DETAILS OF THE BATTLE OF GRAVELOTTE

New York, Aug. 24.—Details of the battle of Gravelotte are received. It is described as one of the greatest battles of modern times. A reconnaissance made the day previous showed the French army was retreating on Verdun; their column was cut in two by the advance of the Germans, and the last part was driven back between Gravelotte and Metz. It was resolved to attack there, as the retreat of the French to Verdun was cut off. The Germans were posted in a north easterly direction from Metz. The seventh Prussian corps formed right of line, next came the eighth, posted on the road to Gravelotte; then the ninth and twelfth. The guards were on the extreme left, the third, first and tenth corps being held in reserve. The firing was kept up along the whole line from eleven o'clock. The Prussian artillery seemed overpowering, and the French Batteries were driven back on the second line. In the village of St. Marie, which was in the possession of the Germans, many house were battered down. Every available spot was crowded with wounded men, even the streets were covered with straw, and French and German wounded were lying there in masses together.

Beyond Rezonville, the country is stripped bare. No conveyance of food to be had. Metz is completely surrounded by Prussian forces, Fourth Army Corps having moved round from east to north. The Saxon Corps of Pioneers has been sent to the front. Four Prussian Corps will be left about Metz to carry on the siege, the remainder of the army to advance towards Verdun. The battle fought on Sunday, 14th, is described as bloodier than Gravelotte or Rezonville. In the morning a part of the Germans pushed forward upon the position of the French, who retired as they advanced. The French subsequently received reinforcements and intrenched themselves behind earthworks, extending around the city, at a distance of two or three miles, in a circle, including the villages of Borny, Colombey, Nisting, Noisseville and Nouilly. On the side of the Germans there were engaged in the immediate neighbourhood the 7th and 1st army corps, which with the 8th army corps formed the first army under General Steinmetz. At about 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon the French opened fire upon a regiment of Germans on the highway and quickly the whole corps corps under General Von Manteuffel and the division composed of four regiments of the 7th corps under General Von Zastrow became engaged. The number of the Germans thus engaged was forty five thousand. The French had a great deal of artillery, and cavalry, the Germans but little. The Germans carried all the breastworks against a murderous fire of the French who were always compelled to retire before them, but the fire of the Chassepot told very severely on the Germans who lost many more than the French. It was the superior courage of the Germans which compelled the enemy to retire. They did this slowly, contesting every men until driven against the walls of Metz.

THE SCENE ON THE FIELD

A correspondent describes the scene on the battle field of Tuesday, the 16th, as one seldom equalled. Thirty miles of ground was covered with the dead and wounded of both sides. The cannonade from the Germans, and the rattle of the needle guns were terrific. The defeat of the French was total, their long columns could be seen pouring towards the North in the effort to evade the German pursuit by the way of Briey. The loss on both sides was immense, and many French prisoners were taken. The King was personally attentive to the French wounded. A French peasant taken while killing wounded Germans was hanged at once. Out of eleven thousand inhabitants of the neighbourhood scarcely any remained. The special correspondent of the Tribune at Brussels, writes Saturday 20th:—I learn from a trustworthy source that Trochu intends, within a few day's to invite the Orleans Princes to share in the defence of their country. Troops have been sent to the Belgian province of Luxembourg to disarm fugitive soldiers arriving on Belgian territory and send them into the interior.

THE LATEST FROM THE SEAT OF WAR.

A cable despatch to the Sun, dated Brussels, Aug. 21, says:—

"I did not succeed in reaching Bazaine The Prussians are everywhere and guarding every pass at Uckange Grandrange and Richemond. The railroad is cut and the way from Montmedy to Thionville is equally out of order. Bazaine is not at Verdun; he is shut up in a triangle not between Metz, Granarange, the river Orne and the road from Metz to Etain. MaMahon left Chalons. There burning the camp) forces and part of the he left the Loire a northeastern direction troops. I cannot yet ascertain if it is a movement or a reinforcement. As far as I can see the spirit of the troops is excellent, but I never saw before so much impotency and disorder in manœuvering. I feel perfectly sure that the leaders do not say anything because they do not know better. General Le Brun assumes the command of the Twelfth Corps vice Trochu.

