If one requires a porter during the might all one does is "push the button." Each berth has an electric light and a push bell; and, joy of joys, a mirror. No excuse now for parading the aisle in curl papers. The light under each lower berth shines out ou the floor and saves the shines of many who might stumble over baggage in the darkness of the car at midnight.

The berths are comfortable, the improved ventilation makes cinders an "unknown quantity," so the women who travel in them are sure to say that the New Canadian Pacific Tourist Cars spell Travelling Comfort,
