ESTERN lost to St. Mikes Saturday afternoon at Tecumseh Park by a score of 6-2, but in defeat showed gameness which won them many friends and the admiration of the biggest crowd that has yet turned out to a rugby game this year. On the offensive their end runs went wrong time

ing. Their standing up bucks for the first threequarters broke futilely on St. Mikes' heavy line, rarely making yards even, but their complete breakdown as straight heats, a scoring machine was saved by the wonderful tackling of Williams and Dockstader, especially the former, whose marvelous speed got him down under nearly every boot and sent him hurtling through the air at the St. Mikes' runners n perfect tackles every time. In the last few minutes of the last quarter Western's offensive got a chance to look dangerous when a St. Mikes' kick was blocked and Ken Lindsay fell on the loose ball, and a moment after. when the Irish were sent back to their own 10-yard line for interference. Right up to fighting pitch, Western made one of their few gains of the afternoon when Johns was bucked through on the first down in the first instance

On the defensive, the Purple and White, with their backs fumbling lamentably, displayed the fighting spirit that won them the plaudits of the crowd. Their line was pierced time after time with holes big enough to let a couple of teams march through, but they closed back and retreated fighting every inch of the way, a refreshing change to the passive defence they have

All Points Kicking.

They forced St. Mikes to kick for their points, and the Irish were content to rely on the wonderful booting of Forner, who did all his heavy "howitzer" work from left inside position, with plenty of protection given him, except twice, when the Western linesmen fought their way through and blocked his punts. Le Bel was an absence from the Irish line-up.

Why Western did not use more kicking isn't quite clear, for Traynor, though functioning badly everywhere else, was booting splendidly, with nothing like the protection given forner, and St. Mikes' back division were fumbling enough to make this style of play worth gambling with, for one appeters at least St. Mikes was booting splendidly. else, was booting splendidly, with nothing like the protection given Forner, hand St. Mikes' back division were fumbling enough to make this style of play worth gambling with, for one quarter at least. St. Mikes made use of the wind from the south, and gained four of their points kicking with it. Western, however, continued trying a shift, end runs, and bucks right through, kicking only when forced to. Cowley started the first quarter off all right by paining five yards on a Cowley started the first quarter off all right by paining five yards on a nice run, but after this, except for good tackling by McKillop and Williams, the Western efforts went awry. Traynor booted down a 40-yard punt, which O'Brien fumbled, but there were no wings down to turn the misplay to good account. A fumble by Traynor forced him to save by rouging for St. Mikes' third point. For St. Mikes' fourth tally Forner booted over 50 yards to the Western deadline. O'Brien had his nose broken when Priddle tackled him, and the Londoner drew three minutes.

The third was a seesaw, with much more thrilling football, though some of it was decidedly bad. After Traynor had fumbled a return, Cowley ran out a drop-kick that missed the goal. St. Mikes were penalized 15 yards for interference, and Western gained on punt.

Westerns' offensive was still going badly, but both Williams and Dockstader were busy pulling down Irish runners. Traynor had a fine chance to drop-kick from the 20-yard line, but bad snap-back spoiled it. Williams brought Dillon down a yard from St. Mikes ilne, but fumbling lost London the ball again, and play returned to midfield. Western made their first real gain on a buck, but were held, and St. Mikes ran the kick out. With a minute to go, Western blocked a kick, Dockstader grabbing the ball. Western kicked on the first down, Williams getting down for a fine tackle under the boot just as the whistle biew.

The fourth session started out with the locals making their first gain with a shift and run around the right, and Johns followed with another short run around the right, three St. Mikes disentangling themselves from a mutual tackle. Both teams kicked out, and then Johns fumbled, but Traynor saved the situation by rouging.

One St Mikes linesman was penalized for making a tackle up around Traynor's ears, and Western lost the ball on another bad snap-back, Forner kicking. It rolled over the deadline after Johns had f mbled it.
