

Court taking the view that upon the principle of Urquhart v. Farrant, the negligence of the defendants could not be regarded as the effective cause of the accident.

The question is also discussed in Dominion Natural Gas v. Collins (1909), A. C. 640; and the cases are well collected and reviewed in Lothian v. Richards, 12 C. L. R. 165.

This principle appears to me to be fatal to the plaintiff's case here. The action will, therefore be dismissed as to these defendants, without costs.
