

Ending of the Baseball Season

S. ... 200 100 000-19
... 120 001 000-4

very cold northeast gale was the other handed out to the Baseball and "fans" yesterday when the final game of the series was played between the B. I. S. and Cubs ending in a win for the former by 12 to 4.

Prior to the game's beginning the umpire-in-chief, number 700, under the command of Major Montgomerie, arrived on the field as guests of the Baseball League, and Marched Past His Excellency the Governor, who was present with his staff. The players of the visiting clubs paraded at the rear of the Volunteers and a very pleasant spectacle was presented which greatly pleased the bleacherites.

Umpire-in-Chief Chesman then called "Play Ball" and Mr. Gosling, Chairman of the Civic Commission, amidst applause, threw the first ball for the plate to catcher McHenry.

The B. I. S., and thus formally ended the fourth season of League baseball in Newfoundland by opening. This is the custom wherever baseball is played, and has been added to here since the League was organized.

A delightful treat was given the spectators by the rendition of an extremely prepared program by the C. Band under the direction of Mr. Arthur Bulley, who very kindly rendered their services for the occasion in view of the entire proceeds being given to the Soldiers' and Sailors' Club. Despite the unpleasantness of the weather about $300.00 was raised. This includes the gate receipts and the refreshments served by Ladies' committee who worked untiring and assiduously.

THE GAME.
The game started at 3.15 with the B. I. S. batting first. In this inning they scored once, while the B. I. S. succeeded in making 2 runs. In the second inning the Cubs made 2, while the B. I. S. were blanked in the third and third but managed to score 1 in the fourth. It was not until the sixth that the Cubs crossed the plate again, which finalised their winning. At this period the game was tied 1-1.

The game was tied 1-1 in the sixth. The Cubs then scored again, which finalised their winning. At this period the game was tied 1-1.

Canals Huns Hate.

Soldiers Now Guard Great Waterways.
Big inter-oceanic canals are the arteries of the world's commerce; and it is, therefore, not surprising that they should be plotted against in time of war, and by enemies like the Germans.

Had von Papen and his gang of Hun dynamitards succeeded in blowing up the Welland Canal, for instance, they would have cut the only Canadian waterway connecting the American great lakes with the sea.

They would also, in all probability, have drowned some thousands of American and Canadian citizens. For the Welland Canal, in order to get round the Niagara Falls, drops some hundreds of feet sheer in the course of a few miles. This it does by a series of gigantic locks, ranged one above the other, like steps of stairs. The idea of the conspirators was to dynamite one of the upper locks, so that the resultant flood might destroy the others, and eventually sweep away the bridges along the Niagara river, with their inhabitants. Had they succeeded there would have been a flood catastrophe unequalled in the world's history.

Dynamite in Suit Cases.
Exactly the same idea occurred to certain Irish-American dynamitards in 1890, and these nearly succeeded in carrying their design into execution. There is a curious similarity, too, between their methods and those adopted by von Papen's secret service agents. Each meant to blow up the canal at the same spot, each carried the dynamite to Niagara concealed in suit cases, and so on. The Germans, in short, copied the methods of the Irish-Americans down to the minutest detail.

Similarly, the Corinth Canal, Greece's great inter-oceanic artificial waterway, has twice since the war been secretly attacked and its destruction attempted by desperadoes in the pay of Austria; and it is now guarded on both banks and at every few yards by Greek soldiers.

The Suez Canal, too, has been attacked both openly and covertly; and should war break out between Germany and the United States, we shall doubtless hear very shortly of plots to destroy the Panama Canal, that supreme triumph of engineering skill. The Hun stops at nothing to gain his nefarious ends.--Pearson's Weekly.

Friday the Thirteenth.

In New York there is a Friday-Thirteenth Club, which defies superstition by meeting whenever Friday falls on the thirteenth of the month.

Its president considers himself the luckiest man on earth, and reckons all his luck comes to him on Friday the 13th. He was born on Friday the 13th, for instance, which may be lucky for him; but what about the rest of mankind? He graduated on Friday the 13th, and he met his fiancée--poor girl!--on the same fateful day. He also arranged to be married on Friday the 13th. At college his room and desk were both numbered 13, and whenever he travels he chooses the berth numbered 13.

The crew of the Fram, in which Nansen made his remarkable voyage to the Arctic, consisted of thirteen men, and, in spite of these winners spent in perpetual night, they all returned to civilization. The Fram got back to port on August 13th; and Nansen records in his diary, "Kirk presented us with thirteen pups, born on December 13th, 1893, for thirteen men."

