London, Oct. 4. — Why the writing of the Semitic race should distinguish itself from that of nearly all other peoples in that it runs from right to left is a ques tion that has never been satisfactoril explained from a physiological standpoint unless a new theory is to be accepted put forward by Dr. Erlenmeyer, a German savant.

He maintains that the ancient Hebrews were all left-handed. In support of his argument he quotes various passages in the Talmud, where special directions are given concerning the use of certain phylacteries, with the right hand. Several passages in the Old Testament also seem to bear out Dr. Erlenmeyer's contention, notably in the cases of Jacob and Job. The former, as related in the Book of Genesis, laid his left hand— "wittingly," the text says.—In blessing upon the head of the first-born of Joseph's sons.

Canon Tucker has not yet made known his wishes in the matter, and will not do so until the meeting on Oct. 13 in this city of the Anglican mission board. If he decides to accept the rectorship of St. Paul's Cathedral Canon Tucker will tender his resignation at that meeting.

Many friends of Canon Tucker when spoken to last night were not surprised at the announcement, for they looked upon the offer of the London rectorship as a reward for service well performed. The duties of the secretary of the Church of England Missionary Society takes that official out of town a great deal and means a lot of travelling.

Dr. Kelman will be the first to be approached by representatives of St. Paul's session. Should the hopes of the people of St. Paul's be fulfilled, the congregation will gain one of the most famous pulnit content. pulpit orators and able pastors the Scottish Presbyterian Church can boast of today.
