Rules For Treating the Horse Right During the Hot Summer Weather

1. A clean stable. No manure should be allowed to gather. The cleaner you keep the stable the better for the horse and yourself.
2. Screens on doors and windows. Plenty of fresh air (most important) can thus circulate, and flies can be kept from your horse.
3. Sponges your horse oftenest where he sweats the most. Rub him dry. Fluffy towels are good and cheap. Do not use the hose on your horse.
4. Cleanse eyes and nostrils, and occasionally the ears.
5. You cannot be too careful of the noofs. Never allow yourself to leave the stable at night without thoroughly cleaning the lower portions of the legs and fetlocks. Where clay can be obtained, it will pay to pack the hoofs at least three times a week, making the clay into a stiff paste.
6. Watch the shoulders. If while working your horse, you find the shoulders getting sore, far better for the horse and yourself to stop working for a half hour, rub down the shoulders, and apply the following hardening lotion: Tannic acid, 1/2 oz; powdered alum, 2 oz; carbolic acid, 1 dr; water, 1 qt.
7. Occasionally, during the day, sponge the head, neck and eyes.
8. Do not fasten a sponge on top of the head, unless you keep it wet.
9. The straw bonnet is of some service. If there are ventilation holes through the sides. If the holes are not there, the temperature at the top of the head just where it is least wanted.
10. Give your horse small quantities of water many times during the day.
11. When your horse comes in from a day's work in the hot sun, give him a chance to "cool off" before putting him into the stable, and small quantities of water.
12. Then put him into the stable and feed. The above is a particularly helpful method during the hot summer weather, such as some days last summer. If you fail to treat your horse as just advised, he is liable to start out tired the following morning and may collapse before the day's work is done.
13. Give your horse a chance to cool.
14. It is oftentimes better than a dose of medicine for him.
15. If you are not too selfish, and are not too far away from grass, take your horse out for an hour on Sunday, and let him have a nibble.
16. If your horse is off his feed give him a few carrots, or a bunch of oats mixed with a little bran and moistened, and add a little salt or sugar.
17. Do not rush your horse in the hot weather.
18. Sunstroke.
19. Watch your horse. If the perspiration pours from his body and he breathes short and quick, he is in danger. You must then act quickly. The continuing symptoms are these: The perspiration dries up, the horse staggers, falls down, becomes insensible, and death will take place in about half an hour if he is not relieved. He has suffered sunstroke. Treatment: As soon as your horse begins to show excessive perspiration and short, quick breaths, send for a veterinarian, but do not wait for the veterinarian to come. Do something for his relief yourself. Get him out of the shafts at once, and into a shady place. Take off all his harness. Give him lots of water in small servings. Sponge him all over, and shower his head, neck, shoulders and legs. (Do not use the hose unless you spray the water from the nozzle, letting it fall like rain). Give him four ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a pint of warm (not hot) water, or a pint of warm coffee. It will likely be of great assistance to put a bag of crushed ice on the top of his head. If he is so insensible that he will not drink, wash out the mouth a few times. Instead of the spirits of ammonia, a half pint of whiskey in a quart of water may be given. Give your horse lots of time to recover.
20. Keep the harness in good condition, but be sure that the inside of the harness is free from dirt. Wash it often. The inside of the harness is more important than the outside, in this respect. Pay particular attention to the collar and the pads. The sweat and dust should never be allowed to harden on the surface of the pads. Roughen the surface by using the curry-comb.
21. Keep in a handy box a supply of castile soap, a number of clean towels, carbolic acid (a small quantity to be used as a disinfectant in the water when washing sores or wounds), and borax, also a cleanser and healer.

A DEAN'S TROUBLES TRAVELLING IN RUSSIA

Priest Had Difficulty in Securing Passport From St. Petersburg.

Dublin, July 11.—The experiences of Dean Mahony of Auckland, New Zealand, who is visiting Watford just now, are related by him.

"When I left New Zealand," he says, "I had my passport prepared by the Minister of Justice in Wellington. I knew Jesuits and Jews were prohibited from entering Russia, but I did not know an ordinary Catholic priest would have trouble in passing through the Czar's territory.

"At Yokohama, however, I received a taste of difficulty, for the Russian consul there, M. Wilms, refused to sign my passport, which described me as a Jesuit priest. Then I saw British Consul Hall, an Ulster man, but a great home ruler. He had never heard of such a prohibition, and went with me to the Russian consul, who reiterated that it was not a question of whether I was a Jesuit or not—as a Catholic priest I was not free to travel except by special permission of the Russian Government.

"So I went on to Tokyo, where I saw the first secretary of the British legation, who gave me a letter to the Russian embassy, explaining the hardship of the case. The Russian ambassador received me, and after a consultation with his secretaries he said he would issue the passport if I would consent to dress in plain costume and not to wear a hat. On those terms I got through without further obstacle."

Harry Gray is doing the teaming for the campaigning stable of the International Farm, and the horses will be well driven. The man from Monroe showed by his handling of Grace G. that few men have anything on him when it comes to making and using speed.

REV. DR. GOODSPEED TAKEN BY DEATH

Was For Fifteen Years a Professor in McMaster Baptist University.

Toronto, July 12.—The Baptist Church in Canada suffered a very distinct loss in the death on Saturday last, at his home in Paradise, Nova Scotia, of Rev. Calvin Goodspeed, M.A., D.D. Dr. Goodspeed was well known and very highly esteemed in Toronto, having spent fifteen years in this city as professor of systematic theology and apologetics in McMaster University. During those years his home was on Albany avenue and he was a member of College Street Baptist Church, where he was a great help. Mrs. Goodspeed survives him.

