CLARKE GOVERNMENT CAN SHOW FINE RECORD OF PROGRESS AND DEVELOPMENT FOR PUBLIC GOOD

Every Department Tells Its Own Story of Honest Business-Like Administration — How the Agricultural Policy of the Government Has Brought Prosperity to the Farmers—Better Roads and Bridges—The Boom of Cheaper
Schoolbooks—Important Facts Which Opposition Scandal
Mongers Cannot Refute.

The opposition managers having elected to fight Hon. P. G. Mahoney on the record of the Government of which that gentleman is now a member, he has every reason to be satisfied with the outlook. If the opposition will only confine themselves to the Government's record and keep their scandal-mongering tactics out of the fight, Mr. Mahoney's task will be an easy one. As spokesman for the Government, he has no sins of omission or commission to apologize for, no questionable transactions to explain, no overdrafts or suspense accounts to cover up, and no other form of corrupt expenditure to account for.

No government that ever administered the affairs of this province ever made such an improvement in conditions in a few years as has the present Government. No reasonable man after looking over the conditions as they are today can truthfully say that there has not been a vast improvement since 1908, whether it be in matters pertaining to agriculture, to the Crown Lands, the public works and services or general legislative policies. In no case would any sensible man wish to revert to the old state of affairs.

The Agricultural Department.

Take the matter of agriculture for instance and compare present conditions with what they were when the present Government came into power. At that time the whole staff of the agricultural department, except the two dairy superintendents, consisted of the Deputy Minister, who spent the whole of his time (except when he was away fishing), in the office of the Department, and the farmers were left to look after themselves. The consequence was when the present Government came into office there was absolutely no information available as to farming conditions throughout the province. One of the new Government's first acts therefore was to appoint a commission which went through the length and breadth of the province gathering information as to conditions in the various localities, and interviewing the farmers as to the particular needs of each of these districts. On the information thus obtained, the Government was able to found a constructive and progressive policy, which has since been followed out, to the immense advantage of the farmers personally and the welfare of the industry at large.

A Story of Great Progress.

The permanent staff of the Department, now consists of some eighteen experts in the various branches of the agricultural industry, whose advice and assistance are at all times at the service of the farmers. Nor do the farmers have to come to Fredericton to obtain this advice for the officials make a practice of visiting the various districts and meeting the farmers on their own ground, where their services can be used to much better advantage. Agricultural societies—which under the old government were left to look after themselves and as a consequence about a third of them went out of existence—are now some of the most active organizations of any kind in the province, and the farmers themselves are ready to testify to the great benefits they receive by attending the meetings of these societies. In order to encourage the breeding of a better class of live stock, the Government grants bonuses to these Societies, thereby enabling them to purchase pure bred sires, a policy which the old government never dreamed of.

Agricultural Education.

Recognizing that one of the greatest needs of the agricultural industry is a system of education in matters pertaining to it, the Government has already established two agricultural schools and is shortly to establish a third. How greatly the facilities which these schools offer to the rising generation of farmers and prospective farmers' wives is shown by the gratifying number of pupils who are taking advantage of the opportunity afforded them. In addition to these schools, and for the benefit of those farmers who are not able to attend them, a series of short courses is held each season in various parts of the province, where those who can only afford to be away from home for a day or two can attend. These short courses are also highly appreciated.

Another immense benefit which the Government has conferred upon the agricultural industry are the facilities which have been provided under which young men, with only small capital may in time own a farm for themselves by small annual payments (in many cases no greater than they would be called upon to pay for rent) and the large number of young men who have already taken advantage of these facilities shows very clearly how much the Government's efforts in their behalf are appreciated. As a result of the Government's efforts in this and other directions, the condition of agriculture at the present time is more flourishing than it has ever been before in the history of the province.

Crown Land Department.

In the Crown Land Department, the same prudent and progressive methods have been followed, with the result that the revenue from that great asset has increased in the seven years the Government has been in power about eighty-six per cent., which means that the revenue from that source is now nearly a quarter of a million dollars more every year than it was when the Government took office. An honest and businesslike collection of stumpage has resulted in the lumber operators paying to the province what they owed it, instead of just such proportion of their debt as they chose to say was due. The old government was in the habit of accepting as correct just what statements the lumber operators chose to send in, and the latter, in making up these statements were careful to retain a sufficient sum in hand as would enable them to meet the periodical levies for campaign and other funds which the late government used to make on them. The present Government makes no such demand on the lumbermen, but as the people's steward it is careful to see that the province is not defrauded of what is justly due from them.

