speaks volumes for the condition of the road in the Humber section that since the transportation of the Armstrong Whitworth construction outfit and material from Humbermouth inland, not a single accident has occurred and there are many trains passing back and forth daily. This is, of course, the businest part of the line at the present time. The Contractors have six of the Railway Co.'s engines hired for transport purposes and these, pulling heavy trains, are kept constantly on the go. The railway itself also has two engines now constantly working hauling stone to the main dam site and this material is being freighted out at the rate of four hundred tons a day.

Every ton of construction machinery and material for the work on the dams and power plant at Deer Lake has meant added earnings for the railway, a large portion of this having gone out from here. The 'Canadian Sapper' is at present landing thirty carloads of machinery at the Dry Dock pier and this means three or four special freight trains across country during the next few days. There is also a 3,000-ton steamer discharging at Humbermouth, and between now and the closing of navigation there will be many more shipments coming here.

In addition to the immense volume of work which the Humber operations are bringing to the railway, the regular traffic is constantly increasing and the receipts for this season are away in excess of those of the same period last year. While this is so in the case of freight traffic, it particularly applies to the passenger service which is being run to capacity all the time with both inward and outward traffic.

The car shops here in the city have turned out thirty-five new flat cars so far this season and forty box cars are now under construction to be ready for use in the early Autumn. In addition to this, the machine shops are working full time on repairs to engines, it being necessary to have every bit of available rolling stock in condition to meet the traffic demands.

There is still a lot of coal, cement, etc., to come in this fall and for the coming year there is at least as much and in all probability more work for the railway in sight. With the improvements that have been made in the road as well as in the rolling stock this season, all demands are being satisfactorily met and the new General Manager is indeed to be congratulated on the manner in which he has been able to bring the system up to the unusual requirements of the time. That greater improvements will be in evidence as time goes on there is not the slightest doubt, and before operations are resumed on a large scale next year the system will be in better condition and will be better equipped to handle heavy traffic than it has been at any time since the road was built.

In this connection it must be remembered that the present satisfactory condition of the road is in a large measure due to the efforts of the Railway Commission which took over the system in 1920 and spent large sums of money in repairs and improved rolling stock equipment. The Commission have been repeatedly accused of wasting the money they spent in this way but today the country is realizing the benefits of the Commission's work and is being made aware that neither the time nor the money expended was wasted. This was brought home conclusively to the members of the House of Assembly on their recent trip up country when it was seen that but for the work that has been done since 1920, the railway would be a hopeless proposition when it came to coping with the traffic it is called upon to handle now.

The Government has been fortunate in being able to take over the railway under such favorable circumstances and doubly so in having a man of Mr. Russell's experience and capabilities to handle it. It is safe to say that the most sanguine estimates that have been made in connection with the system will be fully realized.

Telegram Rebukes News For Hypocritical Attitude

It was quite proper that our evening contemporary, The Telegram, assumed yesterday the task of administering censure to The Daily News, respecting their jaundiced attitude on the visit of the members of the Assembly to the Humber.

The capable manner in which The Daily News was handled for its uncalled remarks concerning an industry which already gives 2,300 workingmen bread for their families, must have been very much embittered by the fact that The Telegram undertook the task, which, after all, shows a commendable and independent spirit on the part of that paper.

We heartily endorse The Telegram's attitude and as it is quite certain its censure is sufficient in itself, it is unnecessary to prolong it.

It was not gracious of The News to endeavour to bring its own political associates into public contempt. The Assembly members were the guests of the Armstrong, Whitworth Company and not of the Government.

Moreover, The News knew it.

We reprint below The Telegram's editorial of yesterday:

A JAUNDICED ATTITUDE

"The Editorial comments of our morning contemporary on the visit of our "public men to the Humber will not, we feel safe to assert, commend them-"selves to the general public. Apart from the injurious effect that the thinly "veiled attempts to belittle the enterprise must have upon those who are "watching the industries developing in this country with a view to investment, "the editor appears to adopt a lord-I-am-not-as-other-men-are attitude that "is not convincing nor inspiring. The Daily News with the other city papers "has urged the necessity of encouraging the development of our resources, "and has frequently emphasized the necessity for advertising them. Surely "no better method could have been adopted than that which the News refers "to as the "Humber Jaunt."

"Even if the country had borne every cent of expenditure in connection "with the visit, it would have been money wisely expended. We do not hesi-"tate to proclaim that we sent our representative to the Humber under that "impression, and suffered no qualm of conscience. Publicity is of paramount "importance if we are to advance with the times. Too long have we hidden "our light under a bushel. Economy primarily refers to careful manage-"ment, and a tight purse where wise expenditure will obtain results is just "as deserving of blame as lavish waste.

"There can be no better augury than to find that our politicians, however "much they may differ in opinion on the floor of the House, can leave their "differences there, and fraternize in every day life. Our contemporary fre-"quently refers to the difference which exists in our political life to that "which obtains in England. Perhaps there is no aspect more noteworthy "in the Old Country than the absence of animosity in private life among po-"litical opponents."

Is Better Politics In Sight?

In times through which we have now to pass, the motto of our public men of whatever shade of political opinion should be "Country First."

There is no difficulty to hear such views expressed by our public men; but theory or mere profession availeth nothing unless accompanied by practice. From the early days of Responsible Government the general public have heard public men make professions of great concern regarding vital public matters, have heard them avow the motto of 'Country First' and pledge themselves to the service of the people.

Some have failed miserably to measure up to the standard, which in their desire for attainment of political position, they set for themselves: and out of their own mouths they have been condemned as mere politicians, soulless, unscrupulous, and hypocrites.

With others, there have been extenuating circumstances, unforeseen and uncontrollable, which have militated against complete accomplishment, and even against attempts to carry out a professed policy.

But so few have convinced our people of an earnest and genuine attempt to place 'Country First' as against self-aggrandisement, that there is a growing distrust in the public mind that the best has not been accomplished for the country.

It is thought the few earnest public men, who have not enriched themselves during their years of public life, are unable to stem the tide of self, flowing not only through the political field but through the field of business, which sweeps away policies and leaves the rocky rut of hard times.

This distrust has, perhaps, also been engendered by expressed opinions that one political group have of another, which are consequently reflected between opposing political factions of the people themselves.

Because of the urgent need of our public men getting down to real service of the country, and because of the necessity of inspiring a greater public confidence, it is gratifying to see public men amending the errors of their ways and coming together on the nature of a better understanding and acquaintance. Political groups may still have their difference of opinions and policies; yet there is no reason why they should fight like dogs and tear at the vitals of a country. A calm exchange of views, open discussion, and a real desire to find workable policies are always better than political fireworks, and secret intrigue to down the opposing party.

The Sir William Armstrong, Whitworth and Company invited the whole House of Assembly to the Humber works. Both political parties accepted and during that time, there has evolved, we hope, a better understanding among our public men, some of whom profess they have seen the futility of merely playing politics at the expense of the country.

Underlying public action in crucial times, it cannot be forgotten that we are Newfoundlanders all, who should not be for 'party but for state.'

The impression which a few days' trip made on the minds of the people's representatives will not be soon lost; and if necessary, should be renewed by a second visit, providing, of course, they have the permission of Mr. Arthur English.

The majestic Humber, flowing down through equally majestic mountains, the snow-spotted Blomidons, the wealth of forests, the mighty forces of Grand Lake awaiting to be harnessed, the splendour of all, combined with honest men working for bread for their families should teach its own lesson: 'Country First.'

With proper direction, with the earnest co-operation of all, with resultant hope in the hearts of the people, Terra Nova would soon pass from the land of promise and become one of industry and prosperity for her people.

"CONSISTENCY, THOU ART A JEWEL"

The Daily News, whether inadvertently or not, was very complimentary to the Humber Project this morning. That paper even exceeded yesterday's Telegram in denouncing its own carping attitude concerning Humber matters.

If The News was a little more consistent one way or the other, the public would know how to treat its opinions on public matters.

Unfortunately, consistency is not The News' strong point, which explains why in one column of this morning's issue the Humber is slammed, and in the next column is characterized as "the immense development scheme now in course of construction on the Humber."

Says The News: The tourist traffic on the West Coast has also greatly increased this season, and some hundreds have crossed the Gulf by the Kyle, and have camped along the Humber and at the other fishing resorts which each season are attracting the tourists. But a few days ago a new steamship service from Montreal to Curling and Humbermouth was inaugurated and it is understood a second Company contemplates running a line of steamers also on this service. On the first trip of the S.S. North Shore, no less than 25 tourists took advantage of the trip, and were greatly struck by the immense development scheme now in course of construction on the Humber. With the introduction of additional transportation facilities our tourist traffic should increase proportionately and be a welcome source of revenue.

It is strange enough to have The News assume different attitudes on different days, but when attempts are made in one issue to drag the public from one position to another, the inconsistency is as ludicrous as it is senseless.

The News had better take the position that the immense development scheme now in course of construction on the Humber' is a good thing for Newfoundland, and the workmen will then agree with The News.

SHUT-DOWN ARRANGEMENTS ARE COMPLETED

Governor of Pennsylvania Seeks a last Word Before Inevitable Step is Taken

ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 24—The necessity of completing some arrangements that will prevent the anthracite mines from permanent injury through flooding and cave-ins after September 1st, when the miners expect to walk out, was said to be the chief factor in holding representatives of the anthracite mine workers and officials of the miners' union at Atlantic City to-day.

There is apprehension that a sympathetic strike in the soft-coal fields in Illinois would follow the anthracite strike; but this was allayed by the anouncement of Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois Mine Workers, that there was no thought of suspension in the bituminous coal fields.

Grand Falls Win Last Game

Grand Falls carried off the final game of the inter-town series last evening, after one of the most exciting games seen in the paper-town.

The City played their same eleven, but Grand Falls made several changes in their line-up, and showed a big improvement on their previous games.

The weather was ideal and play was fast from start to finish. Lonsdale, who replaced Lockyer in goal, saved well, and was largely responsible for his team's success.

Seven minute from the start Ewing scored for the city and some minutes later amidst great enthusiasm, Brain sent in the equalizer.

The second period was a scorcher, and excitement was intense, both teams working well, play being general, with repeated rushes by both forward lines. Brain again did the trick for Grand Falls, and despite repeated efforts the city failed to register, amidst a most exciting finish. Grand Falls carried off the honors with the score 2 to 1 in their favor.

The City wins the trophy, having won two out of three games played. They joined the incoming express last night and are due back this afternoon. The trip was in every way a most enjoyable one, and the team is very grateful to Secretary Arthur Flynn of the Grand Falls Athletic Association, and Mr. James Judge, for the manner in which they were received, while they are also very grateful for the hospitality tendered by the people of Grand Falls in general.

Spectacular Fire Raged In East End

GARAGE AND CAR GO IN MIDNIGHT BLAZE.

Fire which was discovered at 11 o'clock last night and the origin of which is unknown, completely gutted the barn and garage in the rear of "Omrac" the residence of Messrs Gordon and Herbert Winter, destroying a "Sunbeam" car which was not insured, and doing thousands of dollars damage otherwise.

The fire, which was a spectacular one, was discovered in the stable which adjoins the garage, by some men who were passing along King's Bridge Road. They informed Mr. Gordon Winter who was at home at the time, and the alarm was sent in.

The stable and garage consist of a group of three buildings, two of which were used as garages in which the Messrs Winters kept their cars. Mr. Gordon Winter kept a cow, and his first thoughts on being acquainted of the fire was for the animal which he thought was in the stable. He made a search but failed to locate her, and it was later discovered that she was grazing in the field nearby. Failing to find the animal, Mr. Winter hurried to the garage in order to, if possible, save his car, but the flames spread so rapidly that he was cut off, and to save himself had to escape through a rear window. In the meantime the firemen arrived on the scene to find the stable and garage a mass of flames, which were shooting skywards and lighting up the eastern section of the town. Two partly filled casks of gasoline were in the garage while several empty casks were also on the premises. The flames enveloped these before they could be removed, causing them to explode.

The firemen worked splendidly under the direction of Supt. Kane, but owing to the inmlamable nature of the burning material, it was not till nearly 1 o'clock that they could relax their efforts.

It is understood that only $3,000 insurance was carried.

Lord Birkenhead in America

NEW YORK, Aug. 24—Viscount Birkenhead and daughter, Lady Eleanor Smith, passengers by the Mauretania, were extended the courtesies of the government to-day and taken ashore in a revenue cutter, while the liner was in quarrantine.

The Viscount will go to Williamstown, Mass., where he will address the Institute Polytechnic to-night on the topic "Some Problems left by the Great War."

Lord Birkenhead will address the Canadian Bar Association in Montreal in September.

Beauty itself is but the sensible image of the infinite.—George Bancroft.

The Earl Of Birkenhead

(By J. A. STRAHAN)

The legal profession in England is divided into two sections—barristers and solicitors. Solicitors deal directly with the public; barristers only with solicitors. Solicitors do the "spade work" of the profession; and retain barristers to advise on difficult points and to conduct their cases in Court. The division resembles that between consultants and general practitioners in medicine, with this difference that in law the student must decide which class he will join before and not after he is qualified to practice.

Thus the work reserved for barristers is naturally small. Nevertheless the number of barristers is unnaturally large. Year after year, though they know that in the nature of things most of them cannot earn enough fees "to powder their wigs," the pick of English university men flock to the Bar, most of them to spend the best years of their life in unavailing toil and to end their toil in hopeless disappointment at the best or in personal degradation or premature death at the worst.

The flame which attracts these human moths to their destruction blazes in a career such as that of Frederick Edwin Smith, first Earl of Birkenhead. This is its short record. By the time "F. E."—as he was later to be known—was 18 years of age he was a student and scholar of Wadham College Oxford; by the time he was 24 he was fellow and lecturer of Merton College, Oxford; by the time he was 31 he was a rising junior at the Bar and a candidate for Parliament; by the time he was 36 he was a distinguished leader at the Bar and a member of Parliament; by the time he was 44 he was Attorney-General and a cabinet minister; and by the time he was 47 he was Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain and a peer of the realm. Now at 51 he is an earl and one of the well known public men in Europe. When any profession offers the possibility of such success it is idle to warn daring and ambitious youth of its possibility of failure unspeakable.

Just as medical men are divided into physicians and surgeons, so barristers are divided into lawyers and advocates. Advocates rarely are very learned and some of them who have won judgeship have reflected little lustre on the Bench. "F. E." was essentially an advocate; so when, on becoming Lord Chancellor, he took his seat as head of the Supreme Court of Appeal he was received without enthusiasm by that very learned, august and elderly tribunal. Yet before a year was over he dominated it, so much so that venerable law lords, not content with acquiescing in his judgments, have gone out of their way to praise them. Yet Lord Birkenhead is not a profoundly learned lawyer; he never had the pedestrain industry to become one; but he possesses a gift which in a Lord of Appeal is infinitely better, the gift of great receptivity and common sense. Cases which go as far as the House of Lords are invariably argued there by counsel very learned in the law. Every statute or case bearing on the point to be decided is sure to be cited; Lord Birkenhead absorbs all these; and when the time for decision comes applies them with a judgment which many more learned judges do not possess.

In his youth Disraeli made Vivian Gray disdain a lawyer's career because, as he said, he could not become a great lawyer without abandoning all hope of becoming a great man. This was really Disraeli's own view. The late Lord Bryce told me that in his old age Lord Beaconsfield said to come one that the only men, whom he had ever met who had attained the highest distinction in law and still retained their common sense in other matters, were Lord Lyndhurst and Lord Cairns. However, this may have been in the past it cannot be said to be so in the present. "F.E." like his brilliant contemporaries, Gordon Hewitt, now Lord Chief Justice of England, John Simon, lately Home Secretary, Douglas Hogg, now Attorney General, has been as distinguished in public as in legal business.. And he shows none of that abject deference to the law because it is the law, which too frequently marks men who have long devoted their minds to the service of Jurisprudence. Not a few good lawyers are like Lord Thurlow who when he was chaffed by a boon companion as to the contrast between his private morals and his public churchiness retorted indignantly, "I support the Church of England because it is the church by law established and I would do the same if Parliament established by law any other d——d church." Lord Birkenhead judges the law as he judges an appeal, on its merits. Not long ago he came to the conclusion that the law relating to land in England had now no merits. The result was his law of Property Act 1922, the most revolutionery reform that a law lord ever carried through the British legislature. That statue alone is sufficient to secure its author immortality in the annals of English jurisprudence.

In his private life Lord Birkenhead is genial and a little joyous: the fact that he had the nick-name of "F.E." shows he was popular with his fellow barristers. But in public life he has always had a sharp temper and a sharper tongue. That was all right so long as they were directed only against the opponents of his own party; but when, after a split of the Conservatives over the Lloyd George regime, he directed them against his own side, it was another matter. Now the bulk of the Conservatives regard him with deep aversion; and it is still on the lap of the gods whether Lord Birkenhead will be another Lord Beaconsfield, the outlaw or the leader of a set of politicians who dislike him and whom he despires.

MODERN CAPTAIN KIDD BOARDS RUM-CRAFT AND MAKES AWAY WITH LOOT

Motor Launch With "High Jackers" Plays Havoc with 72-ton Schooner—Helpless Crew Foced to load launch with Liquor

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 13—(United Press.)—Captain John Simms of the 72-ton schooner Dominion Packett reported today that his craft had been boarded by rum-pirates off Long Island August 5 and looted of $6,400 and two hundred cases of whiskey.

Six pirates in a powerful motor launch approached, ostensibly to buy liquor but once on board over-powered the Dominion Packets' crew of eight men, Simms said.

According to the story the leader of the pirate crew first came aboard and sampled the Dominion Packet's liquor as if he were a legitimate bootlegger. Evidently satisfied, he ordered several hundred cases which he said he would take with him.

Captain Simms turned to make out a receipt for payment for the consignment and the pirate covered him with two automatic pistols. At the same moment the marauding crew swarmed over the side and disarmed the schooner's crew, throwing their weapons into the sea. The only member of the crew to resist was the cook and he desisted after being fired upon.

The modern Captain Kidd then forced Simms to open the cash box and deliver the contents which amounted to $6,400. Standing idly as became real pirates, the raiders forced the schooner's crew to load the motor launch with two hundred cases of champagne and whiskey.

Three marauders remained on board to guard the remainder of their liquor treasure while the motor launch made one trip to Lond Island. Upon their return for a second the approach of a searchlight alarmed the free-booters and they leaped into their craft and shot away in the darkness.

Stripped of the venture's profits the crew of the schooner forced Captain Simms to return to Canada.

Millionaire Stevedore's Romance Is Bligated: $100,000 Gems Seized

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—Jewellery valued at $100,000 was taken from the baggage of Frank Auditore, known as "the millionaire stevedore,.. of Brooklyn, by customs officers who examined his luggage upon his arrival on the liner Homeric. The jewellery had not been declared, they said.

Mr. Auditore informed J. T. O'Connor, Deputy Collector of Customs, that the jewels had been purchased in this country prior to his departure abroad several months ago and that he had planned to present them to a Miss Morehead in England, his fiancee. When they met, however, they quarreled, he said, and the engagement was broken, so that he was bringing the gifts home. Miss Morehead, he added, returned to this country on the Leviathan and would corroborate his story.

The jewels, including a diamond drop valued at $50,000,were held by the customs officers and Mr. Auditore was ordered to appear before the law division at the Custom House to make his explanation.

According to the Customs officers, the United States Treasury Department had advices from England that Mr. Auditore was returning on the Homeric with some rare pieces of jewellery. He pleaded ignorance of the law, which demands a record of jewellery that is taken out of the country.

THE CRAZE FOR RECORDS

(Westminister Gazette.)

At Stamford Bridge, on Saturday, much was made of the fact that a new champion had run a hundred yards in one-tenth of a second less time than anybody had taken to run the distance before in England. Science, of course, can do wonderful things, nowadays, even in such a matter as the timing of races; but if we must accept the accuracy of such a claim as this, it is really worth making? It is difficult even to imagine the tenth part of a second, and the knowledge that one man is beating another and the excitement of seeing him do it are worth far more than the mental comparison between him and a prodecessor whose rate of speed was less by so minute a fraction. So long as we have good sport, and good sportsmanship, what do tenths of seconds matter.

Faithful Dog of President Refuses to be Comforted Over Loss of his Master

WASHINGTON, August 8.—(United Press.)—High potentates of government, religion and every other form of human endeavor have bowed down in grief over the death of President Harding, but Laddie Boy, Mr. Harding's dog, just sits in the cellar at the White House and mourns.

There will be ostentatious homage for a man to the degree of how far he rises in the world. But no matter who a man is, if he has the friendship of a dog, that dog will never stop mourning his death, and later will crawl to the man's grace himself to die.

And White House attaches feared that this will be the fate of the late President Harding's dog, if he ever actually realize his master is dead.

Wilson Jackson, a short jet-black negro, Laddie Boys' groom, came as take the nation's most famous dog for one of his daily walks. But Laddie Boy didn't want to go, he just lay on the floor, whimpering and rolling his eyes.

"Never saw him act so strange," said Jackson.

Laddie Boy has been expectantly waiting for his boss.

The White House is giving the late President's dog every attention, pending the arrival here of Mrs. Harding, who is expected to take him with her when she leaves for Marion, or wherever President Harding's widow will make her home.

OBITUARY

(To the Editor)

Dear Sir,—Please will you allow space in your paper to record the death of Mr. Sylvester Tuffin, who departed this life on July 26th at the ripe old age of 90 years and 5 months. He was ready when the call came, for he spent the greater part of his life in God's service.

For about 50 years he went to Cobb's Arm every Sunday, when circumstances would permit him, to conduct services, and during the winter seasons he would go once every week for week-night service. He braved many storms in order to get there, but God crowned his labor with success, for he had the joy of winning numbers of souls. During the last few years of his life old age preyed upon him, so that wesn't able to continue his work, but he still possessed a burning love for souls

Truly it may be said that he fought a good fight, and finished his course. Now he is gone to receive the crown of righteousness which was laid up for him.

He was laid to rest in the Methodist Cemetery by Rev. S. Morgan.

He leaves to mourn a wife, two sons and one daughter, and a large number of relatives and friends.

We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn;
We shall meet to part, no, never,
On that resurrection morn.

A FRIEND.

Coolidge's Childhood

"In John Coolidge, the father, Calvin and his sister Abbie had a very severe disciplinarian. He never scolded or upbraided them. He'd simply ask to have a thing done. It usually was done. When Calvin and Abbie would return from visits to their grandmother he would question them to find out whether they had spent their time profitably or in loafing or reading. Not that he didn't wish them to play, but if they said they were going to work at their grandmother's place, he wanted them to work.

"Abbie, whom I knew better than Calvin, told me once of going to her grandmother's to spend the afternoon. She wanted to read but thought the dutiful thing was to ask whether she could help in the house.

"'Yes,' said her grandmother, 'sweep the kitchen.' Abbie, not entirely pleased with the result, set to sweeping the kitchen. She finished in a very short time.

"'Now, what shall I do?' she asked.

"'Sweep the kitchen,' said her grandmother.

"'But I did,' said the child.

"'Sweep it again,' replied the old lady, without rancor, without anger, and without temper. The child this time was very careful to do her work in a manner that would bring a word commendation. Law and order were thus constantly drilled into the children.

A Courageous Little Sister

"When I was living with the Coolidges, it used to be Calvin's job to bring in the lumber for the fire every evening. Abbie brought in the kindling. That was part of their evening chores. It was expected of them that they would do it. I slept in the same room with Abbie. One winter night, after we had all gone to sleep and the house was dark and quiet, I heard the child get out on the cold floor and put on her clothes. It was a strange procedure. Like most children she was greatly afraid of the dark. She was ashamed of this fear but she couldn't control it.

"'Abbie,' I called, 'what are you doing?'

"'I forgot the kindling,' she answered, her teeth chattering. 'I've got to go out and get the kindling. I forgot it.'

"'Come back to bed, Abbie,' I told her. 'Your father will excuse you this time.'

"'Oh, no,' she said. 'You don't know father. I've got to go.'

"She went, out into the dark house where she got a light which showed her the way to the shed. It must have been a horrible ordeal for her but it was her job and she did it.

"Abbie was very much more of a gay young child than Calvin. I don't know whether Calvin approves of dancing today, but I have heard tell the story of Calvin and Abbie at the dance which may show how great was the influence of their father. Mr. John Coolidge always was set against dancing. It used to be a mystery to us why he always atended the dances we went to. He was the constable for a long time and I have heard it said that may have been the reason. He wanted to make certain the dances were proper. That was when he was young. When the children were older he would let them judge for themselves what was the proper course of action.

"An entertainment was given at the Notch and Abbie and Calvin went to it. Abbie, who was lively and popular had a very good time dancing. Calvin took his place against the wall and looked on, saying nothing. When they got home, Mr. Coolidge met them.

"'Calvin,' he asked, 'did you dance?'

"'No, sir.'

"'Abbie, did you dance?'

"'Yes, sis.'

"The man took out a quarter and gave it to Calvin. That's all there was to the whole episode. Not another word was ever said about it. But it fairly broke the heart of the girl who felt the reprimand strongly.

A Child With No Pets

"Did President Coolidge as a child have any pets?" Miss Dunbar was asked.

"Not that I can remember," she replied. "He had a horse and could ride it well, but he didn't make a pet of it. He could always be trusted to keep it well fed and in good condition but I don't believe he ever lavished any affection on an animal. He was not built that way.

"His father married a second time. His second wife was not a stepmother to the boy, she was a second mother. Calvin was very much attached to her. He felt that it was she who really made their old house a home. During the years that his mother was ill and afterward, there was always a housekeeper in the Coolidge house. His second mother gave him the first idea of what a home might be like. To his wife, however, must go all the credit of making of him a really social individual. It is she who has brought out what social qualities he possesses."

While Miss Dunbar was talking, the other woman in the house had brought in an oil lamp and placed it on the table between us. Ludlow has electricity but all the houses radiating from Ludlow still cling to the old oil lamp for their evening light. The soft glow cast a friendly radiance over the prim, immaculately clean room. The gray-haired figure at the window never stirred. The other woman whom Miss Dunbar called Elia sat sewing at a table in the next room. It was very quiet. In the pauses nothing was heard but the night noises of the field. It was then Miss Dunbar, her lean face eager and interested, drew closer and asked us for information.

"When did President Harding die, and what did he die of? I didn't know until today when a photographer came to take my picture that Calvin was president. It hasn't got into the weekly paper yet, you see."

"He Will Do The Right Thing"

We told her all we knew. She was vastly interested. Her last words before we left were these:

"Poor Calvin. He has large responsibilities. But he can be trusted to meet them. He will never do what the politicians expect him to do, but what his training has taught him is the right thing to do. He may do a thing that the public may think wrong but it will never be a petty thing. It will always be based on his confidence that it is the right thing."

H. T. Brown, we were told, had gone to the Academy with Calvin Coolidge. We called on Mr. Brown who lives in a fine old house in Ludlow. It was Sunday morning and he was just getting ready to drive his family to church so he didn't have much time. But he did tell us about the coming of Calvin to Plymouth Notch. Or at least his daughter told us after much urging on our part. The family wasn't quite certain at first that it was a proper story. Here it is:

"Grandmother Brown lived right near the Coolidges. There weren't many doctors up around Plymouth Notch. Very often when a baby came there'd be nobody around but an old neighbor. Grandmother Brown used to tell about some of the people who'd come to her for help. One night, the father of John Coolidge, Cal's grandfather came to our house. There were some men sitting about. He didn't say anything to anybody but just walked up to Grandmother Brown.

"'We're going to have an old fashioned quilting party at our place,' he said. 'I wonder if you'd come over.'

"Grandmother Brown went back with him. When they got there Cal had either already arrived or was on his way, I don't know which. Grandmother Brown stayed there for a time and made him feel at home.

"What was he like at the Academy?" we asked Mr. Brown.

"Very quiet," he replied. "He used to take after his Grandmother Coolidge. He lived a good deal with her and got her traits by environment as well as heredity. He had a dry, quiet humor that was very funny. He used to some over very often where I was boarding to get help with his algebra. I knew what he was coming for and he knew what he was coming for but if ever there was anybody in the house, he would come in quietly, take a chair and say out loud.

"Hello, Henry. I thought I'd come over and help you with your algebra." And then his blue eyes would twinkle. Most folks, however, never noticed his eyes. They just accepted what he said. If you want to hear more of Cal go across the road and visit Mrs. Pinney. Cal used to board at the home of her husband. They used to tell stories about him there."

Not Much of a Sparker

"He wasn't much of a spark when he was down at Ludlow. The girls couldn't get on to his silent ways. They thought he was queer. I've heard it said that one or two of them refused to go out with him. It would be kind of funny to know what they're thinking about themselves now.

"Mrs. Calvin Coolidge met him in Northampton. She was teacher in a deaf and dumb school, it is said. That makes it rather funny, doesn't it? Cal isn't deaf, not by a long shot, but occasionally people have suspected him of being dumb. He used to sit around with a group of boys and just say nothing. You could tell by the look in his eyes that he wasn't missing a thing but he never told you so. His ears and eyes were always on the job; his tongue rarely.

"Cal today is the same kind of a man that he was as a boy. He's not pompous and he's not proud. I went up the night that the news came over the wires that the President had died. His father had just finished administering the oath. The pen was still wet, the oil lamp was casting a glow over the strange gathering. A president had been sworn into office. I told John Coolidge to hang onto that pen and that lamp.

"There we were in the hills of Vermont, a president among us, with no national authority near, no police protection, no formality, no ceremony. Our job was to get him to Washington in the quickest time. We wanted a special train and the railroad would have been glad to give it to us. They suggested, however, that a private car on the regular train would be wiser and safer. The matter was put up to Cal. He said he'd have the regular train. It wasn't as fine or as quick as a special train might have been, but he didn't want the extra flurry and color. Not that he would have refused to go in anything fixed up with due regard for the President of the country if the train had been ready for him, but the thought of choosing to dress up for the occasion was obnoxious to him. It would have been too much like showing his feelings about the new job. Young Cal Coolidge never did that. Neither does Cal Coolidge, the man."

PEARLS FROM FISH SCALES

Humbic Herring Acquires a New Value

An American firm has opened at Peterhead a modest establishment for the collection of herring scales, to be utilised in the manufacture of artificial pearls.

The promoters of this new industry are handicapped, however, by the circumstance that the scales obtained from the curing and kippering sheds are damaged by the salt used in these processes, and that difficulty is experienced in collecting the scales in sufficient quantities.

Business men who want profitable results advertise in are always welcomed.

PULP AND PAPER SET NEW MARKS GALORE IN 1922

High Record of Tonnage in Both Classes is Reached

CAPITAL INVESTED

There are 104 Mills Capitalized at $381,000,000

(From The Financial Post)

MONTREAL.—Due to the greatly reduced prices received for the finished product, the value of the production of the pulp and paper industry in Canada in 1922 was still much below the high peak of $236,000,000 touched in 1920. The 1922 production had a value of $155,785,388, only a moderate increase from the 1921 figure of $151,033,165.

The amount of capital invested in the pulp and paper industry is still steadily growing, the preliminary report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics for 1922 indicates. Last year the figure w as$381,066,234, as compared with $379,812,571 in 1921 and during the year four new mills came into operation, including three pulp mills and one pulp and paper mill, which brought the total number of mills in Canada to 104, divided as follows: pulp mills, 43; pulp and paper mills, 28, and paper mills only 33. This figure of investment may be compared with the 1911 investment in the pulp and paper industry of Canada of $53,696,933.

New Records Established

Production of both pulp and paper broke all previous records in 1922, exceeding the high previous records in 1920, and going well above the 1921 figure. The increase in pulp production in 1922 over 1921 was 38 per cent, and in paper production 34 per cent. The increase in production was due largely to an increase of over one-third in the production of newsprint paper.

The quantity of pulp produced in Canada in 1922 totalled 2,150,251 tons valued at $84,947, 598. This broke all Canada in 1922 totalled 2,150, 251 tons records as to quantity, though not as to value. The figures of production for six years past are shown here.

	Quantity Tons	Value
1917	1,464,308	.....
1918	1,557,193	.....
1919	1,716,089	.....
1920	1,960,102	.....
1921	1,549,082	$78,338,278
1922	2,150,251	84,947,598

Paper Also New Record

The quantity of paper of all kinds produced in Canada in 1922 totalled 1,366,815 tons, also a new high record. The comparative figures for six years past are shown in this tabulation:

	Quantity Tons	Value
1922	1,366,815	107,085,766
1917	853,698	.....
1918	967,724	.....
1919	1,090,235	.....
1920	1,214,951	.....
1921	1,020,000	$108,676,952

In connection with the proposed embargo of pulpwood exports it is valuable to observe that a large percentage of Canadian pulpwood was made into the finished product in Canada in 1922 than in 1921. The total cut of pulpwood in Canado in 1922 was 3, 923,940 cords, valued at $50,785,361, and of this total 74.2 per cent was used in Canadian mills, the remaining 25.8 per cent, or 1,011,332 cords being exported unmanufactured to the United States. In 1921 the total cut was consumed in Canada and 33 per cent. exported.

The production of the various kinds of pulp and paper in Canada in 1922 was as follows:

	Production Tons
Wood Pulp—
Mechanical	1,241,185
Sulphite Bldd.	146,690
Sulphite Unbldd.	532,186
Sulphate	217,862

Total Value	$84,947,598
Paper—
Newsprint	1,081,364
Book and Writing	64,808
Boards	113,209

The Shell Game

Los Angeles Times: German Theatres do not care to accept money any more. In one of the best playhouses two eggs are accepted as payment for a good seat. This idea of collecting the eggs at the door also gives the performers more confidence. It is better than receiving them over the footlights.

An Illusory Wheat Surplus

New York Commercial: There is no surplus of wheat except in the minds of the theoretical faddists. Wheat is nourishing food. Millions of starving human beings die every year because enough food is not available for them. The farmers' problem and that of these starving millions is to put this so-called theoretical surplus to work. That is not a task for Gevrnment but an opportunity for business.

The Calm, Silent President

New York World: If Calvin Coolidge seems at first glance to be an enigma, it is because no one has studied his background. There is the key to his character. Quiet, self-contained, master of himself, he unquestionably is, with none of the facile arts of the professional politician. He has never been a grand-stander, not even in the Boston police strike. The country has no cause to worry that he is a man who urges change for the sake of change or disturbance for the sake of noise.

Canoe in Panama Canal

The first sailing craft to pass through the Panama Canal under the power of her own canvas was an eighteen-foot canoe, flying a mainsail and a jib, manned by Lieut. Miller, of the United States Navy. It started at Cristobal, on the Atlantic side of the cut, at 6 a.m. and docked on the Pacific at 8.45 p.m. The frail craft squeezed her way into the great locks alongside of huge steel freighters, was raised or lowered to the level of the next lock, and passed on to repeat the process until she had negotiated the entire lock system. The tolls were seventy-two cents.

Shocked Into Perception

Boston Transcript: The low ebb of the President's term is at the halfway point. When death cruelly struck President Harding he was at that point in his career. He was often criticized without being able to reply and time had given no one a perspective on what a great public servant he really was. Now that death has taken him away, his deeds in office have been publicly rehearsed and the people know how sound and thorough his actions were. But if only a thundering shock can make us see the light, if only death awakens us to great deeds and if we only see the truth by the fall of our Captain, then deplorable is our condition.

Church Figures For Canada

The last bulletin issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics deals with the religions of Canada, as recorded by the sixth (1921) Census. Of the total population 8,788,483, no less than 8,572,516, or 97.6 per cent are classified as belonging to some Christian denomination, or sect; 173,133, or 1.9 per cent., belong to non-Christian religions, including 15,190 Jews, 40,727 of Oriental religions, and 7,226 Pagans. Only one-half of one per cent. of the people of Canada profess themselves to be without religion. The Anglican Church in Canada is increasing more rapidly than any of the other great religious bodies, owing to emigration.

God Bless Our Home

We all know the motto: "God bless our home." Mottoes over the entrances to houses were common formerly in parts of England. Many of these were very quaint.

One of the best is over a door at Montacute, Somerset:—

Through this wide-opening gate
None comes too early, none returns too late.

On a porch at Beddington:—

To those who cross the threshold of this door
A hearty welcome, both to rich and poor;
One favor only we would bid you grant,
Feel you're at home, and ask for what you want.

The Vale of Education

Washington Post: People often wonder why the college graduate is not better equipped for the battle of life. Is not the answer to be found, at least in part, in the fact that he has been spoon-fed; that instead of being taught to be self-reliant he has been allowed to depend too much on the labor and exertions of others? He may, indeed, have acquired a certain amount of information, but information gained at second-hand rests on no sure foundation and soon slips away. Besides, it is not the information itself, but the mental discipline involved in digging it out and assimilating it, added to the methods employed for these purposes, that constitutes true education. Mere attendance at lectures is not sufficient.

At the height of a terrible thunderstorm a little golden-haired Two and a Half set up in her cot and asked what it was all about. "Thunder—big noise; lightning—big light," she was told, and she said, contentedly, "Yes." The crash of a light explosive shook the house, and she observed, with compassion, "Poor funder fell down." and when the lightning flared and flickered through the bed-room window, she demanded, "Why is sun jumping about?" Then the golden head lay heedlessly on the pillow, leaving the wrathful elements to their own devilment.

Is Labrador Gold Really False Alarm?

VISITOR TO LABRADOR RETURNS AND STAKES MORE GOLD CLAIMS

City Speculator Follows Suit And Question now Arises: "What's in the Wind?"

The Labrador gold rush has assumed a new aspect and many are now wondering whether the thing is really the false alarm it has come to be looked upon during recent weeks.

There is much to give strength to the impression that, while those who rushed to the Labrador, the past Spring, were given a 'steer," there is nevertheless "something doing" in the far North.

A well-known Conception Bay man, who went down to Stag Bay early in the Spring, returned to St. John's about a week ago and immediately took out a number of claims, not in the immediate vicinity of where the former claims have been staked. We understand that a City speculator, who keeps close tabs on the Dept. of Mines, has bought a number of claims adjoining those taken out by the afore mentioned Conception Bay man.

This new claims-taking outbreak has given rise to all sorts of conjectures and some go so far as to say that while gold in paying qualities was actually discovered on Labrador when it was said to have been found, the "suckers" were purposely put on the wrong trail for the purpose of reserving the likely territory for the original discoverers.

There may be nothing to this latest phase of the "gold boom," but it is noteworthy that just as the first bubble has burst, a man who spent the greater part of the summer on the grounds should come South and take out other claims.

COMMANDER HURD BACK

Commander Hurd, who has been visiting points in Conception Bay, in the interest of the New Maternity Hospital, returned to town Wednesday night.

He did special Services all day Sunday at the S.A. Citadel, and on Monday night gave a lecture on the Salvation Army around the World, at Bay Roberts.

On Tuesday he went to Hr. Grace, where at night he gave his lecture to quite a large audience. At the close of the lecture an elderly lady, who lost two sons in the war, came up to Commander Hurd, and contributed $100 dollars to furnish a bath room in the Hospital, in memory of those to heroes He was accompanied by his two sons, who contributed musical items in the different meetings.

Power Development in Newfoundland

British Capital Supplied And British Firms Get Orders for Equipment.

ST. JOHN.—An interesting account of conditions in Newfoundland and practically those in connection with the development of the great Humber River Pulp and paper proposition was obtained by the Telegraph-Journal from W. J. Hill, manager of the Canadian Fairbanks-Morse, Ltd., who returned a few days ago from the Ancient Colony.

Mr. Hill said that some 2,000 men were already at work at Humber River doing the preliminary construction work for the $16,000,000 development, undertaken by the big English firm, Armstrong-Whitworth, Ltd. The British Government has guaranteed $3,000,000 worth of the bonds for this enterprise and the remaining $8,000,000 is guaranteed by the Newfoundland Government. A water power development of 185,000 h.p., is being undertaken at Grand Lake, with a potential development of 235,000 h.p. at the phenomenally low cost of $60 a h.p., which means, on a twenty per cent. load factor, $12 per h.p. In fact, he said, it was planned to use electricity for practically all purposes, heating, cooking, lighting, as well as power purposes, so low was the cost.

Grand Lake, he explained, provided an immense resevoir and a canal nine miles long is being dug across country from Grand Lake to the power house, which is to be stationed at the head of Deer Lake. The power is to be carried by transmission wires down to Corner Brook, a distance of thirty miles, where the mills are to be located.

While the construction companies already employed on the job are all Canadian firms, it is impossible, he said, for either Canadian or American firms to obtain contracts for the supply of electrical or other equipment as English firms are engaged in practically every instance, probably because the British Government is guaranteeing half the issue of bonds. The Northern Construction Company, of Winnipeg, has the contract for the canal; William I. Bish, of Montreal, the dam, and Fraser, Brace & Co., of Montreal, the contract for the power house. It is understood that all other contracts have been secured by English firms.

Mr. Hill said that there were 6,000 000 cords of wood already available without any haulage to float down to the mill and about 20,000,000 cords on the adjacent properties.

OBITUARY

In the death of Mother Patrick Walsh, which occurred yesterday, at the Presentation Convent, Renews, that community has lost one of its most valued members.

Characterized throughout a long life of generous labor in the vineyard of the Lord, by gentleness and humility and simplicity, ardent zeal for souls and great earnestness and fidelity in the service of the Master, she lived and labored for the temporal and eternal welfare of those among whom her lot was cast; there are many former pupils of Mother Patrick who have borne to other lands the memory of the gentle life and teachings of their mistress and who remaining faithful to the principles instilled by her into their young hearts have been an honor to their Church and their "Alma Mater."

In Renews to-day there are sad hearts, because Mother Patrick is dead; she who was ever ready with the word of cheer or advice or encouragement, she whose very presence brought a balm to wounded hearts and comfort to sad ones, has gone, and the void which her death has occasioned will never be filled.

But we hope and pray that even today her pure soul is in God's blessed land in the home of his angels and in the companionship of His saints.

Mother Patrick was born in Kilkenney, Ireland some seventy years ago, and while still young, she came to Renews, where her brother John, the late Very Rev. John Walsh of revered memory, was Parish Priest; she soon felt the call to the higher life, and entered the convent there, where she was received and professed, and in which all the subsequent years of her religious life were spent and where she discharged for some years the duties of Superioress ably and satisfactorily.

Some weeks ago Mother Patrick's health began to fail, and realizing that the call out of this world was near at hand, she set herself to prepare for the final summons for which indeed, her whole life was a preparation. Holly and peacefully Mother Patrick laid down her burden, and with peace and perfect resignation to the Divine decree, said, "Thy will be done," going forth joyfully to reap the reward of a virtuous life. Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints, and a saintly life is generally followed by a saintly death; such was the passing of Mother Patrick Walsh. Peace and eternal rest to her soul.

BUDWORM PHENOMENA ARTHUR'S ANT WRITES

(Editor Evening Advocate)

Dear Sir—The members of the House of Assembly committed a "grave error of judgement" when they foolishly accepted the invitation of the Armstrong Whitworth Company without first consulting Mr. Arthur English.

No doubt, they now see their mistake and will hasten to make their apologies to this authority, and abjectly promise never to look upon the West Coast again.

In view of his letter to The News this morning, it would have been much better for the workmen of this ple than the Humber industry can island, if the government, instead of considering a Humber project, reserved that whole section of the West coast to our local political bud-worm. The sight of him sitting under the shade of our western forests, studying the antics of the other little bud-worms, would breathe much more confidence in the hearts of the people ever hope to do.

Yours truly,
ARTHUR'S ANT.

Britain's Antarctic Dominions

An Order in Council, gazetted recently, states that the coasts of the Ross Sea, with the adjacent islands and territories, are a British settlement within the meaning of the British Settlements Acts, 1887, and goes on to say that after the publication of the Order in the Government Gazette of New Zealand all that part of the British Dominions in the Antarctic Seas shall be named the Ross Dependency, and that the government of the Dependency shall be vested in the Governor-General of New Zealand.

The Ross Dependency is defined as "all the islands and territories between the 160th degree of East longitude and the 150th degree of West longitude, situated south of the 60th degree of South latitude."

This definition includes both coasts of the Ross Sea, the Ross Barrier, and the route by which Captain Scott reached the South Pole. British territory, by this Order in Council, presumably extends to the South Pole.

Regatta Committee Holds Final Meeting

MR. H. D. REID WILL BUILD NEW BOAT FOR NEXT YEAR'S REGATTA.

The final meeting of the Regatta Committee for 1923, was held last night in the T. A. Armoury. President Hiscock presided and there was a good attendance of members. The report of the Treasurer was read, and showed that the public responded very generously and after all outstanding accounts are paid a substantial balance remains over for next season.

President Hiscock announced that Mr. H. D. Reid had intimated to him, that he was building a new boat for next season's Regatta. This announcement was hailed with great satisfaction, and is but another evidence of the generosity of Mr. Reid, and the great interest he has taken in our annual Derby Day.

Mr. W. J. Higgins proposed a hearty vote of thanks to President Hiscock, Treasurer Janes and Secretary Ellis, for the manner in which they carried out their various duties, which contributed so largely to the success of the Regatta. Votes of thanks were also tendered Mr. J. P. Crotty convenor of the luncheon committee, Mr. C. W. Ryan, who was in charge of the allotments, and the Press for many favours. President Hiscock thanked the Committee for the support accorded him, and the public for their generous contributions after which the meeting adjourned to meet again in June 1924.

Today's Cables In Brief

LONDON, Aug. 25th—The Dublin correspondent of the Daily Express asserts he has it from a member of the Irish Parliament that Eamon de Valera made a secret offer to the government that if they would turn over to him all the Republican funds in the United States, amounting to £500,000, he would use them solely for "Constitutional agitation" in Ireland. The government refused to make terms of any kind with de Valera.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25—David Lloyd George, former Premier of Great Britain, will visit Canada and United States between September and November.

PARIS, Aug. 25—Newspapers regard Streseman's speech in Reichstag on Reparations as showing a change for the better in the situation.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 25—Governor Clifford Pinchot began today to crystalize plans by which he hopes to avert suspension of anthracite mining operations on September first.

CELEBRATES 20th BIRTHDAY

The many friends of Miss Sadie Martin, assembled at her home last night to celebrate her 20th birthday, where a very enjoyable evening was spent. The supper and toast was enjoyed to the full and dancing was then indulged in.

Among her many presents, was a presentation of a purse of gold. We heartily congratulate Miss Martin on her 20th birthday and hope she will live to see and enjoy many.

The Engineer in Charge

Our guide over the Deer Lake operations was Mr. Fred Eger. He is the engineer in charge, and it did not take us long to realize that we were in the hands of a gentleman who thoroughly understands his job. He is a Norwegian by birth, 30 years old, and only arrived in this country from the London office of the Armstrong Whitworth Co, three weeks ago. The impression one forms at first blush of Mr. Egers is more than confirmed ere one bids him good-bye. Every detail of the construction work in connection with this most important branch of the companies activities he has at his finger-tips. From him and other officials we heard nothing but praise for the Newfoundlanders engaged and for the satisfactory manner in which the contractors were getting along with the work.

As the logs are driven thru the canal into the forebay, an oval shute three-quarters of a mile long, lined with metal, receives them in rotation, or one at a time, and in this manner the raw wood, as it comes from the forest, is carried with dispatch to the waters of the lake below, where it is boomed, or placed in rafts and towed twenty miles to the lower Humber where the river rises, at the foot of Deer Lake, driven ten miles to Corned Brook, and assembled in a natural harbor ready to be taken up into the slash mills.

Around Deer Lake, at the power house, the pipe line, and the rock quarries, something like five hundred and fifty men are employed. The canal takes four hundred more laborers and skilled help; in the Grank Lake section, working on the main dam construction, carpenters, machine workers, blacksmiths, and laborers shifting sand and rock and cleaning out the river bed, five hundred men are engaged; while the balance of five hundred and fifty men to make up a total of two thousand were working at Corner Brook preparing the foundation for the mill buildings, on the town site, etc. We would like to see the number of laborers augmented. Every day counts; it may indeed prove a false economy to pare down the labor requirements to the actual present needs. What might seem an extravagant labor equipment, may in the long run turn out to be money well spent; but to those who are working,

"I sing their praise; their hardy hands
Have made the commerce of all lands."

At Deer Lake, a well-equipped hospital has been erected and is in charge of Dr. Wilson and a trained nurse. Temporary illness or minor injuries are attended to at small hospitals established in the various sections. At Corner Brook, the emergency hospital containing two or three beds, is in charge of A. Hammond, a first-aid man. Mr. Martin Gladney, a well-known St. John's druggist fills a similar position very satisfactorily at the dam site. Taking into consideration the number of men employed, accidents have been very few, and the general health of the men was reported excellent. This may be attributed to the natural physical condition of the sites selected for housing the employees, as well as to a thorough system of inspection carried out by the Company with the object in view of maintaining and enforcing sanitary regulations.

Leaving Deer Lake, we travel-east along the main line of railway to the head of Glide Brook Lake. A temporary railway station is here erected, for it is at this point that the railway line detours to the north and east toward the main dam. This change in the road bed becomes necessary because the damming of Grand Lake will cause the waters thereof to flood a considerable area and make it impossible to travel over the present railway line. This new line, in all, is estimated at ten miles in length. It branches off near the head of Glide Brook Lake. The distance to the main dam from the railway line at this point is about three and a half miles.

The Canal

This immense body of Grand Lake water when the permanent dam is completed will be diverted to the canal, which will carry the water ten miles across country. This waterway will be six miles long and one hundred and twentyfive feet wide at the bottom. There are two sections to the canal, one leading from the head waters into Glide Brook Lake, and a western section, which carries the flow of water to the forebay. In each section two million cubic yards of excavation will have to be made. To do this work, two drag lines, or Bycrus revolving shovels, will be used. The total weight of one of these shovels is two hundred and forty tons. The heaviest piece of this labor-saver, which was shipped from Canada and in three weeks transported to its present location, set up for work, beginning this week, was thirty tons. A 240-h.p. engine will be required to operate this shovel, which, working two shifts, can lift five thousand cubic feet of earth and rock all as it comes, in the twenty-four hours. The machine generates its own electric light, so that once started, barring accidents, it will be working day and night while weather conditions permit.

The Dam

A diagramatic plan of the canal line, recently prepared, gives Grand Lake an area of water of one hundred and eighty square miles; main dam (concrete) 77 feet high and 1100 feet which, when completed, will, in the opinion of those competent to judge, be one of the best of its kind in the world, furnishes the visitor with a faint conception of the water power the great Grand Lake is capable of providing. The base will be about one hundred and twenty feet, tapering as it rises to the top, which is to furnish a roadbed for the railway to pass over. The supports, or piers to carry the weight, 77 ft. in height and built at intervals of 15 ft. across the river, will be of re-inforced concrete, held together by steel tie-rods. Work on the erection on these concrete pillars has now commenced. This fall, when work is suspended, these piers will be secured to stand the spring freshets as the waters come out of Grand Lake. The stop logs will be taken from the temporary dam, and Junction Brook will again be flooded. In the spring, after the freshets are over, these logs will be replaced and Junction Brook dried out again. The work of completing the dam will then be rushed night and day, as if it is not completed in four or five months the lake will overflow the crib dam and a set-back of a year or more in the completion of the main dam would be the result. However, everything points to success in finishing the main dam ere November, 1924. Good luck seems to follow the company. The site chosen to put the dam across could not be better, because on either side, the solid rock for shore connections will take but little clearing to prepare it for setting concrete. The bottom of the river is now practically ready for commencing the building of the sixty or seventy piers upon which the dam covering is to rest.

Good-bye to Mr. Alexander

At 6 p.m. on Tuesday evening, we are back again to Grand Lake station. Here the party is summoned to the rear of the train for the purpose of saying good-bye to Mr. Alexander who has proven such a genial host the past two days. In a brief speech, Premier Warren extended thanks on behalf of all present to the Armstrong Whitworth representative for the thoughtful invitation which made possible this trip, and the regal manner in which we have been entertained. A real service had been done Newfoundland by thus enabling the colony's public men to see for themselves what this great epoch-making step towards developing the natural resources of Newfoundland really means. We were going home delighted with what we had seen, and thoroughly satisfied that a new era was about to begin for Newfoundland.

Mr. Alexander, in his reply, said he was moved to request the representatives of the people of Newfoundland to pay a visit to the works so that they might get from personal touch, a knowledge of the progress being made, and the extent of the enterprise recently embarked upon, which could not otherwise be obtained. He hoped, as various stages of the construction was proceeded with, that similar trips would be made by the people's representatives. At the conclusion of Mr. Alexander's happy and encouraging remarks, Prime Minister Warren called for three cheers for Mr. Alexander and his wife, which were given in thorough-going Newfoundland fashion.

Sir Patrick McGrath left us here, and he returned to Corner Brook to await the west-bound express.

Grand Falls

While at Curling, a cordial invitation was received by Premier Warren from A. E. Harris, Esq., manager at Grand Falls, inviting himself and colleagues to spend a day at Grand Falls on their return trip from the Humber. This, it was pointed out, would afford the Assembly members, who had just viewed a great paper-making industry in its embryo stage, to see for themselves, at Grand Falls, the manufacturing processes by which the raw material is converted into paper; a town which in many respects, outrivals the capital city, particularly so in comfort and conveniences provided for the workman; to become personally acquainted with the staff, and to witness the many activities to which those responsible for the Grand Falls enterprise are now devoting their energy and capital.

The Governor a Visitor

The Governor and Lady Allardyce were visiting Grand Falls, the St. St. John's athletes were also encamped in the paper-town, playing a series of games. Therefore it was a good time to take in the sights, but the weather man must have been laying for us on our return, for the party woke up on Wednesday morning to a southerly rain blizzard. At 9 a.m. Manager Harris with other officials, called on the Premier, Sir Michael Cashin, Mr. Higgins, K.C., and other members, and extended a cordial welcome. Mr. Ken Goodyear had his motor service on hand to take the visitors to the mills. Nearly three hours were occupied in a tour of inspection of the mills. Under competent guides, the party was split up, and shown all over the plant. We saw the logs in every stage of manufacture, from the time they are taken from the waters of the Exploits, until they are converted into newsprint, some of which is being used to carry to The Advocate read-this message of industrial hope, while hundreds of tons are shipped annually to London and elsewhere in the British Isles, to feed the presses of the great dailies of the Mother Country.

Grand Falls is still forging ahead. The idea to build a paper-manufacturing plant at Bishop's Falls in addition to the Pulp Mills now working there, has been temporarily abandoned and instead of an extension to the machine rooms at Grand Falls is being made. Work on this additional building is now in progress and is being pushed to completion. Two more machines will be installed, which will increase the daily output of paper one hundred tons per day. Two hundred tons per day is the present output. The idea it to construct a pipe line from Grand Falls to Bishop's Falls, a distance of 9 miles. Through this pipe line, the pulp-juice—if we may so call it, for want of a more technically descriptive term—in a consistency little thicker than water, will be fed by porce-pumps to the Grand Falls mills, where it will be concentrated, run on the paper machines and made into paper.

Manager Entertains Party

The party was hospitably entertained at luncheon at the Log House by Manager Harris, Vincent Jones, Esq., Mr. Cooper and others. After a motor ride over the town, taken by those who cared to brave the elements, return was made to the Log House for afternoon tea.

The Erin House

Grand Falls prides itself, and justly so, on several fine hotels. Amongst those may be mentioned the Erin House, presided over by Mrs. Frank Ireland. The thanks of the party are due and cordially extended to her for her hospitality. Mrs. Ireland gave us open-house, placing her music room at the disposal of the visitors. Mr. Karl Trapnell, who "happened to be there," made pleasant what might otherwise have proved a dull hour, and in this feast of song and music he was ably assisted by Mr. P. F. Moore, M.H.A., and Mr. T. Clouter of The Advocate.

The all-aboard signal at Grand Falls station was sounded at 6 p.m. and we were "off again, gone again," leaving behind pleasant memories of the hospitality extended at Grand Falls. At Bishop's Falls a stop was made for a change of engines. Everything points to prosperous times in this section. The members for Trinity, and Bonavista met a number of their constituents here. Our next stop was at Norris' Arm, where we have a delay of one and a half hours, waiting for sailing orders.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER IX.

A swift scrutiny of the private office convinced her that they were alone; so she advanced to the desk and laid upon it the letter she had addressed to Donald McKaye.

"I would be grateful, Mr. Daney, if you would see that Mr. Donald McKaye receives this letter when he comes in from the woods to-night," she replied. Daney was frankly amazed.

"Bless my soul," he blurted, "why do you entrust me with it? Would it not have been far simpler to have mailed it?"

"Not at all, Mr. Daney. In the first place, the necessity for writing it only developed an hour ago, and in order to be quite certain Mr. McKaye would receive it in the evening, I would have had to place a special delivery stamp upon it. I did not have a special delivery stamp; so, in order to get one, I would have had to go to the post-office and buy it. And the instant I did that, the girl on duty at the stamp window would have gone to the mail-chute to get the letter and read the address. So I concluded it would be far more safe to entrust my letter to you. Moreover," she added, "I save ten cents."

"I am very greatly obliged to you, Nan," Daney answered soberly. "You did exactly right," Had she conferred upon him a distinct personal favor, his expression of obligation could not have been more sincere.

He took a large envelope of the Tyee Lumber Company, wrote Donald's name upon it, enclosed Nan's letter in this large envelope, and sealed it with a mighty blow of his fist. "Now then," he declared, "what people don't know will not trouble them. After you go, I'll place this envelope in Don's mail box in the outer office. I think we understand each other," he added shrewdly.

"I think we do, Mr. Daney."

"Splendid fellow, yound Donald! Thundering fine boy!"

"I agree with you, Mr. Daney. If Donald has a fault, it is his excessive democracy and loyalty to his friends. Thank you so much, Mr. Daney. Good afternoon."

"Not at all—not at all! All this is quite confidential, of course, otherwise you would not be here." He bowed her to the door, opened it for her, and bowed again as she passed him. When she had gone, he summoned the young lady whom Nan addressed as "Hetty."

"Miss Fairchild," he said, " 'phone the local sales office and tell them to deliver a load of firewood to the Brent house at the Sawdust Pile."

Two minutes later, the entire office force knew that Nan Brent had called to order a load of fire-wood, and once more the world sagged into the doldrums.

CHAPTER XI.

AT SIX O'CLOCK Donald came in from the logging camp. Daney made it his business to be in the outer office when his superior took his mail from his box, and, watching narrowly, thought he observed a frown on the young laird's face as he read Nan Brent's letter. Immediately he took refuge in his private office, to which he was followed almost immediately by Donald.

"That's your handwriting, Mr. Daney," he said, thrusting the large envelope under Daney's nose. "Another letter in a smaller envelope was enclosed in this large one. You knew, of course, who wrote it."

"Miss Brent brought it personally."

Donald started slightly. He was amazed.

"I take it," he continued, after a slight pause, "that it was entirely your idea to conceal from the office force the fact that Miss Brent had written me this letter."

"It was, Don."

"I am at a loss to know why you took such a precaution." Donald's eyes met Daney's in frank suspicion; the latter thought he detected some slight anger in the younger man's bearing.

"I can enlighten you, Don. Miss Brent was at some pains to conceal the fact that she had written you a letter; she brought it to me to be handed to you, rather than run the risk of discovery by dropping it in the post office for special delivery. Some of the girls in our office went to school with Nan Brent and might recognize her handwriting if they saw the envelope. I saw Hetty Fairchild looking over your letters rather interestedly the other day, when she was sorting the mail and putting it in the boxes."

The entire procedure appears to me to be peculiar and wholly unnecessary. However, I'm obliged to you Mr. Daney, for acceding so thoroughly to Nan's apparent wishes." He frowned as he tore the envelope into shreds and dropped them in Daney's waste-basket. "I'm afraid some young women around this plant are going to lose their jobs unless they restrain their curiosity and their tongues," he added.

"I thought I was still general manager," Daney reminded him, gently. "Hiring and firing have always been my peculiar prerogatives."

"Forgive me, Mr. Daney. They shall continue to be." The young laird grinned at the rebuke; Daney smiled back at him, and the somewhat charged atmosphere cleared instantly.

"By the way, Donald, your father is in town. He's going up to Seattle to-night on the seven-ten train. Your mother and the girls left earlier in the week. He's dining at the hotel and wishes you could join him there. He figured that by the time you could reach The Dreamerie, shave, bathe, and dress, it would be too late to have dinner with him there and still allow him time to catch his train."

"How does idleness sit on my parent, Mr. Daney?"

"Not very well, I fear. He shoots and fishes and takes long walks with the dogs; he was out twice in your sloop this week. I think he and your mother and the girls plan a trip to Honolulu shortly."

"Good!" Donald yawned and stretched his big body. "I've lost eight pounds on this chopping job," he declared, "and I thought I hadn't an ounce of fat on me. Zounds, I'm sore! But I'm to have an easy job next week. I'm to patrol the skid-roads with a grease-can. That wood boss is certainly running me ragged."

"Well, your innings will come later," Daney smiled.

At the mill office, Donald washed, and then strolled over to the hotel to meet his father. Old Hector grinned as Donald, in woolen shirt, mackinaw, courduroy trousers, and half-boots came into the little lobby, for in his son he saw a replica of himself thirty years agone."

"Hello, dad!" Donald greeted him.

"Hello yourself!"

The father, in great humor, joined his son, and they proceeded to dine, chaffing each other good-naturedly the while, and occasionally exchanging pleasantries with their neighbors at adjoining tables. The Laird was in excellent spirits, a condition which his interview with Nan that afternoon had tended to bring about; during the period that had elapsed between his subsequent doubts and his meeting with his son, he had finally decided that the entire matter was a mare's nest and had dismissed it from his mind.

After dinner, they walked down to the railroad station together. Donald carrying his father's bag. While The Laird was at the ticket window purchasing his transportation, his son walked over to a baggage-truck to rest the bag upon it. As the bag landed with a thud, a man who had been seated on the truck with his back toward Donald glanced over his shoulder in a leisurely way, and, in that glance, the latter recognized one of the Greeks he had evicted from the Sawdust Pile—the same man who had thrown a beer-bottle at him the day he motored through Darrow.

"What are you doing in Port Agnew?" Donald demanded.

To his query, the fellow replied profanely that this was none of his interrogator's affair.

"Well, it is some of my affair," the new boss of Tyee replied. "I have a crow to pluck with you anyhow, and I'm going to pluck it now." He grasped the Greek by the collar and jerked him backward until the man lay flat on his back across the baggage truck; then, with his horny left hand, Donald slapped the sullen face vigorously, jerked the fellow to his feet, faced him in the direction of Darrow, and, with a vigorous kick started him on his way. "That's for throwing beer bottles!" he called after the man. "And hereafter you keep out of port Agnew. Your kind are not welcome here."

The Greek departed into the night cursing, while The Laird, still at the ticket window, glanced interestedly from his son to the Greek and then back to Donald.

"What's the idea, son?" he demanded.

"A recent dweller on the Sawdust Pile," his son replied easily. "He declared war on me, so, naturally, he comes into my territory at his own risk. That scum from Darrow must keep out of our town, dad, and force is the only argument they can understand. Daney gave them a free hand and spoiled them, but I'm going to teach them who's boss around here now. Besides, I owe that fellow a poke. He insulted Nan Brent. There would have been a bill for repairs on the scoundrel if I had caught him the day I drove his gang off the Sawdust Pile."

Black Postage Stamps

Black two-cent postage stamps will be issued by the Post Office Department as a token of the nation's mourning and respect for the late President Harding.

Announcement of this was made today by Postmaster General New, following a conference with President Coolidge. The stamps will be similar in size to those in use at present, but will bear a likeness of the late President.

They will be ready for general distribution in several weeks, and the issue will continue for an indefinite period. They will not in any way affect the validity of the existing two-cent stamps, which will be continued in use at the same time.

Railway Coal.

Railroads of the United States had 11,707,910 tons of coal in storage on August 1, according to the fourth report on the efficiency of the railroads made by the American Railway Association. This huge coal supply indicates, the association says, that satisfactory progress is being made in regard to the coal storage.

The original plan of the American Railway Association, made on April 5, this year, provided that the coal stores by the railroads should be sufficient on September 1 for their needs during the peak of the freight traffic this fall.

It is pointed out that a total of 15,009,872 tons of coal have been dumped at lake ports during 1923, which is a new high record.

Dawson City Celebrates.

On a recent gala day gold nuggests and monster cabbages, gold dust in heaps and giant pumping, bar silver and wheat heads nodding on their stalks ranged side by side in the exhibition of Yukon products held at Dawson to celebrate the 27th. anniversary of the discovery of the Klondyke.

There were cabbages sixteen inches in diameter and weighing thirty pounds. There were pumpkins as big as watermelons, potatoes as big as a man's head, and proud specimens of nearly every kind of garden truck. The wheat and oats and barley exhibits bore witness to the fertility of the Yukon soil and the warmth of the brief summer season, and competed for attention with the precious metals which are the chief product of Canada's most northern civilization.

Hundreds of people participated in the parade which preceded the celebration and a public holiday was declared.

British Naval Power.

It is stated in authoritative naval circles that Great Britain's two new battleships, the Nelson and Rodney, will each mount nine 16-inch guns, which will be carried in triple turrets a new form of mounting. Each of these giant guns will be capable of hurling a shell weighing approximately 2,500 pounds.

In the American and Japanese navies there are ships mounting guns of 16-inch calibre, but the Nelson and Rodney will form a unique type because they will carry nine guns of this size instead of eight mounted in foreign warships. The reason for introducing the triple turret is the necessity for economizing in weight, owing to the restricted displacement laid down in the terms of the Washington agreement.

Another feature of the new battleships will be special anti-flash arrangements, which are a closely guarded secret. They will embody the lessons of Jutland, where some British ships were sunk owing to shell flashes penetrating to the magazines.

Grandest Grand.

The most magnificient grand piano in the world has just been sold at auction in London, England, with the other contents of a Lord Foley's house. The piano was built for an earlier holder of the Foley title by George Henry Blake, of London, and has a case of satinwood wonderfully inlaid with ivory and ornamental woods. The inlay is in groups which comprise classical figures and musical trophies, landscape panels, arabesque foliage, and masks.

Robert The Bruce.

A little more than a century ago three workmen digging in Dunfermline Abbey, Scotland, came upon a vault containing a body covered with cloth of gold under folds of sheet lead. The breastbone was found sawn asunder. It was the body of King Robert the Bruce, whose dying request to have his heart carried to the Holy Land had been observed by the Douglas. There are 19 royal graves in Dunfermline Abbey, and but for the murder of James I. at Perth, which caused the removal of the Court to Edinburgh, Dunfermline might never have yielded place to Holyrood.

Bird Monument.

Salt Lake City has a monument erected to a flock of gulls. About 1850 the Mormon settlers were losing their crops through a plague of grass hoppers and were in danger of starvation, for they were 1,000 miles from civilization. They had public prayer and in answer to their appeals there appeared a great flock of sea-gulls, which proceeded a great flock of pests, and it was not until the "enemy" had been completely annihilated that the gulls took to their wings and disappeared. The monument commemorating the event was unveiled in 1913.

De Valera's Son Into Irish Fight

Twelve-Year-Old Lad Takes Up Shillelagh.

DUBLIN, August 20. — (United News.)—Vivian de Valera, twelve-year-old son of "President" De Valera, has picked up the shillelagh to carry on the battle for an Irish Republic that has been the life-long fight for his father, now imprisoned in Mount Joy gaol here.

Several thousand Sinn Fein supporters had gathered at a Republican demonstration in O'Connell Street on Sunday, when the slim, excited boy stepped out on the platform.

A hurricane of cheers greeted his appearance as, taut and white-faced, he stepped forward to speak.

"I have come to speak in the place of my father, who cannot be present, as the servants of the foreigner have imprisoned him in Mount Joy gaol," he cried. "I do not know what they will do with father, but although they put us to death they cannot kill the spirit of the freedom of Ireland.

"That spirit will live. Ireland will be free from sea to sea, despite the foreigners and the servants of foreigners."

Young Erskine Childers, whose English father, an ardent Republican, was executed by the Free State Government, accompanied Vivian to the platform, where Mrs. Tom Clark, whose husband was executed in 1916, presided.

Determined to scotch Republicans, the Free State Government is planning to arrest Patrick Rutledge, acting president of Ireland, appointed by De Valera to take his place.

Rutledge has issued a threatening proclamation on De Valera's arrest.

A number of prominent Irish leaders telegraphed Pope Pius XI urging intervention to obtain the utmost clemency for the captive leader.

Cardinal Gasparri replied, stating that the Vatican was unable to intervene with the British Government in the way that De Valera's friends wished.

Has Important Mission

MONTREAL, Aug. 13—Just before sailing for England Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, a member of the British Columbia Legislature was interviewed. She said that one of the happiest moments of her life was the announcement of a young Finnish mother "Ve got one baby girl at our house and we name him vor you—Mary Ellen Ralph Smith Johanessen."

Termed the "mother" of the Minimum Wage Bill for Women and Girls, the Mothers' Pension Bill and other B.C. provincial enactments designed to better the condition of women and girls, Mrs. Smith has now accepted a commission from the Dominion Government to visit the British Isles and various European countries as a special immigration agent.

SITUATION IN MOROCCO IS SERIOUS

LONDON, Aug. 25—Under Tangier and other date lines London newspapers to-day print reports of Spanish losses and difficulties in Morocco. The Tangier correspondent of the Daily Express quotes a Raffian communication on the fighting previous to the relief of Tifaruin as saying that the rebels counted 739 Spanish dead while it took them two days to remove the enemy's wounded. Abdelkrim, the rebel leader, a week ago summoned 100,000 Riffians to arms and threatened to confiscate goods and lands of all who disobeyed the call. The French zone and Tangier itself is practically denuded of Riffians in consequence of the general response to the summons. Abdelkrim has issued a manifesto, the despatch adds, declaring the Treaty of Algericas must go the same way as the Treaty of Sevres, for his people are capable of governing themselves, and like the Turks are prepared to prove they are able to support their determination.

CONVICT STARTS CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL FOR JAILS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 25—Butler R. Storke, 31, a convicted forger, donned civilian clothes this morning preparatory to stepping out of the Ohio penitentiary into a position that will pay him $250 per month. Sentenced to serve two years, Storke, after 21 months has been granted conditional parole. The condition is that he follow the work he instituted among his fellow prisoners and in which more than 1,800 are now interested. Storke, a college graduate and former army captain, is the originator of the correspondence school in which penitentiary convicts have been given an opportunity to educate themselves.

Rioting In India

SIMIA, India, Aug. 26—Serious riots, resulting in a number of casualties and much property destruction, occurred on Friday at Saharanpur and Gonda, in the United Provinces at the close of Muharram religious celebrations. The police quelled the riders by the use of firearms and the situation was brought under control.

Concert on The Silvia

SUBSTANTIAL SUM RAISED FOR THE FURNISHINGS OF THE NEW MATERNITY HOSPITAL

In addition to thinking of the widows and orphans of departed sailors and fishermen, the officers and passengers of the good ship S. S. Silvia showed their generosity and public spirit by starting a fund for the purpose of furnishing a private room in the new Maternity Hospital.

In this connection a concert has been held during each of the last three trips of the ship, and the splendid sum of one hundred and forty-six dollars and fifty cents—$146.50—has already been handed to Commandant Hurd for this purpose.

The concert last trip netted the sum of $62.48, and it is expected that next trip will see the $200 mark which is the amount necessary for furnishing a private room.

Commandant Hurd, who is the Financial representative, expresses warm appreciation of the work of Capt. Mitchell, who has been the prime mover in this effort, not forgetting the splendid assistance of the Purser.

Commandant Hurd has made many voyages with Capt. Mitchell and always found him warmly interested in all efforts for the betterment of social conditions of which the action in question is an example.

It is understood that the officers of the Rosalind intend starting an effort for the same worthy object, and it goes without saying that Capt. James and his associates will not be a whit behind their comrades on the sister ship.

Republican Is Shot By Troops

BELFAST, Aug. 26—Edward Kelly, one of the Republicians whom the Free State authorities have been hunting, was shot and critically injured by the Government troops here to-day in Ballybay District of County Monaghan. Kelly and a companion who was captured unwounded, are said to have been engaged in posting Republican literature. The authorities declared that a large quantity of such literature, including documents from Aitkin, the Republican Chief of Staff were found in their possession.

Toronto Exhibition Opened

TORONTO, Aug. 26—The Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto's Big Annual Fair was opened for its forty-fifth annual showing yesterday, when Dr. F. C. Banting, discoverer of diabetes insulin who became internationally famous during the year since the last Fair, pressed the switch button that officially opened the exhibition to the public to-day. It was warriors' day according to the programme and returned soldiers with their dependents were the guests of the directorate. Officials are aiming at an attendance of a million and a half people during the two weeks of the Fair this year.

STRASEMANN'S REPARATIONS STATEMENT IS SATISFACTORY

BERLIN, Aug. 25—Approval of Chancellor Stressman's latest expression on the reparations issue is voiced to-day by the press of all parties. The Nationalist editors lay stress upon the emphatic manner in which the Chancellor rejected any compromise with regard to Germany's sovereignty over the Rhineland, while Socialist organs think the Chancellor displayed laudable sincerity in dealing with the issue. Chancellor Stressmans speech, says the Deutzche Allemeine Keitung, the organ of Hugo Stinnes, marks a distinct progress in that it makes clear to the world points of difference existing in the way Germany and France look at the question. It goes straight to the crux of the whole issue, says the newspaper. Does France want reparations or the Ruhe. Germany has spaken and France now has the floor.

Dr. Frank Crane Returns From Orient

WILL VISIT MONTREAL

VANCOUVER, August 15.—The Japanese are the finest type of gentlemen in the world, according to Dr. Frank Crane, the noted American journalist, who arrived here Monday, on the Canadian Pacific S.S. Empress of Canada, after spending the past three months in the Orient. The Chinese, in his opinion, are the most naturally remocratic people in the universe and in spite of the present turmoil, which he considers only superficial, he is fully convinced, after a careful survey of the country, that China is moving forward.

Banditry, he declares, is only the Chinese manner of going on strike. The bandits themselves are not criminals; they are only men out of jobs, and their banditry does not mean anarchy in China any more than strikes spell anarchy in New York.

Dr. Crane, who is accompanied by Mrs. Crane, his daughter, Miss Daphne Crane, also a journalist, is on H. H. Crane, also a journalist, is on the way to Montreal and will arrive in New York next Sunday.

While in the Orient, he wrote 150 articles and completed his book, "Why I am a Christian."

FREE STATE ELECTIONS ON TODAY

DUBLIN, Aug. 26—The frist general election in the Irish Free State, which will be held to-morrow will mark the close of a political contest that has been unexpectedly quiet and peaceful the only exctiing feature has been the arrest on August 15th of DeValera, the Republican leader who seeks to overthrow the Free State and the Treaty with Britain by which the Free State came into being. The prisoner's whereabouts has been kept a secret, but he is a candidate in Clare. The party strength on the formation of the Provisional Government in September 1922 was Pro-Treaty, 58; Anti-Treaty, 36; Labor, 17; Independent, 17; William T. Cosgrave was elected President of the Free State, eSptember 9th, 1922.

INVITATIONS TO MEET GOV. PINCHOT ARE ACCEPTED

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 25—Invitations to meet him in Harrisburg next Monday at noon were sent by Governor Pinchot to-day to four representatives of the anthracite miners, and four members of the operators' policy committee, who have been taking part in recent negotiations as the first step in his efforts to adjust the differences between the two factions, and avert suspension of the mines on September first. The invitations will be accepted.

Leprosy Not Incurable

The lepers in the world are estimated by Sir Leonard Rogers to number at least three million, but hope is being brought to many by the recent effectiveness as a remedy of chaulmoogra oil and its derivatives. Of the lepers segregated near Honolulu and on Molokai Island, 242 have been released since 1912 as no menace to the public with the requirement that they report at intervals for examination. Of those released, 31 have relapsed, and 7 have been again paroled. As early treatment gives most promise, new cases are being more promptly reported, thus both adding to the prospect of cure and lessening the risk of further spread of infection.

C. L. B. CADETS

Avalon Battalion paraded as usual Thursday night at 7.45. The Colonel was in command and the following officers were present:—Major H. A. Outerbridge, M.B.E., Lieuts. Fred Reid, W. A. Motty, R. G. Ash, M. Job Taylor, Captains P. B. Rendell and F. Burden and Major Williams (in mufti.) The lads were given the usual routine drill. Sergt. Major Best had charge of Company instruction and the Recruits were also actively engaged under their officers.

The Armoury was visited during the evening by Mr. W. E. Baldwin and his son, Master Dick Baldwin of Montreal, who were very pleased to see the Brigade at work and their magnificent Armoury, as the C.L.B. has nothing like it in the Dominion of Canada.

After the close of parade in the Officers' Mess, Captain Joseph Snow was the principle in a very pleasing event when his brother officers thru Lieut M. Job Taylor, presented him with a keepsake in the shape of a set of military brushes. Captain Snow has been a very hard worker for many years in the Brigade, having enlisted as a private and by merit won his commission as Captain—not only of his Brigade, but his commission from the King, as a Captain of the Royal Nfld. Regiment. All ranks are sorry Captain Joe is going and none regrets the parting more than himself, and he hopes the day is not far distant when he will be back again in his old Brigade. Captain Snow leaves for Boston with his father and brother by the S. S. Digby on Tuesday and many of the Brigade will be down to bid him "Au Revoir". The Mess gave him three cheers and their hearty good wishes for the future.

In Orders Thursday night the following promotions were made:—Major G. A. Williams to be Brigade Major and is appointed Regimental Correspondent, Captain H. A. Outerbridge, M.B.E., to be Major and appointed secon in command to date from August 20th., Lieut. Harold Hayward, to be Acting Commander of A. Co. Congratulations gentlemen.

Doctor Burden of the Red Cross Section was busy with A. Co. and is planning out already for a good Fall and Winter's work, training the Battalion in first aid to the injured.

Any lads wishing to join the Brigade can apply Thursday at 8 p.m. to the Recruiting Officer at the Armoury. A number are joining since camp days. The governing body in England have wisely altered their former rule and have authorized the extension of the maximum age limit from 19 to 21 years.

The following officers are absent on leave:—Major R. H. Tait, M.C., and Lieut. H. Hayward at Grand Falls and Lieut. A. B. Perlin. The C.O. is now busy reorganizing gymnasium classes and hopes to put all ranks through a gymnastic course this winter. Captain Phil Rendell is busy training his F. Co. lads in Swedish exercises. Next Wednesday, Aug. 29 the C. L. B. lads who are fond of dear old Topsail, are hiring the Orange Hall for a farewell dance of the season. The last one was so enjoyable everybody wants one more. The Battalion Band will supply the music and light refreshments will be served, including Yes! no! bannis today. Its wonderful how business keeps up. Q.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, MONDAY, JULY 27th, 1923.

The Railway is Essential to Humber Proposition

An encouraging feature in connection with the improved industrial outlook for Newfoundland is the condition of the railway.

On Saturday, we pointed out that the railway was in excellent condition to meet the much increased freight and passenger traffic resulting from the Humber, largely, and other operations; and that the western section of the line has stood the heavy strain, without accident of any kind, of the transportation of the Armstrong Whitworth construction outfit and material.

During their visit to the West Coast, the Assembly's representatives were agreeably surprised and were all outspoken about the good condition of the road-bed.

This is a much better state of affairs than that which existed previous to when the Railway Commission of 1920-21 took charge. The wretched condition of the railway before that period will be easily remembered when train accidents were the order of the day; and when the press and public men were characterizing it as a death trap for those who travelled.

In the light of the present importance of the railway to propositions like the Humber, we can now better realize the proportions of the task which was the Railway Commission's regarding the practical rebuilding of the road. The Commission was bitterly criticized for its actions, and its Chairman, Sir W. F. Coaker, was made the butt of denunciation and misrepresentation.

We are now able to see the Commission's work justified in the eyes of the country.

The Railway would have continued to dilapidate, without repair.

Had it done so, the country would have been without transportation service today. There, also, would not have been any Humber proposition.

ON THE EXPLOITS

It was fitting that the members of the House of Assembly was given the opportunity to visit the manufacturing centre of Grand Falls.

On the West Coast they viewed the beginning of an industrial operation which will be twice the capacity of the inland paper town on the banks of the Exploits. But it was in the latter place they saw the fruition of an industry which but a few years ago was, like the Humber project, in its initial stage.

Grand Falls to-day is perhaps the most thriving town in the country. It was a forest before the Exploits waters were harnessed to give electric power and to be a valuable asset to the country.

Those who do not believe in the Humber, and apparently there are one or two of them remaining, should not overlook the object lesson which Grand Falls supplies. The Exploits River, running to waste since 1902, would have done small service. It would have performed the same service as the waters of Grand Lake running to waste since Cabot discovered the country.

As a proof of the stability of the pulp and paper industry, the A. N. D. Co. are erecting an extension to the Grand Falls plant, which will represent the manufacture of an extra 100 tons of paper daily. Already construction work is well under way and the annex will be "roofed in" by the fall.

This construction is intended to manufacture the pulp, made at Bishop's Falls and hitherto exported to England. The erection of a nine-mile pipe line and the pumping of the pulp supply of Bishop's Falls to the Grand Falls plant is included in the programme of the Company. Such activity does portend nothing but a good future business outlook; and the visit to Grand Falls by members of the Assembly must have impressed them in that respect, which explains their high hopes for the enterprise on the West Coast.

More Employment Needed

Twenty-three hundred workingmen are employed on the Humber. In that fact there is much for which to be thankful. Those twenty-three hundred working men would be idle to-day but for the Humber Project. Many of them would be out of the country.

Consideration of this fortunate matter should not, however detract from the fact that the fishery season will soon be closing, that it has not been a successful season and that many men will be looking for employment.

The Humber Project should be sufficiently advanced to take on many more additional men within a month or so, and, while there is no intention of making the contractors responsible for relief of all unemployment, it is felt they will do all possible to relieve the situation among the people. The plant is to be constructed in two years under the agreement, and, where possible, there should be no objections to employing the largest possible numbers where work must be done.

Operations so far have been initial and no one can expect a full quota of employment. By the coming of the fall the contractors should be enabled to employ many additional men, especially on Corner Brook plant site, on the town construction works and in the lumberwoods.

LATEST

PARAGUAY, Aug. 27.—Three shots were fired at H. Deskaloff, Bulgarian Ambassador, at noon to-day and he died shortly after on operating table. His assailant, a twenty-six year old Bulgarian, was arrested.

Digby From Liverpool

Furness Lines Had Very Stormy Trip Across

The Furness Liner Digby, Capt. F. W. Chambers, D.S.O., 8 days from Liverpool, arrived at 8 o'clock last night. The Digby left the other side on Saturday last at 3 p.m. and during the first four days had moderate weather, and her average run was 253 miles. On Thursday she encountered strong head winds which continued for three days and on Friday, the ship's run was only 145 miles. The weather cleared on Saturday afternoon and a good run to port was made. The ship brought 54 passengers, 34 of whom are landing here, including many commercial men, who are paying their first visit to this side of the water, and others returning here after a visit to the Old Country.

On Saturday night a very enjoyable concert was held in the Social Hall, under the chairmanship of Mr. A. K. Lumsden, when a very excellent programme was gone thru, songs being rendered by Messrs J. E. Ryan, Jimmie Loydon, J. W. G. Coombs, V. Griffiths, O. Pritchard, D. Gilruth, O. Pritchard, and pianoforte solos by Mr. V. Griffiths were features of the evening's entertainment, and "Jimie" Loydon, the Second Engineer of the ship was a riot. The accompanists were Messrs Griffiths and Whiteford. At the conclusion a collection was taken in aid of Seamen's Charities, including the Permanent Marine Disasters Fund, and the sum of £8-15-3 was realized.

The Digby brought 800 tons of general cargo for this port, and has another 800 tons for Halifax and Boston. She also brought 43 sacks of mail matter and 17 of parcel post.

The following are passengers who disembarked here:

T. S. Anderson, W. Bellamy, W. O. F. Bellamy, E. S. Broadhead, F. W. Burt, L. Bussell, Miss J. Bussell, J. H. Clapham, J. W. G. Coombs, I Epstein, Miss M. Frew, D. Gilruth, V. L. Griffiths, G. N. LODGE "CARBONEAR" HAS INSTALLATION

The Installation of Officers of Lodge "Carbonear," A.F. & A.M.,, S.C., was held there last evening. Dist. Grand Master Designate Cook and D.G.S. Cowan, assisted by members of the Grand Lodge, conducted the ceremony. Visiting brethren from Heart's Content, Bay Roberts and Harbor Grace were present. Following the Installation ceremony a banquet was given in the lower hall when a most enjoyable evening was spent, the usual toasts were given and some excellent speeches made.

The following are the newly installed officers:—W.M., Bro. L. Ash, re-elected; S.W., Bro. J. H. Penney, re-elected; J.W., Bro. W. Clarke, elected; Sec., Bro. W. J. M. Pike, elected; Treas., Bro. W. G. Cameron, re-elected; S.D., Bro. G. H. Soper, re-elected; J.D., Bro. J. Butt, elected; J.S., Bro. H. Soper, re-elected; I.G., Bro. W. H. Hillyard, elected; O.T., Bro. W. Taylor, re-elected.

FIGHT OVER SHOVEL HAS FATAL ENDING

YOUTH DROPS DEAD WHEN STRUCK ON ENLARGED GLAND OF NECK.

HIS ASSAILANT ARRESTER.

BROCKVILLE, Aug. 14.—Andrew Harney, a married man, residing near Portland, is under arrest, and John Sherwood, aged 16, son of Robert Sherwood of Clear Lake, near Newboro,' is dead, as the result of a quarrel between the two men on the highway near Crosby, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A dispute arose between the pair, who were employed on the highway, over possession of a shovel, and it is alleged that Harney struck Sherwood with his fist. The latter collapsed, and Harney, picking him up, found that he was dear.

An inquest was held today before Coroner Hamilton of Westport, and the jury returned a verdict that Sherwood came to his death from a blow administered by Harney in the region of an abnormal enlargement in a gland of the neck, which caused cerebral hemorrhage.

The prisoner will be brought here tonight and arraigned before Magistrate Page tomorrow. He was born in England and came to Canada and to St. George's Home, Ottawa, 19 years ago. He is a married man with a family.

Sherewood was a native of Crosby and is survived by his parents, three brothers and three sisters.

Earl Haig Will Come Here to Unveil War Memorial

The Advocate was informed by the Prime Minister, Hon. W. R. Warren, K.C., to-day that Field-Marshal Earl Haig and Lady Haig have accepted the Government's invitation to come to St. John's for the purpose of unveiling the Newfoundland War Memorial in July, 1924.

National Sports Day Will Be September 5th

The chairman of the National Sports Committee, Mr. W. J. Higgins, presided at the annual meting held on Saturday night. The financial report was presented by the treasurer, Mr. T. W. Sparkes, and showed that the Association is in sound standing. It was decided to hold the Championships Meet on the afternoon of Wednesday, September 5th, and all entries must be made to Mr. J. A. MacKenzie at his office in the Law Chambers, before 6 p.m. this Saturday night, when the committee will meet again to arrange the preliminary heats to be held at St. George's Field on the Tuesday night previous to the meet. Each contestant will wear a number as last year. The following sub-committees were appointed to conduct the Newfoundland Track and Field Championships:—

Field Captain:—W. J. Higgins.

Starter:—Mr. C. J. Ellis.

Clerk of Course:—Mr. J. A. MacKenzie.

Track Judges:—J. W. Morris, J. I. Vinicombe, R. E. Innes, J. G. Higgins.

Field Judges:—C. Henderson, F. Pippy, T. Curran, J. C. Parsons, B. B. Stafford.

Road Race Officials::—S. R. Steele, M. Chaplin, J. R. Stick, G. C. Harvey, Gus Herder, R. C. Harvey, W. J. Martin, W. Herder, Leslie Marshall, Lionel Munn, Eric Robertson, E. V. Spry, and C. J. Cahill.

Track Supervisors:—Mr. W. Noel, A. H. Thomas, H. Wyatt.

Timers:—C. J. Ellis, Claude Hall, J. M. Martin.

Heralds:—C. Belbin, Harold Rendell

Prizes:—P. Grace, H. Phelan, R. Herder.

Publicity:—J. P. Moakler, J. Coffey, R. T. Joy.

Medical Officer:—Dr. John Grieve.

Program:—J. A. MacKenzie, R. Herder.

Finance:—H. Wyatt, T. W. Sparkes, P. O'Mara.

Auditors:—H. F. Glass, F. C. Brien, T. V. Hartnett.

Reception Committee:—C. E. Hunt, P. E. Outerbridge, H. Russell, Phil Rendell, W. H. Jackman, J. P. Crotty, Whiteford McNeilly, R. Dowden, and N. J. Vinicombe.

In all probability a track team will be sent to represent Newfoundland in the Canadian Championships at Halifax on September 15th. What the personnel will be depends entirely on the showing our athletes make in the A.A.A. Meet. Two long distance men will likely be sent as well as the winner of the 1 mile walk.

The official programme will therefore be:—

1.—Hurdles.
2.—Hammer Throw.
3.—100 Yards.
4.—Shot Put.
5.—1 Mile.
6.—220 Yards.
7.—High Jump.
8.—Junior Quarter Mile.
.—Broad Jump.
10.—School Relay (3 pupils.)
11.—Half Mile.
12.—Pole Vault.
13.—Quarter Mile.
14.—Club Relay (3 men.)
15.—1 Mile Walk.
16.—"Telegram" Road Race.

The road race will be over the Topsail Road as usual, ending with two rounds at St. George's Field. In addition to the cup and A.A.A. Medal for the winner, the "Telegram" is donating three gold and five silver medals to those who finish the course inside of 65 minutes. This should prve a big incentive to encourage competition in this event. Entries in all events are requested to state their club when entering. Five points will be awarded the winner in each even, 3 to the second, and 1 point for third place, and to the club or association securing the largest aggregate will be awarded the silver running trophy presented by Mr. C. H. Hayward of Grand Falls. This must be won three times, not necessarily in succession. It was captured last year by St. Bon's.

The A. A. A. has imported a special hammer and shot for the Hammer Throw and Shot Put, so that all records in both events will begin from this year. The Junior age limit is again defined as under fifteen, and birth certificate must be produced. All contestants in every event must be produced. All contesants in every event must be suitably attired in athletic dress; otherwise they shall not be permitted to compete. It was decided that no records broken at any sports shall be rocognized by the A. A. A. in future, unless their officials approve of the track measurements and are permitted to check the distances immediately after the event. This is a most important matter and the A.A.A. did will to make a positive ruling on this point. Another matter that evoked considerable discussion was the haphazard method of timing which has prevailed up to the present. The Committee therefore decided that in future this would be done by Messrs. C. J. Ellis, Claude Hall, and John M. Tobin in track events, and in such capable hands holders of records will be given protection.

In compliance with the request of Mr. H. A. LeMessurier, organiser of the Boy Scouts' Meet for this Wednesday, Messrs. A. McNamara, C. Hall and J. M. Tobin were appointed timers, and Messrs. W. Burns and S. P. Cullen have undertaken to arrange the handicaps. Mr. W. J. Higgins will be Field Captain and Mr. C. J. Ellis starter.

U.S. Life Insurance Abandoning Europe

ALL AMERICAN COMPANIES WILL WITHDRAW COMPLETELY FROM BUSINESS ON CONTINENT

LONDON, Aug. 18—American life insurance companies, once represented in every civilized country, will withdraw completely from business in continental Europe before October 1. All companies except the New York Life have already ceased soliciting business, and the New York Life's last remaining office in Paris is now in process of dissolution. The office in London will continue only as a matter of sentiment, the officials believing that commercial bonds between English-speaking peoples will draw them more closely together, but only enough business will be solicited to insure vindication of the existence of the London office.

Behind this remarkable decline in one of the greatest commercial ventures of the United States lies the tragedy of war, revolution, pestilence, financial slumps and the deadening effect of state socialism. In 1913 the annual business of American insurance companies in Europe amounted to well over $50,000,000 each year. Today that gigantic income has dwindled to the vanishing point, the new business representing less than $1,000,000 yearly.

Other Companies Entirely Out

While the New York Life maintains one European branch in London, the other companies have sold out completely. The Mutual, of New York, has disposed of its entire property to the Sun Life of Canada, and the others are disappearing by the process of ceasing solicitations, one or two offices remaining to settle existing contracts as they mature or come up for death payments.

Perhaps the most typical of American enterprises abroad is the case of the New Yok Life Company. In the early 1900s the late George W. Perkins, then a rising young American business man, just elected vice-president of the New York Life, conceived a scheme of world-wide scope for his organization. He dreamed of agencies in every progressive country, with branches in the principal cities and solicitors operating wherever enlightened men realized the supreme importance of protecting their families against poverty and themselves against want in old age.

Through Mr. Perkins' organizing genius there came into being insurance offices in every European capital and agencies appeared even in the povincial cities of Great Britain, France, Belgium and all the Balkan countries. One great company, organized under Russian laws and with its headquarters in Petrograd, built up an insurance business such as probably will never be seen again in Russia.

Held Intact Through War

When war descended upon Europe many believed it would wreck all the insurance companies, but owing to the protective clauses and the steps taken immediately by the insurance officials their organization held intact through the perilous years, and some even hoped that the fear of death aroused by the conflict would increase the insurance business, which, as a matter of fact, it did only temporarily.

Whatever increases in the number of policies occurred in the course of the war were wholly nullified by the blasting effects of the post-war period. The Russian revolution, followed by the confiscation of private property, wrecked completely the New York Life organization in that country, robbed thousands of policy-holders of their just payments and left scores of families whose male members were executed without any chance of collecting the death benefits.

Following close on the heels of the Russian catastrophe came the financial chaos in Middle Europe. The New York Life Company in Austria was forced to settle the majority of its policies on their face value, paying the starving holders with the depreciated currency of their own country. In many cases the death settlements on policies once worth a small fortune paid only enough to buy meals for a few days.

Perkins' Fine Scheme Gone

One country after another passed into a state of depression, leaving the insurance business without any hope of escape or chance of recouping in after years. Out of all the prosperous European branches the New York Life today retains only the remnants of the Paris office and a few outstanding policies in Bulgaria. The remainder of Perkins' magnificent scheme has evaporated into thin air. "State subsidized or controlled insurance schemes replace the old line companies in many instances," but owing to inefficient methods of government control they can never hope to carry out the plans which private concerns at one time brought near perfection.

The withdrawal of the American insurance companies represents a real loss to the European nations, for no other country in the world has developed life insurance to such perfection as has the United States.

Lighting Strikes Oil Tank, and Flame Mounts 200 Feet.

Over Million gallons of crude Oil Fired in Philadelphia During Fierce Electric Storm—Fire Rages Into Night

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—A climbing sheet of flame, 200 feet high, gave firemen a hard battle this afternoon and tonight, when an oil tank containing 1,500,000 gallons of crude oil was struck by lightning at the Philadelphia plant of the American Refining Company.

The tank in the agitation refineries was struck shortly after 2 o'clock when a fierce electric storm broke over this city. With a roar that could be heard over the entire section of South Philadelphia, the flames leaped skyward, threatening to envelope other tanks.

An alarm brought out the company's firemen, who vainly strove to extinguish the flames. After 20 minutes of hard fighting a call was sent out for the city firemen.

Three-quarters of an hour later a second alarm was sent in. Hampered by the intense heat, the dense black smoke and the oil fumes, which swept the yard, the firemen, unable to do more than protect other tanks, played their streams of water on adjoining tanks, which threatened to ignite and bucyle from the heat.

At a late hour to-night the fire was still raging and getting beyond control.

Dead Director When Kissed Spoke to Her, Movie Actress Claims

LOS ANGELES, Cal., August 15—William Desmond Taylor, cold in death in an undertaker's parlor, warmed and spoke to her as she kissed his ashen lips, Mary Miles Minter alleged today, continuing her strange story of events surrounding the death of the director.

Miss Minter also painted a dramatic word picture of how she confronted Mabel Normand, another film actress who loved Taylor, after the director was found murdered, and demanded what the comedienne knew about it.

"I took her by the shoulders, shook her and looked into her eyes," Miss Minter said, describing the scene in Mabel's boudoir. 'What do you know about the murder?' I asked. 'Nothing except what they've told me,' she replied. And I believe her, and I still believe her."

The actress, who is revealing her part in Taylor's life to "'get the weight of it from my crushed heart," and incidentally to start making pictures for the dear public once more, then told about her love for Taylor, to whom, however, she discloses, she was not formally engaged. "We loved she said. "We were wonderfully happy. Then mother stepped in."

Miss Minter is suing her mother for part of a million dollars she made when a featured film actress. Mother she says, held out on her.

"We met clandestinely," she continued, speaking of Taylor. "Then he was determined not to cause a break between myself and my family. He tried to give me up, but we loved each other too much for that. Then he was murdered. The day after he was killed I went to the undertaker's and saw him. I pulled back the sheet and looked at him; he was waxen; his lips were ashen.

"I leaned down, put my arms about him and kissed him; put my cheek to his. His face was cold, but suddenly there seemed to come a touch of warmth to it. He answered me. I heard his voice:

"I shall love you always, Mary,' he whispered. I kissed him, and put a red rose in his hand—then the door opened. The undertaker came in."

In her story, Miss Minter also told of differences which have arisen between her and her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, over an accounting of the actress' earnings which, she asserted, "must be settled by attorneys or the courts."

"I shall not see mother again," she affirmed. Mrs. Shelby is reported convalescing from a recent major operation.

Trying to Recapture Newfoundland Trade

(North Sydney Herald)

Revision of freight rates on the Canadian National railways generally, at least in so far as the Maritime provinces are concerned, and the removal of the differential against North Sydney and other ports in the Maritime provinces, was announced Saturday night by Hon. E. M. Macdonald, minister of defense, at a meeting addressed by himself, Hon. A. K. MacLean, M.P., for Halifax, and George W. Kyle, M.P. for Richmond, in the Strand Theatre. The announcement was received by the people of North Sydney with great pleasure. The question of freight rates has been a matter of discussion between the North Sydney Board of Trade and the Department of Railways for over three years, and this intimation of the success of their pleas earned for the minister of defence one of the finest ovations ever given to a public man at a political meeting here.

Hon. Mr. Macdonald in the course of a discussion of the freight rates problems which have faced the maritime province since the heavy increases were imposed, under the Meighen-Borden administration, announced that a revision of freight rates on the Canadian National railways had been prepared and was now awaiting return of Sir Henry Thornton from the west to put them into effect.

He told the people of North Sydney that the high freight and preferential which had destroyed the trade of this port to and from Newfoundland were to be respectively lowered and eliminated, and he prophesied that the magnitude of this traffic would soon again be as large as it was before adverse rates were imposed and he expressed the desire of the railway department to see that this traffic so increased as to exceed any previous record.

Mr. Macdonald also intimated that there would be a general reduction of rates affecting local tariff between Ontario and the Maritime provinces, and that the deferential in force against Cape Breton points in favor of other maritime points would be, he understood, brought down to a more equitable standing.

The meeting was held in the interests of F. L. Kelly, the Liberal candidate, and was the biggest political demonstration held in the Island during the present campaign. It exceeded in attendance the previous splendid meetings addressed by Mr Meighen in the interest of the Conservative candidate and that addressed in the interest of the Liberal candidate, when Col. Ralston, Harold Putnam, K.C., M. P. for Colchester, and L. H. Martell, M. P. for Hants, addressed the people of North Sydney on Wednesday night.

The speakers were given a splendid hearing. Hon. A. K. MacLean spoke for an hour and ten minutes to an audience which showed its approval of this brilliant native of the town, and Mr. George W. Kyte, who spoke here for the third time this week, although the third speaker of the evening, held the interest of the entire audience until he closed, and his appeal so ably seconding those of the previous speakers for support for the Liberal candidate, Mr. Kelly, was received with ardent enthusiasm and prolonged cheers.

Councillor Royane MacLeod was chairman.

Nothing Personal, Surely!

(Special Despatch to The Globe.)

ST. CATHERINES, August 14.—Here's just the difference: An electric car was rounding the sharp turn near Thomas street this morning when a gorgeously colored Leghorn rooster stepped upon the track.

Passengers up in front looked to see the bird meet a sudden death. But the motorman gave a sharp twang on his foot alarm, and the rooster, coolly as you please, turned and walked off the track—the nearest way.

"If that had been a hen," remarked the motorman, "I'd have shoved the brakes on in a hurry, because she sure would have tried to get off the track by the longest way, and I wouldn't want to kill a hen. We don't kill many roosters, but we do hens, sometimes, unavoidably."

The male passengers sat up a bit. The women just glared.

Ex-German Crown Prince Finds Holidays at Doorn Dull and Life in Zuyder Zee Simply Awful

WIERINGEN, August 12—The ex-Crown Prince, who has just spent a month's "holiday" at Doorn, has now returned to his island habitation in the Zuyder Zee, much against his will.

Before leaving Doorn he expressed his opinion on the wretched life he was leading on the wind-swept island, which he found terribly monotonous, adding that even his holiday on the ex-Kaiser's estate at Doorn had so bored him that he would give anything to have some work to do and would even go to America and work in a factory if it were possible.

He admitted that he would naturally prefer to return to the Fatherland, but feared there was not much chance at present.

There has been quite a panic among many Netherlanders residing in Berlin, who have departed hurriedly for Holland, fearing political developments.

A Record Number

On Thursday of last week forty persons registered at the Crosbie. This is a record number. Nine of them were from New York; three from Philadelphia; three from Boston; one from Chicago, and three from Canada, and the others were natives of various parts of the island.

Notes from the West

The Union store at Epworth, Burin District, has been under the management of Mr. Harold Torraville since June 1st, he being sent there from Port Union where he had been working for the past three or four years.

Mr. Torraville is certainly an industrious man and a live spark from the union anvil; he has become very popular with the people there.

Mr. Torraville has spent many hours in stage with the fishermen after six o'clock in the evening helping out in the salting of fish, and has kept the bright side of the picture to the people, while the other business firms have painted it as black as ink.

The Union Trading Co. has chartered the schooner Alice Roberts, Capt. George Bennett of Port au Braw, to take a load of fish to Port Union.

Well done, President Coaker, keep the Union fire burning.

The fishery on the whole has been very good around Burin District, and although the weather has been very bad the fish is a better quality than last year. There is also a great percentage of Haddock in the catch this yeard.

There is plenty of fish on the grounds now, but bait is very scarce and weather very stormy. We hope that the weather will soon get better, as we want to ship our fish on board the Union schooner, for we know that our worthy President will do better for us than the other merchants who have been painting so black a picture all the summer.

Bell Island Cadets Win Football Championship

In the final game for the Bell Island Football championship, played on Saturday night, the Cadets won over the Young Britons, by a score of 1—0, winning the championship for the second year in succession.

The following are the Cadet's team N. Farrell, Goal; Jas. Murphy, F. Connors, Backs; Jas. Delahunty, J. L. Connars, Ed. Farrell, Halves; P. T. Murphy, P. Barrett, D. Downey, T. Power, Don. Penny, Forwards.

Great credit is due Lieut. Jas. Connors, President of the Cadet Club, and Lieut. P. Murphy, Captain of the Cadets, for their success during the season now closed, in winnig every cup put up for football competition.

University Students Here

Among the passengers by the Digby from England are three young college students in the persons of Messrs. L. E. C. Whitefoord, B. E. O'Brien, and C. R. Willis. They come from Cambridge University and are enroute to Grand Falls, accompanied by their tutor, Mr. W. R. Leathes. Their families are more or less closely associated with the Harmsworths in their vast enterprise, Mr. Whitefoord being the son of a great personal friend of Lord Rothermere. The party will spend some time fishing at Red Indian Lake, and they are being looked after by Mr. Gillingham, the Anglo Nfld. Development Co.'s Agent here, during their stay in the city, and will be the guests of the Company at the Grand Falls House, during their sojourn at the paper city. The party first contemplated coming out in Mr. Whitefoord's private yacht, but this was abandoned. They will remain here about a month or five weeks.

C. E. I. vs. Saints To-night

The postponed C. E. I. vs. Saints football match is scheduled for to-night, when an interesting clash should ensue. In all probability the much discussed championship game, Feildians vs. Cadets will be played to-morrow night. The Feildians have three postponed games to play, and a decision as to which they will play first will be made today.

Police Court

Judge Morris presided in the Police Court this morning.

A laborer from George St., drunk, deposited $5.00 yesterday morning and was released.

A former resident of the Dardanells—now living on Simms' Street—created a disturbance on New Gower St. Saturday afternoon and was arrested. His better half deposited $2.00 for his release.

A Logy Bay fisherman, drunk and disorderly, was fined $2.00.

Two mechanics employed on the Normal School became a long ways from normal Saturday night. They kicked up a row on New Gower Street. One interfered with the police in the discharge of their duty. Both were fined $10.00 and costs. The fines were paid.

On Saturday afternoon while top heavy a messenger paid a visit to the Controller's Dept. He went up stairs and helped himself to 5 bottles of best quality sample whiskey, for which he forgot to tender payment. Mr. Berteau saw the party and reported to the police who later on the afternoon made the arrest. This morning the party pleaded guilty and was fined $25.00. The fine was paid.

A farmer from Kelligrews, drunk, was arrested on Saturday evening. He paid two dollars yesterday morning to obtain his release and took the excursion train back to home and happiness.

Fire at King's Point

A serious fire occurred at King's Point, N.D.B., a few days ago when the premises of Mr. Geo. Toms were badly damaged. The place was insured to some extent with the company represented by Messrs. Ayre & Sons and Mr. R. G. Ash, Secretary of the Board of Fire Underwriters, left for King's Point by yesterday's express to assess the damage done.

Fishery Reports

From Little St. Lawrence East to Lairn Pt. the catch to date is 11,260 qtls. Prospects fair. Fish is striking off and owing to scarity of bait not much is now being secured.

From South Brigus to Bay Roberts Point the catch is 440 qtls. with 220 qtls. for last week. Stormy weather interfered with fishing during the week but fishermen at Port de Grave did well with hook and line and trawls.

From Grenley Isld., Blanc Sablon to Forteau the catch to date is 5,100 qtls. Prospects for hook and line and jigger are fair. Sub-Collector Butt thinks that crude oil from H.M.S. Raleigh which is covering the water from Blanc Sablon to West St. Modeste is poluting the water and will take a long time for it to disappear.

Engine on Freight Train Derailed

The engine attached to an westbound freight train bringing out a load of material for the Humber, left the rails near Mount Pearl on Saturday afternoon. An incoming freight to which were attached the footballers cars, was delayed half an hour while the derailed engine was being replaced on the track.

Spencer College

Miss Cherrington, the Principal of Spencer College and of Spencer Lodge, the latter being the name of the College boarding school, arrived by the S.S. Manoa on Thursday from Charlottetown, P.E.I., where the summer vacation was spent. The new lady Superintendent of Spencer College, Miss Boudoins, also accompanied Miss Cherrington. Miss Boudoins has been recently in charge of the girls boarding department of Havenyal College, Toronto, and brings a wealth of experience to the Institute, and we extend to her a hearty welcome. There will be two new teachers arriving by the S.S. Digby now due, Miss Lawrence, a specialist in French, and Miss Jessop, a highly trained kindergarten teacher. The new Specialist in Art Subjects, Miss Barlow, engaged last year at Victoria, British Columbia, will arrive in a few days to take up her duties when the school re-opens in Spetember. Spencer Lodge is now re-opened and Miss Cherrington and Miss Boudoins are already in residence reorganizing and preparing the building for the pupils who will no doubt tax the capacity of the Institution.

The Rev. Herbert Pike and his bride also returned by the Manoa. We congratulate them on their wedding and wish both every happiness. The Rev. Herbert Pike is Warden of Feild Hall, the Church of England boarding department for boys attending Feild College. Q.

Rev. Charles Lench at Gower St. Church

L. M. R.

Rev. Charles Lench preached a very impressive sermon at Gower St. Church last night, taking for his text: "Much learning doth make thee mad, and these men be drunk with new wine," and enthusiasm for religion was the foundation of his discourse.

The Reverend Gentleman said, "Except the church of to-day was enthusiastic and alive we cannot make much progress.

"We have white heat enthusiasm in our sports, and today associations will send athletes across the water from Australia to America and England in order to compete in different sports. Our people just bubble over with push and advancement in mattes of local sports whether on Quidi Vidi or St. George's Field, and we ought to put the same spirit into our Christianity, and this applies to the pulpit as well as to the people.

This excitement for sport is like as the apostle said being drunk with new wine. But, Peter said, How can we be drunk, we cannot get strong drink, and Paul said, oh, must not be Festus, I speak the truth with soberness."

The Reverend Gentleman then referred to John Wesley how he became touched by the power of God, and that although his being passed out, yet he leaves behind him a large and extended connection of trained soldiers and ministers for Christ who are still going on following in his footsteps and spreading the truths of the great light of God.

He ended his most eloquent discourse with the remarks would that the whole Church of today catch alive and her young men and women go forward as heroes for the saving of immortal souls.

Two Talented Sons of Terra Nova

(Editor Evening Advocate)

Dear Sir,—I saw a short while ago, in your paper, in the column "From the Masthead, by the Look-out" mention made of the two talented sons of my friend Hon. John Anderson, Hughie and Murray. No doubt all true lovers of talent and of Terra Nova are proud of these two young natives who have become world-famed for their theatrical ability. They are an advertisement for Newfoundland and my sincere prayer is that they may live long to produce such talent as they have been showing since they left our shores. No doubt their father has cause to feel proud of two such sons, as have also their friends in St. John's and elsewhere around our island home. With thanks for publishing this note.

I remain,
Yours truly,
—NATIVE.

THE HUMBER VISIT ENDS

A Memorable Meeting In Which Newfoundland's Public Men Make Common Cause for Country's Good.

Norris Arm

In the early days of the railroad, Norris Arm gave promise of being one of the most prosperous towns in the country, but its former glory has departed since the days of Gulnac and others. Fire has wrought its share of havoc. Two saw mills are in operation here. Saunders& Howell work the big mill on an extensive scale. This firm has some big supply contracts for sawn timber with the Armstrong Whitworth people. Last year's output of the Saunders-Howell Mill exceeded two million feet board measure.

Ryan's Hotel has been destroyed by fire no less than three times in as many years, but a new residence is fast nearing completion. During our stop here the small boys of the place were given a chance to compete in a series of races for money prizes. Messrs. Scammell, Cave, Moore Vinnicombe and Fox subscribed to refreshments for all the entrants. At 8 p.m. a start east was made. At 9 o'clock the whole company repaired to the dining car, where a gathering of public men, such as possibly never met in Newfoundland before, participated in a memorable round table conference. Fresh from the scene of the two great inland industries which our country possesses, and filled with a common interest in the colony's future progress and prossperity, Government and Opposition were alike free to give expression to their views on the outlook for our common country in an unbiased and manly way. Here in our opinion, as the train travelled eastward, took place one of the most memorable and beneficial gatherings of public men which has taken place in Newfoundland. Not, perhaps, in the decisions arrived at on matters of policy or party concern, but in that real spirit of fraternity and good-fellowship which enabled all to obliterate the merest tinge of party feeling or personal prejudice. We saw our parliament as we never witnessed it before, Newfoundlanders, first, last and all the time, united to a man for a common cause, which meant, if it meant anything, righting the ship of state, and under the captaincy of Premier Warren, with experienced officers and loyal crew, giving Terra Nova a chance to weather the present period of depression.

All the speeches delivered during the subjoined program, breathed a spirit of optimism which did one good to hear. Verily, in the words of holy writ, "It was good to be there."

The Prime Minister occupied the chair. The toast list was as follows:

This desultory description would be incomplete were we to omit a brief reference to the capable train crew which accompanied us on the trip. Their names are: Leo. Wight, Conductor; J. Snow, Operator and Baggage Man; Brakeman J. Dowden, Cooks, J. Moyst and E. B. Baker; Waiters, J. Ryan and J. Rose; Porter, Clifford Earle.

Mr. John Baxter accompanied the party and kept general supervision over the train movements and the comfort of the passengers. In both particulars his courtesy and efficiency did much to add to the enjoyment and comfort of all..

We got back to St. John's at 7.45 a. m. Thursday. No untoward incident came under our observation to mar the Newfoundland Legislature's visit to the Humber. On the contrary, we are abundantly satisfied that much benefit was derived by those whose privilege it was to make the trip.

Nothing which has been said or written of the Humber enterprise has suffered because of our personal experiences. All honor and praise to every man who assisted even in a minor way, to make this Humber enterprise a reality, and especially to the men, who by their unanimous vote and voice, have given legal sanction to the project. The future generation of Newfoundlanders will live to call them blessed.

NOTE

The 10 x 4 x 4 measurement of the steam shovel was intended to give the capacity of the 6-cubic-yard machine, and we felt this was fairly accurate. We acknowledge our mathematical error and trust that this error will be overlooked by the News Genius. A '5' for a '10' will remedy the mistake. Any schoolboy will be able to see and correct it for himself without the assistance of this chronic kicker.

