from the spot where it had fallen from the hands of Mrs. Quest, he started for the castle.

And then it was that for the first time there flashed upon his mind the extraordinary importance of this dreadful accident in its bearing upon his own affairs. If Cossey died he could not marry Ida, that was clear. That was what Mrs. Quest must have meant when she said that it would be good news for Ida. But how did she know anything about Ida's engagement to Edward Cossey? And by Jove! what did the would do if he had killed the only thing he loved in the world? Cossey must be the "only thing she loved," and now he thought of it, when she believed that he was dead she called him "Edward, Edward."

Now, Harold Quaritch was as simple and unsuspicious a man as it would be easy to find, but he was no fool. He had moved about the world and on various occasions came in contact with cases of this sort, as most other men have done. He knew that when a woman in a moment of distress, calls a man by his Christian name it is because she is in the habit of thinking of him and speaking to him by that name. Not that there was much in that by healf, but in public she called him "Mr. Portion of the land of the land was the "only the land of the land moved about the world and on various occasions came in contact with cases of this sort, as most other men have done. "Hair Magic'

Is a good name of Dr. Dorenwend's German preparation for the hair. It really works like magic. All who have used it pronounce it to be unequaled for remedying the lost vitality of the hair roots, restoring gray hair, removing dandruff, etc. Just try it. It is first-class. All druggists sell it.

A company for the manufacture of trousers is a clothes corporation.

A man's wife should always be the same especially to her husband, but if she is weak at the company for the will make her "feel like a dilierent person." at least so they all say, and their husbands say so, too.

"Smithekins has made lots of money, hasn't he?" "Yes; any one can tell he's rich." "How?" "He walks down to his office every day to save car fare."

Carter's little Liver Pills must not be contained with convence Catherity or Purcaling two doctors whispered together for a few seconds.

"Will he live?" asked Mr. Quest.

"We cannot say," answered the older doctor. We do not think it probable that he will. It will depend upon the extent of his injuries, and whether or no they have extended to the spine. If he does live he will probably be paralyzed to some extent, and he will certainly lose the hearing of the right car."

When she heard this Belle sunk down upon a chair overwhelmed, and then the two doctors, assisted by Harold, set to work to carry Edward Cossey in another room which had rapidly been prepared, leaving Mr. Quest alone with his wife.

He came and stood in front of her and looked her in the face and then laughed.

"Upon my word," he said, "we men are bad enough, but you women beat us in wickedness." omee every day to save car rate. Mr. Job Scales, of Toronto, writes: A short time ago I was suffering from Kidney Complaint and Dyspepsia, sour stomach and lame back; in fact, I was completely prostrated and suffering intense pain. While in this state a friend recommended me to try a bottle of Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery. I used one bottle, and the permanent manner in which it has cured and made a new man of me is such that I cannot withhold from the proprietors this expression of my gratitude."

thing she loved," and Edward was secretly engaged to Ida, and Mrs. Quest knew it.

"Now, when a man has the fortune, or rather the mistortune, to be the only thing a married woman is aware of the fact of his devotion for and engagement to sombebody else, it is obvious, he reflected, that in nine cases out of ten the knowledge will excite strong feelings in her breast, feelings, indeed, which in some natures would almost amount to madness.

When he had first seen Mrs. Quest that alternoons alse and Cossey were alone to gether, and he had noticed something unsual about her, something unsatural and intense. Indeed, he had, he remembered, told her that she looked like the Tragic Muse. Could it be that the look was the look of a woman maddened by insult and jealousy, who was meditating some fearill crime. How did that gun go off. He did not see it, and he thanked God that he did not, for somehow we are not always as anxious to bring our fellow-creatures to justice as we might be, especially when they are young and pretty women. How did tay go off. She understood guns, he could see that from the way she handled it. Wissons it likely that it exploded of itself, or owing to an accidental touchof the trigger. It was spossible, but not likely. Still, such things had been known to happen, and it would be impossible to prove that it had not happened in this case. If it was an attempted murder it was very cleverly managed, because nobody could prove that it was not accidental. But could it be that that soft, beautiful, baby-faced woman had on the spur of the moment taken advantage of his louded gun to wreak her jealousy and wrongs on her faithless lover. Well, the face is no mirror of the quality of the soul within, and it was possible. Further that that, it did not seem to him to be his bust in quire.

The comment taken advantage of his looked to at once, or lingering or must be looked to at once, or lingering or must be looked to at once, or lingering or must be looked to at once, or lingering or must be looked to at once and has a power possessed by nothing else in all brain and nerve diseases.

My Toothache!

My Toothache!

Is an exclamation heard every hour in the day. Toothache is the most common allment of young and old, and in the aggregate inflicts more suffering than perhaps any other single complaint. A one-minute cure is what everybody desires to possess. Nerviline—nerve pain cure—acts almost instantly in relieving the agony, and as a sample bottle atfords a quantity sufficient for 100 applications, 10 cents fills the bill. Polson's Nerviline is the only positive remedy for toothache and all nerve pains. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

with some return of spirit, "do you think I would injure a wounded man?"

"I do not know," he answered with a shrug, "and as for what I take you for, I take you for a woman whose passion has made her mad," and he turned and left the roem.

When they had got Edward Cossey, dead or alive—and he looked more like death than life—up to the room prepared for him, the Colonel, seeing that he could be of no further use, left him with a view of going at once to the castle.

On his way out he looked into the drawing room and there was Mrs. Quest, still sitting on the chair and gazing blankly before her. Pitying her, he entered, "Come, cheer up; Mrs. Quest," he said, kindly, "they hope that he will live."

She made no answer.
