

LEGAL NOTICE

Salts & Potash Company of Canada Limited

PUBLIC Notice is hereby given that under the First Part of chapter 79 of the Revised Statutes of Canada, 1906, known as "The Companies Act," letters patent have been issued under the Seal of the Secretary of State of Canada, bearing date the 24th day of February, 1916, incorporating Thomas Anderson Burgess, and J. Ogle Carrs, barristers-at-law, Charles Osborne Wood, civil engineer, John Symes Hollinsworth and George Erskine Ewing, accountants, and Mary Ida Keays and Margaret Surgeon, stenographers, all of the City of Ottawa, in the Province of Ontario, for the following purposes, viz:—

(a) To import, manufacture, distill, methylate, buy, sell and deal in chemicals, spirits, explosives and other products, whether simple or compounded with other substances;

(b) To purchase, take on lease or otherwise acquire (either with or without the surface) any coal, iron or other mineral land, mining ground or minerals, and any mining rights, grants, concessions and easements and any lands and hereditaments or other property necessary for the advantageous possession and use of the mines or works of the company or any interest therein respectively and to search for, get, win, quarry, burn, make merchantable, purchase, sell, dispose of or otherwise deal with coal, ores, metals, minerals, and any substances of the earth;

(c) To import, purchase, acquire, sell, smelt, concentrate, quarry, reduce, distill, methylate, treat, extract, refine or produce in any manner whatsoever by any process whatever and deal in any vegetable, mineral, animal, wood, metallic, iron, chemical, medicinal, liquid, gaseous or other substance or product;

(d) To manufacture, buy, sell and deal in aerated, mineral or other water of every kind;

(e) To acquire any concessions, grants, rights, powers and privileges whatsoever from any government, which may seem to the company capable of being turned to account, and to work, develop, carry out, exercise and turn to account the same;

(f) To develop the resources of and turn to account any lands and any rights over or connected with land belonging to or in which the company is interested, and in particular by clearing, draining, fencing, planting, cultivating, building, improving, farming, irrigating, grazing or otherwise howsoever;

(g) To manufacture, buy, sell, export, import, and deal in goods, wares and merchandise composed of wood, cement, clay, oil, chemicals or metals or any combinations of such materials or any of them with each other or with other materials;

(h) To carry on any other business (whether manufacturing or otherwise) which may seem to the company capable of being conveniently carried on in connection with its business or calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the value of or render profitable any of the company's property or rights;

(i) To acquire or undertake the whole or any part of the business, property and liabilities of any person or company carrying on any business which the company is authorized to carry on, or possession of property suitable for the purposes of the company;

(j) To apply for, purchase or otherwise acquire, any patents, licenses, concessions and the like, conferring any exclusive or non-exclusive, or limited right to use, or any secret or other information as to any invention which may seem capable of being used for any of the purposes of the company, or the acquisition of which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to benefit the company, and to use, exercise, develop or grant licenses in respect of, or otherwise turn to account the property, rights or information so acquired;

(k) To enter into partnership or into any arrangement for sharing of profits, union of interest, co-operation, joint adventure, reciprocal concession or otherwise, with any person or company carrying on or engaged in or about to carry on or engage in any business or transaction which the company is authorized to carry on or engage in, or any business or transaction capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to lend money to, guarantee the contracts of, or otherwise assist any such person or company, and to take or otherwise acquire shares and securities of any such company, and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same;

(l) To take, or otherwise acquire and hold, in any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company or carrying on any business capable of being conducted so as to directly or indirectly to benefit the company; and to sell, hold, re-issue, with or without guarantee, or otherwise deal with the same, notwithstanding the provisions of section 44 of the said Act;

(m) To construct, improve, maintain, work, manage, carry out or control any roads, ways, tramways, branches or sidings, bridges, reservoirs, watercourses, wharves, manufactories, warehouses, electric works, shops, stores and other works and conveniences which may seem calculated directly or indirectly to enhance the company's interests, and to contribute to, subsidize or otherwise assist or take part in the construction, improvement, maintenance, working, management, carrying out or control thereof;

(n) To lend money to customers and others having dealings with the company and to guarantee the performance of contracts by any such persons;

(o) To draw, make, accept, endorse, execute and issue promissory notes, bills of exchange, bills of lading, warrants and other negotiable or transferable instruments;

(p) To sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company or any part thereof for such consideration as the company may think fit, and in particular for shares, debentures or securities or any other company having objects altogether or in part similar to those of the company;

(q) To do all or any of the above things as principals, agents, contractors or otherwise, and either alone or in conjunction with others;

(r) To do all such other things as are incidental or conducive to the attainment of the above objects;

(s) To remunerate any person or company for services rendered or to be rendered in the placing of any shares in the company's capital stock, or any debentures or other securities of the company, or in or about the formation, or promotion of the company, its organization or the conduct of its business, and to pay for same in cash or, with the approval of the shareholders, in issuing fully paid-up shares of the company, or partly in cash and partly in fully paid-up shares of the company.

The operations of the company to be carried on throughout the Dominion of Canada and elsewhere by the name of "Salts & Potash Company of Canada, Limited," with a capital stock of five hundred thousand dollars, divided into 500,000 shares of one dollar each, and the chief place of business of the said company to be at the City of Toronto, in the Province of Ontario.

