In Explaining His Question of Privilege, Dr. Smellie Informed the House That he was the First in Five Generations to Descend Into Politics-Premier Whitney Played Ball - A

Mr. Presten of Durham called attention to a paragraph in the papers dated Albany, N. Y., showing that trout caught out of season in Ontarle, and on which duty had been paid, was being sold there. If this were true it was a serious state of affairs.

Hon. Dr. Reaume said it was a matter that was new to him, and he would look into it.

Clergymen Are Gentlemen.
Dr. Smellie brought up a question of privilege. He had been quoted in an evening upper as saying that a certain minister was no gentlerann; he was a Methodist minister." The reperter was evidently bern north of the Tweed and was unable to appreciate a joke. Being the son of a clergyman, Mr. Smellie would not be guilty of saying anything derogatory to the gentlemen of the cloth. For five generations his progenitors had been Methodist clergymen, and he was the first to descend into politics.

Mr. Sutherland's Funeral.

Hon. Adam Beck and Hon. Dr. Reaume will represent the Ontario Government at the funeral of Hon. James Sutherland at Woodstock to-day.

A number of bills was introduced and read a first time.

Will Repair Bridge.

Hon Dr. Reaume informed Mr. Anderson that the swing bridge across the Young's Point lock is in bad condition, and a sum has been placed in the estimates to repair it. The Government is considering the question of transfering the locks on Young's Point and the dams on the Trent canal to the Dominion Government. It is not the intention of the Government to hand over to municipal councils sums voted by the Legislature for expenditure on roads where the township in which such moneys are to be expended has been organized into a municipality.

McDougall Wants Documents.

Mr. McDougall will move on Tuesday for copies of documents in connection with the appointment of license commissioners and inspectors or in connection with their administration of their offices; the names of inspectors dismissed or resigned, the reasons, and the names of those appointed in their place, and the same with reference to fishery inspectors; copies of circulars sent to fishery inspectors.

Mr. Gamey gives notice of bil's to amend Loan Companies Act and to amend the Ontario Insurance Act.

To Protect Otter and Beaver.

Hon. Dr. Reaume has secured an increase of $4,000 in the estimates of the game department for the payment of extra game wardens, whose duty it will be to prevent the slaughter of otter and beaver. It will not be lawful to shoot these animals until November 1, and this season is likely to be extended. In spite of the prohibition against destroying otter and beaver many are being slaughtered.

Deputations to the Premier.

Mayor Meek, Ald. Chant, Trott, Turnpenny, Ridder and Ponsford of St. Thomas waited on Premier Whitney yesterday and opposed the passage of a bill before the Legislature, promoted by the Elgin County Council, to abolish toll roads on the London and Port Stanley gravel road, unless the county assumes the whole road.

A Port Arthur and Rainy River deputation asked for a separate judicial district for Rainy River, a number of trunk drains built and patents given to veterans entitled to land grants, so that the recipients may sell their grants, which would then be subject to taxation.

Discovery of Ships and Their Exact Strength of Nebogatoff's Squadron Reveals Fact That One Modern Battleship Can Destroy Them All In An Hour-Grem Escapes From Viadivostock

St. Petersburg, May 6.—Admiral Re jestvensky, according to a high nava authority, has sailed south to meet the division of the Russian second Pacific authority, has sailed south to meet the division of the Russian second Pacific squadron commanded by Admiral Nebegateff. The Admiralty has information that a Japanese division of fast ton that a Japanese division of fast ton that a Japanese division of fast ton that a Japanese division of fast emisers and torpedo boat destroyers was sent south for the purpose, if possible, of crippling or destroying Nebegateff's ships before they could effect a junction with those of Rojestvensky, and there is reason to believe that the Japanese took up a position in the Straits of Sunda, through which Nebogateff eriginally intended to make the passage, into the north sea. There is also reason to believe that Nebogatoff first approached the Straits of Sunda, but finding them too well guarded, put about and headed north for the Straits of Malacca, his division lacking the protection of fast crujeers and being at a great disadvantage in meeting toresed beats attacks.