London, Aug. 23—It is almost certain that the interposition of the great powers of Europe in France, on the Prussian question will take place in a few days.

The Paris journals continue to urge a levie en masse to exterminate the invaders.

The French gunboats now operating on the Rhine have been recalled to the Seine.

BAZAINE'S RETREAT EXPOSED.

Bazaine has forced a passage by the way of Auteuil and Longuyon, reaching Montmedy. It is reported the armies of the Prince Royal and Prince Frederic Charles have formed a junction west of Metz.

THE DEFENCE OF PARIS.

To day, the 'Times' exhorts the French people to consider what the attempt to defend Paris must cost, and urges them to consider almost any alternative. The defence of Paris cannot seriously defer its capture. The fortifications of Luxembourg have been razed.

REPORTS OF PRUSSIAN VIOLENCE EXAGGERATED.

Captain Jeannerod writes to the Paris 'Temps,' admitting that the accounts of Prussian violence are exaggerated, except in a few isolated instances.

CAPTURE OF A PRUSSIAN FRIGATE.

The following has just been received from Alexandria:—The Prussian frigate Hertha, carrying 28 guns, has been captured by the French. No particulars.

THE PRINCE IMPERIAL FALLING SECRETLY.

The correspondent of 'Le Temps' says there is no hope for a triumphant issue to the war, unless the Emperor and the Prince Imperial cease their interference and return to Paris. The Prince chatters about military movements to everybody, and lets out important secrets.

DEPRESSION IN THE FRENCH CAMP.

The general headquarters of the French army on Sunday night, were a few miles west of Rhine. Edmond Texier writes thence to the 'Siecle,' that the deepest depression prevails, and the Emperor receives nobody.

NEUTRALITY OF ITALY.

The object of Prince Napoleon's visit to Florence, was to protest against the neutrality of Italy.

MISCELLANEOUS.

This morning the 'Opinion Nationale' under the caption 'Keep Cool,' predicts the defeat of the Prussians as the result of the pending combinations.

Herbert Bismarck, one of the sons of the Prussian Prime Minister, was wounded in the foot, and his brother William had his horse killed under him.

The 'Standard's' correspondent is confident Paris will be defended, even if bombardment takes place.

The 'Post' is authorized to deny the letter published yesterday, said to have been written by Queen Victoria to the Empress.

A letter from Baden says the French peasants are poisoning the wells at Alsace.

London, Aug. 23—Advices from the vicinity of the hostile armies, state that heavy rains fell all last night, which must have seriously impeded all military movements to-day.

The extraordinary forces called out by the Swiss Government are returning to their homes, the regular army being considered sufficient to protect the neutrality of that country.

The details of the battle of the 18th at Gravelotte are still wanting, even at Berlin.

The German despatches to-day are meagre expected shipment of bullion to France.

The Admiralty has postponed until the war has ended, the sale of surplus naval stores. A strong squadron of British ironclads is anchored off the Nore, with their fires banked.

SENATE IN THE CORPS LEGISLATIF.

Paris, Aug. 22—In the Corps Legislatif yesterday, Baron Chaud Pallieo announced the despatch giving the re-assuring news, Deputy Keratry demanded the date, and also whether the despatch was from Bazaine himself. Palikao said the despatch was dated the 18th, but an uproar ensued so great as to drown the answer touching the authorship of the message. M Keratry then proposed, that nine members of the Chambers be chosen to form a part committee of defence. The members of the Left immediately gave signs of approval, but the majority hesitated. M. Keratry claimed that the state of affairs urgently demanded it. Some members of the majority rose as approving, and several members of the Left, which was accepted as establishing the urgency of the case.

The 'Soir' says, the despatch above alluded to was from Bazaine, brought to Palikao by a messenger. It is understood that the message contained much important and favorable news, which has been withheld from the public, and the 'Soir' says, further, that Palikao is certain he will be sustained by the Corps Legislatif, else he would not have been so decided at the meeting yesterday.

WITHDRAWAL OF FRENCH TROOPS FROM ROME.

Assurances have been sent from the French Government to His Holiness that Italy has no intention of attacking Rome. Papal troops had been withdrawn from the campaign to defend the city.

Many arrests had been made.

PROPOSED INTERVENTION.

