The ment, in which she advised her followclearly indicate that they think the ers to refrain from treating such cases until the public should more undercoal road presidents acquiesced in Mr MacVeagh's plan for a settlement ou stand the doctrines of the faith, proof court and then repudiated him. The allegation that Geo. F. Baer signed the voked much discussion.

Her second statement is as follows: "When, under the protection of State or United States laws, good citizens are arrested for manslaughter because one out of three of their patients, havone out of three of their patients, having the same disease and in the same family, dies while the others recover, we naturally turn to divine justice for support, and wait on God. Christian Scientists should be influenced by their own judgment in the taking of a case of malignant disease. They should con-sider well as to their ability to cope telegram which we understand was written by George F. Baer in the presence of and with the consent of every railroad concerned, and was signed by Wayne MacVeagh. This telegram was written after a careful reading of the tentative agreement which had been prepared and written by counsel on behalf of parties, and which had been submitted to the commission. At the raquest of Mr. MacVeagh, Mr. Mitchell, Mr. Darrow and Mr. Lloyd went to

Mr. Darrow and Mr. Lloyd went to Washington to consult upon some minor details of the agreement. There was no friction or important disagreement between the parties at the meeting in Washington. Later in the day, and after the conference in New York with the independent operators, Mr. MacVeagh received a telegram calling off all negotiations and advising that the matter be settled by the commission in a regular hearing.

"The man who wrote the telegram to Judge Gray stating that the main features of the contract were acceptable, was the same man who signed the telegram to Wayne MacVeagh three or four days later, stating that negotiations must end. A copy of the tentative agreement is in the hands of diphtheria which he had on hnad. Statistics show that this science cures a larger percentage of malignant diseases than does materia medica.

"I call disease by its name, and have cured it thus; so there is nothing new on this score. My book, Science and Health, names diseases, and thousands are healed by reading its hame and learning that so-called disease is a sensation of mind, not matter."

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—Considerable anxiety is felt in marine circles in regard to the safety of the Canadian steamer Bannockburn. Being Taken to Stamp Out the Foot and Mouth Disease.

PROMPT MEASURES

mouth disease having been declare pidemic among the cattle of Massa chusetts, both the United States gov taken drastic measures to stamp out, the former by prohibiting t shipment of cattle from the port. Boston and quarantining the states Poston and quarantining the states of Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connectiout against the deceipt of cattle and swine, and the latter by closing the cattle tradic at the Brighton stock yards, the clearing house for cows in New England. It is hoped by the strictest kind of quarantine and by frequent and rigid inspection of all the herds in the state to eradicate this disease.

of both Vermont and Connecticut re-ported today that there was no sign of the disease in those states, several additional cases were discovered in Massachusetts. One of these was at the Brighton stock yards and several It is known that there are several cases in a certain town in Rhode Isand, where the disease first made its appearance in New England. BOSTON, Nov. 27.—The order of the secretary of agriculture placing an embargo on the shipment of cattle from the port of Boston and declaring in quarantine cattle and swine of Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticutu, gives assistance to the Massachusetts cattle commission in its efforts to stamp out the epidemic of foot and mouth disease. In this state. At the same time, the order threatens curtailment of the foreign commerce of Boston, in that it is likely to temporarily out off the shipment to Europe of an average of 250 ment to Europe of an average of 2,500 head of cattle a week.

The order follows one issued vester-day by the state commissioners quarantining the Brighton stock yard, which is the cleaning house for milch cows for the Boston milk district and to which the foot and mouth disc to which the foot and mouth disease has been traced.

Going back still further, the local authorities believe that the disease came originally from southern Rhode Island and was brought to Brighton by cows known as "strippers."

Since then the disease has broken out in herds of cows in a dozen towns in Middlesex and Worcester counties, from which sections the great bulk of the milk supply of Boston is received.

It is with the hope of preventing fur-ther infection, especially into the west-ern part of the state, and stamping out the disease where it now exists

