DEATH OF MISS STARR. Our readers will note with regret says The New York Freeman's Jour mal, the announcement of the death of Eliza Allen Starr, the gifted poet delightful author and one of the most pleasing lecturers in the country. The sad event took place Sept. 7, at Durand, Ill., where she wes visiting friends. She was born, in De visiting visiting Mass., Aug 19, 1824. The founder of the family in America, Dr. Comfort Starr, settled & Cambridge, Mass., in 1634. When quite young she went to Philadelphia, where her cousin George Allen LL. D., a descendant of Ethan Allen, was professor of Greek and Latin in the University of Penn sylvania, and , whose companionship was of much profit to her. She became intimately acquainted with the famous Archbishop Kenrick, with wacs encouragement several of her earlier poems found their way viato. print, and the influence of the same, illustrious prelate with that of her cousin, Trof. Allen, introduced her to those deeper studies which eventually led her into the Catholic Church in the ceived into the Catholic Church in the old Cathedral in Franklin street, Boston, in December, 1836, by Ribbp ton, in December, 1836, by Ribbp Fitzpatrick. About this time her lamcousin, Trof. Allen, introduced her to

Starr began the special art work with which her name is inseparably associated—a work in form, scope and ex-ecution entirely unique. "This work," says a writer of a recent sketch of her, "is not confined to the very original articles upon art and artists from her pen, with which readers of various periodicals are familiar, nor to"the training of pupils in drawing and painting, but had its chief development in the inimitable lectures give en in her studio, at the houses of friends in Chicago, and even in several of our principal cities." Miss Starr published a volume of poems in 1876 which was well received, and which was followed by two highly valuable and entertaining books en-titled "Patron Saints." She visited Europe in 1875 and shortly after her return published "Pligrims and Shrines," a most original and charming contribution to art literature, embellished by her own etchinbs from drawings taken in the most interesting sites visited by her. In 1887 appeared from her pen "The Songs of a Life Time," which was followed by "Tsabella of Castile," "Christmas-tide," "Christian Art in Our Own Age," and "What We See," In 1885 the University of Notre Dame, Indianna, conferred upon Miss Starr the Lacture Medal as a recognition of her services to Catholic art and literature and during the Catholic Congress held under the auspices of the World's Columbian Exposition, Miss Starr read a paper on "W man's Work in Art" n the "Congress of Distinguished Women," which was the opening session of the congresses. Among the noted papers lead at this congress, at which Miss Starr presided, were those of Mme. Modjeska, Mrs. Margaret Halver Miss Ellen A. Ford. Shortly after this Exposition the Holy Father sent Miss Starr the magnificent cameo medallion of himself, the only one presented in this country. The deceased lady possessed all the sweet charm of the true Christian, full of sympathy for the poor un, ever with word and pen ready to aid in charity. The orphan asylums and hospitals of Chicago have lost a friend, whose lectures were the source of an annual gift, and the literary world is the loser of a brilliant writer, whose trained eye and artistic mind gave to the world the true idea of 'Christian art. May her soul rest in peace.

THE IRISH IN LONDON.

An event of great interest in Irish Catholic life in London took place week in the Catholic Schools. Bermondsey, when several hundred of his parishioners assembled to celebrate the Silver Jubilee of Father Edward Murnane. To anyone acquainted with Irish life in London it does not require to be told that there is no priest more beloved of Irish Catholics than Father Murnance, and none who has worked more zealously or more untiringly in the National cause. The proceedins at the mathering bore full testimony to the affection and gratitude entertained for him by his fellowcountrymen and co-religionists in the metropolis. Father Mostyn, on behalf of the parishioners, presented a handsome address, in which a generous tribute was paid to the many qualities which endeared Father Murnane to all who knew him, and contained special reference to his splendid services to the Irish cause. A substantial cheque accompanied the address, which was spoken to, in addition to Father Mostyn, by Councillor D. M Carthy, Father Haynes (Rother-Very Rev. Canon Johnston, hithe Mr. Michael Fitzgerald and others

It was in the town of Macroom, Cork County, that Mr. O'Keefe, was born some sixty-one years ago, and it pleased him greatly to once again sojourn amid cherished scenes and old friends with whom he had parted some twenty-cight wears ago.

Mr. William Halley, "Old-Timer," is at present a visitor in Toronto. He has been taking in the Pan-American Exhibition and came over to Toronto to see his brother, Mr. Maurice Halley, and renew old associations in this city Mr. Halley made a call at The Register office on Monday. He is in touch with political matters in the Republic, and says that while all Americans without distinction of party are roused to the utmost indignation by the assassination of President McKinley, there is no idea that the tragedy will affect politics.

FATHER MATHEW'S BADGE.

(From The London Good Works) Brougham told Father Mathew, the elebrated Irish temperance advocate, that he was extremely abstemious in the matter of wine. In 1844 Father Mathew amused a large party at the house of an Irish nobleman in London by his attempts to convert the noble lord to tectotalism. "I drink very little wine," said Brougham, "only half a glass at luncheon and two half glasses at dinner, though my medical advisers told m I should increase the quantity."

"They are wrong, my lord, for advising you to increase the quantity," said Father Mathew playfully, "and you are wrong in taking even the small quantity you mention, but I have hope for you," and, despite the good-humored resistance of Brougham he invested his lordship with green ribbon and silver medal of the Total Abstinence Society.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Brougham. "I'll take the ribbon to sure to meet old Lord —, the worse for liquor, and I'll put it on him." This announcement was received with much laughter by the company, for the peer referred to was notorious for, deep potations.

A few evenings later Brougham met the man in question in the I use of. Lords. "Lord —," said he, "I have from Father Ma you, it and he passed the ribbon and medal rapidly over the old peer's

"Then I'll tell you what it is Brougham, I'll keep sober from this night!" exclaimed the other, and, to the great amazement of all his friends, he remained faithful to his vow.

THE SAPLING.

(Josephine Preston Prabody in Harper's.)
When I was but a sprig of May,
With wonders to command,
Above all else I loved most well
What none could understand;
And dear were things far off, far off,
but nothing near at hand.

Oh, now it was the sunset isle On, now it was the sunset isle
Beyond the weather vane,
And now it was the chime I heard
From belfry towers of Spain;
But never yet the little leaf that tapped my window pane.

And never eye takes heed of them in

Gentlemen: I write this testimonial from a sense of duty, having tested the wonderful effect of your Asthmalene, for the cure of Asthma. My wife has been afflicted with spasmodic asthma for the past 12 years. Having exhausted my own skill as well as many others, I chanced to see your sign upon your windows on 130th street, New York, I at once obtained a bottle of Asthmalene. My wife commenced taking it about the first of November. I very soon noticed a radical improvement. After using one bottle her Asthma has disappeared and she is entirely free from all symptoms.