It seems certain, that a project has been brought before the great powers of Europe, having for its object the prevention of the dismemberment of France.

WITHDRAWAL OF THE CROWN PRINCE.

A private London despatch says: It is reported that the Crown Prince of Prussia has withdrawn from his advance on Paris and gone to support the Prussian armies west of Metz, the position of the latter being threatened with a formidable attack by Bazaine, who is said to have been reinforced by MacMahon.

FRENCH LOAN.

The 'Siecle' says: A seven hundred and fifty million francs loan has already been more than taken by anticipation. Five millions of francs have been distributed in the city among the families of soldiers.

MARSHAL BAZAINE'S POSITION.

The journals to-day say, a despatch has been received here from Bazaine, in which the Marshal declares his intention of maining near Metz, without definite explanation. The despatches sometime Bazaine's communications they are now endangered.

THE VILLETTE OUTBREAK.

It is reported that Dreck the leader of the Villette outbreak, who has been condemned to death, wishes to make a confession and promises startling revelations. Three workmen implicated in the affair were tried and sentenced to-day by a Council of War.

PRUSSIAN WOUNDED.

The 'Gaulois' asserts that Prussia applied through Lord Granville for the consent of the French Commander to allow her wounded, to the number of the number of 8,500, to be sent home through Belgium and Luxembourg, and Bazaine positively refused.

JUNCTURE OF MACMAHON AND BAZAINE.

"La Presse," in an extra, makes the following statement; We are now at liberty to make public the fact that MacMahon has joined Bazaine with a great number of troops. Bazaine has not abandoned his strong position near Metz. MacMahon moved North (and France is saved) by way of Rheims, Mezieres and Montmedy. Ma-

Mahon has reached a position where he can enter upon the decisive struggle.

Le Etoile says full confirmation of the good news from the war was received to-day.

THE SIEGE OF STRASBOURG.

The reports from Strasbourg show that the bombardment of the city, so far, has done little damage. The French in Strasbourg, however, have shelled Kehl on the other side of the Rhine, with effect. The place has been set on fire, and destroyed.

The inhabitants of Paris addressed a letter to General Trochu, and expressed the utmost confidence in him, and hope for the energetic defence of the city.

REPORTED ESCAPE OF NAPOLEON.

Paris, Aug. 12—The Empress has asked permission to exist to Belgium. Napoleon is reported to have escaped from France. A general appeal to Frenchmen to assist the cause of France, will be issued immediately and the Orleanists family be allowed to return to France.

NO NEWS FROM THE FRONT.

Paris, Aug. 22, midnight.—Nothing further from the front. Confidence in the ultimate success of the military movements now in progress is increasing here. At the Ministry of the Interior to-night, it was announced that no definite news would be received from the army for some days to come, it being withheld for prudent reasons. Bulfin's armed reserve counts 61,000. The 'Press' attributes the decline to heavy sales to enable parties to take up the national loan.

MOVEMENTS OF BAZAINE AND MACMAHON.

On Friday afternoon and early on Saturday morning, the main body of Bazaine's command succeeded in effecting a withdrawal from Metz by the gate of Thionville. Between fort St. Quentin and Montlaurie le Metz, the high road follows the left bank of the Moselle, and runs due north till within five miles of Thionville, where it strikes off in a north-westerly direction towards Longuy and Montmedy on the Belgian frontier. The railroad following the line and connecting Thionville with the Fortress of Sedan and Mezieres, from which latter point it proceeds due south to Rheims, was still intact. By latest accounts Bazaine was reported in Spincourt, one Montmedy town, on the river Chiers, a tributary of the Meuse, 25 miles north of Verdun and 30 miles north-east of Metz. It was ascertained that his intention was to cross Argonnes by Stenay to the Vesuge, and then strike down the valley of Aisne to St. Menehould, where, railways between Verdun and Chalons, a junction could readily be effected with MacMahon. Somenehould is 30 miles north of Vitry le Francaise, and 25 miles north-east of Chalons. The three places form a triangle, of which Chalons is the apex. At St. Menehould a great battle will probably be fought, as it is thought MacMahon is now on his way to join Bazaine at this objective point. The French position extends all the railroad lines, and secures the retreat to Paris in case of defeat. An important movement is in progress, in another direction, by the French troops.

