The Mystery of Agatha Webb.

BY ANNA KATHARINE GREEN.

"This I let her speak what words she would and tell, as she was able, the secret tragedy of her life.

"It is a sacred story to me, and if you must know let it be from her own words in the letters she left behind her. She only told me that to save me from the fate of the children who had preceded me—the five little girls and boys who had perished almost at birth in her arms—she had parted from me in early infancy to Mrs. Sutherland, then mourning the sudden death of her only child; that this had been done secretly and under circumstances calculated to deceive Mr. Sutherland, so that he had never known I was not his own child, and she enjoined me never to enlighten him if by any sacrifice on my part I could rightfully avoid it; that she was happy in having me hear the truth before she died; that the joy which this gave her was so great that she did not regret her fatal act, violent and uncalculated as it was, for it had showed her my heart and allowed me to read hers.
Then she talked of my father, by whom I mean he whom you call Philémon, and she made me promise I would care for him to the last with tenderness, saying that I would be able to do this without seeming impropriety, since she had willed me all her fortune under this proviso. Finally she gave me a key and, pointing out where the rest of her money lay hidden, bade me carry it away as her last gift, together with the package of letters I would find with it. And when I had taken these and given her back the key she told me that but for one thing she would die happy, and, though her strength and breath were fast falling, she made me understand that she was worried about the Zabels, who had not come, according to a sacred custom between them, to celebrate the anniversary of her wedding, and prayed me to see the two old gentlemen before I slept, since nothing but death or dire distress would have kept them from gratifying the one whim of my father's failing mind. I promised, and with perfect peace in her face she pointed to the dagger in her breast.

"But before I could lay my hand upon it she called for Betsy. 'I want her to hear me declare before I go,' said she,
'that this stroke was delivered by myself upon myself.' But when I rose to look for Betsy I found that the shock of her mistress' fatal act had killed her and that only her dead body was lying across the window sill of the adjoining room. It was a chance that resulted in the only witness who could testify to my innocence, in case my presence in this house of death should become known, and, realizing all the danger in which it threw me, I did not dare to tell my mother for fear it would make her last moments miserable. So I told her that the poor woman had understood what she wished, but was too terrified to move or speak, and this satisfied my mother and made her last breath one of trust and contented love. She died as I drew the dagger from her breast, and, seeing this, I was seized with horror of the instrument which had cost me such a dear and valuable life and flung it wildly from the window. Then I lifted her and laid her where you found her, on the sofa. That the dagger was an old time gift of her former lover, James Zabel, I did not know, much less that it bore his initials on the handle."

"Oh, the fairy tale!"

Was it Amabel who had spoken?
Some yet thought so and looked her way, but they only beheld a sweet, tear stained face turned with an air of moving appeal upon Frederick as if begging pardon for the wicked doubts which had driven him to this defense.

Frederick met that look with one so severe it partook of harshness. Then, resuming his testimony, he said:

"It is of the Zabel brothers I must now speak, and of how one of them, James by name, came to be involved in this affair.

"When I left my new found mother, I was in such a state of mind that I passed the room in which my new found father sat sleeping, with scarcely so much as a glance. But as I hastened on toward the quarter where the Zabels lived some compunctions of pity for his desolate state caused me to falter in my rapid flight, so that I did not reach the house quite as quickly as I might otherwise have done. When I did, I found it dark, as I might reasonably have expected; but, remembering the extreme anxiety which my mother had shown in their regard, even in her dying moments, I approached the front door and was about to knock when I found it open. Greatly astonished, I at once passed in and, seeing my way perfectly in the moonlight, entered the room on the left, the door of which also stood open. It was the second house I had entered unannounced that night, and in this, as in the other, I encountered a man sitting asleep by the table.

"Going up to him, I saw it to be the elder of the two, John Zabel, and, perceiving that he was suffering from food and in a condition of extreme misery, I took out the salt ball my hand encountered in my overcoat pocket and laid it on the table by his side. As I did so he gave a sigh, but did not wake; and, satisfied that I had done all that was wise and all that even my mother would expect of me under the circumstances, and fearing to encounter the other brother if I lingered, I hastened away and took the shortest path home. Had I been more of a man, or if my visit to Mrs. Webb had been actuated by a more communicable motive, I would have gone at once to the good man who believed me to be of his own flesh and blood and told him of the strange and heartrending adventure which had changed the whole tenor of my thoughts and life and begged his advice as to what I had better do under the difficult circumstances in which I found myself placed. But the memory of a thousand past ingratitude, together with the knowledge of the shock which he could not fail to receive on learning at this late day and under conditions at once so tragic and full of menace that the child which his long buried wife had once placed in his arms as his own was neither of her blood or his, rose up between us and caused me not only to attempt silence, but to secrete in the adjoining woods the money I had received in the vain hope that all visible connection between myself and my mother's tragic death would thus be lost. You see, I had not calculated on Miss Amabel Page."

BACKACHES

Most women complain of backaches. They are tired because they work too much; from early morning till late at night. Thousands of women have been cured of Backaches and other symptoms of a similar character, by the use alone of Dr. Coderre's Red Pills. This is gospel truth. We do not claim that they will cure everything, but simply female troubles, and these they will cure more quickly and more cheaply than any of the old-fashioned liquid remedies.
We ask those ladies who doubt what we say to write to any of those whose testimonials we publish.

Mrs. H. M. Mathewson, 61 Wilson Street, Providence, R. I., writes—

"I was suffering from a most severe case of female weakness. I had backaches and womb trouble. I could get nothing to cure me until I tried Dr. Coderre's Red Pills for Pale and Weak Women and I am to-day a healthy woman. I am pleased to recommend this remedy to all suffering women."

Mrs. G. E. Elliott, 28 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Mich., writes—

"I used to suffer terribly from backaches. My system was completely run down. I was weak, always tired and discouraged until I took Dr. Coderre's Red Pills, which cured me and made me a new woman. I will never be without them again, as I find them cheap and very reliable."

Mrs. E. Angers, 708 N. Van Buren St., Bay City, Mich., writes—

"I am more able to do my work to-day than I have been for years. The main cause of my trouble was my kidneys and terrible backaches. Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are the remedy that has cured me. I have tried many other ones, but all without effect. I was surprised at the good this remedy has done me and I am pleased to recommend it to all sick women."

Mrs. Chas. O'Brien, 75 Lake Avenue, Manchester, N. H., writes—

"When I began to take Dr. Coderre's Red Pills I had not much faith in them. A friend recommended them to me. How I wish I had known this remedy before. I had to work in the mill and I was suffering from female weakness in the worst way. I am to-day cured and am gaining in flesh.
My appetite is good and I am much stronger."

Women who will keep on suffering when such a remedy exists can surely have no excuse. Dr.
Coderre's Red Pills are for women only and are only intended for legitimate use. They are not intended for any bad purpose. We refer all ladies who have been suffering for years to our celebrated specialists who will be pleased to send them such advice as they require; or, if possible, they are invited to call at our offices. The consultation is free and the advice given is the best that the greatest experience on the continent can guarantee.

Send us your name and address and we will mail you free our Doctor's book, Pale and Weak Women. We call your attention to the fact that Dr. Coderre's Red Pills are not a purgative. If you are constipated, and wish to get the best results from the Red Pills, take Dr. Coderre's Purgative Tablets,
