of his long gossip. "I think this must be the Golden Age of Birds, and we are just at the dawning."

The two birds flew thoughtfully away in the starlight, while the twins looked at each other with shining eyes. "I'm so glad they are pleased with what we are doing," said Dimple.

"Yes," replied Boy Blue. "We must work hard to make the Golden Age come true so they won't be disappointed."

NOT WITH THE CHICKENS.

A gentleman who had called to see Mr. B. found his little son, Frank, in the library rubbing his eyes and yawning.

"Sleepy?" he inquired.

"Um," grunted Frank.

"I suppose you usually go to bed with the chickens," smiled the visitor.

"No, I don't," snapped Frank. "I have a little bed in my room all to myself."

RATHER OMINOUS.

Among the presents given to a rural bride was one from an old lady in the neighbourhood with whom the bride and the groom were prime favourites.

Some years before the old lady had accumulated a number of cardboard mottoes, which she worked and framed as occasion arose.

In cheerful blues and reds, suspended by a cord of the same colors, over the table on which the other presents were gathered, hung this motto:
"Fight On; Fight Ever."