MISCELLANEOUS.

It is reported that M. Rouher went to Chalons to confer with the Emperor, and accompanied him to Rheims.

A special from Paris says messenger of the diplomatic corps are held daily by the British Embassy, but no decisive action has yet been taken by them.

The French Government is buying horses in Italy for their army. 10,000 Prussian wounded have been sent to Berlin.

Many prizes by the French Navy Department are given to encourage gallantry.

The Paris journals blame Prince Napoleon for leaving France. On his return here it was supposed he had been on a mission to King Victor Emmanuel, but the report to that effect made public a few days ago is denied.

The Archbishop of Paris has directed the clergy to contradict the report that the Pope has felicitated the King of Prussia.

A number of Prussian spies were arrested here to-day.

It is reported that King William has issued a proclamation, declaring that every individual not belonging to the French army, and taken in open hostility to the Prussian army, shall be shot.

"Le Constitutionnel," an semi-official authority, contradicts, in the most positive terms, the report in the London 'Times' that the Empress Eugenie sued for the mediation of Queen Victoria. All the journals here indignantly deny the truth of the report, also printed in the 'Times,' that the mitrailleurs are loaded with explosive bullets.

The 'Journal Official' explains at length the facilities of the Bank of France, for the manufacture of paper currency.

Victor Hugo has asked permission to serve in the National Guards, and Gen. Chanzet has also demanded active service in the French army.

GERMANS IN FRANCE.

Berlin, Aug. 23—The German forces in France have undergone a partial reorganization, and so reinforced and redistributed, will go into battle, amounting to 520,000 strong.

BUSINESS PARALYZED.

Antwerp, Aug. 23.—The war has paralyzed business here. No failures are yet reported, nor are any anticipated. Here, as everywhere, the only hope of resumption of commercial activity is based on a speedy triumph of the Prussians.

MARSHAL BAZAINE REINFORCED.

New York, 23.—A special despatch from London says the Paris despatch states that the forces of King William are reported to be so reinforced as to enable the Germans, seven to fight on one side, high authority that Bazaine was reinforced from Chalons on Sunday for the purpose of giving battle to the enemy near Metz. He is confident of victory when he will march on the army of the Crown Prince and rescue Paris.

The appalling Prussian losses have sent a thrill of horror throughout Germany, and recruits are only to be had from among country people and working men, nearly all of whom are sad.

Bazaine professes to be master of the situation.

MACMAHON MOVING TO THE RESCUE OF BAZAINE.

Telegrams, special to London, say nothing official has been received since yesterday from either army. Private advices assert the Chalons army has taken the direction of Thionville in a desperate effort to effect a junction with Marshal Bazaine, escaping the Crown Prince and meeting the main German army to the north of Verdun. MacMahon is driven to the choice of two evils, either to leave the road to Paris open to the Crown Prince, or by holding it to sacrifice Bazaine's army.

MACMAHON BAZAINE'S STRATEGY.

A private despatch, dated London, 1.30 p. m., says that the Paris correspondent of the Le [illegible] telegraphs the Marshals have succeeded in cutting the enemy's line and regaining at Montmedy.

GODERICH, SEPT. 1st 1870.

The Mooted Coalition.

After joining us and the other Reform journals of the Province, in a hearty laugh at the imaginary "bad claret" job and-nob of the "two Georges," the Battle Telegraph proceeds to say:—

"If Mr McKenzie, the coming statesman of the day, is to enter any Cabinet, it will be composed of men of acknowledged ability and of decided liberal proclivities. Whether Sir George Cartier could or should become a member of such a government is a question well worth discussing. Supposing the views of the leading statesmen of Quebec and those of the coming men of Ontario were found to harmonize in the policy of the new administration, which we think it would be quite compatible to all the provinces in the Dominion, what would be the position in which Sir Geo Cartier stands at the Council board of such a Cabinet?

"We do not think that this is a question well worth discussing. If we contemplated such a combination at all within the range of possibility, we should certainly be prepared to allow any number of "moral objections" to it, and would consider the painless extinction of the abortion at its birth. It is enough for us at present that Alexander Mackenzie (well described as the coming man) the other day at Wardsville, expatiated and extoled the idea in the strongest terms.

As Others See Us.

