

THE EVENING GAZETTE
Published every evening (Sundays excepted) at 10 A.M.
Editor and Publisher JOHN A. BOWEN.

ST. JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, MAR. 20, 1889.

CANADA'S FOURTH CITY.

The result of the vote on the question of union between St. John and Portland was a surprise to the great majority of the people in both cities. Although the question of union was one that had long been thought of and although it was admitted that union, some day or another, was inevitable, the great majority of citizens yesterday morning believed that it would not be accomplished, and that the best that could be done would be to put matters in such a train that union would be accomplished when the question came to be voted upon again. No one was prepared for such an overwhelming vote in favor of union by the people as was given. It was well known that in Charlottetown had been demonstrated by large meetings of electors, and that in Portland a very powerful combination was working against it, with all the vigor and all the means at their disposal, and therefore it was argued that it would be useless for the citizens of St. John to vote in favor of union in the matter, or to appear over-zealous for a union which Portland was likely to reject. But it was found early in the day that the people of Portland were voting for union in far larger numbers than had been expected. Although the police office gang in Ward 3 were working desperately and polling up a large majority against union, Hamilton and Ward 4 were voting still more emphatically for it, and it was seen that union was likely to be carried. This news had its effect on the city vote, and many of the electors on the East side to the polls, who otherwise would hardly have taken the trouble to vote, and thus greatly increased the majority in favor of union. When, about a quarter of 10, the result of the Portland vote was known, in the city the disposition to settle the union question, which once was greatly increased and at no time during the day was the result of the polls so great as between 3 and 4 o'clock.

NOTE AND COMMENT.

The accident on the Northern division of the Intercolonial railway yesterday, by which four men were killed and three injured, was a very serious one. It will demand a strict investigation by the proper authorities. The regular express, which left here for Quebec at 10 o'clock yesterday, and was in charge of the special freight train, it crosses the express, contrary to orders. Conductor Michael, who was in charge of the special freight train, was responsible for the accident, and it is to be regretted that he is not held responsible for his fault or crime, but it will be a matter of interest to learn whether the Intercolonial has to be held responsible for the loss of the special freight train, which was a shocking result.

There was an interesting debate in the House of Assembly yesterday on Mr. Burchell's bill making the qualification of a municipal councillor $200 in real estate. Mr. Burchell advocated the abolition of all qualifications, but withdrew an amendment to that effect, on it being reported that it would be rejected. He did not doubt Dr. Alward is quite right in principle, the electors of a municipality are entitled to say who shall represent them, and a man with no real estate or household interest may be a more fit and representative than some ignorant country clown, who possesses a neglected harvest farm that he thinks is worth $200.

BAD FOR TRAMPS.

There will be no opposition in the Legislature to the union of St. John and Portland. All six of the representatives of the city and county are for it. Mr. Holly is in favor of it, as also, it is to be presumed, Mr. Jones. The people of St. John and Portland have decided, by a very large majority, for union. There, therefore, seems to be no reason for any delay in the enactment of the necessary legislation. As union is to come, the sooner it is consummated the better, long arguments are objectionable.

The proposal to increase the postage on droppers is meeting with a great deal of opposition, and if the Postmaster General is to insist he will drop this feature of his bill for the amendment of Postage. If the general rate on letters was made two cents the public perhaps would not object to the same rate on droppers, but as the general rate is not to be reduced, the demand that the drop letter rates shall not be increased.

A great deal of surprise has been expressed at the vote in ward five of Portland, which went almost five to one against union. The scheme must have been grossly misrepresented to the people of this ward, for it is far more favorable to them than their present relations with the city of Portland. No doubt that a couple of prominent local politicians worked up the ward against union, and that a large proportion of the votes cast against it were fraudulent.

Some of the Yale students have been distinguished themselves by pulling down the statue of Professor Stillman which stood on the college grounds. It was of bronze eight feet in height, and being quite heavy must have required the strength of a dozen men to bring it down from its pedestal. It is to be hoped that if the perpetrators of this outrage are caught they may receive a lengthy term of imprisonment in the penitentiary. Nothing would have more beneficial influence on the punishment of college students than such a punishment for such an offence.

It was currently reported yesterday that certain Portland aldermen voted against union, at the same polling place, one in his own name, and once as personating another person of the same name whose vote he thus stole. If this state of facts can be proved, and we understand that it can, the alderman in question should be proceeded against and punished to the full extent of the law.