The Admiralty expresses much gratification at the fact that Admiral Nebogateff has successfully reached the China Sea, but appreciates that the composition of his division renders it particularly vulnerable to a swift adversary, and especially as the crews of his ships have net had the training in manesuvering or the target practice which Admiral Rojestvensky's crews had while off the Island of Madagasoar, and the anxiety here will only be completely relieved when it is known that a Accompanyies power of any one of Japan's first-class armored cruisers. Accompanying her was the Viadimir Menomach, twenty-five years old—technically known as an armored cruiser, but practically of no more power than one of the modern gunboats of to-day. The other three warships were the small coast defence ironclads Admiral Oushakoff, Admiral Sanlabin and Admiral Apraxine, of a type more obsolete, and with Admiral Saniabin and Admiral Apraxine, of a type more obsolete, and with an average speed of eight miles an hour under full pressure. With these warships were a small gunboat and five colliers. They were moving seutheast, as if for the ceast of Sumatras, but practically at a standstill—their speed being estimated at about two knots an hour. When this fleet was sighted by the Catherine Apcar eight days ago there were two other colliers in the squadrons, and it is likely that in the squadrons, and it is likely that they have put into one of the islands in the Malacca Straits for a supply of coal already stored there by the ad-

Now that the precise ships in the squadron are known to naval officials here, derision is excited. One medern battleship would destroy the entire fleet, naval officers say, in an hour, and it is not regarded as probable that Rojestvensky, if he intends to go to the Sea of Japan, will take these old ships with him. If Admiral Nebegateff is sailing for the south China Sea and brings his squadron's speed to seven or eight miles an hour, he should pass the Straits Set's ments some time this morning. He will then be 1,200 miles southwest of Rojestvensky's vessels, and if the commander of the entire fleet means to wait for Nebogatoff, then the departure of the Russians to meet Togo is a long way off.

Evening—Mr. Choate's Reply.

London, May 6.—The farewell dinger to Joseph H. Choate, late U. S. Ambassador, at the Mansion House last night, undoubtedly was the most remarkable gathering of netables ever assembled at the historic residence of that picturesque personage, the Lord Mayor of London. All parties, classes, professions and opinions from the great metropolis represented by the Lord Mayor himself, the Government represented by Arthur J. Balfour and the Marquis of Lansdowne, together with a few of the American community, were there. Mr. Choate sat at the right hand of the Lord Mayor; next to him was Mr. Balfour, and then Lord Lansdowne. At the left of the Lerd Mayor were the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Duke of Wellington. Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman proposed "The President," eulogizing him as a "genuine, typical character, characteristic of America, a firm friend of peace, though not, perhaps, of a quiescent disposition."

Fremer Balfour, in toasting Mr. Choate said: "No greater honor could have been done me than to have proposed this toast." Mr. Choate had been with Britons in days of mourning and rejoicing, of disaster and of victory, not only as the representative of a great state, but ever ready to take part in any phase of British public life not connected with politics, and had ever played his part with distinction.

snow. J. P. Dewney was catcher On his left hand he had a big mit, mainly for defensive purposes, but he put no mask on. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt took his place behind catcher J. P. Downey, and acted as umpire.

The mazes of Premier Whitney's delivery evidently completely mixed Inspector Hughes, and the left-handed home run hitter of the Toronto Public School system fanned the air. The umpire, Dr. Nesbitt, emphatically declared a strike.

The players then lined upon either side of the batter's box. Premier Whitney stood in the centre, and declared his pleasure at being present, and expressed his opinion that sport, to a proper extent and degree, is a necessary attendant in these days of the education of young men. He expressed his appredation of the fact that all sports in the United States and Canada are conducted in a fair, epen, manly and clean manner. This statement was greeted with much applause by the players themselves, as well as by the others present. The Premier's brief remarks were concluded by the statement that fair play is a jewel, and all are entitled to equal rights.

Thus was the season of 1905 auspictously opened. The crowd cheered, the band played, and then the real game—and a game indeed it was—opened.
