Sir John French.

The Countess of Warwick has a character sketch of Sir John French in the London Daily Express. She says he lives in his profession, and breathes the very air of it. Soldiering claims his every thought, and yet he is in no aspect the man of the sword. He is the perfect type of the leader of men, a splendid example of the power of concentration driving a single purpose to its end.
I think Frederick the Great would have made much of him, and that his chief hero in a military sense, the first Napoleon, whose battle grounds he has studied all over Europe, would have kept him by his side. It is well for Britain that she has had a John French to lead her armies.

Write, Phone or Telegraph—Get One Without Fail

Here is a Piano that goes on sale Monday morning at 8 o'clock. We will not mention the name of this Piano, because it would create a riot.
We have only one of these Pianos and we will not sell it until 8 o'clock Monday morning. But the first man, woman or child that steps into this store Monday morning will have a chance to buy a Piano for Spot Cash at a price that will positively stagger description. This Piano at this price goes on sale for spot cash only, and the first person that produces the money will get it. So come here Monday with the money in your hand and be ready for business. Look at this price.We do not mention the name of this piano out of courtesy to local merchants.

land (shop-worn), was snapped up just as soon as this paper was off the press. A party bought over the long distance telephone in less than three hours after the advertisement appeared. We are going a step farther this time. Here is a Player Piano that must go, and we are not going to split hairs or hum and about it. The Player is here and if the price will move it, out it goes. Terms as low as scores of buyers each day ask us: "Are you selling Amherst Pianos and Gerhard Heintzman Pianos and Mason-Risch and Sherlock Manning Pianos at Reduced Prices?" The answer is, Yes, we are. We cannot give the entire details in a little advertisement of this nature, but we have Pianos on these floors, pianos of the very highest character, pianos so good that the wealthiest and most prominent business men of the Maritime Provinces are falling over each other in their rush to save money at our prices. And believe me, the wealthiest people know how and where and when to buy. Come here to this sale and come with your buying clothes on. Bring the wife and come with the determination to get a bargain. Get ready to buy a Piano and make us sell you a Piano at a bargain.Here is a Mason & Risch Piano that we expect to have on this floor Monday morning.

Women Workers.

It is estimated that since the beginning of the war over 1,000,000 additional women are earning their own living. says the Leith Observer. The vast majority have entered the productive industries, but large number of girls who formerly had no intention of taking up any occupation are now training and securing positions in the banks, government offices, and in the professions.Not a few of them belong to families who have suffered peculiarly through the war, or whose resources have been reduced by the higher cost of living, and the increased burden of taxation.
Others are taking the place of men, in situations in the railway and tramway companies, in bookkeeping offices, and in clubs and restaurants. In these employments they are as efficient as men, and it is really so much energy running to waste to employ a man for a jobthat requires only a woman's strength.
At present the principle that women must be paid in being generally adhered to, but will this be the case after the war? Neither economists nor politicians can tell us what is going to happen in the industrial field when the men come back from the trenches, but we may be sure the inevitable recommendation of feminine emigration will not by itself solve the problem.Every dollar you spend on Made in Canada products, you
