

From what we already know of God through his works, we may form some anticipation of the glory of futurity, and prepare with joy and with gladness for the happy moment, when the soul, released from its present dark and inferior abode, shall ascend into the heavens, and enjoy that purity and exaltation, the reward of those who by the proper use they have made of their time here, are permitted to join the heavenly choir of angels in songs of ecstasy round the throne of the everlasting God.

Thus, my dear christian readers, I have endeavored to lay before you, some of the motives, to induce you to attend, without delay, to the concerns of your souls; and it is my sincere prayer that you may all be encouraged to seek that grace, which is necessary to guide us through life, to support us in death, and prepare us for heaven.