Boys Buried Alive in China.

Mrs. Mason, a missionary in Burnah, once wrote

"I am now off Saugor, the island shrine of the Ganges! Yes, here we are on the spot where thousands upon thousands of little infants have been offered in sacrifice to the god of the river. The English long ago abolished this cruel rite, but I am told that even now, secretly, scores of little ones perish during the grand festival in January. And while I write, I see several dead infants floating in the waters near the head of the island, a spot peculiarly sacred to the idol goddess, as here two branches of the Ganges join. Our Captain tells me that he once found one of these poor methers floating upright under the bowsprit, her feet having become entangled with the cable of his ship. "Across each shoulder was tied a little infant, just as if she was bearing them upon her bosom! I can conceive of no one but a mother who would thus care for her tender by her own superstition, or by the cruelty of her husband, to sacrifice her children, she chose to class her darlings and die with them. Ought we not to sond missionaries to teach such parents better and to save the children?

The Roman Senate and people little thought, when execting this monument to their deified emperor, that they were erecting a monument to the true God in the verification of prophecy and divine history. A recent traveller says, not one of the Jews of Rome, of whom there are about six thousand, will, even at this day, pass under the arch of Titus, although it spans one of the thoroughfares of the city; they shun it as a memorial of a subjugation of their nation, which has never yet been reick with its seven branches, and the

A pious lady, of the city of Richmond, Virginis, once left a church in company with her husband, who was an imponitent man. She was a woman of unusual vivacity, with a keen perception of the ludicrous, and often playfully sarcastic. As they walked along toward their dwelling, she began to make some amusing and spicy comments on the sermon, which a stranger, a man of very ordinary talents and awkward manner, had preached that morning, in the absence of the pastor. After running on in this vein of sportive criticism for some time, supprised at the profound silence of her husband, she turned at the profound silence of her husband, she turned and looked up in his face. He was in tears. That sermon had sent an arrow of conviction to his heart! What must have been the anguish of the proceed. A Pretty Conceit.

Dur young friends have often read accounts of the great rebellion in China. They remember that the leader, Tai-Ping-Wang, had some knowledge of Christianity. He destroyed the idols, circulated parts of the Bible among his followers, and taught them to worship "Shangti," the Christian's God. These warriors gained many victories, but they suffered some defeats. At such times, frightful vengoance was taken by the troops of the emperor. On one occasion the emperor's soldiers sutered a town, occupied by the followers of Tai-Ping-Wang. All the poor inhabitants were at once murdered, except four hundred young boys, who were led to the commander of the troops. This man, addressing one of these children, said to him:

"Little wretch, what is your father?"

"He is kinschin;" (that is, a doctor of the second class.)

"We have learned to worship?"

"We have learned to worship Shang-ti."

"Child of the devil! I will teach you to worship Shang-ti."

The little boy and several others threw themselves at the feet of the mandarin, and begged for mercy. It was in vain. The monster ordered that the children should be buried alive. For this purpose they were divided into two parties, and given to two officers. Each officer had two hundred one of them strictly obeyed this barbarous order. The hands of the children were tied behind their backs, and then they were thrown into a deep ditch; some hairing their limbs broken by the fall, and the ditch was rairly flight with earth. The soldiers, with loud shouts of laughter, trampled upon the earth of this worshippers. The two hundred children of the second division were spared, and were restored to their parents for a season.—Juv. Miss. Mag.

One of the most interesting of the monuments of ancient Rome is the triumphal arch erected to commomorate the conquest of Jerusalem by Titus, who after the destruction of the temple, made a triumphal march to Rome, bringing with him a long train of captive Jews and the spoils, among which were the sacred vessels of the temple. This procession is represented in the beautiful arch, which thus furnishes an illustration of the Bible no where else to be found of your arm, yet it will beat more than 5000 times an hour; 120,000 times a day; and 43,830,600 times a year. A Word in Season.

When Lord Teignmouth, Governor General of India, was tailing up the steep ascent of learning and fame, an old gentleman chanced to say to him, "Make youred useful and you will succeed." It became the text on which the young civilian preached many a discourse to others and himself; and this following what was useful, carried him at length to the throne, for so it may almost be called, of our castern empire. So I say to you, follow what is useful, and you will succeed; and begin at ence.—J. A. James.