Don't worry, Arthur, you are literally billious. Those figures may be a bit big, but the Humber can stand generous estfmates. Make up, man, and get over your grouch.

Spars, Cabin Furnishings and Deck Fittings Are Seen In Bay St. Lawrence.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 27—A Considerable amount of wreckage has been washed ashore in the vicinity of Bay St. Lawrence, according to a report received here from the Superintendent of St. Paul's Island. To-day a motor boat returning from St. Paul's to Bay St. Lawrence, reported passing through a lot of wreckage between St. Paul's and Cape North. The wreckage consisted of window sashes, cabin furnishings and also part of deck fixtures painted black and lead color. The S.S. City of Naples also reported having run across a large spar at least fifty feet in length.

RICH GOLD FIND IS REPORTED

Rossland, B.C., Is Scene of Bonanza.

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 27—A strike of sensationally rich gold ore is reported at Rossland, British Columbia, and verified by the Bunker Hill and Sullivan Mining Company officials. The ore is so rich that the railway refuses to handle it, and it is being taken to the smelter by automobile trucks, under heavy armed guard, it is reported.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

(By PETER P. KYNE)

CHAPTER XI.

"McKaye speaking," he announced. "I've just discovered Donald has an enemy—that Greek, Chirakes, from Darrow. Did Dirty Dan come in from the Weeds to-night?"

"I believe he did. He usually comes in at week-ends."

"Look him up immediately, and tell him to keep an eye on Donald, and not to let him get out of his sight until the boy boards the logging train to-morrow night to go back to the woods. Same thing next week-end, and when Donald completes his tour of duty in the woods, transfer Dan from the logging camp tnd give him a job in the mill, so he can watch over the boy when he's abroad at night. He is not, of course, to let my son know he is under surveilliance."

"I will attend to the matter immediately," Daney promised, and the Laird, much relieved, hung up and rejoined his son.

"Take care of yourself—and watch that Greek boy," he cautioned, as he swung aboard the train.

Donald stood looking after the train until the tail-lights had disappeared round a curve.

Daney readily discovered in a pool-hall the man he sought. "Dirty Dan" O'Leary was a chopper in the McKaye employ, and had earned his sobriquet, not because he was less cleanly than the average lumberjack, but because he was what his kind described as a "dirty" fighter. That is to say, when his belligerent disposition led him into a battle, which it frequently did, Mr. O'Leary's instinct was to win, quickly and decisively, and without consideration of the niceties of combat, for a primitive person was dirty Dan. Fast as a panther, he was equally proficient in the use of all his extremities, and, if hard-pressed, would use his teeth. He was a stringy, big-boned man of six feet, and much too tall for his weight, wherefore belligerent strangers were sometimes led to the erroneous conclusion that Mr. O'Leary would not be hard to upset. In short, he was a wild, bad Irishman who had gotten immovably fixed in his head an idea that old Hector McKaye was one a "gar-rand gintleman," and "a gr-rand gintleman was one of the three things that Dirty Dan would fight for, the other two being his personal safely and the love of battle.

Daney drew Dirty Dan out of the pool-hall and explained the situation to him. The knowledge that The Laird had, in his extremity, placed reliance on him, moved Dirty Dan to the highest pitch of enthusiasm and loyalty. He pursed his lips, winked one of his piggy eyes craftily, and, without wasting time in words of assurance, set forth in search of the man he was to follow and protect. Presently he saw Donald entering the butcher shop; so he stationed himself across the street and watched the young laird of Tyee purchase a fowl and walk out with it under his arm. Keeping his man dimly in view through the gloom, Dirty Dan from the opposite side of the street, followed on velvet feet to the outskirts of the town, where Donald turned and took a path through some vacant lots, arriving at last at the Sawdust Pile. Dirty Dan heard him open and close the gate to Caleb Brent's Garden.

"Oh, ho, the young devil!" Dirty Dan murmured, and immediately left the path, padding softly out into the grass and set himself patiently to await the reappearance of his quarry.

In response to several clearly audible knocks, the front door failed to open, and Dirty Dan heard Don walk around the house to the back door.

"The young devil!" he reiterated to himself. "Faith, whin the cat's away the mice'll play, and divil a worrd o' lie in that! Begorra, I'm thinkin' the ould gint will be scandalized could he know where his darlin' boy is this minute—here, wait a minute Daniel, ye gossoon. Maybe, 'tis for this I've been sint to watch the lad an' not to protecthim . If it is, faith 'tis a job I'm not wishin' for, spyin' on me own boss." He pondered the matter. Then: "Well, sorra wan o' me knows. What if the young fella do be in love wit' her an' his father have wind of it! Eh? What thin, Daniel? A scandal, that's what, an' be the toe-nails o'Moses, nayther The Laird nor his son can afford that. I'll take note o' what happens, but, be the same token, 'tis not to Misther Daney I'll make me report, but to the ould man himself. Sh—what's that?"

His ear being close to the ground, Dirty Dan had caught the sound of a slow, cautious footstep advancing along the path. He flattened himself in the grass and listened, the while he fervently hoped that those who walked the path (for he knew now there were more than one) would not leave it as he had done and at the same point. Should they inadvertently tread upon him, dirty Dan felt that the honor of the McKaye family and the maintenance of the secret of his present employment would demand instant and furious battle—on suspicion.

The unknown pedestrians paused in the path. "Ah done tol' you-all A'm right," Dirty Dan heard one of them say.

"Ha!" thought Dirty Dan. "A dirrity black naygur! I can tell by the vice of him."

One of his companions grunted, and another said, in accents which the astute Mr. O'Leary correctly judged to be those of a foreigner of some sort.

"All right. When he's come out, we jumpa right here. Wha's matter, eh?"

"Suits me," the negro replied. "Let's set down, an' for de Lawd's sake, keep quiet till he come."

Dirty Dan heard them move off to the other side of the path and sit down on the grass.

"So 'tis that big buck nigger from Darrow an' two o' the Greeks," he mused. "An' God knows I never did like fightin' in the dark. They'll knife me sure as a pussy cat."

Decidedly, the prospect did not appeal to Dirty Dan. However, he had his orders to protect The Laird's son; he had his own peculiar notions of honor, and in his wild Irish heart there was not one drop of craven blood. So presently, with the stealth of an animal, he crawled soundlessly away until he judged it would be safe for him to stand up and walk, which he did with infinite caution.

He reached the gate, passed like a wraith through it, and round to the side of caleb Brent's home, in momentary dread of discovery by a dog. He breathed a sigh of relief when, the outcry failing to materialize, he decided the Brent's were too poor to keep a dog; whereupon he filled his pipe, lit it, leaned up against the house, and, for the space of an hour, stood entranced for from Caleb Brent's poor shanty came the voice of an angel, singing to the notes of a piano.

"Glory be!" murmured the amazed Daniel. "Sure, if that's what the young fella hears when he calls, divil a bit do I blame him. Oh, the sweet v'ice of her—and singin' 'The Low-backed Car'!"

Despite the wicked work ahead of him, Dirty Dan was glad of the misfortune which sent him thither. He had in full measure the Gael's love of music, and when, at length, the singing ceased and reluctantly he made up his mind that the concert was over, he was thrilled to a point of exultation.

"Begorra, I didn't expect to be piped into battle," he reflected humorously—ands ought the Brent Woodpile, in which he poked until his hands closed over a hard, sound, round piece of wood about three feet long. He tested it across his knee, swunk it over his head, and decided it would do.

"Now thin, for the surprise party," he reflected grimly, and walked boldly to the gate, which he opened and closed with sufficient vigor to advertise his coming, even if his calked boots on the hard path had not already heralded his advance. However, Dirty Dan desired to make certain; so he pursed his lips and whistled softly the opening bars of "The Low-backed Car" in the hope that the lilting notes would still further serve to inculcate in the lurking enemy he was a lover returning well content from his tryst. As he sauntered along, he held his bludgeon in readiness while keen eyes searched—and presently he made out the crouching figures.

"The naygur first—to hold me, whilst the Greeks slip a dirk in me," he decided shrewdly.

He heard the scuttering rush start, and, with the shock of combat, his carefully re-arranged plan of battle quite fled his mercurial mind. He met the charge with a joyous screech, forgot that he had a club, and kicked viciously outw ith his right foot. His heavy logger's boots connected with something soft and yielding, which instinct told him was an abdomen; instinct, coupled with experience, informed him that no man could assimilate that kick in the abdomen and yet remain perpendicular, whereupon Dirty Dan leaped high in the air and came down with both terrible calked boots on something which gave slightly under him and moaned. On the instant, he received a light blow in the breast and knew he had been stabbed.

He remembered his club now; as he backed away swiftly, he swung it, and from the impact, concluded he had struck a neck or a shoulder. That was the luck of night fighting; so, with a bitter curse, Dirty Dan swung again, in the pious hope of connecting with a skull; he scored a clean miss and was, by the tremendous force of his swing, turned completely round. Before he could recover his balance, a hand grasped his ankle and he came down heavily on his face; instantly, his assailant's knees were pressed into his back. With a mighty heave he sought to free himself, at the same time flinging both legs upward, after the fashion of one who strives to kick himself in the small of the back; whereupon a knife drove deep into his instep, and he realized he had not acted a split too soon to save himself from a murderous thrust in the kidneys—a Greek's favorite blow.

SEIZE $2,000,000 IN COUNTERFEIT BILLS

NEW YORK, August 16.—(United Press)—Secret service agents under direction of Joseph Palma arrested five men in Floral Park, Long Island, during the night and confiscated more than $2,000,000 in counterfeit $100 bills, it was learned yesterday. They were Samuel and David Cohen, Joseph Rossoff, Joseph Kittlebaum and George Sneros.

The arrests were the result of investigations covering the last six months, and were considered most important.

A complete set of dies and counterfeiters' tools were found.

It was reported the men confessed when brought to New York. They were to be arraigned before United States Commissioner S. M. Hitchcock late today.

Rose and Mary Wilton Believe in Hoosier State

"And," said Rose Wilton triumphantly, "we just got sick of advertising Georgia and the Carolinas and all those states, when there was good old Indiana that raised us and looked out for us and is really home, sweet home to us. So we collared a Hoosier song writer who is a friend of ours and said—"

"Now you write us a piece about Indiana, that's what you say," broke in Mary in a voice so much like her sister's that you would never have dreamed one had stopped speaking and the other begun if you hadn't been watching their lips.

"And he did," Rose took up the tale promptly. "It's 'Blue Hoosier Blues', a perfectly grand wally foxtrot, and maybe you think we don't sing it with expression!"

They do, and the song has carried the team billed as the "Wilton Sisters" right to the top of all the programs they grace.

"We're a Hoosier boosting club of two," proclaimed Mary, "and we suit our words to our actions by putting our money into land back home."

"And this summer we're going to London to boost the Hoosier state by singing the 'Blue Hoosier Blues' there," ended Rose happily.

Many Russian Bonds For America

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Japanese ports are filled with Russian refugees bound for America as a result of the opening of the new fiscal year for immigration to that country, and steamships arriving in the Pacific ports of the United States during the next month will be crowded with immigrants.

Most of the Russians coming to Japan en route to the United States are from Siberia, Harbin being the starting point of their journey. Every train which comes into Yokohama from Shimonoseki is crowded with them and the sidewalks are packed with those who are endeavoring to make or have already made bookings for the trans-Pacific voyage.

The immigrants preparing to go in now are those who come under the new immigration laws of the United States. Students, teachers, government officials, merchants, professional men, business men and tourists are not supposed to be included in present quotas and will be allowed to enter at any time they may reach the United States.

The number of persons of this class allowed to go into the United States yearly from Russia under the new regulations is 24,405, the number being restricted to twenty per cent. of the total entrance each month.

"Digby" Sails

With the largest number of passengers on board since she took up the service, the Furness Liner Digby sailed for Halifax and Boston this forenoon. All available accomodation including several of the ship's officers' rooms, is occupied, and it is all the more remarkable, in view of the fact that the Manoa and Silvia which sailed on Saturday last, were also filled to capacity.

Never in the history of the steamship companies have they received so many applications for passages, and both the Rosalind, sailing on Saturday and the Silvia on Sept. 8th, are already booked in advance, while bookings for the Sachem, due here in four weeks, are now being made. Practically all those travelling by these boats are visitors of persons making business trips.

The Digby has twenty passengers in transit from Liverpool, and the following are embarking here:

J. and Mrs. Lahey, G. C. and Mrs. Snow, G. Snow, J. H. Snow, Mrs. M. Ellis, Miss A. Ellis, Mrs. and Miss Trickett, W. J. McMahon, J. Mercer, C. Watson, E. R. and Mrs. Burgess, W. E. Sproule, E. ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, TUESDAY, AUG. 28th., 1923.

To Houour Our Fallen Heroes

Although the promised visit of Field Marshal, Earl Haig and Lady Haig to this Colony is nearly a year distant, the occasion will be looked forward to by our people with the keenest anticipation.

Newfoundland, as Britain's oldest possession across the seas, has been honored time and again by Royal visitors, but the coming of the Commander-in-chief of the armies of the Empire has for us a significance and a distinction peculiarly its own.

In extending an invitation to Earl Haig to officiate at the unveiling of Newfoundland's National War Memorial the Government showed that they were sensible of the fact that the greatest honor the country can pay her fallen heroes is but their barest due, while by its acceptance, Earl Haig has signified his desire to pay personal tribute to the memory of those who paid the supreme price for world democracy.

None will more deeply appreciate the great honor of Field Marshal Haig's visit than the brothers-in-arms of those who have gone "west," unless it be the fathers and mothers of the heroic boys to whose memory the whole country will pay special tribute on Memorial Day of next year.

It is understood that besides these distinguished visitors many others including Lt. Col. Freyberg, V.C., Lt. Col. Forbes-Robertson, V.C., and other officers who were associated with our Regiment will be coming out for the ceremony. There is also a possibility that the famous poet and novelist Rudyard Kipling, will be included in the party.

It is understood that Lt. Col. Nangle will be returning here shortly, when the preliminary work in connection with the memorial will be started, and the plateau completed before the winter sets in, while the work of erection will commence as soon as the Spring opens.

Better Than Expected

Judging from reports coming from Labrador, the fishery there is very much better than was at first expected.

Every day brings news of some schooners arriving or on the way with good voyages, and telegraph news tell of the good luck of others who are still continuing the fishery.

Practically every one of the many Labrador schooners outfitted from Port Union has arrived to the home port with a bumper trip, and all report that this year's fishery would have been a record one but for the unusually stormy weather and the prevalence of ice, which made fishing a most difficult problem. For periods of many days, fishermen were unable to leave their schooners to go on the fishing grounds or haul their traps Yet fish was more plentiful on the coast than for many years.

The present outlook is favourable and saving voyages will be secured by those who were less successful in the early part of the season. This is further borne out by the message received today from Capt. George Barbour, in which he informs the Shipping Department that the average catch of fifty-one floaters between Cutthroat and Cape Mugford is 450 qtls. or an aggregate of 22,950 qtls. with the livelihood of all the northern schooners getting good voyages if the present favorable weather continues.
will be secured by those who had less successful in the early part of the season.

It is regrettable that the general shore fishery does not show any marked improvement. While weather conditions have militated against the fishermen, it appears that the usual bodies of fish did not strike the coast. This especially applies to the bays, where the fishery has been practically a blank.

However, it is certain that the total catch will be far below the average.

Tourist Traffic

Newfoundland should be one of the greatest attractions for tourists and holiday seekers in the world. It has all the things that go to make a perfect summer resort but one, and that is, pehaps, the most essential of all—hotel accommodation. We cannot expect visitors to come here in large numbers to remain for any length of time unless we can put them upon a manner approaching that to which they are accustomed to be accommodated in other places, and today this is what we cannot do.

Even here in St. John's we have nothing even remotely resembling a modern hotel. Those we have, it is true, are sufficiently up-to-date in their charges, but there their modernness ceases. The visitor finds none of these things which tend so much to add to the pleasure of his stay.

Newfoundland is a century behind the times in this important respect, and until a move is made to get in line with other pleasure resorts, our natural holiday attractions will remain for years, as have our resources of potential wealth, unexplored and unknown.

The Colony has on occasion been visited by sportsmen and tourists who have at some time or other spent vacations at most of the notable resorts on the four continents, and all have been enthusiastic in their praise of Newfoundland, always, however, with the reservation that our hotel accommodation is wretched. What we want is at least one large, up-to-date hotel in St. John's where visitors can find all those conveniences to which they are accustomed, and a number of smaller, but not less modern hotels scattered thruout the country at points of greatest interest and most easily accessible to the hunting grounds and salmon rivers. This matter of accommodation for tourists is a vitally important one, for on it depends the measure of our success in working up a traffic that may well become an industry in itself.

Foodstuffs, Cleanliness and Shop Windows

Last week the Advocate called attention to the necessity of greater care on the part of milk vendors in transfering milk from cans to bottles on every street corner of the city at any time during the day.

Our remarks thereon applies with equal importance to the handling of other articles of food by vendors as well as to the condition of some of the shop windows in this city, in which are articles of food advertised amid surroundings which should at once condemn them unfit for human consumption.

A walk along some of the streets will suffice to show the urgent necessity for a cleaning up in some shop windows even if for appearance's sake only.

It is unlikely that much of the food thus advertised is consumed, and it is fortunate for the health of the city that it is so. But where is the sense of advertising in such a manner?

It should be the duty of some authority to remedy this state of affairs, if the owners do not see fit to advertise foodstuffs under cleaner surroundings.

To-night's Game

To-night the city team which made the trip to Grand Falls will play a picked League team, on St. George's Field, starting at 7 o'clock.

The best material from the senior league is included in both line-ups, so that a good game is expected. The following will be the line-up:

City—Goal, Walsh; full backs, Delahunty, Thistle; half backs, Maddigan, Duggan, Vavasour; forwards, Coultas, Meaney, Ewing, Quick, Flynn.

City—Goal, Noseworthy; backs, Brown, Rose; havles, Martin, Foster, Elton; forwards, E. Phelan, W. Callahan, J. Young, Goldstone Meadus.

Examination Results

The school holidays are over and school opens, in most places, on September 1st. Another year faces the teachers and the children, who recuperated from the summer months, musr address themselves to the year's new studies with fresh vigor.

We understand from the educational authorities that the examination results are not to be expected until at least the end of next week.

It gives this system a greater cable mileage between North America and Europe, than that of any other company. In the construction of this new cable, which is the largest ever manufactured for deep-sea operation.

There is more than 4,000,000 pounds of copper; 1,800,000 pounds of gutta percha and some 800,000 miles of iron and steel wires of various sizes, were used. The cable will be capable of transmitting 1,200 letters per minute, 600 in each direction simultaneously a capacity nearly twice that of any other long cable now in operation anywhere.

This is the first cable to be laid between the United States and Europe since 1910.

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE

During 1922 there were 402 labor conflicts in Austria, 366 strikes and 36 lock-outs. One-third of these strikes, in which 58,732 men were involved, took place in Vienna. Only 94 of the strikers were successful, 173 were partially successful and the rest failures.

The British Columbia whaling fleet is to set out again this year for the grounds of the northern coast of the province about thirty to forty miles out to sea where the finback, set sperm and sulphur bottom abound. The Pacific Coast industry, it is stated, faces much better prospects this season and a lengthy expedition and substantial catches are anticipated

For some time past adverse economic conditions and the depressing prices of whale oil have been discouraging. In the year 1920 a total of 432 of the mammals were taken. In the year 1921 the situation was so black that the fleet did not set out at all, and the continuance of these conditions in 1922 caused it to operate for a period of three months only, in the course of which 187 whales were captured. This contrasts with the bumper year for the Pacific Coast activity when 999 whales were dispatched and brought into the refineries.

The value of the whale catch to the province of British Columbia usually exceeds half a million dollars revenue of more than a quarter of a million dollars. The export of the whale meat from Canada in the last fiscal year to the United Kingdom, United States and other countries amounted to 6,671 hundredweight, worth $10,969, and that of whale oil to the same destinations 65,357 hundredweight, worth $27,108. In average years this latter industry is worth much more to Canada as evidenced in the figures of 1920, when 557,299 gallons with a value of $682,365 were exported.

Monster Tuna.

A tuna fish, weighing 1,600 pounds, the largest ever caught in New Jersey waters, was landed on July 20 at Manasquan by a crew of the Manasquan Fish Company. The fish weighing 100 pounds more than another of the sames pecies caught by the same company a few days ago. T he crew, under Captain Helding Swanson, struggled with the monster for two hours and were finally compelled to dive into the water to shackle it with ropes after it had dashed to pieces two sets of tackle. Some of the crew were injured in their efforts to hoist the fish into their boat. It was fourteen feet long.

The Battle cruiser Renown which carried the Prince of Wales on his tours of Canada, Australia and the Far East, is to undergo a refitting which will change her from a floating palace into a first class fighting ship This ship and her sistership, the Repulse, were built on the theory that speed was above armament but after the performance of the similar ship, the Invincible, in the battle of Jutland, this theory has been put in the waste basket.

The estimated cost of putting the Renown on a level with the best ship in her class will cost $4,000,000. She cost originally $15,000,000.

A City of Music.

It is customary to estimate New York's eminence as a musical city from its operatic performances, symphony concerts and other similar organized offerings of music. The figures published in connection with the threatened strike of musicians employed in theatres provide the basis for a different kind of inventory of the city's musical resources no less impressive.

The strike would affect 10,000 professional musicians and the wage advances of from $20 to $35 a week which are demanded would, if granted, increase their pay by from $200,000 to $350,000 weekly, or at a yearly for the minimum figure of above $10,000,000.

The body of theatre musicians thus forms the equivalent in numbers of the population of a thriving city, and their earnings at their present rate of pay of $65 a week make a yearly total of magnitude even for New York.

The metropolis, of course, does everything on a scale which throws ordinary computations out of proportion. But it is to be wondered if in all the remarkable progress made by the city in a decade there has been any phase of development matching that of the increase of its amusement facalities, of which the army of professional musicians forms an important part.

Finds New Fishing Bank On Labrador Coast.

According to the Canadian Fisherman, a new fishing bank, 200 by 90 miles, off the coast of Labrador, has been discovered by Captain Daniel McDonald, formerly skipper of the British trawler Sir John French. Captain McDonald believes it to be a valuable acquisition to the already known fishing banks, abounding in codfish and halibut, but he has not yet made known the exact location, although he has it accurately charted.

The bank runs 200 miles southly and 90 miles in an easterly direction. It is something of a kite shape. The shoalest water is 76 fathoms and the same soundings, varying but little, were prevalent over a large part of the bank.

Capt. McDonald believes that the bank has been fished on before, but never charted. There seemed to be plenty of codfish and halibut. The quality of the halibut is exceptional and fish of the same quality which he took in his venture have never been caught in those waters previous to this trip.

Capt. McDonald will communicate with the authorities in Washington shortly and will call the new find McDonald Bank.

Shortly before reaching the new fishing ground, Capt. McDonald sighted seven polar bears on the drift ice and icebergs. They were within sight of and within a few miles of the land and were off the Labrador coast. The country was wild and in about longitude 54 west, and latitude 53.30 north.

Will Lusitania be Refloted?

Her Gold Object of Search By Salvage Ship.

The clearance papers of a mysterious ship which sailed out of Dover recently give "the North Atlantic" as her destination. She is the Semper Paratus, whose owner, Ciuni Zanardi Landi, principal of the Ayercady Salvage and Towage Syndicate, Ltd., announced a few weeks ago that he would try to raise the Lusitania and tow her to the Irish coast, says a report in the London Daily Express.

He said then that he would be ready "within a few months." Now he has sailed for an unknown spot in a ship stocked with provisions and equipped with deep-sea diving apparatus, electric blasting machinery and high-powered submarine searchlights.

The Lusitania has been at the bottom of the sea more than eight years. Several syndicates and individuals have let it be known that they would search for the treasure. More than one company has been formed for that purpose. Count Landi's company stated recently that they had obtained the sole right to undertake the work.

Nobody has any idea how much money and other treasure is in the Lusitania. Count Landi believes that there are millions, and he hopes to clear at least $1,000,000 after paying expenses.

He will use diving equipment of his own invention, which he claims can enable a driver to withstand the tremendous pressure of water at great depths. The limit of diving possibilities has hitherto been about 120 feet, but Count Landri declares that a diver equipped with his invention can go down 500 feet, nearly twice the depth at which the Lusitania lies.

Captain A. A. Bestic, who was her third officer when she was torpedoed, has stated that the specie room was practically empty, passengers having left their jewels at home when the Germans threatened to sink the ship. He has also stated that she was split in two by the explosions.

Count Landi admits that the work will take two or three summers. He expects his divers to close the liner's water-tight compartments, after which the water will b pumped out and compressed air pumped in until she floats.

Sends Officer To Cartwright

As a result of the enquiry conducted by the Justice department into the mysterious death of Miss Margaret Lindsay at Cartwright, Labrador, last year, the Department is going still further in an effort to get at the truth of the unfortunate occurrence, and Head Constable Byrne has been been despatched to the scene and left here by the Sagona yesterday.

At the post mortem examination a wound was discovered in the body, yet no weapon has been recovered; hence the report of the detective and the results of his visit will be awaited with interest.

Mammy Songs Now Said To Be Hellenic

Modern Syncopation Akin to Greek Odes Declare Singers

Who'd have thought that mammy songs, which originated way-down south in Dixie where the pickanninies always have been crooned to sleep by the mellowest melodies on earth, could be traced back to Homer and those other high-brow shining lights of Grecian times?

But according to Joe McFarlane and John Palace, who sing in vaudeville for a living and delve in Greek poetry just for fun outside working hours, this is true.

"Pure Greek, that's what the mammy songs like 'Carolina Mammy' are," Palace insisted. "Trochaic and iambic and all that sort of thing, classical in the extreme, and just crammed full of sheer, heart-touching beauty.

"We have tried the experiment of combining syncopated singing with the recitation of the lyrics of a trochaic ode. While I am careoling these bars:

McFarlane recites with true Greek gestures:

"Carolina Mammy,
I'm longing for you—"

"It works, too, proves our point and gets us thunderous applause."

The Prince Visits Dorsetshire Poet

LONDON, Aug. 23—The Prince of Wales visit to the home of Thomas Hardy, the aged poet and novelist, while His Royal Highness was on a tour of Dorsetshire recently touched the popular imagination as few things else have done in the career of even this remarkable Prince of the Empire. It was an occasion somewhat unique in the annals of British Royalty, this comparatively youthful heir to the throne paying a personal call to the octogenarian man of letters. Both of them enjoyed it.

The poet's wife also was a sharer in the little dramatic scene—only these three participating in it. Max Gate, Dorchester, the home of the Hardy's, henceforth will have an additional charm for the people of the town and countryside, for the most popular prince has paid tribute to Dorchester's own most popular poet.

All day long the Prince's motor-car sped through Mr. Hardy's world; not only through, the very country which the great writer has transfigured for so many of his readers by the shifting lights of his genius, but the country he has peopled with characters that do not die like moral men and women. Here are houses, farms, cottages, beautiful with the time-worn loveliness of Wessex; but their beauty is overlaid by their poetical interest, for in them live the spirits of Bathsheba Everdene, Gabriel Oak, Eustacia Vye, and Tess. Such habitations are familiar, though his readers may never have seen them, since Mr. Hardy has the secret of giving his eyes to his readers. And with his eyes they look also at the barrows and downs that stretch along the horizon in hues of green and purple, brown and gold.

The Prince's route may not be related to Mr. Hardy's books by such links as the literary investigator lovers to forge. But the vertiable Hardy air is breathed forth by names like Warminister, Mere, Shaftersbury and Upwey. Through some of the places the Prince passed; at some he stayed to meet Dutchy tenants, or for other various objects of his tour. Then, at last, Dorchester gave him a welcome which might have been a chapter out of an unpublished Wessex novel. This chapter would describe how a son of the Wessex soil, having lifted himself to greatness, joined in his towns greeting of a Prince, who afterwards delighted to honour him, and be honoured by him, in his own home.

The road into Dorchester cuts deeply high, wooded banks. The banks were filled by children in simple, pretty presses; while the road was kept by Boy Scouts and Girl Guides. A blazing sun from quite a blue sky brought out the colour wherever it showed among the rich green of the trees or in the heat of the flagged and bannered road. The children's sweet, trained voices rang out in the chorus from THE DYNASTS specially set to music.

At the top of the road the Prince was received by the Mayor and Corporation in a covered stand, where Mr. Hardy had a place. His Royal Highness was then conducted, through lines of the Dorchester Regiment, to a new Torritorial drill hall which he declared open in a short speech. Mr. Hardy was present at this ceremony. From the Drill Hall he drove with the Prince amid the cheers of people pleased to see the young and the old faces side by side, to Max Gate.

As for Mr. Hardy, he may be 80 odd, but his lined countenance bore a very alert and cheerful expression, and, if it spoke truly, he enjoyed to the full the bustle and colour of the streets, and shared to the full the joy of his fellow-townsmen.

The house at Max Gate stands secluded among the closely growing trees that overshadow it. There was no mob at the gates. The privacy of Mr. Hardy and his guest was respected in intention no less than fact. The photograph taken after luncheon on the lawn will be the sole reconition of an occasion that charms alike the fancy of the Hardy students and of the men who could not tell how Tess came of the D'Urbervilles.

The Prince visited the Wishing Well at Upwey—as though nothing was to break the spell of this memorable day in "Wessex" and took a drink therefrom but forgot to wish before drinking, as he should have done of course.

His Royal Highness' visit was made all the more enjoyable by his receiving, while at Dorchester, a telegram from the Society of Dorchester men in London.

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every can

No wonder it gives greater richness to cooking

When you want to make foods especially rich and fine-flavored you put in plenty of cream or butter, don't you?

They're expensive you know; but they're great enrichers because they contain lots of butter fat.

Now you can get milk that is rich in butter fat, milk that must give finer results in your cooking but which is inexpensive to use.

The grocers are featuring it—Libby's Milk. Every 16-oz. can of it contains 7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat!

"The milk that good cooks use"

Good cooks everywhere are using this milk. So many of them, in fact, that in certain localities nearly everyone calls it "the milk that good cooks use".

It isn't ordinary canned milk, of course, nor is it milk from ordinary cows.

There are, as you know, certain sections of this country which are famous for their dairy products, pasture lands where grass grows thick and green in watered valleys and wooded hills give grateful shade.

Cows naturally produce their richest milk where nature and man combine to help them, as in these favored sections.

And you know, too, that certain kinds of cows give richer milk than others.

By placing our condenseries in the heart of these favored sections we get, for Libby's Milk, the finest milk in the land, milk from selected herds.

We add nothing to it; we simply evaporate more than half the moisture from it, making it double rich. Then we seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it so you can get it fresh and pure no matter where you live.

Richer milk means richer cooking

Order a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer today. Try it in soups and sauces, in cakes, breadstuffs and desserts—in anything you've been making with other milk. See what new richness, what delightful flavor it gives to all your cooking.

Like thousands of other women you'll make Libby's your regular cooking milk when once you have seen what a difference it makes. You know now why it makes that difference—7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat in every can of it.

Many exceptionally fine recipes have been sent us by good cooks who use Libby's Milk. Some of them have been printed in a convenient folder, a copy of which we'll be glad to send you free. Write today.

Mme Marceline d'Alroy

Mlle. Marceline D'Alroy applauded everywhere as the petite Parisienne who packs plenty of punch in her newspaper paragraphs is even more vivid than a front page cover of a graphic French magazine.

As the Author of the tremendously popular "You said it, Marceline" column that is sweeping America with its pert and pepful points, Mlle d'Alroy is the most talked of newspaper writer of the day.

Editors are besieged with queries as to who Marceline is, where she comes from, and how she manages to sparkle continuously with such glittering epigrammatic pyrotechnics. Almost overnight, Mlle. d'Alroy has won more widespread fame than a Broadway Star or "a best seller's author.

Mademoiselle does not claim to be a self-made woman who started from poverty and worked her way up to the top. On the contrary, she says: "I was a very lucky child. I had everything—but, most important of all, I was intensely loved. That is the greatest kick-off than anybody can have in the game of life.

"Then, I have much, so much to thank two countries for—France and England, for my mother belonged to one and my father to the other. Both supplemented each other—and I am of both. My heart and sympathies, my spirit romancing, my joy of life is of France: my mind, my practicability, my solidness (not solidness) my wish to know 'where I am going' in English."

Mademoiselle Marceline considers herself very fortunate in having an excellent education. She never went to school but she was taught by Governesses and Tutors in her own home, and she says that she learned there many gracious things that are taught in schools.

"My father did not approve of aesthetic dancing, but my mother who was very beautiful, believed dancing made girls very graceful, and had me taught—in later years. I was very grateful, for this, because, when it became imperative that I earn my own living, it was as a solo dancer that I got my first start in my business career" but Marceline adds that she has never been instructed in a gymnasium, and her graceful movements and slander lines she attributes to a series of simple calisthenics which she still does regularly.

"My mind was well trained," she continues, and I was taught to listen intelligently and talk tactfully—I still listen a lot!"

When Marcelfne was eighteen—owing to circumstances which she prefered not to speak of—she made her first public appearance as a solo dancer at the Drury Lane Theatre in London, being at that time a pupil of Acelaide Genee. Then followed many interesting and varied experiences, not the least important of which was prepared debutantes, and teaching society women the art of poise and grace for court presentation, etc.

Mlle D'Alroy has written a one-act satire on married life, called "C'est la Vie," which she played all the characters herself. She states, naively, "It was a little too French to produce publicly in London, but at private homes, it was greatly appreciated. One of its features fas that I wore some gorgeous negligees. During my visit to Los Angeles, I presented this playet for a week at a leading hotel and it proved very successful."

From all these experiences in various parts of the world, and from extensive reading, Mlle. D'Alroy has secured the information and inspiration which makes her "You said It," Marceline column the most popular feature of its kind in the press to-day.

And not to omit a rather important biographical detail, Marceline (as the Mlis. indicates- is not married now

CONTINUED UNEMPLOYMENT IN BRITAIN BLAMED UPON FRENCH ECONOMIC SCHEME

Political, Military and Economic Domination of Europe Declared Aim of France—Workmen Rush for Sailings to U.S. for September Quota.

LONDON, August 21. — (United News)—Hundreds of skilled British workmen already are gathering at Southampton and Liverpool to sail for American ports as part of the new September immigration quota.

Sir Auckland Geddes' report on Ellis Island conditions has failed to have any retarding effect on the rush. Faced by a winter of heavy unemployment and suffering, thousands of the best type of British mechanics and laborers are preparing to make a new start in the United States. Employment prospects are gloomy here.

At the present time 1,185,000 men are officially registered as being out of work. When account is taken of their families, this means that six million people are in distress for want of jobs.

Even this number, however, does not indicate the full extent of industrial depression in the British Isles, for large numbers of jobless men neglect to register their names with the Ministry of Labor.

Government officials do not conceal their alarm over the prospect for a bitter winter. The Ministry of Labor has outlined schemes of relief, which entail an expenditure of $150,000,000 in promoting construction works and other measures designed to provide employment, but these proposals have been attacked as vague and inadequate. Even the Government admits that the relief projects will not care for more than 300,000 men, and of this number 100,000 will benefit only indirectly.

The prospect has immense potentialities, for it promises to undermine not only the economic situation, but will exert a pronounced effect on political and social conditions.

All discussion of the subject eventually recognizes the fact that industry will receive no material stimulus, until conditions on the continent become stabilized. That explains Britain's desperate anxiety to settle the Franco-German struggle. It also reveals why a growing section of British opinion now fears that France not only seeks the political and military control of Europe, but is also going after economic domination. British industrialists charge that France by keeping central Europe in a ferment of disturbance and despair, is closing British markets while she consolidates her own position.

The industrial group in the House of Commons, headed by Sir Allan Smith, has addressed a letter to Premier Baldwin, strongly protesting against the Government's attitude toward unemployment, as outlined in a recent debate in the House. The industrial group declares:

"If the present rate of unemployment is maintained (and there was nothing in the minister of labor's speech to encourage the most sanguine to hope that the rate will be checked), this relief will be quite inadequate to prevent even larger numbers than last year from becoming workless.

"The gravity of the position cannot be exaggerated. A point which does not appear to have the consideration it deserves, is the demoralization resulting from continued unemployment and its deadening influence on the workers and more particularly on the youth of the country. The whole question of national vitality is at stake."

In Scotland recently your correspondent encountered this feeling of the "deadening influence," which unemployment is exerting on the "national vitality." Thoughtful Scots deplored that large numbers of the country's best workmen were emigrating to America as fast as the quota law would admit them. But the indifferent workmen—the men who are least desirable physically and intellectually—are paid to remain home where they can draw the dole that the Government pays out to the idle.

NOT ENOUGH GOLD TO CROWN TOOTH

Explorers Back From Stag Bay, Labrador, With No Fortune.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., August 20.—(Canadian Press.)—The yacht Silvia II. reached port Saturday afternoon after a speedy but boisterous run from the Labrador coast and reported that prospecting activities at Stag Bay have not produced enough gold to crown a tooth.

The little ship is commanded by Captain A. Butler, who was accompanied north by Patrick Cochrane, a mining engineer. Both declare themselves satisfied that no gold alluvial deposits are to be found in Big Brook. It may be, they say, that further up in the mountains in the rock formation gold may be, but such signs of the presence of the precious metal as reported last fall and winter was not found by them. An old experienced Klondyker named Edwards, who returned as a passenger by the Silvia II., was much more expressive in giving his opinion. He said: "The rocks bear no indication of being gold-bearing and the man who says there's gold in paying quantities in Stag Bay is a bally liar."

The Butler party went up Big Brook about thirty miles. Other prospectors who had previously arrived on the scene had gone inland fifty miles but from no source had Butler been able to get reliable information that gold in any quantity had been located.

JEFFERIES CONFIDENT

The Silvia II., arrived at Stag Bay in the early evening of July 21. When they got there the Labrador police contingent from Newfoundland had already erected their station and the Newfoundland Government steamer Watchful was anchored in the Bay. The aerial survey motorboat Pixie B., and the Climax, Capt. Peter Roberts, had also arrived with supplies for the Butler party. The Silvia II., was navigated up the river several miles. The brook is very shoal and Capt. Butler's opinion is that the Silvia was the first vessel to attempt to navigate the river and that she will probably be the last.

Frank May's staff of prospectors, which left here by the first Labrador trip of the Sagona, early in the summer were camped three miles up Big Brook, and contrary to Butler's opinion, Jefferies, himself an old miner and a practical mining engineer, is confident that gold can be obtained in commercially paying quantities. The May party were working away in normal fashion and are still sanguine of success. Asked if they had been successful Butler said traces of gold were found during the northern cruise at Temple Bay and Chatteau, but the signs were such as one might find in his backyard and were not worth bothering about.

REICHSTAG BACKS STRESEMANN ON RESISTANCE PLAN

BERLIN, August 15.—(Associated Press)—The new Cabinet headed by Chancellor Stresemann was given a vote of confidence yesterday by the Reichstak, 240 deputies out of a total of 341 balloting in favor of the Government. Seventy-six votes were cast in opposition, while 25 deputies, supposed to be of the Bavarian Peoples' party, abstained from voting. The other opposition came from the Nationalists and Communists.

The vote came after Dr. Stresemann had addressed the Reichstag and given that body the new Government's view.

BELIEVE ASIA AND NORTH AMERICA LINKED

PEKING, Aug. 13.—The existence of a land connection between Asia and North America has been unquestionably established, in the opinion of Roy Chapman Andrews, leader of an expedition which is now penetrating the heart of the Gobi desert for the purpose of verifying geological and other scientific theories. It is stated that the explorations of this expedition are every day strengthening the contention that Central Asia was the centre of dispersal of the mammalian life of Europe and America.

Mr. Andrews has written to friends here stating that the first month of the expedition's work has been far beyond his hopes. Where he expected to discover only fragments, he has come upon immense deposits of large and small dinosaur bones. It will require many months to exhaust this region, he says, but two partially complete skeletons and parts of several others have been removed, including herbiverous dinosaurs thirty feet long whose bones have been lying in the Mongolian plains for probably five million years. The Gobi desert, which is now a sunbaked wilderness of sand, was once a tropical jungle dense with vegetation and animal life of all kinds, according to the theories being confirmed by the Andrews' expedition.

The expedition has found the remains of a giant dog-like carnivore as well as many teeth and jaws of an ancestral tapir-like animal. The belief that Mongolia is one of the world's greatest fossil fields is thoroughly substantiated by these discoveries, and Mr. Andrews estimates that it will require a hundred years of work by many expeditions to exhaust these huge deposits.

Late in June the expedition headed westward towards the central Gobi desert, and no further communication with the outside world will be available until it returns to Kalgan in October.

"We will be almost completely buried as though we were at the North Pole," writes Mr. Andrews. "We expect to investigate areas which we located last summer and to explore new reigions south of the Altai mountains towards Chinese Turkestan and far to the west. In some of the western deposits, which are of extraordinary interest, we hope to find new evidence of animal and possibly human ancestry."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS PREVENTED WAR IN UPPER SELESIA

OTTAWA, Aug. 23—(By Canadian Press) The recent statement made by Hon. P. C. Larkin, High Commissioner for Canada in London, that the action of the League of Nations with regard to Upper Silesia had averted war, is corroborated by W. Gleaves Doyle, European representative of the League of Nations Society in Canada, in a communication to the headquarters of the Society, at Attawa.

The Upper Silesian question, says Mr. Doyle, one of first international importance and complicated as it was, proved a matter which the Supreme Council of the Allies was unable to solve. Before it was handed over to the League, he says, the question had created bad feeling between France and England and very nearly led to a rupture of the Entente.

By the Treaty of Versailles part of the German province of Upper Silesia, which includes one of the richest industrial centres in Europe, with valuable coal and iron fields, had to be ceded to Poland and it became necessary to fix a new boundry. This was done after a plebiscite had been taken and the result on the map, writes Mr. Doyle, "looked like a case of measels."

Germans in the area numbered 716,000 against 417,000 Poles. Industrial and mining centres voted German, while country districts voted Polish. Thus the Plebiscite rather tended to complicate matters, and meanwhile Polish insurrection broke out under Korfanty, a prominent Silesian Pole. French troops in occupation refused to act against the Poles, and the small number of Italian troops offered ineffectual resistance. Speaking in the French Chamber of Deputies in May, 1921, M. Briand said that the frontier proposed by the British and Italian commissioners would give Poland only 40 per cent. of the Polish population, leaving 60 per cent. to Germany; whilst only 11 per cent. of the German voters would become Polish.

At a meeting held in Paris the following August says Mr. Doyle, it was evident that neither the commissioners nor the Allied Powers could reach an agreement on the question. It was suggested about this time (by Lloyd George it is believed) that the question should be relegated to the Council of the League of Nations. The League took immediate action. A committee was formed of four members of the Council a Belgian, a Brazilian, a Chinese, and a Spaniard assisted by two economic experts, a Czech and a Swiss. Local feeling seemed to rapidly supside once the matter was thus in unbiassed hands, and ten days sufficed in which to agree upon a provisional boundary. The line left 200,000 Poles on the German side and 200,000 Germans on the Polish side. Germans and Poles were then called upon to appoint plenipotentiaries and a Swiss chairman, Mr. Calonder, ex-President of Switzerland, was joined to form the committee. They sat at Geneva for six months and also traversed Upper Silesia, with a view to bringing about tolerable conditions. Sub-committees were appointed to work out local problems.

After much arduous work the members of the committee signed an agreement containing 606 clauses. The cost to the German and Polish nation of the settlement was $5,000 each, and to the League itself, less than maintaining the Allied troops in the area for one week.

In conclusion, Dr. Doyle says that it is not too much to assert, that without the existence of the League, the disagreements could never have been settled peacably. The fact that the League constitutes a higher and impartial court, made its ruling acceptable to each party concerned.

SMOKL NATIONS PIN HOPES ON LEAGUE

By RALPH COURTNEY.

From The World's Bureau.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 19.—Speaking from personal knowledge of the workings of the World Court and of the feelings of European countries toward the League of Nations, Baron Sergius A. Korff, former Deputy Governor General of Finland, who will talk before the Institute of Politics Tuesday, declared to-day the smaller nations of Europe were living in terror of the future and placed all their hopes in the World Court and the League.

All the little countries, carved out by the treaty of Versailles, he said, lived in fear of an unseen future. They foresee the possible return of Germany to her former status and the resurrection of Russia. They wonder whether these countries then will reject their independence.

"Here is where the force of Article X and, I believe Article XVIII, comes in," Baron Korff said. "The League promises to see that territorial boundaries are respected, and therefore these small countries cling to the League for dear life. It is the breath of their existence."

League Firmly Established.

Baron Korff said the League had taken deep root in Europe. The great powers are not altogether conscious of this fact, but they have got into the habit of realizing that the League exists and is active. The smaller powers, on the other hand, are intensely interested in the League and in the international court. Their only hope of defending themselves lies in international justice.

Baron Korff, who was Deputy Governor of Finland under the short-lived Lvoff administration in Russia, has just returned from The Hague. He believes separation of the international court from the League of Nations was necessary and thinks this also was the opinion of the justices and attaches of the court.

The tendency of the Council of the League of Nations, Baron Korff suggested was to put on the shoulders of the world court the League's troublesome cases.

"The court will not consent to be the Attorney General of the League," he said.

In the Karelia case this summer, in which Eastern Karelia, a strip of territory between Finland and Russia, claimed independence from the latter country, it was, in Baron Korff's opinion, correctly held that the court had no jurisdiction.

Definition of Scope Useless

Baron Korff declared his disbelief in the efficacy of an agreement between nations as to the kind of disputes to be submitted to the court. He admitted strong nations might avoid going to the international court on questions capable of leading to war, but said:

"I don't see that an effort to get such an agreement would help. It would be just as hard to obtain as a nation's consent in each individual case."

Baron Korff said the judgments of the court were absolutely independent and neither selection of judges by the League nor its financing thru the League would affect its functioning as an impartial body.

The legal academy established in connection with the court, where students could study international law and attend its sittings, was French in its atmosphere, Baron Korff said. The French took special interest in the academy and in the study of international law. Great strides and fine work had been accomplished, he considered, in reconciling and finding a common working basis for the continental legal system founded on codes and the Anglo-Saxon law based on cases and precedent.

JAPAN GOOD MARKET FOR AUSTRALIAN MEAT

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Adoption of western customs in Japan is making this country a much heavier consumer of meat than in previous years and it is expected that within a short time Japan will demand more meat than any other portion of the Far East.

Arrangements are now being made on a big scale to meet the growing demand, and Australian interests are negotiating for an increase share of the meat trade. An Australian mission is now here, interviewing importers and discussing plans for establishing cold storage facilities in the principal seaports. These facilities are now inadequate to meet the requirements of any appreciable increase in the meat trade.

Vocation Plus Avocation Makes Good Singer

Margaret Merle Works in Stock During Summer So She'll Sing Better in Winter

Margaret Merle has a vocation and an avocation. Winters she prefers the vocation, which is ballad singing. Summers she joins a stock company and begins her avocation, which is acting.

"No, it's not that I'm particularly energetic," she denied, smiling. "As a matter of fact, I can't keep up my vocation without my avocation. Because today, if you'll notice, songs are no longer sung, they're acted. Or at least they must be acted as well as sung if they're to get over.

"The modern audience wants motion, zip, something doing every single minute, and the singer who doesn't give it will soon find herself off the boards. Take this cunning thing I'm rehearsing now, 'I'll Hop, Skip and Jump into My Mammy's Arms!' I sing and suit the action to the words. It never fails to get the house. And I learned the secret during my stock-playing summers."

Frozen Salmon To British Market

What "The Canadian Fisherman" Says

The trawler "Kanuck," owned by Messrs. Hudson Bros., Ltd., returned to Hull, England, the latter part of June, with a cargo of frozen salmon from Newfoundland, the enterprise being one in which Messrs. Hudson Bros. were associated with the Newfoundland Fish Products Co. The "Kanuck's" cargo consisted of 30 tons of the silver fish, or roughly 60,000 lbs. It was packed in ice in boxes, which in turn were stored in heavy layers of ice, the fish rooms being completely filled. Her journey occupied nine days. The work of discharging was difficult and slow, owing to the ice around the boxes having solidified. This had to be broken with picks and the boxes brought up one by one. The market report was one of disappointment. The salmon made from 9d. to 1s. per lb., a low price which was probably influenced by the fact that there has been a lot of Norwegian salmon on offer recently.

Old country authorities feel that failure of the first effort should not discourage. One man says:

"In the circumstances it seems rather surprising that the fish turned out saleable at all, for we gather that the salmon was caught too soon and kept in a very primitive manner pending the arrival of Messrs. Hudson Brothers' vessel, when proper preservation may well have appeared impossible. If the salmon had not been taken out of the water until the boat came in, and then practically alive put straight on the ice, and landed here nine or ten days later, the result must have been very different.

"To ensure this course being taken Charles Hudson has crossed the Atlantic, for the firm's faith in the possibilities of this business is unshaken, so that there may be no handicap to success on the other side. Mr. Hudson also will have a proportion of the fish gutted, because he feels strongly that practical people in the industry realise that a fish must be in a better condition when gutted."

The British trade is in great need of new sources of salmon supply as there is grave fear for the future of domestic resources. Norway is one source, but Newfoundland has the advantage of being within the Empire. Sentiment, however, will not go a long way in the trade and the enterprise must succeed on its merits.

NORTHERN LABRADOR FLOATERS DID WELL

Many Traps Were Lost on Coast In Worst Storms For Years.

A message was received by the Department of Shipping to-day from Capt. George Barbour of the S. S. Senef, which ship is on the Northern Labrador mail service. Capt. Barbour reports having got as far North as Hebron, and says that the fishery from Hopedale to Cut-throat is fairly good, but from Cut-throat to Cape Mugford fishing is poor. There are fifty-one schooners btween Hopedale and Cape Mugford with average catches of 450 qtls. There are no vessels north of Cape Mugford. The weather on that part of the coast has been the worst for years and extensive damage has been done. Several traps werelost but no schooners. The weather has been good the past few days and the messags says if it continues all schooners will secure good voyages. The prevailing winds have been North-East to South-East with fog, rain and sea.

Farewell Luncheon

Captain A. B. Baird, president of the G. W. V. A., presided at the farewell luncheon tendered Captain J. H. Snow at the West End Restaurant yesterday, which was attended by members of the Veterans' Executive, of which Captain Snow was an active worker.

President Baird paid a tribute to the work of their departing comrade, who was ever to the fore where the work of the Association was involved, and on behalf of his fellow members wished Captain Snow every success for the future.

Captain Snow very feelingly replied, and assured his old comrades that he would always taks an interest in the work of the Association even though they were far apart.

Popular Teacher Gets New Appointment

Mr. Dorman Torraville, the popular C. of E. teacher, who taught for six years at Change Islands, arrived last night at Channel, where he teaches this year. Mr. Torraville is to be congratulated on his successful term of teaching at Change Islands and also on his appointment to Channel School. He is originally from Herring Neck and spent most of his summer holidays at the Teachers' Training College here. At Change Islands he is succeeded by Mr. Short, who was last year's teacher at Channel.

Craig-Day Celebration at Smithville To-morrow

The I.O.O.F. are celebrating Craig-Day at Smithville to-morrow afternoon. The annual event is looked forward to with real pleasure by members of the Craft, and to-morrow's fete promises to be "the best ever."

Motorists Will Discuss New Regulations

A general meeting of the Newfoundland Motor Association, will be held at the West End Restaurant on Thursday, Aug. 30th at 1.15 p.m., at which a large attendance is requested.

The following is the business of the meeting:

1. To discuss whether the following shall or shall not become a driving rule of the Association:—

"After dark, cars returning to the city shall have the right of way over cars proceeding from the city—in other words, a car proceeding from the city and meeting a car returning to the city, shall dim lights and stop (or go dead slow) till the incoming car (which need not dim) has passed."

2. To discuss a suggested recommendation from the Association to the Government that tourists' cars brought by them into the colony and remaining only a short period (i.e. tourists from outside of Newfoundland) shall be given a rebate in license fees.

3. To decide whether or not it is the wish of the Association to hold a dinner this season.

4. General business.

Two Norwegian sailors who deserted a steamer in Bay St. George and were sent on here by the magistrate were given shelter at the police station last night. They were handed over to the Norwegian Consul. There are a number of these foreigners being dumped upon the care of the colony recently and customs officials in outports should take extra care in seeing that sailors are put on board before the ship is cleared. We have ample responsibility in taking care of our own without providing a boarding house and a dumping ground for foreign seamen without a ship. Even when they do ship they take the place, in some cases of Nfld. seamen.

A fifty year old tramp who has been sleeping in the woods out Waterford Bridge way and who says his home is in Brigus was sent to the penitentiary for 30 days. He has been around the city 3 or 4 months sleeping in outhouses. Since the fine weather he has taken to the woods.

A cabman, drunk in charge of a horse, paid costs of stabling his horse. He left the beast on Flavin St. near Rawlins' Cross last evening to get oats for it, but instead he so far refreshed himself as to become incapable of taking charge, and the policeman on duty at Rawlins' Cross was obliged to take the rig to livery stable and the Jehu to the police station.

Newfoundland Child Was Drowned in Reservoir At Halifax

Young Brother Made Heroic Attempt To Rescue.

On Saturday last the sad drowning occurred at Halifax of the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brenton, Newfoundlanders, and formerly of Millertown, where Mr. Brenton worked with the A. N. D. Co. as foreman and logging contractor for nine years, going to Halifax in 1916. We give below an account of the tragedy as taken from the Halifax Echo of a recent date:

Hilda M. Brenton, Aged Three Years Lost Her Life on Saturday Afternoon.

Hilda M. Brenton, aged 3 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel W. Brenton, 257 Agricola Street, was drowned on Saturday afternoon in the old Cotton Factory reservoir, in the rear of the Piercey Supply Company's plant. The little girl, with her two small playmates, her brother George, and Danny Campbell, had wandered to the side of the pond and were playing there when the little girl fell in. The child, the boys state, leaned over the concrete wall which skirts the reservoir at this point. She remarked that her face was dirty and she was going to wash it. The water was some feet below, and the child lost her balance and plunged into the shallow pool, which cannot measure more than three or four feet at this point.

The two little boys, aged about five years old, tried to reach her, but they could not, and, frightened and crying, they ran to Mrs. Brenton's home, where they told their story. "I did try to get her, mummy," sobbed George. "I tried, but it was too deep!"

Mrs. Brenton rushed to the reservoir, where apparently the efforts and cries of the boys had attracted attention for several men, Mrs. Brenton says, were standing about peering down into the water. The water, although not deep, was stirred and muddy, and it was impossible to see the child's body. Mrs. Brenton says that when she attempted to go into the water to try to rescue her baby the men prevented her and forcibly detained her, despite her pleas and cries. She says they themselves made no efforts to find the child's body, and that they prevented her from effecting a possible rescue. A small crowd soon gathered around and while the two little boys indicated the spot where "Sister" had gone down, a ladder was secured, and the body recovered with the aid of a stick. Dr. Douglas was sent for and he made every effort to revive life in the little form, but the child was dead.

"Sister" was just three years old, and a pretty, attractive child, with golden hair and big brown eyes; she was the baby of the family, and her mother is heart-broken at the tragic death of the little one. The father, Samuel Brenton, is a well-known carpenter, and a sad feature of the case is the fact that he is away at New York at the present time.

The little girl played constantly with her five year old brother, and his pal, Danny Campbell, and they often wandered away to the bank of the reservoir, which in this case at least has proved to be a tragic spot for a children's play ground.

Solemn High Mass for Late Rev. Dr. Whalen

Solemn Requiem Mass and Office, was celebrated at the R. C. Church, North River, at 9.30 yesterday morning, for the repose of the soul of the late Rev. Dr. S. J. Whelan.

His Lordship Bishop March, was celebrant, Rev. Dr. P. W. Browne, Washington D.C., deacon and Rev. Dr. Murphy, Brigus, sub-deacon, while Rev. Fr. O'Neill was master of ceremonies.

In the Sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Mgr. McCarthy, V.G., Carbonear, Rev. E. O'Brien, Rev. M. F. Dinn, Hr. Grace, and Rev. W. J. Murphy, Conception Hr.

The ceremony was a very impressive one, and the congregation was exceptionally large, many people attending from surrounding settlements while several close friends of the deceased cleric went out from the City including Lady Cashin, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C., and R. J. Murphy.

A remarkable circumstance incident to the ceremony was that Dr. Browne and Dr. Murphy, both natives of Carbonear, are, like was the Rev. Dr. Whelan, Alumni of Laval and both had assisted at Dr. Whelan's ordination at Carbonear some twenty-two years ago and it is noteworthy also that Dr. Whelan began his ecclesiastical career as Dr. Browne's associate at Whitbourne.

MOTOR BOAT WITH THREE OCCUPANTS IS MISSSING

Launch Seen Bottom Up Is Believed To Be Doomed Craft.

HALIFAX, N.S., Aug. 8—It is feared that three occupants of a motor launch, which left Port Medway on August 23 and has not been heard of since, have been drowned. An American fishing schooner reports that she saw a power boat bottom up twenty miles off shore on Thursday after a heavy gale and that the boat's bottom was painted green which was the color of the missing craft. The spot where the upturned craft was sighted was the place where she would have been fishing.

India's Richest Prince Is Dead

FLUSHING, Holland, Aug. 28.—Maharaja Gaswar of Barida, said to be the richest prince in India, died here tonight on the journey from Berlin. He was taken ill on the train and died just as Flushing was reached. It was Maharaja of Barida who created the sixth international sensation at Delhi Durbar in 1912 when he turned his back upon King George instead of walking backward as is customary in the presence of Royalty. Any doubt of his loyalty was dispersed through his gallant assistance to the Empire during the Great War. He was sixty years old.

ALASKA HAS ANOTHER BIG GOLD FIND

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 28—Discovery of placer gold, reported to run as high as four dollars gold to the pan, on Toklat River, sixty miles from the Alaska railroad was the signal for a general stampede from Nenana and other interior points. The find was made by Indians.

FREE STATERS WIN MANY VICTORIES

Cosgrave and De Valera's Chief of Staff Are Amongst Elected.

DUBLIN, Aug. 29—President Wm. T. Cosgrove has been elected on the first preference vote from Kilkenny. The President's brother, Philip, was elected from South Dublin, and General Richard Mulcahy, Minister for Defence, and Kavin O'Higgins, Minister for Home Affairs, both at present in the cabinet, were also returned from Dublin. C. N. Byrne, Government candidate from Wicklow was also elected. Professor John McNeil, Minister of Education, was returned for the National University. Professor Michael Hayes speaker of the last Dail, and Professor McGennie also were elected for the National University, making a clean sweep for the Government in that constitutency. Frank Aitken, Chief of Staff to Eamonn de Dalera, was elected to the Dail from County Louth.

BELGIUM'S OPINION IS GERMANY IS RESPONSIBLE

PARIS, Aug. 29—In Belgium's reply to the British note Foreign Minister Jaspar proposes a new method of procedure in the negotiations, suggesting conversations among the Allies "without referring to the old system of conferences." He remarks that if reduction in Germany's debt is necessary, the balance she is obliged to pay ought to apply to material damages only. This might be understood as meaning the elimination of pensions from the Allied claims on Germany, thus reducing the British share to an infinitesimal percentage. The Ruhr regime, the note says, is what the Germans have required it to be by their violence and resistance, and M. Jaspar holds Germany alone responsible for the existing situation in the Ruhr. Six of the twenty-two pages of the note are devoted to a discussion of Belgium's priority in reparations payments. In spite of her priority M. Jasper remarks, Belgium has received in cash and kind only a little more than Great Britain or France. He gives what he claims are exact figures in gold marks as follows: Great Britain. 1,257,000,000; France 1,175,000,000; Belgium 1,299,000,000; other Allies 6,420,000,000. In conclusion the Belgian Foreign Minister declares that so long as the security of the countries which suffered from invasion is not assured there can be no endurable peace nor a reduction in armament.

A $90,000 Liquor Steal

CHICAGO, Aug. 28—While three armed men stood guard over three watchmen, seven other robbers to-day loaded 45 barrels of whiskey from warehouse of Waken and McLaughlin, a government bonded warehouse, into a truck. Mayflower May Now Be Contestant In Race

Thousands Were Disappointed When Event Postponed.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 28.—Thousands of people crowding the shore and afloat on all manner of craft, were disappointed today when the open schooner race for the Lipton and Prentiss Trophy was postponed on account of fog. The break in the programme cast gloom over the whole day's proceedings, but one redeeming feature was the announcement that, with the event postponed until Thursday, the Boston schooner Mayflower, notorious because of the controversy regarding her non-eligibility to contest in the International schooner race series would be able to participate in the open event. According to the Race Committee, any bonafide fishing schooner from any part of the world may enter the open event Thursday, providing it comes to the starting line before the gun is fire.

FREE STATE POLL RESULT WILL NOT BE KNOWN FOR FEW DAYS

Election Was Orderly and Big Victory Is Predicted For Cosgrave Candidates.

DUBLIN, Aug. 28.—The electorate of the Irish Free State went to the polls today in 29 constituencies for the election of one hundred and fifty members of the new Dail Eireann; but the results will be kept secret for several days. It is understood that up to the last the campaign was quiet and orderly, almost to dullness. There were trifling exceptions to this in a few cases where enthusiasm outran discretion and resulted in slight disturbances. The universal verdict was that yesterday's was the quietest election in Irish history. Polling has not been heavy and it is believed only sixty per cent. of the electors voted. Gunfire in Dublin early in the morning led many to believe the Republicans had abandoned their stand for law and order, but no explanation has been forthcoming as to the cause of the firing. No doubt is entertained that General Mulcahy will head the poll for North City, and Kevin O'Higgins is certain of election in Dublin County. President Cosgrave is considered a certainty as head of the poll in Carlow, and in Government circles the most cautious prophets estimate that the candidates pledged to support Cosgrave will win at least seventy seats.

CHAPTER XI.

In battle, Dirty Dan's advantage law always in his amazing speed and the terrible fury of his attack during the first five minutes. Even as he threw up his feet, he drew back an elbow and crashed it into his enemy's ribs; like a flash his arm straighten, and his sinewy hand closed over the wrist of an arm that struggled in vain to strike downward. Holding that wrist securely, Dirty Dan heaved upward, got his left elbow under his body, and rested a few moments; another mighty heave, and he tossed off the Greek, and, whirling with the speed of a pin wheel, was on top of his man. He had momentarily released his hold on the Greek's wrist, however, and he had to fight for another hold now—in the dark. Presently he captured it, twisted the arm in the terrible hammer-lock, and broke it; then, while the Greek lay writhing in agony, Mr. O'Leary leapt to his feet and commenced to play with his awful boots a devil's tatoo on that portion of his enemy's super structure so frequently alluded to in pugilistic circles as "the slats." After five or six kicks, however, he paused, due to a difficulty in breathing; so he struck a match and surveyed the stricken field.

The big mulatto and two Greeks lay unconscious before him; in the flickering light of the match, two blood-stained dirks gleamed in the grass, so, with a minute attention to detail, Dirty Dan possessed himself of these weapons, picked up his club, and, reasoning shrewdly that Donald McKaye's enemies had had sufficient combat for a few weeks at least, the dauntless fellow dragged the fallen clear of the path, in order that his youthful master might not stumble over them on his way home, and then disapepared into the night. Half an hour later, smeared with dust and blood, he crawled up to the steps of the Tyee Lumber Company's hospital on his hands and knees, and rapped feebly on the front door. The night nurse came out and looked him over.

"I'm Dirty Dan O'Leary," he wheezed; "I've been fightin' agin."

The nurse called the doctor and two orderlies, and they carried him into the operating room.

"I'm not the man I used to be," Dirty Dan whispered, but glory be, ye should see the other fellers." He opened his hand, and two blood-stained clasp knives rolled out; he winked knowingly, and indulged in humorous reminiscences of the combat while he was being examined.

'You have been slashed to ribbons, Dan," the doctor informed him, "and they've stuck you in the left lung. You've lost a lot of blood. We may pull you through, but I doubt it."

"Very well," the demon replied composedly.

"Telephone Judge Alton to come and get his dying statement," the doctor ordered the nurse, but Dirty Dan raised a deprecating hand.

" 'Twas a private, personal matter, and 'twas settled satisfacthory. I'll not die, an' I'll talk to no man but Misther Daney. Sew me up and plug me lung, an' be quick about it, Docthor."

When Andrew Daney came, summoned by telephone, Dirty Dan ordered all others from the room, and Daney saw that the door was closed tightly after them. Then he bent over Dirty Dan.

"Where's Donald?" he demanded.

"That's neither here nor there, sir," Mr. O'Leary replied evasively. "He's safe, and never knew they were after him. Three o' thim, sir, the naygur and two Greeks. I kidded thim into thinkin' I was Mr. McKaye; 'tis all over now, an' ye can find out what two Greeks it was by those knives I took for evidence. I connot identify thim, but go to Darrow in the mornin' an' look for a speckled mulatter, wan Greek wit a broken right arm, an' another wit' a broken neck, but until I die, do nothin'. If I get well, tell them to quit Darrow for good agin' the day I come out o' the hospital. Good night to you sir, an' thank ye for callin.' "

From the hospital, Andrew Daney, avoiding the lighted main street, hastened to the Sawdust Pile. A light still burned in Caleb Brent's cottage; so Daney stood aloof in the vacant lot and waited. About ten o'clock, the front door opened, and, framed in the light of the doorway, the general manager saw Donald McKaye, and beside him Nan Brent.

"Until to-morrow at five, Donald, since you will persist in being obstinate," he heard Nan say, as they reached the gate and paused there. "Good night, dear."

Andrew Daney waited no longer, but turned and fled into the darkness.

———o———

CHAPTER XIII.

HAVING DONE that which her conscience dictated, Nan Brent returned to her home a prey to many conflicting emotions, chief of which were a quiet sense of exaltation in the belief that she had played fair by both old Hector and his son, and a sense of depression in the knowledge that she would not see Donald McKaye again. As a boy she had liked him tremendously; as a man, she knew she liked him even better.

She was quite certain she had never met a man who was quite fit to breathe the same air with Donald McKaye; already she had magnified his virtues until, to her, he was rapidly assuming the aspect of an archangel—a feeling which bordered on adoration.

But deep down in her woman's heart she was afraid, fearing for her own weakness. The past had brought her sufficient anguish—she dared not risk a future filled with unsatisfied yearning that comes of a great love suppressed or denied.

She felt better about it as she walked homeward; it seemed that she had regained, in a measure, some peace of mind, and as she prepared dinner for her father and child, she was almost cheerful. A warm glow of self-complacency enveloped her. Later, when old Caleb and the boy had retired, and she sat before the little wood fire alone with her thoughts, this feeling of self-conscious rectitude slowly left her, and into its place crept a sense of desolation inspired by one thought that obtruded upon her insistently; no matter how desperately she drove her mind to consider other things. She was not to see him again—no, never any more. Those fearless, fiery gray eyes that were all abeam with tenderness and complete understanding that day he left her at the gate; those features that no one would ever term handsome, yet withal so rugged, so strong, so pregnant of character, so peculiarly winning when lighted by the infrequent smile—she was never to gaze upon them again. It did not seem quite fair that, for all that the world had denied her, its hould withhold from her this inconsequent delight. This was carrying misfortune too far; it was terrible—unbearable almost—

A wave of self-pity, the most acute misery of a tortured soul, surged over her; she laid her fair head on her arms outspread upon the table, and gave herself up to wild sobbing. In her desolation, she called aloud piteously, for that mother she had hardly known, as if she would fain summon that understanding spirit and in her arms seek the comfort that none other in this world could give. So thoroughly did she abandon herself to this first—and final—paroxysm of despair that she failed to hear a tentative rap upon the front door and, shortly, the tread of rough-shod feet on the board walk round the house. Her first intimation that someone had arrived to comfort her came in the shape of a hard hand that thrust itself gently under her chin and lifted her face from her arms.

Through the mist of her tears she saw only the vague outlines of a man clad in heavy woolen shirt and mackinaw, such as her father frequently wore.

"Oh, father, father!" she cried softly, and laid her head on his breast, while her arms went round his neck. I'm so terribly unhappy! I can't bear it— I can't! Just because he chose to be—kind to us—those gossips—as if anybody could help being fond of him——"

She was held tight in his arms.

"Not your father, Nan." Donald murmured in a low voice.

She drew away fro mhim with a sharp little cry of amazement and chagrin, but his great arms closed round her and drew her close again.

"Poor dear," he told her, "you were calling for your mother. You wanted a breast to weep upon, didn't you? Well, mine is here for you."

Help For China.

(Hong Kong Press.)

It is evident that events are rapidly moving towards the disintegration of China, and only by foreign intervention in some form can there be any hope for the salvation of China from internecine warfare on a scale surpassing anything that has yet occurred. How long will it be before the Powers can be got to agree upon the kind of intervention that is so plainly needed?

A Noble Ambition.

(Kansas City Star.)

In making large gifts to charity there is ad anger of demoralizing those who receive the aid. But gifts to medical and public health work have no such danger. This is not using funds to coddle individuals or communities. It is using them to remove the handicap of illness so far as may be. "The well-being of mankind throughout the world" is the motto of the Rockfeller Foundation. It is a noble ambition, nobly sustained.

National Confidence.

(Naval Advertiser.)

Confidence, confidence and yet again confidence is what is peculiarly needed at this present juncture; and there is more than ordinary reason why this should be the dominant note in the attitude of all who wish South Africa and her interests well at this particular moment. It is the imperative duty of every man having the welfare of the nation at heart to reassure, rather than discourage, the trading temper of the people as a whole.

Radio Fans.

(London Daily Mail.)

Possibly there are not far from half a million authorized and unauthorized users of receiving sets in England to-day. The number is far below that in the United States, where the interest aroused by our extraordinary development, so that there are now said to be between seven and eight million American wireless installations. But in America progress has not been retarded by cumbrous Post Office regulations and Government hesitations.

The New Empire.

(Morning Post.)

The old Colonial Empire was made by individual pioneers; the new British Empire must be made by a combination of the Governments of the Empire working together and giving full opportunity to personal enterprise. For instance, were an army of men settled upon the vast Canadian wheat lands of the Red River region, and upon the fertile lands of Australia they could supply the whole of the foodstuffs needed by this country; and at the same time the settlers, who, established in their own homes, would exchange their foodstuffs for English machinery and fabric.

That Short Wave Set

By C. E. Ward.

Old-Time Amateur Gives Interesting Experiences With Short-Wave Set.

Articles to help the beginner in Radio are appearing in countless numbers in the Radio publications, newspapers and elsewhere, and rightly so, for the number of newcomers in the art is legion. There are also discussions of the niceties, theories of operation, and more or less complicated and unique layouts of apparatus for the advanced amateur—the fellow who has the inclination, time and apparatus to go into the theory of Radio for its own sake and to help in the development of the art. Personally I feel that I belong to neither class and have often heard the same comment from other amateurs.

The Experienced Amateur.

Let me speak for these other fellows when I say that we understand the principles involved in a practical way, that we usually want to have a hand in the construction and installation of our apparatus and that we have the habit of periodically changing our apparatus and circuits for better or for worse—sometimes to the intense displeasure of our listening family and friends. Foremost in our minds, though, are good results—we find it necessary to know the theory of Radio, but we are more interested in the doing than in the knowing.

If our Radio experience began before the war, its history is probably about as follows, up to the introduction of phone broadcasting:

Loose coupler and crystal,

Loose coupler and audion,

A "Moller hook-up" using the [illegible] coupler or honeycomb coils.

Finally, the climax in a "short wave set." The latter seems like [illegible] term, but to the amateur of a short time ago it could only mean one thing—a regenerative set consisting of three tuned circuits using a variocoupler and two variometers.

When Broadcasting Was Young.

If we were to carry our history a little way into the future, it would probably have something to do with a Radio frequency amplifying system and a loop aerial. However, most of us still look on the short wave set with awe, for we remember those dots and dashes from low power, far distant stations that other "Radio fans" could only hear in their imaginations. And when broadcasting started, there were nights when it seemed that the program was in the same room and the combined efforts of the announcer's class were almost uncanny. One could hear him draw his breath and make the other little noises sufficient to speech that remind us of the wonderful reproductions of Harry Lauder's voice on the phonograph. But unfortunately there were also nights when programs did not measure up in tone quality even the cheapest phonographs—especially when our friends popped in to listen for an evening. Oh, there have been nights when even the sound of a voice of any kind would have been welcome to our ears, and others when signals refused to swing and our nerves were so shattered trying to keep in tune that we swung up and spoiled Navy press just to be sure of something. To make matters more embarrassing, possibly, we popped in to hear the neighbor's set—one of the new broadcasting receivers—an immaculate little thing with two knobs to play with and possibly a set of dry cells to light its filament, and behold, we heard the whole concert through. Of course, the tone quality isn't in the same class as that from our three-circuit set when it decides to perform, and static is pretty strong, but still we have to hand it to our neighbor for he always gets something and sometimes we get nothing.

Personal Experiences.

From here on I must stick to personal experiences. Possibly they will be repetitions of other fellows' experiences, but they may help others to get the results I am getting now—good results. When I saw my neighbor's set and others like it, I at first decided that the refinements introduced in large scale manufacture of receiving sets for concert reception made possible a set that could not be duplicated by the home workshop except by chance, and we should all remember that this is true, no matter how good our results may be. Later, however, when I found the boys turning out one and two circuit sets that performed almost as well as manufactured ones, and some of them very crude in construction, it seemed to be up to me to junk the old short wave set and build something new.

While planning the new set it occured to me that all such sets differed from the conventional three-circuit tuner in having a direct inductive coupling between the plate and grid circuits. In other respects they varied widely and it was difficult to select the best arrangement. I never did decide which one to build but instead of simplifying my circuit, I complicated it.

It is hardly necessary to state that tone quality, selectivity and relief from static are attained to a greater degree with three-tuned circuits than with the simpler arrangements, and the addition of means for coupling the grid and plate circuits provides stability and ease in tuning which are sometimes difficult to obtain in the conventional three-circuit tuner. Of course considerably more time is consumed in tuning the three circuit set when first put in operation, but this has never been a serious matter if results could later be duplicated using the same adjustment for the same stations. This has been found possible with the set stabilized by direct feed-back coupling, while in the ordinary three-circuit tuner adjustments for good phone reception vary from day to day.

This Regenerative Hook-up is Very Efficient and is Particularly Useful for the Longer Wave Lengths.

Early Methods.

The first means of coupling which was devised consisted in splitting up the plate variometer stator winding into two halves. One half was left in the plate circuit and the other connected in series with the secondary of the variocoupler and grid variometer. The operation of the set connected in this way proved that the coupling provided was a decided stabilizer—or, in other words, that the idea was good. Stations were tuned in with practically the same adjustments day after day; the set remained in operation without further adjustment for as long as desired, and the tone quality was equal to the best results obtained with the usual connections.

Two of the broadcasting stations regularly heard, however, and may familiar amateur C.W. stations could not be heard. These stations were all brought back by changing to the arrangement shown in the accompanying diagram, where a separate coupler is used for grid-plate coupling and the plate variometer left intact. The coupler used was made up on the common variocoupler forms with 30 turns of No. 22 cotton-covered wire on both stator and rotor. The stator is in the grid circuit and the rotor in series with the plate variometer. I consider the resulting set the last word in regenerative receivers, barring the refinements in design and manufacture that could well be introduced, and I believe others will find it so until they are able to bid Old Man Static farewell with a loop and R. F. amplifiers.

The coupler used in this set is 3½" in diameter and the stator is 4" long, but it is obvious that slight changes in dimensions and winding will not affect the results obtained, as both circuits concerned are separately tuned.

A PRODUCTIVE QUESTION OF THE WEEK

In this column every week will be published the most generally interesting question that has been brought to the editor's attention together with its answer. Lack of space makes it impossible to answer the questions received. By publishing the one best each week it is believed that many of the Radio amateurs' difficulties may be solved. (Editor's Note).

TRANSMITTING CIRCUIT

Q. 1. Please publish a hookup for a C. W., I. C. W. and telephone transmitter using four 5-watt tubes.

A. 1. A suitable circuit is shown here for the set you desire to employ.

Q. 2. Where may I obtain "peanut" tubes?

A. 2. "Peanut" tubes or Aerotron bulbs are manufactured by the [illegible] Company, but are not on the market at the present time.

Back to the Crystal Set

From an Interview with H. Gernsback

Editor of Science & Invention and Radio News.

Those who have the future of the Radio amateur at heart are worried. They are not worried over the permanency of Radio as an art or as a public utility. That is assured. But the future of the amateur phase of Radio is not assured; there is a dark cloud hanging over it at the present time which threatens its very existance.

The tendency of the present day novice is to run along the wrong track, and unless he reverts to the position of the amateur of Radio's early days, instead of continuing as the greatest factor in Radio development, he will become a mere incident, without the glory and credit that has belonged to him in the past.

The buyer of an automobile who buys with the idea of driving it himself and to a large degree caring for himself, if he is wise buys a car of relatively small cost and simple construction. He studies it until he becomes intimately acquainted with its merits and its weaknesses;—finds out how to get the most and the best out of it. By the time he has mastered his first car, he is naturally ambitious to possess one of greater attainments; one that will do bigger and better things. And he is fit to be trusted with such a valuable piece of machinery. He is almost sure to remark that he is glad that he had sense enough to learn on the junior.

But the tendency of the Radio novice is not to climb the ladder of experience but reach the top by one big bound. To plunge into elaborate and costly apparatus. This leads to poor results in receiving and the rendering of "horrible examples" to the neighbors;—the divorcing from the Radio idea of many who might become enthusiasts and of benefit to the art.

The amateur may well start with the crystal set. It presents a fascinating field for experiment. He should make his own set if at all mechanically inclined. Should learn its how and why from A to Z. To know when he is getting all that is in it, and if not, why not.

There is a lot of fun and a lot of efficiency in a well built crystal set and a lot of joy in receiving over what you have made yourself; of showing off your own child. It is doubtful if receiving over any costly outfit will ever give the genuine satisfaction to the owner that comes from reception over the outfit that cost a few dollars and that he has himself put together.

Let's get back to the old ways, Radio friend. Let's start with the crystal set, make a friend of it and learn all of its tricks. If we must have a set of greater capacity, let's try one of simple construction, with a hook-up not over our heads. Let's try a single tube set and master that before we jump into complex apparatus.

Short Circuits

The static dress has appeared. It is made of a cloth with a series of Radio waves in the pattern.

Mischievous youngsters on the Pacific coast have been having a lot of fun cutting leads and ground wires of Radio sets. This up-to-date variation of the old ringing the door bells and putting "tick-tacks" on the windows is causing a great deal of annoyance to the fans.

Long Island people have complained to the Public Service Commission that Radio waves have influenced their light and power meters to register for electricity not consumed. Who knows but Radio calls have some how or other butted into our telephone bills.

The papers are printing a story about a wireless in every home. It is the lamp or some other metal thing that vibrates in harmony with the piano. We have always thought we had a wireless in our house when we tried to get the telephone operator after midnight.

The Radio Experimenter

Some Helpful Ideas from the Amateurs Workshop

SMALL TUBE ADAPTER TO FIT STANDARD SOCKET

A Way the Amateur Can Improve the Appearance of His Set, and Save His Money.

Did you ever want to use a Westinghouse "WD-11" tube on another set than the "Aeriola, Sr."? It will not fit any socket you can buy and supply houses want $1.25 to $1.50 for an adapter which looks like a makeshift at best.

Try this; it makes a good looking job and works as well as it looks.

Break up any old burned-out detector or amplifier tube. All you need is the brass tube of the base. Try not to burr this and do not remove, or damage, the little lug or pin on the side which is used to lock the tube in the socket.

Fitting this standard base over the smaller base of the other tube you will find leaves a space between them of about 1/16" all around. Wrap a strip of cardboard or blotter (½" wide is plenty) around the upper part of the base of the small tube so as to hold it in the center of the standard base.

Put them together again and place in the socket you propose to use, being sure lug is in "locked" position. Push down bulb until all contacts press firmly on socket contacts and mark on small base where top of large base comes to. Turn whole thing upside down and turn bulb until bulb contacts are directly over socket contacts, marking both bases with a line to show relative position of the two bases.

Take out of socket and fill space between the two bases with a thick paste made of plaster-of-paris and water. Fill the large base up flush to the bottom with the plaster. Now remove cardboard or blotter from the top and fill the resulting space with plaster. After the plaster has stood about an hour it will have hardened somewhat and you can clean off the surplus plaster without danger of changing the relative positions of the two bases. After this is done, stand in a safe place over night.

SHORTING A MURDOCK CONDENSER

The sketch shows a simple method of cutting out a Murdock condenser at the zero position. This does away with an off-and-on switch and the inconvenience of taking the hand off the condenser.

It in no way interferes with the working properties of the condenser. A bent brass strip is slipped over the binding-post of the stationary plates and fastened in such a way that when the pointer swings around it makes contact.

HOME-MADE V. T. SOCKET

The Satisfaction Of Making Your Own And The Saving Of A Dollar.

The cheapest V. T. socket costs about a dollar. The one shown in diagram, has a special prong receiver a round piece of brass or copper. It is drilled to take the prong of a Moorhead or radiotron V. T. and is cut part way down to permit a little leeway, should the tube not fit exactly. No socket is provided, but the base is just the size of the inside of a socket and if one is desired, it may be forced on the base for a quarter of an inch. Holes are provided for screwing base to table. The prong receivers are screwed on the base, which is counterbored with a 1" drill for a ¼". Holes are provided for entrance of wires to connections. The base is ½" thick.

SIMPLE RHEOSTAT WITH FINE ADJUSTMENT

Simple In Constuction But Capable Of Fine Work.

With this rheostat in the filament circuit of the detector tube, very fine adjustments are possible.

The construction is quite simple. A tube of high heat-resisting material, such as porcelain, is almost filled with carbon grains. Contact is made to the grains by a small piece of metal sheet which serves to keep the grains in position.

At the front or panel end, a plunger is inserted. The shaft of the plunger should be threaded and the base should be just of correct size to fit the hole. The panel is tapped and the rheostat placed in position Connections are made to the plunger by a strip of copper or brass. A knob and pointer or dial complete the rheostat. By turning the knob, the plunger moves back and forth and varies the pressure on the carbon grains. The pitch of thread will determine the rate at which the plunger operates. With a fine thread, a complete turn will not greatly affect the current flow; a heavy thread will allow a rather rough adjustment to be made although it will be finer adjustment than the ordinary wire rheostat.

A dispatch from Philadelphia says that Morris Keyser heard the spoken voice for the first time in 27 years of life without an ear trumpet. A week before he heard music for the first time with a Radio headpiece, and since that time has been able to hear conversation. He believes that using the radiophone has stimulated his hearing so that he will eventually hear conversation well without artificial help.

Radio Rhymes

By Robert Stewart Sutliffe.

THE RADIO LAY

"Give your hens free concerts and increase your egg production. Charmed by the music of a piccolo, 30 hens laid 5,040 eggs in seven months."

—News Item

WHEN we folks were girls and boys, if we heard a cackling noise, we wouldn't give the incident a thought; we were willing hens should sleep, eggs were then so gol darned cheap, that a dozen for a quarter could be bought. But those times have passed away, we now coax the hens to lay, we jolly them with scientific feed; no more the biddies roam, they are kept today at home, with a patent this or that for every need.

Now adays there's little show for a hen that's getting slow, for production now the chicken's born and bred; with her fault at sixty cents, she must show accomplishments, she must lay, or surely off will go her head. Like the calm, contented cows, chickens now are kept in rows, there's no excuse that goes for hens who shirk; such is allowed but strict propriety and freed from male society, the biddy's mind is kept upon her work.

But the best of all the tricks that are practiced on the chicks, a shell game and the country folks should know; [illegible] the hens a laying to some fellow's piccolo playing, broadcasted to the birds by Radio. If you want your hens to lay, you just get some one to play, some jazzy tune you'll find the hens like best; then you make a sound like "Gimme" and the hens will start to shimmy, and the fruit will soon be dropping in the nest.

NEWS BRIEFS

From the Radio Field.

Membership by Radio is an innovation in the Seattle Chamber of Commerce Membership campaign.

Brooklyn has a Radio club in one of its high schools, organized in 1910. Its success is reported as meteoric.

The Post Office Department has added its sixteenth Radio station for the air mail service.

Rotary Clubs are having Radio nights when the female addresses are broadcasted.

At Seattle the prayer and sermons in connection with the dedication of a new hospital were heard by Radio by a multitude of listeners.

The Department of Commerce is now tipping American business men by Radio, of foreign trade opportunities.

Steamships running between California and Hawaii are publishing daily papers, the latest news being constantly received by Radio.

Thieves are working an old dodge. They call at a house when the man is away and represent themselves as Radio inspectors, getting access in this way to the premises.

Scientists have discovered that the aurora has a decided effect upon Radio. Apparatus affected by the aurora could receive but not transmit signals while the influence lasted.

New York has a Radio cadet corps. The boys are taught the fundamentals of wireless at nine years of age and in three years are efficient in all branches of Radio work.

Ranging from raising skunks to beauty parlors, 12,081 companies were incorporated in the first eight months of this year in New York State. Each month finds from fifteen to thirty new Radio concerns incorporated.

Radio is playing an important part in the work of mapping northwest Canada. By tuning in and getting time signals from a known distant point and comparing it with the time at a designated place, the map makers can easily ascertain distances and directions.

The Manchester (England) Guardian in an article upon the Radio situation states that the managing director of the Marconi Company thinks the American boom premature; also that the Marconi Company is making a "fool proof" set. Probably the set is for the managing director.

Hawaii is to make use of Radio for rural education. A powerful transmitting plant is to be installed by the Public Instruction department at Honolulu, making it possible to broadcast lectures on educational subjects, which will be received through receiving sets in the district schoolhouses.

The Telegram Raises False Issue

With all due respect to the Telegram, it was very difficult to see the point of its lengthy editorial of yesterday. Were it not for the fact that when half way down its column it pretended to raise a false issue with the Advocate, we would leave our evening contemporary alone, knowing full well that the ordinary reader could form his own opinion as to the Telegram and the Humber, or as to the Telegram's imaginary past support of that industrial undertaking.

One would think from the authoritative tone of the Telegram, that that newspaper was solely responsible for the Humber project, that it was the only newspaper who supported the project during the election campaign, and that it did so in opposition to the very political party, who inaugurated and finalised the scheme.

But the Telegram has no right to presuppose such a serious lack of memory on the part of the public of this country. Its attitude on the Humber matter, now that it has justified itself before the country and now that it has received the commendable recognition of other politicians who once pretended to look upon it with abhorrence, savours too much of the "I told you, so," t orecommend itself, when coming from the Telegram, as either consistent or genuine.

We have yet to learn that the Telegram or its erstwhile political associates sweated much blood over encouragement of the Humber Project when it was still a prospective proposition.

Perhaps the Telegram was as sincere then as it is now; although the public will be naturally inspired with greater confidence in the scheme now that the Telegram asserts a sincere belief in the undertaking.

As far as the Advocate is concerned, and as much as it welcomes the Telegram's confidence in the project, it did not require the visit of a reporter to the Humber, nor his account, "in language that could be understood by all," to convert the paper to a belief in the Humber.

We were busy two or three years ago in encouraging public opinion in the matter of development of our inland resources and believe that had the Humber project come one year earlier, conditions of our workingmen would be much improved and the necessity of relief measures greatly reduced.

However, we have to thank the Telegram for the very valuable information, which could not possibly be obtained otherwise, that the Humber industry is proceeding under systematic management, that the Sir W. G. Armstrong Whitworth & Co. and the British Treasury are not concerned with politics and are absolutely indifferent to the requirements of our workmen, and that, (which is more important than all) the Telegram will henceforth refuse to consider any political associations that were connected with the Humber Proposition.

Coming from a newspaper whose shifty Humber record is too well known, that attitude will be most convenient for the Telegram.

Had the Advocate known that the Telegram intended to take exception to our remarks on behalf of the fishermen whom a poor fishery has left without food for the families, we can assure that paper that we would have still pursued our line of conduct, unafraid.

There are no apologies to make to the Telegram, and, because that paper may have needed something to discuss, we readily excuse it for raising a false issue and feel that it has only secured for itself the false position of objecting to a genuine attempt to help the common people.

Business Report On Ruhr Invasion Calls It Failure

France Gets Only Third Coal And Coke Now, With End of Stock In Sight In 5 Months.

From The World's Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—As an economic proposition, the occupation of the Ruhr by the French has been a failure, with prospects that available stocks and supplies to compensate for the military expenditures consequent to the invasion will become less rather than more plentiful.

This is the substance of a detailed report on the results of the seven months of French control over the region made public to-day by the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce and compiled by Basil Miles, Administrative Commissioner for the United States in the International Chamber.

Presentation of the report at this time is considered significant in view of the pointed discussions over the Ruhr occupation in progress between the Allied Governments. The material it contains was gathered by Mr. Miles on a visit to the occupied zone with Willis H. Booth, President of the International Chamber.

Working for Future.

After pointing to the smokeless chimneys, suggesting large scale strike conditions, and the miles of rusty, weed-grown railroad tracks, the report recounts the processes by which the French and Belgians met the passive resistance of the Germans and then sums up the effect of the occupation from both the German and French viewpoints.

Since the German workmen are subsidized by the Government and check in each day they have been employed in work useful for the future, such as the overhauling of factories, opening new veins of coal, pushing factory extensions and enlarging housing schemes for workmen, the report states. According to Mr. Miles, the amount of new construction is noticeable everywhere. The result is that, in his opinion, the Ruhr probably could step into g reater production than ever before within six months of freedom from allied control. A striking result of the invasion for France is seen in the curtailment of the coal acquisitions from Germany.

"What profit can be shown on the French side?" asks the report. "The facts are extremely simple. In general terms, the French are getting only about one-third as much coal and coke out of the Ruhr as they previously got from the regular reparations deliveries. The result has been that the French have either had to economize or else purchase these raw materials elsewhere.

French Can't Produce.

"On this basis, particularly when taking into account the increased expenditures involved in the military occupation, the French side of the balance sheet shows a decreased return. Moreover, there would seem to be a definite term to these reduced returns. As the Ruhr is not producing, the French supply comes only from accumulated stocks. It is expected such stocks may last four or five months, but after that time a new problem will be presented as to further supplies.

"It seems sufficiently clear to every body concerned that the only people who can work the mines and factories of the Ruhr profitably are the Germans who live there. The idea that the French themselves can produce Ruhr coal, coke and steel without the co-operation of German labor and management is fantastic under any conditions approaching those which exist at present. On the other hand, France is primarily an agricultural country, whereas Germany is primarily an industrial country.

"The Ruhr has been termed the economic heart of Germany. That heart has now stopped beating, and it remains to be seen how long the body, namely, the unoccupied parts of Germany, can remain animate without it. At present it would seem as though the country were resorting to artificial respiration; that is, by forcing production at home and taking up the remaining slack of purchases of raw material abroad—coal from England and Cxechoslovakia, steel from Sweden, Spain and even Canada, and so forth."

A sound forecast of how long present conditions in the Ruhr can continue cannot be made, according to Mr. Miles, especially in view of the recent collapse of the German mark.

Scientists Forecast Early Fall, As Arctic Ice Floes Defy Sun

Theory of Abnormal Refrigeration in North Confirmed by U. S. Reports—Dr. Abbot's Explanation of Freak Summer Regarded as Plausible.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—Weather experts displayed keen interest to-day in the theory presented in The World that unusual ice floes in the North Atlantic influence this year's weather conditions and are responsible for some of its freak features. Possibility of early frosts in Northern Canada is believed to be closely connected with this condition.

Presence of unusual amounts of ice in Northern waters is regarded as having a close relationship with the abnormalities of the last year and even the most conservative scientists, who insist that all weather is abnormal, admit it may have some bearing on the discovery made by Dr. C. G Abbott of the Smithsonian Institution that the sun is giving off less heat that usual.

Existence of abnormal ice floes in the North Atlantic and in Hudson Bay has been verified by the hydrographic and geodetic survey offices. In the early season icebergs were sighted farther South than ever before and ships were warned to alter their courses.

The failure of the sun to melt the usual amount of ice and thus compel recession of the Arctic refrigeration to the usual distance North, is ascribed the late spring and the heavy snows which swept across New England and northward late last winter and early in the spring.

The sun is already half way back from its annual Northern trip, with the result that the unusual accumulations of snow and ice have not been melted. This accumulated cold of the Arctic has a good start on its yearly journey southward, a fact that presages an early fall, according to some weather experts.

During the spring and early summer, it is pointed out, gales lasting weeks swept against the eastern coasts of Greenland, causing disturbances which displaced large quantities of ice from the arctic region. This eruption, it is believed, caused disturbances in the ocean currents, preventing the usual mollifying effect upon the climate of England and of Western Europe by the Gulf Stream, resulting in their late spring.

This, it is believed, caused the displacement of the permanent "Azores low," which this summer has permitted the winds from the Sahara to furnish the same section of Europe with a continuous Turkish bath.

The marked presence of ice in the North Atlantic has been duplicated in the Pacific Arctic regions, and leading meteorologists of Japan already have predicted a rice famine in that country because of the damaging effect of the air currents blowing over Japan from their origin in the ice fields of the Siberian and Alaskan coasts. Projection of the Asiatic coast ice boundary toward the south this year has been marked.

Whether or not the tendency of the ice boundaries of the north to project southward has affected drouth conditions in the United States is a question upon which Government scientists are divided.

Company's official makes Restitution of Missing Money

(Toronto Globe)

It was the wearing of costly fur coats that aroused suspicion and disclosed the conspiracy by which the Standard Chemical Company was defrauded out of $250,000 by a group of the chief officials. This developed from the police investigation which followed upon the announcement by the company of the big frauds by the employees.

H. B. Swanton of Pardale and Orillia, who left the city following the disclosures, has returned to the city. He fled to Mexico, but, tiring of being a fugitive from justice, decided to return and make restitution. His wife returned first and negotiated the return of everything the couple possessed. Swanton was sought by the authorities on the charge of stealing a letter from the company, and this case will now be disposed of through the Police Court at Orillia. It is expected that the company will not press for punishment.

Some $70,000 has been returned to the company. Swanton was the Woods Superintendent and passed upon all purchases of supplies for the company's plants. One official is now serving a term in Burwash for his part in the conspiracy. Some of the money returned to the company was found hidden in a box under a tree.

The Provincial Police traced Swanton to Western Canada and then thru the United States to Mexico.

Joe Batt's Arm Notes

The fishery to date is very poor, the average catch per man being about twenty-five qtls., August month was a complete blank. It is reported that if some moderate winds and fine weather are handed out to us during the coming month, the voyage will be considerably improved, as there is a good sign of fish on the grounds and squid is fairly plentiful at nearby places and will no doubt strike in here in a few days.

As yet ouh buyers have not made any firm offer, perhaps because there is so little fish offering at present, but with the few fine days we are getting now, quite a lot of fish will be ready for shipment and those who are anxious to buy for early cargoes will no doubt be quoting some prices in a day or two; lee us hope that the prices will be good. We as a community need it and the country generally needs it.

Messrs. A. S. Brett, Stanley Brett, Ambrose Coffin, Acquilla Coffin and Alex Coffin, left on Friday for Windsor Ont., where they expect to work during the fall and winter months. We hope that their tarry away from us will only be short and that in future years they will be able to make sufficient at their usual trades to provide the necessities of life and a little to spare.

Mr. L. J. Brett, who is now residing in St. John's, spent a few days with us during the past week, visiting his parents and friends. We are glad to see you, Len, and hope your stay amongst us was a pleasant one.

Miss Julia Cobb, who spent the summer months with her parents, is leaving us by the Susu on Monday for St. John's, where she will teach at the Model School during the school year. Good-bye Julia, we hope you will have an enjoyable winter.

Mr. George Head of the F. P. U. Trading Co's Branch Store, and Miss Mary A. Newman, late teacher of Primary School, both of this place, decided to make their lives one and took the Solemn Vow for better or worse a few days ago. If Mary makes as good a wife as she did a teacher, then George is indeed lucky. Congratulations.

He was unaware of the eccentricities to be found in the Wild West when he entered what seemed to be the only hotel in the place. After ushering him to a table and giving the stranger a glass of ice-water, the waiter inquired: "Will you have sausages on toast?"

"No, I never eat 'em," the guest replied.

"You're certain there are no alligators here," he inquired of the guide.

"Nossuh," replied that functionary, grinning broadly. "Ain' no 'gators hyah."

Reassured, the tourist started out. As the water lapped about his chest he called back:

"What makes you so sure there aren't any alligators?"

"Dey's got too much sense," bellowed the guide. "De sharks skeered dem all away."—American Legion Weekly.

Scotland Lands Shipbuilding Contracts

TOKIO, Aug. 13.—The Nippon Yusen Kaisha, premier shipping corporation of Japan, has placed a contract for two 10,000-ton Diesel-engined freighters in Scotland, one at Harland and Wolf and one at Lithgaws, both on the Clyde. They are to be completed by May, 1924.

These two vessels are the first of this type to be ordered by the Japanese merchant marine, and the order is an indication that in spite of the depression in shipping this country is making plans that will keep them on a high standing with the shipping companies of the worlds.

WAS PUTTING BACK.

A farmer going suddenly into his orchard found a boy standing under an apple tree with a fine rosy apple in his hand.

"You young scamp!" said the farmer. "What were you going to do with that apple?"

"Please, Sir," answered the boy, "I was just going to put it back on the tree."

Private Wireless Not Wanted

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Efforts of a private wireless corporation to popularize the radio in Japan are being met by the opposition of Japanese military authorities.

Officials of the military department fear that should a private wireless tower be erected, official messages of a strictly confidential nature would be picked up and deciphered. The opposition has relaxed somewhat, however, following the undertaking of the company to instruct its operators to make no effort to tune in on the government radio and to dismantle its plant and voluntarily go out of business should this agreement be broken.

The promoters of the radio in Japan believe they can convince the authorities that such a project as they contemplate would bring immense benefits to the Japanese people in the form of entertainment, education and culture, and that for this reason their plans should be allowed to progress without interruption.

OBITUARY

Middle Brook,
Aug. 24th, 1923.

Editor Evening Advocate.

Dear Sir,—Will you please allow me space in your much read paper, the Advocate, to record the death of my dear cousin, Mrs. Charles Pond, who passed peacefully away on Aug. 13th. She was only sick about one day. We believe she is gone to live with Him whom she served faithfully. She was loved by all and will be greatly missed by those who knew her. Her death was a hard blow, especially to her brothers and sisters and husband. But God's will must be done. She leaves to mourn a husband, one child, a mother, three brothers, three sisters and a large circle of friends. To the bereaved ones we extend our sincere sympathy.

A precious one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is still,
A place made vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

American Tour For English Children

LONDON, August 28—English educators are nursing a plan to send one hundred school children from the British Isles for a tour of the United States. If sufficient funds can be collected the youngsters will probably cross the Atlantic some time next year.

In addition to learning a thing or two by keeping their eyes and ears open in the republic across the sea, the British boys and girls are expected to enlighten American on some things they know. They will introduce to them the English choral songs and perhaps show them how cricket is played.

The organization fostering the plan is known as "The City of London Vacation Course in Education," which polishes up the weary minds of school teachers during the vacation months. Just at present the organization does not know where it is to get the money to finance the trans-Atlantic trip. There is a possibility, however, that the children will be invited by a wealthy American organization which has been takng an interest in the proposed jaunt; then in later years the British would expect to bring one hundred youngsters from the United States to see the sights of England.

Boycott Against Japan Continues

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Although Japan has sent a threatening note to China declaring that "necessary measures" will be taken against that country unless the anti-Japanese boycott is curbed, there appears to have been no change in conditions where feeling towards the Japanese has been the most hostile.

Reports of activities prejudicial to Japanese commercial interests and endangering Japanese life and property have been received here from a great many Chinese cities lately. Japanese gunboats are patrolling Chinese waters in the regions where the disturbances have been most pronounced and every possible precaution is being taken to prevent more serious outbreaks than have occurred already.

The Japanese note urges the Chinese Government to use its influence upon provincial authorities to suppress the agitation and declares that should they fail to take effective action the Japanese government will feel itself obliged to take measures. The note also states that, following a close investigation, the Japanese government expects to open negotiations with the Chinese government on the question of retribution to Japanese residents in China for damages suffered as a result of the anti-Japanese activities.

Meanwhile Chinese patriotic societies which have taken the leadership in the Japanese boycott are urging Chinese to exercise even more far-reaching discrimination against Japanese goods and merchants.

Japanese Peerage Reform Planned

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Voluntary reform of the Japanese peerage is shortly to be undertaken by the Japanese "house of lords." Members of the Japanese nobility are urging, in order to purge the peerage of undesirable elements, that the so-called peerage law should be applied to those whose conduct is open to censure and these either should be reprimanded or their rights as peers suspended.

In view of the growth of this demand, the Imperial household authorities are reported to be giving the matter serious attention. There are said to be three peers in disgrace at present, and one of these has been missing for nine years.

HARVESTERS HAVE 'BLACKLIST' SCHEME

REGINA, SASK., Aug. 26.—The hieroglyphic system used by the old-time tramp to inform his fellows traveller where hand-outs were available without having to cut a cord of wood or mow the front lawn has been adopted, to some extent, by harvesters who have perfected a "blacklist" scheme against farmers alleged to be particularly unsympathetic in their treatment of harvest help. But the system works both ways, according to some interesting facts recently related by T. M. Molloy, commissioner of the Bureau of Labor and Industries, as the farmer who has been fair in his treatment of hired help also gets much publicity and finds no trouble in getting all the men he may require.

The system has been in vogue for some years. It is somewhat different from that of the old-time tramp as no mysterious signs or symbols are used, but names and addresses are given instead. Sometimes the "blacklist" is a piece of paper tacked to a nearby telephone pole, while again it is written on the pole itself, or on the wall of the labor building. In Regina a fence near the employment bureau has been utilized, and at Moose Jaw the names of dozens of farmers were found written in small letters on pillars inside the government employment building. It was the "Blacklist" and accounts for many farmers who ill-used their harvest labor having difficulty in securing help for the gathering of their next crop.

As an experiment, stated Mr. Molloy, officers in charge of the Moose Jaw bureau copied down all the names of employers on the men's blacklist before the pillars were painted. Then they checked up the list by comparison with their own records, and by inquiry found that in practically all cases the names represented farmers at whose places working conditions were, to say the least, unpleasant and in many cases hardly endurable.

It is not the fault of the labor bureau that men cannot be secured for blacklisted farms, Mr. Molley said. When a man applies for a harvest or farm position he is sent to a place on the bureau list, irrespective of whether it is blacklisted by the men or not. When the harvester secures his employment card he takes it away, proceeds to blacklist, and scans the list to find if the name of his employer is there. If it is he returns to the bureau, saying he doesn't think he will go harvesting after all for a few days.

Employment office blacklists are not the only place where the ill fame of an objectionable employer is spread. Mr. Molloy stated that a large percentage of harvest laborers are a floating population. In the winter they may be found in the lumber camps, in the spring at the docks, in the summer in the southern parts of the continent, and in the autumn in harvest fields. Whenever they meet they discuss the various places where they have worked. Names of employers are exchanged. If an employer has treated a harvest labor particularly well he may find himself swamped with applications the next fall. If he has not been popular with his men, he may find it almost impossible to get help.

Japan Plans Naval Reorganization

TOKIO, Aug. 10.—Admiral Takarabe, new minister of labor, has announced new plans for the Japanese naval organization which are regarded as of special interest here.

These plans are in part a continuance of the policy originally initiated by Takarabe's predecessor Admiral Barnu Kato, who is now premier. The policy includes readjustment of auxiliary warships, expansion of the naval air force, improvement of equipment of naval stations and depots, elimination of supernumeraries and organization of a more competent staff.

The Japanese naval authorities declare that the United States auxiliary warship programme will directly affect Japan's naval strength, if the bill is passed at the next session of Congress, and a change will have to be introduced in Japan's auxiliary warcraft programme on the realization of the American scheme, it is reported.

The expansion of the air force and improvement of equipment will be undertaken at once under plans outlined by Premier Kato. The reduction in personnel, which has been going on for several months, will be completed at the end of the present year.

The vernacular press states that the new naval minister will exert his best efforts toward educational training which has become lax in recent years and inculcation of the idea of the necessity of national defense, which has waned among the Japanese people.

Manicurist Charges Man Blacmailed Her

Paid William Fleming of Newark $695 For Silence, Says Miss May Capstick.

(New York World)

William Fleming, thirty-two, will face a charge of blackmail today in the First Criminal Court, Newark, N.J., preferred by Miss May Capstick, thirty, a mancurist, of No. 240 Summer Avenue, Newark. Fleming lives with his wife and two small children at No. 73 James Street, Newak.

Miss Capstick charges she has paid Fleming $695 in five payments in the last two months for his silence concerning alleged charges threatened against her by men representing themselves as city detectives of Elizabeth.

Fleming was arrested late Saturday as a result of a trap laid for him by Detective Capt. Daly, of the Newark police force, the arrest being made by Detective Sergeant Corbelly and Detective Dunn, after Miss Capstick had paid Fleming $75 in marked money, in Park Place, Newark.

According to Miss Capstick she took a trolley ride to Elizabeth with Fleming two months ago. While they were strolling on a tree-shaded street they were approached, she said, by two men who declared they were Elizabeth city detectives. They took her name and Fleming's and went away. Two days later, she said, Fleming told her she must pay him money or he would reveal matters damaging to her reputation.

Latest News of the Fisheries

The following late reports received by the Board of Trade from the various Districts are interesting, and show that in many places the shore fishery is almost a blank.

Change Islands.

The schooner Humber Deal with 900 quintals, Sniper 300 quintals and Baleka 500 quintals have arrived from the Straits.

Fogo

The schooner Mabel A., Payne master, has arrived from Belle Isle with 1100 quintals.

From Wild Cove Point, Shoal Bay, to Hare Bay Head, sub-collector R. T. Scott reports the total landed to date as 2500 quintals, with nothing last week;; 190 boats are fishing and he considers prospects fair.

Burgeo.

Mr. W. J. Bragg reports that 1160 quintals have been landed to date at Channel and Port aux Basques, but there was nothing doing last week. The weather has been very stormy and the fishermen were unable to get on the grounds.

Ferryland.

From Aquaforte to Caplin Bay, the catch to date is 5100 quintals, with 210 for the week, some 30 traps, 49 motor boats, and 16 dories have been engaged and last week ten traps were taken up, as the fish has struck off and only a few motor boats are now operating.

Placentia.

From Cape Race to St. Shott's 7650 quintals have been landed to date. There is now very little doing and all traps have been taken up after having a fairly good season. There is still a sign of fish with trawls.

Fortune Bay.

From South side of Hermitage Bay to North side of Connaigre Bay, only 200 quintals have been landed to date. The weather has been stormy, but sub-collector Way reports prospects good. From English Harbour to Boxey Point the total landed is 3330 quintals with 60 for last week. Bait is reported scarce in this section. Eagle Point to Mall Bay 3660 quintals have been landed to date, and this includes the cargoes of the schooners Warren M. Colp, 650 qtls.; Alice M. Pike, 800 quintals; and Flora S. Nickerson 850 quintals, all three arriving last week.

Burgeo.

Richard's Harbour to Raymond's Point East the total landed is 6300 quintals, with 200 for last week. There are 214 skiffs fishing and prospects are favourable for a good squid season.

Burin.

Fortune to Carmel, sub-Collector Roy Spencer reports 3100 quintals landed to date, with 100 quintals for last week. The prospects are poor.

Ferryland.

From Renews to Seal Cove the total to date is 4400 quintals with 1000 for last week. All traps have been taken up and the fishery was the best in years. Fish is reported plentiful at Renews Rock and a record voyage is anticipated.

Bay de Verde.

Mead's Brook to Break Heart Point. The fishery here has been a failure, only 640 quintals being landed for the season. Sub-Collector Barrett reports that the fishermen are greatly discouraged and there is no hope of their securing enough to pay expenses.

Father and Son Drowned at Curling

News of a sad drowning fatality in the Serpentine River near Bay of Islands, was received last evening by Mr. Gower Rabbits, secretary of the Game and Inland Fisheries Board, the victims being Warden Mollow and child.

The message was sent by Supervisor Pennell of Bay of Islands, who stated that the bodies had not yet been recovered.

No particulars as to how the tragic happening occurred are at hand, but it is presumed that the warden was up the river, carrying out his duties when he and his boy lost their lives.

The unfortunate man is a native of Curling, and was well known by the many sportsmen who visited this section each season.

A further message to the Game Board this morning, stated that the bodies had been recovered shortly after the drowning.

The Warren Harding Tree

GIANT FOREST, Calif., August 27—A permanent memorial to the late President Harding has been contributed by California's forests. The second largest tree in the world was recently dedicated to his memory as the "Warren Harding Tree."

In dedicating the giant Sequoia,; 32 feet in diameter and 280 feet in height, Colonel John B. White, superintendent of the Sequoia and Grant National Parks, declared that the colossal redwood, already 5,000 years old, "will grow stronger and greater and will stand as a monument to our late President when the Pyramids and granite shafts have crumbled to dust." The memorial tree is next in size and age to the famous General Sherman tree.

Note of Thanks

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Keating and family wish to express their sincere thanks to all those who assisted in any way during the illness, and on the occasion of the death of their beloved son and brother, Patrick; also those who sent letters and telegrams of sympathy, and those who sent wreaths to adorn the casket.

Life is meant for work, and not for ease.—Kingsley.

Every Union Store can now supply toilet soap. You cannot use any better soap than Ivory. Ask for it next time. IVORY the pure white floating soap for all toilet uses. Only Five and Ten Cents a cake.

LOCAL ITEMS

The Supreme Court on western circuit is due back on Sunday next On Monday the northern circuit presided over by the Chief Justice leaves going as far as Rigolet.

A fine, pure floating toilet soap that is cheaper than most and far more useful. The whole family can wash in Ivory and no better soap could be used for Ivory contains the purest materials and is widely recommended. At all Union Stores now.

The pupils of Gower Street Sunday School are holding their Annual Picnic to-day at Mount Pearl, the party having gone out at 10.30 a.m. by special train.

A large eight ton roller for the A.N.D. Co., Grand Falls which arrived by the Sachem was hauled to the station yesterday by C. F. Lester's men.

MAGISTRATE'S COURT

The two Norwegian sailors who were before the Magistrate yesterday charged with vagrancy, applied to the police station last night for shelter. They went to the consul, so they say, but he refused to do anything for them.

A 64-year-old cooper, who formerly belonged to Hr. Grace, has been going about the city for the past 11 months. He has no home and repeated efforts on the part of the police to get him into the poor house have failed. He was released from the penitentiary on the 25th inst, having been sent down for ten days. During the past three or four months he has been sleeping out. The old man has no friends. One of these days he will be found dead from exposure and hunger. Is it nobody's business to see that shelter is found for this unfortunate man.

Susu Back From North

The s.s. Susu, Captain Roberts, arrived from the Fogo service last midnight, after a good round trip. The ship reports that Captain Blackwood's schooner, S.T.W., which capsized in Gander Bay during the recent storm, is now at Carmanville, where she has been uprighted, and is not very much damaged.

At Main Point, Gander Bay, the s s. Trident is loading a part cargo of pit props for England and she will finish up at Carmanville.

The Susu brought a small freight and the following passengers: Misses L. Bemister, Parsons, Morgan, J. Cobb, J. Mews, J. Bemister, Delaney, E. Oake, L. Mugford, E. Rideout, Mifflin, L. White, Mifflin, D. Bemister; Mesdames A. Payne, Oake, Bemister, C. Wolfrey, A. F. Wolfrey, K. Bradbury, and Messrs J. G. Stone, A. Payne, H. Wolfrey, A. Horwood, F. Bomister and three steerage.

Last Night's Game

Before a fair attendance of fans, the City team that played at Grand Falls last week defeated a picked league team by a score of 2 to 1.

A good exhibition was given, and play was fast in spots though the league team was somewhat slow on the goal.

Ewing scored for the challengers after twenty-five minutes' play, and before the period concluded, Phelan evened up the score. In the second half Meaney got through after ten minutes of play, and no further scoring resulted.

A feature of the game was the goal tending of Walsh, who no doubt saved his team from defeat.

The next game of the league series will be played between the C.E.I. and Feildians, while on Monday night the Saints and Feildians will play ,and the final game, Feildians and Cadets, will be played Thursday night week.

SHIPPING NOTES

The Seal and Daisy are now on Dry Dock, the former being surveyed and the latter having a new rudder fitted.

The Prospero is now taking bunker coal at Bowring's South Side, and she will sail North on Wednesday next replacing the Portia which will be docked for repairs.

