Royal Match Halts Over Question of Marriage Settlements—The King and Canada—Dominion People in Old Country

(Times Special Correspondence.)

London, July 27.—There are many hostesses who practice the very thing of meanness these days. It is the way of these women to invite to their parties budding girl singers, whom they make sing several times for the honor of appearing at their functions and the results will have the expense of coming to town, for they are very much in the suburbs, will have to supply new and expensive gowns, flowers and the rest and will not be given in return as much as a taxi-fare or a cup of coffee.

This sounds incredible, but it is only too true. At a party the other night at the house of a woman whose husband will one day be a very wealthy baronet, I saw a girl faint with the heat. Her husband had sung the jewel song from Faust, and she had been clearly brought a glass of water, but that was all the refreshment she had in that house. It was a very good thing if some of these wealthy women who go in for philanthropy abroad because of the newspaper notices of their settlements exercise a little of it in their own homes.

It seems it was a question of settlements that upset the Battenberg-Torby engagement. The daughters of the Grand Duke Michael and his morganatic wife, Countess Torby, will be enormous rich, but their father intends when they marry that their settlements should be a little of it in their own homes.

It seems it was a question of settlements that upset the Battenberg-Torby engagement. The daughters of the Grand Duke Michael and his morganatic wife, Countess Torby, will be enormous rich, but their father intends when they marry that their settlements should be a little of it in their own homes.

Among the Canadians invited were Mrs. Bowley of Berlin, who, with Countess Torby, is a member of the committee of the south of France; Miss Hazel Millard of Toronto, who is staying with Mrs. Bowley, and the Ontario agent-general, both of whom were present; Miss Edith Knightley of Fawley and is bringing to this office the marked ability she has shown in carrying out the duties of her position. Miss Agnes Fitzgibbon, who is staying with Mrs. Bowley, and Miss E. J. Dixon of Toronto and Mr. W. E. J. Kelso of Toronto.

The King and Canada

The King George delights to dispense with all court ceremony whenever possible and when giving audience to Hon. Charles Mackenzie, Premier of the province, he took the opportunity to invest him with the Order of St. Michael and St. George, which is the highest honor that can be conferred on a Canadian subject. His Majesty's deep interest in Canada is well known, and it is a pleasure to be received by him to tell me of their establishment at his comprehensive knowledge of Canadian affairs.

The extension of hospitality to the country. He can do more to educate the people promptly to a "prosperity of mutual trust and confidence" than all others combined.

THE CALL

These are voices—I hear them calling. They call from the wooded hills, From the sunny plains, and the farmlands, And from the heart of the city, 'Mid the rush of the hurrying feet, I hear the same voices—I know them. Apart from the sin of the street, Sometimes they are low and pleading, But anon they are louder—and then, Inviting, exhorting, entreating, 'Tis the call of the world for Men!

London and his speeches have been taken as revealing the ten commandments of a new rule. Last week he was entertained by the Liberal Colonial Club at the House of Commons. Sir Edward Cook presided, and those present included Sir Albert Spicer, W. G. C. Griffiths, Professor Dewar of Alberta, Professor Allison of Winnipeg, Sir George Falch, J. A. Spender, Sir Robert Haldiff, Sir Alexander Lawrence and Erskine Childers.

HUSBANDS FOR HELLO GIRLS

(London Tit-Bits)

Matrimony is a most interesting telephone game. One of the principal officials of the Telephone Department at the G. P. O. has been the champion husband-winner of the whole postal department. There are very nearly twice as many marriages made by telephone as there are amongst the girls who work at the counters of the branch post office in the Strand. The G. P. O. know pretty nearly exactly how many of their girls get married, because they have a telephone directory of their own. If they have had six years' gratuity. There is no precise explanation. It is one of those interesting little human problems which puzzle even the G. P. O. officials who analyze the figures and make out the statistics. One enthusiastic telephone official said that the training in a telephone exchange was the ideal training for a wife. "She learns, primarily, habits of discipline," he said. "She becomes resourceful, and learns the 'soft' answer which turneth away wrath." Another official's view was more single-blooded and less interesting. "I think it is largely a matter of social status," he said. "Telephone girls have a wider margin of choice than most girls. They are higher in the social scale and perhaps have a wider field of choice. They are a more and more popular institution as you go down in the social scale."

The Best Quality at a Reasonable Price

Your Health Shows In Your Eyes.

Eye troubles take toll of the entire body. Defects of refraction are more than not seeing well. They are also not being well—for the nervous energy expended in trying to force accommodation of the eyes of ten causes serious illness.

A physician looks at your eyes and judges your general health. An optician examines your eyes, and if he finds defects prescribes glasses that have a wonderful effect on your health. Properly fitted glasses correct defects in refraction and prevent distress that is sure to come without them.

There is nothing disagreeable about having your eyes examined. Consult our optometrists now—An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

Appalling Conditions of Work For Some Women in London

(London Tit-Bits)

Mention was made by a police-court missionary a few days ago of a woman employed mending skirts in three farthings a dozen! The most she is able to earn, by working eighty-four hours a week is three-halfpence an hour—about 9s. per week!

In every trade in which women are employed many thousands of them receive even less than 9s. for a week of full employment, and in a great many trades large numbers earn little as 7s. 6d., 5s. and 8s." said J. J. Mallon, Secretary of the National Anti-Sweating League.

