HALF TIME 14 TO 0.

In the first half Camelford's long boot over the line resulted in a rouge. Bewell led over a buck for a touchdown and Camelford converted. The College team worked a fake buck to perfection and Camelford went over for another touchdown, which he converted. Camelford booted over the London line and Vicker brought the London man down for another rouge. The half ended with the score 14 to 0.

The Londoners opened strong in the second half and in the third quarter, when they carried the play to the locals' end when they threatened to score repeatedly. They were unable to count, however. In the final quarter three touchdowns by the College were made. Boadway went over and Camelford converted. Line-up: HALF TIME 14 TO 0.

hold of European commerce. It needs no great imagination to depict the influence which these waters have borne in the development of Canadian commerce and industry. Canada's place as a producer of raw materials for the world depends in no small measure upon the ease and facility with which such products may be brought to their market places. Ships that ply these waters are the direct link between producer and market. No chain is stronger than its weakest link, and Canada Steamship Lines recognizes its responsibility. Constantly additions are being made to the fleet which ceaselessly delves into every corner of our inland waterways to seek out and bring to its most favorable market each particular product. All this vast business is a logical outcome of the fact that Canada is penetrated to the extent of some 2,000 miles-from the Gulf to the head of the Lakes—by a navigable waterway which makes important lake ports of our inland

A great man has once said, "To Canada belongs the twentieth century," and as Canada grows in stature to assume her rightful place among the Nations of the World, Canada Steamship Lines will endeavor to keep abreast of this growth in order that no defect of transportation, nor lack of port facilities, may hamper in any way the splendid progress of this great country of the north.

By grouping under one operating head the chief factors of Canadian inland water traffic, Canada Steamship Lines has accomplished a great step toward increased efficiency of operation, with minimum rates. Unnecessary duplication of routing has been eliminated; economies in operation and maintenance are progressing steadily; and this Company feels that soon it may be rightfully entitled to call itself one of the most efficient common carriers in the world.

Just as Canada itself has still room to grow in population and in wealth, so Canada Steamship Lines Limited has ahead of it a future vastly greater than its present.
