

Miramichi and the North Shore, etc.

McCARTHY MURDER TRIAL—See first page.

NEW MAGISTRATES—Messrs. John Marony and Thos. McLaughlin have been gazetted as Magistrates for Northumberland.

SCHOONER SALK.—The schooner "Albatross," 44 tons register, built at Richibucto in 1877, has been purchased by Henry Q. Esq. The price is understood to be $1,000.

A JUVENILE CATERING.—The children of the Methodist Sabbath School and some of their little friends of other churches enjoyed a tea in their school room, Chatham, on Monday evening.

THE BOYS for the Miramichi Tract Society, having just arrived at Halifax by the last mail steamer, are expected to be ready for sale at the Depository in Chatham by Monday next.

DEPARTURE.—Dr. Clark will return to Chatham on Tuesday, 20th November. After that date he will be found at his office, ready to attend to all who require his professional services.

A FRAUD.—The Grant Remedy Manufacturing Company of Worcester Mass., extensively advertised in many of the papers, we are enabled to state, is a fraud, pure and simple.—See Correspondent.

CHRISTMAS SALK.—We are sorry that we are obliged to hold over a large Christmas salk of Messrs. W. B. Howard, Esq.'s, extensive stock, in which an excellent line of goods suitable for the Holiday season is offered.

STYL ANOTHER.—Gordon Livingston, Esq., of Richibucto, has entered the married state, as will be seen by announcement elsewhere. We hope he may be so happy in his new relationship that his only regret will be that he did not get married several years ago.

HOLIDAY SALK AND TEA.—The ladies of the Methodist Episcopal Congregation, intend having a salk of useful and fancy articles, in the Masonic Hall, on Thursday 19th inst. Sale to commence at 2.30 p.m. A first class tea will be served at 6 p.m. Admission 10 cents, tea 30 cents.

MEMORABLE MESSAGES.—The Rev. Dr. D. Carr, of Moncton, will preach in the Methodist Church, Newcastle, Sabbath morning at 11 o'clock, and will hold the Annual Missionary Meeting for Chatham in the church at that place on the same evening at half past 6 o'clock. Other speakers will address the latter meeting. Collection morning and evening in aid of the Mission Fund.

"BARNES' NEW BRUNSWICK ALMANAC." We have received from the publishers a copy of this old and reliable publication for the year 1879. Besides the Calendar, Sun, Moon and Tide tables, Weather Predictions, etc., it contains a great quantity of very useful information relating to Dominion and Provincial public matters, Societies, etc., which render it especially valuable. Indeed, it is now the only first class New Brunswick Almanac published. We understand that it is sold for only ten cents.

FRUIT EXHIBITION.—We are indebted to the Chatham Custom House for the following statement of Fish exported from the port of Chatham from 30th Nov. 1877, to 30th Nov. 1878.

Table with columns: Description, Quantity, Value. Lists various fish species and their market values.

AN "EDITOR."—When we observe Mr. W. H. Stevens' spiteful little attacks on the editor of this paper through the Moncton Times we can only understand G. K. Philander Doesticks' essay on the influence of the press, as exemplified in the columns of the Moncton Reporter. If Mr. Stevens lived in a city, his own tastes, combined with public appreciation of his qualities would probably make him a valued member of what is known in fiction as the "Brighton Artillery," but as it is his lot and the community's misfortune that he should live in Moncton he is an "editor." Poor Moncton!

PERSONAL.—Hon. Attorney General Fraser was in town last week. While coming from Newcastle on Saturday last in company with Hon. Mr. Kelly, the axle of the carriage in which they were driving broke suddenly at the collar, and both were thrown out quite violently. Mr. Fraser, who was quite shaken, was, however, able to proceed to St. John on Monday morning, as well as Mr. Kelly, who escaped with slight injury.

A. R. Dohp, Esq., the popular manager of Messrs. Dun Wiman & Co's business in New Brunswick, visited the Miramichi last week.

