

I know that the impression that this address shall make upon you will not be Ciceronian, but I pray that it may be Demosthenian; that with the help of the Holy Spirit we shall be inspired to go out and fight more vigorously against the enemies of our little ones. That we shall with more than Athenian zeal, even a Christ-like zeal, determine to save the children of our homes and of the world, from the power of the Devil and for the Kingdom of Christ, and when we have done that, the prayer that the Master taught us will be answered.

I like the ring of that rallying song of the ladies of the W. C. T. U.—

"It's coming, it's coming, the time for which we pray.

"We'll take this world for Christ's own Kingdom,

"Some glad day."

and when that day does come, "a little child shall lead them."
