

“ Colonies :—Wales sends members to “ parliament, and Ireland has done so ; and
 “ as Ireland is not now represented in the “ British Parliament, neither is it taxed in
 “ the British Parliament.

“ It is frivolous to alledge, that because
 “ the Mother Country has been at expences
 “ for the Colonies, therefore the British Par“ liament may tax them, without allowing “ them any legal opportunity of remonstrat-
 “ ting against the oppression. The Mother
 “ Country has spent her blood and her trea-
 “ sure in supporting, at different times,
 “ France against Spain, and Spain against “ France, Prussia against Hungary, and “ Hungary against Prussia, and so on with-
 “ out end. Does this give our Parliament
 “ a right to tax all Europe ?

“ What difference is there between the “ British Parliament's taxing America, and
 “ and the French Court's laying England “ under
