He Was From Ottawa.

The first prisoner was a well-dressed young man who gave his name as George... He seemed considerably put out at the sight of so many spectators, a frowning over the railing he whispered to his Honor: "Cawn't you try to be private, you know?" "Cawn't do it," replied the court. "But I don't like to stand up before you, your Honor." "Your child, how sensitive you are! Why didn't you think of these things before you got drunk, and lay down on the street last night?" "I allow cawn't help his fallings, you know. Was out to a champagne supper. Probably took too much. Probably ought to have gone home in a carriage, you know." "You were very drunk, sir, and you ought to be ashamed of yourself. I regard it as a great disgrace." "Oh, as to that, you know, all the bloods get dizzy now and then. Cawn't see where the disgrace comes in—woolly, I cawn't. I expect to pay a fine, you know." "Oh, you do? Well, you'll pay one. I shall fine you $5." "Too cheap, your Honor. Woolly, but I'll make it $10." "That's better, you know, but it's only what a tough would have to pay." "Then I'll say $15." "Woolly, your Honor, but I couldn't go for $20, you know. Every blood should be willing to pay $20. Here's a $20 bill, your Honor, and I will now bid you—ah—a good-day—ah." And he bowed and scraped and took his hat and cane and departed.—[Detroit Free Press.

The Milkado's Wonderland

Casually walking along Rideau street, one cannot but notice the fine large new premises occupied by those solid business men, Messrs. Stroud Bros. Wishing to find out how they had recovered from the late fire we entered the store, where Mr. Stroud and a large staff of attendants were busy in receiving and unpacking a new consignment of Teas in baskets. Their new promises are beautifully fitted out and their direct Japan trade is increasing every year. Among the many new ideas of economy is one of importing Teas in baskets, a wonder to the wise men of the East and a marvel of cheapness. The purest Japan uncolored Teas are tastefully packed 20 in 1, 2 and 3 lb. pkges in beautiful baskets, the hand-work of the skilful Japanese. These baskets would cost considerable, if imported alone, by duty and freight but Stroud Bros. have hit on an excellent idea in getting fine teas in these wonderful little baskets, which are worth twice the price asked for the tea alone. Every lady and housekeeper in Ottawa should get one of these Japanese works of artistic skill by purchasing their tea at Strouds'. The price of the tea is 40c. and 45c. lb., with the baskets free of charge. The baskets are especially designed either as lunch or work baskets and are really worth alone from $1.00 to $3.00 at any store. The teas and baskets are imported direct from Yama shiro, Yokahama and Hiogo in Japan, and sold as imported.