The S. S. Koing Inge is now on the way to Sydney, where she loads coal for this port. The ship will then load a cargo of fsih for the Mediterranean.

The Mission ship Harmony is now coaling and sails during the week for the Labrador.

The Sable I. which was recently ashore at Lamaline is now on the slip at Halifax undergoing repairs, and she will be ready to resume her regular service the latter part of next week.

The Canadian Sapper will sail from Montreal on the 31st inst.

The s.s. Manoa is due at Montreal to-morrow.

Scoutmasters Win Laurels

Scoutmasters R. S. Furlong and Captain Ronald Ayre, M. C., St. John's and Scoutmaster W. Dorm of Grand Falls, have recently been in camp at Gilwell Pattern camp in Nova Scotia, where they have been attending an intensive course of lectures covering a ten-day period.

All have passed with honors, and return enriched by their experiences, to pass their instruction on the the Boy Scouts under their command.

Whilst at camp they were honored with a visit from General Lord Byng, Viceroy of Canada, who inspected the Company.

There have been two camps in the Province this year, at both of which Bing of Vimy attended.

At the Gilwell Pattern Camp, our scoutmasters had the pleasure of meeting Captain Dwyer, well-known in St. John's, and Mayor Feilding, a cousin of Lady Davidson, wife of Newfoundland's war governor, whose activities during the earlier years of the war will never be forgotten by the parents of the boys of ours.

LIVES FIVE HOURS AFTER PULSE STOPS

High Stimulant Is Used.

STRATFORD, Aug. 22.—One of the most remarkable cases of suspended animation in the medical history of Stratford came to notice this morning in the sad death of Jack Robert Leaney, son of Albert Leaney, 162 Norman Street. The lad had been under the care of a local practitioner, suffering from an illness that caused him great agony. At 10 o'clock last night his pulse ceased to beat and for over two hours the body gave absolutely no sign of life.

However, after that time the heart began to beat again, and the boy lived until 5 o'clock this morning.

Jack was seven years, seven months and eighteen days old. He was born in Mitchell and attended the St. James' Anglican Sunday school here.

In discussing the case to-day, the doctor who attended the boy said that adrenalin had not been used, but that a very high stimulant had been administered. No expectations had been held that the stimulant would do any good.

Jack was suffering from acute osteomyelitia, a bone inflammation, which had become widespead, developing into geneal septicaemia.

When the thunder is very loud, there is very little rain.

OBITUARY

JAMES P. GUY.

Carbonear has lost another of her best known and most highly respected residents, in the person of James P. Guy, whose death occurred at an early hour yesterday morning. On Sunday the deceased was engaged in his Church work at the Methodist Church, and it was while in the vestry conducting a service that he was stricken with paralysis. To one who knew him fairly intimately the manner of his death was in keeping with the gentleness of his character in life, calm and peaceful. Having served the Master faithfully and well in the morning and at noon, in the evening-tide he went home to rest eternal.

The late James P. Guy was the only son of the late William Guy, whose blacksmith's forge was for many years a landmark in the historic town. He was about 60 years of age, and, throughout his entire manhood, and for some years previously, was closely identified with the active and official life of the Church, the Sunday School, and all those things that make for the betterment of humanity; exemplifying throughout the Apostle's admonition —"not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord."

To him the verities of the life beyond were as real as those of human life. After three score years of faithful endeavor, leaving to his family and his fellow citizens the incorruptible legacy of an unspotted character, and of a life of service, he has been called to a larger life and to greater opportunities than Time can offer. Carbonear and Methodism experience a severe loss in his death, and nowhere, outside of the immediate family circle will the blow fall with greater severity than on the Carbonear Methodist Church of which Mr. Guy was at the time of his death probably the most active and most influential officer and member. At the Sunday School he had been a life-long attendant as a scholar, teacher and official; whilst for over forty years his seat in the Church Choir was rarely unoccupied. Mr. Guy's good works were not confined to the church; none was more ready to extend the helping hand, to encourage and advise.

In civic life he was held in great respect by all classes of the community. For many years he successfully managed a furniture factory and carried on operations in the building line. His word was his bond, and no man ever went away denied a favour by James P. Guy if it were at all possible for him to lend a helping hand.

Mr. Guy is survived by his wife, daughter of the late Nathaniel Taylor of the South Side, and by several children, amongst them William, a Rhodes Scholar, who is winning distinction in the great English University, Mrs. Johnson, wife of the Rev. Albert Johnson of Canada and Miss Ina, who is now visiting her sister, Mrs. Hugh Cameron and Mrs. Walter Tucker of Carbonear, Mrs. Mina Peach Mrs. Hedley Taylor and Mrs. Fannie Joyce of St. John's are sisters. To the widow, children, the many relatives and friends in the home town and elsewhere the sincere sympathy of the Advocate is offered in their sudden and irreparable bereavement.

WEDDING BELLS

KING—EASTMAN

The Sacrament of Holy Marriage was administered at St. George's Church, Middle Brook, Gambo, during the early afternoon of August 9th, by the Incumbent, Rev. W. J. Rowe, when Constable John King of H. M. Constabulary, Gambo, and Miss Lilian Gertrude Eastman, daughter of Samuel and Mrs. Eastman of Task Cove "Pledged their troth either to other," in the presence of a large congregation. The bride looked very becoming in a dainty gown of peach georgette with bridal veil and wreath of orange blossoms. After the ceremony the happy couple, with the guests and friends, returned to the home of the groom, where the newly married "man and wife" received an abundance of good wishes.

There were many valuable and useful presents, which is proof positive of the esteem in which the young couple are held in the community. The groom's present to the bride was an exceedingly nice gold wrist watch.

The evening was very happily spent, a special feature being the much enjoyed dance.

Constable and Mrs. King will reside in St. John's, where Mr. King shortly takes up duty with the city police.

We wish the bride and groom an abundance of happiness, and withal, a full measure of that sacred joy which the world cannot give and can not take away.—Com.

There is no solitude in nature—Schiller.

Irish Elections Indicate A Free State Victory

IS IT WAR BETWEEN ITALY AND GREECE ?

Latest Returns From the Irish Elections

DUBLIN, Aug. 30.—Freeman's Journal makes the following tabulation of latest election returns: Government Party, 30 seats; Republicans, 14; Labor, 8; Farmers, 5; Independents and Business Candidates, 11.

Free State Candidates Lead in Election

Government Will Likely Have Clear Working Majority.

LONDON, August 29—The Times gives the following standing of parties in the Irish elections, Government 18, Republicians 3, Farmers 2, Independents 6, Labour 1. This was given out on Tuesday at midnight.

LONDON, Aug. 29—The Government so far has eighteen successful candidates to about half that number for other parties, and if the present ratio is maintained, it may have a clear majority in the Free State Parliament, instead of the plurality which supporters expect. Apart from the fact that balloting was light the Daily Telegraph considers that the most satisfactory feature of the election has been the absence of serious disturbances. Some days must elapse before complete results of the election can be published.

DUBLIN, Aug. 29—E. J. Duggan, Government; P. J. Mulvanny, Farmer; and David Hall, Labor; have been returned from Meath. Peter Doyle, Government has been returned from South Dublin. Joseph McGrath, Free State Minister of Industry, Commerce and Labor was elected for North Mayo. Desmond Fitzgerald Free State Minister of Foreign Affairs, was returned from South Dublin; Sean McGarry, candidate from North City of Dublin, both of the Government party have been elected.

British Ship Believed Lost With Her Crew

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29—Hope was abandoned to-day for the British steamer Mylie, five days from Chinwanglo with coal and last seen on August 16th battling with a typhoon. It is believed all aboard perished. The chief officer was John R. Hudson who gained some prominence as an Arctic explorer and scientist.

Not He, But His Son

LONDON, August 29—A despatch from Flushing, Holland, says it was not Maharajah the Gaekwar of Baroda who died there on a train yesterday but his son Jaisingh Rao.

De Valera Heads Poll In County Clare

LONDON, Aug. 29—De Valera heads the poll in County Clare with a total vote of seventeen thousand and Professor John McNeil, Free State Minister of Education is second with eight thousand votes.

U. S. Steamer Reported Sinking

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Aug. 29—The United States Shipping Board tanker Hoven hit a rock and is sinking off San Benito Island, according to S. O. S. call received here. The Hoven is believed to be in ballast and is on her way from New York to Los Angeles.

Belgian Note Disappoints Great Britain

Offers No Concrete Solution to Difficulties.

LONDON, Aug. 29—Belgium's latest reparation note, made public to-day in Paris, is considered by British Government officials to whom adressed, as offering little or no advance towards a solution of the Ruhr impresse While appreciating the generous language and marked amity of the document, British Foreign Office experts were regretfully forced to admit that its financial proposals fell far short of Britain's anticipations. A cursory examination of the French text of the note, they said, revealed only slight hopes of agreement, but the proposals will be studied by the treasury authorities in the effect to find some signs of a basis for accommodation to the British plan. British officials admit frank disappointment that the Brussels Cabinet failed to offer a new, concrete or workable solution of its own conception. They professed to see in the note some evidence of composition by Poincare of France.

Is It Another Tragedy?

TUSCON, Arizona, Aug. 29.—An earth shock starting at four this afternoon and lasting an hour was recorded here and according to the behaviour of the seismonograph was extremely severe.

Police Court

Judge Morris Presided.

A 30 year old domestic, recently deported here from Canada, was given shelter at the Police Station last night. She is shortly to become a mother and was sent to the Maternity Home this A.M.

There was a young man named Teens aged 25, before His Honor on a disorderly charge; he does not seem to have good sense, but kicked up such a rumpus on Gower Street tlast night the police were obliged to arrest him. He was sent down for 10 days.

A domestic, who preferred a charge of assault against a city dry-goods man, had her case dismissed for want of prosecution. The defendant was in Court, but the girl did not show up in time, and when the case was called it was dismissed. The girl came into Court a few minutes later. Her story is that on Sunday night, on Freshwater Rd. the defendant struck her in the face and other-wise illused her.

Those two Norwegian sailors, who were before the Court yesterday were again lodged at the Police Station last night. They were released this morning and are hunting for a ship.

Distinction For Barbers In British Columbia

VICTORIA, B.C., Aug. 29—If a bill prepared by D. Whiteside, member for New Westminister, is passed at the next session of the Legislature in October, barbering in British Columbia will be raised to a status of skilled profession and put on a par with the learned professions of medicine and law. The bill calls for a board of examiners under the Government to investigate the claims of all aspirants to tonsorial honours, to put them to examination and see that they have been granted the necessary graduating degrees from approved colleges of barbering.

Pinchot May Ask Parties for 30 Day Time

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 29—Governor Pinchot will bring his intervention in the Anthracite situation to a climax to-night. A meting has been called for six o'clock to hear and answer the compromise proposal. The only intimation as to what the Governor has in mind in the settlement attempt gave the impression he would ask from both sides a thirty days truce.

NORTH SYDNEY, Aug. 29—Finding of a case of life belts bearing the name New Hampshire, and of other wreckage, led shipping circles to believe that another marine disaster was about to be revealed. No loss of a craft by that name has been reported and the explanation is offered that the ship is the Gopher, sunk in the Gulf some time ago, the suggestion being offered that the life belts had been transferred to that craft from the battleship New Hampshire, this explaining the name they bear.

Funeral of Jap Premier With Full Naval Honors

Between Two Evils

Now when 'tis raining
We are complaining,
With tormentation it stirs our blood
'Tis a funny city,
And more's the pity,
For every street then is filled with mud.

Now when 'tis shining
We're still repining,
To grin and bear it, "begor" we must;
We're shown no pity,
Then o'er the city
We are all enveloped in clouds of dust.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Oh, sweetheart, you mustn't!" she cried passionately, her lips unconsciously framing the unspoken cry of her heart as she strove to escape from him.

"Ah, but I shall!" he answered. "You've called me 'sweetheart' and that gives me the right." He kissed her hot cheek and laughed the light contented little laugh of the conqueror, nor could all her frantic pleading and struggling prevail upon him to let her go. In the end, she did the obvious, the human thing. She clasped him tightly round the neck, and, forgetting everything in the consuming wonder of the fact that this man loved her with a profound and holy love, she weakly gave herself up to his caresses, satisfying her heart hunger for a few blessed, wonderful moments before hardening herself to the terrible task of impressing upon him the hopelessness of it all and sending him upon his way. By degrees, she cried herself dry-eyed and leaned against him, striving to collect her dazed thoughts. And then he spoke.

"I know what you are going to say, dear. From a worldly point of view, you are quite right. Seemingly, without volition on our part, we have evolved a distressing, an impossible situation——"

"Oh, I am so glad that you understand," she gasped.

"And yet," he continued soberly, "love such as ours is not a light thing to be passed lightly by. To me, Nan Brent, you are sacred; to you, I yearn to be all things that—the—other man was not. I didn't realize until I entered unannounced and found you so desolate that I loved you. For two weeks you have been constantly in my thoughts, and I know now that, after all, you were my boyhood sweetheart."

"I know you were mine," she agreed brokenly. "But that's just a little tender memory now, even if we said nothing about it then. We are children no longer, Donald dear; we must be strong and not surrender to our selfish love."

"I do not regard it as selfish," he retorted soberly. "It seems most perfectly natural and inevitable. Why Nan, I didn't even pay you the preliminary compliment of telling you I loved you or asking you if you reciprocated my affection. It apepared to me I didn't have to; that it was a sort of mutual understanding—for here we are. It seems it just was to be—like the law of gravitation."

She smiled up at him, despite her mental pain.

"I'm not so certain, dear," she answered, "that I'm not wicked enough to rejoice. It will make out renunciation all the easier for me I have known great sorrow, but to-night, for a little while, I have surrendered my self to great happiness, and nothing—nothing—can ever rob me of the last shred of that. You are my man, Donald. The knowledge that you love me is going tod raw much of the sting out of existence. I know I cannot possess you, but I can resign myself to that and not be embittered."

"Well," he answered dully, "I can give you up—because I have to, but I shall never be resigned about it, and I fear I may be embittered. Is there noh ope, Nan?"

"A faint one—some day, perhaps, if I outlive another."

"I'll wait for that day, Nan. Meanwhile, I shall ask no questions. I love you enough to accept your love on faith, for, by God, you're a good woman."

Her eyes shon with a wonderful radience as she drew his face down to hers and kissed him on the lips.

"It's sweet of you to say that; I could love you for that alone, were there nothing else, Donald. But tell me, dear, did you receive my letter?"

"Yes—and ignored it. That's why I'm here."

"That was a risk you should not have taken."

He loked thoughtfully at the multicolored flame of the driftwood fire.

"Well, you see, Nan, it didn't occur to me that I was taking a risk; a confession of love was the last thing I would have thought would happen."

"Then why did you disregard that letter that cost me such an effort to write?"

"Well," he replied slowly, "I guess it's because I'm the captain of my soul—or try to be, at any rate I did not think it quite fair that you should be shunned; it occurred to me that I wouldn't be playing a manly part to permit the idle mewing of the Port Agnew tabbies to frighten me away. I didn't intend to fall in love with you— Oh, drat my reasons! I'm here because I'm here. And in the matter of that old hen—" He paused and favored her with a quizzical smile.

"Yes?"

"I brought a substitute hen with me—all ready for the pot, and if I can't come to dinner to-morrow, I'm going to face a very lonely Sunday."

"You ridiculous boy! Of course you may come, although it must be the final visit. You realize that we owe it to ourselves not to make our burden heavier than it's going to be."

He nodded.

"'Eat, drink and me merry, for to-morrow we may be dead,'" he quoted. "Let's sit down and talk it over. I haven't sat in front of a driftwood fire since I was a boy. Queer how the salt in the wood colors the flames isn't it?

It occurred to her for a moment that they two were driftwood, and that the salt of their lives would color their lives as the years consumed them. But she banished from her mind all thought of everything save the present. With a contented litfle sigh she seated herself beside him; her hand stole into his and, soothed and sustained by the comforting touch, each of the other, gradually the first terror of their predicament faded; ere long, Donald reminded her o fher promise, and she stole to the old square piano and sang for him, while, without, Dirty Dan O'Leary crouched in the darkness and thrilled at the ripling melody.

At ten o'clock, when Donald left the Sawdust Pile, he and Nan had arrived at the firm determination to follow separate paths, nor seek to level the barrier that circumstances had raised between them.

"Some day—perhaps," she whispered, as he held her to his heart in the dark at the garden gate. "I live, I shall love you. Good-bye, old sweetheart!"

CHAPTER XIV.

TRUE TO HIS promise, Daniel P. O'Leary declined to die that night.

"Confound your belligerent soul!" the doctor growled at dawn. "I believe you're too mean to die."

"We'll make it a finish fight," whispered Daniel.

"I'll go you," the doctor answered, and sent for digitalis and salt solution.

There was one other soul in Port Agnew who did not sleep that night, either. Andrew Daney's soul, shaken by what to him was a cosmic cataclysm, caused that good man to rise at five o'clock and go down to the hospital for another look at Dirty Dan. To his anxious inquiries the doctor shook a dubious head, but the indomitable O'Leary smiled wanly.

"Go on wid ye!" he wheezed faintly. "I'll win be a hair-line decision."

At seven o'clock, when the telegraph station opened, Andrew Daney was waiting at the door. He entered and sent a telegram to The Laird.

Return immediately.

In the late afternoon, Hector McKaye returned to Port Agnew and at once sought Andrew Daney, who related to him exactly what had occurred. The shadow of profound wor ry settled over the Laird's face.

"Dan refuses to disclose anything regarding Donald's movements," Dan ey continued, "where he followed the boy or where the fight took place. I only know that Donald was not present; Dan, fortunately, overheard the plot, inculcated, by some means, the idea in those scoundrels' heads that he was Donald, and took the fight off the boy's hands. He claimed he fought a winning fight, and he is right. The mulatto died in Darrow this morning. One of the Greeks has a smashed shoulder, and the other a broken arm and four broken rib. How they ever got home to Darrow is a mystery."

"The third Greek must have waited near the river mouth with a boat, Andrew. Have you any idea where Donald spent the evening"

"Yes, sir; but he's free, white, and twenty-one, and he's my superior. I prefer not to discuss his movements."

"Andrew, I command you to."

"I refuse to be commanded, sir."

"That's all I wanted to know. He visited the Brents, and you know it." He saw by the flush on Daney's face that he had hit the mark. "Well, I'm obliged to you, Andrew. You've done your full duty; so we'll not discuss the matter further. The situation will develop in time, and, meanwhile, I'll not spy on my boy. I wonder if the Darrow gang will talk."

"I imagine not, sir—that is, if Dirty Dan keeps his own counsel. They will fear prosecution if Dan dies; so they will be silent, fearing the out come of his injuries. If he lives, they will still remain silent, awaiting his next move. Dan will probably admit being jumped in the dark by three unknown men and that he defended himself vigorously; he can fail to identify the Greeks, and the Greeks cannot do less than fail to identify Dirty Dan, who can plead self-defence if the coroner's jury delves too deeply into the mulatto's death. I imagine they will not. At any rate, it's up to Dan whether Donald figures in the case or not, and Dan will die before he will betray the confidence."

"That's comforting," The Laird replied. "Will you be good enough to drive me home to The Dreamerie, Andrew?"

At The Dreamerie old Andrew discovered that his son had left the house early in the afternoon, saying he would not be home for dinner. So The Laird sat him down and smoked and gazed out across the Bight of Tyee until sunset, when, a vague curiosity possessing him, he looked down to the Sawdust Pile and observed that the flag still flew from the cupola. The night shadows gathered, but still the flag did not come down; and presently round The Laird's grim mouth a little prescient smile appeared, with something of pain in it.

"Dining out at Brent's," he soliloquised, "and they're so taken up with each other they've forgotten the flag. I do not remember that the Brent girl ever forgot it before. She loves him."

MRS. ANDERSON TELLS WOMEN

How Backache and Periodic Pains Yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Leslie, Sask.—"For about a year I was troubled with a distressing downbearing pain before and during the periods, and from terrible headaches and backache. I hated to go to a doctor, and as I knew several women who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with good results, I finally bought some and took four bottles of it. I certainly do recommend it to every woman with troubles like mine. I feel fine now and hope to be able to keep your medicine on hand at all times, as no woman ought to be without it in the house."—Mrs. OSCAR A. ANDERSON, Box 15, Leslie, Sask.

Mrs. Kelsey Adds Her Testimony

Copenhagen, N. Y.—"I read your advertisement in the papers and my husband induced me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to get relief from pains and weakness. I was so weak that I could not walk at times. Now I can do my housework and help my husband out doors, too. I am willing for you to publish this letter if you think it will help others."—Mrs. HERBERT KELSEY, R.F.D., Copenhagen, N. Y.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before they give up hope of recovery. C

Notes From Avondale

To The Advocate I must relate
The best that I can find—
Perhaps memories past,
That o'er me cast
Recollections fond and kind.

The weather's fine, 'tis summer time,
With the woodlands looming gay;
My heart is cheery,
I am not weary,
And meditation directs my way.

Our loveliest clime is summer time
When the fields with flowers are decked,
How my heart doth long,
For the poet's song
Their beauty to reflect.

The bluebells gay, in great array,
Adorn each field and vale,
And numerous others
Combine their colors
In the fields of Avondale.

Nearly eight long months have come and gone, Mr. Editor, since we penned a line for your leading journal. We gladly look around for some jutting promontory from which to secure bearings, and a departure. Having drawn these initials on our mental chart, we hope to pursue a course in compliance with your wishes and with as little leeway as possible.

The Advocate has done yeamon service in its strong, optimistic teachings and encouragement of the future well being of Newfoundland. Though there are many men urgently in need of work at present, and more employment is greatly to be desired, yet the embryo of a great industrial beginning for the country is probably maturing. That it will in time attain to a great success and prove itself prolific of vastly better conditions for our people, there is every indication. Thus will The Evening Advocate's continued and consistent position, when other contemporary papers were bellowing hopelessness and blue ruin, be exultingly proclaimed correct.

But though a better day is in sight for the industrial activity of Terra Nova, our immediate concern should be the men of families, and in fact, all men who are looking ahead to a long and dreary winter season without yet having earned a dollar. Each place has its certain number in such an unfortunate position, and that, let us all remember, through no fault of their own.

Men need to make wages in the summer—it has ever been the custom need to make wages in the summer time—it has ever been the custom in Newfoundland. But we contend that men of families whom we know to be seeking assistance because of want of employment, should be given a chance of work when passes are being singled out, in preference to others not so much oppressed.

In this our first newspaper space for some time, permit me, Mr. Editor, to extend congratulations to our popular member, Hon. M. E. Hawco, M.H.A.. In the political contests during the past four years, no less than nine candidates were in the ring for political honors in Hr. Main. Mr. Hawco alone achieved the distinction and signal success of heading the poll on the Government side in the final bout, and buttressing his attainment with the appointment of Minister of Posts and Telegraphs, and an executive seat in the government of Hon. W. R. Warren. Much credit is due Mr. Hawco, not alone for his personal success, but for the bonor he has brought to his district in gaining its representation in the executive government of the country.

Dr. Jones has returned to his home at Avondale, from St. John's, where he underwent a course of medical treatment at the General Hospital for some internal trouble. The many friends of the Doctor are glad to know and to see that his health is much improved.

Cleopatra's Beauty Secret

Cleopatra knew that to have a fresh fine skin, thorough cleansing was necessary. She knew that the gentlest means must be employed. She used Palm and Olive oils.

The crude combination of these oils which was the best even royalty could command, is today brought to perfection in Palmolive.

Every girl can have the radiant healthy skin which is the foundation of all beauty. Intelligent care is the secret — thorough cleansing the basis.

Unless thoroughly cleansed with soap and water, the skin becomes sluggish and inactive. The tiny pores clog with dirt, oil secretions, perspiration, rouge and powder, and blackheads and other blemishes result.

A pure mild soap causes no irritation.

Women who fear it have been using the wrong soap.

Palmolive, with its creamy mild lather is lotion-like in its action. It soothes while it cleanses; it freshens, revives and stimulates and leaves the skin delightfully fresh and rosy.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

Palm and olive oils —nothing else—give nature's green color to Palmolive Soap

Splendid Normal School Building Is Now Near Completion

On Tuesday afternoon, a representative of The Advocate was shown over the Normal School now in course of construction by the Horwood Lumber Company, and found the building fast nearing completion under the skilled hands of the various tradesmen engaged at the work. When finished, the Normal School will be, without exception, one of the finest, soundest and most modernly constructed public buildings in this city, and will compare favorably with anything of its class on the North American continent.

The structure will consist of three stories, viz; first, main and ground floors, the walls being of reinforced concrete with pebble-dash finish to correspond with the Wallace free stone facings, thus adding to its appearance as well as its durability. The building fronts on the new street recently made and which intersects the Parade Grounds, the northern portion of which are to be the Normal School grounds. In the centre will be a portico rising from the ground to the top of the building, and here is situated the main entrance, which is approached by granite steps leading to the main floor. The portico, which has not yet been erected, will be entirely of Wallace free-stone, and all the material is now on the site.

The roof is constructed of concrete with steel joists and is covered with pitch and gravel. In the Eastern, S. and W. and Assembly roofs are located six hoppers, towards which the roof gradually declines, and the rain water will be taken off by means of these hoppers from which pipes lead down thru the building and on the main sewer. This obviates the necessity for gutters, and in winter sufficient heat will be radiated from the interior to melt the surrounding snow and thus keep them free. All the copings and cornices are to be copper flashed.

On the first floor and lighted from the eastern and southern ends respectively, are situated the physics room, the museum and library, all of which are roomy apartments and occupy the eastern and southern sections of that floor. Running from east to west is the corridor, and off this, three open balconies overlooking the assembly hall. This is one of the special features of the building. It occupies the whole of the northern section running the height of two floors and having at the eastern end a commodious stage, and at the western end a booth for a moving picture projector which can be used for illustrating lectures, etc., while it is lighted by three large circular top windows from the north. The assembly hall measures seventy-five feet by thirty-six feet, and will have a capacity of about four hundred persons.

The assembly hall will be used for general educational purposes, and in connection therewith, the moving picture projector will be made a highly educational factor instead of the mere instrument of enjoyment it is now.

In addition to the rooms already mentioned, there are also on the first floor, lighted by the eastern window, two class-rooms.

On the main floor are situated four class-rooms and a large pindergarten room. Another corridor runs almost the length of the building on this floor, and from it there are three entrances into the assembly hall. Leading from the outside to the basement, are two other front entrances, located on either side of the main entrance, these being respectively for male and female pupils. On this floor are the domestic science sewing room, the domestic science room (cooking), the manual training room, a vault, a spare room, janitor's quarters, including living room, bed-room and dining alcove. There are also the men's and ladies' toilets, a boiler room and fan room. In the wash room there will be three shower baths.

The ventilation system is one of the most modern and is the first of its kind to be used in the country. The rooms are so constructed as to permit the continual circulation of the air, which is kept continually purified by a washing process that takes place in the fan room, which is the source of the fresh or purified air that is kept continually supplied throughout the building. The air in the entire building is renewed every twenty minutes. The place will be heated by steam and the pipe fitting etc., is now being proceeded with. The main partitions of the building ar of brick, while the other portions are of terra cotta. The walls will be cement-finished to a height of four feet from the floor, the remaining portion being of plaster, as will also be the ceilings. In a week everything will be ready for the plastering to be started. All the outside walls are done with terra cotta furring, which forms an insulation and prevents the walls from sweating. The electric wiring is being carried on in conjunction with the general construction work, and all the wires are run through conduit pipes inside the concrete. In addition to concrete flors, concrete roof, brick and terra cotta walls, the building has all concrete stairs, so that the general solidity of the structure may be easily imagined. Despite the fact that it is entirely fire-proof, there is a four-inch fire main connecting with a main outside. The doors will be covered with battleship linoleum, while the floors of the physics room and main entrance will be done in quarry tile, and the corridor with a 9-inch border of thes ame material. In each of the class-rooms will be two slate blackboards of from eighteen to twenty feet long.

The plumbing work is being done by Mr. W. J. Ryan, who has all the sewer pipes in position and is now running the water pipes and vents. The pipe fitting is in the capable hands of Mr. C. A. Hubley, who is also well ahead of his part of the work. The electrical work is being done by W. C. Winsborow.

Every phase of the construction operation is proceding apace and it is confidently hoped that the entire work will be finished by the end of November, and the place ready for occupation in the early spring.

It is a good thing that Newfoundland has the means of giving its teachers the training that is so essential to the successful performance of their important duties, and it is safe to say that no public expenditure ever made in this colony has been calculated to bring such big returns.

The Otira tunnel Has Just Been Opened.

The largest tunnel in the British Empire, the Otira tunnel, linking the east and west coast of South Island, New Zealand, has just been opened. It pierces the southern Alps of Arthur's Pass for five and one-third miles and replaces the picturesque but dangerous coach route. The railway through the Otira tunnel which joins the heads of both the coastal railways is electric and was constructed by the British Electrical Company. The tunnel has a gradient of one foot in thirty-three. It is officially stated to be the seventh longest tunnel in the world and the largest tunnel in the Empire. Premier Massey, at the official opening of the big tunnel, commenting on the magnitude of the undertaking so successfully completed, said he was proud of the fact that the whole of the machinery used in connection with its construction was made in Great Britain.

Port Union's Progress

The Notes from Port Union which we publish to-day indicate that the Fishermen's Town is just as busy as ever, and in spite of a great shortage in the shore voyage, has addressed itself determinedly to another big year of business.

This year Port Union has entered upon a period of intense activity, and much construction work of an essential character has been undertaken.

The matter of a water supply system for Port Union had long been entertained by Sir William Coaker; and it will now be seen that the work of pipe laying that will tap the splendid supply of water power, which also drives the Electric Light and Power Co.'s plant, has been successfully finished, under Mr. Bryant's supervision.

Port Union has thus possessed itself of the chief modern requirements of a city, its houses having an up-to-date water supply, being lighted with electric bulbs, and possessing electric cooking facilities at a very cheap rate. The town's streets, wharves and premises are brilliantly lit at night, and the accessibility by train and steamer bids fair for Port Union's future.

There seems no doubt about it that Port Union, which, in the material way, largely crystalizes the fishermen's efforts to depart from the old order of things, will soon become the great centre of the north. Already, it is the trade centre of the north, from where an enormous purchasing and selling business is conducted, which extends throughout the northern districts.

Like the Humber project, it is required to see this achievement to ascertain any idea that will do justice to those who have been instrumental in producing Port Union and its associated activities.

Then, the Union enemies would, as with the Humber, give credit where credit is due.

There are large numbers of people, chiefly outside the north, who have thought that the Union Trading Company was a cash business which, without taking the risks contingent upon supplying for the fishery, could enter into competition with other supplying firms in the purchase of fish. This is untrue, as will be seen by the statement that sixty schooners were outfitted for the Labrador by the Trading Company this season.

That this is a big work must be admitted, and, if all firms doing business could equal this effort, there would not be many fishermen left ashore this year. It is an accomplishment which gives a very definite answer to the claims that the F. P. U. has lost faith in the fisheries of the country.

In many respects Port Union has created a record as far as business activities are concerned.

Port Union builds its own vessels, sends them to the fisheries, and exports its fish in its own ocean-going vessels, in casks built in its own cooperage.

Here is an achievement of which the country should be well proud.

The Gambling Mania

Two years ago the Legislature was induced to amend the Lottery Act, so as to permit the sale of tickets and run off sweepstakes for ostensibly charitable purposes. It was argued by those who favored this relaxation of what appeared to be a puritanical law, that gambling was going on anyway, and it were better to grant those licenses for legitimate and deserving purposes, rather than have those who took part in games of chance to become, (if not morally) then technically guilty of violating an existing law.

We have no hesitancy in saying, that the liberty, which the Legislature intended to bestow with regard to lotteries and other games of chance has been flagrantly abused. The inducements held out to old and young alike have been so tempting and so general at Garden Parties, the Regatta and other gatherings of a social nature during the present summer as to create much adverse comment on the part of the general public, and justly so.

The Wheel of Fortune operated at 10 cents for a dollar chance may be looked upon as a simple past-time; but when it comes to $1.00 investment for a $50.00 prize, the element of gambling is introduced, so flagrantly as to convert these affairs into a minature Monte Carlo. We think that those responsible for raising funds for philanthropic or other purposes by such means have perhaps unconsciously opened up the path to ruin for many a city youth. Once developed, the gambling habit obtains a mastery over its victim, which is very difficult to conquer.

Evidence is not lacking to prove that the victim has only to stay long enough at the game to be ruthlessly cleaned out. He is driven to questionable means either to obtain the money he gambles, or to make good his losses. Thousands of dollars have been taken in this summer by methods which every pulpit throughout the land in the olden days used to condemn as contrary to the commandmant "Thou shalt not steal." If then we are to see removed from the paths of the young and those who cannot afford it, the temptation to steal, let those who business it is conform strictly to the objects for which the amendments in the lottery law was agreed to by the Legislature.

NOTES FROM PORT UNION

Fish Collecting Season Opens With Great Activity — Schooners Loading Union Fish In North and West Coast Centres — "Gander Deal" Is The Sixteenth Schooner Launched From Union Shipbuilding Docks — Large Wood Working Factory Almost Completed, Which Is a Compact and Well Arranged Plant, Provided With Latest Modern Equipments — A New Water Supply System, and Construction of Extra Houses Are Other Features of Advancement in Fishermen's Town.

The Trading Co. is busy collecting fish for the Kriton. Several thousand quintals have been arranged for; although the quantity of fish offering is less than was ever experienced in the North.

* * * * *

It is estimated that the catch of shore fish north of St. John's is but 25 per cent. of last year's catch.

* * * * *

The collecting boats, Purity and Swan, have been busy bringing fish from nearby ports.

* * * * *

The Cecil & Belle is loading fish at Raleigh.

* * * * *

The F. P. Union is loading fish on the West Coast, having just discharged a load of provisions at Point aux Gaul.

* * * * *

Another schooner is loading 1400 qtls. at Epworth.

* * * * *

Another schooner is loading 2000 qtls. at Quirpon.

* * * * *

The following schooners have arrived to the Trading Co. from Straits and Labrador:—

Schooner	Qtls.
Progress	900
Blackwood	900
Humber Deal	1100
Orient	800
Matthews	500
James Jones	1200
Gull Pond	1000
Bungie	400
Laverock	400

The most of this fish is now ready for shipment by Kriton.

* * * * *

The 16th schooner, launched from shipyard here, left the stocks on 27th, about 70 tons, named Gander Deal, this being the second launched this season, the other being a sister ship the Gull Pond.

* * * * *

The Wood Working Factory, erected this season, is almost ready for operation. The machinery has been installed and now awaits electric motors. The factory is equipped with a drying kiln with capacity for 30,000 feet. It is also equipped with an electric elevator which conveys the lumber and made-up material from flat to flat. It is probably the most modern, compact and well arranged plant in the country. It will be managed by Mr. C. Bryant.

* * * * *

The job of laying water pipes to provide a water supply for Port Union is about finished. The work has been supervised by Mr. C. Bryant; in addition to his many talents he has now developed into an engineer. This water service will be a great convenience and a certain protection against fire.

* * * * *

Four new houses are under construction for the Trading Co. employees.

Mr. Gordon Elliott of Hr. Breton, who is the son of Henry Elliott, formerly of Change Islands, has been appointed assistant accountant, to succeed Mr. Lanning, who is now living at Amherst Cove.

* * * * *

Mr. Frank Bailey, formerly of Port Rexton, has been promoted to the position of head store-keeper, succeeding Mr. Geo. Hiscock, who has gone to Boston. Frank Bailey is another young man who has received rapid promotion since he started to work for the Trading Co., and is to be congratulated upon his recent appointment.

* * * * *

Mr. Vincent Duggan has been transferred from the general store department to the provision department.

* * * * *

The cooperage has been in full swing all the summer, turning out packages for European and Brazilian markets. The foreman, Mr. Richard Bursey, is another young man who has paved his way to the position by energy and close attention to duties.

* * * * *

The Trading Co. has just opened a new branch store at Catalina, which is being managed by Mr. Mack Clouter, who was transferred thereto from the whole-sale dept. at Port Union. The new store was built this spring, and belongs to the Trading Co. The F. P. U. men of Catalina and Little Catalina erected the building by free labor.

* * * * *

Sixty schooners were outfitted for the Labrador by the Trading Co. this season; amongst the number are included built at Port Union, viz.:—James Jones, Harold Johnson, Humber Deal, Stella H., Gull Pond, A. S. Blackwood.

* * * * *

The schr. C. Bryant is due from Barbados, via Hr. Buffett, with a cargo of molasses. This is the second cargo for Port Union this season.

* * * * *

Mr. Geo. Mifflin, formerly teacher at Amherst Cove, who removed to Port Union last fall has secured a position in the wholesale dept. His son Harry, who is one of the genial young men of the town is working in the electrical dept. under Mr. E. Smith.

* * * * *

Mr. Thos. Russell has removed from Catalina to Port Union. Abram and Edward Bailey of Port Rexton have also taken up residence here this summer. Mr. Robt. Harnum of Winterton has also settled at Port Union and is employed in the cooperage.

* * * * *

Mr. Wm. Bendell, formerly of Clarke's Beach, recently of Botwood, who removed to Port Union last year, is now in charge of the wholesale dry goods department, succeeding Mr. Mack Clouter.

* * * * *

Mr. Lutz, manager of the Catalina branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia, has just taken a vacation, and is visiting his old home in New Brunswick. Rumour has it that he is likely to enter the ranks of the Benedicts during his stay in New Brunswick.

Salmon In Good Condition Says Atlantic Fisheries

The second cargo of fresh salmon taken by the steam trawler Kanuck from Labrador to England, despite delay in loading through ice conditions arrived in good condition, and providing the Newfoundlantic Fisheries Ltd. receive slight encouragement as regards cold storage, it is their intention to prosecute the business on a large scale next season, which will be the means of assisting the fishery, the staple industry of the country, to a large extent.

NOTE.—The Advocate has received several communications from Mr. Arthur English and has referred them to the Lunacy Board for their consideration.

Canadian Fishery Cruiser Arrives In Port

Frenchmen Secure Big Trips.

The Canadian fishery protection cruiser Arras, arrived in port yesterday from the Banks. The Arras reports that stormy weather and lack of bait has interfered with the Bank fishery and the catch of the Lunenburg fleet is considerably less than last season's. In all some 76 vessels were operating from the Nova Scotian ports, and the whole fleet are now in Newfoundland waters seeking bait. At Cape Broyle there are 19, while the others are at Fermeuse, Renews and other ports right around to Carbonear.

Captain Barkhouse, of the Arras, states that the French fleet are about leaving for home. All have secured good trips and should average between 4000 and 5000 qtls. This season 100 sail of French vessels operated on the Grand Banks, and the Arras spoke to at least 20 of their large beam trawlers, so that the French catch this year will be well over half a million quintals.

There were 40 Portuguese vessels operating as well as several Danish vessels, and like the French fleet they have good trips.

The Captain reports fish plentiful at Cape St. Mary's and on St. Pierre Banks last week, and the boats fishing at the former place, returned with good trips.

At Cape Pine the Arras spoke to two Grand Bank vessels, who were fishing in that section and they reported fish scarce, and operations handicapped by bad weather.

St. Andrew's Society Will Bid Farewell To Departing Members

This evening a special meeting of St. Andrew's Society is being held when the members will bid farewell to Secretary R. H. Tait, and Mr. A. Gibbs, both of whom are leaving by the Rosalind Saturday for Boston, where they will make their future home. Mr. Gibbs has been a life-long member of the St. Andrew's Society and as an executive officer has rendered yeoman service, while Major Tait has been actively associated with the Society for years past, and his loss will be felt by the organization.

At this evening's meeting the Feildian football team, of which Major Tait has been a prominent member, will also be present, to wish their old comrade bon voyage.

The Public Despatch is A Joke

Newfoundlanders are a long-suffering people, but there is a limit even to their apparently inexhaustible patience. So far as our public despatch is concerned, that limit must be about reached now. The newspapers, as the disseminators of the so-called foreign news, are continually receiving stuff by cable which is mostly a rehash from Canadian papers, and much of which has already been clipped from them as "reprint" before it comes along in cable form.

Anything that is of real value from a news standpoint usually arrives here, when it has been read and forgotten by the Canadian and United States public, and then only the barest gist of such items is given.

If, however, somebody reports that it is rumoured that a despatch from Timbuctoo contains the sad news that Maharajah, the Gaekwar of Borada has shuffled off this mortal coil, the wires between here and the continent are kept red hot with the appalling news until it is discovered next day that it is not Maharajah, the Gaekwar of Baroda, at all who has found rest from his earthly toil, but his son, Jaisingh Rao. Or, when Pola Nigri decides that she will not, after all, marry Charlie Chaplain because she discovers he has a temperament and picks his teeth with the carving knife, the Newfoundland public are immediately made aware of the momentuous decision. The latest insult to the intelligence of our readers is the following which appears in this morning's messages and which must cause a sensation wherever it is read in Newfoundland:

TORONTO, Aug. 29—Ceasar Barrango Consul-Gencral of Cuba, last night expressed indignation at the references in the Toronto evening papers to the fact that champagne and liquors had been served to visitors on board the Cuban warship Patria, lying off the exhibition grounds here. He said the practice was customary on board foreign warships when in port, and the papers in question had shown discourtesy to his country which had at great expense sent a warship 3000 miles to show friendship for Canada. Mr. Hales, Chairman of the Ontario License Board said he thought the Ontario Temperance Association could prevent liquor being brought into Ontario on a warship and the Consul declared if such action were taken he would order the warship home and consider the course an unfriendly act towards Cuba.

How long more are we going to continue to pay for that which can be got, with as great despatch and far more thoroughness, for nothing?

Coue Doctrine Wins More Converts Here

Institute in West 70th Street Now Treating 200—80 sent by Physicians.

(New York World.)

The doctrine of Emile Coue, the druggist in Nancy, France, is still on the upward grade. According to a report of the National Coue Institute, Inc., No. 276 West 70th Street, made public recently, the number of patients now being treated by the institute for a variety of ailments by auto-suggestion has reached 200.

The Coue cure by suggestion has gained enough respect from physicians to influence eighty of them in sending the patients to the clinics. The case of every patient must be diagnosed by an accredited physician whose approval of the aid of suggestion in the treatment of the malady must be obtained before the clinic will accept the patient. No charge is made by the institute, thew ork being supported by voluntary contributions.

The ailments for which the treatment is being given range from nervous disorders to bronchitis. Most of the diseases, however, directly relate to the nervous system more quickly than any others to auto-suggestion. The clinic of the institute transferred to Onteora, N. Y., July 1, will be returned to the institute headquarters Sept. 1.

PROGRESSIVES AIM TO DRIVE COOLIDGE INTO LINE OF FIRE

Opponents of His Nomination in 1924, Plan to Force Him to Declare Himself on Big Issues

From The World's Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—Progressive Republican leaders plan to force President Coolidge into the open on leading political issues, preparatory to opposing his nomination for President in 1924.

Conferences already have been held and final decision on a program is awaiting the return of Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, from Europe. At present the Coolidge opposition is centering around Hiram Johnson of California, whose three minute call on the President has been the measure of his expression of support of the new Administration. Whether the mantle of Progressive leadership finally will be cast about the shoulders of Johnson or of La Follettee depends largely upon the attitude of the Wisconsin leader who left the United States with the threat of a third party movement upon his lips.

Opposition to the candidacy of President Coolidge in 1924 has been manoeuvred by the Executive into a position of sullen silence and watchful waiting. Beyond his declaration that he proposes to carry out the Harding policies, the President has not committed himself, and even the pladge to carry out the Harding program was accomplished by a reservation.

Freedom of Action Retained.

The President takes the position that even if President Harding had lived there would have been changes his attitudes, and therefore similar changes in position may be expected under the new regime. With this interpretation the President becomes the interpreter of what changes would have taken place, which leaves him a liberal freedom of action.

Among the questions upon which it has been decided to force a show down to demonstrate whether the new President is to be classed as a reactionary or as a progressive are the following:

The transportation question, involving support or opposition to the demand for reduced freight rates and a reduction of the valuation of the roads upon which legitimate earnings are based.

Re-opening of the tariff question with wholesale reductions now being demanded by the Middle Western farmers. A subject which is proving embarrassing to the aspirations of Hiram Johnson.

The World Court question and foreign policy.

The soldiers bonus, vetoed by President Harding, but certain to be projected into the new Congress.

Revision of the Revenue Law and reduction to taxes on small incomes, together with a differential between taxes paid on earned and unearned incomes.

New farm legislation looking to stabilization of the price of wheat and amelioration of the situation confronting the farmers.

Revival of the ship subsidy battle and determination of the attitude of the administration toward the Government Merchant Marine.

These are but a few of the questions which the Progressive plan to put before the President with the belief that shortly after Congress convenes the President will have been forced to place his cards upon the table.

Advantage With Coolidge.

The Coolidge opposition realizes the President has the advantage at the outset, since their batteries will have to remain masked for a considerable period, and, in the meantime, the man in the White House will be in good position to perfect his organization and line up delegates. The appointment of C. Bascom Slemp as private secretary, together with the speed with which Senator Moses was taken into camp in New Hampshire, indicates the President works fast and is not disposed to overlook chances.

Lack of cohesion in their own ranks as to leadership also works to the advantage of the President and much of the success of their attack will depend upon the nature of the entente that will be established between Hiram Johnson and Senator La Follette.

Stnator Borah of Idaho also has to be considered, and Borah has issued a statement which looks like approval of the Coolidge leadership.

Widow of H. G. Hemming, Murdered Broker, Died Penniless in Hospital

Auctioneer's Notice That Her Few Remaining Effects Will Be Sold Reveals Tragic Story—Was Taken In By Former Chauffeur—Ran Thru $40,000 Fortune.

(New York World)

Concealed in a brief announcement by a public auctioneer yesterday was the tragic story of how Mrs. Helen M. Hemming, widow of Henry G. Hemming, broker, who was murdered at his home at Duck Island, L. I., in July, 1921, had died penniless after getting rid of at least $40,000 obtained from the sale of her interest in the broker's home.

The few bits of furniture and furnishings left of Mrs. Hemming's fortune will be sold in the auction rooms of Samuel Marx, No. 115 West 23rd Street, to-morrow.

It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Hemming, once widely known for her beauty, appeared last January at the home of Charles de la Gardelle, No. 305 West 11th Street, and asked Mr. De la Gardelle, her former chauffeur, for food and lodging. She said she was sick and penniless and pointed to her shabby clothing as indicative of her destitute condition.

The chauffeur conferred with his wife and they agreed to give the woman a home. Mrs. Hemming ate ravenously the food her former employee obtained for her. Six weeks later, Mrs. Hemming, still sick and weakened, was taken to St. Luke's Hospital, where she died March 31. Nothing was said of the death at the time, and the knowledge of her tragic end was confined to her daughter, Helen Henderson, now fifteen, the former employee and a few friends.

The girl was given a home by Oakley Delameter of Northport, L. I., shortly after the murder. Just how much money Mrs. Hemming obtained from her husband's estate was never made clear. She possessed at least a half interest in the broker's home at Duck Island, which was regarded as one of the show places of northern Long Island. The furnishings, which are to be sold to-morrow, were taken from the house after she sold her interest to a real estate concern.

Her interest was valued at $40,000, and it is understood that she received a price approximating this. After moving from Duck Island she lived for a time at the Garden City Hotel. When she was no longer able to pay her weekly bills she was asked to leave. It was only a few days after leaving there that she appeared to ask charity of her former employee.

Mrs. Hemming did not share in her husband's will. According to the stories published at the time he was killed she and the broker had been estranged for some time and it was Mrs. Hemmings orders to Frank Eberhardt, her caretaker at Duck Island, to prevent her husband from visiting her that caused the broker's death. Hemming's body was found riddled with bullets near the country home. Nearby was the bullet-pierced body of Eberhardt, an unkempt Austrian.

Investigation disclosed that Hemming had been warned to stay away and had tried to force his way into the house, and the generally accepted theory was that the caretaker followed Mrs. Hemming's orders too literally.

John G. Hemming, the broker's son, received the bulk of the estate, but the wife was understood to have received a sizeable fortune. No explanation was available yesterday as to why it had dwindled to a few bits of furniture and household furnishings. The proceeds of the sale will go to the daughter, the auctioneer's notice said.

Herbert Pike, Employee of the Royal Stores, Drowned Near Topsail

Tragedy Occurs While Members of the Swimming Club Are Holding Annual Outing

Herbert Pike, an employee of the Royal Stores, Ltd., lost his life by drowning while taking part in the Annual outing of the Royal Stores Swimming Club, of which he was a member. The Club, which includes practically all the members of the firm(left the city by motor bus at 2.30 yesterday afternoon, and put up at Chamberlains.

A set program had been arranged for the afternoon's enjoyment. Shortly after arriving, some forty of the members, including Pike, went to the beach for a swim. There was a heavy lop on at the time, and the wind was quite chilly. Pike, who was a very powerful swimmer, despite the protests of his companions, started off to swim to a boat anchored on the "collars" some quarter of a mile distant from the shore. His comrades even shouted to him while he was in the water, to return, but he continued on. He reached the boat and swam around it and was returning, when within two hundred yards of the shore, he apparently took a cramp. His cries for help were heard by those on the shore, and immediately Mr. Harold McPherson, President of the Club, and a director of the firm, who had been swimming, and was about to dress himself, together with Messrs Scott and Morgan, also of the Royal Stores, procured a boat that was on the beach and willing hands soon had her afloat.

The boat had evidently been lying on the beach for some time, for as soon as she was launched water began to pour through the seams and she began to fill. The rescuers, however, kept rowing, forgetting their own danger in the anxiety to render assistance to their companion, and kept rowing towards the spot where he was last seen. When within 25 yards of the scene, the boat, which had then become filled with water, capsized, and all three were thrown into the sea. Mr. Morgan was unable to swim but Mr. Scott was, and he took care of Morgan, both holding on to the upturned boat, while Mr. Macpherson, pushing an oar, pluckily set out to the place where he thought Pike was. He had, however, disappeared from view, and after a search Mr. Macpherson returned to the upturned boat. In the meantime another boat had put off from the shore to rescue the occupants of the rescuing boat, and they were gotten back to land, very much exhausted after their prolonged stay in the water, and overcome by the excitement occasioned by the sad happening.

The incident occurred about 4.30, and a motor boat being procured, the body was recovered within half an hour in four fathoms of water, with the aid of jiggers, by a man named Fowlow.

As soon as the body was taken ashore, artificial respiration was applied, Miss Lydia Miller, who is an experienced V.A.D., being of great assistance. As soon as the incident occurred Mr. Campbell Macpherson, son of Dr. Macpherson, motored to Manuels for Dr. Burden, who was staying there.

Upon the doctor's arrival, everything possible was done to sesuciate Mr. Pike, but to no avail. The vital spark had fled.

Deceased was married and has a young wife and two little boys, the older one being three and a half years old residing on McDougall St. When it was realized that death had intervened, Mr. Harold Macpherson forthwith telephoned to Rev. E. C. Earp, who broke the sad news to the bereaved widow.

The unfortunate and tragic affair cast a gloom over the whole party, who immediately abandoned their outing and returned to the city. The remains were taken in charge by undertaken Carnell and conveyed to his late residence.

The deceased was well and favorably known in the city. For many years he went to sea, being steward on the Coastal boats, but some five years ago he accepted a position with the Royal Stores, and was employed as shipping clerk. He was an active member of the C.L.B. Old Comrades, and of the Sons of England.

Boy Scouts' Sports

The first annual athletic meet under the auspices of the Boy Scouts was held on St. George's Field yesterday afternoon. The weather was ideal and the attendance was large and included His Lordship Bishop White, Sir William and Lady Horwood, Dr. W. W. Blackall and Mr. C. P. Ayre, as well as many other interested in the movement. The various events by the Scouts, and Girl Guides were interesting and enjoyable, and the different races were well contested.

Mr. W. J. Higgins was field Captain and he was assisted by members of the Scouts Committee.

The Mount Cashel Band was in attendance and rendered very excellent musical selections.

The prizes were presented by Lady Horwood, who congratulated the athletes on their prowess. The following is the list of events and winners.

ANNUAL PICNICS

Gower Street Sunday School.

The Gower Street Sunday School held its annual picnic at Mount Pearl yesterday. A special train took the hundreds of children that attended to the field, and brought them back in the evening. The picnic was a mast enjoyable one in every way, and was one of the most successful in the history of the school. The weather was ideal throughout, the catering by Mr. Wills was excellent, and the children entered whole-heartedly into the spirit of the day. Sports and games kept them fully inttrested, and it was a happy, if tired, train load of youngsters that returned to town just before eight o'clock.

Picnic at Brennan's Farm.

Mrs. E. Brennan's Picnic last evening at her Broad Cove Road Farm was a social and financial success.

Busses and cars from town brought many friends, who were anxious to assist Mrs. Brennan in her most laudable efforts, to give a pleasant evening to the young folk of the school section, and incidentally raise funds for the extension of the school. Races between the young folks was a feature of the evening, but the piece de resistance, was a race between the married women. Prizes were awarded the winner of each event.

The grounds were set out with many refreshment booths and bunting flying in the breeze added color and charm to the gay assembly.

At night an enjoyable dance concluded a very pleasant affair.

ADVERTISE IN THE "ADVOCATE."

New Motor Traffic Regulation Was Voted Down

A general meeting of the Motor Association was held at the West End Restaurant at 1.15 p.m. to-day when a number of important matters relative to motor traffic were considered.

The Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting which were confirmed.

Mr. F. W. Ayre moved the adoption of the rule relating to the right of way of cars coming towards the city at night over those going out which are by the rule, to stop and dim their lights. Mr. Ayre, thought that all rules laid down by the Motor Association should be strictly adhered to and in this respect he thought the Association was not doing the work it was originally intended to do. In many cases the simplest rules such as the sounding of horns in rounding corners, are absolutely ignored. Such rules should be enforced regardless of the grumbling of which there is bound to be much. He censured the Motor Association members for not reporting all irregularities. He referred to those who are not manly enough to come along and pay their subscriptions and join the Association, assuming in this way their share of the burden of the work the Association is carrying on for the benefit of all motorists and for the public generally.

Hon. W. J. Ellis seconded the motion in a brief speech which was much to the point.

Mr. A. G. Gosling thought such a rule was altogether unnecessary. If a car going to Topsail has to stop during a night trip for every incoming car, it would not reach its destination till morning.

Mr. Cocker agreed with Mr. Gosling and thought drivers would not be got to comply with this rule. The difficulty could be got over by focusing lights on the ground more.

Mr. Basil Outerbridge also opposed the motion and thought that no accidents had occurred in the past because of the absence of such a rule.

Mr. W. H. Hynes also opposed the motion and said nobody would keep the rule, certainly he would not, and there are no means of enforcing such a rule.

Chairman E. R. Watson supported the motion and thought the narrowness the roads in places made such a rule as that under discussion necessary.

Mr. Thos. Soper reminded the meeting that it has been the aim of the Association for years to enforce proper driving rules. As far as the dimming of lights being left to the discretion of drivers was concerned, this merely meant that in many cases both cars dim lights and unnecessary delay to both is caused. The other driving rules he thought should be incorporated with this one.

There being no amendment the motion was then put and was defeated by a vote of twelve to ten.

Dr. Macpherson referred to the erroneous idea that all traffic regulations are made for motors alone while, as a matter of fact other forms of vehicular traffic cause much more trouble than motors. It is a pity the public gaze should be fixed on motor traffic alone.

The next business of the meeting was the consideration of a recommendation by the Association that tourists coming here and bringing cars should be given a rebate of licence.

Mr. T. Soper said this recommendation was unnecessary as it was already in force by arrangement made by the Road Commission.

Mr. P. E. Outerbridge said the Municipal Council knew nothing of such an arrangement. At present the Council has no instructions to hand any money collected back.

Mr. Soper said that after the Council had received $5,000 in fees they had no further interest in the matter.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The matter of whether or not a dinner should be held this season was next taken up. Hon. W. J. Ellis did not see much point in such a dinner.

Mr. Silverlock thought it might prove an inducement to other motorists to join the Association and proposed that the dinner should be held. The motion to have the dinner was carried by a vote of 17 to 5.

General business was then taken up and discussed after which the meeting adjourned.

More Particulars of Drowning Accident

The following message has been received by the sub-collector from Woods Island:—

"On Friday last a man named Mollow, 83 years old, and a daughter 7 years old, were drown by capsizing their dory coming out of Serpentine River. His wife was also in the dory but saved herself by holding on to dory and reached shore. Both bodies have been recovered."

All inquiries regarding Job work, Advertising and Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager of the Advocate.

MR. SHANO HATTED

On Wednesday last at North Sydney, Mr. A. W. Shano was honored by about sixteen of his gentleman friends, the occasion being his birthday. The gentlemen had a merry evening of bridge and the prize winners were Messrs Albert Cann, and Joseph McPherson.

Mr. Shano was presented with a hat and in a few words thanked his friends for their thought of him. Late in the evening a supper was served.

THE LAST OF THE LABRADOR GOLD EPIDEMIC

Watchful Brings Back Makings of a Mining Town.

The final chapter of the "Labrador Gold Rush," ended last evening, when the steamer Watchful dropped anchor in the harbour after her two months trip to the "Gold Fields." The ship, which was commanded by Capt. Geo. Bragg left here on June 18th, and arrived at her destination on the 22nd, anchoring about 1½ miles from the shore, near Big Brook Bight. Ashore the police erected their headquarters, and all arrangements were made for the anticipated gold rush, but it was a month later before the first prospectors arrived. Altogether not more than fifty visited the coast. With the exception of Captain Thompson, Chalmers and Fournier, all have now returned. It is understood the latter two who are at North West River contemplate staying over the winter.

The Watchful left Stag Bay Saturday evening, coming south. All the material with the exception of the police headquarters and jail were taken on board, and the ship made a good passage along.

The Watchful reports the fishery about half an average catch for the shoremen, while the floaters have done good. At Cut Throat, James Wade of Conception Hr., has 800 qtls. while others in that vicinity have done very little. At Indian Hr., Jerrett's four traps only average 100 qtls. At the Wolf Islands, where the fishery is nearly always good, traps have only 9 and 10 quintals, while the best only bails for 140 qtls.

Amongst those who came South were:—Sergt Churchill and police, Mr. Warwick Smith, Customs Collector, Mr. P. F. LeGrow, Messrs. Hickey and Coombs, F. Cassen, F. Lapaline, F. R. May, Capt. Jeffrey, Fred Clark and Ogilvie.

The prospectors express the belief that the whole gold find business was a fake from the beginning, got up by some who wished to clean up on claims and that much money was made in this way there is not the slightest doubt. There is plenty yellow mica where the gold is said to be but of real gold there was none.

Further particulars of the accident to Hunter Snelgrove, wireless operator on the Watchful, were available last evening on the ship's arrival.

The unfortunate affair was purely accidental and was caused by the unintentional explosion of a rifle by Chief Engineer Cunningham. Several of the crew who had been on a hunting trip, on returning to the ship were passing up their firearms, when, not understanding the mechanism, the chief released a cartridge from the magazine, and acidentally pressed the trigger. The shot entered Snelgrove's right foot, badly lacerating the member. The wound was dressed by Const W. Pike, and the injured operator was brought on to Indian Harbour where he was placed in hospital. His injuries were so serious that the foot had to be amputated, and when the Watchful called there on Sunday the patient was doing well and no complications are feared. He will be able to leave the hospital with in a month according to Doctors Grenfell and Paddon.

ITALIAN FLEET IS NOW READY TO SAIL FOR GREECE

Two British Missionaries Are Murdered By Chinese Bandits

ITALIAN FLEET IS HELD IN READINESS

Intense Feeling Is Stirred Thruout Italy Against Greece.

LONDON, Aug. 31—A dispatch to The Evening News, from Milan, says the Italian fleet in Taranto Harbor has received orders to be prepared to sail in the event of a momevent against Greece.

PARIS, Aug. 31—A Turin despatch to The Petit Parisenne says that although strictest orders have been given to the Italian press not to divulge military news, it is understood that the Italian fleet has been ordered to concentrate at Taranto, Italy.

If the Greek government accepts the Italian ultimatum, only one division of the fleet will go to Piraesus to receive the hommage demanded in respect to the massacre of the Italian boundary commission. Intense feeling throughout Italy against the Greeks is reported.

The Albanian legation at Rome has issued a statement declaring that the Italian commission who were riding in a separate motor car while the Albanian members preceded with the Greek members bringing up in the rear, were attacked on Greek territory, twelve miles from the border, and shot to death.

Impossible Form Accurate Idea of Irish Elections.

DUBLIN, Aug. 31—The election situation to-night, with unofficial returns and estimates continually coming in, is such that it is almost impossible to form any accurate idea of how the returns stand.

No count is yet complete for any constituency, and those of the candidates whose names have been mentioned as among the elected, have not yet been officially declared.

MISSIONARIES ARE MURDERED BY CHINESE

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—Rev. A. W. Whiteside and Rev. F. C. Watt, British missionaries of the Church Missionary Society were shot dead and killed by bandits when travelling in Szechwan Province, August 14th, according to a letter from Mienchow received here to-day.

MAINTENANCE MEN WILL REMAIN AT THEIR POSTS

Harrisburg, Aug. 31—An agreement was reached to-day between the policy committee of the anthracite operators and officials of the miners' union, under which union men employed as pump men, engineers and maintenance men, will be allowed to stay at work after September 1st, even if the suspension of mining now ordered becomes effective.

The men in the classifications named are needed to prevent the mines from flooding.

The "Prudential" Aids Medical Research

After long and serious consideration, the Board of Management of The Hospital for Sick Children, Great Ormond Street, whose Chairman is The Earl of Wemyss, decided to establish a Research Department in which highly trained experts could study the living agents of children's diseases: their life histories, their conditions of growth, their effects upon the bodies they invade and how successfully to fight and overcome them. It was realised by the Board that in this—the oldest and largest of all the Voluntary Hospitals for Children in the British Empire—the staff would have unique opportunities for observation in the Wards, witnessing all phases of every disease that afflicts young children, and that this could be followed in the laboratory by seeking further evidence from the culture, the microscope and the test tube. It was believed that as a result, largely improved methods would be discovered of dealing with bacilli which are far more deadly in peace than bullets in war. A further important feature of the new work would be the appointment of a Bio-Chemist whose work it would be to make a careful study of the highly comple bodies found in living matter; their constitution, how they are utilised in the tissues and how they may give rise to diseased conditions. By these means a structure of preventative and curative art would be built upon a sure foundation of fundamental facts. The need for such work is emphasised by the appalling fact that in 1922, the death roll in this country alone, of children under the age of one year numbered 60,000.

The "ways" were clear, but the "means" were lacking for the Board had to recognise the fact that the budget of the Hospital for this year shows that the expenditure on absolute necessaries will exceed the assured income by £15,000. Careful examination revealed the fact that some £2,000 would be required each year for the working of the Research Department, and the Board made an appeal for financial help to commence the work to the Directors of the Prudential Assurance Company, basing it upon the facts that the proposed research work would undoubtedly promote longevity and the development of healthier and more virile race, and was thus of distinct value to a great Assurance Company. As a result, the Directors of the "Prudential" generously consented to provide the money required for the first year and thus to them belongs the honour of founding a work whose results will confer inestimable benefits upon mankind through the Universe.

Always exercise a certain amount of care in sympathizing with a woman in tears. She may be having a time of her life.

LATEST

ATHNES, Aug. 31—The Greek government has replied to the Italian ultimatum embodying demands for reparations for the massacre of the Italian members of the Greek-Albanian frontier Commission.

Greece accepts four demands with modifications and rejects three. The Commandant of the place where the murders were committed will express the Greek Government's sorrow to the Italian Minister to Greece.

A memorial service shall be held in the presence of members of the Greek Government on the same day, and a detachment of guards shall salute the Italian flag at the legation. A military force shall render honor to the bodies of the victims while they are being transferred to the Italian warship.

The fourth, fifth and sixth demands are rejected on the grounds that they infringe on the sovereignity and honor of Greece.

The fourth demand provides for the severest inquiry at the scene of the tragedy with an Italian official present.

The fifth demand calls for capital punishment for all the guilty parties.

The sixth demand calls for an indemnity of fifty million Italian lire to be paid within five days of the presentation of note.

The first demand covers an apology of a sweeping nature.

The second demand relates to funeral honors.

The third relates to honors to Italian Flag by Greek warships.

The seventh demand relates to military honors to victims.

GLOUCESTER, Aug. 31.—The schr. Henry Ford, of Gloucester, showed her heels to her two rivals to-day, but lost the race against the clock when the six hours' time limit set for the open Fishermen's Race for the Lipton and Prentiss cups expired.

DUBLIN, Aug. 31—At midnight the returns in the Irish elections show the following seats won: Govt. 41, Republicans 38, Independents 14, Farmers 8, Laborites 9.

The Republicans appear to be improving their positions and assert the belief that they will fulfil their own forecast and win forty seats.

CHINA WILL NOT SEVER RELATIONS WITH CANADA

OTTAWA, Aug. 31—The Chinese government has no intention of breaking diplomatic relations with Canada according to the Secretary of the Chinese Consul, who was asked regarding the news story that a temporary break occurred over amendments to the immigration laws passed last year.

The Secretary stated that Dr. Tsur who is Chinese Consul, and who is out of town to-day, had merely been asked to return to China to make a personal report on the immigration legislation. If he does not return, the Secretary said, someone will be sent in his place.

New York's Coldest August Day

(New York World, Aug 23rd.)

IS SHARED BY ALL EASTERN U.S.

Yesterday was the coldest August day here in the history of the local Weather Bureau, which was kept records for half a century. The temaperature was 53 above zero at 6 o'clock in the morning, two degrees below the previous record for a coldest August day made in 1866. A 38-mile wind added to the chill. Top coats and furs dotted the streets. The odor of moth balls was in the air.

The cold spell extended over the Eastern half of the United States. The temperature in Chicago was 54, only 1 degree higher than in this city. A temperature of 42 was reported from Flagstaff, Ariz., and an identical temperature from Valentino, Neb.

Frosts were reported in Northwestern Minnesota and freezing temperatures in St. Louis, Kansas City and Indianapolis. Angola, Ind., reported the lowest official temperature. 41, although an unofficial report from a rural section near Duluth, Minn., indicated the thermometer was down to 32.

The Weather Bureau prediction of to-day is for almost equally low temperatures in the morning, both the wind and unseasonably low temperature abating toward evening.

The chill wave started in Canada, north of Michigan.

Weatherwise individuals, who base their predictions on the flights of the migratory birds, announced yesterday an early winter is certain. Large flocks of teal ducks were reported flying south over Michigan. This is the first time in years they have migrated in August.

Local traffic on the Hudson River Line of the New York Central was tied up at 2.30 o'clock yesterday morning, when wind lifted 30 feet of the roof from a loading shed of the Chevrolet Motor Company at Tarrytown. The tin covered section of the roof struck a 35-foot tower carrying feed wires and bent it over across the two southbound tracks of the railroad. A brilliant electrical display continued until the current was cut off.

So many wires were broken, the system was tied up from Mott Haven to Tarrytown. Steam locomotives were used, however, until 10 a.m., and commuters only suffered brief delays.

All inquiries regarding Job work, Advertising and Subscriptions should be addressed to the Business Manager of the Advocate.

World Record For Mile Run Established

STOCKHOLM Aug. 24.—At the stadium here last night, Paavo Nurmi, Finish runner, established what are claimed to be world's records for the one mile and fifteen hundred metres run. The one mile was made in 4 mins 10 2-5 seconds and the fifteen hundred metres in 3 minutes 53 seconds.

The world record for one mile was made by N. S. Tabor, a United States runner in July 1916. His time was 4 minutes, 12.6 seconds, while the fifteen hundred metres record of 3 minutes 54.7 seconds was made by J. Sweden in 1917.

ADVERTISE IN THE 'ADOCATE'

WILL REFUSE CLEARANCE TO SMALL BOATS

OTTAWA, Aug. 30—Hon. Jacques Bureau stated to-night that an order had been issued directing that no clearance papers should be given vessels under 250 tons which are carrying liquor to a foreign port.

This applies only to liquor in bond, as the department of customs has no control over duty-paid liquors.

It is understood that the purpose of the order to fix the standard of vessels to which clearance papers may be granted. In the past, it is stated, very small boats, even row boats, have taken out papers for the transport of liquor to ports to which it would be impossible for them to navigate.

The order is expected to put an end to this practice and limit clearances to vessels capable of making bona fide passages.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XV.

Following his parting from Nan Brent on Saturday night, Donald Mc Kaye went directly to the mill office, in front of which his car was parked, entered the car, and drove home to The Dreamerie, quite oblivious of the fact that he was not the only man in Port Agnew who had spent an interesting and exciting evening. So thoroughly mixed were his emotions that he was not quite certain whether he was profoundly happy or incurably wretched. When he gave way to rejoicing in his new-found love, straight-way he was assailed by a realization of the barriers of his happiness—a truly masculine recognition of the terrible bar sinister to Nan's perfect wifehood induced a shrivelling of his soul, a mental agony all the more intense because it was the first unhappiness he had ever experienced.

His distress was born of the knowledge that between the Sawdust Pile and the Dreamerie there stretched a gulf as wide and deep as the Bight of Tyee. He was bred of that puritanical stock which demands that the mate for a male of its blood must be of original purity, regardless of the attitude of leniency on the part of that male for lapses from virtue in one of his own sex. This creed, Donald had accepted as naturally, as inevitably as he had accepted belief in the communion of saints and the ressurection of the dead. His father's daughter-in-law, like Ceasar's wife,, would have to be above suspicion; while Donald believed Nan Brent to be virtuous, or, at least, an unconscious, unwilling, and unpremeditated sinner, non-virtuous by circumstances instead of her own deliberate act, he was too hard-headed not to realize that never, by the grace of God, would she be above suspicion. Too well he realized that his parents and his sisters, for whom he entertained all the affection of a good son and brother, would, unhampered by sex-appeal, and controlled wholly by tradition, fail utterly to take the same charitable view, even though he was honest enough with himself to realize that perhaps his own belief in the matter was largely the result of the wish being father to the thought.

Curiously enough, he dismissed, quite casually, consideration of the opinions his mother and sisters, their friends and his, the men and women of Port Agnew might entertain on the subject. His apprehensions centred almost entirely upon his father. His affection for his father he had always taken for granted, It was not an emotion to exclaim over. Now that he realized, for the first time, his potential power to hurt his father, to bow that gray head in grief and shame and humiliation, he was vouchsafed a clearer, all-comprehending vision of that father's love of his goodness, his manliness, his honor, his gentleness, and his fierce high pride; to Donald simultaneously came the knowledge of his own exalted love for the old man. He knew him as no other human being knew him or ever would know him; whence he knew old Hector's code—that a clean man may not mate with an unclean woman without losing caste.

He and Nan had discussed the situation but briefly, for they were young, and the glory of that first perfect hour could not be marred by a minute consideration of misery in prospect. To-night, they had been content to forget the world and be happy with each other, apparently with the mutual understanding that they occupied an untenable position, one that soon must be evacuated.

Yes; he was the young laird of Tyee, the heir to a principality, and it would be too great a strain on human beings to expect his little world to approve of its highest mating with its lowest. Prate as we may, of democracy, we must admit, if we are to be honest with ourselves,, that this sad world is a snubocracy. The very fact that man is prone to regard himself as superior to his brother is the leaven in the load of civilization: without that quality, whether we elect to classify it as self-conceit or self-esteem, man would be without ambition, and our civilization barren of achievement. The instinct for the upward climb—the desire to reach the heights—is too insistent to be disregarded. If all men are born equal, as the framers of our constitution so solemnly declared, that is because the brains of all infants, of whatsoever degree, are at birth incapable of thought. The democracy of any people, therefore, must be predicated upon their kindness and charity—human characteristics which blossom or wither according to the intensity of the battle for existence. In our day and generation, therefore, democracy is too high-priced for promiscuous dissemination; wherefore, as in an elder day, we turn from the teaching of the Man of Galilee and cling to tradition.

Tradition was the stone in the road to Donald McKaye's happiness, and his strength was not equal to the task of rolling it away.

Despair enveloped him. Every fibre of his being, every tender, gallant instinct drew him toward this wonder-girl that the world had thrust aside as unworthy. His warm, sympathetic heart ached for her; he knew she needed him as women like her must ever need the kind of man he wanted to be, the kind he had always striven to be. Had he been egotist enough to set a value upon himself, he would have told himself she was unworthy of him; yet a damnable set of damnable man-made circumstances over which he had no control, hedged them about and kept them apart. It was terrible, so he reflected, to know that, even if Nan should live the life of a saint from the hour of her child's birth until the hour of her death, a half-century hence, yet would she fail to atone for her single lapse while there still lived one who knew—and remembered. He, Donald McKaye, might live down a natural son, but Nan Brent could not, The contemplation of this social phenomenon struck him with peculiar force, for he had not hitherto considered the amazing inequalities of a double standard of morals.

For the first time in his life he could understand the abject deference that must be shown to public opinion. He who considered himself a gentleman, must defer to the inchoate, unreasoning, unrelenting, and barbaric point of view of men and women who hadn't sense enough to pound sand in a rat hole or breeding enough to display a reasonable amount of skill in the manipulation of a knife and fork. Public opinion! Bah! Deference to a fetish, a shibboleth, to the ancient, unwritten law that one must not do that which hypocrites condemn and cowards fear to do, unless, indeed, one can "get away with it."

Ah, yes! The eleventh commandment: "Thou shalt not be discovered." It had smashed Nan Brent, who had violated it, desolated her, ruined her—she who had but followed the instinct that God Almighty had given her at birth—the instinct of sex, the natural yearning of a trustful, loving heart for love, motherhood, and masculine protection from a brutal world. More. Not satisfied with smashing her, public opinion insisted that she should remain in a perenial state of smash. It was abominable!

Nan had told him she had never been married, and a sense of delicacy had indicated to him that this was a subject upon which he must not appear to be curious. To question her for the details would have been repugnant to his nicely balanced sense of the fitness of things. Nevertheless, he reflected, if her love had been illicit, was it more illicit than that of the woman who enters into a loveless marriage, induced to such action by a sordid consideration of worldly goods and gear? Was her sin in bearing a child out of wedlock more terrible than that of the married woman who shudders at the responsibilities of motherhood, or evades the travail of love's fulfilment by snuffing out little lives in embryo? He thought not. He recalled an evening in New York when he watched a policeman following a drab of the streets who sought to evade him to ply her sorry trade in the vicinity of Herald Square; he remembered how that same policeman had abandoned the chase to touch his cap respectfully and open her limousine door for the heroine(God save the mark!) of a scandalous divorce.

"Damn it!" he murmured. It's a rotten, cruel world, and I don't understand it. I'm all mixed up." And he went to bed, where, his bodily weariness overcoming his mental depression, he slept.

He was man enough to scorn public opinion, but human enough to fear it.

World and His Wife Attend Singer's Debut at Sea

Mort Downey Has Unique Distinction on U. S. S. Leviathan

The first international debut of an operatic star took place recently when the Leviathan, biggest steamship in the world, made her maiden trip across the Atlantic.

The star who received the impressive introduction to his public was Mort Downey, young Irish tenor, who was discovered and presented by Paul Whiteman, famous orchestra leader.

The role of impresario is a new one for Whiteman, but his friends along Broadway who declare he "innovates" in his sleep were not in the least surprised that he disdained the ordinary way of launching a grand opera find, and chose, instead of the Metropolitan, the magnificent salon of the Leviathan where, during the voyage, notables from every nation gathered.

Whiteman's orchestra furnished the accompaniment for the youthful singer and "Wonderful One", a waltz song, composed by the leader himself and considered by publishers the biggest musical find of 1923, was what he sang.

"It was a greater thrill than I'd have gotten out of even the Metropolitan, though always before, that was the height of my ambition," Downey radioed friends after his opening night at sea.

General Manager Russel Makes Changes and Promotions

Following the formal taking over of the railway by the government and the announcement of the appointment of Mr. H. J. Russel as General Manager, a number of changes and promotions have taken place in connection with the operating staff, which the General Manager made public by circulars issued yesterday afternoon:

CIRCULAR NO. 1.

To all employees:—

The following appointments are effective this date.

Mr. W. F. Joyce to be Chief Engineer, Maintenance of Way.

Mr. E. D. Watson to be Comptroller.

Mr. P. M. Duff to be Treasurer.

Mr. W. J. Morrissey to be Paymaster.

Mr. W. J. Kent to be Purchasing Agent.

Mr. M. A. White to be Superintendent, Eastern Division.

Mr. J. Baxter to be Claims Agent.

Mr. J. A. Titford to be Assistant to G. P. A.

H. J. RUSSELL,
General Manager.

To all employees:—

Effective this date, Mr. J. V. Ryan is appointed Chief Clerk to the General Manager.

H. J. RUSSELL,
General Manager.

The appointment of Mr. Russell to the responsible position as head of the Railway Executive is one of the most popular appointments made by any government, and it is hailed by none with greater satisfaction than by the hundreds of Railway employees.

He brings to the position eighteen years of experience, during which period he has been connected with various departments of the railway.

Entering the Express Company in 1905, he was shortly after appointed to the despatching office. Later he became Chief Clerk to Superintendent Rioux, and afterwards Secretary to the General Superintendent, Mr. R. G. Reid. Promotion soon followed and he became Acting Chief Despatcher. In January, 1913 he was appointed Assistant to Superintendent Rioux, and in November 1917, on the departure of Mr. Rioux, became Superintendent. In July 1922, when Mr. R. C. Morgan came here as General Manager, he immediately appointed Mr. Russell his Assistant, and since Mr. Morgan's departure this year, the new Manager has been in charge. His appointment is a very popular one all around, and the general opinion is that he will make a capable manager. Mr. Russel's first official work was to reorganize the various departments, as new withdrawal of the Reids took several of the Chief department heads, who elected to continue in the Reid employ. In the new appointments Mr. Russell was guided solely by the efficiency, long service and ability of his departmental heads.

As will be seen by the above, Mr. J. P. Howlett, Chief Engineer, Mr. Hector McNeil, Comptroller, Mr. C. U. Henderson, Assistant Comptroller, and Mr. H. Crawford, General Purchasing Agent, have severed their connection with the railway.

Mr. J. P. Powell is succeeded by Mr. W. F. Joyce, as Chief Engineer. Mr. Joyce has practically grown up with the railway, and his many years of experience in the engineering department fits him for the responsible position to which he has been appointed.

Mr. E. D. Watson, who succeeds Mr. McNeil as Comptroller, was for quite a while Treasurer with the Reid Nfld. Company, and also spent some time in the Audit Department.

Mr. Peter M. Duff, the new Treasurer moves from the Paymaster's Department. His successor is Mr. Walter Morrissey, who moves up from Assistant Paymaster.

Mr. W. J. Kent, who succeeds Mr. H. Crawford as Purchasing Agent, has been associated with the Railway since the cross country line was built, and in recent years has been general storekeeper. He brings to his new office the requisite knowledge, and his promotion, like that of the others, is based on merit.

Mr. Matthew A. White, under the new regime, becomes Superintendent of the Eastern Division, and Mr. J. Baxter, late Assistant Passenger Agent has been appointed to the Claims Department.

Mr. J. A. Titford, who becomes Assistant to the General Passenger Agent, has been employed as traveling auditor, while Mr. J. V. Ryan, who until recently has been in the Despatching Office, has now been promoted Chief Clerk to the General Manager. The other promotions include Mr. P. Cleary, who becomes Assistant Comptroller, Mr. E. W. Taylor retains his position as General Freight Agent; Mr. F. Pittman remains as General Passenger Agent; J. H. Fulmore is the Superintendent of Motive Power Mr. W. C. Harvey, Superintendent of the Dock, and Mr. G. Cobb, Superintendent of the Western Division.

Mr. H. B. Curtis retains his old position as Superintendent of the express Company.

The promotions made by the new general maneger will meet with general approval and constitute the first step in, what we predict will be the most sluccessful era in the Railway's history.

America Has Most Powerful Battleship

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30—(A.P.)—The addition of the battleship Colorado, which was commissioned at Camden, New Jersey, to-day, to the United States battle fleet once more places the navy in undisputed possession of that trophy of marine construction, "the most powerful fighting machine afloat."

Naval engineers of the principal maritime powers practically without exception have conceded that the 33,000-ton, 21 knot monster, electrically equipped throughout and with the ability to toss eight tons of metal and explosives 34,500 yards, is without an equal on any of the seven seas.

Formal acceptance of the Colorado by the Navy Department to-day marks the end of the work of rounding out the first line of the United States battle fleet as alotted by the five power treaty. During the next eight years—until 1931—no keel will be laid in any American yard for a first class naval ship. In that year work will be begun on ships to replace three of the present fleet.

The new Queen of the Seas is described in marine circles as "a vast experimental laboratory." The most advanced designs in ship equipment of every sort have been installed from her huge propelling motors to the dainty electric potato peelers in the galley. These will be tested arduously and the results placed at the disposal of American shipbuilders for their guidance in building the national merchant marine and the future navy.

Authorized in the navy bill of 1916 the Colorado was constructed at the Camden yards of the New York Shipbuilding Company on a "cost plus fee" basis which brought her total cost to $27,000,000. Her main offensive armament comprises eight 16-inch guns, the largest permitted under the Washington convention treaty, mounted in four turrets. To make these terrifically effective, there is a system of fire control declared to be superior to any yet employed either at sea or on land. The main control station is located at the top of one of the 140-foot cage masts, with several duplicate stations in more protected parts of the ship for use if the mast is shot away in action. Preliminary tests of the control resulted in the statement by naval gunners that the Colorado's entire broadside can be released in less than one minute after the enemy's position is reported by the accompanying air force.

The defensive equipment also includes many innovations devised from study of the Battle of Jutland, which has come to be the epoch-date for naval construction. Special installments will decerease to the minimum the danger of disablement from "plunging fire" from large guns, submarine torpedoes and air bombs. The 12-inch main armor belt has been supplemented by several laterial protective decks and a veritable honeycomb of watertight compartments.

For dealing with airplanes, the Colorado has four 3-inch rapid fire guns with a vertical range of two miles. She will carry also several battle plans for "direct defence" in meeting hostile attack from the air. The air defense also includes in part the entire secondary battery of fourteen 5-inch guns, primarily designed to fight off destroyers.

Each of the propellors is driven by an 8,000 horsepower motor, to which power is supplied by two turbine generators, each of 15,000 horse-power. Control of the propelling machinery is centered in a small room in the most protected part of the ship wherein half a dozen men have charge of a simple set of electric switches and valves. Ease of manoeuvering is declared to be a feature of the new ship, tests having proven she can be brought to a full stop from a forward speed of 21 knots in 3 minutes and run backward at not less than 15 knots. This was impossible in the steam turbine driven vessel.

The Colorado will possess all the conveniences of a well equipped city. Within her hull are spacious quarters for her complement of 1,469 officers and men, as well as reading and writing roms, a recreation room special ladies' room for visitors, laundry without limitation as to the number of pieces to be handled, a barber shop, a tailor shop, cobbler shop and moving picture theatre.

The "vital statistics" of the Colorado follow:

Dimensions

Length over all, 624 feet.
Breadth on water line, 97 feet.
Normal displacement, 32,600 tons.
Speed, 21 knots.

Armament

Main guns, eight 16-inch, 45 calibre in four turrets.
Weight of projectile, 2,100 lbs.
Secondary guns, fourteen 5-inch, 51 calibre.
Anti-aircraft guns, four 3-inch, 50 calibre.
Torpedo tubes, two 21-inch, submerged.

Propulsion

Main engines, two 18,000 horsepower Westinghouse turbo-electric generators.
Propellor motors, four 8,000 horsepower Westinghouse motors. each connected to a propellor shaft.
Fuel, oil.

General

Complement, 66 officers, 1,328 men, 75 marines.
Built, New York Shipbuilding Co., Camden, N.J.
Launched, March 22, 1921.
Cost, approximately $27,000,000.

Cause of Early Old Age

The celebrated Dr. Michenhoff, an authority on early old age, says that it is "caused by poisons generated in the intestine." When your stomach digests food properly it is absorbed without forming poisonous matter. Poisons bring on early old age and premature death. 15 to 30 drops of "Seigel's Syrup" after meals makes your digestion sound. 10

If Moon Is Out of Reach, Try Spotlight Substitute

Helen Moretti Finds Singing Urge Will Always Find a Way

If you can't have the moon, the spotlight makes a very good substitute. At least so Helen Moretti has found.

Helen grew up expecting to be a grand opera singer. She came of a long line of operatic stars and she had a voice that was said to be a credit to the family. But there was a serious drawback — Helen hadn't the money for the intensive training that opera demands.

"I was determined to sing, yet I had to earn money," Miss Moretti explains. It looked like an unsolvable problem until one day the head of a vaudeville agency happened to hear me warbling. He offered me a contract at more than I could have made in grand opera after all my training, and I took him up.

"Since then I've learned several things. One is that vaudeville is not necessarily low-brow. Also, that in it you meet a wider range of people, and if you have the 'uplift' instinct you can help educate them.

"Take for instance 'Tell Me a Story,' a fox trot ballad I sing, written by the composers of that unforgetable 'Whispering.' It's high class and I have trained my audiences to like it and ask for a repetition of it. They prefer it, indeed, to other selections.

"So that's why I tell the young girl who's eating her heart out over grand opera today to try vaudeville. She'll like it and pretty soon the spotlight will seem brighter to her than the moon ever did."

FAMILY SEEKS NEW YORK LAND WORTH MILLIONS

By JOHN T. BURKE

LONDON—Sixty-five acres of New York city, in the vicinity of Broadway and Wall Street, is announced here today as the prize for 400 members of the Edwards family, in England and America, are fighting. The land is estimated to be worth half a billion dollars.

Keyed on by a tradition that "the best part of New York belongs to us," handed down from father to son for three generations, the descendants of one Robert Edwards have spent years in accumulating official documents to prove their claim, and have now engaged attorneys, both in London and New York, to bring the matter to the attention of their authorities.

Frand Edwards, leader of the English branch of the family, is a ticket and sign writer by trade, and like all the members of the family, he says, he is a working man, but has contributed to the lump sum raised for the promotion of the recovery scheme.

Robert Edwards, great uncle of Frank, meigrated to America before the Revolutionary War, the story goes. He bought 65 acres of ewamp land on what was then the outskirts of the city. Later in 1760-1820, he leased his "farm" to King George III.

He wrote to his brother, Henry Edwards, who was a sailor, and asked him to visit the United States, telling him he would learn something to his advantage. Henry Edwards went out on the R. M. S. Rhone, saw his brother, and on the return voyage was wrecked in a gale. All on board were lost. Two years later the New York brother died unmarried and intestate, and the Government of the United States took possession of his estate.

"Over 20 years ago my father," said Frank Edwards, "attempted to press his claim to the estate, but had to give up owing to lack of funds. I had forgotten all about it until early this year, when I saw an advertisement in a London paper for claimants to the Edwards property in New York.

Documents Sought

"I have in my possession my grandfather's, father's and my own birth certificates, but we cannot find any birth record of my great-uncle Robert. We believe he was born in a village in South Wales.

"More important, however, is the relatives in both countries are now searching diligently. When it is found, they believe, the money will be as good as in their hands. The document is the one by which the land was leased to George III.

Miss Alice Edwards, one of the American branch, believes it may be stored away in the great Public Record office in London, where state and other official documents dating back hundreds of years are guarded. She has sent her lawyer, H. Z. Holmes, to England to look for it here.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, FRIDAY, AUGUST 31st, 1923.

SHIPBUILDING AT PORT UNION

CONSTITUTES GREAT RECORD.

The Union Shipbuilding Company has completed its sixteenth schooner, the "Gander Deal," which was launched on August 27th. This is a record in shipbuilding of which the Company should be proud.

The hum of shipbuilding machinery in the dockyard at Port Union is hardly ever silent and experienced shipbuilders have been constantly employed during the years since the plant started.

This has made it possible for a large number of men to earn a good livelihood, when otherwise employment would have been difficult to secure, and it has placed into the local and foreign-going trade of the country a class of vessel second to none in point of efficiency and strength.

Capt. James Jones, who is a brother to Capt. George Jones, M.H.A., has thus been superintendent of the largest shipbuilding plant in Newfoundland, which has completed the largest number of ships built by one company, and which indeed, to-day, is the only big shipbuilding company in operation in the country.

Here and there a schooner may be under construction or repair, but no other permanent industry on the scale of the Union Shipbuilding Plant operates in Newfoundland to-day.

The continued operation and success of the Shipbuilding Company are due to the energy, ability and foresight of Sir Wm. Coaker, whose supervision of the shipbuilding activities is marked with the same precision and effectiveness as are the other busness matters which he supervises.

The fishermen who placed their confidence in President Coaker, should be therefore proud to-day that the years have justified their actions; and those who are truly Newfoundlanders and whose cry is for development cannot but agree that Coaker and the Union have done splendidly in developing industries essential to the country's advancement.

Every phase of activity connected with the main industry of the country is seen at Port Union. From the construction of ships, to the making of fish casks, everywhere are seen industry and development! and these are what the country requires.

HOT AND COLD WEATHER

In commenting on the cold weather, so unusual to August month, and which we, too, have experienced, the Montreal Daily Star declared editorially that the sun had thrown in its lot, with many other classes of workers, and "had gone on strike."

A different situation exists in Kentucky, where the ordinarily "hot" weather has become almost "unearthly." It has become so hot indeed, that preachers themselves are finding it uncomfortable, and even th meore saintly of the congregation can stand it no longer.

Says a correspondent from Kentucky: "It's very hot here now. The Rev. E. L. Edens, pastor of a church here, felt the heat, and while preaching in his pulpit one day recently pulled off his coat in seeking relief from the humidity, at the same time inviting the male members of his congregation to do the same. Growing out of the incident a number of old hens in his congregation—I beg your pardon, I mean a number of gentlemen—grew very indignant and stirred up a first rate row. The pastor resigned, but his victory was complete when the congregation voted to retain him and allow him to preach with or without his coat, as he pleased."

In view of the above incident, it may be well for congregations in these cold regions to assure their clergy that there would be no objections to their putting on an extra coat or two, providing they, the congregation, may have the same privilege.

ANOTHER EUROPEAN CRISIS

While the reparations question and the Ruhr impasse still threaten the relations between Britain and France, another war cloud has overshadowed the reparations issue and threatens to burst at any moment.

The massacre by the Greeks of the Italian members of the Albanian-Greek frontier delimitation commission has aroused an intense national feeling throughout Italy, and the Italian Government demands upon Greece have made war inevitable or an abject Greek apology imperative.

The latest despatches declare the Italian fleet have been assembled in Taranto Harbor and are under orders to sail at a moment's notice towards Greek waters, either to engage in war or receive the homage of the Greeks at Pireaus, as demanded by the Italian Government.

While it is very unlikely that Greece under her present circumstances will court war with Italy, which could not otherwise result but in a general conflict, the subsequent despatches will be awaited with anxiety. To all appearances, the future developments remain with the Greeks.

Newfoundland Needs A Deportation Law

This country, from time to time, is saddled with the burden of providing for the upkeep of foreign sailors and other flotsam and jetsam that land here. The need of a deportation law such as exists in Canada and the United States is so apparent that the wonder is no legislation along these lines has been enacted.

If an undesirable enters a Canadian or United States port, by ship or train, he or she is not allowed to land and is shipped back at the expense of the Transportation Company. No matter at what time a Newfoundlander is found undesirable he may be, and is, sent back to the Colony. The necessity for a law empowering the police authorities to pick up on sight undesirables such as stranded seamen and have them sent forthwith to their nearest home port, has been pointed out before, but so far no legal enactment has been made along these lines.

A rescript of the Canadian law is what we want to get rid of those undesirables; as matters stand at present, the foreigner must be guilty of some extraditable offence before he can be got rid of.

Just now we have a case in point which bears out our contention for legislation along the lines herein indicated. There are two Norwegian sailors, lodged at the police station for three or four days. It is said they deserted their ship at Bay St. George, and for this reason the Consul here refuses to have anything to do with them on the ground that the Government, which he represents, will not pay bills incurred. These men have been sent on here from St. George's; their railway fare has to be paid and they cannot be allowed to starve.

But, why in the name of common sense must this country be saddled with their upkeep?

Have we not enough of our own indigent poor to take care of?

Under the existing law the police, so the Inspector General informs us, are powerless to act. They have no charge to prefer in such cases, and if they did, the only satisfaction obtainable so far as the taxpayers of the country are concerned would be to saddle the Colony with the upkeep of those foreign drifters in some public institution.

The Government, we feel, will recognize the necessity for such legislation, and at the next session of the Legislation put through a bill wide enough in its scope to empower the police authorities to deport every undesirable without any red tape procedure.

The Consuls of foreign countries, if it is in the power of the Legislature to do so, ought be made responsible for any expense incurred in taking care of stranded sailors. Under the Merchants' Shipping Act the Captain may be punished and the ship held responsible; but these vessels may not again visit Newfoundland waters, consequently Newfoundland can go whistle for her money.

S.S. Portia left Fortune Hr. 10 p.m. yesterday, coming south, and is due to-morrow night.

Rum Pirates' Haul Put at $20,000

Men Who Shot Captain and Cook of Schooner Were Former Customers, Say Police.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 21.—Rum pirates who boarded the Nova Scotia schooner J. Scott Hankenson about fifteen miles off Rockport yesterday and shot down the Captain and cook, carried away about $20,000 in cash from the craft, the police said to-day they had reason to believe. Evidence showed, they added, that liquor had been sold from the schooner in large quantities for some time past to rum running boats from shore, and they were inclined to think that the pirates were customers who knew there was a large sum on board.

An abandoned thirty-five-foot motor boat, bearing signs of an attempt to scuttle it, was found off Jeffries Bank last night by fishermen and towed in here to-day. The authorities think that this is the boat from which the pirates made their attack upon the schooner's crew. Its only identifying marks were the letter "K" and the figures "12113" on the bow.

The cook, Harry Harm, is recovering from his bullet wounds in a hospital here and the police said that they would question him further. The Captain, Arthur Moore, at the same hospital, is thought to be dying.

MOTORBOAT IS THE GREYHOUND, SEIZED AS RUM RUNNER BY U.S.

The motorboat K-12113, reported to have been used by pirates to board the Nova Scotian rum runner J. Scott Hankenson off Rockport yesterday, when they made off with a large sum of money after shooting two members of the crew, was identified by custom authorities here as the fleet Greyhound, until recently a thorn in the side of enforcement officers patrolling the rum fleet off Atlantic Highlands.

The Greyhound was captured by the Coast Guard cutter Hansen, No. 11, 1923, a cargo of whiskey valued at $20,000 seized, and her crew of two arrested.

She was sold at auction by the Government Jan. 23, her purchaser giving the name of "Joe Jones" and his address as No. 41 Spring Street, Manhattan. Prohibition authorities said they knew nothing about Jones nor had they heard of the Greyhound since her sale.

Killed In Quarrel Over Debt of $15

(Toronto Globe.)

George Fletcher, colored, of 180 Baldwin Street, died in the General Hospital Saturday morning from a bullett wound in the abdomen. Roy Tracey, 217 Queen Street west, colored, said to have shot Fletcher, appeared in Police Court Saturday on a charge of murder and was remanded one week.

The shooting took place at 2 o'clock Saturday morning at Kensington Avenue and Dundas Street. The men started to fight following an argument over a debt of $15 Fletcher owed Tracey. Tracey drew a revolver, firing two shots, one of which struck Fletcher in the stomach. Tracey then fled east on Dundas Street and was arrested by Patrol Sergeant Dick enson on University Avenue.

Tracey put forth a plea of self-defence. He told detectives McConnell and Mulholland that Fletcher had fired at him firfist. Detectives Hill and Hutchinson have been handling the case and they are reported to have secured a statement from a witness of the murder to the effect that Fletcher did not have a gun and that the two shots fired were from a revolver in the hand of Tracey. Mrs. Fletcher, wife of the murdered man, said she had left her husband a few minutes before he was killed and that he did not have a gun.

Coroner G. W. Clendenan will hold an inquest in the Morgue on Tuesday night.

S.S. Digby will sail from Boston on Sept. 6th and from Halifax on the 11th for this port.

WEED OUT THE POOR ASYLUM

A 67 Year Old Man Goes To The Penitentiary as a Vagrant, While Able-bodied Men Are Fed at The Public Expense.

Yesterday morning, while sentencing a former resident of Hr. Grace to 30 days in the Penitentiary on a charge of vagrancy, Judge Morris gave expression to an opinion in which we think every right-thinking person in the community will agree.

"The Poor Asylum," said His Honor, "should be weeded out. There are loafers there who should not be housed at the public expense while deserving cases like the present have to be turned down."

Several attempts have been made by the police authorities to get this old man into the Poor Asylum, but the answer is he will be given the next chance. While waiting for this chance he will likely be found dead by the wayside; then somebody will be to blame, as likely as not the police will be charged with negligence in their duty.

There are a score or more inmates of the asylum who ought not to be there. This applies to both male and female wards. Well to do people, so callous to their blood ties, have relatives there, while all the while these same parties pride themseives on their Christian charity and claim a monopoly on all the virtues.

The suggestion is passed along that an unpartisan commission, two of whom should be medical men, be appointed to enquire into the fitness or otherwise of the male inmates of the Poor Asylum. Those who are fit to work should be made do so, and their places given to the aged and infirm, who are unable to work or care for themselves.

The present building is inadequate to meet the demands for shelter for our poor; but what space is available ought to be at the disposal of the various districts pro rata, and in every instance the most distressing cases should be given the preference.

An investigation by an impartial commission along these lines is most desirable and should be made without delay.

Interesting To Outport Car Owners

The decision handed down by Judge Morris in the case of Constable Garland Samson versus Henry D. Archibald will settle the difference of opinion which has existed regarding the rights of city and outport cars and car-owners.

Section — of Chapter 57 of the Consolidated Statues, 3rd series, entitled "Of Motor Vehicles," constituted the basis of Judge Morris' decision.

Under this section, the outport carowners are outside the jurisdiction of the Municipal Council and are not necessitated to have their cars licensed as are the city owners.

Until, therefore, the law is amended, outport car-owners are not subject to registration under the Act.

Sounded Like Home

Two young kindergarten teachers, intellegent and attractive, while riding downtown in a street car were engaged in an animated discussion. In the seat behind them sat a good-natured, fatherly-looking Irishman enjoying a nap. Finally one kindergartner inquired of the other: how many have you?"

"Twenty-two," she replied. "And hw many have you?"

"Oh, I have only nineteen," replied the first.

At this point the Irishman, now wide awake with astonishment, leaned forward in his seat and, without any formality, inquired in a loud voice:

"What part of Ireland did youse come from?"

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

WOODROW WILSON, ex-president of the United States, has written a notable article in the Atlantic Monthly, and for the first time since his illness, speaks his mind on public affairs. The article is entitled "The Roadway from Revolution."

* ** *

"What gave rise to the Revolution?" the ex-president asks. "The answer can only be that it was the product of a whole social system. It was not in fact, a sudden thing. It had been gathering for several generations.

* ** *

"It was due to the systematic denial to the great body of Russians of the rights and privileges which all normal men desire and must have if they are to be contented and within reach of happiness.

* ** *

"The lives of the great mass of the Russian people contained no opportunities, but were hemmed in by barriers against which they were constantly flinging their spirits, only to fall back bruised and despirited. Only the powerful were suffered to secure their rights or even to gain access to the means of material success."

* ** *

Pointing out that it is "against capitalism under one name or another that the discontented masses everywhere draw their indictment," Wilson goes on to say:

* ** *

"There are thoughtful and well-informed men all over the world who believe, with apparently sound reason, that the abstract thing, the system, which we call capitalism, is indispensable to the industrial support and development of modern civilization.

* ** *

"And yet everyone who has an intelligent knowledge of social forces must know that great and widespread reactions like that which is now unquestionably manifesting itself against capitalism do not occur without cause or provocation; and before we commit ourselves irreconcilably to an attitude of hostility to this movement of the time, we ought frankly to put to ourselves the question,

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

"Is the capitalistic system unimpeachable? which is another way of asking Have capitalists generally used their power for the benefit of the countries in which their capital is employed and for the benefit of their fellow men?

* ** *

"Is it not, on the contrary, too true that capitalists have often seemed to regard the men whom they used as mere instruments of profit, whose physical and mental powers it was legitimate to exploit with as slight cost to themselves as possible, either of money or of sympathy?

* ** *

"And if these offences against high morality and true citizenship have been frequently observable, are we to say that the blame for the present discontent and turbulence is wholly on the side of those who are in revolt against them?

* ** *

"Ought we not, rather, to seek a way to remove such offences and make life itself clean for those who will share honorably and cleanly in it?"

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

If you had heard those words spoken by some labor agitator you'd dismiss them as the unimportant ravings of a demagogue. Coming from a man who was president of a famous and conservative university and then president of a nation of 100,000,000 people, you attach more importance to them, don't you?

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The fact of the matter is, that there IS something seriously wrong with the system of industry and government under which we in the modern world are living. When ex-president Wilson says what he does, he puts into words the deep feelings of millions of men the world over who see a world in which great luxury and wretched poverty lie side by side—who see the world in which those who toil have little, and those who toil not neither spin, have all.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Here is a poem by Frederick Lawrence Knowles which I saw in the Christian Science Monitor, the great Boston daily paper.

THE NEW PATRIOT

Who is the patriot? He who lights
The torch of war from hill to hill?
Or he who kindles on the heights
The beacon of a world's good-will? . . . . .

Who is the patriot? Is it he
Who knows no boundary, race or creed,
Whose nation is humanity,
Whose countrymen are souls that need . . . .

Who is the patriot? Only he
Whose business is the general good,
Whose keenest sword is sympathy,
Whose dearest flag is brotherhood.

Sybil Vane of Covent Garden Has Great Faith in Our Melodic Future

What's it all about—the queer, weird noise America has lately labeled music?

Sybil Vane, famous as the youngest operatic star in the British Empire, says eventually it is going to be real music, the very real-est any country has ever known.

"I have been watching the evolution of your music," the pretty Covent Garden prima donna confessed, "and I have been amazed. This is a wonderful country and the most wonderful thing in it is the music.

"The light sentimental ballad like 'Love Tales' is perhaps the best example of what I mean. It is like a dainty caprice with all the mellow flow of a modern fox trot and it has a strain of the stately that is a reminiscence of other days.

"Do you know what I think—Yes, honestly? American music, the kind you are developing today, is going to be your most precious heritage to coming generations!"

TEN COMMANDMENTS OF DRIVING

I.—Drive on the left side of the road; it's just as good as right.

II.—Slow down when approaching a crossing; it is nearly as dangerous as a railroad crossing.

III.—Look out for children. You can never tell what they will do, and you are always in the wrong if you hit one.

IV.—Try to help instead of hinder the traffic officer; he is there for your good, and he's got a tough job.

V.—Be sure your "dimmers" really dim; it's no joke driving into a blinding glare, as you probably know.

VI.—Read and obey the warning signs; they are not up as ornaments.

VII.—If you feel you've got to speed—do it where it won't kill anybody but yourself.

VIII.—When making minor repairs, stop where your car may be seen from both directions; otherwise you may stop longer than you anticipate.

IX.—Speeding around corners is a straight route to the hospital. Don't race past a stopped street car. Some day the jury may call it manslaughter.

X.—Use discretion. The fact that you had the right of way won't bring anybody back to life, least of all yourself.

Saved From Grave In Potter's Field

(New York World, Aug. 20th.)

Colleagues of Sallustio Civai, who sang minor roles in the Chicago Opera Company, arrived at Staten Island yesterday in time to save Vivaia from burial in the Potter's field. Civai died in a bungalow at South Beach Tuesday, alone and apparently friendless.

He appeared at Staten Island four months ago and told Mariello Isabello, owner of a bungalow at South Beach, he was ill and had no money. Isabello permitted him to occupy the bungalow, in which he died, and Civai was to repay Isabello next winter, when he resumed work with the company. Civai was about thirty-five.

He was found dead of heart disease. Police searched his effects and learned he had been a baritone with the Chicago Opera Company. They communicated with the Chicago police and, meantime, the body was placed in the morgue at New Springville.

In the absence of word from Chicago, Dr. H. C. Hetzel, acting medical examiner of Richmond County, signed an order for burial in the Potter's Field. He was to have been buried there this morning at 9 o'clock.

A limousine drew up at the morgue yesterday and three men stepped out. They identified Civai's body, and one of them, Antonio Borgarozy, of the Chicago company, claimed the body of his friend. Civai will not be buried in the Potter's Field, but in Calvary Cemetery to-morrow.

BRITISH PREPARING FOR AERIAL ATTACK

(From The World's Bureau)

LONDON, Aug. 9.—Since the end of the war one of the most serious concerns of the British military naval, air and civilian officials has been the question of London's defense from air attack by any strong continental power in event of another conflict.

The present and particularly the prospective development of air warfare is said to have convinced many defence authorities of this country that the British capital cannot be adequately protected against aerial bombardment by a determined and powerful continental opponent.

"War" Capital Planned

As a result, The World understands, those who are actively and in an advisory capacity charged with defense of Great Britain have been for many months working on a problem of providing a "war" capital in the interior. From this city Britain could be administered and war operations controlled should London prove too exposed to an attack.

Plans for the creation on paper of such a war capital are understood to involve the working out in detail of centreing railway, telegraph and wireless communications at some inland city. The necessary buildings to house the administrative personnel of the various departments concerned in conducting the war would also be a problem.

It is explained to The World such a scheme should not be interpreted in a panicky or alarmist manner. It is but one of many theoretical problems on which the defense authorities of this country are continually working in time of peace.

Naval Bases Vulnerable.

In connection with this work, The World is also informed the changed naval situation, due to the last war and the development of air warfare, may lead to at least partial bandonment of many British east and south coast naval bases in favor of west coast ports. All the present bases facing the continent are said to be extremely vulnerable to air attack.

In the last naval estimates there was a drastic cut in appropriations for maintenance of those bases on the grounds of economy.

It is also significant that since the war Admiralty restrictions against the use of Plymouth as a commercial port have been relaxed. The authorities are now encouraging development of the harbor by merchant vessels.

HEALTH HINTS

Keep sweets away from the children if you would have them take care of their teeth properly, says Nurse. The teeth of the children or poor parents are usually much more perfect than those in the mouths of the more prosperous.

This is accounted for by the fact that the coarser foods eaten by the poorer children give hteir teeth more work, and, hence, keep them clean and strong. It is also suggested that the poor are able to give their children fewer sweets, and only those of the cheaper, boiled variety.

When a member of your family is troubled with ingrowing toenails, have on the medicine closet shelf a small bottle of laudemnm. Saturate a little piece of anticeptic cotton and place between the swollen flesh and the nail. Or put it under the edge of the nail as far as it can be pressed without pain. It can also be usel on a finger which has been bruised or cut close to the nail.

Hose Line.

Another reason why a man can dress quicker than a girl, is because it takes a girl half an hour exactly straight up and down the back of her caflettes.

Creamy Caramel Frosting as Mrs. Tennille makes it

2 large cups light brown sugar
¾ cup Libby's Milk
¾ cup water
¾ cup butter
Dash of salt

Cook together all the ingredients, except butter, till mixture is as thick as heavy cream or forms a soft ball in cold water. Then drop butter in and let cool. Beat until ready to spread and add vanilla

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every 16 ounce can

"For creamy, rich cake filling, Libby's Milk"—says Mrs. Tennille

All of Lynchburg, Va., knows about Mrs. G. D. Tennille's record as a baker of wonderful cakes. One year when she baked cakes to sell, she made a total of 650!

So naturally she is regarded as an authority who can give valuable information to other women.

Mrs. Tennille is an enthusiastic user of Libby's Milk for her cakes—especially for the fillings. She says it gives them a creamy texture and a richness very difficult to get in other ways. Her pantry shelf was always stocked with a supply.

Why Libby's Milk adds richness

The reason why Libby's Milk gives such creamy richness to Mrs. Tennille's cake frostings and all other milk cookery, is just this: Every 16 oz. can contains 7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat!

"The same butter fat that cream and butter have?", you ask. The very same. For Libby's Milk is cow's milk—the very finest in the land.

It comes from selected herds in sections of the country which seem specially provisioned by Nature for just this purpose. Here heavy-grassed meadows, sheltered by wooded hills, furnish ideal surroundings for raising dairy cows. And men who have specialized in dairying keep the herds up to an unvarying standard.

Our condenseries are here, right in the heart of these famous dairy lands. There we remove more than half the moisture from this fine milk, making it double rich.

Nothing is added to it; none of its food values are taken away. That you, who live perhaps a great distance away, may use this milk, we seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it.

Use this great enricher in YOUR cooking

Women everywhere are finding, just as Mrs. Tennille did, how much of richness and flavor Libby's Milk adds to their cooking. Try it for yourself; try Mrs. Tennille's recipe given above, for delicious caramel frosting.

You will notice a new richness, a creaminess which you have always wanted in your frosting. Then you will find endless cooking uses for Libby's Milk. Order a can with your groceries today.

Calgary Will Co-operate

Citizens of Calgary will co-operate in every way possible to assist the farmers of South Alberta in taking care of the 1923 harvest. The city itself, business concerns, schools and organizations have expressed themselves as being willing to do everything they could to help supply the needs of the farmers. The slogan "Calgary Goes Harvesting" has been suggested as the slogan of the city during that period, and is being taken up by individuals and concerns alike. The situation is a serious one, every person interviewed stated. Farmers are going to have a great deal of trouble in securing the number of men required. Only with the assistance of every person will it be possible to harvest the big crop at a cost not prohibitive to the farmer.

A Curious Incident.

A curious incident occurred in connection with the wedding of Miss Eileen McCallum, the Duke of Atholl's ward, to Commander H. S. M. Harrison-Wallace, R.N., at St. Martin-in-the Fields, London. For some reason the motor car which was to have taken the bride to the church did not turn up at the Duke of Atholl's house in Eaton place. The duke, seeing another car outside a house, a few doors away, sent his footman to request the owner, a woman, to lend it to take the bride to church. The woman declined. The duke then saw another car in the street, and going up to the driver said, "Are you an old soldier." The driver said he was, and the duke responded, "I am an old soldier, too. Will you help me by taking my ward to church to get married?" The bride went to church in this car.

Home Brew Owners Caught

Home brewing operations in the vicinity of Minto, the coal mining centre on the boundary of Sunbury and Queens counties, received a sudden interruption when 2 inspectors swooped down upon the district and made two seizures. What they got consisted of quantities of mash which, the owners will be charged under the Inland Revenue Act, was being prepared for the illegal manufacture of "booch" One seizure was made at New Zion and other in the district of Minto. The largest seizure was made when a sugar barrel filled with a mixture of prunes, water and corn, to within six inches of the top, was taken from a supposed resident who has been drawing subsistence from the parish. The second seizure consisted of a keg containing a mixture of prunes and barley which was taken from a foreigner.

England And Wales.

The old Curiosity Shop is to be sold at auction in London. Though it is not believed by some to be the actual shopDickens had in mind when he wrote his story, it is a genuine antique of the city. It is at No. 6 Portsmouth Street, Lincoln's Inn Fields, a neighborhood with the Old World flavor, though the actual shop is wedged in between two large modern buildings. It is not considered likely that the shop will be destroyed as it survived the last building boom in that neighborhood. On the same day some premises in Took's Court, Cursitor Street where Mr. Snagsby of "Black House" had his shop, will be sold at auction. Efforts are being made to sell privately Dicken's celebrated home, Gadshill, near Rochester, which cost the author $40,000, as only $25,000 was bid when the property was put up at auction last week. A feature of the house is "Boz's" study, containing a library of old fashioned dummy books, whose titles were given them by Dickens himself. One set of books is labelled, "A Cat's Life." It consists of nine volumes.

Blind Newsdealer Suits Bride-to-be

(New York World)

Miss Yetta Stecker, who soon will become the bride of Oscar Hyman, the blind newsdealer of Astor Place, is confident of the constancy of her future husband.

"Sure, if I 'see' a blond I'll run off with her," said Oscar yesterday, with the emphasis on "see" and with the grin that has won him the name of "Smiling Oscar."

Word of the engagement leaked out yesterday and Oscar was glad to confirm it when a reporter for The World called at his home, No. 150 Clinton Street. Miss Stecker was on hand, making preparations for the wedding, which will take place Sept. 2.

"How did we meet, now?" he said. "Well, it's like this. We met ourselves just like anyone else at a dance. Do I dance? You ought to see me!"

"You ought to, really," put in Miss Stecker. "At first we don't see much in each other. You know, just like any other fellow and any other girl. It was five years ago when we first saw each other."

"I didn't think she was so much," said Hyman. "I couldn't see her at all. But then I took her to a dance. Somehow, we got going together. I don't know how."