A German government detective narrative has been brought to a close last evening, and the resolutions debated by a vote of 123 to 78, in a very full hall, a majority of 45 for the government. The chief features of the debate yesterday were the speeches of Mr. Lawson of Prince Edward Island and Mr. Weldon of St. John, both very pessimistic in their tone. Mr. Davies took occasion, in the course of his remarks, to attack the credit and standing of St. John, pointing out that the Maritime provinces, generally as in a state of commercial stagnation. It need not, however, be a matter of surprise that such things are said in regard to St. John, by Mr. Davies, seeing that our own city member, John Ellis, has for years been engaged in the mean work of slandering this city, with a view to destroy its commerce and impair the credit and standing of its merchants. Mr. Davies, had as he is, is not so culpable as Ellis, for Davies is an enemy of St. John, while Ellis is an enemy of this city, within our gates.

Mr. Weldon's speech seems to have been an imitation as one he made some ten years ago in which he declared that all the merchants of St. John were bankrupt, the "Poor Yerville" believe "speaks freely enough in the Sun during the campaign of 1882. He had a great deal to say about the exiles, he quoted Mr. Gillson as desiring of free competition with the Americans, and he cited New Hampshire and Maine as prosperous manufacturing states, whose example we should follow. We should have been glad to see Mr. Weldon might have been better employed than in retailing state slanders against his own city and Province. What he said about the exiles from two model states Maine and New Hampshire which together hardly increased their population as much in twenty years as New Brunswick alone did in ten. In 1850 New Hampshire had 317,091 people and New Brunswick had 102,800. In 1880 New Hampshire had 346,091 inhabitants and New Brunswick 221,222. The population of New Brunswick in thirty years increased 127,435, while New Hampshire, in the same period increased only 29,000. But it was found early in the day that the people of Portland were voting for union in far larger numbers than had been expected. Although the police office gang in Ward 3 were working desperately and polling up a large majority against union, Hamilton and Ward 4 were voting still more emphatically for it, and it was seen that union was likely to be carried. This news had its effect on the city vote, and many of the electors on the East side to the polls, who otherwise would hardly have taken the trouble to vote, and thus greatly increased the majority in favor of union. When, about a quarter of 10, the result of the Portland vote was known, in the city the disposition to settle the union question, which once was greatly increased and at no time during the day was the result of the polls so great as between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Carlton was the first section in the city to be heard from, the full Carlton vote by wards being telephoned to THE GAZETTE office at 4:20, when it was found that the West side had declared against union by a majority of 236. A minute or two later, the vote of Sydney and Duke's wards came in together, showing a majority of 269 for union. Kings ward followed immediately with a majority of 240 for union, almost enough of itself to carry the city. At 4:35, the votes of Queens Prince and Wellington were received, ruling up a majority in favor of union of 590 and, five minutes later, the Gazette was on the street with the full returns from both Portland and the city, and every one was reading it.

The result of this popular decision in favor of union is fortunate and opportune. It comes at a time when St. John seems to be on a rising wave, and when its people are again beginning to feel some degree of pride in their city. The new connection we will have with Montreal by the C. P. R. will necessarily involve new arrangements for the handling of freight, and in these arrangements the people of Portland are as much interested as those of St. John, and will make their voices heard. The main requisite of the making of the union perfect and satisfactory, is for people to disabuse their minds of all sectional feeling and forget that Portland and St. John were once under different governments. St. John must necessarily remain the business centre of the new city, but Portland will be less busy the resident quarters, the site of our future city hall and likewise of the principal manufacturing establishments. The new city will have an area of about 8,000 acres, or ten times the area of the present city of St. John, and it has a population of not less than 45,000, and it is easily the fourth city in Canada. It will be proper and indeed necessary for Portland and the quarter of St. John lying next the city to be annexed, and then we shall have a population of 20,000, and all the facilities we require for future extension.

The Gazette took occasion when the scheme of union was first published, to suggest some changes which would be improvements, such as the striking out of the clause creating a harbor department, and most of those changes have been made. When the difficulties which surrounded the whole subject are taken into account, it must be admitted that the work of the commissioners has been well done. It now remains for them to carry it to completion. The legislation necessary to consummate the union will be in the form of an amendment to the charter, and there seems to be no reason why this can not be had during the present sitting of the Legislature. We understand that the Attorney General has signified his willingness to keep the Legislature together until the necessary acts are passed. A short act might be passed at once, postponing the Portland and St. John elections until the union scheme is completed, and, we think, that there need be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary legislation, so that the elections for the United City may be held on the 1st of May next. This will be a more convenient arrangement than to wait another year for legislation which might as well be passed during the present session.

