SIPLY HAVE TO STEAL,

A TEXAL SCREEN SCREEN AS A COUNTY OF THE ACT OF THE ACT

the beard of his father, the bones of his children that such a thing as a theft was unknown in the village. Then he would hustle around and command and specal and use up the ten minutes. There was only the one method to put in pratice. I would catch hold of his and give him the boot, and after a few kicks that property would turn up. No mative, high or low, leels the slightest disgrace in being found out, nor is he elated when his thievery is a success.

What we call petty larony is practiced from one end of India to the other, and excites no surprise and but little comment. Your valet, your cook, your sures, your maivel soldier or your Government employee will steal anything from a bungalow for a hairpin, and must of the Europeans take the situation philosophically. If the little hives annoy you, the big ones who parapas' would be called robbers, excite your admiration. For some months I had a bungalow in Allashada while completeing my field outge. Not far away was a steam boiler to go with a five-horse-power engine. One night this boiler was stolen. You may figure it out, that it would take a big stuck, two horses and five or six men to latter he returned. By climbing a tree.