It is agreeable to find American neighbors naturally beginning to realize that north of their boundary, the country is tolerably habitable and the people rather civilized; nay more, that Ontario is in very truth a progressive virtuous trading community, and the home of the great republic in respect to Railways and manufactures, keeping pace almost of her to educational institutions, and moving far ahead of her in sanitary matters. The Illinois Press Association, who have lately been feted and feasted wherever they halted, have "surpassed their surprise at the progress of Ontario." And when such a knowing, wide-awake and well-informed body, as the Pioneers of the Press in the Western States, with which States we date to form closer relations, have been startled into causing the electric wire to vibrate honeward an expression of surprise" at our unlooked for prosperity and progress, we premise ordinary people have hitherto expected to find us living in little better than a primeval howling desert. The Rattle American, in last issue, well remarks:—"Between the eastern parts of Western New York or Central Michigan, and the peninsula of Ontario, there is no appreciable difference in soil or climate. The farms are as productive, the cattle as good, the farmers as skilful and industrious as the average portion of the United States. The moral condition of the people is not inferior. The common school system is as universal in its operation and as complete in its character as that of New England. Villages and cities may not grow with the same lightning-like speed, but the stability is greater, their prosperity more assured. Their institutions, nominally monarchical, are practically republican; their spirit of aberration is well-nigh extinct, government is conducted and complete; and though they lack the glory of innumerable greenbacks, they have the advantage of lighter taxation than any other civilized community under the sun."

And coming nearer home, our American friends and visitors are not merely surprised but delighted with Goderich as a place of summer resort, finding it almost unequalled on the continent for beautiful scenery, cool, invigorating breezes and facilities to say) modest charge; with [illegible] and Universality attached [illegible] he is his [illegible] from [illegible] the undersigned [illegible] pleasure in [illegible] of Goderich, [illegible] a watering [illegible] they any [illegible] over visited, [illegible] accommodation, [illegible] were compelled [illegible] looking were [illegible] that a Hotel capable of [illegible] hundred persons [illegible] during the three or four [illegible]

MAIL STAGE BLUEVALE

As soon as the present contract expires the Blueville mail for Seaforth by way of Clinton and Kingston will be established between the latter place and Blueville. This arrangement will enable the Blueville people to get their mail a couple of hours sooner than at present as the Wingham stage is usually ahead of the stage from Seaforth.

The plague of flies that has done serious injury to cattle in some parts of the country has not entirely arrived in this locality. Some oxen have been rendered useless for work, but no fatal cases have occurred.

Harvest is well advanced, some few farmers have finished, and threshing has commenced.

Gibson of Wroxeter is already talked of as a candidate for the Local Legislature next election. His friends are confident they can run him, and attribute his non success last time to the over-confidence of his supporters in his return.

From Manitoba

Chicago, August 26.—A letter from the Red River country, dated August 17th, says that the provisional authorities have held a council at Fort Garry, for the purpose of deciding the question of allowing the Canadian expedition to take possession of the country. He was determined that resistance would be useless, and Riel's men commenced plundering Fort Garry.

Colonel Wolsley's command was expected about the 20th inst., and it was believed that by that time all the government rebels would be out of the settlement.

Fall Wheat Show

Thursday last, the fall wheat show, of N. H. Agricultural Society took place, but was very poorly attended, owing probably to the failure of fall wheat and the partial failure of spring wheat crops in this vicinity, but the fact that a great many of the farmers are very busy and have not yet threshed is perhaps the strongest reason of all, for their non-attendance. There were only three entries but the quality was very good, Sparrow, 1st. Canada Company's Prize of $30, R. Cole; 2nd Prize $5, J. Ryan; and 3rd, for best Treadwell wheat, $5, James McMichael. New Era.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray hair to its original Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. It wanted merely for a

A DRAFT SENTIMENT.

I am thirty-five, and usually judged to be a sensible man. All my friends have told me that I have what my friends call a genius for business, and I have made a fortune in California wines. I know I do not look as if there was over much of sentiment or romance in my life, and no youngster of 20 ever thought more about the girls than I do. Why, I am married.

