The bill to amend the attachment and abolition of imprisonment for debt act was committed. A conversational dis-cussion ensued, in the course of which Hon. Mr. Hanington in effect expressed himself dissatisfied with the bill which was not such as the country wanted. The required something better. The bill would act harshly against the poor man and in favor of the man doing large business. When the bill, the present bill seeks to amend, passed, it created a very favorable impression for the Gov-ernment. The people were relicied fom the dread that they would be haul-ed to prison for small debts. When the general election was held the Act had, no oubt, its effect in influencing people in favor of the Government; now when the purpose was effected the oid law of imprisonment for debt was resenanced.
