

MARGUERITE'S SECRET

"Be silent! How dare you humiliate yourself, to flatter me so unbecomingly!" exclaimed Marguerite, flushing with indignation. "As for the magnificent, that can be easily transferred; fine feathers make fine birds, and queensly gowns go very far toward making queensly women."

"Oh, no, not at all! It is nothing to speak of a sharp flaw in the setting of the stones pierced my finger; I think that is all," answered Marguerite, drawing off the ring that was stained with blood. Mr. Helmstedt took the jewel, walked up to the fireplace, and threw it into the glowing coals.

"Well! if that is not the most wanton piece of destructiveness I ever saw in my life," said Cornelia, indignantly; Mr. Helmstedt draw the ring and come and put it on your finger, I thought it was a happy sign; but now see how it is! everything that man touches, turns not to gold, but to blood or tears, that he thinks only can be dried in the fire."

"Don't use such fearful words here on your bridal evening, dear Nellie, they are ill-omened. Yes, indeed, unjust to Mr. Helmstedt, I think," said Marguerite, who had now quite recovered her composure. "They were false diamonds after all, Miss De Lencie," said Mr. Helmstedt, rejoicing in the ladies.

"The bishop had retired from the room; the musicians had entered and taken their places, and were now playing a lively prelude to the quadrilles; partners were engaged, and were only waiting for the bride and groom to open the ball as is the custom. Nellie gave her hand to her colonel, and suffered herself to be led to the head of the set. She belongs to society, I think, also, to history. She requires a nation for her field of action. I have known her from childhood and watched with wonder her development. It is the friction of marvelous and uncorrected energies that cause her to glow and radiate in society as you see her. It is sheer frenzy, your pursuit of her. I tell you, I have seen a love chase worth ten of yours—Lord William Daw!"

"Lord William Daw!" interrupted Philip Helmstedt, curling his lips with ineffable scorn. "Well, now, I assure you, Philip, the heir presumptive of a marquise is not to be sneered at. He is besides a good-looking and well-behaved young fellow, except that he differs from the second duke likewise; then Marguerite, in her turn, descended. She had never before seen the distinguished-looking personage, then waiting at the foot of the stairs to offer his arm and lead her on; but Colonel Compton stood ready to present her, and last step, paused, and raised her eyes to look at the stranger, whom Cornelia's description had invested with a certain interest.

"A tall, thin, muscular form, large, clear-cut aquiline features, raven black hair, strongly marked eyebrows, deep-set piercing dark gray eyes, a stern and somewhat melancholy countenance, a stately, not to say august, carriage, a style of dress careful even to nicety, a tout ensemble indicating a forcible, fiery, high-toned, somewhat arrogant character, but a certain grace and refinement, just what Marguerite's perceptions. She had scarcely made these observations, and withdrawn her glance, when Colonel Compton, taking the stranger's hand and turning to her, said:

"Miss De Lencie, permit me to present to you Mr. Helmstedt, of Northumberland County." Again Marguerite lifted her eyes. A stately bow, a gracious smile, a mellifluous voice in addressing her, threw a charm, a warm, bright glow, like a sudden sunburst over those stern, dark features, clothing them with an indescribable beauty as fascinating as it was unexpected.

"I esteem myself most happy in meeting Miss Le Lencie," he said. Marguerite dropped her eyes, and blushed deeply beneath his fixed, although deferential gaze, curtesy-like, she received a slight nod and followed to the others who were waiting at the door. The bride and groom brought up the rear. And the party entered the saloon. The rooms were superbly adorned, brilliantly illuminated, and densely crowded by a splendid company.

"The white-gowned bishop stood upon rug in front of the fireplace, facing the assembly. A space had been left clear before him, upon which the bridal party opened; the rites commenced, and in ten minutes after little Nellie'sCompton was transmogrified into Mrs. Compton-Houston.

ceeded by the stately minut, and that by the graceful waltz, and the time-honored and social Virginia reel. Then came an interval of repose, preceding the sumptuous supper. Then the outpouring of the whole company into the dining room; and the eating, drinking, toasting and jesting; then they adjourned to the saloon, when again quadrilles, minuets, reels and waltzes alternated with short-lived rest, refreshment, gossip and flirtations, until a late hour, when the discovered disappearance of the bride and her attendants gave the usual warning for the company to break up. At the covert invitation of Colonel Compton, some of the gentlemen, who were without ladies, lingered after the usual hour, and the guests, and adjourned with himself and his son-in-law, to the dining room, where, after drinking the health of the newly married pair, they took leave.

