--------	---	------	------	------	------	------	------	------	------	-----------------

PLANETS IN MAY.—Venus becomes "Evening Star" on the 4th, after superior conjunction with the Sun. Neptune is an "Evening Star" until the 13th, when he becomes a "Morning Star." Venus is very near Neptune on the 11th. The waning Moon pays her court to Mercury and Mars on the morning of the 13th, the three planets being in close conjunction. The New Moon approaches Saturn on the evening of the 16th, and leaves Jupiter behind on the celestial course on the 21st. Jupiter is 90° from the Sun (quadrature) on the 17th, when he is overhead at 6 p.m. Mercury is a "Morning Star," and will be seen before sunrise on the 25th. He is again near Mars on the 30th.