Rev. J. C. Murray, of Woodstock, N.B., has been on a visit to his old friends in Richibucto.

THE "NEW ERA" AND "ANSWER" are being laid up for the season. Capt. Bell, who had charge of the latter vessel during the past season has succeeded Mr. Stevens on the Chatham Railway. Capt. Charles Call ran the New Era until Saturday last, notwithstanding the unfavorable weather. Both Newcastle and Chatham people recognize his obliging disposition, for though he is not ostentatious in the performance of his duties, he meets the requirements of the boat's patrons none the less willingly and effectively. His exchange is followed by the hands in his charge and we hope that they will be enabled to receive the service that is provided as early in the spring as the date of their discontinuance was late in the season just closed.

THE "HEATING RINK" The Chatham Skating Rink was opened for the season on Monday evening. The admissions were free and by special invitation and the attendance was large. The 78th Battalion Band furnished excellent music, the Rink was well lighted and the ice in excellent condition, though hardly thick enough to entirely withstand the great moving weight upon it. The water, however, was only forced through there by so small as to offer very little inconvenience to the skaters. Good order prevailed both on the ice and among the numerous promenaders and the angry for the season was decidedly favorable. We hope the attendance of Monday night, though large, was not more than that of other fine evenings during the season will be. It is no small undertaking to establish and maintain a Skating Rink, and it is the duty of the public, for whose amusement and benefit it is provided, to support it well. It is especially calculated for children and suitable recreation for the necessary of both sexes free from objections and dangers which are a drawback to winter sports for young folks in places where Rinks are not established. No more suitable place for ladies and gentlemen to assemble for exercise in the evening can be found, especially as the curiers have two rinks within the same enclosure and are always sure to enliven the exercises with their vocal music.

Nelson Notes.—A DANGEROUS EXPERIMENT.—Mr. A. Underhill of the office of J. Flett, Esq., while dusting his desk a few days since, found a small cartridge which he put into his stove. The ball passed out punched two holes in his hat and grazed his scalp. The moral is obvious.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Although hard times are felt here as well as elsewhere, Nelson is improving a little. The Ambrose has erected a large dwelling 22x32 ft. and a barn 22x32 ft. 14 ft. high.

E. Flett, Esq., has erected a large barn 28x50 ft., 15 ft. post. He is about getting a steam engine to assist in carrying on the farming business on a large scale.

John W. Esq., has improved his property by building a barn 72x30 ft., 16 ft. post. He is about to put in his mill one of the excellent Double Eagles manufactured by Mr. Fraser of the Miramichi Machine Works.

Mr. Michael Baldwin has erected a dwelling 22x25 ft., 14 stoves.

Mr. Daniel Baldwin has almost finished his house 22x30 ft., 14 stoves.

Mr. Mathew Carroll, one of Nelson's most enterprising young men has built a store and dwelling 22x25 ft., 14 stoves.

"High Tea." A very pleasant entertainment, to which those who got it up gave the name of "High Tea" was the chief public attraction in Chatham last Thursday evening. It was in the Temperance Hall under the auspices of the Methodist church here, and ladies of that congregation deserve no little credit for the success they realized.

Geo. Whittaker, Esq., was called the chair and when there was a good humored address by Rev. Mr. McKown, followed by a solo and chorus, the former by Mrs. Kelly, Misses Beattie McKown and Flora Kelly, then sang "The Sisters," excellently and Miss Phipps rendered the touching solo "Tired" in good taste. The little Misses Haveland gave one of their attractive instrumental duets, after which Rev. Mr. Campbell responded to a call by the chairman for a speech. Miss Annie Shirreff then sang a solo, which highly pleased the audience.