The useless debate which Sir Richard Cartwright forced upon Parliament by his unrestricted reciprocity resolution, was brought to a close last evening, and the resolutions debated by a vote of 123 to 78, in a very full hall, a majority of 45 for the government. The chief features

CAPITAL NOTES.

The result of the vote on the question of union between St. John and Portland was a surprise to the great majority of the people in both cities. Although the question of union was one that had long been thought of and although it was admitted that union, some day or another, was inevitable, the great majority of citizens yesterday morning believed that it would not be accomplished, and that the best that could be done would be to put matters in such a train that union would be accomplished when the question came to be voted upon again. No one was prepared for such an overwhelming vote in favor of union by the people as was given. It was well known that in Charlottetown had been demonstrated by large meetings of electors, and that in Portland a very powerful combination was working against it, with all the vigor and all the means at their disposal, and therefore it was argued that it would be useless for the citizens of St. John to vote in favor of union in the matter, or to appear over-zealous for a union which Portland was likely to reject. But it was found early in the day that the people of Portland were voting for union in far larger numbers than had been expected. Although the police office gang in Ward 3 were working desperately and polling up a large majority against union, Hamilton and Ward 4 were voting still more emphatically for it, and it was seen that union was likely to be carried. This news had its effect on the city vote, and many of the electors on the East side to the polls, who otherwise would hardly have taken the trouble to vote, and thus greatly increased the majority in favor of union. When, about a quarter of 10, the result of the Portland vote was known, in the city the disposition to settle the union question, which once was greatly increased and at no time during the day was the result of the polls so great as between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Carlton was the first section in the city to be heard from, the full Carlton vote by wards being telephoned to THE GAZETTE office at 4:20, when it was found that the West side had declared against union by a majority of 236. A minute or two later, the vote of Sydney and Duke's wards came in together, showing a majority of 269 for union. Kings ward followed immediately with a majority of 240 for union, almost enough of itself to carry the city. At 4:35, the votes of Queens Prince and Wellington were received, ruling up a majority in favor of union of 590 and, five minutes later, the Gazette was on the street with the full returns from both Portland and the city, and every one was reading it.

The result of this popular decision in favor of union is fortunate and opportune. It comes at a time when St. John seems to be on a rising wave, and when its people are again beginning to feel some degree of pride in their city. The new connection we will have with Montreal by the C. P. R. will necessarily involve new arrangements for the handling of freight, and in these arrangements the people of Portland are as much interested as those of St. John, and will make their voices heard. The main requisite of the making of the union perfect and satisfactory, is for people to disabuse their minds of all sectional feeling and forget that Portland and St. John were once under different governments. St. John must necessarily remain the business centre of the new city, but Portland will be less busy the resident quarters, the site of our future city hall and likewise of the principal manufacturing establishments. The new city will have an area of about 8,000 acres, or ten times the area of the present city of St. John, and it has a population of not less than 45,000, and it is easily the fourth city in Canada. It will be proper and indeed necessary for Portland and the quarter of St. John lying next the city to be annexed, and then we shall have a population of 20,000, and all the facilities we require for future extension.

The Gazette took occasion when the scheme of union was first published, to suggest some changes which would be improvements, such as the striking out of the clause creating a harbor department, and most of those changes have been made. When the difficulties which surrounded the whole subject are taken into account, it must be admitted that the work of the commissioners has been well done. It now remains for them to carry it to completion. The legislation necessary to consummate the union will be in the form of an amendment to the charter, and there seems to be no reason why this can not be had during the present sitting of the Legislature. We understand that the Attorney General has signified his willingness to keep the Legislature together until the necessary acts are passed. A short act might be passed at once, postponing the Portland and St. John elections until the union scheme is completed, and, we think, that there need be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary legislation, so that the elections for the United City may be held on the 1st of May next. This will be a more convenient arrangement than to wait another year for legislation which might as well be passed during the present session.