I have always been wealthy; I am not in personal appearance exactly a Apollo, and ten years ago I was slenderer than I am now, and without the least vanity, I am fully aware that I could count on my fingers the compliments of dames and maidens, who would say "Yes" in a minute, to any matrimonial suggestions I might offer—provided of those suggestions included myself.

A fine old country place, and a comfortable share of bank stock are not drawbacks to marriage, but I cannot bring myself to say again to a woman words that I once said in vain.

It happened thus: Long ago, I saw a young girl, by my office in the city, I watch him down the street and I turn back to my Broker with a sad sensation that no one would ever interest me in that way again. That was the nearest I came to love, I know, and it was a sad sensation.

"Well, call the Undertaker, and take care of her. Do you think I'd trample my body out of my house on such a night as this?"

He shut the door hurriedly, and I heard him running along the hall to the front door, which changed opened, and a rush of storms and dark rain pressed against it. Then I heard two or three men enter, and go toward the dining-room.

"I really must go to bed," I said, looking at my watch, which told me it was almost ten o'clock.

But I could not go to bed, and for some reason I did not care to go into the dining-room to see who was there. I threw up the window and leaned out, listening toward the south. There was no noticeable sound save the constant recurring roar.

I was growing superstitious. I felt an impression of fate in the wild night, and I smiled at my own folly, and poured out a glass of wine, drinking it down rapidly.

A rustle of drapery in the hall, and Mrs. Wylde, the housekeeper, came in, saying:

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Mason; I know you said on no account must you be disturbed, but I thought I'd venture to ask you to come into the dining room. I don't know as she'll ever come to.

I was startled by the last apparently irreverent remark, and without saying anything, I followed her to where they had brought the unknown woman.

She lay on a lounge at the end of the room, the men who had brought her standing near, and the housemaid bending over her.

"Have you sent for Dr. Danforth?" I asked, quickly, turning to Mrs. Wylde.

"I wished to consult you first, sir," she replied, hesitatingly.

"Pertaining to the housekeeping."

"Send William for the doctor directly!" I said. "Take the best horse and put him in the buggy, so that Danforth can come instantly."

Then, as the girl left the room, I walked close to the lounge and bent over the figure there.

It was a young face then, a face of purity and pride that even in its immobility attracted me strongly. Not so beautiful as many women I have seen before and since, but having for me something that had a power over me at that first glance.

She look twenty-two or three, slender, almost fragile form, with pale brown hair, pale even while it was thus drenched with water, wide forehead and straight brows, a mouth full and truly cut. A woman at once of passion and principle; warm, truthful and faithful.

I knew this before I had seen her eyes. Involuntarily, I glanced at her hands. There were no rings there; the slender fingers lay nerveless on the shawl that had been wrapped round her.

Mrs. Wylde had exhausted her remedial powers, and none of us knew anything better to do than to wait for the arrival of Dr. Danforth. Becoming impatient, however, I insisted upon the repeating of her restorative measures, and in ten minutes I had the happiness of seeing these broad lids slowly lift themselves, and the bewildered eyes meet mine.

Just at that moment Dr. Danforth entered the room, having been overtaken half a mile from the house, and returning directly.

He took the girl's hand and looked steadily in her face, a flush of what I thought was unusual interest rising to his cheeks.

"Put her to bed—wrap warm flannels about her," he said, "and when you have done that, come to me."

He turned with us, and we both entered the library together.

"Who is she?" he asked, abruptly.

"You know as much about her as I do," I said.

"There's a schooner thrown ashore to-night—was she in that?" he inquired.

"Your servant said something about her having been brought from the shore. She would not have lived much longer."

"I know nothing of the schooner," my servant said she was brought from the beach."

I looked at Dr. Danforth and thought him—I for the first time—a remarkably audacious man—not so much from features from an innate nobility. He was about my age and unmarried. With a ready sympathy I thought I detected an added

The Rhine Frontier.

German and French feeling in regard to the Rhenish provinces has never, perhaps, been so well expressed as in Nikolaus Becker's German Song, which the pupil be by Alfred de Musset. Under following translations of one of them will therefore now be read with interest, and we cannot help noticing that one is the song of a patriot, the other that of a robber.

THE GERMAN RHINE.

BY NICOLAUS BECKER.

They never shall be France's
The free, the German Rhine,
Tho' raven-like she glances
And croaks her evil design.