The action of the Government in ordering a complete survey and classification of the Crown Lands will be heartily approved by the public. The necessity of knowing the area and the value of the various classes of timber upon these lands will be apparent, as also is the desirability of knowing just exactly what portion of the Crown Lands are available for agricultural settlements. This action on the part of the Government is in line with the policy pursued in other provinces, and in the principal States of the Union, and is a distinctly progressive policy.

A Sound Business Policy.

In placing the money received from the sale of Crown Lands and from the bonuses in respect of the renewal of timber licenses to a sinking fund, the Government has adopted a sound business policy, and a policy which is, however, very much at variance with that of their predecessors. It was the practice of the last named gentlemen to put every dollar that came in to their possession no matter whether it was borrowed on bonds or otherwise, into ordinary revenue, and spend it without a murmur. Items that were properly chargeable to ordinary revenue were paid for out of capital, and more money than was needed was borrowed so that there might be some "left over" to go into the spending fund. The present Government has reversed that policy, and has contrived to keep a largely increased expenditure within the bounds of the ordinary revenue, at the same time having more money to spend on the various public works and services. These

WEATHERMAN ON GOOD BEHAVIOR FOR HOLIDAY

Many Attractions for Those Who Stayed in Town, While
Day Marked First General
Move Towards Suburbs.

Victoria Day was very generally observed yesterday. Most of the mills were down and all the business houses closed. A larger number of people were out of the city, all those who could get away going Tuesday night. The fishing parties were numerous and most of them were fairly successful. Of course they all had the usual tale to tell of "the big one" which "got away," "just had him to the top of the water."

The suburbanites were out in force, making ready for the summer. Around Infantsville the residents were wakened early by the chug chug of the motor boats and Marble Cove, the home waters of the St. John Power Boat Club, was a busy place all morning with picnic parties getting away for up river. Those who stayed in town had the different moving picture houses to take in and they all did a rushing business. Two games of ball were played by the Society League on the St. Peter's grounds, and a game of football was played on the Barrack Green between the 115th and 140. The small boy was very much in evidence, with his fire crackers without which it would not seem like Victoria Day.

The weather man provided fine weather, a little cool, but everybody had a good time in his own way. Seaside Park was opened for the season and many took advantage of the excellent street car service, the Seaside cars making a continuous trip from the Park to city and over the south end loop back to the park. Picnic parties to Glen Falls were also numerous and on the whole the man without a country house found no dearth of amusement.

FUNERALS.

The funeral of John Montague took place at 7.15 Tuesday morning from the residence of his daughter, Mrs. William Newman, Sea street, to the Church of the Assumption, where a requiem high mass was celebrated by Rev. J. J. Donovan. Interment was made at Black River.

Doctor W. T. Grenfell of the Labrador Medical Mission, who has recently returned from France, will be in St. John on Thursday, May 25th, eight p. m., to speak in the St. John church school house. He will lecture on his work at the front and will also speak on his work in Labrador. A silver collection will be taken, the proceeds to be devoted to the work in Labrador.

latter are now in an infinitely better position than has been the case for many years, if ever, before.

With an increased revenue brought about by the use of prudent business methods, the Government has been able to spend more money on roads and bridges, and the general public has benefited thereby. In the days of the old government money was handed out to the road and bridge superintendents with absolutely no check upon the manner in which it was spent. Some superintendents made returns, others did not, and for aught the public knew the money allotted to them might have been put in their own pockets.

A Boon To Every New Brunswicker.

Much though the people of New Brunswick appreciate the improvement in the administration of their affairs which is now so apparent, a feature which they appreciate more than anything is the great cut in the price of schoolbooks. Under the antiquated system which was followed by the late government whereby a ring of favored supporters had the monopoly of supplying all the schoolbooks for the province, the cost of these books to the parents was almost twice what it ought to have been or need have been. Time and time again the late government was asked to remedy this condition of affairs, but failed to do so out of consideration for their friends, though they did not mind robbing the parents in order to do this. One of the first acts of the present Government was to make such a change in the system then existing that schoolbooks now are available at absolutely the lowest possible cost after taking the cost of production and the expense of bringing them into the province into consideration. This is a matter which comes pretty close home to the people, and they appreciate the change.

The opposition managers will need to do a large amount of explaining before they can justify to the parents of the province the action of their party in thus systematically robbing the people for so many years for the benefit of a small group of speculators.

MAINE OUTLAW PROBABLY IN MADAWASKA

Freeman Nadeau, Escaped
Prisoner, Thought to Have Crossed New Brunswick Border.

