MRS. R. SHAW-WOOD. The remains of the late Mrs. R Shaw-Wood, whose death occurred last Sunday at the family residence of Woodholme, London township, were conveyed to Woodland cemetery this morning, service being held at the Church of the Hosanna, Hyde Park, at 11 o'clock. Deceased was the daughter of Rev. Robert Shaw, of Barnet, Vernt. who was for some time rector of St. Mary's Church Coldspring, in the highlands of the Hudson. Mr. Shaw was a direct descendant of Sir John Shaw of Scotland. He married Sarah Jane Hooker, a descendant of the far-famed "Judicious" Hooker. Mrs. Shaw-Wood was born in 1834, and was married to Mr. Richard Shaw-Wood, of Bosco Manor, in the Islands of Ber-muda, whence the family removed to Canada, and settled at Woodholme, near Hyde Park. P. Redker, a Port Burwell Tailor, the Victim of a Brutal Assault.

A brutal assault and highway robbery occurred in London West last night about 6:30 o'clock.

J. P. Redker, tailor, of Port Burwell,

a man about 50 years of age, came to the city yesterday morning on business, and with him brought considerable money. He transacted his business, and being a stranger in the city, inquired for the Hodgins House, where his daughter, Mrs. Harry Nicholls, was living with her husband. He was shown to the Central House, kept by W. S. Hodgins, by a smooth young fellow, who was particularly obliging. Mr. Redker had a couple of drinks with Hodgins House, to see his daughter. The stranger followed him, too, and tried to pass off as Mr. Redker's son. Afterwards Mr. Redker went out to transact some business, and in the evening, to oblige his new friend, agreed to take a walk with him. The stranger lured him through London West, where they were seen by many parties, going north towards the C. P. R. track. Darkness was setting in, and about 6:30, when near the C. P. R. bridge, and when the streets were practically deserted for the diningroom, the unknown man stepped behind his victim, and struck him on top of the head with either a piece of iron or a stone. He was rendered insensible, and fell in the road, where the stranger relieved him of $31 in cash and a gold watch valued at $85. He then traded his old hat for a brand new Christie, which Mr. Redker wore, and walked off, leaving the unfortunate man bleeding in the ditch. When Mr. Redker recovered consciousness, he realized what had betallen him, and thought he was in St. Thomas. staggered to his feet and made his way to Mrs. Wm. Lawrence's grocery store, near by. Detective. Ward was notified, went to the place, and removed Mr. Redker to his daughter's rooms at the Hodgins House. Dr. Weekes was summoned immediately to check the small artery had been severed by the blow. The left eye and side of the face were also badly lacerated. The city police and detectives, together with the county men, made a complete search of the city last night, but a man answering the description of the robber could not be located. The denominations of the money stolen from Mr. Redker were a ten, two fives and four one dollar bills, and a lot of sil-The hat the desperado left with Mr. Redker was never intended for the man who wore it, as it contained much padding, and was decidedly out of date. Mr. Redker thinks he must have hit the robber with his fist, as one of his knuckles on the right hand was dislo-

Visit to London of Dr. Mary

Wood-Allen. Addresses Next Tuesday Afternoon and Evening.

The citizens of London and vicinity steady flow of blood from the top of the can justly expect a treat in the comteresting. Refreshments were served head. The doctor ascertained that a ing of Dr. Mary Wood-Allen, national superintendent of purity work in the the greatest care and skill. Women's Christian Temperance Union, also national lecturer for the same organization in the department of heredity and hygiene. It was our privilege, while in attendance at the World's W. C. T. U. convention, held recently in Toronto, to be present at the two meetings over which Dr. Wood-Allen presided. Her gift of ready utterance, her refined womanly bearing, her musical voice, combined with an astonishing accumulation of facts, and a substraction of scientific truth, all give an earnest of how highly enjoyable and beneficial would it be to hear her lecture. This opportunity will be afforded Londoners Tuesday, Nov. 23, afternoon and evening. (See advertising columns). From one of the Danville (Ill.) dailies we cull the following in regard to the lecture Dr. Wood-Allen will deliver in the Auditorium Tuesday even-"Dr. Wood-Allen's lecture last night was listened to with closest attention by an audience of cultured and thoughtful neople, and everyone felt a most beautiful, instructive and helpful lesson was lost to any who were absent."

Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I wish Dr. Wood-Allen might be heard in every city, congregation and community. Her lecture delivered here before an immense audience, greatly interested, pleased and profited. It was indeed most excelent in sentiment and delivery." Could Londoners in general realize the value of Dr. Wood-Allen's lectures, she would be greeted with crowded houses here, as she has been President, London Women's Christian Temperance Union.

Saturday Night's Christmas. In another column will be found the announcement of Saturday Night's Christmas Number, a credit to Canadian journalism, and to the enterprise and ability of the managers of this upto-date paper. Canadians cannot look through this beautiful number without a feeling of pride in the ability of the home contributors, both in the literary and illustrated productions, which is Canadian home talent. This beautiful number is far and away ahead of any previous issue. Added to the paper are two large and beautiful colored pic-tures entitled "The First Harvest in Canada," and "Canada Sixty Years After." The subjects represent the Canadian pioneer and the successful farmer, and are typical of Canadian life. They appeal to all homes connected with the farm, and what homes are not? Just the thing to send to absent friends as a souvenir. These pictures have been exclusively produced for Saturday Night's Christmas Number, and make a beautiful pair of pictures for the sitting-room.

A warm, damp climate, with a high temperature and abundant rainfall, is what the tea plant needs to bring out its qualities, and that's why Ceylon, which realizes these atmospheric conditions produces the best tea grown.