So long as calmly gliding
It wears its mantle green,
So long as our divining
Its mirrored wave is seen.

They never shall be France's,
The free, the German Rhine,
So long as youth enhances
His fervor with its wine.

So long as, sentry keeping,
The rocks its margin stud;
So long as spires are sleeping
Their image in its flood;

They never shall be France's,
The free, the German Rhine,
So long as festive dances
Its lover-groups combine;

So long as angler bringeth
Its lusty trout to shore,
So long as minstrel singeth
Its praise from door to door.

They never shall be France's,
The free, the German Rhine,
Until its broad expanse is
Its last defender's shrine.

REPLY.

BY ALFRED DE MUSSET.

Our German Rhine has been ours before!
It has served our wassail bowls to fill.
Can singing its praise from door to door.
Efface the hoof-prints, legible still,
Of our cavalry charge that bathed its left bank in your gore!
Your German Rhine has been ours before!
On its breast the wound yet gapeth wide,
Which conquering Conde made, when he tore
Thro' its mantle of green to the farther side.
Where once the sire has ridden, shall the son not ride once more?
Your German Rhine has been ours before!
Of your German virtues what remains
When across its flood our legions pour
And the Empire overclouds your plains!
When all your men have fallen, have ye other men in store?
Your German Rhine has been ours before!
If so your annals would fain forget,
Your daughters remember the days of yore,
And wish the Frenchmen among them
yet,
For whom your vintage white they were always blithe to pour.
If your German Rhine be yoursonce more,
Then wash your liveries in its tide;
But pitch your arrogance somewhat lower!
Can you recall with generous pride
Your myriad raven-beaks that drank the flying Eagle's gore?
May your German Rhine flow evermore
In peace; and modestly may each spire
Be mirrored fair in its glassy floor!
But, oh! keep down your bacchanal fire
Which, else, may rouse to life again the victor lions of yore.

More Murders.

From the New York Herald, Tuesday.

The mysterious Nathan murder seems to have been followed by an extraordinary outbreak of the murder mania. On Saturday and Sunday this mania raged to such a degree that no less than eight murderous assaults were committed in New York and its vicinity. On Saturday a fratricide headed the dreadful record. Thomas McCormick, stabbed, it is believed fatally, his brother Martin. In the afternoon of the same day policeman Fitzsimmons was shot by Adam S. Oail, who was firing a revolver promiscuously in the streets. On Saturday night a man named Bimble was stabbed, probably fatally, by one or more of a drunken party in New York. On Sunday morning a man was brought from a tenement house at the corner of Bridge street and the Battery, frightfully mangled by blows from a hatchet or club, said to have been inflicted on him by a woman called "Big Maggie," who found him asleep in her bed. Another man was discovered about the same time on West street in a helpless condition, who alleges that he was assaulted with a club and left for dead, by a fish dealer in Washington market. Sunday evening one woman stabbed another during a quarrel in Mott street. On the same evening the Cecilia Singing Society, composed of Germans, was murderously attacked on their return from an excursion, by a crowd of rowdies in Williamsburg. Men, women and children were seriously, if not fatally, wounded. Is it not high time for the police, seconded by the efforts of all good citizens, to stay this bloody tide of murder!

"They Say."

The expression "They say——" is most generally used in retailing small bits of scandal. The speaker in effect says, "Now I am not responsible for this, I do not vouch for its truth; but you were speaking just now of Smith. Well, they say——" and out comes something not altogether to Smith's credit. Observe, the speaker does not wish to give you the unclean thing as from himself; he carries it, as it were, a pair of moral tongs, with which he handles the matter, and when he has put down the tongs he says, "I am not dirty." In the majority of instances, however, the phrase is used in sheer forgetfulness, with a desire, it may be, to say something sensational. To this compounded motive we are indebted for racy anecdotes of the sayings and doings of popular and well known persons. A complete collection of what "They say——" or of what has been said about Chalmers, Hall, or Spurgeon, would form a marvellous book. Yes, to collect "sayings" about a number of well-known persons would at once show their natural foulness, and the real criminality of the practice itself. In illustration of this two anecdotes may be referred to. Dr. Macknight, the well-known commentator on the Epistles, was very dry and heavy as a preacher. His colleague, Dr. Robertson (author of a History of England), possessed a great deal of real humour. On one occasion, on coming to a church, Dr. M. (who was to preach) was drenched by a heavy shower of rain. Every effort was used in the vestry to make him comfortable, but as the time for the service drew near he became very anxious about his state, exclaiming "Ah! I wish I were dry. D'ye think I'm dry?" Dr. Heary, who was present, patted him on the shoulder and said, "Bide a wee, doctor, and ye'se be dry enough when ye get into the pulpit." This very anecdote was related many years ago by the late Charles Mathews of two different clergymen; and a learned prelate of St. Paul's has also given it in a lecture on Yorkshiremen and manners, as a brief sermon arose between a very wet Wesleyan local preacher and a chapel-keeper, "illustrating Yorkshire wit." Cassell's Magazine for June.