Hyman has kept a news-stand at Astor Place many years. He lost his sight as the result of being struck by a baseball when he was sixteen.

Since then he has earned a fair living for himself. His bride will keep house for him and help him at his stand.

"I don't need assistance in getting around town," he said. "I can go anywhere at all by myself. I have a little trouble at the stand with bum coins and I have to limit all bills to $1. But that's my main handicap. I can tell, any time, whether a customer is a man or woman by just feeling the wrist."

Double Funeral at Mobile

The little settlement of Mobile on the Southern Shore was the scene of much sorrow on Saturday last, 25th, when two of its most promising young residents were laid to rest in the little cemetery on the hill, one being the late Mr. Daniel Fitzgerald, whose sad death occurred in Boston and whose remains arrived by the S. S. Silvia. The other, the late Mr. Stephen Dillon, son of Nicholas Dillon, who after an illness of many months, in spite of best medical skill and all that loving care could do, passed peacefully away on the 24th inst. Both of the deceased were very popular, and the large numbers from Ferryland to Bay Bulls attending the funerals amply testified to the high esteem in which the deceased were held by their many friends and others along the shore. The Parish Church was filled for the funeral service. The prayers for the dead were recited and the final absolution given by the Rev. J. Coady, P.P., and then the funerals wended their way to the little Cemetery and all that was mortal of these two promising young residents were laid to rest with their dear departed, there to await the final resurrection.

Const. Dempsey Captures Thieves

By last evening's express Const. J. Dempsey arrived from St. George's in charge of two prisoners, who have been sentenced to long terms for larceny. One of the men, named Arthur Young, was convicted of a series of larcenies committed at Port au Port, private houses in every case being victimized. For a time the robberies were a mystery, but Constable Dempsey got on the trail of the culprit, who, becoming wise, escaped to the woods and for 11 days the Constable sought the man until finally he pounced upon his camp at Metz Point, Bay St. George. Young travelled all through the country, and in some cases swam rivers to throw the officer off his trail. After his capture he was taken to Bay St. George and committed to the Supreme Court. He came up before the circuit court when it was at St. George's, and was sentenced to 18 months with hard labour. The other prisoner, Andrew Young, was also convicted of larceny, and was sentenced to six months in the Penitentiary.

Fell and Fractured Skull

Newfoundlander Meets Accident In Toronto.

Slipping from a plank on which he was standing on the eighth floor of the Robert Simpson Building, Richmond Street, at noon yesterday, Herbert Dawe, aged 30, of 1381 Lansdowne Avenue, fell to the floor below, fracturing his skull. He was removed to St. Michael's hospital. Dawe, who comes from Newfoundland, is employed with the MacGregor-McIntyre Company, and, with three other men, was riveting girders. He complained of being cold and got up on the plank from a scaffold to get a sweater. In doing so he slipped and fell, striking his head on the cement on the seventh floor.—Toronto Globe.

Judge Morris Delivers Judgment In Motor Case

Constable Garland Samson vs. Henry D. Archibald

This is an action taken upon the information and complaint of Constable Garland Samson against Henry D. Archibald, charging that the defendant did, by using a motor car on the public streets of St. John's without being registered, commit a breach of sub-section 4 of section 2 Chapter 57 of the Consolidated Statutes, Third Series, entitled "Of Motor Vehicles."

Section 2 referred to in the charge is as follows:

"Every motor car owned and operated within the limits of the town of St. John's, shall be registered with the St. John's Municipal Council, and the said Council shall assign a separate number to every car registered with it."

Mr. Morine, K.C., who appeared for the defence, proved (1) that the defendant was a resident of Harbor Grace; (2- that he did not own and operate a motor car within the limits of the town of St. John's, and contended that the defendant's car was not subject to registration under the Act.

"I hold sub-section 4 under which the prosecution is taken, cannot apply to the car driven by the defendant; section 2 only compels the registration of motor cars owned and operated within the limits of St. John's. I therefore dismiss the complaint.

"Dated at St. John's, this 30th day of August, A.D., 1923.

Notes From Jamestown, B.B.

In spite of the inclement weather, work on the telegraph line between Lethbridge and Jamestown is progressing. and will mean a most wonderful improvement. Credit is due the men on the job who are putting the line through with a rush. Coaker, Abbott and Winsor, for a most wonderful improvement to our settlement. Owing to the absence of many of our members, our meetings are suspended till the fall of the year. A great many of our members are in the land of Uncle Sam, and it is with regret we learn of the illness of one of our loyal members, Bib Yetman, chairman of our council for years. We wish him a speedy recovery and a safe return to family and friends. Another loyal member, Geo. Taylor, has returned after an absence of over a year. He is looking fine after his sojourn. We welcome him home.

The weather man seems to be on the job again as this last few days there has been a change from the weather he has been handing out during the summer. We hope he will stay on the job so we can get hay made.

OBITUARY

MRS. (HON.) G. T. RENDELL.

Flags are flying at half mast on the premises of G. T. Rendell, in respect of the memory of an estimable lady who passed peacefully out of life at 6.30 this morning, in the person of Mrs. (Hon.) George T. Rendell. Mrs. Rendell, (nee Mary Wicks Wood) eldest daughter of the late Rev. T. M. Wood, and first Rector of St. Thomas's C. of E. Church, has been in some respects an invalid for years, but her general health was good until a week ago. The increasing years brought with them an impairment of her memory, but otherwise she bore her 89 years of lifetime with surprising vitality.

For the past week it was known to her relatives and friends that the end was near, and the happy release to go forth and join the loved ones "she had lost a while," came during gentle sleep, at the hour stated this morning. Amongst the immediate relatives are two sons, Frank, principal of the firm of G & T. Rendell, this city, and Arthur, now residing in British Columbia. Mrs. (Hon.) George Shea, now visiting England, is a daughter. W. W. Wood, Barrister at Law, and Mr. Ralph R. Wood, Principal of Bishop Field College, are nephews. There are fourteen grand-children with other relatives, left to mourn in its truest significance a mother in Israel.

The funeral will take place from her late residence, 76 Cochrane St. to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. His Lordship Bishop White, assisted by the Rector of St. Thomas's, will conduct the burial service.

The presentation was made by Mr. John Long, Supt. of the Printing Department. Following the presentation, the newly-wed received the congratulations of the whole staff, who wish him and his fair bride every happiness.

The presentation was accompanied by the following address:

Dear Herbert.—Your fellow-employees extend to you their heartiest congratulations on your recent marriage, and hope that you will have many years of happy married life.

In connection therewith we ask you to accept the accompanying gift with the wish that the happy union may be fruitful to the extent that in due time it will be necessary that every article contained in this service should have to be used at once.

Again we wish you and your wife many happy years.

On behalf of your fellow-workers,

(Sgd.) JOHN LONG, Supt.

Further Particulars of Serpentine River Drowning

Superintendent Pennell in his report to the Game and Inland Fisheries Board furnishes the following particulars of the recent drowning of Stephen Mollon and his child:

"Stephen Mollon of Lark Harbor was employed as Warden on Serpentine River until August 20th, with instructions to move to the Lower Humber as soon as convenient after that date. Following these instructions the Warden with his wife and child of seven or eight years left the Serpentine River on August 24th, in his dory, which was swamped at the mouth of the river. Mollon and the child were drowned. Mrs. Mollon managed to get ashore on the dory and remained on the shore all night and, next morning, found her child's body washed ashore. Mrs. Mollon remained there from the 24th until the 27th when the Warden's son George, finding his father had not turned up on his way to Humber territory, left Lark Harbor with others to see what delayed them. They found Mrs. Mollon alive with her child's body, but were unsuccessful in the search for Warden's body that day. Returning with others from Lark Harbor on Tuesday George Mollon found the body of his father on the shore some distance away from the mouth of the river."

Gubernatorial Party Returns

The Governor, Lady Allardyce, Miss Allardyce and Captain Goodfellow returned to town this morning after visiting Grand Falls, Bishop's Falls, and Botwood. Several days were spent at Grand Falls where the Gubernatorial party were the guests of the directors of the Anglo-Newfoundland development Company. On the return journey a stop was made at the Gambo where some good salmon fishing was obtained.

Feildians Defeat C.E.I.

There was only a small attendance at last evening's game when the Fieldians defeated the C.E.I. by a score of 3 to 1. The latter team were handicapped by several of their team being absent through illness, and a couple of substitutes were played. In the first period the Fieldians notched up two goals through Withers and E. Martin, and in the second half Withers again scored, while Winsor got the Institute team's only goal. The Fieldians and Saints will play on Monday night and the final game takes place on Thursday night next.

St. Andrew's Honours Departing Members

The members of St. Andrew's Society attended in good numbers last evening in their Club Rooms, to bid farewell to Mr. A. G. ibb and Secretary R. H. Tait, who are leaving to-morrow for Boston. The Feildian Club, of which Mr. Tait has been an active member, were also present and took part in the proceedings.

Mr. R. G. Ross presided, and in a very complimentary speech presented Messrs. Gibb and Tait on behalf of the Society with two valuable travelling cases. Mr. C. E. A. Jeffery, on behalf of the Old Fieldians, then presented Mr. Tait with a purse of gold, and referred to the active interest he had taken in athletics and wished him every success in the future. Both Mr. Gibb and Mr. Tait replied, thanking the members of bothc lubs for their good wishes and splendid gifts and the spirit that prompted them.

After the presentation a very enjoyable smoker was held, Messrs F. M. Ruggles, M. McIntosh, H. F. Glass, Dr. W. W. Blackall, and L. Calvert contributing numbers. Mr. Ern Fox presided at the piano and the singing of Auld Lang Syme brought a pleasant evening to a close.

CORFU IS BOMBARDED

ATHENS, Aug. 31—The Italian fleet bombarded the Police Station and School on the Island of Corfu, according to an official statement issued this evening.

GOVERNMENT WARNS PRESS

ROME, Aug. 31—The Italian Government in a semi-official statement today urges the newspapers not to publish the movements of Italian military or naval units, threatening severe measures against those who do so.

FORD WINS.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 31—The schooner Henry Ford to-day won the Fishermen's Schooner Race off Gloucester, defeating the Elizabeth Howard and Shamrock. The Howard was a close second, being only fifty seconds behind the Ford official time. Ford 3.02.30 and Howard 3,-03.20. The Shamrock was two miles astern when thel eaders finished.

ITALIANS AT TANGIER

LONDON, Aug. 31—A news despatch says Italian forces have landed at Tangier to protect Italian forces there. The Italian destroyer, Audace, has reached Tangier.

SPARK THAT MAY CAUSE BALKAN BLAZE

BRITISH PRESS SENTIMENT IS NOT IN FAVOR OF ITALY

LONDON, Sept. 1st.—Events moved swiftly today in the dispute between Italy and Greece, which was accompanied by the bombardment and killing of innocents on the island of Corfu, and altogether bore a lamentable resemblance to the dispute in the tragic days of July and August of 1914. Greece promptly replied to the Italian ultimatum demanding reparations for the massacre of the Italian members of the Albania Frontier Mission with an offer, which, in the opinion of the British press was of such satisfaction as the occasion demands until criminal responsibility has been fixed, but declined to agree to what Greece regards as humiliating conditions. Thereupon, the Cabinet reassembled in Rome and decided on the next step Italy should take. This took the form of the Italian minister at Athens presenting a new note to Greece, seemingly in the form of an ultimatum, the terms of which are not yet stated, but gives only a few hours for a reply, and notifying Greece that Corfu would be occupied temporarily in the meantime by Italian troop.

On this development the Greek Government immediately telegraphed Geneva, invoking the intervention of the League of Nations. These are the oustanding developments of the day as far as ascertainable under present conditions. The Italians occupied Corfu as promised, the occupation being accompanied by the loss of many lives. The most disconcerting news comes from Rome, where it is reported that Mussolini has declared his intention to ignore the League of Nations in this controversy which, he says, concerns two countries alone. The British interpretation of the Covenant demands that the controversy must be submitted to the League in keeping with the pledges of Italy and Greece. The fear is expressed that sparks from this flareup may set the whole Balkans ablaze.

CRAWFORD AND COMPANIONS PERISHED AT WRANGLE ISLD.

NOICE EXPEDITION FOUND ESKIMO WOMAN SOLE SURVIVOR

ALASAKA, Sept. 1st.—The Noice expedition which left here some time ago to relieve the expedition, headed by Allan Crawford of Toronto who, with several companions held Wrangel Island for the British Empire for two years, returned today with the tragic news that all the members of the Crawford party had perished except one Eskimo woman.

BRITAIN VIEWS TROUBLE WITH MUCH ALARM

LONDON, Aug. 31—News despatches say Italians have occupied Corfu in Greece and given an ultimatum allowing a five hours grace to Greece. It was handed the Greek Foreign Minister but occupation, however, had taken place before the ultimatum had reached the Greek Minister. The Italian Embassy here this afternoon emphatically denied that Italy had declared war on Greece. Martial Law was proclaimed throughout Greece to-day, according to an Athens despatch to the Central News. The Greek overnment has appealed to the League of Nations to act in the Italo-Greek controversy. Developments in the increasingly acute relationship between Italy and Greece are being watched with an anxious eye by the British Government which views with frank concern the growing rise of the passions of the two countries. The Government is not likely to intevene individually unless mediatory efforts of the Council of Ambassadors prove abortive or unless Italy takes a decisive step toward war against its defenceless neighbor. It is not believed either country will revert to war as both Italy and Greece are solemnly pledged to the principle of invoking the jurisdiction of the League of Nations before restoring to war.

TO SUPPLY COAL

TORONTO, Aug. 31—Sir George B. Filmer of the Anglo-Canadian collieries has repeated in writing his offer made to the Board of Control on Wednesday, to supply the city with Alberta coal at eleven dollars a ton. The sum of one dollar a ton payable with the order, the balance to be paid against the bill of loading.

LEAGUE TO MEET

GENEVA, Aug. 31—Meetings in preparation for the fourth general assembly of the League of Nations which will be called to order on Monday, begun today. Foremost in all minds is the question of what, if any, action will be taken on the reparations question.

RELATIONS RESUMED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31—The United States and Mexico have agreed to resume full diplomatic relations. Formal announcement of the agreement was made to-day by the State Department. The United States embassy at Mexico City and here are to be restored at once to official standing for the first time since 1920.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVI.

THE HEIR of Tyee mills and forests was not of a religious turn of mind for all his strict training in Christian doctrine, although, perhaps it would be more to the point to state that he was inclined to be unorthodox. Nevertheless, out of respect to the faith of his fathers, he rose that Sunday morning and decided to go to church. Not that he anticipated any spiritual benefit would accrue to him by virtue of his pilgrimage down to Port Agnew; in his heart of hearts he regarded the pastor as an old woman, a man afraid of the world, and without any knowledge of it, so to speak. But old Hector was a pillar of the church; his family had always accompanied him thither on Sundays, and a sense of duty indicated to Donald that, as the future head of the clan, he should not alter its customs.

By a strange coincidence, the Rev. Mr. Tingley chose as the text for his sermon the eighth chapter of the Gospel acording to St. John from the first to the eleventh verses, inclusive. Donald, instantly alert, straightened in the pew, and prepared to listen with interest to the Reverend Mr. Tingley's opinion of the wisdom of Jesus Christ in so casually disposing of the case of the women taken in adultery.

"Dearly beloved," the pastor began, carefully placing an index finger between the leaves of his Bible to mark the passage he had just read, "the title of my sermon this Sunday shall be: 'The First Stone. Let him who is without sin cast it.'"

"Banal, hypocritical ass!" Donald soliloquised. She was the mezzo-soprano soloist in your choir four years, and you haven't tried to help her since she came back to the Sawdust Pile."

It was a good sermon, as sermons go. In fact, the Reverend Mr. Tingley warming to the theme, quite outdid himself on the subject of charity as practised by his Redeemer, and, as a result, was the recipient of numberless congratulatory handshakes later at the church door. Donald agreed that it was an unusually good sermon—in theory; but since he knew it would collapse in practise, he avoided Mr. Tingley after service.

On the steps of the chuch he was accosted by Andrew Daney and the latter's wife, who greeted him effusively. Unfortunately for Mrs. Daney, Nan, in one of those outbursts of confidence that must ever exist between lovers, had informed Donald the night previous of the motherly soul's interest in his affairs; wherefore he returned Mrs. Daney's warm greeting with such chilly courtesy that she was at no loss to guess the reason for it and was instantly plunged into a slough of terror and despair. She retained sufficient wit, however, to draw her husband away, thus preventing him from walking with Donald.

"I want to tell him about Dirty Dan," Daney protested, in a low voice. "As the boss, he ought to be told promptly of any injury to an employe."

"Never mind Dirty Dan," she retorted. "He'll hear about it soon enough. Let us congratulate Mr. Tingley on his sermon."

Donald, having turned his back on them almost rudely, strode down the street to his car and motored back to The Dreamerie. He spent the remainder of the morning force-breaking a setter puppy to retrieve; at one o'clock he ate a cold luncheon, and immediately thereafter drove down to Port Agnew and brazenly parked his car in front of Caleb Brent's gate.

He entered without the formality of knocking, and Nan met him in the tiny entrance hall.

"I couldn't wait till dinner-time," he explained. "Nobody home at The Dreamerie——" He took her face in his calloused hands, drew her to him. "You're sweet in that calico gown," he informed her, waiving a preliminary word of greeting. "I love you," he added softly, and kissed her. She clnug to him.

"You should not have come here in broad daylight," she protested. "Oh, you big, foolish, impulsive dear! Don't you realize I want to protect you from the tongue of scandal? If you persist in forgetting who you are, does it follow that I should pursue a similar course?"

He ignored her argument.

"I'll help you to get dinner, old blue-eyes," he suggested. "Let me shuck some corn or shell some peas or string some beans—any job where I can sit and look at you and talk to you."

"It will please me if you'll visit father Caleb," she suggested. "He's out on the sun-porch. He's far from well this morning. Do cheer him up, Donald dear."

Old Caleb hailed him with a pleasure that was almost childish. During the two weeks that had elapsed since Donald had seen him last, he had failed markedly.

"Well, how does the old sailor find himself this morning?" Donald queried casually, seating himself opposite the old man.

"Poorly, Mr. Donald; poorly." He turned, satisfied himself that Nan was busy in the kitchen, and then leaned towards his visitor. "I've got my sailing orders," he whispered confidentially. The man who had won a Congressional medal of honor, without clearly knowing why or how, had not changed with the years. He advanced this statement as a simple exposition of fact.

"Think so, Caleb?" Donald answered soberly.

"I know it."

"If you have no desire to live, Caleb, of course nature will yield to your desires. Remember that and buck up. You may have your sailing orders, but you can keep the bar breaking indefinitely to prevent you from crossing out."

"I've done that for a year past. I do not wish to die and leave her, for my three-quarters pay stops then. But I suffer from angina pectoris. It's the worry, Mr. Donald," he added.

"Worry as to the future of Nan and the child?"

"Aye, lad."

"Well, Caleb, your worries are unnecessary. I feel it my duty to tell you that I love Nan; she loves me, and we have told each other so. She shall not suffer when you are gone. She has indicated to me that, some day, this—this mess may be cleared up; and when that happens, I shall marry Nan."

"So Nan told me this morning. I was wondering if you'd speak to me about it, and I'm glad you have done so—promptly. You—you—honor us, Mr. Donald; you do indeed. You're the one man in the world I can trust her with, whether as good friend or husband—only her husband you'll never be."

"I see breakers ahead," Donald admitted. He had no desire to dissemble with this straightforward old father.

"We're poor folk and plain, but please God!—we're decent and we know our place, Mr. Donald. If your big heart tells you to dishonor yourself in the eyes of the world and your people—mark you, lad, I do not admit that even an alliance with my girl could ever dishonor you in your own eyes—Nan will not be weak enough to permit it."

"I have argued all that out with myself," Donald confessed miserably, "without having arrived at a conclusion. I have made up my mind to wait patiently and see what the future may bring forth."

"It may be a long wait."

"It will be worth while. And when you have sailed, I'll finance her to leave Port Agnew and develop her glorious voice."

"You haven't the right, Mr. Donald. My girl has some pride."

"I'll gamble a sizeable sum on her artistic future. The matter will be arranged on a business basis. I shall lend her the money, and she shall pay me back with interest."

"Nan has a woman's pride. The obligation would always remain, even tho the money should be paid."

"I think we'll manage to adjust that matter," Donald countered confidently.

"Ah, well," the old fellow answered; we've always been your debtors. And its a debt that grows."

He loaded his pipe and was silent, for, after the fashion of the aged, he dared assume that his youthful auditor would understand just how the Brents regarded him.

"Well, my heart's lighter for our talk, lad," he declared presently. It you don't mind, I'll have a little nap."

Donald, grateful for the dismissal, returned to the kitchen, where Nan was preparing the vegetables. Her child at once clamored for recognition, and, almost before he knew it, Donald had the tyke in his lap and was saying,

"Once upon a time there was a king and he had three sons——"

"He isn't interested in kings and princes, dear," Nan interrupted. "Tell him the story of the bad little rabbit."

"But I don't know it, Nan."

"Then you'll fail as a daddy to my boy. I'm surprised. If Don were your own flesh and blood, you would know intuitively that there is always a bad little rabbit and a good little rabbit. They dwell in a hollow of a tree with mother rabbit and father rabbit."

"Thanks for the hint. I shall not fail in this job of dadding. Well, then, once upon a time there was a certain Mr. Johnny Rabbitt who married a very beautiful lady rabbit whose name was Miss Molly Cottontail. After they were married and had gone to keep house under a lumber pile, Mr. Hezekiah Coon came along and offered to rent them some beautifully furnished apartments in the burned-out stump of a hemlock tree. The rent was to be one nice ear of sweet corn every month——"

WOMAN SO ILL COULD NOT STAND

Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Well and Strong

Glens Falls, N. Y.—"For over two months I was so sick I was not able to stand on my feet, and my husband did my housework. The doctor said an operation might be necessary. I read testimonial letters about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and began to take it. Before I had finished taking the first bottle I saw what good it was doing me. I am now well and strong, doing all my work for a family of four, all my washing and my sewing, which I think is remarkable, as I had not dared to run my sewing machine, but had done all my sewing by hand. I truly feel that were it not for your medicine I would not be here today as my case seemed very serious."—Mrs. GEORGE W. BURCHELL, Glens Falls, N. Y.

Nfld. Poultry Association

On Thursday night in the Star Hall, Wabana, the eighth lecture of the Nfld. Poultry Association was given at the invitation of President John Hughes of the Bell Island Poultry Club.

The speakers from St. John's were President Williams, Vice-Pres. Dr. Arch Tait, and Treasurer W. R. Butler, with Mr. Errol Munn managing the illustrated lantern.

Some 200 pictures were shown of Canadian, U. S. and Nfld poultry scenes, birds, etc. houses and appliances. The pictures of Mr. Leonard Earle's poultry farm were also shown, as well as poultry yards of Rev. C. Wood, Westport, White Bay, an honorary member of the Nfld Poultry Ass'n., and also of the yards at Grand Falls of Mr. N. Cohen.

Gradually people are taking more interest in the work of poultry culture and these lectures are a great help. The lecturers were greatly assisted by Rev. Fr. Rawlins in fitting up their electrical apparatus, to whom they express their thanks as the voltage was different there than that used at other places.

The visitors were entertained by the Bell Island Committee at the Methodist Church Garden Party held the same day, and all had a very pleasant evening. President Hughes and his Secretary, Mr. Fred. Jardine, J. P., presided at the lecture and most courteously looked after all the arrangements.

On arrival at the Beach, Bell Island, Mr. Errol Munn, who is breeding homing, or carrier pigeons, having imported three pairs some seven months ago, liberated one of his local bred birds with a message attached, advising his home folks of his having arrived at the Island. The bird flew straight across the bay for St. John's and arrived safely. Mr. Munn has been training his birds all the summer, having had birds flying from Holyrod, Hr. Grace, Cape Broyle and Arnold's Cove station. This last place is a flight of ninety-eight miles.

Next spring he hopes to send some birds out to the seal-fishery to test them. He has now seventeen young birds in his lofts and will exhibit them at the 1923 Poultry Show. These carrier pigeons should be very useful in various ways in Newfoundland.

Church Lads' Brigade

At Thursday's parade all ranks were not up to their usual pep. The gloom cast around by it being Major Tait's last official parade as Adjutant was clearly in evidence, as everybody loves the Major and there was no doubt but that veteran of the old C. L. B. days and of the Royal Nfld. Regiment, loved his gallant command.

At the close, Lt.-Col. Walter F. Rendell, C. B. E., addressed a farewell message to the Adjutant on behalf of all ranks, to which the Major replied. On Friday at the West End Restaurant eighteen of his fellow officers gave a luncheon in his honor and presented him with a silver cigarette case. The Vice-President of the Mess, Capt. Geo. House, was chairman and Lt.-Col. Rendell made the presentation.

Capt. House made an excellent address of appreciation of Major Tait's services to Newfoundland, in the realm of sport, business and social circles, and referred in glowing terms of his work as Adjutant of the C. L. B. and at Feild College where 22 years ago he was a classmate, and of his services to his King and Country in the Royal Nfld. Regiment, Overseas. A few guests were present, including former Lieut. Col. Goodridge, whose Adjutant Major Tait was also, ex-Lieut. George Hunt, ex-Capt. Jeffery and Mr. Ern Fox. Major R. H. Tait, M.C., is going and the State of Massachusettes will be enriched by having him as a citizen. We hope some day with health in better shape all his old friends will see him back again in his native land, using his great talents as a citizen of Newfoundland again. Bon voyage, Major. Au Revoir.

New Athletic Grounds

The Principal of Spencer College, Miss V. Cherrington, is a great believer in outdoor athletics for girls. With commendable foresight she has had during the holidays, the grounds surrounding Spencer Lodge, Forest Road, nicely planned and a tennis court, etc., laid out for games of tennis, croquet and clock golf.

The grounds are now open and ready for use and the pupils of Spencer Colege are invited to use them. Ex-pupils or Old Spencerians are also invited to make use of the grounds during school hours so as not to debar the pupils their use after classes.

Rubber-soled shoes must be worn and balls and racquets will be loaned free by the Spencer Lodge Principal.

These playgrounds are now open and will be a great convenience for the Spencerians past and present, and assist in cultivating good health so much to be desired by everybody.

Next month Miss Cherrington hopes to hold an "At Home" at Spencer College, so parents and others may meet the teachers and inspect the new grounds.

Pit Prop Steamer Goes Ashore Near Botwood

SHIP LIKELY TO BE REFLOATED

Yesterday afternoon Mr. J. J. Collins, of the Marconi Company, received a message from wireless operator, Myrick, at Fogo, stating the SS Roxburgh was ashore 14 miles from Botwood. The message added that the captain of the ship expected her to come off at high tide. No further messages concerning the stranded steamer were received last night.

The Roxburg is under charter to Mr. M. E. Martin, and is one of the fleet of ships loaded with pit props in Notre Dame Bay and was bound to England when she went ashore. It is understood the weather was very foggy at the time.

ADVERTISE IN THE "ADVOCATE"

Portuguese Cruiser Goes Ashore at LaManche

The Portuguese cruiser "Carvalhoe Arango," inward bound from the Banks, during a dense fog struck the rocks about half a mile north of LeManche yesterday afternoon and was refloated last night in a seriously damaged condition. The place where the ship struck is only about 30 miles from St. John's on the Southern Shore.

The first news of the vessel's stranding was received by Mr. J. J. Collins of the Marconi Company, who was informed by Cape Race, that the cruiser had gone ashore near LaManche and was asking that a tug be sent to her assistance. The crew were then in their boats and were standing by the ship.

Mr. Collins immediately got in touch with the Shipping Department, and the Watchful, Capt. Mark Bragg, was made ready and sailed for the scene at 7 p. m. Sir Michael Cashin also received word of the wreck, and with Hon. Tasker Cook left for the scene by motor during the afternoon. The tug John Green was also despatched to LeManche and left here at 5 p.m.

In the meantime further messages were received that the ship went ashore in a dense fog, and that the water was smooth in the vicinity and there was every possibility of her being refloated at high tide. At 9 p.m. Mr. Peter Cashin was informed that the cruiser was aground forward and that the forepeak was full of water. At 11 p.m. another message was received that the "Carvalhoe Arango" was towed off at 10.30 p.m. by the Watchful at high tide, and Capt Bragg reported to the Shipping Department, he was towing the cruiser to this port and would arrive here at daylight.

Hon. Tasker Cook returned to the city at midnight and reported the damages to the ship extensive. Her bow had been damaged and her forward compartments are full of water.

The "Carvalhoe Arango" is a light cruiser of the patrol class, and was sent out this season to the Grand Banks on the fishery protection service by the Portuguese Government. She is about 200 tons displacement, and carries a crew of 137 men.

WEDDING BELLS

HISCOCK—DELANEY

St. Michael's Church was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding which took place on Wednesday afternoon, the 29th inst., when Mr. Sylvester Hiscock led to the altar Miss Belinda Delaney, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Delaney (Foxtrap.)

The ceremony was performer by the Rev. Canon Field, and the bride was very neatly attired in costume and hat to match. The groom was ably supported by Messrs. Matthew and Frederick R. Butler, and the bride by Miss Sadie Martin and Miss Laura Hiscock, sister of the groom, and was given away by Mr. T. F. Butler, with whom she lived for a number of years.

Mr. Hiscock is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Augustus Hiscock of this city, and an employee of Messrs. Reginald and Gerald Harvey, by whom he is highly esteemed.

After the ceremony the bride and groom with their many friends motored to Kelligrews and thence back to the city to the home of the groom's parents, where the reception was held. The toasts were duly honoured, the health of the bride being proposed by Mr. J. H. Scammell, M. H.A., and responded to by Mr. R. Hibbs, M.H.A.

The happy couple were the recipients of many valuable presents.

We wish Mr. and Mrs. Hiscock many years of wedded happiness in which The Evening Advocate joins.

OH! DRY THOSE TEARS!

WOMEN love TEARS and Men HATE them—
The tears, I mean,
Not the women.
If a YOUNG MAN
Sees a woman in tear
It moves him
To PITY.
If an OLDER man
Sees a woman in tears
It moves him
To see if she is YOUNG
And beautiful.
If she IS,
He's ready to help—
If she ISN'T,
It's none of his Business.
If his BRIDE is in tears
A man is distressed;
If it's his SWEETHEART
He is alarmed;
If it's his WIFE,
And she is a sob-sister,
He is annoyed;
If it's his MOTHER,
It is a very serious matter;
But if it's his WIFE'S MOTHER—
THAT'S DIFFERENT!

BIG JOURNALIST.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Roy L. McArdle this morning, a newspaper man of repute from New York City. He is making the round trip on the Rosalind, and enjoyed his visit to Newfoundland very much. Mr. McArdle who has had many years experience on the great American dailies grew reminiscent of the days when the reporter, and the editor had to harvest the news at first hand, not so to-day, when the scissors and the syndicate and the colored supplement take the place of the real stuff. Mr. McArdle is a permanent member of the Newspaper Men's Association of America which has a membership of America

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, SATURDAY, SEPT. 1st., 1923.

The New School Year

The summer vacation ends for most of the colleges and schools in the city and outports to-day, and on Monday teachers and pupils will return to the class room, fortified by the long respite, and ready to take up the work of another year. None will settle down, however, to the serious business of the coming term until the results of the spring examinations are known, and these are now being anxiously awaited by teachers and pupils alike. Let us hope that when the returns are in, no time will be lost by the Council of Higher Education in giving them to the public.

By the time another long vacation comes 'round, the Normal School will have been completed and its work commenced, so this may be regarded as the beginning of a new era in the country's educational life.

For the first time since we have had schools, we will shortly be in the happy position of being able to give ALL who engage in the work of teaching the training that alone can fit them for the very important work of educating the youthful mind and moulding the country's manhood and womanhood.

NEAR THE PRECIPICE

The situation between Italy and Greece, resulting from the assassination of the Italian delimitation mission by Greeks, has developed very quickly, and the latest messages indicate that the war-cloud has almost burst.

The bombardment and occupation of Corfu by Italian forces before the Greek minister had been handed the Italian ultimatum, which gave Greece five hours grace to reconsider her reply t othe seven original Italian demands, (three of which Greece refused to accept), indicates a strong belligerent attitude on the part of the Italian Government, who are evidently playing for a strategic position to force Greek acceptance of all her demands or, in case of war, to forestall Greek military action.

To the ordinary observer there can be no other conclusion than that Italy has acted in a drastic spirit without any evidence of restraint. It may be the reflex of the spirit of militarism which it is said permeates the Italian as well as the French authorities today, and which is the fruits of victory in the Great War; or it may be the work of Mussolini, "the strong man," whose phenomenal success in Italian public life may have persuaded him to look for other fields to conquer.

In any case, the intended hurried humiliaton of Greece may be treading too dangerously near the precipice of a general conflict. The reparations question has faded in importance as against this immediate danger, and it may not be too much to suggest that the German hand, hidden in the Sarajevo assassnation of 1914, may be later discovered in this Albanian incident. A Balkan flareup at this crucial time may be considered as advantageous to Germany in the matter of reparations and the Ruhr impasse. It would give the nations something else about which to think.

There is one feature about the whole affair which is human nature and human history all over again.

Mussolini, "the strong man," "the hope of Italy," the one upon whose brows success has rested, has apparently fallen to the idea that the role of a Napoleon is preferable to that of leading a people into the paths of peace.

Unless, which is unlikely, he thinks strong action is the best peace preservative, Mussolini has followed the ways of monarch. His reported attitude on interference by the League of Nations gives him a true Napoleonic role.

Now, it is up to the League of nations to demonstrate their efficacy.

If they fail, then—war again, and with the same professions as ever.

Is Japan Civilized ?

Dr. Frank Crane, the well-known American writer, in a New York paper, answer the question: "Is Japan Civilized?" It will not injure our readers to have his opinion on the matter. It will give them some idea of the advances made by that nation since she opened her doors to the outside world.

"You must judge whether or not a nation is civilized, not by your likes and dislikes, not by your fears nor your politics, but by certain definite standards.

"I find the cleanest list of these standards indicated in the Billings Lectures delivered by Dr. Jabez T. Sunderland. I will follow his order.

"1. The first mark of civilization is public order. No civilization is possible without a general obedience to law on the part of the people. All authorities agree that there is no nation in the world where public order is better maintained than in Japan.

"2. The next test is the spread of general intelligence and education. Every child in Japan from six to fourteen years of age is in school. Dr. Eliot, of Harvard, declared that Japan spends a larger proportion of her public money for education than the United States does, and has reached a higher standard.

* * * * * *

"3. Japan is full of newspapers and periodicals. Some newspapers have a daily circulation of a quarter of a million. Everybody, from the highest class to the lowest, reads.

"4. There is as much political freedom, as much freedom of the press and of speech in Japan as in England. It has a constitution and representative government.

"5. Civilization is tested by the degree to which a nation has turned from superstition to science. Japanese have as keen a zest for science as any other people. Her students are in universities all over the world, and many of her citizens have made their mark in original scientific research.

* * * * * *

"6. Art is highly developed among the Japanese. They are a nation of idealists, not materialists. Authorities say that Japanese art was a hundred years ahead of Western art. The Japanese have long passed the period of slavish copying; their thought is of mystical significance and symbolic suggestion rather than of photographic reproduction. They do some of the most elaborate wood carving in the world, also inlaying with gold and silver, the making of fine pottery, also incomparable lacquer work, and no nation surpasses Japan in the art of landscape gardening.

"7. In navigation Japan ranks with the foremost nations of the world. Her ocean liners are as good as any.

"8. Scientific agriculture is taught extensively. They have two university colleges of agriculture, five higher agricultural schools and about two hundred institutions of the same kind of lower grade.

* * * * * *

"9. Japan has a well developed and smooth running system of railroads.

"10. Her mail service, telegraphs and telephones are good and extensive.

"11. The Japanese are probably the cleanest people in the world, both as to their houses and as to their person. They have excellent sanitary laws which are strictly enforced.

"12. Medical, surgical and hospital conditions are of the very best.

* * * * * *

"13. Temperance is a mark of civilization. The Japanese are more temperate than even America under prohibition, and far more than the people of Great Britain or Germany.

"14. Crimes of violence are fewer than in the United States and in most of the countries of Europe. Nothing in Japan is so horrible as the lynchings in the United States.

"15. As to the social evil, Dr. Gulick says that "the shameless immoralities to be found in New York, London, Paris and Berlin surpass anything in Japan.

"If, therefore, you think that Japan is uncivilized, it is about time to think again."

ARE THERE TWO SIDES TO THIS SUBJECT ?

A subject freely discussed from pulpit platform and around the fireside circles, is "Russia and her Government." For the most part, people who presume to speak with authority have nothing good to say about the subject, but paint Russia as a veritable hell on earth, and characterize her people as Bolshevists (with a very sinister meaning to the term) who reck not of law or order, honor or religion and have none of the instincts of civilised races.

Especially from the pulpit is this opinion expressed; and the people are expected to presume that those who speak know all about it, that they have acquired their knowledge through travel or experience and had not formulated their opinions on books written for propaganda purposes or by those equally as untutored as themselves.

There is fast formulating a suspicion in the public mind that it is not sufficient to accept such teachings without greater proof than the mere saying of them, and some are asking the questions: Is Russia in such a state of uncivilization after all? Are her people in such tragic conditions as depicted and has Russia within her borders such numbers of murderous, blackhearted villains who control and have ruined the country?

There are conflicting opinions, but those who dare to differ from the originally advanced opinion on the subject, claim to have by travel and direct knowledge, an equal right to speak their contrary opinion and are advancing evidence which may be well-expected to clear up the mists of uncertainty and exaggeration surrounding Russia's present state.

In considering the subject, it should be well to remember that Russian czarist rule was a rule of militarism which kept and left the common people in poverty, oppression and ignorance. It was such a plutocracy which the people could not stand, nor did not. They overthrew it decisively and that which has been substituted therefor has stood for years and appears firmly established to-day. Does it not appear unreasonable that the Russian people would substitute for czarist rule a regime who represented a greater form of tyranny and wrong? Or would that tyranny be allowed to tyrannize against the will of masses who could overthrow the greatest plutocracy of the ages?

It does seem unreasonable, and yet so insistent is that abhorrence of things Russian, that the common man is swamped by accepting it.

There appears to be no room for the thought that so great was the upheaval consequent upon the revolution which ended czarism, it was humanly impossible to adjust themselves to the freer life without oppression in many forms, crimes and excesses which history has associated with all national upheavals.

"Give Russia time," is what many intelligent men are saying, and she will emerge from the old systems as a great, enlightened and advanced nation.

According to the Moscow correspondent of the Associated Press there is being held this week at Moscow, under the auspices of the Russian Government, the greatest educational and expositional undertaking ever known in Russia's history.

It will be an exhibition along agricultural and general industrial lines, and with the participation of a number of foreign firms, principally German. American harvester machinery is also to be shown among products and machinery of all nations.

All of the buildings for the exposition have been newly constructed, their erection constituting the largest building operation in Russia since the war. Including live stock barns there are nearly one hundred structures, mostly of wood, though some are of steel and concrete. Each of the various nations making up the United States of Russia will have its separate building. Some of them, particularly the Turkestan building, a model mosque in stucco, are architectually beautiful. That of the Far East Republic starts as an Eskimo's igloo, ties itself into futuristic architectural knots, and ends up by looing like a ship, it being symbolic of various types of structures, encountered from the Polar regions of Siberia to Vladivostok.

Ten thousand workmen have been engaged in the operation since spring, and the site, a splendid bit of rolling ground on the Moscow river, will be green and colorful with growing grain, grass and flowers when the fair opens.

Twenty-five thousand peasants are to be brought to Moscow each five days from the provinces, at the government's expense, to attend the exposition. What amounts to a short course in scientific agriculture will be given these visitors. They will be shown also a new "model village," as contrasted with the old Russian village. In the old village there will be Kions and other religious symbols in the houses. In the new, no ikons, but electric lights.

For foreign visitors and exhibitors, some of the downtown hotels are being taken over and remodelled. The foreign exhibits will be entirely separate from the Russian, a special section having been arranged for them.

This is one fact, among many, which should demonstrate that the Russian may not be so backward in thought and ideas as heretofore depicted, and it may well be taken that too much has been said of the inevitble evils, while all has not been told of the great material good that will be the result of the overthrow of czarism by its oppressed subjects.

Notes From Bonavista

The Young Men's Bible Class of Baly's Cove Spent a very enjoyable time on Friday, August 24th. The members of the Class with their young ladies, and guests who were invited, met at the Methodist Church about 4 p.m. From there they were taken in automobiles to the football field at Little Brook Plain, where they had a garden party. After tea was over, ice cream was served; then came the most interesting part, when games were started, and everyone present enjoyed themselves greatly, thanks to the field committee, Messrs. Edmund Swyers and Harold Tremblett. Among the invited guests were the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Blount, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Mifflin, Mr. and Mrs. James Brown, Mr McLaggan, Mrs. Oldford of Boston, and the teachers of the Bayly's Cove Methodist Sunday School.

The Class was organised by the Rev. Charles Lench, who is now at Brigus. With Mr. Joseph Whiffen President, Ronald Dunn, Vice-President, Harold Tremblett, Secretary-Treasurer, Gilbert Noftal, Teacher, Beniah Abbott, Assistant Teacher, and Mr. H. J. Abbott, who is Superintendent of the Sunday School and is very much interested in the class, and a crowd of young men whose heart and soul is in their work, and the welfare of the class, we are expecting great returns from that class in the future, and pray for God's blessing on their labours.

A WELL WISHER.

DUBLIN, Aug. 31—Up to noon today returns from Dail elections with 49 places undecided, gave the Government 43 seats in the Dail, Republicians 30, Independents 14, Farmers 8, and Laborites 9.

CONGRATULATIONS

August 14th, 1923.

Dear Sir William:

I had hoped to be able to extend to you viva voce ere this my congratulations on the recent honorable distinction that has come to you. Though tardy, my felicitations are none the less cordial, and I am glad indeed that your herculean work of the past decade in the cause of the old homeland has met with due recognition.

I am hoping, when I get my editorial work for the next issue of the Review in shape for the printer, to get a short trip to Newfoundland.

With every good wish, I am,
Yours sincerely,
P. W. BROWNE.

To Conduct The Investigation

We learn from Hon. W. R. Warren, Prime Minister, that the Secretary of State for the Colonies has nominated T. Hollis Walker, K.C., Bencher of the Inner Temple, London, and Recorder of Derby, to conduct the investigation into the charges recently made, which resulted in a change of Government.

It is expected that Mr. Walker will arrive here in the middle of October to commence work.

Masters Alexander and Clarence Hurd, sons of Adjt. Hurd, and who had been spending their vacation here left by the Rosalind to-day to return to school at Monkton, N.B.

It was expected that the Roxbury would be refloated last night at high tide. Mr. Arthur Williams informed the Advocate at noon to-day that she is still on the rocks.

ROME, Sept. 1—Premier Mussolini yesterday informed representatives of Italy abroad that Greece's answer to the Italian ultimatum was equivalent to complete rejection, and that therefore in order to bring Greece to the realization of her responsibilities, the temporary landing of Italian forces at Corfu had been ordered. ordered.

DUBLIN, Sept. 1.—Fifty-three government candidates and thirty-seven republicans were elected to the Dail in Monday's election, according to official returns given out last night.

It is now expected that the government will win sixty seats, while the Republicans may get forty-two when the final results are known.

Up to last night the independents had secured sixteen seats, labor four teen, and farmers twelve.

GENEVA, Sept. 1.—The League of Nations is at the crisis of its career. This was the feeling of all the delegates of the fourth assembly and council members as heard this morning with the news that Greece had decided to appeal to the League to settle the differences with Italy.

The general opinion is that the league is on trial, but everyone is confident that it will be able to effect a peaceful and just settlement, notwithstanding the precipitate action of Italy in occupying Corfu.

LONDON, Sept. 1—Italian reservists residing in London have been notified to hold themselves in readiness for a call to the colors in the event of necessity arising.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 1.—There was optimistic feeling through the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania that the suspension of mining which became effective to-day would not be continued long.

For the second time in a year and a half, production of anthracite is suspended, while the leaders of the union miners and representatives of the coal companies struggle at Harrisburg to reach a new wage agreement.

Reports from the anthracite fields indicated total suspension.

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 1.— A small tourist steamer with two hundred passengers aboard, broke her moorings near Hoejerin, in a hurricane, the most violent in forty years, and no news of her fate has been received.

The whole Island of Mano, four miles from the coast, disappeared under water as a result of the storm.

Grave fears are entertained for the safety of the passengers of the steamers.

All means of communication are disrupted.

GLOUCESTER, Sept. 1.—The luck of Captain Clayton Morrisey changed to-day, and his schooner, Henry Ford, won the Fishermen's Race, Sir Thomas Lipton's Cup and a purse of one thousand dollars.

The Ford, the pride of Gloucester, and the hope of Gloucestermen in the international event, winged around the thirty-one-mile course fifty seconds faster than the Elizabeth Howard, her nearest rival, and two miles ahead of Captain Marty Welsh in the Shamrock.

Captain Ben Pine sailed a fine race in the Howard, and won the Prentiss Cup with a purse of eight hundred dollars.

Crime in United States Shows Startling Increase

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 28—Startling disclosures of the extent and rapid increase of crime in the United States were submitted before the American Bar Association today by a Special Committee on Law Enforcement, which urged the whole code of criminal practice in the 48 States of the Union be re-written so that the long arm of the law might also become swift, sure, constant and, on occasion, merciful.

Data on numbers of crimes methods of trial and treatment of prisoners in England and France were cited, in comparison with which this country showed to a decided advantage.

The blame was laid partly upon the structure of the law, and the manner in which our courts function, but principally the increase of crimes and criminals was attributed to "the apathy and difference of the American people" toward law enforcement.

"Terrible failures of justice have occurred in all parts of the country," says the committee. Truth still clings to Chief Justice Taft's statement that "the administration of criminal law in the United States, is a disgrace of civilizaztion. The trial of a criminal seems like a game of chance, with all the chances in favor of the criminal and, if he escapes, he seems to have the sympathy of a sporting public."

Charles S. Whitman, former Governor of New York, is chairman of the committee, which includes Marcus Kavanagh Charles W. Farnham, Wade H. Ellis and Annette Abbott Adams. Besides conclusions drawn from personal observation as eminent members of the American Bar, they gathered an immense amount of statistics on crimes not available from the census. Three members of the committee made an exhaustive study of the criminal courts in England and France—forms of indictment, trial and sentence—sitting through whole murder trials and hearings of appeal, and inspecting penal institutions.

An astonishing laxity was discovered in the American method of recording crime statistics. Some States did not keep records of the number of persons in prison, as late as 1921. Among others where statistics were available, the penal population was shown to have ranged since 1911 from a decrease of 1.2 percent in Revada and 37.5 in South Carolina, to an increase of 1.5 percent in Kentucky and 171.3 in Rhode Island. Gains in civil population were taken into consideration.

On information furnished by police and court clerks in 48 principal cities of as many States, it was estimated that "while the general population of the country from the year 1910 until 1922, has increased 14.9 per cent., the criminal population has increased 16.6 percent." It was ascertained further that "the growth of crime was steady and almost regular up to our entrance into the World War; during the war crime decreased greatly, but upon the resumption of peace criminals resumed their depredations with increased activity all over the country."

In 1921, for instance, "there were 9,500 homicides as comparedw ith 9,000 in 1920. In no year during the last 10, did the number fall below 8,500. In other words, since 1910 no less than 85,000 of our citizens have perished by poison, and pistol, the knife or other unlawful and deadly injury."

As compared with England and France:

In the last year for which facts were available, there were 63 murders in England and Wales; 585 in France. In the 48 American cities where live one-fifth of the population there were 1,562 murders.

In London there were 17 murders. Only nine of these were classed as first degree. Scotland Yard ended the year with none of the "unsolved." During the same period Chicago had 137 recorded murders, and New York 260—the latter city obtaining three convictions.

The annual homicide rate per 100,000 population in Hartford, Conn., is 1.4. It is 56.8 in Memphis, Tenn.

The largest proportionate ratio of crimes is in our cities of less than 200,000 population," says the committee. "It, therefore may be conservatively estimated that in this republic last year there occurred 7,850 murders. To these may be added 6,790 cases of manslaughter and other unlawful killings, totalling 14,640 unjustificable homicides."

England is severe in punishing murderers. The death penalty is often imposed, although prison sentence usually are brief compared to ours. In France, where crime is less severely punished, murder is more frequent.

Eight States of the Union have abolished capital punishment. In five others it had been outlawed, but now is reinstated. Thus there were 92 executions in this country in 1919.

"But to prove that our failure to inflict the death penalty, did not proceed from an excess of tenderness,' the committee points out, "we successfully put over 83 largely attended lynchings."

Jurists visiting English and French courts, on behalf of the American bar, reported several commendable features in each. Justice was expedited. A criminal was tried, convicted and punished while details of his crime were still fresh in the minds of the public, and the "horrible example" theory of punishment was therefore effective. This country is notorious for its long drawn out prosecutions, says the committee. Two or three years elapse between the crime and the execution, sometimes, and "a first verdict judgment forms merely the preliminary skirmish."

Discussing the prospect of speeding the trial of prisoners in the United States; of eliminating the disappearance of witnesses, falsification of defences and loss of testimony, the committee concludes:

"The first great work to be accomplished in bringing about a better enforcement of law must be the awakening of the public to a clear sense of their responsibility for it. Improvement in our laws can accomplish little unless accomplished by a determination on the part of our citizens to have those laws enforced.

:"We recommend that a permanent commission of this association, be appointed to formulate a standard code of criminal procedure for the States of the Union. It is of first importance that such committee be composed of men, who have had large practical experience in the criminal courts, and especially care should be taken to exclude mere theorists and faddists."

Two Leap to Death From N.Y. Buildings

Man and Woman End Lives by Hurling Themselves From Great Heights.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23—Two more persons, a man and a woman, hurled themselves through the air to death to-day as a means of ending their lives. Samuel Gruber, 45 years old, of Brooklyn, for some unknown motive, leaped from one of the top floors of the 25-story Municipal Building in Park Row, while Miss Ethel Kaiser, 40 years old, jumped from the roof of a six-story apartment house on St. Mark's Avenue, Brooklyn. Grief over the death of her father two months ago is believed to have caused her act.

Gruber jumped from such a height that the air currents carried his body out over the sidewalk on the eastern side of the building and near the elevated railroad structure and then back toward the building again before it struck the sidewalk on Park Row with terrific impact.

Miss Kaiser died in St. John's Hospital from broken arms and legs and internal injuries.

A fine, pure floating toilet soap that is cheaper than most and far more useful. The whole family can wash in Ivory and no better soap could be used for Ivory contains the purest materials and is widely recommended. At all Union Stores now.

From Regina To Winnipeg

1500 MILES IN A CANOE

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23. — (Canadian Press)—Bringing his furs to Fort Garry, as Winnipeg was known then, whence they could be sent to the markets of the world, a Hudson's Bay factor named McKenzie travelled from Regina to Winnipeg by river, a distance of 1,500 miles. It took him six months to make the journey with a fleet of forty fur laden rafts down the Assiniboine. His record stood unchallenged for many, many years—a record created in the pioneer days of Western Canada—until two young members of the Regina Boat Club again accomplished the feat when they arrived at the Winnipeg Canoe Club on August 6, after a canoe journey of three weeks beset by hazardous experiences in the early stages of the trip and hard work, paddling from dawn to dark, during the final lap.

The youthful voyagers, W. B. Robbins and B. Penfold, accompanied by four members of the Regina club when they left the Saskatchewan city, spent their three weeks' vacation in making the journey. The other members of the party were forced to abandon the trip at Tantallon after paddling for two weeks. Their holiday time had expired and they had to return to Regina.

The first week they met with many mishaps. They encountered floods and storms, the most dangerous experiences being recorded before they reached Tantallon. Some of the canoes were upset and practically all members of the party at some time or other had narrow escapes from drowning. They established a paddling record of approimately 230 hours. Some nights they were forced to sleep under their canoes, others they spent more comfortably in haymows and section-houses.

An eample of the hard grind is shown in their log, which they kept for the entire journey. It reads: "Sunday, July 29—Day of much disappointment. Expected to get within 15 miles of Brandon, but found on pitching camp for the night we were still 37 miles out. The sixty river miles we covered equalled only about 14 road miles. River very winding. Paddled until 8.30 and slept in barn."

The paddlers state that the Assiniboine needs re-surveying. Floods of the past few years have changed its course, and they found existing maps very inaccurate.

STATESMEN GATHER TO REVIEW WORK OF LEAGUE OF NATIONS

GENEVA, Aug. 30 (AP)—The fourth general assembley of the League of Nations will be called to order Monday morning, Sept. 3, by Viscount Ishii, former Japanese ambassador at Washington and now ambassador to France.

The forthcoming meeting is regarded with great international interest. The League has passed through its most active year of endeavor, and numerous are the questions which will come up for discussion by the representatives of the 52 nations affiliated with the Geneva organization. It is regarded as certain that Ireland will apply for membership, Turkey and one or two other States may do likewise.

The assembly will bring together many of the world's foremost statesmen, including General Smuts, the celebrated leader of the South African Republic; Lord Robert Cecil; Dr. F. Nansen, for many years prominent in European relief work; former Premier Branting, of Sweden; Foreign Minister Benes, of Czechoslovakia; representatives of the British overseas dominions, and spokesmen of some 16 South American republics.

Something like 1,500 people, including national delegates, experts in various fields, and journalists from all corners of the globe are expected, and already Geneva is making ready its display of flags of all the world, preparing the great fountain which plays in the inner harbor, and otherwise planning for the reception of men from many lands, of many races, and of many languages.

All the work of the assembly will be done in public. Every session, both plenary and committee, is open to the press. Apparently efforts are being made to prevent the League from falling into those ways of secrecy which often mark the course of diplomats in international negotiations. Occasionally, during the last year, some sessions of the council were held privately, with resultant criticism based on the allegation that, if the League, as it gets stronger, yields to the temptation to follow the road of secrecy, it is eventually doomed to failure because the keynote of its success must be open covenants openly arrived at. The assembly generally discusses not only what the League has done during the past year, but also what it has not done and should do.

Each state which is a member of the League may be represented by not more than three delegates who are appointed by and responsible to their respective governments. As the work of the League covers many different fields of international life, and as the sessions are run with the greatest possible expedition, many countries have supplementary delegates and expert advisors on various problems. Each, however, has but one vote. Practically all questions of importance can be decided only by unanimous vote. One state could block an agreement, if it wished to take the responsibility. As a matter of fact such a contingency has not arisen in the history of the League. One of two policies has been followed. Either negotiations have been pursued until an agreement acceptable to all has been reached, or states which felt unable to agree to a definite proposal have abstained from voting, thus allowing the proposal to be adopted by the other countries.

WHERE BRITAIN MUST SHOW THE WAY.

(Westminster Gazette)

It is scarcely necessary to say that in her appeal to force France can safely rely for a long time on being the only litigant. If we are compelled against our will to act in seeming opposition to her, it will be on quite a different field. Our appeal can only be to the considered opinion. On the contrary, our desire must be that it should be as emphatic as possible, and our hope that it may have some effect on French policy before all opportunities of averting a disaster to Europe have passed. But the public opinion of the world can only be mobilized if we give it a lead, and if we place before it in the clearest possible way the real reasons for our disagreement with France.

MAY CARRY MAILS BY PLANE TO PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

CHARLOTTETOWN, P. E. I., Aug. 24.—Major Shearer, of the R. C. A. F., addressing the Rotary Club here, said that he was inquiring into the question of carrying mails by seaplane between Sackville and Charlottetown. He hoped that two machines could be put in commission, each to carry from 400 to 500 pounds of mail, first and second class. This would mean the elimination of the mail car between Sackville and the Island. He hoped that one air trip a day could be carried out. Landing could be made in the water in summer and on the ice in the winter.

MAKING CANADIAN LANDS ATTRACTIVE TO SETTLERS

WINNIPEG, Aug. 23.—Evidence of the increasing activity of the newly reorganized Canada Colonization Association is to hand in the appearance of the first offerings of farm lands listed for sale with the Association.

All told some 1,200 parcels have been listed, the total area amounting to over a million acres. Some of the listings being of large tracts varying in size down to the quarter section farm. The listings have been divided by the Association into provinces, a separate booklet being issued for Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta to which the initial efforts are being directed pending organization of British Columbia which will take place in the near future.

Several points of interest in connection with the listings are evidenced as a result of a perusal. Among these is the fact that a large proportion of the land offered can be bought on long terms, an appreciable proportion on the Association's 32-year plan. More of the land can be purchased at 6 per cent. interest showing the desire of the owners to give as much assistance as possible to the settler in the matter of easy payments.

The Association has now some 250 agents actively engaged in the United States and these listings will be used by them in showing the opportunities of Canada for farmers. Land seekers' excursions are planned for this fall and quite a number of prospective settlers will be brought here when the harvest is finished in the States.

House of Lords Fears For West Indian Colonies

LONDON, Aug. 15 (AP)—Fear that American influences may eventually affect the relations between England and the British West Indies has invaded Parliament and caused some members of the House of Lords to urge that the government lose no time in strengthening the existing bonds with the British colonies.

Viscount Burnham has urged that special representation at the Imperial Economic Conference be given the West Indies, and that better communication on the sea and under it be established at once with that part of the Empire. He points out that communication at the present time is very bad, a condition that does not obtain with any other part of the Empire. Almost all of the news supplied to the West Indian papers comes from America, and reflects the American point of view.

AT THE CITY HALL

The regular weekly meeting of the Council was held yesterday afternoon.

Deputy Mayor, Martin presided, and Councillors Outerbridge, Vinicombe, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

P. J. Summers called attention to the fact that duringg rainstorms the sewer, Walgrave Street, becomes choked, flooding the street and causing considerable damage as well as inconvenience to the occupants. The Engineer was instructed to inquire into the matter, with a view to remedying the cause of complaint.

E. A. Crowther, Secretary Treasurer Victoria Hall, asked for certain information regarding buildings exempt from taxation, at the same time referring to the increased assessment on Victoria Hall. Both are matters for consideration at the Court of Revision, and Mr. Crowther is to be advised to bring same before the next session, which will be held in December.

E. G. Cousens applied for water service to house, Southside Road. The Engineer is to prepare estimate of cost, and if Mr. Cousins is willing to pay expenses the work will be proceeded with.

A. Rowsell, applied for right to quarry stone, Signal Hill Road. He is to be referred to the Department of Mines and Agriculture.

Applications of the Yorkshire Insurance Company, Ltd., and Henry C. Donnelly, for share of insurance on new sanitary stables, were ordered to be placed on file.

Tessier & Company asked permit to make certain repairs to building formerly occupied by the Red Taxi Company, Theatre Hill. Consideration was deferred until plans and specifications are submitted.

Messrs. Burke & Collingwood, Allandale Road, asked that concrete curb and gutter be extended along their respective dwellings, and stated they were willing to pay their proportion of the cost. Their request was acceded to.

A. S. Hodder applied for work of painting the new sanitary stables. When this work is needed, tenders will be called.

Reference was made to the great number of buildings in the City used as garages and laundries, and it was thought that regulations respecting such usage were necessary. The matter will be fully discussed at the next meeting.

Attention was called to the fact that the new storm sewer, Duckworth Street, between Beck's Cove and the News Office, has during recent years and at present been giving considerable trouble. The sewer in question is an old one. It was ordered that the work of replacing same with 15" E. W. pipe be proceeded with.

The following plans were passed subject to the approval of the City Engineer:—Newman Ebsary, alteration to house, Southside; Messrs. Connolly, election of double dwelling, Merrymeeting Road, provided they sign an agreement to pay their proportion of cost for water and sewerage extension.

The oiling of the newly graded road, King's Bridge, was ordered to be gone on with.

During the past week, the Medical Officer of Health, reported 15 new cases of Scarlet Fever and 2 of Diptheria.

It was ordered that a cheque for $50,271.73 be forwarded the Minister of Finance, $43,271.73, being half yearly interest to June 30th on City Debt, and $7,000.00 contribution towards the upkeep of the Fire Department, for the same period.

The notice of motion given by Councillor Outerbridge at the last regular meeting, in relation to posting of placards and bills, etc., within the City limits, was then taken up and the following decided upon:—

1. That no bills, placards or advertisements which tend to direct or interfere with traffic, vehicular or foot, shall be erected or attached anywhere within the City limits unless the sanction or authorization of the City Council shall have been first obtained.

2. That no bills, placards or advertisements shall be erected or attached to property in the City limits unless the consent of the occupier or failing the occupier, owner or agent of the property to which the bill, placard or advertisement is intended to be erected or attached, shall have been first obtained. "Property" in these Regulations shall mean buildings of any sort, walls and fences surrounding occupied or vacant property telegraph, telephone and electric light poles and any other erection to which a bill, placard or advertisement can be attached.

3. That upon the occupier, or failing occupier, owner or agent of any property giving permission for the erection or attachment of any bill, placard or advertisement to his property or property under his control, such occupier, owner or agent shall be held personally responsible for such bill, placard or advertisement being kept in a tidy condition and for the removal of same when ordered by the Council.

4. That the firm, company, organization or individual whose goods or business is advertised by any bill, placard or advertisement which offends against clauses 1, 2, 3, of this enactment shall be held to be the party or parties responsible for the offence and shall be liable to the penalties of the enactment.

5. That the penalty for each and every breach of these regulations shall be a fine of not less than twenty-five dollars or imprisonment not exceeding thirty days.

The report of the City Engineer for the week was tabled.

With the granting of requisitions for several departments and passing of weekly accounts, the meeting adjourned.

Sound Advice

Houston Post: Another proposition we lay down as absolutely true: Like people, like government, a profligate and wasteful people cannot have a frugal and economical government.

Praise for Baldwin

London Daily News: For the duration of the present Parliament it is the Prime Minister alone who stands between us and anarchy, nationally and internationally. He is the only man on the Government side who has made any show at all of standing up to the Chauvinism of the French Government.

Well Earned

Boston Globe: The report on Ellis Island made by Sir Aukland Geddes to Lord Curzon is a national humiliation to the United States. What the British Ambassador says about the principal immigrant receiving station in America is horribly true. All well-informed citizens of this country have known for a long time that the conditions under which immigrants, or would-be immigrants, are received, examined and detained are impossibly bad.

This Machine Age

Ohio State Journal: We suppose all will call up and try to stop the go-gettere and other Babbits the paper for this, but, personally we got so tired sometimes of automobiles and radio and phonographs and quantity production and everything that we are glad to have Mr. Edison and Mr. Ford off on a month's vacation, hoping that nothing more will be invented or improved for that long at least.

Coolidge in the Seat of the Mighty

New OrleansTimes-Picayune: We wonder to what sardonic and cynical thought President Coolidge has been moved these last few days, even in the midst of the impressive solemnity of assuming his present august station. Ten days ago, he went his modest and silent way, unsolicited, almost ignored. He counted little in the schemes of other men. To-day the world is finding sudden qualities of greatness in Mr. Coolidge. His door is haunted by the greedy of place and the specious of plea. The would-be-helpers-for-a-purpose elbow their way to his side to thrust their aid upon him. The sycophants fawn and the tuft-hunters cringe. Over night friends reach for splinters of his power. Self-made spokesmen strive to bask in the reflected light of his authority. Yet he is the same man now that he was on the tragic eve of August 2. So much is man, in the eyes of the world, the sum of himself and his place or his possessions.

The Poor Whites of South Africa

Johannesburg Sunday Times: The solving of the problem of checking the growth of poor-whiteism in South Africa would almost rid us of the unemployment evil. But poor-whiteism has attained dimensions which require a national effort and not merely a Government one. The Dutch Reformed Church is again arousing interest in it, and we trust that something more than is now being done can be attempted both by Government and people.

HERE, THERE AND EVERYWHERE

Forty miles an hour, with a gasoline consumption of 50 miles to the gallon, is the new record established by the low powered airplanes of France.

"Be of good health" is the greeting adopted by the athletic organizations of Bulgaria. The idea is that with health of body comes health of mind, and that sane and normal state of soul which constitutes spiritual health. The public in general is adopting the greeting of the athletes.

German publishers have sent more than 40,000 books for exhibition at the exposition which the Soviet Government is holding in Moscow now. Two members of the society for book exportation have accompanied the exhibit to Russia, and will supervise the arrangement in such manner that the books will give a definite idea of the historical development of Germany's publishing business.

Membership in the Young Men's Christian Association in the United States and Canada increased 20,000 during the last year and passed 900,000, Dr. John R. Mott, General Secretary of the International Committee, declared in a foreword to the North American Associations' year-book. Sixty-four new buildings to cost $15,000,000 are being constructed, he said.

According to the Associated Press, girl clerks in American offices who bemoan the slimness of fifteen and twenty dollar a week salaries are considered luckly by their poorer paid counterparts in England.

There are 3,000 women clerks in government offices, some of them with eight years experience, who receive less than the equivalent of $10 a week. They don't like it, but they don't know what to do about it, for there are still more than 1,000,000 unemployed in England, who stand ready to pounce upon positions the minute they are vacated. Most of these government clerks are in the late twenties, some have passed thirty, and among them there are widows with children to support.

The clerks have asked the government to increase their pay by $2 or $2.50 a week. Some of the newspapers are supporting their requests. The government hasn't said anything yet, one way or the other. Meanwhile, it is said, the girls who cannot make both ends meet on their salaries, are making up the difference after hours, by sewing, doing laundry work, and teaching dancing.

PULPWOOD EMBARGO WOULD BENEFIT CANADA

FORT WILLIAM, Aug. 23.—At the West Algonia Agricultural Fair, opened today, the Fort William Pulp and Paper Company is displaying a card showing how an embargo against the export of Canadian pulpwood into the United States would benefit this district particularly, and Canada generally. The figures, taken approximately from the 1922 Government reports, in even millions, read as follows.

"One million cords exported annually; revenue derived $12,000,000. Thre million cords, manufactured into pulp and paper in Canadian mills, $150,000,000.

"With the embargo, 4,000,000 cords, sent to Canadian mills, would yield $200,000,000; labor employed to an amount of $44,000,000 at present, and capital invested, $387,000,000.

Read this—it is very interesting:

In an address before the Interstate Merchants' Council at Chicago, U.S.A., a businessman named A. R. Kroh, condemned the marketing system of the United States.

"It takes 19,000,000 people to market the food that 30,000,000 produce," he said. "Only a million are necessary to market it."

If that is true of the United States, it is doubly and trebly true of Newfoundland. Why? Because the marketers of this country deal with buyers and consumers of other countries, while the marketers in the United States deal with buyers and consumers in their own country. The competition that takes place between the marketers in that country may be somewhat beneficial for the consumers there, due to the fact that competition between sellers lowers the price at which they sell.

But when competition amongst our marketers or exporters takes place and lowers the price at which they sell, it is not the consumers of Newfoundland who benefit, because they don't consume the goods that our marketers market. It is the foreign consumers who benefit.

Therefore, the Newfoundland marketers or exporters should NOT compete amongst themselves, but should combine and present a solid front to the foreign buyers, so as to prevent the price at which they sell from dropping.

Anyway, it is foolish and ridiculous to have so many individual men and individual firms as there are in Newfoundland, exporting and marketing our fish. The exporting and marketing of 1,500,000 quintals of fish (an average yearly catch) could and ought to be exported by no more than five or six men, and they should be organized and acting together.

This is a fact perfectly well known to all modern economists and students of economics. The only ones who do not know these facts are old-fashioned persons, who have not learned any thing new in the last fifty years, but are dwelling in a world that no longer exists. Such are the people who occupy the solemn but ancient offices of the Daily News, for example. They talk about "competition being the life of trade" in a day when all the world's successful business is carried on under a principle as totally different as it is possible to conceive—the principle of combination, of cooperation, of trustification.

WAKE UP, oh Daily News, SNAP OUT OF YOUR SNOOZE! Swing your arms, stamp your feet, get your circulation going once more, brush the cobwebs out of your eyes and let a fresh flow of blood get to your thinking apparatus. Your readers will feel the beneficial affects! And, oh, wouldn't we!

News comes from Great Britain that 2,400 retail meat shops, depots and market stalls, together with factories and wholesale selling establishments, have been added to the property now owned by the Union Cold Storage Co., which recently purchased eight large meat packing plants. This company now controls 5,500 retail butcher shops.

This is the sort of thing that is happening in Great Britain. The trust movement which occurred years ago in the United States, is now under way in that country. Competition is being eliminated and monopoly as far as possible, and combination, are being substituted.

The total value of poultry products in the United States last year was $884,000,000, or nearly a billion dollars. This was made up of eggs, chicken, turkey, geese, etc.

Newfoundlanders, read this and blush for the lack of progressiveness in our country:

British Columbia's salmon pack last year totalled 1,290,000 cases valued at $10,109,000. This was an increase over the previous year of 687,000 cases and a gain in value of $4,175,000.

The total value of the various fisheries of that province during 1922 was $18,872,000, an increase over 1921.

That's "good business," and Newfoundland business men should sit up and take notice—especially our fish merchants.

British Columbia salmon is world-famous—but, my friends, it is not as good salmon as Newfoundland salmon. If Newfoundland salmon were properly exploited it could replace British Columbia salmon to a great extent, and become a fine means of income to this country, which so needs increased income.

Whaling operations, which were suspended in 1921, were resumed last year and produced an output of $158,000.

Did you notice the significance of the words "total capital invested?" The value of the year's output was over $18,000,000, while the capital invested was only $19,000,000, or $20,000,000. Most of that twenty million dollars was invested in fixed property, such as boats and houses and nets, etc., and these can be used over and over again for years. And yet, one year's output was almost equal to the total amount of capital invested.

Politeness costs little and gains much.

NOICE HALTED DAY BY ESKIMO STRIKE PREACHER INCITFS

Missionary Tries to Dissuade Natives From Going on The Wrangel Expedition

By HAROLD NOICE

POINT HOPE, Alaska, Aug. 9, via Nome, Aug. 22.—We are leaving Point Hope immediately for the last run to Wrangel Island.

After we weighed anchor at Nome Aug. 3, engine trouble developed within a few hours and there was much delay all the way to Cape Prince of Wales, where we spoke the United States survey schooner Hazel.

We remained at Wales three hours and took on five Eskimo hunters for one trip. We made poor time from Wales to Cape Blossom, arriving there the morning of the sixth. Because of shallow water, Engineer Joseph Earl and I rowed eight miles into Kotzebue and secured complete equipment to repair engine parts, paying an Eskimo family and young married Eskimos who took on a large quantity of additional supplies, guns, etc., to insure the entire party in the event of being compelled to winter and establish camps for a sojourn of two years. We secured eleven fine dogs with harness and complete equipment.

After all the equipment had been taken on board and the Eskimos were due to leave shore in their skin boats I suddenly found that I had an Eskimo strike on my hands due to the influence of a missionary who not only told them that they would be without Christian influence but that the chances were I would leave them marooned on Wrangel Island and therefore they would never get back to their families and friends.

Argument With Missionary.

I thereupon proceeded to the missionary's house with all the natives, where a serious, earnest and at times strenuous conversation ensued in which I told the missionary that he as a Christian, fostering the spiritual welfare of the natives ought certainly to permit them to go to the rescue of those in dire straights or worse, and who, if alive, must be famished to see their families and friends. The missionary in his night gown and I in work clothes, surrounded by twenty Eskimos, made indeed a primitive and picturesque conference.

Making no head, I retired and notified the Eskimos that I was leaving at once and that if they failed me I would select my crew from points farther north, whereupon I proceeded to the beach only to be followed in a few minutes by the entire party of Eskimos who came pell mell informing me that they would follow me.

I was doomed for further difficulties this day and reaching the ship at 9 a.m., Capt. Hansen, for reasons best known only to himself, objected strongly to taking on board the additional people, supplies and dogs, which, in my opinion, would prove a valuable asset in the event that we encountered any difficulties and were compelled to make a forced march over the ice to reach the island. Capt. Hansen took a firm stand, whereupon I was compelled to accept his resignation. The rest of the crew decided to go in with the expedition.

More Eskimos Go Aboard

At 11 o'clock we set sail for Point Hope, with weather fine and engines woking perfectly. Early on the morning of the eighth we anchored off Point Hope.

Here we enjoyed the hospitality of the Rev. Mr. Thomas and his wife, who rendered every assistance possible, and I was compelled to modify my viewpoint considerably with reference to mission work in the North.

Here I found one more Eskimo family eager to join the expedition and engaged them with their skin boats. The schooner has been thoroughly overhauled and we expect to make the island in two days sailing unless delayed by ice conditions. I have promoted First Mate Hansolsen to sailing master, but I attend to all actual navigation.

We are maintaining the schedule planned at Nome. All are well and satisfied.

Mr. R. T. McGrath leaves by the Rosalind to-day on the round trip to New York.

Mrs. A. W. Martin is leaving by the Rosalind on a visit to her son and daughter at New York.

Rev. Dr. P. W. Browne, who was here on a short visit, returns to Washington by the Rosalind to-day.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Mott leave by to-day's Rosalind on a short visit to friends and relatives in Canada.

Dr. S. H. Martin, Mrs. Martin and children leave by the s.s. Rosalind to-day on their way to Manchuria, where he conducts St. Andrew's Hospital under the auspices of the Canadian Presbyterian Church. Dr Martin has been spending the Summer with his parents after taking a post graduate course at a New England University. The Church at Orilla, Ont., is supporting Dr. Martin, and he is saying farewell to them enroute.

Mr. J. E. Coles of Elliston, who has been undergoing eye treatment under Dr. Murphy, will leave by to-morrow's express for his home via Clarenville.

Mr. Baxter Gaulton of Cape Freels, who has been undergoing treatment at the General Hospital, is now quite well and will go home in a day or so.

Mr. G. Morris, who entered the General Hospital on Saturday last and underwent an operation during this week, is much improved now.

Mr. Samuel Tiller is improving daily at the General Hospital, and it is hoped will be able to get out to work in a week or so.

Rev. E. O'Brien was in the city yesterday on business.

Mr. John Moore of Dildo, T.B., who arrived in town on Tuesday goes home by to-morrow's express.

Mr. A. B. Moore and Mr. T. Smith of Dildo, who have been in town the past few days, are going to Dildo by to-morrow's express.

Mrs. Brown, of Amherst Cove, is doing very well at the General Hospital, though it cannot be yet said when she will be able to go to her home.

Mrs. Martin J. Ryan, of Great Paradise, who has been in town the past week at the King's Beach Hotel, is entering Southcott Hospital for treatment.

Intending entrants for the A.A.A. Sports events on Wednesday next are now hard at training and each evening asjirants for long distance honors may be seen "pacing" over the country roads.

A motor man was before Judge Morris this morning on a charge of parking his car on Water Street East longer than the time limit. The Municipal Council gave the East End taxi drivers the south side of Duckworth Street, opposite the Crosbie Hotel, for a stand, but recently the Reid Nfld. Co. have started to put an office building on the site of the Clapp estate, and the taxi men are without a stand. Mr. Cramin appeared for the defendant. He was let go on payment of costs.

Disabled Ship Arrives

The ship arrived at 8.30 a.m. and is bethed at Shea's. The damage is below the water-line and apparently she struck on a shelving rock, as at high tide she came off without much difficulty. A serious accident to six of the crew occurred during the effort to refloat the vessel. A stern hawser bursted and six of the crew who were standing about the deck were hit by the rebounding hawser. All six men had legs broken, one man said to be an officer had two of his legs broken. Owing to the inability of the officers and crew to speak English it was difficult to get any connected story of how the accident occurred. All six men were taken to the hospital in the ambulance, and the broken limbs set; some of the fractures are of a bad sort and amputation of the injured limbs may become necessary.

The Vice-Consul for Portugal, Mr. Goodridge, visited the ship this morning and is making arrangements to have the Carvalhoe Arango docked for repairs.

The ship in build, tonnage and equipment may be taken as a sister ship of the Lobilia.

The coaster H. L. Montague, Capt. John Dominey, is discharging a cargo of 109,000 feet lumber at the Horwood Lumber Co's premises. The lumber is from the company's mills at Horwood.

The motor ship Grosholm cleared from Botwood yesterday for Miramichi in ballast.

Springdale Fire Loss Was $2500

NO INSURANCE CARRIED

A message to The Advocate this morning from Springdale, N.D.B., contained fuller particulars of the destructive fire which occurred there on Wednesday night.

The fire broke out about midnight in a mill owned by the creditors of the insolvent estate of Elias Wellman and was of unknown origin. All the machinery with the exception of a planer owned by F. J. Dove had been removed a year ago. The fire spread quickly, fed by masses of highly inflammable material and in less than two hours the mill, with the planer above referred to and about thirty thousand feet of lumber, was completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at $2,500 and it is understood no insurance was carried.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. WILLIAM RING

Death comes to all sooner or later, to be prepared for it should be our chief thought, and aspirations such as were those of the deceased lady, Mrs. Ring, wife of Mr. William Ring, of Long's Hill, whom it hath pleased our Heavenly Father to take to His mansion on high, yesterday morning. The deceased leaves a husband, two sons, one daughter, and a sister, Mrs. Capt. Thomas White of Boston, who arrived in the city a few weeks ago, shortly after having been made acquainted with her sister's illness. Mr. Edward Ring of Hon. J. P. Hand's office, Bermuda, and Mr. Thomas Ring, of the firm of F. Connors, harness maker, and (Kitty) Mrs. Lee of New York, but now residing for a while at the home of her parents, with the deceased lady's husband and sister are left to mourn a faithful wife, a virtuous mother, and a sincere and faithful member of the Roman Catholic Church. Mrs. Ring's father was the late Mr. John McGrath, a well known blacksmith of St. John's; her uncles were Thomas and William McGrath, the former was the well known carriage builder and funeral undertaker, and the latter was a blacksmith and founder of the T. A. & Benefit Society. To her sorrowing family and friends The Advocate extends its sincerest sympathy.

Traffic Police

Inspector General Hutchings, has most of the crossings and blind corners in the city now policed by traffic officers, whose presence in such places was sorely needed and tends to obviate much of the danger to the public.

There are, however, a few places left where officers could do good work and amongst those are the crossing at the junction of Long's Hill and Queen's Rd. and at the junction of Parade Street and Freshwater Road. Both are particularly bad spots and there is need for the greatest care at all times on the part of motorists.

Obituary

MISS KITTY DEVEREAUX

The passing of Miss Kitty Devereaux, daughter of Mr. James Devereaux, of Ferryland, which occurred there on Thursday, will be regretted by her many friends in the city.

Deceased who was in her 26th year, had been ailing for some time past, but had borne her illness with Christian fortitude and was ready when the call came. She was a sister of the late father Devereaux, and is survived by her father and a host of relatives and friends.

The funeral takes place at Ferryland this afternoon.

Fined $100 For Leaving Fireman on Shore

The captain of the "Yankton" was before Judge Morris this morning charged by the Commissioner of Charities with leaving one of his crew, a fireman, on shore. His defense that the man was a deserter was not sustained, and he was fined $100.00.

This is the first prosecution of this kind for some time, but the habit of leaving seamen on shore to become a charge on the colony has grown to such an extent that the authorities will in future vigilantly prosecute owners and masters who may be guilty of violations of the marine laws of the colony.

Greece Waits Developments

ATHENS, Sept. 2.—With an application in the hands of the League of Nations asking for intervention in the Italian attack upon Corfu and other Greek possessions and killing refugees at Corfu by bombardment. Greece waited patiently to-day for developments, in the meantime taking care that no untoward act of this country might aggravate the situation which is giving more dreaded significance by declaration of Italian Government to allow no intervention by the League of Nations.

JAPAN'S CAPITAL IS ON FIRE

Yokohama Wsa Scene of 10,000 Casulties on Saturday---All Traffic Suspended---Communications Destroyed and Populaces Fleeing for Life.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1.—Practically the entire city of Yokohama is afire and numerous casualties have occurred as a result of the conflagration which broke out after a severe earthquake shock.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 2.—One hundred thousand Japanese perished in the Yokohama fire and earthquake.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2.—Tokio is afire, and many buildings of the city have collapsed, the water system is destroyed, loss of life heavy and all traffic has been suspended. Flames are spreading to the surrounding towns according to a message to-night from the Radio Corporation's Superintendent stationed at Tamiccika who said he obtained the information from the newspaper at Sendai, a large sea coast town, one hundred miles north of Tokio. Refugees are running in all directions, the city presents a scene like Hell and many disastrous accidents are reported. A number of trains running to Tokio have been wrecked during the quake and it is reported a tidal wave struck the Yokohama coast.

OSAKA, Japan, Sept. 2.—In Yokohama alone there have been ten thousand casualties from Saturday's earthquake and fire according to a radio message from the Governor of Yokohama; tidal waves also did great damage. Direct communication with Tokio is still cut off, but it is reported enormous damage was done there. The Prince Regent is reported to be safe. Yokohama was still burning at 8.30 o'clock Saturday night.

Death and Destruction Sweep Japanese Cities

YOKOHOMA AND TOKIO PANIC STRICKEN

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 1—Earthquake death and destruction were spread over an area roughly comprised within a radius of fifty miles of Tokio, and the extensive casualties and the material damage outside that zone have not been determined, as communications with Japan are still interrupted, except for brief connections by radio with Tomioka, and occasional despatches from Japan to Shanghai. With railway lines, telephone wires, and all other means of communication and travel destroyed Tokio and the remainder of Japan and the outside world are shut off. Tokio, and the other cities on the central eastern neck on the island of Dondo are isolated in their desolation, the cities of Tokio and Yokohama were described by the superintendent of the Japanese Govt. wireless station at Tomioka, which operates via radio corporation "Like Hell," buildings were falling, fire was spreading everywhere dead and dying were on all sides, there were explosions and cries of horror and fear by the panic stricken population, what quake and fire did not destroy on land, tidal waves are reported to have crushed or sunk at sea, the fate of ships in Yokonhama harbor and what ships were there still remains to be determined.

Central Japan Laid Waste

SATURDAY'S EARTHQUAKE CAUSES APPALLING LOSS OF LIFE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 2—Death and destruction was carried to thousands of people and much of Central Japan laid waste Saturday by an earthquake and tidal wave. Tokio and Yokohama being the largest cities to suffer. It is estimated one hundred thousand dead is believed to be conservative. Meagre details available owing to conflagration that followed earth shock and tidal wave practically isolated that section of the islands affected. Scattered reports described the streets filled with dead and of whole communities wiped out or buried under water. In some localities despatches say is is easier to find living than dead. Many large buildings in Mikio devoured in flames and same in Yokohama is believed to have suffered greatly, although not yet known what ships were there.

An Englishman was showing a friend the portraits on the walls of his ancestral home. "This is my grandfather—lost an arm at Waterloo; next to him is Sir Geoffery, who lost an eye at the Peninsula; then Sir Roderick—he lost a leg on the Spanish Main——"

"What an unlucky family yours is, old man," put in his friend—"you lost a couple of golf balls yesterday.—Boston Transcript.

CORFU ISLAND BOMBARDED BY ITALIAN FLEET

ATHENS, Sept. 1.—The police station and school on the island of Corfu were bombarded by the Italian fleet yesterday and a contingent of occupying troops and landed. Several refugees in the station are reported to have been killed by gun fire. A despatch from Corfu last evening said fifteen Greek civilians were killed and many wounded by the-- bombardment. The war vessels fired upon the old fort and it was in this building many of the casualties occurred. News of the occupation caused great consternation in Athens and when special editions of the newspapers were read there was indignation on the part of the population. It is reported here that the Italians bombarded Corfu forts which in accordance with the Florence convention had been denuded of guns and despite the fact that Italy has been informed that the fortifications were inhabited by refugees. Premier Gonatas declared "We have referred the matter to the League of Nations and shall await its decision, with which we shall comply. No reply will be given to the second Italian Note."

German Steamer Wrecked

YMIDEN, Sept. 1—The German steamship Klupfel was wrecked in a storm Thursday night north of Borkum Island off the German coast, and her crew of forty drowned. The Captain of the ship was the sole survivor picked up by a Dutch trawler.

A United Italy

ROME, Sept. 2—Musolini is being showered with messages of approbation for his stand in Greek controversy and for the first time in years all newspapers are as one in upholding independent action of Italy in the ultimatum to Greece.

Steamer Refloated

Roxburgh Towed Off Rocks by Clyde And is Coming Here for Repairs To-day

The s.s. Roxburg, which went went ashore near Black Island Friday afternoon, while on a voyage to Cardiff, laden with pit-props, was refloated on Saturday night at 10.30 o'clock.

The s.s. Clyde was diverted from her route to go to the aid of the stranded steamer and succeeded in pulling her off the rocks. The forward deck-load was discharged before the steamer was refloated. In a message to the local agents, Messrs Furness Withy Co., received yesterday,Captain Jenkins reports that the Roxburg has fourteen feet of water in No. 1 tank, so that apparently the ship is badly damaged. She will come on here for repairs, and is due this afternoon. In all probability the Roxburg will have to go on dock, in which case her cargo of pit-props will have to be discharged. She is a ship of about 4000 tons register.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVI.

The tale continued, with eager queries from the interested listener—questions which merely stimulated flights of fancy, to the unfolding of adventures more and more thrilling and unbelievable until, at last, the recital began to take on the character of an Arabian Night's tale that threatened to involve the entire animal kingdom, and only ceased when with a wealth of mournful detail, Donald described the death and funeral of the gallant young Johnny Rabbit, his fatherless audience suddenly burst into tears and howled lugubriously; whereupon Donald was hard put to bring Johnny Rabbit back to life mysteriously but satisfactorily, and send him scampering home to the hollow hemlock tree, there to dwell happily ever after.

His tale completed, Donald happened to glance toward Nan. She was regarding him with shining eyes.

Donald," she declared, "it's a tremendous pity you haven't a boy of your own. You're just naturally intended for fatherhood."

He grinned.

"My father has been hinting very broadly that a grandson would be the very last thing on earth to make him angry. He desires to see the name and the breed and the business in a fair way of perpetuation before he passes on."

"That is the way of all flesh, Donald."

"I wish it were not his way. My inability to comply with his desires isn't going to render dad or me any happier."

"Dear old boy, what a frightful predicament you're in!" she murmured sympathetically. "I wish I could beq uite certain you aren't really in love with me, Donald."

"Life would be rosier for all concerned if I were quite certain I was mistaking an old and exalted friendship for true, tender love. But I'm not. You're the one woman in the world for me, and if I cannot have you, I'll have none other—Hello! Weeping has made this young fellow heavy-lidded, or else my fiction has bored him, for he's nodding.

"It's time for his afternoon nap, Donald." She removed the sleepy tot from his arms and carried him away to his crib. When she returned, she resumed her task of preparing dinner.

"Nan," Donald queried suddenly, "have I the right to ask you the name of the man who fathered that child?"

"Yes," she answered soberly, "you have. I wish, however, that you would not ask me. I should have to decline to answer you."

"Well, then, I'll not ask. Nevertheless, it would interest me mightily to know why you protect him."

"I am not at all desirous of protecting him, Donald. I am merely striving to protect his legal wife. His marriage to me was bigamous: he undertook the task of leading a dual life, and, when I discovered it I left him."

"But you are certain he married you?"

"We went through a marriage ceremony, which, at the time, I regarded as quite genuine. Of course, since it wasn't legal, it leaves me in the status of an unmarried woman."

"So I understand from your father. Where did this ceremony take place?"

"In San Francisco." She came over and sat down beside him, and took one of his hard, big hands in both of hers. "I'm going to tell you as much as I dare," she informed him soberly. "You have the right to know, and you're too nice to ask questions. So I'll not leave you to the agonies of doubt and curiosity. You see, honey dear, father Brent wanted me to have vocal and piano lessons, and to go to Seattle once a week, and the railroad fare, in addition to the cost of lessons, was prohibitive, until your father was good enough to secure me a position in the railroad agent's office in Port Agnew. Of course, after I became an employee of the railroad company, I could travel on a pass, so I used to go up to Seattle every Saturday, leaving here on the morning train. Your father arranged matters in some way so that I worked but five days a week."

"Naturally. "Dad's a pretty heavy shipper over the line."

"I would receive my lessons late Saturday afternoons, stay overnight with a friend of mine, and return to Port Agnew on Sunday. He used to board the train at—well, the name of the station doesn't matter—every Saturday, and one day we got acquainted, quite by accident as it were. Our train ran through an open switch and collided with the rear end of a freight; there was considerable excitement, and everybody spoke to everybody else, and after that it didn't appear that we were strangers. The next Saturday, when he boarded the train, he sat down in the same seat with me and asked per mission to introduce himself. He was very nice, and his manners were beautiful; he didn't act like a man who desired to make a 'mash.' Finally, one day he asked me to have dinner with him in Seattle, and I accepted. I think that was because I'd never been in a fashionable restaurant in my life. After dinner, he escorted me to the studio, and on Sunday morning we took the same train home again. He was such good company and such a jolly fellow—so thoughtful and deferential! Can't you realize, Donald, how he must have apepaled to a little country goose like me?"

"Well, finally, dear daddy Brent learned that Signor Moretti, a tenor who had retired from grand opera, had opened a studio in San Francisco. We both wanted Moretti to pass on my voice, but we couldn't afford the expense of a journey to San Francisco for two, so daddy sent me alone. I wrote—that man about our plans, and told him the name of the steamer I was sailing on. Your father gave me a passage on one of his steamschooners, and when we got to the dock in San Francisco——"

"He was there, eh?" Came down by train and beat the steamer in." Donald nodded his comprehension. "What did Morctti say about your voice?"

"The usual thing. My Seattle teacher had almost ruined my voice, he declared, but for all that, he was very enthusiastic and promised me a career within five years if I would place myself unreservedly in his hands. Of course, we couldn't afford such an expensive career, and the realization that I had to forego even the special inducements Signor Moretti was generous enough to make me quite broke my heart. When I told him about it—we were engaged at that time—he suggested that we get married immediately, in order that I might reside with him in San Francisco and study under Moretti. So we motored out to the country one day and were married at San Jose. He asked me to keep the marriage secret on account of some clause in his father's will, but I insisted on my right to tell daddy Brent. Poor dear! My marriage was such a shock to him; but he agreed with me that it was all for the best——"

"Well, I was quite happy for three months. My husband's business interests necessitated frequent trips North——"

"What business was he in, Nan?"

"That is immaterial," she evaded him. "Presently, Signor Moretti contracted a severe cold and closed his studio for a month. My husband—I suppose I must call him that to identify him when I refer to him—had just gone North on one of his frequent trips, and since he always kept me generously supplied with money, I decided suddenly to take advantage of Moretti's absence to run up to Port Agnew and visit my father.

"In Seattle, as I alighted from the train, I saw my husband in the station with another woman. I recognized her. She was a friend of mine—a very dear friend of several years standing—the only woman friend I had in the world. I loved her dearly; you will understand when I tell you that she had frequently gone out of her way to be kind to me. It struck me as strange that he had never admitted knowing her, although frequently he had heard me speak of her. While I stood pondering the situation, he took her in his arms and kissed her good-by and boarded the train out of the station without seeing me. I slipped out of the station without having been seen by either of them; but while I was waiting for a taxicab, my friend came out of the station, saw me, and rushed up to greet me. It developed, in the course of our conversation following the usual commonplaces of greeting, that she had been down to the station to see her husband off on the train for San Francisco."

Donald whistled softly.

"How did you manage to get away with it, Nan?" he demanded incredulously.

"All my life I had been used to doing without things," she replied simply. "I suppose that helped a little. The shock was not so abrupt that I lost my presence of mind; you see, I had a few minutes to adjust myself after seeing him kiss her in the station—and just then the taxicab came up and I escaped. Then I came home to the Sawdust Pile. I wrote him, of course, and sent the letter by registered mail, in order to make sure he would receive it. He did, but he did not answer. There was no reason why he should, for he was quite safe. I had assured him there was no necessity for worry on my account."

HOW TO SLEEP ON A BARE FLOOR

IT is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep sitting up, standing up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the softest of downy beds; and all of us suffer occasionally from nerve-racking, wearing, tiring wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it is a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested bowels, or biliousness.

Then, just before retiring, take Beecham's Pills. They soothe an uneasy stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to natural activity, and assure restful sleep no matter what!

COMPETITORS PLEASE NOTE.

Owing to the large number of entries in the above events, it has been decided to run off preliminary heats at St. George's Field (through the courtesy of the Football League) to-morrow evening. All competitors listed in the above 10 events will have to report at the dressing room to Mr. McKenzie at 6.30. The heats will start promptly at 7 o'clock, and anyone not on the line when the event is called will be scratched and will not be permitted to compete in the Championship on Wednesday afternoon. This is the only notice that can be given and competitors will please govern themselves accordingly. We are also asked to call attention to the following rule which will be strictly enforced:—

"All contestants in every event "must be suitably attired in athletic "dress; otherwise they shall not be "permitted to compete."

This applies to the weight as well as to the track events and no deviation from this regulation will be tolerated by the field committee.

THERE WILL BE NO HEATS IN THE FOLLOWING EVENTS.

There will be no preliminaries in the following long distance events:—

VICE REGAL PATRONAGE.

The President announced that His Excellency the Governor had very graciously given his patronage to the Meet, and will in all likelihood be present. Mr. C. J. Ellis will be in charge of the Road Race, and the course is being verified again this afternoon by Mr. W. Noel, First Surveyor of the Agriculture and Mines Department, with Mr. J. M. Tobin and Mr. Ralph Herder of the A. A. A. Mr. Bob Stick will be in control of the pilot car on the road, and the kindly co-operation of the members of the Motor Association is requested to give the runners the right of way on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. J. P. Moakler will act as official recorder for the A.A.A.

REPRESENTATIVES AT HALIFAX.

Whether or not Newfoundland will be represented in the Canadian Championships at Halifax on the 15th inst., will depend to a great extent on just what support the public give the A. A. A. Meet on Wednesday In this connection the authorities have permitted the use of "wheels" for the purpose of acquiring additional funds, and they wil be in the very capable hands of Messrs Peter O'Mara and Claude Hall and their aides. The Mount Cashel Band will be in attendance at the Sports, and with the quality and quantity of athletes entered all that is needed is a fine day to make them the most successful ever held in Newfoundland. The entry of the Bell Island athletes shows the awakened interest in good clean manly sport, and it is hoped to be the forerunner of the not far distant future when representatives from all centres in the Island will journey each September to St. John's to compete in the Championships of Newfoundland.,

Time

Time was is past; thou can'st not it recall;
Time is thou hast; employ the portion small;
Time future is not, and may never be.
Time present is the only time for thee.
If thou hast yesterday thy duty done,
And thereby cleared firm footing for today,
Whatever clouds may dark tomorrow's sun,
Thou shalt not miss thy solitary way.

On Living

We live in deeds, not years—in thoughts, not breaths—
In feelings, not in figures on a dial;
We should count time by heart-throbs, he most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest acts the best.

OTTAWA, Sept. 1—The official announcement was made to-night that a Royal Commission will be appointed to investigate the recent industrial trouble at Sydney, C. B.

The personnel will not be announced for some time.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 1—While the leaders of the anthracite operators and organized workers were parleying at the state capitol to-day in an endeavour to reach an agreement on the new wage contract to replace one that expires to-night, the army of men and boys in the hard-coal fields gathered up their tools and supplies and quit.

The colliers are not to return to work until an understanding shall have been reached.

A meeting between the miners' officials and operators will be held to-morrow morning in order to consider discussion of the Pinchot scheme for settlement.

ST. JOHN, Sept. 1—Mrs. Bessie Parker, arrested some time ago on a charge of murder in connection with the death of a girl upon whom she was thought to have performed an ilegal operation, and was given her liberty when the jury disagreed, was again arrested this afternoon, on a charge of having performed an illegal operation.

Bell Island Employment

The action of the Besco operators at Bell Island in paying off 400 men on Saturday is very regrettable, not only in respect to those actually paid off, but it indicates the present attitude of the Company in relation to their operations in this country.

It is learnt that out of the 400 men now out of work, 200 will be taken on again during the week as operations on No. 2 slope have only closed in order to make a shipment of 7,000 tons of low-grade ore for Philadelphia, which is at No. 3 slope. These 200 men will be for the most part residents of the Island. The permanent closing by the Company of No. 4 slope will compel 200 men to go to their homes in Conception Bay and throughout the country. That is a serious matter for these men, and it will react on the men who are now trying to get employment, under most difficult circumstances.

The importance of continued operations, on the full scale, at Bell Island cannot be underestimated. It is one of our greatest industrial operations and the country would look upon the curtailment of Grand Falls or Humber activities with no greater anxiety than curtailment of Bell Island activities.

The situation in the Ruhr has affected German orders for ore, and it has been declared that only 170,000 tons of ore remain to be shipped to fill all present orders. From the business viewpoint, that must be considered; yet it is hoped that the Company will do its best possible to continue operations on the same scale as heretofore.

The treatment that has been accorded them has been generous, and in many ways have the Government showed their desire to encourage them in their undertakings.

Now is the time to deal with the vital matters of employment on Bell Island, and, we feel the Government will do all possible to prevent any sudden closure of operations that would be very serious under present circumstances.

A Record French Shore Fishery

The French Shore fishery news reported by Capt. Field of the S. S. Portia will be gladly received. The fishery on that section of the Coast has for some weeks past been good and the fishery will be a record one for the French shore. Combined with this welcome news, the fishery on the other side of St. Barbe district has been good in some sections, so it appears that our northernmost district will fare fairly fortunately this year; particularly when, in White Bay, the Crowe and Mooney operations are started.

With a fair Labrador fishery, and the good chances of further improving it, the outlook for schooner-men is not so bad as was first expected.

The shore fishery is the most unfortunate feature, and this particularly applies to Bonavista and Trinity Bays.

From correspondence published in the Advocate a few days ago it was stated that the northern shore fishery was only 25 per cent. of last year's catch to date.

When it is considered that the fishery in many places was a blank last year, we get an opinion of what this year's shore failure will mean to many people. That is why we should be the more thankful for the tidings from the French Shore and Labrador.

The Need of the Hour

On last Saturday, the Telegram commented upon the fact of so many of our people seeking employment abroad and opined that some effort be made to stop the immigration.

We are in accord with the Telegram's views and agree regarding the methods, expressed very generally however, which, in the opinion of our contemporary would remedy the circumstances.

Getting down to rock-bottom on the subject, the fact is our people want to live. If they cannot live within the country, they are obliged to try their luck outside. What is needed then are more industries, employment and more employment, work and wages, and protection fo the industies we have.

The Government's industrial policy must not stop in the Humber. Nor is political co-operation sufficient in itself. There must be a more agreeable and co-operative spirit among men who lead in our business life. There are too much selfishness, and too much senseless competition and not enough of high regard for the general and ultimate welfare of the common man.

We have a country, waiting only for such development that would require men from other lands after employing all our own workmen.

It is essential only that all get down to real earnest business.

WAR OR PEACE

The Japanese catastrophe now overshadows the crisis existing between Italy and Greece; but the recent despatches indicate that the situation is no less serious.

The outstanding features of the recent developments are the statement of Premier Gonatas of Greece, and Mussolini's attitude towards any action by the League of Nations.

"We have," says the Greek Premier, "referred the matter to the League of Nations and shall await its decision, with which we shall comply. No reply will be given to the second Italian note."

The second Italian note was the five-hour ultimatum to Greece.

The Greeks have thus put themselves in the hands of the League "with whose decision they will comply."

If Mussolini, backed, as the despatches indicate, by popular feeling throughout Italy, has persisted in his attitude towards interference, the situation may now be beyond control.

If that is not so, the chances of peace of war will probably rest upon whether the League's decision will agree or disagree with the Italian demands.

Notes From Hillview

On Thursday, Aug. 9th, a fine morning, the fog clearing away and the sun shining brightly, it looked the promising part of a beautiful day. The people of Hillview and the little near-by settlements after the sun had made all things dry, gathered themselves together to a little place called Churchill's Cove for a day's outing for the children and the older folks as well, and it was indeed a day much enjoyed by all. We had with us Miss E. White from St. John's and Miss M. Abbott from Bonavista and Miss R. Pelley and her brother from Shoal Hr.

Rev. E. Roberts and Miss M. Avery did all that possibly could be done to make the day one of success for the people of Hillview, and all went well.

All the people felt sorry that a couple of parties lost their way and could not spend all day with us.

In closing, we must not forget to thank Mr. W. J. Churchill, our old Sunday School Superintendent for the way in which he encouraged the children at the races and foh his help in distributing candy and fruit amongst them.

Tell Investor How Paper Mills Can Be Valuated

Three Methodts That Are In Vogue at Present Time.

MONTREAL.—Obviously a paper mill is one of the most difficult things to value. Location is all important, for the mill must be close to its timber limits which provide its raw material and it must also have ample power supply. A perfectly-built and equipped mill that is located in the wrong place will hardly be worth its value in bricks and scrapped machinery. But the well-built mill is off to an excellent start.

There are three methods of arriving at the fair value of a plant and property of a newsprint mill. One method is to take the earning power of the company and capitalize this on the basis of ten per cent. If a mill has an output of 100,000 tons per annum and it has a profit of $25 per ton ordinarily it would be considered on this basis to have a value of ten time $2,500,000 or $25,000,000.

Another basis of valuation is to take a certain figure per ton of daily production. The basis of valuation usually allowed for mills producing newsprint is $40,000 per ton of daily capacity. The Federal Trade Commission at Washington in 1917 allowed $50,000 per ton of dail capacity. However, to be conservative, a figure of around $35,000 per ton might be taken by the average Canadian mill To this would be added the value of the timber limits, figuring the number of cords available of about 80 cents per ton. Some mills also have railroads and woods equipment and other properties of value which would have to be added.

The Replacement Basis

The third basis of valuation is to take the actual replacement value of the mill—what this would cost to create a duplicate of it supposing the first one was completely destroyed in some manner. Of course, allowance has to be made for the cost of organization and of bringing operation to a fixed standard, together with the loss of interest in profits for the year or two that would be required for construcion. This is not always a fair basis of valuation and for the purposes of e timating the value of bonds the mill's earning capacity may be a more important factor than the valuation of the reproduction basis only.

The value of timber lands owned by a mill depends primarily on the amount of wood which is standing on the area in question. The available wood can readily be ascertained as a result of a careful cruise or investigation, and is usually expressed in the number of cords per acre, which may run from two to twenty cords per acre, the average being six to seven cords, or roughly 4,500 cords per square mile. Land at a very high average of pulpwood to the acre is naturally worth more than land with a low average. The valuations range from $5 to $15 per acre for freehold lands, or from $1,000 to $2,500 per square mile for leasehold lands. There are other factors for determining the value of timber lands such as, for instance, nature of the wood, that is in suitability for different uses; the accessibility of the wood or the ease with which it can be cut and delivered to the point of manufacture. It is obvious that land closely located to a pulp or lumber mill is worth more than land many miles away, and timber areas well provided with streams in which the wood can be floated down are worth more than areas in which there are no drivable streams.

The s.s. Roxburgh which went ashore at Grogo Island, Notre Dame Bay, at 8.30 p.m. Saturday, was refloated with the assistance of the s.s. Clyde at 8 a.m. yesterday. A message to the Marine & Fisheries Dept. states the ship is proceeding to St. John's.

Laden With Wood

The schooner June R. hauled into Brownings wharf this morning to discharge her load of billets and wood brought from Random, Trinity Bay.

Fish Scarce

In conversation with some fishermen this morning in Bowring's Cove, they informed us that fish is scarce on the local grounds.

The schooner Annie M. Parker cleared from Bay Roberts on Saturday for Sydney in ballast.

A RUFFIAN IN THE TOILS

A character who has been staying at the Seamen's Institute, was arrested this morning by Constable Dawe, and he will have to face a very serious criminal charge. He gives the name of James C. Davenport, and hails from the U.S.A. He sported a black whisker and usually wore a pair of kid gloves as he paraded Water Street for several weeks past.

The actions of the man led people to believe that he was looney, and the clerks at the institute remarked his strange actions. He was considered harmless until yesterday afternoon, when he is alleged to have committed the gross act of indecency for which he was picked up this a.m. on water Street.

Mr. Bert Ross reported the matter to the police last evening, but on visiting the place with three little boys who were prepared to identify him, the police failed to locate their man in the neighborhood.

From the description received Davenport was easily recognized as the Culprit. Over night he shaved off his whisker and appeared in court clean-shaven. He also visited the bank and drew out a considerable sum of money this a.m., which he had on his person when arrested. The police say he was about to skip the town.

When remanded for eight days, he asked the Judge what it would cost to get out for that period, and the Judge replied, $1000. The accused shook his head and indicated he had no chance of getting bail.

Degenerates of this character are happily very rare in this country.

Thy Summons

So live, that when thy summons comes to join
The innumerable caravan which moves
To that mysterious realm where each shall take
His chamber in the silent halls of death,
Thou go not like the quarry-slave at night,
Scourged to his dungeon; but sustained and soothed.
By an unfaltering trust, approach thy grave
Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him, and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Wm. Cullen Bryant.

The Day

Let thy day be to thy night
A letter of good tidings. Let thy praise
Go up as birds go up, that when they wake
Shake off the dew and soar. So take joy home,
And make a place in thy great heart for her
And give her time to grow, and cherish her.
Then will she come, and oft will sing to thee
When thou art working in the furrows; ay,
Or weeding in the sacred hour of dawn.
Ie is a comely fashion to be glad.—
Joy is the grace we say to God.

Nfld. Schooners For Coal

According to The N. S. Herald the following coastal schooners are in to load cargoes of coal at Scotia pier: Millie Francis, 42, Capt. Evans, from Grand Bank; Retraction, 148, Sinclair, from Indian Tickle; Abagil H., Capt. Harvey, from Channel; Florence, Capt. Keeping, from Channel; Lily M. Kay, Capt. Keeping, from Burnt Islands; A. B. Francis, Capt. Harris, from Halifax; Ralph and Blanche, 26 tons, Capt. Thorne, and Thomas J. Conway, Capt. Cox, both from Rose Blanche; Saladin, 89, Capt. Tuck, from Carbonear; L. M. Smith, 62, Capt. Rose, from Burgeo; Commodore, 54, Capt. King from Lamaline; Lily Francis, 42, Capt. Evans.

Personal

Miss Mary Grace, daughter of the late J. P. Grace of the Municipal Council, and sister of Mr. Patrick Grace of Harvey & Co., arrived a few days ago on a visit to her mother.

Amongst the passengers on the Rosalind from New York this trip was Lieut. Conway, a retired member of the New York police force. Conway played a prominent part in the New York police scandals which shocked two continents some years ago. He arrested Lewis—one of the Lefty Loie—Gip the Blood ang single handed. He holds several medals for meritorious police duty. Charles Becker, a police captain who was mixed up in the scandals, was afterwards tried and convicted of murder. During the triangle building fire in New York Conway saved eight girls, but was so injured that he had to be retired from active service with the rank of lieutenant.

The Experiment Of Wheat Pool To Be Valuable

(Financial Post)

OTTAWA. — Government officials are following with keen interest the efforts now being made in the West to organize voluntary organizations for the co-operative marketing of the wheat crop. They are especially interested in conjectures as to how the experiment will probably work out. Thee is no antagonism to the proposals, but there is skepticism over their probable success.

As the co-operative marketing of the wheat crop was bound to be tried in some form or another, government officials are glad that the farmers are trying the experiment themselves. It is considered for them a valuable step in the process of economic self-education. A number of them have imagined that about all that had to be done was to have set up by law certain crop-selling machinery, compel producers to sell through it, and the rest, with an assured good price, would be easy. The view here is that the thing is not as easy as it looks.

A Profitable Experiment

Expert opinion does not assume the attitude that the thing cannot be done, for it is well known that some producers have made a signal success of co-operative marketing, notably in the selling of fruit. But it is pointed out that wheat being grown all over the world, and being easily stored and transported, it is far harder to control its sale, and the price paid for it, than it is to control the sale and price of any other product that the farmer produces. For this reason the experts are quite content that the farmers themselves should try the experiment.

Among the factors operating against the success of the experiment just now is the fact that it will have to be tried out on a falling marke. The great success scored by the Wheat Board was due to the circumstance that it operated on a rising market at a time when there was a relative scarcity of wheat, and when those who operated the board exercised almost absolute powers. Naturally the board got all the credit for the showing made under these favorable conditions, whether it was responsible for the results or not. Likewise those who have charge of the co-operative eperiment will be held responsible for the results, whatever they may be.

It is thought that considerable trouble will be experienced in inducing the Western farmers to stick by the experiment if it does not within the first year produce the results expected of it. Once he gets behind a thing, the Western grain grower is very vigorous, but he does not always stay with it in the manner desired.

The government has all along been skeptical of the desirability of a compulsory wheat board, and now that the Western farmers are trying out a voluntary one, this, in a sense, is considered a fortunate deliverance from what at one time seemed to be an awkward situation.

Government Boats

The Argyle arrived at Argentia at 6 p.m. yesterday.

The Clyde arrived at Lewisporte at 6.50 a.m. to-day on the Green Bay Route.

The Glencoe left Argentia at 9.30 a.m. Saturday.

The Home has not been reported since leaving Humbermouth.

The Sagona left Grady at 5.30 p.m. Saturday, going west.

The Malakoff arrived at Port Union at 10.30 a.m. yesterday.

Busy at The Institute

The genial manager of King George the Fifth Institute has been kept busy the past few days. There are now at the Institute, 49 fishermen of the Portuguse ship which foundered on the Grand Banks last week.

LOCAL ITEMS

The s.s. Silvia arrived at Halifax at 7 this morning and the s.s. Rosalind at 9 o'clock.

The Portia is ready for docking, but gave place to-day to the Portuguse Cruiser. The repairs to the Portia will take two or three weeks.

Around Bay Roberts the past week, a little fish was secured on hook and line and trawls. There is an ample supply of squid for bait.

Mr. S. J. Bishop, Sub-Collecter at Port Union, is now in town and will leave for the Fishermen's Town by to-morrow's express.

The S.S. Wren was at Belleoram on Saturday after connecting with the Glencoe this trip and making the round of Fortune Bay. The Wren comes here for overhauling and minor repairs.

The schooner Phillis L. Westerhaver which left Sydney on Aug. 18th, arrived at Twillingate on Saturday from Sydney, coal laden. This vessel was making a long passage and some anxiety was felt for her safety. The Capt and crew are o.k.

A Norwegian steamer, the Hernicklund, Steffensen master, arrived at La Scie yesterday in ballast from Barry, England, to load pit props.

FROZEN NORTH IS NOT LAND OF TERROR BUT OF GRASS AND PRAIRIE

Great Possibilities of Arctic Regions Explained by Stefansson — Explorer is Silent on Wrangel Island Question — Good Flying.

LONDON, August — (Montreal Star Correspondent)—Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the Canadian Arctic explorer, has been in London since May. He was asked to come here by the Canadian Government to urge the British Government to claim Wrangel Island in the Arctic Ocean for the Empire. I called upon the explorer to interview him on his mission. He has shown his flair for discovery in London by finding lodgings in the Middle Temple. Mr. Stefansson told me that when he first came to London, he found, that it took rather a long time to get any definite answer from the British Cabinet about Wrangel Island. There was much time spent waiting for Ministers to make appointments and for the Cabinet to come to decisions, and Stefansson decided to employ the time in writing a new book.

About Wrangel Island there is much to say which cannot be said, for the Cabinet has requested secrecy The secrecy is as to whether, when and how the British Government will officially assert the claim to the island which, as Stefansson says, belongs to the Empire by right of discovery and present occupation.

If the British Government is dilatory in its dealings Mr. Stefansson has the satisfaction of knowing that the King takes a keen personal interest in the potentialities of the Polar regions. The explorer recently had a long interview with His Majesty at Buckingham Palace. On the morning that I was in Mr. Stefansson's rooms a telephone message came from John Middleton, G.C.B., Governor of the Falkland Islands who, acting on a suggestion made to him by His Majesty had asked Stefansson to give him an interview to discuss the introduction of the musk ox into the Falkland Islands. Following quickly on the telephone message came the Governor himself just as my own interview with Mr. Stefansson was ending. The explorer took the opportunity of showing us both a bale of cloth woven from the wool of the musk ox. It is as smooth as silk and as warm as fur. I understand that the King is having a suit of clothes made from musk ox cloth.

GLORIOUS CLIMATE

For the better part of two hours Mr. Stefansson talked to me about the Great North, about its glorious climate, its green prairies and flowery meadows, its wealth of animal life which makes it destined to be the great meat producing region of the world. All this about the lands around the Pole, the part of the earth's surface which our school books taught us to believe was simply one vast, silent frozen desert.

Mr. Stefansson is himself one of the great line of Arctic explorers, but he absolutely hates praise of Arctic explorers. He calls it hero-worship and he seems to regard hero-worship as a kind of superstition. His particular objection to the hero-worship of Arctic explorers is that it derived from the popular ignorance which imagines the Arctic Circle to be a region of terrors where only heroes would venture. Stefansson is making it his lifework to demolish the myth of the Frozen North. One of his books is entitled "The Friendly Arctic," another is called "The Northward Course of Empire." He keeps on saying that the future development of Canada northward will be as fruitful as was the opening up of the Great West.