The Insurance Act contains some curiosities in this respect. The Maternity Benefit came into force "after January 13th, 1913." The Act also provides that a man totally disabled shall be paid £13, at the rate of 10s. a week for twenty-six weeks.

America has reason to trust the number thirteen, for it was her thirteen colonies which revolted and formed the U. S. A. During the memorable time a London paper, referring to the colonists' belief in the "unlucky number," issued the following jibe:

"Thirteen died clams are a rebel's portion; Washington has thirteen toes, and thirteen teeth in each jaw; a regular rebel family consists of thirteen children, each expecting to become a general at the age of thirteen; and thirteen paper dollars are worth one penny!"

A grim and terrible banquet was held some years ago by the Thirteen Club at a well-known London restaurant, which still stands and appears to flourish. It was given in Room No. 13; a large mirror was shattered to announce dinner; from the reception, the company, each sporting a peacock's feather, passed under a ladder to the dining-room, where they sat thirteen at a table, at thirteen tables, on which all the knives had been laid crosswise. Mr. Harry Furniss, who still lives, presided, and at his usual hearty meal.

"My wife was simply speechless with indignation when I came home at three in the morning."

"You always were lucky. Nothing like that ever happens in my house."

"Are the fish biting now?" asked the stranger.

"Yes," replied the boy. "But you ain't allowed to catch 'em."

"Do you mean to say you don't fish?"

"I don't exactly fish. But if a fish comes along and bites at me I do my best to defend myself."

Motor Boats.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good-Old Slaw."

A motor boat is a small, frail vessel, afflicted with a gasoline engine and an amateur mechanic. When the engine is in full cry and the machine is making threats, the boat sometimes develops a speed of fifty miles an hour in its efforts to get away from both of them.

Motor boats are used by men fond of machinery, and keep them from taking more valuable things apart and repairing them. When a man has a motor boat and two bushels of tools he is perfectly happy and will not stay at home Sundays and attempt to dissect the plumbing or repair the furnace or tune the piano or revive the door bell. A very small boat with an engine in it two sizes larger than an alarm clock will keep two strong men busy all summer, and will even prevent them from adding to the horrors of a presidential campaign by talking politics—for motor boats take precedence over politics or the cost of living when two boat owners are conversing.

A motor boat is very simple, unlike an automobile, and can be started very readily by putting in a new spark plug, adjusting the vibrator, replacing the carburetor, repairing the feed pipe, tightening the propeller, renewing the batteries and straining the water out of the gasoline. When this is all done the boat will start immediately and proceed with the utmost cheerfulness to a point eleven and three-quarter miles from civilization, at which place it will go into a state of coma for the rest of the day. The man who tries to navigate any motor boat, no matter how expensive, without an auxillary engine in the shape of a stout car, is not wise.

Some motor boats are very powerful and have engines of 400 horse power, not only in strength, but in noise and stubbornness. It takes as long to start these engines as it takes the United States Senate to get heated up over a bribery investigation, but when they are once in action the boat presents an inspiring sight as it leaps from wave to wave, throwing vast sheets of water on either side and sinking gloriously two miles from help. These boats are not comfortable, having only room for a mechanic and an accident policy, but they are the only craft made which are able to overtake a porpoise and fault him from the rear.

Motor-boating is a fascinating exercise, and when the engine can be persuaded to do its share of the work, it is also a pleasant recreation.

Your Boys and Girls.

Every child's room should have a private desk or table where he may write. Here he should have a stock of pens, penholders, pencils, pads and writing paper, and he should be trained to use these materials frequently. Such a bit of property helps him to cultivate neatness and order. If he evidences slovenliness at first, the mother should urge him to orderliness and inspect his desk until he has attained neatness.

It should be impressed upon him that this is part of his training, that as a man he will always need to keep his papers in place and in order, and that if he is to be in the employ of others, it will be to his advantage to have formed good habits in such matters.

The child will take pride in possession of his own desk and pens, and this will lead him to the cultivation of the use of pen and ink.

"If one has received an invitation to a wedding in a distant place and is unable to attend, is it correct, to send one's cards instead?" asked John.

"Yes, those who cannot attend a wedding should send their cards to the bride's parents or the person in whose name the invitation is issued, so that they will arrive on the day of the wedding," advised her father.