The government order was received with surprise, not only by the cattle-men of Brighton, but by the steamship agents as well as it means a considerlines carrying cattle to Europe from this port. Some of the agents refuse to believe that the order has been ssued, as such drastic measures have eldom been adopted by the United States government. Several agents cabled to the home offices in London on the way. At the Cunard line it was stated that 400 head of cattle were en route over the Canadian Pacific for this port, but whether any of them have yet come within the quarantined sections was not known tonight. Although many cattle from the west are brought to this city for foreign shipment by the relivant they are all ment by the railways, they are almost wholly steers, very few cows being sent across the water. On the other hand, they are despatched throughout New England and into the New Engand States an average of 500 cows a week from the Brighton stock yards, and it is against this traffic that the order of the secretary of agriculture was principally directed. J. W. A. Hathaway, one of the largest shippers of cattle at Brighton, stated that he despatched 400 head of cattle to Phila-delphia yesterda, and that 2,000 were to have gone in the next seven or eight days. Besides this shipment by train, considerable live stock, especially cows, leave Brighton every day for nearby towns, over the road, and the State leave Brighton every day for nearby towns, over the road, and the State cattle commissioners have traced the disease up through the State in the different hords that have been supplied recently from Brighton. In instances the disease has been found in herds which have not been exposed by new-comers from Brighton. The commissioners after a most careful investigation believe that the disease was brought to Brighton from the neighborhood of Cumberland, R. I., and that it was due to the cows called "strippers." These "strippers" are cows which are highly fed for eighteen months without being allowed to calve, in order to obtain an abnormal milk supply. After the supply is exhausted the animals are then fattened for slaughter, and these unusual methods have a tendency to bring on disease. After the outbreak in Rhode Island several herds of cattle were brought up to Brighton, and remained there some days before being re-distributed among Massachusetts herds.

As will be seen, the effect of the embargo at Brighton and the effort of the State commission to prevent the dealing in cows among farmers will practically restrict all the herds in the State and make it easy to quarantine those in which the disease has been found.

The efforts of the State commission

The efforts of the State commission differ from those of the government authorities, in that it aims to prevent the spread of the disease among the cattle supplying milk, as comparatively little slaughtering is now done at Brighton. Every effort is being made to keep a close watch on all herds throughout Middlesex and Worcester counties, which localities send the bulk of Boston's milk supply. It is believed that by striking at the disease in the early stages of the epidemic will have a good effect, although it is remembered that it cost England several millions to stamp it out some years ago.

Agent Davis of the Leyland lin Agent Davis of the Leyland line stated tonight that the order of the secretary of agriculture would have a very bad effect upon the commerce of Boston. One or two steamers were already loaded and would sail with cartle, but the Columbian, which was to have sailed on Saturday with 600 certile. attle and 400 sheep, now on the way this port, may not be able to leave. It was ascertained tonight that the trictions which the British govern Canadian cattle shipments on account of the outbreak of this same disease had not yet been removed, and that hat country still depended upon Ambroca for cattle in the hoof.

It was also learned that the quarase, me which the Maine cattle commissioners had established some times assumes that the other ways are straight the other.

n sioners had established some time and against the other New England States is still in force.

PORTLAND, Me., Nov. 27.—Dr. F.

W. Huntington, government cattle in-spector at this port, said this evening that he had just received a telegram from Washington to the following ef-

"Appearance of foot and mouth disease appears serious. Allow no New England cattle for export. Take every precaution against contagion."

Dr. Huntington said that western sattle brought here for shipment had lways been kept separate from New langer of contagion, as in the case of toston, where western and native attle are herded together. He said hat so far there had been no appearthat so far there had been no appearance of the foot and mouth disease in Maine, and every effort would be made to keep it out. If any extra business was brought to Portland on account of the prohibition of cattle shipments, achieves here were such that arrangements could be easily made to handle

Boston has always sent over a great many more cattle than has Portland, and if we should take the place of Boston we would of course be obliged to have many more steamers. What the policy of the Allan people would be would have to be decided in Boston. We send out about 300 cattle every two weeks from Glasgow. There would be no trouble about handling all the cattle that would come here."

Sent W. H. Plerce of the Hamburg-American line said no cattle were shipped by his line either from Boston or Portland.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 27 .- Se retary H. O. Averill of the State cattle commission said tonight that not a single case of foot and mouth disease among the cattle of this State had peen reported to him. A statement outshing upon this subject which was ssued by Mr. Averill on Tuesday last issued by Mr. Averill on Tuesday last was merely a warning to the farmers and horse dealers in the State, and was intended to prevent, if possible, shipments of cattle from other cities in New England where the disease is known to exist.

BURDINGTON, Vt., Nov. 27.—Inquiry conducted here to cover many sections of the State has failed to bring out any statement that would indicate that foot and mouth disease. indicate that foot and mouth disease has been found in Vermont. Some veterinaries have been to Middlebury looking over some cattle brought there from Massachusetts, but no report of any disease has been submitted.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 27.—The State board of agriculture will meet on Saturday to take action on the cattle disease that is disturbing the authorities of this State and Massachusetts. A committee of that body now has the subject under consideration, and will make recommendations which the board will probably adopt. An appropriation of $5,000 will be asked from the legislature, which meets the first of December, and a quarantine against Massachusetts cattle similar to the quarantine of that State against Rhode Island is proposed.

The disease has affected several herds of cattle in the northern part of the State, numbering into the hundreds and hogs too have caught the ailment Measures have already been taken to suppress traffic in cattle supposed to be diseased.
