

has been introduced into the homes of these 11,516 persons, including all the labour of canvassing and collecting, as well as the blessedness of Christian intercourse and prayer necessarily connected with each visit to receive subscriptions, has cost the Society the small sum of tenpence. Who can fail to rejoice that God ever put into the heart of Mrs. Ranyard to devise such a scheme, and to maintain inviolate the great principle of giving to the Bible the place of honour in her noble work. Her success need be no matter of surprise, since God has said:—'Them that honour Me I will honour.'