The useless debate which Sir Richard Cartwright forced upon Parliament by his unrestricted reciprocity resolution, was brought to a close last evening, and the resolutions debated by a vote of 123 to 78, in a very full hall, a majority of 45 for the government. The chief features of the debate yesterday were the speeches of Mr. Lawson of Prince Edward Island and Mr. Weldon of St. John, both very pessimistic in their tone. Mr. Davies took occasion, in the course of his remarks, to attack the credit and standing of St. John, pointing out that the Maritime provinces, generally as in a state of commercial stagnation. It need not, however, be a matter of surprise that such things are said in regard to St. John, by Mr. Davies, seeing that our own city member, John Ellis, has for years been engaged in the mean work of slandering this city, with a view to destroy its commerce and impair the credit and standing of its merchants. Mr. Davies, had as he is, is not so culpable as Ellis, for Davies is an enemy of St. John, while Ellis is an enemy of this city, within our gates.

Mr. Weldon's speech seems to have been an imitation as one he made some ten years ago in which he declared that all the merchants of St. John were bankrupt, the "Poor Yerville" believe "speaks freely enough in the Sun during the campaign of 1882. He had a great deal to say about the exiles, he quoted Mr. Gillson as desiring of free competition with the Americans, and he cited New Hampshire and Maine as prosperous manufacturing states, whose example we should follow. We should have been glad to see Mr. Weldon might have been better employed than in retailing state slanders against his own city and Province. What he said about the exiles from two model states Maine and New Hampshire which together hardly increased their population as much in twenty years as New Brunswick alone did in ten. In 1850 New Hampshire had 317,091 people and New Brunswick had 102,800. In 1880 New Hampshire had 346,091 inhabitants and New Brunswick 221,222. The population of New Brunswick in thirty years increased 127,435, while New Hampshire, in the same period increased only 29,000. But it was found early in the day that the people of Portland were voting for union in far larger numbers than had been expected. Although the police office gang in Ward 3 were working desperately and polling up a large majority against union, Hamilton and Ward 4 were voting still more emphatically for it, and it was seen that union was likely to be carried. This news had its effect on the city vote, and many of the electors on the East side to the polls, who otherwise would hardly have taken the trouble to vote, and thus greatly increased the majority in favor of union. When, about a quarter of 10, the result of the Portland vote was known, in the city the disposition to settle the union question, which once was greatly increased and at no time during the day was the result of the polls so great as between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Carlton was the first section in the city to be heard from, the full Carlton vote by wards being telephoned to THE GAZETTE office at 4:20, when it was found that the West side had declared against union by a majority of 236. A minute or two later, the vote of Sydney and Duke's wards came in together, showing a majority of 269 for union. Kings ward followed immediately with a majority of 240 for union, almost enough of itself to carry the city. At 4:35, the votes of Queens Prince and Wellington were received, ruling up a majority in favor of union of 590 and, five minutes later, the Gazette was on the street with the full returns from both Portland and the city, and every one was reading it.

The result of this popular decision in favor of union is fortunate and opportune. It comes at a time when St. John seems to be on a rising wave, and when its people are again beginning to feel some degree of pride in their city. The new connection we will have with Montreal by the C. P. R. will necessarily involve new arrangements for the handling of freight, and in these arrangements the people of Portland are as much interested as those of St. John, and will make their voices heard. The main requisite of the making of the union perfect and satisfactory, is for people to disabuse their minds of all sectional feeling and forget that Portland and St. John were once under different governments. St. John must necessarily remain the business centre of the new city, but Portland will be less busy the resident quarters, the site of our future city hall and likewise of the principal manufacturing establishments. The new city will have an area of about 8,000 acres, or ten times the area of the present city of St. John, and it has a population of not less than 45,000, and it is easily the fourth city in Canada. It will be proper and indeed necessary for Portland and the quarter of St. John lying next the city to be annexed, and then we shall have a population of 20,000, and all the facilities we require for future extension.

The Gazette took occasion when the scheme of union was first published, to suggest some changes which would be improvements, such as the striking out of the clause creating a harbor department, and most of those changes have been made. When the difficulties which surrounded the whole subject are taken into account, it must be admitted that the work of the commissioners has been well done. It now remains for them to carry it to completion. The legislation necessary to consummate the union will be in the form of an amendment to the charter, and there seems to be no reason why this can not be had during the present sitting of the Legislature. We understand that the Attorney General has signified his willingness to keep the Legislature together until the necessary acts are passed. A short act might be passed at once, postponing the Portland and St. John elections until the union scheme is completed, and, we think, that there need be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary legislation, so that the elections for the United City may be held on the 1st of May next. This will be a more convenient arrangement than to wait another year for legislation which might as well be passed during the present session.