Wrangel Island is an object of his special solicitude just now because it is the one island in the Arctic Ocean on the north coast of Siberia to which the British Empire has a claim. Stefansson believes that the Polar Ocean is going to become a great route for commerce by air and submarine, and therefore Wrangel Island would be of strategic importance as a supply depot. "You have been taught to think of the Arctic Ocean as the end of the earth," said Stefansson, "but the truth is that it is the northern Mediterranean. It is the sea joining lands of the greatest importance."

Stefansson does not seem to expect anyone to believe what he says about the North on his mere evidence as one who has been there. He brings forward scientific explanations to show why it is what he has found it to be. Flying conditions, he declares, are better over the Arctic than almost any other part of the world. Hydrogen, which is used for dirigibles, expands when the morning sun's rays strike it after the coolness of night. It is therefore necessary to allow a certain amount of hydrogen to escape each day to keep the balloon from bursting. With less hydrogen in the cool of night it is necessary to throw out ballast to prevent the balloon from descending. But these alternations of day and night are not a factor in the Land of the Midnight Sun, so that there would not be the complications arising from the contracting and expanding hydrogen.

Furthermore, the Polar regions having in summer perpetual daylight there are less chances of serious mishaps in the light than in darkness. If a forced landing is made there will be an even-money chance of descending not on the sea but on a substantial cake of ice which would serve as a raft until S. O. S. signals, giving latitude and longitude, brought help. It is not too cold for flying over the Arctic seas in summer because owing to the length of the days there is more sun at midsummer at the North Pole than at the Equator. In fact, the summer heat the Pole would be unbearable but for the refrigerating effects of the cold "stored" in the Arctic Ocean during the long winter. The Arctic air route from London to Tokio is three thousand miles shorter than any other route. The supplies for these Arctic depots can always be taken by submarines which are easily navigable under ice.

REINDEER RAISING

Stefansson is an advocate of the domestication of the musk ox, which is a kind of cow with wool like that of sheep. Seven hundred miles within the Arctic Circle the Canadian Expedition dwelt in houses made of musk ox hides, using the tallow for candle light, and eating the flesh for food. In all respects it is as good as beef. It is very easy to keep musk oxen in herds for they do not move far or fast. Reindeer is the other source of meat supply which Stefansson believes should be developed. Unlike musk oxen, reindeer have been domesticated for thousands of years, not only by the Eskimoes and the Russians, but by the Chinese and the Scandinavians. In towns like Stockholm reindeer venison is as much a staple of diet as is beef. The Americans have already made a success of reindeer raising in Alaska, and the Hudson's Bay Company has now gone into the business for Northern Canada.

There will be no difficulty about feeding the musk oxen or reindeer. Nothernmost Canada, as Stefansson keeps repeating, is not a wilderness of ice. It is about the greatest grassland in the world. There are thousands of square miles of verdant prairie where animals can forage in winter as well as summer. The winter temperature is about the same as that of Manitoba. The snowfall in Northern Alaska is lighter than that of such a great ranching region as the State of Montana.

Many shrewd commercial men agree with Stefansson's estimate of the Polar North. One of his visitors, when I was with him in his room, and to whom I was introduced, was Mr. Brewer, managing director of the British Wright Company, the aeroplane firm which is interested in polar flying. It has just been announced that Mr. Brewer is treasurer of a relief fund started to finance the rescue party to Wrangel Island, where the young Torontonian, Allan Crawford, and other members of the expedition sent by Stefansson are marooned, (now reported as perished. Stefansson has spent all of his own money, as he told me, on that expedition, and he was anxious to end the isolation of its members. But he hates the use of the terms "relief funds" and rescue," for, to his cind, they encourage the popular delusion that the Polar North is a land of horror. Perhaps Stefansson in his love for "the friendly Arctic" rather under-estimates the loneliness of men who have been on an Arctic island for two years.

The Halcyon Days

London Daily Telegraph: A holiday is a gift of the gods, one of the perfect proofs of our civilization, a time when we are not the slaves of trains and clocks, when we can make sure of a modest chair in the sun and disentangle ourselves from the chains of circumstance, and if we have our eyes well open may even get one of those "glimpses which make us less forlorn." To each his good time; and after all, we usually get the holidays we deserve.

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

Rather startling, I imagine, to most of my readers will be the words used in the sermon recently in New York by the Rev. Dr. Guy E. Shipler, editor of The Churchman. Dr. Shipler, preaching in St. Mark's-in-the-Bouwerie, a Protestant Episcopal Church, on the subject of prayer, declared that prayers embraced "the most hideous misconception of God that has ever been handed down to us."

"Too many of us," said Dr. Shipler, "have been taught to think of ourselves as marienettes worked by strings in the hands of a God who might ultimately crush us. That is a wrong conception.

"We must rid ourselves of this idea of God and replace the false image in our minds with God as he really exists, a Father whose love for his children is unlimited. God is not a strange and far-off being but a real, living force that works among mankind and understands its trials and shortcomings."

Dr. Shipler continued: "God works his miracles every day. It is quite as miraculous for a surgeon with years of training and a divine gift for relieving pain and suffering to effect a cure upon a maimed and twisted body as it would be for me, a clergyman, to lay hands on that same body and make it well."

Eternally on the alert against "niggers" presuming to claim any of the old guarantees of political and social equality given them by the Constitution of the United States, the Ku Klux Klan in North Carolina recently was stirred profoundly by a Negro's barefaced gall in the City of Goldsboro.

Allan Moses and his wife, wealthy Negroes, left that city on a trip to Washington and New York, and, would you believe it, actually purchased sleeper tickets!

Can you blame that lofty-minded body, the Ku Klux Klan, for being enraged at the presumption and lack of a sense of decency on the part of the "niggers". This is the first time in the history of the city that Negroes have "had the nerve," as a citizen expressed it, to buy sleeper tickets there.

The wonder to me is that the Ku Klux Klan, alert as it is in so many ways, allows the "niggers" as many privileges as they do. Think for a moment of the privileges the Negroes enjoy: they breathe the very same air, for instance, as the members of the Ku Klux Klan! I feel sure that that organization has overlooked this fact. Something should be done about it. Surely the divine authority never intended "niggers" to breathe the same air, the very same air, as white men? I suggest that the patriotic Klan devise some means of preventing the "niggers" from continuing to enjoy such previous privileges. Could not the scientists invent some kind of inferior air to be breathed by Negroes? The Klan in each centre could keep quantities of this air on hand, and all Negroes would have to apply for their weekly supply. All colored men, women and children should be compelled to wear a compressed air tank with a tube leading to the nose. Each tank, which would be refilled by the Klan station each week, would have attoched a meter to measure the quantity of air breathed by the wearer, and he would be charged accordingly. I do not patent this idea—the Klan is free to use it. I consider that such a patriotic, lofty, noble organization as the K.K.K. should be encouraged. Don't you?

But, Oh for another Lincoln! Oh, another Toussaint L'Ouverture!

That benevolent, kindly, well-meaning organization, the United States Steel Trust, has introduced the eight-hour day in its great steel mills, after years of fighting for the reform on the part of the unions and various charitable and reformist bodies. Of course, the Trustees action was completely voluntary. It was not on account of thep ressure of public opinion. oh no! Perish the thought Purely out of kindness of its heart the Steel Trust, after many years of being prodded in the back, gave this concession to the workers.

Read this: It was spoken by President Wellborn of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., which has adopted the eight-hour day: "In every department of our steel manufacturing operations, from blast furnaces to the wire mill, our production per man-hour is now greater than under the twelve-hour shift."

The Russian grain crops this year will yield 1,500,000,000 bushels. This is equal to a very big year before the war. Russia will export large quantities of grain this year. When the famine broke out in that country two years ago, everybody blamed it on the Bolshevists and the Soviet Government. They caused the draught—the shortage of rain, you see, and consequently the land dried up and grain would not grow. Now, of course, the Bolshevists have changed their minds and allowed the rain to fall, and naturally, the grain grows. These Bolshevists are horrible people. Why should they have stopped the rain from falling and so causing the crops to fail and consequently bring about the death of millions? Wasn't it brutal and cold-blooded on their part? Isn't there an end to the evil caused by those bloody Bolshevists? Didn't they cause the terrible epidemic of disease in Russia, too? That caused the death of more millions. The crimes that rest on the heads of those Bolshevists is something terrible when you think about it!

Southern Shore Fishery

BAIT IS REPORTED SCARCE

There is a good sign of fish along the southern shore just now, especially at Bay Bulls, where a record voyage is reported this season. Bait is, however, scarce, and is a drawback.

At Cape Broyle on Saturday, twelve Lunenburg bankers were in for squid, while two others were at Caplin Bay. They were unable to get supplies, however, and the fleet left during the afternoon, bound north, presumably for Holyrood or Carbonear.

Masonic Installation

The installation of the officers of Lodge Carbonear, No. 1043, R. S., A. F.,& A.M., took place on Thursday, Aug. 23rd, in the Masonic Hall. After the ceremony a banquet was held and the usual toasts were honored. The following officers were duly installed by District Grand Master Designate, Bro. Tasker Cook, assisted by District Grand Secretary, Bro. H. E. Cowan:

Wor. Master—Bro. L. Ash.
Sr. Warden—Bro. J. H. Penney.

Mr. W. R. Goobie left by yesterday's express on his annual visit to the American and Canadian markets. Mr. Goobie was accompanied by his son, who is going to college.

Rev. Fr. Sheehan, of St. Patrick's left by yesterday's express on a vacation trip to the United States. He will be away for five or six weeks.

The Frank May party, who recently returned from the Stag Bay, Labrador gold prospecting cruise, left for their homes by yesterday's express, goldless, but well pleased with their social visit to Newfoundland.

Mr. J. H. Scammell arrived from Port Union by yesterday's Potia.

Rev. Fr. Hearne of Coachman's Cove, arrived from there by the Portia. He will be absent from his parish about one month, and will spend the greater part of that time at his home in Colliers.

Mr. C. A. Hubley, who was visiting several northern centres, returned by the Portia yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Snelgrove were passengers by the Portia from Catalina.

Misses Miriam Grimes and Pearl Moore, who had been spending a vacation at Port Union, returned by the Portia yesterday.

Mrs. Captain J. Jones of Port Union, was a passenger by the Portia yesterday and is the guest of Mrs. George Grimes.

Mr. R. Joyce, of the Board of Works office, who was on the round trip of the Portia, is again back to his office. Mr. Joyce enjoyed the trip immensely, as the weather was splendid.

Mr. Samuel Tiller who came out of the General Hospital on Saturday, left for Wesleyville, via Port Union, by yesterday's express.

LOCAL ITEMS

LEAGUE FOOTBALL — St. George's Field, this evening, at 7 o'clock sharp, Feildians vs. Saints. Admission 10c. Ladies free. Grandstand 10c. extra. Boys free.

A report which as yet lacks confirmation has been going the rounds of the city the past few days. that the oil wells at Parsons Pond, are about to be acquired by the General Petroleum Co. This is an English concern who have extensive holdings in South American and other contries, and if it is true that the company will take over this property, big development of our oil areas should be looked for in the near future.

Messages received on Saturday state that fish was plentiful at Cape Freels, Newtown and the vicinity. Up to the present the fishery in these sections has been practically a blank.

The special train to Ferryland, which left here yesterday at 11 a.m., took 165 passengers, the majority of whom attended the Garden Party at Feryland. The affair was a splendid success and a handsome sum was realized. The Mt. Cashel Band was in attendance andd iscoursed a splendid programme.

The marriage of Miss Alice Byrne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Byrne, to Mr. P. F. Halley will take place on to-morrow at 3 o'clock in the Oratory of the Sacret Heart, St. Bride's College, Littledale.

The Northern Circuit

The Supreme Court on Circuit leaves at three o'clock this evening. Captain Mark Bragg goes master of the s.s. Watchful. The ship will go direct to Rigolet. Chief Justice Horwood will be the presiding judge.

The following Court officers and lawyers are going north: W. J. Carroll, sheriff, D. F. Kent, clerk, John Cahill, crier, Hugh Garland, stenographer, P. J. Summers Crown prosecutor, C. J. Fox, Fred Emerson, Eric Jerrett.

Five Dogs Victims of Fire

In the fire which consumed the business premises at Springdale, five dogs were victims. The unfortunate animals had been barred into the premises and were tied, to that escape was impossible.

Steamships Fast Replacing Sailers as Fish Carriers

The s.s. Hekla, the first direct boat for the Mediterranean commenced loading at Crosbie's on Saturday. It is understood the ship will complete her cargo at Carbonear and Bonavista, where she takes fish from W. and J. Moores and P. Templeman respectively. It is understood that the Koing Inge and Ingaunn, now discharging coal in this port, and the Kriton under charter to the government railways, will also be loading fish for the Mediteranean at Port Union during the next couple of weeks, and altogether 12 boats will be despatched during the season.

The schr. Latona, owned by S. J. Young & Bros., from Labrador with 650 qtls of fish, and the Claire S., owned by Jas. Diggett from the Straits with 230 quintals, arrived at St. Jacques yesterday.

Extra Ports of Call

During her last trip, the Portia made three extra ports of call, viz.: Grey Islands, Raleigh and Cook's Hr.

Sergt. Ricketts Will Resume Studies

Sergeant Ricketts, V.C., came here by Portia from Seal Cove, his home. He will resume his studies at Bishop Feild College. It is expected that Sergeant Ricketts will take up the study of medicine as a profession.

Injured Portuguese Sailors Have Legs Amputated

Yesterday, at the General Hospital, one of the unfortunate seamen of the Portugese Cruiser Caravalhoe Afango had both legs amputated, and another had one amputated. Both patients are doing as well as can be expected, while their less injured companions are doing nicely.

The ship is leaking badly forward and considerable damage has been caused in the bows. It is understood a survey of the damages will be held to-day. The ship was built in England, and is a ship similar to the Lobelia, and vessels of her class. She is in charge of Commander Mattos Morcera, and carries a crew of one hundred and thirty-five.

Police Court

Judge Morris Presided.

A 52 year old fisherman from Pearce Ave. drunk Saturday night, deposited $2.00 yesterday and was released.

A 38 year old resident of Lime St. drunk, deposited $2.00 and was released.

A Blacksmith from Battery Road D. and D., fined $1.00 or 3 days.

A laborer of James St. was ordered to pay cab hire. He was held on a charge of drunkness since Saturday night.

Two juveniles aged 7 and 8 from Brazil's Field, were up to destroying a fishermans bread box, squid lines, jiggers and so forth. Yesterday after noon they went on board a fishermans motor boat, moored at McLaughins wharf in the West End, and did the mischief. They were too young to punish. Their parents will be summoned and compelled to make good the damage.

A youth for tampering with fire alarm box No. 331, was fined $5.00.

A cabman, drunk while in charge of a horse, was fined $5.00 or 7 days.

He Locked Domestic Out

A resident of Casey Street received a well deserved rebuke from Judge Morris this morning after he had heard the story of a young girl, who appeared before him, on a charge of loitering.

The girl came here some months ago and was taken in by the defendant as a domestic. Last night she was out late and the employer locked her out. She was found sitting on the door step at 3 a.m. by the night watch, who took her to the Police Station for shelter. The Judge gave the defendant to understand that he could not lock his servant out. If he wanted to get rid of her it should be in day time. He was ordered to take the girl back into his house and find her food and shelter until she had found another place.

S. S. Portia Back From Northward

BRINGS GOOD NEWS OF FRENCH SHORE FISHERY

The S. S. Portia Capt. J. Field arrived from the Northward yesterday morning at 8 o'clock, after a good round trip, splendid weather being experienced all through.

The Portia brings excellent fishery news from the French Shore, where for some weeks past the fishermen have all they can handle at St. Juliens Griquet, Conche and Englee, prospects were bright for a good voyage. The fishery at the Grey Islands has also been the best for years. From Whooping Hr. to Cook's Hr. the catch is a record one, and when the Portia was coming South the spurt was still on. Messrs. J. & F. Moore's crews have about 30.000 qtls. landed, while Sam Elliott has 3000 ashore for 12 men. Geo. Field at Cook's Hr. has 1600 for 8 of a crew, while 6 of the Strongs' vessels have loaded along the shore. Herring were plenty at St. Anthony but no one catching them. One of Capt Edward Bishop's schooners which was after being home with 600 from the Straits, was going to the Labrador on her second trip when she was forced to harbour at Griquet owing to bad weather.

In some places along the coast there is a scarcity of salt, but it is understood supplies are being forwarded.

Mr. Richard Taylor of Hr. Grace has 800 for himself and boys. Here her skipper seeing fish plentiful put out his traps and loaded his vessel with 700 qutls., and is now on his way home again.

In Green Bay and Bonavista Bay there is little improvement in the fishery which is the worst for years. At Whooping Hr. Sunday week, a resident of the place named Elisha Castle, who was suffering from an internal malady joined the ship enroute to St. Anthony where he was to undergo treatment at the Grenfell Hospital. He had scarcely go on board when he dropped dead on deck. He was a man of 40 years of age, and it is understood was married. The body was taken on shore where interment took place.

On Wendesday when the Portia was coming South a passenger named Mrs. Clements of the Grey Islands gave birth to twins, (boy and girl). The infants however only lived a few hours The mother was coming to St. John's is doing well, and received every care and attention form the stewardess and the ship's company in general.

The Portia brought a part cargo, and the following passengers.—L. Osmond, R. Tilley, F. Moore, R. Sparkes, Sergt. Ricketts, V.C., Fr. Hearn, Dr. Rosen, Milley (3), Verge, Manuel, Hubley, Gabriel, Gosse, J. Perry, W. Gill Coombs, Scammell, Bailey, Bishop, King, Parsons, Maidment, Mews, Carter, D. A. Ryan, Mesdames Pilgrim, Roberts, Picott, Hayward and Boy, Whitten, Gosse, Farewell, Kean, Winsor, Jones, Clouter and Girl, Snelgrove Courage, Philips, Fitzgerald, Bartlett, Day, Parsons, Mews, Carter Clouston; Misses Sparkes, Northoner, Griffen Boyles, Roberts, Taylor, Peckford, Colton,Simms, Payne, Torraville, Baker, Hyde (2) Penny, Ssott, Green, Harding,Winsor, White, Mercer, Gooding, Penny, Johnston, Moore, Grimes, Bailey (2) Rabbitts, Bluden and 40 second class.

Capt. Field and officers will now transfer to the Prospero which ship resumes the service, sailing on Wednesday at 10 a.m. Freight is now being received at the Coastal premises.

Italy Stands Independent

Britain Likely Take Stong Action In Case of League's Failure.

LONDON, Sept. 4.—Great Britain will go the limit in supporting the Covenant of the League of Nations in the Greeko-Italian dispute, it was stated today in authoritative circles. Lord Robert Cecil at Geneva has been instructed to support the Covenant unreservedly, and British hopes are centred on his ability and experience in League affairs. The British policy is to leave the matter entirely in the hands of the League until that body disposes of it or admits helplessness. Meanwhile all other parties are withholding comment or action. In the event of the failure of the League to function it will then be time to decide on their steps.

Rejects League's Action in Greek Dispute and Will Not Abide by League's Decision

ATHENS, Sept. 4.—The Italian Government, through the Minister here, has served notice on Greece that Italy will refuse whatever decision the League of Nations makes in the present Greek-Italian crisis.

Young Woman Killed By Runaway Ore Car

Miss Hilda Horney of Bell Island The Victim.

Word reached the city last evening that a fatal accident had occurred on Bell Island. Miss Hilda Horney, a domestic, in the employ of the staff house, while crossing the track was struck by a runaway ore car and almost instantly killed.

The accident happened at 7.30 o'clock. Miss Horney left the Staff House to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Horney, who lived but a short distance away. She was crossing the east tramway, and apparently did not see the approaching runaway before it was upon her. She was picked up in an unconscious condition, and was conveyed to Dr. Giovinetti's surgery, where after a brief examination life was pronounced extinct. The unfortunate girl was only 23 years of age, and was a general favorite with her employers and the Staff House. There will be general sympathy for the bereaved family.

This is the second fatality to occur under similar conditions this year, a sailor being killed by a car sometime ago.

PASSENGER LINER CRASHED ASHORE ON MAINE COAST

300 Lives Rescued In Fog and Darkness By Coast Guardsmen.

DIK ISLAND, Maine, Sept. 3—Three hundred people, mostly women and children, were taken down the sides of the passenger steamer City of Rockland during the early hours of this morning, and safely rowed ashore by coast guardsmen, when it was decided that the vessel, which had crashed ashore earlier in the night, was in a dangerous position. The rescue was affected in pitch darkness and through a dense fog.

C.P.R. Building Destroyed

HONG KONG, Sept. 3—Wireless messages received here report that the office building of the Canadian Pacific Steamship Company in Yokohama was destroyed, but the official who sent the report made no mention of the safety of the staff.

NAGANASKI, Japan, Sept. 3—The Nagoya Railway Bureau has been advised that Prince Nabsuketihad died from injuries sustained in the earthquake it is reported also that Viscount Takahashi, former Premier and twenty others of the Government party were killed Saturday while holding a conference. Refugees say that forty foreigners had perished at Hakon.

Japan's Naval Bases and Foreign Embassies Share in General Destruction of Earthquake, Tidal Floods and Flames — Many Foreigners Suffer Death — Airplanes Bring News of Indescribable Scenes of Horror Among Populace, and Report Yokohama a Heap of Blackened Walls, and Desolated.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 4.—Japanese naval base at Kamakura and Yokosuka were entirely destroyed by earthquake, according to despatches received by Japanese Consulate here. Eight of the fifteen districts in Tokio are partially destroyed by fire and the flames are not yet under control. All bridges over rivers traversing Tokio were carried away by tidal flood. A small volcano in the island of Koshisa, thirty miles from Tokio, is still erupting. Other despatches received in England assert that nearly all important buildings in Tokio are burned down or destroyed by the quake. All newspaper offices were wrecked, with the one exception of Nichi Nichi building. The health resort of Kareizawa, at which foreign missionaries usually spend the summer, is reported to have escaped damage. Late wireless messages state that Italian and French Embassies in Tokio were destroyed.

With latest estimates placing fatalities in Tokio alone at one hundred and fifty thousand, the sweeping disaster that has desolated Central Japan, starting with an earthquake and tidal wave Saturday noon and followed by vast conflagrations, assumes more awful dimensions as the news slowly trickles out to world communications, which are still inefficient. Airplanes returning to Osaka report Tokio a mass of ruins, but with the fire subsided from lack of inflammable material. A captain of a steamer reaching Nagasaki from Yokohama says not a building is to be seen from the harbour, only blackened walls and desolation. Thousands met death in indescribable scenes of horror. Prince Masayoshi Matsukata, former Premier and Lord Keeper of Privy Seal, died from injuries sustained in quake.

ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING ADVOCATE

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVI.

" "Of all the crazy, fool things for you to do!" Donald cried sharply. "Why under the canopy did you deem it necessary to sacrifice yourself for him? Surely you did not love him."

I'm afraid I never loved him," she interrupted. "I—I thought I did, although, if he hadn't been away so frequently after our marriage, I would have learned to love him dearly, I think."

"Just human nature," Donald suggested. "Something akin to what trapshoters and golfers call mental hazzard."

"Of course he married me under an assumed name, Donald."

"Did you ever see a marriage certificate?"

"Oh, yes, I had to sign it in the presence of the minister."

Donald was relieved.

"Then, you great goose of a girl, you can clear your record any time you desire. The minister forwarded the marriage certificate to the state capital, and it is registered there with the State Board of Health. After registration, it was returned to the minister whose signature appeared on the certificate as the officiating clergyman. The minister undoubtedly returned the certificate to your husband."

"I never saw it again."

"What if you did not? You can procure a certified copy from the records of the State Board of Health. Marriage records, old dear, are fairly well protected in our day and generation."

"I wrote to the State Board of Health at Sacromento. There is no record of my marriage there."

"That's strange. Why didn't you write the county clerk in the county in which the license was issued?"

She smiled at him. "I did. I had to, you know. My honor was at stake. The license was issued in Santa Clara County."

"Well, it will be simple matter to comb the list of ministers until we find one that tied the knot. A certified copy of the marriage license, with a sworn affadivit by the officiating clergyman——"

"The officiating clergyman is dead. A private detective agency in San Francisco discovered that for us."

"But couldn't you cover your tracks, Nan? Under the circumstances, a lie—any kind of deceit to save your good name—would have been pardonable."

"I couldn't help being smirched. Remember, my father was the only person in Port Agnew who knew I had been married; he heeded my request and kept the secret. Suddenly I returned home with a tale of marriage in anticipation of my ability to prove it. In that I failed. Presently my baby was born. People wondered who my husband was, and where he kept himself; some of the extremely curious ones had the hardihood to come here and question me. Was my husband dead? Of course not. Had I fibbed and told them he was, they would have asked when and where, and the nature of the disease that carried him off. Was I divorced? Again I was confronted with the necessity for telling the truth, because a lie could be proved. Then the minister, to quiet certain rumors that had reached him,—he wanted me to sing in the choir again, and there was an uproar when he suggested it—wrote to the California State Board of Health. When he received a reply to his letter, he visited me to talk it over, but I wasn't confiding in Mr. Tingley that day. He said I might hope for salvation if I confessed my wickedness and besought forgiveness from God. He offered to pray for me and with me. He meant well—poor, silly dear!—but he was so terribly incredulous that presently I told him I didn't blame him a bit and suggested that I be permitted to paddle my own canoe, as it were. Thanked him for calling, but told im he need not call again. He departed in great distress."

"I hold no brief for the Reverend Tingley, Nan; but I'll be shot if your story will hold water in a world that's fairly well acquainted with the frailty of human-kind. Of course I believe you—and, for some fool reason I'm not ashamed of my own intelligence in so believing. I have accepted you on faith. What sets my reason tottering on its throne is the fact that you insist upon protecting this scoundrel."

"I insist upon protecting his wife. I love her. She has been kind to me. She's the only friend of my own sex that I have ever known. She's tubercular, and will not live many years. She has two children—and she adores her scamp of a husband. If I cannot convict that man of bigamy it would be foolish of me to try. And why should I inflict upon her, who has shown me kindness and love, a brimming measure of humiliation and sorrow and disgrace? I can bear my burden a year or two longer, I think; then, when she is gone, I can consider my vindication." She patted his hand to emphasize her unity of purpose. "That's the way I've figured it all out—the whole, crazy-quilt pattern, and if you have a better scheme, and one that isn't founded on human selfishness, I'm here to listen to it."

A long silence fell between them.

"Well, dear heart?" she demanded finally.

"I wasn't thinking of that," he replied slowly. "I was just trying to estimate how much more I love you this minute than I did five minutes ago."

He drew her golden head down on his shoulder and held her to him a long time withouts peaking. It was Nan who broke the spell by saying:

"When the time comes for my vindication, I shall ask you to attend to it for me, dear. You're my man—and I think it's a man's task."

His great fingers opened and closed in a clutching movement. He nodded.

CHAPTER XVII.

WHEN DONALD returned to The Dreamerie about eleven o'clock, he was agreeably surprised to find his father in the living-room.

"Hello, dad!" he greeted The Laird cheerfully. "Glad to see you. When did you get back?"

"Came down on the morning train, Donald."

They were shaking hands now. The Laird motioned him to a chair, and asked abruptly.

"Where have you been all day, son?"

"Well, I represented the clan at church this morning, and, after luncheon here, I went down to visit the Brents at the Sawdust Pile. Stayed for dinner. Old Caleb's in rather bad shape mentally and physically, and I tried to cheer him up. Nan sang for me—quite like old times."

"I saw Nan Brent on the beach the other day. Quite a remarkable woman, Attractive, I should say," the old man answered craftily.

"It's a pity, dad. She's every inch a woman. Hard on a girl with brains and character to find herself in such a sorry tangle."

The Laird's heart was somewhat lightened by the frankness and lack of suspicion with which his son had met his blunt query as to where he had been spending his time. For the space of a minute, he appeared to be devoting his thoughts to a consideration of Donald's last remark; presently he sighed, faced his son, and took the plunge.

"Have you heard anything about a fight down near the Sawdust Pile last night, my son?" he demanded.

His son's eyes opened with interest and astonishment.

"No; I did not, dad. And I was there till nearly ten o'clock."

"Yes; I was aware of that, and of your visit there to-day and this evening. Thank God, you're frank with me! That yellow scoundrel and two Greeks followed you there to do for you. After you roughed the Greek at the railroad station, it occurred to me that you had an enemy and might hold him cheaply; so, just before I boarded the train, I telephoned Daney to tell Dirty Dan to shadow you and guard you. So well did he follow orders that he lies in the company hospital now at the point of death. As near as I can make out, the affair, Dirty Dan inculcated in those bush-whackers the idea that he was the man they were after; he went to meet them and took the fight off your hands."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Port Mann, B. C.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was tired and run-down. I had headaches and no appetite and was troubled for two years with sleeplessness. I tried many medicines, but nothing did me any real good. While I was living in Washington I was recommended by a stranger to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am stronger and feel fine since then and am able to do my housework. I am willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. C. GREAVES, Port Mann, B. C.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

The Quality of Sportsmanship.

(Daily Chronicle.)

To swim the Channel, making progress almost as slow as the pace of a tortoise, and to fly through the air at lightning speed are feats of a quite different order. But in both instances precisely the same qualities of cool pluck and hard tenacity are called for.

The Failure of Modern Education

(Florida Times-Union.)

The most vital problem before humanity today is a true system of education. It is only as we train individuals and peoples to think, to use their minds and all their powers to higher efficiency, that we shall find any adequate solution of the moral, economic, mental, political and industrial problems that confront us. If the educators of the past had not failed in their great task, the world would not be in the condition it is in today, for with the parents and the educators rests the formation of character. Our ideals in education are wrong, our aims and purposes in teaching arew rong.

"Let Us Then Be Up And Doing."

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

This is a business world and ours is a business nation. We think and feel sorrow and suffer; we are willing to sacrifice, but we know we must fight; that the laggard and the lacking in courage and industry must fall by the wayside or be trampled in the mire under multitudinous feet. And it is best that this should be so. Out of the crucible of endless effort arises the genius of progress, the children of happiness, the strong and good men and women of glorious tomorrows, when we perhaps shall have conquered much of the present evil of the world.

Use of African Troops.

(Buluwayo Chronicle.)

The strain entailed upon a nation of forty millions of imposing military coercion upon a neighboring and more prolific people of sixty millions is indicated in the greater use which France is making of African troops if not on the Rhine, at least in building up her military reserves and it is seen also in the repressive measures recorded from the occupied territories. The longer this goes on, the more exacting the task is likely to become, and the greater the risk, especially of the growth within Germany of new types of resistance.

Two Hurt Every Minute.

(Washington Post.)

The figures should drive home to all who use the highways the need for exercise of proper care. With victims of accidents running above 15,000 annually and with the number of injured exceeding 1,700,000, the loss in man power that the nation thus sustains becomes staggering. And to this is to be added the direct loss suffered by the families of those killed and the pain and suffering and loss sustained by the injured. And there is the loss in property that is to be figured in. One killed in automobile accident every 50 minutes, two hurt every minute. That is the present rate. Let motorists and pedestrains think on these figures and realize the terrific cost of carelessness.

The Suez Canal.

(Egyptian Mail.)

The comment was made a year ago in reference to the Suez Canal report for 1921, that, in view of the very satisfactory tonnage figures for the year, and of the improvement in receipts during the first five months of 1922, the outlook for the year that is past was a very favorable one. This has proved to be the case. The tonnage of vessels passing through the Canal last year was 20,743,245 tons, as compared with 18,188,999 tons in 1921 and 17,574,657 tons in 1920. Further, it constitutes a record, being an increase of 468,125 tons as compared with 1912, the best year hitherto. This increase is a notable fact, in view of the state of trade generally, and the depression prevailing in the shipping industry. It appears to indicate an important growth in international business of a very welcome kind, which is a good augury for the future.

THE ROYAL TRUST Co
EXECUTORS AND TRUSTEES

Every member of Smith's family performed on some instrument, which led a neighbour to remark that it must be a source of great pleasure to him. The father made no reply.

"Really," continued the neighbour, "it is remarkable. Your youngest son is a cornetist, both your daughters are pianists and your wife is a violinist. Now what are you?"

"I?" replied the old man. "I am a pessimist."

The traveller entered the wayside inn to lunch, and on looking at the menu was struck by the fact that best steak was mentioned twice, but priced differently. To satisfy himself as to the better article, he made inquiries through the waitress.

"Oh," she said in reply. "You get a sharper knife with the dearer steak!"

A. A. A. Notice

Games will be called at 2.30 p.m. sharp.

Officials and newspaper representatives only allowed inside the enclosure. This rule will be strictly enforced.

The dressing rooms at the eastern end of the Field are reserved for weights events' competitors only. All contestants in racing events must use the large marquee erected at the western end of the enclosure.

A bell will be rung immediately before each event, when competitors must at once proceed to the starting line; otherwise they will be scratched, as no delay can be permitted.

The bell will be rung when the leading man in events over a quarter of a mile enters the last lap.

The silver cup presented by Mr. C. H. Hayward of Grand Falls in 1922 is for the club or asociation securing the greatest number of points, to be scored at follows: First place, 5 points; second place, 3 points; third place, 1 point.

Points obtained in the Junior events are not to count. The cup must be won three years (not necessarily in succession) before becoming the property of any club. It was won last year by St. Bon's.

Contestants are not allowed to compete for more than one association.

Where the amateur status of any entrant is questioned, certificate must be produced.

The junior age limit is defined as under fifteen, and birth certificates must be produced.

All contestants in every event must be suitably attired in athletic dress, otherwise they shall not be allowed to compete.

Road Race Officials—Will all contestants and officials please meet at St. George's Field to-morrow at 2.30 to receive instructions from the Road Captain, Mr. C. J. Ellis.

The Hegla went to Carbonear yesterday where she loads part cargo of shore fish from W. & J. Moores.

Fishery Reports

Cape Harrison and Makovic--Strong S.E., dense fog.

Holton and Smokey—Strong S. W. wind, cloudy; no boats out.

Grady—Strong S. E., cloudy, rain; no boats out.

Domino and Flat Islands—Strong N. wind, cloudy, rain.

Venison Island and Battle Harbor—Gales west wind, rain threatening.

Bay Bulls reports the fishery prospects good, bait supply poor and weather good.

St. Barbe report under date August 25th says: Codfish an average one; much smaller number of men engaged this year than last year. Present prospects good with a plentiful bait supply.

The following vessels have arrived at Fogo from Belle Isle:—Silver Stream, Joseph Butt master, 500 qtls.; Elrae, C. West master, 700 qtls.; Undine, P. Miller master, 600 qtls.

Fogo reports if the weather was good fishermen would do well. Squid bait is fairly quentiful. Good sign of cod if weather permitted fishermen to get on the ground.

Carbonear—Fish very scarce.

Burin—Prospects fair, if bait procurable. No squid, a few herring, but scarce and uncertain.

Prominent Chicago Lawyer Stricken Suddenly

NOW RECOVERING.

Mr. Harry Mecartney, a prominent Chicago lawyer, of the firm of Oliver and Mecartney, Standard Trust Bldg., 105 Monroe Street, Chicago, is slowly convalescening at the Crosbie Hotel, this city, from a serious attack which it was thought at first might prove fatal.

Mr. Mecartney, through mutual friends, became interested n the humanitarian work of Dr. Grenfell in Nfld. and Labrador, and determined this summer to visit the Hospital at St. Anthony and at Indian Hr. Labrador. and also enjoy our salmon fishing for a few days, but the fates were against him Instead of the fruition of this mission of mercy and practical help which had prompted his kindly nature to visit our Colony, with a view toward allevating human suffering, he himself is just now slowly recovering from a serious illness.

Leaving Chicago early in August, Mr. Mecartney reached North Sydney in good time. While waiting for the Sable I. at North Sydney, he met with his first untoward incident. In attempting to alight from a boat at the Sydney Yacht Club landing pier, he accidently fell into the waters of the Harbor. He paid little attention to the wetting, but it may have accelerated the causes which ultimately led to his being stricken down so suddenly.

He was a passenger on the Sable I. when that ship came to grief off St. Pierre, and had to be beached near Lamaline. The delay thus caused made him late for connection with the Labrador boat, and consequently that part of his vacation plan, which included a visit to the Grenfell Enterprizes.

On August 16th, Mr. Mecartney, feeling quite fit, went to Hicks, Salmonier, to have a few days salmon fishing. On Saturday night or early Sunday morning, he awake in great pain and gradually getting worse, decided to get back to St. John's, where the best medical aid was procurable. The sufferer felt it might be a race against death, but he appears to be a man who may meet the grim reaper with a smile. The fifty miles were covered in due course, but the patient knew little of the latter part of the journey, arriving here on Sunday, he was placed in bed at the Crosbie and remained unconscious for three days. In the meantime, Mrs. Mecartney had been notified of her husband's serious illness. She lost no time, but took the first train and got here on the following Saturday. Since then she has nursed her patient so well that he is now making steady progress on the road to complete recovery. A son, Harry, came along also, but satisfied that his father was out of danger, he returned to Chicago by Sunday's express. Mr. and Mrs. Mecartney hope to get away by the Manoa. In a few days he hopes to be well enough to get after those Salmon no, not this season.

Mr. Mecartney says Newfoundland is a fine country and he's going to come back and dvisit us some day.

Dr. Cowperthwaite, Anderson and Grieve, were the Medical attendants and their patient feels that he made no mistake in coming to St. John's for first-class medical aid.

For a Cool Week-end D'jever Try the Movies?

They're Doing It in New York Where Joseph Plunkett Has World's Most Unique Summer Resort

New York City.—An original plan to give a touch of the cool country to those who must stay in the city over hot week-ends is bringing big results and making a rich man of its originator, Joseph Plunkett, director of the Mark Strand Theatre here.

Mr Plunkett has turned his theatre into what is, in effect, a country meadow. Artincial breezes cool the dim recesses of the big auditorium. The smell of fir trees which stand in the lobby fill the air, while overhead ice water runs through hidden pipes with a tinkling sound that suggests an April shower.

From the orchestra pit comes the realistic singing of birds and the humming of bees. The curtain rises on the kind of woodsy scene that the audience has been dreaming about all the hot, humid day.

Boys and girls in cool whites and greens form part of the picture, which is, however, merely a background for the most cooling feature of all, the lilting, airy melody of the summer's favorite fox trot songs, "Swinging Down the Lane" and "Saw Mill River Road."

And while the summer boys and girls sing; the tired audience visions shady lanes and eventide on river roads.

Mr. Plunkett says that during the summer more than half a million persons will get their country week-ends at the Mark Strand Theatre, without the dust, grime and crowds of train trips.

Russian Competition.

Wheat from Russia may be imported into Ireland. It is rumored that negotiations are pending between Russia and the Irish Free State regarding such exportation. Although lacking official confirmation the rumor is accepted as a fact. It is the general belief that Russia is so hard up that she will make desperate efforts to replenish her gold shortage by forcing exportation of all wheat she is able to confiscate from the peasantry. It is the general opinion in London that Canadian exporters would find it wise to investigate the possibilities offered by the Irish market and through that channel prevent a possible upsetting of the wheat market there.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, TUESDAY, SEPT. 4th., 1923.

OUR RESERVE STRENGTH

Makes For Better Outlook

Newfoundland is not in any unique position in respect to unemployment. Though we hear the cry of unemployment daily, though we discuss the need of opening up more industries to assist our people, and though the Government for two or three years have wrested unceasingly with the demon of unemployment, Newfoundland is not alone in the toils. There is reason to believe, difficult as are the circumstances ahead, that we are more fortunate than some countries and are calculated to recover from the post-war period with greater alacrity than even the Mother Country.

With our old time industries booming and new industries opening up, it is a fact that we would have only required the average shore fishery to gain headway on the road to normalcy. Providence has not seen fit thus far to bless our people with a good shore catch, though the French Shore and Labrador fishery which have so materially improved, call for re-assurance and confidence.

The unemployment situation in England grows worse rather than better. British authorities forecast a much more trying winter, in respect to the unemployed, than last winter, and are greatly concerned over a solution of conditions which leave upwards of 2,000,000 workmen out of work.

In this country, we had a reserve of strength in undeveloped assets. The task of the Government was to develop them as quickly as possible by encouraging faith in their development and in the investment of foreign capital. The extra activities of these industries will be expected to provide against the exigencies of the times.

A different situation has arisen in Britain. It was a highly industrial country, and the slump in industry has been as vital to the people as the slump in value of a poor fishery catch and low prices have been to our fishermen.

The situation in the Ruhr, the tangle of European differences, the burden and all the combined results of war, have resulted in "hard times" for the British masses.

And what is the solution?

It must be remembered that England's experience of last year with unemployment was very similar in result to Newfoundland's relief measures. It cost heavily and returns did not justify monies expended.

It is now realised by British authorities that the first system to be abolished is the dole system, which, in principle, only subsidizes unemployment and, in operation, puts a premium on idleness.

The idea of Government relief measures is also condemned for reasons well-known in this country; and the British Govt., driven to it as were our Government, are striving as much as possible to lend its credit or assistance, to pivate and municipal enterprises, to make improvements and extend electrification to railroads, to drain and cultivate lands, to enlarge public-service facilities, etc., etc. In this way is resort made to provide for the workless, but even on a large scale such measures are not expected to cope with the problems resulting from the dislocated condition of British industry, which was, perhaps, more dependent on foreign trade than any other country in the world.

With that source of trade blocked, by post-war results, and with widespread economic disturbances seething throughout Europe, it will not be soon when normal conditions will again adjust matters. British authorities must grapple very adequately with hte present situation, and they state that there must follow a wide-spread industrial adjustment on more internal lines.

It is thus seen that Newfoundland is not alone in the struggle for a future; and is not in the worst condition respecting the outlook.

MODERN FACILITIES

What would some people think if the hand on the clock of Time was suddenly shifted back over a period of say fifty years? It would be a new world, without many of the modern methods of life, business, travel, etc.

And what would some people think if the hand on the clock of Time was put forward to the same extent?. It will be a vastly different world, even though carried to the height of human ingenuity.

Every day brings it improvements. The wires and the wireless daily tell the story of inventions, and newspapers allocate much space to accounts of scientific achievement.

A New York paper has the following to say of the improved facilities on the American liner Leviathan, which ship has attracted much attention lately because of her race recently across the Atlantic with the S. S. Olympic.

A SEAGOING BANK

The branch office of a New York bank aboard the Leviathan has 4,000 customers. This marks another development in the care of a large group of human beings temporarily detached from their moorings. Food, shelter, safety and recreation had received ample attention from the builders and crews of ocean liners, but the broadening uses of a bank follow naturally in the train of the others.

The chief task of the bankers on the Leviathan is to provide vaults for safe-keeping valuables and to cash money certificates in the currency of the country to which the passengers are bound. But the radio is producing considerable draft business; the bank aboard pays money to a passenger on an order received through the air and the passenger validates a radiogram with money designed for one on shore.

Hereafter it will be no excuse to the landlord, as he stands ready to foreclose the mortgage on the old homestead, to tell him that you were in midocean when the payment fell due. "Why did you not," he will ask, "radio the money to me through the oceanic bank?" And then there will be nothing to keep the Sheriff out.

The time may even come when loans will be negotiated at sea, the question of aquatic collateral being determined by admiralty law. Thus, an unfortunate gentleman who has had bad luck in the smoking-room may be able to float a loan in latitude 46, longitude 62 by presenting the bank with a radiographed copy of his holdings in Long Island Potatoes, Inc.

HIGH POINTS OF THE FRENCH REPLY TO THE BRITISH REPARATIONS NOTE

For those who have been watching the British-French discussion on the subject of German reparations, which subject is now overshadowed by the Italian-Greek dispute and the Japanese catastrophe, we print from a Canadian paper the following gist of France's last note to the British Government:

France will not renounce "one centime" of reparations.

France objects to the proposal of a commission of experts to determine Germany's capacity to pay.

France denies the British charge of illegality of occupation of the Ruhr.

France will discuss modification of the Ruhr occupation only when German passive resistance has ceased.

France believes restoration of Germany should not be "too fast nor too easy" resulting in industrial hegemony of the Reich at the expense of France.

France has no annexationist aims and does not desire to remain in the Ruhr longer than necessary.

France asks 26 billion gold marks for herself.

France assumes England does not expect any payments on the French debt until the question of reparations actually is settled.

France is not able even to pay the interest on her debt to England until she has received the payments from Germany to restore her devastated regions.

ROTARIAN KINDNESS

The Rotarians are certainly displaying a high spirit of kindness as well as of public interest in their treatment of the poorer children throughout the city to-day; and it is most regrettable that weather conditions will not admit of full enjoyment of the occasion by the children.

There is something very commendable about allowing these children pleasures which do not often come their way, and which are always welcomed even to those whose parents can afford them.

In the minds of these children, to-day's programme will take a large place, and we feel the Rotary Club should be congratulated for their generous consideration of the needs of the poor.

Gracious acts of this nature make for a better public spirit between all classes.

The Cabot Tower and Visitors

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,

It is customary during summer months for tourists as well as residents of the city, to pay a visit to Cabot Tower; and it would only be proper if this historical building were a presentable place for inspection.

That it is not kept in a pesentable condition is the regrettable verdict of many who have paid a visit to Signal Hill this year. The view is just as beautiful as when I visited the spot six years ago.

The building itself is not all that is desired, and whether the responsibility rests with the keeper and the assistant keeper, who are now in charge, or with a higher authority, matters not so far as the objecttion I have to make goes. The visiting tourist notes the evidences of neglect, and why should not I? Put the place in a presentable condition.

Yours truly,

A Returned Terra Novian.

Notre Dame Memorial Hospital, Twillingate

GOOD PROGRESS BEING MADE

A recent visitor to Twillingate informs us that under contractor Rideout excellent progress is being made with the erection of the Twillingate Memorial Hospital. The building is a 3 storey structure 120 ft. x 50 ft. The understructure, basement, &c., is of concrete. The main building is of concrete blocks manufactured on the spot; the work is so far advanced at present that the roof will be put in place this fall. An adequate supply of water has been provided by damming a series of ponds back of the site upon which the hospital is being erected. The water supply will be sufficient, not only to supply the domestic needs of the institution, but to furnish power for an electric plant for lighting and scientific purposes and, if necessary, additional heating.. Mr. C. A. Hubley of this city has the contract to instal a Durham system of heating. The plumbing is also in the hands of Mr. Hubley whose past record in giving satisfaction warrants us in assuming that this part of the work will be creditably and faithfully performed. The site of the hospital which is on the south side of Twillingate, near Blandford's premises, is a most desirable one. When completed there will be accommodation for 75 patients. We feel sure Twillingate district will be proud of possessing such an hospital, and the people north generally will appreciate the efforts of those who have by perseverance and personal sacrifice made possible such a splendid institution at the Metropolis of the North.

ADVERTISE IN THE 'ADOCATE'

THE CONSTRUCTION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE EXHIBITION

Contractors For Exhibition Gives Interesting Particulars.

Sir Robert McAlpine, head of the firm of Sir Robert McAlpine & Sons, who are the contractors for the British Empire Exhibition to be opened in April, 1924, gave some interesting particulars quite recently on the progress of the work at Wembley Park, London.

"If the British Empire Exhibition does not come to be classed as one of the wonders of the world," said Sir Robert, "it will certainly deserve a place as one of the wonders of the Empire. So it has not been discovered by the general public, but those who have had an opportunity of seeing it even in its present skeleton form are practically without exception tremendously impressed with its size and scope.

"From an architectural point of view it has proved what can be done with steel and concrete has been used to a greater extent and in a greater variety of ways at Wembley than in any other building in the world. Everything that it has been possible to make in concrete has been made in concrete. Even the flag staffs are of concrete.

"The effects achieved have to be seen to be realised. We have made no attempt to make the concrete look like anything but concrete, but not a few of the visitors who come to inspect the progress of the work refuse at first to believe that in certain parts we have not used stone.

"From the employment point of view the Exhibition has an importance of its own. At the present moment we have over 2,500 men at work, and before we finish the job the number may have to be doubled. Three quarters of them are ex-service men. And those are only the men directly employed. Very little imagination is required to realise the enormous numbers to whom the Exhibition gives employment indirectly.

"I am often asked by the doubting Thomases if the Exhibition will be ready in time for next April. On that subject I have no doubt whatever. So far as the builders are concerned the Exhibition will be completed. If that be a record so far as Exhibitions go so much the better.

"The past six weeks have seen an enormous advance, particularly in the overseas sections, and now hadly a day passes without visible progress being made.

"All the buildings with one or two insignificant exceptions are now well under way."

As indicating the size of the Exhibition Sir Robert gave some figures of the amount of material actually used up to the end of last month which are worth reproducing:—

Sand and Ballast, 100,000 tons.
Cement, 16,000 tons.
Ashes, 45,000 tons.
Reinforcing Steel, 2,500 tons.
Constructional Steel, 4,000 tons.
Roofing, 300,000 square feet.
Roof Glazing, 250,000 sq. feet.

In all, excluding the Stadium, which has been completed for some months, something like a quarter of a million cubic yards of earth have been excavated for the foundations of the Exhibition.

"I think the Exhibition has been well named 'the Shop Window of the Empire' as my experience in visiting many parts of the Empire has been that a much greater exchange of commodities would be done if greater knowledge existed to what each Colony is capable of producing.

The Plans of the Amusement Park show a development in catering for the lighter side of the people which will be a delight as well as a surprise to Britishers who have never before had such an opportunity of enjoyment on so large and varied a scale."

Presentation

On Saturday last a pleasing ceremony took place at the firm of Messrs Ayre and Sons, Ltd., when the staff presented their late colleague Mr. Gibb with an illuminated address, a case of pipes and an umbrella.

The address, which appears below, was read on behalf of his fellow-workers by Mr. R. W. Cramm, and is fully expressive of the esteem and regard which Mr. Gibb had gained by his never-failing courtesy and by his marked ability.

Address

To A. G. Gibb, Esq., on the occasion of his severing his connection with Ayre & Sons, Ltd., St. John's, Newfoundland, August 31st, 1923.

Dear Mr. Gibb—We regret that you are leaving us and wish to take this opportunity of assuring you of our good will and high esteem.

Only a few of us were in this employ when you first came here over twenty-one years ago, instituting many new and practical methods in the general management of the store; but we all wish to congratulate you on the courtesy, tact and business experience that you have at all times displayed in your responsible position.

For the prompt and satisfactory attention given to customers, and for the invariable good appearance of the store, great credit is due you.

We ask your acceptance of this case of pipes and umbrella in the hope that the one will bring you much pleasure in your hours of peace, and that the other will assist you in weathering the storms of life.

We wish you God-speed, and will long remember you as a talented, experienced and upright gentleman.

Signed on behalf of your FELLOW-WORKERS.

Mr. Gibb made a suitable reply and his regret at having to say good-bye was very evident to all. Mr. Gibb will be leaving Newfoundland about September 15th, to reside in Boston. His departure is regretted not only by his fellow-workers, but by the community in general.

Ye Olden Times

The Evening Telegram started publishing after the fire of 1892 on Sept. 1st of that year.

The first Newfoundland postage stamp was issued on Sept. 1st, 1857.

The leading lights of St. John's Hr. were first lit on Sept. 1st, 1863.

The first dynamo for the old electric light company arrived here in 1885, on Sept. 1st.

On Sept. 2nd, 1796 a fleet of French ships appeared off the harbor. The Governor thinking they would attack the garrison put the town under martial law.

Take Away Braces and Buttons

During the Fenian rising in Ireland in 1867, the British troops, who were commanded by Lord Strathnairn bagged large numbers of prisoners.

At one place the authorities were in a quandary, as they had a great many prisoners and could only spare a very few soldiers as escort. They were afraid that some might escape on the journey to Dublin.

So they appealed to Lord Strathnairn for advice.

"Take away their braces and cut off the buttons from their trousers," was the reply.

Normal Schools

IN VOGUE AND APPROVED CENTURIES BACK.

We quote from a recent issue of the Catholic Record, the following extrace from a biographical sketch of Saint Dr. La Salle, that great Christian Educator of the last half of the 17th century. Very aptly and justly was he entitled by Leo XIII, as "the Teacher Saint, the model of Christian Progress and the Patron of Christian Schools and the protector of the youth." It would be well for those who have in their ignorant conception of the real requirements of a country from an educational view point to read the extract, which points out that the Normal School idea is as old as the 17th century, was urged upon and incorporated into the school systems of Europe and England centuries back. What must he thought of men who, under the guise of representatives of the people, are seeking to discourage the establishment of a Normal School in Newfoundland. An educated citizenship is a country's greatest asset, while poverty and ignorance are usually a kin. Let the extract speak for itself, reciting as it does the convictions of one of the greatest educators the world has ever known.

Though his efforts were not limited to primary education, with all its various components, yet we always associate him with it. He completely revolutionized the old-fashioned methods of education and introduced simultaneous method, according to which children of the same capacity follow the same lessons under the same master. St. Peter Fourier (1565-1640), perhaps, was thef irst to state clearly the simultaneous method. Brother Azarias in his "Essays Educational," tells us that others discovered its value, and even partially applied its principles long before Saint De La Salle, but he was the first to appreciate its worth and to give it practical application in the classroom. This principle of simultaneous teaching he eenunciates clearly in his great treatise on education, "The Management of the Christian Schools." To-day this method is universally employed in primary and secondary schools.

From the beginning of his Institute, he realized the importance and necessity of a training school for teachers, and when in 1684 the opportunity presented itself, he opened a Normal School at Rheims. The following year he opened one in the duchy of Mazario, where young men "were destined to be instructed in the true maxims of Christian pedagogy, as also to read, write, and sing well, in order that they might afterwards teach the youth throughout the burghs, villages and hamlets of the duchy." In 1693, he opened one in Paris to which he attached a free school, in which the young masters were exercised in the practice of teaching under the guidance of an experienced Brother. At St. Denis, he opened a fourth Normal School.

Fish Scarce

Scarcity of fish has taken place the past four or five days, so some of the St. John's fishermen informs us this morning. The fish which were caught of late were found off Blackhead ledge. It is expected that the fishermen will have to seek the grounds near Sugar Loaf for fish e'er long.

PARIS, Sept. 3—News was received here to-day that an Italian representative had informed the Council of the League of Nations that Italy refused to accept the League's jurisdiction in the Greek-Italian dispute.

American Bar Ass'n Favour New Conference of Nations

MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 30—(A.P.)—Action by the American Bar Association endorsing thei dea of calling a new conference of nations in continuation of two former conferences at The Hagues in efforts to clarify the rulesw hich concern the principles of international law, was recommended in the report of the Committee on International Law at to—day's session of the American Bar Association.

"It would not seem to be a matter of serious doubt that much may be accomplished in the direction of creating and preserving harmonious relations between nations and toward the reduction of causes of international disagreements, if the principles of international law should receive consideration at a new conference of the nations in accordance with recommendations of the committee of jurists assembled at The Hague in 1920, "the report read:

The purposes of the suggested new conference would be to restate the established rules of international law, especially in the first instance in the fields affected by the events of the world war; to formulate and agree upon the amendments and additions, if any, to the rules of international life and intercourse which have followed the war; to endeavor to reconcile divergent views and secure general agreement upon ther ules which have been in dispute heretofore; to consider the subjects not new adequately regulated by international law, but as to which the interests of international justice requires that rules of law shall be declared and accepted.

The committee refrained from making any recommendations concerning a Permanent Court of International Justice. At the 1922 meeting of the association, it was instructed to formulate such amendments or changes in the statute which now constitutes the court, which in the judgment of the committee might make it possible for the United States to accept it.

Changes in circumstances since the instructions were given especially in view of the fact that the late President Harding submitted a message to the senate, asking the advice and consent of the senate to the adhesion to the protocal on the part of the United States, were given as reasons for making no recommendations. The question has become one of political discussion which the committee declared was another reason for refraining from suggestions.

George Donworth, James Brown Scott and George W. Wickersham, three members of the committee, however, expressed their personal views as follows:

"In accordance with the privilege accorded by the report of each member of the committee to express his personal views, we beg to state that we are unequivocally in favor of the participation of the United States in the present Permanent Court of International Justice, upon such terms and conditions not inconsistent with the character and functions of the court, as the President and Secretary of State may suggest and the senate of the United States approve."

Horse Owner Gets Judgment Against Jockey

LONDON, August 29—Probably for the first time in the history of the turf, a horse owner has sued a jockey for damages for the loss of a horse killed on a race track. Hence the case of H. J. Boam, of Hove, Brighton, against Michael Beary, the Irish jockey, for £800 for the loss of the racer Ironore, has excited more than usual interest on the part of the public generally. The plaintiff claimed that Ironore, a mare, was killed in May last while running in a selling plate at Kempton Park, as a direct result of Beary's crowding Ironorees jockey, F. Lane.

Beary was riding Golly Eyes. Ironore was thrown against the rails and Lane was pitched several yards forward on the course. Lane escaped injury, but Ironore was killed, her neck being broken in the fall.

The case was tried by a jury, with Justice Darling presiding, and a verdict was given for Plaintiff Boam for £300.

In his evidence, the plaintiff said that during the running of the race the defendant, on Golly Eyes, ran in front of his mare, Ironore, to secure a more favorable position near the rails with the result that there was a collision between the defendant's horse and Ironore, whose neck was broken. He valued the mare at £700 or £800. She had won several races. Boam said he had been racing in England for two years. Previously he had raced his horses in South Africa. He admitted that he had never before heard of such an action as this against a jockey. Neither had he ever before known of a horse being killed in a race as the result of the carelessness of a jockey.

Frederick Lane, the jockey on Ironore at the time of the accident, gave evidence placing the blame on Jockey Beary. The horses all were racing for the bend, because if they lost their inside place they would have a poor chance of catching up afterwards. One horse was boring into another and Ironore was the ultimate sufferer.

Beary testified that he was forced by other jockeys, in the race to bump his horse, Golly Eyes, into Lane's mount.

Justice Darling, in summing up for the enlightenment of the jury, referred to the action being the first of its kind brought in the English courts. He mentioned that there was a bend at Kempton Park, and those jockeys who got their horses to the rails, as a rule won, and that was what the jockeys wanted, of course. But they must do it rightly, and wrongly, he said.

"Racing," said the judge, "is not a bit like hunting or polo. It is only a question of sitting on a horse for two or three minutes at the outside. It does not look like horsemanship at all. It is essential that jockeys should try to get in front of each other by legitimate and proper means, and not by four means. Foul riding must be discouraged.

The judge, referring to the fact that the Stewards of the Jockey Club had found Beary guilty of foul riding in connection with the killing of Ironore, warned the jury that this was not to affect their decision. It was for the plaintiff to prove his case in court, if he could do so.

As to the question of damages, if the jury found for the plaintiff the judge reminded the jury that evidence had been given that the mare Ironore had been sold on one occasion for £364 and at another time for £300.

The jury agreed that it was a case of foul riding, and that £300 was enough for Ironore.

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every 16 ounce can

Try this recipe for Mrs. Brown's "quick layer cake"

1 cup sugar
2 cups flour
Yolks 3 eggs and white of 2
½ cup Libby's Milk
2 tablespoons water
½ scant cup butter melted (or other shortening)
2 teaspoons baking powder
Salt
Vanilla

Beat the yolks and whites of eggs together, add sugar and beat till very light and bubbly. Sift flour well, add half of it to eggs and stir in the milk, then rest of flour. Stir in the melted butter and add baking powder, salt and vanilla last

Mrs. Brown says Libby's Milk makes her "quick cake" richer

As fine and rich a cake as you would care to taste—made quickly! Among the many delightful things that Mrs. W. N. Brown of Danville, Va., makes, this cake is a great favorite with her family and friends.

The thing about it that appeals especially is that it is so quick and easy to make and yet has all the richness of a more elaborate cake.

Mrs. Brown gets this special richness in just one way—by using Libby's Milk instead of ordinary milk. For Libby's is very rich in butter fat—there are 7½ teapsoons in every 16 oz. can!

"The milk that good cooks use"

Like Mrs. Brown, good cooks everywhere are using this milk. So many of them, in fact, that in certain localities nearly everyone calls it "the milk that good cooks use."

It isn't ordinary canned milk, of course, nor is it milk from ordinary cows.

There are, as you know, certain sections of this country which are famous for their dairy products, pasture lands where grass grows thick and green in watered valleys and wooded hills give grateful shade.

Cows naturally produce their richest milk where nature and man combine to help them, as in these favored sections.

And you know, too, that certain kinds of cows give richer milk than others.

By placing our condenseries in the heart of these favored sections we get, for Libby's Milk, the finest milk in the land, milk from selected herds.

We add nothing to it; we simply evaporate more than half the moisture from it, making it double rich. Then we seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it so you can get it fresh and pure no matter where you live.

Richer milk means richer cooking

Order a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer today. Try it in soups and sauces, in cakes, breadstuffs and desserts—in anything you've been making with other milk. See what new richness, what delightful flavor it gives to all your cooking. Like thousands of other women you'll make Libby's your regular cooking milk when once you have seen what a difference it makes.

Write for free recipe folder

Many exceptionally fine recipes have been sent us by good cooks who use Libby's Milk. Some of them have been printed in a convenient folder, a copy of which we'll be glad to send you free. Write today.

Chicago Professor Modernizes Bible

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—After three years' constant work, Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed of the University of Chicago has completed a modern translation of the New Testament. He has discarded the form of the King James version, which has endured more than 300 years, and has, as he expresses it, "brought the Bible up to date," using the latest discoveries in Geek scholarship and completely modernizing both text and form.

Instead of the old verse arrangement, Dr. Goodspeed has used modern paragraphing, with modern punctuation and quotation marks.

Obscure and archaic locutions have been supplanted by current terms understandable by "the man in the street." All the "thees" and "thous" have given way to colloquial speech.

All Biblical terms of money value, weight, measure and distance are replaced by such concrete modern terms as dollars, cents, bushels and miles. In explaining his work, Dr. Goodspeed says:

"I have undertaen to determine what each writer of the New Testament meant to say and then I have tried to express this in the simplest and most modern vigorous English.

"We have particularly had in mind the American reader and have tried to eliminate Bitish forms of expression like 'steward' and 'husbandman,' and to use instead words intelligible to the American ear.

"Most translations of the Scriptures are based on a fundamental misconception of the kind of Greek used in the original. That Greek is simple, easy and almost colloquial—the spoken language of the people of that time."

De Valera's Release Is Asked By New Yorker

Frances J. Lowe, in Appeal to Free State, Says No Good Lies in Detention.

LONDON, Aug. 23.—Francis J. Lowe, Secretary of the Friends of the Irish Free State of New York, has sent to the British Colonial Officer an appeal to be forwarded to the Free State for the release of Eamonn de Valern and his aide, Donnell, Director of Elections for the Irish Republican Party.

"We feel no good can result in their detention," Lowe says. "We feel confident the Government Party will be returned with a great majority if these men are released but sentiment is swinging every minute in favor of the Laborites and Republicans.

"The mere fact that President Cosgrave guaranteed a free election and free speech ought to be sufficient to influential men in America, with an friends of the Irish Free State, feel a great mistake has been made."

Lowe told The World correspondent he is negotiating with the Free State for reopening the two big wireless stations at Clifden and Bellybunion to permit communication with the United States.

President Reid's Farewell To Staff

To All Employees in the Railway, Steamship, Dock and Express Services.

On the occasion of the retirement of Reid Newfoundland Company Limited from the transportation and docking business in Newfoundland, I desire on behalf of the Directors and Shareholders of the Company to convey to you our best thanks for the loyal services rendered to us in the past and our sincere hope and belief that the like service will be given by you to your country, which through its Government, is now operating these services.

During the thirty-three years which have elapsed since the Reids first became connected with the railway system of this Dominion the most satisfactory feature of their operations have been the sterling loyalty which has been displayed towards them by the staff and the employees generally. Without that spirit of loyalty and co-operation the difficulties which we have had to face would have been insurmountable. The hardships and dangers of snow-fighting, for instance, are imperfectly realized by the general public.

I should like here to make special mention of the period of the Great War, throughout which those of "the outfit" who were not actually in the fighting line with the Regiment or in the Royal Naval Reserve did equally valuable service to their country by keeping our transportation services going while Newfoundland was otherwise practically cut off from the rest of the world by the submarine campaign.

In taking leave of you, I wish you to believe that you have our best wishes for your future happiness advancement and prosperity, and for the greatest possible success of the new management.

Faithfully yours,
H. D. REID,
President.

Can't hurt delicate fabrics—

this pure, new laundry soap

Here's laundry soap that will lighten the work of washing time. It will turn out the snowiest, cleanest clothes, and linens.

It will clean thoroughly—removing the stubbornest dirt quickly and easily, with the least rubbing effort. But, best of all, it will never injure the daintiest clothes, the most delicate fabrics. Why?

Because it contains absolutely no harmful "filler"—the thing that rots fabrics, and shortens the life of clothes.

That is a big economy to have in mind when you buy laundry soap.

In addition this pure, new laundry soap will not hurt your sensitive skin. It will save your hands from unnecessary, unsightly reddening and roughening.

And, because it's just pure soap, the big bar lasts for a surprisingly long time. That's still another economy.

The name is MOTHER HUBBARD Pure Laundry Soap.

To save clothes and time and hands—use it, next time you wash.

Your dealer has it in stock for you, today.

Successful Wesleyville Boy Stranded

Capt. David Brenton of the S. S. Kyle is another proof of what an industrious and determined man can do. In 1909 David Brenton left Wesleyville to enter for naval training abroad the Calypso at St. John's. In 1911-12 he was engaged on one of the Red Cross boats. In 1912-13 he was classed as able seaman on board the Bruce and succeeded the following year in getting his second mate's certificate on board the s.s. Lintrose. After this, Mr. Brenton was torpedoed when the Rowena was sunk seventy-five miles S.W. of Fastnet Rocks. Immediately after Mr. Brenton returned from Archangel, he was appointed master of the three masted schooner "G. Blanche" and in 1919 he obtained his first mate's certificate. He has remained with the company with which he is now working ever since and graduated from the Halifax Nautical School as Master Mariner on the third day of August 1923.

We congratulate this young captain and his excellent parents at Wesleyville and sincerely hope that his flag may fly two blocks to the breeze.

Stranded Pit Prop Steamer Refloated

S. S. Roxburg Arriver Under Her Own Steam—Is Badly Damaged

The s.s Roxburgh, which went ashore near Botwood on Friday last and was refloated Saturday night, arrived here last evening and berthed at the Furness Withy pier.

The Roxburgh loaded pit props at Brown's Arm Burn's Arm and Point of Bay, Exploits, and has been in the Bay since August 13th. The ship was outward bound for Cardiff when she stranded, and left Point of Bay at 6 a.m. Friday. Owing to the Captain being a stranger in these parts, a pilot was taken on board. The weather was foggy at the time, but it lifted at times sufficient for the ship to pick up the different points of land.

An hour after leaving, the ship struck High Grego, the pilot mistaking the point and thinking the ship was further off the land. Just before she struck the land was seen and her engines were reversed and both enchors let go, but she had too much headway and bumped upon the rocks, striking hard, the bow lifting well upon the ledge; and while she was drawing 24 feet of water before stranding, she was then only showing 17 feet.

After it was found that the ship would not answer to her engines, Captain Jenkins made preparations for refloating her. Several attempts during the day failed, so the Captain wired for assistance and the Clyde was despatched. In the meantime the forward deck-load was thrown overboard and the after tanks were filled with water in order to lighten the ship, but still she held.

On Saturday afternoon the Clyde arrived on the scene and at 10.30 that night the Roxburgh was towed off while the tide was high. She anchored for the night and left for here on Sunday morning. The Roxburgh's forepeak is full of water as well as No. 1. tank.

The Roxburgh is owned by Messrs Ridley, Son and Tulley, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and is 4396 tons gross, and 2716 nett. This is Captain Jenkins' first trip to this port. He has been in command of the Roxburgh two years, joining her in August 1921 after she had then been in troube out East. Since then the ship has been figuring largely in history, and while on the Pacific Coast last year, caught on fire, and was badly burned. After repairs had been effected and while leaving port, the pilot put her ashore and more trouble was caused.

WEDDING BELLS

EARLE—MARCH.

On August 18th at 8 p.m., Harvey B. Earle of 36 Greendale Avenue, Worcester, Mass., and Miss Hilda March, daughter of Sergeant and Mrs. March of Carbonear, Newfoundland. were married at the home of the groom's sister, Mrs. Charles W. Lemaire, 29 Dix Street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. James E. Wagner co pastor of the Wesley Church.

The bride was attended by Miss Esther Norman as maid of honour and the best man was Mr. Theodora Lodge berg. The bride wore a suit of midnight blue poiret twill and hat of black velvet trimmed with burnt goose feathers. Her flowers were white bride's roses. The bridemaid wore a gown of dark blue beaded georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of sweet peas.

The bride's gift to her attendant was an ornamental Spanish comb and the best man a stick pin.

A reception followed the ceremony after which the happy couple left for a trip to New Brunswick and Niagara Falls. They will make their home at 36 Greendale Avenue, Worcester, Mass. The bride was a graduate nurse at the Norton Hospital, Worcester and has resided in the United States for seven years.

The Easier Path.

(Morning Post.)

A wise man can seek a refuge from pressing troubles in some of the many mansions of his mind. In the same way an Empire like ours can find on more shores than one an outlet for its energies and its products. France has embarked on a great experiment, and perhaps it is best that she should be allowed to complete her enterprise. England may then for the first time for many years be following a policy of abstention in Europe affairs.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of one of our little friends, Sidney Keel, who passed peacefully away on the 25th day of August, at the age of 11 years and 5 months. Although sick for 9 months, he was never heard to complain. He leaves to mourn mother, father, three brothers, three sisters and a large circle of friends.

A loving one from us is gone,
A voice we loved is stilled;
A place made vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

His suffering here were hard to bear,
But yet they caused no frown,
With Angels bright arrayed in white
He wears a starry crown.

We know that he was young in years,
And perhaps would like to stay,
But how if like on earth compared
With Heaven's eternal day.

We will deck his grave with roses,
In memory it will keep,
Of our best and dearest Sidney,
Who beneath the sod doth sleep.

A FRIEND.

MAN BORNE OVER FALLS IN VIEW OF TOURISTS

Walks Into River and Disregards Attempts to Save Him

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Aug. 23—An unidentified man, about 65 years old, walked into the rapids above the American Falls this afternoon, sat down, and was borne over the brink in plain view of a number of tourists who were viewing the falls from Prospect Point.

He was first seen by a reservation policeman, who threw a lifeline out to him, but it was disregarded. A second attempt farther down was also disregarded. No one saw him enter the water, and there is no clue to his identity.

Officials made a search for his belongings, which may have been left on the bank, but without avail.

ALASKA'S CAPITAL BOASTS POULATION OF 3,000

The late President Harding's visit makes it timely to record a few facts regarding Alaska, says an article in Credit.

That large outlying territory was purchased in 1867 from Russia, which had arived there by way of Siberia. The price paid was $7,200,000. Gold was first mined in Alaska in 1880; up to 1920 the value of the gold taken out was $310,800,000, or forty-three times the purchase price.

The area of Alaska is close on 600,000 square miles—nearly ten times the area of New England. It lies between the sixtieth and seventieth parallels of north latitude, on practically the same latiude as Norway and Sweden.

Sweden has a populaion of 34 per square miles, while Norway has a population of 21 per square mile. But Alaska in 1890 had only one inhabitant for every 20 square miles. In 1900 the ratio had risen to one inhabitant for every ten square miles, or a total of 63,000. In 1920 the total population was only 55,000.

The salmon fisheries employ about 25,000 the value of the salmon catch in 1920 was $36,000,000, or about five times the purchase price of Alaska.

While there are several hundred farms in Alaska the total area of improved land is still under 5,000 acres, or less than eight square miles. Juneau, the biggest town, is really only a village with 3,000 inhabitants. Four other towns, Ketchikan, Anchorage, Sitka and Fairbanks, taken together, have 7,000 inhabitants.

The value of the gold mined in 1920 was $7,856,000; the value of the copper mined in the same year was $12,960,000. The tin ore deposits, near Cape Prince of Wales, may prove in time to be even more valuable.

Spruce forests are extensive, and paper pulp is already extensively manufactured. In case of an embargo by Canada, Alaska might in time fill the breach.

SEE THE POINT?

LOVE FINDS A WAY

Young Husband—Did you make those biscuits my dear?

His Wife—Yes, darling.

Her Husband—Well, I'd rather you would not make any more, sweetheart.

His Wife—Why not, my love?

Her Husband—Because, angel mine, you are too light for such heavy work.—Detroit Free Press.

Betty Brown, the prettiest girl in the village, was blest with a father who snubbed all the young men who came to see her. One evening a bashful young man named Samuel Green called. After the trip, the young man ventured to remark:

"It looks as though it might rain, sir."

"It's not going to rain," was Father Brown's gruff reply.

For nearly half an hour there was complete silence. Finally the old man's curiosity got the better of him.

"Who are you?" he growled.

"Samuel Green," was the reply.

"What? Not old Tom Greene's son?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, then," exclaimed the father, thawing, "it may rain, it may rain."

A big burly man called at the rectory, and when the door was opened, asked to see the rector's wife, a woman well-known for her charitable impulses.

"Madam," he addressed her in a broken voice, "I wish to draw your attention to the terrible plight of a poor family in this district. The father is dead, the mother is too ill to work, and the nine children are starving. They are about to be turned into the cold, cold streets unless some one pays their arrears in rent, which amounts to fifty dollars."

"How terrible!" exclaimed the lady. "May I ask who you are?"

The sympathetic visitor applied his handkerchief to his eyes.

"I'm the landlord," he sobbed.

WHAT PUZZLED HIM

A Scotch professor was advocating the advantage of athletic exercises. "The Roman youth," he declared, "used to swim three times across the Tiber before breakfast." Observing a smile on the face of one of the students, the professor demanded:

"Mr. McAllister, why do you smile? We shall be glad to share your amusement."

"I was just thinking, sir," the student replied, weren't the Roman youths puzzled to get their clothes at the end of the swim?"—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Gives Five Reasons For Youths Losing First Job

CHICAGO, Aug. 24—(A.P)—Lack of a sense of responsibility, unwillingness to work hard, lack of thoroughness, false notions about salary and promotion, and lack of principle are the five chief reasons why 90 per cent of the boys and girls of the United States lose their first jobs, according to a report made to the Chicago Association of Commerce by A.D. White, statistician of Swift and Company.

Mr. White's report noted that 90 per cent of the boys and girls lose their first positions. The report also shows that in nine cases out of every ten, the loss of the position can be traced to one of the five reasons noted.

His report continues:

"Lack of a sense of responsibility is shown by neglect of work, failure to put the most important things first, and the expression of a general 'I should worry' attitude.

"Unwillingness to work hard is shown by being late to work, stretching the lunch hour, and stealing a few minutes at the end of the day, watching the clock, and wasting the time by social conversations and telephone calls during business hours.

"Lack of thoroughness, is indicated most frequently by unwillingness to begin at the bottom and to go through the drudgery of mastering each step before going ahead.

"The real secret of promotion lies in constantly doing more than you are paid to do. Keep yourself underpaid. As soon as you are overpaid you are bound to go backward.

"Lack of principle is shown by concealment of mistakes, untruthfulness, and the constant making of excuses."

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

In the last few days I have beaten my own record for long-distance reading, or endurance-reading, if you like the term better. As a rule I do a great deal of reading. Rarely am I without a book in my possession. If I go for a walk, or ride on a street car, or simply walk from the office to my home, I always take a book with me to read on the way.

* * * *

But in the last five days I have read more than ever before in the same amount of time. I have read six books. Now, I have often read for several weeks at a stretch at the rate of a book a day. Indeed, once I read three books thru in the same day. But these books that I have just read were very long ones, some of them. One book had 550 pages. Another had about the same number. A third had three hundred pages, while a fourth had about three hundred. The other two had from two hundred and seventy five to three hundred each. Altogether the six books contained well over 600,000 words. Close to a million words in five days is considerable reading, eh?

* * * * *

I am sure that some of my readers have performed similar feats in reading. I invite them to write me their experiences along these lines. I shall publish any letters that may come in. By the way, I might add, in regard to my own endurance record, that I have had enough reading to last me for weeks. I feel that I shall not be able to read anything heavy for a month!

* * * * *

In "Dublin Days," a collection of poems by L. A. G. Strong, is the following:

THE MAN AT THE CROSSING

I sweep the street and lift me hat
As persons come and persons go,
Me lady and me gentleman:
I lift me hat—but you don't know!

I've money by against I'm dead:
A hearse and murners there will be.
And every sort of walking man
Will stop to lift his hat to me.

* * * * *

Major General Allan, who commanded the American Army of Occupation on the Rhine in Germany since the war, on being interviewed upon his return to the United States, said:

"The European situation is leading rapidly towards a profounder misery for the whole world and for future generations as well as the one that is here. There is not a ray of hope in the whole outlook."

* * * * *

Yes, there is a ray of hope—the British Labor party. When the British Labor Party gets in control of the British Government, it will demand and secure a complete re-writing and re-drafting of the infamous Versailles Treaty, which is the root-cause of nine-tenths of the evil with which Europe is scourged today. The only question is: will Europe last until the Labor Party gets the Government? Can Europe civilization, or what is left of it, stand the terrific strain until 1926.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The vindictive Treaty of Versailles, which was drawn up at the time of the Peace Conference, was not based on wisdom, sound economics or justice, but upon revenge that took no notice of the realities of the situation. Clemenceau, the old Tiger, impressed his will on the Conference, and the Treaty is his treaty. Instead of being based on the Fourteen Points of President Wilson (and, remember that the Armistice was called on the basis of those terms of President Wilson- the treaty was based on Clemenceau's hatred of Germany and his savage desire to down her and cripple and disable her once and for all.

That, says the Labor Party, was unwise. That was what the victorious Germans did after they conquered France years ago in the Franco-Prussian war. And what resulted? Why the treaty drawn up at that time contained the seeds of another war—the war that broke out in 1914. Was it wise to repeat the blunder in 1918?

* * * * *

Let a conference of economists be called to determine how much Germany can pay without injuring herself or the nations she pays. This is the only possible way of saving Europe. And this involves the scrapping of the Versailles Treaty. Premier Stanley Baldwin believes in scrapping that Treaty, but of course, he has in his cabinet a number of "die-hards" whose hate is stronger than their cause. The Labor Party will do it.

League Football

There was a fair attendance of fans at last evening's game. The Saints defeated the Feildians by a score of 3—1.. The exhibition was a good one, the Saints playing a nice combination game and in the first half notching up three goals, H. Sawyers getting two and Gordon Elton the third. In the second half Ewing scored for the Feildians, from a mix-up, Belbin saving the shot, but in over the goal line the decision was given against him. Only one more game remains to bep layed, the Feildians-Cadet match which is scheduled for Thursday night. In case the Cadets are victorious, they become champions for 1923, while should the Fieldians win, the Cadets and Guards will have to play off.

Mr. A. Marshall, of Burin, well-knownbusiness man, arrived in the city by to-day's train. He has been a week on the trp, calling at places on the way, to transact business.

Mrs. James Channing has returned to the city after a brief visit to the home of Mr. R. Costigan, Bell Island.

Mr. John Coaker, East End Road Inspector is now engaged in putting a top dressing of rubble stone and clay on the hill near the C. of E. Cathedral, which will extend to the top of Long's Hill, and which when completed will give the thorofare a very fine apeparance.

Messrs Pidgeon and Murphy are doing excellent work in the erection of the new R. C. Palace. All the stone taken from the old palace is being utilized in the construction of the new building. Great attention is being given to its erection and we are sure that it will be when finished a substantial and beautiful structure.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. W. C. Pearce, of the Dept. of Public Worke is now a patient at the General Hospital. Mr. Pearce has not been feeling well since he underwent an operation some months ago at Boston. His many friends hope to see him around again before long.

Archbishop Roche Dedicates New Church

AT ST. KYRAN'S, P.B.

ST. KYRAN'S, Sept. 3—The new church of the Assumption was dedicated here yesterday by His Grace the Archbishop of St. John's. A large congregation from all sections of the parish assembled for the Mass of dedication, which was celebrated by Rev. J. J. McGrath, P.P. Bell Island assisted by the pastor of St. Kyran's, and Rev. J. J. Rawlins of Kilbride. After Mass his Grace delivered an address appropriate to the occasion and complimented Father Fyme and his parishioners on the erection of the new parish church. The episcopal party leaves to-day for the west by the Argyle.

Mr. Job Coming

We have been informed that Mr. W. C. Job, now residing in England, will leave there by the Sachem on Saturday to spend a few weeks in the home of his boyhood. Mr. Job's many friends, which constitute persons of all creeds and classes, will be glad to give him a hearty welcome.

There was a clean docket in the Police Court this morning.

LOCAL ITEMS

A magisterial enquiry into the death by drowning of Herbert Pike at Topsail last week will begin before Mr. McCarthy, J.P., this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A large quantity of fish arrived from the nearby settlements yesterday, and was disposed off at the various firms along the street.

A fine, pure floating toilet soap that is cheaper than most and far more useful. The whole family can wash in Ivory and no better soap could be used for Ivory contains the purest materials and is widely recommended. At all Union Stores now.

Every Union Store can now supply toilet soap. You cannot use any better soap than Ivory. Ask for it next time. IVORY the pure white floating soap for all toilet uses. Only Five and Ten Cents a cake.

The preltminary heats for the big A.A.A. Championship meet to-morrow take place this evening at 6.30 o'clock. The heats will include hurdles, 100 yards, 220 yards, ¼ mile, ¼ mile Jr., Pole Vault, Hammer Throw, Broad Jump, High Jump and Shot Put. Tomorrow afternoon the big championship meet takes place, when our best athletes will toe the line, in what promises to be the most interesting met yet held.

The Telegram Road race will be the feature, and with such keen rivalry between the contestants there is little doubt that the previous record will be lowered.

Rotarians Entertain Kiddies To-day

The Rotarians are giving their annual outing and picnic to the poorer kiddies of the city to-day, and judging by the programme outlined for their benefit the youngsters will have a jolly time. All that is needed to perfect the arangements is a fine afternoon. At one o'clock the Rotarians held their weekly luncheon at Wood's Restaurant. There will be no particular programme, and as soon as the luncheon is completed between thirty and forty cars will call at their various homes for the children, later assemblying at Fort Townsend. Then they will proceed by way of Military Road, Cavendish Square, Duckworth Street,, Shea's Hill and Water Street to Bowring Park, where the youngsters will each be ice-cream. After a drive around the park the cars will separate in all directions, the route over which he will take his little guests, being left entirely to the discretion of each car owner; but all will meet again at 5 o'clock at Smithville, where at 5.30 tea will be served to the children and their hosts. Afterwards there will be a moving picture shown and entertainment, which promises to produce lots of fun, and then the little ones will be returned to the care of their parents. For the children, this will be a red-letter day, and the Rotarians in thus giving of their time to bring an afternoon's happiness to the kiddies are doing something that is not only praiseworthy but really well worth while . In all about 150 children will take part in the outing.

"There's Life In The Old Land Yet."

Cheer up, cheer up, you natives all,
and brush aside despair;
For you good times are coming, I can feel it in the air.
Around your sea-girt Island home, most prosperous rays shall shine
With wealth from out the ocean, the forest and the mine.
Your fathers conquered darker days,
and so will you, I bet;
So do not weep;
Your courage keep;
"There's life in the old land yet."

The wodsman's axe will ring with joy
where it never rang before,
From where the lordly Humber flows,
to Green Bay's rocky shore.
Here thousands in the future, will draw great wealth from toil,
And many more of our brave sons
shall cultivate the soil.
This is no idle dream I paint, nor is it waste of breath;
She'll greater grow;
I'll have you know;
"There's life in the old land yet."

"The darkest hour preceeds the dawn," an axiom good and true,
And this, my friends, I'm certain, is applicable to you.
The blood of three great races keeps coursing thru your veins,
Who conquered on the ocean and on blood-stained battle plains.
Cheer up, the future has in store bright days, so don't forget.
Be firm and true;
For I tell you
"There's life in the old land yet."

Tidal Waves Rebound on Californian Coast

Japanese Island Completely Disappeared in Greatest Earthquake Ever Known

Japan's Princes and Princesses Suffer Death, With Over Half Million Other Victims.

OSAKA, Sept. 5—The most reliable estimates of death up to the present reach as high as between 3 and 5 hundred thousand. Details of geographic changes are lacking, but it is known that islands have disappeared and new islands have sprung up where once there was deep navigable waters, and long familiar lands have disappeared under thew aters, rivers have changed their courses and volcanoes are erupting.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—The Emperor and Empress of Japan, as well as the Prince Regent, escaped injury, and are safe and well, according to a message received today by the Japanese Embassy that Princess Yamashina, Princess Hirokanin and daughter, Prince Kanin and Prince Moramasa Higashikuni, all members of the royal family who were staying at a summer resort were killed.

Earthquake's Dreadful Toll

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4—Casualties from the earthquake and fire total 500,000. Three hundred thousand houses have been burned, it is estimated by the Metropolitan police of Tokio, according to a courier from Oyoma, who reported to-day at Tomioka to the radio corporation of America. The report received today in San Francisco said the Imperial Palace was being guarded by one regiment of infantry, a battalion of Engineers and the Imperial Division.

SHANGHAI, China, Sept. 5—Reports here regarding the loss of life in the Japanese tragedy give even more alarming figures than previously, the latest etimates of the Eastern News Agency from Osaka, claiming at least 320,000 dead in the whole devestated area. Reports state that fire in Tokio died out at dusk last night.

MOSCOW, Sept. 5—Reports reaching here this afternoon from the Far East, claim that previous estimates of loss of life in the Japanese disaster are greatly exaggerated and that the total killed would not exceed a hundred thousand.

LONDON, Sept. 5—A Reuther d espatch from Osaka, dated Tuesday, says that, judging from all available reports the earthquake affected the following ten prefectures Tokio, Enagawa, Shidzuoka, Chiba, Yamanashi, Saitma, Ibaraki, Nagano, Guma and Tochini. The total area affected was 20,000 square miles with a population of fifteen million. This area includes large cities like Tokio, Yokohama, Yohsuka and foreign tourist resorts like Kamuraka, Hakone and Nikki.

JAPANESE LINER IN DISTRESS

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5—The Japanese liner Taiyo Maru, said to be the largest steamer sailing out of any United States Pacific port, sent the S. O. S. signals from a point off the coast of Japan at four this afternoon. No particulars of her fate have been received.

Royal Victims of Ntaional Tragedy

NAGASAKI, Sept. 4—Prince Shimadzu, formerly of the great house of Saysuma, is reported to have been killed in the disaster. Several others of royal blood are also said to have lost their lives or to have been injured. The death of Prince Masayossi Matuskata, former Premier and Minister of Finance, is reported here. The Prince died of injuries sustained in the earthquake.

Tidal Waves Sweep Across Pacific and Crash on American Coast

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5—Ground swells, twenty feet high, larger than any in the experience of mariners at Los Angeles harbor, struck the Southern California coast early this morning, and were believed to have been the result of the earthquake and tidal wave which devastated parts of Japan. The swells broke completely over the fifty foot breakwater and carried away all loose objects.

Wheat Crop of 400,000,000 Bushels, Says Motherwell

TORONTO, Sept. 5—If frosts keep off for another week, the West will have the greatest crop in its history, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, said to-day, adding that he would not be surprised if it reached four hundred million bushels.

Will Germany Yield?

BERLIN, Sept. 5—Germany has arrived at the end of her tether, so far as her ability to finance passive resistance is concerned. This is the current impression in banking circles which expect that Germany in the course of the next few days will take the initiative in the direction of proposing that official discussions be begun with the French and Belgian Governments.

Mining Work Resumed In Ruhr

ESSEN, Sept. 5—Mining difficulties in the Ruhr apparently have been settled without the necessity of intervention by the Government and work has been resumed in all Essen mines but one, and in most of the other mines in the Ruhr district the men are returning to work of their own accord.

Italian Representative in League of Nations Created Immense Sensation Yesterday

Challenged Right of League to Interfere in Greek-Italian Dispute.

GENEVA, Sept. 5—Italy to-day challenged the right of the League of Nations to intervene in the Graeco-Italian dispute, when her spokesman, Signor Salandra, declared that the conflict belonged solely to the domain of the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors and did not fall within the competency of the League. This announcement created immense sensation in the Council chamber which was crowded.

LONDON, Sept. 5—An exchange telegraph despatch from Rome today says that Premier Mussolini told the cabinet, that if the council of the League of Nations asserts its competency to deal with the Graeco-Italian controversy, Italy will withdraw from the League.

PARIS, Sept. 5—The first observation made by each member of the Council of Asmassadors when it met to-day to consider the Graeco-Italian dispute was to say he had not any instructions from his Government. It was agreed for this reason that the Council should for the present delay action.

LONDON, Sept. 5—Italy will make the terms for the evacuation of Corfu more onerors if Greece delays in fulfilling the terms of the ultimatum, Premier Mussolini is quoted by the Daily Mail's Rome correspondent as declaring.

The schr. Hopedale, Capt. Eeward, is now at Fardy's wharf laden with general cargo for New Perlican, T.B.

Greece Willing to Submit Investigation to Independent Commission Appointed By League Nations

But Mussolini Threatens More Severe Humiliation of Greece.

GENEVA, Sept. 5—A high political drama was played at Geneva to-day when Greece appeared before a hurriedly convoked session of the council of the League of Nations and announced her new terms of settlement with Italy. The Greek proposals were as follows: The Greek Government suggests, firstly; that the council should appoint one or more neutral representatives to superintend in Greece the judicial inquiry, which the Greek judiciary has already begun, and the trial of those responsible for the Janina murders; also assist in the work of the committee which Greece has proposed through the Council of Ambassadors, for investigation in Albania and Greece of the circumstances, which preceded and accompanied the crime; secondly, that the council should instruct a commission, composed of three high pudicial authorities, Greek, Italian and neutral, to meet as soon as possible at Geneva to adjust the amount of indemnity that it is just we should pay the families of the victims; thirdly, that the council should agree that the Greek Government should forthwith deposit in a bank in Switzerland fifty million lire as a guarantee of payment of whatever indemnity may be decided upon.

ADVERTISE IN THE EVENING ADVOCATE

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVII.

"Good old Dirty Dan! I'll wager a stiff sum he did a thorough job." The young laird of Tyee rose and ruffled his father's gray old head affectionately. "Thoughtful, canny old fox!" he continued. "I swear I'm all puffed up with conceit when I consider the father I selected for myself."

"Those scoundrels would have killed you," old Hector reminded him, with just a trace of emotion in his voice. "And if they'd done that, sonny, your old father'd never held up his head again. There are two things I could not stand up under—your death and"—he sighed, as if what he was about to say hurt him cruelly—"the wrong kind of a daughter-in-law."

"We will not fence with each other," his son answered soberly. "There has never been a lack of confidence between us, and I shall not withhold anything from you. You are referring to Nan, are you not?"

"I am, my son."

"Well?"

"I am not a cat, and it hurts me to be an old dog, but—I saw Nan Brent recently and we had a bit of a talk together. She's a bonny lass, Donald, and I'm thinking 'twould be better for your peace of mind and the peace of mind of all of us—if you saw less of her."

"You think, then, father, that I'm playing with fire."

"You're sitting on an open barrel of gunpowder with a lighted torch in your hand."

Donald returned to his chair and faced his father.

"Let us suppose," he suggested, "that the present unhappy situation in which Nan finds herself did not exist. Would you stil prefer that I limit my visits to, say, Christmas and Easter?"

The Laird scratched his head in perplexity.

"I'm inclined to think I wouldn't," he replied. "I'd consider your best interests always. If you married a fine girl from Chicago or New York she might not be content to dwell with you in Port Agnew.'

"Then Nan's Poverty—the loliness of her position even in Port Agnew, would not constitute a serious bar?"

'I was as poor as Job's turyey once myself—and your mother's people were poorer. But we came of good blood."

"Well, Nan's mother was a gentlewoman; her grandfather was an admiral, her great-grandfather a commodore, her great-great uncle a Revolutionary colonel, and her grandmother an F. F. V. Old Caleb's ancestors always followed the sea. His father and his grandfather were sturdy old Yankee ship-masters. He holds the Congressional medal of honor for conspicuous gallantry in action over and above the call of duty. The Brent blood may not be good enough for some, but it's a kind that's good enough for me!"

"All that is quite beside the question, Donald. The fact remains that Nan Brent loves you."

"May I inquire on what grounds you base that statement, dad?"

"On Saturday night, when you held her in your arms at parting, she kissed you." Donald was startled, and his features gave indubitable indication of the fact. His father's cool gray eyes were bent upon him kindly but unflinchingly. "Of course," he continued, in even tones, "you would not have accepted that caress were you not head over heels in love with the girl. You are not low enough to seek her favor for another reason."

"Yes; I love her," Donald maintrained manfully. "I have loved her for years—since I was a boy of sixteen—only, I didn't realize it until my return to Port Agnew. I can't very well help loving Nan, can I, dad?"

To his amazement, his father smiled at him sympathetically.

"No; I do not see how you could very well help yourself, son," he replied. "She's an extraordinary young woman. After my brief and accidental interview with her recently, I made up my mind that there would be something radically wrong with you if you didn't fall in love with her."

His son grinned back at him.

"Proceed, old lumberjack!" he begged. "Your candor is soothing to my bruised spirit."

"No; you cannot help loving her, I suppose. Since you admit being in love with her, the fact admits of no argument. It has happened, and I do not condemn you for it. Both of you have merely demonstrated in the natural human way that you are natural human beings. And I'm grateful to Nan for loving you. I think I should have resented her not doing so, for it would demonstrate her total lack of taste and appreciation of my son. She informed me, in so many words, that she wouldn't marry you."

"Nan has the capacity, somewhat rare in a woman, of keeping her own counsel. That is news to me, dad. However, if you had waited two minutes, I would have informed you that I do not intend to marry Nan—" He paused for an infinitesimal space and added, "yet."

The Laird elevated his eyebrows.

" 'Yet?' "he repeated.

Donald flushed a little as he reiterated his statement with an emphatic nod.

"Why that reservation, my son?"

"Because, some day, Nan may be in position to prove herself that which I know her to be—a virtuous woman—and when that time comes, I'll marry her in spite of hell and nigh water."

Old Hector sighed. He was quite familiar with the fact that, while the records of the county clerk of Santa Clara County, California, indicated that a marriage license had been issued on a certain date to a certain man and one Nan Brent of Port Agnew, Washington, there was no official record of a marriage between the two. The Reverend Mr. Tingley's wife had sorrowfully imparted that information to Mrs. McKaye, who had, in turn, informed old Hector, who had received the news with casual interest, little dreaming that he would ever have cause to remember it in later years. And The Laird was an old man, worldly-wise and of mature judgement. His soul wore the scars of human perfidy, and because he could understand the weakness of the flesh, he had little confidence in its strength. Consequently, he dismissed now, with a wave of his hand, consideration of the possibility that Nan Brent would ever make a fitting mate for his son.

"It's nice of you to believe that, Donald. I would not destroy your faith in human nature, for human nature will destroy your faith in time, as it has destroyed mine. I'm afraid I'm a sort of doubting Thomas. I must see in order to believe; I must thrust my finger into the wound. I wonder if you realize that even if this poor girl should, at some future time, be enabled to demonstrate her innocence of illicit love, she has been hopelessly smeared, and will never, never, be quite able to clean herself."

"It matters not if I know she is a good woman. That is all sufficient. To hell with what the world thinks! I'm going to take my happiness where I find it."

"It may be a long wait, my son."

"I will be patient, sir."

"And in the meantime, I shall be a doddering old man, without a grand son to sweeten the afternoon of my life, without a hope for seeing perpetuated all those things that I have considered worth while because I created them. Ah, Donald, lad, I'm afraid you're going to be cruel to your old father."

"I have suffered with the thought that I might appear to be, dad,. I have considered every phase of the situation; I was certain of the attitude you would take, and I feel no resentment because you have taken it. Neither Nan nor I had contemplated the condition that confronts us. It happened— like that," and Donald snapped his fingers. "Now the knowledge of what we mean to each other makes the obstacles all the more heart-breaking. I have tried to wish, for your sake, that I hadn't spoken—that I had controlled myself, but, for some unfathomable reason, I cannot seem to work up a very healthy contrition. And, I think, dad, this is going to cause me more suffering than it will you."

A faint smile flitted across old Hector's stern face. Youth! Youth! It always thinks it knows!

"This affair is beyond consideration by the McKayes, Donald. It is utterly impossible. You must cease calling on the girl."

"Why, father?"

"To give you my reason would lead to endless argument in which you would oppose me with so much sophistry that would be difficult to combat. In the end, we might lose our tempers. Let us say, therefore, that you must cease calling on the lass because I desire it."

"I'll never admit that I'm ashamed of her, because I am not!" his son burst forth passionately.

"But people are watching you now—talking about you. Man, do ye not ken you're your father's son?"

A faint note of passion had crept into the Laird's tones; under the stress of it his faint Scotch brogue increased perceptibly. He had tried gentle argument, and he knew he had failed; in his desperation, he decided to invoke his authority as the head of his clan. "I forbid you!" he cried firmly, and slapped the huge leather arm of his chair. "I charge you, by the blood that's in you, not to bring disgrace upon my house!"

A.A.A. Championship Sports

The third Newfoundland Champion Athletic Meet took place at St. George's Field yesterday afternoon. A threatening forenoon gave place to ideal contentants' weather for the afternoon. The bracing air made con ditions ideal for those who took part in the several events, but it was somewhat chilly for the spectators. However, the attendance was well to to the standard, nearly three thousand witnessing the various contests of physical endurance and athletic effort, which on the whole, were well up to the standard of other years.

The event of the day, of course, was the Telegram Marathon for the Herder Cup, which was won by Ron. O'Toole in the record time of 55 min. 59 secs. This time stands for the full ten-mile course.

The preliminaries which were run off in the forenoon, also drew a big crowd of sports to the field. There were several surprises in the elimination contests and several of our old athletic idols failed to find a place on the final card.

Amongst those present were His Lordship Bishop White, and Miss White, His Honor Judge Morris, Mayor Hon. Tasker Cook, Rev Bros. Ryan and Fennessey of St. Bons, Mark Chaplin Esq., Hon. S. Milley, and many other prominent citizens.

The first event, the hurdles, went to Bell Island C.C.C. Their entrant, P. T. Murphy, being awarded 1st place. The other contestants had evidently not been fully instructed, and with the exception of Murphy, who came in 5th place, the field was disqualified under a rule that knocking down two or more hurdles disqualified the runners.

Harvey Skirving showed his old form and won in dashing style, the mile and half mile. In the latter event his time was but a second behind the record held by J. M. Greene (1912), 2 mins. 13 secs.

Jack Fraser set a new record for the pole vault, by clearing the bar at 9 ft. 5 in. The previous record for this event was 9 ft. 3 in., made by C. Eagan in 1921. Burnell carried off the mile walk, with Piercey a good second. The 100 yds and quarter mile went to Jim Herder, and O'Connor Lynch won the Junior quarter.

Jim Herder in thes hort distances, showed up exceptionally well, his finishes showed that he had lots of reserve to call up if required. Jack Howlett beat Coefield and other old timers in the hammer-throw, which was a plucky performance. The Club relay race proved highly exciting and was won by the Guards' team with only a couple of yards to the good.

St. Bons retains the Hayward trophy another year, having 45 points to their credit. The Guards Old Comrades came second with a score of 37 points.

Capt. W. J. Higgins, K. C., Messrs J. W. Nunns, P. J. Grace, J. A. McKenzie, W Burns, C. Belbin, C. J. Ellis, J. M. Tobin, W. Noel, Dr. Grieve, Stan Cullen, A. H. Thomas and others discharged their respective official duties in a manner which gave entire satisfaction.

The Mount Cashel Band was in attendance during the afternoon, and provided their usual excellent program which was thoroughly enjoyed. At the conclusion of the sports the cup and medals won in the Telegram Road Race were presented by Hon. Tasker Cook, who heartily congratulated the winners.

Mr. W. J. Higgins, on behalf of the gathering, thanked the Mayor, and Cheers were then called for His Worship and the winners. The sports were in every way a success.

A meeting of the committee will be held at 12.30 p.m. to-day to decide as to the representatives we shall send to Halifax for the Canadian championships meet on the 15th inst.

The following is the complete list of events, winners and time records:

Hurdles—P. T. Murphy, (B.I.C.C.C.) time 16 2-5.

Hammer Trrow—J. Howlett, (S.B.C.) 70 ft. 1 1-2 in.; W. Coefield, (M.G.C.A.) 67 ft. 6 in.; F. Coefield, (M.G.C.A) 66 ft. 6 in.

100-Yds. Dash—Jim Herder, (M.G.C.A);Gerald Halley, (S.B.C); T. Butler, (M.G.C.A.); time 11 secs.

Putting the Shot—W. Coefield, (M.G.C.A) 29.70 ft.; T. Morrisey, (Unat.) 29.65 ft.; T. Butler, (M.G.C.A.) 29.03 ft.

1 Mile—H. Skirving (C.L.B.), G. Perry (M.G.C.A), C. Stone (C.L.B.); time 4.45 2-5.

220 Yds.—Gerald Halley (S.B.C.); T. Butler (M.G.C.A); D. Johnston (M.G.C.A.); time, 26 secs.

High Jump—J. Kielly (S.B.C.), C. Eagan (S.B.C.), J. Howlett (S.B.C.) tied; height 5 feet.

Quarter-Mile (Juniors)— O'Connor Lynch, J. Ellis, Wiliam Maher; time, 1.05 2-5.

Broad Jump—L. Spurrel (S.B.C.) 15.70 ft.; G. Halley (S.B.C.) 15.40 ft.; Fred. Gushue (M.G.C.A.) 15.23 ft.

Half-Mile—H. Skirving (C.L.B.); R. Halley (S.B.C); C. Stone (C.L.B.); time, 2.14.

Pole Vault—D. Fraser (S.B.C.); Gordon Halley (S.B.C.); height, 9 ft. 5 in.

Quarter-Mile—Jim Herder (M.G.C.A.); D. Johnston (M.G.C.A.); J. Hamlyn (M.G.C.A.); time, 57 1-5.

Club Relay—B.G.C.A., T. Butler, J. Herder, D. Johnston; 2nd., St. Bon's.

1 Mile Walk—G. Burnell, (C.L.B.), T. Piercey (N.H), F. Donnelly (S.B.C.); time, 8.12 2-5.

A plucky little entrant in this event was Frank Donnelly, who came third. He was several years the junior of his competitors, and put up a great walk, and if he continues, will have to be reckoned with in coming events.

Telegram Marathon—O'Toole Wins in Record Time—Jack Bell Gets Second Place

With two records already to his credit, the three and five mile championships O'Toole yesterday afternoon won for himself the undisputed title of Newfoundland champion long-distance runner; and he added the laurels of victory to his already creditable record in easy fashion.

At no time, from the start to the finish, was O'Toole's claim to first place in the race in question.

The committee in charge yesterday looked after arrangements in a manner that gave entire satisfaction.

Last year there was some dispute as to the correct starting point, and through the kindness of Mr. Noel, firstsurveyor of the Crown Lands Office, and Mr. J. Burirdge, also of that Department, who worked in conjunction with Messrs Stan Cullen and J. M. Tobin of the A.A.A., the distance was correctly measured on Tuesday forenoon, the party walking over the course to chain the distance. It was found that last year's starting point for the Telegram Road Race was 459 yards short, and the regular starting point near the Octagon was also one hundred yards short of the ten miles. The correct start is a few yards east of Mr. Woodford's cottage, and it was here the competitors lined up at 4 p.m. yesterday, as follows: J Ralph, G. Kelly, J. Willar, J. Russell, John Bell, Ron O'Toole, J. Redmond, J. Wiltshire, R. Haliburton, W. Dodd.

After a photograph had been taken, starter C. J. Ellis gave the signal and the long grind citywards began.

Bell and O'Toole got away together and for the first six hundred yards kept side by side, T aking the hill near Irvine Station, O'Toole took a lead of some ten yards, and running strong, passed the first mile mark with forty yards on Bell who was se cond, while the others were running 10 yards to the rear in groups of two and three.

From this point O'Toole kept gaining, and at the second mile had 100 yards on Bell, who was making every effort to cut down the distance. It was a treat, however, to watch O'Toole; his free and easy style, and the manner in which he took the curves, won the admiration of all who witnessed the race. At Donovan's O'Toole had increased his lead by over 150 yards, and his time to this point, which is exactly 2 1-2 miles from the start, was 13.27. Dunn's was passed in 13.27, and Blackmarsh Road was reached by O'Toole in 23.-30; his lead on Bell being 250 yards at this point.

The six miles mark opposite Brookfield was passed in 32.20. O'Toole was still going strong and showing no sign of fatigue whatever. From this point till the city was reached, hundreds of people assembled along the road and cheered the youthful runner as he passed. All along Cornwall Avenue O'Toole was given a tremendous reception, and on Le Marchant Road the crowds were so dense that the runners were somewhati nterfered with.

The pilot cars and mounted police kept the road clear, and as O'Toole entered St. George's Field, the assembled thousands rose as one and cheered him to the echo. He finished up the remaining laps in splenid style and spurting towards the finish, crossed the tape in 55.59, reducing the previous record made by Jack Bell in 1921, by 34 seconds. The runner was in surprisingly fit condition at the finish. Having finished the course, he was about to leave the field when Bell entered the home stretch, going strong. O'Toole joined with the throng in cheering the vanquished champion as he pluckily crossed the line, his time being 58.-03 secs.

O'Toole's performance in making a record over the long distance is a splendid showing, and compares favorably with those of the Maritime Provinces, and he deserves the congratulations showered upon him and his trainer, Mr. Stan Cullen. He is a worthy successor to Mr. Jack Bell, who for eleven years has held the long distance championship.

The mounted police rendered valuable service in keeping the course clear, while motorists generally joined in lending a hand to assist the sports officials in the performance of their duties.

The committee is grateful to Mayor Cook, Messrs J. R. Robertson, Cyril Cahill, Thos. Hallett and Gus Herder for the use of their cars and other favors.

O'Tole's Time at Mile Posts

1st Mile	5.08
2nd. Mile	10.40
3rd Mile	15.56 3-5
4th. Mile	21.20
5th. Mile	26.58
6th. Mile	32.20
7th. Mile	38.23
8th. Mile	44.20
9th Mile	50.00
10th. Mile	55.59

As will be seen from the above, O'Toole beat his three-mile record of 16.33 made last year, by 25.2-5 secs, and also his five-mile record of 27.-29 4-5 made at Mount Cashel this year, by 31 4-5 secs. His winning time is 34 seconds better than Bell's record road time, and 23 secs. better than Laurie Jackson's time made in the Rink. Jackson's time on that occasion was 67.22. O'Toole's time over what is known as the old course, was approximately 54.33 4-5.

NO OPERATION FOR HER

She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Escaped the Operation Doctor Advised

Louisville, Ky.—"I wish to thank you for what your medicine has done for me. I was in bed for eight or nine days every month and had a great deal of pain. The doctor said my only relief was an operation. I read of Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines and tried the Vegetable Compound and the Sanative Wash, and they surely did wonders for me. I feel fine all the time now, also am picking up in weight. I will tell any one that your medicines are wonderful, and you may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. ED. BOEHNLEIN, 1130 Ash St., Louisville, Ky.

Backache, nervousness, painful times, irregularity, tired and run-down feelings, are symptoms of female troubles. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken whenever there is reason to fear such troubles. It contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they may work in a healthy, normal manner. Let it help you as it has thousands of others. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is now selling almost all over the world.

500,000 Francs In Balance

NEW YORK, Sept. 5—Eighty-four days out from Gibraltar alone in a battered 35 foot sloop in heavy seas about 200 miles off Nantucket. Light F. Gerbult, a French seaman, on Wednesday refused tow to port offered by the Greek liner Byron. The lookout on the Byron saw Gerbult standing clad only in underwear, despite the bitter cold and rolling seas on the deck of the diminutive craft waving his arms furiously and shouting in French. After explaining he was crossing the ocean on a bet of five hundred thousand francs, bound for New York, the hardy Frenchman asked that his empty water-kegs and food bins be filled. He took his bearings as furnished by the Greek navigators but refused their offer of aid and went his way.

Rotary Children's Day

"Yes, child of suffering, thou mayst well be sure
He who ordained the Sabbath loves the poor!
—Holmes.

It was the proud privilege of the Rotarians' wives and friends, to act as hosts to 150 kiddies at their annual outing on Tuesday last. A thorough canvass of the City had been made and the names secured of all delicate and underprivileged children, and following the usual weekly luncheon, the Rotarians called at the homes of these children, all assembling at Fort Townsend preparatory to starting the day's programme. Here noise makers, flags etc., wereprovided, selections rendered by the Mount Cashel band, and the usual parade through the City commenced. A halt was made at the Court House whilst the Traffic Committee called the roll, the band rendering the March Past. All cars being accounted for, the autos then proceeded to Bowring Park where ice cream was provided and another selection of popular airs given by the Mount Cashel boys.

In view of the inclement weather, it was decided to curtail the drive previously arranged and the cars were diverted to the Black March Road returning to Smithville following the usual drive "round the Pond." Here, a sumptuous repast was provided by the Misses Furlong, and given the attention it deserved. Then followed the real fun of the evening—a delightful children's entertainment; ventriloquist Wheeler, with his precocious boy, "Jimmie"; Charlie Chaplin; the inimitable "Dan" Delmar; our own "Charlie" Hutton, and a two real comedy firm, kindly donated by Mr. Kielly of the Nickel for the occasion. Then the children themselves in old time choruses, catchy selections from the band, and a description of McPherson's farm by the Rotarians.

Before the homeward journey, Chairman Jim Ayre told the kiddies what a great pleasure it was to have them, and if the thunderous applause which was made as he thanked each of the performers, can be taken as an indication, they will always be gratefully remembered for the pleasure afforded. Each child was then given a bag of fruit, candy, etc., and all were safely returned to their homes by 8 p.m.

The Rotary Club wishes to thank the following ladies and gentlemen for kindly placing cars at their disposal, Mrs. J. N. March, Mrs. F. C. Alderdyce, Mr. E. Collishaw, Mr. J. M. Ayre, Mr. Gerald Padden, Mr. Fred W. Ayre, Mr. Lloyd Chaplin, Mr. W. J. Higgins, K.C.; also to Mr. Chas. Lester for furnishing transportation for the Band through the City and Mr. Peter O'Mara, for a generous donation of candy.

Grateful thanks are also extended to Bro. Ennis for his kindness in loaning the splendid Band of Mt. Cashel; to Mr. Arthur Bulley, Mr. D. Delmar, and to Messrs. Wheeler, and Bursey, for helping to make the entertainment such an enjoyable one.

Great credit is also due the Misses Furlong, for the efficient manner in which the supper arrangements were carried out; and to Miss Rusdell of Bowring Park and Inspector General Hutchings the Rotary Club is indebted for the assistance given.

"Small service is true service while it lasts:
Of humblest Friends, bright creature! scorn not one:
The Daisy, by the shadow that it casts,
Protects the lingering dew-drop from the sun."

Wedding Bells

BYRNE—HALLEY.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Miss Alice Mary Byrne, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Byrne, and Mr. Patrick F. Halley, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Halley, were united in the bonds of matrimony. The ceremony took place at the Oratory of the Sacred Heart, St. Bride's College, Littledale, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the contracting parties.

The Chapel had been especially decorated with white astors, etc., for the happy event, and the scene was a very pretty one. The bride who wore a dress of dove grey faille silk, with hat to match, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations and roses.

She was attended by Misses Helen Byrne and Mercedes Halley, who wore saxe blue canton crepe dresses with hats to match and carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Mr. F. Byrne supported the groom. Rev. Fr. St. John officiated, and after the ceremony a reception was held at "Hillcrest" the residence of the bride's parents, where the usual toasts were honoured and best wishes tendered the happy young couple who later left by motor car on a honeymoon tour of Conception Bay.

The Importance of Being Pretty

Many a girl's fortune is determined by her face. A skin which is fresh, smooth and alluring with the radiance of health, predicts a happy future, because this is the greatest of all womanly charms.

Every girl can have a beautiful, attractive skin if she will only learn to give it proper care.

The constant application of cold creams, lotions, powder, and rouge tend to make the skin sluggish and inactive. Dirt accumulates and blackheads and other blemishes appear.

Thorough cleansing once a day prevents such a condition and keeps the complexion fresh and smooth. Cold Cream is beneficial when applied to a clean skin and rouge and powder are harmless beautifiers—but—start fresh every day on a clean foundation. Keep your skin active and it will be clear, fresh, youthful and attractive.