"More typical of the group is the Jute trade, in which the average is 18s. 6d. of the silk with an average of 11s. 2d. in the manufacture of silk and 10s. a week. In other trades some women do not reach that low sum."

Some Appalling Conditions

"What are the average earnings in the clothing trades?" "The average is 18s. 6d. but in dressmaking and corset-making the percentage less than 10s. a week, is one in three! In practically all the trades there are thousands of women whose weekly earnings do not reach 8s."

Are there any workers worse off than these, Mr. Mallon?" "Yes, the pottery, brick and glass, and food, drink, and tobacco trades show much worse figures."

"The pottery trade, too, the work is staided by risk of lead poisoning. One would expect this risk to be acknowledged by higher wages, yet in this danger, the average wage is only 11s. 11d.; moreover, one woman in every three falls to earn 10s. a week. The average payment to women brickmakers, although the work is beyond the capacity of all but the strongest, is 11s. 8d. In the case of women glass-blowers, the average of the women receive less than 9s. 6d. a week."

"We are making lots of disturbance in the shoe and clothing trade. Can't help it. We must close out our spring and summer goods.—Wesley's Cash Stores, 248-249 Union street."

"Makers of the uppers of ladies' boots and shoes, skirt-makers and finishers get little as one penny an hour. I could take you to a brush-maker in East London, whose case may be cited to illustrate the awful evil of the deplorable home-work. This poor woman is paid 8d. for filling no fewer than 1000 holes in the backs of hair-brushes. By working her very hardest she can fill only 200 in an hour. She told me she has never earned enough to buy a little as one penny an hour. After all her years of unrelenting and monotonous industry, they help her to enter the work-home—or starve."

"She has worked hard for over fifty years, and has never earned enough to buy a little as one penny an hour. After all her years of unrelenting and monotonous industry, they help her to enter the work-home—or starve."

"It is for the mothers, who love their little ones quite as much as well-to-do parents, and would be glad if they did their little work, that we are trying to get a minimum wage."

"I have to make twelve of these right off before I earn 9d. Last week me and my husband sat from 5.30 in the morning till eleven at night, and made four dozen shirts, which came to 10s. 6d. for the machine and 1s. 10d. for cotton!"

"A worker in a confectionery factory, who no less than twenty years' experience, said to me once: 'I have been earning 8s a week out of which I give my mother 5s, 6d. looking money for me and two little ones, me being a widow. Out of my 2s. 6d. I have to buy our clothes, the rest being for meals.' Her dinner, this woman said, consisted of 'a horth of fish and a horth of chips.'"

"There are more than 800,000 women earning less than 12s. for a full week's work in jam, confectionery, and tin-box factories; many women earn only 8s a week."

"I am not exaggerating in the slightest. I say that there are thousands of women and girls in this country who are suffering actual hunger, want, and starvation, although they are working every available hour the whole year around. I can prove this by the reports of the London County Council."

"Many uneducated women make their only daily meal of a little weak tea and bread and dripping, with the result that at the end of a long day's work they are utterly exhausted and ill."

"The collective cruelty that allows women and children to die for want of food is what they are fully entitled to demand. It should not be tolerated in a country that boasts of being in the forefront of civilization. Let it be remembered too," said Mr. Mallon, in conclusion, "that starved bodies breed the distorted mind, and poverty of body is a big enough tragedy, but poverty of soul is an infinitely greater one."

Canadians Celebrate the Nation's Birthday in the Metropolis of the Empire

For it, for there is no single suite of rooms in London spacious enough to hold with comfort all the Canadians who meet together at the official Dominion Day reception. Everyone missed Mrs. J. H. Blanchard, and her daughter, representative in London for so many years; and numerous stories of his gentle personality, Ottawa, is in the city on departmental business. He and his wife are registered at the Victoria Hotel.

Two POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS (The Canadian Courier)

Two solutions of the unemployed problem present themselves for consideration. First, getting a number of people on the land, and second, putting a large number at temporary work in government camps during the winter. Both these solutions must be worked out by the Provincial governments, assisted as far as possible by the Federal authorities.

This is no time for watchful waiting.

TWO POSSIBLE SOLUTIONS

(The Canadian Courier)

Two solutions of the unemployed problem present themselves for consideration. First, getting a number of people on the land, and second, putting a large number at temporary work in government camps during the winter. Both these solutions must be worked out by the Provincial governments, assisted as far as possible by the Federal authorities.

If the Provincial government made a determined effort they can place many of the unemployed on the land. The provinces must supply the means to designate the localities, and furnish the capital to carry the settlers for one year. It will be an expensive proposition, but in the end the money will come back. Any advances made must be secured by mortgages on the land and barns erected, on the cattle and implements furnished.

After a girl gets her picture in the photographer's window her mother might as well give up. We're not only disappointed when we see a great man, but we're disappointed when we hear him.

Ben Davis apple, with all opposition scattered and gone, is now supreme. With the exception of a few liver spots it looks as rosy as plausible as it did in October. The faller who steps till nine a.m. might as well stay in bed.

Of all the optimists look out for the fellow who expects to get some money next week. The fellow who retires soon does not need.

It is estimated that Londoners give for an average 22s. a year to charity.
