

New Hurler Holds Muskies Well In Hand In Tecs' Second Straight

TECS REGISTER SECOND WIN OVER MUSKEGON ANGLERS 3-1

Gehring Handles Thirteen Hot Chances Without An Error.

MORGAN REAL FIND

Special to The Advertiser.

Muskegon, May 13.—Morgan was tight in the pinches yesterday and was accorded brilliant and errorless support by the rejuvenated Tecumseh, who won the second straight game of the series, although again outbatted by the home club, over the Anglers yesterday afternoon. Parker and Nason made catches of the classic variety, while Gehring went after everything that came on the ground, handling thirteen hard chances without the semblance of a bobbie.

Muskegon tried hard to make a comeback, and Morgan was found for two hits in each of the eighth and ninth, but poor base running by Meyers and Gehring's fast fielding stopped the rallies.

Nason was a thorn in the side of the Anglers. He scored the Tec's first run, after a walk and two successive bingles had given the Muskies a lead of one in the second frame. Nason broke into the game in the fifth, when his drive sent Cortazzo's legs before the little shortstop of the locals could get down after it. Effert flew out, but Parker slapped a single to right. Germain forced Parker at second and then worked a double steal with Nason on the scoring end. Morgan singled to center, and when the ball got away from G. Loep, Germain scored what proved to be the winning run.

The visitors checked in another run in the seventh on Nason's walk and singles by Effert and Parker, before a runner had been retired. Fast fielding by the Muskegon infield prevented further scoring.

Yesterday's game was played on a rain-soaked field, which made players uncertain on their feet. Two hits got by Beatty and one past Naleway which would ordinarily have been easy outs, when they slipped.

The London team left this evening for Flint, where they face the league leaders in a three-game series.

SARNIA PREPARING FOR SENIOR OPENER

Tunnel City Officials Sure of Strong Support For Team.

Special to The Advertiser.

Sarnia, May 13.—Officials of the Sarnia Senior Baseball Club are endeavoring to have a closing of the city stores and offices Monday next in consideration of the opening of the Southern Countries Baseball League locally, when the Strathroy nine will visit the Athletic ground. There is general confidence that the city merchants will co-operate in order to give the baseball season an auspicious opening. This week laborers and teams are busy at the ball park leveling the ground and making various improvements to the bleachers and entrance.

There is much enthusiasm here for baseball this season, and if the locals can make a strong bid for honors in the league the game is assured of great support. Sarnia has always been a good baseball town, and Manager McRury is confident that his squad can deliver the goods this season and make the competition interesting for anyone.

POINCARÉ WILL NOT MEET MACDONALD

Leaves Reparations Negotiations in Successor's Hands—To Resign June 4.

Associated Press Despatch.

Paris, May 13.—The resignation of Premier Poincaré's cabinet, announced for June 1, effective June 4, passes the application of the experts' reparations plan, so far as France is concerned, to the succeeding government.

Along with other problems involving questions of policy. The carefully prepared economies, which the premier was authorized to make by decree by the preceding chamber, will be held in abeyance because the opposition won the election on the promise to the voters to repeal the law.

The resignation of the premier and his colleagues was decided upon at once on learning the outcome of the elections. Such resignation was imperative; the only question discussed by the cabinet today was how to make it clear immediately that the minister's resignation was forthcoming without bringing on a cabinet crisis in the absence of parliament, which is due to meet June 2.

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF OTTAWA'S MAYOR

Entire City Honors Chief Magistrate of Dominion Capital.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, May 13.—Henry Walters, the thirty-eighth mayor of Ottawa, was buried this afternoon in Beechwood Cemetery with practically the entire city in attendance at the funeral. Under a cloudy sky which momentarily threatened a downpour, the body of the chief magistrate of the Canadian capital was followed to the grave by thousands of mourners.

All walks of life were represented in this, the largest funeral Ottawa has ever witnessed with the exception of that of Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1919. His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada was represented, while the prime minister and several of the ministers of the crown, the chief justices, the senators, the cabinet, the school teachers, the firemen, the police and scores of other organizations and associations with which Mr. Walters had been connected, also attended.

