THE HOUSEHOLD BUDGET

Before he travelled far in life, Jim Henry Smith annexed a wife; then straightway loosened up his collar. But all he earned his bride would spend; her wants and needs seemed without end. A nickel for a spool of thread and ten cents for a thimble and other things of higher price from Isenstein or Gimbel. In shopping trips she found delight. She searched Jim's trousers every night. There came a daughter, then a son, and they were dear moeways than one. For though he loved them bona fide, it cost to feed and keep them tidy. Smith's credit smashed to smithereens; he had no jitneys n hic jeans. There-riseer grown Jim Hnry's spouse drew up a budget for her house, assigned her dollars, dimens and cents to balance income with expense, a lot for food, a bit for frills, for movies, church and pade pink pills. So now she knows just water she's, at and Jim no more is busted flat. He walks to the street in manly pride nor looks for duns from side to side. He passy each month the merchants tallies and is not dodging through the all-small so and is not dodging through the all-small so. Bob Adams.

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Corrigan on Feb. 4th with an attendance of 33. The meeting was opened by singing and prayer. A splendid paper was given by Miss. Agnes Darling on the "Moral and Physical Harm of Fault Finding." Mrs. Duffy favored the meeting with a recitation. Miss Freda Duffy rendered a solo which was much appreciated also a few selections on the guitar. When all joined in singing "Believe Me of all those Endaering Young Charms." the roll call for this meeting was witty sayings. At the close Mrs. Corrigan served lunch in her usual good style. The next meeting will be taken by the girls.

A large crowd assembled on the Ripley main street on Friday afternoon to watch the horse race. James Cornish has a fast horse and Mac. Matheson is the owner of a speeder. There was an argument as to who owned the fastest horse, which ended in a race being arranged for a purse of $10.00. The horses started a mile from Ripley and came into town with great speed. There was a mighty cheer went up, as they finished at the bank corner. The Cornish horse was pulled up at Bushells corner where the owner claimed the purse. The Matheson horse finished at the bank corner and the owner also clamed he was the winner of the money. The gentleman who is stake holder has been unable to decide which horse won the money. It will probably require another heat to decide, and the judges should be appointed to clear the streets and thereby avoid accidents. The Ripley main streets make a splendid race track in the winter time, but it is rather dangerous for persons to be on the highway when a race meeting is on.—Ripley Express.

EVEN THE HENS ARE AT IT

The Village of Sydenham has a big sensation and all over an egg laid by a hen owned by H. W. Guess laid by a hen owned by H. W. Guess The egg was somewhat remarkable as to its exterior aspect for, on the shell, in grim prediction were the words, "World Ends 1926" This ominous prophecy was written in dark yellow on both sides of the egg and resisted all efforts to be removed by the use of the knife. It was claimed that the writing extended right through to the inside of the shell. Probably the year 1926 will be looked forward to with a great deal of dread and expectation but comfort may at least be taken in the knowledge that the prophet has sometimes failed to tell the truth.
