Which Leader?

The efforts of the Graballs to prevent the co-operation of the Liberal and Union forces failed miserably. That failure so incensed them that they are now using all their devilish ingenuity to neutralize its natural effects. They recognize that their straits are desperate and as desperate men they are proceeding to extremities in the vain hope of trying to save their skins. They are telling people that President Coaker sold out to Sir Robert Bond. Now selling implies a price. Such a charge attacks the honour of Sir Robert Bond and of Mr. Coaker. The charge is absolutely false in every particular and in every sense. Sir Robert Bond has too high a sense of honour and dignity to have recourse to any such course. Mr. Coaker has too great a love for the success and welfare of the Fishermen's Protective Union to lower himself in the estimation of its members.

The Advocate to-day turns the tables on Mr. Coaker's enemies in this matter and does it most effectively. We quote his reply in part:—"Grab-allism and Grab, recognising the wonderful hold of the 'reformer' from the backwoods," on the people have attempted as in the case of Mr. Roberts, to buy him over. At first $4,000 was offered him, then $50,000, then $100,000 and finally the bids for the purchase of his honor and integrity reached $250,000. But the bait failed to catch the incorruptible President of the P. F. U.

Spurned the Bribers.

Think of it. Toilers of Newfoundland! Coaker has been offered a fortune to betray your confidence. He might have sold you out to your enemies for a quarter of a million dollars and left you at the last in worse case than you were at first. But he flatly declined the gilded bribe, preferring poverty with honour to wealth with dishonor and the hatred and contempt of his betrayed fellow-countrymen.

In view of these facts, what arrogant nonsense it is for the Grab-all organs to shriek that Coaker has sold the Union to Bond! What could the President hope to gain from such an ungodly compact? Not wealth—that has failed to corrupt him even when offered to a greater, far greater, extent than Bond could command. Not position—Coaker is already leader of the united thousands of Newfoundland fishermen and would have to forsake that high place to enter a cramped Government department. No purpose of these "selling-out" catch-cries is too obvious to fool our intelligent voters for one minute. They know from experience that Coaker is their friend—they have assured him of their confidence in a thousand and one ways and not all the dust-throwing of the Graballs can blind the Fishermen to the fact that Coaker is the Incorruptible People's Tribune.

As to Sir Robert Bond, even his opponents acknowledge him to be a man of high honor, sterling qualities and unimpeachable integrity. In 1900, Mr. P. T. McGrath himself, in his notorious Chicago Letter and forth in the Chicago Herald the sort of man Sir Robert Bond is and shows that he is the man of integrity, capable of dealing with the Graballs of to-day, just as he dealt with them in 1900.

Here is what McGrath wrote:—"The Hon. Robert Bond, an able and honest Colonial Statesman, sufficient-ly independent in point of wealth to resist the inducements of rich capitalists like Reid, has undertaken to do battle against this northern Goliath, and the young and patriotic element in public life are rallying to Bond's standard for the battle of the ballots in November next, which will decide the destinies of the Island. Reid is a hard fighter, the more so as his methods are those of the manipulator rather than of the leader, and he accomplishes his object best from behind the scenes, moving his agents like pawns upon a chessboard."

As for Morris, did not McGrath in the Evening Herald, when he was opposing him, say that Morris "has seemed utterly indifferent of the fact that he owes a duty to the people he represents."

Did not Mott, the Morris candidate for St. Barbe, declare in the Daily News that

"Morris never in all his life did anything beneficial to the working-man. He is a trickster of the worst description. He sold the Liberal Party in 1908."

Moreover did not Mr. Donald Morrison write in the Daily News of Sir Robert Bond in this strain:—"If my main object in life was what the man in the street called political success, I might have taken pattern by Sir E. P. Morris, who is such a warm friend of Temperance reformers and run-sellers alike at one and the same time."

How Mr. John Alexander Robinson seen from this extract from his writings.

"For Sir E. P. Morris, it is enough that money men, capitalists like the Harmsworths are concerned. Capitalists have an irresistible attraction for him. . . . After all, the man who could vote for the contract of 1898, and then vote for that of 1901, could vote for anything, and we may well be pardoned for not taking seriously his views of any contract where capitalists are concerned."

