Aldermen Ouite Chesty Over Ontario Railway Board's Order.

Direct Company to Obey It, and Take a Haughty Stand.

Committee Decides on New System for Checking Time Sheets.

The Board of Works aldermen are quite chesty since the Ontario Railway Board gave that order for the street railway to narrow the devil strip to four feet on Herkimer street. They held a special meeting last night to consider the matter, and instructed the City Solicitor to take out the order, and City Clerk Kent to notify the company to comply with it at once. The doughty aldermen regarded that part of the order directing them to do their share of the work of fixing up the street with rather a quiz-

"Can the board force us to fix up the streets of Hamilton?" asked Chairman Sweeney, doubtfully.
"No," said Ald. Lewis, with hesitation.

It was explained, however, that . suggestion of overtures to the company, although some of the members expressed themselves cocksure that the street railway would grovel when it saw the city determined. "We have them now; let them come to us," was the haughty stand the aldermen took. They also passed a resolution that Herkimer street, from Queen to Locke street, be macadamized. Secretary Brennan said he had been unofficially informed that the Brantford & Hamilton Railway was ready to proceed with the work on Main street, east of James street, on the terms laid down by the city, to pave all the street from James to lingheon street. The company has a diamond with a five-foot devil strip for James street, and Secretary Brennan suggested it might not be a had iden if the devil strip was made five feet so the permanent road that would be laid would not have to be torn up again. The fighting aldermen frowned on the proposal.

The committee agreed on a new system of checking over the time of city laborers as a result of the talk that has filled the air about loose methods. First the alderment talked over the case of a man named (YNeil, who was on the pay roll although he was not working. They accepted Ward Forenam Nelligan's explanation and said they could see no intention of the work. The man in charge of the job had reported all the men except one, was a in Detroit four days, and make the meantime applied to Mr. Brennan few work, and the mistake was discover. Od. Mr. Nelligan said he was about to inform the secretary of the error when Mr. Brennan called up. O'Neil corroborated the story, and Chairman Sweeney added that he was convinced from the beginning it was purely a mistake.

Ald. McLaren said there should be some system of keeping daily tab on the time, and instead of a weekly time report from the foreman there should be one every day. Wr. Brennan explained that a report of this kind would be useless unless thoroughly checked every day, which meant employing another clerk in the department.

It was agreed to go ahead with the repair work that has already been sanctioned by the Council, and to finish filling in the holes on the block on King street which was begun yesterday.

Chairman Sweeney said that although there was going to be an overdarft, he would not take the responsibility of laying off all the city laborers and shutting down all the works.

The Cataract Power Company wrote regarding some three-glower Nernst lamps it is installing in place of are lamps. There are a large number of places where it cannot put up these lamps though, the letter explains, because it would cost from $75 to $200 each to install there, far more than the comrevenue during the contract term. The y Solicitor will be asked to see if the city can compel the company to do it.

Ald. McLaren said there should be some siystem of keeping daily tab on the time, and instead of a weekly time report from the foreman there should be one every day. Mr. Bremnan explained that a report of this kind would be naeless unless thoroughly checked every day, which meant employing another clerk in the department.

Ald. Jutten said even if it was so, it would be good business, and he seconded Ald. McLaren's motion that daily time sheets be made out each day and mailed to the City Hall.

Mayor Stewart's action in ordering street repairs stopped roused the ire of Ald. Baird.

"Supposing the fermer Mayor did such as thing when he was chairman of the Board of Works, what would have happened?" he asked. "There is not a bigger growler or kicker on the face of the cart!!"

It was agreed to go ahead with the repair work that has already been sane.

"The murderer's complaint that Dr. Hirst 'struck him on the knees,' tells its own tale to a medical man," said a West Ead specialist in an interview. "One of the methods employed in diagnosing general paralysis of the insane is to ask the patient to balance one leg across the other. A slight blow with the side of the open hand near the top of the upper kneecap gives a certain reflex action, or 'knee jerk,' as a result. This is purely involuntary on the part of the patient, but medical men can draw most valuable deductions."

London, Sept. 18.—The motor-omni bus does not pay, and is not likely to do so for some time to come, said Mr. Henry Hicks, deputy chairman of the London General Omnibus Company, at Thursday's meeting. The question was one of several raised by shareholders after the explanation of the loss on the half-year's working given by Sir John Pound, the chairman. His statement included as causes of cut in fares.

Sir John stated, however, that the directors were in conference with the railway and omnibus companies to readjust facilities and enable them to work at a profit. Omnibus miles had been reduced from 16,600,000 to 15,900,000. Reduction from 16,600,000 to 15,000,000. Reduction in fares meant a drop of £16,600, or, in two years, £37,000. A loss of £20,700 was due to the smallest number of passengers per omnibus mile.

What were the prospects, he asked, of the density of traffic improving? Public service vehicles were more numerous than could now be profitably employed. The most glaring instance was probably that of the L. C. C. electric trams. At certain points a procession of these huge "traffic congesters" almost touched one another, carrying paly a fair load for a quarter of the number. It seemed to him a matter of calculation with regard to certain motor-omnibus companies now o certain motor-omnibus companies now unning at a loss how long their financial arrangements would permit their ontinuing as going concerns.

Mr. H. C. Webb complained that the accounts of the horse and of the motoromnibuses were amalgamated. Were they going to stand by horses or motors, or to amalgamate the two?

Mr. Hicks said there was as yet no chance of obtaining an improved type of motor. He did not believe that motoromnibuses had been run in London at a profit at all. Although he did not think horse-omnibuses would ever be eliminated from the streets of London, yet he thought that it might be possible to make motor-omnibuse pay.

articles. We desire at once to dissociate ourselves from these demonstrations, which only tend to alienate the government and the people from each other. We venture to assert that the bulk of the people of the country are loyal and law-abiding. We now appeal to our countrymen, Hindoos and Mahommedans, for a display of the practical good sense which some of our critics deny to us. We appeal to them to discountenance any wild and mischievous propaganda which tends to encourage disaffection to British rule, or to create feelings of animosity between different classes and communities in India; for it is this tendency which furnishes the occasion and the exwhich furnishes the occasion and the ex-cuse for the repressive measures which have recently been resorted to. Nor must we forget that, whatever may be its shortcomings, it is to British rule that we owe our present security of life and property, the spread and property, the spread of education and the progress which India is now making according to modern civilized ideals. This is emphatically the worst possible time to encourage unworthy sentiments of rancour and ill-feeling. No true patrict will hesitate to range himself, with us, on the side of law and order at the present juncture, so as, on the one hand to restore the good will and harmony which formerly prevailed among all classes and communities in India, and, on the other hand, to leave the authorities no ground for bringing coercion to bear upon any group of British subjects.