Soap to be thorough, need not be harsh. The mildest toilet soap made is the most thorough of all cleansers, as you will know after you have once tried Palmolive.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

American Red Cross Instituting $5,000,000 Relief Campaign For Sufferers.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5—Inauguration by the Red Cross of a five million dollars campaign for relief of Japanese earthquake sufferers was announced today by Elliot Madsworth, Treasurer of the organization, after a conference with President Coolidge, Secretary Hoover and Japanese Ambassador Hanimara. All United States Shipping Board vessels in Far Eastern waters, have been ordered to place themselves under the direction of Admiral Anderson, Commanding the United States Asiatic fleet, for relief duty.

ROME, Sept. 5—In an energetic statement before the Council of Ministers yesterday, Premier Mussolini further emphasized his determination not to recede from his stand in the conflict with Greece, he firmly decided rather to withdraw from the League of Nations than to allow what he considered illegal interference in Italy's right to protect her honor, dignity and the lives of her subjects, when she should be so terribly outraged. The threat of fresh war is merely a bogey intended to impress public opinion, said the Premier. Since neither Greece nor Jugo-Slavia can, and Italy does not intend to make war the bogey vanishes in thin air.

ITALY IS STUBBORN

LONDON, Sept. 4—Italy is holding Corfu, which commands the Adriatic, as a pladge for Greek reparations and is waiting grimly for Greece to comply with her ultimatum. Greece having applied to the League of Nations is also waiting and Italy thus far has ignored the protest of the Council of Ambassadors against her action in seizing Corfu. Prospects for an early settlement have not improved. The Italian Government takes the stand that it did not sign the treaty of 1864, confirming the neutrality of Corfu, and therefore is not bound by the treaty. Mussolini has instructed the Italian representatives at Geneva to abstain from further discussion of the affair and the only hopeful aspect is that Italy seems disposed to have the Court of International Justice pronounce upon the League's competency to deal with such an international dispute. Great despndency prevails in Athens, where the fact that Italy was able to quickly land fifteen thousand troops is considered proof of Mussolini determination. The occupation seems complete and the Italians are organizing as though for a long stay.

PEKING, Sept. 5—A new volcano has broken out in the Chichidu Range about fifty miles Northwest of Tokio according to advices from Osaka.

ATHENS, Sept. 4—Colonel E. Lowe, of St. Louis, member of the Red Cross attached to the Near East relief station at Corfu, reports that twenty were killed by the Italian bombordment during the naval occupation of the Island. Sixteen children were among the victims, being killed when shrapnel shells exploded on the beach where they were bathing near the old fortress. They were orphan refugees. Thirty-two people are in hospital with injuries and about fifty others were slightly injured.

ATHENS, Sept. 5—Three shepherds who were near the scene of the murder of the five Italians, members of the Greeco-Albanian Boundary Commission have been arrested. One of the men is said to have seen one actural killing; the other two saw six Albanians answering descriptions of the murderers, given by eye-witnesses, crossing the Albanian frontier. The Green Government has offered a reward of 1,000,000 drachmas for information leading to arrest of the murderers.

CORFU, Sept. 5—With their meagre belongings piled about them hundreds of inhabitants whose quarters were made uninhabitable by the Italian bombardment, are sleeping in open squares and in streets. The wounded are being treated in Near East relief hospitals.

ROME, Sept. 4—New precautionary arests have been made on the island of Corfu by the Italian occupying forces, and the Governor has divided the island into zones which are presided over by military. Serious incirents have occurred.

"Empress of France" Brings Prince

LONDON, Sept. 5—The Prince of Wales was given an enthusiastic send-off as he left Waterloo Station for Southampton to embark on the Empress of France to sail for Canada. He had become for the time Lord Renfrew, but his reception at the station was done the less enthusiastic, for he was still the smiling Prince to them. Departure was thoroughly informal and no official send-off was given the heir apparent.

Million Homeless In Japan

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4—Every report from Japan throughout Monday either confirmed or increased the previous estimates of havoc wrought in death and destruction by the quadruple catastrophe which Saturday befell the Central and Eastern section of Hondo, the largest of the Islands of the Japanese Empire. Beginning noon Saturday with a series of quakes which razed most of the city of Tokio and large sections of Yokohama and numerous other towns and villages, the disaster was followed by a tidal wave and fires which broke out in scores of places. Then came a typhoon adding to the terror of the tragedy which is probably the greatest calamity of modern times. Estimates now place the dead at two hundred thousand and some say even more than that. A million at least are homeless, half the city has been levelled with enormous loss of life, while the city of Yokohama suffered as badly. The damage done to shipping, the extent of which it is impossible to ascertain, was caused by tidal waves and the typhoon. New shocks on Sunday night destroyed houses at scattered points. From all directions in a radius of fifty miles comes an ever increasing list of places that have been wiped out either by fire, earthquake or tidal waves. Enoghima (Picture Island) said to be the most beautiful Island in the world, has disappeared under the sea or been changed into a pool of mud. Many volcanoes are active and vomiting smoke and lava. Adding to the horror of this situation, at least one hundred thousand tons of rice are needed at once to relieve the starving. Tunger has already broken out in Tokio where gendarmes were forced to use their weapons, fighting back the crowds who wanted food supplies.

Europeans Unemployed In Africa

LONDON, Sept. 5—There are one hundred and fifty thousand unemployed and destitute Europeans, according to a letter from the Committee of unemployed men in South Africa to Tom Mann, Vice-President of the Workers' Union, here.

Missionaries Escape Destruction

TORONTO, Sept. 5—It is believed that all Canadian missionaries connected with the Church of England Missions in Japan escaped unscathed in the earthquake disaster, Headquarters here having received a cablegram reporting all safe from the head of the mission.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, THURSDAY, AUGUST 6th., 1923

Evidence of High Public Spirit

In another column today is published a letter from Catalina with reference to the recent erection of a Union Store at that place.

This structure, which is now in operation, has been erected free of cost by the members of Catalina Council of the F. P. U., under the encouragement and leadership of such friends as he to whom the Catalina letter refers.

When the fishermen can display loyalty as is here demonstrated in such a practical and material way, it goes to indicate that the influence of Union stores are of great importance to the people and are highly valued by them.

There must be upwards of forty stores of the Union Trading Company throughout the whole country, and where they have been established, they have, for the most part, remained in operation through the recent hard years. In those places where Union stores happened to be discontinued, the people are appealing to Sir William Coaker to do all possible to have them re-opened.

Their good influence is realised more keenly after they are once possessed and discontinued, and, a few places, where the trade was carried on in hired stores, they have declared their willingness to build premises by free labour.

At Catalina former branch operations were conducted in a hired premises, although after the closing of which much trade was had with Port Union headquarters direct.

The Catalina friends were not satisfied to remain without a store actually in their midst, while other localities were receiving the benefits of Union competition. The result has been a splendid store, with, it will be hoped, a splendid business.

Here is industry of the highest kind. When we see fishermen having such faith in their own business enterprises as to take off their coats and work for their general benefit, it is a good sign for the Union and the country.

In every community, there are leaders whose energy and faith in a good cause are outstanding influences among the whole people. There is no doubt that the Union owes much to such true-hearted and faithful members.

Good Luck Crowns Union Work

Captains Peter, Charlie and John Blackwood Return With Full Loads The Second Time.

Our Union friends, particularly, will be glad to learn that Captains Peter, Charlie and John Blackwood, each of whom landed full cargoes of Labrador fish at Port Union, are now returning home with second loads.

This extremely good luck means that under the three skippers there have been secured about 6,000 quintals of fish to date, which is record work.

Out of the sixty schooners supplied for the Labrador by the Union Trading Company, there have been no failures. Good luck has followed Union ships and Union skippers; and the Union Trading Company who took the risks of outfitting these men, is also fortunate.

The Advocate congratulates Capts. Peter, John and Charlie Blackwood, and all other skippers and crews who have toiled on the Labrador.

Mussolini, the Dictator

From developments in the Greek-Italian crisis, it certainly does appear that Mussolini is the "strong man" in Italy, but his strength appears to be the iron-fist.

The sacrificed victims of Corfu will forever point to Mussolini as a murderer rather than a "strong man" in the advancement of a nation.

The announcement made to the Council at Geneva by the Italian representative stating officially Italy's attitude towards the League, respecting the quarrel with Greece, is Mussolini's climax to the consistent contempt he has always held for the League and its ideals.

Mussolini's past record show him to be no admirer or friend of Britain, and in a publication shortly before his assumption of office he stated that Italy's interest lay not in contributing to the maintenance of the British Empire, but in demolishing that Empire.

Mussolini is an Italian Imperialist and has no sympathy for the international minds who think of the maintenance of peace. His motto is "The Mediterranean for Mediterraneans," and the bombardment and occupation of Corfu are but the execution of his premediated national policy.

His Napoleonic stunts in Italian public life, his sudden rise to power, his radical abolition of Italian strikes, his Fiume adventures, his Fascití organizations, have converted him to his present role of international dictator.

Playing upon the World's distaste for war, and gambling upon another venture that will crown him Dictator, he has seized Greece by the throat on the island of Corfu and hopes to realize his Mediterranean policy by one fell stroke.

THE AGE OF SPEED

This is the age of speed on land and sea, and over land and sea.

Not only do motorists gets fined for speeding.

Ocean liners break all speed records and race each other on trans-Atlantic routes.

The S. S. Leviathan, largest of passenger ships, covers the Atlantic on the average of 24.93 miles per hour.

Now we hear that an aeroplane mail service has been successfully established between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts of the United States, that will do the service, covering 2400 miles, in the astonishingly short space of 28 hours. This represents the elimination of four days from the usual period of mail delivery, via trains, from coast to coast.

A postal aeroplane which flew from San Francisco on the morning of August 24th, reached New York 26 hours and 14 minutes later, making an average of almost 92 miles per hour.

Says the Toronto Globe:—

"The pony express in its day was regarded as a miracle of speed as compared with other modes of locomotion in that region. The fastest time for the mail stage from St. Joseph, Mo., to San Francisco was 21 days, or 504 hours, while the ox train stretched into weeks and months. On April 3, 1860, the first rider bound for the West left St. Joseph with his mail pouch and reached Carson City, Nevada, on April 12th. The route was extended to Sacramento, a distance in a bee line of about 1,400 miles, and the fastest time from St. Joseph to the California city was seven days and 17 hours. Wm. F. Cody ("Buffalo Bill") and other famous scouts were riders on this train. The success of the experiment convinced the nation that a railway through the Sierras and Rockies was a practicable project."

But speed is not an American monopoly. Quite recently the British Air Minister announced in Parliament that the British Government had accepted in principle a scheme for an airship service to far-away India, for passengers and mails.

The outstanding features of this project are these:—

"Airships as big as the Mauretania, of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity.

"Cruising speed 80 miles an hour.

"Non-stop runs of 3,000 miles day or night.

"Journey to take 74 hours.

"The main features of the scheme are as follows:

"A construction and guarantee company, with $3,000,000 capital, is to form an airship company, to which a series of loans and subsidies are to be paid by the government. The first is to build one ship of 5,000,000 cubic feet capacity, the project being assisted by the government subvention, on a loan basis, of $2,000,000. To qualify for further government assistance the ship must make India in 100 hours. This condition fulfilled, the government becomes liable for further loans at the rate of $2,000,000 a year for the next three years.

BONUSES ARRANGED.

"When the company has maintained a weekly service to India for a period of three months it qualifies for the receipt of still further government payments of $2,000,000 a year for three years. As soon as the company has run a weekly service for a period of three months with an average, passenger accommodation taken up of 50 per cent. capacity, the service must be increased to a bi-weekly service.

"When the stage of development is reached the company qualifies for an additional government subsidy of $1,250,000 a year for three years. Six ships will be engaged in the bi-weekly service, and the subsidy represents an annual payment of $210,000 per ship for three years.

"The company is liable for a series of $2,000,000 loans, and the intention is to utilize the $1,250,000 subsidies in offsetting these loans."

Thus did the pony trail and the stagecoach gave way to the locomotive, the latter now submitting to veritable birds of the air. In its endeavours to eliminate time and space, is it possible the human mind can still further succeed?

Ten Commandments For Motorists

Every automobile to be sold in the future, according to plans of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, will be tagged with the following Ten Commandments:

1. Always remember you are an engineer, full responsible.
2. Always test your brakes when starting, and have them inspected frequently.
3. Never pass a street car when it is stopping, or, if the law permits, proceed very slow past it at the legal distance.
4. Exercise especial care in crossing in front of a street car or in passing it, as you cannot tell what may be coming on the other side.
5. Always signal with hand when slowing down, turning or stopping, even though you have an automatic or mechanical warning device.
6. Look before you back, and sound the horn three times.
7. Try to drive with using the horn as little as possible. A sudden noise may stop pedestrians in their tracks rather than warn them.
8. Don't count too much on the common sense of the other fellow. No one is 100 per cent alert all the time.
9. Drive slowly in streets where children are playing. Remember your own childhood.
10. Cross crossings cautiously. Warning bells may be out of order, watchmen or gate operators may be off duty. Trains cannot stop as quickly as you can. Shift into second to avoid stalling on tracks.

The schr. Henry LeMontague, Capt. Dominey, laden with general cargo for Port Union, is awaiting a time to sail. She is at Vardy's premises.

The handsome schr. Carl S., Capt. J. B. Francis, is lying at Browning's wharf loading with general merchandize for Gaultois and will leave for her destination Saturday.

A Load of Fish From The West Coast

Busy Collecting Fish For Port Union.

The auxiliary vessel, F. P. Union, Capt. Rideout, harbored at St. John's yesterday morning enroute from the West Coast to Port Union with a full cargo of fish for the Fishermen's Union Trading Company.

This fish was brought from West Coast fishermen at Point au Gaul and Lamaline.

The F. P. U. Union left yesterday for Port Union and started to discharge there this morning, to resume her business of collecting fish from the various Union centres throughout the country.

Union Captain Lands Record Trip

Schooner "James Jones Has Full Load.

The schr. "James Jones," Capt. Gideon Bown, has just finished discharging his Labrador voyage at Port Union amounting to 1,280 quintals.

This is one of the largest catches for the season.

Capt. Bown is the son of Mr. Messach Bown of Badger's Quay, both being prominent Unionists.

The schooner "James Jones" was built at Port Union.

English Party Left For Corner Brook

Sir Glynn and Lady West, and son and daughter, with Major Jennings, Mr. Bowater and others left by special train last night for Corner Brook, and will leave there in a day or so for England via Canada.

Major Jennings will not return to Newfoundland until the Spring.

Silvia Arrives

The Red Cross boat S.S. Silvia, Capt. Mitchell, arrived from New York via Halifax at 10 a.m. The following passengers came by her:—

From New York—Miss G. Healey, Miss A. Power, Mr. L. C. Mews, J. M. Devine, Rev. Bro. J. C. Slayne, Rev. Bro. J. H. Dunphy, Miss A. Wadden, and 4 second class.

From Halifax—E. Ewing, Sir R. A. Squires, Mr. Edw. Bidel, Miss J. Bedel, W. A. Mackay, Miss Vaughan, Miss O. Hutton, Mrs. H. A. Bowring, Miss Bowring, Mrs. Jones, Miss B. Bowring, E. R. Bowring, 8 second class and 64 round trippers.

The ship carried a freight equal of ten thousand barrels.

Government Ships

Argyle left Argentia 4 a.m. on Lamaline route.

Clyde left Fortune Hr. 12.25 a.m. yesterday outward.

Glencoe left Pushthrough 9 a.m., going west.

Home left Parsons' Pond 5.15 a.m. yesterday, going north.

Kyle left Port aux Basques 1.40 a.m.

Sagona, not reported since leaving Grady Saturday.

Malakoff left Princeton 4.20 p.m. yesterday, outward.

Stag Bay Prospectors To Bring Action

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 5—George Winston, a prospector, who with several other veteran gold hunters, returned yesterday from Stag Bay, after a fruitles search for the treasures thought to have been available in the frozen soil of the Labrador coast, declared there was not enough gold there to cover a penny, and he intimated that a number of the disappointed prospectors are preparing to bring legal action against the promoters from whom they bought claims with a view to recovering some of the money they took from enthusiastic believers in the boom.

Will Continue Coal Strike

CALGARY, Sept. 5—Two thousand Drumheller and Wayne coal miners at a mass meeting at Drumheller last night declared to remain on strike until James Conroy, one of their number, was reinstated. Charges of discrimination were made against the Drumheller alley operators and the miners declared they would remain out until any men blacklisted were reinstated.

F. P. U. Store Erected at Catalina Free of Cost, Is Now In Operation.

Editor Advocate.

Dear Sir,—I wish to avail of the use of your influential, esteemed and largely read paper to express the thanks of the F. P. U. members of Catalina to Mr. Garland Clouter for the manner in which he succeeded in getting the friends to erect free of cost the F.P.U. store at Catalina. Friend Clouter is one of the most loyal Unionists of Trinity Bay and was chiefly instrumental in securing the erection of this splendid Union building. He worked late and early, day by day, to have the building completed, and it stands as a monument to his energy and Union devotion.

Friend Garland Clouter does not forget to patronize the store now in operation. I venture to say he visits the shop as often as any other man in Catalina. He is proud of the job and is delighted to have a Union store once again in operation at East Catalina.

Uncle Garland is also Union Delegate for Catalina Council, and it is part of his duty to see that all who work at Port Union carries an F. P. U. card.

Trusting his big jib will always draw,

I remain,
Yours truly,
A LOOKER ON.

LATEST

GENEVA, Sept. 6—The superstructure of the League of Nations is imperiled and in British view, the very foundation of the present day Europe is shaking. Such briefly is the summary situation at Geneva Wednesday night. Because of Italy's refusal to recognize the right of League of Nations to intervene in the dispute with Greece, consternation and sadness prevail everywhere, for it is generally thought and reluctantly admitted that the League has been unable to withstand her first great test, namely its practicaluse as machinery for regulating differences between nations.

TOKIO, Sept. 6.—Yokohama is a charnel house; cans and waterfront are filled with dead, and stench from decomposing bodies is unbearable according to refugees arriving here from the stricken city today. It is estimated two hundred foreigners lost their lives there. The quake left great gaps in pavement and tumbled most of buildings. Fire at once completed destruction. Remnants of the population are gathered under Bluff without food or shelter, and in a pitiful condition.

Police Court

Two letter carriers from the General Post Office were arrested on Tuesday on the complaint of the Postmaster General charged with the larceny, during the past six months, of several letters. They were arraigned, and at the request of their counsel, Mr. Higgins, K.C., the hearing was postponed until Saturday. They were released on bail of $500.00 each and two sureties in like amount.

A domestic in for safe-keeping was discharged.

A 20 year old laborer, Pennywell Road, drunk, was discharged.

SIR GLYN WEST

Tendered Farewell Dinner by H. D. Reid, Esq.—A Notable Gathering

Last evening, at his residence, "Devon Place," Forest Road, H. D. Reid, Esquire tendered a farewell dinner to Sir Glyn West, who with Lady West and party left last night en route to England, after a very pleasant visit to the Ancient Colony.

The guests included the following public and commercial gentlemen:

Sir William Allardyce, Sir Glyn West, Hon. W. R. Warren, Sir Edgar Bowring, Sir William Coaker, Sir Michael Cashin, Mr. W. J. Higgins, Sir Marmaduke Winter, Hon. S. J. Foote, Hon. Tasker Cook, Mr. R. Reid, Mr Leonard Outerbridge, Sir Joseph Outerbridge, Mr. M. S. Sullivan, Mr. R. G. Rendell, Mr. Angus Reid, Mr. J. A. Paddon.

Having discussed an excellent menu, the following toast list was spoken to. The speeches were of an exceptionally high order, and were such as must have impressed our distinguished visitor with the potential value of Newfoundland, not merely as a country, but in her forest and mineral resources. The toast list was as follows:

"The King"

"His Majesty's Representative in Newfoundland"—Prop. Sir Glyn West.

Resp.—His Excellency Sir Wm. Allardyce.

"Newfoundland"—Prop. Major Jennings.

Resp.—The Prime Minister, Hon. W. R. Warren.

"Nfld. Power & Paper Co."—Prop. W. J. Higgins, K.C.

Resp.—Mr. Bowater.

"The Chairman"—Prop. Sir Michael Cashin.

Resp. H. D. Reid, Esq.

"God Save the King."

ADVERTISE IN THE "ADVOCATE."

English Girl's Death In Cairo Is Mystery

Wife of Prince Abbas Halim Found With Revolver Bullet In Breast.

CAIRO, Aug. 24—An English girl who was married three times, the last two times into an Egyptian family, is alleged to have been cleaning a revolver in her boudoir in the house of Prince Abbas Halim—her latest husband—at Alexandria, this morning, when a shot re-echoed, and soon afterward she was found dead with a bullet through her breast. The Egyptian press this afternoon confirms the story, but while official circles confirm the news of the demise of the Princess Abbas Halim, they do not advance an opinion whether her death was caused by an accident.

The deceased Princess' maiden name was Miss Harrington. She first married a Mr. Ellis. Then she married Prince Djemaledine. She was divorced from him and subsequently married Prince Abbas Halim.

She and her husband were to have left Egypt today, and it is stated that she was concluding her packing when she noticed a revolver and attempted to clean it.

Some credence is given this theory, but nevertheless the whole criminal investigation force of Alexandria, from the Minister of Justice downward, is concentrating on discovering the actual facts surrounding the tragedy.

Drys Now Plan to Ban Tobacco From World

Leipsic Professor Says Weed Caused Death of Carnarvon From Egyptian Fever.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 23.—Many of the delegates to the Anti-Alcoholic Congress here are holding special meetings at which measures to combat the use of tobacco are discussed.

Prof. Martin Hartmann of Liepsic, addressing one of the meetings, dilated upon the injurious effects of excessive smoking. He contended that had Lord Carnarvon been a non-smoker he would have survived the illness with which he was stricken while in Egypt. Smoking, he added, tended to retard growth, and had caused reduction in the average height of Americans and Englishmen in the last century.

M. Schaumann, a number of the Finnish Paliament, in a speech before the Congress today, declared the majority of the delegates were like himself, supporters of Prohibition without regarding it as their aim but as a measure in the fight against the dangerous effects of alcohol.

He admitted with regret that the consumption of alcohol in Finland at the present time was about the same as before Prohibition was inaugurated. He also admitted conditions were growing worse in spite of increased penalties, the number of persons sentenced in 1922 for violation of the Prohibition Law being 16,000 as against 500 in 1919.

"The experiment of Prohibition in Finland is a failure," he concluded, "and also a serious danger to everybody's feeling of justice. The Finnish Prohibition Law has seriously damaged the excellent cause of abstinence."

DOCK STRIKE COSTLY

It is estimated that the fruitless dock strike, which has just ended, cost England £400,000 in wages and rates, increased the price of butter by twopence a pound, and cheese a penny and a half, while great loss was caused by damage to perishable cargoes which were held up. The grain and timber trades suffered most heavily, and Canadian cargoes were among those affected.

Are They "Ghosts?"

Spiritualists are interested in a "ghost" portrait which is said to have appeared on a pillar in the Abbey Church, Bath, immediately below the colors of a Somerset regiment. The picture is supposed to represent a bearded soldier, wearing a cap or bonnet, and carrying a full pack. It is asserted that the portrait gives evidence of change from time to time—as if some "spirit" message was being attempted.

Wet or Dry.

Scotch Temperance advocates are girding on their armor for the autumnal local option campaign which is to be carried on under the temperance act. Before a vote on the question of local option in any area may be taken at least 10 per cent of the electorate must sign a requisition for such vote. The provisions of the act confine the number of contests this year to 346 boroughs. The liquor trade which on the last ocasion of a poll fought a defensive battle, is credited with the intention of seeking this year to restore the licenses in those areas which have gone completely or partly dry.

Swam Niagara Falls.

Swimming Niagara rapids above the American Falls, was successfully accomplished by a red squirrel. The little animal fell into the stream a few hundred yards above the brink of the cataract. It succeeded in swimming to a rock some distance out in the river. Reservation employees saw the little animal's predicament and shoved a long ladder out to the rock. But the squirrel disdained the ladder and plunged into the stream, landing on the mainland shore after a desperate struggle, only a few feet from the brink of the falls. Reservation officials say this is their first experience with a swimming squirrel.

Tobacco's Lure.

Tobacco's fragrant lure led a sailor to swim half a mile to the shore and back through a strong current and choppy sea to get a packet of cigarettes. He was employed in a training schooner held up off the Isle of Wight, by adverse winds. On landing he bought a packet of cigarettes from a passer-by on the sea front, and swam back to the ship with his purchase in a battle. He said he had not had a "fag" for three days. The skipper refused to let him have the ship's boat owing to the strong tides and rough sea, so he determined to swim ashore. He had the money and bottle in a handkerchief round his neck.

British Building Slumps.

Britain's building trade conditions are viewed from a gloomy standpoint by the president in his address at the opening of the annual conference of National Federation of Building Trades Operatives at Ilfracombe. He said the population was gaining rapidly upon the supply of buildings and it would take twenty years of building operations to catch up if the builders were to give even a tolerable measure of housing accommodation, nevertheless building was going back owing to the bad conditions of the industry. Fathers were ceasing to apprentice their boys to the building trade, because the wages were so ridiculously low. The nation declined to limit overcrowding and this eventually would mean desperation and potential barbarism.

Causes Bad Weather.

Radio is blamed for the continual bad weather in France. Without giving any reason for the charge, a farmer writes: "The bad weather for the last few years unquestionably is due to wireless." He suggests that broadcasting be forbidden. Another suggest farmers refuse to sow crops this year unless broadcasting ceases. Similar letters are received by the Minister of Posts and Telegraphs. Experts can find no basis for the charges against the radio, nor for those of the French savant, back from America, who says he is still quite ill from the enormous use made of electricity in the United States. He says electricity is detrimental to the health of persons living in big cities whose nervous systems rapidly become galvanized, if they are not electrocuted. He ascribes this to the fact that in America most houses have metal supports, while the dense circulation of varying particles drives electricity about and has a galvanizing effect on the nerves.

Earl Haig, Unveiler.

An exquisite memorial was recently unveiled by Earl Haig for the Caledonian Club, London. It takes the form of a symbolic piece of bronze statutary, a mother and her son, the latter embodying the eager courage of those who prepared the poignant spirit of sacrifice, even the sacrifice of an only son, in the hour of the country's need. Earl Haig said the Club was one of the centres of Scottish life in London. On their roll of honor they would find written names long known and honored whenever Scotsmen had met together. There were names that had sounded through centuries of our history, but no name which was not that of a gallant Scottish gentleman and a loyal son of Scotland.

Two Heroic Men.

A temporary Cenotaph to the memory of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins was unveiled on Leinster lawn, adjoining the Government buildings in Merrion Street in the presence of Governor-General Healy, Government Ministers, Deputies and Senators, army chiefs, distinguished foreign visitors and representatives of the professions and of trade and commerce. Four minutes silence was observed, being broken only by the booming of guns in Phoenix Park. President Cosgrave, in his oration, declared in the name of the Irish nation that "we offer here a symbol of Ireland's reverence, sorrow, pride, and gratitude, to the memory of two heroic men."

Health Hints

Nurse says, if you are dizzy when you rise quickly from a chair or any resting place the cause may be anemia as well as a high blood pressure. Anemia is due to many things such as, too little exercise, digestive disturbances or defective teeth. This condition may be discovered by a paleness of the living membranes of the lower eyelids, which can be seen when they are inverted.

This is also often caused by a badly choosen diet and can be averted by eating the proper food. Limes, lentrils, spinach, apples, raw cabbage are good. The cabbage is good to help digest the food and the others contain iron. Bone marrow, baked or cooked with cream dressing and served on toast is said to be an ideal blood making food.

RONALD O'TOOLE

All things have a time, and all men have their day;
Jack Bell, as a racer, is out of the way.
Eleven long years sure he did his work well ;
Last evening, the kibosh was put on Jack Bell
By a fleet-footed pacer, as tough as a mule,
A sturdy West-ender, Young Ronald O'Toole.

There was Willar, and Kelly, Ralph,
Russell, and Dodd;
All of them runners, and "boys of the sod;
Haliburton and Wiltshire, and Redmond also,
When "Off!" was the word—they were ready to go.
There was one run with pleasure, as boys run at school,
And he was the victor, Young Ronald OToole.

Ten miles was the distance the youths had to run.
The friends of Jack Bell thought that he'd "take the bun."
Then others said "Ron is too fleet for our Jack,"
And, like true sports, I reckon,
they stood to his back.
Oh, he is a corker, runs steady and cool.
Sure they can't hold a candle to
Ronald O'Toole.

The race is now over, all things
cleared away;
But this Fall, there's coming another great day,
When we hope Ron will run up in old Halifax,
And give every one of the runners their "cracks."
And then, we will cheer him, and call him our jewel;
That fleet little runner, Young Ronald O'Toole.

WEDDING BELLS

CROSBIE—BENNETT

The marriage took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, "Devon Place," King's Bridge Road, of Miss Nina Louise Crosbie, eldest daughter of Sir John and Lady Crosbie, with Mr. Frank Bennett, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bennett. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present at the ceremony which was performed by Rev. Dr. Fenwick; Mr. Arthur Mews, C.M.G., provided appropriate music. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a gown of silver brocade trimmed with pearls and diamonds. Her veil of tulle was fastened with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and sweet peas. Her sister, Miss Vera Crosbie, who was the only bridesmaid, wore a pretty acquamarine frock of satin beaute with a cap of tulle and vari-colored leaves on her head. She also carried a bouquet of carnations and sweet peas. Mr. V. S. Bennett, brother of the groom was best man. After the marriage ceremony a reception was held and was attended by over 160 guests, including many of those most prominent in the political, commercial and social life of St. John's. The numerous and beautiful presents were placed on exhibition in a special room and was greatly admired by the guests. The wedding cake, which had been made in England, was a splendid specimen of the confectioner's art. It was crowned with a beautiful ornamented basket filled with orange blossoms, while several tiny iced baskets were ranged around it. After the cake had been cut by the bride, Dr. Fenwick, in a very happy speech, proposed her health and the toast was replied to by the groom. The toast of the bridesmaid was proposed by the groom and responded by the best man. Several other toasts were also honoured, including those of the parents of the bride and groom proposed by Rev. Fr. Edward O'Brien of Northern Bay and responded to by Sir J. C. Crosbie and Mr. J. R. Bennett; the Prime Minister, Sir Michael Cashin, Rev. Fr. O'Brien and Rev. Canon Jeeves.

After the reception, the bride and groom motored to Topsail, where they spent the night at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Herder, which had been placed at their disposal. They leave by to-day's express for Spruce Brook, where the honeymoon will be spent.

Intoxicated Men Have Narrow Escape

On Monday night two firemen of the S. S. Watchful, which was laying in the stream waiting to start north with the Supreme Court on Circuit, while under the influence of liquor jumped overboard. A dory was launched from the ship to rescue them, but they were in such a state of intoxication as to be unable to help themselves.

A plucky sailor, who manned the dory, risked his life, to save his shipmates. The dory quickly filled with water, but the sailor held on to the two stupified men, until help came from the shore.

The men in the Customs night boat saw their predicament and hurried to their assistance in their motor boat reaching them in the nick of time, as the water in the dory was then up to the gunwales. The firemen were in an exhausted state and were taken on board the ship where restoratives were applied, and they were well enough to proceed in the ship when she sailed Tuesday morning.

Mr. Richard Bursey, of Port Union, is now in town.

Mrs. Evans, wife of Mr. John Evans, son of the proprietor of the Newfoundland Quarterly, who has been ill for some time, is much improved in health and is able to go out now and take the country air.

Sir Wm. Coaker arrived in town on Wednesday at 1 a.m. and will leave for Port Union shortly.

Mr. Edgar Bowring, nephew of Sir Edgar Bowring, with his mother and sister, were passengers by the Silvia this forenoon. Flags are flying on Bowring's premises in honor of the event.

Sir R. A. Squires Arrives

Sir Richard Squires arrived by the S.S. Silvia this morning, having joined the boat at Halifax. Seen at his office, Sir Richard had nothing for publication re local political affairs, but gave us an interesting review on trade and financial conditions in the principal Canadian cities visited by him during his trip, which was taken mainly for health purposes. He spent some weeks at Battle Creek Sanatorium undergoing medical treatment and returns very much improved in health. We hope to give Sir Richard's interview in to-morrow's issue.

LOCAL ITEMS

The express is due at 4.15 p m.

Not much fish has been caught the past week or so at Fox Trap. Up to that time a good lot was taken. Bait is scarce there.

Yesterday, raspberries brought in by men from Fox Trap were sold at $1.60 a gallon.

Dozens of carts were coming to town all the forenoon, fish laden, from Torbay, Pouch Cove, Outer Cove and other nearby places.

Nine tourists registered at the Crosbie this morning. They came by the Silvia, and all of them are pleased with the appearance of the city and the fine weather now prevailing.

Last evening, some boats returned from the fishing grounds off St. John's. They had a quantity of large sized fish which were caught on the grounds near Cape Spear. The fishermen informed us that they had a hard time getting to port as the wind was high and the tide strong.

Farmers from the country informed us this morning that the potatoes must have suffered much last night from the heavy frost.

When you once use Ivory toilet soap you will wonder why you did not get to using it before for Ivory gives perfect soap satisfaction at little cost. Ivory is the purest soap and gives best value. At all Union Stores now.

A number of females from the city with baskets were noticed at an early hour this morning proceeding over "dear old southside hill" in search of berries. We hope they may be successful.

The Model School, Synod Building, opened this morning, at 9.30. Pupils who desire admission had better get their names entered promptly, as the Management does not propose to admit more pupils than there is healthy accomodation for.

Constable Devine accompanied a man to town this forenoon from Chapel's Cove who had been assaulted a short while ago. The constable brought the man to the General Hospital for treatment.

As good as any soap can be that's Ivory toilet soap. Yet the price it not high. Every family can afford Ivory soap. It is a sensible economical soap. No fancy wrappers or stylish boxes, just plain wholesome pure soap that's what you want isn't it? Ivory at all Union Stores now.

We recommend the delicate condition of the floor of King's Bridge to the proper authorities. Parts of it need attention, they are worn very much owing to the large traffic which continually pass over the bridge.

"No matter whose the lips that would speak, they must be free and ungagged. Let us believe that the whole of truth can never do harm to the whole of virtue; and remember that to get the whole of truth you must allow every man, right or wrong, freely to utter his conscience, to protect him in so doing. Entire unshackled for every man's life, no matter what may be his doctrine—the safety of free discussion, no matter how wide its range.

"The community which dares not protect its humblest and most hated members in the free utterance of his opinions, no matter how false or hateful, is only a gang of slaves.... If there is anything in the universe that can't stand discussion, let it crack."

Those noble words were spoken by Wendell Philips, the immrotal American emacipator, abolitionist and orator. Lacking the brevity, they yet compare favorably with Volaire's classic exclamation:

"I disagree with what you say; but I will defend to the death your right to say it."

My hat is off to the French—the second time in five or ten years. I am full of admiration of the spirit which prompted President Poincare personally to forbid the showing of the motion picture film, "Birth of a Nation," on account of the scenes in it which would probably create prejudice against Negroes. Personally, with his own hand, the President of the Republic of France, ordered that this film be banned from the theatres of France. His action shows admirably the gallant spirit of toleration and absence of race prejudice that is found in France. I suppose there is less race prejudice in that country than anywhere else in the world.

Now, I canot say that I agree with the act itself. The act, it as it seems to me, is in violation of the principle of free speech, and free press, and the free expression of opinion. The author of the film "Birth of a Nation" believes certain things about Negroes, evidently, and he should be permitted to enjoy the right of expressing that opinion or attitude without official interference. Government should never attempt to control ideas or opinions, or the expression of them, unless, of course, they come within the laws against indecency, etc. If theatre managers didn't wish to exhibit the picture, that is their business and their right. But officials should not interfere with any expression of opinion.

Still, the spirit which prompted the act was magnaminous and noble, and as such merits the approval of all lovers of high principles.

I am glad to see that the American Legion proposes a world conference to limit the construction of airplane armament by the various nations, just as at the Washington Conference they agreed to limit the construction of naval armament.

James Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the British Labor Party in the House of Commons, introduced a similar proposition in that parliament, but, altho in sympathy with the spirit and idea of it, that body would not pass the resolution on theg round that it would not likely be accepted by, say, France, the nation which is now occupying the position in Europe occupied formerly by Germany.

However, I think that such a world conference to limit air armament will take place, and a good thing it will be, too.

Scientists estimate the age of the ocean to be between 30,000,000 and 170,000,000 years. Scientists know how much sodium (salt) is deposited annually by the sea, and by comparing this to the amount of sodium that exists, it becomes possible to know the age of the ocean itself. In much the same way the age of a tree may be told—count the rings and you know its age. The age of the earth is ascertained in the same way. The earth consists of various strata or layers of different geologic formation, and from a cross sectional view of the earth it is possible to know its age.

Come, friends, weep bitter tears with me over the sad fall from high places of Baroness von Reidel, former court beauty and lady-in-waiting in Germany. The poor Baroness is now earning a livelihood in a chocolate factory at Saalfeld.

She formerly adorned the gorgeous court of the Prince of Schwarzburg, Germany, but her fortunes appear to have declined from the amount of the downfall of the monarchy and the establishment of the German Republic. So, reduced to poverty, the Baroness went to work.

Well, Germany, as you know, is a highly unionized nation—there are 12,000,000 organized workers in the unions there. So, naturally, the Baroness was expected to join the union. But, altho she had put her pride in her pocket, the Baroness would not stoou to this indignity. Never! Join the Socialists? Not while she had my say in it! So there was a strike in that factory over the matter.

This is indicative of the spirit of the times. Anyone who a few years ago had suggested that the day would soon come when lords and baronesses should be earning their livelihood in factories, he would have been laughed at, wouldn't he?

I fancy that the day will come when even baronesses will be glad to join the union of the trade in which they happen to be employed.

Greek Government Takes Naval Action

Fleet Ordered to Gulf of Volg

Fleet Ordered to Gulf of Volg. — Italian Forces Order Confiscation of All Arms in Corfu — British Weapons Are Stored in Consulate — Many Subjects of Murder of Italian Mission Arrested by Greek Authorities— Two of Actual Murderers Caught — Council of League of Nations Takes Cautious Course In Near East Dispute.

ROME, Sept. 6—The withdrawal of the Greek squadron from the waters adjacent to Athens, with orders to proceed to the Gulf of Volg, news of which was received here to-day, was interpreted in semi-official circles as an attempt to create the impression abroad that Italy was planning further naval movements.

It is stated that the intentions of the Italian government are absolutely pacific.

CORFU, Sept. 6.—The Italian occupation authorities have ordered the confiscation of the arms of all nationalities here, including members of the Italian colony.

British subjects may store their arms in their own consulate. The town is quiet and orderly, but the inhabitants are anxiously wondering how long the occupation will last.

No Greek ships are arriving or departing, and it is impossible to proceed directly to Athens.

MILAN, Sept. 6.—Popolo Italia, the organ of Premier Mussolini has received a despatch from Triste, saying that telegrams from various sources confirm the news that the Greek government is on the trace of the assassins of the Italian Mission.

Many suspects have been arrested at Janina and also along the Greco-Albanian frontier, and amongst them are two of the assassins.

The authorities are hunting for others and hope to shortly arrest them.

GENEVA, Sept. 6—The Council of the League of Nations adjourned to-day after agreeing to send the minutes of its meeting to the Council of Ambassadors and thus hasten a solution of the Greeco-Italian crisis

It was decided to discuss the competency of the League at a later date.

Before adjournment, Signor Salandra, Italy's chief representative, announced his intention to abstain from voting, without committing himself on the question of the competency of the League.

Paul Hymans, Belgium's representative, said he had great sympathy for Italy, but that he must in consequence declare he could not accept the Italian views on the question of competency.

Sweden's representative agreed with the Belgian stand.

Ship Raided and 1200 Cases of Liquor Is Stolen

HALIFAX, Sept. 6—The Digby County schooner Lucille B. was raided off the Massachussetts coast by fifteen men in three boats, who made off with 1200 cases of the liquor cargo of the Lucille B.

The raided schooner was commanded by Captain Leblanc of Wedgeport, Yarmouth County, who was on shore attending to business at the time of the raid.

The news was given by the mate under oath, when he sailed the vessel into Metighan this p.m.

The captain was left ashore.

LIFE'S MIRROR

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
And strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

For life is the mirror of king and slave,
'Tis just what you are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

—Madeline S. Bridges.

LONDON, Sept. 7.—Appalling nature of Japanese earthquake, fire and tidal wave, with greatest loss of life and property of any similar catastrophe in modern times, continues to be told in meagre and disconnected press despatches and private messages from foreign residents who survived the holocaust. But Europe still awaits the graphic story of how the earth shook to pieces and then consumed in flames Japan's Capital and scores of towns around Tokio Bay, including the great commercial port of Yokohama. On the whole the news received today is of a more hopeful nature, than any previously received, one authoritive message placing the death list of foreigners in Yokahama at seventy. Even this loss in dead, which is small compared with first reports, is enormous for a foreign colony of few thousands, and indicates that loss of life among crowded natives may reach highest reported figures of hundreds of thousands. With army divisions and naval units converging on devasted centres for relief work and reconstruction Japan is bravely fighting the situation, while Relief Headquarters at Kobe reports response to relief calls coming satisfactorily to meet all demands from every nation in the world.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Sept. 7.—All principal barriers to settlement of controversy, which shut down hard coal mines, have been set aside by agreement between miners and operators, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, announced tonight, with the exception of Union demand for increase in pay greater than ten per cent. for day workers in field and for check-off system of collecting dues.

KLAHAMA CITY, Sept. 7—Unfounded story of Tulsa, as claimed from sworn testimony taken before military court. Admiral Blake, executive councillors presented to the press last night, account of some of brutal floggings that led Governor C. Walton to invoke martial law in Tusla county. In referring to serious whipping, only few of these that have spread terror for more than a year in many Tulsa county homes, said in every case, thus far examined, with the exception of two have not preceded very far, evidence has led Straight to doorstep of invisible empire known as knights of Klu-Klan. Mr. Blake says they used a leather strap about three inches wide and four feet long, with end sliced into three straps under which the strongest man will be subdued by fifty lashes. This cruelty has been even extended to woman, when she and husband were dragged from bed and both lashed and whippers charging them with selling beer.

Dead and Dying Mingle With Destruction of Yokohama, Tokio and Other Cities

Molten Lava Pouring Down Mountain Sides From Kileau Volcano — New Island Appears off Tokio, While Oshma Sinks With 10,000 Inhabitants.

TOKIO, Sept. 6—Tokio and Yokohame, separated by only a few miles of water, to-day lie crushed by the overpowering forces of the earthquake, or a series of them, that came with scant warning Saturday last and brought crashing down the homes and business places of those great cities.

All around for miles, other cities, towns and villages have been dashed from their foundations, and what upheavals of earth failed to accomplish was completed by fire and tidal waves.

While some entire sections of Japan's capital have been thrown into indescribable ruins, a very considerable section of the city remains.

Not so with Yokohama, refugees from which are beginning to find their way into Tokio with the first real news of the disaster in that city.

Terrific destruction levelled that city from end to end, they tell, and their descriptions of the clutter of dead and dying in the streets and waterways is horrifying.

Adding to the horror of the situation, whole sections of the city were isolated when great gaps opened in the ground, absolutely shutting off those within the area from escape from the flames.

Another distressing feature is that thousands are known to have been forced to lie injured among the ruins, and die lingering deaths either from fire or from other injuries.

NAGASAKA, Sept. 6—General Fukuda, in command at Tokio, says order there is being quickly restored.

Food and other materials have been requisitioned everywhere and are no warriving at Tokio by sea and being distributed to the destitute.

Army engineers are repairing railways and roads so as to enable supplies to be transported by land.

HAWAII, Sept. 6—The Kileau volcano resumed activity to-day, molten lava bursting skyward with loud reports, to heights of one hundred and fifty feet in the air and stream down the mountainside.

PEKING, Sept. 6—The police of Chiba, at the Northeast corner of Tokio Bay, report a new island off Izu Peninsula, while they say that the island of Oshma, which contained an active volcano, is invisible and is feared to have gone down with its 10,000 or more inhabitants.

There is still no news from Bonin Islands and catastrophic changes there are feared.

HONOLULU, Sept. 6—No other word but "hell" can describe the scene in Tokio during and after the earthquake, according to a correspondent of The Hawaii Shimpo, who to-day sent from Sendai, Japan, an eye-witness story of the disaster.

No vocabulary, he said, could suffice to adequately describe the scenes of horror.

SALVATION ARMY STRATS RELIEF OF SUFFERING

TORONTO, Sept. 6—The Salvation Army has organized a great three-day effort throughout Canada East territory as part of a huge general scheme for Japanese relief inaugurated by General Booth from Headquarters in London.

Last week from Placentia along the Cape Shore fish was fairly plentiful for jiggers. Some squid bait.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XVII.

A slight mistiness which Donald with swelling heart, had noted in his father's eyes a few minutes before, was now gone. They flashed like naked claymores in the glance that Andrew Daney once had so aptly described to his wife.

For the space of ten seconds father and son looked into each other's soul and therein read the other's answer. There could be no surrender.

"You have bred a man, sir, not a mollycoddle," said the young laird quietly. "I think we understand each other." He rose, drew the old man out of his chair, and threw a great arm across the latter's shoulders. "Good-night, sir," he murmured humbly, and squeezed the old man's shoulders a little.

The Laird bowed his head but did not answer. He could not trust himself to do so. Thus Donald left him, standing in the middle of the room, with bowed head a trifle to one side, as old Hector listened for advice from some unseen presence. The Laird of Tyee had thought he had long since plumbed the heights and depths of joys and sorrows of fatherhood. The tears presently came.

* * * *

A streak of moonlight filtered into the room as the moon sank in the sea and augmented the silver in a head that rested on two clasped hands, while Hector McKaye, kneeling beside his chair, prayed to his stern Presbyterian God once more to save his son from the folly of his love.

—o—

CHAPTER XVII.

IT HAD BEEN Donald McKaye's intention to go up to the logging camp on the first log-train leaving for the eeds at seven o'clock on Monday morning, but the news of Dirty Dan's plight caused him to change his plans. Strangely enough, his interview with his father, instead of causing him the keenest mental distress, had been productive of a peculiar sense of peace. The frank, sympathetic, and temperate manner in which the old laird had discussed his affair hal conduced to produce this feeling. He passed a restful night, as his father observed when the pair met at the breakfast table.

"Well, how do you feel this morning, son?" the old man queried kindly.

"Considerably better than I did before our talk last night, sir," Donald answered.

"I haven't slept," old Hector continued calmly, "although I expect to have a little nap during the day. Just about daylight a comforting thought stole over me."

"I am glad to hear it, dad."

"I've decided to repose faith in Nan, having none at all in you. If she truly loves you, she'll die before she'll hurt you."

"Perhaps it may be a comfort to you to know that she has so expressed herself to me."

"Bless her dear heart for that! However, she told me practically the same thing."

He scooped his eggs into the egg-cup and salted and peppered them before he spoke again. Then:

"We'll not discuss the matter further. All I ask is that you'll confine your visits to the Sawdust Pile to the dark of the moon; I trust to your natural desire to promote my peace of mind to see to it that no word of your—affair reaches your mother and sisters. They'll not handle you with the tact you've had from me."

"I can well believe that, sir. Thank you. I shall exercise the utmost deference to your desires consistent with an unfaltering adherence to my own code."

There it was again—more respectful defiance! Had he not, during the long, distressing hours of the night, wisely decided to leave his son's case in the hands of God and Nan Brent. The Laird would have flown into a passion at that. He compromised by saying nothing, and the meal was finished in silence.

After breakfast, Donald went down to the hospital to visit Dirty Dan. O'Leary was still alive but very close to death; he had lost so much blood that he was in a state of coma.

"He's only alive because he's a fighter, Mr. McKaye," the doctor informed Donald. "If I can induce some good healthy man to consent to a transfusion of blood, I think it would buck Dan up considerably!."

"I'm your man," Donald informed him. It had occurred to him that Dirty Dan had given his blood for the house of McKaye; therefore, the least he could do was to make a partial payment on the debt.

The doctor, knowing nothing of the reason for Dirty Dan's predicament, was properly amazed.

"You—the boss—desire to do this?" he replied. "We can get one of this wild rascal's comrades—"

"That wild rascal's my comrade, doctor. I'm more or less fond of Dan." He had removed his coat and was already rolling up his sleeve. I'm half Gael," he continued smilingly, "and you know, we must not adulterate Dirty Dan's blood any more than is absolutely necessary. Consider the complications that might ensue if you gave Dan an infusion of blood from a healthy Italian. The very first fight he'd engage in after leaving this hospital, he'd use a knife instead of nature's weapon's. Get busy!"

But the doctor would take no liberties with the life-blood of the heir of Tyee until he had telephoned to The Laird.

"My son is the captain of his own soul," old Hector answered promptly. "You just see that you do your job well; don't hurt the boy or weaken him too greatly."

* * *

An hour after the operation, father and son sat beside Dirty Dan's bed. Presently the ivory-tinted eye-lide flickered, whereat old Hector winked sagely at his son. Then Dirty Dan's whiskered upper lip twisted humorously, and he whispered audibly:

"Ye young divil! Oh-oh, ye young vagabond! Faith, if The Laird knew what ye're up to this night, he'd break—yer—back—in two halves!"

Hector McKaye glanced appherensively about, but the nurse had left the room. He bent over Dirty Dan.

"Shut up!" he commanded. "Don't tell everything you know!"

O'Leary promptly opened his eyes and gazed upon The Laird in prround puzzlement.

"Wild horses couldn't drag it out o' me," he pretested. "Ask me no questions an' I'll tell ye no lies."

He subsided into unconsciousness again. The doctor entered and felt of his pulse.

"On the up-grade," he announced.

"Dan will obey the voice of authority, even in his delirium," The Laird whispered to his son, when they found themselves alone with the patient once more. "I'll stay here until he wakes up rational, and silence him if, in the mean time, he babbles. Run along home, lad."

At noon, Dirty Dan awoke with the light of reason and belligerency in his eyes, whereupon the Laird questioned him, and developed a stubborn reticence which comforted the former to such a degree that he decided to follow his son home to The Dreamerie.

—o—

CHAPTER XIX.

A week elapsed before Hector McKaye would permit his son to return to his duties. By that timefi the slight wound in the latter's arm where the vein had been opened had practically healed. Dirty Dan continued to improve, passed the danger-mark, and began the upward climb to his old vigor and pugnacity. Port Agnew, stirred to discussion over the affray, forgot it within three days, and on the following Monday morning, Donald returned to the woods. The Laird of Tyee carried his worries to the Lord in prayer, and Nan Brent frequently forgot her plight and sang with something of the joy of other days.

A month passed. During that month, Donald had visited the Sawdust Pile once and had written Nan thrice. Also, Mrs. Daney, hard beset because of her second experience with the "Blue Bonnet" glance of a McKaye, had decided to remove herself from the occasion of gossip and be in a positio nto claim an alibi in the event of developments. So she abandoned Daney to the mercies of a Japanese cook and departed for Whatcom to visit a married daughter. From Whatcom, she wrote her husband that she was enjoying her visit so much she hadn't the slightest idea when she would return, and, for good and sufficient reasons, Daney did not urge her to change her mind.

Presently, Mrs. McKaye and her daughters returned to Port Agnew. His wife's letters to The Laird had failed to elicit any satisfactory season for his continuel stay at home, and inasmuch as all three ladies were deferring the trip to Honolulu on his account, they had come to a mutual agreement to get to close quarters and force a decision.

Mrs. McKaye had been inside the Dreamerie somewhat less than five minutes before her instinct as a woman, coupled with her knowledge as a wife, informed her that her spouse was troubled in his soul. Always tactless, she charged him with it, and when he denied it, she was certain of it. So she pressed him further, and was informed that he had a business deal on; when she interrogated him as to the nature of it (something she had not done in years), he looked at her and smoked contemplatively. Immediately she changed the subject of conversation, but made a mental resolve to keep her eyes and ears open.

AT THE CITY HALL

The Weekly Meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon.

Deputy Mayor Martin presided and Councillors Outerbridge, Vinicombe, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present.

After the usual preliminaries, the following matters were given consideration:

The Deputy Minister of Finance acknowledged receipt of the Council's cheque for $50,021.73, being payment of Interest on City Debt and half-yearly contribution towards the upkeep of the Fire Department.

Communications were read from Inspector General Hutchings:

(1) In the matter of complaint made by the Pope Manufacturing Company, George Street, re forge owned by Estate of Carnell, adjoining their premises, he saw no objection from a fire hazard standpoint to the building being used for this purpose, and stated that any grievance on the part of the petitioners involves a question of private nuisance for which there is a legal remedy.

(2) With regard to the application of P. Bulger, Hayward Avenue, for permission to convert stable into forge, he could see no objection to this, provided the building is reduced to two-thirds of its present length. It was decided, as the Inspector General and City Engineer have no obections to offer, that permit be issued.

Solicitor Carter in reporting on the unsanitary condition of house, Queen's Road, stated that it was within the province of the Medical Officer of Health to order owners to repair or put the house in sanitary condition, and if they fail to comply with the order of the Health Officer, the Council take legal proceedings to have the nuisance abated. The Department of Public Works is to be communicated with along these lines.

In reference to the claim made by Mr. M. Parsons, Freshwater Road, for compensation for poultry destroyed by dogs, the Solicitor advised no responsibility on the part of the Council.

The petition of the residents of Blackmarsh Road re erection of lights in this locality was referred to the Lighting Committee.

A communication was read from Mr. Edwin A. Crowther, seeking certain information re assessment of public halls, reasons for certain buildings being exempted, and the financial standing on the books of the City Clerk, who will be only too pleased to enlighten this gentleman and give any information he may desire.

Complaint of P. F. Fahey re condition of surface drain, Blonclody Street, was referred to the City Engineer.

The Lighting Committeee advised the placing of some 15 new lights in various parts of the City which are at present badly in need of same.

The City Clerk reported that arrangements had been completed with Mr. Bradshaw, Agent for Clapp's Estate, for the taking over of vacant land, Water Street East which will in future be known as the "East End Cab and Taxi Stand." The Engineer will immediately place several men to work to level off the property so that it may be utilizzed without further delay.

Following the reading of the City Engineer's report, it was decided: (1) That the water main be extended to Tessier Place and that a new anti-freezing hydrant be erected in this very congested locality. (2) The Engineer advised the replacing of the old storm sewer, Walgrave Street, with new 15" e.w., pipe. This sewer was laid by the Department of Public Works many years ago, and of late has become very unsatisfactory owing to its being choaked at the bend, junction of Walgrave and Water Streets. The matter of finances was talked over, and the City Clerk was asked to see if the allocations will permit this undertaking.

Mr. J. Earle, Field Street, asked reconsideration of his application for the erection of garage. The Council agreed to adhere to its former decision and withhold permit.

Attention was called to the condition of the stone steps, Victoria Street also the necessity of having Gregory's Lane (East of the Telegram building) cleaned up and otherwise attended to. In connection with the latter, it was pointed out that owners of cattle have of late been in the habi of driving he animals through this narrow lane onto Duckworth Street, and this practice is considered most dangerous, particularly as the lane is used, to a great extent, by pedistrains going to and from Water Street. The City Engineer was instructed to take the necessary measures to prevent cattle entering this lane.

Owing o the many complaints received from Tessier, Wickford and Moore Streets of damage done the property of residents by surface water, it was decided that the East and West End Road Committee visit these localities on Saturday.

The use of buildings in residential sections of the city for laundry purposes was the object of considerable discussion. It was pointed out that during the past few years some very serious fires have occurred in buildings of this kind. The question of gasoline being used or stored in such places and other matters in connection with same were gone into and consideration was deferred to another meeting. In the meantime, the Solicitor is to be asked to report on the Council's position under the act re the use of buildings for said purposes.

In the matter of the removal of houses, LeMarchant Road, the question of satisfactory settlement was left in the hands of the City Clerk.

The following plans were passed, subjec to the approval of the City Engineer and conditional upon the applicats conforming to the Act:—Dwellings—Geo. Walters, Beaumont Street; M. Bambrick, Water Street West; Extensions—W. J. Ellis, Adelaide Street; Wm. Stamp, McNeil St.

The application of George Janes for permission to erect stable on Barter's Hill was referred to the Department of Public Health.

It was ordered that after the 15th nstant, legal proceedings be taken for the recovery of all unpaid city taxes.

Legal proceedings are to be immediately instituted against all owners of dogs who have not complied with the regulations which call for the registration of such dogs on or before the 1st day of July of each year.

The Medical Officer of Health reported fifteen new cases of Scarlet Fever in the city during the past week.

The reports of the Water Waste Inspector, Sanitary Supervisor, etc., were tabled; the accounts for week ordered paid, after which the meeting adjourned.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN POWER.

On Monday, July 30th., and at the mid-night hour, Mrs. John Power of Logy Bay, bowed her gentle spirit in submission to the summons of Death.

Deceased was formerly Miss Margaret Murphy of Colliers, Conception Bay, where her father, Mr. Thomas Murphy, still resides. She had been ailing a year prior to her demise during which time her naturally pleasant disposition was rendered more loveable and attractive to her husband and friends by the truly christian spirit of resignation and obedience with which she reconciled herself to her approaching end of life.

Mrs. Power had attained only her thirty-sixth year. For a number of years preceding her marriage, she had been engaged at the Crosbie Hotel, and the country residence in connection with that institution, and constantly exhibited a carefulness and devotion to her duties that won her the favor and esteem of many enduring friends.

The neatness and perfection of her home coupled with the outstanding marks and practice of her religion, ever engaged the attention and care of our dear departed friend and bore evidence of the valuable traits of character with which she was endowed.

A sad feature of Mrs. Power's demise, was the absence of her husband in the United States, at the time. Besides him and her father, two sisters survive her, Mrs. Matthew Whelan of Avondale and Mrs. Michael Keating of Boston, Mass., all of whim are deeply grieved over the premature passing of one to whom, in their respective relationship, they were so devotedly attached.

Owing to the absence of her husband, the funeral was somewhat delayed and on Friday after the performance of the funeral Obsequies by Rev. Father O'Callaghan the mortal remains of Mrs. John Power were reverently laid to rest by undertaker Myrick, in the cemetery of St. Francis Parish.

A loving wife is brought away,
Out from her happy home
To dwell with angels up above,
Round God's eternal Throne.

7½ teaspoons of butter fat in every 16 ounce can

Mrs. Coates tells one of her cooking secrets

"Few housewives know what a difference the milk they use can make in cooking," writes Harriet Ellsworth Coates, practical cook and widely known authority on cooking questions.

"When I first used Libby's Milk," she says, "I was delighted at the added richness, greater smoothness and finer flavor it gave to soups, creamed meats, cocoa and puddings."

There are 7½ teaspoons of pure butter fat in every 16 oz. can of Libby's Milk. The very same butter fat that makes butter and cream such great enrichers of foods.

That's why Mrs. Coates noticed better results with it. That's why thousands of other women, too, are using Libby's Milk in their daily cooking.

In fact, this particular brand is now quite generally known as "the milk that good cooks use."

Libby's Milk is not, of course, ordinary canned milk. Nor is it milk from ordinary cows.

Cow's milk made double rich

There are, as you know, certain sections of this country famed above all else for the perfection of their dairy products.

It is not simply because nature has provided these sections with ideal pasture lands, shady slopes and well-watered meadows where grass grows in abundance for the cows.

But the men there are dairymen. That is their business. They know the kind of cows that give the richest milk and they constantly compete among themselves to see who can raise the finest herds.

By placing our plants in these favored sections we get for Libby's Milk the finest milk in the land.

And we make it double rich simply by evaporating more than half the moisture from it! Nothing is added to it; none of its food values taken away. We seal it and sterilize it in air-tight cans, for only thus can we bring it safely to you who live, perhaps, many hundreds of miles away.

You, too, will notice the difference

Get a can of this richer milk from your grocer today. Try it in one of your favorite recipes in place of ordinary milk. See what wholly new richness it gives to your cooking. And what delicious flavor.

Write for free recipe folder

Upon request we'll gladly send you a copy of a new recipe folder which shows how good cooks are making richer dishes—and saving money—with Libby's Milk.

Klansmen Slain, Many Wounded In Serious Riots

PITTSBURGH, Pa., August 27.—(Associated Press).—One white-robed Klansman was killed, another man seriously wounded and an undetermined number of persons hurt during hours of rioting precipated by Ku Klux Klan attempt to parade through Carnegie, a suburb, Thursday night, after a spectacular demonstration on a nearby hill. Carnegie was quiet last night.

Thomas R. Abbot of Atlasburg, Pa., was shot through the head and died in a doctor's office a few minutes later, and Stephen Zarsombek, a bystander, was seriously wounded. Others wounded included Klansmen and rioters. A few were taken to hospitals but the greater number were hurried away by their friends and no record left with the authorities.

Ten Klansmen, arrested while directing automobiles to the meeting, were each fined $10 in aCrnegie police court yesterday for illegally carrying weapons. Sixteen men taken from automobiles bearing the Klan insignia by Pittsburg police after the rioting were given their liberty. County officers arrested Patrick McDermott, a Carnegie undertaker, in connection with the shooting of Abbot W. K. Flaherty and Joseph Joyce of Carnegie, were sent to jail upon a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

25,000 PRESENT

The rioting came after the most spectacular meeting of Klansmen ever held in this section. Hundreds of automobiles began to arrive at the hill early Saturday evening and by nine o'clock it was estimated that fully 25,000 persons had given the password within the enclosure, scores of them women. After the initiation ceremonies the Klansmen paraded toward the village.

Thousands of persons lined the principal streets, mostly where the line of march passed over Chartier's Creek and just before the head of the parade reached that point an automobile was drawn up across the bridge.

As the Klansmen wound down off the hill, preceded by an automobile carrying three men and a woman, Carnegie policeman on the bridge ordered them to halt, saying the parade could not go any further as no permit had been given.

The Klansmen appeared at a loss just how to proceed when suddenly the fighting began. Someone tossed a bottle and then a few stones gathered from the railroad right of way nearby and in spite of the efforts of the police to restore order the crowds surged into the street. A United States flag was torn from the leading automobile and the Klansmen's ranks broken as they rushed forward. They fought their way on each side of the machine and down the street. There was a desultory shot or two, the combatants confining themselves to bottles, bricks and stones.

WATCH FIGHTING

A county detective in the crowd made his way to the front and recovered the flag and the fight swept by him. Half a block further on, Abbot, a mine machinist, was shot, and Klansmen quickly carried him into a physician's office nearby. He died on the operating table.

The greater number of Klansmen had remained in the road near the bridge, watching the fight in the street beyond. County officers pleaded with them to go back to the hill, and in the course of half an hour the order was given and they marched away. Soon they were in their automobiles homeward bound and before daybreak the hill was deserted, while the crowds in the streets gradually melted away. County officers patrolled Carnegie all yesterday, but the streets were almost deserted until late in the afternoon when it was seen that men again were gathered on the hill.

When the officer reached the hill, he found a large number of persons, but was assured no Klan meeting was in contemplation, and that they were simply removing the paraphernalia taken to the hill for their demonstration.

P. M. D. F.

Yesterday the Hon. Secretary of the Permanent Marine Disasters Fund received a letter from Mr. R. E. Innes, enclosing a cheque for twenty-five dollars($25.00) on behalf of the St. John's Football Team who recently visited Grand Falls, with the hope that it may be of some little service." In thanking the footballers for this welcome contribution, the Committee assure them that the gift will be serviceable in more ways than one. Not only will it bring alleviation of suffering to some, but emphasizes the somewhat forgotten truth that sympathy forms an important factor in true sportsmanship. The example of the Football Team is one well worthy of imitation and the committee is grateful for the gift, the incentive and the precedent thus established.

ESPERANTO LISTED AS LIVING TONGUE

Esperanto is reported as a living tongue by the United States Hydrographic Office. It is one of the languages in which the directions are printed on "bottle papers," which are given mariners to be cast overboard at sea in order to observe the direction and strength of ocean currents The bottles are picked up by people of all nationalities, and the directions for the return of the papers are therefore printed in eight languages, one of which is likely to be spoken or understood by any civilized dweller along the Seven Seas. The languages are English, French, German, Dutch, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Esperanto.

Cadets Are Winners of 1923 Football Championship

The Cadets landed the 1923 Championship last evening, when they defeated the Feildians by a score of 1—0 in what was one of the best games of the season. The attendance was large, and weather conditions were favourable for good ball. The first period was scoreless, and a fast exhibition was given by both teams, the Feildians defence being especially good. Shortly after play began, Withers dropped Walsh a beauty which he muffed and missed the net by a matter of inches. The Feildians pressed matters in this period, but were unable to get through; Goldstone struck the post on one occasion and Ewing sent Walsh a difficult one, which he barely managed to drop over the crossbar.

In the second period the Cadets put up a strong offensive during the opening minutes, and many corners resulted, but no scoring was forthcoming. Play was general and both teams put up a determined fight for the honours, the Feildians playing their best game. Twenty-three minutes of the period had passed when Flynn sent across a beauty, which Walter Callahan was waiting for, and the winning goal was secured. During the remaining minutes play was lively but nothing resulted, and the final whistle left th Ceadets victorious by one to nil. The Cadets went through the season without once meeting defeat, while only two goals were scored against them for the season, and to the Star belongs that honour. Goalkeeper Walsh gave a fine exhibition all through the games, and to Captain Maddigan and his team congratulations are tendered on winning the championship. The Guards came second, and are only two points behind the Cadets.

The tie-cup series will be drawn to-day, and the first game will be played on Monday night next.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, FRIDAY, SEPT. 7th., 1923.

The Union Welcomes Opposition of Its Enemies

Since its inception in 1908, the Fishermen's Protective Union have had to do a mighty work to establish itself firmly in the life of the country.

Looking back over the years since past, every one, friend and foe, must admit that that task has been successfully accomplished. Politically, commercially and socially there are unchallengable proofs that the F. P. U. has been an active influence among the people, and an influence that has made for good to the people.

Its political standard-bearers have brought the Union Banner victoriously through three election campaigns in the northern constituencies, Port Union and its commercial branches standing in forty outports testify to its business advancement and its educative industrial and broadminded views on national and social policies have had a salutary effect on the minds of the people.

To arrive at its present standing in the country, much effort and sacrifice have been entailed, and President Coaker, Union lieutenants and members must have worked strenuously to develop the Union to its present proportions.

But it was not merely the F. P. U.'s actual development that caused energies and sacrifices.

Like all good movements whose purposes were to fight the battles of an oppressed class, there was opposition, bitter, persistent and unscrupulous. There was abuse and deception, hatred and malice among those upon whose corns the Union trod.

They are at it to-day; and will be at it until old age prevents tongues from moving.

Union members, however insulted, may but welcome the continuance of the opposing forces, fighting their own selfish game. The Union established itself because of opposition, and will live because of its continuance. So let its enemies howl, if they will.

The Earthquake's Toll

The Japanese tragedy has overshadowed even a crisis, in the Near East, which may result in another great war. The magnitude of the disaster dwarfs any other earthquake known to history, and the indescribable scenes of death, dying and destruction, as furnished by the meagre public despatches, are appalling.

Whatever has been the opinion of the advanced and powerful, even if little, nation of the East, there is nothing but national sympathy throughout every country, and this is proven by the desire to institute relief measures for the suffering.

In the United States, where many believed that Japan was the enemy at the gates, the national sympathy is shown by the inauguration, by the Red Cross Society, of a five million-dollar campaign to be collected throughout the country. This decision was arrived at after a conference by the Treasurer of that organization with President Coolidge and Secretary Hoover. In addition to this national demonstration of sympathy, all United States Shipping Board vessels, in Far Eastern waters, have received orders to place themselves under the direction of the Commander of the U. S. Asiatic fleet for relief duty.

It is quite certain that Great Britain will not be behind in showing the Empire's sympathy for the nation with whom she has been allied by ties of national friendship as well as by an international treaty.

In our position on the world's surface, we have been saved from the terrors of the earthquake, though we have to face the more congenial conditions of iceberg and snow.

Under those circumstances, we can form scant idea of the frightful experiences of earthquakes, or the conditions of living where the tragedy of an earthquake are among the things which may be expected every day.

Mr. Monroe Attacks Fishermen's Union

Charges Union With Act of Bolshevism -- Bonavista Bay Man Answers Charge.

Editor Advocate.

Dear Sir,—Yesterday's Telegram contained a letter signed W. S. Monroe, accusing the Fishermen's Union of an act of so-called Bolshevism, respecting a change in Greenspond telegraph office.

Mr. Walter Monroe need go no further than his own experience in connection with a so-called organization that supported him at Greenspond the last election, if he want an undoubted example of Bolshevism. Rum from the "Earl of Devon," on which ship Mr. Monroe lived, flowed like a brook in Greenspond during the couple of days he spent there, and decent men were forced into committing breaches of the law by Mr. Monroe's heelers that afterwards brought forth, from his assailants, letters of apology.

Walter Monroe was no saint in playing the game in Bonavista Bay last April, and, if he wrote all he knew of rum and rowdyism amongst his followers, he would shame many a man who believed Mr. Monroe would be no party to countenancing rowdyism such as took place in Bonavista District last May while Mr. Monroe was canvassing that district. Let him state how many gallons of rum went with him in the Devon, and what was done with it.

For forty years, elections in Bonavista were fought clean and without rum and rowdyism. Why were both so visibly introduced into that District during the campaign fought by Mr. Monroe? Will this so-called political saint inform the public as to how many heelers supporting him were promised jobs in event of his success and the success of his party? Hundreds of supporters were promised jobs of all sorts, and scores supported him because they had been told that in event of a change the present officials would be discussed and replaced by the deluded heelers.

Yours truly,

BONAVISTA BAY MAN.

Lady Allardyce Will Open Maternity Hospital On September 19th

His Excellency Presides at Garden Party, Lester's Field—Tag Day Programme, Sept. 15th, Under Capable Management.

Sept. 15th and 16th will be big days in the history of the Salvation Army in Newfoundland.

In connection with the Maternity Hospital Campaign, Commandant Hurd is arranging to run a Tag Day on Sept. 15th. The Tag Day programme is in the capable charge of Lady Allardyce, with the Girl Guides, out of uniform, and Miss Annie Hayward, President of the Daughters of the Empire with her Staff, together with other prominent social workers in the city.

Commandant Hurd was received this morning at Government House by His Excellency the Governor and Lady Allardyce respecting the opening of the new Maternity Hospital on Wednesday, Sept. 19th. His Excellency has kindly consented to preside and Lady Allardyce will open the building.

At 4.15 of the opening day at Lester's Field His Excellency the Governor will open the Garden Party, in which different denominations of the city, are providing two tables each, proceeds of same to go towards furnishings of the hospital.

Three bands, the C. L. B., the C. C. C. and the Salvation Army, have kindly volunteered a musical programme for the evening, and a most enjoyable time is assured.

Speaking with Commandant Hurd, the Advocate ascertained this morning that he was most optimistic of the result of the endeavours of all those who have thrown themselves wholeheartedly in the public spirited effort to to provide this long-felt social requirement in our midst.

His Excellency and Lady Allardyce's interest respecting all such public matters is recognised, and in graciously extending their time and assistance to this laudable work they will further endear themselves in the hearts of the people.

Sir Richard Squires Discusses Business and Labor Conditions in Canada

Asked by an Advocate reporter yesterday, how trade and general conditions appeared to him in Canada during his recent visit, Sir Richard Squires stated that Halifax was suffering from after-war depression quite as much as St. John's. The war period, because of its geographical and transport facilities, drew a large influx of labor to Halifax, and they were now trying to get back to pre-war requirements.

Traffic at this port reached enormous proportions, and high wages prevailed. A second cause which tended to boom Halifax, was the reconstruction of that portion of the city destroyed by the explosion, and thirdly, the expenditure of a million or more on the railway terminal and piers in the south end of the city, by the Federal Government, made necessary by the divergence of the railway line entering the city.

Property values substantially increased; because of this fictitious prosperity, here as elsewhere the working man got to living on a higher scale, because of big wages easily obtainable. Now this war-boom is over; the extra public works were about completed, the population of Halifax, during the past two years, showed a decrease. The people were moving out to Upper Canada and the United States. Some additional branch banks which had been opened in various sections of the city during the boom period, were now being closed up. He noticed also that stores which were doing business when he (Sir Richard) visited Halifax two years ago, were now being closed up. Like St. John's, Halifax was settling back to pre-war commercial and labor conditions. Conservative business and financial men felt that the town in a year or two would have recovered her staple or a proportionately superior position to pre-war days.

Montreal Booming

Montreal was a hive of industry. The city was now flooded with tourists from the United States and other parts of Canada. It was in reality the convention centre for the eastern states and other provinces of Canada.

A year or two ago, at Mount Royal Hotel, accomodation was readily available. To-day, the building was crowded to overflowing. After the arrival of the trains, a queue twenty or thirty feet long waited for hours seeking quarters. The Windsor and Ritz Carlton are permanently full, and a person has to be well known or a regular guest to get accomodation, otherwise reservation has to be made days in advance.

Toronto

Business in every avenue, said Sir Richard, is developing rapidly in Toronto in recent years. The Municipality is keenly alive to civic improvement. The street car system has been greatly improved and reorganized. Good road development has intensively taken hold of the Municipality. Radial roads, splendidly laid down, stretching out for miles in various directions , were a noticeable feature which caught the eye of the visitor. The two big things now engaging the Torontonians were, first, the Toronto Exhibition. Year by year, this truly national exhibition draws to Toronto from eighty to one hundred thousand Americans. The exhibition spirit has captured the city. The thoroughfares and shope are lined with flags and other suitable holiday accessories. The whole municipal organization is behind the movement, determined to make it the greatest possible success. The exhibition is not confined to Canadian goods. Many large spaces were occupied by United States exhibits.

In financial circles, the collapse of the Home Bank was the chief topic. It was generally conceded that the doubit liability call on the stockholders, which the Canadian Banking Law provides for, will have to be made, and the dividends which the depositors receive will be affected very materially by the financial ability of the shareholders to respond to this doubit liability call. The shareholders, of course, will lose all. The depositors are expected to receve dividends on their deposits of from 50c. to 70c. in the dollar.

Travelling conditions in Canada are as congested as one would like to see them, altogether apart from the travel incident to the Toronto Exhibition. Railway reports in Canada and the United States indicate that returns for 1923 will be substantially in advance of those of 1922.

Notes From Winter Brook, B.B.

Editor Evening Advocate.

Dear Sir,—We are in a remote part of the Bay, but we are not dead. Here at present things are going with a rush—one hundred men to work—sap peeling wood, and hoops made by the score.

On August 30th Mr. James Russell gave a grand time to some of our working men. It was like the old song says—we had them from all around the Bay. Mr. Alex. Wheeler, from Princeton, and one of our young ladies, opened the Ball with a waltz. Music was furnished by Mr. Levi Mesh, from Keels. Mr. Russell is to be congratulated on his very remarkable dance he gave on behalf of the arrival of our new school teacher. School opened to-day with quite a good attendance. We wish our new teacher lots of good luck.

There is quite a plague here at present among our swine; a great many have perished on account of it.

People are now busy getting hay home for the coming winter, and getting ready for the Fall's work in the winter.

I trust, Mr. Editor, that you will often hear from our little town in future.

I am, yours,

DRAWING KNIFE.

Manoa In Port

The S. S. Manoa, Capt. Dufaur, arrived from Montreal and Charlottetown at p.m. yesterday. The ship had splendid weather on the passage down and brought 1800 tons of general cargo which is being discharged at Shea's wharf. The following passengers came by the ship:—H. B. and Mrs. Smitz, J. A. and Mrs. Cohen, W. R. Binney, Percey Hand, J. C. Baird. Miss A. Ladley, A. E. and Mrs. Renfrew, F. G. Lightbourne, Rev. J. G. Joyce, W. R. Aitken, H. A. Bastow and G. H. Robertson. The Manoa sails again at 1 p.m. to-morrow.

The Manoa has the equal of 16,000 lbs. cargo for this port.

Mr. Timothy Murphy, the enterprizing butcher of the Cross Roads, is about to participate in a little tilling of the soil, some shore distance from the Blackmarsh Road. Tim, has a substantial house and a man to look after it, and in the course of time we expect to see him develop into a knowledge of the agriculture industry combined with his trade.

ADVERTISE IN THE 'ADVOCATE.'

THE BLACKHEAD ROAD

Of all places in the city, where the wise and where the witty go to take an hour of pleasure,
There is one place loved by me.
It is splendid, it is pleasin,' in the berry-picking season—there's no other spot in Nature
I love half as much to see.

There with pleasure, oft I settle on a bank, and boil the kettle;
while our baskets are all laden
With sweet berries, quite a load.
There we sing, or tell a story; there we feel all in our glory 'mong
the bushes and the rushes
Near the Blackhead Road.

Bells afar are sweetly ringing and fair maidens they are singing of the beauties of their cities,
And their mountains , vales and farms;
But in all the world over, there's no place like Terra Nova, for Nature has endowed her
With her rich and choicest charms.

So I tell you, it is pleasin' in the smiling summer season , or when the skies of Autumn
Bright and fleecy clouds have showed,
To join in Nature's gamble; through the pleasant spots to ramble,
'mong the bushes and the rushes,
Near the Blackhead Road.

GENEVA, Sept. 7—Storm over Italy's refusal to recognize authority of the League of Nations to regulate her dispute with Greece gives no sign of diminiishing; on the contrary, it shows indications of developing into a political typhoon first degree. Representatives of world states, like Belgium, Sweden and Urgary, went on record to-day as insisting upon respect for the League Government, and as being unqualifiedly convinced that Italy should submit controversy to League for settlement. The world's peace demanded it, and, they said, the very life of the League itself was at stake. If covenant was defied precious guarantees for smaller nations of the earth would cease to exist.

Paris Queens of Sheba Are Lingerie Mad

Wear Negligee Worth $430,000—One Actress Spending $50,000 Annually.

PARIS — A well-known French actress has declared that she spends £10,000 a year on underwear alone.

A man in the south of France has asked for divorce on the grounds contains agues, tends to prove that the average Frenchwoman spends nearly all her money on lingerie alone.

A woman has pleaded guilty on the part of her husband before a magistrate because he would not buy her at least 300 pairs of silk stockings each year!

All these facts, a famous Fench contains agues, tends to pove that the average Frenchwoman spends nearly all her money on lingerie alone.

It is now a popular habit with fashionable Parisian women to receive early morning visitors in negligee.

One American kinema actress always receives her friends in negligee. Her attire consists of neat and very expensive pyjamas, over which is thrown a beautiful black crepe marocain cloak lined with ermine fur, and having a beautiful cape of white ermine falling well over the shoulders.

Her hair is done up in a green bandana handkerchief of rich silk. Her slim feet are encased in red moccasin slippers and on her right ankle is a bracelet of gold and platium links.

Pearl Pyjamas.

Another well-known French musical-comedy actress when in negligee is said to wear garments worth £86,000. Her dress is as follows:

Pyjamas of pure Japanese silk, embroidered with designs executed in real pearls. Her initials is sapphires and rubies adorn the flap of her pocket, while all around the jacket there is a fringe of small diamonds. This article of clothing alone is worth £20,000. And she sleeps in it! It must be added, however, that for safety sake all the jewels can be removed, or else some might get lost in the wash!

She has a cloak made of real Valenciennes lace, which trails six feet behind her. The cloak was made out of one hundred yards of lace. It is of gold and silver, and magnificent fringes of white pearls hang from the sleeves and hem of the cloak. It is valued at £10,000.

Her slippers, made of green kid, have heels studded with brilliants, and there are said to be 140 stones in each heel. On each shoe there is a tiny buckle of onyx, with a platinum "bed," in which 14 and 11 brilliants are embedded respectively. The difference in number is on account of the various sizes of the stones. These shoes cost £50,000.

One of this actress's weakness is to be smothered in jewels, and her ankles, wrists, and throat in the early morning are nearly hidden with collars of pearls and diamonds.

Coolidge's Views Given to Harvey

Ambassador to Great Britain and Chief Discuss European Questions.

WHITE HOUSE GUEST

U. S. Attitude on Reparations to Be Told by Envoy in Speech.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—President gave over a large part of to-day to discussions with George Harvey, Ambassador to Great Britain, who is a White House guest, of this country's attitude upon European questions affecting it. The Ambassador probably will remain here for several days, getting instructions from the new chief executive and giving the latter the benefit of his first hand knowledge of foreign conditions.

There are many questions they must go ever minutelly. Reparations, foreign debts to the United States, the Ruhr occupation and the proposed extension of the three-mile limit in the war with rum-runners are only a few of the outstanding ones.

Colonel Harvey had prepared several weeks ago to sail for his post in London after completing a long series of conferences on these matters with the late President Harding and Secretary of State Hughes. His present plan is to sail September 18.

President Coolidge assumed the leadership of the country well versed in the intricacies of its foreign policies, for, contrary to the custom of his predecessors as vice-president, he sat in at all the Cabinet meetings at which these matters were threshed over. Harvey's position is likewise free of the difficulties the transition ordinarily would carry, for the President has announced he will carry out the general program laid down by his late chief.

Probably the most pressing of the more important questions involves the United States' attitude toward the reparation tangle. Although President Coolidge has indicated clearly to the European nations that he backs the stand outlined by Secretary Hughes in his New Haven speech several months ago, there have been numerous attempts by foreign sources since his assumption of the reins of Government, to see new hope of American participation. These are expected to be answered by Ambassador Harvey in a speech following his arrival in England.

FLIPPANT FLAPPERS FLOUT THEIR CRITICS

SOMERSET, Pa., Aug. 24.—This little City of Somerset has been somersaulted into a style class war with the bobbed hair, lip stick and rolled stocking flappers arrayed on one side and their more timid sisters of long dresses and high stockings on the other.

The first clash occured recently when the Parent Teachers' Association formally indorsed the "old fashioned" girl and took steps to petition the school board to adopt the uniform style of dress for all school girls. The rules would bar silk hose, short skirts bobbed hair and low neck, sleeveless dresses.

But! The flapper contingent, hearing of the meeting, stormed it. Their verbal protest, delivered in rhyme, was as short and snappy as the dress and manner of the flapperette who delivered it.

"I can show my shoulders.
"I can show my knees;
"I'm a free-born American
"And can show what I please."

With that the flappers exited while the Parent Teachers' session was turned into an indignation meeting.

Action of the dress question will be demanded of the school board, the parents and teachers decided.

Mrs. Louise Arnold, former scrubwoman in the Children's Court Building who stabbed Vincent Calvacca, caretaker, to death July 3, was sentenced yestterday by Judge Mancuso in General Sessions to serve from six to twelve years in the State Prison for Women at Auburn. She had pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the second degree.

In the plea for clemency Alexander Kaminsky, Mrs. Arnold's Attorney told how she believed Calvacca intended to marry her, only to find he already was married and the father of eight children. He remarked that his client, who is forty-four, has had five children of her own, some of whom are grownup.

Because of her betrayal by Calvacca the District Attorney's office did not seek an indictment for murder in the first degree, feeling no jury would convict her on it.

SEVERE WARNING TO BOOTLEGGERS

Catholic Church to Issue Circular Concerning Illicit Brewing

EXCOMMUNICATION

Drastic Action May Follow Disregard Of Warning, Report States

QUEBEC, Aug. 27—The illicit brewing of liquor has reached such proportions in some of the Border counties in this Province, in the last few months, that shortly, it is learned, His Eminence Cardinal Begin is to issue a circular letter in which he will warn the faithful that such abuses will be severely dealt with by the Church. The conditions are said to have reached those existing in olden days.

Shipments to the United States are being made by the illicit still owners and the Federal authorities have been approached by parish priests in an effort to try an improve the conditions. Not only is the liquor shipped by hundred of gallons per week, but abuses of all kinds are reported in certain parishes and even deaths have been attributed to the bad quality of some of the products The Quebec Liquor Commission has been advised what is going on but the illicit fabrication of liquor falls under the jurisdiction of the Federal administration and it will take a few weeks before plans have been completed to deal with the situation.

Through the exportation of the illicit still products large sums of money are being made and some farmers, who a few months age were in poor circumstances are said to have succeeded in putting aside several thousand dollars.

This activity is said to have resulted from the fact that last year several rural districts suffered from bad crop and the need of money prompted many to begin bootlegging.

According to information at hand the church is to issue a very severe warning to those engaged in such operations and in view of the demoralcation may follow disreagrd of the warning.

BRITISH EMPIRE STEEL AUTHORITY DEALS WITH COMPANY MATTERS

He Replies to Cannon Scott

Major-General the Hon. Sir Newton Moore, K.C.M.G., spent a few days in Montreal recently after having visited the properties of the British Empire Steel Corporation in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia. Sir Newton Moore, who is the member of Parliament for the Islington division of London, Eng., and chairman of the standing orders committee of the House of Commons, has had much experience in industrial matters, particularly in reference to mining.

It was while he was Premier of Western Australia, an office he occupied for five years, that he located the first gold claim in the Cookgardie Field. Sir Newton represents English interests that invested heavily in the stock of the British Empire Steel Corporation. Owing to his widespread connections he has had many opportunities of comparing industrial conditions in various parts of the world.

Sir Newton Moore expressed himself as extremely surprised at statements appearing in certain Canadian newspapers condemning the British Empire Steel Corporation for alleged poor living cnoditions and insufficient wages at its various mines and works, and he particularly referred to the statement recently issued by the Rev. Canon Scott of Quebec. Canon Scott is reported as having said that "the Canadian people are under the intolerable impression that our gallant troops have been used by the Government to keep down thousands of helpless men, women and children in what must be degrading slavery," while as a matter of fact they were engaged in protecting the property of the company and the officials and men employed in saving the plants from destruction.

"I have," said Sir Newton, "just returned from Sydney from visiting the ore mines at Wabana and the limestone quarries at Port-aux-Basques in Newfoundland, and have also made it my business to inspect the colleries and colliery villages in Cape Breton and the steel plant and its neighborhood in Sydney. I have had an opportunity to visit several of the homes of the employees at the colleries and to compare them with colliery villages and homes that I am familiar with in Great Britain. While the cleanliness of any house and the attractiveness of its surroundings is very largely a matter of individuality, I found that the houses were clean and comfortable and very much better in all respects than the living conditions I have seen in England and elsewhere. The houses occupied by the miners at the Dominion Coal Company are let to them at rentals ranging from $1.50 to a maximum of $8 per month. The houses are well built and comfortable and in many cases are supplied by the company with water and electric lighting at a small cost. I have found it impossible how such misleading and false information could be circulated through the Canadian newspapers. I understand that Canon Scott's criticism followed a sermon on the industrial conditions in Cape Breton preached in Quebec by a clergyman from the United States, who spent a week-end in Sydney and so far as I know did not visit the mining districts at all.

"The miners in Nova Scotia are earning more money and living under better conditions," said Sir Newton, "than has been the case at any time since the industry of coal mining commenced, and I could not help comparing the wages earned and the opportunity for employment with those in the mining districts in England and generally. The workers out of employment in Britain run into over a million, and when one has seen, as I have, gallant officers who won decorations during the war, with masks over their face to avoid recognition, peddling small wares in the street as a result of being unable to obtain work, one finds it difficult to understand why, when men are working under fair conditions, incorrect statements should be given circulation in the newspapers.

"I am afraid that much of the newspaper criticism of the industrial activities of the British Empire Steel Corporation is made without knowledge of the facts. I am particularly surprised that Canon Scott, with as far as I know, on first-hand knowledge of conditions in Cape Breton, should broadcast through the Canadian press his statement that the employees at the mines and steel works in Nova Scotia are living in a state of "degrading slavery." My own impression, after having seen Cape Breton personally is that if squalor and bad living conditions exist in any districts, it is outside the villages and properties owned by the British Empire Steel Corporation, which to my mind show evidence of attention and care. I know that during several years past the expenditures of the Dominion Coal Company on their house properties have exceeded the rentals by as much as $250,000 per annum.

EUROPE WATCHING AMBITIOUS QUEEN

LONDON, Aug. 27—Queen Marie of Rumania is again engaging the attention of Europe's courts and Chancelleries with her political and diplomatic activities, and her arrival in London this week is awaited with much interest, for it is known that her visit will be something more than a mere social call on her royal cousins, King George and Queen Mary.

Marie is anxious to induce the British sovereign to recognize her son-in-law and daughter as the King and Queen of Greece, in which positions they were placed after the revolution which overthrew Constantine. She would also like to find a suitable wife for her younger son, Prince Nicholas, who is just twenty.

In this connection, friends of the Queen believes she would not be averse to Nicholas accepting the throne of Albania, which is known to be open to him. If he took the Albanian Crown, it is pointed out, Marie would be in a position to achieve her long cherished ambition of erecting a powerful Balkan federation.

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

Philip Snowden, one of the leaders of the British Labor party, and the gentleman who introduced that famous resolution in the Commons favoring the gradual abolition of capitalism, has written in an English Labor party paper an article on the subject of those uproars which took place in the House of Commons and resulted in four Scottish members being suspended. Snowden does not defend the conduct of those who kicked up the rows, but points out in a timely manner that it is not Labor members alone who are noisy.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

"I have seen infinitely worse exhibitions of vulgarity and rowdyism in the days before thew ar by the party which prides itself upon representing "the gentlemen of England," Snowden wrote. "I witnessed a scene in the 1911 Parliament when the Liberals were in power, when the Tory aristocrats howled down the then Prime Minister, Mr. Asquith, and for a hour in an indescribable uproar hurled the vilest accusations across the floor of the House.

"I have seen a member, who is now an important minister in this Tory Government, hurl a weighty volume at the head of Winston Churchill. It is the old story. The capitalist parties may steal a horse with i mpunity while the Labor party cannot look over the hedge without being put in the dock."

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

It may not be long before a man living in St. Barbe will be able to drop down to St. John's to-day and return tomorrow as easily as a man may now go from St. John's East to St. John's West.

W. F. Gerhardt, an American, has just invented and successfully flown what he calls a "Cycleplane." This is no less than a small airplane operated by feet exactly as a bicycle is pedaled.

✣ ✣ ✣ ✣

The airplane is very small and light in weight, but has no less than five sets of wings, which naturally make it very buoyant. You sit in, begin pedalling, and the machine runs along the ground until you want to get into the air, when you simply do as is done in an ordinary machine. This machine has no motor.

The day may come, and at no great distance, when every man may own one of these cycleplanes almost as easily as he can now own a bicycle or a motorboat.

In a physical sense, there is no doubt about it, the world is advancing.

I told in this column about the opening in New York of the first labor bank in that great metropolis, and later told about the prospective opening of a second one by the unions of the city. This was done and the Federation Bank now has over $1,000,000 deposits made by workers. Deposits made on the first day totalled $300,000 and sixty days later they totalled $1,000,000. Over 123 unions subscribed to the capital stock of the bank.

All honor to Dr. Edgar Shimer who, after spending close to fifty years in the service of the schools of New York has resigned to devote the remaining years of his life to the writing of books.

Here is a man thru whose hands many thousands of students passed. His work was done of character building. He helped to equip boys and girls to be good citizens. His work was constructive.

Such a man, and all the teachers like him, should be placed on a very high pedestal—one high enough to obscure the fighters and generals and destructionists generally.

Twenty years ago Joseph Huevfscher, a Swiss, was sentenced in the United States to a term of twenty years in jail for the crime of manslaughter. He was released from prison a few weeks ago. While imprisoned some relatives had been making him a small allowance and this he saved. It amounted, at his release to $4,000,700.

He reserved a berth on a passenger liner going to Europe, with the intention of returning to his home in Switzerland and spending the remainder of his unfortunate life there.

He was held up and the $4,700 robbed.

In Brooklyn, N.Y., the other day, a girl of twenty-three was sentenced to serve five years in prison for having stolen a pocket-book containing five cents.

If she had stolen a million they would have admitted her to the very best society. If you, reader, ever make up your mind to steal, don't, DON'T steal a cent less than a few millions of dollars. If you do you'll go to prison sure.

Steal a million and be looked up to as a clever fellow.

"Russia is today one of the leading factors in the economic and political situation of the world and is becoming more and more so each day. The present government will not be overthrown. People who think so are foolish. It would be better for the world to realize this now and wait for years to come."

DROWNING ACCIDENT AT LEADING TICKLES

BOY LOSES LIFE AND BODY UNRECOVERED

A sad drowning accident ocurred at Leading Tickles West on August 15th. Manuel Gordon Haggett, youngest son of George H. Haggett, aged 12 years and 7 months was crossing the harbor in a boat when he fell overboard and was drowned. His body has not been recovered.

His father is heart-broken over the tragic death of his boy, and the sympathy of the whole community goes out to him.

POLICE COURT

Two hop beer vendors, both widow women, were before Judge Morris this morning, charged with selling over-proof hop beer. The law says the beer must contain less than two per cent alcohol by volume. In one case the beer was proven on analysis to be 1-2 of 1 per cent over the standard, and in the other, 1-5 of 1 per cent.. Having referred to the ridiculousness of such a law making it virtually a criminal offense to brew beer containing 2 per cent of spirit, his honor told both the defendants that the law is there and must be complied with. The excess percentage was so light, and the circumstances of the parties of such a character the court suspended sentence in both cases.

Two milk vendors were convicted of selling milk containing less than three per cent. of butter fat. This is the standard required by law. Both defendants swore that the milk was not adulterated in any way by them. The trouble appears to be in mixing the night and the morning milk, in which case the first customers served got all the cream. Both parties had previous good records and could not account for the milk being below the standard. One was fined $10 and costs and the other, $1 and costs. Inspector Lawlor was congratulated by the Court upon the thoroughness and satisfactory manner in which he performs his duties.

Wheat Pool Plans of Prairie Provinces Rounding Into Shape

The United Farmers of Manitoba are falling into line with the province of Alberta and Saskatchewan in the organizing of a voluntary wheat pool similar to those now formed in those provinces.

A meeting of the directors was held recently in Winnipeg and they agreed to proceed at once with a view to co-operating with the other two prairie provinces in the operation of a central selling agency for the pooled wheat of the three provinces.

"The Saskatchewan Co-operative Wheat Pool Producers Association, Limited," is to be the name of the provincial contract pool it has been announced from Regina by George Robertson, M.L.A., publicity secretary of the pool.

"There is every indication that we shall get at least 50 per cent of the wheat acreage in Saskatchewan signed up in the pool," declared J. A. Maharg, chairman of the Saskatchewan wheat pool committee. Directors of the United States Gain Gowers have been in consultation with the main committee.

$160,000,000 Bond Issue For War Debt Refunding Will Be Divided.

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—London was reported in foreign despatches today to have given up hope, to a large extent, of procuring the Canadian Government's financing of approximately $160,000,000 incident to the war debt refunding program scheduled for the autumn.

So far as can be learned, Canada has as yet made no overtures to United States bankers.

Owing to the size of the Canadian financing necessary to take care of coming maturities, it has been suggested in local banking circles as quite likely that a three-cornered operation would be undertaken, approximately one-third of the total of bonds going, respectively, to the London, Canadian and New York markets.

Captain and Officers of Silvia Are Generous

The effort started recently by the Captain and officers of the s.s. Silvia for the furnishing of a private room in the new Maternity Hospital, was brought to a successful conclusion last trip, when the splendid sum of $99.55 was raised for this purpose and handed to Commandant Hurd by the purser this morning.

On Aug. 28, while the ship was enroute to New York, a Masquerade Ball was held which netted the sum of $64.40; then, on Sunday, the 2nd September, there being no cleric on board, and the Captain being kept on the bridge owing to the thick fog, the church service was conducted by the purses, and a collection amounting to $10.80 taken. Again, on Sept. 4th, a concert was held which netted $23.95, making the total of $99.55 mentioned above. This with the amounts previously contributed, make over two hundred dollars for the Silvia, more than the amount necessary for the furnishing of one room.

It was the intention of those on board the Rosalind to hold a concert last trip, for the same worthy object, but, owing to stormy weather, were unable to do so. Captain James and his associates will undoubtedly make up abundantly for this delay when they get started. Meanwhile it is the wish of Captain Mitchell and his associates, besides the furnishing of this room, to raise each year, money to meet the support of the same.

Commandant Hurd, campaign organizer is highly grateful to Captain Mitchell, and also the Purser, Mr. R. Robertson, and their associates, for the assistance so willingly rendered for this most worthy object, and wishes on behalf of Colonel Cloud, teritorial commander, to thank the gallant Captain and his officers, and the passengers, for their generosity in this connection.

A. A. A. Meeting

At an emergency meeting of the Amateur Athletic Association held yesterday, it was unanimously decided to send Jack Bell, Ron. O'Toole, for the long distance events, and Grant Burnell for the one mile walk to represent Newfoundland at the big All Canada sports meet to be held in Halifax on to-morrow week. The Association also decided to send Mr. Stan Cullen along as manager and trainer and the party leaves here by the Silvia to-morrow.

In this event athletes from all the provinces are competing, and the winners will be amongst those selected to represent Canada to the Olympic games next year. Two years ago, our local athletes made a name for themselves at Halifax, and the trio this year are well able to hold their own. Quite a number of fans are going from here to take in the event.

Fairly good fish for week ending Sept. 1st is reported from Colinet Island to head of Salmonier but there is no bait obtainable, weather very rough and stormy.

Raising of British Flag By Stefansson Expedition Was Private Matter, Says Britain.

Disastrous Fire at Covelda, Spain—Ninety-Two Homes Are Destroyed.

PARIS, Sept. 7.—The Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors, after considering the Italian dispute announced upon adjournment this evening that the decision would be kept secret pending despatch of the note to the Greek Government, copy of which will also go to the League of Nations Council at Geneva. At the conclusion of the session the Italian Ambassador told the newspaper correspondents that the Council's decision was quite acceptable to the Italian Government should Greece meet the Council's demands.

MOSCOW, Sept. 7—In reply to the note sent by Foreign Minister Tchitcherin to Great Britain, protesting against the raising of the British flag on Wrangel Island by the expedition of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the explorer, Great Britain has informed Russia that the expedition was a private affair, organized by Stefansson, and it does not touch the question of Russia's sovereign rights over the Island. However, any attempt made by Russia to hamper the work of the expedition the British note says, would be viewed by Great Britain with the utmost gravity. In reply to reat Britain M. Tchitcherin accepts the explanation.

MADRID, Sept. 7—Telegrams to-day say ninety two houses have been destroyed by fire at Covelda. Scarcity of water and antiquated fire fighting methods are blamed for the extent of the loss.

The schooner Henry L. Montague, Capt. John Mominy, sailed for Port Union this morning with a heavy general cargo.

YOKOHAMA REPORTED IN THROES OF EPIDEMIC.

Tokio's First Message Says City's Up-town Section Still Standing.

Canada Is Foremost In Japanese Relief Measures—Food Ship Is Sent To Stricken Population.

LONDON, Sept. 7—A Central News despatch from Kobe, dated yesterday, says it is reported here, but not confirmed, that Cholera has broken out in Yokohama. This probably is true, since the people are drinking muddy water from the ditches and eating foul food to stave off starvation.

VICTORIA, B.C., Sept. 7—With 500 tons of supplies from Canada for the earthquake stricken people the steamer Empress of Russia sailed yesterday for Japan. The cargo consists of flour, salmon, canned milk, and other articles. The Empress of Russia will be the first steamer carrying relief supplies to reach Japan from the American continent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7—Telegraphic communication between Tokio and Kobe has been re-opened and one of the first messages sent over the re-established line was that most of uptown Tokio was saved.

The Rosalind leaves New York at noon today for Halifax and this port.

LATEST

F- MONTREAL, Sept. 8—In a statement issued here to-day, Hon. Robert Rogers, of Winnipeg, strongly urges that the National Conservative convention should be held as quickly as possible. He declares that never in the history of Canada was there such a clear call for Conservatives to rally to the services of their country, as now, and that call can, he claims, be answered through such a convention with representatives from all parts of the provinces of Canada.

The big question to be decided is how best to answer the country's call in such a way that will save Canada from that over-hanging danger of becoming so burdened that it threatens the very existence of seventy-five per cent of the homes in the country.

PARIS, Sept. 8—The council of Ambassadors sent a note to the Greek Government to-day, embodying proposals for the settlement of the Greeco-Italian controversy. The proposals somwhat modify the demands made upon Greece by Mussolino, although they have not been officially disclosed.

LONDON, Sept. 8—With communication between the devastated earthquake district of Tokio and the southern Japanese ports of Kobe and Osaka partially restored by airplane and road, transportation is restored and Japanese troops are converging upon the disaster district. Strong efforts are being made toward the keeping of the peace and restoring order.

News from Japan begins to give definite news of the losses.

There are approximately one hundred dead among the foreign residents. Half of them are British. Besides these there are scores of British missing, including four of the British consular staff.

The world-wide nature of unprecedented relief efforts are attracting attention from Russia, South Africa, and in all circles of the globe, all are contributing generously.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 8—The Nison Dempo agency reports that not a single house remains in Kamakura, and that all villages along the coast in that direction were destroyed by a tidal wave that came when thousands were bathing, and all were swept out to sea and drowned.

Many famous temples were destroyed.

ADVERTISE in the 'ADVOCATE'

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XIX.

The fates decreed that she should not have long to wait. Donald came home from the logging camp the following Saturday night, and the family, having finished dinner were seated in the living room. The Laird was smoking and staring moodily out to sea, Donald was reading, Jane was at the piano softly playing rag-time, and Mrs. McKaye and Elizabeth were knitting socks for suffering Armenians when the telephone bell rang. Jane immediately left the piano and went out into the entrance hall to answer it, the servants having gone down to Port Agnew to a motion picture show. A moment later, she returned to the living room, leaving the door to the entrance-hall open.

"You're wanted on the telephone, Don!" she cried gaily. "Such a sweet voice, too!"

Mrs. McKaye and Elizabeth looked up from their knitting. They were not accustomed to having Donald called to the telephone by young ladies. Donald laid his magazine aside and strode to the telephone; The Laird faced about in his chair, and a harried look crept into his eyes.

"Close the door to the entrance-hall, Jane," he commanded.

"Oh, dear me, no!" his spoiled daughter protested. 'It would be too great a strain on our feminine curiosity not to eavesdrop on Don's little romance."

"Close it!" The Laird repeated. He was too late. Through the open door Donald's voice reached them:

"Oh, you poor girl! I'm so sorry, Nan dear. I'll be over immediately." His voice dropped several octaves, but the words came to the listeners none the less distinctly. "Be brave, sweetheart."

Mrs. McKaye glanced at her husband in time to see him avert his face; she noted how he clutched the arm of his chair.

To quote a homely phrase, the cat was out of the bag at last. Donald's face wore a troubled expression as he reentered the living room. His mother spoke first.

"Donald! My son!" she murmured tragically.

"Hum-m-!" The Laird grunted. The storm had broken at last, and following the trend of human nature, he was conscious of sudden relief.

Jane was the first to recover her customary aplomb.

"Don, dear," she cooed threatily, "are we mistaken in our assumption that the person with whom you have just talked is Nan Brent?"

"Your penetration does you credit, Jane. It was."

"And did our ears deceive us, or did we really hear you call her 'dear' and 'sweetheart'? "

"It is quite possible," Donald answered. He crossed the room and paused beside his father. "Caleb Brent blinked out a few minutes ago, dad. It was quite sudden. Heart trouble. Nan's all alone down there, and of course she needs help. I'm going. I'll leave to you the job of explaining the situation to mother and the girls. Good night, pop; I think you understand."

Mrs. McKaye was too stunned to find refuge in tears.

"How dare that woman ring you up?" she demanded haughtily. "The hussy!"

"Why, mother, she has to have help," her son suggested reproachfully.

"But why from you, of all men? I forbid you to go!" his mother quavered. "You must have more respect for us. Why, what will people say?"

"To hell with what people say! They'll say it anyhow," roared old Hector. Away down in his proud old heart he felt a few cheers rising for his son's manly action, albeit the necessity for that action was wringing his soul. " 'Tis no time for idle spierin'. Away with you, lad! Comfort the puir lass. 'Tis no harm to play a man's part. Hear me," he growled; "I'll nae hae my soncy lad abused."

"Dad's gone back to the Hielands. 'Nougt said." Elizabeth had recovered her customary poise. Wise enough through long experience, to realize that when her father failed to throttle that vocal heritage from his forebears, war impended, she gathered up her knitting and fled to her room.

Jane ran to her mother's side, drew the good lady's head down on her shoulder, and faced her brother. ly. "You ungrateful boy! How could you hurt dear mother so!"

This being the cue for her mother to burst into violent weeping,, forthwith the poor soul followed up the cue. Donald, sore beset, longed to take her in his arms and kiss away her tears, but something warned him that such action would merely serve to accentuate the domestic tempest, so, with a despairing glance at old Hector, he left the room.

"Pretty kettle of fish you've left me to bring to a boil!" the old man cried after him. "O Lord! O Lord! Grant me the wisdom of Solomon, the patience of Job and the cunning of Judas Iscariot! God help my mildewed soul!"

CHAPTER XX.

THE INSTANT the front door closed behind her son, Mrs. McKaye recovered her composure. Had the reason been more trifling, she would have wept longer, but, in view of its gravity, her common sense (she possessed some, when it pleased her to use it) bade her be up and doing. Also, she was smitten with remorse. She told herself she was partly to blame for this scourge that had come upon the family; she had neglected her son and his indulgent father. She who knew well the peculiar twists of her husband's mental and moral make-up, should not be surprised if he cast a tolerant eye upon his son's philanderings; seemingly the boy had always been able to twist his father round his finger, so to speak. She sat up, dabbed her eyes, kissed Jane lovingly as who should say, "Well, thank God, there is one child I can rely on," and turned upon the culprit. Her oneping sentence was at once a summons and an invitation.

"Well, Hector?"

"It happened while you were away—while we were both away, Nellie. I was gone less than forty-eight hours—and he had compromised himself."

"You don't mean—really compromised himself!" Jane cried sharply, thus bringing upon her The Laird's attention. He apepared to transfix her with his index finger.

"To bed with you, young lady!" he ordered. "Your mother and I will discuss thit matter without any of your pert suggestions or exclamations. I'm far from pleased with you, Jane. I told you to shut that door, and you disobeyed me. For that you shall suffer due penance. Six months in Port Agnew, my dear, to teach you obedience and humility.

Jane departed sniffling, and this stern evidence of The Laird's temper was not lost upon his wife. She decided to be tactful, which, in her case, meant proceeding slowly, speaking carefully, and listening well. Old Hector heaved himself out of his great chair, came and sat down on the divan with his wife, and put his arm round her.

"Dear old Nellie!" he whispered, and kissed her.

For the moment, they were lovers of thirty years agone; their children forgotten, they were sufficient unto themselves.

"I know just how you feel, Nellie. I have done my best to spare you—I have not connived or condoned. And I'll say this for our son. He's been open and above board with her and with me. He's young, and in a moment of that passion that comes to a young man—aye, and young women, too, for you and I have known it—he told me what was in his heart, even while his head warned him to keep quiet. It seems to me sometimes that 'tis something that was to be."

"Oh, Hector, it mustn't be! It cannot be!"

"I'm hoping is will not be, Nellie. I'll do my best to stop it."

"But, Hector, why did you support him a moment ago?"

He flapped a hand to indicate a knowledge of his own incomprehensible conduct.

"She'd called for him, Nellie. Poor bairn, her heart went out to the one she knew would help her, and, by God, Nellie, I felt for her! You're a woman, Nellie. Think—if one of your own daughters was wishful for a kind word and a helping hand from an honorable gentleman and some fool father forbade it. Nellie wife, my heart and my head are sore tangled ,sore tangled——"

His voice broke. He was shaken with emotion. He had stood much and he had stood it alone; while it had never occurred to him to think so, he had been facing life pretty much alone for a decade. It would have eased his surcharged spirit could he have shed a few manly tears, if his wife had taken his leonine old head on her shoulder and lavished upon him the caresses his hungry heart yearned for. Unfortunately, she was that type of wife whose only thought is for her children. She was aware only that he was in a softened mood, so she said,

"Don't you think you've been a little hard on poor Jane, Hector dear?"

"No, I do not. She's cruel, selfish, and uncharitable."

Pass Lists of Junior and Senior And Junior Associate Grades

The Primary and Preliminary passes will be issued on Wednesday morning.

The Intermediate lists will not be out for fully a week; the accident to the Prospero put the examinations back in many places north for more than a week, and a large number of papers were correspondingly late in coming in and in reaching the examiners in England.

DOINGS AT LEWISPORTE

To The Editor,

The Evening Advocate,

Dear Sir,—Please allow me space in your esteemed paper to record some of the happenings of the Lewisporte Methodist Guards in camp.

On August 3rd., according to previous instructions, the boys formed up at the L.O.A. Hall, when joined by the transportation party, they marched to the camp ground, a distance of three miles; stuated in an ideal spot by the side of the rivers mouth.

Arriving at the camp, the loads were deposited and the tents made ready for occupation; then the pickets were told off for the first day's duty; their work was to get the water boiled for tea etc., as well as having one of the groop on guard. The first meal over, the boys prepared to fix up the camp and to clean away the grounds for games etc.

Then after the evening meal, it was the intention of the Colonel to get the boys to play football and other games until nearly 9 o'clock; then the boys would be about tired out, so when the bugler would play "Lights-out," they would all go to sleep in place, but it was not so, for not long after the evening meal, according to the usual proceedings during the month of August, the rain decended, and the boys had to hike off to their tents; where the evening was spent in jokes, songs and other fun, so much so that the boys would knock the old tent and it not being plimmed up, the rain would come in, this and the novelty of their first night in camp, kept them awake long after their usual hour. At last the bugler, because of their noise and trouble, had to call out the officers; who then in the dark, for it was late, had to put a large sail over the camp where the boys were quartered, that fixed the troubles of the first night for some of us.

Early Tuesday morning they were called out for their run around to the river to wash; then, some physicial drill while the pickets were preparing breakfast. Sometime later the Guards left to go to the Sunday School Picnic and on the march back they made the hills ring to the old Tipperrary song that the boys used to sing. Coming near to the houses someone would shout "Did we get wet last night?" and everyone would yell the answer, "No," "Are we going back again?" Yes. "Are we downhearted?" No.

Thursday being the next suitable day the boys all hiked off for Camp at an early hour. It was the day appointed for visitors to come to see and treat the boys. Also the officers and crew of the S.S. Clyde were invited as special guests. The old saying about the wind was typical that day for "the wind it blew one hurricane, bye and bye it blew some more." And we were expecting to see the tents turning into balloons and the boys left without a place of abode. So much wind made the evening cold and some of the parents were anxious for the boys to go home but the lads agreed to stick and take the consequences. Also the Colonel slept in their tent that night and to the delight of all they woke up to see the sun shining gloriously.

Friday evening saw "The End of a Perfect day." It was a happy one for the boys; so "lights out" sounded for the last night in camp for the season, and they were advised by the Colonel to keep quiet for something big would be around that night.

Something big was as upper cooked in the moonlight for the officers and attendants, the boys could not be included, (more the pity) for the supply was not so great as the demand. The supper of meat, cabbage, new potatoes, onions, etc. was pronounced by the new favoured as the pronounced by the few favoured as the best yet.

Saturday was the day for breaking camp and the boys marched out of the old camp ground with a feeling of regret, yet with a greater feeling of comradeship and loyalty than ever experienced before, and I can say it crowned their summer holidays and made them realize others were interested in them.

The Guards wish to thank all who helped make their outing enjoyable, especially Messrs. Freake and Woolfrey for horses, Messrs. Boone and Jones for tents, R. W. Manuel for kettles, etc.

H. A. NORTHCOTT, Chaplain,
Acting Secretary.

Junior Football League

In the Junior Football League game last night, the Gaelic League defeated the T. A. by a score of 2 to 1.

At 6.45 the referee called the teams together, with the Gaelic defending the western goal. For the opening minutes, play was brisk, the Gaelic having the upper hand. Several chances to score were frustrated by the T.A. backs, when about ten minutes from opening, Skiffington drew first blood from a long shot outside the penalty area.

The T. A. bucked up after this, and for the balance of the first period, kept the ball in their opponents' territory, but the good work of the Gaelic goalie and fulls saved many an awkward situation. In this stage of the game, the work of Reardigan, the T. A. outside right was excellent, and was much admired.

The first period ended without further scoring.

On changing ends the Gaelic pressed their opponents hard, and their efforts were rewarded by White scoring on a rebound from the crossbar. This put new life in the T. A., and they tried hard to score, but without success until they were awarded a penalty which was successfully placed by Aspell. For the balance of the game there was no scoring.