The useless debate which Sir Richard Cartwright forced upon Parliament by his unrestricted reciprocity resolution, was brought to a close last evening, and the resolutions debated by a vote of 123 to 78, in a very full hall, a majority of 45 for the government. The chief features of the debate yesterday were the speeches of Mr. Lawson of Prince Edward Island and Mr. Weldon of St. John, both very pessimistic in their tone. Mr. Davies took occasion, in the course of his remarks, to attack the credit and standing of St. John, pointing out that the Maritime provinces, generally as in a state of commercial stagnation. It need not, however, be a matter of surprise that such things are said in regard to St. John, by Mr. Davies, seeing that our own city member, John Ellis, has for years been engaged in the mean work of slandering this city, with a view to destroy its commerce and impair the credit and standing of its merchants. Mr. Davies, had as he is, is not so culpable as Ellis, for Davies is an enemy of St. John, while Ellis is an enemy of this city, within our gates.

Mr. Weldon's speech seems to have been an imitation as one he made some ten years ago in which he declared that all the merchants of St. John were bankrupt, the "Poor Yerville" believe "speaks freely enough in the Sun during the campaign of 1882. He had a great deal to say about the exiles, he quoted Mr. Gillson as desiring of free competition with the Americans, and he cited New Hampshire and Maine as prosperous manufacturing states, whose example we should follow. We should have been glad to see Mr. Weldon might have been better employed than in retailing state slanders against his own city and Province. What he said about the exiles from two model states Maine and New Hampshire which together hardly increased their population as much in twenty years as New Brunswick alone did in ten. In 1850 New Hampshire had 317,091 people and New Brunswick had 102,800. In 1880 New Hampshire had 346,091 inhabitants and New Brunswick 221,222. The population of New Brunswick in thirty years increased 127,435, while New Hampshire, in the same period increased only 29,000. But it was found early in the day that the people of Portland were voting for union in far larger numbers than had been expected. Although the police office gang in Ward 3 were working desperately and polling up a large majority against union, Hamilton and Ward 4 were voting still more emphatically for it, and it was seen that union was likely to be carried. This news had its effect on the city vote, and many of the electors on the East side to the polls, who otherwise would hardly have taken the trouble to vote, and thus greatly increased the majority in favor of union. When, about a quarter of 10, the result of the Portland vote was known, in the city the disposition to settle the union question, which once was greatly increased and at no time during the day was the result of the polls so great as between 3 and 4 o'clock.

Carlton was the first section in the city to be heard from, the full Carlton vote by wards being telephoned to THE GAZETTE office at 4:20, when it was found that the West side had declared against union by a majority of 236. A minute or two later, the vote of Sydney and Duke's wards came in together, showing a majority of 269 for union. Kings ward followed immediately with a majority of 240 for union, almost enough of itself to carry the city. At 4:35, the votes of Queens Prince and Wellington were received, ruling up a majority in favor of union of 590 and, five minutes later, the Gazette was on the street with the full returns from both Portland and the city, and every one was reading it.

The result of this popular decision in favor of union is fortunate and opportune. It comes at a time when St. John seems to be on a rising wave, and when its people are again beginning to feel some degree of pride in their city. The new connection we will have with Montreal by the C. P. R. will necessarily involve new arrangements for the handling of freight, and in these arrangements the people of Portland are as much interested as those of St. John, and will make their voices heard. The main requisite of the making of the union perfect and satisfactory, is for people to disabuse their minds of all sectional feeling and forget that Portland and St. John were once under different governments. St. John must necessarily remain the business centre of the new city, but Portland will be less busy the resident quarters, the site of our future city hall and likewise of the principal manufacturing establishments. The new city will have an area of about 8,000 acres, or ten times the area of the present city of St. John, and it has a population of not less than 45,000, and it is easily the fourth city in Canada. It will be proper and indeed necessary for Portland and the quarter of St. John lying next the city to be annexed, and then we shall have a population of 20,000, and all the facilities we require for future extension.