TWO C. I. TRACK STARS AIM AT SPECIAL EVENTS

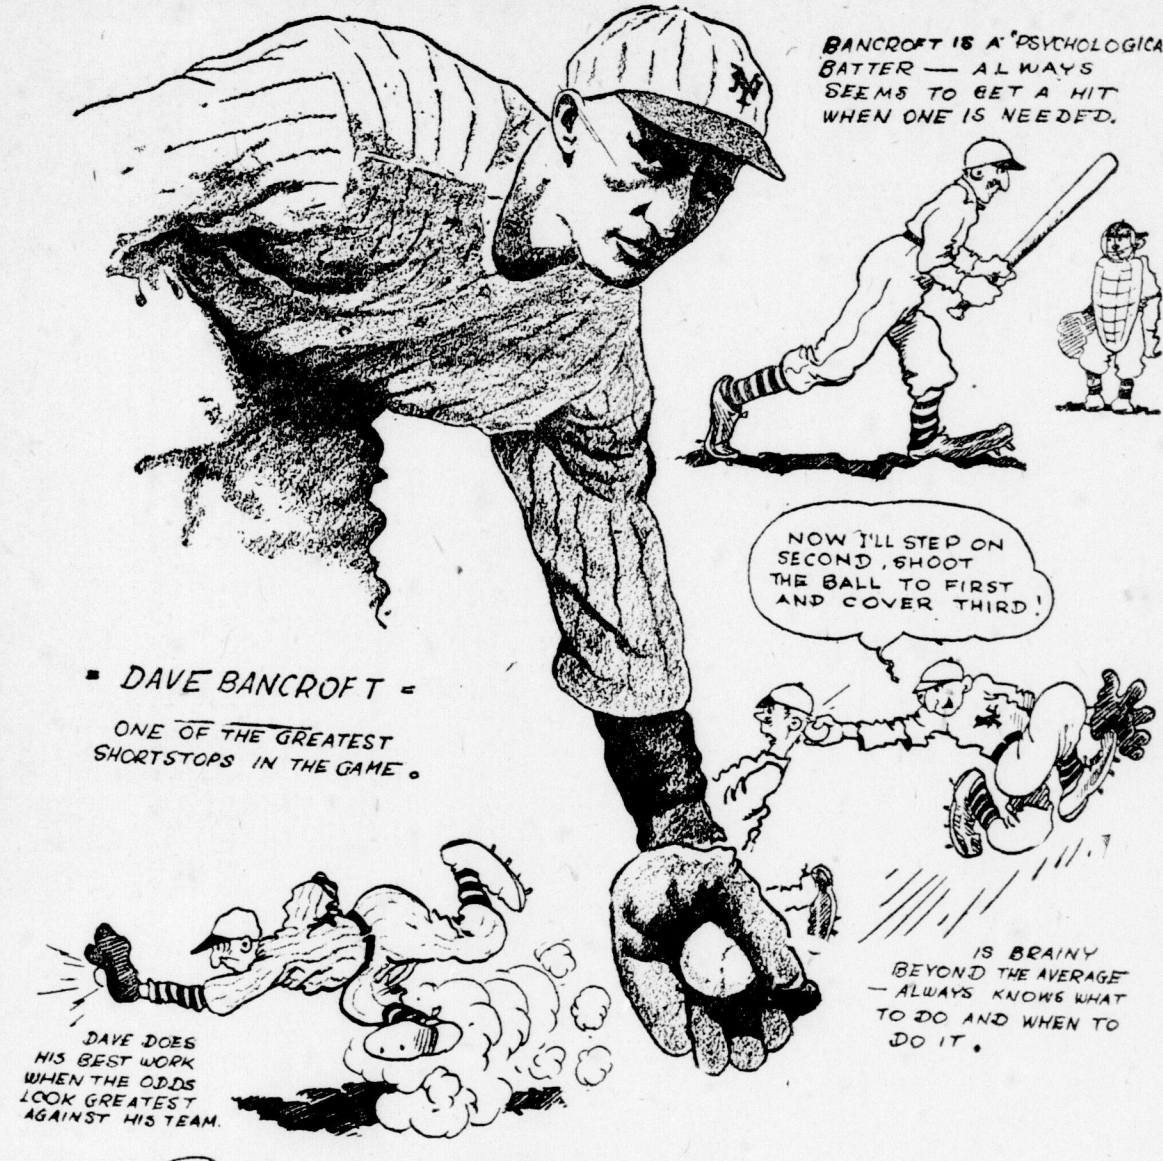

Bill Wanless of the East Collegiate and Ken Hunter of Central have announced that they will compete in their special events only, the quarter and half-mile, respectively, at the Wosma meet at Queen's Park Saturday. This rather throws things out as far as the fans are concerned, as they were looking for Wanless to take the individual championship again.

Wanless is determined to enter the one event only and declares that he will not reconsider his decision. This leaves the title open to all comers and dopesters say that if Hunter enters more events he stands the real chance to cop off the title. Last night Hunter stated that if the school needed more points he would compete in more events.

PAT MORAN THOUGHT PINT-SIZE BANCROFT DOOMED TO FAILURE

Present Braves' Leader Played Himself Into Immediate Favor.

STARRED FROM FIRST

It was the second night after the Philadelphia Nationals' arrival at their training base in St. Petersburg, Fla., back in March, 1915. Dinner had just been finished and the players were skylarking in the lobby when a short, thin young man, with a wistful look and carrying a suitcase about as big as himself entered and inquired for Pat Moran.

Pat appeared, and after a handshake, was seen to lead the young man to the hotel register, where he made an entry. Inquisitive reporters, who followed and looked over his head, read the line, David J. Bancroft, Sioux City, Ia.

That was Bancroft's introduction to major league baseball, and members of the party looked at each other as if to say: "Can you imagine a shrimp like that expecting to make good, this fast set?"

Several hours later at the Elks' home, Pat Moran confirmed these misgivings in a talk. He said: "I had been told that Bancroft was a little fellow, but I never expected him to be as small as he is. I thought he was a short but broad-shouldered sturdy fellow, but he doesn't look strong enough to throw the ball to first base."

