ber of other matters lett to this mittee to decide, but as all concerned in the proposition feel that there is plenty of time between now and next spring, they are not attempting to rush the business, so it will be some little time before another general meeting is Is Capt. Kidd's treasure concealed in the soil of Pokiok? This question is at present being asked by many North-enders, who are talking of John A. the business, so it will be some little time before another general meeting is called.

A day or two ago, suit was brought by the F. E. Sayre Co. against Quinn & Co. for payment of $1.65 due for a piece of timber purchased some months ago by the defendant. Joseph L. Quinn writes to the Star stating that soon after the stick was bought he complained to Mr. Sayre that it was not sound, and asked that it be taken back, offering to pay cartage both ways. This offer was refused, and finally Mr. Quinn carted the stick back himself. He declined payment on the ground that the timber was rotten.

worked with pick and shovel on the spot for many years. When Mr. Segee, sr., died his son took up the search, and for thirty years he has gone out to Pokiok day after day to dig for the treasure. A trench sixty feet long by twenty wide has been dug and Mr. Segee claims to have taken from the soil a number of old relics such as French bayonets, etc. A peculiar feature of Mr. Segee's search for wealth is the way in which he has kept his work to himself. Two prominent merchants were called upon a short time ago by Mr. Segee, who invited them to go to Pokiok with him and have a look at the "treasure ground." One WERE MIRACULOUS to go to Pokiok with him and have a look at the "treasure ground." One accepted the invitation and after a visit to the place told Mr. Segee that he would undoubtedly become the possessor of unlimited wealth. The merchant was not sufficiently interested, however to way for a steam drill and other Farmer's Wagon Struck by ever, to pay for a steam drill and othe

Mr. Segee has recently decided to get a company intersted in the search who will furnish the required capital. The relative of Mr. Segee who was seen by the Star, says that went to Pokiok with Mr. Segee about a week ago. A mineral rod was taken out and it worked wonderfully. A rod, however, he explained is often attracted by stone or water.