Everybody was next called upon to discuss the spread provided by the ladies, and though there were two long tables ranged on either side of the hall, they were not quite equal to the accommodation required. The bill of fare was a capital one, the ladies who waited on the guests seemed very anxious to please them and it is needless to say they succeeded. This part of the programme was enlivened by music, both vocal and instrumental and a few pieces were being performed after the regular tea quite a respectable number patronized the oyster table supplied by Mr. Fountain. The entertainment appeared to be one with which all concerned had good reason to be well satisfied. The net sum realized was between fifty and sixty dollars.

Entertainment of the Dutch Reformers.—On Tuesday evening the entertainment of the Chatham Dutch Reformers was held in the Masonic Hall. A. D. Shierref, Esq., occupied the chair and the meeting was opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. McLean. Miss Charlotte Johnston presided at the piano.

Chorus—"Rejoice the Perishing" by the Choir. Address—By the Rev. Mr. McLean. Solo—"Praise God, make room for a little boy," by Miss Vaughan; accompanied by Miss L. Landon.

Instrumental Music—By Mrs. Paterson. Chorus—"Yield not to Temptation," by the Choir. Address—By J. T. Tweedie, Esq. Solo and Chorus—"My Little Alley Home" by Miss Gertie Goggin and C. Johnston.

Chorus—"Precious Promise" by the Choir. Solo and Chorus—"Sweet Chiming Bells" by Miss M. Johnston; accompanied by Miss L. Landon.

Trios—"Oh my heart goes pit a pat," by Miss Anne Davidson, Jennie Shirreff and Etie Landon.

Address—By Mr. James D. McKay. National Anthem.

Mr. McKay, in his remarks said that with regard to the report of the Committee of five appointed at a previous meeting to take action in the introduction of the Canada Temperance Act into this County, he was not in a position to say anything, as he had not communicated with his colleagues. He thought however, that as soon as the committee had conferred with the different societies their work was done, and he recommended that the Chatham society should appoint two delegates to the convention and that this be done next Tuesday evening.

From over the Continent. We were very much pleased yesterday to receive from Geo. J. Forbes, Esq., whose tales of trans-continental as well as home scenes, have interested so many of our readers, a letter written on 30th Nov. at Mission San Gabriel, Los Angeles, California. It will be remembered that we announced, a short time since, the fact of his having been bequeathed a million or more of dollars by a relative. He says very coolly "your report of my good fortune was true, only I was left much more than the figure you named." He keeps up his literary labors and as a proof thereof sends us the manuscript of a story, which we will soon publish.

He starts in March for Yokohama on a trip round the world and promises us a call on his return, and also some sketches of travel, in the meantime. He says "I think I will settle in New Brunswick, yet, as I like its people better than those of any place I have yet seen." After referring to the tropical character of the weather in Los Angeles—the orange-trees, the etc.—he turns to the subject of business and says "trade is dull and it would not be advisable for any working man to come this way now in hope of bettering his condition. In nine cases out of ten it would be for the worse. Every voyage is crowded to repletion. An advertisement for a book-keeper in San Francisco was answered by 130 applicants. No rain here yet. People are looking for it with interest. New potatoes—second crop—are coming in now. Honey is worth 34 cents per pound, which will be 3 cents, net."

We hope Mr. Forbes will send along many of his sketches, as his numerous friends here will, no doubt, be much interested in them.

The Sy John "News." The ADVANCE appears to be the especial target of a number of ill-natured and unsuccessful press writers in New Brunswick who find a place for their spiteful little efforts in the columns of papers distinguished for the purity of their editorial talent. We had begun to think that our nondescript contemporary, the News, had almost ceased its habit of employing non-journalists and newspaper flingings as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it appears still to enjoy the distinction of possessing "the editorial barber's chair." And it is a matter of regret that the News columns show said chair to be almost invariably patronized by the class who think that to be found making use of such a luxury once a week is the acme of self-denial in the direction of personal cleanliness. We are forced to assume that this state of things continues to exist in the intellectual department of the News, or it would not have contained the regrettable references to the ADVANCE as contributors to the portion of its columns which should approach of a standard nearly to the ordinary standard of respectability, but it