General Rules to Be Observed in Consulting the Barometer.

1. If the Mercury stands about 29 inches, or the word "Changeable," without moving much, either up or down the weather will be unsettled and changeable.
2. If the Mercury rises to or above the word "Fair," fine weather is at hand.
3. Should it begin to rain when the Mercury stands high, it will be local, and very little of it.
4. If the Mercury continues to rise to or say for eight or ten days—and arrives at or above the line "Very Fair," then to manage look for drought—if in winter continued frost.
5. When the Mercury falls, it indicates foul weather; if the fall be slow, it will rain; if quick it will blow; and the fall is very low, a severe storm is sure to follow.
6. When, during a storm, the Mercury is seen to rise a little, then rest assured the worst is over.
7. When the Mercury moves frequently, either up or down, the weather that follows will be of short duration and variable.

STOP AND SEE.

THE following remarks on Testimonials of most wonderful and extraordinary cures in Canada by the GREAT INDIAN REMEDY. They are stern, undeniable and incontestible facts, sufficient to convince the most sceptical that the Great Medicinal Compound called after for ages is now accessible in the Great for Diseases of the Throat, Lungs, Liver, Digestive Organs, Kidneys, &c., as well as Scrotula, the various Skin Diseases, Humors, and all diseases arising from Impurities of the Blood, we boldly state that this great remedy has NEVER BEEN EQUALLED. Where was there ever such a cure as that in the person of Wilson Storms, of Brighton, C. W., of Consumption; or that of Peter C. V. Miller, Earnestown, C. W., of Consumption, or that of Ambrose Wood, of Cobourg, C. W., of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, or that of John Henry, of Napanee, C. W. of Rheumatism, who had actually been on crutches for years, in spite of all treatment heretofore, and is now well. Scores of such cases might be mentioned had we space.

SHOSHONEES REMEDY

Madoc, County of Hastings, Province of Ontario, Feb. 9th, 1868.

THIS is to certify that during the winter of 1866 I was taken with a weakness of the ancles, which gradually, during the spring of 1867, extended to my knees, and on to my hips, and I became so weak that I could not walk, but was confined to my chair. For about two years, while this weakness was coming on me, and afterwards, I used medical advice, employing all the great quantities of medicines of different kinds, prescribed by friends, &c. for no avail. I continued to get worse and worse, until the summer of 1866, when I was induced to try the great Shoshonees Remedy, reading the cures performed, in a pamphlet. At the time I had begun to feel the weakness in my legs; in fact I was getting almost helpless. I have taken two bottles of the Shoshonees Remedy and two boxes of the pills and I am entirely restored to health. I never expected to get better, but simply tried the medicine as a sort of forlorn hope. This case of mine was well known, and known to all my neighbors and friends, and to any one affected so, I can, I have only to say the Shoshonees Remedy; I believe it will cure you.

Sworn to before me at Madoc, County of Hastings, this 9th day of February, 1868. A. F. Wood, J. P. & c.

I hereby certify that I have known Mrs. Mary Ann Doughty for the last fifteen years; she is a woman of probity and truth. I have known her before, during, and since her illness; I believe her certificate to be true in every particular. I know that while ill her case was declared hopeless; and I know that she has, since her recovery, always attributed her recovery to the Shoshonees Remedy. Whatever may be the peculiar properties of this medicine, one thing is certain, that in her case, it has acted almost like the performance of a miracle.