The following are the remaining games to complete the schedule:

B. I. S. vs. St. Mary's; Holy Cross vs. Cadets; Wesley vs. Scouts.

Postponed games—Cadets vs. Wesley; T. A. vs. Holy Cross; Cadets vs. T. A.; St. Mary's vs. Wesley.

OBITUARY

MRS. LOUISA MEWS

On Thursday morning the Angel of Death visited the home of Mrs. Louisa Mews, daughter of the late Esther and William March of Old Perlican, calling her away in her 80th year.

Her passing was most peaceful, after a prolonged illness—she just fell asleep. She was the widow of William J. Mews, who predeceased her about 18 years. She is survived by her sister, Mrs. Corbet Pittman, while her surviving children are Mrs. William Noseworthy, W. Aston and Leonard C., residing in the city, and Harold, residing in East Setauket, N. Y., who mourn the loss of a devoted mother.

"Go On, Read Some More"

The Path to Knowledge

Thedying words of great men rarely, in spite of the publicity given them, contain any wisdom that may be generally applied in every walk of life.

This is not true, however, it so happens, of the last words uttered by Warren G. Harding, twenty-ninth President of the United States.

Mrs. Harding was reading to him, and when she paused and looked at him on the bed he encouraged her to continue, saying:

"Go on. Read some more."

Here is advice, uttered so casually, by a dying man, that is replete with wisdom. Here is advice that might profitably be acted upon by everyone.

Over the door of the main room of the wonderful Public Library (and it is shameful that Newfoundland has no public library) in New York, are these words:

"A good book is the precious life-blood of a master spirit, embalmed and treasured up on purpose to a life beyond life."

Reading opens the door to a vast world of whose existence non-readers do not even dream.

The printed word preserves for us, generation after generation, the accumulating knowledge and wisdom of the world. Much knowledge and wisdom is handed down directly by mouth, it is true. But compared to that vast depositoryliterature—what is so handed down is infinitesimal and paltry.

There was a time, before the invention of writing, when the bulk of the knowledge acquired by men passed away with them at their death—and each new generation had to begin life with a small portion of the knowledbe by preceding generations. Each succeeding generation had thus to begin over anew to acquire knowledge and wisdom. Whole civilizations perished and have never been replaced because of the lack of knowledge of writing. Certain ancient civilizations knew things that are not known even today—the secrets died with the civilization, and have never been re-discovered. Now, even if civilization should collapse, the existence of literature and the printed word would ensure a sound basis for a new civilization to take its place.

The findings of each generation could be jotted down for perusal by the succeeding generations, and thus build up a "common fund" of knowledge, when once the science of writing was invented. Because the art of writing has made it possible for a child to learn in the few years of its immaturity a thousand and one things that grown and old men did not know in ages past, the invention of writing was undoubtedly the greatest single factor in the civilizing of men.

True, we have not yet learned how to digest this knowledge. That is because we have not yet learned how to classify and arrange it. But we are learning . We are out on the road and the way lies before us.

Men learn truth and writh it down for perusal by others. From books, therefore, mankind will get truth. And the Bible says: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make ye free." That sentence may well be the greatest in the Bible.

It is nothing less than a disgrace that Newfoundland has no public library. The lack of one is a calamity. Scholars, students, readers, lovers of learning, all who wish to see the cause of civilization advanced in Newfoundland, should refuse to rest content until this mark of culture has been set down in St. John's and made easily available to all in Newfoundland.

It so happens that in St. John's only, there are dozens of men and women—aye, hundreds—dissatisfied over the lack of a library, and willing to do anything possible to fill the need. Surely they will get together to see what can be done about it? And the the outports and schools would share the benefits too.

Walt Whitman, the greatest American poet has said:

Allons! we must not stop here,
However sweet these laid-up stores,
however convenient this dwelling,
we cannot remain here,
However shelter'd this port and however calm these waters, we must not anchor here.
However welcome the hospitality that surrounds us we are permitted to receive it but a little while.

Have the past struggles succeeded?
What has succeeded? yourself? your nation? Nature
Now understand me well—it is provided in the essence of things that form any fruition of success, no matter what, shall come forth something to make a greater struggle necessary.

May they not be taken as the battle-cry of progress towards knowledge, truth?

The Race to Market

IS IT INTERESTING?

Yesterday, the first steamer for the Mediterranean went through the Narrows. To-day, another one will leave.

Says the Daily News, "the race across with the first new cargoes will be an interesting one."

We wonder which ship will reach the market first? The Hekla has the lead of one day's sailing, but the Ingunn may be a faster boat. It sounds like regatta day, with the whole people eyewitnesses to the unrestricted game of victimizing a country.

Which ship will get there first?

How utterly sickening the question, when it must be realised that the present shipping season will surely result in market congestion and a decline in prices from which the toilers who catch the fish, will be made to suffer. Whether the Hekla or the Ingunn arrives first, it matters nothing.

What does matter is that our exporters have not had the courage or the public spirit to sink their differences and unite in some kind of system that would regulate shipments, cut out senseless competition, prevent market congestion and ensure the continuance of the highest possible prices for all fishermen from one part of the season to another.

The steamer race may be interesting to a very few; but the system which it represents is not much less than a tragedy.

Is It A Square Deal?

In a Labour Day message, Warren S. Stone, Grand Chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of America, has stated:—

"The great issue in which the workers of America are involved is the struggle between autocracy and democracy in industry. The stability, the harmony, and the prosperity of the nation's economic fabric is at stake. There cannot, there should not be industrial peace until the men who invest all they have—their labor and their lives in the nation's basic industries, have a voice in directing the destiny of those industries, at least equal to that of the men who merely invest their money.

"Democracy in government goes hand in hand with democracy in industry. Because we have ignored the latter, we are in danger of losing the former."

His words are very applicable to the conditions under which our toilers of the sea find themselves. At no other time in the year is the truth of such a statement more in evidence, as it applies to this country, than during September and October.

There appears to be a great gulf fixed between those who catch our produce and those whose business it has been to market it; and it is a gulf which may well be considered the dividing line between autocracy and democracy in industry.

No country can be expected to prosper while its breadwinners are not sufficiently protected in their industries, or while they are merely used, by worn and decrepit systems, as pawns for manipulation of other classes, who cling to whole methods with a senseless selfishness that is as pernicious for themselves as it is for the country.

There may be no particular individuals to blame: all are equally guilty for the deadly inertia which leaves Newfoundland business the victim of foreign fish dealers, and keeps so many toilers in a rut of want.

If our present regatta stunts in the fish business do not constitute an autocracy of business, it represents something worse—an absolute and callous neglect of those without whom there would be no industry at all.

There probably is not on Water Street or in the country an exporter who can honestly assert that the present system of fish exportation is all that is desired, either from the exporters' view or the fishermen's.

It is manifest that every merchant cannot get his steamer or vessel in the market first, and the successful first arrivals mean only loss to subsequent arrivals and price-cutting for the poor men whose fish is still on their flakes, in their vessels on the Labrador or French Shore, or yet uncaught.

Is it fair? Is it sensible? Is it madness? It is madness, unadulterated.

Our fishermen stake all in their hard business, which is the basic strength of the country.

In that occupation, they invest their money, their property, their sons, their lives to "scrape" a livelihood. And their reward is uncertainty of a rotten business management, which gives fair prices for a few days to one, penalises the other and "kills" everybody eventually.

Is it not time that due respect be given to what the fishermen's proportion of the investment in the fish business is?

That feature has certainly been ignored by those who have invested in the fish business the money they have profited from the people.

Give the fishermen consideration. Do not penalise them. Let everybody recognise the dignity of honest labor and stop in time business practices that are both injurious to business and people.

The Commercial School

Determined To Carry on Its Good Work.

The notable results attained by the Springdale Street Commercial School during more than fifteen years in training young men and women for active business, justify the establishment of a separate commercial institution that is opening on Monday in the Victoria Hall, under the name of the United Business College of Newfoundland.

The Instructors are successful and experienced commercial specialists, and are, therefore, fully qualified to give students that preparation which enables them to meet the requirements of any up-to-date business office. No time will be spent on non-essentials, and the studies pursued will be of immediate value in business life, each student being permitted to advance in accordance with ability.

The courses offered are: Clerical and Salesmanship, Secretarial, Business or Accounting, also Millinery and Dressmaking, and will include such subjects as Gregg or Sloan Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Rapid Calculations, Business Correspondence, Spelling, Penmanship, Principles and Practice of Commerce, Commercial Law, Public Speaking, Debating, etc.

This is the first modern United Business College for all denominations in the country.

The Instructors are determined to insist upon thoroughness of work, and a high standard for the school on the lines of the Business Educators' Association of Canada, and the Accredited International Commercial School Association that confers the Diploma of Honour Graduate in Business (H.G.B.) upon students who complete course with grades averaging ninety per cent., and who are unreservedly recommended by the school from which they are graduated. Scholarships and other awards are made to students showing exceptional ability in typing, penmanship, shorthand, rapid arithmetic, etc., while good paying business positions, the best prizes of all, are found for all graduates by means of employment bureaus connected with both associations. This school is particularly fortunate in having hundreds of successful old students as friends of the promoters of this new United Business College institution.

Thus the school is calculated to produce good results for Newfoundland by its determination to carry on the great cause of commercial education.

Notes From Champney's

Schooners Arrive With Good Catches—Business Outlook Brighter—How the F. P. U. Benefited Fishermen.

The following schooners have arrived at Champneys from the fishery: Orange Blossom, B. Day, master, arrived from Renews, S. shore, hailing for 300 qtls; schr. Grace, Randell, master, from Belle Isle, 100 qtls.; schr. Goldfinch, Goldsworthy, master, from Labrador with 700 qtls. The crews of each of those schooners will make good wages. It is hoped a fair price will be obtained.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Fishery prospects to-day have been poor, owing to adverse weather. It is hoped that if moderate weather visits us an adequate catch will be secured to enable the men to provide for the winter.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

We hope that industries will boom between this and 1924. It is a serious matter to see so many of our promising young men emigrating to foreign places. We earnestly hope before many months Newfoundland will be able to welcome them back to industrial employment at home.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The motor boat Purity arrived here and took on board some dry codfish and proceeded to Port Rexton to finish loading. Skipper Tom Rideout keeps her moving, and although the iest little craft among the F. P. U. Purity is only 24 tons, she is the busfleet.

* * * *

Encouraging news reaches us from Quirpon, certifying that our men who are engaged there at the fishery have been highly successful. We understand Sir William will again purchase their fish as last year, as quite a few of those men have taken supplies from Port Union. It is hoped the F. P. U. will in short establish a permanent stand at Quirpon to supply our union friends and give them fair play. Last year Sir William bought some fish from Randell Bros. and others at that place, and put 80c. per quintal in their pockets over the price offered by competitors. The F. P. U. Trading Company will again purchase fish there and ensure a fair price. Well done, Sir William, a friend in need is a friend indeed.

* * * *

Quite a few of our union men are now getting home. We have a goodly number on our roll and feel sure the good old F. P. U. will remain amongst us. Our motto is "The Union Can't Lose."

Although the voyage has been very small, the F.P.U. Store seems to be getting its share and with quite a rush during August. This gives indication of a larger trade than that of 1922.

* * * * *

The C. of E. School at Champneys West re-opens on Monday with Miss Freeman again in charge. The writer tenders best wishes for a successful year, both for the teacher and children for 1923-24. On the arrival of Mr. Miller, the school at Champneys East will re-open. Mr. Miller is a resident of New Bonaventure, T.B., and although this is his first time taking the school in this place, we feel sure he will enjoy his term and meet with good results.

* * * * *

It is pleasing to note that The Advocate is deeply interested in the industrial affairs of the country. We trust the editor and staff will still continue to boost the prospective rights of Newfoundland.—X.Y.Z.

Champneys, Sept. 1st, 1923.

Two motor boats, fish laden, arrived here this forenoon from Ctpe. St. Francis. They were three hours coming up the shore; the thick fog in the early morning impeded their progress.

The Song of the Press

O. RAYMOND MAURER

This is the song of the printing press,
Mother of wisdom's light—
Lifting the dark veil of ignorance,
Searching into the night.

"I am the champion of justice,
Upholder of the free;
Weaving the fate of the multitude,
Toilingly unceasingly.
Empires have tottered before me,
Crumpled beneath my weight;
I am the finger of destiny,
I am the eye of fate.
Bring me your secrets, O Arctics,
Tropics, bring forth your wails;
Give me your story, mysterious East,
Bring me the West's own tales.
Give me your records of glory,
Your sordid tales of shame;
Tell me of bitter defeat and woe,
Your golden deeds of fame.
Laughter resounds when I will it,
Men weep at my desire;
Souls have grown cold with icy chill,
Hearts have warmed at my fire.
I am the fountain of knowledge
From which the wise must drink;
I am the gateway to all success,
And dreary failure's brink."

This is the song of the printing press,
Mother of wisdom's light—
Lifting the dark veil of ignorance,
Searching into the night.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

ON STICKING TOGETHER.

When men and women
Love each other
They stick together
And are satisfied.
But the trouble is
That MOST men
Love WOMEN,
And most WOMEN
Love LOVE—
And that is why
There are so many Dissatisfied men
And unsatisfied women;
BECAUSE
What a WOMAN desires
Is a GREAT man;
But what most MEN desire
Is a great many women,
And when they don't get
What they want
They are disappointed;
But when they DO get
What they want
They are DISILLUSIONED.
For men find all women
Are much the SAME,
And a WOMAN finds
NO man is ALWAYS great.

Tales of Heroism and Self-Sacrifice

A vivid account of the outbreak of the fire is furnished by Brian Doherty of Toronto. Young Doherty, with his brother and his chums, Jack Smith, William Thomas, both of Buffalo; Wilson Radcliffe, Cincinnati; Winifred Allan, Toronto; a lad named Molson, and Alex Booth, son of Charles Booth, Toronto, were sitting in the rotunda of the hotel where a bridge game was in progress, when they learned of the fire. It had probably been burning five minutes, said young Doherty, when they became aware of it.

"The elevator shaft runs up through the rotunda. It was a chimney thru which flames spread to all parts of the building. There was a fire hose close by with 90 pounds pressure, supposedly. We found it would not work and seized fire extinguishers about the building. We worked with the extinguishers as long as we could and then left with the other people who were driven out in their night garments," said Doherty. "The big hose outside the building was working all right."

Doherty said doors on the main floor at either end of the building were found to be locked when guests fled from the building by what they thought were the nearest exits. They saw the rotunda in smoke and flames. Turning back they left through the entrance in the centre of both wings. The elevator shaft was in the northerly wing of the hotel, close to the rotunda.

Continuing, young Doherty said six maids who were living in the tower of the building which was directly above the rotunda and the second floor, came down through the smoke. One of them went through the smoke to safety, but the others were terror stricken, returned to the tower and went to the roof. A ladder was thrown up, but it was found to be six feet short. The women were helpless, and fell with the burning building to their death or attempted to jump and were seriously injured.

Danced Last Dance.

"I danced the last dance with Marjorie Bowker on Saturday night." The tragedy that some times so quickly follows the joy of youth was never more strikingly illustrated than in the sentence above, brokenly voiced by George Radcliffe, a fifteen-year-old Toronto boy, who was one of the survivors of the hotel fire which destroyed the WaWa summer hotel on the Lake of Bays early Sunday morning.

Marjorie was just fourteen. She was the daughter of C. G. Bowker, a manager of the central region of the Canadian National Railways. Her father got her out with the rest of the family to safety. Then Mr. Bowers went to the assistance of others. Possible impulse, or perhaps she was confused in the distressing situation which followed, with the unfortunate people trapped in the top story, leaping to the ground to their death. Any way the girl went back into the burning building, and was not seen alive again. One story says she missed her mother and went back to make sure she had been aroused. Death folowed the dance within an hour or two. The girl was taken, the lad was left.

A perverse fate was responsible for the tragic story of Mrs. Jane Mc Nally, aged 77, wife of James McNally, of the Chicago publishing house, in the fire which destroyed the WaWa Hotel at Lake of Bays, with the loss of from seven to nine lives.

For several nights Mrs. McNally had found it very difficult to sleep. The night of the fire she was nervous and rather ill, to be certain that she would have sleep and rest she took a sleeping tablet.

The fire broke out, gained headway and smoke filled the corriodors but Mrs. McNally was sleeping on this night. Her friend, Mrs. McIntyre, pounded hysterically on the door, but it was locked and no one heeded.

The flames shot out at those who would have rescued Mrs. McNally and dense smoke fumes would have smothered them. They were forced to flee.

It is not known whether Mrs. McNally awoke. She is numbered among the missing.

"Kiddie" Carroll, the cheerful little waitress from New York, who heroically jumped from the veranda roof, suffering severe injuries requiring 136 stitches in her arm and a broken leg at the WaWa Hotel fire, pluckily hung on as she rode on an improvised stretcher in the baggage car on the way to hospital in Toronto, nearly 200 miles on the road. She lost everything but her life, and says she is glad she saved that. In Toronto General Hospital, she is reported as doing as well as could be expected.

The office of Fire Marshall, E. P. Heaton is in close touch with the situation, and it was promised that there will be a full and complete fire inquest at the earliest possible moment. Inspectors have already been despatched to the scene of the fire to make preliminary investigation as to the cause of the fire, and to prepare for the opening of public sittings. A number of survivors of the fire will give evidence.

The Attorney-General's department has already arranged for the holding of an inquest on the body of one of the victims. A provincial police officer at Huntsville has charge of the plans for the holding of the coroner's inquest.

Dream Drives Boy To Bare Slaying

Eight-Year-Old Says "Shadow" of Companion, Nine, Made Him Reveal Shooting.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 24.—Eight-year-old Antonio Testa of this city saw the "shadow" of Michael Lurgio, nine, in a dream last night and told his mother that Henri Rossi, thirteen, had shot Lurgio and buried him in a slough hole just over the Providence line in the town of Johnston. Tuesday afternoon. Policemen, hurrying to the spot with the two former playmates of Lurgio, found the body of the Lurgio boy, who had been reported by his parents as missing since Tuesday at 11 o'clock.

Henri Rossi in a supplemental statement to the police said he did not know the double-barrelled shotgun left by his father in a shack on Hedley Street, Johnston, was loaded.

He said: "We were playing and Mikie stood in the doorway. I pulled the trigger and it went off. It him in the left breast and he fell over. Then I was afraid my father would beat me for having kids around the shack, so we buried him."

The Testa boy said Rossi made him promise not to tell. He told the police yesterday he went off with Lurigo Tuesday, but at 11 o'clock in the morning Michael left him "to go home to get 10 cents to go to the pictures." Yesterday, Testa said, he asked Rossi if he could tell about the disappearance of the Lurigo boy. Both boys this morning said that Rossi had told Testa, "Tell if you wan to."

Then Testa kept the secret until he was awakened by a dream last night and told his mother.

Giant Leviathan Beats Olympic By 12 Hours In Atlantic Coast

SOUTHAMPTON, Aug. 24. (Associated Press).—The American steamship Leviathan arrived from New York at 12.55 p.m. today, Greenwich time. At that hour the White Star liner Olympic, which left New York about the same time last Saturday, had not yet arrived at Cherbourg, her first port of call, at which the American ship arrived at 5 a.m.

It was estimated by officials of the United States Lines that the Leviathan had beaten the Olympic by at least twelve hours, as the reports indicated the British liner was not likely to reach Cherbourg until around six o'clock this evening.

The Leviathan passed the Olympic seven hours out of New York, and maintained an average speed during the voyage of 24.93 knots an hour. Fine weather prevailed throughout the run. The best day's mileage was 575.

The Olympic is expected to arrive here at 8 o'clock to-morrow morning. Officials calculated the Leviathan's time as five days, 13 hours and 45 minutes. This is faster than the first trip made after her reconditioning, which occupied five days, 17 hours, but is slower than her second trip, which was negotiated in five days, 11½ hours. The officials said it was not surprising that the Leviathan should beat the Olympic, as the American steamer is the faster boat, doing an average of 25 knots as against the Olympic's 23.

Stefansson's Faith In Importance of Wrangle Isld.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, in an interview in The Times, stresses the importance of Wrangle Island to Great Britain.

"Some people seem to consider," he says, "that its great distance from Canada is an argument against its usefulness to the British Empire, but this is the strongest argument for it, since we need it as a station in the world system of wireless, and as our leanding place for aircraft, when, twenty years from now, mail-carrying across the Arctic is likely to be commonplace."

After detailing the facts of Noice's relief expedition, Stefansson says that Americans returning to Nome brought reports that the Soviet authorities there had orders to capture any British ship that might try to reach the island.

BLOIS CELEBRATES CURE OF A DYING WOMAN AT THE SHRINE IN LOURDES

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The old City of Blois on the Loire is celebrating with cathedral thanksgiving the miraculous cure of a local dress-maker, Germaine Rossignol, who has returned from the famous grotto at Lourdes in almost a normal state of health.

When she left she was carried to a pilgrim's train a few weeks ago on a stretcher. Her friends say she looked "like a corpse on the way to the cemetery." She is twenty-six and was suffering from the last stages of pulmonary tuberculosis.

For weeks she had been unable to take anything but sugared water and milk. During the last few days before her arrival at Lourdes she could not retain even that and had to be given constant injections of morphine.

Now she is able to walk alone; she eats heartily of meat and vegetables, and twenty-two doctors have signed a certificate stating that she is cured.

DIAMOND FROM SKIES?

During a recent thunderstorm over London, England, a 6-lb lump of shiny substance fell from the skies into a garden suburb. It proved to be diamond-like and if valuable, as is hoped, it will go to the garden's owner, as only buried treasure found of unknown ownership goes to the Crown. But if there is a dispute, the coroner has to hold an inquest on the treasure trove according to English law. A few years ago some 17 century jewellery was dug up in the City of London, and handed over to the Governmen, whereupon Dr. Waldo, the city coroner, successfully insisted on his right to decide the nature of the find for its proper ownership.

Britain's Latest Warships To Mount 9 16-Inch Guns

It is stated in authoritative naval circles that Great Britain's two new battleships, Nelson and Rodney, will each mount nine 16-inch guns, which will be carried in triple turrents, a new form of mounting. Each of these giant guns will be capable of hurling a shell weighing approximately 2500 pounds.

In the American and Japanese navies there are ships mounting guns of 16-inch calibre, but the Nelson and Rodney will form a unique type, because they will carry nine guns of this size instead of eight mounted in foreign warships. The reason for introducing the triple turret is the necessity for economizing in weight owing to the restricted displacement laid down in the terms of the Washington agreement.

Triple turrets were first used in the British navy two years ago, when they were temporarily fitted on a monitor which bombarded the ex-German battleship Baden during a series of experiments. Some naval gunnery experts contend that triple mounting does not produce the most accurate and rapid firing.

Another feature of the new battleships will be special anti-flash arrangements, which are a closely guarded secret. They will embody the lessons of Jutland where some British ships were sunk owing to shell flashes penetrating to the magazines.

Diplomacy Passing From Diplomats and Politicians To Trained Business Men

"Diplomacy — the last stronghold of a privileged class — is passing out of their hands into those of men who have been trained in business rather than diplomacy. It is perhaps not mere coincidence that at the present time in Washington the British, German and Italian Ambassadors and the Swiss and Swedish Ministers are filling their first diplomatic appointments, performing their duties with success and to the satisfaction alike of their own and the American Government. The war was the great test of diplomacy, and under that test of diplomacy broke. It neither foresaw war nor was able to prevent war; it was stricken with paralysis during the war. The people dimly recognized that modern diplomacy was an archaic institution; they could not scrap it, but they could break the tradition as the first step toward reform."

—Sir A. Maurice Low, in the New York Times.

Two Traditions Smashed.

Sir A. Maurice Low, the distinguished Washington correspondent of the morning Post, has a striking article in the New York Times, in which he points out one of the most remarkable results of the war—that diplomacy is now passing out of the hands of diplomats and politicians and into the hands of men trained in business.

"During the early days of the war, when Doorn was not in the Kaiser's picture, a mythical story amused the Entente capitals," says Sir Maurice Low.

"William, viewing the war won and sneering at British and French military inefficiency, vowed that one of the peace terms would be to compel the British to take over the charge of German diplomacy. British diplomacy was superb, but when the Kaiser saw where German diplomacy led he raved even more than usual and stopped only when he had exhausted all the adjectives which are not fit to print.

"The war did a lot of surprising and unpleasant things, but nothing more surprising than when it smashed two of Europe's most cherished traditions. It gave a black eye to diplomacy and the professional diplomat. It pulled the statesman from his pinnacle and revealed him the politician.

Tradition of Statesmanship

"It was the European tradition that government, which is statesmanship, was a thing so wonderful and fearful that it could be mastered only by the few; men were destined by a mysterious Providence to be statesmen as the vestal virgins were destined to be the guardians of the sacred fire. In Britain, despite reform bills, the reduction of property qualifications, the tradition was maintained. The business of Government was the business of the elect, who always pretended that the business bored them and they would much rather be shooting or hunting or playing cricket than sitting in the House of Commons or signing their names to letters and dispatches written by their subordinates.

"The elect sacrificed themselves and enjoyed it, and formed a close corporation—and, on the whole, did their work well if not always wisely, and were honest and had the interests of the empire at heart when they did foolish things—and the unelect looked on and were content. Mysteries were not for them. No Englishman of the great middle class ever thought that Government was a very simple affair. On the contrary, he imagined it was much more complex than it really is. He liked that figure of the weary Titan, and he had a good deal of respect for his governors, whom he accepted largely on faith.

No Emergency Men.

"The war defied precedent. It has always been accepted as a historical truth that a great emergency produces the man. It is one of the curious things about the greatest conflict in history that the war brought no hitherto unknown man to the front. I am referring, of course, to the field of statesmanship; of the battlefield I am less competent to speak. There was no young officer to find a Field Marshal's baton in his belongings as did that young artilleryman at Toulon in the last years of the eighteenth century. Neither at the council table nor on the field did the hitherto obscure man reveal himself as the genius of his time or as the one of whom great things could be predicted. There were many men who did excellent work, but it was not brilliant enough to raise them above the general level. Was the work of such a character that individual accomplishment, similar to the processes of modern industrialism, lost its identity and became merged in the finished product? It is perhaps an interesting speculation.

"Equally curious that from the beginning to the end of the war it was in the control of old men, either old in years or old in service. It was the same in all countries; among the Entente as well as the Central Powers.

There Was No Pitt.

"There was no Pitt with the insolence of genius and youth to declare: 'I place much dependence on my new colleagues; I place still more dependence on myself.' Prime Ministers and Foreign Ministers brought to their tasks the experience that years bring veterans long retired were called back into service, who displayed the same caution, the same dislike of the new and the untried, the same respect for form and precedent that is characteristic of the official hardened in the official mould. It perhaps explains why the war dragged and the inertia of the official mind hampered the new men to whom achievement was more important than the refinement of red tape. The promising young man, long under the eye of his superiors, who in fiction would have brought to the tempered prudence of his seniors his enthusiasm, audacity and ingenuity, was ignored. There were exceptions, of course, but they are comparatively few. One recalls Lawrence, the most romantic figure of the war; but I am dealing in generalities and not with rare instances.

"What we might have expected during the war, or quickly following the conclusion of peace, we are now seeing, nearly five years after the armistice. The old order, if it has not gone, is at least in temporary eclipse. There is a reaction against the old type.

The New Men.

"In Britain we have Baldwin when we might have had Curzon, and undoubtedly would have had him if this had been 1913 and not 1923. A lot of rubbish was published at the time of Bonar Law's retirement of the King having passed over Curzon in favor of Baldwin because the former was disliked by the Labor Party, which is as sound a reason as a Republican President ignoring the outstanding man in his own party for a post in the Cabinet because the Democrats do not like him. Curzon was passed over not because of Labor opposition but because the Conservative Party, while still conservative, has broken from its tradition. It is a significant sign of the times.

"In Germany we have Stresemann, and in Italy, Mussolini. It is not only that they are unknown men, the discoveries of the post-war period, but they bear no resemblance to the Prime Minister of European tradition or the French stage. They have no back-ground of political life, no long experience in statesmanship; they were not brought up from youth to be the rulers of their peoples.

"Baldwin belongs to this group; the business man rather than the statesman; less the politician than the man of affairs, to whom party is a respectable institution but not a fetish. Contrast these men still engaged in the seemingly unsolvable problem of the reparations with the Prime Ministers who sat around the table and posed the problem without considering the solution, and could there be a more striking contrast? Perhaps we may except Lloyd George, but he is an anomaly in British politics.

"Something more than a label is required to hold men to their party allegiance. What is loosely and carelessly talked about as dissatisfaction with the holder of an office, his methods or policies, is the conviction that although a man may have spent many years in public service, it does not necessarily follow that other men cannot be found even more competent. There is a widespread longing for new men and new ideas.

"We may, I think, find the cause deeply rooted. The war taught peoples many things, but nothing so impressively as the fiction of wisdom. We took too much for granted. We believed implicitly in the myths and legends of the great, of their prescience and powers of divination. The war came and blasted more than one reputation. It stripped the great of their uniforms and robes and revealed them prophets of straw."

Prime Minister Tells Commons Of English-French Rift

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N. Y.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin is here shown on his way to attend one of the Cabinet sessions dealing with the British reparations note. In addressing the House of Commons, he told of the rift between England and France and Belgium over the reparations problem.

Farm—or Fight.

(The Times.)

Unless the British people are prepared to be satisfied if the country itself is saved "to some extent" in case of hostile attack, they must see to it that agriculture is rescued now, and not at some vague future date, from the paralysis with which it is threatened.

Arms and the Man.

(Daily Herald.)

If we have armies, we shall have wars. That is certain—whether they are citizen armies or youths hired as cannon-fodder. We shall always think at the moment we are defending ourselves, and we shall always find out later that we were deluded. We know all this from our own experience; we learn it from history. It is an eternal truth.

A Silver Lining.

(Westminister Gazette.)

Substantially the financial situation of the country to-day is not worse than it was at the conclusion of the Napoleonic wars. The total burden is vastly greater, but so is the national wealth. During last century we made light of the debt we had incurred because of the enormous industrial and commercial development that came with the era of steam. While we can not look for another such sudden expansion in productiveness, there are the best reasons for believing that we shall improve steadily our capacity to make good, and with them to supply the markets of the world.

Will It Stand The Strain?

(Washington Post.)

The entente may continue, but its continuance depends upon the good temper of the Allies in the face of irreconcilable disagreement upon a vital question. If Britain can still face unemployment with equanimity, while believing that France is the cause of it, and if France can look calmly upon German evasion of reparations, while believing that Britain's encouragement is the cause of it, then the entente can stand; but the entente is of little use to either country if it does not bring them into accord. The adjustment of reparations is a vital question to both of them, for Britain can not solve her industrial problems while Europe is in eclipse, and France can not become solvent unless Germany pays.

A Real Sportsman.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Sir Thomas Lipton is liked in America because in twenty-four years since he first tried for it he has never said die to the prospect of winning the American Cup, so coveted by international yachtmen. He has spent more than $3,000,000 to realize his dream of transporting the precious piece of silverware to the other side. The long strife of the gallant Irishman who has so often "luffed and lost" has not embittered his radiant good cheer. Whether he wins or loses in 1925 on the fifth attempt, which he came to America to announce, his reputation for good sportsmanship is the most durable trophy he could hope to win and that already is his permanent possession.

NEW CITIZENS REVERE MEMORY OF LINCOLN

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Sept. 5 (A.P.)—Of the thousands of pilgrims who annually visit the tomb of Abraham Lincoln, the most enthusiastic and most welcome, according to H. W. Fay, custodian, are the immigrants who are just about to become American citizens.

Crowned heads, ambassadors, famous generals, prime ministers and presidents come by the score to lay wreaths on the sarcophagus of the martyred president. And men and women from more humble walks of life come too.

"Many times a year the foreign-born coal miner comes to Springfield from neighbouring towns to take out his first citizenship papers," said Mr. Fay, "and he is the most reverent visitor of all. I like to tell men like that about the martyred president."

There has never been any disorder at the tomb within the memory of the present custodian. "Everybody who comes here is quiet and reverential," he said. "I have never had to ask a visitor to remove his hat.

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Branchton, Ont.—"When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly prompted by curiosity. I wondered if I, too, would benefit by your medicine. It was the most profitable action I have ever taken, I heartily assure you, for through its results I am relieved of most of my sufferings. I have taken six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and I can honestly say I have never been so well before. I had suffered from pains and other troubles since I was fifteen years old, and during the 'Great War' period I worked on munitions for two years, and, in the heavy lifting which my work called for, I strained myself, causing pelvic inflammation from which I have suffered untold agony, and I often had to give up and go to bed. I had doctored for several years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicines."—Mrs. GOLDWIN MISENER, Branchton, Ont.

YAWNING

There are a number of odd superstitions with regard to yawning. Most people remember having been corrected at some time or other for not placing a hand over the mouth to cover up a yawn.

This arose from a quaint belief of years ago when people were more superstitious than they are to-day—that there was a danger of the devil jumping into the open mouth when in the act of yawning.

Among many races it is still believed that he who yawns much is possessed of an evil spirit. When a Hindu yawns, he snaps his thumbs and repeats the name of one of his deities. To neglect this means misfortune.

When a Moslem yawns he puts the back of his hand over the open mouth and says "I seek refuge in Allah from Satan."

To yawn in the midst of prayers is considered a bad omen. It is better, according to ancient superstition, to begin the prayer again from the beginning.

"Drink milk and gain weight," is a slogan which is rapidly growing in popularity among Montreal's younger generation. Some time ago the principals of three of the city schools became so impressed with the merits of milk as a food for boys and girls that they had a milk lunch served daily to al arge number of the children. This in turn impressed the Protestant School Commissioners, to the extent that they have sent a letter to all principals recommending the establishment of mid-morning milk lunches as a regular feature of the school routine.

At present there is a danger that many of our most beautiful churches in London may be destroyed, says Mrs. Cecil Chesterton, in a recent London Letter to the Associated Press. The argument is that in the city there are many churches which are destitute of congregation. On an average a few old women and a small boy turn up to Sunday service, the verger only being present on week-days. This means that the vicar has to endure an enforced idleness while more congested districts are badly in need of extra assistance. The latter argument is a good one, for the redistribution of "livings," but I canot see that it is necessary to demolish buildings of architectural beauty and historic value. If it is impossible to fill the churches with worshippers they could be turned into libraries or Houses for the accomodation of church workers. Generally speaking, an empty church suggests a sleepy vicar. St. Martins-in-the Fields, at the bottom of the Strand, is always full. The church door stands open night and day, and those who have no lodging sleep there in security and peace.

A wealthy stock-man died in Sydney Australia recently, Peter Mitchell, who n his will left a fund for the "ideal woman." Prizes are to be distributed from time to time.

The conditions for competitors are that they must be unmarried, not over 30, of British descent, and resident in Australia. They must not be of the off-spring of first cousins. The woman who is to win the prize must be cheerful and bright in disposition.

She must cut a good figure on horseback, and swim well. She must be intellectually as well as physicially well equipped, and she is required to have a wide range of knowledge, in cluding the following subjects: History of the British Empire; geography of Australia; elementary anatomy and physiology; proficiency in first aid; practical housekeeping; domestic economy.

She must also have a thorough understanding of a wide range of English literature including Shakespeare, Carlyle; Dickens, Robert Burns, R. L. Stevenson and others. It is further laid down that the ideal woman's knowledge of the Bible must be sound and appreciative. Finally, she must be able to nurse babies and children.

SAFETY FACTOR IN 4-WHEEL BRAKE

McLaughlins Take Steps to Obstain Reduction of Collision Insurance Rates.

Following the announcement of four-wheel brakes on all the new 1924 McLaughlin-Buick cars, which were shown to the public for the first time on August 1, J. H. Beaton, general sales manager, of the McLaughlin Motor Car Co., Ltd., announced that steps would be taken immediately to obtain a reduction of liability and collision insurance rates on the new cars with this equipment.

This is in line with announcements made by insurance companies in the United States immediately after the introduction of the 1924 Buick cars, which also have four-wheel brakes. Several insurance companies in the States at once declared as much as 10 percent cuts in the premiums because of the increased safety which the four-wheel brakes provide.

"There is no reason why the insurance companies should not recognize the added factor of safety in four-wheel break equipment,' said Mr. Beaton in discussing the proposed action. "Breaking a motor car is not a question of the size of brake drum and of brake band once you have sufficient surface to lock the wheels. It is a matter of the friction of tire surface with the road under the deceleration caused by wrapping the brake band on the drum.

"Consequently, when you apply brakes to all your wheels you immediately double the b reaking efficiency. Moreover you apply it evenly and with less wear to any brake band, making far longer life and loss need of adjustment.

"Four-wheel brakes provide a new measure of safety for emerbencies. They permit a quick, skidless stop in almost all of the distance possible with two-wheel brake equipment. They are valuable as a preventative for smash-ups and personal injuries in the unavoidable 'tight places' that present day heavy traffic causes on almost every road many times each day.

"'Four-wheel brakes do not, however, permit any driver taking more chances. They are not "stunt" equipment. Their function is one of lengthening the life of the b rake, making a better, quicker and surer stop for adding to the safety of the car and its occupants."

Germany's Capacity to Pay

By The Author of The "Quarterly Review" Article Bearing The Same Title.

Politicians, economists, and financiers discuss Germany's capacity to pay, but, strangely enough, nobody inquires whether she has the will to pay.

Germany is absolutely determined to pay reparations only in words, and not in cash or in goods equivalent to cash. That is perfectly obvious from the action of the Government and from the nation-wide agitation in the Press and elsewhere. That attitude is understandable, but it is very short-sighted, and in the end Germany will suffer fearfully for her recalcitrancy. The Stinnes crowd and the Ludendorff gang pursue an identical policy.

Germany is still by far the richest country on the Cintinent, and very likely she is richer than England. The wealth of nations does not consist in cash, but in real values. Within her present limits Germany has far more coal, a far more powerful and valuable industrial plant than this country, and she has a most flourishing agriculture, eceedingly valuable forests, gigantic stores of lignite and potash, and the most wonderful river system in the world.

During the war, and ever since, this country has been taxed to the utmost limit. Of England's taxation paid since 1914 at least £4,000,000,000 has been war taxation. While the struggle was going on Germany maintained her low peace taxes, and since 1918 taxation has been far lower in Germany than it was before the war. At present German taxation comes to an equivalent of only £50,000,000 per year, but all the taxes raised, and more, are given back to the people in the form of artificially cheapened food.

While many English taxpayers have paid income tax out of capital and have not been able to extend their factories and renew their machinery, German employers have put their gigantic war profits and post-war profits into bricks and mortar and machines, or have hidden them abroad. Germany's economic outfit and productive capacity have been tremendously strengthened, and as soon as she starts working with full force she will overwhelm the industries of this country.

The German industries have been given the finest outfit in the world, and at the same time all burdens have been taken away from them.

The collapse of the mark has ruined the investors and has vastly enriched the industrialists and agriculturists. Their debts have been wiped out. A pre-war mortgage of 1,000,000 marks, which was employed for erecting a large factory, can be repaid by the sale of a pair of boots. In this way German industry and agriculture have received approimately £5,000,000,000 as a free gift. By merely taxing this huge unearned increment the claims of France might be satisfied in full.

Hugo Stinnes was a man of moderate means before the war. He is now one of the richest men, if not the richest man, in the world owing to the real values which he has acquired. His wealth has been created by the plunder of the German investors and of the foreigners who were foolish enough to buy German marks. Foreigners no longer buy marks, but they are unwise enough to buy German funds and continue to be robbed. For some considerable time Englishmen have been buying German "Tarees" at something less than £1, thinking the stock cheap because it stood at about 80 before the war. In Berlin 3 per cent. Consols were also quoted at about 80 before the war. Now they are quoted above 30,000 and the yield to British investors is less than 1-100th per cent. per year.

German taxation is a joke. The industrialists and agriculturists, who have robbed investors of about £5,000,000,000, pay practically nothing in income tax. On the basis of the figures given by me in the Quarterly Review, their entire income tax payments come to £1,200,000, a sum which possibly does not cover the cost of collection.

Income tax is paid in full only by the workers who have up to 10 per cent. deducted from their weekly pay. During a good many months the workers have paid 20 times as much in income tax as the income tax payers proper.

Germany solemnly undertook to impose taxation at least as high as in any of the victor countries. By the decline of the mark the taxes on popular luxuries have disappeared. Quite recently the tax on sugar was ¼d. per ton. An Englishman paid exactly as much tax on a single lump of sugar as a German on a hundredweight. The beer tax was similarly low. An Englishman paid as much tax on a single glass of beer as a German on about 10,000 glasses. The taxes on beer, sugar, and many other things yielded, of course, far less than the cost of collection. An increase has just been determined upon, but it is quite inadequate.

The Government deliberately wastes money right and left to produce the appearances of bankruptcy. On July 1 railway and postal charges were "very greatly increased." At the then rate of exchange railway fares were fixed at ½d. per mile 1st class, ¼d. per mile 2nd class, 1-12th of a penny 3rd class, and 1-20th of a penny 4th class. The German 4th class is equivalent to the English third class. Local letter postage was fixed at 1-30th of a penny, foreign letter postage at ¼d., 11-lb. parcels at ¾d.

To complete the picture of bankruptcy, the Reichsbank is giving away its funds. It has been buying marks at a high price and selling them at a low price, and it is discounting trade bills at about 1-10th the commercial charge, to the joy of all speculators.

While investors have been ruined and deliberately defrauded, the industrialists and agriculturists have waxed rich, and the great majority of the workers are prosperous. According to the statistics just published by the German Statistical Office, the real wages of the unskilled workers are now 22 per cent. higher than they were before the war.

Inflation has led to universal "ca'canny." Output per worker is only half as great as it was in 1913. The stabilisation of the mark would double production and swamp the world with German exports.

The depreciation of the mark has led to the disappearance of the national debt. Germany's military and naval expenditure has shrunk to a minimum. If Germany merely applied to reparations the economies resulting from the disappearance of the debt and from the drastic reduction of her army and fleet, she could pay the Allies in full.

W. A. McKay, Grand Master of I. O. O. F.

PAYS OFFICIAL VISIT TO ORDER IN THIS COUNTRY

By the Silvia there arrived Mr. W. A. MacKay, Grand Master of the Independent Order of Oddfellows of Newfoundland. Mr. MacKay is also Supt. of the live stock and diary products of the Truro College of Nova Scotia. He is visiting all lodges possible in this jurisdiction. Yesterday accompanied by several members of the mystic tie, and through the courtesy of Mr. Gus Lester, a visit was paid to Mount Cashel where Mr. MacKay looked over the live stock and was surprised at the excellence of the stock. Bros. Conway, O'Regan and Mr. Flannigan extended a hearty welcome and Mr. MacKay reciprocated extending a hearty invitation to each, if at any time they may be in Truro, to visit the College there.

The party then proceeded countrywards stopping at Bowring Park where they met Mr. Canning, the genial Superintendent, who escorted the party over the grounds. Picturesque Petty Hr. was next visited. A stop was made at Brennock's well known hostellry for tea, where the party was the guest of Mr. Lester.

The Grand Master at 8.30 p.m. paid an official visit to Colonial Lodge, No. 135, and was extended a fraternal welcome which perhaps was unsurpassed in the history of vis ting Grand Masters. The initiary degree was exemplified in a pleasing manner.

Other items outlined for Mr. MacKay's visit on a trip to Bell Island on Tuesday afternoon, where he will address the lodge in the evening. On Wednesday at 8 o'clock a banquet will be tendered the dist nguished visitor at Wood's West End Restaurant. If time permits he may visit Conception Lodge, Carbonear, and on the return trip which will be made by rail Grand Master MacKay will stop off at Grand Falls and exchange greetings with Exploits Lodge. The craft in Newfoundland are endeavoring to give Bro. MacKay a real Newfoundland welcome and so far have done well.

One Hundred Years Old

At present there resides in the city of Boston an old lady who was born at St. John's one hundred years ago. She is a daughter of the late Roger Flahran, after whom Flahran's Street was called. She is strong, considering her great age.

The Sacrifice Begins

The S.S. Hekla, the first d rect boat to the Mediterranean this season sailed at 7 o'clock last evening for Alicante and Naples. The Hekla loaded part cargo at Carbonera, Bonavista and finished at this port, and has over 3000 casks, shipped by Messrs. Crosbie & Co., Philip Templeman and J. & W. Moores.

The S.S. Ingunn, the second direct steamer, sails this afternoon. This ship which is under charter to the Nfld. Sh pping Co., has been loaded by the various firms here.

Another year has gone by and the fishermen of this country are face to face with the old conditions of gamble for high stakes amongst the fish exporters. Presently we will hear of several large cargoes arriving in the markets at about the same time to the detriment of the price and general injury to the country's trade. The race to which the Daily News refers as interesting, will be so to the fishermen of this country in the same way a rival in a death struggle tries to get the upper hand of his opponent. How long will the people stand for this condition of affairs?

The S.S. Trident cleared from Greenspond yesterday for Cardiff with 2,843 cords of pit props.

Mr. E. J. Godden leaves by the Silvia today enroute to Chicago on a business trip.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Morine leaves to day for a few weeks holiday with friends in Canada.

Skipper Stephen Oldford, of Salvage, B.B., is now in the city, having arrived from the Straits in his schooner with a full load of fish.

Mr. James W. Foley returns to Holy Heart Seminary by the Silvia today to resume his studies.

The Rev. A. B. S. Stirling, Rector of St. Mary's Parish, who spent his vacation in Topsail, has returned to the city.

Mr. George Porter, of Elliston, who quite recently returned from Vancouver, is now in town and will leave by tomorrow's train, enroute to Canada.

Mrs. Lee, daughter of Mr. William Ring, who came to St. John's some weeks ago, before the death of her mother, and Mrs. White, sister of the deceased, left by the Silvia for their homes in the United States.

Mr. Michael Power, boatswain S.S. Manoa, who stayed at home the last trip the ship made here, is leaving by her again today. The boatswain remained on shore because of his wife's illness. Mrs. Power is now very much improved.

Mr. A. W. Kennedy, the popular East End Druggish, and his wife, are now in Canada. It is eleven years ago since Mr. Kennedy was away on a holiday.

Mrs. (Senator) Goff and her parents Capt. George and Mrs. Penny, formerly of Carbonear and who were visiting the old home land, were passengers to New York by the Silvia to-day.

Charles J. Ryall, son of Mr. S. Ryall, of Anderson's West End dry goods establishment, leaves by the next Digby to take up his studies at the Dublin University. He spent three years at St. Francis Xavier's College, Antigonish, and was a former student at St. Bonaventure. The dentist profession is, so we understand, what he is intended to learn.

LOCAL ITEMS

Local potatoes from Long Pond and vicinity, were selling in the city this forenoon, costing from three to four dollars a barrel.

The Empire Stores at Carbonear, which have been run by Knowling's for a number of years, are about to be closed up by that firm.

Ivory Soap the world's most economical toilet soap is now sold at all the Union Stores. There is no purer or smoother soap than Ivory. Great for babies and children, as well as adults. Try a small cake. You will like Ivory.

Messrs. Harvey & Co. have been advised that the repairs to the S. S. Sable I., due to her striking at Lamaline recently, will be completed within the next ten days, and the ship will be ready to leave Halifax for this port direct on the 22nd inst., resuming her regular service between Sydney and St. John's.

A fine, pure floating toilet soap that is cheaper than most and far more useful. The whole family can wash in Ivory and no better soap could be used for Ivory contains the purest materials and is widely recommended. At all Union Stores now.

"Carrying On"

The Springdale Street Commercial School, that has rendered valuable service to Newfoundland during the past few years, will continue its good work in the Victoria Hall, commencing on Monday. The whole of the Springdale Street School building is needed for elementary education, and will be devoted to that work entirely in future.

Athletes Leave

Grant Burnell, to enter in the 1 mile walk, Jack Bell and Ron O'Toole to compete in the All Canadian Championship 5-mile event left by the Silvia to-day accompanied by Stan Cullen as manager and trainer. The Halifax meet takes place on the 15th inst. It has not been decided if either of our men will run in the Halifax Herald Marathon on October 7th. Much will depend on the showing they make in the 5 mile race..

The schooner Ida M. Zink, has cleared for Barbados, fish laden by T. H. Carter & Co. agents.

The Catherine M. Moulton has cleared for St. Pierre in ballast, T. H. Carter agents.

Mr. Daniel King, operator at Port Union, arrived in the city by the F. P. Union for a short stay. Mr. King is one of the busiest operators in the country.

The S. S. Canadian Sapper sailed for Montreal at 11 a.m. to-day.

The schooner Ena Moulton has cleared for Pernambuco, fish laden by G. M. Barr.

Mr. John Abbott, M.H.A. Bonavista, arrived in the City to-day.

POLICE COURT

A Lengthy and Serious Crimal Docket

Rarely in police annals in this city has a more serious docket of crime presented itself for cons deration than the charges contained in the docket which Judge Morris had to try this a.m.

Two letter carriers were up for trial, one pleaded guilty. It being his first offence, and taking into consideration the able plea of his counsel, W. J. Higgins, K.C., the accused was given the opt on of a fine of $200.00 or in default one year imprisonment. In the case of the second young man charged with a similar offence Mr. Higgins asked for a postponement for a couple of days to further consider the plea he would enter. This hearing went over until Tuesday next.

A vener of hop beer whose shop is on Queen Street, through his counsel Mr. Hunt, pleaded guilty. The brew showed a rather high per centage for hop, 3.7. It was the defendant's second offense. Upon undertaking to give up selling he got off with a fine of $100.00.

A widow woman who has lost both her husband and son by drowning was before the court for selling beer containing 2.5 per cent. Her circumstances were such, the per centage over the required legal standard being so small, and upon a promise to discontinue the sale, sentence was suspended.

May Have to Face Murder Charge

Anthony Hawco of Chapel's Cove, charged with seriously assaulting Michael Fewer on the 3rd inst. at Chapel's Cove, was formally charged but not asked to plead. The assaulted man lies unconscious at the General Hospital and in the event of his death Hawco will have to face the more serious charge. He is also charged with assaulting John Duggan on the same day. Judge Morris held the man for 8 days without bail, and intimated that the case should be disposed of by the magistrate for Hr. Main District.

For keeping a house of bad repute on Beaumont Street the proprietress was fined 100.00 or in default two months imprisonment.

A young man from Rositer's Lane against whom a case of rape was preferred was remanded for 8 days.

Two boys who are charged with a serious immoral offence are being tried to-day. Their case was not finished when court adjourned for lunch.

The Frenchman who took French leave and entered Miss Hurley's boarding house last night and turned without registering or being invited will be deported. Judge Morris said he was an unwelcome guest and the French Consul was sent for and will be asked to take over his countryman's transportation to St. Pierre.

Mob Burns Italian Consulate

Greeks Organize Anti-Italian Demonstration.

ROME, Sept. 9—The Itaian Consulate at Patras, Greece, was burned by a mob during an anti-Italian demonstration, says a despatch from Corfu, to which place the news was brought by a boatman.

The Italian colony, numbering five thousand people, organized a counter demonstration, and there were casualties on both sides.

The police and military surrounded the Italian quarter for protection.

Anthracite Agreement Is Reached

HARRISBURG, Penna., Sept. 9—Representatives of the anthracite operators and miners last night agreed upon terms proposing a two-years wage contract on union scale.

The committee immediately approved the agreement and fixed September 17th as a date for the tri-district convention at Scranton, at which it would be submitted for ratification by the miners.

JAPAN SECOND IN WORLD IN NUMBER OF TREMORS

With a total of 27,562 earthquakes recorded, Japan is second among the countries in which seeismic shocks have occurred

Italy is first, with 27,672 earthquakes. Greece is third, with 10,806. In South America 8,018 quakes have been recorded. In Mexico there have been 5,586.

The Pacific Coast of the United States has felt 4,467 earthquakes, while the Atlantic has had 937.

Asia Minor has had 4,451; Sicily, 4,331.

The superstitious of Japan believe the country rests on the back of a gigintic fish, and that earthquakes occur whenever the fish becomes restless and threshes about.

During earthquakes the Japanese seek shelter under the door-jambs of their houses—places they regard as their safest refuge.

Outbreak Imminent

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 8—Despatches received here from Russia report that the rebellion in Turkistan is becoming more serious and that General Kamenoff has left the scene of the trouble to take command of the government troops against the rebels.

No recent report of the rebellion in Turkistan has been received.

In August, 1922, it was reported that an armistice had been concluded between the Bolsheviki and Musulmans of Turkistan.

Pacific Is Scene of Big Marine Disaster

Eight Ships Crash Upon Rocks In Dense Fog.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9—In a series of disasters unprecedented in Pacific coast navigation history, seven United States navy destroyers and the Pacific Mail liner Cuba are to-day high on the rocks at San Miguel Island on the shores of Santa Barbara County, California.

The ships ran ashore last night during the heaviest and most inpenetrable fog ever seen on the southern Californian coast, according to shipping men.

Twenty members of the destroyer flotilla lost their lives, and twenty more are in hospital.

According to the latest available figures, one officer and eight men of the Cuba are adrift in a small boat but all the others have been saved.

Ambassadors Back Italy

Inter-Allied Penalties Identical With Mussolini Demands.

PARIS, Sept. 9—The proposals contained in the note which the inter-allied Council of Ambassadors has sent to Greece, are virtually identical to those of the original ultimatum despatched to Athens by Premier Mussolini.

All the penalties the council would impose are in conformity with the Italian demands, except that the Hellenic fleet shall salute the flags of three allied nations instead of Italy's alone, and that the highest Greek Military authority shall present his Government's regrets for the Janina murders to three Alied diplomatic representatives in Athens.

Has Germany New War Secret?

LONDON, Sept. 9—That some secret means has been discovered by Germans for damaging airplanes in flight, is believed, says The Daily Mail, to be the explanation of nearly thirty forced landings by French machines in the German territory since the Ruhr occupation.

The Mail's Vienna correspondent gives the British air experts the theory that by some wireless ray known only to the Germans, magnetoes are put out of action.

Germany confiscates all machines making forced descents in her territory.

Fiume Again

PARIS, Sept. 9—Developments in the relations between Serbia and Italy, as they are influenced by the interpretation of the treaty of Rapallo and the status of Fiume, are being watched here with increasing interest as September 15th approaches.

This was the date set by Premier Mussolini on which the Serbian government must give a definite answer to the Italian demands, or Italy would resume liberty of action.

Should arbitration be acceptable to Italy, Premier Pachitch is understood to have said that Jugo-Slavia was prepared to protect her own interests.

JUNKING OF NAVAL VESSELS IS BEGUN

SEVEN SHIPS OF THE LINE IN TWO PACIFIC COAST YARDS FIRST STRIPPED OF ORDINANCE

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—The destruction by hammer and torch of what many nations in the world might consider a fair sized navy has been begun in two Pacific Coast shipyards in compliance with orders issued following ratification of the Naval Disarmament Treaty.

Seven "ships of the line," six of them outworn in service, and the seventh, the greatest of all, still less than half completed, are being fairly overrun to-day by "stripping crews' removing small ordinance and other works that "may come in handy later. When the stripping is completed, the hulls will either be disposed of to private owners for destruction, or will be cut up and junked by the Government.

Montana's Building Halted

Foremost comes the great Montana, 27.6 per cent. completed, at Mare Island. The keel of the Montana was laid Sept. 1, 1920, and the hammers were stilled after $8,897,000 had been spent on her fabrication.

In point of historical and tragic interest the Georgia, also at Mare Island, claims the greatest attention. In 1906, while this battleship was engaged in target practice off Provincetown, Mass., an explosion in one of her super-imposed turrets killed the entire turret crew of twenty and nearly wrecked the ship.

That disaster led to a change in turret construction in the United States Navy and the introduction of the gas ejector, which sends a swirl of air through the bore of the gun after a discharge, clearing out all gasses so they cannot back out through the breech opening.

Connecticut Was Flagship

The Connecticut, at a Puget Sound shipyard, was the flagship of the American fleet on its trip around the world in 1908.

The other ships are the Nebraska, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Vermont, all at Mare Island, where they were decommissioned several months ago. With the exception of the Vermont, which was built in 1905, all of the older battlers were laid down in 1904. All of these older boats saw service in thew orld war.

However, their usefullness as ships of the line passed when 16-inch rifles supplanted the 12-inch guns with which they were supplied.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

CHAPTER XX.

"But you'll forgive her this once, won't you, dear?"

He considered.

"Well, if she doesn't heckle Donald—" he began, but she stopped further proviso with a grateful kiss, and immediately followed Jane up-stairs to break the good news to her. She and Jane then joined Elizabeth in the latter's room, and the trio immediately held what their graceless relative would have termed "a lodge of sorrow." Upon motion of Jane, seconded by Elizabeth, it was unanimously resolved that the honor of the family must be upheld. At all cost. They laid out a plan of campaign.

CHAPTER XXI

UPON HIS ARRIVAL in Port Agnew, Donald called upon one Sam Carew. In his youth, Mr. Carew had served his time as an undertaker's assistant, but in Port Agnew his shingle proclaimed him to the world as a "mortician." Owing to the low death rate in that salubrious section, however, Mr. Carew added to his labors those of a carpenter, and when outside jobs of carpentering were scarce, he manufactured a few plain and fancy coffins.

Donald routed Sam Carew out of bed with the news of Caleb Brent's death and ordered him down to the Sawdust Pile in his capacity of mortician; then he hastened there himself in advance of Mr. Carew. Nan was in the tiny living-room, her head pillowed on the table, when Donald entered, and when she sobbed herself dry-eyed in his arms, they went in to look at old Caleb. He had passed peacefully away an hour after retiring for the night; Nan had straightened his limbs and folded the gnarled hands over the still heart; in the great democracy of death, his sad old face had settled into peaceful lines such as had been present in the days when Nan was a child and she and her father had been happy building a home on the Sawdust Pile. As Donald looked at him and reflected on the tremendous epics of a career that the world regarded as commonplace, when he recalled the sloop old Caleb had built for him with so much pride and pleasure, the long forgotten fishing trips and races in the bight, the wondrous tales the old sailor had poured into his boyish ears, together with the affection and profound respect, as for a superior being, which the old man had always held for him, the young laird of Tyee mingled a tear or two with those of the orphaned Nan.

"I've told Sam Carew to come for him," he informed Nan, when they had returned to the living room. "I shall attend to all the funeral arrangements. Funeral the day after to-morrow, say in the morning. Are there any relatives to notify?"

"None that would be interested, Donald."

"Do you wish any religious service?"

"Certainly not by the Rev. Tingley."

"Then I'll get somebody else. Anything else? Money, clothes?"

She glanced at him with all the sweetness and tenderness of her great love lambent in her wistful eyes.

"What a poor thing is pride in the face of circumstances," she replied drearily. I haven't sufficient strength of character to send you away. I ought to, for your own sake, but since you're the only one who cares, I suppose you'll have to pay the price. You might lend me a hundred dollars, dear. Perhaps some day I'll repay it."

He laid the money in her hand and retained the hand in his; thus they sat gazing into the flames of the driftwood fire—she hopelessly, he with masculine helplessness. Neither spoke, for each was busy with personal problems.

The arrival of Mr. Carew interrupted their sad thoughts. When he had departed with the harvest of his grim profession, the thought that had been uppemost in Donald's mind found expression.

"It's going to be mighty hard on you living here alone."

"It's going to be hard on me wherever I live—alone," she replied resignedly.

"Wish I could get some woman to come and live with you until we can adjust your affairs, Nan. Tingley's wife's a good sort. Perhaps——"

She shook her head.

"I prefer my own company—when I cannot have yours."

A wave of bitterness, of humiliation swept over him in the knowledge that he could not ask one of his own sisters to help her. Truly he dwelt in an unlovely world.

He glanced at Nan again, and suddenly there came over him a great yearning to share her lot, even at the price of sharing her shame. He was not ashamed of her and she knew it; yet both were fearful of revealing that fact to their fellow mortals. The conviction stole over Donald McKaye that he was not being true to himself, that he was nat a man of honor in the fullest sense of the word, or a gentleman. And that, to the heir of a principality, was a dangerous thought.

He then took tender leave of the girl and walked all the way home. His father had not retired when he reached the Dreamerie, and the sight of that stern yet kindly and wholly understandable person moved him to sit down beside The Laird on the divan and take the old man's hand in his childishly.

"Dad, I'm in hell's own hole!" he blurted. "I'm so unhappy!"

"Yes, son; I know you are. And it breaks me all up to think that, for the first time in my life, I can't help you. All the money in the world will not buy the medicine that'll cure you."

"I'll have to go through that, too, I suppose," his son complained, and jerked his head towards the stairs, where, as a matter of fact, his sister Jane crouched at the time, striving to eavesdrop. "I had a notion, as I walked home, that I'd refuse to permit them to discuss my business with me."

"This particular business of yours is, unfortunately, something which they believe to be their business, also. God help me, I agree with them!"

"Well, they had better be mighty careful how they speak of Nan Brent. This is something I have to fight out alone. By the way, are you going to old Caleb's funeral, dad?"

"Certainly. I have always attended the funerals of my neighbors, and I liked and respected Caleb Brent. Always reminded me of a lost dog. But he had a man's pride. I'll say that for him."

"Thank you, father. Ten o'clock, the day after to-morrow, from the little chapel. There isn't going to be a preacher present, so I'd be obliged if you'd offer a prayer and read the burial srvice. That old man and I were pals, and I want a real human being to preside at his obsequies."

The Laird whistled softly. He was on the point of asking to be excused, but reflected that Donald was bound to attend the funeral and that his father's presence would tend to detract from the personal side of the unprecedented spectacle and render it more of a matter of family condescension in so far at Port Agnew was concerned.

"Very well, lad," he replied; "I'm forced to deny you so much 'twould be small of me not to grant you a wee favor now and then. I'll do my best. And you might send a nurse from the company hospital to stay with Nan for a week or two."

"Good old file!" his son murmured gratefully, and, bidding his father good-night, climbed the stairs to his room. Hearing his footsteps ascending, Jane emerged from the rear of the landing; simultaneously, his mother and Elizabeth appeared at the door of the latter's room. He had a feeling of a captured missionary running the gauntlet of a forest of spears en route to a grill over a bed of coals.

"Donald dear," Eligabeth called throatily, "come here."

"Donald dear is going to bed," he retorted savagely. " 'Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.' Good night!"

"But you must discuss this matter with us!" Jane clamoured. "How can you expect us to rest until we have your word of honor that you——"

The Laird had appeared at the foot of the stairs, having followed his son in anticipation of an interview which he had forbidden.

NEW YORK COLORSCOPES

By MARY MARGARET McBRIDE

New York City.—People have strange ways of earning money in this town. Last week I met "three live ghosts"—real flesh and blood women who are writing books that other people will sign. This profession is referred to as "ghosting", and, owing to the general craze for authorship, even though it be vicarious, affords a number of Manhattanites good livings.

Mary Margaret McBride

A Jewish banker who is a golf fiend pays a young college man a good salary to follow him over the golf course reading French poetry while the financier makes his daily nine holes.

A pretty girl who dances exceptionally well is making most of her way through college fox trotting with an elderly man two afternoons a week at a fashionable hotel. The wife of the man chaperons the party and sits by watching until the afternoon frolic is over.

After years of scoffing at the indolent South, the superior North is now taking lessons in speed from it. Banks, factories and post offices here are learning that men and women work briskly to music and phonographs are being installed to speed up operations. This knowledge has for years been common property in the South where the negroes work on the railroads to the spirituals that men, hired for the purpose, sing. "Runnin' Wild", one of these spirituals, is even the favorite speed stimulant in the North on account of its rapid-fire tempo.

It may be a jazz age but a recent incident in the theatre world indicates that there is hope of better days to come. Broadway was astonished the other day when a local producing firm announced that "Blossom Time", based on the life and music of Schubert, would be produced simultaneously in two theatres. It was the first time in history that a play ever ran in two New York theatres at the same time and seems to prove that Schubert music holds more hearts than jazz. Further proof, if any were needed, is the record-breaking sale of the "Song of Love" made from "The Unfinished Symphony".

Well, it was to be expected, I suppose, in a city where breakfast is a function, luncheon an affair of state and dinner the grand climax of the day, that sooner or later the restaurant motif in song would arrive. Nevertheless, when you hear every street urchin singing "Hot Dawg", "Apple Sauce" and "Cut Yourself a Piece of Cake", you begin to wonder what fad in popular melodies will come next. Perhaps in time they'll get round to the "anatomical age", and already there are rumors of a "Tummy Ache Blues" to follow the present vogue.

Ideals and standards that prevail elsewhere are often reversed in this hectic, skyscrapered atmosphere. For instance, there is Flora who has just horrified her father, mother and four sisters by joining the Baptist church and enrolling to vote the Democratic ticket. The family is scandalized because all its other members are active socialists and atheists!

The queerest school in the world has just opened in the Jacob Riis settlement on the East Side. The pupils actually fight to enroll in the course and every afternoon hundreds of them, ragged boys and pale little girls, make a bee line for the "schoolroom", a big basement at the settlement. The "lessons" teach country etiquette—how to treat grass, trees and animals. You mightn't think it would be necessary to tell children how to treat grass trees and animals but most of these have never in all their short lives been away from city streets. Some have never picked a flower, never heard a bird sing never so much as touched grass. If they pass the course in rural manners, the settlement will give them a precious two weeks in the country where they will get freckles, rosy cheeks and memories to last another barren year.

Given Death Penalty

DUSSELDORF, Sept. 8—Richard Raab, a twenty year old student, was sentenced to death this morning by a French court martial after conviction on a charge of throwing a hand grenade into the midst of a detachment of French troops here on August 4th.

Two soldiers and a German woman and a child were wounded by the explosion.

Lloyd George and Britain's Position

LONDON, Sept. 9—Lloyd George, in a speech at a meeting of the Welsh National Liberal Council at Landrinden, Wales, sarcastically referred to the promised tranquility besought by the Government.

Italy was strangling Greece, he declared, and Great Britain was not allowed to interfere.

It was hands off, to Britain. The fact could not be screened, Lloyd George continued, that with regard to Italy the British had suffered a serious rebuff in the rejection of Britain's sound advice that the matter should be referred to the League of Nations. It was not only a rebuff, but might very well be the deathblow to the League.

The practical acceptance of Mussolini's offer by the Ambassadors' Conference, means that the British Empire was being snubbed out of Europe, the former premier stated.

He added that the present policy of the Government was being elbowed out forcibly amidst the snickerings of the world.

Wandering Foreigners

OSAKA, Sept. 9—One hundred and twenty-nine foreigners are wandering aimlessly at Hakone, according to a report received here from the British Consulate at Kobe. A rescue party was despatched to Hakone from Kobe yesterday.

Red Cross Appeal

TORONTO, Sept. 9—The executive of the Canadian Red Cross Society, at a meeting yesterday, decided to accept responsibility for the conduction of a nation-wide appeal to the sufferers in the recent earthquake in Japan.

The appeal will be made through the provincial divisions.

Soviet To Get "Army" In Training

RIGA, Sept. 8—The Soviet Government has ordered the mobiliaztion for training, of the so-called Territorial Army, according to a Moscow message received here. This Army includes all persons born between the years 1897 and 1900, and probably numbers about half a million men.

Huge Berg Sighted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8—The steam ship Berengaria, enroute to Southampton, reported yesterday that at 8 p.m. September 6th, she passed an iceberg 200 feet high, and 990 ft. long in lattitude 43.11 north, 49.11 west off the lower part of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

Rescue Ship Arrives

COLUMBIA, Sept. The Pacific ship West Aurora has arrived in Yokohama to assist in the relief of the foreign residents of Tokio and Yokohama.

Five hundred refugees, including thirteen foreigners, arrived in Kobe by water yesterday, and more are reported to be on their way there.

Birkenhead Thinks U.S. Might Help

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Aug. 24—Fred. Smith, Earl of Birkenhead, one of Britain's most astute politicians out of office, believes Europe is in desperate need of the voice of the United States to help it out of the darkness in which she is groping.

Lord Birkenhead arrived in New York City recently on the Cunard liner Maurentania.

Is Not Encouraging.

Lord Birkenhead has spoken with unusual freedom of European affairs and the relation to them of the United States and Great Britain. He was not optimistic in a glowing fashion, nor was he deeply pessimistic; he was judicial in his attitude. But his conclusions were not encouraging.

He is a tall, heavily built man with an Indian summer tan, the long face of Englishmen of breeding, glossy, black hair and the expression of a puzzled schoolboy. As he talked he held his lighted cigar only an inch from his lips, never puffing it nor dropping his hand. He seemed to be talking to the cigar.

He was decorously careful to explain that in his remarks he did not for a moment pretend to say what the United States, France, or any other country should do. He offered only his opinion of what results certain policies would have.

"Progress in Europe since the end of the war," he said in answer to questions, "has been distressingly slow. It is axiomatic that, if the United States were to engage actively in discussions with the European nations, the settlement of our problems would be accelerated. That is the view of every intelligent Englishman, although, of course, there are fools everywhere in the world.

"England has formed no opinion of President Coolidge. If I may be excused for saying so, he is almost an unknown man to us. But the hope is that he will follow President Harding's lead toward the world court. Naturally, all Europe hopes America will join the world court. There is no feeling there that in any way would it pledge you to enter the League.

His View on Ruhr.

"I can see no prospect of a settlement of European problems as long as the Ruhr remains occupied. Understand I don't say that France was ill-advised in taking that step.

The late Government, of which I was Lord Chancellor, kept France out of the Ruhr for months, although she had wanted to go in as soon as Poincare was elected. But it was the present Government that permitted her to go in.

"As long as France remains in the Ruhr, German industry will remain idle. There can be no settlement of our problems until Germany's great industries function again. No Government in Germany can make them function against the will of the people, which is bitterly in favor of passive resistance.

"It is not possible for Germany to pay while France is in the Ruhr and France has her reasons for staying there. I think I understand them pretty well. But I cannot say whether they are right or wrong. That is not for me to say.

"I cannot see that the recent note of M. Poincare leaves any room for hope. It says flatly France will remain in the Ruhr. England has offered to make tremendous sacrifices in her reparation figures, but, since they have not been accepted, she must go on. She has no intention of cancelling the reparation figures and the French debt.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

If you wish to be miserable, you must think about yourself; about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, what people think of you; and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch; you will make sin and misery out of everything God sends you; you can be as wretched as you choose.

—Charles Kingsley.

The foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing is a vice so mean and low, that every person of sense and character detests and despises it.

—Washington.

As freely as the firmament embraces the world, or the sun pours forth impartially his beams, so mercy must encircle both friend and foe.

—Schiller.

Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest-home of light.

—Horatius Bonar.

Honour and shame from no condition rise;
Act well your part—there all the honour lies.

St. Bon's Athletes Entertained

The victorious St. Bon's track-team, who carried off the Hayward trophy in the A.A.A. meet on Wednesday, as well as the college rowing team, were the guests of the Brothers last evening at a dinner and entertainment held in the College.

The President of the College, Rev. Bro. J. E. Ryan presided, and amongst those present were the Rev. Dr. Carter, Rev Rro. J. B. Ryan a former principal, who has recently returned to the College after a year's absence, as well as the other Brothers, and a number of Old Boys.

Rev. Bro. Ryan in congratulating the athletes, expressed the great pleasure it gave him, and how proud the College was of their success. The season had been one of the most successful in the history of the College. News was received during the day that Geo. C. Power, a St. Bon's Boy had won the Jubilee Scholarship and this added distinction for the College was a happy coincidence. Mr. J. G. Higgins on behalf of the track team thanked the chairman and presented to the College the relay cups, won at last years A.A.A. Meet by the juniors and seniors anl also the Hayward Trophy retained this year.

The St. Bon's Orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Jack Phelan, was in attendance and contributed largely to the success of the entertainment.

The following was the complete toast list:—

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, MONDAY, SEPT. 10th., 1923.

IT IS PEACE

The Near East crisis seems to have been passed with the acceptance by Greece of the terms submitted to that country by the Inter-Allied Council of Ambassadors. The demands made upon Greece had been formally accepted by the Italian Government before their submission to the Greek Government; so settlement of the dispute was reasonably assured in view of the action of Greece in placing her case in the hands of the international representatives.

It is significant, however, that the demands made upon Greece are practically similar to the original ultimatum dictated by Mussolini; and in this respect the Italian dictator has scored a victory not only in the humiliation of the smaller nation but also regarding his attitude towards the League of Nations, whose interference with the dispute he treated with haughty contempt.

Mussolini's actions since the murder on Greek soil of the Italian mission, among whom was one of his closest friends and advisers, are regarded with divergent views.

A fiery patriot as well as a politician playing for popular national feeling, Mussolini may have seized, without any idea of eventual war, upon the Albanian incident to increase his prestige throughout Italy and make himself a strong influence in international matters.

His rousing of a general national feeling as evidenced by many outbursts of patriotism throughout Italy, his "call to arms" and the murder of the innocents of Corfu may have been the most unfortunate means to that end.

There are others who saw, in the above murderous policy, the spectacle of Mussolini wilfully carrying the torch of war throughout the Near East for his realisation of Italian national aspirations in the Mediterranean.

Whether this be so or not, Mussolini has triumphed in the humiliation of Greece, has increased his international prestige and has successfully ignored the League of Nations; and Mr. Lloyd George's reference to the British position regarding their League proposals confirms the triumph of the Italian dictator over all comers.

INCURABLE HYPOCRISY

In this morning's News is a letter signed by Voter, who discusses the matter of the enquiry which is being held in connection with public affairs. Says voter: "Nor do we want this enquiry to limit itself to recent happenings. It must go further, maybe it may be found necessary to go back a decade of years to get at the kernel of the disease, that is having a baneful effect not alone upon our politics but upon our social and business affairs."

Whereupon the Daily News squirms conspicuously and shows a very hypocritical attitude in its enquiry preachments by endeavouring to sandbag "Voter" by accusing him of being "one of the most active of the Squires shouters in the General Election."

Regarding the enquiry itself or the scope of enquiry, there is no necessity to have discussion. It is felt that it is in non-partisan and capable hands. But, why, when a citizen writes upon a public matter in a public-spirited manner, must politics be introduced from a source where, if mere professions could be counted, politics could never be expected? Why the attempt of political sandbagging?

Is it because there is a fear that all may not be well for the past decade or so, with politicians associated with the Daily News?

There is a significance about this two-faced policy, which cannot be mistaken. It certainly is not consistent with the professions of high public spirit emanating from the Daily News office. That paper is still laboring in its rut of politics. There has been no conversion.

To Relieve Traffic Congestion

It is understood that certain repairs and improvements will be shortly started on the Kenmount road, or the present narrow and rugged thoroughfare joining the Freshwater Road to the Topsail Road, just outside Donovan's.

For a long time, it has been felt that this road should be made passable for motors and all other kinds of vehicles. When the Blackmarsh road was started, there was a divergence of opinion as to whether it was more advisable to start on that road or on the Kenmount Road, and many still think the latter should have had the first consideration.

The great reason for the opening of the Kenmount road would be, as was regarding the Blackmarsh road, the relief of traffic entering and leaving St. John's by the Topsail Road.

The Blackmarsh Road, however, is too short or it connects with the Topsail highway too quickly to serve the real purpose. Moreover, the terrible conditions of Mundy's Pond Road, necessitate the same outlet to the Blackmarsh as to the Topsail road, viz., LeMarchant Road and Cornwall Avenue. Under these conditions, both the east and west traffic is congested into the one highway.

The Kenmount Road would take much traffic of the ordinary channels from outside Donovan's, and would prevent all the inconveniences resulting from present conditions.

If the road is completed, (and it is well to hope it will not be left unfinished as the Blackmarsh road) it may be well to suggest to the authorities to have it made a one-way or inward thoroughfare after, say, 7 p.m., the Topsail highway being used as an outward thoroughfare.

Happy Home For Her Dog

Provided as "Sacred Trust" in Woman's Will.

The maintenance of a "happy, comfortable home" for her pet dog, Champ, is made "a sacred trust" for her three children in the will of Mrs. Alice S. Newhouse, filed for probate yesterday. Mrs. Newhouse, the widow of Robert A. Newhouse and formerly of Louisville, Ky., died in Nyack June 11th.

"I shall ask of my three children that they provide a happy, comfortable home during the lifetime of my dog, Champ," Mrs. Newhouse wrote, 'and see he is buried, when he dies, in Hartsdale Canine Cemetery, if Champ dies near there.

"I wish him so provided that he is walked daily by some one and well fed and bathed. He is not to be placed in a kennel.

"This is a sacred trust I leave for my children to fulfill for me, as Champ has been a faithful, loving little companion to me when I was alone. The costs for making Champ in every way comfortable and happy I expect my three children to share."

Mrs. Alice S. Taylor of the Hotel Netherlands, Charles Van Schurman and Clifford Van Schurman, 680 West End avenue, are the children charged with this care of Champ. They share the estate, Clifford Van Schurman receiving the income from one-half, his brother and sister the income from the remainder.

Mrs. Newhouse left property in Louisville, an undetermined amount of real estate here and more than $10,000 in personal property.—N. Y. Herald.

Ye Olden Days

On Sept. 9th, 1885, the Roman Catholic Cathedral is this city was consecrated. The following is taken from an old account of the ceremony:

"At the appointed hour on Sunday morning, His Lordship, Dr. Mullock proceeded to the consecration. The procession consisted of the following Prelates and Priests: His Grace the Most Rev. POLICE COURT

The case of the laborer, arrested on Saturday, charged with stealing 15 lbs of tobacco from Harvey's premises, was postponed until tomorrow.

A 20-year-old laborer, drunk, was discharged.

A third inebriate, who in addition to being under the influence, broke a pane of glass in a New Gower st. shop window, was fined a sum sufficient to effect repairs.

A west end laborer who misconducted himself on Water street Saturday night was fined $2 or 7 days.

The shipwright who was arrested Saturday afternoon near Franklin's premises for stealing $15 from a little boy named Saunders, who had just got the money in change after purchasing a quarter of a ton of coal, was fined $25.00 or 2 months. The defendant pleaded that the money found on him was to purchase a matress. Both himself and his wife swore to this state of facts, but the 12-year-old lad was positive in his identification. Constable Myers also testified to finding the $5 and $10 bills tallying with the description given by the boy of the money taken from him. The boy was tricked into handing over the money by being told that a mistake had been made in giving the change at the office. He first thought that it was a man from Franklin's office who ran after him up Springdale street and obtained the two bills.

A boarder, out of work and minus a boarding house, said he became short on Saturday and has since been a guest at the police station. He thought he could find work and was discharged.

Public Library For St. John's

Editor Advocate.

Sir,—A perusal of the cleverely written and opportune dissertation on matters in general which took up part of the editorial column in Saturday's Advocate, would repay all those whose lot it was in not having the pleasure of doing so. In my estimation, Mr. Editor, it was truly a literary treat, and as one interested in such literature, I would commend to you such a trend of composition in future.

Saturday's editorial struck a responsive chord in my breast, and in this manner I was prompted to extend to you my congratulations. If we were to receive from the press such logical emanations now and then, it would be advantageous in the uplifting of our moral and social welfare, and my prayer, and that of hundreds of others in the country and elsewhere, is that we may receive in future matter of such an educative and instructive nature.

You referred to the great need of a Public Library, and in thus doing, you have the hearty co-operation of all, rich and poor, merchant, mechanic and laborer. It is a burning disgrace to know that St. John's, the capital of Newfoundland, England's oldest Colony, is bereft of such an institution.

In 1902 Mr. Andrew Carnegie asked us to receive from his philanthropic fund the sum of $50,000, towards the establishment of a Public Library. Hon. Sir E. P. Morris, now Lord Morris, had the necessary formula for establishing it passed in the Assembly, but the $5,000 per year needed for its upkeep could not be guaranteed by the Government, hence the collapse of the scheme.

The late Judge Prowse, Newfoundland's greatest historian, was an ardent advocate of the proposition, and in a letter he said about it as follows: "It is a splendid thing for St. John's, and my heart is set on it."

I hope that you will continue in your adhesion to your advocacy of a Public Library. It would be a blessing if we had such an institution in our midst.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES CROKE

After a period of little more than a year the Angel of Death again visited the home of Mr. James Croke, Railway Inspector, Allan's Square, on Tuesday, September 4th, and bore to her eternal reward the soul of the dearly loved wife and mother, thereby filling with grief the hearts of her dear ones. Mrs. Croke, who was the daughter of the late James Malone, was born in St. John's 58 years ago; after her marriage she lived for seventeen years in Placentia. In 1910 Mr. Croke and his family returned to Allan's Square. A fortnight ago Mrs. Croke was seized with an illness which at first did not cause any alarm, but in a few days her condition, despite the loving care of her devoted husband and children, and the best medical assistance, became so serious that it was plainly evident the end was indeed near at hand.

Rev. Dr. Carter, her spiritual advisor, administered the last rites of Holy Church and gently and peacefully, full of resignation and confidence in God, the soul of an exemplary Catholic lady, a fond wife, a devoted mother and a sincere friend, passed out of this world to receive her reward of the just. During life her greatest happiness she found in her home, in the midst of her family; there she reigned as queen whose crown was woven of loving affection and fond admiration by her loyal subjects, and today the little realm is mourning because the gentle reign is ended. But let us hops that even today her dear soul has found a place in the Eternal Kingdom above.

On Thursday afternoon the funeral took place; it was largely attended, testifying to the esteem in which the deceased lady was held. The remains now rest in Belvedere beside those of her daughter Kitty, whom she had nursed and tended with more than motherly attention, whose early death she grieved for and with whom she is now united on the shore where tears flow not forevermore.

Besides her devoted husband, there are left to mourn her four daughters, Sister Mary Loretto, Presentation Convent, Harbor Grace; May, bookkeeper at the offices of Messrs. Wood and Kelly; Olive, stenographer with W. R. Howley, K.C., and Myrtus at home. All have our deepest sympathy in this crowning sorrow of their lives. R.I.P.

Frank Hodges Predicts The Number Will Increase to 2,000,000.

TORONTO, Ont., August 31.—(Canadian Press).—That the unemployed in Great Britain this winter will number 2,000,000 was the prediction made last night by Frank Hodges, fraternal delegate to the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada from the British Trades Union Congress, who reached the city to deliver the principal address during the Labor Day celebration at the Canadian National Exhibition. Mr. Hodges is secretary of the International Miners' Federation and the British Miners' Federation.

"Conditions will not permanently improve until Europe is stable again—not until nations are freed from the domination of the spirit of war," he stated.

Mr. Hodges said that British Labor knew that relief could not be obtained by violence and that revolution would not restore trade.

Tremendous muscular development of the South American heavyweight champion, who hopes to knock Dempsey out at the Polo Grounds on September 14th. He is training at Atlantic City, N. J.

Dempsey's Ring Honours Came Thick and Fast

Champ Had Honour of Drawing Biggest Gates in History

NEW YORK, Sept 3—(By Associated Press)—Jack Dempsey, matched to fight Luis Angel Firpo for the world's heavyweight championship at the Polo Grounds, September 14, came to the front more rapidly than any other ring champion—actually punching his way to a title in less than four years as a result of his boxing power developed in no-decision bouts.

After wading through all opposition, Dempsey's quick knockout over Fred Fulton, the giant Rochester, Minn., footerer, virtually removed the last obstacle in his path for a championship match with Jess Willard. Dempsey met Fulton, then considered as a possible contender, in Jersey City in 1918, and flattened him in the remarkably short time of 18 seconds.

Dempsey's decisive victory over Willard in Toledo, July 4, 1919, for the championship stands out as one of the most severe beatings ever administerd to a heavyweight titleholder. The very first punch that Dempsey sunk into Willard's huge frame, a savage right just under the heart, was the blow that started him to defeat. The former Kansas farmer, beat en down with vicious punches to the head, until both eyes were closed and his face swollen to the size of a toy balloon, survived three rounds before his seconds tossed in a sponge.

Dempsey's ability to punch Willard into submission so decisively won him not only the admiration and respect of ring followers, but the experts' ac claim as one of the greatest hitters who ever held the heavyweight title.

The champion carries a knockout smash in either hand; hits as hard with his left as he does with his right, and always seems to be ready, because of his peculiar swinging style to whip over a terrific punch from any angle.

Back of Dempsey's right is tremendous power, but his lefthook probably is an almost equally effective blow. It seldom travels more than a foot, but it carries the force of a the punch from the shoulder with a slight twist of his powerfully muscled forearm. He rarely swings a punch; always hooks them across. It is not uncommon to see the titleholder lead with his right in an attempt to get his opponent into position for a lefthook.

The champion is master of every trick in the pugilistic bag. One of his favorites is to get his opponent off balance while coming out of a clinch, thus making him an easy target for a left hook. Dempsey accomplishes this trick by hooking his right glove fist back of his foe's left elbow, and, with a quick jerk, twisting him around and off his balance.

Since Dempsey won the title, Tommy Gibbons of St. Paul, the champion's opponent in the 15-round battle at Shelby, Mont., last July 4, is the only man who ever succeeded in staying the limit with him in a decision match. Gibbons succeeded chiefly because, in ring parlance, he "outsmarted" the champion at times; out boxed him in spots, and held on with such tenaciousness in the last three rounds that the referee was constantly breaking them; rather pulling the St. Paul challenger out of the clinch.

Since winning the title, the champions knockout victims were Billy Miske, Bill Brennan and Georges Carpentier. Brennan gave him a desperate battle, going 12 rounds before taking the count in Madison Square Garden. Miske had been counted upon to give him a fight, as he had in two previous bouts, one at ten and the other at six rounds, but he fell a victim to Dempsey's blows in three rounds. Carpentier lasted four.

Dempsey holds the distinction of boxing before the greatest crowd that ever saw a boxing contest and of drawing the biggest gate in ring history. More than 90,000 persons were jammed into the big bowl on Boyles' Thirty Acres in Jersey City, the afternoon of July 2, 1921, when he knocked out Carpentier. The gate receipts of what was classed at the "Battle of a Century" were more than $1,500,000.

Firpo Was Bootblack and Bottlewasher

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—(By Associated Press)—Luis Angel Firpo—ex-stevedore, the son of an Italian emigrant to the Argentine—has scaled the pubilistic heights to challenge for the world's heavyweight title after one of the strangest, most picturesque careers the prize ring has ever known. Unheard of two year ago, he is matched to fight Dempsey, the champion, at the Polo grounds on September 14.

Sig, strong and possessed of a powerful punch, Firpo is recognized by boxing critics here as a dangerous contender for the title, but back in his native Argentine, Luis is more than that—he is a national hero.

Firpo's early career in the land of the pampas gave little forecast of the athletic prowess he was to gain. Born October 29, 1895, nearly 28 years ago, in Buenos Aires, he had little but size and ruggedness to recommend him as a ring prospect. His father, a native of Genoa, Italy, emigrated to the Argentine at an early age. Enrique Firpo was small of stature but his wife, born of Spanish parents in the Argentine, was of much larger build, and from her Luis inherited his size. The mother died several years ago, leaving an older brother and a younger sister, besides Luis. The father is now employed in the government railroad offices tat Buenos Aires.

Before turning to pugilism as a means of livlihood, Firpo had a varity of occupations, doing odd work as a stevedore for some time. He also earned a little as a bootblack and had another job as bottle-washer in a drug store—the foundation upon which was built the legend that he once was a drug clerk.

Firpo, however, irked under the drudgery of these tasks and devoted most of his spare time to athletics, where he demonstrated all-round prowess through natural aptitude and physical qualifications. He had read of achievements of the world's great pugilists and one day when a friend took him to a gymnasium he seized a chance to enter the ring against an amateur named Angel Rodriguez.

The disasterous ending of that attempt, in 1917, was the real stimulas to Firpo's ring career. He was knocked out in the first round by Rodriguez, who since has retired from active competition.

That setback, the only one of his career, was followed by a succession of triumphs. Firpo, finding a natural outlet for his physical ability, learned the rudiments of the game rapidly, through relying chiefly on his strength and punch. He knocked out a score of opponents as an amateur. Then, in his first bout as a professional, he knocked out an American William Daly, in the seventh round. That bout occurred in September, 1919, in Chile, and was followed by a string of knockouts by Firpo among opponents in that country, Uruguay and his native land, the Argentine.

By the winter of 1921-22, Firpo had conquered about all the pugilistic opposition South America afforded and began to turn towards other fields. Influenced by sportsmen who had taken an interest in him, Firpo came to the United States early in 1922 and after some delay obtained a match with Sailor Maxted, at Newark, N.J., Firpo won by a knockout in seven rounds and then in succession stopped two other lesser heavyweight lights, Italian Jack Herman and Joe McCan, before returning to the Argentine.

Yet unschooled and crude in the finer points of the game, Firpo showed enough promise to attract attention of boxing experts. After bowling over Jim Tracey, an Australian, in Buenos Aires, Firpo signed an agreement with Tex Richard to return to this country for a series of fights, the last with Jack Dempsey for the heavyweight title if he won the others.

That marked the rise of Firpo to real prominence and recognition as title contender. He bowled over Bill Brennan, Jack McAuliffe and then halted a come-back by Jess Willard, besides scoring a number of minor victories here and on a barnstorming trip to Cuba and Mexico. He had battled his way to the top of the heavyweight challenging heap and the title match was a natural outcome.

The Family Milk Supply

CARNATION Milk is the only milk supply your family needs. It is really more, because it serves as both cream and milk.

Fresh from the can it has creamy consistency because about 60% of the natural water content has been taken away from it by evaporation, then sealed in the container and sterilized. Use it for tea, coffee, fruits, cereals and desserts.

By adding a little more than an equal part of water to Carnation Milk you have milk of natural consistency. You get "whole" milk—rich, wholesome and pure—for cooking, drinking—for every milk use.

There is no waste to Carnation Milk—it stays sweet in the can indefinitely—and for several days when opened. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer—the Carnation Milkman.

Try this recipe—and write for your copy of the Carnation Cook Book. Over 100 tested recipes—FREE.

CUSTARD PIES

Two eggs, ⅛ teaspoonful salt, 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoonful vanilla, ½ cup Carnation Milk, few grains nutmeg. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt and milk mixed with the water. Line a pie tin with pie paste; add the mixture to which the vanilla has been added. Sprinkle the top with nutmeg. Bake in hot oven at first to set the rim, then reduce the heat as egg and milk in combination should be cooked at a low temperature. This recipe makes one pie.

OBITUARY

THOMAS PYNN

There passed away at Tilt Cove, on July 25th, after a lingering illness, Mr. Thomas Pynn, aged 75 years. He was laid to rest in the Methodist Cemetery. Mr. H. Newbury conducted the burial service.

Deceased was always a Christian, and a staunch member of the Methodist Church. He suffered much before he died. One evening before he passed away, he asked those around him to sing some hymns to him, and they sang "Jesus, Thy Blood and Righteousness . . .," and after they had finished he told them to sing it to him when they would be taking him from the house.

He leaves to mourn, a loving wife, one son and two daughters, besides grandchildren and a large circle of friends and relatives.

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

If you want to know why there is a Labor party in Great Britain with 150 members in the House of Commons, read what follows. It will show you ustj why a party that stands for a thorough reformation of the system under which Great Britain is living received over 4,000,000 votes last November.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

There are 47,000,000 people in the United Kingdom.

The accumulated wealth of the country is $150,000,000,000.

Ten percent of the people legally own 90 percent of that wealth.

Ninety percent of the people therefore legally own only 10 percent of the nation's wealth.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

The annual income of the country, made up of the total rent, interest, profit, salaries and wages, is $15,000,000,000.

One-ninth of the people—that is, something over 5,000,000 people receive between them just one-half of this income.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

The remaining people—over 41,000,000—therefore receive less than one half of the national income.

Ninety percent of the people of Great Bratain are absolutely landless, and 95 per cent are capital-less also.

Two thousand persons own more than half the land of Great Britain.

The members of the House of Lords own one-third the total land.

Twelve families between them own ONE-FOURTH of the land of Scotland.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

The land is obviously the landlord's, not the people's.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

Of 700,000 deaths that take place annually in Great Britain 620,000 are the deaths of property-less people.

Therefore 80,000 people leave all that is left annually, that is, $1,800,000,000, and 4,000 of these people leave two-thirds of the amount, or $1,250,000,000.

According to Sir Leo Chiozza M.P., "In an average year 26 persons die leaving between them far more than is possessed by 650,000 persons.

Recently 7 millionaires died in one year leaving between them $85,000,000.

There are 280 millionaires and 1,300 semi-millionaires in the United Kingdom.

There are nearly always 1,000,000 paupers in the United Kingdom.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

Fashionable ladies' dress bills frequently reach $5,000 per year—sometimes $10,000.

$125,000 was paid in a London sales room recently for a necklace of pearls.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

A few "poor" ex-judges and ex-statesmen cost, in pensions, 350,000 a year.

Over 1,200 miners and 450 railroadmen are killed annually in Great Britain.

There are nearly 50,000 boys under 15 (5,000 of the number 14- working in the mines of Great Britain.

"There are over three millions living in slums of a country that could spend ten thousand million pounds in a war—$50,000,000,000."

Lloyd George.

Nearly 100,000 babies perish in Great Britain before they reach their first birthday.

A quarter of thec hildren of the children of the workers die before they reach their first birthday, due largely to living in the slums.

These facts vibrate with meaning. They are the virulent symptoms of a a terrible disease that has the British people in its grip; the disease known as social injustice. Some people call it Capitalism.

"Capitalism" is that under which the vast bulk of the people own no property, no land, and no capital, and underw hich a few men own and control the means of producing and distributing the wealth that the people live by—food, clothing, shelter, etc., that the people must have if they are to live. The vast mass of the people, being without those means of producing goods, have to work for the owners of these means—those factories, mines, mills, shops, railroads, ships, etc.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

The awners "allow" the propertyless people to work at those means of producing and distribution. In return for this labor, the owners "give" to the people a certain small proportion of the wealth the people produced. The rest they keep for themselves. This, of course makes them fabulously wealthy, and leaves the mass of the people in need and poverty, so that they are always living a life of low standard. Some of their vast wealth the owners of capital spend in riotous living, but most of it they re-invest in other industries in their own or some other country, and the same process is carried on. The owners of capital thus grow ever richer, and the property-less ever poorer, relatively.

The Labor Party says that the people—who produced the wealth, and who also, in former years, produced the means by which present wealth is produced, should have that wealth. Those who help to produce wealth by their brains—the managers, superintendents, foremen, industrial engineers, efficiency experts, inventors, book-keepers, etc., should also get their generous proportion of the wealth.

Owners who now do nothing but hire labor and managers, etc., to do the work of hand and brain, these owners should simply be eliminated, says the Labor Party: eliminated gradually so as not to work undue confusion or disarrangement, but eliminated surely. Industry should be owned by the public, exactly as the public now owns the post office, etc.

✤ ✤ ✤ ✤

That is the meaning of the famous resclution introduced in the House of Commons by Philip Snowden—the gradual elimination of Capitalism, or, in other words, the elimination of the private, individual ownership of the means of producing and distributing the things that the people produce and consume.

W. M. S. Missionaries In Japan

A message was received in town yesterday from Mrs. Lavelle, President of the Women's Missionary Society of the Methodist Church of Canada, saying that all their missionaries in Japan are safe. As. Mrs. Pinsent, formerly Miss March of this city, is amongst the number, the good news will be received with heartfelt gratitude in many homes in this city. Mrs. Pinsent has given many years of devoted service to Japan and the lifting of the anxiety that has been so general on her behalf, removes a heavy burden.

Cabman Is Injured

Cabman Thomas Voisey was seriously injured on Saturday afternoon when he was thrown from the box of his victoria after his horse bolted. The animal became frightened near Patrick Street and ran down Water Street to Queen Street, where the rig collided with a horse-drawn cart and Mr. Voisey was thrown to the ground, sustaining several nasty cuts and bruises. He was driven to the Hospital, where his injuries were attended to, after which he was taken to his home. The horse was stopped on Queen's Street, but the carriage had been badly damaged.

Tug Sinks at Wharf

The tug "Hero," which has recently been taken over by a new firm, of which Messrs R. G. Rendell & Co. are managers, sank at her moorings at Monroe's wharf yesterday.

The tug was moored at the wharf Saturday night, and when the crew left her, everything was apparently alright.

Yesterday morning, at 7.30, one of the crew of a vessel at the wharf noticed something wrong with the tug, and making an investigation, discovered the vessel fast filling with water.

He called the watchman, and with the assistance of some others, hauled the tug up into the cove, where she now lies with her after deck submerged, and her engine room full of water.

What caused the tug to sink is unknown, as yet, but an examination will be made to-day.

TWENTY FIVE WERE LOST IN DISASTER

Squadron Crashed Upon Beach Beach While Steaming In Close Formation.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 10.—Steaming through the fog in close formation, seven destroyers of the United States Navy sailed upon the rocky beach seventy miles north of here yesterday morning and became a total loss at a cost of twenty-five lives in the most unique disaster in marine annals; while forty miles south, the coastal steamer Cuba, in the same fog, found her last resting place on the rocks of San Miguel Island.

On the destroyer Young, twenty-five sailors died in their berths when the craft capsized two minutes after striking. Others were badly injured in their fight to safety through mountainous seas.

The Reno, the eighth vessel of the squadron, was saved when she lost her bearings in the fog and strayed seaward in the darkness of the fog.

She was also instrumental in saving some of those of the Cuba, having sighted the drifting life boats thru a rift in the fog.

All the destroyers will be a total loss, as they are rapidly pounding to pieces, while the Cuba is reported to have sunk.

What was the fate of the officer and eight men who remained aboard the Cuba to guard a shipment of two and a half million dollars in silver bullion, has not been reported.

CALCUTTA ALSO HAS BIG SHOCK

Fifty Persons Are Dead and Inpured, and Many Houses Collapse.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Fifty persons are reported killed or injured in an earthquake which shook Calcutta today, says an exchange telegraph despatch from that British India city.

It is reported that casualties occurred in Mymensingh district, where many houses collapsed.

HORRORS OF HOLOCAUST OUTRIVALLED IDEA OF HELL

Murder and Pillage Were Rampant as Destruction Swept Thru Towns.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—Stories told by eyewitnesses of the Japanese earthquake holocaust depict scenes rivalling in horror the popular representations of the Buddhist hell.

At the first quake, huge oil tanks on the hillside above Yokosuka cable station exploded, and millions of tons of oil swept down upon the city, turning the harbor and canals into a sea of flames.

The walls of Neghshi prison collapsed and five thousand convicts were liberated. The most desperate of these at once set about robbing the dead and murdering the helplessly wounded until citizens hastily banded and armed, and dealt out summary death sentences upon the miscreants.

An American hospital is reported to have been hurled from a bluff into the cemetery below, tearing open the earth and exhuming bodies buried there.

Business men were about to leave their offices in Yokohama at the close of Saturday morning's work, when, without warning, and with a tremendous roar, the ground heaved up four or five feet, then dropped back again in the utmost chaos.

Houses on the bluff toppled down into the city, while the landscape rocked and heaved like waves of the sea.

Fugitives from the falling buildings found their escape cut off by huge gaps in the earth, while the peril was added to by the rising water as it poured out of broken mains in the city works.

The Digby leaves Halifax for this port today, and is due Thursday. She is set down to sail on Friday for Liverpool.

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XXI

"Six month, Janey," he called up; "and there'll be no appeal from that decision. Nellie! Elizabeth! Poor Jane will be lonesome in Port Agnew, and I'm not wishful to be too hard on her. You'll keep her company."

There was a sound of closing doors, and silence settled over The Dreamerie, that little white home that The Laird of Tyee had built and dedicated to peace and love. For he was the master here.

CHAPTER XXII

CALEB BRENT'S funeral was the apotheosis of simplicity. Perhaps a score of the old sailor's friends and neighbors attended, and there were, perhaps, half a dozen women—motherly old souls who had known Nan intimately in the days when she associated with their daughters and who felt in the presence of death a curious unbending of a curious and indefinable hostility. Sam Carew, arrayed in the conventional habiliments of his profession, stood against the wall and closed his eyes piously when Hector McKaye, standing beside old Caleb, spoke briefly and kindly of the departed, and with a rough eloquence that stirred none present—not even Nan, who, up to that moment, entirely ignorant of The Laird's intention, could only gaze at him, amazed and incredulous—more than it stirred The Laird himself. The sonorous and beautiful lines of the burial service took on an added beauty and dignity as he read them, for The Laird believed! And when he had finished reading the service, he looked up, and his kind gaze lay gently on Nan Brent as he said:

"My friends, we will say a wee bit prayer for Caleb wi' all the earnestness of our hearts. O Lord, now that yon sailor has towed out on his last long cruise, we pray to thee to gie him a guid pilot—ays, an an angel, for he was ever an honest man and brave—to guide him to thy mansion. Forgie him his trespasses and in thy great mercy grant comfort to this poor bairn he leaves behind. And thine shall be the honor and the glory, forever and ever. Amen.

None present, except Donald, realized the earnestness of that prayer, for, always under the stress of deep emotion, The Laird had grown Scotchy. Mrs. Tingley, a kindly little soul who had felt it her Christian duty to be present, moved over to the little organ, and Nan, conspicuous in a four-year-old tailored suit and a black sailor hat, rose calmly from her seat and stood beside the minister's wife. For a moment, her glance strayed over the little audience. Then she sang—not a hymn, but just a little song her father had always liked—the haunting, dignified melody that has been set to Stevenson's "Requiem."

Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.

This be the verse you grave for me:
Here he lies where he longed to be.
Home is the sailor, home from sea,
And the hunter, home from the hill.

The Laird, watching her narrowly, realized the effort it was costing her; yet her glorious voice did not break or quiver once. "You wonderful, wonderful woman!" he thought moved up to a high pitch of admiration for her independence and her flagrant flaunting of tradition. "What a wife for my boy—what a mother for my grandson—if you hadn't spoiled it all!"

She rode to the cemetery in The Laird's car with The Laird, Donald and Mrs. Tingley. Leaning on Donald's arm, she watched them hide old Caleb beneath the flowers from the gardens of The Dreamerie; then The Laird read the service at the grave, and they returned to the Sawdust Pile, where Nan's child (he had been left at home in charge of a nurse from the Tyee Lumber Company's hospital) experienced more or less difficulty deciding whether Donald or The Laird was his father.

The Laird now considered his duty to Caleb Brent accomplished. He remained at the Sawdust Pile a period barely sufficient for Nan to express her sense of obligation.

"In a month, my dear girl," he whispered, as he took her hand, "you will have had time to adjust yourself and decide on the future. Then we'll have a little talk."

She smiled bravely up at him thru misty eyes and shook her head. She read his thoughts far better than he knew.

Father and son repaired to the private office at the mill, and The Laird seated himself in his old swivel chair.

"Now, then, lad," he demanded, "have I been a good sport?"

"You have, indeed, father! I'm grateful to you."

"You needn't be. I wouldn't have missed that funeral for considerable. That girl can sing like an angel, and, man, the courage of her! 'Twas sweet of her, singing to old Caleb like that, but I much mistake if she won't be talked about for it. 'Twill be said she's heartless." He handed his son a cigar and snipped the end off one for himself. "We'll be needing the Sawdust Pile now for a drying-yard," he announced complacently.

"You mean——"

"I mean, my son, that you're dreaming of the impossible, and that it's time for you to wake up. I want no row about it. I can't bear to hear your mother and sisters carrying on longer. I'll never get over thinking what a pity it is that girl is damaged goods. She must not be wife to son of mine."

The young laird bowed his head.

"I can't give her up, father," he murmured. "By God, I can't!"

"There can be no happiness without honor, and you'll not be the first to make our name a jest in the mouths of Port Agnew. You will write her and tell her of my decision; if you do not wish to, then I shall do it for you. Trust to her to understand and not hold it against you. And it is my wish that you should not see her again. She must be cared for, but when that time comes, I shall attend to it; you know me well enough to realize I'll do that well." He laid his hand tenderly on the young mans shoulder. "This is your first love, my son. Time and hard work will help you forget—and I'll wait for my grandson."

"And if I should not agree to this—what?"

"Obey me for a month—and then ask me that question if you will. I'm a bit unprepared for an answer on such short notice."

Donald bowed his head.

"Very well, sir. I'll think it over for a month—on one condition."

"Thank you, my son," said The Laird of Tyee. "And what is the condition?"

"Let mother and the girls go to Seattle or Honolulu or Shanghai or some other seaport anywhere, provided they're not at The Dreamerie when I return to Port Agnew. I'm going to spend that damnable month in the woods, week-ends and all, and wrestle with this problem."

"I'm an old ass," he declared. "Have it your own way, only—by the gods, I ought to teach them sense. I've spoiled them, and I ought to unspoil them. They drive me crazy, much as I love them."

The Laird went home that afternoon, lighter of heart than he had been for a month. He told himself that his firm stand with Donald had rather staggered that young man, and that a month of reflection, far from the disturbing influence of Nan Brent's magnetic presence, would induce Donald to adopt a sensible course.

CHAPTER XXIII.

SINCE THAT NIGHT when Mr. Daney, standing aloof in the dark vacant lot close to the Sawdust Pile, had seen Donald McKaye, in the light cast thru the open door of Caleb Brent's cottage, take Nan Brent in his arms and kiss her, since he had heard Nan Brent's voice apply to the young laird of Port Agnew a term so endearing as to constitute a verbal caress, his practical and unromantic soul had been in a turmoil of apprehension.

Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Other Mothers

Hemford, N. S.—"I am the mother of four children and I was so weak after my last baby came that I could not do my work and suffered for months until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Since taking the Vegetable Compound my weakness has left me and the pain in my back has gone. I tell all my friends who are troubled with female weakness to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I think it is the best medicine ever sold. You may advertise my letter."—Mrs. GEORGE I. CROUSE, Hemford, N. S.

My First Child

Glen Allen, Alabama.—"I have been greatly benefited by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for bearing-down feelings and pains. I was troubled in this way for nearly four years following the birth of my first child, and at times could hardly stand on my feet. A neighbor recommended the Vegetable Compound to me after I had taken doctor's medicines without much benefit. It has relieved my pains and gives me strength. I recommend it and give you permission to use my testimonial letter."—Mrs. IDA RYE, Glen Allen, Alabama.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

FIRST AMERICAN TO SWIM THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Henry Sullivan, of Lowell, Mass., first American to swim the English Channel, is seen receiving part of his reward—a kiss from Miss Worsdell—upon arriving at Dover after accomplishing his heroic aquatic feat. At the right is Mr. Alexandra, who promised to present a cup to the first man to swim the Channel.

CHILD WELFARE ASSOCIATION

The quarterly meeting of the Child Welfare Association was held in the Old Colony Club yesterday. Lady Crosbie presided, and Lady Allardyce was present. The following report was submitted:—

QUARTERLY REPORT OF THE C. W. A.

The helpful educational propoganda during Baby Week has left its great mark of good influence on our work this last quarter, 581 babies having attended our meetings since June.

Dr. Fallon has been engaged to take our Thursday's Clinic, and Dr. Grieve came during Dr. Fallon's absence.

Ladies of the city who are interested in this work are invited to help us at the Clinics. There is a vacancy ever Tuesday and Thursday for hostesses who will pour out tea or give out paper patterns. We are always glad to see any ladies interested in Child Welfare at our Clinics. Through the great generosity of Mr. Johnson, who was here investigating the Cod Liver Oil resources of Newfoundland this summer, and who is exteremely interested in Child Welfare work, and came to see our Clinic, the Child Welfare Association is now in a position to feed all those babies who are needing proper nourishment or extra food. Mr. Johnson, of Messrs. Mead, Johnson and Company, Indiana U.S.A., has donated the Clinic with materials to the value of over $800.00, and in addition has sent us valuable literature to help us in our work. Mr. Quillingan, also on a visit gave a lecture in the Clinic to Graduate Nurses and others in the city interested in "Formula Feeding" which proved both helpful and instructive. Mr. Johnson has also sent us a beautiful baby scale for the Clinic—white enammelled with nickel fittings. It was very wonderful to see outsiders coming in and taking such an interest in this social movement here, and giving us such a handsome donation. One can not work without tools and now that we have the Clinic stocked with a reconstructed milk of a very satisfactory kind, thanks to Mr. Johnson's generosity, it is a pleasure to have the babies on our Clinic after noons. Nothing is so discouraging or so heart-breaking as to see the amount of work which needs to be done and feel that our hands are tied for lack of funds or necessary equipment. I should like every mother in the city to know what the Clinic stands for, and what it would mean to them if they would show their approval by coming in to see us: our work is foremost an educational one, we are an established inquiry bureau for the well being of the babies, where good literature on the subject can be obtained free for the asking. We wish that business men would take up this matter seriously;—it is not alone a woman's affair, it concerns the well being of the future citizens. It is an important part of a citizen's duty to see that there is such an establishment in their midst, and not only one, but as many as are needed to make the work as efficient as possible. We are hampered and crippled for lack of funds, we cannot expand to our full capacity while we have only limited help.

At present our Quarters are so crowded that we really need a Child Welfare Centre in the East and in the West of the city. Mothers have to walk long distances with babies on their arms to Duckworth Street. If we had more funds and more voluntary helpers, these branches could soon be materializzed.

A Dental Clinic is badly needed in connection with our work here. We should be very glad if some Society interested in the alleviation of suffering amongst children in this city would help and work in with us to provide and equip such a Clinic and give us the services of a Dentist on certain hours and certain days of the week.

Through the kindness of Mr. T.A. McNab in donating a bed at the Southcott Hospital and the voluntary help of several doctors, 52 operations have been performed these last few month for the children and after the holiday season we are hoping to put as many more children on the road to good health. To many children it is their only chance of treatment, and we owe it to the next generation to give these children a chance.

Business men of this city who are interested in this work will gladly be supplied with further information upon request. Telephone No. 3 or call at the Clinic 368 Duckworth Street during Clinic hours and see the need there is for this work in the city.

During the last year 1,358 babies have been brought down to the Clinic by their mothers. 7,750 have been visited in their homes. 21,135 nursing treatments have been carried out. All I can say now is to repeat offer and invitations to all interested in Child welfare to come and realize for themselves how great the value of this work is, and how we could increase our sphere of usefullness of we had all the co-operation and help we deserve. Further—the nursing service which we give, could be further increased if there were some means of getting around quickly, and much time could be saved and more work accomplished, as our work is very scattered.

This last Quarter 286 nursing treatments have been given.

So far this summer there has been less summer diarrhoea amongst Clinic babies, partly owing to the cooler summer and partly due to our present system of using a good dried milk powder, instead of giving cow's milk as previously. Since June last no cow's milk has been given free, but a good Modified Milk Powder, when necessary, and since July the handsome donation of Johnson-Mead's reconstructed milk has been our main supply, from which we have obtained excellent results. Our experience is that where dairy conditions are unsatisfactory, and where there is nothing but a cupboard in the kitchen in which to keep the food and milk, or where ice and refrigerators, owing to their high cost are impracticable, then a good dried milk powder is more satisfactory, and certainly runs less risk of contamination from dust and flies. This arrangement has worked out well here.

There are 201 babies under 1 year on our Clinic books, and 145 children up to 5 years, making the total 346 in all under our special care, besides the new-born babies who are visited, and the extra calls and treatments During the last year 1,135 nursing visits were given by the nurses to the homes. 7,750 visits altogether. The work is arduous, and a strenuous one. More active helpers and more funds are urgently needed to accomplish the social reform which is so badly needed in our midst, and Child Welfare Work is one of the surest ways of promoting the future welbeing and health of the community. Will you kindly support our cause liberally and tell your friends of the effort the Child Welfare Association is making in the city to better conditions to lower the infant mortality rate, and to bring health-education within the reach of all.

The Labrador Speaks

(Editor Evening Advocate)

Dear Sir.—The barren Labrador is not a place to grow apples; the climate is rigid, yet it is healthy. This is August, and already the wind is cold, and if so, what will it be in January? But we don't care about cold weather here. To some readers in Nfld. it will be a consolation for them to know that the writer does not worry about cold weather. A boy who has to travel sixty miles in good company and cold weather, for a good cause, can give expression to a spirit of joy.

I would like to speak a few words concerning Sister Bailey, who is about to leave us. She has been nineteen years on this coast as a medical missionary. She has given her health, home and pleasures for the cause of humanity. Mr. Editor, you will agree with me that for a woman to travel the Labrador coast for eighteen winters, requires the spirit of a Livingstone, and we get from five to 27 degrees below zero here.

She has neglected her sleep many a time to watch over a patient in the night. She may be called the "Saintly Mother," and the "Labrador Heroine. Her work will ever be remembered.

Sister Bailey is a worker of the Grenfell Association, and is loved and admired by many. I extend to her my prayers and best wishes.

Space will not allow me to comment upon the Mission House which Sister Bailey has built; but let me say, she has a furnace, bath room, piano and organ, and a good library. She is leaving on account of ill-health.

Thanking you for space, and with best wishes for success,

I am yours truly,

A MISSIONARY.