Dr. Goodspeed will be remembered as of very striking appearance, owing to his height of six feet six inches. He was very active in study and teaching, and, although over 70 years of age, he had during the last two years, given lectures in Acadia University. Previous to 1878 Dr. Goodspeed was for four years pastor of the First Baptist Church, Woodstock, Ont., after which, for two years, he taught in the theological department at Woodstock College. Following this he spent several years in Germany in the theological study, and on his return, became pastor of the First Baptist Church, Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. In 1891 he came to Toronto, on appointment, joining the staff of McMaster University, which he resigned in 1906, returning to his home in Paradise. Dr. Goodspeed had not been in robust health for several years before his death, and spent some of the winters in West Texas, where he acted as professor of systematic theology in Baylor University. Word of his passing away reached Toronto yesterday. Prominent Baptists speak of him as one of the foremost men in the Baptist Church in Canada.

BOY JESSE JAMES ELUDES BIG POSSE

Armed and Unidentified 16-Year-Old-Youth Terrorizes the Countryside.

Aurora, Ill., July 11.—After terrorizing numerous farmers and their families in a wild ride through the country between Aurora and Flatville, a youthful and mysterious Jesse James now is hiding in the woods around Big Grove. A posse is waiting for him to come out.

The boy, who is said to be about 16 years old, but whose identity is not disclosed, has been riding through the rural districts on a stolen pony, shouting in the true western style and shooting up the countryside like an infuriated cowboy in the days when the west was really wild.

Farmers seeing the youth dashing up the road have run to cover and have sent their wives and children to the protection of the cellar. After the boy had dashed by they had emerged and found the road strewn with the debris of a broken wagon and a few scattered chickens.

The boy's escapade has continued for two days, but Deputy Sheriff Brain of Rockdale is trying to find him. The deputy is at the head of a posse made up of all the constables and town marshals he could coax to accompany him, as well as farmers and a blood-hound said to be able to track the fleetest and most desperate character. But the youth so far has eluded the posse, and the woods about Big Grove are so thick and so extensive that it is thought the young desperado would have little trouble in concealing himself until forced out by hunger.

The last was seen first in Rockdale on Monday. He was armed with two 38-calibre revolvers and wore a well-stocked cartridge belt. Keeping a crowd of visitors at bay, he proceeded to the Rockdale rolling mill. There he procured a saddle and bridle from another resident of the village and rode quietly out of town.

As soon as he reached the country he whipped up the pony, and with a yell began shooting to right and left, terrorizing the farmers. About midnight, emulating Jesse James and other nickel show heroes, he stopped at a farmhouse and demanded food and lodging, emphasizing his remarks with a few shots at the corner.

It was hurriedly given him by J. C. Shaw, the farmer. After he had eaten he announced that he had stolen the pony from the yard. He staked out his pony and used the saddle for a pillow. Then, placing his guns beside him, he lay down, remarking:

"Remember that I sleep with one eye open, and the man dies like a dog who tells my hiding place."

During the night the pony broke away and ran back to Flatville. The desperado was up at daybreak, and after his faithful steed. He demanded the return of his horse, and after a fusillade of shots turned up the dust at his feet. Then the boy mounted the horse and galloped away. The posse was formed soon thereafter.

WATFORD PHYSICIAN WEDS SARNIA NURSE

Pretty Wedding Was Performed at the Bride's Home, Cedar Springs.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Cedar Springs, July 11.—A very pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Clark, when their second daughter, Miss Anna Irene, graduate nurse of the Sarnia General Hospital, was married to Dr. H. A. Brandon, who was formerly a house surgeon in the same hospital, but is now practicing at Watford.

The ceremony took place on the lawn of the old home, an end of which had been prettily decorated with bunting, bouquets and flowers, making a charming wedding bower. Rev. Dr. J. R. Battisby, of Chatham, who is spending the summer months at Erie Beach, was the officiating clergyman, and the bride, in the absence of her father in the west, was given away by her grandfather, Mr. Hugh McPherson, one of the pioneers of Cedar Springs district. The bride's cousin, Miss Ruth McDowell, played the wedding march as the bride was escorted across the lawn, and after the knot had been tied, Miss Alice MacPherson, another cousin, sang, "Be-cause of her father in the west." The ceremony over, lunch was served on the lawn and the many beautiful presents received by the bride inspected.

The bride looked charming in a prettily gown of white silk marquisette, edged with chantilly lace over satin, and with seed-pearl trimmings. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Mrs. Clark, the bride's mother, wore a handsome gown of amethyst marquisette over black silk. The groom's mother wore an attractive costume of black satin.

Mr. and Mrs. Brandon left by auto for Chatham, and after a short trip will take up their residence at Watford.

Among the guests were Mrs. Robertson, of Yale, Mich., the groom's grandmother; Mrs. Dorothy Clark, of New York; Mrs. T. Brandon, Mrs. Joseph Brandon, Mrs. Robert Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brandon, Forest; Mr. Robertson, Mrs. G. Robertson, Mr. John Robertson, Miss M. Robertson, Yale, Mich.; Mrs. B. Haine and son, Brown City, Mich.; Mrs. Case, James Case, Stratford; Mrs. Clark, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Hodgins, Ilderton, Ont.; Miss Lillian Simpson, Sarnia; Mrs. H. L. McDowell, Windsor; Mrs. Ward Stanworth, Chatham.
