INSPECTION NEEDED.

It is time for the health officers to bestir themselves in the matter of investigating the quality of various commodities sold in Dawson. It may or may not be known to the health department that old, rancid butter which has stood (and possibly walked) from time immemorial, is not infrequently reworked and placed on sale as a good article. It may also be news to the men who are entrusted with the care of the public health that a practice is made of resmoking and selling for home consumption old time bacon which the company stores have placed aside as fit for nothing but dog food. We mention these matters merely for the reason that splendid opportunities for such abuses are offered in Dawson and unless some systematic inspection is maintained, unscrupulous parties are certain to take every advantage of the situation possible. A rigid inspection should be made whenever reason exists for belief that commodities are being sold, the consumption of which may tend to endanger the public health.

THREE CLASSES.

The men who have been concerned in the strong opposition to the federal government which has been so outspoken in this territory during the past three years may easily be divided into three classes. Of these the smallest class consists of men who saw in the spirit of antagonism to the federal laws, which has so universally prevailed, a foundation upon which future political preferment might be secured for themselves. Naturally they enlisted under the banner of reform.

A second class were of those who are constitutionally and unchangeably opposed to government of any sort, under any circumstances. These also joined themselves to the ranks of opposition.

The third class, which includes the great body of intelligent men in the district, have opposed the government for the simple reason that the regulations which until very recently, the government has seen fit to impose upon this territory, have been of such a nature as to hinder and cramp the efforts of every man who has sought to contribute his share toward the work of opening up our natural resources.

With this last class the Nugget is one. The fight which this paper has conducted against the federal administration, was undertaken for no purpose other than from a desire to see this territory governed by wise and liberal regulations. The Nugget had no private ends to attain nor is it an unbeliever in government on general principles. In the best judgment of this paper the interests of the territory at large were served by the strongest possible antagonism to the government. That this theory was absolutely sound and correct results have amply established.

Today, we have no hesitation in saying that this territory, in comparison with other countries organized under similar circumstances, is governed by wise and just laws. In recognizing and acknowledging this fact, there is absolutely no inconsistency. The charge of inconsistency and insincerity may only be lodged with justice against those men who, either from personal reasons or from a spirit of inherent hatred of government in any form continue to hurl anathemas against laws that have been wiped off the statutes and against law-makers whose power has been taken away.

Whenever the government performs an act of justice toward this territory we stand ready to make due and proper acknowledgment thereof, and every man in the Yukon, no matter how bitter his opposition to the government may have been, if that opposition was sincere, will be ready to do the same.

We want good laws, and are entitled to good laws, but to stand by and curse the authority that is busying itself enacting them for us is something we will not do.

We believe in war as a last resort, but we don't believe in turning the war dogs loose on an enemy who has already capitulated.

To Care for the Homeless.

The women of Dawson are earnestly requested to meet at the Presbyterian church Monday afternoon, Nov. 5, at 3 o'clock for the purpose of devising ways and means of providing for the homeless women in our midst.

Art of Breathing Properly.

"It may seem strange enough," said a doctor the other day, "but really over 90 per cent of the population do not know how to breathe. Nature kindly enough adapts herself to imperfect methods of respiration, as she adapts herself to the unnatural quantities of tea, coffee or alcohol a man floods his system with during his lifetime, but all the same she does not approve. Why, one of the first things an actor or singer has to do is to begin to learn how to breathe before he can learn how to produce the voice properly. The first point is to fill the lungs. Very few people take the trouble to do that. As a rule, they distend them until the lungs are about three-quarters full, and then they stop, leaving the base of the lungs unemployed and naturally ready for any mischief, like most idle things or persons.

"If people would only take the trouble to breathe properly, consumption would no longer be heard of. Why is exercise so beneficial? Simply because in running, rowing or cycling people are obliged to fill their lungs to their utmost capacity to breathe in short, as nature meant them to breathe. I have frequently recommended those whose business will not permit of any outdoor exercise to practice breathing for an hour in the morning and at night. Exercise is not a necessity; breathing properly is. How to go about it: Watch an infant lying on its back if you want to see breathing done as it ought to be, or if you have got out of the habit of proper respiration one of the first points to remember in learning to breathe is to keep your shoulders down. They are inclined to go up long before the lungs are filled. Another part is to get control over your lungs. Fill them slowly, lying on your back if possible and feeling them fill; then empty them at will, sometimes quickly, sometime slowly. Unless the mind has control of the muscles which distend and empty the lungs, then it is no use trying to breathe. An hour's practice daily will do you more good than all the gymnasiums in the world. Yet breathing is undoubtedly a lost art, and if we are to remain a healthy nation it must be recovered."

Bits of Science.

A German surgeon recently cut off a patient's second toe and sewed it to the stump of a missing forefinger. It proved a very good substitute and can be moved by the owner, as an artificial finger could not be.

Recent discoveries tend to increase the belief that the sun's corona, the mysterious lacelike, pearl colored halo that is seen surrounding the sun in a total eclipse, is an electrical phenomena similar to the aurora.

The larynx of a man in Sydney, Australia, became useless through disease, and he lost his voice. Prof. Stuart, of the University of Sydney, is said to have made an artificial one, and it can be so registered as to make the voice soprano, tenor, contralto or bass at will.

Disappointed.

A young man of this city rang up a lady acquaintance of his in Court street some days ago, but instead of her answering the phone herself her elder sister did so. The young man recognized the difference at once and said in a suave, mellow voice:

"Won't you please deliver a message to Miss Clara?"

"Delighted at the prospect of carrying a message that might result in giving her some insight into the relation that existed between her sister and the young man at the other end of the line, she answered:

"Why, certainly, with the greatest of pleasure."

"Well, tell her to come to the phone."—Cincinnati Enquirer.