Yet these are the men who are trying to-day to boom Sir Edward Morris as the man to be trusted by the people and are endeavouring to disparage the incorruptible Commoner, Sir Robert Bond, the man who saved the Savings Bank in 1895. He is the man who saved the credit of Newfoundland at the same time. He has proved in the past that he is the man who can be relied upon to maintain Newfoundland even in times of disaster. His opponents have jeopardised our standing by piling up debt and indulging in every form of extravagance and misrule. His opponents did everything they could to wreck the '95 mission, but they failed. His opponents now are trying the same tactics they indulged in in 1895. But Sir Robert Bond won out. To-day we have the extraordinary spectacle of a Government newspaper trying to work up a scare against the Government Savings Bank by falsely declaring that Bond and Coaker intend to take money out of the Savings Bank to buy motor boats and start farms in the interior. The charge is utterly false. It is a base and low fabrication. Think of it. Is it within the bounds of possibility that the most careful and economical administrator of public affairs, Newfoundland ever had, Sir Robert Bond, the man who pledged his own wealth, to save the Savings Bank, would ever dream of jeopardizing money in the Savings Bank? It is unthinkable. It is false. But the campaign shows the desperate steps McGrath is taking to try to ensure a continuance of the grabs. He has been indulging in the past four years. This campaign is on behalf of Morris, and Morris will be held responsible for this mad and insensate attack on the Savings Bank, of which as a Premier he is chief custodian and trustee.

Morris Must Be Held Responsible.

The article we re-print on the saving of the Savings Bank, by Sir Robert Bond, is a sufficient answer to the scare campaign of the Graballs against the Savings Bank. Sir Robert Bond is the man who saved the Savings Bank in 1895. He is the man who saved the credit of Newfoundland at the same time. He has proved in the past that he is the man who can be relied upon to maintain Newfoundland even in times of disaster. His opponents have jeopardised our standing by piling up debt and indulging in every form of extravagance and misrule. His opponents did everything they could to wreck the '95 mission, but they failed. His opponents now are trying the same tactics they indulged in in 1895. But Sir Robert Bond won out. ## Turn That is LEST

Never, we say never, before in the history of the city of St. John any public man been the recipient of such a whole-hearted and enthusiastic reception as was the Hon. Robert Bond last evening. There was practically no organization. The people for the hon. gentleman has won a signal victory needed no other title than the word to bring forth in their thousands to honor their Newfoundlander patriot and Nova's plucky, shrewd and liant statesman.

THE PROCESSION.

The procession started from the toric Beach at 8.30 o'clock. The of march was west on Duckworth Street, north on Spring Street, east to Cochrane and via King's Bridge Road to the residence of the Hon. Mr. Bond. A mass of citizens moved westward, thousands of persons were in the line, the crowd grew proportionally as it passed.

Through the Streets.

Intermingled in that vast crowd the leading citizens as well as street wait. A remarkably large number of women, whose faces and figures showed that they had worked to win bread, joined with the procession. They all had heard and read Mr. Bond and of his heroic deed to save them and their posterity, home and liberty; and they took advantage of the occasion to bear their testimony to the faith that was in them. In starting, it is estimated, Three Thousand Persons were in line.

At every step the number increased. When Mr. Bond's residence on Clarendon Road was reached the great square outside was black with people; by time fully five thousand had gathered. Inside, on the balcony, were the men and the members of the Executive, as well as members of the House of Assembly and other distinguished citizens. When Mr. Bond appeared, Mr. Morris asked where he was, he said from the balcony. He then told the officers who were trying to keep

The Surging Mass Back to let them come on, and in rushed hundreds. In five minutes the square grounds were filled; still the number would not be missed from the assembly outside, unable to get within hearing distance of the speakers, a delay of about ten minutes. Grand Old Man stepped forward, box served the purpose of the form. As soon as he raised his above the sea of faces, up went hearty cheers for

Sir William Whiteway.

The Premier waited until the prolonged cheering was over, and then his introductory remarks. "With my heart," said Sir William, "to extend a hearty welcome to the Hon. Robert Bond, and his party. (Cheers.) We are assembled here to-night under the canopy of heaven, as citizens and as men."

A Hearty Welcome to Him and to convey an expression of high appreciation of the eminent services which he has rendered to our country. Three cheers for Mr. Bond. (Cheers.) The Premier then referred to the condition of the Colony. Mr. Bond left here two short days ago. The last ray of hope we have had in our hearts, we dare think of what the result would
