Wilderness Babies, by Julia A. Schwartz (George N. Morang & Company, Toronto, 234 pages, 16 full page illustrations, $1.50) is just the sort of book that a child enjoys hearing read, and an older person enjoys reading. It is a vastly entertaining account of the baby animals of forest and wild and deep. Such titles as, The One With a Pocket, The Best Builder, The Fiercest One, The Smallest One, The One With Wings, set one a guessing. The best way is to get the book. It will make everything clear.

Three attractive new books of fairy tales come

A pair of long-hearded, pointed-capped, little old also from Morang & Co. men stand guard on the cover of The Oak Tree Pairy Book (Favorite Fairy Tales, edited by Clifton Johnston, 266 pages, illustrated, $1.75). believe in fairyland, they will let you pass; if not, they will not let you into The Oak Tree Fairy Book, and that would be a pity indeed. Many of the stories are specially suitable for the very little folk, but even the grown-ups will enjoy the group of tales of The Wise Men of Gotham. Almost a hundred elever pen-and-ink drawings are scattered throughout its

The twenty stories in The Dwarf's Spectacles; and other Fairy Tales, by Max Nordau (390 pages, illustrated, $1.50) were told originally by the noted Hungarian physician and author to his little daughter, and they have a simplicity and a foreign flavor which give them a special charm. There are fewer ogres and witches than in most collections of fairy tales, and many lessons are skilfully interwoven.

The first thing noted on taking up, In Fairyland: Tales Told Again, by Louey Chisholm (211 pages, price $2.00) are its exquisite illustrations. 29 fullpage, beautifully-colored pictures depict the folk of fairyland. For paper, print and illustration, as well as for the interest of the stories, In Fairyland, is one of the choicest children's books which has come to us this year.

The Rock-a-Bye Book and a Bag of Dreams, by William Sinclair Lord (Fleming H. Revell Company, Toronto and New York, 54 pages, 50c., net), the very title suggests delightful possibilities of cosy hours, when the restless little ones are being tucked up for sleep. It will make delightful reading for the quiet hours when the children beg for a story, or for songs new and old.

J. W. Axtell's Teacher's Handbook, and Superintendent's Handbook, are now so well known as to need no comment. (Cumberland Press, Nashville, Tennesee, 35c. each).

From The Macmillan Company, New York : Christus Liberator: An Outline Study of Africa. By Ellen C. Parsons. 308 pages and map. Cloth, 50c. net; paper, 30c. net.

From The University of Chicago Press: The Priestly Element in the Old Testament. By Pres. W. R. Harper. 292 pages $1.00 net. Constructive Studies in the Prophetic Element in the Old Testament. By President

Harper. 142 pages. $1.00. From The Heidelberg Press, Philadelphia, Pa. : A Century of Bibles. 91 pages.

IF YOU USE OF CANNOT ATTEND THE DOMINION Same Teachers THE DOMINION CORRESPONDENCE Courses of Study Text Books BUSINESS Lessons COLLEGE Diplomas Situations for Graduates COLLEGE

THE DOMINION BUSINESS COLLEGE has now in attendance students in the following courses:—Commercial (Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Penmanship, tetc.), Matriculation, Civil Service, Telegraphy and General English Education.
Our Special Features:—Individual Instruction by Trained Teachers, Thorough, Practical Courses, the Finest rooms and Location in the city.

We cannot prepare Commercial graduates fast enough to supply the demand. We want mature young people of good, general education to prepare for the best situations—those offering from $10 to $25 per week.

COR. COLLEGE ST. AND BRUNSWICK AVE. TORONTO J. B. McKAY, PRES.