THE ODDFELLOWS

Prevented by Clergy From Going to Church.

Lindsay, June 3.—There are a large number of very indignant Canadian Order of Oddfellows at Lindsay and at Fenelon Falls. Last Sunday morning about forty-five of the Fenelon Falls brethren were expected to attend the annual divine service at Lindsay in St. Paul's Church, and for this purpose they had previously chartered one of the many pleasure boats. Sunday morning the Fenelon Falls brethren were all nicely housed on board the boat and were about pulling out, when four clergymen raised the craft and forbade them from running the boat on Sunday. The trip had to be cancelled, but the adherents of the order were so incensed that they immediately hired all the canoes they could in the village and took a jaunt down the river, where they proceeded to spend the day, in the meantime vowing that they would never again attend any of the four churches at which the four clergymen officiated.

A DELIGHTFUL TIME.

Annual At-Home at the Aged Women's Home.

The aged Women's Home and Orphan Asylum held their annual at-home yesterday afternoon from four to seven o'clock. There were many visitors. The managing committee did a great credit for the way the institution is run, and the excellent condition it is kept in. Lomas' orchestra supplied music and refreshments were served in the parlor. Mrs. Renwick, President, Mrs. Strachan and Mrs. R. L. Gunn, Vice-Presidents, received the visitors. Mrs. Lucas, Mrs. Spratt, Mrs. Wainwright and Mrs. Greening were the committee appointed to receive the contributions at the door; refreshment committee, Mrs. Evel, Mrs. Lazier, Mrs. Melroy and Mrs. Gates; decoration committee, Mrs. F. B. Greening, Mrs. T. H. Husband, Mrs. Chester Freeman and Mrs. E. Lazier. One of the features admired was the sitting room, which had been provided by Mrs. Sanford in the last year, for the old ladies. The at-home was a great success, everybody being greatly delighted with the institution and the entertainment.

COLES' CIRCUS.

Large Crowds Enjoyed Good Performances Yesterday.

Cole Bros' circus has been here and gone. Many people there were who took advantage of the first show of the year, and the result was the big "top" was packed for the afternoon and evening performances. The circus was of exciting moments throughout. During one of the races a little tot from the audience wandered out in the middle of the course, and it was by good luck and good management that the child was saved from death, as the horses rushed by her only a foot away. A gentleman from the audience grabbed the child and drew it out of the danger line, and a sigh of relief went over the vast audience as the little one was rescued. The trapeze work, and also that of the ring artists was good and commended considerable applause.

THE DEADLY OIL CAN.

Farmer's Wife Was Fatally Burned by Kerosene Explosion. Medicine Hat, Alberta, June 3.—The wife of A. J. Olsen, a farmer living at Medicine Hat, was fatally burned to death last evening while preparing supper. The cause of the accident was the explosion of a coal oil can which Mrs. Olsen had used to start the fire.

You Blame the Stomach

But chronic indigestion will disappear when your liver, kidneys and bowels are enlivened to action. You are skeptical. For you have tried many medicines and still suffer from indigestion with all its annoying symptoms. Take a new life. Leave the stomach alone, for the source of trouble is in the liver, and a healthy digestion can be restored by the use of Dr. A. W. Chase's Kidney and Liver Pills. In some ways this treatment is unique. It has a specific and combined action on liver, kidneys and bowels, brings about a thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems and thoroughly cures indigestion and constipation. The first dose will convince you that you are being benefited, and you will soon know what it is to have a healthy, natural appetite and good digestion. Together with the reliability of his Receipt Book, the extraordinary success of this medicine has made Dr. A. W. Chase world famous, his portrait and signature are on the box. Dr. A. W.