There is reason to believe that Freeman Nadeau, the notorious Maine outlaw, who escaped from the Bangor State Hospital last month, has made his way into New Brunswick. Nadeau has kept the people of Aroostook and Upper Penobscot counties in a state of semi-terror for a long time. Nadeau was arrested last winter for assaulting his wife and child at their home near Patten, Me. During the fracas the dwelling was burned, Mrs. Nadeau and children being obliged to seek shelter with her relatives.

Nadeau was indicted by the grand jury in February, but was not brought to trial, the Maine authorities deciding to send him to the State Hospital for observation. Nadeau is a French-Canadian and it is supposed he has been able to cross the border into Madawaska County. During the past few years he has been charged with smuggling, poaching and other offences. A deputy sheriff of Aroostook County, who was on the trail of Nadeau a year or two ago was never heard of afterwards. The Maine officials were never able to connect the Canadian with the deputy's disappearance, although he was held for a time. Since his last arrest Nadeau is alleged to have attempted suicide.

Nadeau's Wanderings.

The latest report concerning Nadeau's wanderings since taking French leave at the Bangor State Hospital has all the semblance of truth and plausibility. It has been suggested as probable that Nadeau would make his way to Canada in order to get beyond the immediate jurisdiction of the Maine authorities, and if the story is correct this is exactly what he has done. The last heard of him he was within a few miles of the Canadian border and it is likely that he is now in New Brunswick.

It appears that a man who was in charge of a camp at Nigger Brook pond, a few miles from Fort Kent, was resting one night recently about 9 o'clock, blissfully unconscious that there was a human being within a mile of him, when the door opened without ceremony and there appeared a man, fully armed. He had two guns and a cartridge belt strapped around him.

Stranger Made Threats.

His first question was: "Are you all alone here?" Receiving an answer in the affirmative he appeared to be much relieved and made himself at home, giving his so-called host a casual bit of advice—the effect that if anyone came to the camp he would do well to seek the inner room and lie down flat, as there would be some shooting going on around there, and if he (the host) didn't want to get in the way of a stray bullet or two he would be safer lying low than in any other way.

The intruder further stated that before he would "be taken" he would use up all his ammunition,—and he had plenty of it and to spare. He added that he was going to kill just three men and one woman if he had a chance before coming to a sudden end. He demanded food of the man in the camp, but would not let him prepare it, doing all the cooking himself, evidently being suspicious of any attempt to poison him or make him sick and disabled. He had all the appearance of a desperate man and one who would carry out the threats in which he had indulged.

May Have Been Nadeau.

It is believed by those who have heard the story that the intruder may have been Nadeau. He did not explain who the woman was whom he was so anxious to kill, but it was inferred that he was referring to his wife.

When their home was burned Nadeau's family nearly perished in the flames. Nadeau was arrested and was committed to the county jail in Bangor. At the February term of the supreme court he was indicted by the grand jury, but was not brought to trial, it being deemed best to commit him to the Bangor State Hospital for observation.

At the hospital Nadeau was kept under close scrutiny, but in some way he secured possession of a key which unlocked the door of his room, and he made his escape when the attendants were occupied with other matters. Since that time he has been reported as having been seen in a number of different places, but none of the stories has been received with a great amount of credence.

The story printed above is vouched for by reliable persons and is stated in such a complete and circumstantial manner as to leave little doubt of the entire sincerity of the man directly involved in the encounter with the supposed, and probably real Nadeau. The man in the camp did not hesitate to state that he was thoroughly scared of the intruder, and he said he "took mighty good care not to cross him in any way."

After staying at the camp all night the unwelcome visitor took his departure early the next morning.

This Skin Peeler All the Rage in Society

There is a growing tendency among women of culture and fashion to preserve their charms. The advent of mercerized wax douches has been largely responsible for this. This remarkable substance produces complexion so natural in appearance, so marvellously beautiful, artificial complexion are no longer desired. Instead of "doucheing" an offensive skin, the skin is peeled off. The wax peels the skin so gradually, in such fine particles, no discomfort is experienced. The fresher, younger skin beneath, wholly in evidence within a week or two, is lily white, satiny soft and smooth. It's not a patched-over complexion, but a brand new one. That why mercerized wax has become such a rage among society folk. The wax is put on nights like cold cream and washed off mornings. All druggists have it; one ounce will do.

Another hygienic treatment now much in favor is one to remove wrinkles, made by dissolving 1 oz. powdered saccharine in a pint of water. Used as a wash lotion it "sets like magic."