WANT A MILLION DOLLARS TO RELIEVE JAPAN'S SICK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Reporting that an epidemic of fever had broken out at Tokio, United States Ambassador Woods, in a cable to the State Department to-day, says it was imperative that one million dollars of Red Cross funds be placed at the disposal of its relief committee in Japan for quick purchase of medical supplies and food.

MURDERED SWEETHEART AND THEN SUCIDED

PRESCOTT, Sept. 10.—One of the worst tragedies ever recorded in this district was perpetrated late last night, when Harold C. Barrington, twenty-nine, farmer, shot and killed Miss Alberta Stokes, daughter of Rev S. H. Stokes, of Central Square, then committed suicide by cutting his throat.

Miss Stokes had refused to marry Barrington.

CAPITAL SAFE IN RUSSIA

TORONTO, Sept. 10.—Canadian capital is as safe in Russia to-day as in Canada, said Sir Donald Mann. Canadian railway builder, when he returned after travelling twenty-five hundred miles in Soviet Russia.

"I believe the Russian government will live up to any contract it makes. They must have foreign capital, and they must keep their bargains to get it."

What impressed Sir Donald most was the earnestness of the people. "Everyone is working at top speed to get the country back on its feet. Men in government positions often work all night.

Fire Protection Week Oct. 7th to 13th.

Fire Protection Week, inaugurated by Inspector General Hutchings last year, will be held again this year between October 7th and 13th. This was decided yesterday afternoon when a meeting was held in the Inspector General's office, which was attended by the representatives of the Board of Fire Underwriters, and Councillors Outerbridge and Dowden on behalf of the city. Inspector General Hutchings was appointed Chairman of the Committee, and Councillor Outerbridge as Secretary. A preliminary programme was drawn up and includes addresses in the various city churches on Sunday, Tuesday. Address to the Rotary Club, Wednesday; Adresses in the city schools by prominent citizens; Thursday, parade and exhibition by the Fire Department.

The Inspector General was appointed to interview the city clergy, and Mr. Outerbridge will make all the arrangements in connection with the schools. Councillor Dowden and Mr. R. G. Ash are in charge of the advertising and publicity and it is hoped to make Fire Protection Week this year even more interesting than last year, when a great amount of good resulted.

OVERCROWDED? ILLTREATED? ELLIS ISLAND AS IT IS TODAY!

British Ambassador, Sir Auckland Geddes, and the U. S. Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island, Major Henry H. Curran, are publicly disagreeing about the merits of the Island, which the envoy says is dirty and overcrowded, unfit for British subjects. Major Curran says the Island is as clean as it can be kept while many immigrants disregard the rubbish cans and insist on throwing it on the floor. As for immigrants being forced to sleep on the floor, he says there are 1,750 beds and only 1,500 slept on the island last night.

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—The enthusiasm with which the Irish Free State was admitted to the League of Nations to-day was dominating topic of conversation, in Geneva to-night.

President Cosgrove began his salutatory address in Gaelic, but quickly changed to English, and delivered an eloquent oration.

Desmonde Fitzgerald, Foreign Minister, of State, said to-night that his country rejoiced over one thing, particularly, that Ireland's reception into the League demonstrated that she takes her place among the nations of the world as the great Robert Emmett had said, without an enemy; because her election was unanimous.

"We want to give our best to the world and receive the world's best," he said, "and because we have no axe to grind, we shall in our League activities, be solely guided by the principles of justice."

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 11.—Edward McMullen, one of the escaped convicts, was captured this afternoon by guards who found him hiding near an abandoned car in which his companions and himself had left prison after climbing the walls under a smoke screen from the stables, which they had fired in the course of their plans for escape. Four others are still at large.

McMullen, who was doing fourteen years for a bank robbery, was wounded by gunshots from guards, and forced to drop behind others when they dashed for the disabled automobile.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5—Treachery of sea and air were the main factors in the wreck of seven of Uncle Sam's sea-hornets, destroyers of the Pacific fleet, which pitched at twenty knots an hour, on the jagged rocks of Lahonda, seventy miles north of Santa Barbara, Saturday night, according to the beliefs of naval experts here.

Twenty lives and seven ships of war paid the toll. Four hours perviously the Pacific mail liner Cuba had piled up on San Miguel Island thirty-five miles away, and the air was filled with wireless messages, telling of her plight and directing the rescue.

Shore directions to the fleet became confused with wireless messages concerning the Cuba's plight, it is said, leaving the destroyer flotilla to the mercy of the fog, wind and sea.

Cross currents aided in sweeping the flotilla out of its course, and the leader, Delphy, crashed head on upon the fatal rocks. Within a few minutes, others of the squadron, too close to stop their swift flight, were piled side by side along the treacherous coast line.

Eleven other destroyers of the squadron heard the siren of the Delphy in time to shift their course and escape the fate of the seven that crashed.

Scenes of heroism followed and all were rescued excepting nineteen of the crew of the Young, which capsized two minutes after striking, imprisoning them in their berths. One of the Delphy's crew was lost in the course of the rescue. All the ships are believed beyond salving. Each was valued at approximately a million and a half dollars.

North Sydney Notes

Calcutta Arrives Here, Homeward Bound

The light cruiser Calcutta, flagship of Sir Michael Culme-Seymour, Commander in Chief of the North America and West Indies Station, having been ordered to return to Portsmouth, arrived here last evening. The Commander in Chief transferred his flag to the light cruiser Capetown, Captain K. G. B. Dewar, on Saturday for the remainder of the cruise in Canadian and United States waters and ports of call.

The Capetown will call at various Canadian and Newfoundland ports and also at Boston. The Calcutta will leave St. John's on the 15th for her home port, where her crew will be paid off.

The Capetown, which is to carry the flag of the Commander in Chief, is a sister ship of the Calcutta. She has a displacement of 4,190 tons, a beam of 43½ feet and a draught of 14½ feet. She was built in the yard of Messrs Cammel and Laird, Birkenhead, in 1918, and was towed round to Pembroke Yard for completion the year following the end of the war. She cost £860,000. Like all ships of her class, she is squipped with 40,000 horse power engines (Babcock and Wilcox), which give a speed of 29 knots and a little bit up her sleeve for emergencies. For a ship of her tonnage she carries powerful armament—five 6 inch guns, mounted behind heavy armoured shields on the centre line of the ship and so arranged that they can fire ahead, astern or to either broadside. Her anti aircraft battery holds a couple of 3 inch guns to resist aerial attack and four 3 pounders are mounted on various coigns of vantage. the 6 inch gun is very handy weapon, throwing 100lb. projectile and capable of getting at least 12 shots per minute in action. If every man of the crew save one was disabled, that man could still keep the gun in action as Boy Cornwell did at Jutland. The 3 inch guns are mounted on high angle bearings and one shot from the gun would bring down any aircraft if planted in the right spot. The torpedo equipment includes eight 21 inch tubes on the upper deck, mounted as double revolving tubes. Within the bunkers of the Capetown lies space for 900 tons of oil, but if needs be she could stoke up with coal by an alternative system. The christening ceremony at the launch of the Capetown was performed by Mrs. Botha, wife of the Premier of South Africa.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, TUESDAY, SEPT. 11th., 1923.

THE ACID TEST

The utter futility of the League of Nations has been demonstrated apparently beyond any question of doubt by the arrogant manner in which Mussolini, the dictator of Italy refused its proposed intervention in the Italo-Greek dispute, unless, indeed, immediate and drastic measures are taken to put the recalcitrant member in her place.

The dispute upon which world interest has been centred during the past week or two proved the acid test of the League's worth and to the average man it would seem that the test has proved too severe. The situation demands decisive action from other of the more influential members of the League and the world will watch with interest the developments that the next few days must reveal.

Lord Robert Cecil, the British delegate to the League Council, declared that he would not stand for Mussolini's high-handedness, and his answer to the latter's challenge was to demand the immediate reading of Articles 10, 12 and 15 of the Covenant. Articles 10 and 12 read as follows:

(10) The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all members of the League. In case of any such aggression, or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled.

(12) The members of the League agree that if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to a rupture, they will submit either to arbitration or to inquiry by the Council, and they agree in no case to resort to war until three months after the award by the arbitrators or the report by the Council. In any case under this article the award of the arbitrators shall be made within a reasonable time, and the report of the Council shall be made within six months after the submission of the dispute.

Clause 15 provides that if any dispute between members of the League likely to lead to a rupture is not submitted to arbitration in accordance with Article 13 the members agree that they will submit the matter to the Council. Either party to the dispute may effect such submission by giving notice to the Secretary-General. The Council shall try to bring about a settlement, but if it fails it shall report the facts and such terms of settlement as it deems appropriate, unless it finds that the case is by international law solely within the domestic jurisdiction of either party to the dispute. In any case the Council may refer the dispute to the Assembly, and shall do so if any party to the dispute so requests.

Discussing the question of the League's right of interference, the Toronto Globe says:

"If the Greeco-Italian affair does not come within the scope of Articles 10, 12 and 15, the Covenant is a mockery and the League a monstrous futility. The reluctance of some members to stand up against Mussolini's threat is doubtless due to fear for the existence of the League itself, but it will be better for Europe and for civilization that the League should dissolve in an attempt to do its plain duty than to try to save its own life by a surrender of every principle upon which it was founded."

A Great Transformation

When President Coaker declared his intention of moving the Union Trading Company's premises from St. John's to the then barren slopes of the Southwest Arm of Catalina, there were few people indeed who believed in the wisdom of the idea. For it was a daring step to take and only one, gifted with remarkable business foresight and strengthened with a great store of energy, could expect to make it the remarkable step of commercial advancement, which recent years have proven it to be.

Where Port Union now proudly stands, with its noise of industry by day, and its glow of electricity by night, there were but barren rocks and shrubbed hillsides a few years ago. The waters of Southwest Brook were running to waste and a sunken wharf was all the sign of industry visible.

The transfiguration of that lonely corner of the coast well represents what many spots in Terra Nova could become, did we have the courage, the energy and skill to address ourselves to their development.

The Port Union site had the advantages of water power, a good water side and a commodious harbour. The splendid spirit of F. P. Unionism, that much abused body, and the courageous qualities of Pres. Coaker, that much misrepresented individual, did the rest.

Those who visit the spot, where has arisen the most remarkable commercial development ever known to Newfoundland, come away converted to the opinion that "Coaker is a mystery" and the F. P. U. is a great blessing to the people. And to those who have not seen it and who yet doubt its magnitude, let them visit the growing northern city and, with their own eyes, see the real proof of Union greatness.

The British Empire Exhibition

£10,000,000 To Be Expended

Grounds to Cover 216 Acres

The British Empire Exhibition will be open from April to October, 1924. The British Empire Exhibition covers an area of 216 acres. In both its educational features and amusements it will be the most comprehensive exhibition ever planned. When it opens its gates in April, 1924, there will have been spent for the instruction and amusement of its visitors a sum of at least £10,000,000.

There will be comfortable transport facilities and accommodation for up to half-a-million visitors per days at the British Empire Exhibition.

The site, Wembley Park, though set in woodlands and green fields, is only ten minutes' distance from two London railway stations, and is within half an hour of almost any part of the Metropolis.

All the nations flying the Union Jack will take part in the British Empire Exhibition. Every continent and every important group of islands of the globe will be represented. Every aspect of civilised and uncivilised life will be shown.

If you are a citizen of the world interested in the world decide now to visit the British Empire Exhibition in 1924. The money spent will be the best invest men of your life. Ask a tourist agency, a shipping company, or a railway company about fares and season ticket rates.

THE BRITISH EMPIRE EXHIBITION.

The Throne being the chief bond of the union of peoples which is the British Empire, it is fitting that the King-Emperor should be the Patron of the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley Park, London, in 1924. He has seen the Empire, by virtue of its unity and courage, pass victoriously through the trials, the vicissitudes of the Great War; and it will be his pride to see proofs that a like unity and a like courage can be displayed in the arts of peace. With his Consort, Queen Mary, and his son, the Prince of Wales, who is President of the Exhibition, His Majesty has taken the keenest interest in the project, and at his call the whole Empire has co-operated to strive to make it a splendid success.

The British Empire Exhibition invites the attention of the whole world, since it will be a comprehensive survey of the achievement in art, science and industry of the most marvellous generation that man has passed on this planet. It will be the great industrial event of the post-war world, the first clear expression of the hope that after the disasters and horrors of the Great War we may enter now with confidence upon an era of peace. It will be thus of compelling interest to all who are curious about any aspect of life.

This Marvellous Epoch.

It is a full generation since there has been a great exhibition to display the triumphs of man in Art and Science: and the knowledge of a generation ago is obsolete in almost every department. Except that the great principles of philosophy remain unchanged, there is hardly anything which was known by man twenty-five years ago that stands as it was. The astronomer, the physicist, the chemist, survey the universe in the light of new principles. During that generation man has made the most wonderful strides of any period of his history both in abstract knowledge and in its practical application: the conquest of the air: the discovery that the atom, which was recently accepted as the indivisible basis of matter, is a little electro-magnetic world in itself: the questioning of the whole basis of Euclid's geometry and Newton's physics: marvellous advances in every branch of science.

To see the world of to-day is thus to see a world entirely different from that of a generation ago. That world will be displayed in microcosm at Wembley Pary in 1924.

True, it is not a World Exhibition, but a British Empire Exhibition. Yet it is in the fullest sense comprehensive of the world. There is nothing of importance, whether it be in the domain of abstract thought, of science, of art, or of industry, which is not represented within the British Empire—the greatest organisation of human society that man has ever known. The methods of both Western and Eastern civilisations, and of those nations which still sit in darkness, find a place therein: also the aspirations and achievements of man in all domains of effort. The British race has set up new States in every continent of the world: and in every continent has under the Union Jack peoples who are learning the lessons of self-government and of orderly civilisation These will come to the British Empire Exhibition, bringing with them the proofs of their industry, the illustrations of their life: and they will give a complete picture of the world of to-day.

THE DAILY TAX

(Toronto Daily Star)

Toronto people pay federal income tax on April 30, only to bec onfronted with municipal income tax on May 18. As the first instalment of municipal taxes is collected at an earlier date with each passing year, the federal and municipal levies bid fair to coincide in a year or two. The gap between them is already uncomfortably small.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

By OBSERVER.

There is much adverse criticism of the laxity displayed in the matter of cleaning up disorderly houses in the city. It is argued that the raid last week resulting in the keeper of a house on Beaumont Street being fined $100.00 does not even begin to get at the bottom of the rotten conditions that have been existing for some time, and most of which have been under the noses of the police and public.

Another fire prevention week is to be held next month and a committee has been organized to work in conjunction with the fire department in making the week a success. The public may look forward to a demonstration of the city's fire fighting outfit, which hould be a proof of the absolute efficiency of the apparatus and men. In this connection, the time is ripe for a reduction in insurance rates.

A degenerate is now standing his trial for an outrage committed against a youngster some days ago. This same man was chosen by the City Council to "look after" the children playing in the park. Verily the Fathers are not always wise in their choice of persons for responsible positions.

In matters of international sporting interest the Dempsey-Firpo fight, slated for Sept. 14th, holds the centre of the stage and many ring fans are looking forward to seeing Jack meet his Waterloo at the hands of the South American.

Ken Brown Labor Candidate

Member for Twillingate, Pays Visit First Visit to Port Union

A recent visitor to Port Union, Mr. Kenneth Brown, M.H.A. for Twillingate, returned to St. John's yesterday. Mr. Brown's old home is in King's Cove, and it was while en route to pay a brief visit to the place of his birth that Mr. Brown had afforded him the opportunity of seeing the fisherman's town as it really is. Speaking of his impressions to an Advocate reporter Mr. Brown but confirms the opinions freely expressed by everybody who has had the good fortune to see for themselves the extent, adaptability and up-to-dateness of the vast business premises which Perisdent Coaker has established at Port Union. The S. W. Arm of Catalina to Mr. Brown in his boyhood days was regarded as a splendid port for anchorage for the fishermen in a storm, a port of refuge where the storm tossed mariner may find a safe port is to-day a thriving town of between 6 and 7 hundred inhabitants, electrically lighted, possessing comfortable homes equipped with many modern conveniences, making it possible for the working man to enjoy privileges unknown in parts of the country which have been peopled for generations past. The entrance to Port Union at night from the outer harbor and reacn leading into Catalina needs to be made under favorable conditions to be appreciated. The Twillingate member says it reminded him of going into New Westminster, B.C., or the Frazer River. Spectacular though this night view is the dawn of a business day at the fisherman's town was indeed a revelation to the visitor. The fish stores, piers, cooperage, drying kilm, up-to-date dry goods, hardware and provisions department, and across the Arm an electric plant sufficient to provide light in abundance for Port Union and the adjacent towns with a reserve force of eltctrical energy suffice to drive the considerable machinery in connection with the shipbuilding, and general plant were a few of the striking features of this truly wonderful achievement which surprized and delighted a practical Newfoundlander whose opinion should be worth while. A recent addition to Port Union facilities is an aerial station connected from the tower of the church of the Holy Martyrs with Sir Wm. Coaker's residence. The latest world news is daily received here, and a huge telephone service capable of broadcasting the news to Catalina is now being installed. The season just now while the operatives are waiting for the new fish to come in is regarded as a quiet one, but there is never so slack a day at Port Union that work for willing hands is not available. You might, says Mr. Brown, as well try to stop the electric energy which makes Port Union a thing of life as to expect Sir William Coaker to remain inactive, his boundless energy and initiative seems to permeate the whole town. Port Union is still in its infancy. Having made such rapid strides towards a big place in the commercial sun of Newfoundland while the world was in turmoil, and held its own during the period of intense depression which has visited Newfoundland during recent years, it needs no prophetic vision to see a bigger, better and more prosperous Port Union as the years go by. Such conditions Sir William Coaker is manfully striving for, day by day, and his success of the past in the interests of the fishermen of our country, great though they have been in the past few years will be duplicated and excelled in the years to come, such at least said Mr. Brown is my conviction after seeing for myself the results of co-operative enterprize under the guidance of Sir William Coaker as exemplified in the industrial structure he has raised and maintains at Port Union, the wilderness of a few years ago—to-day a thriving, happy and prosperous town.

President Appeals to Nation For Relief Fund to Aid Japan

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—President Coolidge issued the following proclamation to-day, calling upon the country for contributions to Japanese relief:

"To the People of the United States:

"An overwhelming disaster has overtaken the people of the friendly nation of Japan. While its extent has not as yet been officially reported, enough is known to justify the statement that the cities of Tokio and Yokohama and surrounding towns and villages have been largerly if not completely destroyed by earthquake, fire and flood, with a resultant appalling loss of life and destitution and distress, requiring measures of urgent relief.

"Such assistance as is within the means of the Executive Department of the Government will be rendered; but, realizing the great suffering which now needs relief and will need relief for days to come, I am prompted to appeal urgently to the American people, whose sympathies have always been so comprehensive, to contribute in aiding the unfortunate and in giving relief to the people of Japan.

"In order that the utmost co-ordination and effectiveness in the administration of the relief funds be obtained, I recommend that all contributions, clearly designated, be sent to the Chairman of the American National Red Cross at Washington or to any of the local Red Cross chapters for transmission to Japan."

TYPHOON SWEEPS HONG KONG HARBOR

Thousands may be dead with many Europeans among the victims as the result of a terrific typhoon which, on August 18th swept the waters of Hong Kong harbor into a sceathing whirpool that flung several ships into the depths and tossed others into havens of refuge. A British submarine and a British merchant ship sank in the harbor, only three persons being saved from the two crews. The typhoon continued for many hours, the most disastrous in the history of the famous British-Chinese port. Photo shows a beautiful general view of the harbor, looking across the bay to Kowloon and mainland.

LABOR THE COMING POWER IN ENGLAND

The Story of the Amazing Rise of the Workers' Movement in the British Isles

Article 1

WHEN WILL LABOR RULE?

By J. R. SMALLWOOD.

No less a shrewd political expert than David Lloyd George, former Prime Minister of Great Britain, has recently declared that—in all probability the British Labor Party will be the next government of the British Isles. In so writing, Mr. Lloyd George but expressed what is the conviction or conclusion of many observers of British politics.

Clair Price, for instance, writes in the New York Times: "Since its leadership is the most able of any of the great British parties today, it is not impossible that the next general election will install a Labor government in London."

John Balderston, English resident correspondent of the New York World, writes: "England, it seems to me, is moving toward labor. Unless there is some unforseeable change in opinion, I expect to see labor in office within two or three years."

Dr. Macnamara, Minister of Labor in the Lloyd George government, and certainly no sympathiser with Labor, writes: "Unless a considerable change comes over the course of politics in this country a Socialist government will come into power after the next General Election, whenever it comes."

Britain's Alternative Government.

Today the British Labor Party is the alternative government of Great Britain — the Opposition; having shouldered aside the Liberal party, which occupied the position. Today the Labor party leaders sit in the front benches of the House of Commons, while such men as David Lloyd George, Herbert Asquith, etc., occupy obscure seats. Should the present government fall, it would be to the Labor party that the task of forming a new cabinet would go; and it would be James Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Opposition and Parliamentary Chief of the Labor party, who would become Prime Minister.

In the British House of Commons today the Labor party has nearly 150 elected members, having doubled its strength in the General Election last November. The party has more members now than the Lloyd George and the Asquith Liberals, and the independents, combined.

In the General Election the Labor party polled 4,250,000 votes, as against 5,250,000 for the Conservatives (the present government) who appear to have gained far more seats in the House than their votes won for them—a condition due to the lack of P. R., or proportional Representation. By the same token the two Liberal parties, who polled 2,000,000 votes each, also suffered in the apportionment of seats.

The Labor party went to the polls last November with a membership already in the Commons amounting to sixty, having elected that number with 2,244,000 votes in the 1918 General Election. They went in with sixty members and came out of the appeal to the public with 142 members—an increase of more than 100%! The sixty members the party elected in 1918 was almost as remarkable a victory as that of last November, seeing that in 1914 they had only thirty-nine members in the Commons. Since last November the party has added to its membership in the House by the election of several men in bye-elections—most notable among these being the loved "Bob" Smillie.

Not, perhaps, in the annals of all politics has a party been born and risen to power in such meteoritic fashion as has this Labor party. The first Labor-Socialist candidate who stood for election in Great Britain — thirty-five years ago, in 1888—polled 617 votes!

From 617 Votes to 4,250,000 in 35 Years.

From 617 votes to 4,250,000 in thirty-five years is amazing progress. Kier Hardie was defeated then, but later was elected to the Commons and sat as the first Labor member in all British history. In the general election of 1900 the Labor party elected two candidates. From two members in 1900 to 146 members in 1923 is one way of describing the work of the great pioneers of the Labor movement in Great Britain.

Kier Hardie was the father of the Independent Labor party (which was itself the necleus of the present British Labor party and is today the militant wing of the B. L. P.), and for years Hardie sat as the lone Labor member in Parliament. At the annual conventions of the Independent Labor party he would smilingly report on the work of the "party" in Parliament, and would assure the convention that amongst the "personnel" of the party in the House there was complete agreement! J. Kier Hardie was one of the greatest figures produced by the British labor movement, and perhaps the most beloved man in this greatest of all modern crusades for social justice. He died at the commencement of the war, quite heartbroken over the outbreak of that ghastly holocaust and the setback it meant for the movement to the establishment of which he had devoted his noble life. The secretary of our fishermen's union George F. Grimes, M.H.A., Minister of Marine and Fisheries, on the occasion of a visit to England some years ago saw and met Kier Hardie, I believe, and was profoundly moved by the tragedy so deeply impressed on that man's face, a tragedy acentuated by the snowy whiteness of his long hair.

In addition to the 146 members in the House of Commons there are countless Labor members in local town councils, school and health boards and all of the many other kinds of local elective bodies. There is not a locality in all Great Britain but has at least one Labor member, while there are many councils headed by Labor Mayors and controlled by Labor councillors. If I remember correctly there are 10,000 such Labor representatives in local bodies in Great Britain, many of them being women. How they have done —the splendid work they have performed in behalf of the people—would make a fascinating story in itself. Local government is very important in Great Britain, and such bodies possess a great deal of power.

Scotland is for Labor

Scotland is a great Labor country, and if she had self-government Scotland today would have a Labor government. She elects to the British Parliament seventy-four members as her quota. The November election showed these results:

	Votes	Members
Labor	379,496	29
Conservatives . .	379,496	15
Nat'nal Liberals	285,986	14
Indept. Liberals	325,374	14
Others	77,270	2
		74

The two 'others" are pledged to Socialism and the Labor party, thus giving that party thirty-one members from Scotland.

The Scottish members are the most militant and most radical of the entire Labor party, and it is they usually who kick up all those rows in the Commons. This to me is a queer fact. Every Scotsman but one that I have met appeared to be cool-headed, calm, dispassionate. Yet often it is these same cool-headed men who are most militant in action. Take J. B. MacLaughlan, leader of the radical Nova Scotia miners (and bear in mind that most of those miners are Scotsmen!). He is in person as quiet, unassuming and gentlemanly as,—yes, as Mr. Grimes. In stature he is rather Mr. Grime's size, and in addition he is, like the secretary of our union, low-voiced and very pleasant. (And, by the way, there is a remarkable resemblance between Mr. Grimes and Morris Hillquit, the famous New York lawyer and labor leader.) For all his mildness, Mr. MacLaughlan is out and out a radical and direct-actionist. He is very sincere and his enthusiasm is quite impersonal. I knew him when I worked on the Halifax Herald. I suppose that the Scotsmen in Parliament in Great Britain are the same. Indeed, one of the most militant of those members from the land of the heather is the Rev. Campbell Stephen, a cultural and educated gentleman and a Master of Arts, a Bachelor of Divinity and possessor of other degrees. James Maxton is a Master of Arts, as also is Robert Nichol. They, with Newbold, the only Communist member in Parliament, and G. Buchannan and David Kirkwood, are the "liveliest" members in the historic old House of Commons. I can only conclude that it is their utter earnestness over their duties as representatives of the people that makes them so active and persistent in the Commons.

Significant Consideration for Labor.

Here is an example of the new importance of the Labor party: When Andrew Bonar-Law resigned the Premiership it looked as if Lord Curzon, the aristocratic Foreign Secretary, would be asked by the King to form a new cabinet. Stanley Baldwin was practically a new, and certainly an untried man in politics: while Curzon had served in many capacities, including that of Vice-Roy of India on two terms. But Curzon, it happened,, being a Lord, sat only in the House of Lords, and not in the Commons. And the Labor party, the official Opposition, has no members in the Lords, naturally,—so that if Curzon had become the leader of the government he be faced in the House of Lords by no spokesmen of Labor, the Opposition. So King George wisely chose a man who had a seat in the Commons and could be faced by Labor,—an important concession to the strength of Labor.

King George, as the papers have told, invited James Ramsay MacDonald and other labor members, to dine with himself and the Queen in their home. The Labor men went, enjoyed themselves and reported that the King and

A DOCTOR IN A TIN BOX!

Sounds strange, does it not? Yet that is how Mr. J. Cartier says Zam-Buk is regarded by his family. Mr. Cartier, who is a member of the family of the late Sir George Cartier, is Justice of the Peace and Assistant Clerk of the Circuit Court, Montreal. He first discovered the wonderful power of Zam-Buk by using it for eczema, which it completely ended. Since then his family is never without it.

"Allow me to express my gratitude," he writes, "for the benefit I have derived from the use of Zam-Buk. I have proved that it is, without doubt, the finest remedy for eczema. Its general healing and curative powers are immense. We call it 'Our Family Doctor,' and are never without it."

Mothers should see that Zam-Buk is always handy, for not only does it end pain, draw out inflammation and prevent blood poisoning, but it heals skin diseases and injuries in the shortest time possible. All dealers, 50c. box.

Labor the Coming Power in England

his wife were quite "nice" people. It looked to the average man very much as if the King wanted to get more closely acquainted with the future Prime Minister and cabinet ministers of Great Britain. There was opposition from some quarters of the party to the idea of Labor men visiting royalty. They said that it was unseemly that such functions should be held when there was so much unemployment and suffering in the nation; and furthermore that it did not look good for Labor men to be hobnobbing with kings and queens. The natural reply to this argument was that the Labor party was now the official Opposition in the Commons, and as it was the King's custom to invite leaders of the Opposition to meet him socially, the Labor party had only to follow the custom. Being the alternative government of Great Britain, they should have to recognize the King so long as there was a King. The same stand was taken at the last annual convention of the party, when a resolution favoring the abolition of monarchy was introduced. Reporting for the executive of the party, George Lansbury, himself an avowed republican, retorted that the question of whether Great Britain had a King or a President was not very important, and that there were far more serious problems facing the country. "Let us tackle the great problems of unemployment, housing, foreign affairs, peace, etc.," Mr. Lansbury exclaimed. That was the stand adopted by the convention, and the resolution was dropped. In principle the party is republican; but it is considered that republicanism would be no different from monarchism unless you had a Labor government, and if you had Labor ruling it would make little difference whether you had King or President.

It is eloquently indicative of the quality of the leadership of the party to note that just at the time when there was some grumbling over those visits to the King, Philip Snowden introduced his famous resolution asking the venerable old House of Commons, the historic Mother of Parliaments to go on record as favoring the gradual abolition of capitalism and the inauguration of Socialism. At one blow the party established itself in two ways: in its strict constitutionalism, and in its radicalism.

Being radical constitutionally may be said to represent the policy of the British Labor party.

Here, in figures, is the amazing story of the rise to power of the Labor party. These figures describe a curve which, if it continues, should place the party in the government benches by the next General Elections:

Geddes is Optimistic for the Future of Industria Britain

LONDON, Eng., August 27—(Canadian Press) — Sir Eric Geddes, President of the Federation of British Industries, at the annual meeting recently of its Bradford branch, discussed prospects of a trade revival:

"I am a mild optimist," he said. "So far as I can see, in spite of the handicaps which the aftermath of the war has left us, we are emerging from the bottom of a cycle.

"We, as a great exporting country, are worst hit of all by the present state of affairs in Europe. Our unemployment is caused by that, and I do not think that the working, trading and banking community of the country can too insisently bring before His Majesty's Government the conviction which I feel—and which I believe is generally felt—that the great problems of this country would melt as mist before the sun if a stabilized condition could be brought about in Europe.

"I do not doubt that there is still room for the economy axe in our public services; that there is still room for reduction and curtailment of national and local expenditure, and that also would help trade."

Sir Eric, who was associated with the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Co. before becoming British Minister of Transport, continued:

"The recovery of British railways since the war has been remarked upon in every one of the great countries, and has evoked the admiration of our friends in the United States. The smoothness with which the amalgamations have been carried through has been truly wonderful. The railway position has undoubtedly improved. But while we rightly endeavour to get a reduction in rates, believing that it will not only materially benefi trading, but will in the no very distant future be a benefit to the railway companies, we must recognize their difficulties; organization cannot materialize at once

"It was the hope of all of us who were concerned in the passage of the Railway Act of 1921 that a friendlier and more cordial relationship between traders and railways would result, and if we, as traders and manufacturers, think that the railway companies might well give, as a fair trading risk, a reduction in rates, we must also allow in our own minds for their anxieties and difficulties.

* * *

"We must have reasonably prosperous railways if our business is to prosper. We must have friendly and cordial relationships with the railways if mutual advantage is our aim, and I, speaking personally, would indeed be more disappointed than I can say if the Federation of British Industries and the railway companies find that the good feeling engendered during the passage of the act should fail us.

KILLED BY OVERHEAD.

"In many industries of which I am able to obtain intimate knowledge today, the great difficulty is that we are killed by the weight of overhead charges. The volume of the trade is insufficient to carry the overhead charges in competition with great countries which, like the United States, are producing in volume, and therefore spreading their overhead charges. We have somehow or other got to get the cost of production down if we are going to compete in the markets of the world. There may be industries where wages are unduly high, and there, I agree, great difficulties arise, but there are other industries where wages are not unduly high, but where the standard of output per manhour is unduly low. This is emphasized by the exchange situation in Europe and by the great improvement in efficiency—that is to say, in output per man-hour of the United States.

"In America, since 1921, there has been an all-over improvement of 15 per cent. in the industrial efficiency of the operative. I do not know whether this is because America is dry—because talking from the point of view of industrial workers, America is practically dry, and all we hear about the bootleggers and the ease with which liquor is obtained does not apply generally to the industrials in the States—or whether it is due to a better organization of industry and a higher standard of factory management and efficiency.

"Without optimism and hope, this world would be a poor place, and we should effect little, but, as I see it, the principal cause of cyclical fluctuations in trade—which are very undesirable—is lack of accurate knowledge as to what the world can consume. It would be idealistic to hope that in this imperfect and competitive world we could estimate exactly what we could sell, portioning the demands among the various producers, but I feel sure much can be done by the collation and collection of information by the great trade and industrial organizations, to enable their members to forecast more accurately what the demand will be and what production will be."

His friends find in him a real pal, not swell-headed or sophisticated, and his companionship is sought by all of the other training youngsters. Of the sports enjoyed there, he relishes swimming the best, with baseball next. John is receiving orders from Lieut.-Col. George S. Penney, at the camp.

President Coolidge Writes To Cobbler Friend Of His College Days

COPYRIGHT UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD, N.Y.

James Lucy, who received one of the first letters written by Mr. Coolidge as President of the United States, for 37 years an industrious and highly respected repairer of shoes in Northampton, Mass. His old and sound advice helped Calvin Coolidge take the right path in his days as a college student at Amherst.

Fact And Comment

At the recent Pan-American Conference the delegates of twenty-one republics of the New World approved the proposal to erect a great "Columbus Light" as a monument to the discoverer and pledged their peoples to share in the expense and credit of the undertaking. The favored plan calls for a lighthouse rising above a stately tomb in which the mortal remains of Christopher Columbus shall rest for all time. It is generally agreed that the monument shall be built at Santo Domingo, in Haiti, where Columbus planted his third settlement, the one that took root and lived.

Here's a new kind of union. The mathematicians of Germany have organized to spread abroad the practical and cultural significance or mathematics throughout Germany, where, they say, there are to be observed "unfriendly tendencies" toward mathematics. We have always understood that a good many of the younger students in that study did not feel kindly toward it, but we had not supposed that their influence was strong enough to make a union of schoolmasters necessary to fight it. Perhaps the Germans have become disgusted with mathematics by the daily necessity of figuring up to the third or fourth decimal just how much the mark is worth.

An Osage Indian made rich by oil does nothing but lament his experience: "Hotel heap bunk. Town heap bunk. Whether heap bunk. Grub heap bunk. Everything heap bunk. Injun no like being rich. Oil well good for white man. Heap bunk for Injun. Long time Injun happy. Bime-by oil come. White man he, say, 'Here, take money.' He bring money, money, money. Injun go town, drink booze, play cards. Money too plenty. No can spend him. At last get tired. Buy motor car. Come Wichita, but no happy. Heap grief. Injun like tepee, squaw, papoose, pony, dog. Instead have income tax, oil well, motor car hotel bills. Life heap bunk."

A good human machine should not wear out in seventy years, says Dr. MacCabe, the English army doctor who has written on human life, its enjoyment and prolongation. Over against the opinion of the Psalmist he quotes Genesis vi, 3, "And the Lord said: 'My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh, yet his days shall be a hundred and twenty years.'" Arguing from scientific analogies, Dr. MacCabe points out that most of the higher animals enjoy a life span that is approximately five times their growing period. If man falls short of that, it is mainly owing to some kind of intemperance, he believes. Moderation in all things is his rule of health.

CRITICAL FOOD CONDITIONS IN GERMANY

Since the recent fall of the mark in Germany, procuring food is somewhat akin to wizardy. And to prove this, just go over the following prices for the foods in marks: Bread, 50,000; cabbage, 30,000; eggs, 40,000; 5 lb. of meal, 120,000; cauliflower, 40,000; tomatoes, 40,000; ¼ lb. of coffee, 60,0000; 1 lb. of bologna, 180,000; 2 lbs. of fat, 340,000. No wonder they go to buy groceries with a truck load of money.

Unchanged After Inheriting Thirty Million Dollars

Arthur Walker, Formerly Secretary to Late Edward Searles, Sells New York Globe to Frank Munsey—Tells Reporter He Is Not Club Man and Has No Social Interests.

Interest in Arthur T. Walker, chief beneficiary of the 30 or 40 million-dollar estate of the late Edward F. Searles, has been revived by his recent sale of the New York Globe, a part of the Searles estate, to Frank A. Munsey for 2 million cash.

Walker was confidential secretary toSearles and readily accepted the eccentric scheme of things mapped out by his employer. Searles was a millionaire by reason of beneficent nature which, in his youth, equipped him with handsome features which won for him a wife, the widow of a man, who made his strike in the California gold fields in the days of '49. At her death she left her entire fortune to her husband, many years her junior.

As Searles grew older he developed peculiarities which made it impossible for many of his former employees to remain in his employ. Walker was one of the few who stuck. In those last years of his life, Searles, who owed his fortune to a woman, conceived an undying antipathy to all womankind. Marriage was equivalent to resignation for those in his employ. It suited Walker to remain single.

He became exacting and unreasonable in his demands upon those who worked for him. He lived at Methen, Mass., and it was not unusual for Walker, in New York to receive a telegram: 'I am coming down," with never a hint of when he was coming, or on what train he might be expected. On those occasions, the exemplary Walker would plod to the Central Station, and there remain, patiently meeting every train until his eccentric employer arrived.

So it was that at the death of Searles several years ago, Walker received his reward. Though the fortune has been estimated at between 30 and 40 million dollars, it was by no means an unalloyed blessing. First there were threats of litigation by distant relatives of the millionaire. These settled there still remained various items of property which to the quiet, secretarial Walker, were veritable white elephants. Preeminent among these was the New York Globe.

The Globe was established in 1793 by Noah Webster, and it was a far cry from the lexicographer to the widower of the former widow who had bequeathed it to her survivor, and he to the secretarial Walker. From the time it became assured that Walker would come into possession of the Searles estate, he was beseiged by those who would relieve him of the Globe. One man offered one million dollars cash and notes for one million more, Several others offered 1¾ millions cash each. And then came Mr. Munsey, with his offer of two million dollars cash, and got it.

Mr. Walker has this amount to add to the negotiable securities, with which he is better acquainted than with the intricacies of a newspaper.

HAS SIMPLE TASTES.

A reported for the Brooklyn Eagle talked with Walker recently and here are some of his impressions and some of Mr. Walker's observations, as related in the Eagle.

The swift change in his fortunes has worked no transition in his habits of life. He is, to-day, the same Arthur Walker, modest and different. His simple tastes and quiet ways of life have undergone no transformation. He is to be found at his desk, working just as hard, going through the same routine with the same careful attention to detail that first attracted the attention of his benefactor.

"The estate hasn't been distributed yet," he said. "Only the servants have received their bequests. It takes time to settle the affairs of an estate."

"I have no plans," he went on.

"Have you changed your residence?"

"No, I am still living over on the Heights. I have a farm up on Putman County where I like to go in the summer time."

HE HAS NO HOBBIES.

"Are you fond of farming."

"I am afraid I am not much of a farmer. I haven's yet mastered the art of milking a cow." Mr. Walker did not raise his voice above an undertone and his face flushed readily.

"Do you play golf?" he was asked.

"No. I don't. I have no hobbies of any kind. I can ride a horse, but it is some time since I have been on one.

"I have not changed my method of living any and I don't expect to," he continued. "I am at my office every day at my usual hours, attending to my business just as I have done before. This summer I shall go up to my little farm and spend the time there quietly.

So Arthur Walker, his head unturned by the change in his fortunes, keeps on in the same, simple way, living in his 2-room suite over on the Heights; taking his meals in a boarding house just as he used to do; fond of music and of a few friends with whom he spends evenings in unexciting conversation; caring nothing for dancing or cards or athletes. He said he was not a club man and had no political or colorful social interests.

WALK YOURSELF TO HEALTH, HE SAYS

Our health is steadily being undermined by the artificial conditions of modern life. The air of the towns in which most of us live is exhausted and vitalated. The system becomes congested by sedentary occupation and overfeeding. Far more people die of overfeeding than of starvation. Food is largely faked, and our nerves are set on edge by the constant rush and drive of existence, writes E.B. in the London Daily Main.

Unfortunately, most of us who go to the country take our town habits with us. According to our means we spend a day in the country on bycycle, motor cars, motor-coaches, and omnibuses. Instead of using the natural means of locomotion which Providence has given us, wes it on machines. Besides, we continue to eat town food.

We can most easily rid ourselves of the bad consequences of town life by a return to nature. The finest exercise in the world is walking, if it is done in the right way.

Some years ago I suffered from a severe physical and nervous breakdown. I was at death's door, and I was saved with difficulty by a very expensive cure. Since then I have kept myself in perfect health by week end walks.

As a rule, I start in the morning before breakfast, walk two hours or so at a leisurely pace and then have a plain breakfast of natural food, which I enjoy greatly, for I have earned it. I then take a rest and walk at a comfortable pace for another two or three hours and have a light luncheon and a rest.

During the afternoon I walk a few hours more, rest in the fields, and come back greatly refreshed after fourteen hours or so spent in the open air.

My principle is: Exercise without exertion. Going at the pace most convenient, I cover an average of 20 miles a day and feel as fresh in the evening as I did in the morning, if not fresher. All my meals are taken in the open.

Most people, who go for long country walks, trude along the dusty, petrol-smelling roads, I stick to the quietest lanes and footpaths, which abound even in the neighborhood of London. Thus I enjoy a complete change, I have the best air, the best exercise, and I give my nerves an entire rest. Such a walk set one up for the week.

Occasionally I go for walking tours an ideal way of taking a holiday. Thus I have kept myself in perfect condition for years. After having being constantly in the hands of doctors and chemists I can now do without them.

From The Masthead

By The Lookout.

Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, New York, interviewed in London after three months' tour thru Europe, made the interesting prediction that the League of Nations would eventually grow into a United States of Europe, similar to the United States of America. President Butler made the same prediction in 1915.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

He was not the original prophet first to see a "United States of Europe." he first man to envisage such a federation of nations on the European continent was Joseph Mazzini, the great Italian liberator and humanitarian. Mazzini, perhaps the greatest Republican in Europe, even named the predicted federation, exactly as Thomas Paine was the first to call the United States of America by that name. Mazzini was the greatest revolutionist of his day. Italy is a united nation today because of him.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The federal system is a very fine piece of statecraft. it is built upon the principle of complete local autonomy.

That is to say, each local unit of the whole governs itself, without outside suggestion, in all matters that affect only itself. Matters affecting more than one unit are referered to the next highest unit.

For example: The United States consists of forty-eight separate political and geographical units—forty-eight states. Each state has its own government and governor. First there is the Federal government, then the State governments. But the states are sub-divided into counties, boroughs, etc. There are cities, towns, townships, villages, etc.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Matters affecting a village are handled exclusively by that village. Matters affecting two or more villages in the same caunty are referred to the county. Matters affecting two or more counties in the state are referred to the state. Similarly, a city is divided into boroughs. New York, for instance has five boroughs, and each has a president. The boroughs are again divided into districts.

All local units have complete local authority. The Federal government of America can govern only in matters involving two or more states.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

In addition to this principle, they have another principle—that of checks and balances. This is an arrangement by which it becomes difficult if not impossible for the three branches of of the government to form a dictatorship jointly. The three branches of the government are: the Congress, which consists of the House of Representatives (like our House of Assembly) the Senate (like our Legislative Council, except that the Senators are elected, not appointed) the President, or, in the states the Governor; and the Court.

A state government is a replica of the Federal government, having the same three branches. Each of the forty eight states of America is therefore a miniature of the United States.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

The principle of the whole machinry is this:

All power belongs to and is rooted in the people.

For the convenience of administration the people delage some of their power to elected representatives who simply act on the people's behalf.

The Constitution of each state and of the United States declares definitely, finally and unmistakably just exactly what powers are delegated to the entire legislative force and to each part of it. The Constitution, having stated definitely what such powers are, then to clinch the matter says:

"All other powers not herein specifically mentioned belong to and rest in the people."

* ** *

You see, the framers of the Constitution had had sad experience with autocracy and tyranny. In setting up a government of their own they were profoundly moved by the desire to keep that government from possessing or weilding too much power. For that reason they set about deliberately to define the powers of the Federal and state governments.

❖ ❖ ❖ ❖

Gladstone, the great Prime Minister of England, declared that the American Constitution was the "grandest document struck off by the hand and brain of men at a given time."

Lord Bryce, the great scholar, has written the profoundest study of the American Constitution, and his praise of it is indeed warm and unstinted. It is an interesting point, this, that the best study of the American Constitution has been made by an Englishman.

Grand Master McKay

Mr. W. A. McKay, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the Maritime Provinces, I. O.O. F., who is visiting the lodges in this city, last night was officially received by Atlantic Lodge, No. 1, and accorded a right royal welcome. On entering the lodge he was greeted with the Canadian and Newfoundland anthems, and later the first degree was exemplified in a pleasing manner.

Grand Master McKay, in his address, reported the Order moving steadily and substantially forward there being twenty-four thousand members now in this jurisdiction.

All branches have increased in numbers, gained in material assets, and advanced in the conception of duty. Reports from all sections are inspiring; there being no section within the whole domain in which zealous energy for the cause of Oddfellowship is not being manifested.

The Oddfellows of the North American continent now maintain sixty homes for orphans, aged members and wives of deceased Oddfellows.

Last year's report showed the value of the property to be $8,772,629.88; the cost of maintenance to be $1,288,559.53; and the number of residents 4940. The latest institution is that opened at Pictou, N. S., in July of last year.

This project was pushed most particularly by Past Grand Master Craig who is well known to Oddfellows in Newfoundland, through whose energies $150,000 was raised. The property of the Late Lord Strathcona was purchased and renovated and now is in first class condition. What, perhaps, makes this institution particularly important to Newfoundland Oddfellows, is the fact that the first to enter it were five children from Exploits Lodge, Grand Falls.

The mother and father of the children passed away under peculiarly sad circumstances, and the family, which ordinarily would have been scattered to different homes, by the means of Oddfellowship, have been kept together and will receive the benefit of a good education.

Mr. McKay's address was followed with the closest attention, and in his closing words he urged greater effort, greater enthusiasm, and greater co-operation, so that success might crown the Order's efforts.

Mr. McKay will visit Wabana Ladge, I. O. O. F to-day, and special arrangements are being made for the brethren who will accompany him.

A banquet will be given in the Grand Master's honor on Wednesday evening by the city brethren.

The Girl Guides

The Girl Guide Association has been fortunate enough to secure the service of Miss Bright, a G.G., Commissioner in England. She has kindly promised to hold a training course for Commissioners and Guides in October, and a meeting will be held at the new G.G. Headquarters, Small wood Building, Duckworth St., on Tuesday, Sept. 18th, at 5.30 when the programme will be arranged.

Motors Collide on Salmonier Road

On Saturday afternoon two motor cars, owned by Messrs. Sinnott of Placentia and J. Mullowney of Holyrood, collided on the Salmonier Line. The collision ccurred at a narrow portion of the road and the impact was so great that Mullowney's car was very much damaged, while Sinnott's was also badly battered. It is likely that action for damages will be the result of the collision.

The repairs to the Portuguese cruiser Carvalhoe Araugo, now on dock are proceeding and a large staff of men are employed. Quite a number of new plates are being put on, and the damaged stem and part of the keel is being replaced. The work will take about two weeks, after which the damaged steamer Roxburgh will go on.

Jewish New Year

The Jewish business places in the city are closed for to-day and to-morrow in observance of the New Year which festival began at sundown yesterday.

The feast day is being appropriately observed by the Jewish fraternity in religious and other ceremonies.

The Current Price of Scripts

A medico sued a citizen in the Central District Court this morning for a balance due for professional services. The defendant repudiated the bill. He said the only services he could remember the bill covered was a charge of $3.00 as a balance due on 'scripts.' He got scripts at different times for which he paid $1.00 each. In answer to a question from the court the defendant said he understood $1.00 to be the current price of scripts. It is a moot question whether the script is worth $1.00 or $2.00, or nothing, it all depends on the condition of the patient and his ability to pay. The doctor says the bill is not for scripts and promised to produce his book on the next court day for civil business.

Portguese Sailor Dies at General Hospital

Ajusta Joe Berie, who with five of his shipmates was seriously injured when the Portuguese cruiser Carvalhoe Araujo went ashore near La Manche ten days ago, having both his legs broken, died at the General Hospital Sunday. Both his legs were amputated at the institution, and despite the best medical skill and care, he failed to rally. He was 36 years of age, and has a wife and four children living in Portugal. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, with military honours, officers and crew attending, and a firing squad from the ship were also present. Interment took place at Mount Carmel cemetery.

Furness Boat Has Big Liquor Shipment

The Furness liner Wigmore, bringing 30,000 cases of whiskey is due at St. Pierre to-morrow from Glasgow. This is one of the biggestc argoes to arrive in the French Colony, and apparently the great demand is still keeping up as within the past month some 50,000 cases have been landed there from two steamers, while sailing craft are continually arriving with smaller cargoes.

SHIPPING NOTES

The s.s. Yankton is due on Thursday from Boston with a full general cargo.

The Danish schr. Eva arrived at Carbonear yesterday, 35 days from Cadiz, salt laden, for orders.

S.S. Canada, from Cherborg, 16 days, with whisky cargo, is in port. Furness Withy & Co. are the ship's agents.

Schr. Vera B. arrived at Gaultois yesterday from Sydney with 75 tons coal.

Liquor Carrier In For Coal

The S.S. Canada, bound from Cherbourg, France, for Nassau, with a full cargo of liquor, arrived here yesterday afternoon. The ship met very stormy weather on the passage out and was forced to put in here for coal and supplies. The ship, which was formerly a trawler, was built in 1886 and is a small vessel to cross the Atlantic, being only 231 tons gross, and is owned by parties in Newcastle on Tyne. The ship it is understood was to call at St. Pierre enroute, but it is quite possible she will take her clearance from this port where the duty is about $1.75 gallon as against $2.00 in St. Pierre. The Canada will take on board her coal and supplies and will sail during the day.

ATHLETES WERE ILL ON TRIP TO HALIFAX

Lost Weight and Are Not Yet Fit For Work.

The following message has been received by Secretary P. J. Grace, of the A. A. A., from Stan Cullen, manager for Newfoundland's representatives in the Halifax sports meet.

"Team very sick on way up. Bell lost 4 pounds, Burnell lost 2 pounds, and O'Toole 2 pounds. They are not fit for hard work yet. There are 11 entries for 5 mile race; McCauley, McLellan and Ladrieire are favorites. Six entries for one mile walk, Sawler being favorite. We are getting splendid help from the Wanderers Club."

O'TOOLE—BELL—BURNELL

The Silvia bore our lads away
To Halifax, to race, sir,
And each of them went, feeling gay,
And wore a smiling face, sir.
There's Bell, who won two years ago,
Once more he'll try his skill, sir,
And all agree that Jack, you know,
Has got our right good will, sir.

And then, there's gallant Ron O'Toole,
What shall I say of him, sir?
A pupil of Stan Cullen's school,
With lots of pep and vim, sir.
In Ron we surely send our best,
He's sturdy, strong and true, sir.
Ronald hails from St. John's West,
Where many a fine man grew, sir.

Grant Burnell, "he's up to the scratch,"
With Dan O'Leary's style, sir;
He's goin' in for the walking match;
The distance is one mile, sir.
We hope he'll put the kibosh on
The fastest men they'll show, sir.
Good luck attend, Grant, Jack and Ron;
They're all brave chaps, we know sir.

Feildians and Guards Tie In Tie-Cup Series

The Feildians and Guards opened the tie-cup series last evening with a draw, both teams scoring two goal. The weather was ideal from the spectator's standpoint, but the high wind made shooting very difficult for the players. The Guards were short of a couple of their regular players, and winning the toss, decided to play with the wind. Right at the start the Guards pressed matters, and Rose had an open goal, but his shot went wide, Macklin also lost a good opportunity during the opening minutes. Play was fairly good for the next fifteen minutes, when Feildians putting up a strong defence, while at times they worked into the Guards' territory, Goldstone and Ewing showing up well. Quick and Macklin sent home difficult shots which Voisey cleared. Nearly twenty-five minutes of play had passed when Rose shot a beauty which Voisey cleared, but the wind drove it back towards the goal, when Ron Chafe connected and made what was believed to be a good save. Referee Quick, however, held the ball was over the line and gave a goal. A couple of minutes later Macklin in a scrimmage got the second goal for the Guards who changed ends with a two goal lead.

The Feildians now had the benefit of the wind, and kept the ball almost continually in Guards territory. Shots rained on Maddock, who played a star game and saved his team on many occasions. It looked as if fate was against the College team, while their shooting went wide of the mark. With only ten minutes left for full time, a penalty was awarded against Quick and being placed by Ewing, a goal resulted. The Fieldians redoubled their efforts and the Guards defence was kept busy, and many dangerous situations were cleared up. With but a couple of minutes left, Eric Chafe, from a long wing shot, sent the equalizer, and for the balance of time play was fast, and both teams put up a good game, but there was no change in the score, which ended Guards 2, Feildians 2.

The game will be played at the conclusion of the first round, though it is understood the Feildians are protesting against the referee's decision on the Guards first goal.

First Business College Opens

The United Business College of Newfoundland opened yesterday in the Victoria Hall, with an address by the Principal, Mr. P. G. Butler, B.C.S., M.C.S., showing the great value of Commercial Education to Newfoundland in equipping students to become proficient as stenographers, typists, book-keepers, sales-people and clerical helpers for the business firms of the country.

This training opens up a successful career to each student, affording the advantage of specializing in this line of work.

He asked the candid consideration of these advantages for all those who desired to lay a substantial foundation for business success.

Through a thorough course of instruction the aim would be to develop the business capacities of the students, thus rendering valuable service to the whole community.

There are in this country many young people of Preliminary and Intermediate standard who cannot afford two years in Intermediate and two years in Associate before arriving at the earning stage; and here they have an opportunity of qualifying in the Intermediate standard and specializing in professianal business life where the best paying positions are offering.

Opportunities will also be presented to those already employed so that by co-operation, which the word "United" implies, much good will accrue to the city, and the work of the school become appreciated.

What can be better than training that will mean promotion and better positions for student and worker?

The courses afforded, both in day and the evening classes, are commercial and technical, viz., Accounting, Secretarial, Salesmanship, English, Office Procedure, Speed Shorthand, Touch Typewriting, Business Correspondence, Millinery, Dressmaking, etc.

The greatest advantage of all is that the staff of teachers have been properly trained for their work.

Miss Freeman, of the stenographic department, is well-known as a capable and gifted teacher and specialist, while all the teachers are experienced and efficient.

The whole object is to supply a special advance training in commerce needed in this city and to supplement the general educational efforts of the public schools of the country.

Mr. D. J. Burke, of the firm of D. JJ. & T. Burke, St. Jacques, is at present in the city on his semi-annual business visit and is a guest at the Balsom.

Degenerate Gets Six Months

The case against the man Davenport for a grossly indecent act, came before Judge Morris yesterday afternoon. Mr. George Ross who reported the matter to the police, and the young lads, Kelly, March, Murray and Coady, who were with the accused, were examined. It appears Davenport on Sunday week arranged with the lads to go to the White Hills on a picnic. His first plan was to make the boys drunk, which he did. Asked by the Judge if he had anything to say in his defence, Davenport said the League of Nations had agreed that no more secrets were to be kept and pleaded guilty to the charge. He told the court on being questioned by Judge Morris that he was an American, and came from Philadelphia, that he arrived here on May 26th, and during his stay here boarded the greater part of the time at the Institute. He further stated that he was a railroad man by trade but had not worked since coming here. Judge Morris then sentenced the accused to six months with hard labour.

This character is not fit to be at large, and the police will see that he leaves Newfoundland as soon as his sentence is completed. Another striking case where this country needs a deportation law similar to those of Canada and the United States. This man has been the subject of comment by hundreds of citizens who noticed him meandering about the city, but no notice was taken of him. While claiming the United States as his home, he appears to have no settled abode. Anyway, he is a most undesirable character, and it is a pity that even the St. John's penitentiary should be saddled with his upkeep for six months.

News of The Fisheries

Latest fishery news received by the Board of Trade from the various districts show but little improvement since last report.

Sub-Collector Jos. White say that from Colinet Island to Head of Salmonier only 800 qtls. have been landed to date. There was a good sign of fish last week but no bait is obtainable.

From Point Armour to Red Bay in the Straits the total landed is 800 quintals. Trapping is over, and the fishery is a failure. Last week when boats were able to get out they got from two to three quintals. The total landed at Channel and Port aux Basques is 1025 quintals, with 25 quintals for last week. Twelve boats are engaged and the prospects are not bright.

From Blanc Sablon to Greenly island and Forteau 1000 quintals were landed last week and the catch in this section is 7,700 quintals.

Sub-Collector Butt reports prospects fair, boats getting from 2 to 6 quintals, daily, while one trap had 25 quintals, which is remarkable for this time of the year.

From Herring Neck to Cobb's Arm the catch to date is 1000 qtls., with 200 for last week. The outlook is a little brighter, and sufficient squid is available.

CHANGE ISLANDS TO HARE BAY.

The catch to date is 6,300, which includes the catches landed by six schooners which arrived last week, amounting to 3,200 qtls. The weather has been stormy for boats to operate.

From Great Harbor, Fortune Bay to Coomb's Cove, Bay de Leau, the catch to date is 10,830 quintals with 300 qtls. landed last week. The prospects are good but squid scarce.

The boat Minnie B. which arrived at Lamaline last week with 110 qtls. of fish reports fish plentiful on the grounds, but bait scarce.

Captain Charlie Peckford, in the schooner Humber Deal, has arrived at Port Union with 1100 quintals of fish for discharge. Captain Peckford has had a very successful fishery this season, and is to be congratulated.

Trotsky Is Reported As Assassinated

LONDON, Sept. 11—A Central news despatch from Berlin says it is reported from Moscow that Leon Trotsky, Russian Soviet Minister, has been assassinated. No details are given, and there is no confirmation of the report.

Outbreaks In Tokio

LONDON, Sept. 11—Typhoid and dysentry have broken out in Tokio, and there is a great need for medical supples, say a despatch to The Daily Express, dated Sunday.

Distressing scenes are being witnessed daily as foreigners and Japanese continue the search of the ruins for relatives.

Many bodies are still lying in the streets.

Italy Will Annex Fiume

Jugo-Slavia Will Make No Protest

PARIS, Sept. 11—It is understood from information gathered in reliable sources, that Premier Mussolini will proclaim the annexation of Fiume to Italy within a week.

The government of Jugo-Slavia is reported as being aware of Mussolini's intention, and is intending to make no serious protest, providing Porto Barros and Sussak, adjacent, are not directly affected.

GENEVA, Sept. 11—The Jugo-Slavia minister declared in a statement to-day, that his government had no intention of submitting to the League of Nations its differences with Italy over the Fiume question.

News of Settlement Was Received Quietly

CORFU, Sept. 11—News that both Greece and Italy had accepted the proposals made by the inter-aliec council of ambassadors for settlement of the Greco-Italian dispute was received quietly here, and there was no demonstration.

There is a tendency among the Italian authorities to wonder how longthe occupation will continue. Some hazard the opinion that evacuation will take place immediately and the forces will be out in fifteen days.

Others expect it will take a month or two for Italy to withdraw.

Negotiations May Lead To Settlement

PARIS, Sept. 11 — Conversations that are taking place between Jacquin de Margerie, French Ambassador to Germany, and Chancellor Stresemann in Berlin, are considered by the French government as leading toward a settlement of the reparations question, although it is stated that the Chancellor has not yet made a definite offer either respecting the cessation of resistance in the Ruhr or what could be proposed afterwards.

The conferences between M. de Margerie and Chancellor Stresemann will be continued, and any propositions received by France from Chancellor Stresemann will be communicated immediately to the British and other allied governments.

Will Retain Harvesters as Settlers

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11—An organized effort to retain in Canada as permanent settlers, eleven thousand British harvesters, brought to Canada, will be made at a widely represented conference to be held at Saskatoon on September 20th, under the auspices of the Canadian Colonization Association, it was announced last night.

Refugees Suicided In Japan

OSAKA, Sept. 11—An Eastern News despatch to The Osaka Asahi from Tokio, says that many of the hundreds of refugees gathered in Ueno Park in Tokio, have committed suicide as ar esult of hunger and exposure.

Most of the refugees are exhausted and only a few are able to walk, and these are fleeing to Nippori, where tens of thousands of other refugees are collected.

A large number of women and children are reported to be lying helpless near Nippori railway station, unable to continue the flight.

70,000 Dead Are Counted

Toll of Disaster Mounts In Quake Centre.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11—The dead counted by the Japanese authorities up to September 7th, numbered forty-seven thousand in Tokio and twenty-three thousand in Yokohama, the foreign office in Tokio reported to-night to the Japanese Embassy.

The message said that one hundred and fifty foreigners died in the quake.

Steamer Reaches Land on Fire

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 11—Fire in the hold of the steamer American was still raging when that vessel arrived here to-night for refuge while on a voyage from Baltimore to Frisco.

A quarter of a million dollars damage had been done to the ship and cargo, and thirty firemen were overcome.

The s.s. Susu, Capt. Roberts, sailed on the Fogo mail service at 10 a.m. yesterday, taking the folloing passengers: W. Squires, H. Payne, D. A. Saunders, Capt. A. Kean, M. Elliott, G. F. Grimes, Misses Harvey and Dyke

Mr. J. M. Curran of Gambo is in the city on a business trip and is registered at the Crosbie.

Mr. J. T. Lawton of Bell Island registered at the Crosbie this morning.

Wheat Crop Movement Is Causing Anxiety

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11—With the advent of a heavy crop movement from the prairies, and the refusal of the United States vessel owners to engage in the Canadian carrying trade under the new Lakes Freight Act, the terms of which require them to file tariffs, all the Canadian boats on the Great Lakes were ordered by telegraph to report at Fort William or Port Arthur next week to engage in carrying the 1923 crop to the eastern terminals, it is reported here today.

The situation is causing considerable anxiety on the part of local shippers, and an endeavour will be made to get the government to moderate the Act so that the United Staes vesthe Act so that the United States vessels can handle about a million bushels will arrive daily at the head of the Lake's elevators.

POLICE COURT

An ordinary drunk was discharged.

A laborer who took several tins of tobacco from the broken cargo of a Red Cross boat was fined $10.00. Judge Morris pointed out that in cases like the present the Company might prevent pilfering if they maintained a rigid inspection, at New York harbor and other ports. A responsible man should see that the cargo was intact when leaving the last port of call and was in like condition when bulk was broken in St. John's. The accused in the present case was represented by Mr. Higgins, K.C.

Forty-one big printing plants in Berlin do nothing but print money night and day, seven days in the week. In the first week in July the incredible amount of nearly three trillion marks was added to the paper currency. Nothing smaller than a thousand-mark note is printed now, for it costs more to print a note of a smaller denomination than the note itself is worth when printed. The situation is so absurd as to be almost incredible.

Poultry Lecture at Mount Cashel

Last night at 8 o'clock the Nfld. Poultry Association held its ninth lecture at Mount Cashel. The deputation included President R. G. Williams, Vice. Pres. Dr. Arch Tait, Treasurer, W. R. Butler; Serge.-Major Dewling, M. M., and Judge Lynch.

The lecture occupied two hours and was ilustrated by over two hundred views of the various poultry houses, incubators and other appliances.

Views were also shown of the results of the Association's work at Grand Falls and White Bay, and local poultrymen's yards.

The music was furnished by the thirty-five boys of the Mount Cashel Band, under Cautain Arthur Bulley. The music was delightful, and contributed largely to making the lecture a success.

Rev. Bro. Ennis was chairman, and welcomed the deputation thanking them for their kind interest in giving the boys a pleasant evening, and an insight into the proper methods of producing poultry and eggs.

Besides the boys of the institution, many outsiders were present, and all were keenly interested.

OBITUARY

KINDRED OF THE DUST

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XXIII.

It seemed to him that in old Hector he noted dweep signs of deep mental perturbation. Also, he told himself, he detected more shades than lights in Donald's usually pleasant features; so, knowing full well that which he knew and which neither The Laird nor Donald suspected him of knowing, to wit: that a declaration of love had been made between Nan Brent and the heir to the Tyee millions, Mr. Daney came to the conclusion, one evening, about a week after old Caleb's funeral, that something had to be done—and done quickly—to avert the scandal which impended. To his way of reasoning, however, it appeared that nothing along this line was possible of accomplishment while Nan Brent remained in Port Agnew; so Mr. Daney brought to play all of his considerable intelligence upon the problem of inducing her to leave.

Now, to render Port Agnew untenable for Nan, thus forcing her to retreat, was a task which Mr. Daney dismissed not only as unworthy of him, but also as impossible. As a director of the Bank of Port Agnew, he had little difficulty in ascertaining that Caleb Brent's savings account had been exhausted; also, he realized that the chartering of Caleb Brent's motor boat, Brutus, to tow the garbage to sea and return, had merely been Donald's excuse to be kind to the Brents without hurting their gentle pride. To cancel the charter of the Brutus now would force Nan to leave Port Agnew in order to support herself, for Daney could see to it that no one in Port Agnew employed her, even had any one in Port Agnew dared to run such a risk. Also, the Tyee Lumber Company might bluff her out of the possession of the Sawdust Pile. However, Donald would have to be reckoned with in either case, and Mr. Daney was not anxious to have the weight of his young master's anger fall on his guilty head. He saw, therefore, that some indirect means must be employed.

Now, Mr. Daney wisely held, in contradiction to any number of people not quite so hard-headed as he, that absence does not tend to make the heart grow fonder—particularly if sufficient hard work and worrk can be supplied to prevent either party to the separation thinking too long or too intensely of the absentee. Within a decent period following Nan's hoped-for departure from Port Agnew, Mr. Daney planned to impress upon The Laird the desirability of a trip to the Orient, while he, Daney, upon the orders of a nerve specialist, took a long sea voyage. Immediately the entire burden of seeing that the Tyee Lumber Company functioned smoothly and profitably would fall upon Donald's young and somewhat inexperienced shoulders. In the meantime, what with The Laird's money and the employment of a third party or parties, it would be no trick at all to induce Nan Brent to move so far from Port Agnew that Donald could not, in justice to his business interests, desert those interests in order to pay his court to her.

"Dog my cats!" Mr. Daney murmured, at the end of a long period of perplexity. "I have to force the girl out of Port Agnew, and I can never do so while that motor boat continues to pay her eighty dollars a month. She cannot exist on eighty dollars a month elsewhere, but she can manage very nicely on it here. And yet, even with that confounded charter cancelled, we're stuck with the girl. She cannot leave Port Agnew without sufficient funds to carry her thru for a while, and she'd die before she would accept the gift of a penny from anybody in Port Agnew, particularly the McKayes. Even a loan from The Laird would be constructed as a roundabout way of buying her off."

Mr. Daney pondered his problem until he was almost tempted to butt his poor head against the office wall, goat-fashion, in an attempt to stimulate some new ideas worth while. Nevertheless, one night he wakened from a sound sleep and found himself sitting up in bed, the possessor of a plan so flawless that, in sheer amazement, he announced aloud that he would be jiggered. Some cunning little emmissary of the devil must have crept in through his ear while he slept and planted the brilliant idea in Mr. Daney's brain.

Eventually, Mr. Daney lay down again. But he could not go to sleep; so he turned on the electric bedside lamp and looked at his watch.

It was midnight no living creature, save possibly and adventurous or amourous cat, moved in Port Agnew. So he dresed and crept forth into the night. Ten minutes later, he was down at the municipal garbage-barge, moored at the bulkhead of piles along the bank of the Skookum.

He ventured to strike a match. The gunwale of the barge was slightly below the level of the bulkhead; so Mr. Daney realized that the tide had turned and was at the ebb—otherwise, the gunwale would have been on a level with the bulkheads. He stepped down on the barge, made his way aft to the Brutus, moored astern, and boarded the little vessel. He struck another match and looked into the cabin to make certain that no member of the barge-crew slept there. Finding no one, he went into the engine room and opened the seacock. Then he lifted up a floor board and looked into the bilge. He saw that the water therein was rising, and murmured,

"Bully— by heck!"

He clambered hastily aboard the barge, cast off the mooring lines of the Brutus, and with a boat hook, gave her a shove which carried her out into the middle of the river. She went bobbing away gently on the ebb-tide, bound for the deep water, out in the Bight of Tyee where, when she settled, she would be hidden forever and not be a menace to navigation. Mr. Daney watched her until she disappeared in the dim starlight before returning to his home and so, like Mr. Pepys, to bed, where he had the first real sleep in weeks. He realized this in the morning and marveled at it, for the had always regarded himself as a man of tender conscience and absolutely incapable of committig a maritime crime. Nevertheless, he whistled and wore a red carnation in his lapel as he departed for the mill office.

CHAPTER XXIV.

FOLLOWING THE interview with his father, subsequent to Caleb Brent's funeral, Donald McKaye realized full well that his love affair, hitherto indefinite as to outcome, had crystallized into a definite issue. For him, there could be no evasion or equivocation; he had to choose, promptly and for all time, between his family and Nan Brent—between respectability, honor, wealth, and approbation on one hand, and pity, contempt, censure, and poverty on the other. Confronting this impasse, he was too racked with torture to face his people that night and run the gauntlet of his mother's sad, reproachful glances, his father's silence, so eloquent of mental distress, and the studied scorn, amazement, and contempt in the very attitudes of his selfish and convention-bound sisters. So he ate his dinner at the hotel in Port Agnew, and after dinner, his bruised heart took command of his feet and marched him to the Sawdust Pile.

The nurse he had sent down from the Tyee Lumber Company's hospital to keep Nan company until after the funeral had returned to the hospital, and Nan, with her boy asleep in her lap, was seated in a low rocker before the driftwood fire when Donald entered unannounced save for his old-time triple-tap at the door. At first glance it was evident to him that the brave reserve which Nan had maintained at the funeral had given way to abundant tears when she found herself alone at home, screened from the gaze of the curious.

He knelt and took both outcasts in his great strong arms, and for a long time held them in a silence more eloquent than words.

"Well, my dear," she said presently, "aren't you going to tell me all about it?"

That was the woman of it. She knew.

"I'm terribly unhappy," he replied. "Dad and I had a definite show-down after the funeral. His order—not request—is that I shall not call here again."

"Your father is thinking with his head; so he thinks clearly. You, poor dear, are thinking with your heart controlling your head. Of course, you'll obey your father. You cannot consider doing anything else."

"I'm not going to give you up," he asserted doggedly.

"Yes; you are going to give me up, dear heart," she replied evenly. "Because I'm going to give you up, and you're much too fine to make it hard for me to do that."

"I'll not risk your contempt for my weakness. It would be a weakness—a contemptible trick—if I should desert you now."

"Your family has a great claim on you, Donald. You were born to a certain destiny—to be a leader of men, to develop your little world, and to make of it a happier place for men and women to dwell in. So, dear love you're just going to buck up and take up your big life-task and perform it like the gentleman you are."

"But what is to become of you?" he demanded, in desperation.

"I do not know. It is a problem I am not going to consider very seriously for at least a month. Of course I shall leave Port Agnew, but before I do, I shall have to make some clothes for baby and myself."

"I told father I would give him a definite answer to-night. You have not the right to make him suffer so," she pleaded.

LABOR THE COMING POWER IN ENGLAND

The Story of the Amazing Rise of the Workers' Movement in the British Isles

Article 2

BRILLIANT PERSONALITIES.

By J. R. SMALLWOOD.

Definitely, there is not in the world a political organization that has attracted to it so many personalities of such color and brilliance as has the British Labor party.

Some of the greatest minds in Great Britain today are Labor members in Parliament, or have been candidates for such membership, or are staunch supporters of the party and movement.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing of all about this feature of the Labor party is the number of intellectuals it has won to its cause. The organizers of the party planned well. They built so that when the time came they should be in the position to assume the reins of government. They sought to foresee everything and be prepared. The endeavored to prevent the party from retrograding into a party of bare-armed labor alone. While the mass membership of the party is and must necessarily remain bare-armed labor, the party must be given color and tone and flash by including every class of life and thought.

The British Labor party is therefore a perfect cross-section of English society today. There is no class of British society un-represented in its ranks. From bare-armed labor up to royalty—or, at any rate, semi-royalty—society is represented in its membership.

Workers of brawn and brain are there. Miners, railway men, longshoremen, industrial and factory workers, engineers, clerks, all unclassified workers by hand; writers, authors, journalists, dramatists, poets, artists, publicists; professors, teachers, lecturers; soldiers, economists, sociologists; philosophers, clergymen, doctors and lawyers; men and women, commoner and noble: workers of hand and brain, all are in the British labor party by representation.

Writers and Publicists.

Take writers, for instance. George Bernard Shaw, probably the world's greatest living playwright, is a member and warm supporter by word and pen. H. G. Wells, the world-famed novelist and sociological writer, is a member and has been a candidate for the party. John Galsworthy, one of the five or six greatest living novelists, is a member. Edward Carpenter is one. Brougham Villiers is one. So is J. C. Squire, famous critic and poet, and editor of London Mercury. J. C. Welsh, "the miners poet," is a Labor member in the Commons.

When you come to journalists and publicists you meet with a distinguished gathering of famous men. There is G. Lowee Dickinson; H. W. Massingham, for years editor of The Nation, and famous as one of England's leading liberalists; H. N. Brailsford, now editor of The New Leader; R. W. Postgate; M. Phillips Price, famous correspondent; Graham Wallace, professor of Political Science in the University of London, and a famous sociological writer, G. H. D. Cole, M.A., Fellow of Magdalen College, Oxford, and author of many books; Henry M. Nevinson; G. Roden Buxton, traveller and writer and ex-Cambridge man, whose grandfather was one of the famous emancipators of the slaves; Noel Buxton, equally known writer; R. H. Tawney, sociological writer and author of "The Acquisitive Society"; Charles Trevelyan, nephew of Lord Macaulay and formerly Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education, which notable position he resigned in disgust over secret diplomacy; Arthur Ponsonby, who, born in the Court of Queen Victoria and that monarch's Page of Honor, later became private secretary to Sir H. Campbell-Bannerman, then Prime Minister of Great Britain, but resigned from the Liberal party to join the Labor party, to the great disgust of his family, one of whom, Sir Frederick Ponsonby, is to-day private secretary to King George; E. D. Morel, famous in England as anti-militarist and opponent of secret diplomacy, the world-famous as the author of the sensational expose of Belgian atrocities in the Congo some years ago: Mr. Morel defeated Winston Churchill in Dundee in the last General Election, a striking vindication for him, who had been imprisoned during the war by that same Churchill; Prof. Raymond Beazley, D. Litt., F.R.G.S.; Philip Snowden, one of the greatest orators in England, author of many books on Socialism and one of the principal leaders of the party; A. G. Gardiner, for years editor of the London Daily News, the famous paper founded by Charles Dickens—Mr. Gardiner recently joined the party; F. W. Pethic Lawrence; J. Ramsay MacDonald, author, lecturer and the greatest debater in the House of Commons; and Norman Angell, author of the famous "The Great Illusion," and "The Fruits of Victory."

Economists.

Take economists: John A. Hobson, one of the greatest economists in the world and author of "The Industrial System," is a labor supporter; Sir Leo Chiozza Money, one of the most famous of England's economists and statisticians is a Laborite. Sidney Webb, probably the greatest intellectual connected with the labor movement and probably the greatest economist and sociologist in the world is chairman of the Independent Labor party, the Socialist wing of the B. L. P. His famous wife Beatrice Webb, co-author with him of several books, is a Laborite.

Among the philosophers we have the Honorable Betrand Russell, grandson of Lord John Russell, twice Prime Minister of Great Britain. Many think Mr. Russell the greatest living philosopher.

Soldiers and Clergymen!

There is a surprising representation of soldiers in the Labor party, either inside the Commons or out. Goodness knows how many ordinary captains and lieutenants there are—I can give a list of the outstanding ones. There is Col. Josiah C. Wedgewood, D.S.O., D.L., vice-chairman of the I. L. P. Col. Wedgewood, who is a member of the famous pottery family of that name, was for years a Liberal in the Commons, but joined the Labor party. He had a distinguished career in the war, and saw enough of warfare at first hand to become an anti-militarist. I met Wedgewood when he was in New York last winter on a lecture tour. There is also Brig.-General C. B. Thompson, D.S.O. There is Col. D. Watts Morgan, C.B.E., D.S.C. Then there is Col. Lynch, also in the Commons. Others are: Col. J. Ward, Capt. R. Jones, Major E. N. Bennett, Capt. E. Gill, Capt. C. W. Kendell, Major A. E. Trestrail, Major D. W. Morgan, D.S.O., and Captains James O'Grady, L. H. Guest, D. D. Sheehan, A. Amith, etc.

Or, to take the opposite case: clergymen. There is a large representation of clergymen from all parties. Among those elected or otherwise are: Rev. H. Dunnico, Rev. D. Fraser, Rev. W. E. Moll, Rev. T. R. Williams, Rev. J. A. Shaw, Rev. Campbell Stephen, Rev. S. Morgan, Rev. H. Morgan, Rev. H. Chalmers, Rev. G. S. Woods.

Titled and All

Sir Sydney Oliver and the Countess of Berwick are two of the titled people associated with the party. Sir Sidney Oliver, who was Governor of Jamaica, is a Socialist of long standing, having been a member of the famous Fabian Society for years. Lady Berwick, who also has been a Socialist for years (she is really the heroine of Bernard Shaw's novel, "The Socialist Countess" is of the old Berwick family. Recently she turned over to the Labor party for week-end meetings, etc., her famous country home. This home has been in the possession of her family for over 300 years, and it and its gardens were a favorite rendezvous of the late King Edward. Now labor leaders spend week-ends there.

Dr. A. Salter, Dr. G. B. Clark, Dr. P. MacDonald, Dr. J. H. Williams and Dr. Ambrose are some of the more prominent medical men in the party. Dr. Salter has high academic qualifications as a medical man.

Patrick Hastings, K.C., and G. G. Hemmerde, K.C., are two of the more notable legal men in the party. Hastings, who now sits on the front bench of the House of Commons, was counsel for the London Morning Post in its recent sensational court case with Lord Russell, who made such serious charges against Winston Churchill, Arthur Balfour, etc. Mr. Hastings will be England's Attorney General in the Labor government. Mr. Hemmerde is a well-known athlete and playwright, being author of several plays.

Many Lecturers and Professions.

Of lecturers, university and college professors and teachers there is a high percentage in the Labor movement. Many have come out openly as Laborites, while there are hundreds in fashionable universities and colleges who, while they are Socialists and Laborites, dare not admit it so openly. Be assured, however, that they are not neglecting their opportunity to make Labor converts! Here are some of the more prominent ones:

Prof. H. B. Lees-Smith, M.P., M.A., who was co-founder of Ruskin College, Oxford; C. R. Attlee, M.P., M.A., a barrister and university lecturer; Prof. R. Richards, M.P., who was professor of chemistry at Harvard University, U.S.A., the president of many scientific societies, a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and author of over 400 papers on chemical and physical subjects; H. Sanderson Furniss, M.A.; E. Cannan, M.A., LL.D.; A. E. Zimmern, M.A.; M. Phillips, D.Sc.; A. C. Pigon (Econ.); Morgan Jones, Arthur Greenwood, former lecturer in economics in the University of Leeds; J. Primrose Hay, M.A., B.Sc., lecturer in mathematics; J. Maxton, M.A.; C. Stephen, M.A., B.D., B.C.; William Graham, M.A., LL.D.; and Robert Nichol, M.A.

Privy Councillors.

Among the men who are Privy Councillors are: Rt. Hon. J. R. Clynes, former Food Controller of Great Britain; Rt. Hon. W. Adamson; Rt. Hon. C. W. Bowerman; Rt. Hon. Arthur Henderson; Rt. Hon. John Hodge.

The outstanding leaders are "Bob" Smillie, Jack Jones, Harry Gosling, Arthur Henderson, J. R. Clynes, Will Thorne, etc.

The leaders of the British Labor party are: MacDonald, Webb, Snowden, Clynes, Henderson, Ben Spoor, Ben Turner, T. W. Jowett, C. G. Ammon, Gosling, Smillie, Thomas, Thorne, Ponsonby, Morel, Maxton.

Among the Liberals who have quit the Liberal party to join one what more meets their ideal of democracy and social justice and progress are: H. N. Brailsford, Graham Wallace, Hobson, the Buxtons, Arthur Greenswood, Trevelyan, Wedgewood, Ponsonby, Lees-Smith, Arch G. Gardner, and Hamilton Fyfe, for years editor of Lord Northcliffe's "Daily Mail," and now editor of labor's "Daily Herald." Mr. Fyfe is a brilliant novelist.

The past, too, has given the movement its great men and noble souls: John Ruskin, William Morris, Burne-Jones, Robert Owen, Rev. Charles Kingsley, Rev. F. D. Maurice, H. M. Hyndman, John Stuart Mill, Thomas Carlyle and, above all, J. Kier Hardie, founder of the party.

Is it any wonder that with such background the British Labor party is the most brilliant and most wisely-manoeuvred party in Great Britain?

Composer's Son May Visit United States

KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

It has been reported that Siegfried Wagner, son of the famous Richard Wagner, is now in Berlin ready to sign a contract to conduct operas on an American tour embracing more than a score of cities. Wagner would conduct local orchestras in his father's compositions and it is hoped that he would induce opera companies and orchestras to pay royalties on Richard Wagner's works, which would help his widow, who is nearly ninety years old. The proceeds would also cover and make possible the festivals of Bayreuth, which have been suspended for lack of funds.

Pain

We are not to seek pain; but when it is sent to us we are not to fret and grumble at it, but try to go cheerfully along, as though we did not feel it. It is for our good, our purification; for nothing is so purifying as pain if it be rightly borne.

—H. W. Beecher.

A special committee of the Institute of Economics, appointed to investigate the actual financial situation in Germany, has reported that property amounting to almost five billion dollars has already passed from Germany to the Allies, and that the Germans are not in a position to make substantial payments unless the restrictions on trade are so modified that the Germans can earn through foreign commerce the kind of money that the Allies will accept.

98 OUT OF EVERY 100 WOMEN BENEFITED

An Absolutely Reliable Statement Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. 50,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

Its reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario.

ST. JOHN'S, NEWFOUNDLAND, WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 12th, 1923

THE P. M. D. FUND

The Advocate must join with the Daily News in commending the Earle Spicer Recital on Thursday night, to the patronage of the general public. Of the excellence of the programme, assisted as it is by several of our highest local talent, there can be little doubt; and regarding the cause for which the concert is so kindly given, there is none more highly deserving of public sympathy and support.

Sympathy without practical assistance, however, availeth nothing to the widows and orphans of those fishermen and sailors who, whilst engaged in the country's business, lost their lives at sea. What is needed is funds for the Permanent Marine Disaster Fund that will bring help to the practically helpless, and cause a ray of sunshine where darkness is apt to linger.

Were the public not quite so sure of the excellence of the concert itself, their own enjoyment there, certainly no appeal could be greater than that which comes from the hundreds of Terra Nova's poor, whose breadwinners have found watery graves around our shores.

Then, let all help the widows and the orphans!

THE C.H.E. EXAMS

The results of the Council of Higher Education Examinations which are now coming in are, to say the least of them, disappointing. It is inevitable that there must be disappointment for many, no matter how satisfactory the returns may be in the aggregate, but this year's percentage of "failures" is such as to suggest the idea that all is not as it should be with these examinations.

Complaints have been numerous from teachers and pupils in the past few years on the score of the unsatisfactoriness of the papers, the failure to suit questions to the scope of the different grades and the general inadequacy of the system employed to mee the practical demands of the time.

The conclusion must be accepted that the C. H. E. Examinations as at present carried out are not suited to our schools at all. Examinations are both necessary and valuable, but their value lies in the practicalness of the knowledge whose attainment they encourage. The C. H. E. Exams as we have them to-day foster and encourage a process of useless and harmful cramming and do little else. For one thing, the subjects are in the main altogether outside the scope of a practical business training, and where they are within that scope the apparent ignorance of those who set the papers of conditions that should have great weight with them, render such papers inadequate to practical needs.

It is a matter of common knowledge that the boy or girl who has a good, sound knowledge of the most essential subjects often finds his or her name on the "failure" list when the results of the exams come in, while those with the most superficial knowledge of the here-to-day-and-gone-to-morrow kind may be high on the honors list. It is notorious that many who have made brilliant showings in the C.H.E. Examinations have proved to be without the most elimin-entary knowledge of the simplest every-day subjects when it came to taking their places in their chosen sphere of activity.

Under these circumstances, the real results of the C. H. E. Exams are bound to be disappointing while they are prepared for and conducted as they are at present, no matter how high or how low may be the percentage of passes.

ADVERTISE IN THE "ADVOCATE."

The British Empire Exhibition

£10,000,000 To Be Expended

Grounds to Cover 216 Acres

The Empire Family Party.

Appealing thus to all those in the world who are curious of life (and to be curious of life is the proof of an alert mind), the Exhibition will have a special appeal to the members of the great family of the British Empire. It will be their "Family Party." Its first purpose will be to display "the means whereby we live"—the industries of the Empire. The trades, the manufacturers, the farmers and the workers of the Empire will show the best examples of their handiwork, and set up the machines by which they do their work. This will make the Exhibition a complete encyclopaedia of modern industry with working illustrations.

On its ground—the greatest that has ever been laid out for the purpose in the history of the world—there will be assembled practical examples and working models of every Empire industry. It will be possible for the student of any of the hundred and one activities of modern civilisation to find within a ring fence complete means of comparative study. The methods of five continents, and of all the races of man, will be shown side by side.

In these days of intricate processes such practical illustrations are necessary. We sympathise with the motive guiding one of the greatest humorists and satirists of literature when he whipped with his scorn the Squeers School of Education. "Spell windows." "W-i-n-d-o-w-s." "Yes, go now and clean them." Yet we have to recognise that there can be no easy education in material matters without practical examples. The teacher can only explain an intricate machine with a working model.

In the world of science, of supreme interest will be the exhibits illustrating the successful grappling with the problem of Health in the Tropics. The British Empire is showing in many quarters of the world that it is possible for the white races to live healthily in tropical climates. It gives the material for a comparative study of Tropical Health work in Asia, Africa, America and Australasia.

Friendly Emulation

What promises to be the chief factor in making the British Empire Exhibition a complete success in all respects is the spirit of friendly emulation which has sprung up in the Dominions and Colonies of the Empire. In every corner of the vast Empire there is a conviction that it is necessary, as a matter of national pride and of loyalty to the King, to make a brave show before the world at Wembley Park in 1924. Each member of the Empire Family is striving in a sporting spirit to outstrip the others, to make its display more brilliant, a better proof of successful organisation and of cleverly applied energy. The various Dominions are keeping secret some of the details of their exhibits. They are confident that they have thought out for themselves entirely original ideas, and are anxious that their friends and rivals should not know of these in advance so as to be able to imitate them. Even the Mother Country has joined in this spirit of friendly emulation with the spirit and energy of her perpetual youth. Not content with the great exhibits of her organisations of manufacturers and traders, she will enter the lists with a special national display, the message of which will be to emphasise the unity of the Empire.

The Human Side

But it will not be only a trade and industry show. The human side will not be neglected in the British Empire Exhibition, and will be perhaps its chief interest to those citizens of the world whose curiosity is for the sentimental, the romantic, rather than the practical things of life. The British Empire is guardian and protector to many peoples whose civilisation is different from our own, or, looked at in the light of our Western ideas, is backward. The Exhibition will bring on its great stage for the study of Europe, of America and of the world generally, the real life of those peoples: the Arcadian communities of the Pacific: the dreamers of the mystic East, where contemplative thought rather than action has been the ideal of man; and will contrast them with the bustling and energetic enterprise of the young white nations which have had their origin in the British Islands, and which under new circumstances of social environment are striving to work out in the old British way the old problems of man's destiny.

Premier Warren Tells Rotarians Of the Labrador Boundary Dispute

At the Rotary Luncheon held at Wood's Restaurant yesterday, Rotarian Reg Harvey presided, and introduced the Prime Minister, Hon. W.R. Warren, K.C., who gave a very lucid and interesting explanation of the Labrador Boundary Question.

The Labrador Boundary Question goes back to 1763, to the Treaty of Paris, when the British Government took over practically all the North American Continent, and divided it up into a certain number of Provinces —Canada being included. Newfoundland was made a separate entity and the Labrador Coast from River St. John to Hudson's Straits was put under Newfoundland. At the beginning Newfoundland had jurisdiction over the Labrador Coast, as it was then known. In 1774 it was given to Quebec, but in 1809 it was given back to Newfoundland, and the Proclamation making this decision is as follows:—"All that coast of Labrador from River St. John to Cape Chidley shall be a part of Newfoundland." In 1825 the Western Boundary was moved from River St. John to Blanc Sablon and defined as a line running due north from Blanc Sablon to the 52nd parallel. Newfoundland claims from the 52 parallel and thence along west via the watershed to Cape Chidley. This territory has an area of about 180,000 square miles, or larger than Germany, Hungary and Austria. The Canadian claim is that the coast is really all that belongs to Newfoundland, and that the inland territory does not come under our jurisdiction. The interpretation of the word "coast" is however, a difficult matter. It was decided then between the two countries that the question be left in the hands of the Privy Council. Newfoundland has had jurisdiction over Labrador territory, collecting Customs Duties, granting Timber Licenses, holding Courts, etc, since the 16th century. In 1903, however, a gentleman by the name of Dickie erected a Lumber Mill at the mouth of the Hamilton Inlet under license from Newfoundland, and later the Quebec Government attempted to collect duties on supplies which he had brought there, claiming that this was a part of the Province of Quebec. Mr. Dickie, having obtained his license and paid his duties to the Newfoundland Government naturally referred the matter to them, and Sir Robert Bond, then Prime Minister, took the matter up with the Canadian Government. It was realized, however that the settling of this case would not decide the question at issue as other mills might be erected elsewhere, and similar disputes crop up in years to come. Accordingly the initial steps were taken to have a decision made regarding the Labrador Boundary Question and it was decided to appeal to the Privy Council and so the real issue commenced in 1903 and continued again in 1906, and on the advice of the late Mr. Martin Furlong, K.C., Newfoundland refused to accede to any arbitration on the matter as it would appear that Canada being larger and more influential Newfoundland might suffer by undue concessions. In 1918 this question was again taken up by Mr. A. B. Morine, K.C., who was then Attorney General. The preparation of the case for both sides entailed considerable labor and much money. The Canadian map collection alone referring to this matter cost in the vicinity of $40,000. Research work into the archives and records has cost in the vicinity of $50,000, and necessitated the services of ten men for the space of four years. The Prime Minister had met in London Mr. Smith, formerly Postmaster General, who was then engaged on the Labrador Boundary work. The Dominion of Canada last year sent down two steamers to the Labrador coast for the purpose of collecting data in connection with this question and considerable time was spent in obtaining evidence from the old Indians and liviers. Considerable research work was also being done in England, Scotland and the United States and private collections as well as public libraries have revealed valuable information on this question. The Prime Minister pointed out the important work which has been done by Sir P. T. McGrath in connection with this Boundary Question. He has the data regarding this issue at his finger tips. Some of the best legal authorities such as Messrs. Chas Russell and Co., Sir Chas. Doherty and Aynesworth are advocating the Canadian viewpoint and Sir John Simon, Barrington Ward, K.C., Mr. Monckton Sir Thomas Berridge and the Prime Minister are looking after the Newfoundland interests. The statement of claim for both parties is now complete and will be presented about the end of the present year. About March 31, 1924 the replies of Canadian and Newfoundland Governments will necessarily have to be made to the initial statements of either party. However present indications are sufficiently encouraging to state with a certain amount of confidence that this Labrador Boundary Question will be finalized about June next year. The Prime Minister also mentioned that he had interviewed the Canadian authorities on many occasions to endeavour to have this matter straightened out without going to the Privy Council. The Canadian interest realizes the advantages of having a coast line such as that which the Labrador coast affords, for the Province of Quebec, and naturally they will make as firm a stand as possible. He, the Prime Minister, had made several overtures to the Canadian authorities all of which have been made in the best interests of Newfoundland, but his nal sugestion to them, that of giving Labrador for an amount su cient to pay our National Debt was more or less a slight shock to them He also pointed out that the amount of money spent by the Newfoundland Government on Labrador in the way of Relief Works, Customs, Magistrates, etc., was not commensurate with the returns obtained.

The Prime Minister will be leaving in a few days for the Imperial Conference, and will then have the pleasurs of meeting Prime Minister Mckenzie King, and the Canadian Minister of Justice, and will make every effort to have Newfoundland's interest finalized as soon as possible and to the best advantage.

A hearty vote of thanks was unanimously accorded the Prime Minister for his interesting address. Amongst the guests were Mr. J. C. Hepburn,

Mr. Arthur Donnelly, Mr. R. B. Job, Dr. Morris, famous New York lawyer, Major Workman, Mr. Jos. Burke, Bay Bulls, Dr. John Sparkes of Mexico (Dr. Sparkes is a Newfoundlander) Mr. M. J. O'Leary, Dr. Macpherson, and U.S. Consul Benedict. The singing of the National Anthem breught the proceedings to a close.

Guards Sports To-day

After a couple of postponements, due to inclement weather, the Guards Sports are scheduled for this afternoon at St. George's Field and should attract a large attendance. One of the features of the Sports will be the three mile race, for which a large number of entries have been received, including Jack Kavanagh, an ex-distance champion, who is staging a comeback. The other items on the well arranged programme should prove interesting, and as this is the last Sports meet for the season there should be a record attendance.

Ireland Accepts The Treaty

The Government of the Irish Free State appears to have had its reasons for taking the elections more seriously than they were regarded in general from the outside. President Cosgrave's followers did not by any means swept the country, though they gained a plurality in the Dail Eireann. The election by the Republicans of forty-four members against the Government's sixty-six is a proof of the tenacity of Irish political opinions.

If the sixteen independents, the fifteen representatives of the Farmers' Party, and the fifteen Labor members, were to combine with the Republicans the Government would be overthrown and the treaty in danger. But the adherents of the treaty are in a clear majority, and any member who desires to uphold the treaty must uphold the Administration.

Since this is the case, it should now be possible for the Free State authorities to liberate the thousands of political prisoners who are still in durance. No rebel leader is likely to come forward with a program of revolution and capture the country immediately after it has voted by a 7?-per-cent. majority of the voters in favor of the compact with England. On the other hand, the presence of rebels in jail will be a constant source of danger and a focal point for radical indignation until they are at liberty.—New York World.

GERMANY VERY POOR CUSTOMER OF OLD COUNTRY

(By Sir Sidney Low)

We hear a good deal just now about the possible "collapse" of Germany. Nervous politicians and financiers in this country hint at it apprehensively. In Germany itself the newspapers, now mostly under the ownership of the great Markocracy, talk about it with cheerful candour. If, they say, the French and other Allies go on squeezing us for reparations we shall just throw up the sponge. We will relapse into political and social confusion, pay nothing, and produce nothing, and turn Central Europe into pauperised and famine-stricken chaos.

It sounds formidable, and has apparently frightened some influential persons in Britain, especially if they happened to be interested in German trade and banking. But I do not quite see why it should make he rest of us shake in our shoes.

I cannot help remembering that we were favored with similar threats when the Versailles Treaty was being framed. We mustn't press Germany too hard, it was said, or Germany will have a revolution a la Russe.

The Germans took up the tune with a fine zest. "Treat us gently and kindly," they exclaimed, "or we will go Bolshevik."

The French laughed. "Let them go Bolshevik, if they please, but they won't." And, of course, they did not. Even to spite the Allies they they were not going to turn their prosperous country into a devil-ridden wilderness like Red Russia. The genuine revolutionary Communists, who worked for that result, were firmly suppressed. The majority of Germans are too sensible and practical to imitate the Hindu debtor who commits suicide by slow starvation on his creditor's doorstep.

A Stage-Managed "Collapse."

So I do not think the Germans will engineer a genuine industrial collapse, though it may suit them to stage-manage a dramatic representation of one. It is quite likely that they may be in for serious political trouble. The Government has no real weight of public opinion behind it, and there may come a fierce struggle for power between the financial and agricultural monopolists and the Socialist trade unions. There may be rioting, disorder, perhaps a sort of civil war in some districts. But there will be no general stoppage of trade and production, which is, I suppose, what is meant by economic collapse.

If that happened it might, or might not, be embarrassing to the rest of Europe and the outside world; but to the Germans themselves it would mean impoverishment, ruin, appalling suffering. It is not a prospect that can tempt them.

At present Germany is, on the whole a comfortable country. There is much distress among the professional classes and the small investors; but the fananciers and manufacturers have made fortunes, the landowners and farmers are doing extremely well, and the working classes are better off than they were before the war. There is abundant capital available for vast enterprises, labor is fully emplayed, and a merely nominal tax is levied on beer, tobacco, and the other common luxuries.

Despite the confusion caused by the monstrous currency juggle, people seem to be enjoying themselves and taking life quite easily and pleasantly. The holidays are in full swing, and all the pleasure resorts, hotels, restaurants, and similar places are crowded and doing a thriving business. There is no "slump" in the German amusement market, even in the occupied districts. One can hardly suppose that the Germans will be willing to exchange these satisfactory conditions for the misery which a real collapse would inflict upon them.

If, however, the collapse did come, either by voluntary effort or from other courses, I do not see that we need be excessively alarmed over it. As a commercial and manufacturing nation we do not want to see any market closed; we would like to have them all open, eager to take our wares and able to pay for them. Germany was a fairly good customer in the past, and we are anxious to go on trading with her on terms of mutual profit. But if she put up the shutters we should not go into bankruptcy. We could contrive to get along pretty well without her co-operation.

Germany is a Poor Customer

There are people, some of them in high places, who talk as if trade with Germany were the mainspring of our commercial machinery, the dominating factor in our international business. Get Germany staple and prosperous, they suggest, and we shall have no more unemployment.

It is a curious delusion, as inexplicable as that other myth about Russia. The total of our exports would show only a relatively insignificant decrease if we never sent another ton of goods to Germany. In 1920, our general exports were worth in round figures 1,550 million pounds. To this sum our sales to Germany contributed £51,000,000—one-thirtieth of the total!

Is that fraction so overwhelmingly important? We gold 183 millions to India, 175 millions to France, 131 millions to the United States, 68 millions each to Belgium and Australia, and 48 millions to Canada. Even in pre-war days, in 1913, our exports to Germany were only worth about £60,000,000—say, 25s., per annum for every member of our population. The loss of that sum annually would not plunge us all into ruin, nor if it were doubled would it flood us with renewed prosperity or set all our unemployed at work again.

If Germany should unhappily think proper to "collapse" we should lose our seventh best customer. But then we should also lose our most dangerous competitor. Germany, with the money she has not paid for reparations, has developed her industrial plant and improved her communications, while our own have remained stationary. She has conserved her capital resources while ours have been drained away to pay the interest on our debts and comply with the demands of the tax-collector.

The German manufacturers and shippers, lightly taxed and equipped to the highest standard of modern efficiency, are invading all the markets of the world, and can dump their commodities in them at prices we cannot challenge. Presently we shall have to fight for our economic life almost everywhere. A collapse which checked or postponed this bitter struggle would not leave us quite inconsolable.

I think the Germans understand this far too well to indulge in any really effective collapsing. If they did we should have our compensations and could watch the process without undue anxiety.

RUSSIA IS AT LAST ON THE UP-GRADE

"Russia is well on the up-grade now," said Mr. W. P. Coates, secretary of the National "Hands Off Russia" Committee, to the Daily Herald recently, dealing with his recent journey through that country.

"The conditions of the railways are 100 per cent. better than anticipated and 500 per cent. better than depicted in the capitalist Press of Western Europe," continued Mr. Coates. "Thru carriages, accompanied by a restaurant car, run regularly between Petrograd and Batum.

"The sleeping saloons are perfectly clean and the bed linen quite as white as the bed linen to be found in any sleeping car in Great Britain. In the restaurant-car one can get as good meals as in any restaurant car in England, Germany or France.

Mr. Coates, who made a point of questioning everyone he met, was told on every hand that the condition of the railways was improving week by week.

Industry Recovers

Answering a question about the state of industry in Russia, Mr. Coates declared that the output of the factories is rapidly reaching pre-war level, and in many cases has exceeded it.

"I spent some hours on the docks, at Patrograd, the Black Sea, and the Caspian, and I can say unhesitatingly that they are now in good working order. Dockers at work told me that the docks are more efficiently managed than in pre-war days, and capable of berthing steamers of a deeper draft than in 1914.

"There is a maximum eight-hour day throughout Russia, and in dangerous trades the maximum is six hours. Each factory has its own country home, in which every worker, from the manager or commissar to the labourer, or chad-woman, can spend a month's holiday (with full pay) at a very small charge."

Never Molested.

His journey covered many hundred miles, and he visited Petrograd, Moscow and Batum, Kharkoff and Post-off-on-Don. During his journey, which took him through the northern Caucasus Mountains and along the shores of the Caspian Sea, he was quite unarmed and without even the protection of a walking stick.

"I was never in the slightest degree molested," said Mr. Coates. "I used to walk the streets of the towns often between the hours of 11 p.m. and 3 a.m. without being interfered with in any way."

Labor Day Message:

An Interpretation of the Policy of Labor

By SAMUEL GOMPERS

President of the American Federation of Labor

Labor day is a double celebration. It records Labor's achievements in securing fundamentall right. It also expresses Labor's determination to maintain Labor's policy in every field of human endeavour. For this reason, Labor Day, as a great holiday, has a deep significance for the public.

Our fathers fought and bled in defence of the inalienable rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Governments were established to protect these rights. Labor's policy stands for their practical realization for every citizen.

Labor's policy expresses the material and spiritual aspirations of the masses. Therefore, Labor's policy becomes the policy of the nation in its search for political and economic stability and prosperity.

Labor's policy is significant for its conception of life liberty and the pursuit of happiness: It envisions a life not limited by the mere necessity of physical existence. It demands a living standard much higher than is contained in "cost-of-living" wages.

It insists that Labor shall have an equitable share of the wealth in which Labor's own life energies are the essential elements. Labor's policy demands a life unblemished with constant worries over threatened economic insecurity in a country overflowing with actual and potential wealth.

Labor's policy stands for liberty in the broadest meaning of the term.

Political liberty—liberty to determine freely our political relations and institutions by the sovereignty of the ballot under democratic representative government. Industrial liberty—liberty freely to negotiate industrial relations without compulsion from any source.

Liberty to strike: for the bedrock of industrial liberty is the right to quit work. The rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness become academic mouthings when the right to quit work is impaired.

Labor's policy expresses Labor's faith in our workers. Faith in their ability to demonstrate that within the fields of representative political and industrial democracy organized Labor is the advance guard of the masses, driving its way straight ahead of Labor's objective, and striking down the barriers of reaction, greed and tyranny wherever found and by whomsoever planted..

Proud of its achievements, firm in its determination, sure of its success, Labor celebrates Labor Day, 1923, with a joy and confidence and earnestly invites all those who have faith in democratic institutions to join in the celebration.

Prominent In New York Politics

Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, who has been spoken of as "the Colonel House of the Smith Administration." Mrs. Moskowitz's political activities have made her known in every section of the State. She has been, and still is, a potent factor in social uplift work. Before her marriage to Dr. Henry Moskowitz, in 1914, she was Mrs. Charles H. Israels, wife of a successful architect, much interested in social service. Since the "Smith for President" boom her name has assumed additional national importance.

Criticism

Do not expect to escape criticism. If you should go to dwell in the midst of a desert or to take up your abode on the top of a lonely mountain, some one would follow and pass judgment on the shape of your hat or the shape of your conduct. So try to accept honest criticism when it is given you openly, face to face; but scorn with silent derision the cowardly thing that crawls up over the wall and tries to bite you in the back.

MAN LOST FOOT, BUT NONE FIND "LABRADOR GOLD"

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., August 31.—(Associated Press.)—The final chapter of the Labrador gold rush ended yesterday when the Government steamer Watchful dropped anchor in the harbor after her two months' trip to the supposed gold-fields. The ship, commanded by Captain George Bragg, left here on June 10 and arrived at her destination on the 22nd, anchoring about 1½ miles from the shore near Big Brook.

The police erected their headquarters ashore, and all arrangements were made for the anticipated gold rush, but it was a month later before the first prospectors arrived. Altogether not more than fifty visited the coast. The Watchful left Stag Bay Saturday evening.

H. Snelgrove(wireless operator on the Watchful, sustained injuries that necessitated the amputation of his right foot. A gun handled by one of the engineers exploded and lacerated Snelgrove's ankle.

"RESOLVED, That no picture be hung in schools which glorify war, or which tend to perpetuate feelings of prejudice or hatred against people of other countries."

So reads a noble resolution recently passed by the Parent-Teachers' Association, composed of delegates from twenty-eight societies in Vancouver, B.C.

Well might its spirit be emulated by every school in every country of the world.

If every church and every school in the civilized nations adopted that spirit, war would receive its knock-out blow.

Significant words were spoken six hundred years ago by Tommasco Campanella, the Italian philsopher. Read them:

THE PEOPLE

The people is a beast of muddy brain
That knows not its own strength, and therefore stands
Loaded with wood and stone; the powerless hands
Of a mere child guide it with bit and rein;
One kick would be enough to break the chain,
But the beast fears, and what the child demands
It does; nor its one terror understands,
Confused and stupefied by bugbears vain.
Most wonderful! With its own hand it ties
And gags itself—gives itself death and war
For pense doled out by kings from its own store.
It owns all things between earth and heaven;
But this it knows not; and if one arise
To tell the truth, it kills him unforgiven.

Warm praise for the British Labor Party comes from no less a person than Lord Loreburn:

"Nothing can be more encouraging than the resolute attitude which has ben taken up by the spokesmen of Labor. Let the electors take up the same attitude, a refusal to tolerate morew ars because of the stupidity of our rulers, and we may take our stand as leaders of the new crusade against the wickedness and folly of war.

"The assertion that the Labor men are incompetent to form a Ministry is simply absurd. Ramsay MacDonald, Snowden, Ponsonby and Morel would conduct business with more stability and common sense than any four of ourp resent Ministers.'

* * * * *

That is the sort of thing that is happening throuout Great Britain—sick and weary of the old-line politicians, the people are turning to the Labor Party. The next election will place the British labor party in power.

* * * * *

Dr. Macnamara, Minister of Labor in the Lloyd George government, and by no means a sympatiser with Labor, said:

"Unless a considerable change comes over the course of politics in this country (Great Britain) a Socialist government will come into power after the next General Election, when ever it comes."

Wise words are spoken by Dr. Alfred Glascock, prominent American physician. The subject is food and eating:

"America is rapidly becoming a nation of food drunkards. We are dead on our feet. Overeating is the greatest cause of disease. The pendulous abdomen, U neck, stooped shoulders and dubutante slouch seen in most men, women and children are the result of overeating. Sedentary people should live on milk, eggs, fruit and vegetable. They contain all the necessary elements and will not over tax the digestion or energy of the body. The common diet of bread, meat and potatoes, topped off with sweets, is rank poison to the average sedentery person. These foods are too heavy and concentrated, are hard to digest, and clog the system. Unless there is a let up in the use of sugary foods the manufacturers of false teeth are booked for a record business."

What Dr. Glascock says applies to more countries than America.

Junior Football

At St. George's Field to-night at 6.30 sharp them uch talked of game, Cadets vs. Holy Cross, will take place, and one of the best games for some time is promised. The Cadets have gone thus far without losing a point, and their supporters are confident they can uphold their record right through to the end. The Holy Cross lost one point when they drew with the Wesley, but they are determined to lose no more. The game thus promises to be most interesting, and as the championship depends largely on the result, no doubt a large attendance will see the clash.

Last night the St. Mary's and B.I.S. met on the Ayre Athletic Grounds in what was one of the best games for the season and resulted in a win for the Irish by a score of 1—0. The Irish played against the wind and sun in the first half, and although the St. Mary's pressed hard they failed to score. After changing over the play was general for about five minutes, when the B. I. S. managed to score the one and only goal for the game.

C. H. E. Results

The Primary and Preliminary returns of the C.H.E. examination were distributed to the schools yesterday. The Intermediate exhaminations have not been reported on yet as, on account of the accident to the Prospero and the consequent delay in the examinations in a large number of northern centres, some of the books were not in the hands of the examiners in London till August 13th. This delay of the few papers kept the examiners from finishing the returns and they are expected in the city till the end of the present week, when they will be distributed.

The results up to date show:—

In the Senior Associate Examination—24 sat for the examination; 4 passed with honours 6 per cent. and over; 12 passed with from 40 to 65 per cent. in the aggregate; 8 failed; 66 per cent passed.

In the Junior Associate Examination—223 sat for the examination; 30 passed with honours, 65 per cent. and over of the aggregate; 82 passed with from 40 to 65 per cent; 111 failed; 50 percentage of passes.

In the Preliminary Examination—1856 sat for examination; 106 passed with Honours 65 per cent. and over of the aggregate; 881 passed with from 40 to 65 per cent. of the aggregate; 881 passed with from 40 to 65 per cent. of the aggregate; 869 failed; 53 percentage of passes.

In the Primary Examination—1738 took the examination; 1253 passed the examination, 40 per cent. and over the aggregate; 485 failed; 72 percentage of passes.

List of passes will be furnished as soon as they can be prepared.

Is Safe at Kobe

Mr. Bertram Payn, brother of Mr. T. V. Payn, secretary of the Board of Payne, secretary of the Board of the Board of Trade, is now at Kobe, Japan, and his many friends here were much concerned over his safety in the recent terrible earthquake that caused such a tremendous loss of life.

Mr. Payn, however, is safe, as messages have been received from him. He is engineer on the s.s. Esther Dollar, which runs regularly from the Pacific coast to Japan, calling at the various ports, including Yokohama, and according to messages received, the Esther Dollar is now in Kobe, and has been placed at the disposal of refugees who are arriving at that port.

WEDDING BELLS

TAYLOR—ADAMS

The marriage took place on Saturday afternoon, at Topsail, of Miss Elsie Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Taylor, to Mr. George Adams, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Adams (all of this city). Rev. Mr. Nurse. officiated. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a travelling suit of Fawn, and hat of black and royal blue; the bridal boquet being stock, asters and maidenhair fern. The bridesmaids were Miss Taylor, sister of the bride, and Miss Adams, sister of the groom, who wore dresses of robin's egg blue marionette crepe and rose satin, respectively and carried boquests of pink and white asters and stock. The groom was supported by the bride's brother, Mr. Bert Taylor. At the conclusion of the marriage ceremony the party motored to Donovan's where a reception was held. The toasts were given and replied to by Hon. John Davey, Mr. V. Thompson, the Groom, the Best man, Mr. H. J. Taylor, father of the bride, Mr. Geo. Adams, sr., father of the graam and others, the speech making closing with the singing of the National Anthem. The bride and groom left Donovan's by the evening train, for Carbonear where a motor car awaited to convey them to Heart's Content, where they will spend the honeymoon, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Stentaford, sister of the groom. The wedding presents were numerous, which speaks eloquently of the esteem in which the contracting parties are held. The groom has been a member of the office staff of Bowring Bros., Ldt., both before going overseas and since demobilization. We wish the young couple a happy and prosperous voyage o'er the sea of matrimony.

DEE—DEVEREAUX

In the presence of a large gathering of friends, Miss Alice M. Dee, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dee, and Mr. Frank J. Devereaux, son of Mr. Edward Devereaux, were united in the bonds of matrimony at the Oratory of the Sacred Heart, Mercy Convent, last evening at 7.30 o'clock The ceremony was performed by the Rev. A. J. Dee, brother of the bride assisted by the Rev. Dr. Carter. The bride was attired in a dress of ivory satin with pearl trimmings. She wore a tulle veil, with wreath of orange blossoms and carried a boquet of white carnations and maidenhair fern, and was given away by her father. She was attended by Miss Isabelle Callahan, and Miss Mary Bates, the former wearing a crepe dress of Alice blue, with black picture hat, and the latter a dress of henna canton crepe, with black Gainsborough hat. Both also carried beautiful boquets. The groom was supported by Mr. G. W. Foley of the Commercial Cable Company's staff. After the ceremany the wedding party motored to Smithville where the reception was ehld. After the wedding supper, the health of the bride was proposed by Rev. Dr. Carter, and responded bo by the groom. Mr. Feorge F. Kearney proposed the health of the parents of the contracting parties, to which Mr. J. H. Dee replied. The toast of the brides maids was proposed by the groom and responded by the best man. After the reception dancing was indulged in, and a most enjoyable time was spent. Vocal selections were rendered by Mrs. Gomez, Rev. Dr. Carter and Mr. E. Hagen. The groom's present to the bride was a diamond ring, and to the bridesmaids, jade rings. A short honeymoon will be spent at Donovan's and by the Rosalind on September 2th, Mr. and Mrs. Devereaux will leave for Puta Allegra, Cuba where they will make their future home, taking with them the best wishes of their many friends.
