Recent arrivals from London say that a number of Canadian sea men now down on the Labrador, seeking furs for the fur trade, many of which are now to be found in the Dominion. The driver evidently swept round the corner quite close to the curb, and there was no chance for the old man to escape. After doing the harm the driver never stopped, but continued full speed on Great George Street. Assistance came and Robertson was taken to his home on Kent Street East. Medical aid was summoned and it was found that his hip was broken. He was at once taken to the city hospital. He is 89 years of age.

"Burden Of Protection"

With the objects of protesting against Protection and forwarding Free Trade movements in all countries, a society called the International Free Trade League has been formed and as a first effort for the good of the cause the League has issued a "Journal" "The Burden of Protection."

The chief source from which this supply was derived was the following: The United Kingdom, 20.7 per cent; Australia, 19.3 per cent; Canada, 18.4 per cent; India, 14.3 per cent; and the United States, 14.2 per cent. It is noteworthy that of all the external sources of British wheat and flour supply in the year 1911, India alone contributed more than the United States, and that alone by a shade, India's part being 14.3 per cent, the United States part being 14.2 per cent.

In comparison with this domestic claim it is instructive to note the contents of the journal. The first article deals with the Commonwealth of Australia, and is written by ex-Senator Paulford, who is well known as an ardent Free Trader. From it the following passage may be quoted: "In Australia protection? The answer to this question is an unmitigated 'Yes.' United Australia has existed ten years under a distinctly protective tariff, and is now an enjoying a very marked prosperity."

An article on protection in Germany, by a well known economic writer, Professor Brentano, contains some amazing admissions. He states that even the Hamburg, which was formed in order to oppose the protection of the landed interest, has shrunk from including Free Trade in its programme. It takes for its platform a gradual repeal of agrarian duties, but hesitates to include Free Trade since it would run the risk of losing the membership of those finishing and elaborating trades which stand for Protection in their own favor.

The actual increase per acre has been two bushels, and the Department of Agriculture reports that with the more scientific methods of farming now used in the wheat raising States the yield will in a few years reach an additional four bushels per acre. That would increase the total yield by 300,000,000 bushels.

Mr. Byron W. Holt, who deals with "The Evil of Protection in the United States," is as pessimistic as the German professor. He sorrowfully admits that even the Democrats are not honestly in favor of Free Trade. He says: "Apparently, most Democrats think that our manufacturers and farmers are entitled to a 'reasonable' amount of protection—for their own sakes, and for the sake of the country as a whole. . . . The idea that this country (the United States) could exist and prosper without some degree of Protection is doubted by most Democrats, if we can judge by their speeches."

It shows that while there are movements in various protected countries in the direction of lower tariffs, there is nowhere any popular demand for the free admission of competing imports. That doctrine finds no supporters except in the fiscal policy which still prevails in the United Kingdom. It has become a mere economic theory which cannot stand the test of practical working, and its adherents are becoming fewer every year. In the Mother Country, its stronghold, it is rapidly yielding to the popular demand for

Wheat Movements

The market and movements of the wheat crop are matters of general interest. In a paper read at the meeting of the British Association it was stated that the total cost of wheat and flour consumed in the United Kingdom in 1911 was $44,187,000, which is somewhat more than $250,000,000. The chief sources from which this supply was derived were the following: The United Kingdom, 20.7 per cent; Australia, 19.3 per cent; Canada, 18.4 per cent; India, 14.3 per cent; and the United States, 14.2 per cent.

Through Canada's production of wheat is increasing, its consumption of wheat is increasing. In the first five months of the current fiscal year 242,500 immigrants were received in this country. It is not too much to expect that upwards of 500,000 persons will be added to our population this year by influx from other countries.

On the average each of those will consume about five bushels of wheat, thus providing an additional home demand for 2,500,000 bushels. With a population of 90,000,000, the United States will this year be a large exporter of wheat and will continue to be a large exporter for many years to come. Canada likewise will keep on increasing in population at a rapid rate, but throughout a long stretch of its future it will continue to produce much more wheat than it consumes.

The October grain report of the United States Department of Agriculture gives an instructive forecast of the cereal yield this year which is of unprecedented proportions. The figures of wheat, oats, barley and rye show the highest average per acre record. The total wheat yield is estimated at 750,000,000 bushels, against the estimate of 690,000,000 given out a month ago.

The actual increase per acre has been two bushels, and the Department of Agriculture reports that with the more scientific methods of farming now used in the wheat raising States the yield will in a few years reach an additional four bushels per acre. That would increase the total yield by 300,000,000 bushels.

These figures, authoritatively issued, dispose of the assumption indulged in by the Reciprocity advocates that the time is near when the United States will cease to be a wheat exporting country and when it will be compelled to import wheat to supply its domestic consumption.

Home Oct. 17.—William Marconi was removed today by Dr Bayardi, a noted surgeon. Mr. Marconi was seriously injured on September 25th in an automobile accident near Borghetto. He was removed to the hospital of the naval department at Spina, where he was treated for several days. The wires containing the swelling around the injured eye prevented a thorough examination until recently, when it was found that the optic nerve had been affected.

Since October 1 Mr. Marconi's condition has not been satisfactory. He had suffered from neuralgic pain, and the visual power of the injured eye showed rapid diminution. Dr. Bayardi had a final consultation today with Dr. Fuchs, a specialist of Vienna, after which the operation was performed successfully.
