

No Issue Next Week

There will be no issue of the Alberta Star next week. We are taking our usual week off but while it may be off so far as the paper is concerned it will be strictly "on" with the printing of the Premium List. The Star will furnish 500 copies of the Prize List, 1,000 posters, 1,000 envelopes and membership cards to the Agricultural Association free of charge and we naturally expect that every business man will give us a little advertising in the Prize List. It will be a good way of discovering those who wish to help the Agricultural Fair—one of the greatest and best institutions we have. Watch for the book and keep your eye and purse out for the advertisers.

Saw the Austins

A big crowd went out to the fair grounds on Wednesday evening to see the exhibition of "bronco busting" by the Austin boys of Cardston. The boys put up a good exhibition of riding but the show from a grand stand point of view was marred by the fact that after a mistrow and a break away the bunch of horses got wild and refused to be driven up between the relay pens and the grand stand fence, breaking back every time they were brought up. After considerable chasing around it was decided to put them in a corral in the rear of the grand stand where they were roped and brought out in turn to be rode.

Messrs Jim Austin, Dave Austin and Dave Jessup each rode a couple of horses. The bay EH mare rode by Jim Austin and the iron grey rode by Dave Jessup being about as "snakey as they make 'em" but they did not pitch as long and hard as they might have done if it were not for the rather severe mulling they received around the grounds.

Jim Smith did most of the roping and, in spite of the meanness of the horses, made one or two throws which drew forth the applause of the grand stand.

The work was more like the real every day work on the range than like a wild west show but the Austin boys have never given a show before and those who expected everything to work like clock work must make allowances.—Lethbridge News.

LETHBRIDGE

We had the pleasure of spending the best part of last week in the city of Lethbridge. It is indeed an "eye opener" (but not of the Calgary order) to witness the progress that is being made in that city. We doubt very much if there is a city in the Canadian West today that is making the progressive strides that Lethbridge is and Lethbridge—let it be understood—has reached that happy state of affairs so conducive to her permanent commercial and agricultural standing, viz. that Cardston and the district along the A. R. and I. is no mean factor in the augmenting and developing of her best interests. There is a fast "falling away of that narrow-minded "side-tracking spirit" and a brighter and better manifestation of that spirit which unites and solidifies the respective conditions in the various parts. Lethbridge realizes that her pre-eminence in the south depends largely upon the country she has to draw to—the country that is tributary to her. It is her boast today that the districts of Cardston, Spring Coulee, Magrath, Raymond and Stirling are contiguous to Lethbridge and to a greater or lesser extent center in Lethbridge. But of Lethbridge? It is growing beyond the hopes of its most ardent admirers and supporters. "Leaps and bounds" is a rather hackneyed phrase, yet it very signally defines Lethbridge at the present time. A bigger Lethbridge means a bigger Cardston and vice versa, at least just so long as our interests are so nearly connected by that double band of steel called the A. R. and I. South Western Alberta has almost "all things in common." We live for each other. This building up of a country is a sort of Mutual Improvement Association. We help each other and that sordid, selfish spirit that cannot look beyond its own cabin never did much for the making of commonwealths or the building up of new countries. We are pleased to note the change in spirit and action in our neighboring city. It augurs well for the good of the whole community.