Dated at the office of the Secretary of State of Canada, this 24th day of February, 1916.

THOMAS MULVEY,
Under-Secretary of State.

A JUDGE has decided that jitneys are "common carriers." That seems like extravagant praise of some of them.

War order insurance rates indicate that there is a real menace of peace.

Seems to be a long time between presidents down in Mexico.

It is a certainty that with those whiskers Charles E. Hughes can never hope for the barber vote.

Toronto ball team has a pitcher named Shocker who won eight straight games. That chap is well named. The club management will need shock-absorbers if he keeps on winning.

How would it be to appoint a censor for Sir Sam Hughes' correspondence?

The weather man was recently knighted by the King. Considering the kind of weather he has been giving us, he should have received the Order of the Bath.

Oddly enough, the women who talk the most about women working in factories in wartime are not the women who do the work.

Britain takes a look at Uncle Sam's mail occasionally. Germany sinks the steamer, mail and all. Yet old Uncle Sam makes his protest to Britain.

Toronto News published a war map showing Copenhagen to be in Sweden. Anything is liable to happen in this war.

Toronto schools are to have new music books from which songs by Teuton composers have been excised. This seems to be another case of "German banned."

Prominent writer says that love cannot be defined. If it could it wouldn't be nearly so interesting.

Jane Addams, of Chicago, says the poor eat too much. It's not poverty but indigestion that is the curse of the poor, you see.

Columbus discovered America, but it took the trusts to show what could be done with it.

Detroit woman, after her fifth marriage, said she had at last found the right man. Wonder how the poor sinner feels about it?

We note that a soldier has been fitted with a new set of steel ribs. Now watch for the fair feminine folk to rush for corsets with steel ribs.

Jess Willard says he is tired of the limelight and wants to retire to seclusion. All those in favour—carried unanimously!

"Woman denies she died," runs a headline in a daily paper. She must be right, then.

Keen Criticism.—Perhaps the most stinging criticism of singers that has come to light for some time was that delivered by a British Tommy at a convalescent hospital in the course of a concert that was given by some well-meaning but talent-lacking people.

The wounded soldiers had endured the singing with quite commendable patience, but finally one Tommy turned to a comrade with the remark: "Say, Bill, we heard better singing than that by the German in the trenches and—we shot 'em for it."

N. Change.—Germany has moved its clocks an hour ahead, but its armies remain in practically the same places.

In a Word.—With the introduction of daylight saving, this may be aptly described as the early-rising generation.

The Query.—The Kaiser praised his fleet on its recent "victory" in the North Sea battle. However, now that some time has passed, he cannot help wondering why the said fleet tarries so long in the Kiel Canal instead of sweeping the seas.

No Escape.—The Germans talk of avoiding the licking of stamps by using automatic franking machines for letters.

But there's another licking coming to them that they can't avoid.

The Whole Story.—Somebody with a sense of humour and a wide knowledge of geography has put together this post-office romance:

Friendship, N.Y.
Love, Va.
Kissimmee, Fla.
Ring, Ark.
Parson, Ky.

And now comes the cynic along, to suggest that to make the romance real, on the latter end of the list should be added the name of Reno, Nevada.

The Result.

The milk supply is cornered
In Britain, we now learn,—
Beware that milk, when cornered,
Like some wild beast, may turn.

"No Business Where They Were."—This from the New York Telegraph:

"Whether Lord Kitchener and his staff lost their lives as the result of a mine explosion or a torpedo, they had no business where they were, and their fate is but another consequence of British blundering."

And it is evident from the lack of American action that those United States citizens slaughtered by the Germans when the neutral ships were torpedoed and sunk "had no business where they were." May be a historic phrase, that.

The Combination.—If the United States wants to be decently ruled, we offer this suggestion: Let Woodrow Wilson write its notes and Teddy Roosevelt see that they are complied with.

Encouraging the Preacher.—Rev. Dr. Treleven, past president of the Toronto Methodist Conference, in speaking to that body recently, emphasized the aid that a word of encouragement was to the preacher.

"He may have had a hard day and he may have thought his sermon fell far short of what it should be," said Dr. Treleven. "At such a time a word of praise or encouragement gives him renewed zeal and confidence."

"That reminds me of a good brother who used to go up and shake hands with the preacher at the end of the service, and say something to the effect that 'that was a great sermon you preached this morning, parson,' or 'that was an inspiring service.' But one Sunday morning the sermon did not come up to his expectations. Nevertheless he went up to the minister and shook his hand. Said he: 'That was a grand text you had this morning, parson!'"

Had Enough?—A New York militia commander advises married men not to join the militia. Possibly he thinks they are sick of war.

Which?—Uncle Sam now strokes his whiskers and wonders whether he was intervening in Mexico, or just butting in.

Embarrassing.—The political orator—"My voice is still for war!"
Voice from the crowd—"And how about the rest of you?"

Ping-Pong.—We note the marriage in a New Jersey town of Miss Sues Ping to Mr. Chin Pong. Looks like a revival of the now almost obsolete game of ping-pong.

Woodrow, The Penman.

President Wilson sat in his den,
President Wilson used a big pen,
And all the bomb-plotters and all the U boats
Made President Wilson write slathers of notes.

Explained.—American papers make a lot of the fact that Colonel House, confidential friend of the president, seldom speaks for publication. Well, perhaps he has nothing to say.
