

never been done before, no precedent to justify reproductions are to be sold, hence just a suspicion of commercialism which would I am afraid be somewhat disturbing to certain members of the academic staff. At present, we have no department of fine art. Art Association in entirely different category and can support such a venture without criticism. University has to be so careful not to offend.