"That's baseball," went on Pat with a sigh. "You never can tell anything about a ball player until you see him. This Bancroft looks more like a jockey than a shortstop. I suppose it's up to me to look around for another man, although this fellow is here and I will have to give him a fair chance. Everybody says he is a wonder, but he certainly doesn't look like it."

Bancroft put on a uniform for the first time the next morning, and it wasn't long before there was a transformation in the views of Moran and the Phils.

Like Vernon Castle. He moved over the shortstop patch as nimbly as Vernon Castle, and even in his first days of drill hurled the ball to first with blinding speed. In hitting practice he at once caught the eye of the onlookers with his perfect form.

Bancroft was unlike the usual big league freshman. He reported to Pat the finished article. He had the indescribable instinct and manner of one knowledgeable and at ease in the ways of big league baseball.

He repeated his favorable impression in the afternoon, and when he took off his uniform that day he had captured the esteem of the camp, although he was oblivious of the overnight doubts and the subsequent change of sentiment.

"It proves one thing," Pat replied, "and that is, you can never tell a ball player in his street clothes. That fellow fooled me. I thought he wasn't strong enough to lift one of Cravath's bats."

A Flash in Pan. "I won't have to worry about shortstop. Unless he simply was the flashiest possible flash in the pan today he is going to make good. What impresses me more than anything else is his steadiness. You would think he had been playing short in the majors for 10 years."

"Let me make another prediction. Bancroft is going to become a great hitter. I notice in practice that he didn't try to swing his head off, but just met the ball. He is going to be a big help to this team."

Banny helped T. Phils win their Hoody pennant in history that season and played captivatively at short for the rest of his career in Philadelphia. In 1920 he was sent to New York, where he figured in three of John McGraw's pennant triumphs as well as help capture two world's series with the Yanks.

The pint-size Iowan has been equal to the various gradations in a ball player's life that hit one to the top. He was successful as a player and also as a hunter of pennants and