The Gazette took occasion when the scheme of union was first published, to suggest some changes which would be improvements, such as the striking out of the clause creating a harbor department, and most of those changes have been made. When the difficulties which surrounded the whole subject are taken into account, it must be admitted that the work of the commissioners has been well done. It now remains for them to carry it to completion. The legislation necessary to consummate the union will be in the form of an amendment to the charter, and there seems to be no reason why this can not be had during the present sitting of the Legislature. We understand that the Attorney General has signified his willingness to keep the Legislature together until the necessary acts are passed. A short act might be passed at once, postponing the Portland and St. John elections until the union scheme is completed, and, we think, that there need be no difficulty in obtaining the necessary legislation, so that the elections for the United City may be held on the 1st of May next. This will be a more convenient arrangement than to wait another year for legislation which might as well be passed during the present session.

AN OUTRAGEOUS AFFAIR.

A woman assaulted by a Wood Chopper in her Room at Lowell. Lowell, March 17.—Berthelma Veo, a French wood-chopper, is under arrest for a felonious assault upon Mary Ann Wilmore last night. The victim has at the city-farm hospital in a dangerous condition. The offence was committed in Tetor's boarding house in Little Canada, at the corner of Hall and Aiken streets, about midnight. The victim is the wife of Jeremiah Wilmore, a weaver, who came here about a week ago and took rooms at Tetor's. Her room was in an upper story, adjoining that occupied by Veo and his claim, and the two rooms are connected on the outside by a fire escape. About midnight Veo came to his room, half drunk and laid his claim he was going into Mrs. Wilmore's room. He climbed out on the fire escape, entered the room through the window and undressed. Mrs. Wilmore then woke up but he stopped her cries by thrusting his hand into her mouth. He also had strength enough when he left her to return the room to follow him out. He was so as he assaulted. He admitted that he had struck her on the face, and had thrown her into the street. He was again confined to his room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station. During the hearing of the case, the witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

Death in the Witness Box. During the hearing of a will from Cheshire in the probate division, the Thomsen family of Holy Bank, Woodley, near Stockport died under distressing circumstances. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

Best Cough Cure. For all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, no remedy is so safe, speedy, and certain as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. An indispensable family medicine. I first used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral on my little boy, who was afflicted with a severe cough, and other ailments of the throat and lungs. - M. S. Henshall, 28 Broadway, Albany, N. Y. I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for bronchitis and Lung Diseases, for which I believe it to be the greatest medicine in the world. - James Miller, Curwys, N. C. My wife had a distressing cough, with pain in the side and breast. We tried various medicines, but none did her any good until I got a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral which had cured her. A neighbor, Mrs. Glenn, had the same ailment, and the cough was relieved by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I have no hesitation in recommending this medicine. - Robert Horton, Foreman Zionville, Morristown, Ark. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral cured me of a severe cold which had settled on my lungs. My wife says the Pectoral helps her more than any other medicine she ever used. - Enoch Clark, Mt. Liberty, N. Y.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by Druggists. Price: 25c bottles, 50c six bottles.

OYSTERS, OYSTERS. 13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

13 Bells Butochu Oysters. 16 Bells Chatham Oysters. The witness, Mrs. Wilmore, testified that she was in the room at the time, and that she was being assaulted. She was again confined to her room, and Mrs. Wilmore went into convulsions at the sight of her husband. The police station was given a room at the station.

CAUSEY & MAXWELL, Masons and Builders. Mason Work in all its Branches. Slating and Cement Work a specialty. Boilers, Ranges, Mantels and Grates Set, at the most approved patterns. STIFF and SOFT FELT HATS, FALL STYLE SILK HATS, CLOTH CAPS, CORDUROY CAPS, TWEED CAPS, PLUSH CAPS, ASTRACHAN CAPS, SEALETTE & Etc., SCOTCH KNITTED CAPS, HATELOCK CAPS, ALMA CAPS, PULLMAN CAPS, T. O. SHANTERS Etc.

1888. FALL AND WINTER GOODS. 1889. WE are now showing a large and varied assortment of Goods Suitable for above seasons in latest London Styles. STIFF and SOFT FELT HATS, FALL STYLE SILK HATS, CLOTH CAPS, CORDUROY CAPS, TWEED CAPS, PLUSH CAPS, ASTRACHAN CAPS, SEALETTE & Etc., SCOTCH KNITTED CAPS, HATELOCK CAPS, ALMA CAPS, PULLMAN CAPS, T. O. SHANTERS Etc.