OUR CURBSTONE OBSERVER ON CHRISTMAS BOXES.

SATURDAY, December, 14, 1901.

The word Box is peculiar to the pagish language. notwithstanding the fact that the Chinese have Box-ers equally as puglistic as any in the western world. A Box is gener-ally supposed to be a chest made of wood or other material, and used for the purpose of stowing away goods. When you say that you own a Box it is understood that you are the possessor of such a pirce of fur-niture; but when you say that you are 'in a Box'' you do not mean, by any means, that your body is within the compass of that special chest: and when you talk of boxing the compass you designate an opermust have dozed off a little, for 1 recollect that the sounds in the house grew less distinct, and my mind seemed to have wandered away from the seentime duty that it had undertaken, and had gone straying about the realms of dream-land. Suddenly I heard the jingle of sleigh-bells, the tramp of trotting horses (or deers), the grinding of the runners on the Grisp Snow, and the sound of a voice shouting "whoal" Ser 1 the sound of a voice shouting "whoa!" Santa Claus had come, I feit sure. I bounded out of bed in a jiffy: I ran to the window-the sleigh car-rying the household to Church and just gone-I looked out - upon the moon-lit, white-surfaced lawn, and I trambled all over (some might say with cold, but Delive with excite-ment). I was fully confident that I had caught Santa Claus. I may have stood there for two or three minutes, when I remembered that he was to come down the chimney. This recollection caused me to go back to bed, and to watch closely the corner of the room where the freplace was situated. I waited quite a while, but the generous old wisitor did not appear. I then be-gan to turn over in my mind the strange conduct of the good Santa. Why not come in by the door, or the window? It was on the road that I heard the sleigh, and not on the roof of the house. If he did not want to be seen he could save himself all that climbing by getting in through the back door and com-ing up the stairs. In the midst of these reflections I fell asleep. I did not awaten until about seven in the morning. The moment my eyes were open I looked around for the results of Santa Claus' usit; and I found that he had been exceedingly gener-ous. Yet, all that day I felt a sense of keen disappointment, for I had missed seeing Santa Claus, and I was confident that had I been able to have kept awake for another five minutes I would have caught him. Had I not heard his sleigh-bells? Did I not even hear the tramp of his degres and the sound of his sleigh-runners? Was I not up, and at Las week I was visiting a friend on Sherbrooke street, and I had on. the compass you designate an oper-ation entirely foreign to the idea suggested by the simple word Box; then if you threaten to Box a fellow's ears, you convey an intention totally different from that in connection with the maritime instru-ment; again you will say of one has bungled an affair pretty badly, that he has 'Boxed up things' in bad shape, which does not mean that he has placed anyof wearing a Box-coat, you have no intention of conveying the idea that your coat is made of word, or even that it is a coat-of-mail, you mere-iy designate a certain cut; now a Boxwood tree is entirely different from a wooden Box; the man in a factory who does the boxing of matches, or other like articles, does not perform the exact same antics as the one who does the boxing in a prize ring. You thus see that an English Box is a pretty elastic af-falm-at least the word is capable of various interpretations. Conse-quently when, at this senson, we hear and read so much about Christ-mas Boxes, it does not necessarily tollow that these holiday gifts, or presents, consist of actual Boxes; but, very probably, in view of the latitude accorded by custom and sanctioned, from time to time, by your coat is made of wood, or even fashion, in regard to such marks of interest, friendship, esteem, or love, the word Box is about the best and most applicable one in our languge. I did not set out with the inten-tion of analyzing Anglo-Saxon words of the peculiar character of Box, but, as I reflected upon the immense variety of forms that Christmas presents take, I was na-turally led to consider the meaning of the term Christmas-Box. Stand-ing in front of a well-stocked win-dow, the other day, I was astonish-ed at the wonderful display of queer things that are manufactured espe-cially for this season of the year. How on earth sale can be had for such a mass of toys, games, pic-at the window when he arrived? Las week I was visiting a friend on Sherbrooke street, and I had oc-casion to spend a few minutes with the fiveyear-old heir of the house. He is a blight, well-behaved, amus-ing little fellow. Not knowing well what topic to take up, I asked him if he expected Santa Claus this year. The lad told me, in a matter-of-fact way, that he expected quite a lot of Xmas-Boxes, but that San-ta Claus was his own father and mother. Having asked him how he came to that conclusion, he said that his mother selected the toys, his father paid for them, and Santa Claus got the credit of bringing them. Some people might consider that this boy was exceedingly cle-ver, very knowing, very old-fashion-ed, in fact a precocious child. For my part I felt very sorry for him. I saw that he was destined to never know or experience the real joys of childhood. There are no children in our days; they leap from the cradle, into manhood. It is too bad, for, in reality, the very happiest, the best, the most glorious portions of their lives are lost to them. The cares of existence come to them when their lives should be absolute-ly free from every shade of wory. The world is improving, in a mate-How on earth sale can be had for such a mass of toys, games, pic-tures, and the like is more than 1 could ever tell. Yet, sold they all are, and despile the enormous out-put there still remain children who never see much less handle or pos-sess any of these objects. Again, it is astounding what an amount of money must be spent each year, at Christmas time, on all kinds of inge-nious devices for the anusement of the little ones. Old Santa Claus is a costly gentleman, when we consi-der the number of factories it takes to supply him with a sufficient car-go to meet all the demands upon him. when their lives should be absolute-ly free from every shade of worry. The world is improving, in a mate-rial sense, but happiness is being vanished in a proportionate degree. The hour that Santa Claus vanishes forever will mark the end of that most loveable of all periods in hu-man existence-childhood.

sidered themselves as guests and had not even dured to ask whether there was anything to pay. On the second day bills with deli-cate hints for payment were stuck on the walls with pins. The result was that nobody was hungry or thirsty, and nobody took anything. The financial downfall of the club seems inevitable.

A freight train was passing east at a slow rate around a dangerous curve, 400 feet above the Frazer River, when Engineer Randall saw a rock slide scarcely fifty feet ahead of him. A signal was given to the brakeman and the engine was re-versed, but it was too late. IMMIGRANTS' ILLITERACY. --Analysis of the official figures of im-migration for the fiscal year 1901 hords an interesting view of the relative standards of education among the common people, or, to use Lincoln's preferable phrase, "the plain people," of the different European countries, says the New York "World." The grand total of illiterate immi-grants was 117.645 -- which means that 27 of every 100 immigrants over fourteen years of age that came to us last year could not read or write their own language. Tassing on to the race items, it appears that Scandinavian immi-grants are the best educated, less than one in 100 of them being illi-torate. English and Scotch immi-grants come next, with a little over in 100 of them unable to read and write. Of Irish immigrants 3.2 per cent, only were illiterate, of French, 3.9 per cent.; of German, 4.1 per cent.; of Dutch and Flemish, 7.8 per cent. The Italian immigrants show the highest proportion of illiterates, but there is a marked difference be-tween those from Northern and those from Southern Italy, for wille 15 in every 100 is the illiterate ra-tio among the former, it is 50 in every 100 among the latter.

MILLIONS FOR MILK TRUST

A Chicago company with $2,000,-000 capital is said to be back of a project to control the milk market in Columbus. The project involves the construction of several large milk depots with facilities in each for the sterilization and clarifica-tion of milk and its cold storage.

Two promoters of the company have been at work here for several days. Their plan has been laid be-fore the city Board of Health, and the sanitary arrangements propos have the approval of that body.

MARKET REPORT.

The opening of the week finds the grain situation very little changed if at all, but flour and feed prices are higher all round. The prices for Manitoba brands have advanced twenty cents per barrel, and Onta-rio flours in proportion. Manitoba millers claim that the advance of twenty cents does not cover the ad-vance in wheat since wheat has ad-vanced from six to seven cents or equal to from thirty to thirty-five cents per barrel in addition to an cents per barrel in addition to an advance in freight rates of ten cents from Fort William to Montreal. Feed has also increased materially in price, as will be seen from the prices quoted below. There are no changes in other lines.
